

Arctic Air Smashes Records

A-J News Service

The mercury ricocheted across the East today as record cold settled in the path of the winter's wettest and worst storm that contributed to the deaths of at least 45 people.

About two dozen cities reported new low temperatures for the date, many far below zero, as floods forced the evacuation of about 1,000 families in upstate New York and winds gusting to hurricane force whipped parts of New England.

Texas began thawing out under a bright sun, however, and Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown said that Rio Grande Valley growers escaped a predicted hard freeze Wednesday night. But the mercury did not get below 34 degrees in most of the citrus-growing area.

Forecasters predict a slow warming trend in the Southwest, with Lubbock to enjoy a maximum reading in the low 50s today and in the upper 50s Friday afternoon. Nights will remain cold, with readings in the 20s.

Scattered showers and thunderstorms may move into West Texas about Sunday, according to the National Weather Service.

The 1,300 residents of Okawville, Ill., spent Wednesday night with no heat in temperatures hovering at 10 degrees when a utility was forced to shut off the gas because of an equipment problem related to the cold.

It was the coldest day of the year in numerous cities from Chicago, Ill., where the reading was minus 11, to Nashville, Tenn., where it was 2 above.

About 1,000 families in Port Jervis, N.Y., were evacuated this morning when the ice-jammed Delaware River overflowed. Several other streams in New York and Pennsylvania also were out of their banks.

In Montpelier, Vt., where Wednesday's highs were at a record 58, the mercury fell into the teens this morning. At Providence, R.I., temperatures dropped from 62 degrees at midnight to 24 by daybreak.

Cities reporting record subzero temperatures included Marquette, Mich., minus 32; Cincinnati, Ohio, minus 10; Rockford, Ill., minus 15, and Pittsburgh, Pa., minus 6.

Tornadoes churned through the South with winds strong enough to lift a 59-year-old North Carolina man from his mobile home, toss him 35 feet through the air head-over-heels and hang him in a Chinaberry tree by his feet. He was not seriously hurt.

MAN GETS BEST SPOT — John Lacy, left, and Nancy Blacketer get different views of the snowstorm that moved through Louisville Wednesday. Lacy escaped the arctic winds and blowing snow by taking refuge in a bus shelter, while Miss Blacketer had to brave the elements. ## Union Backs Premier On Strike Ban

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Poland's new premier called for a three-month moratorium on strikes today and warned that continuing labor strife could lead to economic ruin and even "a fratricidal war."

The independent union Solidarity signaled its willingness to work with the new premier by refusing to approve a proposed nationwide printers' strike on Friday.

A spokesman for Solidarity leader Lech Walesa said the union chief opposed any new strikes. Most Solidarity leaders, meeting in Gdansk, had not heard Premier Wojciech Jaruzelski's remarks when they refused to approve the printers' strike, a union official said.

Jaruzelski, a general who will continue as Poland's defense minister, issued his call for a halt to strikes in his first nationwide address since his appointment was approved by Parliament on Wednesday. He also announced a series of Communist Party purges and warned that the government "has the constitutional rights" and the power to defend the socialist system.

Jaruzelski said: "I am calling on all trade unions with an appeal: Let us stop all strikes. I am asking you for three months of honest work, 90 days of calm, to put some order in our economy."

"Forces of evil have been attempting to penetrate Solidarity and lead it toward false positions, anarchy and derailment of socialism. People in the new unions should not let themselves be pressured. Further destructive activities may lead to conflict and to a fratricidal war," Jaruzelski said.

The premier, who delivered the televised address in full military uniform, also announced the resignations of two vice premiers, Aleksander Kopeck and Stanislaw Kowalczyk, and their replacement with Andrzej Jedynak and Mieczyslaw Rakowski, plus changes at the top of four other government ministries. It was the sixth major purge since the summer strike wave.

Kowalczyk was an associate of Edward Gierek, the party chief ousted last September and replaced by Stanislaw Kania. Jedynak helped the government negotiate during the summer strikes. Rakowski for the past 20 years has been editor of Polityka, the party's political weekly, and is thought to be a liberal who has often taken issue with past hard-line policies.

In a statement to the armed forces a few hours after Parliament confirmed his appointment as premier, Jaruzelski said, "I am convinced that in the brotherhood of arms with the Warsaw Pact armies, our armed forces... will always fulfill the tasks which guarantee the independent socialist existence of Poland," he said.

The 57-year-old, four-star general replaced Jozef Pinkowski, who took over the government at the height of last summer's nationwide strike wave but was unable to end the labor unrest that produced the Soviet bloc's first legal unions independent of Communist Party control.

Kania, submitting Jaruzelski's nomination to Parliament, also stressed Poland's loyalty to the Soviet Union and thanked the Russians "for the understanding of our situation."

But in an apparent attempt to counter speculation that the appointment of a military man foreshadowed military action against the labor movement, he said

Reagan Aide Chills Budget Predictions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Murray Weidenbaum, chairman of President Reagan's Council of Economic Advisers, said today he hopes the federal budget can be balanced by 1984.

Weidenbaum gave reporters the estimated date — a year later than earlier administration hopes — after sources said the administration had scaled back its initial projections of how quickly Reagan's tax and spending cut package will revive the economy.

In his address to the nation last week, Reagan avoided giving a target date for balancing federal income and outlays, a recurring theme of his campaign.

Weidenbaum termed the 1984 date "my personal hope" and said Reagan will include year-by-year budget projections when he unveils specific details of his proposed economic program Wednesday.

While Weidenbaum did not say so specifically, he presumably was talking about budget balance in fiscal year 1984, which begins Oct. 1, 1983.

Reagan appeared in the White House briefing room to introduce Weidenbaum to reporters. In that introduction, the president again called for a "profound and drastic change" in U.S. economic policy.

"Business-as-usual" policies will no longer work, he said.

The Washington Star reported today Reagan has approved reductions in the food stamp and aid to dependent children programs, as well as cuts for the Farmers Home Administration loans and subsidized loans from the Rural Electrification Administration.

The newspaper said Reagan also approved a cutback in Social Security student benefits and elimination of the minimum retirement benefit, which guarantees a monthly check of $122 to all retirees, even if their contributions to the program do not qualify them for that amount. It said Supplemental Security Income payments would be boosted, however, to compensate for loss of the minimum benefit for "truly needy" retirees.

Cabinet members thus far have voiced no opposition — apparently having accepted cutbacks as part of their jobs.

White House press secretary Jim Brady said a "spirit of consensus" has prevailed during meetings between Reagan and Cabinet officials, who have echoed his concern for bolstering the economy with fiscal restraint.

Viet Fishermen Face Penalties

AUSTIN (UPI) — Sen. J. E. Brown, R-Lake Jackson, proposed today to ease the tensions between Vietnamese and American shrimpers on the Gulf Coast by enforcing a federal law that would require the Vietnamese to use smaller boats than American citizens may use.

Brown said he is asking the state to assign more game wardens and the Legislature to pass laws that would make it easier to prosecute Vietnamese fishermen who use the larger boats.

He is also asking that the penalty for using the larger boats be increased from $30 to $3,000.

In other action, the Senate passed a bill today that saves the governor's Criminal Justice Division but forces him to share the power to decide who gets the division's grants to local law enforcement agencies.

The bill passed after several days of negotiations between Gov. Bill Clements and the senators who wanted to dilute his control of the program.

The House passed and sent to the Senate a bill changing the minimum number of petition signatures needed for cities to call an election to ratify or overturn the award of a cable television franchise.

Only 500 signatures from voters now are required for cities to call an election. The new bill would require 10 percent of the registered voters.

In the controversy involving the Vietnamese fishermen on the Gulf Coast, the law that Brown wants enforced is a requirement that any boat that displaces more than five tons of water be documented by the Coast Guard. The law also says that only U. S. citizens may receive the necessary documentation.

Brown conceded that most boats used for shrimping, the major kind of fishing in the areas where the Vietnamese have settled, are too large to operate without documentation. He said most boats longer than 26 feet, depending on the shape of the boat, displace more than five tons of water.

Asked what will happen to Vietnamese who are using large boats, See LEGISLATORS Page 14

Jury Decides Man Guilty Of Slaying

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Charles Everett Reynolds murdered a young woman by locking her in a stifling hot car trunk until she smothered, according to a jury verdict handed down this morning.

The guilty verdict came after an hour and ten minutes of deliberation on more than two days of testimony. Reynolds, 38, was charged with the bizarre slaying after 18-year-old Eula Jean Lewis' body was discovered in the back seat of the defendants' Cadillac during a routine Labor Day driver's license check.

Criminal District Attorney John T. Montford called Reynolds a "slick, big city criminal" who simply made the mistake of getting caught. "This is where the answer comes — this is where the bell is tolled."

Defense attorney Jack Martin attacked the state's case against his client, saying that Montford had failed to prove several points in the case, most importantly Reynolds' whereabouts at the time the crime is believed to have occurred. He failed to prove, Martin charged, that the temperature in Lubbock the day Miss Lewis died was in excess of 95 degrees, as alleged in the indictment against Reynolds.

"I apologize that we couldn't take the temperature Sept. 1 when he was killing

T. Cullen Davis Rebuffs Critics, Skeptics

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A congenial T. Cullen Davis, here today to talk about his born-again Christianity, says he harbors no bitterness toward anyone over his three murder and conspiracy trials of the late 1970s.

The dapper, dark-haired multimillionaire, who talked cordially with passers-by in the halls at Lubbock Memorial Civic Center before agreeing to an interview, said his troubles of the past several years seem to be behind him.

Speaking slowly and in clipped phrases, Davis said, "Of course, I resented it back in those days. But I was never, what you might say, bitter, and am certainly not bitter today toward anybody."

Davis has marked most of his recent talks on religion with discussions of humanism and what he sees as the evils of that philosophy. He said that humanism "is in reality a worldwide religion" and is largely responsible for a moral decline in the United States.

Asked how he feels about persons who are skeptical of his religious beliefs, Davis said, "I fully expected some people to be skeptical of my religious conversion, but they should realize I made my

Busboy Held In Deadly Las Vegas Hotel Blaze

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A 23-year-old busboy appeared before a justice of the peace via closed-circuit television today and was ordered held without bail pending arraignment on murder and arson charges in Tuesday night's fire at the Las Vegas Hilton.

Philip Bruce Cline, dressed in jeans and a black T-shirt, remained in the main jail while Justice of the Peace Earle White Jr. conducted a probable cause hearing at the nearby courthouse.

Cline was booked on eight counts of murder and one count of first-degree arson. White told reporters Cline had been charged with the offenses, but the district attorney's office later said formal charges would be filed at the arraignment.

The blaze — the second large and deadly hotel fire in Las Vegas in three months — killed eight people and injured 198. Hospitals had said that 242 people were hurt, but officials later said that figure was incorrect.

Cline, who had told police he turned in the alarm on the blaze, was solemn and silent during the proceedings which lasted less than one minute and took place on two-way closed-circuit television.

"I've read the affidavit around the circumstances of the arrest and I have found probable cause to hold you," White told the prisoner. "As far as the charges are concerned, I set no bail."

Cline said nothing during the proceedings except to give his name. He was not represented by an attorney and there was no prosecutor assigned to the hearing. White told reporters he had made his decision based on an affidavit filed by homicide detectives.

Authorities said Cline would be arraigned with a public defender or his own lawyer at his side within a week. Closed-circuit television hearings are a common practice in Clark County.

Homicide detectives said Wednesday night they had arrested Cline after the room service busboy made "inconsistent statements" about his role in the biggest of the four fires deliberately set in the hotel Tuesday night.

Cline told The San Diego Evening Tribune before his arrest that he tried to put out the fire on the eighth floor with water carried in a trash can. When that failed, Cline said he ran down the hall,

Citizens Expect President To Address Problems

By ARNOLD SAWISLAK
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Back when Ronald Reagan was a budding movie star, there was a radio program called Kaltenmeyer's Kindergarten on which the impresario would quiet the audience with the stern line: "After der moosic comes der shooshing."

That is how Kaltenmeyer told the kids it was time to settle down and get serious and that's what time it is for the new president and his team.

Without delay, he needs to tell the country exactly what he is going to do about (1) inflation, (2) taxes, (3) jobs and (4) government spending.

Wall Street apparently expected Reagan to get right down to business in the speech last Tuesday, and when he didn't, went into a frenzy. But the denizens of that concrete canyon often behave like turkeys in a thunderstorm, so the drop in the market probably can be written off as a passing fit of hysteria.

Well, if that's the way he sees it, and it is probable that the 7.8 million men and women who were out of work last month and auto workers in Detroit who are on the verge of unemployment agree, what is he going to do about it? Inasmuch as they have had more than two months since the election to prepare for assuming power, Reagan and his people should have an economic plan ready to go. This really is not one of those situations, as in foreign policy or military strategy, where outsiders have to acquaint themselves with secret information. The facts on the economy are and have been there for all to see and ponder. Absolutely vital to this process is the need for Reagan to explain to the American people exactly what he plans to do to bring down prices, reduce unemployment, lower taxes and balance the budget. He certainly does not have to claim he is going to do all that instantly or even simultaneously, but he does owe the country a simple and clear explanation of the overall strategy. Jimmy Carter never did come right out and explain his plan for dealing with inflation and other economic woes. It did become clear that his administration's plan was to let interest rates (the price of money) go so high that people would have to stop buying houses and cars, thus slowing the economy and inflation. Because this plan entailed increasing unemployment and hurting business, the Carter administration never told the people what it was doing. The people had to figure it out for themselves and when they did, Carter got a ticket back to Plains.

Japanese Firms Conserve Energy

By NAOHISA MURAKAMI
NEW YORK (UPI) — The Japanese steel industry is going all out to reduce consumption not only of oil but other energy sources against the background of uncertain world energy situation.

And it wants to help U.S. steelmakers take similar measures.

The Japanese industry is far ahead of its U.S. counterpart in energy conservation techniques, according to the Japan Iron and Steel Exporters' Association.

In 1977, the latest figures available, the Japanese steel industry consumed 7.66 million kilocalories of energy to produce one ton of steel products, compared with 9.25 million kilocalories for the U.S. industry, the Tokyo-based trade organization said.

The Japanese steel industry, which began injecting oil into blast furnaces for pig iron production in the early 1960s, is moving rapidly to an "oil-less" operation, according to JISEA.

The trade group said 29 of the 40 blast furnaces in operation in Japan have been converted to a non-oil method, and this accounts for 73 percent of the hot metal produced by Japan's integrated steelmakers.

The oil consumption in blast furnace operation dropped to 776,000 kiloliters in the first half of fiscal 1980 (the Japanese fiscal year starts in April) from 1.6 million kiloliters in the first half of fiscal 1979.

Seichi Muto, general manager of NKK America Inc., the U.S. unit of Nippon Kokan K.K., Japan's second largest steelmaker with yearly sales of $5.7 billion, said his company plans to make do without oil in the future.

JISEA said, of 72,127,000 kiloliter-equivalent of oil consumed by the Japanese industry in fiscal 1973, coal accounted for 61.1 percent, oil 21.3 percent and purchased electric power 17.6 percent.

In 1979, consumption dropped to 61,994,000 kiloliters, of which 64.3 percent went to coal, 15.4 percent to oil and 20.4 percent to purchased electric power, JISEA said.

Muto explained some energy conservation processes.

— Coke ratio, the amount of coke needed to produce one ton of pig iron, is substantially lower in Japan thanks to the installation of modern furnaces.

Continuous casting, one of the most efficient steelmaking technologies, is used in 52 percent of steel mills in Japan compared with 16.7 percent for U.S. mills in 1979, he said.

JISEA calculates that for each one percent increase in the continuous casting ratio, there is an absolute savings of 2,500 kilocalories (9,920 BTU) per ton of steel produced.

Muto said with the basic oxygen furnace, which has replaced open hearth, Japanese industry has increased the amount of energy it recycles to an amount estimated by JISEA for 1979 equaling 8.6 million barrels of heavy oil. The energy recovered from oxygen steelmaking efforts often accounts for nearly 60 percent of all the energy requirements mandated by the country's steelmakers.

Muto said NKK also is studying ways to recover waste heat from slug in blast furnaces and converters.

NKK, like other Japanese steelmakers, is aiming at technological cooperation in the belief that a healthy U.S. steel industry, which forms a backbone of the U.S. economy, is needed for the world's economic state, Muto said.

He said it is time to repay a "moral obligation" to the United States for American steelmaking technologies Japan adopted in the 1950s. Although, he added, the Japanese paid relatively high prices for it.

NKK has provided know-how for a continuous annealing line to Bethlehem Steel Corp. and Inland Steel Corp., and for continuous cold mill to National Steel Corp.

Arab Group Attacks Koch

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — New York City Mayor Edward I. Koch has come under fire from Arab members of the United Nations for his criticisms of the international body.

The 20-nation Arab group, in a letter made public Wednesday, complained that on Koch's recent visit to the Middle East, the mayor made "irresponsible" charges. The group quoted Koch as saying that the U.N. yields to blackmail "to the point, if necessary, of selling their own grandmothers" and insinuating the world body is anti-Semitic.

Paramount Helps Coppola

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Offers to help Francis Ford Coppola's financially imperiled Zoetrope Studios have come from all over the world, but the biggest boost is Paramount Pictures' $1 million aid package.

Paramount Chairman Barry Diller and President Michael Eisner purchased a $500,000 interest in an upcoming Zoetrope film, "Interface," and extended a $500,000 personal loan to Coppola, officials said Tuesday.

Zoetrope's money problems had forced the company to delay paying staff and union workers on its $23-million film "One From the Heart."

"The money lets us shoot a couple more weeks. It rids us of the heavy burden of the payroll for a couple of weeks," said Anne Schwebel, a company spokeswoman.

DENVER (AP) — Michael Hudson knows how man's best friend lives, authorities say. He was in a doghouse when police tracked him down. Police following footprints in the snow from a doughnut shop that had been robbed found a man in a doghouse Wednesday. They arrested Hudson for investigation of aggravated robbery, authorities said.

The Lighter Side Of The News

A clerk in the doughnut shop reported that a man ordered doughnuts from the drive-in window, pulled a "big gun," demanded money and fled with the cash and the doughnuts, police said.

Moments later, a passing patrol car stopped at the shop and began hunting for the robber. The officers did a little tracking and nabbed Hudson in the doghouse, police said.

Just how the man pressed his 6-foot-1, 180-pound frame through the narrow door of the doghouse was a mystery.

Records Found In Man's Home Show Actress Not Illegitimate

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Eighteen years after Marilyn Monroe's death, the widely held belief that the blonde sex symbol was born illegitimate has been disproved by authorities who found copies of her birth certificate at the home of a dead man they believe was her father.

Martin Edward Mortensen, 85, collapsed at the wheel of his automobile Tuesday in downtown Riverside and died of an apparent heart attack, Riverside County coroner's investigator Lisle Ford said in a telephone interview.

Miss Monroe's mother has been in mental institutions since 1953, and early studio biographies reported that her father was dead. Some biographers reported she was born illegitimate.

But Mortensen, who worked as a gas company serviceman for 50 years before retiring in 1965, had told co-workers and his physician he was the late film star's father, giving details of his marriage to her mother that contradict the biographical accounts.

At the modest apartment where Mortensen lived alone in Mira Loma, about 60 miles east of Los Angeles, Ford said he found copies of Miss Monroe's birth certificate as well as marriage and divorce papers for Mortensen and Gladys Baker, Miss Monroe's mother.

The birth certificate states Marilyn Monroe was born Norma Jean Mortensen on June 1, 1926, in Los Angeles. Her father is listed as Edward Mortensen, address unknown, age 29.

The marriage certificate is dated Oct.

11, 1924; the final Los Angeles Superior Court divorce decree is dated Aug. 15, 1928.

Also found at the apartment were several books about Miss Monroe as well as Mortensen's own birth certificate.

Retroactive Hiring Freeze Protested

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of individuals were done a "great injustice" when President Reagan made his hiring freeze retroactive to Nov. 5, say 29 House members who are asking for a repeal of the retroactive portion of the president's order.

In a letter to Reagan, the congressmen wrote, "Thousands of individuals relied — we now know mistakenly — on the word of the federal government and accepted positions of employment in good faith."

The letter, released by Rep. Vic Fazio, D-Calif., cited reports of individuals accepting government jobs, leaving their previous positions, turning down other job offers and relocating their families, only to be told that their federal jobs were no longer there.

Students Using More Cocaine

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A nationwide survey shows that cigarette smoking among high school seniors appears to be declining and marijuana smoking may have peaked, but cocaine use has doubled since 1975.

The study by the University of Michigan's Institute of Social Research found that alcohol use rose only modestly during the late 1970s among seniors at a nationally representative sample of 115 public and 15 private high schools.

While the kinds and amounts of such substances used shift from year to year, the five-year survey showed that the kinds of young people most likely to use them remain the same.

"Above average drug use occurs among those less successful in adapting to the educational environment, as indicated by truancy and low grades, those who spend many evenings out for recreation and those with heavy time commitments to a job and-or (have) relatively high incomes," said the report published in the latest issue of the American Journal of Public Health.

"Drug use is below average among seniors with strong religious commitments and conservative political views."

More girls smoked cigarettes than boys, but males averaged more alcohol and marijuana use than females. There was little difference among sexes in other drug use.

Blacks reported lower drug use than whites, but the report said this might be because blacks had a higher school dropout rate than whites and black seniors may have had less trust in researchers asking them to report drug use.

The most dramatic shift in drug popularity, the survey found, involved cocaine with its use among high school seniors increasing from 5.6 percent in the class of 1975 to 12 percent in the class of 1979. However, the study found that most of those who reported using cocaine did so only a few times a year.

Cigarette use among high school seniors appears to have reached a peak in the classes of 1976 and 1977 and is now trending downward, the report said. Girls surpassed boys in 1978 among those who smoked at least a half pack daily.

In 1979, about 17 percent of the senior females reported smoking that much daily compared to about 15 percent of males while those reporting any use ranged from about 32 percent for males to about 37 percent for females.

Daily marijuana use averaged about 7 percent for females in 1979 and about 13 percent for males. Those reporting any use of marijuana ranged from about 32 percent for females to 42 percent for males.

Daily use of alcohol ranged from about 4 percent for females to about 9 percent for males. Those reporting any alcohol use jumped from about 68 percent for females to 77 percent for males.

Winds Strong Atop Gateway Arch

ST. LOUIS (AP) — When the beacon atop the nation's tallest monument burns out, Harry Breitenstein inches out across the stainless steel skin of the Gateway Arch to install a new bulb.

From that height, people look like dots and St. Louis resembles a city of Christmas toys. The winds are strong enough to pluck a handkerchief from Breitenstein's pocket and blow it into the middle of the Mississippi River, half a mile away.

"I get a kick out of it," he says. "I lie down, slightly over the edge, and take pictures."

In his 13 years as maintenance supervisor for the arch, the 41-year-old Breitenstein has installed about two dozen bulbs in the beacon on top of the 630-foot structure commemorating the nation's westward expansion. The arch is 75 feet taller than the Washington Monument.

The beacon is required by the Federal Aviation Administration to warn aircraft. Breitenstein says the 660-watt bulbs inside a 45-inch-tall housing are supposed to last about a year, but he finds himself changing the grapefruit-sized bulbs about twice that often.

"I think it's because they get hit by lightning," he says.

When the light goes out, Breitenstein picks a relatively windless day, chooses a mechanic to accompany him, and crawls out a trapdoor to the beacon at the arch's exact center.

There is no handrail atop the arch, which is 17 feet wide at that point, and Breitenstein says he does not wear special shoes because "magnets won't stick to that stainless steel."

But a double cable lashes him to the structure while he's working.

Breitenstein notices the wind most of all. "Even when it's calm on the ground, it'll still be windy up at that elevation," he says.

The monument, built leg by leg with triangular sections stacked on top of each other, is designed to sway only 18 inches in gusts of 150 miles an hour.

Late last year, a parachutist landed on the arch and slid, or was blown, down the north leg to his death. But Breitenstein has never been injured changing the bulbs atop the structure.

None of the 10 million visitors to the observation booth beneath the beacon has been injured, either. Inside, they cannot hear the wind, but they feel it in the sway.

But although he is not afraid of the wind or the height at the top of the monument, Breitenstein says he would like to have a wooden hood to place on the lightning rod which is attached to the beacon.

"Working up here with the lightning rod scares me," he says.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) For some reason tomorrow you won't be in a mood for meeting strangers, but your curiosity about people will quickly overcome this. You'll end up having a great time.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Tomorrow, false pride might initially try to run your decision-making, but you'll have a good talk with yourself and do what must be done, even if credit might go to another.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your doubts over whether a person close to you really appreciates you will be short-lived. His or her actions will eliminate all fears.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Success with large goals can be achieved tomorrow because you won't wait for someone who was supposed to have carried the ball to take action. You'll do it yourself.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Because you're not easily dissuaded tomorrow, you'll quickly bypass any associate who tends to waver or vacillate. You won't let anyone hold you back.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) At first your chores may appear overwhelming tomorrow, but once you get going you'll find ways to overcome even large obstacles and accomplish your tasks.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If it weren't for your gregarious mood tomorrow an incident which occurs could easily dampen your spirits. Your sunny disposition also helps others keep smiling.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Intangibles tend to confuse you tomorrow because you can't quite seem to grasp them. However, anything you can touch or feel you'll have no trouble parlaying into dollars.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Although you may be tempted to dwell in the world of dreams tomorrow, you'll get hold of yourself and let realities lead you to success.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You first thoughts tomorrow may be to let someone else do the giving for a change, but the real you can't stand to see someone in need. You'll happily extend yourself.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Someone of whom you may not be exactly fond might be the instrument for leading you toward something quite beneficial tomorrow, because you didn't let prejudicial emotions interfere.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your success tomorrow depends largely on the ante. As the stakes get higher, your dreams and drive magically dissolve any fears or doubts you may have had.

Stock Splits Gain Popularity

By PHILIP GREER
And MYRON KANDEL

When giant Exxon Corp. announced last week that it was splitting its stock two shares for one, it was following a trend that has picked up steam in recent years. In 1980, for example, a record total of 159 companies listed on the New York Stock Exchange split their stock, adding more than 2.2 billion shares to the Big Board's list. That was 45 more splits than in 1979, the previous record year.

Stock splits generally run in cycles, coming toward the end of bull market. (Bear markets, needless to say, usually make splits unnecessary.) There is a continuing movement, though, away from higher-priced stocks. Check the NYSE stock tables these days and you'll find no more than a dozen and a half stocks selling for more than $100, and most of them are inactive preferred issues. Even stocks selling for more than $70 are relatively scarce.

To find out how individual investors, institutions and corporations feel about stock splits, the Big Board commissioned an in-depth series of surveys to determine the attitudes of all three groups. The studies found that individuals were very favorably disposed toward splits, that institutions attached little importance to them, and that companies that had split their stocks were extremely positive on the results.

"Our corporate services people are constantly getting questions about stock splits from companies which have had to rely on only the sketchiest information concerning the importance and value of the split to investors," explains Stan West, NYSE vice president for business research. "So we decided once and for all to do a comprehensive, definitive study of the entire subject."

The survey of individual investors found that more than 80 percent of them believe that after a stock is split, it is more actively traded and provides them with a better chance to invest in it. And three out of four feel that stocks that split represent an investment opportunity for them.

Do they translate those positive feelings into stock market action? A full third said they had considered buying a stock because it split and nearly half of these (or 15 percent of the total) said they had actually bought such stocks.

Institutional investors, however, generally adopt a bias attitude toward stock splits, apparently sharing the view of one portfolio manager who observed, "One dime equals two nickels." But the institutions did feel that splits improved the market liquidity of the stocks involved.

Two out of three of the institutional traders surveyed — the people who have to deal with the order-execution process day after day — said it was easier to accumulate a position in a stock that had split, while more than half said it was easier to liquidate a position in such a stock.

On the other hand, institutional portfolio managers — in contrast to individual investors — don't feel that stocks that split offer them any special investment opportunity. Only 11 percent held that view.

The two types of investors also differ on their expectations of what happens to the price of a stock after a split. More than half the individuals believe that a split is followed by a rise in the price per share, while only 20 percent of the portfolio managers hold that view.

Perhaps the most interesting results came from the survey of the attitudes of companies that have split their shares. Nearly four out of five (79 percent) said the split successfully achieved their objectives and, even more significantly, nearly all (96 percent) said they would consider splitting their stock again in the future.

The companies said the most important reasons for splitting were to bring the price to a more popular level and to increase the number of shareholders. Other objectives frequently cited were increasing the size of the public float; improving the turnover of shares; broadening the geographic distribution of shareholders; and improving liquidity.

Since price level was the most important corporate consideration in going through a stock split, it's interesting to see how the two types of investors looked at price as an investment consideration. More than 70 percent of the institutions said they did not favor any one range. (Most of those with a preference focused on the $30-to-$39 level.)

Similarly, two out of three individual investors also said they had no particular preference for one price level over another. But of the third who did have a preference, well over half said they favored stocks in the $10-to-$29 range.

Rounding out the three attitudinal surveys will be a statistical study of how stocks actually performed after stock splits, West told us. That one is still being worked on, he added.

Some Executives Seeking Corporate Neckties

NEW YORK (AP) — As the more mundane squeeze into designer jeans and slip into their Guccis, some American executives are seeking a higher level of fashion status.

Neck high. Whether adorning the necks of envied officers or ridiculed junior executives, the corporate necktie — like its Ivy League counterparts — is considered a rare combination of publicity, team spirit and status by the companies that offer them.

Found primarily in larger firms and traditionally conservative businesses such as banking, some of the ties are coveted Christmas presents. Others are white elephants just waiting for the next garage sale.

"Some are pretty tacky, sure," said Stuart Bart, whose Manhattan-based Tie Crafters Inc. has specialized in cleaning and altering neckwear for the past two decades.

"They've been around since the '60s," he said. While they're not making any great comeback in the '80s, Bart said, corporate ties are going to great lengths — or narrow widths — to stay in fashion.

"A lot of them are too wide," Bart said, "so they bring them in here and I narrow them. It's cheaper than the company going out and getting all new ties."

Not that such a venture would be too costly.

Most firms contacted admitted that their corporate ties were worth only $5 to $10, but expense is unimportant, they insist.

"It's the incentive thing for executives," said spokesman Bill Clark of the prestigious brokerage, Merrill Lynch & Co.

Unlike many other firms that sell their ties to any employee, Merrill Lynch gives away its navy or red ties with the familiar bull logo. But not to just anyone.

"They go to anybody that deserves it as a gift," Clark said. "The idea is that if someone is superior, if they do a good job, their supervisor can award them a tie."

And just how highly does Merrill Lynch think of those rising stars?

"Well," Clark admitted, "the tie's only worth about seven dollars."

Custom tie manufacturers say their industry has steadily grown from the first such shop established about 30 years ago by a Harvard business graduate and his Yale partner.

"With the general trend now toward dressing up, they're becoming more noticeable," said Bud Shepperd, president of G.S. Harvale & Co. Ltd. in New York City. "But I don't think it's a part of everybody's daily wardrobe yet," he added. "Generally speaking, they're still used at meetings and conventions."

Still, some custom corporate ties are so handsome "they have to be tucked safely away so they're not stolen," said David Wessel, president of the Scarsdale, N.Y.-based WM Chelsea Ltd.

At New York's Citibank, spokesmen said women employees can buy corporate scarves matching the ties sold at the company store.

"No one wears them, though," chortled an employee who asked not to be identified. "You see them mostly on the junior MBA types who carry briefcases," the employee added.

Flipping through a tie scrapbook, Wessel fondly recalled popular models such as the Jolly Green Giant tie, American Express' tie bearing six international flags, the chef's hat on Burger Chef's, the horse-drawn delivery wagon of Penn Dairies.

"The whole idea is to make the tie a decoration, not a label," Wessel said. He recalls one time when it was a parting gesture.

"The person in charge of ordering his company's tie said the emblem should read, 'In memory of...' and gave me a name. It turned out to be his own name and he was gone by the time the ties got there."

Woman Solves Clients' Problems

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Just what a "management consultant" does may be a mystery, but Riva Poor claims to be making $100,000 a year doing it.

"I'm a hired brain; I help people think clearly," says the mother of two. "I help people get what they want by helping them figure out what they want."

Mrs. Poor has a one-woman business. She deals exclusively with prosperous professional men and women, and sometimes their kids.

Clients usually are individuals but sometimes corporations.

Armed with graduate degrees in planning and management, Mrs. Poor claims her clients get "clarity, direction, self-confidence, more money, power, achievement, leisure time and better family relations."

For $150 an hour, in person or by phone — "telephone charges additional" — that's perhaps the least a client could expect.

"There are psychiatrists, psychologists and social workers," she says, "and there's Riva Poor, the problem-solver."

"I don't know why people go to psychiatrists; my clients aren't sick. They come to me to get action."

"They say, 'I want a promotion but I'm blocked. How do I get it?' Or, 'My business is taking up too much time. How can I spend more time with my kids.' Or, 'My daughter is floundering around trying to get a job. Can you help?'"

Mrs. Poor, who is divorced and whose own children are in their 20s, starts by having clients deal with their family lives by writing answers to 40 or 50 personal questions. That, she says, "gets a lot out of the way so we can get down to business."

Most of which is confidential. But Mrs. Poor does insist on describing one case in which she determined that a client's career problems were based on sexual inhibitions.

Presto! She claims to have solved that easily by having the inhibited customer speak a string of words associated with sex.

Mrs. Poor buys magazine ads to promote two-day seminars "that will change your life," or "Dial-a-Decision" — a long-distance "telephone time package" for troubled professionals who don't want to fly to her house near Harvard Square for a consultation.

"These generally are short problems," Mrs. Poor says.

She's proud of the fact that clients can use major charge cards for her services, including phone talks. After all, she says, "a florist will deliver a bouquet and accept a charge."

And there's apparently no shortage of satisfied customers. Her home is papered with framed, handwritten testimonials from men and women who say they got their money's worth.

Once a leading advocate of a four-day, 40-hour work week, Mrs. Poor claims that she herself stops answering the phone after about 35 hours of weekly consultation.

Time is extremely important to Riva Poor.

When clients sit at her conference table, they are given a stopwatch to clock the minutes Mrs. Poor is on the phone, so they won't be cheated.

Her office is at home and Mrs. Poor rarely travels; her own time clock is ticking at the $150 per hour rate en route to any assignment.

For each non-corporate client, Mrs. Poor insists on written "work orders" — a statement of what the man or woman expects from consultation.

"Sometimes, they have to take quite a few cracks at writing it," she says.

Then, Mrs. Poor tries to decide whether the client has "attitude" problems, unreasonable goals or a poor strategy for success.

Occasionally, she's stumped — when it comes to her own problems.

"I write things down on my typewriter and have a conversation with myself," she says. "I just wish I had a Riva Poor to go to."

There is one other alternative. "I call my mother," she says. "She was a consultant to my father for years."

Administration Tones Down Economic Forecasts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, retreating from an early, rosier prediction, is forecasting inflation of slightly more than 8 percent in 1982 and little change in unemployment over the next two years as its economic recovery program takes hold, sources say.

Several sources, who asked not to be identified, also said Wednesday the president's economic forecast would concede the possibility of a "technical recession" this year — a slight dip in economic growth for at least two consecutive quarters.

In sharp contrast to an earlier prediction, the administration will forecast economic growth in 1982 of about 4 percent, sources said.

Sources said the administration would predict growth of a robust 5 percent and moderate inflation of about 6.25 percent in 1983.

The earlier prediction of more rapid economic growth — as high as 7 percent next year — and inflation falling dramatically to 6.5 percent next year was hit by critics as implausible.

One source said the administration expects a slight increase in unemployment this year, leaving the jobless rate at the end of 1982 about the same as last month's 7.4 percent rate.

Meanwhile, in a report greeted by analysts as encouraging news, the government reported sales by U.S. retailers improved in January for the seventh straight month.

The 2 percent increase in seasonally adjusted retail sales over December's performance "is stronger than most economists had been expecting," said

David Ernst, a vice president of Evans Economics Inc. in Washington.

Calling the Commerce Department report "a very positive piece of news for the economy," Ernst said it seemed to indicate that "high interest rates have not done as much damage to the consumer as had been expected."

The administration's official economic forecasts are due to be made public next week to coincide with President Reagan's address to a joint session of Congress Feb. 18, but officials already have briefed a few key congressional aides.

Sources said the inflation forecast breaks down this way: about 11 percent in 1981, compared with 12.4 percent last year; about 8.25 percent in 1982; 6.25 percent in 1983 and 5.5 percent in 1984.

Those figures contrast with the earlier report that foresaw about 6.5 percent inflation next year, about 4.5 percent in 1983 and 3 percent in 1984.

The earlier forecast also called for a recession this year, but a 7 percent increase in 1982 in the gross national product after adjustment for inflation.

One congressional aide, describing the administration's developing economic proposals, said, "It's a long-run program with the benefit showing up in the future."

Officials familiar with the administration's inflation and economic growth forecasts said they hinge on at least two key assumptions that require congressional approval: $40 billion to $50 billion in budget cuts for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1 and a tax cut of 10 percent a year for the next three years.

These assumptions are not assured, however.

Donovan Taking Ax To New Labor Rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, making good on its pledge to reduce government regulation of business, is postponing a host of hotly contested rules proposed by the Labor Department in the last days of Jimmy Carter's presidency.

For example, Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan said Wednesday the department is withdrawing for further review a regulation that would have forced businesses to label more precisely the hazardous chemicals handled by workers.

The regulation proposed by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration — a part of the Labor Department — would have required precise chemical identification tags and warnings on hazardous chemicals found in 328,000 manufacturing facilities where some 20 million people work.

At the time the regulation was proposed Jan. 14, the agency said, "Workers have a right to know what substances they work with on the job, and today many of them don't."

The Chemical Manufacturers Association resisted, saying the proposal "would require lengthy chemical names to appear on the labels of chemicals and throughout the workplace, as well as extensive record-keeping requirements which would contribute little to the worthwhile objective of informed safety-conscious workers."

Judge Freezes Iranian Funds

DALLAS (AP) — A federal judge granted a preliminary injunction today blocking the Midland Marine Bank of New York from returning to Iran $20 million in assets that were frozen after the hostages were seized.

The suit by Electronic Data Systems, a company owned by computer magnate H. Ross Perot, is the first major challenge to the order by former President Carter to return frozen Iranian assets to the country in return for the American hostages.

U.S. District Judge Robert W. Porter made his ruling shortly before noon CST.

EDS won a $20 million judgment in Porter's court last May in a suit that claimed Iran had defaulted on a computerized health and social services data program installed by EDS.

Iran has appealed the $20 million judgment to the U.S. Fifth Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

Porter's ruling could affect other financial transactions tied to the hostage situation.

Mort H. Meyerson, president of EDS, Inc., attending a meeting of financial analysts in Houston, said he expected the federal government to appeal the case to the U.S. Supreme Court quickly.

EDS is one of about 300 U.S. companies that have lawsuits pending against Iran, Meyerson said.

As a result of its experience with Iran, his company has learned a "hard, but essential lesson" in marketing its computer services overseas, Meyerson said.

"We're much more cautious now. We have to be paid a bigger sum up front and we're insisting on different payment schedules now," he said.

Brown said, "they'll have to use a smaller boat."

"They would not be eliminated from the water, but there would be fewer of that size vessel in the water," he said.

"Will they be able to earn a living?" he was asked.

"I really don't have any idea," he said. "If they're serious about fishing, they will make some arrangements to get a smaller boat and be fishing the next day."

As a result of its experience with Iran, his company has learned a "hard, but essential lesson" in marketing its computer services overseas, Meyerson said.

"We're much more cautious now. We have to be paid a bigger sum up front and we're insisting on different payment schedules now," he said.

EDS's case appears to be unique among the lawsuits filed by U.S. companies against Iran because it apparently is the only company to have won a judgment that attached Iranian assets before Carter ordered those assets frozen on Nov. 14, 1979, 10 days after the hostages were seized in Tehran.

The order attaching Iranian deposits in the Marine Midland Bank was issued June 13, 1979, by U.S. District Judge Charles L. Brien in New York. His order stemmed from a suit EDS filed on Feb. 23, 1979.

Another of them would have required employers to increase the salaries of management-type personnel exempt from overtime over provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act.

Donovan said the administration was concerned "that modification of the wage provision could aggravate already intolerable levels of unemployment and inflation and exacerbate business costs. In the case of thousands of small businesses, this could be devastating."

The regulation, fought bitterly by the business community, would have increased by 45 percent the minimum salary for supervisory employees exempt from overtime requirements — from $155 a week to $225 a week.

The new pay standard was to have taken effect Friday; a second increase, to $250 a week, would have occurred in 1983.

Jaruzelski "always opposed actions leading to social tensions, and in (a) certain crisis he was not only an advocate but in fact a significant mainstay of the line of political settlement and agreement."

It is widely believed that both Kania and Jaruzelski opposed the use of force against the strikers last summer in Gdansk, the focal point of the labor rebellion.

Kania said the party expected Jaruzelski to show "openness toward social organizations and readiness for dialogue and negotiations with firmness in the implementation of social contracts and in exercising constitutional rights of the state's power."

Reagans Will Seek Private Funding

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan and his wife, Nancy, hope to raise $200,000 in private contributions to finance a major refurbishing of two floors in the White House, spokesmen say.

But the decision to seek private donations rather than use $50,000 in federal funds available for the job is not directly tied to Reagan's budget-cutting effort.

violated an age-old diplomatic practice that formal communications between governments are not made public without mutual consent.

The Jan. 28 Gromyko letter accuses the Voice of America and other U.S. foreign radio operations of airing "provocative and instigatory" broadcasts aimed at generating "unfriendly sentiments" among Poles toward the Soviet Union.

Its release left U.S. officials literally shaking their heads in disbelief. One official, who asked not to be identified, said the action "certainly runs counter to the long-standing principle of confidentiality with regard to such exchanges."

Another said it left State Department veterans "flabbergasted."

Haig was known to be considering whether to respond to the Soviet action or let the matter pass.

One option would be to release the text of his Jan. 24 letter to Gromyko, which was the Reagan administration's first official communication to the Soviets. The letter released by the Soviets was Gromyko's response to Haig.

The Soviet Embassy said the Gromyko text was released because the contents of Haig's letter had been made public by the State Department.

U.S. officials denied this ever happened.

Mrs. Dwyer Greeted With Warm Welcome Home

AMHERST, N.Y. (AP) — Cynthia Dwyer, returning from nine months' imprisonment in Iran to the bitter wind and new-fallen snow of her upstate New York hometown, said, "It was nice and warm in Tehran, but it's a lot warmer here, if you know what I mean."

Feeling "great" after her release from Tehran's Evin Prison, she arrived here late Wednesday to the hugs of friends and relatives she hadn't seen since leaving for Iran last spring.

A "Welcome Home Cynthia" banner was strung outside her home, and inside about 20 friends and relatives waited with gifts and two cakes, one decorated with daffodils and "Welcome Home Cynthia, We Love You."

The 49-year-old mother of three went to Iran to write about the American hostages, but was arrested last May, 10 days after the failed hostage rescue mission.

Tried and convicted last weekend on espionage charges, she was ordered deported and left Tehran on Tuesday, flying home via Dubai in the United Arab Emirates, Switzerland and New York.

She was reunited in New York on Wednesday with her husband, John, and their children, Ben, 14, Dan, 12, and Savannah, 9, whom she gave a scarf that she knitted in prison as a "souvenir of Evin."

Aboard the plane to Buffalo, N.Y., she toasted her newly regained freedom and explained how she'd passed her time.

"You learn to play mind games with yourself. You talk to yourself. There were times I made up movie scenarios to keep going (including) Monte Pythontype things and MGM spectaculars," she said.

She was unable to talk with most of the other women prisoners at the prison because most spoke only Farsi, she said.

Garwood Judge Refuses Closed Session

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — The military judge at the hearing to determine Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood's sentence for collaborating with the enemy in Vietnam today refused to order a closed session to hear classified information about an expert witness.

Instead, Col. R.E. Switzer directed the witness and Garwood's defense team to submit a written report on the background of Dr. David Hubbard, a psychiatrist described by the defense as a "State Department trouble-shooter who has a lot of experience with hostages."

Hubbard, an Austin psychiatrist, is the final defense witness in the sentencing phase of the court-martial. The defense sought a closed session on grounds that his qualifications included information "highly sensitive to the government of the U.S."

During a brief recess, prosecutor Maj. Werner Hellmer investigated the claim by chief defense counsel John Lowe. Upon returning to the courtroom, Hellmer said he had "talked to the proper agency" and confirmed that Hubbard was involved in "certain programs along certain lines... that are sensitive."

Hellmer argued the classified information was not relevant to the Garwood case, but Switzer asked Hubbard and the defense attorneys to report it to him in writing. The judge said he was hesitant to have a closed court session for fear it would violate Garwood's rights.

As he left the courtroom, Hubbard, a portly, bearded man, commented wryly to a reporter, "I'm sensitive, not classified."

Meanwhile, Switzer has not ruled on a defense motion for a mistrial. Lowe asked for the mistrial earlier this week on grounds of judicial misconduct, charging that Switzer made improper comments to news reporters during the 12-week court-martial.

In an interview Wednesday, Switzer declined to say when he would rule on that motion.

Garwood was convicted last week of five counts of collaboration with the enemy during two of his 14 years as a prisoner in Vietnam. That conviction carries a maximum sentence of life imprisonment at hard labor.

He was also convicted of assault on a fellow prisoner of war, which carries a maximum term of six months.

Garwood's attorneys did not dispute testimony from former POWs who said Garwood served as an interpreter, indoctrinator and informant on American prisoners. But the defense argued that Garwood, a 19-year-old jeep driver when he disappeared near Da Nang in 1965, was driven insane by his captors and did not understand the criminality of his acts.

During the sentencing phase of the trial, the defense is presenting testimony aimed at winning a light sentence, or no sentence at all, from the jury of five Marine officers, all Vietnam veterans.

The jury has the power to reverse its verdict up to the time of sentencing.

The prosecution has said it would call no witnesses during the sentencing phase.

Smith Urges Chamber To Support Tech

By JOE GULICK
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Preston Smith, the newly appointed chairman of the Coordinating Board, Texas Colleges and Universities, told the board of directors of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce this morning he was afraid the Coordinating Board may be growing into a bureaucracy.

Smith also asked the chamber board to contribute their time and talent in support of Texas Tech University.

Governmental boards like the Coordinating Board can become bureaucracies because too many times, local people don't want to take responsibility and pass it back to the state, Smith said.

The chamber board recognized Smith during its regular monthly meeting and presented him with a gavel. Board president Lee Stafford called Smith "a man in a lot of ways responsible for Texas Tech being where it is today and for the Tech Medical School."

Stafford said the appointment of Smith as chairman of the coordinating board was the most significant thing to happen to higher education in Lubbock since the creation of the Coordinating Board in 1965.

Smith told the board that Texas Tech would never have gotten where it is today without the efforts of men like chamber executive director John Logan and Stafford.

In other action, the board approved the printed version of priorities for state legislative action compiled by the governmental affairs committee on the basis of a survey of chamber members and representatives of the city and area.

The priorities, which are to be presented to state legislators and officials, include the formation of a Texas Tech School of Nursing and support of the fund recently proposed by House Speaker Bill Clayton dedicated to the development and conservation of water resources in Texas.

Also included in the priorities are support of teacher pay raises, wiretaps against alleged drug traffickers, a Court of Civil Appeals in Lubbock and the creation of a permanent fund to finance construction at Tech and other universities outside the University of Texas-Texas A&M systems. The chamber opposes collective bargaining for public employees.

In other action, the board approved a plan to request support from Gov. Bill Clements for an international trade program in Texas. Max Tarbox, chairman of the international trade committee of the chamber, presented a report to the board with suggestions for Clements' support, including the appointment of a Texas Export Council, to be made up of eight to 12 Texas businessmen that would work to develop international trade in the state.

Officials Seek Cause Of Blast

CHICAGO HEIGHTS, Ill. (AP) — Authorities today were trying to pin down the cause of a powerful chemical plant explosion that killed one man and injured 24 others with a blast felt 20 miles away.

Steven Kent, 29, of Park Forest, a chemist employed in quality control at the plant, died of injuries in the blast Wednesday, according to St. James Hospital spokeswoman Julie Fiumara. Nine other people were hospitalized in conditions ranging from fair to good.

She said the victims had cuts and complained of burning eyes and nausea. All but two of the victims, a motorist and a pedestrian, were plant employees.

Fourteen employees were released after treatment.

Jerry Morrissey, plant manager of De Soto, Inc., told fire officials that preliminary investigation showed a resin mixture exploded in a processing tank, Chicago Heights Fire Lt. Elmer Boudreau said.

Morrissey said the explosion should not cause "any unusual threat to the health and safety" of nearby residents and pledged a "special task force" to investigate the explosion, Boudreau said.

The blast blew away the entire back of one of the buildings of the more than 300,000-square-foot complex.

Another Black Youth Missing In Atlanta

ATLANTA (AP) — A 15-year-old black youth who failed to return home from school was being sought today, but police said the case had not been turned over to the special task force investigating the deaths and disappearances of 18 other Atlanta children since July 1979.

Police spokeswoman Beverly Harvey said the department's missing persons unit placed a lookout for Lorenzo Henderson of southeast Atlanta, last seen at 2:15 p.m. Wednesday at Walter George High School.

She said dozens of missing persons reports are received by police each week, many of them involving children. The Henderson boy's case was being treated as routine and had not been linked to the 15 child killings and three disappearances, she said.

Henderson was described as 5 feet 2, weighing 95 pounds and wearing a waist-length black leather jacket, navy blue pants, a burgundy shirt and burgundy shoes.

Police have said they believe at least some of the 15 slayings and three disappearances were connected.

Eight of the bodies were found on the city's southwest side or nearby suburban areas. Three were found within a few hundred yards of each other, and two others were found only a few yards apart about a mile northwest of the other three.

Seven of the victims were strangled or suffocated, two were beaten to death and one was shot. The remains of the other five children were so decomposed that the cause of death could not be determined.

All 15 victims were black and between the ages of 7 and 15. That description also fits the three children whose disappearances still are being investigated by the special police task force.

Pathologist Says Doctor Shot Fending Off Attack

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — A pathologist remains unshaken in his opinion that Scarsdale Diet doctor Herman Tarnower was shot while warding off an attack, despite charges from Jean Harris' defense attorney that prosecutors induced him to lie.

Assistant District Attorney George Bolen strode out of the judge's chambers in a rage when defense attorney Joel Aurnou suggested that the witness, Dr. Louis Roh, had been "suborned" to perjury, or induced to lie under oath, during Mrs. Harris' murder trial.

"I am a human being and can take so much after five months of legal proceedings," Bolen said, after he apologized for slamming a door in the face of Judge Russell R. Leggett.

That incident was followed by hours of cross-examination by Aurnou that evoked yawns from the jurors.

The prosecution alleges that Mrs. Harris, 57-year-old former headmistress of The Madeira School for girls in McLean, Va., shot Tarnower, her longtime lover, to death March 10 in a jealous rage over his affair with his 38-year-old divorcee office assistant.

Tarnower was shot with his hand outstretched in a gesture of defense.

Hernandez, the driver, suffered chest injuries, and his only passenger possibly had a fractured neck, according to the spokesman.

Police said Hernandez was traveling southeast about 3:35 a.m. when he apparently lost control of his 1975 Mercury and struck the pole.

Cellulose May Yield Cornucopia Of New Products

By DONALD J. FREDERICK
National Geographic News Service
CHAPEL HILL, N.C. — Cellulose, one of the most prevalent materials in nature, is yielding up new secrets that someday may unlock a cornucopia of new products. Among them: seamless clothing, rugged luggage made from paper, and rope tough enough to tie orbiting spacecraft together.

One of the things that may help perform these marvels is a simple bacterium known as Acetobacter, which was first observed in wine by the French chemist Louis Pasteur in the 19th century.

A research team at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill headed by R. Malcolm Brown Jr., professor of botany, has found a way to put the bacterium to work manufacturing cellulose in the laboratory.

The Acetobacter-produced cellulose is purer than any currently found in nature and is highly absorbent. A large job of it has the consistency of thickened jelly, whereas natural cellulose dries almost immediately after being extracted.

Created by photosynthesis, natural cellulose is the basic structural material forming plant cell walls, but some plants contain more than others. Cotton is more than 90 percent cellulose; wood, roughly 50 percent. Cellulose makes up a large part of paper and fabrics. Cotton clothing, for example, is almost all cellulose, as are many fibers.

Large-scale industrial use of the bacterial cellulose might someday save a lot of trees and free land currently planted in cotton for food crops," said Brown. "Moreover, the new cellulose's properties open up all sorts of unique applications."

Because it's water-absorbent, the more pliable substance could be placed in molds, where it would form seamless material for socks, sweaters and the like. Expensive labor such as weaving and spinning would be eliminated.

Since it dries so slowly, it could be fashioned into extremely thin sheets that would produce a new generation of paper filters for a variety of industrial purposes.

And because it contains longer fibers with greater tensile strength, it may someday form ropes as strong as steel cable and paper so durable it could be made into suitcases.

Brown and his colleagues — Candace Haigler, Moshe Benziman, and Alan White — have discovered a chemical that will both speed up and alter the way the bacteria produce the cellulose, in a process known as crystallization. The tool is a common fabric brightener called Calcofluor White ST.

"In the presence of Calcofluor, the bacteria continue to make cellulose up to four times faster than before," Brown reported.

"And by changing the rate of crystallization, it enables us to add elasticity, density, and strength to the cellulose as it's being made."

He predicted the first commercial applications of the discovery could come within three to five years.

"The increasing cost of growing, harvesting and processing cotton and of producing petroleum-based synthetics may stimulate interest in more intensified research and development," he concluded.

Tenure Complaint Hearing Set

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A faculty member in the College of Home Economics at Texas Tech University has alleged unfair denial of tenure, prompting the tenure and privilege committee to activate a rarely used special hearing panel to investigate the case.

"The special hearing panel operates much like a court," according to Roland Smith, president of the Faculty Senate. He explained the panel can call witnesses to testify and weigh the evidence in the case. The panel's recommendation will go to President Lauro Cavazos.

No date has been set for the beginning of the proceedings and Smith said he was not at liberty to divulge the name of the individual in Home Economics who is bringing the complaint.

However, he said it is a serious matter for the rarely-used panel to be activated. He estimated it has been about five years since the panel last met, and that case "fizzled."

This latest case comes on the heels of last week's vote by the faculty urging Cavazos to revise the university's tenure policy. Some observers say the case may prompt the administration to take a closer look at the tenure policy than it might have merely on the basis of the faculty vote.

In that ballot, faculty members approved expansion of the categories under which a faculty member who is denied tenure may appeal the decision. Under Tech's existing policy, the only reason available for appeal is if a teacher "alleges that a decision not to reappoint him is caused by considerations violative of academic freedom."

And it is under that category the Home Economics case is being appealed. The university's tenure and privilege committee, after hearing the faculty member's allegations, determined there is "probable cause" for the appeal and the next step is for the special hearing panel to consider the matter.

freedom can prove to be serious matters for a university. Texas Tech was blacklisted or "censured" for several years by the American Association of University Professors after a 1957 incident in which the Tech board of regents dismissed three faculty members.

Faculty members say that such a "blackbaling" deters potential faculty members from applying for employment at a university which has been censured.

The faculty handbook outlines the procedure to be followed if there is a need for the special hearing panel. Ten senior faculty members are elected annually by the executive committee of the Faculty Senate to be on call for the panel. Most rarely serve.

But if the panel is called, as is being done this week, the university president selects two persons from that list of 10 and the Faculty Senate picks two from the same list.

Those four, who never know whether they are selected by the president or the faculty, then vote to select the fifth member of the panel which actually will hear the case.

At Wednesday's Faculty Senate meeting, senators voted by secret ballot on their choices for two representatives on the panel. However, no announcement was made on who those two are, Smith noted, so they will not know whether they were chosen by the faculty or the president. After Cavazos chooses two persons for the panel, all four will be notified.

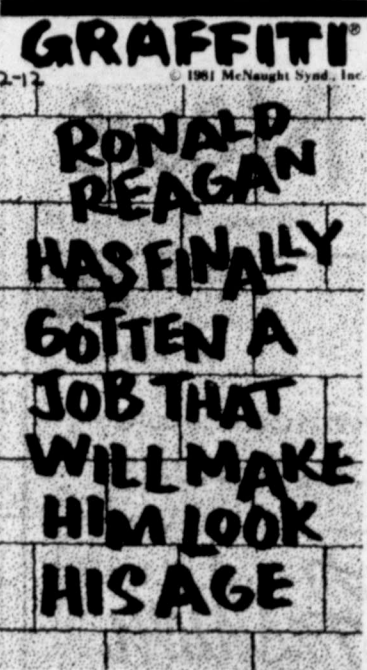

A stenographic record will be taken at the proceedings during the panel hearing, according to the faculty handbook, and both the faculty member and the administration may be represented by legal counsel.

The burden of proof, however, rests with the faculty member.

If the faculty member bringing the complaint is not satisfied with the outcome, he or she also may consider filing the case in a formal court of law.

EMS Evaluating Response Times

By DEBBI STALTER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Whether a recent juggling of Emergency Medical Services stations will cut down on response time averages which have increased from 1979 to 1980 will be figured into an overall study of the county ambulance system to be completed in the near future.

In an effort to provide ambulance operators more space and better facilities and centralize the system between target usage areas, ambulances are now operating out of a former fire station at 30th Street and Texas Avenue.

In addition, the emergency system has set up a second station at Lubbock General Hospital. The two moves have allowed former stations at 48th Street and Avenue Q and West Texas Hospital to be closed.

The third station in Lubbock, not involved in the jostle, is at 50th Street and Wayne Avenue.

EMS Director Doak Enabnit said the moves have centralized the stations so access can be obtained to highest population areas. But he admits "four stations would be ideal."

Under the current set-up, the hospital location operates a shift from 3 p.m. to 11 p.m., while the remaining two stations work on a 24-hour schedule. Enabnit said that in 1979, average response times were five minutes, 12 seconds, while 1980 averages lengthened to five minutes 45 seconds. Enabnit said he would like to shoot for a time average closer to 5 minutes 15 seconds.

An increasing population without a corresponding increase in manpower and equipment in the past five years has hindered the system, Enabnit said. And whether budget increases in the future will be deemed necessary by the Lubbock County Hospital District, the ambulance service's prime supporter, will be determined through the study to be presented to the board.

Suspect Sought In Child Death

HALTOM CITY (UPI) — Police today were searching for the boyfriend of the mother of a 21-month-old boy who died of massive blows to the face and body.

Nicholas Lane died Wednesday after being beaten, scalded and yanked by the hair, detective John Huffman said.

The mother was in custody late Wednesday for investigation of murder. Murder charges and an arrest warrant were filed against her boyfriend, Douglas Ashby, 24.

Huffman called the murder the worst he has seen in 15 years.

The study will plot to a further extent statistics already compiled monthly and quarterly by Enabnit. Response times per station will be charted on a map for 1979 and 1980 so a comparative study can be made of the grid.

The comparison then will be reviewed by Enabnit and Lubbock General administrator Jake Henry Jr. before a recommendation is taken to the hospital district's board of managers.

Enabnit said any hopes for expansion will be tabled at least through this year because the current budget already is allocated. Whether more money will be provided for fiscal 1982 will depend on the board's decision.

Response times could be cut if the hospital site were allowed to operate 24 hours a day, Enabnit said. He noted some of the difficulties in answering emergency calls come when the hospital location closes and a second station is tied up on a call.

Enabnit said this situation results in the third station left to answer calls all over the city and necessitates the stations "crossing territories."

The emergency system originally started out with three, 24-hour stations in See EMS Page 14

Improved Attendance Figures Reported In Lubbock Schools

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The dwindling popularity of playing hooky sent attendance rates soaring last semester in the Lubbock public schools.

And some 385 students who refused to give up their old ways came face to face with a new weapon in school officials' arsenal for combatting absenteeism — denial of credit for some courses.

During several six-week periods last semester, attendance figures rose for almost every secondary school in the system. At Estaca lo High School, attendance increased anywhere from two to almost seven percent; during one period, Coronado High School's attendance rose 2.5 percent; and at Alderson Junior High, the figures jumped four percent during the second six weeks of the school year.

Almost all of the schools improved attendance by at least 1.5 percent. That small of an increase appears insignificant, but for a school district that consistently averages an impressive 93 percent to 95 percent attendance rate, even the small increases are dramatic, said Gib Weaver, director of secondary schools for the district.

"When you're talking dollar figures, they are significant," he said. State money for school operations is allocated to districts on the basis of average daily attendance of students. But Weaver said operating funds are less a concern for him. "My concern is getting kids in school. They learn more in than out of school."

City Parents Exposed To Duties Of Teachers At Iles Elementary

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The incessant questions and constant activity of youngsters are the same as always at Iles Elementary this week, but for the parents acting as substitute teachers, the standard operating procedure is an eye-opener.

from the daily routine for three days this week to participate in in-service sessions, the parents of students at the magnet school are helping out in the classrooms.

Aided by Lubbock school district consultants and Texas Tech University personnel, parents are learning the finer points of discipline, patience and classroom management.

"For those of us who are not teachers by training, it is indeed an experience," said parent Cathy Morton. She said she has discovered teaching "takes a tremendous amount of patience and discipline. My biggest challenge is working with the children who need reassurance — personal reinforcement."

"I think the role reversal is wonderful," said Carolyn Rude as she watched a group from the "Hatchery" (the name given to students aged 5 to 7) let loose during a spirited physical education session.

She said she has learned teaching includes not only knowledge of subject See PARENTS Page 14

Readers' Exchange

By JEANNE LIVELY
Family News Staff
Hello, again! Hope everything with you or yours is all right.

This week, we'll have a little of this and a little of that. Just hope you find everything fun!
An anonymous — but obviously nice — reader sent us several terrific recipes. Do try.

BANANA SPLIT PIE

1 baked 9-inch pie shell
1-1/2 cups powdered sugar
2 eggs beaten
1 stick margarine, soft
1 oz. sweetened chocolate, grated
3 bananas
Dip bananas in lemon or pineapple juice to prevent darkening. Combine powdered sugar, eggs, margarine and beat with electric mixer for 5 minutes until fluffy.
Add grated chocolate and mix well. Thinly slice and arrange 2 bananas in cooled, baked shell. Pour mixture over sliced bananas in shell. Chill for 2 hours. Top with whipped topping. Put 1 sliced banana on top with chopped nuts.

OATMEAL PIE

2 eggs
3/4 cup sugar
3/4 cup dark corn syrup
2 tsp. all-purpose flour
1/4 cup soft butter
1 tsp. vanilla
3/4 cup oats (quick or old-fashioned), uncooked
1/3 cup coconut, flaked or shredded
1 9-inch unbaked pie shell
Beat eggs until foamy. Gradually add sugar, beat until thick. Stir in remaining ingredients; blend well. Pour into pie shell. Bake in preheated oven at 350 degrees, about 45 minutes or until pie is firm. Cool. Makes 8 servings.

SAUCE PAN BROWNIES

2/3 cup butter
1-1/3 cup sugar
2 eggs
1/2 cup all-purpose flour
1/2 cup cocoa powder
3/4 tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. salt
3/4 cup oats (uncooked)
1 tsp. vanilla
1/3 cup chopped pecans
Melt butter in large pan. Add sugar. Beat in eggs one at a time, blending well. Sift together flour, cocoa, baking powder and salt. Add to butter mixture. Stir in vanilla, oats and nuts. Bake in greased 9-

DISHWASHER DETERGENT

Store dishwasher detergent in a cool, dry area — not under the kitchen sink — since it readily absorbs moisture and carbon dioxide from the atmosphere, becoming lumpy and less effective, says family resource management specialist, Linda McCormack. All this prevents it from dissolving properly, she explains.

inch square pan in preheated oven at 350 degrees for 25-30 minutes. Cook; cut while warm. Makes 16 brownies.

Reader's Exchange was afraid no one would send a barbecue recipe; but thanks to Tina Pollard, we have one!

BARBECUE

Mix together: 3/4 cup Worcestershire sauce, 1/2 cup water and 4 tsp. liquid smoke.
Pour over thinly-sliced meat. Marinate overnight. Add 1 jar of BBQ sauce to marinade and pour over meat. Cook slowly 2-3 hours in electric skillet.

MONKEY BREAD

(Submitted by Verna Brown of Bledsoe)
1/2 cup melted shortening
1/2 cup boiling water
1/3 cup sugar
3/4 tsp. salt
Combine shortening, boiling water, sugar and salt in bowl and let cool.
Dissolve 1 pkg. dry yeast in 1/2 cup lukewarm water. Beat 1 egg (room temperature) and add to yeast mixture.
Add yeast mixture to shortening. Gradually add 3 cups of flour. Mix thoroughly. Let rise a hour.
Knead dough down; roll on floured surface to 1/4-inch thick. Cut in different shapes and dip in melted oleo (1 stick). Place in Bundt pan. Let rise 1 hour. Bake 30-35 minutes at 350 degrees.

Here is Bea Sparks' famous cake recipe!

RED VELVET CAKE

1/2 cup shortening
1-1/2 cups sugar

VALENTINE'S SALE

Leather Coats from $49<sup>00</sup>

FRYE BOOTS ON SALE

REDWOOD LEATHER

2403 Broadway Mon.-Sat. 10-4

2 eggs
1 tsp. vanilla
1 tsp. butter flavoring
1-1/2 oz. bottle red food color
3 tsp. (level) cocoa
2-1/2 cups cake flour
1 cup buttermilk
1 tsp. salt
1 tsp. vinegar
1 tsp. salt
Cream shortening, sugar, eggs and flavoring. Make a paste of cocoa and food colors and add to first mixture. Alternately, add flour and buttermilk. Mix soda and vinegar in small bowl. Add to batter; blend. Bake in 3 9-inch or 10-inch pans for 20-25 minutes at 350 degrees. Let cool completely. Cover with frosting.

RED VELVET FROSTING

3 tsp. flour
1/2 tsp. salt
1 cup milk
1 cup shortening
1 cup sugar

2 tsp. vanilla
1/4 tsp. butter flavoring
Cook milk, flour, salt until thick (stirring constantly). Let cool. Cream shortening and sugar very well. Add flavorings. Combine with the first mixture and beat well.

Maxine Dunn graciously came to the rescue of two readers who had the following requests.

PEANUT PATTIES

3 cups sugar
2/3 cup white corn syrup
1/2 cup cream
1/2 cup milk
2 tsp. butter
3 cups raw peanuts
1 tsp. vanilla
Red food coloring
Mix and cook until holds firm ball in cold water. Add vanilla and coloring; beat until creamy. Drop on greased pan or wax paper.

MICROWAVE DIVINITY

4 cups sugar
1 cup light corn syrup
3/4 cup cold water
1/4 tsp. salt
3 egg whites
1 tsp. vanilla
1/2 cup chopped nuts
Mix together sugar, corn syrup, water and salt in a 1-1/2-qt. casserole. Cook in microwave for 22 minutes or until hard ball stage. Stir once or twice while cooking. Beat egg whites until stiff in very large mixing bowl.
Pour hot mixture into beaten whites and beat about 12 minutes. Fold in nuts and vanilla. (You may divide into separate bowls and tint for variations.) If you do happen to get the candy too hard, you can return it to the microwave for a few seconds to soften.

Maxine says her peanut pattie recipe calls for only 1/2 cup cream but it may be about the same as the reader from Post wants.

Requests — Nancy Field would appreciate a recipe for Spanish Slaw similar to that served at Furr's Cafeterias.

Mrs. J.E. Andrus would like the recipes for the English Pea Salad and Sunshine Carrots — like those served at Furr's Cafeterias.

Dallas Self-Made Man Uses Writing In Order To Know Himself

By FRANCES LOWE
Family News Editor

Norman Grunfeld, who will be autographing his book, "The Fourth Coming," for customers at Mulberry Book-sellers Friday and Saturday, seems to fit the description of the man in so called "mid-life crisis."

He is attractive, incredibly successful and, in his mid 40s, reflective.

But Grunfeld says the description doesn't really fit. Turning 40 wasn't such a big deal, "except I noticed I didn't get as many gifts as when I was a kid," he laughs. And neither reflecting on life nor writing about his reflections are new for him.

He has said, however, that he wants to find more time for writing, for his beautiful wife — his second — and his young son, who is younger than his grandson.

Some of his friends, among them Hugh Prather, who is himself a writer, urged him to publish his work. The result is "The Fourth Coming," subtitled "My Thoughts to your mind," which Grunfeld will autograph at Winchester Square Friday from 1-6 p.m. and Saturday from 10 a.m.-1 p.m. (It sells for $5.)

It was put together by Grunfeld and Prather during a two-days-and-two-nights session in his office — sandwiches sent in — sifting through the things he had written and culling out enough for this slim volume (the pages are unnumbered), with big type and lots of white space.

"There was enough left over for several books," Grunfeld laughs. It is the kind of writing that has been very popular in recent years, a compilation of thoughts, musings, reflections on life.

This trip to Lubbock (not his first — Grunfeld says he has been coming to Lubbock since he was a kid) is part of a tour of Texas cities and, maybe, the West Coast.

On the surface, Grunfeld seems an unlikely candidate for an author.

Founder and president of the House of Grunfeld, the prestigious women's apparel sales organization based at the Dallas Apparel Mart, Grunfeld is father of five, grandfather of one, supersalesman, once a model, active in the Dallas civic scene (the sponsors two soccer teams, is vice chairman of the Olympic Fund, serves on the City Rehabilitation Board) and, in every sense, a self-made man — the fulfillment of the American success story.

"I've been lucky," he says, "and a lot of people have taken an interest in me."

He writes for his own satisfaction and as a way of getting to know himself, he says. In the introduction of his book, he writes: "In a sense, I think of myself as four people: the father of five children, the salesman, the businessman, and a fourth person who is not clearly defined but is somehow the real me."

Grunfeld is, to say the least, a high-profile figure. His story appears in Fashion Showcase, the newspaper of the apparel scene; Texas Monthly had a feature on him in its January report on the Apparel Mart.

Grunfeld says he looks sometimes at this public person, who has been compared in looks with Robert Redford, run for public office (and lost), is accustomed to high finance and high power, has friends in high places — and wonders who he is.

"It's an attempt to separate the facade, or what may be a facade, from the truth," he says of his writing. "It's also a chance to be still and quiet."

Grunfeld is one of those bright young men whose touch seems to turn everything to gold. His family founded an early trading post in Mexico; his father, Clarence, was a vice president of Haggard, and it was in this company that young Grunfeld made his start in sales.

He joined Haggard at 18, rose quickly to become one of its top ten salesmen; joined Stacey Ames, a former division of Bobbie Brooks; at 28 moved to the Tribute Dress Company; at 29 was national sales manager; at 30, vice president over all sales; by 40, headed the House of Grunfeld, which holds space on nearly every floor of the Dallas Apparel Mart, with showroom facilities in Atlanta, with 18 lines of junior and missy sportswear, with a diet plan, with gold jewelry...

The book is another facet of a man who seems to find success in everything he does, and to command enormous loyalty from friends and business associates. It was at their urging that he put together the book (he is working on two more); and at their urging that he published it (really a corporation formed with a couple of friends is responsible for the publishing) and at their insistence that he is willing to do some promotion for it.

"They convinced me that if nobody read it, it wouldn't do any good," he says. "If nobody reads what you've written, you don't know if it is any good. But mostly I have just let it happen."

Initial response has been so good that he has been asked to give some talks — not on merchandising, or fashion, but on his view of life — and he has been entertaining thoughts of going to a regular publishing house with his next two books.

Somehow, one has the feeling that they, too, will be successful.

Maid Service: Creative Valentine's Day Gift

By LYNN HOHERTZ
Family News Staff

With Valentine's Day almost here, everyone will be racking their brains to come up with just the right gift to express themselves to that special person.

Candy and flowers are part of Cupid's tradition but why not be creative and try something different this year?

What better way to say "I Love You," "You're Special" or "I Care" than sending a single bud or bag of chocolate kisses with a note attached informing your sweetheart he or she will receive the services of a maid this week!

Housewives, ready for a break from cleaning chores will be overjoyed, career women can finally get to those little home chores they've been putting off and think of the expressions of relief and gratitude from all the bachelors!

There are several services in town which provide domestic help including Home Aid Services, Jones Janitorial & Maid Service and the American Shamrock Domestic Maid Service.

According to Pat Arciniega, owner of Dial-A-Maid, a list of services is given to prospective employers when they call. These services include dusting, polishing, vacuuming and waxing floors. Bath tubs, toilets, sinks and the outside of showers are cleaned in the bathroom.

Kitchen duties include dishes, countertops and appliances and taking out the trash. Appliances in utility rooms are also cleaned.

Costs for these services depend on the square footage of the home. Extra cleaning jobs such as refrigerators and ovens add additional charges.

Pat personally supervises the training of each of the maids in her own home. Following each cleaning job, the business secretary checks with the homeowner to see if they are satisfied. If something is missed, the problem will be corrected.

"Once you get a system down and speed going, cleaning a house is no problem," Pat said. "I clean in a circle around a room and then the middle."

Other cleaning tips from the expert include wiping down the bath tub with paper towels and glass cleaner to remove any film (this also produces a shine), dusting furniture from the top down and dusting before vacuuming.

"The only time I need special instructions is if a certain polish goes on a particular piece of furniture or if a dog is in the backyard in line of the trashcan."

The Texas Employment Commission also offers the services of domestic help.

"When someone calls in," said Shirley Fleming, employment interviewer, "I take their name, address and telephone number. I then go through our files and match employer and applicant." Following the match Shirley then gives the maid the employer's number and cleaning details are worked out between the two.

Rates for TEC services range from $3.35-$4 an hour (depending if a transportation fee is included).

"Very little advance notice is required," added Shirley.

So, win the heart of your Valentine with the services of a maid — it will be a gift long remembered.

ORIENTAL-STYLE POT-ROAST

3-4 lb. beef 7-bone pot-roast or blade roast
2/3 cup water
1/2 cup dry sherry
1/4 cup soy sauce
2 tbsps. brown sugar
1 clove garlic, minced
1/2 tsp. ginger
1/3 cup flour
2 tbsps. cooking fat
2 cups julienne strips carrots
1 1/2 cups diagonally sliced celery
1 large onion, cut into wedges
1 can (16 oz.) bean sprouts, drained

Combine water, sherry, soy sauce, brown sugar, garlic and ginger. Place roast in utility dish or plastic bag; add marinade, turning to coat. Cover dish or tie bag securely and marinate in refrigerator 6-8 hours (or overnight), turning at least once. Drain marinade from meat; pat dry with absorbent paper. Dredge meat in flour, reserving excess flour. Brown meat in cooking fat in large frying-pan or Dutch oven. Pour off drippings. Reserve 1/4 cup marinade; add remaining marinade to meat. Cover tightly and cook slowly 1 hour 45 minutes. Place carrots celery and onions around meat; continue cooking, covered, 30-35 minutes or until meat and vegetables are done. Remove meat to warm platter. Add bean sprouts and heat through. Remove vegetables with slotted spoon and place around roast. Combine reserved flour with reserved marinade, add to cooking liquid and cook, stirring constantly until thickened. Reduce heat and cook 3-5 minutes. Serve gravy with pot-roast.

DEAR ABBY

Real Life Drama Takes Morbid Turn

DEAR ABBY: What could be more Shakespearean or more like Ibsen than this real-life drama?

My father, a very handsome and physical man, has had the same mistress all his married life. His wife (my mother) was aware of it, and in her later years she has become morbid and melancholy, until now she is completely senile. She knows nothing. Father is very attentive to her. He has his mistress come to his home every day to take care of Mother. This mistress, who was the object of Mother's most passionate hatred in years gone by, is now the object of poor Mother's deepest gratitude and affection. Meanwhile my father and this Salome are having a geriatric ball without the slightest guilt.

Mother looks but does not see; she listens but does not hear. Tell me, Abby, is something rotten in Denmark?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: If your parents live in Denmark, the answer is yes.

Abby, the poor dear really thought she had done us a favor by coming. She would have done us a bigger favor by staying home! And would you believe this well-meaning but inconsiderate woman actually kissed the bride?

TYPHOID MARY'S COUSIN

DEAR COUSIN: Yours is a timely letter. Thanks for the opportunity to remind readers that the flu and colds should not be treated lightly — a thorough recovery is essential. A relapse due to returning to work (or school) prematurely can lead to pneumonia, or even prove fatal. And, mothers, please don't send your children to school with coughs and runny noses!

DEAR ABBY: When I am asked a rude or prying question I don't want to answer, I always respond with a question. Examples:

Q. "How much did you pay for the coat?"

A. "Yours is much prettier. How much did you pay for yours?"

Q. "I hear your daughter is getting a divorce. What happened?"

A. "Why don't you ask her the next time you see her?"

Q. "How old are you?"

A. "Why do you want to know?"

Abby, this has always worked for me. And I never offend anyone because I always smile when I say it, and make a good-humored joke of it. Meanwhile, I have avoided answering the question without resorting to the equally rude, "It's none of your business."

DEAR ON GUARD: Beautiful.

Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Letter Booklet, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

The bidding:
South West North East
2 NT Pass 3 ♦ Pass
3 NT Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: Ten of ♠.

Appearances can be deceptive! Declarer was lulled into a false sense of security by clever defense, but he must shoulder most of the blame for failing in his contract.

South had no really good bid at his first turn. We are inclined to endorse his decision to open two no trump despite the diamond weakness. The opening surely described both the strength and shape of his hand quite accurately. North's diamond response was music, and South happily converted to game at no trump.

Declarer won the opening heart lead in his hand and ran the jack of diamonds. East could see that winning the king of diamonds would be tantamount to conceding the hand to South, so he played low smoothly.

Thrilled by the apparent success of the diamond finesse, declarer tried it again. This time East won and exited with a heart. Declarer was locked in his hand with no way to get to dummy. Although he eventually succeeded in getting the defenders to lead a spade, thereby scoring the queen on a finesse, he could come to only eight tricks—two spades, four hearts and one trick in each minor suit.

While declarer could have brought in the whole diamond suit by playing the ace on the second round, there was no sound reason for doing so as the play developed. Declarer's error occurred when he played a low diamond from dummy at trick two!

Declarer had available a line that would have given him a considerable extra chance for the contract at no risk whatsoever. He should have overtaken the jack of diamonds with the table's queen. East's only chance is to hold up, and declarer, who started with seven tricks, is now up to eight.

Before repeating the diamond finesse, declarer should test spades by leading a spade to the queen. When this finesse wins, the diamond finesse becomes superfluous—declarer has nine sure tricks. He can then lead a diamond to the ace and, when the king drops, he will end up with all the tricks!

Western Foods Big Hit In Japan

By WALTER W. MILLER

TOKYO (UPI) — Raw fish, rice and seaweed no longer satisfy Japanese appetites.

Instead, the Japanese are devouring such Western foods as Italian pasta, prime beef and French pastry.

The change is revolutionizing this island nation's traditional cuisine, based on rice, fish and vegetables such as seaweed, bean sprouts and mushrooms.

The mass switch from traditional foods to more Western-type fare can be observed daily in department stores that line Tokyo's fashionable shopping districts — the Ginza, Shinjuku and Nishi-bashi.

In these cavernous consumer wonderlands at least one floor, in some cases two or three, are devoted entirely to food, much of it from Europe, England and the United States.

Shoppers mingle, at times push and shove, along brightly lit aisles lined with mouthwatering foods. Many items are pre-cooked and ready to eat: Lasagna, roast beef, strawberry shortcake, pate de foie gras and ground beef for hamburgers.

As the craving for Western food increases, the Japanese appetite for native dishes is diminishing.

An Agriculture, Forestry and Fisheries Ministry survey finds rice consumption in 1979 fell as Japanese wolfed down increased amounts of meat, oils, fats and dairy products.

When the Japanese sit down to breakfast, they are just as likely to consume coffee and toast as the old standby of grilled fish, fermented soybean soup, rice and pickles.

Westernization of the Japanese diet began shortly after World War II with the introduction of milk and bread. The process evolved rapidly.

"Overall food consumption in Japan continued to increase (during 1979)," the ministry report said. It added that "animal protein intake increased as well."

Previously, the Japanese depended on fish and vegetable products such as bean curd for protein.

Consuming all those hamburgers, French cakes and pizzas is making many Japanese fat.

One medical critic was quoted in the local press as saying, "The number of fat Japanese is steadily increasing because of this Western affluent diet to which we are all exposed."

Tokyo department stores provide one-stop shopping in sugar heaven. There customers may choose among creamy chocolate cakes, strawberry pies, cheese cakes, trays of rich pastries and ice cream.

The stores also offer every imaginable Japanese food from raw squid to fresh seaweed.

Despite declining rice consumption, farmers continue to grow more than is needed because of a government-subsidized rice production system begun in the mid-1940s. A strong lobby made up mostly of rice farmers prevents the government from ending the program.

This means Japan has become dependent on imports for most of its food needs. For example, 94 percent of the wheat consumed here is grown by farmers in other nations, and 95 percent of its soybeans are imported, mostly from the United States.

The government is concerned about what would happen in the event of worldwide food shortages.

SUNSET'S FREEZER FRENCH TOAST

4 eggs
1 cup milk
2 tbsps. sugar
1 tsp. vanilla
1/4 tsp. ground nutmeg
8 slices day-old French bread, cut 1/4 inch thick
Butter or margarine, melted

In a medium-size bowl, beat together eggs, milk, sugar, vanilla and nutmeg. Place bread slices on a rimmed baking sheet. Pour egg mixture over bread and let stand for a few minutes. Turn slices over and let stand until all the egg mixture is absorbed. Freeze, uncovered, until firm; then package airtight and return to freezer.

To serve, place desired number of frozen slices on a lightly greased baking sheet. Brush each slice with melted butter. Bake in a 500-degree oven for 8 minutes. Turn slices over, brush with melted butter, bake an additional 10 minutes or until nicely browned. Makes 4 servings of 2 slices each. # Afghanistan Shuns U.N. Proposals For Summit

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Afghanistan today rejected United Nations proposals for a summit with Iran and Pakistan, saying Soviet troops will not be removed until it reaches agreements in separate talks with each neighbor.

Afghan Foreign Minister Shah Mohammad Dost told the non-aligned foreign ministers' conference "Afghanistan is ready to have a dialogue with Pakistan and Iran without any pre-condition."

U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim turned today to trying to end the Vietnamese occupation of Cambodia.

Waldheim met the foreign ministers of Singapore, Malaysia and Indonesia prior to meeting Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach, U.N. sources at the non-aligned foreign ministers' conference said.

Thach had talked with the foreign ministers of Singapore and Indonesia earlier in the week and told reporters, "Vietnam is prepared for direct negotiations with the parties concerned."

However, he had opposed any U.N. mediation because it recognizes the ousted Cambodian regime of Pol Pot rather than the Heng Samrin government installed by Hanoi.

The sources would not discuss the talks between Thach and the foreign ministers. Hach told reporters Vietnamese troops were invited into Cambodia and would not leave until the present government asks for a withdrawal.

Pakistani Foreign Minister Agha Shahi said Wednesday the non-aligned movement must take a stand against military intervention in Cambodia and Afghanistan to reverse a dangerous trend.

"Unless the international community moves with determination in opposing it, the small and medium size nations of our planet will have no security," Shahi said.

Waldheim met with Shahi and the foreign ministers of Afghanistan and Iran in attempts to set up talks to resolve the Afghan crisis.

Shahi said "There has been some setback" and diplomatic sources said the three-way talks would not evolve during this conference, which is likely to spill over to Friday.

Waldheim appointed U.N. Special adviser on political affairs Javier Perez de Cuellar to travel to Afghanistan, Pakistan and Iran until an agreement is reached on procedures for talks, Shahi said.

Delegates were near agreement on a final resolution that will call for withdrawal of all foreign troops from Afghanistan and Cambodia without naming the Soviet Union or Vietnam.

Fighting Escalates In Zimbabwe Between Government, Guerrillas

SALISBURY, Zimbabwe (UPI) — Government troops clashed with rebel tanks and helicopter gunships pounded guerrilla positions on the outskirts of the southeastern Zimbabwe city of Bulawayo as a virtual civil war raged into its fifth day.

The escalation in fighting came amid reports that guerrilla forces loyal to former Home Affairs Minister Joshua Nkomo were converging from several directions on Bulawayo in a bid to seize the industrial city and make it their rebel capital.

In downtown Bulawayo, whites were roaming the streets armed with rifles and handguns, ignoring radio broadcasts urging the white population to stay home, reporters on the scene said.

"This is the big one, this is the showdown," one Bulawayo resident said. "The country is on the brink of a civil war."

The latest fighting raised the number of dead over five days of fighting to at least 57 people, including two whites. More than 100 others have been reported wounded.

Helicopter gunships strafed and bombed the western black township of Entumbane, where Zipra rebels have dug in since Sunday when they began fighting rival guerrillas backing Prime Minister Robert Mugabe.

Government troops sent in to restore order engaged and repulsed a Zipra tank column on a highway south of Bulawayo near where other former Zipra guerrillas are based, civilian travelers said.

The travelers said at least two Soviet-made tanks smuggled in from Zambia and manned by Zipra rebels had been knocked out in the clash. It was the first known use of tanks by rebels.

Reports said another column of rebel guerrillas was descending on Bulawayo from a camp about 100 miles west of Bulawayo.

New fighting also was reported at the Connemara army base in the midlands district near Gwelo, 125 miles northeast of Bulawayo where 36 new dead were reported.

Mugabe and Nkomo were former guerrilla allies during the war against the white-ruled regime of Ian Smith.

Nicaragua Shuts Down Rights Office

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government closed the Nicaraguan Human Rights Commission and banned news reports on the incident in a tough crackdown on dissent.

The moves, announced by the Justice

Ministry Wednesday already strained relations between Managua and President Reagan, who has called the Sandinistas' 1979 overthrow of longtime U.S.-backed dictator Anastasio Somoza a "Marxist takeover."

In one of his first acts as president,

Reagan held up the last installment of a $75 million loan while the United States investigated whether 60 percent of the money was going to private business.

Members of the Reagan administration have accused the Sandinistas of providing guns, training and other support to Marxist-led guerrillas fighting to oust the U.S.-backed government in El Salvador.

A Justice Ministry communique said Sandinista soldiers shut down the Nicaraguan Human Rights Commission office on Wednesday, seized the organization's files and delivered them to the ministry.

The Sandinista-dominated government also banned news reports on the raid, and the Justice Ministry sought to justify it by saying the commission was not a legally constituted organization and was operating "on the fringe" of Nicaraguan law.

Apparently at issue were statements commission coordinator Jose Esteban Gonzalez made last week to Pope John Paul II, saying the Sandinistas practice "repression and torture very similar to that applied in the past by the Somoza dictatorship."

More Charges Expected Against Ripper Suspect

DEWSBURY, England (AP) — Truck driver Peter Sutcliffe, the man indicted last month for one of the killings blamed on the "Yorkshire Ripper," is to be charged with 12 other murders and seven attempted murders, the state prosecutor said today.

The prosecutor, Maurice Shaffner, told the magistrates court here that the director of public prosecutions ordered him to say that further charges will be preferred against Sutcliffe before he is committed to trial.

"These further charges consist of 12 charges of murder and seven charges of attempted murder. In all there will be 20 charges of murder and attempted murder," he said.

Sutcliffe, 35, from the northern city of Bradford, was arrested Jan. 2 in a red-light district of nearby Sheffield.

He was charged three days later with the murder of Leeds University student Jacqueline Hill, who police said was one of 13 victims of a vicious killer dubbed the "Yorkshire Ripper."

Police spoke jubilantly of winding down their hunt for the mass murderer, whose reign of terror in the north of England began with the slaying of a prostitute in Leeds on Oct. 30, 1975.

Sutcliffe did not appear at today's hearing, which lasted just four minutes. His presence was not required because of temporary regulations implemented during a work slowdown by British prison guards.

Sutcliffe, who is being held without bail, has not been required to enter a plea.

Former Queen's Funeral Held

ATHENS, Greece (UPI) — European royalty assembled for today's funeral of former Queen Frederika amid tight security to prevent a clash between Greek royalists and leftists whose hatred survived the queen's 13 years of exile.

Prince Franz Joseph of Lichtenstein and his wife and Prince Henrik of Denmark arrived Wednesday. Other royalty, including King Juan Carlos and Queen Sofia of Spain and Britain's Prince Philip — relatives of the Greek royal family — had later flights.

Frederika, 63, died of a heart attack in Madrid last week. Her son, ex-King Constantine was accompanying the casket on the journey home, with the landing at Tatoi air force base near the royal summer estate north of Athens.

Queen Frederika had wanted to be buried in the royal cemetery, in a forest glade of the estate, next to her husband the late King Paul, who died in 1964.

It was from Tatoi airport on Dec. 13, 1967 that King Constantine flew secretly with the dowager Queen Frederika and his family to Kavalla in northern Greece, to stage an abortive coup against the colonel's regime, imposed a few months earlier.

Successful Businessman Believes In Optimism

By JOHN CUNIFF
HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Because economic conditions are poor doesn't mean they'll always be that way, says John Filer, a hard-nosed businessman who finds reason to believe that optimism is realism.

"At any time we make the terrible mistake of believing that current conditions will exist for all time," said Filer, 57, chairman of Aetna Life & Casualty, a company with more than $30 billion of assets.

Current conditions, it is widely believed, are less than what they should be, not just in financial and construction areas, where Aetna is heavily involved, but also in a vast economic panorama.

It may not continue, Filer said. A year ago, he reminded, there was widespread belief the bond market was dead. Now, he observed, corporations and investors are lining up to get back in. Filer, whose giant enterprise is ranked first on the Fortune list of "diversified-financial companies," almost three times larger than Merrill Lynch & Co., is especially wary of long-term forecasts based on short-term phenomena. He has seen them fail time after time.

Something always intervenes, he said. He is optimistic about solutions to buying and financing homes. He refuses to believe that interest rates are bound to remain high just because they are high now. He declines to bury the whole life insurance policy, insisting that inflation hasn't killed it.

"Whole life is no more dead than the bond market is," he said of the traditional life insurance policy that has, among other benefits, cash and loan value. During the past inflated decade, whole life (or entire life) policies have lost some of their face value and appeal, and many would-be customers have switched to short-term, renewable policies.

And the traditional home mortgage market, given up for dead even by lenders whose chief product it is, may be no more dead than bonds or whole life insurance, according to Filer, the realistic optimist.

"It's conceivable that traditional financing (long-term, fixed rates) can come back," he said, sitting at a desk in a spacious office as timeless in decor as the huge red brick Aetna complex surrounding it.

Permanence is something Filer understands, and he isn't sure that the troubles afflicting homebuyers today are permanent. "I won't be sure that four years from now we won't be talking about what we were worrying about," he said. "I have a feeling that the ingenuity of man will come up with arrangements."

While this suggests Filer relies on chance intervention to save the day, his subsequent comments dispel the notion. There have been attitudinal changes, he pointed out. People, he said, are more willing to tackle problems. Reindustrialization is already more than a slogan, he believes, and he believes there are some indications that the profit, non-profit and governmental sectors are learning to cooperate.

Unlike some contemporaries, who fear that to play with the tiger's tail is to invite a thrashing, he believes business can cooperate with government to correct urban disarray. It must be a cooperative effort, he said. What is good or bad for people is good or bad for business.

The changes won't happen suddenly, he suggested, and not without real effort and some fears, too. But again he cautions Americans not to judge the future by what they see today.

"I would not want this company at the moment to be out front with long term, fixed rate loans," he conceded.

But, he added, if confidence is rebuilt, productivity improved and the work ethic restored, "then possibly financial institutions may have money pile in over the transom." It isn't inconceivable, he said.

And if that happens, the suggestion

Frank Sinatra Wins Unanimous Recommendation For License

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Frank Sinatra is only one step away from a Nevada gaming license after bringing celebrity pals before the Gaming Control Board to dispel two decades of rumors about reputed mob connections that cost him his first license.

The board voted unanimously Wednesday to recommend Sinatra be granted a six-month limited license as an entertainment and public relations consultant at Caesars Palace, leaving one last hurdle in the entertainer's bid to move from the stage to the board room. The Nevada Gaming Commission will make the final decision Feb. 19.

Character witnesses including actors Gregory Peck and Kirk Douglas and Los Angeles County Sheriff Peter J. Pithcess praised Sinatra, a friend of President Ronald Reagan, during the occasionally tense five-hour hearing.

All lauded his philanthropic works, and all said they had never seen any evience of the 65-year-old singer's purported ties to organized crime figures.

Pithcess said he had known Sinatra since 1942 and that "if Mr. Sinatra is a member of the Mafia, then I'm the Godfather."

Peck said Sinatra's work for charity "constitutes a separate career in philanthropy." He said he had been with Sinatra on hundreds of occasions "and I've never met or heard discussed any of these characters he is alleged to be associated with."

Tanned, graying and wearing a three-piece suit, Sinatra testified for nearly three hours and spent much of the time answering questions about his relationship with the late reputed Chicago mob boss Sam "Momo" Giancana.

Sinatra was reminded repeatedly of a 1963 incident — that involved Giancana — that led to the revocation of the gaming license he held for the Cal-Neva Lodge at Lake Tahoe. Giancana, listed in Nevada's "Black Book" of people barred from entering casinos, had visited singer Phyllis McGuire at the Tahoe resort.

"I never invited Mr. Giancana to come to Cal-Neva Lodge," Sinatra said. "I never entertained him and I never saw him."

Sinatra said he and his attorney, Milton Rudin, told Cal-Neva executives to ask Giancana to leave when they learned he had stayed in his longtime girlfriend's bungalow.

"I know he didn't invite him," Rudin said, "and we were both upset that he was there."

Sinatra turned testy toward the end of the hearing, snapping "I don't remember" and "I would not like to discuss that" to several questions.

Control Board members said that Sinatra would have to cool his temper and stay away from Mafia figures if he wanted to keep the six-month license.

Mechanical Bulls May Injure Muscles

BOSTON (AP) — Weekend cowpokes beware. Besides the expected bumps, bruises and sprains, doctors have found that the latest saloon fad — riding a mechanical bull — can result in an ailment dubbed "urban cowboy rhabdomyolysis."

A product of severely bruised muscles, the malady is usually not serious but causes one particularly frightening symptom — dark red urine.

Doctors at the St. Paul-Ramsey Medical Center in Minnesota reported on their discovery and treatment of a case of urban cowboy rhabdomyolysis in a letter in today's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

Rhabdomyolysis occurs when violent movement literally chews up the muscles. Protein from the destroyed tissue turns the victim's urine red. The ailment can cause kidney failure in some cases, but usually is harmless.

In the St. Paul case, a 20-year-old man who had ridden a mechanical bull for about 90 seconds over two days went to the hospital complaining of severe thigh cramps and red urine. The problem was diagnosed, and he recovered after a few days of rest.

"I think that probably everybody who rides these things for any length of time is going to have some muscle destruction," Robert D. Powers, one of the St. Paul doctors, said in an interview. "Some people will get symptoms from this particular malady, and some won't. It's an individual variation."

Ordinarily, rhabdomyolysis is associated with such strenuous activity as military calisthenics, karate kicking and marathon running. Mechanical bulls, made popular by the movie "Urban Cowboy," have proliferated at nightclubs and amusement parks around the country for the past year or so.

Doctors have treated many less severe maladies stemming from unsuccessful rides.

"We see lots of injuries from that machine," Powers said. "Most of them are on the orthopedic end of the spectrum — lots of broken bones, dislocated bones and back injuries."

Dr. Richard K. McConnell of Ochsner Foundation Hospital in New Orleans has studied 49 people who were hurt on mechanical bulls and cataloged their complaints.

Insulin Produced In Lab To Be Tested Nationwide

DETROIT (UPI) — Six U.S. medical centers plan to inject hundreds of diabetics with lab-produced insulin in the first nationwide test of a synthetic touted as a "quantum leap" in the treatment of 2 million of the nation's diabetics.

The synthetic insulin, manufactured through genetic engineering, is similar to the hormone produced by the human pancreas to regulate blood sugar.

Doctors contend the lab insulin could offer a cheap and abundant substitute for the animal insulin now in use and eliminate harmful allergic reactions.

Eli Lilly and Co., which developed the "biosynthetic" insulin, today announced plans to test the substance nationwide along with the medical centers in Detroit; Trenton, N.J.; Wichita, Kan.; Philadelphia; Minneapolis and Seattle.

At least 200 volunteer patients are expected to participate at the six centers and additional sites may be added in Canada, Lilly officials said.

About 10 million Americans suffer from diabetes, but only 6 million of those are diagnosed. Of the 6 million, 2 million use commercially produced insulin — taken from cattle, pigs and sheep — to regulate sugar in the blood. The remaining 4 million are treated with other drugs, or by altering their diets.

Without a steady supply of insulin, dependent diabetics could suffer circulatory problems, blindness, diabetic coma and eventual death. But some producers of animal insulin are forecasting a shortage within 20 to 30 years.

Border Cities Celebrate Washington's Birthday

Laredo and its sister-city Nuevo Laredo, Mexico will combine talents to host the annual George Washington's Birthday Celebration, Feb. 18-22.

One of the largest and most famous international fiestas, the 24-hour-per-day event pulsates in Laredo and across the Rio Grande in Nuevo Laredo.

Noche Mexicana, a three-hour spectacular featuring Mexico's top entertainment highlights the celebration. An all-night public dance follows.

Also, fun that's hotter than a hot tamale awaits Laredo visitors at the Third Annual Jalapeno Festival. The two-day festival (Feb. 20-21), which is a part of Laredo's annual Washington birthday celebration, will be climaxed by a jalapeno-eating contest.

Participants will compete by downing the most jalapeno peppers within an allotted time period. Last year over 30 brave souls competed in the contest, and ate their way through 10 one gallon containers of the red hot peppers. The winner took top honors by eating 89 of the devilish peppers in 20 minutes.

Although the event is termed the Jalapeno Festival — the two-day funfest includes other events such as The International Waiters' Race, a beauty contest, and a tug of war. All of the contests are designed to allow any observer to join in the fun, if desired, thus encouraging many spur-of-the-moment entries from all over the state.

The festival will be kicked off this year in historic San Agustín Plaza with a tug of war between local rival high schools. Throughout the evening celebrations will be able to obtain a range of food from Mexican tacos to jumbo Gulf shrimp, purchase T-shirts and other items while enjoying the live entertainment.

On the following day, the third international waiters' race will see waiters from both sides of the Rio Grande racing around San Agustín Plaza while carrying trays laden with bottles and glasses.

Velia Uribe, president of this year's Washington Birthday Celebration, said, "The Jalapeno Festival is the newest event in the traditional Washington Birthday Celebration. We have created the entire festival in the hope that people can come and unwind in a more casual fashion and enjoy the local color here on the border."

The five-day birthday fiesta will include the traditional Colonial Pageant, a parade featuring participants from both the U.S. and Mexico, a carnival, and fireworks.

More information is available by writing the Laredo Chamber of Commerce, Convention and Visitors Council, P.O. Box 790, Laredo 78040, or phone (512) 722-9895.

Visitors wanting to shop across the border, need not be concerned about the Christmas Eve fire which destroyed the famed block market structure housing 200 shops. At least 40 percent of the stores previously located in the "mercado" building have already moved to Juarez Plaza, with the remaining shopkeepers planning to do so.

According to Chuck Snyder, Convention and Visitors Director of the Laredo Chamber of Commerce, "A market in Mexico is not a building; it's people displaying their merchandise, buying, selling, trading, bargaining, meeting friends and exchanging gossip. It was only a building that was lost — not the market. The market is still very much alive, and always will be."

One prominent Nuevo Laredo merchant expressed the feeling that the open market is actually an improvement, as it is a return to the traditional open-air market plaza typical in the interior of Mexico.

Tourists are finding a number of bargains, as many of the shopkeepers who kept their merchandise in warehouses have drastically reduced prices of their wares in an effort to recoup their losses in the fire. One visitor from Ohio said, "We were afraid there wouldn't be much to choose from, but on the contrary, there are better bargains now than there ever were."

So, it seems in Laredo and Nuevo Laredo, there is presently a special fiesta atmosphere that will continue long after the activities of the 83rd Annual George Washington's Birthday Celebration. Strolling mariachi bands provide musical interludes for weekend shoppers, horse drawn buggies are available for picturesque tours of Nuevo Laredo, and the shopowners are enjoying their new outdoor market.

Reverence Shown For Treasures

SALEM, Oregon (Special) — Oregon is a state where roadside barns are bulging with family collections of 19th century furnishings and housewares. Many pioneer buildings look as if they sprung up yesterday and museum displays include a wealth of objects used by the state's early settlers.

A visit to some of the charming 150-year-old communities lining Oregon's major travel routes reveals that the people here have done a masterful job of taking care of "things old."

Adventurous families began emigrating to Oregon from across the continent in the 1830s, eager to build new homes in the fertile paradise they had heard so much about. With them they brought either a wagonload of hand-crafted household goods and furnishings, or the skills to create new belongings from native Oregon materials. Many of those homemade items still exist on the antique market today.

A typical Oregon outlet is housed in a converted barn where slightly dusty treasures line the walls and fill the loft. A typical Oregon antique dealer? He or she is probably more concerned about running the farm than exacting exorbitant rates for ancestral belongings.

Where should one begin when looking for the handsome homemade articles? Oregon's greatest concentration of antique outlets lies in the Willamette Valley where small communities date back to the 1840s. There are collectors' treasures to be found in virtually every town, and some localities seemingly trade in antiques on every corner.

One such town is Aurora (northeast of Salem) where shops line the sidewalks and affable dealers match their goods with pioneer stories.

Anyone interested in Willamette Valley antique fare will also be charmed by local architecture, much of which dates back to the 1850s and '60s. But unlike many similar structures in other parts of the country, these 19th century buildings look refreshingly youthful.

Every town has its ties with Valley history — old homes, stores, schools and churches have been restored to perfection. The town of Dayton, 30 miles north of Salem, deserves special mention for its many fine examples of restored architecture.

Only about a 60-to 90-minute drive from most points in the valley, the Oregon Coast, too, has paid a reverence to things past, be they architectural, domestic or nautical in nature.

For the exact location of antique shops and museums, Oregon visitors should contact the nearest chamber of commerce. An Oregon events brochure is available from Travel Information Section, 100 Transportation Building, Salem, Ore. 97310. Annual festivals often include antique activities.

And keep in mind that residents are a good source of helpful, firsthand information when seeking antiques and antique shops.

Visitors To Rarotonga May See Horse Races On Sandy Beaches

RAROTONGA, Cook Islands (Special) — It's not exactly the Kentucky Derby, or Ruidoso's Downs All American Futurity. In its own way, though, race day on Rarotonga in the Cook Islands is just as memorable.

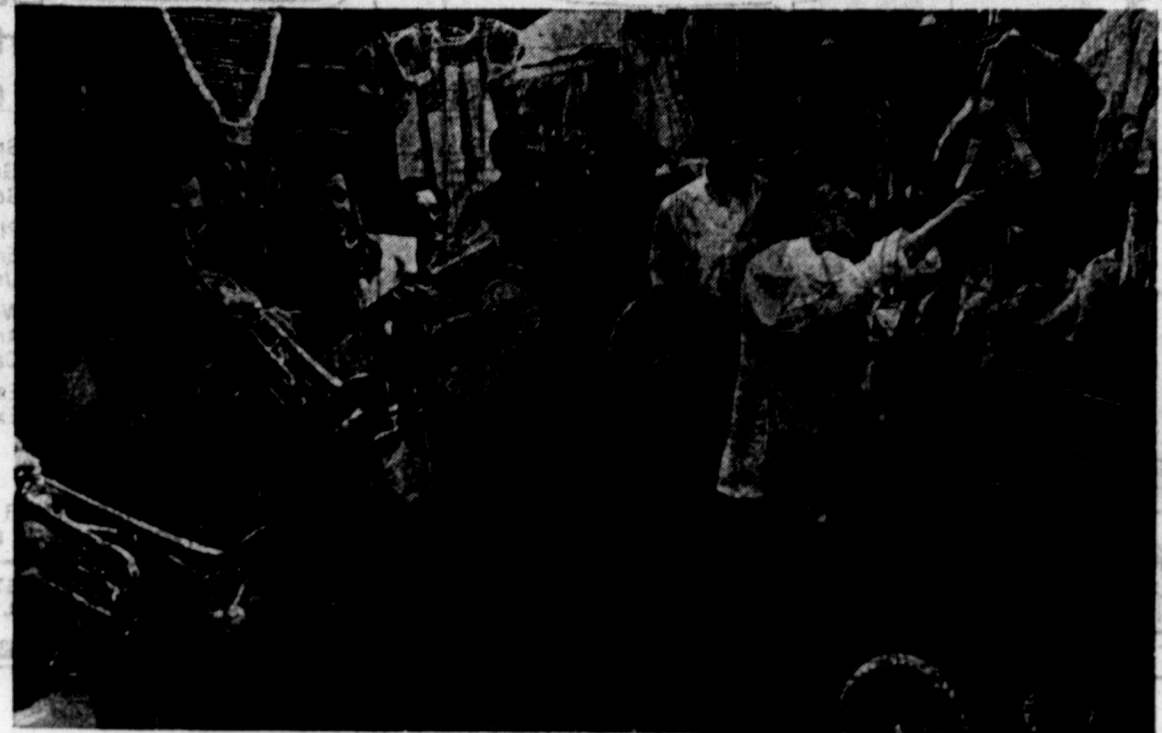

The racetrack is a long stretch of beach at Muri Lagoon on the east side of the 25-square-mile island. The jockeys are young boys riding bareback.

Manes toss and spectators shout encouragement as the horses churn up the sand at the starting line and dash madly down the beach. Out of sight beyond a bend, they turn around a marking pole and gallop back up the beach.

Not all of them make it across the finish line. Front runners have been known to head into the surf for a swim or gallop off into the woods. That adds a certain edge of excitement if you've invested some money with the parimutuel betting facility near the start of the course.

Race meetings on Rarotonga, the largest of 15 islands in the far-flung Cooks group in the heart of Polynesia, take place about once a month. The local newspaper prints dates of upcoming races, and if you're on the island during a holiday there's a pretty good chance the horses will be running. At least part of the way.

Jets first landed on Rarotonga in 1973, so tourism is new here. But there have been some rather notable comings and goings in these islands for centuries. Just north of Muri Lagoon is Ngatangia Beach, where the last of the great Polynesian migrations is said to have been launched around 1350. Canoes from Rar-

BETTER THAN EVER — The fiesta atmosphere prevails in Laredo, Mexico. Tourists have been enjoying the new market site since a fire destroyed the old marketplace building.

Affordable Winter Vacations Available In Danish Capital

When winter closes in on Copenhagen, Copenhagen doesn't close down. Quite the contrary. In fact, winter is the most action-packed time of year in the Danish capital, a time when the city is at its most carefree, fun-loving and uncrowded. Winter in Copenhagen is also a time of reduced prices at many hotels, sightseeing bargains galore and very affordable off-season vacations.

This winter, the Copenhagen Tourist Association is again offering its discount coupon book, worth a $50 savings on things to do and see in off-season Copenhagen, at no charge to visitors. The 16-coupon "Wonderful, Wonderful Copenhagen" book is valid for use now to April 30 for visitors spending at least one night in the city.

It features, among other things, a 25 percent reduction on the door charge at Montmartre, the largest jazz club in the city that Downbeat Magazine dubbed "Jazz Capital of Europe"; reduced entry to the Toy and Mechanical Music Museums; a specially priced luncheon, approximately $5, daily at the Hotel Imperial; a cold plate-luncheon at Illum's Bolighus Restaurant featuring herring, chicken salad, beef tartar, caviar, cheese, bread and butter for about $7 a person; free coffee and a real Danish danish at Illum's Department Store, Copenhagen's largest and one of its most fashionable stores; reduced entry to the Copenhagen Zoo; and a 25 percent discount on the hydrofoil between Copenhagen and Malmö, Sweden.

"Wonderful, Wonderful Copenhagen" coupon books are available from any Scandinavian Airlines ticket office, the Danish Tourist Board at 75 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10019, or the Copenhagen Tourist Association on arrival. The mercury is not the only thing that takes a plunge during a Copenhagen winter — hotel room prices all over town are at their lowest point of the year as well. Copenhagen hotels are categorized into four price groupings for the season, now to April 30, with a special price structure for the city's deluxe properties.

Category One hotels are smaller pensions without private bath. Room charge is $14 per person double per night, including breakfast, service charges and value added tax (VAT).

There is no charge for children up to five years old and those six to 12 pay $5.50 per night. Category Two, family style hotels with private bath/shower, are priced $18 per person double per night for the winter, including breakfast, service charges and VAT. Children's scale is same as Category One.

Copenhagen's first class hotels are also specially priced for the off-season at $24 per person double per night, again including breakfast, service charges and VAT. Children's scale is same as all other price categories.

The finest hotels in the Danish capital are bargain priced for winter, too. Room prices at Hotel D'Angleterre, Kong Frederik, Royal, SAS Scandinavia and Sheraton Copenhagen range from $32 to $52 per person double per night, including breakfast, service charges and VAT. Children's scale remains unchanged.

Certain hotels in all categories feature special weekend rates which bring prices even lower. All hotel prices are approximate based on current exchange rates.

And, off-season Copenhagen is "on-season" for the famous Royal Danish Ballet and Royal Danish Opera. Both companies are internationally renowned as among the best in their respective art. With the U.S. dollar growing ever stronger against the Danish kroner and inflation in Denmark at its lowest point on the Continent, Copenhagen, the city famous for its fun, food and fairytales, is one of the brightest spots and most affordable bargains for Americans looking for an off-season European vacation.

Interest Rates Expected To Remain Volatile

By MARY TOBIN
NEW YORK (UPI) — Interest rates appear to be in a holding pattern at high levels and the only consensus on their future course is that business borrowers can look for volatility, but not significantly lower costs.

Henry Kaufman, chief economist at Salomon Brothers investment banking firm, said recently interest rates will remain "highly volatile" in 1981 and "the prime rate, some time this year, will surpass the record 21 1/2 percent" reached in the latter part of 1980.

Another noted economist, while agreeing with Kaufman's assessment that rates will remain volatile, said "with the economic circumstances we're in now something will have to give."

"Either interest rates will have to come down in order to allow the economy to move ahead, or we'll see an increasing number of bankruptcies, especially among smaller businesses," David M. Jones, economist for Aubrey G. Lantson & Co., said.

James J. Lowrey, head of a firm bearing his name that advises municipalities and corporations on borrowing, said "it's going to be difficult to borrow for all but the most credit-worthy businesses."

"But firms can avoid bankruptcy and minimize their losses if they get liquid now and remain in a liquid position until the economy slows," Lowrey said.

Kaufman bases his forecasts of a record prime on what he sees as "virtually no chance" the Reagan administration will be able to have a substantial effect on our "unprecedented" inflation rate this year.

"The key is inflationary expectations," Fred Henning, vice president, Boston-based Fidelity Management & Research Co., said. "It used to be that a prime rate of 12 percent would automatically shut off borrowing. But if business perceives that inflation will continue to accelerate, they will think 20 percent or even more is a good buy."

Lowrey said even if Reagan can't make a substantial dent in the federal deficit in 1981, "he can cut inflationary expectations and that will go a long way to bringing down rates."

Rates also depend on whether the Federal Reserve is pegging the federal funds rate or is concentrating on the money supply and letting interest rates take their course.

Some market rates have eased but this key rate has remained at a very high level. The funds rate is what banks charge each other for overnight loans of reserves.

"The prime and other rates can't come down substantially until the federal funds ease," Jones said, and he is one of a number of analysts who think the Fed has shifted its focus from the funds to the money supply.

The Fed's significant draining last week when the funds dipped was "a mopping up of bank reserves that resulted from implementation of the Iranian agreement," Jones said. "I didn't see any policy implications in its actions that particular day."

"I suspect the Fed is puzzled by the money figures now because of a shifting of money to NOW accounts," Jones said. "The Fed will likely keep bank reserves in a holding pattern until it gets a better fix on the money supply."

Another pesky factor for the Fed to contend with is the surprising strength of the economy in the final quarter of 1980. "The 5 percent growth in the GNP indicates that inflation still isn't under control," Henning said.

"The problem is we don't know what interest rate it will take to slow inflation, and the Fed doesn't know either," Henning said. "Given the uncertainties of the environment we're in, you have to throw the history books out the window."

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW®

By Whipple and Borth

Compressing Speech Aids Advertising

NEW YORK (UPI) — A machine that cost $38 million to develop could prove a boon to the advertising and entertainment worlds by squeezing recorded speech and music to fit into tight time segments without distortion.

For example, the machine can compress a taped TV or radio commercial that runs 40 seconds into 30 seconds without getting sounds like Donald Duck double-talk.

The device also could stretch speech or music if desired although there doesn't seem likely to be as much of a market for that.

Speed compression has been used for years in the motion picture industry, but successful sound compression is new. There are two machines now on the market. Integrated Sound Systems of Long Island City, N.Y., headed by Stuart Rock, makes the analog machine that cost $38 million to develop. Lexicon Co. of Waltham, Mass., headed by Jack Letscher, makes a digital type machine.

Integrated Sound Systems recently put its machine on the market at $8,000. Previously it had performed sound processing services at a fee. Lexicon sells all its output to professional users.

Both Rock and Letscher said sound squeezing is proving useful in compressing feature films to fit two-hour television slots, in film to tape transfer for cassettes and in sports and special events broadcasting on a tape delay basis. Rock said it also will be useful in the new videodisc recording industry.

Compressing speech and music raises a big psychological question: which is more likely to get the most favorable response from the audience, announcers and actors who speak as rapidly as possible, or more deliberate and normal pacing of the speech?

James MacLachan, a marketing professor at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, N.Y., demonstrated the use of the machines two years ago while he was teaching at New York University. He said then tests indicated a 40 percent better response to commercials pounded out at staccato high speed tempo than at ordinary speed. MacLachan said much of the research on which he based this conclusion was done by professor Michael Siegel at Oneonta State College.

Letscher said experience had shown that letting the orator speak at his normal pace, then compressing it to fit the required time produced a better commercial than making the announcer talk faster.

A reporter for the trade paper Advertising Age, after listening to some commercials compressed 10 percent by the ISS machine, said "Unless he heard before and after spots back to back, the average listener wouldn't notice the acceleration."

MacLachan formed a firm called Timely Decisions to compete with Integrated Sound Systems using the Lexicon machine to offer compression services but later sold the business to Teletronics of New York.

In the early days of broadcasting there was much controversy over the relative merits of the comparatively rapid speech heard on American radio and the deliberately slow pace required by the British Broadcasting Corp. But the BBC programs were non-commercial, so the controversy didn't have much cutting edge.

Some persons undoubtedly find the staccato, high-speed announcing irritating but Rock said there can be little doubt that audiences can absorb more speech than they commonly get on TV and radio and this fact may give sound compression a big future.

He said psychologists and broadcasters were impressed years ago by the way President John F. Kennedy managed to get attention when he spoke.

State Department Expels Cuban

WASHINGTON (AP) — An FBI investigation of alleged attempts to circumvent the ban against U.S. trade with Cuba has prompted the expulsion of a Cuban diplomat and charges that some American companies knowingly violated the law.

The State Department disclosed Wednesday that Ricardo Escartin, a first secretary at the Cuban Interests Section here, has been given one week to leave the United States.

A U.S. official, who asked not to be identified, said Escartin's activities were "criminal, were engaged in openly and over a long period of time and involved a large number of U.S. citizens."

Escartin's expulsion was the first since the United States and Cuba opened their small diplomatic missions in each other's capitals in 1977. The action raised the prospect of a retaliatory move by the Cuban government against an American diplomat in Havana.

Cuba normally follows Soviet practice on foreign policy issues, and the history of Soviet-American relations is replete with cases of retaliatory expulsions of each other's diplomats.

The circumstances surrounding Escartin's expulsion suggested that the American government has had difficulty enforcing the 20-year old ban on U.S.

trade with Cuba.

State Department spokesman William Dyess said some U.S. companies were unaware that their products ended up in Cuba, but other businesses "knowingly collaborated with Cuba in this illegal trade."

Weinberger Says U.S. Will Hike Defense Before Resuming Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States should greatly strengthen its military forces before reopening arms control talks with the Soviet Union, says Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger.

In an interview in his Pentagon office Wednesday with United Press International, Weinberger said the willingness to "rearm America" and close the military power gap with the Soviet Union rests with the American people.

"I think a lot depends on the wishes of the American people," the secretary said. "At the moment, I think they're very strongly in favor of closing the gap, but that's a feeling that will have to be sustained because it's nothing you can do overnight."

"I think one of the things that is most likely to lead to war is the perception of America as a weak, irresolute nation that is divided and uncertain and ridden by guilt complexes and unwilling to take any kind of action," he said.

The United States, Weinberger said, should not refuse to resume Strategic Arms Limitation Talks with the Russians, "but I think we have to negotiate from a position of considerably greater strength."

"I don't feel that negotiations or discussions would be particularly profitable at this time. I'd like to see quite a different change of attitude on the part of the Soviets."

"I just think," Weinberger said, "we want to have some assurances that if we're going to sit down around the negotiating table that both sides really want some effective limitations made. And that I'd like to see."

Weinberger could not provide a time frame, but indicated a U.S. buildup will take years because of the "very long dates" between a Pentagon decision to produce a new weapon system and the time it becomes operational. The MX missile system, for example, is to be completed in 1989.

"You can't let a serious imbalance develop or remain without inviting very serious consequences and making it very difficult to maintain peace," the new Pentagon chief said.

"And that's why I think this is a decade of very considerable danger to us."

"We have to be realistic and recognize at the moment that Soviet (military) expansion is of very, very great concern," he said. The Soviet buildup "has resulted in a situation in which we have a lot of catching up to do."

Speakers For Religious Groups Detail Government Interference

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the broadest religious gatherings in American history, including Hare Krishnas and "Moonies" as well as Christians and Jews, is hearing speaker after speaker detail growing government intrusion into church affairs.

Some recent instances of it threaten "the silencing of social and political criticism by religious bodies," said Kansas City attorney John E. Stumbo, a United Methodist representative.

He told how an agency of his denomination, under IRS warnings that the church might lose tax-exempt status, dropped out of a coalition working for gun-control legislation.

The Rev. James E. Wood, a Baptist church-state expert at Baylor University, said growing government intervention in religious operations "constitutes a mounting crisis in American church-state relations."

It is a "serious threat to the prophetic role of religion and to the constitutional guarantee of the free exercise of religion," he said.

The three-day conference, which opened in suburban Chevy Chase, Md., Wednesday night, is sponsored by Christian and Jewish organizations embracing about 110 million members from 90 percent of American religious affiliations.

They included mainline as well as smaller conservative denominations. Such controversial groups as Hare Krishnas, Scientologists and Sung Myung Moon's Unification Church also were present because "the least acceptable groups are the most vulnerable victims of government intervention," said conference chairman William P. Thompson.

Thompson, chief executive of the United Presbyterian Church and a lawyer himself, said the meeting probably was the most inclusive religiously in the nation's history.

In any case, the breadth of sponsorship rivaled the religious partnerships formed in the civil rights struggles of the early 1960s.

Backers included the National Association of Evangelicals, made up of conservative groups, the mainline Protestant-Eastern Orthodox denominations of the National Council of Churches, the U.S. Catholic Conference, Southern Baptists and the Synagogue Council of America embracing all three wings of Judaism.

Postal Service Head Says Nickel Increase Needed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service would have to seek a second, even larger rate increase, perhaps by the end of the year, if it is not allowed now to charge a nickel more for mailing first-class letters, Postmaster General William F. Bolger says.

The independent Postal Rate Commission is scheduled to announce its decision Feb. 19 on the Postal Service's request to raise first-class rates to 20 cents per letter.

An in-house consumer advocate at the commission has recommended the increase be 3 cents, to 18 cents per letter.

Bolger, speaking Wednesday at the National Press Club, said the 20-cent charge, coupled with higher rates for other classes of mail, "represent the minimum revenue we need to carry on our work."

If the rate commission approves only part of the request, "the Postal Service would have no choice but to seek new, even higher, rates, perhaps before 1981 is out," he said.

If the commission fails to grant the full increase, Bolger said consideration should be given to abolishing the rate-making body.

He said litigation over the rate request has cost about $12.5 million and that the commission's 80 employees have no duty other than to consider Postal Service requests.

Bolger also appealed to postal union leaders to pursue a policy of moderation in negotiations on a new labor agreement this spring.

Public statements of some of postal union leaders "disturb me greatly and lead me to believe they have not fully grasped the state of our national economy," he said.

He did not name the union leaders, but presidents Moe Biller of the American Postal Workers Union and Vincent Sombrotto of the National Association of Letter Carriers, the two largest postal unions, were sitting at the front of the audience as Bolger spoke.

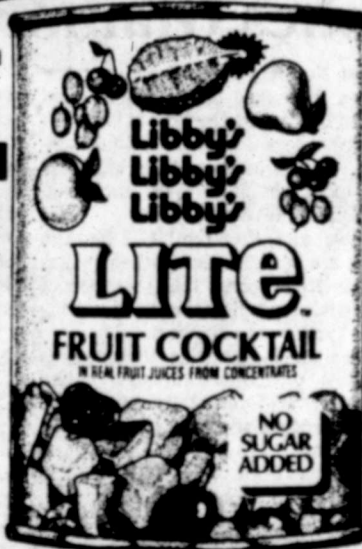

Both were elected since the current labor agreement was negotiated three years ago and both are considered more militant than their predecessors.

"As federal employees, all of us who work for the Postal Service have a special responsibility. ... We cannot ignore the unemployment and other economic ailments that afflict our fellow citizens. Nor can we ignore what unreasonable demands would do to the future of the Postal Service," Bolger said.

Interest Rates Expected To Remain Volatile

By MARY TOBIN
 NEW YORK (UPI) — Interest rates appear to be in a holding pattern at high levels and the only consensus on their future course is that business borrowers can look for volatility, but not significantly lower costs.

Henry Kaufman, chief economist at Salomon Brothers investment banking firm, said recently interest rates will remain "highly volatile" in 1981 and "the prime rate, some time this year, will surpass the record 21 1/2 percent" reached in the latter part of 1980.

Another noted economist, while agreeing with Kaufman's assessment that rates will remain volatile, said "with the economic circumstances we're in now something will have to give."

"Either interest rates will have to come down in order to allow the economy to move ahead, or we'll see an increasing number of bankruptcies, especially among smaller businesses," David M. Jones, economist for Aubrey G. Lantson & Co., said.

James J. Lowrey, head of a firm bearing his name that advises municipalities and corporations on borrowing, said "it's going to be difficult to borrow for all but the most credit-worthy businesses."

"But firms can avoid bankruptcy and minimize their losses if they get liquid now and remain in a liquid position until the economy slows," Lowrey said.

Kaufman bases his forecasts of a record prime on what he sees as "virtually no chance" the Reagan administration will be able to have a substantial effect on our "unprecedented" inflation rate this year.

"The key is inflationary expectations," Fred Henning, vice president, Boston-based Fidelity Management & Research Co., said. "It used to be that a prime rate of 12 percent would automati-

Lowrey said even if Reagan can't make a substantial dent in the federal deficit in 1981, "he can cut inflationary expectations and that will go a long way to bringing down rates." Rates also depend on whether the Federal Reserve is pegging the federal funds rate or is concentrating on the money supply and letting interest rates take their course.

Some market rates have eased but this key rate has remained at a very high level. The funds rate is what banks charge each other for overnight loans of reserves.

"The prime and other rates can't come down substantially until the federal funds ease," Jones said, and he is one of a number of analysts who think the Fed has shifted its focus from the funds to the money supply. The Fed's significant draining last week when the funds dipped was "a mopping up of bank reserves that resulted from implementation of the Iranian agreement," Jones said. "I didn't see any policy implications in its actions that particular day."

"I suspect the Fed is puzzled by the money figures now because of a shifting of money to NOW accounts," Jones said. "The Fed will likely keep bank reserves in a holding pattern until it gets a better fix on the money supply." Another peak factor for the Fed to contend with is the surprising strength of the economy in the final quarter of 1980. "The 5 percent growth in the GNP indicates that inflation still isn't under control," Henning said.

"The problem is we don't know what interest rate it will take to slow inflation, and the Fed doesn't know either," Henning said. "Given the uncertainties of the environment we're in, you have to throw the history books out the window."

Compressing Speech Aids Advertising

NEW YORK (UPI) — A machine that cost $38 million to develop could prove a boon to the advertising and entertainment worlds by squeezing recorded speech and music to fit into tight time segments without distortion.

For example, the machine can compress a taped TV or radio commercial that runs 40 seconds into 30 seconds without getting sounds like Donald Duck double-talk.

The device also could stretch speech or music if desired although there doesn't seem likely to be as much of a market for that.

Speed compression has been used for years in the motion picture industry, but successful sound compression is new. There are two machines now on the market. Integrated Sound Systems of Long Island City, N.Y., headed by Stuart Rock, makes the analog machine that cost $38 million to develop. Lexicon Co. of Waltham, Mass., headed by Jack Letscher, makes a digital type machine.

Integrated Sound Systems recently put its machine on the market at $4,000. Previously it had performed sound processing services at a fee. Lexicon sells all its output to professional users.

Both Rock and Letscher said sound squeezing is proving useful in compressing feature films to fit two-hour television slots, in film to tape transfer for cassettes and in sports and special events broadcasting on a tape delay basis. Rock said it also will be useful in the new videodisc recording industry.

Compressing speech and music raises a big psychological question: which is more likely to get the most favorable response from the audience, announcers and actors who speak as rapidly as possible, or more deliberate and normal pacing of the speech?

James MacLachan, a marketing professor at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, N.Y., demonstrated the use of the machines two years ago while he was teaching at New York University. He said then tests indicated a 40 percent better response to commercials pounded out at staccato high speed tempo than at ordinary speed. MacLachan said much of the research on which he based this conclusion was done by professor Michael Siegel at Oneonta State College.

Letscher said experience had shown that letting the orator speak at his normal pace, then compressing it to fit the required time produced a better commercial than making the announcer talk faster.

A reporter for the trade paper Advertising Age, after listening to some commercials compressed 10 percent by the ISS machine, said "Unless he heard before and after spots back to back, the average listener wouldn't notice the acceleration."

MacLachan formed a firm called Timely Decisions to compete with Integrated Sound Systems using the Lexicon machine to offer compression services but later sold the business to Teletronics of New York.

In the early days of broadcasting there was much controversy over the relative merits of the comparatively rapid speech heard on American radio and the deliberately slow pace required by the British Broadcasting Corp. But the BBC programs were non-commercial, so the controversy didn't have much cutting edge.

Some persons undoubtedly find the staccato, high-speed announcing irritating but Rock said there can be little doubt that audiences can absorb more speech than they commonly get on TV and radio and this fact may give sound compression a big future.

He said psychologists and broadcasters were impressed years ago by the way President John F. Kennedy managed to get attention when he spoke.

State Department Expels Cuban

WASHINGTON (AP) — An FBI investigation of alleged attempts to circumvent the ban against U.S. trade with Cuba has prompted the expulsion of a Cuban diplomat and charges that some American companies knowingly violated the law.

The State Department disclosed Wednesday that Ricardo Escartin, a first secretary at the Cuban Interests Section here, has been given one week to leave the United States.

A U.S. official, who asked not to be identified, said Escartin's activities were "criminal, were engaged in openly and over a long period of time and involved a large number of U.S. citizens."

Escartin's expulsion was the first since the United States and Cuba opened their small diplomatic missions in each other's capitals in 1977. The action raised the prospect of a retaliatory move by the Cuban government against an American diplomat in Havana.

Cuba normally follows Soviet practice on foreign policy issues, and the history of Soviet-American relations is replete with cases of retaliatory expulsions of each other's diplomats.

The circumstances surrounding Escartin's expulsion suggested that the American government has had difficulty enforcing the 20-year old ban on U.S.

trade with Cuba.

State Department spokesman William Dyeas said some U.S. companies were unaware that their products ended up in Cuba, but other businesses "knowingly collaborated with Cuba in this illegal trade."

Another official described Escartin's activities as flagrant. "He would fly around the country, meet with American businessmen and tell them, in effect, 'How'd you like to make some bread'

Weinberger Says U.S. Will Hike Defense Before Resuming Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States should greatly strengthen its military forces before reopening arms control talks with the Soviet Union, says Defense Secretary Casper Weinberger.

In an interview in his Pentagon office Wednesday with United Press International, Weinberger said the willingness to "rearm America" and close the military power gap with the Soviet Union rests with the American people.

"I think a lot depends on the wishes of the American people," the secretary said. "At the moment, I think they're very strongly in favor of closing the gap, but that's a feeling that will have to be sustained because it's nothing you can do overnight."

"I think one of the things that is most likely to lead to war is the perception of America as a weak, irresolute nation that is divided and uncertain and ridden by guilt complexes and unwilling to take any kind of action," he said.

The United States, Weinberger said, should not refuse to resume Strategic Arms Limitation Talks with the Russians, "but I think we have to negotiate from a position of considerably greater strength."

"I don't feel that negotiations or discussions would be particularly profitable at this time. I'd like to see quite a different change of attitude on the part of the Soviets."

"I just think," Weinberger said, "we want to have some assurances that if we're going to sit down around the negotiating table that both sides really want some effective limitations made. And that I'd like to see."

Weinberger could not provide a time frame, but indicated a U.S. buildup will take years because of the "very long dates" between a Pentagon decision to produce a new weapon system and the time it becomes operational. The MX missile system, for example, is to be completed in 1989.

"You can't let a serious imbalance develop or remain without inviting very serious consequences and making it very difficult to maintain peace," the new Pentagon chief said.

"And that's why I think this is a decade of very considerable danger to us."

"We have to be realistic and recognize at the moment that Soviet (military) expansion is of very, very great concern," he said. The Soviet buildup "has resulted in a situation in which we have a lot of catching up to do."

Speakers For Religious Groups Detail Government Interference

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the broadest religious gatherings in American history, including Hare Krishnas and "Moonies" as well as Christians and Jews, is hearing a speaker after speaker detail growing government intrusion into church affairs.

Some recent instances of it threaten "the silencing of social and political criticism by religious bodies," said Kansas City attorney John E. Stumbo, a United Methodist representative.

He told how an agency of his denomination, under IRS warnings that the church might lose tax-exempt status, dropped out of a coalition working for gun-control legislation.

The Rev. James E. Wood, a Baptist church-state expert at Baylor University, said growing government intervention in religious operations "constitutes a mounting crisis in American church-state relations."

It is a "serious threat to the prophetic role of religion and to the constitutional guarantee of the free exercise of religion," he said.

Postal Service Head Says Nickel Increase Needed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service would have to seek a second, even larger rate increase, perhaps by the end of the year, if it is not allowed now to charge a nickel more for mailing first-class letters, Postmaster General William F. Bolger says.

The independent Postal Rate Commission is scheduled to announce its decision Feb. 19 on the Postal Service's request to raise first-class rates to 20 cents per letter.

An in-house consumer advocate at the commission has recommended the increase be 3 cents, to 18 cents per letter.

Bolger, speaking Wednesday at the National Press Club, said the 20-cent charge, coupled with higher rates for other classes of mail, "represent the minimum revenue we need to carry on our work."

If the rate commission approves only part of the request, "the Postal Service would have no choice but to seek new, even higher, rates, perhaps before 1981 is out," he said.

If the commission fails to grant the full increase, Bolger said consideration should be given to abolishing the rate-making body.

He said litigation over the rate request has cost about $12.5 million and that the commission's 80 employees have no duty other than to consider Postal Service requests.

Bolger also appealed to postal union leaders to pursue a policy of moderation in negotiations on a new labor agreement this spring.

Public statements of some of postal union leaders "disturb me greatly and lead me to believe they have not fully grasped the state of our national economy," he said.

He did not name the union leaders, but presidents Moe Biller of the American Postal Workers Union and Vincent Sombrotto of the National Association of Letter Carriers, the two largest postal unions, were sitting at the front of the audience as Bolger spoke.

Both were elected since the current labor agreement was negotiated three years ago and both are considered more militant than their predecessors.

"As federal employees, all of us who work for the Postal Service have a special responsibility. ... We cannot ignore the unemployment and other economic ailments that afflict our fellow citizens. It is a "serious threat to the prophetic role of religion and to the constitutional guarantee of the free exercise of religion," he said.

The three-day conference, which opened in suburban Chevy Chase, Md., Wednesday night, is sponsored by Christian and Jewish organizations embracing about 110 million members from 90 percent of American religious affiliations.

They included mainline as well as smaller conservative denominations.

Such controversial groups as Hare Krishnas, Scientologists and Sung Myung Moon's Unification Church also were present because "the least acceptable groups are the most vulnerable victims of government intervention," said conference chairman William P. Thompson.

Thompson, chief executive of the United Presbyterian Church and a lawyer himself, said the meeting probably was the most inclusive religiously in the nation's history.

In any case, the breadth of sponsorship rivaled the religious partnerships formed in the civil rights struggles of the early 1960s.

Backers included the National Association of Evangelicals, made up of conservative groups, the mainline Protestant-Eastern Orthodox denominations of the National Council of Churches, the U.S. Catholic Conference, Southern Baptists and the Synagogue Council of America embracing all three wings of Judaism.

HOTEL BURNED — An exterior view of the Las Vegas Hilton Hotel shows the southeast wing charred from the eighth floor to the roof early Wednesday. Four fires of suspicious origin sent smoke throughout several floors of the 30-story hotel Tuesday night, killing eight people and injuring 242. (AP Laserphoto)

Interior, Contents Of Building Ravaged By Water, Smoke

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Hours after the fire, smoke still hung in the air of the Las Vegas Hilton hotel, some hallways were ankle-deep in black water and soot clung to walls, furniture and carpets.

As returning guests trooped through the fire-and smoke-ravaged hotel to retrieve their hastily abandoned belongings, they found doors smashed open with crow bars — the work of firefighters who searched frantically for survivors of the deadly blaze.

Eight people died and 198 were injured Tuesday when four fires, all the result of arson, erupted in the 30-story hotel.

Hundreds of guests who waited for hours Wednesday to be escorted to their rooms were confronted with an eerie sight.

Hallway lights glowed dimly in a smoky haze. Everything, from floor to ceiling, was coated with a thick layer of soot.

Actual flame damage, however, was confined to one elevator shaft and a few isolated rooms.

A reporter who reached the 20th floor of the tightly secured resort found corridors still inundated with black, ankle-deep water.

Inside one room, a half-eaten sandwich sat in a tray atop a desk covered with grime.

"We're in the farthest wing away from the fire and everything in our room was black," said Bob Hoene, an advertising executive from Helena, Mont. "It's frightening to imagine the rest of the hotel."

"My biege suit is now brown," said Nancy Jones, 30, of Fargo, N.D.

Escorted by hotel employees, guests took elevators to their rooms and came back pushing carts heaped with luggage, some ruined by water and heat.

Stelios Paul, a businessman from Athens, Greece, stood at a counter in the main lobby waiting for a refund. He said he and his wife were watching dancer Juliet Prowse perform when the audience was asked to leave. "We didn't even get to eat the meal we paid for," he said.

Rows of rows of slot machines stood silent in the vacant casino, which was untouched by the blaze.

Nearby, a security official instructed bellboys to watch for signs that rooms had been entered. "If dust has been smeared, we'll know somebody's been in there looting," he said.

Guests who suspected there had been looting were told to file a complaint with the police. Several people had been questioned about looting Tuesday but all were released, and there were no reports of major thefts.

Tragedy Tarnishes Glamorous Image

RENO, Nev. (AP) — America's gambling playground has been plagued by a six-month losing streak: fires, a bombing, extortion threats, a sidewalk car rampage.

Two high-rise hotels in Las Vegas have been ravaged by deadly fires, the most recent Tuesday at the Las Vegas Hilton. An extortionist's bomb shattered a Lake Tahoe casino. A driver ran amok in a deadly rampage along Reno's casino row. Hundreds fled a fire at one of Reno's premiere casinos.

And the nation's economic woes finally have made themselves felt in Nevada, once thought invulnerable to recession.

"Things are not very good," state Gaming Control Board member Jack Stratton said late last year. "We're a little concerned."

Nevada's luck turned sour Aug. 27, when a huge bomb exploded in Harvey's Resort Hotel Casino at Stateline after attempts to meet an extortionist's demand for $3 million fell through. Nobody was hurt, but the blast caused damage estimated at $12 million and triggered hundreds of similar extortion and bomb threats at hotel-casinos in Las Vegas, Reno and Lake Tahoe.

Last November, a ball of fire raged through the casino of the MGM Grand hotel in Las Vegas. The Nov. 21 blaze left 84 people dead and more than 700 injured. Dozens of lawsuits seeking millions of dollars in damages have been filed against the resort.

Three days after the MGM blaze, a grease fire in a basement kitchen at Harrah's in Reno forced the evacuation of hundreds of people from the towering hotel. There were no injuries.

Then on Thanksgiving afternoon, as hundreds of tourists thronged casino row, a car raced down the crowded sidewalk, killing six people and injuring two dozen more.

Priscilla Ford, 51, of Reno was charged with six counts of murder in the case.

And on Tuesday, suspicious fires erupted in the Las Vegas Hilton, leaving eight people dead and 198 injured.

The state's economic troubles began earlier.

On July 10, the state gaming commission shut down the Aladdin Hotel's casino in Las Vegas after the convictions of several hotel officials on charges of allowing organized crime to infiltrate the corporation.

The shutdown resulted in 1,800 layoffs until the casino was reopened in October by entertainer Wayne Newton and gaming figure Ed Torres.

Since Nevada does not break down casino profits by club, the effects of the string of events on specific clubs cannot be calculated.

Sprinkler Bill Introduced In Legislature

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — A bill requiring Nevada casinos to install sprinkler systems was introduced coincidentally in the state Senate as fire officials were investigating the fatal Hilton Hotel fire in Las Vegas.

Two senators said Wednesday they had planned to introduce the measure before learning of the blaze, the second major hotel fire in Las Vegas in the past three months.

The bill faces heavy opposition from casino owners because of the enormous cost of installing new safety equipment in existing hotels, said Sen. Bill Hernstadt, a Las Vegas Democrat who co-sponsored the bill with Sen. Joe Neal of North Las Vegas.

But "when you're dealing with people's lives, you can't put a dollar amount on it," he said. "The idea of the bill is not to be punitive or to punish the casinos. It is to get them to retrofit."

The bill was referred to the Senate Human Resources Committee.

The two lawmakers said they formulated the bill after the Nov. 21 fire at Las Vegas' MGM Grand hotel which killed 84 people.

Hernstadt said casinos should welcome the measure because "it is in their best interests to make people feel comfortable. We have to set standards where people will feel safe in Nevada. People are no longer confident. It's frightening."

Casinos have opposed sprinkler adoption in the past because of their "enormous costs" and "because sprinklers look ugly," he said. But from now on when people look up and see the big ugly sprinklers, they're going to be awfully happy."

Suspect In Arson Called Quiet, Private Person

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — The Las Vegas Hilton busboy, arrested in the killer blaze that swept through the 30-story resort, was a loner who lived in a tiny, neat room, the brother and sister who shared a house with the suspect said today.

Phillip Cline, 23, described by police as 5'9", thin, with brown hair, brown eyes and fair skin, appears to have lived a quiet, orderly life, but a source close to the investigation said Cline watched the Las Vegas Hilton burn for "sensual gratification."

"Investigators believe the motive was sensual gratification, apparently some kind of sex hang-up," the source said.

Cline lived in a home owned by Mike Misuraca and his sister, Patty, for almost two months prior to his arrest Wednesday.

Miss Misuraca said her brother and Cline are casual friends, and that Cline rented the room because of their friendship. Mike Misuraca also is a Hilton employee in the catering department.

Cline kept to himself much of the time when he was home and had little contact with other members of the household, Miss Misuraca said. He seemed to have few friends, and never brought anyone home.

When not working as a busboy, he went quietly to his neat room and read. There is no TV in the sparsely furnished apartment.

Most of the space in his room was taken up by a white couch and a chair.

On one wall hangs a sensitive water-color painting of a woman posing among water reeds. The picture overshadows everything else in the room. About a dozen books rest quietly on a small white table. Most are nonfiction. Another table contains an atrium with plants.

Miss Misuraca said she never knew Cline well, but nevertheless she appeared stunned by Cline's arrest.

Cline told the couple he had come to Las Vegas from Canada, that he was born in Washington, D.C. and that his mother lives in France, she said. But he never mentioned anything more to them about his family or background.

Police said Cline worked as a busboy at the MGM and Caesars Palace before taking a job at the Hilton. They said Cline was working the night shift Tuesday, picking up trays in the Hilton's east tower when the fire broke out.

Commander Eric Cooper of the Las Vegas Metropolitan Police Department said the busboy was the first to report the hotel blaze and was one of four suspects questioned at the fire scene shortly after the blaze started.

"Certain inconsistencies in his statements led us to question him further," Cooper said.

Nevada Gov. Robert List warned at a news conference Wednesday that Cline could face the death penalty because of the crime.

H&R BLOCK TAX TEST

Question No. 9

Income averaging can save you money. But only if you make more than $30,000 a year.

True  False

What you don't know about income averaging could cost you money.

H&R Block knows that no matter how much you make, if your income went up substantially last year you may be able to income average. We'll take advantage of this if it's to your benefit. The answer is FALSE, since there is no minimum amount of income required to qualify.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP)—Grain and soybean futures prices closed higher Wednesday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Heavy trade by commission houses was noted in the wheat and oats pits. A milling and cereal interest bought oats for July delivery and later sold oats for May delivery.

A trader in wheat said there was strong buying by commission houses against selling by commercial interests.

Soybeans drifted higher in activity dominated by local traders, sources on the floor said. Locals were said to be buying to cover commitments for delivery amid a lack of news to provide direction for the market.

"There is nothing here," one trader said. "People talk about the rain and about Poland—they use the same news 28 times."

Early in the day, some traders had noted the continued tension between Poland and the Soviet Union over Polish labor unrest. Developments there have tended to create fear of an expanded trade embargo against the Soviets.

"That news is so old," a trader said. "People keep taking old news and keep pretending to trade off of it," another said. "But they are just trading."

At the close, soybeans were 2 cents to 8 1/4 cents higher, the contract for March delivery was $7.51 a bushel; oats were 1 1/2 cents to 5 cents higher, March $2.36 1/4 a bushel; wheat was 1/4 cent lower to 3/4 cents higher, March $4.56 1/4 a bushel; corn was 1 1/4 cents to 3 cents higher, March $3.62 3/4 a bushel.

U.S. Balloonists Begin Daring Attempt To Fly Around World

LUXOR, Egypt (AP)—Two daring Americans, buffeted against subzero temperatures, lifted off today in an attempt to make the first nonstop, manned balloon flight around the world.

Texasgulf Executives Killed In Jet Crash

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP)—Five top executives of Texasgulf Inc., a mining and chemical company that had just recorded its best year yet, died as their private jet crashed in fog and rain while attempting an instrument landing approach here, officials said.

The pilot and co-pilot of the small private jet also were killed in the crash, which occurred at 6:45 p.m. Wednesday on a swampy, wooded peninsula near Ryle Lake, a mile north of the Westchester County Airport, authorities said.

County emergency crewman Murray Bennett said rescue crews found the aircraft was "all broken up."

"They knew immediately they couldn't help the survivors because they knew there weren't any," Bennett said.

The bodies were found among the scattered, burning wreckage.

The Westchester County medical examiner was examining the bodies today to confirm identifications.

According to the Federal Aviation Administration, the four-engine Lockheed Jetstar was owned by Texasgulf, of Stamford, Conn.

Texasgulf spokesman William Askin resort under the midday sun.

The flight had been delayed repeatedly as the balloonists waited for winds to shift so that they would pass south of Iran after a threat from Tehran that they would be treated as hostile aircraft if they entered Iranian air space.

"We are holding our breath about the winds aloft," Anderson said as he arrived at Luxor airport in his green flight suit.

"It's not that the winds improved today, but that they worsen Friday and Saturday."

Anderson said he and Ida expected to reach an altitude of 30,000 feet in three hours. The beginning of the trip would be slow because winds are light, he added.

They should be over Saudi Arabia 25 hours after launch, said Anderson, who became the first person to cross the Atlantic Ocean by balloon when he piloted the Double Eagle II from Canada to France in 1978.

A malfunction in a key electrical component delayed the liftoff for several hours today. It was the fifth time the flight had been put off.

"They have a problem with a small, essential item," the expedition's weather director, Bob Rice, said in a telephone interview from his headquarters at a private weather forecasting service outside Boston, Mass.

Rice said he did not know what part had malfunctioned or what the problem was.

The 20-story-high balloon is named after the 19th century French novelist Jules Verne who wrote the tale of Philaeas Fogg's 80-day balloon trip around the world.

The flight, if successful, will take from eight to 10 days of drifting through the world's bitter-cold skies at maximum altitudes of about 30,000 feet.

The path of the Jules Verne would carry the craft across Saudi Arabia and south of Iran, south of the Himalayan Mountains, which are the world's highest, across China and Japan and out into the wintry north Pacific.

The air currents would ferry the enclosed, but not pressurized, gondola just south of the Arctic Circle off the west coast of Alaska, then south across the United States, over the North Atlantic and Europe and back to North Africa, possibly touching down near the launch point in Egypt.

identified four of the executives aboard the aircraft as Dr. Charles F. Fogarty, chief executive officer and chairman of the board; corporate vice presidents Gordon N. McKee Jr., Robert J. Boyle, and Frank J. Claydon Jr.

The others aboard were Clarence E. Drew, manager of corporate communications; aviation manager and pilot J. Morgan Gregory; and co-pilot Stanley Sorenson, Askin said.

He said the four had flown Tuesday to Toronto for a planning meeting with the Canada Development Corp., Texasgulf's principal owner.

According to the FAA, the pilot on the return trip had been cleared for an instrument landing because of rain and fog. Visibility at the time was one-eighth of a mile, the FAA said.

The crash was the worst such incident in 26-year history of the airport, the fourth busiest in the state.

Texasgulf mines sulfur, gold and other resources in North America. It also produces oil and gas and is exploring in several countries for other resources.

Texasgulf was "on the crest of the top" of its field at the time of the crash, officials said.

EMS Evaluating Response Time For Ambulances

 1975-76. But Enabnit said one of the stations, at 48th Street and Avenue Q, was closed two days a week after Lubbock County commissioners decided the station did not receive enough calls to warrant being operative seven days a week.
 Later, a hospital management firm formerly employed by the district put the 48th Street station back on a seven-day schedule, but cut the hours to eight a day for monetary reasons, he said.
 Now that the hospital's financial woes are not as pressing, Enabnit said an in-depth review of the ambulance system is warranted to find out where the population needs are.
 EMS financial operations resulted in a $24,000 deficit last year, but this concern seems to fall behind that of the response times. Enabnit said the service ethically could not be run as a profit-making entity because of its responsibilities to those needing emergency care and because of the service, like Lubbock General Hospital, is supported by tax money.

 But, he said, included in the comparative study will be feasible ways to minimize the deficit without lowering the service delivered.
 Although EMS revenues were up last year, Enabnit said the collection rate of the ambulance system probably runs in the 50 to 60 percent range. Enabnit feels progress has been made, however, in the number of lives ambulance personnel have saved and the better quality of care administered.
 Employee turnover within his operation stays around 10 percent, and of the 20 persons employed, 14 will be qualified as paramedics by May. A federal grant provides matching money for personnel to be trained, he said, resulting in all but one of the employees having at least some special skill training beyond that required to be an emergency medical technician.

 Enabnit also feels a better control on "no-transport runs," many of which result from prank phone calls, will help alleviate timing problems. An effort to stop the calls was initiated to cut 1979's 30 percent no-transport calls figure to 22 percent in 1980.
 Enabnit said better screening of the calls and detective work to track call abusers resulted in the drop. Enabnit noted a substantial number of the calls were traced to children calling EMS through a pre-programmed service which allows a number to be reached by dialing one digit on the telephone.

Coast Guard Resumes Search For Victims

PORT O'CONNOR (UPI) — Coast Guard searchers using a helicopter and boats resumed the search early today for five people missing in the icy waters of Matagorda Bay where they were dumped by high seas that ravaged a tugboat and two barges.
 Four of the missing were identified by a Coast Guard spokesman as Haliburton Inc. employees Debbie Cope, Jim Lala, Ken Baze and Arthur Volkert.
 Apparently the Haliburton employees were being transported either to or from an offshore oil well, said Coast Guard Lt. J.G. Eddie Mayenschein. Haliburton is an oil well service firm.
 The captain of the tugboat was rescued from a mud island a few hours after the accident. He told his rescuers he gave orders for all aboard the tug to floatation devices and abandonment when the tug and the barges began to break up late Tuesday.

 The towboat sank in 20 feet of water near the entrance to Port O'Connor early Wednesday. Salvage crew raised the tug about 18 hours later. No one was aboard.
 A Coast Guard spokesman in Corpus Christi said the tugboat was brought up about 8 p.m. Wednesday and towed to the station at Port O'Connor. Divers Wednesday afternoon had entered icy waters to probe the tug for possible survivors, but no one was found inside.
 Meanwhile, the tugboat's hefty captain, Tom DeForest, was in good condition at Taylor Memorial Hospital in Port Lavaca. He was found semiconscious and suffering from hypothermia on an island beach north of the accident site.
 Hospital officials said DeForest, a 300-pounder whose birthday was Wednesday, survived because a layer of fat kept him from dying of exposure.
 His body temperature was 85 degrees when he entered the hospital, but treatment raised the temperature to normal.
 The two barges were located, both of them beached in the vicinity of the wreck, which is between Corpus Christi and Galveston.

Four Women Killed In Airplane Crash

HOUMA, La. (AP) — Rescue workers pulled the charred bodies of four women from the wreckage of a small plane that crashed into a swamp after trying to land in rainy weather, authorities say.
 The victims were identified as pilot Mary Watson, 47, and three members of a Houma family. Mrs. Watson and her husband reportedly owned a company that charters flights and offers flying lessons.

U.S. Customs Wants To Seize Ship

HOUSTON (UPI) — The U.S. Customs Service has asked the State Department for permission to confiscate a 475-foot Colombian freighter recently found for the third time in eight months to be smuggling drugs.
 Customs spokesman Charles Conroy indicated Wednesday no final decision had been made on the request.

"We've decided what we want to do, but because of the international implications of the situation, we're being careful," he said.
 Customs officials said none of ship's officers or crew admitted knowledge of 14 pounds of cocaine found aboard by a drug-sniffing dog Feb. 8, and usually in such cases the ship's owner is fined.

Parents Gain Useful Teaching Experience

 The time also has served as an opportunity for "recommitment" to the goals of the non-graded, individualized approach to education Iles provides, Nevius said. For the large number of new teachers, the in-service has acquainted them with those goals, he added.
 Nevius said the school is achieving the goals, such as involvement of parents and flexible, individualized instruction, but that they are "not accomplished." There is more to offer, he said.
 The Tech professor said the participation of 55 parents and 19 university staffers in the in-service "is a measure of the commitment of people looking at this (Iles) as an alternative education for children."

Tough School Policy Credited For Better Attendance Records

 most of the attendance figure improvement to a policy that was initiated at the beginning of the school year. Secondary school principals were authorized to deny course credit to students absent from a class more than 12 days during a semester. Principals also may send students packing from classes they habitually miss.
 The policy "was another tool to give principals in order to put pressure on students" to come to class, Weaver said. "Attendance is one of the biggest headaches for a principal."
 He said teachers "were appreciative" of the policy and principals "were extremely appreciative."
 The policy is to be used with due process, however, so that students are not penalized automatically. Weaver said he feels the principals used their new power with discretion. "If a principal denied 30 students (course credit) he could have denied 90."
 Weaver noted that the 385 students who had course credit taken away represent only a fraction of one percent of the secondary school student body.
 Coronado principal Max O'Banion said he feels the school "was very successful in building up overall attendance figures." He said he felt he was lenient in dealing with students who were continually absent because of illness and that he was fair with other absentees.
 "We used as much information as we had from parents' and doctors' notes to decide what to do," O'Banion said. He added that parents repeatedly were contacted by letter or phone when their children formed a pattern of absenteeism.
 O'Banion said he received parent support "for the most part" in enforcing the new policy. "I feel like the parents were at the same point we were."
 The Coronado principal said that as a result of the absenteeism policy and also the school's policy that denies credit to students who are tardy eight times to a class, 118 Coronado students were denied credit during the last semester.

 Estacado principal Curtis Gipson said the new policy "has made a big difference in our situation. And I think it has increased interest and pride in their (students) school."
 He said he made a point of contacting parents to arrange conferences when attendance problems arose. "When you contact parents to let them know what's going on, there's no kickback" of protest from them usually.
 Principals have the option of deciding how to deal with students who have credit taken away. Students may have to remain in class anyway, they may be referred to a study hall or they might even be sent to Project Intercept, the district's alternative campus for problem students. If failure to attend classes proves a chronic problem, Weaver said about 20 students were sent to Intercept this year for that reason.

 He said he expects to see an even more remarkable improvement in attendance as students realize that the policy will be enforced. "Kids need to understand at some point in their lives that they need to meet responsibilities. They have to realize if they miss work, eventually they're going to be fired. They establish a pattern in school that carries over in the world of work and the rest of their life."

The 26-Week Money Market Certificate

Put in $10,000, and get back

$10,742

26-week return reflects interest earned on $10,000 principal and accumulated interest for 26 weeks at current rate.

Current rate of 14.680 yields 15.849

Best of all, at First Texas Savings, your money is always available. Penalty on early withdrawal is 3 months' interest** and only on the amount withdrawn. And as a convenient reminder, you will be automatically notified prior to renewal.

Also ask about our 2 1/2-Year Money Market Certificate.

So, before you put your money anywhere, remember: Others may keep you even in the 80's, but First Texas Savings will keep you ahead.

Feb. 12 thru Feb. 18

Federal regulations prohibit compounding of interest on 26-Week Money Market Certificates. Annual yield assumes reinvestment of principal and interest at maturity at the same annual interest rate. However, the annual interest rate is subject to, and likely to, change at maturity.

**Recent federal regulations require principal reduction if sufficient interest does not exist.

Keesee Rejects Proposed Drug Treatment Program

A methadone program pitched to Sheriff Sonny Keesee by a local social services agency and aimed at jail inmates who also are heroin addicts was, in effect, turned down Wednesday by the sheriff.

The program, proposed by Oscar Jones of Mental Health-Mental Retardation, would utilize the narcotic pain killer to relieve the effects of heroin while allowing the addict to still function somewhat normally. But Keesee Wednesday said he was skeptical of the program, and added that the present three-day "detoxification" program used at the jail is sufficient.

My thinking is that if they can make it work in the jail, why don't they make it work on the street?" Keesee said. "I believe they're (MHMR) saying that if a man has access to the drug (methadone), he won't have to rob and steal to get it."

"My theory is that if they're in jail, they're not going to rob and steal anyway," he said.

Addicts who become jail inmates currently are prescribed medication in pill form for three days, after which Keesee says, "they're fine. We haven't lost a one yet."

Keesee, however, said that if Lubbock County Jail Dr. James Morris approves of the methadone program, "I'd be willing to sit down and talk about it."

The methadone program, still experimental, has in the past received both praise and criticism from those in the medical and social service communities.

Texas Commerce Names New Director To Board

C.B. Carter, chairman of the board of Texas Commerce Bank, has announced the election of Keith McKeever as a director of the bank. McKeever has served the bank as executive vice president and advisory director since August, 1980.

He is a graduate of Stamford High School and received his BBA degree in finance from West Texas State University. He joined the comptroller of the currency as a national bank examiner in February 1968 and served in the Wichita Falls and Lubbock subregion. He was the examiner in-charge of the Lubbock area from 1974 to 1976. He served as president of a Tahoka bank from 1977 until he joined Texas Commerce Bank in 1979 as senior vice president.

McKeever, a commissioner to the Urban Renewal Agency, is a member of the downtown Rotary Club and was a loaned executive to the United Way Campaign. He is a member of the Chamber of Commerce and other civic organizations.

Other directors re-elected were C.B. Carter, Tommie Stevens, George N. Atkinson, Charles C. Beall Jr., Dan Davis, Ray J. Diekmeyer, R.C. Douglas M.D., John A. Flygare, John A. Hughes, Mike Irish, Richard A. Jennings, James L. Latch, W.R. McKinsey, Ethel McLeod, W.G. McMillan Jr., George C. Miller, W.D. Noel, Robert H. Stafford, Claude Tatum II, Dixon White.

Advisory directors appointed were Frank H. Chappell Jr., J.L. Irish and Clyde G. Tatum.

Attacks On N-Plants Predicted

AUSTIN (UPI) — A public safety commissioner is predicting Texas nuclear plants and electrical distribution systems will be targets for terrorism in the near future, and the best deterrent will be a well-trained, well-paid state police.

"We're going to see terrorism in the United States like you see in foreign countries," W.C. Perryman said Wednesday at Senate Nominations Subcommittee hearings on his nomination.

"The public utilities are asking us for help and advice because they know they are going to be targets."

But the state troopers who will have to fight that terrorism are making less money than police in equal jobs in Houston, Dallas and San Antonio," he said.

Perryman, who once served on Ross Perot's "War on Drugs Commission," described the cooperation of the Department of Public Safety with the campaign.

"The staff spent two nights working (on a recent Perot project) and every bit (of the expense) was picked up by Ross Perot personally," Perryman said. "He is probably the most patriotic man in America."

Perryman's enthusiasm for the Dallas computer millionaire and anti-drugs campaigner brought a warning from Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena.

"I would ask you to remember that the DPS must remain independent of anyone's political activity," Brooks said. "If Mr. Perot's organization moves toward political activity, I would want the Department of Public Safety to disengage immediately. Be wary of political

Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, said Wednesday the sex offenders "have no prison" to help them while they're in prison.

"Many are simply discharged and there is no follow-up, no counseling, no psychiatric help," he said. "They're usually back in (prison) within six to eight months after they are released or paroled."

Brooks said there are 2,100 inmates in Texas prisons now for sex-related convictions, an increase of more than 200 percent since 1974.

Senators Hope Sex Counseling Will Reduce Repeat Offenders

AUSTIN (UPI) — The Senate is seeking counseling programs for persons convicted of sex related crimes in the hope of cutting down on the high number of repeat offenders.

Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, said Wednesday the sex offenders "have no prison" to help them while they're in prison.

"Many are simply discharged and there is no follow-up, no counseling, no psychiatric help," he said. "They're usually back in (prison) within six to eight months after they are released or paroled."

Brooks said there are 2,100 inmates in Texas prisons now for sex-related convictions, an increase of more than 200 percent since 1974.

Williams is credit administration manager for the bank. He is a 1969 graduate of Texas Tech and before joining First National in 1977, he was a senior examiner for the Federal Reserve Bank in Dallas. He also is active in the Lubbock Lion's Club.

Rinehart, a 1975 graduate of Texas Tech, was assistant controller prior to his promotion. A Certified Public Accountant, he graduated with high honors and was awarded the Reginald Rushing Outstanding Student Award in 1975 at Texas Tech. He is a member of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants and a member of the Lubbock chapter of the Texas Society of CPAs. He also is treasurer of the Caprock Council of Girl Scouts of America.

Other promotions announced by Yandell included:

Don Green, an assistant vice president, has been promoted to vice president in the installment loan department. The Brownfield native attended South Plains Junior College. Prior to joining the bank in 1978, he had extensive experience in the consumer lending field.

Ron Lewis, assistant vice president, was promoted to vice president with responsibility for loan recovery and letters of credit. He is a 1976 graduate of Texas Tech.

Steve Exter was promoted to assistant vice president and trust officer. A native of Olton, he is a 1974 graduate of the Texas Tech School of Law. He is a member of the Lubbock Lion's Club and Phi Alpha Delta Law Fraternity.

John Kiefer, assistant cashier, was promoted to assistant vice president. He joined the bank following his graduation from Texas Tech in 1976. He has completed the Texas Tech Intermediate School of Banking and is manager of the involvement of the department." "He personally told me he is not even going to run for political office," Perryman said. "No one I know of on the War on Drugs Commission has any political aspirations."

"It's just something to watch for," Brooks said. "The Department of Public

PTA Official Reports Students Leaving School To Drink Beer

AUSTIN (AP) — Connie Weedon of Bryan, speaking for the state PTA, says "one school after another" must deal with the problem of students who leave school during lunch periods to drink beer at nearby stores.

Mrs. Weedon said adults, "need to create an environment to protect children."

She told the Senate State Affairs Committee on Wednesday of students drinking beer and either skipping afternoon classes or "coming back and throwing up."

She said the students claim school officials cannot tell them what to do on their lunch hour.

Grocery and package store owners, however, complained it would be unfair to pass a law extending the buffer zone from 300 feet to 500 feet between stores that sell alcoholic beverages and schools and places of worship.

The 500-foot limit in the bill by Sen.

Senators Hope Sex Counseling Will Reduce Repeat Offenders

"Little or no attention is paid to the particular factors which made these persons sex offenders and which may or may not lead them to commit future sex offenses," Brooks said.

His bill, passed unanimously and sent to the House, would establish an Interagency Council on Sex Offender Treatment to study treatment methods for sex offenders and to distribute funds for treatment programs.

The Senate also passed a bill that would regulate invention development companies, which offer to develop and find markets for inventions.

Sen. John Traeger, D-Seguin, sponsor of the bill, said a typical invention development company was the subject of a recent "60 Minutes" report on CBS televi-bank's proof department.

Wanda Maimbourg has been promoted to assistant trust officer and assistant cashier. A 15-year employee of First National, she is completing requirements of the Certified Employee Benefits Specialist Program. She is a member of the National Association of Bank Women and is secretary of the Lubbock chapter.

Gary Swain, assistant cashier, was promoted to assistant vice president. He is a graduate of the Intermediate School of Banking at Texas Tech and is a loan officer in the installment loan department. Swain has been active in civic activities and is assistant vice president of the Texas Bankers Association's Installment Loan Division.

Cecile Tyson, assistant cashier, was promoted to assistant vice president. The 16-year bank employee is a real estate loan officer. She also is a member of the Zonta Club of Lubbock, serving as vice president.

Steve Andrews, who joined the bank in 1978, was promoted to loan analysis officer with responsibility for the loan analysis section of the bank's credit department. He is a graduate of Texas A&M and has been active in numerous civic fund raising campaigns.

Bonnie Brannan was promoted to Safety really belongs to all the folks, all the people."

Rep. Jerry Benedict, D-Angleton, and Sen. Kent Caperton, D-Bryan, have accused members of Perot's organization of asking their constituents to lobby them to vote for the bills.

Rep. Lynn Nabers, D-Brownwood, chairman of the Criminal Jurisprudence Committee, said last week the committee might investigate the possibility that Perot's committee, which is financed by state and federal money, might be trying to influence legislation.

State law prohibits the use of the state funds to influence legislation.

TCLU Backs Portion Of Parole Measure

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements' bill reorganizing the Board of Pardons and Paroles has one provision that even the Texas Civil Liberties Union supports.

TCLU Executive Director John Duncan, who appeared before the House Security and Sanctions Committee late Wednesday night to testify against most of the bill, said his group favors the program establishing halfway houses as alternatives to parole.

"The sponsor of this bill says it's the best one in the governor's anti-crime package," Duncan said. "And that may be true, because the halfway houses are good. And we've had a great deal of trouble finding anything in the package to support."

The measure, sponsored by Rep. Gerald Geistweidt, R-Mason, allocates $4.5 million to initiate halfway houses to "release the parolee into a controlled atmosphere, help him find a job and make the transition back into society," according to David Dean, Clements' general counsel.

"This is a much better situation than giving the inmate $200 and just hoping he makes it back to Amarillo or wherever," Dean said.

The measure also permits the governor to appoint the chairman and vice-chairman of the three-member parole board. At present, the members themselves select their officers.

In its most controversial provision, the bill makes the six parole commissioners — currently appointed by the governor, chief justice of the Texas Supreme Court, and chief judge of the Court of Criminal Appeals — employees of the board.

Home Profit Tax Can Be Deferred

than that $45,000, they will have a profit.

But in actuality, here is how it worked out:

Home No. 2 was sold a few years later for $85,000. Since the home had an adjusted basis for tax purposes of $45,000, a $40,000 profit was realized.

Was it taxable? It all depended on what happened next.

Our homeowners bought home No. 3 for $110,000. Since they "moved up" — that is, they bought at a still higher price — there again was no tax to pay. Again, they adjusted the basis of their latest home by subtracting the $40,000 untaxed gain from their latest purchase price.

For tax purposes, home No. 3 had a cost basis of $70,000. Nevertheless, it had a market price of $110,000, and when it was sold after five more years of inflation for $170,000, there should have been a profit of $100,000.

Was it taxable then? AGAIN, it escaped any income tax. The sellers were 55 or older at the time of the sale, so they took advantage of another special tax rule.

These are the broad rules on the taxability of profit on the sale of a home. There are many special rules covering the improvements put into the home during your period of ownership, the handling of closing costs including a real-estate agent's commission and the special rules that apply to so-called fixing-up expenses in getting a home ready for sale.

All those special rules and the forms to be completed are detailed in the book "Cut Your Own Taxes and Save" by Ray De Crane. For your

'The Sparklers'

THEY NORMALLY ARE brethren to the figures in a wax museum. They normally are the innocent bystanders, front-row spectators who managed to sneak in without paying.

They normally are the huddled masses, yearning to be free of anonymity. They are the ordinary people of basketball, high school or college. They are the missing links in the chain of victory. They may as well hold their breath underwater for 40 minutes.

Alas, they are the riders of the bench. Their careers usually are spent in quarantine at courtside. Take most of them out of a sitting position and they immediately are accused of playing out of position.

Score a point? Not in this lifetime. Break a sweat? Might try hyperventilating. Turn an ankle? The dream died long ago.

For most bench riders, all hope is lost, but for Lubbock Christian College women's basketball coach Dave Simpson, those bench riders are often his best hope. He not only knows each of them by name, he knows that each of them is a part of his team. Functional units.

They fit into Simpson's plans, not just the row of folding chairs at his side. They have a reason for being. And they play, believe it or not. They play!

EVERYONE ON THE LADY Chaps' bench carries a boarding pass. No one is left behind.

Cindy Nix, Kathy Willis, Michelle Byars, Lisa Anglin, Maureen Pair, Lori Miller and Pam Harlas. Remember those names. Simpson has, and so much so that during the team's nine Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association games of 1981, those seven have averaged almost nine minutes per game — apiece.

They may not be the Magnificent Seven, but neither are they the Superfluous Seven. They play with spunk, whether a game is close or not. They are reserves by name, but seldom do they play with reserve once they have entered a game.

The Magnificent Seven? Cindy Nix has concocted a better nickname.

"We're a special group on the bench at LCC," she said. "We call ourselves 'The Sparklers.' It doesn't matter who goes in, we yell for each other, and it doesn't matter if we score, make a steal or make a mistake. We try to add some spark. We want to sparkle."

"I've seen other teams, like McMurry, where they don't put in their bench until the last minute even when they're 20 points down," guard Kathy Willis said. "We all criticized that. You have to give your bench a chance because I know that we practice just as hard as the starters."

"Coach Simpson uses us well. Somebody's gotta be there to support the starters."

LISA ANGLIN AGREED. "None of us have any hard feelings about sitting on the bench," she said. "We back up the starters the best we can. Everybody works hard and everybody looks forward to playing. I'd rather come off the bench and win than have him (Simpson) start me and lose."

The Lady Chap echo chamber received similar sound waves from Michelle Byars.

"He (Simpson) plays everyone just about every game," she said. "That's important to me, it makes me feel I'm more a part of the team. All of us pay attention during a game so you're ready when you go in. Then you do your best and give 110 percent, no matter how long it is. We work very intently."

Maureen Pair added, "Coach has confidence in us when he puts us out there. He knows we can do it. And he plays us quite a bit, which gives us confidence. At my high school (Shallowater), girls would get mad if they were starters and got pulled or were reserves and didn't get to play. Here it's different. We know that the better you do, the more you're gonna get to play."

Cindy Nix believes that Simpson's liberal use of reserves owes as much to the coach's personality as it does to the bench's quality.

"HE DOESN'T WANT TO hurt anyone's feelings," she said. "That's the kinda guy he is. I call him a 'nice-guy coach.' If someone's upset, he'll feel bad about it."

"He uses us pretty much. He tries to make us all feel important, but sometimes I think he should make us feel even more important. When the starters aren't doing so good, why leave them in? Or when somebody's not hustling, he should pull them out. Let them collect themselves and then go back out there. Nobody's in shape to go a whole 40 minutes."

Each of the Lady Chap reserves admits that her goal is either to start or, in the case of Cindy Nix, to at least earn more playing time.

"Starting gives all of us something to work for," Kathy Willis said, "but, me, I'm just happy I made the team. I always knew I wouldn't start. Personally, it just makes me feel really good to know that I can play."

Sometimes, a little sparkle can go a long, long way.

Potts Leaves SMU; NCAA Investigates

A-J News Services
Southern Methodist University athletic director Russ Potts has resigned to become vice president of marketing for the Chicago White Sox but denies his departure is connected with an NCAA investigation into SMU's football program.

Potts, 41, who engineered a promotional blitz that boosted SMU football attendance by more than 25,000 from 1978 to 1979, will begin his new job within two weeks, a team spokesman said Wednesday. He will be responsible for the team's cable TV broadcasts.

His resignation coincided with a surprise announcement by SMU officials that the NCAA was conducting an investigation into the school's football program.

School officials declined to release specifics of the possible violations, although sources said they were based on recruiting practices.

"The NCAA has been in contact with the university and has raised some questions which are concerned with possible rules violations in the conduct of SMU's football program," said SMU president Dr. Donald Shields.

"As is appropriate under these circumstances, the university administration has been conducting a comprehensive fact-finding analysis regarding these questions and will respond to the NCAA when this analysis has been completed."

Both Potts and school officials denied the job change had anything to do with the NCAA probe.

"The two situations are not related," Potts said. "As a matter of fact, in 11 years of college athletics I have a clean record."

"It's terrible that everybody is going to make the connection, but that's not the case," said an SMU official.

Potts has been a friend of White Sox president and co-owner Eddie Einhorn since the early 1970s when Einhorn was president of a network that regularly broadcast Maryland basketball games while Potts was athletic director at Maryland.

During the three years Potts was at SMU, nine of the university's 12 sports teams have ranked in the nation's Top 20.

There was no immediate speculation

Tech Enlists Prep Talent

By NORVAL POLLARD
Executive Sports Editor

Texas Tech and new head coach Jerry Moore, more interested in quality than quantity, signed 16 Texas schoolboy football players Wednesday to Southwest Conference letters of intent and salvaged the 1981 recruiting campaign for the Red Raiders grid program.

Among those 16 were four of the state's top running backs — Jerry Zachery of Midland, Gerald Bean of Houston Yates, Ansel Cole of San Antonio Jay and Ronnie Thomas of Victoria Stroman — and outstanding linebacker prospect Tony Pullins of Houston Aldine.

The Red Raiders also landed two quarterbacks, Keyyn Williams of Houston Lamar and Rusty Roark of Monahan; a pair of big tight ends, Mark Gold of Round Rock and Buzz Tatom of Richardson; several desperately needed defensive linemen, Sid Chambers of Burkburnett, Tim Crawford of Houston Kashmere and Scott Davis of Plano; linebackers William Harris of Stafford Dulles, Wayne Dawson of Temple and Joe McMeans of Jayton; and wide receiver Troy Smith of Amarillo Palo Duro.

Tech's best news of the day came early Wednesday morning when Zachery and Pullins, who both verbally committed to Texas A&M earlier in the recruiting struggle, inked SWC letters with the Red Raiders. The signing of Zachery, a 6-2, 195-pounder, and Pullins, a 6-1, 205-pounder, helped ease the pain of losing stellar Temple running back Kenneth Davis.

Davis promised his services to Tech Monday, but was persuaded by TCU recruiters Tuesday to sign with the Horned Frogs. Davis inked with TCU Wednesday, but also signed a Big Eight letter of intent with Nebraska.

With Zachery, who Moore visions as the perfect I-back, and Pullins secured, the Raiders proceeded to sign Cole, 5-10 175-pounder; Dawson, a 6-0, 190-pounder who played both linebacker and running back at Temple; Harris, a 6-3, 220-pounder and Smith, a 5-10, 175-pounder before noon. As the day wore on, Moore and his staff members signed the prep players who had verbally pledged during the past 10 days to attend Tech.

Tech officials refused to comment on the Wednesday signings and did not release a list of signees. Raiders coaches will not announce their 1981 recruiting crop until next Wednesday, when the binding national letters of intent are signed. Only two SWC coaches, Baylor's Grant Teaff and Texas A&M's Tom Wilson, released official lists of signees to the media Wednesday.

On paper, the 16 recruits signed Wednesday by Tech appear to be a solid bunch.

Zachery, Cole, Pullins, Thomas (5-10, 175), Tatom (6-2, 215) and Chambers (6-6, 245) were all named to Texas Football's elite Top 90 list. Zachery, Cole, Pullins, See RAIDERS, SWC Page 3

Gambler Implicates College Trio

NEW YORK (UPI) — Henry Hill, a government informer in the Lufthansa-Wells Fargo robbery two years ago, says he helped rig nine Boston College basketball games during the 1978-79 season, according to a copyright story in the Feb. 16 issue of Sports Illustrated.

The story, written by staff writer Douglas S. Looney, says Hill, who admits to having links with organized crime, made from $75,000 to $100,000 in gambling profits.

Three players involved on the Boston College team — Rick Kuhn, Jim Sweeney and Ernie Cobb — allegedly received $2,500 each time they cooperated with Hill.

"I'm the Boston College basketball fixer," Hill is quoted in the story. "I paid three Boston College basketball players during the 1978-79 season to shave points — not to blow games — in nine games between Dec. 16, 1978, and March 1, 1979. It cost me $2,500 per player per game — except when they screwed up and I didn't give them anything or cut them back. As a complimentary service, I bet money for the players when they so requested.

"We really had our ups and downs, but when the last pass had been thrown out of bounds, I had won on six of the games, lost on three and made between $75,000 and $100,000. Not bad for 11 weeks' work."

Hill said in the story no other players or coaches were involved in the point-shaving scheme. Cobb, the third highest scorer in Boston College basketball history, has denied any involvement in the point-shaving scheme. Sweeney and Kuhn have not been reached for comment.

Study Approximates Pay Scale Of NFL Players

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. (AP) — Star running back Walter Payton of the Chicago Bears was the highest-paid player in the National Football League last year with $475,000, according to a study published today by the San Francisco Chronicle.

The newspaper, matching names to figures in a supposedly secret NFL annual salary survey, also reported that veteran Bob Griese of the Miami Dolphins earned more than any other quarterback — $400,025.

The survey did not take into account incentive bonuses, which would have raised running back Earl Campbell's pay to about $500,000 from the reported $300,000, the paper added.

None of the players on the Super Bowl champion Oakland Raiders were at the top of the NFL pay scale for their positions.

Only two of the Raiders were among the five best-paid players at their spots: quarterback Dan Pastorini and linebacker Ted Hendricks.

The Raiders generally have been noted for paying substantial — though not extremely high or low — salaries to their players.

Pastorini, who earned $358,333, was injured five games into the season and was replaced by castoff Jim Plunkett, a $200,000-a-year player who led the team to the Super Bowl championship.

The paper said Plunkett's salary turned out to be a great bargain — but that it was a lot to pay for a player who had been cut after the 1977 season by the San Francisco 49ers and who didn't play at all in 1978.

The salaries were listed by position and year of experience "and the process of putting names next to many of the numbers is a relatively simple one, based on public announcements of contracts and discussions with knowledgeable people in the NFL," the Chronicle said.

According to the survey, the league average for all players was $20,657 a year, a 14.2 percent increase above 1979.

Quarterbacks, who averaged $131,206, were the best paid. Running backs averaged $82,000, receivers $75,900, offensive linemen $74,500, defensive linemen $65,600, linebackers $70,750, defensive backs $68,750 and kickers $60,960.

The best-paid running backs, beside Payton, were Billy Sims, Detroit Lions, $277,500; Tony Dorsett, Dallas Cowboys, $220,000; Chuck Foreman, New England Patriots, $300,000, and Campbell.

Trailing Griese among quarterbacks were Archie Manning, New Orleans Saints, $367,500; Pastorini; Terry Bradshaw, Pittsburgh Steelers, $328,500 and Bert Jones, Baltimore Colts, $300,000.

Houston's Ken Stabler earned $282,000; Ken Anderson, Cincinnati Bengals, $275,000; Richard Todd, New York Jets, $266,667; Jim Hart, St. Louis Cardinals, $250,000; Steve Barikowski, Atlanta Falcons, $230,750; Craig Morton, Denver Broncos, $221,667; Dan Fouts, San Diego, $200,000; Joe Ferguson, Buffalo, $200,000; Greg Landry, Baltimore, $185,000; Plunkett; Doug Williams, Tampa Bay Buccaneers, $131,750, and Phil Samms of the New York Giants, $131,333.

The best-paid receiver was Jets' rookie Johnny Jones, with $264,206. Harold Carmichael of the Philadelphia Eagles and Riley Odoms of Denver got $200,000; Russ Francis of New England, $198,333; Lynn Swann, Pittsburgh, $195,250; Wesley Walker, Jets, $197,143; and Wes Chandler, New Orleans, $187,815. Denver offensive linemen Claude Minor, Bill Bryan and Tom Glasco earned $200,000, $156,667 and $155,000, respectively, on a line that allowed 44 sacks last year. Kansas City paid Brad Budde $145,833. Oakland gave Gene Upshaw and Art Shell $137,500 apiece and New England paid John Hannah $150,400.

The best-paid defensive lineman was Chicago's Alan Page at $233,333. Pittsburgh's Joe Greene earned $211,750.

Oakland's Cedrick Hardman earned between $115,000 and $145,000.

Among defensive backs, Mike Haynes of New England was tops at $241,667, followed by Eric Harris of Kansas City at $230,000 and Louie Wright of Denver, $200,000.

Mark Moseley of Washington, at $130,000, was the top-paid kicker. Oakland's Ray Guy, was listed sixth, at $88,571.

Mustang Football Undergoes Probe

Head football coach Ron Meyer was out of town on a recruiting trip Wednesday and was not available for comment.

The Mustangs finished regular season play 8-2, good enough for a second-place tie with Houston in the Southwest Conference and a trip to the Holiday Bowl. The Mustangs lost to Brigham Young, 46-45, in the closing seconds.

Potts would not comment on the reported investigation, saying it would be up to the school president to make any comment.

The NCAA will not discuss the pending investigation. "As usual, our stance is that we can neither confirm nor deny an investigation," said NCAA investigator Hale McMillan.

When the NCAA investigates a school for possible violations, there are several stages of the investigation. The first comes when the NCAA notifies the school president of possible violations.

The second step comes when the NCAA sends an investigator to the school. The NCAA then completes the investigation and sends "an official letter of inquiry" to the school president.

The school is then asked to conduct its own investigation which can last three months and extensions can be granted.

The Dallas Times Herald said today that the SMU investigation has reached the stage where the school is conducting its own investigation.

When SMU responds to the letter of inquiry, the matter would then go before the NCAA committee on infractions which will decide if any rules have been violated.

SMU's football team was on probation between 1974 and 1976 because of allegations that players were paid for such accomplishments as recovering fumbles and other feats. The probation kept SMU from appearing in bowl games or on television for two years of the probation. Dave Smith was football coach at the time.

MONTGOMERY WARD

Raiders, SWC Scurry To Sign Grid Prospects

 Chambers, Smith, Gold (6-5, 230) and Williams (6-4, 215) are all members of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram's Top 100 list of the state's top prospects.

Zachery, who missed almost all of the 1980 season with a broken leg, considered to be one of the top running back prospects in the nation, was recruited heavily by Nebraska, UCLA, Texas and A&M. He's a power runner with great acceleration.

"When Jerry went out it changed our entire offensive strategy," declared Midland coach Pat Cuipepper. "I have to believe it would have been a different season with Jerry in there. He's some kind of football player."

Cole gained more than 1,000 yards rushing in leading San Antonio Jay to the Class 5A state semifinals.

Moore, looking for players with quick feet, landed one in Bean. An All-Greater Houston selection by the Houston Post, Bean has been clocked in the 100 in 9.7 seconds. He averaged eight yards a carry (1,177 yards on 148 tries) and scored eight touchdowns for Yates in 1980.

Thomas, another All-Greater Houston choice, is a 4.6 40 man. He finished his senior year by rolling up 1,382 rushing yards on 225 carries. Thomas had little trouble finding his way to the end zone as his 18 touchdowns substantiate.

Moore, looking for size and quickness at the tight end position, found exactly that with the signing of Gold and Tatom.

Gold had 21 receptions for 350 yards and three touchdowns for Round Rock last season. Gold runs consistent 4.7 40s.

Tatom is not quite as big as Gold, but may be quicker. The Richardson product ran back-to-back 4.6 40s during football season and five of his 13 catches in 1980 went for TDs. He also bench presses 360 pounds.

Williams, big and strong, completed 71 of 178 passes for 945 yards and four TDs. Roark, an excellent all-around athlete, rushed for more than 700 yards and passed for more than 1,000 steps last fall. He covers 40 yards in 4.6 seconds.

Along with losing Davis, there were several disappointing moments for Tech Wednesday. Berger quarterback Shawn Harrington, who had been leaning toward Tech for weeks, signed with TCU with teammate Ed Laswell. The Raiders also lost out on Estacado defensive back Jerry Gray, who inked with Texas, and Matador running back Kelvin White, who is on his way to Oklahoma. Houston Kashmere linebacker Adrian McDowell, believed headed for Lubbock, decided to attend North Texas State.

With the national letter-signing day a week away, Tech was still in the hunt for several of the state's leading prospects: Dallas Adams running back Ron Robinson; Dallas Madison tight end Ronzell Brewer; Greenville running back Robert Lewis and Midland Lee offensive guard Keith Brown, who signed a Big Eight letter with Oklahoma State.

Also Wednesday, Coronado lineman Felipe Elizondo signed a Big Eight letter with the University of Colorado.

While Tech was scurrying to sign its better-than-expected first crop of recruits Wednesday, defending champion Baylor landed what Teaff called his best group of athletes ever, and Texas coach Fred Akers corralled the record-smashing passing combo of Todd Dodge and Brent Duhon.

We did well at running back, too."

Akers signed four Port Arthur Jefferson players, including quarterback Todd Dodge, the first passer in Texas school-boy history to throw for 3,000 yards in one season and his prime receiver, Brent Duhon, who broke state records for most receptions in a season (89) and a career (180).

Texas also got blue-chip linemen Bill Heathcock of North Garland and John Stuart of Clear Lake.

The Aggies landed the most sought-after blue-chip lineman in the state, 6-6, 240-pound Ray Childress of Richardson Pearce. Wilson made Childress his first signee when it became legal at 8 a.m.

Wilson then cashed yet another blue-chip when he signed 6-4, 240-pound Greg Porter of Humble, one of the fastest linemen in the state. Porter has run a 4.6 40.

But Wilson had his share of woes, losing Zachery and Pullins to Tech, blue-chip running back Patrick Franklin of Bay City to Houston and defensive back Byron Linwood to TCU.

Rice landed promising running back Kevin Trigg of Irving Nimitz and quarterback Matt Skinner of Trinity.

Southern Methodist landed Andrews running back Van Peary, considered one of the best in the state, and hoped he doesn't change his mind when he visits Notre Dame next week, and top offensive lineman Andrew Campbell of Highland Park. The Mustangs also wrestled blue-chip linebacker Gary Spann away from TCU.

Arkansas' top signees were quarterbacks Brad Taylor of Danville and Mark Calcagni of Youngstown, Ohio, the younger brother of former all-SWC quarterback Ron Calcagni.

TCU, which hadn't made a serious dent in the recruiting struggle as of Monday, rallied Tuesday and signed several outstanding prospects Monday, including Davis, Linwood, South Oak Cliff quarterback Anthony Gully and defensive back Marvin Foster of Houston Kashmere.

Houston's Defense Keeps Spurs At Bay

By The Associated Press
Defense is making the difference for the Houston Rockets.

Wednesday night it was San Antonio's turn to learn that lesson as Houston shut down the Spurs 108-89. It was the sixth time in the last eight National Basketball Association games that the Rockets have held their opponents under 100 points, and Houston has posted a 6-2 record in that stretch.

"I think it's a part of us now to play great defense," said Houston coach Del Harris. "At halftime we realized they were shooting 60 percent, and we felt with an extra step and a little extra pain we could slow that down."

The Rockets almost slowed it to a halt. San Antonio, which led 56-53 at intermission, managed just 13 points in the third quarter. The Rockets went ahead to stay with a 20-4 spurt at the start of the second half and pulled away to win easily.

Bill Willoughby scored nine of his 15 points for Houston in the third quarter, when the Rockets outscored the Spurs 29-13. But he, too, said the difference was defense.

"Anybody can score," said Willoughby, "but that doesn't do any good unless you are playing defense — and we did tonight."

In the best efforts during their defense,

Attorney Attacks UIL Rule

AUSTIN, (UPI) — A University Interscholastic League rule preventing transfer students from playing varsity football or basketball for one year is too broad-based, an attorney told the Texas Supreme Court.

Clyde Farrell argued before the court Wednesday that the so-called "one-year rule" adopted by UIL is unconstitutional because "it sweeps too broadly and penalizes every student that moves" to a new school.

Although the purpose of the UIL rule is to deter recruitment of high school athletes, Farrell said the rule creates a presumption that every student-athlete who moves to a new school has been recruited.

The attorney represented Jack Sullivan, a former high school basketball player who was forced to miss a year of varsity eligibility because his parents moved from Vermont to Austin in March 1977. Sullivan, 19, and his parents filed a class action suit contending the rule violates the constitutional rights of students whose parents move to a new city during the child's high school years.

Lower courts had granted a summary judgment in favor of the UIL, ruling the organization has the right to impose the rule to control recruiting of athletes.

Farrell said the one-year rule is unconstitutional because it impinges on the individual's rights of family privacy and travel, besides denying the rights of due process and equal protection.

Arguing that the one-year rule does not infringe on the right of interstate travel or the family right to privacy, UIL attorney Carla Cox said, "The family's decision to move is really just the right to interstate travel in another guise."

RICE DUMPS DeCELLO

HOUSTON — Rice guard Anthony DeCello, the only senior on the Owl basketball team, has been released for the remainder of the season, coach Mike Schuler said Wednesday. "The dismissal is a team-related matter and that's all I care to say about it," Schuler said.

side surge, the Rockets have held Atlanta to 81 points and Dallas to a mere 68. And Wednesday night they permitted the Midwest Division-leading Spurs to shoot just 33 percent from the field in the second half, outscoring them 55-33.

Besides the tight defense, the Rockets have also become more patient on offense, a strategy that was not lost on Spurs' coach Stan Albeck.

"There's no question their defense is much better but their utilization of the clock is helping them too," he said. "They're taking 18 to 20 seconds before shooting and the combination of those two factors is making a big difference."

Moses Malone and Robert Reid scored 21 points apiece for Houston. Three-time scoring champion George Gervin was high man for San Antonio with 19, well below his 27-point average.

76ers 122, Cavaliers 120

Julius Erving grabbed a rebound of a missed shot by teammate Darryl Dawkins and dunked it in with one second remaining in overtime to cap his 37-point effort for Philadelphia, which won its fifth game in a row.

Cleveland's Roger Phegley had sent the game into overtime by sinking two free throws with 19 seconds left, capping a comeback from a 15-point deficit.

Celtics 105, Lakers 91
Larry Bird scored 36 points and hauled down 21 rebounds as the Celtics topped the defending champion Lakers in Los Angeles.

Bird, who tied his season high in both categories, played all but the final five seconds after playing 50 minutes in an overtime loss at Seattle Tuesday night. But it was the Lakers who wore down, scoring just 12 points in the fourth quarter as Boston pulled away.

Center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar led Los Angeles with 32 points, but Robert Parish and Rick Robey, the Celtics' two pivots, scored 23 and 19 points, respectively.

Bucks 107, Pacers 101
Milwaukee stretched its Central Division lead over Indiana to 10 games, out-

Tech Plans Net Clinic

"An Evening Of Tennis," which will include two exhibitions and a women's doubles clinic by members of the Texas Tech women's team and several world-ranked players, will be held at The Lubbock Racquet Club Monday evening.

The event, sponsored by Texas Tech Women's Athletics, will feature a women's doubles match, a doubles match between Tech's top two doubles teams and a mixed doubles match featuring Anne Smith, the world's top-ranked women's doubles player, her coach, Warren Jacques, highly-ranked junior player Beverly Bowes and her coach Pancho Walthall.

Tech's top doubles team of Regina Revello and Peggy O'Neil will take on Jill Crutchfield and Kathy Lawson, the second-ranked team, in the women's doubles match. Misses Revello and O'Neil had a 14-4 record last fall while Misses Crutchfield and Lawson were 13-5.

The evening will begin with a players' reception at the home of Tech women's tennis coach Mickey Bowes, 6407 Memphis, at 6 p.m. At 7:15 p.m., the women's doubles clinic will begin at The Lubbock Racquet Club. Drills by the members of the Texas Tech women's team will start at 8:15 and be followed by the mixed doubles and women's doubles exhibitions.

Cost for the clinic, to be taught by Tech women's coach Mickey Bowes and his team members, will be $20 per person. Persons wishing to participate in the clinic must contact the women's athletic department some time today. There will be no admission charged to watch the mixed doubles exhibition or the women's doubles exhibition.

Chap Sticks To Pop For Hays, New-Look LCC

By ERIC GALE

Avalanche Journal Sports Staff

Larry Hays, head coach of the manufacturing firm otherwise known as Lubbock Christian College baseball, surveyed his lineup — 1981's assets and liabilities — and must have wondered to himself: "I know where we are headed ... but will we be worthy?"

Worthy or not, the Chaparrals indeed will host and, as a result, automatically participate in the 10-team NAIA World Series June 2-9 at Chaparral Stadium. This is guaranteed. This is not open to doubt.

And this is a relief to Hays, who is certain of little else regarding his rebuilt squad.

Gone are six names synonymous with LCC baseball. Gone are twice all-America first baseman Tim Leslie, all-America second baseman Steve Brigante, third baseman Kenny Toney, outfielders Tommy Inman and Richard Bowles, and catcher deluxe Bob Nottebart. All but Nottebart were four-year starters, and all six were driving forces on LCC's 54-34 third-place finisher in the World Series of 1980.

There was a team that wore pressure around its neck as though it were a lucky charm. No one argued with Leslie last May after LCC had defeated Texas Wesleyan and Grand Canyon (Ariz.) College in the District VIII-Area 2 playoffs, and in unexpectedly spectacular style, when he said, "This is a tournament team."

So it is true of the '81 Chaps although, come June, Hays hopes it is not true simply by default.

"This is the year of the challenge," he said. "We have so many new people, it's like starting all over again. Last year, I knew what I had. This year, we look like we might be pretty fair — but I'm hoping when I say that."

Hays has coached to a 407-211 record what arguably has been the most successful collegiate athletic program, regardless of sport, in West Texas during the past decade.

Those Chap teams were versatile, defensively sound and with burning speed. Those days seem as a temporary end.

"If you look at us on a practice field, or warming up, we look good because we're good-sized, but we're not going to look that good in the game because we're slow," Hays said. "We don't have any team speed."

"We don't have the quickness I've always looked for and always wanted to have. There are no Inmans or Brigantes. When you have speed, you're going to make the great plays. When you don't have speed, you'll have an adequate defense, at best, and you need to make the routine plays consistently, or you're in trouble."

The 1981 Chaps will run slowly and carry big sticks. This team is geared for the explosive inning, the extra-base hit.

"We've got four or five people who are all capable of hitting the alleys, hitting long balls," Hays said. "With speed, you can whittle away and get a run every inning; this team will have to hope for the big inning. If we run into a real good pitcher who's having a good day, that'll cut down on those big innings. We may have only one or two a game, and we won't be able to pass them up."

New players responsible for the new style include first baseman Leland Creel, a 6-foot-5 and 230-pound transfer from the University of Texas; Hill Junior College transfer and catcher Billy Montemayor; McClelland (Ark.) JC transfer and designated hitter Jeff Craig, and Ranger JC acquisition and right fielder Chet Feldman.

"When we hit with these guys, we may have a little more depth than we did with Leslie, Brigante and Toney," Hays said, "but we at least we know that the other three were clutch hitters. I don't know if the new guys are gonna be that kind. They might be front-runners who hit only when things are going well. Right now, I can't say. It's a question that needs to be answered."

Hays does think that Creel "will follow in the tradition of great first basemen at LCC, people like Leslie and John Harris (now a top prospect of the California Angels' farm system). He has more power than anyone in our lineup."

"Montemayor gives us a different look at catcher than we've had in the past. He's an adequate receiver, nothing like Nottebart, but he can make up for a lot of things with his bat. He'll share time with a veteran, Charlie Casiano, who's a good, heady catcher," Hays said. "Feldman is a well-rounded player with the strongest arm in our outfield, and Craig has good power. When he makes contact, the ball will jump."

Monterey High School graduates and freshmen Randy Ledbetter, left fielder, and Ricky Pinkerton, third baseman, also will start. Ledbetter "hits well with men on base," Hays said, while Pinkerton "was one of our best hitters during fall workouts."

Last year's left fielder, senior Steve Cargil, recently wore a rotator cuff in his shoulder and will be platooned with Ledbetter. His value to the team is in doubt. Also, Pinkerton, who has a minor heel injury, will share time with Hill JC transfer Oscar Cardenas, whom Hays says "has the best range of any third baseman we've ever had at LCC."

Joe Moon, another Hill JC transfer, is the center fielder.

The lone holdover starters for Hays are shortstop Lewis Stephenson and second baseman Karl Mahan, who played right field last year.

"Lewis has real good power for a shortstop, and even though he's not real quick, he's strong," Hays said. "He's also a leader, and that's a plus."

"Mahan's nickname is 'Quick.' He's not a Brigante, but he should be adequate. Let's hope he doesn't butcher it up."

Gary Hix will back up both keystone positions.

Veteran Noel Delgado, who pitched a perfect game and won eight others for LCC last year, is back. He and David Lipscomb (Tenn.) transfers Rod Cline and Jamey Lanahan join him in the starting rotation along with TCU transfer Bo Hargrove, Hill JC hurler Frank Davalos, and returnee Rick Coskey. All are right-handed.

Freshman first baseman Ronny Johns, prep all-America from Ada, Okla., underwent shoulder surgery in the fall and may be redshirted.

Hays demands no immediate results from this team. He wishes to experiment and has the depth to do it. The World Series, remember, is almost four months away.

"We'll be real slow starting until we adjust to each other," he said. "I don't expect a lot early, and we can afford this."

"The fact that we're all trying to re-establish what the program stands for, and develop pride in what we are as an LCC team, may save us. I know it sounds rah-rah, but it's important for us to keep up our tradition. So many programs are built on the idea of kids coming to play pro ball, but we leave that out of the picture altogether. We don't want it to be the kind of program that the kid can't enjoy unless he's doing well himself, pleasing the scouts. We have pride even though we're a small school. Hopefully, we can compete with anyone."

As for Hays himself, there is no doubt of readiness. "Anytime baseball comes around, I'm excited," he said.

"I believe I have a good bunch. They're not considering doing anything but what's best for everybody. I want a chance to win every game we go into. And if things go well, and we improve like I hope we do, I'd like for us to have a chance to get good enough to win the World Series."

Segrist, Red Raiders Search For Proven Pitching

By RAY GLASS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
Texas Tech baseball wants you — if you can hurl a baseball with a fair amount of accuracy, induce hitters to bounce into double plays at crucial times and withstand an occasional six-or-seven-run pounding not uncommon in the college version of America's sport.

Tech is looking for a few good, experienced pitchers to round out its 1981 version of the "Crazy Raiders" — hurlers who will be essential if Tech is to repeat its success of a season ago.

The Raiders lost seven seniors from last year's squad which finished the campaign with a 28-23 overall record and a 14-10 Southwest Conference mark, including 11 of their final 12 SWC games to gain the first-ever post-season playoff berth for a Tech squad.

And Kal Segrist's up-and-down bunch made a ripple at the conference tournament in College Station, losing their first game to Texas 9-2 before eliminating Texas A&M from the tourney 8-5. Arkansas finally ended the Raiders' season with a 6-5 defeat in the semifinals.

Segrist has a nucleus of hitters back from that squad but his young and relatively untested pitching corps will be the key ingredient in the Raiders' recipe.

And that staff will get a stern test right out of the blocks when Tech opens its 50-game 1981 schedule Friday at home against perennial WAC contender New Mexico, weather permitting.

"Pitching, of course, is the big thing every year," Segrist told reporters at a press conference earlier this week. "If the pitching can come around, I feel we can be as good as last year."

Put an exclamation mark after that big "If," Segrist and assistant coach Rick Lindell must replace their entire 1980 starting rotation of All-SWC selection Steve Ibarquien, Mark Johnson, and Jamie Miller.

Last spring the trio accounted for 12 of the Raiders' 14 SWC wins and 127 of the 198 and 2/3 innings tossed in conference games by Tech hurlers.

In fact, Tech lost half of its entire 12-man pitching staff of a year ago and the six returning hurlers accounted for a total of 42 SWC innings, including nearly half by senior letterman Kyle Fahrenthold.

"None of those people have really pitched in SWC games," Segrist said. "Kyle pitched well against A&M in the tournament, but that lack of experience is our big question mark."

"But in the last couple of outings, scrimmages, Kyle has looked real good. We're going to need a real good year from him."

Fahrenthold and junior college transfer David Carroll have nailed down the first two spots in the Tech rotation, at least for the season-opening doubleheader with New Mexico.

The lefthanded Fahrenthold was 1-2 with a 5.88 ERA last season but saved his best performance for the playoff game with the Aggies. With both teams facing elimination, the Bellville native pitched 6 2/3 innings, allowing four hits and no runs.

The lefthanded Fahrenthold was 1-2 with a 5.88 ERA last season but saved his best performance for the playoff game with the Aggies. With both teams facing elimination, the Bellville native pitched 6 2/3 innings, allowing four hits and no runs.

Joining Carroll on the righthander list are: senior Matt Dean, who appeared in five games and threw 13 2/3 innings last season; sophomore Derek Hatfield from Monterey, who was red-shirted last year after transferring from Blinn JC; senior two-year letterman Chuck Johnson, who didn't see action last spring but appeared in 12 games for the Raiders in 1978; junior walk-on Mark McDowell who pitched 16 2/3 innings last season and posted a 1-0 mark; senior two-year letterman Gary Moyer who was 4-4 with a 3.24 ERA in 68 1/3 innings as a freshman but had had two disappointing seasons since then; Monterey freshman Kent Potts who is coming back from an arm injury his senior season in high school.

"We have 12 basic pitchers and we feel we can get a staff out of the best seven or eight," Segrist said.

Carroll, a 6-foot, 200-pound righthander from Panola JC, was one of three transfer players Segrist signed and earned the starting nod with a solid performance during fall practice, Segrist said.

Gene Segrist, a sophomore letterman from Coronado, will be given the third start of the season against the Lobos Saturday. The righthander Segrist was 1-1 for Tech a year ago but worked only 12 1/3 innings. He can also play both third and first base.

The other two lefties among Tech pitching hopefuls are senior two-year letterman Robert Bryant, who was 3-1 in five games and 21 innings of work last spring, and freshman Glenn Caperton of Dallas Adams High School.

Joining Carroll on the righthander list are: senior Matt Dean, who appeared in five games and threw 13 2/3 innings last season; sophomore Derek Hatfield from Monterey, who was red-shirted last year after transferring from Blinn JC; senior two-year letterman Chuck Johnson, who didn't see action last spring but appeared in 12 games for the Raiders in 1978; junior walk-on Mark McDowell who pitched 16 2/3 innings last season and posted a 1-0 mark; senior two-year letterman Gary Moyer who was 4-4 with a 3.24 ERA in 68 1/3 innings as a freshman but had had two disappointing seasons since then; Monterey freshman Kent Potts who is coming back from an arm injury his senior season in high school.

"We have 12 basic pitchers and we feel we can get a staff out of the best seven or eight," Segrist said.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — UCLA basketball coach Larry Brown says his criticism of what he considers some of the university's shortcomings doesn't mean he's headed back to the pro coaching ranks.

"I don't mean it that way. I don't want to threaten anybody. I just wanted something better for the kids," he said Wednesday when asked if he was disillusioned about remaining in Westwood.

Brown, whose name has been linked with the New Jersey Nets' coaching job, earlier this week spoke of his dismay at delays involved in improving the school's athletic program, including construction of new facilities. He also said that more seats in Pauley Pavilion should be allotted for students.

"I said what I had to say," said Brown, whose eighth-ranked Bruins host Arizona Thursday night. "I want what's best for the athletic program and I want what's best for the kids."

"I just more or less said they (administration officials) were dragging their feet in a lot of ways and that bothers me."

Earlier, Brown admitted that his criticism sounded like that of a coach "headed for Jersey," but he explained Wednesday that the comment was made in jest.

"The conversation got kind of crazy," he said. "Every week they tell me I'm going somewhere else. I'm not threatening to leave. It's not a threat."

headlined by second-team All-American Bobby Kohler in left. Kohler was second in hitting among regulars only to Selby with a .374 average. He played in 40 of Tech's 51 games, had 22 extra-base hits (including eight home runs) and tied for Wallace for the team lead in RBIs with 41.

Senior Rusty Laughlin, who hit .281 from the leadoff spot last season, is likely to start his second year in centerfield while junior Pat Moore, a .313 hitter, will be in right. Freshman walk-on Wes McKenzie and sophomore Steve Roper will also see action in the outfield.

Junior college transfer Andy Dawson will get the nod at shortstop and should pick up where Wallace left off, Segrist said. Dawson, a junior, came to Tech from McLennan Community College where he hit .328 with 20 RBIs and stole 17 bases as the Highlanders went to the junior college world series last season.

All-SWC third baseman Jimmy Zachry returns to the hot corner for his sophomore year, giving the Raiders a strong, proven left-hand side of the infield.

Zachry hit .348 and knocked in 30 runs a year ago after being the fourth player tried at third. He had 15 extra-base hits in 32 games and struck out only 12 times in 113 plate appearances.

John Grimes, who lettered as a freshman walk-on last season, will start at first base while junior two-year letterman Jeff Harp from Monterey appears to have won the starting nod at second. He hit .300 in 43 games a season ago.

The Raiders have a wealth of depth in the infield, led by freshman walk-on Kenny Albritton, who can play any diamond position as well as in the outfield. Other infielders include Scott Netberry, Dale Redman, Bruce Winters, Mike Wooten and Segrist.

Dan Hejl and Kevin Rucker will combine to give Tech possibly the best set of catchers in the conference. Hejl, a senior three-year letterman, hit .328 in 22 games last season while Rucker, a junior two-year letterman, was honorable mention All-SWC after batting .303 in 38 games.

The Raiders' schedule includes 21 conference games, three with each team except Southern Methodist, which dropped its baseball program. Tech will play host to Rice, Texas A&M, Arkansas and Texas Christian.

Lubbock Christian College and Tech will meet play four double-headers this season, twice at the LCC field and twice on the Tech Diamond. The Raiders will play eight games between March 18 and 21 with Pan American, Kansas and Missouri in Edinburg.

Tech opens its conference schedule at Texas on March 13 and ends the regular season with 11 consecutive home games beginning April 17 with the Aggies, LCC, the Razorbacks and TCU.

we won without you.' That doesn't answer my question. It's not that I don't respect the way they did it, but things change."

"I'm the guy that Mr. Morgan (the late UCLA athletic director J.D. Morgan) hired for the job and they put a lot of responsibility on me. I think if I'm going to run the program, I have to do it my way."

One-Armed Boxer, Hearn To Spar

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Tommy Hearn, the World Boxing Council welterweight champion, fights a three-round exhibition bout tonight against an iron-willed ghetto youth with a severely deformed left arm.

Muhammad Ali also promises to spar with young Mike Maye at the Dunn Sports Center in Elizabeth, said promoter Carolyn Kelly.

It's the biggest night of 19-year-old Maye's life, who aims to forge a professional boxing career despite the birth defect that ended his arm just below the elbow.

"Friends and relatives told me there is no way I'd be able to fight because I got a short arm. But I never saw any papers or books that said you can't fight with a short arm," said Maye, 20-1 as an amateur welterweight.

he has stated a preference to remain at UCLA and generate more interest in the school's entire athletic program.

He took a team that finished fourth in the Pacific-10 Conference — a league it once dominated — to the finals of the NCAA championships last year and the Bruins are 14-4 this season.

Brown primarily was upset at what he views as UCLA's lack of encouragement for student attendance at basketball games.

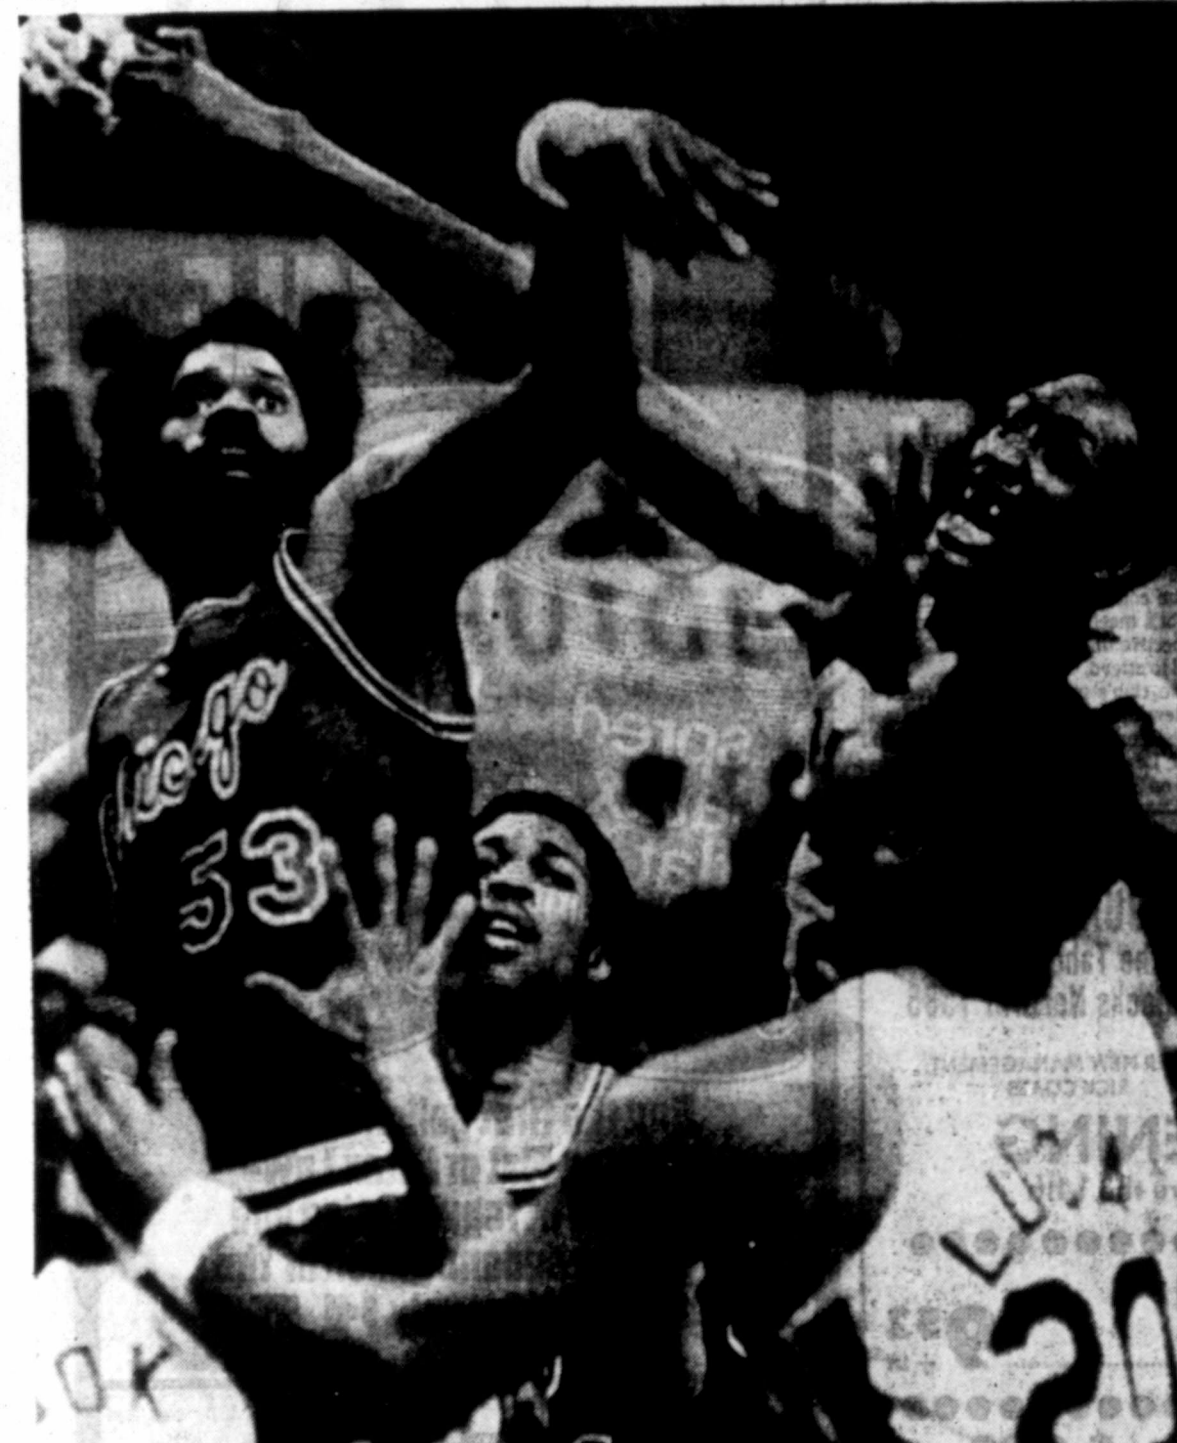

He said the school has reduced the student seating section to about 4,000. Pauley Pavilion has a capacity of 12,000 for basketball games.

But Brown added, "I'm not asking for specific things for basketball. That's what I want to make everybody aware of. And I'm not afraid to be a spokesman. I'm not trying to step on anybody's toes."

"I just want what's best for those kids who matriculate at UCLA and take part in the athletic program."

LACOCK MOVES TO JAPAN

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Former Kansas City Royals' first baseman Pete LaCock says he'll be playing baseball in Japan during the 1981 season. LaCock said in an interview Wednesday with The Kansas City Star that he has signed a two-year contract with the Taiyo Whales of Japan's Pacific League. He had been reported to have been offered $400,000 a year after taxes, plus free housing and transportation. The Royals had offered him a one-year guaranteed contract for $125,000.

Amoco Increases Wholesale Prices

By United Press International

Amoco Oil Co. today raised its wholesale fuel prices by as much as 3 cents a gallon and analysts say home-heating oil prices are rising faster than pump prices because of peak winter demand.

Since President Reagan removed price controls on domestic crude oil and gasoline eight months ahead of schedule on Jan. 28, U.S. refiners have put through more than 35 fuel price increases — often on a regional basis.

Standard Oil (Indiana)'s Amoco Oil Co. lifted wholesale prices for gasoline by 3 cents a gallon and heating oil by 2 to 3 cents a gallon except in the Great Lakes region. Gulf Oil Co. and Sun Co. boosted wholesale fuel prices by 2 cents a gallon in some U.S. markets Wednesday.

Heating oil prices have gone up more than pump prices, industry observers said, because complete decontrol took effect during the winter heating season. Decontrol should have the same price impact at the pump when traditionally heavy summer driving gets under way, they said.

In New York City, for example, the average home heating oil price surged by 8.4 cents a gallon to $1.99 a gallon in January from $1.15 in December, but the average gasoline price rose by only 6 cents to $1.409 a gallon, the city's Department of Consumer Affairs reported.

Since November New York City's home-heating oil prices have jumped by 15.8 cents a gallon and gasoline prices by 7.6 cents a gallon, the department said.

Other parts of the oil-pendant Northeast have recorded price leaps of about 15 cents a gallon on home-heating oil deliveries since Jan. 1 alone.

Action Causes Pilots To Call Off Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis has headed off a threatened strike of airline pilots by agreeing to have a task force study the number of pilots needed to safely fly the latest common jetliner.

The Air Line Pilots Association announced Wednesday it was calling off a one-to-three-day work stoppage scheduled March 2 because Lewis had "expressed a willingness" to work with the pilots on safety issues.

The threatened strike, which the industry said could have cost as much as $80 million a day and severely disrupted air travel, was the first laborer of the Reagan administration. Lewis also said a possible strike by air traffic controllers in mid-March.

After a meeting with the pilot union's executive board Wednesday, Lewis announced that a three-member independent task force would examine the controversy over whether only two pilots should be allowed to fly the new generation of fuel-efficient jetliners out to go on the market.

Jury Convicts Woman In Heroin Delivery

A woman arrested during a major drug round-up last August was convicted today on a charge of delivery of a controlled substance and now faces a possible prison term of from 5 to 99 years for the offense.

Gloria Davila, wife of alleged drug kingpin Cosme Tijerina, was convicted for delivering heroin by a 12th District Court jury this morning. The jury was scheduled to assess her punishment for the first degree felony later today after hearing more testimony.

Miss Davila was arrested in a large-scale drug bust last summer, which rounded up several members of the Tijerina family alleged to be trafficking in heroin and cocaine. Her husband was arrested during that raid and his bond for several combined offenses was set at $240,000, but Tijerina jumped bail and apparently has fled Lubbock County.

The woman was charged with delivery by "constructive transfer" of four balloons of heroin. A balloon of heroin usually carries enough of the contraband for one or two doses of the drug, depending on the user's habit.

A federal Drug Enforcement Agency officer testified that the house Miss Davila shared with Tijerina at 605 Zenith Ave. had been under surveillance prior to the date of the actual drug transaction. The DEA agent told the court that a Dallas undercover agent entered the house with a confidential informant Aug. 27 and met with Miss Davila and another woman.

The agent testified that he told Miss Davila that he wanted "four" and that she left to talk to her husband and returned.

Tijerina came into the house, the agent testified, and asked him "how many?"

When he replied that he wanted four, the agent testified, Tijerina opened his hand to reveal four balloons of heroin.

Water Complaints Aired

The High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1 has announced receiving several complaints about developers of new irrigation wells pumping water down the borrow ditches of county roads.

Not only is such action a waste of valuable water and energy, it is also a violation of Water District rules, according to Water District officials.

The Water District suggests that operators planning to develop new wells or rework old ones plan ahead and put the potential waste water to good use.

They cited a recent example of groundwater conservation in Farmer County where an operator used overflow from a slush pit during a new well pumping to prewater 25 rows (about five acres) on a farm near Lubbock. The operator later estimated the salvaged water at $30 an acre.

Many irrigators who allow their water to escape during new well development haven't planned before they begin drilling how they can conveniently use the water, Water District officials said.

Workers Reject Union

Employees of the South Plains Electrical Cooperative today rejected union representation.

Dale Johnson, attorney for South Plains, said line department employees "overwhelmingly" voted this morning against representation by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers union.

The results of the election conducted by the National Labor Relations Board showed a 51-4 vote against the union, he said.

South Plains president R.D. McCallister and general manager Jim Roberts said in a statement this morning. "The board of directors and management of the cooperative are gratified by this show of confidence of the employees."

LCC Spring Enrollment Increases

The largest spring enrollment in the 24-year history of Lubbock Christian College was recorded this semester, according to Dr. Foy Kirkpatrick, registrar.

This spring 1,174 students enrolled, compared to 1,100 last spring, an increase of 6.4 percent.

Normally spring enrollment is lower than fall semester enrollment, but officials note that this spring's figure is only 64 students fewer than the 1980 fall total of 1,238.

Stock Prices Drop Again In Trading

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices dipped lower again today amid continued concern over high interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was down 1.36 to 941.15 by noon, as declines outnumbered advances by a 6-3 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

A Commerce Department report Wednesday that retail sales grew beyond expectations in January increased concern over continued inflationary pressures and reduced hopes that the Federal Reserve would ease its tight-credit stance.

Today is a bank holiday in many states, and with a three-day weekend coming up and President Reagan's presentation of an economic plan to Congress next week, analysts said they expected trading to remain sluggish.

Among early volume leaders were Computer Sciences, down 1 1/4 to 16 1/2 after saying second half profits for 1980 will be below the levels of the first half, and Ramada Inn, up 1/4 to 8 1/4.

With gold again selling at over $500 an ounce, precious metals stocks again were hurt, with ASA down 1/2 to 50 1/2. Dome Mines off 2 1/2 to 7 1/4 and Hecla Mining losing 1/4 to 30 1/4.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks lost 1/2 to 73.40 in the first two hours of trading. Volume on the Big Board came to 15.59 million shares, compared to 15.47 million at the same point Wednesday.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down 83 to 943.28.

Ranchers View Sagebrush As Curse, Blessing

By REBECCA R. KIRTLAND
National Geographic News Service
WASHINGTON — Sagebrush, the ubiquitous little shrub that covers 130 million acres in the West, is both a curse and a blessing.

It has long been battled by ranchers, who believe the thirsty plant strips the range of vital moisture and encroaches on the grasses needed for livestock. One 19th-century explorer of the West called sagebrush "a hideous growth...to weary our eyes."

Now, because of its tenacity, hardiness, and sheer volume, it is being increasingly viewed as a friend — a vital part of Western ecology that can be put to use for man and his environment.

It also has received notoriety as the symbol of the "Sagebrush Rebellion," a move in the West to return the ownership of the vast federal land holdings to the states.

"Sagebrush and the West are inseparable," sagebrush characterizes the West," said E. Durant McArthur, a plant geneticist at the U.S. Forest Service Shrub Sciences Laboratory in Provo, Utah.

"In the years ahead, the much-maligned sagebrush will be regarded with increasing favor," McArthur predicted. "When mixed with grasses and other shrubs, sagebrush adds beauty to the range, food and cover for animals, and stability to the soil."

In the Intermountain West extending from British Columbia and Alberta to Baja California and New Mexico, sagebrush dominates the floor of the high country deserts. It spreads in wide valleys and up gentle slopes and into the mountains.

Salvadoran Death Count Difficult

United Press International

One night not too long ago, two young men well into their cups reeled into one of San Salvador's classier houses of prostitution and began drunkenly pawing the merchandise, much to the displeasure of the house bouncer.

A bear of a man who weighed in at about 225 pounds — 223 of muscle and two of .45 caliber steel tucked into his waistband, the bouncer tried to persuade them to leave peacefully. He shot both to death when they didn't.

The next morning, two bullet-riddled bodies were found in a gully near the house. Over them were cardboard signs that said "Squadron of Death," the name of a rightist "hit squad" that allegedly has murdered hundreds of leftists.

The two bodies in the gully may or may not have been those of the drunken carousers, but to the American who witnessed the warehouse killings, they pointed up the difficulty of keeping track of "political deaths" in El Salvador.

No one denies that political slayings happen. Leftist guerrillas kill army troops and backers of the military-civilian junta. Soldiers kill rebels. The death squads kill leftists. Everyone kills innocent people.

But the junta, intent on erasing El Salvador's image as a country bathed in blood, says the death tolls that foreigners read over their morning coffee are wildly overblown because they include people killed by common criminals.

The leftists, who want the junta to look bad, say the figures are too low because soldiers have killed hundreds of people in remote corners of the Central American nation whose bodies are never counted, just buried.

Most journalists covering the bloodshed use figures provided by the Roman Catholic Church, whose reports from priests and nuns in the field during 1980 added up to 30,000 political slayings in a country of 4.8 million people.

"If what you guys write is true, no Salvadoran citizen has died of natural causes in more than a year," two reporters recently were told by junta President Jose Napoleon Duarte, a Christian Democrat.

"There is a lot of common crime going on, a lot of settling of old scores, a lot of lovers' quarrels whose victims keep getting added to the political death toll," he said.

To avoid such charges, most journalists are careful about who they include in their daily tallies of political murder and mayhem, and they make sure there is a good reason to believe the killings were politically motivated.

A sign left by the Squadron of Death usually adds one body to the total. So does evidence the victim was tortured before he was killed. If the bodies turn up in bunches — three or four at a time, they usually are counted.

The government claims that isn't good enough.

"We know of cases where pure and simple criminals robbed somebody and killed him, then cut up his body to make it look like torture — a political crime," said Defense Minister Jose Guillermo Garcia.

Most journalists acknowledge the task of totting up the political deaths is an uncertain — and very grotesque — task and that it is possible some of the "political slayings" they report could be something else.

But they also remember that on Dec. 3 not one newspaper or news agency carried any reports of any deaths near Santiago Nonualco, an isolated little village on the road between San Salvador and the international airport.

On that day, local residents dug a mass grave and quietly filled it with the swiftly decomposing bodies of three American nuns and a lay religious worker who had been raped and murdered the previous night, allegedly by soldiers.

The most common shrub in western North America, sagebrush is a tough, squat, gray-green plant which blossoms with tiny yellow flowers in late summer and early fall. It is a woody, evergreen perennial with a pungent fragrance similar to the garden plant herb sage.

Belonging to the genus Artemisia, there are 20 species of sagebrush on the continent, the most common of which is big sagebrush.

Ranging in height from 1 to 8 feet, sagebrush can be used to determine potential uses for land because it becomes progressively smaller as water availability and soil quality decrease. If the plant averages 3 feet or more, the soil is considered arable.

Throughout the West, sagebrush is used to revegetate land stripped bare from overgrazing, forest fires, road construction, and mining.

"It is one plant that must be seeded on disturbed sites," McArthur said, "because it is highly adaptable to different soil conditions."

At least 22 animals eat sagebrush, according to a U.S. Forest Service study. In much of the West, it is the primary food and preferred winter forage for pronghorn antelope and mule deer.

The pygmy rabbit, which lives in the high plateaus west of the Rockies, builds its home where sagebrush forms a protective cover and uses the plant as its only source of food. Sagebrush provides food and cover for sage grouse, pheasants, Brewer's sparrow, and the vesper sparrow.

Bruce Weich, plant physiologist at the Provo lab, is comparing the shrub for nutrition and digestibility with other plants. He says sagebrush and grass together provide the best seasonal nutritive balance since sagebrush has the higher crude protein level in winter.

The Provo lab also is working to develop a new strain of sagebrush for land revegetation that is faster-growing and more nutritious and palatable to wildlife.

Sagebrush is an effective buffer against erosion because of its extensive root system and the ground cover formed by shedding leaves, according to Mike Geist, a research soil scientist at the Range and Wildlife Habitat Laboratory in La Grande, Ore.

Campfires in the desert during the settlement of the West would have been impossible without sagebrush's woody stems. Its potential as a fuel now is being studied in projects supported by the U.S. Department of Energy.

Meteorologist W.B. Fowler and hydrologist J.D. Heivey at the Forest Hydrology Laboratory in Wenatchee, Wash., report that climatic fluctuations of the past can be read in stems of sagebrush, some of them more than 200 years old. Since growth rings are particularly sensitive to rainfall, they can be used to estimate annual precipitation before rainfall measurements began.

The oldest sagebrush is found in the White Mountains of California and parts of New Mexico. In most of the West, however, sagebrush is no older than 50 to 70 years — springing up "since the last big drought," McArthur said. Chromosome and chemical studies have linked the North American sagebrush with the wormwoods that proliferate in the Central Eurasian steppes.

The controversy over its value is deeply rooted. Although some have found the plant an eyesore, Mark Twain described sagebrush as "an imposing monarch of the forest in exquisite miniature."

Salesman Still Believes In Whole Life Insurance

NEW YORK (UPI) — A Los Angeles agent who sold $125 million worth of life insurance last year, Barry Kaye, says it's time to take a new look at the advantages of whole life insurance compared with term insurance.

Kaye is no foe of term; in fact, he sold about $40 million worth of it last year. He says it "is positively criminal to sell a young couple with children a $25,000 whole life policy when what they really need is $100,000 to $150,000 in term protection."

Nevertheless, he feels many independent agents have gone overboard selling term life insurance as a panacea for everyone. He says there still are definite needs for whole life protection, because there are situations where term is prohibitive in cost. Kaye said it is not easy to generalize about who needs whole life coverage. "Probably the best way to put it is that anybody needs it who can afford it."

He said the advantages of whole life insurance have increased greatly in the last year because almost a score of companies have cut the price of whole life drastically.

"I predict many more companies will slash premiums on whole life sharply to meet the competition of term insurance," he said. "If they don't, they'll have to quit life insurance and go into some other business, possibly become investment trusts."

He said State Mutual Life of Worcester, Mass., for which he is general agent in Los Angeles, had cut premiums so much that a man aged 45 now can buy $100,000 worth of whole life for a level annual premium of $1,760. Only a year ago the premium would have been $3,100. Either price compares with about $260 for $100,000 worth of term insurance at age 45, but that premium goes up year by year.

But how will it work out over the long haul? "At age 75," Kaye said, "the premium on $100,000 worth of term will have mounted to $7,900 a year and the policy will have no cash value. On the contrary, this particular whole life policy not only will be paid out at age 75, it will be paying an annual dividend of about $550 and will have a cash surrender value of $67,000."

Kaye conceded that not too many people can afford $100,000 worth of whole life insurance at age 45, and he reiterated that affordability is the real key to whether or not one should buy whole.

"If you can afford it, it will protect a built-up standard of living for a surviving spouse or provide an offset for inheritance and other taxes that term insurance cannot provide except at prohibitive cost."

He hastened to add that one should not generalize from this example.

"The only way to find out if you should buy whole life insurance is to go over your particular situation with a very knowledgeable agent and no one should buy whole life unless he has an adequate amount of immediate protection for his family — probably in term insurance," Kaye explained.

He said in both whole life and term insurance, the variation from company to company in cost and quality of policies is staggering — "differences in cost and benefits can run to 400 percent." He said these great differences should make it worthwhile for many persons to replace policies they have been paying on for years.

He said it is true that life insurance is only protection and not a good way to save and it certainly shouldn't be considered an investment.

"On the other hand, while the argument that you can invest your own money better than an insurance company will invest it for you is true in principle, it doesn't always work," he said. "High taxes and unanticipated changes in economic conditions can wreck the best laid plans of the individual investor."

Kaye has laid out his ideas in a book to appear soon entitled "How to Save a Fortune on Your Life Insurance." (Carol Press, Los Angeles.)

Analysts Expect Another Issue To Share Business Headlines

By CHET CURRIER

NEW YORK (AP) — In the past few months the Exxons, the IBMs, and the other giants of corporate America have had to share the business headlines with upstarts like Genentech and Apple Computer.

If the expectations of analysts who keep track of such things are borne out, there will be another big new-issue name in the next few weeks: Cetus Corp.

Cetus, which like Genentech is involved in the fledgling genetic engineering business, is expected to go public later this month at a price in the neighborhood of $22.50 to $26.50 a share.

With more than 5.2 million Cetus shares slated to be sold, it will be the largest initial stock offering in at least two decades — dating perhaps as far back as 1956, when Ford Motor Co., at the time already a huge enterprise, sold its first shares to the public.

Cetus, based in Berkeley, Calif., has no such long-established record of operations and profitability. It was founded in 1971, and for most of the time since has been a money-loser.

In the fiscal year ended last June 30, it logged revenues of $9.62 million and net income, derived from interest on idle cash it invested, of $68,900.

Norman Fosback, editor of a newsletter called "New Issues," figures that investors who buy the stock at the offering will be paying 25 times book value — the company's theoretical worth if it were to be liquidated — and 5,000 times earnings, in an era when many a solid, profitable company is selling at about 10 times earnings or less.

Present owners of Cetus, who include Standard Oil of Indiana, Standard Oil of California, and National Distillers & Chemical Corp., got their stock for an average price of $1.21 a share.

The question of most concern to investors, of course, is not Cetus' past or present but its future. "It is a leader in an industry whose potential is virtually unlimited," Fosback asserts.

There are visions of big markets for genetic engineering companies not only in medicine, but in agriculture, energy, chemicals, and who knows what else. Whether these visions will ever become reality remains an open question.

Says Fosback, "The stock is overpriced but nevertheless attractive on prospects that it is likely to become even more overpriced" once public trading in it begins.

Memories remain vivid of Genentech's debut last Oct. 14, when it came out at $35 a share, soared rapidly to $89, and then fell back almost as quickly. Recently it was quoted in the low $40s in the over-the-counter market.

That roller-coaster ride left many investors a bit cautious about the risks, as well as the rewards, of playing the new-issue game. Still, they eagerly snapped up shares of Apple Computer, a major producer of personal computers, in December at $22 apiece. Apple recently was quoted above $30.

Some analysts have reckoned that 1980 was the biggest year ever for new stock issues. Although the stock market has gotten off to a rocky start in 1981, the new-issue fever still seems to be strong.

As testimony to that, there is a long queue of companies, of widely varying quality and repute, poised to tap this public appetite.

Many of these, as you might expect,

Today In History

THE ALMANAC

By United Press International

Today is Thursday, Feb. 12, the 43rd day of 1981 with 322 to follow.

This is Abraham Lincoln's birthday. The moon is in its first quarter.

The morning stars are Venus, Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury and Mars.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Aquarius.

Lincoln, 16th president of the United States, and British biologist Charles Darwin were born Feb. 12, 1809.

On this date in history:

In 1953, the Soviet Union broke off relations with Israel when terrorists bombed the U.S.S.R. legation in Tel Aviv.

In 1973, the first American prisoners of war were released by North Vietnam; 116 were flown from Hanoi to the Philippines.

In 1980, the International Olympics Committee rejected a U.S. proposal to postpone, cancel, or move the site of the 1980 Summer Olympics in Moscow as protest against the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

A thought for the day: Abraham Lincoln said, "As I would not be a slave, so I would not be a master. This expresses my idea of democracy."

are in glamor businesses — computers, medical technology and energy. Fosback's current calendar of forthcoming offerings includes no less than 22 oil and gas companies.

But the menu is by no means limited to this standard fare. One firm on the list is a florist; another rents video cassettes. There's even a sports-handicapping service which plans to sell 4 million shares at 50 cents a piece — presumably just the thing for someone willing to gamble that a business catering to bettors has the potential for a big payoff.

Advertised prices good through Saturday, February 14.

Actress Works Against Hunger

By KENNETH R. CLARK
NEW YORK (UPI) — Valerie Harper has never done a television commercial — but she will, if the price is right.
Her price isn't a big paycheck. It's a blow struck by the sponsor in her personal war against hunger — food, perhaps, from the Jolly Green Giant people, trucks in which to carry it from Ford or Chrysler, medicine, from Parke-Davis, tools, clothing, soap or seed.
Any such donation to the starving millions in Somalia, on the Horn of Africa, will get the former "Rhoda" into the pitchman's circle on behalf of any producer's product, just as long as the sponsor is willing to make one firm affirmation in her commercial.

"I would want him to say, 'hunger is an obsolete disease and I know it can be conquered,'" Miss Harper said. "I've never done a commercial because I always thought they wouldn't be good for my career, but I'd do commercials for this. I certainly would.
"We've had famine around so long it's like gravity and taxes. We feel it's inevitable, but it's not. We must change our minds and our hearts and our attitudes ... by 1997, hunger will be over."

Friends of the former Rhoda Morgenstern would never recognize her now. Greyhound slender and eyes blazing with mission, she came to New York with Tony Cacciotti — manager, partner in TAL Productions, and No. 1 man in her life — to campaign for a "grassroots" uprising against starvation which she said kills 28 people a minute, worldwide,

"and 21 of those are under five."
No missionary ever preached the gospel with more zeal than she and Cacciotti pack into their appeal for help. Together, they are spiritual arsonists, setting fire to the conscience and building blitzes under apathy wherever they go. In their view, the American people — not just the American government — should be in the trenches for the fight.
"The end of hunger resides in each one of us," Miss Harper said. "When the Somalis are starving in body, we, the human family, are starving in spirit."
Miss Harper's passion for the Somalis was ignited when she and Cacciotti went to Africa to film a documentary on the drought and war-caused famine that grips the nation. They have been pushing the film and carrying their appeal to talk shows and interviews ever since.
"The people are so beautiful, so dignified," said Cacciotti. "They were dying, but they were not begging ... the film is just devastating. I hope to get it on the college circuit and have it syndicated where it can be shown to theater audiences."
He also is in the process of signing up celebrities — Muhammad Ali, Stevie Wonder, Dom Deluise and Vidal Sassoon among them — to do public service commercials aimed at raising consciousness of the problem as well as money.
Cacciotti and Miss Harper are doing their own missionary work on behalf of three of the many famine-relief groups now operating throughout the world — "Save the Children," "Oxam America" and "Africare" — and senior citizens are a special target.
"Just think how many retired people there are with skills they're not using," said Cacciotti. "They could go to Somalia where those skills are needed and really make it count. We have the wherewithal to send them over there."
"Cambodia was a miracle," Miss Harper said. "Starvation has ended there. Thirty-two countries have ended hunger since 1944. But you've got to do more than believe it can be done. You've got to believe it will be done."

Magic Card Trick Bewilders Friends

By SHARI LEWIS
You show your friend a deck of cards divided into two piles. You say, "Take a card from any pile, look at it, and put it back into the middle of the other pile."
Now you pick up that other pile, go through the cards and with a flourish, you hand back to your bewildered buddy the card he or she picked!
How did you know which card was selected?
Well, when you were alone, before you started, you put all the even cards into one pile, organized two through queen. You put all of the odd cards together in another pile, organized ace through king.
Now you'll have no trouble knowing which card was selected because it will be the card that doesn't belong in with the rest. It'll be either the even card in with all the odd ones, or vice versa.
If your friend wants to examine the cards after the trick, just shuffle the two piles together and destroy the evidence!
Wednesday's Brain Twister: Can you draw these circles penetrated by the straight line — all without going back over any of the lines or lifting your pencil?
Answer: See illustration.

Complaint Filed Against ABC

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Kaiser Aluminum & Chemical Corp. has filed a formal complaint with the Federal Communications Commission against the ABC television network.
The complaint asked the FCC to order ABC to provide the company with 10 minutes of response time to allegations made on the network's "20-20" news program.
The program, the company's marketing of aluminum residential wiring charged the company knew the wiring was defective, a claim the company denies.
In October, the network agreed to air a four-minute response on "20-20," a prime-time show, ABC said last week it would air the response instead on a late-night news program.

ABC officials could not be reached for comment immediately on the company action.
Officials Explain Gasohol Decline
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gasohol was a good product that came out before its time, say farming officials who are trying to account for a virtual halt in local sales of the fuel.
They blame low customer demand, high cost and uncertain supplies of one of gasohol's ingredients for dwindling sales of the mixture of corn-refined ethanol and unleaded gasoline.
"The glamor is off, the patriotic fervor gone," said C. William Swank.

Shelley Duvall Noted For Roles

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — As a kid in Houston, Shelley Duvall was dubbed Olive Oyl for the toothpick-skinny, man-hungry spinster in the "Popeye" comic strip and cartoon series.
 And, fittingly, the huge-eyed, spindly Miss Duvall is starring as the ineffable Miss Oyl in the movie "Popeye" with Robin Williams in the title role.
 The role is yet another unorthodox characterization in Shelley's weirdly off-beat career which is unlike any other in Hollywood.
 Shelley, 30, has appeared in 10 films playing singularly odd women. She has unfailingly attracted rave reviews despite the disquieting and doubtful fact few of her films have been hits.

 Shelley's screen roles are seldom conventional leading ladies. Rather, she plays females who are about a half bubble off plumb, wacky without intent, troubled without comprehension, yet ultimately believable.
 There is a tragicomic aura about her performances, best illustrated in the role of Millie Lamoreaux in "3 Women," for which she won the Cannes and Los Angeles Film Critics awards for best actress — and should have won an Oscar.

 Shelley was the pathetic Astrodome tour guide in "Brewster McCLOUD," her film debut, and the novice hooker in "McCabe & Mrs. Miller." She was the gun moll in "Thieves Like Us" and the total wacko in "Nashville."
 She was the flakiest first lady ever seen on the screen in the role of Mrs. Grover Cleveland in "Buffalo Bill and the Indians."
 Shelley brings an eerie, subliminal quality to her roles. Her women are strong, independent and self-possessed, yet somehow flawed and fragile if you look deep enough.

 Her directors have been as off-center as her parts. Seven of her pictures, including "Popeye," were for the controversial Robert Altman.
 Woody Allen directed her in a small role in "Annie Hall." She worked for Joan Micklin Silver in "Bernice Bobs Her Hair" and, more recently, for Stanley Kubrick in "The Shining."
 A faraway look glazed Shelley's large, luminous brown eyes in contemplation of her roles and directors over the 10 years of her career.
 "I tend to plan eccentrics because I grew up with them in Texas," Shelley said.
 Never a beauty contest winner, and not likely to be, Shelley is aware she does not keep Bo Derek awake nights.

DR. LAMB

Daily Aspirin Controversy

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB — My doctor prescribed aspirin once a day for me, as a preventive measure. I also take medication for high blood pressure, which is now under control. The problem is I also have trouble with my stomach from taking aspirin even though I use Ascriptin. I've had a problem with aspirin all my life. Can I stop the aspirin without getting artery disease?
DEAR READER — This is a controversial topic. As a woman you will be particularly interested to know that the evidence that aspirin is helpful in preventing strokes or heart attacks in women is meager or non-existent. There is a difference in the responses noted in women from men.
 Noting that fact, the Food and Drug Administration made only one recommendation for the use of aspirin as a preventive measure — its use in men (only) who have had recurrent transient ischemic attacks (little or short strokes) or to prevent a recurrence in men who have already experienced a stroke.
 Specifically, the FDA did NOT recommend aspirin to prevent strokes in men or women who had never had a stroke and did NOT recommend the use of aspirin to prevent a recurrence in women who had already experienced a stroke.

 Now not all physicians will agree with the FDA recommendations but there it is. I suspect that a great deal more research will be required, trying very small doses as well as larger ones before a final conclusion about the usefulness of aspirin can be determined.
 Aspirin is a good medicine and safer than most but it does have its problems. These are discussed in The Health Letter number 8-8, Aspirin and Related Medicines, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.
 For those who do take aspirin for whatever reason, one way to minimize (but not totally eliminate) the stomach problems is to break it into a powder and dissolve in a half cup of milk. Taking it just before eating so the food will help dilute it in the stomach will also help.
DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 65-year-old male and have been having a spell every spring for the last four or five years with a pain in my chest and around the heart. I have a temperature between 101 and 103 for nearly a week. Last year I went to the hospital with this and the doctor told me I had pleurisy and nothing could be done for it but to let it take its course. I would appreciate it if you could tell me more about pleurisy.

DEAR READER — The pleura is the membranous lining over the inner surface of your chest and over the outer surface of your lungs. It looks a lot like kitchen plastic wrapping material. When it is inflamed, the disease is called pleurisy.
 The pain is not from the membrane but the spasm of the tiny muscles between your ribs. That is why movement of the ribs, as in taking a deep breath, hurts. Incidentally, that is helpful in differentiating pleurisy pain from heart pain.
 There are many causes for pleurisy, including virus infections. One of these is the coxsackie virus and the pain is bad enough that it is called the Devil's grip. The inflammation can be from pneumonia, tuberculosis, cancer and even a chemical response from kidney failure. Evidently your doctor thought yours was caused by a virus.

Reagan Advised To Cut Sweets

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan is being urged by the head of a local dental clinic to kick his jelly bean habit for one less likely to cause tooth decay — such as fruit or "even peanuts."
 "The dental profession is appalled by President Reagan's espousal of the lowly jelly bean as a seemingly tasty energizer," Dr. Bernard McDermott, president of the Metropolitan Dental Health Clinic, said this week.
 "Jelly beans contain an inordinate amount of sweets and it is a well-known fact that the bacteria in the mouth causes sugar to form plaque which attacks the tooth enamel ... causing dental decay," he said in a statement.
 "The jelly bean syndrome comes at an especially bad time because February is National Children's Dental Health Month," said McDermott, adding:

 "We call on the president to substitute fruit for the jelly beans and even peanuts will be infinitely better for the presidential snack bar. Please Mr. President ax the jelly beans."

Exotic Looks Limit Barbara Carrera's Roles

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The only All-American girl Barbara Carrera's ever played — or is ever likely to play — was

Clay Basket, the Arapaho Indian girl in the "Centennial" miniseries last year. Barbara is a sultry, exotic native of Nicaragua. Her skin is the color of a lioness. She has almond-shaped, Asian-looking eyes, ebony hair and a hauntingly unidentifiable accent.

severely limited, a situation she blazingly resents.

She will, of course, never star in any remakes of Doris Day's films, but Barbara would like to be considered for American parts. "There is no such thing as an All-American girl," she quoted the other day over a glass of white wine in the Beverly Hills Hotel's Polo Lounge.

"This country is a conglomerate of all types of women, all colors and shapes and sizes. But for some reason they are trying to convince us that the typical young American female is blonde or red-haired, blue-eyed and freckle faced and a distinctive voice. This apple pie portrait is wrong. The All-American girl is a minority."

Barbara muttered an oath under her breath. It could have been in French, Spanish, Italian or German, all of which she speaks as well as English. And, according to Barbara, all with an accent.

Her linguistic accomplishments combined with her physical presence have won Barbara a number of foreign roles in American films.

In Disney's new feature film, "The Condor Man," Barbara plays a Russian KGB agent with blonde wig. In NBC-TV's big miniseries for 1981, "Masada," she plays an Israelite.

Her ethnic roles in two past movies, "The Island of Dr. Moreau" and "Embryo," were simply mysterious Eurasian.

"In my next picture I'll be playing a French-Indonesian girl," Barbara said, a note of pride creeping into her voice.

"I can play almost any nationality with minimum changes in makeup and hair style. I am compatible with European roles, except for Scandinavian, Oriental, South Americans, South Sea Islanders and certain atypical Americans.

"I'm against trying to look like anyone else. Many American actresses attempt to look like Jill Clayburgh or other American types to get good roles.

"I don't look or sound like anyone else in Hollywood. But I tried to change my own individuality when I first became a model in New York.

"Modeling in this country was like the movies. They were trying to export the American look. So I tried to bleach my hair and change my makeup. It didn't really work for me.

"Then I convinced myself the only way I could make good was being as natural as possible. At first the magazine editors said, 'What can we do with you? You're not our look. Not our type.'

"Finally, Bazaar put me on the cover and then everyone else began using me. Soon the magazines were calling other agencies asking for the 'Carrera type.'

"I ended up traveling all over Europe when I wasn't working in New York. I made the covers of every fashion magazine in the world simply because I had an original and distinctive look that was all my own.

"The movies haven't been so quick to accept this sort of departure. So I'm trying to follow the same steps, one by one, in Hollywood that I did in New York. They must be shown.

"Movie people have tunnel vision. It's taking me longer to establish myself but I think it will be worth it."

Probe Reveals Office Not Bugged

WASHINGTON (AP) — A stray wire found at the Republican National Committee headquarters last June was just that — not an eavesdropping device, District of Columbia police say.

A seven-month investigation revealed that the wire was merely a leftover piece of an interoffice bell system, and that the GOP headquarters had not been bugged, Assistant Police Chief William R. Dixon told The Washington Post this week.

"Everybody got carried away and started remembering suspicious people and then the media saw it like a second Watergate and then we had to spend all this time proving, in effect, that there wasn't a crime," Dixon said.

The election-year investigation produced mounds of paperwork. Police gave the U.S. attorney "all the evidence we had not uncovered," Dixon quipped.

The material included 14 pieces of documentary evidence, 24 separate interview transcripts, photographs and FBI laboratory-test results, he said.

The mystery began in June, when Mary Crisp, then co-chairwoman of the Republican National Committee, thought her home telephone was tapped.

She hired a private investigator who found a wire coming out of a wall in her office. Then, there were reports of a suspicious-looking man peering out from the House office building across the street.

Biological Clocks Can Affect Health, Emotional, Mental States

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
 NEW YORK (UPI) — If you hear an odd ticking in the middle of the night, maybe it's your biological clock.
 Biological clocks actually don't tick — in the usual sense. But they exist. In the biological sense, they are "wound" by the rhythms of the moon, sun and Earth.

 There is evidence that nature's timepieces can affect health and disease patterns and even tinker with emotional and mental states.
 Some of the evidence was listed in a recent National Institutes of Health roundup of the subject by Dr. Margie F.

Taylor.
 "Records kept by surgeons in Florida," says she, "showed that hemorrhages in throat operations were 82 percent higher when the moon was in the second quarter."
 "Other doctors have found periodic variations in the onset of bronchitis and epilepsy.

 "And researchers at the University of California, Berkeley, have declared that rhythmic phenomena may be associated with cancer."
 Also of interest is a report from the General Clinical Rch Center at Masonic Memorial Hital in St. Paul, Minn.

Researchers lessened the sometimes fatal side effects of two potent anti-cancer drugs by giving the drugs at what has been declared "the right time of day."
 When one drug was given early in the morning, it reduced kidney function by an average of 30 percent. The same dose, given in late afternoon or evening, resulted in kidney function remaining near normal.

 It has long been known that blood pressure, hormone levels, temperature, and other measurements of the body's state have been found to vary with time of day.
