Junior Whirlwinds vs. the Little Breezes; That's the dish for gridiron fans to be served this Thursday afternoon at the Floydada Ball Park at 4 o'clock in the form of the annual "grudge" battle between the third team of Floydada High School and the Andrews Ward team.

Both elevens have announced that they are "all set" for the tussle. Last year the teams fought to a 0-0 tie in the first game and the high school lads emerged victorious by a small margin in the second tilt.

Admission 10 Cents. All local fans are being urged to see the little gridsters "strut their stuff." The future stars of the Green and White will be seen in action today. The admission will be 10 cents and the proceeds will go to the school fund.

The Andrews Ward team staged a light scrimmage last week between halves at the Whirlwind-Roaring Springs game and drew plenty of applause from the sidelines. The little team looks snappy in the uniforms purchased last year through the courtesy of Floydada merchants. Troy Jones and Richard Stovall are coaches for the team. The starting lineup as announced by Coach Stovall will be as follows: Malcolm Linder, right end; John Morris Watson, right tackle; Lynn Easterling, right guard; W. A. Local Poultry Dealer To Leave Monday For Turkey Grading School

K. A. Osburn, manager of the Titman Egg Corporation's Floydada Station, will be among the Texas turkey dealers who will be present in San Angelo next Monday for the opening of the first Turkey grading school ever to be held in the State. Announcement of his plan to attend the school was made by Mr. Osburn this week.

The school is being sponsored by the Department of Agriculture through the Texas A. & M. College Extension Service. It will continue for a week and the time will be given over to an intensive study of turkeys, their proper grading and marketing. Following the close of the school, students who successfully pass the examination prescribed will be given certificates licensing them as recognized turkey graders.

The increasing importance of the turkey raising industry in this section of the state prompted Mr. Osburn to determine to attend the school at San Angelo. Any old coins, any odd coins today? And still folks continue to bring in interesting coins. G. V. Slaughter brought in three unusually interesting pieces Wednesday. A half dime made in 1859 that was given him by his father was slightly smaller than the 10-cent piece in use today. A 2-cent piece of copper is included in his collection. The coin is larger than a buffalo nickel and smaller than a quarter. On one side it has the figure "2" and the word "cents," and the wording "United States of America;" on the opposite side was a shield. The date was 1864. Most interesting of Mr. Slaughter's coins and perhaps one of the most rare in the possession of local collectors was a 3-cent piece of silver, about the size of a dime and could easily be passed as one. It was dated 1866 and on one side in the center were the Roman numeral "III."

Mr. Slaughter said that he has several coins of foreign nations and some from China but since he was unable to read the Chinese "lingo" he would have to give up an attempt to make out just when the coins were issued.

An itemized report showed the following expenditures by the respective school districts: Fairmont, District No. 12, new brick building, value $9,000; 4-room bungalow type stucco teachers' home at Fairmont, value $1,400; addition to Sterley school building (2 rooms), value $1,800; Harmony school, 4-room stucco teachers' home, value $1,350; new brick veneer school building at Center, value $7,000; new 5-room teachers' home at Center, value $1,600; equipment for buildings at Center, total $2,500; Muncy school repairs, $340; new sidewalks around school building at Dougherty, $175; McCoy school building repairs, $90; Blanco school building repairs, $80; Fairview school building repairs, $600; Trick school building repairs, $50, and 3 new Chevrolet school busses at South Plains school, $4,050.

Church, who conducted an eight-day meeting for the First Methodist Church in Floydada the last week in August, succumbed to heart trouble in the home of Rev. T. J. Rea at Albany Tuesday night of last week, becoming ill suddenly after an active day. He died before medical aid could be administered.

Returning to Albany he had conducted an evening service for the pastor of the church there, and after a few minutes following their arrival at the parsonage, retired. Shortly Rev. Rea heard his fellow worker breathing hard and going to him found the visiting preacher in a dying condition.

Train and Bus Service Over West Texas Resumed As Floods Recede

Court Employs Corneil To Audit Co. Finances

Period From March 31, 1929, to December 31, 1930, To Be Covered.

A period of twenty-one months, from March 31, 1929, to December 31, 1930, will be covered by an audit of the county's financial affairs to be made by A. N. Corneil & Company, according to the terms of a contract made with the auditing firm by the Commissioners Court of the county Monday of this week.

The cost to the county of the audit, which will be furnished in two parts, will be $450.

In the first report the period of March 31, 1929, to March 31, 1930, will be covered, which brings the audit down one year from the date covered by the last audit made by the same firm. The second report will cover the remaining period of 1930 and will be completed following the close of the year.

Practically a complete change in the fee system of the county officers of the state will become effective January 1, and at the same time a number of changes will be made in the official family of this county, including two commissioners and the county judge, and the decision was made to have the audit extend to the close of the present administration and the simultaneous change in the fee system on this account.

At the same session of the court the rolls of Tax Assessor C. M. Meredith were approved.

Judge J. I. Goins In Okla. Hospital With Blood Poison

Judge J. I. Goins, of Love County, Oklahoma, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Goins of this city, is seriously ill in an Ardmore, Oklahoma, hospital, where he is putting up a game fight against blood poison, his condition yesterday being still very serious, but apparently somewhat improved from the week-end when it was thought he could survive only a few hours.

The infection developed following the extraction of a wisdom tooth, some two weeks ago. He became ill Sunday of last week and went to the hospital, from which place his parents were summoned to his bedside. They, in company with their daughter, Miss Hattie, left last Thursday afternoon for Ardmore. During the week-end his condition grew gradually worse and his brothers and sisters were summoned Sunday afternoon, reaching Ardmore Monday.

On learning Sunday evening that their brother's condition had taken a turn for the worse, his brothers and sisters residing for Marietta to be at the bedside of Judge Goins. Going from Floydada in a party through heavy mud they reached Vernon Monday morning about 7 o'clock.

The brothers and sisters who left Floydada Sunday night were Clarence Goins of Muleshoe, Miss Glesie Goins of Plainview, Mrs. Elco Frizzell of Lone Star, Mrs. Ed Thornton, of Lockney, Mrs. Buren Cates and Mrs. C. P. Fulkerson of Floydada. Mrs. Goins and Mr. Cates also accompanied them.

Of this party, all returned home Wednesday afternoon except Clarence and his family and Miss Glesie. Mrs. Fulkerson expressed the hope this morning that her brother would recover but said that recovery would be slow, according to physicians attending him.

Judge Goins, following his graduation from Oklahoma University three years ago, moved to Marietta for the practice of law. He was drafted there as a candidate for judge and chosen Democratic nominee in August. After serving two years he is again the nominee of his party for the office for next term.

Excessive Rains Fall, Bridges, Highways Out

Total Fall In Two Weeks Period 3.64 Inches At Floydada.

Trains and bus lines over West Texas are gradually resuming normal schedules again this mid-week after being disrupted since last mid-week by heavy rains that took out numerous rail bridges over a wide area and made dirt roads in this section seas of mud and water, some areas recording a series of the heaviest rains in years.

Not Heavy Here. Although excessive rainfall was recorded in the northeast part of Floyd County on the Denver lines near Quitaque, where two washouts were recorded, the fall in the immediate vicinity of Floydada and other sections of the county was not excessive. Less than two inches of rain fell in Floydada. Saturday 3.2 of an inch, Monday 2.5 and Monday night 4. Monday night's rain in various parts of the county, according to reports, was from one to two inches. Total fall at Floydada in a two week period has been 3.64 inches.

The washout on the Denver disrupted passenger service both ways for some twenty-four hours, the night train east being delayed at Quitaque, as was also the west bound train the following morning. No disruption of service on the Q. A. & P. was recorded although heavy rains fell along the line. On the Frisco line near Oklahoma City a bridge on the Canadian went out near Tuttle and the Tuesday night train did not make the through trip. Bridges on the Canadian went out with great regularity during the earlier part of the week, the Rock Island and the Denver each losing two bridges. Part of the Santa Fe's new bridge under construction across the Canadian also went out, according to reports. Santa Fe lines in this section have not been affected.

All busses operating in to Floydada from the east, west and south, have been out of service since Saturday of last week, bad roads being given as the reason. A call from the Hesperian office to the Plainview office of the Red Star Line, operating from this section east to Vernon, said service on that route would be resumed today probably.

Heavy roads below the caprock were said to be the reason for no service on the line. However, the route has been travelled by individuals in and out of Floydada every day except Monday, and these travellers said there was no particular reason why service should not have been rendered by the bus lines. Travellers, especially travelling salesmen, sent especially travelling salesmen, sent up a howl when they arrived in Floydada over the Santa Fe Monday and found themselves surrounded by a sea of mud at the station here and no means of conveyance to reach the business section.

Wheat Coming Up. Fine reports on the wheat planted are being received from over the county, indicating that the crop is coming up to good stands and that there will be ample pasturage shortly for all live stock. Wheat planting and cotton harvesting have been at a stand still for nearly two weeks, except for a brief period last mid-week. Mild temperatures have prevailed throughout the rain period, the lowest temperature recorded for the season being this morning, with a temperature of 44 degrees, fourteen above the freezing point.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS IN GROOM SCHOOLS, REPORT. One case of Infantile Paralysis has developed in the schools of Groom, Texas, and the Ward School in that city has been discontinued temporarily, it was learned this week by friends of Harper Scoggins, who is superintendent in that city.

Rumors circulated here recently that one of Mr. Scoggins' children had contracted the disease and that several other cases are in the city, are unfounded, reports indicate.

Mr. Scoggins was formerly principal of the Floydada High School.

The Crippled Lady of Peribonka

By James Oliver Curwood

WNU Service
© 1929, Doubleday
Doran & Co., Inc.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—Introducing some of the people of the pretty little French-Canadian village of Peribonka, particularly the Crippled Lady, idol of the simple inhabitants, and heroine of an epic destined to live long in the village annals.

CHAPTER II.—How the romance of Molly Bryant, sister of the great Indian chief, Joseph Bryant, and Sir William Johnson, in pre-Revolutionary days, comes down to today with the birth of a son, Paul, to Molly Kirke, wife of a powerful New York financier, and her death when Paul is thirteen years old. Molly Kirke was a descendant of Molly Bryant, and her boy has many of the Indian characteristics. At thirty-two Paul marries Claire Du-rand, daughter of his father's business partner. He is in charge of an immense engineering work on the Mistassini river, near Peribonka, which his millionaire father has undertaken, but his Indian blood de-plores the destruction of the wild-ness, and his thoughts are more of Carla Haldan—not then the Crip-pled Lady—than of his work.

CHAPTER III.—Paul's wife is in Europe, she having no inclination to live in "those horrible woods." He comes to see in Carla, daughter of a central European immigrant, with her devotion to her invalid mother and her work of educating the village children, his ideal of womanhood.

CHAPTER IV.—Paul writes to his wife, urging her to join him, though Carla is the inspiration of the letter. Later that evening, passing the Haldan, long a hopeless invalid, is ing. He enters the cottage. Mrs. Haldan, long a hopeless invalid, is dead, Paul's efforts to comfort Car-la, he feels, bring them closer to-gether.

CHAPTER V.—Claire announces her intention of joining Paul on the Mistassini in a short time. She also writes to Carlan, of whom she has heard from Paul, a letter of kindly sympathy, on the death of her mother.

CHAPTER VI.—Paul goes to Que-bec to meet Claire, and brings her to his temporary home. Though she is apparently glad to be with him, and evinces warm friendship for Carla and Paul's other friends, he feels she is only there because she feels it her duty. She is not really happy. He becomes aware of a gulf between him and his wife.

CHAPTER VII.—Paul, Claire, Carla, and two friends make a luncheon party to visit the "Big Gorge" of the Mistassini, an ap-pallingly swift current which dis-appears in a mountain side. Cur-rent belief is that anything drop-ped into it is never seen again. In sport they cast into the stream pieces of wood, and other objects, watching them disappear. Finally they carry a large log to the edge of the rushing water. As they toss it over it upends, striking Paul and throwing him into the stream. The two women with whom Paul's life is entwined see him go to what they are sure is certain death. One asks the other if she is going with him. Receiving no answer, she announ-ces, "Then—I am!" and springs in-to the water.

CHAPTER VIII.—Paul sees the action, and believes the woman is Claire. Clinging to a rock, which temporarily checks his rush to death he recognizes Carla as the water brings her nearer. He clutches her, but the two are carried onward. Then, a miracle! Paul's feet touch solid earth. He drags himself, with the girl, into a subterranean cave.

CHAPTER IX.—Fully satisfied there is no chance of escape, and that for their few remaining hours they are in a world of their own, Paul and Carla reach a perfect un-derstanding as to their mutual love.

CHAPTER X.—A frantic search for the bodies of the two begins, no one believing they could have escap-ed death. Paul, with matches he has in a waterproof box, builds a fire of driftwood, beside which he leaves Carla. Devising a torch to light his way, he begins what he feels is a hopeless exploration of the cave.

CHAPTER XI.—Paul knew he must keep moving, or rouse Carla from her sleep. The nakedness and desolation of alone-ness were turning him into a coward. Not a coward who was afraid of death, but one who felt increas-ing horror in passively waiting for it. He went to the debris of rock again. He had no reason for this, no thought, except that it offered him the one chance to do something physical besides fumbling his way over unstable and shifty sand. The desire for a work to do was an ache in his body as well as his brain, and he began to climb the broken mass, as he had done once before. He had gone about thirty or forty feet above the floor of their dungeon then, but this time he found foot-holds which carried him a little farther, until, from the point he reached, he could look over the bulge in the rock which had previ-ously concealed their fire, and could clearly see Carla in the glow of it.

He had the desire to call to her, to feel her glorious life a part of their existence again. Sleeping, she seemed gone from him. He swung his torch, making a writing of fire in the blackness, and his lips almost cried her name. Then he recogniz-ed the weakness of his act and be-gan to pull himself a little more up the broken wall.

If Carla had awakened and turned her eyes toward him, she would have seen a strange and weird thing. The burning piece of pitchwood was a spout of yellow flame, illumina-ting at times the ghostly figure that bore it, and then floating alone in a limbo of midnight emptiness as if borne by shades that in color and spirit were a part of the gloom. She might have thought, rousing herself from slumber, that hands which were no longer Paul's were bearing it toward the roof of their world. Steadily up into this pit of Acheron it went, and there it dis-appeared, as if smitten by a mighty breath that extinguished it in a second. For a time utter darkness lay where the light had been. Then the torch reappeared as suddenly as sable wings had engulfed it, and in another moment it was plunging down through space. In a few minutes Paul came where it had fallen sputtering in the sand, and picked it up again. More than ever his face was like that of a ghost. His cheek was marked by a bleed-ing wound. His shirt was in shreds on his breast. His eyes blazed in a way that would have startled Carla.

He went to the edge of the water and bathed his face and hands. Then he returned to the fire and knelt beside Carla. He raised her head gently in his arms, and she did not awaken. He held it against his breast and kissed her hair.

"Carla!" he whispered.

Her lips moved, her lashes trem-bled, and opened slowly to un-veil her eyes.

"You have slept a long time," he said. "At least—it seemed long—and I took a torch and climbed the pile of rocks again. I went higher than before—so high that I came to a ledge, and followed it—and then I came to a great crack in the wall, and there, at the end of it—I saw—light."

"Light!" she breathed.

"Yes, light. From the sun, I have found a way out."

There was silence then. Almost without effort, it seemed to Paul, Carla crept out of his arms. He knew that something was going with her—forever. Her face was whiter than his own. What he had dreaded to see lay in her eyes—a thing fighting back and crushing the glory which had lived in them for a little while. The understand-ing of what his discovery meant came quickly to her, and he saw a fabric of assembled dreams going to pieces, like one of the odd jumble pictures on a screen. When its hundred disintegrated parts came together again, they formed Claire's face, waiting for him at the end of the trail of light sent to guide them back to an earthly destiny still un-fulfilled, and which, for a time, had passed centuries away from them.

Carla rose to her feet and gazed past him into the darkness, and so strangely did her eyes dwell on empty space that Paul could only look at her and wait for her to speak.

"A way out," she said, after a lit-tle, as though to some one she was seeing beyond their circle of light. "God coming to us like this, taking us back to freedom and—life. And this little world—ours—gone!"

Paul knew the thing he wanted to say would come in a moment, the thing he had made up his mind to say to her when he came down from the rocks. It was a fury of emotion, rolling up slowly through his birthright of stoicism into a storm of speech—a passion of de-sire breaking loose, a bitterness against life as it had been given him to live, a determination to turn it his own way at last.

Before she could move his arms were about her.

"I have lived a hell in this place," he cried. "Not because I was afraid to die, but because in dying I knew I would lose you. Only in life can I have you, and I want life because of that. You say it is God showing us a way out! It is just as true that God gave you to me here. That world up there means nothing to me—except with you in it. It, too, has been a hell for me. Now I'm going to make it a heaven. I won't let man-made law and con-vention stand in the way of what is right and intended to be. You are mine, and I shall have you and keep you, one way or the other. We'll face the world together, and tell it so—or we'll go out there and never let it know we live. It is for you to say which it shall be!"

Steadily her hands had pressed against him, and with that pressure came such a change in her face that the fierceness of Paul's arms relaxed, and he saw an idol crush-ed and broken in her eyes. To the level of that ruin he had sunk his own ideal of Carla. He let her move away from him, and stood with a grim, set face before her.

"I'm sorry," he said. "I know you are thinking that I am vile and unclean."

"Not that," she spoke quickly. "I would rather think I am the one who is unclean."

That was all she said, and he made no effort to answer her. Words became futile, even impossi-ble, as she looked at him. What he might have said, his pleading, the arguments he had built for himself, and for her, crumbled un-der the tragedy which had come like a sickness into her white, beau-tiful face—a tragedy that was filled with appeal, with pain, and for a moment or two with an utter lone-ness, as if she had lost something which could never come back to her. He had seen the same look in her eyes the night her mother died. Then it had filled him with a great pity. Now its tenderness, its yearn-ing for a thing gone, shook him to the foundation of his soul. He saw

Carla as he had always known she would be when it came to her love for a man. Only a love that had no scar of ugliness upon it would she take to her breast and hold there. The memory of love, its burned-out ash, a love that was crippled and blind but clean, she would cherish with the sacred faithfulness of an altar nun. But not such a love as he had offered her—a theft, though it could be made a legal theft, from another woman. Even as he felt this crushing sense of his loss of her, another emotion, a freeing of his spirit, a rejoicing with his grief, entered into him. Carla, as she stood before him, he could worship through all eternity. The Carla he had asked for, yielding to him, would have descended out of heaven to the level of his own debasement. Clearly as she had seen his passion and felt the crush of his arms, Carla now saw this change in him, and slowly, believing joyously, a miracle wrought itself in her face, and all that Paul had seen broken down built itself up again.

Softness came into her mouth, and she smiled at him.

"Shall we go, Paul?"

He bowed his head, then picked up the coat which had been her pil-low and shook the sand from it.

"Yes. The cleft in the rock faces west, and I think the sun was set-ting when I found it. If we can get out before dark and make a racket, some one may be near enough to hear us."

He lighted a torch, and they walk-ed across the sand together. At the pile of rocks he took her hand, helping and guiding her until they came to the beginning of the ledge from where he had looked down on

He Lighted a Torch, and They Walked Across the Sand Together.

Carla looked at the fire in the pit of gloom below them. It was dying out. The yellow pool of light was narrowing and growing dimmer.

A sob came in her throat.

"We won't need—ever—to forget," she said.

"No, never."

"Especially—the little fire."

"And you—sleeping beside it," added Paul.

They continued upward. The fire was shut out. The ledge widened and turned, so they were going through a tunnel, in the rock where water had once made its way to underground depths. They had gone only a short distance when Paul stopped and smothered his torch in the sand until its flame was extinguished. After that they saw a pale reflection of light ahead of them. When they reached it they could look up through a long, narrow fissure that sloped steeply, with day at the top of it. It was a two or three hundred-yard climb, littered with broken rock, which half choked the ascent in places. A mass coked to them had freshly fallen.

"I spoiled my shirt on that," said Paul. "I loosened the stuff and came down with it. I hope there isn't another place like it farther up."

Paul was breathing deeply from his exertions, and Carla was fight-ing for breath. He could see where the sharp edges of the stones had bruised the hands which she was holding at her breast. Her skirt was torn, and through a rent in her sleeve the whiteness of her arm re-vealed itself. Her face was streaked with rock dust, and hollows which he had not noticed clearly before were in her cheeks and under her eyes. Over them was a broader light of day. He could have flung a stone up to the level of the earth, and beyond that was a sky of vivid blue, still touched by the glow of a declining sun. It was this light, descending in a pool upon them, which made him see another Carla. The mellowing il-lusion of the pitch pine, the velvety softening of shadows, the pale un-reality of first daylight had conce-aled things from him. Now they were revealed, betraying a change which could no longer keep itself behind the mask of her courage. Something in her had died since they left the pitchwood fire. The ash of it was in her face, the ghost of it in her eyes, and she knew that he saw it and tried to smile at him bravely. He wanted to take her in his arms, and his lips almost cried out the desire. Carla saw that, too, and when the thing of iron in him triumphed over both voice and act, gratitude eased the anguish in her face.

"I'm glad you understand," she said, as if he had spoken, and knew what was in her mind. "I might run away. That would be easier for me. I could hide myself some-where, and always love you. Noth-ing can kill those things—memories—and love. I would be satisfied to do that. I would be—almost—hap-py. But I must do the other thing. I must go to Claire. It will be hard to do that."

Her admission of her love for him was made in a quiet and introspec-tive way, as if his physical self had ceased to be a living part of it. It was this, and her reference to Claire, which strengthened his deter-mination not to weaken her faith in him again.

He moved to the edge of piled-up debris and began to investigate it, cautioning her to stand back a lit-tle. The rubble loosened under his feet and slid down. There was quite a little rock slip before he had gone far, sending up a cloud of dust be-tween them. Through this, when it had settled, Carla followed him. She heard him calling to her to go back but in a moment was standing at his side. Almost above them, so steep was the ascent, the fissure narrow-ed to half a dozen feet in width and was choked with loose rock and sand. Paul looked at it with som-berly appraising eyes and instinct-ively put himself between it and Carla. Another explosion of dynamite sent a scarcely perceptible tremor through the earth. Slight as it was, a tiny stream of sand and pebbles came trickling down from the suspended avalanche. He caught her hand and took her swiftly back to safety.

"A nearer shot would send that thing down on us," he said. "Wait here until I find out more about it." "What are you doing to do?" she asked.

"First, climb the edge of the wall and see what is beyond."

He did this and returned to her in a few minutes.

"Funny how little things put themselves in our way!" He tried to speak lightly. "The fissure is clear as a floor beyond that slug of de-bris, which is ready to topple. We could be out in five minutes if it were not for that. As it is, I've got to take a chance."

"And—the chance?"

"We must get over the loose stuff. Either that or go back—to the little fire."

"We must go on," she said.

"Yes, we've got to go on. We passed a stick back there five or six feet long. By hugging close to the wall I think I can reach one of the keystones in the side and loosen it. It won't be difficult, and the whole thing will come down like a house with the foundation pulled out from under it. I'm going to take you back a distance."

"And when the slide comes, where will you be?"

"Against the rock wall, as small as I can make myself."

"You mean," said Carla, with quick understanding in her eyes, "that you are going to take the stick and pry one of the rocks loose, but not from the edge of the wall, for no foothold is there. Your inten-tion is to stand in front, and make an effort to get out of the way when the avalanche starts."

"I am sure I can do it."

"If it comes slowly, yes. But what if it should come the other way? Let us go together, Paul. It may be that we can get over it safely."

"Wait here until I get the stick."

"If we try to climb over it to-gether we will not need the stick."

"But we cannot climb it. I know. I have seen a hundred of those things in the pit. They are like hair-trigger guns, even when they look solid. It is necessary to loosen a rock and then make a run for it. The stick will give me a few feet start."

"But it may be more firmly fixed than you think."

"My stick will prove it. Until then you must remain here."

She accompanied him to the downward exit of the small, room-like prison they had entered, and listened to his footsteps until the sound of them grew faint. Then she ascended to the crest of the rock slip again. A score of feet be-yond lay the danger point. Between it and where she stood was the rough depression, out of which Paul would be compelled to race for his life should he loosen the avalanche. There was an overhanging of rock, high up, and she did not see how he could escape it. She turned to look back in the direction he had gone. It was like Paul to take the situation in this way, as if it were an unimportant incident rather than a tragic thing.

Light was fading swiftly, and even-ing shadows were falling between the deep, close walls of the crevasse. A radiance was in Carla's face, as if a voiceless spirit within her were sending a message to some one in the world above. She could hear Paul's footsteps returning, the iron nails in his boots striking on rock, and her lips moved, yearning to call his name. Then she ran down into the hollow and up its farther edge. After all, it might not be such a sword of Damocles over them. If it were not, then Paul could only scold. If it were—

She began to climb.

"Electricity Means Power"

DYNAMO. Its very name spells Power. It is the corner stone of this amazing machine age that staggers our brains when we find time to stop and think about it. The playwright, Eugene O'Neil, portrays this humming, black mechanism as the machine-god that rules our lives. As such, it has liberated us from economic slavery . . . has advanced our world ten centuries in fifty years. Michael Faraday, who invented the dynamo . . . Moses Farmer, who built the first useful machine . . . little thought that their tiny generators would change the mad dream of commercial electric power into reality. Yet their crude models were the fore-runners of the monsters that now stand throbbing in your power-house . . . the tireless giants that bring you every electrical convenience at the flip of a finger switch . . . for a few cents a day.

The eastern half of Floyd county greatly rejoiced over the rains. Approximately 2 1/4 inches has fallen since Saturday at noon, up to this morning Tuesday morning. We are sure we'll get about 8 inches or at least enough to fill all the cracks; then somehow the count must look better. Everything apparently taken on new life by the showers, greening up to Jack Frost a good bait.

They had stopped at Brownfield Sunday and met a heavy rain and clouds a few miles South of here causing them to make a landing first in the Matador pasture but after landing they were able to see that they were only a few miles from town and they came on and remained till noon Tuesday. Dougherty Girls Play First Basket Ball Game.

The Dougherty Girls basketball team played McAdoo last Friday afternoon on McAdoo's court. Our girls fought a hard battle but were defeated. The score at the end of the first half was 17-0 in favor of McAdoo. The girls were not discouraged over this score, but went in the last half with a determination to do better. Their determination proved successful for they scored 10 points and McAdoo only scored 3 points. The final score was 20-10 in favor of McAdoo.

Both teams showed good sportsmanship and our girls took their defeat like ladies. It doesn't take a good sport to win a game but it takes a good sport to lose a game and then smile over their defeat. Miss Cowan is coach of the team.

COTTON RELATED TO MANY COMMON PLANTS

King Cotton has several royal kinsmen among the common, well-known plants of this country, all of which belong to the Hibiscus tribe and the Mallow family, according to Dr. Thomas H. Kearney, of the United States Department of Agriculture.

The showy flowered rose mallow, the althea shrub, okra or gumbo of the South, and other species of Hibiscus have a close relationship to cotton. Thuberia, a small tree or shrub native in the mountains of southern Arizona and New Mexico, harbors a weevil almost identical with the cotton-boll weevil and capable of feeding on cotton.

A cotton plant lives for several years in the Tropics where favored by the climate, and the cotton first domesticated by man were doubtless of tree or shrub type. Tree cottons are now cultivated extensively in the Tropics. All wild or semiwild cottons of the world are naturally long-lived. Annual growth is doubtless an acquired habit, the result of selection by man.

Miss Mary Fronia Johnson of Lubbock, was a business visitor in Floydada Tuesday.

Half-Minute Interviews

J. J. Day: "I drove up from Red Hill in Dickens County this week and the roads were mighty muddy. Heavy rains fell over the entire country between Floydada and Spur."

Miss Mary Fronia Johnson, Lubbock: "You folks in Floydada need to get busy and pep things up around here, instead of just waiting for another crop."

L. L. Collins, Dougherty: "We had two inches of rain Monday night, and the shallow lakes have some water in them."

Geo. I. Dunavant: "The ground is wet fourteen to eighteen inches deep at my place."

Lee Rogers: "I'm going to sow my whole place in wheat. All I will have to do when it dries is to start the tractor and keep it going till I get through. The hail gathered what crop I had."

J. N. Johnston: "The cheapest I ever remember wheat to sell at is 40 cents a bushel. I bought three wagonloads to feed to hogs back in 1893 at that price. Pretty good cattle were $5 a head that year."

Lakeview News

Lakeview, October 14.—The ground is beginning to be wet from the continued rains. Between five and six inches have fallen since the rain started.

Mrs. W. T. Hopper is slowly recovering from her serious illness.

The B. Y. P. U. director announced the Promotion Day Program would be held Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. This program had to be postponed, on account of bad weather, from the first Sunday night in October.

There was no meeting of the Baptist W. M. S. Monday afternoon also the service of the Methodist church to have been conducted by Presiding Elder M. M. Beavers of Plainview Monday night was rained out.

Wheat surely has come up well and is thrifty looking, some dry weather for the saving of cotton and feed would be fine now.

J. P. Roy and Will Hambricht made a business trip to Portales, N. Mexico last Thursday.

A revival was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Cass Friday night.

THREE DAY WEEK HERE, NEAL O'HARA INSISTS

"Henry Ford has predicted the five day week, but thanks to insurance agents, bond salesmen, club promotion men and fruit juice canvassers, the three day week is already here for me. I work three days and listen the other three," says Neal O'Hara in The American Magazine.

"I'm a sucker for dotted lines. In fact, in moments of aberration, I will even autograph a polka dot tie."

"I have never known but one man who knew how to deal with an insurance agent. 'How much insurance do you carry now?' they ask him. 'None of your business,' he replies. 'That's my private affair.'"

"But suppose you should die tomorrow. What then? they come back."

"The funeral would be the day after tomorrow," replies my friend.

"But I want to protect you," the salesman insists.

"I am protected," says my friend. "I eat yeast, wear rubber and have a burglar alarm."

"My friend knows all the answers and charges any time he loses to recreation. But agents continue to sign me up with ease."

LONG DRY SPELL TESTS FOREST TREE RESISTENCE

Mountain pine and black locust trees led the list in drought resistance in Pennsylvania this summer, according to a report from the State's department of forests and waters, received by the Forest Service of the United States Department of Agriculture. In spite of shallow rooting the locust trees showed little effect. Scarlet oak seemed to surpass all other oaks in resistance. White oak showed considerable damage, as did the hickories and red maple. Pine generally fared better than broadleaf trees.

Recovery of most drought-affected forest trees in the State is expected, but many small trees have died outright.

Miss Oma La Juana Beavers returned to her position today at the office of Texas Utilities Co. after a two weeks vacation. She is book-keeper and stenographer at the local office.

Flynn Thagard spent Wednesday at Amherst on business.

FOREST PLANTED BY AIRPLANE IN HAWAII

Hawaiian forests planted 298,650 trees in the Territory's forest reserves last year, according to a report of the Hawaiian Commission of Agriculture and Forestry just received by the Forest Service of the United States Department of Agriculture. One hundred and forty-seven kinds of trees were planted, ash, oaks, and paperbark leading, and the California coast redwood coming fourth with 23,392. Over 623,800 trees, grown in the commission's nurseries under a cooperative agreement with the United States Forest Service, were also distributed for forest planting on privately owned lands.

A large eroded area was sown to a mixture of tree seeds by airplane, a United States Army plane broadcasting 1,689 pounds of seeds from an elevation of 2,000 feet.

Get Your Buildings In Repair For Winter

It won't be long now until the north wind will be whistling down over the Plains and the snow will be piling up around the doorstep.

Will your house be comfortable and warm, ready for the siege against the weather when cold snaps get here? How about loose windows and doors, shingles off the roof, and other little things out of repair? Don't you think it would be a good thing to fix them up? They won't cost much, but will save much in fuel, besides the physical discomforts incidental to winter time, and there's the satisfaction, too, of knowing it is fixed and ready, if you get the job behind you before winter comes.

Weather strips will pay for themselves in one winter by saving on your fuel bills and adding to your general comfort. Let us make you an estimate. You will be surprised at the small cost.

Floydada Gridsters Win 32-0 Encounter With Roaring Springs

First Conference Game of Season
For Whirlwinds Here Friday
Is Easy Victory.

Roaring Springs' Yellow Jacket gridsters were the first conference victims of the Floydada High School Whirlwinds last Friday afternoon when the boys from under the hill went down under a 32 to 0 defeat at the hands of the local lads. Friday's game was the easiest the Whirlwinds have played to date, and will probably be the easiest they will play this season. There was no comparison as to the strength of the two teams. Coach Barksdale's first string crew completely out-classed the visitors. Even after Barksdale ran in his second string, they continued to pile up the one-sided score. Floydada's first string crew did not play more than a total of one quarter of the game.

Although the Roaring Springs gridsters were fighting against almost all odds, they must be given credit on two counts—they fought like tigers from the first whistle to the final gun, and they played a clean game throughout. Minus the skillful training that makes a winning team possible, and slightly out-weighted, the Roaring Springs lads were also handicapped by a crippled punter. Only one player on the visiting team showed up to an advantage, and that was Big-ham, 154 pound quarter back, who possessed the natural instinct of football.

Floydada went into the game with the knowledge that it would be easy, and for that reason, no spectacular or outstanding playing was noticeable. Undoubtedly O. B. Olson and Bill Welch were the outstanding players in the game, followed closely by Heald and Carter. Heald and Stephenson were credited with one touchdown each, Carter tallied two counters, and Welch one.

Floydada put her passing machinery into effective use in the first quarter. The prettiest pass that has been witnessed by local fans this season was completed in the first quarter when Bridges tossed the pigskin thirty-eight yards through the air into the awaiting arms of Stephenson, who trotted the remaining six yards over the chalk line for the second counter. The first score came as the result of six consecutive line plays that carried the ball down the field forty eight yards on three first-downs.

Scoring in the second quarter was also the result of an almost perfect pass from Bridges, this time twenty yards to Carter, who crossed the goal line on the next play. The fourth touchdown may also be credited to Carter in the third quarter. Welch made the last touchdown in the fourth quarter, backed by the complete second string crew.

Not once during the encounter did the Roaring Springs eleven threaten to score.

Friday's game gave Coach Barksdale an excellent opportunity to work his second class material, and a number of recruits had their first taste of the high school grid game. Among the substitutions were Welch, Grigsby, Pennington, J. R. deCordova, Langford, Dorrell, Houghton, Dean and Goughly. A number of these boys have very promising stuff that will make for a strong crew next season.

A summary of the game shows the following results: First Downs—Floydada made eighteen, against Roaring Springs two; Passes—Floydada completed four out of eleven attempted, one intercepted, and Roaring Springs completed one out of five attempted. Floydada punted five times for an average of 40 yards and Roaring Springs punted 23 yards. Floydada drew one 15 yard penalty and two five yard penalties; Roaring Springs drew one five yard penalty.

Starting line-ups of the two teams was as follows:

Floydada	Pos.	Roaring Spgs.
Alexander	R. E.	Thacker
Deen	R. T.	Sanders
Stovall	R. G.	Stork
Bell	C.	W. Green
C. deCordova	L. G.	Herst

Gas Line Extensions Made In E. Floydada

Extensions of gas lines to accommodate several new customers of the West Texas Gas Company in east Floydada were made last week-end. Manager G. L. Kirk said Monday, the new line extending through Blocks 78, 79, 80 and 81 for a total of about 1850 feet, between Eighth and Twelfth Streets. A regulator for the extensions was set in and the lines tied in Monday, Mr. Kirk said.

Two-inch lines are being used in the new area where service is to be rendered from a line with five pounds of pressure with individual regulators for each residence. Other extensions of the lines of the company have been discussed but had not been passed the first of the week.

BURIES FRIEND AT CISCO, VICTIM OF TRAIN WRECK

Rev. P. D. O'Brien Wednesday conducted the funeral of Reuben A. Short, of Cisco, whose death occurred Sunday afternoon when a T. & P. train on which he was fireman, over turned in a ditch at Eagle Ford, West of Dallas.

Deceased was an old school-mate and friend of Mr. O'Brien. Funeral services were held at Cisco and interment made in the Cisco Cemetery.

Rev. O'Brien is expected home today or tomorrow. After the funeral he planned to spend a few hours with his mother at Eastland.

TWO BOYS PLEAD GUILTY TO THEFT OF SEED COTTON

Two Hale County boys, Jack and Ray Clements, 17 and 18, confessed to Floyd County sheriff P. G. Stegall one day last week that they had taken some 1600 pounds of seed cotton from two fields west of Plainview and were in Floydada trying to sell it.

The boys were sent back to Hale County seed cotton, truck and all, for the attention of officers there.

L. F. Martin Leaves To Accept Russian Grain Trust Offer

L. F. Martin, for the past eighteen months employed with Rutledge & Company, as sales and service man in their International agency, left Monday of this week for Peoria, Illinois, where he will meet a representative of the Russian Grain Trust and expects to contract for a minimum of two years of employment in the Russian grain fields as a service-instructor in the operation of grain harvesting machinery. Fifteen experienced American mechanics, who have had practical experience in field and distributing plants of harvesting machines, will be in the number who will make the journey to Russia, presumably to the Ukraine.

In this area of Russia, it is declared, the Soviet is developing one of the most gigantic state-operated wheat farming arrangements imaginable, where there are millions of fertile acres of land particularly adapted to the growth of wheat at an extremely low cost per bushel. It is the threat of this heavy production which has been appearing in the newspapers for the past two years. Last year representatives of the Soviet spent several months in America, visiting factories and wheat farms. In these fields the Russians saw the American power farming machinery in operation. They visited the panhandle area, as well as the northwestern wheat growing section.

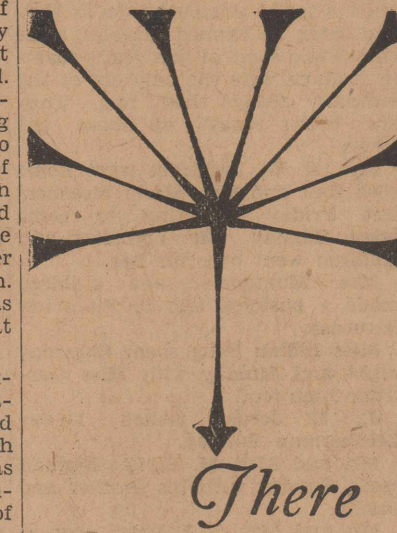

Mr. Martin, in addition to his experience with wheat farming machinery in Texas, has also serviced power grain machinery in North Dakota and Canada, in which areas two years ago, he had Russian student help. Fred Zimmerman, of the firm of Rutledge & Company, Monday expressed confidence that Mr. Martin would be employed and further that his experience and talent would early be recognized when his actual work begins.

Several members of the Fire Department, of which organization Laee had been a member for the past year, as well as other friends, were at the Q. A. & P. station to see him off on his trip Monday evening.

H. B. Adams editor of The Lockney Beacon, returned Saturday night from Temple and Dublin where he had been for several days, accompanying his wife to the first-named place for a physical examination at one of the sanitariums. At Dublin he visited with his aged mother.

R. A. Pope, nephew of H. O. Pope of this city, arrived Monday from San Diego, Calif., where he is stationed with a division of the U. S. Navy with which he enlisted a few months ago. He is here on a stop-over permit. He is being transferred east.

There is more real satisfaction in a fifty-cent out-of-town telephone call than in days of back and forth writing.

The Lure of the Younger Woman

FOR ten years Eleanor and her husband, Albert, had lived happily together. Even now, at middle age, they were still sweethearts. Then into their lives came Erva, a pretty orphan girl—half Gypsy, half English. They adopted her, loved her like a daughter.

Gradually, as Erva blossomed into a beautiful woman, Eleanor sensed a subtle change in her husband's regard for the girl. With aching heart she realized that Albert and Erva were falling in love with each other. Yet neither realized the misery and unhappiness that would result.

What could Eleanor do? What would you do in her place? What could any woman do?

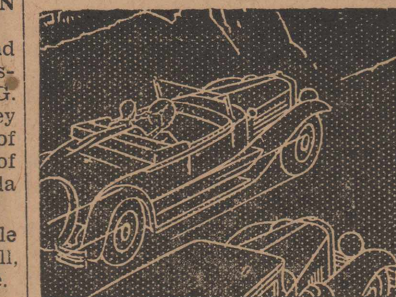

What actually did happen makes one of the most engrossing stories that was ever lived. It is published complete in the November issue of True Story, now on the newsstands. Entitled "The Girl We Took in," it is told by

Felt Bad After Eating

"BEFORE I started taking Black-Draught, three years ago, my health was very bad," writes Mrs. C. C. Carson, 945 Concord St., Beaumont, Texas. "I suffered constantly from constipation. I had headache when I got up in the morning, and I felt dull and sluggish. I hardly ate a meal that my food agreed with me. Frequently I would have gas on my stomach, and felt awful."

"I read about Black-Draught, and I thought it might help me. After I had taken it a little while, I felt much better. It relieves constipation. I keep it on hand so when I need a laxative I will have it. In the three years I have been taking it, I have never found anything as good for constipation."

DELAY IN PAINTING OFTEN FOUND COSTLY

Repainting of buildings should not be delayed until the old coating has flaked badly enough to expose much bare wood, for coatings often fail to give adequate protection against weathering long before they become unsightly, the Forest Service, United States Department of Agriculture, says.

The old coating serves as the foundation for the new one and if it is badly chipped and broken customary methods of repainting fail in both appearance and durability. Flat grained boards of some species that hold their paint well because of their low content of summer wood may need repainting long before they become unsightly.

Conspicuous wood checks or cracks show clearly that the wood is no longer receiving sufficient protection even though the coating is apparently intact. Repainting neither heals nor entirely conceals weathering damage that has become conspicuous, but if the wood is repainted promptly when minute wood checks begin to appear, it can be protected from weathering indefinitely.

FEEDING BARLEY

Success in feeding barley to stock depends upon its quality and the manner in which it is prepared for feeding, says the United States Department of Agriculture. Barley fed whole is too hard and much of it remains undigested. Do not grind it fine, however, but set the grinding machinery so it is merely cracked. In the West, where there are large mills to do the work, barley is often rolled. Small outfits for rolling barley on the farm may be bought. Eastern farmers could advantageously feed more barley to stock, the department believes.

Sunday School Lesson

WISDOM AND CHARACTER

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for October 19. How Wisdom Depends on Character. Luke 2:25-33.

The general title for this lesson is given as "Simon and Anna: the Insight of the Pure in Heart."

This title is somewhat more accurate than the topic for young people and adults which heads this article, for wisdom in the sense in which we are speaking of it is really discernment.

To see with clear and unobscured vision is necessary for discernment; and it becomes, therefore, a truism that it is only the good who can see goodness.

Must Be Discerning. To perceive goodness, to see truth, to understand love is to have a great enlightenment that brings into one's ken a world that others do not know.

But just as Jesus discerned in the lives of men the elements of goodness that lay beneath evil deeds or evil reputations, so it is given to the pure in heart to see God, and in seeing God to perceive and understand godliness in all of his children.

Church Of Christ You are cordially invited to attend the meetings of the City Park Church of Christ. If it is raining next Sunday don't let that keep you away from the services. I am sure that you would not let rain keep you away from your place of business and you should think as much of the Lord's work as you do your own. Besides all of you have been praying for it to rain for the last six months now is the time for you to rejoice if you really wanted your prayers answered. The House of God is not a place for entertainment and we will have no orchestra to play at any service. People were allowed to use instruments of music in worship under the law of Moses and David used them but the New Testament is the guide book of all Christians and it says not one word about worshipping God on a musical instrument. However it does say sing and that excludes all other kinds of music. Read: (Matt. 26:30) (Acts 16:25) (Rom. 15:9) (1 Cor. 14:15) (Eph. 5:18, 19) (Col. 3:16) (Jas. 5:13). In all these passages the command is to sing and no man can find a command that even hints at playing any kind of an instrument. Paul says (2 Cor. 5:7) "We (who "we"? We Christians) walk by faith and not by sight." Since we walk by faith and not by sight and Paul said again, (Rom. 10:17) "So then faith cometh by hearing and hearing by the word of God," and the word of God, that is the New Testament, that part of the word of God that governs Christians says not one word about an instrument or using instrumental music in the worship of God, how can it be done by faith? I am not saying that the Old Testament does not authorize instrumental music but it also authorizes burning incense, offering animal sacrifices, plurality of wives, infant membership in the church and a number of other things that are not authorized in the New Testament. If we accept one why not accept all of them. Do you suppose that the Lord has more respect for your hearer than he does for the Catholic's smelter? Then why condemn the Catholic for burning incense as worship to God. He gets his authority right where the advocate of instrumental music gets his, in the Old Testament.

BETTER STAPLE EVIDENT

Floyd County cotton raisers evidently took seriously the pains they took to take last year to market their cotton on account of the seriously short staple of which the market complained...

SKINNING THE SEED

Ginning for a good turn out this season seems to be an easier job than usual for the ginners. The seed strip almost perfectly clean, and the linter gins are apt to find the pickings poor when they get hold of the cotton seed that comes out of Floyd County this year...

ACREAGE READJUSTMENT

The serious need for readjustment of acreage planted to cotton in the south the ensuing season, is made plentifully evident by the shameful figure at which cotton is going. Even those who take their cotton in cussing the bulls and the bears admit that there is too much cotton in the world for there to be any necessity of the mills offering the cotton farmer a profit on his present crop to get ample supplies...

THE GREAT AMERICAN HOME

TO CONTRACT COTTON

Many farmers over the south are thinking seriously of a different style of tactics next year to that of the present season, in handling their cotton crop. One thing several are studying is that of contracting about an average crop of cotton at present ruinous prices and either giving their land a rest or putting it in some kind of feed or food crop that can be made available for the market through live stock.

IN FAVOR OF WHEAT

The Hesperian, along with some others, has done considerable talk along the line of keeping wheat acreage down, and it is evident that it would not be well to allow the whole county to go into wheat. However, wheat has afforded the biggest income this season that has come to the farmer from any single source, cheap as it has been.

LEARNING FAST

So all of us nim-rods can get our shooting regiments organized and get all ready for a feast of ducks. I wonder who is going to get the biggest Mallard this year. I shure wish you all would measure your biggest ones and let me know. At any rate, we can live on duck meat this year.

ed dry weather brought disaster to the northwest Texas crop. It gave south and southeast Texas an ideal season for growing cotton. The result is that the state will have about its usual cotton crop, only the counties of heaviest yield changing about somewhat.

It rained and rained... and how! Good bye blues. No more talk of hard times, no more talk of drouth, no more talk of a so-called depression.

And now that it is all over, we can spend the rest of the winter arguing over whether it is spelled "Drouth" or "Drought." Be dog gone if I know, do you?

The chances are that if I had washed my whoopee car (Old Betsy Ann) more often, this so-called drouth that has just passed probably wouldn't have lasted so long.

I don't know how it can be done, but I do wish that there was some way to keep the mud off the street crossings. When a fellow spends ten cents or half-a-day getting his shoes shined and a dollar getting his suit cleaned and pressed, he just naturally don't feel a dog gone bit good over it when he starts somewhere and has to wade ankle deep in slush and mud when he knows that he has side walks every step of the way.

But these women are all right. For every woman who makes a fool out of a man, there is usually one that makes a man out of a fool.

A sign in one of our local meat markets Saturday read: "Our hams are not cured—they never were sick."

Old Battleaxe is going to do some plain and fancy predicting. Right now, and I just know that I can't be wrong. I'm going to predict that ducks are going to be thicker in Floyd County this winter than they have been in years.

They are going to be thicker than they were during the winter of 1927-28, and that's lots of ducks. I remember a couple of lakes last winter between here and Silvertown where the ducks were so thick that you couldn't see the sky, once you got them stirred up, and that's a fact if I ever told it. Yes sir, the ducks are shore going to be plentiful this winter.

We've already got some water in the lakes and I predict that before the winter has gone very far, they will all be full. Of course, some of the anti-duck pessimists say that they won't come this way because we don't have any grass, but that is all bosh. We've got lots more grain than they have east of us and we've got just as much as they have in any other direction, so these quacks are just naturally going to be thicker on Floyd County. I'm going to predict that ducks are going to be thicker in Floyd County this winter than they have been in years.

THE SOONER THE BETTER

Paducah Post: About three or four weeks ago, when it was realized that this was to be a bad year so far as crops are concerned, people generally "blew up" and began to think that nothing but starvation was ahead for all of us.

But we have now about had our fling at pessimism. Conditions are not nearly so bad as we thought they would be and most of us have about decided to let old Mother Nature take her way.

We have also about decided that, instead of fretting and fussing, we had better turn our attention to other things, fighting all situations with a determination to win. And we are getting along better, too.

The sooner we forget all our pessimism the better off we will be, and the better prepared we will be for the fall and winter and for the next year to come.

When we entirely "get well" of the pessimism views we have had we will go right along as always before, trading, selling, swapping, working and fighting conditions as we meet them.

To be sure we are going to have to economize out of a lot of luxuries and stuff like that, but we'll come out in the long run as though nothing had ever happened.

Next year is almost sure to be a good one. We predict, also, that the production of cotton will be lessened. We'll go in to next fall with normal crops and normal prices, which will mean that normal conditions will prevail and we will have forgotten all our "fuss and fury" over present conditions.

Get it out of your system. The sooner you have a vaccine shot for pessimism the better off you'll be.

TAKE NO CHANCES

Quanah Tribune-Chief: With the touring season drawing to a close and a general scramble on the part of "hitch-hikers" to get back to their homes, Quanah motorists are apt to encounter more than the usual number of these free-ride beggars on the highways. It would be well to remember that it is extremely dangerous to pick up strangers, however innocent looking they may be, along the road.

This has been demonstrated in many parts of the country. Several motorists have been murdered by their pick-ups; others have been beaten and robbed of money and cars. Still others have had to defend suits brought by those injured while they were enjoying the free ride. Others have found themselves involved in court for aiding fugitives, youthful runaways and delinquent girls.

The only ones who can put a stop to this nuisance are the motorists themselves. If drivers will refuse to accept these strangers at face-value, even though it does seem a bit hard-hearted, they will soon put the "hitch-hiker" off the highway. On the face of it, it looks cruel to refuse one a ride, when there is plenty of room in the car. Not all of them, by any means, are of the same type. Most of them are respectable and entitled to favors. But since a lot of them are not, and it is impossible to tell the good from the bad, there is but one safe course open to the motorist. Drive on, remembering that "self-preservation is nature's first law."

THE BILL FOR CRIME

Slaton Slatonite: The national crime commission has reported that crime costs the United States 13 billion a year. The losses due to crime and fraud can of course be only guessed at and estimated, but they are something enormous and incredible. The national income is somewhere around $90,000,000,000 a year, and if crime costs us 13 billion about 15 per cent of our income goes to the yellow crooks who infest the nation.

Our people become indignant about rates of taxation which are only a small fraction of this loss. But they do not seem to get so much stirred up over the vastly bigger bill for crime and fraud, and seem to think that it is hopeless to combat it.

In some way the United States with all its enormous advantages, has become the most lawless of the so-called civilized countries. Something in our easy going national temperament, permits these abuses to flourish.

Crime can not be wholly put down while so many people are selfish and brutal. But it could be reduced to a small fraction of what it is. It seems singular that our achieving American people, who have accomplished such wonders in the field of science, are so deficient in their ability to conduct human relations, and are less successful than the European nations in putting down this lawless conduct.

Our political mistakes have much to do with the success of crime. Political influences are permitted to interfere with the work of police, courts and all the forces that tend to reduce the crime. People will have to stop voting for candidates because they are the best hand shakers, before they put down crime very much.

LIMITING TRUCK LOAD HEIGHTS

Plainview Herald-News:—A bill aimed at reducing the height of loads on trucks operating on state highways will be introduced at the next session of the legislature, George G. Wickling, chief bridge engineer of the state highway department has announced.

It will be remembered that an accident occurred a few months ago due to a truck having too high a load. Two men were killed in this accident which occurred between Electra and Vernon when a truck carrying a boiler through an underpass struck the trestle and knocked the tracks of the Fort Worth & Denver out of line.

The seriousness of this accident was brought home to Plainview and it bore Plainview passengers, one of whom was injured in the wreck.

The law now allows loads thirteen feet high, whereas many railroad underpasses in the state allowed for clearance of only a 12-foot load.

This bill will no doubt meet with popular approval. Drivers of passenger cars are preponderant among those who use the highways in general they do not feel any too kindly to the large trucks, which have come into disrepute not only for poor regard to road courtesy, but often through disregard of safety measures.

A Sidewalk Review Mostly About People and Personalities in Floyd County.

Good rains over the county this month certainly are changing the local outlook on things. A good season in the ground will mean good crops next year and everybody can take a deep breath once more.

"PATCHES"

Looking in a show window the other day was a little fellow wearing an old pair of overalls and on his face was a most wistful look as he longingly eyed a big assortment of candy in front of him.

But that wasn't the most interesting thing about the brief scene. Those little overalls looked like a Joseph's coat so many patches had been placed upon them to cover the holes. And there was the story—a story told without words. It was a picture of a lesson that had been learned in a home—a lesson of economy.

And it reminds us that perhaps after all the state of conditions as they have existed for the past several months has been nothing more nor less than a severe test that has served to check foolish practices that ultimately would have brought most

FLOYD COUNTY 14 YEARS AGO

News items taken from files of the Floyd County Hesperian published in Floydada fourteen years ago.

ISSUE OF OCTOBER 12, 1916

(Editor's Note: This issue of the Hesperian contains the official order canvassing returns and "Prohibiting Liquor Sales in Floyd County.")

The total attendance at the Fair last Friday and Saturday is conservatively estimated at 5000, these being the feature days of the fair. Among the results listed in this paper, the following awards were made: Most attractive display of doll and conveyance, Gwendolyn Snodgrass, first; Roberta Picklesimer, second; Eugenia Hoffman, third. Boys' Pony Race: Ocie Husky, first; Rip Snodgrass, second; Wilburn Ross, third. Boys' Bicycle Race: James Shurbet, first; Dorsey Baker, second. Boys' Pushmobile Race: Carl Wagner and Roy Lee Haynes, first; Raymond Darsey and Dan Jenkins, second. Oratorical Contest: Byron Clark, first; Chester French, second.

The past sixty days have seen an unprecedented influx of immigration to Floyd County, and land sales have been so numerous that it has been practically impossible to record all of them in the Hesperian. In the sixty days, a conservative estimate of the number of tracts that have changed hands is placed at one hundred. In most instances, the land buyers are preparing to move to this county while most of the people who have sold are also remaining.

Poet's Corner

AN HUMBLE PRAYER

Lord! help me live from day to day A helpful life, that's good and clean. Guide me, in all I do or say; And on thy steady strength to lean.

May I be found, among the few Who answer cheerfully "I'll try"; When ask an humble task to do To help some needy passer-by.

Lord! give me courage, just to speak A cheerful word—or just to smile To those around, with whom I meet; Teach me, the smaller things, worth while.

Thou blessed word says: "Freely ask" And that we—"Freely Shall Receive."

Now, Father, put me to the task That I may know Thee, and Believe.

COUSINS MEET AGAIN AFTER LAPSE OF OVER 40 YEARS

Billy Nicholas, of Hale County, visited in Floydada for a short time the latter part of last week with his cousin, Pat M. Felton, the relatives spending some time together after a lapse of forty-four years since they last met.

They were boys in Grayson County in 1886, when the families began moving about the Nicholas family going to the Indian Territory. "I had lost track of Billy for years and years when I heard through a mutual acquaintance that he was over in Hale County and had been for four or five years," Mr. Felton said. "When he dropped into the store I felt sure it was him but was not sure from my memory of the boy, Billy Nicholas, either."

The Felton and Nicholas families came west from Mississippi in 1875.

MANY DEALERS TO ATTEND TURKEY GRADING SCHOOL

College Station, Texas, Oct. 10.—Scores of dealers are responding to invitations to send representatives to the turkey grading school to be held at San Angelo Oct. 20-25 under cooperative agreement between the bureau of agricultural economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, the Texas Department of Agriculture and the Extension Service of the A. & M. College of Texas. Several cooperative marketing associations of farmers have also indicated intention of sending employees to the school for training. The school is designed to train men in the application of U. S. standard grades and is expected to meet what is considered a telling need at present in that respect. A teaching staff supplied by the Federal bureau will demonstrate the new U. S. grades which take into consideration quality as well as weight.

Free Library In New Home, Room 15, First National Bank Bldg.

The Floydada Free Library, organized and maintained through volunteer membership since 1922, was moved the latter part of last week to its new home on the second floor of the First National Bank Building, Room No. 15. For the past several years it has been on the second floor of the court house.

Mrs. A. P. McKinnon, custodian of the library for several years, said Tuesday morning the books of the library would be re-arranged in the new location, ready for the visits of patrons Wednesday afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock. Boys and girls of Floydada have been especially interested in the books of the library during the past several years. Mrs. McKinnon calls attention to the changed hours for the library to be open.

The change in location was made necessary on account of the increased number of officials in need of offices in the court house. The room vacated by the library has been occupied by A. J. Folley, District Attorney of the 110th Judicial District. The office was originally planned to be used by the district attorney when the court house was constructed. The room opens off the district court room.

Mrs. Richard Starcke, of Bastrop, who had been visiting here with her sister, Mrs. A. P. McKinnon for some three weeks, left Monday to return to her home.

C. W. Dunnam, district manager of the C. E. Stone Company, chain stores, spent Saturday here as a guest of C. D. Gibbs, manager of the local store.

Tailors Cut Prices Account Lower Costs

Members of the cleaning and dyeing craft in Floydada this week are announcing reduced prices on tailoring work to meet changing conditions in business, the cut being, announced simultaneously by all tailors of the city and being made on two plans. Tailors who afford "call for and delivery" service will have a slightly higher schedule of prices than those tailors who work on the "cash and carry" plan, it is announced, the difference being figured on a basis of cost of rendering the additional service.

A spokesman for the local clothes cleaning industry said the revised prices were being made to keep in line with the lower price trend in commodities. The reduction is the second made by the tailors of this city within two years.

B. L. Breed and E. L. Widener left Monday for Fort Worth to spend a short time on business and a visit with Mr. Breed's sister, Mrs. S. D. Thornton and children, who will return with them to make Floyd County their home.

Saturday Busy Day At Gas Office; Interest On Meters Being Paid

Saturday was a busy day at the West Texas Gas Company office where Mrs. Kirk, bookkeeper for the company, was kept busy a large part of the day figuring and paying interest on meter deposits of various local meter deposit receipt holders.

The custom among gas companies has been to pay interest when gas meters are taken out or discontinued, G. L. Kirk said recently. However, where customers present their deposit receipts the interest on the deposits is being paid at any time, he said. On the average residence or business installation the meter charge is $10 and the interest accumulates at the rate of 60 cents per year.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Palmer, Jr., of Amarillo left Friday of last week for their home after a visit here with Mr. and Mrs. Martin Brown.

Elza Gullion and Roy Holmes made a business trip to Plainview Monday.

Painful Condition

"WHEN I was just a girl at home," writes Mrs. B. F. Riggan, of Baird, Texas, "I took Cardui for cramping and pains in my side and back, and it helped me at that time.

"After I was married, I found myself in a weak, run-down condition. I suffered a great deal with my back, which was so weak it hurt me to get up or when I would stand on my feet. I fell off in weight.

"A friend of mine, seeing how bad I felt, advised me to take Cardui, which I did. By the time I had taken two bottles, I felt stronger and better than I had in a long time."

Whirlwinds To Clash With Tullia Gridsters Here Friday At 3:30

in the season by a score of 6 to 0, but due to the fact that both teams had an open date on their schedule this week-end it was mutually agreed to stage a second contest.

Two Men Ineligible
Substantial proof that Spur, with whom the game was to have been played here Friday, had been using two ineligible men prompted Superintendent W. E. Patty to cancel the scheduled tilt. Superintendent Patty, A. B. Sanders, superintendent of the school at Ralls, and J. C. Wester of this city went to Dickens Friday of last week to obtain the records on Edgar and Harkey, two linemen on the Spur team.

Following their investigation, they reported the matter to the Executive Committee of District 2 of Class B Schools of the Interscholastic League and a hearing was held Saturday at Lubbock on the matter. The Lubbock meeting was attended by Troy Jones, O. K. Davis, Coach L. T. Barksdale, and Superintendent Patty of this city and Gene Taylor, Spur coach, and others.

Affidavits and information on the case was then referred to Superintendent Sanders, chairman of the committee Wednesday night. Mr. Patty made a trip to Ralls last night. Owing to the fact that he is making the protest, Superintendent Patty is disqualified to sit as a member of the committee and Superintendent W. D. Biggers of Lockney will be his alternate at an executive session at 2:30 this afternoon at Ralls. The committee will make recommendations to the state officials at Austin as to final action on the matter.

Evidence brought out indicates that Edgar and Harkey, who had transferred from Dickens in order to play with Spur had not made passing grades the year previous and were ineligible and there were said to be certain discrepancies in the records of the two players.

Murry Still Out
In preparation for the game this Friday with Tullia Coach Barksdale has been sending his charges through stiff workouts. Every man on the team with the exception of Floyd Murry, star quarterback who was injured in the Tahoka game at Lubbock, is in fine condition, Barksdale said Wednesday night.

All of the assignments for the starting positions Friday were not definite last night but the lineup will be as follows, the coach said: Stephenson, left end; McLaughlin, left tackle; deCordova, left guard; Bell or Pennington, center; Stovall, right guard; Alexander or Murry, right end; Olson, quarterback; Head, left half; Goltightly, right half, and Bridges or Welch, fullback.

Admission to the game will be 25 and 35 cents.

Lower Freight Rates Save Farmers $1,921 Since September 20

Estimated total savings of $1,921 to farmers in Floyd County have been effected this fall through the emergency freight rate reduction granted to counties in the drought stricken areas, according to a report filed this week to the Federal government by S. W. Ross, authorized agent for shipping permits in the county.

A total of 18 certificates have been issued since the date the special tariff went into effect September 20, and 70 carloads of livestock and feedstuffs have been shipped. Farmer-consumers have received permits on 2 cars of hay, 1 car of wheat, and 57 cars of livestock. Dealers have handled 7 cars of hay, 2 cars of barley, and 1 car of kafir.

The reduced freight rate tariff expires October 31.

Express Appreciation In Club Resolution

Expressions of appreciation for the interest shown and assistance given during the exhibit here October 3 and 4 were drawn up in a resolution for the Home Demonstration Club Women and 4H Club Girls of the county and formally issued this week by the Floyd County Council. The resolution was as follows:

"We, the members of the Floyd County Council of the Home Demonstration Clubs, wish to express our deep appreciation to the business firms of Floydada, who so graciously and cordially 'boosted' our club exhibit held October 3 and 4 by their ads, cut flowers, and continuous cooperation.

"It is indeed gratifying to know we have your support and encouragement at all times.

"We also wish to thank Mr. Surginer for the use of his building, Mr. Gilliam for the lumber, Mr. Williams and the vocational agriculture boys for their construction of the shelves, Mr. Ross and the Chamber of Commerce for the prize ribbons.

nelly, left half; Ben Eudy, fullback and captain.

Coach O. K. Davis of the high school third team said that his probable starting lineup will be as follows:

All Subs To Play
Bernie Roberts, left end; Tom Edward Rogers, left tackle; Kinder Farris, left guard; Buster Smalley, center; Earl Hanks, right guard; N. B. Mooney, right tackle; Everett Morton, right end; William Barnett and F. C. Harmon alternating at quarter and right half; Pat Stansell, left half, and Verne Eastridge, fullback. F. F. A. Club Names Officers For 1930-31

The Future Farmers of America Club of Floydada High School was formerly organized this week with a total membership of thirty-six, according to O. T. Williams, sponsor of the club and teacher of vocational agriculture in Floydada High School.

Ross Hanna was chosen president, Ballard Wilkerson, vice-president, Lowell Gambin, secretary-treasurer, Roy Heald, reporter, and Reeves Scott sergeant-at-arms. Reeves Scott and Lowell Gambin were named delegates from the local club to the state meeting of the Future Farmers Clubs to be held in Dallas on October 25. Every effort will be made to get the boys off to the meeting but it is not definitely determined yet that it will be possible for them to go.

The F. F. A. has a full program outlined for the year and their organization is expected to be one of the most interesting in the high school. They plan to sponsor a Harmonica Club again this term, also a glee club, and five judging teams. The judging teams will be in dairying, poultry, farm shop, plant production and terracing. In addition the club will sponsor an invitation judging contest for teams in this area. The contests in judging to be held here sometime in March.

In regular monthly meeting held Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. K. Sammann, nine members were present. The meeting was called to order by Rev. Herber. The first part of the meeting was given over to the receiving of reports from the various committees. The Reverend Herber read a letter to the members that he had received from the Reverend H. C. Zike, pastor of the Lutheran Church at Lubbock. In the letter the church at Lubbock asks each ladies aid society in the state to help build a congregational church in Lubbock.

The meeting closed with a song and scripture reading.

The next meeting will be held in the church on November 2 at 2:30 o'clock.

Christian Courier Field Editor Visits Floydada

E. M. Douthit of Austin, field editor of the Christian Courier, weekly publication of the Christian Churches of the state, was a guest here last Friday of the Rev. Claude Wingo, pastor of the First Christian Church of this city.

Mr. Douthit has been field editor of the paper for the past 3 years. He was most favorably impressed upon his first visit to Floydada and Floyd County, he said.

BORN—to Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Pollan, city, October 6, a daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Bartley, of Plainview, were in Floydada Sunday on a visit with Mrs. Bartley's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. M. McCauley.

Virgil Crawford Is Honor Member Lions Club During Month

Virgil Crawford, 16 year old Floydada High School Sophomore, has been selected as an honorary member of the month of October. He was selected because during the past month his average grade on all subjects was the highest made by boys in the high school department. His average for the month was 94.8 per cent, with individual grades of 100 on department, 98 on Algebra 90 in English, 96 in History and 90 in Spanish.

Virgil who is the son of S. M. Crawford of Dougherty, was present for the first time Wednesday of this week at the regular joint luncheon of the Lions and Rotary Clubs. He made a short talk, expressing his appreciation of the honor extended him, and using as his subject "Purpose". He stated that his purpose in attending high school was not merely "to pass, but to obtain all of the extra knowledge possible." He stated his intentions of attending college after completing his high school work.

Supt. W. E. Patty spoke a word on behalf of the school administration, expressing that body's appreciation for the plan being worked out by the Lions, relative to selecting the highest honor boy in the high school as an honor member of the club each month.

At the joint meeting of the Lions and Rotarians Wednesday, O. T. Williams, Vocational Agriculture instructor in the high school gave an illustrated blackboard talk on vocational agricultural work in the schools. Among the interesting facts pointed out in his talk, was an extract from one of his student's notebooks showing that the average cost per acre for raising cotton was $13.50, and the average cost per acre for raising wheat was $8.50. The average income on cotton was 43.6 per cent and on wheat was 23.9 per cent, the note book showed.

J. C. Gilliam also made a talk at the meeting, using as his subject, "A review of business conditions, past and future." Lion Boss J. C. Wester presided at the meeting.

Members of the Rotary Club will have charge of the program next week and Rotarian President, W. M. Houghton will preside.

Mrs. A. A. Owens of Henrietta spent the past ten days here with her husband who is employed as night watchman with the Q. A. & P. Railroad. She arrived the first of last week.

"SOCIABLE" TEA

Tea is sociable to a fault, according to the United States Department of Agriculture, for it can not maintain its individuality when it openly associates with odorous foods.

The dried tea leaves have such great absorptive powers that they readily take up flavors of other foods, such as nutmeg, pepper, and flavoring extracts, when exposed on the pantry shelves.

C. F. Hutchinson, Federal tea examiner, stationed at New York City, says tea must be kept in an air-tight package if it is to retain its individual flavor. A glass jar is an excellent container.
