Music Director Cancels Appearances

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Carlo Maria Giulini, music director of the Los Angeles Philharmonic, has canceled all his scheduled appearances this spring because of his wife's illness, the orchestra has announced.

Marcella Giulini has been sick since December, and underwent surgery in Milan, Italy, last week for an aneurysm at the base of the brain.

Giulini, 66, said in a message from Milan the operation has been successful. He said he plans to accompany his wife to a clinic in Switzerland and remain with her during her convalescence.

The Philharmonic's executive director, Ernest Fleischmann, said Wednesday that the maestro plans to return to Los Angeles in time to conduct at the Hollywood Bowl this summer.

Judge Releases Peace Activists

NORRISTOWN, Pa. (AP) — A judge has released Philip Berrigan and three other jailed peace activists on their own recognizance after reducing their bail from $125,000 to $20,000 and then to nothing.

Berrigan and seven other people were jailed Sept. 9 following a break-in and vandalism at a missile components plant operated by General Electric Co. in King of Prussia. Four of the eight were released earlier after posting bond.

Common Pleas Judge Vincent Cirillo reduced bail for the other four from $125,000 to $20,000 on Friday under an arrangement that did not require them to post any money, but merely to sign a bond.

The four refused, saying the same arrangement should apply to the other 300 inmates in the jail. On Tuesday, Cirillo released the four from jail without bail.

Doctors Test For Cancer Spread

NEW WESTMINSTER, British Columbia (AP) — The cancer which cost Marathon of Hope runner Terry Fox his right leg may have spread past his lungs, doctors at Royal Columbian Hospital say.

Fox entered the hospital Feb. 21 for the eighth round of chemotherapy since ending his marathon run Sept. 1. Doctors are conducting tests to determine how far the cancer has spread.

The 22-year-old Fox, who is fitted with an artificial leg, had to end his five-month cross-Canada run when cancer spread to his lungs. He collected more than $21.7 million for cancer research as a result of his 3,000-mile Marathon of Hope.

The slender young man, once a basketball and track star in high school, lost his right leg above the knee in early 1977 when cancer was first detected.

School Has Museum With Sole

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Some old boots never die, their soles are just laid to rest in the Shoe Museum.

The 500 pairs of shoes at the museum, run by the Pennsylvania College of Podiatric Medicine, range from sneakers worn by modern athletes to sandals worn by ancient Egyptians.

In the collection are the shoes of many celebrities, including the pumps of three first ladies. Betty Ford's silver kid sandal is size 8½-B, Lady Bird Johnson wore a 7-AAAA, and Mamie Eisenhower's shoe — a 6½-B — bears the inscription: "Made expressly for Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower."

One pair of Egyptian sandals from about 200 B.C. has a human face on each sole.

"The Egyptians believed that if you put pictures of an enemy on the soles of your sandals, you could stomp all over that enemy when you got to the next world," says curator

James Bates.

Also in the collection is a pair of 200-year-old Dutch wooden shoes, known as sabots. From these shoes came the word "sabotage." If a farm hand was unhappy with his job, say the museum notes, he'd stomp all over the crops, "sabotaging" the harvest.

Caller Says Black Youth Forced Into Car

ATLANTA (UPI) — A caller told police today of seeing two black men force a child into a car on an Atlanta street, the second such report of the week in an area that is on edge because of the deaths or disappearance of 17 children in the last 18 months.

A police department spokeswoman acknowledged that officers received the call about 1:30 a.m. from a person who reported the youngster was forced into a car which then sped away toward Atlanta's southwest section.

But she said the investigators found little to bear out the report and expected "there will be no intense investigation."

A report earlier this week to police in suburban East Point, near Atlanta's southwest border, also failed to produce anything concrete.

Meanwhile, scientists were to analyze tapes today of two telephone calls made earlier this month by a man who claimed responsibility for the child mystery and outlined the general area where the body of the last victim was found.

FBI spokesman Dick Berry said Wednesday that the tapes of the calls, made earlier this month to the suburban Rockdale County sheriff's office, were being studied by scientists trying to put together a profile of the caller.

Besides claiming responsibility for the string of slayings over the past 18 months, the man directed sheriff's deputies to an area where 15-year-old Terry Pue was later found strangled to death.

Pue, whose body was found last Friday in Rockdale County 25 miles east of Atlanta, became the 14th black child found dead in the city. Three other children are missing.

Atlanta Public Safety Commissioner Lee Brown has given no indication that police are any closer to solving the abductions and slayings of black children.

"I am 1,000 percent confident in the investigators and the methods and strategies we are using to carry out the investigation," Brown told a press briefing.

TV Evangelist To Outline Relief Program

FORT WORTH (UPI) — A television evangelist with the ear of the president and the support of thousands of Christians is going to try to link ministries and local level businesses in an effort to aid millions of impoverished Americans.

James Robison, opening his four-day Annual Bible Conference Wednesday, said he would announce today details of an "urban development program" he said could reach 40 million Americans within the next several years.

Last year Ronald Reagan, at that time running for the Republican presidential nomination, appeared at the Bible Conference and during the campaign earned the support of Robison and his conservative Christian followers — who have at times closely aligned themselves to the Moral Majority.

"The answer to the welfare problem is to get church and business leaders to work in cooperative programs," said Robison, who has declined to use the title reverend.

"Such programs would be aimed at getting into poor communities, leading the people to Christ, teaching them how to work and become productive, helping them deal with their family relations.

"Business and churches together would finance these projects in their own communities. This would be far more effective than the impersonal government programs, because we would all be involved directly with our own poor at the local level. We should work in cooperation with government when feasible, but refuse to let big government play God with our lives."

Robison said he would make known details of his "urban development program" at a news conference today.

Robison opened his Bible Conference Wednesday night before a crowd of 15,000 brought to the Tarrant County Convention Center in bible school buses, silver Cadillac and beat-up Volkswagens.

Robison preached to a racially-mixed crowd of young and old, rich and poor.

Muriel Humphrey Plans Remarriage

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Muriel Humphrey, who served in the U.S. Senate for nine months after the death of her husband, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, plans to marry a longtime friend next month.

Mrs. Humphrey will wed Max Brown, a Lexington, Neb., businessman who managed radio station KRVN for many years, in a private ceremony, her office announced Wednesday.

Mrs. Humphrey, who endeared herself to Minnesotans during her husband's long and active political career, and Brown are both 68 years old. They grew up in Huron, S.D., attended school together and graduated from Huron High School in 1930.

They never dated in high school but always were good friends, according to Brown's sister, Dona, of Huron.

"Our families have kept track of each other over the years," she said.

Mrs. Humphrey's first husband, a longtime senator and vice president under Lyndon B. Johnson, died of cancer on Jan. 13, 1978. Brown's wife, Vera, died in May 1979.

Mrs. Humphrey was appointed by former Minnesota Gov. Rudy Perpich to fill part of her husband's unexpired term. She was sworn in on Feb. 6, 1978, and served until November 1978 when Republican David Durenberger was elected to serve the remaining four years of the term.

She met Humphrey during the Depression, while she was a student at Huron College and he was working in his father's drugstore.

Humphrey, who affectionately called his wife "Bucky," said she was "the best dancer in Huron" when they met. They married in 1936.

Mrs. Humphrey has three sons, Minnesota Sen. Hubert H. "Skip" Humphrey III, Douglas and Robert, and one daughter, Nancy Solomonson.

Brown has two sons, Eric, who succeeded his father as general manager of KRVN in 1979, and Tim, a lawyer in San Francisco.

Arizona Professor Warns Against Obesity

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — The average American gains one pound a year after age 25, and it takes the energy requirement of five cities to produce the food to make up all that extra fat.

Those are the facts used by Jack Wilmore, physical-education professor at the University of Arizona, in his symposium on obesity. He campaigns constantly to get people to push themselves away from the table and exercise, because dieting alone will not do the job.

When a person diets without exercise, he loses some fat but other fat replaces muscle, Wilmore explains.

"That means we are actually gaining one and a half pounds of pure fat every year," he said. "So by age 65, we will have gained 30 pounds in total weight but 45 pounds of total fat."

The best way to determine how much of your body weight is fat is to weigh under water because fat tends to float, Wilmore said. An easier way to determine whether you need exercise is to look in a mirror.

If you don't like what you see, start exercising. But start slowly and build to a moderate level, said Dr. Michael L. Pollock of Mount Sinai Medical Center in Milwaukee, one of Wilmore's symposium members.

"I've seen dramatic changes in overweight people who started out just walking," Pollock said.

With moderate exercise, the fat-to-muscle ratio improves, the body gains in tone and efficiency, and weight begins to drop. And there is one more benefit.

"For some reason, people eat less as they become more active," Pollock said.

"However, when the exercise regimen changes from moderate to heavy, they begin eating heavily again."

Body fat drops off with light work and exercise, but the fat loss levels off as exercise becomes strenuous, he said.

Pollock suggested exercise that burns up 900 to 1,000 calories a week for a 150-pound person. A 30-minute jog burns up about 300 calories, so jogging three times a week ought to do it, he said.

"Less than three times a week, even if you run a longer distance, does not appear to reduce body fat or weight," Pollock said. "Nor is the appetite affected. And more than five times a week seems to risk injury."

Fast walking will take off fat if you do it for 45 minutes about three times a week, he said.

Library Called Vital Part Of College Life

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Students planning spring trips to visit prospective colleges will do well to take a close look at each campus library if they want an accurate barometer of the school's academic climate, suggests a university librarian.

John P. McGowan, head librarian at Northwestern University here, says that in addition to checking out tuition, living costs and such factors as the quality of the faculty, the breadth of the curriculum and the occupational success of the school's graduates, prospective students should inspect the library.

"In an age of unprecedented development of knowledge, a school's library not only can make a student's life easier, but can give him or her an often-exciting link to the accumulated culture of our time," he said.

"The library and its books are the lifeblood of any university," McGowan points out. "The library is the capital of the university and plays an important role in the intellectual lives of students. It is the barometer of the school and provides a good way for prospective students and their parents to evaluate the academic climate of the institution."

McGowan, whose own library has implemented an IBM "on-line" catalog that gives students instant access to more than 400,000 catalog records, recognizes that with inflation adding to already tight budgets, many libraries are not able to acquire all the books they would like.

But he feels there are several criteria that might be kept in mind by students who visit libraries at prospective schools:

—What is the library's total collection and what does it spend each year for books and periodicals?

—What provisions are made for orientation of new students? Most academic libraries are monumental in size compared with high-school libraries and most students need help in making the transition.

—How does the library relate to the rest of the university? Does the library staff include resource people with advanced degrees in various subject areas?

—What is the targeted seating? Is there nearly always a seat available at the library for a student wishing to study?

—What hours is the library open? Many students like to study late and need library resources.

—Does the library accommodate a wide range of abilities and interests? Are graduates and undergraduates segregated?

You and the Law

Presented by the State Bar of Texas

Q: I was married here in Texas a couple of months ago. I am still using my maiden name at work, and I have not changed my driver's license. May I keep my maiden name as my last name in both personal and business use?

A: There is no law requiring a wife to use her husband's last name or any other name for that matter, so long as she is not attempting to defraud creditors. As far as your driver's license goes, the Texas Constitution prohibits governmental agencies from requiring a woman to use the husband's name on official documents, including the driver's license. However, to make sure merchants carry accounts in your maiden name, you may need an order from a district judge making the decision official.

Q: My younger brother has been arrested for passing bad checks. He is 20 years old and still lives with my parents. Can my father be held responsible for making good the bad checks?

A: A parent is generally not liable for the negligent or criminal acts of a child who has reached the age of 18. Unless the son was passing his father's checks, the parent has no legal responsibility to make them good. However, if your brother was forging your father's name and passing your father's checks, the parent may be responsible for failing to take precautions to protect the checks and to prevent the forgeries.

Q: My husband and I own more than 300 acres of land, most of which we recently purchased. This country land is rented for share-cropping. We own no other land or home. This acreage is fence-enclosed and there is no house located within the boundaries. Are we entitled to a homestead exemption for this land?

A: Article 8, Section 1(b) of the Texas Constitution exempts the taxpayer's resident homestead from certain ad valorem taxes. Homestead includes land and a house for residence purposes. In the absence of actual occupancy, there must be an intention by the family to reside on the property along with some overt preparation evidencing that intention.

It would appear that the land you have described — since you have no residence and no intention of residing there — would not entitle you to the homestead exemption.

Q: I inherited several hundred shares of stock from my father. Must I have my wife's consent to sell the stock that is in my name?

A: No, you do not. Under Texas law, the property you inherit during your marriage is your separate property. You may manage your separate property — even to the extent of selling it — yourself, without the consent or signature of your spouse. In addition, the proceeds of the separate property remain your separate funds if you keep careful records to prove that it was a gift received during marriage.

Q: Can I get a loan without my husband as co-signer?

A: Yes, if you can satisfy the lender that you are financially responsible, you will be given the loan without your husband's signature. Recent federal legislation provides that a woman cannot be denied a loan by reason of gender.

In Texas, most lenders will base their decision on whether you have sufficient separate property and adequate earnings to make the payments yourself. Under Texas community property laws, you may claim one-half your combined incomes as your earnings, but you have sole control only of the salary you yourself earn. Also, it is often useful to visit the credit reporting bureau in your town to ask that your family payment records be listed under your name as well as your husband's. This will give you a credit history in your own name.

Send your questions to "You and the Law," State Bar of Texas, P.O. Box 12487, Austin, 78711. Answers may appear in columns in hypothetical terms; personal answers not possible.

Sponsorship Falls Through For Cubans

EL CENTRO, Calif. (AP) — A group of 53 Cuban refugees was sent to an Immigration and Naturalization Service camp here after their sponsorship arrangements fell through, authorities say.

The 53, who arrived this week, joined seven others already at the camp. Efforts will be made to find them new sponsors.

said Harry Malone, supervisory detention and deportation officer.

"The reasons are varied why the sponsorships broke down," Malone said. "Some of them have been in private homes, some in halfway houses. A lot of them just didn't like it in Wyoming or Michigan or wherever they were sent."

Scientists Link Chemical Defect To Blood Clots

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Duke University scientists think they've found a chemical defect that can determine which women are most likely to develop dangerous blood clots while taking birth control pills.

And the scientists said this week even moderate exercise seems to make a dramatic improvement in the deficiency, theoretically reducing the risk of "one of the most well-known and feared complications... of the pill."

"We have discovered what we feel is an underlying defect in the system (by which the body dissolves clots in the blood stream) that predisposes women to clot while they take the pill," said Dr. Salvatore V. Pizzo of Duke's medical school.

He said an inexpensive test developed at Duke to identify such apparently high-risk patients could become a screening tool for all women considering the pill. But he said the test won't be generally available for several years.

Until then, he said, "the prudent answer is that exercise would be a reasonable prescription for any woman who's using birth control pills."

The hormone manipulation that enables the birth-control pill to prevent pregnancies is known to raise the risk of blood clots, but the vast majority of women use the pill without encountering this problem.

Pizzo told an American Heart Association seminar today that clots affect scarcely 20 of every 10,000 women who use the pill. But he added, "for the unlucky few who do develop blood clots, the consequences can be devastating."

By blocking blood vessels, clots can cause heart attacks, strokes and other problems. In the most extreme cases, women die from the complication — "it happens 200 or 300 times a year," he said.

Pizzo said the reason for the increased risk among some women is uncertain, but among the suspects is a protein called plasminogen activator, the trigger of a chemical system that dissolves clots on blood vessel walls. If the trigger is missing, the whole system breaks down.

The Duke team measured activator levels in 20 women who had developed clots while taking the pill. The measurements were taken after the women had been off the drug for at least a year.

"We found levels of this protein were significantly decreased in 90 percent of the women who had suffered clots," Pizzo said, adding that the risk of clotting while on the pill is six times greater in women with low levels of the activator.

However, he said, about 30 percent of all pill users have lower-than-normal levels and most have no problems.

The task then was to find a probable hazardous level. A danger point was found, Pizzo said, in a North Carolina family with an apparently inherited defect that sends activator levels to such low points that affected males have a severe clotting problem, whose onset begins as early as 14."

"It seems to me prudent to conclude from taking the pill any woman whose level of this protein is less than that measured in this family," he said, adding that would exclude only about 1 percent of pill users.

Pizzo conceded the number of women in the study was small, but he said the clotting problems were so rare it was difficult to find even 20 subjects to study.

A second study tested healthy men and women before and after a 10-week exercise program at Duke.

"All the subjects showed some increase in activator levels, but the most dramatic increases were in patients who had low initial levels," he said.

He said such increased protein values should theoretically reduce the clotting risk.

DR. LAMB

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm a 67-year-old woman. I have had stomach ulcers for years and about 10 years ago I had surgery and have felt fine until the last two years. I had an X-ray and my doctor said they are showing again. A friend of mine my age takes two teaspoons of Vaseline a day and now he can eat anything. At first he took it with juice but now he takes it without anything. My wonder is if it will do any harm to take it — or any good. I have taken Tagamet but the doctor will only let me take it for six weeks. Tagamet helps but when I'm off it I feel terrible.

DEAR READER — Ugh! I don't think swallowing Vaseline is going to be a very popular treatment for ulcers or acidity. There is certainly no reason to think it will do any good. It might slow down the emptying of the stomach as fat does. And it should act somewhat the same as mineral oil does to soften the stool. Perhaps your friend's complaints were not caused by an ulcer but a colon problem. And perhaps he would have gotten better at that time regardless of what he took.

Ulcers are not constant things.

They tend to get better, sometimes in spite of what we do for them rather than because of what we do. There are more attacks in the fall and spring than the rest of the year — no one knows why.

Tagamet has proved useful for the short term treatment of ulcers in many patients. Data for long term treatment is not plentiful yet and that is why your doctor doesn't want you to take it a long time.

Even intractable ulcers can be helped a great deal with proper management. Their management is discussed in more detail in The Health Letter number 15-10, Understanding Ulcers and Acidity, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. That management includes your life style. Your habits, alcohol, coffee, cigarettes and the amount of stress in your life are all important factors that affect ulcers.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My wife recently has had spells of gasping for breath. These seem to come on after resting and one would think there is constriction of the muscles involved. She is 77 and in fairly good health for her age. She takes blood pressure medicine and Lanoxin. She sees her doctor more or less at regular times for blood tests and medicine. Is there something that might be done for her while she is gasping for breath?

DEAR READER — She should return to her doctor right away. Your brief description needs more elaboration but it sounds like you are describing cardiac asthma, a condition caused by the sudden accumulation of fluid in the lungs. The fluid accumulates when the person is resting, rather than the shortness of breath we often see with heart failure that develops with exertion. It does appear like an asthmatic attack and such attacks are particularly apt to occur in people who have high blood pressure and heart failure.

Her doctor is giving her Lanoxin to strengthen her heart but he may want to adjust things or cut down or eliminate her salt.

When she has one of these attacks be sure she sits up; she will be able to breathe better in that position.

Plant May Run On Marijuana

PORT EVERGLADES, Fla. (UPI) — A Florida Power & Light Co. plant could turn into a "groovy" generator if experiments in burning marijuana to produce electricity prove successful.

The idea was to dispose of the tons and tons of the illicit weed that is seized almost daily by law enforcement authorities around south Florida. And it could save the power company and its customers a little bit on their foreign fuel oil bill.

U.S. Customs officials, who counted more than 462 tons of marijuana confiscated from smugglers last year, came up with the proposal. FP&L officials agreed to try producing "pot power." So far, it hasn't been easy.

"Please don't build this up — it's strictly a test," begged utility firm spokeswoman Marianne Linden. This is a whole new thing and we're not sure it will work."

The troubles have been mostly mechanical, she said. Heavy-duty shredder-blower machines must chop up the bales of dried marijuana to dust-like consistency and blow it at high speed into the boiler furnace that is burning jets of oil.

Tech Engineering Building Under Consideration

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Texas Tech University's request to build a $4 million Petroleum Engineering Building is one of $32 million in construction projects proposed by various state colleges which will be considered in Austin today and Friday by the Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System.

The newest of the 18 board members, former Gov. Preston Smith of Lubbock, has already said he will vote in favor of the project. It will be the first board meeting for Smith. He was selected to chair the board Wednesday. His appointment to the board by Gov. Bill Clements was confirmed by the Texas Senate just three days ago.

Although Tech officials are "cautiously optimistic" that the project will receive approval, they are prepared with an array of arguments to justify the construction in case the Coordinating Board staff recommends denial of the request.

"This is an emergency," Tech regent Joe Pevehouse said of the construction request. The Midland oilman plans to attend today's meeting and lend support if he is asked to give testimony. "The oil industry has a very serious shortage of petroleum engineers," he said. "The old building at Tech hasn't been changed since 1950." But with a larger, more modern facility, Pevehouse says, "We can double the output of graduates from Tech."

Tech's existing facility, built in 1949, services 450 students majoring in the field although there were only about 50 majors when the building opened 31 years ago. The two-story structure contains one classroom and three labs. Officials say they are turning away students because of the crowded conditions.

Located near the Permian Basin which accounts for about 23 percent of all domestic oil production, Texas Tech has the only accredited petroleum engineering program in West Texas.

But the department's 1979 accreditation report "clearly stated that continued accreditation depended upon the provision of better facilities and laboratory equipment," according to Tech officials.

If the Coordinating Board, which has the authority to grant or deny construction at 11 state colleges, does approve Tech's request, the project would begin almost immediately.

contributors, explained that the donation "is an opportunity for us to solve the engineering shortage."

Franks, noting the close geographic location of Tech to the oil-rich Permian Basin, said, "West Texas is a major reserve center in the world and that's why this school expansion (new building) is compulsory."

He also pointed out that today's technology requires more skilled personnel. "It takes more people today to acquire a barrel of oil," he said, explaining that there will be plenty of jobs available for all the petroleum engineering graduates expected at Tech.

Police Raid Homes In Search Of Drugs

Confidential tips to police led to two separate raids on Lubbock residences Wednesday night and the discovery of an undisclosed amount of "green, leafy substance," thought to be marijuana, at both locations.

Police said they found some of the substance when they entered a Seventh Street residence shortly before 9 p.m., armed with a search warrant issued by Justice of the Peace Charles Smith.

A 26-year-old man and his wife, 26, were taken into custody and jailed on suspicion of possessing a controlled substance. The couple's three children were given into the care of the woman's father, according to reports.

About 15 minutes earlier, officers, also holding a search warrant signed by Smith, entered a 28th Street apartment and reportedly confiscated an undetermined amount of marijuana, seeds and paraphernalia.

Police said they questioned the three men and woman inside the apartment, but no arrest was made at the scene.

A police officer took into custody two men and a 15-year-old boy for allegedly stealing wheel covers after the suspects were seen shortly after midnight today being chased by one of their victims, according to authorities.

The officer said he followed the pursuit to the 1600-block of Eighth Street where both vehicles stopped. The lone occupant of one of the cars told the officer the three persons in the other vehicle had just stolen his wheel covers.

Police said they were given permission to search the suspects' car and found six wheel covers stacked in the trunk. The two men, ages 21 and 22, and the boy were detained after the complainant identified four of the covers.

The remaining wheel covers, police said, were identified later by a person who said they were stolen off his car at Main Street and Avenue X.

Two 19-year-old men were arrested about 2:15 a.m. today at 19th Street and Avenue G after a gun ball machine, reportedly stolen from a department store, was found in the back of their car.

Gary Lee O'Neal, 36, of 1514 Paris Ave. told police he was assaulted by three men demanding his money after he walked away from a club in the 1800 block of Texas Avenue about 2:30 a.m. today.

Two of the men, the victim said, approached him as he was walking home and ordered him to hand over all his money. After O'Neal said he had no money, the two men allegedly knocked him down and left.

The victim said that several minutes later the two white men, now accompanied by a Mexican-American male, confronted him again in the 1200-block of 16th Street and ordered him to give them money.

Police were told that when O'Neal once again refused, the Mexican-American knocked him down and kicked him several times in the ribs. He then allegedly took the victim's billfold, but threw it down after finding nothing in it.

Reports state the three assailants left without seriously injuring O'Neal.

A 17-year-old Lubbock man was jailed Wednesday afternoon when a woman told police he tried to break into her home.

Angela Ramirez told officers someone knocked on her door several times about 2 p.m. Tuesday. As she walked toward the front door, she saw a man standing at a window on the south side of the residence, reports show.

The woman said the suspect removed the screen and attempted to raise the window. After the unsuccessful attempt, the would-be burglar walked to the back of the house, according to reports.

Miss Ramirez had notified police, reports indicated, and officers arrived to find the suspect standing in the front yard of the residence. He was arrested on suspicion of attempted burglary.

In other activity, a 15-year-old girl told police she was assaulted Wednesday morning by a woman who lives in the same apartment complex.

The girl said she went to the suspect's apartment shortly before 8 a.m. to go to school with the suspect's younger sister. When she arrived, the girl said, the woman accused the teen-ager of speaking badly of her.

The woman then pulled the victim's hair and kicked her several times, reports show. The girl returned to her apartment and told her brother of the incident and he called police, reports show.

Assorted manual and power tools were stolen Tuesday from Steve Keith of 3707 Elmwood Ave., police said.

Keith told police the tools, valued at $900, were stolen from the rear of his pickup between 4:30 and 8:30 p.m. The vehicle was parked at his home when the theft occurred, reports show.

Fishermen Say Vietnamese Protected

ROCKPORT (UPI) — A spokesman for Texas bay shrimpers has charged that high-level government is protecting Vietnamese immigrant fishermen who, the Texans claim, are operating fishing boats without proper documentation.

Raymond James said Wednesday the Texas fishermen must get the attention of officials in Washington and make the point that enforcement of commercial vessel licensing should extend to everybody's fishing boat.

"Something needs to come from the top of the hill to take the protective shield from these Vietnamese so they will be treated just like the rest of us," he said.

James spoke in response to a Coast Guard refusal to inspect all Vietnamese fishing boats in Gulf Coast bays to determine if they are licensed as commercial vessels or should be.

The Coast Guard's turndown came Tuesday in the latest of a series of federally mediated meetings aimed at ending a dispute between the Texans and Vietnamese immigrant fishermen over how many boats are used in Gulf Coast bays.

Corpus Christi (AP) — Dismissal proceedings are under way for a police sergeant who was arrested on charges he allegedly tried to sell marijuana to undercover agents, Police Chief Bill Banner said.

Leonard S. Hoyt, 30, was arrested Tuesday night after fellow officers said he allegedly tried to sell them 90 pounds of pot on a downtown street, Banner said.

Hoyt spent one night in jail before being released on $2,000 bond.

The chief said city narcotics officers launched an investigation two weeks ago after receiving a tip that Hoyt wanted to sell some marijuana.

"An offer of sale was made by Hoyt," Banner said. "The bargain was struck for 90 pounds at $200 per pound and last night (Tuesday), Leonard Hoyt delivered it to an undercover agent."

Moore Named New District Attorney

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements announced the appointment today of Richard Moore of Plainview as district attorney of the 64th and 242nd Judicial Districts.

Clements said he would ask the Senate to confirm the appointment Monday.

Moore, 29, will replace Marvin Marshall of Plainview, who resigned to become judge of the 242nd District Court.

Moore served as an assistant district attorney in Midland County in 1979 and 1980.

Leningrad Retains Evidence Of Glorious Past

By JOHN MOODY
LENINGRAD, U.S.S.R. (UPI) — There is something refined and gentle about this city that makes it an unlikely crucible of communist revolution. But it was here that Vladimir Lenin turned a discontented rabble into a vanguard of rebellion and brought the czar's dynasty to a fiery end. Sixty-four years later, Leningrad tries to be a typical Soviet city. But the glories of its pre-revolutionary past keep peeping through the regulation drabness like a diamond tie-pin between gray flannel lapels. There are the 620 bridges that span graceful canals flowing from the Neva River. Many of the waterways are flanked by wrought iron street lamps intended to rival those of Paris. Some of the lamps still work. Friezes look down from 200-year-old buildings that were home to the wealthy and well-born. Now they are dingy offices, apartment houses, museums. The crowning jewel, the Hermitage museum, ranks with the Louvre in Paris and Madrid's Prado in the quality and importance of its collection. Thousands stream through its corridors and galleries, drinking in sights that Empress Catherine II once boasted were reserved for "just the mice and me." There are the churches where royalty worshipped: the Peter and Paul fortress Cathedral across the Neva, St. Isaac on Gertsena Street, the Kazan Cathedral renamed the "Museum of Religion and Atheism," and the Cathedral of the Resurrection, better known as the Cathedral of Blood. They retain a sense of history and mystery, even when they are shut and pasted with signs announcing they are undergoing repairs.

and the city's past. Most major Western museums carefully control lighting and temperatures in their galleries, but many of the Hermitage chambers have bare bulbs dangling from the ceiling. Dark rooms do nothing to bring out the amber tones of its Rembrandts or enhance Impressionist masterpieces by Monet and Pissaro. A visiting American art scholar was told recently this was because museum officials could not get permission from city authorities to alter the building's architecture in any way. Outside, the delicate aqua-colored building, once the Winter Palace, is dimmed by dirt and grime of relentless winters, though it had a facelift just three years ago. Women's clothing stores seemed better stocked than in Moscow, and with more fashionable styles. Food stores had adequate stocks, although residents said meat recently has become harder to find.

Leningraders are, by and large, more friendly than Muscovites. They are also more anxious to change money with foreigners. A young hotel employee politely answered questions about life in the city built for Peter and now named for Lenin. As she walked through the lobby her responses were loud and doctrinaire. But when she got onto the street, her tone became hushed. "This must have been such a beautiful city before the revolution."

West Germans Boast Variety Of Clubs

HAMBURG, West Germany (UPI) — If you love dogs, admire old clocks or long for rickety walks on the beach, hate cars, raise canaries or are obsessed with correct spelling, West Germany has a club for you.

There are tens of thousands of registered West German clubs or "Vereine" — clubs, societies, unions — formally established by a court register.

Enthusiasts have established Friends of Old Watches, the German Alsatian Dog Club and the Pedestrian Protection Society.

"We look after those interests of our members who have no other outlets," said Wilhelm Haeefe, president of the Canary Breeders' Union. His 16,000 members, responsible for proper breeding among 1.5 million German canaries, do not take their task lightly.

"At our annual national canary championships, birds are judged in two categories, appearance and voice," Haeefe said. "When you consider there are more than 4,000 color varieties, breeders have to watch standards closely."

Kurt Tuchsolsky, an author whose pointed satire of Germany between the world wars forced him into exile at the Nazi takeover, said of his countrymen, "Whenever more than two Germans meet, they form a club."

"We formed 15 years ago to influence town planners," said Cologne lawyer Johannes Wilpert, chairman of the Pedestrian Protection Society. "Our special emphasis is traffic problems of children and the handicapped."

Most clubs count on volunteers whose leisure-time passion may be unknown to fellow workers.

The newsletter editor of a German nudist club with a membership numbering tens of thousands, reached by telephone at the office of his regular job, said he could not talk about the club, "Not here, I am busy now and people are listening."

A few clubs wield great influence, the one with most clout probably being the German Automobile Club which organizes 6.6 million of the country's 20 million car owners.

Others cater to very special groups. The Small People's Club is open to adults under 4 1/2 feet tall.

"There are a number of difficult, everyday problems for short people," said Otto Engel, a co-founder of the club in 1968. It has more than 300 members.

Its main achievement, Engel said, was winning official recognition that shortness can be a handicap. "Buses are too high to get into, and so are trains."

Hundreds of monuments recall the days of the czars. The Bronze Horseman, Peter the Great, rears up on his mount to see across the river. A statue to Catherine II rises just off Nevsky Prospekt. Such tributes are not seen in Moscow.

But the city, in name and numbers, belongs to Lenin. Guidebooks boast that 237 places are named for the Bolshevik leader, which does not make direction-giving easy. The political direction, however, is clear.

Lovers of culture smugly and justifiably consider Leningrad superior to Moscow, but the No. 2 city takes its direction from the Kremlin. The city's Communist Party chief, Grigory Romanov, runs a conservative, orthodox operation, in hopes of some day being called to Moscow in a more important capacity.

His chances were not improved by stories in 1979 charging him with borrowing a dinner service of Catherine the Great from the Hermitage for his daughter's wedding.

He also is said to have broken several pieces. Though unproven, the story flashed around the city and has come to symbolize the relationship between the party

Chinese Research Team Begins Hunt For Legendary Man-Beast

PEKING (AP) — The search is on for China's own version of "bigfoot," the smiling man-beast of the mountains — "fei fei," the great baboon.

In northwest Hubei province, the peasants talk of a smiling "dull giant," a hairy 10-foot-3-inch-tall creature who strides vigorously through the forest.

In the mountains of coastal Zhejiang, the folks talk of smaller "man-bears" and "wild men."

For hundreds of years man-apes have figured in Chinese legends. One researcher says 250 people in remote Hubei have sighted, encountered and even fought with the wild men. Last summer an expedition found 7,000 human-like footprints belonging to a creature standing about 9 feet tall.

The Chinese Academy of Sciences has organized a research team to hunt the creatures, with the help of the provincial Communist party. Researchers say the snows of winter will help them track the denizens.

The latest clue to the mystery of the fei-fei comes from the Nine Dragons Mountains in Zhejiang on the central coast.

The Shanghai Wen Hui daily newspaper reported recently that the hands and feet of a wild man, cut off 23 years ago, have been recovered.

The specimens, intact but shriveled, had been hidden and forgotten during the chaotic 1966-76 cultural evolution.

A newspaper photograph shows human-like hands with five fingers and clearly defined fingernails. The feet appear to have five toes and an enlarged forefoot.

The paper told a bizarre tale of the capture and carnival sideshow-like display of the man-beast 23 years ago.

On May 23, 1957, 13-year-old Wang Congmei was grazing a few cows near a creek in Zhuatung village, Songyag county, the story said. The afternoon was dark and drizzling when a human-like creature appeared and headed toward the girl.

She cried for help, the story said. The startled beast panicked, stumbled into a bog and was beaten to death with sticks by the women of the village.

The peasants thought they had found the legendary man-beast. They looted off its hands and feet and sent them to the local government for a reward.

The creature was a sensation. The corpse was displayed at the village and hundreds of people went to view the legend in the flesh.

The beast was a humble specimen, male, about 5 feet tall, and covered with long, silky black hair. As it walked, its arms frequently swept the ground.

A local biologist preserved the famous hands and feet. Since that time, scientists have said that the creature was not a monkey but "an unknown animal with a human shape," the newspaper said.

Local researchers are now studying the specimen, while in Hubei province to the west the regional fei-fei is receiving more attention.

Peking's Guangming daily, the newspaper of science and education, reported the ongoing search for the giant.

Last June researchers found and publicized 1,000 footprints of the creature in the Shennanglia Forest area. They also found a nest believed built by the wild men on Knife and Spear Mountain.

The leader of the wild-man expedition, Liu Minzhuang, reported the tracks had been found near a cliff in an area of jagged peaks, far from human habitation.

Franco's Spirit Lives On In Spanish City

VALLADOLID, Spain (UPI) — Slo-gans on the walls of ancient Valladolid tell the story:

"Killing Reds is a sport"
"Reds? No thanks"
"Death to the King"

The cathedral and industrial city 100 miles northwest of Madrid, where Christopher Columbus died in poverty, is a testament to the old Spain — the Spain of Generalissimo Francisco Franco where democracy was a dirty word.

Street violence by young fascists — allegedly with police connivance — has become a near-daily occurrence, especially in areas declared "Nationalist zones" by militants of the Franco-style New Force Party or the Nazi-styled Falange Party.

"This, denying and disregard for the law has made some areas of Valladolid as dangerous as the red light districts of a port city or the streets of Berlin during the rise of Nazism," the independent newspaper El Pais said recently.

Police and right-wing extremists frequent the same bars and, local police sources say, agree that reformist Prime Minister Adolfo Suarez is a traitor.

Within three months extremists killed two old people in an attack on a Communist Party office and sent four youths to the hospital after beatings and shooting sprees.

They have threatened violence to dozens of officials including Civil Governor Roman Ledesma and have bombed city hall, Communist Party headquarters, Socialist Party headquarters, trade union offices, university buildings, bookshops, bars and a cinema showing a film on Basque separatist guerrillas.

A Communist militant who was kidnapped and "interrogated" on the outskirts of the city was released after five cigarettes were stubbed out on his face.

Although Valladolid has a strong right-wing tradition — it hosted the Falange's first national conference in 1934 and was among the first cities to rally to Franco in 1936, it has voted left in elections since the dictator died in 1975 and was succeeded by the democratic-minded King Juan Carlos.

"Valladolid is not a city of the extreme right," says Socialist Mayor Tomas Rodriguez Bolanos. But he accuses the police of going easy on right-wing thugs.

"We are a little surprised to see violent rightists who have been taken into detention walking in the streets soon afterward. These people go on gathering in bars and other well-known hangouts and no one does anything about it."

A local Socialist leader said the party once called police headquarters to alert them to an impending visit by Socialist leader Felipe Gonzalez. Only the party and the police knew of the visit, he said, but the following day city streets were full of graffiti insulting Gonzalez.

In an unprecedented move, a group of anti-fascist policemen recently leaked to a national newspaper a statement denouncing fellow officers for being friends of right-wing thugs. They expressed concern over "the constant invasion of right-wing extremists in the police."

In the Valladolid region, "the (post-Franco) constitution not only has not been accepted by many police, but has been opposed with poorly veiled energy," they said. "The legality of the ballot box is also scorned..."

Responding to criticism, authorities recently reassigned the top two officers and several lower-ranking officers in Valladolid police intelligence.

Yugoslav School For Priests Combines Marxism, Religion

ZELIMLJE, Yugoslavia (AP) — For those studying to be Roman Catholic priests in this Communist country, the pictures on the classroom wall tell much of the story:

The likeness of Pope John Paul II looks down from one side of the wall. On the other side is the late President Josip Broz Tito, the founder of modern Yugoslavia. In the center hangs a crucifix.

The curriculum at Zelimlje College, like its wall ornaments, is a singular mix of state and religion in this nation where religion is tolerated but atheist Marxism remains the official ideology.

Priests of the Salesian order teach the state-required courses in Marxism as well as scripture, liturgy and other doctrinal studies.

The four-year school for boys 14-18 years old produces between 40 and 80 graduates each year. Officials acknowledge there have been problems in the college's 15-year existence.

Professor Rudi Borstnik, school principal, said enrollment was low, probably because "young people are not informed about the possibilities for this vocation, while the state intensively advertises opportunities for different vocations, but where, naturally, the religious professions are not included."

Officially approved schools may announce their vacancies through public media. But a senior Slovenian official recently declared that access by the church to mass media would be unconstitutional.

A school spokesman said in the presence of a Yugoslav government spokesman, who did not challenge him, that there had also been evidence of pressures on parents not to approve their children's intentions to enroll here.

The school, in a three-story building on the side of a hill about 10 miles from Ljubljana, teaches all subjects prescribed by authorities for schools of general orientation, including Marxism.

Informed sources said the Marxist instruction was viewed as a necessary chore — the students must pass examinations before a non-clerical teachers' commission. Most pass Marxism, and neither the school nor the government has complained about the subject or the way it is taught.

Jury Indicts Mrs. Daniel

LIBERTY (AP) — The Liberty County district attorney's office says the murder trial of Vickie Daniel, the widow of slain former Texas House Speaker Price Daniel Jr., probably won't be held until May or June.

A county grand jury indicted the attractive blonde widow on a charge of murder Wednesday night, after hearing a marathon nine hours of secret testimony.

"The grand jury indicted Vickie Daniel for first-degree murder," district attorney Carroll Wilborn told newsmen minutes after jurors filed from their private chambers.

"I would anticipate the earliest possible trial date as May or June," he said.

He said the penalty upon conviction could range from five years to life imprisonment, and that she could get probation.

"There is some indication there was some premeditation or motive," Wilborn said, without elaboration.

The 12-member panel heard 19 witnesses, including Vickie Daniel's 11-year-old daughter by a previous marriage, and rendered its decision shortly before 11 p.m. Wednesday.

Mrs. Daniel, 33, charged last Friday with the Jan. 19 slaying, declined an invitation to appear before the grand jury — not uncommon for the accused.

She is free on $50,000 bond. Authorities maintained the one-time waitress killed the socially and politically prominent Daniel with a single .22-caliber shot fired from rifle at close range.

Daniel, 39, son and namesake of a former Texas governor, died on the floor of his stylish Liberty ranch home, half an hour's drive from Houston.

Included among the 19 witnesses were investigators, hospital and ambulance personnel, a newsman, an accountant-attorney and family members of both the deceased and the accused.

The latter included Daniel's brother, Houston; his wife, Charlotte; and a cousin.

Larry Moore, Vickie Daniel's ex-husband, appeared before the panel for 25 minutes and was followed by his young daughter, Kimberly.

Both state and defense sources said Kimberly witnessed a quarrel, or perhaps an altercation, prior to the shooting. But they differed sharply in what the child may or may not have seen and heard.

The district attorney said in response to a question that he expected Kimberly to be called a witness.

"I think she would be called as a defense witness," he disclosed.

He said she did not witness the shooting, but he told reporters that the slaying apparently followed an argument between Daniel and his wife.

"I wasn't surprised by the indictment," he added.

Earlier in the day, the panel first heard from Liberty County Sheriff C.L. Eckols, who led the investigation.

Andrew J. Lannie of Baytown, Mrs. Daniel's lawyer, said Mrs. Daniel is still under a physician's care, is taking medication and still suffers from severe shock.

The decision not to appear before the grand jury, he was, was a medical decision, not a legal one.

Mrs. Daniel was not charged until Saturday, five days after the evening killing. She was hospitalized after the shooting and released Friday. Her doctors said she suffered from shock and hysteria.

Daniel died from internal bleeding after the bullet struck his aorta, a major artery, an autopsy showed.

Eckols said Lannie told him a warning shot was fired. The bullet was never found but the sheriff said it went through the ceiling and out the roof.

Consumers Hail Action By PUC

AUSTIN (AP) — Consumer groups are praising the Public Utility Commission for holding Southwestern Bell to a nickel-a-month increase for most residential customers. Bell officials, however, say they might sue.

PUC's Wednesday order gives Bell a $114 million increase. The company wanted $326 million, including a $1.25 monthly increase for most household customers.

Bell officials immediately talked about fighting the PUC order. Vice President Paul Roth said Bell might take the case to court or quickly file for another rate jump. "(It is simply not enough," he said.

Carole Barger, attorney for Consumers Union and the Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now, said, "We're very pleased."

"The commission showed more concern for residential rate-payers than they ever have before," she said.

The new rates, effective within 30 days, include a five-cent monthly increase for residential customers in large Texas cities, including Houston, Dallas, Fort Worth, San Antonio, Waco and Corpus Christi.

Under the PUC order, residential customers in the smallest cities served by Bell (including Cameron, Carrizo Springs, and Cotulla) will pay a 55-cent monthly increase. A 30-cent rise was ordered for a group of cities including Alice, Bay City, Huntsville, Pampa and Kingsville.

Roth said he was "deeply disappointed" by the order and "wouldn't rule out" a lawsuit challenging the PUC action.

"To raise local service by five cents is woefully inadequate," Roth said. "My Sunday newspaper gets raised from 50 cents to 75 cents by a small article in the paper saying the rate will go up next Sunday."

He said the company would immediately begin working on another increase — "We'll have to."

PUC Chairman George Cowden recommended approval of Examiner Phil Ricketts' report, with minor changes. Commissioner Moak Rollins also voted for approval.

Perpetual dissenter Garrett Morris voted no.

"I would deny the rate increase, period, in toto," said Morris.

PUC ordered Bell to make refunds to customers who have paid the increased rates collected since November. Bell put its proposed rates into effect under a bond to guarantee refunds if the rates were not approved. Ten percent interest will be added to the refunds.

Bell's rate request, filed last July, spawned a seven-week hearing last year, longest in PUC history. Ricketts' 55-page report recommended a 14.1 percent rate of return to stockholders, compared to the 16.8 percent Bell said was needed.

Roth said the order would mean Bell stockholders would earn less than the 14.1 percent recommended by Ricketts.

"Investors tell us they expect a 16.8 to 17 percent return," Roth said. "There's no way they can meet investors' expectations like that when you earn less than 14.1 percent."

Court Blocks Purchase Of Land For New Prison

AUSTIN (UPI) — An appeals court enjoined the state Wednesday from buying 6,000 acres of land for a new prison in Grimes County.

Ten Grimes County residents had asked the 3rd Court of Civil Appeals earlier Wednesday to block the purchase until their suit against the prison is heard. If the purchase is completed before the case against it is heard, the lawsuit will be moot, the residents argued.

No date has been set for a hearing on the merits of the suit, which contends that the purchase would be illegal, would erode the tax base in the county and would damage the property of the residents.

Assistant Attorney General Jerry Cain argued that the state should be allowed to proceed with the $7 million purchase while the appeal is heard. If the court rules that the purchase was not legal, Cain said, the state can always get its money back.

Cain, representing the Department of Corrections, insisted that no permanent damage would be done to the plaintiffs if the state completed purchase of the land before the suit is decided.

Karl Hoppess, the attorney representing the residents opposing the prison, told the court the state has no contract to buy the land, but his comment was angrily disputed after the hearing ended by one of the land owners. "I signed an agreement with them," Robert A. Harris, owner of 420 of the acres the state has negotiated to buy, told Hoppess in the hall outside the courtroom. "I've got a contract. If this thing don't go through, you all are going to have a case on you."

Local Legislators Voice Various Reactions To Proposed Pay Hike

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff
A proposal to raise state legislators' pay by 50 percent and expenses by 66 percent elicited reactions ranging from derision to support from local legislators polled Wednesday.

Meanwhile, a Senate bill calling for a 6.8 percent emergency pay hike for state employees ran into a stumbling block, with House members — including the two local representatives — instead approving a 5.1 percent salary boost.

State Sen. E.L. Short of Tahoka said he had not heard about the proposal by Rep. Bill Heatly of Paducah for a substantial percentage increase in legislator pay, but predicted the measure does not have "one chance at all."

Heatly's proposal is for a constitutional amendment which would have to be approved by a two-thirds vote of both houses before going to Texas voters for ratification. The amendment would up legislators' pay from $600 per month to $900 and expenses from $30 a day to $50. State legislators have not received a salary increase since 1975.

Short said he is "very satisfied" with current pay levels, adding he knew what the pay would be when he took the job. The senator noted that the state constitution provides that Texas citizens, rather than legislators, must grant its senators and representatives pay raises.

"I'm glad it's in the constitution," Short said, adding he wishes the same provision were in the United States Constitution. Federal legislators may vote themselves a salary hike.

But Heatly's proposal met with far less opposition, and even some support from State Reps. Froy Salinas and Nolan "Buzz" Robnett.

"It's not so outrageous," said Salinas, noting that he would back the 50 percent figure. "You're only talking about 181 people at $300 (salary increase) a piece," he said, intimating the time is ripe for a pay boost.

He said he would approve the amendment, thereby giving "the people the opportunity to vote on it." But he said he does not know if that mandate would come from Texas citizens.

Robnett noted the recommendation is one of "a lot of suggestions statewide." But he said he would be "noncommittal" until he can arrive at a consensus among his colleagues in the legislature.

Robnett admitted that the raise "sounds like a heck of an increase" at first glance, but from "$600 to $900 is not a heck of a lot of money."

However, action on a pay raise for state employees has progressed somewhat, with the House and Senate arriving at two different designated salary increases.

Yugoslav School For Priests Combines Marxism, Religion

ZELIMLJE, Yugoslavia (AP) — For those studying to be Roman Catholic priests in this Communist country, the pictures on the classroom wall tell much of the story.

The likeness of Pope John Paul II looks down from one side of the wall. On the other side is the late President Josip Broz Tito, the founder of modern Yugoslavia. In the center hangs a crucifix.

The curriculum at Zelimlje College, like its wall ornaments, is a singular mix of state and religion in this nation where religion is tolerated but atheist Marxism remains the official ideology.

Priests of the Salesian order teach the state-required courses in Marxism as well as scripture, liturgy and other doctrinal studies.

The four-year school for boys 14-18 years old produces between 40 and 80 graduates each year. Officials acknowledge there have been problems in the college's 15-year existence.

Professor Rudi Borstnik, school principal, said enrollment was low, probably because "young people are not informed about the possibilities for this vocation, while the state intensively advertises opportunities for different vocations, but where, naturally, the religious professions are not included."

Officially approved schools may announce their vacancies through public media. But a senior Slovenian official recently declared that access by the church to mass media would be unconstitutional.

A school spokesman said in the presence of a Yugoslav government spokesman, who did not challenge him, that there had also been evidence of pressures on parents not to approve their children's intentions to enroll here.

The school, in a three-story building on the side of a hill about 10 miles from Ljubljana, teaches all subjects prescribed by authorities for schools of general orientation, including Marxism.

Informed sources said the Marxist instruction was viewed as a necessary chore — the students must pass examinations before a non-clerical teachers' commission. Most pass Marxism, and neither the school nor the government has complained about the subject or the way it is taught.

Jury Indicts Mrs. Daniel

LIBERTY (AP) — The Liberty County district attorney's office says the murder trial of Vickie Daniel, the widow of slain former Texas House Speaker Price Daniel Jr., probably won't be held until May or June.

A county grand jury indicted the attractive blonde widow on a charge of murder Wednesday night, after hearing a marathon nine hours of secret testimony.

"The grand jury indicted Vickie Daniel for first-degree murder," district attorney Carroll Wilborn told newsmen minutes after jurors filed from their private chambers.

"I would anticipate the earliest possible trial date as May or June," he said.

He said the penalty upon conviction could range from five years to life imprisonment, and that she could get probation.

"There is some indication there was some premeditation or motive," Wilborn said, without elaboration.

The 12-member panel heard 19 witnesses, including Vickie Daniel's 11-year-old daughter by a previous marriage, and rendered its decision shortly before 11 p.m. Wednesday.

Mrs. Daniel, 33, charged last Friday with the Jan. 19 slaying, declined an invitation to appear before the grand jury — not uncommon for the accused.

She is free on $50,000 bond. Authorities maintained the one-time waitress killed the socially and politically prominent Daniel with a single .22-caliber shot fired from rifle at close range.

Daniel, 39, son and namesake of a former Texas governor, died on the floor of his stylish Liberty ranch home, half an hour's drive from Houston.

Included among the 19 witnesses were investigators, hospital and ambulance personnel, a newsman, an accountant-attorney and family members of both the deceased and the accused.

The latter included Daniel's brother, Houston; his wife, Charlotte; and a cousin.

Larry Moore, Vickie Daniel's ex-husband, appeared before the panel for 25 minutes and was followed by his young daughter, Kimberly.

Both state and defense sources said Kimberly witnessed a quarrel, or perhaps an altercation, prior to the shooting.

But they differed sharply in what the child may or may not have seen and heard.

The district attorney said in response to a question that he expected Kimberly to be called a witness.

"I think she would be called as a defense witness," he disclosed.

He said she did not witness the shooting, but he told reporters that the slaying apparently followed an argument between Daniel and his wife.

"I wasn't surprised by the indictment," he added.

Earlier in the day, the panel first heard from Liberty County Sheriff C.L. Eckols, who led the investigation.

Andrew J. Lannie of Baytown, Mrs. Daniel's lawyer, said Mrs. Daniel is still under a physician's care, is taking medication and still suffers from severe shock.

The decision not to appear before the grand jury, he was, a medical decision, not a legal one.

Daniel died from internal bleeding after the bullet struck his aorta, a major artery, an autopsy showed.

The annual meeting of the Caprock Girl Scout Council was held Monday at the Lubbock Womens Club.

Highlighting the program was a presentation "Girl Scouting 1980s Style" by Mrs. Keith Strain, Mrs. John Mallory and Mrs. Billy M. Hall. Friends of Girl Scouts were recognized and service pins presented to adult Girl Scouts who have served 10 years or more.

The business meeting followed with election of new officers, board and nominating committee members and delegates to the national council meeting.

Dr. Harvey Joanning, chairman of the personnel services committee, awarded "Thanks Badges," the highest awards in the Girl Scout organization, to Mrs. Buster Owens, Littlefield; and Mrs. Frank Falbo, Lubbock. Mrs. Owens is former president of the board of directors, leader, fund raiser and field services chairman. Mrs. Falbo is a council trainer, former leader, field services chairman and buyer for Lubbock day camps for the past 10 years.

Plaques of Appreciation were given to long time Rio Blanco camp staff members and former campers, Sidney Sealy, R.N. and camp nurse; Laurie Walters and Gail Griffin Foote, unit staff; Glen Sugasek, waterfront; and Sherry Peel, assistant camp director, camp buyer and unit staff. These young women also have served the council as consultants, leaders and program trainers.

Plaques also were presented to Mrs. Georgia Mae Erickson, Crosbyton; Wanda Tyler, Plainview; Gary and Pat Oakley, Lubbock; and to Judge Robert Work and Bill Bennett, both of Crosbyton, who contributed special assistance for camp projects.

Mrs. and Mrs. Joe Rangel, Lubbock, were awarded plaques for their support and leadership in the Robin Service Unit and for council-wide events held to familiarize families of Spanish-speaking children with facilities at Camp Rio Blanco. Rev. Tommie Beck and the First United Methodist Church, Abernathy, received plaques for their support of the Abernathy Girl Scout program.

Certificates of appreciation were awarded public affairs directors at Lubbock television and radio stations for courtesies in public service announcements and to the Littlefield United Way for continuous fair share contributions to the council.

Renee Haarmeyer, Cadette Scout, Plainview, was recognized for having won two national Girl Scout photography awards in the 1980 Kodak contest. Renee earned a $50 bond and certificates of merit.

New officers elected to three-year terms on the board of directors included: Mrs. Seymour Evans, Lubbock, second vice president; Mrs. Merwyn Igo, Plainview, third vice president; and Loyd Rinehart, Lubbock, council treasurer.

Members-at-Large elected were: Mrs. Eddie Levellen, Plainview; Stephen Henry, Levelland; Beverly Taylor, Abernathy; Jesse Garza, A.B. Watkins, Clarence Priestly, Mrs. Ted Sisco and Henry A. Knight, Lubbock.

Mrs. H.L. Kinnison, Mrs. Steve Anderson and John Mallory were elected to serve on the nominating committee.

Prior to the council meeting, the board of directors previewed a slide show presented by Mrs. Craig McDonald, Ralls, and the newly-formed "Green Team," describing the council's financial structure. Plans include presenting the show to service units in the 18-county area.

Triskaidekaphobes — those who fear the number 13 — have no place at the bridge table, since that number is a key to many hands. Each player is dealt 13 cards; there are 13 cards in a suit; and the ability to count to 13 is often the secret of winning bridge.

South's opening bid of one club is standard on 4-4-1 hand patterns where the singleton is a diamond. With the vulnerability in his favor, West elected to jam the bidding with a leap to five diamonds, turning the auction into a guessing game. North wasn't sure whether his side could make a grand slam, but a small seemed highly likely, so he settled for the safe action.

West led the king of diamonds, and dummy's length in the suit was an unwelcome sight. Declarer covered with dummy's ace and his worst fears were realized when East ruffed. East returned a spade and everything hinged on declarer's ability to find the king of clubs.

It might appear that since East was void in diamonds, he rated to have longer clubs. Thus, declarer's best chance seemed to be to lead a club to the ace in the hope that the two missing cards in the suits were now split between the defenders. However, declarer realized that East had to have length in the major suits and that he might be able to obtain a count of the hand in perfect safety.

Accordingly, declarer won the ace of spades and continued with the queen, discarding the ace of hearts from dummy. On the jack of

Doctor's Behavior Shocks Mom

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday I took my 16-year-old daughter, whom I'll call Sally, for her first visit to a gynecologist, and I am still in shock at what happened in his office.

Sally had a very painful lump in her abdomen, and it took me three days to convince her that doctors were nice guys, concerned with helping people feel better, and that she must trust me and get help.

Well, the nurse led Sally into the examining room to prepare her for the examination. Sally was scared to death and had big tears in her eyes when she went in. The doctor came in, looked Sally in the eye, registered disgust and impatience, then he turned around and walked out. He then came to the front office and told the receptionist within my hearing to cancel the appointment! Hearing this, I approached him and asked for an explanation. The doctor replied, "I am not about to see a grown girl who is crying!"

I couldn't believe my ears. The doctor stalked out and I asked the receptionist if I had heard right. She said, "Yes, he is the boss and can do anything he wants." I stood there, stunned. The doctor then returned and told me to get another doctor for "the child," then abruptly walked away.

This same doctor is supposed to perform surgery on me in the near future for a female problem. I had met him only once before, but was not aware that he is a man of so little patience and compassion. He has been practicing for many years, and certainly should have had experience with frightened young girls. Now Sally is more afraid than ever to trust doctors, or my word, and I am equally afraid to have this doctor treat me. Suppose a tear or two should stain my face? Will he also walk out on me?

UPSET IN WATERBURY

DEAR UPSET: Don't speculate. Walk out on him and find another doctor.

And report his unprofessional conduct to your county medical association — in writing!

DEAR ABBY: When a woman goes out with a man to a restaurant, should she order whatever she wants regardless of price, or should she pay attention to the prices on the menu and order something that isn't too expensive?
CLARKSVILLE

DEAR CLARKSVILLE: A considerate woman considers a man's wallet. So if you're considering seeing him again, be considerate.

DEAR ABBY: Just another example of how the man always get the dirty end of the stick:

When I ask a woman what she would do if she caught her husband in bed with another woman, she invariably replies, "I'd kill him."

When I ask a man what he would do if he caught his wife in bed with another man, he invariably says, "I'd kill him." Abby, why does the guy always get the blame when it takes two to tango?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Because it is usually assumed that the guy asked the lady to tango, which is no longer a fair assumption.

CONFIDENTIAL TO HATES DIRTY IN MODESTO: Perhaps the one who always notices the dirt should have his glasses cleaned.

If Reader's Exchange can't find the recipe for Microwave Divinity Candy that was printed recently, please send for Mrs. J.C. Steel of Post.

Somehow the brandy didn't get in the Brandied Fruit Topping recipe, dear reader send again!

Connie Benton wrote, "Several months ago a recipe was printed in Reader's Exchange for Oatmeal Pie. I have made the pie twice and it didn't set. But it tasted terrific. Is there any way to find out if the copy is correct, or if the pie should be baked longer? I am unable to see if it's done."

Here is the recipe as printed. Please write!

OATMEAL PIE

- 1 stick oleo
- 2 eggs
- 2/3 cup sugar
- 2/3 cup white corn syrup

Village Resident Honored At Party

By FRANCES LOWE
Family News Editor

Birthday parties at John Knox Village are always fun. Once a month, the residents plan a celebration for all those in the village who have birthdays that month. Always there are special decorations, refreshments, entertainment, and a toast to the birthday boys and girls.

January's celebration was rather special. One of the people honored was Jessie Williamson Mirick, 98 years young, and the oldest resident of the village.

Mrs. Mirick, who has lived at the village since 1976, but who lived for most of her life in Amarillo, was given the customary birthday greetings, and Art Carnahan, executive director, presented her with a corsage.

Her daughter, Dorice Myers, who also lives at the village, then exhibited to the guests a small tintype photo of Mrs. Mirick, taken 80 years ago when she was a young woman in Athens.

Mrs. Myers explained that the custom at that time was for a young woman to have her picture taken and mounted with a pin on the back, to present to the young man to whom she was promised. The fellow wore the pin on his lapel, signaling to the world that he was "taken."

Mrs. Myers recounted a story of her mother and the tintype. "Mother had an aunt who was so like her that they were often taken for twins. She was a little older than mother, and had made her choice of a young man and 'pinned' him."

"Another young man had selected Jessie — Mother — but had received so little encouragement that he did not even know about the aunt. He saw the aunt's pin on the man of her choice. Feeling rebuffed, he became furious and rolled up his sleeves. Only the intervention of on-lookers prevented a bloody fight..."

Mrs. Myers has become so interested in the story of the little tintypes, that she is interested in meeting other people with antique tintypes they would like to share.

WEATHER FORECAST — The National Weather Service forecast for Friday predicts snow and flurries in the Mountain states. (AP Laserphoto)

Weekend's Weather Should Be Cold, Wet

A-J News Services
Colder weather is expected to move into the Lubbock area tonight, heralding a cool and wet weekend for the South Plains.
Highs were forecast to reach the low 70s this afternoon, repeating Wednesday's balmy 72-degree maximum, but reach only the low 50s on Friday.
Continued cloudy and cool weather is expected through Monday. A chance of snow is predicted for northern portions of the area, turning to rain in the south.
Lows tonight in the middle 20s should be repeated throughout the weekend. This morning's low in Lubbock was only 35 degrees.
Winds were forecast to do a good deal of shifting as the new winter storm approaches. They were expected to be westerly at 10 to 15 today, becoming northeasterly at 5 to 10 mph tonight and easterly to southeasterly at 5 to 10 mph on Friday.
Elsewhere in the state today, dense fog covered most of the southeastern third of Texas, reducing visibility to near zero in some areas and prompting the National Weather Service to issue travel advisories.

The fog shrouded an area from the Lower Rio Grande Valley and coastal plains northeastward into all of Southeast Texas, spreading as far north as Lufkin. Several areas, including Houston, had visibility reduced to near zero at times early today.
Forecasts called for partly cloudy skies and unseasonably mild temperatures statewide. Highs were to be mostly in the 70s except in the Panhandle and far West Texas.
Cooler temperatures were forecast for most of the state Friday.
Except for areas reporting fog most of Texas had clear skies early today. Early morning temperatures remained unseasonably mild with most areas recording readings in the 40s and 50s. Exceptions were the Panhandle where temperatures dipped into the 30s and far South Texas where readings were in the 60s.

Washington Post Sues Restaurant

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — An attorney for a Madison restaurant called Washington Post, Ltd., has filed legal papers in U.S. District Court, denying that the restaurant is trying to harm or compete with a Washington, D.C., newspaper.
The Washington Post Co., publisher of the Washington Post, sued the restaurant last month, alleging the establishment was infringing on the newspaper's trademark.
Andrew O. Riteris, attorney for the restaurant, wrote that the defendants admitted the menu was "a good parody" of the newspaper but denied that the use of the name would "cause anyone — before drinks or afterwards — to confuse the restaurant with plaintiffs' newspaper ..."

Islamic Conference Concludes

TAIF, Saudi Arabia (AP) — The third Islamic summit conference ended early today with another ringing call for a jihad — "holy war" — against Israel, condemnation of the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan and plans to extend the Arab boycott of firms doing business with Israel to all Islamic nations.
In Jerusalem, Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin scoffed at the call for holy war and said, "No jihad is going to frighten us."
The jihad endorsed by the summit aims at regaining Jerusalem and other Arab territory conquered by Israel in the 1967 Middle East war and commits the 37 Islamic states attending the conference "to use all their military, economic, political potentials and natural resources — including oil — as an effective instrument in support of the basic rights of the Palestinian people and to confront the powers that support the Zionist entity militarily, economically and politically."
However, the communiqué said the summit gave the term jihad its correct and unmistakable definition, an Islamic "connotation that should not be misinterpreted or misunderstood." This meant military action was to be used only as a last resort.
Conference sources said no oil embargo was likely either, and that inclusion of oil in the array of weapons to be used against Israel was largely an attempt to placate the Palestinians and Arab hardliners.
Habib Chatti, secretary general of the Islamic conference, said earlier that an Islamic boycott office will be set up to blacklist firms dealing with Israel. He said it will be modeled after the blacklisting agency of the 21-member Arab League but extended to the broader Islamic world that also includes 20 non-Arab nations.
The summit communiqué expressed "deep concern" over the Soviet armed intervention in Afghanistan and demanded immediate withdrawal of the estimated 85,000 Soviet troops who have been in the Central Asian nation for 13 months battling a Moslem rebellion against the communist regime.
The communiqué urged the members of the Islamic Conference to contribute money and other forms of assistance for the refugees of Afghanistan and said:

"Afghanistan should remain an independent and non-aligned Islamic state. The refugees must be returned to their homes."
It approved creation of a committee made up of Tunisia, Guinea, Iran and Pakistan to seek a solution to the Afghan crisis in cooperation with U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim.
The summit also endorsed a "Mecca Declaration," named after the birthplace of Islam, where the opening session of the conference was held Sunday, 11, too.

called for holy war against Israel and expressed "deep concern" over the mounting rivalry between the United States and the Soviet Union.
It deplored the superpowers' increasing endeavors to "intensify their military presence in the areas near and adjacent to the states of the Islamic world, such as the Indian Ocean, the Arabian Sea, the Red Sea and the Gulf," and declared:
"We affirm our common conviction that peace and stability of the Gulf and the security of the (oil tanker) sealanes is the exclusive responsibility of the Gulf states without any foreign interference."
The Iraqi news agency said the summit also formed a commission to try to end the 130-day-old Iran-Iraq war and agreed to create an Islamic peacekeeping force if mediation was successful.
Iraq attended the summit and reiterated its offer to withdraw from occupied Iranian territory if Iran recognized Iraqi sovereignty over the entire Shatt al-Arab estuary, Iraq's only waterway to the Persian Gulf. But Iran boycotted the summit and has ordered its forces to continue the war.

Ranking Government Officials Resign From Salvador Regime

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Two ranking government officials have quit their jobs and joined the left opposition because they say the U.S.-backed junta is too corrupt to support.
The interior minister, in an apparent move to place greater controls on foreign journalists, ordered all foreign correspondents to register with the government and pay a $150 fee by Saturday or face possible expulsion.
In another development in the Central American nation where more than 11,200 have died in political violence in the past 13 months, a human rights group said government soldiers are harassing its members.
Authorities reported four people were shot to death Wednesday for violating the dawn-to-dusk curfew and government troops gunned down two others who allegedly were stealing a car in San Salvador.

Salvador.
The National Coffee Institute general manager, Nelson Romero, and Vice Minister of Planning Carlos Federico Paredes resigned Wednesday, charging that corruption is rampant in government led by Christian Democrat Jose Napoleón Duarte.

Leader Calls For Early South Africa Elections

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (UPI) — Prime Minister Pieter Botha stunned parliament by calling for a general election April 29 — two years before the end of his term — in a move calculated to win a white mandate to soften apartheid in South Africa.
Botha's call for elections Wednesday was made in the heat of a no-confidence debate in the House of Assembly, which only moments before was thrown into turmoil by the prime minister's disclosure that a top-ranked Soviet KGB spy had been arrested by South African security police.

The election announcement means parliament will be dissolved next month after the passing of a temporary budget to run the country.

Hussein Rejects Palestinian Mediator Role

TAIF, Saudi Arabia (AP) — King Hussein of Jordan, considered a lynchpin in negotiations for a Middle East peace, today rejected suggestions he could replace Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization in talks for a Palestinian homeland.
"We will support and help them (the Palestinians) but we are not an alternative," the Jordanian monarch told reporters after a four-day summit of 37 Moslem nations. "The only people who can speak for all the Palestinians rights and all the Palestinian soil is the PLO."

Official statistics are unavailable, but many estimates say Palestinians comprise as much as 50 percent of the population of Jordan, including those living on the West Bank of the Jordan River captured by Israel in the 1967 Mideast war.
The 1974 Arab summit in Rabat, Morocco recognized the PLO as the sole legitimate spokesman of the Palestinian people. However, Israel's Labor Party, which is favored to win elections scheduled for July, advocates direct negotia-

Oil Decontrol Will Mean More Money For State

By The Associated Press
President Ronald Reagan's early decontrol of crude oil prices will mean about $150 million more this year for the state's coffers and trigger a 3-to-10-cent boost in gasoline prices, experts say.

State Comptroller Bob Bullock said Wednesday that the decontrol of crude oil means the state's 4.6 percent tax on the market value of oil will produce about $3.1 billion over a two-year period starting this September.

William R. Edwards, president of Edwards Energy Consultants, said the move will push gasoline prices at the pump up from 5 to 10 cents by the peak spring-summer driving season.

"If phased decontrol had continued as planned," he said, "we would have had about half of that by that time anyway."

But William Johnson, Tennessee Inc. economist and former advisor to former Secretary of Energy Secretary William Simon, said he didn't think prices would rise by that much.

"There will be a fairly sizable increase," he said, "but not that great."

Reaction from energy officials in the state to Reagan's announcement was generally positive, with many executives saying the move was long overdue.

"This nation will never adequately develop its domestic energy resources until it has free competition among all fuels, based on price, and decontrol of crude oil and product prices is the first constructive step toward this goal," said J. Hugh Liedtke, Pennzoil Co. chairman.

A Gulf Oil spokesman said moving the decontrol timetable ahead gives the United States valuable time and momentum in the effort to reduce dependence on foreign oil.

But not all oil company executives were pleased about the stepped-up decontrol timetable.

"Those of us who are in a small refinery classification are vitally concerned and in hopes something will be worked out," said Joe Moss, American Petrofina vice president in Dallas.

He said the end of the federal allocation program originally aimed at keeping an equitable share of crude distributed among all refiners will create a supply problem.

Howard McClung, a Howell Hydrocarbons vice president in San Antonio, said he preferred the original phased decontrol plan instituted by former President Jimmy Carter.

He said crude oil price hikes will hit the small refiners hardest because they will have to compete with major refiners while absorbing a 25 percent cost increase.

"There are a lot of small ones (refiners) that will go out of business," he said. "We just don't have the buying power."

Reagan's announcement was greeted with enthusiasm by the heads of the two largest oil trade groups in Texas.

Edwin L. Cox, president of the Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association, said the action will bolster the nation's free enterprise system.

"The removal of price controls, which have existed 9 years, will permit the petroleum industry in this country to operate in the same manner as other U.S. businesses," Cox said.

L. Frank Pitts, president of the Texas Independent Producers & Royalty Owners Association, based in Dallas, said the move was best for the nation's oil users.

"In my judgement, a total free market is best of the consumers of the country, the total economic situation and the national security," Pitts said, adding that industry groups had been "pushing hard for decontrol of oil for years."

Michael T. Halbouty, a Houston independent oilman who heads Reagan's 17-member energy transition task force, said via telephone from Hawaii Wednesday that the move showed Reagan planned to keep his campaign promises.

Frenship Ruling Expected In February

By PAT GRAVES
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Testimony in Frenship Independent School District's lawsuit seeking to block construction of a $5 million housing project concluded Wednesday, but it will be several weeks before U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward issues a ruling on the case, which already has postponed the project for almost four months.

Attorneys now will file post-trial briefs in the case, with Frenship attorney Charles Galey's deadline set for Monday. Lawyers for the defendants — the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, the Lubbock Housing Authority, the City of Lubbock and project developer Temple Management — have until Feb. 5 to reply.

Woodward's ruling is expected during the second week of February. He also is considering a defense motion contending there is a lack of evidence HUD failed to comply with regulations in selecting the project site and asking for dismissal of the suit.

The judge told both parties during the 2½-day trial the case centers on HUD's actions toward the school district. But he added he is not inclined to substitute his judgment for that of the federal agency.

Frenship has claimed HUD did not follow proper procedures in selecting the site and did not adequately consider the impact the 132-unit low-income project at 24th Street and Frankford Avenue would have on Frenship schools.

Galey has argued the HUD manual, which requires a statement including school enrollment, attendance, capacity and how they will be affected by a project, must be followed in HUD projects. The defense contended the manual does not have the force of law and failure to comply with its guidelines is not grounds to invalidate the project.

When Woodward asked if he tested on that point was whether HUD considered all relevant factors, which Frenship claims includes schools, Temple Management attorney Hilton Howell replied only if an environmental impact statement was required. HUD officials said they were not required to assess school conditions or prepare an environmental impact statement because of the size of the project.

Howell maintained that despite Frenship officials' claims the district cannot accommodate the new students who will live in the project, only a financial burden had been raised in the case. Frenship trustees also contend the district will be deprived of needed revenues because the project will be tax exempt.

Wednesday, attorney Howell told the court the district's tax revenue for 1980-81 will double the previous year's total.

Low Attendance May Endanger Weatherization Program Funds

By MARC FLAKE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Low attendance at neighborhood community services meetings could endanger funding for programs that help low income families weatherize their homes or help pay their heating bills, members of the Community Services Commission were told Wednesday.

Denzel Percifull, city director of public services, told commissioners a Community Services field representative is scheduled to monitor the city department in February and would be examining whether the city has done everything it could to make sure the neighborhood meetings are well attended.

"We've tried everything we know without going out and physically twisting arms, but people will not attend," he said.

For many low-income families, the neighborhood meetings are the best way to obtain information about energy assistance funding programs. Commissioner Madeline Amalla said.

One such program, the Home Energy Assistance Program, has not been getting the participation that was expected, added acting executive director Peter Nuckolls.

The program started Jan. 8 and has had only 100 applicants with a 2-to-1 denial to approval ratio, he said.

HEAP assists low-income families in Lubbock County pay their home energy bills during the winter with a one-time check of between $50 and $96 — depending on their income level, Nuckolls said.

The application process can be started with a phone call which would set up an interview, he said.

Nuckolls said after the meeting that a pre-funding agreement with the federal Community Services Administration indicated the city would involve more low-income people in the planning process of serving the community.

The problem of obtaining more publicity and generating more advertising about energy related programs may be solved with a grant from the Low Energy Assistance Program. The LEAP grant could provide a $30,000 grant which would pay the salary of an energy assistance coordinator and still leave money for advertising, he said.

He said the city had expected the Texas Department of Human Resources would be responsible for advertising the program, but the agency hasn't followed through on the promise.

Nuckolls also announced the city is about to hire a person to take over as executive director of the city department. He has been the interim executive director since July when Archie Bottoms resigned.

The commissioners decided to wait and meet the new director at the Feb. 25 meeting, rather than call a special meeting two weeks earlier when Nuckolls' successor first starts work.

The person has not yet been selected, but the city officials hope to have the position filled within the next few weeks, he said.

Police Questioning Suspect In Slaying

HOUSTON (UPI) — Police are questioning a 26-year-old man today about the kidnap-slaying of a young married woman whose body was found tied to a tree in the woods near the Astrodome.

Phillips Daniel Tompkins, 24, was transported by Houston police from Austin early today after his arrest about a noon-Wednesday. Tompkins' companion, a 20-year-old woman, was also taken into custody for questioning, police said.

Police have not filed any charges in the case.

Tompkins is wanted for questioning in the death of Mary Diane Berry, 24, a pharmacist at Hermann Hospital.

Homicide detective C. E. Reynolds said Tompkins is also wanted for parole violation in Virginia.

Police said Mrs. Berry was abducted Sunday on her way home from work. They said her assailant apparently called a minor traffic accident, kidnapped her, strangled her by stuffing cloth down her throat and left her tied to a tree.

Police said the suspect used Mrs. Berry's bank card to withdraw $1,000 from an automatic teller machine shortly after she was killed.

Medical examiners said Mrs. Berry was not raped.

Her purse was missing, but when found she still was wearing her engagement and wedding rings, a turquoise ring and a gold necklace. Police found 65 cents in her lab coat pocket.

Officers said Mrs. Berry apparently was alive when tied to the tree. She was gagged with a sheet and her feet and hands bound with electric cord. Other pieces of sheet trussed her up against the tree, officers said.

Mrs. Berry was last seen alive leaving work about 11:11 p.m. Sunday. Her car was found abandoned at an intersection with a dent in the rear bumper at about 11:45 p.m. The bank photographs of the suspect were taken at 1:18 a.m. Monday.

Barry Jacobs, director of pharmacy at Hermann, said Mrs. Berry "was a more outgoing than a reserved person. She had a lot of friends."

He said it was "not out of her character to step out of her car to help someone or find out something."

Mrs. Berry and her husband, Donald, married in July 1979. Shortly afterward, they moved to Houston from Albany, N.Y., where both were graduated from the Albany College of Pharmacy.

Funeral arrangements are being handled by the Shupp Funeral Home in Bethlehem, Pa.

The judge told both parties during the 2½-day trial the case centers on HUD's actions toward the school district. But he added he is not inclined to substitute his judgment for that of the federal agency.

Frenship has claimed HUD did not follow proper procedures in selecting the site and did not adequately consider the impact the 132-unit low-income project at 24th Street and Frankford Avenue would have on Frenship schools.

Proposed Pay Increase Draws Mixed Reactions

The committee to resolve the differences, he said.

Short noted the governor and both houses of the legislature agree that a total state employee salary raise over the next biennium should total 14 percent. "They just disagree on what they want to give now (the first part of the biennium)" he said, explaining that the emergency hike will be included in the 14 percent total.

Robnett, who voted for the 5.1 percent increase, said the House battle Wednesday over the bill included the presentation of "a lot of emotional speeches." He said he believes the 5.1 figures is "reasonable," adding Clements has promised to veto anything over that amount anyway.

Salinas approved the 5.1 hike but supported a $100 across the board pay raise which would benefit workers on the lower end of the pay scale.

But he said the 5.1 figure is not a bad one because it guarantees a $75 minimum raise which will help out low-salary employees. The Senate's 6.8 percent proposal included only a $50 minimum.

The state representative noted that the Senate's version of the bill would cost $110 million compared to the $93 million that would be spent for the House measure.

Producers Attend Conference

Area producers attended a Texas Farm Bureau legislative and leadership conference this week in Austin.

Donald Barrick of Abertathy, Earl Foster and Milton Pwonka, both of Sligo, and Thurman Neill of Idalou were among more than 700 TFB leaders from across the state to attend the event.

The group met with the Texas House Agriculture Committee chairman Leroy Wieting of Portland and Speaker of the House Bill Clayton of Springlake.

American Farm Bureau president Bob Delano told the participants the main problems of the 1980s will be energy, inflation, depleting water supplies, transportation, taxation and agriculture's declining political influence.

Delano said he believes the grain embargo will be gradually lifted by mid-1981 if the Soviets do not invade Poland. He also said the disaster program will probably be continued through an act of Congress because of its "political popularity."

Misconduct Charges Filed Against Man

Former Texas Tech University maintenance employee Wednesday was charged with official misconduct in the reported December construction of a gasoline tank which he is accused of converting to his own use.

James Phillippe, 38, of Wolford, former Tech assistant superintendent of planned maintenance, is accused of having a gasoline tank valued at $150 built Dec. 2, 1980 in the university machine shop and then installing it on his pickup truck.

The criminal district attorney's office recommended that bond be set at $2,500.

Delano said he believes the grain embargo will be gradually lifted by mid-1981 if the Soviets do not invade Poland. He also said the disaster program will probably be continued through an act of Congress because of its "political popularity."

U.S. Refuses To Deliver Equipment To Iranians

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, still suspicious of Iran, will not deliver any of the more than $450 million worth of U.S. military equipment purchased by the government of the late shah, Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig said.

under earlier obligations and contractual arrangements, or as yet unstated requests," he said.

Iran paid $457 million, was not raised during the final negotiations that led to release of the 52 American hostages.

Returnees To Attend Show On Broadway

NEW YORK (UPI) — A toast-of-the-town celebration for the freed hostages and their families kicks off today with a New York City specialty: cocktails, dinner and a Broadway show.

But the tart-tongued Koch had his critics.

Haig said he didn't want to discuss publicly any possible retaliatory measures the United States might take against Iran as a result of the taking and treatment of the American hostages.

Two planes carrying most of the 23 hostages expected to attend New York's bash were scheduled to land at LaGuardia Airport, where a swarm of city officials will greet them and pack them off into limousines to start their first big night on the town.

Last week, Secretary of State Alexander Haig suggested that New York call off the parade since some of the hostages might not be psychologically prepared.

"I would emphasize again that the period ahead is going to clearly demonstrate the nature and character of the Iranian regime's post-hostage return attitude," Haig said.

It will begin with cocktails and dinner at Windows on the World, a restaurant in the World Trade Center with a spectacular view of the city.

Then in an editorial Wednesday, the New York Times asked, "Will Americans now release the hostages?" and urged Koch to call off the parade.

"There are additional American hostages... and a host of other incurred obligations that make that question a little premature."

They will attend a Broadway show tonight and stay at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, where rooms that normally go from $117 to $600 per day have been reserved for them free of charge.

"The time for parades, in short, has passed," the Times said. "What New York proposes is a mere echo of sentiments already expressed."

Three U.S. citizens remain in Iranian custody, including Cynthia Dwyer, a freelance writer from Buffalo, N.Y. The other two are of Iranian descent, and little is known about them.

The architect of the celebration is Mayor Edward Koch. The mayor, who is not noted for pessimism, said he'll be "shocked" if the parade isn't the greatest in city history.

Koch brushed off the editorial as "foolish" and accused the editorial writers of having "their heads screwed on wrong."

If retaliatory measures are taken against Iran, they might include a new trade embargo or freeze of Iranian assets or closure of the Iranian interest section attached to the Algerian embassy, said one State Department official, who asked not to be identified.

Friday's parade up Broadway to City Hall will begin at 11:45 a.m. at Battery Park with the Statue of Liberty as a backdrop. A fireboat stationed near the statue will salute the hostages with arching streams of red, white and blue.

Military reprisals are not being considered, the official said.

Former Hostages Criticize American Clergymen

By The Associated Press
Three American clergymen who conducted Easter services in Tehran last year misrepresented the conditions of the captives and were sympathetic to the Iranians, several former hostages have charged.

shred of information" they could.

Ex-Captive Wants To Use Military Force On Iran

NEW YORK (AP) — Robert O. Blucker says he hoped throughout his 444-day captivity in Iran that "once we got out there would be revenge."

Don't distort the fact that 90 percent of the time we were bored to death... the most severe punishment we could be threatened with was isolation."

He did not identify the minister.

Charles Jones also charged in the Detroit Free Press that he gave a note to one of the clergymen, who turned it over to the Iranians. He said the note told of mistreatment by their captors.

Rosen, 35, who was press attache at the U.S. Embassy in Iran, said fear of Alexander Haig's becoming secretary of state may have been a factor in the Iranian's decision to release the American hostages when they did.

Some of the people who came over, especially the clergy, were hypocrites because they came over to aid and comfort the hostages, but they ended up giving aid and comfort to the Iranians and actually making it worse for us," Jones said.

Jordan, Vance Reveal Beliefs About Failed Rescue Mission

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Secretary of State Cyrus Vance says as many as 15 of the American captives in Iran might have been killed if last year's rescue mission had reached Tehran and there was a "strong likelihood" more hostages would have been taken.

gone through... even if it had reached the embassy," he said during a three-hour ABC News documentary Wednesday night on negotiations to end the hostage ordeal.

And Hamilton Jordan, onetime White House chief of staff under former President Carter, says the bungled rescue attempt was "probably one of the worst military defeats and humiliations" in U.S. history.

The ABC documentary, which was described as an updated version of an earlier news special on the hostage negotiations, portrayed the rescue attempt as a desperate move by the Carter administration to rescue the hostages after negotiations for their release had come close to success April 1, but broke down for reasons not entirely clear.

Vance's resignation as secretary of state was revealed in the aftermath of the April 25 raid. He had quit before the raid was launched to register his opposition to it.

Carter went on national television the morning of April 1, the day of the Wisconsin presidential primary, to announce that important progress was being made on bringing the hostages home.

Thompson said that he had not mentioned mistreatment because none of the 20 hostages he met with had talked about mistreatment.

Pierre Salinger, ABC's Paris bureau chief who narrated the documentary, said the negotiations were very close to success at that time. They collapsed, Salinger said, when Carter failed to mention in his television statement that the new Iranian Parliament had the right to decide the fate of the hostages, a condition set by the Iranian government.

Bremer also said, "We did not get any sign they were being physically abused... nor did they tell us in private conversations they were being physically abused."

Salinger said Jordan was urging the shah to stay in Panama, where he might have been arrested. At the same time, Cutler was helping to arrange for a private aircraft to take the shah to Egypt.

Both Thompson and Bremer said they felt their mission in Tehran was pastoral, not political. Bremer added that the clerics delivered "every message and every Cutler said the shah was told he could return to the United States for treatment but "should make clear he had no intention of regaining the throne."

Freed American Given New Yellow Cadillac

HOUSTON (UPI) — So many people were crowded onto the front lawn of ex-hostage William Royer's home that he didn't even notice the yellow Cadillac wrapped in a huge yellow ribbon that was parked in the driveway.

Royer, 49, his 79-year-old mother, and his sister Marianne, arrived in suburban West University Place to find 1,000 well-wishers, chanting "Welcome Home" and singing "God Bless America," waiting for them at the Royer home.

Someone hung a sign on the front of the house that read "Welcome Home, Bill Royer. 444 days. Too damn long."

Royer, ill with the flu he called "Mr. Khomeini's parting gift," had lost his voice and did not speak to the throng at his mother's home. The crowd on the front lawn of his mother's home was so large that Royer walked right by the shiny new luxury car without noticing it.

A stunned Royer was presented the keys to the $17,540 car — a gift by private citizens who have refused to reveal their names — at an airport welcoming ceremony earlier Wednesday.

Houston Mayor Jim McConn presented the car keys to Royer along with West University Place mayor Rufus Stanley and revealed that a local bank also has set up a $444 savings account to provide diesel fuel for the auto.

Royer grinned, shook his head in amazement, and said in voice that was barely above a whisper, "I want to thank Houston, Texas, America. I'm proud to be an American. All I can say is thank you to everyone for the tremendous support."

"It's just really mind boggling how great this country is and how marvelous it is to be back home."

Now that his ordeal is over, Royer said he planned to first, regain his health and then enjoy "the simpler things in life. Just peace and quiet." Beyond that he said he planned to continue his work with the International Communication Agency.

"The adjustment to this overwhelming reception in the United States is taking some getting used to because we were unaware that anybody was thinking about us while we were in Iran," Royer said at the airport.

Royer and his family traveled to Houston on a Texas International Airlines flight. The airline renamed flight 754 "Freedom One," painted a yellow bow on its side and served 15 cases of free champagne to the passengers on the trip from Washington to Houston.

The airline also gave him a brown cowboy hat and a calendar.

Officials have said a more formal celebration would wait until Royer decided what sort of public observance he wanted.

"It's up to him," the spokeswoman said. "We do not want to put him under any more pressure. He has been under 444 days of pressure and we don't want to add to that."

WELCOME HOME PRESENT — Ex-hostage William B. Royer laughs as he is given the keys to a new Cadillac, bought especially for the returning Texan. Royer had just arrived at Houston's Intercontinental Airport, when he was given the keys to the yellow car, wrapped in a yellow ribbon, that was waiting at the Royer home in West University Place. Balch Springs Marine Anxious To Forget Captivity In Iran

BALCH SPRINGS (UPI) — Former hostage Johnny McKeel Jr., serenaded by a high school band, escorted by fellow Marines and kissed by several girls, told a crowd of 300 he is ready to get on with his life.

McKeel, a Marine staff sergeant, was welcomed Wednesday night to a house decorated with American flags and yellow ribbons and a front yard overflowing with well-wishers bearing flowers.

"I'm going to take a 3-day vacation," McKeel told the crowd in this suburban Dallas community of 14,000. "I'm going to rest, relax, forget what's happened and start my life over again."

The 27-year-old McKeel, who has joked this week that he wants to "get back to chasing women," found about a dozen girls jumping over his front porch railings to kiss him. He didn't deny any of them a kiss.

McKeel, accompanied by his parents and younger brother Todd, rode home in a military car as a band played "The Marine Hymn" and "When Johnny Comes Marching Home Again." Balch Springs police cleared a path to the front steps for McKeel, who told the crowd he thought of them when he learned he was to be set free.

"There were times I didn't think I'd be here. The day they told us we were going home, the first thing I thought of was my family and my friends back in Balch Springs," he said. "You're beautiful."

"I appreciate all the cards and letters, although we probably didn't get some of them. I always knew we had the support of the American people."

"It makes me proud to be an American."

He said he was anxious for some home-cooking. "Anything but rice or goat," he clarified.

McKeel arrived at Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport about dusk Wednesday, where he was greeted by about 200 persons, including the mayors of Balch Springs, Dallas and Fort Worth. Dallas Mayor Robert Folsom presented McKeel with a cowboy hat, and Fort Worth Mayor Woodie Woods gave him a Fort Worth belt buckle.

Earlier Wednesday, McKeel, in a Washington interview with the Mutual Broadcasting System, said he and some fellow hostages planned to make bombs and steal their Iranian captors' weapons for an escape attempt Feb. 12.

McKeel said about a month ago he was taken unblinded to a dentist and saw where the Iranians kept their weapons.

He said some of the men planned an escape by jumping the guards who watched over them. No more than six Iranians guarded them at any one time.

"We were just going to knock on the door ... jump them ... and the other guys were going to go and jump the others," he said.

"We were going to get the (Iranians') weapons and, if necessary, shoot our way out."

The hostages communicated by tapping out codes messages on the walls and hiding notes in the toilet. Some also fashioned weapons from pens and razor blades, McKeel said.

He said the water heater near his cell used kerosene and the hostages had devised a plan to mix the kerosene with detergent to make a bomb.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Homecoming celebrations have landed former hostages Col. Leland Holland and Robert C. Ode in Washington-area hospitals with bronchitis and a third, ranking diplomat

Suicide Attempt Angers Hostage

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Marine Sgt. Steven Kirtley said he was "scared for my life" at a mock execution in Iran, but his most frightening experience was a roommate's attempted suicide.

"I'll never forget that and I'll never forgive him for it, either," Kirtley said before he returned home on Wednesday. He declined to identify the roommate.

The 22-year-old arrived here unannounced, exchanged a few words with some of the 200 well-wishers at the airport and headed for his home in southwest Little Rock.

There will be a public celebration on Tuesday in honor of Kirtley and another freed hostage, Robert Blucker, 53, a North Little Rock native.

Kirtley told Little Rock television station KTHV in an interview Tuesday in Washington that he feared for his life several times during his 444-day captivity.

He said he was the target of a mock execution on Feb. 6, 1980. "I was scared for my life. But it just turned out to be a big search, with little terroristic tricks thrown in."

Bruce Laingen, in bed with a fever.

Holland, 53, was reported in good condition and "resting comfortably" Wednesday night at Walter Reed Army Hospital.

A hospital spokesman said Holland was admitted Tuesday night after taking part in welcoming ceremonies, a motorcade from the airport and the White House reception for the 52 freed Americans.

"He probably will be with us for only a few days," the spokesman said.

Holland, of nearby Fairfax, Va., was the security officer of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran and one of three hostages held at the Iranian Foreign Ministry. He told relatives he spent a month in a "dungeon" and referred to his captors as "SOBs."

The condition of Ode, 65, the oldest of the hostages, was upgraded from fair to good Wednesday at National Orthopedic and Rehabilitation Hospital in nearby Arlington, Va., where he was taken Tuesday night.

"My husband is in good condition and has responded well to treatment," Rita Ode said in a statement. "His physician has determined that he is suffering from bronchitis and says that Bob should have four to five days rest to speed his recovery."

She added, "Both of us appreciate your interest and good wishes, but I would appreciate it if representatives of the media would refrain from calling ..."

Laingen, 58, was charge d'affaires at the U.S. Embassy.

Judge To Decide Whether Jury Will Hear Tapes, Transcripts

MIAMI (UPI) — The judge in the trial of four black men charged with killing three white motorists in last May's race riots reviewed tape-recorded and transcribed statements from two defendants to decide which would be presented to the jury.

After jurors were dismissed Wednesday night, Circuit Judge Mario Goderich, prosecutors and the defense attorneys heard the tape recordings, following them with the transcripts.

Goderich withheld a decision on which jurors will hear, if any, at today's court session.

Prosecutors Robert Kaye and Jeff Raffle proposed that the jury of seven women and five men, including two black men and a black woman, read the transcript.

Defense counsels Michael Von Zamft, Roy Black and Michael Tarre demanded the jurors hear the tapes of statements given Miami Detective Jose Fleitas by Von Zamft's client, Leonard Caper, 20, and Tarre's client, Samuel Lightsey, 16.

Both sides rejected a compromise proposed by Goderich — that jurors read transcripts while they listened to tapes.

One of the tapes implicates a fifth man, yet to be tried in the case, in the deaths of Benny Higdon, 21, Robert Owens and Charles Barrea, both 19. The other tape implicates one of the defendants.

The killings occurred during the bloody riots that erupted May 17 after an all-white Tampa jury acquitted four white former policemen in the beating death of black insurance man Arthur McDuffie.

Others on trial include Leonard Capers' brother, Lawrence, 24, and Patrick Moore, 16.

Fleitas interviewed Lawrence Capers May 26, nine days after the slayings. The Lightsey tape was made May 27.

Dade County Medical Examiner Dr. Joseph H. Davis testified Wednesday that all three victims died of depressed skull fractures. These resulted, he said, from being struck on the head with large, rough objects.

Exxon Announces Gas Price Hike

NEW YORK (AP) — Exxon Corp. announced, effective today, it was raising wholesale prices of gasoline 2 cents to 3 cents a gallon and increasing those for home heating oil and diesel and jet fuel 1.5 cents to 3 cents a gallon.

However, a spokesman for Exxon, the nation's largest oil company, said the increase, which can be passed on by retailers, reflected past crude oil price increases and was not sparked by President Reagan's decision to abandon price controls on the nation's oil supply.

Mobil Corp., meanwhile, said today it had raised wholesale heating and diesel fuel prices 1 1/2 to 2 cents a gallon in sections of the East. Reagan decided Wednesday to lift controls eight months before they were due to expire.

Standard Oil Co. of California and Shell Oil Co. say rising oil prices in the United States helped offset the impact of declining domestic fuel sales and sparked fourth-quarter earnings gains.

The amount of oil products sold, however, fell 4 percent worldwide and 3 percent in the United States as rising prices controlled were lifted each month.

At Shell, rising prices helped the No. 8 oil company post a 23 percent fourth-quarter earnings gain and a 37 percent increase in 1980 profits.

Sun reported an 87 percent drop in earnings for last year's fourth quarter but a 3 percent gain for all of 1980. The company said it tallied a $128 million after-tax charge associated with a decision to end construction of new vessels at its Sun Ship division, which lost $190 million last year.

Phillips, No. 13, attributed its 6 percent quarterly profit drop to "sharply higher exploration expenses" and reduced sales of chemical products. But for 1980, Phillips posted a 20 percent earnings gain as a result of "higher worldwide prices" for oil and gas.

The action came after 7 1/2 hours of negotiations between city officials and employee leaders failed reach a resolution. Strikes by public employees are illegal in Ohio. The council voted to instruct the city attorney to seek a court injunction against the action by nearly 50 municipal employees.

Michael Kapp, a union attorney, said the city did not offer a pay raise during the talks. No additional negotiations were scheduled. Employees of this Ohio River city of nearly 30,000 are seeking a 15 percent pay increase, which the city says it cannot afford because of an estimated $41,000 budget deficit. They have been working without a contract since Dec. 15.

TODAY'S STOCK PRICES

Dow Jones Average Up .94

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market turned mixed today in sluggish trading activity.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 0.94 to 943.52 in the first two hours of trading.

On Wednesday, the blue-chip barometer fell 6.91 points.

Losers outnumbered gainers by a 6-5 margin, among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The market has been depressed in recent sessions amid uncertainty over the impact of President Reagan's as-yet-undetailed economic program and prospects for lower interest rates.

Investors showed little buying enthusiasm despite indications that a widespread decline in banks' prime lending rates may be in the offing.

On Wednesday, Marine Midland Bank cut its rate by one-half point to 19.5 percent, but no other banks followed.

Among today's early prices, precious metals issues — hurt by a steep drop in gold prices in Europe — were down.

Helix Mining was off 1 1/2 at 29 1/2, and Campbell Red Lake fell 1/2 to 47 1/2. Gold was selling below the $500-ounce mark at mid-afternoon in London, down more than $20 an ounce.

Oil stocks were generally lower. Big Board volume contracted to 15.15 million shares from 17.24 million during the same period on Wednesday.

The NYSE's composite index fell .09 to 74.69. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 3.36 at 346.79.

Few Expect Balanced Budget

By CHET CURRIER
 NEW YORK (AP) — Politicians' vows to balance the federal budget are usually taken these days the same way a creditor responds to assurances that "the check is in the mail" — with a large dose of skepticism.

The promise has been made repeatedly in the past decade, by various presidents, but to date it has not been kept.

As President Reagan begins his tenure in office, many people in the financial world are not yet fully persuaded that this time things might be different.

At least that is what Richard B. Hoey, a Wall Street economist, found when he conducted his latest periodic "decision-makers poll" of a broad sample of financial executives.

Surveyed in December, these portfolio managers, corporate financial officers, economists and industry analysts foresaw, on average, a 38 percent chance that the government would achieve a balanced budget sometime in the next five years.

That is hardly a sign of runaway optimism — although it is a considerable increase from the 23.3 percent reading Hoey got last October, before the election.

Hoey, who works at the brokerage firm of Bache Halsey Stuart Shields Inc., also found some hopes that the Reagan administration will be able to reduce the role of federal spending in the economy.

In the latter half of the 1970s, he notes, federal spending averaged about 22 percent of the gross national product, a measure of the nation's total output of goods and services.

The consensus of the executives responding to the survey was that the federal spending share of GNP would drop by the mid-1980s to 20.9 percent.

On the subject of the investment outlook, Hoey's group had some positive thoughts about the stock market.

Asked to rate the prospects of several different kinds of investments for providing a return greater than the rise of consumer prices, the respondents gave U.S. stocks a 67.1 percent chance of beating inflation.

Spot crude oil came next at 65.4 percent, followed by single-family homes, 58.1 percent; commercial real estate, 58.2 percent; gold, 53 percent, and a diversified portfolio of foreign stocks, 52.8 percent. Bonds brought up the rear, at 41.8 percent.

Hoey pointed out that the survey respondents' conclusions about the future bore a close resemblance to the pattern of the recent past.

"It is striking that the ranking of these alternative investments almost exactly parallels the performance of the various assets over the last several years," he said.

The high ranking of stocks, he noted, comes after most market averages reached record highs in recent months. The low ranking of bonds comes shortly after prices of many bonds hit all-time lows.

There is another group of forecasters known for projecting past trends into the future — investment advisory services. Because that kind of thinking fails to take unexpected changes into account, the services have a reputation for being wrong much of the time in their consensus views.

If they are gloomy, the theory goes, it is probably good news. If they are optimistic, watch out.

Trick Gets Water Out Of Pencil

By SHARI LEWIS
 You can't get blood out of a turnip. I don't know why anybody would want to get blood out of a turnip, but that's how the folk saying goes. They also say you can't get water from a stone.

Well, wouldn't it startle your friends if you could get water out of a pencil? A pencil is, after all, quite as dry as a stone. And you are going to use an absolutely ordinary pencil as you perform this trick.

Borrow one from a friend. Then hold the pencil in both hands, squeeze hard, and water will drip right from the lead tip and onto the floor.

Then give the pencil back to the person from whom you borrowed it, and take a deep bow.

Oh, you want to know how you can do this bit of hocus-pocus? The secret is this: Hidden in one hand, you have a tiny sponge or a small ball of tissue soaked in water. When you grasp both hands around the pencil and squeeze hard, you'll be squeezing the sponge or paper, as well. The water will run down the pencil and drip from the point.

Judge To Make Ruling On Surrogate Parenting

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — The state attorney general's office, in a complaint stemming from a November birth to a surrogate mother, has asked Franklin Circuit Judge Henry Meigs to determine the legality of hiring a woman to bear a child.

Attorney General Steve Beshear issued an opinion Monday saying the surrogate-parenting process violates several Kentucky statutes and runs counter to "the strong public policy against the buying and selling of children."

Attorney general's opinions do not have the force of law. The complaint filed this week asks the court to find the process illegal and to issue a permanent injunction against Surrogate Parenting Associates prohibiting similar transactions.

The complaint stems from the birth of a baby to an Illinois woman hired by a Louisville couple.

The husband was the baby's natural father through artificial insemination and the wife adopted the infant shortly after its birth.

The organization, directed by Dr. Richard M. Levin of Louisville, arranged the contact between the couple and the surrogate, known only as Elizabeth Kane Levin, an infertility specialist, has said he expects to deliver 100 babies in the next year with surrogate mothers.

Levin said he wanted to study Beshear's opinion before commenting. His attorney, Katie Marie Brophy, said Beshear has tried to stretch adoption statutes to cover surrogate parenting while the two are not compatible.

People involved in surrogate-parenting could be subject to criminal prosecution on charges that carry fines ranging up to $2,000 and imprisonment of six months, Beshear said.

However, "because of the uniqueness of this situation, we feel that the most appropriate avenue to pursue at this time is a civil, rather than a criminal one," Beshear added.

Surrogate Parenting Associates operated under the assumption that the process was legal, he said, but "from this point on, everyone's on notice" that there are legal questions.

Beshear said he did not think it would be fair to take action against couples and surrogate mothers already involved in the process.

He also said he did not believe surrogate contracts are enforceable in Kentucky because of the uncertainty they could involve.

"What if a surrogate mother decides to keep the child? A court is not going to force her to give it up," he said.

Students Ride Boat To School

SANDY ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — "You going to get us a bridge?" Ruby Simmons demanded of the two reporters at the landing on Waccamaw Neck, where the state's only school boat was loading up.

Two of Mrs. Simmons' primary school-aged children were boarding the yellow and black Prince Washington, and two more would ride an hour later when the 32-foot craft returned for high schoolers.

Mrs. Simmons wasn't so lucky. She rowed herself the nine-tenths of a mile from Sandy Island in an open skiff and stood shivering in sub-freezing temperatures waiting for a ride to her technical school class. That evening, she would row back.

The school boat carries 36 children in two shifts from the island to a wooden pier at Waccamaw Neck, where a bus meets them for the trip to Waccamaw school eight miles away, or to Winyah High School in Georgetown.

It is the only regular link between the 20 to 30 families on the island and the mainland. The only other way to get back and forth is by small private boat.

"We could sure use a bridge," said Mrs. Simmons. Clustered around her at the landing were about a dozen battered small boats and an equal number of cars, evidently owned by island dwellers or visitors.

Timothy Tucker, who has operated the school boat for seven years, said he has no boat of his own and no other way to get to his part-time carpenter's job on the mainland.

"I just make sure I get everything done I need to over here by Friday, because the boat doesn't run on weekends," he said.

The state Department of Education owns the boat. Maintenance official Larry Mims said fuel for the past six months cost about $475. Last summer's annual overhaul and minor maintenance since then cost about $1,275, he said.

Island residents almost succeeded some years back in getting a regular ferry service established between the island and the mainland. But the plan fell through, and a boat that had been purchased for it was sold.

The diesel-powered school boat has a black hull and white superstructure with yellow trim. The children ride on benches inside the unheated cabin, which Mims said should be rebuilt soon.

It's the only ride of its kind in the state, but the passengers take it all in stride.

"I don't think it's so special," said one jaded rider. "Not to me."

Super Bowl Unable To Boost NBC Into Top Ratings Spot

NEW YORK (AP) — Super Bowl XV knocked "Dallas" from its spot as the most-watched show in the nation, but the huge audience for NBC's sports coverage could not nudge CBS from the No. 1 spot in the networks' prime-time ratings race, according to figures from A.C. Nielsen Co.

CBS had four of the five highest-rated programs for the week ending Jan. 25 and kept the top spot for the seventh consecutive week.

The rating for the football championship contest between the Oakland Raiders and the Philadelphia Eagles was 44.4, compared with 46.3 last year for CBS' broadcast of Super Bowl XIV.

The rating for the game, won by Oakland, means that of all the nation's homes with television, 44.4 percent saw at least part of the game, Nielsen says.

CBS' "Dallas" was runner-up — the program has been first or second in the ratings 11 times in the last 12 weeks — and the network's average rating was 20.2, to 19.9 for NBC and 18 for ABC.

The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute, 20.2 percent of the nation's TV-equipped homes were tuned to CBS.

CBS now is No. 1 for the season by both standards — that of CBS and ABC, which maintain the season started Oct. 27, and that of NBC, which said the TV year began Sept. 15 despite an actors' strike.

Meanwhile, the network's "Evening News" registered its highest weekly rating — 19 — in 11 years. The previous high, 19.5, was for the same week of January 1970.

NBC, which spent nine straight weeks in third place, now has been No. 2 three times in the last month.

A special edition of ABC's "20-20," "A-Merica Held Hostage: The Secret Negotiations," hit a high for the program for this season with a rating of 24.6, good for ninth place.

Four of the week's five lowest-rated programs were episodes from new series, and the fifth was a movie, "Oklahoma City Dolls" on ABC, No. 65. NBC's "Flamingo Road" was 63rd, followed by "Hill Street Blues," also from NBC, the ABC movie, CBS' "Secrets of Midland Heights" and "NBC Magazine with David Brinkley."

The week's 10 highest rated programs:

Super Bowl XV, with a rating of 44.4 representing 34.5 million homes, NBC; "Dallas," 36.4 or 28.3 million, "Dukes of Hazzard," 29.1 or 22.6 million, "M-A-S-H," 26.3 or 20.5 million, and "Trapper John, M.D.," 25.6 or 19.9 million, all CBS; Super Bowl Post-Game, 25.5 or 19.8 million, NBC; "The Jeffersons," CBS, and "Little House on the Prairie," NBC, both 24.8 or 19.3 million; "20-20," 24.6 or 19.1 million, and "Love Boat," 24.2 or 18.8 million, both ABC.

NBC Claims Shows Improved

By PETER J. BOYER
LOS ANGELES (AP) — NBC had this idea that some of its prime-time programs had improved significantly since last year and urged the TV press to test the notion. Offered as evidence were two-hour-special versions of "Buck Rogers" and "BJ and the Bear" and an hour-long episode of "Lobo."

Hmm. And no hazard pay. Oh well, anything for the arts.
The "new" version of "BJ and the Bear," promised NBC, featured "exciting changes that offer more than the open road, speed traps and long hours." Those elements were staples of the show before its exciting changes, along with a sizable corps of female healthies in squeeze-clads. One wondered what would take their place.

"BJ" fans will be comforted by the discovery that the bouncy ladies are still there. In fact, the "test episode" was called, "BJ and the Seven Lady Truckers," and you know what? Not one of those ladies looked at all as if she could change a tire on a Volkswagen, much less an 18-wheeler. Lucky BJ.

Indeed, one of the "girls" (sorry, but that is the term-in-use in this) did have a flat tire. She reached across the cab, opened a canteen and proceeded to pour water over her chest. Anything for a wet T-shirt.

Anyway, the story is that BJ — an independent trucker who rides around with a chimp — leaves the South for California to assist a friend trying to make it as an independent. All manner of bad guys are working against the enterprise, including the chief baddie, Chief Rutherford T. Grant of the state police. The friend gets hospitalized, BJ decides to take the run for him and enlists the help of the seven beauties. Cop cars are wrecked, trucks chased and skins bare.

So, what's new? Believe it or not, it is the belief of NBC programmers Fred Silverman and Brandon Tartikoff that "BJ" was low-rated last season because of its rural locale. The same witless doings transplanted to the Union's most populous state, the thinking went, would fix things.

A better fix would have been to lose BJ and keep the trucks, the monkey and the girls. It's low-brow stuff, this, as low in California as it was in Dixie. It's not especially fun even in the context of unencumbered escapism. BJ says the rules he lives by are, "I don't run out, I don't give up and I don't go away."

Could you make it two-out-of-three, Beej?

The programming logic that moved "BJ and the Bear" to California relocated its spinoff, "Lobo," in Atlanta. The urban aspect — slick criminals committing more violent and spectacular crimes — was supposed to attract more viewers.

As with "BJ," it apparently occurred to no one simply to make a better show. Perhaps a show that even inspired a laugh with dialogue.

Instead, you have Lobo (Claude Akins) and his buffoons grappling with "urban bad guys, the hostilities of the more sophisticated city police and a whole new set of problems." The gratuitous bump-and-grind shots are more occasional than in "BJ" and there is a higher comic value, thanks largely to the slapstick expertise of Mills Watson (who plays the Deputy Perkins).

Sheriff Lobo himself is no longer "larcenous," as NBC once described him. He is now "slightly devious."

Slightly devious, it turns out, is as unfunny as larcenous. And now that "Lobo" is in sophisticated and tolerant Atlanta, race jokes have been added, usually centering on an ample black policeman named Hildy.

Hildy to Lobo: "Whew, these hot Georgia nights make me sweat more than a black man at a Klan meeting." Or a black caricature in an NBC comedy. Sophisticated Atlanta cop to Hildy, after Hildy has seen Perkins, whom she thought dead:

"Hildy, you look as white as ... er, as if you've seen a ghost." And you thought that joke went out with Our Gang.

Behind those two, the "new" "Buck Rogers" seems Shakespearean.

The change in "Buck" was the addition of heavyweight John Mantley as executive producer. To be honest with you, it seems like the same show to me, which makes it at least as good as anything else NBC brought back from last year.

Buck (Gil Gerard) is a displaced 20th century astronaut, who has to make do in the 25th century, to which he was transported in a space accident. There are the usual space toys, with "Gunsmoke" storylines and characters dressed up in space duds.

The one I saw had to do with a creature called Hawk, half-man, half-bird, whose people were driven from ancient Atlantis because they were, uh, different. The last of his people were killed in their exile place, leaving only Hawk and Mrs. Hawk, who promptly embarked on a rampage of vengeance against all humans.

Buck fights the guy, they gain respect for one another and Hawk joins the humans hoping someday to find other bird people. And Wilfred Hyde-White has been added to the cast to play Dr. Goodfellow, an eccentric scientist who's two-thirds very nearly 'round the bend.

It's a story you've seen a thousand times in old Westerns, but at least it's a story. And the spacey stuff is as good as any made for TV.

I hope for its own sake that "Buck Rogers" ratings don't lag this season. The show just wouldn't work in a sophisticated city.

Death Ray Weapons Still Long Way Off

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite frequent talk about the use of lasers and particle beams as weapons in space, a Massachusetts Institute of Technology physicist says such space-based death rays are beyond the realm of practicality for the foreseeable future.

"Even if eventually they could be developed, the cost of emplacing, supplying and maintaining them would be prohibitive," said Kosta Tsipis in a report to the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

In addition, he said energy beams would be fatally vulnerable during their initial stages in space. And even if they were made operational, he said they probably could be neutralized by a variety of countermeasures.

However, Tsipis said airborne lasers as anti-satellite weapons do appear feasible within the next two decades.

Physicists have known for years that concentrated columns of light or beams of atomic particles could carry potentially destructive amounts of energy hundreds of even thousands of miles away.

But unlike today's weapons which use chemical or nuclear explosives, lasers or particle beams must physically hit the target, requiring extremely accurate aiming systems which themselves would pose formidable developmental problems.

The problem with particle beams, Tsipis said, is that the energy would disperse to such an extent that there would not be enough to damage a distant target in space. It would not be practical, he said, to produce enough energy to deal with that problem.

"One can therefore safely conclude that particle beam weapons are not practical for use from exoatmospheric (space) platforms, even without considering the difficulty of beam aiming and countermeasures that burdens a particle beam weapon," he said.

Lasers, on the other hand, would not suffer from such energy dispersion in space, Tsipis said.

But he said a spaceborne laser system capable of delivering knockout pulses to a swarm of ICBMs would require a high quality light-concentrating mirror perhaps 10 feet in diameter and several thousands of tons of hydrogen and oxygen to generate the energy required.

Tsipis said there is little technical proof that such a mirror could be built "within the visible technical horizon" which he defined as stretching to the end of this century.

MEMORABLE SCENERY — The South Island's majestic mountains, serene lakes and rushing streams are havens for New Zealand campers, skiers and fishing buffs. Mount Cook has an altitude of 12,349 feet.

Lubbock Tourists Find New Zealand Diverse

By TED J. SIMON
A-J Travel Editor

Where is New Zealand? Ask the average American that question, and the reply may be, "It's next to Australia." The reply is somewhat accurate, however it is also indicative that most Americans consider New Zealand as a part of Australia. Lying approximately 1,200 miles southeast of Australia, the nation of New Zealand is just as close to the Fiji Islands of the South Pacific. Although a member of the British Commonwealth, New Zealand is politically independent.

North Island has grass covered volcanic mounds, thermals, geysers, and boiling lakes. And there are native Maori villages with fierce looking carved figures guarding large meeting halls. South Island has Mount Cook (altitude 12,349 feet), a reminder that Sir Edmund Hillary gained much of his climbing experience in his homeland before accepting the challenge of Mount Everest. South Island is a land of rushing streams and crystal clear lakes filled with fighting trout, and lush meadows for wildfowl hunting.

Hiking and backpacking are popular on both islands, but especially on South Island. Because of its isolation, New Zealand has some of the most interesting flora and fauna anywhere. By the way, there are no snakes in New Zealand. However, there is a voracious parrot that will attack grazing sheep!

From snow skiing and ocean surfing to fishing for marlin and hunting for six species of deer, New Zealand is truly a perfect destination for the outdoor oriented traveler.

If you want your activities more conventional, Auckland has a zoo where you can see the kiwi bird and other native animals, Mount Eden (formerly a Maori fortress), and the War Memorial Museum, a showcase of Maori history and art. There are guided city tours, and trips into the nearby forests.

Rotorua, located in the heart of North Island, is the center of Maori culture.

For general information pertaining to New Zealand, write to the New Zealand Government Tourist Bureau, One Maritime Plaza, Suite 970, Alcoa Bldg., San Francisco, Calif., 94111.

Most of the time will be spent on the sparsely inhabited South Island with visits to the albatross colony at Otago Head, Milford Sound, the Glowworm caves and Lake Te Anau. While hiking the famous Milford Track on a series of spectacular walks between established huts, participants will see glaciers, hardwood forests, beautiful streams and waterfalls as well as the unique birdlife of New Zealand.

Tour participants will visit North Island to learn of the ancient Maori culture. The visit will include the strange geothermal area of Rotorua with its bubbling pools and geysers.

The 16-day tour is scheduled for March 21 through April 5. Detailed information is available from Adventures International, 4421 Albert St., Oakland, Calif., 94619, phone (415) 531-6564. The organization specializes in natural history and photography journeys to the world's wild places.

There is a model village where you can shop for native handicrafts and hear Maori music.

Mrs. Mitchell recommends visiting the Agri Dome to see a display of pruned sheep. The art of sheep shearing is demonstrated daily at the dome. Visitors to Rotorua also enjoy the relaxing effects of natural hot springs. Most hotels and motels have hot pools for their guests.

Wellington (at the southern tip of North Island) is the nation's capital. There are cable car rides, museums, and botanical gardens. An interesting side trip is to nearby Petone, where there are remnants of the first settlement.

New Zealand combines the best of many worlds. It is a foreign destination, yet it has the comfortable "just like home" feeling.

The language is familiar, but delightfully different in accent and rhythm. It's a country where gasoline is petrol, trucks are lorries, and people favor tea houses instead of coffee shops. The money is easy to understand and the rate of exchange is about the same. However, you will find that prices for some items and services are less than in the States.

New Zealanders favor protein-based meals. Menus feature beef cuts similar to those in America, as well as pork and lamb. The country is well known for its dairy industry. The individual accommodations in hotels and motels usually have coolers or refrigerators stocked with milk for a morning "pick me up." Water is safe to drink throughout the country.

The Lubbockites returned home with sheepskin rugs as mementos of their visit to the land of the kiwi. Other items of interest for shoppers are paua shell jewelry, knit wear, Maori wood carvings, and greenstone ornaments — New Zealand jade. Most shops are closed on Saturdays and Sundays.

A vacation in New Zealand is comparable in cost to a similar vacation in the U.S., plus air fare. To make New Zealand even more affordable, Continental Airlines and Avis have several fly-drive packaged vacations.

One package is priced at $154 per person for a week (not including air fare). The package includes arrival transfer at New Zealand, sedan automobile, accommodations for seven nights, discount sightseeing vouchers, plus other features.

The cost is based on three persons sharing car and triple accommodations. There is a camper-van package for persons preferring a camping holiday. Complete information is available at Continental's downtown Lubbock office, or from your travel agent.

For general information pertaining to New Zealand, write to the New Zealand Government Tourist Bureau, One Maritime Plaza, Suite 970, Alcoa Bldg., San Francisco, Calif., 94111.

Adventures International, an adventure travel organization based in Oakland, Calif., has scheduled a trip to New Zealand for hiking enthusiasts.

Most of the time will be spent on the sparsely inhabited South Island with visits to the albatross colony at Otago Head, Milford Sound, the Glowworm caves and Lake Te Anau. While hiking the famous Milford Track on a series of spectacular walks between established huts, participants will see glaciers, hardwood forests, beautiful streams and waterfalls as well as the unique birdlife of New Zealand.

Peru, Ecuador Fighting Over Access To River

LIMA, Peru (AP) — An old dispute between Peru and Ecuador over access to the Amazon River erupted in bloody border fighting between the two South American neighbors.

Ecuador said two of its soldiers were killed and others injured during eight air attacks by Peruvian helicopters and planes on a remote border post Wednesday. It claimed two of the helicopters were shot down and accused Peru of trespassing on Ecuadorian territory.

Peru announced it was conducting a military operation to drive Ecuadorian forces from its territory. It said both countries suffered casualties but did not say whether any Peruvians were killed.

The political committee of the Organization of American States held an emergency meeting in Washington and urged the two countries to let an international commission try to resolve the dispute. Ecuador agreed, but Peru did not respond immediately.

Although border incidents in the region are commonplace, it was the most violent conflict since 1978, when two Peruvians were killed in fighting.

President Jaime Roldos of Ecuador declared a national state of emergency and ordered the public schools closed until further notice.

Ecuador's military high command reported shortly before midnight Wednesday that its forces had successfully repelled eight air attacks against its Pa-quisha frontier post.

Ecuador said the outpost was located on the Cordillera of The Condor, a 6,500-foot-high mountain range along the western edge of the Amazon jungle. The two countries each claim 5,000 square miles of border region between the Santiago and Zamora Rivers.

The region is 170 miles south of Quito, Ecuador's capital, and 785 miles north of Lima. Possession of it would give Ecuador access to the Marañon River, which a few miles downstream empties into the Amazon. It is also north of Peru's major oil fields.

Ecuador charged last week that a Peruvian army helicopter attacked the Paquisha outpost last Thursday and critically wounded an Ecuadorean pilot.

Peru denied the helicopter flew over Ecuadorean territory and said it was on a routine supply mission when it was hit by Ecuadorean ground fire. The Peruvian Foreign Ministry accused Ecuador of sending troops into Peru's eastern portion of the Cordillera, establishing three military outposts there and naming one of them Paquisha, the same name as an Ecuadorean outpost in its western half of the Cordillera.

"What is very serious is that Ecuador has given the zone the name of Paquisha, which is the name of a location which no one disputes is Ecuadorean, on the Nanaganica River," Peruvian Foreign Minister Javier Arias Stella told reporters.

Storms Halt Search For Missing Victims

JAKARTA, Indonesia (UPI) — Sudden monsoon storms forced the suspension today of the search for nearly 400 missing passengers and crew of an Indonesian ocean liner that sank in flames in the turbulent Java Sea.

"With such bad weather, we now have only very little hope to find any more survivors," a spokesman for the massive search operation said.

Some 355 passengers and 25 crewmen, including the captain, of the Tampomas-2 were still missing and "there is little chance they could survive at sea without food or fresh water," the spokesman said.

The search for survivors of ship, which sank in stormy seas Tuesday after an engine room fire gutted the crowded ocean liner, was called off because of sudden monsoon storms, the spokesman said. He said it may resume Friday if weather conditions improved.

Latest figures on the Tuesday morning sinking of the Tampomas-2 ocean liner placed the official death toll at 87 with 669 confirmed survivors. It was Indonesia's worst maritime disaster.

There was no explanation for the rollback from an earlier survival count of 802, and officials refused to issue new casualty reports as the day progressed. First news accounts of the sinking had estimated the casualty toll as high as 1,000.

Meanwhile, controversy flared over a newspaper report that the captain of the Tampomas-2 had warned officials his ship was being overworked.

The Sinar Harapan newspaper reported that Captain Abdul Rivai had said in an interview given before the disaster that the state-owned Peln Company maintained the Tampomas-2 in bad condition and ran it too hard.

"Although I complained, Peln management kept on pushing to have the journey concluded in eight days," Rivai said.

Pelni officials rejected the charges and said the ship was "in perfect condition at the moment the accident occurred."

Rain Threatens Crosby Pro-Am

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — They call it "Crosby weather."

It's been absent for a couple of years and the famed Bing Crosby National Pro-Am, with a horde of celebrity amateurs and the cream of the crop of golf's touring pros, has been played in warm sunshine against the picturesque backdrop of the beautiful Monterey Peninsula.

But this year Crosby weather has returned.

The conditions are so severe there is the threat of the tournament, which is scheduled to start today, being disrupted. One more storm could do it.

Tom Watson took one look at the squishy fairways, the rain-drenched tees and greens and observed, "it's going to be Mud City out there."

Hale Irwin, crouching under an umbrella, agreed.

"It's not all that much fun playing in this slop," said the two-time U.S. Open champion, "but we who have been here before aren't surprised. We more or less expect it. We aren't surprised by it. And we keep coming back. So the tournament must be doing something right."

The tournament was scheduled — weather permitting — to get underway today on three courses on the storm-lashed peninsula, inundated by more than two inches of rain early in the week and braced for another front due to sweep in from the Pacific.

"We just can't take any more rain," said Jack Stirling, a PGA tour official who spent most of the day Wednesday supervising ground crews bailing out bunkers and attempting to dry out tees and greens on Pebble Beach, Cypress Point and Spyglass Hill.

Even if the weather holds off, so-called "winter rules" will be in effect, with players allowed to lift, clean and place balls in the fairways.

The format calls for the 168 pros, each with an amateur partner, to play one round on each of the three courses before the field is cut for the final round at Pebble Beach Sunday.

The courses were closed to practice all day Tuesday and half the day Wednesday. Jack Nicklaus decided he needed some work and flew down to the desert at Palm Springs to practice. Nicklaus, who has won five titles, including the 1972 U.S. Open, at Pebble Beach, is one of the favorites and will have former President Gerald Ford as his amateur partner.

Watson, twice a winner here, is opening his 1981 campaign in search of a fifth consecutive title as Player of the Year and leading money-winner.

"I'm eager to get started," he said. "I'm very pleased with the way I'm swinging the club now."

Other leading contenders include defending champion George Burns, Ben Crenshaw, Jerry Pate and Ray Floyd. Also on hand are Australian David Graham and Johnny Miller, winner of two of the three events played this year, and Lon Hinkle, a two-time runnerup already this season.

CBS will provide national television coverage of the Saturday and Sunday rounds at Pebble Beach.

Chaps Host ENMU

The Lubbock Christian College basketball team hosts Eastern New Mexico University in a non-conference game at 7:30 tonight in the LCC Fieldhouse.

The Chaparrals, 6-16, have already lost twice this season to ENMU.

LCC coach John Copeland is expected to start forwards Jim Stegma and Larry Holt; center Brian Fictner; and guards Bill McGee and Bruce Carver.

TECH CAGERS CAN'T HIDE IN HILLS

Razorbacks Rip Raiders

By CHUCK McDONALD
Assistant Sports Editor

FAYETTEVILLE — You'd have to go all the way back to the 1950-51 season when Oklahoma City defeated Texas Tech 37-33 to find a lower scoring output from the Red Raiders.

And you'd probably have to go back to when Dr. Naismith first started knocking the bottom out of peach baskets to find a stranger game than the one that transpired here Wednesday night at Barnhill Arena.

But you'd only have to take a backward journey of about 12 months to discover the last time Red Raider coach Gerald Myers was given the heave ho.

When the smoke finally settled, when Arkansas had laughed its way off the court with a 60-35 Southwest Conference victory under its belt, when Myers hit the showers, a few basic unpleasanties stared the Raiders right in the face.

Tech has now lost five in a row (no Myers-coached team had ever dropped more than three straight before this season), the Raiders are 3-5 after one round of league play and they are still seeking their first conference road victory.

For the Razorbacks, the report card shows nothing but good grades. The Hogs moved to 5-3 in SWC play and 14-6 on the season, while Tech falls to 9-9.

The way the SWC has treated the game of basketball this year simply defies description, but what happened here Wednesday was strange even by current standards.

the second half was 40-28 on a pair of Clarence Swannegan free throws. Finally, with Tech trailing 50-32, Myers exploded.

Freshman Bubba Jennings was stripped of the ball near midcourt and Myers, who'd been simmering all night, ran out to the center circle calling for a foul. He got one quick technical but refused to leave and earned two more before he finally left the floor after a lengthy discussion with referee Denny Bishop.

"U.S. Reed hit Jennings on the arm and they didn't call it. That was the straw that broke the camel's back," said Myers. "It started on the first play of the half when they knocked Jennings down and got a dunk."

"It's hard to get the ball inside to the post when it's a wrestling match."

But Arkansas coach Eddie Sutton felt Myers' technicals were caused by his own team's ineffectiveness.

"Coach Myers got a little excited towards the end and I know how he feels," said Sutton. "He's just frustrated with his team."

Following the outburst, substitute Mike Young hit one of two free throws and Arkansas' only walk-on on the roster, Eugene Nash, hit three of the six technical free throws to make it 54-32. The game was all over.

"I think our team will start back," said Myers. "We're down as low as we can go. We're flat on our backs."

While the Raiders were hitting only 12

Women To Join NCAA Panels

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Shattering 75 years of male domination and setting in motion a new era in collegiate athletics, the two highest-ranking officers of the NCAA today will appoint about 200 women to powerful committee assignments.

Guaranteed female representation on the various "standing committees," such as the infractions, international relations and post season football committees that govern the venerable association were a key part of a controversial governance package adopted by NCAA members at their convention two weeks ago in Miami Beach.

Jim Frank, president of Lincoln University in Jefferson City, Mo., and the president of the NCAA, and John Toner, athletic director at Connecticut and NCAA secretary-treasurer, were set to make the appointments in a mid-morning conference call.

Toner and Frank will also assign women to a number of sports committees to administer the women's championships in Division I schools were adopted at the Miami convention.

"I don't know if we'll be able to do a complete job on both," Toner told the Associated Press Wednesday. "But the standing committees ought to be done."

There will be no immediate announcement of the appointments. The women will be notified by mail and asked to confirm that they will serve.

For many of the women, committee appointment will mean tremendous career opportunities as well as instant prestige for their schools and conferences.

"I know one thing," Toner said, "we have to get these things done as soon as possible, and get them announced because the whole intercollegiate world is waiting. They need a signal real quick. We're going to work as quickly as possible to get those things out."

The NCAA's entry into women's athletics is bitterly opposed by many factions, chiefly the Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women. And Toner indicated committee appointments may be extended to AIAW supporters who opposed the women's programs at the Miami convention.

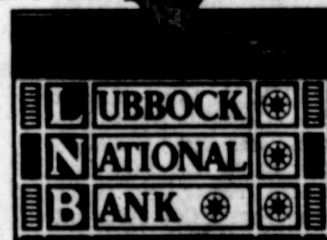

"I think that the various women who are going to be asked, if they haven't already determined it is the proper thing to do, are going to have to make some real important decisions in a short period of time," said Toner. "This is going to be historic in a way, and it is going to be fundamental to many of their futures. I'm sure many will be anguishing over the decision they might have to make."

"People are loyal," Toner continued. "People have loyalties. And this decision is required to be made from the head. I suspect those women who haven't already made the heady decision are going to be forced to make it in a hurry because we need to know right away."

COLLEGE BASKETBALL ROUNDUP

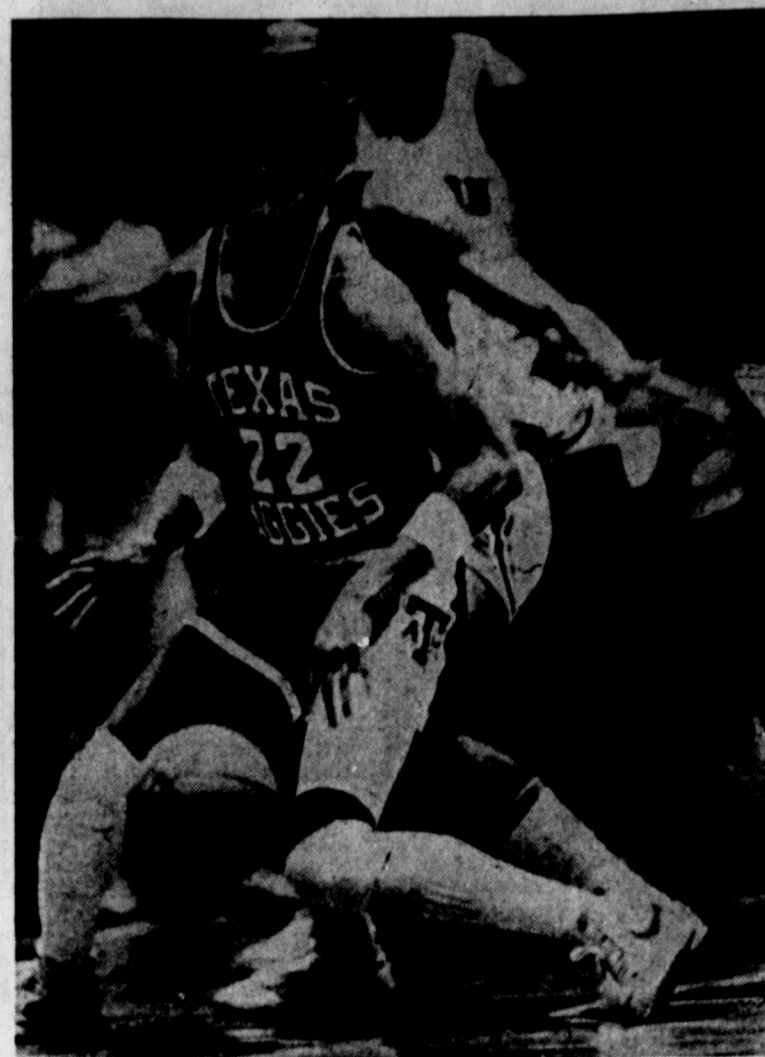

Sampson Ignites No. 1 Cavs

By The Associated Press
Ralph Sampson, the tallest point in the Virginia Cavaliers' lineup, wasn't his usual visual self for most of the game against Wake Forest Wednesday night.

was only the second loss in 17 starts for Wake Forest.
"We made a great effort to close it at the end," said Wake Forest coach Carl Tacy, referring to a Deacon rally that cut Virginia's lead from 13 points to four with 2:10 left.

concentration. I thought about the four-minute mark that our guys looked at the scoreboard and not consciously said, 'OK, it's over, let's make sure we go home with a win. Let's not get anybody hurt.'
Elsewhere, No. 3 DePaul stopped Illinois State 54-50, No. 4 Louisiana State trimmed Mississippi 63-59, No. 7 Kentucky clipped Mississippi State 71-64, No. 11 Tennessee beat Georgia 72-67, 12th-ranked North Carolina hammered Clemson 61-47 and Kansas State upset No. 18 Kansas 54-43.

16 points and became only the second Virginia player to pass the 2,000-point mark for his career.
Frank Johnson, who had two baskets in Wake Forest's futile comeback, finished with a game-high 28 points.
Mark Aguirre scored 21 points as DePaul rallied from a 26-24 halftime deficit to defeat Illinois State. Rick Lamb led Illinois State with 20 points and nine rebounds.

FANCY FOOTWORK — Texas A&M freshman guard Reggie Roberts (22) does some fancy footwork as he drives toward the basket in the first quarter of Wednesday night's Southwest Conference basketball game with Houston.

TCU, Rice Upsets Add To Wacky SWC Race

By The Associated Press
It was another topsy-turvy night in Southwest Conference basketball action as Texas Christian and Rice pulled off the latest upsets in a season filled with surprising results.

Browder had 20 points for TCU and Teagle had 18 for Baylor.
Baylor coach Jim Haller had a simple explanation for the loss. "They just whipped us, that's all I can say," he said.

Rice coach Mike Schuler disagreed, however. "Some of you guys maybe didn't think so, but I thought it was a helluva game. I think we're the best road team in the league," he said.

Brown gave credit to Macklin's defensive play in the first half, and to a cool team approach when Mississippi came on strong in the second period.
"We didn't do the silly things when we realized we'd gotten ourselves in a serious jam," Brown said.

Texas Christian beat Baylor, 58-50, and Rice upset Texas, 46-40, in overtime in the topsy-turvy games. In games with more routine outcomes, Houston beat Texas A&M, 76-71, and Arkansas trounced Texas Tech, 60-35.
Baylor grabbed a 27-21 halftime lead over Texas Christian, but in the second half, TCU's Darrell Browder got hot and Baylor's Terry Teagle got cold.

TCU coach Jim Killingsworth was at a loss to explain Teagle's cold streak.
"We really didn't do anything different on Teagle in the second half. We just played him a little tighter and pushed out a little farther," he said.

Rob Williams had 33 points as the Houston Cougars tightened their grasp on first place with a 76-71 victory over Texas A&M.
Freshman Reggie Roberts had 14 points for the slumping Aggies.
Williams drew high praise from Aggies coach Shelby Metcalf. "Rob had a fantastic night. He put on a clinic out there," he said.

Sam Bowie shook off the effects of an injured hip and sparked a second-half burst that led Kentucky over Mississippi State. Bowie scored 27 points, two short of his career high, and the 7-foot-1 sophomore center helped the Wildcats take control at the start of the second half.
"We were very successful getting the ball into Sam early in that half," said Wildcats coach Joe B. Hall. "Then Mississippi State missed eight or nine shots in a row, and that was the difference."

Eagles, Trojans Enter Tourneys

The Lubbock Christian High School girls' basketball team has already split a pair of games this week but the Eagles have only begun a hectic schedule which includes four games in the next three days.

The LCHS girls' — along with their male counterparts — compete in the Christian Schools Tournament today through Saturday in Abilene's Moody Coliseum.

The tournament is the closest thing you'll find to a district tournament for our conference. It's a real important weekend for us. The first and second finishers, and sometimes the third, are invited to the Texas Association of Private Schools regionals," Eagle coach Dale Pectol said.

While LCHS will be busy in Abilene, both Christ The King squads are scheduled to compete in the TCIL district playoffs in Wichita Falls beginning Friday.

Pectol's Eagles, 15-10 for the season, won the TAPS tournament last season en route to winning the state title. But LCHS will be without Sherri Spelce, who injured her ankle early this season, and Jill Towns and Brendell Baker are not 100 percent, Pectol said.

The six-team tournament is divided into one day of round-robin play with the four top teams advancing to a regulation single-elimination tourney.

Both LCHS squads are grouped with Dallas Christian and the Christian Academy of Oak Cliff for today's round-robin games. The Eagle girls play Dallas at noon and Oak Cliff at 4:30 p.m. The LCHS boys meet Dallas at 1:30 p.m. and Oak Cliff at 6 p.m.

The other group includes Fort Worth Christian, Abilene Christian and Midland Christian.

Christ The King will compete with Alamo, Sacred Heart and Notre Dame in round-robin action to determine district boys' and girls' champions. The Trojan girls' team meets Alamo at 10 a.m. Friday, followed by Sacred Heart at 3 p.m. Their final game is against Notre Dame at 1:30 p.m. Saturday.

The Trojan boys battle Alamo at 11:30 a.m. and Sacred Heart at 4:30 p.m. Friday and Notre Dame at 3 p.m. Saturday.

The boys' and girls' squads with the best records at the end of the four games advance to bi-district competition Feb. 6 or 7.

WATHAN SIGNS PACT

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Catcher John Wathan, expected to replace Darrell Porter, has been signed to a three-year contract with the Kansas City Royals. Left-handed reliever Jeff Twitty, who made his Kansas City debut last year, also was signed Wednesday to a one-year contract. Finishing 11th in the American League batting race, Wathan hit .305 with six homers and 58 RBIs in 126 games.

Heart Attack Claims Former Detroit Tiger

SEATTLE (AP) — Ray Oyler, regular shortstop for the 1968 Detroit Tigers which won the World Series that year, died Monday of a heart attack. He was 43.
Oyler batted only .135 that season and was replaced at shortstop in the Series by outfielder Mickey Stanley.
The Tigers let Oyler go to the Seattle Pilots in the expansion draft following the 1968 season.
He was traded to the Oakland A's after the 1969 season and was sold by the A's to the California Angels early in the 1970 season, his last active year.

NBA ROUNDUP

Hot Celtics Overtake 76ers With 104-101 Victory

By The Associated Press
It was one of those classic battles in the Boston Garden for which the Celtics and 76ers have become famous. When it was over, the archrivals had swapped positions atop the National Basketball Association standings.
Neither the Celtics nor the 76ers were playing special significance on Boston's 104-101 victory over Philadelphia Wednesday night.
"If this was the last game of the regular season, I'd be happy as heck," said Celtics coach Bill Fitch after his team won the 13th consecutive game to finally overtake Philly at the head of the Atlantic Division. The Celtics' 43-9 record and .827 percentage not only places them ahead of the Sixers' 44-10 and .815 but also made Boston the only team with fewer than 10 losses in the NBA.

"Realistically, we have to look at it as just another win," said Fitch.
"We've been chasing them for a long time. It seemed that it had gotten to the point that you'd look at the standings to see who took 10 losses first."
The 76ers reached double figures in the loss column before the Celtics, mainly due to Larry Bird and Robert Parish, who had 24 and 21 points respectively. Parish hit a pair of free throws with nine seconds to go to provide Boston with a three-point lead and Philadelphia could not get off a shot to tie.

"I won't try to kid anybody," added Fitch. "We were up for this game. But so was Philly. Playing here was definitely to our benefit."
The Sixers benefited from a 35-point explosion by Julius Erving, who scored 45 points in the only other meeting this season between the teams, a game Philadelphia won at home in overtime.
"One game doesn't diminish what we've done so far," said Erving. "I still think this is the Philly's year."
"There's no extra significance to this game," explained Sixers center Darryl Dawkins. "If it was the last game of the season, it would mean a lot more, but we play them twice more here and they have to come down to our place twice."

At no time in the game were the clubs separated by more than seven points.
Elsewhere in the NBA, Washington topped Phoenix 108-98, Indiana beat Golden State 108-102, Houston took New Jersey 111-109, and Milwaukee downed Seattle 119-110.
Bullets 108, Suns 98
Washington won for the ninth time in 10 games and the fourth straight contest behind Greg Ballard's 26 points. Wes Unseid contributed 14 points and 15 rebounds and Kevin Porter dished out eight assists along with scoring 21 points.

"We're running a lot more now and I'm getting out on the break," noted Ballard, who has been one of the main factors in Washington's resurgence, averaging 25.6 points in the last six games.
"Greg has done a good job no matter where he plays," said Bullets coach Gene Shue, who has used Ballard at small forward and power forward recently because of injuries to other Bullets. "He's been executing his plays and getting open shots."
Pacers 108, Warriors 102
Indiana took the lead in the second quarter and held it throughout as James Edwards scored 23 points and George McGinnis had 20 points and 13 rebounds.
"I thought James played real well," said Pacers coach Jack McKinney. "He did a good job of pressuring Joe Barry Carroll (the Warriors' center) and played good defense on him too."
Carroll, playing in his first game in Indiana since graduating from Purdue and being selected first in the NBA draft last summer, still managed 19 points and 18 rebounds.

Rockets 111, Nets 99
Moses Malone put in 29 points and grabbed 14 rebounds to pace Houston, which built a 16-point lead in the third quarter and coasted. Mike Dunleavy added 19 for the Rockets.
Cliff Robinson paced the Nets, who lost their 40th game in 55 outings, with 22 points.
Bucks 119, SuperSonics 110
Marques Johnson scored 10 of his game-high 24 points in the final period to lead Milwaukee. The Bucks trailed 94-92 midway in the fourth quarter, then Johnson scored five points as the Bucks out-scored Seattle 12-2 to jump on top 104-96.
The Bucks maintained that advantage the rest of the way as they posted their 14th victory in 15 games against Western Conference opponents. The Sonics dropped their sixth straight.

Flu, Penguins Check North Stars

By The Associated Press
Flu weakened the Minnesota North Stars Wednesday night, and then Greg Millen knocked them out.
The Pittsburgh goaltender stoned the undermanned Stars for 57½ minutes while his teammates built a 3-0 lead en route to a 3-1 National Hockey League victory.
"It's not often that you put 43 shots on the net and don't come away with anything, not even a tie. That's to Millen's credit," said Minnesota coach Glen Sonmor. "But we've got five regulars who can't play and we're on the road."
The ill North Stars were Tim Young, Jack Carlson, Steve Christoff, Paul Shmyr and Kent-Erik Anderson, all out with the flu. Christoff, Shmyr and Anderson did not even make the trip.
The night before, the Penguins looked sickly as they were belted by St. Louis 7-1. The fact that they turned it around immediately against Minnesota pleased coach Ed Johnston.
"It's nice to see us bounce back. It's very encouraging," said Johnston. "We got a tremendous performance out of Millen. He made some fantastic saves."
In St. Louis, Millen looked on from the bench as Nick Ricci was embarrassed seven times. But only Craig Hartsburg could solve Millen Wednesday night.

"I didn't care about losing the shut-out. The main thing was to win the game," said Millen.
In the first period, Paul Gardner gave the Penguins a 1-0 lead when he picked up a loose puck in front of the net and poked it past Minnesota goalie Gilles Meloche.
Rod Schutt made it 2-0 at 6:24 of the final period on an eight-foot shot from the slot and Ron Stackhouse scored from in front of the net after a pass from Randy Carlyle to make it 3-0.
Elsewhere in the NHL, Edmonton shocked Montreal 9-1, the Islanders skated past Toronto 6-4, the Rangers beat Los Angeles 6-2, Hartford took Colorado 6-3, Detroit and Quebec tied 2-2, Chicago blasted Vancouver 7-3 and Buffalo and Philadelphia deadlocked 4-4.
Oilers 9, Canadiens 1
Jari Kurri scored three goals and Wayne Gretzky connected for one and set up four others as Edmonton overwhelmed Montreal, handing the Canadiens their worst loss of the season.
Edmonton scored three times within 1:46 of the opening period on goals by Pat Price at 16:03, Blair MacDonald at 17:37 and Matti Hagman just 12 seconds later and the rout was on.

Doug Risebrough was the only Canadian to get the puck past Ed Mio, while MacDonald also had three assists, Mark Messier contributed three assists and Hagman had two goals and an assist for the Oilers.
Islanders 6, Maple Leafs 4
Anders Kallur reached the 30-goal mark for the season with two tallies and Bryan Trottier had a goal and two assists for the Islanders, who have 15 road victories, tops in the NHL.
Rangers 6, Kings 2
Anders Hedberg scored twice for New York, which won its third road contest in a row and snapped Los Angeles' four-game unbeaten string. The Rangers killed off six of seven Kings' power plays.
Whalers 6, Rockies 3
Hartford snapped a seven-game winless streak as Mike Rogers scored three goals. Mike Fidler had a goal and two assists.
Red Wings 2, Nordiques 2
Robbie Ftorek scored twice for Quebec but Dale McCourt's third-period tally evened the game between two division tailenders.

"It was not a classic game but we'll gladly take one point in the standings," said Detroit coach Wayne Maxner, whose Wings are 3-19-5 on the road. "We've played better games this year and got nothing out of them in return."
Black Hawks 7, Canucks 3
Rookie Rick Paterson paced Chicago's ninth victory in 10 games with his first three-goal game in the NHL. Paterson was appearing in only his 34th game in the league.
Glen Hanlon, Vancouver's No. 1 netminder starting the season, was out of the lineup since Oct. 18, with torn knee ligaments. He made his first appearance since then against Chicago but Canucks coach Harry Neale said the defense, not the goalie, was to blame.
Sabres 4, Flyers 4
Buffalo rallied from a 4-1 deficit on goals by Rob McClanahan, John Van Boxmeer and Richie Dunn.
A stick-swinging duel between Buffalo's Danny Gare and Philadelphia's Behn Wilson marred the contest. Both players were handed match misconduct penalties.
Wilson had a goal and two assists while Bill Barber scored twice and added an assist for the Flyers.
Referee Dave Newell had to leave the game after falling to the ice and being stunned. He was taken to a hospital for examination and linesman John D'Amico completed the game as a referee.

White Decides To End Career

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Dwight "Mad Dog" White, latest Pittsburgh Steeler to call it a career, is attacking retirement from football the same way he chased quarterbacks.
"You can't play this game forever, thank God!" White said with a grin Wednesday after announcing he had accepted a position as an account executive with a stock brokerage.
"I say that because there are other abilities and talents that people have. If you didn't get out of football, you might never know about them," added the 6-foot-4, 255-pound defensive end.

White, 31, hampered by knee and ankle injuries the past two years, is the third Steeler to retire since the end of last season. Rocky Bleier and Mike Wagner made similar moves.
"For a good old boy from East Texas State, I didn't do too bad," White said.
As a fourth-round draft pick, White became a starter in 1971 as a rookie and a member of the front four that included Joe Greene, L.C. Greenwood and Ernie Holmes.
"I know that we were the best that ever did it," said White.

Holmes Lines Up Challengers

NEW YORK (AP) — Larry Holmes, World Boxing Council heavyweight champion in search of opponents, has lined up two. He says he has signed to meet Canadian champion Trevor Berbick in April and has a "verbal commitment" to fight Leon Spinks in May.
Holmes had been complaining of being frozen out of title fights by television networks who would not come up with the type of money he felt he deserved. He said Wednesday night that his fight with Berbick on April 11 in Las Vegas, Nev., will be on TV, but the cable variety.
A little more than one month later, Holmes expects to go into a Las Vegas ring again, against Spinks, who briefly held the undivided heavyweight title after beating Muhammad Ali on Feb. 15, 1978.
The verbal agreement with Spinks set up the possibility of an intriguing card which also involved former WBC welterweight champion Roberto Duran. Bob Goodman, a publicist for promoter Don King, said negotiations were underway for Holmes to fight Spinks in May along with a title bout between Duran and WBC junior middleweight champion Maurice Hope of England.

Those bouts were "not yet finalized," according to Goodman. He said, however, that the Holmes-Berbick match was definite.
Shortly after arriving at his home in Easton, Pa., from Las Vegas, Holmes said by telephone that the fight against Spinks would be "around May 20."
Duran has not fought since he lost his welterweight title when he quit against Sugar Ray Leonard Nov. 25 at New Orleans. Leonard is scheduled to fight WBA junior middleweight champion Ayub Kalule, a Ugandan living in Denmark, for Kalule's title in May or June.

Berbick, a Jamaican living in Canada, got into the title picture when he knocked out John Tate, the former WBA heavyweight champion, last June 20 in Montreal.
Apparently none of the major television networks wanted to meet Holmes' price for a defense against Berbick, so the fight will be aired on Home Box Office, a cable network. Holmes said that ABC had offered $500,000 for the fight. Obviously, HBO has offered more.
Berbick will fight Chuck Gardner of Minneapolis Saturday night in Kingston, Jamaica.
Spinks has a three-fight agreement with Muhammad Ali Professional Sports, Inc., for which he received a $50,000 signing bonus. But Harold Smith, chairman of MAPS, told the Associated Press recently that he would not stand in Spinks' way if he got a title fight involving another promoter.

Devaney Joins Football Hall

NEW YORK (AP) — Bob Devaney, who guided the University of Nebraska to consecutive national championships in 1970-71 and never had a losing season in 16 years as a college head coach, was named today to the National Football Foundation's College Football Hall of Fame.
Devaney, whose overall record was 136-30-7 for an .806 percentage, will be officially inducted into the Hall of Fame at the foundation's annual awards dinner here Dec. 8. He will be enshrined in the College Football Hall of Fame at Kings Island, Ohio, in August 1982.
After playing at Alma College in Michigan and coaching at four Michigan high schools, Devaney was an assistant coach at Michigan State University for four seasons before becoming head coach at the University of Wyoming.
In five seasons, his Wyoming teams posted a 35-10-5 record and won four Rocky Mountain Conference championships. He then coached at Nebraska for 11 years, compiling a 101-20-2 record, winning or sharing the Big Eight crown eight times and posting unbeaten seasons in 1965, 1970 and 1971.
From 1969-72, the Cornhuskers recorded a 32-game unbeaten streak. Devaney was named Big Eight Coach of the Year five times.

The Raiders, who had faced seven straight zone defenses, simply couldn't handle the Hogs' man-to-man pressure.

"You have to give Arkansas defense credit," said Myers. "We have not had that much problems with turnovers this year, we were a little rusty against the man-to-man."

No one on either team did much scoring in this 1940-style game. Scott Hastings led all scorers with 12 points, six of them coming at the line. Two other Hogs, Darrell Walker and Reed, each added 10.

Swannegan had 10 for Tech and Jennings, who looked like he was being used as an Arkansas punching bag, had nine.

Down by seven at the half, Tech narrowed the gap to 22-17 on a Swannegan jumper. But six straight points for the Hogs put it away at 28-17.

Arkansas steadily increased that margin as it took the Raiders nine minutes to score five points. By that time it was 30-20, and, in this game, 10 points was simply too much for Tech to overcome.

The first half was one of the stranger exhibitions ever seen on any court. For Arkansas it was a matter of shooting often and missing often. For Tech, it was a matter of rarely shooting, thus rarely scoring.

The Hogs managed a 22-15 intermission lead but only seven free throws for the hosts put either team over the 20-point mark at the conclusion of the half.

Unbelievable as it sounds, the Raiders attempted only six shots in the first 13 minutes of play. The Raiders tried to be patient, but most of the time they ended up turning the ball over before getting a chance to shoot.

Arkansas, dominating the backboards and the flow of the game, but missing repeatedly, finally broke a six-minute scoreless spell when Walker stole the ball and raced downcourt for a slam dunk.

That made it 14-9 with 7:32 left in the half and Tech called a timeout. The Raiders but three of seven attempts prior to intermission as Jennings connected twice from long range.

"Our defensive effort was outstanding," said Sutton. "Tech had only 12 field goals and we forced 22 turnovers."

Myers, while not disputing the fact, is not ready to call it quits.

"We didn't score well tonight but we will," said Myers. "Our players won't throw in the towel. I think we've got some character on this team."

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain and soybean futures prices closed mixed Wednesday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Corn and soybeans were lower, and oats and wheat were mixed in a narrow range with activity said to be dominated by local traders and speculators.

"This is really a nothing market," said a trader in the soybean pit.

All prices opened lower, with a stronger U.S. dollar said to be discouraging foreign demand and rain forecasts re-

Freak Smoke Pocket Blamed In Accident

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — A freak pocket of smoke from a woodland brush fire drifted onto a major highway and blocked visibility, causing a fiery chain-reaction accident that killed one motorist and injured 12 others.

A car slowed down in the blinding smoke late Wednesday. A semi-truck plowed into its rear. The resulting pileup involved seven cars, six semi-trucks, a pickup truck and a motor home that exploded, starting a three-vehicle fire that still smoldered early today.

"It was bad. It was a mess. I've seen things similar but never anything like this," said trooper Ron Getman.

Getman said the smoke, which drifted onto Interstate 95 from one of many brush fires burning in the tinder-dry Central Florida woodlands, caused the spectacular mishap.

"It was just a pocket of smoke," he said. "The road was fairly clear until they ran up on it. It was a very sudden thing."

After the first accident, he said, three more semis stopped short of the accident but a mobile home towing a car hit one of them, knocking it into the other two.

As a trooper was helping a badly injured man from the mobile home, it exploded, and the flames consumed the two trucks in front of it, Getman said.

"That was in the southbound lane," he said. "As this was going on, a Firebird nearly stopped in the northbound lane, across a heavily wooded median, and was struck by another semi. The car burst into flame and he, we haven't determined yet who the driver was, died in the flames."

"A trooper heard the screams and ran over. At that moment another car stopped to avoid the flames and was struck by a pickup truck."

"The car turned sideways and two more cars ran into it."

One of the trucks that caught fire in the southbound lane was carrying a "cargo of cloth," Getman said, and it and the mobile home were still smoldering early today.

The stubborn fire hampered efforts to remove the wreckage in that lane, he said. The northbound lane was closed for four hours before the wreckage was cleared.

It took several more hours to get the southbound lane open.

Excavation Provides Rare Look At State's Past

By ROBERT C. RADCLIFFE
National Geographic News Service
WASHINGTON — A Pompeii of the prairie with skeletons of some 200 prehistoric rhinoceroses, camels and horses entombed in 10 feet of volcanic ash is revealing a rare look at Nebraska of 10 million years ago.

A 39-year-old geologist-turned-fossil hunter from the University of Nebraska State Museum in Lincoln found the buried herd of animals in 1970, chancing upon the only fossil-sticking out of the ground — a baby rhino's skull. It led to the digging up of all the other skeletons, a bonanza bonanza.

Says Dr. Michael R. Voorhies, "I doubt if I'll ever see anything like it again in my career as a paleontologist." He has finished two years of excavation and laboratory analysis supported in part by National Geographic Society grants.

The uncovered animal skeletons, most of them complete and undisturbed when found, are a mother lode of fossils for scientists, who frequently have had only a few bone fragments to reconstruct what these ancient creatures looked like.

For the Nebraska excavators, special prizes among the volcano's victims were unborn young found inside some rhino skeletons and an 18-inch tall, saber-tooth deer.

Voorhies, who wrote about the find for the January issue of National Geographic, belongs to the "what-I-think-happened..." school of fossil hunters. He is recognized by paleontologists as a pioneer in taphonomy, which he defines as "the study of events leading up to the death and burial and fossilization of organisms."

Here is what Voorhies thinks happened:
The animals, sensing danger, had come together from miles around to a place that had been a refuge in the past during violent thunderstorms. "a sort of small, shallow, muddy water hole. We know this because we also found turtles and small aquatic plants and things like that there."

But this time, instead of a devastating prairie downpour, the skies turned dirty with volcanic dust that filtered down on to the animals and blanketed the land for several hundred miles around.

"A tremendous volcanic explosion, certainly larger than anything ever witnessed by man," had occurred many hundreds of miles to the west, Voorhies says. Mount St. Helens was not to blame, because the Cascade volcanoes did not exist then.

Actually, it was not exactly like Pompeii, as Voorhies reconstructs the killing. "The animals did not die all at once. We have evidence that it took several weeks between when the first ones and the last ones died. They were not buried alive."

But they probably were buried after a month or so, as much as 10 feet deep where the ash had drifted into the water hole. A foot of ash covered the surrounding landscape, perhaps giving it almost a snowy winter look.

Death came gradually. The ash is as fine as talcum powder and under a microscope looks like "broken Christmas tree ornaments, just like little curved pieces of very, very thin glass."

"I think what happened was that their lungs gradually filled with this very abrasive powder," Voorhies says. "It's just like little razors. As a matter of fact, those of us who worked collecting the fossils often had to wear dust masks to protect ourselves because it's very, very dangerous material."

For the stricken prehistoric beasts, there probably was no escape. Nevertheless, they may not have known they were doomed until too late. There was no sign of writhing in pain.

"They looked rather peaceful," he said. "The rhinos, for instance, are usually found in one of two positions: crouched with four legs directly under them, or lying on their sides. The horses have their necks drawn back a bit, but I don't see contorted postures."

Though only bones remained of the animals themselves, "the rhinoceroses had grass seed inside them, so we know exactly which species of grasses were growing there then," Voorhies says.

Besides the "virtually unheard of" complete skeletons, which together numbered almost 200, "the important thing about this discovery," reports Voorhies, "is that we can look at a sort of ancient ecosystem as it existed."

Voorhies says northeastern Nebraska of the Miocene era, 10 million years ago, looked like this:

"It was very, very flat, much flatter than Nebraska even today. The landscape was mostly covered with grass with scattered clumps of trees. And the climate, I suspect, was much warmer than today because we had giant land turtles and alligators living in Nebraska at that time"

Voorhies discovered the site at the end of a summer's day of solitary prospecting for fossils in Antelope Country, cornfield country northwest of Lincoln.

Statistics Need Clarification

By JOHN CUNIFF
NEW YORK (AP) — To reduce public confusion, aid decision making and improve government, one thing the new administration can do is clarify the statistics that have become so basic to everyday life.

Statistics rule. If you doubt that just consider the turmoil in stock markets when money supply figures are released, the increases in Social Security benefits when the Consumer Price Index is applied to them, the depressing mood engendered when the savings rate falls.

Now consider that nobody really knows if the weekly money supply figures are significant or even accurate; that the CPI is known to distort reality; that some of the expenses measured by it do not apply to retirees; that last year's statistics on personal savings consistently misstated the savings rates through most of the year.

Analysis

Pay scales are adjusted on the basis of cost-of-living numbers subject to revision. The sense of job security may depend on oft-revised unemployment rates. A false sense of security and pride might evolve from a Gross National Product puffed with inflation.

Presidential elections are affected by them. And though the numbers might be revised after the elections, the political results are not. Ask Jimmy Carter and Gerald Ford, both of whom may have lost votes because the economic numbers at election time looked worse than those in the post-election revisions.

It isn't, so far as is known, that anyone manipulates the numbers. In fact, even critics acknowledge that U.S. statistical workers are the top of the craft.

Instead, it could be the fault of the users. Numbers are considered efficient little capsules of condensed information that save time, space and thinking. In one tiny pill they offer the whole story.

The trouble is that the weekly, monthly and quarterly statistics have none of the permanence of numbers chiseled on granite in the graveyard. They are resurrected and changed rather regularly — after the impact.

That this should be simply the nature of economic statistics. As more data become available, researchers are able to refine results, even though the results might have mainly historical value by the time final revisions are made. Ironically, the criticism also applies to some "leading indicators" used mainly as forecasting tools.

There always will be revisions and corrections. There always will be errors in current data; it always has been so. There always will be misunderstandings about how data should be applied; it's human nature to disagree.

With such deficiencies inherent, it is wonder the numbers have come to be used so popularly and with such tremendous impact on short-term decisions affecting so many people.

A classic situation is the indexing of Social Security benefits to the consumer price index. First, the CPI is known to distort current living expenses by assuming all families are buying houses at current prices and paying current interest rates. Then the CPI is applied to retiree benefits, even though retirees are relatively free of many CPI expenses.

The popularity of the CPI submerges other inflation indexes economists insist are far more accurate. Those other measures, such as the Gross National Product deflator, are now about 2 points lower than the CPI. The CPI is the more popular and more inflationary index.

If we have to march to the beat of the numbers, why not at least get them to beat in unison?

As it is, you can pick almost whatever beat suits you best, and that's confusing in a nation of 226 million. The confusion compounds when revisions result in two steps forward and one back, or vice versa.

Why must we march to the beat of the numbers?

They're too entrenched now. Too much tradition behind them. Too many pay raises depend on them. Too many departments of government rely on them. Too many computers spray them out.

Face it: The numbers rule. Think about it.

Communication Skills Taught By Company In Los Angeles

NEW YORK (UPI) — Understanding language isn't enough to communicate successfully in modern business, says the head of a Los Angeles firm devoted to teaching people how to interpret non-verbal signals.

Michael McMaster and Dr. John Grinder, linguist and psychologist, partners in Precision Model, stage seminars and conferences for the executives and employees of blue chip firms, teaching them to depend not so much upon what people say as on the non-verbal signals they give during negotiations, conferences and ordinary conversation.

For example, if the person you are talking with and seeking something from leans back in his or her chair, gazes at the ceiling from time to time and otherwise seems utterly relaxed, you should match that attitude without obvious mimicry, McMaster said.

If you persist in sitting forward in your chair, staring intently and trying to create a brisk atmosphere, you're licked, he said.

McMaster and Grinder say the essence of successful oral communication in today's world lies in being aware of the other person's mood, his or her body posture and head position, rate of breathing, repetitive gestures and tone of voice, and adapting to it.

"That's the way to get your message across in a job interview, or in talking to your superiors, your subordinates or in trying to make a sale," McMaster said.

It is not enough simply to listen to what the other person is saying. You must respond.

To improve your abilities as a communicator, he said, you must ask yourself:

—Do I know what I'm after, what I want the specific outcome of this talk or meeting to be?

—How much flexibility do I have? How willing am I to change the way I think, talk or move my body in response to the other person? How willing am I to adjust in order to get what I want?

—How aware am I of the effect of what I just said or did — the feedback? Have I responded to the other person in the most appropriate way?

While this awareness is instinctive with many people, McMaster said non-verbal communicative signals do not appear to have been observed and studied in a systematic way until therapists, trying to communicate with different patients, realized they could not rely on words alone but, instead, had to interpret the non-verbal signals and match or complement them.

Grinder was lecturing to therapists on how to accomplish this when he and McMaster met. McMaster, a Canadian and an accountant, saw the possibility of turning what had been learned to advantage in business communications. He and Grinder founded Precision Model to do that.

In two years they have sold their services to companies such as Arthur D. Little, International Nickel, Harris Corp., IBM Canada, American Express and the Canadian National Railways and to the U.S. Public Health Service.

"We already have some imitators," McMaster told UPI. "I am sure we have started a movement that will grow in the business world since we are proving the non-verbal signals are the most important element in communication. That's because what is said won't register unless the non-verbal signals get across first."

It's axiomatic, McMaster said, that the successful managers in modern business are those who can deal with a deluge of information, both written and oral. It's a matter of selection.

To select properly in oral communications, he said, "one must establish rapport with the other person and make him or her comfortable in your presence. To do that you must accurately read their nonverbal signals."

Art Experts Restoring Works By Michelangelo

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Vatican art experts are working on a decade-long project to restore Michelangelo's "Creation" and "Last Judgment" frescos in the Sistine Chapel.

The restoration, which will take 10 to 12 years, is the first ever for the famed Renaissance frescos since they were painted more than 400 years ago, the Vatican said.

The Vatican's art restoration laboratory, headed by master restorer Gian Luigi Colalucci, announced the project this week and said preparatory cleaning work had begun.

The laboratory said one small fresco by Michelangelo, a "lunette" depicting the Old Testament figures Eleazar and Nathan had undergone a successful cleaning operation.

The statement said work would begin on the main frescos next month. The "Creation" and "Last Judgment" are considered the finest frescos produced during the Renaissance.

The Vatican restoration laboratory said a solvent known as AB57, specially developed for the task, was being used in the cleaning work prior to the actual restoration.

Michelangelo painted the towering "Creation" on the Sistine Chapel ceiling between 1508 and 1512 under the prodding of then Pope Julius II. He painted the "Last Judgment" fresco behind the chapel's main altar between 1534 and 1541.

Michelangelo's monumental work in the chapel was the basis of the novel "The Agony and the Ecstasy."

Kennedy Getting Divorce Over Before Campaign

By IRA R. ALLEN
WASHINGTON (UPI)—The day after Ronald Reagan became the first divorced man to hold the presidency, Teddy Kennedy sought to become the second.

Since "the dream shall never-die" speech at last year's Democratic National Convention, Kennedy's desire and availability for the presidency some time in the future has been common knowledge — almost as certain as the public assumption that his marriage to Virginia Joan Bennett Kennedy was a partnership in name only.

In announcing jointly with his wife last week that "we intend to resolve as friends all matters relation to the dissolution of our marriage," Kennedy made what usually is a very private concern very public — despite his request that the press not question them further for the sake of the children.

Even at a time when marriage and a variety of other arrangements between consenting adults are presumed to be nobody else's business — Kennedy has been held to an old fashioned standard of conduct.

It may be unfair, but a man's marital life has always been a part of politics — from Grover Cleveland's illegitimate child, to Adlai Stevenson's previous marriage, to Nelson Rockefeller's second fatherhood on the eve of the 1964 California primary and now, to the elevation of twice-married Ronald Reagan to the presidency.

assumption that his marriage to Virginia Joan Bennett Kennedy was a partnership in name only.

Since July 1969, the fortunes of Kennedy marital life have been even more public than those of the other famous Senate wife — Elizabeth Taylor Warner.

Before his challenge to President Carter, Kennedy took on the Chappaquiddick issue in television and newspaper interviews. But the snickering in private, and sometimes in the press, about the senator's sex life never stopped — and although there may have been other issues that wounded Kennedy, it was the "character" issue that doomed him.

Edward and Joan Kennedy may have decided, for their own reasons, that the divorce had to come now. But the suspicion is inescapable that the senator was getting an unpleasant subject as far behind him as possible before opening his 1982 campaign for re-election to the Senate — and an expected presidential bid after that.

He has enough problems already. One of the most recognizable and charismatic people in politics, he still could not beat a politically crippled Jimmy Carter. He is one of the last public officials to boast of being a liberal.

Now, the Boston Irish pol who has always associated himself closely with the Catholic Church is getting a divorce, which, while no sin in the eyes of the church, rules out a Catholic remarriage.

THE CAPITOL

Unpleasant Job Ahead For Bush

By TOM RAUM
WASHINGTON (AP) — When Vice President George Bush first tried out the Senate president's chair the other day, he got hearty applause from senators of both parties. Someday they may be hurling bricks.

If recent tradition holds, the new vice president may find presiding over the Senate to be one of the less pleasurable — and least performed — parts of his job.

Most of Bush's predecessors spent little time in the Senate. And on those few occasions when they made the trek to Capitol Hill, they sometimes quickly overstayed their welcome.

In 1975, the late Vice President Nelson Rockefeller found out in short order how inhospitable the Senate could be. Senior members rose up in outrage when the liberal New York Republican snubbed a conservative Democrat, the late Sen. James Allen of Alabama.

Allen had leaped to his feet seeking recognition in an attempt to block a vote on a motion to make it harder to mount filibusters. Rockefeller — who supported the anti-filibuster effort — simply refused to recognize Allen, a master of the art of delaying tactics.

The reaction against Rockefeller was so overwhelming that the vice president had to publicly apologize — both to Allen and to the Senate. From that day on, the New York Republican spent little time wielding the Senate gavel.

Bitter Medicine

Bush's immediate predecessor, Walter Mondale, once had a taste of the same sort of bitter Senate medicine.

It was in 1977, when Mondale helped then-Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W. Va., crush a filibuster against natural gas deregulation that had been lying up progress on a Carter administration energy package.

At Byrd's behest, Mondale ignored senators screaming for recognition and brought the two-week-long filibuster to a screeching halt. The tactics, like Rockefeller's snub, angered senators of both parties — including a quick-to-shout Democrat from Maine: Edmund S. Muskie.

Cold Shoulder

Veteran Senate observers say the last vice president to spend much time in the Senate was Alben Barkley, Harry S. Truman's 1948 running mate.

A former Kentucky senator and majority leader, Barkley clearly enjoyed his job. But all that enthusiasm wasn't returned. Old timers recall extreme irritation on the part of senators over Barkley's continual efforts to force members to come to the floor for quorum calls.

Lyndon Johnson also had been a forceful Senate majority leader but he tended to stay away from the Senate once he became vice president. And senators let him know right away they weren't thrilled with his proposal to sit in on Democratic caucus meetings.
