Hostage Release Date Termed Approaching

By United Press International
An Iranian official in charge of the American captives said today "it seems that the date of the release of the hostages is approaching."

But Ahmad Azizi, the official of the prime minister's office in charge of the hostage issue, acknowledged there still may be delays.

The Iranian Parliament postponed debate on the Americans until Wednesday as a result of what some observers saw as a last-ditch attempt by hardliners to block any deal with the United States.

In Paris, the newspaper Le Monde said it has been informed by one of the chief hostage negotiators that the United States and Iran apparently have reached a "total agreement" on a settlement of the hostages crisis.

The French daily said the speaker of Parliament, Hojatoleslam Hashemi Rafsanjani, has no doubt that the accord will be endorsed by the Parliament.

Azizi, interviewed by the government Pars news agency, was asked about reports the hostages may be freed by Friday.

"In view of the fact that the United States' commitment has been accepted by the Algerian government, covering the return of all Iranian assets and necessary measures for returning the assets of the deposed shah and his relatives, and since a public announcement of this commitment has been made by the Algerian government in the form of an official statement, it seems that the date of the release of the hostages is approaching," Azizi said.

But he said that "... it should be noted that the failure to reach agreement on some of the conditions may virtually cause a postponement of the release, and obviously (President-elect Ronald) Reagan's threats would not have a positive effect on the normal process of this task."

The Iranian Parliament postponed debate on the hostages because of a partial boycott by a constitutional group.

The sudden adjournment, moments after the Majlis convened, came just three days before President Carter's deadline on concluding a hostage release deal.

"In view of the absence of the majority of Council of Guardians, the Majlis failed to discuss the two bills for the settlement of financial and legal disputes between the Governments of the Islamic Republic of Iran and the U.S., and nationalization of the assets of the ex-shah and his close relatives," Tehran Radio said.

The Tehran Radio dispatch said "The two bills are scheduled to be discussed at tomorrow's (Wednesday's) session."

Legislature Facing Heavy Work Load

AUSTIN (UPI) — The 67th Texas Legislature convened at noon today to begin work on perhaps the heaviest load handed any session in the state's history, including the constitutional mandate to redraw legislative and congressional districts and federal court orders to reform the state's prisons and improve bilingual education programs.

Red roses decorated each of the 181 desks in the Senate and House as Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Secretary of State George Strake gavelled the two houses to order.

Comptroller Bob Bullock handed the lawmakers a bit of good news only a few hours before the session opened, estimating state revenues will increase by 23.5 percent in the next two years to a record $27.9 billion.

In addition, Bullock said, the state will end the current budget period with a surplus of $568.9 million in the treasury.

"It's good to have money," said Speaker Bill Clayton, whose election to an unprecedented fourth term was the first item of business for the House after formal swearing-in ceremonies were concluded. "We will have more left in surplus for spending this biennium than we've ever had before."

Clayton made his bid for a fourth term despite a long Brilab trial in which he was acquitted of bribery conspiracy charges.

Four members of the Brilab jury which acquitted Clayton almost three months ago came to the Capitol today at the speaker's invitation to watch the opening of the legislative session.

"We're so happy to see you under these circumstances," juror Mary Cook told Clayton as he laughingly greeted the four jurors in the hallway outside his private office, then invited them inside for a conversation.

Another juror, Sylvia Solomon, said, "We've been talking about this for a long time, and we thought this would be a great opportunity to see the opening of a session."

Clayton, during an interview concerning legislative matters, told reporters, "I have four jurors here visiting today."

Asked if the four were his guests,

Clayton replied, "Sure, I invited them all."

Clayton's wife, Delma, also greeted the jurors and visited with them in the hallway, chatting about the trial and the happier circumstances Clayton faced today as members prepared to make him the first man in history to serve as speaker for four terms.

The other jurors who visited with Clayton today were Dorothy Nicholson and Mary Lou Lesseroux.

At the end of Clayton's trial, another juror had said, "I have an excellent opinion of Billy Clayton and I hope he's our next governor."

Two Jurors Selected In Death Case

A-J Correspondent
ABILENE — The first two jurors, a woman and a man who serve as business office managers, were selected here this morning in the capital murder trial of Billy Wayne Alexander.

Accepted were Jeanette Weitzel, a 45-year-old working mother with four children the approximate age of the defendant — and of the murder victim — and Joe Preston Goetz, 38, a father of three who serves as business office manager for West Texas Medical Center.

Mrs. Weitzel, a Mormon, works with her husband and their four children in the family's oil-operating business. A former third-grade teacher in Wyoming, she has two sons and two daughters ranging in age from 21 to 25.

Lubbock District Attorney John T. Montford and co-defense counsel Dick Alexander questioned the woman for about 75 minutes before announcing that she was acceptable.

She was only the second of 85 prospective jurors questioned individually.

Goetz, who has children 16, 14 and 12, was accepted about 12:15 p.m. after being questioned for about the same length of time. He is a Baptist.

Asked about seating two jurors out of the first three prospects, Judge Robert Wright beamed. "It's too good to be true. You know what's going to happen? I'm afraid we're going to stall out now. We might not get another one until Thursday."

Casey To Strengthen CIA

WASHINGTON (UPI) — William Casey said today he intends to reinvestigate the CIA so it can better play its "desperately needed" role of providing the intelligence America must have to confront crises in a dangerous world.

The 67-year-old lawyer testified before the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence as hearings opened on his nomination by President-elect Ronald Reagan to head the nation's intelligence services.

Another of Reagan's top Cabinet nominees, Alexander Haig, told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today that he opposes withdrawal of U.S. forces from South Korea because it would unsettle Asian allies and send a "self-defeating" signal to China.

But Haig, who is Reagan's choice for secretary of state, refused to say whether he would oppose the Peking government's use of force against Taiwan. He said that was too sensitive a subject to be discussed in public.

As CIA director, Casey also will be director of central intelligence — in overall command not only of the CIA, but also of the Defense Intelligence Agency, the FBI's National Security Agency, the State Department's Bureau of Intelligence, and outposts of other agencies.

Accurate intelligence gathering and analysis "is desperately needed for our national security," said Casey, who was chief of secret intelligence in Europe for the Office of Strategic Services during World War II.

"In months ahead," he said, "this nation will continue to confront major international crises."

"This is not the time for another bureaucratic shakeup of the CIA. Instead, it is a time to make American intelligence work better and become more effective and more competent and make the members of its establishment respected and honored."

Casey said the 1970s was a bad period for the CIA, with congressional investigations and media exposes of past abuses.

"Generally, there is poor public perception and understanding of the value of the American intelligence community to the security of the free world," he said.

Casey also pledged to keep the CIA's operations within the law and promised to cooperate with Congress.

Ag Report Raps Federal Help For Large Farms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The federal government should move away from policies that aid big farms and instead place more emphasis on helping small and medium-sized farms, the Agriculture Department said today.

In a long-awaited report, the department said once farms reach an optimal size, the government should do nothing to help them get larger.

To do so is counter-productive and inflationary, the report said.

"Beyond this size, society has no reason to encourage or subsidize growth, nothing to gain either in terms of efficiency or lower food costs, and little to gain in terms of ensuring adequate incomes for farmers," said the report, entitled, "A Time to Choose: Summary Report on the Structure of Agriculture."

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland initiated the study 22 months ago with a warning that if the direction of federal policy does not change, American food production will be controlled by a few giant operators.

The study said market forces alone encourage farm expansion, and government policies that directly or indirectly contribute to enlargement are "both inflationary and an inefficient use of resources."

In what became known as the "structure" project, Bergland held hearings across the country and commissioned studies on commodity programs, tax policy, land ownership, conservation, credit, research and farm labor.

Bergland hoped the findings would be translated into policy changes in the comprehensive farm legislation that will replace the 1977 law that expires this year. President Carter's defeat changed that.

With a large farm operator, John Block, named to succeed Bergland in the Reagan administration, the report is expected to be shelved and used only by critics of traditional farm policies.

Bergland's report predicts possibly even greater price fluctuations than those of the 1970s, a time of sharply increasing exports, swings between commodity surpluses and shortages and unstable farm income.

Because large farms, with heavy debts and high expenses, are vulnerable to declines in cash flows, the government should help small and medium-sized farms maintain a food production cushion and a diverse, resilient and competitive agricultural system, the report concludes.

Large farms produce more than half of all farm products. Those with annual sales exceeding $100,000 represent 7.1 percent of the 2.4 million farms and account for 56 percent of total sales.

Cold Wave Nips Florida's Crops

A-J News Services
Temperatures in the teens froze oranges and grapefruit on the trees in Central Florida early today and growers farther south feared vegetables might be damaged in the cold snap gripping the Eastern seaboard.

"There's probably quite a bit of damage," a spokesman for Florida Citrus Mutual said before dawn, when temperatures had dipped into the mid to low-20s in the heart of the citrus belt.

Suspect Held In Robbery

Lubbock's first convenience store robbery of the year saw swift retribution today, with the man recovered and the suspected assailant captured by city police within 17 minutes of the event.

The 7-Eleven convenience store at 313 N. Detroit Ave. was robbed at gunpoint around 6 a.m. today, said Bill Morgan, police public information officer.

The two employees of the store, Bobby Don Nabors, 48, of 2218 10th St. and Milton Harris, 21, of 2926 E. Colgate St. told police a masked gunman wearing a Don Farmer, assistant general manager of the Mutual, said there would be some damage to the fruit — probably to juice content.

He said it would be several weeks to a month before the full extent of the freeze damage is determined.

Temperatures in the state dropped well below freezing early today as far south as Tampa. Tallahassee reported a 14-degree reading, Jacksonville 18, Gainesville 20, Orlando 24, and Tampa 25.

National Weather Service forecasters said freezing temperatures could last for up to 12 hours today before temperatures rise. Citrus is endangered when the temperature remains at 28 degrees or lower for four hours or more.

Citrus growers were left with little more than prayer to try to save their trees, however.

Most growers are unable to protect their groves by burning fires, the traditional method, because state regulations now outlaw all but clean-burning fuel-oil heaters.

In contrast, weather remained relatively balmy over much of the southwestern region of the nation, although murky skies and fog provided a wintry atmosphere this morning in West and South Texas.

TOO EASY FOR ENEMY TO SPOT Army To Give Up Shiny Boots

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — In the interest of national security, American foot soldiers are giving up the spit-shine.

The Defense Department says the gleaming boots produce a "signature" that can be spotted easily by an enemy using infrared lenses from afar.

The shiny boots, first introduced in the 1950s, will be replaced by rough, brown leather boots similar to those that carried soldiers into World War I. Unlike their predecessors, however, the new boots will not come with spats.

The boot will feature a steel-plate toe, a fiberglass protected sole, a new high-traction tread and a speed-lacing device to allow for fast changes. Military officials say they won't show up under infrared lenses, which are used to spot troop concentrations.

The Army project is to be adopted by all services.

Many foot soldiers didn't really use spit to shine their boots because the acid ruins the polish. It's cotton balls, hot liquid polish and lots of elbow grease that work up the bright gleam.

But nonetheless, some servicemen say they can't imagine an unshined boot.

"I don't believe it," said Marine Corps military policeman George Huffman, 20, stationed at Atlantic Fleet Marine Force Headquarters in Norfolk. The Marine Corps is scheduled to introduce the new boots in 1983.

"They might change the boot, but they'll still find a way for us to shine them," Huffman said.

Drill sergeants may find the change hard to handle. It's traditional to introduce the recruit to a can of polish, a rag and spit on his first day in uniform.

SPAG Officials Warned Of CETA Fund Slashes

By DEBBI STALTER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The pending administrative takeover by President-elect Ronald Reagan may leave the South Plains Association of Governments with some empty office space where former manpower training program staff members once worked.

SPAG Executive Director Jerry Casstevens said in an executive committee meeting this morning that the association has been notified to expect substantial cutbacks in Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) funds.

Casstevens said he probably will know just how much SPAG stands to lose on Jan. 29.

Casstevens told The Avalanche-Journal he feels the cutbacks will come through attrition — by SPAG not being allowed to replace employees who leave the training program staff list.

"We have quite a few holes already," Casstevens noted. CETA operations have been held in limbo since Reagan's election.

The cutback could have more than one negative effect on SPAG operations, especially in regard to recent negotiations the association completed on a building lease agreement for the next three years.

CETA staff members occupy about half of the SPAG building at 1709 26th St. Preliminary considerations would possibly be to ask another governmental group to occupy the portion of the building left vacant.

Under terms of the lease agreement, SPAG will rent its current site at payments of $61,000 this year, $65,000 in 1982 and $69,000 in 1983.

The only recourse SPAG would have in breaking that agreement is if currently requested building repairs are not completed within an agreed 90-day period.

SPAG also is involved in searching for a new director of its employment and training operation. Current director Juanita Forbes will be leaving the position Feb. 15.

In other current issues, the executive committee learned that a House subcommittee may recommend to the current session of the Texas Legislature that the See FUND CUTS Page 16

James Cagney Hurt In Accident

STANFORDVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — Actor James Cagney was treated for a bruised knee after a station wagon he was riding in collided with another car on the Taconic State Parkway, state police said.

The 81-year-old actor and his personal secretary, who was driving, were crossing the parkway Monday when their car collided with a car driven by Lloyd Liu, 37, of Bennington, Vt., said Trooper Arthur Krug.

Krug, who saw the accident, said Liu's head went through the windshield of his sports car. Liu was in satisfactory condition at Vassar Brothers Hospital in Poughkeepsie with cuts and bruises.

Caney, who owns a farm near his eastern Dutchess County village, refused medical treatment at the scene, but Krug said a trooper who drove him home discovered a deep bruise on one of his knees. Krug said Cagney was treated by a doctor later in the afternoon.

Cagney's secretary, Marg Zimmermann, was treated and released from Sharon Hospital in Connecticut. Police did not provide her age. No charges were filed.

Albert Hospitalized With Chest Pains

OKLAHOMA CITY (A) — Former House Speaker Carl Albert, who recently suffered a heart attack, was in stable condition at Oklahoma Memorial Hospital after a recurrence of chest pains, a hospital spokesman said.

The spokesman said Monday that tests were being conducted on the 72-year-old Democrat from McAlester, who was being treated in the post-coronary care unit.

Albert's position as speaker of the House of Representatives from 1970 until 1977 placed him behind the vice president in succession the presidency. At two points — when Spiro T. Agnew was forced to resign as vice president in 1973 and when Richard M. Nixon stepped down as president during the Watergate scandal in 1974 — Albert was second only to the president.

Albert was admitted to a McAlester hospital Dec. 30 after complaining of chest pains. He was transferred to the hospital in Oklahoma City Jan. 4 and doctors later confirmed he had suffered a heart attack in the McAlester hospital.

A 7,840-pound cache was burned Monday — smokelessly — in a Republic Steel Corp. steel furnace outfitted with clean-air devices.

The marijuana, one of the largest finds ever in the Midwest, was discovered Saturday on Interstate 90 in the back of an abandoned rental truck overturned in a snow bank.

Police in Mentor traced footprints from the overturned truck back to the highway. They theorize an escort vehicle picked up the driver.

Mentor Police Chief Thoas C. Fracci said he find was a "lucky break for law enforcement officials. I'm so glad this marijuana is out of circulation."

The marijuana was loaded into two dump trucks Monday and taken to the steel mill. Authorities cut into every tenth bale and took samples as evidence.

Mafia Boss Sentenced To Jail

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI) — The government has succeeded for the first time in obtaining a prison sentence for Joseph "Joe Bonanno" Bonanno Sr., the former New York City Mafia boss whose crime career began under the tutelage of Al Capone.

The silver-haired Bonanno, 75, who rose from gunrunner and bootlegger in the roaring '20s to direct a mob family, was sentenced Monday in U.S. District Court to five years in prison for attempting to thwart a federal investigation into the laundering of underworld money. He was also fined $10,000.

No date was set for Bonanno to report to the U.S. marshal's service.

Bonanno's attorney, Albert Krieger, said he would appeal the conviction and Bonanno was allowed to remain free on bail increased from $25,000 to $75,000.

U.S. District Judge William Ingram said because of Bonanno's failing health, the sentence could be reduced to two years after an investigation into his condition during a 90-day stay behind bars.

In September — after a 14-week, non-jury trial — Ingram found Bonanno guilty of conspiracy to obstruct justice in the federal grand jury investigation.

The prosecution's key evidence was trash, including letters and scribbles in Sicilian, pulled from garbage cans at Bonanno's home in Tucson, Ariz., by FBI agents.

Before sentencing, the judge asked Bonanno whether he would make a statement. He replied in a soft voice: "On account of my health I have nothing to say. Mr. Krieger is speaking for me. Let it go at that."

In an hour-long plea for leniency, Krieger noted Bonanno was suffering from cancer and heart trouble and his wife recently died "as a direct result of Mr. Bonanno's conviction."

The attorney also said Bonanno faced "another tragedy, an ultimate horror," that will hit his family soon. He did not elaborate.

Bonanno, a native of Sicily, was convicted on criminal charges only once but never went to prison. He was fined $450 in 1945 for violating New York City's rent control laws. He was said to have retired from the Mafia when he moved to Arizona, but some lawmen believe he still has a hand in underworld activities.

Bonanno left the courthouse without answering reporters' questions.

Krieger, however, accused FBI agents and authorities in Tucson of trying to kill Bonanno. He said that in 1978 a bomb "stamped U.S. government" was thrown over a fence surrounding Bonanno's home and nearly struck several of his grandchildren.

Krieger also said he had been ready to introduce mobster-turned-informer Jimmy "The Weasel" Fratianno as a witness to show that Bonanno had no connections with the Mafia for the past 15 years.

But since the judge indicated such testimony would not alter his decision, Krieger said, Fratianno was not called.

Prosecutor Michael Sterrett told the judge the heart of the case was that Bonanno headed a Mafia family and showed "absolute disdain for the law for decades" and in this case conspired with his nephew and co-defendant, Jack De Filippi, a San Jose commodities broker, to mislead investigators looking into businesses run by Bonanno's two sons as fronts for mob-obtained income.

De Filippi was convicted on charges of conspiracy and perjury.

Bonanno's reign in the New York Mafia was believed to have lasted at least until his 1964 "kidnapping" by gunmen in front of his Park Avenue apartment a day before he was to testify on Mafia operations before a grand jury.

He went into hiding for 19 months, emerging in May 1966 to surrender in New York. He never explained his absence but was acquitted of a charge of conspiracy to obstruct justice for failing to appear before the grand jury.

Bonanno then moved to Arizona.

MAFIA CHIEF SENTENCED — Joseph Bonanno Sr., left, leaves the courtroom with attorney Albert Krieger in San Jose, Calif., after being sentenced to five years in prison and a $10,000 fine Monday. Records Indicate Past Charges Against Dead Children's Mother

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. (AP) — The pregnant mother of the 11 children who died in a house fire after being left alone was charged last year with allowing them to beg food and money on city streets, according to court documents.

East St. Louis police accused Virginia Williams in August with "knowingly allowing her children to wander on the public streets in East St. Louis ... to beg," according to the documents obtained by the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The complaint, alleging a misdemeanor, was filed with St. Clair County Juvenile Court Judge Milton Wharton. It was pending at the time of the fire.

The 28-year-old Miss Williams also was called into court twice in 1977 on suspicion of child neglect by the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services, court records indicated, and her children once were placed in a foster home.

Miss Williams was held overnight and then released Monday after 11 of her 12 children were killed in the blaze, which roared through the northside home before dawn Sunday. No charges were filed.

Police said the children had been left alone for 12 hours. A 12th child was staying with relatives in Mississippi.

A faulty or improperly installed space heater was blamed for the fire. A July 1977 complaint against Miss Williams was dismissed at the request of the St. Clair County state's attorney's office for undetermined reasons.

As a result of the second complaint filed in August 1977, the family services department placed her children in a foster home. However, they were returned to Miss Williams when she said she was moving to Mississippi.

One of the complaints alleged the children were "repeatedly left unattended by their mother or found to be dirty, smell and improperly fed."

The other complaint charged Miss Williams "left her children Sept. 23, 1977, in the care of a 14-year-old minor while she visited in Grenwood, Miss."

The DCF's regional director refused to discuss the case, saying Mrs. Williams' privacy was protected by state laws concerning the release of reports concerning abused and neglected children.

"I'm not sure what happened," said Anthony Jenkins, regional director. "I think there are a lot of factors relating to any situation."

The agency's handling of the case brought angry reactions.

"Beyond question, DCF's knew this woman, and they knew about these kids," said state Rep. Wyattte Youge, D-East St. Louis. "And they're the ones guilty of neglect. They knew these kids were left alone."

Wille Arthur Jones, who discovered the fire, said he is the father of seven of the children. Court records name four other men as fathers of the other children.

Jones said Miss Williams went to Mississippi in 1977, but returned late that summer. He said she had lived in Mississippi, Iowa and Virginia in the past several years.

Miss Williams said she was "riding somewhere in St. Louis" with Jones at the time of the fire, according to police. Jones checked on the children two or three times during the day, discovering the fire the last time, police said.

Funeral services for the victims will be held Wednesday.

Gas Well Off Texas Coast Blows Out; One Man Dies

CAMERON, La. (UPI) — A tower of flame shooting from a multi-million dollar natural gas rig in the Gulf of Mexico that blew out, killing one man and injuring 30 others, may be snuffed with a relief well — a procedure that could take up to three months.

Several men injured in the blowout Monday, which miraculously did not ignite until eight hours later, had to jump into the frigid Gulf water wearing nothing but their longjohns. Two men remained hospitalized today.

"That blowout would have been like a bomb if there had been a fire," said one worker. "If there had been a spark, it would have been all over. We're just damn lucky to be here."

The well began spewing natural gas about 9 a.m. Monday, forcing the crew of 31 to scramble for safety. All made it safely off the rig and onto a boat for evacuation by helicopter, but one man died later at Lake Charles Memorial Hospital.

Natural gas blowing from the well-head caught fire about eight hours after the blowout began, sending up a flame that lit the night sky over the rig, located 15 miles off the Louisiana-Texas coast, south of Sabine Pass.

Van Kojis of Placid Oil Co., which had the rig under contract, said a relief well might have to be drilled to choke off the blowout. That job could take several months.

Kenneth McCauley of Abbeville, La., estimated 20 to 25 men jumped into the water in the freezing weather. He said he was asleep when the well blew out.

"All of a sudden, people were scrambling off," he said.

McCauley said several rig workers climbed into a nearby supply boat and began rescuing the men who were swimming in the water, some of them wearing only thermal underwear or jumpsuits.

"It took us 20 to 25 minutes to get the people out of the water," he said.

The dead man was identified as John Brewbridge, 53, of Iowa, La. The two who were admitted and held today were Mark Pearce, 21, of Bossier City, La., and Ronald Darr, 23, of Lake Charles, La.

Twenty-eight other workers from the rig were treated at Lake Charles Memorial for exposure and released.

Kojis, a Placid spokesman in Houma, La., said the cause of the blowout was unknown. He said the fire was "blowing like a torch" into the air.

A Penrod spokesman estimated value of the rig at $10 million to $12 million.

Coroner Will Not File Complaint

ATLANTA (AP) — Fulton County's chief medical examiner says he has decided not to pursue charges against law enforcement officers who disturbed the skeletal remains of two children last week.

Dr. Robert Stivers said Monday that his complaint against the officers would be handled as an administrative matter rather than a legal one.

"I believe they have learned their lesson," Stivers said of the officers involved. "It's just a damn shame it happened. If we can just make sure this doesn't happen again, we'll be okay."

The bones were found Friday by police seeking clues in the deaths and disappearances of 15 black children.

Stivers had threatened to bring charges after agents from his office arrived at the crime scene and discovered that officials from the FBI and the state Crime Lab had moved the bones before the scene could be examined.

Under Georgia law, disturbing a crime scene without permission from the medical examiner is a misdemeanor punishable by a maximum penalty of one year in prison and a $1,000 fine.

Stivers and his staff of examiners have not been able to identify positively the remains of the two children.

He said it may be days or weeks before a final determination is made as to whether the remains are those of two of the five black children who have been reported missing here during the past 18 months.

But he said that examiners are virtually certain that one of the bodies is one of the missing children. And he said the other one probably is, too.

Both Ships Blamed In Collision

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Military investigators have concluded the Coast Guard cutter Blackthorn and the oil tanker SS Capricorn were both to blame for a collision in Tampa Bay that killed 23 guardsmen, according to the Tampa Tribune.

The newspaper, quoting sources close to the investigation, reported Monday that a Marine Board of Inquiry's final report would fault both ships for failure to keep as far to the right as practical, to sound roper whistle signals at proper times and to establish radio contact.

Commandant Adm. John B. Hayes reportedly concurred with the findings of the board, clearing the way for release of the findings nearly a year after the Jan. 28, 1980, accident, the worst in the peacetime history of the Coast Guard.

Coast Guard officials refused comment, saying the report would be made public today or tomorrow.

In a related matter, The Tribune said a Coast Guard hearing officer has recommended dismissal of court-martial charges against Blackthorn deck officer Lt. j.g. J.R. Ryan, who was at the helm of the aging buoy tender at the time of the accident.

According to sources quoted by the newspaper, Capt. Delmar F. Smith of Mobile, Ala., also left it to 8th Coast Guard District commander, Rear Adm. Paul Yostwhether, to court-martial Blackthorn skipper Lt. Cmdr. George J. Sepel. Yost is expected to make his decision Friday.

Jenrette Says Cash In Shoe Not Payoff Money

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Rep. John Jenrette and his attorney insist $25,000 in cash found stuffed into a brown suede shoe in Jenrette's closet is not part of the Abscam payoff money that ended his political career.

"It's not Abscam money," Kenneth Robinson, Jenrette's attorney, told United Press International late Monday.

The money mystery surfaced Monday, when it was disclosed the cash — most of it in $100 bills — had been found in Jenrette's closet last Friday by his wife, Rita.

Jenrette, 44, a South Carolina Democrat, was convicted Oct. 7 of accepting a $50,000 bribe from FBI undercover agents posing as representatives of a wealthy Arab sheik. FBI officials have said $40,000 of the sum is unaccounted for.

Jenrette, who insisted he actually pocketed only $10,000 of the money in the form of a loan from co-defendant John Stowe, denied the cash found in the shoe had any connection to the government's Abscam operation.

"It's not the FBI's money," he told The Washington Post. "It's money I had for years. I just brought it from the safe in my South Carolina law office. I can assure you that if the money came from Abscam, I'd walk into jail right now."

Mrs. Jenrette turned over the money to her attorney, former South Dakota Sen. James Abourezk, for safe-keeping.

Robinson said a preliminary examination of serial numbers on the bills by the FBI indicated they were not part of the Abscam cash Jenrette received. He said additional comparisons needed to make a conclusive judgment are to be made today.

The cash disclosure added a new twist to the Jenrette story, coming one day after Mrs. Jenrette, who had stood by her husband's side during his trial and unsuccessful bid for a fourth term, announced she was divorcing him.

The Post said Jenrette did not learn of his wife's decision to seek a divorce or of the $25,000 until a telephone call home Sunday night.

Jenrette, his attorney said, was "hurt, disappointed and angry — by the fact that his wife is making such a cheap play for publicity" by making the back-to-back disclosures of the divorce and the discovery of the cash.

Robinson said Mrs. Jenrette is trying to generate publicity for "a movie or something."

He said the cash, once ruled out as Abscam money, probably will be used as part of the Jenrettes' divorce settlement.

"That's par for the course," he said.

But he said "a substantial amount" of the money is owed to him.

"A substantial amount of that money was to go to me for legal fees," he said. "That was my understanding."

Developer Offers Fallout Shelter Resort

LA VERKIN, Utah (UPI) — For $39,000 a southern Utah developer will sell you a plushly furnished 12-by-30-foot underground condominium that is fallout proof and equipped with a year's supply of food and water for a family of four.

Ronald Boutwell, president of Survive Tomorrow, Inc., said Monday he is building a new kind of "resort" in the desert for people who worry about such things as nuclear war and economic collapse.

The one-bedroom condos are protected by 3½ feet of dirt and 8 inches of reinforced concrete. They will have the latest in air filtration equipment, an entertainment center, a jogging track, a medical clinic and a sophisticated security system to keep out intruders.

And when the world is not at war or in economic turmoil, the resort will offer outdoor swimming, tennis and handball. It is located 25 minutes from Zion National Park, an hour from a ski resort and about two and a half hours from Las Vegas.

Boutwell, an attorney, calls the planned 240-unit development Terrene Ark I (Earth Ark I). He has already built two model units and graded the 8-acre site for the remainder of the project.

"I suppose you would call it an underground, fallout-proof survival retreat or resort," he said. "But it would be a great place to spend a vacation."

"The units are completely furnished and stocked with food. All you need is the key and sheets for the bed."

Boutwell said he and his associates decided to build the resort because there are many people who believe the world is either on the verge of a nuclear war or a major economic collapse. Without any advertising, the company has already had over 400 telephone inquiries about the units and is in the process of writing contracts with 50 buyers, he said.

Officials Expect To Find Sixth Fire Victim's Body

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP) — A fire in a brick tenement killed five people, including three young children, and officials say they expect to find the body of a sixth victim.

The blaze Monday night began in a first-floor hallway and raced up through the eight-apartment building, caving in the roof and leaving the fourth floor partly collapsed.

"A public hallway is about the worst place for a fire," said Fire Director Ray Maloney.

"We expect to find a sixth victim," he added. "There's one child unaccounted for."

Maloney said it will be "a little tough to locate the other body," because of debris from the roof cave-in and collapsed fourth floor.

Three of the victims were found in separate rooms on the third floor and two were found on the fourth floor.

Experts Seek Outage Cause

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — State electrical experts today began seeking the cause of a power outage that blacked out all of Utah and parts of two other states.

Utah Power & Light has said the power failure Thursday was caused by a trash fire at the state prison. However, Deputy Attorney General Paul Tinker on Monday said there was some doubt that the fire caused the outage.

"This thing is not so clear cut a UP&L might have us believe," he said.

"We are sure the fire triggered the incident. There is no negligence on our part," said Grant Pendleton, UP&L spokesman.

The blackout left 1.5 million people in Utah, southeastern Idaho and southwestern Wyoming without power for several hours in one of the largest outages ever.

The company contends two barrels amid trash being burned at the prison burst into flames, sending a fireball hooting up and causing arcing in a 1,500-megawatt line 50 feet above. That then sent a surge through the power grid, shutting down six plants, the company said.

OUR PLEDGE:

Hands Out For Handout

CUBA'S Communist Party Congress closed out the year in Havana on a distinctly somber note in which Fidel Castro said more in typically torrential addresses than probably even he intended.

The emphasis was on the home front and economic plans designed to effect a noticeable improvement in living standards during the coming five years.

Cubans are being promised not only more plentiful supplies of essential food and clothing but such luxuries as telephones, television and autos.

To achieve the production necessary to deliver on the promised supplies, factories will introduce incentive systems, increasing basic pay rates for better, faster work.

What the plans for the future point up is a substantial economic performance in the present.

SOME OF THE problems are beyond human (even Castro's) power to control. Bad weather and blight have sharply cut sugar and tobacco production. Cuba's agricultural mainstays now as before the revolution.

But Castro himself, a frequent critic of inefficiency in economic management, acknowledges there is more to it.

Twenty-two years after the revolution, Cuba still is not viable economically. It is the recipient of the world's largest long-run foreign aid program, a transfusion that has now reached the equivalent of $7 million every day from the Soviet Union.

Both the best and worst news of the year just ended may be the conclusion of a new aid agreement.

Cuba can count on another $35 billion from the Soviets, but has had to commit itself to remaining on the take for another five years—precisely the period of the brave new economic plan.

THERE ARE political problems, also. Castro's prestige in the Third World has been having more downs than ups of late.

In two tries, Cuba has failed to win election to a seat on the UN Security Council.

And recent government changes in Castro's own Caribbean neighborhood, where his influence has been considerable and of considerable concern to Washington, have not gone his way—most recently and notably of late, Jamaica.

Castro's year-end offer to discuss the emigration problem would certainly have been subject to very careful examination even if the Carter administration had not been succeeded by a considerably more hard-nosed variety.

The meaning of the change doubtless is not lost on Castro, who said this week he's adopting a wait-and-see attitude toward the Reagan team.

He can be sure they'll be doing some of that in Washington, also.

"NANCY HAS HER ITTY BITTY GUN... I HAVE MY ITTY BITTY AXE"

John D. Lofton:

Disarming Of CIA Is Alarming

WASHINGTON—Frank Carlucci's statement to me in an interview that he believes the CIA is "stronger" today under the dictatorship of Adm. Stansfield Turner than it was four years ago is a view at odds with the views of Ronald Reagan, Reagan's national security adviser Richard Allen, the 1980 Republican Platform, and the recent report given to Reagan by his CIA transition team.

In a statement to the GOP Platform Committee last January, Allen charged that in recent years the Carter administration and the Democratic-controlled Congress had "dramatically weakened the capability of the U.S. to collect foreign intelligence and to protect our internal security." Said Allen:

"THIS UNILATERAL disarming of our intelligence agencies, each a vital element in our total defense structure, has continued and accelerated during the Carter-Mondale administration.

"The result is that the intelligence community has lost much of its ability to supply the President, senior U.S. policy officials and Congress with the best possible information and with timely warnings of threats to our security."

The 1980 Republican Platform says basically the same thing. No wonder that, when I asked him, Carlucci was unable to come up with any Reaganite who shares his view that the CIA is "stronger" than it was four years ago.

As for Carlucci's role in SALT, a source who watched him testify on the Hill says he said everything the Carter administration wanted him to say. This source says that Carlucci testified that the CIA could monitor and verify, with high confidence, all of the important areas of the SALT II treaty.

Referring to what Caspar Weinberger—Reagan's defense-secretary designate and a personal friend of Carlucci's—told me, my source says:

"IF CARLUCCI'S ROLE was to prevent the CIA from testifying that they had the verification capability the Carter administration wanted the CIA to say, then Carlucci blew his role. Because he didn't say this."

Concerning what Weinberger calls Carlucci's "leading role" in strengthening the CIA—specifically, his backing of a bill to make disclosure of a CIA agent's name a felony—the record does not bear this out.

At one time, Carlucci supported a House bill that made it a crime to identify and expose covert agents with the "intent to impair or impede the foreign intelligence activities."

Here's what the CIA's own general counsel, Daniel Silver, said when asked how difficult it would be for the government to prove such an "intent" if the accused is a journalist:

"IF YOU TAKE The New York Times and The Washington Post, in my judgment it would be virtually impossible to prove such an intent, absent circumstances that, as far as I am aware, do not exist—that is, if the journalist in question were to go around the community boasting of the fact that he was on a personal vendetta or crusade against the agency."

In our interview, Carlucci admitted that his backing of the House "intent" version of the CIA agent protection bill put him at odds with the Justice Department, which opposed this measure for the same reason the CIA's general counsel opposed it.

Finally, Carlucci was among those members of the National Foreign Intelligence Board who approved the Dec. 18, 1980, awarding of the National Intelligence Distinguished Service Medal to Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind.

This award, presented in the CIA director's dining room, praised Bayh for his "outstanding performance," his "perceptive and dynamic leadership," and for having been "a source of inspiration to all the intelligence community."

THIS IS A very strange award to give Bayh. When the Senate Judiciary Committee was considering legislation to protect the identities of CIA agents from public disclosure, Bayh voted for several amendments that Carlucci told me would have "crippled and gutted" this law.

The strange thing about the fight over Frank Carlucci is that it is taking place at all. As one person who has followed the whole thing closely told me: "If Carlucci wasn't Weinberger's best friend, he wouldn't be appointed dogcatcher in a Reagan administration."

(EDITOR'S NOTE: News services during the past weekend reported Carlucci had been named deputy director of the Defense Department, as Weinberger wished.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

Midland: A Mirage

TWENTY MILES this side of Midland, Bob Blake couldn't believe his eyes. There, on the bald prairie, was a city skyline that had not been there a week before.

It was an impressive sight, with towering skyscrapers that would do justice to a city of 500,000. "I know you can't see Midland from here," Blake said. "You can't see it until you top a rise 10 miles out of town."

But it was Midland. A mirage. Somehow, in the early morning sunlight, the atmospheric conditions were just right to project a clear image of the city and plow it down on the horizon in front of us.

It disappeared, as we drew nearer, as suddenly as it had appeared.

But the mirage was only slightly less stunning than the reality of Midland itself. In the wake of the energy crunch, the city is growing in unbelievable fashion.

There are so many cranes atop highrise office buildings under construction downtown that we couldn't count them all. A half-dozen at least, maybe more.

IN NORTHWEST Midland, quarter-million and half-million dollar homes are going up like the GI tract development homes that spread across American suburbs after World War II.

Plush new apartment houses are being built to house the secretaries and office workers who serve the executives and independent oilmen building the fancy homes.

It is a fantastic sight—and the local enthusiasts see no end to it.

Once before, a generation ago, Midland boomed. It grew from 9,352 in 1940 to 21,713 in 1950 and then busted at the seams. Its 1960 population was 62,625.

But then the Permian Basin oil boom faded. In the late 1960s, the population declined to 59,463.

In the early 1970s, Midland muddled along. One oil company after another pulled out, leaving behind vacant office space and a hard-to-mask civic gloom.

But now the boom is back.

FACING THE REALITY of dependence on foreign oil while untapped supplies lie beneath domestic soil, the government belatedly moved to take off price controls to make it profitable to hunt for, find and produce more at home.

Even with the windfall tax, the potential rewards are great enough, because of allowance for inflation, to encourage new drilling activity.

Midland is filling again with executive offices, while nearby Odessa attracts the families of the drilling crews.

The official 1980 census is expected to show Midland with a population in excess of 75,000 and optimism is running high.

One young executive, proudly showing an artist's sketch of the new office building he's planning, typically pooch-poochs suggestions that the boom may go bust again.

INDEED, IT WOULD be difficult to be pessimistic amid the go-go atmosphere of today's Midland.

Besides the oil activity, new industry is moving to town. A Texas Instruments plant is in operation. Michelin Tire has plans for a new facility.

Shopping centers are flourishing.

Downtown, there seems to be a Wall Street brokerage office on just about every corner that hasn't been cleared away for a new multi-story office building.

Bank deposits shot past $1 billion last year and kept right on rising. Unemployment hovers around a mere 4 percent.

The local Rolls-Royce dealer mails out a multi-page brochure of new year's selections, some of them for less than $100,000.

WE LUNCHEd at the newly completed $8 million Petroleum Club, a member of which reacted as though he'd been insulted when a visitor said he'd heard it had cost a mere $3.5 million.

In Midland, money is no object when they decide to do things up first class.

One man is reported to have built his home around a tennis court, with a bowling alley in the basement.

It is all very, very impressive, with million-dollar deals the subject of coffee break conversations in a city where hundred thousand-dollar trades may be dreamed up in the morning and completed before the banks close that afternoon.

Midland today surely would give an oldtime wildcatter something of the flavor of a bygone era, although it just as surely is more substantial than the boomtowns of the past.

And, yet, that mirage 20 miles out of town keeps flickering in one's memory. Is Midland itself for real, or merely a monument to man's imaginative optimism which, as once before, will fade as suddenly as it bloomed?

Holmes Alexander:

America's Ripe For Revolution

WASHINGTON—Cultural revolution! If the Red Chinese hadn't given the expression such a bad name, it would well serve Ronald Reagan as he takes over our own country.

We began as a revolutionary movement, throwing off the rule of a king, startling the 18th century world by declaring Independence, thrilling all of intellectual Europe with the proclamation of the rights of a people and of the individual in the name of God.

Gov. Reagan, I say, rides to power on the winds of change, a mandate for reconstruction of America from the ground up. We cannot continue going the way we're going without plunging into a terrestrial Hell, into the Dark Ages of the New World.

BUT OUR DECLINE can stop short of the Fall if—one must be absolute and say only if—the new President thinks Revolution, not Reform, not recovery, but an Uprooting and Renaissance.

He is being urged to declare a state of economic emergency on Jan. 20, but I propose that he broaden this into a national emergency. He must, of course, surge into action with programs to halt or reverse federal hiring and spending.

Despite timorous advice that he not disturb the economy and people's equilibrium by strong measures—closing the banks and stock markets—President Reagan cannot afford to be anything except strong.

A revolution means a turn-over, and he must do this before he can do much else. Inflation requires drastic remedies perhaps including suspension of our dollar system and the issuance of script.

BY EXTENDING ECONOMIC emergency to national emergency, he may need the military quick-fix. This will mean martial law to combat crime, courts martial to mete instant justice and punishment.

Once the President has ordered and enforced a standstill of all that is downward in the nation's activities, he must call upon us to take a searching and critical look before another start.

The pause will give us time to reconsider for instance the gross reliance of our automotive industry for employment and income. The plants now failing must be allowed to fail.

A Presidential edict must be issued to halt and turn back the immigrant-invaders. This will require some very unsentimental statements, some ruthless orders from Reagan.

Boats and planes which brought undesirables here, can return them to countries of origin. All branches of the Armed Services, including National Guards and Reservists, must enforce a massive deportation.

Only if Reagan can be a Commander in deed, not just in title, can the country re-think its way out of the fallacy of pacifism. No nation that is afraid of war will avoid, survive or win a war.

President Reagan will fall short of his duty if he fails to bring this truth to the people.

With leadership, our military forces can win anywhere in the Western Hemisphere, the prime theater of operation. I would hope the Reagan decisions would lead very soon to the overthrow of Castroite Cuba.

With Cuba restored to the Hemisphere family, attention must be turned to communist infiltration throughout the Caribbean and Central America. Here, as Gov. Reagan proposed when he announced his candidacy, we should consider help from Canada and Mexico, a North American Accord.

The President-elect has already gone revolutionary—and reverted to American tradition—in passing the word that "nationalistic" will hereafter define our foreign policy.

Sylvia Porter:

FTC Failed To Protect Itself From Criticism

NEW YORK—The Federal Trade Commission is almost surely facing major surgery, if not actual dismemberment, during the Reagan administration.

Even optimists in the top U.S. agency responsible for policing the marketplace and protecting consumer interests admit the knives have been keenly sharpened—and with reason:

* An explosion of FTC rule-making in the late 1970s infuriated a large and widespread variety of businesses—all of which have vowed to curtail what they consider the FTC's "dangerous" powers.

* Every incoming attorney general in every new administration has thought fondly of dismantling the Federal Trade Commission in order to annex the agency's pieces to the Justice Department's antitrust and general law enforcement functions.

* THE FTC IS an alphabetical agency regarded as overripe for "sunset review" or "deregulation."

Will the knives dig that deep? Probably not. Because:

(1) The political advantages of consumer protection and antitrust activism—without far-reaching rule-making—was discovered by the Republicans back in the first Nixon administration, when Caspar Weinberger, now a Reagan Cabinet member, was FTC chairman.

Equally pertinent, a top woman in the Reagan circle, Elizabeth Hanford Dole, wife of the senator, was an FTC commissioner during President Ford's tenure. Both Weinberger and Mrs. Dole can be expected to recognize the advantages of retaining (with changes) some form of FTC.

(2) EVERY MODERN administration has needed the FTC as an escape valve when it can neither bring nor refuse to bring certain highly-sensitive antitrust suits without grave political damage. The FTC is an ideal body to which to toss a hot-hot dilemma.

(3) The Reagan White House can change the setup of the now unpopular agency dramatically—without dismembering it—with the precedent for change going back to 1947.

The heart of the most bitter and persistent complaints against the FTC rests in the fact that its five commissioners not only initiate but also judge complaints of unfair methods of competition.

Through budget reviews, the commissioners must approve the continuation of program categories that include major cases the same commissioners are later called upon to judge on the merits.

Just consider it: Having spent your money and mine (as taxpayers) to prosecute major, expensive cases, the commissioners are sworn to complete impartiality in deciding whether to scuttle those selfsame cases following time-consuming trials and skirmishing.

Do you wonder why so many business leaders believe there is scant chance that "impartiality" can exist?

CHRYSLER TALKS — UAW President Douglas Fraser, center, looks across the table at Tom Miner, director of labor relations for the Chrysler Corp. Monday in Washington as talks between the union and the auto company start. (AP Laserphoto)

Board Hopes To Decide On New Loan By Friday

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Chrysler Loan Guarantee Board now hopes for a final decision on the company's application for new loan guarantees on Friday, United Auto Workers union president Douglas A. Fraser said today.

It was the first mention of a date for a final decision. All previous goals had aimed at a preliminary decision Wednesday — which remains the board's timetable, Fraser said.

Federal officials had said previously that the final decision on Chrysler would be left for the incoming Reagan administration. The company could get no money until 15 days after a decision to issue further guarantees.

Fraser spoke with reporters on his arrival for the sixth day of bargaining with the company on its requested $673 million wage freeze.

"They are not yet ready" to respond to the union's counter-proposal, presented Monday and incorporating new sacrifice amounting to less than what the company seeks, Fraser said.

As a result, round-the-clock negotiations are now "a possibility," he added. The bargainers have now established a fourth subcommittee to deal with Canadian problems, the union said. Three other subcommittees are discussing economics, the union's demand for "equality of sacrifice" in management layoffs and greater worker participation in the company's decision making.

The question of how long workers will have to suffer financial pain may throw a roadblock in the path of the accelerating effort to save Chrysler. At issue in the union-company talks is whether the UAW will pledge not to try to make up its concessions to the company all at once when the current contract expires in September 1982.

Asked Monday night if he would approve such a commitment, Fraser said, "I would not because I'm not going to anticipate the outcome to negotiations in 1982."

Asked directly whether such a response might make it impossible to rescue Chrysler, Fraser twice replied: "It will be very, very difficult."

In Los Angeles Chrysler Chairman Lee Iacocca repeated that the company needs all the wage concessions it is asking under the current contract to avoid bankruptcy.

"The economic package is vital to our survival," Iacocca said. "I put together a plan that everybody's got to go along with. All that's at stake is those guys' jobs."

Two of the three Chrysler Loan Guarantee Board members, who must decide whether the No. 3 automaker gets $400 million in new loan guarantees needed to survive, have raised the possibility of work concessions beyond their current contract.

And for the first time, a union source says, the company also is insisting on a "no catch-up" commitment.

Fraser told reporters that Paul Volcker, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board and a board member, bought up the issue at a meeting Monday night. Treasury Secretary William Miller has told reporters he wants such a provision, but Fraser said Miller hasn't told the union that.

The UAW already has yielded contract terms worth $446 million. It now is bargaining with Chrysler on a complete wage freeze, estimated to save $673 million — a key part of the company's plan to convince the loan board it is a good risk for more money on top of the 800 million it received last year.

Fraser's comments did not rule out extending the current contract, but he said last week he would be reluctant to recommend an extension.

The loan board must determine whether Chrysler can stand on its own after 1983 before approving new guarantees.

Fraser said his visit to Volcker and Comptroller-General Elmer Staats, the third loan board member, were made at Miller's suggestion to explain the union's counter-proposal to the company's proposed wage freeze.

"I think we got some credit for making a proposal which was substantial," Fraser said.

Van Hijackers Take $1 Million, Enter Through Unlocked Door

DETROIT (UPI) — Police today sought three hijackers who absconded with about $1 million from an armored car company van, which they entered through an unlocked door rigged with rubber bands by guards to make their rounds easier.

Detectives made the discovery while questioning witnesses and examining the van for fingerprints or traces of the ski-masked bandits who staged the daring robbery Monday in front of a Hostess bakery in suburban Livonia.

The terrified driver of the van, Anthony Ingrao, 38, of Grosse Pointe, Mich., was abducted in the robbery and left handcuffed to the steering wheel, police said.

He was found hysterical but unharmed an hour later after an anonymous woman called police.

Although the driver saw only one hijacker, police today said they were seeking two "white males and possibly a female." The woman who made the call to police was considered a suspect.

Police said a single masked hijacker commandeered the armored car company's van without showing a weapon. He told the driver he would "blow his head off" unless his instructions were followed.

Livonia police Sgt. Robert Hoover said guards actually helped the hijackers by rigging the door of their security van so it would stay unlocked.

"They had some gum on the passenger door. I guess it was rigged with rubber bands or something so the driver wouldn't have to undo the door," Hoover said. "The door was apparently not locked."

Initial reports put the total stolen, mostly in cash receipts, at as high as $3 million. Police could not confirm the sum, but said it would probably be about $1 million.

"We don't really know for sure how much (was stolen), but I would assume it's quite a bit," Hoover said.

An exact accounting of the contents and how much was stolen was delayed until crime lab investigators finished sweeping the van today for evidence.

Judge Orders Abscam Files Reviewed

NEW YORK (UPI) — A federal judge ordered the government to turn over thousands of Abscam memos and files to defense attorneys, claiming the investigation must be scrutinized to ensure targets of the FBI probe were "fairly treated."

Kelly Afraid To Keep Record Of Investigation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Rep. Richard Kelly, snared in the government's Abscam investigation, says fear of retaliation — possibly at the point of a gun — prevented him from keeping records of his own inquiry.

Completing a fifth day of testimony Monday in his Abscam trial, Kelly said he feared any records of kept would be discovered by those he was investigating — undercover FBI agents posing as Arab businessmen.

"I didn't maintain any kind of written records for fear that if my effects were searched ... I'd be hard-pressed to explain that with the muzzle of a .45 stuck in my ear," said the Florida Republican.

Kelly maintains he investigated "suspicious characters" he had met through his trusted aide when he took a $25,000 bribe from undercover agents on Jan. 8, 1980.

He contends he did not intend to keep the money or break the law.

Kelly, Eugene Cuzio of Longwood, Fla., and Stanley Weisz of Smithtown, N.Y., are charged with conspiring to take a $250,000 bribe in exchange for Kelly's promise to introduce private immigration bills for fictitious Arabs.

Attorneys for Weisz, expected to begin their case today, Monday asked to call FBI Director William Webster as a witness as part of their assault on the controversial FBI investigation.

U.S. District Judge William Bryant made no immediate ruling. The government asked the request be denied, arguing testimony sought from Webster and other Justice Department officials would become "a fishing expedition."

Michael Dennis, Weisz' attorney, has said he plans to show the government "duped and enticed" his client.

"My aim is to expose the rotten structure of Abscam."

FBI agent.

"There is a need for a fairly detailed examination into the Abscam operation," Pratt said. "The examination, he said, would determine whether those indicted for Abscam political corruption and bribery crimes were "fairly treated by their government."

U.S. Attorney Edward Korman said the government was deciding on a response to the order.

Puccio made his comments in U.S. District Court in Brooklyn, where seven convicted men are asking that their convictions on charges of corruption be set aside.

The seven men convicted in Abscam trials — Democratic Reps. John Murphy of New York, Frank Thompson of New Jersey, Michael Myers of Pennsylvania and Raymond Lederer of Pennsylvania; Mayor Angelo Errichetti of Camden, N.J.; Philadelphia City Councilman Louis Johanson, Philadelphia lawyer Howard Criden — contend their rights were violated in the probe.

Two New Jersey prosecutors testified at Lederer's Abscam trial last week that on June 28, 1979, they also criticized Weinberg for his actions.

Defense lawyers asked Pratt to allow them to call Joseph Meltzer, a businessman who served a role similar to Weinberg's in the FBI "Bribal" operation, the investigation of corruption between politicians and labor officials in Louisiana.

John Duffy, a lawyer for Johanson, said Meltzer told him he has tapes of Weinberg saying he coached politicians during the Abscam investigation.

Puccio testified that prosecutors John Jacobs and Lawrence Sharf told Weinberg in the summer of 1979 that Williams, a New Jersey Democrat who faces trial on bribery charges, could claim entrapment as a result of the conversation.

In the conversation, Weinberg told Williams what to tell a fictitious sheik at a meeting that resulted in the senator's indictment.

Leaders Of Klan Vow To Support Jurist

BUCKEYE, La. (UPI) — Ku Klux Klan leaders vowed to attend a contempt of court hearing — dressed in business suits, not Klan robes — to support a state judge who has been escorting three white girls to all-white Buckeye High School in defiance of a federal busing order.

Judge Richard Lee, who showed up unexpectedly at the school again Monday, gave no indication what his next move would be in the controversy, which began simmering in September and boiled over last week.

State troopers and then Lee himself took the three girls into school, defying an order by federal Judge Nauman Scott that they be bused to racially mixed Jones Street Junior High in Alexandria.

Lee stopped taking Ramona Carbo, 12, Michelle Laborde and Lynda McNeal, both 13, to school last Thursday, however, because of Klan plans to picket. His appearance Monday with the girls was unexpected.

The state judge walked into the office of Buckeye Principal Charles Waites before school and told him to re-enroll the girls, who had been dropped from registration last week at Scott's insistence.

(Lee) told me he would not be doing his job, that of having the girls as wards of his court, if the girls did not attend school," Waites said.

Despite the possibility of a $500-a-day federal fine if found in contempt of Scott's order, the principal complied with Lee's demand.

"He said he would certainly have me arrested if they were not enrolled," Waites said.

Lee was accompanied by the Rev. Van Westberry of Lakeside United Pentecostal Church and the Rev. James Foster of the Sacred Heart Catholic Church in Pineville, who said they were there to offer the girls moral support.

The girls are the central figures in a legal tug-of-war between the federal judge trying to enforce his desegregation plan and the state judge defending his change of custody order.

Scott's order would send the girls by bus to Jones Street Junior High 21 miles away, but Lee approved a custody transfer putting the girls in the homes of friends in the Buckeye zone. When Scott threatened the parents and guardians with fines, Lee declared the girls wards of his court.

Lee faces a contempt of court hearing before Scott Thursday, with the possibility of $1,000-a-day fines retroactive to when he began defying Scott.

Waites, Rapides Parish School Superintendent Allen Nichols, the girls' parents and guardians, and a rural constable who helped Lee enforce his order last week are also due in Scott's court for the contempt hearing.

Ku Klux Klan Imperial Wizard Bill Wilkinson, a national leader recently cited by several Klan-watcher organizations as one of the most violent of KKK leaders, said he also would attend the hearing.

"We're going to bring our robes with us, but we're not going to wear 'em," said KKK "klegle" Bill Hertz. "We will be dressed in suits. But if we're refused a seat or turned away, then we may have a protest — a small protest."

"The Invisible Empire fully supports citizens of Rapides Parish in their fight to combat forced integration of their schools and the destruction of their children's normal social life at school and home," Wilkinson said in a statement read by Hertz.

Chapter Plans Reactivation

A meeting has been scheduled Thursday at the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 2466 to reactivate the Lubbock Chapter 9 of the Pearl Harbor Survivors Association Inc.

The session will begin at 7 p.m. at the post home, 34th Street and Avenue N.

This year marks the 40th anniversary of the Pearl Harbor survivors organization. Plans will be discussed Thursday for an "Operation Return" and for developing an organization of Sons and Daughters of Pearl Harbor Survivors.

All military personnel on the Island of Oahu or within three miles of the island on Dec. 7, 1941, are qualified for membership in the survivors association.

A membership drive is being pushed here to expand the national organization's dwindling 8,000-person membership.

Sheriff Wins Concessions From Commissioners

By MARY ALICE ROBBINS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

SHERIFF D.L. "Sonny" Keese lost his first battle Monday in what apparently will be an ongoing campaign to convince Lubbock County commissioners to hike the salaries of key personnel in the sheriff's department.

But the new sheriff won a few concessions from commissioners, who agreed to provide practice ammunition, tear gas, badges, additional office equipment and possibly uniforms for the deputies.

Keese's only major disappointment was his failure to push through a proposed $14,280 budget increase to raise the pay of deputies in supervisory positions. He also was turned down on a $2,000 increase to boost the salary of his personal secretary.

Ironically, just an hour after Keese left the commissioners' courtroom, County Treasurer Connie Nicholson succeeded in obtaining approval for a similar request to raise the salary of her secretary.

County Judge Rod Shaw described Mrs. Nicholson's request as an emergency situation, noting that she has lost two secretaries within the past two months.

Keese's proposal, which gained little support from most commissioners, called for the establishment of a "promotion ladder" at the sheriff's office. He requested authorization to designate seven captains, two lieutenants and two sergeants to form a chain of command.

The sheriff's department currently has authorization for only four captains. The men who hold those posts earn only $40 per month more than the highest paid deputies, Keese said.

Under the 1981 budget, there is no authorization for either the lieutenant or sergeant positions Keese recommended.

Keese proposed $150 monthly raises for all captains and $100 raises for his proposed lieutenants. He also requested $50 a month raises for the men he planned to name as sergeants.

In Potter County, which covers the Amarillo area, a captain earns $515 more per month than the top paid deputies, Keese said. He noted that lieutenants earn $385 more and sergeants $175 more.

"I really honestly feel my people are entitled to this from their past work experience," the sheriff said.

However, Shaw argued that proposals for salary increases should be considered during commissioners' regular budget sessions unless an emergency situation exists. "If we do something for one department, it sets up a domino effect," he said.

Keese's salary recommendations gained the support of only one member of the court. Commissioner Boyd Roberts moved for approval of the proposed new salary scales but failed to obtain a second for his motion.

After his motion died, Roberts told fellow commissioners, "I feel our responsibility to the people of the county is being neglected here."

Keese was far more successful in gaining commissioners' approval for several other recommendations that also will require budget increases.

But for one proposal, the sheriff had to bring in some heavy ammunition to make his point. Keese passed around an outdated tear gas canister to emphasize the need to order about 50 new rounds.

According to Keese, all of the tear gas found at the sheriff's department was between five and 25 years out of date. Approximately 100 rounds of tear gas had to be thrown out, he said.

In addition, Keese stressed the need for the county to provide practice ammunition for deputies so they can be qualified in weapons use. Unless deputies receive written proof that they are qualified to use the firearms they carry, the county faces the risk of being sued, he said.

Commissioners authorized a $5,000 budget increase for the purchase of the ammunition and tear gas.

The commissioners also agreed to spend about $1,100 to buy 55 deputy badges for all jail division personnel. The jail staff currently wears badges designating them as correctional officers, but Keese argued that the county jail is not a correctional institution.

Keese scored a partial victory in his effort to gain new uniforms for his deputy staff. The county currently provides deputies a $15 monthly clothing allowance, but the sheriff said there is no standard uniform being worn by his men.

His recommendation calls for the county to purchase three Western-style suits for each deputy at a total cost of about $30 each. Keese also requested each deputy receive one replacement uniform annually for a five-year period.

Estimated cost to purchase the uniforms is about $25,830, which Keese said is less than what the county would pay out in monthly clothing allowances during the next five years.

Commissioners agreed to take bids on the uniforms, saying that they would decide whether to buy them after they see what the cost will be.

In addition, commissioners authorized the purchase of new filing cabinets and chairs for the sheriff's department. They also agreed to purchase four new cars to replace older vehicles.

Despite these gains, however, Keese said he was very disappointed over the outcome of Monday's meeting. The salary increases were "not out of line," he said, adding that he plans to bring his pay scale proposals back before the commissioners.

"I'm disappointed this time, but I certainly am going to try again," Keese said following his two-hour session before the commissioners court.

Mrs. Nicholson found at least some of the commissioners more sympathetic to pay raises when she appeared before the court about an hour later.

Shaw described the treasurer's office as "the heartbeat of the county" and emphasized her need to retain a trained staff member.

According to Mrs. Nicholson, her secretary earns $664 per month base pay, which she said is not enough money to keep someone in that position.

She recommended that the secretary's classification be changed to assistant to the treasurer, with a monthly salary of $748.

Commissioners approved the classification change and pay hike by a 3-to-2 vote, with Commissioners Alton Brazell and Coy Biggs casting the "no" votes.

In other business, commissioners refused Roberts' request to change a policy that prohibits dancing at all county clubhouses.

Roberts sought to amend the policy to allow square dancing. However, other commissioners argued that it would be difficult to police dances at the county-owned facilities.

DPS To Utilize Federal Funds For Drunken Driver Crackdown

By PAT GRAVES
Avalanche-Journal Staff

SPURRED BY increases in alcohol-related traffic deaths, the Department of Public Safety soon will utilize federal funds for a crackdown on drunken drivers in Lubbock and Ector counties.

The two counties were among eight across the state receiving a share of $282,430 in federal funds for the Selective Traffic Enforcement Program (STEP), no correlation to the Lubbock Police Department program of the same name, which will concentrate on DWIs.

STEP Director Sgt. Danny Smith, who commands Lubbock County's highway patrol personnel, said $50,000 will be used to pay six off-duty troopers overtime to work each night beginning in March and continuing through August or possibly September.

Smith said the patrols will concentrate on areas where alcoholic beverages are most available, and where the most fatal accidents involving intoxicated drivers have occurred. He said target areas will include the Tahoka highway, the Buffalo Lakes road, U.S. 82-82 and FM 1729.

Smith emphasized the special contingent will be a supplemental unit that will handle regular violations, but will concentrate on drunken drivers unless required to lend assistance in an emergency.

"We intend to cut the fatality rate," Smith asserted. "We've got a problem with it and we're trying to save lives."

Lubbock County recorded 26 traffic deaths resulting from 19 fatal accidents in 1980, excluding the city of Lubbock,

Smith said. Such deaths had been on the decline until last year. Smith added the state death toll was up slightly, but that the Lubbock County rate was somewhat higher than the rest of Texas.

Smith estimated almost half the people killed last year were involved in an accident in which one of the drivers was under the influence of alcohol.

Regional commander Maj. C.W. Bell said Lubbock County's ratio of DWIs to accidents is quite high, more so than most counties in this area. To reduce that ratio, Smith said the troopers will look for excessive speed, erratic driving and monitor reports from the public.

The efforts will be focused in the south and east portions of the county and will utilize DPS officers from as far away as 100 miles.

Lubbock District Highway Patrol Capt. B.W. Melton applied for the grant money for Lubbock County several months ago, Smith said.

Trooper Roger Weaver, safety education officer with the DPS in Odessa, said the Ector County STEP project could begin operation as soon as Saturday. Volunteer troopers from throughout the Odessa area will meet Thursday for briefings on the program.

Ector County has been plagued for "several years" by a large number of drunken drivers, Weaver said. As an example, 486 people were arrested for DWI in Ector County during the first 10 months of 1980, compared to 272 arrests for the same period in neighboring Midland County, Weaver said.

At least four extra troopers will be working during their off-duty hours in conjunction with the Ector County STEP project, Weaver said, adding that extra manpower may be added during peak times for DWI arrests.

The troopers involved in the program also will work their regular shifts, he said. Officers from Pecos, Fort Stockton, Alpine and other West Texas cities are expected to participate.

Other counties which will participate, at a date to be determined by each DPS office, are Travis, Grayson, Matagorda, Brazoria, Galveston and Montgomery.

Texas DPS Director Col. Jim Adams said 4,229 persons were killed on Texas streets and highways in 1979, and the total for 1980 is expected to be slightly higher. He added that many of the accidents were alcohol-related.

Adams said the eight counties named show a definite need for additional DWI enforcement, but that arrests of drunken drivers would not slow down in other areas of the state.

"We are constantly aware of the ever increasing numbers of DWIs in our society," Adams said. "It is our objective to reduce the number of drivers on our highways who insist upon driving while under the influence of alcohol."

Adams emphasized the STEP is not a ticket-writing quota system or a public relations gimmick, but a serious effort to get the drunks off Texas highways. An additional 15,000 man hours will be spent on the project, which will be in effect throughout the week as well as the peak DWI periods of Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights.

About 41,000 persons were arrested for driving-while-intoxicated in 1980 by the DPS.

The first woman went up in space, for 48 orbits, in 1963. She was the Russian, Valentina Tereshkova.

WANTS TO BE GOVERNOR — Mayor Tom Westfall opens a bottle of champagne as his wife Margie waits with empty glass to celebrate the announcement of his "grass roots" campaign for governor of Texas in 1982 as a Democrat. Texas Schools Lack Bilingual Teachers

By United Press International

Texas government and education officials say a shortage of bilingual teachers will make a federal court order to expand bilingual education programs in Texas difficult to fulfill.

"There's no question that there's a shortage of bilingual education teachers," said Alton Bowen, Texas education commissioner. "We did try to (expand the number) in a 100-hour crash program, and that just wasn't adequate."

"It's one thing to know the language and another to switch from English to Spanish in math, science and history."

Monday's ruling by U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice will affect more than 200,000 Mexican-American students in Texas public schools who are either being taught basic skills in Spanish or are enrolled in classes that teach English as a second language.

Justice's 67-page ruling declared the three years of basic courses Texas public schools offer in Spanish inadequate for many youngsters. He said the state has a duty to take necessary steps to overcome the special problems of Spanish-speaking

The order culminated a 10-year lawsuit that climaxed in a seven-day trial in December 1979.

Mexican-American interest groups hailed Justice's decision as a landmark case for minority rights.

"We are absolutely delighted with Judge Justice's decision," said Velma Martinez, president and general counsel of the Mexican-American Legal Defense and Education fund of San Francisco, a party in the suit.

"Judge Justice recognizes the urgent need of Mexican-American children to receive understandable instruction. The Texas educational system has locked Mexican-Americans into a second-class citizenship. We this decision, we ... give our children a fair chance to learn."

In his order mandating expanded bilingual education, Justice harshly criticized the state and the Texas Education

Agency, which he charged treated "... both the language and the cultural heritage of these children ... with intolerance and disrespect."

Current Texas Education Agency figures indicate about 219,000 Spanish-speaking children need bilingual education, out of a total enrollment of just more than 3 million pupils in Texas' 1,100 school districts.

Corpus Christi lawyer Ruben Bonilla, president of the League of United Latin American Citizens which also joined the suit in 1971, praised the ruling.

Service To Honor Slain Leader

Memorial services honoring civil rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. will be at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at Bethel African Methodist Church with the Rev. Stephen Pierson, pastor, officiating.

The ceremony recognizes what would have been King's 52nd birthday.

He was slain April 4, 1968, as he stood on the balcony of a motel in Memphis, Tenn. He had gone to the city to lead striking sanitation workers who walked off the job after the city refused to recognize their new affiliation with the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

As part of Thursday's services, participants will sing songs and see a film in recognition of King. Letters he wrote while jailed in Birmingham, Ala., over a busing question also will be read.

Sponsors of the memorial services are the church, the United Political Action League and the Lubbock branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Pioneering Research Offers New Hope For Low-Vision Disorders

NEW YORK (AP) — A new way of measuring the ability to see may offer hope for the millions of persons suffering from low-vision impairments resulting from congenital birth defects and eye diseases that can occur throughout life.

"Unfortunately, there are approximately 11 million patients in the United States who have decreasing vision due to irreversible eye disorders. Some of these visual problems can be corrected through surgery, medication, and/or optical aids," says Dr. Eleanor E. Faye, medical director of the Low Vision Service for The Lighthouse, the New York Association for the Blind, headquartered in New York City.

Dr. Faye, who is also chairman of the Committee on Low Vision of the American Academy of Ophthalmology, adds, "Although the majority of patients respond to optical aids, we have not been able to explain the lack of response in a significant number of people."

These are the patients for whom Dr. Faye and other eye specialists at universities, medical schools and non-profit centers such as The Lighthouse believe there is promise in this decade because of pioneering laboratory and clinical research endeavors in the United States and elsewhere.

At The Lighthouse, patients suffering from such diseases as macular degeneration (the most prevalent eye disease), primary open angle glaucoma, retinitis pigmentosa, myopic degeneration and inoperable cataract are participating in a major research study. These diseases result in loss of central and/or peripheral vision, or both.

"This three-year program, involving hundreds of patients, is unique because it is the first large-scale clinical study of a low-vision population," explains Dr. Arthur E. Gillman, Director of Research Development, The Lighthouse.

Primary funding has come from a $283,640 bio-medical grant from the National Institutes of Health, and additional funding has been received from philanthropic organizations such as the DeWitt Wallace Fund and companies such as the Westinghouse Electric Corp.

In explaining why it is imperative for everyone to support research endeavors such as this, William A. Thornton, Ph.D., an engineering consultant, says "One in every 19 persons in the United States suffers some degree of vision impairment, often with imposing psychological and social hardships. In measurable terms, the economic costs alone are in excess of $5 billion."

DR. LAMB

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am in my late 50s and have recently developed "white heads" on what was a flawless skin. When I rub my fingers over my face in cleansing it, I can feel the bumps in various areas. They are small. I must have about 10 by this time. I tried to squeeze them out but they remain stubborn and I've had no success with it. Does this come with age? Is there anything I can do about it? Otherwise I am in excellent health.

DEAR READER — They will come at any age if the conditions are right; acne is certainly not limited to teen-agers. Those little bumps are accumulations of sebum, the fatty secretions formed by oil glands inside your skin. We all have these glands but they can become overactive or they can get plugged up so they don't drain properly. The latter may be your problem.

It is not a good idea to squeeze these. The fatty material can be broken down by tiny bacteria inside the skin pore and it is very irritating to the skin. The broken down fats cause the red spots with acne. Antibiotics eliminate bacteria to prevent the fat breakdown and the irritation.

You should stop putting any oily or greasy substances on your face as this makes matters worse. You should see a doctor and let him prescribe for you. He will probably want you to use a peeling agent such as vitamin A acid. As the peeling occurs the pores open and the sebum can be drained, eliminating the little cheesy bumps.

The main principles of treating acne are discussed in more detail in The Health Letter number 8-2, Acne Can Be Treated, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Most cases of acne can be helped with current methods of treatment. And there are more effective means being tested for stubborn cases, which should become available, too, in time.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My wife dressed me up in her clothing for a costume party and she wore one of my suits. I was quite intoxicated and the next morning she told me she took a few snapshots of me and threatened to show them around if I didn't dress up for her that day. So I complied and wore her undies and a dress. She kept doing this and I started wearing some of her things under my suit to work.

Now I wear female underthings every day and usually put on a slip and dress when I return from work. She thinks she is making me do this but actually I enjoy it. I am now into make up and seem more relaxed when wearing heels, nylons, bra, girdle, slip and dress. Why do I enjoy this? How can I make myself stop? I am very puzzled.

DEAR READER — Your behavior is that of a transvestite, a person who enjoys dressing in clothes of the opposite sex.

If you want to stop the habit, you might see a psychiatrist. There are reports of correcting it through behavior modification. Your wife's behavior is not the norm either.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Goals vital to you tomorrow may not be equally as important to others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 29) Attempting to move too quickly in complex situations tomorrow could cloud your better judgment.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Should you find it necessary to do business tomorrow with an unfamiliar firm or person, proceed in a cautious and prudent manner.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Pressure may be put on you tomorrow to give up something by one who covets what you have. This person may try to lay a guilt trip on you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Although it's rare, tomorrow you may display your temper when you find out that a job supposedly to have been done by another is dumped into your lap.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Before pointing the finger of blame for something which doesn't go right tomorrow, make certain you aren't equally guilty.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Try not to get involved in another's troubles tomorrow. This person will be impossible to please, because he or she doesn't really know what he wants.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A big job that will have to be redone because of someone else's failings will be difficult to reconstruct unless you keep your wits about you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) For the sake of appearances tomorrow, you may become involved in something that you're too proud to say you can't handle.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be careful in joint ventures tomorrow. An associate could do something for which you would have to share the blame. Supervise all procedures.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you expect others to be tolerant of your shortcomings tomorrow, you must first set the proper example.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Timing is very important tomorrow, so try not to push projects prematurely.

Americans Begin Facing Reality

By JOHN CUNIFF
 NEW YORK (AP) — During an interview in the mid-1960s, J. Peter Grace commented that the great U.S. exportable was management knowhow. At the time, Americans still were considered the sharpest business people.

A few days ago, speaking off the record, the chairman of a U.S. natural resources company related that he had just returned from Japan, where a banker chastised him for America's wasteful business practices.

"He treated me like a little child," said the chairman, still awed at what happened, but aware that Americans no longer possessed a corner on knowhow. While tough to accept, the fact had to be recognized.

What happened in the interim is still debated, but one assumption is that the recipients of the great exportable — Japan and Europe especially — learned well, while the teacher forgot or did not care.

Americans squandered in the 1970s, ironically a decade that is often associated with conservation. Government grew, management turned bureaucratic, risk was avoided, debt encouraged. Consumerism and its instant joys were sanctified, while productivity shriveled.

Good management techniques were ignored or made impossible because of the volatile economy. Short-term goals became paramount — quick profits were demanded by analysts, investors and the chairman of the board — though such profits were known to be at the expense of the future.

But not everything was lost, or nobody has so proven. Saved, it seems, is the ability of Americans to face themselves and maybe rebuild, after years of avoiding reality like the poet fleeing the hound of heaven.

Consider: —Throughout the country voters have insisted on spending cutbacks or a better accounting of how their money is spent. Spending efficiency, even if it means fewer services, seems to be the new demand.

—After years of being crushed between the two giants — big government and big industry — small business, the job creator, is gaining muscle.

—Workers and industry finally are recognizing they are in business together, and that both their fortunes are bleak unless they can raise productivity.

—The myth of the millineum has been set to rest, at least in regard to the present time.

Consumerism, which had come to mean the customer should be served no matter the cost, is being diminished by a realization that he cannot be served unless he produces first. People know there is no cornucopia.

—Dozens of problems that the nation once refused to recognize are not only recognized now but are on the way to being resolved.

It was, for example, only a decade ago that Americans believed they could draw on a limitless supply of energy. When the bad news came they refused to believe. Automakers built big cars; the public bought them.

People now are facing up to the situations. Cars are smaller, houses too, so that they will use less energy. Old wells are being reactivated and new gas and oil wells drilled. And so much research is under way on new sources of power that breakthroughs can be expected.

In summary: If you compare the attitudes today with the unrealistic dreams of 1970 or 1971 you come away with the feeling that the old knowhow is ready for a workout, now that it's dealing with reality.

U.S., Arab Investors Finding Japanese Stocks Appealing

NEW YORK (UPI) — U.S. corporate pension fund investors and Arab petrodollar holders are finding Japanese stocks increasingly attractive.

This increasing foreign investment has helped propel stocks upward on the Tokyo Stock Exchange, especially during the past summer.

The trend is expected to gather steam since the Tokyo government put into effect Dec. 1, a law aimed at liberalizing in principle foreign exchange and capital transactions, allowing more foreign investment in stocks of Japanese companies.

Yoshio Terasawa, president of Nomura Securities International Inc., a wholly-owned subsidiary in the United States of Nomura Securities Co., the largest Japanese securities firm, estimates the purchase of Japanese stocks by non-Japanese investors will total $20 billion for 1980 with two thirds of the amount coming from Middle Eastern countries.

In an interview, Terasawa, who also is managing director of the parent company, cited four reasons behind foreigners' growing interest in Japanese stocks:

— Non-Japanese investors are diversifying their investment in various currencies other than the U.S. dollar against the backdrop of the international monetary situation.

— The recovery of the U.S. economy is slower than expected, while the Japanese economy is going strong.

— Non-Japanese investors, including the Americans, have little difficulty in understanding the system of the Tokyo exchange, the second largest in the world, after the New York Stock Exchange, in terms of the total value of shares listed. Its modus operandi is similar to that of the NYSE in terms of disclosure requirements, accounting method and other points.

— There are many attractive stocks on the TSE, especially high-technology issues.

Terasawa said foreigners' investment has a significant "psychological" impact on the TSE because it is concentrated in the top 10 or 15 blue chip shares.

For the first eight months of 1980, the 10 most popular Japanese companies for foreign investors were Hitachi Ltd., Nippon Steel Co., Toshiba Corp., Mitsubishi Electric Corp., Nippon Electric Co., Sumitomo Metal Industries Ltd., Mitsubishi Heavy Industries Ltd., Kawasaki Heavy Industries Ltd., Takeda Chemical Industries Ltd., and Kobe Steel Ltd., according to Okasan Securities Co., another Japanese securities company.

Nomura Securities and its two affiliates will set up a new investment management firm to provide services to investors in the OPEC nations and corporate pension fund operators in the United States and Europe.

The firm, Nomura Investment Management Co., is expected to register as an investment adviser with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, and to begin operations April 1.

Of U.S. corporate pension funds estimated at $300 billion, about 0.3 percent or $1 billion has been poured into Japanese stocks either directly or via Europe, according to Terasawa.

Masanobu Takahashi, investment adviser with Japan Fund Inc., a New York-based investment firm, said he thinks only $200 million to $300 million of that has been invested in Japanese stocks through Japanese securities firms' affiliates in New York.

Shari Offers Helpful Fund-Raising Hints

By SHARI LEWIS

I lifted the little girl out of her wheelchair and held her in my lap. She was quite a load, because her legs were encased in steel supports, and I could feel the stiff back brace through her thin party dress. I asked, "If you could tell people one thing about yourself, what would you say?" She thought for a moment and then replied, "I'd tell them that I'm like everybody else. I just need a little more equipment."

She was right, and she made all of us working on that telethon feel glad to be there.

This is telethon season. If you and your friends would like to help others by working on a telethon, this is the time for you to get busy.

Telethons are all about raising money, and your group can probably get permission to run an official fund-raising event for a telethon.

You might run a Saturday car wash or a garage sale (where you sell old toys, books, records, even jeans). The old stuff won't cost you anything, and you can give the money you make to the Lions Club, Kinamen, United Cerebral Palsy, or whatever organization is running the telethon.

Monday's Brain Twister: A man bought a pair of shoes for $14 and gave a $20 bill in payment. The shoe salesman asked a neighbor to change the bill and gave the man $6 in change. The neighbor returned the bill, saying it was counterfeit. The shoe salesman gave him good money for the counterfeit. How much did the shoe salesman lose on this transaction?

Answer: The shoe salesman lost $34. He lost the $20 he returned to his neighbor and $14 for the pair of shoes.

Today's Brain Twister: Save those popsicle sticks and set them up as I have in the picture. Now, how can you take away 10 popsicle sticks and still have two squares? (If you're not a big ice-cream gobler, you can always do this with toothpicks.) (Look for the answer in Wednesday's Kids-Only Club column.)

MINNIE WELLS DAY — Minnie Wells, a kindergarten aide at Iles Elementary School, was honored on her own special day by students and faculty. Mrs. Wells has been invited to attend the Jan. 20 inauguration of the president. (Staff photo)

School Honors Minnie Wells

By JEANNE LIVELY
Family News Staff

In case you didn't know it, Monday was "Minnie Wells Day" at Iles Elementary School.

The honoree, Minnie Wells, is a kindergarten aide at the non-graded school and has been invited to the Jan. 20 inauguration of president-elect Ronald Reagan.

To make it perfectly clear why she was invited, Mrs. Wells emphasizes the fact she might not have been — except for her son. You see, Mrs. Wells' son is Army Private Gregory Carl Wells who in only a year's time of enlistment was selected to be a White House Honor Guard.

"For me, an additional bonus of the trip is getting to see Gregory," Mrs. Wells said.

But not wanting the auspicious occasion of her trip to go unnoticed, the faculty, staff and students of Iles decided to designate Mrs. Wells' own special day. They also wanted to honor their country.

Indeed, it was a day full of exciting

Tradition Traced To Egyptian

NEW YORK (Special) — Hindu legend credits the discovery of the first pearl to the great god, Vishnu. The legend holds that Vishnu drew the pearl from the sea and presented it to his daughter on her wedding day, thus setting a precedent for millions of brides down through the millennia.

For her wedding, Queen Nefertiti of Egypt had pearls mounted on her crown, worked into her collar, draped upon her arms and sewn into the gilded leather of her sandals.

Mary Queen of Scots was given four hundred large, lustrous pearls as a wedding gift. These were so coveted by her cousin, Queen Elizabeth, that they are said to be one of the reasons for Mary's imprisonment and later execution.

Catherine de Medici wore six ropes of pearls to her wedding, along with a pair of pearl earrings which were the largest in the world at that time.

According to existing manuscripts, Poshontas was the first American bride known to wear pearls to her wedding. A royal diadem of three strands of pearls decorated her hat and large oval pearls hung from her ears.

As American fortunes began to be made in the 1800s, pearl engagement rings became the prized possessions of prospective brides.

It was then customary for a bride to receive a gift of a pearl necklace, which she wore to the altar on her special day. Mary Todd Lincoln was one such bride.

With the discovery that pearls could be cultivated in live oysters, the custom of brides wearing pearls came into greater prominence. No longer was it necessary to be very wealthy in order to enjoy wearing nature's jewels of the sea.

Society's elite, however, continued to observe the custom of wearing pearls on the wedding day.

When Grace Kelly married Prince Rainier of Monaco, her gown was closed with cultured pearl buttons, and tiny cultured pearls were sewn into her veil.

Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis wore a single choker of cultured pearls and simple pearl earrings as the only jewels to accompany her magnificent wedding

Humane Society To Sponsor Art Sale, Bake Sale

The Lubbock Humane Society will sponsor its second annual Arts and Crafts and Bake Sale, Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 28 and March 1.

All area artists and craftsmen are invited to participate in the sale. No booth rental will be charged, and artists will not be required to remain with their work. Humane Society volunteers will be on hand to supervise.

The Humane Society will keep 25 percent of the sales, to support its work among lost and abandoned animals in the community. The remaining 75 percent will go to the artists.

The sale is scheduled for St. Christopher's Episcopal Church, 42nd and Elgin. For more information, interested persons should call Jenny Lynn, 799-8852.

And, when Marianna Simonescu recently wed tennis star Bjorn Borg, she wore a pearl-encrusted gown and veil which cost more than $7,000.

Although wedding protocol has become more relaxed over the years, and styles in wedding dresses now range from formal to casual, cultured pearls are still considered the most appropriate jewels for a bride to wear.

The question is, what style of pearl necklace will look best with a particular bridal dress?

The choker is the shortest cultured pearl necklace about 15" long. It falls just above the collar bone and is traditionally worn with a high round neckline, but is also appropriate with a scooped neckline.

The princess length is 18" long and falls just below a turtleneck collar. This length is lovely with a deep, scooped neckline.

The matinee necklace, 20" to 24" long, falls halfway between the neckline and bosom. This length is lovely with a high-standing collar, as well as with rounded or scooped-neck collars.

The opera length is 28" to 30", falling just past the bosom. An elegant look, it is most appropriate with high-standing collars.

Safety Precautions Will Prevent Serious Injuries To Children

CHICAGO (Special) — Danger may lurk for those who heed the age-old admonition that a watched pot never boils.

In truth, safety experts maintain, it's the watched pot that never boils OVER that causes injury or death — principally to small children.

The Department of Safety and Research of the Combined American Insurance Company urges constant vigilance in the kitchen, as well as other parts of the house, to prevent fatal, disfiguring and painful burns, of which children are especially likely to be victims.

The Harvard Medical School Health Letter reports that several studies have found that most serious burn injuries in small children occur from scalds, mainly in the kitchen. Bathtubs were also found to be a significant source of scalds, either because small children had turned on faucets when their mothers' backs were turned, or because the water had not been properly tested before baths were given.

Burn and scald dangers exist wherever there are matches, stoves, steam radiators and hot water — which means that every home is a potential deathtrap for children if they are not properly supervised and if safety precautions are ignored.

able to prevent children from opening doors to forbidden areas.

If you are a fondue fancier, the Consumer Product Safety Commission advises you to buy a pot with secure, flame-proof handles and a broad base and place a tray under the pot to catch spills. Keep pots well out of reach of children. Handle the fuel with care, never overfilling and always making sure flames are out when it's time to put the pot away. Reduce spattering by adding salt to the oil, blotting meat dry before cooking and ignoring recipes advising you to wait to start cooking until the oil bubbles.

To prevent injuries from pressure cookers, the Commission says, always handle the appliances with mitts or pot-holders to prevent dropping and spilling the contents. Don't prepare apple sauce, rhubarb, split peas, cranberries, spaghetti or cereal in the pot because they can clog the vent, causing an explosive disaster. Never open the pot until all pressure is released. Keep children well out of the way the entire time the pot is in use.

Guests, Hosts Benefit From Fun Of Preparing Meals At Table

ROSEMONT, Ill. (Special) — From the fun of sharing a communal fondue or the razzle-dazzle of presenting a flambe' dessert in a chafing dish, both you and your guests can enjoy those special occasions when food is prepared tableside. Such meals are unusual, but also easy when you assemble everything for the feast before your company arrives. Making the dish while guests watch involves and fascinates them and allows you more time with them since you're not in the kitchen cooking. For this reason, meals prepared at the table are especially suited to people who entertain alone.

One of the simplest such meals is fondue. The traditional fondue — cheese — originated in the Swiss Alps, probably during the Middle Ages. It became popular all over Europe and the United States after the famous French epicure, brilliant Savarin, published a Swiss friend's recipe in "The Physiology of Taste" in 1824. The name fondue comes from the French fondre: "to melt."

Aged Swiss cheese melted in dry white wine is the basic ingredient. Dry wine is specified because its acidity helps combine the wine's alcohol and water with the cheese's milkfat. Some recipes call for lemon juice as well. Traditional fondue is seasoned with garlic, freshly ground pepper, grated nutmeg and salt. Kirsch, a colorless cherry brandy, or some other brandy is usually included.

Traditionally, cheese fondue is prepared in a ceramic pot, called a caquelon. The glazed inner surface is first rubbed with a split clove of garlic. The wine is added and heated slowly until bubbles form around the edge and on the bottom of the pan. Sources of heat can be either a wick-type or wickless alcohol burner, canned heat or electricity. Fondue pots with candles provide only minimal heat and are used to keep warm fondue that has been prepared on the stove.

Cheese is diced or shredded — not grated because it will clump — and tossed with flour. When the wine is hot but not boiling, add a handful of cheese at a time, stirring with a wooden spoon after each addition, until it is melted. After all the cheese and seasonings have been added, the fondue is ready for dipping.

Crusty Bread Traditional Dunker

Pieces of French or Italian bread, cut so each has a bit of crust, are speared on long-handled fondue forks with the crust portion toward the ends of the tines. The crust catches and holds the bubbly cheese. Guests dunk the pieces of bread, turning them slowly to break the cheese threads and then lifting them carefully to their mouths. At the evening's end, the guest who is able to avoid losing a piece of bread in the pot receives a special treat: the delicious, cheese crust left at the bottom when the fondue is gone, called la religieuse (the nun). Other foods for dunking include pre-cooked pieces of meat, poultry and seafood, mushrooms, cauliflowerets, broccoli pieces and other vegetables.

Meat, seafood and vegetables also can be cooked in a special metal fondue pot filled with a hot (350° F.) mixture of oil and butter. This "frying" fondue is called "Fondue Bourguignonne" when beef, usually tenderloin, sirloin or porterhouse, is used. The pot is wider at the bottom than the top to keep hot oil from splattering. Never use a clay pot for oil fondue because the heat will crack it.

Guests spear the raw meat, seafood or vegetables and hold them in the oil until they are done. Then they are dipped in one of several sauces, removed to a plate and eaten with a separate fork because the fondue fork will be too hot. Complete the meal with salad, bread and a dessert of cheese and fruit.

Another cheese specialty from Switzerland particularly suited to tableside cooking is raclette, a peasant meal of melted cheese eaten with boiled potatoes, pickled white onions and sour gherkins. In raclette, a large piece of cheese is exposed to heat so the top of the sliced surface melts. This portion is scraped onto a heated plate or pieces of crunchy bread. Each guest eats separately to catch the cheese at its bubbly best.

A special raclette stove is often used to prepare the dish, but an electric toaster /broiler placed on a side table can work just as well. Select aged Swiss or a soft, mild cheese such as Brick, Monterey Jack or Muenster. Buy one quarter to one half pound per guest, with a minimum of a pound. If the block is too large for your small oven, divide it into pieces that will fit with their tops no closer than two to three inches from the element. Place on a sizzle platter or the oven tray. Set the toaster to broil, and heat the cheese until the top begins to brown lightly, usually within three to five minutes. Quickly remove the piece of cheese and scrape the bubbly layer onto a heated plate, a slice of French bread or boiled potatoes. Return the cheese to the oven to prepare the next guest's serving. You can also broil one-inch slices of cheese directly on heat-proof plates. Kirsch, white wine and tea are the beverages the Swiss serve with raclette.

Oriental Meals Made Easily With Wok Stir-fried foods, cooked in the Chinese wok, are becoming increasingly popular because they are light and crisp. Although using a wok requires some practice, the stir-fry cooking method, when learned, is fascinating to watch and produces deliciously different meals.

The wok is a round pan with slanting sides, most commonly 14 inches in diameter. Electric woks are available, so you can prepare the meal in the room where it will be consumed. There are many cookbooks on the market that contain Oriental recipes and specific instructions for wok cooking.

Foods are chopped into relatively small pieces before cooking begins. Small Oriental-style bowls for these foods, a cruet of oil and, if needed, plates for holding completed parts of the dish, arranged around the wok, add visual interest to your performance. The foods are quickly fried in a minimal amount of hot oil, starting with those that take longest — meat and tougher vegetables. Liquid, seasonings and often a thickener are added and the dish promptly served with steaming rice to eagerly awaiting diners.

Elegance Added With Chafing Dish

For the experienced, chafing dish cookery can be elegant, as well as interesting for your guests to observe. Cooks in Victorian times were not considered accomplished until they had thoroughly learned how to prepare food in a chafing dish.

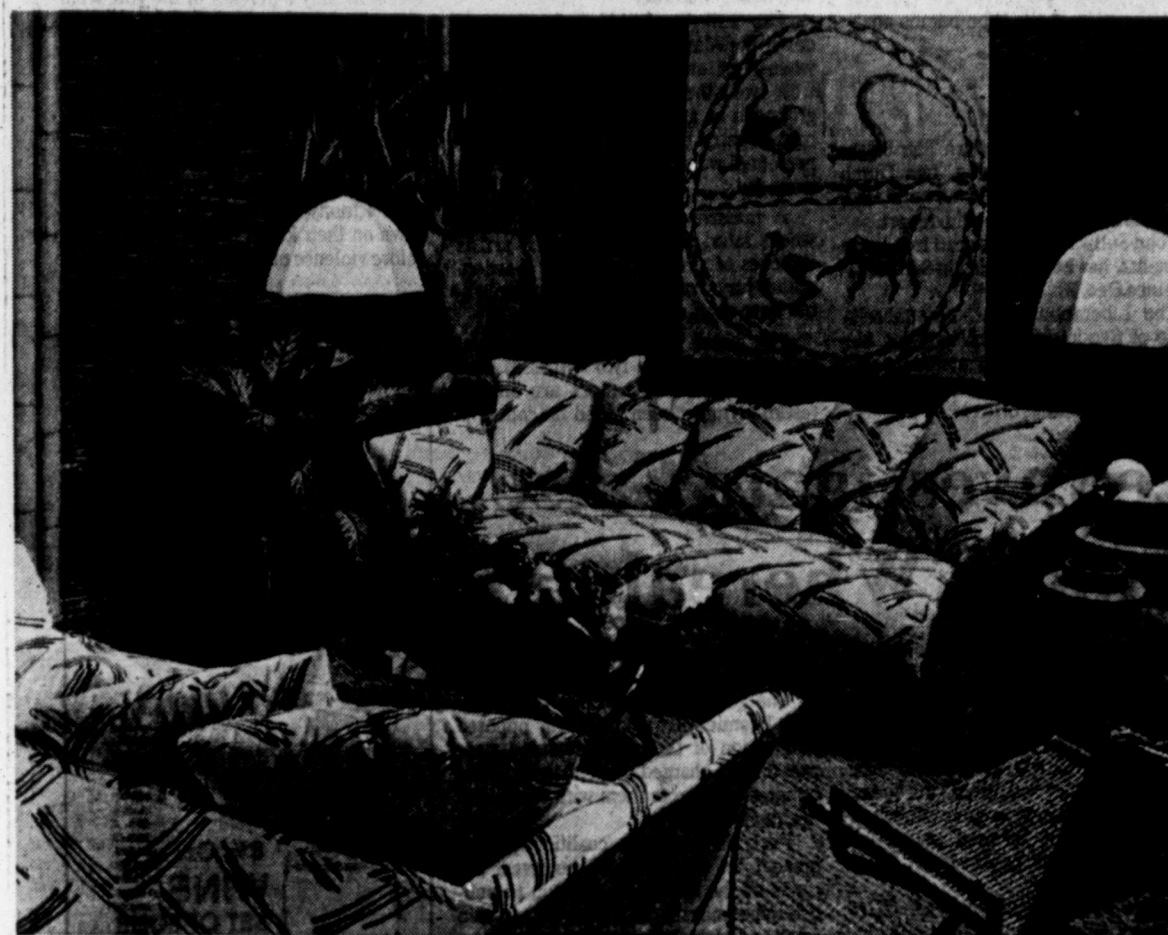

This utensil's ancestor was the brazier, in which ancient Egyptians, Romans and other peoples prepared their meals. The chafing dish consists of an adjustable heat source, like those for fondue, on a protective metal tray, topped with a frame for holding a water pan and cooking pans. The latter range from deep ones for sauced dishes to frying, omelet and crepe pans. Most foods are prepared directly over the heat source. Then the water pan, called a bain-marie, is inserted to keep finished dish warm without scorching.

While there are many chafing dish cookbooks, you can cook almost any saucy recipe that would ordinarily be prepared on a range. While adapting one of your favorites, select a recipe with a limited number of ingredients. Prepare and measure the ingredients beforehand and place them in bowls as with wok cooking.

Although everything from appetizers to entrees to breakfast becomes special when prepared in a chafing dish, there is no food more spectacular than a flaming dessert.

You'd be surprised how easy it is. If you read several recipes, you will find that the flame is merely burning alcohol from brandy, liqueur or rum. When the flame dies, the flavor of these beverages remains, but no alcohol. After adding the liquor, you either ignite the dish directly, or, for a more startling effect, light a small portion of the beverage in a ladle and pour it slowly over the finished dessert — a grand, tableside finale.

So whether you prefer to entertain with the elegance of the French, or the simplicity of the Swiss or the uniqueness of the Orient, you can prepare a meal before your guests' eyes that is sure to please their tastes.

CASUAL FAMILY ROOM SETTING — There's a new look in prints that embraces modern art, expressing abstractions for casual living. Now it's a geometric print, tumbling freely on duck fabric, that can enhance an elegant living room or, as here, excite a family room. The print covers sofas, with gentle flare arms and oversize webbing for detail. Designer Peter Culhane has placed them in a casual setting that evokes the east — straw matting on the floor and walls, and an ethnic embroidery framed for art. He mates the contemporary print with chrome, via the base of a glass-topped coffee table and the frame of a wicker director's chair, to produce an environment that's commanding, as well as comfortable.

DEAR ABBY

Child Rearing Book Praised

DEAR READERS: This is well worth repeating. I want to recommend one of my favorite books filled with excellent advice on raising children. Mine are raised, but if you are still struggling to raise yours, get "Parenthood Without Hassles — Well, Almost," by Dr. Kevin Leman (Harvest House Publishers, Irvine, Calif. 92714). The following treasure is from that book:

A CHILD'S TEN COMMANDMENTS TO PARENTS

1. My hands are small; please don't expect perfection whenever I make a bed, draw a picture or throw a ball. My legs are short; please slow down so that I can keep up with you.
2. My eyes have not seen the world as yours have; please let me explore safely. Don't restrict me unnecessarily.
3. Housework will always be there. I'm only little for a short time — please take time to explain things to me about this wonderful world, and do so willingly.
4. My feelings are tender; please be sensitive to my needs; don't nag all day long. (You wouldn't want to be nagged for your inquisitiveness.) Treat me as you would like to be treated.

5. I am a special gift from God; please treasure me as God intended you to do, holding me accountable for my actions, giving me guidelines to live by and disciplining me in a loving manner.

6. I need your encouragement to grow. Please go easy on the criticism; remember, you can criticize the things I do without criticizing me.

7. Please give me the freedom to make decisions concerning myself. Permit me to fail, so that I can learn from my mistakes. Then someday I'll be prepared to make the kind of decisions life requires of me.

8. Please don't do things over for me. Somehow that makes me feel that my efforts didn't quite measure up to your expectations. I know it's hard, but please don't try to compare me with my brother or my sister.

9. Please don't be afraid to leave for a weekend together. Kids need vacations from parents, just as parents need vacations from kids. Besides, it's a great way to show us kids that your marriage is very special.

10. Please take me to Sunday school and church regularly, setting a good example for me to follow. I enjoy learning more about God.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding your answer to CURIOUS IN GEORGIA concerning the question of Ronald Reagan's hair — does he or doesn't he dye it: My father, Vince Ciccone, was Reagan's barber at Paramount Studios from 1961 to 1967 and Reagan promised my father that if he ever became governor of California, he would give him a position on the Board of Barber Examiners.

Well, Reagan became governor, and my father had a new career at 50! Isn't it good to know that our new president keeps his promises?

During the Civil War, the battleship Merrimack was scuttled to block the entrance to a harbor. From this desperate act was derived the term "Merrimack Coup," a play where a defender deliberately sacrifices a high honor for the purpose of knocking out an entry. But if the sea route is blocked, there is nothing to stop you from going by land!

Although North held only 8 points, he felt that his good six-card suit amply compensated for any high-card shortage. We endorse his decision to bid three no trump.

West led the four of spades, won by East with the ace. Had East tamely returned a spade, this column would never have been written. But East could see that dummy's diamond suit posed a very real threat and that it was vital to attack dummy's entry — the ace of clubs — before the ace of diamonds was dislodged. A shift to a low club would have proven ineffective for declarer would win in his hand and force out the ace of diamonds. Therefore, East made the brilliant shift to the king of clubs — the Merrimack Coup!

It would have been to no avail to hold up the ace of clubs — East would simply continue the suit to render dummy entryless. So declarer won the ace but now he could count only eight tricks — two spades, two hearts, one diamond and three clubs. However, he found an intriguing method of bringing home his contract.

After winning the ace of clubs, declarer ran dummy's nine of hearts. West won the jack and exited with a club to declarer's jack. Declarer led the queen of diamonds and overtook in dummy with the king.

East could not afford to win the diamond, for that would set up the whole suit for declarer. When he ducked, he provided declarer with an entry to the table to take a second heart finesse. When this succeeded, declarer had his ninth trick.

Both East and South deserve recognition for their brilliant performance.

FBI Hunts For Clues To Puerto Rican Bombings

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Dozens of FBI agents swarmed over the San Juan area today, hunting for clues to a small band of independence-seeking terrorists blamed for the $45-million bombing of Puerto Rico's Air National Guard unit.

The bombing early Monday, which destroyed eight of the unit's 20 Corsair II jet fighters and damaged two others, was the third attack in 14 months by the Macheteros, the Puerto Rican Popular

Army, on the U.S. military presence in America's island commonwealth. But officials gave no indication that they had any clues to the identity of the bombers.

Federal agents combed the wreckage of the planes on the hangar apron at the Muniz Air Base adjoining San Juan's international airport, collected bits of shrapnel and inspected footprints found in the mud near a hole cut in the chain-link fence around the base.

The raiders cut through the fence

Sunday night when only two sentries were guarding the base and planted about 20 pipe bombs in the air intakes, exhaust pipes and landing-gear wheels of a dozen planes spread out over the football-field-sized concrete apron. Before escaping, apparently undetected, they penetrated the base's fuel depot and left a calling card — a small machete marked with the group's initials and its flag.

After the explosions, news services received telephone calls saying the Machtet-eros were responsible for the raid. The motive was not given, but in the past the organization said it would fight the "foreign" presence of the U.S. military on the island.

No one was hurt, but damage was estimated at $45 million. In addition to the 10 A-7H Corsairs destroyed or damaged, a deactivated engineless F-104 Starfighter on display was blown up.

Maj. Agustin Correa of the Air National Guard said the pipe bombs apparently carried a mixture of explosive liquid and gasoline set off by timers and were designed to ignite the planes' fuel tanks. One of his officers called the bombs "home-made but not garden variety."

Bernard Perez, the FBI agent in charge of the investigation, said the bomb carried a "high-order" explosive capable of "a much more terrible explosion than gunpowder."

The FBI has been trying to track down the Macheteros since Dec. 3, 1979, when they announced they had joined with two other leftist pro-independence groups in an ambush on a Navy bus on a back-country road. Two unarmed Navy personnel were killed and 10 others were wounded.

A massive manhunt followed. Three weeks later, the FBI circulated artists' sketches of suspects, and later a federal grand jury was convened. But nobody has been charged.

The grand jury investigation appears to have stalled, and two witnesses from whom federal prosecutors are seeking testimony have been jailed on contempt citations for refusing to talk.

Meanwhile, last March 2, as the grand jury was preparing to meet, gunmen fired on three U.S. Army ROTC instructors en route to work and grazed one of them. The Macheteros said they were responsible.

There is no evidence of public support for the tiny left-wing group's violent campaign for independence. In recent elections only 5 percent of the vote went to pro-independence candidates, and all but a handful were cast for a party that advocates a peaceful transition.

"If these people are Puerto Rican, how little they know the people," said Gov. Carlos Romero Barcelo, an advocate of statehood for Puerto Rico. "We are a tolerant people who want to live in peace and harmony, but these people won't go down on their knees before anybody, not before violence or intimidation."

Death Toll Climbs In Salvador Battle

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Government troops battled leftist guerrillas for control of a key highway today in a stepped-up guerrilla offensive that has left 327 dead, including a South African journalist. Two other journalists, both Americans, were wounded.

Leftist opposition groups called for a nationwide strike to support the guerrillas, who want to seize power before Jan. 20, when Ronald Reagan becomes president in Washington.

Twenty San Salvador factories Monday reported strikes already had started. Bus company owners in San Salvador said they would keep their vehicles off the street throughout the strike.

Despite a claim by junta President Jose Napoleon Duarte that government troops have defeated the guerrilla's "final offensive," fighting continued late in the night Monday.

The Red Cross reported that 326 people have died since the Farabundo Marti Liberation Front began its "final" push for power Saturday. Report said there was fighting in almost every of the nation's 13 provinces.

Government officials said the fiercest battles were at the towns of San Francisco Gotera and Santa Rosa de Lima, about 100 miles east of San Salvador, and at Santa Cruz Michapa, 14 miles east of the capital — all located along a strategic highway linking San Salvador to Honduras.

The war began to take its toll on journalists.

Two American photographers — John Hoagland on assignment for Newsweek Magazine and Susan Meiselas on assignment for Time — were injured when their car exploded a landmine on a highway outside El Salvador.

South African cameraman Ian Mates, who worked for UPITN — UPI Television News — and was also in the car, died today, the Central Diagnostic Hospital in San Salvador said.

A spokesman for the hospital said Mates underwent surgery for 2 hours, 45 minutes, but never regained consciousness from his wounds in which shrapnel entered his brain.

Venezuelan reporter Nelson Arriti of Caracas was kidnapped by men in police uniform from his downtown San Salvador hotel Monday evening, two Dutch journalists staying in the same hotel said. Police had no comment on the report.

John Sullivan, an American free-lance journalist, has been missing in San Salvador since Dec. 28.

The Liberation Front, an umbrella group of five leftist guerrilla groups, has vowed its 4,000 to 6,000 members will seize the upper hand in the fighting before Reagan assumes office.

Four Suspects Arrested In Sheik's Death

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israel Radio said today that police have arrested four Arab suspects in the killing of Sheikh Ahmad Abu Rabiya, an Israeli Bedouin member of Parliament. He was the first member of Parliament to be assassinated in Israel's history.

The radio said two suspects were Israeli Arabs who were arrested in the occupied West Bank of the Jordan at a road block just hours after the murder Monday night. It said the other two were arrested this morning, and identified them as members of Israel's Druse minority.

The radio said the first pair's fingerprints matched those found on a revolver discovered in the bushes at Jerusalem's Holyland Hotel after the murder. It said two automatic rifles were discovered in the same area this morning.

The police refused to comment, but were reported investigating the possibility that the death was connected to inter-Arab rivalries.

The newspaper Maariv reported that Abu Rabiya recently was threatened with death and sent letters to the minister of interior, the minister of defense and the head of the police, asking for an investigation.

Press reports speculated the assassination resulted from a feud between Abu Rabiya, who represented Israel's 42,000 Bedouins, and Sheikh Jabr Moadi, of the Israeli Arab Druse minority, over a seat in Parliament.

Abu Rabiya led negotiations with the Israeli government over compensation for Bedouin land expropriated in the Negev Desert, and the Israeli media also speculated he made many enemies among his own people with that deal.

Second Sit-In Quashed By Polish Authorities

WARSAW (UPI) — More than 300 police including a full mechanized riot squad broke up a 16-day sit-in by protesters demanding official recognition of a private farmers union. The police action, part of a government crackdown, was the second against the farmers' union in two days.

The Solidarity union immediately declared an hour-long protest strike in the area to protest the forceful ouster Monday night of the protesters from a government building in Ustrzyki Dolne, which is near the Soviet border.

It was the second time in two days authorities had stepped in with police to forcibly end a sit-in by rural Solidarity supporters. On Sunday night, police evicted Solidarity members and private farmers who occupied the city hall in Nowy Sacz.

Poland's Supreme Court has postponed a decision on allowing the private farmers to register and the nation's Communist Party leader Stanislaw Kania indicated during the weekend that the government does not favor a farmers union, modeled on the Solidarity organization.

The report of the massive police operation came to light after Lech Walesa, the leader of Poland's independent Solidarity labor organization, flew to Rome today to meet Pope John Paul II and Italian labor leaders despite threats of new strikes by his organization at home.

Solidarity said six plainclothesmen, back by about 20 helmeted police in gas masks and about 300 mechanized riot police Monday night forced the 60-odd protesters from the local government building in Ustrzyki Dolne they had occupied since Dec. 29.

There was no violence, a Solidarity spokesman said.

He said workers in non-agricultural plants were called on to don armbands in sympathy. "The police action has consolidated the people in the area," the spokesman said.

He said six plainclothesmen had entered the occupied building Monday evening and checked the identity papers of the protesters. Then, about a score of uniformed police in helmets and gas masks forced their way into the building.

"Outside, there were about 300 mechanized riot control police," he said. "The building was cordoned off."

in the trunks of parked cars there. Despite extensive searches, the cars described by the callers were not found.

The Red Brigades, who kidnapped and killed former Premier Aldo Moro in 1978 and abducted d'Urso a month ago, said Saturday they would kill the judge unless major Italian newspapers published two statements by terrorist prison inmates by this morning at the latest. Most major dailies refused.

"We're in the final minutes," d'Urso's 17-year-old daughter Lorena said in a televised appeal to the left-wing urban guerrillas and the nation's editors Monday night.

"You editors and journalists have written entire newspapers on the Red Brigades, and now do you really want my father to die? Why? How is it possible for a piece of paper?"

Lorena also read an excerpt from a Red Brigades manifest that said her father "was directly responsible for the cruel, counter-revolutionary policies that the state has wanted to use against all proletarian prisoners."

"The hangman d'Urso was justly condemned. The decision taken by the Red Brigades is certainly a great act of humanity."

D'Urso had a highly sensitive job in the nation's prison system deciding which inmates should be transferred to special maximum-security institutions. Virtually all of the nation's leading papers refused to print the "manifestos" by jailed urban guerrillas at Trani and Palmi maximum-security prisons in southern Italy.

"The life of Giovanni d'Urso is in the hands of the Red Brigades and not in the hands of journalists," reporters and editors of the left-wing Rome daily Paese Sera said in a statement. "The terrorists

Italian Police Investigate False Reports Of Judge's Whereabouts

ROME (AP) — Italian police chased false reports today of the body of a kidnapped judge being found after a Red Brigades death deadline expired.

Police rushed to neighborhoods in Genoa and Verona to hunt for the body of Judge Giovanni d'Urso after anonymous callers said his corpse was stashed are trying to make others take responsibility for their crimes."

The government of Christian Democrat Premier Arnaldo Forlani opposed publication of the manifestos and state prosecutors charged more than 80 of the inmates who wrote them with complicity in kidnapping d'Urso.

Forlani's four-party coalition did not present an united front, however, because of the Socialists' decision to publish the manifestos in Avanti, a paper too small to satisfy the terrorists' demands.

That didn't please the small Republican Party, Forlani's smallest coalition partner after the Socialist and Social Democrats, who have taken a firm stand against any deals with the urban guerrillas. The Republicans issued a statement blasting the terrorists' ultimatums as "inadmissible blackmail."

Forlani was scheduled to speak on terrorism to Parliament Wednesday and political sources predicted he might face a vote of confidence.

NEW MUSEUM FANS

CHICAGO (AP) — Two major American museums have formed a partnership with television to lure youngsters into their halls. Both Chicago's Museum of Science and Industry and the Lawrence Hall of Science at Berkeley, Calif., are drawing crowds these days by offering special activities connected to "3-2-1 CONTACT," a daily Children's Television Workshop science series for 8 to 12 year olds.

Truckers Protest Police Crackdown
 PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Truckers sealed off a truck stop with dozens of tractor-trailer rigs to protest a police crackdown on prostitution at the site. Police this week estimated that 40 truckers, who are unhappy with the law-enforcement action, used their rigs to block entrances and exits at the Road-runner Truck Stop, for about two hours, beginning at 1 a.m.
 The truckers claimed the women seen coming and going from the truck stop were wives and girlfriends. They asked the truck stop's managers to force police to stop harassing them.

Area Republicans Rap Hance's Seat Switch

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff
Lubbock County Republicans said Monday U.S. Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock could have more effectively served his constituents by retaining his seat on the House Agriculture Committee instead of resigning that position for a place on the House Ways and Means Committee.

"Lubbock area Republicans are expressing disappointment over the manner in which U.S. Rep. Kent Hance was appointed to the committee and his decision to resign from the House Agriculture Committee," a statement from the GOP said.

However, Hance labeled the statement as "playing politics" and said it indicates "a lack of knowledge on their part on what the Ways and Means Committee does."

"Hance announced last week he had been nominated to the prestigious Ways and Means Committee. If confirmed as expected, he would be forced to relinquish membership on two committees where he now holds seniority — Agriculture and Science and Technology," the statement said.

GOP County Chairman Ruth Schiermeyer said Hance's departure from the Agriculture Committee is at a critical time, particularly since he also has been on the cotton subcommittee.

"The Food and Agriculture Act of 1977 expires this year and unless it is extended, new farm legislation will have to be enacted," Mrs. Schiermeyer said. "Even if it is extended, the Congress will have to tackle new farm legislation a year from now."

"Cotton and other agricultural measures are extremely critical to our area. Since Hance already has some seniority on the Agriculture Committee, we hate to see it lost regardless of the opportunity to serve another committee," Mrs. Schiermeyer said.

She added Hance will be low on the seniority scale as a first-time member of the Ways and Means Committee.

"Had Speaker (Thomas P.) O'Neill followed the ratio in makeup of the new Congress, Republicans would have had a permanent gain of three conservative members on Ways and Means," she said. "As it is, we feel he repudiated the voters mandate by retaining the three committee seats for the Democrats."

However, Hance said the Republicans are ignoring the importance of Ways and Means Committee actions on agriculture.

"It handles all import and export legislation which has been the key factor the last five years in determining the prices we receive from commodities," he said, adding the reason cotton prices are strong is foreign trade with countries like Taiwan and China.

Hance said Agriculture Committee Chairman Eligio "Kiki" De Le Garza, D-Mission, and Charles Stenholm, D-Stamford, who is a member of the Agriculture Committee "worked hard on getting me the Ways and Means assignment."

"They, along with other members of the Texas delegation, felt we needed someone with an agricultural background on Ways and Means," he said.

"It was not a decision I made on my own. I consulted with agricultural leaders in my area," Hance said, adding he feels he can exert more influence on behalf of agriculture as a member of the Ways and Means Committee.

When he was on the Agriculture Committee, Hance said, there were three members from Texas, but only one Texan on Ways and Means.

"We felt one of us needed to move to that committee."

Hance said his committee seniority will be changed very little with the move to Ways and Means. On the 24-member Agriculture Committee, Hance said he was nineteenth in seniority. He will be twenty-first in seniority on Ways and Means, because he received the most votes for nomination to the committee.

Hance said the congressman who is expected to succeed him on the Agriculture Committee, Rep. Charles Hatcher, D-Georgia, "represents an area primarily like mine I doubt he will vote any different on agricultural matters."

Little will change on the Agriculture Committee as a result of his resignation from it, Hance said, while influence for agricultural producers is increasing "on really the most powerful committee in Congress."

"It's playing politics or they don't know me," Hance said. "The only criticism about my being on the committee has come from a liberal Republican who said I was too close to cattle and oil and would speak up for those industries."

"It's pretty obvious it's just politics," he said. "I'm proud to receive the honor to get on this committee. It will allow me to have more influence for my district."

Mrs. Schiermeyer said she and the Republican Executive Committee of Lubbock County are fully aware of the power and prestige of the Ways and Means Committee. "But weighing the need for new farm legislation that will impact on the 19th District, Hance's resignation from Agriculture and the subcommittee on cotton, and the manner in which Democrats retained seats on Ways and Means, we can't help but feel disappointment," the statement said.

Dallas Solon To Fight For Rules Change

AUSTIN (AP) — A Dallas Republican promised to give Texas legislators a chance today to strip House Speaker Bill Clayton and his team of some of their power.

"If he has 115 votes to be speaker, he probably has 115 votes against my rules changes. I don't have any illusions about that," said Rep. Frank Gaston.

"But the members, somewhere down the line, are going to wake up to the fact they had a chance to enhance their effectiveness and their ability to represent their constituents, and they blew it," he said.

Gaston complained that Clayton's rules prevent equal representation in the Texas House of Representatives.

Common Cause, an organization that lobbies for what it regards as more open and responsive government, supports Gaston's proposals.

Clayton defends his proposed rules, saying there are few changes from the last session of the Texas Legislature. He said the proposals will perpetuate "the fairness and openness" of his speakership.

REAGANS' HOME FOR SALE — The home of President-elect Ronald Reagan and his wife Nancy was put on the market officially Monday for the price of $1.9 million. This front view shows the five bedroom contemporary ranch-style house located in Pacific Palisades, Calif. The home has a pool and was built by the Reagans in 1956 for about $100,000. The move had been expected due to security problems of the location. (AP Laserphoto)

Lack Of Hispanics In Cabinet Protested

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Hispanic coalition has protested President-elect Ronald Reagan's failure to include a Hispanic in his Cabinet "a severe setback" and asked to meet with him as soon as possible.

"Your choice of people to serve in your administration is notable for its lack of Hispanic representation," the group wrote in a letter to the president-elect. "This omission represents a severe setback for the aspirations of the Hispanic community."

The letter sent by the National Council of La Raza and supported by 12 leaders of Hispanic social activist groups, acknowledges that Reagan considered appointing a Hispanic to his Cabinet.

The name of Philip Sanchez, a Mexican-American from California, circulated widely as a contender for secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development before he withdrew from consideration.

"Your failure, however, to name a Hispanic to your Cabinet, coupled with the fact that you have yet to meet with national Hispanic organizational leaders, sends very negative signals to a community that is tired of being ignored or treated as an afterthought," the letter to Reagan said.

The coalition proposed three remedies, including a meeting between Reagan and Hispanic leaders; intensified efforts to recruit Hispanics for remaining top-level posts in the Reagan administration, "particularly sub-Cabinet and independent agency heads"; and the appointment of a special assistant for Hispanic affairs.

Reagan has met with a group of Hispanic Republicans since his election but has yet to schedule a meeting with the leaders of Hispanic activist organizations.

The letter was signed by Raul Yzaguirre of the National Council of La Raza and supported by Ruben Bonilla of the League of United Latin American Citizens, Manuel Bustel of the National Puerto Rican Forum, Jose Can of American GI Forum, Guarione M. Diaz of the Cuban National Planning Council, Wilma Espinoza of the Mexican-American Women's National Association, Pedro Ruiz Gara of SER Job for Progress Inc., Jose Carlos Gomez of the National Economic Development Association, David Montoya of IMAGE, Ana Maria Perera of the National Association of Cuban-American Women Inc., Rodolfo Bali Sanchez of the National Coalition of Hispanic Mental Health and Human Services Organizations and Pablo Sedillo of the Secretariat for Hispanic Affairs of the U.S. Catholic Conference.

Presidential Order Approves Salary Boost For Supervisors

WASHINGTON (AP) — The minimum salary for up to 150,000 privately employed supervisors is going up 45 percent under an order approved by President Carter over objections by the incoming Reagan administration and business groups.

Monday's ruling means executive and administrative employees must be paid at least $225 a week to remain exempt from overtime provisions of the Federal Labor Standards Act, which requires time-and-a-half pay for work performed beyond 40 hours a week. The minimum now is $155 a week.

The Labor Department issued the rule eight days before Carter leaves office despite a request by President-elect Ronald Reagan's transition team for a delay so the new administration could review the matter.

The Labor Department defended the increase as the first in the minimum salary since 1975.

However, a member of Reagan's transition team at the Labor Department complained, "It is most unfortunate to do something like that in a lame-duck period." The official asked not to be identified.

Mark de Bernardo, a lawyer for the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, labeled the action a "midnight raid" and said the chamber may go to court to block it.

The minimum salary increase of 45 percent would take effect Feb. 13. A second increase, of $250 a week, would come in 1983.

In a parallel move, the department said the minimum salary for professional employees exempt from overtime will be raised from $170 a week to $250 a week on Feb. 13 and to $280 a week in 1983.

Labor Department officials estimated the new salaries would affect up to 150,000 supervisors now receiving the minimum salary, mostly in the fast-food restaurant, hotel-motel and retail industries.

Employees also must perform supervisory duties specified by the Labor Department to be exempt from overtime.

Edwin Meese II, Reagan's transition director and chief counselor, complained about the pending changes to Jack Watson, Carter's chief of staff, transition officials said.

Administration sources said Carter personally ordered the two-step increases, first proposed by the Labor Department in May 1978 but postponed because of vehement opposition from White House inflation fighters as well as from business groups.

Last month, Meese told a Chamber of Commerce meeting the Reagan administration would consider retracting last-minute regulatory changes made by the Carter administration.

Labor Department officials, however, said the Reagan administration could not complete the complex rule-making process required to rescind the new salary increases before they take effect.

Los Angeles Recognizes Reagan's Achievements

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ronald Reagan may call Los Angeles his home, but the president-elect is not remembered around City Hall as someone who spent much time worrying about its problems when he was California's governor.

But Reagan's eight years as governor are well behind him now and Los Angeles is bidding the president-elect an official farewell worthy of a prince.

It's Ronald Reagan Day in Los Angeles.

The floors at City Hall were scrubbed and waxed, walls outside the City Council chamber were painted and pillars were polished for today's ceremonies.

The red carpet treatment laid out for Reagan was the first since Prince Charles, heir to the British throne, stopped at City Hall Oct. 26, 1977.

A City Council resolution honors Reagan as a "man of strong patriotic spirit and love for his country" and commends him for "dedicated service to insure a stronger America ... for years of distinguished leadership which has instilled a renewed sense of confidence and hope to people throughout America and ... the world for a more peaceful and economically stable international environment."

All this for a man who, during his two terms as the state's chief executive, had little to do with the city's officials, according to a spokesman for Democratic Mayor Tom Bradley.

"There was not a great deal of communication between the governor and city officials," said Tom Sullivan, Bradley's press secretary, who described relations between the Democratic mayor and the Republican governor as "proper but not very close."

Bradley became mayor in 1973. Reagan left office at the end of 1974.

Sullivan said "a couple of city officials said they never remembered seeing Reagan here (at City Hall) or hearing him talk about the problems" of Los Angeles. "The only time he was in town was when he was at home," Sullivan said.

The spokesman said Bradley, who supported President Carter's re-election campaign, "would be as proper as he can be" during the ceremonies.

"He does hold a very proper respect for the office that Reagan is assuming," Sullivan said.

Today's celebration came one day before Reagan leaves for Washington to become president and one week before he is sworn into office. And it came nearly 40 years after he arrived in Los Angeles as an unknown, aspiring actor.

Brothers Charged In Couple's Death

BELLE GLADE, Fla. (AP) — Two brothers have been charged with first-degree murder in the shooting death of a Miami couple who never returned from a New Year's weekend hunting trip, authorities say.

John Michele Lecroy, 22, and his 17-year-old brother, whose name was not released, were being held this week on charges of murder and robbery, sheriff's officials said.

The brothers, from North Miami, helped 75 searchers find the bodies of John Hardiman III, 27, and his wife, Gail, 25, on Sunday, authorities said. Sheriff Richard Wille said no motive for the killings had been established.

Rock Singer Making Broadway Debut In 'Pirates Of Penzance'

By JAY SHARBUTT
NEW YORK (AP) — Last summer, the New York Shakespeare Festival's "The Pirates of Penzance," with pop star Linda Ronstadt among the players, had a wildly successful open-air theater run in Central Park.

Well, Miss Ronstadt made her Broadway debut in it last week, when the 101-year-old Gilbert and Sullivan comic opera and virtually the same summer cast reopened at the cavernous Uris Theater.

She's excellent, much more relaxed, and her voice is far richer and fuller than in the last edition. The rest of the cast is solid — save two — but not quite as good as during the Central Park run.

A major drawback is the stage at the Uris. I won't say it's too large for this show but it is a better forum for the Reno Air Races.

The set seems little changed from the Central Park version — a compact facade and platform with a railed walkway that encircles the orchestra. It was a tight fit at the park but it worked.

Here, with about 20 vacant feet to the left and right of the set, your eyes tend to wander. The broad or gentle bits of jest that made "Penzance" such a summer sparkler lose some of their impact in all this space.

Even Kevin Kline, so memorable as the Pirate King who broadly swathed and buckled his way in the last edition, swashes a bit excessively here, apparently feeling a huge stage requires huge gestures.

He even leaned down opening night and planted a big kiss on a lovely, startled flute player in the band, having just arrived aboard a pirate ship with his inept, good-hearted hearties.

But no matter. He's still funny. And the show still runs smoothly, with his young, handsome apprentice pirate (pop singer Rex Smith) again losing his heart to Mabel (Miss Ronstadt), fair maiden by trade.

As in 1879, she's one of eight lovely daughters of a sweetly dense Major General (brilliantly played again by George Rose) in this satirical saga of true love, duty and tongue-twisting tomfoolery.

A bumbling Keystone constabulary led by Tony Azito (superb here) once more is summoned, a pitched battle ensues, Smith's problem of duty to the pirates who raised him and the woman who loves him is resolved, and all ends happily as before for all hands.

Alas, it must be said that Smith still has a vibrato so fast it would alarm nannies. And Estelle Parsons, in the middle-aged pirate maid role done so well last summer by Patricia Routledge, just doesn't have the sly sparkle of her predecessor.

Another flaw: With Wilford Brimley again directing (he and Bob Shaw did the sets and Graciela Daniele the choreography), the cast unfortunately plays things looser, particularly Rose's daughters in the first act.

And it's too obvious a gag that some band members have a mock fight amid the rousing cops-and-pirates finale. It sums up what seems amiss in this production — the production occasionally tries too hard to give the impression everyone's having fun.

But flaws and all, this "Penzance" still is a lively, entertaining show.

The Almanac TODAY IN HISTORY

By United Press International
Today is Tuesday, Jan. 13, the 13th day of 1981 with 352 to follow.

The moon is in its first quarter.

The morning stars are Venus, Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury and Mars.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Capricorn.

Horatio Alger, author of "rags-to-riches" stories, was born Jan. 13, 1834.

On this date in history:

In 1864, famed composer Stephen Foster died in a New York hospital, three days after he had been found ill and almost penniless in a hotel room.

In 1868, the U.S. Senate refused to accept President Andrew Johnson's ouster of War Secretary Edwin Stanton and acting secretary, Ulysses Grant, resigned.

In 1972, New York state ruled a woman may become a professional baseball umpire.

In 1978, Sen. Hubert Humphrey died at the age of 66 from cancer.

A thought for the day: American writer Washington Irving said, "A sharp tongue is the only edged tool that grows keener with constant use."

Traveling Bridge Game Under Way For 71 Years

BOSTON (AP) — At one-tenth of a cent per point, it may not be your biggest moving bridge game around. But it could be the oldest.

Began in 1909 by investment broker Pliny Jewell, Harvard 1899, the bridge game has continued for 71 years on the Concord-to-Boston commuter train run with four regulars, a number of apprentices, fill-ins and vacation relievers.

"Of course we play for money," said senior partner George Goodspeed, 77, owner of Goodspeed's Book Shop on Boston's Beacon Hill, "but the stakes ... haven't changed since I began. We never did adjust for inflation. If we didn't play for money, then some people might get careless. There's got to be some incentive."

"I'm a little amused that two of the three boys I play with now were born after I got into the game," said Goodspeed, who was initiated in 1938.

"The only thing about the game that is a bit unusual is that it has operated in sort of apostolic succession. As far as I know, there has never been a break in its continuity."

East Texans Voice Opposition To Resettlement Of Refugees

By A-J News Services
Congressmen, municipal officials, judges and residents of seven East Texas counties offered six hours of criticism — some personal, some facetious, but all decidedly negative to a plan to resettle as many as 300 Cuban refugees in the area.

Despite the almost unanimous opposition of the estimated 150 persons who attended three discussions of the plan Monday in Marshall, the leader of a refugee resettlement organization said he still intends to find East Texas homes for between 100 and 300 Cubans.

In El Paso four Cuban refugees who fled from a detention center there were recaptured and are being sent to a federal prison in Atlanta. An INS District Director Alfred H. Giugni says bad publicity may hamper relocation efforts for the remaining refugees.

Referring to the opposition by East Texans Ron Meers, president of Bellevue Missions International, a Hurst church-related group said, "If we let this stop us, there'll never be another refugee placed."

Much of East Texas, especially the targeted towns of Marshall, Lone Star, Longview, Mount Pleasant and Daingerfield, has been in an uproar since last week when a Justice Department official said Bellevue wanted to bring 2,000 Cuban refugees into the area from Fort Chaffee, Ark. The 2,000 figure proved erroneous, but city officials said there still were not enough jobs or homes for 300 Cubans.

The Monday meetings were hosted by the Community Relations Service, a division of the U.S. Justice Department, to give Meers a chance to sell his resettlement proposal. However, he won over no supporters.

"It seems there's only one thing here on which there is no confusion — we don't want the Cubans," Meers was told by a woman who identified herself as "Jane Doe Public."

Suggestions on where to send the Cubans included Havana, Alcatraz and Plains, Ga.

"We're just as opposed to 2,000 as 300," said Rep. Sam Hall Jr., D-Texas. "I was on the immigration subcommittee, and we interviewed some of them and know what kind of people they are. Their customs are abhorrent to our society. They urinate in public and are prone to masturbation."

"If they (Bellevue personnel) go on input from these people here, they'll stop this plan."

W.O. Irwin, mayor of Daingerfield, told Meers, "I don't like like you, your organization, the way you've handled this."

REGISTER FOR BRIEFING — U.S. Rep. Sam B. Hall of Marshall registers for a briefing held in Marshall on plans to resettle Cuban refugees in Northeast Texas. U.S. Rep. Ralph Hall of Rockwall, left, waits to sign in while a U.S. Justice Department conciliator looks on. The Justice Department sponsored three briefings Monday for World Relief Corp. who announced plans for resettling 150-300 Cubans in four counties. The congressmen were attending a session held for law enforcement officials, which was followed by a luncheon for county officials and a public session for other officials. (AP Laserphoto)

Council Unable To Aid Troubled Theater

By WILLIAM D. KERNS
A-J Entertainment Editor

The Lubbock Cultural Affairs Council offered sympathy Monday to the financially troubled Lubbock Theatre Centre, but said it can provide no additional financial aid.

Cultural Affairs Council president Terry Key said that the council had given Lubbock Theatre Centre a grant of $10,000 last year (November 1979), adding, "We'll be sympathetic, but we do not want to become involved in the financial process."

Delissa Rampy, LTC board member, told the council's board members, "We need to know if there's a need or interest in the Theatre Centre. We have a lot more competition now with touring productions, and we haven't had good attendance at our last four to five productions or at any of the special events we've planned."

"So we want your input. If we have a place in the community, what is it? Do the people want a community theater. Would they rather see musicals? Or dramas instead of the comedies we've been doing? See, even if we got the money to pay our bills, the only way not to get back in the same situation is through support."

Miss Rampy added that she felt the present LTC board had done a "good job in correcting past problems," but said LTC is still hurting for manpower. "We only have 10 or 11 people on our board. And by comparison, the (Lubbock Civic) Ballet board has 40 members. We've extensively searched for people to serve on the board, but have been told they don't have the time to volunteer for such an extensive project."

Cultural Affairs Council executive director Carl Hill said his organization could send a questionnaire to all CAC members by the end of the week, soliciting response to Miss Rampy's questions. But after the meeting, Miss Rampy expressed disappointment over the lack of response by council members.

"Nobody even asked any questions. I really don't want to sound negative, but when the people who are the leaders of the cultural community don't want to become involved... If they are not interested, what do we do? I know they are busy with so many other interests, but still..."

She added that LTC has thus far received very little response from the community. "One lady called and said she supported our shows, but didn't have the kind of money we needed. And there's been no direct requests to be board members. We've had a couple calls from people sort of testing the water, but so far nobody has put their neck out."

Should Lubbock Theatre Centre have to close its doors, Miss Rampy said, it would mark the end of community theater forever in Lubbock. "If there wasn't a major college here, it might be different. But there are so many entertainment alternatives in Lubbock. And also, it would cost something like $2 million to build a new theater here. That we were able to get the Lindsey was just a one-of-a-kind miracle from heaven."

Of LTC's chances for recovery, she said, "I'm hopeful. But really, I'd say right now the chances range between slim and none."

In other Cultural Affairs Council action, the 1980 and 1981 Lubbock Arts Festivals were discussed and grant winners were announced.

Nineteen-eighty festival co-chairmen Alan Henry and Bernice Spears expressed appreciation for the West Texas Museum Association's assistance in the festival winning an "Action Award."

Pauline Bean, co-chairman of this year's festival, said that art work for the May event had been juried, with "45 out of 194 applicants" chosen to exhibit in Lubbock. She added that the performing arts deadline is Feb. 10, applications for food booths must be turned in by Jan. 19 and the deadline to submit senior citizen displays is March 1.

She also indicated hope that a grant would finance an exhibit at the festival depicting the contributions of blacks and Mexican-Americans to Texas history. The exhibit would be provided by the Institute of Texas Cultures.

Cultural Affairs Council vice president David Hess announced that grants were supplied the following organizations from the city's hotel-motel tax: $2,000 to KTX-TFM for the purchase of classical records; $20,000 to the city parks and recreation department to develop a fine arts center next to the old Lubbock Theatre Centre building; $2,500 to Lubbock Civic Chorus for its 1980-81 season; $1,900 to the Tech music department to bring in guest artists for its Leading Edge Music Series; and $475 to Lubbock Christian College for the purchase of the final oil painting in a series of paintings of U.S. presidents.

Those applying for but not receiving grant money included the Tech German and Slavic language department, Food and Fiber Institute, Allegro Music Club, Lubbock Heritage Society and Ballet Folklorico.

Hill announced the next deadline to apply for grant money from the hotel-motel tax is June 1, and added that Feb. 1 is the deadline to submit grant applications to the Texas Commission For The Arts.

Debris Blamed For Train Derailment

A-J Correspondent

HEREFORD — Debris left on the tracks when a car crashed through a barricaded train crossing apparently caused the derailment of a Santa Fe freight train here at about midnight Friday.

Two Santa Fe employees manning the lead locomotive were the only reported casualties. F.E. Pegg, 63, and Gary Sisemore, 34, both of Amarillo, were treated for minor injuries and released by Deaf Smith General Hospital.

Damage to the three power units and five derailed cars was estimated at more than $1.3 million, according to Santa Fe spokesman Susan Metcalf.

One of the power units was destroyed, she said, adding that repairs could be made to the remainder of the units involved.

She said the train began to leave the rails at the South Main crossing, where a motorist apparently had driven through barricades set up before the train came through.

Planks and railroad ties placed at the barricade probably were strewn across the track, Miss Metcalf said. She said the crossing was barricaded because Santa Fe workers are replacing worn railroad ties in that area. The train was moving at about 40 mph at the time of the derailment, Miss Metcalf said.

Pegg and Sisemore told Hereford firemen that when they felt the train begin to derail they feared it would leave the tracks on the bridge over U.S. 385. The 60-car train continued about a half mile west of the overpass before derailling.

Fuel spilled from two of the overturned locomotives caught fire and kept Hereford and Walcott volunteer firemen busy until about 5 a.m. Saturday.

At 6:30 a.m., the fire rekindled and was doused with foam. Because the derailment blocked the line between Clovis and Amarillo, Santa Fe rerouted traffic through Lubbock, Miss Metcalf said the line was cleared by 6 p.m. Saturday. About 35 railroad employees participated in the clean-up.

There were no hazardous materials on the train, she said, adding it was made up mostly of "piggy-back" flat bed cars carrying United Postal Service materials and general merchandise.

Search For Missing Passengers Stopped

MORRO BAY, Calif. (AP) — A search for three men who vanished after a cabin-cruise accident has been called off by the Coast Guard.

Four people were aboard the 25-foot boat Friday when high waves hurled it into a jetty at the entrance to Morro Bay's harbor as the craft returned from a fishing trip. Charlene Mason, 38, who was below deck at the time, apparently was the only survivor, officials said.

Tossed overboard were Mrs. Mason's husband, James; Mason's brother, Gene, 48; and Dennis Yarbery, 25, officials said. All were from Morro Bay.

Solon Doubts Iranian Regime Controls Hostages

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, says the American hostages will not be freed before President Carter leaves office because the Iranian government has no control over most of them.

Hansen, who made two trips to Iran during the early months of the crisis and has maintained contacts there, says militants — not the government — still are in charge of 49 of the 52 hostages.

He made his comments in an interview released today by the Scripps League Newspapers.

"There will be no hostage transfer in the near future for a simple reason — the (Iranian) government doesn't have them," said Hansen, adding his sources were "90 percent sure" the Americans still will be held on Jan. 20, Ronald Reagan's Inauguration Day.

"The minute the militants give the hostages up, they've lost their only claim to political power in Iran, and that's something they aren't willing to do," he said.

Although the United States is engaged in indirect negotiations with the Iranian government for the hostages' release, State Department spokesman George Havens was quoted by Scripps League as saying U.S. officials are unsure who has the hostages or where they are being held.

Havens said film of the captives released at Christmas seemed to indicate the government had control or access to the hostages.

"But we can't say for certain who's controlling them, or even where they are," said Havens. "The Iranian government says they control them, but we have no independent confirmation."

The Idaho congressman said even Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini "has no control over the militants" and may himself be headed for overthrow because of internal unrest.

Hansen said he was told it was Khomeini's personal military cadre that recently removed the three Americans who had been held at the Iranian Foreign Ministry since the crisis began.

The three, Charge d'affaires Bruce Laingen, political officer Victor Tomseth, and security officer Michael Howland, are the only hostages held by the government.

Hansen said he also was told the Iranian government has claimed to have the hostages in order to appear strong in the eyes of its citizens and in hopes of getting money from the United States.

"The government is issuing paper money and urgently needs hard currency from the United States," the congressman said. "The government is shielding its weakness from its own people, by not admitting it doesn't have the hostages."

Hansen also said his sources told him the militants plan a publicity stunt during Reagan's inaugural week — possibly a purported escape attempt by one or more hostages — to keep the crisis in the news.

Curb Sought On Japanese Car Imports

WASHINGTON (AP) — Transportation Secretary Neil Goldschmidt has urged the White House or Congress to slow the flow of Japanese autos into the United States to give domestic carmakers time to regroup, sources said today.

A Transportation Department source said the recommendation came after a new department report on the industry concluded some form of "import restraint" is needed to help domestic manufacturers.

American automobile manufacturers reported record losses, estimated at more than $4 billion for General Motors, the Ford Motor Co. and the Chrysler Corp., in 1980 because of poor sales. Industry leaders have blamed auto imports, especially from Japan, for much of their problem.

Goldschmidt was expected to announce the new study's results and his recommendations to President Carter, contained in a letter sent Monday, at a news conference later today.

The incoming Reagan administration has not said whether it would move against the Japanese imports, but Transportation Secretary-designate Drew Lewis last week said he considered the plight of the domestic industry his top transportation problem.

United Auto Workers President Douglas A. Fraser, here for talks with Chrysler, said today he thought the secretary's recommendations "may influence the incoming administration ... certainly it's helpful."

The Detroit Free Press, meanwhile, reported today that Goldschmidt's recommendation calls for restrictions on Japanese imports over the next five years. Several Transportation Department sources said, however, Goldschmidt's recommendation embraces no time period.

Officials, all of whom asked not to be identified by name, provided few of the specifics in the report or in Goldschmidt's letter to Carter.

"We're talking about import restraints," said one source.

But the U.S. International Trade Commission last year rejected the industry's demands that the government impose trade restrictions against automobile imports, which grabbed 26.5 percent of the American market last year.

The agency said the domestic manufacturers' problems stemmed not only from the imports, but also from high inflation, the recession, high interest rates and mismanagement.

Another attempt to curb imports from Japan failed last month, when Congress failed to pass a resolution that would have authorized the president to negotiate directly with the Japanese on auto imports.

Domestic car sales hit a 19-year low in 1980, largely because of the economy and high interest rates, but also because of competition from Japan and Europe, economists said. The five U.S. auto manufacturers reported sales of 6.58 million cars during the year.

Babysitter Killed By Shotgun Blast

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP) — A 15-year-old girl was shot and killed accidentally by a shotgun blast fired by the 10-year-old boy for whom she was babysitting, police said Monday.

Delena Flores died Sunday night of a 410-gauge shotgun blast to the right temple. Officers said she had been staying with the boy on Sunday nights for some time.

ON TARGET — Officer cadet Bridget Collin, 21, from York-shire, checks her accuracy on the target at the Sandhurst pistol range Monday. Bridget was among the first members of the Women's Royal Army Corps to receive weapons instruction after a high-level decision to prepare women in the British armed forces to defend themselves. (AP Laserphoto)

High Court Ruling Aids Firm In Duel With IRS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court, acting in a case involving overseas payoffs, unanimously ruled today certain confidential communications between an attorney and his corporate client are shielded from forced disclosure to the IRS.

The case involved an investigation of some $4.4 million in allegedly improper payments made by employees of the Upjohn Co. to officials in foreign countries.

In his opinion for the full court, Justice William Rehnquist cautioned: "We decline to lay down a broad rule or series of rules to govern all conceivable future questions in this area, even were we able to do so."

In the case at hand, he said, the attorney-client privilege protects from mandatory disclosure responses to questionnaires and notes with responses to interview questions conducted during an investigation of the payoffs.

In other opinions issued today, the court:

—Ruled unanimously a district court order denying a request to disqualify a lawyer from a civil case for conflict of interest may not be appealed to a higher court. The issue was raised by Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. in connection with a product liability suit.

—Held, also unanimously, that dismissal of an indictment was an "inappropriate" remedy to alleged government misconduct in a heroin distribution case.

—Ruled, 7-2, a state criminal court is not required to conduct a hearing outside the jury's presence whenever a defendant contends a witnesses' identification of him was arrived at improperly.

The materials at issued in the Upjohn case were obtained in 1976 when the Grand Rapids, Mich., pharmaceutical firm and an outside law firm conducted an internal investigation of the payments, asking managers of Upjohn's foreign subsidiaries to respond to a questionnaire.

The Internal Revenue Service demanded those documents and the lawyers' handwritten notes on conversations with the employees as part of its investigation of the tax consequences of the illegal payments.

When Upjohn refused to surrender the records on grounds they were protected by the attorney-client privilege, the case went to court. A trial court and the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals held the traditional confidential relationship between a lawyer and his client did not govern the situation.

The crisis was precipitated by the resignation Sunday of Finance Minister Yaguel Hurwitz, who quit because the Cabinet refused to reject pay raises recommended for the nation's teachers. The resignation was effective today and Hurwitz was taking the other two members of his Rafi party out of the coalition, leaving Begin with 58 seats at most of the 120 seats in the Knesset, Israel's Parliament.

Begin confirmed after a Cabinet meeting Monday that most of his 15 ministers favored an early vote rather than trying to govern with the unpredictable support of independent splinter groups.

"That is also my position," he said.

At 6:25 a.m., police found the stainless steel handgun and paper bag with the money in a backyard in the 2700-block of Dartmouth Street. A black raincoat was found inside a dumpster in the alley of the 2800-block of Dartmouth Street and a white rag matching the description of the mask of the robbery suspect was found in the same dumpster.

The suspect was taken to Lubbock County Jail and booked on suspicion of robbery. The man was described as a 34-year old Mexican-American male.

Officers were contacted at 6:08 a.m. and were at the scene one minute later. Two minutes after that, a man matching the description of the robber was seen tioned at length Monday and finally rejected.

The juror chosen today has two sons and two daughters aged 21 through 25. She works at a family-owned oil operating company and is a former elementary school teacher.

Asked if she ever had had to make "a life-or-death decision" before, she said, "Only with pets."

Alexander, 21, is on trial for his life in the Oct. 5 shooting death of Department of Public Safety trooper Jerry Don Davis.

Each prospective juror is questioned individually in a capital murder trial, and the 104th District Court trial here is expected to continue from two to three weeks.

If Alexander is found guilty, the jury will have to choose between life imprisonment and the death penalty as his punishment.

The woman rejected for jury service Monday was the first of 86 veniremen on hand for the trial.

"This is probably the first committee that didn't have an axe to grind going in," Casstevens said.

Action By Israeli Parliament Strips Minister Of Immunity

JERUSALEM (AP) — The Israeli parliament today stripped Religious Minister Aharon Abu-Hatzeira of his immunity, clearing the way for his trial on bribery charges.

The 63-33 vote with 5 abstentions meant that a Cabinet minister would go on trial for the first time in Israel's history.

"With a heavy heart I hereby present to the Knesset (Parliament) the proposal of the House Committee concerning removal of the immunity of Minister and Knesset member Aharon Abu-Hatzeira," announced House Committee Chairman Moshe Mron.

Abu-Hatzeira, 42, is charged with taking $15,000 in bribes in return for approving state funds for certain religious institutions.

The religious affairs minister has said he did not mind losing his immunity because he wants to stand trial and prove the charges were "a political libel." But his lawyers were reported seeking a delay until after Israeli elections.

Officials said the Cabinet would meet today or Wednesday to decide whether to dissolve the Knesset and call elections in June instead of November.

Housing Minister David Levy was reported negotiating with independent factions seeking pledges of support to keep the government in power until November, but the chances appeared slim.

Both Begin's coalition partners — the National Religious Party and the Democrats — said they favored early elections, and the newspaper Maariv said Begin's advisers urged the Knesset be dissolved and the elections advanced to June.

House speaker appoint one state legislator to serve on each of the councils of government across the state.

The subcommittee report also is expected to recommend that some degree of minority representation be mandated on each of the councils.

SPAG most likely already conforms to the minority request, since it was required to add eight minority board members in 1978 in order to receive federal economic development funds.

Casstevens says he feels the subcommittee, charged with conducting interim investigations into council of governments activities, is one of the most objective of past years.

"This is probably the first committee that didn't have an axe to grind going in," Casstevens said.

Boycott Delays Debate

Observers speculated the Guardians' absence indicated hard-line members of the government remained opposed to any deal with the United States despite increased optimism in Washington that a deal was imminent.

Last summer, repeated adjournments and postponements delayed sessions of the Majlis when it first formulated conditions for the release of the American captives.

Azizi was quoted by Tehran Radio as denying an exact date has been fixed for the release of the hostages. But he said the course of the negotiations is "positive."

"No final agreement has yet been reached," Azizi said. "Obviously, discussions are being conducted in a positive framework."

In Washington, a government source said the package the United States has offered would be legally binding on the Ronald Reagan administration that takes office Jan. 20.

Reagan has said he would not want to offer a "blank check" on any deal that might be struck, but could not be concluded because time had run out on the Carter team.

But an official in Washington said the hostages would be released when the Federal Reserve Bank of New York is directed to release $2.5 billion in frozen Iranian assets.

The United States said Monday that Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher would remain in the go-between capital of Algiers indefinitely to direct the efforts to free the hostages.

Today was Christopher's fifth day in Algiers. Originally he was slated to return last Friday.

In Washington, Carter said the situation "looks better," but added that success by his Jan. 16 deadline, four days before Reagan takes office, "depends on them."

"We made a reasonable offer," Carter said.

The employees told police the man said "Don't give me any trouble or I'll kill you. I want the money."

The registers were opened and $121 in cash and $2 in food stamps were put in a brown paper bag. The gunman then ran north from the store.

Officers were contacted at 6:08 a.m. and were at the scene one minute later. Two minutes after that, a man matching the description of the robber was seen tioned at length Monday and finally rejected.

The juror chosen today has two sons and two daughters aged 21 through 25. She works at a family-owned oil operating company and is a former elementary school teacher.

Asked if she ever had had to make "a life-or-death decision" before, she said, "Only with pets."

Cold Air Spreads Misery

Lubbock through Wednesday, and temperatures will stay in the 50s through mid-week.

Weathermen predict only minor temperature changes today through Saturday in current and extended forecasts.

Temperatures will be in the upper 50s today, upper 20s tonight and mid-50s Wednesday, weathermen said.

The extended West Texas forecast calls for partly cloudy skies and readings mostly in the 50s Thursday through Saturday over the region.

Light rain, drizzle and fog were reported overnight in parts of West Texas and South Texas. Lubbock and Midland were fogged in at sunrise today, and rain reports included .30 of an inch at Brownsville and .28 at McAllen.

An arctic blast of cold air that swooped down from Canada shortly after Christmas sent temperatures to record lows in 21 cities Monday, and was blamed for the deaths of two people found frozen in Alabama and a fatal traffic accident in Maryland.

Record-breaking low temperatures continued today. An 11-below-zero reading in Wilkes Barre, Pa., broke a record of 10 below set in 1914. The mercury dropped to 9 degrees in Wilmington, N.C., smashing the a 79-year-old record of 13 degrees for the date and equaling the all-time low temperature for the month of January set in 1884.

Another record low was set in Chester, Mass., where the mercury dropped to 32 below zero early today, breaking the old standard of minus 29 set in 1921.

Temperatures were a bit warmer, but still colder than the previous standard at the Baltimore-Washington International Airport, where the mercury dropped to a record low of 1, and also at Wilmington, Del., where the minus 2 reading was a new low.

Old Forge, N.Y., in the Adirondacks, was the nation's coldest spot Monday with a 43-below reading. Glenn Falls, N.Y., and Caanan, Vt., reported minus 27 readings, and it was 24-below at Watertown, N.Y., near the Canadian border.

Lubbockite Threatened With Death By Robber

A Lubbock man was robbed and threatened with death Monday night by a knife-wielding assailant who later stole the man's van after the two men reportedly had met to look at jewelry.

David Yocum, 43, of 3109 51st St. told sheriff's deputies he and the assailant met in the parking lot of the Stardust Apartments to look at jewelry. When Yocum met the man, described as a white male in his early 20s with fuzzy blonde hair, the man pulled a knife on him, reports said.

Yocum was made to lie down in the back of the van, which belonged to a bakery, as another man entered the van and drove it from the lot.

Reports said the two assailants drove to near Canyon Gin on FM 40 where Yocum was robbed of his wallet and jewelry. The two men then left the victim there and drove away in the van.

Reports said the victim could not say what the second man looked like since Yocum did not have a good vantage point when lying down in the back of the van.

In another incident, a 10-year-old student was assaulted by six other elementary students when he was walking home from school.

Police reports said the boy was walking in the 300-block of Avenue U at 3:25 p.m. Monday when the six students, four black males and two black females, jumped him. The boy's mother and grandmother were watching the incident, reports said.

The boy told police he was hit by the attackers with boards and fists and was stabbed with a pencil by one of the children.

The boy said this kind of incident had happened once before.

In other criminal activity, Mark Martini, 20, of 408 Ave. W told police his Yamaha stereo system was taken sometime Monday between 11:15 a.m. and 1:15 p.m. The culprit entered the house through the south living room window, reports said.

The system is valued at $2,500, Martini told police.

Kay Hedgpal, 35, of Lake Ranson Canyon told police $1,446 worth of carpet was taken from two houses she owns which are under construction at Ranson Canyon.

A 22-year-old Lubbock man was jailed Monday after he was seen leaving the home of a Lubbock attorney whose home had been burglarized twice in the past week.

The suspect, who has not been formally charged, was arrested by police about 3 p.m. after a neighbor saw him carrying several firearms from the 2510 28th St. home of attorney Bill Wischkaemper.

The neighbor told police he saw the man walking down an alley after hearing a loud burglar alarm that had been activated in Wischkaemper's home.

Seven rifles and shotguns had been removed from the residence, and all were recovered from the suspect's house, said Det. Bill Bailey.

The man also is suspected of burglarizing the attorney's home Jan. 6, Bailey said. Pistols and jewelry valued at $1,480 were taken in that break-in. Those items have not been recovered.

In other activity, an 11-year-old boy told police four high school age boys in a four-wheel drive vehicle attempted to run over him at a school crosswalk about noon Monday.

The youngster said he was crossing the street at 47th Street and Chicago Avenue when the juveniles, in a "Jeep-type" vehicle, ran him off the street and chased him home, reports show.

A witness provided Wester Elementary School employees with a description of the orange-and-white vehicle and its driver.

The driver was white, 16 or 17 years old, with wavy brown hair, police said. The witness also gave police the license number of the vehicle, but no arrests had been made late Monday.

Intruders at the Sherwin-Williams Store, 3839 50th St., stole more than $500 cash and did almost $25,000 worth of damage to the inside of the store over the weekend, police said.

A safe was pried open and $534.71 cash removed, police said. In addition, checks made out to the store totaling about $5,000 were torn up, reports show.

The intruders then sprayed or poured paint on much of the merchandise and office equipment in the store, police said.

Manual and power tools worth $1,330 were stolen from a house under construction at 6104 Evanston Ave., police said. Gary Joe Scott of 4407 54th St., a carpenter working on the structure, told police the burglary occurred between 2:30 p.m. Saturday and 7:30 a.m. Monday.

The house, which is almost completed, is owned by Bob Hudson Construction Co., 4605 Utica Ave., police said. Entry was gained by prying open a window.

City Family Treated For Poisonous Fumes

Five Lubbockites were treated and released from Methodist Hospital early today after a defected vent pipe in a home sent carbon monoxide fumes into the home.

EMS officials said the family of five was taken to the hospital about 12:30 a.m. today. The incident occurred at the home of Delbert Byford, 35, at 2120 21st St.

Taken to the hospital were Byford; his wife, Peggy, 27; Christopher Byford, 2; Susan Byford, 7; and Robin Smith, 9.

Carburetor Tool May Boost Gas Mileage

Avalanche-Journal Staff

Thinking of trading in your large or mid-size car for one of those smaller models that gets better gas mileage?

Former Lubbockite Jerry Moen thinks he has a better idea.

So does his cousin, farmer and contractor W.E. Medlock, who is financing the development and marketing of Moen's invention, a carburetor jet resizing tool which tests show can increase a car's gas mileage by an average of 20 percent.

Moen guarantees the conversion will improve most cars' fuel efficiency at least 10 percent and some 40 percent. He said he has tested one car that improved 50 percent.

The former car dealer from Austin said the need for his product stems from the way carburetor jets, which carry fuel into internal combustion engines, are set at the factories. The manufacturers set the jets for sea level or 4,000 feet, Moen said, because it would be impractical and expensive to set each carburetor individually.

As a result, many cars do not have carburetors set for the altitude in which they are driven. Moen estimated 90 percent of carburetors in Lubbock autos are off.

Another essential factor in Moen's analysis is the air-fuel ratio. Moen said his resized jets give a car the optimum ratio of 14.5 or 15 to 1, which also cuts down on emissions and, Medlock claims, makes the engine run smoother.

Medlock adds that Moen's device, which resembles a miniature gullotine, also puts a tiny ring inside the jet which sprays the gasoline into the engine instead of just letting it flow. This earlier atomizing of the fuel, Medlock claimed, also improves mileage and efficiency.

Moen said a car would lose about 5 percent horsepower at the 14.5 ratio, but that it would not be noticeable.

In an EPA-style road test today at a local car dealership, Moen selected at random a 1977 Ford LTD which had an EPA estimated rating of 10-12 miles per gallon. Moen determined the car had an air-fuel ration of 13.5 or less and, after driving it on a portion of the loop at about 55 miles per hour, determined the gas mileage to be 11.8.

After removing and resizing the jets four-thousandths of an inch in about 15 minutes, the car was driven in the same area at the same speed. This time it got 16.6 miles per gallon, almost a 40 percent increase, and emissions were reduced significantly.

Moen said his process would be most effective on older, larger cars which would need to be driven at 65 mph or less to maintain the higher fuel efficiency. Ideally, he said the procedure should be done at the new car make-ready stage, but most car dealers do not stock the jets or have the training necessary to perform the resizing on a large scale.

Moen and Medlock hope to sell the Lubbock-based firm's idea to national automotive service centers. Moen already has been working with the makers of the scanner he uses to test engines prior to resizing.

Medlock owns all the stock in the company; Moen has licensed his patent to him and receives a salary plus royalties.

Bryan Teal, a local specialty mechanic, said Moen's idea is something he has been doing for the last five years. James Johnson said his parts department at Scoggin-Dickey Buick has a large supply of the jets, but that most dealers would not.

Horace Sandlin of Zeh's Automotive said he felt Precision Energy System's tool would not hurt anything and could help some, but not as much as Moen and Medlock claim.

The first patent for false teeth was granted on March 9, 1822, to Charles Graham of New York City.

Youth Orders B-17 Bomber

WICHITA, Kan. (UPI) — Boeing Military Airplane Co. landed its first order in years for a B-17 Flying Fortress bomber — not from the Air Force, but from 5-year-old Joey Seppy.

The Poolesville, Md., youth sent a Request for Proposal to Boeing, asking for a B-17 Flying Fortress to be built to his own specifications.

"Dear Boeing Company," began a letter began from Joey's mother, Jackie. "enclosed are the directions my son drew and wrote for a special B-17 Flying Fortress he wants you to build for him."

"As he is 5 1/2-years-old and only gets 25 cents a week allowance, I doubt he could ever afford it. But I thought you might enjoy seeing his directions anyway."

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain and soybean futures prices closed higher Monday on the Chicago Board of Trade after three days of declines last week.

Much of the buying was among local traders attempting to cover commitments for delivery made during the selling last week. Traders said that some buying was based on technical factors, noting that during last week's selling, some prices had fallen to support levels on price trend charts.

Corn prices advanced less than the others Monday because of pressure from hedge selling. Traders said commercial interests have been buying corn at country grain elevators and selling on the futures markets to hedge on prices.

At the close, soybeans were 13 1/4 cents to 22 1/4 cents higher, the January-delivery contract $8.11 1/4 a bushel; oats were 1 1/2 cents to 4 1/4 cents higher, March $2.24 1/2 a bushel; wheat was 6 cents to 11 1/4 cents higher, March $4.98 1/4 a bushel; corn was 1 1/4 cents to 2 3/4 cents higher, March $3.76 a bushel.

Raiders Ready To Joust With TCU

By CHUCK McDONALD
Assistant Sports Editor

For Texas Tech, it's a matter of maintaining momentum. For TCU, it's a chance to regain some footing.

The Raiders, fresh off a huge 72-70 win over Texas A&M Saturday night, will host the TCU Horned Frogs — fresh off a bruising 34-point defeat at the hands of the Arkansas Razorbacks — in a Southwest Conference encounter at 7:30 tonight in the Municipal Coliseum.

Tickets will be on sale today until 5 p.m. at the Texas Tech ticket office and go on sale at 5:30 at the Coliseum. This is the Raiders' final home game before students return to campus, so plenty of tickets are available.

Tech will bring a 2-1 SWC mark (8-4) overall into tonight's contest while the Frogs are just the reverse — 1-2 and 4-9.

But at this stage of the season, Raider coach Gerald Myers doesn't take anybody lightly.

"We're not overlooking anybody," he promised. "We know that in this league anybody is capable of beating anybody on a given night."

Testimony to Myers' statement lies in the fact that the Frogs' lone league win came in the season opener against A&M. TCU coach Jim Killingsworth called it, "my biggest win at TCU."

"TCU is definitely improved," says Myers. "I think they've been playing good basketball. But Arkansas just puts so much pressure on you that they can really force a team out of its tempo."

Something obviously went wrong for the Frogs on Saturday in Fayetteville when Arkansas blew out to a 40-18 half-time lead before coasting to a 85-51 victory.

"They've got Darrell Browder," adds Myers, "and he's scoring about 25 points a night. He can hurt you."

Actually, Browder's average is "only" 21.6 points an outing. That still ranks second only to Houston's Rob Williams among the league leaders.

Browder hasn't been getting a lot of help from his teammates thus far. No one else on the TCU roster is scoring in double figures for the season. Browder, a 6-1 sophomore, and 6-4 senior Warren Bridges will operate out of the TCU backcourt with 6-7 Nick Cucinella and 6-4 Jeff Baker starting at the forward spots along with 6-9 senior post Larry Frevort.

Frevort and Cucinella have been pulling down five rebounds a game to pace the Frog effort.

Tech will counter with its starting unit of 5-10 Bubba Jennings, 6-2 Steve Smith and 6-4 Jeff Taylor outside with 6-6 cornermen Ben Hill and Clarence Swannegan.

Taylor leads the team in scoring with a 15.8 norm, but three other starters are also scoring in double figures. And in conference play, all five Raider starters have scored more prolifically than they did earlier in the year.

In fact, the team has played better in its last three outings than at any time of the season.

"I think this team is starting to gain some confidence," said Myers. "They are cocky and they don't do much talking. . . I think it's a kind of quiet confidence."

What Myers wants now is for his team to maintain that confidence against the Frogs so they can tackle the upcoming road trip with high spirits. The Raiders will travel to Houston to visit Rice Saturday and then meet Baylor in Waco a week from tonight.

On paper, it would appear that Tech has the edge against TCU. Especially in light of the fact that the Raiders are 7-0 at home this year.

While Tech is shooting 53.2 percent from the floor in conference play, the Frogs are hitting only 42.0 percent in league play — 43.9 on the season. And while Tech has outbounded all three SWC opponents thus far, TCU has been dominated on the boards.

But don't tell that to Myers.

"We have to play smart," he says. "We can't turn the ball over and we've got to try and contain Browder."

RED RAIDER NOTES: The Raiders defeated the Frogs no less than three times last season: 84-65 in Fort Worth, 57-42 in Lubbock and 71-52 in the first round of the SWC post-season tournament, also in Lubbock. . . Tech currently own a 17-game win streak against the Frogs. . . Since SWC play began just over a week ago, the Raiders have been dead-ly at the charity stripe. . . Tech has hit 49 of 64 free throws while the opposition has managed just 26 of 42. . . Tech ticket manager Carol Baker announced Monday that less than 200 three-night packages for the SWC Post-Season Classic remain at the Tech ticket office.

Longhorns Stun Hogs In SWC

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Texas coach Abe Lemons said he was shocked by the Longhorns' 62-60 Southwest Conference basketball victory over Arkansas Monday night.

"Winning this was a bigger surprise for me than beating Arkansas up here two years ago," Lemons said.

It was the only game involving Southwest Conference teams Monday night. Baylor is at Rice, Houston is at Southern Methodist and Texas Christian is at Texas Tech tonight.

The Longhorns spread out their offense and shot selectively.

Defensively, the Longhorns prevented the Razorbacks from scoring inside and outbounded Arkansas 28-23.

Arkansas coach Eddie Sutton praised the Longhorns' game plan.

"Texas played a great game," Sutton said. "It was perhaps their greatest game of the year. They showed a lot of patience. They spread our offense out to go one-on-one on us."

"A couple of times our guards gambled and gave (Ray) Harper and (Fred) Carson easy shots. This time we weren't on our magic level."

The Longhorns snapped a 21-game Arkansas' winning streak in Barnhill Arena.

Freshman Mike Wacker, who scored Texas' last point on a free throw with Arkansas' fans screaming frantically to distract him, said the Longhorns were confident of their game plan.

"We knew what we were going to have to do and we went out and did it," Wacker said. "We gave them the shot deep in the corners and from the top of the key and boxed them out. The big key was our defense. We never let them inside."

The Longhorns led most of the game, and held a four-point advantage at 59-55 with 1:30 to play.

The Razorbacks' Darrell Walker stole the ball and dunked it to cut the lead to 59-57 with under one minute to play.

The Razorbacks forced a turnover seconds later and Tony Brown scored on a lay-in to tie the score at 59-all.

Walker fouled Carson on the in-bounds play and Carson buried two free throws to put Texas back on top 61-59.

The Razorbacks missed a shot moments later but Greg Skulman grabbed the rebound and was fouled by Texas' Henry Johnson with 12 seconds left.

Skulman missed his first free throw but sank the second and Arkansas trailed 61-60. Skulman fouled Wacker — who had 12 points in the game — and Wacker sank one of his two free throws to preserve the Longhorns' victory.

The win was Texas' first in league play. The Longhorns now are 1-3 in conference play and 6-7 overall. Arkansas suffered its first conference loss.

Sky's The Limit: Redskins Hire Gibbs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Joe Gibbs, offensive coordinator of the San Diego Chargers, was hired Monday night as head coach of the Washington Redskins and promised an aggressive team "the fans can be real proud of."

Gibbs, 40, agreed to a multi-year contract, believed to be for three years, after meeting in a New York hotel with Redskins' owner Jack Kent Cooke for more than five hours. The Washington Star reported today. The contract reportedly is worth $100,000 per season.

He succeeds Jack Pardee, who was fired after the Redskins' 6-10 finish this season and clashes with Redskins' general manager Bobby Beathard. Last season, Washington's record was 10-6 and Pardee was coach of the year in the National Football League's National Conference.

Gibbs flew with Beathard to New York from San Diego after the Chargers, who gave the Redskins permission to talk to him, lost to the Oakland Raiders in Sunday's American Conference championship game. The Star said the meeting had a sense of urgency because Gibbs' old had been linked to the head coaching vacancy with the New Orleans Saints.

"I'm, of course, elated," Gibbs told the newspaper after getting his new job. "I'm just very thankful to be put in this situation where you can actually accomplish your life's dream."

"Joe is going to bring a cohesion to our team," Cooke said. "I think the young fellow has blazed a new trail, taking advantage of the changes that are occurring in the National Football League. He's at the forefront of those changes, and I believe he's going to introduce the new path into the Redskins' offense."

Gibbs, who called the plays for the Chargers and guided the team's league-leading offense, made it clear that he expects the Redskins he coaches to be a high-scoring, exciting team.

"Of primary importance with me, our style of play is going to be aggressive. We're going to try to dictate to the defense, offensively. We want to attack the defense. We're going to go into games with the idea of winning, and not to avoid losing," Gibbs said.

"Basically, we're going to do what our personnel dictates that we do best," he said.

"It goes without saying that I'm very much impressed with the defensive players here," he said. "And you can say without reservation that Joe Theismann is the type of quarterback we can build around."

Theismann's reaction to the hiring of Gibbs was even more laudatory. "I'm not going to sleep tonight," the Redskins' quarterback said. "Visions of footballs dancing in my head. Great. Spectacular. Fabulous. I love it. I flat out love it. Just the prospect makes me want to rest up for six months. I'm ready to take over 'Air Gibbs'."

DHS Girls' Clash Highlights City Action

By RAY GLASS

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
With three quarters of the district season yet to be played, Dunbar girls' coach Jim Washburn is hesitant to call tonight's game with Canyon crucial.

But he knows one thing for sure — the Panthers have got to win the 7:30 p.m. battle in their own gym.

"It definitely is going to be a pivotal game for us," said Washburn. "The season is still young, but everyone is out to win and you have to win at home to stay in the race."

The Panther-Eagle clash is one of nine games on tap today involving city schools, including six in-town contests.

In girls' action, Tahoka is at Lubbock Christian at 4:30 p.m.; Coronado travels to Amarillo High for a 7:45 p.m. game; Estacado visits Dumas in another key 1-4A game at 7 p.m. and Monterey takes its glittering 18-1 record to Palo Duro for a 7:45 tipoff.

Boys' contests include Amarillo High at Coronado at 8 p.m.; Dunbar at Monterey at 8 p.m.; Estacado at Lubbock High at 8 p.m. and Tahoka at Lubbock Christian at 6 p.m.

Both Christ the King and the Lubbock High girls' teams have the evening off.

Canyon is the early leader among 1-4A girls' teams with a perfect 3-0 district record. Dunbar, meanwhile is in the middle of the pack with a 1-1 mark.

"We'll try to go out and do the things that we do best, and that means run and gun," Washburn said.

The Estacado girls, 0-2 following a 54-50 loss to Levelland last week, make the long trek to Dumas, 2-1 and tied with the Lobos for second place in the district standings.

The Estacado and Dunbar boys' teams get their final non-district tuneups tonight before they begin conference play Friday.

Estacado is 10-9 following back-to-back losses last week to powerful Midland High while Lubbock High, 9-11, is coming off a 57-56 squeaker over Palo Duro.

Dunbar, with a dismal 5-13 mark, meets the charging Plainsmen, 15-7 and fresh from a 67-35 swamping of Odessa last Friday.

The Coronado girls travel to Amarillo High in the best game of the rest. Though the teams' records (10-8 and 12-6) look roughly similar, take another glance.

The Sandies are whipping up a storm up north: Of their six losses, one was to Canyon (13-7) in overtime; one was to Hereford (18-1) by two points in triple overtime; one was to Plainview (16-7) by one and another was to New Mexico powerhouse Clovis by one.

And of those six losses, the only team Amarillo High didn't come back and beat in a rematch was Canyon. The Eagles own 51-46 and 62-58 (OT) wins.

That means the Sandies have knocked off Plainview (57-55) and it means they handed Hereford its only loss of the year (63-54 in the opener).

As for the Mustangs, well, they might not be as good right now as their record would indicate. Coronado has lost two of its last three games and stands 2-4 since the Abilene tourney.

That's a handy benchmark because it was in the finals of that tournament that CHS, then 8-3 on the year, ran up against Cross-town and District 4-5A rival Monterey. They ran up against the Plainsmen and then walked, or rather, tumbled back down, losing 85-45.

Since then, Coronado's two wins have been over Caprock (4-13) and Pampa 2-15).

"We're not as far along as I'd like," confessed CHS boss Miles Johnson. "Our predistrict has been marked by inconsistencies. A couple of times we've played excellent ball games and then we were flat the next."

"So far I haven't found a starting unit I want to stay with. I've used the same five for the last five games, but this year I've started 11 different players."

"That's good in a way," Johnson continued, "because I feel like I have 11 ball-players who can play and who I can depend on in any situation. But the disadvantage is I have no set group of players who've stepped forward and shown that they are the leaders."

In the other Class 5A girls' game, there's no surprise. Monterey is as good as its 18-1 record indicates, while Palo Duro is every bit of its 6-12 mark. The Plainsmen, by the way, have the honor of being the only squad to really bury Amarillo High all year. Friday night they took a 77-63 win.

The remaining game pits the Amarillo boys, now 8-8 on the year, and the Coronado Mustangs, now 10-11.

The Mustangs are fighting to regroup before district play starts and this game is a must because there's only one more after it.

Coronado is riding a three-game losing streak, having fallen to Estacado (55-41), Tascosa (43-41) and Levelland (54-45).

LCC Units Face Foes

The Lubbock Christian College men's and women's basketball teams experience breaks in Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association play tonight.

Both LCC squads are 1-0 in conference play and 5-10 overall.

The men's team takes to the road to meet Wayland Baptist College at 8:30 p.m. in Plainview, while the Lady Chaps remain in Lubbock to host Eastern New Mexico University at 7:30 in the LCC fieldhouse.

"Eastern New Mexico is a fine team," Lady Chap coach Dave Simpson said. "No matter which of 15 players they have on the floor, they are a skilled club. If we play consistent ball and perform up to our capabilities, I feel we can beat Eastern."

Simpson is expected to start center Darla Lynch; forwards Cindy Bigham and JoAnn Phillips; and guards Debby Pitchford and Sherry Brown.

LCC men's coach John Copeland, whose team played its finest game of the 1980-81 season when it stopped Austin College 71-63 last Saturday, is expected to open with center Brian Fortner; forwards Jim Steensma and Larry Holt; and guards Bruce Carver and Bill McGee.

Carver is eighth in NAIA District VIII in scoring and averages 17.2 points per game. Fortner is 11th in rebounding.

Also, Holt, Carver and McGee are ranked fourth through sixth in the district in free-throw percentage.

Impressive Eagles Draw Applause From Landry

DALLAS (AP) — Tom Landry gives Philadelphia its due on the field, but the Dallas Cowboys' coach refuses to concede the Eagles an A-plus in psychology.

In the wake of Philadelphia's 20-7 National Conference title victory, Eagles' coach Dick Vermeil hinted Dallas might have been suffering from the big head.

"I kept saying Dallas had a great team because I wanted them to come in here overconfident," said Vermeil.

Landry said Monday "that they (Vermeil) didn't create a psychological edge. They had it after that last game when we scored 35 points real easy."

Landry was referring to Dallas' 35-27 victory over the Eagles in the final regular-season game in which Philadelphia only had to lose by 24 points or less.

After the game, the losers drank champagne to toast their divisional title and playoff home-field advantage.

"They weren't playing in that final game like they were Sunday," said Landry. "Now that's the kind of thing that rocks you to sleep. It's hard to convince our guys that the Eagles will be a different team. But it's certainly nothing that was said or the blue jerseys."

Vermeil voted for the Eagles to wear white jerseys, forcing the Cowboys to wear blue, a color in which they were batting only .500 lifetime.

Landry said what happened to the Cowboys psychologically was the same thing that brought Los Angeles down in the NFC wild-card game.

"The Rams beat us 38-14 then had to turn around and play us two weeks later," said Landry. "There was no way you could convince the Ram players that they weren't going to blow us out of the park."

"I've never put a loss like this on myself before but I'm man enough to stand up to it," Dorsett said.

Landry said: "That fumble could have happened to anybody. It did happen at a time when we needed to score. If we had gone down and scored on that drive, we would have had a psychological edge."

"But you just have to give Philadelphia credit."

Jaworski Leads Team Comedy

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Eagles' quarterback Ron Jaworski did a polka around the clubhouse. He dramatically burned a play-money $100 bill.

Jaworski's voice resounded throughout the clubhouse as he screamed, "We're going to the Super Bowl!"

"Eight years I've been waiting," he shouted at a team meeting Monday. "I'm finally going to the Super Bowl."

The quarterback circled the dressing room, hugging teammates and pumping their hands.

And this was almost four hours after Jaworski and the Eagles had beaten the Dallas Cowboys, 20-7, to earn the trip to New Orleans for Super Bowl XV.

The National Conference champions meet the Oakland Raiders, who earned their trip to the Super Bowl by defeating the San Diego Chargers 34-27 Sunday for the American Conference title.

Jaworski stopped in front of Wilbert Montgomery, the running back who gained 194 yards and scored one touchdown against Dallas.

"What the heck...I gave you the ball every time. I could have gone through those holes," Jaworski needed.

Montgomery, a quiet, low-key individual, just looked up at the quarterback, and a trace of a smile formed on his face. He said nothing.

Linebacker Bill Bergey, who has waited 12 years to play in the National Football League's season-ending extravaganza, demonstrated some excitement that belied his customary business-like personality.

He hugged some players and joined in the shouting.

Defensive back Heman Edwards shouted: "The Super Bowl is for super people," and he moved around, handshaking and embracing.

Tony Franklin, the barefoot placekicker, needled Jaworski, but was cautioned by his teammates to be careful how he talked to his holder.

"He's liable to forget to put the ball down," someone jested.

You wouldn't think these were big tough, football players, but a bunch of kids opening their Christmas presents.

But you couldn't blame them. This was the Eagles' first Super Bowl team. It was the first Eagles' team to play for the league title in 20 years. They beat Green Bay in 1960, before the Super Bowl format was established.

The Eagles, who celebrated Sunday night at a big bash thrown by team owner Leonard Tose, took a three-day vacation after the meeting Monday.

Coach Dick Vermeil said he would reassemble the team Thursday, and expected to fly to New Orleans Monday for a week of practice and the customary Super Bowl hype for the game Jan. 25, at the Superdome.

At his weekly news conference, Vermeil said: "I liked the way we won. I liked beating them running the football and stopping their running game. Our offensive line did a fine job."

The Eagles held Tony Dorsett to just 41 yards on 13 carries. They rushed Cowboys' quarterback Danny White into ineffectiveness.

QB Todd Dodge Earns Prep Honor

AMARILLO, (AP) — Todd Dodge, Port Arthur Jefferson quarterback, was honored Monday as Texas' outstanding high school football player of 1980 by the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce.

Dodge, who is the first Texas high school griddier to pass for more than 3,000 yards in a season, is the 19th annual recipient of the award.

Dodge passed for 3,135 yards, many of them to receiver Brent Duhon, last season, as Port Arthur won its first 14 games before Odessa Permian fought from behind in the fourth quarter to win the Class 5A state championship.

Oregon State Snares Lead In Cage Poll

By The Associated Press

Oregon State bested Virginia for the No. 1 position in The Associated Press college basketball poll today as DePaul, which held the top spot for the past six weeks, fell to No. 4 following a stunning loss to Old Dominion last weekend.

Oregon State, 12-0 and ranked second last week, collected 39 of 61 first-place votes and 1,197 points out of a possible 1,220 in the balloting by a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. The top-ranking marks the first time in Ralph Miller's 30-year coaching career that one of his team's has reached the nation's top position.

Virginia, which was in the No. 3 position last week, was tabbed No. 1 on 20 ballots and garnered 1,169 points. The Cavaliers, 11-0, posted triumphs over Delaware, North Carolina State and North Carolina last week.

Pre-season favorite Kentucky jumped from fourth to No. 3 with 1,041 points.

LHS Girls Nip Caprock

Olivia Vasquez hit the second of two free throws with only three seconds remaining Monday night to lift the Lubbock High School girls to a hard-fought 52-51 non-conference basketball win over Amarillo Caprock.

Miss Vasquez snapped a 51-51 tie and capped a ferocious Westerner rally in the final eight minutes of action.

Miss Vasquez tallied 19 points for the winners, who now stand 5-13 on the year. Caprock, 4-14 overall, was led by Rhonda Proctor and Tammy Davis who had 15 and 14 points respectively.

The Wildcats, 10-1, defeated Auburn and edged then-No. 13 Tennessee 48-47 in action last week.

DePaul, which still managed to collect the final two first-place votes despite the 63-62 loss to Old Dominion, received 1,002 points — 12 more than undefeated Wake Forest. The Deacons, 12-0, whipped Appalachian State and nipped then-No. 20 Clemson 73-71 last week.

Eagles Swarm Past Opponent

Jill Towns scored 17 points and Brendell Baker added 14 Monday night to lead the Lubbock Christian High School girls to a 68-29 romp over Midland Christian.

The Eagles, now 14-6 on the season, jumped out to a 20-6 first-quarter lead and were in control of the contest from that point on. LCHS increased its lead to 32-17 after two periods and 46-21 at the end of three quarters.

Louisiana State, 12-1, climbed from No. 9 to sixth in this week's poll while Notre Dame, UCLA, Michigan and Maryland — which were upset last week, rounded out the Top 10.

The Irish, 54-52 losers to Marquette last week, slipped from No. 5 to seventh with 690 points — 15 more than UCLA, which was stunned by Southern Cal 68-66 and dropped one notch to No. 8. Michigan, knocked from the undefeated ranks by Purdue early last week, edged Maryland for the No. 9 slot. The Wolverines got 597 points, while the Terps, who were defeated by Athletic Coast Conference rival North Carolina 75-66, received 583 points.

Tennessee jumped three positions in the poll, despite the loss to Kentucky, and headed the Second 10. Arizona State was 12th followed by South Alabama, Iowa, Brigham Young, Utah, North Carolina, Illinois, Clemson and Minnesota.

Last week the Second 10 was Iowa, Illinois, Tennessee, Arizona State, South Alabama, North Carolina, Brigham Young, Utah, Minnesota and Clemson.

There are no newcomers to this week's Top 20.

Women's Issue Dominates NCAA Convention News

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Barring a desperation move by opponents, NCAA delegates were expected to vote on a complicated, controversial package of proposals today that would bring women into the male-dominated groups' governing structure.

The first item of business was a move by Donna Lopiano, president of the Association of Interscholastic Athletics for Women, that might block the plan.

Miss Lopiano made her motion moments after the convention was officially convened Monday. She was seeking to move Proposal No. 71, which would postpone the NCAA's entry into women's athletics and move it ahead of amendment in which Division I schools will decide whether to sponsor women's championships.

After lengthy and passionate debate from the floor, a move by Dan Gibbens, faculty representative from Oklahoma, was accepted to postpone the vote on Miss Lopiano's motion.

In the meantime, convention officers worried that the expected long and bitter fight over the women's issues would probably push the assembly past its projected adjournment of noon Wednesday.

The plan, formulated by a 14-person committee, would add about 215 women to NCAA committees and Council.

The AIAW, apparently joined by many leaders of the women's rights movement across the nation, charge the NCAA will only swallow up and dominate women's athletics.

"We have a choice before us. A crucially important choice to over 100,000 female athletes in our country," Christine Grant, of Iowa, told delegates Monday while luring support of the reordering of the agenda. "I think if this convention is going to move into the area of women's athletics, then it must do so completely.

"It must deal with championships, it must deal with governance and it must have a single set of rules for the women in that organization," she added. "Otherwise, if you examine the governance proposal, you will quickly realize its going to result in complete competitive chaos by women's athletics. I implore this convention to vote for reordering."

Judi Holland, senior associate athletic director at UCLA and a leader among a minority of women who support the NCAA's initiatives, told the assembly it should disregard Miss Lopiano's motion.

"I feel one of the strongest and most important things to be decided here is whether or not women will be included in the governance of NCAA and whether or not championships will be offered," she said. "I think to reorder the agenda certainly seems to be constructed to confuse the issue and I'm sure many of us would like to take it as it is in the book," she added.

Also to be acted upon are a plan to require that an athlete complete one-fifth of a degree program each year to be eligible; a proposal to base scholarship on whether an athlete's family is judged to be in need of financial assistance, and several changes in recruiting rules.

Sports In Brief

Death Threat Plagues Charger

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Gary "Big Hands" Johnson, All-Pro defensive end of the San Diego Chargers, is under police protection for the second time in six weeks.

The action, taken 24 hours before Sunday's American Football Conference title game with Oakland, came after Johnson's van was sabotaged.

Coach Don Coryell announced the development Monday during a post-season press conference. He said police were called into the case after all the lugnuts were loosened on the rear wheels of Johnson's van.

Because of the tampering, Johnson and his family spent Saturday night under police protection at an unidentified hotel.

The club received a death threat against Johnson after he sacked Philadelphia quarterback Ron Jaworski in the first half of the Nov. 30 meeting in San Diego.

Johnson, who led the National Football League with 17½ sacks this year, was not available for comment.

Coryell said teammate Gregg McCarty called the wobbly wheels to Johnson's attention after a Saturday practice.

Johnson subsequently became ill during the championship game and missed most of the second half. San Diego, a four-point favorite, lost 34-27 after falling behind 28-7 early in the game.

Asked if anxiety over the incident may have led to Johnson's illness, Coryell said he could not say.

Penn Selects New Grid Coach

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Jerry Berndt has achieved a lifetime goal, and the University of Pennsylvania has a new football coach.

"During my eight years (as an assistant coach at Dartmouth) in New Hampshire, I fell in love with academic athletes. It became my goal to coach an Ivy League team," Berndt said one day after being named Harry Gamble's successor as Quaker football coach.

"The University of Pennsylvania has given me the opportunity to achieve one of my goals," said Berndt. "I feel the best amateur football in the United States is played in the Ivy League. The other people who claim they play amateur football really play kind of a semi-professional football."

Berndt, 40, guided DePauw University, a Division III school in Greencastle, Ind., to a 7-2-1 record last season after a 2-7 record in his first year as head coach. He has "at least" a four-year contract with Penn, according to athletic director Charles Harris.

"I do believe I know a little bit about what it takes to resurrect a football program," Berndt said. "DePauw had not had a winning season since 1974."

Gamble, 50, resigned Nov. 25 after posting 2-6-1, 0-9 and 1-9 records in his last three seasons.

Fisk-Lynn Bid Hits Impasse

NEW YORK (AP) — Boston Red Sox stars Fred Lynn and Carlton Fisk will have to wait, as expected, to learn if they will become free agents this winter.

No agreement was reached at a brief meeting Monday of representatives of the Major League Baseball Players Association and the club owners' player relations committee on grievances filed by the players' group which contend that Lynn and Fisk should be declared free agents.

The players' group maintains that the two players won that status because the Red Sox were two days late in offering them new contracts. The deadline was Dec. 20.

Eagles Soar Past MCHS

Corey Haggard ripped the nets for 22 points Monday night to lead the Lubbock Christian High School boys' basketball team to a 77-21 drubbing of Midland Christian.

LCHS capitalized on Midland turnovers and poor shooting in the first quarter and raced out to a commanding 18-2 lead. That advantage was increased to 33-9 at halftime.

The Eagles increased their season record to 13-6 with the victory and will host Tahoka at 6 p.m. today.

Young, Old Raiders Enjoy Title

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — A group of Oakland Raiders led by Jim Plunkett, the quarterback battered by blitzes and criticism through most of his pro football career, are understandably jubilant about the Super Bowl trip. It will be their first.

But the smile on Gene Upshaw's face was as pronounced as any after Sunday's 34-27 victory over San Diego in the American Football Conference championship game.

"This will be my third Super Bowl and it's going to be exciting. When we play Philadelphia it should be a classic matchup," said the offensive guard who was a rookie on the 1967 Oakland team that lost to the Green Bay Packers 33-14 in the game that, at the time, was not officially called the Super Bowl.

"That seems like 50 years ago," said Upshaw. "When that team went to the Super Bowl, I thought I'd go back five or six more times. But Miami and Pittsburgh came along and took it over for a while."

Upshaw is the only player from the 1967 Raiders still active in the National Football League and he's one of 10 holdovers from the 1976 team that won Super Bowl XI, beating Minnesota 32-14.

By playing in Super Bowl games in three decades, Upshaw will give future NFL iron men a mark to aim for.

He is one of the most durable players in history, having started in 202 consecutive regular-season games and all 23 post-season games in the team's history.

Another Oakland veteran, All-Pro linebacker Ted Hendricks, will be playing in the Super Bowl for the third time. His first trip was with the 1970 Baltimore Colts who beat Dallas 16-13.

Plunkett, 32, never saw post-season action his first nine years in the NFL. When the Raiders reached the playoffs last month, he said: "I'm looking forward to this more than I've looked forward to anything in my life. I sure don't want to look back."

After Sunday's championship game, in which he passed for 261 yards and two touchdowns and ran for one touchdown, Plunkett recalled that he became so discouraged last summer that he begged Al Davis, managing general partner of the Raiders, to trade him.

Davis talked him out of it, Plunkett said, "and told me to keep plugging away."

Another 32-year-old veteran, tight end Raymond Chester, also is going into his first Super Bowl, as is 31-year-old wide receiver Bob Chandler.

And then here's Dwayne O'Steen, the 25-year-old cornerback picked up by Oakland during the season. He was with the Los Angeles Rams, last year's NFC champs.

"Some of the guys have been calling me Mr. Lucky," said O'Steen, who will be making it two Super Bowls in three NFL seasons.

Oddsmaker Predicts NFL Probabilities

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Oddsmaker Bob Martin has made the Philadelphia Eagles a three-point favorite to beat the Oakland Raiders in Super Bowl XV. But he hasn't decided yet how he's going to bet his own money.

Martin sets the betting line for the sports book at the Union Plaza Hotel, and that line — because Martin is well-known and well-respected in betting circles — often becomes the standard for the rest of the country.

How does he do it?
"The most important thing is where the money is," he said. "Because that's what we're doing here. The first three games (of the National Football League playoffs) the money has been bet against Oakland. The public is the thing here. The public sets the line on the Super Bowl."

He said that professional bettors have bet on the Raiders all three games, but "even if they do, the public controls the money on this type of game. I think in the final analysis, the public will come in and bet the Eagles."

That's the major factor in setting the line for this year's Super Bowl, which will be played in New Orleans on Jan. 25. But there are others.

"In a couple of games it looked like Oakland was very lucky," he explained. "The (Cleveland) Browns could have put them right out of it in the last minute of play and you would never have heard of the Raiders again."

Also, he said, the public "doesn't believe in" the Raiders.

"I think the money will show for the Eagles," Martin said. "They really shut Dallas down and played a fine defensive game."

Martin said the Super Bowl, World Series and heavyweight title fights attract bettors who never would put money on any other sport event.

"They have two weeks to get their bets in," he said. "There's all the ballyhoo and hoopla that surrounds it, the NFL promotes it so well. There are people who go to the Super Bowl and would never go to another sporting event."

Martin predicted that hundreds of millions of dollars would be bet on the game.

"In Nevada the handle will probably be upwards of $10 million, and around the country the money will be in the hundreds of millions."

As far as his personal choice, Martin said he's still not sure.

"I probably will bet," he said. "I haven't decided yet. I think I know who I like, but I'm going to wait until the training period is over. I won't bet on the game until two or three days beforehand. But I'll have the winner."

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS

Stock Prices Continue To Slide

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices lost ground today, continuing the decline that set in at mid-session Monday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 5.80 to 962.79 by noon. The average, up more than 11 points in early trading Monday, finished the session with only a .08 gain.

Losers outnumbered gainers by close to a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The trading week began amid hopes for lower interest rates in the wake of recent declines in the money supply.

But the behavior of the money markets Monday gave no indication that the Federal Reserve was ready to loosen up on credit.

By late in the day, short-term money rates had turned sharply higher, creating a letdown of sorts among stock traders.

Among actively traded blue-chip issues, International Business Machines fell 1/8 to 65 1/2; Dow Chemical rose 1/4 to 33 1/4, and General Electric was down 1/4 at 62 1/4.

Ranchers Exploration & Development climbed 1/16 to 30 1/4 on the American Stock Exchange. The company announced a gold discovery in Arizona.

The NYSE's composite index lost .44 to 76.08, and the Amex market value index was off 1.20 at 38.97.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 18.03 million shares at noon-time, down from 28.7 million at the same point Monday.

PLYMOUTH HORIZON $5795

BUILT IN AMERICA FOR AMERICAN'S NEEDS!

WHAT YOU GET WHEN YOU CHOOSE PLYMOUTH FRONT WHEEL DRIVE

11 billion miles of front-wheel-drive experience.

- Our front-wheel-drive technology is known in the industry. • We have more front-wheel-drive experience in small, U.S. fuel-efficient cars than GM, Ford, AMC, Toyota or Datsun. • We introduced an American-made, high mileage, front-wheel-drive car two years ahead of GM and three years ahead of Ford. • We have sold more small, fuel-efficient, front-wheel-drive cars in the U.S. than GM, Ford, Datsun and Toyota.
- Outstanding overall est. mpg. • Plymouth has more front-wheel-drive cars rated over 24 est. mpg than GM, Ford, Toyota, Datsun or VW. • Plymouth has the highest projected overall mpg of any American car company brand.
- Most front-wheel-drive choices in America. • Plymouth has more 5-passenger front-wheel-drive car models than any other American automobile manufacturer. • Plymouth has the only 6-passenger front-wheel-drive cars in America. • Plymouth offers more front-wheel-drive choices under $6,000 than any other American automobile manufacturer.
- Ease and economy of maintenance. • Plymouth front-wheel-drive K-cars with the standard 2.2 liter Trans-4 engine incorporate ease-of-maintenance features, so you'll probably find your service bills lower than for your previously-owned vehicle. • Most routine maintenance can easily be done by the driveway mechanic.
- Electronic fuel control system. • Provides smooth engine performance during warm-up. • Contributes to fuel economy. • Promotes good acceleration. • Improves engine performance and smoothness throughout the engine speed range. • It helps control engine emissions—even before they leave the engine.

Our special priced 1980 Plymouth Horizon has front bucket seats, 4-speed manual transmission, two-barrel, 4-cylinder 1.7 liter overhead cam engine, remote control mirror, air conditioner, wheel trim rings and white stripe, steel-belted radial tires.

Berry Withdraws Resignation

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Shelton Berry, chairman of the Community Development Advisory Committee, has withdrawn his resignation following a Monday night meeting with Mayor Bill McAlister.

Berry submitted his letter of resignation to the mayor and City Council Friday after a council meeting in which Berry criticized council members for ignoring the CDAC's recommendations.

However, Berry said today the council and the CDAC "probably will still disagree, but we'll be communicating."

He said the meeting with McAlister "basically just straightened out communications between the council and the CDAC," with each pledging to "pay more attention to what the other is doing."

"They (the council) aren't changing their mind" about the allocation of CD monies, but "we're communicating better about it," Berry said.

In his letter of resignation Berry said, "although my term as chairman of the CDAC has another year (through 1981) to run, I do not believe that I can give the direction to the committee that you require. I therefore resign as CDAC chairman effective immediately."

On Monday, Berry said he was "thinking about" resigning, but had not made up his mind.

"Basically, as I said in the open meeting, if I feel like the committee is not being listened to and I feel like it is a waste of time," Berry said he would resign.

"If I resign, it will simply be because I can't do the job," he said.

"Don't blow it out of perspective," he said, adding if he resigned, he'd simply be replaced by someone else.

Berry said the problems between the council and the advisory committee could be only a misunderstanding caused by "no communication between the two."

At last week's council meeting, Berry and CDAC member George Nelson criticized the council's decision to use CD funds for engineering work on two street projects when there is no certain source of funding to complete the projects.

Berry said the council had "completely disregarded the long work and hard study the committee put into it (the recommendation)."

"There was a lot of time put in which was of, frankly, no use," he said. "I hate going to meetings of no purpose."

Nelson said the street projects should be financed through a bond election and said the council's decision to include funding for the street projects would "directly and adversely affect the health and welfare of low and moderate income citizens who would benefit from the other projects."

"CDAC members feel like pawns performing a useless act made necessary by the rules of HUD (U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development)," Nelson said.

The 23-member committee annually reviews citizen input on how the city's allocation of CD funds should be spent, then makes a recommendation to the City Council. Following two public hearings, the council makes the final decision on expenditure of the federal monies.

Coal-Fired Units To Boost SPS Capacity

The completion of two coal-fired electrical generating units that will increase Southwestern Public Service's capacity by more than a million kilowatts head up the utility's five-year construction plans, according to an announcement Monday from Bert Springer, president and chief operating officer.

Tolk Station, located 12 miles east of Muleshoe is the site for the new units. The first is about one-quarter complete and is scheduled to go on-line in 1982. The second unit will be ready in 1985, he said.

Both units will generate 543,000 kilowatts, bringing the total SPS generating capability up to 4 million kilowatts, said Springer.

This will be the second coal-fired plant for SPS, he continued. The first, at Harrington Station, near Amarillo, was completed last summer.

Coal is supplied from 110-car trains from the Richfield mines near Gillette, Wyo.

"Our peak load reached an all-time high last summer of 2,651,000 kilowatts," said Springer. "We expect our peak load to climb to 3-204,000 kilowatts by 1985. The addition of Tolk Station will more than take care of that increase."

The management of fuel problems continues to cause problems in company operations, he said. "The cost of fuel now represents nearly 70 percent of our total operating expenses as compared to only 47 percent in 1975," said Springer. "Supplier price increases, escalator clauses, minimum use requirements, gas pipeline capacity limitations and increasing supplier scheduling difficulties have all contributed to a rapidly increasing cost of fuel."

Energy alternatives are being researched, he added, with a feasibility study completed for repowering one power plant with 60 megawatts of solar energy, while a site north of Amarillo has been selected for a potential wind generator.

SPS will invest $552 million in new equipment and materials during the next five years, said Springer.

"We anticipate that about 120,000 kilowatts of new industrial and commercial load will be added to our system in 1981," he continued.

Strip-Mining Will Intensify In Texas

COLLEGE STATION (UPI) — More than a million acres of land in Texas will be strip-mined in the next half-century for the lignite deposits that lie beneath the surface, a Texas A&M University soil scientist predicted today.

Dr. Lloyd R. Hossner said that while the results are not yet noticeable, many Texans will begin to see the effects of strip-mining in the next decade as an increasing amount of land is mined for lignite coal which will be used to generate electricity.

"Strip-mining for lignite is a relatively new venture for Texas," said Hossner, a research scientist for the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, whose specialty is developing ways to restore strip-mined land. "Ten years ago it was not practical to use as fuel but since the price of oil has risen, its use has become more economically feasible."

Nearly two million acres have already been leased by companies interested in mining lignite. Hossner said the mines will be located in areas along a line from Laredo to Texarkana. Most of the mining, however, will be concentrated in the central and particularly the northeastern portion of the state.

"Getting to a seam of lignite, which could range between seven and 14 feet deep, normally involves moving more than 50 to 100 feet of overburden (surface material)," Hossner said. "In some places there will be several layers (or seams) of lignite."

While the lignite is being mined the overburden is cast aside. Once the mining operation is over, by law the land must be put back into useable form equal to or better than the original condition, Hossner said.

"We will determine whether the land should be restored with its native vegetation or whether it should be improved for pasture use by growing grasses," he said.

Soil and crop scientists will also determine ways to restore sections of forests that will be demolished by strip-mining.

Last year Hossner was named the most distinguished member of the Texas A&M Chapter of a national research society for his work in reclamation.

"Successful reclamation of strip-mined soils depends on understanding the chemical and physical properties of overburden and spoil material," Hossner said, adding "much of the soil in areas that will be mined, particularly in the claypan region, is poor to begin with."

Company To Construct New Generating Plant

ABILENE (UPI) — A $650 million coal-fired electrical generating plant will be built next year by West Texas Utilities near Oklaunion, a small North Texas town west of Wichita Falls.

Work on the coal-powered plant will not begin until spring 1982, said Sheryn McNair, information director for West Texas Utilities. The 640-megawatt complex, WTU's first to operate on coal, is expected to be operational in 1987, he said.

Corporation, headquartered in Dallas. Also receiving electricity from the plant will be Public Service Co. of Oklahoma, based in Tulsa, Okla.; Southwestern Electric Power Co. of Shreveport, La.; and Central Power and Light Co. of Corpus Christi.

Club's Owners Try To Stop Bull Copying

HOUSTON (UPI) — Mickey Gilley and co-owners of his famed Pasadena nightclub are seeking to stop three other companies from alleged infringement of their patent on a mechanical bull made famous by the film "Urban Cowboy."

Gilley was expected to testify today in the second day of the trial.

El Toro, the machine in question and the one "ridden" by actor John Travolta in the movie, is a remote-controlled, motorized, over-sized saddle that bucks and spins like a rodeo bull.

Attorney Wayne Harding, who represents plaintiffs Gilley's Enterprises Inc. and Joe Turner, who claims he invented the bull, told a jury Monday that Buck 'N' Broncos Inc., Southwest Rodeo Enterprises Inc. and Texas Rodeo Bulls Inc. stole his clients' idea.

Defense lawyer Ed Connally countered that Turner, 59, of Corrales, N.M., actually put together other developer's ideas and did not deserve U.S. Patent No. 3,997,979 because he did not tell the Patent Office how much he borrowed from others.

"We are suing defendants ... because they copied our machine and are manufacturing it without paying any royalties to either myself or Gilley's," Turner testified as the first witness.

"What happened here was a mistake," Connally said in his opening statement. "What Mr. Turner did was not invent. What he did was do what a good machinist would do — combine other person's ideas."

Faculty Wants Pay Increase

AUSTIN (UPI) — Members of a faculty union will ask the Legislature during this session to raise their pay, increase state contributions to insurance and retirement and give them the right to collective bargaining.

Texas United Faculty laid out its legislative program Monday and vowed to lobby and campaign at the precinct levels to get it passed.

The union, an affiliate of the Texas Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO, will ask for an immediate 30 percent increase in pay and another 30 percent over the coming two years.

John Cole, president of the federation, said the average professor on a Texas campus, with 10 years experience, makes $18,500.

That salary, according to Don Smith, president of the faculty union, is 33 percent less in real dollars than the average salary 10 years ago.

"College professors in the past have been apolitical because we are more interested in academics than in politics," said Smith, a botany professor at North Texas State University.

Short To Be Named To Finance Panel

Sen. E.L. Short of Tahoka will be named today to the state senate's finance committee, considered to be one of the more important legislative committees, The Avalanche-Journal learned Monday.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby also will announce at noon today that Short will be placed on the education committee and will serve as subcommittee chairman on water and natural resources.

Sen. Bill Sarpalus of Hereford will be appointed to the human resources committee, economic development committee, natural resources committee and will serve as chairman of the subcommittee on agriculture.

Congratulations
