

Returnees Applaud Families, Rescuers

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — America's liberated hostages said today the real heroes of their long ordeal were their families at home and the eight servicemen who died trying to pluck them from captivity in Iran.

At a dramatic news conference attended by 41 of the 52 in the group, the former hostages talked little about their treatment in Iran but said they can barely wait to resume normal everyday lives and blend into their communities.

William J. Daugherty, of Ossining, N.Y., said the group feels unanimously that the real heroes of the 444-day ordeal were wives, parents and children at home.

"We knew what was happening to us and the families did not," he said. "We did not experience the roller-coaster emotions of next week 'you're going to be released, now you're not.'"

Because the hostages were completely incommunicado, he said, "it was pretty much 14 months of just sitting back and reading and sleeping and walking five steps and turning and walking five more."

The 45-minute news conference, which took place in the U.S. Military Academy's Eisenhower Theater, was the first meeting with reporters for most of the hostages since their release Jan. 20. There was no immediate explanation why 11 of the group chose not to show up.

"We are all right, physically and mentally," said John D. McKeel, a Marine sergeant from Balch Springs.

"I don't know how the rumor got out...but I feel from the people I've talked to since my stay here that we're all all right."

"And as soon as they let us get home, so especially the Marines can get back to chasing women..."

In Washington Monday, White House press secretary James Brady said that about a dozen of the former hostages had suffered some sort of mental damage.

And in an interview earlier in the day, former hostage Moorhead Kennedy Jr. said one of his colleagues tried to commit suicide while in captivity. He said he knows the person's identity, but does not want to reveal it.

"It was a period of extreme stress," said Navy Lt. Cmdr. Robert Engelmann of Hurst. "But what impressed me most, boarding the plane (taking the hostages out of Iran) was the ability to just close the door on it that we all seemed to exhibit. A lot of the stress was relieved just by walking aboard that aircraft."

Bruce Laingen, the charge d'affaires of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran when it was seized by Iranian militants on Nov. 4, 1979, acted as moderator for the news conference.

He began by paying respect to the eight servicemen who died in last April's failed rescue attempt.

"They put their lives on the line," he said. He called the hostages "proud, free and happy Americans" and said their families demonstrated, during the 444 days of captivity, "nobility and courage."

Laingen praised the eight who died in the rescue attempt for "their readiness to put their lives on the line because they wanted us to be free."

He said the hostages "need time to reflect a bit in terms of policy questions," and he said all the freed Americans "want to reach out with thanks to all our countrymen."

He said the former hostages "have been humbled by what we have seen of See RETURNES Page 16

Reagan Leads Tribute

WASHINGTON (AP) — The freed American hostages, expressing eagerness to "resume normal lives," arrived today to a tearful, joyous embrace and chants of "Welcome home!" from their countrymen and a formal reception by President Reagan at the White House.

The first of four planes carrying the 52 former hostages and their families from two days of seclusion at West Point, (More Stories About Returnees On Pages 6,7, Sec. A) N.Y., landed at Andrews Air Force Base in suburban Maryland at 10:50 a.m. CST. The others followed at 15-minute intervals.

Vice President George Bush headed the welcoming party at Andrews, where a band played and hundreds of well-wishers yelled and waved American flags festooned with yellow ribbons.

"Welcome home, nice to see you," said Bush, shaking hands with the former captives as they emerged from the planes.

But the arrival was dominated by relatives and friends who pushed past Air Force guards to hug and kiss the returned Americans. Little Marci Lopez ran up to the receiving line and into the arms of her brother, James M. Lopez of Globe, Ariz. The mother of Jerry Plotkin broke past guards and was swept up in her son's arms.

Relatives of one returning hostage, Donald Cooke, hoisted him on their shoulders and carried him through the airport crowd. The sister of another, Frederick Lee Kupke, broke through a barrier to try to embrace her brother as he got off the plane. She was gently returned by Air Force personnel to a waiting area for hostage relatives.

Yellow ribbons and thousands of other well-wishers lined the 12-mile route of the bus motorcade from the air base to the White House.

Before flying to the nation's capital, the former hostages held a news conference at West Point, where they were reunited with their families. They said they felt good "mentally and physically" after 444 days in captivity in Iran, and were confident they would recover from their ordeal, which ended one week ago.

The first hostage off the planes was Bruce Laingen, the senior U.S. diplomat in Iran throughout the crisis. He waved with both arms to the crowd and then was embraced by Bush.

Congressional leaders also were at Andrews and shook hands with the returned Americans.

Bush told reporters at the air base there was "a lot of emotion, a lot of deep feeling. I'm just proud to be part of it."

Bush said, "It's just such a joyous day for everyone... The emotions, the different emotions of the families is something to behold."

Asked if he felt he was intruding, the vice president replied, "I tried to get a feel of whether we're intruding, and I don't think so."

Joining Bush in the official welcoming party were Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. and Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger. Among the congressional leaders on hand were Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill and Senate Republican Leader Howard H. Baker, an amateur photographer who took pictures of the tumultuous scene around him.

The hostages were freed last Tuesday, the day Reagan and Bush were inaugurated.

Jimmy Carter, whose final 14 months in office were clouded by the hostage crisis, greeted the hostages when they were flown to Wiesbaden, Germany, after their release. Carter was not in Washington for the official welcome, leaving Plains, Ga., instead for a vacation in the Virgin Islands.

Joining his former colleagues among the freed hostages were Richard Queen, who was released by his Iranian captors on July 11 because of illness.

After a reception at the White House, a massive evening fireworks display was planned for the former hostages on the Mall near the Washington Monument.

Only 41 of the 52 Americans were present. See REAGAN LEADING Page 16

Vessel Sinks; 500 Missing

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — An Indonesian passenger ship that caught fire and burned for 12 hours sank in the stormy Java Sea today and Indonesian officials said more than 500 people were missing.

Rough seas prevented a flotilla of rescue vessels from reaching the burning vessel and its panicked passengers.

A spokesman for the National Search and Rescue Operation said 566 of the 1,136 people aboard were known to have been rescued from the 2,420-ton Tampomas 2. A search was going on for survivors.

With the fate of the 570 people unknown, an Indonesian shipping official said the disaster was the worst in the country's history.

In 1947, the French freighter Grandchamp exploded and caught fire in the Texas City harbor, killing 510 people. The 1912 sinking of the Titanic claimed 1,517 lives.

The spokesman said earlier reports by Indonesian officials that the ship was being towed and that there were only minor injuries among the passengers were not correct.

He said none of the ships sent to help the stricken vessel could get near it in the rough seas. Some passengers abandoned the ship in lifeboats and were picked up by other ships.

"We tried to contact the boat, but it sank," he said.

He said a rescue plane that approached the ship reported about three-fourths of the vessel ablaze, thick black smoke pouring from the stern, and knots of people jammed at the bow.

Hundreds of people, relatives of the passengers, gathered at the shipping line's headquarters in Jakarta, then went home after darkness fell.

The rescued were being taken by ship to the port of Ujung Pandang, where the ship had been headed, the spokesman said.

The ship was crossing the Java Sea from Jakarta to Ujung Pandang and was 220 miles from its destination when the fire broke out Sunday night in one of the 166 cars aboard, shipping sources said.

Governor Rushing Nine Bills

AUSTIN (UPI) — Gov. Bill Clements added nine bills, including the appropriations bill, to his already long list of emergency legislation today.

One of the emergencies is a bill to change the name of the Special Events Center at the University of Texas to honor (Senate Acts On Appointments; Story On Page 10, Sec. A) or the late Frank Erwin, a former regent and supporter of the university.

The governor has already designated most of his legislative program as emergencies, permitting the House to act on the bills during the first 60 days of the session.

The new emergency bills include a bill by Speaker Bill Clayton to create a committee to study ethics laws for public servants. After his acquittal of bribery in the Brilab trial, Clayton said the state needs specific laws for the conduct of elected officials.

The other new emergency bills would:

—Increase the number of qualified voters required to force a referendum on a franchise awarded by a city. The city of Fort Worth is in the process of awarding a cable television franchise and Rep. Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, has introduced a bill to raise the number of voters required on a referendum petition on the franchise.

—Permit distribution of $7 million in road funds for counties. The money is in See NINE MEASURES Page 16

Evidence Mounting In Alexander Case

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

ABILENE — Criminal District Attorney John T. Montford dragged approximately 45 pounds of marijuana before a wide-eyed jury this morning, presenting the illegal substance as evidence against 21-year-old Billy Wayne Alexander Jr.

The contraband was piled up on the witness stand and before presiding Judge Robert C. Wright's bench as a Department of Public Safety chemist spent the greater part of the morning identifying the evidence.

Montford is using the marijuana and related paraphernalia officers said they found in Alexander's house the day after he shot and killed DPS trooper Jerry Don Davis as an argument that Alexander should be given the death penalty.

The young Lorenzo man was convicted Saturday on a charge of capital murder and now faces either the death penalty or life imprisonment as the only legal options.

Prosecutors were scheduled to admit more drug-related evidence after the noon recess, including two different exhibits to be identified as LSD. Several DPS officers took the witness stand this morning to identify the drugs and paraphernalia they said they found in Alexander's 1913 62nd St. residence in Lubbock — including evidence that testimony showed had been stashed in the stove, oven and freezer.

Montford questioned each of the DPS witnesses as to where they found the evidence, under authority of a search warrant issued by Lubbock County Court-at-Law Judge Edwin H. Boedeker.

The district attorney followed each of DPS Capt. John Mason's identifications with a dry question, "Find anything else?"

"Yes, sir, I did," was Mason's answer after each bag of marijuana was dragged or hoisted into the courtroom.

Texas Ranger Jackie Peoples identified from the witness stand a Polaroid photograph he said he found sitting on top of a television in Alexander's house.

Montford displayed the photograph to the jury, allowing the panel to see the photograph of Alexander holding a telephone between his head and shoulder and "shooting up" a substance in his other arm.

Montford broached the subject of See MARIJUANA Page 16

Judge Questions Project Planner

By PAT GRAVES
Avalanche-Journal Staff

U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward indicated this morning in the Frenship School District's suit to block a West Lubbock public housing development that it is not his place to correct decisions of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Former HUD housing representative Roman Palomares, testifying on the site selection process for the Lubbock Housing Authority project in question, said HUD is required to consider site factors differently from the LHA.

Woodward then asked Temple Management attorney Hilton Howell, representing the developers of the proposed project, if he felt the court was to decide whether HUD had merely considered all factors relevant to the site, or whether HUD had done so but reached the wrong conclusion, allowing the court to substitute its own judgment.

When Howell answered no, Woodward said he was inclined to agree, adding previous testimony from a Temple Management planner and LHA officials indicated no one considered the Frenship School District a problem.

Frenship is trying to prevent HUD, the LHA, the City of Lubbock and Temple Management from building a low-income housing project at 24th Street and Frankford Avenue.

Woodward told both parties the crux of the entire matter is what HUD specifically did in regard to Frenship schools during its project evaluation.

He termed as most pertinent U.S. Justice Department attorney John MacLay's question to Palomares about whose standpoint on the project's location is more heavily considered: the residents or the surrounding area.

Palomares said he did not know, claiming he was not an expert on that subject.

On the matter of site selection, Palomares admitted an oversight in not ex-

President Ready To Lift Controls On Oil

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan is preparing to issue an order lifting oil price and allocation controls — a move that would boost the price of gasoline and heating oil by up to 10 cents a gallon, White House sources said today.

The White House scheduled, then postponed, a briefing by Budget Director-designate David Stockman, apparently on the move to decontrol oil.

Karna Small, deputy White House press secretary, told reporters the briefing was delayed until Thursday "because there is so much going on."

The controls, imposed nine years ago, limit the retail price of gasoline and propane and the price producers can charge for several categories of crude oil.

Under a gradual decontrol program begun in April 1979, the controls have been scheduled to expire Sept. 30. Industry analysts have said total decontrol could hike gasoline and heating oil prices between 5 cents and 10 cents a gallon.

Reagan met this morning with Senate Republican leader Howard Baker, House GOP leader Bob Michel, Stockman, Treasury Secretary Donald Regan and his congressional lobbyist, Max Friedersdorf, apparently to discuss decontrol of petroleum.

Controls on natural gas, which now are scheduled to be phased out by 1985, would not be affected by today's order.

Decontrol would be another move by Reagan to ease government regulation on business. It was one of the first recommendations to hit his desk after a review by his economic advisers, and was a persistent theme of his campaign.

Reagan may propose legislation to cover some of the legalities involved in refiners entitlements and the allocation system, sources said.

Immediate decontrol would have a limited effect on consumers because it only speeds up the process already on motion. Prices would have risen after controls expired in September.

The New York Times reported today administration officials are seeking some way to cushion the impact of decontrol on small and independent refiners.

Those firms, without their own sources of oil, have been guaranteed supplies under the controls. One form of protection might be tax incentives to help them upgrade their refineries to handle less-desirable grades of crude oil more readily available on the world market, the newspaper said.

It said Energy Department sources suggested the administration needs to compromise on the small refiners to forestall efforts by Congress to restore overall price controls.

Analysts quoted by the newspaper said heating oil prices might rise more than those for gasoline.

Actress Agrees To Move

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Mary MacLaren, 81-year-old former beauty queen of the silent-film era, has agreed to move out of her fire-gutted home, but officials say the building she's moving into has been condemned as uninhabitable.

The actress' home of 64 years was damaged Jan. 13. Before the fire, which caused about $25,000 worth of damage, the home had been condemned by the Los Angeles City Department of Building and Safety.

After the fire, Miss MacLaren declared: "I'm not going to leave my house. ... I'll sleep here till I die," but following a visit Monday by the Los Angeles County Health Department, Miss MacLaren said she and three others renting rooms in her home were moving temporarily to another building on the same property.

Russ Johnson of the county health department said of the second building, "about half the walls have holes in them, as well as the ceiling. ... I'm sure it will never be accepted on a permanent basis" by city and county agencies.

Mayor Wants Library In Plains

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — The mayor of this town of 683 says he hopes Jimmy Carter will establish his presidential library here, but he concedes it "probably will go to Atlanta."

Mayor Linton "Boze" Godwin said it's too early to expect a decision on where the Carter archives will be stored, because Carter, a Plains resident, "has had too much on him to bother with these kinds of things."

Some residents, such as Maxine Reese, say Plains should forget trying to get a Carter library and concentrate on getting a museum for the tourists.

"I don't think we need a huge museum," she said, "but we need something Jimmy Carter went in (to office) as a mystery, he came out as a mystery, and people are coming here looking for Jimmy Carter."

Atlanta City Council Debating Curfew Measure For Children

ATLANTA (UPI) — With Atlanta's 18-month-long string of child killings and disappearances now at 17, the City Council is considering a curfew that would slap heavy fines on parents if their children are not off the streets by 9 p.m.

The council's Public Safety Committee scheduled a hearing today to discuss the curfew. The entire panel was to meet a few hours later and possibly vote on the measure.

Children under 15 are currently due home by 11 p.m. under an ordinance that was extended a week ago.

But Atlanta Women Against Crime, a group pushing for stronger safety measures, has called for a permanent 9 p.m. curfew for children in the city.

"We want to let them know that 11 is too late for any child to be out," said Grace Davis, the group's president. "And I feel that it is needed now more than ever."

Their proposal would call for a warning to parents the first time their child was caught out after curfew; with a $350 fine on a second offense and fines up to $500 on any subsequent violations.

Carolyn Banks, a City Council member, said she has received several complaints that children are on the streets long after the curfew.

Last Friday, the body of 15-year-old Terry Lorenzo Pue was found on Sigman Road.

He was the 17th Atlanta child to disappear since July 1979 and the 14th found dead. Three others were still listed as missing. All of the children involved, ranging from 8 to 15 years of age, were black; all were from low-income sections of the city, and all but two were boys.

Rockdale County Deputy Sheriff Windell Whitmore said his investigators were checking again two calls that were received before Pue's body was found last Friday.

Whitmore said both were from a man who said he was responsible for the string of mysterious slayings and warned

"the next kid would be taken off (kidnapped) from a subdivision on Sigman Road" by Feb. 1.

"There's a possibility that he might do it just to show us that he would do it," Whitmore said.

Controversial Protestant Leader Seeks New Term

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Rev. Bailey Smith, whose remarks about Jews made him one of the most controversial leaders of the Southern Baptist Convention, said Monday he will seek a second term as head of the nation's largest Protestant denomination.

"I plan to be renominated," Smith told the 13.4 million-member denomination's official news agency. "People in high denominational posts as well as people in the field have been encouraging. I feel I need to do it."

Smith, pastor of First Southern Baptist Church of Del City, Okla., drew national attention as a leader of the conservative forces in the Baptist battle over the Bible and how it should be read and interpreted.

But it was his remark that God does not hear the prayers of a Jew, made at a conservative political rally in Dallas during the presidential campaign, that thrust the outspoken Smith into national prominence.

Fueling the fire, Smith was quoted later in the fall as joking during one of his sermons that Jews "have funny noses." The remarks caused a flurry of criticism from both Jewish and Christian leaders and led Smith to argue he was not anti-Semitic and to seek a meeting with national Jewish leaders.

At that meeting he signed a statement saying Baptists "abhor, condemn and reject anti-Semitism," but he refused to withdraw the remarks. He said he had "distinctive theological beliefs and he cannot compromise."

Teague Named Bureau Chief

DENVER (UPI) — Pat R. Teague has been appointed United Press International bureau manager in Albuquerque, N.M., and New Mexico state editor, Leroy A. Hamann, vice president for the Rocky Mountains, announced Monday.

Teague, 31, is a Texas native and most recently was bureau manager in UPI's Lubbock bureau. While there, he helped cover the New Mexico state prison riot in 1980.

After high school in Dallas, Teague received his bachelor's degree in journalism in 1976 from the University of Texas and won a post-graduate internship at the Corpus Christi Caller-Times.

Teague and his wife, Sylvia, both joined the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal as general assignment reporters. Teague later became a police beat reporter and an assistant city editor.

He joined UPI in September, 1978 as Lubbock bureau manager.

Besides the New Mexico prison riot, Teague has covered the 1979 tornado at Wichita Falls; Hurricane Allen in 1980, and Texas Tech University football.

Teague and his wife have one son, Sean.

Teague succeeds John Gonzales, who resigned as Albuquerque bureau manager.

U.S. Attacks Soviets For Abuse Of Human Rights

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — The United States, giving a first indication of the Reagan administration's East-West policy, denounced the Soviet Union for new human rights violations today before the newly reconvened European security conference.

The chief U.S. delegate to the 35-nation conference reaffirmed the American commitment to human rights under President Reagan and accused the Soviet Union of new human rights violations.

Britain, the Netherlands and Belgium lined up behind the United States. But the Soviet Union attempted to twist the focus of the conference to an East bloc call for disarmament.

Western delegates reported that chief Soviet delegate Leonid Ilyichev, in a closed-door plenary session, condemned three Western proposals on human rights, human contacts and freedom of information.

Ilyichev concentrated instead, they said, on "the lofty objective of disarmament" as laid out in a Polish proposal for a European disarmament conference later this year.

"If we do not have this decision," Ilyichev warned, "that would affect to a great extent the process" on detente begun at the first security conference in Helsinki in 1975.

Ilyichev also rejected a NATO-backed French proposal for military confidence-building measures covering all of European Russia — a 10-fold increase of the Soviet territory covered by the Helsinki accords and designed to bring 120 of 170 Soviet divisions under Western scrutiny.

"The Soviets are trying to divide and rule, playing on anxieties about disarmament and defense spending without this being reflected in the Kremlin," a Western diplomat charged. "We are not interested in disarmament talks that give a false sense of security."

Washington lawyer Max Kampeleman, appointed by former President Carter and kept on by Reagan, told delegates at a closed meeting of the reconvened forum that Soviet violations of human rights

"continue to intensify."

Kampeleman said at least two Soviet dissidents had been arrested and nine, including a 75-year-old woman, were scheduled for trial since the conference recessed Dec. 19.

Stressing the continuity of U.S. policy, he said: "No one should doubt American constancy ... to the preservation and enhancement of human freedom. ... Those are President Reagan's objectives. They are the objectives of the American people."

Defense Purchases Expected To Cost More

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Congressional Budget Office said today 1982 military purchases would be underfunded by $5.4 billion in the budget President Carter sent Congress before leaving office.

The office released a report estimating defense-related purchases would cost more than the Carter administration figured.

It estimated the government would have to authorize spending of an additional $2 billion for fuel consumption, $2 billion for full funding of proposed weapon purchases and $1.4 billion for defense supplies and other purchases.

The estimates were contained in a CBO analysis of the Carter budget that is soon to be revised by the Reagan administration and rewritten by Congress. The analysis was prepared for the House Appropriations Committee.

"CBO's preliminary review of the 1982 budget proposals suggests that outlays could be about $6 billion higher than projected by the Carter administration, if all of the administration's spending proposals were approved by the Congress," the report said.

"This would result in outlays of about $745 billion in 1982."

The $5 billion by which CBO said defense programs would be underfunded includes future-year spending that would be obligated in 1982.

Carter proposed overall federal spending of $739 billion, which President Reagan hopes to cut substantially in the changes he will send Congress in mid-February.

The Congressional Budget Office said its basic economic projections were "fairly similar" to Carter's, but anticipated a higher annual average for interest rates — 12.2 percent for 1982, compared to Carter's 11 percent.

The CBO projected interest rates for 1981 would be slightly lower than Carter projected — 11.8 percent compared to 13.5 percent.

The budget office and the Carter administration predicted approximately the same annual inflation rate for 1982, but CBO estimated inflation this year would be 10 percent, while Carter projected 12.6 percent.

That means CBO expects somewhat lower payments would be required next year for programs that are tied to inflation — such as Social Security, government pensions and food stamps.

Kelly Vows To Press Challenge Of Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Rep. Richard Kelly, declaring "I have not been a crook," is vowing to press his challenge of the propriety of the FBI's Abscam investigation as he appeals his bribery and conspiracy convictions.

"The war goes on," the former Florida congressman told reporters after a jury deliberated 6½ hours Monday before convicting him and two co-defendants of taking part in a $250,000 bribery conspiracy.

U.S. District Judge William Bryant set sentencing for Feb. 23. Each defendant faces a maximum prison term of 25 years, including 15 years on the most serious bribery charge.

Kelly, 56, the only Republican member of Congress indicted in the Abscam probe, was convicted of taking a $25,000 bribe from an FBI agent posing as a representative of two Arab sheiks seeking legislation to immigrate to the United States. He testified he accepted the payoff only to conduct his own investigation of men he said he regarded as shady characters.

Kelly, a former state judge, said he will continue to press that assertion and expand his own probe of Abscam to include the government, which he claimed entrapped him by inducing him to take the money.

"The government 'has not proved that I've been involved in any kind of corruption,'" Kelly insisted. "The story of my life has been that I have not been a crook. I have not tried to save my own hide at the expense of the people."

Vowing to appeal, Kelly said the verdict was disappointing, but he added: "The process is a good one, and the trial part is an important part ... but that's only one part."

The government is now six-for-six in Abscam trials involving members of Congress, with Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., scheduled to go on trial March 30.

Journalists Hope Ruling Will Open Trials To TV

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Broadcast journalists hope a Supreme Court decision that upheld a Florida law permitting trials to be televised will lead to courtrooms across the country being opened to cameras.

first time the Supreme Court is saying that the electronic media may be treated as first-class citizens in the journalism community."

Florida pioneered electronic coverage of court proceedings, first allowing it experimentally in July 1977. The state's high court permanently approved coverage in 1979.

Chief Justice Warren Burger, writing in the high court's decision, said unless the right to a fair trial is jeopardized, "There is no reason for this court either to endorse or invalidate Florida's experiment."

Burger, who has opposed electronic coverage of Supreme Court proceedings, noted states are responsible for ensuring constitutional safeguards for defendants.

In Maine, Jon R. Doyle, president of the state's bar association, said he believed most lawyers in his state would not object to a pilot project permitting limited coverage.

On a vote of 8-0 Monday, the high court refused to strike down the Florida law, saying televised and photographed trials do not violate a defendant's constitutional right to a fair trial.

Jack Hogan, president of the Radio and Television News Directors Association, said, "We hope today's decision will encourage other states to follow Florida's lead ... whereby the people's right to see and hear their courts in action is not outweighed by an accused's desire to escape the limelight."

Jack C. Landau, director of the Reporters Committee for Freedom of the Press, called the decision "an enormous legal advance for broadcasting. For the sets began to admit women as members under a special program in 1975.

In 1978, the national Jaycees organization voted to reaffirm its policy of excluding women from regular Jaycees membership and to expel any local chapters that did admit women.

In his 44-page opinion, commissioner Samuel Stonefield found that the Jaycee's policy of excluding women as full and equal members violated Massachusetts laws against sex discrimination.

He thus suggested the national, state and local chapters admit women on the same basis as men. It was not immediately clear how the national organization would react.

Bell Rings NEA Chimes

THE DEPARTMENT of Education's doom is far from sealed, despite President Reagan's campaign pledge to abolish the Cabinet post nobody seemed to want—Education Secretary.

Confirmation of Terrel Bell, Utah's higher education secretary and former U.S. education commissioner, lends an air of permanence to the department at least in the eyes of the National Education Association, which masterminded the federal agency's creation.

NEA officials are "ecstatic" with Bell's nomination, according to the current issue of Human Events. "Ted Bell is an excellent choice for secretary," says NEA executive director Terry Herndon.

NEA had various dealings with Bell when he was at HEW and thought he was a very good man, says Lin Stafford, an NEA public information officer.

BELL PUSHED for a separate federal education department, a longtime NEA goal, as head of the old U.S. Office of Education from 1974-76.

In 1977 Senate hearings, he called creation of a separate department "a national priority of the highest order" and supported the Department of Education bill in 1979.

Mr. Reagan's appointee, however, agrees with the President that the department of education should not have Cabinet status and many of its functions should be handled by other government offices.

He reportedly favors demoting Ed to the status of an independent federal agency, like NASA and the National Science Foundation.

The new President may agree to the idea to avoid hassling with Congress, apparently putting off eliminating the department to avoid an early confrontation on Capitol Hill.

BELL SUPPORTS a limited federal role in guiding and funding education.

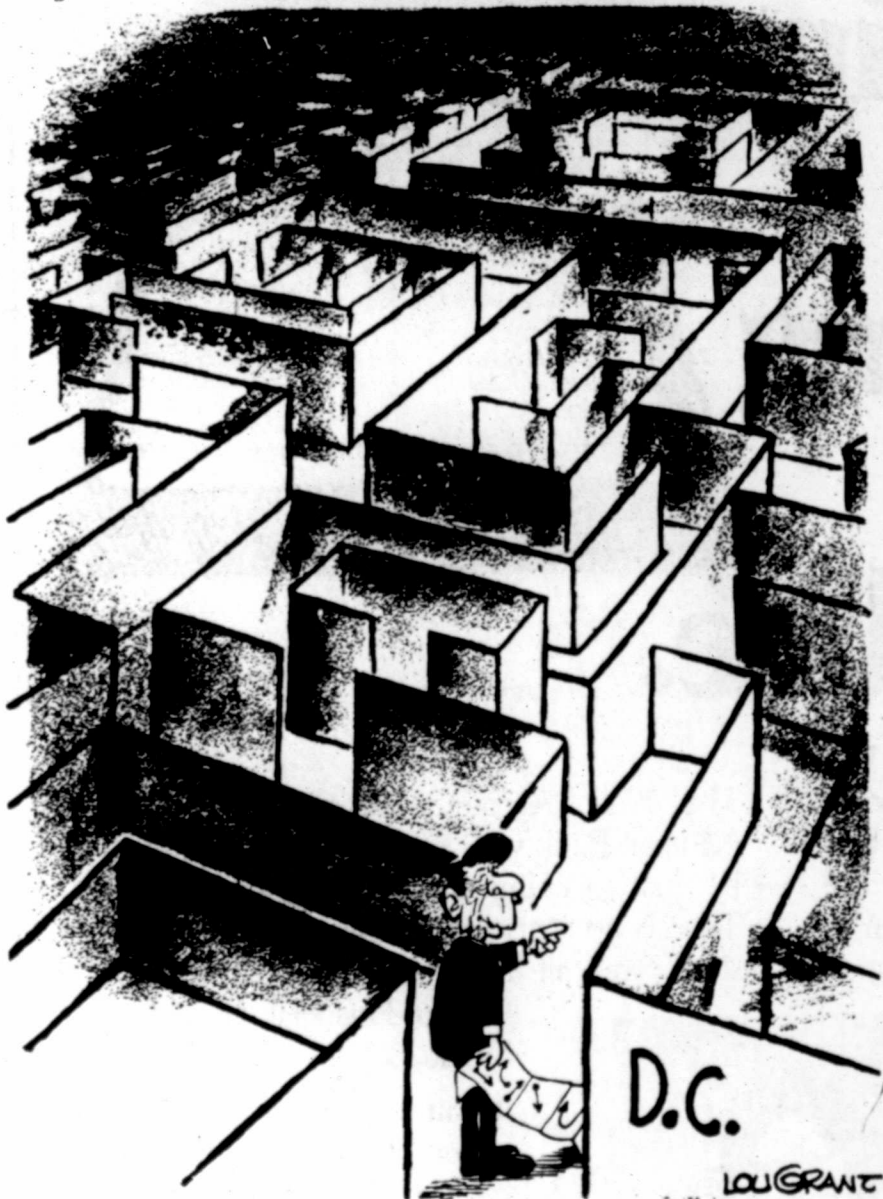

"I came to Washington feeling education was almost exclusively a state responsibility," he said in a 1976 interview.

"My view has shifted. Congress can no longer defer to the states and say, 'You take the lead.' The federal government should specify the ends of education and provide the financial support to meet those ends."

As U.S. Education Commissioner, however, Bell frequently criticized Congress for becoming a "super school board," setting both "ends and means" in education policy.

There is a silver lining in the dark cloud, however. Under Bell, the Education Department is unlikely to lend support to teacher union demands that the federal government mandate collective bargaining or tie it to federal funds. For as Utah's commissioner of higher education, he joined school boards in testifying against public sector collective bargaining measures.

"FOLLOW THE LEADER"

James J. Kilpatrick:

Who's Doing What To Whom?

WASHINGTON—As far back as 1546, John Heywood propounded a truth for all ages. You can lead a horse to water, said the sage, but you can't make him drink.

It's a homely verity that civil rights crusaders in the Department of Education have yet to learn. That observation is prompted by the department's action a couple of weeks ago in putting a gun to the heads of four sovereign states—Alabama, South Carolina, Delaware and West Virginia.

After prolonged, costly and tedious investigations, the department concluded that all four states have failed to wipe out the last inherited vestiges of racial segregation in their institutions of higher learning.

Unless they get their racial quotas promptly in line, the states risk losing their federal aid.

IF THIS DREARY and unproductive zealotry affected only the four states, the matter scarcely would merit national attention.

But the department's action reflects an obsession that nurtures and cultivates the very racism that civil rights programs were intended to alleviate.

Here we are in 1981, more than a quarter of a century after the Supreme Court's landmark Brown decision of 1954, and we are more race conscious than ever. The government's programs keep us that way.

I tell you, it is a depressing business, this incessant counting of white noses and black noses, but in Washington it never stops.

Federal agencies administer more than 130 statutes and executive orders prohibiting discrimination in education, housing, employment, voting, public accommodations and access to credit.

Nearly a hundred agencies will spend $624 million this year in shuffling the papers of civil rights reports. It is still a growth industry.

THE THREATS DELIVERED to the four states are precisely within the pattern.

This is what the law says: "No person shall, on the ground of race, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination, under any program or activity receiving federal financial assistance."

That is clear enough for any child to comprehend. And this is the fascinating situation:

In Alabama, South Carolina, Delaware and West Virginia, so far as their institutions of higher learning are concerned, not a single person is today being denied anything on account of his race.

THE GOVERNMENT concedes this. The states are not violating the law. They are not excluding blacks from formerly all-white institutions. On the contrary, they are knocking themselves out trying to lure blacks to enroll in them.

But this is not enough. In the cockeyed uni-

A restaurateur's young son tried fishing for about an hour, just one time, then gave it up for good. "I couldn't get waited on," he explained.

I-Way To Go!

OPTIMISM obviously is running ahead of performance in the new Reagan administration, even that old Republican war horse Jim Granberry is convinced.

Two days after the inauguration, Granberry got his invitation to attend. It had been postmarked in Washington on the day before the inauguration, presumably by someone who has great faith in the U.S. Postal Service.

Note to City Hall: Must be a malfunction in the traffic signal system somewhere. Drove Avenues L and K into downtown Friday and didn't have to stop at 34th, 19th, 16th or 15th Streets. Better get someone right on it.

From the Quote Wrack: "Everything is there as I objectively reported it."—Cleveland, Ohio, corner Lester Adelson, confirming that his autopsy had concluded Stella Walsh, winner of an Olympic gold medal in the women's 100-meter dash in 1932, was a man.

GEORGE WALL JR., C.W. Nall Jr., et al Jr., at the local Highway emporium have worked long and hard to recommend the best possible route for Interstate 27 across town.

The design, though, can stand considerable improvement, as the City Council noted last week.

Better on-and-off access downtown, continuous traffic flow interchanges at two or three points and a couple of other design modifications would make the Highway Department's proposal pretty

Holmes Alexander:

Generals Not Created Equally

WASHINGTON—Al Haig hadn't got to the bottom of his first page of testimony before he threw both arms around the St. Peter of that Heavenly Gate—namely, Gen. George C. Marshall.

Senators, both before and after Haig's pious gesture, mentioned Marshall with awe as the beau ideal of the soldier-statesman. If only Haig could be another Marshall!

Both were political-generals. Haig scrambled over his seniors on the promotion ladders by knotting his fingers in the coattails of Kissinger and Nixon. Marshall got to the top by clinging to the apron strings of Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt.

Neither warrior saw much of battle. Haig fought most of the Asian wars from the Pentagon and White House.

MARSHALL'S LITTLE-KNOWN Memoirs of World War I finds him mostly at Pershing's Headquarters, and his contribution to World War II was at Washington, as was true of his part in the Korean conflict.

Though he was a VMI graduate and a resident of Virginia, Marshall was not Virginia-born, but a Pennsylvania Yankee by birth, which subtracts much from his glamor and is seldom mentioned. Haig, a West Pointer, is associated with America's only lost war.

But a much larger and more horrendous matter clings to both names. Haig was so much a part of the "peace" negotiations with the Vieti that he cannot escape blame for the disaster of Saigon where American officials were evacuated from the Embassy rooftop.

Of George Marshall, it is often and not incorrectly said that he was an "architect" of Eisenhower's victory in Europe, and he has been accused of engineering the "sell out" to Red China.

FOR THIS HE was viciously attacked in 1952 by Joe McCarthy on the Senate floor and allowed to retire to his Valley of Virginia farm in a cloud of martyrhood.

But the idea of Marshall as a supernal world statesman, with Haig as some sort of a replica, has not been examined and would not stand up if it did.

There is no sign that Marshall recognized the global intent of Communist Russia, which we now see being executed on the continents of Europe, Asia, Africa, South America, the Caribbean and the Far Pacific.

Marshall did not conduct himself as Secretary of Defense and Secretary of State under President Truman with the foresight of one who might have prepared us for the predicament we now face.

McCarthy's shocking speech was constructed for him by history professors at Georgetown University where Haig did postgraduate work, Charles Calin Tansill and Stefan Possony.

Commenting on this school of thought, the late Richard Rovere wrote in his violent biography of Joe McCarthy:

"There was a case to be made against Gen. Mar-verse of the civil rights zealots, all the world's a decimal point, and the decimal points are wrong.

Alabama's two predominantly black institutions have only 2.8 percent white students. Alabama's 14 predominantly white institutions have but 10.1 percent black.

Generally the same picture obtains in Delaware and South Carolina. At the University of West Virginia, only 1.2 percent of the students are black.

Now why is this? Is it the result of conscious, deliberate, racial discrimination? Not at all. It is a consequence of certain ineradicable laws of human nature.

Unlike attendance at elementary and secondary schools, which is compulsory, attendance at the university level is voluntary. The courts and the bureaucrats can order little children around and make their orders stick.

BUT COLLEGE STUDENTS cannot be assigned like so many cattle, 80 head of Charolais and 20 head of Angus, all in the same pen. In a free society, people are free to go where they feel comfortable, where they feel at home.

It is this reality of human existence that infuriates the social engineers. Why won't people go where the decimal points decree they ought to go? Nothing stands in the way of the black students but their own disinclination.

But in the unreal world of the new utopians, personal preference has no place. Human desires do not compute. How we got this way in a free country is beyond me, but here we are.

nigh perfect, leaving the route untouched. The problem is in getting everything done in time to get the entire expressway under contract before the 1986 deadline for funding Interstate projects.

A public hearing on both the route and the design is scheduled for Feb. 19.

Highway engineers played their cards so close to their chests in laying out the preliminary design that community input, even by City Hall traffic planners, was nil.

IT TAKES ONLY a cursory look at the design they came up with to see its shortcomings. That's not to say it's bad; it is just to say that it could be a whole lot better.

The route itself—basically along Avenue A from Loop 289 on the north side of town to 4th Street, then veering west to nestle up against the eastern edge of downtown and following Avenue H to Loop 289 on the south side of the city—is probably the best available, all things considered.

Wall and Nall have good justifications for that route. It will serve both through traffic and local traffic, although holding it to only three lanes in each direction even along its most heavily traveled segment seems a bit shortsighted.

AS CITY DIRECTOR of Planning Jim Bertram pointed out, however, additional on-and-off ramps are needed at Municipal Drive to tie into the Avenue H-Texas Avenue one-way pair.

It surely can be made easier, too, to get on and off the Interstate at or in the vicinity of Broadway, which is the key access point for making the facility serve the city well.

Certainly, too, motorists should be able to get on and off I-27 at Loop 289 on both sides of the city without ever having to stop. Other cities have continuous-flow traffic interchanges; why can't we?

That kind of non-stop interchange should be provided, also, at 4th Street—and, ideally, at 50th Street—in order to facilitate traffic and relieve congestion.

A 3rd and 4th Street one-way pair is planned (it's already needed) and one day will carry expressway volumes of traffic. Now is the most economical time to provide the type of interchange that the Lubbock of Year 2000 or 2010 will need at that point.

AFTER ALL, THE way things are going, it'll be nearly that long before I-27 is completed!

Another improvement in the design would be to move a grade separation from 42nd Street, which deadends in both directions, to 38th Street, which goes all the way across town.

Right now, 38th Street serves as a relief valve for congestion on 34th and 50th Streets and it would be a mistake to block it off and worsen the traffic problems on the two parallel thoroughfares.

There's no reason these design changes should hold up the I-27 project; let's get 'em done and get on with it!

Sylvia Porter:

Generous Benefits Paid To Jobless 'Victims'

NEW YORK—Losing your job scarcely comes under the category of "luck," but in comparison to millions of others, you are in luck if your industry can show that your joblessness is due to intense competition from foreign imports (particularly from Japan and West Germany).

The reason: The federal government provides you with generous benefits, if your occupation—industry, trade, profession—can demonstrate that heightened foreign competition is a vital factor in your being laid off.

How generous are these benefits?

Very generous.

You can receive close to $14,000 a year (and even more) if you are 60 or older when you become unemployed or qualify for an approved job training program.

THE SOURCE of these special jobless benefits is the Trade Adjustment Assistance Act, passed by Congress in 1974 with three major aims: to provide retraining and relocation help for workers displaced because of import competition; to curb political pressure for import quotas, tariffs, other types of trade restrictions; to avoid any danger of another era of destructive protectionism in this and other top trading nations of the world.

On all three counts, the TAA appears to be shaping up as a costly failure.

In the 1980 fiscal year alone, the Labor Department, which administers the act, doled out $1.6 billion. This was more than twice the total amount spent since the TAA got underway in 1975.

In fiscal 1981, the TAA's benefits are expected to mount to more than $2.7 billion, reports my associate, Brooke Shearer. This contrasts dramatically to the $150 million per year that the program paid out during the TAA's earlier years.

IN THE INITIAL years, the recipients of benefits were unemployed mostly from low-wage industries—such as apparel, shoes.

Now the bulk of the participants are unemployed autoworkers. Of the half-million workers receiving trade allowances under TAA in 1980, more than half came from the auto and auto-related industries—for instance, glass, rubber.

Since wages in these industries are among the highest in our high-wage nation, most of the unemployed drawing trade benefits are receiving the maximum amount permitted.

This maximum is set at the national average weekly manufacturing wage. The average is slated to rise in a few months, but as of now it is $269 per week, hardly a pittance.

Offhand Thoughts

Listening to a political speech is like a golf shot to a green—you have to allow for the wind.

A taxidermist is a guy who knows his stuff.

"What's your previous experience?" the executive asked the applicant who hoped to become his yesman.

"Not much," came the reply, "but I'm good-for-nothing."

Warden: "What were you two fighting about?" Prisoner: "He called me a dirty number!"

ELIGIBLE JOBLESS WORKERS can draw this hefty total for one year before their rights expire. It is not unusual for workers to receive their full entitlement—which can amount to close to $14,000. These benefits are taxable.

This maximum allowable benefit can rise even higher—to near $21,000—in the cases of workers aged 60 or over when they lose their jobs or of younger workers who complete job training.

Only one out of 13 workers still unemployed and participating in the TAA program ever gets any kind of job training, though, because the Labor Department doesn't have the funds to finance the help.

"To say that the training part of the program has been a smash success would be a lie," admits Robert Gillham, chief of the trade assistance group in the Labor Department.

In addition to lack of money, the on-off nature of employment in the auto industry undercuts training programs.

Unemployed autoworkers either are back to work when they are declared eligible for training or are sure they soon will be.

Finally, Gillham notes that it's almost impossible to retrain some workers in a marketable skill. "After someone has spent 30 years building bumpers, train them to fix computers?"

NOR HAS THE assistance act quieted demands by both the autoworkers and auto companies for government curbs on auto imports.

Japan was cited in a recent request by Ford and autoworkers, rejected on the basis that high U.S. interest rates and consumers' demands for small, fuel-efficient cars are more to blame for Detroit's troubles than Japanese imports.

And the threat of a new wave of protectionism engulfing world trade remains very real.

It will be that this Congress will sharply reduce the TAA's scope, if it extends the program. It's terribly vulnerable.

Former Hostage Reveals Colleague Tried Suicide

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — One of the American hostages tried to commit suicide while being held in Iran and the militant captors took steps to prevent other attempts, according to former hostage Moorhead Kennedy Jr.

"I don't know how serious it was or whether it was just somebody demonstrating something to the students," Kennedy said Monday in an interview with Barbara Walters of ABC television.

Kennedy said he knew who had made the attempt, but would not reveal the person's identity.

He said he learned of the incident in February 1980 after the Iranian militants roused him and several hostages from their rooms and forced them into a cold hallway, where they were lined up before a mock firing squad.

Afterward, Kennedy said, the Iranians would not let him have his belt back and he discovered that his room had been ransacked and his tie taken.

"We didn't know then that there had been a suicide attempt. And what they were doing was shaking us down for anything which might be used to help somebody commit suicide," Kennedy said.

A hostage suicide, he said, "would have been very bad for the students. They didn't want any suicides."

In an interview with The Associated Press, Kennedy said the "only mistake" America made during the hostages' captivity in Iran was the rescue attempt last April.

"Even if it had succeeded, a lot of us would have been killed," Kennedy said. "Even if the planes got in, we would have been shot up on the way out."

Kennedy, of Washington, D.C., also said he thinks the United States should honor its agreement with Iran.

"It's terribly important that we honor it," Kennedy said. "It's important to the Third World that we maintain our position of leadership. We're a great nation because we're morally strong."

Americans Savoring Homecoming Feasts

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — Welcome home, American style, means that the 52 former hostages spent much of their first two days on U.S. soil feasting and forgetting 14½ months of rice. In between hugging and laughing and talking, they "ate like horses."

"It couldn't have been better if I died and went to heaven," said one happy ex-hostage.

By 6:15 p.m., about half of the 197-person entourage went downstairs for a cocktail party in the Hudson Gallery meeting room.

Many kept an eye on the Super Bowl on a giant TV screen as they munched on cooked shrimp, Alaskan crab claws, fancy imported cheeses and plain old American potato chips.

About 7:30 p.m., the main restaurant began filling up. Dinner was served to 160 guests, including 29 who opted for room service. Veal scallopini was served to 19 people; "surf 'n' turf" — beef and lobster — to 69 people who picked the lobster "right to the shell," said Lee L. Curtis, the hotel's assistant general manager.

In another interview, broadcast by ABC-TV, Kennedy spoke vividly of others being tortured by the militants.

"We heard torture, uh, long howls and the little yelps at the end as the pain was eased," he said. "Whipping's bad, you hear the crack of the whip, and then this uh, the person lets out his or her breath — ahhh!"

In the AP interview, Kennedy said that except for the aborted rescue mission, he approved of the way former President Carter handled the hostage crisis.

"I think President Carter's way of handling it, not panicking, was the right one," Kennedy said. "Our restrained posture gave us credit. We should have used this restrained posture all along."

Kennedy, who was an economic attache to the embassy when it was seized, was spending his second day of freedom relaxing with his wife, Louisa, who has been a spokeswoman for the hostage families, and their four sons.

Exhausted but exhilarated, he said he was overwhelmed by the reception the hostages were receiving: "I have been terribly, deeply touched."

Kennedy described his captors as "crazies" and said that what he missed most about America was its "civility."

"Americans are civilized and balanced people," he said. "Being in the hands of these crazies, we missed the quality of our American life."

Kennedy said the militants repeatedly told the hostages they were punishing America for its role in the Vietnam war.

"When they led us out of the embassy on Nov. 4, the guards whispered in my ear, 'Vietnam, Vietnam,'" Kennedy said.

He added that the militants papered the hostages' cells with posters of crippled Vietnamese children.

Some also went jogging, attended chapel, stocked up at the PX or got tipsy on liquor. A few gave interviews or played tennis or basketball. One or two went girl-watching.

Theresa Gallegos, asked whether her son William was glad to see her, replied: "His mother? They're out looking for girls."

"They're very eager to embrace and take in everything around them. If you didn't know who these guests were, you wouldn't believe that they were hostages," said Steve Stahle, banquet manager at the Hotel Thayer, their home for 42 hours.

With every passing hour, the former hostages appeared more and more at ease, enthusiastic and talkative.

Fifty-one of the former hostages and their families arrived at the Thayer about 5 p.m. Sunday in six luxury buses. The lobby was filled with $15,000 worth of floral arrangements, many of them red, white and blue.

The 52nd ex-hostage, Regis Ragan, flew directly home to visit his ill mother in Johnstown, Pa., but returned here Monday.

After shaking hands with a dozen members of the hotel staff, the men and women disappeared into their quarters in the 170-room inn.

After a steady diet of rice for 14½ months, they groaned whenever a waitress asked: "Rice or potatoes?" and passed up rice Milanese in favor of baked potato, french fries or buttered noodles.

A four-piece combo — bass, piano, clarinet or flute and drums — played dance music during dinner, but nobody took to the floor that first night. However, they did drink to their long-awaited freedom.

"I don't think their capacity was that good," observed one hotel executive. "But they were all certainly well behaved. Nobody had to be carried to their room. Let's say they were enjoying the experience of alcohol again."

That first dinner was quite private for most families, with little table-hopping. "Definitely a family affair," said Stahle.

Monday night, however, most of the former hostages and their relatives joined West Point's cadets for a filet mignon dinner in the mess hall. And they switched from Sunday night's T-shirt attire to more formal garb.

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — Even as three Americans were held hostage at the Iranian foreign ministry, they were helping six fellow embassy employees elude militants who were scouring Tehran, a former hostage says.

The Iranian government knew six Americans had escaped capture during the takeover of the U.S. Embassy on Nov. 4, 1979, but authorities didn't seem to care or to want to help the militants find the Americans, said Victor Tomseth, a senior embassy political officer.

Eventually, the six used forged Canadian passports and escaped from Iran with the help of the Canadian Embassy.

"In the early days, we had helped in moving them from a couple of different places to keep them a couple of steps ahead of the students," Tomseth said in an interview Monday after returning to the United States.

Tomseth, charge d'affaires Bruce Laingen and security officer Michael Howland spent their 444 days in Tehran held hostage at the foreign ministry under conditions quite different from those endured by the other 49 Americans captives.

The differences in treatment were substantial because the Iranians at the foreign ministry didn't agree with much the militants were doing, Tomseth said.

"There was no effort while we were there to harass us physically," Tomseth said, "and as far as the people at the ministry were concerned, no effort even to do such things as interrogate us."

But the gap between the foreign ministry officials and the militants was greatest in relation to the six who had fled, he said.

"In the first few days after the embassy was taken over, we found out very quickly from the foreign ministry that there were six people who had not been captured during the takeover," Tomseth said in talking with reporters outside the Hotel Thayer in West Point.

"We had at that time a telephone that we could call around town with. Initially, I called a friend of mine in the British embassy and made arrangements to provide protection for a couple of days.

Year" hurt hostage morale.

"How would you react to it if you were being held captive and you can't talk and you can't do anything, you're treated like an animal and then to have something like that rubbed in your face — how would you feel?" he said.

Jones, 40, also said some of the American clergymen who visited the captives while they were being held "were very, very sympathetic to (the Iranians') cause."

Without elaborating, Jones said "there's something that's going to come out that's not going to be too nice for some of the people who did visit us."

Some of the ministers that made those visits have said they did not suspect the hostages were treated badly, and expressed surprise at revelations that have emerged since the hostages' release.

"We want to conduct religious services, so what we saw was obviously limited, and we knew it," said the Rev. Dr. William Sloane Coffin Jr., of Riverside Church in New York.

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — The parents of freed hostage William Gallegos say reports that their son is depressed are "lies" from a reporter who posed as a member of the family to see the young Marine sergeant.

"Some reporter sneaked in and tried to act like a cousin, and that's just a lot of baloney," Dick Gallegos said Monday after he and his wife, Teresa, spent their first full day with their 22-year-old son since his release from Iran.

The two said their son was "normal and happy."

"Bill is fine, normal and unchanged, although he did go through hell," Mrs. Gallegos said. "The hostages are men, they're Marines, they're great."

A man who had visited Gallegos in Wiesbaden, West Germany, soon after the release of the 52 American hostages last week said he found Gallegos depressed and disturbed.

The elder Gallegos said the man who identified himself as a cousin was actually a reporter pretending to be related to the former hostage.

Mr. and Mrs. Gallegos also defended their son and the other Marines who were stationed in Iran to protect the U.S. Embassy before the building was seized on November 4, 1979.

Ticker Tape Parade Scheduled By New York City To Honor 52

By United Press International

Americans from Washington to Wisconsin are striking up the bands, getting out the fireworks and marking off parade routes for weeks of joyous celebrations to welcome home the 52 liberated hostages.

New York City Mayor Edward Koch, despite warnings from the Reagan administration to keep celebrations low-key, said if just one former hostage wanted a gala ticker tape parade — the show would go on.

Barry Rosen of Brooklyn phoned City Hall Monday and said he would be delighted to participate in what Koch called the city's "outpouring of love." The parade was promptly scheduled for Friday.

Secretary of State Alexander Haig earlier had told Koch some of the hostages were not emotionally ready for such a display.

Politicians and the Dallas Cowboy cheerleaders are just a handful of the 5,000 people expected to participate in a "Welcome Home Johnny" parade Saturday in Balch Springs to greet ex-hostage Johnny McKeel Jr.

Organizers said the four-hour parade will be one of the biggest in Dallas County history, complete with a Marine marching band and color guard, planes flying in formation and lots of cheering.

The New York and Texas celebrations are just two of the scores of welcome home events planned for weeks to come to honor the 50 men and two women held captive in Iran for 444 days.

President Reagan signed a proclamation asking Americans to give thanks on Thursday for the safe return of the hostages.

One of the most extravagant bonanzas was planned today in the nation's capital where the hostages and their families will be honored at the White House.

Washington hummed with the sound of bands, rockets and fireworks. Miles and miles of yellow ribbon bedecked everything from National Airport's control tower to the District Building, Washington's city hall. A shower of yellow ribbons will float down on celebrants from 52 rockets.

In Little Rock, Ark., former hostages Robert Blucker and Marine Sgt. Steven Kirtley will remove a yellow ribbon tied around a tree at the governor's mansion.

Arkansas Gov. Frank White is planning a tickertape parade for the two on Feb. 3, followed by an "all-American lunch" of hamburgers in his office.

All schools in Olyphant, Pa., will be closed Thursday and 1,000 small yellow ribbons were given to the school children to wear for festivities honoring the homecoming of native son Michael Mc-trinko.

"It's going to be a holiday for all of us," said Mayor John Chichilla.

The residents of Bellevue, Neb., will present Air Force Capt. Paul Needham with the town's "hostage flag" when he arrives home, probably Thursday.

Iran Militants Threatened To Put Out Black's Eyes

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — Iranian militants threatened to put out the eyes of the lone black American hostage after he was caught destroying classified material in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, the former captive recalls.

"I was interrogated five times," Charles A. Jones said Monday. He said he was "kicked in the ribs, had my hands stepped on, had my head bumped up against the wall, a few other little odds and ends, had a gun put up against my head, was threatened with having my eyes put out — which they didn't do, thank God."

Jones, 40, a communications specialist from Detroit, told reporters that when the Iranians stormed the compound on Nov. 4, 1979, he was in the embassy's vault, "destroying all of our classified material."

Elizabeth Montagne and Lillian Johnson, who were freed at Thanksgiving in 1979 when the Iranians released 13 women and blacks, said Monday in an interview on Cable News Network that Jones was not released because he was suspected of being a CIA spy.

Jones was accompanied by his wife and four children as he talked to reporters in West Point, where the former hostages were reunited with their families.

He said the militants' delight when Time magazine named Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini as 1979's "Man of the Year" hurt hostage morale.

"How would you react to it if you were being held captive and you can't talk and you can't do anything, you're treated like an animal and then to have something like that rubbed in your face — how would you feel?" he said.

Hostage Solution Used As Tool By Bani-Sadr

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr is trying to use the hostage settlement with the United States as a weapon in his power struggle with the ultra-conservative Islamic clerics who dominate Iran's Parliament and its government.

In newspaper editorials and interviews, Bani-Sadr, the leader of the Westernized moderates among the Iranian revolutionaries, is attacking the hard-line clerics and their man Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai on four counts:

1. That the agreement negotiated by Rajai and his associates will return to Iran only $3 billion of the $11 billion in assets it claims were frozen by President Carter in retaliation for the seizure of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran and its staff.

2. That Iran could have reached a much more favorable agreement earlier.

3. That the agreement does not conform to the conditions set for the release of the 52 captive Americans by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the leader of the revolutionary regime.

4. That the seizure of the hostages and their imprisonment for 444 days by militant young supporters of the clerical faction was responsible for most of Iran's present difficulties, including the war with Iraq.

"It stimulated anti-Islamic, anti-Iranian feelings on an international scale, spread a culture of deceit and hypocrisy in domestic political contentions and quarreling, caused the economic boycott, the draining of our remaining free foreign exchange and consequently the stagnation and downfall of national economic growth, and finally provided the grounds for the Iran-Iraq war under unequal economic conditions and their unavailing results," said an editorial in Bani-Sadr's newspaper Enghelab Islami, Iran's best-selling daily.

Bani-Sadr also divorced himself from the agreement as well as the hostage-taking by accusing Rajai and his government of failing to keep him informed of the progress of the negotiations with the United States during the final two weeks in which the settlement was worked out.

Rajai defended the agreement Monday when he presented it formally to the Majlis, Iran's parliament. He also said the country's problems result from the upheaval of revolution, not from the holding of the hostages.

"If we look at revolutions in other countries," the prime minister said, "we would find that all of them suffered economic sanctions, political isolation and even direct and indirect military attack."

"Under no other circumstances could we have obtained from the United States more than what this government has."

Rajai also responded to sentiment in the United States for repudiation of the agreement because of the freed Americans' reports that many of them were beaten, subjected to mental or physical torture, kept in extended solitary confinement and otherwise mistreated.

"Certainly, if the United States refuses to carry out its undertakings, another scandal will be added to the filthy actions of this tyrant," he said.

The speaker of the Majlis, Hashemi Rafsanjani, told his weekly news conference he is certain no torture took place. He said he knew many of the young militants who were the hostages' captors, and "they would not like to hurt any human being."

'Revenge' Group Claiming Responsibility In Blast

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A previously unknown "revenge" group that claimed responsibility for the bombing of an Iranian bank here has threatened to set more bombs and assassinate supporters of the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, FBI agents say.

Telephone callers who claimed responsibility for the bombing early Monday of the Bank Melli Iran said they were part of the American Revenge Committee formed to take revenge against Iran for the treatment of the former hostages.

The development is "of great concern to us," said FBI agent Pat Webb.

No one was injured in the explosion, which shattered windows in several buildings and tore a hole the size of a bowling ball in the bank's black marble facade.

The American Revenge Committee calls to a newspaper, a radio station and a television station were "perhaps closer to the truth" than an earlier call to The Associated Press saying the Jewish Defense League was responsible, Webb said. FBI spokesman Tom Anderson said both claims were under investigation.

Callers who said they were from the revenge committee "provided certain authenticators" — information about the bomb that had not been made public, Webb said.

Carter's Overall Performance In Crisis Receives High Marks

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans give former President Carter good marks for his handling of the hostage crisis, but they believe Iranian fear of dealing with Ronald Reagan as president was a key to winning freedom for the 52 men and women, a new Associated Press-NBC News poll says.

Public judgment of the agreement that ended the crisis is that it was the best deal possible. And, given a choice between honoring the agreement and breaking it in order to punish Iran, Americans say the Reagan administration should abide by the terms of the deal.

The latest AP-NBC News poll is based on telephone interviews with 2,407 adults nationwide conducted Jan. 21-23, after the hostages were released, but before they returned to the United States.

The hostage crisis dominated the final year of the Carter presidency and was a major factor in Carter's failure to win reelection as the public took a dim view of his efforts to free the hostages.

But the agreement that came in the closing hours of the Carter administration changed that perception dramatically.

Fifty-three percent of those interviewed said they approved of Carter's handling of the crisis, while 39 percent disapproved. That's a complete reversal of the 36 percent approval, 53 percent disapproval found in the AP-NBC News poll taken in late October last year. The remainder in each case were not sure.

While Carter does get a good deal of credit for ending the crisis, many Americans said that Carter's election loss to Reagan helped bring about a settlement.

Seventy-one percent said the Iranians settled with Carter because they were afraid of dealing with Reagan, who had taken a hardline stance on the issue. Twenty-three percent disagreed with that conclusion and 6 percent were not sure.

The final agreement ending the crisis came in the early morning hours of Jan. 20, just before Reagan took the reins of power from Carter. The hostages took off from Iran minutes after Reagan took the oath of office.

The agreement that the Carter Administration negotiated with Iran to spring the hostages has been criticized on a number of grounds since its terms were made known last week.

And stories about mistreatment by the Iranian captors have triggered calls for repudiation of the agreement by the Reagan administration.

Americans generally said the deal was the best possible.

Fifty-nine percent of those questioned said that the agreement was the best one possible under the circumstances. Twenty-eight percent thought it was not the best one possible and 13 percent were not sure.

Just over half — 52 percent — said Reagan should honor the terms of the agreement. Thirty percent said the deal should be repudiated and steps taken to punish Iran. Eighteen percent were not sure.

Iran's need for cash was also a reason the crisis was settled, Americans say. By a 58 percent-34 percent edge, the public agreed that the Iranians settled the crisis to free the money needed for the country's sagging economy.

Differences In Tehran, West Point Noted

By PETER ARNETT
AP Special Correspondent
WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — One year ago, I waited at the gates of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, wondering what was happening to the captured Americans inside.

Monday, I waited at the gates of the Hotel Thayer at West Point, knowing I would soon find out.

In both places, lowering clouds nudged nearby mountains, casting the red brick buildings into gloom. And in both places, there were banners flying, crowds cheering and journalists shivering in melting snow.

But the differences were as darkness is to light and hate is to love.

A "corridor of hate" led to the embassy on Telegani Street in Tehran. A quarter-mile of the roadway was festooned with banners that hung like yellow washing from the plane trees lining the pavement. New banners were added each day with slogans like "The Criminal Hostages Deserve Death" and "The American Tradition Is Murder."

Main Street in Highland Falls, running right up to the door of the Hotel Thayer at West Point, is a "corridor of love." Bright yellow ribbons entwined the branches of old oak trees. "God Knows We Love You," read one painted sign. Another one stretched across a large building said, "Freedom, How Sweet It Is." Near the stone gate was posted, "God Bless You on the First Day of the Rest of Your Life."

In Tehran, the small American press corps camped each day outside the heavy gates of the embassy, lenses trained through the iron grills to the courtyard inside where students-turned-kidnappers carried submachine guns.

We waited and waited for the Americans. At West Point, some of those same journalists jostled with a larger group, still waiting for the hostages to appear. The barricades, wooden trestles this time, bent under the strain of pushing bodies, testing the patience of amiable military policemen. By mid-morning hesitant waves from windows indicated that contact had been made. They were on their way down.

The crowd of spectators was smaller on Monday, but on Sunday the scene at Highland Falls was in some ways Tehran in a distorted mirror image.

The American crowd surged along Main Street when the buses rolled into West Point from Stewart International Airport. Tears of joy rolled down flushed faces. Cheerleaders led crowds in shouting, "U.S.A." and patriotic slogans whenever the TV cameras neared.

"This is something I'll be able to tell my grandchildren 15 years from now — that I was here the day the hostages came back," said Grace Sporbert, a lifelong resident of Highland Falls. John Allan of Newburgh said, "This is going to be part of American history and I want to share in it."

The crowds in Tehran were similarly noisy and similarly aware of the historic

Iran Unwilling To Renew Ties

By The Associated Press
Even if the West wants to drop economic sanctions imposed on Iran because of the hostage crisis, Iran is not ready to renew full trade ties, Executive Affairs Minister Behzad Nabavi said today.

"Our importing policy will be one of control," he told Tehran Radio, and said the government might even put the import business under state control.

"We do not want to fill Iran's market again with junk items from foreign countries," said Nabavi, Iran's chief negotiator in the hostage crisis that ended a week ago with the freeing of 52 Americans held 444 days in Iran.

Iran's lack of foreign exchange will also restrict imports, he said, and the short supply of military hardware from the West is not expected to increase.

"It is nonsense that they would deliver to us complicated weapons when they want to smash our Islamic revolution," Nabavi said.

Nabavi reiterated Iran will not resume ties with the United States.

Consistent with what other Iranian leaders have been saying, he said Iran has not suffered badly under sanctions.

"We have succeeded in meeting our essential needs," he said. "It is natural that sanctions affected the prices of some goods but many of the firms of Western capitalism like money better than an order from the president of the United States."

DEAR ABBY

People Excel Despite Overwhelming Odds

DEAR READERS: Yesterday's column was filled with names (submitted by my readers) of those who managed to succeed against the odds. Today's is a continuation of that list.

Have a thalidomide child born with a dwarfed, twisted body without arms, and you have a Terry Wiles, who, with the aid of mechanical devices, learned to play the electric organ, steer a motorboat and paint.

Amputate the cancer-ridden leg of a handsome young Canadian, and you have a Terry Fox, who vowed to run on one leg across the whole of Canada to raise a million dollars for cancer research. (Terry was forced to quit halfway when cancer invaded his lungs, but to date has raised about $20 million.)

After having lost both legs in an air crash, let a British fighter pilot fly again with the RAF, and you have a Douglas Bader, who, with two artificial limbs, was captured by the Germans three times during World War II — and escaped three times!

Blind him and you have a Ray Charles, George Shearing, Stevie Wonder, Tom Sullivan, Alec Templeton or Hal Krents.

Label him "too stupid to learn," and you have a Thomas Edison.

Make him a "hopeless" alcoholic, and you have a Bill Wilson, founder of Alcoholics Anonymous.

Tell her she's too old to start painting at 80, and you have a Grandma Moses. Afflict him with periods of depression so severe that he cuts off his own ear, and you have a Vincent Van Gogh.

Your list would not be complete without a smiling Max Cleland, who lost both legs and an arm in Vietnam and now heads the Veterans Administration in Washington, D.C.

Don't forget Patricia Neal, the fine actress who suffered a severe stroke, but rehabilitated herself against overwhelming odds.

Blind him at age 44, and you have John Milton, who, 16 years later, wrote "Paradise Lost."

Call him dull and hopeless and flunk him in the sixth grade, and you have a Winston Churchill.

Punish her with poverty and prejudice, and she may survive to become another Golda Meir.

Pit her against sexual discrimination, and you have a Madame Curie.

Tell a young boy who loved to sketch and draw that he has no talent, and you have a Walt Disney.

Take a crippled child whose only home he ever knew was an orphanage, and you have a James E. West, who became the first chief executive of the Boy Scouts of America.

Rate him as "mediocre" in chemistry, and you have a Louis Pasteur.

Make him a homosexual, and you have a Michaelangelo and a million other talented people.

Not all disabilities are physical and visible. And not all who have won against the odds are well-known celebrities.

Every family has its own heroes and heroines for whom there is no medal distinguished enough to reward them for their accomplishments.

It is to you, whose names do not appear here but deserve to, that I dedicate this column.

One of the best books we have read in a long time is "Partnership Defense in Bridge" by Kit Woolsey (Devyn Press, 1327 Walnut St., Shelbyville, Ky. 40065, 303 pp., paperback, $8.95). Most books on defensive play concentrate on one hand only. But bridge is a partnership game, in the play of the cards as well as in the bidding. Woolsey sets out to show how the actions of both defenders are inter-related.

For example, consider this hand from the book. To test your defense, cover up the East and South hands and imagine you are sitting West defending against four hearts. You lead the queen of clubs, won by the king as partner contributes the three. Declarer runs the queen of hearts from dummy to your king. What do you lead to the third trick?

The answer lies in the card partner played to the first trick. The three of clubs was a discouraging card, suggesting a shift. The obvious switch is to a spade — partner can't want a diamond shift, because the ace of diamonds is unlikely to go away. And if he wasn't prepared for a spade, he would simply have played a high club at the first trick to request that you continue that suit.

But it is not enough to shift to the ace of spades. You should cater to the possibility that partner has the doubleton king of spades. Lead a low spade. Partner wins the king, returns a spade to your ace and ruffs the spade continuation for a one-trick set.

The price of the book may be slightly high, considering that it is a paperback. But buy it all the same — you should recover the outlay in one evening's bridge even if you play for very low stakes.

Note one point in the bidding. South had no hesitation in going to game after his partner made a jump raise. Two aces is an excellent holding opposite a partner who could make a jump rebid.

Use Winter To Perfect Bread-Baking Skills

NEW YORK (Special) — Winter days are just the right time for perfecting bread-baking skills.

You can bake better, more nutritious bread, say the editors of Organic Gardening Magazine, by adding legumes, milk, seeds or nuts and experimenting with basic bread recipes.

Three ingredients — yeast, liquid and flour — make up the framework for most breads. Other ingredients, such as eggs, dried fruits and spices, keep breads from being monotonous. They make subtle changes in flavor, texture, nutrients and color.

Hints for handling yeast come from the Todale test kitchens in Emmaus, Pa., where Organic Gardening is published and all recipes are tested. Experts there suggest sprinkling yeast over warm liquids instead of pouring liquids on yeast. Be sure to warm the bowl and flour so the liquid doesn't become chilled.

They recommend mixing up to one cup of nuts, seeds, bean sprouts, wheat germ or dried fruits in with last addition of flour to boost the vitamin, mineral and protein level of bread. To take the chill out of your bones, let a hot oven and the aroma of freshly baked bread work their homey magic. Try the basic Whole Wheat Bread recipe below, adding some nuts to one loaf and chopped dried fruit to the other.

WHOLE WHEAT BREAD
1/2 cup water
2 tbsps. butter
3/4 cup warm water
1 tsp. baking yeast
2 tbsps. honey
1 tsp. liquid lecithin
1/2 cup evaporated milk (the small, 5.33 oz. can)
3-3 1/4 cups whole wheat flour
In a small pan, bring the water and butter to a boil. In a large bowl, add the yeast to 3/4 cup of warm water, stirring until it has dissolved. In a mixer bowl, add in the following order: honey, liquid lecithin, boiling water with butter, canned milk, 2 cups whole wheat flour and they yeast water. Mix (using a dough hook) until well blended. Add the remaining 1-3/4 cups of flour. Mix well. Cover the bowl and allow the dough to rest for 15 minutes. Work the dough again with the mixer for one minute. Shape the dough into two small loaves. Place them into well-greased pans and allow them to rise for 25 minutes, or until doubled.

Preheat the oven to 450 degrees. Once the bread has been placed into the oven, reduce the temperature to 400 degrees. After 10 minutes, again reduce the temperature to 375 degrees. Continue baking for 30 minutes. Remove from pans and cool the loaves on a wire rack.

This recipe has been adapted by omitting the salt.

When your bread is sticky, soggy or dry instead of looking like the perfect loaf in the cookbook, how do you know where you went wrong?

The editors of Organic Gardening Magazine have prepared some guidelines to bolster your confidence and get you to roll up your sleeves for another try.

- Didn't rise. Too much or too little heat directly on the yeast may have reduced its action.
- Sticky in the middle. The oven temperature may be uneven.
- Too dark. Too much sugar can make bread overly brown.
- Crumbles. Over fermentation can cause bread to crumble. It also causes a strong yeast odor. Since temperature and humidity changes affect rising times, adapt the recipe every time you bake.
- Hard. Too hot an oven or too long a baking period can cause such a problem. Perhaps too little liquid was used.

Local Crippled Children's Group Starts Fund-Raising Campaign

they are physically able to receive treatment. More than 3,000 children have used the services of the Center. Many of the cases known to the staff in the earliest years of operation are now gainfully employed.

The Center is open to any child in need of therapy. The only requirement for admission is that they be referred by their physician.

Lubbock physicians, who are specialists in areas concerned with cerebral palsy or neuromuscular disabilities, donate their time to conduct clinics in the Center to evaluate handicapped children enrolled in the Center's program.

Because the Crippled Children's Society has no national or state affiliation, all money collected during the once-yearly fund raising drive will be used in Lubbock.

The parents were given an exercise program to carry out at home. She was treated in the Center at regular intervals. Today this child uses words, plays with toys, sits alone, crawls, etc.

The Center is dedicated to working with handicapped children. Admission early in the child's life is desirable. If the handicap follows an illness or injury, the Center prefers to treat cases as early as possible.

The Society co-sponsors the Center with the Rotary Club of Lubbock. The Center has no geographical boundaries from which cases come. To date, children treated have come from nine states.

Recently, one of the cases admitted to the Center was an infant who had a serious illness at six months of age. On admission to the Center, two months after the onset, this child could not move about and did not respond when spoken to or respond to any objects in her environment.

Chimney Fires Caused By Faulty Equipment

FASHION PREVIEW — This model is wearing a Givenchy-designed outfit made of white and navy blue and red check crepe de chine with navy blue stockings and navy blue patent-leather shoes, during a preview of the collection of Haute Couture Spring and Summer 1981, recently in Paris. (AP Laserphoto)

HARTFORD, Conn., (Special) — In scores of American households this winter, the snug atmosphere around the family's wood-burning stove will be broken by a thundering roar, a shaking, red-hot stove pipe and immediate danger to family and belongings.

A chimney fire! It usually results from the build up of a sooty substance called creosote inside the chimney. "When a chimney fire occurs, three actions are crucial," advised Donald Mann, fire safety engineer for Aetna Life & Casualty. Call the fire department. Close all air inlets and dampers. And don't throw water on a hot stove. That could crack the stove and cause a second fire.

Chimney fires, according to Mann, are only of the risks of using or installing a wood-burning stove improperly. "There are a lot of mistakes the inexperienced stove owner can make," Mann said. "Like disposing of ashes in paper bags, or other combustible containers, putting your stove on an unprotected wood floor, using a stove pipe that's too small or cheaply constructed — those things might not cause a fire right away, but they probably will eventually. The risk is serious."

According to the National Fire Data Center, heating systems burning solid fuel (wood or coal), are associated with about 49,000 home fires each year, involving about 250 fatalities, 290 serious injuries and more than $110 million in direct property losses each year.

If you have a wood-burning stove — or are thinking about buying one — it's essential to consider proper installation. Check with local building authorities before putting in your stove, even if this is not required in your town. You will probably get cost — and time-saving advice on materials, space requirements, suppliers and workmanship. And arrange for an inspection after your stove is installed.

Mann emphasized that stove owners should follow installation instructions to the letter. "Above all, don't try to shortcut the manufacturer's directions, don't skimp on clearances from walls and floors, and don't count on words of mouth advice from other stove owners." Covering a wall with aluminum foil, for example, does not make it non-combustible.

Stove owners should follow detailed instructions, available from the manufacturer or retailer, to be sure that stove pipe dimensions and materials are adequate. Ordinarily, Mann explained, the pipe should not pass through a wall or ceiling. "If you must go through a combustible wall, you'll have to allow an 18 inch clearance all around the pipe. Or, you can use a section of approved factory-built chimney."

As for hooking the stove pipe to a masonry chimney, you'll need to extend the connector through the masonry wall of the chimney to the inner face of the flue liner (not beyond), and cement it to the masonry. It's important to use high-temperature cement.

Remember that every stove needs a damper or draft regulator to help control combustion. If yours is automatic, be sure it's installed according to the manufacturer's instructions.

Your chimney should be inspected before installing your stove and annually thereafter. If you are buying a factory-built chimney, be sure it has recognized testing laboratory approval. If you are connecting to an existing fireplace chimney, you must seal off the chimney below the stove pipe's point of entry to prevent toxic gases from coming into the room. Mann added that it's dangerous to connect more than one heating device to a single flue.

As for chimney maintenance, remember that creosote residue accumulates on a relatively cool chimney lining and, when ignited, causes an extremely dangerous fire. To prevent creosote build-up, maintain a moderate fire — hot enough to prevent a cool flue liner, but not so hot that it ignites creosote already formed.

Burn only dry, well-seasoned hardwood. (Green wood produced large amounts of creosote and is especially dangerous in an "air-tight" stove; trash is highly flammable and will produce a sudden, hot fire.)

Above all, never start a fire with gasoline, kerosene or other flammable liquids. And don't use artificial logs in your stove. The gases generated could cause an explosion.

To melt small amounts of creosote on your flue lining, burn your stove hot once a day, for about 30 minutes. Don't make this your first fire of the day — the sudden heat could crack your stove or ignite the creosote residue.

However conscientious you are in day-to-day habits, it's still necessary to have your chimney inspected each fall for creosote. Inspections should be more frequent — as often as once a month — if you have been burning green wood or suspect a creosote build-up.

Although the precaution may seem obvious, Fuller said many people fail to keep clothing, log hoops and other combustible materials at least three feet away from the stove. Parents should also remember that a wood-burning stove does not look "hot" to a small child. Mark off an area surrounding the stove which is "off limits" to small fry.

"A wood-burning stove is an excellent way to save on your fuel bills," Mann concluded. "My family has one and we get a lot of pleasure out of it. But we realize it's not a toy — it has to be treated with respect."

Pro-Lifer Says Political Analysts Wrong

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
 UPI Health Editor

Are Right-to-Lifers riding on President Reagan's coattails?

Hardly, says Dr. Mildred F. Jefferson, president of the National Right-to-Life Crusade, who thinks it could be the other way around.

Jefferson's analysis of the Reagan landslide differs from many analysts that the landslide was a mandate against incompetence in the federal government and a protest against inflation.

Ronald Reagan got elected to the presidency, as she sees it, as the result of a new politics "that gives government back to the people."

"The political analysts are wrong," she said.

She was as adamant about that as she is about abortion being wrong.

"We are creating a new politics," she said, "and it embodies a restatement of the best of the old — a government of the people returned back to the people."

"We have been working eight years to bring this about."

By "we" Jefferson said she was referring to all persons fighting abortion and seeking a Human Life Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

Jefferson, who was a member of the Republican campaign's Family Policy Advisory Committee, said such an amendment would establish legal protection of life inside as well as outside the womb. She has hopes it will become law before 1990.

About the new politics: "It is neither right wing or left wing or anything else," Jefferson claims. "It is made up of the middle class and it is black, white, rich and even poor. We are not a part of anybody's group."

By that, she means that Right to Life is not tied up with movements to stop E.R.A. or put prayer back in the schools, the Moral Majority or anything else. Right to Life critics frequently say the movement is tied up with those other ones.

Jefferson, a Boston general surgeon, has been awarded 22 honorary degrees in recent years. She is a native of Pittsburgh, Texas, a graduate of Harvard Medical School, and assistant professor at the Boston University School of Medicine and a staffer at Boston University Medical Center's University Hospital. She said she has been fighting abortion since 1970 when the American Medical Association altered its policy on the controversial subject.

That year, as Jefferson tells it, the AMA said abortion is okay in a state which has legalized it. If, for example, in such a state a woman and her doctor in private decided on abortion, the physician was not guilty of unethical medical conduct.

"This was an about-face from the traditional policy that a doctor must protect life and do no harm," she said.

After the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in 1973 that abortion was no longer unlawful, Jefferson plunged into the Right to Life movement.

She was president of the National Right to Life Committee between 1975 and 1978; chairman, between 1974 and 1975. Later she founded the separate Right to Life Crusade to help groups not affiliated with the Right to Life Committee to "plug into" the cause.

Jefferson has a reputation for not backing away from confrontation with groups or individuals who do not share the Right to Life view of abortion.

She also has a reputation for being a skillful fighter.

"You must be on a lot of enemies lists," a visitor remarked recently. "I don't think of such things," Jefferson said.

She was asked about hate mail.

"I get some — as anyone does who is in the public eye and involved in controversy."

Has she ever had tires slashed?

"I don't own a car," she said.

"Do you ever feel threatened?" the visitor asked.

"I'm not foolhardy," Jefferson said, explaining she does not go out of her way to raise ire of those who do not see eye to eye with her.

Jefferson was asked about one of the most controversial and heart-wrenching issues concerning abortion — That of parents faced with making a decision whether to abort a defective fetus to prevent birth of a baby with handicaps.

The technology for determining the condition of the fetus is called amniocentesis. A doctor slips a sharp tube into the abdomen of the mother-to-be and draws out a bit of fluid in which the fetus floats. By analyzing cells in this fluid, doctors can tell whether the fetus is defective.

DEADLINES

Any information for a daily edition must be in our office two days in advance of publication.

Sunday edition deadlines are 5 p.m. the preceding Tuesday for articles with pictures and noon the preceding Wednesday for articles only. Only Friday and Saturday weddings will appear on Sunday; wedding announcements must run within five days of the event.

Engagement announcements must be submitted at least five weeks prior to the wedding date.

The technology has been said to mark the beginning of the era of survival of the fittest.

(Other prenatal technologies make it possible to view the baby in the womb, and even to tell the sex.)

The technologies also raise ethical questions on which experts disagree, for example: Is it ethical to abort a defective fetus and start a new pregnancy if you are a parent-to-be who wants a non-handicapped baby? What about abortion as a sex selection technique — aborting a male fetus if you want a girl, or vice versa?

There is no hesitation about Jefferson's views on the questions.

Aborting a defective fetus, she says, is "throwing the baby out with the defect," she said. Aborting because the fetus is the "wrong" sex, she says, is equally disgusting and wrong in itself and also upsets a balance of the sexes apparently set up by nature.

What about the difficulties of caring for a defective child?

"My sympathy and concern go out to persons with such problems," Jefferson said. "But parents have a duty, a right and obligation to care for their children."

Jefferson fears aborting defective fetuses or those not of the preferred sex could mark the beginning of a horror era.

For example, it could lead to aborting fetuses with dark hair when one wanted a blue-eyed blonde. Or the abortion of all except fetuses who could be determined, so far as is possible, would reach adulthood as tall, thin. Or whose I.Q. is not high enough for parents-to-be.

The crux of the controversy, as Jefferson sees it, is a conflict of world views.

She said the conflict is the Judaic-Christian world view versus the secularist-humanist world view.

"The Judaic-Christian world view," she said, "holds that man is made in the image of God and is not in control of his own destiny."

"The secularist-humanist world view holds man is an accident of nature and must be in control. It places man at the center, a concept of selfhood."

"This secularist-humanist view condones freedom to select abortion, suicide, euthanasia. It is a concept of personal control. This is self-centered and self-defeatist."

She believes the people in the new politics, by their vote in November, showed they reject the secularist-humanist view.

When Ronald Reagan was elected president, Jefferson was among the first to declare it "a victory for Right to Life politics."

"The foundation of President Reagan's stunningly successful campaign is the coalition of our massive and diverse pro life, pro family forces," she said. "We believe that the first function of government must be to insure and to guarantee the human rights of its citizens and that the most important of these is the right to life."

"The right to life in politics is not a candidate's option."

"In our priority politics, if a man or woman does not undertake the obligation of government to preserve and to protect life, we consider that candidate unworthy of elective office."

"We intend to apply this principle to every office from town dog-catcher to president of the United States."

"We are bringing the government of the people back to the people."

As Jefferson sees it, that, in a nutshell, is the "new politics."

Senators Block Appointment Of Regent

AUSTIN (AP) — Tradition-minded senators rallied behind one of their colleagues Monday in blocking the appointment of a Pan American University regent the senator called "personally obnoxious."

As a courtesy to Sen. Carlos Truan, the Senate voted 28-0 against the appointment of Billie Pickard of Raymondville, a former school board president in that Lower Rio Grande Valley city.

Traditionally, governors clear appointments to state boards and commissions with the hometown senators. Truan, D-Corpus Christi, said Gov. Bill Clements named Mrs. Pickard to the board although the governor "knew full well" Truan was opposed to her.

Truan said Mrs. Pickard as a member of the Raymondville school board in 1968-77 was "beyond a doubt ... insensitive to the needs of children."

The rejection was a political defeat for Clements and a personal loss for Tobin Armstrong, the governor's special assistant for appointments and a close friend of Mrs. Pickard.

Although Armstrong was quoted last month as saying "there's not much we can do about" Truan's opposition, Truan maintains that Armstrong's "parting shot" to him was, "We'll run over you on this one."

Truan said Mrs. Pickard consistently opposed federally funded bilingual education programs as well as other remedial programs and school lunches for children from low-income families. He noted most of the school children in Raymondville are Mexican-Americans.

Sen. John Leedom of Dallas stated in voting with other Republicans and the Democratic majority that he was doing so as a courtesy to Truan and not judging Mrs. Pickard's qualifications.

The Senate voted 28-0 to confirm the appointment of former Gov. Preston Smith of Lubbock to the Texas College Coordinating Board. Smith was named to fill the unexpired term of Tom Rhodes of Dallas, who resigned to accept Clements' appointment as a University of Texas regent. The Coordinating Board term extends to Aug. 31, 1985.

Smith, 68, was governor from 1969 to 1973.

Senators delayed a vote on the appointment of Dr. S.L. Abbott of El Paso, a former GOP state representative, to the Texas 1986 Sesquicentennial Commission. Sen. Tati Santiesteban, D-El Paso, asked for the postponement.

"I want to meet personally with Abbott and ask him a few questions," Santiesteban told a reporter. He said he had no plans to call Abbott before the Senate Nominations Subcommittee for a public hearing.

By a 28-0 vote, the Senate confirmed the following Clements' appointments:

State Commission for the Blind — Susan Fischer, Dallas; Emmett Moore, Harris; William Conner, Tarrant; Frank Boggus, Cameron; and Paula Schumacher, Harris.

State Board of Medical Examiners — Dr. Paul Cunningham, Galveston.

Texas Tourist Development Board — Dominic Bernardi Jr., El Paso; William Ochse, Bexar; and Susan Richardson, Randall.

School Land Board — Fred Wulff, McCullough; and Lola Bonner, Aransas.

State Depository Board — William Elliott, Dallas.

Texas 1986 Sesquicentennial Commission — Joe Dealy, Dallas; Ann Quirk, Bexar; Dr. Robert Wilson, Dallas; Mrs. Omar Harvey, Dallas; Mrs. Risher Randall, Harris; Nancy Canon, Galveston; Martha Garner, Randall; Vidal Cantu

Jr., Webb; and Margaret Williams, Harris.

Crime and Narcotics Advisory Commission — Dr. Russell Deter, El Paso; Walter McFarland, Travis; and Jacques Kiere, Rockwall.

Texas Mining Council — William Kelly, El Paso; David Cullen, Harris; Edward Vetter, Dallas; Robert Allen, Harris; Mack Wallace, Travis; John Montgomery, Freestone; George Hall Jr., Harris; Nathan Reiter Jr., Bowie; Dan Krause, Dallas; Franklin Daugherty, Brewster; James Kellum, Dallas; and Thomas Craddock, Midland.

Texas Prosecutors Coordinating Council — Claude Kelley Jr., Gillespie; Howard Derrick, Schleicher; Dick W. "Speedy" Hicks, Bandera; and Joe Schott, Medina.

Antiquities Committee — Dr. William Holden, Lubbock, and Dr. William Reeder, Travis.

Texas Civil Air Patrol — Henry Smyth Jr., Dallas; James Johnson, El Paso; and Col. Baylor Haynes, Rockwall.

Preston Smith Pledges Support For Tech Engineering Building

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

When the announcement came Monday that former Gov. Preston Smith of Lubbock had been confirmed by the state senate to be a member of the state's higher education board, Smith was at Texas Tech University learning about a proposal on which he now will be able to vote when the state board meets Friday.

Smith, 68, who served as governor from 1969 to 1973, was appointed by Gov. Bill Clements to the Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System. He was named to fill the unexpired term of Tom Rhodes of Dallas, who resigned to become a University of Texas regent. The term Smith fills extends to Aug. 31, 1985.

Smith, the only Texas Tech graduate to become governor of Texas, says he will vote in favor of Tech's proposal for a $4 million Petroleum Engineering Building when the Coordinating Board meets this week.

Authority to approve or deny construction at all public colleges and universities in the state is one of the powers of the state board.

Clements has not designated a chairman of the board, but there is strong speculation that Smith will be given that role.

Lubbockites have been urging the governor to appoint another area resident to the board. Of the 18 members now, one is from Lubbock, one each from Plainview, Hereford and Odessa, two from El Paso, two from Fort Worth, two from Dallas, two from Corpus Christi, two from Houston, and one each from Rio Grande City, San Antonio, Tyler and Texas City.

During his two terms as governor, Smith appointed several persons to the Coordinating Board, including three West Texans who have been re-appointed by other governors and remain on the board.

They are Marshall Formby of Plainview, appointed by Smith in 1971, whose term expires in 1983; Wayne E. Thomas of Hereford, appointed by Smith in 1969, whose term expires in 1983; and Sam D. Young Jr. of El Paso, appointed by Smith in 1969, whose term expires Aug. 31 this year.

Smith says he hasn't had time to study many of the issues facing the Coordinating Board because he was waiting for his appointment to become official before doing so.

"I do plan to make whatever contribution I can," he said of his board membership, noting that he has had an interest in higher education throughout his political career including his legislative years in the Texas House and Senate.

"I hope I can really make a worthwhile contribution in the field," he said, although he has no goals outlined now.

However there is one issue on which Smith is knowledgeable and it is one on which he will be asked to vote as one of his first duties on the Coordinating Board.

That issue is Tech's request for permission to build a $4 million Petroleum Engineering Building. Dr. John Bradford, dean of the College of Engineering, notes that private industry has agreed to finance an additional $1.5 million to equip the new building with modern laboratory technology.

"I had lunch (Monday) with a group of Sun Oil company executives and they are lending tremendous support to the project in a financial way," Smith said. He noted that his vote in favor of the project will be based partially on the private industry support for the project as well as his own observations. "After seeing the existing facilities, I see the need for expanding the petroleum studies here."

"If he had done as much as he has talked, the state of Texas would be paying us taxes," Doggett said. "He does have a plan to cut back something, and that something is campaign promises, which have been cut back at least 50 percent."

The House members participating in the news conference to respond to Clements' speech were Reps. John Bryant, D-Dallas; Ron Coleman, D-El Paso; Jerry Benedict, D-Angleton; Gonzalo Barrientos, D-Austin; and W.S. Heatly, D-Paducah.

Asked if he considered the attacks partisan, Clements replied, "I don't look at it that way. It depends on who you talk to. As usual there are strong feelings to do what is right for Texas, but let's don't start any fusses at this point."

Clements declined to comment on specifics in the detailed statement drafted by the House members.

"The governor of Texas should strive to see that Texas ranks first not in oil company profits, but in public education, employment, free enterprise competition and real tax relief for its citizens. The current governor has failed to provide any leadership in any of these areas, or in terms of service to the elderly, handicapped, ill or needy. We appeal to the governor of Texas to serve the people who elected him and their needs, rather than the desires of his wealthy cronies and the industries they and their lobbyists represent."

Clements Ignoring Criticism From Democratic Legislators

AUSTIN (UPI) — Gov. Bill Clements has brushed aside biting criticism directed at him by half a dozen Democratic legislators, saying he does not consider the comments to be partisan and isn't interested in starting a fuss early in the legislative session.

Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, made his criticisms of Clements in a personal privilege speech to the Senate, and five House Democrats called a news conference to issue what they termed a response to the governor's state-of-the-state address.

Both Doggett and the House members accused Clements of purposely omitting from his address to the Legislature recommendations on such state problems as interest rates, utility rates and care of the elderly, and said Clements dropped or reduced earlier recommendations for $1 billion in tax relief and a reduction in the number of state employees.

is to assume that we are operating at peak productivity."

Clements said the Texas State Government Effectiveness Program he initiated two years ago for the state's largest 12 agencies would be broadened to include higher education.

He said the effectiveness program has resulted in elimination of 532 full-time state jobs in the past two years, the first time since 1945 that the growth of the state's bureaucracy had been halted.

"We have stopped one of the nation's fastest growing state bureaucracies dead in its tracks, and while our population will continue to grow, our state bureaucracy will not. I think this is an outstanding achievement," Clements said.

Proposed Budget Shows College Funds Increase

AUSTIN (UPI) — Gov. Bill Clements says his proposed budget will include a 41 percent increase in funds for Texas' community colleges, but warned better management will be needed to fulfill the future needs of the state's higher education institutions.

In a luncheon speech to the Texas Public Community-Junior College Association Monday, Clements said he will propose $202 million be spent during the next biennium to meet the growing needs of public community colleges.

But Clements said reduced revenues in oil and gas taxes, coupled with rapid growth, will demand that the state's community colleges be managed more efficiently.

He said the alternatives would be to reduce services provided by state government, increase taxes, or "improve our productivity and efficiency so that we don't have to resort to either number one and number two."

"I think that the record shows that dollar for dollar, public community colleges are one of the best investments our state has made," he said. "However, I believe that there is always room to improve our efficiency. To think otherwise, response to the governor's state-of-the-state address.

Both Doggett and the House members accused Clements of purposely omitting from his address to the Legislature recommendations on such state problems as interest rates, utility rates and care of the elderly, and said Clements dropped or reduced earlier recommendations for $1 billion in tax relief and a reduction in the number of state employees.

200 Feared Dead In South Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Swirling floodwaters that flashed through the semi-desert Karoo region of South Africa may have claimed more than 200 lives, according to press reports from the area. So far there has been no official tally.

"Our whole town has disappeared," said Mayor J. Ellis of the grain and lamb marketing center of Laingsburg, the area hit hardest by torrential rains Sunday and Monday.

He told a television reporter with the South African Broadcasting Commission that the water rose six feet in less than 10 minutes.

"There was nothing to be done," he said. "You just couldn't do anything."

Residents in the town of 4,000, about 160 miles northeast of Cape Town, reported at least 140 people missing and 15 bodies recovered.

Among the missing were 19 to 21 residents at an old-age home who were swept away and believed drowned. Many residents took refuge on roof tops when a river through town overran its banks and unleashed a massive wall of water.

A reporter who flew over the town in a helicopter said, "The devastation is absolutely incredible" and described a torrent of water from the normally placid and shallow Buffels River swirling through Laingsburg.

Lawyer Claims Fight Preceded Shooting

LIBERTY (AP) — A defense lawyer says an obvious altercation between Police Daniel J. and his wife preceded the Jan. 19 fatal shooting of the former Texas House speaker.

Andrew J. Lannie would not elaborate Monday but said a physician's examination tests head and abdominal bruises Mrs. Daniel received.

Sheriff C.L. "Buck" Eckols meanwhile said trace metal and fingerprint tests indicated Daniel did not hold the rifle with which he was shot. He said ballistic tests were to be made today in Austin with the results expected to a grand jury Wednesday afternoon.

Eckols earlier had said trace metal tests indicated Mrs. Daniel, who was charged with murder Saturday, had held the rifle investigators reported finding about 25 feet from the body.

The sheriff said he knows the murder motive but would not discuss it.

Police Seek Motive In Sniper Incident

ARLINGTON (UPI) — Police said today it was unclear what triggered an aerospace engineer to ambush two youths with a shotgun, killing one and critically wounding the other.

Police said they would resume a search of the residence of Richard Wade Tiedemann, 33, looking for clues to indicate what prompted the man tactical officers killed when he shot at them with the same gun allegedly used to gun down the boys.

Investigators searched the house Monday, an Arlington police spokesman said, and "nothing noteworthy" was discovered.

The only clue to the shootings were neighbors' reports that Tiedemann, described by residents as an unfriendly loner, had complained in the past about the noise caused by motorcycles, police said.

"There apparently had been some difficulty, being irritated over the noise," said Capt. Bobby Wiggins. "From what we hear from the neighbors, he may have had one complaint on the motorcycles in the past."

Exxon Corp. Reports Fourth-Quarter Loss

NEW YORK (AP) — Exxon Corp., the world's largest oil company, said today its profits fell 1.1 percent in last year's fourth quarter as foreign earnings sagged.

Exxon's report followed an announcement last week by Texaco Inc. that its fourth-quarter earnings fell 6.3 percent in 1980 amid weak demand for petroleum products following nearly two years of steep crude oil price hikes.

Exxon said fourth-quarter net income totaled $1.35 billion, or $1.12 a share, against $1.37 billion, or $1.10 a share, a year before. Sales rose to $29.85 billion from $25.82 billion.

For 1980, Exxon reported earnings of $5.66 billion, or $1.03 a share, up 31.8 percent from the $4.29 billion, or $0.74 a share, it earned in 1979. Sales rose to $110.46 billion from $84.97 billion, and return on shareholders' equity climbed to 23.6 percent from 20.1 percent.

Treasury Bill Rates Down

WASHINGTON (AP) — Banks and thrift institutions, beginning Thursday, may pay up to 14.371 percent interest on popular six-month money market certificates, a drop from the current rate that reflects a decline in Treasury bill yields.

The current ceiling on the $10,000-minimum-deposit certificates, which are linked to the 26-week Treasury bill rate, is 14.721 percent.

The average discount rate on 26-week Treasury bills dropped to 14.121 percent from the 14.471 percent of a week earlier, the government said after its weekly auction Monday. The new figure is the lowest since the 13.182 percent reported Jan. 5.

The average rate on 13-week Treasury bills dipped to 13.199 percent from 13.595 percent the week before. Monday's level was the lowest since the 13.601 percent of Jan. 5.

Dow Jones Average Advances

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market surged ahead today, reversing a six-day slide.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks gained 7.42 to 946.33 in the first two hours of trading, after losing 1.28 points on Monday and more than 33 points over the last six sessions.

Advances outnumbered declines by a 2-1 margin, among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The market had given ground in each of the last six sessions, with trading activity generally light amid investor apprehension over high interest rates and uncertainty about the prospects for curbing inflation.

Analysts said the market appeared to be awaiting concrete evidence of how President Reagan will construct his economic package.

In Washington this morning, Treasury Secretary Donald Regan said Reagan will shortly propose a "bold, innovative economic recovery plan." Regan said the president would make a televised economic address to the nation next week.

Investors also were awaiting release today of the government's report on December durable goods orders.

That report will be watched for signs of a slowdown that could mean a potential easing of economic pressures, analysts say.

Among today's early prices, oil stocks were sharply higher after several weak sessions. The oil's resurgence was laid to news reports that Reagan was prepared to lift oil price and allocation controls, possibly as early as Wednesday.

Exxon was up 1/4 at 70 1/2. It reported a 1.1 percent decline in net income for the final quarter of 1980 and a 31 percent increase in full-year 1980 earnings. Texaco, after losing 1/4 on Monday, was up 1/4 at 43 1/4. Atlantic Richfield, which named William F. Kieschnick president and chief operating officer to replace Thornton F. Bradshaw, was up 1/4 at 61.

Precious metals issues were mostly higher, after posting sharp declines on Monday.

Big Board volume in the first two hours of trading was 18.37 million shares, up from 14.97 during the same period Monday.

The NYSE's composite index of common stocks was up 0.55 at 75.00.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index gained 2.87 to 341.44.

Sewage Water Used For Drinking Supply

CLIFTON, N.J. (AP) — The Passaic Valley Water Commission says drought has forced it to put three times the normal chlorine into water from the Passaic River to make it fit for human consumption.

More than half the contents of the river, which supplies drinking water to 2 million people in northern New Jersey, is sewage because of skimpy rainfall and diversion of water to other drought-troubled areas, Wendall Inhofner of the commission said this week.

The treatment makes the water safe to drink, he said, but gives it an acid smell and taste. He said the high levels of chlorine pose no health danger.

Salvadoran Jets Down Nicaraguan Plane

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Salvadoran fighter jets shot down a Nicaraguan air force plane and a small Costa Rican plane which was airlifting guns to rebel forces fighting to seize power in El Salvador, military sources say.

The air strikes, which the sources said occurred within hours of each other Sunday in southeastern El Salvador, were the first reported incidents involving a Nicaraguan air force plane in the 17-day leftist offensive against El Salvador's U.S.-backed junta. Neither Nicaragua nor Costa Rica had any immediate comment.

The Reagan Administration is expected to cancel all U.S. aid to Nicaragua if firm evidence is found to support allegations that Nicaragua's Sandinista government is aiding the guerrillas.

In what was believed to be the heaviest fighting so far, government gunners shelled guerrilla columns for the fourth consecutive day Monday around six towns in northern Chalatenango province where rebels have launched hit-and-run attacks against military garrisons.

Troops barred reporters from entering the battle zone, which has been a major guerrilla stronghold near the Honduras border since the start of the "general offensive" Jan. 10.

At dawn Sunday, a government jet shot down a Costa Rican-registered twin-engine Piper Aztec that had just parachuted 70 automatic rifles to leftist guerrillas, an armed forces communique said.

The plane crashed in a fireball near San Marcos Lempa, 42 miles southeast of San Salvador, but the pilot survived and was captured by army ground troops, the communique said.

West Bank Settlements Approved By Parliament

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin, racing to complete his controversial settlement program before national elections next year, won parliamentary approval for three more settlements on the occupied West Bank.

The move by parliament Monday swept aside objections by Deputy Prime Minister Yigael Yadin and gave Begin the go-ahead for nine of the last 10 settlements in the program, which has been vigorously opposed by West Bank Arabs.

At the same time, Begin's deputies sanctioned the takeover by 300 settlers of a 40-acre barren hilltop near Givon, about six miles northwest of Jerusalem. The site was set aside for an outpost three years ago, but no construction has taken place.

Begin's Housing Minister, David Levy, Sunday clashed with Agriculture Minister Ariel Sharon, arguing the settlers will not be allowed to build on the barren, windswept site without proper planning.

Sharon, long the settlers' champion within the government, retorted that "it is unthinkable that we would tell settlers who have already been promised the site to leave what are, after all, public lands."

Fears that the opposition Labor Party will win Israel's national elections this summer and freeze the settlement program lent an air of urgency to the approval of the three West Bank settlements by the parliament's Foreign Affairs and Defense Committee.

Bombings End IRA Cease-Fire

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Five explosions in towns throughout Northern Ireland and a firebombing of a Belfast warehouse injured 13 people in what police described as a provisional IRA blitz breaking a three-month cease-fire.

The attacks indicated the IRA has dropped a 12-week cease-fire called during a hunger strike by IRA inmates of Maze prison who ended their protest fast at Christmas.

In one of the later bombings Monday, 10 people were injured, none of them seriously, police said. The bomb exploded in Portadown, County Armagh, injuring three members of the British Army's Ulster Defense Regiment and seven civilians being escorted from the area, police said.

Solidarity Union Leader Meets With Peasants Holding Sit-In

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Solidarity union leader Lech Walesa met today with peasants holding a sit-in to press demands for a farmers union, and university students and workers continued protests around the nation for various local grievances.

There was still the hope that negotiations between the government and Solidarity on the issue of work-free Saturdays could begin by the end of the week, but there was confusion over the schedule of a key Solidarity leadership meeting originally set for Wednesday and Thursday.

What Solidarity called a general strike began at 6 a.m. in the southern city of Bielsko-Biala and three-hour strikes in a number of local factories and city transport took place in the central city of Lodz — a major textile center.

"Only essential factories stayed in operation," a Solidarity spokesman in Lodz said, saying the strike was to protest what Solidarity considers the government's failure to fulfill the agreements signed with workers to end the mass strikes last summer.

An estimated 30,000 students in Lodz continued their weeklong sit-in strike at the university to press a list of demands including that Marxism be an optional rather than mandatory subject.

Solidarity in Bielsko-Biala said 300 plants were on strike and would continue the stoppage until a government delegation arrived to negotiate the union's demand that several provincial officials be removed.

"So far we have no response from the government," a Solidarity spokesman there said.

Strikes of several hours duration also were threatened in several other towns.

DR. LAMB Muscles Still Possible

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB — Can a man 54 years old, whose muscles have shrunk from lack of use, restore them to what they were in his mid 20s? What would be the best method to obtain the best results?

DEAR READER — Usually, unless there is a medical reason that limits an individual's ability to exercise, a person can increase his muscle strength and muscle size at almost any age. Muscle size and strength is largely dependent upon what kind and how much exercise a person does. There are some genetic limitations as all of us are not born equal. But if you once had good muscular development, you can usually regain it.

The limitations are the degeneration of nerve and muscle fibers that occur with age. But by increasing the size of active muscle fibers sufficiently, you can usually compensate for that. Another limitation is circulation. If your arteries to your legs are clogged with fatty-cholesterol deposits and the circulation cannot be increased sufficiently, you will not be able to increase the leg muscle size as much as you might wish.

Still another limitation is nutrition. If an older person is skinny because he will not or cannot eat and absorb enough energy calories, he will have trouble growing muscles. It takes energy to grow any kind of new tissue.

There are a lot of myths about exercise, one being that after middle age you can't develop muscles. Other myths are discussed in The Health Letter number 14-12, Exercise Wise, which I am sending you. Readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of The Avalanche-Journal, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

A muscle grows as big and gets as strong as it needs to be to contract against resistance, such as while lifting a weight. It follows that strength exercises are the most useful in developing your musculature.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm a 26-year-old woman. My doctor says I have a growth on the wall of my uterus about the size of a lemon. He said it wasn't cancer. Is this growth keeping me from getting pregnant? Should I have it removed or wait another 12 months as he suggested? I also got a prescription for the pill. Will this harm the growth? Can a man feel this growth during intercourse?

DEAR READER — Apparently your doctor thinks you have a fibroid. These are quite common and they are not malignant. The tumor is composed of fibrous and muscular tissue from the uterus. If one is located just under the lining of the uterus it can cause excessive bleeding. They can prevent a pregnancy, which is why they are removed sometimes in young women. In some cases the tumor can be removed without taking out the uterus.

If I understand your letter, it is a bit strange if you are taking birth control pills and wondering if the fibroid is keeping you from getting pregnant. The pill and your normal female hormones do help support the fibroid. Often such tumors shrink after a woman passes through the menopause because of the decrease in female hormones.

No, a man cannot feel what is in your uterus during intercourse — only what is in the vagina. If you are not having symptoms it shouldn't hurt to wait and see if a fibroid enlarges.

Arab Nations Calling For 'Holy War'

TAIF, Saudi Arabia (AP) — King Hassan II of Morocco and Palestinian guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat today urged the Islamic summit to wage a "Jihad," or "Holy War," against Israel and its backers to regain Arab sovereignty over Jerusalem.

But the conservative North African monarch was careful to define the holy war as a "moral and material struggle" so as not to imply military action against the Jewish state, which claims all of Jerusalem as its "eternal capital."

Arafat, head of the Palestine Liberation Organization and vice chairman of the Islamic Conference, seconded Hassan's call, saying, "I'm sure that his majesty will pursue his Jihad until the Palestinians and all Moslems have liberated Palestine, with Jerusalem as its capital."

Hassan asked the leaders to draw a lesson from the inaugural session of the summit at the Grand Mosque in Mecca when "we (prayed) on the same floor in equality and humility to Allah, to live up to the responsibility given to us to liberate Jerusalem and regain Palestinian and Islamic rights."

The monarch is head of a committee drafting a document that is reported to call for collective economic and diplomatic action by Islamic states to counter the Israeli annexation of Jerusalem. The call for Jihad was last sounded in July by Saudi Crown Prince Fahd after Israel's Parliament declared the Arab sector of Jerusalem part of its capital.

Saudi Arabia, America's chief supplier of Arab oil, attacked the United States at the Islamic summit Monday for its support of Israel and pledged unlimited support to the Palestinians' struggle to "regain their rights."

It indicated, however, its support would not include an oil embargo.

As the 37-nation meeting moved toward adoption of an anti-Israeli resolution and approval of another attempt to mediate between warring Iraq and Iran, Fahd, the strongman of the Saudi government, accused the United States of "perpetuating Israel as an alien presence within the Arab structure."

His foreign minister, Prince Saud al Faisal, told a news conference the Muslim world hopes President Reagan will produce a new Middle East policy "that bases itself on the realities and real factors that create the conflict in the area."

He urged the new president to take into account Arab and Islamic demands for Israel's withdrawal from East Jerusalem and other territory captured in the 1967 Arab-Israeli War and recognition of the rights of the Palestinians.

A resolution introduced Monday, the second day of the conference, called for pressure on Israel's supporters so they would force the Jewish state to give up the occupied territories and the "freezing" of Israel's membership in the United Nations.

It also called on Islamic nations to use "all their military, political, economic and natural resources — including oil — as an effective means for upholding the natural, inalienable rights of the Palestinian people." But Prince Faisal reiterated the opposition of his government, the Arab world's biggest oil producer, to "using the weapon of oil" against Israel's supporters.

For the second time in two days, Prince Fahd called on Arab-Muslim Iraq and Persian-Muslim Iran to stop fighting and resolve their disputes by peaceful means. And he again accused the Soviet Union of invading and occupying "Islamic Afghanistan" and demanded a Soviet withdrawal "without delay."

Conference sources said that despite the failure of attempts by the Islamic nations and the United Nations to mediate between Iraq and Iran, the conference would authorize still another attempt.

The sources said a high-level committee would be formed to try to find a solution acceptable to the two warring countries and would coordinate its efforts with U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim.

Talks End On Airline Merger

MIAMI (AP) — Eastern Airlines Inc. and Braniff International Corp. announced today that they are breaking off 6-week-old merger talks that some industry analysts said were doomed from the outset because of the airlines' heavy debt loads.

"It does not seem feasible to proceed down this road at this time," said a joint statement issued by Frank Borman, chairman and president of Eastern, and John J. Casey, chairman and president of Braniff.

The statement was issued shortly after Eastern announced a net loss of $17.4 million for 1980. In its most recent financial report, Braniff said it lost $52 million during the first nine months of last year.

Borman and Casey's statement said only that a merger "would be too disruptive to our respective employee families."

Industry observers cast doubt on merger prospects since the talks were revealed Dec. 15, citing Eastern's long-term debts of at least $1.2 billion and Braniff's $700 million debt load.

There was little question that Eastern, based in Miami, would have been the surviving partner in any corporate marriage.

Meanwhile, Western Airlines, which reported a $29.6 million loss in 1980, says its directors have spurned a proposed takeover by UNC Resources Inc. and agreed to merge the carrier with Continental Airlines.

Western's board followed the advice of its financial advisers who concluded that UNC, a uranium mining concern based in Falls Church, Va., is "financially unable to make a viable offer" to take over the Los Angeles-based airline, Western said in a statement Monday.

UNC has indicated it might proceed with the takeover by making a tender offer to Western's shareholders.

Western President Dominic P. Renda said Western's board remains confident the Civil Aeronautics Board will approve its plans to merge with Continental, also based in Los Angeles. In July 1979, the CAB rejected a previous merger proposal by the two carriers.

UNC indicated it would pay a 50 percent premium above recent market prices for Western's shares. That would put a prospective purchase price between $175 million and $250 million.

In the Continental proposal, Western shareholders would receive one share in the merged company for each of their Western shares.

Separately, Western blamed stiff competition and the nationwide recession — with its sharp effect on leisure travel — for its 1980 loss.

Marijuana Displayed At Alexander Trial

(Continued From Page One) drug dealings Monday afternoon when he called Alexander's friend, Charlie Clanton, to the witness stand. Clanton, of Post, told the court that he had known Alexander for about six years and that Alexander had been his major drug supplier for a long period of time.

Clanton described himself earlier, outside the presence of the jury, as Alexander's partner in drugs.

Also outside the presence of the jury, Clanton testified that he paid Alexander an estimated $15,000 to $20,000 for their business dealings. Clanton has been granted court-ordered immunity from prosecution for information relating to the Alexander case.

He also described Alexander as a fairly heavy user of the synthetic morphine substance Dilaudid.

The Texas Penal Code requires that each possible death penalty case be studied individually and that before a jury can assess a sentence panelists must consider three questions.

First, jurors must decide whether the conduct of the capital defendant was committed deliberately and with the reasonable expectation that death would result. Second, the panel must determine whether there is a probability that the defendant would commit additional criminal acts of violence which would constitute a continued threat to society.

The third question is asked of the jury only if raised by the evidence, presiding judge Robert Wright has already determined that the jury will not be asked whether the conduct of the defendant in the killing of the deceased was unreasonable in response to the provocation, if any.

A jury must answer yes to both of the pertinent questions to sentence Alexander to death.

A negative answer to either of applicable questions will make a life sentence the legislatively mandated penalty for the conviction.

Palomares maintained a December 20, 1979, letter from Frenship trustees contained favorable comments on the proposed project. When pressed by Woodward, who referred to a phrase in the letter about new students being a hardship, Palomares said he meant the letter's entire context, as well as an Avalanche-Journal story about a recent Frenship bond election.

Palomares said HUD staff agreed Frenship could handle new students provided by the contract.

He added some prospective residents may already be living in the school district. Previous testimony pointed out each of the four developers included one site within the school district in their original proposals.

During proceedings Monday, Judge Woodward challenged a government attorney, who said the policy of HUD is not to threaten cities with the loss of Community Development funds if they fail to cooperate on housing projects.

Woodward interrupted testimony by Mrs. Morton when she told Maclay that HUD's withdrawal of community development funds was not automatic but, she was led to believe, a real possibility.

The judge then asked Maclay if HUD did not strongly imply funds would be cut off if local authorities did not go along with the department's housing plans for construction and site location.

When Maclay said no, Woodward questioned him again and said, "I'd like to hear your testimony on that. I've got

Reagan Leading Nation In Tribute To Freed 52

Haig told Reagan Monday that about a quarter of the hostages will require several months of psychiatric attention because of the stress resulting from their ordeal.

White House Press Secretary James Brady, in summarizing Haig's report, did not elaborate or give the source of Haig's information.

As the hostages return to their hometowns this week, the nation comes face to face with the possibility that some of them bear psychological wounds that will not heal soon. That concern is tempering the joy of their homecoming.

All along it had been feared that the 14½ months of imprisonment, isolation and reported subhuman treatment in Iran would take a toll on some of the 52. Psychiatrists who have studied prisoners and hostages say such people often develop feelings of guilt and become depressed.

Ever since their arrival at Wiesbaden, West Germany, a week ago, there have been reports that some of the former prisoners have kept to themselves and shown little of the exuberance of the others.

Today's Washington Post reported that the president's welcoming speech to the hostages would include the pledge that "never again" will the United States allow its diplomats to be taken captive with impunity.

A White House aide was quoted as saying Reagan wants it known "no there would be a different reaction and no procrastination if this ever happened again."

The disquieting news of psychiatric problems contrasts with the observation of employees of the Hotel Thayer, on the grounds of the U.S. Military Academy, where the former hostages have stayed since their return to the United States on Sunday.

The freed Americans were reported eating "like horses," with some celebrating enough to get tipsy.

"They're very eager to embrace and take in everything around them," said Steve Stable, the Thayer banquet manager. "If you didn't know who these guests were, you wouldn't believe they were hostages."

For today's White House celebration, some 6,000 dignitaries were invited to greet the returning Americans and their kinfolk at a ceremony on the South Lawn of the White House and 600 were invited to meet them at a reception in the White House Blue Room.

Mayor Edward Koch of New York City was being eager to stage an old-fashioned tickertape parade for the freed hostages, but Haig has resisted on grounds it might be too much of a drain.

Koch has gone ahead and scheduled a parade for Friday for those who want to take part. "We're not imposing the parade on anyone," the mayor said. "If one hostage wants a parade, we'll have a parade. General Haig can come if he wants to."

So far, the returned captives have been pretty much isolated from the public, and some have shunned the press, but others emerged from the Thayer to talk with reporters and cameramen.

Clair Barnes, 35, of Falls Church, Va., told reporters, "I'm depressed sometimes. I did expect to get out of captivity sometime or other, sooner or later, but I didn't know how long it would be. I feel great emotion to be home. It is just great."

Gary E. Lee, 37, a State Department official from Falls Church, Va., was asked his reaction to his first full day on American soil. "It is a wonderful change to have people here welcoming me and not crying for my death," he said. He put his arm around his wife, Pat, and said: "It is so good to have this woman here."

Kevin Hermening, a Marine whose mother went to see him in captivity over the objections of the U.S. government, said his captors didn't change their treatment of him after that. "Of course," he said, "I was very glad to see her."

Another former hostage, Marine Sgt. James Michael Lopez, 22, of Globe, Ariz., was asked about reports that after the April rescue mission, a number of hostages were subjected to torture in the desert.

"Were we subjected to torture, no sir," he said. "I think that what you're referring to is the fact that we were dispersed around the country (afterward) and it was done in such a helter-skelter style."

Garwood Charges Dropped

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — A military judge today dismissed three charges, including desertion, against Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood, but he let stand charges that Garwood collaborated with the enemy during 14 years in North Vietnamese prison camps.

Garwood could still be sentenced to life imprisonment if convicted on that and other remaining charges.

Besides the desertion charge, Col. R.E. Switzer dismissed charges that Garwood solicited other Americans to throw down their weapons and refuse to fight and that he mistreated another prisoner of war in Vietnam.

Garwood's court-martial was recessed last week after testimony concluded. It is expected to go to a jury of five Marine officers next week.

He was accused of deserting, soliciting other Americans to lay down their arms, aiding the enemy and attempting to cause insubordination, disloyalty and refusal of duty among fellow prisoners of war.

The maltreatment charge dismissed by Switzer involved alleged verbal abuse of Army 1st Sgt. Richard Williams. Garwood is accused of telling Williams, "I spit on you and all those like you."

Another accusation that he struck Army Pfc. David Harker, who testified against Garwood in the court-martial, was allowed to stand.

In the solicitation charge, Garwood was accused of using a bullhorn to try to get American soldiers to stop fighting. There was never any testimony directly linking Garwood to such appeals.

The dismissals had been sought by defense attorneys, who told Switzer that Garwood was tortured by his captors and compared his situation to that of the American hostages in Iran.

Chief defense counsel John Lowe said some of the former hostages were shown in television films from Iran saying they were being treated well, but have told since their release of harsh treatment. "It's the same as the Garwood case," Lowe said.

Garwood, 34, disappeared while driving a jeep near Da Nang in September 1965. He resurfaced in early 1979 in Hanoi, saying he had been held captive during that time. The defense has not disputed claims by other former prisoners of war that Garwood wore the uniform of and carried arms for the Vietnamese communists, but has maintained he was mentally broken by torture.

Teen-Age Girl Reports Rape To Lubbock Police

A 15-year-old girl told authorities she was pulled into a vacant East Lubbock residence about 8:15 p.m. Monday and raped by one male, while his companion held her down.

The victim said she was walking to a service station at Parkway Drive and Cherry Avenue when she saw the two assailants walking toward her. She said she ran when she heard one of the suspects ask, "Is that a boy or a girl?"

Reports state the girl was grabbed and forced into a vacant house in the 2600-block of Parkway Drive, where one of the attackers allegedly partially disrobed the victim and raped her while his companion held her down.

The teen-ager told police that after the assault both attackers fled. She said she walked home and then was taken by her mother to Lubbock General Hospital, where she met with Rape Crisis representatives.

The suspects were described as black, possibly juveniles, both wearing dark clothing. One of the attackers was said to be muscular, while the other was short. No arrest had been made by early today.

In a separate assault report, Lubbock police were looking for a male 17 to 18 years old who allegedly enticed a 12-year-old girl to have sex with him inside Estacado High School, 1504 E. Itasca St., Saturday afternoon.

The girl's aunt contacted authorities about 4:30 p.m. Monday and said she met with officials at the school, who told her they had learned of the incident. The officials, reports indicated, had not yet talked to police.

The girl told officers the suspect approached her in the school hallway Saturday and kissed her. She said they walked about several minutes and then both went into a girls' bathroom — tagged the "English hall" by students.

Reports state the man asked if she had ever had sex and she said no. The suspect allegedly disrobed and began making advances toward her.

The girl, according to reports, told police she first resisted the man, but said she later submitted because she was "curious."

Juvenile authorities said they would investigate the case as a rape. They added that the incident does not fall within the law which states a defense can be bolstered if the girl submitting to sex is at least 14 years old and the male is no more than two years older.

Three persons told police a man threatened to cut them shortly after midnight today during an altercation at an apartment complex in the 400-block of Avenue W.

The two women and one man said the assailant threatened them with a knife and then claimed he was going to get a gun and shoot them. The suspect also allegedly kicked the chrome off one of the complainant's car doors.

Police questioned the man early today, but reports indicate no arrest was made at the scene.

Police today continued to look for a masked, pistol-wielding man who robbed the B and B Service Station, 2116 50th St., about 9:30 p.m. Monday and made off with an undetermined amount of cash.

The 17-year-old station attendant said the gunman approached from the south and "just told me to give him the money and stuck the gun in my face."

Police said the man brandished a .357 magnum revolver. The bandit fled after taking the money.

The suspect was described as black, about 35, 6 feet 3 inches tall, and weighing 170 pounds. The man was wearing blue jeans and a jacket.

A 31-year-old Lubbock man was in serious condition today at Lubbock General Hospital, with multiple facial injuries and a broken jaw suffered in a bar-room fracas about 7:30 p.m. Monday.

Apolonio Paul Ramirez, 33, of 1407 24th Place told police he beat the man with a pool stick at the Foxy Box, 202 N. University Ave., after he was stabbed several times in the back. Ramirez was treated and later released from Highland Hospital.

Witnesses said the man walked out of a restroom and stabbed Ramirez in the back while he was playing pool. Police said the men struggled, and the assailant was knocked unconscious when struck in the head with a pool stick.

Ramirez said he did not know the assailant.

A set of silverware and a movie projector, valued at $3,000, were stolen Sunday night or Monday morning from the 5608 12th St. home of H.C. McRaney, police said.

Mrs. McRaney told police she discovered the burglary at 10:30 a.m. Monday when she noticed two silver knives out of place inside the home. Two more knives were found on the back porch, and the back door had been unlocked, reports show.

Police took fingerprints from a bowl in the house, but no signs of forced entry were found. Mrs. McRaney told officers the break-in occurred after 5 p.m. Sunday.

In other activity, vandals caused an estimated $2,000 damage to the drive-in banking system at the First National Bank's drive-in facility at Main Street and Avenue Q, police said.

The remote transmitter, the vacuum tube mechanism at each drive-in lane, had been torn loose from the system, reports show. Police believe a crow bar or similar tool was used to damage the device.

Pearl Herman, assistant vice president of the bank, told police the damage occurred between noon Saturday and 8 a.m. Monday.

Equipment worth $1,775 was stolen during the weekend from Ronnie Zahn Paving, 1501 Vanda Ave., reports show.

A battery charger, a portable blow torch and assorted tools were stolen from the tool room at the business between 2:30 p.m. Saturday and 7:20 a.m. Monday, owner Ronnie Zahn told police.

The intruders apparently scaled a chain-link fence and pried open the door to the shop area, reports show. Lisa Ann Vela, 18, of 1819 E. Auburn St. told police a 17-year-old woman assaulted her Friday afternoon in the 400-block of North Quirt Avenue.

Miss Vela said the other teen-ager hit her and scratched her face about 3:30 p.m. Friday because she thought Miss Vela had made a derogatory remark about her.

The victim was treated at Methodist Hospital for minor injuries. The incident was not reported to police until Monday, reports show.

County Jail Cells Fail To Meet Standards

By MARY ALICE ROBBINS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Five cells in the holding area of the new $4.8 million Lubbock County Jail apparently don't meet minimum state requirements, even though all plans for the detention facility were approved earlier by the Texas Commission on Jail Standards.

And the county commissioners court will be faced with approving some additional changes at the jail to bring it in line with the TCJS requirements.

Engineer Arnold Maeker, supervisor for the multi-million dollar jail construction project, said the problem with the five cells was first noticed last week, when TCJS inspector Joe Slater visited the still uncompleted facility.

Maeker explained that the five holding cells were all designed for single occupancy. The holding area also contains several multi-occupancy cells, he said.

However, the jail inspector contended that the single-man cells violate the state standards for holding cells because they lack privacy screens in front of the toilet facilities.

Slater also maintained that the cells cannot be classified as one-man cells because there are no tables and stools provided for eating.

Sheriff D.L. "Sonny" Keesee said he is opposed to installing the required privacy screens. "Anytime you've got a screen, potentially you've got a place for somebody to hide," he noted. And what the jail doesn't need, Keesee maintained, is more places where inmates can avoid being seen by the jail staff.

The sheriff said he would prefer that county officials install steel tables and stools so the cells can be classified as single-occupancy cells. Keesee said there is room at the end of each cell for the eating facilities.

That solution apparently is not the one being sought by TCJS officials, however. Maeker said he had talked with jail standard commissioners and "they are inclined to think the shield is the better approach."

Maeker said he hopes to meet with the commissioners court in the near future to resolve the problem. Commissioners are most likely to accept the TCJS recommendation, however, because they want to avoid any possible violations of the state standards.

So far, no cost estimates have been presented on either proposed solution. "I don't see it being a great amount of cost," Maeker said.

But several commissioners already have expressed concern regarding the mounting costs to complete the jail. Almost every month they have received change orders that have added to the expense of the construction project, which is expected to cost more than $5 million before the jail is finished.

SMU Intensifies Raiders' Cage Illness

By CHUCK McDONALD
Assistant Sports Editor

Mama said there would be nights like this, but, goodness gracious, she never said they'd come against SMU.

The SMU Mustangs, packing an awesome 6-11 season record in their saddlebags, rode into town and knocked off the rapidly sinking Texas Tech basketball team by a 58-48 count during Southwest Conference action Monday night in the Municipal Coliseum.

So now it's official. The Red Raider slump (Tech's losing streak was extended to four straight courtesy of the Mustangs) is no longer merely a road sickness. The affliction has spread to the Coliseum where Tech is now 8-1.

How, you ask, does a team fresh off a humiliating homecourt loss to the Rice Owls; a team that once fell to Rollins (yes, that's a college); a team that was 2-5 in SWC play prior to Monday's victory, manage to snap Tech's undefeated string in the Coliseum?

Take a glance at these statistics and wonder no more:

- Tech's leading scorer, Jeff Taylor, was six of 18 from the field.

- Freshman Bubba Jennings was an all-too-human five of 14.

- Tech's third guard, Steve Smith, was three of nine.

- Add it up. The numbers say that the Raiders starting backcourt hit 14 of 41 efforts in the game. The SWC has done a lot of strange things to the game of basketball this year, but the object is still to drop the ball through the hole.

- The Raiders inside men, Clarence Swannegan and Ben Hill, did alright when they got the ball, but those were rare occasions. Those two combined to hit five of 10 efforts from the field.

- As a team, the now 3-4 in league play and 9-8 overall Raiders, made good on 23 of 62 efforts.

SMU shot the ball only 36 times (as the Raiders owned a 37-24 advantage on the boards) but the Mustangs managed to hit 19 of those (52.8 percent).

In spite of all that, the Raiders were still in control midway through the second half when SMU outscored Tech 21-7 in the final 9:17 of play.

Tech, which had led 24-20 at the conclusion of a lackadaisical first half, went up by four, 41-37 on a Taylor layin with 9:18 to go. But the Raiders, who were pressing SMU all the way, saw the strategy backfire as the Ponies consistently broke the Tech press for easy buckets on the other end.

SMU, which had never led, finally tied the game at 41-41 on a pair of David Gadis free throws at the 8:26 mark.

Gadis would set up permanent shop at the charity stripe thereafter, hitting 12 of 15 attempts to finish as the game's leading scorer with 18 points.

It took awhile for the Mustangs to finally go ahead but they did at the 6:04 mark when sophomore Dave Pielher, who also had 14 for SMU, hit from way out. Slowly, SMU stretched that lead and with 5:05 to play, Tech's Ralph Brewster was assessed a technical foul for kicking SMU's Johnnie James. The Gadis free throw made it 45-41 and on the inbound play the freshman guard drove in for an easy layup.

That made it 47-41 and, although SMU tried to oblige by missing several free throws down the stretch, Tech never challenged. "The whole turning point came with about eight minutes left and we kept pressing the ball," said Tech coach Gerald Myers. "They were able to get through and break the press."

"They controlled the ball and had a lot of patience," added Myers. "SMU played a fine game and kept their poise."

What went unsaid, of course, is that the Raiders did not.

"We were just too impatient," said Myers. "And we took too many bad shots trying to get back into the game instead of being patient."

The Raiders went nearly five minutes stuck on 41 points, from 9:18 until 4:25 when Swannegan hit a short jumper. That made it 47-43 but didn't help the Raider cause.

Because, while SMU was hitting 11 of 16 free throws in the final moments (mercifully allowing Taylor and Smith to foul out) the Raiders could muster only five points.

As disappointed as Myers was, SMU's Dave Bliss was equally exuberant.

"With about 20 seconds to go I asked the team, 'what's going on? Let the coaches in on this,'" said a happy Bliss.

"We just played a great second half."

"I'm not so sure that it didn't take more to come back after that Rice game than any game I've ever been around," he added. "That game is history now but for two days it was hell."

The Raiders may know the feeling.

And things don't get any better.

Wednesday night Tech must face Arkansas in Fayetteville and on Saturday the Raiders host the league-leading Houston Cougars.

"Maybe we caught 'em looking ahead to Arkansas," noted Bliss. "They weren't able to get much out of Swannegan and we think he's one of the better post men around."

While Tech didn't get much out of its inside attack; six points from Hill, six from Swannegan and another six from Brewster, the SMU inside game was equally anemic.

Center Johnnie James hit one of six efforts for two points, while starting forwards Kirk Lundblade and David Eicher combined to score not a single point.

However, senior Gordon Welch came off the bench to spark the Ponies with 15 points (11 in the final half) as he was a perfect six of six from the field.

"We were determined that we weren't going to beat ourselves," said Welch. "We wanted them to beat us with 20 footers, not layups."

Tech of course, did neither.

The Raiders did manage to go up 24-20 at the half as Brewster got his second dunk shot of the half as the buzzer expired.

Tech took command early, going up 12-4 at the 11:45 mark as Smith hit three straight jumpers. But Smith would not sink another shot on the night and SMU finally knotted the score at 20-20 on a Pielher bomb. Unanswered buckets by Swannegan and Brewster left Tech with its narrow halftime margin.

MHS To Tangle With PHS Star

By RUSS PARSONS

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
For the first time this year, The Gay Hemphill Show rolls into Lubbock — maybe.

The supremely-talented Miss Hemphill, who is certainly the best big girl in West Texas and quite possibly in the state, has been averaging 24.6 points and 10.5 rebounds a contest and is the main reason the Plainview girls stand 20-6 on the year.

But the 6-0 senior star missed Friday night's game with Lubbock High due to a severe case of tonsillitis.

Even though her Bulldog teammates romped to a 58-34 win over LHS, nobody in their right minds would mistake tonight's opponent — Monterey — for the Westerners.

Tonight Plainview will need their bread and butter — and maybe more than a little jam.

"I don't know whether she'll be able to play or not," said Bulldog coach Melvyn Hunt. "It'll be touchy, we'll have to wait until game time to know for sure."

"I don't know what we'll do if she can't. She's got to play if we're going to have a shot at them; she's our size. Our next tallest is 5-7."

"We'll certainly be hurt badly on the boards — as well as in our scoring. I just don't know what we'll do if we can't use her."

The Plainsmen's Tim Tasker, on the other hand, isn't worried. He says the whole thing smells like a smoke screen and he's not going to fall for it.

"Oh yeah, she'll be there, she'll play," he said. "She (Mrs. Hunt) said she might not play, huh, that's not what I heard. I heard that she wasn't that sick Friday night and that they were just saving her."

"Anyway, I'm sure not approaching the game like she's not going to play. I'm not even going to tell my kids about it. There may not be anything to it."

Granting that Miss Hemphill will play, Tasker is faced with the task that has perplexed every other coach in the district for the last three years — how to defend her.

"We certainly haven't done very well in the past against Gay," Tasker said. "I think she's averaging about 30 a game against us."

"There's two ways you can defend her," Tasker said. "You can double team Gay and let the others get a few more points than they should, or you can concentrate on the others and let Gay get her 35. I don't know which to do."

The main reason Miss Hemphill does so well against Monterey isn't because of Tasker's indecision. Rather, the hustling full-court press employed by the Plainsmen — the very weapon that unnerves other teams — plays right into Miss Hemphill's strong suit.

"For sure, when Gay gets the ball at halfcourt or gets the ball before then, she does better," said Tasker. "She's better playing a full-court game and that's what's killing us — she's always gotten more than 30 against us."

But before Tasker sits up nights plotting to undo Plainview, he has to get his own house in order. Only a clutch stretch run saved the Plainsmen against Hereford and Friday night against Coronado, MHS survived mainly on just one quarter's play.

"The kids just haven't played real consistent basketball," said Tasker. "We'll get a couple of quarters here and there and that's been enough to win."

"We've got to come up with four good quarters against Plainview and I really believe we can. When the pressure is on, I really believe we can."

"I believe when we're on top of our game, good things will happen to us. But nobody's going to win it by more than five or 10 points and to win by 10 somebody's going to have to be real fortunate."

Somebody's going to have to play real well."

The Plainsmen are led, of course, by the Ethridge sisters, Kriss and Kamie. As gifted a pair of front-court players as there are anywhere, both are lighting up the scoreboards for a combined average of 35 points a night, almost half of their team's total output.

But that can be a problem as well as a blessing.

"The most recent time we've been at the top of our game was the Coronado game in the Abilene tournament (a game they won by 40) and against Amarillo High just before district started (a 77-63 win against a 15-6 club)."

And to top things off, Tasker said he had talked with Kriss Ethridge Monday morning and "she sounded just like a dirty old man — she's got the same thing (tonsillitis) Gay Hemphill had."

But Tasker was quick to add that Kriss will be in the lineup tonight. "It'll take something like a broken leg to keep someone out of the Plainview-Monterey game," he said.

Interestingly, Tasker doesn't consider his team's performance in the Queens Classic, a tournament in which they defeated three defending state champions including No. 1-rated Dallas South Oak Cliff, among his club's better efforts.

"We really didn't play that well, we didn't shoot a good percentage and we just didn't play good team basketball. That was more like two-on-five."

In the boys' half of the tilt, the 19-6 Monterey bunch will host 11-13 Plainview. Both teams are coming off opening-game victories, Monterey's a 42-40 double-overtime over Coronado and Plainview's a 74-65 win over Lubbock High.

In the other district games, Coronado travels north to Hereford. The Mustang boys will try to recover from that heart-stopping loss Friday night and they couldn't pick a better club to do it against. Hereford has been having its problems this year and stands 3-18 to the Ponies' 11-13 mark.

In the girls' contest, the reverse is true. Hereford, which blew a seven-point fourth-period lead to lose to Monterey 54-49, stands 20-2 on the year (one of three 20-game winners already in the girls' ranks in District 4-5A). Coronado, after losses to Plainview and Monterey, stands 11-11 on the year and 1-2 in district.

The girls' games will begin at approximately 6 p.m. and the boys' contests will follow immediately.

Singletary Wins O'Brien Award

FORT WORTH (AP) — Baylor consensus All-American linebacker Mike Singletary was awarded the Davey O'Brien Memorial Trophy for the second straight year Monday night in Fort Worth.

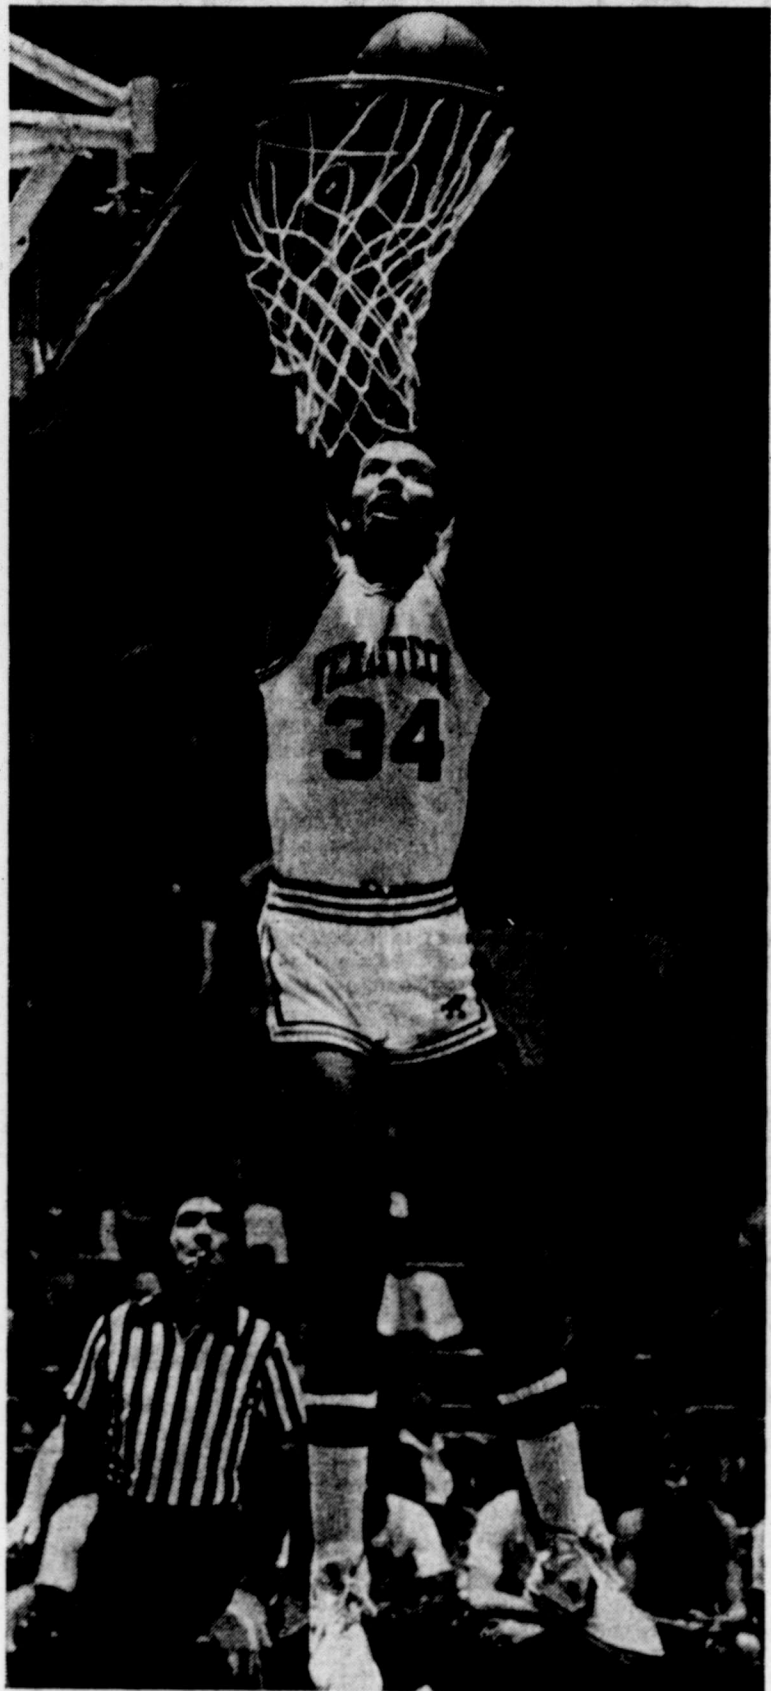

The award annually goes to the outstanding collegiate player in the Southwest.

Previous winners have included Earl Campbell, a former University of Texas standout, and Billy Sims, a Texas native who played at the University of Oklahoma.

Both Campbell and Sims are stars in the National Football League, and there is little reason to believe that two-time O'Brien winner Singletary won't follow in their footsteps.

Singletary has been named to five All-American teams, including the Associated Press team in each of the last two years.

He was two-time Southwest Conference defensive player of the year and a team captain in 1979 and 1980.

MAKING CERTAIN — Texas Tech's Ralph Brewster eases the basketball over the lip of the rim Monday night in the Coliseum. Brewster scored six points as the Raiders lost for the first time at home this season, 58-48, to SMU. (Staff Photo by Milton Adams)

Virginia Joins Oregon State In AP Top Spot

By The Associated Press

Oregon State and Virginia, the nation's only major unbeaten college basketball teams, shared the No. 1 position in The Associated Press poll Tuesday after finishing in a tie for the top slot.

Oregon State, which held No. 1 alone last week, and Virginia, 16-0, each received 29 first-place votes and 1,147 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. Three members of the poll did not submit ballots this week, while one other tabbed Louisiana State for the No. 1 position.

The Beavers, who held a 40-19 first-place vote advantage over Virginia last week, raised their record to 15-0 with two victories last week, including a 97-91 overtime thriller against Washington.

The Cavaliers, ranked second a week ago, were simply awesome last week. They pounded then-No. 19 Clemson 74-59, thrashed George Washington 86-56 and whipped highly regarded Ohio State 89-73 in a nationally televised game as sophomore center Ralph Sampson poured in 40 points.

DePaul edged Louisiana State for the No. 3 position, collecting 1,039 points —

DHS, EHS Girls Take Clean Slates Into District

By RAY GLASS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
 The Dunbar and Estacado girls' teams begin the second half of their district schedules tonight while their male counterparts battle to stay in the 1-4A race as it moves into its fourth night of action.

The Panther and Matador girls, along with four other district teams, got a statehouse reprieve in the district rule that divides the 12-game 1-4A season into two halves.

Canyon demolished the league in the first half, rolling up a 6-0 record with only one close contest. But all seven district teams begin tonight's action with identical 0-0 records and an equal shot at the second-half crown and a playoff with the Eagles.

Dunbar, which ended the first half even at 3-3, plays host to Dumas (4-2) at 6 p.m. in the Panther gym. Estacado (1-5) begins the final half of the schedule on the road, traveling to Levelland (5-1) for a 6 p.m. game.

Meanwhile, the Estacado and Dunbar boys' squads will try to bounce back from district defeats on Friday. The Matadors, tied for second with a 2-1 district mark, meet Levelland, also 2-1, at 7:30 p.m. in the Lobo gym. Dunbar, 0-3, plays host to Dumas, 0-2, at 7:30 p.m.

The district girls' teams may all have identical records entering tonight's games, but Canyon is still clearly the team to be reckoned with. "Right now it appears to be a one-team race. It all comes down to someone has got to beat Canyon," Dunbar coach Jim Washburn said.

But at least for tonight, Washburn's Panthers will concern themselves with the Demons, who finished third in the first-half standings behind Canyon and Levelland and who defeated Dunbar 60-55 in December.

"If we play as good as we did the last time up in Dumas, we should win," Washburn said. "Dumas has a big kid (5-foot-11 post Debbie Mills) and they have some quickness outside and they're also good shooters."

Senior Tammy Taylor, a 5-9 forward, makes the Demons' offense work. She is averaging 17.7 points and 9.8 rebounds per contest while Miss Mills adds another 10 points each game.

Dunbar is led by the trio of Lisa Cavieil, Cynthia Hardaway and Marcia Holmes, who combined for 58 points in a loss Friday. Miss Cavieil leads the team in scoring, 14.8 points per game, and hauls down nine rebounds each outing. Miss Hardaway is averaging 12.6 points and 9.2 rebounds a contest while Miss Holmes is averaging 9.8 points and 8.3 boards.

The Estacado girls' squad will be trying to get back on the win track after only one win in their first six district games, which included a 54-40 loss to Brownfield in December.

The Mats must top the Cubs' 5-10 junior Marcy Halladay, leading area 4A scorers with a 24.0 average and who hit for 30 in the clubs' last meeting.

"We're going to change our defense somewhat," Estacado coach Mary Ann Cobb said of her clubs' plans for Miss Holladay. "Hopefully our offense will be better than it has been recently. We're capable of playing better ball, we've got to be consistent. That's been our problem all year long, we've been inconsistent."

The Matadors are paced by Cassandra Mann (11 ppg) and Stephanie Peoples (11.7 rebounds per game). Miss Holladay also leads the Cubs in rebounding, averaging 13.4 boards per contest.

The Dunbar and Estacado boys' teams will rebound from district losses last week and stay in the first-half race.

The Panthers lost to Levelland 65-55 and have yet to win a conference game. But Dumas is also winless, with a pair of losses, and tonight's winner will still have an outside chance of gaining at least a share of the crown.

Estacado needs a victory over Brownfield to stay in the thick of the race after falling to Canyon 62-55. That loss knocked the Mats from the district lead to a second-place tie with Borger and Levelland.

The Cubs are 1-1 and a win would push them closer to the league lead with three games remaining in the first half.

In other district games tonight, the Levelland boys' and girls' teams visit Canyon while the Borger squads play non-district foes, the boys at Tascosa and the girls at Perryton.

Cougars' Prolonged Stall Pays Off, Beats Baylor

By The Associated Press
 It was a bad night for the home teams Monday as all four home-standing Southwest Conference basketball teams lost.

Houston edged Baylor, 53-51, to move into first place for the first time this season; Southern Methodist surprised Texas Tech, 58-48; Arkansas beat Rice, 57-52, and Texas had to go into overtime to beat the slumping Texas A&M Aggies, 67-63.

With the score tied at 51-51, Houston coach Guy Lewis ordered the Cougars to go into the spread offense. He didn't intend for it to be a stall, but that's what it turned out to be.

The Cougars tried for a shot by Rob Williams as the clock wound down, but Baylor's Pat Nunley grabbed the rebound only to have it stripped from him by David Bunce. Freshman Michael Young's uncontested layup with two seconds remaining gave the Cougars the victory and the top spot in the SWC round-ball standings.

"He picked it up and stuck it in the hole for the win. Maybe not too artistic, but it got the job done," said Lewis.

Lewis said he didn't intend to stall away more than seven minutes.

"I felt like we'd score off of it (the spread offense) much sooner than we did. It wasn't meant as a stall," Lewis added.

Williams was the only Cougar scoring in double figures with 19. Terry Teagle, who connected on nine of 13 field-goal attempts, was the leading scorer for the Bears with 23. His performance drew praise from Lewis.

"Teagle shot out of this world. He shot some that if my team shot them, people would say we're undisciplined. But he hit them, too," Lewis said.

His coach Abe Lemons was pleased with the 67-63 Longhorn victory over Texas A&M, but doesn't think the "Horns

"are out of the woods yet."

"I thought we played better than they did and deserved to win it. We shouldn't have let it go into overtime. We needed a win tonight, we needed it bad," Lemons said.

It was another night of disappointment for the Aggies and coach Shelby Metcalf.

"We had the game won. We had the ball and a two-point lead in overtime. I was real proud of our team up to that point," said Metcalf, who described the loss as the most disappointing of the season.

LaSalle Thompson was the leading scorer for Texas with 32 points. Reggie Roberts had 18 for the Aggies.

Scott Hastings had 18 points to lead the Arkansas Razorbacks to a 57-52 victory over Rice. Ricky Pierce had 18 for the Owls.

Arkansas held a 27-20 lead at halftime and coach Eddie Sutton said a good start by the Razorbacks helped them take the victory.

"In the first 10 minutes of the game, we played as well as we have in a long time," Sutton said.

SWC teams return to action Wednesday night with Texas Tech at Arkansas in a regionally televised game. Other games find Baylor at Texas Christian, Rice at Texas, and Texas A&M at Houston.

Players Sign... Players File

NEW YORK (AP) — World Series star Willie Aikens of the Kansas City Royals and relief ace Bruce Sutter of the St. Louis Cardinals signed contracts while 58 players, including Boston Red Sox catcher Carlton Fisk, beat Monday's deadline by filing for salary arbitration.

Among those who filed for arbitration Monday were outfielders Steve Kemp of the Detroit Tigers and Gorman Thomas of the Milwaukee Brewers, catcher Rick Cerone of the New York Yankees, third baseman Carney Lansford of the Red Sox, Minnesota Twins' shortstop Roy Smalley and pitchers Joe Sambito of the Houston Astros and John Candelaria of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

According to the owners' Player Relations Committee, the last-day group of 58 players to seek arbitration brought the 1981 total to 98, well above last year's record of 65.

However, four others besides Aikens signed later in the day — outfielders Rick Miller of Boston, Dick Davis of Milwaukee and Billy Sample of Texas, and Minnesota first baseman Danny Gooden.

Fisk put his name on the list as a protection in case he loses another arbitration case which could make him a free agent. The Players' Association contends the Red Sox failed to send Fisk a 1981 contract by the Dec. 20 deadline.

Besides Aikens, who hit 20 homers and drove in 98 runs last year and then hit four homers in the World Series, the Royals also signed shortstops U.L. Washington and Rance Mulliniks and pitchers Mike Jones and Dave Wehmeister.

Sutter, who went to arbitration as a member of the Chicago Cubs a year ago and was awarded a $700,000 salary, signed a four-year deal with the Cardinals, who acquired him last month. Miller, who is expected to be the Red Sox' center fielder following last week's trade of Fred Lynn to California, signed for three years.

The Philadelphia Phillies signed 10 players to one-year contracts, including pitchers Randy Lerch, Nino Espinosa and Warren Brusstar and outfielder Lonnie Smith, while the Yankees came to terms with outfielder Bobby Brown and catcher Dennis Werth.

The California Angels announced that former Milwaukee pitcher Bill Travers, who declared for free-agency after the 1980 season, had agreed to terms on a four-year contract.

49er Faces Charge Of Child Molesting

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — A trial has been set for Feb. 24 for lineman Ted Vincent of the San Francisco 49ers, who has been charged with child molesting.

Vincent pleaded innocent Monday in Santa Clara County Superior Court. Police say he molested a 12-year-old girl in a Palo Alto motel.

Detective Judy Dunn said Vincent turned himself in to police after the girl told her mother of the alleged Nov. 23 incident.

Vincent's lawyer, Tom Nolan, said his client is the victim of "an emotionally distraught child who misinterpreted his actions."

Utah Waives Franchise Hero Boone

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Guard Ron Boone's record 1,041 consecutive professional basketball games was stopped Monday night when he was waived by the Utah Jazz of the National Basketball Association.

"It's going to be awfully strange knowing that I'm not going to suit up," Boone said before Utah's 102-99 victory over Detroit.

He said he was not sure whether he wanted to continue playing.

Boone, 34, in his 13th season of pro basketball, had played in all 52 Jazz games this season, averaging 7.8 points per game.

"Our thinking was that we are anxious to play our younger players," said Jazz general manager Frank Layden.

"With 13 games to go we just had to give some time to our youngsters."

Boone said, "I've sensed they wanted to go with young players. They have to know whether or not their draft choices can play."

The Jazz Saturday signed 6-foot-7 forward Mel Bennett and on Monday reactivated guard Rickey Green, who had been on the injured list since Jan. 18. Both moves made Boone expendable.

How did Boone handle the news?

"Very well. He handled it like I thought he would. He handled it very well," Layden said, calling the decision to cut Boone the "most difficult thing to do" since he became general manager.

"I've seen this happen to other players before, and I've always said that if it ever happens to me, I'd handle it all right," Boone said. "I won't make excuses, and I won't knock management. It's happened to greater players than me before."

Layden said he thought the durable guard might be picked up by another NBA team.

"I think that Ron could help a team headed for the playoffs that needs a good shooter, an experienced player like Ron," he said.

Boone, who played his college ball at Idaho State, had been used primarily in a reserve role by the Jazz.

The 6-foot-2 guard began his pro career in 1968 with Dallas of the old American Basketball Association. He was traded to the ABA's Utah Stars during the 1970-71 season, helping the club to the ABA title.

He played five seasons for the Stars until the team disbanded and was perhaps the most popular professional athlete ever to play in Utah.

The ABA's third leading all-time scorer, Boone was acquired by Kansas City in the ABA dispersal draft and played for the Kings two seasons before being traded to Los Angeles in 1978. One year later, he was traded to the Jazz for a third-round 1981 draft pick.

Boone averaged 18.4 points a game in his ABA career and 14.9 in the NBA prior to this season.

His best season came in 1974-75 with the Stars when he averaged over 25 points a game.

Eagle Girls Overcome Leslie Schmidt, Trojans

Free throws were a double-edged sword that the Christ The King girls' team lived by and died by Monday night.

The Trojans, playing cross-town rival Lubbock Christian on CTK's home hardwood, stayed close to the Eagles on the free-throw shooting of Leslie Schmidt.

But in the end it was poor foul shooting as a team, only 12 of 28, that allowed LCHS to escape with a 52-46 victory.

"We were looking past Christ The King," Lubbock Christian coach Dale Pectol admitted after the game. "We have six games this week, with Friona tomorrow night (today) and the Christian schools' tournament this weekend."

In the end it was Jill Towns coming

EX-EAGLE COACH DIES

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Joe Kuharich, coach of the Philadelphia Eagles from 1964-1969, died at Graduate Hospital while his former National Football League team played in the Super Bowl, officials said. Kuharich, 63, spent years battling multiple myeloma, a form of bone cancer. The ailment was diagnosed in 1970, and Kuharich later recalled that doctors gave him two years to live. Kuharich, whose record with the Eagles was 28-41-1, was fired in 1969 when the club was sold to present owner Leonard Tose. He coached at Notre Dame from 1959 to 1962 with a 17-21 record, making him the only Fighting Irish football coach ever with a losing career record.

off the bench that saved the Eagles' feathery. Miss Towns, who had 19 points and 12 rebounds off the bench in the Eagles' last game, came through with 10 rebounds and 12 points against the Trojans.

All of her points came in the second half after the Eagles went into halftime leading 22-20. LCHS improved that margin to 26-22 before Miss Schmidt scored seven consecutive points as the Trojans led 27-26 with 4:25 to play. But the Eagles ran off 10 consecutive points, eight coming off four straight steals, to lead 36-27.

CTK narrowed the margin to three points, 38-35, going into the final period and tied the game at 40 with 6:42 to play. But Miss Towns hit two buckets and the Eagles never trailed.

Kristy Logan and Kim Phelan also scored 12 points apiece for LCHS. Miss Schmidt led all scorers with 28 points, including 10 of 15 free throws.

LCC Fails To Hold Leads, Falls To SRU Lobos

ALPINE (Special) — Sul Ross overcame a seven-point halftime deficit, then staved off Lubbock Christian College opportunities to win the game twice in the final minute Monday afternoon to score a 55-52 Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association victory.

The Lobos move to 3-2 in TIAA play, 5-8 for the season, while the Chaps drop to 2-3 and 6-18.

LCC battled to a 30-23 halftime lead after breaking open a tight contest that saw the lead change hands 10 times in the opening 14 minutes.

The Chaps took the lead with 6:13 remaining in the initial period when Brian Fortner canned a six-footer to put LCC up 20-19. The Chaps built the lead up to 30-21 before Sul Ross' Ricky Enriquez took an inbound pass with six seconds left, drove the length of the court and put in a layup at the buzzer. Bill McGee sank the opening basket of the second half for LCC, but the Lobos charged back and scored eight straight points to slice the Chaparral lead to one, 32-31. McGee connected twice more to boost LCC to a 36-31 lead at the 14:21 mark, but again Sul Ross charged back and again cut the lead to one at 36-35.

Once again McGee boosted the Chaps to a three-point edge, but this time the Lobos scored nine consecutive points to open a six-point lead at 44-38 with 10:03 to go.

LCC rallied again to tie the game at 48-48 on a 23-foot jumper by Bruce Carver with 5:36 remaining before the Lobos' Mike Daniels tipped in a shot and Bill Koenig hit the second end of a two-shot free throw to put the Lobos up by three at 51-48.

Fortner closed the margin to one at the 4:26 mark by connecting on both ends of a two-shot foul. Sul Ross then lapped into a four-corner game that held the ball until the 1:09 mark, when Richard Walker fed Daniels with a pass for a layup that again gave the Lobos a three-point advantage.

With 41 seconds left, Fortner grabbed an offensive rebound and tipped it in to cut the lead to 53-52 and LCC called a time out. When Sul Ross inbounded, Larry Holt and Rick Murdock trapped Walker and forced a turnover for the Chaps.

The Chaps, however, lost their opportunity to go ahead when Bruce Carver lost the ball with 17 seconds remaining.

LCC had one more shot, though. Sul Ross inbounded and Fortner made a steal with just nine seconds left, feeding downcourt to Keith Money. Money, however, was called for a charging foul after he loosed a shot, and Louis Lopez connected on both ends of the bonus to cap the victory.

Fortner, the only Chap in double figures, led the LCC effort with 16 points, while Carver and McGee added eight each. Fortner added 11 rebounds to his effort.

Daniels paced the Lobos with 13 points, with Lopez and Koenig scoring 10 each. R.Q. Toliver, the TIAA's leader in field-goal percentage coming into the game with a 67 per cent success rate, was held to a three-for-seven effort from the floor and seven total points, although he did lead the contest with 12 rebounds.

The Chaps will return to Lubbock for a tipoff Thursday night against Eastern New Mexico University, while Sul Ross entertains ENMU tonight.

Lady Chaps' Balance Throttles Sul Ross

ALPINE (Special) — Lubbock Christian's Lady Chaparrals pulled away from Sul Ross in the second half Monday to score a convincing 70-53 victory in TIAA play.

Leading only 31-30 at halftime, LCC spotted the Lobos a basket at the start of the second half before reeling off three straight baskets.

Sul Ross came back to cut the lead to one again at 43-42, but then the Lady Chaps scored 10 straight points, four by Sherry Brown and three each by Daria Lynch and Joann Phillips, to give LCC a comfortable lead.

The Lobos came close again, cutting the advantage to 54-49 with 4:48 remaining in the game, but the Lady Chaps, who had missed six free throws in a row, caught fire at the charity stripe and sank six of their next seven free tosses to put the game away. Daria Lynch led the LCC attack with 21 points, with Miss Brown adding 17, while Cindy Bigham contributed 10 points, 12 rebounds, four blocked shots and five steals.

Leticia Canales led Sul Ross with 16 points, with Carol McIntyre tossing in 12 and Ruth McWilliams adding 10. The Lady Chaps will take a week off before entertaining Sul Ross next Monday in the LCC Fieldhouse.

Benirschke Wins 'Most Courageous'

CHERRY HILL, N.J. (AP) — Plackicker Rolf Benirschke, who overcame a disabling intestinal disorder known as Crohn's Disease to resume his career with the San Diego Chargers, has been named Most Courageous Athlete of 1980.

"It's something I had no control over," said Benirschke Monday night in accepting the award from the Philadelphia Sports Writers Association.

"My comeback is nothing heroic," he added. "Look what I had going for me — my family, the community, the Chargers. But two million people who have it, have to make it alone. To me, that's courageous."

The 25-year-old Benirschke underwent two operations for removal of part of his colon, his weight dropped from 180 to 125 pounds, and afterwards he had to completely rebuild atrophied muscles. Although he exhibits no symptoms of the disease now, Benirschke has a constant reminder — the ileostomy bag that collects his body wastes.

"You learn to live with it," said Benirschke, who kicked 24 of 36 field goals and 46 extra points for a team-record 118 points during the regular season.

The sports writers also recognized the U.S. hockey team that won the Olympic gold medal last year as the outstanding Team of the Year; National League Most Valuable Player Mike Schmidt of the Philadelphia Phillies as the outstanding Professional Athlete; and Villanova University's Don Paige, the world's top-rated half-mile last year, as the outstanding Amateur Athlete. Over 1,100 persons attended the writers' 77th annual banquet.

Crohn's Disease is a mysterious ailment in which the lower portion of the intestines becomes scarred, usually from inflammation. The disease can be controlled but not cured.

Benirschke discovered he had the disease in 1978, his second year in the National Football League. "I thought I had food poisoning," he said of his first symptoms.

He kicked 18 of 22 field goals, the second best percentage in the league, but couldn't kick off and his weight began dropping.

In the first game of 1979, Benirschke tied the club record with four straight field goals, extending his string to 13 consecutive field goals without a miss.

But the next week against Oakland, Raider cornerback Lester Hayes flattened Benirschke on an extra-point attempt. Suffering broken ribs, he spent two weeks in the hospital, checking out to play in the Charger's next two games. It was the fourth game, against the New England Patriots in Boston, that Benirschke knew he couldn't go on.

"I can laugh about it now, but I was crying on the sidelines," said Benirschke. "Now I realize Hayes may have saved my life. When I went to the hospital ... they found I had a perforated colon. But for the broken ribs, I probably would have gone on playing without seeing a doctor."

Step by step, Benirschke rebuilt his body and his life. "My entire musculature had atrophied so much I needed an entire body overhaul," he said.
