Attempted Coup Foiled In Spain

MADRID, Spain (AP) — A coup attempt by a Civil Guard officer who tried to resurrect the Franco-style dictatorship by seizing the Parliament in a burst of gunfire collapsed today 18 hours after it began. Freed government and Parliament members left the building shouting "Long Live Democracy."

Most of the 200 submachine gun-branded Civil Guard members who followed Lt. Col. Antonio Tejero Molina in the daring attempt to topple the Spanish government deserted by jumping from windows of the Parliament when it became clear they had lost.

Tejero Molina, a Civil Guard officer with a long record of insubordination, surrendered inside the building. He was whisked away in a black official car with a motorcycle escort after telling his followers, "I will have to pay with 30 or 40 years in prison."

The coup failed when King Juan Carlos — his government and Parliament held hostage — told the nation he had ordered the Spanish army to "restore the constitutional order" and the army proved loyal.

Tejero Molina and his followers took over the Parliament Monday with bursts of gunfire during a debate on confirming Leopoldo Calvo Sotelo as Spain's third prime minister since the Franco dictatorship ended in 1975. Madrid Radio said Tejero Molina demanded that Parliament be replaced by a military junta.

There were no gunshot injuries despite the firing of hundreds of rounds by the Civil Guard members in the assault on the building.

The ministers and deputies emerged one by one from their all-night ordeal in the Parliament building. As they stepped into the bright winter sunshine, they shouted to cheering crowd of several thousand, "Long Live Freedom!"

As caretaker Premier Adolfo Suarez left the building he was embraced by members of his family and the crowd.

Tejero Molina and a hard core of his guardsmen remained briefly inside the building, then gave up. One of the freed hostages quoted Tejero Molina as telling the captives just before the ordeal ended: "You can leave quietly. Nothing will happen here. The only thing that will happen is that I will have to pay with 30 or 40 years in prison."

Authorities said Tejero Molina, who plotted a similar takeover more than two years ago but got only a seven-month sentence, accepted full responsibility for the latest coup attempt but insisted that all non-commissioned officers and enlisted men involved in the takeover be given a guarantee against reprisals.

The hostages were freed after military authorities announced that Tejero Molina accepted conditions for a "face-saving surrender."

Dozens of Tejero Molina's followers jumped from ground-floor windows of the Parliament with their submachine guns strapped to their shoulders after it became clear they had no chance of winning.

About 20 of the hostages — including women deputies and sick captives — were freed early today.

'Thrill Shooter' Strikes Again; Manhunt Starts

A shot fired from a gold-over-brown pickup similar to one used in a possible "thrill shooting" in which a 5-year-old boy was critically wounded earlier this month was reported this afternoon in the 4400 block of Clovis Road.

Details were sketchy shortly after the 1 p.m. shooting, but the target, a 23-year-old Lubbock woman, was reported to have escaped injury.

Kay Hutcheson of Route 8, Lubbock, was reported "visibly shaken" after the incident but uninjured.

"This guy just shot at me," she told an Avalanche-Journal reporter. "I saw the gun before he shot it."

Aided by a Department of Public Safety helicopter, city and area law enforcement officers were searching for an assailant described as a white man wearing a beard and driving a gold-over-brown Ford Club Cab pickup — the same type of vehicle described as having been involved in the Feb. 12 shotgun shooting of young Cory Menton as his parents drove in the 3100 block of Clovis Road.

The tot was hit in the right temple by the shotgun blast and lost part of his

Democrats Ridicule GOP Tax Cut Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic tax writers in the House today dismissed as "jelly bean talk" and "hallucinogenic" claims by President Reagan's chief economic advisers that a 30 percent personal income tax cut over three years will dramatically improve the economy.

Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan bristled at the Democratic assault on the president's economic program during a hearing of the House Ways and Means Committee. Regan held his ground, insisting that tax cuts would stimulate the economy by encouraging saving and investment.

The Senate, meanwhile, began the task of turning Reagan's budget-cutting proposals into reality when the Republican chairman and ranking Democrat on the Senate Budget Committee introduced a resolution calling for $125.9 billion in cuts over the next three years — the president's target.

Sen. Peter Domenici, R-N.M., the committee chairman, said even though there was bipartisan agreement on priority handling of the budget cut plan, "I know that we will have many struggles about individual cuts...."

Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee, after a meeting with the president, said he hoped the Senate could complete floor action on Reagan's proposed budget cuts by mid-April, and predicted "good bipartisan cooperation."

After his White House meeting with GOP congressional leaders, Reagan said the legislative campaign "is now fully underway."

The president told reporters that the nation's governors, whom he met Monday, recognize that his program will require some belt-tightening, but "they also agreed that only if our government grows less will our economy grow more."

At the Ways and Means hearing, the treasury secretary said the plan to cut taxes and federal spending represented a "break from traditional economic modes" on the theory that it was best to "put money in the family budget rather than the federal budget."

He said tax cuts enacted in previous administrations proved that the Reagan plan would work.

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., the committee chairman, interrupted Regan to protest that "we're talking about big dollars."

Rep. J.J. Pickle, D-Texas, characterized the administration's projections as "jelly bean talk," in a reference to the president's favorite candy.

Rep. Thomas J. Downey, D-N.Y., said Regan was basing his conclusions on "threadbare evidence" that was "hallucinogenic."

"I resent that," Regan shot back angrily.

Budget director David A. Stockman told the panel the package of targets for budget cuts was carefully compiled and was "not some kind of random hit-list."

Before the hearing, Rostenkowski made clear the committee would fashion its own tax-cut plan for House consideration, and that changes in Regan's proposals were certain to be made.

Although most legislators in both houses favor some kind of tax cut this year, many Democrats — and some Republicans — are dubious that Regan's proposal will do anything but further fuel inflation.

Salvador Given Boost By U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan said today the United States had "no intention" of becoming involved in a Vietnam-like conflict in El Salvador.

At the same time, the president told reporters at an impromptu news conference that "we are in support of the government there against those who are attempting a violent overthrow."

He noted that the Soviet Union has denied involvement in supplying arms to the anti-government guerrillas opposing the military and civilian junta ruling El Salvador. However, he said, "the evidence we have and have made public... makes it evident they are involved."

Asked whether the United States risked becoming involved in a conflict from which it would be difficult to extricate itself, the president replied that such questions represented "part of the Vietnam syndrome."

He added, "We have no intention of that kind of involvement."

Regan spoke as a Defense Department spokesman, Col. Jerry Grohowski, disclosed that the administration is actively considering sending additional military advisers to El Salvador to train government troops.

The United States already has about 20 military advisers stationed in the strife-torn Central-American nation.

The Washington Star reported today that the United States may send up to 50 Army specialists to El Salvador, but Grohowski said nothing definite has been decided on numbers.

"There are all kinds of options," he said.

U.S. officials, meanwhile, said a recent lull in arms shipments through Cuba to rebels in El Salvador has diminished the possibility of swift retaliatory action

Summit Plea Interests Reagan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan today expressed strong interest in a summit meeting with Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev.

Regan, appearing at a briefing on his economic recovery package in the Executive Office Building auditorium, was asked about Brezhnev's call for a summit in an address to the 26th Communist Party congress in Moscow Monday.

"I was most interested in his suggestion and it is something that now we will discuss," Regan replied. He said the discussions will include the State Department, the Cabinet and "most particularly" America's allies, including British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher when she visits Washington this week.

The president said he would not demand a set agenda before such a summit could be held. But he also indicated Soviet behavior, now hampering the U.S.-Soviet relationship, would be important.

"I have repeatedly said I am willing to negotiate a solution — legitimate negotiations aimed at verifiable reductions in nuclear weapons," he said.

"I also made it plain at such a negotiating table, if and when this takes place, there should be other considerations, what has been termed by Mr. Brezhnev as linkage," he added.

"I wouldn't try to guess what's in their thinking," Regan said of Soviet motives, "but let's just say I found it very interesting."

Britain's Prince Charles To Wed 'Girl Next Door'

LONDON (AP) — Prince Charles, heir to the British throne and one of the world's most eligible bachelors, is engaged to 19-year-old Lady Diana Spencer and the couple will be married this summer, Buckingham Palace announced today.

The announcement ended months of speculation about romance between the dashing 32-year-old prince and the daughter of an earl distantly related to the royal family.

The palace disclosed that Prince Charles proposed and gave Lady Diana a sapphire and diamond engagement ring a few days before she left for Australia Feb. 6. He then told his parents at their Sandringham estate.

Britain's future queen is the girl next door. Lady Diana grew up on the Spencer family estate in Norfolk county next to the royal family's Sandringham residence where she and Charles first met when she was a girl.

No date or place for the wedding was announced, but The Times of London, which reported in today's editions that the announcement is near, said it was likely to take place in Westminster Abbey in July.

The Times added that Prince Charles "once said that he thought 'about 30' was the right age for marriage, and the announcement will bring to an end speculation about the romance that has in recent months put the couple in the center of press attention."

The palace announcement, issued through Press Association, Britain's domestic news agency, said: "It is with the greatest pleasure that the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh announce the betrothal of their beloved son, the Prince of Wales, to the Lady Diana Spencer, daughter of the Earl Spencer and the Honorable Mrs. Shand Kydd."

After the wedding the woman who has been dubbed "Lady Di" by British newspapers, which have hounded her since she became Charles' girlfriend, will become Her Royal Highness, the Princess of Wales.

But her life was already changing rapidly today.

Michael Shea, the monarch's press secretary, said Lady Diana would move out of the London apartment flat which she shares with three other girls.

Shea said the Queen and her husband Prince Philip, the Duke of Edinburgh, were "delighted at the engagement."

He said Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, the leader of the Labor opposition, Michael Foot, and the Archbishop of Canterbury were among those notified of the engagement in the past few days. The Privy Council, the monarch's official advisers, will meet to approve the marriage formally.

Charles and Lady Diana have been the most popular romantic item in the British press since last November.

Law Firm Fights Action By Judge

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A municipal court judge and a group of lawyers have gone to war.

The attorneys, operating The Ticket Clinic at 1110 10th St., have buried Judge Cecil Puryear under a barrage of traffic cases to be tried. Now the judge is firing back with equal vigor.

Puryear is accepting from the law firm only as many new cases as the office disposes of each day from the backlog it already has filed. And the attorneys, Goodwin Hale, Robert Kizer and Bill Wischkaemper, have filed a formal complaint with the Texas Judicial Qualifications Commission in Austin.

"We intend to battle it out," Hale, managing partner of the firm, said.

"I would not anticipate that it would be resolved immediately. It's something that's been building for a considerable length of time, and I would anticipate that it would take a considerable length of time to get it resolved."

Puryear said, however, that finding a solution should not be very difficult.

"I'm pretty sure it's a temporary situation," the judge said. "They're working on a couple of ways to alleviate the situation."

In a recent letter, Puryear wrote Hale that the municipal court "has become very concerned with the great number of cases the Ticket Clinic has been setting for trial over the past few months and the seeming inability to dispose of those cases in an orderly fashion.

"To date, the Ticket Clinic has over 400 cases pending, with more being bonded every day, and the prospects of

Rita Jenrette Reveals Incident

NEW YORK (AP) — Rita Jenrette, the estranged wife of a congressman convicted of Abscam charges, says there are some frightened people in Washington because a female lobbyist videotaped sexual encounters with congressmen.

Mrs. Jenrette, in New York on Monday to publicize her article and semi-nude photo spread in Playboy magazine, said the lobbyist had been made pregnant by a Republican senator.

She declined to identify the senator, but added, "This is brewing and soon to come out, I think, in the next couple of months."

"There are a lot of very frightened Republican congressmen and senators, because this woman supposedly has all of this... their intimacies, on videotape," she said.

John Jenrette, a South Carolina Democrat, was defeated for re-election last year after being convicted of taking a bribe in exchange for promising undercover FBI agents to introduce an immigration bill for fictitious Arab sheiks. He is appealing.

Group Settles With Bob Hope

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — A women's organization that contended Bob Hope gave it short shrift at a benefit performance has reached an out-of-court settlement of a suit against the comedian and a promoter.

The Springfield, Mass., Junior League had filed a $300,000 suit against Hope and Robert Cole's American Show Producers Inc., of Portland, contending Hope was on stage for only 55 minutes at a Nov. 24 benefit when he should have appeared for 90 minutes. The group also complained about the content, promotion and ticket prices for the show.

Cole announced the settlement Monday. "As far as we're concerned, the whole thing is over," he said. League attorney Peter Roth agreed that "the case is essentially settled," but said some details remain to be carried out before the suit is formally withdrawn.

Neither attorney would reveal the details of the agreement.

But attorney Jason Thompson, representing Cole and Hope, said the last payment of "a couple hundred bucks" for court costs would be in Roth's office today.

Actress Looks For Tough Director

NEW YORK (AP) — Katharine Hepburn, confirming her reputation in some circles as an actress difficult to work with, says she always looks for a director "who can push harder than you can."

"I discovered early on — get a tough director," Miss Hepburn wrote in the March issue of Panorama, a television magazine.

"Now I'm not trying to say I like being told to do something which I haven't thought of," she wrote. "I hate it. I go mad. I insult the director. I want to kick them or weep."

Candidates Dress As Dwarfs

OXFORD, Ohio (AP) — Seven students are dressing up as Snow White's dwarfs for a small campaign for student rights at Miami University.

The Lighter Side Of The News

"The rights of students have become so small here that they're dwarfed. We're being treated like children," said Dan Adamson, a candidate for president of the Associated Student Government.

He's adopted the name "Grumpy" from the character in "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs."

He and six other students majoring in interdisciplinary studies are wearing hiking boots, knickers and 4-foot-long stocking caps. And they're marching daily on campus, singing "Hi ho, hi ho, it's off to work we go," the dwarfs' theme song.

According to the Miami "dwarfs," students have been lulled into boredom by student government.

"They work with the administration, write a lot of reports and then it all gets thrown away," Adamson said. "We'd like to try confrontational politics" to solve two long-standing disputes.

The first dispute is the no-car rule for the campus' 15,000 students. The second involves abolition of all restrictions on dormitory visits involving men and women.

A spokesman for the student government refused to comment.

Atlanta Police Investigating Disappearance Of Another Youth

ATLANTA (UPI) — Police said today they are investigating the disappearance of a 14-year-old Atlanta boy, but the case has not been turned over to a special task force investigating the cases of 20 slain or missing black children.

Police released a photograph of Mario Andre Kirk, who lived in south Atlanta, site of most of the disappearances and killings.

He was reported missing by his mother last Thursday, the same day Curtis Walker disappeared. Walker's name was added to the official list of slain and missing children last Friday.

Officials said they still considered Kirk a runaway but would intensify their search anyway.

The boy's mother, Jimmie Nell Kirk, said the boy rarely attended Columbia High School, where he was enrolled, and had run away "off and on" for the past year.

She said she thinks her son may be in Decatur with a man he had helped repair cars, but police have been unable to locate the man.

Mayor Maynard Jackson, meanwhile, said he is pleased to get federal assistance in social and technical areas in the hunt for the child killer, but his hope of getting what he really needs — $1.5 million in cash — is fading.

Jackson, who met Monday with the newly assigned federal services liaison in the cases of 20 missing and dead children, said he believed a meeting with President Reagan was still being considered, but the prospects of receiving money looked dim.

"My optimism is beginning to dwindle, but we have not given up," the mayor said.

A spokesman for Jackson said the mayor was grateful for the latest federal effort — to assist by providing counseling to those affected by the deaths of 18 black children and the disappearances of two more.

"The mayor is very happy to get this," said spokesman Angelo Fuster. "But that doesn't mean that's all there is."

City officials met Monday with the head of the federal effort, Charles Ricketts, to apprise him of the city's needs.

Ricketts, a former regional director for the Law Enforcement Administration, said he will not become involved with the special police task force investigating the murders, but would cut red tape to hasten the transfer of aid from the Department of Health and Human Services.

"The idea is not to muddy up what has already been done, but to help the city deal with the federal bureaucracy to get the help that's needed and is available," said Ricketts.

Soviet Leader Applauds Brezhnev's Summit Plea

MOSCOW (UPI) — A rising member of the Soviet leadership today praised President Leonid Brezhnev's call for a U.S.-Soviet summit and vowed his country will not be "sidetracked" from efforts to improve detente.

Grigory Romanov, Communist Party chief of Leningrad, the Soviet Union's second city, praised Brezhnev for his speech Monday calling for a summit meeting with President Reagan, saying it contained "fresh peace initiatives."

"In conditions when detente is put to a serious test," Romanov said, "the Soviet Union will not be sidetracked from a course of improving the situation."

At 58, Romanov is considered one of the bright future lights of Soviet politics and occasionally has been included by Kremlinologists as a possible successor to Brezhnev.

Other speakers on the second day of the 26th Communist Party congress, followed Romanov to the restroom to praise Brezhnev's keynote address Monday.

In Washington, spokesmen for Reagan said the summit proposal was received "with interest," but declined further comment. In Moscow, Western diplomats cautioned against expecting the call for a summit to lead quickly to better relations with the United States.

"It's hard for me to believe this could be construed as a formal invitation," a long-time observer said, adding that no formal contacts are known to have been made in Moscow or Washington.

Poland's Communist Party leader Stanislaw Kania was shown on television today replying to Brezhnev's hard-line warning Monday that the Polish unrest should not continue, but, no text was released.

Western correspondents were banned from the proceedings, but socialist sources said Kania, who like most other Communist Party chiefs is a guest at the congress, delivered his response in the presence of Brezhnev.

Brezhnev's speech opening the 26th Communist Party Congress Monday attacked U.S. foreign policy, complaining of "bellicose calls and statements ... to poison the atmosphere of relations between our countries."

Only 10 minutes were aired live, leading to speculation on Brezhnev's health. The speech was later televised in an edited hour and 25-minute version. Soviet officials said the address was broken by two rest periods.

"It seems the last five years have taken their toll," one observer said.

However, the Soviet leader walked to the podium briskly and spoke firmly, occasionally looking up from his text as the audience of 5,002 delegates and hundreds of observers applauded and cheered.

John Paul Warns Of Nuclear Holocaust

TOKYO (AP) — Pope John Paul warned that the world is moving toward "all-out nuclear destruction" and issued an emotional appeal for peace today at a Mass for more than 36,000 people.

"I have set foot on the land that has known the special horror of destruction during the last war," the pope said in Japanese on the second day his visit.

"The name of the Japanese city of Hiroshima has become a symbol of the threats toward which the whole of humanity is moving if it does not succeed in overcoming the terrible temptation to dominate others by means of all-out nuclear destruction.

"Here, where the memory and signs of the explosion of the first atomic bomb are living and obvious, the words of Christ cannot fail to take on a particular vividness: peace be with you," he said.

"These words must become a challenge. They must re-echo all the horror of the final warning. They must become an invocation, a categorical invocation to every possible cooperation by people on behalf of peace in the world."

American atomic bombs were dropped on Hiroshima and another Japanese city, Nagasaki, in August 1945, leading almost immediately to Japan's surrender and the end of World War II. The pope visits Hiroshima Wednesday and Nagasaki on Thursday.

The 60-year-old pontiff spoke from a huge, simply draped red and white altar in the infield of the Korakuen stadium as a light rain fell. The altar was sheltered by a giant canopy, but the audience sat in the rain.

John Paul's call for peace came after meetings with Emperor Hirohito, a man once revered as a Shinto deity, and with Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki.

The emperor, who will be 80 on April 29, met the pope at the entrance of the Imperial Palace, and they talked in private for 50 minutes.

The Imperial Household Agency said Hirohito told the pope Japan owes much to Catholic missionaries, who first brought European culture to Japan. The pope described Japan as a country of moral principles and praised the way it rehabilitated itself from the devastation of World War II, the agency said.

There was no report on the pope's meeting with Suzuki.

In another meeting, with leaders of other Christian churches, the pope urged the Japanese to help less advantaged Asian countries and peoples. Japan has been accused by some Asian leaders of a stingy approach to foreign aid and of tying most of the aid it does give to trade deals.

Tensions Eased Between Polish Government, Labor Movement

By THOMAS W. NETTER
WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The convergence of a variety of factors is giving Poland a spell of labor peace after seven months of tension and strikes.

The lull apparently stems from realization of the deterioration of the economy, recognition of the importance of quiet during the Soviet Communist Party Congress this week, the appointment of an ally general known as a moderate to head the government, growing public fears of what might result from continuing labor unrest and the independent labor federation Solidarity's decision to oppose further disruptions.

For the first time in months, there are no strikes, warning strikes, sit-ins or strike threats, other than a hunger strike by members of a small church group that concerns issues within the organization.

Both the new premier, Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, and leaders of Solidarity have called for dialogue and negotiation to avoid unsettling and explosive confrontations.

The labor scene cooled off last week with the resolution of long-standing disputes with university students in the country's second largest city, Lodz, and with farmers in the remote southeastern towns of Rzeszow and Ustrzyki Dolne. In both settlements, the strikers shelved major demands in exchange for significant reforms.

The tired farmers who emerged from the old government union building in Jaruzelski, in his inaugural address, appealed for 90 days of labor peace to allow the government to create order.

Jaruzelski brings to the office of premier organizational skills acquired as head of the Warsaw Pact's second largest army, political acumen gained from 10 years in the Polish Communist Party's ruling Politburo, an image of strength because of his military career but a reputation as a moderate because he opposed use of the army to settle past labor disputes.

Western analysts view his election by the party's Central Committee as an attempt to rally a consensus.

Solidarity's leaders apparently decided that further strikes and protests would be counterproductive. Acknowledging that the wave of wildcat protests spawned by the national movement's first successes produced cosmetic but not long-lasting change, they criticized these local protests and announced a reorganization they hoped would help them control the passions of their members.

They named a new, 10-member presidium and announced plans to reduce the number of local chapters from 48 to less than half that number.

The reorganization came the day after

Too Much Or Too Little?

WILL THERE be a shortage or a glut of oil on the world market come late spring and summer? U.S. experts and their Western European counterparts appear to be in complete disagreement on the question.

Analysts at the Energy Department predict a major worldwide oil shortage by the start of the 1981 vacation season, maybe even gas lines. In short, 1979 revisited.

But experts at the International Energy Agency disagree. They foresee a new glut of oil on the world market by late spring or early summer.

The contrasting forecasts largely are the result of differing opinions about the effect of the Iran-Iraq war on future oil supplies.

THE AMERICANS forecast a gradual improvement in Western economies that will cause the demand for oil to increase. The Western Europeans say that this economic upturn will not begin until much later—if at all.

They also point to the continued decrease in demand brought about by strong conservation programs in many Western nations.

The demand levels forecast by the two sets of experts are only a couple of percentage points apart. But the shift of even a point or two can mean the difference between abundance and gas lines.

In addition, the two assessments differ on the impact of the continuing Iran-Iraq dispute. The IEA experts note that some oil is moving out of both warring countries; their combined exports have reached as many as 1.5 million barrels on some recent days.

The U.S. experts caution against counting upon exports from Iran and Iraq to remain at current levels. They point out that fighting has diminished in recent months not because of reduced tensions but because of bad weather and overextended supply lines.

BOTH SIDES are buying additional arms all over Western Europe.

Spring will most likely see the Iraqis stage a major offensive to try to regain captured territories. The Iraqis, meanwhile, will try once and for all to take firm control of the oil-producing regions they have besieged for months. Once hostilities intensify, say U.S. experts, the oil coming out of both countries will probably decrease to a trickle.

Each side privately admits that the other might be right. There are experts in Washington who agree with the optimistic picture painted by IEA as well as vice versa. All of which goes to illustrate how fragile is the world's oil-distribution system and how slight is the margin between surplus and shortage.

James J. Kilpatrick:

Good Intentions Make Bad Law

WASHINGTON—Consider, if you will, the piece of pending legislation known as the Family Protection Act. It is said to embody the conservative's heart's desire.

The bill is sponsored in the House by George Hansen of Idaho; it will be sponsored in the Senate by Paul Laxalt of Nevada. Both gentlemen are accredited conservatives.

But if their Family Protection Act is a conservative measure, I have wasted my adult life in understanding and promoting the conservative cause. The bill is a hodgepodge of good intentions and bad law.

Surely it would be hard to find fault with the avowed purposes of the Hansen-Laxalt bill. Their measure recites that "a stable and healthy American family is at the foundation of a strong American society."

WHO COULD QUARREL with that? They assert that the government frequently has fostered policies of taxation and spending that undermine the family. Maybe an arguable case could be made to that effect.

But most of the measures advocated by these two redoubtable gentlemen as correctives are preposterous.

For example: One of the great complaints of conservatives in recent years has focused upon federal intrusion in local schools. The historic cry is that "federal aid means federal control."

We have railed constantly against federal rules and regulations—such as the recently abandoned federal rules for bilingual instruction—that threaten withdrawal of federal funds to non-complying localities.

What, then, is one to make of the bristling threats and intrusions proposed in the Hansen-Laxalt bill? They would deny federal funds right and left. Try this passage on your piccolo:

NO FUNDS AUTHORIZED under any applicable program or any provision of federal law shall be made available to... any program which produces or promotes courses of instruction or curriculum which may, directly or indirectly, inculcate values or modes of behavior which contradict the beliefs and values of the community as demonstrated by parents, representatives of parents, and recognized religious groups.

Or try this one. Funds would be denied any local school board that purchased "any educational materials" that might tend "to denigrate, diminish, or deny the role differences between the sexes as they have been understood historically in the United States."

The sponsors of this misbegotten bill would involve "recognized religious groups" in decisions

Lightly Speaking

A Tulsan slipped at the top of a long flight of stairs and started sliding down. About midway he upset a woman who fell backwards into his lap and finished the trip with him.

Reaching the bottom, the woman was too dazed to get up. Somewhat embarrassed, the man spoke up politely: "Would you mind getting off now? This is as far as I go."

Overheard: "Luck is a very good word if you put a P in front of it."

Sync Or Whim

THE VETERANS Administration is dunning 66,000 federal employes it says are among the 531,000 deadbeats who owe it $521 million.

Shucks, those employes prob'ly just didn't know the Gov'ment's address.

"As best I can figure it out," Burie Pettit says, "it took us four to six years to recover from the Depression—and 40 more years to begin talking about recovering from the recovery..."

TODAY'S MAY Bouquet: To all those who attended the public hearing in support of the Interstate 27 extension across Lubbock, especially those who spoke.

T.J. Patterson of the Lubbock Digest, Raul Cortez of the Mexican-American Chamber of Commerce and Eddie Richardson of the East Lubbock Black Chamber of Commerce were among those who eloquently spoke in favor of the recommended route.

No speaker seemed to question the need or worthiness of the expressway, although some of those affected would have preferred another route and three or four voiced concerns over how those displaced will be treated.

All in all, it was a very positive gathering of about 800 blacks, browns and whites sharing a common interest.

NOTES FROM Here-n-There: West Texas, according to the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, will pay about $4.5 billion annually in so-called windfall profits tax on oil production...

John D. Lofton:

The Fact Is, There Isn't Any

WASHINGTON—Every Saturday night on TV here there is a show called "Agronsky and Company." On the show, host Martin Agronsky kicks around the week's news events with four fellow journalists.

During a recent program, Agronsky mentioned a newspaper report that told of Office of Management and Budget Director David Stockman's desire to substantially cut the foreign aid budget.

When asked if he thought this was a good idea, conservative columnist James J. Kilpatrick said he didn't think so. Why? Because, he said, he had read a U.S. Government report—the Global 2000 study—and according to this document things look pretty bleak for the future.

AH, YES, THE Global 2000 study. I, too, have read it. And what it says is that, in terms of population, pollution and the environment, the world is going to hell in a handbasket. You know, every day in every way things are getting worse and worse.

But more important than the GTS, I have read "Global Confusion, 1980: A Hard Look At the Global 2000 Report." This article is in the Winter, 1981 issue of the Public Interest publication.

It is written by Julian Simon, a professor of economics and business administration at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. What the Simon piece demonstrates is that the assertions about resources and the environment made in the GTS are baseless.

THE FACTS POINT in quite the opposite direction on every single important aspect of the GTS predictions for which data can be found.

Along with the "First Great Law of Models"—GIGO: garbage in, garbage out—says Simon, should be added another law—PIPO: prejudice in, prejudice out.

The list of those working on GTS indicates that it was put together by the very same Zero Population Growth gang who brought us the "Population Bomb," plus the Club of Rome's "Limits to Growth" study. Remember this latter study? Four years after it was issued, the Club of Rome reversed itself and came out for more growth, not less.

The GTS assumes that people are like lemmings who blindly leap off cliffs to their deaths. But Simon points out:

"The most important aspect of relevant historical experience is that humans use their imaginative and creative powers to change their situation when caught in a resource bind, and the final result is usually that we are better off than before the problem arose."

Simon concludes by asking: "What damage relating to courses that touched upon religious beliefs.

THEY WOULD REQUIRE "parental review" of textbooks prior to adoption.

They would intrude upon the right and power of the states to fix certification requirements for teachers.

They would snatch funds from any state that prohibited "voluntary prayer" on the premises of any public building.

What in the world, we may gently inquire, has become of the traditional dedication to states' rights?

What of the wall that conservatives insist should be maintained between church and state?

Much of the Hansen-Laxalt bill is devoted to changes in the Tax Code intended to assist parents with educational expenses.

ANOTHER SECTION WOULD appropriate $4.5 billion in unconditional educational grants to state and local agencies.

What of economy in government? All such grants would have to be reviewed and approved and evaluated by the secretary of education. What of bureaucracy?

The bill is hopeless. It attempts to cover everything under moon or sun, from legal services to abortions to sex education to trust funds to private schools to food stamps for college students.

In one way or another, the bill violates just about every precept of a conservative political philosophy.

Legislatively speaking, it is so much junk. It ought to be quietly scrapped.

Former Lubbockite Frank Junell has retired as chief executive officer of the Central National Bank of San Angelo but continues as chairman of the board...

In Dallas, an aide to U.S. Rep. Jim Mattox was indicted on charges of illegally witnessing 100 absentee ballot applications (one's all that's legal) by elderly nursing home residents, including one for a woman who had died six months earlier.

"Timing" means everything in getting a program accepted or rejected. With that in mind, Mel Tittle notes that President Reagan's economic message to Congress appears to have been televised nationwide last week in a carefully selected time slot.

Just after "Great Performances" and "Real People" and just before "Different Strokes" and "Fallen Angel."

NOW THAT THE Interstate 27 expressway hearing is behind us, it's time to get cracking on the other essential element of any plan to cure inner city traffic problems.

That's the widening of Brownfield Rd. from Slide Rd. to 4th St., tying in at that point to a 3rd and 4th Street one-way pair to the Interstate.

This plan, to handle the need, must include grade separation traffic interchanges at 19th Street, at Indiana Avenue and at 4th Street.

Another near-fatal accident at Indiana Avenue the other day underscores the tragic mistake Texas Tech made in refusing to let the state build an overpass there—as it was prepared to do—in the first place.

At least three lives already have been lost and more will be until that mistake is corrected.

Also long overdue is the 3rd and 4th Street one-way pair, to which the state committed itself long ago although it has on occasion wanted to pretend no commitment was made.

State and federal funds should be secured for this construction just as soon as possible. It won't provide a perfect answer to our traffic circulation problems, but it is the only feasible plan which stands a chance for early funding.

RICK COHEN passed along an article some time ago from Changing Times magazine, which reported that "by coordinating existing traffic lights we could save at least 100,000 barrels of crude oil a day."

That translates into 770 million gallons of gasoline a year.

Besides building expressways—which will eliminate fuel-wasting stops—Lubbock also needs to get its traffic signals synchronized.

There's no need to try to force everyone onto public transportation—although it will have a growing role to fill—but there is a need to make our major thoroughfare system here more fuel efficient.

A fully computerized signal system, programmed by experts, ranks in priority right behind the I-27 and the 3rd and 4th St-Brownfield Rd. construction projects if we want to solve our congestion problems.

comes from these unfounded predictions of a gloomy future? We cannot be sure, of course.

"I speculate, however, that the doomsaying may have led us to expect inexorable punishment for our supposed sins against nature, and for our exploitation of those persons viewed as living closer to a natural state in their poverty."

"The prophecy of such retribution may be self-fulfilling because we reduce our efforts to improve our situation, economic and political."

How true. Just last week, I saw an article in the paper reporting how a group of 80 environmental, scientific, academic, and population-control groups are urging President Reagan and the Congress to adopt a national policy to "stabilize" our population.

The article said that this group's position grew out of the Global 2000 study.

Do All Your Homework For Education Deducts

(Sixth of nine columns)

NEW YORK—Tax deductions for education expenses can be extremely valuable to you—not only in the dollar amount you can save by the deductions but in the benefits to your whole life inherent in the education you obtain.

But while the expenses of education intended to sharpen or improve your skills in performing your job are deductible, you must be able to show that the courses you took were chosen for the purposes you claim.

Expect no sympathy from the Tax Court if the IRS disallows your deduction for the courses you took because the courses are not reasonably related to your job.

AS AN ILLUSTRATION, a lawyer who specialized in handling cases on appeal claimed a deduction for certain graduate level courses in English literature at Georgetown University on the basis that the courses helped him by improving his writing and speaking skills required in the practice of law.

The IRS barred his deduction and in 1980, the Tax Court agreed.

The Tax Court noted that not one of the courses he took was related to improving his writing skills—as, say, a course in creative writing might do.

The implication seems to be that the court might have upheld his deduction for courses that directly improved his writing skills on the grounds that this would enable him to write better legal briefs.

ANOTHER TAX COURT decision stressed the importance of being able to prove that your courses directly help improve your job skills.

Here a clinical social worker decided to undergo psychoanalysis—to help her distinguish her own personality problems from those of her patients and thereby to enable her to provide better treatment for them.

She already was certified and licensed under state law as a clinical social worker, so she didn't need the psychoanalysis for that purpose, nor did she need it to retain that status.

She deducted the cost of her psychoanalysis as a business education expense.

IRS DISALLOWED THE deduction. But the Tax Court upheld the social worker because her psychoanalysis maintained and improved the skills required in her profession, and didn't qualify her for a new profession.

In the case of a clinical social worker who herself practices psychotherapy with her clients, there is a direct relationship when she undergoes psychoanalysis to increase her skills in her own employment, says the Research Institute of America.

Because this is so significant an area for income tax deductions and because so many key points are misunderstood, here are answers to frequent queries about education, jobs and careers.

Q. I am a physician in general practice, taking courses to qualify as a surgeon. Are these deductible?

A. Yes. A physician is permitted to deduct the costs of qualifying for a specialty within the medical field.

Q. Are laboratory fees, books, etc., included along with tuition in education expenses?

A. Yes.

Q. Is the cost of a correspondence school course deductible if it meets all other requirements?

A. Yes.

Q. To attend college so I can take courses to hold my job, I must travel to another city. Are these costs deductible?

A. If your education expenses qualify for deduction, then your cost of travel, meals, shelter away from home also are deductible, assuming the costs are primarily to take the courses.

Q. I AM A public accountant. To qualify for the CPA exam, I must take some extra college courses. Are these deductible?

A. No. These expenses are intended to meet the minimum requirements to become a CPA.

Q. Can I deduct the costs of commuting to the school where I take courses?

A. No. This applies whether you take the courses in your home city or a distant city. The cost of going from your permanent or temporary residence to the school is a nondeductible commuting expense.

Shocker! Four of the Tax Court decisions on education expenses favorable to taxpayers I've disclosed are not even mentioned in the U.S. government's tax guide. (See the first column in this series.)

Couple Suing Company Over Deadly Toy

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Robert McCabe crouched in the yard, holding his son in his arms, using a butter knife to try to pry from the child's throat the "Water Wiggle" toy that was swiftly drowning him.

Jonathan, 4, died in his father's arms — his lungs, chest and head full of water.

"I tried to get it out. I couldn't get out," McCabe told a circuit court jury Monday, the first day of testimony in the $5 million lawsuit he and his wife filed against Wham-O Manufacturing Co., makers of Water Wiggle and other toys. Testimony continues today.

The McCabes' attorneys, Melvin Belli and John Spencer Robinson, argued that the toy was defective and never should have been placed on the market.

"The package itself shows little children playing gleefully and happily with the toy," said Belli, a noted products liability lawyer. "When the cap comes off the wiggle is lethal."

McCabe told the jury he discovered Jonathan had swallowed the toy when his son Joey, 7, ran into the house screaming that "Chrissy had this thing in his mouth."

McCabe said he couldn't remember if he shut off the water or told Joey to do it, but when the Water Wiggle wouldn't come loose he ran inside and got a butter knife to pry it out.

Jonathan's death was the second blamed on the Water Wiggle, a toy that bounces around when hooked up to a spigot. In 1975, Marcus Maloney, 3, of Baton Rouge, La., died in a similar accident.

His family settled with Wham-O, but Robinson said the McCabe family would settle for $50 million.

"They want to expose this company," Robinson said.

Haig Shows Interest In Summit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., taking a more optimistic stance than several other U.S. officials, says the United States is "very interested" in a Soviet overture for a summit meeting.

The Haig assessment came late Monday — after a five-hour meeting with French Foreign Minister Jeanne Francois-Poncet — and was more upbeat than reaction earlier in the day from the State Department and the White House.

"I think it's clear that we are very interested in what Mr. Brezhnev had to say," Haig said. "There were new and remarkable innovations in that speech."

Haig did not elaborate, but one of the "new" things he could have had in mind was Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev's apparent approval of a French suggestion that the Soviet Union and United States give advance notice of troop movements in their respective spheres of influence.

The French diplomat accompanying Haig seemed at least as pleased with Brezhnev's remarks.

"It seemed at first hand that there was a willingness towards a dialogue, which is, I think, something that ought to be picked up," Francois-Poncet said. "There are a certain number of new elements which concern the French proposition of a disarmament conference in Europe, which is new if compared with previous Soviet positions."

Before Haig's comment, the official administration tone toward the Soviet leader's invitation to talk had been one of skepticism.

One official, who asked not to be identified, dismissed Brezhnev's overture as "a propaganda exercise" and said a summit meeting would be out of the question for at least several months to give U.S. leaders time to consult with its West European allies first. "The Soviets are trying to sound like the peacemaker while making trouble among the allies," he said.

White House press secretary James S. Brady suggested the Soviets "have had a history and a pattern of good guy, bad guy tactics. ... It would not necessarily be out of character for this to be a ploy."

Nonetheless, the State Department said the speech was being studied "with interest" and one official, who asked not to be identified, suggested it "sounds like a hand outstretched ... like a man who wants to sit down and talk."

But that was not the White House line.

Meeting reporters after receiving a briefing himself from national security adviser Richard V. Allen, Brady was asked if the Soviets might be trying to appear conciliatory when, in fact, they were not.

"They've done that in the past," the president's spokesman replied. "I leave it for your interpretation."

He said the administration wasn't particularly surprised at the offer.

"Soviet watchers have seen a pattern of good guy-bad guy tactics go back and forth," he said. "The initial question was whether this would be something that would be a surprise and they've done this in the past."

In Moscow, the Soviet government insisted it was serious about the offer. Officials there indicated hope it might break the cycle of suspicion and recrimination between the Kremlin and the Reagan administration.

GIFT FOR REAGAN — Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., right, presents a bronze statue of an 1886 cowboy entitled "Arizona Cowboy" to President Reagan Monday at the White House. The statue, by Ray Renfro of Prescott, Ariz., has a plaque which reads, "From The People Of Arizona." Goldwater, who traditionally begins his campaign in Prescott, commissioned the artist to make the statue for Reagan. (AP Laser-photo)

FBI Director Contends Cutbacks Will Hurt Enforcement Abilities

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI Director William Webster says his agency, already being asked to do more and more with fewer and fewer people, might have to choose between increasing its fight against violent crime and maintaining its campaign against organized and white-collar crime.

At the same time, Webster said in an interview Monday, on his third anniversary as FBI director, that he is trying to fend off budget cuts proposed by the Reagan administration.

The bureau's force of special agents has declined by 800 since 1973 to 7,755 under the pressure of tight budgets. At the same time the Congress has pressured the bureau to move against sophisticated corruption by organized criminals, public officials and white-collar crooks.

"Various reductions have been proposed for the bureau, but most of those are on appeal," Webster said, "so I'm confident that we will get some restorations there."

The administration has not announced any cuts in the 1982 budget for the FBI, but sources said it was being asked to reduce its spending in certain areas where it shares responsibility with other law enforcement agencies. One published report said an 8 percent cut is being sought.

Reviewing his three years, Webster said, "I wish I had been more successful in turning around the shrinkage of the bureau, because we're being steadily asked to do more and more things and we're ending up with fewer and fewer people to do them."

"The FBI is a lean agency," Webster said. "Eighty cents on every dollar of our budget goes for people. If you talk cuts, you're talking cuts of people. You have to cut into something that we are actually doing in an investigative way."

At the same time, Webster said he is participating in a Justice Department effort to step up federal leadership against violent crime, which Attorney General William French Smith has said will be his top priority. Smith hopes to unveil a crime program in about two weeks.

"It's my considered judgment that organized crime, white-collar crime and hostile intelligence efforts in this country have the greatest impact on our society," Webster said.

But he added, "The problem facing the country today is fear, and the fear is of violent crime. Fear has a way of getting in the way of national momentum, so there ought to be an increased effort to improve our ability to cope with violent crimes. But you give me a hard choice when you say I would be willing to cut into our organized crime program in order to increase the other."

Nevertheless, he said, "That may be the choice."

Webster said that in 1980 the FBI had its best year ever against organized crime, including the conviction of mob leaders in New York, Los Angeles and Kansas City. He is proud of its undercover investigations into organized crime control of the national pornography business.

He ticks off the bureau's advances in sophisticated efforts to attack computer crime in large corporations, large-scale auto theft and stolen property rings.

"The work we are doing now is important," he said. "It has in the end an impact on the private citizen, upon the consumer, upon our confidence in government. Unless these programs are maintained, our country as a whole will be the poorer for it."

Webster said perhaps the greatest FBI contribution to fighting violent street crimes like murder, rape and assault, which are outside its jurisdiction in most instances, is its technical and training services for local and state law enforcement officials.

Reforms In Longshoremen's Union Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate investigators are developing novel strategies to clean up East Coast waterfront racketeering which may cost Americans untold sums in higher prices for everything from bananas to a cup of coffee.

The reform drive is aimed at the corruption-stained International Longshoremen's Association which represents 80,000 East Coast dock workers.

A main goal is forcing out of union office 52 ILA officials recently convicted of racketeering — schemes of bribery, kickbacks and fraud enforced with threats of violence.

Because rackets persist, "we each pay a higher price for imported goods, whether bananas from Brazil or coffee from Colombia," says Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., leader of the reform effort.

Ex-racketeer George Wagner, for instance, tells of supplying an underworld cohort with prime beef and other groceries for years. "I didn't pay for it, the consumer paid for it," he says, explaining that the food bills were paid from a rich pot of Miami payoff money extorted from the shipping industry.

The shippers, in turn, passed the extra cost along to Americans buying imported goods.

Government pressures for reform are nothing new to the ILA and its redoubtable boss Thomas W. "Teddy" Gleason and he shows no public sign of concern about this one. He denies mob ties and says it's not his job to police the union.

But Nunn and staff investigators say they're honing legal weapons never before used against the ILA. They're optimistic that at least some aspects of the multi-pronged strategy will force convicted racketeers out of their ILA jobs and perhaps even plant a seed of reform among the rank and file.

In three other unions — Teamsters, United Mine Workers, and Laborers — reform factions, however small, sprang up from within to protest widespread corruption. That has yet to happen in the ILA.

To force significant change, Senate reformers will need support from the Reagan administration, particularly Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan. In a letter to Nunn on Saturday, Donovan promised a thorough review of Labor Department authority to act against convicted ILA leaders.

Ex-Carter Official Claims Cuts May Hinder Energy Settlements

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government efforts to recover some $7.5 billion in alleged oil company overcharges are jeopardized by President Reagan's proposal to trim $40 million from the Energy Department budget, a former department lawyer says.

Paul Bloom, the department's special counsel during the Carter administration, told a House subcommittee Monday the budget action signals the oil companies that they needn't bother negotiating settlements with the government.

"The moment it becomes clear that the government will not devote the resources needed, there ceases to be any cost-effective reason for them to talk about settlement," Bloom said of the companies.

In his testimony Monday before the House Government Operations subcommittee on environment, energy and natural resources, Bloom said he was more concerned about the Reagan administration's effort to trim the budget of his former office from $52 million to $12 million.

Bloom said the budget cut would end any effort to recover some $7.5 billion in alleged oil company overcharges through legal actions still pending.

Bloom said oil companies, concerned that they might be hit by enormous court judgments against them, have been eager to reach out-of-court settlements. The oil companies have been willing to pay 60 cents on the dollar or more to have complaints against them dropped, saving both the oil companies and the government the cost of years of court disputes.

But the pressure to reach such a settlement disappears if the oil companies can assume that budget-cutting will wipe out the government office responsible for prosecuting the claims, he said.

The former special counsel said two companies — unnamed by Bloom, but described as "among the largest" — already have reneged on "handshake" settlements that would have forced them to pay millions of dollars to customers they have overcharged in the past.

He left office with the Carter administration, leaving behind pending cases totalling $7.5 billion in alleged overcharges by Exxon, Gulf, Arco, Shell, Mobil, Texaco, Conoco and others.

Solons Attack Attempt To Recover Oil Funds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senators are criticizing Energy Secretary James Edwards for trying to recover the $4 million a Carter administration official gave to charities to help the poor pay heating bills.

Paul Bloom, a former Energy Department lawyer in charge of prosecuting oil companies for overcharging customers, told a House energy subcommittee Monday he was not trying to be a modern-day Robin Hood.

Bloom said he acted in the closing hours of the Carter administration legally and equitably. It was not "some kind of casual philanthropy," he said.

The money was interest on an overcharge settlement paid by Standard Oil of Indiana.

Edwards, testifying before the Senate Energy Committee, said his predecessor, Charles Duncan, told him Bloom had not been authorized by him to distribute the funds.

"I would be remiss in my duties not to ask that the money be returned," Edwards said.

But Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, said, "You say you haven't had time to do many things. But you could find time to ask four charities to return $4 million why?"

And Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., suggested that if any funds are returned, Edwards redistribute them to the poor — "while it's winter, not summer" — using the same types of charities.

Bloom maintained he had full authority to distribute the funds.

He said he tried telephoning Edwards recently to tell him he was being misinformed, but was not put through and his call was not returned.

"I have been getting a lot of phone calls and congratulations from people who seem to think I've gone into the Robin Hood business," Bloom said.

"I wasn't trying to be sentimental or a Robin Hood," he said. "These poor people are a fact of life."

"I felt that if I could find a cost-effective way to reach poor people, I had an obligation to do so," he said. "I used the charities as a conduit."

The Energy Department released letters Monday asking the four charities, which got $1 million each, to return whatever money remains. The charities are the Salvation Army, the National Council of Churches, the Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds and the National Conference of Catholic Charities.

The department said it would not seek repayments from low-income persons who received assistance.

In the letters, the department claimed Bloom "acted beyond the scope of his authority" and said the gifts were "not properly authorized."

Census Counts More Blacks, Hispanics

WASHINGTON (AP) — Better counting methods resulted in sharp increases in the number of blacks and Hispanics found by the 1980 census, the Census Bureau says.

The bureau said Monday the number of black Americans grew to 26,488,218 or 11.7 percent of the national total. The 1970 count reported 22,580,289 blacks, for 11.1 percent.

The 1980 count for persons of Hispanic origin totaled 14,605,883 or 6.4 percent of the population. In 1970 it was 9,072,602 or 4.5 percent.

The increase in the black population indicates significant coverage improvement for this group over 1970," the bureau said. "Comparisons with demographic estimates suggest that the 1980 undercount rate for blacks may be in the range of 4.5 to 5.5 percent, compared with the estimated miss rate of 7.7 percent in 1970."

The larger 1980 count of Hispanics is a result of improvements in census taking and improved public relations which, in turn, resulted in the inclusion of a sizeable but unknown number of persons in the country in other than legal status," the bureau reported.

The 1980 count also found a sharp increase in the race breakdown for persons listed in the category "other." This figure rose from 516,673 to 6,756,986 between 1970 and 1980.

This is largely a result of persons of Hispanic origin, who generally listed themselves as either black or white in 1970, choosing the racial category "other" in the latest census, according to the new report.

Bolger Called To Defend ZIP Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — With scores of senators already determined to "zap the ZIP," Postmaster General William F. Bolger is facing an uphill battle in his effort to extend ZIP codes to nine digits.

Sen. Roger Jepsen, R-Iowa, announced Monday that 63 senators support a bill he and Sen. Dave Durenberger, R-Minn., have introduced to kill the plan to lengthen the current five-digit code.

"People simply do not want a nine-digit ZIP code," Jepsen said.

Durenberger called the proposal "a numerical nightmare."

Bolger was called before a Government Affairs subcommittee today to defend his plan. Several opponents also were called.

The Postal Service had planned to start the nine-digit proposal this month, but postponed it until June 1 after congressional opposition. The Senate voted unanimously to order a delay late last year, but the amendment was dropped in the final version of the legislation.

The Postal Service says the longer code would lead to greater efficiency and reduce the need for future rate increases.

"All of us would prefer not to have so many numbers in our lives," Bolger acknowledged, but he said the ZIP code extension would lead to more modern mail-sorting.

Bolger said use of the nine-digit codes would not be required and that the plan is mainly for businesses, which send 80 percent of the 105 billion pieces of mail annually. He said use of the longer codes would save $600 million a year by 1987, when fully in effect.

Hospital Official Says Funding Outlook Good

By DEBBI STALTER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Pending legislation was at the forefront of discussion at the county hospital district's board meeting Monday with members being told that the outlook is good for a proposed nursing school, backing from the state for resident physicians and funding from the Texas Crippled Children's Act.

Jake Henry Jr., administrator of the county-supported Lubbock General Hospital, said after the meeting he feels enabling legislation surrounding state funding for medical school residents in teaching hospitals will pass this session, but noted he has doubts about the support for the $58 million appropriation needed to fund such a bill.

At the meeting, Henry quoted testimony from a recent hearing on the bill given by University of Texas officials.

The UT testimony centered on a plea by that school for state funding because of the growing utilization of and demands on teaching hospitals by increasing numbers of resident physicians.

The testimony estimated that $30,000 per year is needed to train an undergraduate medical student for each of his four years of training.

Although Henry said he feels that figure was inflated, chief of staff Dr. A.W. Holmes said he believes the $30,000 quote was in line with actual costs.

In another legislative matter, Henry said he feels confident an amendment will be passed to clarify that hospital districts can receive funding from the Texas Crippled Children's Act. Eligibility for the money would have a $500,000 impact on the county hospital district.

The amendment is being sought after Dallas' Parkland Hospital sought an attorney general's ruling on the matter in November.

The attorney general's office maintains that hospital districts cannot receive the funds because the act states funding is not available to persons eligible for public programs set up by state law, including hospital districts.

Henry estimated that the hospital district has lost between $150,000 and $250,000 in the period since the attorney general's ruling was requested.

He noted that other hospital districts in the state have received Crippled Children's funding, but said he does not know why Dallas' Parkland and Harris County's Ben Taub Hospital have not received the funds. He speculated that neither had previously applied for the money because most of those cities' crippled children go to private hospitals unquestionably eligible for the money.

The Crippled Children's bill has been designated as emergency legislation by Gov. Bill Clements.

Henry said quick passage of the legislation could put the hospital district back in a position to receive funding because the appropriations are already included in the Texas Department of Human Resources budget.

Henry also reflected the feelings of others that more support is available for a Texas Tech University nursing school.

The school, officials and legislators say, could have a tremendous impact on a severe nursing shortage being experienced in this area, as well as the rest of the nation.

Bill Clayton Claims Current Term Last

AUSTIN (AP) — Bill Clayton says he won't seek a fifth term as House speaker after all and, in fact, plans to make this term his last as state representative.

His choices include political retirement or a race for a statewide office in 1982, Clayton told reporters Monday.

"I will not be seeking another term in the Legislature," he said.

He had indicated early this year he was thinking about parlaying his unprecedented fourth term as speaker into a bid for a fifth term in 1983. But he said Monday that 20 years in the House, including eight as speaker, were enough.

"It's time to move on and let somebody else represent that district," said Clayton, who represents a rural district northwest of Lubbock. His hometown is Springlake, where he runs a large irrigated farm.

The speaker said he has not "quite decided yet" about his political future.

"I will decide late in the session or afterward whether to make a statewide race or retire," he said.

Clayton said he would not attempt to choose his successor as speaker.

"Whoever the members select is all right with me. I don't want to name a successor," he said.

The speaker is elected by a majority vote of the House on the first day of each regular legislative session.

Clayton's political future was clouded by his long trial last year on FBI charges that he took a $5,000 cash pay-off from an undercover informant who presented himself as an insurance man seeking Clayton's help in getting the group insurance contract for state employees.

After a federal court jury in Houston acquitted him, he quickly rebuilt his support for a fourth term as speaker and won re-election in January.

Clements Endorses Reagan Plan To Cut Taxes, Federal Spending

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas Gov. Bill Clements has endorsed Ronald Reagan's economic program after hearing more about it at a White House session for the nation's governors.

"The governors, with perhaps the one exception of the governor of New York, indicated their support and enthusiasm, so I feel real good about it," Clements told reporters Monday on the White House lawn.

The governor said it is too early to tell if proposed federal spending cuts will influence his state budget.

He said the discussion with President Reagan touched more on changing the system for distributing federal funds rather than reducing the amount.

The change would send more money to the states in the form of block grants, with the states to decide how they would be spent, instead of categorical grants given to states for specific purposes.

"It would not be done in a sense of loss of revenue," Clements said.

Clements met privately with Reagan before the session with the National Governors' Association, holding its winter meeting in the nation's capital.

The Texas governor said he outlined his objection to the proposed cuts in the synthetic fuel program.

The program should use the money received from the "windfall" profit tax on domestic oil production to stimulate synthetic fuel production by private industry, Clements said.

He estimated that $80 billion in federal revenue designated for synthetic fuel programs over 10 years could promote $500 million or $600 million in the private sector.

Clements said Budget Director David Stockman indicated that there are fewer differences in their views of the program than expected.

"Stockman assured me that his position and the administration's position was much, much closer to my position than I had previously realized," the governor said, adding that he planned to study it further and meet with Stockman at a later date.

Clements then went to a private dinner for Vice President George Bush and the Texas congressional delegation at the governor's northern Virginia residence.

Earlier Monday, Clements said a top priority of the governors association task force he heads may be promoting a North American council of the United States, Mexico and Canada.

"I envision that this council, while it would have no policy-making powers, would provide a forum for all levels of government and the private sector to discuss issues of importance to all," he said at an international trade session.

Clements reported that the new task force on North American cooperation will start talks with Mexican and Canadian leaders about the feasibility of a North American council.

The governor said it would be premature to discuss what form North American cooperation should take. Discussions lasting several years and including all three nations are necessary to develop a definition, he said.

Representative Pushes Proposal To Limit Years In Legislature

AUSTIN (UPI) — Rep. Bob Simpson, D-Amarillo, is serving his fourth term in the Texas House of Representatives, and he's pushing a proposal that would prohibit any lawmaker from serving more than five terms in that body.

Simpson's proposed constitutional amendment would limit the amount of time a person may serve in the House to 10 years, or in the Senate to 12 years.

"I think a certain amount of mandatory turnover in the legislative bodies is appropriate," Simpson said.

But it's not something he expects the Legislature to quickly approve and submit to Texas voters. He has sponsored the same proposal every session he's been in the House, and it always has died in committee.

"It's just something I introduce every session. I don't expect to get it passed, but it's something people need to be cognizant about," Simpson said.

As far as Simpson knows, no other state limits the time its legislators can serve. And if his proposal passed, it would not apply retroactively to some legislators who already have long years of service.

He patterned the amendment after the provision in the U.S. Constitution which limits presidents to two terms in office.

For Simpson's bill to pass, it would have to be approved by a two-thirds majority vote in the House and Senate, then be ratified by Texas voters.

He said his constituents frequently endorse his plan to limit legislators' tenure, and some would like to limit the representatives and senators to less than 10 or 12 years.

"I think that allows time for a person to accomplish his legislative goals, and still assure a mandatory turnover. Another aspect is trying to maintain a citizen legislature, and if you allow endless terms it lends to the concept of a professional legislature, which I oppose," he said.

Asked if he would quit the Legislature after five terms as a demonstration of his support for the concept of limiting terms, Simpson replied, "I won't comment on that."

"I may well quit after four terms, but it doesn't help my position down here to say so."

Time Limit On Legal Action Proposed

AUSTIN (UPI) — A Senate committee has approved a bill which would prevent a lawsuit by a person who loses a hand working on a defective machine that is more than six years old.

The bill by Sen. Bill Meier, D-Eules, would impose a statute of limitations of six years from the time the product is manufactured, five years from the time it is purchased and two years from the time it causes injury.

With one dissenting vote, the committee recommended the bill Monday.

Opponents argued that the statute of limitations would protect manufacturers of defective automobiles, manufacturers of cancer-causing drugs and producers of any other products that cause injury more than five or six years after they are manufactured.

"If a man buys a new house and owns it six years and it burns down because of faulty wiring and destroys everything he has, maybe some members of his family, (can he sue under Meier's bill?)" asked Sen. Bill Sarpalus, D-Hereford.

"He has no cause of action," answered Mike Gallagher, legislative chairman of the Texas Trial Lawyers Association.

Sarpalus, the only vote in the committee against the bill, also asked Gallagher if the bill would prevent a lawsuit by a person who loses a hand working on a defective machine that is more than six years old or a person who gets cancer 20 years after breathing toxic fumes.

"The bill would essentially cut off all those causes of action," Gallagher said.

The bill would also eliminate punitive damages, except in cases where death has resulted. The Texas Constitution does not permit the Legislature to rule out punitive damages if a death has occurred.

Senate Votes To Require Testing Of New Teachers

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate wants future teachers to take tests to prove they can read, write and do arithmetic in a "satisfactory" manner. Veteran classroom teachers apparently would make up the tests.

Sen. Ray Farabee described his proposal Monday as "one tool" for improving public school education.

The bill was sent to the House on a 27-1 vote, with Sen. John Wilson, D-La Grange, the lone dissenter.

It would require college students wanting to become teachers to perform satisfactorily on a competency examination before being accepted in a teacher education program. The testing would begin in 1982, said Farabee, D-Wichita Falls.

"It would be unfair and unjust" to allow students to go through the entire program and then inform them they did not measure up, he said.

After graduation, a prospective teacher would again have to turn in a satisfactory performance on a "comprehensive examination" in his or her teaching field before being certified as a teacher.

Farabee said the Texas Education Agency, in conjunction with classroom teachers, would devise the basic skills exams and determine what would be a satisfactory performance on them.

"Every major teaching organization testified in favor of this bill" in committee, said Farabee.

The bill does not apply to people who already are teaching or students who are currently enrolled in a teacher training program.

Farabee estimated it would be at least 15 years before a majority of Texas school teachers would have taken and passed the exam.

Much At Stake In Run-Off Election

HARLINGEN (AP) — Both political parties have a lot riding today on a South Texas state senate election that has involved Republican Gov. Bill Clements, numerous high-ranking Democrats and even President Reagan.

A runoff victory by Rep. Hector Uribe, D-Brownsville, would mean that Republican organizing and fundraising have not cracked the traditionally Democratic stronghold of the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

If Republican Ricardo Hinojosa of McAllen wins, the Democrats will have lost despite an 11th hour saturation campaign by top-ranking state officials and legislators.

It's being billed as the biggest political horse race South Texas has seen in years.

Hinojosa polled the most votes in a Feb. 10 election that threw him in the runoff with Uribe. A second Republican, Joe Summers of Mission, barely missed the runoff by 20 votes.

The official recount showed Hinojosa with 9,073 votes, Uribe with 7,052 and Summers at 7,032. Four other Democrats split the remaining votes.

Summers said he was appalled before the runoff that Clements endorsed Hinojosa while there were two Republicans in the race. The Mission businessman has refused to endorse either candidate in today's election and had bitter words for the governor.

"I cannot endorse the governor's choice for he represents a brand of politics I have spent my life fighting. And I cannot support the other candidate for he represents a political philosophy I cannot condone," Summers said after the recount.

Committee Passes 'Worm Bill'

AUSTIN (AP) — Sen. Ray Farabee wants to strike a blow for Texans who answer advertisements for "business opportunities."

Many of them are ripoffs, he told the Senate State Affairs Committee Monday. A few minutes later the committee approved his "worm bill" 11-0.

"The problem is increasing in Texas," the Wichita Falls Democrat said. "Everywhere you turn someone is offering you a 'business opportunity' to get rich quick from worm farms or chinchilla ranches."

Farabee handed the committee a list of more than 700 Texans who invested more than $400,000 in a scheme to raise fishing worms and sell them back to a Houston firm for $2.50.

In another scheme, 250 Texans lost

$350,000 from offers to raise chinchillas in their spare room or garage. Others lost $103,910 in a make-money plan to manufacture coasters from beer cans.

"These people are not those out for a fast buck but mostly retired people wanting to earn some extra income," said David Bragg, chief of the attorney general's Consumer Protection Division.

Pharmacologist Uses New Book To Warn Of Food, Drug Dangers

Margery Daw's husband likes to charcoal-broil beef in the summertime. Funny thing, Margery has more trouble controlling her asthma during the summer.

Bill Bailey went on a diet and ate tremendous amounts of broccoli, beef liver, cabbage, lettuce, spinach, turnip greens, asparagus and watercress. He ended up in a hospital with a stroke.

Barbara Allen served avocados, sour cream, caviar, camembert cheese, pate, sausages and chianti at a dinner party (hers). She died of the food she consumed.

These occurrences — and innumerable others — are not unusual by any means, according to pharmacologist and author Joe Graedon.

Why do these unfortunate things happen?

According to Graedon, the reason is that physicians had neglected to give their patients sufficient information about how drugs they were taking interacted with certain ordinary foods.

Graedon's first book, "The People's Pharmacy" became a best-seller, exploding commonly-held myths about over-the-counter drugs, prescription drugs, health and beauty aids.

Now, believing there is an alarming scarcity of information about drug-food relationships, Graedon has brought out a sequel called "The People's Pharmacy II" (Avon, $5.95).

About the case histories discussed earlier, Mrs. Daw was taking theophylline for her asthma. But the charcoal-broiling process can have a dramatic effect on the metabolism of drugs like theophylline. Research has shown that charcoal-broiling speeds the elimination of medication by as much as 42 percent.

So, what happened? She was not getting the usual benefit from her medicine when she ate her husband's charcoal-broiled steaks.

On the other hand, Bailey should have gone easy on the broccoli, turnip greens, etc. All of these vegetables contain significant amounts of Vitamin K, which causes blood to clot. So they were working at cross purposes with Bailey's anti-coagulant medication, Coumadin, which he was taking because he'd already suffered one stroke.

Mrs. Allen's case was slightly different. When her doctor gave her an anti-depressant medication, Marplan, he mentioned something about avoiding beer and wine and some foods like cheese and chicken livers. Somehow, he forgot to tell her why.

After starting the medication, Allen noticed she was having headaches and felt a pounding in her chest. These symptoms usually occurred a few hours after dinner.

She did not tell her doctor about the symptoms, and the medicine was making her feel better — so much better that she decided to have a dinner party. After going to the grocery, she prepared all the food — the guacamole, the pate and so on. But halfway through the evening her headache came back, she became nauseated and her heart was beating so fast she thought she would explode. Her friends called an ambulance, but she died before reaching the hospital.

Why? — her doctor had never told her how dangerous the reaction could be if she ate food containing tyramine while she was taking the anti-depressant, a class of drugs called Mao-inhibitors.

Graedon lists the drugs most susceptible to effects of food as: ampicillin, amoxicillin, declomycin, erythromycin, erythromycin stearate, isoniazid, levodopa, lincocin, oxytetracycline, penicillamine, penicillin G, penicillin V, pentaerythritol tetranitrate, propantheline, prostaphlin, rifampin, tao, tegopen, tetracycline, unipen.

Some drugs are irritating to the stomach, Graedon notes, and some drugs are actually better absorbed with food. Graedon says that when your doctor instructs "With meals" you should take the medicine just before, during or immediately after eating a full meal. If you have to take such a drug between meals it should be taken with milk or a snack.

Among the drugs that are less-irritating with food are: butazolidin, codeine, cortisone, flayl, indocin, motrin and reserpine.

Graedon also warns that laxatives in the generic class of bisacodyl — like Carter's Little Liver Pills — should not be taken with milk or cream, cottage cheese or cream cheese because the alkaline environment may cause drugs to dissolve prematurely.

But these are only a few of the food-drug interactions discussed and listed in "The People's Pharmacy II."

One of the most interesting portions of Graedon's book concerns alcohol. Alcohol seems to affect everything, he said.

Although Graedon says there are 100 different drugs with which alcohol interacts, he lists the most dangerous.

Don't drink alcohol, or take any kind of cold or cough remedies if you are taking:

- Antabuse (deadly)
- Aspirin (intestinal bleeding)
- Acetaminophen (liver damage)
- Anticoagulants (unpredictable and very dangerous)
- Antidepressants (lethal)
- Antihistamines (dangerous)
- Barbiturates (suicidal)
- Chloral hydrate (Mickey Finn)
- Oral diabetes medication (plays havoc with blood sugar)
- Flayl (nausea, vomiting)
- Nitroglycerin (collapse)
- Sedatives, tranquilizers and sleeping pills (potentially lethal)
- Pain killers (nervous system depression)
- Any kind of time-release capsules.

Graedon discusses what is known regarding food-drug interactions, and interesting information it is, but he admits that much is yet to be learned about the effects of drugs on nutrition.

DEAR ABBY

Surgery Would Be Beneficial

DEAR ABBY: This is in reference to the 72-year-old man who says he cannot marry because he had a prostate operation 10 years ago that ended his sex life.

Abby, there is a new surgical procedure that will restore a man's sexual capabilities if the nerves are still intact. It is known as a "penile implant," and is now being done at Baylor University Hospital in Houston. Friends of mine who have had this operation tell me that it has been a godsend.

When I had bladder cancer eight years ago, I was offered this type of operation, but I didn't have it done because my wife assured me that she preferred a new dining room set. Sincerely yours, NICK IN CANOGA PARK, CALIF.

sonal affairs, or invite any of my friends (male or female) to visit me at work, this rude Aussie keeps asking me if I am "gay."

He boasts constantly about his sexual conquests and claims that most of the women who are chasing him are married, as he has more to offer them than their husbands. He came to work with a new gold watch, claiming it was a gift from one of his married ladyfriends. More recently he came to work with a new car, claiming it was a gift from another of his "women." I find this difficult to believe. However, true or false, it is none of my business and I am not one bit interested.

Since I have to work with this man, I prefer to be on good terms with him, so I would appreciate a few tips on how to keep him in his place without offending him.

I read you in the Rome Daily American.

AN ENGLISHMAN IN ITALY

DEAR ABBY: I need to know how to handle a very obnoxious 27-year-old Australian who recently joined the same company as myself. I am a 42-year-old Englishman, single and a very private person. Because I never discuss my personal affairs, or invite any of my friends (male or female) to visit me at work, this rude Aussie keeps asking me if I am "gay."

boasting about the women in his life, absent yourself from his company.

DEAR ABBY: I've been wanting to get this off my chest for a long time. Why do people let young children answer the phone and in a whining voice say, "Who is this?"

Please print this, Abby. I'm sure others feel as I do.

IRKED IN EDEN, N.C.

DEAR IRKED: Most busy mothers ask their little ones to answer the phone, and, of course, youngsters enjoy being "helpful." But no child should be allowed to answer the telephone before he is old enough to do it properly.

Do you wish you had more friends? Get Abby's booklet, "How to Be Popular: You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to: Abby, Popularity, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

BEAUTIFUL SCENIC — "Nantucket", a beautiful mural from the scenics collection adds openness and old-timey charm to a basement rec-room. Scenics make an ordinary room into a conversation piece with style and ease of installation.

Scenic Brightens Ordinary Room

NEW YORK (Special) — An ordinary room can become a conversation piece when you decorate with scenics. The possibilities are infinite and the installation is simple, taking just a couple of hours.

Here are some pointers on decorating with scenics:

1. Murals set the theme or mood for a room. Be careful to select the scenic that fits your personality and the accessories in the room.

2. Applying a scenic to one wall makes this wall the focal point of the room. Be careful to take into consideration the balance and visibility of that one wall.

3. Study the room's furnishings carefully. A mural will stretch the size of the room by carrying the eye beyond the wall.

4. Since a scenic makes such a powerful decorating statement, be careful not to clutter the room with lots of accessories and furniture.

5. Use a mural to create a window in a windowless room. This is particularly effective in dining areas. It gives an open, airy feeling in a congested spot.

6. A den with no fireplace can be just as cozy if you use a mural as the focal point for furniture and accessories.

7. In a large room, such as a living room, connect two scenics around a corner or around the whole room. This sets aside the portion of the room as a conversation spot.

8. Children's rooms are perfect candidates for scenics because kids love the look of outdoorsy themes or animal murals. In fact, a zebra mural would look perfect in a child's room.

9. Be careful to check the size of a mural when making the purchase. Most come in several panels to complete the full scenic. The sample book will tell you how wide and how high the completed mural is.

10. The most important part of the mural, when hung, should be just above eye level. Don't hang it too high or it will seem out of proportion.

11. When measuring, determine the center of the wall (or the center of the furniture piece or the area you are hanging it above). This is where the center of the complete mural should be placed.

Most murals come pretrimmed and ready to hang.

South West North East
1 — Pass 2 — Pass
4 — Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: Three of ♠.

"Obvious" and "best" aren't synonymous. On this hand, South made the obvious play and soon found out that it was decidedly not the best.

Though South had a very strong hand, it contained five losers, so it was worth only a one-bid. When North could do no more than raise, South realized that it was unlikely that his partner could cover four of his losers. Therefore, he was content to settle quietly in game.

West led a low diamond, and declarer took the diamond finesse "because it was there." East won and returned a diamond to the ace. Declarer drew trumps, cashed his high clubs, discarding a diamond from dummy (discarding a spade was no better), and then had to tackle spades.

He tried a low spade to the queen. East won and returned the ten of spades, and the defenders quickly took three spade tricks to go with the king of diamonds—down one.

Declarer could have put his queen of diamonds to better use than banking all on the 50 percent chance of a successful finesse. Consider what would happen if, at trick one, declarer won the ace of diamonds.

Trumps are drawn in three rounds and the three high clubs are cleared, declarer discarding one of dummy's diamonds. Now a diamond is led to the queen, and declarer doesn't mind which defender wins the trick.

At this point, both declarer and dummy are down to major-suit cards only. Whichever defender wins the king of diamonds is faced with a Hobson's choice—he can either lead a minor-suit card and allow declarer to ruff in dummy while discarding a spade from his hand, or he must break the spade suit for declarer, in which case the defenders can collect only the ace and king in the suit. In either case, declarer will lose only one diamond and two spade tricks.

WEATHER FORECAST — The National Weather Service forecast for Wednesday predicts showers and rain in the Northeast, showers in parts of the Southwest and throughout the Northwest, and flurries in Nevada. (AP Laserphoto)

Forecasters Predict High Temperatures

A-J News Services
Long range forecasters today held out a slight hope for rain in the Lubbock area Friday and Saturday but local weathermen aren't too optimistic about the chances.

"I'd say right now the chances are slightly more than none," a NWS spokesman here said this morning. "It's not really an encouraging situation yet."

Raising the slight possibility of precipitation is a southerly flow of low level moisture ahead of a Pacific front due to move into the area about midweek.

Meanwhile, temperatures are expected to soar to summery levels today and Wednesday before cooling slightly with the arrival of the front. Afternoon highs should hit the upper 70s today and the low 80s on Wednesday, according to the NWS.

Cooler air behind the front is expected to keep maximums to the 50s and 60s on Friday and Saturday.

Those who see the area's unusually mild winter as the start of a new warm cycle aren't likely to get much support from NWS weathermen at Lubbock.

"Just ever so often we have a winter like this," remarked one forecaster here. "The storm tracks have just been passing to the north of us."

"You can look back at the records and see that 80-degree readings in February aren't all that uncommon," he said. In fact the record for this date is 89 degrees set back in 1918.

Precipitation so far this month has amounted to .24, making a total of .56 for the year. This compares to 92 of this date last year.

Rain and drizzle hit the Northeast, with heavy showers in Pennsylvania and New York. The forecast called for more wet weather in the East.

Snow continued over Ohio and much of Michigan early today, with rain over much of the Great Lakes and Ohio Valley. Showers also reached across the northern and central Pacific Coast.

Lubbock Man Learns To Cope With Smallness In Big World

DALLAS (AP) — When sheep buyer Clay Kitchens and his wife took their 16-month-old son to Minnesota's Mayo Clinic in 1932, they expected doctors to repair the boy's cleft palate. They were not expecting a new diagnosis: young Lee was a dwarf.

"Take him home and treat him like you would any other child," doctors advised the Fort Worth couple.

"That's the best advice you could give anybody, for anybody who is handicapped," Kitchens, now 50, said. "Don't assume he can't do something until he's tried it several times."

Kitchens, engineering manager for Texas Instruments' home computer division at Lubbock, is 4-foot-1. He climbed into a chair in a motel room to talk about how he and other little people have learned to cope in a world built for bigger people.

Kitchens served as president of Little People of America from 1964 to 1968. His wife, Mary, who is 3-foot-11, was LPA treasurer from 1970 to 1974. But there was no Little People of America when he was a child, Kitchens said.

"My mother said she would have given her right arm to have had something like that when I was growing up, to help her," he said.

The world of little people is made up of dwarfs, who have normal chests and trunks, but short legs and feet, and midgets, who are small, but physically well-proportioned.

"The medical profession says any person under 5 feet is technically a dwarf, but most little people will top out at 4½ feet," Kitchens said. "We've got some that are quite a bit smaller than that. There are some who are only about 33 inches tall, and the smallest, I believe, is 29 inches."

Most little people are sensitive about the terms used to describe them.

"There are certain terms that blacks don't want to be called. And you don't refer to people with hearing impairments any more as deaf and dumb," Kitchens said. "So ... little people. That's just what we are."

Kitchens said his biggest problem was buying clothing — his chest is as big as an average man's but his arms and legs are short. "I have my own tailor," he said. "I see him once a year, and he's developed enough business that now he comes to all our (LPA) conventions."

Kitchens also cited "artificial barriers" that still exist in American society, such as school regulations requiring all children to attain certain standards of sports prowess.

"There are some states, Louisiana for example, that have height requirements for teachers," he added, noting that Louisiana has lost many teachers of short stature to Texas, which has no such rule.

Some little people furnish their homes with children's furniture, but that's impractical for big guests.

"A lot of them do what we did. We got contemporary furniture, which was kind of low. ... I'm two feet shorter than you, but I can live with this," Kitchens told a reporter.

As for annoying remarks or slights, Kitchens said: "I don't get upset when somebody does something stupid or does it because of a lack of awareness. It's an opportunity to educate that person ... and sometimes you make a good friend that way."

He and his wife met on a blind date while he was an electrical engineering student at Southern Methodist University and she an art student at Texas Woman's University. Last summer they celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary.

Many little people marry, and have children.

"Whether their children will also be little depends," Kitchens said. "Some are short by heredity and some are not. The first time it happens, it's genetic, and it can be hereditary after that. The chances can be anywhere from nil to 100 percent that they'll be little."

Little people sometimes adopt small children who are diagnosed as dwarfs or midgets. Kitchens and his wife did this.

"Sometimes a handicap at birth is more than parents can handle, and the children are put up for adoption. In the past, they were considered unadoptable and were made wards of the state. Now, officials have come to realize that these children can grow up in an environment where the parents understand what they're going to go through," Kitchens said.

The Kitchenses' children are Sandy, 21, and Alan, 25. Sandy is 4-foot-2, an inch taller than her father and three inches taller than her mother. But Alan was a surprise. He kept growing and is now 5-foot-7.

"We had made the bathroom counters super low in the children's room, and finally we had him use the guest bathroom, which was of normal size. But still, he'd bump his head on the kitchen cabinet when he'd bend over to use the sink," Kitchens said.

Little People of America had 400 members when Kitchens was president but has grown as it has gained exposure, he said. LPA now has 3,500 members.

"At the first, when we had national conventions, the main attraction was a dance. It was quite a lift to walk up to somebody smaller than you and ask them for a dance," Kitchens said with a laugh.

"But we've graduated beyond just dances now. We have a lot of workshops where little people can find out how to handle some of the problems they come up against in a world made for big people."

NEEDS MORE MINORITIES

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A blitz advertising program to attract more women and minorities to the Los Angeles Police Department has brought on a fivefold increase in job inquiries this year, compared to the corresponding period in 1980. Under terms of a consent decree, the department was forced last November to increase its women and minority recruits.

Alleged Madam Says Publication Of Names Unfair

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — An attorney for accused brothel madam Theresa Brown considers the publication of 19 names from an alleged "trick list" of her customers as "viciously" unfair.

"She is terribly, terribly worried about the families of these poor men," Miss Brown's attorney, Pat Maloney Sr., said. "Theresa Brown is not a kiss-and-tell person. This is viciously and tragically unfair."

Maloney lashed out at publication of the 19 names by the monthly newspaper El Pueblo, but the columnist who said she gave the list to the newspaper said all 3,000 names should be published.

In fact, Armandina Saldivar was threatening Monday to publicly burn the index cards from which the list was made, if the rest of the names are not printed.

"There are much more important names," Mrs. Saldivar said.

Mrs. Saldivar said she would ask El Pueblo's 42-member editorial board to publish all the names. The board was scheduled to meet this week and determine whether to publish any additional names after limiting the first publication to 19 of the most well known names on advice of its attorney, Jesse Botello.

"If they do not, I will ask for the box of index cards back, and if I can't get it published somewhere else, I will burn it publicly," said Mrs. Saldivar.

Of the 19 people whose names El Pueblo published Friday — in 40,000 copies which sold "like hotcakes" — only two have made public statements.

Dr. William Elizondo, president of the San Antonio School District, told a PTA dinner Friday night that his name was listed in the paper.

"It's unfortunate he (Elizondo) used the PTA for his own political means," said Charlotte Travis, outgoing PTA president after Elizondo received loud applause by announcing his name was in the newspaper. "I guess he thought his announcement would deflate the balloon before it blew up in his face." Elizondo was not available to comment.

And attorney Jack Pytel, attorney for city councilman Gene Canavan, said his client may sue El Pueblo for libel.

Haynes Defends Remarks During Hearing

ANAHUAC (AP) — Houston attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes said he was not being frivolous when he asked in open court whether former Texas House Speaker Price Daniel Jr., killed by his wife last month, used marijuana and preferred the company of young boys.

Haynes raised the questions during a pretrial hearing Monday in a lawsuit Daniel's sister, Jean Daniel Murph, has filed seeking custody of Daniel's two small children, Franklin Baldwin Daniel, 3, and Marion Price Daniel, 11.

Haynes represents Daniel's widow, Vickie, 33, charged with murdering her husband in their spacious, ranch-style home near Liberty last Jan. 19. She has admitted shooting him with a rifle but said it was self-defense.

Mrs. Murph filed the custody suit claiming her sister-in-law is not a fit mother, and testified that Mrs. Daniel had paid for mental counseling last April.

"She told me she was mixed up and Price had suggested it," Mrs. Murph told the court during cross-examination by Haynes.

The attorney then broke in to ask if Mrs. Daniel ever confided in her about problems involving marijuana or "young boys ... bringing black boys around who stayed there."

Mrs. Murph denied any knowledge of such information and presiding judge W.G. "Dub" Wood ordered Haynes to abandon that line of questioning after Mrs. Murph's attorney, J.C. "Zeke" Zbrank, objected strenuously.

However, Haynes later told reporters he had a serious purpose in mind and was not just questioning Mrs. Murph at random. He refused to elaborate.

During further cross-examination, Haynes asked Mrs. Murph if she knew whether Daniel had "compelled" his wife to have an abortion.

She replied Mrs. Daniel had told her she had undergone an abortion but that it had "killed Price."

Wounded Police Officer Critical

DALLAS (UPI) — A police officer, shot in the head by a nude man at a White Rock Lake parking lot, was in critical condition early today.

A spokesman at Presbyterian Hospital described officer John McCarthy's condition as critical. The 24-year-old patrolman was shot shortly after 2 a.m. Monday.

Police charged Stephen Ray Nethrey, 20, of Richardson, with attempted capital murder. He was being held on $200,000 bond on the attempted murder charge and $50,000 bond stemming from an arrest warrant charging robbery which had been issued prior to the shooting.

A woman found topless in his car was facing drug charges and may also be charged with attempted capital murder, police spokesman Bob Shaw.

Officers said they were investigating claims by the woman that she was being raped by Nethrey when McCarthy and partner Philip L. Brown approached Nethrey's parked car.

Police said the officers approached the car and found the woman, wearing only pants, lying across the front seat with Nethrey sitting nude. They advised the couple to leave.

day and charged with the shooting death of Gloria Gonzales, 14, who lived in nearby Potet.

Sheriff's officers said Miss Gonzales was shot by a man firing a 22-caliber rifle outside a tavern. The girl had been visiting her aunt and uncle in San Antonio.

Witnesses told investigators they saw a man carrying two rifles run from the scene of the shooting.

Lt. Ray Paer said the suspect told officers that "he was ordered by God to do this work" and that he had "five more to go" to complete his assignment.

Paer also quoted the suspect as saying, "The Martians made me do it."

Three Killed

BRENNHAM (AP) — Three people have died of injuries they received in a head-on collision on Loop 290 West in Brenham Sunday night.

Dead at the scene was Richard A. Abasta, 18, an enlisted man at Fort Hood. He was the driver of a 1975 Ford Pinto westbound on 290 when it crossed the median and collided head-on with a 1978 Ford Fiesta driven by Bill Elbert Zimmer, 59, of Houston.

Zimmer was taken by ambulance to Bohne Memorial Hospital in Brenham, where he died a short time later. His wife, Helen, 57, was taken to the hospital

Lubbock Woman Says Occupants Of Passing Auto Fired Shots

Lubbock police were told Monday an 18-year-old woman was shot by a passing motorist, who apparently was armed with a BB gun.

Wendy Stewart said she was standing on the sidewalk near 41st Street and Orlando Avenue about 4:30 p.m. when she was hit in the stomach. Miss Stewart suffered a red welt, but was not seriously hurt.

The woman's younger brother, who was standing near his sister, told police the shot came from a brown car occupied by two young, white males. The pair drove off after the pellet hit Miss Stewart.

A 5-year-old boy, Cory Menton, was seriously wounded by a shotgun blast Feb. 12 when he was shot by man who drove past his parents' car on the Clovis Road. However, that gunman's vehicle was described as a gold or brown pickup.

The child is recovering well and is expected to leave Lubbock General Hospital soon, according to the father, Judge Menton Jr.

In other activity, B. David Gentry of 2104 Elgin Ave. told police he discovered a $7,950 gold Rolex watch missing from his residence about 3 p.m. Monday. Gentry said he suspects the expensive watch may have been stolen about seven months ago when workmen were in his house.

Assorted clothing valued at $2,819 was stolen during the weekend from a building at 2148 19th St., according to Lubbock police.

Owner P.W. Quinn told police the building was burglarized between 3:30 p.m. Saturday and 9:30 a.m. Monday. The intruders entered through a window at the rear of the structure, reports show.

The missing items include 18 pairs of woman's slacks, 48 pairs of blue jeans and 20 pairs of boots, police said.

In another weekend business burglary, a 1974 Chevrolet Blazer was stolen from a fenced parking lot at Strong Paving, 2206 Clovis Road, police said.

After unsuccessfully attempting to drive the four-wheel-drive vehicle through a gate, the thief backed up and drove through a portion of the fence, reports show.

The intruder also entered the shop area through a hole in an overhead door, but employees found nothing missing from inside the building.

The total loss, including the stolen vehicle and damage to the fence and building, was estimated at $2,625, police said.

The break-in occurred between 2 p.m. Sunday and 8 a.m. Monday, reports show.

A 1975 BMW motorcycle belonging to Bradley David Swenson, 3208 Ave. B, was stripped of numerous parts late Sunday night or early Monday morning, police said.

The cycle was stripped while parked in front of Swenson's mobile home. The loss was estimated at $800.

Police said the entire motorcycle probably would have been stolen if it had not been chained.

A tool box containing assorted tools was stolen Thursday from the rear of Mike Lynn Taylor's pickup truck, police said. The theft was not reported until Monday.

Taylor said the vehicle was parked at a West 34th Street nightclub from 5 to 6:30 p.m. when the theft apparently occurred. The missing tools were valued at $1,026.

Commissioners Postpone Decision On Radar Units

County commissioners Monday postponed a decision on a request to purchase nine new radar units for the Department of Public Safety here despite claims the equipment could increase the revenue the county receives on speeding ticket fines.

According to Commissioner Coy Biggs, state officials may be willing to pick up the tab for the radar equipment.

DPS Sgt. Danny Smith noted that the highway patrol here is using four county-owned radar units. But he said all of those units are "about worn out" and frequently are in the shop for repairs.

According to Smith, approximately 90 percent of the counties in the Panhandle purchase the radar units used by DPS.

But Brazell and Biggs maintained that the equipment should be furnished by the state.

Biggs said he discussed the equipment need with Gov. Bill Clements during a statewide meeting of county officials last week at Texas A&M University. Clements indicated during that discussion that he would be in favor of the state supplying the radar units, Biggs added.

"Before we buy any more units, I think we should find out how serious the State of Texas is about buying more units," Brazell said.

The total cost for buying the nine radar units requested would be around $25,000. Even if the state is unwilling to purchase the equipment, Biggs said he would favor the county buying only four units.

In other business Monday, commissioners instructed Arnold Maeker, supervisor on the jail construction project, to correct the numbering sequence on all control panels in the detention facility.

Brazell noted during a tour of the jail that the control panels were not uniform in their numbering systems. The lack of uniformity could cause confusion for jailers, he said.

Ex-Aides Plan Mini-Series

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (UPI) — Former White House aides Gerald Rafshoon and Hamilton Jordan are making a six-hour TV drama about the Iranian crisis, including the negotiations to release the American hostages.

Jordan, former White House Chief of Staff, will research and write the CBS-TV mini-series. Other writers will hone the final screenplay, said Rafshoon, former President Carter's media adviser.

"This will not just be a story on the hostage crisis," Rafshoon said. "The origin of the crisis, the reasons for the shah's fall, the rise of Khomeini and the historical factors that led to the seizure of the u.s. embassy in Tehran will all be included."

Rafshoon said the series, which will air during the 1982-83 television season, will be "factual" and will draw from his and Jordan's experiences during their White House years.

Rafshoon said the story would not be slanted to place Carter and his top advisers in a favorable light.

Firm Awarded MX Contract

WASHINGTON (AP) — A San Francisco company has been awarded an $11.8 million contract to begin planning for operating bases at seven sites being considered for use in the proposed MX mobile missile system.

EDAW Inc. has been given a 15-month contract to assess the housing, utility, road and building needs for bases in the prospective areas and the effect the bases would have on the communities and environment, the Air Force said this week.

The Air Force said planning is to begin immediately in Beryl, Utah, Milford, Utah; Coyote Spring Valley, Nev.; and Clovis, N.M.; and later in Ely, Nev.; Delta, Utah; and Dalhart.

The Air Force has proposed that the MX system be located in Nevada and Utah, and a plan approved by the Carter administration calls for deploying 200 MX mobile missiles among 4,600 shelters spread throughout desert valleys in Utah and Nevada.

The Reagan administration has indicated it is considering alternatives, including basing MX missiles at sea. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger says a review of MX basing operations should be finished by summer.

Artificial Heart Surgery On Calf Deemed Success

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Scientists who successfully removed an artificial heart from a calf and replaced it with another calf's heart say human patients could one day receive artificial hearts while awaiting transplants.

University of Utah researchers say they hope they will some day implant an artificial heart in a human. A university committee has approved such a plan but the proposal is awaiting a go-ahead from the federal Food and Drug Administration.

Dr. Don Olsen, director of the university's artificial-heart research laboratory, announced Monday that researchers implanted an artificial heart in a calf, then replaced it with a natural calf heart — the first time a natural heart has been successfully transplanted in a growing animal, rather than an adult.

Olsen said Fernando, a 7½-month-old Jersey calf, has lived with the natural heart of his brother, Ricardo, for 94 days. Fernando previously lived with an artificial heart for 44 days, Olsen said.

Tennyson, a calf that lived a record 267 days with an artificial heart, was destroyed two weeks ago after antibiotics failed to clear up an infection. Doctors had hoped to replace Tennyson's air-driven, polyurethane heart with the natural heart of his twin.

Judge In Harris Trial Will Not Press Jurors

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — Jurors in Jean Harris' murder trial began their second week of deliberation today, and the judge said he had no thought of pressuring the panel to reach a verdict.

"There's no such thought in my mind at this time," Westchester County Judge Russell R. Leggett said when asked whether he intended press the panel for a decision on whether Mrs. Harris intentionally killed Scarsdale Diet doctor Herman Tarnower.

During a brief appearance in the press room at the county courthouse, Leggett was besieged by reporters who asked also about the possibility of a mistrial if the panel was unable to reach a verdict.

"I'm not even going to discuss it," he said.

On Monday, the eight women and four men of the jury, for a second day in a row, sent no word out of the jury room that offered any hint of how the deliberation was progressing. They spent 40 hours and 36 minutes in session during the first seven days.

Mrs. Harris spent Monday waiting with her brother and sister at an undisclosed site away from the courthouse.

Defense lawyer Joel Aurnou spent Monday pacing in the 10th floor corridor outside the jury room and chain-smoking cigars while Assistant District Attorney George Bolen waited in his third-floor office.

"I don't want you to think this has affected my nerves," Aurnou said as he lit another stogie. "Somewhere in the bowels of this building there is a prosecutor who feels the same way, but not as much, because if he loses nobody goes anywhere."

The second-degree murder charge against the 57-year-old former school headmistress carries a mandatory prison term of 15 years to life. In New York, charges of first-degree murder are applied only in cases involving slayings of law officers.

Three times since getting the case, the jury has asked Leggett for clarification.

workers that their forms contain false information, Walter Dunningan, an IRS spokesman said, adding that many workers already have corrected their exemption levels.

The IRS gives workers two weeks to change their forms. If the forms are not corrected, the IRS tells employers to begin deducting taxes with no exemptions.

The revolt began last year when word swept down an assembly line at a General Motors Corp. plant in Flint about a tax-fighting organization called We the People ACT.

The group charges a fee for providing information on ways it contends a person can stop paying taxes legally. Much of the information concerns filling out W-4 forms which employers use to compute taxes withheld from paychecks.

The IRS learned of the protest last fall when GM, as required by law, reported that a number of workers were making drastic changes on W-4 forms.

Bill Hughes, a spokesman for ACT, agrees with the IRS that the workers in Flint went too far and are headed for problems.

Hughes, a Burroughs Corp. field engineer, refused to discuss how the Flint workers should have filed the forms. He explained that a person cannot simply change his tax form and expect it to get past the IRS.

ACT, based in nearby Pontiac, claims a membership of 700 in Michigan. It was established in January 1980 to protest the way people are taxed in the United States, Hughes said.

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — A scheme by about 3,500 auto workers to cut the amount of taxes withheld from their paychecks could result in more being taken out, tax authorities say.

And officials of the Internal Revenue Service, who call the tax revolt one of the nation's largest, warn that participants could face criminal prosecution or civil penalties if they persist in such dodges as claiming up to 99 dependents.

The auto workers apparently believe that if they claim enough deductions for dependents, no taxes will be withheld and they won't owe the government anything, authorities say.

But the state has joined the IRS in combating attempts to overstate deductions.

"We're on top of that thing," Sydney Goodman, Michigan revenue commissioner, said Monday.

However, he said the anti-tax movement "seems to be snowballing."

Goodman said the state combats overstating of exemptions by requiring employers to notify it of workers claiming more than nine exemptions. If it appears the worker is overstating, the state gives him a chance to correct it. If the worker does not, the state tells the employer to allow no deductions, which results in the maximum amount of taxes withheld, he said.

"We have a little teeth," Goodman said. "It's worked in the past. We've nipped it in the bud."

Officials Test Families For Poison

HUDSON, N.H. (AP) — Mothers paced the cavernous hall of the Lions Club here and coaxed their infants to produce urine samples as medical detectives began testing 100 newborns and their families for arsenic contamination.

Meanwhile, federal water quality investigators continued the hunt for the source of the arsenic, which has been found in private wells in 11 New Hampshire and Massachusetts communities.

"We're going to examine every possible source there is for arsenic but that's a very long list," Jerry Healey, regional chief of water quality for the Environmental Protection Agency, said Monday.

"I don't know how long that will take because we've never done anything this complex before."

Arsenic first was reported in private wells in Hudson, a community of 14,000 people on the Massachusetts border, after a doctor's son came down with symptoms of arsenic poisoning. Arsenic was subsequently found in the wells of eight other New Hampshire communities and two Massachusetts towns.

While the EPA searches for the source of the arsenic, investigators from the national Centers for Disease Control are trying to pin down the health effects by tracking the 100 families.

Interviewers from the state public health department and CDC fanned out across Hudson urging parents to complete a six-page questionnaire on the family's medical problems.

Babies born in Hudson last year were brought to the Lion's Club, where urine samples were taken from them, their siblings up to age 3 and their mothers.

Dr. Peter Drotman of CDC said the urine samples and questionnaires would be assembled by week's end and sent to CDC laboratories in Atlanta for two months' evaluation.

Interest Rate Drop Aids Stock Mart

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market gained more ground today, aided by declining interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up 9.14 on Monday, rose 1.83 to 947.06 by noontime.

Gainers outnumbered losers by close to a 2-1 margin in the midday tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

More banks today joined in a recent move to cut the prime lending rate to the 18 1/2 percent range.

There were forecasts that the basic rate on large loans could continue falling to about 17 percent in the next few weeks, and that the Federal Reserve might soon remove a special surcharge of 3 percent that has imposed on the discount rate.

At the government's latest auction, yields on six-month Treasury bills fell to 14.1 percent from just under 15.5 percent a week earlier.

George McKinney, economist at New York's Irving Trust Co., predicted today that short-term interest rates would drop below 10 percent by yearend.

GK Technologies climbed 4 1/4 to 48 1/4. The company's directors approved a $50-a-share takeover bid by Penn Central Corp.

The NYSE's composite index gained 18 to 73.02. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 2.37 at 334.36.

Volume on the Big Board reached 19.31 million shares by noontime, up from 15.06 million at the same point Monday.

GM Orders Recall To Replace Bolts

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors is ordering the second largest recall in auto industry history, involving 6.4 million mid-sized cars and trucks made since 1978, because of two defective bolts that could send vehicles out of control.

GM Monday announced the recall to replace defective rear suspension bolts linked to 27 accidents and 22 minor injuries.

Vehicles included in the recall all are the company's mid-sized cars built in 1978, 1979, 1980 and early in the 1981 model run. Nameplates include the Chevrolet Malibu, Monte Carlo and E Camino; Pontiac LeMans and Grand Prix; Oldsmobile Cutlass; Buick Century and Regal, and GMC Truck & Coach Division Caballero models.

In magnitude, the recall is second only to GM's 1971 recall of 6.7 million cars because of defective engine mounts.

GM and the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration agreed the action was voluntary. A NHTSA spokesman said the agency didn't know the defect was under investigation until GM announced the recall.

The defective bolts are used to attach two lower rear suspension control arms to the frame of the vehicle. GM said its investigation showed the bolts could corrode and fracture.

"A fracture of the bolt on either rear control arm would allow the arm to drop free," the company said in a statement. "If that happens while the vehicle is in motion, a loss of control could result without prior warning."

The company said it will begin notifying owners by mail March 9 at the rate of 200,000 a day.

Investors In Airline Issued TIA Warning

HOUSTON (UPI) — Texas International Airlines, trying to buy control of Continental Airlines, today warned Continental stockholders their management was ignoring their "best interests" in fighting Texas International's bid.

In a letter to Continental shareholders, Texas International accused Continental management of scheduling a March 12 vote on a proposed merger with Western Airlines to try to rush a shareholders' decision and block a Texas International offer of $13 a share to gain 49 percent of the company.

"The management of your company has attempted to short-circuit the time available to you for making a decision on our tender offer," the Texas International letter mailed over night said.

"Do not allow the management of Continental to rush your vote on the Western merger proposal. We do not think (it) is in Continental's best interests or in your best interests as a Continental stockholder."

The letter said Texas International was sending proxy materials to Continental stockholders of record Feb. 20, the deadline Continental management set for eligibility to vote on the Western merger.

Texas International has asked the Civil Aeronautics Board to approve a voting trust that would give shares held by Texas International against the proposed Continental-Western merger. Informed observers say 49 percent could be enough to block the merger.

The directors of Los Angeles-based Continental have rejected the Houston-based regional carrier's $13 a share offer as "grossly inadequate" and have pressed plans to merge with Western.

The Continental board has asked the CAB to block Texas International's purchase of its stock on grounds it violates the federal aviation law.

Texas International claimed Monday it had amassed 9.5 percent of Continental's stock and had offers of stock raising its possible share to 35 percent when the purchases are consummated March 7.

Texas International at the same time announced it was expanding its original offer to buy stock from 4 million to 6 million shares. Continental has 15.3 million shares of stock outstanding and held by 32,290 stockholders.

Possible Delay Seen In AT&T Agreement

WASHINGTON (AP) — One month after confidently predicting an agreement could be reached, the Justice Department says it cannot meet a federal judge's March 2 deadline for settling a massive antitrust suit against American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

If U.S. District Judge Harold H. Greene sticks by his previous warning that he will not approve additional delays, the Justice Department announcement would mean trial of the case would resume March 4.

Assistant Attorney General Sanford M. Litvack, a Carter appointee who will leave his post as chief of the antitrust division next week, told the judge in a letter Monday that even if an agreement could be reached, the Reagan administration has concluded it would not have enough time to review it by March 2.

There was no immediate response from the judge.

The Justice Department letter was quickly applauded by some of AT&T's competitors, who claimed the prosecutors were preparing to give away too much.

Citibank Lowers Prime Rate

NEW YORK (AP) — Citibank, the nation's second-largest commercial bank, today cut its prime lending rate to 19 percent from 19.5 percent, joining most other major banks and failing to match the industry low.

The prime lending rate has dropped as low as 18.5 percent at some of the nation's banks amid a weakening in demand for business loans. And bank officials and economists predict further rate reductions in coming days.

"The trend definitely is downward," said Rachel Balbach, a vice president and chief economist at First National Bank in St. Louis, which was among banks that cut their rates one-half percentage point Monday to 19 percent.

Continental Illinois National Bank & Trust Co., the nation's 7th-largest commercial bank, was the only one of the 20 largest banks to post an 18.5 percent prime. It trimmed its rate a full percentage point, and some smaller banks matched the rate.

Certificate Interest Drops

WASHINGTON (AP) — The top interest rate consumers may receive on six-month money-market certificates offered by banks and thrift institutions has due to drop more than one percentage point as a result of this week's Treasury bill auction.

The rate on the savings certificates will fall to 13.861 percent beginning Thursday. The current ceiling on the $10,000-minimum-deposit certificates, which are linked to the 26-week Treasury bill rate, is 15.01 percent.

At Monday's auction, interest rates fell sharply after rising the past two weeks. The average rate on 26-week Treasury bills dropped to 13.611 percent from the 14.76 percent of Feb. 13, Treasury reported after its weekly auction. The new figure is the lowest since the 13.182 percent reported Jan. 5. The average rate on 13-week Treasury bills declined to 14.103 percent from 15.464 percent Feb. 13. The new level is the lowest since the 13.601 percent of Jan. 5.

Dollar Up; Gold Mixed

LONDON (AP) — The dollar strengthened against other major currencies in early trading today in Europe, including a sharp gain against the British pound. Gold prices were little changed.

After gaining about six cents against the pound on Monday, the dollar today added another 2-cent jump amid continued speculation that Great Britain's minimum lending rate would be trimmed next month from its current 14 percent level.

The pound had fallen to $2.2345 at mid-morning, compared with $2.2582 on Monday.

Lower interest rates in Europe, relative to rates in the United States, make dollar-denominated holdings more attractive, thus boosting demand for the U.S. currency.

Here's how the dollar was faring against other currencies at mid-morning, compared with Monday's closing rates: 2.1260 German marks, up from 2.1160; 1.925 Swiss francs, up from 1.9075; 4.9750 French francs, up from 4.9285; 2.3300 Dutch guilders, up from 2.3100; 1.019.50 Italian lire, up from 1.0100.

Earlier, in Tokyo, the dollar rose to 208.35 Japanese yen from Monday's closing rate of 206.70.

Gold prices showed little change. In London, gold was fixed at a recommended $503.75 an ounce, up from $503 at the close of trading on Monday.

In Zurich, gold opened at $503.50 an ounce, down from $504.50 on Monday.

The Hong Kong gold price fell almost $12 an ounce to $499.84 from Monday's $511.82. Gold had dipped below the $500-an-ounce level in New York on Monday to close at $498 an ounce on the Commodity Exchange Inc., down $8.50.

Silver's early price in London was $13.44 an ounce, up 54 cents from Monday. In New York on Monday, silver for current delivery fell 26 cents to $12.86 an ounce on the Commodity Exchange.

Liquid Antacid More Effective Than Tablet Form

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB — My doctor has me on Maalox for stomach acid. He insists that I take the liquid but it is very expensive, as well as inconvenient to lug a bottle with me all the time. I would prefer to take tablets. Couldn't I just take baking soda and save money? I see ads on TV about various tablets people can take to control acid indigestion. Why can't I take one of those?

DEAR READER — Sounds like you have a good doctor. The reason he wants you to take a liquid instead of tablets is because studies have shown that a liquid preparation is about three times as effective as tablets. There are Maalox tablets but that is why he wants you to take the liquid.

Now, not all antacid preparations are equally effective, and they do contain different ingredients. Aluminum hydroxide is very good but it tends to cause constipation. Magnesium hydroxide has the opposite action. So a combination of aluminum hydroxide and magnesium hydroxide is often used; that is what your liquid Maalox contains.

I have listed the main ingredients in many of the common antacids in a table in The Health Letter number 10-4, Use and Abuse of Antacids, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of The Avalanche Journal, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. It includes the basic principles of using antacids that you need to know. Some of the antacids, including those you see advertised on TV, are effective for temporary relief, but for long-term treatment you need to be under a doctor's care. And forget about baking soda. It was used before we had better medicines. The modern antacids are not absorbed but neutralize the acid in your digestive system. The sodium bicarbonate in baking soda is absorbed into your bloodstream. This can cause serious medical complications if the practice is abused. Also, the carbonate releases gas in your stomach which may make matters worse.

Keystone Kops Serve As Disney's Police

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — They greet bad guys with grins, not guns. Yet Disneyland's frontier marshals and Keystone Kops make as many real drug-related arrests as Anaheim police, those officers say.

When Walt Disney first opened the park 25 years ago, he said he didn't want armed or uniformed policemen spoiling the carefully crafted atmosphere of a perpetually carefree, crime-free world. He didn't want security to become an issue, so park officials won't even talk about it.

But if security is silent on the squeaky-clean streets of Disneyland, park guards and Anaheim police alike say it's anything but "Mickey Mouse."

An average of 60,000 people visit Disneyland daily, and there are more drunks, drug abusers and shoplifters to cool off than the Anaheim Police Department handles, Anaheim officers say. But in interviews with the Los Angeles Times, none of the Anaheim officers or Disney security officers were willing to be quoted by name.

Occasionally there are even gang run-ins inside the Magic Kingdom. When that happens — and it is rare — the security officers say force is applied quickly and massively, with nearly every male employee called to the scene.

"We are usually not outnumbered," remarked one of the officers.

There are 42 full-time and 106 part-time officers on the Disneyland force.

Instead of uniforms, guards wear costumes that blend in with Disneyland's theme areas — Frontierland, Fantasyland, Tomorrowland, Adventureland and Main Street USA.

Instead of formal police training, they are given a brief orientation over three to four days on how the park operates and what is expected of them in various situations. They are told to be polite even to potential assailants and yet to act decisively if the family atmosphere of the park is threatened.

As a result, they have become a curious combination of tour guide and trooper, picturesque like the bobbies of Britain. In fact, a top Scotland Yard officer praised the force following a recent visit.

The guards employ a sophisticated array of subterfuge, psychology and occasionally brawn. One officer recalled noticing a recent gathering of youths that had the makings of gang trouble and, approaching them unarmed, he casually remarked: "I hope you gentlemen are enjoying your evening."

He gently reminded them of Disney rules against large groups congregating, and said they would be asked to leave if they did not disperse. With just a few mutterings, the group broke up quietly.

"It's the atmosphere of the park that helps us," said one former security supervisor. "It's a different world, our turf. We don't confront people, and somehow it works."

Fire Destroys Fresh Seafood

LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — Officials said it was the biggest fish fry this side of the Great Lakes. But the morsels of fish, lobster, crab and shrimp went untested.

The problem was that the hundreds of pounds of fresh seafood all went up in smoke in a fire that caused an estimated $100,000 damages.

A fire erupted at the City Fish Co. — a restaurant and fish market that's a favorite dining spot for many state lawmakers — gutting the two-story building.

No one was in the building at the time of the fire.

Firefighters noted that the building was just a few blocks away from the state Capitol in downtown Lansing. A law passed by many of the legislators who frequent the restaurant requires that even the fish not fried in the fire must be destroyed.

The law requires the elimination of any perishable food that comes in contact with smoke and flames.

"You can't even give the rest of that seafood away," Roger Wolcott, a Lansing firefighter said.

Governors Back Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's governors gave a bipartisan endorsement today to President Reagan's economic recovery fight, but told him at the same time they can bear their share of budget cuts only if relief is granted from federal laws dictating such things as how much health and welfare aid they give the poor.

"We share with the administration the belief that federal expenditures must be brought under control, and we are prepared to accept budget cuts," the governors said in a resolution formally adopted at the closing session of their winter meeting.

"Firm short-range measures are required to put the economy back on track," the resolution also said.

But the resolution adopted by the National Governors' Association also included a pledge to "vigorously oppose any attempt to shift costs to state and local taxpayers" or an attempt to put any "unfair and disproportionate burden on the poor."

That language had been proposed by California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr.

Reagan on Monday told the governors he would fight any such shifting of costs.

Specifically, the governors asked for flexibility under federal laws and regulations to deal with the cuts they face in federal aid and time to make the adjustments.

Reagan's economic measures disclosed so far would cut government spending for the states by about $1.3 billion in the current fiscal year and by $12.5 billion in fiscal 1982.

To support that, the draft resolution said, Reagan must meet certain conditions, including sufficient lead time to allow them to adjust to the cuts and immediate flexibility in administering federal programs once the cuts are made.

Some states already are drafting their own fiscal 1982 budgets with no definite idea of what will be in Reagan's detailed spending blueprint, which is due March 10. Even when the states know the full extent of Reagan's austerity measures, it will take them a year or more to adjust their own finances, most governors agree.

The draft resolution began circulating after 49 of the governors met with Reagan for more than an hour of some heavy give-and-take.

Afterward, Gov. George Busbee of Georgia, the association chairman, told reporters the governors feel Reagan "is trying to deal forthrightly with our economic problems and ... the governors support him in that effort."

"The budget cuts the president is recommending will cause difficulties for state and local governments, but many of these cuts can be absorbed if we are given sufficient time and flexibility to adjust," Busbee said.

"But the cuts are, in my opinion, totally unacceptable if flexibility and release from mandates do not arrive simultaneously," he added. "We cannot have the cuts today and the flexibility to adjust to these cuts at some vague point in the future."

Virginia Gov. John Dalton, president of the Republican Governors' Association, said, "By and large the governors felt that the program that (Reagan) had submitted was one that they wanted to work with him on."

"They did have an admonition to him that they wanted him to be certain that if he was going to turn programs back to the governors and to the states that the laws in Washington were changed so that we would have the flexibility that we needed to deal with the issues," Dalton said.

Another key demand backed by most governors is that Washington take over completely such programs as welfare and Medicaid health care for the poor, while giving states, cities and counties total responsibility for law enforcement, transportation and education.

Reagan proposes a 5 percent cap on future increases in the federal share of the cost of Medicaid, a state-run health care program.

Police Gain Support Of Khomeini

By United Press International

Iran's religious leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini said internal clashes between "troublemakers" were weakening the nation and urged police to use their full authority to prevent disorder.

Khomeini Monday told police officers at a Tehran mosque the country needed to maintain order in the cities.

"The people are on your side," Khomeini said in a speech broadcast on Tehran radio and monitored in London.

"With the people's support you can stop these occasional troubles, first by advice or otherwise by force."

Confrontation between certain groups, particularly armed groups, military and security groups, will cause great trouble, will cause unity to be lost, and once unity is gone there will certainly be harm," Khomeini said.

Legislator Offering Bill To Build Prison Units

AUSTIN (UPI) — Rep. Rodney Tow, D-Conroe, said today he has introduced a bill to alleviate overcrowding in Texas prisons by providing $35 million for the construction of three new prison units this year.

Tow said the three prison units would be located at existing prison sites. His bill would provide 2,880 new beds that could be occupied by Nov. 15.

The freshman legislator's bill was originally asked for by Gov. Bill Clements, who two weeks ago said the Legislature needed to make the $35 million emergency appropriation for construction of the three prison units.

Tow said that the three new units, combined with the construction of prisons already under way, could solve the overcrowding problem in three years.

In other legislative action, a controversial bill prohibiting the state from deducting union dues or other checkoffs from state employees' paychecks has passed its first Senate test over the objection of liberal leaders, but requires one more vote before going to the House.

The Senate tentatively approved the bill by Sen. O.H. Harris, R-Dallas, on a 20-8 vote Monday, but Harris obviously did not have the necessary four-fifths majority vote needed to suspend rules and finally pass the proposal.

"There is no good reason to pass this bill other than to show how bad you hate labor folks," argued Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur. "It's not hurting anything. What can you hurt by allowing somebody to sign a card and say 'take this out of my paycheck'?"

Harris' proposal also would prohibit other deductions from state workers' checks such as bond purchases or contributions to charitable organizations without the specific approval of the Legislature.

Sen. John Leedom, R-Dallas, said state employees in his district support the proposal, and need it to help them resist "the pressures they yield to in a meeting when somebody passes something around and says, 'sign this'."

"I've been listening all my life to Republican fat cats say what's good for working people," Parker replied. "You probably really believe you know what's best for them. But let's let them make up their own minds."

American Airlines Sets Service Here

been determined, but Griffith said American will stay competitive in the pricing market.

In response to a question about competition with Southwest Airlines, Griffith said, "We're basically after a different traffic than Southwest. They're more interested in the local market."

Griffith said American Airlines, in contrast, is interested in the passenger from Lubbock who wants to fly to New York, the Caribbean or other long-haul points. By flying American, long-haul passengers could eliminate having to change airlines and terminals at the Dallas-Fort Worth Airport, he said.

Among the major cities American will link with Lubbock, via DFW, are New York, Chicago, Detroit, Miami, St. Louis, Las Vegas, New Orleans, Los Angeles, San Francisco, San Diego, Mexico City, Honolulu, Washington, D.C., Montreal and Toronto.

The airline feels Lubbock is a growing area that holds potential for substantial traffic for American Airlines, Griffith said. American has moved slowly in expanding into additional cities, wanting to be sure of the city's potential before moving in, he said, adding that American has not withdrawn from any city it entered since the government deregulation in 1978.

American will add a total of 180 flights daily out of Dallas this summer, Griffith said, making Dallas the largest hub in the American system and surpassing Chicago.

The airline moved its base of operations from New York City to Dallas in August 1979 because it felt there was more activity in the Southwest than in the Northeast. In the last couple of years, American officials evaluated expansion and felt the need to build the airline into a major Texas carrier, he said.

The decision to enter the Lubbock market was made in part due to the initiative of some of the people in Lubbock, including those from the Mayor's Office and the Chamber of Commerce, Griffith said.

Lee Stafford, president of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce, said the attempt to bring American to Lubbock began about 2½ years ago when he, chamber manager John Logan, then-city councilwoman Carolyn Jordan, Lubbock airport manager Marvin Coffee and George Miller of the chamber's aviation committee traveled to New York to call on airline officials.

They politely declined at that time to extend service to Lubbock, Stafford said.

Then several months ago, American filed for possible expansion into Lubbock and eight other cities. At that time, Stafford and Logan went to Dallas to ask Griffith to consider Lubbock as their top priority, Stafford said, and they later brought him to Lubbock to show him around the city.

Griffith told The A-J that when the airline filed for the nine points, they didn't necessarily expect to enter any of them. The Lubbock chamber was the only chamber of commerce to lobby with the airline, he said.

Other airlines now serving the city are Braniff, Continental, Southwest and Texas International.

The addition of American is expected to give a sizable boost to Lubbock International Airport's passenger boardings, which totaled 455,925 in 1980 and 490,451 in 1979.

U.S. May Expand Efforts In El Salvador

by the United States against the Havana government.

Some officials speculate that Cuba and other countries have curbed arms deliveries in recent weeks out of fear the United States may respond with military force.

But others say the cessation may simply be a sign that the Salvadoran insurgents have enough weaponry for the time being.

Either way, acting assistant secretary of state John Bushnell said Monday, the American response to alleged Soviet-bloc support of the Salvadoran insurgents will depend on whether the weapons shipments are resumed.

Captured documents released Monday by the State Department say nearly 200 tons of arms and other equipment were sent to the Salvadoran guerrillas late last year for use against the U.S.-backed government in a military offensive that got under way in January.

The information was contained in an inch-thick compilation of battle plans, letters and reports of meetings and travels which the Reagan administration said was proof of "indirect armed aggression" by the Soviet bloc in El Salvador.

The State Department said the evidence demonstrates that Cuba and the Soviet Union are engaged in "a well-coordinated covert effort to bring about the overthrow of El Salvador's established government and to impose in its place a communist regime with no popular support."

"We have clear evidence of catching the communists' hands in the cookie jar," said White House press secretary James S. Brady.

The documents were said to have been captured during raids on guerrilla hideouts by Salvadoran security forces in November and January.

A State Department summary said Vietnam, Ethiopia and other communist countries pledged 800 tons of "the most modern weapons and equipment" to the Salvadoran rebels.

The material was released to lay the groundwork for U.S. efforts to assist the government of El Salvador.

"We hope the knowledge of it (the communist support) will contribute to the cessation of it," Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. said.

Haig said the outside infiltration represents a "very ominous turn," but he refused to discuss specific retaliatory options being considered.

The day before, presidential counselor Edwin Meese III called direct action against Cuba "entirely possible" and said the administration would not rule out a blockade of Cuba if the arms shipments continued.

The Boston Globe reported today the administration is considering using ships

Local Law Firm Challenges Ban

the Ticket Clinic being able to try those cases within an orderly time period becomes more and more remote with each new batch of cases the Ticket Clinic bonds," Puryear wrote.

"The Ticket Clinic is overloading the court's docket with more cases than the Ticket Clinic has shown an ability to try. The court, as of Feb. 20, will accept only the number of bonds that the Ticket Clinic has disposed of through trial, dismissal or plea. In other words, if you dispose of 20 bonds, the court will accept 20 new bonds."

"Hopefully, you may be able to alleviate the problem by hiring more counsel or settling more cases through timely DOC (defensive driving course) motions or other means."

Lubbock Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy sits on the 10-member Judicial Qualifications Committee, and he indicated today that the dispute could be complex to consider.

The commission met this month and will not meet again until late April or early May. In the meantime, LeCroy said, its staff will gather information for the members to consider when they meet.

"It would not be a removal case," LeCroy said. "We would determine if they (the court) were following the law, and if they were not following the law, we might suggest that they follow it."

He said, however, that the law pertaining to lawyers making bonds for clients is complicated, and he noted that a bill is pending in the state legislature to end the practice.

LeCroy added that the commission has never considered such a dispute since he has been a member.

Puryear described it as "a situation where the Ticket Clinic is setting more cases than we think they can try under the present state of conditions."

"They have just been providing one lawyer and have been setting more cases than one lawyer can handle," the judge said. "We feel like they ought to have the ability to try the number of cases they set."

Asked if it could be beyond his authority to issue such an order, he said, "If I thought it was, I wouldn't have taken that action."

Hale said the firm has been setting an average of eight to 10 cases per day and had been filing 10 to 15 per day until the order was received last week.

"It won't crimp a whole lot, but of course if our business expands, it will," Hale said.

He noted that the 1½-year-old firm filed about 4,000 cases last year and has a backlog of only about 400 now.

Handling cases referred from other Lubbock law firms and from walk-in customers, the office handles traffic cases for $45 on tickets issued by city police and $75 on tickets issued by the Department of Public Safety. There is an additional $10 fee for the filing of an appellate brief if the case is lost and then appealed to county court-at-law.

Hale claims the firm has been winning acquittals on 60 to 65 percent of the cases it takes to trial.

The clinic was established after municipal court became a court of record, thus requiring appeals to be based on court error, and became a greater potential burden to attorneys trying cases there.

Expanding over the state, the attorneys early this year opened "ticket clinics" in Amarillo, Dallas and Houston and are opening an office in San Antonio this week.

Wischkaemper said offices will be opened in Austin and El Paso in April and that Puryear is the only attorney or judge so far to complain.

Meningitis Hits Area

gious and requires the girl to be in an isolated room. Sharma said it is not as much of a danger as the highly infectious meningococcal variety reported in Houston.

Sharma said meningococcal is the only type in which a real outbreak is a threat.

Sharma said the 9-month-old boy was transferred to Lubbock General after a stay at a Plainview hospital for treatment of Hemophilus influenzae, an organism which causes influenza meningitis.

Sharma said the boy should be able to go home within a few days and does not require isolation. He said the Hemophilus variety occurs sporadically in children and should not be cause for fears of an epidemic.

Sharma said the variety diagnosed in the Levelland girl's case will require continued treatment at home after she is released.

Meningitis inflames brain and spinal membranes, with the meningococcal type being the most serious. Its death rate is said to be 50 percent unless the disease is diagnosed and treated early.

Health officials in Houston ran extensive tests on students in an elementary school classroom where an outbreak of that form appeared to be concentrated. Five pupils were determined to have been stricken, including a 12-year-old girl who died Jan. 31.

The Lubbock health department has reported no cases of the meningococcal variety here, nor have any of the seven hospitals in the city.

Sharma said the two children diagnosed with the other types were discovered at an early stage, prompting a more favorable condition for treatment.

Nebraska Farmer Wins Big Payoff

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A line of five 7s that rang up on a "Pot of Gold" machine gave a Nebraska farmer the biggest slot machine payoff in history — $345,000 — according to a spokesman at the Flamingo Hilton Hotel.

George Hotovy of David City, Neb., cashed in on the machine this week after only eight minutes of feeding it dollars, according to spokesman Paul Burt.

Burt said Hotovy planned to use part of his winnings to help a son buy a home.

Murder Defendant Wins Supreme Court Appeal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court, rejecting arguments a judge has become a "13th juror" in a murder trial, unanimously ruled today a defendant cannot be retried after a judge throws out his conviction due to insufficiency of evidence.

The justices, ruling 9-0, overturned a Louisiana Supreme Court decision upholding the first-degree murder conviction of Tracy Lee Hudson at his second trial.

Also today, the court unanimously ruled that a stricter Florida law on granting time off to prisoners for good behavior cannot be applied retroactively to inmates whose crime was committed before passage of the law.

"For prisoners who committed crimes before its enactment, (the law) substantially alters the consequences attached to a crime already completed and therefore changes the quantum of punishment," Justice Thurgood Marshall wrote for the court.

And, in a ruling of importance to commercial banking, the high court held 6-0 that bank holding companies may set up and manage closed-end investment funds. Rules allowing holding companies to form such funds were challenged by securities groups and operators of open-end — or mutual — funds.

In the Louisiana case, Hudson was convicted of murder at his first trial, but asked the trial judge to throw out the verdict and grant him a new trial on grounds of insufficient evidence.

Judge Enos McClendon agreed to reverse the jury's decision.

"How (the jury) concluded that this defendant committed the act from that evidence, when no weapon was produced, no proof of anyone who saw a blow struck, is beyond the court's comprehension," McClendon said.

At his second trial, prosecutors presented an eyewitness who had not testified at the first trial. Hudson again was found guilty of murder and Louisiana's top court affirmed the conviction.

Hudson appealed to the Supreme Court, claiming the second trial violated his constitutional protection against being tried twice for the same offense.

He contended the Constitution's double jeopardy clause bars a retrial "once the reviewing court has found the evidence legally insufficient to support the guilty verdict."

The state maintained the evidence presented at the first trial was sufficient to convict Hudson and that McClendon had improperly imposed himself in the case as a "13th juror."

Justice Lewis Powell, writing for the high court today, accepted Hudson's argument.

"The trial judge granted a new trial because the state had failed to prove its case as a matter of law, not merely because he, as a '13th juror,' would have decided it differently from the other 12 jurors," Powell wrote.

The justices rejected Louisiana's assertion that the trial judge granted Hudson a new trial only because the judge "entertained personal doubts" about the verdict.

Sister Claims Victim In Love With Suspect

Meiva Martinez Zamora wanted very much to marry the man later accused of killing her, the dead woman's sister testified today.

The state continued its case against Guadalupe Alberto Herrera, 22, today with testimony that Mrs. Zamora, 26, was in love with Herrera and would have liked to marry him.

But according to Mrs. Zamora's sister Olga Martinez Deanda, Herrera was seeing another woman as well as her sister, which made marriage impossible.

Herrera is accused of firing a single gunshot into Mrs. Zamora's chest July 18, 1980 in the woman's home. The murder victim's brother identified Herrera in court Monday as the man he found in his sister's apartment as she lay dying from the chest wound.

Mrs. Deanda told the 237th District court jury that she and Mrs. Zamora were very close and had often discussed their personal problems. Her sister had been dating Herrera for about a year, Mrs. Deanda testified.

The dead woman's sister testified that Mrs. Zamora was afraid of guns and never kept one in the house.

Mrs. Deanda described to the court how she found her sister after the woman had been shot. She knew Herrera had been at the house and the defendant was still in Mrs. Zamora's apartment when she and several other family members rushed in after the shooting.

She held her sister in her arms, she told the court, waiting for the ambulance to arrive. She recalled seeing Herrera and her brother-in-law fighting before Herrera fled the house.

Herrera was taken into custody when he turned himself in to sheriff's deputies several days after Mrs. Zamora's death. Herrera's car had been abandoned at Mrs. Zamora's home — the scene of the shooting — and was impounded after two witnesses told police Herrera was the man they found in Mrs. Zamora's apartment after the shooting.

Mrs. Zamora's 17-year-old brother, Roberto Martinez, told the jury Monday afternoon that his sister had been dating Herrera for several months before the shooting incident. He explained that he and several of his family members were visiting his brother-in-law's house, next door to Mrs. Zamora's apartment, the night of the shooting.

Mrs. Zamora and Herrera went into her apartment between 7 p.m. and 8 p.m., Martinez testified, and they stayed in the apartment for several hours.

When young Martinez stepped next door to his sister's apartment a little after 11 p.m., he saw Mrs. Zamora sitting with Herrera on the couch, he testified. The two apparently had been drinking beer and watching TV, the youngster told the court.

Martinez went back to his brother-in-law's apartment, he testified, where he stayed until he heard what sounded like a gunshot.

He and his brother-in-law ran to Mrs. Zamora's apartment, the youngster told the court, finding the young woman collapsed on the couch and barely breathing. Martinez pointed to Herrera as the man he saw standing in the doorway between the kitchen and living room of the small apartment.

Martinez's brother-in-law lunged at Herrera as he came through the doorway, the youth testified, but the defendant struggled free and fled the apartment.

Mrs. Zamora was pronounced dead at her home, apparently surviving for only a few minutes after she was shot. Police found a .25 caliber automatic pistol behind a refrigerator in the apartment and recovered an ammunition clip containing four live rounds close by, reports indicate.

A single live round was found on the edge of the couch, but officers were unable to locate the spent shell from the .25 caliber slug that killed the woman.

Tehran Plans To Release Missionaries Wednesday

By United Press International

Three Anglican missionaries cleared of spying charges and released from a Tehran prison are due to leave for England on an Iran Air jetliner Wednesday.

The Swedish Embassy in Tehran said today the Swedish diplomat and Iran Air officials said the flight carrying the missionaries, held since August on spying charges which the Islamic government admitted this week were based on forged documents, will leave Tehran at 4 a.m. EST Wednesday and will stop en route at Frankfurt and Paris.

But Iran's revolutionary prosecutor, Hojatoleslam Ali Qoddousi, said in a Tehran radio broadcast today the missionaries would be freed "if there were no problems with Britain."

Without elaborating, the radio quoted the prosecutor as saying the missionaries were treated well in captivity while two Iranian students detained in Britain had been "ill treated."

The radio did not say when Qoddousi made the remark.

Homeowners Suing Fire Department

BOZEMAN, Mont. (AP) — The Rae volunteer fire department is being sued by a homeowner whose dwelling was destroyed when officials told firefighters not to fight a blaze there because he hadn't paid the fee for protection.

Harry Petroff and Farmers Union Mutual Insurance Co. have filed suit for $154,000, including $50,000 in punitive damages, accusing the department of "willful and malicious" violation of a statutory duty to fight the fire.

Firefighters were called to Petroff's house on Feb. 23, 1979, the day after the family moved in. They began putting out the blaze, but then were stopped by department officials because Petroff had not paid the fee.

Public Relations Professionals Speak To Texas Tech Students

The complexity of corporate public relations and the need for innovative PR in competitive markets were discussed by two professionals Monday, the first day of Mass Communications Week at Texas Tech University.

Everett Groseclose, managing editor of Dow Jones News Service and Cheri L. Oakley, president of the public relations firm Cherril Oakley Co. of Dallas, addressed Texas Tech students, faculty and guests on Public Relations Day.

Groseclose, a former Avalanche-Journal staffer, described some of the difficulties faced in corporate public relations and gave pointers to students studying for careers in the field. Oakley, using a slide show presentation, demonstrated some of her firm's successful PR campaigns in the highly competitive Dallas market.

Groseclose, former director of public affairs for Dow Jones, described corporate America as a group of fiefdoms or individual kingdoms, answering to regulatory agencies and government, but most concerned with the market place.

"Corporations do not have public relations or public affairs functions because they want to. If they had their choice, they would say nothing and go about their business," the 1961 Texas Tech graduate said.

Business in many cases are under attack, Groseclose noted, and "Whether they are under attack or not, they think they are under attack."

Since businesses must deal with many publics, their public relations or public affairs functions must be capable of accommodating diverse needs. Groseclose said corporations must deal with stockholders, legislators, employees, the local community and governmental regulators, among others.

"It is not a simple little function," Groseclose said. "It is a very complex and important corporate function."

Discussing public relations as a career choice, Groseclose told Texas Tech mass communications students it is "better than you fear, not as good as you hope and not as bad as you have heard."

For those with the goal of heading a corporation or major company, Groseclose suggested another career choice. The reason, he said, is because public relations is a "staff side" or supportive function which aids the "line side" or productive functions like marketing, production and sales.

"On the staff side of the company, by definition, you are not endowed with as much power as you are on the line side because you are not bringing in the money," Groseclose said.

Only in rare instances will the staff side lead to the top, Groseclose said.

At the heart of public relations is "an ability for editing and writing," Groseclose said. Other assets include the abilities to speak on one's feet, get along with people and remain open and genuine.

But nothing, he said, is as important as the "ability to communicate, think clearly and write."

Oakley said getting public attention in a highly competitive market requires daring, innovation and imagination. Some of her best PR results have come from campaigns using offbeat gimmicks.

In a crime-stopping campaign, Oakley created the slogan "Burn an arsonist for cold cash." That campaign helped reduce arson significantly, Oakley said.

In another real estate sales campaign, Oakley used the slogan "Love it or leave it" on stationery, t-shirts and newspaper advertising. By extending the campaign to more than just newspapers, Oakley said it reached a wider audience through the t-shirts and stationery.

Oakley has had more than 15 years experience in advertising and public relations in the Dallas market. Before forming her own company in 1974, she was a public relations coordinator for Sanger Harris Advertising and an account executive for Garner Advertising.

ROSEBERRY'S LAW: THE NUMBER OF TRIES DEPENDS ON THE SIZE...

Attorneys Rap Verdicts In Alien Torture Case

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Defense lawyers today were plotting appeals of "the weirdest thing" they'd ever seen: a guilty verdict for one rancher but an acquittal for his brother in their third trial in the robbery-torture of three illegal Mexican aliens.

Patrick Hanigan, 27, was found guilty Monday by one federal jury, while Thomas Hanigan, 23, was acquitted by another panel on three counts each of robbery affecting commerce.

"The evidence was almost exactly the same," said defense lawyer Alex Gaynes, who represented the younger Hanigan. "It's just the weirdest thing I ever saw."

Meanwhile, the groups whose lobbying and research convinced government lawyers to seek federal charges under the Hobbs Act against the Hanigans called the verdicts "half-justice."

The case, nevertheless, underscored their contention that illegal aliens have certain rights, and that the Hobbs Act could be used to protect them, they said.

"The Hobbs Act means the undocumented worker has a tool to fight back," said Urcinio Salaiz, a spokesman for the National Coalition on the Hanigan Case, which held courthouse vigils throughout the deliberations.

The Justice Department had agreed to pursue the case if it could find an applicable statute, and Hispanic students at Antioch University's law school in Washington, D.C., suggested the Hobbs Act and four other possibilities after a year-long research project.

But "half-justice is still no justice," argued Tony Bustamante, a Douglas native who launched the research project. "It's incomplete justice."

The Hanigans had been charged in connection with an Aug. 18, 1976, incident in which three Mexicans, who were crossing the Hanigan ranch in Douglas seeking work, claimed they were bound, stripped, robbed, tortured and shot at as they were forced to flee toward Mexico.

The brothers were acquitted of state charges in the incident, and their first federal trial ended in a hung jury.

This trial, unlike the earlier ones, featured separate juries and new evidence from Patrick Hanigan's ex-wife and a waitress.

One appeal, filed even before the juries reached their decisions, disputed U.S. District Judge Richard Bilby's determination that robbery affecting commerce includes robbery affecting the movement of undocumented laborers across the border.

And Patrick Hanigan's lawyer, Alan Polley, planned to ask Bilby to set aside the verdict.

Anti-Nuclear Trial Jury Selection Set

NORRISTOWN, Pa. (AP) — The judge in the trial of Daniel and Philip Berrigan and six other anti-war activists has warned the defendants against "irrelevant speeches that have no bearing on the proceedings."

"We are here to try charges under the Criminal Code of Pennsylvania," Montgomery County Judge Samuel Salus said Monday. "Nothing more. Nothing less."

The "Plowshares Eight" are up on burglary and disorderly conduct charges for breaking into a plant housing nuclear missile nose cones. But they said in a statement Monday that "international crimes against humanity" are at issue.

Jurors were being selected today.

The defendants, six men and two women, are accused of burglary, simple assault, disorderly conduct, criminal conspiracy, criminal coercion and criminal mischief. Conviction of the charges could mean a total penalty of 45 years in prison and a fine of $77,500 for each defendant.

The charges stem from an alleged break-in last September at the General Electric plant in nearby King of Prussia, where the eight allegedly hit nuclear missile nose cones with claw hammers and poured blood on the nose cones and on documents.

The defendants said they had been summoned by the prophets Isaiah and Micah "to beat swords into plowshares (and) expose the criminality of nuclear weaponry and corporate piracy."

Their trial on burglary and disorderly conduct charges opened Monday with discussions between the judge and the defendants, who are acting as their own lawyers, over the issues involved.

Teen Testifies About Shooting Of Black Jogging Companions

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Ted Fields, a black man shot by a sniper while jogging in a park, urged a white female companion to run away as he lay mortally wounded, the girl testified.

"There was blood all over ... Ted kept saying, 'Run, Terry!'" Terry Elrod said in testimony Monday at the federal trial of Joseph Paul Franklin, accused of the shooting.

Franklin, an avowed racist, is alleged to have violated the civil rights of Fields, 20, and David Martin, 18, by killing them to deprive them of use of a public facility. The two men were slain Aug. 20 in Liberty Park.

Miss Elrod, 16, testified Monday she heard shots ring out in the dark and saw first one, then another of her companions stagger and fall to the ground.

"I looked at Dave and he looked like he hurt so bad he could hardly talk. He said, 'Oh, my God! They got me.' Then he stumbled on one leg and Ted caught him as he was falling. It seemed like shots were being fired through the whole thing," Miss Elrod said.

She was one of two white girls accompanying Fields and Martin as they jogged in the park.

The other, Karma Ingersol, was to testify today.

Franklin, a Mobile, Ala., native, denies killing the men, but has told reporters they deserved to die for "race-mixing."

He was the subject of a nationwide manhunt that ended with his arrest last Oct. 29 in Lakeland, Fla.

The federal charge carries a maximum life sentence.

The state of Utah has filed murder charges against Franklin in the double killing, but federal authorities insisted on trying their case first.

An all-white jury was seated earlier Monday. The one black man on the jury panel was excused after he told U.S. District Judge Bruce Jenkins he could not be impartial about the case.

In opening arguments, prosecutor Richard Roberts told the jury that Franklin was so obsessed with his hatred for blacks that he killed Fields and Martin because they were in the company of white girls.

Defense attorney Robert Van Sciver said investigators pinned the crime on Franklin because they were under pressure from the local black community to solve the case.

Van Sciver denied Franklin killed Fields and Martin, although he acknowledged his client is a racist.

"Mr. Franklin makes no apologies for his racist beliefs. But remember, this is the United States of America, and his views, no matter how repugnant, are not a crime," Van Sciver said.

The courtroom was heavily guarded for the trial. Spectators were required to pass through a metal detector.

Oregon State Returns To Lead

By The Associated Press
Oregon State regained the top position in The Associated Press college basketball poll today as Virginia, No. 1 last week but the latest in a long line of teams to have a major winning streak snapped by Notre Dame, slipped to No. 3 behind runnerup Louisiana State.

Oregon State, 23-0 and the only major unbeaten college team, collected 54 of 60 first-place votes and 1,193 of a possible 1,200 points in the nationwide balloting by a panel of sports writers and broadcasters. The Beavers, No. 2 last week, were replaced in the No. 1 slot by Virginia three weeks ago after holding the top spot alone for two weeks and sharing it with the Cavaliers another week.

LSU, which now holds the nation's longest major winning streak at 25, jumped two notches in taking over the

No. 2 position. The Tigers, 26-1, garnered four first-place votes and 1,087 points in edging both Virginia and DePaul, which dropped a notch to fourth.

Virginia, which saw its 28-game winning streak shattered by Notre Dame, 57-56, last Sunday, was tabbed No. 1 by one voter and picked up 1,079 points. DePaul, which raised its record to 24-1 with an 89-64 victory over Butler Monday night, was five points farther back and had the final first-place vote.

Arizona State, which was No. 7 a week ago, claimed the No. 5 position this week with 856 points — 25 more than Notre Dame, which leaped five places following its upset of Virginia.

Utah, ranked ninth last week, edged both Iowa and Kentucky for the No. 7 slot with 739 points. The Hawkeyes, who defeated Big Ten rivals Indiana and Purdue last week, had 725 points for eighth, 10 more than the Wildcats, who posted victories over Florida and Vanderbilt last week.

Wake Forest, UCLA and Tennessee, took the biggest falls this week.

Wake Forest, upset by Clemson and then No. 20 Maryland last week, fell from fifth to 12th. UCLA, surprised by Stanford last Saturday, plunged from No. 6 to 13. Tennessee, a one-point loser to LSU last Saturday, slipped from seventh to No. 10 with 715 points.

North Carolina headed the Second 10, followed by Wake Forest, UCLA, Illinois, Brigham Young, Indiana, Maryland, Arkansas, Wichita State and defending national champion Louisville.

Miller Aims For Crucial Meeting

NEW YORK (AP) — Marvin Miller, executive director of the baseball players association, had anticipated that he would spend at least part of this winter in Florida, hopeful that he and his wife would be able to luxuriate in the start of retirement.

Miller was scheduled to leave for Tampa, Fla., today, but it had nothing to do with retirement. He was heading for a meeting Wednesday of the association's executive board, which would decide on a response to the club owners' implementation of their plan to compensate teams losing free agents through the re-entry draft.

Miller has avoided saying that the board, made up of player representatives, would call for a strike. He has put the onus on the action last Thursday by management.

"The owners gave the players the right to strike by pulling the trigger," Miller has said in describing the owners' implementation of their plan. "The owners have fired, and no one should be surprised if the players shoot back."

Ray Grebey, chief negotiator for the owners, has said: "I do not feel there should be a strike. When you consider all the issues that we have had to negotiate over the past two years and the settlement that was reached, this one issue is not one that can justify strike action."

The owners' plan requires that a team signing certain players selected in the re-entry draft give up a roster player to the team losing the free agent.

The owners describe those players whose signings will trigger the compensation requirement as "ranking free agents" — those who were picked by at least eight teams in the re-entry draft and meet "performance requirements" based on appearances.

The team giving compensation would be permitted to protect 15 or 18 players, depending on the free agent's standing in the performance category.

The players, under terms of the Basic Agreement signed last May 23 just hours before they were to strike, gained the right to call a work stoppage if the owners put their plan into effect. The agreement stipulated that if the players do decide on the strike, they must announce their intention by March 1 and set a strike date of no later than June 1.

The players, however, also have the option of trying to postpone the crisis again until 1982. They can waive their right to strike by requesting before March 1 that the clubs give them the right to walk out next season. The owners, though, do not have to agree to that request.

The mutual agreement to table the free-agent compensation issue last May while a player-management committee "gathered, studied and reviewed information" on the issue enabled the 1980 season to be completed without a strike, but put off the inevitable until now — or maybe until next season.

Miller, in announcing the agreement last May, also announced his intention to retire. He added, however, that he would stay on until the free-agent compensation issue was settled.

College Coaches Fear Point-Shaving Schemes

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The tremors emanating from college basketball's latest point-shaving episode are sending shock waves through the nation's football coaches, aware that their sport is not immune from the possibility of fixed games.

Just because college football has never been publicly embarrassed by such a scandal doesn't mean it can't happen.

"Certainly it can. All coaches worry about it," says Florida State's Bobby Bowden.

"Yes, easy," echoes Grant Teaff of Baylor.

It's been attempted, no question about it," adds Georgia's Vince Dooley.

"Why not?" asks Bo Schembechler of Michigan.

"I think it could happen if gamblers got hold of a dominant player or two," says Don James of Washington.

It has been tried. Teaff disclosed that in 1973 Baylor wide receiver Charles Dancer "came to me real shook up and told me a story that made my hair stand up. He was our prime receiver and two guys offered him a ride to practice one day. They opened the glove compartment and showed him a huge wad of money and a gun and said, 'We want to talk to you about dropping some passes.'"

"He got out of the car as quick as he could and came straight to me. We reported it to the authorities, but there was no further contact and nothing ever came of it. It's something that never really enters your mind, but when you read about something like the basketball thing, it kind of shakes you up."

The coaches were among those attending the National Collegiate Athletic Association's fifth annual College Football Preview, which winds up today.

"I think these basketball stories will make us more aware," said Bowden. "It scares me."

When Bowden coached at West Virginia, he "read the riot act" to his team in a closed meeting early one week after it had lost several games in a row.

"We went down to Miami on Thursday for a game and someone showed me an ad for a San Francisco gambling service that said, 'Look out for this game. Bobby Bowden called a meeting and came down hard.'"

Gamblers have tried to fix college football games. If anyone succeeded, it remains a well-kept secret. A gambler involved in basketball fixes approached a University of Florida footballer before a game with Florida State 20 years ago, but the player turned him in and he was subsequently apprehended.

Coaches have different methods of warning their players about the pitfalls, but there is no end to people seeking information that could be useful to bettors.

"We talk to them every fall about gamblers," said Missouri's Warren Powers. "We talk to them about people who want inside information about injuries. I'm sure every campus has some guy like that around."

James is among those who has brought in FBI agents, police officials and lawyers to warn of the dangers.

"I want the players to hear from someone other than me how people would go about getting inside knowledge about our team," he said.

The Southeastern Conference employs a retired FBI agent as its security chief. "He started us with the amount of money bet in Birmingham and Atlanta," Dooley said.

Schembechler prefers to go it alone. "I do it myself," he said. "That's why I close all my practices. I don't want to have people in there. But the newspaper guys think we're doing it against them."

"And once the players leave the locker room, I don't want them talking to anybody. Guys they don't know will call them on the phone and say, 'How's it going?'"

"You have to really coach against that stuff and work at it."

Tubby Raymond of Delaware, president of the American Football Coaches Association, said he plans to bring the matter up for discussion when the AFCA's Board of Trustees meets this summer.

"We need more awareness," he said.

Calvin Murphy Ignites Rockets

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — It was shake-your-head-and-remember-when night for Utah coach Tom Nissalke, who watched chagrined as Houston guard Calvin Murphy sent his former coach's club to its 10th loss in 11 games.

Murphy scored 38 points, including two long jumpers and a twisting layup in the final minute and a half to guide the Rockets to a 106-102 National Basketball Association victory in the league's only contest Monday night.

"Murphy is just a great player," said Nissalke. Houston's coach from 1977 to 1979. "He's one of the greatest players of all time."

The 5-foot-10 Murphy, whose basket with a minute remaining gave the Rockets the lead for good at 100-99, also sank six straight free throws to keep alive his NBA record string at 73. He broke Rick Barry's record of 65 straight last week.

"We like to go with whoever is on a roll," said Houston coach Del Harris. "and Calvin has been on a roll for the past 10 days."

Murphy, who had 22 points in the first half, drilled 16 of 21 field-goal attempts in outdueling the NBA's leading scorer, Utah forward Adrian Dantley, who finished with 34 points.

Houston center Moses Malone, who averages 28 points, scored 18 and grabbed 14 rebounds.

When Moses isn't having his usual offensive night, we spend a lot of time going to Murphy and guard Mike Dunleavy in the backcourt for our offense."

Harris said. "Moses had to play a lot tonight with (forward Billy) Paultz out, and he knew he would so he was pacing himself."

With less than a minute left, Utah rookie Darrell Griffith, who had 23 points in the game, missed a shot that would have given the Jazz the lead. Murphy then drove for a layup with 23 seconds remaining to make it 102-99 for Houston. Two foul shots each by guard Allen Leavell and Dunleavy preserved the victory.

It also boosted the Rockets into a tie with Kansas City for second place in the Midwest Division behind San Antonio. The Rockets are 31-33, while the slumping Jazz dropped to 24-42.

Houston led 77-74 after three quarters, but the Jazz scored 11 straight to take an 85-77 margin. However, a three-point play by Malone, and six points by Murphy brought the Rockets back.

Harris credited Houston's defense with giving the Rockets their first road victory against Utah after two losses.

"I think we have been playing pretty good defense for the past 30 games or so, and we had every guy out there tonight playing for his pride on defense to finally get a win here," Harris said.

For his part, Nissalke was in the doldrums. "Are our players down? I hope so. I am. They should be down because that's how you regroup and get things back together," he said.

Stepien Warns Of Cavs' Shift

CLEVELAND (AP) — Ted Stepien, president and primary owner of the Cleveland Cavaliers, has informed the National Basketball Association's board of governors that he will move the club out of the Cleveland area if fan support does not significantly improve next season.

The team's attendance this season is the lowest in the NBA. In the team's first 35 home games, the average attendance was 4,967, according to team officials.

Stepien said the team will lose $3 million this season.

In its best season, 1975-76, standing room only crowds were not uncommon at the 20,000-seat Coliseum in suburban Richfield, as the team battled into the NBA playoffs. The next season, average attendance was about 14,000 a game.

Attendance has dropped steadily ever since.

"I can only give Cleveland next year to support us or I'm moving to Pittsburgh, Minneapolis, Louisville or Cincinnati," Stepien said. "I've told the board of governors."

Two seasons ago, Cavaliers management signed a 10-year lease with the Coliseum, but there is an escape clause which the Cavaliers can activate if per-game attendance does not average 9,100 in two consecutive seasons.

The Cavaliers attracted 322,788 last season, for an average of 7,873 a game, down 1,500 a game from the 1978-79 season.

Blunt Turner Wants To Unload Matthews

CINCINNATI (AP) — Atlanta Braves' owner Ted Turner wants to trade outfielder Gary Matthews to the Cincinnati Reds but Matthews wants to stay put.

"I know they're trying to force me to go to Cincinnati, but I'm not running away. I don't want to be traded until I have a new contract," said Matthews, who is in the last year of a contract that will pay him $260,000.

The revelation from Turner was reported in Atlanta. Reds' president Dick Wagner, at the Reds' training camp in Tampa, Fla., said he had no comment on reports he was willing to trade Reds' center fielder Dave Collins to Atlanta for Matthews.

"That would be tampering," Wagner said.

Turner said he gave Matthews a choice: Play for Cincinnati or sit on the Atlanta bench.

"Gary will not play regularly if he stays with us and now that I've said it, I've got to back it up. Our outfield would be Dale Murphy, Claudell Washington and Terry Harper. Maybe I'm making a mistake, but I don't think so. And if one of them falls or goes into a slump, we can put Gary in. He won't embarrass us, because he's terrific," Turner said in Atlanta.

"Look at it this way. This is good for Gary. He wants to sign a new contract for $700,000 a season, and he might get it from somebody if he plays regularly this year. So he can go to Cincinnati and do that, but he sits on the bench for us," Turner said.

But Wagner said he did not anticipate a deal of any significance during spring training.

"I've talked to six or eight clubs in the last 30 days about trades. We've got two or three things working but I don't look at any of them as serious," Wagner said.

Braves' general manager John Mullen confirmed his team has discussed Matthews with the Reds but said that was not unusual.

"We've talked to a lot of teams about Matthews because he has to be traded," Mullen refused to say whether the Braves were interested in Collins because that might be considered tampering.

Reds' manager John McNamara said he would report to the Reds' camp today. Pitchers and catchers are scheduled to report on Thursday.

James is among those who has brought in FBI agents, police officials and lawyers to warn of the dangers.

Rejuvenated Porter Rallies Team Toward Playoffs

By The Associated Press

Washington coach Gene Shue has put the ball in Kevin Porter's hands and given the fiery guard the task of firing the Bullets into the National Basketball Association playoffs.

Judging from their recent play, they may be right on target. Porter has averaged 19.1 points and 12.5 assists, while shooting 55 percent from the field. In the last 21 games, The Bullets have won 13 of them to climb within 1 1/2 games of the Chicago Bulls in the race for the sixth and final Eastern Conference playoff spot.

"K.P. has been playing sensational ball," praised Shue. "He knows how to play basketball, he's unselfish and he makes good judgments when he runs our offense."

"K.P. is playing great right now and I think it's helping all of us," said Porter's backcourt partner, Kevin Grevey. "We're all getting out on the break because we know if we get to an open spot, K.P. will get us the ball. He's very easy to play with and all the players have confidence in him."

"When K.P. plays well, we all seem to do well," chimed in Bullets' forward Greg Ballard. "He takes charge on the court. He gets us running and that's what we do best."

All of which is music to the ears of Porter, who at the age of 30 was considered washed up by many basketball experts before this season began. Even the Bullets thought Porter's career might be finished.

"We really didn't know what we would get from him," said Shue. "That's why we drafted Wes Matthews number one. K.P. was coming off an off-year and we drafted Matthews to replace him."

While the Bullets fully expected Matthews to replace Porter as their playmaker, Porter had other ideas. Although he had had his differences with ex-Washington coach Dick Motta, Porter figured he would get along better with Shue — and he was right.

"I'm feeling good physically and mentally," said the 6-footer. "With Gene's offense, I'm running the team out there, and that's what I like."

The Bullets alternated Porter and Matthews at the point guard position for the first half of the season before dealing Matthews to Atlanta for 6-foot-6 rookie Don Collins.

"Because of injuries to Bobby Dandridge and Carlos Terry we needed some help at small forward," said Shue. "Collins plays that position as well as guard, so getting him gave us depth at two positions. And we felt we could trade Matthews because Porter had shown he was playing as well as ever."

Porter now controls the ball nearly all the time for the Bullets. He leads the fast break, benefitting from the fine outlet passing of Wes Unseld and pushing the ball up the floor with the same flair he showed in 1975, 1978 and 1979, when he led the NBA in assists. And when Washington goes to a set-up offense, it invariably consists of Porter handling the ball until Elvin Hayes works his way into position down low or someone like Grevey or Ballard moves around an Unseld pick and frees himself for a jumper.

Porter has been playing 40 minutes or more a game lately and has increased his season averages to 12.7 points and 8.2 assists. His 5,061 career assists rank second behind Nate Archibald among active players and 10th on the NBA's all-time list.

"I try to get the ball to our good shooters," Porter said of his quarterback role. "I don't have to score to contribute."

Perhaps his best game of the season came last Thursday when he had 24 points and 15 assists to lead Washington to a 129-108 victory over powerful Philadelphia before a sellout crowd of 19,035 at the Capital Centre. Late in that game Porter was leading a fast break when he passed the ball between his legs off a stutter-step, prompting ex-referee and current cable-TV commentator Richie Powers to note: "There's not enough mustard to cover that little hot dog."

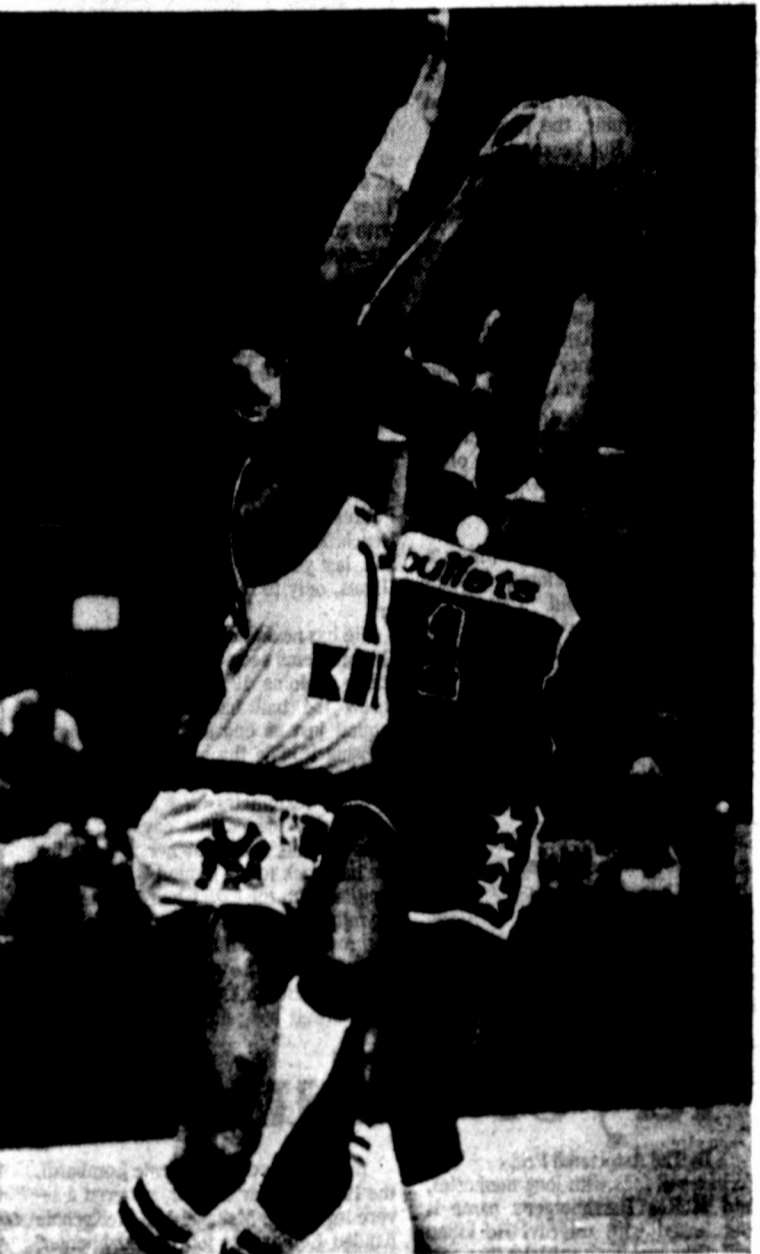

"Sure it's a little hot-dogging," countered Porter, "but I only do it in a wide-open game. I learned it from guys like Tiny Archibald and Earl Monroe. I advise youngsters not to do it, but it does set the defense off and can pick the crowd up, too."

The next night Porter had 22 points and 15 assists in a 124-112 loss at New York and engaged in a verbal sparring match with Knicks' guard Ray Williams. The two exchanged threats just before halftime, and when the game ended Williams tried to follow Porter into the Washington locker room.

"I was trying to put a little psychological tactic on him," claimed Williams. To which Porter flatly replied: "I don't have any problems with Ray — he has a problem with me."

Porter has been creating problems for other players and other teams all around the NBA lately.

BACK ON THE BREAK — Washington guard Kevin Porter (1), who many NBA observers felt was finished prior to the start of this season, has led the Bullets' resurgence and stoked their playoff hopes. The veteran point guard, shown here being hounded by New York's Ray Williams, has returned to peak form. (AP Laserphoto)

Andrews' Star Van

ANDREWS (AP) — Apparently bothered by a NCAA investigation into alleged recruiting irregularities at Southern Methodist, one of the nation's top running backs has spurned a letter-of-intent he signed with the Mustangs and has decided to attend Notre Dame instead.

Van Percy of Andrews was one of the few highly-sought players who remained unsigned through last Wednesday's national signing date.

The 6-foot-2, 185-pound Percy is the 13th member of the Parade Magazine 41-player all-America high school team to sign with the Fighting Irish.

When Percy signed a Southwest Conference letter with SMU Feb. 11, he said he was 99 percent sure he would sign a national letter with the Ponies the following Wednesday.

But the story of the NCAA investigation broke the next day, and Percy agreed to visit the Notre Dame campus. On national signing day, he said he hadn't made up his mind yet.

SMU retained all the others it signed to a conference letter.

"When he signed with SMU, he really seemed at peace with himself," Andrews' football coach Bill Shipman said. "When the SMU thing broke, I was kind of hoping it wouldn't bother him, but obviously it did."

Conference Coaches Defend Big Eight's Rights For NCAA

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — In less than two weeks, the NCAA will send out those coveted invitations to its national basketball tournament. Whether the Big Eight should get more than one of them is a touchy subject among conference coaches.

"If the committee will look at it objectively, I'll be tremendously disappointed if we don't get more than one," said Ted Owens, whose Kansas Jayhawks are one game out of first place.

"There is every reason to think we'll have three," added Owens. "We beat North Carolina and Memphis State. We beat USC, which beat UCLA. There is no reason to feel ashamed of our record. If the Basketball Committee will be objective, we'll have three."

There's just one automatic berth for a Big Eight school, and that goes to the winner of the post-season tournament that was inaugurated in 1977. The regular-season champion, which with two games left remains a tossup, is guaranteed nothing but bragging rights.

The NCAA's Division I Basketball Committee will issue invitations March 8 to all automatic qualifiers, plus a number of "at-large" entrants.

Last year the Atlantic Coast Conference had five teams in the tournament and the Big Ten had four. The NCAA field has been expanded this year to 48, the biggest in history, and the corresponding payoff for each participant will likely be more than $40,000.

Iowa State's Johnny Orr, the long-time Michigan coach who's completing his first swing through the Big Eight and has a 1-11 league mark, is not so sure.

"I hope we do," he said when asked about a second Big Eight entry. "I think we should have at least three teams. But it won't happen. I think Kansas State, Nebraska and Missouri should all be in there."

But if the Big Eight lands only one NCAA entry, Orr added, "Boy, that sure would make me mad. But I would say that is not out of the realm of possibility."

Jack Hartman of Kansas State said flatly, "I don't think it's a possibility," when asked if the Big Eight's regular-season champ might not get invited to the NCAA.

"I feel we should get two or three teams in," said Oklahoma State's Paul Hansen. "I feel we've got two or three clubs that can play with them."

Missouri's Norm Stewart was also defensive about the Big Eight basketball reputation.

"If AP (The Associated Press) would come out and say we have four good teams, we'd have a better chance," he said. But Stewart conceded the regular-season champion could get left out. "There is that possibility. There is always that possibility," he said.

Rejuvenated Porter Rallies Team Toward Playoffs

By The Associated Press

Washington coach Gene Shue has put the ball in Kevin Porter's hands and given the fiery guard the task of firing the Bullets into the National Basketball Association playoffs.

Judging from their recent play, they may be right on target. Porter has averaged 19.1 points and 12.5 assists, while shooting 55 percent from the field, in the last 21 games. The Bullets have won 13 of them to climb within 1 1/2 games of the Chicago Bulls in the race for the sixth and final Eastern Conference playoff spot.

"K.P. has been playing sensational ball," praised Shue. "He knows how to play basketball, he's unselfish and he makes good judgments when he runs our offense."

"K.P. is playing great right now and I think it's helping all of us," said Porter's backcourt partner, Kevin Grevey. "We're all getting out on the break because we know if we get to an open spot, K.P. will get us the ball. He's very easy to play with and all the players have confidence in him."

"When K.P. plays well, we all seem to do well," chimed in Bullets' forward Greg Ballard. "He takes charge on the court. He gets us running and that's what we do best."

All of which is music to the ears of Porter, who at the age of 30 was considered washed up by many basketball experts before this season began. Even the Bullets thought Porter's career might be finished.

"We really didn't know what we would get from him," said Shue. "That's why we drafted Wes Matthews number one. K.P. was coming off an off-year and we drafted Matthews to replace him."

While the Bullets fully expected Matthews to replace Porter as their playmaker, Porter had other ideas. Although he had had his differences with ex-Washington coach Dick Motta, Porter figured he would get along better with Shue — and he was right.

"I'm feeling good physically and mentally," said the 6-footer. "With Gene's offense, I'm running the team out there, and that's what I like."

The Bullets alternated Porter and Matthews at the point guard position for the first half of the season before dealing Matthews to Atlanta for 6-foot-6 rookie Don Collins.

"Because of injuries to Bobby Dandridge and Carlos Terry we needed some help at small forward," said Shue. "Collins plays that position as well as guard, so getting him gave us depth at two positions. And we felt we could trade Matthews because Porter had shown he was playing as well as ever."

Porter now controls the ball nearly all the time for the Bullets. He leads the fast break, benefitting from the fine outlet passing of Wes Unseld and pushing the ball up the floor with the same flair he showed in 1975, 1978 and 1979, when he led the NBA in assists. And when Washington goes to a set-up offense, it invariably consists of Porter handling the ball until Elvin Hayes works his way into position down low or someone like Grevey or Ballard moves around an Unseld pick and frees himself for a jumper.

Porter has been playing 40 minutes or more a game lately and has increased his season averages to 12.7 points and 8.2 assists. His 5,061 career assists rank second behind Nate Archibald among active players and 10th on the NBA's all-time list.

"I try to get the ball to our good shooters," Porter said of his quarterback role. "I don't have to score to contribute."

Perhaps his best game of the season came last Thursday when he had 24 points and 15 assists to lead Washington to a 129-108 victory over powerful Philadelphia before a sellout crowd of 19,035 at the Capital Centre. Late in that game Porter was leading a fast break when he passed the ball between his legs off a stutter-step, prompting ex-referee and current cable-TV commentator Richie Powers to note: "There's not enough mustard to cover that little hot dog."

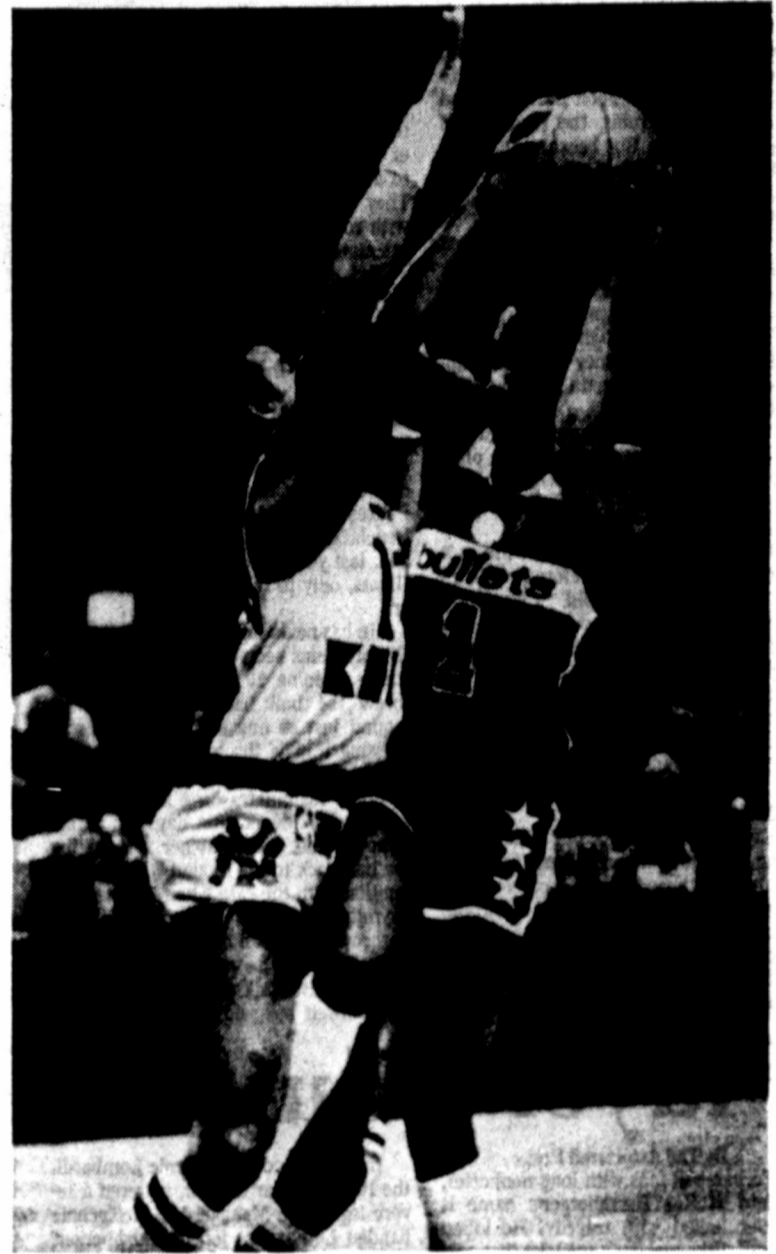

"Sure it's a little hot-dogging," countered Porter, "but I only do it in a wide-open game. I learned it from guys like Tiny Archibald and Earl Monroe. I advise youngsters not to do it, but it does set the defense off and can pick the crowd up, too."

The next night Porter had 22 points and 15 assists in a 124-112 loss at New York and engaged in a verbal sparring match with Knicks' guard Ray Williams. The two exchanged threats just before halftime, and when the game ended Williams tried to follow Porter into the Washington locker room.

"I was trying to put a little psychological tactic on him," claimed Williams. To which Porter flatly replied: "I don't have any problems with Ray — he has a problem with me."

Porter has been creating problems for other players and other teams all around the NBA lately.

BACK ON THE BREAK — Washington guard Kevin Porter (1), who many NBA observers felt was finished prior to the start of this season, has led the Bullets' resurgence and stoked their playoff hopes. The veteran point guard, shown here being hounded by New York's Ray Williams, has returned to peak form. (AP Laserphoto) futures prices closed mostly lower Monday on the Chicago Board of Trade, with only wheat showing some strength in distant contract months.

Traders said weather was the primary influence on the direction of trading. Corn and soybeans were under selling pressure from the start of the session following weekend rains in the Mississippi Valley where corn and soybean fields got some needed moisture. The weather was seen as beneficial to crop yield and supplies and therefore negative for prices.

Movement of corn and soybeans at country elevators over the weekend also was said to bring some commercial interests into the futures market to hedge sell Monday.

Commercial buying was noted in wheat as was buying by traders attempting to cover commitments for delivery.

At the close, wheat was 3 cents lower to 2 cents higher, the contract for delivery in March was $4.61 1/4 a bushel, corn was 2 1/4 cents to 4 1/2 cents lower, March $3.59 1/4 a bushel; oats were 3/4 cent to 4 cents lower, March $2.26 1/4 a bushel; soybeans were 5 1/2 cents to 1 1/4 cents lower, March $7.53 a bushel.
