Iran Accepts Algerian Proposal On Hostages

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iran's chief hostage negotiator said today the Tehran government generally accepts a secret Algerian proposal for ending the U.S.-Iranian crisis.

The negotiator, Behzad Nabavi, told a news conference in the Iranian capital the Algerian mediators had offered a guarantee that the new proposal would work. But he gave no details of the proposal and guarantee, saying only, "This subject has been studied and has been agreed upon generally."

Nabavi, who is minister of state for executive affairs, refused to say explicitly whether he meant that a breakthrough had been made or was imminent in the stalemate over the 52 captive Americans, who have been held for 431 days.

The Algerian plan presumably replaces an Iranian one rejected by the Carter administration whereby the United States would have been required to deposit $24 billion in the Algerian central bank as a guarantee that Iran's various financial demands would eventually be met.

Nabavi's remarks came a day after a confusing statement by Iranian Prime Minister Mohammed Ali Rajai aroused new speculation that progress was being made toward resolving the crisis.

Rajai said in a television interview in Tehran that Iranian revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini had authorized acceptance of a proposal from Algeria "to solve our problem with the United States."

But the Farsi-language words used by Rajai could have been translated as either that Algeria "guaranteed" to solve the problem or "undertook" to solve it, and there was no official English translation of what he meant.

Today Nabavi told reporters, "The Algerian government has said in its proposal that it is ready to accept the undertakings of both sides, in other words Iran and the United States can empower the Algerian government with their undertakings."

Although the Iranians identified the new plan as Algerian, the proposals apparently were worked out in talks last week between the Algerian mediators and U.S. officials in Washington.

Asked when the hostages might be released, Nabavi said, "When the conditions of the Majlis (Iranian Parliament) are met by the U.S. government and when the Iranian government obtains enough assurance that the U.S. govern-

Killion Puts Down Tech Band Baton

By DEBBI STALTER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Dean Killion, Texas Tech University band director for the past 21 years, has announced his resignation from that position effective at the beginning of the spring semester.

Killion was unavailable for comment at press time today on the announcement.

Killion will continue to teach in the Department of Music, a Tech spokesman said.

Dr. C. Len Ainsworth, interim vice president for academic affairs, said a committee will be named to search for a successor.

"We do not anticipate an early appointment, however," he added. "The high quality of band performance set by Killion will make the position attractive, and we expect that applications will be submitted from throughout the nation."

Dr. Harold T. Luce, chairman of the music department, said he believed he spoke on behalf of the entire university when he expressed "the very deep appreciation we all have of Dean Killion's service to the students and the music program."

"His superior performance is recognized nationwide," Luce said. "He has built the best collegiate band program in the country during the past 21 years."

Killion was named band director and assistant music professor at Tech Sept. 1, 1959. That same year, he became the first minister of music at First Christian Church.

He was named president of the Texas Bandmasters Association for 1970-71 and was selected 1975 Man of the Year by First Christian Church.

Killion was honored in 1967 as Outstanding Community Salesman by the Lubbock Sales Executive Club. He also was elected a member of the American Bandmasters Association, a professional band honorary.

Killion served as director of bands at Fresno State College in California from 1957 until coming to Tech.

He was instructor of brass instruments and assistant director of bands at the University of Nebraska, where he was in charge of training the marching band, arranging band shows and directing performances.

He also served as music supervisor and instructor of instrumental music in Sidney, Neb., public schools from 1951 to 1955. The school system had a high-ranking band in the Tri-State Music Festival in Enid, Okla.

I-27 Routes Outlined By Agency

The preferred route of Interstate 27 through Lubbock would carry the massive freeway along Avenue A, down the west side of Avenue H and through the problem-plagued Taboka traffic circle, the Department of Highways and Public Transportation announced today.

The department announced three final choices for the more than $200-million project, which has been discussed since before Congress approved the interstate extension through Lubbock five years ago.

It is expected to be another four years before construction starts on the six-lane divided highway.

The state-recommended route is from the north side of Loop 289 southward along Avenue A to Fourth Street, from Fourth between Avenue C and Avenue D to approximately 16th Street, southwest from 16th to about 26th Street and south along the west side of Avenue H through the traffic circle to Loop 289 South.

Alternative routes shown on maps put on public display this morning follow along the east side of H and follow Avenue A through the city.

The preferred route would use H as an east frontage road, and the second Avenue H route would use the street as a west frontage road.

A public hearing on the route and design of the highway will be at 7 p.m. Feb. 19 in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center banquet hall.

Maps were put on display this morning in city hall and at highway department headquarters at 601 Slaton Highway.

"The recommended route is subject to change, based on input received at the public hearing," District Engineer George Wall Jr. said.

With the preferred route or "corridor," Avenue A would be the east frontage road between Erskine Avenue and Fourth Street, between Avenues C and D and curving to H at about 29th Street.

Department officials several years ago estimated that any of the three routes would have cost about $120 million, but they said today that the cost has almost doubled since then due to inflation.

Thirteen suggested routes emerged from public hearings and departmental suggestions in early 1977, and the choices were narrowed to three or four routes in a May 1978 public meeting.

Each of the routes was then scrutinized by a 14-member interdisciplinary team for effects on school zones, social

Reagan Completes Cabinet

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ronald Reagan today named Terrel H. Bell to head the Education Department, an agency the president-elect has vowed to dismantle. The appointment of the Utah education official fills the last vacancy in Reagan's Cabinet.

Transition press secretary James Brady announced the appointment of Bell, 59, U.S. education commissioner in the Nixon and Ford administrations. Bell is now Utah's commissioner of higher education.

Neither Reagan nor Bell was on hand for the announcement. But Brady said Bell would be available to answer questions at a news conference next week, when the new special trade representative and the Council of Economic Advisors are expected to be announced.

Bell's selection ends a longer-than-anticipated search for an education secretary that foiled Reagan's goal of finishing work on his Cabinet by Christmas. Reagan has publicly admitted that some candidates for the job turned him down.

Brady said Reagan and Bell agree on the administration's approach to the department, but would not elaborate on whether Bell agrees specifically with Reagan's oft-stated intention to eliminate the agency, formed only two years ago.

During the presidential campaign, Reagan called the department unnecessary. There has been recent speculation, however, that the new president might simply choose to downgrade its status rather than eliminate it entirely.

Bell reportedly flew to Washington this week to talk with Reagan transition advisers.

Reagan, meanwhile, met today with members of Congress, and there were indications he was pulling back from his campaign pledge to abolish the Department of Energy.

Sen. J. Bennett Johnston of Louisiana, a second-ranking Democrat on the Senate Energy Committee, said after the session, "It was my clear impression that Gov. Reagan will not propose a dismantling of the Energy Department but rather a lessening of its role, a doing away with some of the regulatory provisions like regulation of oil, and to some extent natural gas."

Johnston said Reagan did not specifically say he would not abolish the department. "This is my impression. We discussed it at some length. ... But I think he recognizes these problems are very serious and that he's got to rethink everything now that he's president."

Jarvis Praises Initiative Plan

By MARY ALICE ROBBINS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Famed California tax-buster Howard Jarvis today warned Texans that the size of their government is growing five times faster than the growth of the state's population.

"That means you're running into a hell of a lot of trouble," Jarvis told reporters at a morning news conference in Lubbock.

Jarvis' solution is to put the people back in control of their government. And the best way to accomplish that goal, he said, is through the power of initiative and referendum.

His Lubbock visit is part of an 18-city tour of the state, sponsored by a statewide tax relief organization called Texas 13.

Accompanying Jarvis on the tour is former Attorney General Waggoner Carr, president of Texas 13. According to Carr, his organization's legislative program includes a push for initiative and referendum, which Californians used to reduce their property taxes in 1978.

Jarvis said he is interested in Texas and about 25 states that don't have the right of initiative, which enables citizens to write and vote on legislation.

"The people of this state really don't have the power to control their own government," Jarvis said.

"It's important that you have it (initiative and referendum), even if you don't use it," the 78-year-old Californian emphasized.

If the citizens of a state have the initiative power, Jarvis said, they can force politicians "to look at a budget, not just a blank check."

Texas don't really have as good a tax situation as many people believe they have, Jarvis said. When the state's property is revalued this year under the new system which requires all valuations to be at 100 percent of market value, Texans may realize they have a problem, he added.

The tremendous increase in property

Mahon Supports Cut In Federal Spending

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The apparently certain appointment of U. S. Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock to the House Ways and Means Committee this month will help restore some of the power Texas has lost in Congress in recent years, former longtime Rep. George Mahon, Hance's 19th Congressional District predecessor, said today.

Mahon also expressed hope that President-elect Ronald Reagan will continue to take a firm stand on federal spending and be able to trim the budget. Tough decisions must be made to restore economic stability, Mahon said.

Interviewed by telephone this morning at his Arlington, Va., home, Mahon said he was not surprised that Hance is being nominated for the powerful committee after only one term in Congress.

"I wasn't surprised because Kent worked at it and had lots of friends in the House," the former Appropriations Committee chairman said. "It strengthens the voice of Texas and the Southwest in the Congress."

"Kent has done well in getting this major committee so early in his service," he said, adding, "You've got to have friends in the House to be effective, and you've got to have friends at home to be elected."

Mahon noted that he won appointment to the Appropriations Committee in 1939 after two terms and with the backing of House Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas.

He said the support of House Majority Leader Jim Wright of Texas helped Hance win the nomination of the House Steering and Policy Committee in much the same way.

The nomination of Hance will go before the House Democratic caucus Jan. 22, but the committee action is considered tantamount to a final appointment.

"This will give him additional stature in the House and will enable him to be more effective in serving the interests of West Texas," Mahon said. "A man, to be effective, must have friends in the Congress, and it will be helpful to him should problems arise for his district."

Mahon, the only representative of the 19th District had prior to Hance's election after his retirement in 1978, said the Ways and Means Committee will have much to do with the Reagan administration's economic program and will be crucial in efforts to curb inflation and stabilize the dollar.

"Probably as much as 90 percent of Reagan's economic program will be handled by the Ways and Means Committee," he said, adding that the 35-member committee also has jurisdiction over foreign agricultural trade and handles oil and gas legislation.

Mahon became appropriations chairman after 25 years on the committee, which is considerably larger than Ways and Means with 55 members, and declined to predict what the future may hold for Hance.

"The business of politics is an unpredictable business," he said. "You've just got to do your job from day to day and month to month and year to year."

"You don't have to be chairman to be effective."

Asked if he thinks Hance has been "a worthy successor" so far, Mahon said, "I think Kent has done a good job so far and has done a good job representing the people of our area."

"The people of our area are a conservative people, not extreme radicals on

Carl Albert Still Ailing

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Former U.S. House Speaker Carl Albert continues to have chest pain after suffering a mild heart attack last week, according to Oklahoma Memorial Hospital officials.

Don Brown, hospital administrator, said Albert remained in stable condition and is undergoing additional tests as physicians continue to monitor him closely.

Reagan Aide To Enter Rodeo

DENVER (AP) — After facing Senate confirmation hearings, Malcolm "Mac" Baldrige, Ronald Reagan's choice for secretary of commerce, will be tested in a different arena this month.

Baldrige is to compete in the team roping event of Denver's National Western Rodeo on Jan. 15-18, the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association said Tuesday.

The Waterbury, Conn., businessman began his amateur roping career at age 30. Friends here say he probably will continue it.

"Knowing Mac, he'll still want to do some roping when he gets time off," said Bob Eldson, general manager of the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association. "It's kind of like his version of the golf game."

Baldrige, chairman of Scovill Manufacturing Co., says business colleagues are not always supportive of his rodeo activities.

"There were some raised eyebrows at Scovill when I first started competing in pro team roping," said the industrialist, adding he only has time for about seven pro rodeos a year.

The 58-year-old native of Omaha, Neb., earned $3,853 as a professional roper in the last three years.

Dali Jewels Bring Big Price

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A collection of jewels designed by Salvador Dali, on loan to the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts since 1977, has been sold for $3.9 million to a former manager of the famed surrealist artist.

The Lichtenstein Corp., headed by Capt. J. Peter Moore, curator of the Terrot Moore Museum in Cadaques, Spain, has exercised an option to purchase the jewels from the Owen R. Cheatham Foundation in New York, the Richmond News Leader reported Tuesday.

The News Leader quoted a New York lawyer for Moore as saying Moore plans to take possession of the collection in March and exhibit it around the world.

The 37-piece collection, designed in watercolor sketches by Dali between 1953 and 1969, includes small pieces that could be worn and large, sculptural pieces with moving parts operated by tiny electric motors. One of the more curious pieces is a heart fashioned of gold with a center of rubies that pulsates by means of a motor.

Princess May Get Annulment

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) — Unconfirmed reports in Dutch newspapers say the first steps have been taken to dissolve the 16-year marriage of Princess Irene, younger sister of Queen Beatrix, and Spanish prince Carlos Hugo of Bourbon-Parma.

The reports say the Utrecht diocese of the Dutch Roman Catholic Church has approved an annulment and it is now open to the adjoining diocese of Haarlem to confirm or reject the decision.

Irene, 41, returned to the Netherlands last fall, took up residence at Soestdijk palace with her parents, ex-Queen Juliana and Prince Bernhard, and put three of her four children into an international school in Amsterdam.

Prince Carlos Hugo, 50, has frequently visited since from the family home in Spain.

Church sources would not confirm that an annulment has been started.

Sales Pitch: Reagan Stood Here

APACHE JUNCTION, Ariz. (AP) — Ronald Reagan stood here.

That's the pitch of First Realty Auction Sales, the firm that auctioned the town of Navajo, Ariz., last month.

This month, nearby Apacheland goes on the block.

Apacheland is a movie-set, old-west replica town where Reagan filmed the introductions to several "Death Valley Days" TV segments in 1965. It also contains the hotel used by Richard Boone in his "Have Gun Will Travel" series, and the upstairs office used by "Doc" in "Gunsmoke".

But a 1969 fire caused about $600,000 damage and Apacheland has been used mostly for commercials since, said owner Sue Schilleman.

"The Ronald Reagan thing is pretty big," Miss Schilleman, a real-estate broker and investor, said Tuesday in an interview. "There's somebody out there who wants to buy a town that Ronald Reagan used to be in."

Tony Serro, First Realty broker, guessed that the 30-acre site in the Superstition Mountain foothills 50 miles east of Phoenix would be worth "anywhere from $600,000 to $800,000 or $900,000, maybe $1 million."

The town will be auctioned in Phoenix on Jan. 24. Miss Schilleman said she wants to sell the property so she can move to California.

Noted Fashion Designer Presents Worst-Dressed Women List

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mr. Blackwell, the fashion designer, says he's outraged that actress Brooke Shields has become a sex symbol at 15 and has named her the worst-dressed woman of 1980 for trying to dress too much like an adult.

Miss Shields looks like "a Halloween trick without the treat," Blackwell said.

"She's awfully young to be putting herself up as a sex image and I think her mother should be totally condemned for this," Blackwell said of Miss Shields, who has starred in such sexually oriented movies as "Pretty Baby," and "Blue Lagoon." There also has been criticism of her ads for Calvin Klein jeans as being too sexual.

Her wardrobe is too adult, Blackwell said.

"It is outrageous that we don't allow youth to be young," he said. "They should be allowed to stay young as long as they can."

The acerbic designer presented his 21st annual list of the worst-dressed women Tuesday. He said all 10 of his selections seemed to "care less" about how they look.

Actress Elizabeth Taylor came in second.

"She should brush her hair and get rid of that baby-blue eyeshadow which she lays on like a layer of paint," Blackwell said. "I don't know of one movie star who has worse taste. No one has made the list so often."

Suzanne Somers took third place. Blackwell said the star of "Three's Company" looked like "recycled spaghetti."

Actress Bo Derek, star of the movie "10," fell from first place on Blackwell's 1979 list to fourth place in 1980. Blackwell said Miss Derek looked like "a butterfly wearing her cocoon."

One surprising name on the list was that of former model-actress Princess Grace of Monaco, who in 1960 made Blackwell's best-dressed list. The former Grace Kelly was No. 9 on this year's worst-dressed list.

"Instead of looking more exciting, she has become more dowdy," Blackwell said. "Because she has gone mature in her figure she should have compensated in her silhouette."

Blackwell no longer compiles a best-dressed list, but does name several "fabulous fashion independents" every year. That list is led by actress Sophia Loren, he said.

Blackwell also praised Nancy Reagan, wife of the president-elect, as "one of the most beautifully groomed women ... feminine, female perfection."

Others on his worst-dressed list, with quips respectively, were:

—5. Charlene Tilton of the "Dallas" TV series: "a pinup for Frederick's of Hollywood," a store that sells exotic lingerie.

—6. Queen Beatrix of The Netherlands: "Cinderella after midnight."

—7. Actress-singer Susan Anton: "an ad for a swap meet."

—8. Pro golfer Nancy Lopez: "a swinging fashion tragedy."

—10. Singer Marie Osmond: "Someone should unplug this Christmas tree."

Wrong Number Listed For Fire Department

MAPLE SHADE, N.J. (AP) — Maple Shade fire officials are hot under the collar over the second wrong listing of their telephone number.

"It's easy to make a mistake, but for an emergency number, you would think the phone company would do some double-checking," said fire chief David Wise.

The inside front cover of the Camden County directory lists the police department number for the fire department. In an effort to correct the listing for the fire department telephone number, New Jersey Bell Telephone Co. sent out enclosures with the December bill, but the enlosures listed a different wrong number.

New Jersey Bell said a correct enclosure would be mailed with January bills.

Wise said the mistake "has created some confusion, but fortunately, it hasn't caused any delay in answering alarms."

Group Celebrates Fillmore's Birthday

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Dedicated followers of the 13th president of the United States pause today for what they call a "Millard moment of silent meditation" to honor the 181st birthday of Millard Fillmore.

Jeff Amdur, head of the Student Committee for the glorification of Millard Fillmore, said participants could choose their own time and place to contemplate "the glory that was Millard and the grandeur that was Fillmore."

Amdur, a high school teacher in Annapolis, said Fillmore buffs around the country would join the celebration of one of the nation's most obscure presidents.

He recommended people consider a highlight of Fillmore's political career — his success in the election of 1850 when Maryland was the only state carried by Fillmore's "Know-Nothing" Party.

A more official celebration was scheduled in Buffalo, N.Y., where a ceremony was scheduled at Fillmore's grave in Forest Lawn Cemetery.

Ken Sokolow, a Maryland government office worker, was ready to join the silent tribute.

"Fillmore was born in a log cabin, he was self-educated man, a man who understood the value of importing but guano long before the energy crisis," Sokolow said.

"Fillmore steered a course of moderation. He struck the compromise of 1850 and delayed the Civil War by 11 years. Of course, the compromise succeeded in alienating both sections of the country," Sokolow said.

Fillmore was elected vice president in 1848 and became president when President Zachary Taylor died of typhus in 1850. Fillmore was the last Whig president, but was not renominated in 1852.

He ran on the American Party ticket in 1856, the first year the Republican Party appeared in the race for president. The American Party was known as the Know-Nothing Party because when people asked where the party was holding its meetings, members would say "I know nothing."

And Fillmore almost reappeared on the presidential ballot in 1872. Amdur and

Computer Network Speeds Processing Of Claims

DALLAS (UPI) — Unemployment claims filed by workers in Texas who previously held jobs in Louisiana can now be processed in 10 days instead of three weeks, thanks to a computer network that is the first of its kind in the nation.

The network does the same for out-of-work individuals in Louisiana who file for benefits they have coming from Texas.

The two-state computer link not only speeds filing of interstate claims and reduces processing delays, but it also is designed to eliminate fraud.

"The system eliminates the chance of someone filing in both states, because we can tell when we check the terminal if he's already filed elsewhere," said Herbert L. Small, administrator of the Louisiana Office of Employment Security.

Officials in both states say if the network functions well for Louisiana and Texas it will someday expand to a nationwide operation. Such a national network would be particularly important for Texas because of the thousands of out-of-state claims filed by migrant and seasonal workers who live in Texas during the off-season.

SEN. EDWARD Kennedy has offered conservatives the sincerest form of flattery—imitation. According to The Wall Street Journal, he's thinking of starting a private think-tank to generate new ideas for liberal programs.

One suspects the inspiration comes from the success conservative think-tanks have had in providing intellectual ammunition in the battle of ideas.

Sen. Kennedy isn't the only one who has noticed the conservative intellectual revival.

Sen. Daniel Moynihan of New York laments that the best ideas are coming from the right these days.

And Ralph Nader understudy Mark Green recently went through great contortions in an essay published by The Washington Post to say that conservatives' "new ideas" aren't new at all. (Criticism of that sort is yet another form of flattery.)

IT WAS ONLY yesterday that the phrase conservative intellectual would have provoked derisive laughter in establishment political and academic circles.

Now, the liberals envy conservatives their think-tanks and their thinkers.

For the past few decades, the intellectual establishment in this country was predominantly—even exclusively—liberal. So, for the most part, was the government.

The liberals in academia and the liberals in government made an unhappy marriage—unhappy for the rest of us, that is.

The academics thought up new programs for the government, and the government put those programs into effect—in the process, creating grants and jobs for the academics, and usually, more problems.

With so much of government in happy liberal accord, the liberal thinkers got lazy. Conservatives, however, had the incentive to try harder, to propose constructive alternatives. Now their work is paying off.

THIS IS NOT to kick the liberals while they're down. For one thing, nobody expects them to stay down for long. Sen. Kennedy probably will indeed come up with his think-tank, or something like it.

As will Sen. George McGovern with his so-called Committee for Common Sense, or whatever it is he's cooked up. And politicians and academics on the left will work very hard at becoming lean and mean once again.

However, the rise and fall of American liberalism is a useful morality tale for American conservatives. If they are to stay in power, conservatives must remain as clear-sighted and alert as they were when they were out of power.

It is not enough to rely on the voters' allegiance to the abstract principles we hold dear, admirable though those principles may be. Conservatives must show the left they are "doers" as well as "thinkers."

TIP OF THE ICEBERG

James J. Kilpatrick:

For Barbarians, An Ultimatum

WASHINGTON—Ronald Reagan had it exactly right the other day, when he spoke of the Iranian leaders as "barbarians." The word connotes the rudeness, arrogance and savagery of those who live beyond the pale of civilization.

It is maddening to treat with these people according to the forms of diplomatic speech.

President Carter has gone as far as any responsible administration possibly could go in attempting to negotiate the release of our hostages. He may indeed have gone too far—so far as to leave an impression of guilt or weakness.

My own thought is that the time has come to frame an ultimatum to Tehran: Release the hostages under the terms offered by Carter, or face the consequences.

What consequences? War.

LET US NOT flinch from the thought. Out of respect for the sensibilities of the families of the hostages, some of us have suppressed opinions and emotions that should have been voiced all along.

There is a national interest that surpasses the immediate interests of the families. That national interest has not been well served by the excessive patience of the administration or by the maudlin coverage of the press.

The United States should have reacted a year ago in the only way that barbarians may understand, not with peace, but with the sword.

which all the offensive has been taken by the Iranians.

As Reagan remarked, "They are the ones who have done the kidnapping." They are the ones who have violated every rule of international comity. They are the ones who have made demands that cannot possibly be met. They are the barbarians.

NEARLY 200 YEARS have passed since the infant United States, still governed by the Articles of Confederation, faced similar humiliations at the hands of the Barbary States.

In 1785, serving as minister to France, Thomas Jefferson confessed his perplexity in a letter to Nathaniel Greene: "The Algerines, I fear, will ask such a tribute for the forbearance of their piracy as the United States would be unwilling to pay."

"When this idea comes across my mind my faculties are absolutely suspended between indignation and impotence."

But some months later, in 1786, Jefferson's re-

ONE OF THE things he's learned from watching TV, says My Neighbor Twice Removed, is that When People Listen, E.F. Hutton Quits Talking.

From the Quote Wrack: "Everybody's working here that wants to, and some that don't."—Jim Eppler, commenting on Lubbock's unemployment rate going into 1981.

From the looks of the Ronald Reagan inauguration plans, says the Neighborhood Reactionary, all the rich folks at the ceremony will be in morning clothes while all the poor folks at home will be in mourning clothes.

AS ONE WHO HAD a decisive role in giving Jerry Moore his first head coaching job, I have to think Texas Tech showed excellent judgment in hiring him away from North Texas State.

Moore brings a sense of stability, sincerity and solid football with him to Raiderland, just what Tech needs after a parade of coaching changes in the last half-dozen years.

Two years ago to the day from his acceptance of the Red Raider job, I interviewed Moore in Denton as the Board of Regents member responsible for the final recommendation to replace Hayden Fry.

We had spent a traumatic three weeks searching for the best man.

The next day, Moore accepted the job, moving from an assistant coaching job at Nebraska.

JOSEPH SOBRAN:

'Time' Will Tell...On Itself

WASHINGTON—Ronald Reagan is Man of the Year. Who says? "Time Magazine." Who's that? Thereby hangs a tale.

In 1976 Time's Man of the Year was Jimmy Carter. The magazine's editors must have felt a glow of pride. Time had been pushing Carter since 1971.

That was the year Carter first appeared on Time's cover. In a touch that proved ironical, it featured a cover portrait of him that made him look Kennedyesque—in those days all Waves of the Future were supposed to look Kennedyesque—and dubbed him "Voice of the New South."

Time puffed and puffed, and in due course Carter became our President. The magazine stuck with him through four rocky years.

SO NAMING HIM Man of the Year must have been the editors' gesture of humility, right? Well, not quite. In fact, not at all.

First of all, Reagan sells magazines. Khomeini, last year's thriller, has grown tiresome. The great Islamic awakening he portended has failed to materialize.

Iran and Iraq are at war. The Soviets are still swarming over Afghanistan, with no concerted Islamic assistance to the victims. Islam's wrath peeps forth only at OPEC meetings.

As for the other contenders, the new Pope has become old hat in the media. (Too Catholic.) The individual who really changed the world, an unemployed Pole, lacks newsstand sex appeal. It had to be Reagan.

BESIDES, NAMING REAGAN gave the editors of Time a chance to pull a fast one. In their cover story, elegantly written by Roger Rosenblatt, they tried to contain Reagan by hinting that his mandate didn't amount to much.

Says Rosenblatt sternly: "That mandate is specific: To control inflation, to reduce unnecessary governmental interference in private lives and in business, to reassert America's prominence in the world."

Sounds plausible. But Rosenblatt goes on: "The mandate does not necessarily include far-right hit lists, censorship, the absence of gun control, prayer in schools, and a constitutional amendment banning abortion." He anxiously adds several more items to Reagan's non-mandate.

Now all this mandate talk is tricky. True, we don't elect Presidents with an explicit commitment to a legislative program. But it all becomes a pocket of Carterites to speak as an oracle about what Reagan's supporters do and don't want.

That will be settled through a complex political process, as prescribed through our permanent mandate, the U.S. Constitution.

It is Time's long-standing habit to try to sound oracular and vaguely official. That was easier to pull off back when Henry Luce ran things, and Time's stories were not by-lined.

There still are knots on my head from that experience but I'll say this: All the brickbats stopped the instant Moore's selection was announced.

He made all the right moves to gain the support of fans, faculty, students and players who had had their own ideas about who should coach the Mean Green.

The fact that he could win them and the Metroplex press corps over so soon proved that Moore could handle the important public relations aspects of the job.

A good recruiting year despite a late start and a well-coached and well-conceived offensive and defensive system at NTSU proved his coaching potential.

Just how successful Moore will be at Texas Tech can't be predicted, of course, but I will do so anyway: He will be the first coach to take the Red Raiders to the Cotton Bowl as SWC champions and he won't be long about it.

And we'll be there to cheer him on.

It took a half-dozen attempts and 20 minutes the other day to get someone to answer the telephone at the county tax assessor-collector's office.

Everybody must have been busy holding up the lines at the counter.

IT'S OBVIOUS that elected county officials have a built-in conflict of interest when they serve on a grievance committee to hear pay raise requests for their fellow elected county officials.

Corrective legislation to wipe out the procedure, ill-advisedly mandated by the Texas Legislature about 10 years ago, is needed.

This is not to comment on the merits, or lack of it, of the grievances filed during the last couple of years by four or five Lubbock County justices of the peace.

Maybe the Commissioners Court had held their pay too low, maybe not; the point is that the grievance committee mechanism creates a worse problem than the one it was designed to correct.

There are nine persons on the committee, including six public officials and three chosen from the grand jury list.

A UNANIMOUS recommendation is necessary to grant a pay raise request, but that unanimity is easier to come by than could have been imagined.

County Judge Rod Shaw, who presides over the Commissioners Court and votes in case of a tie, also presides over the Grievance Committee—but he has no vote there.

Those who do vote include the district attorney, sheriff, treasurer, tax assessor-collector, county clerk and district clerk.

They know that their own pay, and that of their employees, will be directly affected by their decisions. If grievances are favorably heard, and pay raises granted, the general level of courthouse salaries will follow in time.

Some courthouse salaries here have been too low for several years, in the opinion of many, but the budget authority needs to rest with the Commissioners Court nonetheless.

But today it rings hollow. Time has been bed-hopping from one fad to another for over a decade, supporting things like abortion and busing while losing touch with America's permanent realities.

So when Roger Rosenblatt anxiously tells us that the liberal legacy is "here to stay," he is, on behalf of his editors, bluffing.

If we've learned anything lately, we've learned that Time, for all its authoritative pomposity, was badly out of touch with the events of the year it has just named Ronald Reagan Man of.

Sylvia Porter:

Chances For Tax Audit Now Greater Than Ever

(Second of three columns)
NEW YORK—You, as a taxpayer, are almost surely not aware—but the fact is the Internal Revenue Service has fundamentally altered the way it selects tax returns to be audited.

As a result: If you are a high-income taxpayer, your odds on an audit of your tax return are greater than ever before.

To understand the significance of the change, you must understand in general how the IRS' old system of audit-selection criteria operated.

For the past 25 years, the IRS has classified income tax returns according to a taxpayer's "adjusted gross income" or AGI.

To calculate your AGI, you first record your total earnings, and then subtract income from such sources as tax-free state and local bonds and Social Security.

YOU ALSO EXCLUDE a variety of deductions: business expenses, for instance; 60 percent of any realized capital gains; contributions to such retirement plans as IRAs (Individual Retirement Accounts).

By taking advantage of these and other deductions, it has been possible for many high-earning (very, very high particularly) individuals to "shelter" their reported incomes.

They would wind up with a low AGI. And under the IRS' old classification system, they seldom would be audited, even though these are the individuals the IRS has found deserve audits the most.

In addition, under the old AGI system, the IRS automatically would classify any return that included business income as a business.

THUS, IT HAS BEEN possible for an individual who owned his/her own business but who also drew a large salary from another source to have his/her return grouped for audit selection purposes with other, far larger business returns.

Since the amount of the business income was relatively small, the return seldom would be examined—a mighty shrewd tax-avoidance strategy indeed.

But starting in 1980 (and effective for 1979 returns), the IRS has overhauled its audit-selection system. It finally has accepted what tax experts have been saying for a long time—namely, that the AGI is not a good measure of a taxpayer's income.

Therefore, the IRS has replaced adjusted gross income as a means of classifying individual tax returns with a new, more accurate measure of income, called Total Positive Income or TPI.

TPI IS COMPUTED by adding up all of the positive income items on the return. Deductions no longer are subtracted—as under the AGI procedure—but are treated as zero.

Under the new system, 1040 business returns will be grouped according to Total Gross Receipts (TGR). This is the sum of all receipts from a business.

Also, mixed business/non-business returns will be classified generally, according to which type of income is larger—and not automatically included in the business category. (There goes that tax strategy!)

Because of these basic changes, high-earning taxpayers, regardless of their deductions or the source of income, are far more vulnerable to a tax audit. If this includes you, you have received fair warning, well in advance.

In general, the higher your TPI or TGR, the greater the probability that the IRS computer will pull your return for examination.

As George Jones, a tax attorney for the tax and legal publishing firm of Matthew Bender & Co., explained the effect of the new system to my associate, Brooke Shearer:

"No matter how carefully a taxpayer prepares his or her return item by item, the IRS is concerned now more than ever about the amount of income that the taxpayer has before subtracting any deductions or losses."

ONLY A FEW weeks ago, I reported to you (with a more than normal level of indignation, and my "normal" level is exceedingly high) about the hundreds of taxpayers with incomes of $200,000 up into the many millions who are paying zero or next to zero income taxes.

These taxpayers not only avoid their proper share of paying the national burden but also actually boast about their ingenuity.

The changes outlined in today's report are clearly aimed at trying to make it more certain that the richest, most highly-paid Americans no longer escape paying the taxes they owe (and this is not to be misunderstood as a comment on our tax structure, as such).

Air Force General Says Titan Accident Unlikely

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A four-star Air Force general says it is "not conceivable" a Titan II intercontinental missile could release its nuclear might in an accident like that which happened at an Arkansas silo last year.

"The system has enough checks and balances" to preclude a nuclear accident, Gen. Bennie Davis, commander of the Air Training Command, told a Pentagon news conference Tuesday.

Davis commented on a 580-page report prepared by a five-man panel that assessed the safety of the 18-year-old Titan II after the Damascus, Ark., accident last September that killed one airman and injured 21 others.

A fuel tank ruptured, causing a fire and explosion that hurled the thermonuclear warhead from the silo. It did not explode.

The panel, including two major generals and a civilian nuclear test expert, recommended new safeguards and other improvements that could cost up to $56 million. Even with the modifications, it warned accidents still could happen.

"While the system is assessed basically safe," the report said, "it also is potentially hazardous and there can be no guarantee that accidents will not happen."

The assessment referred to possible explosions or fires — not to explosion of the warhead.

"The warhead perhaps has caused the most public concern — quite naturally, given its awesome destructive power when employed according to design," the report said.

But even in an accident, the warhead is "the most forgiving and least hazardous of the potential hazard sources associated with the Titan," it said.

"Under only the most extreme circumstances could the warhead react adversely ... in an accident. Even in the extreme abnormal environment experienced in the accident at Damascus, the warhead remained safe and relatively intact," the panel concluded.

Under the worst circumstances, it said, "the most plausible outcome would be a conventional high explosive detonation with limited scattering of warhead components. Resultant radiation and toxic hazards would be minimal."

When pressed, Davis said a nuclear explosion is "not conceivable." He narrowed the chance to "virtually nil" and finally "no possibility."

The report, however, was critical of the Titan warhead.

Although the system met nuclear safety criteria when deployed, it now "cannot be shown mathematically to meet the modern criteria in all abnormal environments," the report said.

"This does not mean the system is unsafe," it added. "There is a study underway to determine whether and to what extent to modify (the re-entry vehicle and warhead) for this system."

A classified appendix concerning the warhead was omitted from the version of the report released to the public.

Davis said the Air Force intends to "maintain" the Titan II force "well into the 1990s." The 52 missiles are deployed near air bases in Arkansas, Kansas and Arizona.

N-Missiles No Threat To Kansas Residents

NORWICH, Kan. (UPI) — City Hall clerk Patti White pointed toward the prairie that produces much of the wheat for the nation's bread and talked about the ring of death buried beneath it.

"To me, if you live in California, it's the earthquakes. If you live in Florida, it's hurricanes," said Mrs. White. "And if you live in the middle of Kansas, they (Titan II missile complexes) are just one of the things you learn to live with."

Grocery cashier Agnes Howell agreed: "We're more afraid of tornadoes."

Norwich, population 540, has come to terms with the Titan II — a subterranean nuclear menace that sometimes has appeared to pose as much a threat to the lives of those who live around it as to the Russians it one day may be called upon to destroy.

Tuesday the Air Force announced that the aging missile system — implanted in Kansas, Arkansas and Arizona while John F. Kennedy was president — was "basically safe," but that it also was potentially hazardous to the public and that there likely would be further accidents.

On Sept. 19, 1980, one of the missiles exploded in a silo near Damascus, Ark., killing an airman and injuring 18 others. Two airmen were killed in a Titan II fuel leak Aug. 24, 1978, near Rock, Kan.

And on Nov. 7, 1980, a small leak at a missile silo near Norwich prompted Kansas congressmen and state officials to ask for military reassurance of coordinated, tightened procedures in notifying civilians about possible leaks.

Despite Tuesday's report and the numerous accidents, there is no sense of alarm or uneasiness among Norwich's citizens about the Titan II Missiles — each with a nine-megaton warhead — encircling the town.

"I drive by them everyday, and I don't think anybody pays any attention to them," said elementary school teacher Robert Geisler.

"This is our home," said Mrs. White. "We wouldn't move because of them."

Some Norwich residents even complained the recent leak at a nearby silo was overpublicized by the news media. And most say they fully trust the Air Force to notify them if there is a danger from a missile accident.

"I guess if something is going to happen, it will be like a car wreck. It will just happen and there won't be much you can do about it," said Helen Hewitt, 45, who has lived in Norwich since 1953. "They're here and what are we going to do about it anyway?"

Rev. David Worthan, pastor of Norwich Christian Church, said he definitely felt the news media had made too much of the Titan II problems.

"I really consider the missile site to be no great threat," he said. "Talking to members of my congregation, no one has expressed any real anxiety."

Minor Leak Reported At Silo In Arizona

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — The Air Force has confirmed another "very minor" chemical leak involving the aging Titan II nuclear missile system here, but says the problem was noticed in September and can wait until the next scheduled maintenance period.

Word of the leak came as the Pentagon released a study maintaining that the 18-year-old Titan missile system is basically safe despite "potential hazards."

The leak, which had not been disclosed earlier, was confirmed Tuesday by Maj. John Alexander, a spokesman for Davis-Monthan Air Force Base here.

"The missile itself is containing the leak," he said. "It wasn't serious enough for emergency maintenance."

Alexander had previously confirmed two leaks at Tucson-area missile sites in November. Four men were hospitalized for exposure to highly toxic fumes while handling test equipment and chemicals.

The latest leak, which was in the missile itself, should be fixed during "routine maintenance in the very near future," Alexander said.

Alexander said the leak had been monitored since its discovery in September and would be stopped with the replacement of a rubber seal at an unspecified date.

He said he did not know how the leak was discovered, but said he had been assured it posed no threat since alarms set to sound at airborne fuel concentrations of five parts per million had not sounded.

The leaking missile was located in a silo south of Silver Bell road, just northwest of Tucson, he said.

No Illnesses Found As Result Of Blast

ATLANTA (AP) — A four-month investigation by the national Centers for Disease Control uncovered no evidence of "widespread exposure" to toxic gases among Arkansas residents near the site of a Titan II missile silo explosion, the Atlanta Constitution said today.

A draft report on the centers' study also said no serious illnesses resulted from the aftereffects of the blast, the newspaper said.

The report, according to the Constitution, included the results of the CDC's surveys of residents of 10 towns surrounding the Titan II site in Damascus, Ark., as well as a study by the Arkansas state epidemiologist of residents of Guy, a small town six miles from the blast. The report has not been made public.

In the days following the September missile blast, residents of Guy complained of severe headaches, dizziness, shortness of breath and diarrhea. Several residents said they saw a "green fog" pass through the town immediately after the explosion, which destroyed the missile silo and hurled its nuclear warhead hundreds of yards away.

Ronald Reagan Becoming Upset Over Stories About Wife Nancy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ronald Reagan says he is becoming an "irate husband" over published reports and political cartoons that have made his wife, Nancy, a target of political digs and jokes.

Reagan bristled Tuesday when asked if James Brady, his selection as White House press secretary, met the good looks standard Mrs. Reagan was reported to have set for the post.

"That question leads to a story that has been written concerning Nancy which was a total invention out of whole cloth," Reagan said during a brief encounter with reporters outside Blair House, his temporary Washington home.

"There have been several more of those and I am getting to be an irate husband at some of the things that I am reading, none of which are true," he said.

Many recent stories and cartoons about Mrs. Reagan have portrayed the soon-to-be first lady as cool, calculating and callous.

Last week The Washington Post reported Mrs. Reagan had decreed the White House press secretary be "reasonably good-looking." She denied making the statement.

Earlier reports included one that Mrs. Reagan had expressed a wish the Carters would move out of the White House early so she could begin redecorating before her husband's Jan. 20 inauguration.

Another story — one that gave political cartoonists a field day — was Mrs. Reagan's disclosure in an interview that she keeps a "tiny little gun" at her bedside when her husband is away.

One of the latest Washington rumors appears in this week's Time magazine.

According to the story: Mrs. Reagan, upset by the appearance of the Lincoln Bedroom while touring the White House, told White House chief usher Rex Scouten: "That wall must go."

Scouten explained the room is historic and should not be touched. Mrs. Reagan's reported response: "I want him fired."

Time said, "gossipmongers are already clucking about Nancy Reagan, the spendthrift fashion plant, the extravagant hostess, the gunslinger, and, after her press secretary (Robin Orr) was removed, the axwoman."

Newsweek, in its latest edition, carries without explanation a letter to "Dear Betsy" and signed "Love, Nancy," that tells of a home in Pacific Palisades, Calif., purchased for $23,000 in 1956 that may go on the market for $19 million.

U.S. Food Suggested As Weapon

By R. GREGORY NOKES
WASHINGTON (AP) — Ronald Reagan's choice for agriculture secretary, John R. Block, says the United States should consider using food as a weapon against other countries.

That is tough talk, because it suggests the United States deny food to needy people when it is unhappy with them. And if people need food and do not get it, that is called malnutrition and starvation.

Using food as a foreign policy tool is not a new idea. Suggestions have been made from time to time that the United States deny wheat to oil-producing nations if they raise oil prices.

U.S. food has been denied to Cuba for years under a total trade embargo.

And the United States now is using food as a weapon against the Soviet Union in the form of a partial grain embargo because of its incursion into Afghanistan. Reagan said during the campaign he would end this embargo because it is not fair to American farmers.

Block, who has been director of agriculture for the state of Illinois, was pretty clear at a news conference about how he would like to see food used in international affairs, calling it "the greatest weapon we have over the next 20 years." "The best way to use that food is to tie the countries to us," Block said. "They become dependent on us. They can't help it. They need our food."

He added, "As they become more dependent, they're going to be far more reluctant to upset us and get themselves in trouble with us for fear not only will they lose food, they'll lose everything else as we deal with them."

Block said later that his comments on use of food as a weapon may have been too strong, but the fact he did say it shows it could well become an issue in the new administration.

Block was not asked what countries he had in mind — U.S. enemies, neutral countries or friends who might occasionally displease the U.S. administration.

If it is to be applied against enemies, communist countries probably would be denied food.

To what effect, though, is questionable.

The decade-old trade embargo against Cuba did not stop Fidel Castro from sending troops to Angola and Ethiopia.

The partial grain embargo has not forced the Soviets to pull their troops out of Afghanistan any more than extensive grain sales to Moscow in recent years deterred the Soviets from what Reagan calls the biggest military buildup in history.

It is likely that grain and other food sales to China will expand rapidly in the next few years, although few expect China to be transformed from a communist to a free-market state in the process.

Iran is not getting much American food anymore, but the American hostages remain in Tehran.

Will the United States embargo food shipments to the Japanese to keep them from flooding American markets with automobiles? That is unlikely.

Will South Korea be denied food if it executes opposition leader Kim Dae-jung against U.S. wishes? That is unlikely, too, given the importance of that country to U.S. foreign policy.

Although the last three administrations faced domestic pressures to deny food sales to oil-producing nations as leverage to keep oil prices down and production up, all three administrations rejected such a move as futile. U.S. farmers would not like it, and the oil nations had enough money anyway to buy the food they need elsewhere.

Writing in the fall issue of Foreign Affairs Magazine, Robert L. Paarlberg of Wellesley College and Harvard said President Carter's partial grain embargo against the Soviet Union has met with scant success because the Soviets have been able to buy the grain they need elsewhere, especially from Argentina.

Paarlberg said U.S. government figures show "the Soviet Union was able to import, from all sources, a total of 31 million tons of grain during the trade year that ended in June — more than in any previous year in its history, and only 2.5 million tons less than it had planned to import prior to the embargo announcement."

Money counts in international trade, as the Soviet experience has shown.

The countries most likely to be vulnerable to using food as a weapon would be those who depend on U.S. generosity for part of their food needs. Those are the very poor nations, where people already have a tough time getting enough to eat.

TREATY SIGNED

The Treaty of Versailles, ending World War I, was signed June 28, 1919. It laid the foundations of the League of Nations. As a price for diplomatic rehabilitation, Germany accepted full responsibility for the war, surrendered land to France, Belgium and Poland, and promised to pay indemnities to the Allies.

Clements Wants To Give Citizens More Influence

AUSTIN (UPI) — Gov. Bill Clements hopes to deliver one of his 1978 campaign promises: giving citizens a means of influencing adoption or repeal of legislation.

From the first time Clements began his bid to become the state's first Republican governor in more than a century, he vowed he would effect the passage of initiative and referendum legislation.

During the 1979 Legislature, initiative and referendum (a means by which citizens can bypass the legislative process and create or repeal laws) came within a few votes of the necessary 100 needed in the House for passage. The measure, however, did not come up in the Senate.

But Clements has a more conservative Legislature in 1981 and the chances of passing initiative and referendum seem better.

"This piece of legislation will be a priority item with me and I'll tag it as such," the governor said. "The recent elections lead me to believe that it will be somewhat easier this time."

House Speaker Bill Clayton said he will support Clements' initiative and referendum legislation if it is indirect. The governor said he favored indirect initiative and referendum.

"I understand the governor is certainly going to be pushing for it," Clayton said. "I'm not in favor of direct initiative and referendum. I think what the governor is going to introduce is indirect, and I have no problem with that."

Rep. Dan Kubiak, D-Rockdale, has introduced direct initiative and referendum legislation by which voters would be allowed to bypass the Legislature to make or change laws.

But the legislation Clements supports, which is being sponsored by Sen. Walter Mengden, R-Houston, and Rep. Carlyle Smith, D-Grand Prairie, is one that would allow voters to propose legislation. However, the Legislature would be given an opportunity to adopt it as law, without amendment, before it goes on a referendum ballot.

Under the proposal, legislators could ignore the voter initiative and the proposed legislation would face a statewide vote before becoming law. Or the Legislature could adopt alternative proposals and both issues would be placed before the voters. The one drawing the most support would be enacted, or voters could reject both in the next general election.

Kubiak's proposal would require petition signatures equal to 25 percent of the number of votes cast in the previous governor's race. Based on the 1978 governor's race, it would take about 588,000 signatures for citizens to propose legislation through initiative.

The governor's proposal would require signatures equal to 10 percent of the last governor's race for statutory changes and 15 percent for constitutional changes.

"If initiative and referendum becomes law here — and that's going to take an awful lot of doing — then the state is faced with an even bigger fight over a corporate income tax. It's coming as soon as I&R does."

State AFL-CIO President Harry Hubbard agreed. He said the state labor union opposes the proposal but, if passed, will launch an initiative campaign to create a state corporate income tax.

Use Of Life Insurance As Forced Savings Becoming Less Popular

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A generation ago, a worker could buy a $10,000 life insurance policy secure in the knowledge it would provide a reasonable kitty of cash for his wife and children if he died.

In those days the government, too, thought a $10,000 policy was plenty to protect survivors. That was the maximum it offered to men when it sent them to war. Insurance companies also figured $10,000 was the basic coverage a man needed when he got married and began his family.

Young workers struggled, at some sacrifice, to pay the premiums on that policy, confident it not only would protect their families, but provide a kind of forced savings for themselves, possibly to cash out on retirement.

Now, as the payoff time approaches for those workers to collect on the insurance, how far will $10,000 go in an inflationary economy?

Does it make sense to pay premiums with dollars that may well be worth a good deal less when they come back in the payoff?

"Consumers are getting smarter," says John Regan, a highly successful San Francisco broker. Ordinary life insurance that involves a 'forced savings' is becoming less popular.

"The industry is responding," Regan said. "More term insurance is being sold."

In term insurance, the buyer covers only the risk of dying. It is strictly a gamble. There is no savings element in the policy that the buyer can some day cash in.

Regan says, however, that, in an effort to get more people to buy the "savings" type of policy, some companies are beginning to offer a deal in which the cash the buyer puts in is increased by a larger percentage than the 2, 3 or 4 percent that used to be customary.

Currently the Bradford National

Corp. is offering such a policy under its "Executive Life" program, with a factor of 8½ of 9 percent.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bode Usal

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Substantial achievements are possible tomorrow, both career-wise and financially, but don't expect more from things than actual conditions warrant.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Friends have great respect for you and tend to tell you things about themselves they wouldn't tell others. Don't use what you know to feather your own nest tomorrow.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You work best tomorrow when functioning as the power behind the scene. Someone you're involved with may try to take the credit, but associates will know where the glory goes.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Where major issues are concerned, you will be in harmony with friends and associates tomorrow. In matters of small significance, you could be poles apart.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You will be a good worker tomorrow, but you could become a trifle too demanding of yourself and diminish your productivity through critical thinking.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Friends are likely to come to you for advice tomorrow, but they could resent it if you try to take over and run their affairs. Offer counsel, not controls.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It's possible tomorrow that you can derive benefits from something that another inaugurated. Be willing to share what you have, as he or she is with you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It's important that you enjoy yourself tomorrow, but not to the extent that you neglect your responsibilities. Keep a proper balance between work and play.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 23) You will be quite capable tomorrow of doing things that could spell personal gain, but you also might be a shade careless once your bird is in hand.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Step in and take charge tomorrow where you feel you can do a better job than those with whom you're involved. Be prepared for some small grumbles, however.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Once you begin something tomorrow, your tenacity will impel you to follow through, but don't be disappointed if you can't do all you hope to do.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Pals will want to be helpful to you tomorrow, the same as you do to them. Keep in mind, however, that there may be reasons each of you can't do all you'd like to do for the other.

African Nations Agree To Create Single State

AGREE ON MERGER — Libya and Chad, indicated with slanted shaded lines, Tuesday announced they have agreed to merge into a single state. Libya last September announced it would merge with Syria, but this merger is yet to become effective. Prior efforts of Libya to merge with Tunisia, Iraq, and Egypt proved unsuccessful. (AP Laserphoto)

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Libya apparently is annexing Chad, its southern neighbor, after intervening in the civil war in the former French colony.

With 4,000 Libyan troops camped 40 miles from his capital, Chad's President Goukouni Oueddei joined Col. Moammar Khadafy in announcing this week that they had agreed to merge their countries into a single state.

The announcement was made in a joint communique issued at the end of a five-day visit by Goukouni to Tripoli, the Libyan capital. The communique was distributed in Beirut by Libya's official news agency, Jana.

The merger would make the new nation Africa's largest, with an area of nearly 1.2 million square miles, and a desperate need for a lot of Libya's oil wealth in the southern half.

The merger would also complete a diplomatic and strategic defeat in Africa for France, the chief foreign influence in Chad until it backed the loser in the civil war in 1979-80 and Libya backed Goukouni.

There was no immediate comment from Paris on the merger announcement. Three weeks ago the French government hinted it might intervene in Chad if asked by other African states "to preserve the country's unity and maintain its independence."

Khadafy in the past has made unsuccessful attempts to merge Libya with Egypt, Tunisia and Iraq, and since September with Syria.

A Kuwait newspaper reported over the weekend that the merger plans with Syria had been postponed because of differences between Khadafy and Syrian President Hafez Assad. Official sources in Syria denied the report but acknowledged differences between Khadafy and Assad.

However, the merger with Chad appears more certain. Libya already has annexed a disputed border they share along a mineral-rich strip of the Sahara desert. It used to be called northern Chad, but now the Libyans call it "southern Libya."

The communique Tuesday, which came less than a month after Libyan-backed forces triumphed in Chad's civil war, said each side vowed to help the other fight any attacker.

Libya also declared it would send an unspecified number of military experts to Chad "to help safeguard security and reinstate peace, which came as a result of the end of the civil war."

The communique said Goukouni's government asked Libya to help build a national army and security force.

Libyan forces helped Goukouni's troops rout the rival soldiers of former Defense Minister Hissene Habre, ending nine months of fighting in the Chad capital of N'Djamena.

Goukouni and Habre, both Moslems from the barren north, gained control of the country in 1978 from the Christians and tribal blacks from the arable south who dominated the government since independence from France in 1960.

Habre and his supporters tried to take over from Goukouni in a coup in 1979 and gave up last month when the Libyans intervened on Goukouni's side.

American Journalist Missing In Salvador

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — A free-lance journalist from Bogota, N.J., has been missing nine days in violence-torn El Salvador, and Salvadoran authorities have been asked to investigate, a spokesman for the U.S. Embassy reported.

The spokesman said the missing American was John J. Sullivan, 26, who disappeared Dec. 29, a day after checking in at the Sheraton Hotel in San Salvador.

A hotel source said the Sheraton official searched Sullivan's room and found his clothes, typewriter and photographic equipment still there.

The embassy spokesman said Sullivan's relatives have been notified of his disappearance in this tiny Central American country, where an estimated 9,500 people were killed in political warfare between the extreme leftists and rightists last year.

Seven other Americans have been among the victims since Dec. 1. Three American nuns and a woman social worker were murdered Dec. 2; an American mercenary was shot to death Dec. 17, and two American advisers from the AFL-CIO to the government's land reform program and peasant rights' movements were killed along with the head of the land program.

Rightists are believed to have killed all of the Americans except the mercenary. But no group has claimed responsibility, conservatives dominate the security forces, and the government said it has no leads.

Meanwhile, an army source reported that troops wiped out four leftist guerrilla camps near San Salvador that apparently were going to be used as bases for an offensive to overthrow the centrist civilian-military junta.

More than 1,000 soldiers supported by aircraft took part in the operation Monday and Tuesday on the slopes of the San Salvador volcano, 14 miles north of the capital, the source said. Reporters who visited the area said they could hear explosions and machine-gun fire all day Tuesday on the slopes of the volcano.

Soldiers returning from the action said they saw the guerrillas shoot down an old propeller-driven fighter plane. A Defense Ministry spokesman denied the report.

Villagers in the area said more than 30 guerrillas were killed. A military spokesman said four soldiers were wounded but would give no other casualty information.

Talks Scheduled In Polish Labor Dispute

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — A second round of talks was scheduled in a town near the Soviet border today between a government commission and coalition of farmers and workers in Poland's first major labor confrontation this year.

In another sign of labor unrest, Warsaw Radio said 180 factory workers turned in their Communist Party membership cards in November and December, and quoted some of them as saying the party had done nothing for them.

The talks, in the town of Ustrzyki some 10 miles from Soviet territory, were suspended Tuesday evening so government negotiators could contact Warsaw for instructions.

A spokesman for Solidarity, Poland's biggest independent trade union, said the commission arrived after workers in 17 plants in the area stopped work for an hour in support of some 60-70 farmers and workers occupying an administrative building in Ustrzyki since Dec. 29.

The spokesman said the protesters had drawn up a list of 14 demands, including an investigation into alleged corruption by local officials, but that the main grievance was "repression of Solidarity members."

One source said there would be phased, escalating labor unrest until the government negotiated an agreement on the demands, and that regional strikes would be called if no agreement is reached by Saturday.

Lech Walesa, leader of Solidarity, has called for a moratorium on strikes until Jan. 15 to give the government time to implement all concessions agreed to Aug. 31 at the end of the summer strike wave.

But a Solidarity spokesman at the union's headquarters in Gdansk said the action in the Ustrzyki region had the full support of the union's national leadership.

Solidarity is the first labor union in the Soviet bloc free of Communist Party control, and there have been increasing signs of alarm from the Kremlin that the movement might threaten the dominance of the party in Poland, a key Warsaw Pact ally.

There have been reports of Soviet troop movements on the Polish border and speculation that the Kremlin might intervene militarily if the situation heats up, but so far the Soviet leadership has given no overt sign that its army is planning to move across the frontier.

Police Reopen Case Of Slain Prostitute

LEEDS, England (UPI) — Peter Sutcliffe, the truck driver charged with the last Yorkshire Ripper slaying, was held in solitary confinement at fortress-like Armley jail today, and detectives re-opened the case of a slain prostitute originally thought to be the mass killer's second victim.

A Labor member of Parliament called the coverage of the Ripper case "lynch-mob journalism" and a law officer chided the press for its coverage of Monday's arraignment of the 35-year-old suspect, charged with killing Jacqueline Hill, a 20-year-old student last November 17.

Police said Miss Hill was the 13th woman victim in a five-year reign of terror — all attributed to one slayer with most of the killings taking place in the northeast industrial towns of Yorkshire, earning the killer the sobriquet, the Yorkshire Ripper, after the mass killer Jack the Ripper who slashed to death six prostitutes in London in the 1880s.

The second killing, that of 26-year-old Joan Harrison, which police are re-investigating, occurred in the northwest Lancashire town of Preston and was the only one to show positive evidence of sexual activity. The slain woman was also one of the three Ripper victims who were not stabbed to death.

Semen tests showed the killer had the rare blood group B, the same blood type as that belonging to the man wanted for the Ripper slayings. Sutcliffe's blood type has not been revealed.

Lancashire Detective Chief Superintendent Wilf Brooks traveled to Leeds Tuesday to question Sutcliffe in the high-security wing at Armley jail, a soot-blackened prison that looks like a medieval castle.

Afterward, Brooks indicated the Lancashire investigation into Harrison's November 1975 death was continuing.

"Our inquiry is still open. I have interviewed this man and the investigation continues," Brooks said.

Waldheim Opens Namibia Conference

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim opened a crucial conference on Namibia today, warning of "disastrous consequences" unless the talks succeed in setting the stage for peace and independence in the South African-administered territory, one of the last relics of colonial rule.

Waldheim urged the conference — the first to bring together all parties directly concerned with a settlement — to reach "firm agreement" on a date for a cease-fire and initiation of a plan to lead to self-rule by year's end through U.N.-supervised elections.

He said a very large part of the question of Namibia, called South-West Africa by the South African government, was already covered by general consensus, and that the remaining problems relate chiefly to "confidence, and especially to confidence in the future."

"I hope that the courage and vision that has brought all the participants along the difficult road to Geneva will now carry them over this obstacle as well," he said.

The alternative to peaceful settlement, Waldheim said, would be escalation of a 14-year-old war between guerrillas and South African and territorial security forces. That alternative, he warned, would result in "steadily more disastrous consequences for virtually everyone concerned."

The meeting was adjourned after 12 minutes with Waldheim proposing that working sessions start in the afternoon behind closed doors.

The conference opening was delayed by 35 minutes, reportedly by behind-the-scenes discussions following a threat by South Africa to withdraw unless the "internal political parties" in the territory were given equal footing with the guerrilla-backed South West African People's Organization.

South African Foreign Minister R.F. "Pik" Botha, however, said in Pretoria shortly before the opening that "the South African government as such is not participating at the conference" but that it would also withdraw its "observers" unless all parties are granted equal status.

At the opening of the public meeting, delegations were seated in a four-sided arrangement with the U.N. representatives facing the Western and black African observers.

U.S. Clergymen Seeking Israeli Aid Reduction

NEW YORK (AP) — About 400 American clergymen, including several bishops and some celebrities, are calling for the United States to reduce its aid to Israel because of alleged violations of human rights.

In a statement released Tuesday, the clergymen also said the United States and Israel should each open talks with the Palestine Liberation Organization.

The statement, whose signers included some previous critics of Israel, was to be delivered today to the Israeli embassy in Washington, and sent to President Carter, President-elect Reagan and other officials.

It charges Israel with violations of various principles of the United Nations declaration of human rights on the occupied West Bank and in Gaza, including torture, annexation of territory, property seizure and destruction, arbitrary arrests and collective punishment.

Israel has denied such charges in the past.

Noting that Congress in 1975 prohibited economic aid to any country engaging consistently in "gross violations" of human rights, the statement said:

"We call upon our government to reduce aid to Israel until she recognizes the human rights of the Palestinian people."

Signers of the statement included four United Methodist bishops, two of them retired, a retired Episcopal bishop, also Antiochian Orthodox Metropolitan Philip Saliba.

Also, Catholic anti-war activist, the Rev. Daniel Berrigan, his brother, ex-priest Phillip Berrigan, and civil rights leader the Rev. Jesse Jackson, who have previously criticized Israeli policies.

Simplest Games Often Most Fun

By SHARI LEWIS

If Santa didn't bring you that rather expensive game or toy you wanted, don't be sad. It probably would have been broken by now anyway!

Besides, I find that the simplest, goofiest games are generally the most fun. Here's a group game that'll make you giggle:

Spread cotton balls all over the floor. Then, with a spatula in one hand and a bowl in the other, the person who is "IT" has to carefully scoop up the cotton balls into the bowl, thinking it's just loaded with cotton balls.

And to make it even more fun for the onlookers, give lots of encouragement to "IT" as he or she lowers the empty spatula into the bowl, urge "IT" to be verrry careful!

TUESDAY'S BRAIN TWISTER. Which is stronger — a thread of spider's silk or a steel thread of the same thickness?

ANSWER: According to Ranger Rick magazine, July 1980, spider's silk is one of the strongest natural materials in the world. Many birds use spider's silk as tiny ropes to help hold their nests together. Some spider's silk is so thin that it would take 4,000 threads lying side by side to equal the width of one human hair.

Growers Sell Flowers At Auction

By JAMES F. SMITH
AALSMEER, Netherlands (AP) — The red Dutch roses sold at dawn here at the world's largest flower auction can well be on sale that evening in Chicago or Dubai on the Persian Gulf.

An average of seven million flowers and 600,000 potted plants are sold at Aalsmeer each day under 11 computerized auction clocks, each recording 700 to 800 transactions an hour. Within 15 minutes the flowers are ready for packing and shipping, some to nearby Schiphol Airport for air-freighting around the world.

The 4,000 registered growers, who auctioned $378 million worth of flowers and plants in 1979, had a special gleam in their eyes during the just-past Christmas rush. That holiday is the second-busiest period of the year after Mother's Day. Easter is the third busiest period.

Of the 1.9 billion cut flowers sold at the auction in 1979, 803 million were roses. Tulips and carnations followed far behind, with dozens of other varieties also available for buyers who range from huge exporters to street vendors. The auction doesn't handle flower bulbs, a separate and equally successful business.

There are 70 varieties of rose alone on the auction block, mostly from Dutch greenhouses. But in recent years growers from countries as far away as Singapore and Brazil have begun selling flowers at Aalsmeer. California and Florida florists also are entering the market.

Secretary Director Anton van Renssen said the foreign growers can make a profit at Aalsmeer despite the long shipping distances because of the carefully developed markets and the efficiency of the system, begun in 1912.

Typically for the Netherlands, many of the 4,000 workers in the building use bicycles to get around the 60 acres of floorspace in the half-mile long building. The eight-year-old complex also has a post office, four bank branches and even a barber shop. Aalsmeer is one of 12 flower auctions in the Netherlands, but with 42 percent of the business it is the largest.

The auction method is unique in the world, van Renssen said, and it proceeds at a dizzying pace. The buyers plug computer identity cards into consoles at their seats to record transactions in five modern auditoriums as two rows of flowers pass in front of them on trolley carts.

Unlike a normal auction where prices start low and work to the highest bidder, the clocks at Aalsmeer work from the highest price down, starting, for example, at 100 cents and down to the minimum of 3 cents for first-class roses. The buyers hear the name of the grower through a console headset as the cart passes by, and the first buyer to push the button gets the goods — at the highest price.

The cooperative board of Aalsmeer, made up of growers, limits the number and type of foreign flowers that may be sold in order to give Dutch flowers a better chance.

In 1979, 92 percent of the products sold were Dutch (worth $347 million) and 8 percent from foreigners ($31 million). Israel, Belgium, South Africa and France were the largest foreign sellers. The United States was among them but far behind them in sales.

Van Renssen conceded that Dutch growers have an advantage, especially for winter greenhouse growing, because Holland has a rare European abundance of natural gas for heating and its growers pay much less than foreigners in energy costs. He said that has little impact on the final price, but European competitors have complained to the Common Market.

Eighty percent of the flowers are exported, and West Germany takes by far the largest share of that — 68 percent.

France follows at 9 percent with other European countries taking smaller amounts. A total of 4.1 percent of the products go outside Europe.

"There's great room for export growth," van Renssen said. "The French market shows a great potential, because

Isolation Blamed For Jail Suicides

WASHINGTON (AP) — A sense of total isolation among juveniles held in adult jails is one reason they commit suicide at about eight times the rate of children held in juvenile detention centers, a federally funded study says.

The study released recently was prepared by the Community Research Center at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. It was paid for with money from the U.S. Justice Department's Office of Juvenile and Delinquency Prevention.

"It appears that the youngster in the juvenile detention center gets involved in a large subculture of his peers and does not feel the isolation and rejection he feels when isolated in a cell in an adult facility," said Michael G. Flaherty, the study's author.

they only recently are becoming more aware of cut flowers. The American and Canadian markets also have potential."

He added that sales of potted plants are growing faster than cut flowers, up 17.5 percent and 7.5 percent in 1979 respectively. That is partly because growers of potted plants don't have to work so hard or so precisely.

A successful cut-flower grower, often a family concern, has to work seven days a week, van Renssen said, making sure the flowers are cut at the right moment and rushed to the market at dawn to begin a possible journey halfway around the world.

Senators Lack Communication

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Florida's new Republican senator Paula Hawkins and the state's Democratic senator Lawton Chiles say they are friends but they had trouble communicating with each other the first day on the job.

Senate custom dictates that a new senator is escorted by the state's other senator, regardless of party, to the front of the chamber for swearing in by the vice president.

But this week it was outgoing Republican National Committee chairman Bill Brock who escorted Mrs. Hawkins while Chiles sat in his seat on the Democratic side of the aisle.

A spokesman for Mrs. Hawkins said Chiles' exclusion was simply a case of each senator not being able to get in touch with each other. Brock, a former senator, is a close friend of Mrs. Hawkins.

"There's no hostility at all," the spokesman said. "Chiles and Hawkins have been good friends for a very long time and there's no problem at all."

"That was her decision to make," said Chiles, declining to say he was snubbed.

In the 1960s, Ohio's feuding Democratic senators Frank Lausche and Stephen Young would not walk with each other. And two years ago, Sen.-elect Gordon Humphrey, a New Hampshire conservative, refused to be escorted by liberal Sen. John Durkin.

Wall Street Forecasters Cautious About 1981

By CHET CURRIER
NEW YORK (AP) — As Wall Street approaches the end of its best year in a long time, many stock-market forecasters are distinctly cautious about the chances for a repeat performance in 1981.
 As usual, there is no shortage of seers who are "bullish for the long term." But with interest rates still at sky-high levels and a new recession looming, many of those self-styled optimists are wary about the market's prospects in the early days of the new year.
 As the Merrill Lynch Market Letter recently put it: "We continue to advise a cautious stance in view of the possibility of renewed market weakness in early 1981."
 Another large brokerage house, Bache Halsey Stuart Shields Inc., said in its assessment of the year-end outlook: "As we look back on 1980, economists will probably mark November or December as the month that started the year's second economic downturn."

"This will be reflected in earnings dis-appointments over the next quarter or two."
 President-elect Ronald Reagan, Bache said, "has been given a significant mandate, but it will take several months before the market knows that the change at the helm is truly a change of course."
 One source of this skeptical mood is the market's poor showing in many past post-election years. Although Wall Street has always had strong Republican leanings, stock prices have had a particularly tough time in the first year of Republican administrations.
 After Herbert Hoover took office in 1929, there was the Great Crash in the fall of that year. Standard & Poor's 500-
ONION REMEDY
 Capt. James Cook applied the onion remedy in the 18th century for scurvy on his voyages to the remote areas of the Pacific. At one point, he ordered each man in his crew to eat 20 pounds of onions, followed by 10 pounds 2 days later.

stock composite index fell 6.6 percent in 1953 and 14.3 percent in 1957, at the outset of Dwight D. Eisenhower's two terms.
 It fell 11.4 percent in 1960, after Richard Nixon moved into the White House, and 17.4 percent in 1973, following his re-election.
 The record following Democratic victories is not so uniformly gloomy. But the S&P 500 did decline 11.5 percent in 1977, Jimmy Carter's first year in office.
 "The political stripes of the winners, however, may play a less important role in post-election market action than the state of the economy," Standard & Poor's analysts observed.
 "While it is generally assumed that incumbent administrations pursue stimulative economic policies in the pre-election period, their successors often adopt 'belt-tightening' measures needed to correct previous economic excesses."
 "The stock market takes on a less exuberant tone, as investors realize that election promises don't always pan out and that changes in economic policies often create a new set of uncertainties."
 A lot of analysis has been devoted to four-year political cycles in this country, and their apparent effects on stock prices. No matter how clear a pattern can be found, analysts acknowledge that it is foolhardy to expect history ever to repeat itself exactly in the market.
 As Standard & Poor's noted, "The situation we face currently is different from that in past years."
 "Today an (economic) austerity program — if well conceived — would probably have considerable appeal to investors, boosting stock prices."

Navy Gets First Black Female Pilot

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Brenda Robinson is not only one of the few women to have made inroads into what had previously been a male-dominated military field, but she also holds the distinction of being the first — and only — black female pilot in the U.S. Navy.
 "All I ever wanted to do was fly," says the 24-year-old Ensign Robinson of North Wales, Pa., who graduated from Dowling College, Oakdale, N.Y., where she majored in aeronautics.

 "I was one of only five women at Dowling pursuing a degree in aeronautics," she says. "By the time I graduated, I had flown solo and earned my private pilot's license."
 It wasn't until her senior year in college that she thought about flying military aircraft.
 "I had friends in the Air Force, so I checked out the Air Force first," she says. "I was told I would have to spend two years in the Air Force before I could get into flight school."
 "The Navy said if I was tough enough to get through their flight school I could fly with them. They issued a challenge that appealed to me." She joined the Navy in November 1978 and began aviation officer candidate school in Florida shortly thereafter.
 "The first week was miserable," recalls the soft-spoken Ensign Robinson. "I had trouble eating. I was nervous, but too busy to worry about it. On many occasions I asked myself what I was doing there."
 After completing the 16-week course, she received her commission as a Navy officer and went on to primary flight training at Whiting Field, Fla., and to advanced flight training at Corpus Christi. She was then awarded the wings of a Navy aviator and was certified to fly multi-engine, propeller-driven aircraft.

 "Completing flight school was the greatest challenge I have faced," says the 5-foot-4, 120-pound pilot who is now assigned to Fleet Logistics Support Squadron Forty, headquartered in Norfolk.
 She flies the C-1A "Trader" aircraft, which can carry eight passengers, 3,500 pounds of cargo or combinations of both. It also can be configured to carry litter patients.
 The aircraft's primary mission is that of transporting passengers, mail and high-priority cargo to and from Navy aircraft carriers. Although Ensign Robinson is prevented by law from being assigned to a combat-oriented ship or aviation squadron she currently is undergoing training to qualify her to land the C-1A on the flight deck of an aircraft carrier, one of the most challenging and dangerous flying feats done by Navy aviators.
 The unpretentious ensign does not enjoy being in the limelight, but would rather be left alone to "get the job done," as she puts it.
 "I knew I was doing something unique and I realized I would be a pioneer," says the woman, who claims not to feel any pressure to excel on behalf of her sex and race. "I also knew I would serve as an example. I hope other black women will realize they, too, can do what I've done."

Washington (UPI) — The diagnosis of cancer is no longer an automatic death sentence and, as a result, increasing emphasis is being placed on helping cancer patients and their families live with the disease.
 Dr. Vincent DeVita, director of the National Cancer Institute, says cancer can now be considered a chronic disease in many cases due to improved treatment.
 "Whether in remission or receiving treatment, those who are living with cancer deserve attention to their psychological, social and economic needs," DeVita said in an introduction to a new book published by the government to help health professionals deal with cancer patients.
 An increasing number of patients considered cured of cancer are being returned to society and many others are able to return to work and normal life while undergoing long-term treatment for malignancies.
 "Still, concerns about mortality are part of living with cancer and should not be minimized," said the book, "Coping with Cancer." "Clearly the prospect of a lifespan shortened by cancer is a major issue throughout the disease continuum."

 Changing attitudes about cancer are particularly apparent by the almost complete reversal of the long-held tradition of doctors to withhold a cancer diagnosis from the patient.
 As recently as 1960, according to a report cited by the book, there was a strong tendency not to tell patients they had cancer in order to protect them from the devastating impact of such a diagnosis.
 A common practice was to inform a family member who then would have to take the responsibility of determining whether to tell the patient of his or her condition. If it was decided to keep the prognosis a secret, family members were forced to talk around the issue for fear of disclosing the diagnosis.
 The secrecy also led the patient to suspect the worst, the book said. "If they assumed a bad prognosis, they tried to conceal the knowledge to spare the feelings of their families and created yet another strain of concealment."
 The book said a recent study of physicians' attitudes found that 98 percent of those who responded to the survey said that telling the patient about their situation was their general policy.
 "More complete revelation may be a function of the diminishing mystique surrounding cancer," the book said.
 When the doctor gives the diagnosis to the patient, the book said he or she must allow enough time for a careful explanation of the situation and for the patient to ask questions.

Contempt Proceedings Begun Against Trio

BUCKEYE, La. (AP) — A federal judge began contempt proceedings today against three white girls who refuse to attend a racially integrated school and against a state judge who ordered the girls to return to all-white Buckeye High School.

U.S. District Judge Nauman Scott signed a show-cause order about two hours after the girls went to class at Buckeye for the third straight day under an order from state District Judge Richard Lee.

Lee and his lawyer, a constitutional expert, stood by as the three girls entered the school today. Lee says the girls may attend classes despite Scott's order that it violated his desegregation pupil assignment plan for Rapides Parish.

Scott's brief order, signed without comment, sets a hearing for Jan. 15 at which time Lee, the girls' parents and guardians, and the school superintendent and principal are to explain why they should not be held in contempt of federal court.

Also named was the constable who escorted the girls to class Tuesday — one day after Scott issued a blanket order forbidding anyone, including state officials, from interfering with his pupil assignment plan.

Meanwhile, the girls remained in class at Buckeye. Unlike two previous days this week, no law enforcement officers were there to escort them. They were enrolled again and went to class. Lee left campus about two hours later, before Scott signed his show-cause order.

Scott has threatened to fine anyone who interferes with his orders.

Lee told reporters: "I will obey any order served on me, whether it's from a federal court, a state court or a city court."

U.S. Attorney Ransdell Keene filed papers with Scott in Shreveport late Tuesday asking that Lee be held in contempt of court and fined $1,000 a day.

On Tuesday, Lee had said he was undecided whether he would go to school today to ensure that the girls are admitted.

"I'm getting old, and that's a long drive for me," Lee said. Lee, 44, lives in Alexandria, 15 miles away.

Scott ordered last summer that Rapides Parish public schools be more broadly desegregated and reassigned 108 of the 7th and 8th graders at Buckeye High to attend Jones Street Junior High, which is 54 percent black. The junior high school is in Alexandria.

To get around Scott's order, the parents of three of the reassigned students — Michelle Laborde, 13; Lynda McNeal, 13; and Ramona Carbo, 12 — gave custody of their daughters to friends living in the new Buckeye attendance zone.

Disclaiming racial motives, the parents maintained that they did not want the girls bused to classes far from their homes.

The judges' tug-of-war began when Lee approved the custody move and Scott, calling it a "sham," took the case away from Lee's state court.

University Systems Ruled Segregated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Education has notified Delaware, Alabama, South Carolina and West Virginia that their public college systems retain "the vestiges of unconstitutional segregation." Assistant Secretary Cynthia G. Brown said today.

She said the department found that the university systems in those states have not done enough to eliminate traces of their old separate systems for black and white students.

The department's notifications to the states follow a Dec. 17, 1980, court order by Judge John H. Pratt of the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia. He ordered the completion of seven pending higher education civil rights investigations. The judge said that not only must those investigations be completed, by Jan. 15, but that the department must issue findings in each case.

"The department has found that in each state the public higher education systems retain vestiges of the era when the systems were legally segregated — although one state, West Virginia, has made substantial strides toward desegregation," said Miss Brown, who is in charge of the department's civil rights section. She said the states were not bound to maintain discriminatory admissions policies. But they do have practices which continue "the racial identifiability of the schools," she added.

In Alabama more than half of the black undergraduate students in public institutions of higher education attend two institutions which were established for blacks before 1954. It was in 1954 that the U.S. Supreme Court struck down the old separate but equal doctrine for education.

In Alabama black enrollment at traditionally white institutions also is low. And black faculty and staff are concentrated at the predominantly black institutions while white faculty and staff are generally found at the predominantly white institutions, the department found.

Delaware "has made significant progress in reducing the racial identifiability in student enrollments, faculty and staff," the department found.

In South Carolina nearly half of the black students attending four-year public colleges are enrolled in the one institution established for black students before 1954.

Videotape Shows Lederer Accepting Payoff

NEW YORK (AP) — After assuring an undercover FBI agent that he was "not a Boy Scout" but someone who "can deliver," Rep. Raymond Lederer accepted a brown paper bag containing $50,000 in cash, according to a videotape played at his Abscam trial.

The Philadelphia Democrat, the only one of six House members indicted on Abscam charges to be re-elected, contends he was entrapped into accepting the money.

The 40-minute tape played Tuesday in U.S. District Court in Brooklyn included numerous mentions of money and showed undercover FBI agent Anthony Amoroso saying, "I hope you spend it well."

Lederer, accused of accepting the money in return for promising to introduce private immigration bills on behalf of two non-existent Arab sheiks, offered several times to sponsor such legislation during the videotaped meeting Sept. 11, 1979, at a Kennedy Airport hotel.

The videotape showed Lederer saying of one sheik, "If he can't go through the regular naturalization, right, when the times comes, then I'll introduce a private bill to keep him in the country."

Lederer suggested on the videotape that an investment by the sheiks in the Port of Philadelphia would not be a bad idea, nor would donations to charities or favorable mentions in the society pages of newspapers in Philadelphia.

"Those are the things you're going to have to do," he said.

The tape also showed Lederer saying he would like to meet the top sheik: "I want some flesh and blood. I might even like the guy. He might be a solid guy. I mean, I might just like him, he might like me."

POW's Testimony Sought By Defense

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — A lieutenant general who was the highest ranking prisoner of war in Vietnam is willing to testify that the North Vietnamese refused to repatriate POWs driven mad by torture, according to attorneys for Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood.

Defense lawyers Tuesday asked the presiding judge at Garwood's court-martial to allow Lt. Gen. John P. Flynn to testify. John Lowe said Flynn would testify that mentally ill or maimed POWs were not allowed to leave the country when American prisoners were freed in 1973.

In addition, Lynne knew of three American prisoners driven insane by torture and never repatriated, Lowe said.

Col. R.E. Switzer, the presiding judge, said he would consider the request.

Garwood, 34, is on trial on charges of desertion and collaboration with the enemy during the 14 years he spent in Vietnam after his disappearance near Da Nang in 1965.

The defense has contended that the Vietnamese did not allow mentally ill prisoners to return with the other 550 American POWs during Operation Homecoming in 1973.

Switzer said early in the trial there was no basis for Flynn's testimony but that he would allow it if prosecutors brought up the subject of mentally ill POWs being retained.

Lowe said prosecutors "opened the door" for the testimony when they asked a psychiatrist about studies on POWs affected by mental disorders.

"Those profoundly, mentally ill like Bobby Garwood were not sent back," Lowe said. "That's our point in making this request."

Witness Recalls Pair's First Meeting

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — Dr. Herman Tarnower and Jean Harris hit it off immediately when they met at a dinner party 14 years ago, a defense witness testified in the trial of Mrs. Harris, who is accused of killing the millionaire developer of the Scarsdale Diet.

Leslie Jacobson testified Tuesday about the pair's first meeting in 1966.

"They really enjoyed each other. It was really the start of a wonderful relationship," Mrs. Jacobson said.

Defense lawyers are seeking to show that Mrs. Harris loved Tarnower so much that she never could have killed him in a jealous rage over another woman, as prosecutors charge.

Defense attorneys contend Tarnower, 69, was shot three times in an upstairs bedroom of his Purchase, N.Y., home March 10 as he tried to stop Mrs. Harris from killing herself.

Mrs. Jacobson said the while Mrs. Harris dated only Tarnower during the 14 years after they met, she was aware the doctor saw other women.

"She wasn't happy about it," Mrs. Jacobson said, but added that the 57-year-old former headmistress of The Madeira School for girls in McLean, Va., had "never really felt that there was another woman who was a decided threat."

The prosecution contends it was Tarnower's relationship with Lynne Tryfros, a 37-year-old divorcee, that prompted Tarnower to end his affair with Mrs. Harris and drove her to murder.

But Mrs. Jacobson said Mrs. Harris "loved him very much" and had resolved that Tarnower's other affairs were "something she was going to have to live with."

Former students of Mrs. Harris' at Madeira and at the Thomas School in Rowayton, Conn., which she once headed, also testified on her behalf.

Maidea students dedicated their 1980 yearbook to Mrs. Harris, after her arrest on murder charges.

San Antonio Man Ends Siege

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A father surrendered today at the end of a nine-hour siege in which he held 12 police tactical officers at bay with a gun while his two young children slept in the house.

Police said the incident began about 11 p.m. Tuesday when the man and his wife quarreled and he fired several shots in the air from a .357-caliber Magnum pistol.

When police arrived to investigate the gunshots, they spotted the armed man inside the house. They found his wife at a house across the street where she had taken refuge.

Research Links Stress To Illness

TORONTO (UPI) — There is increasing evidence that stress and the hassles of life increase a person's susceptibility to infectious diseases, a Cornell University pediatric professor reported this week. Dr. Robert J. Haggerty said one recent study indicated that stress somehow weakens a person's immune defenses against invading germs. In a report prepared for the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, Haggerty said he and his colleagues found in one study of streptococcal infections that about one in four infections was preceded by stressful events.

Storm Slows Travel Across North, East

A-J News Services
Icy roads and bitter cold plagued travelers from Nebraska to New England and from Arkansas to the Great Lakes today, as a new Arctic front started moving southward out of Canada into the northern tier of states.

A blustery snowstorm preceded a drastic drop in temperatures today in New York, creating hazardous driving conditions and making life miserable for morning rush-hour commuters. The blast of Canadian air dropped temperatures into the teens and below in the Great Lakes and Northeast. At least three weather-related deaths were reported.

Ohio residents woke up today to 2 to 6 inches of new snow. Up to 14 inches of snow covered some northern Ohio counties, where strong winds were expected to cause blowing, drifting and hazardous driving conditions.

From 2 to 3 inches of new snow fell in southwestern Pennsylvania. Allentown and Erie reported 4 inches. Travel advisories were posted for the western portion of the state, where many schools were closed.

Roads were snow-covered over all of Indiana today, making travel dangerous. The northwest area was the hardest hit, with many schools closed and strong winds caused drifting. Another 4 inches or more was expected in the area near Lake Michigan.

Five inches of snow had fallen by the morning rush hour and another 2 inches were expected before the storm ended today in New York, already reeling from a potential drought, a flu epidemic and thousands of unheated homes.

City officials called in 344 sanitation workers two hours early today to man snow plows and clear the way for commuters. No major traffic tieups or accidents were reported. Railroads and transit authority officials expected minor delays, but no major problems.

New York public schools were open as usual, but several suburban school systems canceled classes because of the snow. A 67-year-old man collapsed and died in his unheated Brooklyn apartment Tuesday. Officials said exposure was a factor in his death.

Two other men died in accidents on icy roads. With forecasts calling for up to 6 inches of snow in Michigan, Ohio, the Appalachian Mountains and the Middle Atlantic Seaboard, travelers advisories were posted again today.

Tennessee school children in 14 counties and three cities got the day off today because of snow and ice. Schools in Tennessee, Indiana, Illinois and Missouri had to cancel classes Tuesday.

Warm weather embraced the Southwest, with the mercury climbing to 80 degrees in Los Angeles Tuesday. But a band of bitter cold air — with temperatures ranging from below zero to the 20s — stretched across the Great Lakes into New England, making the day nearly unbearable for hundreds without heat in their homes.

New York Mayor Edward Koch opened an armory in Manhattan, complete with 700 cots and blankets, for the more than 2,000 poor and elderly residents who live in apartment buildings without heat and hot water.

With temperatures well below freezing, the city received 2,322 calls from heatless tenants. One caller who boiled water and kept her oven turned on for heat said it was "amazing people have to go through these things in this day and age."

Health officials also warned that a strain of flu, which hits elderly people particularly hard, has reached epidemic proportions in the city.

In addition, New York City officials warned water controls and possible rationing were possible unless there is a substantial amount of rainfall in the next 10 days or a significant turnaround in voluntary conservation efforts.

Freezing rain and snow made driving a nightmare across the Midlands, and police reported numerous jackknifed trucks and traffic pile-ups.

A Cincinnati, Ohio, man was killed when his car crashed on a slippery road in Clermont County. A truck went out of control on an icy hill in Hardy, Ark., struck a guard rail and overturned, killing the driver, A.L. Stoelting of Mooresville.

Indianapolis police reported more than 50 weather-related accidents, including a collision between a city bus and a semi-trailer truck that injured 15 passengers.

Icy roads in western Tennessee sent two pickup trucks, a car and another large truck slamming into each other near Dyersburg, injuring 14 people, including a 20-month-old child.

Low Of 22 Nips City

A-J News Services
More seasonal weather returned to the South Plains this morning, as temperatures dipped into the teens and 20s after several days of unusually mild readings.

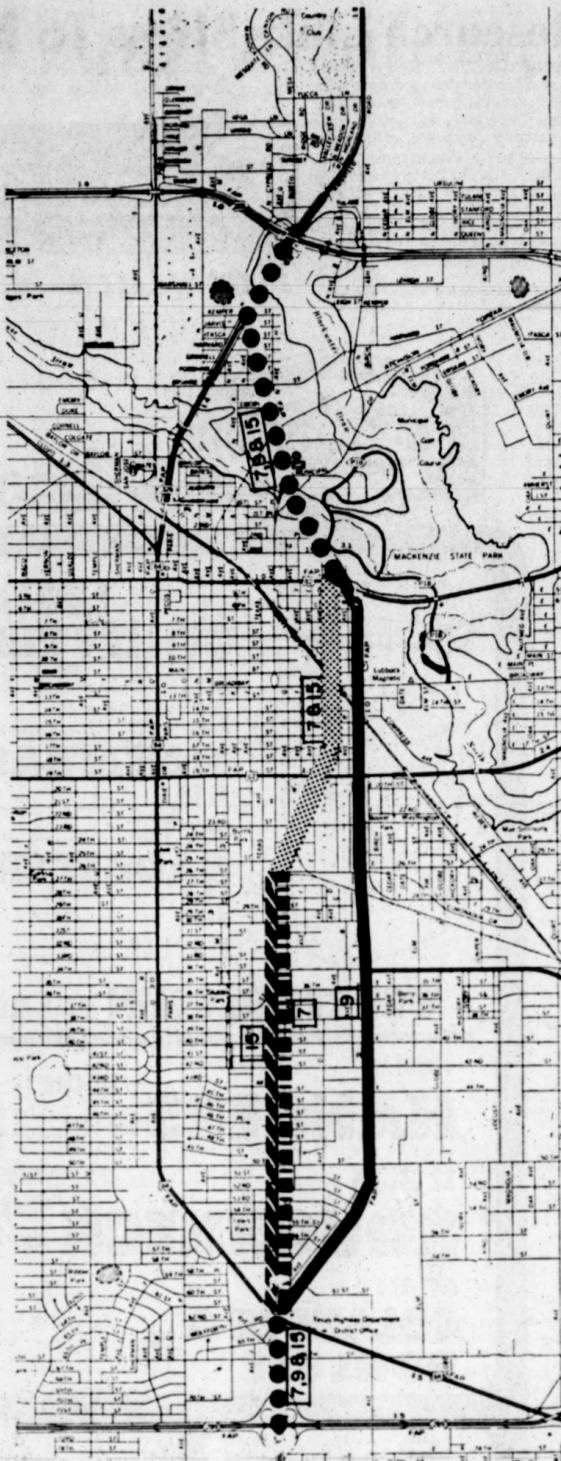

Daytime temperatures, however, were expected to remain rather pleasant until Friday, when a surge of chill air should drop maximums into the 40s.

Highs for today and Thursday were forecast to reach the middle 50s. This morning's low in Lubbock was a nippy 22 degrees. Lows across the South Plains were mainly in the 20s, although the mercury fell to 17 at the Muleshoe Wildlife Refuge and to 18 at Silverton.

Southwesterly winds of 5 to 10 mph today and tonight were expected to shift to the north at 10 to 15 mph on Thursday.

The cool weather this morning put the area well back in line with seasonal average highs and lows, which are 53 and 25 for this time of year.

Clear skies prevailed over most of Texas this morning except for extreme West Texas and South Central Texas, where low cloudiness with intermittent light rain was the rule. Most of the rain was occurring in the lower Rio Grande Valley and precipitation amounts were generally light.

PREFERRED ROUTE — The Department of Highways and Public Transportation today released this map of possible routes for Interstate 27 through Lubbock. The lines on the left, running along Avenue A and the west side of Avenue H, show the route preferred by the department.

Howard Jarvis Warns Texans Of State Government Growth

taxes prompted Californians to pass Proposition 13 more than two years ago, Jarvis said. He claimed that this state could soon face a similar situation.

"Government must be limited because if you don't have limited government, you have unlimited government," Jarvis said. "If you have unlimited government, you have unlimited taxes."

Jarvis said Americans already are paying in nearly 50 percent of their income for taxes. "The tax system is manufacturing poor people in this country," he said.

Politicians traditionally have opposed giving the people the right of initiative, Jarvis said. However, he said, elected officials are not the government — the people are.

Carr said that lobbyists also are opposed to the initiative issue because "it's easier for them to influence the legislature than the people."

Legislators already are hearing from the lobbyists in the state regarding the issue of initiative, Carr said. He is urging citizens to let their elected officials know they want the right of initiative.

Carr said that Gov. Bill Clements has an initiative proposal calling for a consti-

Eighth Nurse Held In Narcotics Theft

DENVER (AP) — A 34-year-old Denver woman has become the eighth nurse arrested in connection with a two-month investigation at several Denver hospitals where narcotics have been stolen.

Kathy K. Christensen, who had been a nurse at Presbyterian Medical Center, was arrested this week for investigation of theft of narcotics and fraud, police said.

Police have alleged that some of the nurses involved have been stealing drugs from the patients for whom they were prescribed.

ment's undertakings will be carried out." He also repeated Iran's threat to put the Americans on trial as spies if the conditions are not met.

There was no immediate public reaction by the Carter administration to Nabavi's statements. But at a farewell breakfast for Georgia congressmen at the White House this morning, President Carter reportedly expressed no optimism.

"He did not indicate there were any new developments in the last few hours that would change the frustrations of the last few months," Rep. Edgar L. Jenkins, D-Ga., told reporters afterward.

Nevertheless, U.S. officials who asked not to be identified said Tuesday the signals from Iran suggested the U.S. and Iranian governments had reached "agreement on some basic principles" to settle the hostage dispute.

On Tuesday night, White House press secretary Jody Powell reported that Algeria delivered "additional questions" from Iran Tuesday on the last American proposals. U.S. officials said the State Department sent a quick reply later Tuesday.

Iran asked about "the mechanics and procedure" of the latest U.S. proposal, as well as its substance, said one official in Washington.

The chief points being discussed between Iran and the United States apparently have been the amount of money to be put in escrow in Algeria by the United States as surety for Iranian assets frozen in U.S. banks, and how to accommodate Iran's demands for U.S. assets of the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

The Iranians had demanded that the United States deposit $14 billion in Algeria as a guarantee that they would receive their $8 billion to $14 billion in frozen assets, and an additional $10 billion to guarantee that any Pahlavi assets would be handed over to Iran.

I-27 Routes Proposed effects, division of neighborhoods, number of city residents displaced and any change in neighborhood character which might result from the selection of a particular route.

A route recommendation following the public hearing must be forwarded to state highway department headquarters in Austin, and state officials then will forward a recommendation to the Federal Highway Administration.

Lubbock city councilmen are expected to discuss the project in a meeting Jan. 22.

Maps, aerial photographs and other exhibits will be on display at the civic center from 3 p.m. to 7 p.m. prior to the Feb. 19 public hearing, Wall said.

A draft environmental impact statement and other information about the project are on file and are available for copying at department headquarters here, he said.

Despite the route selection, the fate of Interstate 27 appears to remain uncertain. The Reagan administration is decidedly cool toward further expansion of the interstate system and has even talked of a freeze on federal highway funds.

Zoners Approve Overhead Lines

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Planning and Zoning Commission this morning reversed a previous decision and granted a request to permit overhead utility lines in a public housing development at 24th Street and Frankford Avenue.

The commission had denied the request of Duane McQueen, the architect for the 96-unit project, last month after the left or on the right, and he has represented their conservative sentiments."

He indicated that Reagan and Congress are entering a period in which decisive action must be taken to restore economic stability.

"Reagan talked tough during the campaign," he said. "I'm hoping that he and his administration will be able to make substantial savings in the operation of government and reduce programs where reductions can safely be made — reduce expenditures and move toward balancing the budget."

"This would have a very wholesome psychological effect on the American public and American business."

"I think the answer to our problems is not a tax cut, but a reduction in government spending and better management of our fiscal affairs," he added.

Asked if substantial cuts in federal programs are politically feasible, Mahon said, "People feel that we should make some sacrifices, but they want the other fellow to make them."

"I hope the new administration won't be easily discouraged. As I see it, the new administration needs to show some muscle and leadership within the next few months. Otherwise, the chances of success for the new administration won't be very good."

"Not everyone is going to be pleased, but you can't run a country and keep everybody happy all the time."

Rat Discovered In Tobacco

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI) — A teacher is suing the R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. for $25,000 on grounds he bit into a plug of "Day's Work" chewing tobacco and discovered a dead rat inside.

William H. Bird said this week in his Superior Court suit that he "became violently ill and suffered extreme physical pain and mental trauma and shock" when he bit into the "partially decomposed and mummified rat corpse."

The 35-year-old teacher said he bought the plug at a store in Cusick, Wash., and consumed about a third of it before discovering the rat.

McQueen did not appear at the meeting. However, the commission agreed this morning to reconsider its decision after learning there are overhead lines already traversing the property.

The city's policy requires underground utility lines in all new subdivisions and McQueen's request is thought to be the first one for a waiver of that policy.

Apparently commission members reversed their previous decision based on the presence of overhead lines already on the property and information that overhead service would not have to be provided to an adjacent area between the housing project and Loop 289.

Following the meeting, McQueen said additional funds would have had to be found to pay for the housing project if the commission had not changed its stand.

"I don't know where the money would have come from," he said, adding he didn't know how much more costly underground utility service would have been.

He said the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development has approved a certain amount of money, based on having overhead service, to buy the housing project once it is completed.

The project still is entangled in a federal lawsuit filed by the Frenship School District to halt construction of the housing units.

The suit contends there is no room for additional children in Frenship's already overcrowded schools and school officials were not consulted about the location of the housing project.

Temple Management, which is under contract with the Lubbock Housing Authority to build the housing project, also will construct a nearly 40-unit project at 51st Street and Avenue L, McQueen said.

Actress' Death Blamed On Pills

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — British actress Rachel Roberts, who was found dead in the back yard of her home in November, committed suicide by swallowing a large dose of barbiturates, the coroner's office says.

Coroner spokesman James Kono this week said an autopsy on the 53-year-old actress revealed a substantial amount of barbiturates in her system. The cause of death was listed as "acute barbiturate intoxication."

Miss Roberts and actor Rex Harrison were married in a civil ceremony in Genoa, Italy, in 1962 and divorced in 1971. It was her second marriage and his fourth.

Miss Roberts won the British Film Academy Award for "This Sporting Life" in 1963 and "Saturday Night and Sunday Morning" in 1969. She also appeared in "The Weak and the Wicked," "Our Man in Havana" and "O Lucky Man."

She also played the dying mother in the film "The Yanks," with Richard Gere.

House Republican Raps Hance's Appointment

AJ News Services
WASHINGTON — A top House Republican argues the placement by Democrats of "two liberals and an oil man" on the powerful House Ways and Means Committee will create roadblocks to Ronald Reagan's conservative programs.

"I'm offended," Rep. Barber Conable, R-N.Y., angrily said of the appointment of Reps. Donald Pease, D-Ohio; Robert Matsui, D-Calif.; and Kent Hance, D-Texas, to the committee that handles all tax legislation.

Conable, ranking Republican on the committee, said appointment of the three will make it more difficult to reach compromises on key Reagan proposals.

Democrats have "been out of phase with the people," he said, and now have added three people designed to not add to the possibility of consensus in the committee.

Conable tagged Pease and Matsui "liberals" and said while Hance is a cattleman by trade, "anybody from Texas is a knee-jerk oil man."

Anyone with a special interest such as oil is "very likely to sell all his chips for his special interest," he said.

Hance said this morning that he felt Conable's blast stemmed from the New York congressman's reaction to Republicans' failure to gain any additional committee seats.

"I think it's amazing and amusing that I got attacked by a Republican for getting on the Ways and Means Committee," Hance said. "I think that's something a lot of Republicans in Texas don't realize — that Republicans in New York are just as anti-oil and gas and agriculture as some of the Democrats."

Addressing Conable's label of Hance as a "knee-jerk oil man," Hance said Conable was at a loss for words during a news conference called to blast the Democrats for getting three positions on the committee.

Hance said Conable termed the three Democrat appointees "a bunch of liberals," but was trapped by a reporter who pointed out that Hance is one of the more conservative members of Congress.

Hance said that notation prompted Conable to retaliate by calling him a congressman with special interest in the oil industry.

"I think it didn't show very much taste — not much class," Hance said.

Hance took the liberty of getting in his own remarks about the New York representative, saying he has always been amazed that Conable, a veteran congressman, has never bothered to learn new representatives' names, a practice Hance said other congressmen consider top priority.

Hance said Conable will address him by saying, "Hello, there," adding that he recalls being called "there" for more than two years.

Hance said his associates have been kidding about the attack and that he has been informed Conable's remarks were not anything out of the ordinary from the congressman.

In response to Conable's tagging Hance a cattleman by trade who, with the other two Democrats appointed, would block Reagan's conservative programs, the Lubbock attorney said he has in the past owned a few head of cattle and some mineral interests. He said he plans to work with the Reagan administration when "I think they're right."

Conable and other Republicans have fumed for weeks over the near 2-to-1 advantage Democrats maintain on the panel — 23 Democrats to 12 Republicans — and the 10-5 split on the equally important Rules Committee, despite GOP election gains that reduced the Democratic margin by 30 seats.

Last year Democrats had a 25-12 Ways and Means margin, two more than this year. But five Democrats left the panel through retirement or election defeat, leaving three vacancies for the Democrats to fill.

"Now they've appointed two liberals and an oil man," Conable complained.

Burglary Suspect Escapes From Police

One of two men caught burglarizing a medical building about 10:45 p.m. Tuesday leaped from a police patrol car en route to the county jail and remained at large early today.

Lubbock police officer Mark Kirkpatrick said he had stopped at 19th Street and Avenue Q when the suspect, his right arm in a cast, jumped from the back of the car. The 24-year-old man's left hand was cuffed to his belt, his seat belt was buckled and the door was locked when he managed to make his escape.

Reports state the handcuffed prisoner ran south and Kirkpatrick lost sight of him about a half block from 19th Street. Police converged in the area within minutes, but the man had not been found by early today.

The suspect was out on bond after being indicted for burglary of a habitation by a December grand jury. He, along with a 22-year-old companion, were apprehended after they were caught allegedly burglarizing The Pavilion medical building at 3719 22nd St.

Both men were apprehended in a south storage room. Loss in the break-in was estimated to be small.

The fugitive was described as a white man, about 24 years old, 5 feet, 9 inches tall, weighing 145 pounds, with light brown hair and blue eyes. He was wearing a green coat, blue pants and brown shoes. His right arm is in a cast.

In other activity, a Roswell, N.M., man told city police he was robbed of $450 by two women who kidnapped him from outside a club in the 2400-block of Fourth Street about 10:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Jeffrey E. Miller said the bandits pushed him into a car and drove to a dirt road north of Loop 289 where one of the two suspects, both wearing high heeled shoes, displayed a knife, pressed it to his side and demanded money.

Miller said the robbers emptied his wallet and then pushed him out of the vehicle. He said he walked to the Amarillo Highway near the Lubbock International Airport and hitched a ride to the police station.

The suspects were described as short, black women, both about 21. One of the females was clad in a tight blouse, blue jeans and both were wearing high heeled shoes, according to reports.

Local authorities were investigating a car fire shortly after 11 p.m. Tuesday which they feel was intentionally set.

Glendel Ray Cummings, 19, of 4419 61st St. reported a loss of $1,700 to his fire-gutted vehicle which was parked in the 4500-block of 65th Street. Reports state a partially filled gasoline container was found next to the car and the windows appeared to have been shattered.

Several persons in the area said they heard a loud explosion and one woman saw a man running from the burning Camaro. The subject was described as white, about 5 feet, 9 inches tall, between 25 and 26 years old, with light brown hair.

Two females, ages 16 and 25, both carrying small children, were arrested about 9:45 p.m. Tuesday after they allegedly attempted to steal about $200 in items from the Target store at 7302 University Ave. The suspects, police said, were spotted stuffing loot in diaper bags.

Police today were looking for a real cat burglar. And if they find the burglar they may well have located the eat.

The search began after Eva J. Sexton found her house burglarized and ransacked about 3:40 p.m. Tuesday. However, her small kitten was the only thing reported missing.

Bill M. Wischkaemper's 2510 28th St. residence reportedly was burglarized between 7:45 a.m. and 3:40 p.m. Tuesday, resulting in a loss of pistols and jewelry totaling $1,480.

A family member apparently surprised the intruder when he arrived at the house. The suspect, described as a tall, white man, fled while the member was calling police from across the street.

About $1,250 in guns and watches were taken in a break-in at 1521 24th Place, home of Billy Roy Stockinger and Finis E. Williams.

A Lubbock man and woman were jailed Tuesday morning when police found them fighting in a pickup truck at a north Lubbock motel.

The 25-year-old man was arrested on suspicion of unlawfully carrying a weapon, and the female combatant was jailed for suspicion of disorderly conduct by fighting, reports show.

When police arrived at the El Dorado Motor Hotel, 2120 Amarillo Highway, they found the 26-year-old woman on top of the man, who was in the driver's seat of a 1949 GMC pickup truck.

The woman was attempting to hit the man, who was trying to push the attacker out of the vehicle, according to reports. A second woman was sitting on the passenger side of the pickup cab, police said.

The couple was pried apart, and the woman reportedly told police the male suspect "was supposed to be her man." The woman explained that she had caught the man with the other woman,

Man Injured In Traffic Mishap

A 23-year-old Lubbock man, who was pinned in his car about 15 minutes following a traffic accident Tuesday night at Brownfield Road and Quaker Avenue, was in serious condition today at Methodist Hospital with head, arm and leg injuries.

Victor Gene Rotramel of 5602 48th St. was freed from the wreckage by Lubbock firemen using the "Jaws of Life" rescue tool.

Rotramel was injured about 10 p.m.

when his car was involved in a head-on collision with a vehicle driven by Eddie William Goodgion, 59, of 4406 16th St. Goodgion was in satisfactory condition today at Methodist Hospital.

Rotramel's three passengers were treated at Methodist Hospital for minor injuries and later released.

Witnesses said Rotramel's car was traveling southwest on Brownfield Road and Goodgion's van was headed north-east when the vehicle collided.

Jurors Debate Sentence For Williams

By KIM COBB

Avalanche-Journal Staff
 Jurors at noon today were still deliberating in an attempt to agree on punishment for Joe David Williams, whom they had earlier convicted of voluntary manslaughter.

Williams was found guilty Tuesday night in the fatal shooting of Willis B. Sheppard in September.

Presiding Judge William Shaver recessed the jury for lunch shortly noon, instructing the group to return to their deliberations after the break.

Williams was tried on the first degree felony charge of murder, but after deliberating three hours, 44 minutes the 140th District Court jury found the defendant guilty of the lesser included offense of voluntary manslaughter.

Defense counsel had argued that Williams acted in self-defense or in defense of a third party.

Jurors will return to the courtroom this morning for the punishment phase of Williams' trial. He faces a sentence of two to 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Williams admitted from the witness stand Tuesday afternoon that he shot Sheppard, but told the jury that he killed the man to protect his girlfriend.

Williams, 46, of 2805 Ivory Ave., Apt. 5, was charged with the Sept. 28 shooting death of Sheppard after the man's body was found in a muddy alley outside Williams' apartment. A Lubbock Police Department detective testified Tuesday that he arrested Williams after the defendant told him that he had shot Sheppard.

"A man lying dead in a puddle on a muddy street," prosecutor Travis Ware said in closing arguments before the seven-woman, five-man jury. "This is not Dodge City — it's Lubbock, Texas."

"You can only use deadly force if you are attacked with deadly force — that is the law."

Williams' former girlfriend, Sharlene Zethelnee, testified that Williams fired a gun at Sheppard to prevent Sheppard from dragging her out of the apartment she was sharing with Williams at the time of the incident. Sheppard had come to the apartment to collect an old electricity bill, but came into the apartment without being invited, she testified.

Defense attorney Kevin Hart argued that if his client had not shot Sheppard, that Sheppard probably would have been on trial for murder this week — and that either Williams or Miss Zethelnee could have been the victim.

That's the way Williams saw the situation, he told the jury.

Hart disputed Ware's argument that Williams should have called the police instead of shooting Sheppard, adding that his client simply didn't have time to hunt a telephone and call for help.

Murder Suspect Posts Bond

Samantha Davidson, co-defendant in the execution-style killing of Richard Grier Luster, was released from the Lubbock County Jail Tuesday after District Judge John R. McFall drastically reduced her bond from $250,000 to $10,000.

Vernon Ray Gilmore, charged along with the 32-year-old Mrs. Davidson with the killing in early November, also had his bond reduced from $250,000 to $25,000. However, a Lubbock County Jail spokesman said early today that jailers had not received a notice of bond reduction for Gilmore and that there had been no attempt to release the man on bond.

McFall, in a bond reduction hearing Monday, ruled the original bonds were excessive and ordered the reductions.

The suspects were charged Nov. 12 with Luster's death but they were not taken into custody until Dec. 20 when they attempted to cross the Canadian border into the United States at Blaine, Wash.

California Firm Does Booming Business In Cheerleader Pompons

FRESNO, Calif. (UPI) — Does every little girl want to become a cheerleader or pep girl?

Matt Offen came to believe so, pretty much through happenstance, and his Valley Decorating Co. churned out 2 million plastic pompons (not pom poms, as commonly believed) last year and expects to sell twice that number in 1981 at $6.50 a pair.

Offen, 59, is president of Valley Decorating, largest manufacturer of commercial Christmas decorations in the nation and a consistent winner of the Grand Prize award for floats at the Pasadena Parade of Roses during the 1950s and 1960s.

The company nearly went under in 1973 when President Nixon, because of that year's energy crisis, asked that lights be darkened at Christmas time to conserve power. That put a damper on the decoration business and Offen had to reduce his full-time staff of 900 to himself and two others.

But he recovered and business was booming three years ago when his top vice-president, Milt Sanders, came to him with a handful of shredded plastic left over from the firm's float materials operation.

"Do you know what this is?" Offen remembers Sanders asking him.

"No, what?" Offen countered, intrigued.

"It's a pompon," Sanders said.

"Here we were, throwing away thousands of pounds of plastic," Offen recalls now.

The two developed some sample plastic pompons and took them to the National Sporting Goods Show in Houston in January 1978. Offen remembers there wasn't much exhibitor interest but when the show ended and all the booths began selling off their samples, the young daughters of exhibitors flocked to his booth begging to buy the pompons.

Tax Action To Be Debated

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The City Council will consider giving disabled persons a $10,000 homestead tax exemption when the council meets at 9:30 a.m. Thursday.

If approved, disabled persons who own their own homes and qualify for benefits under Federal Old Age, Survivors and Disability Insurance could qualify for a $10,000 reduction in the market value of their homes for tax purposes.

An identical exemption already is offered by the Lubbock Independent School District as mandated by state law. If the same 325 persons who qualify for the school exemption apply for the city exemption, city revenues would be reduced by $21,450 a year. The exemption would become effective on this year's taxes.

As with the school exemption, persons over age 65 could qualify only for the over-65 exemption or the disabled exemption, but not for both.

Also at the meeting, the council will hold a final public hearing at 1:30 p.m. on the expenditure of $3.48 million in federal Community Development funds.

At its last meeting, the council tentatively agreed to accept the city staff recommendation on how to spend the coming year's allocation and discarded changes in that recommendation made by the Community Development Advisory Committee.

Most controversial and most costly of the disputed projects are a proposed overpass at East 34th Street and Quirt Avenue and the widening of East 19th Street between Quirt Avenue and the Loop.

The staff recommended $300,000 in CD funds combined with bond funds to pay for engineering work on the proposed $9 million overpass and recommended the allocation of $230,000 for design work and plans on the East 19th Street project. However, CDAC members deleted funding for both projects because there is no guaranteed source of funding to complete the roadwork.

But council members tentatively approved CD funding for both projects, with a stipulation that CD funds not be spent on planning for the overpass until it is approved in a bond election or another funding source is found to complete the work.

The council also will consider the request of the Lubbock Industrial Development Corporation for approval of the issuance of $10 million in industrial revenue bonds to improve the facilities of Magnolia Seed Company. If approved, the bond issue will be the second approved by the council since the program began.

A representative of the Cultural Affairs Council will make recommendations to the council at the meeting on how $26,875 earmarked for arts projects should be spent. The council contracts with the Cultural Affairs Council to receive and evaluate applications for grants funded by half a cent of the four-cent hotel-motel tax.

The council also is scheduled to consider appropriating $14,726 for the paving of East Kemper Street in Northeast Lubbock. Residents living along the street have complained large trucks and commercial traffic travels on the caliche street, causing a safety and dust problem.

Council members also will get an update on downtown redevelopment plans and will discuss proposed state legislation filed since November.

Data Withheld On Registration

By MARY ALICE ROBBINS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

It apparently will be several months before the American public learns how successful the country's current draft registration of 18 year olds has been.

U.S. Postal Service officials are in charge of the registration effort, but one local official said he has been instructed to remain mum on the subject.

Don Jones, the man in charge of this area's registration process, said Tuesday that no statistical information regarding the draft sign-up can be released.

During the first mass registration in July, Jones had kept an unofficial running count of the number of local registrants. But that information no longer can be provided, Jones told The Avalanche-Journal.

Jones said he received instructions this past weekend from the Postal Service's headquarters in Washington, D.C., not to discuss the number of young men who have been registered.

Those instructions gave no reason for the withholding of information, Jones said. However, he said he believes the Postal Service wants its employees "to stay out of the limelight" in the registration effort.

"We're not taking a stand for or against the Selective Service," Jones said. "We're just in the program, the place to register."

Jones said the Postal Service's role is to provide the registration cards to young men and to help them if they have any questions regarding the cards.

All information regarding the Selective Service and the draft registration is printed in brochures made available to registrants, Jones said.

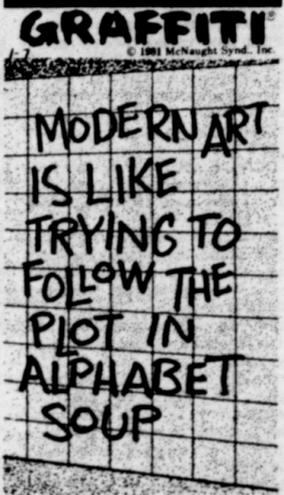

"That's all the information we have," he added. "We don't know anything about the Selective Service."

The Postal Service also wants to avoid having one of its employees release inaccurate information regarding the draft registration, Jones said.

He noted the difficulty in trying to compile local statistics on the number of registrants. In Lubbock, Jones said, young men can sign up at any one of five post offices, which return all of their registration cards to him. About 80 post offices in this area also return their registration information to Jones' office, he said.

Reports from each station will be turned in twice during the registration period which continues through Jan. 14, Jones noted.

Postal employees also have been instructed to avoid any arguments with the men they are registering. "We're not going to get into any arguments with

Home Poisonings Declining

By JOE GULICK
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Little 4-year-old Jimmy may very well become a tragic statistic. When he was sick a few months ago, his mother encouraged him to take his pills by telling him they were candy, thereby establishing in his mind that brightly colored pills are candy.

Jimmy has known from an early age that candy is good and he is happy to take every opportunity to get candy. The final element in the potential tragedy is that Jimmy's mother is careless about the location of the family's medicine and keeps it in a drawer that Jimmy can reach.

One of these days, when his mother has to answer the phone or when she is preparing supper and thinks he is playing in the living room, Jimmy may remember where the "candy" is and go in to help himself.

that most poisoning accidents occur in the afternoon between 4 p.m. and 6 p.m. when parents are relaxing or preparing supper.

Because it is virtually impossible to watch a child every minute — especially if the child is an active one — the only alternative is to put dangerous materials out of reach of a child.

To some parents, this means strongly telling the child not to drink out of any bottles in a certain cabinet and putting all medicines in the medicine cabinet where they should be safe.

This may not work, however. Telling the kid to stay out of a cabinet may only make the child more curious than ever to see what is in there that could be so interesting. Also, a toddler's memory can be pretty short sometimes. As far as stashing medicines in a medicine cabinet goes, it may not be getting the potentially dangerous materials out of reach. As many young mothers can testify, some children even as young as 2 years old can be agile climbers.

The BBB booklet suggests examining every room in the house for two things — potential poisons and a storage space no child could possibly reach. For safety's sake, it would be worth the time and trouble to install a simple lock in a storage cabinet.

Children are great imitators and parents should remember that any actions they do in front of a child may be imitated later. Parents who are taking medications would do well to avoid taking them in front of a young child.

Never put potentially dangerous materials in containers other than the ones they came in. One brand of furniture polish is colored red and some parents have stored that polish in pop bottles.

Gasoline, kerosene and turpentine should all be kept in closed metal containers and out of the house.

Some cleaning products that are lemon-scented can confuse a child even further. The youngster may think he has found a lemon-flavored treat.

Speaking of flavors, don't think a toddler may take just a sip of a bad-tasting furniture polish, spit it out because of the taste and not drink any more. It doesn't work that way and kids have been known to eat Drano — not just a few crystals, but a significant amount. Once they start eating or drinking something,

Consumer Update

In many home poisonings, the tragedy can occur in just a couple of minutes. There are so many potential poisons in a household, like medicines, cleaning products, and even houseplants, that it may not take an unattended child long to swallow a dangerous substance.

The encouraging news is that accidental home poisonings of children under 5 are decreasing. Brought about in part by "child-proof" tops on bottles of medicine and cleaning items, a 60 percent decrease in the death rate of accidental poisoning among young children was recorded between 1968 and 1977.

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. reported in its "Statistical Bulletin" that in 1977 — the last year for which there are figures available — 94 children died from accidental poisonings. Of that number 57 died from drugs and medicines and 37 died from other substances.

A Better Business Bureau booklet called "Tips on Poison Prevention in the Home" reports that a recent survey of 119 hospital emergency rooms showed

Examiner Cuts Bell Rate Hike Request

AUSTIN (AP) — Ma Bell is entitled to only a nickel a month more from most residential customers in Texas, not the $1.25 monthly hike the company wants, according to a Public Utility Commission hearing examiner.

Phil Ricketts' 55-page report, issued Tuesday, chopped Southwestern Bell down to a $114.3 million increase, compared to the $326.3 million the company said it needs to meet inflation. The report undercut the $152 million the PUC staff said Bell should get.

The three-member commission will consider the report on Jan. 28.

Ricketts recommended the five-cent monthly increase for residential customers in cities such as Alvin, Big Spring, and Denison, as well as in the state's largest cities, including Houston, Dallas, San Antonio, Fort Worth, Waco and Corpus Christi.

Larger increases, however, were proposed for residential customers in smaller cities. Ricketts said customers in Albany, Alpine, Cameron, San Diego and other small cities should pay 55 cents more per month. Household customers in cities the size of Beeville, Center, El Campo, Vernon, Alice, Huntsville, Kingsville and others should pay 30 cents more per month, according to Ricketts.

"The $114 million is a reasonable amount," Ricketts said. "Obviously, Bell felt they deserved a good deal more."

The Texas Municipal League said Bell needed only a $68.2 million increase.

But Paul Roth, Southwestern Bell vice president, called the examiner's report "inadequate" and promised to seek significant adjustments and increases in the final order.

In a prepared statement, Roth said, "We are deeply disturbed that the recommendation fails to recognize the extent of our revenue needs to continue meeting the growth of Texas and to maintain the high quality of service required."

Bell posted the required bond and raised rates in November after the hearing began. The interim rates were based on the PUC staff recommendation.

Ricketts said the difference between the interim rates and the rates he recommended should be refunded, with interest, to customers during a three-month period. That proposal also is subject to commission approval.

The long-awaited report, prepared after a six-week hearing, recommended a 14.1 percent return on equity for Bell. The company sought 16.8 percent. Ricketts also cut $11.5 million from the amount Southwestern Bell pays to AT&T under a license contract.

Ricketts also wants Bell to do away with the current 50 cent per month charge for an extension, which covered the wiring cost.

He recommended a 25-cent increase in monthly "instrument charges" for phones owned by Bell. The company wanted a 50-cent increase, up to $1.50 per phone.

The end of the extension charge would offset the 25-cent hike in the instrument charge, Ricketts said.

The report offers a compromise on Bell's request for an increase in the cost of directory assistance calls. The company wanted to cut the number of free information calls to five per month, with a 25 cent charge for each additional call.

Ricketts said the limit should remain at the current 10. However, he said the cost of additional calls should go to 25 cents from the current 20 cents.

The company sought no increases in long distance or WATS service, and Ricketts recommended no increase.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBEK

Since the holidays, Mother has been looking a little peaked. It's nothing you can put your finger on — just a lot of dragging from chair to chair and heavy sighing.

When I saw her doctor at a social gathering, I mentioned mother to him and he suggested we run a G.S. series on her.

"What's a G.S. series?"

"I asked."

"Garage Sale," he said, popping a cheese puff into his mouth.

"Run an old ice cream freezer before her eyes and say, 'I'd let this go for a buck,' or a chipped candy dish that you'd be willing to sacrifice for a quarter and see how she reacts."

"That's going to make her well?"

"I've seen women at death's door who hiked three miles in the dark to get dubs on last year's calendar and a box of melted candle stubs. It's worth a shot."

The next time I saw Mother, I mentioned I had a pair of cuff links with scorpions on them, a lawn chair that wouldn't open, a drinking glass with a picture of Johnny Bench on it, a jewel box that played Happy Days Are Here Again, and four milk-stained bibs.

Mother's blank face slowly came alive. Her droopy shoulders straightened, her limp hands became clenched and she stood up and announced, "That sounds like the beginning of a garage sale."

From that moment on, she became a blur. She moved the cars from the garage to the street, hung lines for display, carted card tables out of closets and attics, posted signs, ran ads, orchestrated the comings and goings of merchandise and barked orders like a dock worker unloading the QE II.

It was like watching a transformation in slow motion. Her steps quickened, her cheeks flushed with excitement, her humor was restored, her wit sharpened, and I would have been willing to bet this frail woman would never have been able to carry a grill otterisier under her arm a week ago.

The day of the sale was her finest hour. "No, dear, we don't do alterations." "You want that stuffed hamster head or not? I got three waiting." "Ask yourself, if the boots didn't have a hole in them, would you be able to buy them for 50 cents?" "We don't deliver. Who do you think we are, Saks?" "We call that a husband and put him down, he's not for sale. He's just resting."

I asked the doctor if all G.S. series were that successful.

He said, "If a woman doesn't respond to a garage sale, very frankly, I'm not too optimistic about her."

Make Fireplace Fuel Efficient, Experts Say

NEW YORK (Special) — To prevent your dollars from going up the chimney, follow these tips for a more fuel-efficient fireplace, culled from a 34-page section in the current "Family Circle" magazine:

• Burn logs with the highest heat value, such as seasoned hardwoods that have dried for six months to a year. Hickory, oak, walnut and maple are the best woods for your fuel dollars. Hickory, for example, delivers twice as much heat as pine.

• Burn your fire on firebrick instead of a grate. With a grate you lose the added benefit of ashes which insulate the hearth and help start later fires more easily.

• When the fire is burning, open the damper only enough to provide a good draw. A wide-open damper makes the wood burn faster than needed.

• To lessen the flow of warm air up the chimney, close all doors and warm-air ducts entering the room where the fireplace is located. Also open a window near the fireplace to make sure the fire is getting enough air to burn properly without drawing in too much of your home's heated air.

• Consider installing a thermal glass door enclosure (which starts as low as $100) on your fireplace. Thermal glass doors save you more energy than conventional metal screens by acting as a barrier to keep the heated inside air of your room from escaping up the chimney once the fire is out. They also radiate heat well.

For more information, send for the free booklet, "Heating with Wood," by mailing a stamped, self-addressed business-size envelope to the Fireplace Institute, 111 East Wacker Dr., Chago, Ill. 60611.

Add a sprinkle of nutmeg to buttered carrots or string beans for a totally new flavor.

DEAR ABBY:

'Marriage Encounter' Praised

DEAR ABBY: Many letters in your column deal with marital problems that seem to be caused by lack of communication. We'd like to suggest an inexpensive, practical and loving way to learn to communicate. The experience is called "Marriage Encounter."

During the last 12 years, over a million couples have gone on a "weekend," as it is called. It lasts from Friday through Sunday afternoon. A six-to-eight-member husband and wife team that includes either a rabbi and his spouse, a minister and his spouse, or a priest, presents a series of talks on how to restore life, excitement, love and trust as well as honesty and openness to a marriage.

Abby, the world offers instant divorce as a solution to the problems of communication and commitment. Marriage Encounter showed us a doorway to happiness that we thought was found only in fairy tales.

JON AND MARY, MONTCLAIR, N.J.

DEAR ABBY: We've been going round and around about something at our house, and you've been elected to settle it. Our 17-year-old daughter is going with a very nice 18-year-old. Rick is polite and respectable, and not wild like some, but, Abby, his jeans are so tight it is downright indecent! It is embarrassing for me to look at him. My husband agrees with me that something should be left to the imagination.

We told our daughter to tell Rick to get a larger size, but she says there's nothing wrong with tight jeans — all the

(and mine), which, I confess, was not restricted exclusively to food. He had only an hour, so he never had time to take his socks off. It got to be a standing joke with us.

Now 11 years and three children later, nothing has changed. Who has time to bother with socks? Besides, impromptu rendezvous are usually the best.

SOCK IT TO ME IN PITTSBURGH

DEAR SOCK: On the other hand (or foot), to some, anticipation is more enjoyable than realization.

DEAR ABBY: I have had sufficient reports in praise of Marriage Encounter to know that it's well worth recommending. Age is not a factor. Couples who have been married 30 years and longer have benefited along with those in their 20s.

It is not a cure for deeply troubled marriages — it's a revitalization for marriages that have become stale, unromantic or dull.

Cheese, Tomatoes, Tuna Basics Make Tasty Afterschool Treats

ROSEMONT, Ill. (Special) — Tick, tock. Watch the clock. Soon youngsters will burst through the door asking for something to eat. For a quick supper, it can be soup and sandwiches.

That's an old-fashioned remedy for hunger pangs and an ailing budget. Better times may dictate fancier fare, but with rising food prices forecast, it's back to simple, basic foods. And they're foods that taste good and are nourishing, too.

Just think, you can cup the soup bowl in both hands and warm your fingers even before sipping the hearty, delicious nourishment it contains. Then, after a few mouthfuls you can start nibbling on a sandwich and alternate between that and the soup. If you've been really cold and hungry, this is just the ticket for giving you a rosy-hued look at life.

With convenience foods, both soup and sandwiches can be made quickly. Sauté onion and green pepper in butter, then thicken with flour to start the soup. Finish it with condensed beef broth, milk, cheese and pureed stewed tomatoes (using the blender for pureeing).

Tuna salad, extended with vegetables and hard-cooked eggs, is held together with dairy sour cream.

CHEESEY TOMATO CHOWDER

Yield: approx. 6 cups
1/4 cup (1/2 stick) butter
1/2 cup chopped onion
1/4 cup chopped green pepper

1/4 cup all-purpose flour
1/2 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. pepper
1/4 tsp. oregano
1 can (10 1/2 oz.) condensed beef broth
1 1/3 cups milk
1 cup (4 oz.) shredded Cheddar cheese
1 can (16 oz.) stewed tomatoes

Sauté onion and green pepper in butter in a medium-sized saucepan until tender, about 5 minutes. Stir in flour and seasonings until smooth. Remove from heat and gradually stir in condensed broth and milk. Heat to boiling, stirring constantly. Boil and stir 1 minute. Remove from heat. Stir in half of the cheese at a time; stir until completely melted before adding remaining cheese. Place tomatoes and liquid in blender container; cover. Puree until smooth. Stir tomato mixture into soup. Heat to serving temperature; do not boil. Serve with Toasty Tuna Sandwiches.

TOASTY TUNA SANDWICHES

4 servings
1 can (6 1/2 oz.) tuna in water, drained and flaked

1/2 cup cooked green peas
1/4 cup finely chopped celery
1/4 cup finely chopped onion
2 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
2 tbsps. pickle relish
1 1/2 tbsps. prepared Dijon-style mustard
3/4 tsp. salt
1/8 tsp. pepper
1/3 cup dairy sour cream
4 large English muffins, split, toasted and buttered

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Combine tuna, peas, celery, onion, eggs, pickle relish, mustard, salt and pepper. Gently fold in sour cream. Divide mixture evenly among 4 English muffin halves. Cover with top halves. Bake 12 to 15 minutes or until heated through. Serve immediately with Cheesy Tomato Chowder.

Some losers, like death, are inevitable. However, controlling when you are going to lose a trick can make an important difference to your contract. Consider this hand from a Swiss Team match at the recent Fall North American Championships, held in Lancaster, Pa.

The bidding followed a similar course at the two tables. West's jump overall was of the weak variety that has become virtually standard, and North's hand was not good enough to act immediately. Since North had not yet bid, South's reopening double was for takeout, not penalties. North judged well when he valued his hand as worth a shot at game.

The ten of diamonds was led at both tables, and the early play was identical. Both declarers won the queen of diamonds in dummy and both made the percentage play of a low trump to the eight. Then they parted ways.

At one table declarer continued by crossing back to dummy with the ace of diamonds to lead a second spade. East rose with the ace, led a club to West's ace and ruffed the diamond return. Eventually, East collected a heart trick for down one.

The other declarer realized that there was a possibility of a diamond ruff. Since he had to lose a club anyway, he immediately led the king. That had a dramatic effect on the outcome of the hand.

West won the ace of clubs and continued with a diamond. Declarer won the ace in dummy and led a trump, and the defenders were helpless. East rose with the ace, but he had no way to reach his partner to secure a diamond ruff. Declarer was able to hold his losers to one in each suit except diamonds.

By playing a club early, declarer severed communications between the defenders' hands. The technical name for this play is a "Scissors Coup."

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics for this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. State Board Opens Hearings On Insurance Rates

AUSTIN (UPI) — Consumer representatives and spokesmen for insurance companies are in the capital to testify before the State Board of Insurance as it decides whether to consider investment profits in setting insurance rates.

Hearings will be held today and Thursday. The board has previously considered investment income only indirectly in setting rates for property and casualty insurance, primarily auto and homeowners insurance.

When companies request rate increases, the board applies a formula that considers losses on policies and the costs of setting the policies, but not the income from investing the premiums. That income has been considered in setting the profit margin of 5 percent before federal income taxes.

Recently, however, that policy has come under question, primarily because high interest rates have made investment profits quite high in some cases.

The Texas Consumers Association has been one of the opponents of the formula.

"In 1979 insurance companies made $9.97 billion on investment income by investing our premiums," argues Rebecca Lightsey of the association.

"Massachusetts is the only state that really looks at investment income. If Texas computed the rates the way Massachusetts does, it would save 13 percent on our premium dollars."

The insurance industry argues that investment income is included in the formula. If it were not, the companies argue, the 5 percent profit margin would have to be much higher.

"It's modest, and we haven't been able to attain it," said Clint Dare of the Insurance Information Institute.

In September, the board surprised the automobile insurance industry by refusing a rate increase request for the first time.

W.P. Daves Jr., chairman of the board, said when the request was refused that "the record does not contain adequate information from which the board can set a rate that balances the equities."

Daves noted that inflation had increased the cost of automobile repairs, but had also increased interest rates on the companies' investments.

Solon Suggests Closing Of Two Universities

AUSTIN (UPI) — A Panhandle legislator has suggested that the state "liquidate" Texas' two historically black universities and integrate their students and faculty into other state-supported institutions.

Rep. Foster Whaley, D-Pampa, said

Tuesday he plans to file a bill which will shut down Texas Southern University and Prairie View A&M University and compel the students and faculty to "integrate" into majority-white state colleges.

"It's hard for me to believe that the attorney general and some of the black community would want to continue those schools," Whaley said.

Integration of the black students, he said, "will improve the educational level of black people and help cut down on crime."

"An educated black person has a lot of opportunities." The bill would "liquidate the facilities and use the funds from them for the integration into ... almost all-white schools," Whaley said.

He said he opposes the additional $20 million that the Legislative Budget Board has recommended for the two schools. The recommendation came after Attorney General Mark White warned that failure to appropriate more money for the schools could cause federal lawsuits and cutoff of federal funds to higher education in the state.

"If we're really serious about integration, they (blacks) should be blended into other schools and given incentives," Whaley said.

The bill, which Whaley said would remedy past discrimination and eliminate a dual system of higher education in Texas, would offer economic incentives to black students, such as free tuition and up to $1,000 in scholarships. Black faculty would be integrated into other schools throughout the state, he said.

If his plan is adopted, Whaley said it could be implemented as early as 1982 at Prairie View A&M, and if successful, continued at Texas Southern.

Students and faculty of the two historically black institutions would be phased out and absorbed into state-supported schools which have static or declining enrollments. After four years of the phasing process, the facilities would go up for sale.

Whaley said the Legislative Budget Board's recommendations "sound like they came out of a Jim Crow decision I heard decades ago. They're trying to perpetuate separate, but equal facilities. We're in America, we're not in Nazi Germany."

Whaley said his plan would satisfy federal officials and "save the state of Texas millions of dollars by doing away with two universities the state can do without."

Rep. Wilhemina Delco, D-Austin, said she will "unalterably oppose" Whaley's plan. Miss Delco, chairman of the Committee on Higher Education, said "to dismantle the vestiges of Jim Crowism, I don't think you need to do away with two institutions. I think both institutions serve a need and have a constituency."

She noted there are a higher percentage of non-black students at Prairie View A&M and Texas Southern than the percentage of blacks at most other state supported schools.

Heart Association Questions Dallas Promotion Campaign

DALLAS (UPI) — Promoters trying to bolster their pocketbooks while giving nominal support to the Heart Association have received a terse "no thanks" from the charity, but will go ahead with their campaign to convince the world that "Dallas has heart."

Innovator Christopher Harris of Los Angeles announced the slogan Tuesday in a news conference. He said it was part of a civic pride campaign and that the declaration would appear on T-shirts, coffee mugs, wind breakers, bath towels and ash trays put up for sale.

He was doing fine until he mentioned part of the proceeds would go to the Heart Association, headquartered in Dallas.

As the Heart Association's Joe Dowling put it, he was at the news conference "to see what they were peddling" since his office was not sure what the promoters had in mind. When he found out, he was not interested.

"What this really amounts to is poor coordination on their part in assuming because money is being given no questions would be asked," Dowling said.

"We are going to ask them to hold off on making any statements concerning the American Heart Association until they coordinate it properly through us."

Ed Potash, promoter of Dallas Cowboy Cheerleaders items, and Harvey Cox, involved with the marketing of J.R. products, only wanted to contribute a percentage of the profits to the Heart Association. Their plan would have involved no endorsement or participation by the Heart Association, only acceptance of the money.

But after hearing the Heart Association was giving them the cold shoulder, Cox, Potash, Harris and graphic designer Bill Barth decided to abandon their charitable venture.

"If we want to give (to the association) we will do so, but I don't care to ring you up and tell you," Harris said. "I am dissatisfied with what happened" at the news conference.

"We don't want to align or seek endorsement. We know what we are doing."

He also promised the campaign will go forward, with or without the Heart Association.

Barth's design of the slogan has "Dallas" in all capital letters with stars in the middle of both letter A's. "Heart" is not written, but is pictured as a bright red heart.

The lettering in the slogan was designed specifically for Dallas, Barth said.

"The letters are bold because Dallas is bold. The A's in Dallas are written with stars because Dallas 'is a star of the world.'"

Harris conceded, however, that although Dallas has heart, the city is not necessarily unique.

His group is promoting similar slogans — all with bright red hearts — in 20 other cities, including Houston, New Orleans, New York, Los Angeles, San Francisco, St. Louis and Boston.

Tips Given To Avert Poisonings At Home

they may keep it up until they do some permanent damage. Don't throw away dangerous materials in household trash containers. It is a simple matter for a child to spot something interesting in a trash can, reach in and sample the contents.

Take the dangerous items out to the dumpster and dispose of them there. Though most poisonings occur with children, they can occur with adults as well. Such things as storage and use of chemicals can cause accidental poisonings. Food and medicines should always be kept separate from cleaning products. Never store an oven cleaner next to food, for example.

Liquid bleach and ammonia are both effective cleaning aids when used by themselves, but if they are mixed, they combine chemically to produce dangerous chlorine gas. Use cleaning fluids separately unless the label says it is safe to combine with other fluids.

Read the labels carefully on potentially dangerous materials. This simple action can save needless trouble later.

A substance called syrup of ipecac will induce vomiting and should be kept on hand for possible emergencies. However, it should be administered only on the advice of a medical expert. Different poisons require different forms of treatment.

If a poisoning or suspected poisoning has occurred, call the poison center at Methodist Hospital, 793-4353 or 793-4366. The numbers should be posted near all telephones. The staffers at the center will need to know what caused the poisoning, so be prepared to describe the material causing it. If possible, have the container on hand in the event it may be necessary to read contents over the phone.

Injured Woman Awarded $1 Million In Damages

AUSTIN (AP) — A cleaning woman, who suffered such severe injuries in a traffic collision that she said she felt "like an old hag" at 32, won a $1,039,500 judgment today in the Texas Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court affirmed lower court judgments awarding Marilyn Ansley damages from Armellini Express Lines of Florida and one of the company's semi-trailer drivers, William Duckett, as a result of a wreck in Montgomery County. Near midnight on March 27, 1977, Mrs. Ansley's pickup truck hit the trailer at 45 mph as Duckett was trying to back it off Farm 149 into Green Acres Farm at Magnolia.

Court records show the cab was in the northbound lane, and the trailer was blocking the southbound lane in which Mrs. Ansley was traveling. Her pickup truck went partially underneath the trailer, and she was trapped there for an hour.

John J. Casey Leading Candidate To Head Braniff

DALLAS (UPI) — The heads of financially crippled Braniff Airways are choosing a successor to the man who made the airline great, hoping now to find someone who can make the airline stable.

In meetings today the board was expected to name John J. Casey to succeed 15-year manager of the airline Harding L. Lawrence.

Casey, who is vice chairman of Braniff and brother of American Airlines chairman Albert V. Casey, was considered the leading candidate to ascend to the post of president and chief executive officer.

Lawrence announced his surprise retirement last week.

Casey, who joined Braniff in 1968 after a stint with Seaboard World Airlines in New York, reportedly already has selected a management team.

Company sources said Casey's new management team would include Neal J. Robinson, former vice president of finance and control, who would become executive vice president for marketing. Robinson resigned from Braniff two weeks ago and accepted a position with U.S. Telephone, a Dallas-based long distance telephone company.

Also on Casey's team are Bill Huskins, senior vice president of engineering and maintenance, who becomes executive vice president of operations, and Edson (Ted) Beckwith, promoted from senior vice president of financial services to executive vice president of finance.

During Lawrence's tenure, Braniff evolved from a primarily regional air carrier into a nationally competitive air line with international routes. But airline deregulation, a slumping economy and escalating fuel prices forced Braniff to cut back on unprofitable routes.

Braniff, the nation's eighth largest airline, also suffered operating losses totaling more than $83 million during the last three quarters.

Officials Silent On Registration

anybody," Jones said. If a registration card is returned with an unfiled blank, a postal worker will ask if the registrant meant to leave out that information. If the answer is yes, no more questions will be asked, Jones said.

Postal workers also have been instructed to request some form of identification from the men they register. However, Jones said, if the registrant does not want to provide any identification, the employee will not press the issue.

"If they say they're Mickey Mouse, we can't prove they're not," he said.

"We'll just accept their card." Although he declined to discuss any statistics on the sign-up effort, Jones did say registration had continued at a fairly steady rate Tuesday at the main post office.

Reports from the city's four other postal stations had not been received by Tuesday, Jones said.

Body Of Missing Officer Found

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP) — Police Detective Ray Tate dropped from sight when he went to investigate the disappearance of a 22-year-old machinist. A day later, a farmer stumbled on a patch of blood-soaked soil and found Tate's body and two others stuffed in a huge tractor tire, authorities say.

The man Tate was seeking still is missing, officials said after the bodies were found Tuesday.

Police have arrested a suspect in the case, 37-year-old Thomas W. Simmons of rural Van Buren, who had been jailed in the 1970s for kidnapping, theft and assault. Simmons, held on four complaints of kidnapping and one of capital murder — which applies in case of more than one death or the death of a policeman — was arrested Tuesday at his job as a laborer.

The arrest came a short time after Simmons went to a branch bank and deposited a check written on the account of the missing man, Larry Price, according to Wayne Hicks, assistant Van Buren police chief.

Simmons was traced after a bank bookkeeper, Hicks' wife, Wanda, noted his license number when he went to the main bank to try to get the check back, officials said.

Besides Tate, 34, the victims were identified as Price's wife, Jawana, 21, of Fort Smith, and Holly Gentry, 28, of Alma. All three had been shot in the head, police said. Tate was bound with his own handcuffs and Gentry with a small white cord, officials said.

Police initially believed that four bodies had been found, but they later said the search for Price, 22, a Fort Smith machinist, was continuing.

The bodies, found on an Arkansas River bottom farm near Van Buren, were sent to the medical examiner's office in Little Rock.

Farmer Clyde McClure found the bodies while working on some farm equipment. When he first noticed blood on the ground, he thought dogs had killed a small animal.

"I was coming back and I saw bare flesh and I had a pretty good idea what it was," he said.

The tire, one of two near irrigation pipes and a fuel drum stacked at the end of a small dirt road, was piled with several 5-gallon fuel tins that apparently were meant to conceal the bodies, authorities said.

Mrs. Price had reported her husband missing on Monday, said Mike Henson, Price's foreman at Baldor Electric. Price had missed a lunch date with her, she told Henson by telephone, and failed to show up for his 2:30 p.m. work shift.

Henson said Mrs. Price told him a man had gone to the couple's apartment Monday to see a car that Price was selling for Gentry, and was still there when she left for work. Gentry was an owner of the shopping center where Mrs. Price worked.

Police Chief Henry Oliver said Mrs. Price asked Gentry to help find Price, and when he was unable to do so they went to the police.

Tate headed in an unmarked police car to the Prices' apartment Monday afternoon, followed by Mrs. Price and Gentry in a pickup truck, after the missing persons report was filed. He last radioed in shortly after 6 p.m., police said.

The pickup truck and Tate's car were found in the apartment's parking lot. Tate, the father of two school-age children, joined the Fort Smith police force in July 1976 and had been a detective for two years.

Handicapped Protesters Chained To Trees To Block Dam Project

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — In secret locations along a remote section of the Stanislaus River, five people — three of them handicapped — reportedly are chained to rocks and trees in a bid to prevent flooding for a dam project they say will wipe out the only stretch of California white water accessible to the handicapped.

The five, members of the Berkeley-based Stanislaus Wilderness Access Coalition, said before they left for the protest Tuesday that they would stay until President Carter designated the river a national monument to prevent the flooding, until they were drowned by water rising behind the dam or until they were dragged out by authorities.

Dennis Fantin, a coalition spokesman, said the five had ample provisions for a long stay and said someone would check on them from time to time. Other than that, they are on their own, he said.

"The reason we're willing to go this far is that we are confronted with the situation that this is the last real honest-to-God area with access," said Richard Metts, 29, a polio victim who said he would participate in the sit-in.

The organization says handicapped people are unable to get to other white-water areas because they cannot hike to the rafting areas. The Stanislaus is accessible by car.

Jerry King, a spokesman for the federal Water and Power Resources Service, said the five appeared to be in no immediate danger of drowning because water was being released from the 61-story New Melones Dam to fill an irrigation reservoir downstream. Plans call for dam outlets eventually to be closed, making a nine-mile section of the Stanislaus River into a reservoir.

It was not known if the five protesters were in the section that was to be flooded. White House spokeswoman Patricia Baro said Carter would consider the group's written request when she receives it.

The five were taken to the protest site by boat Tuesday. The site is about 125 miles northeast of San Francisco near the community of Angels Camp.

Protester Michael Pachovas, 32, broke his neck in 1969 while serving with the Peace Corps in Ethiopia. He is a graduate student in clinical psychology at the University of California, executive director of the California Disabled Prisoners Project and a passionate white-water rafter.

"For disabled people, to actually be able to challenge a white-water river is phenomenal," said the husky, bearded Pachovas before he and the others left for the river. "It's a great confidence-builder."

Miami Riot Trial Under Way

MIAMI (AP) — Attorneys were going to court today to begin selecting a jury in the murder trial of four young blacks accused of beating to death three whites who drove into the predominantly black Liberty City neighborhood the day Miami's May race riots erupted.

Trial began Tuesday with defense arguments for suppression of statements the police took from the defendants after their arrests.

The case is the second involving a death in the May 17-19 racial violence, which claimed 18 lives and caused more than $100 million damage. The rioting erupted after an all-white jury acquitted four white former policemen on charges stemming from the fatal beating of black Miami insurance man Arthur McDuffie.

Facing first-degree murder charges were Lawrence Capers, 24; his 21-year-old brother, Leonard; and two juveniles, Patrick Moore and Samuel Lightsey, both 16.

The defendants were charged in the deaths of Benny Higdon, 21, Robert Owens, 15, and Charles Barecca, also 15. The victims had been fishing and were returning to Higdon's Miami home at about 9 p.m. May 17 when their car was pelted with rocks and bottles.

According to police reports, their car hit a wall and the three were dragged out and beaten to death with rocks and boards.

Assistant State Attorney Robert Kaye said he had dozens of witnesses to call and did not know how long the trial might last.

Higdon's wife, Tina, has been subpoenaed to testify, according to her sister-in-law, Mary Owens.

"It's going to be pretty rough for her to have it all brought up again," said Mrs. Owens.

Mrs. Owens, of Hollywood, Fla., identified the badly beaten bodies for police — an experience she said has caused her nightmares.

"I'd rather not go down there (to the trial) ... but I guess I'll have to identify pictures of the bodies," she said Monday.

Last month, in the first riot death case, 18-year-old James McCullough was convicted of manslaughter and sentenced to 15 years in prison.

FIREFIGHTER RESCUED — Boston firefighter Louis Guarante is carried to safety by fellow comrades Tuesday night, after his rescue from the rubble of two floors which collapsed in a five-story office building during a fire in Boston's Back Bay section. Collapsed Building Kills Firefighters

BOSTON (AP) — Firefighters dug through the rubble of a fire-gutted Back Bay brownstone office building early today after two floors collapsed without warning, killing two firefighters and trapping four others for three hours, authorities said.

At least seven firefighters were injured Tuesday in the collapse of the five-story building overlooking the Public Garden and the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, fire department officials said.

About 60 people clambered out windows and fled down fire escapes after the blaze began at 3 p.m. An hour later, when firefighters believed the flames were under control, the middle floors of the building collapsed.

One firefighter stumbled out onto a fire escape and began shouting, "It's all fallen in!"

Rescue workers, hampered by a rain of burning debris, first reached the survivors, two of whom were conscious but pinned by the wreckage and by the body of another man, at about 7 p.m.

It was not until three hours later that the body of the second victim was pulled from the still-burning wreckage.

The dead were identified as Paul Lentini, 32, and James Gibbons.

The brick building housed a shoe store, a real estate office, a headquarters for school volunteers and other offices.

The fire department's arson squad was investigating the cause of the blaze.

Former Gov. Francis Sargent was among those who fled the offices.

"I was on the telephone and heard some muffled shouts. I didn't pay much attention, but then I felt this sudden blast of heat," Sargent said. "I don't know where it started, but it came up the elevator."

Another Disappearance Reported In Atlanta

ATLANTA (AP) — The missing persons unit of the Atlanta police department has not decided whether to turn the case of a missing 14-year-old black boy over to the task force investigating the deaths or disappearances of 15 black children, officials say.

Lubie "Chuck" Geter has not been seen by his family since Saturday, when his brother dropped him at a shopping center where he planned to sell car deodorizers. It was the first time he had tried selling his wares in that location.

"I don't think it would have been easy," to abduct the boy, Lubie Geter, the boy's father, said Tuesday in an interview. Eleven children have been slain here in the past 18 months, while four others are missing. All were black and between the ages of 7 and 15.

Geter was described by his parents as an industrious and intelligent youngster who made friends easily.

"All the boys seemed to like him," said his mother, Assie Geter. "He had quite a few friends. All we can do is hope and pray."

The case is being investigated by the missing persons unit of the Atlanta police.

"I don't know at what point they would make the determination as to if it would be handed over to the special task force," said Marion Lee, a police spokeswoman.

Despite rewards, house-to-house canvasses, computer-assisted telephone surveys, education projects and weekend searches, police have reported no breakthroughs in the cases.

Volunteers organized by the United Youth-Adult Conference, a local activist group, have been conducting weekend searches for clues since October. As many as 3,000 people have turned out for the searches, but the number of volunteers dwindled to about 150 last weekend.

DANGERS IN THE FOREST GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Forestry work is one of the world's most dangerous operations, according to the International Labor Organization. One in four of the eight million permanently employed logging workers has an accident every year. When part-time workers are included there are an estimated 100 million people exposed to hazards.

Suicide Weapon Linked To Murder Of Family

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — A gun found by the side of a man who committed suicide in South Dakota has been identified as the same weapon used in the deaths of his wife and five children in Delmar, authorities say.

The determination leaves no doubt that Gene Gilbert killed his family, Gerald Shanahan, head of the Iowa Division of Criminal Investigation, said Tuesday.

Gilbert then drove to his father's house in Yale, S.D., and used the gun on himself, police said.

Meanwhile, a Sioux Falls, S.D., television station reported that the weekend incident was the second case of violence in the Gilbert family.

Television station KELO said 40-year-old records indicated that a coroner's inquest ruled the first wife of Gilbert's father killed her two children and herself.

KELO said Guy Gilbert's wife, Hazel, 32, killed the couple's son, Ronald, 4, and daughter, Norma, 8, before taking her own life in 1940, according to records of the inquest.

The bodies of Gene Gilbert's wife and children were discovered after Gilbert's body was found Saturday night.

Shanahan said that while ballistics tests on Gilbert's .38-caliber revolver were not complete, there was no doubt that the weapon was used in both incidents.

Shanahan said he and Clinton County Attorney G. Wylie Pillers decided to release the preliminary findings to end any doubt about who committed the slayings.

Gilbert apparently bought the gun Dec. 11 at a K-mart in Clinton, where he paid about $120 for it, officials said. Store manager Pat Matheny said the purchase was "all good and legal."

Henry T. Wilk, manager of the sporting goods department, said, "I can remember the fellow, his face, standing there at the counter. He appeared to be a nice-looking guy, a clean-cut type of fellow. He didn't look like he was off skid row or anything like that."

If you are thinking about opening an interest-paying checking account, here's a thought from First National Bank:

COMPARE.

Regular checking accounts have not earned interest because a 1933 Federal law prohibited financial institutions from paying interest on checking.

Now, that law has changed. And all kinds of financial institutions, even those who never offered checking accounts before, can provide interest-bearing checking to their customers. This has been accompanied by some very loud, noisy, and sometimes confusing advertising claims.

First National Bank has offered INTEREST/CHECKING to our customers a long time. And quite frankly we've found that earning interest on transaction-type accounts won't be to the advantage of everyone.

Things To Consider

At some places the service charge on interest-paying checking accounts may be a lot different than the charge on regular checking. There may even be a per check charge, too.

Some financial institutions won't return checks with the monthly statement on interest-paying accounts, unless you pay an extra charge.

And some will pay interest only on fully collected deposits. So you wouldn't earn interest on the amount of any check you deposited until that check cleared the bank on which it was written.

The point is, you may need to shop carefully to find the services that best suit your needs. And if you decided to switch to an interest-paying checking plan, be sure you understand the plan you are considering. And especially what its true cost to you will be.

How To Determine If It's Right For You

Get answers to these important questions:

- “What is the minimum balance required to earn interest?”
- “What is the minimum balance required to avoid service charges?”
- “What are the per check charges?”

“How is the interest calculated?”

“Are there any hidden charges?”

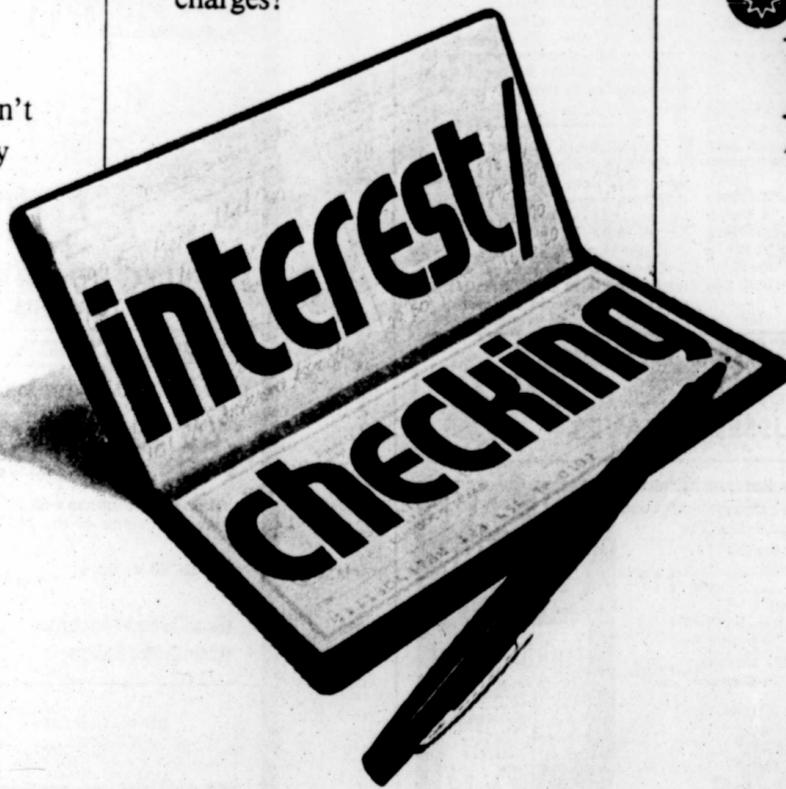

“Will I get my checks back at the end of the month?”

One Final Note

Naturally, we think our INTEREST/CHECKING plan is the best one offered by any financial institution in West Texas. It's both a checking and a savings account. And if you keep $500 in your account, you pay no service charge, you earn interest, and there are no per check charges, no matter how many you write. It's that simple. We'll be glad to show you how it can work for you.

We want you to compare plans. Because we think when you do, you'll find First National Bank's INTEREST/CHECKING the best plan around.

Study Describes Public Attitudes About Women

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two-thirds of Americans say they would not mind if their boss were a woman, but by vast majorities they want police, doctors, lawyers, dentists and bankers to be men and salespeople, hairdressers and nurses to be women.

American attitudes are ambiguous on the homefront. Virtually all Americans now think it takes as much intelligence and drive to bring up children as to run a corporation, but only half say a working woman should not have to bear full responsibility for running the house, too.

These trends emerge from a study, "Today's American Woman: How the Public Sees Her," which traces changes in public attitudes about women.

It was prepared by pollster Daniel Yankelovich and his assistant, Deborah Durfee Barron, and published by the President's Advisory Committee for Women. No new polls were conducted for the study, which only analyzed existing studies conducted by major public opinion research firms around the country.

What emerges is a general approval of women's progress — in the job market, in politics, in free choice to determine their own destinies.

But three out of 10 people see women as suffering as much discrimination as Puerto Ricans and Mexican Americans. Most people feel that women suffer less discrimination, though, than blacks or homosexuals.

A third of the women who were surveyed felt they would have gotten a lot further in life if they had been born as men. One in four said being born a woman prevented her from accomplishing all she had once hoped.

Only a third of the public feels that women should run the home and let men run the country, a dramatic change from 1974, when a majority felt women should stay home.

On the other hand, about half of Americans subscribe to the old saying that a woman's place is in the home. Two-thirds disapprove of families in which the wife is the breadwinner while the husband stays home with the kids.

Most people think a preschool child suffers if mom holds a job.

In working couples, his job comes first: two-thirds of those asked think a wife with an interesting job should turn down a transfer to another city so her husband can continue in his job. Only 17 percent think he should quit and they should relocate.

Most people — nearly six in 10 — don't think the United States will have a woman president by the year 2000, but seven in 10 think a woman will be sworn in as vice president.

Only one person in seven says he would vote against a woman presidential candidate if his party nominated her. In 1977, 65 percent said they would vote for the other party's male candidate.

Attitudes toward sex have changed, too.

Most people feel a couple having a child out of wedlock should not marry just for the sake of the child, but they don't feel it should be made legal to have children out of wedlock. And seven in 10 say deciding to have a child out of wedlock would be morally wrong.

The public is moving toward accepting the idea of single women having children, but a majority remains opposed. But adoption by single parents is all right with most people.

The public feels, in general, that a woman should have the right to have an abortion if she wants one, and majority opinion opposes an anti-abortion amendment to the Constitution. Support for abortion falls off beyond the first three months of pregnancy.

Business Accused Of Boosting Rates

WASHINGTON (AP) — A report by the House Banking Committee's subcommittee on consumer affairs says many credit card companies and other businesses used government credit controls to apply much higher terms to purchases instead of legitimately restricting credit.

"For years many creditors had sought ways to increase interest rates on credit, speed up repayment plans, and charge annual fees for credit cards," Rep. Frank Annunzio, D-Ill., the subcommittee chairman, said last week. "When credit controls were invoked in March, it gave those creditors an excuse to raise costs to consumers while blaming the federal government for their actions."

Only a third of the public feels that women should run the home and let men run the country, a dramatic change from 1974, when a majority felt women should stay home.

On the other hand, about half of Americans subscribe to the old saying that a woman's place is in the home. Two-thirds disapprove of families in which the wife is the breadwinner while the husband stays home with the kids.

PISTOL-PACKING JUDGE — Circuit Judge Thomas M. Coker waved a .357 Magnum in his courtroom Tuesday after a defendant went berserk. When a 326-pound man began a tirade, Coker rushed to his office for the gun, while 14 deputies tried to subdue the defendant. Judge Coker is pictured here demonstrating to the media his actions earlier that day. (AP Laserphoto)

Judge Keeps Gun Nearby After Attack

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — The 6-foot-6 defendant hurled his 326 pounds at the bench and Circuit Judge Thomas Coker Jr. reacted swiftly. He ran to his chambers and got a gun.

"I saw him stand up and I said, 'Jesus Christ, the size of that man.' He was the biggest man I ever saw in my life," the judge said. "He could have squashed me like a grape."

As Coker brandished his weapon Tuesday, 14 deputies subdued Joshua Thomas, 30, of Miami, and clapped him in handcuffs and leg irons.

Thomas, arrested after allegedly trying to take a gold necklace from a woman, went into a frenzy as he was summoned to the judge's bench.

Thomas' attorney, Maureen Brennan of the public defender's office, told Coker her client was too large to sit at the witness stand.

"All was quiet," Miss Brennan said later. "Then he (Thomas) started going on about how he had been treated like a dog and how he was 30 years old and didn't have anything."

Thomas exited quickly and returned with his pistol.

The incident, as well as the .357 magnum, stayed with Coker the rest of the day.

He said he had intended to order a stunt gun to keep beside him in the courtroom, just in case, but added, "It would have taken a cannon for this dude."

Stations Sell Cheaper Gas

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A group of gas stations has begun selling fuel to its members direct from refiners — a move designed to cut wholesale prices about 4 cents a gallon and "force large oil companies" to do the same, the group says.

The action is "the first attempt by a trade association to furnish (fuel) to the consumer at a competitive price," Jim Campbell, executive director of the California Service Station Association, said Tuesday.

The association represents about 2,600 service station owners.

Campbell said he and several other association retailers in the San Francisco Bay area had purchased a "jobbershop" — an outlet that gets fuel directly from refiners and normally sells it to large rural customers. The cost of the jobbershop was not disclosed.

The group, based in Pleasant Hill, is buying the fuel from refiners and selling it to its own members, undercutting the major companies, Campbell said.

The action would cut about 4 cents a gallon off the wholesale cost of regular gasoline, Campbell said. The group is selling regular gasoline to its retailers for $1.03 a gallon, unleaded for $1.07, diesel for 84 cents, and premium for $1.08.

"Most of the retailers are working on an 8-cent profit margin, so that 4 cents is a lot," he said.

"Only a handful" of stations, all in northern California, so far are selling the CSSA fuel from pumps marked with CSSA stickers, Campbell said.

ONION REMEDY

Capt. James Cook applied the onion remedy in the 18th century for scurvy on his voyages to the remote areas of the Pacific. At one point, he ordered each man in his crew to eat 20 pounds of onions, followed by 10 pounds 2 days later.

Wage Fight May Force Resignation Of Begin

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin met today with two Cabinet members who have threatened to quit the government in a teachers' wage dispute, and close Begin associates hinted he might be forced to resign if the Cabinet cannot reach a compromise Sunday.

Begin met for the second straight day in special committee with the two balking Cabinet rivals in the dilemma, Education Minister Ze'evulun Hammer and Finance Minister Yigal Hurvitz.

Hammer wants to give teachers up to 50 percent in salary increases. Hurvitz wants strict wage guidelines and tight limits on government spending to tame Israel's 135 percent annual inflation rate.

A defection by either of the parties the two men represent would leave Begin without a parliamentary majority, at least until the next election.

But Begin has maneuvered his way out of such crises in the past and government sources said he still has several projects he wants to complete before facing the electorate. Polls show the opposition Labor Party in a clear lead over Begin's Likud with the voters.

Hurvitz put a conditional letter of resignation on file Sunday. It would have taken effect Tuesday except Begin convinced him to hold off until the cabinet meets on the issue again at this Sunday's regular meeting.

Close associates of Begin admitted the prime minister had lost control of the situation and a way out did not appear obvious.

"Begin will resign at the proper moment," said one close associate. "He does not want to head a minority government."

BARREN PEAKS — Hikers walk toward the summit of the Continental Divide about 11,000 feet up Loveland pass, 50 miles west of Denver, a spot that is not part of an established ski area but which is one of the most popular back-country powder skiing areas in the state. The pass normally has several feet of snow by early January. Ski areas with snowmaking devices say they are managing to stay busy this season, but there has been a shortage of natural snow. (AP Laserphoto)

Pravda Says Afghan Regime Stabilizing

MOSCOW (UPI) — Afghanistan is slowly stabilizing its Marxist regime, contrary to the claims of Western propagandists, the Communist Party newspaper Pravda said today.

"The cause of the remaining tension in Afghanistan and around it," Pravda said, is what the Kremlin calls "the undeclared war" against the pro-Soviet regime.

Holding to the version of events that they have repeated since the Russian invasion more than a year ago, Soviet spokesmen contend the fighting in the Soviet border state has been caused by "U.S. imperialists, Chinese hegemonists and their accomplices."

Pravda commentator Yuri Glukhov said Soviet troops could be withdrawn from Afghanistan only if the Kabul regime reaches "a good neighborly understanding" with Pakistan and Iran — a proposal identical to the offer first made nearly seven months ago by Afghan ruler Babrak Karmal.

The Soviets "constructive program for a settlement" has been repeatedly rejected by Afghanistan's neighbors, the United States, China and the Western allies.

"The current malicious anti-Afghan and anti-Soviet propagandist hysterics in the West are indicative of only one thing," Glukhov said. "That the ground is slipping from under the feet of the enemies of democratic Afghanistan."

"At present the country is entering a new stage of its development," the Pravda article said. "A provisional constitution has been adopted. Measures are being implemented to strengthen legality and to democratize social life."

"A national fatherland front is being created to unite all the truly patriotic and progressive forces of the country on the platform of national democratic transformations in the name of national and social progress.

"Those whom the fleeing counter-revolutionary leaders managed to delude and lure abroad are returning to their native land."

Such a temperature change will surely be accompanied by shifts of rainfall patterns and an altered distribution of snow and ice," said the 168-page report written by William W. Kellogg and Robert Schwart.

Dr. Walter Orr Roberts, head of climate studies at the Aspen Institute and former director of the U.S. National Center for Atmospheric Research, told the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science Tuesday that the impact of the warming trend will be particularly large on agriculture.

Roberts said the world's climate now appears to be on a slight cooling trend and the carbon dioxide already in the air may be slowing that trend.

The Aspen Institute study, supported in part by the U.S. Department of Energy, estimated that by some time in the first half of the next century, global temperatures will average between 1.5 degrees to 4.5 degrees C. (2.7 to 8 degrees F.) higher.

"The picture of the future, however, is far from clear," the report said. "There are many gaps in our understanding of the climate system."

One of the big dangers from a warmer climate is the threat posed to the Antarctic and Greenland ice sheets. Total breakup of the West Antarctic ice sheet would raise global sea levels between 19 and 22 feet, flooding many of the world's coastal settlements.

The Aspen Institute report said, however, that glaciologists do not agree on the time scale for such an event. Whether such a catastrophe would occur in a matter of decades, centuries or even millennia is still being debated.

In a separate report prepared for presentation today to an AAAS symposium, Dr. Terrence J. Hughes of the University of Maine said his calculations suggest the West Antarctic ice sheet could collapse within 200 years.

He said the ice sheet's stability is threatened by the continued retreat of two huge glaciers. He said warming from the continued buildup of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere from the burning of fossil fuels could prevent the formation of an ice shelf that might keep the ice sheet from breaking up.

The atmospheric warming is expected to be caused by a "greenhouse effect" that higher concentrations of carbon dioxide are expected to produce. The carbon dioxide would allow heat from the sun to enter the atmosphere but block the radiation of some of the heat back into space.

The report said the carbon dioxide concentration in the atmosphere already is 15 to 20 percent higher than it was in 1900. It said that increase could be doubled by the year 2000.

Four Killed In Austrian Avalanches

VIENNA, Austria (UPI) — Thousands of tourists were cut off from the outside world today in western Austria, where avalanches took four lives so far and skiers were warned not to leave their lodges.

Constant snowfall has brought about 10 feet of snow to the slopes of the Arlberg mountain in the past three days, increasing the danger of new avalanches and blocking all the roads to the various ski areas.

Four German tourists were killed by avalanches in the Arlberg region and authorities said the danger of new disasters was increasing.

Warmer Climate Could Result From Carbon Dioxide Buildup

TORONTO (UPI) — A significantly warmer climate may be only 20 years away because of the steady buildup of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere, the latest study on man's influences on future weather says.

The report by the Aspen Institute for Humanistic Studies in Boulder, Colo., said the "best guess" is the average global temperature by year 2000 will be as warm or warmer than any time in the past 1,000 years.

Such a temperature change will surely be accompanied by shifts of rainfall patterns and an altered distribution of snow and ice," said the 168-page report written by William W. Kellogg and Robert Schwart.

Dr. Walter Orr Roberts, head of climate studies at the Aspen Institute and former director of the U.S. National Center for Atmospheric Research, told the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science Tuesday that the impact of the warming trend will be particularly large on agriculture.

Custom Auto Show Begins Here Friday

The World of Wheels Custom Car Show has been scheduled Friday through Sunday at the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center.

Over 100 hot rods, custom cars, motorcycles, race cars, trucks, vans and antiques will be displayed from 5 p.m. to 11 p.m. Friday, from noon to 11 p.m. Saturday and from noon to 10 p.m. Sunday.

Included in the display will be three feature cars of special interest: The $60,000 "Morque Machine," an 800-horsepower "Pizza Wizard," and an intricately designed "Pinball Wizard."

The Morque Machine, inspired by the television series, Mork and Mindy, was designed by Larry Wood of Los Angeles and built by Rod Powell of Salinas, Calif. Creative ingenuity coupled with experienced craftsmanship resulted in an innovative, egg-shaped vehicle.

The Pizza Wizard, designed to provide very hot deliveries with very fast service, has a handmade wood and fiberglass body painted in shades of purple, lavender and violet. It houses an 800-horsepower engine.

Sonny Shroyer, star of a television comedy series "Enos," will be present during the car show. Shroyer is known for his role as Deputy Sheriff Enos in "Dukes of Hazzard" and also for his appearance in several Walt Disney movies.

Russian Weekly Claims Chicago Officials Holding Boy Hostage

MOSCOW (UPI) — While all of the United States is concentrating on the fate of 52 American hostages in Iran, officials in Chicago are detaining a 13-year-old Ukrainian boy whose father wants to return to the Soviet Union, the weekly Literaturnaya Gazeta said today.

The Soviet family, whose son ran away from home and asked for asylum in the United States after the father decided emigration was a mistake, has been subjected to "strong psychological pressure," Literaturnaya Gazeta said.

The story of the Michael and Anna Polovchak and their son, Walter, has been ignored by the American press, the Soviet account said, in contrast with many stories about the hostages in Iran.

Literaturnaya Gazeta offered direct comparisons of the cases of the Polovchak boy, whom it described as a hostage of local authorities in Chicago, and the Americans in Iran, who were described not as hostages, but merely as people "under arrest."

The story, as published in Moscow, gave no reason for the Polovchak boy's decision to remain in the United States. It complained that "a tense and unbearable atmosphere" has arisen around the case, including threats by Ukrainian nationalists in the Chicago area that they might kidnap another son, 6, who has remained in the custody of the Polovchaks.

"Moreover, certain persons are trying to persuade Polovchak (the father) not to return, offering him a fee for a book about his ordeals in the Soviet Union and, if he agrees to

Cougars Continue Tech's Hofheinz Woes

By CHUCK McDONALD
Assistant Sports Editor

HOUSTON — For the third time in as many years, Texas Tech fell victim to the Houston Cougars' half-court press in the second half here at the rowdy Hofheinz Pavilion.

And for the third time in as many trips, the Red Raiders fell in Hofheinz, this time by a narrow 73-70 count. The difference on Tuesday was that Tech did not fall apart in the face of the Houston press — the Raiders fell behind by as many as 12 points, but they kept coming back.

While it was the Cougar defense that forced the Raider unraveling, it was the hot hand of sophomore sensation Rob Williams that unwound Tech on the other end. Williams, either bombing from way, way out, or driving up the heart of the Tech defense for lay-ins, finished the night with 30 points.

Tech falls to 1-1 in Southwest Conference play while the Cougars lead the league with a 2-0 mark. Overall, Tech sports a 7-4 record (all four losses coming on the road) while Houston is 10-2.

"That press was the turning point in the game," admitted Tech coach Gerald Myers. "We made 15 turnovers and it gave them 17 points. We were breaking the press, but we were making the wrong decisions at the end of it.

"We didn't have our shooters shooting the ball."

Until the Cougars went to their trap press defense in the final half, Tech and Houston had exchanged buckets at a furious pace.

"We were just playing tic-tac-toe with 'em, and that's Tech's game," said Houston coach Guy V. Lewis. "I didn't think we could keep doing that in the second half and beat them."

Houston led 33-30 at the intermission as Clarence Swanegan and Bubba Jennings combined for 20 points to offset Williams, who had 19 in the opening half. Jeff Taylor scored two quick buckets sandwiched around a Jennings' jumper and, when Swanegan dropped in a 15-footer at the 17:27 mark, Tech led 38-37.

But Williams stripped Jennings of the ball on Tech's next trip downcourt and converted it into a fast-break layup making it 39-38.

Then came the play that sank Tech. Leading scorer Jeff Taylor drove the lane and put up an underhanded layup that wouldn't fall — and took an elbow to the top of the head for his efforts.

Houston went to the other end where freshman Clyde Drexler took a Williams feed and laid in a quick two points. Taylor left the game and did not return.

"Jeff's got a bump on his head the size of a goose-egg and nobody called a foul," said Myers. "If he'd gotten the call and hit his free throws, we'd have been back ahead."

But what did happen was six more Houston points following a traveling call against Ben Hill, a Ralph Brewster miss and finally a Swanegan miss. Down 47-38, Tech came right back and tied the contest at 49-49.

First, Hill made good on a three-point play. Jennings hit from 15 and Swanegan — who led Tech with a career-high 20 points — hit a soft jumper from the outside to make it 49-45. Swanegan followed in his own miss and then, at the 11:15 mark, hit a 10-footer and it was even at 49.

But just as quickly as Tech tied it, Houston stretched the lead back out to 10. Eric Davis hit from a cannon-shot away. Clyde Drexler hit a pair of free throws after a Ben Hill miss and it was 53-49. Steve Smith turned the ball over for Tech and Larry Micheaux got a layup. Hill was whistled for traveling. Young scored and it was 57-49.

After a Raider timeout and two more missed shots, Williams dropped one in from the parking lot and it was just about over at 59-49.

"You've got to give the defense credit," said Myers. "But we just made too many mistakes. Rob Williams really played good — we just didn't cover him good enough."

But a funny thing happened to the Cougars before they could put the icing on the cake. The Coogs, who hit a red-hot 63.3 percent from the field, couldn't buy a free throw.

The Coogs went to the line eight times in the final 3:57 and could only come away with six points. They finished the contest by hitting only 11 of 20 free throws and missed the front end of five one-and-ones. Tech, on the other hand, hit eight of 11 attempts at the charity stripe.

Ahead by 10, 65-55, when the free-throw drought began, the Coogs let Tech close within two points before finally putting it away.

Jennings hit a 28-footer with four seconds left to pull Tech within two, 72-70, but it was just too late.

"Those last four minutes seemed like two hours," said an exasperated Lewis. "We let them back in the game with all those misses."

Young and Drexler, Houston's freshman tandem inside, combined for 22 points to complement Williams' supreme effort.

Swanegan led all players with nine boards as Tech outbounded the Coogs 35-23. Jennings had 14 points for Tech and Taylor added 10 in 25 minutes of action.

"Swanegan is tough inside," admitted Drexler. "He has a good shot."

Tech now returns to Lubbock to face the Texas A&M Aggies, who have dropped back-to-back shockers to TCU and Baylor — a couple of lower division clubs.

Midland's Surge Steals Matadors' Halftime Nod

By RAY GLASS

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Midland High suffered through its characteristic first-half blues Tuesday before producing a 50-point effort in the final two quarters behind deadly free-throw shooting to dump Estacado 83-71 in boys' basketball action at the Matador gym.

Estacado was the third Lubbock team the Bulldogs have faced this season and for the third time Midland High fell behind at halftime, trailing the Mats 39-33.

But the Bulldogs, ranked No. 2 in the state and owners of a 16-3 record, hit 24 of 28 charity tosses while posting consecutive 25-point quarters in the second half. They led by as many as 18 points in the final period before the Matadors scored the final six points of the game.

"We changed our effort in the second half," Midland coach Jack Stephenson said of his club's turnaround. "We were standing around too much in the first half. I talked to them more harshly at halftime than I have all year."

"In the second half they started to do what I told them to do. We worked on the fundamentals of our game, like our press. We started to play our 'we' game instead of an 'I' game."

Principally among the 'wes' for the Bulldogs in the second two quarters were Horace Brown and Herb Johnson. Brown, a 6-foot-4 forward, and Johnson, a 6-10 player who competes at all three positions, controlled the rebounding and converted repeatedly at the foul stripe.

Brown hit four of six free throws and finished as Midland's leading scorer with 23 points. Johnson was seven of eight from the foul stripe and had 21 points, 13 rebounds and three blocked shots.

As a team, the Bulldogs converted 27 of 34 free throws during the game as the smaller Mats were forced to foul in the second half. Estacado inside musclemen Jerry Gray and Danny Boyd both fouled out in the final two quarters as the Matadors committed 24 fouls, 16 in the third and fourth periods.

Midland High led 17-14 at the end of the opening quarter, thanks to a Johnson baseline stuff.

The Bulldogs outscored the Matadors 25-14 in the third period to take a 58-53 lead with eight minutes to play. But the Midland full-court press, which bothered the Mats throughout the game, produced four turnovers in the first two minutes of the fourth quarter, giving the Bulldogs four buckets and an insurmountable 66-53 advantage.

Cade led the Matadors in scoring with 26 points, while Barnett added 18 and Rodney Guyton 10. Guyton had nine rebounds for Estacado while Grey, who picked up his third personal foul with 6:43 to play in the first half, fouled out with 42 seconds remaining in the third period with two points, eight rebounds and five blocked shots.

The two teams meet again Friday at 7:45 p.m. in Midland.

Chargers, AFC Stand Out In NFL's All-Pro Team

NEW YORK (AP) — Tight end Kellen Winslow and wide receivers John Jefferson and Charlie Joiner of the San Diego Chargers, who caught more than 1,000 yards in passes apiece to set a National Football League record, were named today to The Associated Press All-Pro Team for the 1980 season.

Cleveland's Brian Sipe, whose league-leading passing was instrumental in the Browns' resurgence, was selected The AP's All-Pro first-team quarterback. He beat out Dan Fouts, the Chargers' record-breaker.

In all, San Diego had eight players on the first and second teams in the balloting by 84 sports writers and sports broadcasters, three from each NFL city. The other two Charger starters are on defense — end Fred Dean and tackle Gary Johnson. Winslow caught a league-high 89 passes for 1,290 yards. Jefferson had an NFL-high 1,340 yards on 82 receptions and Joiner added 1,132 yards on 71 catches. That made the Chargers the first team with three 1,000-yard receivers in a season.

The American Conference, which once again dominated interconference play, placed 16 players on the first team to nine for the National Conference. The AFC had 14 second-team selections to 11 from the AFC.

The Pittsburgh Steelers, the NFL's defending Super Bowl champions who failed for the first time in nine years to reach the playoffs, came in second to the Chargers in first-team All-Pro players with three — center Mike Webster, middle linebacker Jack Lambert and strong safety Donnie Shell.

Four teams — Oakland, Los Angeles, Cleveland and Houston — put two players apiece on the All-Pro first team.

The Raiders are outside linebacker Ted Hendricks and cornerback Lester Hayes; the Rams are free safety Nolan Cromwell and cornerback Pat Thomas; the Browns are Sipe and defensive end Lyle Alzado, and the Oilers are running back Earl Campbell and tackle Leon Gray.

Campbell, who won his third rushing title in his third pro season, amassed 1,934 yards, second only to O.J. Simpson's record 2,003. The other first-team running back is Walter Payton of the Chicago Bears, who finished atop the NFL rushing list for the fifth successive season.

Rounding out the first team are tackle Mike Kenn of Atlanta, guards John Hannah of New England and Herbert Scott of Dallas, defensive tackle Charlie Johnson of Philadelphia, outside linebacker

Matt Blair of Minnesota, punter Dave Jennings of the New York Giants, place-kicker Ed Murray of Detroit and kick-returner J.T. Smith of Kansas City.

TSWA Elects; Commends Tech

DALLAS (AP) — The Texas Sports Writers Association has elected University of Texas sports information director Jones Ramsey as its new president and also has censured Texas Stadium.

Ramsey will serve a two-year term. Barry Robinson, sports editor of the San Antonio Express-News, has been elected vice president.

The association voted to censure Texas Stadium in Irving after writers were told to vacate the press box 10 minutes after the Class 5A state schoolboy football championship game between Odessa Permian and Port Arthur Jefferson.

"The security guard told us he wasn't asking us to leave. He was ordering us to leave," reported Bill McMurry of the Houston Chronicle.

It was the second time for the TSWA to censure Texas Stadium. Five years ago the writers were told to leave the press box shortly after the championship game ended.

The association commended Texas A & M and Texas Tech for the efficient manner in which playoff games were handled at those stadiums.

With the loss Tech falls to 5-9 while Houston is 8-3.

Once again, it was freshman Carolyn Thompson who led the Raiders with 29 points and 15 rebounds but she got little help from her teammates as only Tammy Anderson could manage double figures with 12 points.

Regina Gray paced the Cougars with 25 points and Kip Anderson added 10.

The game was decided in the first half when the Cougs dominated the backboards to hit 16 field goals out of 43 attempts while the Raiders got only 28 shots, making 12.

Chaps Land Feet First On Welcome Mat, NMH

By ERIC GALE
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
 It was time to take a leisurely stroll around the block.

The marathon men of the Lubbock Christian College basketball team were able to shorten their strides during a 96-65 defeat of New Mexico Highlands Tuesday in the LCC fieldhouse.

The Chaparrals, who had played 11 of their first 13 games before unfamiliar road audiences, had familiarized themselves with defeat. LCC lost 10 of those initial 13 encounters, all to scholarship-level programs, and had not enjoyed a home game since Nov. 28.

It was time to end the marathon, time to take a breather. A combination of the fieldhouse and the fellows of New Mexico Highlands proved to be to the Chaps' liking. It is games like this that help to balance a schedule that has included formidable teams such as West Texas State, Howard Payne and Dallas Baptist.

LCC had beaten the Cowboys 106-90 last month in Las Vegas, N.M. That time, New Mexico Highlands was equipped with its two top players, who not incidentally, represent the team's only size at 6-foot-6 and 6-4. Both Cowboys were absent Tuesday due to illness and classroom duty, respectively, so the Chaps, whose guards were generally taller than the NMH baseline, exploited the small fry.

"I felt, when we played them at their place, that we would've beat them by 30 without those two big kids," LCC coach John Copeland said. "That's a lot of points to beat anybody by, but they had all sorts of people out of position today and that hurts. They were relatively small."

Copeland, who admitted that New Mexico Highlands (winless in eight games) is the least competitive team on LCC's schedule thus far, then added that the relaxation of returning home, plus the Cowboys' depleted ranks, may have undercut his own Chaps' effort.

"There's always a mental letdown when you know somebody is coming in without their two top players," he said. "I was pleased that we won, but I was disappointed that we weren't a little sharper. We did lots of things decent but our mental preparation was not that good."

LCC led by only four points, 26-22, with seven minutes remaining in the first half. Then, there was a sudden change. The Chaps outscored the Cowboys 20-6 before halftime to build a 46-28 advantage.

It was outside shooting, and more outside shooting, that produced the majority of the points as LCC connected on 63 percent of its field-goal attempts in the opening period.

New Mexico Highlands, which is to quality basketball what the hosts of "Real People" are to investigative reporting, sneaked back into contention and trailed 52-43 on James Branch's 20-footer with 12:40 left in the game. But LCC forward Gary Norris scored two quick baskets and Bruce Carver hit six consecutive free throws to gain a 66-45 lead at 9:34. All six free throws were the result of three technical fouls — and ejection — charged to Cowboy coach Edward Abreu. Abreu's insolent body language became verbal, and he leaked one profanity too many to the referees.

Carver led LCC with 23 points — in less than 20 minutes of floor time. Norris, Jim Steensma and Larry Holt scored 12 apiece, while reserve Rick Murdock led in rebounds with eight.

LCC, 4-10, opens its Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association schedule by hosting Austin College at 3 p.m. Saturday in the fieldhouse.

SWC's Cage Surprises Abound

By The Associated Press
 Southern Methodist University completed breaking a long jinx and Baylor, Rice and Houston came out victorious Tuesday night in Southwest Conference basketball action.

The Mustangs beat the University of Texas Longhorns, 53-51, on a desperation shot by Gordon Welch at the end of overtime. The victory in Austin marked the first time that the Mustangs had beaten Longhorn football and basketball teams in Austin in the same school year since 1966.

In other SWC roundball action, Baylor kept the Texas A&M Aggies sliding with a 53-44 victory. Rice beat Texas Christian, 57-51, and Houston slipped past Texas Tech, 73-70.

Virdell Howland gave Texas a 51-49 lead in the overtime period, but Johnnie James scored for the Mustangs to tie the game again at 51-all. After Longhorn Ray Harper threw the ball out of bounds, SMU decided to go for one shot although about two minutes remained in overtime.

LaSalle Thompson blocked SMU's last attempt, but Welch came out of a crowd with the ball and banked it from 12 feet away as the horn sounded. It was his only basket in the game.

"I guess you could say that was the biggest field goal of my career," Welch said.

SMU coach Dave Bliss described the last-second shot by Welch as "Christmas Day at Macy's." He added, "Gordon just threw up a prayer and hit it."

Texas coach Abe Lemons had a simple explanation for the loss. "We just don't have a good team. . . what can you say."

"Tonight's performance was inexcusable, but we're going to have a lot more of them," Lemons added.

Terry Teagle scored 20 points as Baylor handed Texas A&M its fourth straight loss and second straight in SWC action.

53-44.

By virtue of the four-game losing streak, the Aggies have moved from the Top Twenty into the SWC cellar.

"This is the best I've seen Baylor play. They were tough," said Aggie coach Shelby Metcalf.

Baylor coach Jim Haller said, "I think our team tonight started to become the type of squad I thought we could be when the season started."

The Rice Owls quickly brought the Texas Christian University Horned Frogs back to earth with a 57-51 victory. TCU had beaten pre-season favorite Texas A&M last Saturday night.

Ricky Pierce had 18 points for the Owls. Darrell Browder led the Horned Frogs with 17 points, but TCU coach Jim Killingsworth said Browder "shot the same shots he's been shooting but they didn't go down tonight."

Rice coach Mike Schuler had praise for both the Owls and the Frogs.

"This was a very big win for us. We played much more patient offense and we played well at the end when we had to. This is the best TCU team we've played," Schuler said.

NTSUTosses Out Everest

DENTON (AP) — North Texas State athletic director Andy Everest says he was surprised but not embittered by the sudden request for his resignation.

"I wish nothing but the best for North Texas State," said Everest, 56, who announced Tuesday he has agreed to step down as athletic director.

"I can understand what they are looking for and what direction they are trying to go. This offered me the opportunity to step down and allow them that privilege," said Everest.

"We have labored under a tough situation the last couple or three years because of a lack of crowd, TV (appearances) and conference standing. . . if they have to cut back, it doesn't make me bitter," said Everest.

He said Fred Pole, executive assistant to NTSU president Frank Vandiver, asked for the resignation Monday when Everest met with the administrator to discuss hiring a new head football coach.

Jerry Moore resigned Sunday after two years as head coach to accept a similar position at Texas Tech.

"Basically, it came at a very abrupt time. I was not prepared for it. I didn't have an inkling or an inclination about it," said Everest.

He said Pole made the request after talking to Vandiver, who believed the university could attract a higher caliber head coach by offering both jobs.

School officials, in a prepared statement, said the resignation would give the university the flexibility to offer a "competitive salary" to fill the dual position of athletic director and head football coach.

NTSU officials have complained for years that despite an excellent football record, the university has been overlooked by television producers and major bowl committees.

"We have not been given the recognition rightly deserved by some of our football teams, but we have made great strides," said Everest.

He said he asked for his resignation to be effective May 31.

"I feel after eight years service as coach and athletic director . . . I am deserving of that period (to find another position)," said Everest.

He said he would try to find a position as an athletic director with another university.

Wayland Bees Easily Subdue Lady Chaps

Things do not always get better before they get worse.

The Wayland Baptist College junior varsity women's basketball team had defeated the Lubbock Christian College Lady Chaps 67-51 in their season-opener Nov. 7.

The Queen Bees once again mistreated the Lady Chaps, 79-58, Tuesday night in the LCC fieldhouse.

Wayland Baptist, a bit more skilled and a bit more developed than the non-scholarship Lady Chaps, used eagle-eyed outside shooting to establish a 22-4 lead. LCC had experienced a scoreless span of over seven minutes during which the Queen Bees helped themselves to 18 uninterrupted points.

An array of missed layups, misguided passes and a free throw that traveled only 12 of the necessary 15 feet from stripe to rim, typified the early Lady Chap response.

Fortunately for LCC and coach Dave Simpson, things did get better. Slowly but surely.

After trailing 51-26 on a Marsha Coates' layup early in the second half, the Lady Chaps began to shoot well themselves. In fact, they hit 54 percent of their field-goal attempts across the final 20 minutes. LCC never moved closer to the lead than 15 points, but Simpson was grateful for the improvement. Any improvement.

"We got down at first and couldn't recover," Simpson said. "We missed six or seven layups and the girls got discouraged. And then we went a long period without scoring. It disturbs me to have those gaps in scoring.

"We came back a little bit in the second half and I was extremely pleased with our bench in that half. It was a good sign. Even though we lost Daria (Lynch) and Cindy (Bigham), the squad's only representative height) on fouls, Sherry Brown and JoAnn Phillips did a fair job of posting up and giving us an inside game.

"And let's remember. We were playing a skilled team," he concluded. "Any team that works out consistently with a varsity as tough as Wayland's has to be fundamentally sound — and they were."

Miss Phillips led LCC with 14 points and nine rebounds.

The Lady Chaps, 4-9, host South Plains College at 6 p.m. Thursday in the fieldhouse before they open Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association play against Austin College at 1 p.m. Saturday, also in the fieldhouse.

Mind Games Begin As Cowboys, Eagles Prepare

DALLAS (AP) — Who will feel the pressure in Sunday's National Conference title game — the Philadelphia Eagles who have won without a National Football League title since 1960 or the free-wheeling Dallas Cowboys who weren't supposed to get this far?

Dallas coach Tom Landry said Tuesday nerves on both sides will be equally jangled.

"The Eagles want to win badly," said Landry. "Sometimes you play worse when you try too hard, sometimes you play better."

"We can't go into the game saying we'll be satisfied with the season even if we lose, because we have done better than expected. Too much work has gone into getting to this position. We've been working since April to get here."

Landry predicted it will be the most physical game of the season.

"Both teams are just one step away from the Super Bowl and it's sure not like going out for a picnic during the regular season," he said. "It will be tough and

Landry said his crystal ball shows a close, possibly low-scoring game.

"I know we can't expect a lot of points against their very good defense," he said. "It will be a struggle all day. We'll have to counter their pursuit, yet we know they will be waiting on the reverses. The Eagles will not be in the same frame of mind they were the last time we played when they already had 25 points on the scoreboard."

Landry opened up Dallas' attack in the final game of the regular season and the Eagles fell 35-27, although the Cowboys could not make up a 25-point edge owned by Philadelphia in the tie-breakers. Both teams finished with 12-4 records, but the Eagles won the NFC East and the Cowboy had to play a wild card.

Dallas must play in blue jerseys, courtesy of Eagle coach Dick Vermeil's decision to wear white. The Cowboys are 10-10 in blue jerseys in their 21-year history.

In counter psychological warfare, the Cowboys have pointed out that Philadelphia is 1-13 the last eight years in white jerseys.

Landry was asked Tuesday about Vermeil's statement that Dallas has the best team.

"We have a pretty good team," said Landry. "Vermeil used to coach for George Allen (Landry's former foe at Washington) and he still has a little bit of it in him."

"The psychological warfare has started. The jerseys are a typical move. The press jumps on it quick. I don't blame you (the press). It's a story. They (the Eagles) are just trying to distract us as a team. The jinx is part of the football game."

Landry added, "None of that is going to do any good. The best team Sunday will walk off the field a winner."

Dallas has a 4:30 p.m. flight to Philadelphia Friday. Landry said the team will work at Veterans Stadium Saturday.

Oilers Answer Campbell; Phillips, Saints Confer

HOUSTON (UPI) — In response to demands by the three-time National Football League rushing king, Houston Oilers' general manager Ladd Herzog says he will neither renegotiate Earl Campbell's contract nor trade him to another team.

"If we traded Earl Campbell," he said, "my house would get burned down and I'd have to get out of town."

Campbell, after a Monday luncheon meeting with former Oilers' coach Bum Phillips, had agent Witt Stewart give Herzog the alternative of trading him or pay him more money, in defiance of the Oilers' strict ban against renegotiating players' contracts.

Stewart said Tuesday Campbell had decided at midseason to demand a contract renegotiation.

"There are three (Houston Astros) baseball players who make more money than Earl. I can't imagine any athlete in this town being more valuable than Earl," he said.

The Heisman Trophy winner from Texas has played for Phillips since Phillips obtained him in a trade with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers for a draft choice. Since then, Campbell has led the league in rushing each of his three NFL seasons.

Campbell seemed satisfied with his financial situation after negotiating his original Oilers' contract early last year to a reported 1980 base salary of $300,000. A subsequent rush of other players seeking more money caused the Oilers to ban renegotiations.

Phillips was fired unexpectedly New Year's Eve, and when Campbell heard the news, he said, "It's gonna take me time to adjust."

Saints' owner John Mecom Jr., and Phillips met in Houston Tuesday night at Mecom's Houston home. Saints' spokesman Greg Suit said the interview was the same as other interviews conducted with other candidates for the head coaching job.

He said the Saints "feel fortunate to be able to consider Bum as a candidate for the head coaching job. We have other candidates that we plan to speak with and we plan to go forward with those interviews."

The meeting lasted 90 minutes. Phillips said later there still were a number of things to work out. He said another meeting was set for today.

Herzog said Stewart told him that Phillips told Campbell the Saints' job was sewed up.

"Witt Stewart called me and informed me Earl had lunch with Bum today (Monday) and Bum told him he had the New Orleans job," Herzog said.

Phillips denied trying to influence Campbell to force a trade.

Campbell refused comment Tuesday.

Campbell reportedly demanded that a meeting be scheduled immediately to begin talks on a new contract, Herzog said.

Herzog and Phillips have both been in touch with aides of NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle to solidify their positions should Phillips get the Saints' job and try to hire the Oilers' assistant coaches.

All six coaches asked Herzog Monday to let them out of their contracts, which run through 1981, and that action infuriated Herzog and caused him to accuse Phillips of tampering. Under NFL by-laws, a team must get approval to talk to a coach about a job.

Herzog said Phillips has not obtained such approval, but Phillips countered by saying he did not represent a team.

In the past, Mecom has said he would like to hire Phillips if he left the Houston job.

NFL's MVP Award Awes Browns' Brian Sipe

CLEVELAND (AP) — He was rarely caught off guard by a blitzing linebacker, but quarterback Brian Sipe says he was entirely surprised by the latest post-season award to hit him.

The heart of the Cleveland Browns' celebrated passing attack, Sipe was named the National Football League's Most Valuable Player by The Associated Press on Tuesday.

"This is one I had never anticipated," Sipe said. "It seems like just a little while ago I was fighting for credibility as an NFL quarterback, and I considered it a great honor just to be playing. Now, they're calling me the most valuable player in the league."

"I'm still a little bit caught off guard by it all."

The 31-year-old quarterback, statistically the NFL's No. 1 passer in 1980, earned 47 of the 84 votes cast by a nationwide panel of sports writers and sports broadcasters, three from each NFL city.

Houston running back Earl Campbell was a distant second in the voting with 22 votes. Philadelphia's Ron Jaworski and Atlanta's Steve Bartkowski tallied four each, and San Diego's Dan Fouts had three. No one else received more than two votes.

"I feel that when a quarterback is recognized for something like this, the whole team is being recognized," said Sipe. "I hope everybody around me realizes that this belongs to them, too."

The 13th-round draft choice out of San Diego State was on the Browns' taxi squad his first two pro seasons and became a starter only after Mike Phipps was injured early in the 1976 season.

He said it is no coincidence that his development as a quarterback has paralleled the rise of the AFC Central Division champion Browns.

"There were some unsettling years here," he said. "We went through a period of rebuilding. In my first six years with the Browns, there were five different people trying to teach me the passing game. I think the entire team suffered as a result."

Then following the 1977 season, Sam Rutigliano, an assistant at New Orleans, was hired as Cleveland's head coach.

"Sam has gotten together a good staff, and they've been around for three years," said Sipe. "It's brought us some stability. Not to mention, Sam came here with some very good thoughts. His approach to offensive football fits very well with the people we have."

Sipe this season became the leading career passer in Browns' history with 18,207 yards, pushing him past Frank Ryan and Otto Graham.

During 1980, his 2.5 interception percentage was lowest in the league, his 30 touchdown tosses second only to Bartkowski's 31, and his 4,132 yards the second-highest total in league history behind Fouts' 4,715.

Though he is 31, Sipe said he is at his peak physically, in part because he didn't take the punishment a regular would have endured during his early years in the league.

Monterey's entire starting lineup scored in double figures as the Plainsmen advanced to 17-1 on the season with a 99-60 whipping of Estacado Tuesday night on the MHS floor.

Kriss Ethridge tallied 20, Kamie Ethridge 18, Alayna Gilmore 15, Andrea Moore 14 and Tracy Muehlrad 10 for the dominating Plainsmen.

Estacado, meanwhile, got 16 points from Maxine Walker and 11 points each from Stephanie Peoples and Cynthia

Mustang Girls Bomb Pampa

The Coronado girls' basketball team used some sharp shooting from both the field and free throw line to defeat Pampa 66-45 Tuesday night in the Mustang gym.

"We got off to a slow start and didn't play very good defense early," CHS coach Miles Johnson said, "but we got a good team effort. We played a lot of people which was good. I thought we handled the ball very well and it pleased me that we got the ball down the floor as easily as we did."

Leading the way for the Mustangs were Teresa Ritchie and Dee Dee Thomason who each scored 11 points. Leanne Wade chipped in 10.

Jones' Short Jumper Defeats Coronado

AMARILLO (Special) — Marvin Jones hit a 10-foot jump shot with only 07 left Tuesday night to nullify a Coronado comeback and give Tascosa a 43-41 victory, only its fourth of the season.

After trailing 36-28 after three periods, the Mustangs fought back to tie the game on a Mark Sobole free throw with 30 remaining but then missed an opportunity for the win.

Hurler Perry Latches On With Braves

ATLANTA (AP) — Gaylord Perry, a 42-year-old free agent, needs only 11 victories to reach 300, and a representative of the veteran pitcher says Perry likely will reach that mark as an Atlanta Brave.

Alan Hendricks, Perry's agent, said Tuesday that the veteran right-hander has reached agreement with the National League Braves on a one-year contract.

"I have told the Braves to make an announcement at their convenience," Hendricks said from Houston. "They made us an offer this morning and Gaylord accepted it. As far as we're concerned, everything's set."

The Braves refused to confirm an agreement, but Al Thornwell, team executive vice president, said, "Only a few little things have to be agreed on."

"For all practical purposes, we've got him," said Thornwell.

The one-year contract for the 1981 season is worth $300,000, the Atlanta Journal reported in Tuesday's editions.

Pitcher Claims Victory In Settlement

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Mike Marshall's grievance against the Minnesota Twins was settled Tuesday night before going to scheduled arbitration today, Marshall's attorney, Dick Moss, announced.

After being released in June when he served as the Twins' player representative, Marshall filed a grievance through the Major League Players Association, contending that he was released because of union activities rather than ineffective pitching, as the Twins contended.

Under the settlement Moss announced, Marshall will receive credit for a full year of service on the major league pension plan even though he was released June 5. And the Twins agreed to reinstate Marshall as of March 1, providing he reports to spring training by March 15. If he doesn't report, he will become a free agent.

Moss said that with this compromise agreement, Marshall dropped his grievance and the complaint to the National Labor Relations Board also was canceled.

Moss said the settlement was "tantamount to admission that Marshall was released because of union activity."

Reached at home late Tuesday, Marshall said, "While I haven't thoroughly examined the settlement to understand all its ramifications, I feel completely vindicated."

Gargantuan Paul Smith Gained Weight For Role

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Paul Smith, the gargantuan Bluto of the new "Popeye" movie, sacrificed his sense of propriety, to say nothing of his girth, to play the role of the sailor man's nemesis.

Smith was comparatively svelte when he accepted the role of Bluto, a tidy 314 pounds which was about his fighting weight as the Turkish villain Hamidou in "Midnight Express."

Of his own volition, Smith chose to gain weight for Bluto, thinking that massiveness would add to his villainy.

The rotund Smith sat in a Beverly Hills restaurant studying the menu with melancholy eyes the other day. He is now trying to lose weight with little success.

"I got up to around 400 pounds for 'Popeye,'" said Smith, an uncommonly amiable man for one so menacing in appearance.

"For two months before we began the picture, I ate very seriously at every opportunity. I went on a diet of high protein to put on weight and muscle. I eat healthy over-eating. I avoided fattening foods such as pastry, bread and sweets. I didn't want fat. I wanted bulk."

"I'd eat five pounds of roast beef for lunch and maybe three chickens for dinner (cooked, of course). While I was putting on all this weight, I was also working in the TV movie 'Masada' in Israel."

"They had to keep refitting my wardrobe as my weight continued to spiral upwards. And I must say I enjoyed the sacrifice."

"My waistline went from 46 to 56 inches. My collar size expanded from 21 1/2 to 24 1/2 inches. I outgrew my costumes for 'Popeye,' and sent word ahead to the wardrobe people. They were prepared to do them all over."

"I'd hoped to stabilize my weight once we got rolling on the film. But our director, Robert Altman, had brought his own chef to Malta and the meals were among the most delicious I ever tasted. So I just continued to balloon upwards."

"The chef would make two roasts for dinner — one for the rest of the cast which he'd slice up, and one for me. But I was trying to cut down. Instead of eating five-pound roasts I went down to 3 1/2 pounders."

"All in all, I'd say I put on 100 pounds to play Bluto, but I can't be sure."

Smith can never be certain just how much weight he gained because almost all American scales register only up to 350 pounds. Smith has wrecked more than one scale in his pursuit of his true bulk.

"I get on scales and the needle makes a noise when it hit the 350-pound peg," he said, laughing.

"I know this much — when I was doing 'Masada' in Tel Aviv, I got on a scales at a produce market which weighs sacks of grain and vegetables. I noticed an even 390 pounds. But I was still gaining at that time."

Since "Popeye" finished shooting, Smith has dropped some poundage. True, not enough to register on local scales, but his waist is down to 50 inches and his collar size is a mere 22 inches.

Size has played an important part in Smith's life as an actor. In major roles of any consequence, his vast bulk has been the determining factor in landing parts.

Most of his roles these days are heavies, er, that is, villains. But there was a time when he portrayed gentle giants. He would like to get back to those roles once more.

Of his impressive physical proportions, Smith says, "It's part of my instrument as an actor. You must play the whole body as you do the emotions."

"There are few, if any, physically large actors around these days as there were in the past — Sidney Greenstreet, Victor McLaglen, Wally Beery, Laird Creager and Charles Laughton."

"I think there's a place for that sort of actor. But writers are reluctant to include characters of my dimensions. They aren't sure there are any actors available to play them. I'm on record as being available.

"One reason I'd like to return to playing gentle giants is to get away from the hostility I encounter everywhere I go on the streets. It was awful after 'Midnight Express' was released. People said some horrible things to me."

"You can't hide very easily when you're my size. All I could do was remind the agitated people that I was simply an actor playing a part. But they still scowled and called me foul names."

Smith is determined to get back to 314 pounds, but is not sure he will be able to diet to that weight for many weeks, perhaps months.

Even so, he said he might put on 100 pounds or more again in the future if a good part came along that required him to return to munching five-pound roasts. He'd just as soon, however, stick to his normal weight of 314.

"Look," he said, "I was born to be big. I weighed 17 pounds at birth. So I never had much of a chance to be small. But it will be nice to see the scales register below 350. It gives me a challenge, something to look forward to."

Mentally Handicapped Get Chance To Act

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — "You have to listen, people. Listen for your cues. Remember your blocking. How could you have forgotten so much in two days?" director Terri Williams said sternly to her cast.

The rehearsal was much like any other community theater rehearsal — with one major difference.

All of the actors in the production "When the Frost is on the Floggleberry," were mentally handicapped.

"Floggleberry" was produced by participants in the Pillsbury-Waite Neighborhood Services Fine Arts Program for Mentally Handicapped Adults, a program which began in 1964.

"Since the beginning it has been strictly a fine arts program. There has not been a goal of therapy or behavioral change," said Miss Williams, 27, who took over as program director in September 1979.

Those enrolled in the program produce two short plays each year, with the cast chosen from the approximately 180 students.

"We start out teaching classes. The students have one to four hours of instruction each week in music, dance, visual arts or theater. Then after three to six months, we do a project incorporating all of the arts," Miss Williams said.

"It's our belief that all people should have access to the performing arts. We have students who are extremely talented," Miss Williams said.

The 37 cast members were chosen in open auditions after the students had spent five weeks in the classroom working on the basic principles of the four arts.

'Frankenstein' Most Expensive Broadway Flop

NEW YORK (AP) — "Frankenstein," a play that closed after one night's performance and one morning's reviews, was the most expensive flop in Broadway history, according to the New York Daily News.

"The curse of Frankenstein was visible the whole time," producer Terry Allen Kramer said this week.

The $2 million production opened and closed the same night.

"Frankenstein" edged 1979's "Ballroom" as the most expensive failure in Broadway history, the News reported. The New York Times described the play's cost as "a record for a non-musical."

The poor reviews were merely the last straw for the play, which had been plagued by problems during its 29 previews.

The show's elaborate special effects and huge set precluded out-of-town tryouts. And after advance sales and critics' reviews fell short of expectations, the production's run was ended.

TV Writer Longs For Return Of 'Jeopardy' To Schedule

By PETER J. BOYER
 LOS ANGELES (AP) — There are occasions, rare enough as to not pose any serious health hazard, when I spend a morning watching TV game shows. I keep hoping that NBC has resurrected "Jeopardy" again.
 Remember "Jeopardy," that long-running trivia fest, with its progressively challenging segments — Jeopardy, Double Jeopardy and the do-or-die Final Jeopardy? And Art Fleming, distinguished-looking savant, guiding anxious contestants through the maze of disconnected facts, alternately bemoaning and celebrating his minions' progress?

"The Old Testament for 20, Art," a contestant would say, and Fleming would whip out a card and pose, "He was the Babylonian king who overran Jerusalem and is mentioned in the Second Book of Kings."
 Ding! "Yes, Judy!"
 "Nebuchadnezzar!"
 "In the form of a question, please..."
 "Who is Nebuchadnezzar?"
 "Right you are!"
 "Jeopardy" had the seductive properties of a crossword puzzle, offering viewers the chance to congratulate themselves for prying out nuggets of knowledge thought lost and forgotten, while never quite allowing arrogance. You could always get a few right even on a bad day, but you could never get them all right on the best of days. Thus, it was addictive, too.

 On "Jeopardy," you saw people who apparently read books, educated people, most of them, conversant in realms beyond fan-magdom. In the days of "Jeopardy," America-seen-through-TV was a place of respectable intellect. Alas, "Jeopardy" ran its course and a reprise was short-lived.
 Last week, I checked in on two new NBC entries, "Las Vegas Gambit" and "Blockbusters," two programs now filling the hour vacated by the canceled "David Letterman Show." The shows are representative products of the If You Had Brains, You Wouldn't Be Watching TV philosophy of programming.

PBS Show Takes Look At African Wildlife

By KENNETH R. CLARK
 NEW YORK (UPI) — Not since the days of "Bring 'Em Back Alive" Frank Buck or of Disney at the peak of his powers has such a golden photographic tone poem graced the screen as "Etosha: Place of Dry Water."
 The African wildlife documentary, filmed around Namibia's barren Etosha Pan — a vast lake for three months of the rainy season and a forbidding expanse of sun-cracked clay for the rest of the year — is the first of the Public Broadcasting Service's National Geographic specials for 1981.

lovingly pulling down and killing a baby zebra while cradling it in her paws, the birth of a wildebeest, the grace and power in slow motion of a cheetah at full charge.
 They spent two years shooting their film in Etosha National Park. Boiling it down into a one-hour cinematographic gemstone narrated by E.G. Marshall must have been an agony, but the results are nothing short of spectacular.
 For the past five years, Grammy Awards — the Oscars of the recording industry — have been presented in palmy Hollywood, despite the fact that the heart of the industry beats in New York.
 But home is where the heart is and the Grammys are coming home.
 The coveted gramophone trophies will be handed out this year on Feb. 25 at Radio City Music Hall while CBS telecasts the whole affair to the nation. Major nominations among the 59 musical categories will be announced Jan. 13 at Radio City by Roberta Flack, Melba Moore and Jerry Mulligan — the first three to sign up for the ranks of celebrity presenters for the big night.

DR. LAMB

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
 DEAR DR. LAMB — When I was in the hospital for a disc operation, X-rays showed that I have gallstones. I never had any problems with them and never knew I had them. Now my doctors say I should have them operated on. I figured if they didn't bother me I wouldn't go to the hospital till they did. But lately I am feeling bloated and have an uncomfortable feeling below my right rib.
 I read your column that said that keeping diseased gallbladders in the body is a poor decision. Please send me The Health Letter number 4-9 on gallstones and gallbladder disease. It may help me decide whether to be operated on.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Please advise me if the vitamin, pangamate, described in the enclosed newspaper article would be of any benefit to me. I am 67 years of age and did have a heart attack almost a year ago and am at present under the care of a cardiologist. I was told my problem was a left blockage to the heart.
 DEAR READER — Forget about pangamate. It is another one of those apricot pit products. It has a checkered past, even including connections with the Mafia in its marketing. It is not a vitamin. When the Food and Drug Administration started cracking down, Food Science, one of the marketers, dropped the term vitamin from its label. Recently in an article in Medical World News, Dr. Victor Herbert, a hematologist from New York Downstate Medical Center in Brooklyn, was quoted as saying one of these products (DMG) when mixed with saliva is mutagenic, meaning a 90 percent chance of its being carcinogenic.

DEAR DR. LAMB — When I was in the hospital for a disc operation, X-rays showed that I have gallstones. I never had any problems with them and never knew I had them. Now my doctors say I should have them operated on. I figured if they didn't bother me I wouldn't go to the hospital till they did.  I read your column that said that keeping diseased gallbladders in the body is a poor decision. Please send me The Health Letter number 4-9 on gallstones and gallbladder disease. It may help me decide whether to be operated on.

DEAR READER — No one wants to have an unnecessary operation. Of course, if you are having symptoms from your gallbladder you may eliminate them with surgery. But I must warn you that many of these same symptoms you describe can be caused by a spastic colon or other digestive disturbances. These also can be related to nervous tension. I am stating this now because now that you know you have gallstones you may be worried about it and this may have contributed to your symptoms.
 Of course, severe symptoms that are definitely related to gallstones provide an adequate reason to have surgery. But many people do have silent stones — as in your case when your stones were first discovered. The two dangers here are a complication, such as an infected gallbladder or small stones that may lodge in the bile duct blocking off bile drainage from your liver.
 The possibility of cancer of the gallbladder or biliary tree in association with gallstones is discussed in The Health Letter you have requested, and I am sending it to you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. About one in a hundred people with untreated gallstones do develop cancer but we can't be sure the stones cause it. The decision also depends on your overall medical status. In older patients who have lots of other diseases, it is sometimes wise to avoid surgery. The risk of the surgery can be greater than the

RADIATION REDUCED
 HIGHLAND HEIGHTS, Ohio (AP) — A maker of diagnostic imaging equipment has teamed with a Canadian teaching hospital to produce a medical technology advance that reduces radiation exposure to patients undergoing X-rays. The new system, developed by Picker Corp. here in collaboration with Toronto University's Sunnybrook Medical Center, cuts the risk of radiation exposure in chest X-rays by up to 80 percent.
