Muskie Defends Deal With Iran

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie maintained today the deal with Iran that freed 52 American hostages will not encourage international terrorism and said America must keep its word on the deal.

"We should fulfill the agreement because we are a great power with interests in keeping our word," Muskie told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The committee chairman, Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., told the hearing that Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. had told him and several other senators this morning that the agreement would be adhered to.

Percy quoted Haig as saying President Reagan had decided to "implement fully the agreements."

As hearings opened on both sides of Capitol Hill into the 444-day hostage crisis, Muskie said U.S. negotiators succeeded in their objective "not to make an arrangement to encourage terrorism in the future."

"Iran paid dearly" for the deal, Muskie said.

He said Iran was isolated for 12 months for breaking international rules of behavior by taking U.S. diplomats captive, and in that time lost the use of $12 billion in Iranian assets that former President Carter froze in the United States.

"And in return, Iran achieved none of its objectives," Muskie said.

"Internationally and domestically the United States emerged stronger and Iran emerged weaker," he said.

Earlier, Warren Christopher, Muskie's former deputy, told the panel that the deal with Iran is in America's own best interests and renege on any part of it would damage "our reputation for keeping our commitments."

Christopher said the United States paid no ransom for the hostages, but only released Iran's own assets; made no apology to Iran for U.S.-Iranian relationships; and has taken no sides in the Iran-Iraq war.

Meanwhile, Harold H. Saunders, the former assistant secretary of state for Near Eastern and South Asian affairs, told the House Foreign Affairs Committee that "serious international consequences" would result if the United States were to renege on carrying out any part of the agreements with Iran.

Above all, he said, such a move "would cast doubt on the readiness of the U.S. government to honor its agreements, a basic principle of international conduct."

Observing that the Algerian government "served with great dedication and in good faith" as a mediator with Iran, Saunders said failure to fully implement the accords "would negatively affect the willingness of the international community to help in similar future circumstances."

The deal ending the 444-day hostage crisis essentially requires the United States to release some $10 billion in Iranian assets that had been frozen.

Reagan has said he intends to honor the agreement, but qualified that by saying his administration is studying complex legal questions involved in the agreement.

Administration officials had said Monday that a review of the agreement found the deal was legal.

The issue is likely to go to the U.S. Supreme Court, however.

A federal court in Texas ruled last week that Carter exceeded his authority in releasing the assets to Iran, and a federal judge in New Jersey has barred the transfer of $500,000 to Iran.

Haig has already announced that he will not release some $500 million worth of U.S. arms.

HEARING SET THURSDAY

Highway Plans Face Criticism

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the first of a two-part series examining interstate 27 and the effect it will have on those situated along the recommended corridor. Today, The Avalanche-Journal provides an overview of the project, including alternatives. Wednesday, in the second part, reactions from those affected by the proposed project will be aired.

By MARC FLAKE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Before the dust has settled over the University Avenue widening controversy, another street project will be stirring up its own turbulence this week.

Lubbock residents will have an opportunity to comment on three proposed routes for Interstate 27 at a public hearing in the Banquet Hall of the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center at 7 p.m. Thursday.

If any opposition to the project surfaces, it may stem from one of two areas — the displacement of residences and businesses along the proposed routes and the feeling that the project could become a barrier between East and West Lubbock, according to city planners.

However, the route choice preferred by city leaders could also bring about some controversy — it apparently puts a greater portion of the displacement burden on minorities. It is also the most expensive of the three routes, with estimated costs, swollen by inflation, now running almost $250 million.

The route the highway will take has been narrowed from 13 to three proposals, designated Routes 7, 9 and 15.

All three begin just south of the current intersection of the existing I-27 and Loop 289 and continue down U.S. 87 to Fourth Street.

Here the three proposals branch off on different routes. Route 9 would use Avenue A, while Routes 7 and 15 would utilize an area along Avenues C and D until they reached 16th Street. Here, Routes 7 and 15 would angle toward Avenue H, reaching that street at 26th Street.

Route 9 would use Avenue A along its entire length to the Tahoka Traffic Circle.

Route 7 would be built on the east side of Avenue H, continuing to the traffic circle, while Route 15 would follow along the west side of Avenue H.

All three routes combine at the circle and continue through, using U.S. Highway 87 to Loop 289.

The Lubbock City Council and Chamber of Commerce have both passed resolutions favoring the proposal designated Route 15 and city planners think that particular route has the best possibility of being chosen by the Federal Highway Administration.

Route 15 will require the relocation of approximately 108 single-family residences, 112 multi-family units and 163 commercial or industrial enterprises, according to city planners.

Strike By Students Spreads In Poland

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — A student strike in Poland's second largest city went into its 27th day today and strike action was reported spreading to universities in eight other cities as talks continued on charter provisions for student unions.

Leaders of the 4,000 to 6,000 striking university students in Lodz warned earlier that all colleges and universities would be struck today unless the government registered their independent student union by midnight Monday.

As the deadline passed, student leaders in Lodz said strike "actions" began in Torun, Szczecin, Warsaw, Poznan, Rzeszow, Krakow, Opole, and Gwincze.

The government radio said Higher Education Minister Janusz Gorski reported agreement had been reached with the Lodz students on the election of university authorities and guarantees for the universities' independence "on matters of science, teaching and inter-organizational questions." He said agreement had not been reached on the statute for the students' union.

Warsaw Radio said the government wanted the charter to include a pledge to operate in accordance with the Polish constitution and opposed the students' proposal that a strike could be called by a union committee.

Student leaders said they agreed to a clause expressing allegiance to the constitution and recognizing the leading role of the Communist Party.

Meanwhile, government negotiators met in the southeastern city of Rzeszow with Lech Walesa, head of the independent trade union Solidarity, to discuss the demand of private farmers for an independent union.

The Supreme Court ruled against an independent union for the farmers a week ago and suggested they form an association, but the farmers said an association would not give them the right to strike or bargain collectively.

Some 300 farmers have been occupying a former trade union building in Rzeszow since Jan. 4 demanding registration of an independent union, improved equipment and better rural health services.

Another Solidarity leader, Karol Modzelewski, came out publicly in support of the new military premier, Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, and his appeal last week for 90 days without strikes to improve the near-bankrupt economy.

"I think the new government, its personnel changes and principles create a real opportunity to turn back the dangerous course of events, particularly visible during the last weeks," said Modzelewski in a front-page interview in the newspaper Zwycie Warszawa.

"I think both sides have good intentions and the consequent policy of dialogue will assure a truce not for three months but for good."

Scale Model Gives Boost To Zoo Plan

By MARY ALICE ROBBINS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lubbock Zoological Society members have moved another step closer to realizing their dreams of building a zoo for the city.

At least now, society members have some idea what the proposed zoo will look like.

A scale model of the zoological park proposal recently was completed by faculty and student members of the park administration and landscape architecture department at Texas Tech University.

Kay Huttmacher, assistant professor, and Lee Pennington, a student in the department, spent approximately four months working on the model as a student academic exercise.

The model depicts a zoological garden proposed to cover about 55 acres of city-owned land located between East Broadway and East 19th Street near Mackenzie Park.

According to Zoological Society president Diana Edwards, the zoo site is located adjacent to another proposed lake in the Canyon Lakes project. City officials agreed two years ago to tentatively earmark the land for the zoo to see if funds could be raised for the project.

Mrs. Edwards said she still doesn't have complete information regarding total costs for the project, but several million dollars in expenses are likely. Cost estimates are being prepared, she said.

Cavazos Denies Discrimination

By A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — President Lauro Cavazos defended Texas Tech University's medical school against charges of discrimination this morning, saying the school's low minority enrollment is attributable to a lack of scholarship money available to all students, minority or not.

But Austin Rep. Wilhelm Deico called the minority enrollment figures "disgraceful" and said scholarship funds may have to be redistributed to help recruitment of those students.

Meanwhile funds of another sort, state aid to medical school teaching hospitals — in the form of stipends of up to $15,000 annually from the state to each resident physician — moved a step closer to approval Monday in both the House and Senate.

This morning Cavazos appeared before the budget and oversight subcommittee of the House Higher Education Committee to present the Tech Health Sciences Center 1982-83 budget request.

But Rep. Deico, chairman of the higher education committee, told Cavazos that the number of blacks and Spanish-surname students in the Tech medical program is too low.

Tech medical school dean Dr. George Tyner said the school actually accepts far more minority students than eventually enroll at the institution. Tyner said some 60 black students probably will apply for admission to the medical school next fall, that about 15 probably will be accepted, but that only one or two would probably enroll.

"We don't have the resources to provide the scholarships many of these students need," Cavazos explained.

Rep. Deico suggested that funds now being used to help offset the costs of Texas students attending medical schools in foreign countries might be better spent providing scholarships for students to attend the state's schools.

Making sure students have an opportunity to attend state-supported institutions ought to be a first priority, she said.

The subcommittee made no recommendation on the Texas Tech medical program budget today. The school has requested about $104 million for the two-year period, while the Legislative Budget Board has suggested the school receive about $73 million for the 1982-83 budget at the Health Sciences Centers, including

Thrill Shooting Baffles Police

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Four-year-old Cory Menton today lies in a hospital bed, the victim of an apparently pointless crime.

With his young mother and father huddling over him, Cory squirmed about in his bed, wondering what all the attention was about and why the clicking medical apparatus was hooked to his arm.

But the boy's 26-year-old father, Judge Menton Jr., says he can find no reasoning behind the shotgun blast Thursday night that wounded his son as he stood on the back seat of the family's Cutlass. Nor can police detectives give a motive, except to say they strongly suspect it to be a "thrill shooting."

"That hurts," said the cute, wide-eyed youngster as he rubbed his right arm, where one of the two pellets entered his body. Surgeons at Lubbock General Hospital failed to remove the second pellet, which has lodged in the boy's brain. He was first listed in critical condition and it was feared there would be permanent damage.

He has shown remarkable improvement, however, and he appeared alert Monday after he was moved from the pediatric intensive care unit to a room.

Sitting next to the boy's bed was his 22-year-old mother, Vanessa, who suffered a neck wound in the mysterious shooting. She was treated and later released following the 10:30 p.m. attack in the 3100-block of Clovis Road.

Menton had picked up his only son at the boy's grandparents' house and then went for his wife, who was getting off work at the K-Mart on University Avenue. After picking up some hamburgers at Tommy's Drive-In, 117 University Ave., the Menton family turned west on Clovis Road and was headed for their Shallowater residence when they passed what has been described as a gold-colored Ford pickup.

Judge said the driver of the truck, who wore a dark-colored cowboy hat, See BOY RECOVERING Page 16

Solons Warned Social Security Fund Low

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Congressional Budget Office told a House panel today that Social Security could encounter difficulty in paying benefits on time by the end of next year, and the system's main trust fund will run a $63.5 billion deficit in the next five years.

Raymond C. Scheppach, deputy director of the CBO, says Congress could remedy the short-term fiscal crisis by allowing the Old Age and Survivors Insurance trust fund to borrow from healthier Disability Insurance and Hospital Insurance trust funds, or by raising the payroll tax, now at 6.65 percent, by 0.5 percent.

He testified as the House Ways and Means subcommittee on Social Security began three days of hearings on the problems facing the system.

Rep. J.J. Pickle, D-Texas, the subcommittee chairman, said that the major retirement fund "will run short of reserves to pay a month's benefits sometime in 1982."

But Pickle added, "This is not an emergency. Nor is it the 12th hour."

He promised that the committee would seek to put Social Security on a sound footing both for the 1980s and for the longer term when the post-World War II baby boom reaches retirement in the next century and drains the reserves anew.

"Social Security has never missed paying a dollar of benefits. That's remarkable," said Pickle, adding that the public can be assured that despite the "graveyard headlines on Social Security, the problems will be solved.

"We cannot continue to subject the American people to uncertainties about this program. The system must be protected whatever the future holds," he said.

The CBO official testified that the old age fund will be down to $14 billion by Sept. 30, 1982. That is only 4.7 percent of the benefits we will need to pay in the following year, and the trust fund requires a balance of at least 9 to 12 percent to get the checks out in time.

A second witness, who headed the National Commission on Social Security, also warned that unless Congress acts quickly "sometime next year Social Security checks will just not go out."

Prince Takes Fun Seriously

LUBBOCK (AP) — Prince Andrew, second son of Queen Elizabeth II, was at the top of his class at having fun, but not so sharp academically, according to an interview with a classmate at the prince's old secondary school, Gordonstoun.

Lucilla Houseman was quoted in the British weekly magazine Woman today as saying that the prince, who will be 21 on Thursday, "loved having a good time," but took his girlfriends seriously.

The prince, who decided against going to a university and joined the Royal Navy after graduating from Gordonstoun, is now a trainee helicopter pilot.

"He had many girlfriends at Gordonstoun, as well as many friends who happened to be girls," Miss Houseman, now a speech student, was quoted as saying.

"But his real girlfriends, for some reason, always seemed to be American or Canadian," she added.

Joe Smith Celebrates Birthday

ENGLEWOOD, N.J. (AP) — Joe Smith, of the legendary vaudeville team of Smith and Dale, still remembers the 1880s "as if it were yesterday," even though he just passed 97th birthday, his grand-niece says.

Smith, who has lived at the Actor's Fund Home for many years, celebrated his birthday there Monday. He was visited during the weekend by his brother and sister and some of his nieces and nephews.

The Smith and Dale act, prototype for the aging comedians in Neil Simon's play, "The Sunshine Boys," began in 1898 and continued until Dale's death in 1971.

Smith's grand-niece, Ruth Schneider, who lives in Westchester County, N.Y., said her uncle's hearing is poor but he otherwise is extremely well.

Break Blamed On Poor Iran Diet

PUEBLO, Colo. (AP) — Because he was weakened by a poor diet in Iran, doctors have ordered a cast for a hairline leg fracture that former hostage Marine Sgt. Billy Gallegos received while skiing, his father says.

Gallegos broke his leg Friday while skiing at the Monarch area in south-western Colorado, his father, Dick Gallegos, said Monday.

The younger Gallegos was released from Tehran last month with 51 other American hostages.

Gallegos has been ordered to report to duty at the Marine Corps Security Battalion at Quantico, Va., by Feb. 27. A Marine spokesman

Hitchhiker Toes Ride To Jail

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A Virginia hitchhiker tried a new approach to wangle a ride, but all his headstand got him was a trip he probably wished he could have passed on.

Donald Anders was passing through east Tennessee on his way home to Raven, Va., when he decided to stand on his head in the emergency lane of Interstate 40 east of Knoxville, police say.

Tennessee Highway Patrol trooper Randy Gothard arrested him.

The 20-year-old spent a few hours — upright — in jail before his hearing Monday before Knox County Sessions Judge Jewell K. Watson.

"I didn't mean to cause any confusion," Anders told the court, without explaining his upside-down views. The judge set Anders free without fining him but told him to stay off I-40.

1,500 Expected To Show At Court-Martial Protest

HAUGHTON, La. (UPI) — A representative of the Moral Majority says the group expects up to 1,500 people from across the country at a rally late today in support of two Air Force sergeants threatened with court-martial for praying in uniform.

The Rev. Bill Burrows, pastor of Meritwood Baptist Church, said "defenders of liberty" would gather at 7:30 p.m. in his church gymnasium.

"It looks like there may be several hundred, maybe 1,200 to 1,500," Burrows said Monday. "It looks like people may be coming from all over the United States."

"Citizens are showing a lot of concern. We're expecting a good turnout for the rally."

Staff Sgts. David Burton, 29, and Phillips Byrd, 34, of Barksdale Air Force Base were charged with violating military regulations by participating in an unauthorized demonstration while in uniform.

The two men had been praying in protest since June in a vacant field across from the Bossier Medical Suite, an abortion clinic in Bossier City.

The court-martial trial was scheduled to begin Thursday before a seven-officer panel.

Burrows said people across the country were angry the men were not being allowed to pray in uniform.

"There's just a lot of people very upset over America about this. People are really shocked and upset. They are outraged that two men are going to be court-martialed for praying in uniform."

He said Burton and Byrd were inconspicuous in their prayer sessions, did not speak to anyone and did not hand out any pamphlets in protest of the abortion clinic.

"They are just on their knees praying to God. (The Air Force) says they can't do that in uniform. People want to know why."

Burrows said the case involved a dispute over basic human rights guaranteed by the U.S. Constitution.

"The Air Force is putting itself in the place of establishing where a man can and cannot pray."

The pastor said the two men had been praying in the position for 207 days and had only been in uniform on six days at the most.

90-Year-Old Teacher Continuing Legendary Career

DALLAS (AP) — Frank Story doesn't understand all the fuss being made about the fact he's still reporting for duty in the classrooms of the Highland Park Independent School District.

"People think it's amazing I'm still teaching, but I don't. I love it. I feel good and have lots of energy. If I didn't have something interesting and exciting to do, I'd feel bad. That's the secret. Keep yourself busy," he said.

Story will be 90 on March 22 and continues to ride to school on a bicycle to teach his classes. "Well, I do mostly substitute teaching these days, but they keep me pretty busy," he told reporter Marilyn Schwartz of the Dallas Morning News.

At a sixth-grade class Friday at McCullough Middle School, his students persuaded him to get off mathematics and talk to them awhile about the "good old days" when he taught their parents, their grandparents and even, in some cases, their great-grandparents.

Among his former students are actress Jayne Mansfield; U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice of Tyler, Texas; SMU all-America halfback Doak Walker; actress Dorothy Malone; "and a whole bunch of other kids I remember like it was yesterday."

Miss Mansfield was one of his students at Highland Park High School, he said.

"I taught her Spanish. Just two years before she died, she was making a movie in Spain and she wrote me a letter," Story said.

"She thanked me for doing such a good job with her Spanish. She said it was really coming in handy. I know things were pretty bad for her at the end, but when she was in my class she was a very sweet young lady."

He attended Southern Methodist and the University of Texas before he began his teaching career at Ennis in 1913.

"People ask me how I got into teaching. I tell them it's simple. I was broke and needed the job. I'm not broke now, but I still need the job. I'm thrilled the Highland Park school district keeps asking me back."

Other teachers said he rode a bicycle to school Friday, but he refuted that.

"That's not quite true," he said. "I couldn't ride the bicycle today. It's not because I'm too old or anything. It's just that my wife wouldn't let me. It's Friday the 13th. She's superstitious."

He has been married for 58 years. His wife was one of his students.

"I was just a young man teaching at high school in Ennis at the time. She was in my study hall. We started dating a month before she graduated. Believe me, we had to keep that quiet," he said.

Most of his teaching has been in Highland Park, a sophisticated suburb encompassed by Dallas.

He has been substituting since his official retirement in 1962.

"But I never really wanted to leave," he said. "I just love teaching too much. Languages are my specialty. I still teach French and Spanish to the kids today."

He says shyly that he feels he's been a pretty good teacher.

His 90th birthday will be celebrated next month at Highland Park High School.

Illness Linked To Vitamin A Overdose

LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — Lacey Taylor's parents thought they were helping protect her against winter colds with massive doses of vitamin A. Instead it almost killed her.

The 3-year-old was hospitalized suffering from itching, dehydration and a severe tremor. Tests at Sparrow Hospital revealed the child had a blood calcium level so high it could have stopped her heart and doctors worked on her for six days, thinking she had Reye's Syndrome.

Finally they discovered her puzzling condition, normally associated with excess vitamin D, was linked to an overdose of vitamin A from over-the-counter pills. The child, they determined, had been given doses of vitamin A 100 times the daily requirement.

Now, Lacey is "doing really super" and will recover, said Dr. Donald E.

Knickerbocker. Knickerbocker called the incident a "totally innocent use of what was thought to be a proper use of over-the-counter materials."

"It has been an amazing case which we will undoubtedly be reporting in the medical literature," said Dr. William Weil.

"The overdose was potentially fatal because it altered her heart rate, her heart rhythm," Weil said. "Conceivably her heart could have stopped at that level of calcium and that was a major danger."

The toddler's parents, Sheri and Donald Taylor, brought her to the hospital last week when she began exhibiting the strange symptoms.

"She couldn't keep water down or anything and was throwing up constantly," Mrs. Taylor said.

The Taylors said Lacey had been given an increased intake of vitamin A the week before — in regular, over-the-counter pills — to ward off colds and flu, which have plagued the Lansing area this winter.

Knickerbocker said doctors determined the daily dosage was 200,000 units — 100 times the daily requirement of 2,000 units.

"The body stores Vitamin A," Weil said. "It is unlike vitamin C, which is excreted if not used by the body. You don't know how much excess vitamin any one person can tolerate because sensitivity varies."

Terror's Roots Go Deep

BY NOW you have heard (quite likely several times) that human rights is out and terrorism is in as a primary consideration in the formulation and conduct of U.S. foreign policy.

Say one thing for the switch, the President's team has certainly latched onto a popular cause.

Terrorism doesn't have much of a constituency except among terrorists themselves, who aren't all that numerous worldwide and so far as is known are non-existent in political Washington.

But it has not picked an easy one. Even before deciding what is to be done about the problem, there is the problem of defining it.

WALTER LAQUER of Georgetown University's Center for Strategic and International Studies, the experts' expert on the subject, points out that "contrary to widespread belief, terrorism is not a new and entirely unprecedented phenomenon.

Its roots go back to the anarchist movement of the late 1800s and Irish nationalism of the same vintage which has survived for decades.

Terrorism is a politically loaded term. One nation's terrorism can be another's liberation movement, such as with the Jewish immigrants of post-war Palestine and the Palestinians today.

The past, however, provides no answer to today's problem, which continues to be debated inconclusively in the UN and other forums.

The U.S. and several other major Western governments have taken meaningful action with the establishment of special counter-terrorist military units.

THERE HAVE been a few notable successes, like the Israelis at Entebbe. But the risks are great, as demonstrated by the failed U.S. rescue mission in Iran. And the opportunities for effective action of this type are few in comparison to the extent and variety of terrorist activity.

Hijackings could be halted, complete security achieved for diplomatic personnel and premises and still there would be a terrorism problem.

There would still be those fanatic individuals and groups willing to sacrifice any number of victims and die themselves for a cause appealing to none but themselves.

They are elusive foes, difficult for the forces of order to engage in battle, their places when defeated quickly taken by new groups with new causes.

Once the President's team really gets into this, the complexities of developing an effective counter-terrorist policy may make the tussles with the South Koreans, assorted Latin American juntas and Communist regimes over human rights look like the good old days.

End Of Sexism Nowhere In Sight

WASHINGTON—A delegation of women's rights turned up on Capitol Hill the other day, still lobbying hard for a dead amendment and a live issue. With deference, it has to be said that theirs is a futile quest.

The laws they seek to alter are beyond the parliamentary reach.

The dead amendment, of course, is the long-pending Equal Rights Amendment to the Constitution. The live issue—the abiding, eternal issue—has to do with the status that society and the marketplace accord to women.

In a word, the issue is discrimination. Like the poor, it has always been with us. The vice, if it is a vice, is ineradicable.

Mind you, we have come a long way from the relationships that were praised by the early philosophers and theologians.

THE MALE IS by nature superior, and the female inferior," said Aristotle, "and the one rules and the other is ruled." Woman, he added, "may be said to be an inferior man."

That same chauvinistic spirit runs through most of the world's literature up to the present century. Women were expected to be obedient, subservient and silent.

"It is thy place, woman," said Aeschylus "to hold thy peace, and keep within doors."

No more. The most significant social history of our country in this century is to be found in the struggle against invidious discrimination—discrimination by race, and discrimination by sex. At the last count, federal agencies alone were administering more than 130 statutes and executive orders forbidding it. Half of the states have their own laws to prohibit it.

FEW PRINCIPLES HAVE been embraced more passionately by politicians than the principle of equal rights. Yet manifestly inequality persists.

Would the Equal Rights Amendment put an end to it? I do not believe it for a moment, but this was the view pressed by Eleanor Smeal, president of the National Organization for Women, in her appearance last month before the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee.

Without ratification of the ERA, she said, "sex discrimination at work will continue."

How so? From its very inception back in 1973, proponents of the ERA have imagined that the amendment, if it ever were ratified, would accomplish more than it possibly could accomplish.

THE AMENDMENT WOULD write into the Constitution this commandment: "Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex."

But so far as a new order of sexual equality is concerned, the language is illusory. Constitutional amendments are both symbolic and substantive, but they are not self-executing.

The history of the 14th Amendment is in point.

Our Turn, At Last!

ON HIS LAST day in office, the wire services report, an outgoing Department of Energy bureaucrat gave $4 million in federal funds to charity. We assume it was tax deductible.

SMU Athletic Director Russ Potts resigned just as the NCAA began investigating the school's football program, leaving SMU without a Potts to put its probe in.

In case you missed it, deposits in the oil-rich First National Bank of Midland soared by more than $385 million to over $1 billion in 1980.

News Item: "Americans have sharply increased their use of $100 bills and the experts are wondering why."

Note to the experts: You reckon the fact that a 100 won't buy as much today as two 20s bought 20 years ago has anything to do with it?

GOOD NEWS, Bad News: The Good News, as reported by Lloyd Larrabee, is that he mailed a letter to a Lubbock address on a Monday; it was delivered the next day and a reply, mailed that same day, reached him on Wednesday.

The Bad News, as reported by Mrs. Arnold Ingraham is that a letter she mailed from Lubbock to a Levelland bank, 30 miles away, on Dec. 18, hasn't been heard from since, there or at her return address.

This has cost her a $10 late-payment charge and a $5 stop-payment fee.

To Feds, Majorettes Are Taboo

WASHINGTON—In the Declaration of Independence, among the long list of "repeated injuries" and "usurpations" committed against the states by King George, is the following:

"He has erected a multitude of new offices, and sent hither swarms of officers to harass our people, and eat out their substance."

Well, we all know how the American independence movement turned out. It succeeded—sort of. But, unfortunately, we still have King Georgeism without King George. And now it is our own national government which has erected many new offices, and which sends hither swarms of officers to harass our people, and eat out their substance.

AS DR. HOWARD Sullins, superintendent of the Chesterfield County (Va.) Public Schools, recalled it for me, the whole thing started in December 1979 when a team of two Title IX investigators from the Department of Education's Office for Civil Rights came to look over his school system to see if it was in compliance with federal law. To make a long story short, as it turned out, the law was being violated.

Title IX prohibits discrimination on the basis of sex.

On April 7 of last year, Theodore Nixon, director of the Education Department's Elementary and Secondary Education Division, Office for Civil Rights, Region III in Philadelphia, wrote Sullins a letter.

This letter informed Sullins that some of his schools were in violation of Title IX.

SO WHAT WERE the heinous crimes being committed by some of the Chesterfield County public schools?

I will only focus on one of them here. As Nixon's letter detailed it, one of the Title IX violations "concerned the use of the suffix '-ette,' which connotes female only, in the names of some extracurricular activities."

In his letter to Sullins, Nixon asked for the following, in order to determine whether a satisfactory settlement might be reached.

— Copies of several student handbooks from a number of different schools;

— Copies of other written material describing any other extracurricular activities that have names ending in "-ette" and — For the current school year, the number of males and females in each school for each extracurricular activity with a name ending in "-ette."

Bluntly put, Sullins told Nixon to drop dead. As he explained it to me, "These people had no complaints about our schools. We don't know why they came. I would have thought they had more pressing things to do."

We sort of bowed up our back on this -ette thing. We said we just didn't think the federal government is strong enough to eliminate the word majorette from the American vocabulary on the

"Any suggestions?" she asks. Only one, Mrs. Ingraham: You might see if you can swap postal workers with Larrabee.

Yesterday was another state holiday. Three down and only 15 more to go before New Year's!

LUBBOCK motorists have paid federal taxes for a generation already to help build and maintain the Interstate Highway system without getting to use it very often.

Thursday night, they'll get a chance to demand that this inequity be corrected for the next generation.

A public hearing is scheduled at the Memorial Civic Center on the recommended route and design of Interstate 27 through Lubbock.

Positive support for the recommendations will get the project moving, negative comments could delay it—and there's barely enough time now to get it all under contract before Interstate funding expires in 1986.

COUNTY COMMISSIONER Alton Brazell, who also chairs the Chamber of Commerce's Highways, Streets and Roads Committee, tells a hairy story about one highway project in this region that was canned indefinitely because the only person who showed up at the public hearing was opposed to it.

District Highway Engineer George Wall and design engineer Dalton Jones recommend that the I-27 expressway pass just to the east of downtown Lubbock and then veer westward and track Avenue H to Loop 289 on the south side of town.

This route, recommended after a couple of dozen other possibilities had been studied and rejected, deserves strong support.

It is a good route and it is one that those who had different ideas at an earlier public hearing can back with enthusiasm.

Design modifications to expedite on-and-off access downtown and at the South Loop termination point are needed but the overall plan is the best we can hope for: getting the project moving is the important thing at this point.

TEXAS GETS BACK only 70 cents of each $1 Texans pay into the federal highway trust fund—and this may be our last chance to get some of that money back.

In fact, the I-27 segment through Lubbock may very well be the last urban stretch of Interstate in the whole country, highway people say.

Our only choice is to be last or be left out. The $250 million price tag is high, but we've helped finance even more expensive mileage, adjusted for inflation, for 25 years now and it's our turn to get some direct benefits.

Without the I-27 expressway, our traffic woes can't be solved—and it certainly wouldn't be fair, even if it were possible, for us to help pay for everybody else's expressways and then have to build our own without help.

We get to use Interstates when we travel, of course, but it surely would be nice to see one between vacation trips!

high school scene. We just don't think that many of the young men in Chesterfield County are going to put on ties and short skirts and try out for majorette."

As things were finally resolved, those school handbooks that contain the dreaded suffix "-ette" will retain this suffix, but some wording will be added which indicates that all extracurricular activities are open to boys as well as girls.

Ron Gilliam says that the kind of thing his office did to the public schools of Chesterfield County, Va., is "a standard procedure" and "a routine kind of practice."

Well, it shouldn't be. And I hope President Reagan puts a stop to it.

Sylvia Porter:

Do Not Take The Word Of IRS Agent As Final

(First of nine columns)

NEW YORK—Did you receive gifts and, or cash from a bank or savings institution in 1980 because you opened an account or brought in a friend who in turn made a deposit?

Or did you perhaps get a loan from an institution so you would have the $10,000 minimum necessary to invest in high-yielding six-month certificates of deposit?

Huge numbers of Americans from coast to coast would answer "yes" to either or both of these questions. They were commonplace procedures last year as financial institutions fought for our funds.

But now the key question: Do you know the tax consequences of what you did?

The answer almost surely is a flat "no."

MOST INSTITUTIONS DID not tell depositors that the fair market value of gifts or services received for opening accounts in financial institutions is interest and that as a result you must report this interest as income in the year it was received (1980).

Nor did most institutions bother to tell you the fair market value of the gifts you received in the form of merchandise for bringing in a friend to open an account—such as radios, TV sets, bicycles, etc.—was income to you.

But if your friend opened an account and the fair market value of the gift you received was $600 or more, the income had to be reported by the bank on Form 1099.

The same holds true if the institution gave you a cash gift of $600 or more for having brought in a friend to make a deposit. (Cash, though, is easier for you to report for tax purposes than a gift with a fair market value that no one has even hinted to you.)

THE ABOVE TAX rule was included in a 1980 IRS revenue ruling—and that fact alone is what differentiates this tax series from just about all others as well as from the U.S. government's own tax guide and private income tax publications.

Here are tips dug out from unnoticed Tax Court decisions and unpublicized IRS tax rules. Here are obscure Treasury tax regulations unknown even to local IRS agents. (Don't—DON'T—accept a local IRS agent's word as final if his view differs with this column's. He may not have been fully informed.)

With confidence, I pledge that some of this series' hints will help all of you, and all of them may help some of you.

If in 1980, you invested in a $10,000 six-month certificate of deposit with the help of a loan from the issuing institution, you were credited with the interest on the entire $10,000 deposit—but the institution also charged you interest on the portion of the $10,000 that it loaned you.

FROM AN INVESTMENT viewpoint, you wind up with a net return equal to the total interest on $10,000 less the interest you were charged. But on your 1980 income tax return, you do not report this as a net figure.

Instead, you report your interest on the certifirates of deposit separately from the interest charged on your loan.

For instance, say you deposited your own $5,000 and borrowed $5,000 from the institution in order to invest in a $10,000 six-month certificate paying 14 percent last year. You were credited with $700 interest on the $10,000 for six months and had to pay the institution interest at 15 percent on the $5,000 borrowed, or $375.

Your net return is therefore $325 ($700 minus $375) on your own $5,000 for six months, an attractive annual yield of some 13 percent. However, on your 1980 income tax return you must report $700 of interest income. And separately you deduct $375 as interest.

The issuing institution will have reported your interest income as $700, which you must include in your interest income. But you can deduct only the $375 you were charged in interest if you itemize your expenses.

AND IF YOU don't itemize your expenses, you can't even reduce your $700 of interest income by the $375 charge.

The outcome: (1) your 1980 income taxes have been raised, and (2) your expected yield on your certificate of deposit has been cut.

There is a basic lesson here. In the fierce competition for our funds among financial institutions, many ifs, ands and buts in the investments offered are being downplayed.

And in our eagerness to grab the highest returns we can get, we are shrugging off many potential drawbacks. Never underestimate the role income taxes play in any investment decision. If you erred in 1980, don't repeat it in '81.

Solon Says Drinking Bill May Be Illegal

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate has voted to make teen-agers wait an extra year to buy booze or beer in an attempt to cut down on high school drinking.

Senators voted 26-2 Monday to raise the legal drinking age from 18 to 19. They refused to make an exception for 18-year-old military personnel, who can still drink on base.

"I think your motives are noble, but I think the bill may be unconstitutional," Sen. Carl Parker told the sponsor of the proposal, Sen. Bill Sarpalus.

Parker, D-Port Arthur, predicted "some smart lawyer is going to come in and have this (bill) declared unconstitutional."

"That may be," replied Sarpalus, D-

Hereford.

The passage of Sarpalus' bill missed Sen. Walter Mengden, R-Houston, who admonished him not to "horn in" on legislation that other senators have worked years to develop.

Mengden, a senator since 1973, told the freshman Sarpalus that Mengden's bill raising the drinking age to 19 was approved by the Senate in 1979 after he had spent 18 months on it. The same bill was on the Senate agenda Monday, but Mengden did not attempt to bring it up after the Senate approved Sarpalus' measure.

If approved by the House, the Sarpalus bill would leave only 10 states with a legal drinking age as low as 18.

Texas' drinking age was lowered from 21 to 18 in 1973 when the Legislature voted to endow 18-year-olds with full adult rights.

Parker asked if under Sarpalus' bill an 18-year-old "go-go" dancer "bare as a yard dog" could sell drinks between dances although she could not drink herself.

"That's right," said Sarpalus.

Similarly, an 18-year-old could work in a package store selling whiskey and beer.

Sarpalus said the bill would prohibit anyone under 19 from holding a license to own a liquor store. Otherwise, he said, "There would be nothing to keep an 18-year-old from buying a liquor store and selling to his friends."

A bill summary stated that raising the drinking age by one year would be important because a smaller percentage of high school students are 19.

Lifting Of Interest Rate Ceiling Proposed

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas financial institutions say they can't lend money under the state's current interest restrictions, so two legislators plan to introduce a bill that could raise the ceiling as high as 30 percent.

Rep. Bill Messer, D-Belton, said he and Sen. Grant Jones, D-Abilene, probably will introduce the measure Wednesday — the same day that several lobbying organizations of lenders plan a news conference.

"The object is to allow people who want to borrow money to have it available to them," Messer said in an interview Monday.

Mortgage loans would not be affected since Texas' 12 percent ceiling already has been pre-empted by a federal law.

Messer's and Jones' bill would create a floating ceiling equal to double the interest on six-month treasury bills, with an outside limit of 30 percent. The current T-bill rate is 14.45 percent this month but it plunged to 7 percent last summer.

Messer said he doubted lenders would charge anywhere near the proposed limit.

Among the groups that reportedly will join in pushing the bill are bankers, credit unions, savings and loan associations, auto dealers, retailers and consumer finance companies.

"Testimony will show that virtually no money is available for car loans, television sets and other appliances," Messer said.

Rebecca Lightsey, legislative director of the Texas Consumer Association, said her group would fight the bill.

"Essentially what it will be will be no ceiling on interest rates," Miss Lightsey said. "There may be some relief the lenders need, but to put them all in one big pot is not the way to go about it."

Consumer finance companies would not be affected by the floating ceiling but would benefit in another way. Their interest rates vary by size of loan, with the biggest rates falling on loans in the lowest brackets.

Panel Gets Insurance Measures

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas public school teachers cannot afford health insurance premiums and need help from the state, the Senate Economics Development Committee was told Monday.

Four bills proposing state funding of group health insurance for teachers were sent to a subcommittee Monday in an effort to recommend one compromise bill for Senate debate. Similar bills are pending in the House.

"We all agree that teachers need an insurance program," said Sen. John Traeger, D-Seguin, author of one proposal. "We all agree that any plan should have freedom of choice, where a teacher could belong or not and that local schools could keep their present programs if they wish."

Traeger's plan to set up the teachers' group insurance plan statewide with administration by the Teachers Retirement System drew support from the Texas State Teachers Association.

Dora Scott, Houston, president of TSTA, said a TSTA survey of 649 districts showed 59 providing partial payment of premiums and 34 full premium payments. The remaining 556 districts had no local health insurance plan and made no contributions to teachers' insurance.

The broad-based participation in a statewide plan should help provide for a lower rate," she said.

Sue Guinn, Corsicana teacher, said Traeger's plan would help locally because Corsicana teachers could not afford commercial plans. She said 63 percent of Corsicana's teachers have moonlighting jobs "from nursing to grave-digging."

AUSTIN (AP) — Legislators got their first glimpse Monday of what it might cost to improve state prisons, prompting one senator to talk of trying to find a "bottomless well."

Texas Department of Corrections

Corrections Director Claims Budget Insufficient

Director W.J. Estelle told two panels that the $668 million two-year budget was prepared before U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice's opinion criticizing many aspects of the prison system.

"We may have to come back. I don't know" after Justice's final ruling, Estelle told a subcommittee of the House Committee on Security and Sanctions.

Justice has not issued his final ruling in a civil rights suit brought by inmates against TDC.

In testimony to the House subcommittee and the Senate Finance Committee, Estelle laid out a point-by-point list of why he considers the $661 million recommended by the Legislative Budget Board to be insufficient.

The budget requested by the Department of Corrections might solve some of the problems Justice has said need solving, Estelle said.

"I'm convinced ... it would moot out a bunch of the issues in the lawsuit, but we have nothing to go by," he said.

TDC's proposal calls for $33.4 million for medical expenses. LBB recommended only $25 million. Estelle said the money TDC wants would end a medical system that depends on inmates to distribute drugs and do medical procedures. It would pay for 278 new medical assistants.

"We are vulnerable, and we are liable and we are going to be as long as we have inmates in that area," he told senators.

The requested money could lead to American Medical Association accreditation, he said, which could be a defense against lawsuits.

Sen. John Traeger, D-Seguin, was not impressed.

"I'd rather buy some more tractors," he said.

Throughout Estelle's presentation, Sen. Ed Howard, D-Texas, pointed out that the requests were large increases over TDC's current budget. Howard said a "bottomless well" would be needed to meet all the requests.

Estelle laid out a plan to end overcrowding in the 30,000-inmate system. He said a combination of his work-lease proposal, Gov. Bill Clements' $35-million plan to build space for 2,880 inmates and the construction of the Grimes County prison could end overcrowding.

Plan To Record Meetings Stalled

AUSTIN (AP) — A Senate bill to require tape recording of closed state government meetings has hit a snag in committee, and will be changed before it comes up again.

Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, sponsored the proposal to make state government bodies tape record closed sessions, keep the tapes for two years, and make them available as evidence in "any action involving an alleged violation of (the Open Meetings) Act."

"Right now you can't tell whether a meeting was properly closed because there's no way to know what went on behind closed doors," said Austin lawyer Robert Heath, testifying in favor of the bill.

Officials may properly hold secret meetings if they are, for example, consulting an attorney about litigation, discussing personnel or security matters, or buying real estate.

But some senators on the State Affairs Committee, which considered the bill Monday, objected that the measure did not define who could have access to the tapes.

Doggett said he believed only a judge would be able to listen to them, but Sen. Betty Andujar, R-Fort Worth, said making pirate copies would be simple.

"You're setting up situation more fraught with danger than the present," Mrs. Andujar said. "I can see these tapes being listened to in back rooms and hotels, and I can see the headlines and everything else."

But Mrs. Andujar voted against Doggett's other bill, which closed a loophole in the Open Meetings Act.

The committee approved, 7-1, and sent to the floor the measure refining the definition of a "meeting" or "deliberation" covered by the act.

Dangers Of Faulty Gas Lines Cited

AUSTIN (AP) — Chairman Jim Nugent of the Railroad Commission says leaky natural gas lines threaten Texans' lives and property.

Nugent told the Senate Finance Committee on Monday many municipal lines were built in the 1940s and 1950s, and are rusting and "becoming a dangerous statewide situation."

"We're going to see more explosions, more property damage and more personal injuries," Nugent predicted.

He said Texas gas systems lost 2.1 billion cubic feet in 1980, a value of $42.9 million and enough gas to serve Fort Worth for two years.

He said one out of every five municipally owned gas systems loses at least 30 percent of the gas paid for by its customers each year, and more than 200 gas utility distribution systems lose at least 10 percent of their gas.

A list distributed to the committee showed 12 municipal systems had lost at least 40 percent of their gas in 1979, and Nugent said such systems "are a ready, present, physical danger to everybody around."

The 12 systems include Bronson, which lost 56.47 percent of its gas, Dilley 57.24, El Dorado 41.12, Goldsmith 46.37, Hemphill 43.19, Joaquin 47.65, Kountze 40.27, Menard 67.80, Morton 42.14.

Deductions Often Overlooked

By RAY DE CRANE

For taxpayers who want to itemize their deductions instead of taking the standard allowance provided by the Internal Revenue Service, this article will concentrate on medical expenses and charitable contributions.

The accent will be on frequently overlooked deductions rather than more obvious ones.

These deductions and many others are covered in detail in the 1981 edition of "Cut Your Own Taxes and Save" by Ray De Crane. Obtain your copy by sending a check or money order for $1.50 (plus 50 cents postage and handling) to "Cut Your Own Taxes" c/o Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Most people are familiar with the 3 percent-1 percent rule that applies to medical deductions. This means that medical expenses must be greater than 3 percent of total income before there is a deduction and that the costs of prescriptions and other drugs are taken into the computation only after they exceed 1 percent of total income.

But an exception to this rule states that one-half the cost of insurance premiums you paid for medical care may be deducted, to a maximum of $150. So, if you paid $600 for medical-insurance premiums, you may claim a deduction of $150 even if you had no other medical expense for the year.

Include your total insurance fees for Blue Cross, Blue Shield, other forms of medical and hospital insurance, dental and prescription insurance and the cost of Medicare B (for those 65 years and older). Include only those payments you made, not the premiums paid by your employer.

If you do not have enough other medical expense to exceed 3 percent of your income, take your allowable insurance-premiums deduction here and move on.

But if you are going to continue with a full list of medical expenses, be sure to add in the balance of your medical-insurance premiums that you did not claim outright.

Remember, too, that if you have made frequent trips to the doctor or dentist, to hospitals for emergency-room service or for outpatient care, or to a pharmacy to obtain prescriptions, you have an allowable transportation-expense deduction.

Under this year's tax rules, you may charge 9 cents a mile for this use of your car in connection with obtaining medical care. Add to this the cost of any parking fees.

If you used taxis or public transportation instead of your own car, the actual cost of such transportation may be claimed.

In claiming your charitable contributions, in addition to your cash gifts to recognized charities, don't forget to claim the value of used clothing, furniture or appliances you may have contributed to a charitable organization. The amount you may claim is the amount you could expect to realize from the sale of such items.

Remember, too, that if you are a volunteer worker for a charitable or church organization, you may claim a transportation expense of 9 cents a mile in driving to and from such organizations to perform your acts of charity.

Farmers Taking Soybeans From Elevator

NEW MADRID, Mo. (AP) — Angry farmers loaded a convoy of trucks with soybeans from a bankrupt grain elevator today as federal officials warned potential buyers against purchasing the grain.

"If we have enough trucks, we'll be loaded in a couple of hours," said a spokesman for the American Agriculture Movement, Alvin Jenkins of Campo, Colo. "We've got more than 25,000 bushels of beans loaded."

"But where Wayne will take them and whether he has a buyer — I don't know."

Puixco farmer Wayne Cryts led about 500 farmers to the Ristine Grain Elevator on Monday to remove his 30,000 bushels of soybeans — valued at $250,000 — defying a federal court order and U.S. marshals.

"He is in contempt of the bankruptcy court and has violated several criminal statutes in his seizure of the grain, including obstructing a marshal in the performance of his duties," said U.S. Attorney Robert Kingsland of St. Louis. "These are felony and misdemeanor violations."

Kingsland declined to say what action would be taken against Cryts, but said federal authorities are keeping close watch on the grain.

"Other elevators have been warned by the trustee in bankruptcy," he said. "My information is that as of yesterday, they didn't have any potential buyer."

Cryts harvested the soybeans in 1979 and stored them in anticipation of better market prices. He had the warehouse receipts, but the beans became tied up in court proceedings as federal judges tried to determine their ownership. Cryts was told to stand in line with the rest of the bankrupt company's creditors.

But Cryts had loans to pay, spring planting to get in.

So he and other farmers ignored warnings of federal marshals and, after arriving in a 10-truck convoy, broke into the Ristine Grain elevator in southeast Missouri to recover the soybeans. More farmers were expected to join the grim harvest today.

The farmers invited the FBI to monitor the operation so there would be no question how much grain was removed. FBI agents were handed weight scale tickets as trucks loaded with soybeans left the elevator.

"We've got nothing to hide," said Homer Evans, a spokesman for the AAM, which is backing the protest. "We don't want to get one bean more than 30,000 bushels."

Evans wouldn't reveal where the beans were being taken, but said they would be sold as fast as possible.

term of up to 25 years to life in prison, manslaughter in the second degree is punishable by up to 15 years in prison and criminally negligent homicide is punishable by up to four years. Neither of the lesser charges carries a mandatory prison term.

The jury was scheduled to begin its deliberations following Leggett's charge.

But before today's court session began, Leggett disclosed that he had sequestered the jury Monday night at the request of sheriff's deputies. He said the deputies expressed concern that reporters might try to follow jurors to ask their opinions of the case.

He also said the defense had moved for a mistrial on Monday during a conference, but the motion had been denied.

The 57-year-old lover of the millionaire cardiologist spent eight days on the witness stand, describing her career and her long-distance love affair with Tarnower, often snapping angrily at the prosecutor.

Harris Jury Told To Study Other Charges

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — The judge in Jean Harris' murder trial today asked the jury to consider not only murder but several lesser homicide charges during deliberations beginning this afternoon.

Judge Russell R. Leggett instructed jurors that they may consider a charge of second-degree manslaughter and criminally negligent homicide, neither of which carries mandatory prison terms upon conviction.

Mrs. Harris is charged with murdering Scarsdale Diet doctor Herman Tarnower, or intentionally causing his death during what the prosecution says was a jealous rage over his affair with another woman.

The defense contends that Tarnower's death was a tragic accident which occurred as Mrs. Harris was attempting to take her own life.

Leggett spent the first part of his charge, or instructions to the jury, explaining the various degrees of homicide which it may consider.

In order to find Mrs. Harris guilty of murder, the jurors must agree unanimously that she "with intent to cause the death of Herman Tarnower by shooting him, to wit with a .32-caliber revolver."

But if the jury finds that Mrs. Harris did not intend Tarnower's death, Leggett instructed it to next consider the charge of second-degree manslaughter, or recklessly causing the death of another person.

If the jury finds that Mrs. Harris was not reckless in her conduct in Tarnower's room last March 10, Leggett said it must lastly consider the charge of criminally negligent homicide. He defined the latter as "failing to perceive a substantial and unjustifiable risk" which resulted in Tarnower's death.

Haig Wants Aid To El Salvador Boosted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. told congressional leaders today that the United States should step up military aid to the junta in El Salvador in light of hard evidence that the leftist guerrillas there are receiving arms from Cuba, Ethiopia and Vietnam.

Chairman Clement Zablocki, D-Wis., of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, said Haig's briefing indicated that some of guerrilla arms include American M-16's which were captured by Communist forces in the Vietnam war.

Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., declared, meanwhile, that "the finger points toward Cuban intervention or at least support. Cuba has been the problem, and has been for a long time." He said the session with Haig was "alarming."

Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said military aid to El Salvador is "in the cards."

But Percy declared he is willing to consider such a proposal only if it is coupled with a commitment from El Salvador to halt "the atrocities that have occurred" by that government's own hand.

Percy said the "outside forces should be on notice that this nation will do whatever is necessary to prevent a Communist takeover."

Asked if U.S. troops might be sent, Percy said that would be "highly unlikely, but we would not rule out any options."

Percy also said that "whenever forces are used in this way," the administration would have to get approval from Congress. "and they have not made any request of us."

"I am convinced ... that there is hard evidence that outside forces are intervening and furnishing Communist forces inside El Salvador with all the weaponry they require for the revolution and the takeover, with leftist forces, of the government of El Salvador," Percy said.

Percy said that the Soviet Union is "indirectly" involved in the arms shipments reaching Communist countries because, unlike the United States, they do not put any restrictions on arms they provide to third countries.

"There's no question about it in my mind," Percy said.

Percy said the time has come to "to draw the line" on Communist intervention in the Western Hemisphere.

Rep. Jim Wright, D-Texas, the House Democratic leader, predicted bipartisan support for arms shipments to El Salvador, saying that the region is of vital importance to the security of the United States.

Percy noted that American church groups continue to be deeply troubled by the December murders in El Salvador of four American churchwomen. Official sources say the FBI has turned up evidence that El Salvador security forces may be implicated in the slayings.

Percy said those deaths are not being forgotten in the rush to aid the existing government.

The Reagan administration is using El Salvador, where more than 13,000 people have been killed in civil strife in 14 months, as a test of its contention that the Soviets are supporting terrorism around the world.

only after the U.S. leader meets Egyptian President Anwar Sadat this spring.

Shamir, 66, had a full agenda of meetings with congressional leaders Thursday and with Secretary of State Alexander Haig on Friday.

The foreign minister said he would press for resumption of the stalled negotiations with Egypt on autonomy for 1.2 million Palestinian Arabs on the West Bank and Gaza before June 30, the date of Israeli elections that polls predict will sweep Begin from power.

Shamir also planned to repeat Israel's rejection of any European peace initiative outside the Camp David framework and of Sadat's call for the Palestine Liberation Organization to form a government-in-exile — a proposal also rejected by the PLO.

"I will discuss in Washington the summit meeting between Prime Minister Begin and President Reagan that will probably be held after Sadat meets with the U.S. president," Shamir told reporters.

Another key point is Israeli opposition to selling advanced components for Saudi Arabia's F-15 warplanes. Shamir planned to remind Washington of the Carter administration's 1978 pledge not to supply the multiple bomb racks, advanced weaponry and electronics and belly fuel tanks.

"Israel completely and categorically opposes the massive flow of all types of weapons from all sources to Arab countries in the Middle East," Shamir said.

Shamir said he would request clarification of U.S. commitments to establish a peace-keeping force to patrol the Sinai Desert after Israeli withdrawal in April 1982 under the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty.

New Guidelines On Free Meals To Go Into Effect

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

New income eligibility standards and procedures for students who receive free or reduced price school meals are scheduled to become effective in about 45 days.

The guidelines, changed by recently enacted federal legislation, will be in effect until Sept. 30.

The revisions will affect some children's eligibility and also will remove the hardship provisions previously allowed. A standard deduction has been worked into the new income scale.

The new guidelines allow families of one or two to qualify with a larger income and reduces the income requirements for a family of three or more. Also Lubbock public schools have elected to raise the charge for reduced price meals from 10 cents to 20 cents. A school district may determine the cost of reduced price meals but it cannot exceed 20 cents for lunch or 10 cents for breakfast.

Principals currently are re-evaluating all applications received since the beginning of the school year. Families whose benefits will be reduced or terminated according to the new requirements will receive written notice of the change at least 10 days prior to any change made.

Families who wish to fill out an application may obtain one from any school in the district.

Israeli Official To Meet With Reagan

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir left for Washington today hoping to convince the Reagan administration to resume the stalled Middle East peace talks before Israel's June 30 elections.

Shamir, the first Israeli leader to meet with the new administration, said before leaving that a summit between President Reagan and Prime Minister Menachem Begin likely will take place only after the U.S. leader meets Egyptian President Anwar Sadat this spring.

Shamir, 66, had a full agenda of meetings with congressional leaders Thursday and with Secretary of State Alexander Haig on Friday.

Haynes Criticizes Client's Treatment

LIBERTY (AP) — The prominent criminal lawyer hired to defend Mrs. Price Daniel Jr. says she has been subjected to "some very curious circumstances and some very harsh circumstances since the incident that catapulted her to page one."

Mrs. Daniel is charged with murdering her husband, a former Texas House speaker, in their ranch home north of Liberty in a Jan. 19 shooting.

Richard "Racehorse" Haynes of Houston was retained last week to head Mrs. Daniel's defense. He also is to represent her in a civil action in which Daniel's sister is seeking custody of two of Daniel's young children. A custody hearing is scheduled for Feb. 26.

Haynes said Monday in Houston he has no intention of tolerating uncommon and unprofessional treatment he says Vickie Daniel has received from "so-called" Liberty County officials.

He said he will seek return of such personal items as her driver's license, her purse and its contents, and the birth certificates of her two sons.

Such material, Haynes said, is not relevant to the case.

Mrs. Daniel had filed a divorce suit Dec. 31.

Haynes said that when the full facts are developed there will be evidence that Mrs. Daniel was "a battered wife."

Working with Haynes will be Andrew J. Lannie of Baytown, who has represented her since the shooting, and Harlan D. Friend of Liberty.

Friend is trustee of a fund established last week to help Mrs. Daniel and said Monday he was pleased with contributions that have ranged from $25 to $150.

However, Jean Daniel Murph, Daniel's sister and executor of his estate, released a statement saying the fund had been established under false pretenses in that Friend had been quoted as saying part of the money would be used to buy clothes for Mrs. Daniel and the two boys.

"The truth is that I and three witnesses, one of them a sheriff's deputy, were present with Vickie Daniel in her home when she removed her entire wardrobe, consisting of at least 40 or 50 outfits," Mrs. Murph said.

She said 25 to 30 outfits for the two boys also were removed, along with playpens and other items.

DEAR ABBY

Prisoner Seeks Religious Data

DEAR ABBY: I was raised a sometime Baptist but am dissatisfied with the Protestant Scriptures and the answers they propose. I would like to obtain copies of other religious scriptures — the Koran, the Veda, the Avesta, or something pertaining to Taoism, Bahamim, and anything else I can acquire concerning religions.

I am presently serving a life sentence at Waycross, Ga., so obviously I don't have access to public libraries or other public places where this information is available.

I am well-educated and not afraid of tackling complex doctrine. Also, being in a lock-up, my funds are limited.

Can you help me, please?

SEARCHING

DEAR SEARCHING: Many religious societies make their literature available on request without charge. Ask your prison chaplain about the Inside-Outside group, whose purpose is to help prisoners with requests such as yours. Please write again and let me know if you are successful.

DEAR ABBY: I recently read in your column that one can obtain a "NO" button to wear if you are not interested in sex.

Do you suppose we older folks could obtain a button with "MAYBE" or "SOMETIMES" on it?

CLARENCE IN CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: Now it's my turn to air my pet peeve. I've been a salesperson in the same store for nearly 30 years, so you know I'm no spring chicken. Over the years I've sold women's purses, gloves, costume jewelry, neckwear and millinery.

My pet peeve is the "looker." When I see a customer who appears to be interested in something, I approach her and ask in a pleasant tone, "May I help you Madam?"

Nine times out of 10, she will drop whatever she was looking at and say, "No thanks, I was just looking." Then she walks away.

I guess I should be used to it by now, but it still irritates me. Why do most women do this?

MRS. B.

DEAR MRS. B.: Because while "Madam" is debating, the salesperson interrupts her "Should-I-or-shouldn't-I" debate. Then Madam becomes somewhat intimidated, fearing she may be talked into a sale she may later regret.

A better approach would be, "If you find something you like, I'll be glad to assist you."

Remember, all buyers were "lookers" first.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "SHORTY" IN DEDHAM, MASS.: No one said it better than Malcolm Forbes, editor of Forbes magazine: "Stand tall. The difference between towering and cowering is totally a matter of inner posture. It's got nothing to do with height. It costs nothing. And it's much more fun."

Opening lead: Three of ♣.

Every card tells a story.

And it doesn't usually require the Rosetta Stone to decipher its meaning.

The auction was straightforward. At his second turn North had a choice between a jump to three clubs or three no trump. Since he held stoppers in every suit, and in view of the limited nature of his partner's opening, he had no interest in slam, so he opted for the nine-trick game.

West led the three of hearts and dummy's jack won. Declarer called for the king of clubs for dummy, and East's failure to follow was a distinct shock. The contract now proved to be unmanageable. When West won the queen of clubs, he continued with the king of hearts, and declarer had only six fast tricks. As soon as the defenders gained the lead with the ace of diamonds, they cashed three heart tricks and the ace of spades for a two-trick set.

Declarer was unlucky to find a 3-0 club split, but he had only himself to blame for failing to make his contract. The opening lead told the whole story of the hand, so there was no need for South to take a wrong view of the club suit.

The three of hearts marked West with only a four-card heart suit. Since it is normal for the defenders to attack a no trump contract by leading from their longest and strongest suit, declarer's first deduction should have been that West held no suit longer than four cards. If that were the case, then West had to have at least one club. Thus, if either defender was void of clubs, it had to be East.

Once that conclusion was reached, it would have been a simple matter to start the club suit by leading low from the table. If East follows, declarer could be sure that the suit would break no worse than 2-1, and thus produce five tricks. If East shows out, declarer can win the ace and take the marked finesse for the queen, and still have time to knock out the ace of diamonds. In due course he will come to two heart tricks, two diamonds and five clubs.

WIN HELPS PEOPLE ON WELFARE

Federal Program Gets Jobs, Saves Money

DALLAS (Special) — The Work Incentive (WIN) program helped 16,004 welfare applicants and recipients in the five-state (Arkansas, Louisiana, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Texas) Southwest Region get jobs last year, saving $16,781,087 in Federal funds — an increase of more than a million dollars from fiscal year 1979, according to the U.S. Department of Labor in Dallas.

The program, jointly administered by the Departments of Labor and Health and Human Services, was established by the 1968 amendments to the Social Security Act.

Nationwide, WIN helped 284,000 get jobs and saved about $966 million in Federal Funds, more than double the cost of the program. Funding for WIN in fiscal year 1980 was $365 million. The total reduction in Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) grants for fiscal year 1980 was $632.4 million. There were additional estimated savings of $131 million in Food Stamps and $203 million in Medicaid health services, the Department reported.

Regionwide, the retention rate of individuals in the WIN program was 86.3 percent, compared to the national average of 85 percent. Only two states in the region fell short of the national average — New Mexico at 81 percent and Texas at 83 percent. However, both states showed increases from the previous year.

Overall, half the new job holders earned enough so they and their families could leave welfare altogether. Welfare payments to other new workers were reduced.

Nationally, the Department of Labor reports, more than 70 percent of the new workers were women, of whom two-thirds were between the ages of 30 and 45, and half were white. In the Southwest Region, more than 98 percent of the new workers were minority women in the same age groups. About half the women's jobs are in clerical, sales and service work. Their average starting wage was $3.58 an hour.

Of the men who got jobs, labor reported, two-thirds were white, and the same proportion were in their 20s. Starting pay for the men averaged $4.60 an hour.

WIN provides job search assistance, job training and supportive services such as child care and employment counseling.

The program requires that all over 16 who apply for or receive AFDC register for WIN unless exempt because of illness, age, or small children to care for.

WIN is not typical of the mainstream labor force. Of the 1.5 million registrants as of Sept. 30, 1980, three-fourths were women, almost 40 percent were black, just over 10 percent were Hispanic, and less than half had finished high school. In the labor force, by contrast, 43 percent were women, 12 percent were minority group members, and 76 percent had finished high school.

To open up more jobs for WIN registrants and AC recipients, tax laws permit employers who hire them to claim a federal income tax credit. This amounts to 50 percent of first year wages up to $6,000. Employers of household employees may claim a tax credit of 35 percent of the first $6,000 for one year only.

For further information on the WIN program or the WIN/Welfare Tax Credit, interested persons should contact a local office of the WIN program or the state employment security agency, also called "job service."

Trees Vulnerable To Building

COLLEGE STATION (Special) — Selecting a building site for a new home — or planning new construction on an existing site?

If so, be sure to protect any existing trees you want to keep, warns Everett E. Janne, landscape horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Desirable trees too often are killed unwillingly by well-meaning contractors or new homeowners, either by removing too much or filling in too much soil over the existing root system, Janne explains.

Construction damage usually results in a slow decline sometimes taking two to three years to kill the trees.

Grade changes are often necessary to provide a good site for the house or to allow optimum use of valuable land. When this is necessary there are several ways to save needed trees.

If considerable fill is required around a tree, construct a tree well and tile system around the trunk so air and moisture remain available to the existing root system.

The tile system should radiate from the tree well at least as far as the branch spread of the tree.

Remove any existing vegetation before making the fill and place the tile system at the original soil surface.

Cover the tile with crushed stone before adding the fill soil.

Where the fill is less than 12 inches, a layer of gravel or crushed stone placed between the original grade and the fill soil may allow sufficient aeration to save the tree. This is especially true if the original soil is rather porous and the fill soil is sandy and porous.

It is difficult to make a definite statement as to how much fill a tree can withstand without endangering its life.

Rapid-growing trees with shallow, far reaching, rootsystems often can survive a slight fill with no damage.

Oaks, pecans, and similar trees are not very tolerant of fill soil around the roots. This is especially true in tight, heavy clay soils with poor drainage.

Improper handling of a grade change around a tree will usually result in a slow decline of the tree, a loss of vigor, reduction in leaf cover and little or no terminal twig growth.

Death will occur over a rather long period, often from some secondary cause such as insect injury or a disease organism.

On the other hand, if the soil line must be lowered, you can save the tree by building retaining walls to save the majority of roots.

With careful pruning remove some of the top growth — or thin it out — to compensate for any root loss or damage.

Remember, mature trees cannot be replaced and a small tree takes years to reach landscape size.

Take steps to protect any large trees on the property where grade changes are made or construction is in progress.

Proper protection is a small investment when one considers the aesthetic and monetary value of a good tree.

To remove damp and musty odors in closets, place used coffee grounds in an open container and leave in the closet.

Mnemonics Stresses Attention

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Have you ever walked up to your car door and reached into your pocket only to discover that your car keys are not there?

Do you get to the grocery store and find out you left your list of food items at home? How often have you been introduced to someone and then failed to remember his name?

If this has happened to you, then mnemonics may be the answer, says a psychology professor at Brigham Young University. Mnemonics, or memory aids, is a subject that is more than 300 years old but has been adapted by BYU's Dr. Kenneth L. Higbee, to modern, everyday use.

According to Higbee, who is the author of the book, "Your Memory, How It Works and How to Improve It," and an instructor of memory-improvement classes for the past 10 years, absent-mindedness is a major problem. One reason people forget easily is because of their "failure to pay attention," he explains.

Forgetting is easier than remembering, says Higbee, because "to forget something you only have to fail at any one of three stages — recording, retaining, or retrieving. But to remember something you have to be successful at all three stages. In other words, you have one chance to remember and three chances to forget."

One of the cornerstones of the mnemonic technique is the use of visual imagery, he points out. Using pictures to remember words works because "most people remember visual images better than they remember words. Young children think a lot in terms of visual images, so since we were very young, this has been a learning pattern for us."

Higbee says no one memory aid works in all situations. For example, when one of his students repeatedly forgot where her car keys were in the morning, he told her to say out loud where she was placing them when she got home at night.

"It made her think consciously about what she was doing," he explains.

For those who forget to pick up bread and milk at the grocery store on the way home, Higbee recommends tying a string on a finger or turning a watch or ring 180 degrees. Looking at the object will supposedly trigger remembrance of the task.

"This method has limitations, though, because there is an association gap," he cautions. "You might remember to tie the string but then later forget why you tied it."

There are several steps to insure remembering names and faces, he points out. First, make sure you have heard the name clearly. Use it three times — when you meet the person, during a conversation, and when you say goodbye.

Second, focus on the person's face. Find something distinctive about him or her that will help you recognize the person better.

Third, make the name meaningful to you. When the name is not familiar, he suggests applying the principle of substitution. For example, to remember the name Higbee, simply substitute hug for hg, thus getting hug bee.

"Even if there is an occasional name that you cannot make meaningful, merely trying to do so will force you to concentrate on the name and work it over and thus increase the likelihood that you will remember it," Higbee says.

Fourth, associate the face with the name. And, finally, review the association. Higbee suggests reviewing the name as soon as possible after meeting the person. Writing the name down so you can look at it and hear it may also implant the name deeper in your memory.

"The secret to successful memorization hinges on the ability to organize information as it is filed away in your mind," Higbee says.

"How useful would a dictionary be if the words were listed in random order rather than alphabetically?"

To develop a better mental filing system Higbee has identified four methods using visual images, phonetics, locations, and a set of prememorized words, to improve memory retention.

He uses these techniques to memorize the names of every student in his college classes — about 150 a semester.

Orange Juice: Liquid Gold To Florida Citrus Growers

WASHINGTON (Special) — That's "gold" in them-thar groves.

It's the "liquid gold" that brightens up your morning with vitamin C — the "sunshine vitamin." It also brightened up Florida citrus growers last year. They sold $1.6 billion worth of orange juice.

Today's liquid gold has a long history in the United States.

Not many people know that Christopher Columbus, on his second voyage to the New World, brought fresh oranges. Some of them ended up in the Caribbean. Later, Spanish adventurers introduced oranges to Central America, Mexico and eventually Florida.

Florida orange juice is rated number one because its quality exceeds federal grade A standards, said Owens Eddins, a U.S. Department of Agriculture citrus inspector.

In addition to the state's citrus inspectors, Florida contracts with USDA for inspection services to grade the oranges for quality. USDA has about 665 inspectors who work either in the fresh or processed sectors of the state's most important industry.

"It's our responsibility to carry out the rules and regulations of the Florida citrus code and to insure that all Florida citrus products meet U.S. grade standards," Eddins said. "The inspection aids in the orderly marketing of products in many ways but is primarily for identification of a product's quality potential."

Eddins' services include making sure processors adhere to regulations, maintaining a strict sanitation code and scientifically evaluating finished processed citrus products to insure they meet USDA grade standards. USDA grading is not a regulatory function — it's voluntary. For this, the packers pay Florida — which in turn pays the federal government — a fee, based on the number of cases of fruit packed for the season.

"It takes 5 years for an orange tree to become productive and bear mature fruit," Eddins said. "Once a year at harvest time a tree will yield roughly 1,500 oranges. It will produce fruit for about 35 years. When a tree no longer pays for the ground it occupies, the grower takes it down, plants a new one and begins the process again."

"We think of oranges as always being orange," said Ann Pinner of USDA's processed foods lab in Winterhaven, Fla. "Actually they're green most of their growing life."

"Climate dictates color as the fruit matures. Cool temperatures make the orange color more pronounced as chlorophyll leaves the peel," she said.

"Some oranges grown for juice will have traces of green at harvest. However, for the fresh fruit growers, green is a problem," she said. "Consumers aren't conditioned to accept green oranges — even though they're perfectly ripe inside."

Citrus fruit does not ripen after picking as do many other fruits.

"Oranges must remain on the trees until they meet Florida's maturity standards," Eddins said. "Inspectors analyze samples for sugar levels from groves which are ready for harvest. This measurement is made in 'degrees Brix,' named after a German scientist who perfected the instrument to measure natural sugar levels."

Before World War II, orange juice came only from freshly-squeezed fruit.

"During the war a powdered form of juice won the approval of our GI's but it never sold well," Eddins said. "People wanted something that tasted like fresh juice and was available all the time."

Food technologists experimented with concentrated orange juice for years. Finally, in 1949 the Florida Department of Citrus patented the frozen concentrate process used today, Eddins said.

"Few people understand the mechanics of citrus processing," he said. "It's highly mechanized. The big plants employ a lot of people. They have an equal amount of machinery and are similar in some respects to oil refineries. About 90 percent of Florida's oranges are processed as citrus products at one of 55 machines."

juice plants in the state. Most oranges are made into concentrated juice.

"The syrup-like concentrate is made by removing water from the juice. It's kept in giant 'tank farms,' which means plants always have millions of gallons of juice on tap," he said. "This recent technological breakthrough allows plant to have concentrate available year 'round'."

In processing, no part of the orange is discarded, Eddins said.

"Citrus pulp and peel are dried for cattle feed. Some dried pulp is made into citrus molasses, which is used in cattle feed, alcohol, adhesive, paints and me-

Pope Issues Strong Statement On Human Rights

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Pope John Paul II told President Ferdinand E. Marcos today that violation of human rights cannot be justified "even in exceptional situations."

Roman Catholic Church officials said the statement was the strongest pronouncement by John Paul to date on the question of human rights.

In a face-to-face meeting at the Malacanang presidential palace on the first day of his six-day visit to the Philippines, the pontiff declared that the citizens' basic rights cannot be curtailed even for "legitimate concern for the security of a nation, as demanded by the common good."

"Social organization exists only for the service of man and for the protection of his dignity, and ... it cannot claim to serve the common good when human rights are not safeguarded," the pope told Marcos, who has ruled the Philippines for 16 years, the last eight under martial law which was lifted only last month.

In an apparent reference to the ending of martial law and the announced plan to hold presidential elections in May, the pope said:

"Recent initiatives that are worthy of praise augur well for the future since they manifest confidence in the capacity of the people to assume their rightful share of responsibility in building a society that strives for peace and justice and protects all human rights."

John Paul said the Philippines — the only Roman Catholic nation in Asia, has a special obligation "to bear witness to the values of its Christian culture before the world."

"It is my hope and prayer that all the Filipino people and their leaders will never cease to honor their commitment to a development that is fully human."

From the palace, the pope went to the residence of the Vatican's diplomatic representative, where he is staying. There a young woman relative of a political prisoner surged through the crowd and reached over the heads of security officers to hand the pontiff a letter. It informed John Paul that 28 political detainees are on a hunger strike to protest what they claimed was their "unjust continued detention despite the lifting of martial law."

A religious group working to free political prisoners claimed last Saturday that the number of political prisoners still in jail has reached 1,014 with at least two dozen on hunger strikes since martial law was lifted.

The pope was welcomed to the Philippines by some 1.6 million cheering people en route from the airport to Manila Cathedral.

Sadat Promotes Government-In-Exile

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — President Anwar Sadat of Egypt said today the Palestine Liberation Organization likely would be part of a provisional government that he is urging the Palestinians to create for Israeli-occupied territory.

Sadat also said that it would be very unlikely, but not impossible, for PLO leader Yasser Arafat to head such a government-in-exile.

The Egyptian leader, who has been renewing his call for the Palestinians to create a provisional government, said the leader of such a body would have to be selected by the Palestinians.

This was the third time in the space of a week that Sadat has renewed his call for a provisional Palestinian government. It was the first time, however, he suggested the PLO might be part of it.

Israeli leaders on Monday angrily criticized Sadat for floating the government-in-exile idea. They said he was acting outside the framework of the U.S.-sponsored Camp David accords stipulation on a form of autonomy for Palestinian Arabs living in Israeli-occupied territories.

Asked at a news conference if he agreed with the criticism, Sadat replied, "I don't agree at all."

Sadat called Arafat a "compromise leader, not a leader to decide and take the cause of the Palestinians in his hands." But Sadat stressed that it was not up to him to select a leader for the Palestinian people.

"I'm not suggesting anyone as a substitute," Sadat said. "This is not a personal thing against Arafat at all."

Egypt's relations with the PLO were ruptured as a result of Sadat's historic trip to Jerusalem in 1977 and the signing of the Camp David accords. The PLO has been in the forefront of those accusing Sadat of selling out the Palestinian cause by signing a peace treaty with Israel.

The Camp David accords call for Israel and Egypt to negotiate at some point with a representative of the Palestinians, but the Jewish state has said it will never talk with Arafat or the PLO.

U.S. Journalists Oppose UNESCO Plan

PARIS (UPI) — American representatives opposed a UNESCO plan to register journalists, warning that the communist and Third World's stated goal of protecting reporters could be used to control the media.

Dana Bullen, veteran Washington newsman representing the U.S.-based World Press Freedom Committee, said the UNESCO plan "would have the effect of licensing and otherwise controlling journalists in the name of protecting them."

Participants at the two-day conference of journalists at the headquarters of the U.N. Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization finally agreed that the Third World and Communist groups would draft a proposed "protection" plan today.

The plan will be submitted to a larger meeting on communications opening Thursday but American participants hinted they may submit their own counterproposal.

"I am not insensitive to the perils facing journalists," Bullen told 35 participants Monday. "I have had correspondents working for me expelled from countries or jailed."

"But a card in a reporter's pocket will not save him from a sniper or a mob. Newsmen are not expelled or jailed because nobody knows they are reporters," he said. "They are expelled or jailed because they are reporters."

South American, Asian and African groups spoke against the press cards but advocated protection from both state and employers to prevent journalists suffering "arrests and torture."

International press groups headquartered in Western Europe and two American groups gave the stiffest opposition to the ideas, first raised in a report to UNESCO by Pierre Gaborit, political science professor at the University of Paris.

He proposed an international commission to issue identity cards and have "the means of checking that journalists on dangerous assignments or simply on assignments abroad conform to the generally accepted rules of professional ethics."

DR. LAMB

Risk Factors Valid

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My doctor claims that he can tell me what my risk of having a heart attack or stroke is from his examination. He says that my cholesterol is high and my blood pressure is high. Actually, it is only 145 over 95 and I have read that isn't bad for a person my age. I'm 65.

He thinks I need to lose weight, but I also heard on TV that a recent study by the National Academy of Sciences said that diet didn't help in preventing heart disease and the American Heart Association was all wrong about this. If I were really overweight I wouldn't mind going on a diet, but I'm really not any heavier than most of the other men I know and they are not on a diet. What is your opinion of all this?

DEAR READER — My opinion is that you should follow your doctor's advice. You have managed to put together a lot of misinformation that can harm you.

First, your doctor is absolutely right in telling you that he can estimate your risk. And the risk factors are the best measurement of how much disease you have in your arteries.

A good study was done at the University of California, Davis School of Medicine, that helped to prove this point. The arteries to the heart were visualized with arteriograms and correlated with blood pressure, cigarette smoking, cholesterol levels and other risk factors. The individuals with the lowest risk factors had no significant evidence of disease in their arteries while the individuals with high risk factors had no significant evidence of disease in their arteries while the individuals with high risk factors did have.

The risk factors and what they mean are discussed in The Health Letter number 13-2, How to Measure Your Risk of Heart Disease, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of The Avalanche-Journal, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

And there is other good news. Other small studies have shown that if you reverse high risk factors, such as the type you have, that the process of fatty-cholesterol deposits in the arteries will stop or even be reversed.

Incidentally, the National Academy of Sciences' report did not say that diet wouldn't help. It emphasized that losing weight was important. Moreover, its comments about diet for the general public were only for those who had no evidence of an abnormality — that is, those who have normal risk factors.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have learned that a lot of the younger folks are sleeping in the nude. While my granddaughter says it is natural and is a strong believer in doing things naturally, I think it could be harmful. I tried to tell her that it could cause acute inflammatory arthritis. Would you tell her so she will listen before it is too late?

DEAR READER — It may not be as natural as she thinks. Even the cavemen wore animal skins and you can bet they didn't take them off at night in the winter — at least for sleeping.

Actually, it all depends upon other factors. In the winter, warm bed clothes really help, particularly if the house temperature is lowered to save on heating bills. This is particularly important in older people who can gradually lose body heat and have a low temperature crisis that can be dangerous.

If the room is warm it is less important. Of course, warm bedding helps but if you stick out of the covers you can lose a lot of heat that way. Cold will not cause inflammatory arthritis but it can contribute to muscle spasms and muscle cramps.

Dublin Police Searching For Witnesses To Arson

DUBLIN, IRELAND (UPI) — Ireland observed a day of mourning today for the victims of the Stardust Disco blaze and investigators pressed a search for four witnesses who might know the cause of the fire that killed 44 Valentine's Day celebrants.

Special services for the dead were arranged throughout the republic. Many businesses either closed or gave their employees time off. Prime Minister Charles J. Haughey announced both houses of Parliament would adjourn.

Hundreds of police, who painstakingly checked the charred debris of the entertainment complex and interviewed survivors, eliminated electrical failures, careless smoking or flammable liquids as possible causes of an accidental fire.

They appealed to four key witnesses to come forward to help determine if the Saturday blaze in the disco crowded with 800 dancers was arson. Besides the 44 dead, the blaze injured another 130 people.

Police were particularly interested in a teen-age girl who told a doorman as she fled the building. "They have started a fire in there." Police said they did not know if the girl meant the fire had been started deliberately.

They also sought three women employees who were having a tea break in the area where the fire was believed to have started.

City Burglary Suspects Arrested

Three burglary suspects were arrested this morning in connection with two separate break-ins, including one at a Lubbock jewelry store which netted an estimated $500 in loot, police said.

A window on the east side of the jewelry at 13th Street and Avenue J had been shattered and objects on display appeared to have been handled in the 4 a.m. break-in.

Just after the break-in, which triggered an alarm, Det. Paul Mayfield radioed he was in pursuit of a man running west on 17th Street.

Police converged at 16th Street and Avenue L and found a 26-year-old man lying on his back in a clump of weeds.

Police said the man was taken into custody because he was seen close to the jewelry store seconds after the alarm sounded and he ran when he saw officers. Reports, however, indicated the loot from the burglary was not found on the man when he was arrested.

Owner Carroll Anderson said he had not determined how much was taken, but gave $500 as a rough estimate of the loss.

About two hours earlier, police Cpl. Randy Ward stopped a car in the 1800 block of 10th Street on a traffic violation and later learned the two men inside the vehicle were suspects in a nearby apartment burglary.

Ward in his report said when he approached the car, he saw a stereo ground wire dangling from the trunk and two speakers sitting on the back seat. The 27-year-old passenger was taken into custody after a check revealed there was a warrant for his arrest.

The driver, 24, was unable to furnish a driver's license, according to police. The motorist reportedly allowed Ward to look in the trunk, where he found several items of stereo equipment. The man explained that he had bought the equipment from a subject earlier in the day, but police said he could not furnish a receipt.

While authorities held the man on the traffic violations, a driver's license number inscribed on a turntable was traced back to Joe L. Humphries, who owns an apartment at 1922 Eighth St.

Humphries and police met at that location and found that the apartment had been broken into. The owner also identified the property found in the car, resulting in the suspects' arrests on suspicion of burglary.

A 38-year-old woman said Monday her husband "has destroyed everything I had," and expressed doubt that authorities would do anything about it. She said the man has repeatedly beaten her and their children, but never has he been arrested or charges filed against him.

The woman said she arrived home about 4:30 p.m. Monday to find it in shambles. Reports state her furniture had been shattered, household utensils broken, food and other items strewn about the floors and someone had knocked holes in walls throughout the residence.

Police said a bathroom sink had been damaged, mirrors cracked and six windows had been broken.

The woman said she had fought with her husband earlier in the day and had fled the house because she was afraid he would hurt her. "Now he has destroyed everything I had, and nothing will be done," she told the investigating officer.

A neighbor also told police the man came to her house and said, "I've left her in ruins now, and now I am leaving."

Mary Lou Long, employed with the police records division, said Monday someone stole $80 from her purse while she was at the police station.

Reports state J.W.'s Pool Hall at 816 Ave. C was burglarized between 10:45 p.m. and 11:20 p.m. Monday, and the intruders broke into a pinball machine, juke box and pool table. The owner of the parlor said an undetermined amount of money was taken from the machines and pool table.

Richard Douglas Hafley of Route 3, Box 308A, Lubbock, said his house was burglarized between 10:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday, resulting in a loss of $2,725 in property, including guns, television games, stereo equipment, a sewing machine and clothes.

A television set, stereo equipment, class ring and shotgun was the reported loot taken in a break-in at Michael Eugene Gossett's residence at 2110-B 21st St. Monday afternoon.

Lubbock police have arrested two men, and two more suspects are being sought for questioning in connection with a burglary ring that is believed to have been operating in Lubbock County since late last year.

The two men were jailed during the weekend, and have thus far said they burglarized seven residences and one business in Lubbock and the surrounding rural area, according to Det. Cpl. Marshall Berry and Det. Roland "Butch" Ralston who are investigating the case.

Some of the property taken in the break-ins, including six firearms and a television set, has been recovered, the detectives said. Police are in the process of "rounding up" the remainder of the merchandise, Ralston said.

The ring has been operating since about Christmas of last year, police said. The four men probably are responsible for several more recent burglaries, Berry and Ralston said.

The detectives hope to question the two other suspects sometime this week.

In other activity, Willy Ray Lee, 60, of 1702 Ave. B told police a man hit him in the head with a pool cue Sunday at an east Lubbock pool hall.

Lee told officers a middle-aged black man wearing a tan hat and brown shirt struck him twice in the head with the stick.

He suffered two cuts on the head and was treated for the injuries at West Texas Hospital.

Police and fire investigators Monday were probing an incident in which a man's home apparently was set on fire to hide a burglary.

The fire was reported at 2:32 a.m. Sunday at the 4419 49th St. home of Louis A. Shobe, 26, according to police reports. The fire, which caused extensive damage to the east bedroom of the home, was extinguished by Lubbock firefighters.

When Shobe, who was out of town for the weekend, returned home, he discovered several valuable items had been stolen. Taken were a .25-caliber automatic pistol, an electric guitar, a gold watch and two gold rings, police said.

Shobe told police a former friend, a 24-year-old Lubbock man, may have burglarized and set fire to the residence. The victim said he confronted the man in the alley behind the home Sunday morning after the fire.

A tool box containing $4,000 worth of assorted tools was stolen from Paul's Parts, 4204 19th St., between 4 p.m. Sunday and 9 a.m. Monday, police said.

Skipper Ready Cited In Car Theft Charge

Lloyd Dale "Skipper" Ready, still awaiting re-trial on aggravated kidnapping charges for allegedly terrorizing a Lubbock household with a bag of rattlesnakes, has been charged with auto theft.

Ready, 40, was in custody at the Lubbock County Jail this morning after allegedly stealing a 1977 Cadillac Eldorado from a Lubbock car dealer Feb. 6.

Justice of the Peace Charles Smith said bond was denied for Ready, who has two previous felony charges still pending against him.

Ready was tried late last year in Floydada on a charge of venue from Lubbock County in the aggravated kidnapping case filed after the alleged incident here last April. A mistrial was declared after the jury hung.

The current charge filed against Ready alleges he arrived at a Lubbock car lot and told one of the owners he wanted to take a test drive, but never returned the white, two-door sedan.

Car owner James Gschwend told police that Ready arrived at his car lot and talked to his partner about buying the Cadillac. The owner said Ready told his partner he had made arrangements with Gschwend to buy the car for $4,000 but that he needed a test drive before he could make up his mind.

He told the man he would return the car in 30 minutes, the owner said.

The victim told police that he was out of town at the time of the incident and never talked to Ready at all about buying the car. However, the car dealer waited several days before contacting police because he had known Ready for about 20 years and assumed he would bring the automobile back.

The charge of theft over $200 but under $10,000 is a third-degree felony and is punishable by a penitentiary term of two to 10 years.

Ready was taken into custody by the Plainview Police Department and turned over to the Lubbock County Sheriff's Department this morning.

TODAY'S STOCK PRICES

Oil, Mining Stocks Give Mart Boost

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market turned higher today, paced by advances among oil, precious metal and office equipment issues.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, which fell 20.73 points last week, rose 7.00 to 938.57 at noon.

But gains held only a slight edge over losses among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

"The real market — the advances and declines — are split right down the middle," said Larry Wachtel of Bache Halsey Stuart Shields.

Trading has been sluggish in recent weeks, reflecting investor concern about President Reagan's plans for spending and tax cuts, which are to be submitted to Congress on Wednesday.

Wachtel said that while much of Reagan's program has already been disclosed, the financial community will be closely looking for indications of how much of it will get through Congress.

Concern also has heightened over the continued high level of interest rates. Citibank, the nation's second-largest commercial bank, said this morning that its prime lending rate will remain unchanged at 19.5 percent.

The NYSE's composite index of all of its listed common stocks rose 0.41 to 73.21. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index fell 1.82 to 337.49.

Big Board volume reached 16.85 million shares over the first two hours, compared with 15.42 million in the same period Friday.

Northern Telecom topped the most active list, down 1/8 at 28, in trading that included a block of 204,000 shares changing hands at 28.

Oil stocks registered broad gains, including Mobil, up 1 1/2 at 71; Texaco, up 1/4 at 40 1/2; Exxon, up 1/4 at 72 1/2; and Standard Oil of California, up 1/4 at 93 1/4.

Other active issues included General Telephone & Electric, up 1/4 at 26 1/2; International Business Machines, which today introduced a new plain-paper copier, up 1/4 at 62 1/2; Ralston Purina, down 1/4 at 11; Sony, up 1/4 at 15 1/2; Boeing, up 1/4 at 35 1/2; and Xerox, up 1/4 at 57.

Gold prices rose at home and abroad today, and precious metals issues also gained, including ASA, up 1/4 at 5 1/2; Dome Mines, up 1/4 at 79 1/2; Hecla Mining, up 1/4 at 33; and Homestake Mining, up 1/4 to 52 1/2.

Labor Hopes To Avoid Dispute

BAL HARBOUR, Fla. (AP) — AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland, urging labor leaders to come to grips with the conservative mood of the country, says opposition to the Reagan administration's proposed budget cuts should not erupt into political warfare.

Kirkland and the 35-member executive council of the labor federation expressed broad disagreement Monday with the administration's developing economic policy, but the AFL-CIO chief said, "I recognize the facts of life. I recognize that fiscal conservatism is dominant today ... and there will be a major effort to make large-scale slashes in the federal government."

Following an executive council meeting with Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee, Kirkland said — as he has in the past — that organized labor shouldn't stake all its hopes on one political party.

"The American trade union movement is not conditioned or premised on who's in the White House or who's in Congress," he told a news conference in this Florida resort city. "We had our differences with the prior administration ... and we have had presidents in the White House who did not share our philosophy nor were overwhelmed with warmth about our role in society."

Kirkland's remarks came as the AFL-CIO's political action committee studied ways to improve the lobbying clout of the 14 million-member federation, which has seen its influence wane since last November's election.

"We're going to endure," Kirkland said. "We're going to thrive. We're going to survive."

Kirkland said he believes the organization has "abundant opportunities to tend to our trade union garden and prepare for the battles to come. If we depended on the outcome of an election for our survival, we would have been dead years ago."

The AFL-CIO's invitation to Baker reflected Kirkland's oft-stated desire to improve lines of communication between unions and the Republican Party.

"We look forward to finding areas of common interest," Kirkland said. "I think there are many areas in which we can meet common understanding."

Squad Rescues Hostage In Florida Prison Siege

RAIFORD, Fla. (AP) — A nine-man attack squad stormed a prison office in a burst of gunfire today, killing a convicted murderer and rescuing a hostage to end a 10-hour standoff at Union Correctional Institute, officials said.

Another prisoner was critically wounded in the early morning assault, which came after two inmates armed with homemade knives seized two secretaries and demanded safe passage from the prison.

Minutes after the inmates seized the women, three prison employees managed to pull 26-year-old Debbie Wright free, officials said.

However, 22-year-old Terri Rimes didn't get away until 1:12 a.m., when a special weapons team stormed the office used by an assistant superintendent, said Department of Corrections spokesman Vernon Bradford.

Mrs. Rimes escaped with minor cuts, he said.

The dead inmate was identified as 38-year-old Ray Anthony Mitchell, convicted of killing four people in their suburban Miami homes and sentenced to a life term. The other prisoner, 27-year-old Jerry Rasberry, was convicted in the St. Petersburg area of robbery and assault and also was sentenced to life.

Rasberry was in critical condition at a Gainesville hospital with multiple gunshot wounds, said Bradford.

Bradford said the prisoners "wanted a car with guns in it and they were going to take the girl with them." The prisoners told authorities they would release their captive once they were assured of a safe flight from the North Florida lock-up, Bradford added.

Atlanta Police Try To Establish Time Of Black Youth's Murder

ATLANTA (AP) — As 11-year-old Patrick Balthazar was buried today, investigators tried to determine how long his body had lain in a DeKalb County ravine before it was discovered.

The timing of his death and the dumping of his body are critical to officials trying to determine the path and habits of a killer, according to police investigating the slayings of 17 young black children and the disappearance of another.

Officials say evidence indicated Balthazar's body might have been dumped a number of days before it was found Friday. The body was wet, perhaps a sign it might have been left out in the open before rain doused the area Tuesday and Wednesday, said DeKalb County Public Safety Director Dick Hand.

The boy had been asphyxiated, the eighth victim of suffocation or strangulation since the cases began in July 1979.

Others have been shot, stabbed or bludgeoned to death.

Meanwhile, police worked to compile a composite sketch of a man who was seen the morning of the discovery. Two workers at the office complex near where the body was discovered reported seeing the man in a green car. Hand said police wanted only to speak with the man.

Nader Says Rates Against Consumer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer advocate Ralph Nader is complaining that the Postal Service's proposals for increases in mail rates are "lopsided" against consumers and in favor of businesses.
Postmaster General William F. Bolger acknowledged the proposed increases are lower for mail used only by businesses. But he added that consumers also have an interest in lower mail rates for businesses because "all costs of doing business are ultimately borne by the consumer."
The Postal Service wants to raise the first-class letter rate by 33 percent, to 20 cents from 15 cents. Other requested increases include 1.9 percent for mass-circulation newspapers and magazines and 17.7 percent for bulk-rate advertising mail.

FBI Chief Links Mafia, Waterfront Corruption

WASHINGTON (AP) — Waterfront labor racketeers with close ties to two New York City Mafia families controlled pervasive extortion, bribery and other corrupt schemes at East Coast ports, federal authorities told a Senate subcommittee today.

"I wish I could tell you we have cleaned it up," FBI Director William H. Webster said as he described the bureau's five-year undercover investigation, which produced 129 indictments and 110 convictions with some defendants yet to be tried.

He testified before the Senate permamembers whom they represented and opened their organizations to the control of the professional criminal."

Webster testified that organized crime bosses had divided East Coast waterfront corruption into two territories, one extending from New York through Norfolk, Va., and the other from Norfolk through Miami.

Federal prosecutor S. Michael Levin of Miami testified that the key Miami figure convicted in the case, George Barone, is a close associate of a member of the New York Mafia family of the late Vito Genovese.

He testified Barone controlled the southern end of waterfront corruption.

Anthony Scotti, the key figure convicted in New York, had been identified by the Justice Department as a member of the Mafia family of the late Carlo Gambino.

Sen. Sam Nunn, who initiated the subcommittee probe as chairman of the panel last year and who continues to serve as its ranking Democrat, suggested that Congress pass legislation requiring union officials to forfeit their offices immediately upon conviction of a crime. Barone and others convicted in Miami still hold their union offices while appealing their cases.

ILA members, he said, "deserve honest leaders who achieve the union's goals through legitimate means."

The subcommittee, he continued, "is not out to destroy the ILA. We want to examine this union's problems with a view toward constructive legislative and administrative actions that will help protect the interests of the average working man and woman."

Investigators say they believe they have developed new evidence of two corruption schemes in Miami that have not yet been investigated or prosecuted by the government, this source said.

One concerns fraudulent claims for payment under the workmen's compensation law.

The other concerns bribes paid to subvert an ILA work rule. That rule, in the ILA contract with a stevedoring company, requires that container cargo packed more than 50 miles from the Miami port for shipping from Miami must be re-packed by ILA workers at the Miami port.

ILA national officials could not be reached for comment over the weekend.

Reagan Plans Blunt Talk

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, disdaining any "cutesy acronym" to symbolize his assault on the nation's economic woes, will use "straight talk" in his televised address to Congress to call for immediate action on cutting taxes, the budget and government regulation, his chief spokesman says.

"We have no choice," presidential press secretary James S. Brady said Monday as Reagan and his aides completed a "page by page, line by line" review of the speech in the White House library. "We have to deal with inflation. He is saying the system will work if we let it work."

The speech, to be delivered at 8 p.m. CST Wednesday, will be the centerpiece of a six-part package detailing Reagan's economic program of tax reductions and approximately $50 billion in budget cuts.

The package also will contain:

- His actual budget message revising the Carter administration's fiscal 1982 spending proposal of $739.3 billion.

- A written message to Congress expanding on points in the speech.
- A two-part tax document containing specifics of his proposed cuts in individual income taxes and accelerated depreciation schedules intended to reduce business taxes. The New York Times reported today the administration will propose that high-income Americans — individuals earning at least $42,500 and couples earning at least $60,000 — receive less than the full 30 percent tax cut being considered for most taxpayers over three years.

- A 12- to 15-page fact sheet.
- Proposals to revise government regulations.

"This will be the information base from which we begin the offensive," Brady said. He outlined a multi-front approach that will have top administration officials appearing on television news programs and 125 executives of major newspapers from across the country visiting the White House to be briefed by the president.

Brady said the speech will focus on the budget and tax cuts, the need for a stabilized monetary policy and the regulatory revisions.

"There's a lot of 'making the people a partner' in the plan," Brady said. "It's not simply the Reagan plan. It's going to be our plan."

The speech, Brady said, will be "a clarion call saying it's not going to be 'business as usual.'"

Reagan "has rejected the thought of a cutesy acronym. These are serious times. It is a serious mission. The descriptive title of this will be as straight as the straight talk" of the speech, the press secretary said.

"There will be no 'WIN,'" Brady said, referring to the slogan of Gerald R. Ford's economic program, an acronym for "Whip Inflation Now."

He said Reagan, attempting to correct "some misapprehension," will promise "equal treatment for business subsidies as well as other government programs."

This would appear to be aimed at alleviating fears that the president will seek to stem government spending increases by cutting social programs without reducing government aid for business.

After the speech, Reagan will withdraw from the fray as cabinet officials and David A. Stockman, director of the Office of Management and Budget, begin trying to sell the president's proposals to the public and Congress.

After speaking to the news executives Thursday morning, and possibly meeting with congressional leaders that same morning for the second time in two days, Reagan will leave for a four-day visit at his ranch near Santa Barbara, Calif.

This plan has been devised, Brady said, to keep Reagan from wearing out his welcome in America's living rooms, via television.

"A dimension of this job is leadership," Brady said of the president and his post. "He is helped by being a credible communicator, but if you're in everyone's living room every night, you run the risk of being seen too frequently and having the public say 'here he comes again.'"

Legislator Attacks Tech Med School Enrollment

programs in Lubbock, Amarillo, El Paso and the Permian Basin.

While Tech officials were on the battlefield this morning to defend their health budget request, numerous medical school representatives were in Austin Monday for the hearings on state aid for resident physicians' salaries. Most of the testimony, however, was presented by two University of Texas officials.

State aid could prove a major step toward increasing residencies at Tech, officials say, because hospitals now must pay the resident physicians' salaries while hospital budgets limit the number of residents who can be accepted.

Cavazos has noted that unless Tech and other medical schools in the state can provide enough residency slots for the medical students graduating each year, "We will just be exporting doctors (out of the state)."

A resident is a licensed physician who is obtaining training in a medical specialty by working as a member of a hospital's house staff. A resident treats patients as well as helping teach students enrolled in medical school.

Monday, the Senate Human Resources Committee gave approval to the bill (SB 89) by Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena. Meanwhile, Monday the House Higher Education Committee sent similar legislation (HB 309) by Reps. Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, and Chris Semos, D-Dallas, to a subcommittee, in anticipation of referral of other legislation which would use cigarette tax revenue to fund the program.

Although similar legislation failed in the 1979 session, Tech officials are optimistic that the program will be approved this year.

Dr. Edward N. Brandt Jr., vice chancellor for health affairs at UT and President Ronald Reagan's nominee as assistant secretary of health, reported teaching hospitals associated with medical schools have suffered a "fiscal dilemma" from the increased number of residents using the hospitals.

Costs of running those hospitals range from 25 to 40 percent higher than comparable non-teaching hospitals, Lewis said, and Brandt said the teaching-associated costs of the hospitals make up 22 to 27 percent of their operating budgets.

If the teaching hospitals close part of their facilities, "it would require us (the UT system) to re-evaluate and in fact lower our enrollment," Brandt warned.

He noted that "in the past 30 years, medicine has changed drastically," so that while it still requires eight years to obtain premedical and medical degrees, three years, rather than one year, are needed "for any area of medical practice" once the medical degree is obtained.

The bills, Brandt said, will not provide for compensation "beyond the basic residency, and that will not exceed four years, so it will not contribute to increased sub-specialization."

Brandt said that medical schools have been working to create more residency positions, adding that 1,200 first-year positions are needed by 1984.

Texas Tech officials have expressed a desire to increase residencies at the Tech School of Medicine from the 1980 level of 181 to 300 by 1984.

"At present," Brandt said, "the major cost of graduate medical education programs is borne by the primary teaching hospitals and, thereby, by the citizens of the few counties in which these hospitals are located. It seems more appropriate that the educational cost be borne by the entire (Texas) citizenry."

Warren G. Harding, special assistant to the vice chancellor for health affairs of the UT system, noted he had served for 10 years as executive director of the Bexar County Hospital District, and understands "the frustrations of trying to operate a full service primary teaching hospital with inadequate financial support to cover the combined costs of patient care and medical education."

Boy Recovering After Shooting

sped up next to his Cutlass, poked a shotgun out his window and fired one time. "I heard a real loud boom and my windows fell out," the father recalled.

Being the only one not hurt, Menton jumped out of his car, attempted to wave down a passing car — possibly a Toyota — and then saw the assailant pull in the weapon and speed off. Failing to stop the possible witness, Menton drove his wife and crying son to the hospital. "All I could think about was my family," he said.

Mr. and Mrs. Menton said there had been no fights or threats against them. "I'm a pretty friendly person. I don't have any hassles with anybody," Menton said. Cory also nodded no when asked if he knew why he was hurt.

Menton said of his son, "He woke up yesterday and said those guys drove up beside us and shot at us. He mentions it every once in a while. He asks me why they did it. I can't tell him anything. I can't tell him why someone would do that because I don't have any idea."

Police Det. Billy Hudgens described the shooting as a "senseless thing." Lt. Billy Knox said their investigation has been hampered by the fact that the gunman, accompanied by another person, apparently picked out the Menton family at random. There has been a flood of calls from persons stating they have seen a pickup matching that of the suspect, but none has resulted in an arrest.

"We don't have anything to indicate it was a planned thing," Knox said. "Let's face it, there's just a lot of sorry — in this world."

Placed under hypnosis twice, Menton both times described the gunman's vehicle as a gold club or super cab pickup, with a white "headache" rack on the back, a white tool box, a small antenna atop the middle of the roof or on the rack and a good amount of chrome. It had a cream or yellow center stripe on each side, chrome mirrors and a short bed, Judge told hypnotists.

With his teddy bear at the foot of the bed, Cory assured his parents Monday afternoon that "I feel pretty good," and said he wanted to leave the hospital. He added that he was not all that crazy about the doctors and nurses. "I wish they wouldn't give me all these shots," he said.

Lawmakers Eye Land Purchases

AUSTIN (AP) — A bill requiring disclosure of foreign investment in Texas agricultural land has received a chilly reception from a Texas House committee.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Dan Kubiak, D-Rockdale, would impose a $10,- 000 fine if foreigners did not provide county clerks and the state secretary of agriculture with the location, size, and purchase price of farm or ranch land.

The House State Affairs Committee Monday night referred it to a subcommittee to be named later.

Representatives of the American Agriculture Movement, Texas Farmers Union, Texas Farm Bureau and Independent Cattlemen's Association testified in favor of the bill.

Testifying against it were representatives of the Dallas Chamber of Commerce, American Petrofina, Texas Association of Realtors and Shell Oil.

The bill was needed because foreign purchases of Texas land are increasing and existing federal registration requirements are inadequate, Kubiak said.

"We need to see what danger we're in (because of foreign investment)," Kubiak told the committee.

Committee members repeatedly asked the bill's supporters to state exactly what the threat of foreign ownership was.

"We can't take even the smallest chance with such a precious commodity as our food supply," said Calvin Allison of the American Agriculture Movement. "We could find ourselves tenants in our own land."

"If there were a crisis in our food supply, don't you think the government would react?" asked Elton Bomer, D-Montalba.

"If they ever got too much, well, we'd just take it away from them," said Rep. Bill Blythe, R-Houston.

The farmers' and ranchers' spokesmen told the committee that foreign investment in agricultural land is driving Texas producers out of business.

Iran Snubs Mediation

By United Press International

Iran today categorically rejected any form of Islamic or Arab mediation to end the war with Iraq, saying the conflict will be settled only when Iraqi troops retreat from occupied Iranian lands.

Iran's blanket rejection of mediation proposals was expressed by parliament member Hojatollah Gulam Hussein Haqqani in an interview with a Saudi newspaper. Haqqani is currently in Jeddah as the head of a delegation sent by Prime Minister Muhammad Ali Rajai to explain Tehran's position to the influential Saudi leadership.

The Iranian stand did not bode well for United Nations special envoy Olaf Palme, who went to Baghdad today in his third effort to settle the 149-day-old Gulf conflict. Palme will also visit Tehran for talks with senior Iranian officials.

Haqqani told the Jeddah-based Arab News Iran would accept no Arab or Islamic mediation "because our position with regard to this war is quite clear and the only solution is the withdrawal of Iraqi forces from our lands. Negotiations will not do and resolutions would not lead to a right settlement."

Haqqani, also a member of Iran's Supreme Council of Information, told his Saudi hosts they could not ask Iran to negotiate while its lands were occupied by Iraq, when the Arabs were refusing to negotiate with Israel while their territory was under occupation.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, announcing that unnamed suppliers have provided more equipment than his forces had at the start of the Gulf War, warned he will seize more of Iran if Tehran does not negotiate a peace settlement.

The Financial Times newspaper, published in London and Frankfurt, quoted Hussein in its editions today as saying his army could force Iran "to kneel and plead for peace."

"You will see more Iranian cities fall to the Iraqi army in addition to those already under its control," the Financial Times reported Hussein told an infantry brigade as it prepared to move to the front Monday.

Hussein said Iraq now has "more aircraft, tanks and guns than at the start of the war." He said this was due to "new sources of supplies," but he did not specify the sources.

Palme planned several days of talks with officials of both Iraq and Iran. The former Swedish prime minister's current trip "is about the whole war," a spokesman said.

Zoo Project Gets Boost

and should be available soon.

However, Mrs. Edwards noted, the Zoological Society plans to raise the necessary money through grants or private donations from foundations and corporations in the state.

After the zoo is built, the Zoological Society plans to operate the facility, using receipts from gate admissions, concessions and continuing fund-raising events. Mrs. Edwards explained, "Our projected figures show it could be a break-even situation, that is if we don't go in for any expansions," she added.

Although most zoos in the country have faced financial problems in recent years, Mrs. Edwards said a few have been self-supporting. Those that are self-supporting usually are not operated by cities, she said.

There may be a need, however, to seek some financial support for the zoo project from the county commissioners court, Mrs. Edwards said. She noted that the county is able to spend around $20,000 annually to maintain a county museum featuring antique farm equipment, and said it should be able to afford a small donation for the zoo.

Planned as a natural habitat zoo, the facility will house animals indigenous to Texas, Mrs. Edwards said.

Exhibits are planned for large and small mammals, grazing animals and predators. In addition there will be an otter tank, aviary, duck pond, bat cave and areas for nocturnal and burrowing animals and reptiles.

Plans also call for a large picnic area, children's barnyard, native plant display, restaurant and an earth-sheltered administration building.

"The theme will be heavily educational," Mrs. Edwards said. "We're not going to just display the animals. We're going to tell you everything about them."

One of the more unique features of the zoo proposal, Mrs. Edwards said, is an insect zoo planned for the administration building. This display will demonstrate how insects adapt to the environment, she said.

"The only other one (insect zoo) I really know of in full bloom," Mrs. Edwards said, "is in the Smithsonian Institution in Washington."

The scale model also shows a walkway, elevated in one area, from which visitors can see all exhibits in the zoo. According to Mrs. Edwards, the zoo will be made fully accessible to handicapped individuals.

Mrs. Edwards plans to display the scale model of the proposed zoo at the Zoological Society's meeting scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Friday. That meeting will be held at Hodges Community Center and will be open to the public, she said.

Reagan Withdraws Salary Increases

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan told Congress today he is withdrawing the 22 percent pay increases former President Carter proposed for cabinet members, congressmen and top White House aides, his chief spokesman announced.

"We are recommending that Congress, the judiciary and the federal executive forego pay increases," press secretary James Brady said. But he added Reagan hopes to address the issue sometime within the next four years.

Highway Plans May Draw Fire

According to an Environmental Impact Statement submitted for public inspection in May 1979.

Residence relocations include the Motor Inn Apartments, but this route spares about 30 single-family residences that would need to be relocated if Route 7 were used.

Commercial businesses affected include the Ramada Inn, Brass Lantern Motel, Howard Johnson's Inn, a Gibson's Department Store at 50th Street, a shopping center on 34th Street and several automobile sales businesses.

Construction costs for the route are estimated at $139.5 million, while right-of-way costs are estimated at $109.7 million, giving a total of $249.2 million, according to James King, district administrative engineer with the state highway department.

In comparison, Route 7, running along the east side of Avenue H would have a total cost of $244 million with construction estimated at $139.5 million and right-of-way purchasing at $104.5 million. Relocations would include approximately 139 single-family residences, 102 multi-family units and 161 businesses.

Route 9, following Avenue A has an estimated total cost of $229 million with $132.7 million going to construction and $96.3 million to right-of-way purchasing.

Relocations would include 110 single-family residences, 83 multi-family units and 105 businesses.

In all three proposals, approximately 265 acres of privately owned land would be converted to highway right-of-way.

While a large portion of the people affected by routes 7 and 9 are white, only about 17 percent of that segment of the population is affected when utilizing Route 15, according to the EIS.

More than half the people (58 percent) who will be relocated under Route 15 will be Hispanic, with the remainder (25 percent) being black.

Under Route 7, 43 percent of those affected would be Hispanic, 23 percent black and 32 percent white.

Under Route 9, 46 percent of those affected would be white, 42 percent Hispanic and 12 percent black.

Also, more minority businesses (10) will be affected under Route 15 than under 7 and 9 (7 each).

Most of the displacement will occur between 26th Street and South Loop 289, according to the 1979 EIS figures, with houses in the area having an estimated average $20,000 market value.

The rest of the housing displacement will occur between North Loop 289 and Broadway. The EIS describes this as an area of primarily sub-standard housing with values below $15,000.

It points out a problem in that there are not many houses on the market here which are valued at less than $15,000 and suggests that mobile homes be offered as comparably priced housing when relocating residents.

The EIS maintains that persons relocated under the route plans would move to equal or better living areas and that the corridor itself would turn into commercial development, providing for an increased tax base over the long term.

The adverse effects on businesses would be minimal because of adequate vacant land and commercial buildings available, the EIS says.

All three routes border, rather than separate, neighborhoods and will not present a social barrier between racial, ethnic or income groups, according to the EIS.

A migration from traditional black and Hispanic neighborhoods, which resulted in the growth of businesses in the area, has already broken the barrier, it says.

Also, any "barrier effect" would be negated with interchanges at major streets every mile and grade separations located on the half-mile.

In addition to examining the possibility of building Interstate 27 along the three proposed routes, the Federal Highway Administration will also be considering "no build alternatives."

These would include utilizing Loop 289 around the city, utilizing Avenue A or Q as they currently exist through the city, and creating the one-way pairing of Texas Avenue and Avenue H.

Under Route 9, 46 percent of those affected would be white, 42 percent Hispanic and 12 percent black.

Both Sides Prepare For Battle Over Food Stamps

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Washington lobbyist has a theory why people get more exercised about food stamps than about other government programs. The grocery line, he reasons, is one of the few places where the middle class rubs elbows with the welfare system. "They look at what that person is buying with food stamps and what they are buying for themselves for cash," he says. "Invariably the shopper says to himself, 'Why, he's buying better food than I am....' Critics tell stories of the woman in the fur coat buying prime steak, paying for it with food stamps. And of the food stamps being hawked at the race track. And of the college students turning in food stamps for beer and cigarettes.

The middle class perceives it as a ripoff, as a giveaway." And he added he would like to catch that person in the fur coat, driving a Cadillac and buying steak with food stamps.

The criticism that the $11.1 billion food stamp program is an unappetizing gumball of fraud, waste and mismanagement energizes the Reagan administration's plan to cut $2.6 billion from it.

But there will be opposition from people like Bart Shollenberger, director of the Community Nutrition Institute's Hunger Action Division. He cites a 1980 House report that put food stamp fraud nationally at .08 percent.

He explains the perception that the program is riddled with waste by saying, "The program itself is so visible. The

The bloodiest of the coming spending-cut battles in Congress may be over food stamps and Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina is field marshal of those conservative Republicans who are convinced that scandal outweighs nutrition in the program.

On the other side, lobbying gears oiled and ready to be engaged, is another formidable machine: church and civil rights groups, women's organizations and labor unions; governors, mayors, and county officials; and a basket full of groups that could be called, collectively, hunger fighters.

Mass Transit Fares Expected To Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the old song, Charlie was a nickel short of his Boston subway fare and never could get off the MTA. Today he would need a half-dollar, and transit officials say the cost would be even higher if the Reagan administration slashes federal subsidies for bus and train systems around the country.

The proposed subsidy cut comes against a backdrop of financially strapped mass transit systems serving more riders than ever because of rising gasoline prices.

The Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority in Boston ran out of money and had to shut down for a day just before Christmas last year. Afterward the quarter fare was doubled, and even without loss of federal money it inevitably is headed even higher.

In Washington, some commuters using the capital's subway system pay more than $3 a day roundtrip for an 11-mile ride to and from the Maryland suburbs. And after a fare increase last month, another one may come in July.

Chicago's regional transit agency, facing a $150 million deficit, recently raised its basic fare to 80 cents, the highest in the country, and plans to go to 95 cents in April and to $1 in August.

Transit fare increases also have found bus and train commuters grumbling in New York City, Cleveland and other cities.

Transit industry spokesmen say a loss of federal subsidies would require additional fares, and probably reduce ridership. State and local governments also would have to increase their contributions.

Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis said he favors beginning a gradual phase-out of the subsidies, which totaled about $1.1 billion this year, at the end of the 1982 fiscal year. But he acknowledged there is "some pressure" from other Reagan advisers to cut the funds immediately.

Fares cover only about 45 percent of most transit systems' operating expenses and local governments add another 40 percent, says the American Public Transportation Association.

Solon Explains Local Impact Of Cuts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Budget cuts are fine for the other fellow. They hurt when they hit close to home.

Members of Congress such as freshman Rep. Dennis Eckart, D-Ohio, are faced with the task of explaining to their constituents what President Reagan's budget cuts will mean to them.

The bottom line is that the president wants to end grants to Cleveland's Hopkins airport and that the $13 million in urban development grants the city received last year might not be forthcoming next year.

To explain the situation, Eckart sent local officials an analysis of the "black book" of budget cuts proposed by Reagan budget director David Stockman, with statements on how much the targeted programs benefited their area last year.

"I believe you will agree with me the depth and severity of these cuts could pose extreme hardship and challenge to local governments," Eckart said in an eight-page letter.

"The time to begin is now if we are to have a meaningful impact on the rewriting of those programs which we need refinement and adjustment," he said.

"I should point out that in several instances the Reagan administration suggests that local tax increases will be needed to pick up the costs of federal programs they say should be cut back or eliminated."

Retroactive Hiring Freeze Faces Challenge In Court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal workers challenging President Reagan's retroactive hiring freeze are winning preliminary skirmishes in court and a judge's comments on the controversy may mean trouble ahead for the administration.

U.S. District Judge Charles Richey ordered Monday that three federal employees remain on the payroll until he decides the legality of the freeze that Reagan instituted as his first official act in office.

Richey's comments — although not having any legal weight — cast doubt on the administration's ability to convince the courts Reagan did not act unconstitutionally as the National Treasury Employee's Union claims.

The judge set a Feb. 25 hearing on the case that both sides say affects 10,000 to 60,000 people promised by the government between Nov. 5 and Jan. 20 that they had jobs. Reagan ordered the freeze Jan. 20, the day of his inauguration, and later backdated it to Nov. 5, the day after his election.

The union claims the retroactivity exceeds Reagan's constitutional authority and has created hardships for the people involved, many of whom quit other jobs or moved from other cities to another to take government jobs.

No matter which way Richey rules, appeals are certain and it seems likely the case ultimately will be before the Supreme Court.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Before impulsively diving into any type of joint venture tomorrow, investigate everything fully. You may be going off the diving board at the shallow end of the pool.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Making important decisions under pressure is something you should avoid tomorrow. Don't be pushed into a corner where you have to come up with a quick "yes" or "no."

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Unless you maintain a reasonably tight schedule tomorrow, you're likely to let matters overlap and cause yourself unnecessary frustration. Be organized.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't gamble on things or people tomorrow you know little about. There's a possibility you might back the wrong horse and cost yourself money or problems.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Tomorrow is one of those days when it's wise to have as few irons in the fire as possible. Spreading yourself too thin could cause you to leave many projects unfinished.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You'd better have the facts to back you up tomorrow if you feel the urge to express a strong opinion about something. What you espouse will not be accepted as gospel.

LEO (July 23-Sept. 22) Be extra-careful in financial and business situations tomorrow. If you enter the fray blindly, there's a chance you may come out on the short end.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You may not have as much control over a matter that's personally important as you thought you had tomorrow. Be prepared to compromise a bit to improve your position.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) The temptation to put off attending to responsibilities is something you might have to contend with tomorrow. This is not a time to be neglectful.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Try not to be too demanding of friends tomorrow and, by the same token, don't put yourself in a position where they could ask too much of you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Timing is very important tomorrow. You must be careful not to push too hard when you shouldn't, or fail to push hard enough when you should.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) For your own peace of mind it may be wise tomorrow to avoid persons who always challenge your ideas or opinions. Debates could easily heat up.

Space Shuttle Test Under Way

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — At the command, "Power on," electricity surged into the space shuttle Columbia and a countdown rehearsal began, aiming at a critical and unique test-firing of the ship's engines Thursday.

the go-ahead Monday night and hundreds of technicians triggered the tests that will determine if Columbia, at long last, can make its maiden journey into orbit in April with two astronauts aboard.

The exercise duplicates most phases of a launch countdown. If there are no hitches, it will end at 7:45 a.m. EST Thursday when the spaceship's three main engines flash to life for 20 seconds while the vehicle remains locked firmly on the pad.

It will mark the first time in the U.S. manned space program that engines have been fired on the launch pad during a countdown rehearsal.

In the earlier Mercury, Gemini and Apollo projects, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration gained engine-firing experience by launching the spaceships unmanned before committing astronauts to fly them.

But the shuttle is designed as a manned spacecraft that returns to earth on land instead of water, and officials said it would be too difficult and too costly to send it aloft unmanned.

So, on its first journey, now scheduled for April 7, astronauts John Young and Bob Crippen will be aboard.

The countdown practice was delayed nearly a week by technical and weather troubles.

Garwood Defense Seeks Reversal Of Conviction

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — Attorneys for Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood were returning to court today to pursue their efforts to win a reversal of his collaboration conviction or a declaration of a mistrial in his court-martial.

Garwood, 34, was convicted last week of five counts of collaborating with the enemy after his 1965 capture in Vietnam. He also was convicted of assaulting another American POW by striking him.

The five-officer jury ordered Garwood dishonorably discharged from the Marine Corps. He had faced a maximum sentence of life in prison on the collaboration charge, the first of its kind ever returned against a Marine.

Defense attorneys, in a motion filed late Friday, argued that testimony from a Dallas psychiatrist during the three-day sentencing phase of the court-martial raised a reasonable doubt of Garwood's guilt. The psychiatrist described Garwood's personality as "ruptured."

John Lowe, chief defense attorney, made the motion for acquittal after the jury announced Garwood's sentence, saying "at this point the system has broken down. I am renewing our motion for a judgment of acquittal based on a reasonable doubt."

The defense earlier had filed a motion for a mistrial. Garwood's attorneys contended that the military judge, Col. R.E. Switzer, had made improper, prejudicial statements to reporters.

Monterey, Plainview Face Major Tests

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
 There should be a lot of for-real basketball played on these South Plains tonight, at least in District 4-5A. All four of tonight's contests (two boys' games and two girls' matchups) will have a major impact on the conference standings.

The Monterey boys and girls host Lubbock High in one set of biggies while Plainview travels to Hereford for another pair of key contests.

Of course, last Friday night was the biggest single game of the season in both the boys' and girls' brackets as both Plainview squads bumped off the league-leading Monterey boys and girls. Now, with Plainview and Monterey tied for first place in both brackets, both the Bulldogs and Plainsmen will be putting it all on the line.

Tonight the Lubbock High boys will try once more to defeat Monterey. That's something they haven't done since 1977, but in the teams' last meeting the Westerners almost did the trick. Trailing by only two points, Lubbock High forced a Monterey turnover with 52 seconds left, only to see a lay-in trickle off the rim.

In that contest, the Westerners got only two points out of center Kirk Cole, who is averaging 16.3 points a game, and had Cole and his two front-line mates foul out. Countering Cole that night and tonight will be Monterey center Ian Hyslop, who is putting in 18.6 points a game and pulling down 8.1 rebounds.

In addition, both teams have a second scorer. Monterey has wing Gary Hodges (12.0 points a game) and Lubbock has guard Brad Ruff (12.1 points a game and 20 in the last meeting with Monterey).

Lubbock has won two of its last three games but was blown out of the gym by Plainview last Tuesday night by an 83-54 score while Monterey's loss to Plainview broke a nine-game winning streak for the Plainsmen, their longest of the year.

On the girls' side of the ledger, Monterey, which lost to Plainview by a 63-59 count Friday, shouldn't have that much of a problem with Lubbock's girls.

The Plainsmen won their first encounter with LHS by 37 points, 88-31.

Monterey stands 25-2 on the year with only a one-point loss to Amarillo Tascosa and the Plainview game marring a perfect record. The loss to the Bulldogs snapped a 20-game Monterey winning streak, seven games longer than the previous school record set last year.

But the big game on the girls' side pits Plainview and Hereford. It's a matchup almost as attractive as Friday night's Monterey-Plainview encounter.

The Bulldogs stand 24-7 on the year and 3-0 in the second half of district play. In fact, Plainview's only conference loss of the year was to Monterey in the first half by a 64-58 count.

Hereford, on the other hand, is 23-5 on the year and 2-1 in the second half. The Whitefaces have lost three district games this year. Two were to the Plainsmen by scores of 54-49 and 75-70 and the other was to Plainview.

In that game, the Bulldogs took a 44-42 overtime victory at home with Pat Williams scoring 14 points and Donna Jackson 12. Noticeably missing from that list was 6-0 Gay Hemphill, the same Gay Hemphill who devastated Monterey Friday night with 31 of her team's 63 points.

"She just didn't play very well that night, I don't know what it was," said Plainview coach Melvyn Hunt of her star's last meeting with the Herd. "But Friday night was probably the best offensive and defensive game she's had since I've been here."

That's saying something for a girl who is averaging 25 points and 10.6 rebounds a game.

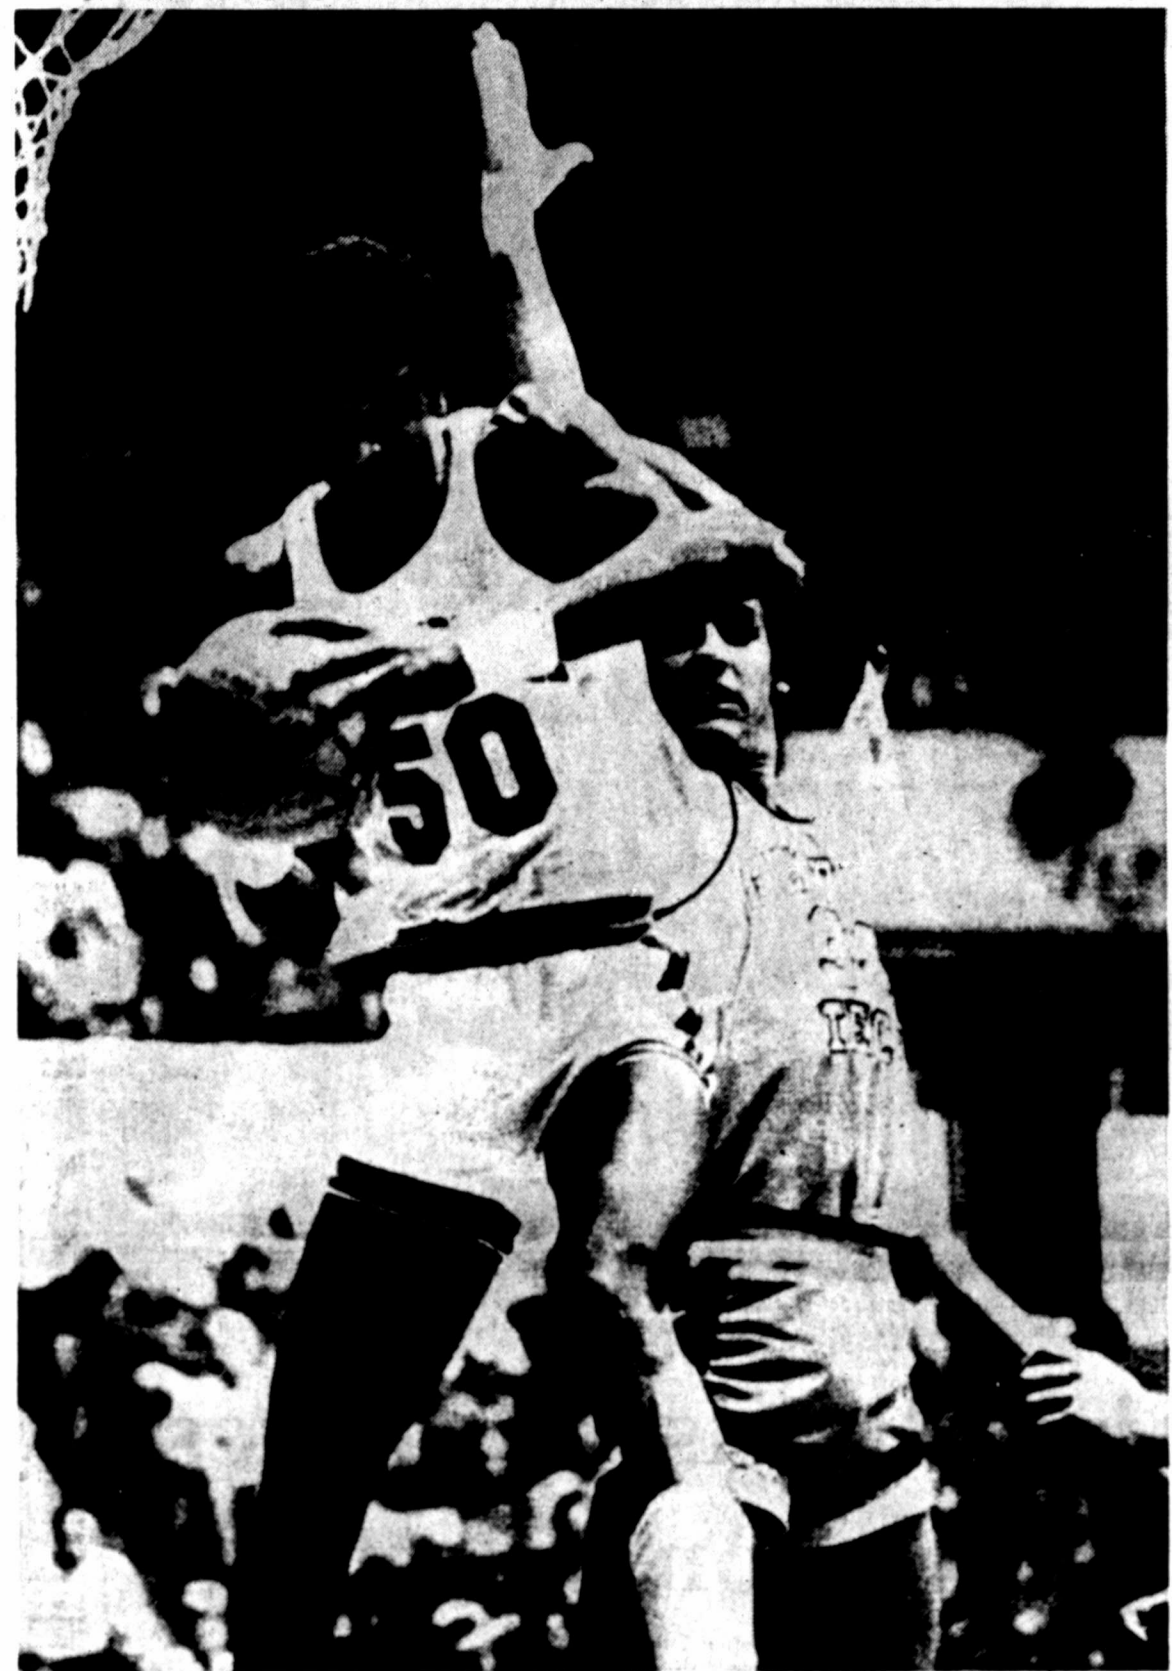

Hereford counters with Louise Mays and Terri Harkins. Miss Mays is averaging 12.7 points and 8.2 rebounds a game while Miss Harkins is scoring 12.4 points a game.

One item that might be a factor in tonight's game: Plainview is coming off a tight, emotional game against Monterey. Hereford sleepwalked past Coronado 49-45 Friday night. It will be interesting to see whether the Bulldogs can get up for two games of this magnitude in a row.

This is the last regular-season game for all four girls' squads. Should both Monterey and Plainview win, a playoff would be required to determine the district championship. The only way the Plainsmen can now win the title outright is to beat Lubbock High and have Hereford come out on top against Plainview.

Virginia Pummels Foe, Remains Atop AP Poll

By The Associated Press
 Virginia coach Terry Holland admits the hardest thing about being No. 1 is getting up for the games you're supposed to win — something Georgia Tech's Dwayne Morrison only wishes was true.

Virginia tightened its hold on the No. 1 position in The Associated Press college basketball poll Monday as Oregon State, DePaul and Louisiana State retained the Nos. 2, 3 and 4 slots.

But the Cavaliers really went to work Monday night, mauling Georgia Tech 83-42 to clinch a tie for the Atlantic Coast Conference regular-season basketball title.

"A letup was the thing that concerned us, but obviously we did not let up," said Holland after Virginia posted its biggest ACC victory in its 28 years association with the league.

Morrison could only sit back in admiration.

"They have a fine basketball team," he said. "They overpower you. They play well whether they are ahead or behind, and that is the difference between this year's team and last year's."

"Virginia labored for years to acquire the athletes they have now and they deserve to be where they are," Morrison added.

Virginia collected 45 of 60 first-place votes and 1,184 points in the balloting by a nationwide panel of sport writers and broadcasters. The Cavaliers, 23-0, held a 54-point advantage over runner-up Oregon State, 21-0. The Beavers were tabbed No. 1 on 14 first-place votes and received 1,130 points.

Last week, Virginia held a 43-18 advantage in first-place votes and 28-point margin over Oregon State.

DePaul, 22-1, garnered 1,059 points, while LSU, which has a 22-game winning streak and a 23-1 overall record, got the final first-place vote and 1,047 points.

Wake Forest, 21-2, climbed two notches and took over the No. 5 position with 947 points. UCLA also jumped two notches and took over the No. 6 slot. The Bruins, who were ranked 12th just two weeks ago and upset then-No. 5 Arizona State last Saturday, got 836 points.

Arizona State, 19-3, slipped to seventh with 755 points, while Tennessee was eighth with 693. Utah and Kentucky rounded out the Top 10. The Utes, ranked sixth last week, but upset by Hawaii on Saturday, got 645 points — 14 more than the Wildcats.

Notre Dame headed the Second 10 followed by Iowa, North Carolina, Wichita State, Illinois, Indiana, Brigham Young, Michigan, Lamar and Maryland.

Last week the Second 10 was Kentucky, Notre Dame, Michigan, Iowa, Brigham Young, Wichita State, Illinois, South Alabama, Maryland and Indiana.

Lamar, the only newcomer to the Top 20, and Wichita State both were upset Monday night after the poll was announced. Lamar dropped a 77-71 decision to Louisiana Tech, while Wichita State was beaten by Tulsa, 74-72, in double overtime.

On Jan. 3, Louisville had won just two of its nine games, and the Cardinals were off to the worst start ever for a defending national collegiate basketball champion.

Monday night, however, the Cardinals avenged their only loss in their past 14 games, clinched the regular-season title of the Metro Conference and took a giant leap toward earning a return berth in the 1981 NCAA playoffs despite a 15-8 record.

Poncho Wright came off the bench and scored 22 points to help the Cardinals to a 95-65 victory over the Memphis State Tigers, who beat Louisville 60-55 in overtime on Jan. 22. Since then, however, coach Denny Crum's Cards have won nine in a row.

The NCAA does not guarantee a tournament berth to the regular-season champion of any conference that has a post-season playoff, but the Cardinals' 9-1 conference mark will be hard to overlook.

"This was a game everyone, including the fans, was ready for," Crum said. "The guys really wanted to get retribution for their poor play down at Memphis."

Despite falling behind early in the game, Crum said he never doubted his team would win. "There was never a question about the outcome," Crum said. "As long as we were playing as hard as we did, I never doubted we would win. It was just a matter of when they (the Tigers) would run out of gas."

Memphis State led 14-5 after the first five minutes, but Louisville then outscored the Tigers 17-4 to take the lead for good. Jerry Eaves added 17 points for the Cardinals, and Johnnie Gipson topped Memphis State with 17.

Notre Dame fought back from several deficits, the last at 47-42 with 10:25 to go, and defeated Fairfield 57-55 in the final 15 seconds from the foul line. Kelly Trippucka hit both shots of a one-and-one with 15 seconds left to make it 56-53.

Dunbar Hopes To Upset Plans

By RAY GLASS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
 Dunbar, with the worst league and overall records among District 1-4A boys' teams, may nevertheless be the deciding force over the next two and a half weeks in the case for the district's second-half title.

That theory will get its first test tonight when the Panthers play host to contender Levelland at 7:30 p.m., following a season-ending contest between the Dunbar and Levelland girls' squads beginning at 6 p.m.

The game with the Lobos is the first of three home games with district leaders in Dunbar's final four contests. After a road trip to Dumas Friday, the Panthers end their schedule by entertaining Borger on Feb. 24 and Canyon on March 3.

Going into tonight's games, Borger leads the second-half title chase with a 2-0 record while Canyon, the first-half champion, is close behind at 1-0. Levelland, Estacado and Brownfield are all 1-1. Dumas is 0-1 and the Panthers are 0-2.

In other games involving city teams tonight, Estacado's girls' and boys' squads travel to Canyon for 6 and 7:30 p.m. games, respectively.

Although Dunbar is 6-21 overall and saddled with a four-game losing streak, the Panthers did pick up their lone district win of the season with a 68-63 decision against Dumas at home and played a strong game Friday at Estacado.

"We played better but we still came up on the short side," Dunbar coach Joe McWilliams said of the 67-65 loss to the Matadors. But McWilliams' young bunch put together four solid quarters against the Mats — a major shortcoming of theirs during the entire year — and will need to sustain that kind of effort in the final four games.

"Every game we play from this point on will be important," McWilliams said. "We feel we can play with anyone but right now we're desperate for a win. We'll have to play pretty sound defense and eliminate the turnovers against Levelland."

"We've improved as a team since the start of the season. But the only problem is so have the other teams and that makes it awfully hard," he said.

The Panthers have had to battle their share of injuries and illness and are finally getting strong performances from key people. Among those coming on at the end of the season is 6-foot-4 junior center Danny Douglas, who had 10 points and seven rebounds against Estacado.

"Danny's played well in the last two weeks," McWilliams said. "In the week before Christmas he developed trouble with his foot, someone stepped on it. Recently he's looked like the kid we thought he was going to be."

Dunbar will need Douglas' rebounding and inside scoring against the Lobos, 14-9 overall after a 73-71 overtime loss Friday to Borger. Lobo 6-8 senior Dwight Phillips is averaging 18 points and 18 rebounds each game while 6-3 swingman Scott Barton is averaging nearly 13 points a contest.

McWilliams, who has experimented with a handful of different starting lineups this season, will likely start Douglas, 6-3 Ralph Bryant, 6-3 Kirk Coats, 6-1 Turron Patterson and 5-8 Roland Comacho.

The Dunbar girls, who snapped a five-game losing skid by downing Estacado last week, will try to stay above .500 with a win against the Lobos. "If we can beat Levelland, I'll be satisfied," Panther coach Jim Washburn said. Dunbar is 13-13 overall and 1-4 in league games.

Estacado, the lone girls' team without a district win in the second half of the schedule, has the difficult task of picking up that victory on the road against district champion Canyon.

The Estacado boys lost their first encounter with Canyon, 62-55, on the Mat home court and cannot afford another district loss and stay in contention for the second-half title and a playoff with Canyon.

Sutton Expects Fight From A&M

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (UPI) — The Texas A&M Aggies, once picked to win the Southwest Conference race but crippled by a dismal start, can still scramble the standings tonight against Arkansas, and Razorback coach Eddie Sutton thinks the improving Aggies will be doubly tough at home.

"A&M is upset and playing like it had hoped to all year, but it wouldn't make any difference if they weren't playing well because the Arkansas-A&M games at College Station have always been close," Sutton said Monday. "The two toughest places to win on the road are Barnhill and Texas A&M. The crowd is a participant."

Arkansas, 9-3 in the conference and tied with Houston for the lead, downed A&M, 52-47, on Jan. 24 to snap a three-game losing streak. That started the Hogs on a string of seven straight wins.

The Aggies, whose legs folded under them in mid-season, have rebounded from a bewildering 1-7 start to win four straight. A&M is now playing like the Aggies of old, Sutton said, because coach Shelby Metcalfe has found a cohesive starting lineup and is getting better play from his guards.

"Reggie Roberts is their most consistent scorer, and he's not playing like a freshman. Milton Woodley isn't scoring much, but he's doing what it takes to win," Sutton said.

"And, of course, Vernon Smith is their career scoring leader. Claude Riley is a great athlete. And Rynn Wright is the heart of their team. He makes the big plays when they need them," he said.

Both teams will play man-to-man defenses, Sutton said, and the game is likely to hinge on the battle under the backboards.

"The biggest key will be defensive board play. Keith Peterson and Scott Hastings held their own against Houston, and we did a good job. But Smith, Wright and Riley really bang away on the boards, and if A&M gets a lot of offensive rebounds, we're in trouble," he said.

In the Razorbacks' 70-55 win over the Cougars last Saturday, Arkansas grabbed 20 of its 32 rebounds under the Houston goal. Hastings led the Hogs with nine, but Peterson played his best game ever at Arkansas and contributed six along with his career-high 24 points.

Sutton said the Hogs need another good game out of Peterson, a 6-foot-6, 220-pound junior.

"Keith Peterson will be a real key for us. He's the one player on our team who can take the physical abuse A&M dishes out on the boards. He has to get eight or nine rebounds for us," Sutton said.

Sutton said he intends to counter the Aggies' starting five with Hastings, Peterson, Mike Young, Tony Brown and U.S. Reed. Sophomore guard Darrell Walker, who lost his starting job two weeks ago, is expected to see action early.

NBA Prestige, Salaries Deter Point-Shaving Bids

By The Associated Press

Could a point-shaving scandal such as the one allegedly involving former Boston College players take place in the National Basketball Association?

Of course it could — anything is possible. But it's not likely. The reason was best expressed by Henry Hill, a government informer who has admitted ties to organized crime and says he was a key figure in the Boston College scam, in an article in last week's issue of Sports Illustrated.

"So why did he do it?" asks Hill, referring to one of the BC players. "The money, man, the money. That's why we all did it."

And that's why it's unlikely to happen in the NBA. From a money standpoint, it simply wouldn't make sense, either for the NBA player or for the gambler.

The average NBA player earns about $180,000; stars generally earn much more, as much as $1 million a year. They are hardly likely to jeopardize all this earning power very lightly. A gambler would have to come up with mighty big bucks to entice a player earning that kind of money to risk it all in a point-shaving scam.

Hill says he was able to get to Boston College players for $2,500 per game, but such a sum is hardly likely to be a sufficient lure for an NBA player.

"That's one of the basic elements we have going for us," said Jack Joyce, the NBA's Director of Security. "We tell them to look at it from the standpoint of what do you have to gain against what do you have to lose. If they do, they'll see it doesn't make sense to get involved."

"Section 16 of the standard players' contract states very specifically the disciplinary action that could be taken. The commissioner can suspend indefinitely, or expel, any player who is found to be involved in gambling. And any finding by the commissioner is binding and not subject to appeal. We think that's a pretty strong deterrent."

It would take a lot of money to overcome such a deterrent — more money than it would make sense for a gambler to risk. Gamblers are just as cost-conscious as anyone else. When they see that it's going to cost them more to persuade players to shave points than they can possibly hope to make by betting on the games involved, they'll drop the idea like a hot potato.

Also, the players who have the greatest impact on NBA games are generally the highest paid. These players would logically be the most desirable for gamblers to reach — and the most expensive.

But the NBA is not taking anything for granted. "Gambling is one of our greatest concerns," said Joyce, a former FBI man. "It's the greatest threat to any professional sport today, because it can ruin the sport's credibility with the public."

Because NBA games are high-scoring affairs in which there are often large point swings, it would be difficult to discern point-shaving taking place. "Hopefully, you'll find out off the court rather than on," noted Joyce.

"We have a security representative in each NBA city, a former law enforcement officer who knows the city, has worked it and has good informants and liaison with local authorities. He'll try to keep his ear close to gambling elements to determine if they smell any sort of a fix. That's the best way to spot one, because the gamblers don't want to get burned, either."

"On each and every NBA game I get the point spread and we follow it very closely. If there is any unusual jump in the spread, we'll know about it — and we'll look into it in depth. Over a year we might look into anywhere from 10 to 20 such games, but most of the time we find the spread changes because some people get word of an injury."

To avoid such problems, the NBA requires its teams to notify the local media about any injuries and warns all club officials from discussing injuries with people over the phone unless they are sure to whom they are speaking.

In addition, said Joyce, "We have FBI agents and local officials come to preseason training camps to speak to teams about gambling, and I speak to the referees at their training camp. Often they may get what they think are crank calls, but we emphasize the importance of reporting every one. In this age of wiretaps, you never know if the caller's phone is being tapped — and you could become suspect that way if you don't report it."

"It is very definitely a great concern," said Joyce, summing up the league's attitude on gambling involvement. "We try in every way to avoid it."

New Reports Vindicate Smith In Fargo Case

NEW YORK (AP) — Two lawyers said they met for 90 minutes in Los Angeles Monday with missing boxing promoter Harold J. Smith and said he was innocent in connection with an alleged $21.3 embezzlement from a Wells Fargo bank in California.

According to stories in today's editions of both the New York Daily News and the New York Times, one of the lawyers, Robert Rains of Cleveland, said that Smith has done nothing "illegal, improper or immoral."

The News quoted Rains and Albert Sheppard of Los Angeles as saying that Smith might not surface publicly for a week or two. They said Smith had retained them to represent him in a lawsuit filed by Wells Fargo naming him as a defendant in the alleged embezzlement.

Smith, chairman of Muhammad Ali Professional Sports Inc., has been missing for three weeks, although he reportedly has made phone calls to associates and newsmen describing a bizarre flight from gunmen and an alleged kidnapping of his young son.

Smith was to have promoted a major boxing card at New York's Madison Square Garden on Feb. 23, including three championship bouts. The show has since been canceled.

Meanwhile, Wells Fargo, which has already suspended one branch manager in connection with the embezzlement suit, relieved the Hollywood branch manager of his duties while it probes $3.5 million in loans approved there, a bank spokesman said.

"We do not think the loan problems are related to our $21.3 million fraud case," said bank spokesman George Caulfield. But, as a matter of routine, the two cases will be examined to see if there is any connection, he said.

According to The News, Smith, through his lawyers, claimed that every month amounts ranging from $50,000 to $995,000 were funneled through one of his bank accounts, Harold J. Smith Productions, without his knowledge.

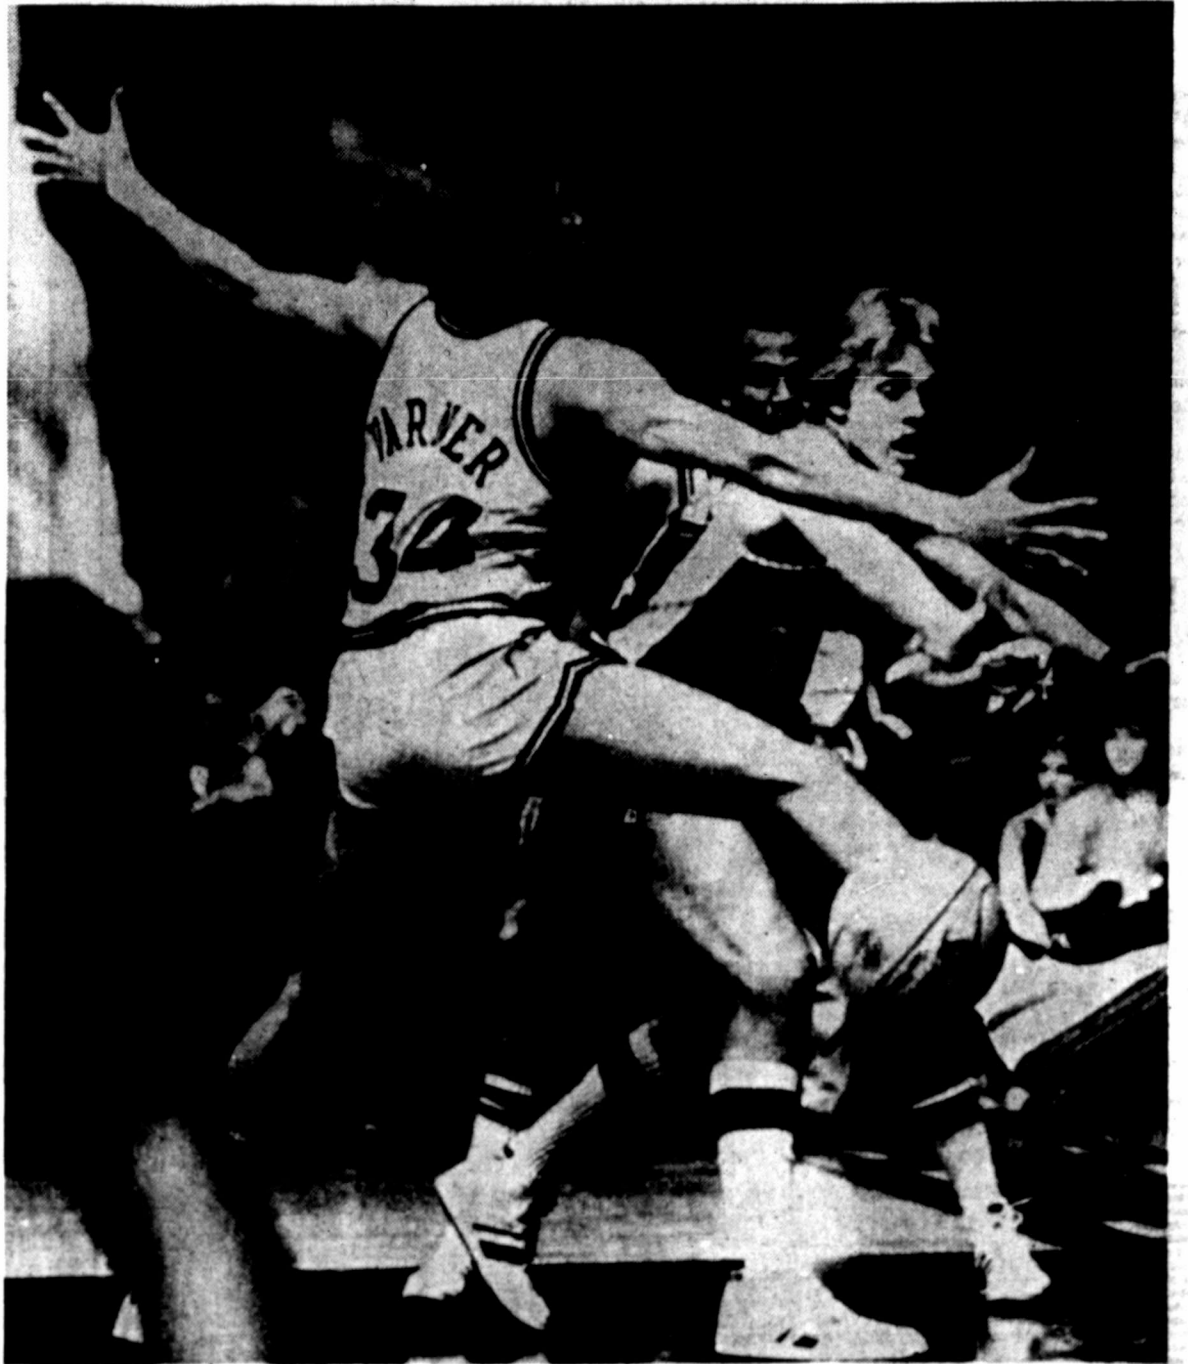

They said the money never showed up on bank statements and said Smith was making a routine check on his balances when it was disclosed that $21.3 was funneled through his account that way.

"It is obviously a computer crime that must involve the very highest officials of Wells Fargo," Sheppard said.

On other occasions, when Smith needed to raise "more than $500,000," he claims he was given cashier's checks by Gene Kawakami, manager of Wells Fargo's Miracle Mile branch in Beverly Hills, Calif. Kawakami has been relieved of his duties pending an investigation into checking accounts at the Miracle Mile branch.

Smith says he was told which checks to take to "about 10 or 15 different banks" and said he was paid immediately with no questions asked.

The lawyers also said Smith told them Kawakami was the Wells Fargo official who told him he had a $12 million line of credit to promote the Feb. 23 boxing show.

Danforth Resigns Job As Tulane Cage Boss

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Saying he hopes big dollars are easier to find than big centers, Tulane basketball coach Roy Danforth announced he is resigning his coaching chores to become an assistant athletic director and fund raiser for the school.

Danforth moved to Tulane five seasons ago after establishing himself as one of the country's most successful basketball coaches. He was 148-71 over eight years at Syracuse and posted a 127-43 record over his final six seasons there. Each of those final six years was followed by a post-season tournament appearance, including a trip to the Final Four in 1975.

But he was unable to duplicate that success after moving to Tulane, partly because he was never able to recruit a dominant big man to play the center position.

Tulane is currently 9-12, with five regular-season games and the Metro Conference tournament to go. Tulane was 33-75 for his first four years at the school. Danforth's resignation as coach becomes effective at the end of the season.

His assistants, Tom Green and Jim Lewis, are on one-year contracts which expire at the end of the season.

Athletic Director Hindman Wall said he would begin immediately to search for a new coach.

He denied that Danforth was being kicked upstairs because of his losing record, saying Danforth has expressed an interest in administration for some time.

"Last year, I extended his basketball contract and asked him to stay on another year with us," Wall said.

"I told him I would help him, if he wanted to get into administration or at Tulane, if something opened up."

"This is not a situation where a coach is being taken care of by an institution. This is a good move for Tulane, and I'm very pleased."

Danforth will be in charge of the Green Wave Club, a fund-raising organization.

"I hope big dollars are easier to find than big centers," Danforth quipped. "I can tell you one thing, there's a lot more of them out there."

He said the assistant athletic director's post opened up in December, when Wall decided to reorganize the athletic department. At the time he was offered the job in administration, Tulane was 3-0 for the young basketball season, Danforth said.

"In 1974 I applied for several athletic director's jobs," he said. "For the last two years I have applied for several athletic director's jobs and assistant athletic director's jobs." he said. "I've been interested in administration for the last five or six years."

He said a winning record this season would not have changed his mind.

"I've never had a desire to be on the bench when I'm 65 years old," he said.

He said he didn't regard the move as a defeat, because it was a move wanted to make. "But I can't speak for Hindman. I don't know if he fired me or not," he said.

His regret was not being able to turn Tulane's basketball program around, he said. "Yeah, that hurts a bit," he said.

Frank White Seeks New Agent

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Life can become complicated these days for big-league baseball players.

Kansas City second baseman Frank White has decided to fire his agent, but there's a catch. The agent wants a "modest fee" before voiding his contract. And in the meantime, all negotiations between the player and the club have ground to a halt and a long-time friendship has presumably been damaged.

I'm willing to step out of the picture," agent Tony Pace said from a hospital bed in Pompano Beach, Fla., where he is recuperating from gall bladder surgery. "I just want part of my fee paid."

Pace was to get 7 1/2 percent of the contract extension he negotiated for White. But he fell out of favor with the all-star second baseman last month when it was revealed he'd been using him to gain bargaining leverage for designated hitter Hal McRae.

White, 30, is asking for a three-year extension on his contract for a lot more money. McRae, who is 35, is asking for about the same thing. The Royals have said no to McRae and probably to White.

But White was outraged when Pace admitted publicly he had refused to discuss White's contract until the Royals gave in to McRae's demands. The Royals' answer, apparently, was something like, "Okay, forget the whole thing."

Now White has decided he'll be better represented by a Kansas City lawyer and signed an agreement with him. It will be the fourth agent White has had.

"I guess you could call it a buy-out," White said of paying off Pace. "But I feel if I do it this way, I'll come out ahead in the long run. The thing is, he hasn't signed the papers yet. We'll send another one (written agreement) out Tuesday and it's got to be returned by Friday. If not, we're just gonna go ahead and go to court with him."

In the meantime, the Royals are not talking to anybody.

"There's no point in holding discussions until all doubt is removed as to who is representing Frank," said a team official.

There was no word on what McRae thinks of the whole thing. He and White have been close friends as well as teammates. Early in White's career, when he was struggling for a foothold in the major leagues and McRae was one of baseball's supreme hitters, they were seen together often, with McRae counseling the younger man and offering him batting tips.

Sims Leads Honorees Of Oklahoma Banquet

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — "Two out of three isn't bad." Billy Sims quipped as he received the Oklahoma Sports Headliner of the Year Award, honoring him for his sensational rookie season with the Detroit Lions of professional football.

Sims was honored Monday night with his second Headliner of the Year prize, which goes to Oklahoma's outstanding athlete of the year as judged by a panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

He also won two years ago after his junior year with the Oklahoma Sooners when he snared the Heisman Trophy.

The former Hooks, Texas, prep football star rushed for 1,303 yards and scored 16 touchdowns last year for the Lions and was chosen the NFL's offensive rookie of the year.

Sims said he has enjoyed the revival of football in Detroit, but said there has been one catch because Lion fans are now "beginning to act like Oklahoma Sooners fans... they won't accept anything less than a win."

Other awards presented at the banquet, which is a benefit affair for the March of Dimes, included the Headliner Special Award that went to Lonnie Nichols, coach of the 1979-80 Cameron University basketball team that won the NAIA national championship.

Other athletes honored with awards included professional boxer Sean O'Grady, the Northeastern State football team, the Northeastern A&M football team, Oklahoma quarterback J.C. Watts, the Oklahoma State University golf team, the University of Oklahoma football team, Oakland running back Kenny King, the Cameron basketball team and professional golf brothers David and Danny Edwards.

Also: Oklahoma offensive tackle Louis Oubre, junior amateur golfing champ Tracy Phillips of Jenks, prep pole vaulting star Joe Dial of Marlow, OSU sprinter James Butler, professional call roper Roy Cooper, the University of Oklahoma two-mile relay team, the Tulsa University women's golf team, Oklahoma State wrestling champ Lee Roy Smith, Oklahoma University gymnast Bart Conner and professional golfer Doug Tewell.

Special recognition awards went to Muri Bowen, retired baseball coach at Asher High School, and John Hall, owner of the Oklahoma City Stars professional hockey team.

The awards presentation, spearheaded by Oklahoma City sportscaster John Brooks, was dedicated this year in memory of the late Wally Wallis, Oklahoma City sports writer who founded the event, and the late Bob Hartzell, Tulsa Tribune sports editor. Wallis died Jan. 25 of this year at 75. Hartzell, a member of the headliner selection committee, died Feb. 2 after a long illness. He was 43.

Arzate Captures PAGA Tournament

Joe Arzate of San Angelo fired an 18-hole total of 59 Sunday to capture the first event on the Pan American Golf Association's 1981 calendar, a Florida scramble, best-ball tournament held at Meadowbrook Golf Course.

Finishing in second place was David Ramirez of Plainview with a score of 60. Lubbock's Art Chavez was third with a 63. Rene Ruiz of San Marcos came in fourth at 63. Lorenz Jaime of Lubbock and Mike Terrazas Jr. of San Angelo tied for fifth-place honors with identical scores of 65.

RAZORBACKS SIGN STAR

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — The Arkansas Razorbacks won a recruiting battle with Texas by signing high school quarterback Lance McHan of Metairie, La., to a Southwest Conference letter of intent Monday. McHan, the son of former Razorback great Lamar McHan, signed the letter with Arkansas coach Lou Holtz present at his home. McHan had narrowed his choices to Arkansas and Texas. The elder McHan played at Arkansas from 1951 to 1953 and is listed fifth in career total offense at the university. Another out-of-state recruit the Razorbacks had sought, Harvey Fields of Arkansas City, Kan., reportedly has signed with Kansas.

Jackson's Demands Fail To Anger Steinbrenner

NEW YORK (UPI) — George Steinbrenner wants a few things clearly understood about his relationship with Reggie Jackson.

He thinks the world of him, and that isn't just talk, he means it. He understands him and can comprehend the concern his slugging outfielder has over his contract which expires at the end of this year.

Moreover, George Steinbrenner appreciates the four productive years Reggie Jackson has given him with the Yankees and has no fault to find with his overall effort during all that period.

He would like to sign Jackson again. He says he will bend every effort to do that, and if he can't, well, that would mean Jackson probably would elect to go somewhere else, to some other club willing to pay him more money.

Speaking from his office in Tampa, Fla., Monday, the Yankee owner said he'll meet with Jackson sometime next week to discuss his future with the club.

"I'm not trying to put any heat on Reggie," Steinbrenner says.

"I'll do what is realistic and what I think is fair," he goes on. "If it isn't good enough and he decides to try for free agency, I'll understand that perfectly. If he thinks he can get $9 million from someone else, God bless him. I spoke with him by phone the other night and he asked me, 'What if you and I can't get together and I go for free agency? Would you be mad at me?' I told him no, I wouldn't be mad, and that's the truth."

When Jackson signed a five-year contract calling for $2.66 million with the Yankees in November of 1976, few, if any, at that time foresaw the possibility of his being in the position to ask for even more at the end of that contract. To his credit, Jackson never sought to renegotiate during any of the period his contract was in force. Now, with one year to go, and seeing the more than $15 million given to Dave Winfield, he feels he can rightfully ask for more.

This will be Jackson's 14th season in the big leagues, he'll be 35 in May and he has, on pure performance, established himself as a legitimate candidate for the Hall of Fame.

He reads the papers and saw where an arbitrator awarded Rick Cerone $440,000 a year from the Yankees the other day, even though Cerone has been in the big leagues only four years and only one season with the Yankees. Cerone's salary compares favorably to the $532,000 a year Jackson is getting and would serve to strengthen Jackson's argument for more money.

"Baseball is crazy," Steinbrenner says regarding the present arbitration system in which those arbitrators who make the decisions on how much a player should be paid invariably have no baseball background whatsoever.

Referring specifically to the arbitrator who awarded Cerone more than four times what he made last year, Steinbrenner says, "here's an arbitrator whose basic background, as I understand it, is in the garment industry. We should select men in baseball from both sides and stop putting baseball matters in the hands of those without any experience at all in the game."

"Rick Cerone has had one good year," the Yankee owner continues. "I heard the arbitrator looked at what fellows like Winfield and (Andre) Dawson got and then made his decision accordingly."

"Cerone needs at least another year before he can be compared with catchers like (Jim) Sundberg, (Gary) Carter and (Butch) Wynegar. I'll betcha you couldn't trade Cerone for any of those three. Some day Rick will be right there with them, but he isn't yet."

The owners started becoming disenchanted with arbitration following the Ralph Garr case six years ago. Garr, primarily a leg hitter, took the Atlanta Braves to arbitration in 1975 after leading the National League with .353 the year before.

He was asking $125,000 a year, big money in those days, and nearly triple what he had gotten the previous year. Garr's big argument was that he had out-hit Pete Rose. The Braves argued Rose had out-hit Garr for years and years before that but the arbitrator wasn't impressed enough and Garr wound up getting his $125,000.

Porter Adjusts To 'Straight' Life

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Darrell Porter says he has been free of at least one of the agonies common to people who quit alcohol and drugs after years of heavy use.

He says he never has had to fight a desire to take a drink, pop a pill or take a snort of cocaine.

"I guess it's because everything was so miserable the way it used to be," he says. "I never, ever want to go back to that kind of life. Oh, once in a while at dinner I think about how good a beer would taste — a beer mixed with tomato juice."

"And a time or two I've wanted a Quaalude. But those are just things that pass in a minute, and I forget about them. I haven't had any trouble fighting temptation because the temptation really just isn't there."

Therapists at The Meadows, the drug and alcohol rehabilitation institute in Arizona where he spent six weeks last spring, warned him there could be a period of one or two years before he became fully adjusted.

And there was speculation that was the reason he went from a .291 batting average and 121 RBI in 1979 to .249 and 51 last season.

In fact, Joe Burke, general manager of the Kansas City Royals, openly questioned during Porter's free-agent negotiations whether he would ever regain top form.

"They said the readjustment time would be a minimum of one year," said Burke. "But what is the maximum? Two years? Three?"

But Whitey Herzog, who managed Porter in Kansas City for three years, is confident the All-Star catcher needs only to work on his fundamentals.

"During the playoffs and World Series I could see what he was doing wrong at the plate," said Herzog, who as manager-general manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, signed Porter to a rich five-year contract.

"I wanted to run down on the field and get him straightened out," Herzog said. "There's nothing wrong with Darrell."

Porter was married in November to a Kansas City woman he met the day he returned from The Meadows. Thanks to her, he says, he's happier than he's ever been.

And he has become a persuasive soldier in the war against drug and alcohol abuse. Last summer, his public support helped pass a funding proposal for a mental health hospital in North Kansas City. He has spent much of the offseason speaking to youth and civic groups.

"When I look around and see how happy I am now, and think about how horrible my life was just a year ago, I can hardly believe it," he says. "It wasn't easy, but I did it. And I'm proud of myself."

Indians' Paul Loses Temper At Manning

CLEVELAND (AP) — The management of the Cleveland Indians say their tough policy with outfielder Rick Manning is only intended to make him a better player.

"We have tried everything with Rick. We have tried putting our arms around him in an understanding way. We tried kissing him —. This time we're using a hot poker," said Gabe Paul, president of the American League team.

Manning was fined $500 by the club for not appearing at a sports media banquet last week in Cleveland at which he was to receive a "Good Guy" award.

The 28-year-old center fielder hit .234 last year which brought much media criticism. He never spoke out angrily and the same media voted him a good sport award. Manning was reported to be in Tucson, Ariz., preparing for spring training and declined to fly north for the banquet.

Manning has appealed the fine and his agent, Ed Keating, said all material concerning the fine has been sent to the Major League Baseball Players Association. "If the fine had been $100 or $200, we would have quietly paid it, but $500 is a hefty sum," Keating said.

Paul, meanwhile, is not happy with Manning and said the veteran may have a tough time winning his job in spring training.

"We're not going to go with a .234 hitter in center. A .234 hitter does not deserve a permanent job. Manning has to go to spring training to work hard and win a job," he said.

Competition for the centerfield job may be waged among four players: Manning, Miguel Dilone, Larry Littleton and rookie Von Hayes.

Paul said Manning conked him last spring and he hopes the $500 fine and needing will make the outfielder respond. "He told me he was in great shape and showed up in spring training (last year) with this huge rear end. We tried to discuss these things with him. Rick talks a good game, but you can't talk your way in this game. You have to play hard," Paul said.

Twins Settle Amicably As Smalley Wins Biggie

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — There comes a time in a man's life when he must weigh the value of monetary compensation for his services against intangibles such as quality of life, friendly neighbors, and safe, quiet streets.

Roy Smalley got all of that and more on Monday, signing a four-year contract with the Minnesota Twins for an estimated $2.4 million which ties him to the club through the 1984 season.

"There's no doubt about it, there's a lot of money out there," said the 28-year old shortstop, who was due to go to arbitration in New York the same day he signed his new pact. "But at a certain point it becomes a question of whether you want to be rich or very rich."

"I know for a fact I'm not the highest paid shortstop in baseball. (Garry) Templeton is higher and when (Rick) Burleson signs with California, I'm sure he'll blow me away."

"The point was, where did I want to play? Where did I want to live? I love this area, this is where I want to raise my son. I'm very happy and I feel my talents and interest in the organization have been fairly compensated. I have no ego hangups about being the highest-paid shortstop, or the highest-paid anything."

Smalley appeared at a press conference with his wife, Chris, a native of the Twin Cities, and six-month old son, Jeffrey. He admitted that he waived his desire for a no-trade provision in his contract because the entire package, which makes him the highest-paid player in Twins' history, was satisfactory.

"I wanted something I could live with," said Smalley, the American League's starting shortstop in the 1979 All Star game. "The Twins are affording me a hell of a living. I'll be able to raise Jeffrey in a manner to which he's already become accustomed."

Smalley joined the Twins in 1976 as part of the trade which sent pitcher Bert Blyleven to Texas. Since that time, he has blossomed into one of baseball's fine defensive shortstops and a switch-hitter with good power.

In 1979, he hit .271 with 24 home runs and 95 runs batted in. Last year, despite injuries which limited him to 133 games, he hit .278 with 12 homers and 63 RBIs.

He also accepted 673 fielding chances, made only 17 errors and took part in 100 double plays.

"It is rare in this industry to conclude a contract not only with a very fine athlete, but also with an exceptional human being," said Clark Griffith, son of Twins' owner Calvin Griffith.

UCLA Coach Brown Axes Ex-Starting Center Fields

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In the UCLA basketball press guide, coach Larry Brown is quoted on incoming freshman Kenny Fields: "He reminds me a lot of a young Marques Johnson. He is extremely coachable and has unlimited potential."

On Monday, Brown said in a terse prepared statement: "I feel it is in the best interest for Kenny as well as our program that he no longer be a member of our team."

No reason was given for kicking Fields, who started at center for the Bruins in their first 16 games this season, off the team.

Fields, a 6-foot-7, 220-pounder who came to UCLA as one of the nation's most highly regarded prospects, had an unexcused absence from a Bruin practice two weeks ago. He went to the beach to rumble "problems that affected my hustle and desire."

He had not started the last four games for the currently sixth-ranked Bruins, and played just nine minutes in last Saturday's victory over Arizona State.

He had averaged 10.3 points and 5.2 rebounds per game for the Bruins this season.

Cliff Pruitt, a sophomore who like Fields came out of Verbum Dei High in Los Angeles, started the last four games at center for the Bruins. He has averaged 8.7 points and 4.1 rebounds a game this season.

Fields was not available for comment, but his father, Don, said: "As far as we know, there's no justifiable reason. One thing we know, it's not for breaking any team rules."

Pintor Trains For Key Bout

HOUSTON (AP) — World Boxing Council bantamweight champion Lupe Pintor of Mexico strode into the room in a borrowed western hat but the confidence was all his own.

"I came here as the champion and I intend to go home the champion," Pintor said shortly after posing with challenger Jose Uzigu of Argentina. "I have not seen him fight before but that makes no difference."

Pintor and Uzigu continued working out today in preparation for Sunday's 15-round WBC title fight at Sam Houston Coliseum. Pintor will receive $100,000 and Uzigu will earn $20,000 in the nationally televised bout.

While Pintor has fought in this country many times, including three impressive bouts in Houston, Uzigu will be fighting for the first time in the U.S.

And although Uzigu, 28-1-3, is surprised he received a title bout, he is not less confident.

"I was surprised that I got to fight for the Argentine title and I won that, and I was surprised to fight for the South American title and I won that," Uzigu said. "Now I am surprised again and I intend to win again."

Pintor, 25, will be making his sixth title defense since winning the WBC crown from Carlos Zarate June 3, 1979 in Las Vegas. Pintor defeated Alberto Davila Dec. 19 in a 15-round decision.

Uzigu will have a height and reach advantage over the 5-5 champion but Pintor isn't worried.

Prior to defeating Davila, Pintor knocked out Johnny Owen Sept. 19 in Los Angeles. Owen never regained consciousness and died 44 days later.

"I have been asked about Owen everyday of my life since it happened," Pintor said. "It does not bother me in the ring but I get tired of talking about it. I am very sorry it happened but I do not like to talk about it."

Partly Cloudy Skies Predicted For Area

A-J News Services
Fog shrouded Lubbock like a heavy cloak this morning but caused no major problems in city traffic or at Lubbock International Airport.

Motorists coming to work drove with their headlights on, and airline pilots flew by instruments as the fog held through mid-morning.
An airport spokesman said there had been no significant delays in take-offs or landings.

The forecast calls for fair skies this afternoon and tonight and partly cloudy skies Wednesday.

Temperatures will be in the low 70s today, upper 30s tonight and upper 60s Wednesday, weathermen predict.

Winds will be southwesterly at 10 to 15 mph today and tonight and northwesterly Wednesday.

Fair skies and unseasonably warm temperatures are expected Thursday through Saturday over the West Texas region.

The extended forecast is for readings in the 70s and 80s Thursday and Friday. Partly cloudy skies and temperatures in

Message May Provide Clue To School Blaze

TYLER (AP) — As officials were combing Monday through the ash and rubble of a destroyed high school, teachers arrived at the band hall of a middle school, found the remains of burned sheet music and saw a peculiar message on the blackboard.

"Friday 13th Bye Bye JT. signed ?"

The fire in the band hall at Boulter Middle School burned itself out, causing only minor damage, but the message caused officials to suspect a connection with the break-in and fire that gutted John Tyler High School early Saturday, causing damages estimated at between $4 million and $6 million.

Three teen-agers were among the first suspects in the high school fire, officials said. They were among the first spectators at the blaze and one of them was overheard to say, "Ain't that pretty?"

"They came to watch us put it out. It's just sad. That's all I can say," Fire Chief Gerald Weaver said.

Two of the three suspects accused of setting the high school afire — Arthur the 60s and 70s are forecast for Saturday.

Weathermen said the fog extended from the middle Gulf Coast to Northeast Texas and the South Plains this morning and that visibility was reduced to near zero in parts of South Texas.

Skies were cloudy over much of south central Texas, the coastal plains and East Texas, they said, and skies were clear over the rest of the state.

No rain was reported anywhere in the state Monday or early today as all Texas cities reported springlike weather.

It was 69 degrees Monday at Del Rio, Tyler, Alice, Amarillo, Tahoka, Spur and Lubbock, the National Weather Service reported.

It was 36 here this morning. Area low readings early today included 26 at Olton, 29 at Floydada and 30 at Abernathy, Friena and Plainview.

The record high for Lubbock today is 88 degrees in 1921. The record low is 18 in 1970.

Lubbock had .92 of an inch of precipitation at this point in 1980. The city has recorded .56 on an inch so far this year at the airport.

Gene White, 17, and Martin Dale Wingard, 18 — had been suspended from John Tyler High School two months ago and had also earlier attended Boulter Middle School.

Wingard and White were charged with first-degree arson and were arraigned Sunday before Justice of the Peace Ray Day, who set bond at $50,000 each.

Officials say the two youths have given statements concerning the fire.

A 15-year-old youth is in the custody of juvenile authorities.

White and Wingard were suspended indefinitely by the Tyler school board after an incident last Dec. 12 in which an assistant principal at John Tyler said he was attacked and beaten by two male students when he told them to stop drinking beer in the school parking lot.

Several people reported seeing the three teen-agers at the fire, and a woman living in an apartment complex near the high school told investigators she watched as the three walked near the high school about 3:30 a.m. Saturday.

Company Wins Fire Cleanup Contract

FORT WORTH (AP) — A company formed less than a month ago has landed a contract to clean at least 1,500 rooms at the Las Vegas Hilton Hotel severely damaged by fire last week.

After Las Vegas' MGM Grand Hotel burned last month, Scott Mooring Jr. and W.G. Blackmon Jr. formed Blackmon-

Mooring Steamatic Catastrophe Inc., primarily to contract major fire and flood cleanups anywhere in the country.

Company representatives were negotiating for a contract in Las Vegas the day after the MGM Grand fire, but the hotel management decided to refurbish the hotel. The company was retained as a

Clinics Will Provide Help On How To Stop Smoking

The Lubbock Unit of the American Cancer Society Thursday will begin the first of two clinics Thursday. The clinics present information and tips on quitting the smoking habit for those who have made the choice to stop smoking but need an extra incentive.

The first sessions will begin at 7 p.m. in classrooms 1A and 1B of Lubbock General Hospital and continue on subsequent Monday and Thursday nights through March 9. The first clinic will be taught by Wayne Huffaker and Max Slaughter.

The second session will begin March 16 and will continue on Monday and Thursday nights through April 2. The second session, also scheduled for 7 p.m. at the hospital, will be headed by Ed Emerson and David Lloyd.

The course informs the smoker of the changes he can expect physically when he quits. Health, aesthetics and mastering the habit will also be discussed.

The sessions are presented in a group atmosphere and participants are allowed to compare experiences with smoking. Part of the class asks the smoker to quit for a 48-hour period and then the group is encouraged to compare experiences in quitting.

Participants are encouraged to form an "I.Q." (I Quit) group for further support in staying away from cigarettes.

More information may be obtained by contacting the American Cancer Society area office at 794-5808 or by coming by 5135-C 69th St.

Elderhostel Co-Founder Alters Image Of Aged

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

If senior citizens conform to the mass media image of themselves, they already have one foot in the grave, says Martin "Marty" Knowlton, co-founder of a summer college program for older persons called Elderhostel.

Knowlton doesn't fit the social security set stereotype and he knows it's disturbing to some.

"Nobody wants a kinky grandfather or grandmother," he says, explaining that such people have a "limited cuteness." After the novelty wears thin, he says, families of older persons try to curb them into conformity by admonishing, "Act your age."

Knowlton, who is 60, says "acting one's age" — whatever that means — is asking for a tombstone.

"Your worst enemy is yourself if you conform to the image of aging in America," Knowlton says. "Your next worst enemy is your family if they tell you to act your age. And your third enemy is your physician if the diagnosis is that you're just getting old."

He bristles at the word senility.
When people tell him that's what they have, he advises, "Change doctors."

Actually, he says, doctors are "better now than just a few years ago" in dealing with older patients but he still maintains that all too often doctors "hide behind the diagnosis of senility" simply because it's easy.

The final diagnosis for Knowlton is that he simply refuses to be bound by the limited role commonly accepted for senior citizens.

The Dallas native began his adult life as a volunteer ambulance driver in the Free French Foreign Legion in the Middle East in 1940. He served in the U.S. Army in the Pacific Theater later and after military service he studied at Birmingham Southern College in Alabama where he received a bachelor's degree in history in 1946. He received his master's degree in political science at the University of North Carolina and later completed 60 hours of graduate work at Yale University in anthropology as a Ph.D. candidate.

During his employment, he zigzagged between teaching and various business and industry jobs including nine years as a research engineer. His teaching jobs including both college and high school level and during those years he also served as a coach in such various sports as swimming, track and soccer.

Although back-packing across Europe is typically associated with young adults, Knowlton embarked on such a journey at the age of 50.

During his four years on the road, he worked as an archaeological digger on 15 sites in England and West Germany.

And when he returned to the United States, he was filled with a zest for travel and learning but didn't know what to do with that energy.

While talking to his longtime friend David Bianco, director of residential life at the University of New Hampshire, the conversation led to the idea of establishing youth hostels in the U.S. similar to those in Europe. And then the men realized that the same concept could be applied to older people.

Struck by the term "elder hostel," they spent the rest of that evening designing a program to fit that concept and the following summer, 1975, the program opened in New England — 200 senior citizens enrolled.

Last year 20,000 older people enrolled in Elderhostel programs at 330 institutions in all 50 states and two Canadian provinces.

The program, which participants can attend for one or two weeks at each institution, includes a choice of classroom courses, room and board in a college dorm and usually a variety of field trips.

Knowlton says teachers enjoy the program because older people are in the classroom purely for the love of learning, unlike young college students who may enroll in some classes simply because it is required.

"It's an exciting difference," Knowlton said, on a recent stop in Lubbock to visit with Tech officials about this summer's second annual Elderhostel program here. "I don't know any professors who are not thrilled by it."

Knowlton says senior citizens can draw on a lifetime of living experiences to understand new topics in the classroom. "They ask questions that reach into a dimension of the subject matter that younger people don't perceive," he said.

Although the focus is on learning in the classroom, Knowlton notes, "There is no denying that the association with other participants is a very very key element to the total experience."

Friendships which begin in the dorm after classes often continue via letters throughout the rest of the year, officials say.

Knowlton says it's difficult to measure the impact that Elderhostel has on participants, but he did hire a psychologist once to observe the participants before, during and after their Elderhostel experience.

"They leave with clearly better mental health," Knowlton said, explaining that intellectual stimulation and social contact sharpen one's vigor. "But we don't have any language to describe that," he said, noting that most words describing a mental state apply to mental illness, not mental health.

This year's Elderhostel program at Tech will include such course offerings as Contemporary Folklore, a history of Indian tribes called "From Quannah Parker to Sitting Bull: History of the Plains Indians," and a public issues course covering such topics as national security, foreign affairs, health, energy and food.

Those three classes will be available Aug. 2-8.

The week of Aug. 9-15 will feature a Shakespeare course, a film class on western movies and their influence on American culture, and "The Legacy of Ranching," a class tracing the development of ranching in West Texas.

Only those 60 or older, or those married to someone in that age category, may enroll.

And for that, Knowlton says, "Young people — eat your hearts out."

LISD May Lose Some Federal Funds

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Lubbock school district food service operation stands to lose about $50,000 before the year is out because of federal cutbacks, but the program director predicts meal costs will remain steady.

Lubbock school trustees are expected to learn Wednesday about new federal legislation that will reduce reimbursement rates for school lunches by 2.5 cents per meal. The overall loss of income for the school district will be about $50,000 between the period beginning Jan. 1 and ending June 1.

But Melvin Johnston, director of food services, said he foresees no boost in student meal prices to offset the loss. "I think it's certainly going to make us run as tight as we can the rest of the school year. But I think we'll recover in the overall program some way."

Johnston said the recovery probably will not come from those who purchase meals inasmuch as the cost of lunches has increased the last two years and the price for breakfasts went up last year.

"I think I would recommend we stay with the current rate" both for the remainder of the school year and the 1981-82 year, he said.

The food service operation will profit from abnormally high reimbursement rates received the first part of this school year and also from a new food service and warehouse plant scheduled to get under way this summer, Johnston said.

The plant, which consolidates cafeteria, instructional, maintenance and textbook warehouses with the food service operation, is projected to save the district $1 million in five years.

The district also has seen a loss of some food commodities donated by the U.S. Department of Agriculture to assist food programs. But Johnston said the district already is well-supplied with the foodstuffs.

The school board also is expected to consider participation in the Texas Association of School Boards' Legal Assistance Fund. Supt. Ed Irons said the fund, requiring a $200 membership fee, will provide Texas school districts with information on all federal and state litigation that will affect them.

A participating school board also would be able to apply to the fund's trustees (comprised of school district board members, superintendents and attorneys) for a friend-of-the-court brief in its own legal battles and a consulting attorney.

Irons said the fund developers hope that with enough members financial assistance for litigation might also be provided, but he said he does not anticipate that goal will be reached.

The board will meet at 7:15 a.m. Wednesday in the Administration Building Assembly Room, 1628 19th St.

Authorities Abandon Kidnapping Probe

NORTH CHARLESTON, S.C. (UPI) — Police have dropped their investigation into a claim by Stephen Braman that he was kidnapped last month, driven to Corpus Christi and abandoned in the trunk of his car for four days.

"All I can say is he indicated he wanted to drop the whole thing," Deputy Police Chief Mickey Whitley said Monday. "As far as we are concerned, the crime did not occur so we have closed it out."

Braman, who has returned to North Charleston, was found locked in the trunk of his car at a motel parking lot in Corpus Christi Jan. 29. He claimed he was abducted a gunpoint in front of his apartment and spent four days in the trunk and only had one hamburger to eat during the ordeal.

Physician Unlikely To Be Reprimanded

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Former Gov. Otis R. Bowen, who is a physician, didn't break any law by prescribing unapproved drugs for his dying wife and is unlikely to lose his license to practice medicine, the head of the state medical licensing board says.

Dr. I.J. Kwitny said this week his agency has no reason to take action against Bowen, whose wife died of terminal bone marrow disease Jan. 1 following a lengthy illness.

Bowen acknowledges prescribing three drugs — DMSO, or dimethyl sulfoxide, THC, the active ingredient in marijuana, and an unidentified drug imported from France — in attempts to ease his wife's suffering.
