U.S., Iran Close To Agreement

The United States and Iran rushed today to complete an agreement to free the 52 American hostages, and both sides signaled that a breakthrough in the 14-month crisis

Iran's chief hostage negotiator, Behzad Nabavi, said there is "no obstacle in resolving the issue" and informed Washington sources said the United States and Iran were nearing agreement to exchange the hostages for frozen Iranian assets.

Nabavi later told the official Pars news agency the Iranian proposal seeks return of frozen Iranian assets, minus money Iran owes on loans to U.S. banks. Although he did not mention any figures, it was believed he referred to more than $1 billion in what U.S. banks have said are defaulted Iranian loans.

It appeared to be a major Iranian concession from their original insistence that all the Iranian funds held by U.S. banks be returned. Pars quoted Nabavi as saying that Iran "has demanded that the United States transfer to the central bank of a third country the agreed assets of Iran, minus past and future loan installments.

State Department spokesman John Trattner, in an interview, said he personally did not expect a settlement today. "If an agreement was reached — but that's a big if - it is conceivable the hostages could be out of Iran before the inauguration," he Louisa Kennedy, wife of hostage Moorhead Kennedy and spokeswoman for the organization acting as hostage family liaison with the State Department, said she is telling hostage families the news looks "very optimistic."

A U.S. Air Force jet with British and American bankers on board arrived in Algeria in an attempt to work out the complicated financial arrangements with a U.S. negotiating team that has been consulting with Algerian go-betweens in Algiers.

There appeared to be about 10 to 12 people in the group. They were met by U.S. Embassy officials, who said there would be no statements. The financial specialists were to meet immediately with Warren M. Christopher, head of the U.S. negotiating

In Washington, Vice President Walter Mondale said, "we're trying to do things in hours that would take months otherwise." But Mondale cautioned that there was no agreement yet and said: "We've had our hearts broken before and I think we'd better keep our expectations under control."

A State Department official in Washington said, "I think we're getting down to specifics," but said that no Iranian assets had been transferred by U.S. banks. Forty officials of 12 banks were meeting at the State Department.

President Carter — who leaves office next Tuesday — had no comment on the gotiations and was meeting in the White House with his foreign policy aides.

Nabavi, outlining the Iranian position, said "only the real willingness of Washington can bring decisive results today" and the leader of Friday prayers in Tehran also indicated a breakthrough was at hand.

The Air Force jet carrying William T. Lake, deputy legal adviser for the State Department, stopped in London on the way to Algiers to pick up bankers prepared to deal with Iran's demand that $4 billion blocked in U.S. branches overseas be transferred to Algeria.

The financial experts were not identified, but Christopher Ross, U.S. Embassy deputy chief of mission in Algiers, confirmed that "British and American bankers" were on the plane.

Friday is the Moslem Sabbath and no fficial could be reached for comment in Algiers. The Algerian Central Bank was closed. But since its governor, Seghir Mostefai, is a member of the Algerian intermediary teams, that did not appear to be an obstacle.

Nabavi said there was no obstacle to esolving the crisis in a brief interview with Iran's official Pars news agency.

Nabavi added that "the Iranian government has expressed its willingness to conclude the issue and from our point of view any procrastination is condemned."

Jammed Hospitals Here Turning Away Patients By DEBBI STALTER Avalanche-Journal Staff beds for critical situations, but as Sister A glut of patients, suffering from flu-Maureen pointed out, "When the beds Hardin could not estimate how many are filled, what can you do?' related illnesses or now wanting elective Hospitals here expect a rush of pa-surgery performed, has swamped some Lubbock hospitals the past few weeks, forcing the facilities to admit only emergency cases and turn others away. Lubbock's largest hospital, Methodist Hospital, has been full to its $49-bed capacity since the holiday season, as have St. Mary of the Plains Hospital and Highland Hospital. Others, including West Texas Hospital, Lubbock General Hospital, Community Hospital and South Park Hospital, say they have near-capacity patient loads but still have a few beds available.

Several hospital officials are blaming the epidemic of flu-like illnesses and secondary infections as a major cause of the rush. However, hospitals also normally expect a lot of patients this time of year who have postponed elective surgery until after Christmas.

Marvin Hardin, director of patient care services at Methodist, said beds there have been filled to capacity daily since the middle of last week and throughout this week.

Depending on the degree of urgency, patients there are being admitted if possible or sent to another facility, unless the hospital stay can be rescheduled.

Hardin said that after physician consultation, Methodist usually sends its extra patients to St. Mary's Hospital, since many of the staff physicians share privileges at both hospitals.

But St. Mary's has had its own share of packed beds. Hardin noted that one day he was forced to call all over the city to find room for patients after finding St. Mary's completely filled.

Sister Maureen, St. Mary's administrator, termed the recent situation a 'real fight for beds.'

That hospital has been taking only emergency cases, usually around the middle of the week, for the past two or three weeks.

Hardin recalled that three or four years ago a rash of flu cases were brought to Methodist, but said the current outbreak has also brought an unusually high number.

Jim Wolfe of the Texas Department of Health's regional office here told The Avalanche-Journal this week that a monitoring station set up at Methodist shows 177 cases of flu-like illnesses were report-of those cases actually required admittance, but said a large number of not only flu, but other respiratory cases such as pneumonia and bronchitis, are flooding the hospital.

Highland Hospital administrator Jerry Howard said his facility has been in a similar, cramped situation since Jan. 5, although the patient load has not required anyone be turned away yet.

Two Die In City Auto Accidents

By NEAL FARMER Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lubbock registered its second traffic fatality in the span of less than five hours early this morning when a small sports car rammed a parked tractor-trailer rig on Ninth Street about 1 a.m.

Killed was Edmundson G. Hall. 27, of 2206 Date Ave, apparently a passenger in Earlier in the night, about 8:30 p.m.,

Horace Shane Taylor, 21, of 4304 18th St. died in a one-car crash on Loop 289. The fatalities brought the cities traffic death toll for the new year to three. Two fatalities had been recorded as of this date in 1980.

In the early morning accident, the man police say was driving was booked for involuntary manslaughter after his small sports car rammed the back of an 18-wheel tractor-trailer rig in the 2000block of Ninth Street.

Police said evidence at the scene indicated an attempt had been made to make it appear that Hall had been driving the car. Officers reported that when they arrived at the death scene, they found Hall's shirt and coat had been removed and his other clothing disarranged. A search turned up the clothes in a dumpster near the car, reports said.

Witnesses said that after the crash they saw the driver, a 27-year-old black male, drive to the alley, pick up the dead man and clean him with a towel "like he was dusting him," reports said.

Reports said the driver appeared to be intoxicated, and offered no explanation why the dead man was disrobed, reports said.

Witnesses said it was the driver who had taken off the dead man's clothes, reports said.

The driver was arrested after interrogation and taken to Lubbock County Jail, reports said.

Auto Dilemma No Joke

TYPICAL OF the graveyard humor lines circulating about the state of the besieged auto industry is this one:

Chrysler was rescued at least temporarily by the U.S. government, but it took the French government to bail out AMC. If that doesn't qualify as even mildly amusing, perhaps it's because this country's automakers don't have much to laugh about anymore.

Last month, stockholders voted almost unanimously to make Renault the principal owner of American Motors, this nation's fourth largest auto manufacturer.

"There is no escaping the reality that AMC now is controlled by a company in which the French government owns 92 per-cent of all outstanding stock," writes nation-ally syndicated columnist Robert Walters.

THE HANDWRITING already is on the wall for the entire industry. By the turn of the century, there could be perhaps as few as a dozen multinational corporations dominating the production of autos throughout the world.

The process already is underway. Ford Motor Company owns 25 percent of Japan's Toyo Kogyo, producer of Mazda autos, and is negotiating with Toyota for a jointly owned U.S. production facility that will turn out 240,000 cars annually. General Motors owns 34 percent of Japan's Isuzu Motors. Volkswagen of Germany

Mexico that will supply engines to its assembly lines in the U.S.

Fiat of Italy has a Brazilian affiliate that ships piston rings to the Philippines, engine blocks to Argentina and cylinder heads to Volkswagen, Honda and Nissan (maker of Datsuns) and Toyota either already produce cars or trucks in the U.S. or are actively considering such a step.

THAT PATTERN suggests a solution for Chrysler's increasingly severe problems that almost certainly will mean its demise as an independent corporation-but that could save the jobs of many of its employes.

Instead of propping up a troubled company with loan guarantees, the federal government could offer financial inducements to companies willing to take over Chrysler's production facilities.

Volkswagen already owns 67 percent of the stock in Chrysler's Brazilian affiliate. Peugot-Citroen owns Chrysler's European production facilities, traded in 1979 for a 15 percent share in the French company. However, that stock is now being used as collateral for a $100 million loan to Chrysler from Peugot-Citroen.

Turning Chrysler into a subsidiary of a foreign corporation wouldn't do much for this country's international balance of payments, but it is preferable to turning it into a subsidis building a major production facility in iary of the American taxpayers.

Local police took small comfort in the fact that, nationally, the 1980 crime rate rose by 11 percent. Rape, robbery and burglary were down here, statistically, but assaults, car burglary, forgery, arson and fraud were up.

REP. FROY SALINAS' vote against Bill Clay-ton's election to a record fourth term as Speaker of the Texas House of Representatives was a mistake in judgment

It was also a futile gesture.

Salinas is on sound, although debatable, philosophical grounds in contending that no man should be Speaker that many times.

But the fact of the matter is that Clayton not only has been good for the state, he's also done more for Lubbock specifically than have our own repre-sentatives, including Salinas.

WITH HIS DISTRICT nudging the Lubbock County line, the Speaker has been tuned in to our needs and he has been responsive to them.

Salinas would have been well-advised to be a staunch supporter of Clayton's leadership role rather than be counted among the few (21 out of a membership of 150) lawmakers who voted against

Rep. Salinas can't be faulted for voting his convictions, of course, but in this instance he can be faulted we think for having a faulty conviction.

China Dragon Will Consume Us

WASHINGTON—For persons and nations, the axiom holds: Only a fool makes the same mistake twice. No fool is Ronald Reagan, and thus is not expected to "sell the rope" to Red China as was done to Red Russia.

These two, among other accommodative Republicans, will surely lean on their President to pull the China card out of his cuff.

REAGAN'S LEVEL-HEADEDNESS and his imbedded extremism as a Communist-hater can be counted on to resist Detente in all guises. He sees red and hollers red, as he demonstrated during the campaign by instinctively tilting away from Peking and toward Taiwan when the choice seemed at hand.

Under Carter, as under Ford and Nixon, there has been a wishful yen to regard China as a de facto ally against the USSR. Already, "lethal" weapons-not just defensive gimmicks-have moved from American arsenals to the troops of

Our readiness, in fact eagerness, to cut energy costs creates an ideal background for the on-thefringe appliance maker, insulation firm, mail order house-any type of seller-anxious to cash in on our minimum resistance.

As 1981 begins, the marketplace is loaded with an array of devices promising us big savings in electricity, gasoline, home heating oil.

Of course, many of these products are good investments! Let there be no misunderstanding about that. But others are outright hoaxes, still others are flimsy deceptions-and it is not easy for you, the uninformed buyer, to distinguish between the good and the bad, the efficient and the

THIS WINTER ALONE, for instance, America's consumers are expected to buy more than 1 million portable electric quartz heaters-"new" space heaters priced from $30 to $80.

One reason for the popularity of the gadgets: advertisements hailing them as "twice as efficient" as conventional electric space heaters. Among other claims for the quartz heaters: they "beat the oil shortage"; are "trouble-free"; are "long-life" products that can warm an entire room.

Great as the heaters sound for an attic office, drafty playroom, cool basement or cold porch, there's a huge hitch.

None of these energy-saving, money-saving or higher-efficiency claims hold up, says the Federal Trade Commission, the federal agency responsible for policing the marketplace and protecting U.S. consumers from unfair and deceptive adver-

"QUARTZ HEATERS ARE different from conventional electric heaters, but they're not more efficient," declares Lois Pines, director of the FTC's Boston office. The quartz heaters are different in the way in which they warm an area. They radiate warmth directly to the objects or people near them, similar to a heat lamp, while conventional resistance heaters warm the air. Regardless of the way they generate heat, all electric heaters of approximate wattage create the same amount of warmth. (In brief, they operate at the same efficiency.) The FTC has just signed a consent agreement with the nation's leading producer of quartz heaters. Boekamp Inc. of San Diego. Under the arrangement, Boekamp has agreed to stop calling its quartz heater an "energy saver."

IT HAS AGREED to stop claiming that the product distributes heat evenly throughout a typi-So They Say...

heated, says the FTC: they can break easily if knocked or bumped)

But Boekamp still believes its product is "more efficient" than the conventional electric heater, a company spokesman, Peter Stark, told my associate, Brooke Shearer. Boekamp is now working with an independent testing laboratory to back up its belief with verifiable test results.

Under a relatively new federal law, companies which make energy claims for their products must base those claims on standardized tests. Many items, supposed to conserve energy are put on the market before they are so tested, however.

Another example is a device called the "GR Valve," supposed to cut your gas mileage by close to 30 percent. The FTC also has halted advertising of this product until its maker can prove it does what is claimed for it.

BOTH FEDERAL AND state officials say they can't keep up to-much less ahead of-the energysaving products appearing on the market.

They can't pull questionable products from the shelves or police what they allege is unfair or misleading advertising fast enough to save many buyers from being duped.

Your only true defense, as almost always, is yourself. Be on guard. Don't accept without question a collection of glowing customer testimonials or the use of such "buzz" words as efficient, saver, free-energy.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ronald Reagan has selected a proper Republican Cabinet — dominated by conservative, white men who profess a desire to cut back the role of government in the lives of American

Despite the promised prominence for women and minorities, Reagan has chosen only one black, New York attorney Samuel Pierce as housing secretary; and one woman, academician Jeane Kirkpatrick as ambassador to the United Nations — a job with Cabinet-level rank.

There are no Histophics

There are no Hispanics.

It is not as if Reagan did not try. But it is generally acknowledged that tough new disclosure laws for Cabinet secretaries frightened off many potential candidates, women and men. The search took much longer than intended and turned up no genuinely surprising choices.

With the economy designated as top priority of the administration, Treasury Secretary Donald Regan, a New York brokerage executive, and Budget Director David Stockman, a congressman from Michigan, will shoulder much responsibility. Both are conservative, although Stockman is considerably to the right of

They can be expected to zero in on the budgetary swamp that has plagued past administrations and bred inflation that has stayed in the double-digit range too long for most Americans. But not all areas of the budget are targets for the

Stockman-Regan scalpel.

The Pentagon, to be headed by former Nixon Cabinet secretary Caspar Weinberger, will get increased funding something Reagan, Weinberger and new Secretary of State Alexander Haig believe is necessary to maintain what they call "a margin of safety."

At his confirmation hearings, Haig, the former NATO commander, said the United States must realize "there are things worth fighting for."

Although not armed conflict, there will likely be spirited scraps in the other agencies facing cuts. Chief among those will be the Department of Health and Human Services. Former Sen. Richard Schweiker, R-Pa., was chosen to head the government's largest department.

His job will be difficult because it likely will entail politically touchy explanations of why Reagan is reducing social services that grew under past administrations. Reagan may try to trim Social Security benefits, also within Schweiker's purview, as well as Medicare and Medicaid funding and welfare payments.

Pierce's Department of Housing and Urban Development also is a likely target for cuts, as is the Transportation Depart-ment headed by Drew Lewis, a Pennsylvania politician with close ties to Schwei-ker. Reagan has made it clear he believes some safety standards on cars are unreasonable, and Lewis may have to lead the fight for that change.

At Agriculture, the new secretary, Illinois farmer John Block, will hold a post that may become increasingly diplomatic in scope. Block has said he advocates use of food as a foreign policy tool, and Reagan has indicated he now thinks the viet grain embargo may not have been such a bad move.

The new commerce secretary, Malcolm Baldrige of Connecticut, will have to deal with the balance of trade problems that have cropped up over the in-creased importation of foreign autos. It is unclear where Baldrige's department will be trimmed, but it is a vast bureaucracy with many seemingly non-Commerce interests.

The Labor Department, to be headed by New Jersey construction executive Raymond Donovan, includes the muchcriticized Occupational Safety and Health Administration - one of the agencies Reagan used as a political whipping boy in his tirades against government inter-

Reagan stressed in the campaign that he is a strong union man, but he named Donovan, an advocate of right-to-work

laws, to the post anyway:
At Interior, James Watt, a Colorado attorney and veteran of fights against that department, will preside. His task, evident from Reagan's own statements, will be to open up the vest resources of the American West to business. It is unclear where the budget of this depart-ment will be cut, but regulatory reform itself might trim expenses a great deal.

Even the Justice Department, to be headed by William French Smith, likely will see rollbacks in spending for such things as the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration. When his appointment was announced, Smith was cautious - insisting on busing and other critical issues that he needs more time to study before taking a stand.

Auto Dilemma No Joke

TYPICAL OF the graveyard humor lines circulating about the state of the besieged auto industry is this one:

Chrysler was rescued at least temporarily by the U.S. government, but it took the French government to bail out AMC.

If that doesn't qualify as even mildly amusing, perhaps it's because this country's automakers don't have much to laugh about anymore.

Last month, stockholders voted almost unanimously to make Renault the principal owner of American Motors, this nation's fourth largest auto manufacturer.

"There is no escaping the reality that AMC now is controlled by a company in which the French government owns 92 per-cent of all outstanding stock," writes nationally syndicated columnist Robert Walters.

THE HANDWRITING already is on the wall for the entire industry. By the turn of the century, there could be perhaps as few as a dozen multinational corporations dominating the production of autos throughout the world.

The process already is underway.

Ford Motor Company owns 25 percent of Japan's Toyo Kogyo, producer of Mazda autos, and is negotiating with Toyota for a jointly owned U.S. production facility that will turn out 240,000 cars annually.

General Motors owns 34 percent of Japan's Isuzu Motors. Volkswagen of Germany is building a major production facility in iary of the American taxpayers.

Mexico that will supply engines to its assembly lines in the U.S.

Fiat of Italy has a Brazilian affiliate that ships piston rings to the Philippines, engine blocks to Argentina and cylinder heads to Volkswagen, Honda and Nissan (maker of Datsuns) and Toyota either already produce cars or trucks in the U.S. or are actively considering such a step.

THAT PATTERN suggests a solution for Chrysler's increasingly severe problems that almost certainly will mean its demise as an independent corporation-but that could save the jobs of many of its employes.

Instead of propping up a troubled company with loan guarantees, the federal government could offer financial inducements to companies willing to take over Chrysler's production facilities.

Volkswagen already owns 67 percent of the stock in Chrysler's Brazilian affiliate. Peugot-Citroen owns Chrysler's European production facilities, traded in 1979 for a 15 percent share in the French company. However, that stock is now being used as collateral for a $100 million loan to Chrysler from Peugot-Citroen.

Turning Chrysler into a subsidiary of a foreign corporation wouldn't do much for this country's international balance of payments, but it is preferable to turning it into a subsid-

As 1981 begins, the marketplace is loaded with an array of devices promising us big savings in electricity, gasoline, home heating oil.

Of course, many of these products are good investments! Let there be no misunderstanding about that. But others are outright hoaxes, still others are flimsy deceptions-and it is not easy for you, the uninformed buyer, to distinguish between the good and the bad, the efficient and the space heaters priced from $30 to $80. One reason for the popularity of the gadgets: advertisements hailing them as "twice as efficient" as conventional electric space heaters. Among other claims for the quartz heaters: they "beat the oil shortage": are "trouble-free"; are "long-life" products that can warm an entire room.

Great as the heaters sound for an attic office, drafty playroom, cool basement or cold porch, there's a huge hitch.

None of these energy-saving, money-saving or higher-efficiency claims hold up, says the Federal Trade Commission, the federal agency responsible for policing the marketplace and protecting U.S. consumers from unfair and deceptive adver-

"QUARTZ HEATERS ARE different from conventional electric heaters, but they're not more efficient," declares Lois Pines, director of the FTC's Boston office.

The quartz heaters are different in the way in which they warm an area. They radiate warmth directly to the objects or people near them, similar to a heat lamp, while conventional resistance heaters warm the air.

Regardless of the way they generate heat, all electric heaters of approximate wattage create the same amount of warmth. (In brief, they operate at the same efficiency.)

The FTC has just signed a consent agreement with the nation's leading producer of quartz heaters. Boekamp Inc. of San Diego.

Under the arrangement, Boekamp has agreed to stop calling its quartz heater an "energy saver."

IT HAS AGREED to stop claiming that the product distributes heat evenly throughout a typi-So They Say...

NEW YORK-Con artists always have thrived cal room: that it produces more heat than the othheater are sturdy. (The tubes are fragile when heated, says the FTC: they can break easily if knocked or bumped.) But Boekamp still believes its product is "more efficient" than the conventional electric heater, a company spokesman, Peter Stark, told my associate, Brooke Shearer. Boekamp is now working with an independent testing laboratory to back up its belief with verifiable test results.

Under a relatively new federal law, companies which make energy claims for their products must base those claims on standardized tests. Many items supposed to conserve energy are put on the market before they are so tested, however.

Another example is a device called the "GR Valve." supposed to cut your gas mileage by close to 30 percent. The FTC also has halted advertising of this product until its maker can prove it does what is claimed for it.

BOTH FEDERAL AND state officials say they can't keep up to-much less ahead of-the energy-saving products appearing on the market. They can't pull questionable products from the shelves or police what they allege is unfair or misleading advertising fast enough to save many buyers from being duped.

Your only true defense, as almost always, is yourself. Be on guard. Don't accept without question a collection of glowing customer testimonials or the use of such "buzz" words as efficient, saver, free-energy.

of Americans.

Despite the promised prominence for women and minorities, Reagan has chosen only one black, New York attorney Samuel Pierce as housing secretary; and one woman, academician Jeane Kirkpatrick as ambassador to the United Nations—a job with Cabinet-level rank.

There are no Hisnanics.

There are no Hispanics.
It is not as if Reagan did not try. But it is generally acknowledged that tough new disclosure laws for Cabinet secretaries frightened off many potential candi-dates, women and men. The search took much longer than intended and turned up no genuinely surprising choices.

With the economy designated as top priority of the administration, Treasury Secretary Donald Regan, a New York brokerage executive, and Budget Director David Stockman, a congressman from Michigan, will shoulder much responsibility. Both are conservative, although Stockman is considerably to the right of

They can be expected to zero in on the budgetary swamp that has plagued past administrations and bred inflation that has stayed in the double-digit range too long for most Americans. But not all areas of the budget are targets for the Stockman-Regan scalpel.

The Pentagon, to be headed by former Nixon Cabinet secretary Caspar Weinberger, will get increased funding something Reagan, Weinberger and new Secretary of State Alexander Haig believe is necessary to maintain what they call "a margin of safety."

At his confirmation hearings, Haig, the former NATO commander, said the United States must realize "there are things worth fighting for."

Although not armed conflict, there will likely be spirited scraps in the other agencies facing cuts. Chief among those will be the Department of Health and Human Services. Former Sen. Richard Schweiker, R-Pa., was chosen to head the government's largest department.
His job will be difficult because it likely will entail politically touchy ex-planations of why Reagan is reducing social services that grew under past administrations. Reagan may try to trim Social Security benefits, also within Schweiker's purview, as well as Medicare and Medicaid funding and welfare payments.

Pierce's Department of Housing and Urban Development also is a likely target for cuts, as is the Transportation Depart-ment headed by Drew Lewis, a Pennsylvania politician with close ties to Schwei-ker. Reagan has made it clear he believes some safety standards on cars are unrea-sonable, and Lewis may have to lead the fight for that change.

At Agriculture, the new secretary, Illinois farmer John Block, will hold a post that may become increasingly diplomatic in scope. Block has said he advocates use of food as a foreign policy tool, and Reviet grain embargo may not have been such a bad move.

The new commerce secretary, Malcolm Baldrige of Connecticut, will have to deal with the balance of trade problems that have cropped up over the in-creased importation of foreign autos. It is unclear where Baldrige's department will be trimmed, but it is a vast bureaucracy with many seemingly non-Com-

The Labor Department, to be headed by New Jersey construction executive Raymond Donovan, includes the muchcriticized Occupational Safety and Health Administration - one of the agencies Reagan used as a political whipping boy in his tirades against government inter-

Reagan stressed in the campaign that he is a strong union man, but he named Donovan, an advocate of right-to-work

laws, to the post anyway.

At Interior, James Watt, a Colorado attorney and veteran of fights against that department, will preside. His task, evident from Reagan's own statements, will be to open up the vast resources of the American West to business. It is unclear where the budget of this depart-ment will be cut, but regulatory reform itself might trim expenses a great deal.

Even the Justice Department, to be headed by William French Smith, likely will see rollbacks in spending for such things as the Law Enforcement Assist-ance Administration. When his appointment was announced, Smith was cautious — insisting on busing and other critical issues that he needs more time to study before taking a stand

rownsville School Official Agrees With Decision

the Brownsville Independent School District is voicing his agreement with a judge with says the government should help local schools bear the burden of educating children of undocumented aliens.

"It is obvious the problems the (Brownsville) district faces are caused by failure of federal policy," Superintendent Raul Besteiro said Thursday. "And they show they aren't willing to pay for the problems they're causing.

The flood of aliens is "not sole cause nor even the major cause" of the district's problem, he wrote.

"This court finds that the Brownsville ISD will not suffer irreparable harm from the admission of these children. "Accordingly, this court cannot find that the admission of the children would 'se-verely hamper' the district in providing education to all its students. The school district will still have the ability to provide education, though it's resources may

The judge said that although those overly taxed resources may lead to a gen-eral decline in the quality of education the district offers, the unbalance will not be enough to justify denial of undocu-mented childrens' rights to free public ducations.

Besteiro agreed that the non-citizen children agreed that the non-citizen children are not the district's biggest problem, "but they are the tip of the iceberg," he said.

The judge said the school district showed it has problems, but it did not show those problems were caused by undocumented children alone.

Fanfare Over Suit Rekindles Interest In Mechanical Bull

HOUSTON (AP) - Lawyers are debating the patent rights to a mechanical bull and the fanfare surrounding the suit has spurred a renewed interest in the bucking marvel that became a star in the owner and namesake of the Pasadena nightclub featured in the movie - says. the hoopla may "just be worth a song. And his business partner says it has drawn a new herd of barroom bronc busters into the already bustling nightclub.

The suit centers around a whirling, bucking mechanical bull that an amused presiding federal judge said he would like to buy for his bedroom and that a champion rodeo cowboy testified is the "greatest thing since popcorn.

Testimony resumed today in the suit

In the suit, Gilley's Enterprises Inc. and Joe D. Turner, a Corrales, N.M., inventor, have asked a jury of six to stop three Houston competitors from infringing on their patent rights to the device they said inspired a craze in cowboy bars from coast to coast. The defendants - Buck N Broncos. Inc., Southwest Rodeo Enterprises Inc., and Texas Rodeo Bulls Inc. - have argued the mechanical bull existed long before Turner obtained a patent. They also accused Gilley's of trying to monopolize sales to the nightclub rodeo circuit.

Both sides wheeled their bulls into the 11th floor courtroom of U.S. District

One Dallas reporter covering the spirited proceedings noted that if Seals allowed a third bull to be hauled into the courtroom, the judge's business could ri-

From the affluent ancients to the present-day prosperous, the wealthy classes throughout history have shared the pursuit of pleasure. In their quest, they have generously applied time, talent and technology to create devices to amuse and

But neither the ancients nor the modern-day rich could begin to compete with the 16th-century European princes and potentates who spared no expense to hire the best scientific minds and craftsmen to invent and build objects of wonder, pomp and play.

Especially popular in the courts of German Renaissance nobility were exquisitely crafted automata - self-moving and self-propelled human figures, ani-mals and vehicles. These distant ancestors of today's robots greeted visiting dignitaries at state receptions, played a role in drinking games at boisterous revelries and diverted guests at ceremonies and

Picture the wedding celebration of one nobleman, Johann Wilhelm of Julich, whose marriage was recorded for posterity by an artist of the time. A 1587 woodcut depicts a sumptuous banquet table on which mechanical horses, elephants, birds, camels, lions, bears, unicorns and a whole menagerie of real and mythical creatures strut, sway, parade and prance among platters laden with food. In fact, the table is so cluttered with the fantastic devices that guests at Wilhelm's nuptial feast must have had great difficulty finding anything to eat.

These devices, like others created during the era, not only moved, some played music or re-created animal noises. And because their motions were programmed by clockworks hidden in their innards, many automata could even tell guests when it was time to go home. Indeed, automata and clocks were integrated from the earliest times.

Craftsmen and clockmakers constructed hundreds of automata for the ruling classes during this period. Because they were made of sturdy materials silver, bronze, copper, iron, brass and even gold - many of the devices have survived in private collections and museums throughout the world.

More than 40 of these works built between 1550 and 1650 are now on display, along with 80 other German Renaissance master clockworks and timepieces, at the Smithsonians' Museum of American History in Washington, D.C. The exhibit, "The Clockwork Universe," sponsored in collaboration with the Bayerisches National museum in Munich, gives a rare glimpse of a century when the modern world was born.

"We look at these objects today as trivial playthings," Dr. Otto Mayr, curator of mechanisms at the Museum and co-organizer of the exhibit, says. "But we tend to forget that they were based on a great technological achievement - the development of the mechanical clock. Moreover, the automata and clockworks are reflections of the thoughts, feelings and hopes of the thinkers, the nobility and the ordinary people of the period. Rarely in history has a machine so directly expressed and, in turn, affected the intellectual climate of its time."

In Mayr's view, clockworks represented "the sharpest conceivable contrast to the prevailing reality of the times, which were marked by the collapsing political and social order of the Middle Ages, by wars of religion arising out of the Reformation and by the multitude of revolutionary scientific new ideas and the social unrest which they unleashed." The mechanical clock was invented a little before 1300 in Western Europe. By whom and precisely where are unknown. Prior to its invention, people had relied on the sun and its movements to tell time, but within a century of its creation, nearly every town of consequence boasted a mechanical clock in its town hall or

At the heart of the clock were a series of mechanisms which, when driven by a falling weight, produced a steady rotary motion that was employed for time mea-surement. An additional device announced the hours by a pre-programmed number of strikes on a bell. During the next 200 years, other refinements such as the coiled spring were added to clock-works to improve their accuracy.

'The design elements solved complex problems with a mechanical sophistication that has yet to be adequately appreciated," Mayr says of the mechanical clock. "Its parts had an order, a rationality and a predictability lacking in the real their own unchanging plan of action — a concept of order that the people admired during this uncertain era.

At first, automata took the form of simple "Jacks" — hammers in human shape that struck bells to tell time. Later, as the nobility hired clockmakers and scientist in their courts, automata became complex simulations of animals and hu-

Above all, automata were for the nusement of the wealthy. To this end, they ranged from the sublime to the ridiculous, Mayr says, though they all shared the age-old ambition of creating lifelike animation. Examples of both extremes are displayed in the exhibit.

At one end are timepieces and automata which must have served to heighten religious feelings - madonnas, crucifixion and flagellation scenes. Most automata did not aspire to such lofty heights,

For sheer frivolity, automata were devised as drinking vessels and games. In one jewel-encrusted gold masterpiece combining elements of both, the goddess Diana is seated on a stag, whose head lifts off to reveal a drinking vessel. Mayr surmises that the entire assembly, propelled by a hidden clockwork in the base, rolled across a banquet table, coming to rest in front of a lucky nobleman, who by custom had to drain the vessel. After several hours of such activity, a stately dinner was no doubt transformed into a raucous revelry.

Housewife First To Get Synthetic Interferon

iven a cancer-stricken housewife, doctors have begun human tests of man-made interferon in hopes it will provide a cheap and plentiful replacement for nat-ural interferon, a rare substance being investigated as a possible cancer fighter.

The first dose of synthetic interferon to be used on a person was administered Thursday to Joan Karafotas, 37, of Northbrook, III., who has suffered from a slow-growing lymph cancer for 18

She is one of eight people with advanced cancers who are participating in a limited study of the experimential drug at the University of Texas' M.D. Anderson Hospital and Turnor Institute.

The four-month study is the first step oward federal Food and Drug Administration approval of the substance for human use. Among other things, the study will attempt to make sure the substance is not toxic and determine whether there are significant differences between it and natural interferon, the body's natural infection-fighter.

Dr. Jordan Gutterman, who heads the study, said Mrs. Karafotas will receive two small doses of synthethic interferon produced by gene-splicing — each week for six weeks.

Mrs. Karafotas said although doctors warned her not expect too much from the experimental treatment, she feels

To make symthetic interferon, scientists took a copy of the human gene for interferon and inserted it into the genetic material of first-growing bacteria. The bacteria were then cultured and the substance har vested from the culture.

otos Reveal Wonders Of Western Wilderness

Smithsonian News Service Picture this scene. Burdened with a large camera, unwieldy tripod and fragile glass plates, a daring young man scram-bles down a 200-foot cliff — determined to capture the beauty of a plunging wat-

The year was 1871; the place, a natural wonderland of boiling pools, tumbling falls, rainbow springs and exploding geysers. In 1871 the area had been seen by very few.

Dubbed "Roche Jaune" or Yellow Rock by French trappers and avoided as spirit-haunted by Indians, this magical terrain with its snow-capped peaks and winding yellow canyons is known today as Yellowstone National Park. It was the first of America's national parks.

Our intrepid photographer played a significant role in bringing Yellowstone to the American public. His name was William Henry Jackson, and he was the great-great nephew of one Samuel Wilson, the model for America's best-known symbol, Uncle Sam. And a fitting nephew he was.

In his day, Jackson had been a Civil War soldier, a "bull whacker" driving oxen-pulled wagon trains across the plains, an artist and an author. He would become one of America's most famous early Western photographers.

Young Jackson captured that Yellowstone waterfall and, over the years, many hundreds of other virgin images of the American wilderness. His list of photographic conquests is a virtual inventory of our most well-known scenic wonders.

Old Faithful, Mammoth Hot Springs, Yellowstone's Grand Canyon, the Grand Tetons, Yosemite Valley, the Mount of the Holy Cross in the Colorado Rockies and the Mesa Verde cliff dwellings were all recorded by his camera in the 1870s.

Jackson was not alone in his efforts to bring incontrovertible proof of the glories of the Western landscape to a doubting American public east of the Mississippi. A handful of other photographers, including Carleton Watkins and Timothy O'Sullivan, would mesmerize this country with views of the West.

In the years immediately following the Civil War, America was struggling to be free from the terrible confinement of internal struggle. The great transcontinental railroad was completed in May 1869. The idea of wide-open Western lands stretched the American imagination along its tracks.

People had heard tales of Western wonders from fur trappers, early explor-ers and adventurous travelers. Some had seen paintings and drawings of these scenic splendors. However, suspecting exag-geration, the public and the Congress, which had the power to finance Western exploration, were skeptical. "Photography remained the missing ingredient," Eugene Ostroff, curator of photography at the Smithsonian's National Museum of American History, says. "When it was introduced, it was a vital element in convincing Congress and the public of the richness of the new land.

Ostroff conceived and organized an exhibition of 180 early photographs and accompanying paintings, drawings and prints for the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service. These works were gathered from a number of sources, including the U.S. Geological Survey, which had William Henry Jackson as a photographer when it was established in 1879.

The exhibit, "Western Views and Eastern Visions," documents the beauty and grandeur of a lightly touched American West and salutes the photographers who preserved those unique and unspoiled images.

These photographers were men who became restless doing portrait work in studios. They wanted to work in the field. They had quite a field. Four major scientific and surveying expeditions were carrried out during the years 1867-1879 into the present-day states of Arizona, California, Colorado, the Dakotas, Montana, Nebraska, New Mexico, Utah and

Led by Clarence King, Ferdinand Hayden and John Wesley Powell, three keenly intelligent and publicity conscious men, each survey had its own photographer. The expedition leaders agreed with the Chinese proverb that a picture is worth 10,000 words. In this case, the opening up of a continent was at stake. Their pictures would be worth 3,000

As Jackson wrote in his autobiography, Time Exposure, "Hayden knew that Congress would keep on with its annual appropriations exactly as long as the peo-ple were ready to foot the bill, and he was determined to make them keep on wanting to."

In order to make them keep on wanting to, Jackson climbed a 200-foot cliff "four or five times" in a single day to get one set of pictures of that Yellowstone waterfall. He wanted a view of the falls from the gorge below but could not get his cumbersome portable darkroom down into the canyon. So he set up his camera at the bottom and traveled back and forth between the two.

There were gains, and there were losses. Timothy O'Sullivan, who had been with Mathew Brady, the famous Civil War photographer, once had a piece of bad luck, or rather, 15 pieces of bad luck. On this occasion, he was struggling to save a boatload of his photographic equipment from the rocky rapids of the Truckee River, which runs across the northern California and Nevada border. His companions used his wallet containing $300 in $20-gold pieces as a weight for the rope they threw him. The boat stayed afloat. The wallet sank.

Carleton Watkins, the San Francisco photographer who made hundreds of pictures of a pristine Yosemite Valley, saw years of work go up in smoke when many of his negatives were destroyed in the 1906 earthquake and fire.

On the other hand, a photographer sometimes got lucky. Stanley J. Mor-row's cnemicals failed to arrive at Fort a major Indian war. He missed Custer's Abraham Lincoln in time to photograph Last Stand.

Kissinger's Travels Rile Reagan Aides

By HELEN THOMAS

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Henry Kissinger is acting like a secretary of state again, and the Reagan camp is not pleased.

Kissinger returned to his shuttle dis plomacy in the Middle East, even though he says his journey was a "private trip." He did little to disabuse Israeli and Arab leaders and reporters of the notion that his new diplomatic endeavor did not have a Reagan imprimatur,

He talked to Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, to Egypt's Anwar Sadat, to officials in Somali and Iran. He also made pronouncements on the need for a U.S. military force in the Middle East to offset Soviet influence.

Reagan's foreign policy adviser, Richard Allen, whose relations with Kissinger are not the best, minced no words. Kissinger, he said, "speaks for himself. He is on a private trip which had been long arranged.

Nevertheless, Kissinger's reentry into the foreign policy area caused chagrin among Reagan advisers and confusion among foreign leaders as to whether he was representing the president-elect.

It's no secret Kissinger longs to return to the stage where he was catapaulted into international fame. His new wealth, his lectures, his writings, none of these suffice his yearning to be in the thick of it again, playing for high stakes on the world chess board.

Secretary of state-designate Alexander Haig, a Kissinger protege from the Nixon era, was kinder than Allen, but clearly walking a tight rope when he told report-

"Dr. Kissinger is, of course, a very distinguished former secretary of state, as is Mr. Muskie, Mr. Vance and a number of others, and I am confident that we are not going to ignore their past experi-ence and skill and knowledge and we will, from time to time, tap them.

But when asked whether Kissinger would have a specific role in the Reagan administration, Haig said, "I don't forsee that at this time.

Kissinger has strong advocates and promoters in former Presidents Richard Nixon and Gerald Ford, for whom he served as secretary of state. He did serve on Reagan's foreign policy transition team, which Haig summarily dismissed following his appointment to the Cabi-

Carter's Final Budget Doomed

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter's farewell budget is written in sand, soon to be washed over by the incoming Republican tide.

It is subject to the will of a conservative Congress and of Ronald Reagan. They won't buy Carter's priorities, and the defeated president doesn't expect that they will. The voters decided that.

In part, the message Carter has sent to Congress continues the campaign he lost. It disputes Reagan policies on such issues as taxes, the roots of inflation and defense spending.

But it is no more than Carter's last word, for the debate is over, and the Reagan administration is at hand.

Carter's $39 billion budget is up $76.6 billion over the current year, and there are some targets for the kind of cuts Reagan and the Republicans in Congress have been promising. But the old administration also confronts the new with a warning, noting that more than $55 billion of the increase is due to the high cost of programs that continue automatically, many of them entitling people to payments from the government. One of these is Social Security, and Reagan has promised that there will be no erosion in those benefits. That subject is a tender one for Reagan, who spent part of his campaign time disputing Democratic as-sertions that he would undermine the program by making it voluntary. That is a notion the president-elect discarded

Carter came to office saying he would balance the federal budget by the end of his first term, which turned out to be his last - but found it impossible. Reagan has promised even more rapid strides to-ward a balaced budget, but he and his people already are hinting that it may take them a while.

The Carter budget projects a $27.5 bil-lion deficit. "While our budgetdeficits have been higher than I would have liked, their size has been determined for the most part by economic conditions," the president said.

That leads directly into one of his disputes with his successor. "High inflation cannot be attributed solely to governpaign. Reagan advocates a 10 percent across-the-board tax cut, as the first step in a three-year, 30-percent reduction. As a candidate, Carter called that the most inflationary proposal in history.

Reagan, of course, said otherwise, asking his audiences how the Democrats could claim it was inflationary to let the government spend people's money, instead of leaving it in the hands of the taxpayers to spend as they choose.

He'll have a chance to prove the theory now, if he can get his tax plan through a Congress in which Democrats still command the House

The Carter budget proposes a $23.3 billion increase in defense spending. There wil be advocates of higher defense levels, but after careful review I do not believe that higher spending would add significantly to our national security," Carter said.

One of those advocates is Ronald Reagan. Given his campaign promises on the subject, he almost has to find a way to invest more in defense than the president he is succeeding.

Actress Back At Work After Injury

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Wearing a flesh-colored cast to disguise a broken wrist and sporting a trouper's smile to mask the pain of bruised ribs, "Lou

Grant" star Linda Kelsey returned to work after an accident during filming on the CBS-TV series. "She worked the next day ... in quite a

The accident occurred Monday when a van backed into a barricade that had been placed next to the actress during filming of a riot scene

MISS KELSEY "The barricade hit her and knocked her about 10 feet into the air. Her wrist was broken in two MISS KELSEY places and she bruised some ribs," Miss Chandlee said

Miss Kelsey will have to wear the cast about five weeks, Miss Chandlee added.

The accident took place just after Miss Kelsey had been informed of her Golden Globe nomination as best supporting actress in a television series.

Lady Diana Visits Royal Family

LONDON (AP) - The mystery of just what is going on between Prince Charles and Lady Diana Spencer has deepened further with reports that she made a quick visit to the royal family at their 20,000-acre country estate.

Sources in Buckingham Palace confirmed that Lady Diana, 19, arrived Wednesday at the Norfolk county estate, 100 miles northeast of London, But on Thursday, Prince Charles told waiting news photographers that she had left.

"What on earth are you all doing here day after day?" the prince asked the photographers. "I promise you there is no one here, so do go away. The queen would be so glad if you called police. The second motorist, Gilman Richard, said he was on his way to

The prospect of a $69,630 Cabinet job may sound pretty good to the average American. But Cabinet posts do not go to average people and many top managers in private business command salaries well above that level.

Example: Donald T. Regan, the Wall Street executive nominated to be secretary of the treasury, was paid $502,960 in Example: The National Journal has estimated that Secretary of State nominee Alexander Haig earned more than $500,000 last year and that William French Smith, nominated to be attorney general, earned $300,000.

Example: Malcolm Baldrige, nominated for secretary of commerce, had income of $343,431 in 1979 as chairman of Scovill Inc., a Connecticut-based manufacturing company.

People at those salary levels obviously do not take government jobs for the money and they probably are well enough set to absorb the loss.

But what about a top-notch private executive in the $90,000 range who might not be able to take a cut without penalizing his family's lifestyle.

Transition officials were reluctant to talk about enticing high-paid executives with government salaries, but privately they admitted there have been a few

That is one reason President Carter's new budget proposal includes major pay raises for some 35,000 federal executives as well as cost-of-living increases for rank-and-file workers. Under his proposal Cabinet pay, for example, would rise to about $84,000.

Bullet-Proof Clothing Style For Inauguration

participants in next week's presidential inauguration festivities may be protected by clothes made of a special, bullet-proof fabric called Keylar.

Although only a little stiffer than ordinary cloth, garments made of Kevlar can stop a bullet from a .357-caliber Magnum. The fabric itself is manufactured by E.I. du Pont de Némours & Co.

The Secret Service refuses as a matter of policy to discuss inauguration security arrangements, and the makers of Kevlar clothing - Point Blank Armor Co. of Long Island and Protective Apparel Corp. of Englewood Cliffs, N.J. - decline to discuss their customers.

"It is not our policy to disclose who is wearing our vests, for their own protection," said Leonard Rosen of Protective

But published reports this week in New York and Washington indicate that several in the inaugural party may discreetly be wearing Kevlar, including several governors, some star entertainers and the presidential party itself.

Kevlar, was developed in the early 1970s by Du Pont and the Army's Natick Research and Development Laboratory in Massachusetts Barbara Wolf of Du Pont said that although Kevlar attracts attention because of its armor capability, its combination of strength and light weight also make it valuable in industrial applications, including boat hulls, aircraft and missiles and in tire and rubber products.

The Kevlar fibers, after being woven into cloth, are layered to create the bulletproof clothing.

Miss Wolf said the average Kevlar vest will have 16 layers of cloth and can stop a .357-caliber Magnum fired at close range. Depending on the "threat level" out in the South, the committee said, is likely the result of a long-term trend to greater two-party competition in the public may have considered the two major candidates undesirable alternatives in many areas, both Carter and Reagan seemed affirmative choices in the more conservative South

In addition, it noted that while the facing the customer, she said, the vests can be made with up to 35 layers to stop bullets of even higher velocity.

Since Kevlar is stiffer and rougher than ordinary cloth, she said, it usually is encased in ordinary fabric or used as a lining in outerwear

The Washington Post reported earlier this week that former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger started the Kevlar fash-ion during his trips to the Middle East during the Nixon administration. The Post said the Secret Service initially developed a Kevlar raincoat for Kissinger, and that he later acquired other

Panel Claims Policies Must Reflect Realities

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A cautious presidential commission, looking ahead to where the country is headed in the 1980s, said today the nation must realize it cannot achieve all of its goals simulta-

"We must face honestly the trade-offs that inevitably occur when limited resources confront unlimited claims," said the President's Commission for a National Agenda for the Eighties.

In its 214-page report, the commission said: "The task of the eighties is to adjust to this new reality and, where necessary, to alter our policies and adjust our institutions to it.'

To aid in that adjustment, the commission offered a range of recommendations in areas including the economy, energy, environment, civil rights, welfare, health care and government.

William McGill, president emeritus of Columbia University, headed the commission, which began its study 13 months

It said the nation's highest financial priority should be resumption of vigorous economic growth and a reduction of inflation to manageable levels.

"Only a sustained increase in real output will enable the United States to achieve a broad range of national and international goals - from a general rise in the standard of living to improved social benefis for the needy; from retraining and providing jobs for the unemployed to improving the nation's competitiveness in exports and enhancing its leadership in the world community," the commission said.

It said calls for "less government" will not solve the nation's economic problems - nor will short-term solu-

The commission recommended government give greater emphasis "to longterm policies to promote price stability, combined with adequate protection for those who would otherwise bear a disproportionate share of the costs of reduc-

To stimulate growth, it said, government policies must encourage savings and investment and provide tax incentives for research and development.

In energy, the commission said if present production trends continue, the nation's energy woes will worsen in the decade ahead.

It concludes conservation offers the best short-term benefits at the least environmental cost.

"The most scandalous revelation," Price said, referring to the coalition's monitoring project, "is the amount of violence on Saturday morning children's

tivity during the last Congress, but failed to change current laws and court decisions which support the constitutional re-quirement of church-state separation.

The prayer-in-school issue created quite a stir when the Helms amendment to S450 failed to die as quietly as expected in the House Judiciary Committee after Senate passage in April, 1979.

The amended bill, which would have denied federal courts jurisdiction in school prayer cases, died only after ef-forts by religious fundamentalists and political conservatives in the House produced more than 170 of the required 218 signatures on a discharge petition to bring the bill to the floor, and after a series of subcommittee hearings.

Proponents of school prayer have made no secret of their plans to push the issue in the 97th Congress.

The Senate soundly rejected an effort by tuition tax credit backers to extend basic educational opportunity grants to qualifying private elementary and secondary school students.

Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., led the challenge against the amendment to a bill extending the Higher Education Act of 1965, calling the rider "foot-in-thedoor" legislation which would establish a precedent for comprehensive federal assstance to private education. Like the prayer-in-school issue, chances for tuition tax credit legislation have been enhanced with the new Congress and administration.

Missionary Criticizes American Resentment Of Moslem World

By DAVID E. ANDERSON United Press International

American Christians, says Dr. Peter Gowing, "need to be warned against falling into the same trap with regard to Islam as we did with communism - assuming it is a monolithic power intent on our destruction.

Gowing, a United Church of Christ missionary, is director of the Dansalan Research Center in Mindanao, Philippines, and specializes in Filipino Moslems and their relationship with Christian Filipino majority. In addition, he works with both the World Council of Churches and the U.S. National Council of Churches on Christian-Islam issues. Currently on furlough in the United States, Gowing said in an interview that the Moslim world is in great flux.

There is a widespread renewal movement in Islam," he said, "that finds different expression in different places. It is not a monolithic power but is very diverse and there are wide variations in-

"We are continually judging Moslems by their worst examples," Gowing said, "and they return the compliment."

Gowing said that although he is finding a great deal of anger in the United States directed at the Moslem world because of the hostage crisis, OPEC and other actions given an Islamic religious coloration, it was also a time of great opportunity for education programs about "Americans are quite willing to admit 'I don't know," he said, "and quite willing to listen to another point of view."

He said that Christian-Islam dialogue was growing at all levels from the international to the local, but that Moslems are still suspicious of Christian motivations in seeking such dialogues.

There has been a much poisoned atmosphere since before the (Christian) crusades," he said. "After the crusades there was a geographical distance, a distance that was ended with Western colo-

"We have just come out of the colonial era," he said, "although some Moslems say we still haven't come out. But that whole crusade experience is still with us — the idea that Islam is of Satan and must be overcome by Christ.

Christian overtures for dialogue, he said, are being "cautiously received" by Moslems, "but not without some suspicion of 'what's your game," in part caused by some Christians who look on dialogue as a new opportunity for missionary proselytism.

U.S. Judge Rebuffs Mrs. O'Hair

WASHINGTON (Special) — Atheist leader Madalyn Murray O'Hair has failed in the first round of her legal challenge to gain the practice of maintaining chaplains in Congress.

In a Jan. 6 oral decision, Judge Louis

Mrs. O'Hair, head of the American Atheist Union, said she will appeal the decision which she termed "incredible.

Mrs. O'Hair sued the government last summer, claiming that employing and paying chaplains from the federal treasury violates the Constitution's ban on an establishment of religion. Both the Senate and the House of Representatives have had chaplains for more than 200

Later this month Mrs. O'Hair is to be in court on three separate cases. Next week she faces trial in an Austin court on criminal charges resulting from an incident three years ago in which she alleg-edly disrupted the City Council for opening its meetings with prayer.

Christians in China have submitted a petition to their government to change the constitution, which states that only atheism can be propagated, while citizens may or may not believe in religion.

DESIGNED FOR POWER

In the annals of sailing there have been few to surpass the clipper. She plied the seven seas and helped a new nation become a world power.

But what was their formula for success? God's power and man's design making fullest use of it. You don't have to count the sails or study the rigging to know that.

Is it any different when we employ steam, electricity or atomic power? These are sources of power God has provided. We design the craft and machinery to put them to use.

Try that formula for everyday living. The power comes from God, you put it to the best use. That's what religion is about!

They were wise and skilled Americans who designed the "clipper." They are wise and skilled, likewise, whose week begins with the worship of God, and whose days put his Power to Christian use.

Air Force Tests Laser-Beam Weapon On Plane

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — A laser-beam weapon that could transform warfare into something out of "Star Wars" has been tested aboard an airplane for the first time, the U.S. Air Force says.

"I'm satisfied that we have in fact passed a very significant milestone," Air Force Secretary Hans Mark said Thursday at Kirtland Air Force Base here. "We can now think about shooting down the other fellow's missiles without using nuclear warheads"

A Kirtland spokeswoman said researchers fired up the equipment aboard the aircraft, but "we didn't actually propagate a beam ... so in that sense-we didn't actually fire the laser (at a target).

The laser eventually may be mounted on a satellite that will be able to pick off enemy missiles from outer space, Mark said. And some time in the future, the laser technology may be incorporated into a small weapon for use by foot

The tests, conducted Wednesday and Thursday, give the United States a leg up on the Soviet Union, Mark said.

"We know the Russians are doing a lot of work on lasers," Mark said. But "as far as I know, they do not have a laser like this on an airplane.

"We're way ahead on this," he said.
The tests were conducted aboard a four-engine NKC-135 jet on the ground.
While the laser had been fired from the ground before, even shooting down target missiles, it had never before been used while mounted on an airplane, Mark

The next step, which could come within months, is to fire the laser from an airborne NKC-135, he said.

Mark declined to say what problems have cropped up during the tests, but said, "I don't see any technical problems that are in the way."

A laser is a narrow, intense beam of light produced when atoms are stimulated to high energy levels. The one tested this week "sounded like a jet engine Mark said.

The Kirtland Special Weapons Laboratory first used a high-intensity laser to shoot down a drone target in 1973. Since then, the Air Force has been working on the technology to place a laser aboard an NKC-135.

Mounted aboard an airplane, the continuous wave carbon dioxide laser holds several advantages over missiles and ground-stationed lasers, Mark said. Unlike a missile, the laser moves toward a target at the speed of light and eliminates the need to lead a target, like a football quarterback leads a receiver, Mark said. It is also better at coping with bad weather, such as rain or clouds, that would interfere with a beam shot from the ground, Mark said.

The carbon dioxide laser "really works well above 30,000 feet or so because almost all water vapor is gone," he said.

"In the longer term, I think we're going to put lasers in space and I think we're going to shoot down intercontinental ballistic missiles," Mark said.

"I believe lasers in airplanes and in space will, in the next decade or so, become an important part of this country's strategic arsenal," said Mark, who is leaving office with the change of administrations.

The subject of whether lasers can be refined into weapons for foot soldiers is "a subject of hot debate." Mark said.

Carter, as he signed the thick document, defended the budget as an example of restraint. The departing president predicted any changes made by his Republican successor or Congress will be 'relatively minor in nature because this is a sound proposal that will withstand the scrutiny of congressional delibera-

Reactions in Congress, predictably, were positive from Carter's fellow Demo ocrats and negative from the GOP.

Rep. James Jones, D-Okla., chairman of the House Budget Committee, called the budget "very honest" and "very, very tight as far as reducing spending.

Jones' Republican counterpart in the Senate, Peter V. Domenici of New Mexico, attacked the proposal as "an old, tired, timid budget."

Carter's budget calls for a $76.6 billion, or 12 percent, spending increase from 1981, mainly due to a hefty boost for the military and inflation-triggered jumps in other areas.

Defense spending would go up $23 billion to $184 billion.

When adjusted for inflation, the projected overall budget rise is 1 percent. The defense budget, which would get 25 cents out of every federal dollar, rises 4.4 percent while non-defense spending declines slightly after taking inflation into account. Carter also proposed modest personal tax credits to offset higher Social Security taxes. In addition, he revived his call for a 10-cent-a-gallon increase in gasoline taxes to conserve energy. The gasoline tax, which Congress rejected last year and is likely to do again, would cut the budget deficit $13 billion. In a revised estimate of the 1981 budget, which Carter had promised would be balanced, the president said the effects of high inflation and a recession in 1980 caused spending to balloon to $663 billion, creating a $55 billion deficit.

Reagan told reporters he intends to honor his campaign pledge to make deep cuts in the budgets he is inheriting from Carter.

Asked if he still expected to meet his goal of balancing the budget by 1983, he replied, "Well, I'll break an arm trying." "There's no question about the economy worsening," which is causing federal spending to grow, Reagan said. "But ovthing meaning to retreat. It just means that we've got a harder job and more to do.'

Edwin Meese III, who will be Reagan's chief counselor in the White House, said a complete package of spending cuts accompanied by significant tax cuts and regulatory changes will be sent to Congress within four weeks of Tuesday's inauguration.

Stockman said there is "no wavering" on Reagan's commitment to reduce personal tax rates by 30 percent over three

A travelers advisory also was posted for the northeastern corner of New Mexico for today and a winter storm watch for the Eastern Plains, Central Highlands and South Central mountains for tonight and Saturday.

Light snow was expected in northeastern New Mexico today, with accumulations of 1 to 2 inches. Areas of dense fog, making driving conditions hazardous, were reported this morning.

The extended West Texas outlook is for scattered light rain, possibly mixed with snow, in lower elevations of the region and light snow in higher areas Sunday. Daytime temperatures will be in the 40s Sunday and in the 50s again Monday and Tuesday

"Fair skies prevailed across most of Texas this morning except for clear skies in the northeast," a Lubbock weatherman said today.

"Most sections will have increasing cloudiness today. It will be much colder in the northeast, with a chance of snow and accumulations of 1 to 2 inches possible in the northern Panhandle.

"Afternoon highs will range from near 30 in the Panhandle to the upper 60s in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. Lubbock has measured only .03 of an inch of precipitation so far this year in a period which, historically, has been wide open to weather extremes. Average maximum and minimum temperatures for this time of the year are 57 and 25, the National Weather Service reported, but the record high and low readings range from a record high of 80 in 1974 to to a record low of 6 in 1930. A trace of precipitation had been recorded here at this point in 1980. Elsewhere in the nation, schools in Massachusetts were ordered closed today to help avert a critical shortage of natural day. In the South, Florida officials considered a shipping boycott of citrus devastated by the worst freeze in 20 years. Winter storms dumped up to a foot of snow in the Midwest and glazed roads with ice on the Middle Atlantic seaboard Thursday, resulting in two fatal traffic deaths in Maryland. The snow let up today, but the chill Arctic air remained. The Red Cross evacuated 22 people, including two children suffering from frostbite, from an unheated apartment building in Hartford, Conn.

In Louisiana Thursday, a small plane carrying three people crashed into Lake Pontchartrain about 100 feet short of the New Orleans airport runway in dense fog. Rescue crews searched for seven hours, but found no sign of survivors.

Fog also caused havoc in southwestern Oregon for the 21st day in a row. School was canceled in two districts where visibilities were 200 feet or less. Traffic in Medford, Ore., slowed to a crawl. One resident described the day "dark as night."

According to Conner, the success being enjoyed by the Lubbock branch office is due partly to its southwest location. Many of the customers attracted to Sentry live in the surrounding area and find the branch office more convenient than institutions located in the downtown area, he noted.

The booming business in NOW accounts reported by local S&Ls also may be due to the lower minimum deposits required by most of the thrift institutions. Most require minimum balances of around $500 to prevent service charges.

However, most banks are requiring minimum balances of about $1,500 to avoid the charges. And some banks tack on an additional charge per check handled when a customer's balance falls below the minimum amount. One way that some S&Ls have been able to offer the lower minimum balances is to "safe-keep" checks. Under this system, a customer does not receive his checks back with his monthly state-

Institutions using the safe-keep sys-tem provide checkbooks that enable the customer to make carbon copies of all checks written. The carbons are used for permanent records.

Bob Suter, vice president at American accounts probably will cause the S&Ls to require higher minimum balances. Despite the successes with NOW accounts reported by S&Ls, bankers interviewed said they have not noticed any significant loss of customers. "I don't believe we've lost any accounts that we know of to savings and loans or other banks," said Lubbock National Bank assistant vice president Tim

egislature Goes After Criminals

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas' top lawman and Gov. Bill Clements have put the word out that they are going after the kingpins of crime during the 1981 legisla-

Bills filed before the session indicate legislators also want criminals to keep their hands off youngsters and old folks.

The desire of Clements and Col. Jim Adams, director of the Department of Public Safety, to get a wiretap bill approved has focused most attention on that proposal, but it appears doomed.

Clements claims polls show Texans support tapping telephone lines if that is what it takes to shut down major drug traffickers, who have generated a $3 billion a year business in the state.

A wiretap bill passed the Senate in 1979, but never got a committee hearing in the House.

"We must enact a state wiretapping statute if we are to ever reach the upper echelon of the drug traffic in Texas there are no two ways about it," says

His proposal would be limited to felony narcotics cases and, in response to wiretap critics, Clements maintains the bill would have enough safeguards to protect the privacy of law-abiding Tex-

"The people of Texas ought to fear the source of this request," says Execu-tive Director John Duncan of the Texas Civil Liberties Union. "Bill Clements came out of the Department of Defense under the Nixon administration - a department that routinely violated the constitutional rights of Americans by spying

Although a Clements aide says Speaker Bill Clayton has assured the governor he will remain "neutral" on wiretap, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby opposes the proposal and predicts it again will not clear the Senate. To stack the odds in his favor, Hobby is expected to appoint Sen. Oscar Mauzy, D-Dallas, another opponent of wiretap, as chairman of the committee that will consider the bill. Adams said a proposal from the "War on Drugs" campaign by Dallas million-aire H. Ross Perot to seize illicit funds that have been invested in legal businesses is directed at crime bosses.

"We haven't seen the existence in Texas of an organized crime family," says Adams, a former FBI boss. "There are 26 such families, all headquartered in other states, but we are seeing their money coming into Texas motels and banks."

The Perot group proposes stiffer pen-alties, with no parole, for major drug dealers and sellers of drug paraphernalia.

Clements and Adams support a pro-posal to allow a defendant's voluntary oral confession to be used as trial evidence. Texas is the only state that does not allow such confessions to be introduced into evidence.

They also want the legislature to make it clear that money seized in a drug search can be used by the agency respon-sible for the search in other drug-related law enforcement activities.

Clements' "stand tough" anti-crime package includes other proposals that

- Close loopholes in a law that allows judges to grant probation after a person has been "shocked" with brief time in Raise court fees to fund an $18 million grant program for law enforcement.

— Increase the maximum penalty for rape or sexual abuse of a child from 20 years in prison to life. The maxium pen-alty for indency with a child would increase from 10 years to 20 years.

Rep. Gene Green, D-Houston, has filed a bill to make those pay extra who commit crimes against the handicapped or persons 65 or older.

German Student Wanting To Learn American Way

By the time he arrived at his destination, the skyscrapers had vanished from the scenery but his enthusiasm had not.

Thanks to a program called Host Family, Fischer will have some Ameri-can friends to help him adjust to life in a different country

When he registered this week at Tech's International Programs Office, director Jackie Behrens directed him to Ann Fisher, who is often one of the first Americans foreign students meet when they arrive at Texas Tech.

Mrs. Fisher is a matchmaker of sorts. Although Fischer has jokingly speculated that perhaps he will be paired with an attractive American girl as his dormitory roommate, Mrs. Fisher laughs off that possibility - Tech doesn't have coed

Instead, she will try to find a local family that wants to include Fischer in its weekend activities. Foreign students do not live with their host families, but they do visit. And that home away from home can be crucial to foreign students on weekends when American classmates vacate the dorms, officials say. Also, without a host family, foreign students have no place to go on holidays when school is closed.

There are about 30 new students in need of host families. They come from such various backgrounds as Mexico, Republic of China, India, Canada, Panama, Africa and Russia.

"It's a wonderful opportunity for someone in Lubbock who has no family to have an instant family," says Barbara Walker, who serves on the Council for International Programs. She pointed out that a number of single persons have hosted foreign students.

Mrs. Behrens, who directs Tech's international office, notes that some stu-dents must leave behind husband or wife in the home country.

Those are the ones more likely to sign up for a host family," she said, adding that students who are parents may particularly be interested in meeting an American family with children.

All kinds of individuals and families can become hosts, Mrs. Walker said, explaining that all it really requires is "concern for people from other cultures and a willingness to accept other cultures."

Mrs. Fisher says she tries to pair students and families with similar interests if possible. She stressed that host families have no financial obligations and are free to break the relationship if it is not acceptable. However, families are encouraged to stay in contact with the stu-dents throughout their stay in Lubbock, not just for a semester.

That system has worked well for Virginia Dozier, who has hosted several students during her five years in the program. More than two years ago she met Ashok Iyer of India, who is working on his Ph.D. in electrical engineering at Collective bargaining "has really been an explosive issue," said Sue Duncan, a Lubbock teacher who was on the TSTA state executive committee. "You mention it and you might as well say any dirty word you can think of."

She also admitted that the prospects for the bill are bleak, with a chance that it may not even get out of committee. She explained that under the TSTA proposals, the decision for collective bargaining must come from each local district. She stressed the local option situation, saving that there must be a simple majority mandate in a district before collective bargaining can take place.

Mrs. Duncan added that a school board also can elect to call for collective bargaining.

Thursday night's discussion also turned to strikes, with the TSTA officials assuring the educators that neither TSTA nor the National Educators Association (NEA) can order local affiliates to strike

They also reported that few NEA affiliates ever actually strike.

One teacher, however, suggested that the group not try to push collective bargaining "down the throats" of legislators if that move will threaten the passage of salary hikes and group health insurance.

Melinda Steele, president of the Brownfield Educators Association, explained that TSTA is requesting a 33 per-cent salary hike over the next biennium, not just for one year.

She added that the raise would be in the form of 10 percent for 1981-82, followed by the same 10 percent plus 10 percent more the following year. Added to those amounts would be three percent in experience increments.

The TSTA officials advised the teach ers to assume public relations respon ities to explain the salary proposals to the public and other educators and agreed that the TSTA staff also should try provide a better interpretation for the

Mrs. Steele told the group that Gov.

The Host Family Program at Texas Tech University is seeking families who wish to sponsor a foreign student living

About 80 new international students are now arriving in Lubbock for the least 50 of them will want to be "adopted" by a Lubbock area Host Fam-

This "adoption" involves no financial obligation nor does the student live with his Host Family. Rather the family provides support, friendship, companionship and a helping hand to the student in the small matters of adjustment to a new country and new citiy.

Host Families - one does not have to be married or have children to serve as host to one of these students - generally keep in touch with their student, invite him or her occasionally to dinner or to share a family outing, and generally give him a pleasant introduction to the people and culture of our part of the country The exchange is, as most Host Families will testify, of as much benefit to the hosts as to their guests. Through sharing their home with a foreign student, the host family gains insight into the culture and life of another land, the opportunity to share, and frequently life-long friendships are formed.

South's hand was not quite strong enough for an opening bid of one no trump. Even though the five-card suit and two tens make the hand worth more than its 15 points in face cards, the weak spade doubleton is a serious flaw. However, once North could make an invitational raise after first responding in South's weak suit, South was delighted to contract for West led his fourth-best heart, and dummy had hardly hit the table before South called for the ten of hearts from the board and played low from his hand. A diacellent shift to a spade. Declarer won in dummy and a diamond to the king forced the ace. West persevered with spades and declarer suddenly realized that he was in dummy for the last time. He cashed the remaining spade honor but that left him with only eight tricks and no way to develop a ninth. The high diamond withered in dummy.

Had South bothered to count his tricks before playing to the first trick, he might have realized that he could lose two tricks in diamonds and still come to nine if he did not mess up his entries. The diamond finesse was unnecessary; what was important were entries to the table.

Therefore, declarer should win the first trick in his hand and lead the king of diamonds. West can take the ace and attack dummy's entries by leading a spade but that will now prove futile. Declarer wins in dummy and knocks out the remaining diamond stopper. West con-tinues with a spade and dummy wins once more.

Now, a diamond to the ten frees the nine of diamonds for the game-going trick. The queen of hearts, carefully preserved as an entry from rus want to tell you about the stock market's future, but a big problem from your point of view is that they see hundreds of different futures.

Market Forecasters' Techniques Found Wanting

That is the main problem, and a big one it is, but it isn't the only one. Gurus also change their minds. They do not give money-back guarantees. They do not ac-cept responsibility for their visions. They often decline to buy the stocks they rec-ommend. Why take the risk?

Ultimately, these seers speak their truest words when confronted with their often poor record: "After all," they are inclined to say, "Nobody's perfect. I'm only human."

recording to Mark Tavel, director of research at Value Line: "If someone knew what the market was going to do he wouldn't be in the advisory business. In-stead, he'd get a loan and invest and soon be very rich.

Joseph Granville is rich, but he hasn't always been right, Still, he is considered something of a savant by at least 3,000 subscribers after correctly calling a sharp reversal in the Dow Jones average last

Others say Granville was lucky, or at best so influential his forecast had selffulfilling elements. Tavel claims it just isn't possible to consistently call turns in the market or predict future stock prices

The belief has not prevented Value Line from becoming the biggest of all advisory services, even while limiting itself to researching the future possibilities for the market and specific stocks.

Having investigated most of the tec-hiques advertised by the gurus, Tavel has found them wanting in one or another re-

It described how Martin Zweig had metamorphosed from bear to bull to "lueZweig extolled the virtues of a flexible view of the future. "I might even switch my longer-run outlook to bearish again,' he wrote. "... who knows what I'll think a few weeks or months from now?"

He scoffs at attributing to Granville last week's decline that took $40 billion from New York Stock Exchange stocks in one day. The market was ready to fall, he says. Buy when the Dow his 900, he advises.

Elliot Janeway believes politics leads economics and Washington leads the stock market. "Elliot Janeway makes sense with savvy," he proclaimed in a recent ad. "Be a gains go-getter," he said without explaining clearly what he meant. More provocative if not clearer was his question: "What good are stock tips without thinking?"

That isn't the only thing inexplicable about the gurus. Why, their critics ask, are subscribers - even at fees of more than $100 a year - so willing to forgive the misses and praise the hits?

It's a great business, human nature and the future being what they are.

Only a few know it as the birthplace of the original Caesar Salad, one of the

According to published accounts, Caesar had concocted a salad dressing that became a favorite of his customers. As business boomed, he was joined by his brother Alex, a World War I ace pilot in the Italian air force.

In a tribute to the pilots at a nearby San Diego air base, Alex took hisbrother's salad dressing, modified it with other ingredients and called it "Aviator's

Soviet Math Program Criticized

MOSCOW (AP) - The Soviet Education Ministry has promised to improve the teaching of high school mathematics following a barrage of criticism by mathematicians, teachers and pupils.

The criticism is similar to that often aimed at Western mathematics programs: Too much abstract theorizing, and not enough emphasis on basic arithmetic and algebra.

The critics here claim the Soviet math curriculum is getting so complicated that even well-educated parents are having trouble understanding their children's school work.

The Soviet Union is one of the world's leaders in sophisticated mathematics, with research institutes, specialists and schools for especially talented children rivaling the best in Western countries.

After the 1957 Soviet launching of 'sputnik" - the world's first artificial earth satellite - mathematics training in Soviet schools was singled out as a model

In recent years, however, mathematics teaching in ordinary schools has come in for increasing criticism in the Soviet Union itself. Ironically, experts place part of the blame for this on the import of Western teaching methods, some of which were developed in an effort to help close an alleged "math gap" with the Soviet Union.

Soviet official concern reached a peak last September — and has snowballed since then — with the publication of a lengthy article on the subject in Kommunist, the Soviet Communist Party's

In the article, Lev Pontryagin, a respected mathematician, said a math-teaching reform 10 years ago had led to a strange situation" in Soviet schools. Pontryagin acknowledged that the modern world calls for more advanced math teaching, but said some of the latest Soviet textbooks have "a high level of abstraction and call for a certain level of math sophistication that a school pupil does not and cannot have."

He charged that "on one hand, pupils are overwhelmed with formalistic, hardto-understand material - most of it unnecessary - while at the same time they do not receive necessary training in elementary arithmetic operations and algebraic transformations, and in solving

Kommunist added in a footnote that admission tests to higher-education institutions show that "in recent years, the level of mathematical preparation in high schools has fallen sharply" with "serious gaps" in pupils' knowledge that rarely occurred before.

"It is essential to work out a concrete plan to substantially improve the situa-tion in the shortest possible time," Kommunist said.

The September article and Kommur ist's own commentary set off a blizzard of new criticism of mathematics teaching that even reached the October session of Parliament, the Supreme Soviet.

Anatoly Logunov, rector of Moscow State University, accused the Soviet Education Ministry at the Parliament session of making a "sharp turn in the teaching of mathematics several years ago without a sufficiently deep and wide-ranging study of the crux of the matter."

In the original article, Kommunist also attacked the "uncritical import of foreign accomplishments" in mathematics teaching. Pontryagin said Education Ministry officials had sought to justify borrowing West European methods by claiming a need to keep up with "the latest developments."

But even foreign specialists, he added, are now expressing disappointment with ultra-modern ways of teaching

In a more recent issue of Kommunist the Education Ministry promised "a number of additional measures" to improve mathematics teaching, including corrections of present textbooks and more research on new ones. It also said a new geometry book has just been pre-pared that will soon be tested.

Kommunist's assessment of math instruction in Soviet high schools contrasts with a U.S. government report, issued in October, that said the Soviet math and science programs in elementary and high schools "surpass that of any other coun-

"They do have a great appeal for hunters because they don't hole up like a rabbit, who will jump into a stone fence. These hares will run the dogs crazy for two, three hours," state Fish and Wildlife Director John M. Cronan said this

The fleet-footed forest dwellers are such popular sport, in fact, that the state is buying 100 of them from New Brunswick, Canada, for hunters to chase.

But some animal lovers are hopping mad over the plan.

Italians Arrest Kidnapping Suspect

ROME (AP) — Kidnapped Judge Giovanni d'Urso was bombarded with questions and recorded music for most of his waking hours during the 34 days the Red Brigades kept him prisoner, the Justice Ministry official told police.

D'Urso, who was left bound and intown Rome early Thursday, said he did not know what sort of building he was kept in, but his prison could have been a shop, a garage or an apartment. He said when his blindfold was removed after his abduction on Dec. 12, he was sitting, tied to a steel-frame bed, inside a tent big enough for him to stand in. He said he remained there until his

Air Force Lists Dead Crewmen

D'Urso, 49, said at least two men grabbed him outside his Rome apartment house, and he saw only two men, both of whom were always hooded, during his entire captivity, the Ansa news agency reported.

When he was not sleeping or being interrogated, recorded music blared at him from at least two loudspeakers outside the tent. But he said he was not treated badly, was never threatened with death and was not put on trial despite a communique from his captors saying he had been tried and sentenced to death.

Another communique from the Red Brigades said d'Urso, an official in the Justice Ministry's prison administration system, "cooperated" and provided them with lists of government officials and their jobs.

Judge Sends Lubbock Teen-Ager To Brownwood Juvenile Center

Avalanche-Journal Staff A 14-year-old Lubbock youth was or-

One of the other boys pushed him, the defendant said, and Walker grabbed him by the shirt, saying, "You ain't bad." The defendant told the court that he responded, "I'm not trying to be bad." He said he "hit" Walker with his knife because the situation scared him and because he didn't know if Walker was going to hurt him. The defendant's lawyer, Bonner Smith, argued that it was dark outside and his client was scared: that he had not tried to kill Walker when he plunged the knife only one-half inch into Walker's

His client went back into the club after the incident, Smith argued, because he honestly didn't think he had hurt Walker

After finding the youth guilty of the stabbing, McFall ordered a hearing for the modification of the youth's probation. Juvenile Probation Officer Joe Trevino testified that the youth is on probation for theft, but also has been named as a suspect in another theft case, a burglary, a burglary of a building and disrupting a public meeting.

Trevino recommended that the youngster be sent to the Texas Youth Council facility rather than the Lutbock County Youth Center because of the seriousness of the crime.

Under Texas law, a youth ordered to the Texas Youth Council facility may be incarcerated there until his 18th birthday. Most voungsters, however, are detained only for about six months while violent offenders, such as those involved in homicides, usually are detained for about a year, court officials said.

A suspect is automatically tried as an adult if he is 17 or older and authorities may chose to have the child certified as an adult if he is at least 15. But the child may only be handled as a juvenile if he is determined to be 14 or younger.

Tech Requests Approval For Engineering Facility

Avalanche-Journal Staff

A Texas Tech spokesman says he is "cautiously optimistic" that Thursday's visit to the campus by state education officials will help Tech win approval later this month to construct a $4 million petroleum engineering building to replace the existing 31-year-old facility.

President Lauro Cavazos will ask the Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System, to approve the project at the group's Jan. 29-30 meeting in Austin. The state higher education regulatory board has the authority to approve or deny construction at all state colleges and universities.

R.F. Juedeman of Odessa, chairman of the Coordinating Board's campus planning committee, board member Marshall Formby of Plainview and Coordinating Board staff member Gordon Flack toured the Lubbock campus Thursday along with Tech regents Joe Pevehouse, Lee Stafford and Dr. Nathan Gal-

Pevehouse, a Midland oilman, has long been a vocal advocate of a new petroleum engineering facility.

"After our presentation and lunch, we gave them a tour of the present building to give them an idea of how pitiful the facilities are," Dr. John Bradford, dean of the College of Engineering, said.

Although Tech has approximately 450 students majoring in petroleum engineering, the building has only one classroom and three labs.

"That means we teach classes all over campus," said James T. Smith, chairman of the petroleum engineering depart-"We are not teaching labs we should be teaching because of lack of space. And we're not able to include exeriments and work in those labs we have because of inadequate space."

He estimated that enrollment in the department had increased by 500 percent in the past decade

Bradford said more restrictive entrance requirements were begun four years ago to slow the growing enrollment in the understaffed department. We told the Coordinating Board we have 450 majors right now and if we had not implemented the restrictive admission, we estimate we would have had 700 to 800 majors," he said. The dean said there are four full-time and one part-time faculty in the department, but with a new building and higher enrollment he would need 10 faculty

He noted that recruiting faculty members has been a problem. Often, engineers can earn more money in private in-dustry, he said, adding, "With our present facility we cannot attract outstanding faculty. 'One reason is we have no space for them. The second reason is the space we have is so pathetic no one wants to come

The proposed $4 million two-story building would provide about seven times more space than the existing building, which was constructed in 1949 at a cost of $50,000.

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Sheriff's officers hope hunger will drive a man out of the brushy area where he has holed up for two weeks, avoiding detection by authorities who want to question him about a stabbing death.

I've tried to tell her that she would be better off if she would get up and move around and be a little more active. She says she doesn't feel like it. Can you comment on this for her.

DEAR READER - Bed rest is one of the most abused forms of treatment. It is of little value except for people who have shock or inability to stabilize their circulation in the upright position. The trend to the extremely avant garde holistic dentistry has caused an associate professor of dentistry to raise danger signals to the dental profession in a report in January's "Journal of the American Dental Association.

"Where does the holistic end and the quackery begin?" Dr. Charles S. Greene, of the University of Illinois Medical Cen-

'Nearly all the articles I have read and the lecturers whom I have heard on the topic of holistic dentistry have exhorted dental practitioners to familiarize themselves with these avant garde treatment approaches, and to use them in their offices - but for what purpose?

"It is obvious that most of these treatments do not have even remote dental applications, and therefore they must be construed as the practice of an unorthodox type of medical care."

He said it comes "dangerously close to the illegal practice of medicine" by dentists and a part of the problem is a lack of regulation or standards of patient care in the dental profession.

Visitors filed through the Student Gallery at MSU's Kresge Art Center this week to view a nameless environmental art piece, consisting of old papers, coupons, cereal boxes and other debris of modern life. As they watched, Dave Mikolas, a 19-year-old astrophysics student, pounded out Christmas carols and old standards on an electric piano - stark naked. Mikolas said the artists involved in the project asked him to make the buff piano appearance, but insisted there was nothing shocking about it.

The event "got all blown out of proportion," he said.

"There wasn't any particular set of clothing that would have added to the effect so it really wasn't necessary to have clothing," said Mikolas. Besides, he added, "it was warm enough so that I didn't need them.

arts and the written word of literature probably are too complex to be easily analyzed.

The nuances of body language, facial expressions, vocal emphasis, timing and delivery of a comedian executing a punch line are all lost on a page of cold black and white print.

Bob Hope, for example, has people holding their sides during his monologues. His books inspire no such thing.

The spoken word loses something in the transition to print, although the wellspring of most great comedy is indeed the written word.

Writer-comedian Bill Dana and his partner, Stanley J. Corwin, have gone into the publishing business with an eye to bringing comedy to books with a blizzard of funny paperbacks.

Dana, a writer, producer, stand-up comic and the father of Jose Jiminez, has devoted his professional life to garnering laughs. Corwin is a former president and publisher of Pinnacle Books.

"I'll tell you why so few books on comedy succeed," Dana said. "You can't perform on a page. But that doesn't mean you can't be funny with the written word. Otherwise all the comedy writers in TV and movies would be in trouble.

"You lose the vocal and visual refinements in print. But you gain the collaboration of the reader who is able bring his own visual and audio imagination into

Mandel's Wife Seeks Probe

ANNAPOLIS (AP)- The wife of former Gov. Marvin Mandel says she wants a grand jury to look into charges leveled against her husband by Alford R. "Skip" Carey, one-time head of the state school construction program.

Jeanne Mandel planned to take her request to State's Attorney Warren B.

Carey testified that Mandel was present when he was offered $20,000 by one of the governor's friends, who was trying to persuade him to continue giving state work to a North Carolina firm that Carey was about to disqualiy.

Carey's lawyer also said at a sentence reduction hearing Monday that Carey's credit cards were used to pay for a trip to Aruba for Mandel and to "buy a fur coat for his (Mandel's) girlfriend."

Mrs. Mandel, in an interview with the Annapolis Evening Capital Wednesday, denied all of Carey's allegations.

"Marvin Mandel never used anyone's else's credit card to pay for anything," she told the Evening Capital. "And, fur-thermore, neither Marvin, nor myself, have ever been to Aruba."

Mrs. Mandel also denied that the former governor had ever bought her a fur

Carey was convicted on charges of bribery and extortion and was sen to three years in prison. After the hear-ing Monday, Childs reduced Carey's sentence to a period of probation and or-dered him to spend 2,000 hours in community service.

nd master of ceremonies for his Bob Hope Desert Classic golf tournament and two as the prime time star of his 30th TV anniversary show.

Nobody, but nobody, has starred in network television on a regular basis longer than the man whose symbols are a golf club and a ski jump proboscis.

Bob sat in a sunny nook of his Hollywood home looking fit and impish as he sorted through his memories of some 250 television shows, remembering the laughs and the poignancies.

For a man who can recall several thousand jokes from memory, it was no chore to dredge up some of the high points of his TV career.

"I remember my first TV show very well," he said. "It was April 19, 1950. Dinah Shore, Bea Lillie and Douglas Fair-banks Jr. were my guests. After all my experience in radio and movies, I was still nervous about the new medium.

We have a kinescope of that show and will open Sunday night's two-hour special with a couple of clips from it." Bob remembers his second show just as clearly, thanks to a New York cab driver who inadvertently contributed to the laughs.

"I took a cab from my hotel to the old Amsterdam Theater," Bob recalled.

"After I settled back in the seat the driver turns around and says, 'Bob Hope, huh? You gonna do another TV show?' "I told him I was. Then he said, 'That first one wasn't too good, you know?'

"That broke me up. I almost slid from the street to the floor. The show had gotten terrific reviews. So I said to the driver, 'Who asked you?' And he came right back with, 'I'm da public.'"

Hope thought the cabbie was so funny he hired an actor to play the part and included their exchange at the opening of his second chory. his second show.

In the 30 years since, Hope has be-come a television tradition. His pals Bing Crosby and Lucille Ball appeared many times on his TV shows.

Clips from these visits and virtually scores of others will be seen on the anniversary show along with 40 minutes of fresh entertainment with live appearances by Fairbanks and Miss Lillie.

Other guests providing music and starring in sketches will be Miss Ball, Milton Berle, George Burns, Rosemary Clooney, Sammy Davis Jr., Tanya Tucker, Glen Campbell and Brooke Shields.

Segments of the show will be devoted separately to male and female vocalists, dancers and comedians who have been Hope's guests over the years. Clips include appearances by Jimmy Cagney, Betty Hutton, Jack Benny, Hedy Lamarr, Burt Reynolds, Jack Paar, Lana Turner, Red Skelton and Barbra Streisand.

"You know," Hope said, "I might not have appeared on television until a lot later than 1950 if Paramount Studios had been willing to pay me more money.

"I was the first major movie star to go to TV. I got hate mail from theater owners who could see the threat that TV would some day be to pictures.

"Barney Balaban, then president of Paramount, called to talk me out of sign-ing with NBC. I told him I'd be glad to if the studio was willing to pay me the kind of money the network offered. I never heard back from him.

"I probably hold some kind of record with NBC. Including my 12 years on ra-dio, I've been under contract to the same network for 43 years. So far as I'm con-cerned, NBC stands for Nothing But "One of my first radio shows came from the old NBC Hollywood studios back in 1937. It was just a spot, but I panicked when I discovered there wasn't an audience in the studio. I told them I couldn't go on without an audience.

"At that time Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy were the hottest thing in radio. So they roped off the exit to his studio and led the crowd into my studio after the Bergen show.

"Nobody in that audience had ever heard of Bob Hope. I don't know what they thought about being herded into an-other studio like that. But they laughed."

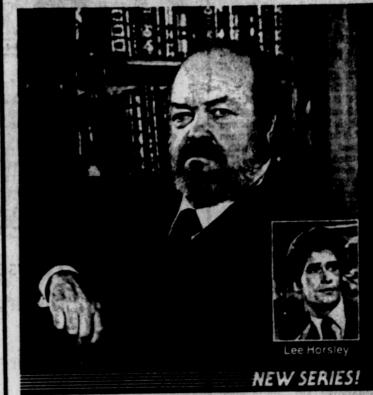

And audiences have been laughing ev-

Over the years Hope has set standards in ratings that probably will never be matched by another comedian over a span of three decades.

Since 1950 he has averaged a 44 percent share of the viewing audience, according to the Nielsen ratings. Moreover, he tipped the ratings wih a 72 percent share for his 1970 Christmas show which remains in the top 10.

Good ratings are harder to get these days than they were when I first started out," Hope said.

efense Spending Poses Problems For Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The dying Carter administration is recommending the highest-ever spending next year on defense, complicating a problem for the incoming Reagan administraton.

That problem: Trying to carry out Republican campaign pledges to boost de-fense spending above Carter administration levels while meeting other Republican commitments to balance the overall federal budget and cut taxes. Five days before leaving office, President Carter on Thursday sent Congress his farewell budget, proposing $180 bilion in spending by the Pentagon in fiscal 1982, which begins Oct. 1.

At the same time, he requested an additional $6.3 billion for the current fiscal year to cover pay increases, rising fuel costs and the expenses of keeping a fleet cruising in the Indian Ocean.

Counting this supplemental request for 1981, Carter's 1982 defense proposal represents a $22.4 billion increase over Defense Secretary Harold Brown calculated this amounts to a 4.4 percent 'real growth" in defense spending after absorbing inflation.

The main thrust of the final Carter defense budget is to upgrade the readiness of conventional ground, sea and air forces and their current weapons and equipment. The outgoing administration also recommended pushing ahead with a program stated last year to enable U.S. forces to move rapidly to the Persian Gulf and other crisis areas.

"The fiscal 1982 program will enhance our ability to move forces more rapidly to crisis areas such as Southwest Asia, reduce maintenance backlogs and improve training to ensure that the per-

Big Budget Boost Set For Energy

WASHINGTON (AP) - In an effort to guard against a cutoff of foreign oil, President Carter has awarded the Department of Energy one of the new substantial boosts in his budget for fiscal

In the spending plan submitted to Congress on Thursday, Carter proposed $12 billion for energy programs, a 37 percent increase over the amount budgeted for the current fiscal year which ends Sept. 30 Fully two-thirds of the increase, however, would go to a single program, the Strategic Petroleum Reserve, which is intended to supply the nation's oil needs temporarily should volatile international developments cut off the flow of petroleum from abroad. At the same time, the amount Carter requested for natural resource and environmental programs in the Interior Department and the Environmental Protection Agency is actually one-half percent less than the current year. Although such a cut seems miniscule when measured against the $14 billion sought for such programs, it grows in scope when viewed in the light of the 12 percent inflation rate of the past year. Moreover, these requests could be cut any of Carter's other proposals - when Ronald Reagan becomes president just four days from now.

Reagan plans to submit amendments to the Carter budget early in February, and the president-elect's ideas are markedly different from the incumbent's, not the least in the area of energy and the en-

Reagan vowed during the election campaign to dismantle the Energy Department, but indications now are that he wants only to streamline the Cabinet agency, whose creation Carter considers one of the major accomplishments of his presidency.

However, that should not affect Carter's plans to boost outlays for the Strategic Petroleum Reserve and give the nation the equivalent of a 42-day supply of foreign oil by September 1983.

As a candidate, Reagan citicized the president for failing to fill the strategic reserve - it now would last only 18 days in the event of a cutoff of foreign oil and Energy Secretary-designate James Edwards has called filling it a first priori-

Another program Carter considers a major accomplishment, the Synthetic Fuels Corp., is budgeted for a hefty $6 billion, and this amount could come up against Reagan's budgetary ax.

Others of Cater's favorite programs such as fuel conservation and solar energv - also could face trimming by Reagan. But the outgoing president, possibly in anticipation of this, requested only modest increases for them. That tactic may also have guided Carter in the area of the environment and natural resources.

Most categories in that area received only small increases in his budget proposal and some - icluding the National Park Service, the Bureau of Mines, and the Historic Preservation Fund - were actually cut.

The biggest environmental beneficiary is the so-called Superfund intended to finance a clean-up of hazardous waste dumps. The fund, created by Congress last month, would receive $163 million under the president's budget.

Without that amount, a nearly 400 percent jump from the $33 million budgeted this year during the planning stages, Carter's budget for the environment and natural resources would have dropped more than 11/2 percent, instead of onehalf percent er," Brown said in a statement elaborating on Carter's budget message.

Another top-priority item in Carter's spending plan is the expansion of research and development of new weaponry and equipment.

"Preserving and enhancing our technological superiority in key areas contin-ues to be important as we face the numerical advantages of our potential adversaries," Brown said.

Carter's message to Congress spoke of continued purchases of new warplanes, thips, tanks and other materiel.

But a comparison of his detailed procurement recommendations this year cal 1982 showed a pattern of cutting back and stretching out that will affect the combat power of conventional forces

For example, the final Carter budget calls for building 14 new warships in 1982, a drop of five from the plan he sent to Congress last January. Navy officials contend 14 new ships a year are too few to maintain even the present 456-ship regular Navy, let alone increase the size of the fleet to the 600-ship level that De-fense Secretary-designate Caspar Wenberger has indicated he favors.

The budget proposal also contem-plates cutting back, stretching out or ple, it calls for buying 569 new XM-1 tanks, compared with the 720 projected a year ago.

These cutbacks confront the Reagan administration with some possibly painful decisions, running into billions of dollars, on restoring these procurement slashes and possibly buying even more new equipment than the Carter administration originally planned for 1982.

Reagan has promised to send his own budget proposals to Congress in his first few weeks in office.

The Navy contends it is stretched thin because it has been required to station two aircraft carrier battle groups in the

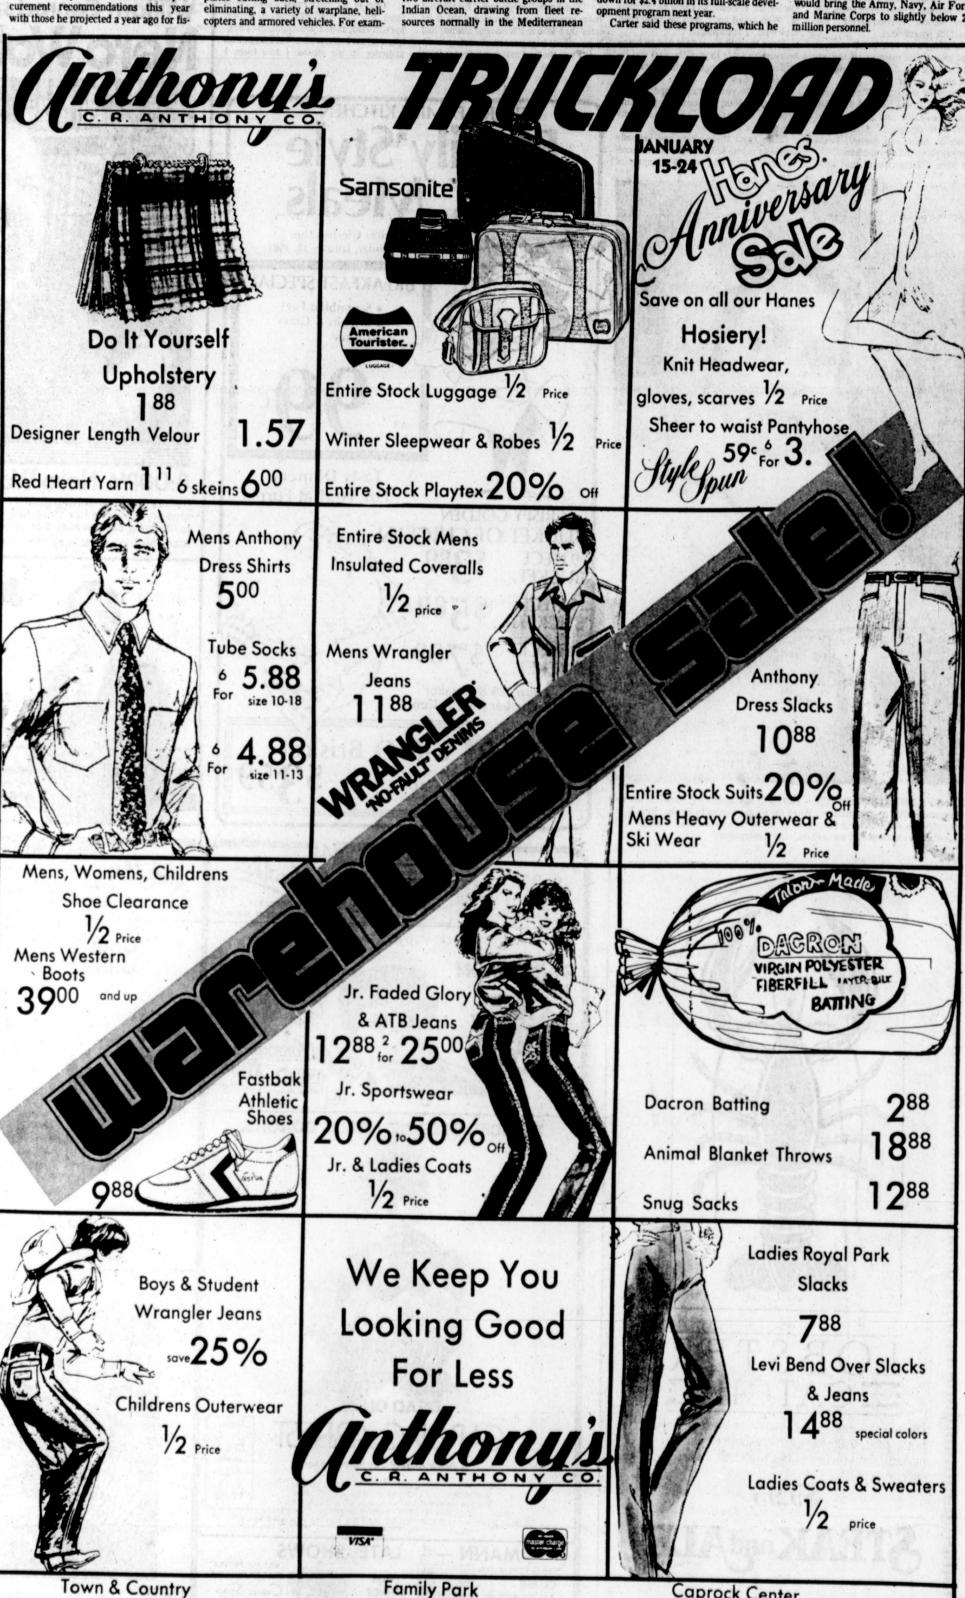

Apparently to help ease this problem somewhat, Carter disclosed that the aircraft carrier Coral Sea which was due to be retired, will remain in service for several more years and that the total of U.S. aircraft carriers will increase from 12 to 13 with the delivery of the nuclear-powered carrier Carl Vinson next year.

The outgoing administration's propos-als for strategic nuclear weapons contained no new initiatives but called for moving ahead with the air-launched cruise missile and the mobile MX intercontinental ballistic missile, which is down for $2.4 bllion in its full-scale develfeatured in past budgets, will "upgrade our strategic forces so that intiation of nuclear war continues to be clearly disadvantageous for the Soviet Union.

Under the heading of greater readiness of present forces, Carter recommended additional spending for training Army recruits, more Navy ship steaming days and Air Force pilot flying hours, spare parts and reducing backlogs of maintenance of ships, planes and other equipment.

The budget would make liltle change of uniformed men in the total number of uniformed men and women, increasing it by 28,000. That would bring the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps to slightly below 2.1

Extra Income Boosts Taxes

Money - there never seems to be enough to go around. Whether it's to make ends meet or just to live a little better, a lot of folks have found a lot of honest ways to come by extra cash.

As with all good things, extra money has its price. The price is extra income tax; the trick to paying extra taxes is to stay a jump ahead of them. If you don't, you may find that April holds a very unpleasant surprise for you-an overwhelming income tax bill. How do you stay ahead of those taxes from extra income?

This and other questions concerning your 1980 tax return will be answered at the "Taxes and You" program. This public service course is sponsored by the Lubbock Chapter of the Texas Society of Certified Public Accountants in cooperation with the Internal Revenue Service. The informal two-night course will be offered on Feb. 3 and 5 from 7-10 p.m.

More than 40 CPAs will volunteer their time to provide taxpayers with instructions and question-andanswer sessions. The program is open to the public at a charge of $1 per person to cover administrative

Wage earners who take a second job for regular wages usually can count on the tax withholding system to cover most of the additional income tax they'll owe. Some people, however, may find them-selves in a higher tax bracket. They might want to increase their tax withholdings by giving either or both of their employers a revised form W-4, "Employee's Withholding Allowance Certificate."

Millions of people, however, earn extra cash that is not subject to the "pay-as-you-go" tax withholding system. Americans from all walks of life earn extra cash by selling plasticware, cosmetics, encyclopedias or household products. Off-duty firemen often "moonlight" by doing handywork. Teachers might paint houses during the summer. Journalists freelance. This list is endless. The extra income is fully taxable but not subject to withholding.

Extra-income earners who have gross income of more than $500 from which no tax is withheld are often unaware of their obligations to pay taxes. The same is true of self-employed individuals. One way to help avoid surprises at tax time in such cases is to estimate taxes.

What are estimated taxes and who pays them? Estimated taxes, just as the name implies, are taxes based on what you expect your tax liability to be by the end of the year. You might think of them as a sort of self-imposed withholding system. You calculate the amount yourself and pay in quarterly installments. The installment payments are necessary because the law requires that all income tax payments be made on a pay-as-you-go basis rather than in an annual lump

Moonlighters and self-employed individuals aren't the only ones who need to know about estimated tax-Many retirees receive taxable pensions from which no tax is withheld. You may own stock which pays regular dividends.

Each year hundreds of people hit that once-in-a-lifetime state lottery or magazine sweepstakes prize. Thousands are clever enough to walk away from TV quiz shows with cash and merchandise. Many vacaners beat the odds at gambling resorts.

No matter where the money comes from, if it isn't taxed at the source before you get it you may be obliged to make estimated tax payments. It's not a choice; it's the law.

The average employee who has tax withheld each pay period and a few additional dollars in income from a savings account - maybe even a $50 prize won in a lottery or at a bingo game - will not have to worry about estimated taxes. But those taxpayers who receive substantial need to be concerned. Here is a rule of thumb: Don't end up owing more than $100 at tax time or you could be penalized. Although there are exceptions, failure to make sufficient estimated tax payments may result in a penalty that cannot be waived for any reason. The penalty on

amounts of income from which no tax is withheld do percent a year. The form for filing estimated taxes is Form 1040-ES, "Declaration of Estimated Tax for Individuals. A worksheet for calculating your estimate is included. IRS Pub. 505, "Tax Withholding and Estimated Tax," gives detailed information about extimated taxes. Pub. 17, "Your Federal Income Tax," also contains a section on estimated taxes.

Free tax publications and tax forms may be ordered by mail, using the order form that comes with your tax package each December. You can also order

tion number listed in the telephone directory.

These examples of taxpayers who must pay estimated taxes are not all-inclusive. If you have extra money coming in, whether from a regular source or through a one-time stroke of luck, check with the IRS or with your tax advisor about your possible obligation to estimate taxes.

That may take a little of the fun out of the extra money when you get it, but it will help you avoid what could be an unhappy surprise at tax time. To register for the "Taxes and You" program, simply fill out the registration form below. Course fee and registration form must be mailed by Jan. 31, 1981.

Classes will be held at the following locations: (Lubbock) Lubbock High School; Atkins Junior High; Evans Junior High; Smiley Wilson Junior High; O.L. Union Not Angry With Small Farmers

PHARR (UPI) - Texas Farm Workers Union organizers, who are threatening to strike Rio Grande Valley citrus producers who stand to reap higher prices because of citrus losses in other states, say they have no quarrel with smaller growers.

"We have nothing against the small farmer," said Alfredo DeAvila, a union official in Pharr. "They are not getting anything for their citrus. Contracts have already been worked out (between farmers and shippers) and they (small farmers) are getting $40 at ton."

DeAvila's statement came after farm workers union official Antonio Orendain of San Juan announced Wednesday in Austin that fruit pickers might strike within two weeks to call attention to their fight for collective bargaining.

"It is going to put the growers into an interesting position," DeAvila said. "They may be forced to pay us what our work is worth."

Orendain, in Austin to persuade legislators the union needs collective bargain-

Oilmen Fined For Selling Old Crude

HOUSTON (UPI) - A government lawyer says a federal judge's order that two oilmen pay a total of $100,000 for violating Energy Department pricing pol-icies establishes that company owners are responsible for their companies, even if they are not "criminally culpable."

U.S. District Judge Norman Black Thursday ordered Denver oilman Marvin Davis to pay $20,000 and B.A. Williams II to pay $80,000 for selling "old oil" under "new oil" price guidelines in 1975.

In Washington, Justice Department Attorney Richard Sauber said the case 'establishes the principle that the ownership of these companies, or the chairman of the board, Marvin Davis in this case, accepts some responsibility for what happens at their companies although they may not be criminally culpable."

Black also ordered Davis' company Summit Transportation Co. - of which Williams was president - to pay $20 million in refunds and penalties.

The $20,000 million represents the total divestiture of Summit's profits during the period of the investigation, from January 1973 through May 1978, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Jim Ezer. Summit, formerly known as Summit Gas Co., is also required to pay $20,000 in criminal penal-

Sauber said, "This is the first time the government has been able to recover all the profits of one of these crude oil resellers, plus interest, plus penalties."

During the hearing in U.S. District court, the company, was ordered to make refunds of $17 million plus interest and pay a civil penalty of $3 million. Davis, former chairman of the board of Summit Transportation Co., who did not appear in court, entered into a consent agreement to pay the civil penalty. Summit Transportation Co. is registered in Texas but maintains head offices in Denver. Williams pleaded guilty to two counts charging him with falsely certifying old oil as new oil in 1975, a violation of the Energy Petroleum Allocation Act.

The regulations were set up after the Arab oil embargo in 1973 and required oil produced from wells drilled before 1973 - old oil - to be sold for about $5 a barrel. New oil is crude produced from wells drilled after May 15, 1973. During the time of the investigation, new oil was selling for about $13 per barrel.

COUNTERFEITERS In an average year, counterfeiters gyp Americans out of $3 million.

Responding to Orendain's charges of low pay for fruit pickers, Bill Weeks, executive vice president of the Texas Citrus and Vegetable Growers and Shippers Association in Harlingen, said Thursday: 'It is naive to assume citrus workers are paid less than the federal minimum wage of $3.35 an hour."

Citrus workers are paid on a piecework basis, Weeks explained, the more fruit they pick, the more they are paid. But, he added, "Under federal law, the workers' pay must average at least the minimum wage, and if they work harder, they can make more than that," he said. We conducted an intensive study two years ago that showed some workers are making $6 to $7 an hour. "If federal investigators ever found out that we were paying less than the federal minimum wage, the consequences could be very severe," Weeks added. "It would be foolish to pay less." DeAvila denied that pickers earn $7 an hour, pointing out that the piece-work scale is 22 cents a sack and a sack holds approximately 50 pounds. He said pickage crew works from 4 to 5 hours per

He said many of the workers are undocumented people from Mexico, the elderly and children.

"There is no continuity to the work, he said. "It's the last job people will go for. Only when they are so desperate and the lights (in their homes) are about to be cut off. Weeks said Thursday he had noticed no farm workers union activities in the citrus groves or packing sheds. "It's going to be very difficult for farm workers pickets to be effective in the citrus groves," he said.

"The situation is entirely different from onion harvesting in the High Plains, where we last had trouble with the farm

The onion fields were wide open and 200 to 300 workers were in each field. They were highly vulnerable to farm workers union tactics, like the use of bull harrassment.

"Crews in the citrus groves average only 10 to 20 workers, and when you are harvesting citrus, a worker can get two rows back in a grove, and you can't even

Foreign Investors Boost Land Prices

WESLACO (UPI) - Steve Wilson is a young man with a clearly defined dream: He wants to own and operate a farm in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. But with each new purchase of prime farm land by foreign investors around his hometown of Weslaco, that dream becomes more distant. Foreign investors have displayed a willingness to pay large sums of money for agricultural land in Hidalgo and Cameron counties. As much as $4,000 an acre isn't unsual and $5,000 an acre isn't unheard of. That is two or three times what most American farmers, particularly the young ones, can afford to pay. Landowners willing to sell usually are faced with two buyers: A foreigner with lots of cash up front or a young farmer who can pay only a fraction of what the foreigner is offering and then must arrange a timepayment plan.

They just drove the price up so high it just kind of knocks some out of the market," said the 26-year-old Wilson.

"I've been trying to find land around this area for about 10 years now and between the foreign investors and the commercial property, it drove the prices just plumb out of sight." The effects of foreign investment on the American family farm has drawn attention from Washington, which is funding a study to find out just what foreign investment is doing to agriculture in the United States.

"We are very interested in that," said Peter DeBraal, a researcher with the U.S. Department of Agriculture, "since the amount of foreign investment is small on the national level, we don't see any great impact on the national level."

The threat some people see being caused by the advent of the large foreign investors has drawn the attention of State Rep. L.P. "Pete" Patterson.

Patterson, a farmer who is on the House agriculture committee, will sponsor a bill in the 67th Texas Legis designed to bar future purchases of agricultural land by foreigners.

"Foreign investment," the Democrat from Brookston said, "is inflating the price of land to point that our own citizens can't afford it. I'm a red-blooded American and I believe in our free enterprise system. But I believe it is up to us to at least give our own citizens the chance to own property."

NICE DAY FOR REAGAN

WASHINGTON (AP) - It's a bit early to tell, but President-elect Ronald Reagan may enjoy good weather as he takes office. "We're just getting a handle on it, but it looks like it will probably be a pretty nice day," said forecaster Jim Travers of the National Weather Service.

Recovery NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market eked out a small gain to-day, continuing its gradual recovery of the past few sessions. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up 4.87 in the last two days, rose another .34 to 970.31 by noontime today.

Advances outnumbered declines by a 5-4 margin in the midday tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said the market seemed to be recuperating from the jolt it took last week, when a "sell everything" recommendation by Joseph Granville, an invest-ment adviser, helped drive the Dow Jones industrial average down almost 39 points in two days.

The rebound has come in spite of considerable uncertainties about the outlook for economic activity and interest rates.

There was concern, for exam-ple, that the Federal Reserve's weekly report late today on the weekly report late today on the money supply would show a sharp rise, reducing the odds that the Fed might loosen up on credit in the immediate future.

Oil stocks, which led Thursday's advance, continued to dominate the active list. Mobil was up % at 82%; Standard Oil of Indiana gained % to 78% and Gulf Oil rose. gained 3/4 to 781/4, and Gulf Oil rose 1/8 to 42%. But Texaco was un-changed at 46%, and Phillips Petroleum lost ¼ to 58%.

The NYSE's composite index added .12 to 77.11. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 2.47 at 346.76. Volume on the Big Board totaled 19.60 million shares at noon-time, against 17.37 million at the same point Thursday.

Agreement Reached In Antitrust Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge said today the Justice Department and the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. have reached an "essentially complete" settlement of the government's six-year-old antitrust case aimed at breaking up the communications giant.

The surprise announcement came by District Judge Harold H. Greene came just a day after the trial opened. Greene granted a request by both sides to delay further proceedings until Feb. 2, apparently in hopes a settlement could be cleared with the incoming Reagan administration by then.

The judge also issued a written order disclosing that he met with the two sides in chambers on Wednesday and learned only then that negotiations "may now more accurately be characterized as essentially complete."

"The court has concluded that it is fair in this instance to provide the parties with an opportunity to prove, prior to the taking of testimony, what they claim to be able to do — to secure the approval of the incoming Justice Department policymakers within the next two weeks and to file a final, fully completed consent decree within a short specified time thereafter," the judge wrote.

The co-defendant, Stanley Weisz, a Smithtown, N.Y., accountant, told the jury he regarded the payment as an incredible windfall.

"I was dumbfounded. This whole thing to me was still a fantasy."

He said he thought the payment was "sheer nonsense. It's a fantasy to get $50,000 for introducing two people." But Weisz said he was innocent of any corrupt intent and had no reservations about the legality of accepting the money.

"I would do that every day in the week," he said. Weisz said his major concern in taking the money was a fear he might be robbed of such a huge amount of cash.

New USDA To Be Producer-Oriented

Consumerism will take the back seat at the U.S. Department of Agriculture when the Reagan administration is sworn into office next week, according to transition team member Dr. Ronald Knutson, a Texas Agricultural Extension Service policy and marketing economist, told about 120 producers and agribusinessmen at the West Texas Outlook Conference here this week that the US-DA will be more producer and market oriented under the new administration.

"Commodity prices will be affected by supply and demand during the next

than by the farmer-held but governmentcontrolled grain reserve that affected prices under the Carter administration.'

But while the USDA will lean toward farmers, Knutson said he had "no feeling" about how farm policy would be considered as it moved through Congress and the White House.

During the transition period, Knutson said, the major issues facing agriculture were identified as the embargo, rising food prices, cost of agriculture programs and the 1981 farm bill.

He predicted a gradual rather than immediate lifting of the grain embargo over the next 12 months, due to the potential invasion of Poland by Russian troops. That issue, he explained, is intensifying the embargo and creating the need for specific foreign policy formula-tion for dealing with the Soviet Union.

The "highly sensitive" issue of food stamps, which seizes 60 percent of the USDA budget annually, may be cut by as much as 20 percent from waste and the 'fringes of questionable recipients,"

An Office of Inspector General report calling the Farmers Home Administration the "poorest managed program" of the USDA will be considered, Knutson said, but will probably result in more protection to needy farmers and less to businesses from that agency.

The Texas Legislature, which convened this week, will meet the issue through two proposed bills: one to toughen registration of foreign investors and the other to ban foreign investments in farm land.

REPUBLICAN MEMBERS OF THE SENATE Agriculture committee have received tentative assignments of subcommittee chairmanships, sources report-

Plans call for the splitting of the Conservation, Soil and Environment subpanel into two subcommittees, Washington sources said. The final number of subcommittees has not been set, they said, because it has not been decided whether the Rural Development and Agricultural Credit subcommittees should be combined. The new Republican senators, Mark Andrews of North Dakota and Paula Hawkins of Florida, have not been assigned to head subcommittees. Andrews was slated to be chairman of the Rural Development Subcommittee but it was unclear who would head the panel if it is combined with the subcommittee on farm credit.

SEN. THAD COCHRAN OF MISSISSIPPI, as head of the Production, Marketing and Price Stabilization Subcommittee, will have jurisdiction over the 1981 farm bill and commodity programs.

A staff member said Cochran will work closely with the full committee and chairman Jesse Helms of North Carolina in develoPing the legislation. He also heads the Appropriations Subcommittee on Agriculture.

Sen. Rudy Boschwitz of Minnesota will head the Foreign Agriculture Policy Subcommittee, an aide said. Boschwitz intends to seek a moratorium on bilateral agricultural trade agreements, the aide said, because such pacts "carve up Bilateral agreements place the United States in the position of having to fill these commitments first and could force this country to neglect its regular customers in times of short supply, he said.

However, the aide said Boschwitz recognizes the need for an agreement with the U.S.S.R. and will support renegotiation of the five-year pact. Before the grain embargo is lifted, he said, the U.S.S.R. must agree to permit U. S. teams to inspect Soviet crops, as was called for in the agreement which expires

A REVOLVING AGRICULTURAL EXPORT credit fund, based on an initial federal funding of $2 billion, also is favored by Boschwitz. He also intends to examine Public Law 480 programs.

Sen. Richard Lugar of Indiana, as chairman of the Agricultural Research and General Legislation Subcommittee, will seek to prevent further cuts in federal spending for agricultural research when Congress considers areas where budget cuts may be made, a staff member said.

The Nutrition Subcommittee will be headed by Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, who also is chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. He expects discussion of ways to cut federal entitlement funds such as the domestic feeding programs. He will focus on controlling the growth of the programs rather than calling for outright cuts, an aide said.

Sen. Roger Jepsen of Iowa will be chairman of the Soil and Water Conservation Subcommittee. He intends to study ways federal conservation funds could be targeted to aid critical areas.

As head of the Forestry, Water Resources and Environment Subcommittee, Sen. S. I. Hayakawa of California will have jurisdiction over the U. S. Department of Agriculture's forestry programs. He will examine federal land use, among other things.

Lagging world demand, especially for U.S. soybeans, dampens that upside potential. However, the drawdown in 1960 world oilseed stocks and the possibility of scarce moisture levels in parts of U.S. growing regions are the two factors most likely to set the stage in 1961 for another explosive soybean market. Undecided Brazilian export policy decisions and the uncertain nature of the southern hemisphere growing season add to the difficulty in forecasting prices.

The historic 1960 bull move in the soybean market occurred despite the fact the year started with what were generally considered "burdensome" world oilseed supplies. The price quickly changed as the grains embargo and one of the most severe droughts on record for the United States dismantled early 1960 price projections, most of which had emphasized the bearish fundamental outlook. The drawdown in world supplies makes the margin for error in the new crop much less tolerable than in previous years. Consequently, people will overreact to the first sign of any significant problems during new-crop development. Currently, weather remains at the helm of price direction, with near-perfect conditions in major growing regions of the southern hemisphere. Fairly wide-spread concern, however, exists that the drop in the Mississippi River water level exemplifies the lack of a good moisture base in the mid-south and southern midwest.

WEIGHTS OF LIVE STEERS AND HEIFERS continue heavy — averaging close to 1,200 pounds in the midwest, about 25 pounds heavier than a year earlier. While temperatures have been low in recent weeks, feedlots are very dry because of limited precipitation, enabling cattle to gain well.

Poultry supplies probably will not be as burdensome as they were during the holidays. Pork supplies have been ample even since Jan. 1 as hog producers apparently held hogs into December in hopes of higher prices which didn't develop. It now appears that hog producers are selling the hogs but it may be February before hog supplies decline ruary before hog supplies decline

The Index then moved steadily higher and peaked at an all-time high of 337.6 (1967 equals 100) on Nov. 20. In December, triggered by a rise to a new high in the prime rate, the Index registered the sharpest loss of any four-day period in its 25-year history. However, it ended the year at 308.5 percent of its

The commodity futures price level was influenced considerably by factors other than those directly concerned with the supply of, and demand for, individual commodities. These factors included the ebb and flow of inflationary expectations as influenced by U.S. monetary policies (which affected interest rates, cost of carrying inventories, and the course of general business activity); additional OPEC oil price hikes; and heightened international tension, high-

Major factors influencing supply-demand relationships and prices for many important U.S. field krops and livestock in 1980 included: prolonged heat and drought in large areas of the United States, which adversely affected crops and livestock and poultry; Soviet crop problems and the after-effects of the U.S. partial embargo against grain shipments to the U.S.S.R.; huge pruchases of U.S. commodoties by Mexico and China; USDA projections of a significant drawdown in world grain stocks at the end of the 1980-81 season to levels comperable with those of the early to mid-1970s; and the signing of a four-year grain agreement with China calling for the annual purchase of 6-8 million tons of U.S. wheat and corn by that country.

MANY SOYBEAN ANALYSTS STILL BELIEVE there is greater upside potential than downside in the 1981 soybean price outlook but both political and fundamental unknowns make a definite price forecast precarious, according to

Producer selling patterns always play a major role in the market, and will continue to do so, especially in the near term. Several analysts project much of the crop that producers held from the market during the bull move and during the December price drop will be marketed between now and April to help meet new-crop production costs. The recent lack luster trading, especially compared with the sharp moves of 1980, has drawn somewhat of a consensus from ana-with the sharp moves of 1980, has drawn somewhat of a consensus from analysts, who say the soybean futures market has returned to more of an equilibrium following the sharp 1980 fluctuations.

Trader confidence lost some ground last week and now it appears it might be even more difficult to restore it. Adding to that difficulty is the new fact that U.S.R. finally is taking soybean meal from Brazil. Traders are disappointed that the U.S. embargo keeps it from being U.S. origin. Of course there is a constructive side to this development and that is that any meal taken from Brazil reduces competition for sales to other destinations. Also, it is solid evidence that Russia is firmly dedicated to expanded use of soybean meal, since the Soviets have had to overcome-resistence to use of Brazilian origin.

Delegates renewed policy positions advocating family farmers and urging laws to prohibit invasion of prime farm lands by alien and corporate investors of huge capital. They called for, at the minimum a tightening of language defining mum, a tightening of language defining beneficiaries of property tax valuations based upon the agricultural productivity of land, a new law the TFU said was

The 67th Texas Legislature also was urged by the farm group to find alternate revenue sources such as a severance tax on oil and gas. A panel of state lawmakers confirmed to the group that many Texans are now funding Montana and Wyoming schools because of those states' tax on coal. But adoption of such a tax on Texas' mostly exported natural resources is unlikely in the upcoming session because it would be a tax on the oil and gas industry, it was said.

Addressing national farm programs, the Texas Farmers Union renewed its stand favoring a farmer-held reserve program to both isolate price-suppressing surpluses when necessary as well as provide security in the event of food however, denounced the reserve pro-gram administered by President Carter because price levels that released reserves to flow back into markets were set low to intentionally cap prices rather than protect them."

An economist and President-elect Ronald Reagan's agricultural transition team member Dr. Ron Knutson of Texas A&M, had earlier told the farmers that neither Carter's low trigger levels nor their desired income protection levels would be a consideration of the new administration because the reserve on grain would be eliminated. Knutson agreed that such policies will mean that "farm prices will fluctuate more and risk will income."

Routson said that although the Reagan administration would depart from farm program structures, incoming Secretary of Agriculture John Block of Illinois would be "producer-oriented." Visiting Illinois Farmers Union President Harold Dodd said he agreed that Block would likely be a friend to farmers.

Members of the organization wit-nessed a significant turnover in their own adminstration as their president for the past 19 years, Jay Naman of Waco, chose not to seek a new term. Mike Moeller from rural Travis County captured the top spot in a heated but friendly race with Wayne Richardson from Wolfforth.

Joe Rankin, a cotton farmer from Ralls, was re-elected as vice president.

Moeller said his top priority was "to continue the esential goals held by Jay Naman to focus resources on mem ship growth, increase farmer involve-ment through education to critical issues. and to remain outspoken in defense of the family farm."

New Assistant Agent Announced

TULIA (Special) - A new extension assistant county agent for agriculture has been named for Swisher County. He is Paul Lockett, a native of Killeen and a December graduate of Tarleton State University

Lockett's appointment was announced by County Judge Leroy Saul and Dr. Catherine Crawford, district director for the Texas Agricultural Extension

Lockett will assist county extension agents Mike Heimer, Kay Wells and Mrs. Paula Pitt in conducting educational programs for adults and in conducting 4-H youth activities.

He attended Texarkana schools through his junior year in high school and was graduated from high school in Terre Haute, Ind., in 1975. In high school he was a member of the National Honor Society and active in church youth groups.

He received a bachelor of science degree in agricultural education at Tarle-ton. While there, he was on the dean's honor list and was a member of collegiate Future Farmers of America, Block and Bridle and Alpha Zeta agriculture honor fraternity.

Lockett has shown dairy cattle extensively. He showed the grand champion bull in the dairy show of the Ft. Worth livestock show last year and the champion three-year-old at the state Black-and-White Show. He has assisted youth in preparing pigs for showing.

Taxpayers Facing Bigger Bite Albertsons

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter's final budget proposal calls for spending $739 billion dollars, but if you have trouble dealing with figures longer than your ZIP code try this nickel-anddime approach:

- Traveling this year? If you drive, the Carter proposal envisions having you pay a dime more for every gallon of gaso-line. But if you want to spend your vacation on the Riviera, the Carter budget would have you shell out an additional $16 for a passport

- Sick and tired of taxes? Carter wants to cut your federal income taxes with a new tax credit. But your Social Security tax (you kow, that F.I.C.A. space of your paycheck?) would go up.

- If you're on the receiving end of Social Security or if you get veterans' benefits or federal pensions, the Carter budget plans to continue increases designed to keep pace with inflation. But the proposal would require the increases to be smaller than in the past and they'll The fiscal 1982 budget offered by Carter on Thursday is, like all presidential budgets, just a proposal. Congress can and will change it. In addition, the de-tails of this budget may have less impact than others, since Carter leaves office next week and Ronald Reagan takes over, already promising to make big changes in the government's taxing and spending habits. That means Carter's proposal to increase the federal gasoline tax from 4 cents to 14 cents per gallon may never make it to the pump. And his proposal to raise the charge for a new passport from $14 to $30 and the fee for a visa from $25 to $100 also could vanish.

As in all recent presidential budgets, Carter's final spending plan foresees con-tining inflation, unemployment and high interest rates. That means he's predicting the purchasing power of your income will be eroded by the continuing rise in prices and, if you're employed, pay raises caused by inflation will push you into

Despite some noises from Congress about raising Social Security taxes, Carter's budget proposal takes into account the increases in those taxes approved in 1977. Under these changes, the Social Se-curity tax rate — that is, the amount of money you pay as "F.I.C.A." — will go from 6.65 percent of your wages to 6.9 percent. If your annual salary is $20,000, you'd pay an additional $10 a year.

And the maximum salary on which Social Security taxes will be levied will rise from $29,700 to $32,100 on Jan. 1, 1982. That means that in 1982 if you make $32,100, the government stops taking Socal Security taxes out of your paycheck. If you don't make that much, you pay the tax the whole year. Coupled with the rate increase, that would mean an increase from $1,975.05 to $2,150.70 in the maximum tax you could pay.

But what the government taketh away on one column of your paycheck, it sometimes returneth in another column.

Carter's budget calls for a tax change that would return 8 cents of every dollar in Social Security taxes you pay by giving it back to you as a tax credit when you pay your income tax. It is designed to hion the effect of the increased Social Security taxes in 1981 and 1982. It goes like this:

If you're a $20,000-a-year wage-earner, you paid $1,226 in Social Security tax in 1980, but will pay $1,330 in 1981 and $1,340 in 1982. The 8 percent credit would allow you to pay $107.20 less in income taxes for 1982.

If you earn $29,700 or more in 1981. you'll pay $1,975 in Social Security tax, or $387 more than last year. Next year, the maximum tax will go up another $175.65 if you make $32,100 or more. But the tax credit would allow you to reduce your federal income tax by $172.06, meaning you end up with a net tax increase of

If you're already receiving Social Se-curity or similar federally subsidized payments, the proposed budget calls for increasing most such payments only once a year to compensate for inflation, rather than twice a year as is now the case. And Carter proposes to base the increases on a different Consumer Price Index than the one normally used to determine the rate of inflation. The index Carter would like to use gives less weight to soaring housing prices and more to rental costs.

While the payments still would in-crease, these two proposals would mean the increases would be smaller. Thus, there would be billions of dollars less in the checks going to Social Security recipients, retired federal employees, military pensioners and others, although the exact amount would depend on the infla-

Food, Agriculture Programs May Get Increase In Funding

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter is asking Congress to raise spending a hefty 34 percent for food and nutrition programs, loans to farmers, agricultural research and rural development in

In the budget he proposed Thursday, Carter asked Congress to approve $28 billion in total outlays for the Agriculture Department in the next fiscal year, which starts Oct. 1.

With the 1981 budget estimated at $20.9 billion, the new spending plan would represent one of the sharpest increases in many years. President-elect Ronald Reagan will have an opportunity to review the budget proposal and recommend changes before Congress acts on it.

Money for most of the department's functions would go up under the Carter

So-called "farmer programs" would run at $5.8 billion, up from $3.7 billion estimated this year.

- Food and nutrition programs would get $17.2 billion - 61. percent of the total outlays for next year. The same programs were projected to cost $156 billion this year - 4.6 percent of the total

Payments to farmers to help offset natural disasters would drop to $500 million from $900 million this year. Last summer's severe drought was responsible for the "abnormally high" cost this year, the department said.

- Regular farm ownership and operating loans would rise to $3 billion from $1.8 billion this year. About 40 percent of those would be loans to "limited resource" farmers to help them expand or acquire holdings.

 Commodity price support loans would climb to $4.6 billion from $3.6 billion this year, reflecting "higher loan rates and increased loan volume for all major commdities except tobacco," department budget specialists said.

Commodity loans involve annual bookkeeping adjustments because farmers generally repay price support loans when market prices are above the loan levels. Thus, according to the department's figures, the net outlay for those would be about $571 million.

Stephen B. Dewhurst, the Agriculture Department's budget director, said that in the case of many of the commodity programs and payments, the final costs would depend greatly on the weather.

We're talking about crops that haven' been planted and which will be affeted by weather which we cannot predict," he said.

Bookkeeping adjustments - as farmer repay loans or as securities are sold and bought to finance certain projects also are made in other programs so that, department officials say, budget outlays are not good indications of all operations or services provided by the department.

Those transactons help balloon the progam level - the value of goods and services actually delivered - of some functions, such as guaranteed loans to help finance rural projects ranging from electric power to housing.

The total estimated program level would be $52.5 billion under the new budget, slightly less than the $52.6 billion estimated for this year.

National Debt Mounting To Astronomical Levels

By The Associated Press

Your share of the federal debt amounts to $4,690.76 in President Carter's final federal budget proposal.

And your interest charges for fiscal 1982 work out to a tidy $470.20. But don't worry: your bill is not due and payable. These figures represent the per-capita share for every American man, woman and child of the public debt and the interest on that debt projected by Carter's fiscal 1982 budget. Public debt is estimated to soar over $1 trillion for the first time - to $1,007.7 billion - by the end of fiscal year in September 1982.

And with soaring interest rates - just like the prime rate and the interest on home mortgages - the interest bill will jump over $100 billion for the first time, reaching $106.5 billion before adjust-

Your portion of these huge amounts is figured by allotting equal shares to each of the 226.5 million Americans found in the Census Bureau's canvas of the nation

The national debt is not just like a house mortgage or credit card bill. You're not billed for it.

Part of the debt is a bookkeeping device for settling accounts among various federal agencies and trust funds. And most of the rest of the billions are held by banks, life insurance companies and individual Americans who have Treasury bills, notes, bonds and Savings Bonds.

But $126 billion of the debt was held by foreigners, principally foreigngovern-ments, at the end of 1980. This was about the same amount as was foreign-owned

Of course, the interest on the debt is paid out of taxes and other government

Beware: Coronado Girls Meet Plainview

By RUSS PARSONS

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff Talk about stepping straight into deep water — the Coronado High School girls' basketball team opens its district season by traveling to Plainview tonight.

Coronado, 10-9, has enjoyed some peaks and some ebbs so far this season, but lately things have mostly been low. Since losing to district and city rival Monterey 85-45 in the finals of the Abilene Tournament back on Dec. 13, the Ponies have lost five of their last seven games with victories over only lowly Pampa (2-15) and Caprock (5-13).

In Plainview they face a team that has compiled a winning (17-6) mark against as tough a schedule as anybody has played on the South Plains. The Bulldogs' six losses have all been to quality teams, and none of them were by more than seven points.

Abernathy, 19-2 on the year, beat Plainview twice, by scores of 55-50 and 52-48, and lost to the 'Dogs once, by a 69-65 count. Of the four other losses, two were to defending state champions Naza-reth (56-52 in double overtime) and South Oak Cliff (56-49). Finally, Plainview dropped a two-pointer to Amarillo High and a 51-50 decision to Austin Lanier in the finals of the Waco Invitational.

The main reason for their success? Ask anybody concerned with girls' basketball around here and the answer is quick and to the point: Gay Hemphill.

The 6-1 Miss Hemphill has been one of the outstanding players in West Texas since her sophomore year. At this point in her senior season, she is leading the area in scoring with 24.8 points and is second in rebounding with an average of

And CHS boss Miles Johnson can't say enough good things about her. 'How do you beat Plainview? That's kind of tough. The first thing is you've got to be able to stop Hemphill," he said.

'She's going to get her points, but you can't let her score 30 or 35 on you. "You've got to keep her from getting the ball as much as you can. You've got to deny her the ball because if she gets it,

"She's really quick and really aggressive, she's like a 6-0 or 6-1 guard. I really think she and the Ethridge sisters (Kamie and Kriss at Monterey) and Ramona Iribeck (at Abernathy) are the premier players in West Texas.

she's the one big player. She's a truly complete player and when she's on, she can really dominate a game. The hardest thing about defensing her, though, is that if you drop off and sag on Hemphill, they've got a couple of other players who can shoot from the outside."

Despite all that talk, Coronado hasn't been having that much problem defensively lately. They just haven't been able to put enough points on the board.

"We really need to get our offense going," said Johnson. "We've been playing pretty good defense lately, we've pressed well the last two games, but we haven't been able to hit from the outside. We're just not scoring like we need to."

pecially when that basket rests on a precipice as precarious as beating Plain-

"It's an important game, especially since it's in Plainview. A win up there would really give us a shot in the arm. But with the district so tough this year, I don't think it's possible for a team to lose one game and be out of it," Johnson said. "Monterey, Hereford and Plainview are all so tough I think any one of them can beat the other.

"We'd like to get off to a good start and a win like this over a team like Plainview would certainly be that, but it's certainly not the district season either."

In another District 4-5A girls' contest, 4-14 Lubbock High opens its loop play with 19-1 Hereford. While victories for the Westerners have been few and far between this season, the Herd is riding a 17game winning streak since a 63-54 loss to Amarillo High in the second game of the bly win the district this year." The Mat hopes revolve around getting their run and shoot offense in high gear and strong performances from shooters James Barnett and Kenneth Cade and rebounders Jerry Gray, Rodney Guyton and Barnett.

The 6-foot-2 Barnett is the Mats' leading scorer, averaging 22.2 point per game along with 5.8 rebounds, and is coming off his hottest shooting performance of the season. In Tuesday's loss to Lubbock High, he canned 11 of his first 14 shots.

Cade is averaging 16.2 points a game while Grey pulls down 11 boards a contest and Guyton is averaging 10.4 points

Borger, which beat Estacado 64-56 in a non-district game in the Snyder Tournament early in the season, is paced by 6-6 senior post Gregg Belton, averaging 21.9 points and 10.4 rebounds per contest. Junior forward Scott Hunt scores 17 points per game for the Bulldogs.

In the girls' encounter between Borger and Estacado, both squads will be trying to avoid the district cellar as the first half of the conference season nears

Both teams are 0-3 in district and riding identical three-game losing streaks.
"We want to win pretty bad. I don't think we're taking them lightly because of their record," Matador coach Mary Ann Cobb said.

Cassandra Mann (11.1 points) and Stephanie Peoples (10.4 points, 11.5 re-bounds per game) lead the Estacado attack while sophomore Marie Brooks tops Borger, averaging 19 points a contest.

Gibson Joins Baseball's Elite In Hall Of Fame

NEW YORK (AP) — The fiery spirit that drove Bob Gibson through 17 over-owering seasons with the St. Louis Cardinals still burns inside the pitcher who today is the newest member of the baseball Hall of Fame.

"I was good," Gibson said. "That was the attitude I had." The numbers stand as mute testimony to that declaration. The man won 251

Winfield Recalls Close Encounter With Gibson

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dave Winfield remembers it as if it were yesterday.

It happened eight years ago in one of those big supermarkets in St. Louis, and Winfield, then a rookie with San Diego, was a little awed, because for the first time in his life he was going to meet his boyhood idol — Bob Gibson.

walked over to Gibson, who was somewhat preoccupied.
"Hi, Bob," he greeted him. "My name is Dave Winfield, I play for San Diego and I just wanted to say hello." Gibson grunted and merely went on doing what he had been.

Winfield's was distraught, but he's gotten over it by now and still feels Bob Gibson is one of the greatest pitchers he has ever seen. Trying to recall that episode Thursday, following the announcement of Gibson's election to the Hall of Fame by the Baseball Writers Association of America, "I honestly don't remember it," he said. "I'm sure if Winfield says so, it happened, but I had no idea who he was from Adam. Probably that hurt him. But it wasn't anything personal against him. Most likely I was concentrating on something else and when I do that, I give it my complete attention. I did the same thing when I was pitching. Gibson is board chairman of a bank in Omaha. Neb., and owns and operates a restaurant there. He's 45 and in such splendid physical shape, he looks as if he could still take a pitching turn.

"I probably couldn't finish an inning," he said dryly.
On hand for Gibson's election was his former Cardinals' teammate, Joe Torre, manager of the Mets. - Torre has always been particularly fond of Gibson and knows him probably better than anyone else in baseball.

Bob isn't the easiest guy in the world to understand if you don't really know him." Torre said. "I caught him in the 1965 All-Star game in Minnesota, and he struck the side out to end the game. We were in the shower together and I said, Nice game, Gibby.' No, I called him Bob; I didn't feel I could call him Gibby. He didn't even answer me. Mind you, it was just him and me in the shower.

Dave Winfield needn't feel so bad.

games, had a career 2.91 earned run average and 3,117 strikeouts. In 1968, he won 22 games and posted a remarkable 1.12 earned run average, completing one of the ost dominating seasons any pitcher ever enjoyed.

He set another record with seven straight World Series victories and had a 1.89 Series ERA. He is the only pitcher in history to have won seventh games of Series twice, nailing down world championships for the Cardinals in 1964 and 1967.

Gibson was one of the fiercest competitors of his era, a flame-throwing righthander who challenged hitters and won more of the confrontations than he lost.

He had a gruff image that he did little to change.

"All of the writers thought I was tough and so did the players," Gibson said.

"That's the way I was. I grew up fighting a lot of things."

Gibson overcame the obstacles of poverty and prejudice to become one of the premier pitchers of his time. "I was among the best," he said. "I should be among

He is there today, honored as the only candidate to win the 75 percent vote required for election. With 401 votes cast by 10-year members of the Baseball Writers Association of America, 301 were needed to gain election. Gibson was named on 337 ballots. No other candidate was close, with runnerup Don Drysdale getting 243 — 58 short, and Gil Hodges finishing third at 241 — 60 away.

The only other candidates to receive more than 200 votes were slugger Harmon Killebrew, who finished fourth with 239, relief ace Hoyt Wilhelm, who had 238, and pitcher Juan Marichal, who polled 233.

Killebrew, fifth on the all-time home-run list with 573, and Marichal, whose career figures were comparable to Gibson's, were also first-year candidates

Gibson Retains 'Realistic' Sense

NEW YORK (AP) - "Over the years after I retired," Bob Gibson was saying somberly, "the press kept asking if the baseball Hall of Fame was that important to me."

The competitive right-handed pitching star of the St. Louis Cardinals shrugged his shoulders, and added:

"I told them it had never been a goal in my life. If it happens, it happens.

Hark back to four years ago. The backdrop scene was the same but there was a sharp contrast in the mood when the Chicago Cubs' ebullient Ernie Banks stood on the exact spot on the same rostrum, facing virtually the same print and electronic media, to acknowledge the game's ultimate honor.

"Proud?" Ernie repeated a question. "I am jumping out of my skin. "Thank God for making it all possible."

Santa Claus had come early to the son of a Texas grocery clerk who had whirled through 19 years of baseball like a kid riding a rollercoaster at the county fair.

Gibson, the only player selected for 1981 induction into baseball's museum at Cooperstown, N.Y., received the honor with equal grace but with naked realism and no attempt to gloss over the early difficulties of a black man in a white man's world

Two men. The same honor. Different backgrounds. Different responses. If Banks is "Mr. Sunshine," Gibson can well be labeled "The Last Angry Man."

"You don't change personalities," Gibson said. "It was the way I was, the way I grew up. If you want to kiss babies. fine. I couldn't be something I wasn't.'

Gibson was a mound assassin in the mold of Sal "The Barber" Maglie of the Gibson was pushed into his racial colloguy by an insistent press. Commissioner Bowie Kuhn squirmed uncomfortably. It's a problem Kuhn did not originate and wants as much as anyone to erase.

Gibson grew up in an Omaha, Neb., ghetto, suffering all the usual disadvantages and discrimination. He had rickets as a child.

Gibson got his first bitter taste of bias as the first black basketball player at Creighton University.
"We were on a trip to Tulsa," he recalled. "The players checked into a hotel. I was told I had to go stay across town. I started crying. It hurt me.

Problems continued as the young pitcher, who yearned to play outfield, progressed through the minors to the "In 1958, when I was with Omaha and heading on a train for the Cards' spring training camp (St. Petersburg), there was a special place for me to sit," Gibson said. "A couple of guys tried to rough me

"Checking into the Bainbridge Hotel, there was no reservation for me. 'I'm Bob Gibson with the Cardinals,' I said. They sneaked me out the back door to a taxi which carried me to another hotel

The new Hall of Famer said the cruelest wound was administered later when one day his daughter came home from school, crying.

"She was distraught," he added. "I asked her what was the matter. She said it was racial prejudice and told me: 'You've got a lot of money - you never faced anything like that."

Gibson admitted that he apparently carried some of these scars - but not necessarily resentments - into his major-league pitching career and into his relationships with the press.

"Are you still angry?" "Not angry," he replied, 'just honest,

I never waved flags, never marched. If somebody asked me a question, I always answered it. Sometimes it wasn't what they wanted to hear.'

Gibson was surprised that Marichal did not come closer to election.
"I don't think I was 100 votes better than him," he said. "When I came up, he was the best pitcher in baseball. I could throw harder, but he had such a variety of pitches and control.'

Gibson, 45, was born in Omaha, Neb., and attended Creighton University where he was the first black to play baseball and basketball for the school. He spent a year with the Harlem Globetrotters and signed with the Cardinals in 1957. By 1969, he was a major league prospect.

"They told me I would open the season in Los Angeles and I didn't," he recalled. "Then they told me I'd open in San Francisco and I didn't. Then they told me I'd open when we got home to St. Louis. When we got there, they sent me to

Gibson was back before the season was over and, except for a six-game stretch with Rochester the next year, he remained a Cardinal until 1975. At his peak, he was one of the most dominant pitchers in baseball.

He will be inducted at Coopertown Aug. 2 and, except for the five original members, becomes only the 11th man elected to the Hall of Fame in his first year of eligibility. The others were Al Kaline, Ted Williams, Stan Musial, Bob Feller, Jackie Robinson, Sandy Koufax, Ernie Banks, Willie Mays, Warren Spahn and Mickey Mantle.

After five years away from baseball, Gibson will return next season as assistant pitching coach for the New York Mets, working for his old teammate, Joe Torre. The Mets hope some of Gibson's fierce competitive spirit will run off on their young hurlers.

Local Ring Star Johnson Fights With Confidence

Johnson, a member of the Lubbock Warriors Boxing Team, became familiar with a boxing ring only two years ago but since then has become one of the top amateur fighters around.

Johnson got a late start in the ring, but has enjoyed fighting all his life.

"I like to fight, and I believe I can make a career of boxing," Johnson says.
"I think I have what it takes to be a good fighter.

Johnson's coach, Edward Hernandez, echoes his pupil's words, saying, "Terry has a good attitude, he's confident and has all the tools to become a good fight-

The 1978 graduate of Estacado High School is the current Texas vs. USA champion and a Western States AAU finalist, but his biggest thrill in the ring

"Last March in Fort Worth I was fighting Tommy Tomas, a Texas state finalist, and I lost, but it was in front of 14,000 people," Johnson said. "That crowd really shook me up, but it was exciting. I really think it was stage fright that caused me to lose that fight. It was the first major tournament I had ever fought in and I'd never fought in front of that many people before. I learned a lot from that fight — you can't let the crowd get to you. You have to fight your fight no matter who's watching or who you're Johnson's bout against Frank Ruiz, the current California state Golden Gloves Champion, Pacific Coast AAU Champion and California Junior Olympic Champion will be one of the highlights of this weekend's Lubbock Warriors Second Annual Tournament of Champions. Johnson knows very little about his highly-touted opponent, but when asked how he thought the bout would go, said, "I know I'll win. It's just a certain confidence I have in myself.' Both boxers weigh in at 132 pounds, but Ruiz is two inches taller than the 5-7 Johnson. That doesn't worry the hometown favorite.

"I won't let him (Ruiz) control the fight, but I will fight according to the way he does," Johnson said. "I fought a few guys taller than me before and they didn't have any real advantage. I usually fight them inside because they have longer arms. It's hard for them to fight back inside when they have long arms.

Saturday's boxing action will begin at "I learned how to handle crowd presout early to make myself look better, but I'm prepared to go all three rounds."

He has not had to go the distance in very many of his 30 fights. His record is 27-3 which includes 16 knockouts and has only been knocked out once.

"That knockout came in my first loss, in the Red River Tournament in Wichita Falls," Johnson said. "It came with 45 seconds left in the third round. I vowed I'd never be knocked out again and I've kept my word.'

Johnson says he will fight this bout with the same inspiration he has all his previous ones.

"My main inspiration is my little girl, Trashonda Legail," Johnson said. "She's the only thing I have to look forward to."

With that kind of inspiration every time he enters the ring, Johnson believes he will be in the professional ranks before the end of 1981. He also wants to winthe state and national championships in the 132-pound division.

"I really think I can achieve all three goals this year," Johnson said. "I don't think I have any weaknesses any more. Early in my career, I wasn't running or training hard enough. But now, I'm in good shape. I'm not totally pleased with my physical condition now, but it will get better."

Hernandez also believes it is conceivable that his pupil could turn professional before the year is over.

"I think the major turning point in Terry's career, when he won the title at the Texas vs. USA Tournament, gained him enough confidence to be able to cope with professional boxing," Hernandez said. "There's another time, when Terry sure in Fort Worth last year," Johnson says. "It's just going to be another day for me out there. I'd like to knock him out in his career. Terry was losing the out in his career. *******

Bum Phillips Admits To Saints' Likelihood

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Former Houston Oilers' coach Burn Phillips says he's close to reaching an agreement with New Orleans to become coach of the Saints, but nothing has been signed.

"No. Nothing's been settled yet," he said Thursday. "I know I want to be the coach. I think they want me to be the coach. But nothing has been signed," he said. He denied he told anyone he had reached a verbal agreement to become head coach of the Saints.

"That's somebody trying to put words in somebody's mouth," he said in a telephone interview.

"I've told everybody that's where I want to go, and I think it will work out," he said. "But until something actually does work out, you can't say so until you actually agree on it Has a verbal agreement been met twice in Houston, and Phillips said he expected to talk to Mecom again soon after he got back to Houston. He was in Mobile, Ala., to watch Senior Bowl practice sessions.

We haven't discussed everything vet," Phillips said. "There's not really a sticking point - just time.'

He said his talks with Mecom have been general in nature, with no discus-"We just talked theory a couple of

Marvin Hagler Trains In Seclusion For Bout

PROVINCETOWN, Mass. (AP) — "Well, goodbye, birds," said Marvin Hagler, staring out of the window of his room at a hotel "at the end of the road."

A visitor to Hagler's room Thursday wasn't sure whether the middleweight champion was talking about seagulls or penguins when he referred to birds. Outside, there was nothing but snow and ice, and more snow was falling.

Hagler, who makes his first defense of the world middleweight championship Saturday night at the Boston Garden, against Fulgencio Obelmejias of Venezuela, has spent six weeks in virtual isolation at the Provincetown Inn at the tip of Cape Cod, 120 miles from Boston. Thousands of seekers of sun and surf come here in the summertime, but now there is only Hagler, some aides, a few hardy residents and the gulls. In fact, Hagler and his aides are the only guests at the inn, which is not really open for business.

"There's no women around here," said the 28-year old champion. "There's nothing but concentration here. This is a beautiful training camp. You're supposed to seclude yourselves ... to concen-Every great champion puts himself in jail. This is what I've done. Put myself in jail. You have hangers-on and they hype you up, and the next thing you find is your butt on the floor."

The 28-year old Hagler, who lives in Brockton, about 25 miles from Boston, worked long and hard to win the only undisputed title in boxing. He turned pro in 1973, and posted a 46-2-1 record, beating many of the top middleweights before he finally earned the title shot against Vito Antuofermo on Nov.30, 1979. That fight ended in a draw and Antuofermo kept Bitterly disappointed, Hagler set out for another title shot and won his next three fights. Then last Sept. 27, he got his second chance and became champion when he stopped Alan Minter of England in the third round at London. But the realization of his dream has not made him fat and happy, he said.

I'm meaner now. I got something I want to keep. I'm still a hungry fighter. I still haven't made the money that I want and now I'm trying to prove to the people that I should have been there a long

ORIOLES SIGN MARTINEZ BALTIMORE (AP) - The top lefthander in the Baltimore Orioles' bullpen last season has signed a five-year contract with the American League club, the team has announced.

Hagler disputes Obelmejias' No.1 ranking, saying he thinks the challenger should be No. 4, behind Minter, Antuofermo, and American Dwight Davison. But he obviously is not taking Obelmejias lightly and although he doesn't know much about him, he's confident he is ready for anything. "I'm ready for a brawl, but if it has to go 15 rounds, I'm ready for that," said

As for the mystery about Obelmejias' true ability, Hagler said, "Either he's a boxer or a slugger. He can't be anything else. He has two hands like anybody

The record indicates Obelmejias is a slugger. Whether he can use his power to advantage will be revealed Saturday night in the first title fight in Boston since Paul Pender beat Carmine Basilio for the middleweight championship in 1962, and in the first title bout in New England since Muhammed Ali's controversial one-round knockout of Sonny Liston in Lewiston, Maine.

Richard's 'Miracle' Recovery Suggests Comeback

HOUSTON (UPI) - If stroke-victim J.R. Richard never throws another 98 mph slider spinning into the Astrodome dirt, he already has made a miraculous recovery, an attorney close to him says.

And there are indications now the Houston Astros' pitcher will once again cause National League hitters to swing wildly at one of the most vicious pitches in

Chuck Berry, an attorney contacted in Pittsburgh, said an arteriogram performed last week showed blood flow through a grafted shoulder artery into Richard's right arm was "excellent." He said the primary concern of doctors directing the recovery was motor damage to the left side of his body, which he described as 95 percent of normal. Agility tests to determine Richard's coordination, reactions and eyesight on his left side were to be performed today at Hermann Hospital.

"If he passes those, he will be ready to begin full-scale workouts in the near fu-extend his running and conditioning program."

As early as next week, Richard could toss a baseball for the first time since Ju-

Those around the athlete, who is kept in seclusion, are guarded about predicting whether he will pitch this season.

'The doctors are very optimistic," said Berry, an associate of Richard's agent, He called the athlete's recovery, "as close to a miracle as you will see these Doctors have said a blood clot in a right-shoulder artery caused Richard's "dead arm" last June and a stroke July 30 when the clot backed up into a neck artery. Emergency surgery removed the life-threatening clot, but not before blood had been blocked for at least four hours to the area of his brain which controls the

"As far as the stroke itself, J.R. has made a dramatic recovery," Berry said. "He's almost all the way back. We are a little bit concerned in getting the motor skills on the left side back to where they were before."

He indicated the right-hander might not be able to react with his left hand to a line drive as he did before the stroke "He's 95 percent what he was. But that's not enough. You are going to have to have those skills as finely tuned as you can," he said.

Neurologist Dr. William S. Fields said Thursday the medical team attending Richard was aiming to get him back to baseball "this summer."

He defined the area of concern as Richard's reaction time. 'After the stroke, he recovered his strength. The tests will be of his fine coordination. Also his vision, because his vision to the left was impaired at the time of the stroke. He is remarkable improved. He says there is no problem."

Ex-Oregon Coaches Enter Courtroom

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI) - Former University of Oregon assistant basketball coaches Mark Barwig and Ron Billingslea must stand trial on first-degree theft charges involving $3,680 in airline tickets purchased with state funds, a Lane County judge has ruled.

Circuit Judge Douglas Spencer Thurs-day denied defense motions asking the charges against the two men be dropped because they had paid back the funds.

Barwig, 26, is accused of stealing $2,-000 by diverting unused airline tickets, originally bought with UO athletic de-partment funds, into a personal account at a Eugene travel agency. Billingslea, 30, is charged with stealing $1,680 in the same manner.

Deputy District Attorney Darryl Laron said the accounts were kept from the UO administration and were set up for the sole purpose of "cheating" on NCAA recruiting rules.

Trial dates of Feb. 4 for Billingslea and April 29 for Barwig were scheduled.

FOOT

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) - Coach Bill Walsh of the San Francisco 49ers says tel-evision-viewing football fans may consider Saturday's 32nd annual Senior Bowl 'just another all-star game.'

But, he insists, it isn't. "This game is intense, without ques-tion more intense than the other all-star games," Walsh said Thursday night.
"The difference is in the coaching

Walsh says the National Football League staffs that tutor the North and South squads in the Senior Bowl get into more detail on the practice fields than do those staffs in other such games.

He says other games offer their coaching reins as an honor to a coach about to retire or one who had a good season, and many of them approach the game in a cas al manner.

That's why this game year in and year out is so much better-executed and artistic in nature," he said. "It may not be obvious to fans, but it certainly is to the trained eye."

Walsh will be handling the North squad, which features Portland State quarterback Neil Lomax, against a South team coached by Red Miller and his Denver Rroncos' assistants

After vigorous workouts earlier in the week, both staffs began tapering off Thursday, and today will send their squads through light sessions at Ladd Memorial Stadium, site of Saturday's clash that will be televised nationally (CBS), with a noon kickoff.

The South holds a 15-13-3 series advantage, but was smashed 57-3 a year ago. Members of the two 34-man squads officially turn professional in this game, with winning team members each receiving $1,500 and those on the losing team

Lomax, who passed for 13,220 yards and 106 touchdowns during his Portland career, will serve as a North co-captain along with Ricky Jackson, the brilliant outside linebacker from Pittsburgh who was a third team All-American while playing in the shadow of Hugh Green.

Horner Wishes To Stay Brave

TLANTA (AP) - Bob Horner, the Atlanta Braves' slugging third baseman, has had a change of heart and now wants to renegotiate a long-term contract with the National League team, Horner's agent says.

The agent, Bucky Woy, said Thursday that Horner, the 1978 rookie of the year in the National League, feels he is underpaid at $330,000 a year and wants to renegottate a new contract with the Braves "five years, 10 years or longer" before the 1981 season.

Horner was out of town Thursday night and could not be reached for comment. But Woy's expression of his desires would mark a major turnaround for the 23-year-old slugger, who has said repeatedly that he wants out of Atlanta.

Bob realizes how well he goes together with Atlanta and the Braves," Wor said. "The ballpark is perfect, they can't pitch around him in that lineup and (Braves' owner Ted) Turner's cable station could make Horner the next Mickey Mantle. We're ready to make something permanent if they are.'

The cable station Woy referred to is WTBS in Atlanta, which is broadcast over cable television stations throughout the country. Most of the Braves' games are rarried on the station.

1 Thornwell, the Braves' executive vice-president, said the club's policy is not to renegotiate players' contracts. But also said that Horner is "an unusual property. would certainly sit down with Bucky and see what could be done." mwell said. "I'm very pleased that Bob has decided he wants Atlanta and the Braves as much as we want him. We were concerned when he kept saying he wanted to leave us as soon as he could. I'm glad time has put us past all of that."

If the renegotiation takes place, Thornwell said he expects Woy to seek a contract for Horner similar to that of Dave Winfield, who signed a reported 10year, $12 million deal with the New York Yankees.

Oilers' Peppler Joins Exodus

BOUSTON (UPI) - The fallout from Burn Phillips' firing as Houston Oilers' head coach and general manager continued with an announcement his assistant general manager was seeking employment elsewhere.

The Oilers Thursday gave Pat Peppler the right to talk to any other NFL club while remaining under contract.

Peppler was Phillips' administrative aide who primarily handled player contracks since his hiring in 1977. Previously, Peppler had worked in the front offices of the Green Bay Packers, Miami Dolphins and Atlanta Falcons.

He coached the Falcons for two games in 1976 on an interim basis, winning both games, and during his tenure both the Packers and Dolphins won Super Bowl championships.

He is the seventh Oilers' staff member to seek employment elsewhere since owner K.S. "Bud" Adams Jr. fired Phillips Dec. 31. Last week six assistant coaches were released from contracts at their request.

a television sports commentator has said Mike McClure, an Oilers' vice president and director of public relations and marketing, is resigning.

Five of the assistant coaches were restricted by the Oilers from seeking employment with the New Orleans Saints, the team that is expected to hire Phillips because the Oilers are seeking compensation from the NFL office in the form of a draft choice if the assistant coaches hire on with New Orleans.

The Oilers claim Phillips talked to them about a job before he had permis-

Revamped Raider Defense Proves Mettle In NFI

OAKLAND (AP) - The Oakland Raiders' defense seemed vulnerable, to say the least, early in the season and there were many critics pointing that out.

"The critics probably helped us, made us work harder," All-Pro linebacker Ted Hendricks said Thursday as the Raiders, now considered one of the best defensive teams in football, prepared for their Jan. 25 Super Bowl meeting with the Phila-

"I thought in training camp that we'd have a good defense," said Hendricks. He gave his reasons in four words: "New players. Coaching. Simplification."

"We had a lot of new people, including one rookie starter, Matt Millen. It took time for things to jell," said coach Tom Flores.

The Raiders got off to a 2-3 start in the 1980 National Football League season and allowed 120 points in those five games. They outscored their next two opponents in crucial games, beating San Diego 38-24 and Pittsburgh 45-34.

Then, the defensive unit began making a reputation for itself, allowing a total of 15 touchdowns over the last nine regular-season games and only one in the first two post-season games. The unit produced two All-Pros, Hendricks and corner-back Lester Hayes, players such as lineman John Matuszak and linebacker Rod Martin certainly performed close to All-Pro level, and linebacker Millen became Martin certainly performed close to All-Pro level, and linebacker Millen became recognized as one of the NFL's top rookies.

One of the two losses since the fifth week of the season was a 10-7 setback to the Eagles on Nov. 23. Philadelphia netted only 271 yards, including 75 by running back Wilbert Montgomery, who said later, "That's the most physical game we've Matuszak says the rematch in Super Bowl XV should be "a great game between two very physical, well-coached teams two very physical, well-coached teams."

He added, after calling the 32-14 victory over Minnesota in Super Bowl XI a surprisingly easy task, "You want a Super Bowl to be a tough game."

Hayes led the NFL in interceptions this season, with 13, and has stolen five passes in three post-season games. His main assignment last Sunday was All-Pro receiver John Jefferson of the San Diego Chargers. In the Super Bowl he'll be matched against another superstar, Harold Carmichael.

"If I can stop him, that will stop their whole passing scheme," said Hayes. "He is the fuel that makes their passing attack go."

In the 34-27 victory at San Diego in the American Conference title game, the Raiders abandoned their basic 3-4 defense early against the air-minded Chargers.

Charlie Sumner, Flores' top defensive assistant coach, says the Raiders will be back to the three-man line in the Super Bowl.

The four-man line is employed in obvious passing situations, and as Sumner said, "Against the Chargers, everything is third-and-ten."

Lester Hayes Earns Award

NEW YORK (UPI) - Lester Haves. the ball-hawking cornerback of the Oakland Raiders who led the NFL with 13 interceptions, today was named UPI's AFC Defensive Player of the Year.

Hayes, who came within one interception of tying Dick "Night Train" Lane's league record set in 1952, has added five interceptions in three playoff games to help propel the Raiders to a Super Bowl berth against Philadelphia on Jan. 25 at

The fourth-year pro from Texas A&M was an easy winner in balloting by 56 sports writers - four from each AFC City. He received 22 votes to beat out San Diego defensive tackle Gary "Big Hands" Johnson and Buffalo nose guard Fred Smerlas, each of whom collected 10 votes. Buffalo linebacker Jim Haslett, Kansas City defensive end Art Still and San Diego defensive end Fred Dean each received four votes.

"He's the toughest cornerback in the league," said San Diego All-Pro wide receiver John Jefferson, who caught just four passes against Hayes in the AFC title game. "He really makes you work for Hayes, who returned one of his interceptions for a touchdown, always seemed to come up with the big play in crucial situations as the Raiders combined for a league-leading 35 interceptions.

Hayes, the Texas state 220-yard dash champion in college, was the Raiders' fifth selection in the 1977 draft and became a starter with two games remaining in his first season.

During his last two years at Texas A& M, Hayes played safety, but when he came to Oakland, Raiders' managing general partner Al Davis decided he should be used at cornerback.

"I couldn't see Davis' logic," said Hayes. "Now I think he's a genuis. He knew more about me than I knew about behind in planning for the game, and that his staff will start working nights to catch

"There have been so many distractions in the way of interviews, ticket requests, and other things that it has effect-

But he added: "We'll have most of the mental work done before we get down there (New Orleans)."

Vermeil was informed that Oakland's

ed the concentration of the working standout cornerback, Lester Hayes, said that if the Raiders can shut down wide receiver Harold Carmichael, they can shut down the Eagles. "Carmichael caught one pass last week and we beat Dallas," Vermeil responded. "We've won with Carmichael making big plays and we've won without him making big plays. My philosophy is I don't care what other people say."

Asked if he planned any special mat-chups against Oakland, Vermeil said: "I'm not big on matchup-type games. We run our offense and defense regardless of who we are playing. Granted, we've got to make some adjustments. We had some problems with Oakland's bump-and-run pass coverage in the past. It gave us problems the day we played them."

The Eagles, who beat Oakland 10-7 in a regular-season game, have played three American Conference teams this year, all in pre-season games. They beat the Buf-falo Bills, New England Patriots and New York Jets.

Vermeil said punt-return specialist Wally Henry would play. Henry has been out since October when he suffered fractured ribs and had spleen-removal surgery.

"Wally had permission to play against Dallas but I was the one who wouldn't let him," Vermeil said. "But he'll be two weeks further along and I'll have more confidence in him taking a shot."

Vermeil said he spent 45 minutes talk-ing with his squad about distractions they were sure to have in New Orleans.

"I wanted to prepare them for what to expect," Vermeil said. "I explained the news media had its job to do and also we have our job to do. I told them I expected them to handle things with class and dignity, give the press what it needs, Athletic Director Bill Flynn, who confirmed the probe Thursday night, said the players no longer attended BC. He refused to say how many players were in-volved and said he did not know how many games - or which games - federal authorities were looking at. "The Justice Department advised us a short time ago that they are conducting conversations with a very, very few form-er student athletes who are under investigation," Flynn said. "However, they did assure us that neither the university nor any of its employees is under investigation. The New York Post reported today that the allegations surfaced last July during an unrelated investigation into the December 1978 theft of $5.8 million from the Lufthansa cargo terminal at Kennedy International Airport in New York. A key informant in that probe, convicted felon Henry Hill, told federal authorities he paid off at least two players - reportedly $1,000-$2,000 per game to each - to fix games, The Post said. Flynn said the investigation apparently concerns the shaving of points, or holding the margin of victory under the established betting line. The Eagles posted a 21-9 record in 1978-79 under coach Tom Davis.

"If you watched a Tom Davis team, you'd feel it was impossible to fix a game," Flynn said. "He uses all 10 players. We won 15 home games that year, and the games we lost (overall) we should have lost."

> The skipjack came into being sometime after the Civil War, initially as an inensive adaptation of the more graceful bugeyes and schooners. Based on the philosophy that form oyster dredging, easy to build as well as handle.

This functional quality, and an 1865 Maryland law that restricts the dredging of oysters to sailing vessels, has ensured the survival of the 30 remaining skipjacks registered to work the Bay this year.

Now two new skipjacks are being constructed by shipwright Melbourne Smith, modeled on the Minnie V, which was built by a waterman in 1906. The first, to be named the Minnie V, will be docked at Baltimore's recently renovated Inner Harbor as a museum. The second will join the oyster dredging fleet this winter.

The Dee of St. Mary's was built for Skipper Jack Russell by Francis Goddard in the watermen's tradition of excellent handcrafted boats made from the timber of the forests near the banks of the Bay's many tributaries. Goddard would like to build two more - one for his 25-year-old son, Wayne, and one for himself.

Although it costs nearly $100,000 to construct a new skipjack and between $6,000 and $20,000 annually to maintain the older ones, public programs may help the oystermen stay in business. These include loan guarantees that permit new skipjacks to be financed over 15 to 20 years, and deferred tax liability on Huneke, who served as first vice president on the BBB board last year, said the proposed senior citizens' committee would have a primary responsibility of staff members helping senior citizens with their particular problems in the marketplace.

Another of the goals Huneke and South Plains BBB director Alan Bligh set for 1981 is to investigate and possibly set up a chapter of the National Home Improvement Council to police the home improvement industry. Huneke said he and Bligh are anticipating an increase in the home improvement market in Lubbock this year. If the National Home Improvement Council chapter is set up here, it would operate outside the BBB, Huneke said.

Other goals he listed for 1981 are increasing the membership in Lubbock and increasing routine monitoring of local advertising by the BBB staff. The current membership of the South Plains BBB is about 960 members, Bligh said.

In addition to Huneke, the newly elected 1981 officers are Newt Robison, first vice president; Jack Schneider, second vice president; and Richard Dickey, treasurer. Robison served as second vice president last year. Outgoing board chairman C.B. Carter praised Bligh for his hard work and for "hitting the ground running" when Bligh took over the job in August 1979.

Among the 1980 accomplishments Carter listed were the creation of an insurance committee for advising consumers, creation of an arbitration advisory committee and the creation of a new automotive program in which 30 independent automobile repair shops agreed to work with the local BBB in an unprecedented program of being pre-committed to binding arbitration.

That program means that if a problem should arise with a consumer which requires arbitration, the shop is committed to accepting whatever ruling the BBB arbitration committee makes, Bligh "I feel I am leaving behind what I consider to be a strong and excellent board," Carter said. "A Better Business Bureau is only as good as its board."

New directors beginning three-year terms include Coffe Conner, Rudy Hag-gard, Roy Holmes, Larry Wells, Margaret Williams and Norman Wright. Outgoing directors include John Anderson, Geneva Boren, Don Harris, Leon Harris, Bob McKinsey and Joe Price.

Anderson To Emcee West Texas Opry

Veteran entertainer Tommie Anderson assumes a new role here Saturday when he becomes master of ceremonies for the 14th West Texas Saturday Night

The popular show, set for 8 p.m. in Municipal Auditorium, is co-sponsored by KLLL Radio and Don Caldwell Studi-

Proceeds will benefit Texas Boys

Anderson, known for his versatile trumpet and slapstick antics, has been a regular on the opry, which has raised more than $15,000 in the past for local charities

Unlike many of the other stars of the opry, Anderson looks upon his perform-ances as an "avocation," rather than a stepping stone to the future.

Anderson has played for approximately 26 years, starting at 14. His father, also a musician, gave Anderson a coronet and they began a career in Vernon playing for a variety of civic clubs.

He recalls those days when he got $5 for a performance. "And that was a lot of money," he noted. Playing his horn, then and now, to

Anderson is mostly for fun, recalling musical sessions with the whole family on Saturday night. Everyone played some type of instrument he said. Later, Anderson played for the Texas Tech University Band while he was a student and kept on playing around Lub-bock after he made the Hub city his home.

The West Texas Opry has given Anderson some new challenges and his latest as master of ceremonies, taking the place of Steve Sever, former KLLL disc jocky, is a change from his regular slot as enertainer.

'Ireally enjoy being emcee, I enjoy it lot hore. It gives me a chance to back off and look at the whole opry and see with you talent. "This opry gives lot of people a chance to appear before the public, to see if the re good enough, to see if they're accepted," he said.

Anderson said the opry has been a vehicle for man good talents in West Tex-as to expand and he hopes it will be for many more. In addition serving as emcee, Anderson works on tage with the band and will accompany lewette James on the With Anderson, Mrs. James and the resounded in his old Atlanta church and 'We Shall Overcome" echoed across the mall in Washington as people around the country honored the slain civil rights leader on his birthday with ceremonies and rallies.

Thursday was a holiday in several states and many communities. But Congress has not declared Jan. 15 a holiday and many of the gatherings called for national recognition for the man whose non-violent demonstrations were a cornerstone of the 1960s civil rights move-

King, who would have been 52 on Thursday, was assassinated in 1968.

In the nation's capital, at least 15,000 people marched from the foot of the Capitol to the Washington Monument, carrying signs that read, "I Have a Dream -March for Peace" and "Let's Make This a Day of Celebration - Happy Birthday To Martin Luther King."

The rally ended with the crowd linking arms and singing "Happy Birthday" and "We Shall Overcome," led by pop singer Stevie Wonder.

In Atlanta, King's hometown, about 3,000 people marched from a local high school to King's grave next to the Ebenezer Baptist Church, where he had been pastor with his father.

His famous speech, "I Have A Dream," was read by actress Yolande D. King during a church service.

"Pledge with me that you will be apostles of peace and non-violence," said former U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young, who had been one of King's chief

And King's widow, Coretta Scott King, said: "We need persons like you with renewed commitment and dedication to the principles Martin Luther King fought for in his lifetime and ultimately gave his life. You didn't have the privilege to march with him, but you march today in his name and in his spirit."

Arctic Cold Wave Keeps Criminals Off Streets

The blast of Arctic cold sweeping the East has been a curse to citrus growers and millions of shivering Americans, but to policemen manning the front lines in the battle against street crime it has been

"Miserable cold is the best police offi-cer in the world," said New York Police Sgt. Joseph Funcheon, assigned to the city's tough Midtown North Precinct, which encompasses crime-ridden Times

Police in the frigid East from Maine to Miami say the cold wave has not only made life miserable for the law-abiding, but forced many muggers and other criminals to stay indoors.

Official crime statistic reports were not yet available for the period covering the current cold wave, but police in many areas reported a drop in crime

In a few areas, police said overall crime was running about the same, but cold-wary criminals had seemed to shift their operations indoors, with one policeman saying, "If they don't rob them in the street, they rob them in the the hall-

In Boston, Police Sgt. Albert F. Dennehey said Thursday the extreme cold weather has "definitely" reduced the crime rate, including stolen cars. He estimated there was a 10 percent drop in emergency calls on his pre-dawn shift.

"I wouldn't go out and try to steal any hubcaps in this type of weather," said acting Birmingham, Ala., Police Chief Jack Warren. "I know I'm not going outside as often and I'm sure the criminals are staying inside too."

In Albany, N.Y., a detective said the cold always seems to put a damper on Police in Baltimore, Hartford, Conn., and Jersey City, N.J., Also said crime rates had dropped because of a reduction in outdoor criminal activity.

In Pittsburgh, however, Police De-partment Assistant Superintendent Al Mills said there was no evidence of a change in the overall crime rate, but in general he said bad weather tends to nd criminals indoors.

Executives Injured In Elevator Fall

CHICAGO (AP) - Thirteen financial executives were treated for leg or other injuries after a high-speed elevator in a bank building descended 56 floors "a little bit faster than usual" and jerked to a halt below the ground floor, officials

"We did not know it was falling until we hit," said John Howland, 38, one of the passengers treated following the mis-hap Thursday night. "It seemed to be normal. The next thing we knew, we hit the bottom. Everybody was scrunched

Howland, of Glenview, was among members of a financial executive institute attending a monthly meeting on the 56th floor of the 57-story First National Bank of Chicago building.

He said all of the 21 people in the ele-vator had entered the elevator at about 8:22 p.m. when the meeting ended.

"Apparently the elevator's brake failed and it came down a little faster than usual," said Police Sgt. Edward B.

Firefighters rescued the passengers through the roof of the elevator cab, he

An official of Westinghouse Elevator Co., the manufacturer, said the elevator could not have been free-falling or the injuries would have been more serious.

Elmer Tessner, Westinghouse's downtown Chicago maintenance superintendent, said the car came to rest 1½ stories below the ground floor after slam-ming against an oil-filled piston at the base of the shaft. The piston is designed to act as an emergency cushion, he said.

Nine passengers were treated and re-leased from Northwestern Memorial Hospital, said Gregory Turner, evening administrator. He said two others were being held with multiple leg fractures.

One victim was treated and released

One of those two, Robert E. Burmeis ter, 56, of Hinsdale said the elevator stopped with "a sudden crash and a bump" and a ceiling grating that includ-ed a light fixture fell on the heads of some of the occupants.

Burmeister, executive vice president of the Chicago Board of Trade, said the elevator seemed to be traveling at the normal rate of speed but apparently the braking mechanism failed.

HONOLULU (AP) - A lawyer for Mark David Chapman, the man accused of killing former Beatle John Lennon, has charged that information which could be crucial to Chapman's defense is being withheld by people who knew him.

Honolulu attorney Brook Hart on Thursday subpoenaed three people to produce documents relating to Chapman's work as a security guard in a Waikiki condominium. But the court-ordered appearances did not produce a missing security logbook that Chapman once had signed with the name "John Lennon." Chapman is being held in isolation in New York City jail on Riker's Island.

to sell the logbook for more than $20,000. Bustamonte denied the allegation. "They are incriminating myself and other employees ... because they want to be sure of gaining an acquittal of Mark Chapman by reason of insanity, thus gaining worldwide fame and notoriety," Bustamonte said. He said the logbook was stolen from the condomium the day after Lennon was shot in New York City. But he admitted forging a similar signature in a new logbook. When questioned about the forgery by Circuit Judge Wendell Huddy, Bustamonte asked to be assigned a lawyer and the hearing was rescheduled for Jan. 22.

Also testifying at Thursday's hearing were Chapman's fellow security guard Fua Liva and Navy Cmdr. Wallace Williams, president of the condominium's board of directors

Some 40 other people were injured in the blaze. All the Pepsico and General Foods employees survived the fire, some of them by jumping 35 feet to the ground after breaking windows.

Vergari would not comment on whether he had any suspects, or when he expects to make any arrests. He said authorities "don't have enough evidence to

Most of the inn's 300 employees have been laid off since the blaze.

Residents Allowed To Go Home

LAWRENCEVILLE, III. (AP) -Hundreds of people evacuated when a leaking butane tank caught fire were told they could return home at their own risk today as firefighters worked to douse the two-day-old blaze.

Between 600 and 1,000 people were evacuated from their homes around the nation's fifth-largest Texaco refinery after an explosion rocked the complex Wednesday night.

While flames subsided, Paul Akers, head of the Lawrence County-Lawrenceville Emergency Services and Disaster Agency, said some residents of an area north of the refinery were advised late Thursday they could go homes if they Others living closer to the refinery were asked to wait until the fire was completely out before returning.

The break in the battle against the blaze came about mid-afternoon Thursday when a black pillar of smoke which had billowed to the sky most of the day - disappeared.

Government Spending Millions On Advertising

WASHINGTON (AP) - Ronald Reigan is taking over an enterprise that is unning in the red, and he may want to to what other chief executive officers ofen do in that situation: cut the advertising budget.

If he does, Reagan will discover the overnment spends more than $150 milion for ad space or air time and millions more on market research, ad production and creative efforts.

All this made the United States the ountry's 28th biggest advertiser in 1979 far behind Procter & Gamble, but well ahead of such big advertisers as Pillsbury, the Gillette Co. and Reagan's former ployer, the General Electric Co.

But if Reagan tries to cut ad outlays. he will run into flak from agencies that say they must communicate with the public and can do it best through adver-

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (UPI) — To most folks, Ronald Reagan is a former actor, onetime governor, and soon-to-be president of the United States.

To Eloise Rupe, the incoming chief executive is an old pen pal.

Then came the divorce, and Mrs. Rupe "wrote Jane and told her she was

"I just thought he was an all-around good fellow. I've been thinking about writing him and seeing if I'd get a personal letter now."

STOVE INSPECTION SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Careless installation of wood-burning stoves can put the cost-conscious homeowner right out in the cold with a major fire loss, says David Glass of the Fireman's Fund Insurance Companies. "In Pennsylvania alone, a recent industry study showed more than 200 major fires with losses of $2.5 million in 1979 attributable to wood stoves that were improperly installed and never maintained," Glass said.

Three of every four government ad dollars go for military recruiting. For every recruit the Army signs up, the Pentagon spends $410 on advertising to lure him into the recruiting office. The few good men the Marines want cost $339 each in advertising.

These expenditures are for ads which can only plant the idea of enlisting. Millions more are spent in the entire recruiting effort.

Each branch of the service has its own ad director (usually a colonel), and each has a separate ad agency. Advertis-ing Age, an industry publication, notes that J. Walter Thompson Co. has the Marine Corps account; Ted Bates and Co. writes Navy ads. Each service competes with the others for recruits.

In addition to buying ad space and time the government gets millions of dollars worth of free advertising through industry donations. These public service campaigns promote health and safety, urge energy conservation and acquaint people with government services such as

Everyone knows these ads — the 39-year-old "Only you can prevent forest fires" campaign, for example. The Ad Council sometimes turns

WASHINGTON (AP) - President WASHINGTON (AP) — President Jimmy Carter proposes that 42 cents of every federal dollar ge directly to pay benefits to individuals — from retirees on Social Security, the elderly ill on Medicare, to students applying for education grants and to jobless workers geting unemployment compensation.

Last year, Carter proposed that 43 cents of each federal dollar go to individuals, but in the fiscal 1962 budget he sent Congress Thursday, an extra cent was al-

Federal Aid To States

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter's final budget proposes little additional assistance to state and local governments and would block the states from being readmitted to the federal revenue-sharing rogram.

Increased

In a farewell budget certain to be altered by the incoming Reagan administration and Congress, the president submitted a proposed budget on Thursday that slightly increases aid to states and cities, but not at a level that would keep pace with inflation.

Carter proposed spending $99.8 billion to aid state and local governments in the 1982 fiscal year begining Oct. 1. That would be an increase of $4.5 billon, or about 4.7 percent, over the estimated spending of $95.3 billion during the 1981 fiscal year.

About two-fifths of the proposed spending would provide payments to individuals through programs such as Medicaid, welfare assistance, housing aid and nutrition programs for children and the

But most of the money would be for funding such federal aid traditions as highway construction, mass transportation, sewage treatment plants, communitydevelopment projects and air and water pollution control programs. Under the federal revenue-sharing program, Carter proposes giving cities and counties $4.6 bilion during 1982. In fiscal 1980, the last year states received any of the revenue-sharing money, they divided $6.8 million with the nation's cities and counties

The revenue-sharing program enacted by Congress for the current 1981 fiscal year provided funds for local governments only. Congress voted to authorize payments to states once again in 1982, but just pass an appropriations bill before they get any money.

Carter's proposal to keep the states out of revenue sharing to states is certain to draw strong of tion's governors.

Carter's proposed budget reverts to his campaign position in 1976 when he urged terminating the states' share of the general purpose spending program. Last year with a re-election campaign coming up. Carter supported revenue sharing for

The president's proposed budget also called for continued phasing out of economic stimulus outlays for localities hard hit by unemployment, a program begun during the 1976 recession

He called for spending $8.4 billion for highways, about $200 million more than this year, with most of the money going directly to states. About half the money would be used to build and preserve the interstate highway system.

Also included in Carter's proposals for state and local goernments:

 $4.2 billion for sewage treatment plants, nearly the same as this year. Grants for control of hazardous wastes and to promote clean air and water would increase by $12 million to $159 million in the new budget.

• $3.7 billion for urban mass transit, $100 million higher than the estimate for the current fisal year. The money would go primarily to 279 urban areas with at least 5,000 population. There would, however, be no increase in operating subsidies for mass transit systems.

 $4 billion for community development grants, $100 million more than this year. Grant programs to help states and cities foster private investment and job development in distresed areas would be $500 million, an $89 million rise. Spending on the popular Urban Development Action Grants to revitalize innercities would increase from $36 million to $61

· While nearly all of the funding for the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration is being phased out, Carter proposed increased spending for the Justice Department's Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency, an offshoot of the LEAA. The spending would be $132 million in 1982, an increase of $35 million.

GEOTHERMAL ENGINEERS NEW YORK (AP) - To acquaint engineers with the possibility of generating electric power from thermal energy superheated steam from the depths of the earth - the United Nations has established training courses in four countries. Courses have been established at the University of Auckland, New Zealand, at Kyusu University in Japan, at mal Research in Pisa, Italy, and at the National Energy Authority of Iceland.

President Carter, in his final budget essage urged Congress and the incoming Reagan administration to act swiftly to shore up Social Security, which is in danger of running out of funds in the mid-1980s.

He also exhorted them to try to get control over the vast array of programs that provide benefits to individuals. He ted such steps as using a Consumer Price Index less sensitive to mortgage interest rates to compute cost-of-living increases; curbing the tumultuous growth of student loan subsidies; giving federal and militay retirees annual, in-stead of semi-annual, cost-of-living increases, and cutting back on extended unemployment benefits.

Reagan aides have talked of revising eligibility requirements to cut the num-

Congress would have to approve both the Carter and Reagan cost-cutting mea-home-owners on their mortgage will cost the Treasury $25.3 billion. The deduction for contributions to charity will cost $11.5 billion.
