Iranian Leaders Hike U.S. Hopes

By The Associated Press
Prime Minister Mohammed Ali Rajai was quoted by reporters in Tehran today as saying that revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini of Iran had agreed to accept unspecified guarantees by Algeria that could lead to release of the 52 American hostages.

But other reports of Rajai's interview with Iranian television quoted him as saying Khomeini had accepted the Algerian "undertaking" and did not mention guarantees.

Rajai, after a meeting with Khomeini, told Iranian television according to one report: "We asked the imam about the hostages and we explained the new opinion of the U.S. government to the imam and also we explained the Algerian proposal which has suggested that it will guarantee to solve our problem with the United States, and the imam permitted us to accept these guarantees and we hope to announce the rest of the points."

Rajai did not elaborate, but when the United States sent Iran its latest proposal for agreement to free the hostages, Iran said it could accept any guarantees that the Algerian mediators agreed to.

According to an NBC report, Iranian television said Khomeini and his son met with Rajai and asked about the latest proposal of the American government forwarded through the Algerians, who have been acting as intermediaries.

Khomeini was reportedly told by Rajai that the Algerians had promised they would resolve any American-Iranian differences, NBC said, and Iranian television said Khomeini then told Rajai to accept the Algerian guarantees.

In Washington, a spokesman for the State Department's Iran Working Group, George Havens, said the initial reports on Rajai's statements were too vague for the department to make any immediate comment.

He would not discuss whether the Algerian mediators were offering some kind of guarantees to Iran in their own name.

Meanwhile, a leading member of Iran's hard-line Islamic Republican Party said today that the latest U.S. proposal for resolving the hostage crisis are "unacceptable."

Hassan Ayat, interviewed in Tehran by telephone from Beirut, said he had not studied the American proposal in detail, but that it "is unacceptable and does not satisfy us, because it does not give enough guarantee to what we want." Algerian intermediaries took the U.S. proposal to Tehran Friday and Iran was expected to provide its answer soon on whether it will free the 52 American hostages who spent their 430th day in captivity today.

Ayat, a member of the clergy-oriented party that is a primary source of opposition to President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr's moderates, said he believes it "a very remote possibility" that the hostages will be released before President-elect Ronald Reagan takes office Jan. 20.

He said resolution of the 14-month-old hostage crisis "depends on America's situation, on what kind of policy it will have during Reagan's (tenure in) office."

Senators Studying Cabinet Nominees

WASHINGTON (AP) — Opening-day niceties out of the way, the 97th Congress today began taking a close, although generally sympathetic, look at the people Ronald Reagan wants to run the government.

Senate confirmation hearings opened today for Cabinet nominees Richard Schweiker for the Department of Health and Human Services, Caspar Weinberger for Defense, Malcolm Baldrige for Commerce, John R. Block for Agriculture and Donald T. Regan for Treasury.

Also, the House and Senate were meeting jointly today to carry out a constitutional requirement that they ratify Reagan's victory by certifying the Electoral College vote results.

Reagan's Cabinet choices received a generally sympathetic reception before Senate Committees now controlled by Republicans.

At his hearing, Defense Secretary-designate Weinberger predicted that Reagan will wait six months before trying to renegotiate the SALT II treaty with the Soviet Union.

"I don't think we should enter these negotiations lightly or ill-advisedly and I think we should have a very clear idea of the objectives we would want to pursue and the way we would like to see it come out," Weinberger told the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Schweiker, meanwhile, conceded to the Senate Finance Committee that there is no easy way to put the Social Security system on a solvent footing.

"It is going to be some tough medicine. I don't think there is a popular answer. But it is necessary for us to do it," he said.

Agriculture Secretary-designate Block caused a stir a few weeks ago when he indicated a belief that U.S. food production could be a major diplomatic weapon in the new administration.

Today, Block told the Senate Agriculture Committee that he would be "very reluctant" to use a food embargo against foreign countries as a tool of diplomacy.

"I really think the market should allocate our resources," he said.

Hearings on Reagan's nomination of Alexander Haig to be secretary of state, his toughest appointment, are to begin Friday before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Some Democrats have said they want to examine Haig's role as former President Richard M. Nixon's chief of staff during the days before Nixon was forced from office because of the Watergate scandals of the early 1970s.

But Sen. Sam Nunn of Georgia, a respected Democratic member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, called Monday for Haig's confirmation.

"For those who are insatiably curious about the Nixon era and Watergate, there are plenty of books they can buy," Nunn said.

It was not clear how much fuss would be stirred either by Haig's connection to Watergate or by his career as a four-star Army general who headed the military forces of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Senate Minority Leader Robert Byrd said he has detected no concerted Democratic campaign to delay or kill the Haig nomination.

Howard H. Baker Jr., the new Senate majority leader, said he expects the various Senate committees will approve all

Reagan Confers With Appointee

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect Ronald Reagan reviewed foreign policy trouble spots today with Alexander Haig and discussed problems Haig may face in winning Senate confirmation as secretary of state.

After a 1½-hour meeting with Haig at Reagan's temporary quarters across from the White House, the president-elect, wearing no topcoat despite Washington's freezing weather, stepped out onto Pennsylvania Avenue to announce his selection of James Brady as White House press secretary.

Brady's appointment was the first Reagan has personally announced.

Reagan promised that Brady, who has served as press secretary during the transition, would have access to the Oval Office.

Boy Hanged In Freakish Accident

AMARILLO (UPI) — A child wearing a coat buttoned to his neck snagged the garment on the latch of a trash dumpster and accidentally hanged himself while on a mercy mission for two orphaned puppies.

Christopher John Pruitt, 10, died shortly after he was taken to Amarillo Emergency Receiving Center Monday.

Authorities said the child apparently climbed into the dumpster east of his home to retrieve a piece of carpet. He apparently wanted to put it in a doghouse he was building for the dogs he had taken in.

Police believe the youngster climbed atop a cardboard box inside the dumpster in an effort to get out, but the box collapsed and the child's coat snagged on the latch.

The child apparently struggled to free himself, but was near death by the time he was found.

Justice of the Peace L.B. Bartlett ruled his death accidental asphyxiation, secondary to accidental hanging.

Mrs. Elinore Pruitt, the youngster's mother, said today she believed her son was trying to get the carpet so he could make a warmer doghouse for two puppies he found recently that were "half frozen to death."

New Housing Units Here To Benefit Handicapped

By PAT GRAVES
Avalanche-Journal Staff
It's the little things that count, so the saying goes, and few know the truth of that adage better than the incapacitated and the handicapped.

But Ace Lambert and Hattie Easter don't.

Lambert, 65, has been confined to a wheelchair since contracting rheumatoid arthritis in 1941. Mrs. Easter, 50, has been in a wheelchair for about a year, having had a leg amputated after a broken bone would not heal because of her diabetic condition.

Along with having to adjust to an artificial leg, Mrs. Easter also had to deal with something Lambert had encountered years earlier: houses are not designed with the handicapped in mind.

But, as of this week, that has changed for Lambert and Mrs. Easter. They are scheduled to move into two specially remodeled, barrier-free units in two low-income housing projects operated by the Lubbock Housing Authority.

Hub Homes, 323 Ave. F, and Greenfair Manor, 2807 Weber Drive, each have three of the units. At present, Lambert and Mrs. Easter are the only tenants; he in Hub Homes and she in Greenfair Manor.

They will benefit from these features: — In the bathroom, handrails around the toilet and bathtub, which is equipped with a shower hose attachment, and a large, high, hospital-type sink.

— Wider doorways and a ramp with rails which leads from the front door to the sidewalk.

— Lowered kitchen cabinets and sink, with recessed baseboards and sinktraps parallel to the wall, and lowered shelves.

— Emergency alarms in the bathroom and each bedroom which, when the switch is flipped or the cord pulled, activates a signal light and bell on the front porch.

Although he has been a bachelor for years, Lambert said he will be much

INMATES HOPE TO PREVENT EXECUTIONS

Condemned Men Ask Ban On Lethal Drugs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two death row inmates, held in states where prisoners may be executed by lethal drugs, are asking the government to place a warning label on the drugs declaring them unsafe and illegal for executions.

Larry Chaney, an inmate at the Oklahoma State Penitentiary, and Doyle Skillern, being held at the Ellis unit of the Texas Department of Corrections, made the request in a petition filed with the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

The petition, first disclosed by the Washington Drug Letter, a weekly newsletter, asks HHS Secretary Patricia Harris to ban the use of lethal injections as being contrary to laws enforced by the Food and Drug Administration.

To date, no one has been executed by the method, which has been approved by Texas, Oklahoma, Idaho and New Mexico. Those states house 166 of the 691 persons currently under death sentence in the United States, according to the petition.

Kansas have "seriously considered" adopting the method, according to lawyers for the two men.

"There is strong evidence to believe that their use may actually result in agonizingly slow and painful deaths that are far more barbaric than those caused by the more traditional means of execution," the petition states.

Oklahoma regulations specify that sodium thiopental, a quick-acting barbiturate, be used in conjunction with a chemical paralytic — tubocurarine, succinylcholine chloride or potassium chloride.

The other states do not specify which drugs are to be used, but all require intravenous administration of lethal doses until the prisoner is dead.

The two prisoners specifically ask that Health and Human Services require a warning label be placed on drugs likely to be used for lethal injections stating that they "are not approved for use as a means of execution, are not considered safe and effective as a means of execution and should not be used as a means of execution."

Simon May Lead Olympic Committee

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—The former secretary of the Treasury soon may become the president of the U.S. Olympic Committee.

SIMON

William E. Simon has been nominated for the post and is expected to be elected at a USOC meeting later this month, Olympic officials said Monday.

Simon, who served in the Nixon administration and reportedly was approached for a post in the Reagan administration, has served as USOC treasurer for the past four years, USOC spokesman Mike Moran said.

Formal election of officers will take place at the committee's quadrennial reorganization meeting here Jan. 30-Feb. 1.

If elected, Simon would replace Robert J. Kane, the former head of the physical education program at Cornell University.

The State Department said it had no comment to make on Bani-Sadr. A government source said the agency had no paperwork on the man and that it was believed he entered the United States before the nation prohibited most Iranians from entering the country.

The admission of Mohammed Reza Rahlavi, the deposed shah of Iran, to New York Hospital for cancer treatment in the fall of 1979 sparked a storm of protest in Iran. His admission helped precipitate the takeover of the U.S. embassy in Tehran in November 1979 and the taking of the U.S. hostages.

Kate Smith's Summer Retreat Sold

NEW YORK (AP)—Singer Kate Smith's rustic summer retreat on Lake Placid has been bought by a Rhode Island business executive for $115,501.

MISS SMITH

Robert E. Grant, chairman of American Bakeries Co., of Providence, R.I., made the high bid on Monday.

The property is slightly more than a half-acre and includes a main building, guest and servant cottages and two boat houses.

The sale was approved in Manhattan Supreme Court by Justice Norman Ryp, who is overseeing a conservatorship that handles the affairs of the 73-year-old singer.

Miss Smith, whose radio show theme song was "When the Moon Comes Over the Mountain," is probably best known for her rendition of "God Bless America."

Miss Smith, suffering from several ailments, is living with relatives in Raleigh, N.C.

Anna Chennault Visits Taiwan

TAOYUAN, Taiwan (AP)—Anna Chennault, a staunch supporter of Taiwan who was recently in Peking for high-level talks, has arrived here for a three-day visit.

Mrs. Chennault, a Peking-born Chinese-American, was accompanied by U.S. Sen. Ted Stevens.

Mrs. Chennault said when she arrived Monday that neither she nor Stevens carried any message from Washington or elsewhere.

Mrs. Chennault had returned to her homeland for the first time in 32 years — since the communist takeover in 1949 — at the invitation of the Chinese government.

She is the widow of Gen. Claire Chennault who led the American "Flying Tigers" air squadron in China during World War II.

Mrs. Chennault, a member of the Republican Finance Committee, would not say if she was acting as an intermediary between mainland China and Taiwan for eventual reunification.

Taiwan has rejected reunification overtures from Peking.

Sources close to the Taipei government have said Nationalist leaders approved Mrs. Chennault's three-day Peking visit.

Policeman Helps Bicycle Thief

DENVER (AP)—An unidentified thief absconded with a 10-speed bicycle with a little help from his friends — the Denver police.

When the robber needed help stealing the bicycle chained to a sign on a Denver street one morning last week, he went to the police, officials said.

The wary police demanded identification and proof of ownership. The man, undaunted, left the bicycle bureau and returned shortly with a piece of paper on which was written a number. It is now theorized that he simply went to the bike and copied off the serial number.

The officer ran a check on the number and found the bicycle was not stolen — yet.

An obliging detective team went to the bike, cut the chain tethering it to a downtown sign pole and watched as the man rode off.

Police discovered they'd been hoodwinked when they got a call from Randy White of Denver who called to report that his green Schwinn 10-speed had been stolen.

Police have the name the crafty bicycle thief gave them at the bike bureau and are looking for the person.

Bani-Sadr Kin Undergoes Surgery

NEW YORK (AP)—The second cousin of Iranian President Abolhasan Bani-Sadr quietly checked into a New York hospital last month and underwent open-heart surgery, a hospital spokesman has confirmed.

The spokeswoman for Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center said Monday that Abolghasam Bani-Sadr, who is in his early 60s, was admitted to the center's Harkness Pavilion Dec. 23 after suffering "heart symptoms."

He underwent the operation on Friday, she said, and is in stable condition.

The spokeswoman said she did not know how long Bani-Sadr had been in this country before entering the hospital or the circumstances of his entry into the United States.

Scientists Test Security At Nuclear Power Plants

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP)—Like the authors of the spy novels that line their shelves, engineers and scientists here dream up terrorist plots for breaking into the nation's nuclear weapons plants. Then they plan — and test — security measures to foil their own schemes.

As armchair terrorists, the security scientists here read intelligence reports by the FBI and the military, the "Soldier of Fortune" magazine for mercenaries, mysteries, thrillers and scholarly works. The also examine plans of nuclear plants.

Then they ask themselves, what if...? What if a drunk tries to crash a gate at a weapons plant? What if a spy is working inside a plant?

The plotting and counterplotting are known as "black hat exercises" since the fictitious terrorists and saboteurs are the bad guys.

The targets of the plots developed at Sandia National Laboratory here are nuclear weapons plants and research facilities, owned by the Department of Energy but operated by private contractors.

"What we at Sandia do is look at engineering solutions to the problem of terrorists," said Roy Crouch, director of safeguards and security for the U.S. Department of Energy.

"We read all of this literature and ask ourselves, 'If somebody tries to do that, are we prepared for it?' ... We go to military people and ask them, 'If you and your buddies from Vietnam try to take over our plant, what would you do?'" said Bill Myre, director of nuclear security at Sandia.

Another technique for second-guessing and counteracting terrorist attacks is to feed information on nuclear plants — drawings, floor plans, personnel schedules, photos — into a computer.

Often, "the computers will tip us off to the easiest route into a plant," Myre said.

The scientists also occasionally put a scenario into action to test guards and the plant's security setup.

Crouch said inspectors go out in the middle of the night and tell guards there will be a drill.

"We're not sneaking over a fence and leaping on a guard," he said. "That's the worst thing we can do."

"It's like Army training," Myre said. "The bullets are not for real. There are no real battles until you go to war."

One scenario centers on the Rocky Flats Nuclear Weapons Plant near Denver, where a terrorist using wire cutters slips in at night in search of plutonium. He knocks the guards unconscious with nerve gas and cuts electricity at the plant with a small explosion.

But suddenly, he is nabbed by a special weapons and tactics team and the plot is foiled. The catch was an unseen security measure: night vision devices in the plant television security system worked off of backup generators when the power failed.

"I feel we've raised the entry price pretty high," Myre said. "It's not a piece of cake to walk in and cause trouble."

"I worry at night that some bad thing is going to happen. But the fact nothing has ever happened, not once at any of our plants, well, that must show we're doing a pretty good job."

Burglars Rent Office From New York Bank

NEW YORK (UPI)—A team of skilled bank burglars rented an office above a bank, chopped their way inside and rifled 200 safe deposit boxes in a heist that may have netted them as much as $1 million in cash and jewels.

Police said Monday the thieves, who left behind an acetylene torch, sledge hammers and other tools in an office they rented above the Chase Manhattan Bank branch in Queens, chopped their way through the floor and into the bank below sometime during the weekend.

The building is owned by the bank and a police official said the thieves rented the office from the bank they planned to rob about three months ago.

The burglars lowered themselves into the bank with a rope and then drilled their way through two feet of concrete to reach a vault containing the safe deposit boxes, police said.

The burglary was discovered Monday morning by bank employees, a police spokesman said.

Because safe deposit boxes are rented by customers on an individual basis, there was no immediate way of determining with precision how much cash and jewels may have been taken. But police said the haul was worth several hundred thousand dollars and perhaps as much as $1 million.

A bank official said Chase Manhattan would settle all reasonable claims from customers who rented the boxes that were rifled.

Death Ruled Accidental

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Based on statements by witnesses, a coroner's investigation has determined the shotgun death of Mary Tyler Moore's only son was an accident.

Richard Carlton Meeker Jr., 24, died Oct. 14 when he somehow triggered his sawed off shotgun while talking to a roommate in the living room of his rented home near the University of Southern California.

James Kono, spokesman for the county medical-examiner, said Monday an investigation determined the shooting was accidental. Kono said the ruling was based primarily on statements from friends and witnesses.

Investigators reportedly based their conclusions primarily on statements by Meeker's two roommates — Judy Vasquez, 21, who was with him when the weapon discharged, and Janet McLaughlin, 23, who was in a bedroom when she heard the shotgun blast.

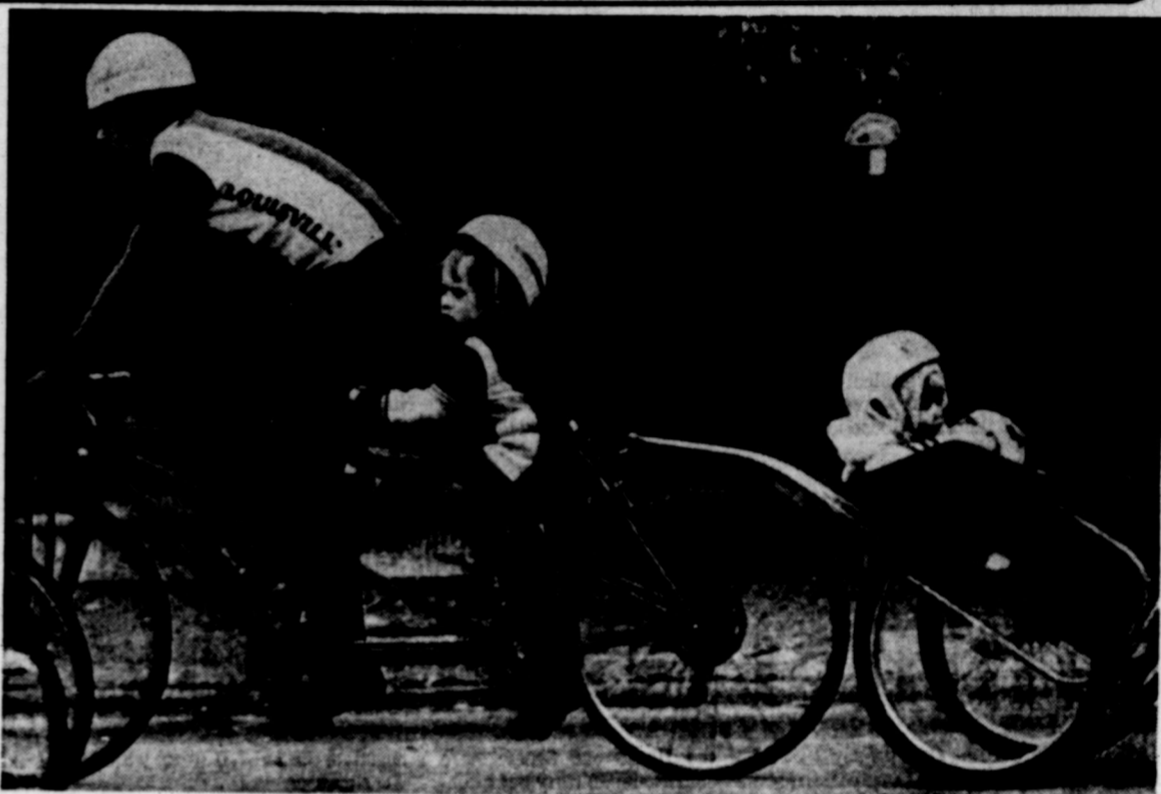

Miss Vasquez told authorities after the shooting that "he was unloading and loading the short-barreled gun when it went off."

"He was just fiddling around with the gun," said Miss McLaughlin. "I don't think he was paying any attention to what he was doing."

Police said the shotgun that killed Meeker was a .410 gauge. Investigators said Meeker usually kept the weapon in an accessible place because he was worried about burglars.

Biological Substance Studied For Use As Shark Repellent

TORONTO (AP)—A fish that can turn aside a hungry shark in mid-snap has become the focus of the search for naturally occurring shark repellents to protect swimmers and divers, scientists say.

The fish's repellent is so potent that sharks exposed to it in experiments can go into convulsions or even roll over belly-up on the bottom of a tank.

Marine biologists told a convention of the American Association for the Advancement of Science on Monday that natural biological substances may replace chemical shark repellents discontinued a decade ago when they were found to be ineffective.

The scientists, led by Dr. Bernard Zaharanec of the Office of Naval Research, said so far no replacement has been found.

But they said there was renewed hope for a repellent made from potent biological toxins discovered in simple sea creatures over the last few years — particularly a toxin secreted by a species of fish called the Moses sole.

The Moses sole, a foot-long flatfish, inhabits the Red Sea and western Indian Ocean.

Its name comes from a legend that the fish was flattened by being split down the middle when Moses divided the waters, said Dr. Eugene Clark of the University of Maryland. Miss Clark, a shark specialist, first reported in 1973 that the Moses sole could repulse sharks.

In a series of tests, individual Moses sole fish survived up to 28 hours in a tank with two captive reef white-tipped sharks despite repeated attacks. In some cases, she said, the sharks would have the fish already in their mouths before being driven away.

"At the end of the experiment, you take the fish out and it doesn't have a scratch on it, even though it's been in the jaws," she said.

When exposed to sharks in the wild, Moses sole survived at least 10 hours before being eaten, although other bait fish were eaten quickly, she said.

Scientists say the fish has a series of poison glands near its back and rear fins, which secrete a milky substance that interferes with the shark's gills. The gill is the lung-like organ through which fish breathe.

Miss Clark said if a shark is exposed to the repellent it will go into convulsions, jerking its head from side to side, banging around the tank, swimming with its mouth open and, in some cases, rolling over belly-up on the bottom.

"When this first came out, companies that make sun tan lotions were interested in supporting it because they thought there was a possibility a salve could be developed where you could in one tube sell a product that would prevent sunburn and shark attack," she said.

Interest in this quick-and-easy solution faded when it was learned that Paradoxin, the fish toxin, degrades rapidly when it is separated from the fish and stored or frozen.

Texas Freshmen Solons Sworn In

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Bill Patman is one of three new Texas congressmen but he can already claim years of Capitol Hill experience, most of it from long before he ever thought he would be taking the oath of office.

The Democrat from Ganado was born in 1927, just one year before his father, the late Wright Patman, was elected to Congress for the first of his 25 terms.

"It's quite a thrill for me, as you can imagine," the new congressman said Monday after the swearing-in ceremony for the 97th Congress.

Patman noted that he grew up watching his father's career and, as a boy, worked as a congressional page. He also worked at other jobs in Washington.

"I was so wrapped up in my father's career that I really didn't contemplate going to Congress myself," the former state senator said. "In fact, I didn't think I'd get into politics."

Rep. Ralph Hall, a Rockwall Democrat, and Rep. Jack Fields, a Republican from Humble, also were sworn in Monday for their first terms.

"It feels good," Hall, a former state senator, said upon assuming his new duties.

Hall's district was represented by the late House Speaker Sam Rayburn for almost half a century, and he said that heritage means a lot.

He said that Rayburn and Ray Roberts, the McKinney Democrat whose retirement cleared the way for Hall's election, represented the 4th District of Texas for most of the 20th Century and he hoped to close out the century in the seat.

Until Hall can find a home of his own, he and his wife are living in the Roberts' suburban Virginia house. Hall also hired many of Roberts' former staff.

Fields, a 28-year-old conservative, became one of the youngest members of Congress.

He defeated veteran liberal Bob Eckhardt, a Houston Democrat, in one of the tightest Texas congressional races last year.

"It's very exciting — it's a whole new world," Fields said after taking the oath of office. "I would be less than honest if I said anything other than that I was overwhelmed."

House committee assignments for new members have not been made yet, but Fields said if he could choose, it would be for a seat on the newly renamed energy and commerce committee.

Fields, who drew strong support from the energy industry during his campaign, estimated that one-half of the residents in his Houston-Gulf Coast district depend directly on the energy industry for their income.

"I would hope that I would have a philosophy that is going to promote the development of energy," he said.

Hall, whose district includes East Texas oil fields, said he expected to be assigned either to the energy and commerce committee or to the public works committee where Roberts sat.

Patman said his top choices were the armed services committee, because of the military installations in his district, or the banking committee.

All three Texas newcomers were accompanied by relatives and political supporters from home for the ceremonial activities that included rounds of receptions and luncheons.

Only members of the family, however, could go along to the crowded House floor where the oath of office was administered en masse.

Voting Totals Issued For 1980 Candidates

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are the vote totals for the 21 candidates on the ballot in one or more states in last fall's presidential election, plus the total number of write-in votes for candidates not on the ballot.

Republican Ronald Reagan won the election with 50.75 percent of the total vote. Democratic President Jimmy Carter was second with 41.02 percent.

Here is the vote, by candidate, as compiled by the Federal Election Commission (some parties have different candidates in different states):

Ronald Reagan, Republican, 43,899,248; Jimmy Carter, Democrat, 35,481,435; John B. Anderson, independent, 5,719,437; Ed Clark, Libertarian, 920,859; Barry Commoner, Citizens' Party, 230,377; Gus Hall, Communist Party, 43,871; Clifton DeBerry, Socialist Workers' Party, 40,105; Deidre Griswold, Workers' World, 13,211; David McReynolds, Socialist Party, 6,720; John Rarick, American Party, 41,172; Benjamin Bubar, Statesman Party (prohibition), 7,100; Andrew Pulley, Socialist Workers' Party, 6,032; Percy Greaves, American Party, 6,539; Ellen McCormack, Respect for Life Party, 32,319; Richard Congress, Socialist Workers' Party, 4,029; Bill Gahres, Down With Lawyers Party, 1,718; Kurt Lynen, "Middle Class Candidate," 3,694; Harley McLain, National People's League, 296; Frank Shelton, American Party, 1,555; Margaret Smith, Peace and Freedom Party, 18,117; Martin Wendelken, independent, 923; Write-ins, 16,921.

Official Voter Count Compiled

WASHINGTON (AP) — The voter turnout in last fall's presidential election — 53.95 percent — is the lowest since 1948 when underdog Harry Truman defeated Thomas E. Dewey.

Official vote counts compiled by the Federal Election Commission show that Republican Ronald Reagan received 43,899,248 votes to defeat Democratic incumbent Jimmy Carter, who had 35,481,435. The vote difference was 8,417,813.

In all, 86,496,678 votes were cast for 21 presidential candidates. That number of votes represents 53.95 percent of the eligible voters, compared with 54.4 percent turnout in the 1976 race when Carter defeated incumbent Republican Gerald R. Ford.

Military Kept From Ousting Gay Soldier

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An avowed homosexual trying to stay in the Air Force has won at least a temporary reprieve from being ousted because of his sexual preference.

In a last-minute move, the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Monday temporarily barred the Air Force from discharging Staff Sgt. Harold Bryant of Tampa, Fla. at MacDill Air Force Base in Florida.

"They caught him literally walking out the gate," said his lawyer, Hamilton Fox III. "It's like the reprieve from the warden in an old Jimmy Cagney movie."

Bryant, 32, a 13-year veteran, filed suit last Friday, contending Air Force regulations barring homosexuals from service except in "unusual circumstances" violated his constitutional rights.

He asked a U.S. District Court in Washington to issue an injunction barring the Air Force from discharging him.

On Monday, U.S. District Judge Norma Johnson turned down the request, ruling Bryant had not shown he would be irreparably harmed by leaving the military.

An appeals court panel, however, issued a stay blocking his discharge at least until Jan. 14.

In seeking a court order, Fox argued the Air Force does not spell out what constitutes "unusual circumstances" permitting homosexuals to remain in the service.

He said Bryant's homosexuality has not affected his job performance in managing base equipment, and Bryant never engages in sexual conduct while on military duty.

But Justice Department lawyer John MacLay said the Air Force policy does not "tolerate" homosexuality and only will consider on a case-by-case basis whether a homosexual should be allowed to remain in the service.

"The courts have long recognized that the military is a separate society, with separate rules of discipline not recognized in civilian society," MacLay said.

Titan Missile Safety Debated

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Air Force review panel says the Titan II missiles, the oldest weapons in the U.S. strategic nuclear arsenal, are basically safe but can be made safer, congressional sources say.

The review group, formed after one of the giant missiles exploded in an Arkansas silo, recommended measures to tighten maintenance procedures and enhance safety in handling volatile liquid propellants, the sources said Monday.

The panel's three-month study of the Titan II missile system, which is nearly 18 years old, is separate from a detailed investigation of the explosion but draws on lessons learned from the blast, said the sources, who asked not to be identified by name. The study was to be made public this afternoon.

One airman was killed and 21 others injured in the Sept. 19 explosion at Damascus, Ark. The explosion occurred after a workman doing routine maintenance on the rocket dropped a wrench socket, piercing the missile's fuel tank and letting volatile hydrazine fuel leak out.

Sources said review panel recommendations designed "to preclude what happened in Arkansas ever happening again" include a suggestion that technicians working on the missile be ordered to tether their tools to their bodies to keep the tools from being dropped.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

Kenneth May

The Fast Start

THIS YEAR WAS off to a good start, says My Neighbor Twice Removed, until he met a man who (a) already had paid all his Christmas bills and (b) had not yet broken a single New Year's resolution.

The General Accounting Office says the Gov't's computers are "dinosaurs." That explains why it takes so many dollars to feed them.

The problem with the federal deficit is that the Gov't has been running like a Chrysler with a Toyota fuel tank.

The late unlamented Congress slapped a "wilderness" designation on lands in five states. That leaves it up to the new Congress to consider putting that designation on the District of Columbia.

GLORY BE! The Environmental Protection Agency finally has turned its attention to a real problem: Motorcycle noise pollution. "Motorcycles are the source of more annoyance and adverse community response than any other single traffic noise source," the EPA says.

New regulations will set a limit of 83 decibels for motorcycles and replacement mufflers sold after Jan. 1, 1983.

According to the EPA, this will reduce the noise level from street motorcycles by 5 decibels. The average car noise level is 65 decibels. The EPA

Gun Control Right Off Target

WASHINGTON—John Lennon, Allard Lowenstein, and Michael Halberstam: all shooting victims. So we're hearing the usual proposal: gun control.

When modern government can't protect us from crime and doesn't exactly fall all over itself trying, isn't it a little presumptuous for it to deny us the means of protecting ourselves?

I don't own a gun. The only one I've ever owned was a .22 rifle my dad gave me.

But I do know this: I want to be able to get a gun if I think I need one. And I'm grateful that enough people now own them that the burglar who sizes up my house can't be sure there isn't a Luger awaiting him inside.

Come to think of it, why hasn't anyone floated the idea that we may need not more gun laws but fewer?

WHAT IF EVERYONE carried a gun? I don't say it should be done. I do suggest it be thought through. It stands to reason that if a healthy proportion of us carried them concealed there would be an indubitable deterrent effect on our muggers.

There's another angle to this thing, and I haven't seen it ventilated anywhere. It's a symbolic issue as well as a substantive one: the fundamental right of self-defense.

If the government is going to take our weapons away, it had better be a good substitute for them. And does it?

Well, I note that in New York the most influential of the three dailies is The Times. The Times is read by the city's movers and shakers, the people who live in the best neighborhoods, in safe apartment houses, with doormen.

People who take cabs instead of subways and buses. People with money and influence, who take safety for granted.

THE TIMES AND its readers are heavily in favor of gun control. This too is in line with their approach to things. For them crime isn't a serious problem. It's seldom front-page stuff (unless it hits a Lennon or Lowenstein). They think the problem can be solved by passing a law embodying their lofty disapproval of guns.

The city's other two papers are The Post and The Daily News, tabloids with a working-class readership that knows the mean streets.

If these readerships are more conservative, it may have something to do with the fact that they have fewer chauffeurs and doormen. They have to live out there.

These people know that gun control laws affect only innocents and suckers. Are judges who give murderers four-year sentences going to put gun-bearers away for more than a week? How well do they enforce the laws that now exist?

Maybe the solution to the crime problem is for law-abiding people to turn criminal.

had proposed to limit motorcycles to 78 decibels, but softened the new regulation in the face of industry complaints.

Why not go to 65, like cars? Even they make more noise than is necessary if a would-be motorcycle jockey is driving.

Lubbock General Hospital now is charging the going rate of $103 a day for a private room. We're afraid to ask what a colonel room would cost.

From the Quote Wrack: "If you never say goodbye, you'll never get anywhere."—Dale Dauten, author of "Quitting: Knowing When to Leave."

BEFORE HE WAS tapped by Ronald Reagan to become budget director in the new administration, Rep. Dave Stockman recommended that the President-elect "declare a national economic emergency soon after inauguration."

Reagan, Stockman wrote, "should tell the Congress and the nation that the economic, financial, budget, energy and regulatory conditions he inherited are far worse than anyone had imagined."

For openers, Stockman recommended an Emergency Economic Stabilization and Recovery Program which would include budget reductions, tax cuts and a "dramatic, substantial recession of the regulatory burden."

As director of the Office of Management and Budget, Stockman will be in position to push his recommended program.

"UNLESS SWIFT, comprehensive and far-reaching regulatory policy corrections are undertaken immediately, an unprecedented quantum scale-up of the much discussed 'regulatory burden' will occur during the next 18-40 months," Stockman warned.

He said that "McGovernite no-growth activists assumed control of the relevant sub-Cabinet policy posts during the Carter administration" and have spent the last four years tooling up to implement "a mind-boggling outpouring of rule-makings, interpretive guidelines and major litigation."

In all, he figured, "in excess of $100 billion in new environmental safety and energy compliance costs are scheduled for the early 1980s."

STOCKMAN BELIEVES "a dramatic, substantial recession of the regulatory burden is needed both for the short-term cash flow relief it will provide to business firms and the long-term signal it will provide to corporate investment planners."

Among his specific suggestions are an axing of the passive restraint standard for new cars, a relaxing of air standard requirements and the insertion of mandatory cost-benefit analyses into environmental enabling acts.

Such steps, on top of an immediate supply side tax cut and major spending reductions, could turn the economy around during the next two years, Stockman believes.

"If bold policies are not swiftly, deftly and courageously implemented in the first six months," he warns, however, "Washington will quickly become engulfed in political disorder commensurate with the surrounding economic disarray."

The Price Isn't Right

TREATING inflation as a derivative problem rather than a problem in itself is politically attractive since it relieves office-holders of the distressing necessity of proposing programs for the drastic curbing of expenditures or maintaining a tax system that will pay for them.

Instead, politicians can turn their attention to proposing elaborate new activist economic programs for curing inflation by attacking the other economic problems from which inflation is allegedly derived.

Inflation, in fact, a secondary effect of such other problems as the productivity slowdown and foreign actions affecting the price of energy?

It seems that the opposite is much closer to the truth—these other problems are to a large degree derived from the inflation problem, rather than the inflation problem from them.

AN INFLATIONARY economy is inherently an inefficient economy—hence the slowdown in productivity growth.

The wild gyrations of prices in the 1970s made rational preparations for business expansion much more difficult. The effective allocation of resources—the key to overall economic efficiency—is disturbed by frequent large and unpredictable price changes.

Our financial institutions, which play a critical economic role, were not designed for and do not work well in an environment of severe inflation.

As for the price actions of foreign oil producers, it is inconceivable that these would have occurred in the way they did in the 1970s if it had not been for the inflationary background created by our own monetary misdeeds.

Perhaps the worst domestic economic effects of the rise in the world price of energy materials came from U.S. government attempts to minimize their effects on prices by direct controls, controls that obviously have been futile.

"INFLATION IS the name of the disease that is sapping the nation's economic vigor," writes George Hagedorn, chief economist for the National Association of Manufacturers.

"Its source is government's failure to carry out the prime economic function of government—providing the nation with a stable medium of exchange," he says in the NAM monthly journal Enterprise.

When, or if, we solve the inflation problem, we may be agreeably surprised to observe how many other problems vanish along with it.

We will get nowhere in dealing with inflation unless and until we treat it as a problem in its own right. It's discouraging, then, to hear some of our political leaders evading this principle seeking public favor by talking of other things.

"HOW STUPID CAN I GET?"

John D. Lofton:

Mondale Blind To Red Menace

WASHINGTON—Certain kinds of questions are depressing even when asked by the Village Idiot. But, when these questions are posed by the man who for four years was only a heartbeat away from the presidency—well, they're downright frightening.

In a recent interview with a group of reporters, Vice President Walter Mondale observed: "I'm very worried about U.S.-Soviet relations. I cannot understand—it just baffles me—why the Soviets these last few years have behaved as they have."

"Why did they have to build up all these arms? Why did they have to go into Afghanistan? Why can't they relax just a little bit about Eastern Europe? Why do they sprinkle their influence around Ethiopia? Why do they try every door to see if it is locked?"

NOW, THE FIRST point about Communism is a rather basic one: Communists act like Bad Guys because they are Bad Guys. Simple? Yes, but not an easy assertion to understand. As Alexander Solzhenitsyn pointed out in a talk to the AFL-CIO five years ago:

"It's an astonishing phenomenon that Communism has been writing about itself in the most open way—in black and white—for 125 years. 'The whole world can read, everyone is literate, but somehow no one wants to understand. Humanity acts in such a way as if it didn't understand what Communism is, and doesn't want to understand, is not capable of understanding.'"

Marxism has always opposed freedom. As the founding fathers of Communism, Marx and Engels, have written: "Reforms are a sign of weakness." "Democracy is more to be feared than monarchy and aristocracy." "Political liberty is a false liberty, worse than abject slavery"; and, as regards terrorism, "it will be necessary to repeat the year 1793. After achieving power, we'll be considered monsters, but we couldn't care less."

BEFORE THE OCTOBER Revolution in Russia, Lenin wrote a book, "The Lessons of the Paris Commune." There he analyzed why the Commune was defeated in 1871. And, as Solzhenitsyn notes:

"Lenin's principal conclusion was that the Commune had not shot, had not killed enough of its enemies. It had destroyed too few people, when it was necessary to kill entire classes and groups. And when he came to power, Lenin did just this."

The question of war is also spelled out in detail in Communist and Marxist literature.

"We cannot support the slogan 'Peace' since we regard it as a totally muddled one and a hindrance to revolutionary struggle."

"THERE'S NO POINT in proposing a benign program of pious wishes for peace without at the same time placing at the forefront the call for illegal organization and the summons to Civil War."

In his address to the AFL-CIO in 1975, Solzhenitsyn declared:

"Communism is as crude an attempt to explain society and the individual as if a surgeon were to perform his delicate operations with a meat-ax. 'This whole created being—man—is reduced to matter. It's characteristic that Communism is so devoid of arguments that it has none to advance against its opponents in our Communist countries. 'It lacks arguments, and hence there is the club, the prison, the concentration camp, and insane asylums with forced confinement.'"

As regards the United States, Solzhenitsyn says:

"THE COMMUNIST IDEOLOGY is to destroy your society. This has been their aim for 125 years and has never changed; only the methods have changed a little."

"When there is detente, peaceful coexistence and trade, they will still insist: The ideological war must continue! And what is ideological war? It is a focus of hatred, this is continued repetition of the oath to destroy the Western world."

As one witness who has been there and has been thrown up from the belly of the Communist dragon, Solzhenitsyn asked his labor audience:

"Is it possible or impossible to transmit the experience of those who have suffered to those who have yet to suffer?"

For each one of us the answer to these questions will, of course, be different. But in the case of the outgoing vice president of the United States, the answer would appear to be in the negative. And this is profoundly depressing.

Sylvia Porter:

Don't Invite Tax Audit With 'Stupid' Mistake

(First of three columns) NEW YORK—As the 1981 calendar year opens, the 1980 income tax reporting agony begins.

And you're in the tiny minority of all Americans if you will not approach this annual task in deep (if unspoken) fear that your tax return this year will be plucked by the mysterious Internal Revenue Service for audit.

Most of you do believe it is only a matter of time before your return will be flagged for exam. Most of you shrink from the IRS' eye more than from any other U.S. agency's.

Yet, the fact is that the IRS audits only a pittance 2 percent of the 80 million to 90 million returns filed each year. And the audits it does make are far more specifically targeted and less likely to hit you, an average taxpayer, than is commonly believed.

HOW DOES the IRS audit process operate?

(1) Above all, the IRS relies on a highly-secret and complicated computer system. The computers, located in Martinsburg, W.Va., and at other regional centers, screen all tax returns. They are programmed to pull those returns which differ markedly from returns filed by "normal" taxpayers, reports Matthew Bender & Co., a large tax and legal publisher, in an extraordinary account of how the audit procedure goes in its "1981 Dictionary of 1040 Deductions."

Bender bases its statements on IRS memos, audit manuals and interviews with leading tax practitioners.

(2) THE IRS DETERMINES these taxpayer "norms" by auditing some 40,000 to 50,000 taxpayers every few years. These special audits are designed not just to collect revenue but also to document the accuracy of every item of information on the return.

Individuals who have suffered through these audits report that they must produce their birth certificates, driver's licenses and even their children (to prove they really exist).

(3) On the basis of these exhaustive surveys and other data, the IRS knows what a typical taxpayer should report on his or her return given his or her income, profession, geographic location, etc.

It also is able to determine where and how taxpayers are likely to cheat. Returns which stray widely from the "norms" are, after further examination, slated for auditing.

(4) INDEPENDENT of this computerized screening process, the IRS focuses on certain problem areas which it feels taxpayers abuse. One of these programs, for instance, is aimed at detecting individuals who file more than a single request for a tax refund.

Others are directed at high-level drug dealers, "professionals" engaged in "abusive" tax shelters and those who understate the amount of wages, interest and dividends they receive.

own hands—if they can get the juries to convict.

I'm daydreaming, of course. It isn't going to happen, any more than effective gun control is.

I'll just go on being astounded at the tameness of people who continue paying inordinate taxes to a system that doesn't even perform its first duty to them.

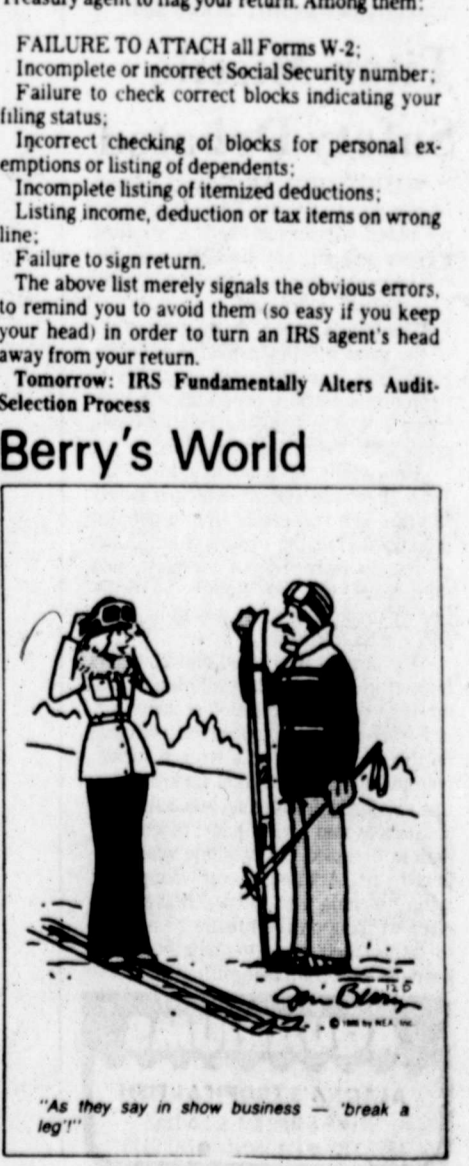

FAILURE TO ATTACH all Forms W-2; Incomplete or incorrect Social Security number; Failure to check correct blocks indicating your filing status;

Incorrect checking of blocks for personal exemptions or listing of dependents; Incomplete listing of itemized deductions; Listing income, deduction or tax items on wrong line;

Failure to sign return. The above list merely signals the obvious errors, to remind you to avoid them (so easy if you keep your head) in order to turn an IRS agent's head away from your return.

Police Guarding Wife Of Yorkshire Suspect

ESCORTED FROM COURT — Peter William Sutcliffe, 35, is led under a blanket from Dewsbury Magistrates Court in England by police officers. He has remained in custody for eight days charged with the murder on Nov. 17, 1980 of 20-year-old student Jacqueline Hill, who has been described as the 13th victim of the Yorkshire Ripper. (AP Laserphoto)

LEEDS, England (AP) — Police guarded the wife of truck driver Peter Sutcliffe at a secret hideaway today, protecting her from the mob that howled "Kill him!" when her husband was indicted for the last of the 13 Yorkshire Ripper killings.

Police officials said 30-year-old, Czech-born Sonia Sutcliffe was put in protective custody after more than 1,000 men, women and children screamed curses and obscenities at her husband when he made a brief appearance Monday in the magistrates' court in the nearby mill town of Dewsbury.

Mrs. Sutcliffe and her gray-haired father also came in for a barrage of abuse when they arrived at the court escorted by detectives. Police sources said she had been questioned as a material witness, but they did not expect any charges would be filed against her.

The police were careful not to formally identify the 35-year-old Sutcliffe as the Yorkshire Ripper, the mass murderer blamed for the savage slaying of 13 women in northern England in the last five years. But a general relaxation of fear and tension in the Yorkshire and Lancashire cities the killer terrorized indicated the public believed the biggest manhunt in British police history was over.

"Almost like the old days," said the manager of a tavern in the red light area of Leeds. "We've not seen so many girls about for ages."

"It's incredible how the atmosphere has changed," said a streetwalker in Manchester's sleazy Moss Side quarter. "I don't have to keep looking over my shoulder all the time."

The bearded Sutcliffe was charged before three magistrates Monday with the murder of Leeds University student Jacqueline Hill, who was described by police after her death last Nov. 17 as the Ripper's 13th victim.

Police sources said he may be charged later with some of the other 12 killings. But prosecutor Maurice Shaffner said there was a lot of work still to be done.

Looking dazed after three days of interrogation, Sutcliffe nodded when asked if he understood the charges against him. But he said nothing and entered no plea during the five-minute hearing.

The magistrates ordered him held without bail until Jan. 14. Unconfirmed reports said he was being kept under heavy guard in a special cell, well away from other prisoners, in the Wakefield top security prison near Leeds.

The Yorkshire Ripper had eluded police since 1975 and had become a public bogeyman in northern England. Nine of his victims were prostitutes, and this together with the mutilation he inflicted on them resulted in his being nicknamed after Jack the Ripper, the killer in 1888 of six prostitutes in London's East End, who was never caught.

Shaffner told the Leeds court that Sutcliffe was arrested Friday night parked in a driveway in a red light district of Sheffield with a prostitute in his car. The prosecutor said "certain items" were found near the car, and "these have special significance in the murder charge."

Police sources said the items included a ball pen hammer and a knife, the type of weapons detectives said the Ripper used to club and mutilate his victims.

FLAG DISPLAY

The U.S. flag should be displayed on all days when the weather permits, especially on legal holidays, on official buildings when in use, in or near polling places on election day and near schools when in session. A citizen may display the flag any time he wishes.

Kissinger Wants Stronger U.S. Military Presence In Mideast

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Former U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger today called for a more visible American military presence in the Middle East and said a new "strategic doctrine" was needed to deal with crisis in the region.

Kissinger told reporters the Soviet Union had stepped up its presence in the Middle East because the U.S. had become "mesmerized by the illusion that the Soviets can do anything they want and we can do nothing."

At a press conference before leaving for Saudi Arabia, Kissinger's next stop on a two-week Middle East trip, the former secretary of state said the incoming Reagan administration should give "some concrete content" to the Camp David agreements negotiated by President Carter.

"It's a more complex problem, I would have said, than I had originally thought," Kissinger told reporters in Jerusalem before leaving for Ben-Gurion Airport.

"While I continue to favor a Jordanian participation (in the peace process), I think it has to be brought in relationship also to the Egyptian role in these talks," he said.

"Jordan has to be built into these negotiations," he said. "It should not be seen as an alternative." At the outset of his trip ten days ago, Kissinger said he thought it was time for Jordan to be brought into the peace negotiations.

Stressing his visit to the Middle East was private, Kissinger said he would not be meeting with Palestinian representatives. He also said he would be "astonished" if Saudi Arabia were ready to participate directly in the negotiations at this time.

He said he gained a "clearer understanding" of the role Egypt wants to play in the negotiations after his talks with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and other Egyptian leaders.

He said an independent European initiative in the Middle East would be counterproductive and called for a coordinated European-U.S. policy.

In calling for a visible U.S. military presence in the area, Kissinger said, "We cannot refrain from doing what is necessary because we are mesmerized by the illusion that the Soviets can do anything they want and we can do nothing."

In answer to a question, he said, "The Soviet response can't be much more than they have already done," pointing to the presence of Soviet forces in the region.

Poland's Solidarity Union Vows Strike

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — The Solidarity independent union movement said today it would call selective sympathy strikes in southern Polish factories on Wednesday unless authorities began talks with protesting farmers in a southern town.

The threat came after labor leader Lech Walesa and Deputy Prime Minister Mieczyslaw Jagielski appeared to have reached some understanding on the protest in Ustrzyki Dolne in southern Poland and other protests by private farmers.

Sources in the Solidarity movement said Walesa and Jagielski also discussed the potential flashpoint issue of how many Saturdays off per month workers should be granted, but did not reach any compromise.

In a Telex message to foreign news agencies, the Sarty chapter in Ustrzyki Dolne in southern Poland said selective sympathy strikes would begin Wednesday "all over the southern region" unless talks began by 8 p.m. today on a wide list of farmers' demands. They included registration as an independent union and halting of police harassment.

It said wider action could be called if the problem was not settled by Jan. 10.

Jagielski, who last August was the

Dog Found In Rubble From Italian Quake

AVELLINO, Italy (AP) — A pedigree dog trapped for 44 days under the rubble of a house brought down by the Nov. 23 earthquake was pulled out alive by rescue workers today.

Firemen said Reno, a spinone, or Italian pointer, survived by drinking rain water seeping into the wreckage.

The dog's owner, a 19-year-old girl, returned to her home for the first time since the quake and heard yelps coming from the rubble.

She called in a fire rescue squad, which began digging and found the dog in a shaft created by falling beams.

A veterinarian said the dog was very thin and put him on a diet of vitamins and water for 48 hours.

government's chief labor negotiator, met with Walesa for four hours Monday at the Council of Ministers building in Warsaw. Walesa's visit to the capital had not been announced previously.

No details of the talks were released, but a beaming Walesa said the meeting had taken place in a "good" atmosphere and the rural protests were a main point.

Union sources said 600 farmers and Solidarity workers have been occupying the site of the old state-run union in the town of Rzeszow for the past several days, demanding shares of the old union's property when it is distributed.

In the southern town of Ustrzyki Dolne, the sources said, a group of farmers have been occupying the local Rural Office to protest police harassment of Rural Solidarity activists.

A Solidarity legal expert said it appeared Walesa and Jagielski had agreed on a solution of the Rzeszow and Ustrzyki Dolne problems. He gave no further details.

Rural Solidarity, with 1 million members, represents one-fifth of Poland's private farmers. Leaders of the group hailed as a victory last week's decision by the supreme court to postpone action on the farmers' appeal of a lower court rejection of their demands.

Sources in the 10 million-member Solidarity labor coalition said Walesa and Jagielski also talked about union demands for work-free Saturdays, but no compromise was reached. The government has said the plan is too costly.

on the Friendship Bridge between El Paso and Juarez and then held discussions on several problems between Mexico and the United States. (AP Laserphoto)

Reagan, Lopez Portillo Plan More Meetings

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ronald Reagan and Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo plan a series of future meetings on the U.S.-Mexican border to follow up on a "discreet and elegant" encounter in Ciudad Juarez.

In Washington, Reagan termed Monday's meeting "successful and wonderful" and said it "establishes the basis for having the kind of friendly relations neighbors as close as we are should have."

Aides said the president-elect hopes to hold a similar meeting at the U.S.-Canadian border with Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliot Trudeau in the near future, possibly before Inauguration Day.

The meeting was in sharp contrast to the often strained relations between President Carter and Lopez Portillo, underlined during Carter's 1978 visit to Mexico City. At that time the Mexican president heaped scorn on the United States and was in no mood to soothe the ruffled diplomatic feelings.

Crowds on both sides of Rio Grande were sparse Monday. Several thousand Mexicans did turn out along the way — especially on Lincoln Avenue — where there is a statue of Abraham Lincoln — to wave American and Mexican flags at the passing presidential motorcade.

Allen said it was "very significant" that Lopez Portillo walked to the American side of the Cordoba Bridge to first greet Reagan, calling it a "highly symbolic" gesture.

Low Key Reception Hastily Reversed

EL PASO (AP) — Local Republican leaders did some last-minute scrambling after President-elect Ronald Reagan decided he wanted to see a crowd on hand for his reception at the airport here.

Initially, Reagan had wanted the arrival to be "low key," but changed his mind two days beforehand.

"At first, they didn't want anybody at the airport at all," said El Paso County GOP Chairman Ralph Scoggins. "Then Saturday afternoon, they changed their minds."

Scoggins was able to hire a mariachi band and spread the word so that about 250 citizens showed up at the airport for the Monday morning arrival of Reagan, who then went by car across the international border to Juarez for a meeting with the president of Mexico.

Scoggins said the brightly costumed mariachi musicians were hired after some of Reagan's advance men heard the folk music Saturday night and suggested the band be at the airport for the arrival.

A reception line of 21 persons including Texas Gov. Bill Clements was hastily assembled as Reagan stepped down from his jet.

In another last-minute turnaround, U.S. Ambassador to Mexico Julian Nava almost was left out of the meeting between Reagan and Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo. Nava was at the El Paso airport an hour before Reagan's arrival Monday, but he was not wearing an official identification badge when the presidential parties arrived at the Art and History Museum in Juarez, Mexico.

A small group of national pool news reporters and the entourages of both leaders entered the museum, but guards kept Nava out by mistake. He remained outside in an area roped off for about 200 other newsmen for about 10 minutes while the rest of the party was inside the small, round building.

Finally a Mexican official retrieved Nava from the crowd and apologized for not recognizing him.

While Reagan and Lopez Portillo met, Clements was in a separate room of the museum, talking to Oscar Dinelant, governor of the Mexican state of Chihuahua, and the mayors of El Paso and Juarez.

Clements said one of the topics the four men discussed was that of the migration of Mexicans flooding into the United States illegally to seek jobs. At a border governors' meeting last summer, Clements proposed giving the Mexicans work permits to control the flow.

"There is a general area of agreement that very closely follows the pattern of what we talked about last June — temporary work visas good for up to a year," Clements said. He said no action has been taken on such a plan yet.

"Just exactly how you bring about an implementation of that kind of a program has not been discussed, but that's only a detail," he said.

When a reporter asked Clements if the meeting were one more of symbolism than substance he said, "That sounds good in the press but I find very little substance in that phrase."

Nominee For Press Secretary Rises From Public Obscurity

WASHINGTON (AP) — Overnight, James Brady is going from public obscurity to one of the most visible jobs in government. He will be Ronald Reagan's presidential press secretary.

Ironically, confirmation of the appointment expected to be made officially today came not from the new press secretary, but from his mother in Centralia, Ill.

"Jimmy called us Friday night to tell us he was to be named press secretary on Tuesday," Dorothy Brady said. "We're awfully excited, naturally."

Brady is best known to date for his press conference introductions of the Cabinet officers and other members of Reagan's incoming high command. He has had to wait an embarrassingly long time to be named to the elite circle himself.

He has been Reagan's transition press secretary, a job he got because campaign press secretary Franklyn Nofziger did not want it. The Washington Star reported overtures had been made to more than a half-dozen journalists and former Washington press officers before Reagan turned to Brady.

At 40, Brady brings to his new job a mixture of government and public relations experience, credentials lacking in such recent press secretaries as Jody Powell, Ron Nessen and Ron Ziegler.

Brady was press secretary in the presidential primary campaign of Republican John Connally and joined the Reagan entourage after Connally dropped out of the 1980 race. He became deputy to Nofziger, who will become political director in the White House.

It was no secret that the rotund, witty Brady wanted the job. His dedication to the Reagan campaign was so complete that when he won an airline's free trip to anywhere in the world, he allowed the ticket to lapse because he lacked the time.

Brady will bring a lively sense of humor to his West Wing job.

Once, when asked why the Reagan team was turning to so many officials from the Nixon and Ford administrations, he said, "We have looked at the Eisenhower administration, but they're either busy or not with us any more."

Another time, when Reagan spoke highly of James Watt during a trip to a meat locker, a reporter asked Brady if that confirmed Watt would be interior secretary. Brady, who can't resist a pun, said: "The president-elect did not confirm any Cabinet people at the meat locker. There was a lot at stake."

He learned his Republicanism at the dinner table. His mother was an active Republican campaign worker and his grandfather was a member of the Marion County Board of Supervisors until his death.

"My father always said he wouldn't vote for a Democrat even if the Republican candidate was a horse thief," Mrs. Brady said. Brady's father is a retired railroader.

In his youth, Brady was an Eagle scout, an altar boy, president of his high school French club, a summer camp counselor, an amateur astronomer and an expert in American Indian lore and dancing. He also was on the high school track team and — like fellow Illinoisian Reagan — was a summer lifeguard.

He graduated in 1962 from the University of Illinois — where he received the Taft Award for Young Republicans — with majors in journalism and political science. He spent two more years at the university's law school.

Brady's wife, Sarah, is a former director of administration for the Republican National Committee.

Brady worked in Chicago for seven years for an advertising and marketing firm, eventually becoming a partner. He served for a year on the staff of Senate Republican leader Everett Dirksen and was an honor intern in the Department of Justice's antitrust division in 1962.

He also was director of legislative and public affairs for the Illinois State Medical Society and moved to Washington in 1968 to be a communications consultant to the House of Representatives.

Energy Department Spared In Report

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A still-unpublished Reagan transition team report recommends cutting almost every Energy Department program except nuclear power, but sparing the beleaguered agency itself, a trade publication reports.

The transition document, reviewed by Capital Energy Letter, calls for "major reorganization" rather than abolition of the department.

"The DOE should not at this time be abolished since there are many essential functions that must, for the time, continue to be performed by the federal government," the transition report said.

The recommendations, including the one running counter to Republican calls for dismantling the department, will be reviewed by higher transition officials and Energy Secretary-designate James Edwards.

The document said the strategic petroleum reserve program should be placed under a new assistant secretary for emergency preparedness, who would also coordinate all planning activities, the newsletter reported.

The agency's fiscal 1982 nuclear budget should be increased by $100 million from the requested $2.138 billion, while the solar and conservation budget should be slashed from a requested $2.3 billion to $788 million, it said.

The plan immediately would earmark $225 million for the stalled Clinch River Breeder Reactor project that President Carter tried to kill to curb the proliferation of atomic weapons.

Eyed for budget cuts are the SRC-1 and SRC-2 synthetic fuel projects in Kentucky and West Virginia, both of which are behind schedule. Two other synfuel demonstration projects — Exxon Donor Solvent and H-Coal — would continue with full financing.

In general, the report said the new administration must develop a policy on public financing of fossil fuel demonstration plants. And it said there is a need to clarify the relationship between the department and the new Synthetic Fuels Corp., and to set policy governing the $5.5 billion the agency is rushing to give industry for synthetic fuel plants.

The transition team also proposed leasing 85 million additional acres of public land for offshore oil and gas development in Alaska and the western over-thrust belt by 1990.

DEAR ABBY:

Long-Lost Relatives Appear On Doorstep

DEAR ABBY: Last week my husband's half-brother, from whom he had not heard in 33 years, appeared at our door with his wife. They had driven from California, arriving at our place in Ohio just as we were finishing our dinner. We were hurrying to get to a meeting so we didn't offer to feed them. It was very awkward.

My husband asked them where they were staying, and they said, "Nowhere." I'm sure they were planning to stay with us, but I was expecting my parents from out of town in a few days, and we have only one guest room, so I didn't offer. However, I did invite them to come back the following evening for dinner.

Now my husband says blood is thicker than water — that we should have asked them to stay with us until my parents arrived. I think we did enough asking them for dinner.

Please settle this argument. MRS. VERSUS MR.

DEAR MRS.: If these long-lost relatives knew where to find you, they could (and should) have written or called to let you know they were coming. Blood may be thicker than water, but after 33 years in California it might have thinned out a little. I vote with you.

DEAR ABBY: I must respond to your letter from IN LOVE IN JERSEY, the woman who was in love with a homosexual. Your advice to "do yourself (and him) a favor and give up" probably cost them both a valuable friendship. Gay men make marvelous friends. They are warm, sincere, understanding and will do anything for a friend. Maybe she wasn't so much in love with him as she valued his friendship.

My best friend is gay (I am a woman), and we think the world of each other. Friends are hard to come by, and it shouldn't matter whether they are male, female or gay. LOVES A GAY IN PORTLAND

DEAR LOVES: IN LOVE IN JERSEY didn't just "love" a gay; she was "in love with him," and wanted him to marry her. She asked if I thought he could change his sexual preference. I told her his chances for changing were zilch and advised her to give up. Granted, gays make wonderful friends, but they are not for marrying.

DEAR ABBY: A very good friend of ours died after a long illness. While this friend (I'll call him Bill) was ill, my husband and I sent over at least a dozen books for him to read. One in particular is irreplaceable, having been personally inscribed by the author. It's been nearly two years since Bill died, and his widow has made no attempt to return our books.

Although we see her quite often socially as well as at church, we have never mentioned the books to her. We know she's aware that she has them because a year ago she said, "I'm really ashamed of myself for not having returned those books you let Bill read."

How does one resolve such an awkward problem? NAMELESS, PLEASE

DEAR NAMELESS: Call Bill's widow and tell her you realize that she's had a lot on her mind these last two years, so she needn't be embarrassed for neglecting to return your books, and if it's convenient, you'd like to stop by and pick them up tomorrow. And when you do, bring her a little gift of flowers, cookies, fruit or whatever.

Do you wish you had more friends? Get Abby's booklet, "How to Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to: Abby, Popularity, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Mobile Homes Especially Vulnerable To Fire

CLEVELAND (Special) — If you live in a mobile home, your chances of dying in a fire are twice that of people living in conventional homes. In real numbers, 15,000 mobile home fires cause nearly 500 deaths and 1,500 injuries annually, according to estimates by The National Fire Prevention and Control Administration.

And with mobile home sales on the rise due to the high cost of conventional housing, the number of deaths and injuries caused by these fires should increase as well.

To avoid becoming a fire statistic, follow this advice from William G. Gilmore, senior vice president of A-T-O Inc., Willoughby, Ohio, the world's largest integrated manufacturer of fire protection equipment.

"If you're buying a new mobile home, make sure it meets the Mobile Home Construction Safety Standard set by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development," the A-T-O spokesman said. "Remember, too, that a home built with fire resistant materials will be safer than one built without."

"The majority of mobile home fires are electrical," said Gilmore. "What often happens is that electrical components such as wires, switches or outlets fail, causing insulation around the wires to melt away. Bare wires, in turn, ignite structural elements such as insulation, wall studs or paneling.

"Before you buy, make sure all electrical work meets minimum recognized safety standards. If you're adding a room, have the electrical work performed by a qualified electrician. All appliances should be tested, approved and recommended for use by a nationally recognized testing agency," the A-T-O executive added.

"Because heating units are the second greatest cause of mobile home fires, the heating unit should be certified, tested and installed in accordance with recognized safety standards."

Heating system fires are usually caused by breakdowns in heating unit parts, or by combustibles being stored too close to heating elements. Never store wood, paper, cloth, combustible liquids or other flammable materials near the elements, especially if the unit produces an open flame.

Two other common types of mobile home fires are cooking and smoking fires. Burning grease is involved in most of the cooking fires. Never leave a burner on, or cooking food unattended. Again, all combustible materials should be stored away from cooking elements. If a fire should start in a pan, turn the burner off and immediately cover the pan with a lid to smother the flames.

The majority of smoking fires are the result of burning cigars, cigarettes or other tobaccos coming in contact with clothes, bedding, upholstery, etc. The familiar, but often ignored, "don't smoke in bed" rule is still sound advice.

"Regardless of the fire, virtually all types can be detected by properly installed and working smoke and heat detectors," said Gilmore. "Check the units periodically to make sure they're working properly."

"In addition, every mobile home should have a multi-purpose, dry chemical fire extinguisher," he said. "The multi-purpose A-B-C rating insures that the extinguisher will be effective on all types of fires."

"Finally, plan fire escape routes, and be sure you keep doors and windows free of objects that might hinder your escape. Evacuate everyone as soon as possible and call the fire department," he concluded.

Declarer has a tremendous edge in the play of the hand because he can see all of his side's assets. Therefore, there is rarely an excuse for him to go down in a makable contract.

The auction was routine. With a trump suit of slightly better quality, South would have been justified in rebidding four hearts. North, who had a maximum no trump response and three hearts, had no qualms about accepting his partner's invitation.

West led the top of his club sequence, declarer played low from dummy and won the trick with his ace. He cashed his two top trumps and seemed mildly disappointed when the suit followed the odds and broke 3-1. Now declarer had a sure trump loser, and he was in danger of losing three spade tricks. In an attempt to divest himself of one his low spades, declarer tried to run the diamonds. Unfortunately, East ruffed the third diamond, shifted to the jack of spades and the defenders collected three spade tricks and a trump for down one.

The result might seem to be normal enough—with a better break in either red suit, or with East holding the ace of spades or West the long trumps, the contract was cold. Still, the real reason for South's defeat was poor planning.

Declarer could not afford to have East gain the lead because of the vulnerability of the king of spades. See what happens if, at trick two, declarer crosses to the ten of diamonds and leads a heart from dummy.

If East plays a low trump, declarer simply covers and allows West to win the trick. West cannot endanger the king of spades. Declarer wins any return, draws trumps and then runs dummy's diamonds, discarding a spade on the long diamond. The defenders will get only what they are entitled to—two spade tricks and a heart.

WHOLEGRAIN BAGELS

Treat Friends To Home-Made Bagels

Traditionally, bagels are a Jewish food, served as part of a delectable sandwich — spread with cream cheese, lox (smoked salmon), sliced tomatoes and onions.

This recipe from Quaker Oats features whole-grain oats, which give the bagels a hearty texture and taste and supply extra nutrients.

BAGELS

3 to 3½ cups bread flour
1 cup ground oat flour*
3 tbsps. sugar
2 pkg. active dry yeast
2 tsp. salt
1 ½ cups warm water (110 to 115)
1 egg, beaten

Combine 1 cup bread flour, oat flour, sugar, yeast and salt in large mixing bowl. Add water, beat at low speed about 30 seconds or just until blended. Beat at high speed for 3 minutes, scraping bowl often.

Gradually add enough remaining bread flour to make moderately stiff dough. Knead on lightly-floured surface 10-12 minutes, or until smooth and elastic. Shape to form ball. Place in greased medium-sized bowl, turning once to coat surface. Cover, let rise in warm place about one hour (dough will NOT double in size).

Punch dough down; let rest 15 minutes. Divide into 12 equal portions. Shape each into a 2 to 2½ in. ball. With end of wooden spoon, punch hole through center of each ball. Gently enlarge hole to 1 to 1½ inch diameter, forming dough into ring shape.

Place on greased baking sheet. Cover, let rise in warm place about 30 minutes. (Dough will NOT double in size.) Broil bagels 5 inches from heat, about 2 minutes on each side. (Surface should NOT brown.)

Meanwhile, bring 3-inch deep water to a boil in large skillet or Dutch oven. Reduce heat. Simmer 4 to 5 bagels at a time, about 2 minutes on each side. Remove from water; drain on absorbent paper.

Heat oven to 375. Place bagels on greased baking sheet, brush with beaten egg. Bake at 375 for 25-30 minutes, or until golden brown. Remove from baking sheet; cool on wire rack.

Serve warm or split in half and lightly toasted. Serve with lox, cream cheese, tomato slices and onion slices, if desired.

*GROUND OAT FLOUR

Place 1½ cups quick or old-fashioned oats, uncooked, in blender or food processor.

COVER: blend about 60 seconds. Makes about 1 cup.

Decline Shown In Auto Sales

DETROIT (AP) — After signs of an early-December revival, sales of American-built cars — with the exception of Chrysler Corp. autos — slumped in mid-month.

Overall, sales were down 22 percent with the domestic industry delivering 151,616 cars against 194,248 in the comparable period in 1979, according to company reports Monday.

That gives a seasonally adjusted annual sales rate of 6.1 million cars compared with 5.6 million in late November and 6.6 million in early December.

Chrysler's sales, reported during the holidays, rose 20 percent from Dec. 11 to Dec. 20 compared with the same 1979 period. General Motors Corp. sales were off 31 percent, Ford Motor Co. sales were down 13 percent, American Motors Corp.'s fell an estimated 37 percent and Volkswagen of America's were down 19 percent.

The Chrysler Loan Guarantee Board today was scheduled to discuss the ailing No. 3 automaker's latest application for a $400 million in more loan guarantees.

Chrysler's sales were bolstered by rebates — now 7 percent of the purchase price — that are tied to the prime interest rate. Chrysler sales took 12.9 percent of the domestic market in the mid-December period, compared with 8.4 percent in the comparable 1979 period.

GM, whose market share fell to 56 percent from 62 percent in early December, had ended its only dealer contest this year, at Buick, on Dec. 10.

Both Ford and Chrysler would have posted far worse showings without their new entries, Ford's Escort-Lynx subcompacts and Chrysler's "K-car" compacts. The K-cars had their best period since their introduction, but Chrysler's other cars showed a loss of 0.8 percent and Ford's other cars were off 30 percent.

Ford is offering 12 percent financing on six car lines, which fell 27 percent.

Loan Board To Hear Chrysler Proposal

DETROIT (UPI) — Chrysler Corp.'s latest survival bid today hinges on financial sacrifices asked of workers, bankers and suppliers and on showing the Chrysler Loan Guarantee Board those sacrifices will be made.

The loan guarantee board, created by Congress to supervise the No. 3 automaker's $1.5 billion rescue plan, meets in Washington today to determine if the different groups will cooperate in cutting costs.

Chrysler officials said the meeting also would serve to show each of the company's constituent groups whether the others will share in the belt-tightening.

Chrysler must cut more than $1 billion in internal costs this year to qualify for a lifesaving dose of $400 million in federal loan guarantees.

The loan guarantee board, chaired by Treasury Secretary G. William Miller, said it doesn't expect to decide today whether to grant Chrysler's request for additional loan guarantees.

The company already has drawn $800 million out of the $1.5 billion pool authorized by Congress, but the most recent downturn in industry car sales derailed Chrysler's old recovery plan and brought about an urgent need for further internal cutbacks and outside funds.

Chrysler's new operating plan calls on bankers to convert $570 million in debt into preferred stock, a step that would save Chrysler a considerable amount in interest payments.

Refineries Accused Of Price Violations

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The U.S. Energy Department issued notices of probable violations of federal pricing regulations totaling $59.9 million against two western Pennsylvania oil refiners.

The federal agency said Monday the alleged miscalculations were made by Quaker State Oil Refining Corp. of Oil City and United Refining Co. of Warren.

Officials of both companies said late Monday they disagreed with the DOE's action.

"The (DOE) notices contain many factual and legal errors and we plan to oppose it vigorously," said John Wendell, United Refining executive vice president.

"We have been in discussion with the Department of Energy on these alleged charges," Quaker State president Quentin Wood said. "We think these charges are without basis and we have been attempting to discuss the situation with them."

The notices allege that between August 1973 and December 1974, and in certain periods up to the time of decontrol, Quaker State improperly figured selling prices for its gasoline and general refinery products.

Treasury Bill Rate Slips

WASHINGTON (AP) — The interest return to an investor because a portion of the price is refunded at the time of purchase. The actual return, or investment rate, came to an average of 14.32 percent on 26-week bills and 14.28 percent on 13-week bills at Monday's auction.

As a result of the government's Treasury bill auction Monday, banks and thrift institutions may pay up to 14.32 percent on six-month money market certificates, effective Thursday. That rate, down from the current rate of 13.66 percent, is linked to the 26-week Treasury rate.

The rates on 2 1/2-year certificates will remain at 12 percent at thrift institutions and 11.75 percent at commercial banks, the government said. Those rates are at their federally controlled ceilings.

The government said interest rates on short-term Treasury securities auctioned Monday slipped to their lowest levels in two months.

The average discount rate on 26-week Treasury bills declined to 13.82 percent from 13.41 percent a week earlier, the government said after its weekly auction. The new figure is the lowest since the 12.284 percent reported on Oct. 27 of last year.

Meanwhile, the average rate on 13-week Treasury bills dropped to 13.601 percent from 13.908 percent the week before. Monday's level was the lowest since the 13.514 percent of Nov. 10.

Dow Jones Up 8.36 To 1001.02

NEW YORK (AP) — The Dow Jones industrial average climbed above the 1,000 level today as the stock market continued its early 1981 rally with another broad advance.

The Dow-Jones average of 30 blue chips was up 8.36 at 1,001.02 at noon.

Gains outnumbered losers by more than a 2-1 margin in the midday tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The market's strength lately has been attributed to a decline in interest rates, and spreading hopes that rates will soon fall further.

New York's Chemical Bank lowered its prime lending rate to 19 1/2 percent this morning, a day after Morgan Guaranty Trust of New York cut its basic rate on business loans to 20 percent.

The Federal Reserve's latest figures on the money supply, issued Monday, showed a sharp decline. That was taken as evidence that the Fed might be inclined to tighten credit now that it has been for the past several months.

K mart led the active list, up 1/4 at 19 1/4. Blocks of 181,300 and 107,600 shares of the stock traded at 19 1/4.

Among actively traded blue chip and glamor issues, DuPont was up 1/4 at 43 1/4; Eastman Kodak 1/4 at 74; and McDonald's Corp. 1/4 at 51.

The NYSE's composite index rose 25 to 79.33. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off 1.03 at 356.24.

Volume on the Big Board reached 30.73 million shares at noon; against 29.04 million at the same point last year.

Dollar Drops; Gold Mixed

LONDON (AP) — The dollar continued to fall on world foreign exchanges on the heels of declining U.S. interest rates, and today dropped below 200 Japanese yen for the first time since February 1979. Gold prices were mixed.

London's bullion houses fixed a recommended morning gold price of $599.25 a troy ounce, down from $602 at the close Monday. But in Zurich, Europe's largest bullion market, the precious metal traded at the median $599.50 an ounce, up from $598.50.

Earlier in Hong Kong, gold closed at $600.60 a troy ounce, up $5.94, after finishing at $593.00 in New York on Monday.

Silver was quoted in London at $16.30 a troy ounce at midmorning, unchanged from Monday.

The dollar fell to a 23-month low in Tokyo, closing at 199.60 yen, down from 201.40 Monday.

At one point the dollar fell to 198.70 yen, dealers said, forecasting even further declines on the strength of the Japanese economy's productiveness and low inflation rate.

One European dealer added that the yen's sharp gains "shouldn't be surprising given their strong industry and their ability to sell petrochemical knowledge for oil."

Suspect Jailed In Oil Swindle

A-J Correspondent
BIG SPRING — Law enforcement agents here believe they have uncovered a scheme through which employees of an independent oil firm swindled an estimated $425,000 from Cosden Oil and Chemical Company.

Officers suspect that employees of Jaco Oil Company have sold the same tank of oil to Cosden repeatedly since June without pumping the oil into the Cosden pipeline.

"We have been working on this since October, but we suspect that this has been going on since June," said Texas Ranger Eddie Almond, who coordinated the investigation.

"It looks like we may have up to 57 felony offenses and the theft of 12,500 barrels of crude," he said.

Almond, Big Spring Herald photographer Bill Forshee, two Howard County Sheriff's deputies, two agents of the Texas Railroad Commission, four Cosden Oil agents and the director of Security for American Petrofina, Cosden's parent company, descended Monday on the W.B. Currie lease operated by Jaco Oil Company Inc. of Midland.

There, they arrested John Thedford Sims, a pumper for Jaco.

Charges have been filed against Sims for theft of crude oil. He was released on bond of $20,000 set by Justice of the Peace Bob West of Big Spring. The investigation will continue, Almond said, to determine if others may have been involved in the alleged scheme.

The Currie Lease, located five miles west of Forsan, and north of the Continental Oil lease in that area, was the site of two months of surveillance by area agents. Those involved in the stakeout were Almond, Deputy Eddie Owens, Forshee, who photographed the activities at the site during the stakeout, and a Cosden agent who is working undercover on a similar case in the area.

Almond was alerted in October, when Railroad Commission officials became suspicious of improbably large production on the lease.

Railroad Commission officials told Almond that a Jaco official claimed that a "miracle chemical" developed by a German scientist had been pumped into zero-production wells on the lease with phenomenal results.

As a result of the claim, and continued urging by the official, the Railroad Commission raised allowable production to over 2,000 barrels of oil a month at the lease, authorities say. Three pump jacks, Jaco officials claim, produced the oil which was placed in storage tanks for transfer to the Cosden pipeline.

Agents believe that a complicated scheme was devised in which a Cosden gauger was shown a full oil storage tank which was ostensibly to be pumped into the company pipeline.

Instead, law officers theorize, a Jaco employee turned off the pump after the gauger left the site.

Agents believe that this same tank of oil was resold to Cosden each time the gauger returned over a seven-month period.

In order to determine whether any oil from the lease was entering the pipeline during the months of December, Almond, Owens, Forshee and the Cosden agents observed the transaction between the pumper and the Cosden gauger from hidden stakeout positions.

Forshee recorded the events on film and agents monitored a meter which was secretly installed to record the flow of oil from the tank to the pipeline.

During December, Cosden paid for 2,467.4 barrels of oil from Jaco at a cost of $85,766.82. The meter registered only one barrel of oil leaving the tank between Dec. 18 and Jan. 1, according to investigators.

Jaco has sold Cosden oil on a regular basis, usually three times a week, from the Currie Lease since June, investigators said. The smallest amount sold was 865.86 barrels during the month of June, with the largest amount being sold in December.

According to Mike Tate, director of security for American Petrofina, the case is the beginning of a company-wide crackdown. He was hired by the company July 1 after serving as an agent for the FBI.

"We're going to be on top of this sort of thing, checking to find irregularities in production," he said. "We'll be watching the people in charge of the pipeline to make sure proper procedures are being followed. They can expect to find me there when they least expect it," he added.

Among the safeguards will be a double check of the readings made by company gaugers, he said.

Unlocked Doors Allow Juvenile To Flee From Detention Center

By MARY ALICE ROBBINS
Avalanche-Journal Staff
LUBBOCK County's youth center recorded its third escape attempt in a month Monday afternoon, when a 17-year-old fled through one of several doors which cannot be locked because of federal restrictions.

The youth, who is to be transferred to a Texas Youth Council facility in Brownwood, escaped through the police entrance at the detention center shortly before 2:30 p.m. Monday.

He was recaptured about 3 p.m. Monday at a residence in the Arnett-Benson area. Officials indicated the teenager apparently called a cab after fleeing the center, and police were able to trace him through the cab company's records.

Twice before, youths held at the detention center have escaped through exterior doors that cannot be locked from the inside.

All three escape attempts are the result of a problem that was not realized before construction was completed at the youth center, said county chief probation officer Lloyd Watts.

According to Watts, security at the recently opened detention facility has been reduced because of safety standards required by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

The OSHA regulations require a panic bar on the detention center's three exterior doors to allow for emergency exits in case of a fire, Watts said.

He noted that when a fleeing youth pushes the panic bar, the outside door opens even though it has been locked.

The teenager who escaped Monday and one earlier escapee fled through the police entrance, which is adjacent to the area where new arrivals are checked in. Both youths were being watched by officers at the facility, but Watts said that an athletic teenager normally can outrun the average adult.

Watts said he discussed the security problem with the contractor Monday and has suggested a possible solution for the unlocked doors.

Just inside the exterior exits are double doors where deadbolt locks can be installed, Watts explained. He hopes to have a new lock system installed in the near future.

"But we have to keep it flexible because of the danger of fire," Watts added.

He has suggested that the interior double doors be locked only when youths are in the check-in area or the hallway adjacent to the exit.

Another escape attempt occurred shortly before Christmas and involved three youths who ran through a door leading to the fenced-in recreation area, Watts said.

In that incident, he said, the teenagers had flipped a lock that secures the door leading into the lock-up facilities. Watts said the door was apparently unlocked when the boys returned from outdoors.

A houseparent at the center later allowed the youths to jog around a hallway for exercise but failed to keep a careful watch on the teenagers, Watts said. When the houseparent was not looking, the boys ran through the door they had unlocked earlier and hit the panic bar to escape through the outside exit.

All three escapees were back in custody within 36 hours, according to the probation officer.

"A part of our problem is we have hired all new staff," Watts said. He noted that staff members are accustomed to working with young people but not in a lock-up situation.

"Whenever you lock somebody up, the first thing they want to do is get out," Watts said.

Watts said that the staff is being trained to avoid further escape attempts. Also, he said, control officers are making regular checks to be sure all locks are in place.

Military Adviser To Speak At RAFB

By GERRY BURTON
Avalanche-Journal Staff
Chief Master Sgt. Emory Walker, senior enlisted adviser for the Air Training Command, will be speaker at the annual enlisted awards banquet at 6:30 p.m. today at Reese Air Force Base.

Three outstanding enlisted persons — senior non-commissioned officer, non-commissioned officer and airman — will be named tops in their category from a field of 23 nominees from Reese units.

As the top ATC enlisted person, Walker is the ears, eyes and mouthpiece for the enlisted force and represents Gen. Bennie L. Davis, ATC commander, to enlisted personnel.

He makes sure the enlisted force understands Air Force policy and regulations on one hand, and, on the other, keeps a finger on the enlisted pulse for ATC.

While touring ATC bases such as Reese, Walker hears comments, some positive and some negative, from all areas of the particular base mission. Knowing the hot spots of a base, helps him promote welfare of enlisted persons before unmet needs affect the mission.

The 21-year Air Force veteran also passes on his own belief that the Air Force is "a great force with good services," with most jobs transferable to civilian careers.

"The Air Force is a good place to be if only for the chance of an education," he said on a Reese visit.

A native of Lexington, Va., with a Navy father and Army brother, Walker volunteered for service in the Air Force. He attended technical school at Chanute AFB and served as an aircraft welder on F-4 maintenance in Vietnam.

Walker moved to ATC headquarters at Randolph AFB in San Antonio from Lackland AFB, also in San Antonio, where he was director of education at the NCO Academy. Previously he was a first sergeant responsible for the health, welfare and morale of a squadron.

Trips to Reese sometimes hold a bonus for Walker who has two daughters here — Terri, a junior at Texas Tech University, and Carolyn Myers whose husband, Ben, is a recent graduate of the Sunset School of Preaching.

Candidates for the 1980 senior NCO honor include Master Sgt. James Andrews, Master Sgt. Walter Buford, Senior Master Sgt. Adrian Conger, Master Sgt. Ronnie Craft, Senior Master Sgt. Rodrigo Moreno, Master Sgt. Seminole Moseley and Senior Master Sgt. Jerry Price.

Vying for the NCO award are Staff Sgt. Richard Gray, Tech. Sgt. Bruce Kumlner, Sgt. Victor Magnon, Sgt. Bret McIntire, Staff Sgt. Stanley Pelfery, Tech. Sgt. Terry Savoie, Staff Sgt. Keith Stevens and Staff Sgt. Ralph Young.

Lubbock Man Arrested For Attempted Murder

An 18-year-old Lubbock man was jailed Monday night after being charged with attempted capital murder in connection with a Christmas Eve incident in which a prowler exchanged gunfire with a Lubbock policeman.

Roger Lee Thomas of 601 N. Dover Ave. was arrested at his home about 6:15 p.m. Monday. He was taken to the Lubbock County Jail after questioning by police.

Thomas was charged with attempted capital murder Monday afternoon, and Justice of the Peace L.J. Blalock issued a warrant for his arrest. The Criminal District Attorney's office has recommended bond be denied.

Thomas allegedly exchanged gunshots with Officer Gilliam W. Moody about 4:15 a.m. Dec. 24, 1980, in the 5700-block of Emory Street.

Moody said he was patrolling the neighborhood and thought he saw someone jump over a fence into the back yard of a residence in the area. When the officer entered the yard to investigate, a black man fled into the alley, reports show.

As he was pursuing the man on foot, Moody noticed the suspect turning toward him with what appeared to be a gun in his hand, police said.

Moody then dove into a darkened area of the alley, and the prowler fired a single shot at him and fled. The officer, who was slightly injured when he fell against a garbage dumpster to escape the gunfire, pursued the prowler to a pickup truck parked at the end of the alley.

Moody fired two shots through the back window of the fleeing vehicle, but the suspect and the driver of the pickup apparently were not wounded.

Youngster Fatally Shoots Himself

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 3-year-old boy fatally shot himself with a revolver his mother kept under her pillow to fend off potential burglars, police said.

Henry Lawson Jr. died Sunday morning after he shot himself in the jaw while playing with a .38-caliber revolver, police said.

The boy's mother, Pasadena Brandon, sought help from her landlord, who in turn summoned paramedics. The child was pronounced dead at the scene.

Hair Dryer Approved For Show Animals

AMARILLO (UPI) — Miss Piggy would understand the actions of the Potter County commissioners, even if county taxpayers do not.

Monday the commissioners approved the purchase of a $270 blow dryer for the county extension agent Frank Gaines to use on cattle, hogs and other stock shown at livestock shows.

Gaines justified the purchase by saying drying livestock's hair was a part of county agriculture clubs' regular expenses when showing stock valued up to $20,000.

The dryer is specially designed for animals and delivery is expected within a month.

Miss Piggy knows the value of a good coiffure — what goes for the devine swine, so goes for the bovine.

Math Instructor Collects Old Algebra Books, Raps New Ones

AUSTIN (AP) — The telephone calls are rolling in at Stan Hartzler's home, and the University of Texas math instructor hopes each will yield another antique algebra book.

Less than 10 days after a column in the Chicago Tribune outlined his fascination with old algebra texts and growing anger with newly published schoolbooks, Hartzler already is reaping the benefits, and is getting leads on new additions for his current collection of 215 old algebra books.

Hartzler hopes the publicity dragnet will help him obtain enough books to "investigate why the (high school algebra) books coming off the press now are so bad."

His experience as a coach for high school math teams in suburban Chicago several years ago convinced him that algebra texts written between 1890 and 1910 are good enough for today's students.

After he started using a turn-of-the-century text to drill his math teams, they won five straight division championships. And classroom use of old books resulted in nine students scoring perfectly on national college entrance exams when 30 neighboring schools didn't produce even one perfect scorer, he said.

Less-than-brilliant students benefited from using the old texts, too, Hartzler recalled. "I can remember the names and faces that I had in remedial math classes. They had fine minds, but nobody had shown them how to do long division."

So, Hartzler said, he has acquired a "large disgust" for current algebra texts. He's irked by modern books "written by teams of people who too often never see each other to coordinate their philosophy and objectives."

"Previously, books were written by one teacher who wrote out of his experience — what had worked best for him. These books needed no revisions because they were good in the first place," Hartzler said.

Books of the educational era — "the heyday of organization," Hartzler calls it — often were written by a one-room schoolteacher. He said those books had to be self-contained because the busy one-room schoolteacher couldn't take time away from other students to present long lectures.

Hartzler's enthusiasm becomes overwhelming. "It is artful the way those students moved from one exercise to another. I get emotional about it, like when I hear Handel's 'Messiah.' Today, those exercises are not even written by the authors. Too often, they are written by high school teachers who live close to the publishing houses," he said. "They pay the authors less that way."

Hartzler is irritated by today's frequently revised math texts, updated with trendy layout and educational fadism. "It was 'new math' in the '60s, 'back to basics' in the '70s and now it's 'problem solving' in the '80s," Hartzler said. "I want to start a new fad — call it balance — and let's stop the pendulum."

Hartzler said he wants to "develop an informed demand for better books among those (state and school officials) who buy them. A lot of politics is involved here in Texas, and there's not much hope. But plenty of high school teachers are aware of how bad the books are."

Hartzler, who warns "I'm a rather outspoken little beast," suspects that modern math books are "being written for the teachers, not the students."

He sees the use of large, colorful graphics as "the most criminal of fads." Research, he said, indicates that "the more pictures there are in books, the less the kids learn."

Hartzler's algebra textbook research is designed "to show that there have been sudden changes in topics that have no foundation in the classroom."

And he wants to set up guidelines teachers can use to evaluate textbooks.

Slain Woman's Children To Undergo Evaluation

AMARILLO (AP) — A 38-year-old Amarillo man — charged but released last month in the murder of his wife — has agreed to leave his two small sons in the custody of child welfare officials for three months while they undergo psychiatric evaluation.

"We've got them for another 90 days," Potter County Attorney John Tull said Monday, referring to Monty Baker, 7, and his brother David, 5, who were taken from Floyd Baker, 38, on Dec. 5, when the charges were filed against him.

Baker was ordered released from jail on Dec. 16, however, on grounds of insufficient evidence.

A hearing on Baker's petition to regain custody of his children was scheduled Monday in county court-at-law, but an agreement was reached out of court to allow child welfare officials to keep them pending psychiatric examinations.

Baker said he plans to undergo psychiatric evaluation also. He was arrested for investigation of murder Dec. 1 after a dog dragged the head of Linda Sue Baker, about 32, from debris at a wrecking yard in north Amarillo, near the Baker residence.

Murder charges were filed four days later after Baker's 7-year-old son told investigators that he saw his father beat, kick and stab his mother and that he himself stabbed her.

Baker was held on $100,000 bond, but District Judge George Dowlen ordered him released on Dec. 16. The only evidence against Baker, Dowlen said, was the statement from the 7-year-old son, and officials said that probably wouldn't hold up in court.

Baker reported his wife missing on Nov. 17. Police said Baker told them she left home early that morning during a snow storm wearing only a coat and light clothing and never returned.

Oil Companies Eye Dallas Area

DALLAS (UPI) — Oil companies are knocking on Dallas County's back door in an effort to determine the productivity of a long-overlooked geological formation, but oil wells in city neighborhoods are still a ways off.

Most of the major oil companies and many independent companies have scrambled to lease land in the Texas-Oklahoma area in the past two years. Dallas oilman Wayne Harper drilled a well in Collin County — Dallas County's neighbor to the north — last winter. Other wells have been drilled in Grayson County, east of Sherman. Most of those wells haven't produced commercial quantities of oil yet, but well owners remain optimistic.

Causing all the excitement is a 1,300-mile-long formation called the Ouachita overthrust belt — a band of twisted and tangled rock that runs from Mississippi through Arkansas and southern Oklahoma and across Texas, passing under Sherman, Dallas, Waco, Austin and San Antonio before turning west toward Big Bend.

Presently, Dallas is being left out of the action, but observers predict if oil is found elsewhere along the overthrust, some areas in Dallas County, particularly the rural southern part, will be leased and drilled.

Little drilling is actually being done. Most leaseholders are waiting for test results or watching what others find.

"It's a very new thing as far as we're concerned," said a spokesman for Standard Oil Co., which is described by others as being the most active along the Texas belt.

The first discovery in the overthrust was at its north end in Oklahoma in 1977. The field, north of Lake Texoma, now has 40 wells and is still growing.

Oil was next discovered in mid-1979 at the southern end of the overthrust in the Marathon Mountains near Big Bend by Texas Pacific Oil Co. of Dallas.

This latest discovery brightened prospects for the 600-mile-long, 30-mile-wide stretch in between — one of the last vast areas in Texas that has gone virtually unexplored.

Oil companies are taking a second look at areas they previously abandoned.

"Who in the world would ever test the Ouachita Facies? Everyone knew there was no oil in the Ouachita Facies," said L.S. Morrison, an Ardmore, Okla., geologist now testing areas of the overthrust in which oil is being found.

Recently Loch Exploration Co. of Gainesville and Laguna Petroleum of Midland began filling in the gap with an oil discovery of still-unknown size in Grayson County, also north of Dallas.

Geologists believe the overthrust, also called the Ouachita Facies, was formed by the collision of two massive plates of earth about 250 million years ago, with one plate thrusting over the other. In the process, rocks were buckled, folded and otherwise mutilated.

Jarvis To Tour Texas Cities

AUSTIN (UPI) — Howard Jarvis, author of the tax relief movement in California, will cap an 18-city Texas speaking tour with an address at a statewide rally on the eve of the opening of the 1981 Legislature.

Howard Jarvis opens his swing through Texas Tuesday in El Paso and will finish in Austin with a rally Jan. 12 — the day before lawmakers open the 140-day regular legislative session.

(Jarvis will address a public reception in Lubbock on Wednesday. The reception is scheduled from 11 a.m. to noon in Room 104 of the Memorial Civic Center.)

Jarvis will also participate in a news conference before the reception and attend a VIP luncheon at the Lubbock Club following the public address.

He is being hosted locally by Lubbock Eagle Forum.

Jarvis' message will be control of state government spending and tax reduction. His tour is being sponsored by Texas 13, an organization which has formed a coalition of 28 local tax groups with an estimated 55,000 members.

Texas 13 representatives will attend the Jan. 12 rally, and many will stay in the capital to visit legislators the next day to push passage of Texas 13's goals.

The organization favors no new taxes, return of the state's budget surplus to taxpayers through tax relief and reduction in the number of state employees. Texas 13, headed by former attorney general Waggoner Carr, also advocates enactment of constitutional amendments requiring a two-thirds vote in each house to raise state taxes and giving citizens the right of initiative and referendum to place restraints on government growth and spending and to achieve tax relief.

Jarvis was the sponsor in California of Proposition 13, which mandated a reduction in taxes and state spending.

TEXAS ROUNDUP

Truck Driver Ends Ordeal In Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — An Ohio truck driver escaped injury after a man with a .45-caliber revolver jumped into his truck and forced him to take a 20-hour drive that ended when the suspect fled from the truck in a Dallas shopping center, police said.

Tony Fidler of Centerville, Ohio, told Dallas police the man climbed into his truck Saturday in Centerville and said, "Drive." Fidler said after driving around in Ohio, he was told to drive south through Louisville, Ky., before coming to Dallas.

The driver said Sunday the suspect was "real calm, real nice and made no threats," except when they stopped for gasoline. Fidler contacted police after the suspect fled from the truck at the shopping mall.

Rate Increase Granted

AUSTIN (AP) — The Railroad Commission has granted a 6.6 percent rate increase to truckers in the Common Carrier Motor Freight Association, which is expected to boost their annual income by $20 million.

The 23 companies had sought a 7.5 percent increase.

Gas, Oil Discoveries

AUSTIN (AP) — The Railroad Commission said Monday Texas operators reported 32 gas and 25 oil discoveries during the last half of December.

In 1980, the commission said, operators reported 1,324 gas discoveries, 130 more than the previous year, and 717 oil discoveries, 195 more than in 1979.

Gas discoveries in the Dec. 16-31 period included 23 in the Refugio area, five near San Antonio, two in South Texas and one each in West Central Texas and the San Angelo area.

Oil discoveries during the last two weeks of December included seven each in South Texas and the Refugio area, five near San Angelo, three in the Midland area and one each in West Central Texas, North Texas and the San Antonio area.

The commission said operators reported 104 dry holes in the last half of December.

Employment Rises

AUSTIN (AP) — Total employment in Texas rose for the fourth consecutive month with an increase of 30,900 workers from mid-September to mid-October, the Texas Employment Commission said Monday.

Total employment was 6,219,600. During the same period total unemployment dropped to its lowest mark since December, 1979.

The state's unemployment rate dropped to 4.4 percent for October, compared to 4.6 the previous month and 3.8 percent in October 1979.

Contracts Awarded

AUSTIN (AP) — Contracts for two major construction projects at Brenham State School have been awarded, the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation said Monday.

One project calls for a dormitory for 96 mentally retarded persons, estimated to cost $2,406,000. The other project calls for construction of four cottages for 15 persons, to cost $2,006,171.

Demo Treasurer Resigns

AUSTIN (AP) — Jack Martin resigned Monday as treasurer of the Texas Democratic Party to accept an appointment as special assistant to Sen. Lloyd

His tour will include speeches in El Paso Tuesday; Lubbock and Midland Wednesday; Odessa, Abilene and Fort Worth Thursday, and Dallas, Waco and Tyler Friday. Jarvis will speak in Lubkin, Beaumont, Galveston and Houston Jan. 10, in Victoria and McAllen Jan. 11, and in Harlingen, San Antonio and Austin Jan. 12.

Bentsen, D-Texas, effective Jan. 14

Martin, an Austin public relations executive, served on Bentsen's staff from 1974 through 1977.

Martin will be located in Bentsen's Austin office. He said he resigned to avoid any possible conflict between party duties and his work for Bentsen.

Braniff Offers Discounts

DALLAS (AP) — Braniff International, which has reported financial problems, will offer discount fares 50 percent below the normal coach price on some flights from Texas to Canada, the airline announced Monday.

Braniff said the flights from Houston and Dallas-Fort Worth to Toronto and Montreal will offer the discounts from Jan. 18 through Feb. 28. Reservations must be made 14 days prior to travel and tickets purchased within seven days of making reservations.

The airline suffered operating losses of $113 million in the first three quarters of 1980, mitigated by the sale of planes and equipment which made the net loss $51.6 million.

Harding Lawrence, credited with making Braniff an international carrier, caught the industry by surprise when he resigned as board chairman Dec. 30. He denied speculation that his departure was due to ongoing merger talks between Braniff and Eastern Air Lines.

Man Kills Daughter, Self

PAGOSA SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — A Duncannon, Texas, man shot his 3-year-old daughter to death and then turned a .22-caliber rifle on himself, Archuleta County Sheriff Neil Smith said an autopsy showed.

The bodies of Paul Lucero, 27, and his daughter Tanya were found in Lucero's car at the junction of U.S. Highway 160 and Colorado 151 about 10 miles west of here last Tuesday, officials said.

For a time, Smith and other officials thought the Luceros both may have been murder victims, but the autopsy showed otherwise, Smith said. He said that Lucero apparently shot his daughter twice in the head and then shot himself once in the chest.

The Luceros were in Bayfield visiting relatives over the holidays at the time of the incident, Smith said.

Stuck Truck Hampering Repairs To Gas System

DAISETTA (UPI) — After four days of round-the-clock work to replace a deteriorated section of the city's natural gas system, Mayor Harold McCann says efforts to restore service to 12 homes without gas for a week was thwarted by a heavy truck.

The city was preparing to reconnect the homes Monday when an oil field supply truck became stuck in a resident's front yard, crushing a separate line and causing gas pressure to drop throughout the 30-year-old system.

"We've been working our hearts out," McCann said. "We'd have had gas restored to those 12 homes today (Monday) if the other problem hadn't happened. But if it doesn't rain, we'll get them hooked up tomorrow."

McCann said the new break was discovered after repairs made early Monday did not result in an increase in pressure throughout the system.

After checking the lines throughout this small town of 2,000 east of Beaumont, McCann said workers found a broken main.

The city took control of the gas system in October when the previous owner, Southwest Gas Distributing Inc., defaulted on a lease-purchase agreement. The system was in desperate need of repair then, and has worsened in the past few months.

Moreover, McCann said, federal loan money needed to pay for repairs to the deteriorated system is still months away from approval.

He said the city applied for a loan from the Farmer's Home Administration, sponsored by the Department of Agriculture, in October for almost $490,000 to pay for a new natural gas system. The city is waiting for the approval of the loan.

The city's loan application has been given a priority classification, said Bill Derdon, district director of the farm administration in Conroe, but the paperwork has not yet been approved.

"The loan has a priority classification because of all the problems there in Daisetta, but it will be quite some time before the city has the money it requested," Derdon said Monday.

The railroad commission voted Friday to shut down the leaky gas lines because it was a potential threat to life. A State district judge issued a temporary injunction Saturday.

Winners Named In Bridge Meet

Terk and Burk swept a field of 64 pairs to capture the two-session Open Pairs title Saturday with Betty Dickerson and Bonnie Royce, both of Odessa, second. Weldon Wells and Bill Swart won the Consolation with Carla Wells and Frances White runners-up.

In Friday's play Alex Duggan and Jack LaVigne of Odessa won the un-

Lederer Trial Begins Today

NEW YORK (AP) — Television networks will be able to broadcast tapes from the Abscam trial of Rep. Raymond Lederer, D-Pa., on the same day that they are introduced into evidence, a federal judge has ruled.

Opening arguments in the bribery-conspiracy trial were slated for today. Lederer was the only one of the six representatives accused in Abscam indictments to win re-election.

As Lederer attended swearing-in ceremonies for his third term in the House of Representatives Monday, a panel of nine men and three women was selected before U.S. District Judge George C. Pratt in Brooklyn.

Lederer, 42, is accused of accepting a $50,000 bribe in return for promising undercover agents to introduce a private immigration bill for a fictitious Arab sheik whom they claimed to represent.

The congressmen allegedly took the money at a September 1979 meeting at a hotel near Kennedy Airport in New York. The meeting was videotaped, and that tape along with 10 audio tapes will be introduced at the trial, government prosecutor Thomas Puccio said Monday.

Major television networks will have same-day access to audio and videotapes introduced at the trial, Pratt ruled Monday.

The networks first sought access to similar tapes in the trial of then-Rep. Michael Myers, D-Pa., and after legal wrangling were allowed to broadcast them.

Pratt earlier Monday severed Lederer's three co-defendants — Philadelphia city councilman Louis Johanson, Camden, N.J., Mayor Angelo Errichetti and Philadelphia attorney Howard Criden — from the trial.

Those three men were convicted in August with Myers on Abscam bribery and conspiracy charges. The government has agreed not to prosecute them on additional Abscam charges unless their convictions are overturned on appeal.

Errichetti also has been severed from the Feb. 17 trial of Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., the only senator indicted in the political corruption scandal.

Pratt also indicated he would begin a hearing on possible government misconduct in the Abscam inquiry as soon as the jury begins deliberations. That hearing will decide whether the Abscam defendants' due process rights were denied. Beside Lederer, the hearing will involve Myers, Criden, Johanson, Errichetti and former Reps. Frank Thompson Jr., D-N.J., and John M. Murphy, D-N.Y., all of whom have been convicted of Abscam offenses. A similar hearing will be held for Williams and his other co-defendants but not until their trials are conducted.

Louisiana Judge Accompanies Girls To All-White High School

BUCKEYE, La. (AP) — A state judge showed up at all-white Buckeye High School today, accompanying three white girls who entered classes for the second day in defiance of a federal judge who wants them bused to an integrated school.

State District Judge Richard Lee was carrying a court order and accompanied by a constable. On Monday, he had ordered state troopers to escort the girls to class, but U.S. District Judge Nauman Scott later ordered the troopers to stay out of the case.

The girls entered the school without saying anything to the two dozen reporters clustered at the entrance. When the school bell rang, they went to class, accompanied by the constable, Newton J. Paul Jr.

Principal Charles Waites, appearing tense, told reporters that the federal judge's order apparently had not been served on the constable because marshals could not find him Monday.

Waites said he would not disobey the state order to let the girls attend class. "I didn't realize judges had so much power — especially federal judges," he said.

Lee personally accompanied the girls to the guidance office before classes, in apparent defiance of Scott's order.

Scott's order said all state officials should stop interfering with his desegregation plan drawn up in August for public schools in Rapides Parish. Since Lee is an elected state judge, he presumably was covered by the order.

The girls and their parents want them to go to Buckeye, near their homes, and went to Scott's court to transfer custody to friends living in that attendance zone.

Under the federal pupil assignment plan, they are to be bused 15 miles into Alexandria's Jones Street Junior High, where the student body is about equally black and white.

The girls and their parents insist the issue is busing — not race.

Waites said he would not allow the girls to be re-enrolled today unless state officials were on hand.

"I don't see how I can keep them enrolled if state police are not there to insist that it be done," Waites said.

The controversy is under frequent discussion by Rapides Parish residents, many of whom are sporting bumper stickers that say, "Lee's hot, Scott's not."

The parents and guardians of the girls say they've piled up $17,000 in legal bills and have been threatened with $500-a-day fines if they continue to flout Scott's desegregation plan.

Under that plan, the girls — Michelle Laborde and Lynda McNeal, both 13, and Ramona Carbo, 12, all of whom live within two miles of Buckeye High — were reassigned in August.

Lennon Case Suspect Enters Innocent Plea

NEW YORK (AP) — Mark David Chapman pleaded innocent today to charges that he shot and killed former Beatle John Lennon. The suspect's lawyer said he would mount an insanity defense.

Chapman, 25, entered his plea during a brief appearance in Manhattan Supreme Court before Justice Herbert Altmann. Tight security measures were once again in effect at the courthouse.

The judge appointed two psychiatrists, Daniel Schwartz and Bernard Diamond, and psychologist Milton Kline to examine Chapman.

Defense lawyer Jonathan Marks said outside court that he would present an insanity defense. "That's clearly the issue," he said in response to a question.

Marks said he has "an excellent relationship" with his client, but he declined to comment on any specifics.

Lennon was gunned down Dec. 8 outside the Dakota apartment building where he lived with his wife, Yoko Ono, and their son, Sean, on Manhattan's West Side. Chapman was arrested at the scene.

Chapman, whose acquaintances knew him as a Beatles idolator, is charged with waiting for Lennon outside his residence and emptying a short-barreled .38-caliber revolver at the recording star, hitting him mortally four times.

Authorities said Chapman came to New York from his home in Honolulu expressly to kill Lennon.

He had gotten Lennon to autograph an album for him earlier in the day.

A Texas native raised in Georgia and, like Lennon, married to a woman of Japanese descent, Chapman is said to have made two suicide attempts in recent years and undergone treatment for mental disorder after each try.

Following his arrest for the shooting, he was put in isolation in a Bellevue Hospital cell, kept under 24-hour suicide watch and examined by psychiatrists.

Search Fails To Turn Up New Clues

ATLANTA (UPI) — A thorough search of a mysterious abandoned house turned up no new clues to the slayings and disappearances of 15 black children in the past 18 months, the city's public safety commissioner says.

Tracking dogs went to the house Monday to sniff children's clothing, old mattresses, two Bibles and other items found inside, but Commissioner Lee Brown said late Monday investigators came up empty handed.

"Task force investigators have determined that the contents in the house have no connection to the missing and murdered children cases," Brown said.

The search of the house was made by two police investigators and Philadelphia tracker Don Laken and his dogs, who were given a scent from clothing of four children who remain missing.

"I can't see anything dramatic here," Laken said. "The four children weren't here nor anybody associated with the four children that may have been in the house. There's nothing here."

Investigators and searchers, who first entered the house last weekend, had found children's clothing, axes, shovels, and two Bibles nailed to a wall, open at passages discussing blood, murder and the deaths of children.

One of the investigators said the clothing and other items "had been accounted for" by caretakers of the house and were not related to the deaths of 11 children and the four disappearances.

Investigators refused to comment on a report that an arrest would be made soon in the case. A source who asked not to be identified said investigators suspect a cult was involved in some of the cases.

FBI Agent Says Kelly Returned All But $74 Of Alleged Bribe

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI agent Michael Tasker testified today that former Rep. Richard Kelly returned $24,826 of an alleged $25,000 bribe on the evening of last Feb. 3 as he was questioned by the FBI in the closing days of the Abscam probe.

Called as a defense witness, Tasker said he and another FBI agent, William Kelly, questioned the congressman for more than three hours that afternoon. Later, the agents and Kelly's attorney, Anthony Battaglia, met the congressman in his Capitol Hill office.

"Congressman Kelly then proceeded to a closet, unlocked that door, and from a cabinet inside the closet, he took a manila envelope and brought it to his desk," Tasker testified. "Inside the envelope was money."

Referring to the inventory he and his colleague prepared that evening, Tasker said, "a total of $24,826 was returned by Congressman Kelly."

The inventory made that evening listed as missing another $100 bill from the original $25,000 Kelly received from an FBI undercover agent last Jan. 8.

That bill later was returned to the FBI, too, Tasker said.

Questioning the agent, Battaglia asked whether it was correct that only $74 of the alleged bribe was not recovered. Tasker said that was true.

He asked whether Kelly on that evening offered to make up the difference and whether the agents told him they had no authority to accept it. Tasker said he did not recall.

Kelly was defeated for re-election in the Republican primary in Florida last September and left office at the end of the year. Jurors in the U.S. District Court trial have heard conflicting testimony on whether Kelly tried last year to increase or diminish the authority of a key aide, J.P. Maher.

Kelly has maintained his innocence and has said he accepted the $25,000 only as part of his own probe of men he considered suspicious. Out of court, he has blamed Maher for introducing him to Abscam middlemen.

In testimony Monday as the trial resumed after a two-week recess, Orlando, Fla., businessman James J. Shipley said Kelly confided his suspicions last January that Maher was involved in questionable activities.

He quoted Kelly as telling him: "I have to use you as the means to get J.P. Maher out of Florida. There's something going on. I don't know what it is, but I don't feel right about it."

The conversation, Shipley said, occurred shortly after Shipley agreed to join Kelly's staff as administrative assistant in his Florida district office, a job he held until May 28. Maher was a top Kelly aide in Kelly's Washington and Florida offices until last March.

Shipley testified that Kelly set out to reorganize his staff last January and, in the process, reduce Maher's authority. Kelly wanted to transfer Maher to the Washington office full time "where he could watch him a little closer."

Asked about Maher's reaction, Shipley replied, "Belligerent. He just didn't want to give up any of this authority and it was apparent he didn't want to leave Florida."

But Maher testified that the reorganization was designed to strengthen his authority, giving him control over both the Washington and Florida office operations.

Suicide Note Read In Murder Trial

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — Jean Harris left a note saying, "I wish to be immediately CREMATED AND THROWN AWAY" before going to meet longtime lover Dr. Herman Tarnower on the night she fatally shot him, according to court testimony.

Mrs. Harris also wrote of "so many enemies and so few friends" in a second note introduced by the defense at her murder trial Monday in an attempt to convince the jury that she intended to take her own life when she visited Tarnower's estate the night the 69-year-old Scarsdale Diet developer was shot to death.

In the first note, the key words "CREMATED AND THROWN AWAY" were printed in capital letters in red ink on the stationery of the Madeira School, the exclusive girls school Mrs. Harris headed for three years in McLean, Va.

The 57-year-old former administrator is charged with killing her lover of 14 years in an upstairs bedroom of his Purchase, N.Y. estate last March 10 in what the prosecution says was a jealous rage over Tarnower's affair with another woman.

The defense contends that Tarnower was shot accidentally when he and Mrs. Harris struggled over her gun as she tried to shoot herself.

Alice Faulkner, chairwoman of the Madeira School board, testified that she found the notes in a chair in Mrs. Harris' campus home the day after she was arrested at Tarnower's estate.

Mrs. Harris apparently was disturbed by an incident that had happened the previous week, when she suspended four students for possessing drug paraphernalia.

"I'm sorry. Please for Christ's sake don't open the place again until you have adults and policemen and keepers on every floor. God knows what they're doing," Mrs. Harris wrote to Mrs. Faulkner, apparently referring to the drug suspensions. The letter was apparently written two days after spring recess had begun.

"And next time," Mrs. Harris continued, "choose a head the board wants and supports. Don't let some poor fool work like hell for two years before she knows she wasn't even wanted in the first place. There are so many enemies and so few friends."

The unsigned letter concludes: "I was a person and nobody ever knew."

One of Mrs. Harris' former students, Greer Emory, also took the stand, telling the jury that Mrs. Harris was known for her honesty.

"Honesty was her big and strongest point," Miss Emory said. "That was the thing she wanted most for others and what she gave most to others."

On cross-examination, Miss Emory admitted that she had become "very close" to Mrs. Harris.

"I knew her more as a person more than other people did," the witness said. "I wanted to know her more as a person than as a headmistress. We got to be friends."

Mrs. Harris, who was pale and downcast during much of the testimony about her former days at Madeira, hugged Miss Emory as she was excused from the witness stand.

Judge Denies Jurisdiction In Suit

HOUSTON (AP) — A state district judge ruled today he has no jurisdiction in a lawsuit filed by 10 Grimes County residents to stop the state from buying land for a new prison farm.

State District Judge Wyatt Heard met with 45 minutes with attorneys for both sides before announcing his decision.

He also transferred the case to Travis County in Austin.

"Basically, the only action left to be taken is for Comptroller Bob Bullock to issue the check and for the state to take possession," Heard said. "Under the statutes this is basically an administrative action. Therefore, I believe I have no jurisdiction in this matter and am transferring the case to Travis County."

Following the proceeding, Rick Hartley, spokesman for the Texas Department of Corrections, said the state would go "wherever, whenever, we have to go to fight this thing."

The Grimes County residents argued that the TDC plans to purchase the 5,986-acre tract six miles south of Navasota are illegal.

Last month, U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice of Tyler refused to grant a temporary restraining order forbidding the purchase. Justice said he believed the group had sought court action prematurely.

Karl C. Hoppes, a Houston attorney representing the residents, noted Justice could take the matter under consideration at a later date.

The State Approval Board has agreed to the $6.7 million purchase Dec. 16, despite local opposition to the proposal.

In the suit, four residents claimed they will be deprived of access to their land if a prison farm is built in Grimes County.

One of the residents, a beekeeper, contends his business will be damaged by the use of aerial spraying of insecticides and herbicides used by the prison.

The suit also alleges the proposed prison site — designed to house 4,000 inmates — will violate Justice's earlier ruling the Texas prison system is unconstitutional.

Justice said the TDC should begin building smaller facilities near urban areas rather than large rural prisons.

Iraq Derides Iran's Claim Of Victories

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iran claimed today that its armed forces wiped out two Iraqi brigades, capturing between 1,700 and 2,000 Iraqi soldiers and hundreds of tanks and other vehicles on the first day of the long-promised counter-offensive against the invaders.

Iraq's Baghdad Radio said the counter-attack was a "myth existing only in the imagination of the Persian racist leaders." Iraqi military communiques reported "attempts against our forward positions that have all been crushed."

There was no independent confirmation of either side's claims. But Western military observers in the Middle East believe neither army is capable of mounting a major offensive during the winter to break the stalemate along the 550-mile-long war front.

The Iranian offensive was announced by President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, the army commander in chief who had been under fire from Iran's powerful Islamic clerics because his forces had been unable to drive the Iraqi invaders back.

Radio Tehran said the attack began Monday morning in the area of Ahvaz, the capital of oil-rich Khuzistan province in the southern sector of the Iraqi invasion line.

The Iranian onslaught was "so sudden that the Iraqis had no time to put up the least resistance," and there were very few Iranian casualties, a broadcast said.

It said one source at the Abadan war headquarters reported 1,700 Iraqi troops were captured along with hundreds of tanks, personnel carriers and other vehicles. In an interview broadcast shortly afterward, Hojatoleslam Ali Khamenei, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's representative on the Supreme Defense Council, said his latest information was about 2,000 captives.

An Iranian communique broadcast earlier reported 200 Iraqis killed and 45 wounded.

"The enemy's strong defensive positions have been almost entirely crushed and there is no place in southern Khuzistan between the Iraqis and the border where they can make a stand," said Khamenei.

"Our forces can continue their progress down to the border. The offensive definitely must continue."

Iraq claimed its forces that invaded southwest Iran on Sept. 22 conquered one third of Khuzistan's 24,000 square-mile area in the first three weeks of the war at the northwest end of the Persian Gulf. But little significant change in the battle lines was reported in the three months that followed.

Iran's Pars news agency said the Iranian attack Monday annihilated all the Iraqi armored units in the region beyond the Kharkheh River.

ment but not a member of the commission discussing the U.S. proposals with Algerian mediators, said it is up to U.S. officials "to make us trust them and be confident."

When asked if he had seen the American document or was fully aware of its contents, he replied, "I have not studied it in detail."

The main stumbling block in the discussions is thought to be Iran's demand that the United States deposit $24 billion in the Algerian Central Bank as guarantees to cover Iranian assets frozen in the United States following the seizure of the hostages and the wealth of the late shah and his family that Iran wants the United States to return to Iran.

The Carter administration has called the $24 billion excessive and the new American proposal is reported to offer deposits of about $12 billion.

During the interview, conducted in Farsi, Ayat was asked if he thought the hostages would be placed on trial, as some Islamic fundamentalists have suggested.

"I can't tell," Ayat replied. "It depends on the United States — whether it will accept our conditions or not. But I do not think they would stop playing games so soon."

The Carter administration has informed Iran that it must reply by Jan. 16 if the government is to set the release in motion before it leaves office.

Handicapped Laud New Housing Units

more self-sufficient now in his new home, the first of its kind he has ever lived in.

"Regular housing has its drawbacks," Lambert noted. "The light switches are hard to get to, and it's hard to get in and out of the bathtub. But here I can put a special seat across it and take a shower."

Mrs. Easter said the best thing about the handicapped housing is the bathroom and the kitchen. "It will be better than where I was living," which she said was a privately owned apartment that was too small for her and her seven-year-old daughter, Ambra.

Both tenants learned about the special facilities through authority director D.C. Fair, who is still trying to rent the remaining four units.

"The rent's the same — that's the main thing, oh boy," Lambert remarked. "This is a good deal. It's a New Year's present."

Rent for the units is based on the tenant's income. Lambert's monthly rent is $54. He also gets a utility allowance. Mrs. Easter, who subsists on Social Security disability payments, will pay $30 per month, but her utility allowance is deducted from her rent because, unlike Lambert, she pays her bills directly to the utility companies.

Lambert has been a Hub Homes resident since 1974, and has been anticipating the move for more than a year. Fair noticed Mrs. Easter around June 1, 1980, in her yard in a wheelchair and advised Greenfair manager George Paul to contact her.

Still vacant are a one-bedroom and a three-bedroom unit at Hub Homes, and two three-bedroom units at Greenfair. Handicapped persons who are interested in applying should contact the Lubbock Housing Authority at 762-1191.

The housing for the handicapped, which is still being touched up this week, is the culmination of more than three years of planning.

Larry Gardner, a sector representative for the handicapped on the Community Development Advisory Committee, said he and Fair began talking about the need for such a project three or four years ago. Fair said the CDAC approved the authority's request for funds in June, 1979, and $80,000 became available a year later.

Fair said although the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development has emphasized making handicapped units available, particularly in new construction, no federal funds have been available.

Fair said there were no such dwellings in the authority's projects prior to the renovation of these six, but HUD has mandated that five per cent of future projects must be barrier-free.

Although he would prefer every house or apartment were designed for handicapped use, Gardner said the authority did a good job with the units they did convert. Fair said Gardner, a systems analyst with West Texas Home Health Agency who himself is in a wheelchair, provided valuable input for the remodeling.

Gardner said Fair gained experience in handicapped housing by converting a residential unit for the Lubbock Area Extended Rehabilitation Service, and applied it to Hub Homes and Greenfair Manor.

"The LHA units remove most of the architectural barriers," Gardner said. "Lubbock's all flat and the only barriers here are man-made."

Gardner also lauded Fair for making his office accessible to the handicapped, adding, "Sometimes a project is accessible but its offices aren't and handicapped persons can't apply."

Lambert said a lot of progress has been made toward helping the handicapped cope in today's world, especially the many who are now in wheelchairs.

"There can always be more improvements," Lambert said. "I'm not suggesting anything specifically; I'd have to study on it."

For Lambert, that study, along with everything else, should be easier in his new home.

Midwest Icy As Heat Sets Records Over Southwest

A-J News Services

Freezing rain today turned streets and highways in eastern Missouri into a sheet of ice, causing numerous accidents and forcing police to close two busy interstate highways before the morning rush hour.

A bitter cold snap blamed for seven deaths and widespread power outages in the Midwest and the East, as far south as Florida, eased slightly today. The Southwest enjoyed record warm temperatures, with readings that soared into the mid-80s.

Lubbock and the South Plains were cloudy but rainless early today as light rain and drizzle fell in other parts of the state.

Skies here will become partly cloudy tonight and Wednesday, and temperatures will be near 50 today, in the mid-20s tonight and in the mid-50s Wednesday, weathermen said.

Rain was reported over most of East Texas and South Texas at dawn today. North Texas and West Texas had mostly fair skies.

Fog reduced visibility to near zero in Austin and San Antonio, the National Weather Service reported.

Rain reports over the state included 10 of an inch at Austin, San Antonio and Corpus Christi.

Over the West Texas region, the extended forecast is for partly cloudy skies with no important temperature changes Thursday through Saturday. Daytime temperatures will be mostly in the 50s and nighttime readings in the 20s and low 30s.

Lubbock's high Monday afternoon was 53 degrees and this morning's low was 36.

Area low temperatures overnight included 31 at Friona, Hereford and Tulla and 33 at Floydada, Olton and Plainview.

A police spokesman said two major thoroughfares into St. Louis were closed because of accidents. Interstate 44 was closed after a tractor-trailer overturned on an exit ramp and Interstate 55 was closed because of numerous accidents and snarled traffic, the spokesman said.

Other interstate highways were reported ice-covered, but open. Travel advisories were issued for eastern Missouri and southwestern Illinois.

There was no immediate information when the highways would reopen, but the freezing rain was forecast to turn to snow before a warming trend returns to the region.

No fatalities were reported, but police reported numerous minor accidents and overturned trucks. At least two trucks spreading salt on the highways were reported overturned. An accident on Interstate 270 caused a massive traffic jam shortly before the rush hour, officers said.

Several school systems were closed and others were operating late or on a reduced schedule, with no bus service.

The Arctic cold front, which swooped down from Canada during the long New Year's holiday weekend, moved off the Atlantic Coast today with clouds and snow on its heels.

"It's going to warm up, but not that much," said a National Weather Service spokesman. Forecasters said New England would experience "highs" in the teens in the north and mid-20s in southern areas.

The Southwest basked in record high temperatures Monday. The mercury reached 83 degrees in Los Angeles, but Burbank, Calif., was the warmest spot in the area with an 85-degree reading. Raton, N.M., broke a 1956 record with 60 degrees.

Democratic Panel Picks Hance For Ways, Means Committee

have seniority over the other two if the caucus confirms the steering and policy action.

"I was pleasantly surprised that I got the first spot," he said.

Ways and Means is one of three "exclusive" committees in the House, which means that its members cannot have any other committee assignments. Hance will thus resign his membership on the agriculture and science and technology committees.

Asked what he will be chiefly concerned with in the coming legislative session, he said, "I want to either repeal or alter the 'windfall-profits tax'."

"I also want us to look at some type of reciprocal trade act that would impose a tariff on goods coming into this country from countries that have tariffs on our agricultural products."

For example, he said, Japan has a $5-per-bushel tariff on wheat, and a high tariff could be placed on Japanese automobiles and television sets coming into the United States if Japanese tariffs were not reduced.

"It's going to be an active committee because all tax legislation will be going through there," he said.

Hance said the committee also must concern itself with problems in the Social Security system.

The former practicing attorney in Lubbock and former state senator from the 28th District said the Texas delegation worked hard to regain the three seats it traditionally has had on the Ways and Means Committee.

He noted that since former U.S. Rep. Omar Burleson of Anson left the House and the committee in 1976, Texans have held only two places on the committee. Burleson was not replaced by another Texan, he said.

Three Democrats were going off the committee, and it was not known last fall after the general election what the Republicans would demand on various committee ratios.

Ways and Means will remain at 23 Democrats and 12 Republicans despite the new House of 56 percent Democrats and 44 percent Republicans, Hance said, in part because O'Neill and Wright "backed off on keeping a higher ratio on Appropriations and some of the other committees" in favor of retaining previous ratios on the Ways and Means and Rules committees.

The other House committees generally will reflect the new ratio of Democrats and Republicans in the House, he said.

Solons Eye Reagan's Cabinet Appointees

of Reagan's nominees by Jan. 20. Inauguration Day, and that the full Senate will confirm them shortly afterward.

Baker said fast action on Reagan's nominees would permit Congress to go to work on the new president's plan for the economy, which the majority leader said would be worked out in advance with congressional leaders and formally proposed to Congress by early February.

The newly elected Congress' first session Monday was marked by good-humored ceremony in the Republican-controlled Senate and some bitter partisan quarreling in the House.

On the House side, Rep. Thomas P. O'Neill's re-election as speaker on a party-line vote reflected the continued Democratic control of that chamber.

Taking note of the increasingly conservative tone of both Houses, O'Neill said: "Being elected every two years, we are acutely aware of the desires of the people. We intend to adapt to the changed circumstances."

The GOP gained 33 seats in last November's elections and Republicans hope to take control of the House in 1982.

Nonetheless, under O'Neill's leadership, the Democrats beat back an attempt by Republicans on Monday to get more voting power on two key committees, Ways and Means and Rules.

That prompted Rep. W. Henson Moore, R-La., to complain that the Ways and Means Committee was "being stacked by the same people who were overwhelmingly repudiated on Nov. 4" and Rep. John Roussetot, R-Calif., to accuse Democrats of choking off debate on the issue of giving Republicans additional seats on the two panels.

"It is a mistake to gag this House and prevent it from fulfilling the promises made in the last election," Roussetot said.

The Ways and Means panel, which the Democrats dominate 23-12, will have jurisdiction over Reagan's plans to propose a tax cut and other economic measures. The Rules Committee, where Democrats prevail 11-5, controls the speed and procedures under which the new president's legislative proposals would be considered in the House.

Despite the squabbling in the House, much of Monday's opening sessions on both sides of Capitol Hill was devoted to good-natured pomp and circumstance.

The Senate galleries were jammed with relatives and supporters of new and old members. Wives, husbands and children of House members joined them on the House floor for swearing-in ceremonies.

Old, new and former members of the Senate shook hands in a mood of general conviviality among members of both political parties.

Vice President Walter F. Mondale, carrying out one of his last official acts before leaving office, swore in 34 new and re-elected senators.

Among those sworn in were Paula Hawkins, R-Fla., the second woman member of the Senate; Jeremiah Denton, R-Ala., a former prisoner of war and retired Navy admiral; and John P. East, R-N.C., a polio victim who took the oath in a wheelchair.

Two People Injured In Train Collision

CRESTVIEW, Fla. (AP) — Two crewmen were injured when two Louisville & Nashville Railroad trains collided head-on near this small Florida panhandle town, authorities said.

The single engine of the eastbound freight train and the lead engine of a four-engine westbound train leaked diesel fuel after the collision this week, but there was no fire, officials said.

Experts Say Gas Prices Impossible To Predict

By MARY ALICE ROBBINS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Filling up at the gasoline pump is likely to take an even bigger bite out of the American consumer's pocketbook within the next several weeks.

And some industry observers have predicted pump prices will hit $1.50 per gallon by the end of the year. However, several local distributors say it's impossible to tell at what level gasoline prices will be in the next 12 months. "It's just anybody's guess," observed Benton Oil Co. spokesman Nelson Hall.

Joe Horkey, owner of Horkey Oil Co.,

said the gas price situation depends heavily on what happens in the Middle East during the next several months. "It's all very volatile and very iffy," Horkey said. Since Saturday, five of the nation's refiners have raised wholesale gas prices by as much as three cents a gallon. That price hike follows steady increases that occurred during the final two months of 1980. Those increases led Dan Lundberg, publisher of the Lundberg Letter in Los Angeles, to predict the possibility of $1.50 per gallon gas prices before the year ends.

Exxon Corp., the nation's largest refi-ner, announced a one-cent increase in its wholesale prices Saturday — the company's fourth hike since mid-November. Other companies that have upped their wholesale prices since the weekend include Sun Oil Co., Getty Oil Co., Atlantic Richfield Co. and Diamond Shamrock Corp.

Exxon's price hike will affect chiefly the Gulf and East Coast states and portions of the Southwest, including Texas, explained C.D. Sandison, public relations spokesman for the corporation in Dallas.

According to Sandison, the driving force behind the price hike is the increased cost for crude oil. Wholesale prices also have been somewhat affected by increased costs for raw materials, he added.

But Sandison said it was just "a guessing game" to try to predict what level gasoline pump prices will hit before the end of the year.

"Over the long haul, energy prices will likely increase at a rate somewhat faster than that of world inflation," Sandison said. "But over the short term, it really is not possible to predict a specific level gas prices will go to."

Sandison said Exxon went about six months during 1980 without instituting increases in its wholesale gas prices. Since Nov. 22, however, the corporation has announced four increases, all of them one-cent hikes.

Sandison said he was unsure what the latest increase in wholesale prices will do to gasoline pump prices.

Exxon owns two retail outlets in Lubbock, he said. In those cases, he said, pump prices will be determined based on location and the competitive market.

The vast majority of Exxon stations in Lubbock are owned by independent operators, Sandison said. "I can't speculate whether those independent businessmen will change their prices," he added. Owners of several local Exxon stations said their pump price for regular gasoline is nearly $1.15 per gallon at self-service pumps and almost $1.25 a gallon at full-service pumps.

One owner said he did not always raise his prices when his wholesale prices were increased. Any decision to increase retail prices depends on what other stations in the immediate area are charging, the station owner added.

Horkey, who serves as distributor for Shell Oil Products, said he foresees about a 25-cent per gallon increase in wholesale costs this year.

However, Horkey said there is a positive side of the ever increasing costs for gasoline. For each 10-cent per gallon increase in cost, there is a 1 percent decrease in the demand for gasoline nationwide, he said.

During the two-year period from 1978 to 1980, the nation experienced a 13 percent decline in gasoline consumption, Horkey noted. He said that industry already had predicted another 2 percent drop in consumption this year, but increased costs for gas could lead to a 4 percent decline.

Officer Relates Defendant's Confession

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

When asked by police if he knew who shot Willis B. Sheppard, murder defendant Joe David Williams answered, "I did," a Lubbock police detective testified this morning.

Detective J. R. Ashmore testified in 140th District Court today that Williams' statement came while he was investigating a body found in an Ivory Street alley Sept. 28, 1980. He and detective George Parramore knocked on the door of a nearby apartment to ask questions about the incident and found the apartment to be inhabited by Williams and Sharlene Zethellee, Ashmore said.

Explaining that investigators did not know the identity of the body at that time, Ashmore testified that he asked if either apartment occupant knew who the dead man was. Miss Zethellee said that she knew him and had lived with him periodically, the detective testified.

Williams answered, "I did," when asked if he knew who did the shooting.

Parramore then stopped Williams from talking, Ashmore told the seven-woman, five-man jury, and read him his Miranda warning. Williams was taken to the Lubbock Police Department. Officers read him his rights again and Ashmore typed up a statement from Williams' account.

When Williams indicated that he was unable to read, another officer was brought in to read the statement to him, Ashmore testified.

After hearing the statement, Williams indicated it was correct, the detective testified.

Miss Zethellee singled out Williams in court Monday as the man who killed Sheppard, with whom she lived before moving in with Williams.

Her testimony, considered a crucial piece of evidence against the 46-year-old Williams, came in the first day of testimony in the trial. Williams was charged with attempted murder in late November for allegedly shooting Miss Zethellee in the head and arm in an attempt to prevent her from testifying against him.

Miss Zethellee was shot while she was sitting in the East Side Cafe in Slaton Nov. 27. The incident occurred after Williams had been charged with murder for the Sept. 28 shooting of Sheppard. He was free on a $25,000 bond after being accused of shooting Sheppard once in the chest with a .22 caliber pistol as Sheppard attempted to force Miss Zethellee from the 2806 Ivory St. residence she was sharing with Williams.

Miss Zethellee had known Sheppard for about nine or 10 years before his death, she told the jury Monday afternoon. She had lived with him periodically during that time, she testified.

She described the shooting incident at the apartment she shared with Williams, testifying that Sheppard came to the Ivory Street apartment asking for an old electricity bill dating back to the time they had lived together. She retrieved the bill and opened the door to hand it to Sheppard, Miss Zethellee testified.

Sheppard came into the apartment, she told the court, and began talking to her. Williams could hear the conversation from the bathroom door, where he was standing, she testified.

The two men spoke to each other, she testified.

Miss Zethellee walked Sheppard to the door, she told the jury, and asked him not to come back. But Sheppard answered her request with "I'll see you later," she told the court.

As she started to close the door, Sheppard reached in and grabbed her arm, she testified. She said, "Oh, my God," because she was losing her grip on the doorknob, she testified.

"Joe David fired over my head — and that made him turn loose my arm," Miss Zethellee testified. "He just fired four (shots). He didn't stop shooting."

After the shooting, "I closed the door," Miss Zethellee told the jury.

Under cross examination, Miss Zethellee testified that Sheppard had beaten her on several occasions in years past and that she had related these experiences to Williams. She described an incident where Sheppard banged her head against a table corner, leaving a gash that bled freely. Sheppard also beat her with a rubber hose, she told the jury, and broke her arm on one occasion.

Williams knew she was afraid of Sheppard, Miss Zethellee testified. She didn't have Sheppard arrested, she told the jurors, because she didn't know if it would make Sheppard more violent toward her.

"But he didn't have a habit of just hurting me," she testified. "He was jealous."

Woman Reports Escape From Gunman

A woman who flagged down a Lubbock policeman Monday night told the officer she was fleeing from a man who had threatened her with a shotgun, reports said.

The 29-year-old woman told police at 8:30 p.m. she was getting out of her car to go into her apartment in the 2000-block of Fifth Street when a man jumped out of some bushes with a shotgun pointed at her.

The woman said she ran behind a truck in the apartment complex parking lot, but fled when she heard glass breaking behind her. The woman happened upon a policeman around the corner and flagged down the officer for assistance.

When the officer and the woman returned to the scene, the gunman was gone, but the keys from the woman's car were missing, reports said.

Reports said the man was described as a black male between the ages of 26 and 35, short, and with a medium build. The suspect was wearing a brown coat, a brown hat and red pants, reports said.

In another incident, Julian Mercado Jimez, 21, of 2621 First Place told police someone entered his house between 9 p.m. Sunday and 9 a.m. Monday and took almost $1,775 in household goods, including a Les Paul guitar, stereo equipment and jewelry.

A light bulb on the back porch had been unscrewed, apparently so no one could observe the break-in, reports said. The glass on the back door was broken and the door chain unlatched.

The intruders also made themselves at home, taking time out to have a glass of orange juice, reports said.

A 23-year-old woman told police she was assaulted by three white men at the South Plains Mall. The woman said the men grabbed her as she left a store and forced her to swallow an unknown type and quantity of pills. Reports said the woman was taken to Methodist Hospital.

A 39-year-old Lubbock woman told police her husband beat her during an argument Monday morning at the couple's east Lubbock home.

The woman said she and the 40-year-old man were arguing about whether he should leave Lubbock when the man became angry. He reportedly struck his wife several times on the face and head.

The woman suffered a cut to her nose, a blackened left eye, numerous bruises and scratches on her right arm, police said. She was treated for the injuries at South Park Hospital and later released, reports show.

The woman told officers she plans to divorce her husband and file assault charges against him. The man had not been arrested late Monday.

In other activity, a 1980 Chevrolet pickup truck was stolen from Don Crow Chevrolet, 5211 S.W. Loop 289, and vandalized over the weekend.

Used car sales manager Roy H. Butler told police the pickup, valued at $6,750 was stolen from the used car lot between 6 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. Monday.

Lubbock County Sheriff's deputies found the abandoned vehicle near the intersection of U.S. 87 and FM 1585, south of Lubbock, reports show.

Several items had been removed from the pickup, including all four tires, both running boards, both bumpers, the battery, the jack assembly, the spare tire and the "bed rails," police said.

In addition, the body of the vehicle was battered, and every light, lens and window was broken, reports show. Police had no suspects.

Several power tools and automobile transmission parts were stolen from Hendrick Transmission, 2510 Texas Ave., police said.

City Traffic Deaths Increased In 1980

By PAT GRAVES
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A Lubbock police spokesman told the Citizens Traffic Commission today that, despite increased enforcement and the lowest traffic accident total in eight or nine years, Lubbock's 1980 traffic fatality count rose by 11 over 1979's.

Sgt. Jerry Stevens, who directs the police department's Selective Traffic Enforcement Program (STEP), reported there were 34 deaths on city streets in 1980, up from 23 in 1979. The total number of accidents, however, declined from 10,399 to 9,726 last year.

Accidents have been decreasing in number, Stevens said, since 1978 when STEP was initiated. But injury accidents, injuries and fatalities increased last year despite more than 25,000 traffic citations being issued by STEP alone.

"One problem is the increasing number of vehicles on the road as the population continues growing," Stevens noted. He also attributed the high death rate to carelessness, speeding and the use of alcohol.

Stevens said that in 50 per cent of 1980's fatal accidents, one or more of the parties involved had been drinking.

Public Information Director Vaughn Hendrie reported that municipal court had processed almost 90,000 moving violations tickets through November, with a 95 percent conviction rate. Stevens said 75-80 percent of those were speeding citations.

Milk Price-Fixing Scheme Uncovered By PTA

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Phyllis Brandon was president of the Little Rock PTA when a committee of mothers began checking the "junk food" content of cafeteria lunches and along the way discovered that all the bids for milk contracts were identical.

Mrs. Brandon was puzzled. The questions she subsequently asked led to a state investigation, a federal price-fixing lawsuit and the largest antitrust settlement in Arkansas history.

Three dairies were indicted by a federal grand jury and pleaded no contest to criminal antitrust charges. Salesmen for two of the dairies served brief federal prison sentences.

On Wednesday, U.S. District Judge G. Thomas Eisele is expected to accept a $2,425,000 settlement from those three dairies and a fourth, all charged in a separate state civil suit.

Merl Barns of the state attorney general's office said the milk price investigation had uncovered an organized scheme among the dairies to fix prices to state institutions and wholesalers and a more loosely organized price-fixing setup for the schools.

No estimate of dollar loss to the schools has been made because the price-fixing practice apparently extended well beyond the seven-year boundary on the statute of limitations, in 1973.

Attorneys involved in the case credit Mrs. Brandon with a major role in breaking up the price-fixing ring.

As her husband, Jim, put it, "She's the one who kicked over the milk pail."

Mrs. Brandon, 45, says she formed the school lunch committee in 1974 at the request of Sandra Blakeway, then head of the Little Rock School District cafeteria system, who was reacting to PTA criticism of school lunches.

The committee looked at several aspects of the lunch program, and the members often ate at school cafeterias.

"When you start talking about food — even six years ago — you start talking about cost," Mrs. Brandon said in an interview. "Food prices are so high. Something came up about the milk that is served with the meals."

"I said, 'Well, milk goes out on bids, doesn't it?'" she recalled. "And she (Miss Blakeway) said, 'Yes, but, you know, all those bids are always the same.'"

"I said, 'Do you know that's against the law? And she said, 'Well, there's not anything we can do about that.'"

Mrs. Brandon, who then had two children in Little Rock schools, disagreed.

"I don't know how I knew about the Sherman Antitrust Act, but somehow, somewhere along the way I had heard about it and I knew this wasn't right," she said.

The Antitrust Act forbids businesses to combine in any way that would interfere with competition.

Mrs. Brandon talked with some friends who were lawyers, who helped by telling her "what kind of questions to ask" of the school board.

"The question that was crucial was, 'How long has it been going on?'" she said. "The answer was, 'As long as anybody could remember.'"

"I was surprised it was going on," said Bob McHenry, a Little Rock attorney who was then president of the school board, "and I was surprised that it hadn't been discovered before. No one on the board was aware of the problem."

The board hired attorney Robert Light to pursue the case. When word of the board's civil suit against the four dairies hit the papers, the U.S. Attorney's office joined the investigation.

In 1977, criminal indictments were handed down against Borden Inc., Dean Foods and Coleman Dairy Inc. and against Simeon "Dub" Lynn, a salesman for Dean, and Gene Proctor, a salesman for Borden, said Barns of the state attorney general's office.

The three dairies entered no contest pleas and were fined. Proctor and Lynn each served 60 days in federal prison.

No federal charges were filed against the Foremost-McKesson dairy, but Foremost-McKesson was charged later in the state's civil suit which resulted in the $2,425,000 settlement.

Barns said all that remains to be done in the 6-year-old case is for Eisele to approve the settlement and for the money to be distributed.

The 19,000-student Little Rock School District will get a "fair amount of the money," Barns said.

McHenry says the district owes a great deal to Mrs. Brandon.

"I'll always feel good about Phyllis Brandon because of this," McHenry said. "She did one heck of a service to the schools and to the state."

Mrs. Brandon has mixed feelings about the suit.

She says she is "sad" because two men ended up in jail. But she also was "shocked that the dairies thought they could get away with that."

"Most of all, what appalled me was that it took a mother from the PTA to do something about people obeying the law," she said.

"People tend to think about the PTA as little mothers who bake cookies and make punch for the classroom parties," she said. "This time, we brought about something important."

U.S.-Russia Cooperate In Venus Studies

TORONTO (UPI) — American scientists are helping Russian researchers find the most productive landing spots for a pair of advanced Soviet robots scheduled to land on the planet Venus next year and grab soil samples for on-site analysis.

The cooperation is expected to pay off for scientists around the world seeking answers to some of the questions raised by previous Soviet landing missions and the American Pioneer-Venus radar satellite.

Dr. Harold Masursky of the U.S. Geological Survey said at the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science Monday that the Pioneer satellite has produced a topographic map of most of the cloud-shrouded planet. It will complete its studies March 19. Masursky and other project scientists recently met with their Soviet counterparts to discuss landing areas that the radar maps suggest would produce the most useful scientific information.

He said the two Soviet spacecraft will be launched next December and are to land on Venus in mid-March next year. Each will carry a device to either reach out and grab a sample of the planet's soil or drill material from the surface. In addition, each craft will carry an X-ray composition detector.

"That's the most complicated mission they've tried to fly so far, and we hope it will work," Masursky said. "We'd like very much to know what the chemistry is at several different points on the Venus surface."

President Carter is expected to ask Congress for funds to start a new Venus radar satellite project that will vastly improve mapping of the planet's surface. Masursky said the Soviets plan to follow up next year's landing mission with even more advanced probes in 1985.

He said the different approaches taken by the two nations in exploring Venus are complementary.

Although Venus is considered a twin of Earth, scientists have determined the two planets have followed different evolutionary paths. Venus is blanketed by a thick, hot atmosphere of carbon dioxide and the radar maps indicate the planet has not undergone the crustal shifting processes that occur on Earth.

Voyager 1, which passed Saturn last November and is now en route to a 1986 rendezvous with Uranus, found that Titan has a surface temperature of minus 283 degrees Fahrenheit, cold enough to turn methane in the nitrogen-rich atmosphere into slush at the surface.

Tornado Death Toll Tapers Off In 1980

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Twenty-eight people were killed by tornadoes in 1980, the second lowest death toll since figures have been kept, the National Severe Storms Forecast Center has reported.

The death toll was low despite an above-average number of twisters. Approximately 850 tornadoes touched down in the United States in 1980, the center said. Since 1916, when reliable statistics were first recorded, the average number of tornadoes annually has been 670.

The 28 deaths were far below the annual average of 111 tornado fatalities, the center said.

Fred Ostby, director of the center, which is part of the National Weather Service, attributed the low death toll to cooperation from the media and to better public awareness of tornado watches and warnings. Luck had something to do with it, too.

"There is an element of chance in there," said Ostby, who acknowledged he doesn't expect the deaths figure to remain in the 20s forever.

"If there were a real massive tornado that came at the wrong time, even if there were a lot of warning the death toll would go back up. But our preparedness and education of the public continues to improve," he said.

As proof of the improved warning system, Ostby cited three massive tornadoes which struck large population centers without massive loss of life: Sedalia, Mo., on May 12; Kalamazoo, Mich., on May 13; and Grand Island, Neb., on June 3. The Kalamazoo and Grand Island storms each killed five people, and no one died in the Sedalia tornado.

Texas reported the largest number of tornadoes in 1980, with 112. Other states in the top 10 were Florida, 58; South Dakota, 52; Wisconsin, 43; Iowa, 40; Nebraska and Indiana, 38 each; Ohio, 35; and Mississippi and Georgia, 32 each.

Accelerating Tech Hopes To Pace UH

By CHUCK McDONALD
Assistant Sports Editor

HOUSTON — Last Saturday night, in an 89-79 Southwest Conference season-opening victory against the University of Texas, the Texas Tech basketball team appeared sharper than it has all year.

In fact, the Red Raiders may have looked better than they have in several years in their win over Texas. The Raiders executed the fast-break with precision, they shut down Texas' dominating center LaSalle Thompson, they made a minimum of mistakes and they rebounded about as well as was humanly possible.

But right now, that's ancient history. Now the Raiders must prepare for an even greater challenge — the 9-2 Houston Cougars. Tech, now 7-3, and Houston will match perfect 1-0 SWC slates in a 8 p.m. showdown at Hofheinz Pavilion. Tonight's contest is especially important for the Raiders, a team that has struggled on the road the past two years.

So while praising his squad's effort against Texas, Tech coach Gerald Myers says the memory of that game is already fading like a lawn chair left too long in the sun.

"I hope the team's forgotten it," Myers said. "It was nice to think about for a day or so, but we've got to get ready for this one."

"Houston has really improved from last year (when the Coogs were 14-14)," added Myers. "I think one of the big differences is that they have settled into a set lineup. I think the players feel more secure — that can help a team."

A year ago, Houston coach Guy Lewis experimented with several lineups during the season and the only consistent starter was freshman guard Rob Williams.

Williams, everybody's SWC newcomer of the year as a freshman when he led the team in scoring with a 16.7 average, has been even more dominating as a sophomore. He's currently averaging 24 points an outing.

"Rob is probably the best guard in the conference," admitted Myers. "And they're a good rebounding team — their big guys are really quick."

The big guys Myers refers to are a pair of outstanding freshmen at forward and 6-9 sophomore Larry Micheaux at the post. Micheaux is averaging 10.4 points and 7.5 rebounds a game, but the real surprise in Houston has been the play of 6-6 freshmen Clyde Drexler and Michael Young.

Drexler is averaging 12.8 points and 11.6 boards per game while Young is chipping in 11.3 points and 8.2 rebounds. Rounding out the Houston starting five is junior guard Lynden Rose.

"They are both good players," Myers said of Drexler and Young. "They are two excellent freshmen. But what Houston generally upsets us with down here is the press."

"They've beaten us pretty bad down here the last two times because we haven't attacked that press and we just haven't played well."

Last year's venture into Hofheinz was particularly painful for the Raiders as Myers picked up three technical fouls early in the second half and was ejected from the contest as Tech fell 75-63. In 1979, the Coogs blew Tech out by a 103-89 margin in the same arena.

The Raiders will likely open with their set lineup of 6-6 forwards Ben Hill and Clarence Swannegan inside with 6-4 Jeff Taylor, 6-2 Steve Smith and 5-10 freshman Bubba Jennings outside.

Taylor leads the team in scoring with a 16.3 per game average, and every starter but Smith is scoring in double figures through 10 games. Swannegan and Hill have carried the bulk of the rebounding

GAME TO BE TELEVIEWED

Lubbock cable television subscribers will be able to view tonight's Tech-Houston game live beginning at 8 p.m. on Channel 6. ESPN (Entertainment Sports Programming Network) is televising the contest and the management at Channel 6 assured Tech officials that the game will be aired live in Lubbock.

chores, averaging 14.3 a game between them.

The Cougars opened SWC play with a tough 62-57 win over cross-town rival

Rice on Saturday night. It was reserve forward David Bunce who sparked the Coogs in that win, coming off the bench and scoring eight critical points late in the contest. Guard David Rose was another key reserve in Houston's opening win, chipping in eight points off the bench.

The Raiders will again operate primarily out of a zone defense as they have done for most of the season, and Myers looks for a team effort to shut off the high-scoring Williams.

"I hope we can contain him," said Myers. "I hope he doesn't score 35 points on us. He's capable of that kind of game."

Myers is also hopeful that Tech will be able to run the fast break with the same effectiveness it had against Texas.

"I think we've got a pretty good running team," he said. "We've had some low scoring games this year but that's because most of the teams we've played have held the ball on us."

"We ran pretty good against Texas, though," he admitted with a smile. "We got some good breaks."

But that was long ago.

RAIDER CAGE NOTES: Myers is still beaming over Saturday night's crowd of nearly 9,000 in the Municipal Coliseum for the Texas game — Tech's largest of the year. "I especially want to thank those people who filled up the student section," said Myers. "Those were non-season ticket holders and those are the kind of people we need to have out here."

City Basketballs Prepare To Fly

The District 1-4A girls' basketball race, interrupted by the holiday vacation, resumes today with six of seven teams in action as local schools begin the first full week of games since mid-December.

Borger, the only 1-4A team not to play a district contest prior to the holiday break, meets Dunbar in the Panther's gym at 7:30 p.m. Brownfield is at Leveland and Dumas at Canyon in other district contests, while Estacado travels across town to visit Monterey in non-district play.

The Estacado boys' squad plays host to Midland High, the state's second-ranked team, at 8 p.m. while Dunbar travels to Morton for an 8 p.m. matchup.

The Borger-Dunbar contest is a crucial game for the Panthers, who are 0-1 in 1-4A, said DHS coach Jim Washburn. "Every game we play here at home is a must-win game for us," he said. "Just off the top of my head, whoever loses at home will be out of the district race and whoever can win on the road will have a shot at it."

The Bulldogs and Panthers met once before this season, with Dunbar coming out on top 54-53 in the Hereford Tournament.

"They (Borger) are pretty tough inside and they have some good outside shooters," Washburn said of the 6-9 Bulldogs.

Borger is led by 5-foot-11 post Marie Brooks, who is averaging 19.4 points each game. Miss Brooks is only a sophomore and is helped inside by 5-10 senior Brenda Boyer, scoring at a 12 points-per-game pace.

"It's going to be a tough game. I understand Dunbar has been playing real good basketball lately," said Borger coach Bobbie Sliger. "To stay in the game, we'll have to play real good defense because they have us tremendously outsize."

"It (the game) could go either way. We have been so up and down recently, it's hard to know how we'll play," she said.

The Panthers are 9-6 going into tonight's game.

Estacado's boys will meet Midland High twice in the next three games, tonight on the Mats' home floor and Thursday in Midland. Estacado is fresh from successfully defending its Caprock Holiday Tournament title with victories over Midland Lee, Monterey and Coronado, but faces a much stiffer test with Midland High, led by 6-10 Herb Johnson.

Dunbar, 5-11 after winning one of three games in the Caprock Tourney, will also be pushed to the limit when it takes on Morton. Morton is only 10-8 but all of its losses have come to 4A and 5A schools and it won the small-school division of the Caprock Tournament last week, edging Dimmitt 74-70.

Five of the city's six Class 5A basketball teams will be playing tonight and three of them will be in town.

Girls' teams from Lubbock High, Coronado and Monterey will all be playing on home floors while the boys from Coronado and Monterey hit the road to Amarillo.

Lubbock High's girls, which won their last two games before the Christmas break, will host Palo Duro in one of the contests. It is the first meeting between the teams this season and Palo Duro boasts a similar 4-12 mark.

Coronado, now 9-8 on the season after losing both of its contests in the West Texas Girls' Invitational at Slaton, will host Pampa. The Harvesters have struggled to a 2-13 mark this year, but beat Lubbock High 54-45 earlier in the year.

In the other city game, Monterey's girls give Estacado another crack at an upset. The Plainsmen won the first meeting between the teams by an 82-66 score, but the contest was much closer than the score indicated. MHS is 16-1 in the year while Estacado stands 11-6.

In the games involving city boys' teams, Monterey travels to Palo Duro while Coronado visits Tascosa.

Monterey, currently 13-5 on the season, has yet to play the 10-4 Palo Duro bunch and this shapes up to be a dandy as both teams sport the best records in their respective districts.

Coronado's fortunes are on the upswing after finishing second in the Caprock Tournament. The Mustangs stand 9-8 on the year while the Tascosa team they face has only managed three wins in 12 outings. But included in those nine losses are a 35-34 decision to Monterey, a 65-64 setback to Clovis and a 58-56 loss to Canyon.

All games are scheduled to begin at 8 p.m.

Committee Urges Usurping UIL

AUSTIN (AP) — A State Board of Education committee is recommending that the power of the University Interscholastic League — governing body for public school athletics in Texas — be diluted and competition among junior high schools be de-emphasized.

The Committee for Special Schools and Athletics recommends the UIL governing body be enlarged from nine to 13 members, not including the league's executive director, and that any junior high sport that makes a student miss even part of a class be halted.

The committee said interscholastic programs require students to spend "significant amounts of time during the regular school day in athletic endeavors."

Athletics in grades seven and eight are "nonessential activities" that can be reduced to lift students' grades and save taxpayers' money, the committee said.

Many junior high schools in Texas offer extensive athletic programs.

The committee offered this recommendation to the Board of Education, which meets Saturday.

"The junior high level program should emphasize regular physical education and intramural activities. Emphasis on interschool competitive activities should be reduced. No athletic endeavor, including preparation and travel time, should be scheduled in a manner that would result in a student's loss of instructional time during the regular school day."

Athletic Director Bill Farney of the University Interscholastic League said, "Local school districts already can do that themselves. It's up to each district."

"The idea is that the students' grades will pick up, that they will go straight home and do homework and study," said Farney, "but I think — as one who has a doctorate in education — they probably will throw Frisbees, work on cars or do everything else."

The committee recommended that the current nine-member UIL state executive committee, which includes seven University of Texas professors, UIL director Bailey Marshall and Farney, be enlarged to 13 members — seven professors and six citizens "who are knowledgeable in public school extracurricular programs."

Farney said he and Marshall, who are voting members of the executive committee, presumably would remain on the committee, without a vote. "Since we bring cases before the committee, we tend to be looked upon as prosecuting attorneys," said Farney.

"Nothing substantive is changed," he said. "The special committee said the executive committee should govern all UIL operations. Currently, the special committee said, the executive committee is primarily concerned with interpreting rules and "does not function in the true sense as governing-policymaking board."

Farney said he thought the larger committee would still go to the UIL's 1,151 member schools to get administrators' opinions before changing a UIL rule.

"We've been called inflexible," said Farney, "but we are a democratic organization with built-in safeguards."

Farney said the special committee's recommendation to make it easier to get a proposal on the UIL's statewide ballot could result in conflicting propositions, such as different dates for the state track meet.

The committee said an official request by three separate UIL district committees from each of the four regions should be sufficient to get a proposal on the ballot. The UIL's Legislative Committee of administrators now determines which proposals are placed on the spring ballot.

The Board of Education committee also recommended that:

- The UIL's constitution and contest rules be rewritten to avoid inconsistent rulings by the 169 UIL district committees.
- A group of educators be set up in each region to review and rule on written appeals of UIL rulings and interpretations.

Redskins Terminate Jack Pardee

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bobby Beathard, the general manager of the Washington Redskins, was to fly to the West Coast today to begin the search for a replacement for Jack Pardee, who was fired Monday as the team's head coach.

Beathard indicated he probably would look for a successor to Pardee among the ranks of assistant coaches in the National Football League, but would not rule out the possibility of a return by former coach George Allen.

Redskins' owner Jack Kent Cooke, who fired the 44-year-old Pardee, said nothing about a possible replacement.

Beathard said that if the choice came down to an assistant in the professional ranks or a college coach, he most likely would go with the man from the NFL.

The general manager said he did not intend to talk to Allen on this trip, but "it's not up to me to eliminate him. Mr. Cooke is going to hire the coach."

Allen coached the Redskins from 1971 until his firing at the end of the 1977 season.

According to today's editions of The Washington Post, two men are reportedly at the top of Beathard's list — John Robinson, coach at the University of Southern California, and former Oakland Raider coach John Madden.

And, the newspaper said, a list of highly regarded NFL assistants includes Joe Gibbs, offensive coordinator for San Diego; Dan Reeves, offensive coordinator for the Dallas Cowboys; Tom Bass, defensive coordinator at Tampa Bay; Dick Coury, the Philadelphia Eagles' wide receiver coach; George Perles, the Pittsburgh Steeler defensive coordinator; and Marty Schottenheimer, the Cleveland Browns' defensive coordinator.

A move by Cooke to Allen would be a surprise. Allen, who said Monday he had not been contacted by the Redskins, noted in an interview from his Palos Verdes, Calif., home that "with any job I took, I would have to have complete control of the football program."

Asked if he was interested in the job, Allen said "it isn't right for me to comment on anything like that at this time. It's distasteful, like talking when somebody has passed away."

Meanwhile, the Redskins players expressed surprise and what some termed shock at the news of Pardee's dismissal.

"I hate it," said Ken Houston, who was benched during much of 1980, his final season with the team. "I hate it for him. Last year he was coach of the year. This year, we didn't win as many as we should have. It wasn't his fault."

Kicker Mark Mosley said, "It makes me sick in the stomach. It upsets me. I liked the guy. But I think, it was impossible for him to operate under the circumstances. I liked him and Bobby (Beathard). Both have their own ideas. It's hard for two individuals to work together, unless their ideas are so much alike. You have two guys with equal power and two different philosophies, it's hard to make the team go."

Pardee, who still has two years to go on his five-year contract, was dismissed as the result of what was termed philosophical differences between him and Beathard over the future of the team. Pardee could not be reached for comment Monday night, despite repeated telephone calls to his home.

"I face the hard task of choosing between the two philosophies," said Cooke in a statement Monday afternoon. "After careful consideration, I have decided to endorse Mr. Beathard's program of a winning future for the Redskins."

Pardee and Beathard have had differences over how the team should be rebuilt, beginning last summer when the coach chose to go with older, veteran players in an effort to propel the 1979 10-6 Redskins into the playoffs this season. Beathard believed that younger players should have been given an opportunity to play.

South Alabama Gains Big Recognition

By The Associated Press

Football still rules in Alabama, but Cliff Ellis and his University of South Alabama Jaguars are more than just pretenders to the throne.

South Alabama climbed from 17th to No. 15 in The Associated Press college basketball poll Monday as top-ranked DePaul retained the top slot for the fifth consecutive week.

"Football is still king in Alabama, but we've created a monster," said Ellis, who coached South Alabama to consecutive appearances in the NCAA tournament the past two seasons. "In the beginning, we were getting maybe 1,500 people to come to our games. Now it's more like 7,000 or 8,000 a game. And our people expect us to win now."

South Alabama hasn't been disappointing its Mobile-based backers. The Jaguars are 10-1 this season, and that includes a nine-point victory over then seventh-ranked Ohio State.

"We started getting national attention after beating Holy Cross by 24 points on the road, and the eyeballs really got bigger after we beat Ohio State," added Ellis, who knows a national ranking has put pressure on South Alabama, a school with an enrollment of about 8,000.

"This is our third week in the poll and already everybody we meet is playing us like we're national champions."

DePaul, 12-0, collected 59 of 62 first-place votes and 1,237 points out of a possible 1,240 in the balloting by a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters in staying ahead of No. 2 Oregon State and third-ranked Virginia. Oregon State, which outlasted then No. 13 ranked Arizona State 71-67 last weekend, were tabbed No. 1 on two ballots and received 1,159 points. Pre-season favorite Kentucky and Notre Dame exchanged the Nos. 4 and 5 positions. The Wildcats, who beat both Maine and Georgia last week, collected 989 points, while the Irish, an easy winner over Davidson and the only team to defeat Kentucky this year, got 915 points.

Wake Forest moved up two notches and took over the No. 6 spot in the poll with 874 points — seven more than UCLA which retained the No. 7 slot.

Maryland advanced a notch to No. 8 with 773 points, while Louisiana State and Michigan rounded out the Top 10. LSU, No. 10 last week, collected 744 points and the Wolverines had 664.

Iowa headed the Second 10 followed by Illinois, Tennessee, Arizona State, South Alabama, North Carolina, Brigham Young, Utah, Minnesota and Clemson.

Last week's Second Ten was Texas A & M, Michigan, Arizona State, Iowa, Indiana, Illinois, South Alabama, Tennessee, Brigham Young and Utah.

Minnesota and Clemson are both newcomers to this season's Top 20, replacing Texas A&M and Indiana.

North Carolina took the biggest drop in this week's poll, falling from No. 6 to 16th.

Hard Knox Makes Easy Choice

NEW YORK (AP) — Chuck Knox, who guided the Buffalo Bills to their first division title since the 1966 American Football League season, was named today The Associated Press Coach of the Year in the National Football League, narrowly edging Atlanta's Leeman Bennett.

The Bills, who were 5-11 and 7-9 in Knox's first two years in Buffalo, soared to 11-5 this year and won the championship of the American Conference East for their first playoff berth since 1974. They faltered last Sunday in San Diego, losing 20-14.

Knox received 27 1/2 of the 84 votes cast by a nationwide panel of sports writers and sports broadcasters, three from each NFL city. Bennett was a very close second with 26 1/2 votes and Sam Rutigliano of Cleveland was third with 18. The only other coach to receive more than three votes was Oakland's Tom Flores with four.

It is the second time Knox has been selected AP Coach of the Year. He earned the honor in the 1973 season when he turned Los Angeles around from a 6-7-1 loser into a 12-2 National Conference West champion. It was the first of five consecutive division titles for the Rams, who were 54-15-1 under Knox during 1973-77.

When he came to Buffalo in '78, he inherited a team which had won just five of its 28 games in the preceding two seasons. Barely three months after his arrival, he traded O. J. Simpson to the San Francisco 49ers in exchange for a bunch of draft choices. The Bills' new era was under way.

"We didn't set a timetable," Knox said of the Bills' rebuilding. "We just wanted to get competitive as soon as we could."

It is worth noting that, after the Super Bowl a year ago, coach Chuck Noll of Pittsburgh was asked which team would be the surprise of 1980. "Buffalo," he said instantly. How right he was. The Bills helped to wreck the Steelers' dream of a third consecutive Super Bowl title by beating them 28-13.

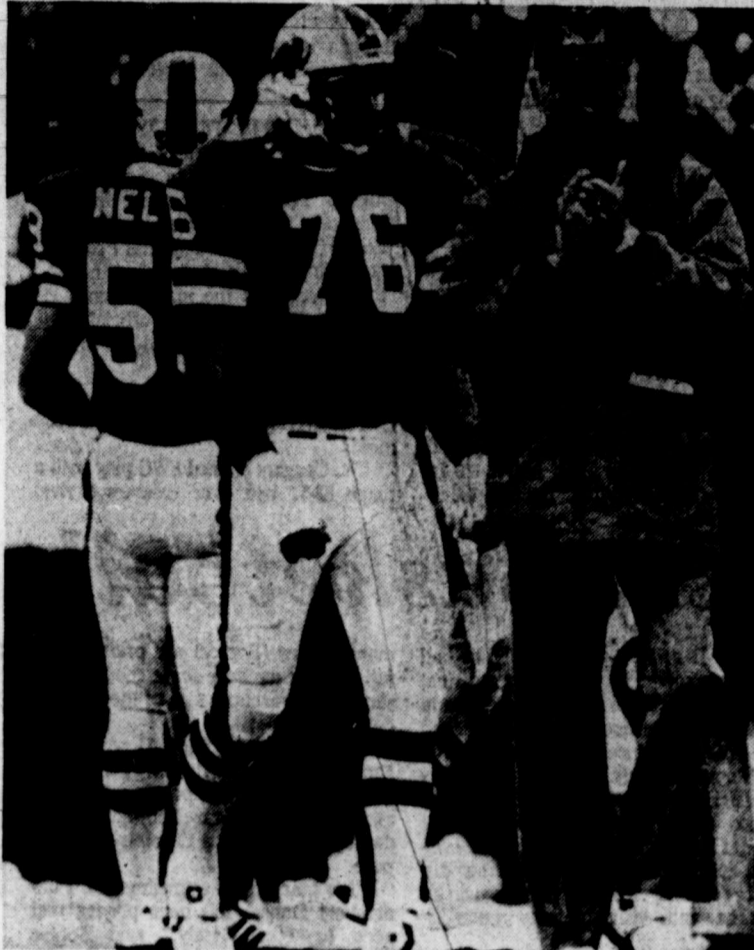

Their offense was competitive, to say the least, thanks in part to rookie running back Joe Cribbs, who gained 1,185 yards. But it was the defense — Knox's specialty — which made them so competitive this year. The defense, which had been ranked 14th in the league in 1979, was the best in the NFL in 1980.

When the Bills' division title was secure, linebacker Shane Nelson said pointedly: "This season is no fluke."

Like the Bills, the Falcons surged to surprising prominence in 1980. Under Bennett's guidance, they won their first division championship ever, beating out the Los Angeles Rams in the National Football Conference West with a 13-4 record. And, like the Bills, Atlanta was stung in its first playoff game this year, beaten 30-27 by Dallas.

Rutigliano brought Cleveland an unexpected division championship as well as the Browns nosed out Houston for the AFC Central title with an 11-5 record. But they, too, were beaten in their first playoff game, falling 14-12 to Oakland.

SUCCESSFUL — Chuck Knox, right, seen coaching his Buffalo Bills and defensive lineman Fred Smerlas during the 1980 season, was named The AP's NFL Coach of the Year today. Knox guided the Bills to the AFC playoffs where they were eliminated by San Diego last weekend. (AP Laserphoto)

Jaworski Wins Top NFC Honor

NEW YORK (UPI) — If Ron Jaworski has learned one thing in his seventh and finest NFL season, it's not to force the big play.

"If I made an improvement this year, it is that I learned to be much more aware of the secondary," said the Eagles' All-Pro quarterback, named Monday as UPI's NFC Player of the Year. "Now I can get the ball to our backs because now I know where all my receivers are at all times."

"In the past, I was always looking for the big play and I was always trying to make it. I didn't give defenses enough credit and even though I would occasionally make the big play, I would also get beat a lot. Now, I've learned to take what the defense gives, yet I can also challenge them for the big play."

Jaworski, who has led his Eagles to within one victory of their first Super Bowl, beat out Atlanta quarterback Steve Bartkowski in balloting by 56 sports writers — four from each NFC city. The NFC's top-rated passer received 22 votes while Bartkowski, who led Atlanta to its first NFC West title, totaled 15 votes.

Safety Nolan Cromwell of Los Angeles finished third with five votes, Rams quarterback Vince Ferragamo was fourth with four votes and Falcons' running back William Andrews fifth with three votes.

"It's a very nice honor and, although it goes to me, it's a reflection on the team," said Jaworski. "Most of the focus is on the quarterback but we wouldn't be having the season we are having if it weren't for the guys playing around me."

Jaworski, who finished second in the NFL to Brian Sipe in passing efficiency, threw for 3,529 yards, 27 touchdowns and was intercepted just 12 times in 451 passing attempts during the regular season. He completed 57 percent of his passes and averaged 7.82 yards per completion.

"Personally, I think the high point in the season so far came when we had a streak of four or five games with Wilbert (Montgomery) out," said Jaworski. "There was more pressure on me to put points on board and our offense became more wide open. I made some big plays and we went on an eight-game winning streak. That's a darn good feeling for me when I knew I was being relied on more because Wilbert was hurt."

Jaworski, 6-foot-2, 196 pounds, began to blossom in 1979 when he led the Eagles to an 11-5 record — the most victories for the team since 1961 — and a second straight wild-card playoff berth. Jaworski finished that season with 2,669 yards passing and 18 TDs and threw just 12 interceptions in leading the Eagles to the NFC title game, where they lost, 24-17, to Tampa Bay.

Jaworski is only the second Eagles' player to receive the honor with quarterback Norm Van Brocklin taking the award in 1960 — the last time Philadelphia won the NFL Championship.

Former Packer Aide Joins Hogs' Staff

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (UPI) — A former assistant coach for the Green Bay Packers has joined the defensive coaching staff at the University of Arkansas.

Fred Von Appen, 38, was Green Bay's specialty team coach in 1979 before tutoring the defensive line this past season. He is a 1963 graduate of Linfield College at McMinnville, Ore.

He resigned from the Packers last year after a dispute over a player eating a hot dog on the sidelines while Green Bay was losing a game. Von Appen reportedly believed the player should have been more severely punished.

AMARILLO (Special) — Greg Ewing and Phillip Fry each scored 12 points Monday night to lead the Caprock Longhorns to a hard-fought 48-44 basketball victory over Lubbock High.

The Longhorns jumped out to a 15-8, first-quarter advantage. The Westerners, behind the shooting of Brad Ruff, Charlie Quade and Kirk Cole, cut that lead to six points (26-20) at halftime and two points (36-34) after three periods of play but could not quite overtake the Horns.

Art Modell Displays Style Despite Defeat

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Cleveland Browns won't be going to the Super Bowl, not this year, anyway, and that's a pity because their ball club is pure class, starting right at the top where the owner, instead of deserting his coach or throwing him to the lions, has only one thing to say about him today.

"Play it again, Sam," says Art Modell, the man who owns and runs the Browns.

Now that's what you call standing up and sticking by your hired help.

Particularly in the teeth of an ongoing controversy wherein so many of the country's armchair quarterbacks and even two superb professional ones, like Terry Bradshaw and Roger Staubach, still question a key call that closed out the Browns in that 14-12 defeat they suffered at the hands of the Oakland Raiders in frozen-over Cleveland last Sunday.

In this day and age, where people have a distinct tendency to be more critical with others than they ever are with themselves and where their initial instinct is to look for a "goat" whenever some venture misfires, Sam Rutigliano, the Browns' coach, presented the perfectly logical target.

He called the play that failed, didn't he? Yes, he did, he quickly admitted. Okay, then, he was the natural one to blame.

Almost immediately forgotten was the fact that he, more than any other individual, was the one who restored the Browns to respectability in the three years he has been with them and led them to a division title for the first time in nine years this season while guiding them to an 11-5 record and making them a legitimate Super Bowl contender for the first time ever.

Nobody cared anymore about that. Not after what occurred in Sunday's game.

Trailing by two points, the Browns had the ball on the Raiders' 13. It was second down and nine and the Browns called time out to stop the clock with 49 seconds left.

Brian Sipe, the Browns' quarterback, went to the sidelines to confer with Rutigliano. Most of the 77,655 in Cleveland's Municipal Stadium, where the wind-chill factor was minus 30 degrees, were certain the Browns would try one or two more running plays and then send in Don Cockroft to kick a field goal.

Instead, Rutigliano instructed Sipe to throw a square-out into the end zone, but it was intercepted by Mike Davis, the Raiders' strong safety, and that finished the Browns' season.

From his box in the stadium, Art Modell watched the whole thing. I asked him to tell me his gut feeling the instant he saw Davis intercept Sipe's pass. His answer was typical of the kind of man he is.

"I had a sense of gratitude that we had gotten that far," he said. "I'd be less than honest if I didn't tell you I also felt a pang of defeat that it was all over."

And how did he feel now about some of the criticism Rutigliano is taking?

"As far as Sam is concerned," Modell said, "he plays the game his way and the way I look at it, all I can say is 'Play it again, Sam.' I'm not going to sit back here on Monday and second-guess him. He got us this far. I think Sam Rutigliano is outstanding, as a person and as a coach. I've never seen anyone like him in football...."

The first thing Modell said to Rutigliano in the Browns' dressing room after Sunday's game was "Thanks for a great year," and the first thing he said to Sipe was "Thanks for bringing us this far."

Sipe had all he could do to talk immediately after the game. "He was distraught," Modell said. "But I'll tell you this: I've never seen a better come-from-behind quarterback in the final two minutes than Brian Sipe. He's the absolute best."

Bum Packs For Saints...?

HOUSTON (UPI) — Houston Oilers' general manager Ladd Herzog has been told Bum Phillips already has been selected to become the new head coach of the New Orleans Saints, and it is possible Phillips could be offered the job formally in a meeting today with Saints' owner John Mecom, Jr.

Phillips, who was fired as Houston Oilers' head coach Wednesday, confirmed late Monday he had had his first contact with a member of the Saints' organization but that it was "with a friend, not with anybody in a position to hire me."

A published report in Houston indicated Mecom, who has been out of the country since Phillips was fired, returned to his home in Houston Monday night.

Herzog said Phillips had a meeting Monday with Oilers' star halfback Earl Campbell, who later in the day told Herzog to renegotiate his contract for the second time in two years or trade him.

Herzog said he received the information about Phillips from Campbell's agent, Witt Stewart.

"Witt said Earl told him Bum said he had the New Orleans job," Herzog said.

The Oilers' general manager added that because Phillips already has the job lined up that any contact between Phillips and six Oilers' assistant coaches is illegal without the Oilers' permission.

"If that's the case (Phillips has the job), then Bum is guilty of tampering according to league rules. I called the commissioner to let him know the situation," Herzog said.

The six assistant coaches, who were hired by Phillips and are considered to be loyal to him, told Herzog individually Monday they wanted to be let out of their Oilers' contracts which run through the 1981 season.

The six coaches cancelled plans Monday to fly with new head coach Eddie Biles to San Francisco so they could scout college players at the East-West game. None would say he definitely wants to leave the Houston organization, a newspaper report said.

...Earl Wants New Contract

HOUSTON (UPI) — Running back Earl Campbell has sent word to Houston Oilers' management that he wants his present contract to be renegotiated or be traded away.

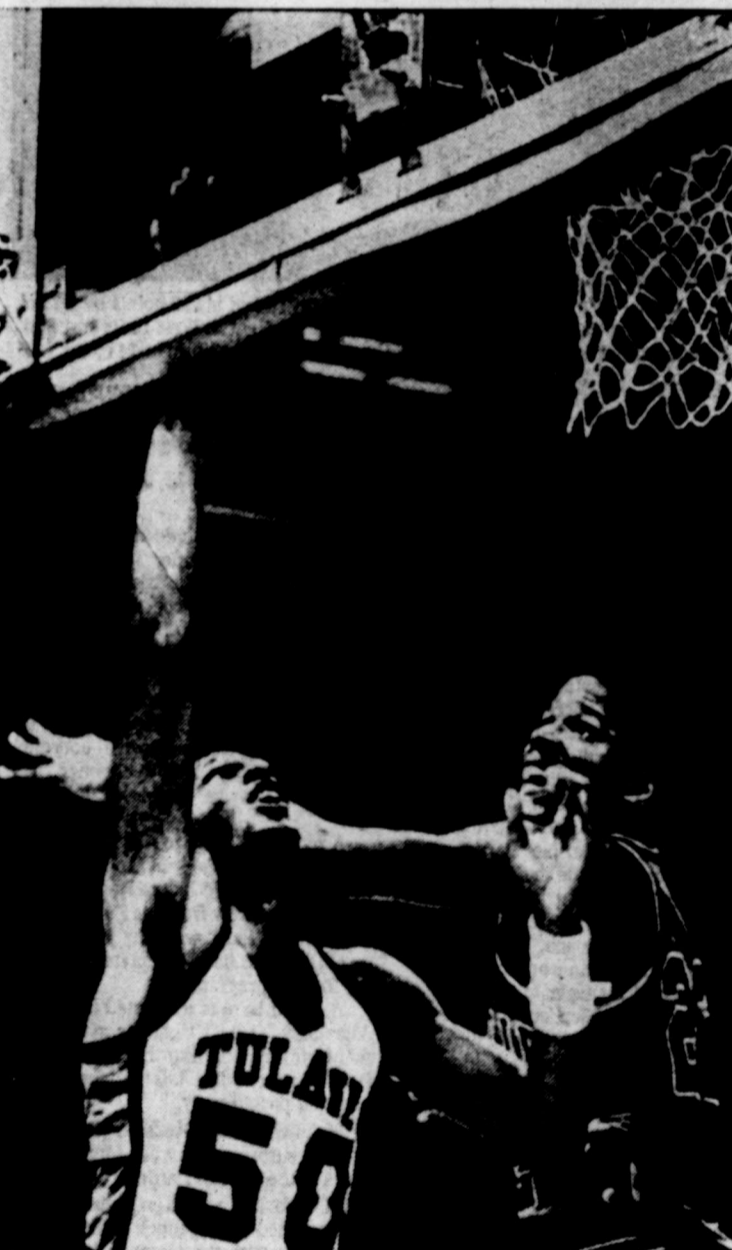

Campbell, through his agent Will Stewart, said Monday that they want to set up an appointment Friday with newly appointed general manager Ladd Herzog to discuss his contract. The request followed a luncheon between the star running back and former Oilers head coach Bum Phillips.

Although the Oilers management has a policy against negotiating contracts, Campbell was successful last year in getting a new contract worth roughly $3 million, including an annual salary of $300,000. However, that contract runs for another five years.

"We believe Earl is being fairly compensated," Herzog said. "We renegotiated a six-year deal for him last year in good faith and expect him to honor his contract."

Following his renegotiation, the Oilers were involved in bitter contract disputes with tight end Mike Barber and linebacker Robert Brazile.

Campbell and Stewart could not be reached for comment.

Humphrey, Eagles Hope To Ride High Sunday

By The Associated Press
 "Two more piggyback rides for the coach," says gargantuan Claude Humphrey, piano-key rows of white teeth gleaming behind an awesome black beard.
 "Dallas and then the Super Bowl," he said confidently.
 Humphrey, the 6-foot-5, 258-pound defensive end of the Philadelphia Eagles, and teammate Charlie Johnson, a 6-3, 265-pound middle guard, have become human conveyances for coach Dick Vermeil over the obstacle course to the locker room after every important football victory.

garded as gross, uncouth, rubbing defeat in the nose of the enemy.
 That doesn't bother Humphrey. He repeated the act last Saturday for spite. And he and Johnson are intent on doing it twice more this year.
 There is something refreshing not only about Humphrey's determination to flaunt this particular little no-no but also about the antics of other free-wheelers in the pro game.
 For too many years, the notion has been spread that the pros, with their kingly salaries, are an austere, unimpressible lot who go about their business with a cold reserve. They report to the stadium like business executives with portfolios, do their 3½-hour stint, then pack up and go home.

 Nothing is farther from the truth. They are largely still college kids at heart — even those such as Humphrey, a 13-year pro veteran out of Memphis, Tenn., and Johnson.
 Humphrey, for instance, is a one-man wrecking crew on the field but a puckish, gentle giant away from it. He has his locker festooned with pictures of monkeys.
 Why?
 "I just like monkeys," he explains. "I cut out every one I see in the paper."

Vermeil Needs Quality Effort To Beat Dallas

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "Dallas" is more than a popular television series to Philadelphia Eagles coach Dick Vermeil. It's the team his team will have to beat to reach the Super Bowl.
 Like the TV series, the Texas team has had its share of dramatic moments and dazzling successes this season.
 But the team's achievements are no mystery to Vermeil, whose Eagles play the Cowboys here Sunday for the NFC championship title and a spot in Super Bowl XV in New Orleans Jan. 25.
 The Eagles and Dallas finished tied for the conference's Eastern Division title, each with 12-4 records, but the Eagles were awarded the top spot through one of the league's tie-breaking devices. Dallas made the playoffs as a wild card team.
 In regular season competition, the Eagles beat the Cowboys 17-10 at home, but lost in Dallas 35-27 in the last game of the season.
 The Cowboys were supposed to be in a rebuilding year, especially with the retirement of veteran quarterback Roger Staubach, but made the playoffs for the 14th time in the last 15 years.

"I'd say, like (Dallas coach) Tom Landry has said, that a lot of their talent is young and maturing and has gotten better," Vermeil said. "They play with the confidence that they can win, and they've been able to turn it loose and really play intense, poised football, so you have to believe that they're peaking right now."
 Vermeil said Dallas has found out that quarterback Danny White is a fine football player.
 "The only thing that has surprised me about Dallas is how good White is," Vermeil said during his weekly news conference Monday.
 He added that a realistic evaluation of the two teams indicates Dallas has the better squad.
 "They come up with big plays and they take advantage of your weaknesses about as well as anybody in the game," he said.
 "Our big problem will be putting enough points on the board to win," said Vermeil, whose team defeated the Minnesota Vikings 31-16 in the NFC semifinals Saturday.
 "If we're going to win we'll have to play super. We'll have to play our best game."

"It's caused a lot of yak but it's become a sort of ritual to us — a good luck charm," Humphrey said.
 "We started it after we beat Minnesota in the second game of the season. The Vikings had whipped Atlanta in the opener. We had gone 0-for-7 against the Vikes. It was our first win over a contender.
 "We didn't think anything about it at the time, but we found out later that the Viking fans were in a stew over it. We got some bad writeups in the Minnesota press. Then we heard they were using the incident to fire up the Vikes for our divisional playoff Saturday."
 The Eagles won that game 31-16, qualifying to meet Dallas in the NFC title game in Philadelphia Sunday, the winner to take on the San Diego-Oakland survivor in Super Bowl XV in the New Orleans Superdome Jan. 25.
 "After we won Saturday, Charlie and I said, 'Let's do it again — they can't tell us what to do.' So we did. And we'll keep on doing it."
 This all seems like a very mundane matter, but not to Humphrey and the Eagles — certainly not to the chagrined Vikings.
 Humphrey and Johnson were excoriated for the original act. Minnesotans thought it was "bush," particularly since the Eagles had blown the Vikings out of the park 42-7. They accused the Eagles not only of pouring it on but applying vinegar to the wound with the sophomoric coach-on-the-shoulders exhibition.
 Minnesota's normally mild-mannered coach, Bud Grant, said he didn't notice the act but quipped, "You don't play for rankings in the pros." When the two Herculean defense acts repeated the act Oct. 19 after a 17-10 victory over Dallas in Philadelphia, Landry was reported as snapping, "You don't win the Super Bowl in October."
 In college, it's routine for winning coaches to be hoisted to the shoulders of their players or exuberant supporters. It's tradition. But, in the pros, it is re-

Giants May Hire Robinson To Manage

BALTIMORE (AP) — Frank Robinson, the Baltimore Oriole's first-base coach and major league baseball's first black manager when he piloted the Cleveland Indians, is expected to go to San Francisco today to discuss the Giants' vacant managing post.
 The Baltimore Sun reported today that Robinson's afternoon interview will take place with San Francisco Giants' president Bob Lurie, who fired Dave Bristol as manager at the winter meetings in Dallas last month.
 "All I know is the Giants called me and said they wanted to talk to me," Robinson said. "It's the first time this has happened since Cleveland, and I've almost forgotten what I'm supposed to say."
 Robinson was fired in June 1977 after 2½ years as manager of the Cleveland Indians.
 "My name has been tossed around every time a managing job opens up, but nothing ever happens," Robinson said.
 Lurie reportedly has several other candidates in mind to take over the Giants, who finished in fifth place in the National League West last season with a 75-86 record.
 A decision is supposed to be made sometime in the next week, according to the newspaper.

Robinson said that "naturally, I'd be interested in the job, but I don't think I would take just a one-year thing."
 The Giants approached Orioles' general manager Hank Peters to ask permission to talk to Robinson some time back, but didn't make their initial contact until Monday's telephone call.
 "I know the Giants have been interviewing people, and they had said they would like to talk to Frank," Peters said. "But that was a couple of weeks ago. I'm glad they finally got in touch with him and I hope the interview is a successful one. I would hate to lose Frank as a coach, but I know he wants to manage again and I wish him well."
 Robinson was appointed as baseball's first black manager by the Indians Oct. 4, 1974, one day after the season ended. Cleveland went on to finish fourth with 79-80 and 81-78 records in Robinson's two full years, and was 26-31 in 1977 when he was fired June 18 and replaced by Jeff Torborg.
 Three weeks after his release, Robinson joined the Angels as a coach and then returned to the Orioles as a coach in 1978.

Alborn To Receive Contract

HOUSTON (AP) — Rice University football coach Ray Alborn likely will join an exclusive club next week — he's expected to become only the third football coach in Rice history to have a signed contract.
 Alborn, who has directed the Owls the past three seasons without a contract, will be offered a three-year pact, athletic director Augie Erfurth said Monday.
 And Alborn, mentioned last week as a candidate for the head coaching job at Texas Tech, likely will accept the offer.
 In his third year at the helm, Alborn led the Owls to a surprising 5-6 season in 1980 including victory over defending Southwest Conference champion Houston.
 Erfurth said he would meet with Al-

New York City Bus Dilemma Resolved

NEW YORK (AP) — New York City and Grumman Corp. officials have reached an agreement that should put the city's 637 defective Flexibles buses back on the streets by April or May.

The agreement also clears the way for General Motors to fill an order for 477 additional buses on which Grumman originally had been the low bidder.

The GM buses should all be in service by late next summer, Richard Ravitch, chairman of the Metropolitan Transportation Authority, said Monday after meeting with Grumman officials.

It also was agreed that the MTA would accept 200 more Flexibles buses already on order, but only after they are fitted with stronger A-frames, which support the rear-mounted engine and transmissions.

Cracks in the A-frames of Flexibles buses that went into service in June prompted the MTA to order all 637 of the ultra-modern vehicles in the city fleet out of service for safety reasons on Dec. 13.

Since then the city has been operating 400 to 500 buses short of the 3,900 needed for rush hour service.

Grumman agreed to repair cracks that developed in the A-frames by welding more than a dozen steel reinforcement plates to structural members where failures occurred. The alteration would add 180 pounds of metal to the 350-pound A-frame and make it "at least 10 times stronger," it said.

The same remedy already has begun in several other cities where Flexibles have experienced metal failures, and it will be extended to all 2,400 Flexibles now in municipal bus systems from Connecticut to Hawaii, Grumman said.

City Controller Harrison J. Goldin had balked at paying Grumman any of the $54 million the city still owed on the already delivered 637 buses or the 200 yet to be delivered until the vehicles were modified to assure a 12-year operating life.

He agreed Monday to pay Grumman $10 million immediately to ease a cash flow problem for the company but insisted that the rest of the money remain in an escrow account with payments released as buses return to service. The interest on the account will accrue to the benefit of the city rather than Grumman.

Indian Medicine Man Contends 'Belief' Vital To Good Health

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Edgar Monetathchi picked a cigarette pack off the table. He had just finished telling a rapt audience how easily one's "belief system" can affect one's health.

"If I believe I never will get cancer from these, I won't," he said.

Ed Monetathchi, a 46-year-old Cherokee and native of Lawton, Okla., is a medicine man — a "traditional medicine specialist" for the U.S. Indian Health Service's San Xavier clinic. That means he explains the ways of Indian medicine to health-care professionals for a living and treats Indians on his own time.

He says he is the first and, as far as he knows, the only practitioner of traditional Indian medicine to hold a post of this type with the federal government. His job was created two years ago after the passage of a federal Indian health-care improvement act.

"There is a need for health providers to understand what traditional medicine is all about, including Indian health providers," he said.

A 23-year employee of the federal government before taking his current job, he worked for the Indian Health Service at other posts in Albuquerque, N.M., Phoenix, Washington, D.C., and Cambridge, Mass. Monetathchi says he has been a lifelong practitioner of traditional medicine.

His comments came during a recent University of Arizona conference on Native Americans and the future of health care in Arizona.

His pitch was a far cry from the customary medicine man's lecture on the all-importance of using herbs and avoiding the "sinful" white man's diet that gets blamed for so much.

He said he had read scientific studies condemning cholesterol, refined sugar and other targets of the health-food crowd. His response was that if you believe that, fine — but don't try to force it down his or anyone else's throat.

"It goes back to how we're programmed," he said. "We're programmed like a computer. If you believe that eating nothing but alfalfa sprouts and other natural foods will be the best for you, then it will be."

"And you notice that natural foods is a billion-dollar industry," he went on. "That tells you where it's at now — money, and what someone can make of it."

His point was that the relationship between diet and health is as much in the mind as it is in the body.

"We can eat what we call a balanced meal, or we can eat meat, potatoes, beans and be as disease-free as everyone else," he said. "Your attitude takes care of your body."

The same it's-all-in-your-mind approach governs his treatment of all patients, be they dieters, alcoholics or sufferers from everything from headaches to arthritis.

Discussing his belief in man's ability to control his health through his will, Monetathchi says that everyone has a mind, body, spirit and Supreme Being, and if you believe that, you can do whatever you want.

If you want to be cured, he said, you will be. If you don't, you won't, no matter how much medicine you take.

"We have the power to heal ourselves," he said. "No one can heal you. You can go to the hospital, pay the physician all the money in the world and see all the medicine people you want to see, but you have to do it yourself."

The average American eats about 13 pounds of onions a year.

DR. LAMB

Action May Confuse Issue

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB — Recently I had my regular checkup and the doctor said I was a little anemic. He scheduled me to come back in six weeks for another test. He said that if I was still low that he would do special tests to see what was causing it. I was wondering if I couldn't just take some iron tablets and correct this on my own without having the tests.

DEAR READER — You might just confuse the issue. Your doctor wants to know what kind of anemia you have before he starts treating you. And he may find you don't really have a significant anemia at all with the repeat tests.

There are several different kinds of anemia and that makes a difference in the choice of treatment for best results. You can have an anemia because you don't have enough iron. That is particularly likely to happen to young women in the childbearing age. Or you can have an anemia because you have chronic bleeding. That is important. A cancer of the large bowel may be the underlying cause of an anemia.

The bone marrow may not be producing enough red blood cells. This can be from many different causes. Sometimes this is a response to any of a number of medicines. Sometimes it is from exposure to some toxic agent you are unaware of. Then, too, the bone marrow may fall with increasing age for no evident reason.

Still another cause of anemia is an inadequate amount of vitamin B-12. This may be from an inability to absorb B-12 because a vital chemical is absent from your stomach.

In order not to confuse the issue, I must urge you to follow your doctor's orders. The different causes of anemias are discussed in The Health Letter number 4-3, Understanding the Anemias, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I realize the importance of proper nutrition during pregnancy, but would there be any connection between proper nutrition and getting pregnant? I have been trying to become pregnant for some time. I am typical of today's youth, rushing day in and day out, often with skippy meals to maintain my weight. I'm 26 years old, 5 feet 3 and 114 pounds. Although my gynecologist found my husband and me medically capable, I was embarrassed to ask about this.

DEAR READER — That is a good question. Many young women and even mature women have absent menstrual periods because they are on fat diets. A woman apparently needs to have a certain amount of body fat for normal hormone function. When you get too lean the brain stops releasing a hormone that stimulates the pituitary gland which in turn stimulates the ovaries. That is thought to be one reason why women athletes may develop menstrual disorders.

While it is not fool-proof, a good guide for you is your menstrual periods. If you are having a normal cycle, you are probably able to get pregnant. Nevertheless, since you sound like you may be a little on the thin side, a few pounds might help. Otherwise check again with your gynecologist if you have not become pregnant within a year's time.

Writer Finds Little To Cheer In Broadway's 'Frankenstein'

By JAY SHARBUTT
NEW YORK (AP) — It kills me to say it, but Broadway's new "Frankenstein" is a stiff.

It's loaded with fake smoke and fog, machines that hum and crackle, flashes of lightning, thunder, ominous bass organ rumblings and a laboratory that goes boom and self-destructs in an apocalyptic finale.

But Victor Giallanella's stage adaptation of Mary Shelley's monster classic has few thrills and no chills other than those blowing into the Palace lobby on a freezing opening night.

This edition, set in and around the Frankenstein estate in Geneva in the mid-1800s, suffers from rigor mortis of the dialogue. Not even a mighty special effects effort by Bran Ferren can make it go.

David Dukes — hired but a few weeks ago when the show's concept was changed, ditto the leading man — plays Victor Frankenstein, the young scientist who creates a monster from human odds and ends he's had filched from graves of the newly departed.

Of course it proves not only his undoing, but that of two grave robbers, his young brother, his young brother's dog, his pretty fiancée, an innocent nanny, his best friend and his father.

Among other things, we hear his back broken on the broad shoulders of the monster (a suitably grotesqued-up Keith Jochim) a good storm has unexpectedly charged up. This causes a small "oooh" from some witnesses, but that's about it in the scary department.

It may be that we've seen the 1931 movie of "Frankenstein" too often, the one where Boris Karloff did the monster. But even today that strikes me as more frightening than this try.

The try opens with an effective snow-storm done with swirling lights. Frankenstein speaks morosely of what he's done as two puppet figures — representing the scientist pursuing the monster through northern wastes — trudge up a show's only moving scene by John Carradine, superb as an old blind man who gives the creature his first taste of compassion and food, then is slain by the grave robbers who in turn are dispatched by the outraged monster.

The idea is to emphasize the creature's humanity by giving him speech, a workable guest brain, and making him a sympathetic character whose life deals a bad hand. But it soon falls flat.

So does most of the play, which is done straight, with no jokes save for Carradine's turn and several false trips to a closet in which we just know the monster lurks (surprise, he isn't!).

The tone of earnestness gets dull fast. It's only sporadically relieved by brief, smoky special effects and periodic monster cries for revenge that get serious when the harried Frankenstein up and destroys the poor guy's would-be mate.

Tom Moore directed, but in a losing cause.

Youngster Tells How To Make Carbon Copy

By SHARI LEWIS

I think the best ideas of things for kids to do are the activities that make every grown-up in sight say, "Oh, I used to love to do that when I was a kid!"

Kelly Edwards of Roundlake, Ill., just sent in a suggestion that made me say that — out loud! She wrote:

"Have you ever made your own carbon paper? Rub the back of a picture you want to copy real heavy with a pencil or crayon. Put another sheet of paper under the picture or crayoned part of the picture. Now trace the outline of the picture, and the same picture will appear on the sheet below."

I am 16 years old and in the fifth grade at W.J. Murphy School.

I used to do that when I was a kid. Today, I got out a picture of Lambchop, blackened the back of it with lead from a pencil, put another sheet under Lambchop's picture, and traced along the outline. The picture of Lambchop appeared on the sheet below.

Mary has only one little lamb. Now Shari has two!

Today's Brain Twister: Which is stronger — a thread of spider's silk or a steel thread of the same thickness? (Look for the answer in Wednesday's Kids-Only Club column.)

Shari has written four new Kids-Only Club books: How Kids Can Really Make Money, Toy Store In-A-Book, Impossible, Unless You Know How, and Spooky Stuff. Get all four for the price of three, by sending your name and address, along with $5.85 plus 95 cents for postage, handling and tax, for a total of $6.80 ($8.63 for Canadian orders) to: Shari, care of The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, 6464 Sunset Blvd., Suite 920, Hollywood, Calif. 90028.

THE CAPITOL Congress To Get Time Off

By TOM RAUM
WASHINGTON (AP) — With control of the Senate and more clout in the House, Republicans in the new Congress are making it clear they don't plan to put in too many hours. At least not right away.

Even before Congress convened Monday, it had a crowded agenda for 1981 — of recesses.

After meeting for a few days this week, Congress will recess until after President-elect Ronald Reagan's inauguration on Jan. 20.

Then, after barely a week's work, comes the year's first big recess: the Feb. 7-15 Lincoln's Birthday break.

After that, there's the Easter recess from April 11-20, a Memorial Day recess from May 23 to June 1 and a Fourth of July break from June 26 to July 6.

That will get Congress ready for its five-week summer recess between July 31 and Sept. 9.

The new Senate majority leader, Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., also has said he plans to restore normal 9-to-5 working hours in the Senate instead of some of the marathon and late-night sessions his predecessor, Democratic leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, seemed to favor.

Baker also has decided to end the majority leader's Saturday news conference, a tradition begun a decade ago by Democrat Mike Mansfield of Montana and expanded by Byrd into a major weekend production.

After all, Baker explains, who wants to work on Saturday if he doesn't have to?

Byrd, for one. The West Virginian has indicated he still may hold the Saturday sessions, despite his reduced leadership status.

Scores Of Newsletters

Rep. John W. Wyder, R-N.Y., who did not seek re-election in 1980 after 18 years in the House, figured out he had sent 900 different newsletters to his constituents during his tenure.

How did he report that? In a newsletter — his last.

Silver Linings?

While many Republicans were still blaming President Carter and the 96th Congress for the nation's economic woes, Rep. William E. Dannemeyer, R-Calif., told constituents in a year-end newsletter he saw "silver linings" in the dark clouds.

In fact, he wrote, "Americans own more cars and more TV sets per 1,000 people than in any other nation on earth."

Yangtze River Briefly Halted

PEKING (UPI) — For a short time Sunday the Chinese stopped the Yangtze River.

In one of the nation's most ambitious engineering feats, the 3,988-mile river — the longest in Asia and third longest in the world — was halted near Yichang between the provinces of Sichuan and Hubei, the official Xinhua news agency said.

The stemming of the river, longer than all but the Amazon and the Nile, provided a stretch of dry ground for engineers to complete China's biggest water project.

The project will eventually include two power stations generating 2,715 million kilowatts of electricity, a huge reservoir, three shipping locks handling vessels up to 10,000 tons and a six-arch silt discharge gate, it said.

The dam will also improve navigation, backing up water 60 miles to eliminate the turbulent sections through the mountain gorges.

POETTEIGER'S LAW: NEVER TRY TO TURN A PICK-UP INTO A DUMP TRUCK...

By Whipple and Borth

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) The chances of your ambitions being fulfilled tomorrow are excellent because you are not afraid to pay the necessary dues it takes to get ahead.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Past experience gives you strong take-charge abilities tomorrow and you'll not hesitate to use them. Because of this, your destiny will remain in your own hands.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) To function at your best tomorrow, you have to be left to your own devices. However, this should not necessarily mean you won't consult others when necessary.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Acquaintances will be important to your cause tomorrow, inasmuch as they can help you sort out your thoughts and assist you at arriving at sound conclusions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Set your playthings aside for the time being and devote your efforts to productive pursuits tomorrow. Much can be accomplished if you assert yourself.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You have the verve to sway others to your way of thinking tomorrow. Don't waste it on trivia. Sell 'em something important.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Set out to try to gain the confidence of someone who can pull the right strings for you to help you get something you want. They're receptive tomorrow.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It isn't likely you'll be shy about stating your position tomorrow, but the reason you'll succeed in your cause is that you combine both logic and optimism in your presentation.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't let that extra energy tomorrow go to waste. There are larger-than-average rewards available if you extend the needed efforts.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It will be hard to keep you off center stage tomorrow. Your natural leadership qualities impel you to take charge. Others won't mind — in fact, they'll welcome this.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Chances are it'll be impossible to sit idly by tomorrow and do nothing about the inequities you see. Your strong sense of justice makes you act to eliminate them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Tomorrow is the day to tighten the ties with a recent acquaintance. Take the initiative to strengthen the relationship. You won't be sorry.

January 7, 1981

You possess the tremendous drive needed to accomplish big things this coming year. If you are ready for more responsibilities, accepting the problems as well as the benefits, you'll succeed.

Manager Gives Robber Advice

CHICAGO (UPI) — A nervous, but polite, gunman who robbed a bowling alley of $1,500 needed advice from the manager on how to tie him up.

The manager of Spencer's Bowling, John Davidson, said the gunman, who was wearing a red and white stocking cap over his face, entered the bowling alley office recently after politely knocking on the door.

The robber, described by Johnson as jittery and nervous, then tried to tie the manager's wrists with a coat hanger. When he had trouble making a knot, Johnson suggested the gunman use an electrical cord.

"I didn't want to get killed, but I knew that I'd be able to get out of the cord quickly," said Johnson, who freed himself and phoned the police five minutes after the robber left.

No suspects were in custody.
