Heavy Vote Expected In Floyd County Primary Election Saturday

Republicans To Hold Elections In Lockney And Floydada Saturday

Statutes Make It Necessary In Order to Keep Organization Intact in County.

Republicans of Floyd County will go through the formality of voting for party nominees for the various offices of the state next Saturday, printing of the ballots and arrangements for the election having been completed under the direction of T. C. Russell, Republican County Chairman the first of this week.

Arrangements have been made to have polls open at two voting places in the county—Floydada and Lockney—and nominees for all state offices, for congressman of the Eighteenth District and for county chairman will be voted upon. The name of E. E. Wells will appear on the ballot for county chairman, and S. E. Fish, of Potter County, will be on the ballot for the congressional nomination.

In most instances two or more candidates appear on the ballot as nominees.

The formality of holding primaries at least two boxes in the county is made necessary in order to maintain the party organization in the county. In all other counties of the state where it is desirable to keep up the organization the primary is necessary. The vote of the Republican party at the last general election passed 100,000 votes in the state, and the statutes require that in such case the party must hold a party primary in the following election year to determine their nominees for office.

The ballot in this county carries the statutory pledge of party fealty. "I am a Republican and pledge myself to support the nominees of this primary."

The same rules governing the holding of Democratic primaries and convention on the following Saturday, when the ballots are officially tabulated by the county executive committee, hold good also for the Republican party.

Co. Board Classifies Schools Of Floyd Co.

Name of Sunset District Changed To South Plains on Petition Of Trustees.

The Floyd County School Board in session Tuesday morning with a full membership present, classified for the forth-coming school year the common and consolidated schools of the county, setting out the maximum grades for which the schools had teaching force and facilities for handling. This classification of the school board, giving the highest grade which different districts may teach, is as follows: Trick District, tenth grade; Pleasant Valley District, seventh grade; Muncy District, eighth grade; Pleasant Hill, eighth grade; Fairview District, ninth grade; Starkey District, ninth grade; Aiken District, tenth grade; Sunset or South Plains District, tenth grade; Sand Hill District, tenth grade; Harmony District, eighth grade; Lakeview District, tenth grade; Fairmont, ninth grade; Center, ninth grade; Lone Star, ninth grade; Cedar, ninth grade; McCoy, ninth grade; Roseland, eighth grade; Dougherty, tenth grade; Baker, tenth grade; Antelope, ninth grade; Providence, eighth grade; Blanco, eighth grade; Allmon, eighth grade; Liberty, eighth grade; Prairie Chapel, tenth grade; Campbell, ninth grade; Ramsey, seventh grade; Hillcrest, seventh grade; Edgin, ninth grade; Sterley, tenth grade.

District Changes Name
While they were in session the board passed an order which automatically re-names the Sunset School District, the new name being South Plains Consolidated School District. This was done to make the name of the school district harmonize with that of the town which serves it. Petition for the change in the name was signed by all seven members of the Sunset School board.

Transfer Time Nears Close
The time for the transfer of school children from one district to another for school purposes is nearly over, Price Scott, County superintendent, pointed out this week. Transfer applications are expected to begin by August 1. Parents who have not made their applications for transfer, who wish to do so, should keep this fact in mind.

Members of the county school board present for the Tuesday morning session were E. C. Nelson, chairman; J. W. Howard, Precinct No. 1; J. F. Dollar, Precinct No. 2; J. H. Upton, Precinct No. 3; and Olin S. Miller, Precinct No. 4. The county superintendent is ex officio secretary of the board.

S. O. Adams Has 85th Birthday; Gets Two Cakes

S. O. Adams, Civil War veteran and resident of Floyd County for the past 16 years, celebrated his eighty-fifth birthday Sunday, July 20, and in commemoration of the occasion he was given a special party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hollis of Lakeview community.

Those present for the birthday dinner Sunday were as follows: Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Adams and son, J. L., Jr., of Amarillo; Fred Denham and family of Lubbock; Mrs. George Smith and daughters, Evelyn and Georgia, of Blanco; Mr. and Mrs. Hollis, and the honoree.

J. L. Adams is a son of S. O. Adams and made a special trip down from Amarillo to attend his father's birthday celebration. The menu for the dinner included among many other good things, fried chicken, pies, cakes, and ice cream, Mr. Adams said. Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Hollis each made a big birthday cake for "Daddy Adams."

Mr. Adams came to Texas 25 years ago, moving to the state from Georgia. He first resided in Ellis County. He enlisted in the Confederate Army at the age of 16 and served for four years. The last 18 months of service he spent under General Wheeler.

Sterley Bond Issue Not Approved; Delay Of Months Necessary

Declaring the enactment of the legislature which gave county school boards power to create new school districts was not sufficiently clarified in the minds of officials of the Attorney General's Department, the representatives of Sterley District were told last week-end in Austin that the plans for the new school at Sterley would have to await another session of the legislature of the state, when a validating law could be presented for enactment or the status of the county board's power could be more clearly defined.

R. W. Smith, Jr., and Price Scott made the trip to Austin in the interest of the district, when it became apparent that the Attorney General's Department would not approve the recent bond issue voted for the construction of a school at Sterley. "While expressing sympathy with the intentions of the people of the newly-created district to provide school facilities for the children of Sterley and that area of the county, the department said the statutes covering the situation were not sufficiently plain and they could not approve the bond issue until such time as the county board's powers were more clearly defined," Mr. Scott said here Tuesday. Several newly-created districts over the state have the same situation facing them, he said.

The school bond trambles will not affect the operation of the school for the year. The new district of Sterley was created this spring by the county board and following their action people of the district voted a bond issue for the construction of a school building and a dollar tax for school purposes. The district, when eventually made effective, will have an area of slightly more than twenty-six sections.

You're Invited

The Hesperian plans to hold its usual election party Saturday night of this week, giving the returns on a bulletin board in front of the office. Returns on county races will be tabulated by precincts as fast as they are received, and bulletins on the state races will also be posted every ten to twenty minutes.

Returns on the state races will be obtained through the Texas Election Bureau, the agency which gathers the returns for all the newspapers of the state, so that Floyd County people will have the last-minute figures on all the races all the time. The Hesperian has been designated as the agency for gathering and compiling returns from Floyd County for the Texas Election Bureau. The local Western Union office will be kept open until a late hour for the purpose of affording telegraphic reports to this office from the Bureau.

Rev. Claude Wingo, Pastor First Christian Church, Worked Up Book.

Distribution started this week on Floydada's first City Directory, compiled by the First Christian Church under the direction and personal supervision of Rev. Claude Wingo, pastor. The book contains 200 pages and contains a complete list of the residents of the city, a street directory, classified business directory, and a list of 1930 poll tax payers in Floyd County in addition to a concise and interesting history of Floyd County briefly by O. P. Rutledge.

Information of a general nature and interest is also given in an introductory section of the book. Advertisements from local merchants are carried, as well as full pages for the churches of the city.

The street directory is in a special section on pink colored paper.

All of the work, including the gathering of information, printing, assembling, and binding was done by Floydada people and is strictly a local product.

"Everyone seems to be mighty well pleased with the directory. They express the opinion that it will fill a need that has existed for some time," Rev. Wingo said. "I have only 150 more copies than those contracted for and I would like to urge everyone who wants a copy to see me or phone me at 324 as soon as possible," he explained. Straw Vote Here Shows Small In Lead; 'Ma' Next

Clint C. Small of Wellington will run first in Floyd County in the governor's race in the Democratic primary Saturday, July 26, if a poll taken in Floydada Monday afternoon is a true reflection of the political pulse of the citizenship of the entire territory. Former Governor Miriam A. Ferguson ran second, Tom Love, third, and Ross Sterling, fourth. Here's the way the vote went:

Clint C. Small	106
Miriam A. Ferguson	44
Thomas Love	13
Ross Sterling	5
Earle B. Mayfield	3
James Young	3
C. C. Moody	3

A total of 177 straw votes were cast in the "election" conducted by Dr. H. Z. Pennington for a state newspaper. He worked on the vote for two hours Monday and the results were posted on the front window of the Arwine Drug Company on the south side of the square.

"I made a canvass of the business section asking everyone to vote who would be qualified to vote in the Democratic primary Saturday, July 26," Dr. Pennington said. "If they did not have a vote coming Saturday I passed them up."

City Water Supply Approved Pure by Health Department

Floydada's water supplied from the city wells and distributed through the city mains is free from contamination of any kind, according to a report received Saturday by G. R. Strickland, city water superintendent, from the Texas State Department of Health. Six tests were made by Mr. Strickland and samples sent to Austin for an official check. The report signed by Dr. S. W. Bohls, director of the state laboratories, indicated that in every instance the water was free of contamination.

A previous test made by Mr. Strickland from the mains without regard or record of the point and the general test when examined at Austin gave unsatisfactory results, indicating a "dead" fire hydrant or improperly flushed mains.

With the cooperation of the Floydada Fire Department and Burl Bedford, city secretary, all the mains were thoroughly flushed Friday morning of last week with the booster pumps running 60,000 gallons through the entire distribution system, clearing out all possible stagnant points.

Six tests were then taken at widely separated parts of the city and notations made on the samples of the exact point of the test. Samples were taken at the following places: 814 South Main Street, 225 East Crockett Street, 312 West Kentucky Street, 101 West Missouri Street, city well, and 100 Twelfth Street. It was the six tests that were reported 100 per cent free of contamination following the laboratory examination at Austin by Dr. Bohls.

Mr. Strickland stated that he took one of the samples direct from the city wells so that the check would be complete in every respect. "We are well pleased with the results and are glad to make a report to the citizens that the city water is pure and free of contamination and that we are making every effort to keep it that way," Mr. Strickland declared.

During the period extending from June 20 to July 20 this year a decided increase in the consumption of water in Floydada was shown on the city records, Mr. Strickland pointed out. The increase over the same period last year was approximately three million gallons; in 1929 the total was 9,885,500 gallons as compared with 12,560,800 gallons this year in the same period.

"We have pumped more water this year due to the dry weather conditions that have been prevailing than we have pumped during any of the ten years I have been employed in the city water department," Mr. Strickland declared.

AUSTIN BUSINESS MAN PAYS VISIT TO FLOYD

H. M. Houston, prominent business man of Austin, was a visitor for a day in Floyd County Monday of this week, his first visit in some three years.

Mr. Houston is interested in three or four Floyd County farms, which he acquired several years ago.

Interest Livens As Last Lap Is Reached

Long Ballot Expected to Make Returns Slow Saturday Night.

The heaviest vote in the history of elections in Floyd County is anticipated Saturday of this week, when Democratic voters go to the polls to select nominees for county precinct offices and add their total to that of the other counties in the selection of state and district officers.

Interest Is Growing

The interest in the election which on the part of the voting population has seemed to be lacking during practically the entire campaign, came into evidence with a bang Saturday when everybody seemed to realize at the time that election day was only a week away. Local students of the political game declare that all the signs point to a heavy vote, likely the biggest ever.

Work on the farms has been completed, including the harvest, the stubble plowing and row crop cultivation, and the farming population has only to await the voting day to cast their ballots—and then see what happens Saturday night.

Long Ballots

The citizen who paid his poll tax this year and will take pen in hand Saturday to begin "scratching," will get a big bargain for money. The total number of names on the ticket is in excess of a hundred and in every precinct the voters will have more than 20 names to pass upon. The long names may also result in slow reports, although some election officials believe they will have the count ready soon after the polls close. Some experienced election holders, however, are of the belief that these are going to find the a bigger one than they anticipated.

Big Election Day Crowd

That Floydada will have an election day crowd is already indicated by the reports that come to The Hesperian office. "It will shine, the way the talk goes, going to vote early and come and see the fun." It will be a patient crowd that awaits the incomplete vote that will go to election boards around town Saturday after 7 Saturday evening.

The Hesperian is planning a usual election night party, at merchants on West Calhoun Street, working through The Plain man, have arranged an elaborate board for the county returns and will also flash state returns on screen for the information of the crowds expected in town. Several of the stores that serve the retail trade are planning to stay open all night, including at least two of the drug stores.

Floydada Youths Perched On Elevated Points Strive To Set Records In Novel 'Sitting Contest' Stunts

Scorching rays of a mid-summer sun, chilling nights characteristic of the Panhandle Plains, threatening clouds, and flashes of lightning have failed to daunt the Spirit of Youth and two Floydada lads, Jack Johnson and R. L. Barnes, are going right on carrying out their respective resolutions "to set a record" in sitting.

And both the local boys have unique ideas, for while the other sections of the entire United States are in the throes of a fad of tree sitting records and chimney sitting records the Floydada youngsters have something different—one is doing his act in a tower and the other on the roof of his dad's house.

Starting last Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock Jack Johnson, 8, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Johnson, 308 West Olive Street, is rapidly amassing an impressive total of hours spent "in the air." At 4 o'clock this Thursday afternoon he will have been in his tower house 96 hours.

West Hallie Avenue. Barnes took the materials up on the roof to build his look-out at 12 o'clock Monday and has not been down since, his total today at noon standing at 72 hours, just 20 hours behind his competitor, who is visible from the Barnes' home.

The Johnson boy has a screened-in "cabin" suspended 20 feet in the air on high posts and anchored by other wires. The tiny house is about four feet high, two feet wide, and five feet long, affording the occupant just room enough to move about and to stretch out and sleep but not of sufficient height to permit his standing up. A heavy tarpaulin keeps off most of the sun rays and keeps out the chill night air to an extent.

A small opening in front is used for the lowering of a rope and the pulling up of food, magazines, and other items of sustenance and entertainment. Jim Bob Johnson, 12, brother of Jack, is the main "ground crew" and it is his official capacity to answer the bell which signifies that the champion sitter is desirous of something or other. The bell, a large one of the cow variety (mama cow), is suspended inside the Johnson home between the kitchen and dining room and a cord attached to it runs to the look-out cabin and when Jack gives the string a "yank" the ground crew gets into action.

Jack was all elated yesterday afternoon because his dad, who constructed the tower for him, was going to fix him a platform with banisters to serve as a "front porch" to his aerial home and afford a means of stretching and exercising some tired muscles. During the past week he has had a crawl around on his hands and knees to get his exercise, but he is all fixed up now to "stay up four weeks," he declares.

Mrs. Johnson said that if her son did not come down before Sunday they were going to install a telephone in the tower for him, and even now he is faring splendidly, he maintains. His house is wired and he has electric lights at night. Hundreds of visitors have been to see Jack and several have brought him gifts, which seem to tickle his boyish vanity considerably. The plucky little adventurer glibly talked to his visitors yesterday and answered every question courteously.

Jack's mother said that she was feeding him plenty of fruit, vegetables, and milk. Mary Looper took the record seeker two books Wednesday, "Tillie the Toiler" and "Raggedy Ann." Mrs. C. P. Looper took him a sack of peaches, a sack of oranges, some chewing gum, and a Hershey bar. "The folks have been treating him mighty nice since he went up, and have been bringing him all kinds of things," Mrs. Johnson said.

Over 700 cars have driven by and over 400 people have paid Jack a social call, according to the tabulation of counting, he said. Folks begin to drive by about 6 o'clock every afternoon. Mrs. Johnson said.

Jack has a pair of field glasses and takes a peek at the business section of town whenever he gets tired of close-by scenes. He sleeps fine at night, he maintains, and does not awake in the mornings until around 9 o'clock. He sleeps so soundly Tuesday night that he did not know that lightning and clouds threatened rain for a time and that a slight shower fell.

The Mazaroff Mystery

by J.S. Fletcher

W.N.U. SERVICE Copyright 1930 by J.S. Fletcher

Illustrations by Irwin Myers

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—Mervyn Holt, bachelor world war veteran, is engaged, in London, by a man calling himself Salim Mazaroff, as a traveling companion. After a short tour the two put up at the Woodcock inn, on Mazaroff's moor. They meet, casually, Mrs. Elphinstone, and Miss Merchison, and later, Mazaroff informs Holt that they are his wife and daughter, who have long believed him dead. Mazaroff's right name, he tells Holt, is Merchison. He had left his wife shortly after their marriage, before the birth of the girl, of whose existence he had been unaware. That night Mazaroff falls to return to the hotel, and there is no explanation of his disappearance.

CHAPTER II.—Holt meets Miss Merchison—Sheila—and with her goes to her cousin's (Verner Courtin) shooting box, hoping to learn of Mazaroff's whereabouts. At Courtin's is a man named Armintrude and a London doctor, Beoleshara. They know nothing of Mazaroff. Police Sergeant Manners and a newspaper man, Bownas, question Holt. Mazaroff's body is found in "Reliever's den." He has been shot. The dead man's lawyer, Crole, with Maythorne, private inquiry agent, arrives, Crole having heard of his client's disappearance. He tells Holt Mazaroff carried diamonds worth a large sum, and was in the habit of making a display of them incautiously. Neither the diamonds, nor anything of value, are found on Mazaroff's body.

CHAPTER III.—Mrs. Elphinstone scoffs at the idea that Mazaroff is Merchison, and produces apparent proofs of his death. Maythorne finds something at the scene of the murder, and Crole, who had been found near the spot is identified as the property of Musgrave, landlord of Woodcock inn. It had been from him that Mazaroff had been secured.

CHAPTER IV.—Evidence at the scene proves Mazaroff was Mervyn Holt. He had made a few days of his death, leaving all his property, an immense amount, to Holt. Mazaroff had the will in his possession and it is missing. A shiftless character named Parslave is found to have left Mazaroff's moor hurriedly. From Mazaroff's papers it is learned that Mervyn Holt had been a close friend of Mazaroff's in South Africa.

CHAPTER V.—Kloop tells Crole Mazaroff had two remarkable diamonds in his possession. It is learned that he had offered to sell them to Lord and Lady Loekel. Lord Loekel says Mazaroff had one of the stones and Armintrude the other. Maythorne brings his clerk, Sheela, into the case as an inquiry. Sheela comes, alone, to Holt's rooms in London. Maythorne is there.

CHAPTER VI.—The girl has been missing, and which she is "taken" from her mother. Her father seems to link Mrs. Elphinstone with the murder. Maythorne produces a brooch, the one he had found at the scene of the murder. Sheela does not recognize it.

CHAPTER VII.—Parslave is seen on the street and followed to Eccleshare's house. A watch is kept of the place. Mr. and Mrs. Elphinstone come to London. The latter uses to make any explanation as her possession of Mazaroff's will. Armintrude explains he bought two diamonds from "Mazaroff," at Mazaroff's moor, and gives the purchase price to Holt, as "Mazaroff's."

CHAPTER VIII.—Sergeant Manners and a Scotland Yard man, Corkerdale, visit Maythorne. Manners tells him Parslave was seen the night of the murder, with Beoleshara, near the Merchison's body was found. Beoleshara's explanations completely exonerate himself and Parslave. Both men, however, declare they saw Mrs. Elphinstone at the scene of the murder, that night.

CHAPTER IX.—Mr. Elphinstone makes the announcement that his wife, Sheila, and Alison Murdoch, Mrs. Elphinstone's maid, have disappeared from their hotel. Short's Elphinstone identifies the brooch Maythorne had found at the scene of Merchison's death, as his wife's. He had bought two precisely alike brooches before, and given them to Mrs. Elphinstone and Maythorne, believing Mrs. Elphinstone murdered Merchison, puts his clerk, Cottingley, on her track, and, with Crole and Sheela, goes to Short's hotel seeking information. They learn a man whom nobody can identify in connection with the case had been seen to follow the three women when they left the hotel.

CHAPTER X.—Nothing is learned of the women for two days. Newspapers announce the finding of a married man in circumstances which convince Maythorne the victim is the man who had followed Mrs. Elphinstone and her companions. Holt and Manners recognize the body as that of the newspaper man, Bownas, who had been at Mazaroff's moor. Word comes that Mrs. Elphinstone and Sheila have returned to the hotel, and Holt, immensely relieved, goes at once to get an explanation of their disappearance.

CHAPTER XI.—It seems evident that Bownas had been tracking Mrs. Elphinstone. At Short's hotel Sheila tells the investigators she and her mother were kidnapped and held prisoners by Alison Murdoch, who has disappeared. She also gives them her mother's explanation of her possession of Merchison's will, and relates a story of an old feud between the Merchison and Murdoch families which convinces her hearers that Alison Murdoch is the sister of both Merchison and Bownas. There is a remarkable similarity of appearance between Mrs. Elphinstone and Alison Murdoch, and the brooch Maythorne had found is shown to have been the property of Mrs. Murdoch, the gift of Mrs. Elphinstone. This seems to be conclusive proof of the complicity of Murdoch in the slaying of Merchison.

CHAPTER XII

The Boat Train.
MAYTHORNE hurried out of the room, leaving me, still indignant and glowing, alone with the women. Presently Corkerdale had been whispering to Manners. "I've no doubt I've no doubt you'll be half professingly, half apologetically. "You're sweet on the young lady, as anybody with half an eye can see, and—"

"Leave the young lady's name out of the question, if you please!" I exclaimed. "And mine, too!" "But difficult to leave her out, isn't it?" he retorted, smiling. "After what we've just heard! I don't disbelieve her tale—not I!—though I'm more than a bit surprised that a young woman of her intelligence—clever girl!—should let herself be trapped in that fashion. Trapped she was, no doubt!—but I don't believe her mother was trapped!"

"What?" I exclaimed. "Why, you've just heard—"

"I've just heard what we've all just heard," he interrupted. "My opinion is that it was all a put-up job between Mrs. Elphinstone and this woman Murdoch, and that Miss Merchison has been taken in by both. I think that Mrs. Elphinstone went willingly to that house and stood the detention there—she wanted for nothing. You heard I wanted to know too much and to get dangerous, should be kept safe and quiet while the Murdoch woman got right away! And I'll lay all I'm worth to a penny that Murdoch knocked that chap Bownas on the head in that back alley, and that by now she's somewhere!"

"You don't think that Mrs. Elphinstone knew anything about Bownas?" I said. "Good Lord, according to you—"

"According to me, sir, Murdoch murdered Mazaroff, and Mrs. Elphinstone's well aware of it," he said determinedly. "There's what the lawyers call prima facie evidence of that, anyhow, and Manners here agrees with me! And we're not going out of this hotel until that doctor comes back and then we're going to see if Mrs. Elphinstone isn't fit to be questioned. And if she isn't—just yet—then we're going to stay on the premises till she is! So there!"

Before I could say anything the outer door opened and Maythorne stuck half his face inside the room.

"Holt!" he said. "I went to him; he drew me into the corridor and closed the door. "Message from Cottingley," he said in a whisper. "He's been carrying on a close investigation of steamship offices this last forty-eight hours, working like a nigger. And at last he's hit on something! This afternoon a woman, closely answering to the description I gave him of Alison Murdoch, booked two passages for New Zealand at the New Zealand Shipping company offices in Cocksour street, by their ship the Rimertaka, which leaves Southampton early tomorrow morning. The boat train is the ten o'clock tonight from Waterloo. Cottingley's down there—he's got a couple of detectives with him from the Yard; to save time he went there and told what he'd discovered. We'll get down there at once—the immediate question is—shall we tell the fellows inside? What do you think?"

"Corkerdale's just declared that he won't leave this hotel till he's questioned Mrs. Elphinstone," I replied. "He's going to wait for the doctor's return."

"Then come on!" he said. "It's now about nine-twenty—we shall be at Waterloo in plenty of time. Gad!—I shouldn't wonder if Cottingley's struck the trail at last!—I told you what a sharp chap he is."

We ran down to the entrance hall; outside there were two or three taxicabs standing about; Maythorne made for the first. "We'd better pull up a little short of Waterloo," he remarked as we got in. "Stop in York road, by the hotel there," he added to the driver. "You see Holt," he went on as we moved off southward, "if this woman is Murdoch, she'll know you from having seen you at the Woodcock; she may know me, though I don't remember her. So we must move warily; if she's accepting a total clear-out, the least thing will put her off. But—she booked two passages, this woman of whom Cottingley's heard. Now, for whom can the other be?"

"Can she have had an accomplice?—if this woman really is Murdoch?" I suggested. "She's had accomplices here in London in that Harrow road affair, without doubt," he answered. "May be the brother she spoke of to Mrs. Elphinstone and Miss Merchison. But as an accomplice in the Mazaroff business—now! If she had—"

He paused there and remained silent so long that at last I asked him what he was thinking about. "I was thinking this," he answered slowly. "This!—that if this woman Murdoch really murdered Mazaroff and had an accomplice, and if Murdoch is the woman who booked two passages for New Zealand this afternoon, and if it's all if, you see!—if the second passage is for the accomplice, why, then, we're probably going to have a very astounding surprise and revelation! But as I say, it's all ifs."

We got out of the cab at the corner of York road and walked quickly toward the big station. Before we were half way up the incline we met Cottingley. He was lounging along with his hands in his trousers pockets and a cigarette hanging loosely from the corner of his queer mouth, and he looked as phlegmatic and unconcerned as ever.

"Thought you'd come this way," he said as we passed. "You're in good time—twenty-five minutes yet. I should say she—they, I mean—won't turn up till the last thing. And all's ready. The only thing is, if this woman is the woman we think—Murdoch—who can recognize her positively?"

"Mr. Holt can," answered Maythorne.

Cottingley regarded me with speculative eyes—I fear I was not of any great account in his opinion. "Know her?" he asked. "Know her?" I answered.

Without another word he turned on his heel toward the front of the station.

"What's to be done is this," he said, walking between us. "The Southampton train leaves Number Four platform ten o'clock precisely. I've got two thoroughly dependable men from the Yard—had to go there and tell 'em everything, of course, if I meant to do any good—and they and I'll be on the platform. She'll not know us. Now, then, is there any fear of her knowing either of you?"

"The strong presumption," replied Maythorne, "is that she'll know us both."

"Very well," said Cottingley. "Then, this is what we do. I've already with the detectives, given the tip to the railway authorities—that there may be an important arrest, d'ye see? Now, I'm going to post you two just within the barrier, where you can't be seen. You'll keep there until the passengers begin coming through for the train. I shall be close by—the detectives will be a yard or two further on, in touch with me; there'll also be two or three railway police about, in case there's any bother. Now, if Mr. Holt there recognizes this Murdoch woman, he'll signal to me by lifting his hat the instant she passes him—and you can leave the rest to us."

"All clear!" said Maythorne. "We've got you, Cottingley."

We passed into the big brilliantly lighted station. Even at that late hour of the evening it was crowded. Cottingley moved swiftly ahead of us through the groups, passed us through a barrier with a whispered word to the man in charge, and suddenly twisting to his left, ushered us behind a big wooden partition, a few yards away from the gate whereat tickets were punched.

"Remember!" he said. "If it's the woman we want—up with your hat! But—be sure!"

That waiting was about as big a trial of my nerves as I had gone through—since I heard the last shots fired in Flanders. Folk came streaming in upon the platform; porters went by with piles of luggage; there were all the scenes and sounds, hurrys and bustlings, incidental to the departure of a big express bound for a great shipping center. But what we waited for—I with my eyes and throbbing

—you must see, doctor, that it's a question of duty," Corkerdale was saying as we came upon them. "I want some explanation from Mrs. Elphinstone—"

"There's no need now, Corkerdale," interrupted Maythorne, laying his hand on the detective's shoulder. "It's all over! We've got 'em—they're safe under lock and key."

Sheila uttered a sharp cry of surprise and Corkerdale turned quickly on Maythorne.

"Got 'em?" he exclaimed. "Who's got 'em?"

"Well, if you want to know, my clerk Cottingley—smartest man in Europe at your game!—he got 'em. With the help of your own people, to be sure. But the kudos is Cottingley's," replied Maythorne. "Top-hole capture."

"And who'd he capture?" demanded Corkerdale, almost incredulously. "Who?"

Maythorne glanced at Sheila. "Well," he replied, "there's no secret about it now. Two women! Alison Murdoch and Mrs. Musgrave. And there's no doubt about it, either—they had property belonging to Mazaroff and property belonging to Bownas on them—actually on them!"

Corkerdale turned to Manners, who, at the mention of Mrs. Musgrave's name, had opened his mouth and his eyes to their widest extent. "Oh, well!" said Corkerdale. "In that case, of course, I think we needn't wait to see Mrs. Elphinstone!"

It was some days before I myself saw Mrs. Elphinstone. At last I was admitted to see her. We exchanged a few conventional remarks about her state of health. Then she sat for some time in silence, steadily staring at me—staring so steadily that I began to feel uncomfortable. Suddenly she spoke. "I suppose," she said, "I suppose that you and Sheila will become engaged—eventually?"

I was amazed at the quickness, the dexterity, the absence of fun, in it. We had the two women into the little office close by, and the door locked, and the blinds down, before I had realized what was happening—as the key turned in the door I heard the whistle of the guard and the shriek of the engine as the ten o'clock sped out to time. And then I turned . . . to answer a question.

"That's Alison Murdoch—yes!" I said. "Yes—without doubt."

The senior detective turned to the other woman. She was leaning against a table; her breath was coming in short, sharp gasps; her whole frame trembled.

"Take off that veil!" snapped the detective. "Come on, now!"

We stood staring intently as the woman lifted a hand and divested herself of the thick veiling that had completely obscured her features. It fell aside—and it was from Maythorne, usually so cool and collected, that the first excited exclamation broke:

"Good G—d! Mrs. Musgrave!" Mrs. Musgrave burst into tears and turned on Alison Murdoch, who stood close by, grim and defiant.

"You said it would be all right!" she wailed reproachfully. "You swore to me that we were safe, this way! You said and said again and again that there wasn't the least chance of 'em catching us—"

"Hold your tongue!" you fool!" snapped Alison Murdoch.

I stood by, sick, wondering, while Cottingley, under the detectives' supervision, unlocked the women's valises and turned out their contents. There was money there in a surprising quantity—bank notes that had been Mazaroff's, of course—and there were diamonds, and Mazaroff's personal properties. And in Alison Murdoch's valise there was a gold hunter watch, within which was an inscription to the effect that it was a present to James Bownas from his colleagues.

"There's always something that these people forget," remarked Maythorne, when, a quarter of an hour later, he and I were driving back to Short's hotel. "Or, rather, some absolutely idiotic mistake they make. If Alison Murdoch hadn't thrown that will into the Elphinstones' library, it would have been hard to get at the real truth about Mazaroff, and if she hadn't been so covetous and grasping that she couldn't refrain from carrying off that poor chap Bownas' presentation watch, we should probably never have convicted her of murdering him. However—there they both are! But . . . Mrs. Musgrave!"

"Which of them shot Mazaroff?" I asked.

"Ah!" he replied, knowingly. "That's a stiff one, Holt! But—Mrs. Musgrave knows, and Mrs. Musgrave will tell. She'll not face it out like the other."

We hurried upstairs as soon as we reached Short's hotel—to find Corkerdale and Manners talking to the doctor and Sheila in an alcove that opened off the corridor. Corkerdale was evidently still indiscreet; the doctor looked somewhat annoyed and Sheila was obviously angry.

"You must see, doctor, that it's a question of duty," Corkerdale was saying as we came upon them. "I want some explanation from Mrs. Elphinstone—"

"There's no need now, Corkerdale," interrupted Maythorne, laying his hand on the detective's shoulder. "It's all over! We've got 'em—they're safe under lock and key."

Sheila uttered a sharp cry of surprise and Corkerdale turned quickly on Maythorne.

Picture those Gold Star mothers who travel across the ocean to lay their grief upon the marked graves of our country's heroes who never came back. Dougherty News

(By Mrs. W. D. Newell)

Dougherty, Texas, July 22—McAdoo—Dougherty roads being repaired. Commissioner Payne has had the road machinery at work on the McAdoo road south of Dougherty the past week. He is raising the grade across the lakes thus making an all weather road between McAdoo and Dougherty. Both communities will be benefited by this work.

Crops in this section of the county are holding up wonderfully despite the dry weather. The early feed of course is suffering worse, cotton however is thriving and beginning to bloom and make squares. We feel encouraged by the threatening clouds that keep coming around. It won't be but a few days until we will all have to dig out our old over-shoes, boots and raincoats, and hear the farmers say "if the rain don't let up the worms are going to ruin the cotton."

Say folks! we have only one more week left to transfer our school children. The Dougherty school board has been receiving a large number of transfers, and several more are expected within the next few days. It's everyone get behind our school this year and strive to make it a better and better school. With a co-operation on the part of patrons and patrons of the bonding districts, Dougherty will be made one of the important educational centers of Floydada, Floydada and Lockney reporting crowded conditions in schools, so why not arrange to relieve the situation by delegating a school to take care of their needs.

ANOTHER FINE VICTORY WON BY NEW KONJOLA

Lady Was About To Give Up Hope of Finding Escape From Stubborn Ills.

MRS. FLORA STANLEY

No wonder Konjola has won a million friends; no wonder seven million bottles were used in two years! Would you not like to know all about the medicine that wins such triumphs? Ask your druggist about it, but right now before you do anything else, read the words of Mrs. Flora Stanley, 315 North Mc-Masters street, Amarillo, Texas. Praising Konjola, Mrs. Stanley says:

"I was in miserable health for five years, the result of stomach, kidney and liver disorders. My back ached terribly and my feet and ankles were badly swollen. Gas formed after each meal, and I endured awful pains. Dizzy spells and bilious attacks were other sources of distress. My husband insisted that I try Konjola, and now I have a good appetite, food digests as it should, dizziness and biliousness are gone and my weight is back to normal. We will always recommend Konjola after what it did for us."

Konjola does work swiftly, yet a full treatment of from six to eight bottles is advised for best results.

Konjola is sold in Floydada, Texas at Floydada drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

SORRY, MR. WRIGHT

S. H. Wright says a Hesperian reporter is going to get his newspaper in bad some of these days by promiscuous mis-use of the initials of the Wright's in this county. There are getting to be several Floyd County Wright's. One of these—J. M. Wright—is a deputy sheriff, and other—S. H. Wright—is in the poultry business, and there are others as well.

"You fellows over there keep speaking of S. H. Wright as deputy sheriff, when you mean J. M. Wright Now, Deputy Sheriff Wright is getting offended and I'm getting a little hostile myself. No good poultry dealer wants folks to think he's got a deputy sheriff around his place and a deputy can't afford for folks to think he is in the poultry business. So if you can't cut it out, getting us mixed up, Mr. Wright and myself are going to be down at your office some bright morning with a writ of habeas corpus, sequestration, or something and there'll be some newspapermen hunting for all timber," the poultry dealer said. The deputy sheriff was not seen for an interview as regards the matter. In fact, the reporter expressed himself as willing to let the matter drop at any time.

Miss Reva Mae Sanders of Birome, who has been visiting the past three weeks with her aunt Mrs. H. O. Cline and other relatives left last Friday for her home.

Mrs. D. A. Ford and daughter, Mrs. J. T. Ashford and her son John T. Jr., of Lubbock, came Sunday and remained until the middle of the week with Mrs. I. W. Hicks and family. Mrs. Ford is the mother of Mrs. Hicks and Mrs. Ashford is her sister.

Mr. and Mrs. Harp Kight of Claude spent Sunday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Dickey and other relatives. Mr. Kight is a nephew of Mrs. Dickey.

Mr. and Mrs. Neville Talkington of McKinney are spending this week visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. L. Talkington.

Constipation Troubles

"I HAVE used Black-Draught as a family medicine for a good many years," says Mrs. Sallie Laughrun, of Hunt Dale, N. C. "I have found it an excellent remedy for constipation and the troubles that follow it. I have suffered frequently from gas pains, and when I am bothered that way I begin at once to take Black-Draught. Relief follows quickly. I give Black-Draught to the children when they are constipated, and it is not long until they are running around again." Thousands of others have reported good results from the use of this purely vegetable medicine. Insist on the genuine Theford's

TO THE VOTERS OF FLOYD COUNTY

In view of the fact that the duties of office have occupied a large per cent of my time during the past several months it has been impossible for me to see a large portion of the voters without neglecting the duties imposed on me by law and which I cannot delegate to any one else.

Therefore I am taking this opportunity to express to each of you my sincere thanks for the support you have given me in the past and trust that the service I have rendered since I have occupied the office of County Judge has met your approval and that you have not in any way had reason to regret your action in this matter.

Floyd County is now a $13,000,000 corporation with a growing business which I believe needs as its chief officer a man thoroughly familiar with every detail of its activities and thoroughly capable and willing to assume the responsibilities imposed by this position.

If after thoroughly considering each of the aspirants for this honor you see fit to honor me with your vote on July 28th I pledge myself to administer the affairs of Floyd County in a safe, sane and business like manner and along the same lines I have heretofore followed.

Yours For Service,
Wm. McGEHEE

PEOPLE STILL READ THE ADVERTISEMENTS, HE SAYS

People still read the advertisements, Elza Gullion of Gullion & Son, declares. Answers direct from an ad used in The Hesperian last week were the most prompt he has had from an advertisement since he has been in business, he declared. The advertisement appeared shortly afternoon, and before 4 o'clock he had made three tire sales and answered four inquiries, as a result. "People are still reading newspapers, it looks like to me," Elza said. "I never had quicker results from an advertisement even in flush times than I got from that one."

Gullion & Son are Federal tire distributors for this section.

Mr. and Mrs. R. I. Teple and daughters, Mildred and Wanda, and son, Layton, left the first of last week for Waco where they will spend a few weeks visiting relatives. Clarence Anderson of Silvertown spent the week-end here.

"ASK YOUR NEIGHBOR"

The Community Yardstick

Is it a good place in which to bring up a child? That is the acid test applied to any town.

How can we find the answer? By using the community yardstick—which provides a three-way test of the factors that have a direct bearing upon child life in the community. It will take but a few minutes to measure our community with this yardstick and ascertain whether or not this is a good place to bring up children. Here are the acid tests

1. Do We Give Our Babies a Fair Chance to Live?

GOOD In order to attain the rating "Good" the infant death rate of a community should not exceed five deaths, during the first year, out of each one hundred babies born alive.

FAIR Any community in which the infant mortality exceeds seven and one-half deaths during the first year, out of each one hundred babies born alive, would be rated as "Fair."

POOR This low rating is applied only to communities where the conditions have reached the disgraceful state where there are ten or more deaths of babies, during the first year, out of each one hundred born alive.

The infant of today is the citizen of tomorrow—it is deserving of a fair chance. The safeguard of infant life is the least a community can guarantee. Baby deaths are largely preventable.

2. Do Our Children Receive an Education to Fit Them for Life?

GOOD This rating is secured by communities who have safeguarded their future citizenship by seeing that at least seventy-five out of every one hundred children of school age are attending schools.

FAIR Whenever only sixty children out of every one hundred children are attending schools the community is given a rating of "Fair."

POOR This rating is applied to communities where the citizenship has failed in its responsibility to the children to such an extent that less than one-half of the children of school age are attending schools.

What greater handicap can be placed upon a child in its preparation for life, than the lack of an education. Every American boy and girl deserves the chance to go to school.

3. Do Our Incomes Provide the Proper Standard of Living?

GOOD The rating "Good" may be applied to a community where 90% of the families are enjoying an annual income of more than $2,000 per year.

FAIR A community where 90% of the families receive an income annually of from $1,800 to $2,000 is entitled to a rating of "Fair."

POOR This rating is given to communities where a low standard of living is found; where the income of 90% of the families is $1,500 or less.

Every community should seek to provide sufficient incomes for at least ninety per cent of its families so that they may secure the comforts for their children that lead to a healthy and happy childhood and youth.

Folks, these "acid tests" put the problem squarely up to us. Your ideas will be of interest to others. Let's talk it over. No matter how good our standing, it may be bettered, but only through the co-operation of all in

THE CHINESE ELM

If the Chinese elm is not as disappointing as some of the other species of trees which have been cutting stuck in the ground. With the ash and the silver leaf maple, this type of elm, it appears, is going to help make these plains of ours more shaded.

THE COMMUNITY YARDSTICK

The acid test of any community is—"Is it a good place in which to bring up a child?"

We must remember the babies of today are the men and women of tomorrow—those who will carry on when we will have relinquished the tasks, both great and small.

Other nations are making the question of birth and rearing children a paramount issue. If our nation is to maintain its leadership in years to come as is the case at the present time, every community in this land must rigidly apply the acid test—"Do We Give Our Babies a Fair Chance to Live?"

If our rating is above the average as shown in the Community Yardstick Page elsewhere in this issue, wherein, our business and professional men have made this information possible, well and good—let's keep it there; if it is not up to the standard, by all means we should lose no time in taking steps to put it there.

We must consistently bear in mind the three essential factors in determining what we are doing for child life in this community.

- 1. Do we give our babies a chance to live? 2. Do our children receive an education to fit them for life? 3. Do our incomes provide the proper standard of living?

On first reading, they seem to be very simple questions. But the more carefully they are studied, the more thoroughly they are applied to our own community, the greater their importance becomes.

For Floydada to succeed and prosper, we should strive to become an ideal community in which to bring up children. We have made progress, we have adopted measures that have a great bearing upon improved conditions for our children. But we are still a long way from our goal.

Let us measure our progress with the Community Yardstick and then chart our course. Let us strive to make Floydada an ideal place in which to bring up a child.

There are many parents in Floydada whose only contact with their children's school is the child itself. Perhaps they have never even set foot inside of the school that trains their child.

We need an awakening of public conscience in this community toward our schools. We need a greater co-operation between the parents in Floydada and our teachers. A greater co-operation between school and home means the training of a finer group of our youth has become almost our largest and certainly our most important activity.

Each year has found an increasing interest on the part of the citizens of this country in education. This is evidenced by the fact that although the population of the nation has increased approximately 8 per cent during the past nine years, we have witnessed a 14 per cent increase in the number of children in our grade schools and a 70 per cent increase in the number of children in our high schools.

In spite of this tremendous growth in school attendance and investment, many educators tell us that the adult population of this country are not taking the active interest in educational matters that the importance of the subject deserves.

This week's community campaign deals with this important factor in community life—the school. It presents some figures that are worthy of study. Equality of opportunity is the right of every child in Floydada, and every adult whether a parent or not, should be interested in educational matters, for the way our young people are trained determines the citizens they are to be.

With Old Battleaxe (Himself)

Old Battleaxe has for several years done his dead level best to help the Hesperian render the very best service to the public possible.

Saturday is election day, and most everybody will go to the polls and vote agin' somebody.

I don't believe that there ever was anybody that wanted to lose a vote. It's just human nature for us all to change our vote if we find out that we are going to lose it.

Tom Love and Ma Ferguson are sure to go into the second primary, unless, of course, one or both of them are nosed out by Sterling, Putman, Clint Small, Loven, Barry Miller, "Soapy" Moody, Jim Young, Earl Mayfield or C. E. Walker.

But here's a hard one, folks. Somebody is going to get elected in the very first primary to a seat in congress from this district.

And here's a dead-ringer for the district judge's office. Unless Kenneth Bain, Jeff D. Ayres or H. A. C. Brummett poll more votes than both of their opponents put together, there is going to be a run-off in this race.

Believe it or not, folks, my dear friend, Jack Polley is going to be elected in the very first go-around. Vote for Jack for District Attorney, folks, and you shore won't lose your vote. Just back my judgement.

As for the county officers, I never sweated so much in all my life as I did in getting this all doped out for you folks.

To start off with, I'm going to have J. N. Stallbird, M. H. Taylor, J. S. Solomon, D. C. Lowe and R. C. Covington all elected in the very first mix-up.

I've saved you folks a whole lot of worry about this here district clerk's job, too. Roy O'Brien is shore to get elected in the first primary, unless T. P. Quinmarin gets more votes than Roy does.

For county judge, I've done got it all thinned down to three men, J. W. Howard, W. H. Henderson and Wm. McGehee.

Tom Deen can't possibly lose the county clerk's race, unless J. P. Davidson gets elected in the first primary. And Mrs. Merrick is shore to get elected in the first in-ning, unless Mrs. Porterfield polls more votes than Mrs. Merrick does.

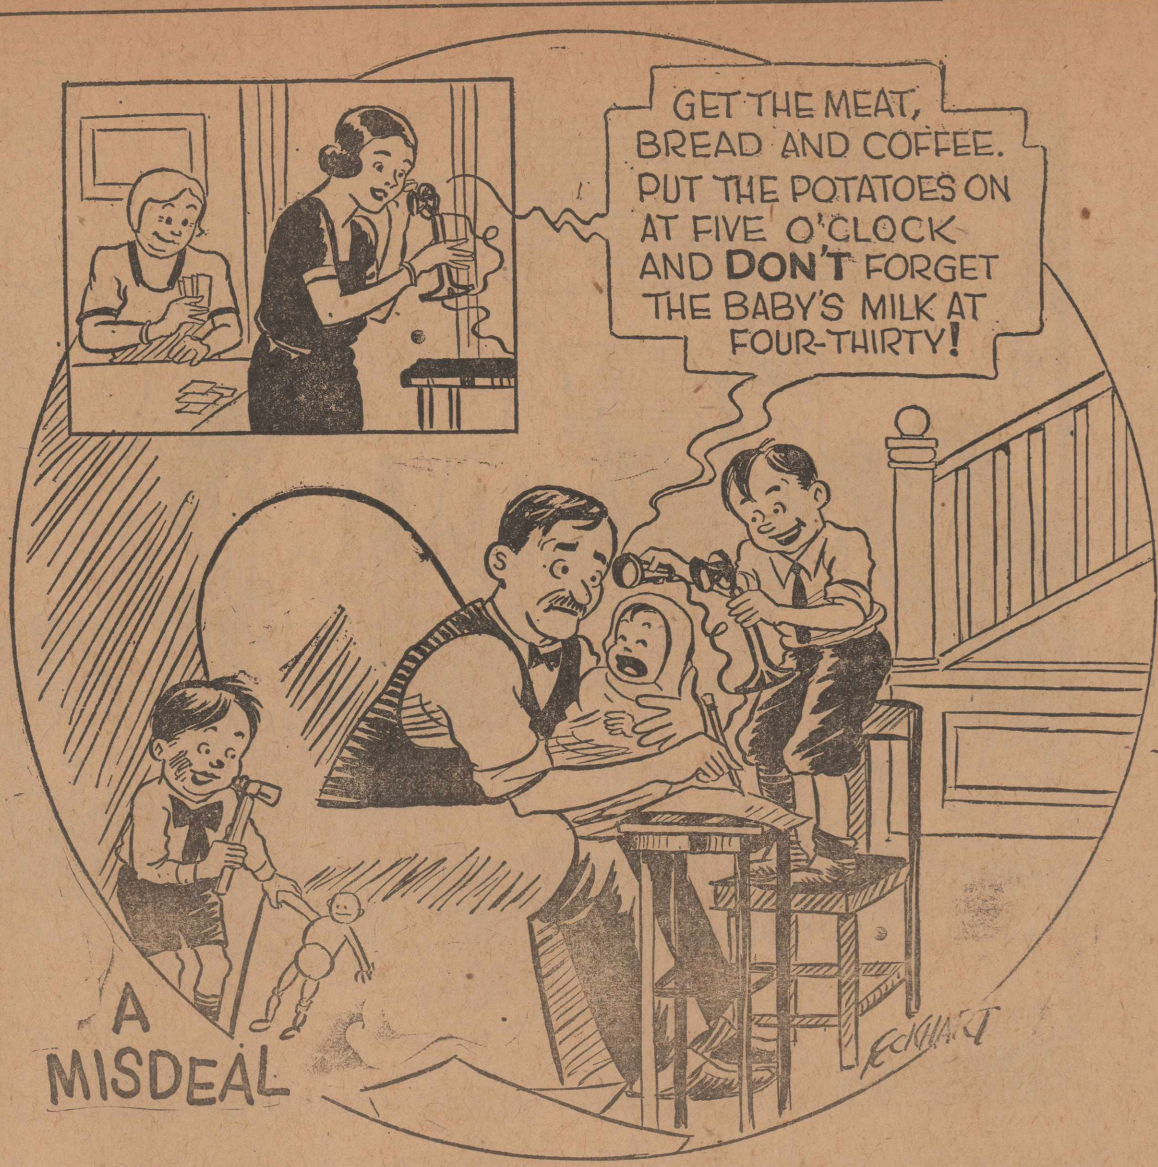

Bob Sone is a sure bet for the County Attorney's office but the ritory served by Floydada will reach very close to 100,000 bushels. To be exact 24,104 bushels of wheat have been forwarded from Floydada in this writing.

F. P. Gibson, of Dallas, is opening a racket store in the First State Bank store room facing on Missouri Street.

We're shore going to have a good sheriff next term. I've just about decided to let P. G. Stegall be re-elected to this gun-totin' job in the first round, but still, I may let J. A. Grigsby or Fred Clark be the lucky man.

As for the county superintendent's office, I'm going to relieve you folks of another big worry. You are going to have two big chances to save your votes in this race.

Jodie Day is going to be elected to handle the job as Tax Assessor, if he is not nosed out by A. A. Tubbs or Roe McCleskey.

As I said before, folks, we are always trying to serve our readers, but I just don't think that it would be fair to the government to tell you folks just how to vote for every office, so I just ain't going to tell you how to vote for the commissioners.

Outside of the commissioners, it's all settled, folks, and you all just can't go wrong to vote as I have told you to. Old Battleaxe is shore right this time, and if you folks will follow my advice, you won't lose a single vote.

A Sidewalk Review Mostly About People And Personalities In Floyd County.

By The Cowhand Scribe

Well, well, well, well, got some good news for the folks.....just got an invoice for a great, big rain and it won't be long getting here for it's on the way.....just wait and see.....noticed Jake Hill going down the street eating an ice cream cone.....Floyd Cash and Ocie Husky got in the wagon and rode out with the Cowhand to see the Floydada entry in the tower settin' contest and the lad in the elevated contraption seemed to be doing a right good job of it.....

Maurice Burke, formerly of this city and now of Dallas writes in that he went out squirrel hunting the other morning and killed 26 fine ones.....Maurice said that squirrels always run to nuts and all that he had to do was just to shoot and protect himself.....Maurice is a real sportsman and when he lived up here on the Plains always went after the ducks and quails and brought them in, too.....gee, did you ever go down on the creek early in the morning and hear the squirrels barking and see them frisking from limb to limb.....give back the days when a long walk down the banks of a creek on a squirrel hunt could be ended up with a plunge in a cold, clear, sparkling stream.....no bathing suit, no nothing but Nature's own.....oh skinny, them wuz the days.....

Business principles are changing and business comes to the fellow these days who goes out and gets it.....a new idea of things has evolved and the business world is adjusting itself rapidly to the new scheme.....things will begin to hum when everyone gets acquainted with the outlay, just wait and see.....wonder how the new Austin automobiles are selling.....they are the new type, you know, similar to foreign-make cars in size, small and light.....the candidates are on the home stretch now and this weekend will tell just who is who.....wait and see.....didja ever have your wife give you a good "raking over the coals" for being late to a meal, huh.....didja.

Macyl Burke Writes Graphic Account of Trip to France

Former Floydada Boy Tells Of Experiences

Exclusive Series of Articles Begin In Hesperian This Issue.

(Editor's Note: Following is a graphic report by Macyl A. Burke of Dallas, former Floydada boy, who is making a sketching tour of France, of the incidents connected with the trip and his experiences. This material was taken from notes jotted down in a notebook and later mailed from France to Maurice Burke, a brother, in Dallas and then direct to The Hesperian as an exclusive news feature.)

The account of the trip will be given in serial form, being continued from week to week. This is the first installment and the second will appear next week. Clip the stories out and save them; if you miss a copy call at the office — they're interesting and certainly worth reading.)

Sunday, May 24, 1930—Came on board the Oxelosund, a Swedish freighter from Stockholm, about 8 a. m., Friday, May 22. Didn't lift anchor until a little after 10 on account of a rain that was falling. We boarded at Port Arthur, Texas, after coming from Austin the day before by train and interurban. Got in touch with a Mr. Baker who works for the Gulf Company at Port Arthur. He picked us up at the hotel at 6:30 Friday morning and took us to the boat, introducing us to the captain and talked him into taking us.

We helped cast off the lines, then the first mate told me I was off until 1 p. m. Not getting much sleep the night before I went to my bunk and rested. At 1 o'clock I went on duty and washed down the outside of the front cabins. Did this for an hour and 40 minutes and then went to the bridge where the third mate showed me how to steer; did this another hour and 40 minutes and then went back to scrubbing and knocking rust off the beams on the front hatch.

Eats Three Bites

Then we were off at 7 p. m. Had about 40 minutes just before 5 p. m. for coffee time. For lunch we had some dried meat and a large plate of turnips. I ate three bites and couldn't keep that down. For supper we had some kind of hot cake mixture and preserves that I didn't attempt to eat; just drank water. Went to bed a little before 8 o'clock and had to go on watch at midnight and stay until 4 a. m.

The watch is divided into three periods; first, I went up on the forecastle head 'way up in front. This is for the lookout to see that we don't run into any ships. There is a bell up there. If you see anything on the starboard side you ring one bell—that is the right side. Two bells for the portside and three bells for straight ahead. Time is also kept by bells. 1 o'clock is two bells; then you ring three bells for 1:30; 2 o'clock is four bells; 3 o'clock, six bells; 4 o'clock, eight bells. Then you start over again: 5 o'clock is two bells; 6 o'clock, four bells; 7 o'clock, six bells and 8 o'clock, eight bells. Then 9 o'clock is two bells, 10 o'clock is four bells, and 11 o'clock is six bells and 12 o'clock is eight bells.

For breakfast the second day we had plain rice and some yellow stuff (I found out later that they called it "curry"). One of the boys said it was chop suey. I took one bite of the rice and shot it across the mess hall and it sounded like buck shot when it hit the floor. For lunch we had fish and something; I did not even try to eat it. For supper sausage and baked potatoes. I passed this also.

Gets Real Meal

Sunday morning we had two eggs, bacon, and American fried potatoes which I went into with much gusto, being the only time I have been able to eat in three days. One of the boys got me three apples. I ate one and am saving the other two in case I can't eat the lunch. They are small cooking apples but they are the best things I ever tasted. My breakfast is staying with me all right, so I guess I will feel better tomorrow.

We only work fourteen hours a day. One day we go on at 8 o'clock in the morning and work until 1 p. m. We are then off until 7 p. m.; on again from 7 until 12 o'clock. We are relieved until 4 a. m. Believe me it is no little job getting up at 4 a. m. We stay on then until 8 a. m. We are then off until 1 p. m. At 1 o'clock in the afternoon we go on duty and stay until 12 midnight; we sleep from midnight until 4 a. m. and then work until 8 a. m. Quite a schedule but there is not much else to do and you certainly can't quit and go back.

Rests Some Sunday

I am writing this Sunday morning as this is my morning off. Sunday we do nothing but take turns at the wheel. If anyone had told me last Sunday that I would be steering a steamship I would have told them to go jump in the ocean. The crew are all Swedes with the exception of four and they are Norwegians. Only four of them can speak English. We have the captain, first, second, and third mates. All of them are fine fellows and ask a million questions about our country but I guess I ask as many as they do. The first mate is very proud of Stockholm. He says we must not miss it. It has a population of 500,000 and if it is all he says it is it is some place. He says the Swedes are the highest civilized people in the world. They are all too educated, too many doctors, engineers, etc. He said the average doctor didn't make but $40 a month. They all ask about the cowboys and Indians. They have all read Buffalo Bill.

Nearly every one put out a washing this morning. Something is getting scrubbed around here all the time and it still doesn't smell so hot.

(Watch for next week's installment in which Macyl tells of seeing a school of flying fish and many other interesting side-lights on his trip to France on a freighter.)

CONGRESSMAN MARVIN JONES

In the coming primary, the Democrats of the Eighteenth Congressional District, composed of Fifty-three Northwest counties, will no doubt show their appreciation of a conscientious, wise and capable servant by voting for Marvin Jones for Congress.

Mr. Jones was first elected in 1917 and has served continuously since that time. By native ability and through industry and experience he has become one of the most effective and highly respected men in the House.

If the entire House of Representatives were composed of men like Marvin Jones the standing of the National Congress would be a source of general pride. Mr. Jones does not seek the limelight. He does not speak merely to get into the record, but when he does speak he has something to say, and the members of the House always listen to him.

Mr. Jones has had very little opposition, and in the few instances when it has developed his opponent has accepted defeat with little surprise, and everybody seemed to have a good time. His merit is recognized, and each added year finds Mr. Jones more strongly entrenched in the confidence and esteem of his constituents. Even those who disagree with him occasionally on national questions are proud of the manner in which he serves all of the people of the district, and of the record he has made.

The people of the Plains are always glad to support Marvin Jones. The Herald-Perryton. (Political Advertisement)

Thin, Pale, Weak

"I HAD been through a bad spell of sickness which left me very weak," says Mrs. Virginia Spruce, of Stapleton, Va. "I was pale and felt lifeless, and my strength did not return. I spent most of my time on the bed. I was very nervous, and the least thing upset me. I did not have strength enough to lift a broom. At times I would have had headaches, which would hurt me until I could hardly see.

"Someone asked me why I did not try Cardui. I had read of it, so I thought I would see what it would do for me. It was really remarkable how I came out. My strength returned, and my health was better than it had been in years. I gained in weight about ten pounds. My color was good, and I ceased to suffer from headaches. I have told my friends about Cardui because I was benefited after taking it."

Revival Meeting Grows In Interest, Numbers

The revival meeting now being conducted by Thos. E. Millholland of Denton, Texas, is growing in interest and numbers at each service. The singing led by the local minister, H. P. Cooper, is exceptionally good. The services begin promptly at ten a. m. and eight thirty p. m. each day. A very earnest desire on the part of the members of the church of Christ in this city is that their friends and neighbors attend these services.

The sermons are delivered in all kindness and spiritual fervor. The evangelist is pleading for a return to the simplicity and love, zeal and spiritual power of the old time camp meeting when our fathers and mothers sang "A Charge to Keep I have, God to glorify, A never dying to save and fit it for the sky." day services are a real feast to the soul.

The local minister, brother Cooper requests that anyone not having a copy of conveyance, will report to him. It will be a pleasure to furnish a way to all who desire to attend meeting, the minister said. Evangelist is not of the modern thriller type. There is no effing big part of the preacher to little excite the audience. He the light to the heart of the church the pure plain old story can nd His Love. The meeting educator next week.

Dick O'Brien, Pastor

Our slump in Sunday school attendance proved to be only temporary, as there were 438 present last Sunday as against 357 the Sunday before. Also the B. Y. P. U. spirit was up to normal again.

We enjoyed the stay at Ralls for the past two weeks during which time we have been preaching in a revival meeting. The meeting grew in attendance and power from the very first service. Scores were turned away from the church for the last service on Sunday night. There were more than 50 conversions and reclamations during the meeting. The pastor baptized a large number in the beautiful new baptistry at the close of the Sunday night service. The Ralls church has one of the finest and most commodious buildings in the west, with all modern equipment for Sunday school and B. Y. P. U. work. The pastor, Rev. J. Matt Hale, has been with the church three years and is held in very high esteem by the church and community.

Next Sunday we expect to have all regular services with the pastor in the pulpit at both hours. In the morning we expect to continue our studies in the book of Genesis and at night the message will be

Sunday School Lesson

WOMAN'S INFLUENCE

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for July 27. Woman's Influence in Community and National Affairs. Judges 4:1-10.

We are apt to think of woman's active participation in public affairs as of relatively late date, coming to its climax only during the last few years. Perhaps, however, few things are more remarkable in history than the way in which, despite the general relegation of women to a place inferior to man, women have, none the less, achieved conspicuous leadership and rendered profound service.

Here is a crisis in the affairs of Israel, in a time of unsettlement, when Israel was surely in need of leadership, it is interesting to find the chief leadership entrusted to a woman. Deborah, we note, was also a married woman. Whatever her personal or home obligations may have been, they had become enlarged by the strength and richness of her character, for she was not only a leader in the civil life—a judge of Israel, but she was a prophetess. It was her prophetic vision and messages that had no doubt given her her pre-eminence in the nation.

"Sure," I says, "and your wife could run the house without a modern corn planter."

Well, sir, that started him to thinking. He got to figuring how he could make his wife a real nice present of a Delco-Light plant—and get the benefit of having electricity in the barn himself. Now he's got it. And, say! He's the proudest man in three counties. Says if he'd known what Delco-Light would do for him he'd have got it for her ten years ago.

The Source of Her Power

It is rather a stately picture that we have of her dwelling under the palm tree that had become associated with her name—a notable tree in the hill country of Ephraim, whither the children of Israel came to here for judgment.

The influence of good women has never been greater than when it has been exercised upon men, and Deborah's power seemed to lie largely in her capacity to inspire and guide others. She called Barak and gave him a military commission to go to Mount Tabor and take with him ten thousand men to fight Sisera, a captain of Jabin's army, who had nine hundred chariots of iron, and who for twenty years had "mightily oppressed the children of Israel."

Barak was not altogether ready for his task. He evidently feared the greatness of the power which Deborah was urging him to fight; but he had profound faith in Deborah, so much so that he declined to go without her; but he agreed to go if Deborah would accompany him. Deborah did not depend merely upon womanly influence, she was a woman of decisive action. She announced her readiness to go with Barak, though she also rebuked his lack of manfulness by reminding him that he should have no honor out of the encounter, as Sisera would fall through the hand of a woman.

The upshot of the whole matter need not be fully dwelt upon. Deborah's prediction fell true, and Sisera succumbed to assassination at the hand of Jael whose vigor and determination rather than her womanliness seemed manifest in the driving of a nail into Sisera's skull.

It must be remembered that the whole period was one of unsettlement when the life of Israel was in some measure disorganized, and there was a lack of that patient religious enthusiasm characteristic of the people in their highest experiences. It is against this background of a people lacking faith and courage and weak under oppression that Deborah's own faith and power of action stand out.

Two-Material Suit Adds Loveliness,
Individuality to Summer Clothes

BY HARRIET

Using printed materials in an individual way is a real test of one's imagination.

Some of the loveliest summer things are the result of this two-material idea. Using the print as the body of a dress, with plain touches, or vice versa, is the usual order of things.

Newest of all is the two-material suit that uses plain material for the skirt and makes the jaunty little jacket of figured fabric.

Some of these jackets are gaudy in their designs, using plaids, checks and stripes in sportive effects. Others are demure but richly embroidered in delicate floral pattern.

One suit of handkerchief linen has its skirt white, bordered in lavender, and its entire coat made of alternating strips of lavender and white, fagotted together.

For mid-summer sporting events, the polka dotted and plain crepe suit is new and very smart.

One of these has plain light blue crepe for its gored skirt and a double-breasted jacket of the light blue polka dot material, lined with plain silk to match the color. The jacket is neatly tailored, fits perfectly, has a deeply notched collar, in masculine cut. It is finger-tip length. With this suit a white silk shirt is worn and a polka dotted silk tie, exactly the shade of the suit. Either a plain white or a plain blue beret tops it in style.

One of the newest tricks to make a printed dress individual is use of over-collars and over-cuffs. These are quite a new invention. They are made with finished strips that fit back under the collar line and wrist line and snap onto the frock. No sewing. Just laundering and replacing by snapping. Really, they are a boon to the girl who wants to look her neatest all the time.

A very smart illustration of this idea is a finely printed red and beige crepe frock, made with a bolero outlined with a pleated frill of the same material and a deeper frill posed at low pleup line around the skirt. Below this a deep pleated flounce gives grace to the frock.

W. C. Wright and son, Gene of Long Beach, California, who with Mrs. Wright have been here visiting her mother, Mrs. Lula Slaughter, and other relatives, left Sunday for their home. Mrs. Wright remained for a longer visit. Mr. Wright and son were accompanied home by Melvin Slaughter who will spend the winter with them and attend school.

Mrs. Cella Ross returned Monday from Amarillo where she had spent the past week visiting her daughter Mrs. E. C. McReynolds and family. Her little granddaughter Mary Edwin McReynolds returned home with her.

At the left you see how well blue and white polka dotted crepe combines with plain blue for a sports suit. Red and beige print makes a smart frock with ruffles and lingerie touches, as shown at the right.

The collar and cuffs are made of the impression of a jabot. The cuffs slope upward, almost reaching the elbow on the outside. They fasten shut with little buttons made of the frock's material, on the inside.

Mr. and Mrs. Otis Harris and children of Harlingen were here last mid-week visiting his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Shurbef. Mr. and Mrs. Harris also visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Harris, of Lockney, former residents of this city. Otis is district manager of the C. E. Stone Company Chain Stores in the Rio Grande Valley district and was here while on his vacation.

T. S. Guimarin and daughters, Misses Lillie May and Beatrice, of Olney came Tuesday evening for a visit of several days with his parents Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Guimarin and other relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Manasco, Miss Honora Childers and Robert Ashly Childers made a trip to Plainview Sunday.

BORN—to Mr. and Mrs. D. Ferguson, of Dougherty, a daughter, July 11.

Mrs. W. L. Boerner, who was quite ill for several days, is able to be up this week.

J. A. Conner of Silverton arrived Monday to spend a few days with his son, S. F. Conner, and family of this city.

Miss Minnie Alexander of Paducah has accepted a position with Smith & Smith Sanitarium as nurse.

Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Hale of Ralls were in town with Mr. and Mrs. Joe Smith Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Small and little daughter of Amarillo were in Floydada a short time Monday. Mr. Small is a brother of Clint Small, candidate for governor.

Mrs. E. W. Holmes and son, Roy, visited L. P. Orsburn and family in Lubbock Sunday. They were also guests at Lorenzo of a cousin, Mrs. E. Smith.

Miss Peggy McKinney, Miss Wilma Deen, and M. L. Solomon spent Saturday in Canyon. They returned Sunday.

Short Course Experts to Discuss Agricultural, Home Making Topics

O. Walton Will Open Twenty-First Program

Farmers, Club Women, Boys and Girls To Take Part At A. & M.

College Station, Texas, July 22.—Completion of detailed program for the twenty-first annual Farmers Short Course at the A. & M. College of Texas, July 28-Aug. 1, as announced by Extension Service officials, discloses a wide range of discussion in agricultural and home making fields for men and women, boys and girls. Numerous recognized experts, including W. F. Schilling of the Federal Farm Board, O. E. Baker, bureau of agricultural economics of the United States Department of Agriculture, others will contribute to the general programs, while the group programs will be conducted by specialists of much experience in their respective fields.

Lasts Five Days

All told, the five day gathering promises a series of addresses and talks covering the general field of agricultural endeavor with emphasis on modern methods and particular attention to timely phases. Attendance is expected to be around 5,000 with the representation of 4-H Club boys and girls equalling last year's record of 1,700.

President T. O. Walton of the college will formally open the short course with an address Monday morning, July 28. Director O. B. Martin of the Extension Service will preside at the opening session.

The program has been so planned as to offer sessions of particular appeal to members of every group. Special group sessions for men, boys, women and girls have been worked out and general entertainment features, including historical and agricultural pageant entitled "Texas, the Magnificent," to be presented Thursday night on the lawn at Guion Hall, will augment the more serious group discussions and talks.

Give Lecture Series

A series of general lecture programs dealing with the farm problem from three aspects—efficient utilization of land, efficient distribution of farm products and cutting the cost of production—will be held in the mornings. These discussions are expected to appeal particularly to farmers and county agents. Dean E. J. Kyle of the school of agriculture, A. & M. College, will open this series with a discussion of "The Triangle of Agriculture." Other speakers who will appear in the series of farm problem talks will include: Dr. Gus W. Dyer, Nashville, Tenn.; Dr. O. E. Baker, senior agricultural economist, bureau of agriculture; W. F. Schilling, member Federal Farm Board; John C. Burns, manager Texas Livestock Marketing Association, Fort Worth;

Lawrence Westbrook, organization manager, Texas Cotton Cooperative Association, Dallas, and others.

Addresses of general interest, for adults, will be given every night except Thursday night when the out-door pageant with an all-farm cast will be staged. Speakers for these night programs will include Dr. Gus W. Dyer, Nashville, Tenn.; W. F. Schilling, member Federal Farm Board; Mrs. E. E. Davis, Arlington; Hon. Tom Connally, United States Senator for Texas.

Group sessions for subject matter consideration will be held in the afternoons for men, and in the mornings and afternoons for women and girls and for boys. Joint meetings will be held every morning by the boys and girls.

The subject matter programs for men will be given over to discussion of poultry, livestock, field crops and farm engineering and horticulture.

Homemakers programs for women and girls will feature subjects of special interest to farm women and girls. Recognition of Texas Master Farm HomeMakers will be accorded at the opening of these group sessions Monday morning, July 28.

Divided Into Sections

For the sake of convenience the groups of boys and girls will be divided into sections, the boys into four sections and the girls into five sections. Each section of the boys group will receive the same program in turn as will be the case with the girls group.

Special meetings to be held during the period of the short course and in conjunction with it include: County Superintendents Conference, direction Prof. W. L. Hughes, department of rural education, A. & M. College; Texas Beekeepers Association, July 28-29, Dr. S. W. Bilsing, department of entomology, A. & M. College, in charge; Agricultural Writers Conference, sessions every afternoon, A. D. Jackson, chief, division of publications, Experiment Station, in charge; Experiment Station Workers, daily in Experiment Station administration building; Extension Workers Conference, daily; cooperative marketing session, Monday afternoon, July 28, with W. F. Schilling, member Federal Farm Board, and directors of Texas cooperative associations taking the leading roles.

New $2,000 Teacherage Constructed At Center

Center School District has a new 5-room Spanish style teacherage, the work having been completed by L. B. Maxey, contractor, Wednesday of this week. The new stucco structure is located just west of the site formerly occupied by the old Center school house which was torn down and was to have been replaced this summer by a new building. The foundation for the new school house has been placed but work has been suspended following the filing of an injunction several weeks ago in which plaintiffs alleged the location of the building should be in a more central point of the district. The hearing on the injunction will be held here Monday, July 23, with Judge A. J. Fires of Childress presiding.

The new teacherage represents a value of about $2,000 and is one of the most modern and up-to-date in the entire county, Mr. Maxey believes. The house is 28 by 34 feet; has five rooms and two concrete porches. It was completed twelve days after work was started on tearing down the old school house. Some of the lumber from the old structure was used in the teacherage.

CROPS AND WEATHER

Only partial showers in scattering communities of the county have fallen during the past week to relieve the heat and continued dry weather, with the result that in most of the county the need for rain is being reported.

HATLEY'S ON VACATION, HOME AROUND AUGUST 31

Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Hatley left Friday of last week for a vacation trip that will take them to Dallas, Corpus Christi and other points during an absence that will last until about August 31. During their absence Mrs. Hatley is being relieved as manager of the Floydada office of Western Union by O. Gustinger, relief agent and operator of the company, who came to this point from Paducah, where he had charge of the office for a few weeks.

Heavy Absentee Vote Recorded In County

The heaviest absentee vote in the history of the county was recorded this week at the county clerk's office, when nearly 150 persons either voted at the clerk's office before departing for various parts of the county for summer-time visits or vacations or made application for tickets to be sent them to be returned here to their respective precinct chairmen and counted. The first day County Clerk Deen sent out nearly fifty ballots to people in distant cities and states and a steady demand kept up until the close of the absentee voting period on Tuesday night. A number of persons also called for absentee ballots on Wednesday, who had to be turned down.

HARPER SCOGGINS LEAVES FOR NEW WORK AT GROOM

Mr. and Mrs. Harper Scoggins and children left this week for their new home at Groom, Texas, after six years in Floydada during which time Mr. Scoggins has been a member of the faculty of Floydada High School, the last three years as principal. Mrs. Scoggins has been principal of a private affiliated kindergarten. Mr. Scoggins was elected superintendent of the schools at Groom, Texas, a few months ago and accepted the work there.

TO THE CITIZENS OF FLOYD COUNTY

In as much as the duties of the Sheriff's office requires practically all of my time it has been impossible for me to make a house to house canvass of Floyd County before the July Primary election. I therefore take this method of asking you for your support.

While I have been sheriff I have done my best to enforce the laws impartially and give the county as a whole the best service possible.

It has been my wish to see and talk personally with everyone in the county but on account of the nature of the duties of the sheriff's office that is impossible. I feel that that should not be held against me.

Thanking you in advance for any support you may give me, I am,
Yours very truly,
P. G. STEGALL.

Picnickers On Flomot Road Find Fresh-Dug 'Grave' Sunday a. m.

What turned out to be some kind of a hoax, creating a furore for a few hours amongst a few hundred citizens of the county, occurred Sunday morning when picnickers on the Flomot road found what appeared to be a fresh-dug grave, that really was fresh-dug but for what purpose is yet undetermined. The well-rounded mound was found as the party was about half-way down the caprock road to Flomot, on a creek bank some twelve feet high and near a big cottonwood tree.

The hole had been dug, evidently, since any rain occurred in the vicinity. Deputy Sheriff J. M. Wright, with W. M. Windsor, A. L. Bishop and J. J. Day, answered the call for officials to the scene.

W. M. Windsor, reporting, said the digging was easy, the dirt being perfectly loose. They dug several feet into the ground, he said, and found several tree branches. "We sure thought we'd find a corpse right under those branches, but we didn't, and now, we're wondering who could have gone to all that trouble these hot days, just digging a hole in the ground, then covering it up again and rounding it off so smoothly and thoughtful-like."

The hole in the ground was smoothly dug as to corners, members of the party said, and might have been the grave of a boy in his teens, had it been anybody's grave at all.

Local Golfers Tie With Spur Club Here Sunday

Floydada Team Splits Second Contest 12-12; Meet Post Next Sunday.

Spur and Floydada golfers battled to a "draw" Sunday afternoon on the Floydada Country Club course with a score of 12-12 in a matched play, the contest being the second participated in by the local team since the four-cornered series between Matador, Spur, and Post was opened July 13. Floydada lost the initial contest at Matador by the score of 21 to 3.

The winner of the series is to receive a silver loving cup and a similar but smaller trophy will also be awarded the runner-up. An assessment of $10 from each club was agreed upon to furnish funds for the purchase of the prizes.

In the matches here Sunday the following pairings were made and the winners in each listed: Robbins vs. Clonts, won by Clonts of Floydada; Patterson vs. Randerson, won by Randerson of Floydada; Andrews vs. Tubbs, won by Andrews of Spur; Caraway vs. Harris, won by Caraway of Spur; Dickey vs. Marshall, won by Dickey of Spur; Simpson vs. McCleskey, won by McCleskey of Floydada; Hogan vs. T. Pope, won by Hogan of Spur; Fox vs. Johnson, won by Johnson of Floydada.

Next Sunday, July 27, Floydada will again be hosts, meeting the Post team here. Spur plays Matador at Matador Sunday.

BEN BROOKS BROUGHT HOME FROM AMARILLO HOSPITAL

"Uncle" Ben Brooks, uncle of Wade Owens and R. B. Gary, of the Harmony community, who has been seriously ill in an Amarillo hospital for the past fifteen weeks, has returned to the home of Mr. Owens near Harmony, and his condition yesterday was reported as greatly improved.

He was brought home Friday of last week from Amarillo in a Harmon Ambulance, Frank Harmon driving to Amarillo after him.

Rev. and Mrs. A. A. Collins who have just returned from Clovis, N. M., were in the "water spout" that fell in the New Mexico town Tuesday at noon. "Most of the heavy rain was right in Clovis and I never saw as much water in my life fall out of a cloud," Rev. Colling declared. A total precipitation of 3.85 inches was registered in a very short time, the water running over the running boards of cars standing in the streets, and flooding the stores in spite of emergency barricades of sacks and other material, he said.

Mr. and Mrs. Collins went to Clovis to take their daughter, Gladys, who will visit a friend, Miss Zella Mae Pierce.

Floydada Youths Take Part In 'Sitting' Stunt

And R. L., the housetop sitter, declares that he is going to stay up longer than Jack. "I've got the advantage over Jack for I can get out and walk around on the roof of the house and I am not disqualified unless I go in the house or go to the ground. I get plenty of exercise and I am going to out-stay that other boy," he challenged with a nod of his head in the direction of his rival.

R. L. has constructed a platform for his bedding on the house top and has placed a wagon sheet over four upright posts and that arrangement furnishes his shade during the day. Lillie Jewell, 11, his sister, is his "ground crew" and she takes his meals to him regularly on a tray. He reads the papers, plays his portable phonograph, and chats with his pals who come to see him regularly.

"Gee, this is great," he said grinning. "I'm going to stay up here rain or shine," he said convincingly.

"All his boy friends keep the house in an uproar continually going up to see him; there are some of them up there all the time," Mrs. Barns said. He has had his share of the callers, too. His record shows that over 130 cars and over 400 people have driven by since Monday.

R. L. wears a pair of tennis shoes so that he will not slip while navigating the shingles on top of the house; he has plenty of quilts and cover and is "all set" for a record, he maintains.

In spite of all adversities Jack and R. L. are keeping Floydada "in the running" in the nation's newest and most unique form of enjoying a hobby—that of record setting, or record sitting—as you will.

Park Playground

as possible will be concentrated at the park for the purpose.

Representatives from each church interested, all Boy Scout Troops and their scoutmasters, and all Campfire Girls' groups and their guardians, and all the pastors are expected to be present at the meeting Monday afternoon next. The plan for choosing the church representatives or chairmen is that the pastor of each church will announce the chairmen from his church Sunday morning, according to Mrs. Geo. A. Linder, who is among those representing civic organizations that have been making plans for the playground.

"We are enlisting the aid of every organization we can get to help us," Mrs. Linder said this week. "We feel that the plan will be a great thing for the boys and girls of the town, many of whom are finding time dragging on their hands during the long afternoons."

It is believed that by giving each interested organization an afternoon of responsibility the supervision needed for the playground can be afforded without a heavy demand on any individual or organization.

WONDERFUL TRIP ENJOYED BY SCOUTS TO YELLOWSTONE

Floydada Boy Scouts and their scoutmaster, E. F. Eastridge, reached home Thursday afternoon of last week from their long trip into the Northwest on an outing, a long jaunt that was thoroughly enjoyed by all, Mr. Eastridge said.

Going by way of the scenic wonders of Colorado and Wyoming, their first stop was at Independence Rock, Wyoming, where they joined in ceremonies July Fourth celebrating the Centennial of the Covered Wagon Trail to Oregon. Several hundred Boy Scouts from over the United States and Canada took part in the celebration. From that point the journey of the scouts from this area took them to Yellowstone National Park and vicinity.

The three Floydada Scouts who took the trip were Samuel Rutledge, Kinder Farris, and Verne Eastridge. Weldon Dodson of Lockney and Weldon Boyd of Petersburg, together with six scouts from Plainview and the Area Scout Executive E. L. Roberts, also made the trip.
