

Birdwell Selected As Regent

A-J Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — John E. Birdwell II of Lubbock will be appointed to the Texas Tech University board of regents, Gov. Bill Clements announced this morning.

The governor called Birdwell, a Falls native, both an outstanding rancher and cattleman.

Birdwell, 51, of 4901 21st St. will serve a term expiring Jan. 31, 1987. He replaces Robert Pfluger of San Angelo, whose term recently expired.

Birdwell's appointment will bring the nine-member board to full strength.

"My field has always been agriculture," Birdwell said this morning when contacted by The Avalanche-Journal. But he added that he will have no special interest projects while serving as a regent. "I would hope that I could help Tech maintain the high standards of education they've always had."

Birdwell, a former student at Texas Tech, heads a farming, ranching and feedlot operation. He operates ranches in Bailey, Cochran and Briscoe Counties.

He noted that "I have a daughter who is a student at Tech right now." Lee is a junior at Texas Tech. Two Birdwells also attended Tech, one majoring in agriculture and the other in business administration.

Birdwell's first appointment by Clements was in 1979 when the governor gave him a six-year term on the Brazos River Authority. His term on that board expires Feb. 1, 1985.

Birdwell was formerly associated with The University of Texas M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute. As regional director of that group's annual fund committee two years ago, Birdwell emphasized the need for private fund support to fight cancer.

His first Tech board of regents meeting will come later this month when the board meets for its regularly scheduled March 27 meeting. Two other recently appointed regents also will serve for the first time at the meeting. They are Anne Phillips of Frisco and Rex Fuller of Lubbock.

Baker Views Salvador As Soviet 'Test'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker said today that Cuba and the Soviet Union may be testing President Reagan's resolve in El Salvador, and should "cool it" after Reagan's strong response.

"We didn't choose El Salvador," Baker told reporters. "The Cubans and Russians chose El Salvador to try to subvert."

Baker said the Russians have tested every president since John F. Kennedy and that their supply of arms to El Salvador "may have been a first effort to test the new American president."

But Baker said "the logical result of (Reagan's response) of unambiguous new American strength" should be "that everybody would just cool it."

The result, said the GOP leader, should be a halt in shipments of Soviet arms to Salvadoran insurgents and "that Cuba and Castro would stop the business of trying to export their diplomatic and military mischief to Nicaragua and El Salvador."

He called Reagan's decision to send 20 more military advisers and $25 million in U.S. military aid to El Salvador a restatement of an old policy: "don't mess around in this hemisphere."

Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd was asked if there is Democratic dissension against Reagan's action.

"I don't think there is any dissension as far as being opposed to leftist radicals taking over any government in Latin America," Byrd replied.

In San Salvador, the civilian president of El Salvador's ruling civilian-military junta says he has ordered the arrest of an ultra-rightist major for advocating a military coup, and U.S. diplomats blamed the officer for a hit-and-run attack on the American Embassy.

President Jose Napoleon Duarte told a news conference Wednesday he ordered the police to search for and arrest retired Maj. Roberto d'Aubuisson.

D'Aubuisson held a news conference Tuesday, accused Duarte and the other members of his Christian Democratic party in the government of being communists and said the military should expel them from the government. But by early today there was no indication he had been arrested.

Meanwhile, men in a speeding pickup truck fired 10 to 15 shots at the U.S. Embassy Wednesday, breaking a window. No one was hurt, and the embassy's Marine guards did not return the fire, a spokesman said.

"This incident has all the hallmarks of a d'Aubuisson operation," U.S. Charge d'Affaires Fredric Chapin told a news conference. In another attack last May, also blamed on d'Aubuisson, about 15 shots were fired at the embassy from a pickup truck at night, and no one was hurt.

Leftist guerrillas also attacked the embassy last year, causing heavy damage with rockets but no casualties.

D'Aubuisson at his news conference said he didn't think Reagan would be "bothered" if the military ousted Duarte, but the White House said the notion that Reagan backs a coup was "pure fiction." Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. said d'Aubuisson's statement "does not represent U.S. policy in any way."

Duarte also backed away from the Socialist International's offer to mediate between the government and the leftist guerrillas try to overthrow it. He said he has no immediate plans to meet with representatives of the league of Socialist parties, whose committee on Latin America met in Panama last weekend and offered to mediate.

Duarte earlier in the week welcomed the offer of mediation, but on Tuesday the State Department rebuffed an at-

Federal Funds Set For Atlanta Probe

ATLANTA (AP) — President Reagan has agreed to provide almost $1 million in federal aid to assist Atlanta in investigating the slayings and disappearances of 21 black children, Sen. Mack Mattingly announced today.

Mattingly, R-Ga., issued a statement from his Washington office saying the White House will allocate $979,000 "for a variety of programs requested by Mayor Maynard Jackson."

City officials had complained that, while the government offered assistance

Continental Plane Reported Hijacked

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A man armed with a pistol and claiming to have a briefcase full of explosives boarded a Continental Airlines jet preparing to take off from Los Angeles for Phoenix and San Antonio today, authorities said. The pilot and most of the passengers escaped, but nine people were taken hostage.

No injuries were reported, and the jet remained on the ground with the gunman, seven passengers and two flight attendants still aboard.

TREND ALARMS OFFICIALS Children Stage Major Crimes

NEW YORK (AP) — A 9-year-old pulled out a loaded pellet gun and held his New Jersey parochial school class at bay. Another held up a midtown Manhattan bank. A third youngster robbed a Fort Worth convenience store at gunpoint — and tipped the cashier.

Schoolyard games of cops and robbers have come to life in recent days. Psychiatrists say child criminals generally act impulsively without knowing the consequences and may be imitating each other.

"Youngsters are even more prone than adults to emulate and imitate the actions of others," says Dr. Elissa Benedek of the Center for Forensic Psychiatry at Ann Arbor, Mich. "When a youngster pulls a prank, other youngsters emulate that type of thing."

Mrs. Benedek says young children still are developing a sense of right and wrong and "many simply don't have that ability to think ahead to the consequences."

Mario Merola, district attorney in The Bronx, N.Y., says 26 children under 15 have been arrested in the past six months for crimes involving guns in his area.

About 1,900 juveniles between the ages of 7 and 12 were arrested in New York City last year. Under state law, those children cannot serve time in secure facilities.

"The kids are getting worse than the adults," Merola says. "There was a time when we classified juvenile crime as truancy. Now we call it murder, robbery and rape."

In New York on Monday, a 9-year-old boy identified only as Robert was charged with armed robbery and possession of a weapon in juvenile-delinquency proceedings stemming from the New York bank robbery.

The boy used a toy cap pistol in the heist of $118, authorities said. He spent part of the money on hamburgers, a movie and a wrist watch that played music.

In Collingswood, N.J., Wednesday, a fourth-grade student at the Transfiguration Grammar School pulled a loaded pellet gun in front of 28 classmates and a nun.

The boy "had a bit of a problem with another student in school from the day before," explained police Detective James Wilson.

from FBI agents and other federal services, it had not given financial help for the investigation. City officials estimated the probe is costing up to $200,000 per month.

Mattingly said $650,000 will be available immediately from the Justice Department and $329,000 will come from other federal agencies. A portion of the money will be used to coordinate and administer "all the offers of private aid coming in," he said.

In other developments, police searched today for another black child who disappeared Wednesday afternoon and officials announced that contributions and pledges to help with the investigation had passed the $200,000 mark.

Orlando Robinson, 10, ran away from school Wednesday afternoon after being disciplined, according to police Detective C.D. Porter.

Police were treating the case as a runaway and Robinson's name wasn't added to the list of cases being handled by the special task force investigating 19 slayings and two disappearances among Atlanta's black children.

Robinson's was the second apparent runaway child case this week.

Fifteen-year-old Joseph Bell was last seen Monday leaving home for school. Police spokesman Roger Harris said Wednesday a friend heard from the teenager on Tuesday, but Bell had not returned home and still was considered missing.

Meanwhile, the FBI said today the profile of a child killer that appeared in The Atlanta Constitution was not the agency's profile. John Glover, special agent in charge of the FBI's Atlanta office, said the published profile had not been released by the FBI and was inaccurate "as to details of the bureau's profile."

The newspaper Wednesday described what it called the FBI's preliminary profile and reported that experts who compared it to psychological test results of Atlanta police applicants came up with the names of about 50 people who could be capable of committing the crimes.

"We stand by the story 100 percent," Constitution Managing Editor John Schaffner said. "This was a profile developed by the FBI and it was used for the purposes we said in the story. Whether this is the only profile the FBI has, we don't know."

City officials said they had received more than $200,000 in contributions and pledges from 17 states for the investigations, which began 19 months ago.

Most of the money came last fall when the city began putting together a $100,000 reward fund for information leading to a resolution of the child slayings and disappearances.

But since the city earlier this year began seeking state and federal aid for the investigation, a total of $62,520 in pledges, benefit ticket sales and cash donations has flowed into City Hall.

Lawmakers Hear Plea By Cavazos

A-J Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — After emphasizing his overall satisfaction with the proposed $148.967 million budget for fiscal 1982-83 at his school, Texas Tech University President Lauro Cavazos today pointed out to members of the Senate Finance Committee certain areas "where we would like to have some help."

Cavazos testified for the second consecutive day before legislative committees, where he asked lawmakers to consider increases in funding for scholarships and for programs in health, nutrition and arid land studies. Cavazos brought Tech's request before a subcommittee of the House Committee on Higher Education on Wednesday.

Noting that "six of the 10 leading causes of death are linked to nutrition," Cavazos asked the Senate committee today for $750,000 in "seed money" for a research program in human nutrition and food science.

Sen. Ray Farabee of Wichita Falls said he "would like to applaud your interest in nutrition" but questioned "the problem of delivery" to the state of data gathered by such a program.

"That is a crucial concern of mine in getting that data out of the laboratory where it will do some good," Cavazos responded, adding that "what makes this program really unique is that we have a Health Sciences Center right on campus."

County Plans Crackdown On Dumping, Littering

And the commissioner said he is ready to take a hard line with those found dumping in rural areas. "If we can get just 10 people fined," he said, "I think that would make a world of difference."

One possibility, according to Roberts, is to offer a reward to anyone who reports seeing individuals dump trash. He said he plans to bring up a possible bounty system at a commissioners meeting later this month.

A week ago, Roberts said, a farmer notified him that someone had dumped a large amount of refuse at an abandoned caliche pit at 98th Street and Avenue P.

Roberts said he took his crew out the following day to clean up the mess and discovered that a stillborn colt had been dumped at the site along with the trash. "It was unreal," he said. "You can't imagine the filth we found out there."

Dumping garbage and dead animals already has attracted rats to the 98th Street site and several other locations frequented by refuse dumpers, Roberts said.

Other members of the commissioners court said they have experienced similar trash problems in their precincts.

"In rural sections of the county, it's always been a problem," observed Precinct 4 Commissioner Alton Brazell.

The biggest trouble site in his precinct, Brazell said, is along the county road leading to the City of Lubbock's dumpground. People either don't want to pay to unload their trash at the dumpground, or they do their hauling at the time the facility is closed, he said.

Official Hints Renewal Of Ties With Iran

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is reserving the option of renewing relations with Iran by implementing the agreement that led to the release of the 52 American hostages, the No. 3 man in the State Department says.

"Our decision to implement the Algerian agreements does not constitute a decision to normalize relations with Iran," said Undersecretary of State Walter J. Stoessel. "However, a benefit of implementing the agreements is that this option is left open."

Although Stoessel said the United States is "interested in the possibility of renewing relations with Iran," he told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee Wednesday developments in that direction would go slowly.

One factor in renewing relations, Stoessel said, will be Iran's conformance "with standards of international conduct and behavior."

Stoessel said President Reagan decided that implementation of the pact, approved during the Carter administration, would best serve "our strategic concerns," apparently referring to U.S. policy of maintaining stability in the oil-rich Persian Gulf region.

"Friendly governments in the area, and most of our allies, believe we must honor these obligations," he said. "Had we decided not to implement the agreements, we would have been seen by other countries — especially Algeria — as failing to honor a commitment made to them."

As part of the agreement, former President Carter authorized the return of frozen Iranian assets despite U.S. citizens' claims on them. Assistant Attorney General Larry L. Simms testified Tuesday that the Reagan administration would support that action in court.

A Supreme Court test is likely on a Dallas federal court ruling that Carter exceeded his power in returning the assets before U.S. courts settled claims on them.

Meanwhile, an Islamic peace delegation was waiting in Jidda, Saudi Arabia today for replies from Iran and Iraq to its proposal for a cease-fire on March 13 to halt the Persian Gulf war. But neither nation appeared ready to compromise.

Saudi state radio gave the first details of the delegation's proposal, saying the truce would be followed a week later by a four-week phased withdrawal of Iraqi troops from occupied Iranian territory.

The two nations would then submit their conflicting border claims to a commission of the 42-nation Islamic Conference, which would guarantee a settlement, the radio said.

It said a military subcommittee would guarantee the cease-fire and military observers from Islamic countries would oversee the withdrawal.

Rock Star Selling Estate

LYNDEN, Wash. (AP) — Rock star Randy Bachman has put his 30-acre estate up for sale, but only the well-heeled need inquire.

Bachman, formerly head of the Bachman-Turner Overdrive group and now with Ironhorse, wants $1.5 million for the house, according to his advertisement in the real estate section of The Wall Street Journal.

"Country manor with recording studio," the ad reads. "One mile south of the U.S.-Canadian border in Lynden, Wash., 30 acres, 15,000-square-foot English Tudor home, built in 1976, including indoor pool. Asking $1.5 million. Complete highest quality recording studio may be purchased separately."

The sale is being handled by a Seattle real estate company, and only people actually interested in buying the house will get to see it, since Bachman has vetoed any tours.

Theologian Accepts Position

CHICAGO (AP) — Roman Catholic theologian Hans Kung, whose controversial views have been censured by the Vatican, has accepted an invitation to teach at the University of Chicago Divinity School this fall, university officials say.

Kung, 52, author of a number of best sellers, including "Does God Exist: An Answer for Today" and "On Being a Christian," is a professor of ecumenical theology at the University of Tubingen in West Germany.

The Swiss-born priest has outraged church authorities by challenging Roman Catholic teachings on papal infallibility, the right of women to hold church office, priestly celibacy and birth control.

In 1979, after conducting an inquiry into Kung's positions, the Vatican's Sacred Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, with the approval of Pope John Paul II, revoked Kung's status as a Catholic theologian at the West German school. His position as professor at the university is not controlled by the German bishops.

University of Chicago officials said that as John Nuveen visiting professor at the divinity school, Kung will teach a course in ecumenical theology and lead a seminar on the existence of God.

Actor Out Of Intensive Care

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Television actor Greg Morris, hurt in an auto accident, has been transferred out of intensive care unit at a hospital, but officials say they don't know how soon he will be released.

"He's out of intensive care as of this morning, but he's still in a lot of pain," Sunrise Hospital spokeswoman Rena Ruby said Wednesday. "He looks real good. He's very cooperative and just really a neat guy."

Morris, 47, star of the "Vegas" series, suffered cuts on his face, arm and shoulder Monday night when his car overturned on Interstate 15 just west of the Nevada-California state line. He was returning to his Las Vegas home from California.

Morris, who plays a police lieutenant on the ABC-TV series, will "have to mend now for a while and get some of those bangs and bruises out of the way," said Miss Ruby.

Isabel Peron Ordered To Rest

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Former President Isabel Peron, under house arrest pending trial on corruption charges, has been ordered to take a complete rest after complaining of stomach and chest pains, say spokesmen for the Peronist party.

Mrs. Peron was examined by her physician, Alejandro Martin, at a retreat at nearby San Vicente where she has been staying. Martin said the pains were due to a previously diagnosed stomach ulcer.

Mrs. Peron, the third wife of strongman Gen. Juan Peron, succeeded her husband to the presidency in July 1974 upon his death. She was arrested in March 1976 during a military coup.

Prior to her ouster, Mrs. Peron spent long periods in bed, reportedly suffering nervous disorders and, since her arrest, has been hospitalized for a circulatory ailment and an appendectomy.

Newest Dealers Wear Ears

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The newest blackjack dealers on the Boardwalk have ears and tails.

Playboy Hotel & Casino, which expects to open as Atlantic City's seventh legal casino next month, graduated 500 dealers and croupiers from training Wednesday night, including 148 "bunny dealers."

Not all of the women dealers were wearing the skimpy bunny costumes, some choosing instead to wear a uniform of conservative beige slacks, a white shirt and a vest.

Racist Found Guilty In Slaying Of Blacks

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Avowed racist Joseph Paul Franklin, convicted in federal court of violating the civil rights of two black joggers shot to death last summer, now faces a state murder trial in the same sniping attack.

Deputy County Attorney Robert L. Stott said his office plans to prosecute Franklin on state murder charges, despite the probability a double jeopardy argument will be raised by Franklin's court-appointed attorney.

After 13½ hours of deliberation over two days, a jury found Franklin guilty Wednesday on both counts of the federal civil rights indictment. Testimony in the case began Feb. 23.

Franklin, 30, of Mobile, Ala., was charged with violating the civil rights of David Martin, 18, and Ted Fields, 20, by gunning them down as they jogged near a city park Aug. 20 with two white teen-age girls.

The charges carry a maximum penalty of life imprisonment.

"I didn't do it," Franklin told reporters as he left the courtroom. "It's a government frameup. That's what I've said all along."

Franklin, who has maintained he didn't kill anyone, had told reporters earlier he felt the black youths deserved to die for "race mixing."

Franklin probably will not be arraigned on the state charges until he is sentenced March 23 in the federal case, Stott said.

Defense attorney Robert Van Sciver said he may appeal the verdict before then.

Stott said the defense probably will raise the question of double jeopardy when the state charges come to trial, but he said prosecutors "feel confident it is not a double jeopardy problem."

"We always felt that regardless of the outcome of the civil rights case, we would go ahead," Stott said.

The Constitution forbids placing a defendant in double jeopardy by prosecuting him on the same charge twice.

The defense had argued that Franklin, who is blind in one eye and nearsighted in the other, could not have accurately fired the shots that killed the joggers that night. Witnesses testified that the gunman was not wearing glasses.

Van Sciver said it might have helped his case if Franklin had taken the stand. Franklin's sister, Marilyn Garzan of Montgomery, Ala., said her brother made the decision not to testify.

Mrs. Garzan, the only member of the Franklin family present when the verdicts were read, tearfully told reporters outside the courthouse: "It's not over. There's no way it's over."

Franklin remained impassive as the verdicts were read.

The Rev. Theodore Fields, father of one of the victims, said he believed

"from the very beginning" that Franklin was guilty.

Franklin was arrested Oct. 28 in Lakeland, Fla., following a nationwide manhunt begun after he escaped from Florence, Ky., police in September.

FBI Arrests Suspect With Purolator Money

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The man who allegedly picked up $1.2 million that fell from an armored truck here last week has been arrested by FBI agents at a New York airport with $105,000 stuffed inside his socks, officials said.

Joseph John Coyle, 28, an unemployed Philadelphia longshoreman, was arrested Wednesday morning at Kennedy Airport as he was about to board a flight to Mexico, the FBI said.

Coyle was taken into custody along with Francisco Anthony Santos, 27, of Sicklerville, N.J., and both were charged with unlawful flight to avoid prosecution for grand larceny, authorities said.

Meanwhile, Philadelphia police recovered an additional $611,000 of the missing cash, but $484,000 remained missing.

Acting on an anonymous tip, police recovered $381,000 Wednesday in a shopping bag in a patch of weeds behind a diner parking lot here, officials said.

Another $230,000 was returned Wednesday night by two acquaintances of Coyle's at the Police Administration Building, officials said.

The two men who returned the money, Thomas DiBruno, 30, and Michael Di-Criscio, 34, both of south Philadelphia, were released after questioning, police said.

An extradition hearing for Coyle and Santos was scheduled Friday in New York, police said.

Municipal Court Judge Samuel M. Lehrer issued a warrant Tuesday charging Coyle with theft, receiving stolen property and conspiracy, investigators said.

The money, in two bank bags in a yellow cart, fell out of the unlatched rear door of a Purolator Armored Inc. truck last Thursday afternoon as the truck made its way from the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia to Purolator headquarters in south Philadelphia.

Witnesses said they saw a car stop near the bags. A man jumped out, loaded the bags into the car and drove away.

Police said John Behlau, 21, and John Pennock, 20, both of Philadelphia, have admitted they were riding in a car with Coyle when he allegedly picked up the money, and have been cooperating in the investigation.

Tolerance Becomes Main Issue In 'Scopes' Trial

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A judge has virtually eliminated the issues of evolution and biblical creation from a trial that was expected to renew the legal war between Darwin and Genesis.

Superior Court Judge Irving Perluss told lawyers Wednesday that the central issue in the case is ensuring "sensitivity, understanding and tolerance" for children whose religious beliefs may clash with what they learn in science classes.

The state dropped plans to call astronomer Carl Sagan, Nobel laureate Arthur Kornberg and other prominent scientists as witnesses to defend evolutionary theory, developed by Charles Darwin, who wrote "Origin of Species."

The suit by the religious fundamentalist Creation-Science Research Center, a San Diego group that espouses the biblical account of creation as scientific truth, contends the state violates religious rights in the way evolution is taught in science classes.

The case had promised to be a head-on collision between evolutionists and "scientific creationists" in what observers predicted would be a rerun of the famed 1925 Scopes "monkey trial" in Tennessee.

But the Creation-Science group dropped its attempt to get creationism taught on a par with evolution. And other potentially explosive issues have been kept out by Perluss.

He told lawyers Wednesday he didn't care whether evolutionary theory was endorsed by every scientist or whether the fundamentalists had any scientific grounds for their complaint that their children's rights were being violated.

Perluss said the state's educational policy should, in effect, appeal to teachers to "have some understanding and sensitivity to the fundamentalist Christian child."

The Creation-Science group says it doesn't object to the teaching of evolution, only to its presentation as absolute fact.

The Soviets' Message

AMERICANS IN general, and some Washington politicians and media pundits in particular, were given an object lesson this week in the alternative to Democracy.

Without so much as one Soviet citizen outside the ruling circles really having a say about it, the new Soviet Communist Party leadership was retained as the climax of the party's eight-day Communist Party Congress.

And while some of the pronouncements from President Leonid Brezhnev and others made headlines, the method by which one of the world's most autocratic and militant regimes stays in power was more important.

TECHNICALLY, IT may be argued that Soviet citizens do get an opportunity to vote on their "elected" rulers at all levels at some point.

The truth is that they have for all practical purposes only one choice, the one dictated by the party.

The idea of an opposition party arising to challenge the ruling Politburo is as far-fetched as the big spenders in the U.S. abandoning their give-away ideas.

The result of such a move most likely would mean some form of harassment or more likely trumped-up prison charges.

BUT WHILE choosing the rulers was a foregone conclusion, what President Brezhnev had to say wasn't.

In view of the Reagan Administration's tough stand toward Russia and Communist activities in Central America, the Russian leader's remarks were awaited by those seeking some indication of what Moscow's reaction might be.

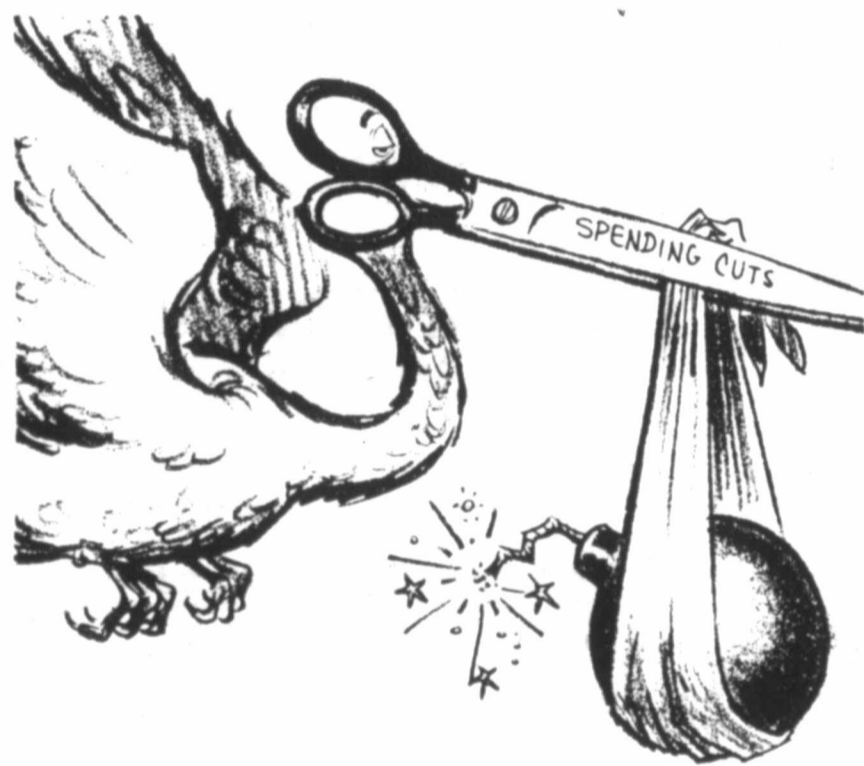

As the Congress started, the Russian leader held out a mixed bag of suggestions, ranging from a bid of sorts for a new summit meeting with the U.S. to renewed talks on strategic arms controls.

HOWEVER, IT was in his concluding remarks to the party Congress that Brezhnev indicated Russia's real goal, one which hasn't changed from the inception of the Revolution.

The new leadership, Brezhnev said, will "concentrate all our efforts on two interrelated directions. One is Communist construction and the other—the consolidation of peace..."

And then the Soviet leader added the guiding policy under which these things would be accomplished: "The revolutionary transformation of the world cannot be prevented..."

In brief, Communist Russia is still committed to the spread of revolution, through "liberation" movements and outright conquest. That is the real message from Moscow.

John D. Lofton:

Too Little's Chasing Too Much

WASHINGTON—Retired Rear Adm. Gene LaRocque (yes, sad to say, from our Navy), the director of what I call the "Center for Defense Misinformation," has popped up in the New York Times as the author of a piece with the eye-catching headline: "We Spend Too Much on Defense."

Oh? Too much as compared to what? Well, the admiral doesn't really say. But, the interesting thing is that LaRocque never once mentions the Soviet Union—which is odd since this is the enemy against which our defenses are principally arrayed.

The admiral's conspicuous omission is understandable however, since any comparison of U.S.-Soviet defense expenditures renders ludicrous the idea that we spend "too much."

CONSIDER THE FOLLOWING data contained in the just-released CIA research paper, "Soviet and U.S. Defense Activities, 1971-1980: A Dollar Cost Comparison":

— In terms of aggregate defense costs, for the '71 to '80 period, the estimated dollar costs of Soviet defense activities were 40 percent higher than comparable U.S. outlays.

— The estimated dollar cost of Soviet investment (the price of procuring equipment, including major spare parts, and the cost of constructing facilities), exceeded its U.S. counterpart every year from '71 to '80.

For the past two years, the estimated Soviet dollar costs in this area were about 75 percent higher than U.S. outlays. They were also 75 percent higher than the entire '71 to '80 period. This growth is expected to continue into the mid-1980s.

— Estimated Soviet operating costs (those expenses associated with running, training and maintaining current forces) were about 30 percent higher than U.S. outlays for the past five years.

— FROM '71 TO '80, Soviet estimated dollar costs for RDT and E (research, development, testing and evaluation) were half again as much as U.S. outlays, and during the late 1970s they were about twice as much.

— In strategic forces, the level of Soviet activity was three times that of the United States from '71 to '80. The dollar cost of Soviet strategic defensive activities increased from five times U.S. outlays in '71 to almost 25 times U.S. outlays by the end of '80.

— Estimated dollar costs of Soviet general purpose forces exceeded comparable U.S. outlays by a large margin for every year from '71 to '80.

In this area, which includes all land, tactical air, naval, airlift and sealift forces, Soviet outlays were half again as much as U.S. outlays in '80; they were 80 percent larger over the entire '71 to '80 period.

IN 1971, THE estimated Soviet cost for support forces—that is the logistic, training, administrative, base-operating and other support activities required by combat forces—was only two-thirds that of the U.S. But, since the mid-1970s, these expenditures have been approximately equal to those of the U.S.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

Taken For A Ride

"YOU SIGN 'EM and you live with 'em," former basketball star Bill Walton said in explaining his disinterest in renegotiating a contract that will pay him a reported $6 million by 1985 even though a foot injury is keeping him from playing much for the San Diego Clippers.

A million dollars a year is too big a bill to foot even for a healthy basketball player.

"Get the license number," Mayor Bill McAlister suggests, if anybody shoots at you from a moving car.

That may help to get a suspect arrested and to get a conviction but getting the Court of Criminal Appeals to uphold the verdict may require you to get an autographed picture of the suspect holding the license plate in one hand and the gun in the other.

FIRING WOULD be too good for the teaching assistants at the University of Houston who have been staging a "sickout" for higher wages.

About 10 percent of the 1,212 TAs have participated in the demand for a raise in pay, from approximately $350 a month to $850.

UH officials earlier gave the assistants, most of whom are graduate students, an ultimatum to return to work by this weekend or be fired.

Maybe higher pay would be justified but it hasn't been all that long since this semester began and these jokers knew what the pay was when they signed on to do a job.

One thing the University of Houston obviously hasn't been able to teach this bunch is a sense of responsibility and ethics. If they didn't want to work for the pay they agreed to take, they could have just said "no, thanks."

Two weeks before the Reagan administration froze the hiring of CETA workers for public service jobs, Fort Worth Mayor Woodie Woods said CETA "simply hasn't justified the cost."

Talk like that will get him drummed out of the Conference of Mayors if he isn't careful.

BUS RIDERSHIP in Lubbock is bucking the national trend, City Hall flag waver Vaughn Hendrie insists.

He even has statistics to back him up, which seems sort of unfair to those who don't want to believe him.

What caught his attention were two national studies which showed that fewer people are taking mass transit to work these days than they did in 1970, despite all the billions of dollars poured into the systems in the meantime.

While the private car is still the overwhelmingly favorite way to get from here to there in Lubbock, the figures do show how important it is to keep Citibus on the move.

NATIONALLY, a study of 20 metropolitan areas showed, taking mass transit to work dropped to 7.3 percent of the population in 1977, down from 10.3 percent in 1970.

In Lubbock, the closest thing to a comparable study showed that bus ridership rose slightly, from 706,862 in 1970-71 to 834,092 in 1976-7, after hitting bottom at 440,902 in 1973-4. Since then, ridership dipped with a mileage cut-back in 1977-8, but climbed to a record 964,378 last year.

Interviews conducted among bus riders in 1978 indicated that "going to work" was the single most important destination for them.

All of these figures are exclusive of the Texas Tech campus bus system but, significantly, the university still is the biggest generator of Citibus traffic.

Last October, a 10-weekday study showed that three routes from the campus to the South Plains Mall ranked 1-2-3 in ridership, with the route from the Medical School to West Lubbock coming in fourth.

ROUTE NO. 2, from downtown to East Lubbock, ranked fifth, contradicting a widespread misconception.

Ridership here is increasing each month on a year-to-year basis for Citibus, indicating how important it is to keep on upgrading the system with better service at affordable fares as gasoline and car prices continue to soar.

Incidentally, raising fares too high again has been shown to be counter-productive. In Birmingham, with the highest fares in the nation and a declining ridership, the bus system has just gone bankrupt.

It might be better to attract more riders with lower fares, both from the standpoint of serving the public and of reducing the amount of operating subsidy—local, not federal—that's needed.

Louis Rukeyser:

Not O Nor P But A Realist Be

NEW YORK—Should a wise investor be an optimist or a pessimist?

The answer to that one should be obvious (neither: he should be a realist), but the question cuts so deeply into the psychology and the practice of investing that it deserves further examination.

Besides, realism, like beauty, is in the eye of the beholder. We all know the debate over whether the glass is half full or half empty, and one man's realist is another man's Pollyanna (or Cassandra).

Well, first, if he's going to be giving advice to others, self-interest suggests pessimism. People are usually scared to death about matters financial, and gloom is a perennial best-seller.

(The fallible optimist is never forgiven, but the erring pessimist is invariably relieved; his followers reckon he just got the timing wrong.)

BUT THE TROUBLE with taking the same bleak advice you're giving to others is that you're liable to miss some absolutely splendid investments.

Since 1974, for example, you might have been holed up in your cabin in the remote woods, zealously guarding your canned goods with a shotgun, while the stock market—in 1975-76 and again in 1979-80—embarked on some of wildest upswings in its history.

Unbounded optimism, on the other hand, was scarcely a formula for continuous success in the last decade, either. It might have convinced you in the late 1960s that the Wall Street euphoria of that era was justified, and that a purchase made at any price would soon prove profitable—because a greater fool would come along to buy it even higher.

(This "greater fool theory" was reborn a few years later in the real estate and precious metals markets.)

A FLAW, THEN, appears in both excessive pessimism and excessive optimism: the danger that you will fall into a mental rut of sublimely confident conviction that keeps significant new evidence out of your sight.

In the real world, of course, few investors are pure optimists or pure pessimists. Even the most inveterate optimist gets unsettled now and then when his portfolio visibly declines, and even the darkest pessimist cackles happily when he scores a coup—or hugs an affectionate offspring.

The dominant, characteristic emotion of the pessimist is fear, and of the optimist greed, but those deep competitors can sometimes become colleagues, too (as when eager speculators and convinced gloomsters collaborated to skyrocket the gold price a year ago.)

Perhaps a better way to view their tension is a struggle between risk and reward, for therein lies the authentic solution for the average investor.

For him or her, the true decision-making process may hinge not so much on innate optimism or pessimism so much as on the proper risk-reward ratio for an investor of that type.

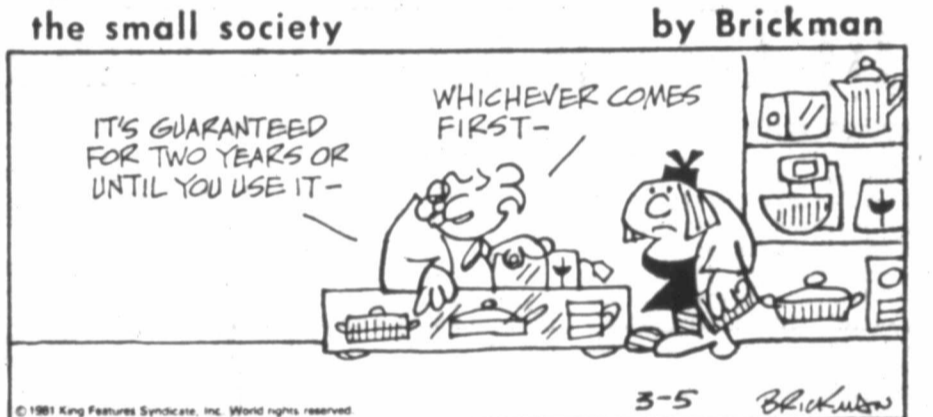

The young, single achiever, for example, may be ideally suited to the kind of speculative fling that would get a trust officer arrested if he tried it for one of his retired clients.

On the other hand, I know plenty of "little old ladies" who, their basic needs safeguarded, are among the liveliest—and most successful—speculators in Wall Street.

In the end, you'll probably not want to be the rosiest of optimists—the kind who believes Presidential promises, accepts government economic forecasts and has a financial compass with all the arrows pointing up—but you won't want to give way to arrant pessimism, either, and keep all your money in your mattress, or in silver bars, or in Zurich.

You'll want to take some risks, though, or else you might as well stay in bed. For while the greatest risk-takers chance the greatest failures, they also enter the competition for the greatest rewards.

Sylvia Porter:

Employe Benefits Now Include Car Insurance

NEW YORK—How do you react to the offer of auto and homeowner insurance coverage, tailored to your needs as an employe, as part of your package of employe benefits?

Also, as your employer bears at least part of the cost of the life insurance, health protection and pension plans already among your benefits, so your employer would pay part of the cost of your auto and homeowner coverage.

And as you save substantially by obtaining the other, now familiar fringe benefits, so you would save in these areas, too.

Far out? Oh no!

Several nationwide insurance companies are offering the auto-homeowner coverage plans right now. Experiments with the fringe benefits date back to the 1960s and by 1974, the Bankers Life of Des Moines had advanced far enough in its concept to try out the coverage on its own employes.

YOUNGER EMPLOYEES quickly saw the immediate benefits of car and household coverage as compared with life insurance or pension pay-outs years off. "The trial was a rousing success," reports Donald L. Krieg, head of the Bankers Life subsidiary (BLC Insurance Co.) that writes the programs.

Obstacles must be overcome before true group auto and homeowner insurance can become part of a normal fringe benefit package, says the Insurance Information Institute.

But Krieg insists the programs are completely workable today. Once an employer agrees to sponsor a program, including the moderate subsidy involved, Krieg says the only other obligations to get it under way are:

Payroll deduction; a single monthly remittance for all participating employes; employe presentations during business hours; notification of availability of coverage to new employes.

EVERY EMPLOYE WOULD be eligible, without exception, and after the employer makes a contribution (worked out according to the size of the group or the number of employes in the plan), the balance of an employe's premium would be deducted automatically from the employe's paycheck each month.

After that, every aspect of the plan would be handled directly by the insurer.

Insurance companies already experimenting with the plans report the costs to employes are competitive with plans offered to individuals by property and casualty companies.

Marketing savings can then trim 15-30 percent off premium costs, the companies say, in addition to the saving for the employe from the employe's contribution. The plans also end up costing employes very little.

AS OF NOW, an employe's contribution to employe auto or homeowner insurance is not exempt from taxable income. But Krieg sees the payoff in terms of: morale, loyalty, attracting new employes, enhancing a firm's reputation for liberal benefits.

"All in all," he says, "a big return for a comparatively small investment."

Among insurance companies underwriting the plans are, in addition to Bankers Life, Travelers and Nationwide.

Bill Sirola of the Insurance Information Institute observes that "the longer it goes on, the more prominent it will become."

And it is pertinent to remind ourselves that not too long ago, the general belief was that group dental insurance never could be offered. It is now in many packages.

Spurring these new fringe benefits are both relentlessly climbing insurance rates and the deep need for insurance on autos and homes.

Legislation is reported being studied, too, under which an employe's share of auto or homeowner premiums would be tax exempt as are premiums for medical insurance.

THE BLC INSURANCE Co., which is writing this coverage, has been approved and is writing plans in: California, Iowa, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Missouri, Illinois, Wisconsin, Colorado, Kansas, Indiana, Arizona, New Mexico and Oregon.

It has been approved but is not yet writing plans in: New York, Michigan, Texas, Washington, Oklahoma, Montana, Idaho and Alaska. It is seeking approval in: Ohio, Massachusetts, Louisiana, Nevada and Tennessee.

The whole insurance industry is watching the response and, of course, is planning too. Far out? Even now, well in!

Moscow Issues Warning To Poles

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — After a two-week lull in Poland's labor turmoil, a local Solidarity chapter called a strike alert as Soviet and Polish Communist Party leaders again raised the threat of intervention by other members of the Soviet Bloc if "anarchy and disarray" does not end in Poland.

Leaders of the independent trade federation's chapter in Lodz, Poland's second largest city, said Wednesday that they ordered a strike alert to protest the firing of five hospital workers, four of them Solidarity organizers.

Under the strike alert, union members distribute leaflets and posters and fly Polish flags in a show of strength. Union members are to meet Saturday in Lodz, the center of Poland's textile industry, to discuss their next step.

A union spokesman said the five were dismissed without explanation, and local and national government officials failed to respond to the union's appeal for their reinstatement. He said the alert was approved by the 10 million-member labor federation's central headquarters in the Gdansk.

"In this situation we believe that all possible means to solve the problems were used, without using the last resort — a strike. So we decided to announce a strike alert," a union communique said.

It was the first strike threat since Feb. 20, when farmers in Southeast Poland ended sit-ins after the government agreed to increase state aid for private farmers.

Meanwhile, Polish Communist Party chief Stanislaw Kania and the nation's premier and defense minister, Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, met in Moscow Wednesday with President Leonid I. Brezhnev and other Soviet leaders, including Defense Minister Dmitri Ustinov.

Tass, the official Soviet news agency, said the two delegations agreed on the "particularly pressing" need to counter the threat to Polish socialism.

Junta In Nicaragua Reduced By Shakeup

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Nicaragua's five-man ruling junta, accused by the Reagan administration of arming Salvadoran guerrillas, dropped two of its members in a sudden shakeup that conservative opponents say consolidates power in the hands of leftist Sandinistas.

At a news conference Wednesday, the junta announced that Sandinista junta member Daniel Ortega had been named "coordinator" of the new three-man ruling body and that two other members were to be reassigned to other high-level government posts.

Moderate Arturo Cruz, one of the two dropped junta members, was made Nicaragua's ambassador to Washington at a time of increasingly strained relations with the Reagan administration.

The other dropped junta member, pro-Sandinista Moises Hassan, was chosen to head a newly created "council of government" whose functions were not explained.

Two other moderates, Sergio Ramirez Mercado and Rafael Cordova, will remain on the junta, the ruling body said in an official communique.

It was not immediately clear what effect if any the changes would have on the relations between Managua and Washington, already strained by U.S. charges of Nicaraguan arms smuggling to Salvadoran guerrillas.

The announcement immediately drew fire from Sandinista opponents, including the Conservative Democratic Party representative on the State Council, Enrique Sotelo.

Sotelo said Ortega's appointment "increases in an evident, formal and legal manner the power of the Sandinista front" and created "a profound crisis" for future political harmony in the Central American nation.

Junta spokesman Emilio Baltodado, however, said the shakeup "guarantees better cohesion, efficacy and effectiveness" of the ruling body and will "strengthen it as the maximum organ of executive power."

Two Strong Earthquakes Rattle Greece; Hundreds Lose Homes

ATHENS, Greece (UPI) — Two strong earthquakes jolted the Athens region early today, toppling 250 houses in one village and sending thousands of Athenians fleeing into the streets in pajamas and bathrobes.

One person died of a heart attack, and eyewitnesses reported several injuries from the tremors — the third series of quakes to rock Athens in nine days. But authorities gave out no overall casualty figures.

"We thought the aftershocks were meant to die down but this one seems to be building up again," said one resident of Athens referring to the more than 1,200 aftershocks since last Tuesday's tremor.

"Every square is full of people in pajamas and bathrobes. They're really frightened," he said.

Athens radio reported that thousands fled to the streets.

The first tremor registered 6.2 on the open-ended Richter scale and hit two minutes before midnight Athens time, and the second measuring 5.2 struck three hours later, the radio reported.

The quake destroyed about 250 old houses in the village of Kapareli, 30 miles northwest of the capital, but no casualties were reported. In Megara, 30 miles west of Athens several houses were flattened and a man was injured by a falling fence.

Extra police patrolled highway intersections as thousands of families left the capital to spend the night in their cars in suburban streets.

Other families waited on the doorsteps of their apartments, too frightened to go back into buildings.

Eiffel Tower To Undergo Expensive Face-Lift

PARIS (UPI) — The Eiffel Tower is in store for a $3.8 million face-lift, with extra fire exits, electric elevators and a fast-food restaurant added to the landmark during the next two years.

The sprucing up of what has become one of the symbols of Paris was announced Wednesday by Bernard Rocher, president of the New Society for the Promotion of the Eiffel Tower.

Rocher said the 82-year-old attraction, which has been visited by 91 million tourists since its opening in 1889, will remain open during the renovations although some floors may be temporarily closed.

He said the renovation will cost $3.8 million and will be financed from a $2.8 million loan and from the tower's tourist revenues.

Rocher said the renovations will increase safety and make visiting the monument less of a hassle for the 4.2 million tourists expected to flock to the landmark during the 1980s.

The elevator system will be electrified by 1983, four electric elevators will double the capacity of tourist traffic in an attempt to shorten the waiting time.

There will be improvements to increase limited parking facilities.

The two tower restaurants will be demolished this month and replaced in the spring of 1982 by gift shops, a fast-food restaurant, a museum and a visitors center.

Archeologists Find Ancient City

ROME (AP) — Two archeologists believe they have located the site of the ancient city of Crustumium which, according to legend, battled Rome to liberate the Sabine women, the newspaper La Stampa said today.

Lorenzo Quilici and his wife, Stefania, of the National Council of Research told the Turin paper they found remnants of huge embankments and ditches around a flat area where they believe the ancient city once stood.

They also have found remains of two large tombs, ancient alleys and streets and earthenware believed to have been used by the Sabians, La Stampa said.

Legend has it that the Romans invaded the Sabine cities in the hills northeast of Rome in the 6th century B.C. and abducted and raped their women.

Rome was involved in numerous wars with the Sabines. Horatius is supposed to have defeated them in the 5th century B.C.

Tech Coed Hides From Burglar

REUNION COMING — Michael Ozog, 58, who works in a hospital cafeteria, holds up a photo showing his mother, seated, with two relatives as he sits in his Stoughton, Mass., home Wednesday. Ozog was separated from his family when German police took him from his home in Poland in November 1941 and has not seen his mother since. Recently, the International Red Cross located his mother and Ozog has received letters from her. He plans to go to Poland in May. (AP Laserphoto)

A Texas Tech University coed said she locked herself in a bedroom early this morning after hearing a burglar enter her house.

Police said the intruder apparently minutes earlier had stolen a purse belonging to one of the young woman's two roommates at a nearby club and used the key it contained to open the front door.

Two of the coeds said they had gone to the club on 19th Street Wednesday night, leaving another roommate at home. One of the coeds said that after leaving the club about midnight she discovered she did not have her purse, which contained a driver's license and a house key, and the two women went back to the club to get it.

However, the purse was not at the club and the Tech coeds headed back to their residence to call police, not realizing the house, at that moment, was being broken into and their roommate was hiding in a back room.

The young woman who had remained at home said she was in her bedroom shortly after midnight when she heard the front door open and a man yell the name of one of her roommate's several times. Not recognizing the voice, and knowing the roommate is known to her friends by a nickname, she locked herself in the bedroom.

Police said the man, apparently unaware anyone was at the house, rounded up several hundred dollars in loot, including stereo equipment, costume jewelry and tapes.

One of the other two women said that when they arrived home she looked through a window and saw a man leaving through a back door. She said she had seen the man at the club earlier.

The suspect was described as white, between 18 and 25, with a tall, thin build and curly brown hair. He was clad in a blue vest, jeans and brown shoes, according to reports.

In other activity, Lubbock police officer Patrick John Kelly said he was punched in the eye after waking a 16-year-old drunk about 4:10 a.m. today.

Kelly, who was not seriously injured, said he found the boy passed out in the front seat of a car, which was running and parked in the middle of the intersection at 34th Street and Flint Avenue.

It took the officer about five minutes to wake the teen-ager. Kelly said he was trying to get the boy out of the car when he "punched me in the left eye." The officer, in his report, stated he was hit several more times before subduing the youth and turning him over to juvenile authorities on suspicion of assaulting a police officer and public intoxication.

Two Levelland women, apparently angered about being told to leave a club when it closed at 2 a.m. today, were arrested about an hour later after they allegedly rammed the bartender's car parked outside the nightclub.

Charles Timothy Conner, who tends bar at Dave's Warehouse at 2402 Marshall St., said he told the women, ages 22 and 31, that they were going to have to leave because of the 2 a.m. curfew. Conner told police that minutes after emptying the bar he looked outside and saw the women ramming their vehicle into his car.

The employee said his car was hit three times before the pair drove west on Marshall Street. A witness followed the women to the 1800-block of Harvard Avenue, where their vehicle became stuck on top of a mound of dirt, reports state.

The witness then went back to the club, got police and led them to the women. Both were arrested for alleged criminal mischief and public intoxication.

A 61-year-old Lubbock woman spent a half hour in the county jail after she was caught allegedly attempting to cut the price of a bottle of shampoo at the United Supermarket, 106 N. University Ave.

An off-duty officer said he spotted the elderly woman peel off a $2.49 price sticker from the bottle about 8:30 p.m. Wednesday. He said that one of the suspect's two small granddaughters then handed her a sticker from a smaller bottle of shampoo.

While under observation, the woman, accompanied by the two children, allegedly cheated the store out of 80 cents by purchasing the item for $1.69. She was arrested outside the business and booked into the jail for alleged theft under $5.

A jail spokesman said the woman was out of jail within 30 minutes.

A city police officer said he broke up a domestic fight about midnight after watching the husband choke his wife and strike her several times in the face and chest.

The officer reported that when he arrived at the residence he could hear the woman pleading with the man to stop beating her. After being let in by 21-year-old victim, the officer ordered the couple to sit down and tell him what the problem was.

However, the man, instead, allegedly grabbed his wife by the throat and started choking her. The officer said he intervened and was attempting to pull the man away when the suspect struck his wife several times in the face and chest.

The officer eventually was able to wrestle the suspect to the floor, handcuffed him and took him to the county jail where he was booked on suspicion of assault.

Two Lubbock women said a man casually walked across a parking lot while pulling his pants down about 11:15 p.m. Wednesday. They said the man stood under a light in the lot in the 700-block of Avenue Q with his pants down to his ankles.

They said he walked away when he saw one of them pick up a telephone to call police.

Hi-Fidelity at 2217 34th St. sustained more than a $1,000 loss after it was broken into between 6 p.m. Wednesday and 3:40 a.m. today, police said. Reports state a front window was shattered, a stereo receiver stolen and several other items damaged.

There was no witness to the break-in, police said.

A 68-year-old Lubbock man told police he was robbed at knifepoint by two men with whom he was riding in a car Tuesday afternoon.

Rufus Butler Justice said he had cashed a check and paid the driver of the car $2. The other man, who was riding in the back seat, asked Justice if he could borrow $30, reports show.

Justice told the man he didn't have the money to loan, and the driver stopped the white Oldsmobile on a gravel road, police said.

The driver then produced a knife and forced Justice to hand over his money, totaling an estimated $117, reports show.

The men later made Justice get out of the vehicle and threatened to kill him if he reported the incident to police.

The suspects were described as black men, 26 to 35, one medium height and heavy, and the other tall and thin, police said.

In other activity, a Crime Line tip led to the recovery of an estimated $2,000 in clothing reported stolen from several local discount stores.

Two Lubbock men were jailed Wednesday morning when police detectives and uniformed officers searched the Seventh Street home of one of the suspects.

A Crime Line caller indicated Tuesday afternoon that the residents of the house had a large amount of stolen property, reports show.

When officers arrived about 10 a.m. Wednesday, the occupants would not let them inside so police forced open the front door and found the suspects asleep in the floor of the den, according to reports.

A 15-year-old boy was detained by juvenile authorities Wednesday morning after he allegedly slashed the tires on six vehicles at Smylie Wilson Junior High School, 4402 31st St.

The youth was detained after a witness reported seeing him slashing the tires about 8 a.m.

Texas Growers Want Produce Fumigated

By United Press International
Texas citrus growers say California producers should stop complaining about an embargo on unfumigated produce and start treating the fruits and vegetables.

Bill Thompson, a major citrus fruit grower in Mission said Wednesday that California has not proven they are rid of the Mediterranean fruit fly.

Texas agriculture officials, supported by growers like Thompson, Wednesday closed the west Texas border to trucks entering the state with California produce that had not been fumigated for Mediterranean fruit flies.

Thompson said California agriculture officials knew about the fruit fly problem last summer, but failed to start a program to get rid of the flies until January.

"California is crying about all this (quarantine) stuff," Thompson said. But what they need to do is get off their duffs and get this mess cleaned up."

Although agriculture officials did not report turning away any produce-laden vehicles, officials said checkpoints were established "at all major points entering Texas from the west."

Texas Agriculture Department officials brought inspectors from across the state to stop the trucks, but they cited security reasons in declining to identify the checkpoints.

"We've got a hole or two we've got to plug in the next 24 hours," said deputy agriculture commissioner Bob Williams.

The federal government Wednesday sided with the state of California in protesting the ban on untreated fruits and vegetables.

"(The Department of Agriculture) siding with California doesn't surprise me at all," said Mike Wallace, spokesman for Texas Citrus Mutual Inc. "They (USDA) supervised the California program to get rid of the Mediterranean flies. If it (the program) isn't working, it casts a bad light on their program."

USDA undersecretary Richard Lyng has called the Texas ban illegal.

UH Promises To Fire Absent Teachers

HOUSTON (UPI) — A spokesman for the University of Houston says the school will carry out its threat to fire any lecturers and teaching assistants who fail to appear at work by the end of the week.

A spokesman for the school's administration said today 81 classes — 59 of them in the English Department — were canceled Wednesday because of the striking teachers who are demanding higher pay. Another 54 classes were held.

Katherine Guild, spokeswoman for the 200-member association of teaching assistants and lecturers said her organization "has a tremendous amount of solidarity and will remain out sick." They continued today to call in sick.

However, university spokesman George Magner said the number of "sick" teachers has been steadily decreasing.

'Jumpathon' Set At Area School

Cooper Elementary School students at Woodrow will jump rope continuously for three hours Friday in a fund-raising "jumpathon" for the American Heart Association.

School principal Mary Frances Vinson said more than 100 students in teams of six will jump rope at the school from noon to 3 p.m. Friday.

The teams have solicited sponsors to contribute to the heart association on the basis of how long they continue during the event.

Physical education teacher Lee Ann Spray is coordinating the event, Mrs. Vinson said.

Up to 200 teaching assistants refused to come to work earlier this week in a dispute over low pay, but more and more now appear to be returning to the classroom.

"Many of them are recognizing the reality of the situation," Magner said.

The assistants are demanding an increase from their present $350 a month take-home pay to at least $850, and said they will stay out until school officials negotiate in good faith.

Chris Rampack, a teaching assistant in the physical education and health department, said school officials were given three weeks since the last sickout to make plans to pay increases, but it appeared there had been no progress.

"But they came to our meeting empty handed. All they offered us was a guaranteed grievance procedure, which is something the university already has," Rampack said. "That is what made us so irate."

Erratic Weather Called Normal

By REBECCA R. KIRTLAND
National Geographic News Service
WASHINGTON — Is a new weather script being written?

The East has shivered under a blanket of cold arctic air this winter, while at the same time, parts of the West have sweltered from 90-degree temperatures.

This erratic winter weather follows a summer in which a killer heat wave brought tragedy and drought to the West and southern Plains. And the record-breaking cold and snow of the past few winters follows a series of particularly mild winters in the early 1970s.

Controversy among climatologists is nearly as constant as change is to weather, but most expect these extremes of hot and cold, wet and dry, and calm and stormy with all their regional variations to continue into the next century.

"We have come to think of the extremely tranquil and benign climate of the 1950s and 1960s as normal, but in fact that was the aberration. The weather trauma we've been seeing since 1972 when, virtually with a bang, the weather began going wild, is normal historically," says Dr. J. Murray Mitchell Jr., climatologist at the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA).

Dr. Reid Bryson, director of the Institute for Environmental Studies at the University of Wisconsin, agrees: "Looking back over the past, there have been much larger extremes. Compared to the last 300 to 400 years, our weather is not unusual. Compared to the last million years, it is actually mild."

"People have a short tribal memory," says Dr. William W. Kellogg, co-author of "Climate Change and Society," a new report from the Aspen Institute. "We think our current weather is weird because it is different. Climate has certain averages, but fluctuates regionally. Every year, somewhere, a weather record is broken."

To reduce to bare bones the complex forces that create the diversity of weather, scientists explain that the sun drives the weather machine and that the transparency of the atmosphere plays the major role in how much energy reaches the earth's surface.

As this heat supply changes, the pattern of atmospheric circulation varies. When atmospheric circulation changes, the distribution of temperature and precipitation is altered — creating more dramatic regional weather.

"For example," Bryson notes, "while January 1977 was the coldest month up to that time in the Northeast, it was the warmest January on record for Anchorage, Alaska. Both places experienced a dramatic fluctuation of weather, but the earth's mean temperature remained fairly constant."

The two most significant forces affecting the transparency and conductivity of the atmosphere are dust particles thrown into the air by volcanic activity and the buildup of carbon dioxide from the burning of fossil fuels.

Volcanic eruptions put a layer of particles into the upper atmosphere, creating a "parasol" effect. The parasol reflects some of the sun's energy back into space, contributing to a gradual cooling of the earth.

Carbon dioxide in the earth's atmosphere creates a greenhouse effect which permits the sun's rays to pass through unimpeded but traps the heat at the earth's surface. Many believe a significant warming will result if fossil fuels remain the dominant source of energy.

Could the cooling effect of volcanic dust neutralize the warming effect of carbon dioxide? "Yes, temporarily," Mitchell says, although he believes carbon dioxide has the leverage to dominate climate in the long run. "But since both change circulation patterns, both change regional weather."

And both have increased significantly in the recent past.

Bryson says the level of volcanic activity has "nearly doubled since 1950," and he believes "about 90 percent of climate variation in the Northern Hemisphere can be explained by the variation in volcanism." Mitchell disagrees, saying that only about 60 percent of the change in temperature or atmospheric heat supply is related to volcanism.

Scientists agree that the effect of Mount St. Helen's eruption was negligible. But the aggregate effect of all 10 volcanic eruptions that occurred worldwide in 1980 will be appreciable, Bryson said.

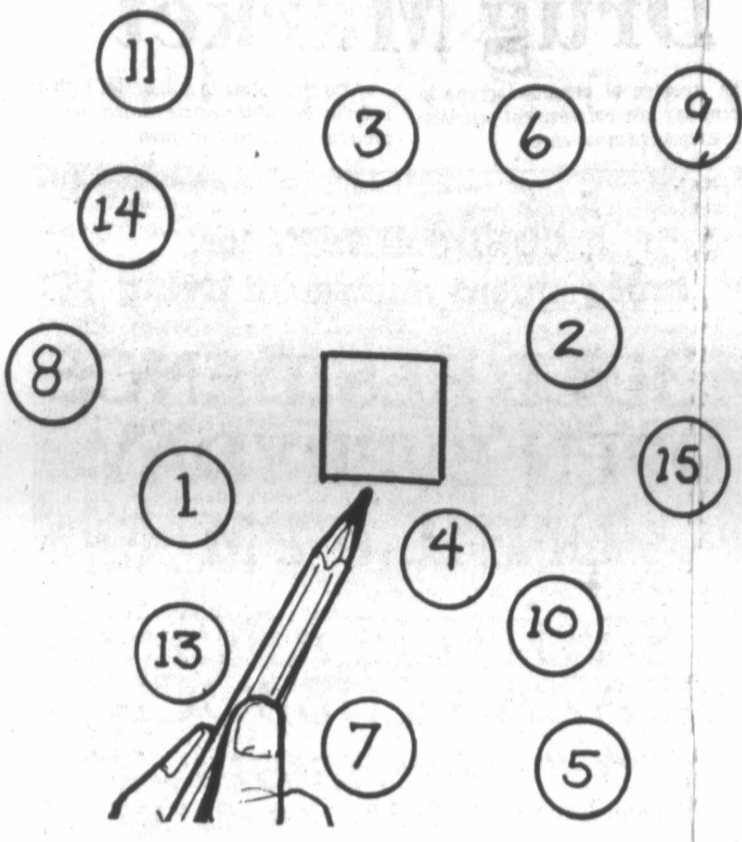

Carbon dioxide in the atmosphere is expected to increase by 15 percent within the next 20 years, raising the average world temperature by 1 degree F. In the next 100 years carbon dioxide is expected to at least double, increasing the average temperature by up to 5 degrees F, Mitchell said.

If a general warming occurs, and most climatologists believe it will, the hydrologic cycle would be accelerated — increasing both rainfall and evaporation.

As these anticipated changes will not be uniformly distributed, the effects will be bittersweet, Mitchell says. "A warmer climate and more abundant rainfall would lengthen growing seasons in the northern latitudes, such as Canada, the Soviet Union, and Scandinavia. But other parts of the world, including our own West and Midwest, could end up with water shortages and drought."

Checking Sentries Object Of Game

By SHARI LEWIS

Is anyone sleeping on the job? In this game, that's what you have to check!

Two people can play. (Actually, this game is fun to play alone or with lots of people — but I've always played it with another person and I know that's fun.)

Each player draws a small square in the middle of a sheet of paper. That's the fort. Then each writes the numbers 1 through 15. These numbers should be scattered all over the paper. Then draw a little circle around each number. Those are the sentries on sentry duty, protecting the fort.

Now the idea of the game is this: You have to check each soldier to see whether he is awake and doing his job, protecting the fort.

First, the players exchange papers. Next, each person must try to draw a line, starting at the fort, and, then, touching each of the sentries in numerical order, getting back to the fort without ever crossing any line at any point.

Whoever can check up on the largest number of sentries before the lines cross is the winner.

Don't forget, you must visit each sentry in numerical order — go to number 1 first, and then on to 2, to 3, 4, etc. — until you can return to that little fort.

Wednesday's Brain Twister: There are a least two musical instruments that change their shape when they're played. Can you name them?

Answer: The trombone and the accordion.

Pathologist Develops Early Cirrhosis Test

CHICAGO (AP) — A Michael Reese Hospital pathologist says a new early diagnosis test he has developed may help reverse or minimize liver damage caused by cirrhosis.

Dr. Martin Swerdlow told the annual meeting of the International Academy of Pathology that the degenerative disease has gone undetected in many alcoholics because doctors are unable to diagnose it accurately. If caught early, permanent liver damage can be offset through abstinence from alcohol, he said.

New England Becoming Lucrative Drug Market

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Northern New England has become a "drug runners' paradise" because of its miles of unguarded Atlantic coastline and Canadian border, law enforcement officials say.

Greater enforcement pressure is driving the traffickers north from the Caribbean and the Gulf of Mexico, according to Gordon Fink, chief of intelligence for the federal Drug Enforcement Administration.

"With hundreds of tons of marijuana being shipped in through Maine, and pills, heroin and cocaine coming into New Hampshire and Vermont from Canada, northern New England has become a drug runners' paradise," said William Shaheen, the U.S. attorney in New Hampshire.

Lt. Bill Dodge, head of the New Hampshire State Police drug investigation team, and some of his counterparts agree that northern New England — Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont — has become "a key point in the very lucrative drug market."

The presence of organized crime is apparent, say law enforcement officials, noting an upsurge in violence.

Also frustrating to authorities is their inability to halt the active involvement of prominent local businessmen.

Defendant Refutes Accusations Of Being Guard At Nazi Camp

CLEVELAND (AP) — Autoworker John Demjanjuk, saying he lied about his World War II whereabouts for fear of deportation, has taken the witness stand in federal court to deny allegations he was the Nazi death camp guard known as "I-wan the Terrible."

Demjanjuk, with his wife and two daughters looking on, testified for about two hours Wednesday in his own behalf about his life before coming to the United States in 1952.

The 60-year-old suburban Seven Hills man is charged with illegally entering the United States by covering up an alleged past as a guard at two Nazi camps where more than 1 million Jews were killed.

He said the photograph of the man in the Trawniki card looked like it might have been his. But he said that from the time he was captured by the Germans in May 1942 until 1945, he never had a haircut. The soldier in the picture has short hair.

"I never had such hair as the man in the photograph except in the Russian army," he said.

Demjanjuk's supporters in the Ukrainian community say the card, now in the hands of Soviet officials, could be a fake.

Demjanjuk said a signature on the card also was not his and testified that he is 6-foot-1. The card says Iwan Demjanjuk was 175 centimeters, or 5-foot-9.

Patient's Pregnancy Prompts Debate

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (UPI) — Doctors recommend an abortion for an unmarried Catholic mental patient who is three months pregnant, but the woman's family is fighting for her right to have the baby.

Superior Court Judge Bob Krug was to hold a hearing today to determine whether the woman — a diagnosed schizophrenic and ward of the county identified only as Mary — would be allowed to bear the child.

Doctors at Patton State Hospital advised last month that Mary, 38, abort the pregnancy because of the physical dangers to the mother and baby, including the effects of the psychotropic drugs she has taken to control her illness.

Man Receives $2 Million In Swine Flu Damages

HONOLULU (AP) — A 45-year-old meteorologist who was temporarily paralyzed after receiving a swine flu shot has settled a suit against the government for $2 million, the highest award of damages to come from the controversial 1976 inoculation program, lawyers say.

Barre syndrome, a creeping paralysis. Studies by the Centers for Disease Control found the incidence of the disease increased 11-fold after the swine flu inoculation program.

Mary's sister, Christine Stevens, said the family opposes abortion on ethical and religious grounds. Another sister said she and her husband, who have been unable to have children of their own, want to adopt the baby.

"Mary has been raised a Catholic and gone to Catholic schools," Mrs. Stevens said.

If Krug permits Mary to have the baby, he will decide who will be given conservatorship of the child.

Kenneth Hazemoto and his wife, Mildred, will receive an immediate $315,000 in cash as well as $30,000 a year tax-free for as long as he lives, with 3 percent increases compounded annually, according to terms of the out-of-court settlement reached Monday night.

The approval of Attorney General William French Smith is needed before payments can begin.

If Hazemoto lives to be 77, his normal life expectancy, he will receive $2.07 million. If he dies before 2001, his heirs will receive annual payments totaling up to more than $1 million.

Leslie Ohta, one of the two trial attorneys for the U.S. Justice Department who handled the case, said the size of the settlement stemmed from the severity of Hazemoto's illness and its after-effects.

"This is by far the worst case in the country," she said. "The pain and suffering aspect is tremendous. We've never seen anything so severe."

Hazemoto was a victim of Guillain-

Aspirin's Link To Disease Still Unclear

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although parents should be cautious about giving aspirin to children suffering from viral diseases, the association between the drug and sometimes-fatal Reye's Syndrome isn't strong enough to stop the practice, says a group of experts.

The National Institutes of Health panel said Wednesday that some studies indicate an apparent association between aspirin use and the disease, which can lead to death or brain damage.

"But the data is not so clear as to preclude the use of this medication when there is a need to use it," said Dr. Philip R. Dodge, chairman of the panel.

Dodge, of the Washington University Medical School in St. Louis, said more research is needed to clarify the connection between aspirin and other drugs and the disease.

Aspirin is the traditional drug used to control fever and aches from influenza and other viral illnesses, and the group said there was no clear evidence that precludes its use. But it advised parents to use caution in giving children aspirin and other drugs for these diseases.

Dr. William Soller, scientific director for Sterling Drug Inc., makers of Bayer aspirin, said the panel presented a "balanced view" of the aspirin-Reye's question.

Soller said the public had been unduly alarmed about the link because of limited information, and he called for further studies to settle the issue.

Hawaii Affordable Vacation Spot

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Anne Ray, a former resident of Lubbock and Avalanche-Journal reporter, is with the public relations department of Hyatt Hotels Hawaii.)

By ANNE RAY

It's a dream that can come true. The dream of vacationing in Hawaii — the land of Aloha! And with that dream comes a list of the best that Hawaii has to offer.

To be exact, it's the 10 best things, from the finest restaurants and hotels in the world to the best beaches and consistently warm temperatures year-round.

Take it from veteran world traveler Edward G. Sullivan: "In the world marketplace of travel destinations, there is no place like Hawaii."

Sullivan, regional vice president of Hyatt Hotels Hawaii and member of the board of directors of the Hawaii Visitors Bureau and the Hawaii Hotel Association added, "Hawaii has the friendliest atmosphere, the best weather, spectacular beaches and a wide variety of cultural offerings from the many nationalities represented in the island population."

What specifically makes Hawaii such a great place to spend a vacation? Hyatt Hotels Hawaii has compiled a list of the 10 best things Hawaii, especially the island of Oahu (home of Waikiki Beach and Honolulu) has to offer:

The Aloha Spirit — "Aloha." It's a word heard often in the island of Hawaii and it has many meanings, from "hello" and "goodbye" to "I love you." The people of Hawaii, 80 percent of whom live and work on the island of Oahu, are filled with the warmth and friendliness the word "Aloha" implies.

The All American Destination — as the 50th state, Hawaii offers all of the comforts of home as well as the cultural offerings that come from around the world. Sample exotic foods, and learn about the Hawaiian people as well as the people from countries such as Japan, China, the Philippines, Samoa and Portugal. But buy those souvenirs with the American dollar and order your meal in English.

Fantastic Weather — Hawaii is warm year-round with summer temperatures rarely going beyond the low 90s and winter temperatures peaking around 80 in the daytime. Tradewinds keep the visitors cool and nights are balmy and filled with the romance of Hawaii.

Best of Beaches — With water temperatures in the 70s and low 80s throughout the year, Hawaii's beaches are the

The Kodak Hula Show in Kapiolani Park is a favorite attraction, offering the finest in Hawaii's music and dances at 10 a.m. each Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. While there, visit the Honolulu Zoo and view an impressive collection of birds, mammals and reptiles.

The Bishop Museum houses one of the most extensive collections of items from the Polynesian and South Seas cultures in the world with displays of feather capes, poi pounders, weapons and other remnants from the early days of Hawaii.

On Oahu's North Shore, about an hour's drive from Waikiki, is the Polynesian Cultural Center which features the songs and dances of Hawaii, Fiji, Maori, New Zealand, Samoa, Tahiti and Tonga.

Special Events — In addition to the timeless attractions that keep Hawaii's visitors intrigued, there are many sports and cultural events that happen annually. For instance there is the Annual Hawaiian Music Festival; this year's event is set for April 14-28 at Waikiki Shell in Kapiolani Park.

Sports Enthusiasts Dream World — Hawaii's perfect climate makes it a haven for many sports activities. Thousands of joggers take to the road, enjoying routes around Diamond Head Crater, Kapiolani Park, Ala Moana Park or the Ala Wai Canal.

There is surfing with international meets held annually; snorkeling and skin diving in crystal clear waters; horseback riding; yachting and canoeing in the old-fashioned outrigger canoes that brought the first settlers to the islands.

Fine Dining — As a "melting pot" of the world's people, Hawaii has become the center of fine dining, offering a wide variety of cultural dishes at all types of prices. Travel-Holiday annually names the outstanding restaurants in America with the 1981 awards going to 14 Waikiki restaurants including Bagwells 2424 in the Hyatt Regency Waikiki, the Bistro (Diamond Head), Canlis, Champeaux's, Chez Michel, the Hanohano Room, John Dominis, the Malle Restaurant, the Mandarin Palace (Chinese), Matteo's (Italian), Michel's The Third Floor, Trattoria and the Willows (Old-style Hawaiian).

Luxury Accommodations — Waikiki, once a swampland populated by quacking waterfowl and ponds of fish, is now lined with some of the finest hotels in the world.

Round-the-World Shopping — What's a vacation without a suitcase of souvenirs for the folks back home? Of the favorite shopping areas are the Ala Moana Shopping Center, 50 acres of 155 shops filled with the best Hawaii has to offer; the Hyatt Regency Waikiki and King's Alley at Hemmeler Center (King's Alley is the only themed shopping center on Oahu, with cobblestone walkways meandering past stores whose architecture is an authentic replica of Hawaii's 19th century monarchy period); the newest shopping mall on Waikiki, the Royal Hawaiian Center.

Hawaii's got it all. And the best that Hawaii has to offer will continue to make it the best bargain in today's travel market.

ISLAND LIFE — Anne Ray, formerly of Lubbock, is surrounded by tropical flowers as she takes a break from her duties as assistant public relations director with Hyatt Hotels in Hawaii.

envy of the world's seaside resorts. Each of the beautiful beaches that ring Oahu offer different water conditions and surroundings. Swim at world-famous Waikiki Beach or snorkle at crystal clear Hanalei Bay. Surfing enthusiasts will love Sunset Beach and Waimea Bay on Oahu's North Shore where international competition is held each winter.

Enjoyable Attractions — From downtown Honolulu to the Pearl Harbor area and onward to the North Shore, Oahu is rich with Hawaii's past.

Visit Pearl Harbor and take the free Navy cruise to the U.S.S. Arizona which was sunk by Japanese fighter planes in their attack on Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, 1941.

Former Lubbockite Finds Way Back To Islands

How did a Red Raider from Lubbock get to the land of Aloha?

"I followed an old Hawaiian tradition of throwing my flower lei overboard as my family and I sailed away from the islands years ago," said Anne Ray, former Lubbock resident and reporter for The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal.

Miss Ray explained that when the major ocean liners used to sail into Honolulu, there was great festivity with hula dancers and Hawaiian musicians welcoming the arriving visitors.

When a ship left, the departing visitors shed a few tears, threw coins in the water for the young divers to retrieve, and as they let their leis drop into the blue Pacific Ocean, they prayed the flowers would make it to shore. The ritual follows the Hawaiian belief that if the flowers make it to the beach, the person will return to the islands.

"My lei must have made it back to Waikiki Beach," said Miss Ray who has lived on the islands the past five years.

She is now assistant public relations director for Hyatt Hotels Hawaii. Her responsibilities include promoting the luxurious Hyatt Regency at Waikiki, the Hyatt Kuliama Resort on Oahu's North Shore and the Hyatt Regency Maui.

Miss Ray is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John P. Ray Jr. of Lubbock. She and her family lived in Honolulu in 1956-58 where her father was stationed at Tripler Army Hospital.

"Hawaii for me was where I had my happiest years. As a young girl, I loved the weekends spent on the white sand beaches and afternoons when my mother would take my sisters and me to the local YWCA for hula lessons," she said. "When we left, I vowed I would return one day to the islands, but it wasn't until two years after graduating from Texas Tech that I finally made my dream come true."

Miss Ray, who worked for The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal for six years, as well as for two local television stations and the Texas Tech School of Medicine, moved to the island of Maui in 1975.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It's not that you won't be ambitious tomorrow — it's that you may channel your efforts in the wrong direction.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be careful tomorrow that you don't step out of character and permit the green-eyed monster of envy to affect your thinking.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you are at a gathering tomorrow where friends are saying unkind things about a pal who isn't present, you'd be wise to express your own views.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your objectives must be clearly defined tomorrow, or confusion might enter the picture.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Others cannot be expected to support your views or opinions tomorrow if they feel you don't totally believe in them.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Joint commercial ventures could be a trifle trickier tomorrow than usual.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Under pressure tomorrow you could make concessions or commitments which may not serve your best interests.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Co-workers must be handled with kid gloves tomorrow or you may inadvertently do something which they could take offense at that you'd have a hard time rectifying.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Guard against impulsive spending tomorrow and also be careful how you deal with friends socially. In some unique manner these two influences may negatively overlap.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You know what needs doing tomorrow and you are a good starter, but your incentive could wane and you may fade in the home stretch. Be tenacious.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Say nothing of anyone tomorrow which you wouldn't like said of yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Tomorrow will not be a good day to do any deficit spending.

Canadians Using Water Power To Reduce Dependence On Oil

NEW YORK (UPI) — Americans have good reason to be envious these days of residents of eastern Canada, says Robert A. Boyd, president of Hydro-Quebec.

Quebec's huge outlays for hydroelectric power in the James Bay area are enabling eastern Canadians to heat their homes electrically for about a quarter of what it would cost in the United States.

In fact, Quebec's water power could replace soon free eastern Canada from dependence on oil for everything except motor vehicle fuel.

"We could even become largely independent on that score," Boyd told United Press International.

"Hydro-Quebec is presently engaged in joint venture experimentation with a French company to develop a new storage battery that might enable the electric automobile to replace gasoline and diesel vehicles for urban transportation and short-haul inter-city traffic."

Boyd refused to name the French company or to reveal the principle of the new battery. If it is successful, he said, it will store and produce four or five times as much power per pound as a conventional lead acid battery and will be much more powerful than the new storage battery General Motors is putting so much faith in. Boyd said he had "reasonable" faith that the radical French battery will be a success.

Boyd was in New York to receive the award as "Construction's Man of the Year" from McGraw-Hill's periodical Engineering News-Record for leading the long struggle in Canada to expand hydroelectric power "while the rest of the world was sold a bill of goods on nuclear power plant costs."

The citation recounted how Boyd had gotten Quebec committed to the $15 billion, 10,269-megawatt James Bay program, raised the money and carried it out successfully against the initial opposition of such powerful Quebec politicians as Rene Levesque, who almost succeeded in getting Quebec to secede from Canada.

Brazil Ready For Talks With New Administration

BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) — After a long period of coolness toward the United States, Brazil's military-backed government now says it is ready to begin discussions with the Reagan administration on friendlier contacts.

The government stresses, however, that it will not accept any automatic alliances in relations with other countries.

"We have no inhibitions so long as the basis for the talks involves a mature conception of the current realities," Foreign Minister Ramiro Saraiva Guerreiro told a questioner recently. "We are always ready to conduct talks on all levels. But conversation is always a two-way street. And the decision of course will depend on the new (Reagan) administration."

At stake for the United States are medium- and long-term economic benefits if Brazil reaches its potential as a major agricultural and industrial power in coming decades. Meanwhile, U.S. military officials say Brazil is a vital link for security interests in the Southern Hemisphere.

Gen. David C. Jones, chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, said in a recent policy statement that the "loss of U.S. influence and a decline in U.S. military assistance (in South America) have reduced the desire and ability of South American nations to support U.S. security interests." Brazil, he added, "is particularly important because of its location on the Atlantic narrows, as well as because of its present and growing military capability."

Brazilian and U.S. officials say they have no major complaints about what the Brazilians repeatedly describe as "good, very cordial relations."

On the U.S. side, Sen. Thad Cochran, R-Miss., leading the first Senate delegation to visit Brazil in several years, said after meeting with Guerreiro that "no major problems exist between our nations."

"Brazil is a major world nation which deserves the fullest possible attention and understanding from the United States," he told reporters.

But U.S. diplomats say privately that relations between the countries have suffered from chronic neglect, with State Department emphasis on Latin America focusing on flash points of conflict, especially in Central America.

"There has been some talk about improved relations recently," said one authoritative U.S. source here. "I don't think the (Reagan) administration will pay much more attention to Brazil" than others before it.

Relations with Brazil hit a low point in the early part of President Jimmy Carter's term of office. Brazil, already angered by U.S. objections to a 1975 nuclear deal with West Germany, broke a military cooperation pact with the United States after a congressional report criticized the military-backed government on its human rights record.

More recently, relations have been carefully smoothed over as the United States muted criticism on nuclear policy and human rights, while Brazil began its highly touted policy of political opening.

But Brazil has cautiously maintained its distance, refusing to side with the United States in its ban on grain sales to the Soviet Union or in the Carter plea to join in the boycott of the Moscow Olympics last summer.

U.S. military sources say cooperation with the Brazilian armed forces is flourishing. Exchange programs are under way between all branches of the American and Brazilian military — the largest in Latin America.

Brazil has maintained close cultural ties with the United States. English is a popular second language, spoken by most Brazilian diplomats.

But there is a nationalistic suspicion here that all U.S. moves are intended to create a stronger profit-making foothold in Brazil, still dependent on the United States as its largest single trading partner.

Foreign Ministry officials discuss the need for less protectionist economic relations and for more high-level technical help. Brazil unceremoniously forced the U.S. Peace Corps to leave Brazil as of last Jan. 1, saying the organization's offer of free social welfare volunteers "is not the type of technical assistance we think is important to the nation at this time."

Brazil's importance for the United States, officials say, can be seen in current economic statistics as well as in the perennial prediction the South American country will be a superpower in the future.

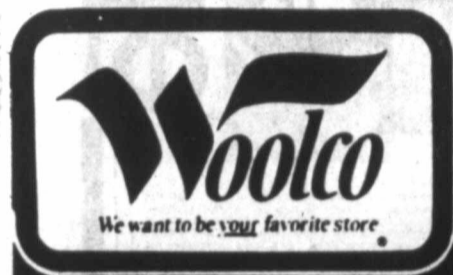

The Portuguese-speaking nation of 119 million people is listed by U.S. economics specialist as the world's eighth largest market economy, with a gross domestic product of $213 billion in 1979. It leads the developing world with a foreign debt of close to $65 billion, $15 billion of which is owed to U.S. banks. Total direct

U.S. investment in Brazil is close to $8 billion, according to official statistics.

U.S. agricultural specialists say Brazil, with a land mass larger than the 48 contiguous U.S. states, could be the world's largest supplier of food by the turn of the century. It already is tops in sugar and corn production.

Reports Containing More Information

By JOHN CUNIFF
NEW YORK (AP) — You can sense the mood of the times in corporate annual reports, which each year at this time weight the postman's bag, and in more instances than companies admit, fill trash bags soon after.

This does not mean the annual report really is trash, but many a household receiving a report, as a right of share ownership, considers a chairman's message and a centerfold of smokestacks comparatively dull.

It is another matter for brokers, securities analysts, mutual and pension fund portfolio managers, employees, soon-to-graduate students at business schools, accountants and government regulators.

For them there is always a specific message, a tip buried deep in the fine type, something to be discerned between the lines, a reference to a new product by the chairman. And there is a general message too.

The general message varies with the times. When environmental concerns first absorbed the country more than a decade ago, some annual report covers depicted the chairman in ankle-deep grass on the company lawn. When lagging productivity became an issue, charts and graphs abounded showing the danger to the country. As expected, automakers' reports have switched from graphic depictions of horsepower to fuel saving charts.

Today, the big doubt in the minds of annual report readers concerns the future. With the economy at a crossroads, they are eager for tips about the future, backed up by numbers and hard arguments.

Information rather than impression is needed, and that, says a student of the annual report, is what annual report readers are getting, albeit with "some grumblings in the executive suite."

Richard Lewis, author of the statement, maintains that this year's reports are "the most informative annual reports in history." Some projections might be softer than the hard data people seek, he concedes, but he states that chairmen are getting the point.

"Traditionally, executives have been reluctant to make predictions in the annual report," says Lewis, whose Corporate Annual Reports Inc. claims to be the leading producer of blue chip annuals.

"FOUR FREEDOMS" expressed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt in his State of the Union message to Congress on Jan. 6, 1941, were: the freedom of speech and expression, the freedom to worship God; the freedom from want; and the freedom from fear.

"Now," he says, "the Securities and Exchange Commission is telling management to use information to make an educated guess about what might happen."

Their acquiescence, Lewis says, "is an historic first step that will lead to more specific projections in the future."

He observes some other trends also: —More emphatic discussion of economic, political and social issues. "Few companies are keeping quiet about the troubled business environment," he says. "They're making strong, detailed statements about government regulation, energy shortages, inflation and high interest rates."

—Getting right to the point. "The pretty cover picture is giving way to hard-hitting sentences such as: 'It's tough to beat inflation, but we've done it.'" (Lewis does not name the companies that have.)

—Special reports for employees. "Many companies concerned about productivity are issuing special employee reports that tell employees where the corporation is headed, and how that will affect his life."

In brief — and that too is a trend detected in some reports — the annual report this year is a serious publication. Like so many these days, its authors and commentators know they must give more than a summary of the past, that they must also look into the murky future.

It's the mood this year.

Defense Budget May Go Higher

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, finding support in Congress for its proposed $32.6 billion buildup in military spending through 1982, is promising to seek even more money for defense if it fails to tame inflation.

Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger, outlining a budget he said would make "a major start on meeting needs too long unmet," said Wednesday he would submit a supplemental request if prices of military hardware increase beyond the administration's estimates.

"We have to keep this program intact, absolutely," Weinberger told the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Under questioning by Sen. John Warner, R-Va., Weinberger conceded the revised defense budget envisions lower inflation than the Carter administration's forecast, which he previously said was underestimated.

But he said it is "fair to assume a lower (inflation) rate" if President Reagan's proposed tax cut and domestic spending reductions are enacted.

The Reagan administration predicts inflation will drop steadily to 7.2 percent in 1982 and 4 percent in 1986 as the president's economic recovery program takes hold. It was 12.4 percent last year, and the Carter administration's last forecast was for 9.6 percent in 1982 and 6 percent in 1986.

"If what we hope does not come to pass and we are not able to reduce inflation and don't get the cuts we are seeking, then I will have to present you with a supplemental," Weinberger said.

Members of the committee generally welcomed the budget increase, which would pay for an expanded Navy, a new bomber, a new kind of nerve gas and substantial pay raises for military personnel.

"There is no doubt that increased resources are required," said Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, the committee chairman.

Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., the senior Democrat on the panel, told Weinberger, "I believe you will get your money this year," and Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., said the additional spending is "absolutely essential."

Tower indicated he wants the Pentagon's major budgets approved by Congress before there is any backlash about cuts in domestic programs.

Raymond Donovan Eyes Union Corruption

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three Reagan administration Cabinet officers are promising an aggressive campaign against alleged union corruption in an apparent effort to blunt charges that protection of pension funds has been only half-hearted in recent years.

Leading the new initiative is Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan, whose confirmation hearings were clouded by allegations that his New Jersey construction firm made payoffs to the Teamsters union in the late 1960s to buy labor peace.

Less than two weeks after ordering "a searching inquiry" to determine what should be done about alleged corruption in the International Longshoremen's Association, Donovan met Wednesday with Attorney General William French Smith and Treasury Secretary Donald Regan to seek better coordination of government suits alleging mismanagement of the pension and health and welfare funds of the 2 million-member Teamsters.

Noting congressional charges that it hasn't devoted enough time and manpower to the Teamsters' case, the Labor Department issued a statement on behalf of Donovan, Smith and Regan, saying the administration will work harder to safeguard people's retirement money.

Labor Department Solicitor Tim Ryan told Smith and Regan the department will hire "very professional" attorneys to press the case against the Teamsters, said a department source who declined to be identified.

"We will give it the highest priority," Ryan was quoted as saying. The source said Ryan noted that the new legal talent was being sought at Donovan's behest.

Donovan, in a Feb. 21 letter to Sen. Sam Nunn of Georgia, ranking Democrat of the Senate permanent investigations subcommittee, declared his department "has an obligation to the rank-and-file union members and to the general public to take an active part in keeping unions free of undesirable influences."

A major Justice Department and FBI probe of waterfront racketeering has resulted in the convictions of 52 ILA officials and 58 others during the past two years.

During confirmation hearings, Donovan underwent intensive questioning on a variety of allegations made by FBI informants claiming that Schiavone Construction Co., and Donovan as its executive vice president, bought labor peace from the Teamsters.

Railroad Nominee Tells Senate Some Trains Need To Be Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some Amtrak passenger trains that do not pay their own way should be eliminated so Amtrak can operate successfully within a limited budget, says President Reagan's nominee for federal railroad administrator.

"The business-as-usual approach does not serve the public interest of this country," Robert W. Blanchette said Wednesday. "We've got to work out a new scheme for Amtrak because it just doesn't work right now."

Ever since Amtrak was created by the Nixon administration, the executive branch has tried to trim it back. But Congress has always stepped in to save some lines the various administrations wanted to eliminate.

In testimony before the Senate Committee on Science, Commerce and Transportation, which will vote on his nomination, Blanchette said any freight-carrying railroad in the Northeast must be self-sustaining or it will wind up being nationalized.

"We know that without severe measures being taken there is no possible hope for either Conrail or any other successor freight-carrying railroad in the Northeast," he said.

Conrail, set up by Congress in 1976 to reorganize and consolidate six bankrupt Northeast railroads, already has cost the United States about $7 billion and everything that has been planned for it would cost more, Blanchette said.

"It is now the time to recognize that a private-sector solution to Conrail has to be very seriously considered because the status quo, which is a continuing hemorrhaging of public monies, serves neither the public interest nor the private interest," he said.

Blanchette, 46, an attorney from New Haven, Conn., worked for 15 years for the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, and for the Penn Central Transportation Co.

He was appointed counsel to the Penn Central Transportation Co. after Penn Central went bankrupt in 1970, and in 1974 became chairman of Penn Central's board of trustees.

what the president is trying to do ... We are not emasculating the programs," he said.

Reagan has proposed ending in-school interest subsidies on loans to college students, restricting how much students can borrow, ending the $2 billion Social Security student benefit and narrowing eligibility for basic grants.

NO VULCANIZATION

In 1768 a French scientist presented Frederick the Great with a rare pair of rubber riding boots. Unfortunately, vulcanization — the process of heating rubber with sulphur to make it permanently firm and uniformly elastic — had not yet been discovered by Charles Goodyear, and Frederick's boots stuck to his feet in hot weather and cracked in cold.

Desegregation Cases To Be Discussed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Education T.H. Bell says he hopes to bring college desegregation cases against eight states "back to the discussion table."

"I think we've gone to confrontation too quickly there," Bell said Wednesday.

Bell told 75 college presidents that he was "trying to weigh philosophically" the new administration's stand on the college-desegregation cases and on atletic violations of Title IX, which bans sex discrimination in education.

In complaints issued in January under a deadline imposed by a federal judge, the outgoing Carter administration told Alabama, Delaware, Florida, Kentucky, Missouri, Pennsylvania, South Carolina and West Virginia that their public colleges retained vestiges of illegal segregation.

The Department of Education still is waiting for the states to respond to its complaints.

Earlier, several of the college presidents, who were in Washington to lobby for the American Association of State Colleges and Universities, held a news conference to decry what they said would be the disastrous results of President Reagan's proposed multi-billion dollar cuts in student aid.

Harold Abel, president of Central Michigan University, suggested Reagan reduce tobacco subsidies, water projects or shipping subsidies before cutting education funds.

But Bell urged the college officials to accept the proposed cuts in student aid for the good of the nation.

"We hadn't ought to launch a vigorous frontal attack that will tear down education and welfare, the Washington Post reported.

The anti-smoking program employs about 30 persons and operates with a $3 million budget. The program is a major irritant to tobacco states and caused the Carter administration serious problems with tobacco state lawmakers.

Early in his second term, President Nixon appointed a new OEO director, Howard Phillips, with instructions to dismantle the anti-poverty agency.

'82 Budget Has No Funds For Anti-Poverty Agency

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Capitol Hill liberals concede support for President Reagan's attack on federal spending is likely to wipe out the last vestige of the widely heralded "War on Poverty" — the Community Services Administration.

An agency spokesman confirmed the administration's budget proposals for fiscal 1982 — to be made public Tuesday — will contain no money for the anti-poverty agency created by President Lyndon Johnson in 1964.

"We hope to put up a fierce battle, but the odds have changed," said an agency spokesman.

He was referring to changed circumstances that make the agency, the successor to the Office of Economic Opportunity, vulnerable — a Republican-controlled Senate and "a new mood" encouraging deeper budget cuts than ever before.

The new budget proposals also are expected to cut back the anti-smoking program championed by Joseph Califano, President Carter's secretary of health, what the president is trying to do ... We are not emasculating the programs," he said.

Reagan has proposed ending in-school interest subsidies on loans to college students, restricting how much students can borrow, ending the $2 billion Social Security student benefit and narrowing eligibility for basic grants.

Students, Churches Leading Anti-War Movement

WASHINGTON (AP) — From campuses to churches, a fledgling anti-war movement is emerging in America. This one opposes increased U.S. military involvement in El Salvador, and it is drawing support from veterans of Vietnam protests a decade ago.

Already, there have been campus teach-ins and protest rallies. A hunger strike is scheduled. And soon, the hallmark of the anti-Vietnam era will return: a march on the Pentagon.

"There is a tremendous awareness that this (U.S. involvement) looks like what happened around Vietnam," said

Heidi Tarver, coordinator for the Committee in Solidarity with the People of El Salvador. "People are saying, 'We're not going to be taken in again.'"

Ron Kovic, former leader of Vietnam Veterans Against the War, said he was surprised when hundreds of college students turned out for El Salvador teach-ins on the West Coast.

The protests over El Salvador "have been very sophisticated and have come very quickly," Kovic said. "The protest is inevitably going to build and it will involve Vietnam Veterans Against the War. ... I don't think another American boy should have to die for another mistake."

Sister Pat Haggerty says her Maryknoll order of the Roman Catholic Church has been flooded with requests for speakers on El Salvador. The talks have been attracting "a wide cross-section" of people, she said.

"There is a very strong feeling as Americans get a chance to see the other side of the picture in El Salvador," Sister Haggerty said, arguing that the State Department has misrepresented the Salvadoran civil war as a power struggle between the United States and the Soviet Union.

She contends the conflict is a "people's struggle for liberation and against repression."

The protest groups frequently couple their opposition to increased military aid to El Salvador's civilian-military junta with attacks on President Reagan's proposed cuts in social programs.

"U.S. — Hands off El Salvador! Money for Jobs, Human Needs, Not for the Pentagon," reads a flyer for a May 3 march on the Pentagon scheduled by a group called the Peoples' Anti-War Mobilization.

The newly formed group is a coalition of student and civil rights groups, liberal and left-wing religious leaders, and former anti-Vietnam War activists. Among the sponsors are anti-war figures Daniel and Philip Berrigan, Harvard Professor George Wald and author Noam Chomsky.

But the leadership of the new movement appears to be coming primarily from religious groups, particularly the Roman Catholic Church, which has been active in citizen movements throughout Latin America.

Priests and nuns from the Maryknoll order have been in the vanguard of that struggle and of protests against increases in military aid to El Salvador.

Catholic opposition to the Salvadoran junta has grown over the past year with the murders of El Salvador's Archbishop Oscar Arnulfo Romero and three American nuns. Romero was a critic of the junta's human rights policies, and some U.S. officials believe government security forces may have been involved in the murders of the nuns.

The Reagan administration is sending $25 million in additional military aid and 20 more non-combat U.S. advisers to bolster El Salvador's government.

Hijacker Still Holds 118 Aboard Jetliner

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — A Pakistani plane flew back from Kabul today with 28 people freed from a hijacked jetliner. But 118 others, including several Americans and a World Bank official, remained captive and the hijacker again threatened to set off grenades aboard the aircraft at the Afghan airport in Kabul.

The hijacker demanded that 79 Pakistanis, including political prisoners, be flown to Kabul, the Afghan capital. A Pakistani official said some of them were in jail, but that others were "not even in custody."

The hijacker has identified himself as Mohammad Alamgir, said he has two accomplices and hand grenades aboard and that his final destination is Iran.

According to Pakistani officials, those aboard the evacuation plane included 10 children and 16 women released Wednesday from the Pakistan International Airlines Boeing 720, which the hijacker commandeered Monday during a flight between Karachi and Peshawar in northern Pakistan.

Apparently also aboard the evacuation plane, which landed in Peshawar, were two men who Afghanistan radio said were released by the hijacker because they were in ill health.

U.S. Embassy officials said they believed Deborah Leighton Weisner, of Auburn, Maine, and Charlotte Hubbell were among those released. Mrs. Hubbell's hometown was not immediately available.

EXPLAINS U.S. POLICY — Secretary of State Alexander Haig Jr. speaks to newsmen in Capitol Hill Wednesday after briefing members of the Senate on U.S. foreign policy and efforts to assist El Salvador's ruling junta to defeat leftist guerrillas. Senate To Rush Budget Slashes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker said today he hopes Congress can complete work on President Reagan's proposals for budget and tax cuts by July 4, the most optimistic timetable yet outlined by any of the president's legislative allies.

"That may be a very optimistic estimation, but it's possible to do that and I hope we will do that," Baker said at a news conference.

The Senate GOP leader said the Budget Committee would begin drafting a blueprint to accommodate Reagan's proposed spending cuts on March 16, and expressed hope the full Senate could act on the proposal before the Easter recess.

On another matter, Baker predicted the full Senate would support Reagan's request to cancel a scheduled increase in the dairy price support program.

The Senate Agriculture Committee voted Wednesday to support Reagan on the issue, handing him a victory in the first real test of the administration's effort to restrain federal spending. Canceling the increase would save an estimated $147 million this year.

But PIA officials who met the evacuation plane said later that Miss Weisner refused to get off the hijacked aircraft if her fiancé, Pakistani-born Mian Manzoor Ahmed, a deputy sheriff from Auburn, remained aboard.

U.S. Embassy officials said they could not immediately confirm the report on Miss Weisner.

Radio Afghanistan reported that an American child of Pakistani origin, Zuhair Qureshi, and his mother also were released, but embassy officials said they could not confirm this.

The embassy officials said at least two other Americans were believed aboard the hijacked plane — Mrs. Hubbell's husband Frederick and Miss Weisner's fiancé.

Lawmakers Hear Plea By Cavazos

Wednesday, Farabee noted that a similar nutrition program operates at Texas Woman's University in Denton. Some legislators are reluctant to fund both programs, saying it would be a duplication of services to the state.

Cavazos also asked the committee to look favorably on the Junction Annex Operation, which conducts studies on the use of arid and semi-arid lands, among other programs.

Cavazos said he is "deeply concerned about it" because "it is the most unique institution that we have."

Baker said the full Senate would vote on the proposal either next week or the week of March 23. "I predict it will pass in the Senate and I hope and trust it will pass in the House of Representatives as well," he said.

Previously, Baker had said it might be next year before Congress enacts a tax bill for the president to sign.

Congressional Democrats seem to be operating under a slower timetable than Baker, and there were indications their honeymoon with Reagan is wearing thin. Still, party leaders publicly promise they will cooperate with the president.

Two others, Craig Richard Clymore and Lawrence Clifton Mangum, were believed to be either Americans or Canadians. A World Bank official identified as Jeffrey Balkind, a resident of Washington, D.C., also was on the plane, but officials declined to give his nationality.

Diplomatic sources said the jetliner remained parked on a runway about 700 yards from the Kabul airport terminal and was surrounded by Afghan and Soviet troops. The Soviet Union has 85,000 soldiers in Afghanistan fighting an a Moslem rebellion against the communist regime.

The sources said the first batch of hostages was freed and the jetliner refueled after the Pakistani government broadcast the hijacker's denial of Pakistani charges that he was a member of executed Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto's Pakistan People's Party.

U.S. Aid To El Salvador Hinges On Russia, Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., dismissing a call to draw the line now on aid to El Salvador, says any further escalation of U.S. involvement depends on what the Soviet Union and Cuba do.

The possibility of additional aid, Haig said Wednesday, "will depend largely on the willingness of Cuba, the Soviet Union and those associated with them to continue to intervene illegally in the affairs of the member states of this hemisphere."

Specifically, Haig refused to say whether U.S. aid would stop with 20 additional military advisers and $25 million in new military assistance. "It would be foolish to attempt to do so," he said.

The administration has accused Cuba and other communist nations of complicity in smuggling at least 200 tons of military supplies to leftist insurgents in El Salvador. The Soviet Union and Cuba have denied the charge.

elections held," Brady told reporters.

The rightist leader, Maj. Roberto D'Aubisson, told reporters in El Salvador that he has met with U.S. officials since Reagan took office and "if there is a change, I think they would accept it."

Haig and Brady said Roger Fontaine, who presently handles Latin American affairs for the National Security Council, met with D'Aubisson just once — in February 1980, almost a year before Reagan took office. Fontaine made no statements along the lines attributed to him, Haig and Brady said.

Cranston said Haig confirmed at the Senate briefing that the FBI is investigating allegations that wealthy Salvadoran exiles in Miami are sending money to extreme rightist groups in El Salvador to finance terrorist attacks.

Cranston said the Reagan administration should oppose arms to rightist and leftist forces in El Salvador with equal zeal.

Nevertheless, by a growing number of actions, Democrats are demonstrating their displeasure with many aspects of Reagan's package.

Rep. James R. Jones, D-Okla., chairman of the House Budget Committee, said Reagan had overlooked several important areas where money could be recovered that had been lost due to government inaction on audits and inadequate collection of delinquent loans and overdue debts.

"There is waste, fraud and abuse, and this committee intends to eliminate that before valuable programs are destroyed," Jones said.

tempt by the socialists to get the Reagan administration involved.

There had been reports that Duarte would attend an international convention of Christian Democratic parties in West Germany this weekend and would meet with Socialist leaders while he was there. But he told the news conference he was "not thinking of going to Europe" and had received no invitation to meet with Socialist representatives.

Earlier, the No. 2 Democrat in the Senate said the Reagan administration should supply no military assistance to El Salvador beyond the 20 additional advisers and $25 million in aid.

"Enough is enough," said Sen. Alan Cranston of California, the assistant Democratic leader in the Senate. "In the interest of protecting American lives and avoiding deeper and more dangerous U.S. involvement in the fighting in El Salvador, we must draw the line somewhere."

"And as far as I'm concerned, this is it."

Brady called that "pure fiction."

"We are in support of the stability of the current government of El Salvador, and anything that can be done to make sure that reforms are carried out and remodeling debris than anything," Brazzell said.

County Seeking Help In Curbing Dumping

According to Precinct 2 Commissioner Coy Biggs, the dumping of dead animals is a major problem in his district.

"We found 23 pigs, goats and dogs in one pile," he said, noting that his crews find the bodies of some dead animals almost daily.

Roberts is proposing that the county place a $50 bounty on anyone who dumps trash or garbage in rural areas. Individuals could claim the reward by turning in the license numbers of anyone they see dumping refuse, he said.

But Assistant Criminal District Attorney Yvonne Faulks said she doubts that the county has the authority to set bounties. Mrs. Faulks said county officials can prosecute those who litter the roads, however.

Under state law, dumping refuse within 300 yards of a public highway is a misdemeanor offense. Mrs. Faulks noted, if convicted of dumping, she said, an individual can face a fine of between $50 and $400 for each day a violation occurred.

If it is impossible for the county to set bounties, Roberts said he will push a campaign seeking the public's aid to stop the litter problem.

"We need the support of residents living in the rural areas to help us eliminate this trash problem," Roberts emphasized. "We are very concerned."

Donald L. Scantlebury, chief accountant of the General Accounting Office, the auditing agency of Congress, testified that in 1980 federal agencies reported they had receivables due of $126 billion.

Of that amount, it was anticipated that about $6.3 billion will be uncollectible while delinquent debts total about $24 billion, Scantlebury said.

He said billions of dollars could be saved by more effective debt collection, improvements in agency management and other efficiencies. Critics of the Reagan plan say these improvements would eliminate the need for deep spending cuts in social programs.

The Reagan administration says big budget cuts are needed, and Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan asked businessmen today to help fight any delaying tactics in Congress.

He told U.S. Chamber of Commerce members at a breakfast meeting that public interest in the issue could diminish soon, "and that's when the letters have to start arriving."

Business leaders "have to tell the people on the Hill what their people want," Regan said.

He said the administration hopes to have its tax and budget cuts at least halfway through Congress by the end of May, the junta president claimed that 1-500 guerrillas have surrendered since he offered them a one-month amnesty period on Feb. 11. He said this encouraged him to extend the amnesty offer another month, to April 11. But he vowed he would never allow El Salvador to become another Vietnam, even though "the leftists are acting like Vietnamese, with Vietnamese training, Vietnamese arms and financing."

The Reagan administration has accused Vietnam, Cuba and other Soviet allies of funneling arms to the guerrillas via Nicaragua and is asking the U.S. Congress to approve $25 million more in U.S. military aid for the junta and 20 more American military advisers in addition to the 34 in El Salvador.

Nicaraguan Interior Minister Tomas Borge said Wednesday his government has not knowingly allowed itself to be used as a channel for arms shipments to the Salvadoran guerrillas and has no evidence that such shipments have been made.

Up to 7 inches of snow stacked up in parts of western Maryland by morning and the storm showed no sign of easing. Forecasters said the area could get up to a foot of snow.

Schools in four western Maryland counties closed.

The snow is the product of a storm system that swept through the Rockies and the Plains Wednesday, hobbling Denver and leaving parts of Nebraska and Colorado under up to 2 feet of snow.

The storm pushed into the Ohio Valley today and veered to the south and east, bringing heavy snow to the mountains of Pennsylvania and Maryland.

Winter storm warnings were posted for much of the East, from Maryland to New York.

If it is impossible for the county to set bounties, Roberts said he will push a campaign seeking the public's aid to stop the litter problem.

Roberts urged county residents who see someone dumping trash in rural areas to notify either the commissioners court, 741-8005, or the sheriff's department, 741-8091.

Getting the license number of the trash dumper's car is essential, Roberts said. If authorities have the license number, he noted, they can track down the guilty party.

Allowing careless individuals to continue dumping along county roads costs the taxpayers money, Roberts noted.

"People just don't realize how expensive it is," he said. "We have to stop and pick all that up."

In addition, Roberts said, broken bottles can slash tires on the county's road equipment. Two new tires on a county-owned road maintainer were almost ruined recently when the driver ran over a bottle, he said.

Motorists can hardly drive more than 50 feet in Lubbock County without seeing beer bottles, beer cans, disposable diapers and all types of other trash cluttering the ditches along the roads, Roberts said.

"It's just disgusting," he added.

Airplane Won By Gambler

STATELINE, Nev. (UPI) — A truck driver for the San Francisco Chronicle popped $5 in quarters into a slot machine at Caesars Tahoe and won the most unique jackpot in the casino, a $40,000 airplane suspended from the ceiling.

"I couldn't believe it," John Clark, of Greenbrae, Calif. said this week. "All of a sudden the adrenaline just started pumping."

Three triple bars dropped across the bottom line and made him a lucky "ace" winner.

Clark, 40, a licensed private pilot since 1970, said he would use the free flying lessons that came with the Cessna Skyhawk II as a "refresher course."

It was the second plane to be awarded as a jackpot prize and was among nine lucrative payoffs the resort has paid out since last October. The most valuable was a $93,250 jackpot on a 25-cent slot machine.

Rain, Snow May Return To Area Saturday

A-J News Services

A fast-moving storm that buried parts of Colorado and Nebraska under 2 feet of snow swept into the East today, dumping 7 inches of snow on Maryland and snarling rush-hour traffic along much of the northern Atlantic Seaboard.

The Southwest got a breather today from turbulent weather, but forecasters warned that an approaching Pacific cold front may trigger another round of precipitation this weekend.

Wet and cooler weather is expected to return to Lubbock and the South Plains, with a chance of rain and snow Saturday.

Showers and thunderstorms may begin to crop up in the area Friday afternoon as a low pressure system now in California moves rapidly eastward. Probability of rain is listed at 30 percent.

Forecasters call for sunny skies today and increasing cloudiness tonight.

Temperatures will be in the low 60s today and Friday and in the high 30s tonight.

The West Texas extended forecast calls for a chance of showers and snow flurries in the northern part of the region Saturday.

Cooler temperatures will come to northern West Texas Saturday and to all of the region Sunday. Readings will be mostly in the 40s and 50s over the weekend, weathermen said.

Beaumont had .78 of an inch of rain Wednesday and Houston .18 as the rains that swept over the South Plains earlier this week continued downstate.

Cloudy skies were the rule over most of Texas late last night and during the early morning hours. The only clouds were in a narrow band stretching from the southern Panhandle southeast to Dallas-Fort Worth.

With the rain this week, Lubbock has recorded 1.19 inches so far this year. The total was .92 at this point last year.

In the eastern half of the nation, torrential rains fanned out to the south of the massive snowstorm and doused much of the Southeast.

Winter storm warnings were posted for much of the East, from Maryland to New York.

Up to 7 inches of snow stacked up in parts of western Maryland by morning and the storm showed no sign of easing. Forecasters said the area could get up to a foot of snow.

Schools in four western Maryland counties closed.

The snow is the product of a storm system that swept through the Rockies and the Plains Wednesday, hobbling Denver and leaving parts of Nebraska and Colorado under up to 2 feet of snow.

The storm pushed into the Ohio Valley today and veered to the south and east, bringing heavy snow to the mountains of Pennsylvania and Maryland.

Winter storm warnings were posted for much of the East, from Maryland to New York.

New Jersey and New York. About an inch fell in New Jersey in time for the morning rush hour, making roads slippery.

Thunderstorms battered the Southeast early today.

Tallahassee, Fla. got more than 5 inches of rain and Jacksonville, Fla. got 3 inches in as many hours. But the storms eased by sunrise.

Rain also spread over parts of California, with more than 2 inches soaking Santa Barbara. Flash flood watches were posted for the foothills and mountain slopes of Southern California and the National Weather Service said mudslides and street flooding were likely in those areas.

County Seeking Help In Curbing Dumping

remodeling debris than anything," Brazzell said.

According to Precinct 2 Commissioner Coy Biggs, the dumping of dead animals is a major problem in his district.

"We found 23 pigs, goats and dogs in one pile," he said, noting that his crews find the bodies of some dead animals almost daily.

Roberts is proposing that the county place a $50 bounty on anyone who dumps trash or garbage in rural areas. Individuals could claim the reward by turning in the license numbers of anyone they see dumping refuse, he said.

But Assistant Criminal District Attorney Yvonne Faulks said she doubts that the county has the authority to set bounties. Mrs. Faulks said county officials can prosecute those who litter the roads, however.

Under state law, dumping refuse within 300 yards of a public highway is a misdemeanor offense. Mrs. Faulks noted, if convicted of dumping, she said, an individual can face a fine of between $50 and $400 for each day a violation occurred.

If it is impossible for the county to set bounties, Roberts said he will push a campaign seeking the public's aid to stop the litter problem.

Lubbock Nurse Charged In Robbery-For-Hire

A 26-year-old registered nurse today was charged with aggravated robbery and criminal solicitation in an alleged robbery-for-hire scheme.

Lynda Anne Head of 5428 42nd St. was charged in connection with a Sunday night robbery and assault of an elderly Lubbock woman.

Police believe that Miss Head organized the robbery and paid a Lubbock couple $1,800 to rob 72-year-old Marguerite Brown.

Miss Head remained in custody this morning with a recommendation from the criminal district attorney's office that her bond be set at $100,000.

Police said her arrest also may have cleared a $15,000 Saturday night burglary but said they remained puzzled as to how the woman apparently knew the amount of expensive jewelry in Mrs. Brown's 19th Street residence.

Investigators first speculated the robbers might have learned of Mrs. Brown's jewelry through work — all four are nurses and were employed by the same local hospital.

Police said Wednesday, however, that Mrs. Brown, who was shown a photograph of the third suspect, said she did not recognize the woman and is unaware of how the suspect might have known of the expensive property at Mrs. Brown's home.

The woman, who is suspected of planning the heist but not participating in it, was arrested shortly before 5 a.m. Wednesday at her home. Police said they also recovered at least $45,000 in recently stolen goods, adding the suspect told them she paid a man and woman $300 for the property but didn't know it was "hot."

But authorities said they believe the woman paid the couple — Lisa Lynn Davis of 4630 55th St. and Vincent Maurice Lundberg of Route 7, Lubbock — $1,800 to break into Mrs. Brown's house and steal several specific items.

Miss Davis and Lundberg, both 19, each have been charged with aggravated robbery in connection with the Sunday night incident. Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy denied bond for Lundberg and set Miss Davis' bond at $100,000. Both remained in Lubbock County Jail Wednesday night.

Police said they received a Crime Line call at 6 p.m. Monday from a man who told them he had talked with a couple who had "bragged about committing a robbery." The informant added that he searched Lubbock until about midnight that night until he located the man.

Lundberg was taken early Tuesday to the detective division for questioning, while Miss Davis was arrested early Tuesday in Amarillo by police there.

With Wednesday's arrest of the third suspect, police say they believe they have cleared the Brown robbery, as well as a Saturday night burglary in which $15,000 worth of silverware was reported stolen.

John D. Abney, 52, of 2514 56th St. told police the silver was stolen from his home between 7 p.m. and 11:45 p.m. Saturday. He identified the property Wednesday.

In the Sunday robbery, Mrs. Brown told police a young woman first appeared at her front door asking to use the telephone before pushing her way into the residence. The woman allegedly began beating Mrs. Brown with a candle holder and backed the older woman into a corner. The young woman then reportedly called for her male companion and the female bandit stood over Mrs. Brown while her companion rummaged through the house.

The man wore a stocking over his head, reports show, but the woman was not disguised.

Mrs. Brown was robbed of a 12-piece setting of sterling silver flatware, a 1 1/2-carat Tiffany diamond ring in a yellow-gold setting, a wedding band with five diamonds, a dinner ring and an emerald ring. She estimated their value at about $30,000.

Sheriff Claims Jail Below Standards

By MARY ALICE ROBBINS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Plans to house female inmates in the new $4.8 million Lubbock County Jail pose some potential problems, says Sheriff D.L. "Sonny" Keesee.

According to Keesee, state standards require jail officials to prevent male prisoners from having visual contact with women inmates. There are not supposed to be any areas in a jail where a male inmate can see inside the cells occupied by females, he explained.

But Keesee said he fears it will be almost impossible to meet that standard with the design of the new jail.

The original plans called for holding women in the B section of the detention facility. However, male trustees assigned to work in the jail's laundry and storage rooms will have to walk down the corridor leading past the women's dayroom.

Keesee also expressed concern about using women trustees to serve meals in the female section and about using male trustees to clean the jail corridors in the area.

Many of the potential problems in the women's area can be worked out, said Jail Administrator D.L. Young. But he said the jail's design still has some problems.

"I would not call it the most ideal set-up in the world for females," Young said. "I nearly flipped when I first walked over there and saw what we had."

Keesee said that some problems could be solved by having the female ward take up an entire 44-inmate section. But that plan may not be practical, he added.

Today's female prisoner population at the jail totaled 25, which Keesee said is "an unusually high number." On the average, he said, the jail houses between 12-15 women.

To resolve the problem, Keesee said he is "strongly considering" keeping female inmates in their current location on the fifth floor of the old jail. Some type of exercise program would have to be worked out for them, he said, so the jail will meet the standards.

The jail's fifth floor is in good condition, the sheriff said. He noted that some adjustment might be required on the facility's air conditioning so it would be equivalent to the cooling system in the new jail.

Keesee said he plans to discuss his proposal for housing the women prisoners with Joe Slater, an inspector with the Texas Commission on Jail Standards. Slater is due to visit here in about two weeks, he noted.

Judge Upholds Swift Action On Decontrol

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's swift action in eliminating price controls on gasoline, propane and crude oil was legal and prevented artificial shortages of petroleum products, a federal judge says.

U.S. District Judge Harold H. Greene's written opinion Wednesday said Reagan was not required to call for a public hearing before eliminating the ceiling prices in a Jan. 28 executive order.

Nine members of Congress, three state governments and organizations representing unions, blacks and consumer groups contended in a suit that a hearing was required.

Greene said he agreed with the administration position that advance notice of decontrol likely would have led to stockpiling by suppliers hoping to sell the fuels at higher, decontrolled prices.

Stockpiling "could have caused spot shortages of petroleum products," said the judge, quoting from an administration statement.

Greene also said he would have caused "dislocations" in the economy by granting the plaintiffs' request for a preliminary injunction to restore the controls pending a full trial. He said those in the petroleum business would then "have to readjust to price controls after a month of proceeding on the assumption that such controls had ceased to exist."

The controls were scheduled to expire by law Sept. 30, Greene noted.

Michael Cooper, an attorney for the nine members of Congress in the suit, said no decision has been made on an appeal.

Mozambique Reports Spy Ring, Orders Americans To Leave

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — The Marxist government of Mozambique claimed today it had broken up a CIA spy ring involving four U.S. Embassy staff members and ordered the Americans expelled from the country. U.S. spokesmen said one of the accused had resisted an attempt to force him to spy for Cuba.

AIM, Mozambique's news service, reported that Second Secretaries Frederick Boyce Lundahl and Louis Leon Olivier, political officer Patricia Russel and communications officer Arthur Russel were ordered to leave the former Portuguese colony in Southeast Africa by Friday, along with Lundahl's and Olivier's wives.

AIM quoted a communique from the Security Ministry as saying that the wives, "though not U.S. Embassy officials, took part in support operations."

State Department sources said the Russels are married.

AIM also released a list of nine other names it said were of Americans who had been involved in the alleged operation in Maputo.

In Washington, the State Department said only that it does not comment on intelligence matters.

ANOP, the Portuguese news service, said a Portuguese citizen working for the U.S. Embassy was arrested Wednesday, but this apparently was not in connection with the expulsions.

State Department officials said 12 Cuban diplomats and several Mozambican officials forcibly detained one of the four American diplomats for four hours in Maputo, the Mozambican capital, while they tried to recruit him to spy for Cuba.

They said the Cubans offered the American a sizable amount of money and threatened him and his family with bodily harm, but he still refused.

The State Department in an official statement said Louis Wolf and several other Americans who publish an anti-CIA publication recently visited Mozambique, and the expulsions were the result of "extraordinary circumstances" involving them and the Cubans.

"We are convinced that these facts are not coincidental and that the full scope of Cuban and private American involvement was known to Mozambican authorities. We therefore view this action with most serious concern," it said.

In Washington, Wolf told The Associated Press by telephone that he had been in Mozambique for seven or eight days, had given public lectures and had "nothing whatsoever" to do with events leading up to the Americans' expulsion.

Diplomatic observers said the incident was a setback to what had appeared to be steadily improving relations between the United States and Mozambique's Marxist government.

Mozambique has close relations with Cuba. South African intelligence reports estimate there are some 2,000 Cubans and about 1,600 Russians in Mozambique involved in military and security training.

The AIM news agency quoted a Security Ministry communique as saying the CIA used its base in Maputo "to support counter-revolutionary activity in the region in order to destabilize the independent states in southern Africa."

This appeared to be a reference to a Mozambican rebel group called the National Resistance Movement.

AIM alleged that the CIA also passed on to the military forces of white-minority-ruled South Africa information on the movements in Mozambique of South African black nationalists belonging to the African National Congress, or ANC.

SUNNY OUTLOOK

WASHINGTON (AP) — Several million homes will be using solar energy in the next two decades, according to a prediction by the U.S. Department of Energy. At present there are more than 40,000 solar homes in the United States. Passive solar-heated homes have existed since the Neolithic era, when the rock of man's early cave homes absorbed the sun's energy during the day and released it at night to warm his dwelling. Also, the ancient Greeks relied on more sophisticated means of solar energy to heat their homes.

Fund Hunts For Ways To Preserve Success

By PHILIP GREER
And MYRON KANDEL

Sometimes even success is a problem. Take the New Era Fund of T. Rowe Price in Baltimore. The fund has had two very good years — it was up 54.5 percent in 1979 and 47.7 percent last year. Still, it has a problem — one that a lot of people in the stock market would like to have, but a problem nonetheless.

New Era is built on natural resources stocks. They've led the market in the past couple of years, which accounts for the fund's success. But there's a growing feeling in Wall Street that the natural resources — especially oil-based exploration and processing companies — have had their run. Not only that, but many of them are sporting price-earnings ratios that put them way out of line with most stocks in Wall Street.

So, after two years like that, and with a good part of your portfolio vulnerable to a selloff, how do you protect what you have and find even more growth?

"One thing we're not going to do is change the underlying philosophy of the fund," George Roche, president of New Era Fund, told us. "We'll continue to be predominantly, but not exclusively, in natural resource companies."

"The thing we have to do now," he said, "is change the resources indirectly. Last year, for instance, we went into forest products. As a group they have a price-earnings ratio of only about 8½-to-1 (the market price is about 8½ times the last full year's profits). I have to say that it didn't work very well, but we think it will work in time."

The fund has also bought more heavily ly into integrated resources companies, which sport a price-earnings ratio of 7-to-1. (For comparison, the 30 stocks in the Dow Jones Industrial Average have a ratio of 8½-to-1.)

A big part of New Era's success has been scored in "specific event" companies — energy outfits small enough so that some single event like a new discovery makes a big difference in the company's profits. The biggest winner last year, for example, was Tom Brown, Inc., an oil and gas exploration company whose stock soared 333 percent.

Although Roche says the fund isn't about to desert the natural resource stocks, he thinks it could be time for them to rest. "Resource movements tend to come in big spurts," he explained, "and then level off. I wouldn't be at all surprised to see a period of consolidation. In the case of energy it appears supplies are adequate. The price controls on crude oil are gone now; there could be a quiet period."

In the meantime, Roche says, he'll keep searching for bargains — and he knows a lot of other people are out there in the hunt with him.

Severe Drought Predicted For Great Plains

National Geographic News Service
WASHINGTON — What regional fluctuations in weather are on tap for the near future?

Next summer may see another drought in the Great Plains as severe as the 1980 summer's, and it could be even more destructive in the Corn Belt.

The West, too, may be drier than normal next summer, but the Ohio River Valley may have a wetter than usual spring.

The southern Plains should have good weather in June for harvesting the winter wheat but significantly lower rainfall in May — not good for filling out the grain.

These predictions come from the Climate/Food Project at the University of Wisconsin. Dr. Reid Bryson, director of the Institute for Environmental Studies there and head of the project, says the predictions have a 65 percent chance of being accurate.

The Climate/Food Project prepares long-range forecasts to help predict famines around the world. It forecasted a year in advance the 1980 drought and the severe cold of this winter in the East.

"Our predictions are based on physical forces as far as we know them and the thermodynamic effects of carbon dioxide and other particles in the atmosphere which we link up with statistics, recorded climate patterns, or how the atmosphere has responded to these physical forces in the past," Bryson explained.

Funnels Not Always Visible To Tornado Watchers

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

If you think you can always tell a tornado by its funnel, you're making what could be a disastrous mistake.

Weather scientists have discovered twisters may form simultaneously in a cloud and on the ground and may not become easily visible until after they have reached full force.

Larry Eblen, a severe weather specialist for the National Weather Service here, said the four funnels that threatened Lubbock earlier this week are good examples.

"People were calling in dust devils, and they were tornadoes," Eblen said. "If you're out looking at a storm, don't just look up in the bottom of the cloud. Look on the ground underneath it."

"The air is often too dry under the cloud to make a funnel visible, but you can see debris rotating around on the ground. Sometimes you never get a funnel."

However, most funnels eventually pick up enough debris from the ground to become visible even if there is not enough moisture in the air to define them, Eblen said.

The weatherman heads a volunteer tornado-spotting program that involves about 500 persons over the South Plains, and he said the 30 to 40 teams in 17 area counties are ready for another "tornado season."

Ham radio and CB radio operators, firemen, off-duty law enforcement officers and other interested persons make up the corps of volunteers.

"The hams got the first word out yesterday," Eblen said, referring to the tornadoes here this week. "One was on the phone to us describing the tornado when it hit the mobile home."

There is no way to predict how threatening tornado season will be this year, he said, but the South Plains has had two relatively safe seasons in the past two years and may be due for a bad one.

"We had little in the way of tornadoes last year, but we were pleased with the quality of reports," Eblen said. "The spotter teams gave very accurate information."

"It started earlier this year than we expected it to. We have had two quiet seasons, and it may very well be that we're getting ready for an active one."

He said independent sightings should be reported to the police or sheriff's office before a report is made to the weather office.

The number of tornadoes in Texas increases dramatically in March and reaches a peak in April, May and June. Two persons were killed and a dozen injured in January and February — the least likely months for tornadoes.

Computer-aided research at Texas A&M University recently has tended to substantiate the theory that the twisters do not "drop" from clouds but form in the clouds and on the ground at the same time, Eblen noted.

As the vortex intensifies on the ground, Texas A&M University researchers report, the pressure inside it lowers and the funnel cloud expands while developing in a downward direction.

They say a computer model of tornado structure has shown that tornadoes can begin to form within a field of vortex motion if temperatures and precipitation are right.

The theory has been reinforced by field studies on waterspouts in which the sea surface was seen to swirl before the funnel descended a significant distance from the clouds.

Researchers think three simultaneous processes combine to form a tornado. First is an intense updraft of air rising from the ground to the clouds and the second an "indraft" of air close to but parallel to the ground. The third process is the vortex or swirling motion that encircles both the updraft and indraft motions.

"The amount of information we have on tornadoes is extremely small," said one scientist. "There is not enough good measurement information to prove or disprove many hypotheses regarding the storms."

Recent research has indicated that the vortex structure and drop of barometric pressure inside a tornado can vary greatly with the terrain on which it occurs, the A&M scientist said.

Wind Laced With Pollen Aggravates Area Citizens

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

It brings tears to your eyes. It causes your skin to itch. It collects on the windowsill.

It's called blowing dust. And, it's that season again.

Although blowing dust is an oft-cursed phenomenon on the South Plains, it's usually not the grit but actually the pollen carried in those gusts that cause the swelling, redness and other aggravations of the nose.

"Elms, oaks, maple, mesquite and all the trees of West Texas are the ones that most commonly cause the trouble," says Dr. Robert Moore, an allergy specialist and clinical professor at Texas Tech School of Medicine.

Those are the ones in the spring, that is. Unfortunately, each season has its own special cast of characters. In winter, add cedar to the list of common allergy culprits. In the fall there's pigweed, ragweed and Russian thistle.

"Mold is all year around," Dr. Moore noted, adding though, "It's worse in the spring and fall."

Pollen plants produce chemicals that enter the body through the nose and attach themselves to mucous in the throat, he explained, adding that the body produces its own immunologic reaction — the release of histamine — to fight those chemicals causing the allergic reaction.

But while the body is waging war on the pollen, the battle casualties include a swollen, red, sore nose.

Actually, if one were able to live in an environment of only plants pollinated by insects the problems would be reduced.

Dr. Moore noted that usually the pollen grain of a plant pollinated by insects is too big to be carried by the wind.

But gusty winds in the area stir up plenty of pollen from plants pollinated by the wind. And that means trouble not only for the city-dweller but also for area farmers who may suffer economic losses.

Kenn Wigner, a full-time forecaster at the National Weather Service station in Lubbock and a part-time graduate student in atmospheric sciences at Texas Tech, has compiled a 32-year record of the hours and days of blowing dust in Lubbock.

A year ago this month Lubbock had 51 hours of blowing dust, but that's by no means the highest tally. That distinction goes to the month of March in 1964 when Lubbock recorded 121 hours of the aggravating blowing dust.

Wigner says February is a month which often has a few dusty days but that the months of March, April and May "are the months of the most destructive blowing dust."

He explained that few crops are in the area fields in February but that in the spring months farmers may have tender young crops two to three inches high in the ground.

"Blowing dust can be a hazard to newly sprouted crops because they (crops) can be burned off by 20 to 25 mph winds," he noted.

That's why Wigner hopes to continue his studies and perhaps someday provide early and accurate predictions of blowing dust to give farmers adequate warning to protect their crops.

Although exact prediction of the blown dust isn't perfected, Wigner points to three factors involved in the gritty blasts: lack of moisture, turbulent wind and time of day.

If it hasn't rained in a while, the lack of soil moisture makes it easier for the wind to gather up soil particles, he noted. Straight winds, however, aren't able to pick up the soil. Turbulent winds can.

The third factor, which Wigner says influences the intensity and duration, is the time of day that the blowing dust begins. "Turbulence often comes from afternoon heating," he said, explaining that warm wind is more likely to pick up dust than cold winds.

Meanwhile, if you adhere to the misery-loves-company adage, Wigner notes, "We're not the only ones with the problem of blowing dust."

On the other hand, many of the other areas with the problem are relatively desolate. Weeds in an isolated desert plagued with blowing dust don't feel teary-eyed to the local allergist. Humans do.

And Wigner notes, "We are one of the more populated areas with dust."

THREE CHILDREN KILLED — Fire Marshal Joe Wilson climbs onto the roof of the de la Rosa family home in El Paso where three children died Tuesday night in a fire. They were identified as Cruz, 1; Daniel, 5; and Petra, 10. Wilson blamed the fire on faulty electrical wiring and said firefighters were hampered because the abode home is four miles beyond any public water lines. Four children were injured, including two who were hospitalized in critical condition. (AP Laserphoto)

Odessa Police Chief Challenges Official's Report Of Retirement

By EVIE DAVIS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Odessa's Police Chief, who described his working atmosphere as one of fear, hate and distrust, said Wednesday afternoon he "wanted to make it clear" he was fired, contradicting the city manager's announcement earlier in the day that the lawman had retired.

City Manager Kerry Sweatt later acknowledged he had requested 32-year department veteran Jack Tomlin's retirement in order to "change the tone and direction of the Odessa Police Department."

Sweatt refused, however, to address speculations the request was linked to mounting troubles within the department which have spurred the resignations of an inordinate number of seasoned officers in the last 18 months.

Among problems facing the department, as revealed in a copyrighted story in The Avalanche-Journal Dec. 14, is an FBI investigation into a police officer's possible connection with an unsolved 1979 homicide.

Instead, the city manager merely repeated his initial desire for change in the 140-officer department.

Nor would Sweatt comment on whether Tomlin's performance at the post he's held for 21 years was adequate.

Tomlin was not so closed-mouthed. "I want to make it clear that I have been fired," Tomlin said. "I think the leadership of the city council in recent times has been inept, incompetent and for the most part, incoherent. The police department has been done a terrible injustice by the recent administration at the city hall."

"Those claims in that (A-J) story (concerning the federal investigation) have never been proven," he added. "This is more a personal thing (on the part of Sweatt) than professional."

The Odessa Police Department in the last 18 months has experienced a higher-than-average attrition rate of experienced officers, some moving to private industry for higher salaries while complaining that overtime pay — $8,000 worth in one case — has been withheld.

Some officers also resigned from the

Amarillo Bank President Quits After Gold Fraud

AMARILLO (AP) — An Amarillo bank president resigned his post after learning the South African gold coins he accepted as collateral for $270,000 in loans were counterfeit.

However, federal agents say Robert Ringo, former president of Tascosa National Bank of Amarillo, was only one of a number of people duped by a counterfeit operation that has sold the fake Krugerrands in Houston, Austin and Amarillo.

Investigators have confiscated gold-plated lead coins with a counterfeit value of almost $1.5 million in Amarillo and about $70,000 worth in Houston, said Secret Service agent David Freriks in Lubbock. He said some fake coins have turned up in the Dallas-Fort Worth area and agents are aware of sales in Austin.

Besides the Tascosa National Bank, agents say another unidentified lending institution in Houston authorized a $35,000 loan with fake coins as collateral.

Ringo abruptly submitted his resignation Wednesday, which the bank's board immediately accepted.

"I made a loan secured by a gold Krugerrand that turned out to be counterfeit. That's what it's all about," Ringo said, adding he made four loans totaling $270,000.

Federal agents say they still cannot account for about 300 of the fake coins that were being sold for $200 to $350 each. The value of a genuine Krugerrand — a 1-ounce, all-gold South African coin — fluctuates with the price of gold and currently is about $588.

Sidney James Heard, 38, of Amarillo, was released on $10,000 bond after he was charged in Houston with theft over $10,000 in connection with the alleged sale of fake Krugerrands, said Freriks.

Houston police became involved when a coin dealer called to say he was suspicious of Krugerrands he was offered for $350 each. Detectives watched the purchase of 100 of the coins for $35,000, then arrested Heard at a bank.

Secret Service agents say no arrests have been made in the Amarillo case.

Federal authorities were tipped last fall by a suspicious jewelry manufacturer in Austin, who said he thought he was stamping out the lead coins as costume jewelry.

Agents say the coins were shipped to Amarillo, where they were plated with .22-carat liquid gold, then put in cardboard and plastic coin protectors to prevent the gold from rubbing off.

Freriks said those who were duped should have known that Krugerrands do not come in protectors.

Freriks said the real Krugerrands weigh twice as much as the fake ones, are shiny and ring when dropped, while the counterfeits have blurred details and sound flat when dropped.

A federal grand jury in Amarillo is expected to hear evidence in the case March 25, Freriks said.

Master's Degree In Business Considered Key For Women's Success

By CAROL DEEGAN
NEW YORK (AP) — Barbara Pletcher says that when she was earning her master's degree in business administration in the late '60s, she was one of three women, among hundreds of students, enrolled in the program.

"In fact," she said, "in 1973, I was the only woman in the United States who got a doctorate in marketing. Isn't that amazing?"

But times are changing.

"Today I understand that more than one-third of the new enrollees in business school programs across the country in the undergraduate level are women and that the number in the graduate program is increasing dramatically," Dr. Pletcher said in an interview here.

She believes that a master's degree in business administration can be the key that opens many doors to women.

"There are so many women who are wandering out there with irrelevant degrees, they've got degrees in social science and education, and when they go out to interview for a job, they say, oh, what am I going to do with this degree?"

"You enroll in an M.B.A. program and take one course, take an accounting course, and now you are an M.B.A. candidate instead of an undergraduate B.A.

in social science. It just changes your entire image," she said.

Dr. Pletcher, who earned her bachelor's degree in social science, has held positions on the business school faculties of four universities. Today, she is the president of her own company, "Creative Sales Careers," based in Sacramento, Calif., and she is the executive director of the National Association for Professional Saleswomen. Dr. Pletcher is also the author of two books, "Saleswoman: A Guide to Career Success" and "Travel Sense."

Professional selling is a good career for women, Dr. Pletcher said, because there is a wide variety of jobs, at all educational levels, which offer good salaries and time flexibility.

"There is a sales position available for every level of education and every kind of background," she said. "And the wonderful thing about selling is that for re-entry women, or women who are in career changes, they can always take what ever they've been involved in and switch over to sales."

Women constitute about 10 percent of the 1 million professional sales people in the United States today, with the number of professional saleswomen rising at a rate of about 1 percent a year, Dr. Pletcher said.

"Over the past five years, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, the number of women in professional selling has increased by 65 percent. That's a dramatic increase," she said. "And the women who have gotten into sales are doing so great at it, that the sales managers are anxious to hire more women, women are realizing they can earn so much money there, and it's a natural combination."

"Most women live on a salary basis, or somebody else's salary, which is even worse, and you spend your entire life trying to figure out how to make do, do without or do with less," Dr. Pletcher said. "You've got this much money from now until then. This is the first of the month, that is the 31st, this is how much money we have and so now what we've got to do is contract our wishes and needs just to fit this amount of money we've got."

"So, you wash your own floors because it would have cost you $5 to have somebody else wash your floor and you wash your own dishes and you do your own family laundry and you take all of these hours they say women are spending at home with their families, but they are spending it at home being the worker."

Now in sales, you have an expandable income to meet your needs."

Dr. Pletcher said another advantage was that a career in professional selling enabled a woman to schedule her own hours.

"The thing about selling that women constantly point out as the advantage is that it's time-flexible," she said. "If your child has to go to the dentist on Thursday, you don't schedule any sales calls on Thursday, and you can work it into your life much more than a desk job."

Dr. Pletcher, who lives with her husband and son in Sacramento, said her company was designed to help people become more effective in the business environment through sales training, management training and public speaking.

Readers' Exchange

By JEANNE LIVELY
Family News Staff

Unfortunately, for all who have written, Reader's Exchange no longer has a famed Lubbock restaurant's blueberry muffin recipe. But won't some other recipes do?

Requests — Melinda Daw once ate something called "Elephant Ears," so does anyone have the recipe? (And tell us what it is!)

Winnie Cooper would appreciate a no-yeast doughnut recipe that is made with yeast and baked in oven.

Lotis Milburn would like an Irish tea cake recipe for St. Patrick's Day.

Gertrude Merritt of Brownfield needs a Swedish coffecake recipe.

Don't know what potato turbate is, but Mrs. J.M. Smith would like the recipe.

Here is Lorene Dinwiddie (of Shallowater) to give us this truly interesting recipe.

POTATO CARAMEL CAKE
2 cups flour
2 cups sugar
1 cup butter
1 cup sour milk
1 oz. chocolate
1 cup cold mashed potatoes
1 cup raisins
1 cup nuts
4 eggs
1 tsp. each: soda, baking powder, cloves and cinnamon Cream sugar and butter. Add eggs and beat well. Add soda to milk and gradually stir into butter mixture along with dry ingredients which have been sifted together. Add raisins and nuts and potatoes. Bake in 9 x 13 x 2-inch pan for 45 minutes at 350 degrees.

CARAMEL ICING
1/2 cup butter
1 cup brown sugar, packed
1/4 cup milk
2-1/2 cups confectioners sugar, sifted
Melt butter in sauce pan. Add brown sugar and boil over low heat 2 minutes, stirring constantly. Add milk and stir until mixture boils again. Cool. Add confectioners sugar and beat until smooth.

The following is a terrific, and much needed, recipe. But because of its length, Reader's Exchange had to wait until space was available to print it. Please try Mrs. John Jackson's exciting Fig Newton recipe.

FIG NEWTONS
Dough:
5 tbs. unsalted butter, at room temperature
2 tbs. sour cream
2/3 cup (packed) dark brown sugar, sifted through a coarse sieve
2 eggs, at room temperature
1 tsp. vanilla extract
2 cups all-purpose flour
2 tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. baking soda
1/4 tsp. ground cinnamon
1/2 tsp. salt
Filling:
2 cups dried figs, preferably moistpack black figs
1-3/4 cups water
1/3 cup sugar
2 tsp. grated lemon rind
1/4 tsp. salt

(1) In a small bowl, beat the butter and sour cream until light. Gradually add the brown sugar, beating until the mixture is very light and thick. Incorporate the eggs one at a time; beat in vanilla.

(2) Sift together the flour, baking powder, soda, cinnamon and salt. Add to creamed mixture, beating on low speed or by hand. Mix well and turn out on a sheet of floured plastic; wrap, then refrigerate for at least 2 hours.

(3) Cut the heavy stems off the figs. Combine the figs and water in a heavy saucepan and simmer, covered, for 30 minutes or until the fruit is soft. Add sugar, lemon rind and salt and simmer, covered, for 15 minutes longer. Press the mixture through the coarse disc of a food mill, then cool.

(4) Preheat the oven to 350 degrees. Cover with parchment or lightly grease a large baking sheet.

(5) Divide the chilled dough into thirds and refrigerate two parts. Roll the remaining piece on a well-floured board to form a rectangle about 5 x 11 inches.

(6) Spread 1/3 of the fig filling slightly to one side of center, along the length of the dough, covering an area roughly 2 inches wide and 10 inches long and leaving a 1/2-inch pastry margin on the three sides of the filling away from the center. Mound the filling slightly in the center along its whole length; then moisten the exposed margin with water.

Very gently, lift the uncovered pastry with a spatula and fold it over the filling. Press the upper pastry against the lower to seal it. Trim the edges and shape the roll into a neat, half-cylinder form about 11 inches long and 2 to 2-1/2 inches wide. Place on the prepared baking sheet.

(7) Repeat the filling operation with the remaining 2/3 of the dough and filling; then bake the three rolls for 25 minutes or until they are slightly browned.

(8) Cool the rolls somewhat on a rack; then trim off the ends and, with a sharp serrated knife, cut each one into slices about 1-1/2 inches wide. Replace the slices on the rack. When the fig rolls are completely cool, store them in an airtight container.

CREME DE MENTHE CAKE
(Submitted by Pat Snyder, Snyder)
1 box white cake mix
Follow directions on box, substituting 1/2 cup creme de menthe for part of liquid. Bake in two round layers and cool, very cool.

Ice with two jars of fudge topping. This is the kind you use on ice cream.

Now, mix 1/3 cup of creme de menthe in large carton of refrigerated whipped topping. Frost on top of chocolate and store in refrigerator. (Note: This is pretty and green and good. Be sure to use green creme de menthe.)

Here is Joy Fulton's (of Floydada) special recipe for refrigerator rolls.

ALL-BRAN REFRIGERATOR ROLLS
2 pkgs. dry yeast
1 cup lukewarm water (105-115 degrees)
1 cup all-gran cereal
3/4 cup sugar
1 cup shortening
1-1/2 tsp. salt
1 cup boiling water
2 eggs, beaten
6-7 cups flour
Dissolve yeast in lukewarm water; set aside. Combine cereal, sugar, shortening, salt and boiling water in a large bowl; stir until shortening melts. Cool to lukewarm. Add beaten eggs and yeast mixture. Add flour, mixing thoroughly.

Cover and refrigerate overnight or several days until needed. Turn dough out onto a floured surface and let set about 15 minutes. Knead about five times. Roll to 1/2-inch thickness cut with a 2-inch cutter. Dip rolls in melted butter; fold in half. Place rolls in a well-greased pan.

Let rise 2 hours. Bake at 400 degrees for 20-30 minutes or until golden. Yield: about 3-1/2 dozen.

And before we stop for this week, please send Lorene Dinwiddie your recipe for Hawaiian Sweet Bread!

Please send tips, requests and recipes to: Reader's Exchange, Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, P.O. Box 491, Lubbock, Tx. 79409.

If wild turkey did not immediately become the superstar of Thanksgiving, part of the reason may have been some Pilgrim's vague suspicion that eating the bird led to leprosy.

1NT Pass 3NT Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: Five of ♣.

It is a natural instinct to win a trick when it is presented to you, especially if, by so doing, you have the chance to retain a potential second stopper in the suit. But before you do, study the position carefully.

The auction was routine. South had a minimum no trump, but no other bid should be considered. And although North had something in reserve for his jump to three, he did not have enough to contemplate slam.

West led the fourth-best of his longest and strongest suit. East played the queen and declarer won the king, bringing his total available tricks to seven. It was obvious that the club suit would have to be developed for the extra tricks declarer needed for his contract, so he ran the queen of clubs. East took the king and returned a diamond, and West scored four diamond tricks to defeat the contract one trick.

Bad luck, you say. After all, the contract hinged on the club finesse, a 50-50 shot. Not so! Declarer's line of play was something less than best.

Declarer was in too much of a hurry to win the first diamond trick. Consider what would happen if South allowed East to hold the first trick!

East returns a diamond (no other return is better), and the contract would be safe whether East started with two or three diamonds. If East started with three diamonds, best defense is for West to let declarer hold the second diamond trick. When East gains the lead with the king of clubs, he continues another diamond, enabling the defenders to score two more diamond tricks. But that gives them only three diamond tricks and a club, and declarer has nine tricks.

As the cards lie, West can win the second diamond and return the suit to knock out declarer's stopper. But West has no entry to his two diamond winners, and declarer coasts home with ten tricks after losing the club finesse.

DEAR ABBY

Love Letter Brightens Husband's Outlook

DEAR ABBY: I am a 55-year-old chemical engineer, married to a 52-year-old woman for 32 years.

Since last August I have suffered a heart attack, my wife has had a malignant tumor and one kidney removed, my 64-year-old sister died of cancer, my wife's 46-year-old sister died of cancer, and our closest friend has just been diagnosed as terminal with an inoperable brain tumor.

And as if that's not bad enough, two of our three children have hit bottom — drugs, alcohol, charged with robbery and all the other things that tear parents up. In one month I must return to the hospital for removal of an aneurysm and replacement by aortic graft.

Yesterday I came home and found a "love letter" from my wife. It read (in part), "Darling, you are like a rock and I am like a balloon. And if we weren't tied together, I'd have floated off into space long ago and burst! Thank you for your commitment to a lasting marriage. I don't know all the hurts I've caused you, but knowing myself, I've caused you plenty. I just want to say I love you, and I'm glad you love me." Abby, my spirits are high, and I feel so lucky I had to share this with someone.

I MARRIED AN ANGEL
(ATHENS, GA.)

DEAR MARRIED: Your letter started out like the Book of Job, but what a lovely O Henry ending! Thanks for sharing. And may you and your angel enjoy another 32 years together.

DEAR ABBY: A woman signed ENVIOUS wrote in to list all the advantages of being "the other woman" instead of the wife. Well, she is all wet. I have been the other woman, and I know firsthand that it's a losing game. I was married. My lover wasn't, but he was living with a woman who watched him closer than most wives watch their husbands. He managed to see me anyway. He kept telling me he loved me, but as long as I was a married woman there was no hope of marrying me, so he might as well live with this other woman and let her keep house and cook for him.

I was so in love with him that after two years I couldn't stand it, so I got a divorce. Did he marry me? Are you kidding? He ran like his pants were on fire!

LOVED AND LOST

DEAR LOVED: From the sound of your lover, you didn't lose much.

DEAR ABBY: Recently a woman signed G. IN JERSEY asked, "Now that I'm a career woman, why can't my husband be as supportive of my career as I was of his?" You said, "He must be the exception; most men are very supportive of their wives' careers."

Usually you are so "right on" that it's hard to believe that you were so out to lunch on this subject. I took that column to work with me, and you should have heard the reaction from the 30 women with whom I work! They said, "Abby must be referring to her own husband — and he is the exception."

Abby, my husband has never lifted a finger to help me in my career, although I have given him tremendous emotional and financial support in his. I've helped him entertain his bosses and clients, but he would never do the same for me.

If the kids were sick, he'd think I had lost my mind if I suggested that he miss work because I had an important business trip scheduled. His career is all that matters to him. He constantly belittles mine, although I help pay the bills. All the women at work agreed that their husbands feel the same as mine.

As a surprise for my husband's next birthday, I am giving him a divorce!

'Animal Psychiatrist' Helps Owners Cope With Problem Pets

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The owner of a Doberman pinscher was up against the ropes, so intimidated by his pet that he felt afraid to go home at night.

So the man did what any dog owner with a behavior problem on his hands might do. He went to a dog psychiatrist.

Victoria Voith, director of the University of Pennsylvania's Animal Behavior Clinic, doesn't like the term "animal psychiatrist." But her background in veterinary medicine and psychology make her qualified to be one.

The clinic handles about 160 cases a year.

"Most behavior problems of animals are not related to behavior problems of the particular owners," Dr. Voith said in a recent interview. "Very few pet owners who come in here could be described as disturbed or neurotic."

"These are normal people, who have a pet with a problem. Problems are a result of some interaction with the environment," she said.

For example, a dog may relate to human family members as it would to a group of dogs and vie for a dominant position, sometimes backing up demands with aggressiveness.

In the case of the Doberman, the humans in the family deferred to the dog so much that it felt like the leader of the pack and acted accordingly.

The prescription called for drug therapy at first. Then the owner taught the dog to sit or lie down for food rewards. Eventually the dog was taught to act that way — to show submission — for everything it wanted, such as dinner, going for a walk or being petted.

"This treatment," said Dr. Voith, "subtly reversed the dominance hierarchy."

In the case of an old English sheepdog that was afraid of thunderstorms, the dog was exposed to stereo recordings of thunderstorm noise at gradually increasing intensity, without evoking fear. The dog was rewarded for its calm behavior with chocolate candy.

Some problems, however, are physical.

"We were recently presented with a case of apparent audiogenic psychomotor epilepsy. Wild attacks on family members seemed to be precipitated by sharp sounds," Dr. Voith said.

Another case involved a Lhasa Apso, a relatively rare breed, that would whirl about suddenly and snap at the air while eating. The bizarre behavior was treated with an anti-epileptic medication.

"I look for neurological correlations or physiological problems that might be causing the animal's behavior problems," Dr. Voith said. "I also explore the possibility that learning or early experience have contributed to the behavior problem."

"Whenever possible, I like to have several people in the family come to the interview. Since everybody has a different perspective on the problem, talking to all the family members allows the clinician to get a more comprehensive picture of what's going on."

"Also, owners, although they are good observers of their animal, often tend to misinterpret the animal's behavior. They often attribute behavior to something like 'spite' or 'resentment,' as opposed to the real cause, which is more often fear of abandonment or separation anxiety," she said.

Redistricting Explained To State Congressmen

WASHINGTON (AP) — A delegation of state senators from Texas has given the state's congressmen the word about what can be expected when it comes time to reapportion their districts.

"I said that the lines are going to be drawn by people to whom incumbency is not a dirty word," Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said after the group from Austin met separately with Republican and Democratic congressmen.

The state Legislature has the power to redraw the lines of the current 24 congressional districts in Texas to the 27 it appears the state will have because of 1980 census gains.

Every congressional district in a state must have the same population, so each of the current districts will have to be reshaped in varying degrees to follow the new census results.

Hobby said preserving seats for incumbents will be taken into account but will not be the top priority. He said that is reserved for the numerical and legal requirements of redistricting — complying with the Voting Rights Act protecting minorities, for instance.

The congressmen were assured they would have the chance to let the state Legislature know their priorities for additions or subtractions to their districts, the lieutenant governor said.

"Some did so, and some indicated that they would supply us with input at a later time," Hobby said.

Congressmen generally are reluctant to discuss publicly how they would like to see their districts reshaped.

Hobby predicted that one of the three new districts will be in the Houston area and the second in the Dallas-Fort Worth area because of the huge population gains there.

The location of the third new district presents more of a question mark, Hobby said.

The lieutenant governor described the sessions with Texas congressmen as briefings to outline the procedures and schedule for redistricting before the Legislature's session ends in May.

The Texas House has set up its own team to draft a redistricting bill.

Clergy Wants To End Licensing Of Schools

AUSTIN (AP) — A Garland preacher says the state's failure to enforce criminal laws has forced churches with well-run schools to seek the state licenses hated by many clergymen.

The Rev. Earl Little, testifying for a bill that would end state licensing of religious day schools, said the licenses are offensive to clergymen who believe their schools should be ordained by God, not the state.

"I'm willing to go to jail rather than seek a license," Little told the House Committee on Human Services on Wednesday.

The committee set up a subcommittee to look at two similar bills that would take religious day schools out from under the Child Care Licensing Act of 1975. The act requires the churches to seek a Department of Human Resources license or join an association approved by DHR.

The subcommittee, chaired by Rep. Craig Washington, D-Houston, will look at bills filed by Rep. Ray Keller, D-Duncanville, and Sen. Walter Mengden, R-Houston. Mengden's bill has been approved by the Senate.

Several clergymen testified the bills would not lessen the schools' responsibility to meet local fire and safety codes. The preachers said the state has no business licensing church schools.

"If the state has the right to approve the church ministry, the state has the right to disapprove the church ministry," said the Rev. Lewis Bridges of Lewisville. "If the state has the right to license our Monday school, the state has the right to license our Sunday school."

Little said better enforcement of criminal laws is the way to protect children from schools where they are abused or mistreated.

Keller wants an exemption for religious day schools with facilities for students in any grade kindergarten through 12. It would not exempt live-in schools such as those run by the Rev. Lester Roloff in Corpus Christi.

Linda Team, associate director of the Texas Conference of Churches, spoke against the bills, saying the licenses are "valuable protections for children in the schools we run."

"We don't see the licensing provision as a punitive or restrictive measure," she said.

Rep. Mike Martin, R-Longview, wanted the committee to approve the measure and send it to the full House. He said people concerned about licensing church schools also could argue for licensing of the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts an any organization that watches children for any period of time.

Martin's motion to approve the measure was quickly replaced by a motion to send it to subcommittee.

Rep. Mike Martin, R-Longview, wanted the committee to approve the measure and send it to the full House. He said people concerned about licensing church schools also could argue for licensing of the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts an any organization that watches children for any period of time.

Arkansas Governor Raps Water Exports

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Texas and other western states suffering from water shortages will not be getting water from Arkansas, Gov. Frank White says.

White told a special hearing Wednesday in the House that shipping Arkansas water to other states would endanger water supplies in the state.

"We're not going to encourage anything that would violate the critical needs of human life and the agricultural sector in the state of Arkansas," White said. "Let me say without qualification that I'm totally opposed to shipping water to Texas."

News reports that Texas Gov. Bill Clements had said Arkansans were amenable to giving surplus water to Texas prompted the hearing. "For the next 20 years, I don't think we're going to have any surplus water," White said.

White said none of the state constitutional officers or their staffs had talked with Clements about the water situation. He said no one in state government had made a commitment to ship Arkansas water out of state.

Rep. Wayne Hampton of Stuttgart, who requested the special meeting, said former Gov. Bill Clinton had met with a task force from Texas on the situation. But Hampton said Clinton had made no commitment to the task force.

Hampton said Clinton met with the task force at Clements' request. He said the task force was interested in drawing up an agreement for Texas to get the water.

"He told them that we would be making extensive studies and that we didn't have a clear-cut policy and that he was in no position to discuss it with them," Hampton said. "He didn't make any concessions to them."

"Where there's smoke there may be a little fire somewhere," he said. "I wanted to make sure that something wasn't going on that would hurt farmers that have already been hurt by the drought."

Heatly's Language Surprises House

AUSTIN (AP) — Some House members chuckled, but teachers with classes of elementary students in the gallery did not seem amused when Rep. W.S. Heatly, D-Paducah, presented a gift to a Republican colleague Wednesday.

Heatly and Rep. Bob Davis, R-Irving, are frequent adversaries, and Heatly told the House he had noticed that Davis' face and neck reddened when he is angry or excited.

"I couldn't see down farther than his collar. I presume it got red, too. I wanted to help him with his health problems," Heatly said.

So, the Dean of the House said, he bought Davis a preparation made in Davis' own hometown.

"I trust he will accept it with pride and use it with diligence and that it will restore whatever ails him. It is prescribed as No. 461, red —salve," Heatly said.

He then read from the bottle's label, "If you feel a case of red —coming on, use once a day. If you already have it, use three times a day. If you have it so bad you are thinking of leaving your job, ram the whole bottle up your —."

Davis responded, "If it hadn't been for Mr. Heatly I wouldn't have needed this at all. And being an advocate of decorum in the House, I certainly wish he would have presented this in private."

There was applause, laughter and

Police Chief Disputes Report Of Retirement

department following allegations by officers the department was sloppily run and that patrolmen were routinely encouraged "to beat up burglars to teach them a lesson."

Those complaints prompted an investigation by an Ector County grand jury, but no action was taken by the panel.

Another officer, suspected of involvement in the death of a local hoodlum and who later was the target of the FBI probe, resigned when given that option or the possibility of facing drug trafficking charges. Still another officer quit under pressure when his superiors believed he "snatched" to the federal agents looking into department operations.

Sweatt also denied his request that Tomlin resign was linked to the city-police department fight over the construction of a new police headquarters, a matter which prompted one detective, an eight-year veteran of the force, to abruptly resign in tears at last week's city council meeting.

Most of the force has signed a petition asking the building issue be presented to voters in the form of a bond election, claiming it is "desperately needed to improve officer morale." But top city officials say the timing is wrong and they need more study.

Assistant City Manager Chester Nolan will act as interim police chief until a new chief is selected. Nolan, who has no experience in law enforcement, said he is in the post as an administrator.

Tomlin, 58, was appointed police chief in 1970. He joined the force in 1948, serving continuously except for a stint with the Navy in Korea from 1950 to 1952.

Although Tomlin said he expects to receive a $700-a-month pension, he said "I'll have to find a job," adding he plans to remain in Odessa.

GRAIN FUTURES
CHICAGO (AP) — Grain and soybean futures prices fell Wednesday on the Chicago Board of Trade, with wheat establishing new lows across the board.

Sources in all the trading pits cited rain in major growing areas, a factor good for yields and bad for prices. Wheat prices had been advancing in recent sessions on the thinking that dry conditions could cause damage to planted winter wheat.

There was some commercial buying in wheat, but not enough to overcome selling by commission houses and speculators, sources said. New life-of-contract lows were set in every delivery month.

Traders said much of the selling in all of the pits Wednesday appeared to be technical — based on price trend charts or computer-directed trading programs.

Corn prices fell substantially, despite pending Mexican and South Korean tenders.

"We've got a lot of business around, yet the market is 5 cents lower," a veteran trader in the corn pit said. "It's the moisture, that's all I can figure."

Pavarotti In Splendid Voice For 'Elixir'

By MARY CAMPBELL
 NEW YORK (AP) — The tenor voice is said to be the favorite of opera lovers. Then opera lovers reached the heights of ecstasy this week because Luciano Pavarotti was singing the beautiful music of Donizetti's "The Elixir of Love" at the Metropolitan Opera.

The performance was televised on public TV. It was the first "Elixir" of the season. The fourth and last will be broadcast on radio March 14. All four sold out.

The rest of the cast acquitted themselves well. But with Pavarotti in splendid voice, as he was in this performance, it almost doesn't matter.

The music of "Elixir" is perfect for a lyric tenor whose voice floats, as Pavarotti's does. But "Elixir" doesn't have to be sung "small." Pavarotti's voice sounded warm, rich and full. His top notes were as open and round as the rest. This is a comedy and the tenor is a country bumpkin, but when he sings a love song, it is appropriate for him to be as fervent, tender and moving as a tragic hero in love.

In short, Pavarotti's voice has exceptional beauty of tone and he was at the top of his vocal form.

The tenor was in good form, acting, too. Sometimes he is stiff, but he seems relaxed in this part. If he hasn't ever been such a young unsophisticated lad in an Italian village, he has certainly seen some who were, firsthand. His hand gestures, his hands-in-pockets stance, his flights into joy and optimism at buying the "elixir of love" from the quack, Dr. Dulcamara, all looked boyishly, engagingly real.

Scientists Explain Why Starfish Destroy Reef

AGANA, Guam (AP) — U.S. scientists at the University of Guam believe they have found the reason starfish have been devouring huge areas of protective reef around Pacific islands, raising fears that the islands will wash away.

But the scientists say they believe there is no cause for alarm. Dr. Richard H. Randall, who first reported starfish plagues on Guam in 1965, said work at the University of Guam marine laboratory suggested the sudden infestations were caused by unusually heavy rainfall on the islands which washed nutrients into the lagoons.

thousands," he said. Randall said a survey of the reef before the plague showed 60 percent of the top reef was living coral with 49 percent at lower depths.

"In 1968 they started showing up in patches of 5 to 10, then in hundreds, then

When this coincides with the starfish spawning period it enhances the survival rates of the larvae and a surge in starfish population follows, the scientist said.

Randall, who has been studying coral reefs for 16 years, also believes the plagues of crown of thorns starfish, which have been recorded across the Pacific and on the Great Barrier Reef off eastern Australia, will not permanently damage the reefs.

This is contrary to views held by some biologists who believe the destruction of fringing coral reefs around small islands would leave the islands without the fish that inhabit the reefs and, expose the islands to severe erosion from Pacific Ocean surf.

"I really don't think it's a threat," Randall said. "You'll get varying opinions. My personal view is that it's a natural phenomenon that's been going on for thousands of years.

"The islands aren't going to wash away. But if it occurs at too great a magnitude some reefs may never recover," he said.

Randall said his research had also shown that the reef would recover, over periods ranging from 21 years to 36 years for corals in deeper water.

Randall, from Dayton, Ohio, said that

DR. LAMB

Ready For Pregnancy?

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB — I have been trying to get pregnant but I can't. I have tried three times and every time it turns out I am not. I want you to tell me what I can do to get pregnant. I'm 16 years old and my boyfriend and I really want a baby. I am going to keep on trying for it.

DEAR READER — Not too long ago a single girl as young as you are and her boyfriend would try to avoid pregnancy. Are you sure that you are ready to accept the responsibility for another person's life? Biological capability isn't all that is required.

Whether a person wants to get pregnant or avoid it, it is necessary to understand the basic fundamentals of when a woman can get pregnant. You'll need to start there.

Many women around the change of life ask similar questions for different reasons — to find out whether they need to use birth control measures.

Actually there is only a very short time in each menstrual period, with a day or two of variation on either side. The last phase — between ovulation and the onset of the next menstrual period — is much more regular than the first phase — between the onset of the menstrual period and the next ovulation.

Temperature charts with regular plotting of the menstrual cycle and mucus changes all help to pinpoint the time when a woman of any age is likely to get pregnant. I have discussed these points in a new issue of The Health Letter number 17-2, Female Reproductive Function, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

I believe in people being informed, but I also think as a young girl you should discuss this with your parents.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read your column about women needing calcium. As a registered dental hygienist, I disagree with your statement that if a woman doesn't get enough calcium during pregnancy it can affect her teeth. Losing a tooth for every pregnancy is an old wife's tale.

The tooth already has its mineral content and does not develop cavities because of the mother's lack of calcium.

DEAR READER — I have shortened your blast, because you had made false assumptions and jumped to erroneous conclusions. Nowhere in my column did I mention cavities. That was your mistaken assumption.

I was talking about problems that lead to periodontoclasia (pyorrhea) which you, as a dental hygienist, are supposed to be treating or preventing. Since you are not a doctor, perhaps you do not know that one of the earliest signs of calcium deficiency and osteoporosis (loss of bone tissue) is around the roots of the teeth. That is one cause for loose teeth which leads to periodontal disease (pyorrhea). And I will make the assumption that you do know that pyorrhea is a frequent cause for loss of teeth if not corrected.

My advice stands that a woman needs extra calcium during pregnancy to prevent loss of calcium from her own bones — which includes the mandible for her teeth. Next time read more carefully and when calcium loss is being discussed, think bone loss — not cavities.

Median Home Price Climbs To $100,000

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The median price of a home in California has climbed to more than $100,000.

The California Association of Realtors reported this week that about half of all home sales totaled $100,000-$200,000. Nationwide, homes that cost that much account for only 19 percent of sales.

Sales of homes costing more than $200,000 totaled 10.7 percent of all sales in California, compared to 3 percent nationwide.

WHEN IS 6% OFF GREATER THAN 10% OFF?

Our Offer Versus Their Offer CHRYSLER'S 6% OFF THE WINDOW STICKER TOTAL FORD'S 10% OFF CASH ASSISTANCE ON BASE PRICE ONLY

Shop • Test-drive • Compare Prices

TO ENLARGE YOUR SAVINGS WHEN BUYING A NEW 1981 CAR WE SUGGEST YOU REVIEW CAREFULLY THE BASE PRICE COST AND THE COSTS FOR WANTED OPTIONS AND ACCESSORIES.

Remember that Chrysler's rebate is 6% off the window sticker total charge, which includes the base price, optional equipment and transportation cost from the factory to Lubbock. Compare this with Ford's 10% cash assistance off the base price only.

IN MOST INSTANCES YOU WILL PROFIT MORE WITH 6% OFF FROM CHRYSLER. IT REPRESENTS MORE SAVINGS TO YOU THAN 10% OFF FROM FORD

Jurors Told To Read Portion Of Book

AUSTIN (AP) — A federal judge changed his mind and ordered jurors in a $3.75 million libel suit to read almost 200 pages of Thomas Thompson's sensational best-seller, "Blood and Money," to put the allegedly libelous passages into context.

The decision came during the third day of Ann Kurth's libel suit against Thompson and his publisher, Doubleday & Co. Thompson's book deals with the life and death of Houston plastic surgeon Dr. John Hill.

Mrs. Kurth, 50, admits having an affair with Hill during the time he was married to Joan Robinson Hill, and married him only months after Hill's first wife died of a mysterious infection while under his care.

However, she told the court Wednes-

Teen-Agers Awaiting Decision On Future Of Found Money

WACO (UPI) — Two teen-agers trying to keep various government agencies from taking $500,000 they say they dug up on a South Texas ranch may soon learn whether they can keep the money.

Final arguments were scheduled today in U.S. District Court on the money and whether its finders — Percy Garcia and James Dean Bridges — can keep it. All parties to the trial rested their cases Wednesday after testimony by Garcia and Bridges and a special IRS investigator. Away from the jury, San Antonio Judge Fred Shannon tried in vain to get the attorneys for the parties to agree on the specific charge to the jury.

Shannon was expected to define the legal issues today and then final arguments were scheduled. At issue is whether the money was lost, stolen, mislaid or abandoned.

Charles Barrera, Garcia's attorney, said "the ghosts of James Hiroms and Ramsey Muniz hovered over the entire proceedings." He also hammered at Waco police conduct, detailing what he said was a series of wholesale denials of the pair's constitutional rights while police interrogated them as adult criminals rather than juvenile suspects.

Lawyers for the state and for McClean County tried to connect the money with Hiroms, the natural father of Bridges. Bridges led Garcia and another teen-age friend to the South Texas ranch owned by Hiroms, where the pair said the money was found. Hiroms is serving a prison term on drug charges. The lawyers also sought to relate Hiroms with former La Raza Unidos gubernatorial candidate Muniz, convicted on separate drug charges.

Of the state and county's efforts to link Hiroms and Muniz to the trial, Barrera said, "They didn't prove anything."

In his testimony, Garcia said he had $7,000 to $8,000 of the money stuffed in his pants and his wallet at the time of his arrest in Waco for running a traffic light Jan. 31, 1977. He said the money in his pants was confiscated and never returned by Waco police, along with about two ounces of marijuana and a cassette player in which another $1,500 was stashed.

The bulk of the money was in suitcases in the trunk of a new luxury car they purchased with cash in Dallas.

Attorneys said the final custody trial could last a month and possibly delay a March 20 hearing of pre-trial motions in the murder case.

Attorneys planned to take depositions today from Mrs. Daniel, Mrs. Murph, her husband and two children. Mrs. Daniel was scheduled to give a deposition in the case last month, but she failed to appear.

Mrs. Daniel's two children by her first marriage, 10-year-old Jonathon and 12-year-old Kimberly — who was at the Daniel home at the time of the shooting — also will be questioned today if their father, Larry Moore of Dayton, gives his permission.

Moore, who also has filed suit seeking custody of his daughter, was unavailable for comment.

In an unusual procedure, visiting State District Judge Sam S. Emison Jr. of Houston, who took over the case Tuesday, has agreed to be available during the questioning to rule on any legal conflicts that might arise.

"This case involves a lot of emotion. If there is a problem with a question two attorneys can argue the relevance and the judge can decide whether to require an answer," said Harlan Friend, an attorney for Mrs. Daniel.

Attorneys for both sides say they probably will agree to seal the depositions until portions are entered into evidence at the trial. But Lannie said once portions are introduced "everything would come right out on the clothes line."

Attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes, representing Mrs. Daniel, said if the attorneys reach an agreement he would "move to have the depositions sealed."

Braniff Says Machinists Must Approve Program

DALLAS (UPI) — Leaders of a machinists union, opposed to a Braniff International wage concession package, have the power to scuttle the entire plan if they can convince their members to also vote against it.

Braniff officials say the plan is essential in order for the financially plagued airline to keep jets airborne.

Four of the five unions representing Braniff employees have approved the program — calling for a 10 percent pay cut and profit-sharing — leaving the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers with life-and-death power over its fate. Braniff's more than 1,300 pilots approved the plan Wednesday, said Ray Chanaud, Braniff's chief spokesman. Approval by the Air Line Pilot's Association strengthened the concept, already endorsed by the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, the Association of Flight Attendants and the Air Transport Dispatch Association.

The machinists now have the key role and the union reportedly planned to announce voting results on Tuesday. Union leaders said they were asking members to vote against it.

Machinists union leaders said they doubted the 1,900 workers represented by the union would approve the plan. One said he expected a rejection because "a lot of our membership has doubts about the good faith of the company" and he charged Braniff had violated the union's contract in several areas.

Chanaud said if one of the unions rejected the plan, "We'll cross that bridge when we come to it." His statement was a departure from previous contentions that disapproval by one union would not necessarily doom the entire plan.

But without approval by the machinists, the program was considered dead because of stipulations by some of Braniff's senior lenders — banks and insurance companies which have kept Braniff's jets in the air despite staggering losses.

Braniff's senior lenders agreed earlier this week to defer, until July 1, some $40 million in loan payments owed by Braniff, including $18 million that otherwise would have been due Monday.

Braniff had said earlier only that "several" lenders had linked approval of the loan agreement to adoption of an employee profit-sharing plan.

But Chanaud conceded Wednesday that an agreement with Braniff's 39 institutional debt holders was "conditioned upon the adoption of an employee wage program" — meaning the machinists could dismantle the entire program.

Chanaud said: "We think it is necessary for all employees to participate in the plan to make it work. But we do not speculate on what would happen if one of the unions disapprove it."

Braniff treasurer Robert Ferguson said only a few senior lenders had made the profit-sharing plan a condition of their consent to defer the loan payments. But Ferguson said under terms of the loan agreement, a condition insisted upon by one lender applies equally to all 39 senior lenders.

The Dallas Times Herald reported Wednesday that if the profit-sharing plan was not acceptable to all 39 lenders, "the collective agreement between the company and lenders will collapse."

Chanaud speculated the lenders would give Braniff "at least a month" to gain approval of the profit-sharing plan. He said, however, if the grace period ended without a plan being approved, Braniff's "debts would be becoming quite current."

Witness Says Voices Belong To Suspects

WACO (AP) — A witness in the trial of three men charged with extortion attempts against local grocery stores has testified the voices on a police-made tape recording are those of the accused trio.

The three are charged with trying to extort $60,000 from the H.E.B. food chain by saying strychnine had been spread throughout three of the stores.

When efforts to pay the extortion demand failed, company officials decided to throw out all the threatened goods in the three stores — seven tons of material, one official said at the time — and completely restocked the stores rather than gamble that the threat was a hoax.

Wednesday's witness was Joe Lee Buzbee of Gholson, who said he knows all three men.

Buzbee told a federal court jury he recognized the voices of Daniel Glenn, 23; Stephen Howard, 24; and David Howard, 21. He said the voice in the first recorded conversation was that of Stephen Howard, the second was that of Glenn and the third was David Howard's. Stephen Howard lived with him for three months, he testified.

The prosecution played for the jury tapes of three calls received at the stores Dec. 4 and 5. Five calls were made to store officials but the FBI only had time to tape three of them.

Buzbee acknowledged on the stand he was given $500 by the FBI more than a month after the extortion attempt and that he got the voices of Glenn and one of the Howards mixed up the first time he heard the conversations.

Earlier, employee Ricky Berrier told the jury he received the first phone call. He said the caller told him "that there had been strychnine put in items in three of our stores. He said he wanted $60,000 in fives, tens, and 20s in used bills and a flat bottom boat."

FBI agents attempted one drop by taking money up the Brazos River in the boat. No one made contact to take the money.

Money does count, he added, but the "job satisfaction and early responsibility" far outweigh the difference for the T-38 class commander responsible for about 60 undergraduate pilot training students at the Air Training Command base.

"I like what I'm doing. I get a lot more responsibility here than in the airline industry. I never thought about any other job where I could do as much."

Whiteford began his urban research in Latin America in the 1960s because of the almost complete absence of data on the urban aspects of this area which had been intensively studied for its aboriginal and folk cultures.

He chose Popayan because its Latin American urban culture was based on a traditional society, relatively little affected by either foreign industries of foreign tourists. His study throws some light on the mode of life in a medium-sized Latin American city.

Whiteford said some understanding of the urban cultures is necessary because the cities are the points of contact between the Latin American nations and cultures and those of the rest of the world.

Whiteford has published numerous articles, reports and books from his Latin American research. His recent works have centered on North American Indian art including, "Bags, Belts, and Blankets: Non-loom Fabrics of the North American Indians." The book, to be published in 1982 by the University of Oklahoma Press, was written with Kate Peck Kent.

A native of Winnipeg, Whiteford earned his bachelor's degree in anthropology at Beloit College in Wisconsin. He earned the master's and doctoral degrees in anthropology at the University of Chicago.

He spent most of his academic career at Beloit College where he held positions as director of the Logan Museum, chairman of the Department of Anthropology and as George L. Collie Professor of Anthropology from 1947 to 1974 when he became professor emeritus.

Whiteford's topic will be "Life in Andean City: Popayan." His knowledge of Popayan, Colombia, comes from his 25-year acquaintance with that city, which lies in the Andes mountain range and has been called one of the most beautiful cities of the Americas.

Whiteford is best known for his comparative study of Popayan and Queretaro, Mexico. "Two Cities in Latin America: A Comparative Description of Social Classes," published in 1960.

He also did a descriptive study, "Popayan, an Andean City at Mid-Century: A Traditional Urban Society," in 1977.

In her book, however, Mrs. Kurth claimed Hill was still alive and had admitted to her that he killed his first wife, his father and his brother.

Young Leukemia Victim Missing; Dad Unworried

DALLAS (AP) — The father of a missing 2-year-old leukemia victim says he is not worried about doctors' warnings that the child may die if she is not found and given medical treatment.

"I'm not fearful of that because of my belief in God. We believe God has healed her body from this condition," Louis Pendleton said.

"We believe in doctors, but we also strongly believe in God. I think this is out of the doctors' hands."

Louisa Pendleton and her mother, Judith, disappeared last week, shortly after a state district judge ordered Louisa's parents to provide her with medical treatment.

"Every day that this goes on diminishes her chance for recovery. It's just a tragedy," said state District Judge Craig Penfold.

The girl's 27-year-old father says he doesn't know where his wife and daughter have gone, but he's not worried about the doctors' grim warnings.

Louisa will die if she is not treated soon, doctors say. But if treatment could begin immediately, she stands almost a 50-50 chance of recovering from her illness and leading a near-normal life.

The Pendletons took Louisa to Children's Medical Center Jan. 22, saying she was listless and her hands were swelling.

The diagnosis of acute lymphoblastic leukemia was confirmed the next day, said Dr. George Buchanan, who examined the child.

Ex-A-J Staffer Going To Capital

DALLAS (AP) — Stephen A. Brewer has been appointed correspondent in charge of The Associated Press bureau in El Paso, and Charles A. Richards has been named the AP's Texas correspondent in Washington, D.C., Texas Chief of Bureau Dorman Cordell announced.

Brewer, 24, is now on the Little Rock AP staff. In El Paso, he will succeed James R. King, who has been named correspondent in charge of the Houston bureau.

Richards, 39, will move from the Dallas bureau to succeed Sol Sussman, who is being reassigned to the AP Foreign Desk in New York.

Brewer's appointment will be effective March 30 and Richards' on April 6.

Brewer joined the AP in Little Rock two years ago after 3 1/2 years with the Arkansas Gazette. He began working on the Gazette while completing his degree at the University of Arkansas at Little Rock.

Richards has been on the Dallas AP staff for three years. He worked for United Press International from 1964 to 1970, and then worked for the Hereford Brand, the Amarillo Daily News, the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal and the Dallas Times Herald before joining the AP.

Testy Lemons Leads UT Against Tech

By CHUCK McDONALD
Assistant Sports Editor

SAN ANTONIO — It hasn't been the kind of stuff legends are made of for the Texas Longhorns in 1981. Put bluntly, the 'Horns haven't produced the way they were supposed to, going 13-14 on the year and 7-9 in SWC play, and coach Abe Lemons has had little nice to say about his players.

So, as is Lemons' unabashed style, the Texas coach let it all hang out here Wednesday at the ritualistic press conference directly preceding the annual Southwest Conference blowout — officially known as the Sixth Annual Post-Season Basketball Tournament.

Texas Tech's Gerald Myers, as usual, said all the right things. Meanwhile, Lemons, looking like an aging rock 'n' roll singer in dark sunglasses and chomping a big cigar, had little nice to say about anyone or anything.

So the Red Raiders, almost by default, have earned the white hat and good-guy role in tonight's second round of the SWC double-feature here at the HemisFair Arena.

Tech and Texas, which split a pair of regular season contests, will meet at 9 p.m. The surprising TCU Horned Frogs, who knocked off pre-season favorite Texas A&M Monday, will battle the third-place Baylor Bears in the tourney opener at 7 p.m.

The winner of the Tech-Texas clash meets league champion Arkansas on Friday while the Baylor-TCU victor earns a date with the Houston Cougars in the semifinals.

"We're awful glad to be here after the way our season has gone," said Tech's Myers. "Yes, we did play an awful good game in Lubbock when we played Texas the first time (Tech won 89-79) but when we played in Austin, Texas made us look pretty bad. I guess Abe just figured us out."

"Being here ain't that big a deal," said Lemons. "If you win then it's a heck of a deal."

Then came the question that angered the Texas coach. Someone made the mistake of mentioning the now-famous 108-79 whipping A&M handed the 'Horns in a televised game some 10 days ago.

"What A&M game?" snapped Lemons. "We won one and they won one. I got beat 127-67 once and I'm still coaching. I think you guys (the media) made a lot more out of that game than we did. You were the ones who kept calling it a humiliation, not me.

"I think it hurt them a lot more than it hurt us. Look who's not here," Lemons continued. "I can't ever figure out why one team can't win and one team can't lose and then you guys just leave it at that. I'd be willing just to write nice things about the winner and leave it at that. That's the way it ought to be."

What it ought to be, in the rubber match between the Raiders and the Longhorns, is a heck of a game. After two meetings, the Longhorns are currently one point better than Tech.

"I think we match up pretty well with four of their guys," said Myers. "But it's that big guy who really gives us problems."

The big guy, of course, is 6-10 center LaSalle Thompson. The hefty sophomore is averaging 19 points and 12.7 rebounds a game. That makes him the best rebounder in the SWC and the fourth leading scorer.

Lemons will surround Thompson with forwards Ken Montgomery and Mike Wacker and guards Ray Harper and Fred Carson. Junior-college transfer Vir-dell Howland will also play extensively at forward as Texas likes to use a one-guard offense. Montgomery is the only other Longhorn averaging in double figures with an 11.2-per-game average.

"Some of us, when we go to the bench, don't find a lot there," said Lemons. "I think Gerald (Myers) has also had some problems with depth. That's the key to anyone's success. If you look at the top three teams it's obvious they are there because depth makes a lot of difference."

The Raiders will open with the same lineup they have used for the last nine games: 6-6 junior Clarence Swannegan at the post, 6-6 senior Ben Hill and 6-8 senior Ralph Brewster at the wings, and 6-4 junior Jeff Taylor and 5-10 freshman Bubba Jennings in the backcourt. Sixth man Steve Smith is also expected to see plenty of action.

Swannegan and Taylor, both second-team all-SWC selections, each averaged 13.3 points a game to lead the Raiders.

While Lemons was quizzed about his team's showing against the Aggies, Myers was questioned about the Raiders' also-famous five-game losing streak midway through the conference season.

"We lost to Rice and Baylor and everybody got talking about how bad we were playing and we sort of fell in line," said Myers. "I didn't think we played that bad against Baylor, but we lost our confidence after those two games."

The biggest hit at Wednesday's press conference was TCU's Jim Killingsworth, obviously ecstatic just to be here.

The Frogs earned their initial appearance in the SWC tournament when sophomore guard Darrell Browder hit a 38-foot jump shot at the buzzer for the Frogs' 62-60 upset of A&M.

"It reminds me of the guy in the mental institute who had to make a speech," said a grinning Killingsworth. "He stood up and said 'Why are we all here?' and the guy in the back row said, 'Because we ain't all there.'"

"There's just nothing to this tournament stuff," explained Killingsworth. "All you have to do is hang in there, stay close, and then get somebody to hit a 40-footer at the end."

Bulldogs View District From Driver's Seat

By RAY GLASS

Avanche-Journal Sports Staff
PLAINVIEW — When the District 4-5A boys' basketball coaches got together last year and decided to hold a post-season tournament this year, Plainview's Bob Moore didn't expect a first-round bye.

In fact, everyone figured Monterey would probably be the first-ever host team. The Plainsmen had finished either first or second in the running for the district title in 11 of the past 13 seasons. Other 4-5A coaches saw the tournament, which determines the district representative in the playoffs, as one more chance to upset the Plainsmen.

"Pretty well everyone voted for the tournament except for one (coach)," Moore said as his Bulldogs prepared to play host for the tourney after winning the district title. "But I didn't think we'd be the host team, not at all."

First-round action in the single-elimination affair, stacked heavily in favor of the regular-season winner, opens today when Monterey clashes with Hereford at 6 p.m. and Coronado and Lubbock High meet at 8 p.m. All games will be played in the Plainview High School gym.

The winners of today's games meet Friday at 11 a.m. with the survivor of that contest slated to take on the Bulldogs Friday at 8 p.m.

If Plainview wins Friday night's contest, it will be the 4-5A representative in the playoffs. If the Bulldogs lose, a rematch between the two schools will be held Saturday at 8 p.m. with the winner advancing to the playoffs.

Realistically, the tourney's setup favors the regular-season titlist. It need only win one game to win the tournament while any of the other four schools must win four times in three days to wrestle the title away from the round-robin winner.

Plainview, 7-1 in district but only 17-15 overall, worked some of the rust out of the system with a 73-67 loss to Morton in a practice game last week.

The first-round Monterey-Hereford game will be rematch of sorts for the Plainsmen. Hereford dumped Monterey 46-45 on the final day of the regular season, knocking the defending champions out of a tie for first place.

"We've had some real good workouts all week," Monterey coach Joe Michalka said. "The kids are getting it all together and are really looking forward to the tournament."

"The Hereford game is not necessarily a rematch for us. We're just looking forward to playing Hereford. We just keep pushing ourselves. Tournament play has been one of our strong points this year. We haven't won any but we've played real well."

The Plainsmen finished the regular season 6-2 in league games and 24-8 overall while the Whitefaces come into the tourney with the worst set of records, 1-7 and 4-27.

The Coronado-Lubbock matchup will be the third time the two teams have met in a month. The Westerners, 4-4 and 15-15, won both of the regular season games, 54-47 on their home floor and 44-43 in the Mustangs' gym.

But Coronado, 2-6 and 13-18, may have an added incentive in the tournament. Mustang coach Barry Arwine announced his resignation early in the week to go into private business but will guide the club through the end of the post-season action.

JUMPING JAMES — San Antonio's James Silas (13) fires a jump-shot as Kansas City's Joe C. Meriweather raises a defensive hand during a National Basketball Association game Wednesday night in HemisFair Arena. Otis Birdsong's 39 points helped beat the Spurs 111-97. (AP Laserphoto)

Nazareth Wins Semifinal Game

AUSTIN (AP) — Cousins Sharon and Lori Gerber combined for 38 points today as Nazareth opened defense of its Class A girls' state basketball title with a 70-35 victory over LaRue LaPoynor in the semifinals in the state tournament.

Nazareth has won four straight state championships and has won 34 games and lost two this year.

The Panhandle team is beating its opponents by an average of over 40 points a game this season, and even its subs outscored LaPoynor when they were in the game.

Lori Gerber scored 21 points and Sharon Gerber had 17. Sharon Birkenfeld tallied 14 for Nazareth even though she played only 5½ minutes.

LaPoynor trailed 39-19 at halftime and never came close to Nazareth. Patty Hanks scored 9 points for LaPoynor and had 18 rebounds.

LaPoynor was eliminated from the tournament with 31-4 record. Nazareth will play the winner of the Colmesneil-Weatherford Brock game for the championship Saturday.

Ex-Sun Devils Add To Testimony Against Kush

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Members of the Arizona State University football team "got a big laugh" when former Sun Devil coach Frank Kush told them he didn't punch punter Kevin Rutledge in a 1978 game, a former player testified Wednesday.

"The laugh indicated 'You're crazy.' We'd all seen it or been a part of it," Gary Bouck told the court. "Coach Kush just said, 'You guys know me well enough that I've never punched anybody.'"

Rutledge is suing Kush and others for $2.2 million — claiming Kush split his lower lip with a punch following a 26-yard punt in Arizona State's 41-7 loss to Washington Oct. 28, 1978, in Seattle.

He also claims Kush and ex-Sun Devil secondary coach Bill Masklin harassed him into quitting the team in 1979 and forfeiting his scholarship.

Kush has denied both charges. Masklin has yet to testify. The trial is in its fifth week.

Bouck testified Wednesday that he did see the alleged blow. But during a conversation with Kush nearly a year later, Bouck said he denied having witnessed it because he "feared repercussions" and "didn't want to call him a liar to his face."

Bouck also said he filed a statement in September 1979 saying he didn't see the alleged Kush-Rutledge altercation "because at the time, I didn't think it was any big deal. I didn't take it seriously."

Bouck, a linebacker-specialty team player at Arizona State from 1978-79, said he and teammate Bryan Caldwell were coming off the field together after Rutledge's short punt in the Washington game.

"I watched the incident happen," Bouck testified. "I noticed Frank was yelling in Kevin's face for a while. Then he grabbed Kevin's face mask and began shaking it back and forth."

"Kush pushed up the mask with the palm of his left hand and threw an uppercut with his right hand. I saw the punch thrown, but I couldn't tell if it touched skin. I saw it go under the face mask."

"Me and Bryan just looked at each other and laughed about it," Bouck added. "We never thought anything would ever become of it."

Caldwell testified Monday that he saw Kush "grab Kevin by the face mask, shake it a few times and come up with a fist. I could tell there was a punch delivered and there was contact made to the head."

Two other ex-Sun Devil players and one university booster have previously told the court they saw Kush take a swing at Rutledge. But one player, Steve Chambers, said the punch was not the "sweeping uppercut" Rutledge has described.

Bouck told the court that "I had never seen him (Kush) punch anybody before. I had seen him slap a helmet before. My first impression was that it reminded me of the Ohio State coach (Woody Hayes, who was fired after punching a Clemson player in the 1978 Gator Bowl)."

Bouck said he "didn't think about the incident again until charges were pressed" against Kush in September 1979. He said Kush called a team meeting "to say that there was a lawsuit and it was meant to disrupt our season. He said we shouldn't get ourselves disturbed about it."

At a team training table meal in late September 1979, Bouck said he and the rest of the squad were asked to fill out statements on three-by-five index cards, saying whether they had or hadn't seen the alleged Kush-Rutledge incident.

Caldwell testified he had fellow defensive end Bob Kohrs fill his out for him "because I was too busy eating and I didn't take it seriously."

Bouck said "Kohrs, myself and Bryan were all writing each other's. It was merely a joke. We all got a laugh out of it. I made a comment when I handed it back to the (Arizona State assistant) coaches to 'tell Frank he owes me one' and they all laughed."

But both Bouck and Caldwell testified they didn't tell Kohrs they had indeed seen the supposed altercation.

"I was concerned about my senior year. I wanted to stay away from trouble," Bouck said. "And at the time, Frank was denying it all."

Bouck said he and Caldwell met with then-Arizona State athletic director Dr.

Fred Miller at an abandoned Tempe gas station Oct. 10.

"Miller wanted to ask us one question — if we had seen coach Kush hit Kevin Rutledge," Bouck testified. "Bryan and I both said 'yes' and that's all he wanted to know."

Three days later, Miller suspended Kush "because evidence pointed to the fact that he was lying about the Rutledge incident and attempting to cover it up."

Rutledge's mother, Nancy, testified late Wednesday that her son "had a swollen lip with a laceration inside" when he came home for dinner the day after the Washington game in 1978.

"I asked him what had happened. He said coach had hit him," Mrs. Rutledge told the court. "He didn't seem to want to talk about it."

LHS, CHS Continue Schedules

Lubbock High will play its home opener and Coronado will begin competition in the Goddard Invitational Tournament in today's city baseball action.

The Westerners were to have played their first game of the season Wednesday in Amarillo against Palo Duro but were rained out.

The Mustangs opened their season Tuesday and lost a 4-3 decision to Midland Lee on the road.

LHS coach Bart Hernandez will send the same starting lineup into today's game he expected to use against Palo Duro.

DUO TOPS ALL-SEC

ATLANTA (AP)—Fifth-year senior Durand Macklin, who steered Louisiana State to the Southeastern Conference championship, and SEC scoring leader Dominique Wilkins of Georgia lead the Associated Press 1981 All-SEC basketball team. Macklin, Wilkins and center Sam Bowie of Kentucky were unanimous choices in balloting by an eight-member panel of area sports writers. Macklin was named Player of the Year and LSU coach Dale Brown was named the Coach of the Year. Rounding out the first unit were point guard Ethan Martin of LSU and Elston Turner, Mississippi's high-scoring forward.

Thomas Romero will be behind the plate and will be flanked by Rudy Robles at first base, Craig Smith at second, Moses Guzman at third and either Bobby Balch or Lupe Vasquez at shortstop. In the outfield, Carlos Hernandez will be in left, Raymond Montalvo will be in center and James Jackson will man the right field spot.

The pitching, the area Hernandez believes will be his team's question mark this year, will be handled by Vasquez and David Garcia.

"I want to look at at least two pitchers," Hernandez said. "I may also have Bobby Balch pitch some against Tascosa."

Concerning today's opponent, Hernandez said he knew very little about Tascosa except that it was young last year and would have most of those youngsters back again.

Today's game begins at 4 p.m. at MacKenzie Park.

Coronado, which lost a 4-3 heart-breaker against Midland Lee in its season opener Tuesday, will be trying to get back on the winning track that took it to the state quarterfinals last year when it opens the Goddard Invitational in Roswell against Big Spring today at 11 a.m.

Big Spring lost its opener to Monterey 10-3 Monday.

Careful Cooney Stands In Line

NEW YORK (AP) — Heavyweight contenders normally clamor for a title fight, and rarely are clamored for. Not Gerry Cooney.

Ranked No.1 by both the World Boxing Association and the World Boxing Council, unbeaten and white, Cooney has box office appeal.

As such, he has openly been challenged by WBC champion Larry Holmes and coveted by Mike Weaver, the WBA titleholder.

The charge in boxing circles is that he has been overly protected by co-managers Dennis Rappaport and Mike Jones. "Carefully nurtured" is the way Cooney's camp explains its strategy.

The wait may be nearing an end because Rappaport said Wednesday that if Cooney beats Ken Norton in their May 11 fight at Madison Square Garden, he will fight for the title.

Whether it will be for Holmes' or Weaver's title will be decided later, Rappaport said. A rare choice for a contender.

"As of March 31, Gerry becomes the mandatory challenger for Mike Weaver, and within 60 days after that, the fight is actually supposed to take place," Rappaport said. "But we are going to ask for an extension of 60 days because of the Norton commitment."

Rappaport, however, did not rule out a fight with Holmes.

His comments were made at a news conference held one day after the Garden announced it would promote the Cooney-Norton bout, the lone survivor of a four-fight Feb. 23 card wiped out when MAPS and Harold J. Smith, its chief executive officer, were named in a bank fraud suit in California.

The 11-week delay would be no problem physically or psychologically, Cooney felt. "It will be just like starting training for a new fight," he said.

About Norton, his 35-year old opponent who ended a 15-month retirement last November when he beat Randy Cobb in San Antonio, Cooney said: "I expect a tough fight. When anybody over 200 pounds hits you, it hurts."

No one asked Cooney his thoughts on lightning striking twice. It was at the Garden on May 11, 1977 — exactly four years to the day of the Cooney-Norton fight — that Norton flattened Duane Bobick in 58 seconds of the first round. One year later, Norton briefly held the WBC title.

Norton remained in California where he signed a contract last Friday for what John Condon, the Garden's boxing president, said was $850,000.

Cooney, who has won all 24 of his pro fights, signed for $1 million.

"Actually, he will come away with $1.25 million," Rappaport said, noting that Cooney already had received $250,000 from MAPS for the Feb. 23 fight.

"Gerry is the only fighter on that card who will get exactly what he was promised."

The ill-fated card, for which the Garden was only the landlord, had a total purse of $8.1 million and an equally ambitious ticket scale, topped by $1,000. Tickets for the May 11 card will be scaled from $200 to $30.

CBS Defeats NBC For College Basketball Rights

By The Associated Press
CBS, which already is the network of the National Basketball Association, signed a three-year agreement Wednesday to broadcast the NCAA post-season basketball tournament, beginning in 1982.

The contract is a real coup for CBS because the college tournament is one of sport's prestige events. What's more, CBS stole this one from fierce rival NBC, which will be forced to end its longtime association when it airs the playoffs late this month.

The announcement of the new alliance was made jointly by Wayne Duke, chairman of the NCAA's Television Committee, and Van Sauter, president of CBS Sports.

Duke said CBS won over finalist NBC and two preliminary bidders, ABC and TVS, "based on the extensive broadcasting program it proposed, its plan to undertake a sustained national promotion of the games, and its strong and competitive financial terms." It was learned that CBS made the highest bid, reportedly $48 million for three years, with a negotiating position for the future.

Al McGuire, whose telecast remarks for NBC have drawn protests from coaches, says he is trying to be stoical about his network's loss of college basketball coverage to CBS.

"It has been a good run," he told an interviewer Wednesday, "but if that's all she wrote, I'll go on to another blacktop or playground."

McGuire and Billy Packer, a fellow NBC telecaster, have drawn censure from several coaches, including Ray Meyer of DePaul and Digger Phelps of Notre Dame, concerning their broadcast remarks.

Lefty Driesell of Maryland said recently: "These guys are on a big ego trip. I'm getting tired of the negative things they say."

McGuire told the Milwaukee Sentinel, after learning of the CBS contract victory, that critics are making too much of a thing over the remarks.

"I think the coaches are my brothers," he said. "I could care less personally."

McGuire, declining to divulge terms of his NBC contract, reported to have exceeded $100,000 when he started, said he has no immediate thought of shifting to another network.

"My die is cast with NBC," he said. "I have been with NBC for a little over three years, and I have an extension on my contract that runs for three more years."

Contacted in New York, CBS press relations director Jay Rosenstein had no immediate opinion on whether CBS might try to hire McGuire as a college basketball announcer.

NBC, McGuire said, "gave me the opportunity to be myself. I didn't honestly believe they would let me be Al McGuire. They have never said one thing to me or criticized me."

CBS, with or without McGuire, is in a unique position. For some time, it has battled NBC's college basketball for Sunday ratings; now it has both the pro and college games.

CBS said it assured the NBA its full complement of games will be aired in 1982, the final year of a four-year agreement. Pilon said CBS is still interested in the NBA in 1983. "It would be a mistake for anyone to write off CBS as an NBA possibility," he said.

Several changes made it easier for

CBS to find programming time for the NCAA regular-season games in '82. First, the NBA decided to begin its season three weeks later to avoid a conflict with the World Series. This opens three weeks for college basketball early in '82. In addition, CBS dropped three golf tournaments in the first quarter of '82.

CBS also acquired broadcast rights to the women's college basketball championships for the next three years and offered to purchase five other NCAA championships.

CBS had tried to steal the Rose Bowl from NBC late last year but managed only to drive up the price. This time, CBS got the praise — from the colleges — and the prize.

"I don't think NBC lost it; I think we won it," said Pilon. "CBS network is on a high roll at this point."

Post-Season Tourneys Flourish

By The Associated Press
College basketball tournament time, when losers sometimes become winners and vice versa, has arrived.

First-round games will be played tonight in five Division I conference tournaments, with three other leagues in the second round and four others in the semifinals.

And then there are literally dozens of other regional and district playoffs under way in the small college divisions.

One place where upsets are the rule rather than the exception at the post-season tournament is the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament, being played this year at Landover, Md.

Pan American Edges Tech 5-4

CORPUS CHRISTI (Special) — The Texas Tech men's tennis team opened the 13th Annual HEB College Tennis Team Championships here with a 5-4 loss to highly-ranked Pan American University Wednesday.

The Red Raiders won the top three singles and No. 3 doubles matches in straight sets, but were unable to win four split-sets and went down to the loser's bracket.

Mark Thompson, playing in new position — No. 1 singles — came through with a 7-6, 6-2 victory over Mark Roberts. Tech's Zahid Maniya also won, against Pan Am's No. 2 player, Mark Godley, 6-3, 6-3.

PAN AMERICAN 5, TEXAS TECH 4
Singles: Mark Thompson, Tech, def. Mark Roberts, Pan American, 7-6, 6-2; Zahid Maniya, Tech, def. Mark Godley, Pan American, 6-3, 6-3; Fred Vianco, Tech, def. BRETT LEAVES HOSPITAL
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — George Brett has left a Kansas City hospital after undergoing hemorrhoid surgery.

Some observers feel 12th-ranked North Carolina, seeded second in the ACC tournament that started at 11 a.m. today, could become an also-ran because of three key injuries — to James Worthy, Sam Perkins and Pete Budko.

The Tar Heels face North Carolina State and Duke meets 20th-ranked Maryland in tonight's games. The tournament started today with 11th-ranked Wake Forest matched against Clemson and fourth-ranked Virginia, the ACC's regular-season champion, paired with Georgia Tech, 0-14 during the regular season.

"Carolina is going to have its hands full," said coach Bill Foster of Clemson. "I wouldn't be surprised to see that one go the other way."

Worthy, who averaged 14 points and seven rebounds a game, injured his back last week; Perkins, North Carolina's freshman starter at center, sustained a bruised knee and Budko, a reserve center, practiced Monday for the first time since suffering a leg injury on Jan. 22.

On Wednesday night, the Southeastern Conference played the first round of its post-season tournament, with Florida edging Auburn 50-48 in overtime and Vanderbilt defeating Mississippi State 71-58.

The SEC powerhouses, third-ranked Louisiana State, No. 7 Kentucky and

No. 10 Tennessee, had first-round byes. They get under way tonight against Florida, Vanderbilt and Mississippi, respectively.

Tournament games also will be played tonight in the Big East Conference at Syracuse, N.Y.; the Southwestern Athletic Conference at Baton Rouge, La.; the Pacific Coast Athletic Association at Anaheim, Calif.; the Metro Conference at Louisville, Ky.; the Southwest Conference at San Antonio; the Missouri Valley Conference; the Midwestern City Conference tournament; the ECAC Metro at Uniondale, N.Y.; and the ECAC North tournament.

Baseball's Walking Wounded Break Into Full Trot

By The Associated Press
A trio of veterans who couldn't find their way out of the infirmary last year began comeback attempts Wednesday. If they succeed, their teams just might find themselves in a very healthy situation — as pennant contenders.

Relief pitcher Don Stanhouse of the Dodgers, and outfielders Dan Ford of the Angels and Joe Rudi of the Red Sox, worked out with varying degrees of success. But, this early in spring training, just the fact that they were back in action was good news for their clubs.

Stanhouse, the ace reliever of the American League champion Baltimore Orioles in 1979, signed with Los Angeles as a free agent prior to last season. But he appeared in just 21 games while on the disabled list in 1980 and managed just seven saves.

McEnroe Tops Davis Squad

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) — John McEnroe and Roscoe Tanner, runners-up at Wimbledon the last two years, represent the U.S. in singles play Friday against Mexico in a first-round Davis Cup match at La Costa Hotel and Spa.

The U.S., the winningest nation — with 26 titles — since Davis Cup competition began in 1900, has a 23-3 record against Mexico, but had to replace its top doubles team a week ago.

Marty Riessen and Sherwood Stewart were installed in place of the veteran duo of Bob Lutz and Stan Smith when Smith suffered an injury.

Arthur Ashe is making his debut as captain of the U.S. team, succeeding Tony Trabert, the most successful U.S. captain with 14 victories. Ashe, a member of 10 Davis Cup squads, said the U.S. won't take Mexico lightly.

"Anything can happen," he said. "Mexico has pulled surprises. We won't take them lightly." Ashe added he has "the best U.S. team I can have here."

McEnroe is the No. 1-ranked player in the U.S. and second in the world while Tanner is eighth in the U.S. and 14th in the world.

Although Mexico has not officially named its two singles entries, McEnroe and Tanner will likely face Davis Cup veteran Raul Ramirez and Emilio Montano, who rank 1-2 in their country. Ramirez, who grew up in nearby La Jolla, ranks No. 36 in the world. Montano is 158th.

The best 3-of-5 format begins Friday with two singles matches, followed by doubles competition on Saturday and singles again on Sunday.

practice at the Dodgers' camp in Vero Beach, Fla.

"His control was not as good as it could be," said coach Danny Ozark. "But for the first time out, he threw well. He threw for 10 minutes and threw quite freely."

Weather Postpones Tech-LCC Baseball

The scheduled baseball double-header between Lubbock Christian College and Texas Tech at Chaparral Stadium was postponed Wednesday due to inclement weather conditions.

The series instead began at 1 p.m. today at the Tech Diamond. That double-header had been scheduled originally.

The postponed Wednesday games are slated to be made up at 1 p.m. Monday at Chaparral Stadium. A scheduled twinbill between these same two teams will be played at 1 p.m. Tuesday, also at Chaparral Stadium.

Ford, a .290 hitter with 21 home runs and 101 RBI in 1979, when California won the AL West, underwent surgery for torn cartilage following that season. He appeared in just 65 games last year, hitting .266.

Ford participated in a baserunning drill at the Angels' training facility in Palm Springs, Calif., on Wednesday, then said his knee "feels fine."

"It could be stronger, it still gets a little sore at times," he added. "But I'll keep working with it and it should be no problem by the time the season starts."

And Rudi, acquired by Boston from the Angels in the deal that sent Fred Lynn to California, hit the ball hard in his first shot at live pitching at the Red Sox camp in Winter Haven, Fla. Rudi had been restricted to hitting against a pitching machine for two days because of a strained right calf muscle.

"Rudi said he felt a lot better," manager Ralph Houk said of the veteran outfielder who hasn't been at top form since he starred with the championship Oakland A's teams of 1973-75. "However, we still want him to take it easy for a couple of days. We know what he can do. There's no need to rush him."

Veteran outfielder Terry Whitfield left the San Francisco Giants and will join the Seibu Lions of the Japanese league.

Montreal Expos' right fielder Ellis Valentine quit batting practice due to an infected finger. Earlier, Valentine reiterated his desire to be traded.

"It's not something that's just going to blow over," he said. "I think it's better if I get a fresh start with another organization."

Cincinnati outfielder Dave Collins finally reported to the Reds' Tampa camp and officially was told he would be moving to right field as Ken Griffey took over in center.

Beavers' Ralph Miller Enjoys Undefeated Season

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP) — Oregon State's No. 1-ranked basketball team is just two victories away from finishing its regular season schedule without a loss — something coach Ralph Miller had thought impossible.

But Miller has no trouble figuring out why his team has done better than he thought it would.

"The biggest surprise has been the development of our defense," said Miller, whose team can clinch its second straight Pacific 10 Conference title tonight with a victory over Arizona.

The key to the success on defense has been the two new players in the starting lineup — freshman Charlie Sitton and junior college transfer Lester Conner.

"We lost two fine defensive players last year and it was questionable whether we could be as good a defensive team in 1981 as we were in 1980," he said. "However, Sitton and Conner are both excellent defensive players — better than I thought they would be."

The Beavers are giving up about 60 points per game, and Miller points out that Oregon State is not a ball-control team.

"The fact we have been able to do this is surprising," he said, "but I can't think of a nicer surprise."

Miller also points to the team's depth. Four players on the Beaver bench are counted on regularly.

"This team has a bench that is much stronger than any team I've had in the past," said Miller, in his 30th year as a major-college coach.

Beating the Wildcats tonight would make Saturday's regular-season finale against fifth-ranked Arizona State meaningless as far as the Pac-10 standings are concerned.

But the Beavers, 16-0 in the conference and 25-0 overall, are entertaining loftier thoughts of an unbeaten season and a National Collegiate Athletic Association championship.

No matter how the season ends, Miller says Oregonians will long remember this team.

"I don't think you'll ever dull the enthusiasm this state and this institution have for this particular ball club," Miller said.

The Beavers received all but one first-place ballot in this week's Associated Press poll after victories over Southern Cal and UCLA in Los Angeles last weekend. In both games, Oregon State trailed by six points at halftime, but Miller isn't concerned.

"One of the big things about this ball club has been its ability to play better basketball in the second half," Miller said. "If you were going to beat us this way, you're going to have to bury us quick and get us in a position where we can't come back."

"When you get down to the last few minutes of a ball game and you haven't put us away, you're going to have a lot of trouble," he said, "because that's where our poise and balance comes in."

Hoya Coach Teaches Sense Of Caring

WASHINGTON (AP) — Georgetown University coach John Thompson is a study in contrasts.

A black coach for a predominantly white school in the nation's capital, Thompson has built a highly successful program on honesty, education and basketball, and in that order.

An unlikely candidate to coach at a Jesuit university better known for its academic excellence than its fullcourt press, Thompson came to Georgetown in 1972 after a successful career as coach of a Washington, D.C. high school.

He had been a center at Providence College and later in the National Basketball Association for the Boston Celtics.

A giant of a man, carrying some 240 pounds on a 6-foot-10 frame, he is an awesome sight on the bench, his huge body hunched forward, his massive hands twisting an ever-present towel between his fingers.

He was the envy of just about every other college coach at news that Patrick Ewing, a 7-foot center from Cambridge, Mass., considered to be the best high school player in the nation, will be coming to Georgetown next year.

Thompson's approach to Ewing was the same as he has given any athlete, if you come to Georgetown be prepared to go to class and be prepared for an education.

Thompson puts his program where his mouth is. In his first eight years at the school, 35 of the 37 players he has recruited have graduated or are on schedule to graduate.

"The thing that impressed me most when I was a senior in high school was that coach Thompson never tried to convince me to go to Georgetown," recalls former Georgetown player and current Atlanta Hawk Craig Shelton. "He just explained how much he could give of himself to getting an education. He knows playing pro basketball is a one-in-a-million shot, and he's more concerned with how much his players learn."

John Duren, another Georgetown player in the NBA also remembers Thompson's philosophy: "He has the ability to make a 17-year-old realize the value of basketball and education."

Thompson's record as a coach is a tribute to his recruiting skills and ability to mold raw talent into a highly-tuned basketball machine.

In his first eight years at Georgetown, Thompson's teams won 156 and lost 72, a .684 percentage. His teams have gone to post-season tournaments each of the last six years and last year's 26-6 team came within one shot of reaching the NCAA Final Four.

"In my mind," said Frank McGuire, former South Carolina basketball coach, "John Thompson has done the best coaching job of anybody I know."

There is more to Thompson than good coaching, however. There is Thompson the man.

Last week, Thompson was watching the news on television. Reporters were interviewing people about the grisly murders of black children in Atlanta.

One woman said that if the country could be brought together by yellow ribbons for the hostages in Iran, surely it could be brought together with green ribbons for the lost lives of children in Atlanta.

Thompson agreed and immediately called his team together.

"We're on television sometimes," Thompson noted. "We have a forum, a vehicle. We're exploiting it to help focus attention, maybe to help force the federal government into lending more support, just to do whatever it can."

Last week, in a regionally-televised game from Philadelphia, the Hoyas, white and black, wore green ribbons on their uniform. The ribbons had been sewn in place the night before by Thompson and his assistants.
