

Reagan Asks Massive Federal Budget Slash

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, declaring, "the next steps are up to Congress," today proposed $48.6 billion in spending cuts for 1982 across the breadth of government, sparing defense and little else from the chopping block.

The $695.3 billion budget for 1982 would leave a deficit of $45 billion. It contains newly announced spending reductions of $13.8 billion in more than 200 areas, including veteran and job programs, water projects and housing.

The budget includes Reagan's call for a three-year tax cut, but the overall theme of the spending document is simple and dramatic: More guns, relatively less butter.

As a result of the military increases and sharp cuts in social programs, the Pentagon's share of the budget would rise from 24 percent in 1981 to 27 percent next year and 38 percent by 1986.

Payments to individuals, the chief means of federal help to the needy, would remain roughly steady at about 48 percent.

Cuts in social programs are sure to provoke a fierce battle in Congress.

Reagan is now seeking to double his proposed reduction in welfare spending to more than $1 billion with a "workfare" requirement that he favored as governor of California.

He wants to build 50,000 fewer units of public housing than he recommended just a month ago, and 85,000 fewer units than the 260,000 proposed by Jimmy Carter in January.

On education, Reagan recommended a 25 percent cutback, compared with 20 percent outlined in his Feb. 18 budget message.

His food stamp plan calls for additional cuts of $500 million to a total reduction of $2.3 billion.

"The plan I outlined will stop runaway inflation and revitalize our economy if given a chance," Reagan declared in a statement that outlined cuts in nearly 300 programs from food stamps to space exploration.

Also, Reagan would eliminate legal service assistance to the poor, sharply reduce spending for environmental and consumer protection and pare the budget of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

"These are unprecedented cuts to meet an unprecedented situation," the president said as he signed the package in the Rose Garden. "They mark the end of an old era and the beginning of a new one."

In a revamped version of his 1982 spending plans, the president said he is prepared to recommend still deeper spending cuts if necessary to keep federal spending from rising faster. In fact, Reagan must find $44 billion in new cuts to balance the budget by 1984, a key Reagan goal.

In relaying his plan to Congress, Reagan today pointedly reminded lawmakers and special interest groups that he felt he was acting on a "mandate for change" delivered by the voters last fall.

"There is nothing more important than putting America's economic house in order. The next steps are up to Congress," he said.

Reagan submitted his revised 1982 budget in tandem with the details on his proposal for a three-year cut in personal income tax rates of 10 percent a year. Top Republicans on Congress' tax-writing committees were to introduce the administration's tax plan later today.

Reagan's budget makes deep cuts in the spending blueprint President Carter recommended before leaving office.

The more than 200 newly disclosed program cuts included:

— a $700 million reduction in Veterans Administration spending, forcing deferral or cancellation of hospital construction;

— Cuts in the Comprehensive Employment and Training Administration

President May Arm Afghanistan Rebels

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a fresh challenge to the Soviet Union, President Reagan says he would consider supplying American weapons to Afghan rebels battling Russian forces that have occupied the country for more than 14 months.

Reagan also vowed that the United States would come to the aid of any country in the Western hemisphere that asks for help against a communist-backed insurgent movement.

"This isn't just El Salvador," the president said Monday. "This is to put a stop, once and for all, to that export of revolution."

Despite the hard line he has taken toward the Kremlin, Reagan said he still is considering Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev's suggestion for a summit of the superpowers. "We're considering it. I haven't said no to that."

However, Reagan said the Russians have never shown any willingness to negotiate any reduction in nuclear arsenals.

"Up until now they have always opposed that. They want to talk what they call arms limitation. It usually winds up with them somehow being able to continue their military buildup," he said.

Reagan's willingness to talk openly about sending U.S. arms to Afghanistan is a marked contrast with the posture of the Carter administration, which refused to say what — if anything — the United States was doing to help the rebels.

"These are freedom fighters," Reagan said in an interview. "Those are people fighting for their own country and not wanting to become a satellite state of the Soviet Union, which came in and established a government of its own choosing there, without regard to the feelings of the Afghans."

Afghan rebels are reported to be crippled by shortages of weapons and food as they fight the estimated 85,000 Soviet soldiers in the country. Despite the Carter administration's refusal to talk about aid, there were reports that United States was covertly helping the rebels.

Reagan, asked if the United States would aid the rebels, said, "I think certainly this would be very definitely considered by us." When the question was repeated, the president replied, "Yes, with weapons."

Reagan indicated he was not worried about the Soviet reaction to such a move.

Panel Hears Report On Coliseum

By PAT GRAVES

City Manager Larry Cunningham advised the Civic Centers Board during a morning work session today to limit their funding requests from the city to maintenance expenses because of the possible sale of the Municipal Auditorium-Coliseum to Texas Tech.

Although negotiations are in the preliminary stage and the future of the facility is uncertain, Cunningham said the board should give priority to repairs and renovation, not improvements and expansion.

He estimated the sale could not take place in less than a year, if at all. The City Council, he said, has instructed the staff to explore the possibilities of selling the buildings, and he added Tech is to assign someone to study the matter soon.

Questions on the possible effect of the auditorium-coliseum's sale to Tech arose during a discussion of possible capital improvements projects the board is considering. The city manager suggested revenue sharing would be the best funding source, but advised the board to wait until October to approach the council.

Instead of applying this month during current revenue sharing hearings, Cunningham suggested board members wait to see what, if anything, materializes with the proposed sale of the facility to Tech.

The university, he explained, wants to make sizable improvements that the city cannot presently finance. Tech is primarily interested in renovating the coliseum to make it better suited for basketball.

Clayton Pushing For Water Fund

AUSTIN — Warning the state faces a water supply crisis if steps are not taken soon, the speaker of the Texas House is campaigning hard for a constitutional amendment to prepare for the future.

The House Constitutional Amendments Committee planned today to hold a hearing on Speaker Bill Clayton's proposed amendment to dedicate funds left in the state treasury at the end of each biennium to special funds to guarantee bonds for water projects and to pay off state bond debts.

The lawmaker from arid West Texas told a news conference Monday that population and water use projections indicate Texas is headed for a water crisis unless new supplies are developed.

"Texas is really growing faster than what we had projected in the past, and by the year 2030 we will have a population of something like 35 million people," he said.

By 1990, Clayton said, water from existing supplies will be insufficient to meet demand. Development of existing reservoir sites could delay the state's water shortage until 2005, but at that time there will not be enough water to meet demands unless new sources are tapped.

He denied his proposal was designed chiefly for farmers, such as himself, who rely on the declining Ogallala Aquifer for irrigation water.

The 1979 Legislature authorized creation of an Ogallala Water Import Authority, which could receive and distribute water from other states.

"This is not related to solving the problem of the Ogallala Aquifer. It is to solve a problem that is growing across the state. Houston had to ration water last summer," Clayton said.

His proposal would place all the treasury surplus each biennium into three special funds. Half would go for water. The other half, up to about $620 million, would be dedicated to retirement of state bonds. The rest would go into a reserve fund that the Legislature, by a two-thirds

Rains Not Final Answer To East's Water Crisis

By DAVID L. LANGFORD

GREENWICH, Conn. (AP) — It was a fine day in Greenwich, raining like hell.

The lunchtime regulars at the Greenwich Restaurant were talking happily of their recent good fortune — the end of the drought and a Republican back in the White House — as they watched the fat raindrops splashing on Greenwich Avenue, the street of smart shops that slopes down to the harbor where the yachts from Newport and Palm Beach tie up in the summer.

"You know what really caused the water shortage in Greenwich?" asked a portly lawyer finishing off an omelette with mushrooms.

"Two Perrier trucks collided."

Thus, with the coming of the rains that had filled their reservoirs to more than half full by early March, the residents of this New England seacoast city were able to joke about the long dry spell that had left them with just an 18-day supply of water at one point.

But just as there is no guarantee that President Reagan's economic program will work, there is no assurance the water supply will hold out during the months ahead.

Mandatory water conservation remained in effect even as the rains came down. Residents were told in late January they must cut back water consumption by 60 percent.

In this affluent city of 60,000 people, you can buy a Rolls-Royce, a Mercedes or a Ferrari from a local dealer, but you can't wash it. At the Greenwich Country Club they serve lunch in paper plates and martinis in plastic cups.

On the bar car of the 5:33 commuter train out of Grand Central, stock brokers and advertising executives swap ideas about how to save water. One catches water in a bucket in his shower to flush the toilet. Another says his wife won't allow him more than an inch of water in the bathtub.

Alluding to the curtailed bathing habits of Connecticut commuters, New York Mayor Edward I. Koch told a plumbing workshop, "It's getting so you can tell when someone comes from Greenwich."

In late January, city officials had begun gearing for "Condition Red," making plans to dig slit trenches, install portable toilets and dole out drinking water by the bucket at street corners. Greenwich Hospital dug a well, but it produced only 10 gallons a minute. Tank trucks were

Whitworth Challenges Vote Count By Foe

By MARY ALICE ROBBINS

George W. Whitworth claims that local pharmacist Dale Miller is at least one — and possibly as many as three votes — short in his effort to have a new board election ordered for the Lubbock County Water Control and Improvement District No. 1.

Miller, a three-year veteran of the water board, filed suit against Whitworth last month, contesting the Jan. 17 elections.

An official canvass conducted by the water board Feb. 2 showed that Miller lost his re-election bid to Whitworth, a Lubbock fireman, by only 18 votes.

Also elected in that balloting was R.M. "Max" Wiser, who tallied more than a 50-vote lead over all other candidates in the race.

In his lawsuit, Miller contended that 20 of the 473 ballots counted in the board elections were cast by persons who were not registered to vote. Those 20 contested votes were enough to have changed the outcome of the election, Miller claimed.

JOHN GUNTHER DEAN
Bullet Hits Escort Car

U.S. Envoy In Lebanon Escapes Sniper Attack

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — U.S. Ambassador to Lebanon John Gunther Dean, the target of an assassination attempt seven months ago, escaped unharmed today when a bullet fired by a man believed to be a sniper struck a tire of an escort car in the ambassador's motorcade, U.S. Embassy sources said.

The sources said a single shot was fired at the procession as the ambassador was heading from Christian East Beirut to Moslem West Beirut across the "Green Line" in the embattled port area on the Mediterranean.

The escort car was following the ambassador's bullet-proof limousine when the shot rang out.

The rightist "Voice of Lebanon" radio station described the incident as an assassination attempt, but provided no supporting evidence.

Asked whether the embassy believed the shooting was an attempt on Dean's life, an American spokesman said, "We don't speculate on anything like this."

Another embassy source said, "I don't think anybody knows whether the bullet was intended for the ambassador or not."

Some embassy sources privately subscribed to the Lebanese police theory that the shot came from a sudden outbreak of sniper fire in the port area that coincided with the arrival of the ambassador's motorcade.

Embassy sources said the ambassador continued on to the embassy and was working in his office despite the narrow escape.

Leftist sources charged rightists fired the shot to protest the American State Department's recent criticism of renegade Lebanese army Maj. Saad Haddad, who heads an Israeli-backed rightist Christian militia force in southern Lebanon.

The State Department said last Thursday the United States was "deeply concerned and appalled" by a threat Haddad made over his "Voice of Hope" radio station to shell the port city of Sidon if the Lebanese government failed to pay him $5 million in alleged salary arrears.

The port area, which marks the dividing line between Christian and Moslem militias, is the scene of frequent sniping and gunbattles.

Dean crosses the line dividing the capital city daily enroute from his home on the Christian side to the embassy, located in the Moslem sector.

The militias, adversaries in the 19-month civil war in 1975-76 that was brought to a halt by Syrian intervention, face each other across barriers of sandbags and rusting barrels in the deserted former commercial center of the city adjacent to the port.

Actress, Singer Plan To Wed

NEW YORK — A backstage introduction in Oklahoma has led to wedding plans for TV actress Valerie Bertinelli and rock guitarist Eddie Van Halen, according to the New York Post.

Miss Bertinelli, 20, who plays the younger daughter in the CBS series "One Day at a Time," has told friends she will wed Van Halen on April 11 in a private ceremony in California, the Post said Monday.

She has been dating the 23-year-old rock star since last April, when they met after a Van Halen concert in Oklahoma. Already invited to the wedding are Bonnie Franklin, who plays her mom on the series, and former co-star Mackenzie Phillips.

Low Neckline Shocks Britons

LONDON (AP) — The spectators gasped but Prince Charles took it in stride when his fiancee turned out for a benefit recital in a black strapless evening gown with a low neckline.

When Lady Diana Spencer, who usually appears in demure and sensible skirts and sweaters, took off her wrap inside Goldsmith's Hall on Monday, there were whistles and "audible admiring gasps," a BBC reporter noted.

The prince, aware of the crush of photographers, turned and said with a laugh, "Have all the fashion writers finished?"

It was the 19-year-old blonde's first public engagement with Prince Charles, whom she is to marry in July.

A crowd of about 200 cheered the prince and his bejeweled bride-to-be as they arrived at the hall, where 300 guests paid $110 each to hear music and poetry read by Princess Grace of Monaco. The benefit was to raise money for the Royal Opera House, Covent Garden, of which Charles is patron.

Fourth Wife Wants More Money

BARNSTABLE, Mass. (AP) — Beverly Mailer, fourth wife of Pulitzer Prize-winning author Norman Mailer, is asking a judge to throw out her divorce so she can seek a more favorable financial settlement.

Probate Court Judge Shirley R. Lewis took the motion under advisement. The judge, who last March ordered Mailer to pay $575 a week in alimony for seven years in addition to $200 a week for child support, refused to change the financial arrangements.

Mrs. Mailer, who lives in Provincetown, Mass., and Brooklyn, N.Y., said Monday she wants to seek a more favorable settlement in New York, which has different property distribution laws.

Mrs. Mailer said she can't meet her living expenses or pay her income taxes under the settlement terms.

Mailer, who recently won his second Pulitzer Prize for "Executioner's Song," was represented in court by Monroe Inker, who suggested Mrs. Mailer go to work.

Mrs. Mailer, who has two children, filed for divorce in 1973. The author has married twice since the settlement was announced last year, but Mrs. Mailer's attorney contends the divorce has not been finalized.

McVie Fined For Drug, Charge

WAILUKU, Hawaii (AP) — British rock star John McVie and his wife, Julie Ann, were fined $1,000 and ordered to pay $1,000 to a rehabilitation facility after pleading guilty to drug and weapons charges.

McVie, 35, a member of Fleetwood Mac, appeared with his wife in Circuit Court on Monday to face the charges stemming from their arrest Dec. 23, when police found 4.5 grams of cocaine in their home on Maui island.

Mrs. McVie, 29, pleaded guilty to third-degree promoting of a dangerous drug.

101-Year-Old Groom Waits Patiently

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — It took Lou Miller almost a year to make up her mind, but Dave Williams was patient.

The Lighter Side Of The News

On Monday, the 101-year-old Williams married the former Mrs. Miller, 70, in a ceremony at the Forest Hill Nursing Home's chapel.

The two rolled down the aisle in their wheelchairs to the altar, where they exchanged vows before the Rev. W.H. Neal.

"I do" and "amen," said the jubilant bridegroom, twice a widower. The new Mrs. Williams was a bit more subdued, but she smiled just as much as her new husband as she said "I do."

The chapel was overflowing with Forest Hill residents and employees and members of the couple's families. Some cried.

Williams said he decided to get married again because he was in love.

"I just loved him," said his bride. "He had been courting me so long I had to make up my mind."

It wasn't an easy decision. The couple feared their Social Security benefits might be cut if they tied the knot. But when social worker Virginia Peterkin checked with Social Security officials, she learned that the benefits wouldn't be reduced if the two got married.

Neal said the couple was also beginning to consider marriage so they wouldn't feel guilty about holding hands and talking to each other so much.

"He's been mentioning marriage for the last year or so, but she just got on the bandwagon about two months ago," Mrs. Peterkin said. "Lou would say 'I don't know' and Dave was always definite."

The couple will now share a room at the nursing home.

Guardian Angels To Organize Group In Atlanta

ATLANTA (UPI) — A contingent of Guardian Angels, the self-proclaimed watchmen of New York streets and subways, headed for Atlanta today to organize a youth force to stop the slaying of black children.

A 12-year-old black youth, John Bilups, who was missing since March 1, was found on a northeast Atlanta street and was in the Fulton County Juvenile Detention Center today. Police said he was not reported missing until late Monday and was picked up a few hours later. He was a foster child and had a history of running away from home. His case had not been turned over to the special police task force investigating the disappearances of 21 black children over the past 19 months.

Lisa Evers, 23, head of the female branch of the 700-member Guardian Angels, said she and 10 male members, six of them black, would hitch-hike to Atlanta, arriving Wednesday or Thursday.

She said group, aged 18 to 26, would stay "as long as we can be effective."

"We're not coming down to be super-sleuths, we're coming down to motivate the youths," she said Monday in New York.

Evers said the Guardian Angels would mingle with Atlanta youths over the age of 16 and organize a presence on street corners in areas considered most susceptible to future attacks on children.

A spokesman for Atlanta Public Safety Commissioner Lee Brown said he had no comment on the plans of the Guardian Angels, a volunteer youth group dressed in red berets and white T-shirts whose purpose is to fight crime with watch patrols on subways and streets.

Some New York officials have questioned the motives and lack of training of the para-police group.

Atlanta school officials, meanwhile, hope to protect unsupervised children from harm during this week's three-day spring break by keeping open 31 schools as recreation centers in low-income black areas.

School board members voted unanimously late Monday to keep the schools open so parents who cannot be at home during the day will have a place to send their children. The program, expected to cost $10,400, would be strictly voluntary, and for those in kindergarten through eighth grade, school officials said.

Over the past 19 months, the bodies of 20 black children, all but two of them boys, have been found. Another, 10-year-old Darron Glass, is still missing.

"We want to do our share in providing protection for our children in these very critical times," said Alonzo Crim, superintendent of Atlanta schools.

The schools would be staffed by two physical education teachers, and authorities planned to ask high school students to volunteer their help.

"It's a custodial plan, recreational rather than educational," Crim said of the plan, under which 22 high schools and 9 middle schools will remain open during the three-day spring break beginning Wednesday.

"The idea came from the board of education and the community to see if there wasn't something we could do as a contingency. It may not be utilized at all. We just want to make sure."

Some 600 people marched Monday to show support for Mayor Maynard Jackson's request for $1.5 million in federal funds to help finance the probe of 21 missing and murdered children.

Cline Held For Trial In Vegas

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Tests conducted by fire officials indicate the deadly blaze at the Las Vegas Hilton couldn't have been sparked by a marijuana cigarette, as a former busboy allegedly told authorities, prosecutors say.

Philip Bruce Cline, who allegedly told authorities he accidentally started the hotel fire that killed eight people, was ordered Monday during a preliminary hearing to stand trial on eight charges of murder and one count of arson.

Justice of the Peace John S. McGroarty set March 19 for Cline's arraignment in District Court.

Cline, 23, was arrested the day after the Feb. 10 fire that injured almost 200 people. Police said Cline told them he started the blaze accidentally when a marijuana cigarette he was smoking ignited curtains in an eighth-floor elevator lobby.

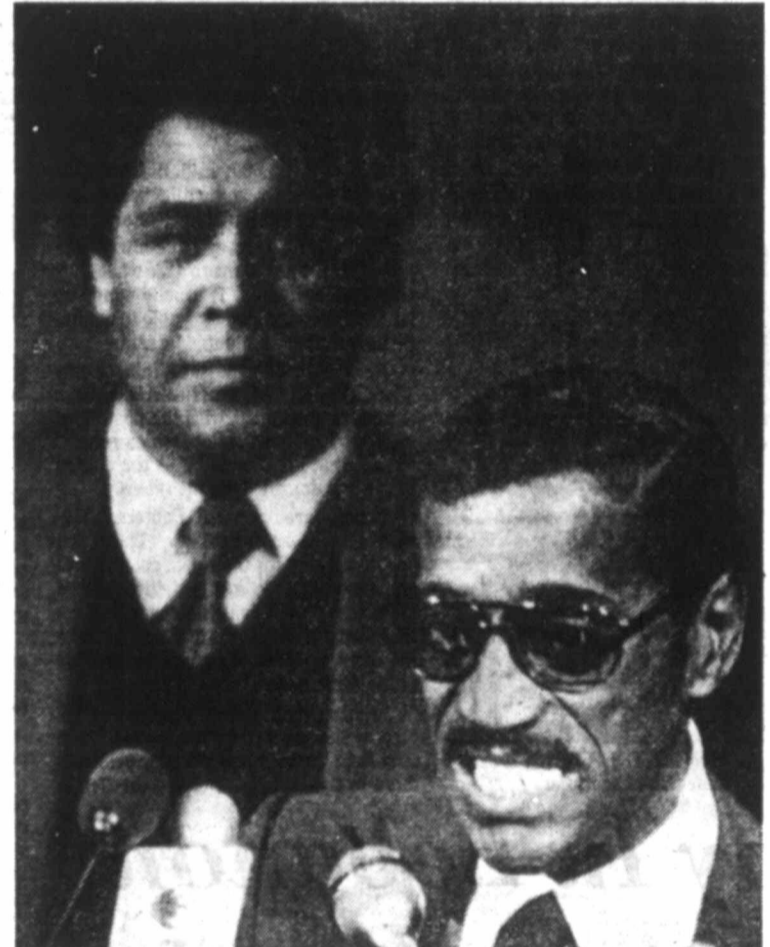

Other witnesses testified during the two-day preliminary hearing that Cline allegedly told numerous stories of how the blaze started.

A police detective who interviewed Cline before his arrest testified Monday that Cline broke down and wept as he told about his alleged role in the fire and said he wanted to tell the truth because "it was bothering him too much."

"He told me he hadn't told the truth" in previous statements he had given, said Detective Charles Lee.

Cline allegedly told police he had been given the cigarette by a man he identified only as "Joe." The fire started, according to the allegedly statement, when he and the man were engaged in a sex act and the cigarette touched the curtains.

However, a test conducted by fire officials — and shown in court on videotape — showed that cigarettes would not ignite the curtains, but an open flame from a match or cigarette lighter would.

Woman Says Defendant Performed Satanic Ritual

FITCHBURG, Mass. (AP) — A man who allegedly called himself the "son of Satan" ordered a teen-ager to slit the throat of her lesbian lover, her roommate in a prostitution ring, the young woman has testified.

"I believe I was possessed by Satan when I killed Karen," said Robin Murphy, 18, of Fall River, in testimony Monday at the trial of Carl H. Drew, who is charged in the death of Karen Marsden, 19, Fall River.

"I did not want to kill her. I was ordered to slit her throat after Drew broke her neck," said Miss Murphy, adding the motive for the slaying was to "offer up her soul to Satan."

Miss Murphy testified Drew performed a "satanic ritual" on Miss Marsden by cutting an "X" into her chest while chanting in another language.

Authorities contend Drew, whose murder trial is in its second week, ran a prostitution ring and styled himself as a "son of Satan" to terrorize and control his women.

Miss Murphy testified she attended Satanic meetings where believers huddled around skulls in candlelit rooms.

Drew, 26, of Fall River, also awaits trial on murder charges in the slaying of Doreen Levesque, a 17-year-old prostitute who died Oct. 13, 1979.

Military Jurors Sentence Midshipman To Dismissal

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Midshipman Michael Olmstead, convicted of involuntary manslaughter in the death of his roommate, will be permitted to stay at the U.S. Naval Academy pending appeal of his sentence of dismissal.

The six-member military jury which earlier found Olmstead guilty ordered him dismissed from the academy Monday.

A dismissal for a midshipman is the equivalent of a dishonorable discharge for an enlisted man.

"It could be worse. We were hoping for it to be better," said Catherine Olmstead, the midshipman's mother.

The military panel could have sentenced Olmstead to up to three years in prison or limited his punishment to a letter of reprimand.

The sentence will be reviewed by Vice Adm. William P. Lawrence, the superintendent of the Naval Academy. If Lawrence upholds the panel's verdict, it will then be reviewed by the Navy Court of Military Review.

The 21-year-old senior from Haddon Heights, N.J., was convicted Friday in the May 11 car crash that killed Midshipman Scott D. Thomas, 20, of Statesboro, Ga.

The panel found Olmstead guilty after deciding that he had been driving the Porsche that crashed on Naval Academy grounds.

Olmstead testified he was so drunk the night of the accident that he couldn't remember who was at the wheel of car.

The first sleeping-car patent was granted in 1864 to Henry Meyer for his method of converting the backs of seats into beds.

"Over 30 Years Experience"

Reagan Proposes Cutting Personal Income Taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is sending Congress his plan to slash personal income taxes by an average 27.3 percent over the next 3½ years.

Reagan outlined his tax proposal, including a major tax reduction for business, Feb. 18 as part of his program for revitalizing the economy.

He arranged to send the tax bill today to Rep. Barber Conable of New York for formal introduction in the House. Conable is senior Republican on the House Ways and Means Committee.

If the president has his way, workers will get the first installment of the tax reduction in paychecks they take home after June 30. But there are signs Congress will not pass the bill as quickly as Reagan wants, delaying the effective date until perhaps Oct. 1.

The bill would provide a $114 tax cut this year for a $20,000-a-year family of four with average deductions. By the end of 1984, that family's federal tax load would drop by $1,435, or 28.7 percent.

In the current budget year, which ends Sept. 30, the proposal would reduce individual taxes by $6.4 billion and business taxes by $2.5 billion. Through 1984, individual taxes would be cut by $250 billion and business taxes by $60.8 billion.

The tax bill fulfills a major Reagan major campaign promise. His advisers say reducing individual tax rates from top to bottom would encourage Americans to work harder by allowing them to keep more of the extra dollars they make.

Reagan contends the entire tax proposal, including quicker tax deductions for the cost of business equipment, would generate so much economic activity it would pay for itself.

The bill is essentially the same as the so-called Roth-Kemp measure Republicans failed to get through Congress for the past three years and used as a campaign issue in the 1978 and 1980 elections. It would reduce individual tax rates by an average of 5 percent this year. 10 percent in 1982, 10 percent in 1983 and 5 percent in 1984. That would add up to a reduction of about 30 percent in rates, which now range from 14 percent of taxable income to 70 percent.

Package Calls For Federal Loan Cutbacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's revised budget calls for an 11 percent cutback over the next 1½ years in federal loans and loan guarantees, ranging from the FHA home mortgage insurance program to credit for small businesses.

The action would affect dozens of federally subsidized loan programs and millions of borrowers who have obtained low-cost financing through the government.

Credit programs affected by the proposed cutbacks include the Federal Housing Administration, the Farmers Home Administration, farm commodity loans, the Veterans Administration, the student loan program, the Small Business Administration and the Export-Import Bank.

Cuts also would be made in lending for foreign military sales, energy development, rural housing, consumer cooperatives, housing rehabilitation, economic development, aircraft purchases, merchant shipbuilding and credit unions.

Administration officials, claiming the cutbacks would produce only "modest" budget savings, said the thrust of the reductions is to reduce the government's role in financing and restore greater control over the allocation of credit to the private sector.

About one-third of all credit is now extended by the federal government.

Reagan's budget director, David A. Stockman, said cuts in federal credit activity would force some people to seek loans at higher interest rates from private lenders and discourage other people from borrowing because of the high private rates.

However, he added, as the demand for private loans falls and reduced federal spending frees up more money available to private lenders, commercial interest rates will fall. Direct federal loan programs offer a broad range of low-cost interest rates, some as low as 2 percent. The prime lending rate charged by most major banks, by comparison, is 18½ percent.

Transportation Projects Receive Ax

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In the detailed spending plan he is submitting to Congress today, President Reagan closely follows his budget office's recommendations in cutting funds for transportation projects, sources say.

Those recommendations, which were circulated last month, called for an end to federal operating subsidies for mass transit, heavy cutbacks for Amtrak and a $12.6 billion reduction over five years in highway funding.

"It looks pretty much like (the Office of Management and Budget recommendations) — not a lot of additions, no new major cuts," said a Capitol Hill source who Monday saw transportation-related portions of the budget.

The source said one change apparently involves additional reductions in maritime subsidies.

Another source confirmed Reagan is proposing deep slashes in the $1.1 billion the Carter administration had proposed for subsidizing Amtrak during the next five years.

In the mass transit area, the spending plan circulated last month called for gradual elimination of operating assistance to local transit systems that stood at $750 million this year, and elimination of funds for planned subway extensions as well as planning funds for systems on the drawing boards, such as those in Detroit,

Federal loan guarantees, which account for nearly two-thirds of all federal credit extensions, generally approximate private market rates. Under a loan guarantee, the government promises to make good on the debt if the borrower defaults. Reagan's proposals call for a $13.6 billion reduction in new loans and loan guarantees during 1981 and a $21 billion reduction in 1982, based on the levels proposed by the Carter administration.

Synfuel Funds Out Of Energy Budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration asked Congress today for an $8.7 billion fiscal 1982 energy budget with cuts in every major program except nuclear power development and the strategic petroleum reserve.

The Energy Department's ambitious synthetic fuel program would be gutted. Money for the new Conservation and Solar Bank, Energy Department weatherization grants, alcohol fuel and geothermal energy programs would be eliminated.

The plan calls for a $200 million increase in nuclear spending to finance construction of the controversial Clinch River Breeder Reactor in Tennessee and design work on another, larger commercial breeder.

The nuclear budget also includes public assistance for the Three Mile Island accident cleanup and funds for commercial waste management. But it cuts earlier proposals for public off-site storage of spent reactor fuel and omits money for government purchase of the defunct Barnwell, S.C., commercial fuel recycling center — a pet project of Energy Secretary James Edwards.

Financing for the breeder reactor, opposed in the past by budget director David Stockman, was an apparent victory for Senate Republican leader Howard Baker of Tennessee.

The focus of non-nuclear programs, however, was shifted to "longer-term, high risk, but potentially high payoff research and development."

The agency's solar and conservation budgets each were slated for $400 million cuts because rising energy prices already are boosting efficiency and making solar power economical.

Unspent portions of the Energy Department's $5 billion synthetic fuels kitty would be transferred to the new Synthetic Fuels Corp., which will require project sponsors to risk more of their own money.

Another $300 million the agency planned to spend on feasibility studies and joint financing of alcohol and synfuel projects would be returned to the Treasury.

And $1.2 billion would be saved in 1982 by reducing or killing agency spending on coal gasification and liquefaction projects in West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Illinois and Ohio.

A $200 million boost for the strategic oil stockpiling program was inserted to offset crude oil price increases stemming from decontrol.

Embargo Goes Against Grain

WASHINGTON—A giant combine is working to mow down the American embargo on grain sales to the Soviet Union. The pressure of this country's farmers for lifting the ban has now been reinforced by a plea for agricultural trade from the Soviet leadership.

It asked them to make much more sacrifice than any other economic group in the country. It was not all that effective, as the Russians bought grain from other sources. WITH ALL THESE arguments going for them, the farmers were able to elicit from candidate Ronald Reagan a pledge that he would end the embargo if elected.

think about it, they'll begin to understand that Texas isn't interested in transferring any water from Arkansas to the Lubbock area that isn't surplus to their needs. And, as Duncan Ellison of Water, Inc., points out, if it's surplus water, it can't make much difference to Arkansans whether it runs southward out of Arkansas into the Gulf of Mexico or westward out of Arkansas into the fertile farmlands of West Texas.

It normally takes from 25 to 40 years, or nearly two generations, to get a sizable water project underway. We're still in the first generation, but we can't afford to lay the effort aside; it's too important for our children and grandchildren.

Afghans Fan Embers Of Hope

WASHINGTON—President Reagan has decided to furnish covert arms aid to the brave Afghan freedom-fighters but faces problems in implementing the decision. Major stumbling block is Pakistan, through which most of the military aid must flow.

these front-line troops. A delegation of Afghan freedom-fighters, now touring the U.S., has reported to Reagan administration officials that anti-aircraft weapons, medicine, and food are urgently needed if the insurgents are to withstand an expected spring offensive by the Russians.

Captured Cuban soldiers have indicated that they were trained in desert warfare and that they expected to be fighting in Iran before the end of 1981. Their briefings by the Soviets indicated that Afghanistan was to be a jumping off place for future advances toward the Persian Gulf through both Iran and Pakistan.

WHEN PRESSED BY U.S. officials as to what this might entail, the reply has been larger American arms supplies for their own forces and guarantees of U.S. air support should the Soviet attack. In addition to these guarantees, Pakistan also wants a suspension of the opposition that the Carter administration had to what it believed to be a Pakistani program to develop nuclear weapons.

WHILE PAKISTANI OFFICIALS say they recognize this danger, they contend that a U.S. security agreement is needed since Soviet forces are now near their borders and the Russians have advance airfields close enough now to bomb all of Pakistan. With it now vital to U.S. global objectives to keep the Russians bogged down in Afghanistan, Reagan administration officials are expected to meet most of Pakistan's requests.

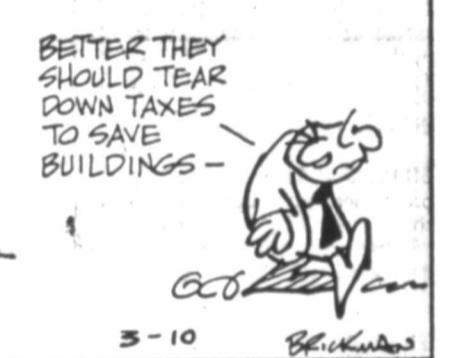

The approach now under consideration in the economic offices of the State Department, in effect, nationalizes trade with Russia. A new law would provide for general trade agreements with the Soviet Union to be negotiated every two or three years. In negotiating those agreements, American officials would take account of the full range of Soviet activities in the world, including foreign policy and human rights.

DR. LAMBFlat Feet Subject Of Disagreement Among Doctors

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What causes flat feet, and what problems can one expect to encounter because of them? What can be done to help someone with flat feet? How do flat feet affect one's ability to walk and run?

DEAR READER — You may not get too much agreement about flat feet and fallen arches even among specialists. For some people flat feet are normal. Many Olympic athletes have had flat feet, so if they are normal for you, there is no reason why you can't exercise and live an entirely normal life.

Babies are born with flat feet because of the fat pad they have to help them when they first start walking. The fat pad usually disappears within two years. Overzealous parents sometimes pressure their doctor into doing something when time is all that is really needed.

Feet will break down in some diseases, such as arthritis, or from injuries. The problem is that foot pain is often attributed to flat feet or low arches when in fact the foot pain is on an entirely different basis. Many normal people with flat feet have no foot pain.

As explained in The Health Letter number 11-10, Common Foot Problems: What to Do About Them, which I am sending you. Many support devices end up allowing the arch to get weaker. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

In general, if you have had flat feet or low arches all your life and have not had foot pain, you should disregard the finding. To strengthen the arch muscles you might want to do exercises, such as picking up objects with your toes and learning to curl and extend your toes to move those muscles.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Could you explain the correct procedure for taking a bath or shower? My husband and I disagree. I feel he is doing damage to his skin. He believes in showering in very hot water with just a bar of soap — no washcloth. When he dries himself his skin is sunburn red.

I bathe in moderately warm water and rinse off in slightly cool water to close the pores. It seems to me a washcloth, since it is somewhat abrasive, would help in cleaning the skin.

Please tell me who is correct. I would hate to have a wrinkled husband in his youthful years.

DEAR READER — There is such a thing as overdoing it, but water that is warm enough to increase the circulation to the skin helps the skin to release oily deposits that accumulate in the pores of the skin. That is the principle of using warm soaks over the face for acne. Oils slow easier when warm and wash off the skin more easily.

Hot tub soaks may not be good for older people or those with circulatory problems as the excess heat accumulation may overload the circulation.

I don't think it makes much difference how the soap gets on the skin. And the washcloth will help rub the skin clean if you need a mild abrasive action.

Closing the pores after bathing is a good idea.

Washington Counties Have High MS Rate

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Health officials are puzzled by the high rate of multiple sclerosis in two Washington counties whose per capita incidence of the crippling disease is surpassed only by Scotland's Shetland Islands.

Lincoln and Spokane counties are considered "high risk" areas for the mysterious disease, the Multiple Sclerosis Society said.

At least 500 cases have been documented in Spokane County, the organization reported, but why the disease strikes with more frequency in the two Washington areas is as baffling as its cause.

Do you fall for supermarket gimmicks?

Have you ever gone to the store for strawberries, and gone home with the little shortcake package and whipped cream too?

Do your children find great delight in picking out all the sugar-coated cereals the store has to offer?

All that is fun, occasionally — but not if you sacrifice family nutrition with frequent gimmick buying — impulse buying.

To avoid this, take time to plan purchases. Shop with a list so you aren't vulnerable to the "point-of-purchase" influences at the supermarket. Read labels and study food advertisements. Understand as much as possible about nutrition and needed serving sizes. Also, learn about the "cost per pound" or "cost per ounce" and then figure how many servings that pound will make or how many ounces will make a serving.

In addition, seek information from your County Extension Office about food buying and nutrition. Many booklets and pamphlets are available to the public at no charge. Come by the Lubbock County Office at 800 Broadway and pick up a variety of pamphlets.

Finally, be aware of supermarket gimmicks, such as the strawberry shortcake displays, and the sugar-coated cereal placed at child's eye-level. Other gimmicks include colorful banners, slogans and marketing products themselves — all of which induce a mid-hypnotic-trance in many consumers, according to one study.

Remember, unless you're careful, these gimmicks can lead to the purchase of more high-profit, eye-appealing, self-gratifying — and less nutritious — buying.

Pioneer Oilman Keeps Promise; Establishes Colony For Widows

By PAUL WALDSCHMIDT
SAND SPRINGS, Okla. (UPI) — When Charles Page, a pioneer Oklahoma oilman, began amassing his fortune around the turn of the century, he did not forget a promise he made to mother. Page's mother, widowed herself and forced to take in laundry to support her family, made her son promise to always "look after widows and orphans."

"Mr. Page remembered how hard it was for his own mother and promised her that he would become rich and take care of widows and orphans. You can see the result," Mary Johnson said, pointing to the rows of carefully maintained, modern duplexes. They make up the Sand Springs Widow Colony, founded by Page in 1908.

"It is really unique," said Miss Johnson, the colony's superintendent. "I don't think there's any place like it in the country. We don't accept any contributions, private or government. We run it the way Mr. Page wanted it run."

Page established the colony when there was little public welfare. Help for the less fortunate was limited to private charity. He founded a place where widows and their children would have "a roof over their heads and milk for the children." To this day, milkmen deliver milk, paid for by the colony, to the doorsteps of 83 two-bedroom duplexes and quadruplexes.

More than 80 mothers and 200 children live at the colony rentfree, but life at the colony is not a free ride.

"The women are not required to work. Some just can't," said Marion Wade, Miss Johnson's assistant. "We have one mother who is totally disabled. But we do encourage those who can to work. It sets an example of good work habits for the children, and it's good for the mother's self respect."

Ahen Page died in 1926 and left a multi-million-dollar endowment for the foundation, most of the women residents were widows. But now most are divorced.

"I'd say 90 percent are divorced," Miss Johnson said. "These are women that don't receive child support or don't have close relatives. I'd say the average age is 30. Some are as young as 21 and some as old as their early 50s."

Allene Perkins, 53, who works at the Sand Springs City Hall and lives at the colony with her two children, is typical of most residents.

"I came here from Houston in 1968 after my first marriage because my brother lived here," she said. "I found a job but was struggling. After I went through a second bad marriage, I heard about the home and looked into it. I sing the praises of that place. It's turned my life around."

When Page established the colony near Tulsa, he insisted on a strict set of rules that mothers had to agree to. They may be stringent by today's standards, but were considered appropriate then. No intoxicants of any kind are allowed in the colony.

Visiting hours for fathers and others, including boyfriends, are limited. The children have a 10 p.m. curfew year-round (9 p.m. on school nights). Students must make passing grades and attendance is checked regularly. Residents are not allowed to go to or work in taverns.

"We do have rules, but the rules are only enforced where there's a problem," Miss Johnson said. "The only one we

RARE FRUIT

Highly prized as rare fruit with delectable flavor and aroma, pineapple was cultivated in hothouses in Europe in the 17th Century. Used by the wealthy to adorn banquet tables, the pineapple soon became a subtle symbol of elite social standing and hospitality. Utilized by English political caricaturists during the Napoleonic Wars to symbolize high living and opulence, pineapple art motifs were carried to the New World by the Colonists to perpetuate the "friendship" and "welcome" image retained even today.

really enforce is if boyfriends happen to spend the night. You can look at other projects such as federal housing and see the problems. We don't have those problems. It's a safe neighborhood. The mothers appreciate it. There's no father figure available. These rules help reinforce the mother's authority."

"The discipline that's required of the kids helps," Miss Perkins said. "It's sometimes hard on a single mother to find the time to stay on top of the kids."

If Miss Perkins reflects the newer generation of residents, Myrtle Carter, the colony's 77-year-old live-in grandmother, reflects the kind of women who used to live at the colony.

Mrs. Carter's husband died in the 1930s during the Depression. She was left with three children. She had no job skills and little money.

"When he died, I didn't know what I was going to do," she said. "So, I looked to the good Lord, and this (the colony) is an answer to prayer."

Mrs. Carter took a job in the Works Progress Administration's sewing room in downtown Tulsa to eke out a living for her family. In 1936, she moved to the colony. She, like most women then, rode the Sand Springs trolley, a line established by Page himself, to Tulsa jobs and home to the colony in the evenings.

Following a colony rule, Mrs. Carter left the home after her children were grown, but returned to the colony in the early 1960s as matron-superintendent. She retired in 1975 but was allowed to stay on and became the unofficial grandmother to the colony's children.

DEAR ABBY

Confused Woman Should Listen To Heart

DEAR ABBY: My problem is a conflict between my head and my heart. Two men want to marry me. "A" is successful, attractive, attentive and we share many of the same interests and beliefs. He has loved me for years, and I know he would make a wonderful husband and provider. Everyone thinks I'm crazy putting him off as I have. My heart tells me that marriage with "A" would be very sensible, but, Abby, my heart just isn't in it. I make our good-night kisses as brief as possible.

The other man, "B," is the reason I have been putting off "A." "B" will always make a good living because he's hardworking and industrious, but he will never be rich because he helps so many friends and family members. He's supporting both his parents, and he's helping a nephew through college. Abby, I really love this man; just holding his hand excites me.

Both men are waiting for my answer. I want to marry before my 30th birthday. What do you say?
A 29-YEAR-OLD VIRGIN

DEAR VIRGIN: Use your head, and listen to your heart.

DEAR ABBY: May I comment on your men's underwear debate? We in our brief-type "Fruit-of-the-Looms" remain fruitless, while our brothers in their boxer shorts remain "heir-conditioned."

ROBERT W.
IN WALTERSBORO, S.C.

DEAR ROBERT: I wish I'd thought of that.

DEAR ABBY: Since others use your column to air their pet gripes, may I? It's repairmen who set up appointments to repair a television, refrigerator, furnace or whatever, and never call to say they can't make it. They just don't show up.

I left work early on Tuesday to be home at 3 p.m., the time when the TV repairman said he'd be there. He never showed up! I called him the next day and set up another appointment. Again I got off work early, and again he didn't show. (Always the same excuse — car trouble, got tied up on another job, etc.) He had my number at work and home and he could have called me.

Abby, I paid someone to cover for me at work so I could leave early for these appointments. My friends tell me they've had the same lousy experiences with repairmen.

If there's a solution, please print it. If not, thanks for letting me get this off my chest.

BURNED UP IN ALLENTOWN, PA.

DEAR BURNED UP: If your serviceman is the only one in town, you need him more than he needs you. If not, in the future give your business to another serviceman.

DEAR ABBY: The letters in your column about "the other woman" really hit home because I have been the other woman in a married man's life for six years. He has never told me that his wife was fat, homely, cold, a shrew, or that he hasn't slept with her for 10 years. I know he sleeps with her because she's had four kids in the last six years. After the last one, he told me not to feel bad — that he sleeps with her because he has to, but he sleeps with me because he wants to. I have no complaints. He's man enough for both of us.

Sometimes there are ways of finding out what partner holds in the suit he has led. These "discovery plays," as they are called in the trade, lend a touch of elegance to the defense.

North-South might have ended in a no trump contract if North had chosen to respond one no trump or if South had rebid three no trump rather than four spades. Not that the no trump game couldn't be beaten. It would have required exact defense, but basically the same defense was necessary to thwart declarer from scoring up four spades.

West led a low diamond. Since it was highly unlikely that, against a suit contract, West would lead away from an ace into the strong hand, East decided that he had to know who held the queen of diamonds if he was going to conduct an intelligent defense. So he made the expert play of the jack to the first trick. That could not cost if partner had the queen, for it would still force the ace.

Declarer won the queen of diamonds and led the king of spades. East took the ace and now took stock. Declarer almost surely held the ace of diamonds, so there were not many tricks to be had in that suit. And dummy's club suit presented a very obvious threat—declarer might well shed one or more losers on that suit unless the defenders took their tricks quickly. The defense needed three more tricks if they were going to defeat the hand, and the only suit that offered any hope of more than one trick was hearts.

One problem was solved—the second was which heart to lead. The winning play is the ten because that nets the defenders three tricks in the suit and a one-trick set. East found the correct shift. Had he led a low heart, declarer would simply duck and the defenders would be able to score only two heart tricks. Declarer would later discard his remaining losers on clubs after drawing trumps, and so fulfill his contract.

Contest Set For Cake Decorators

The Friendly Froster Cake Decorating Club and The Cake Place will sponsor the South Plains Regional Cake Show April 2-4 at South Plains Mall.

The show brings professional cake decorators from outside the area to Lubbock to display their art of cake decorating. Last year there were approximately 120 entries in the show. This year sponsors are estimating that 160 people will participate.

Deadline for entering the show will be March 25.

There will be two divisions and eight categories in the cake show. The Junior Division is for children ages five and under, six to nine, 10 to 13 and 14 to 16. The Adult Division will be divided into beginner, intermediate and advanced classifications.

Categories will be: holiday, special occasions, birthday, novelty cakes, wedding and anniversary—regular technique, wedding and anniversary—special technique, special technique displayed on a cake and special technique displayed by itself, not on a cake.

Judging will be between 1 and 7 p.m. Thursday, April 2. Cakes will be judged on outside appearance only. Awards will be presented for first through third places in each category and division. A Best Of Show award also will be given.

Beginner cake decorating classes are offered at the local YMCA, churches and at the Cake Place.

Italian High Fashion Experiences Gloom

By MARIE-LOUISE SCIO
United Press International

ROME (UPI) — The Italian fashion industry is the nation's fastest growing business, ringing up sales increases of 30 percent a year or more, so why are many of Italy's high fashion designers closing for good?

The Italian high fashion shows once were a magnet for international buyers and press who flocked to Milan and Rome for a glimpse of the latest in quality and innovation.

But over the past five years, the extravaganzas that once lasted a week have dwindled to this year's 2-1/2 days. And high fashion designers are grumbling about such mundane things as overtime and sick pay for seamstresses and the cost of advertising and promotion. In an industry that turned over more than $9.6 billion last year, one of the nation's few major enterprises that consistently makes money, the big question is, why all the apparent gloom?

There are no simple answers, but the main problem is the changing high fashion market, a phenomenon that is hurting French couture designers as well as their Italian counterparts.

High fashion, as opposed to the less expensive and more widely available ready-to-wear, traditionally has been aimed at a jet-set clientele that includes the likes of Jackie Onassis, Paloma Picasso, Dewey Sukarno and, recently, Nancy Reagan.

"The true customer of high fashion travels a lot," says designer Pino Lancetti. "Some of them live six months of the year in Venezuela and six months in New York, where you need something to wear in the morning, something else for the rest of the day and then a cocktail dress for the evening."

The Paris newspaper Le Monde recently estimated there are only about 2,000 such customers in the world, a small market indeed for the dozens of couture houses in France, Italy and, increasingly, New York.

"Some of them used to order 12 dresses or more for the season," Lancetti said. "Now they order one or two for some special occasion or anniversary."

Besides the shrinkage of a traditional market, couture designers are increasingly concerned about the cost of putting on the elaborate twice-yearly publicity.

Rome's Roberto Capucci spends about $100,000 a show to display his couture collections. Others spend even more.

Some of that is spent on the models, many of them lanky American imports who demand and get about $750 a show to parade down the runways.

"An evening gown costs me about $1,700 to have made in couture," says Andre Laug, a native Frenchman who has designed Italian high fashion and ready-to-wear collections for two decades.

Then there is the cost of the fabrics, mostly luxurious silks produced near Como in northern Italy, which are going up 20 to 30 percent a year.

Many designers like Tita Rossi and Tiziani have decided the high fashion whirl and its spiraling costs are not worth it and have concentrated instead on ready-to-wear collections.

Laug also complains the Italian fashion industry is hampered because of the business atmosphere in the country.

In France the government and the press are supportive of fashion," says Laug. "The governing bodies of high fashion and ready-to-wear are in the same city and are cooperative."

In Italy, he notes, the fashion industry is splintered between Milan, Rome and the major textile manufacturers near Como. Coordination is less than ideal, he says, and the government generally ignores the industry.

Other high fashion designers have decided to take their wares to the customers rather than waiting for well-heeled clients to drop by.

IRENE Galitzine is showing her couture collection in Caracas this year and Lancetti is putting on a show of his clothes in Rio De Janeiro.

Laug agrees with Pierre Berge, Paris manager of Yves St. Laurent, that high fashion designers will have to adjust to the market if their art is to survive.

"I see couture finding a new direction," says Laug. "It will be a hand-made ready-to-wear rather than a couture with all those boring fittings."

But the traditional high fashion shows in Milan and Rome go on, even if at a reduced scale, and top designers are still on hand to reap the publicity available in no other forum.

"When you love music and like to dance, it's hard to stop dancing," says Galitzine.

TWO-TONE RELISH

My interpretation of a dish served at the White House at a state dinner during the Truman presidency.

Dice home-cooked or canned beets fairly fine and add commercial sour cream, drained bottled white horseradish and salt to taste; cover and chill. Peel one or more cucumbers and cut in half lengthwise; scoop out seeds and discard; slice cucumber, discarding ends, very thin; or dice cucumber the same size as the beets. At serving time, turn the beet mixture into a glass bowl. Layer the cucumbers over the beets; garnish the cucumbers with stars, cut with a tiny star-shaped canape cutter from slices of cooked beet. Pass salt and a pepper mill.

Microwave Safety Tips Needed

COLLEGE STATION (Special) — Microwave-oven owners can better ensure protection against radiation leakage when they know three "safety basics," says Bonnie Piernot, a family resource management specialist on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M System.

Safety basics include new-oven testing, continual cleaning and door-damage prevention along with precautions for special situations.

Used-Oven Leakage Tests

Special cases involve not-new ovens that have been moved, misused, not cleaned — or those that have suffered damage, especially door damage.

These ovens should be checked for radiation leakage by an appliance service-man or by the consumer using an adequate detector.

Adequate Detectors

Only detectors using diodes or thermistors — or an inexpensive detector that uses thin-film carbon resistors on a lighted crystal display — work satisfactorily, the specialist cautions.

Three Safety Basics

Detailing the three "safety basics," Mrs. Piernot makes these recommendations:

1. In buying a new unit, request a radiation check when the microwave is delivered to the home. Consider this as part of the dealer preparation of the unit.
2. Continually clean the door-seal survace every day or every week. Bread crumbs, drippings and other food particles can drop on the door seal easily, and this makes an escape route for radiation leaks.

Keeping your microwave clean and preventing any door damage are the two best ways to assure microwave safety.

3. If your microwave has been moved, or if you buy a used model, ask for a radiation-leakage test by an appliance serviceman.

This will cost you a service charge, but the peace of mind and the safety may be worth it.

If you feel you cannot afford a serviceman's fee, you can invest in a leakage detector — but be sure to buy an adequate one.

Facts About Detectors
Detectors using diodes or thermistors will perform the most satisfactorily of any detectors on the market but they're expensive and they MUST be calibrated regularly by a person familiar with the product, Mrs. Piernot says.

Inexpensive detectors on the market during the past few years have not been adequate, in spite of the advertising claims, the specialist cautions. There is one exception, though. One inexpensive detector that recently became available shows promise, she says. This product uses thin-film carbon resistors on a lighted crystal display.

Although it is still being tested, it has shown a consistency of response to radiation leakage that other inexpensive detectors have not shown, Mrs. Piernot says.

American Military Aide Injured In El Salvador

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — The first U.S. military adviser to be injured in El Salvador has been evacuated to Panama for treatment, a U.S. source said.

The source, who asked that he not be identified, said Monday the soldier's injuries were "light" and he will soon return to the terror-ravaged Central American nation in the grip of a virtual civil war between leftist insurgents and the U.S.-backed junta.

Unconfirmed reports said the adviser was injured when another adviser dropped a handgun that discharged. But the source declined to comment on that version beyond saying the man was hurt Friday and evacuated the same day to the Panama Canal Zone for treatment.

President Regan has said the United States will send up to 54 advisers to the Central American nation, but it was not clear how many were presently in the nation, where leftists are fighting to overthrow the U.S.-backed junta.

But two of the advisers, wearing handguns concealed in shoulder holsters under their army fatigues, were presented at a brief and highly restricted news conference at an Air Force base in eastern San Salvador.

"The thing that makes us most nervous are journalists showing cameras in our faces," one adviser said.

As for combat operations, he said: "We are authorized to defend ourselves and members of our team."

It was the first time reporters were permitted on-the-record contact with any of the advisers who have trickled into El Salvador since leftist guerrillas launched a five-day "general offensive" Jan. 10 against the ruling junta.

The two army men allowed photographers to take pictures only at a distance. One adviser wore sunglasses and the other kept a cap pulled down over his forehead.

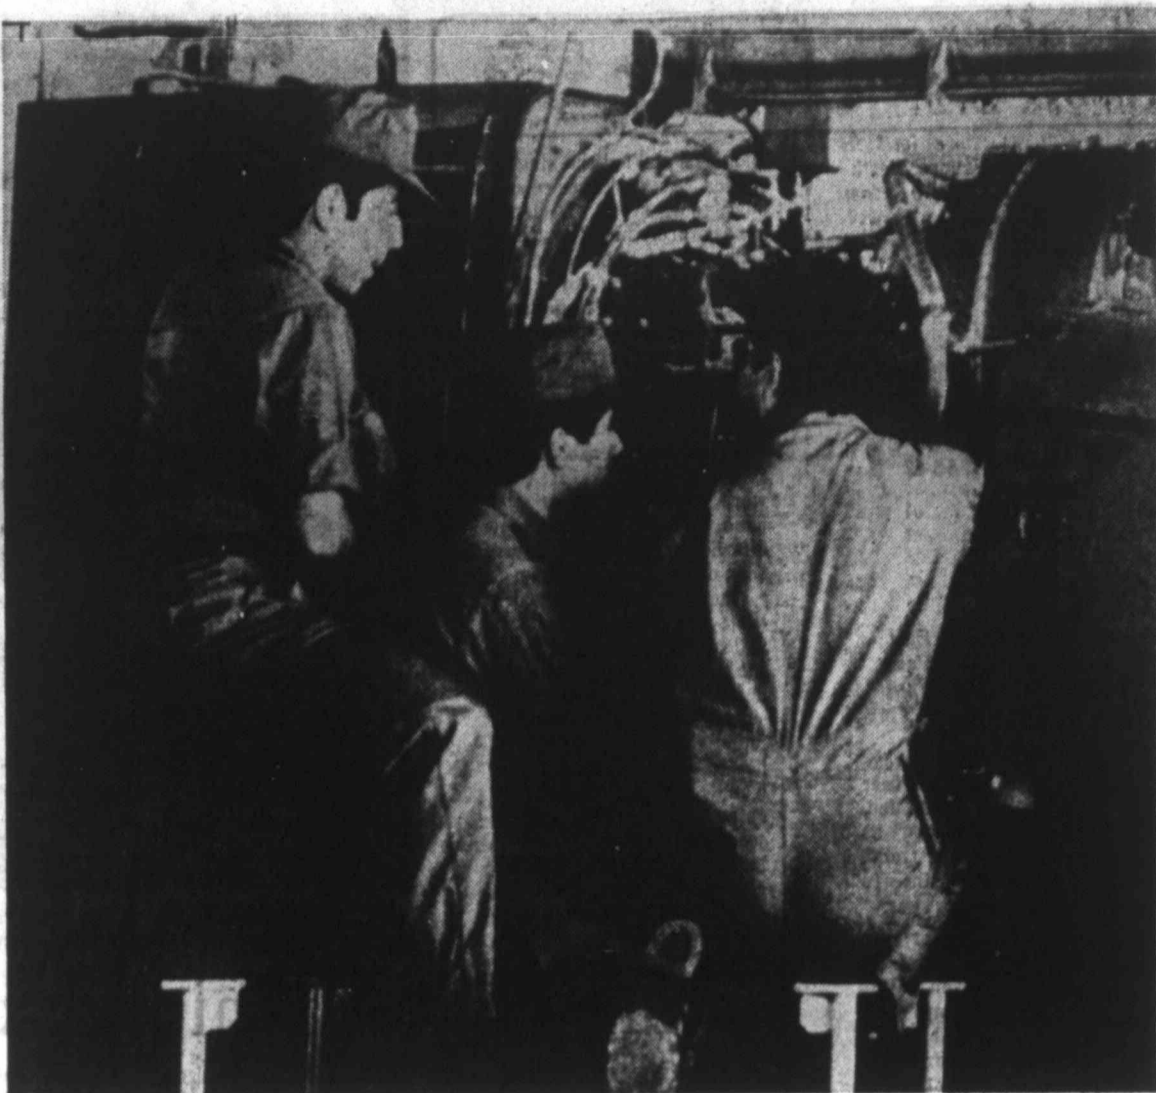

Asked if the present U.S. involvement can be compared with the Vietnam War, one adviser, a helicopter pilot and Vietnam veteran, said, "No way. Critics of this escalation are idealists."

Officials reported at least 35 people died in political violence Monday, including seven victims shot execution style in the head and found at dawn around the capital.

A powerful bomb ripped through the home of Jose Tomas Carbonel, father-in-law of junta member Jose Antonio Morales Ehrlich, wrecking part of the home and wounding two employees, officials said.

Carbonel, 75, was in his home in western San Salvador when the bomb went off but was not injured, they said. None of the rightist or leftist extremist groups active in El Salvador claimed responsibility for the blast but leftists were suspected of planting the explosive.

The Catholic church's Legal Aid Society last week said about 17,500 people have been killed since Jan. 1, 1980, in a virtual civil war between Marxist-led guerrillas, rightist death squads and government forces.

ADVISER AT WORK — A U.S. adviser, right, works with two Salvadoran mechanics on an American Huey helicopter Monday. Salvadoran military officials permitted photographers to make pictures of an adviser, but only if the adviser's face was not in full view. They further stipulated that he remain unidentified. Guerrilla Report Cites Strength Of Offensive WASHINGTON (AP) — El Salvador's left-wing guerrillas concede their January offensive was "not as devastating as it might have been" because of military aid rushed to the ruling junta by the United States.

But in a 99-page report, El Salvador's two leading revolutionary groups contend the offensive proved the guerrillas can mount a serious, nationwide military challenge to the government.

The "white paper," by the Democratic Revolutionary Front and the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front, was circulated in Washington last week. A copy was obtained by The Associated Press.

Besides its fairly candid admissions about the shortcomings of the offensive, the report, entitled "El Salvador on the Threshold of A Democratic Revolutionary Victory" also clearly is an attempt to argue the revolution's case outside the Central American country.

The report says the reason for the current civil war is El Salvador's history of political repression, dating back at least to the killing of about 30,000 workers and peasants during a 1932 popular uprising.

The report states that efforts to overturn a military dictatorship by electoral means were thwarted and that the government turned more and more to violent repression as popular opposition mounted.

"The Salvadoran people, after a long chain of sorrowful experiences, realized that it was necessary to use the only language their murderers and exploiters understood: the language of armed struggle," the report says.

"The revolutionary struggle of the people of El Salvador is the only real alternative that will make possible the dreams of peace, independence and liberty for all those who have offered their lives for these ideals."

In its own "white paper" last month, the Reagan administration questioned the guerrillas' popular support, arguing that the insurrection was sponsored by Cuba and other Soviet-bloc countries. The Soviet Union, Cuba and the revolutionary groups have denied that charge.

The administration released documents purporting to show communist military shipments to the guerrillas and announced an increase in U.S. military assistance, including the sending of additional military advisers.

U.S. weapons support to the junta was suspended by former President Carter last December after the slaying of four American churchwomen who had been working with El Salvador's poor.

Israeli Soldiers Resort To Force To Disrupt Strike By Merchants

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israeli troops smashed locks off shops in the occupied West Bank today to force merchants to abandon a general strike in support of teachers who have been off the job since December seeking better pay.

In Arab East Jerusalem, stores and schools were closed to express solidarity with the 7,200 striking teachers, who are demanding an 100 percent wage increase and complain they are paid far less than their colleagues in Israel.

But by mid-morning, the strikes appeared to fizzle in many West Bank towns as about half the stores were open and sidewalks were crowded as usual with sidewalk vendors and shoppers.

Palestinian Arab sources said the strike was about 50 percent effective. UPI photographer Mike Theiler reported that while shops along the main street of Hebron were mostly open, stores in the old city and along side streets were virtually all shuttered.

"We want to show the world that all the people in the occupied territories

Polish Workers Engage In Major Walkout

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — An estimated 500,000 Polish workers staged the first major Polish strike in three weeks today in the central province of Lodz after last-minute talks broke down between government and independent union leaders over the firing of five workers. Workers placed red and white Polish flags around the provincial capital of Lodz — the nation's second largest city — and factory sirens wailed to announce the one-hour warning strike.

The talks broke down early this morning, but negotiations resumed later in the day between the union and local police officials, with Lodz Mayor Jozef Niewiadomski mediating.

Jerzy Kropiwnicki, leader of the Lodz branch of Solidarity, said workers from 1,300 plants took part in the strike from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m., but that health and social services, schools and utilities were excluded.

"Unfortunately, we have a complete deadlock," he said. Kropiwnicki blamed local police officials who he said were refusing to abide by agreements between Solidarity's national leaders and the central government in Warsaw.

The Lodz chapter of Solidarity ordered a strike alert last week in protest against the firing of five hospital workers, four of them union organizers. Lech Walesa, Solidarity's national leader, met in Warsaw Monday with Deputy Premier Mieczyslaw Rakowski and reported the government agreed in principle to the Lodz workers' demands, including the reinstatement of the five workers.

Walesa asked the Lodz chapter to call off the strike. But Kropiwnicki accused local police officials of refusing to accept agreements worked out in Warsaw, including one to let the union continue organizing workers at a Lodz hospital run by the Interior Ministry.

The labor leader said he hoped "some decision on the highest level would make it possible to turn back our plans" to begin sit-in strikes every other day throughout Lodz province on Thursday.

Walesa reported Rakowski also agreed in principle to the demand by the Solidarity chapter in Radom, 60 miles south of Warsaw, that some new government buildings be turned over to the local health service for use as hospitals and clinics.

Mrs. Thatcher Persists With Budget Proposals

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, undeterred by a one-day strike that shut museums and airports, pressed on with her austerity program with her Conservative government unveiling a budget expected to raise the cost of wine, beer, cigarettes and gasoline.

Gasoline will go to $3.25 an imperial gallon, which is 1.2 U.S. gallons, according to advanced predictions. Pickets Monday turned back a dry-cleaning delivery to Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's official residence at 10 Downing Street during the one-day civil servants strike that closed down government offices, airports and museums.

"That's Mrs. Thatcher without clean linen for a week," a striker said, adding "at least we've done something."

In Parliament, Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir Geoffrey Howe prepared to give the grim budget statement asking for more belt tightening in the nation suffering from a 14 percent inflation rate.

No total budget figure can be given out in Britain in advance, but it was believed to be about $176 billion.

Political observers said the only bright spot in the budget message was an expected 2 percent cut in the Bank of England's current 14 percent minimum lending rate, which will make investment easier for hard pressed businessmen.

Congress Critical Of U.S.-Chile Ties

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration's controversial decision to improve relations with Chile's military government is undergoing the critical scrutiny of Congress.

The decision to ease trade and military restrictions imposed following the Washington murder of former Chilean diplomat Orlando Letelier sparked harsh words on Capitol Hill, with some congressmen accusing the administration of condoning government-sponsored terrorism.

One of those critics was Rep. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, who was to testify today before a joint hearing of the House International Affairs and International Economic Policy and Trade subcommittees.

The administration's position was to be defended by John Bushnell, the acting assistant secretary of state for Latin American policy.

At issue is a State Department announcement last month rescinding sanctions ordered by the Carter administration against Chile as a result of the Letelier case.

The State Department restored Export-Import bank credits for Chilean purchases from U.S. businesses and invited Chilean warships to again take part in the annual "Unitas" hemispheric naval exercises.

The restrictions were imposed in response to what the Carter administration saw as a failure by the Santiago government to cooperate in the investigation of the murders of Letelier and his American aide, Ronni Moffet.

Battle Brewing Over Sale To Saudis

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate opponents are drumming up support for what they hope will be President Reagan's first defeat in Congress — veto of his sale of F-15 jetfighter missiles and gear to Saudi Arabia.

But the vote in Congress is weeks away and the opponents, predominantly Democrats, agree Reagan has plenty of time to persuade particularly the Republican-controlled Senate to approve the sale.

That would clear the sale of Sidewinder missiles and long-range fuel tanks for 62 F-15s the Saudis already have. Congress can veto such sales only with rejection by both the House and Senate.

Mrs. Moffet and Letelier, a former Chilean ambassador and Cabinet member during the regime of Salvador Allende, were killed in a bomb blast that destroyed Letelier's on a Washington street on Sept. 21, 1976.

Three high officials of Chile's now-disbanded DINA special police were indicted in the murders.

Senate Democratic Whip Alan Cranston and four other opponents sent a letter to all senators Monday urging them to co-sponsor a resolution to veto the sale.

"These systems significantly increase the military threat to Israel," they wrote, "thus jeopardizing the military balance in the Middle East."

They said the fuel tanks would double the Saudi F-15's combat range, making the fighters, with their new Sidewinder air-to-air missiles, a direct threat to Israel.

The letter was signed by Cranston and four other Democratic members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee: Sens. Joseph Biden of Delaware, Claiborne Pell of Rhode Island, Edward Zorinsky of Nebraska and Paul S. Sarbanes of Maryland. Biden will sponsor the veto resolution in the Senate.

Members of the committee are already committed or leaning against the sale. 10 to 6, and 55 of the current 100 senators signed a letter last July opposing it.

But some past opponents are wavering over the Reagan administration's position that the Saudi sale is needed as part of a larger U.S. effort to cement new U.S. relationships in the Persian Gulf as a bulwark against the Soviets.

The State Department this week will announce further steps to improve U.S. relations with other Persian Gulf countries to replace the loss of a friendly Iran, according to The New York Times.

Clergy Wants Bani-Sadr Reprimanded

By United Press International

Iran's clergy demands that President Abolhasan Bani-Sadr be punished for fostering "disunity, chaos and clashes," but the moderate chief of state lashed back today against "club wielders" in a widening power struggle.

In an open letter to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, reported Monday by Tehran Radio monitored in London, 130 fundamentalist religious judges and prosecutors accused Bani-Sadr of supporting clashes dating back to last September and including a disturbance at Tehran University last Thursday, where 45 people were injured.

The clergy's attack followed one earlier in the day by Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai, who accused the president with running a parallel government and conspiring with "counter-revolutionaries."

On Sunday, Islamic judge Sheikh Sadegh Khalkhali, in a speech in the Majlis — Iran's parliament — accused Bani-Sadr of violating the Islamic constitution and demanded he be tried.

Bani-Sadr said the rally he addressed Thursday was peaceful until troublemakers started cutting loudspeaker wires, shouting "insulting slogans" and throwing stones.

Witnesses said militants shouted "death to Bani-Sadr" and the president's supporters responded with slogans of "death to (Ayatollah) Mohammad Beheshti," leader of the Islamic Republican Party.

"I waited for almost 45 minutes," Bani-Sadr said. "When the police could not stop them, I asked the people to take action."

Monday's letter from Iran's clergy said, "Bani-Sadr's behavior in creating disunity, chaos and clashes on the Anniversary of the Martyrdom of Imam Hussein, (Sept.8) and the events at Tehran University last Thursday, and the gathering of members of Savak, anti-revolutionary groups and bankrupt nationalities around him, is a cause for concern and regret."

Part Of Plan Approved To Ease Crowded Conditions In Prisons

AUSTIN (AP) — State prison inmates will continue sleeping on floors if any part of a three-pronged plan for relieving overcrowding is dumped, says director W.J. Estelle of the Texas Department of Corrections.

Texas House members gave a boost to one part of the plan, construction of prefabricated metal buildings to house 2,880 inmates, when they tentatively approved $35 million for the project on Monday.

A final House vote, expected Wednesday, would send the special appropriation bill to the Senate for more action.

Estelle's bosses, the Texas Board of Corrections, also met Monday and voted to construct the buildings as three separate "free-standing, independently administered" prisons of 960 inmates each. The new penitentiaries will be located at the Beto and Coffield units near Palestine and the Jester unit near Richmond.

Other parts of the plan to get some 2,200 inmates off the floors are:
— Ongoing construction of new cell blocks housing 1,460 inmates.

— A work furlough program that would send 2,500 prisoners home to take jobs in their own communities but under the oversight of 50 TDC "field supervisors." Each inmate in the program would pay $78 a month to cover its costs.

"If we withdraw any of these approaches to the immediate problem of overcrowding, it is not going to get off the floor," Estelle told the board.

U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice has ruled that overcrowding at Texas prisons violates the constitutional rights of inmates.

Attorney General Mark White assured board members who met him at his office Monday that he is providing enough manpower to prepare the state's appeal of Justice's order.

"They were wanting to make certain there would be an adequate commitment of resources for the appeal. ... I hopefully have demonstrated there would," White said later.

He sent the board a letter Friday announcing he had hired two additional lawyers and three more law clerks to help the two attorneys and one clerk already working on the appeal.

White claimed in an interview that if he had beefed up the staff any earlier, it would have been wasteful since one major issue — medical treatment — had been disposed of by his agreement last month that the state would do a better job.

The work furlough plan has been criticized by Gov. Bill Clements.

Senate Votes To Deny Some Jobless Benefits

AUSTIN (AP) — Texans who quit a job just because they are "tired of working" would not be able to get jobless benefits if Gov. Bill Clements signs a bill approved by the Senate.

Sen. Roy Blake, the bill sponsor, predicted his proposal would "stabilize the work force and make the Texas (unemployment compensation) law more fairly and evenly administered."

At his urging, the Senate accepted House amendments to a bill that would deny jobless benefits to people who quit their jobs, are fired for misconduct or refuse to accept "suitable" work found for them by the Texas Employment Commission.

They could get future benefits only if they found new jobs, earned the equivalent of six weeks' benefits and then were laid off through no fault of their own.

Currently, workers who quit are denied benefits for one to 25 weeks, with the TEC basing its decision on the facts of each case.

The Senate sent Blake's bill to Clements on a 28-1 vote, with Sen. Dee Travis the lone dissenter.

"I'm not as happy with the amendments as you are," said Travis, R-Garland. "Why should the state subsidize a spouse who leaves town?"

He referred to an amendment that would allow a person who quits because a spouse must move to a new city to collect jobless benefits after a disqualification period of six to 26 weeks.

"You do have to compromise from time to time," said Blake, D-Nacogdoches.

Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, asked about the estimate that the bill would cost Texas an extra $3 million to administer, and Blake responded, "I don't think it will."

The other amendments would:
— Guarantee that military men and women who do not re-enlist would not be denied benefits for "quitting" their jobs.

— Prohibit denial of benefits if a person quit because of medically verified illness, injury, disability or pregnancy.

— Allow benefits to people who quit because of a reason that is "urgent, compelling and of a necessitous nature so as to make separation involuntary."

TEC Chairman Nolan Ward said last week that this amendment "guts the bill" by enabling the board to apply its discretion to the facts of each case, as it now does.

Blake said the bill would protect a female employee who might slap her boss's face for being "too familiar with her."

Generally, he said, the House amendments "do no harm to the bill and don't alter its original intent."

The message to unemployed Texans, he said, is, "We're telling these people we are tired of working to pay for benefits for those who choose not to work of their own accord."

DMSO Users Tell House Panel Solvent Can Help Cure Cancer

AUSTIN (AP) — Tears welled in Alva Ruth Wilson's eyes as she told a House committee that DMSO — now sold in Texas as a cleaning solvent — helped cure her of cancer.

Moments before, Dr. E.J. Tucker of Houston introduced Mrs. Wilson and two other patients as people who owe their lives to DMSO (dimethyl sulfoxide), which cannot be prescribed by Texas physicians.

"I beg you to allow the people of Texas to have it," Tucker said. "... These people would all be dead today if not for DMSO."

Mrs. Wilson, 48, of Porter, north of Houston, said, "My three other doctors didn't give me any hope." But, she said, a year of DMSO treatments under Tucker's guidance cured her. The DMSO, which penetrates the skin rapidly, was used to carry other chemicals into the bloodstream, Tucker said.

Rep. Gene Green, D-Houston, wants the Legislature to allow physicians to prescribe DMSO, now purchased as a "degreaser" at chemical supply stores. Veterinarians use it to treat some animal diseases.

House Health Services Committee Chairman Ron Wilson, D-Houston, sent the measure to subcommittee.

Tucker said DMSO is not a cure-all, and his treatments are effective only for some cancer forms.

DMSO has not been approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration. Users of the substance say it relieves the pain of arthritis and other diseases.

Tucker predicted DMSO never would gain FDA approval because the agency requires a "double-blind study" before approving substances. The study requires that subjects not know what substance they are using. DMSO's distinctive garlic-like smell makes it easily detectable, Tucker said.

Witnesses talked about DMSO as a relief for fever blisters, arthritis, ear infections, wasp stings and sinus problems.

Tucker said the treatments cured Clyde Lindsey of Pasadena. The boy, now 15, had cancer at age three, and other doctors said there was no cure, according to Tucker.

Suzanne Frias of Fort Worth testified. "My husband would be alive today if DMSO had been more widely known." She said he died at age 55 because no doctor would tell him about the substance.

Mrs. Frias said her father also died of cancer.

Committee Hears Testimony On Handgun Measure

AUSTIN (AP) — Rep. Henry Allee calls it a "self-help remedy," but to Houston Police Detective David Collier it sounds like a return to the ways of the Wild West.

Allee, D-Houston, wants to allow Texans to carry pistols in their vehicles. You need to pack a pistol when you're driving Texas roads, he told the House Criminal Jurisprudence Committee on Monday.

"We've reached the point in Texas ... there's no question but that the individual has the need of the right to carry a handgun to protect himself," Allee said.

Texas law now allows you to carry a handgun in your car only if it is locked in the trunk. Allee said the weapons should be where they can be used.

"I trust the people of Texas to use a weapon rationally. Some individuals have commented, 'Well, they'll have everybody shooting themselves on the freeways.' I don't think that's true," Allee said.

But Collier, president of the Houston Police Officers Association, said highway murders already are out of hand in Houston.

"We're going to have an increase in the number of freeway shootings," he predicted. "If this bill were to pass I suspect we'd have to double the size of the homicide division."

"We're going back to the old Wild West, I'm afraid," he testified.

Allee said the bill might increase the number of murders but would cut down on rapes and robberies.

The legislator's father was kidnapped last year and released unharmed.

"I'm sorry we have to resort to these self-help remedies," he said.

Collier was the only witness to speak against the bill. Allee brought several former policemen, gun course teachers and citizens who want to carry handguns in their cars. Some, including Houston engineer Walt Christmas, already pack a pistol in their cars. Christmas said he has never shot at anyone but his pistol has warned off potential attackers.

A wave of the gun at his car window got rid of someone he said tried to run him off the road.

Bill Thorpe of Georgetown said the Bible says he can carry a handgun in his car.

"The Bible allows self-defense," said Thorpe, representing the American Pistol and Rifle Association.

Bill Discourages Social Promotions

AUSTIN (AP) — Senators want teachers to stop routinely promoting students who are make only a half-hearted effort in school.

The Senate approved and sent to the House on Monday a bill that would establish a state policy against "social promotions."

Senators indicated by their questions, however, they were not certain how the policy would affect school children.

Sen. Walter Mengden's bill, says, in part:

"It is the policy of this state that students be required to achieve in accordance with their ability before being promoted to a higher grade level or awarded a high school diploma."

Within guidelines developed by the State Board of Education, school districts would adopt "basic proficiency levels" for each grade in reading, writing, mathematics and social and natural sciences.

A student could not advance to the next grade or receive a diploma unless the student "demonstrated a minimum level of achievement" designated for his or her grade.

Mengden, R-Houston, said his bill was designed to make students live up to their abilities.

In too many instances, said Mengden, students are just sitting at their desks and putting forth very little effort but still getting promoted.

He said his bill does not provide for a single test or series of tests but directs districts to establish a "level of proficiency according to a child's ability."

For example, Mengden said, a child who has difficulty speaking English might respond to a question of what is

"two plus two" by writing the answer, rather than answering verbally, and that would be acceptable.

Sen. Bob Vale, D-San Antonio, asked if a student would be promoted if he or she was performing at 100 percent of ability but not meeting "the norm," and Mengden said the student would be promoted.

However, he said, if a student had the ability to meet "proficiency levels" but did not do so, the student would not be promoted.

Students with "mental impairment or learning disability" would be exempted from the bill.

The measure directs each school district to report to the Texas Education Agency each year the number of students who passed, the number who failed and the number who repeated, courses in summer school.

Lower Calorie Wine To Be Test-Marketed

ATLANTA (AP) — A new wine with fewer calories and lower alcohol content than the average table brand will be test-marketed in seven cities this spring by Wine Spectrum, a Coca-Cola Co. subsidiary.

Light Chablis of California will be tried out in Seattle, San Diego, Milwaukee, Nashville, Tenn., Albany, N.Y., Tampa and Petersburg, Fla., said Harry E. Teasley, president of Wine Spectrum.

The wine contains 8.9 percent alcohol by volume, compared with 12 percent alcohol for the average table wine.

Keesee Denied Reimbursement For Travel Costs

By MARY ALICE ROBBINS
Avalanche-Journal Staff
County commissioners offered legal questions but no money Monday to Sheriff D.L. "Sonny" Keesee when he appealed to them to pay travel expenses for his wife whom he deputized and took on a recent trip to return a prisoner from Missouri.

According to some county officials, Keesee may not be able to legally recoup the travel expenses for his wife because of the state's nepotism laws.

Mrs. Keesee accompanied the sheriff on a 1,600-mile trip to Wynesville, Mo., to pick up a male prisoner being held for Lubbock County. County financial records indicated that trip occurred Feb. 20-25.

When Keesee returned from that trip, County Auditor Dale Gallimore refused to reimburse him for the $104.60 in travel expenses estimated to have been Mrs. Keesee's share of lodging and meals.

So, Keesee took the matter before the commissioners court and requested full reimbursement.

"She (Mrs. Keesee) is deputized whenever she goes with me," the sheriff told commissioners. Keesee noted that his wife normally carries a gun when she assists him.

The wives of deputies frequently are asked to accompany their husbands on trips to pick up prisoners, Keesee said. When he was a deputy, Keesee said, his wife traveled with him to Carson City, Nev., on one trip to transport an inmate.

Using the wives on prisoner transportation assignments cuts down on the number of deputies that must be temporarily taken away from their duties, Keesee explained. He said it normally takes two deputies to transport a prisoner, but a wife can fill one of the deputy positions.

But Gallimore told commissioners that paying Mrs. Keesee's travel expenses may violate the nepotism statutes.

"I would be hesitant to pay it," Gallimore said. "In fact, I would have to require an opinion (from the county's legal counsel) to pay it."

Assistant Criminal District Attorney Yvonne Faulks said she was inclined to agree with Gallimore. Under the state nepotism laws, she noted, elected officials cannot hire relatives. This statutory requirement also may prohibit Keesee from deputizing his wife, Mrs. Faulks explained.

According to Mrs. Faulks, the nepotism law would not prevent the sheriff's department from deputizing the wives of deputies. She noted that the law only applies to elected officials.

To settle the reimbursement issue, commissioners asked Mrs. Faulks to research state statutes on nepotism.

Keesee said he never considered deputizing his wife as a possible violation of the nepotism laws. "It never entered my mind," he said. "I never thought of her as an employee."

Commissioners also turned down Keesee's request for a $50 monthly car allowance for his chief administrator, Don Stapleton.

The sheriff noted that Stapleton does not have access to a county vehicle and must drive his own car to conduct county business for the sheriff's department.

However, Commissioner Coy Biggs expressed fear that granting a car allowance to an employee in the sheriff's office might cause a "domino effect" in other county departments.

Commissioner Boyd Roberts recommended that the group postpone action on the car allowance request until the county's budget sessions this summer.

The possibility of problems with the county's method of collecting delinquent taxes drew some questions from one of the newest members of the commissioners court.

Commissioner Franklin Dunn said he wants a report on the delinquent tax situation from Tax Assessor-Collector Frank Stuart.

A Sunday article published in The Avalanche-Journal noted that the county never initiates delinquent tax suits, but it does intervene in lawsuits filed by other local taxing entities.

County records indicate that more than $1.56 million in taxes are owed to the county. Some of those delinquencies date back to 1939.

Mrs. Faulks explained that it requires more time and work to initiate a tax suit than to intervene in one. If the county begins filing tax suits, she said, it take the time of one full-time attorney and a secretary in the CDA's office.

Biggs suggested that "a simple letter" from the district attorney to delinquent taxpayers might collect a lot of the money owed.

One of the problems, Mrs. Faulks said, is that many of the tracts of land are listed as owner unknown. The owners would have to be determined before letters could be sent out, she said.

Mrs. Faulks also noted that county officials could face a future problem on collecting delinquent real estate taxes more than 20 years past due. New property tax laws which become effective next year may place a 20-year statute of limitations on the real property taxes, she said.

Dunn called for a full examination of the delinquent tax problem.

Cavazos Wants New Evaluation System

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

President Lauro Cavazos says the Texas Tech School of Medicine lacks an effective system for evaluating faculty members for tenure and promotion and he is developing a procedure to change that.

The new evaluation format will begin this spring in the medical school and Cavazos says he expects to adapt it for use university-wide by next fall.

Terminating the existing evaluation procedure as too subjective, he noted, "I'm too much of a scientist to do things in an ad hoc way."

Cavazos noted that when the most recent crop of medical school faculty members' files were presented to him for consideration of tenure and promotion, a typical comment on an individual would be, "He's a great teacher."

But that in and of itself is subjective opinion, and Cavazos says he replied to such comments with the response, "Show me the data."

Under the new evaluation format being developed, faculty members will be rated on a points system. Categories will include student evaluation of teachers.

Cavazos noted that at Tufts University School of Medicine, where he was dean before becoming president of Tech, "We had almost every lecture evaluated by students. I think we should be willing to stand that scrutiny."

Although medical students do evaluate faculty members in about half of the departments at the medical school under the existing evaluation system, the students' comments are considered only at the department level. Under the new system, students' comments will be an integral part of the entire evaluation folder on a faculty member — the file that eventually reaches the president.

One upset medical school faculty member who recently contacted The Avalanche-Journal complained that the existing tenure and promotion procedure at the school is riddled with loopholes for favoritism.

"Tenure at the Texas Tech medical school is not a privilege earned, not a distinction granted, not a recognition for excellence. It is a weapon used by the administration to compel acceptance of the party line and to keep 'troublemakers' in line," he charged.

Cavazos is aware the existing system is open to charges of favoritism and he says the new format will be more objective. "If you have the data, then you can say 'to explain a tenure or promotion decision, these are my reasons.'"

He says the objective format will ensure each faculty member is evaluated "critically and fairly."

Dr. Robert O'Reilly, director of Educational Research, Evaluation and Development at Health Sciences Center, is helping develop the new evaluation format.

To explain some of the ideas he is suggesting for the new system, he noted, as an example, that a faculty member who publishes only one article per year and uses in-house funds for research might receive one point on the rating scale. But a faculty member who publishes in perhaps 10 "recognized publications" per year and receives continuous research funding from outside sources could score perhaps five points.

O'Reilly noted that adaptations will be made for individual departments. He said, for example, that in the art department, exhibits or pieces of artwork produced might be a more equitable criteria than publication.

Some faculty members in liberal arts are gearing up to oppose certain aspects of the new system. Some argue that outside funding is not available in some fields and that the points system will favor faculty members in booming departments such as engineering, who can more easily obtain research grants.

But O'Reilly says there is plenty of room for individuality in the new format and a faculty member who is not heavily involved in research could make up the difference in points by excelling in other areas, including teaching. "It will allow different strokes for different folks," he said.

Among the changes O'Reilly will suggest is a more detailed evaluation of department chairmen. He outlined five areas of evaluation, encompassing administrative ability, decision making ability, interpersonal competence, group maintenance and task development ability.

He noted that in the category of interpersonal competence, a low point rating would be given to a chairman whose department exhibited closed, protective or defensive communication. He said such a department probably would include faculty members with a mutual distrust.

Mayor Scolds Federal Agency For Lack Of Communication

By MARC FLAKE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Mayor Bill McAlister has fired off another scathing letter to the Department of Housing and Urban Development, this time critical of duplication of effort and lack of communication between different divisions of the federal agency.

Last April, less than a week after he took office, McAlister issued the first letter which criticized HUD for not considering local input in the selection of a public housing project.

The federal agency picked the fourth most desirable location, at 24th Street and Frankford Avenue, from a list of 16 sites provided by the Lubbock Housing Authority board of directors.

In his latest criticism, dated March 5, McAlister said the apparent lack of coordination and communication between the Fair Housing and Equal Opportunity divisions and other divisions of HUD resulted in the city being falsely accused of not responding to questions from the agency's regional office.

"Within two months, December to February, HUD representatives made two monitoring visits to Lubbock to review the same equal opportunity subjects," wrote McAlister.

Following one of the visits, the city received a letter from a HUD official that the city had failed to respond to equal opportunity questions raised in a letter written to the city in December.

In his letter, McAlister pointed out that a letter had been sent to the agency about a month prior to the official's allegations. Also, the monitoring official in the city had been shown a copy of the response.

"It's a case of the left hand not knowing what the right hand is doing," McAl-ister said Monday. "I'm upset we have been accused of not doing what is proper. We went into great detail to answer their questions."

According to correspondence released by the mayor Monday, HUD had asked the city to provide a list of recruitment and other actions taken to improve representation of minorities and women within the middle and upper level jobs at city hall.

About the end of January, the city replied in a letter to the director of the Community Planning and Development Division of the agency which showed that 20 women and two minorities were among 41 new persons hired by the city.

Five of the women hired were in the officials' administrators' classification and 15 were in the professionals' classification.

The letter said that the majority of positions in the "upper salary ranges," including directors, superintendents and planning, zoning and building officials, are predominantly occupied by individuals whose average tenure is more than 15 years.

It said the limited number of available qualified minority and female applicants in the local and regional labor market are limited.

Recruiting efforts included advertising in local minority-based newspapers, college and university job announcements and the distribution of flyers to social action organizations, it said.

HUD officials could not be reached for comment.

Lubbock Woman Gives Account Of Robbery By Young Couple

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Marguerite Brown didn't like it when a young woman shoved her way into her 19th Street home.

But, the 76-year-old woman indicated, she reached her boiling point when the intruder threatened her with a gun.

"Well, that was the wrong thing to say," Mrs. Brown said adamantly in courtroom testimony Monday. "I went berserk...I jumped on her."

Mrs. Brown took the witness stand in 137th District Court Monday to describe how two young people forced their way into her 19th Street home March 1, robbing her of jewelry and silver. Her testimony came in a hearing called to hear the Criminal District Attorney's motion that bond be denied for Vincent Maurice Lundberg, one of the suspects in that robbery.

Mrs. Brown walked slowly to the witness stand and sat down, folding her gloved hands over her purse. Her face was only partially visible under a brightly flowered yellow hat as First Assistant District Attorney Jim Bob Darnell questioned her about the incident.

The woman explained in a clear, steady voice that she answered her front door at about 9 p.m. to find a petite young woman asking to use the telephone. Mrs. Brown declined to let the woman in and suggested that she use the phone at the University City Club next door, but the young woman pushed her way into the house.

The young woman said she had a gun, Mrs. Brown testified, and she could see the weapon in the intruder's hands.

That's when Mrs. Brown chose to fight.

The two struggled, Mrs. Brown told the court, and the young woman threatened to shoot her.

"I said you just shoot and be damned. I wasn't scared, I was mad," Mrs. Brown continued, adding that the intruder had no right to come into her house.

Mrs. Brown quit struggling, however, when the young woman struck her over the back of the head with a brass candleholder. "You know, I was more afraid of that candleholder than the gun," Mrs. Brown mused.

The young woman instructed Mrs. Brown to let her accomplice into the house through the back. Mrs. Brown followed the instructions, she said, and let a young man wearing a stocking over his face — allegedly Lundberg — in through the garage entrance. She described him as not really knowing what he was doing and walking around the house "like a zombie."

Mrs. Brown said the young woman asked her where she kept her silver.

"I said 'Well, stupid — in the dining room,'" Mrs. Brown told the court. The pair took five rings from her, she testified, including a new ring with an emerald mounting.

"That wasn't even paid for," Mrs. Brown said, glaring. "That's what made me mad."

Mrs. Brown was hospitalized overnight for the injuries she received at the hands of the candlestick-wielding woman. But, according to Mrs. Brown, she left before the hospital employees wished her to because she simply didn't want to stay.

Presiding Judge Robert C. Wright ruled in favor of the state's motion, ordering that Lundberg remain in jail without bond until his case comes to trial. Accused of participating in the robbery with him are Lisa Lynn Davis, 19, and registered nurse Lynda Head, who allegedly planned the robbery.

Lundberg was out of jail on a $3,000 bond for another offense at the time Mrs. Brown was robbed. He was indicted during the January grand jury for burglary of a building in connection with the burglary of an Idealogin.

Reagan Debates Broader CIA Spying Capabilities

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is considering a broad expansion of the CIA's authority to use break-ins, physical surveillance and covert infiltration of American groups and businesses, sources say. Sources familiar with the proposal said Monday it was designed as part of an effort to combat terrorists more effectively, but also was intended to improve leak investigations and the CIA's ability to spy on foreign economic developments.

Kleindienst Facing Disciplinary Action

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A Bar Association committee has asked the Arizona Supreme Court to suspend former Attorney General Richard Kleindienst from the practice of law for one year in connection with alleged influence peddling in a Teamsters Union insurance fraud.

RICHARD KLEINDIENST Suspension Sought

The barriers were established after scandals over the CIA's spying in the 1960s on American anti-Vietnam war activists. The first restrictions were imposed by President Ford in executive order 11905 in 1976 and modified by President Carter in executive order 12036 in 1978. The Reagan administration proposal was drafted by an interagency working group, chaired by CIA general counsel Daniel Silver and composed of U.S. intelligence agencies including the CIA, FBI, National Security Agency, Defense Department and others, according to the sources, who asked not to be named. The proposal was circulated, over the signature of CIA Director William Casey, to other government agencies in February and more recently to selected congressmen, the sources said. The sources said President Reagan had not yet approved the proposal to relax Carter's executive order regulating foreign-intelligence gathering. The sources said the proposal would not so much expand the government's authority to gather information secretly as it would increase the number of agencies that could do so in this country. For instance, they said there is no proposal to end restrictions that have virtually eliminated mail-opening as an intelligence-gathering technique. Nor, they said, would the proposal change the government's need for secret court warrants to use wiretaps and bugs in foreign intelligence cases. But they said the proposal would allow the CIA to conduct break-ins, known as black bag jobs, physical surveillance

Execution Leaves Mother Bitter

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A day after Steven T. Judy became the first person executed in 20 years in Indiana, his foster mother was bitter, his natural mother silent, his brother convinced that the convicted killer's death was "a simple suicide." Mary Carr, who will bury her foster son Thursday in an Indianapolis cemetery, says she will sue the state for failing to warn that Judy was dangerous 10 years ago when she and her husband Robert took in the child who had raped and nearly killed a woman at the age of 12. "We were only told that he accosted a woman and had a nervous breakdown," Mrs. Carr said. "We feel the juvenile authorities at Central State Hospital jeopardized our safety, they jeopardized the entire society by putting Steve in our home without making us fully aware of his past and without recommending psychiatric treatment." Hospital officials were not available for comment Monday. "I hope all the people in the justice system that failed him live to a ripe old age," Mrs. Carr said. "And every night when they go to sleep, I hope they see his face." Judy's natural mother, who disappeared from his life when he was 11 and has since built a new life for herself, made no statement Monday. Judy's father is an escapee from the same prison where his son died. Judy's brother, Michael, a resident of New Orleans, said Judy had tried suicide twice while in jail. Michael Judy said he felt Judy's decision to die was another attempt. Seventy-one minutes before he was strapped into the electric chair Monday, Judy almost changed his mind about the execution he had refused to fight, his attorney said. "If you ever have another client that wants to be electrocuted, talk him out of it," attorney Steven L. Harris quoted the killer of a woman and her three children as saying when Harris was summoned to Judy's cell at the Indiana State Prison at 10:54 p.m. Sunday. "He said it was almost too much, the pressure building toward the execution," Harris said, adding that Judy "was almost to the panic stage." Harris said Judy wanted to reach a former girlfriend in Texas named Jeanie, who had sent him a telegram in prison. Neither Harris nor prison officials would identify her further. "He told me, 'If she wants to marry me, I may ask for a stay,'" Harris said. Jeannie was described by Mrs. Carr as "the only girl he ever truly loved."

Texans Believe Not All Lost In Quarantine Fight

HARLINGEN (AP) — After losing their fight to quarantine California fruit and vegetables, Texas citrus industry officials say they have one consolation. "I think we have got their attention in California and made them attack the problem," Charles Rogers, a Donna shipper, said Monday. "We're not looking for a fight. We want them to solve their problem." California is battling an outbreak of the Mediterranean fruit fly, a highly destructive pest that lays eggs in many types of fruits and certain vegetables. Texas officials fear its spread could wipe out the relatively small citrus industry in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. Rogers and other shippers say they are disappointed in a lifting of the week-old quarantine on many types of California fruit and vegetables. "I wish we could have held it (the quarantine) on another month because it won't be until the warmer weather when we'll know if there are still flies in the ground that could emerge," said Dan Seitz Jr. of Valley Fruit and Vegetable Co. of Pharr. Texas began a ban March 1 on shipments from the western state but California officials protested the quarantine as unnecessary and illegal to the U.S. Supreme Court. On Saturday, Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown said the ban had been lifted in a settlement with California avocado growers. In an "after-the-fact" decision Monday, the U.S. Supreme Court ordered Texas to halt the quarantine that had held up shipments unless they were fumigated or kept in cold storage.

TMI Cleanup May Last Seven Years

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal report says it could take seven more years to clean up the nation's worst commercial nuclear accident, and one official notes that preparation of the report itself may have slowed the cleanup. The staff of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission presented the report to the commission Monday, saying contaminated wastes at the Three Mile Island plant near Harrisburg, Pa., can be removed "without incurring environmental impacts that exceed acceptable risks." It recommended cleaning up contamination at the plant "as expeditiously as reasonably possible to reduce the potential for uncontrolled releases of radioactive materials." It could take at least three more years and possibly seven to clean up after the 1979 accident, the report said. The report called for storing the radioactive wastes from the plant elsewhere

Marine Drills Not Linked To Salvador

TWENTYNINE PALMS, Calif. (UPI) — The Marine Corps denies that 11,000 Marines, a major component of the new Rapid Deployment Force, are on maneuvers in the desert because of the hostilities in El Salvador. The 7th Marine Amphibious Brigade began training Monday in the Southern California desert, an exercise officers say has been on the drawing boards for months. They said it was not a response to escalating military action in the Central American country. But the last time the 7th MAB held similar maneuvers was last July, at the height of the Iranian crisis. "We have great timing, don't we?" said Marine spokesman, Warrant Officer Ron Frazier. "But the exercise has nothing to do with what's going on in El Salvador." President Reagan said the United States will send 54 advisers to El Salvador along with $35 million in military aid — moves that some congressmen say could lead into a Vietnam-style war. The five-day strategic mobility exercise involves units based in California and Arizona. It is to determine if the troops and their equipment would be ready to go if the unit was ordered to deploy. The brigade's equipment, minus helicopters and fixed-wing aircraft, and 15 days of supplies, are in storage aboard

Texas Housewives Upset Over Plans To Burn PCB

DEER PARK (AP) — A group of housewives disgruntled about plans to burn the toxic chemical PCB at a Deer Park company this week have told officials to save their explanations. "What they have to say, they can say in a public hearing," Mary McCracken, 30, said. "There are 20 other ways to dispose of PCB besides burying it here." About 50 housewives — many carrying small children — picketed Monday outside Rollins Environmental Services. The firm received permission recently from the federal Environmental Protection Agency to burn polychlorinated biphenyls at its plant 15 miles east of Houston. However, the plan has met stiff opposition. "We've already got enough chemical plants, pollution and cancer floating around here," Debbie Cassity, 28, said. "My children are 3 and 1 year old, and I've got another one due in July. I want them all to have long futures." PCB — an organic chemical that can accumulate in the food chain — was used in electrical applications until banned in 1976. The EPA authorized Rollins to begin burning the cancer-causing agent March 4, but routine maintenance on the incinerator forced company officials to postpone disposal until later this week.

Teen Reports Rape To Lubbock Police

Another case was added to Lubbock's high incidence of sex crimes with a reported attack on a 19-year-old woman shortly after 2 a.m. today.

The victim said she was walking in the 1500-block of Avenue Q when a young black male grabbed her by the coat and asked her name. She said that when the assailant began pulling on her, she resisted and he threw her against a wall and struck her several times.

The woman told police the suspect finally threw her to the pavement, dragged her to an alley near 16th Street and Avenue S and raped her. The woman said that after the assault, the attacker threatened to kill her if she notified police.

Police said the woman was visibly shaken and the left side of her face was red and swollen. She was taken to Lubbock General Hospital, where she met with Rape Crisis representatives.

The suspect was described as a short, between 14 and 17, wearing a tan coat and rust-colored pants. He was last seen walking south in the 1600-block of Avenue S.

In other activity, a Lubbock man said he accidentally shot himself in the foot Monday afternoon while attempting to chase a burglar out of his house.

Arthur Jones, 37, of 2218 10th St. told police he arrived home about 4 p.m. and heard someone inside. He said he entered his residence and had retrieved his .38-caliber pistol when he heard noise in the kitchen.

With the loaded weapon in hand, Jones ran down a hallway and tripped on a blanket, accidentally discharging the gun, according to reports. Despite a minor bullet wound to the foot, Jones got up and continued toward the kitchen where he saw the intruder run through a back door.

The resident said he could only describe the suspect as a male, with dark hair and clad in blue jeans and a coat. Jones drove himself to Methodist Hospital, where he was treated and later released.

A 12-year-old boy was taken into police custody Monday night after he allegedly struck another youth in the back of the head with a brick earlier in the day.

The victim, also 12, said he was standing in the 4600-block of 39th Street when the young assailant grabbed him and hit him with the brick. Reports indicate the boy was not seriously injured.

The suspect was taken into custody, questioned by juvenile authorities and later released to his parents.

A 24-year-old Lubbock woman said she was "mooned" about 7:15 p.m. Monday by a passenger in a station wagon in the 2800-block of 34th Street.

The exhibitionist's vehicle was described as a 1958 black Ford.

Lubbock County Sheriff's deputies today were investigating yet another possible sniping incident after a Wolf-orth man reported his pickup window was shattered by an unknown object as he was driving southwest of the city.

Trinidad Santos, 61, and his wife said they were driving to Wolforth on the Brownfield Highway about 2:30 p.m. when the rear cab window of their pickup suddenly shattered, said Deputy Ernest Rector.

Santos said he heard a loud noise, possibly a gunshot, just before the window broke. Rector said he searched the vehicle and could find no bullets, shotgun pellets or other projectiles that may have broken the glass.

Neither the man nor the woman was injured in the incident.

Santos told Rector he had just passed an oncoming light blue Ford pickup before the window broke. The 1976-77 vehicle was believed to be occupied by two persons, Rector said.

The deputy said the object that broke the window may have ricocheted off and away from the glass.

In other activity, 40 football helmet plaques were stolen during the weekend from the Red Raider Inn, 6025 Ave. A, police said.

Manager Hulene Pointer told police the plaques, consisting of a helmet attached to a wooden base, were stolen from the motel lobby between 5:15 p.m. Friday and 8 a.m. Sunday. The theft was reported to police Monday.

Also stolen were three paintings of mascots from various universities, reports show. The loss was estimated at $3,900.

The manager told officers each of the missing helmets represented a different college or university.

"We will be there to answer questions about safety, proper fit, maintenance and other questions," she said, noting that this is the first time the organization has sponsored such an event but that similar booths will be offered at shopping centers across the state.

Kidnappers Continue Threats

HOUSTON (AP) — A businessman who paid a $100,000 ransom for the release of his son says he is still receiving telephone threats from the kidnappers.

Investigators said Eldon Trent Hudson, 23, was released unharmed 12 hours after he was abducted at gunpoint from the family's summer home Friday near Huntsville.

Hudson's father, Milton Dwayne Hudson, told sheriff's officers he found his son tied up in a ditch not far from the Houston Intercontinental Airport after paying $100,000 in small bills in the son's automobile parked at a shopping center.

The father said Monday night the kidnappers have continued to call his home, threatening to kill him and his son.

"These people are still in contact with me," he said. "This thing is not over with yet."

The son was not available for comment and Hudson, 45, owner of a sheet metal firm, refused further comment.

Sheriff's Deputy Norman Sanford said the son, a sophomore at Sam Houston State University, went downstairs to see what had set off a burglar alarm. Two men were said to have grabbed him, put a pillow case over his head, placed him in the back seat of his car, and, later, transferred him to the trunk of another vehicle.

Bentsen Promises Help On Proposed Interstate

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

U. S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen Monday promised his assistance in the effort to get Interstate 27 completed through Lubbock but said the project may be further delayed by budget cuts recommended by the Reagan administration.

Pressed by former Lubbock County Commissioner Arch Lamb in an afternoon meeting here, the two-term Democrat from Houston said he would lend his influence to getting the project under contract by the 1986 deadline.

"We need your help on this," Lamb told Bentsen in a meeting at the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce. Lamb noted that federal law calls for all interstate highway construction projects either to be begun by 1986 or dropped.

Bentsen told the former commissioner the deadline may be extended for some projects, however.

In Lubbock apparently to begin laying groundwork for his re-election campaign next year, the senator said federal highway appropriations to Texas will remain approximately the same this year and in 1982. "The option is up to the state," he said, on how the money is spent.

But he said more and more money will be spent on interstate highway maintenance in coming years with the national highway system 95 percent complete. "It is going to be more difficult to fund new highways," he said.

He left here Monday afternoon for Dallas, where he arrived from Washington last Friday to begin a series of apparent campaign-building activities.

Bentsen said at an afternoon news conference that he will not announce for re-election until possibly later this year and that he has had no clear indication of whom his opponent or opponents might be. It has been speculated, however, that former Dallas Cowboys quarterback Roger Staubach will oppose him as a Republican.

Political observers do not expect Bentsen to have a primary opponent.

He reportedly has collected about $500,000 to finance the 1982 campaign.

Bentsen is chairman of the congressional Joint Economic Committee, and he announced Monday that the committee will meet in Lubbock "sometime late this year" to discuss West Texas water problems.

Bentsen aides said details of the committee meeting will be announced later.

Asked if he agrees with President Reagan's analysis that national defenses are critically vulnerable and must be increased immediately, the senator said, "I think we should add to our defenses. In many ways, we have fallen behind the Russians."

"It's always serious when you have a nation as expansionist as the Soviet Union."

Bentsen called a study of "split-basing" the proposed MX missile system in Nevada-Utah and Texas-New Mexico "a stupid proposal" because it would cost an additional $3 1/2 billion to install part of the system in this area.

Asked if there is a serious possibility that the system will be scrapped because of the time, an estimated seven or eight years, that it would take to be deployed, he said he expects it to be deployed in Nevada and Utah as originally planned. "But we don't have a final determination," he added.

Bentsen said he opposes a lower minimum wage for teen-age workers, which Reagan has proposed, and said the draft may have to be reinstated because the volunteer system "is not working."

Using a line he has employed frequently during this visit to his home state, he said, "I don't want to see us get in a position where we have a Job Corps with tanks."

He said a reinstated draft should offer some alternative non-combatant service such as work in government hospitals for conscientious objectors.

Bentsen offered several solutions to what he described as stagnating American industry.

He said corporate heads usually are reluctant to be experimental when they finally reach the top in late-career, and he said companies typically operate on a year-to-year basis rather taking a more long-term view.

The senator said government should give new tax incentives to encourage research and development. Corporate executives should be given the chance to buy stock so that they will be more interested in the long-term success of the company and will stay longer, he added.

Bentsen said some worldwide standards should be developed, perhaps in the United Nations, on world business-ethics.

As it is, he said, American businessmen are often at a disadvantage because they must adhere to the American Corrupt Practices Act, which puts them under more restrictions than most of the foreign businessmen with whom they deal. "Don't you think the Germans and the Japanese love that?" he asked.

Chamber President Lee Stafford, a longtime Bentsen supporter, presented the senator with a chamber resolution commending him for service in the Senate. Mayor Bill McAlister presented him with a certificate honoring him as an honorary citizen of Lubbock.

Senator Addresses Agriculture Panel

By KATHLEEN HARRIS
Avalanche-Journal Farm Writer

The Russian grain embargo, water importation, farm policy and inflation dominated discussion Monday as U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen addressed members of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce's Agriculture Committee.

Speaking to about 60 agriculturists at Plains Co-Op Oil Mill, Bentsen said he generally opposes the grain embargo despite claims from proponents that the Soviet Union is hurting by paying "hard cash" for wheat purchases in Argentina.

"I would like our farmers to have the hard cash instead of Argentina," the two-term senator said. "We should sell them (the Soviet Union) the grain, but not extend any credit to them."

Constructing a canal to flow water into the moisture-short Texas High Plains faces a hard battle, Bentsen said. The senator compared the issue to past controversy on how to divide water in the Colorado River, which he said was one of the "meanest, toughest fights" he has been involved in.

Though Secretary of Agriculture John Block is "truly concerned about farmers and wants to be an advocate of agriculture," Bentsen said, other top ranking governmental officials may play decisive roles in the development of farm policy.

Office of Management and Budget director David Stockman's testifying before the Agriculture Committee prior to Block's testimony broke a tradition of hearing from the secretary of agriculture first. Bentsen noted, which may signal that others may have a "very big hand in what the policy will be."

Bentsen voiced general support for President Reagan's proposed tax cut totals, saying inflation must be turned around for the benefit of everyone.

Reagan Gets Jeers, Cheers In Canada

OTTAWA (AP) — President Reagan was jeered and heckled by Canadian demonstrators today as he arrived for talks with Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau on troublesome issues dividing the two historically friendly countries.

"I love hecklers. I don't know about you, Mr. President," said Trudeau as he welcomed Reagan to Parliament Hill on his first presidential trip abroad.

Reagan, beginning a 28-hour visit, replied that the Canadian seat of government here "is a monument to the right of self-government, to the value of human freedom that even sometimes — as you yourself have pointed out — makes raucous behavior permissible."

Both pledged, as Trudeau put it, "to seek solutions to the problems that often develop between two great nations and two neighbors."

After their exchange of greetings,

Trudeau returned to the microphone to appeal to the demonstrators, who held a forest of placards alluding to issues between the United States and Canada.

"Hey guys," Trudeau said, "when I go to the United States, I'm not met with these kinds of signs. You know, the Americans have some beefs against us, too, but they receive us politely. Now, how about a great cheer for President Reagan."

A roar of approval arose from the largely friendly crowd.

As Reagan and Trudeau headed for the prime minister's oak-paneled office for their first meeting, Reagan was asked what he thought of the demonstrators. "I thought they were imported to make me feel at home," he replied.

"Maybe the American Embassy printed those signs," Trudeau said with a smile.

On his arrival, Reagan said he hoped his visit would serve to improve a U.S.-Canadian relationship "that is the envy of the world."

Canadian officials waited to air a variety of complaints over such issues as fishing rights, energy, air pollution and the U.S. role in El Salvador.

Canadian Governor General Edward Schreyer, greeting Reagan and his wife Nancy after they stepped off Air Force One at a Canadian air base near here, welcomed them "to the house next door."

Although Schreyer spoke some sentences in French, as government leaders customarily do in this bilingual country, Reagan ventured only one word, ending his remarks with "Merçi" for "thank you."

Reagan acknowledged that the two neighbors seem to be competing at times, but he said he hoped "our two nations will continue the ... relationship that is the envy of the world."

The Reagans were welcomed by an honor guard of red-coated Canadian guardsmen wearing tall bearskin hats. Mrs. Reagan was bundled against the Canadian winter in a mink coat.

The president and his party, including Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. and Treasury Secretary Donald Regan, then rode by motorcade to Parliament Hill for his first meeting with Trudeau.

Trudeau and other Canadians were not pleased when Reagan withdrew a U.S.-Canada fisheries treaty from Senate consideration four days before today's trip.

The action was greeted in Ottawa with "profound disappointment and regret," and was sure to be high on the agenda when Reagan and Trudeau meet during the 28-hour trip, Reagan's first foreign excursion since taking office.

President Bares Cuts In Budget

(CETA) in addition to the previously announced intention to abolish the $3.6 billion public service jobs program that employs 310,000 people.

Sharp reductions in Federal Housing Administration and Government National Mortgage Association mortgage insurance and loan guarantee commitments.

Cutbacks of scheduled increases in railroad retirement benefits.

Reduction of about $180 million in the Corps of Engineers water project program, a politically popular item in Congress.

Reduced federal subsidies for merchant shipbuilding and a cutback in credit assistance for small businesses.

Reagan also announced further cuts beyond what he specified on Feb. 18 in numerous programs, including food and nutrition, education, scientific research, the space program and the Rural Electrification Administration.

Reagan said his budget recommendations would preserve the "social safety net" of income security programs passed beginning in the 1930s, including basic Social Security pensions, unemployment compensation, welfare for the neediest and basic veterans' benefits.

In explaining his decision to call for $4.8 billion in increased defense spending, he said a "margin of safety must be created by rebuilding the nation's defense capabilities."

Reagan also targets a small group of other programs for increases over the Carter administration budget, including $400 million in foreign military, security and economic assistance funds.

He also recommended $222 million for the Clinch River Breeder Reactor, which Carter wanted to scrap, along with nearly $500 million increases in other energy areas, including the Strategic Petroleum Reserves.

More than $8 billion of the 1982 budget cuts proposed by Reagan were borrowed from recommendations left by his Democratic predecessor, Jimmy Carter.

Reagan also asked Congress to cut $6.4 billion from the 1981 budget. Under his plan, federal spending would increase $41.6 billion from the 1981 projected figure of $655 billion — a 6 percent rise compared with 13 percent between 1980 and 1981.

Even with the cuts, federal spending would continue to rise in fiscal 1982, which begins Oct. 1, although more slowly than in the past.

The cuts were coupled with the plan to reduce personal income tax rates across the board by 10 percent a year for three years. Reagan also wants to give businesses a tax break in the form of more rapid depreciation.

The president outlined most of his economic plan in a Feb. 18 message to Congress, but he detailed only $34.8 billion of the 1982 budget cuts he wants in slightly more than 80 programs.

Administration officials said in advance that the new spending cut proposals would include a $300 million reduction in the program that provides milk for pregnant women and infants.

Another new cutback is a proposal to save more than $100 million a year by eliminating the $255 Social Security burial benefits if there is no survivor to collect it, officials said.

The administration's program also calls for reducing new federal loans and loan guarantees by 11 percent over the next 18 months. That is a decrease of nearly $35 billion from Carter's levels.

Under Reagan's plan, new loans, guarantees and mortgage insurance funds would be cut from $154 billion to $140 billion this year and from $149 billion to $128 billion in 1982.

White House press secretary James Brady also said Reagan would propose a $6 billion increase in user fees for federally maintained facilities. That's a $600 million increase from the Feb. 18 figures.

Legislators To Ponder Bond Plan

Clayton made it clear he did not intend that the water fund be spent, but that it remain in place as backing for bonds that would be issued by cities, river authorities and water districts for water projects.

"You don't use the money out of the trust fund. You just use it to guarantee the bonds," he said.

Clayton said the past three bienniums have ended with surpluses of $644 million, $745 million and $311 million.

He estimated that each dollar placed in the fund would enable the issuance of $10 worth of bonds.

By 2000, Clayton said, the fund would be large enough to guarantee $25 billion worth of bonds if the surplus is $200 million per biennium and $95 billion if it is $800 million.

Gov. Bill Clements had recommended saving surpluses for expenditure on future water supply projects.

The speaker said he presented the proposals Monday to Clements, and told reporters, "I believe he bought it."

"Governor Clements is quite well aware of the need for water resources development in Texas, and if we don't get about it we are going to have a crisis," Clayton said.

Clements suggested Clayton revise his proposal to require a four-fifths vote of the Legislature to spend any of the money channeled into the special reserve fund.

Coliseum Sale Under Study and possibly for indoor football workouts.

The auditorium and coliseum are owned by the city, but are located on state-owned university property. A provision in the city charter stipulates that the city may not "abandon" the auditorium-coliseum without the consent of voters.

However, the charter also provides that no election shall be required prior to "sale or other disposition of fixtures, equipment, furnishings or appurtenant structures which have become obsolete or which are no longer necessary or desirable to the continued operation."

City officials say the second clause could be interpreted to mean no election would be required to negotiate transfer of the property to the university.

In a related development, the board instructed city finance director Robert Massengale to prepare a cost analysis update by the board's April 9 meeting to present to Tech for rental rate contract purposes.

During a discussion of proposed auditorium-coliseum rate changes, facility director Vicki Key said she did not feel the sale of the buildings to Tech would cause a substantial change in the Civic Center's business, although she acknowledged an element of competition would be introduced and some revenue might be lost.

A proposal by Civic Center Director Dottie Townsend to eliminate the rate category for non-profit groups generated lively discussion among board members. The center staff advocates the change to streamline rates and dealings with non-profit organizations. Mrs. Townsend proposes charging such groups the slightly higher (about $100) non-commercial rate, but not a percentage of ticket sales.

Board member John Anderson, head of the Food and Fiber Institute, said the proposal was just another financial burden on non-profit organizations, such as the symphony, ballet and civic clubs. He suggested a three-tiered rate structure for local non-profit groups, out-of-town groups and commercial groups.

Community facilities director Jim Weston, who admitted the Civic Center had a reputation of "ripping people off" because different groups had been treated differently, urged caution in defining local non-profit groups.

Banks Drop Prime Rate

NEW YORK (AP) — Major banks across the nation today cut their prime lending rates by one-half percentage point to 18 percent, the lowest level since Dec. 2.

Citibank, the nation's second-largest commercial bank, led the move by trimming its prime rate from the 18.5 percent level that had prevailed nationwide.

Other banks, large and small, were quick to follow, including No. 1 Bank of America in San Francisco.

The rate reductions were spurred by lagging demand for business loans and declines in banks' cost of acquiring funds.

Business loans on the books of the nation's leading banks fell $296 million in the latest reporting week. That was the third consecutive weekly decline and brought the total decrease in such loans since Jan. 1 to $5.1 billion, according to the Federal Reserve Board.

Banks' cost of attracting and holding consumer deposits also has dropped. On Monday the government reported a sharp decline in the interest rate on 26-week Treasury bills sold at its weekly auction. As a result, the maximum rate on six-month money-market certificates sold by banks and savings institutions will fall to 13.677 percent on Thursday from the current rate of 14.383 percent.

Another new cutback is a proposal to save more than $100 million a year by eliminating the $255 Social Security burial benefits if there is no survivor to collect it, officials said.

East Forced To Conserve Water

parked outside, waiting in case the tap ran dry. The fire department mapped plans to draw salt water from Long Island Sound to keep the city from going up in smoke.

The February rains forestalled doomsday, for at least four months, but officials worried about the approaching summer. The question was whether there would be enough water even if the present reservoirs were full.

Why did this city with numerous nearby rivers and streams and an underground aquifer almost run out of water? A study group appointed by First Selectwoman Ruth Sims puts much of the blame on the private water company that supplies the area for failing to increase its storage capacity.

"The town was living at the breaking points," said the group's chairman, John R. Raben Jr. of Greenwich, a vice president of the First Boston Corp. "As soon as we hit a dry period there was going to be a problem."

The Connecticut-American Water Co., which has four reservoirs with a total capacity of 3.6 billion gallons to serve Greenwich and the neighboring towns of Port Chester and Rye, N.Y., blames Mother Nature.

"We would not agree that our supply has not kept pace with demands," said John Murzycki, a spokesman for Connecticut-American.

Whatever the cause of the shortage, the residents of Greenwich responded. Water consumption dropped about 25 percent within days.

"It's scary as hell when they tell you the tap is going to run dry," said Paul Tillman, a salesman. "You don't mind missing a shower now and then."

A dirty car became a status symbol. Children scolded their fathers for letting the water run while they shave. Neighbors called police when one woman started filling her 2,000-gallon hot tub. With families told to allow only one toilet flush per day per person, a four-flusher was likely to be run out of town.

The Greenwich Time, the local newspaper, called five people a day at random out of the telephone directory to ask what they were doing to conserve water. In three weeks, only one person said he was not doing anything.

Some of the more affluent, who maintain residences in Manhattan as well as Greenwich, had a choice of which city's water to use for washing clothes and themselves.

"We've begun using our apartment in New York more often," said Mrs. John Leshner.

But more typical is Mrs. Paul Lindemeyer, who lives in the Riverside section. She said her three children take baths together and the water is used to flush the toilets.

"I made my husband go over and fill buckets of snow to melt for my humidifier," said Elizabeth Coughlin.

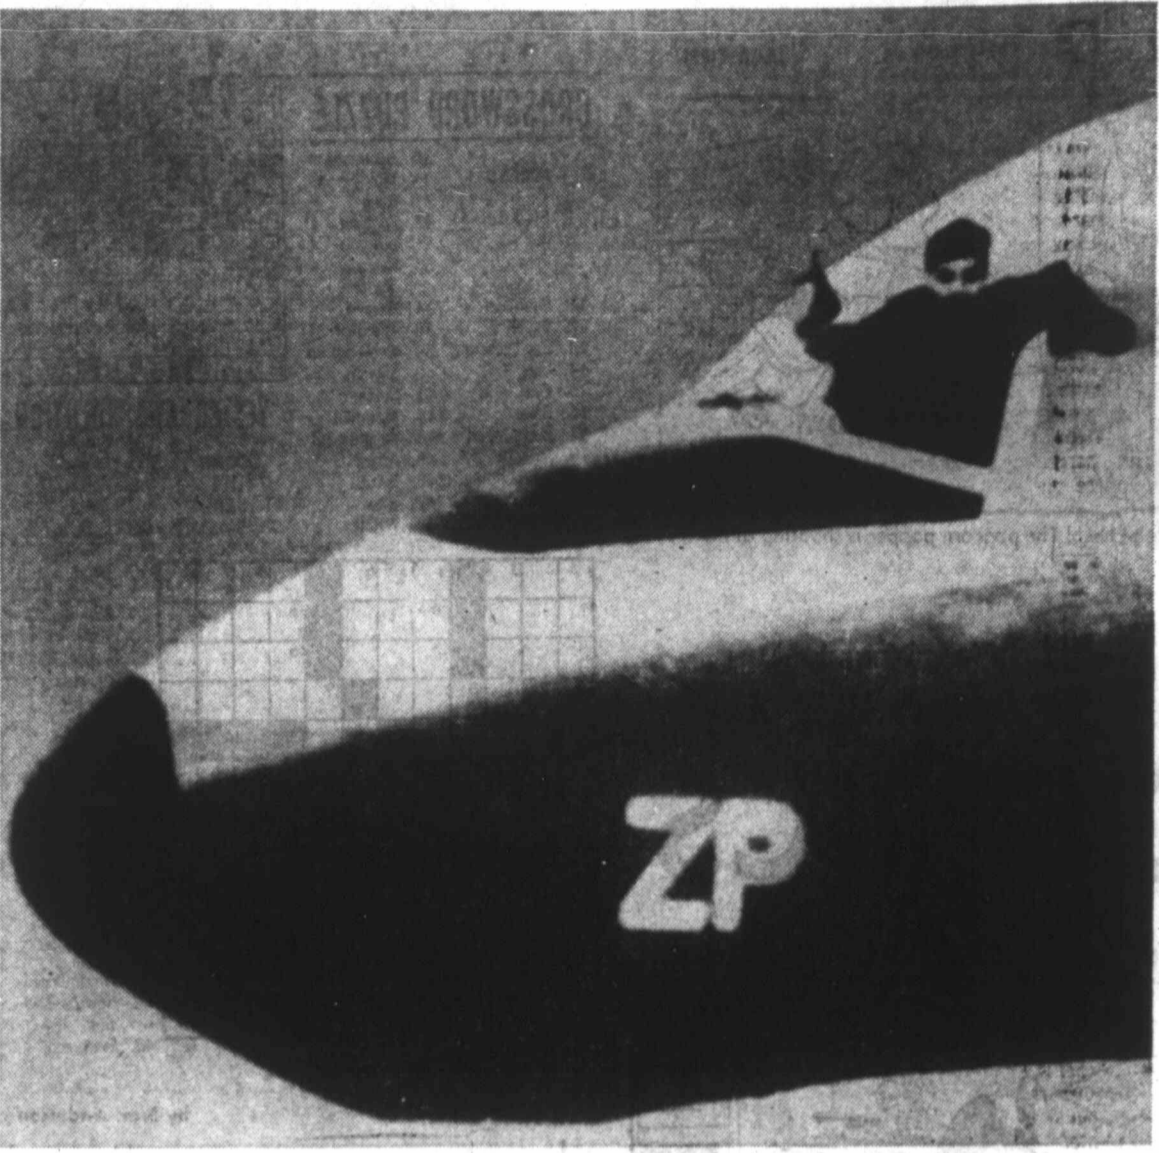

Elaine de Beauport, who teaches weekend courses in "multidimensional learning" in a frame house near the center of town, says her out-of-town students help keep the hot tub full by bringing with them five-gallon jugs of water.

One resident of the Byram neighborhood said that when it rained one day, "I took a sponge and with the rainwater I loosened all the dirt off my car."

Bernard Cohen of neighboring Stamford said, "We have closed the inlet valve to our toilet tank, thereby insuring that no water from the main city water can flow directly into the toilet tank. After each toilet flush we refill the tank by using a pot to transfer water from the bathtub."

Douglas Maroldi, vice president and general services manager of Pray Volkswagen, said that while dirty cars might be a status symbol, "You can't sell cars that aren't clean."

And with car washes that don't recycle

DEFIANT SALUTE — One of the hijackers of a Pakistani airliner waves a machine gun from the cockpit of the plane today in a remote corner of the airport at Damascus, Syria. Hijackers Set Deadline For Action By Pakistan

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Hijackers of a Pakistani airliner set a Wednesday deadline today for fulfilling their demands and the more than 100 hostages aboard the plane at Damascus airport were reported getting increasingly nervous. But a top Syrian official expressed optimism their nine-day-old ordeal "will soon be over."

Brig. Gen. Mohammed Khawli told reporters a message from the Pakistani government included "proposals" and that the three Pakistani hijackers holding the plane had also made new demands. He declined to elaborate. But in Islamabad, Pakistan, a ranking defense official said Pakistan was prepared to arrange with the hijackers a "simultaneous" release of political prisoners and hostages.

The Pakistani official, Defense Secretary-General M. Rahin Khan, said the hijackers had set a new deadline of 6 a.m., CST, Wednesday, for the release of political prisoners or they would take "drastic action."

The hijackers shot a Pakistani diplomat when the plane was in Kabul, Afghanistan, Friday.

At various times during the nine-day drama, the trio have threatened to shoot all Pakistani government officials aboard, every passenger one by one, and blow up the Boeing 720. Khan told a news conference. He said the leader of the hijackers was sometimes "wild and abusive."

During talks today, he said, the hijackers gave a list of 55 political prisoners to be freed, but Pakistani officials noted some of the names had appeared on an earlier list of 92.

Pakistan has agreed to the release of 15 of the original 92 prisoners, and the number might rise if the charges involving 32 others prove not to be serious, Khan said.

A 22-year-old flight attendant released by the hijackers Monday night, Farzana Sharif, told reporters the hostages were being treated well. But "the psychological situation of the passengers is extremely difficult," she said, "especially since they all know the hijackers will blow up the entire plane."

The hijackers, after they brought the Boeing 720 jetliner from Kabul, Afghanistan, to the Damascus airport early Monday, made new demands for the release of imprisoned opponents of Pakistani

The demands were radioed to Pakistan.

Truckloads of Syrian troops armed with automatic rifles moved into the airport Monday night and took up positions around the airliner. Zia was reported to have given the Syrians a free hand in dealing with the hijackers, but there was no evidence of preparations to rush the plane.

Syrian officials maintained radio contact with the green-and-white airliner parked on an auxiliary runway about half a mile from the control tower of the busy airport. Apparently trying to keep tension down, they advised the hijackers in advance when the guard was changed or when there was to be other movement around the plane.

The airliner was hijacked by three young armed men Sunday, March 1, during a domestic flight from Karachi to Peshawar and diverted to the Afghan capital.

During seven days of negotiations in Kabul, the hijackers threatened to shoot the passengers one-by-one and to blow up the plane. They released 29 hostages Thursday, killed a Pakistani diplomat who was among the passengers on Friday and free four more people Saturday.

The Pakistani government broke off the negotiations Sunday.

U.S. Indicates Delay On Summit Session

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department said today a Soviet-American summit could not likely be held before late summer, and would require careful preparation and consultation with U.S. allies.

Spokesman William Dyess said it is a "reasonable assumption" a U.S.-Soviet summit would not take place before the annual Western economic summit, scheduled in Ottawa July 21-22.

The Soviets have been pressing for an early encounter between President Reagan and President Leonid Brezhnev, and repeated their proposal in a letter received by the State Department last Friday.

Dyess said the U.S. government is now reviewing that letter and no decision has been made on timing for the meeting.

"We don't want to go until we and our allies have had a chance to discuss what we want to achieve," Dyess said. "We are opposed to having summit meetings for summits' sake."

The wording of administration officials suggested they agree in principle to the idea, but the timing is still far from settled.

Dyess said the United States will continue to watch Soviet behavior around the world as one of the considerations going into the preparation of a summit meeting.

"For example, a Soviet withdrawal from Afghanistan would make the decision easier," he said, but added the administration was not making such a withdrawal a condition for a U.S.-Soviet high-level meeting.

Transplant Patient To Be Taken Off Respirator

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — A 45-year-old woman who is the world's only surviving heart-lung transplant recipient was facing a critical hurdle today as doctors prepared to let the organs function on their own.

Mary Gohlke of Mesa, Ariz., must be "weaned" from a respirator used to as-ist the new lungs after her surgery Monday at Stanford University Medical Center, a spokeswoman said.

Mrs. Gohlke, who was conscious after the four-hour operation, was in stable but critical condition, as expected, according to Lora Hofstadter.

Mrs. Gohlke, who received the organs of an anonymous donor, suffered from pulmonary hypertension, a lung disease that can damage the heart. Less radical treatment had failed.

Three heart-lung transplants were performed between 1968 and 1971, including two in the United States. One person lived 23 days, another eight days and one lived 14 hours. None of those operations was performed at Stanford.

Dr. Bruce Reitz, who led the surgery team, said Mrs. Gohlke is given better chances of survival because of a new drug, cyclosporin-A.

The drug is used to overcome two problems that beset other patients — the slow and imperfect healing of the windpipe and life-threatening infections, Reitz said.

Tests with the drug on monkeys over the past several years have been encouraging, according to Reitz. He said three of seven monkeys receiving new hearts and lungs survived more than 140 days after surgery, including two that remain alive after 14 months and 15 months.

Mrs. Gohlke, mother of two teenagers, is advertising director of the Mesa Tribune.

In an interview 10 days ago with a

Stanford public information officer, she said, "We would still be in the trees eating bananas if we didn't try things."

"We've got to try, not just sit on our hands. If I die, I want to leave my family with at least the thought that Mom tried," she said.

The Stanford surgeons say they hope to perform three or four combined transplants a year. Miss Hofstadter said no definite candidates are awaiting the procedure.

Reitz said 20 heart transplants were performed at the center last year.

West Germany's Cuts Concern Weinberger

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger says he is concerned about West German cutbacks in defense spending and will raise the issue this evening during a meeting with that country's foreign minister, Hans-Dietrich Genscher.

The meeting will end two days of discussions between Genscher and American officials on allied policy toward the Soviet Union and other issues.

Weinberger told a Senate subcommittee Monday that he will ask Genscher about Saturday's announcement in Bonn that West Germany will cancel or postpone some aspects of its military modernization program because of economic difficulties.

At a White House news conference Monday, Genscher said the cutbacks will not prevent West Germany from meeting its military obligations.

Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., who spent several hours with Genscher, declined to criticize the West German cutbacks.

Haig said the German-American relationship is sound and that the two countries share views which are either identical or differ only marginally.

Genscher agreed, but officials say privately the West Germans apparently would prefer a somewhat less confrontational American policy toward the Soviets.

As the authors of the detente concept a decade ago and as the NATO country perhaps most vulnerable to attack from the East, the West Germans become apprehensive during periods of superpower hostility.

Thus, officials say, the Bonn government has fewer reservations about such ideas as a U.S.-Soviet summit and superpower talks aimed at limiting nuclear weapons in Europe.

In his remarks Monday, Genscher called for a resumption of arms limitation talks "without delay." In response, Haig said the United States is ready to "proceed rapidly" toward reopening the negotiations.

It remained unclear, however, whether Haig's statement was a goodwill gesture toward his guest or an expression of serious intent.

U.S. officials conceded an agreement with the Soviets governing nuclear arms in Europe might be feasible if the two superpowers had equivalent nuclear armaments.

TESTIFIES ON DRUG REFORM — Actor Jack Klugman testifies Monday in Washington before a House subcommittee which is holding hearings on drug reform. Klugman plays the role of a crusading medical examiner on the NBC show "Quincy." The show regularly speaks out on issues of public health. (AP Laserphoto)

Aguirre Leads AP, UPI All-Americans

A-J News Services
 Mark Aguirre, the man many consider the best in college basketball, "skyrocketed us into the national limelight," DePaul coach Ray Meyer says. The junior forward also has launched himself toward superstardom.
 Aguirre was named Monday to The Associated Press' first-team All-America squad for the second season in a row, the only repeater from 1979-80.
 "He's worked harder this year and is no longer just a scoring machine," Meyer said. "His defense has gotten better as well as his rebounding, and he's given out more assists this year, I think, than in his first two years combined."
 In addition to his scoring average of 23.5, Aguirre handed out 130 assists, actually 33 shy of his combined freshman and sophomore totals but an astounding

 Joining the 6-foot-7 Aguirre on the first team were Ralph Sampson, a 7-4 sophomore center from Virginia; 6-8 junior Kevin Magee of California-Irvine; 6-5 senior guard Danny Ainge of Brigham Young, and 6-1 sophomore Isiah Thomas of Indiana.
 Members of the second team were 6-6 senior Al Wood of North Carolina; 6-7 senior Danny Vranes, Utah; 6-10 1/2 senior Steve Johnson, Oregon State; 6-3 junior Eric Floyd, Georgetown, and 6-2 senior Darnell Valentine, Kansas. Lewis Lloyd of Drake, Jay Vincent of Michigan State, Sam Bowie of Kentucky, Jeff Lamp of Virginia and Rob Williams of Houston were named to the third team.
 The United Press International All-America squad also was announced today. It includes Aguirre, Ainge, Sampson, Thomas and Notre Dame forward Kelly Tripucka.
 Voted to the second team were Lamp, Johnson, Rod Foster of UCLA, Durand Macklin of Louisiana State, and Albert King, Maryland.
 Ainge is the all-time scoring leader for Brigham Young and the Western Athletic Conference. He averaged more than 25 points a game, including a 35-point performance in an upset of Utah in his final regular-season game.
 The 6-foot-5 senior from Eugene, Ore., led BYU for four straight years in scoring, assists and steals. He set an NCAA career record this season for most consecutive games with at least 10 or more points (108).
 "Danny is the most complete, versatile collegiate guard I've ever worked with in 25 years of coaching," said BYU coach Frank Arnold.

 Ainge, however, is not headed for the NBA. An infielder with good speed and promise, he has signed a three-year contract for $500,000 with Toronto of the American League. He has spent the last two years alternating between the Blue Jays and Syracuse of the International League.
 "It's an honor to be named to an All-America team," Ainge said. "But it's something a player needs help from his teammates to earn. So it's also an honor for the rest of the team and the school."
 Those receiving honorable mention UPI were: Terry Adolph, West Texas State; John Bagley, Boston College; Rolando Blackman, Kansas State; Charles Bradley, Wyoming; Eric Floyd, Georgetown; Zam Fredrick, South Carolina; Frank Johnson, Wake Forest; Kevin Magee, Cal-Irvine; Mark Radford, Oregon State; Cory Thompson, Connecticut; Darnell Valentine, Kansas; Jay Vincent, Michigan State; Dominique Wilkins, Georgia; Rob Williams, Houston; Al Wood, North Carolina; Orlando Woolridge, Notre Dame.

 Meyer said Aguirre's participation on the 1980 U.S. Olympic team had changed him.
 "He's really improved," Meyer said. "In his freshman and sophomore years, it was hard getting him to practice because nobody could guard him. He was bored and never felt challenged.

 "I think playing on the Olympic team helped because he was challenged every day in practice there, and that brought about a great change in his game," Meyer said.
 Besides scoring and assisting, Aguirre grabbed 248 rebounds in 28 games with DePaul for an average of 8.9, and his presence has helped make the Blue Demons an NCAA pre-tournament favorite in addition to being ranked No. 1 in both wire service polls.
 Although he tailed off at the end of the season, Sampson averaged 18.4 points and 11.8 rebounds per game for Virginia. He blocked 92 shots, and even that figure is not entirely indicative of his ability to intimidate.

 Magee came from practically nowhere to compile one of the most statistically impressive seasons of any player in the country. His scoring average of 27.5 was third in the nation. His field goal percentage of 67.1 was second. His rebound average of 12.5 was fifth.
 A transfer from Saddleback Junior College in Mission Viejo, Calif., out of the steel mills of Magnolia, N.C., Magee is considered a top pro prospect by many scouts.
 "It was a surprise, a big thing," Magee said. "I figured I'd make the second or third team being from a small school, but I guess all the exposure I got gave me a boost."

Reeves Joins Broncos In Wake Of Miller Firing

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Cowboys' head coach Tom Landry was without an offensive coordinator today, but he says he's "delighted" that Dan Reeves is going to become head coach of the Denver Broncos of the National Football League.
 "I think it's tremendous that he could have a team like Denver," Landry said in a telephone interview Monday night from his Dallas home, adding that not many coaches got the chance to go to a "winning team."
 "We're delighted that he has the opportunity to become a head coach."
 Reeves, 37, was named to the Denver head-coaching spot Monday after it was announced that former Denver coach Red Miller and general manager Fred Gherke had been fired. The announcement was to be made formally at a news conference in Denver today.

 Landry said that Reeves, a former Cowboys' running back, who signed on as a coach with Dallas in 1972, "is well-grounded in what it takes to be a successful head coach."
 "He's always gotten along well with the players," Landry said. "...he's capable and very intelligent."
 The long-time Landry assistant was in Denver at the time the announcement was made and could not be reached for comment.
 His career with the Cowboys was cut short after eight seasons by extensive knee surgery. He is the fifth all-time leading Cowboys' rusher and was inducted into the University of South Carolina Hall of Fame three years ago.

Reeves' departure won't scramble the Dallas offensive picture, the coach said. "He's been a contributor to our staff and we'll have a void there for a while," Landry said.
 The Cowboys were "not gonna be in a big hurry" to fill the post Reeves vacated, Landry said.
 "He was our offensive coordinator with quarterbacks and the passing game," Landry said, adding he had "no idea" who Reeves' successor would be.
 Reeves has long made it known that he was seeking a head-coaching job, and turned down at least one offer to take the head job with the Atlanta Falcons.
 In another development, the Broncos replaced Gehrke with Grady Alderman, 43, director of planning and development for the Minnesota Vikings, said Mike Lynn, vice president of the Vikings.
 Gehrke said he was surprised by the action, taken just 12 days after the team was sold to Edgar Kaiser Jr. of Vancouver, British Columbia.
 "Red has been a good coach. I hired him. It's all a surprise," Gehrke said.
 Asked if he felt bitter, Gehrke, 62, said, "No, no way." He said he may retire from professional sports and devote himself to playing golf.
 Miller spent the evening removing his personal belongings from his office. From a second-story window, he told a group of newsmen assembled outside the Bronco offices that he was "unavailable" for comment.

 "I treated you guys good, now you can treat me good ... I have nothing to say, nothing, nothing," Miller said.
 Miller's firing was the first major change to take place since the team was sold Feb. 25 by Gerald Phipps of Denver. The new owner, 38-year-old Kaiser, is chairman and chief executive officer of Kaiser Resources Ltd. of Vancouver and Kaiser Oil, U.S. Ltd., a Denver-based oil and gas exploration company.
 No sale price was announced, but sources indicated it was in excess of $30 million.
 Miller, 53, has coached the Broncos for the past four seasons. A former offensive coordinator for the New England Patriots, Miller succeeded John Ralston as the team's head coach in February 1977.
 The following season, Miller led the Broncos to the Super Bowl in New Orleans after the team posted its best regular-season record ever, 12-2. At Super Bowl XII, the team bowed to the Dallas Cowboys, 27-10.
 In 1980, the Broncos had their worst finish in Miller's four years as head coach. At 8-8, the team tied with Kansas City for third place in the American Conference Western Division. But the Chiefs' two victories over Denver gave Kansas City third place, and the Broncos dropped to fourth place for scheduling purposes.

Coronado Conquers Big Spring

Coronado survived three errors in the final two innings and used a three-base Big Spring error in the top of the seventh to down the Steers 6-4 Monday on a wind-swept Lowrey Field diamond.
 Miscues by Mustang catcher Jay Lindstrom, first baseman Allen Harp and shortstop Don Ewing allowed Big Spring to tie the game at 4-4 in the top of the sixth inning and put three runners on base in the final two frames.
 But pinch-hitter Dean Jackson ignited a sixth-inning Coronado rally with a lead-off double over the glove of rightfielder Dickey Wrightsil. Jerry Foster drew a walk and Lindstrom made up for his throwing error with a perfect sacrifice bunt, moving the runners to second and third.
 Ewing smashed a Moe Rubio fastball to deep centerfield and, when it bounced off Mark Warren's glove, Jackson and Foster scampered home and Ewing wound up on third.

 Richardson went the distance for the victory, scattering six hits while striking out two and walking one. Rubio took the loss for Big Spring, giving up only four hits but walking six while fighting five errors behind him.
 Coronado, now 4-1, has won four consecutive games including three and the championship in the Roswell (N.M.) tournament last weekend.
 Coronado will be one of four city squads resuming action today. The Mustangs travel to Midland for a 4 p.m. contest with Midland High.
 Monterey, which defeated Midland 9-0 and 18-2 Saturday, is the only team playing at home today when it hosts Midland Lee at 4 p.m. at Lowrey Field.

Lubbock High will travel to Brownfield while Dunbar will be in Andrews in other action. Estacado is idle today but will be back in action Thursday on the road against Odessa Ector.
 The Plainsmen enter today's single contest with a perfect 4-0 record. They defeated Lee last Friday in Midland 7-4.
 Monterey and Lubbock High have rescheduled games which were rained out last week for Wednesday. The Plainsmen will host Big Spring at Lowrey Field at 4 p.m., and the Westerners will travel to Amarillo for a 4 p.m. game with Palo Duro.

Ethridges Gain All-State Spots

AUSTIN (AP) — High-scoring sisters and cousins claimed 10 of the 52 places Monday on the girls' high school basketball all-tournament teams.
 The Class 5A all-star team included Kamie Ethridge, a 5-foot-5 junior guard from Monterey who led all scorers with 63 points in two games, and her sister, Kriss, a 5-5 senior, who tallied 28 points.
 Duncanville, a 72-71 loser to Monterey in the 5A finals, placed Cathy Nixon, a 14-year-old freshman, and Kay Murphy on the team. The fifth selection was Sherry Markert of San Antonio Lee.
 It was the second year in a row for Kamie Ethridge to make the all-tournament team. She, sister Kriss and Miss Nixon were unanimous choices this year.
 Nazareth, which won an unprecedented fifth straight championship by burying Colmesneil 83-49, dominated the Class 1A all-tournament team with cousins Lori and Sharon Gerber getting the votes of all sports writer and broadcaster covering the tourney.
 Lori also made the all-tournament team in 1979, and Sharon was an all-star in 1980.
 Cousins Sharon and Roxanne Birkenfeld of Nazareth also made this year's team along with Gloria Spann of Colmesneil. Roxanne was a 1980 all-tournament selection.

Teri Mayfield of Canyon, the second-leading tournament scorer with 55 points, and Annette Smith of Bay City were unanimous selections in Class 4A. Annette's sister, Audrey, also made the team, which was completed with the selection of Terri Baughman and Carla Schmidt of Canyon and Danielle Wright of Dallas Madison. Miss Schmidt and Miss Wright tied for the fifth spot on the 4A squad.
 Unanimous choices Ramona Irbech of Abernathy and Millie Bivens of Sweeny headed the Class 3A team, which included Darla McGuire of Abernathy, Cheryl Chambers of Brownsboro and Tracy Turner of Kountze.
 Charlotte Reescano and her cousin, Laurie Reescano, of Hardin made the 2A all-tournament team, along with Vickie Teal of New Deal, Lee Ann Galbreath of Sanger and Nancy Toran of Hardin and Sherri Skidmore of Grapeland, who tied for the fifth spot.
 Laurie Reescano was a repeat choice from 1980. Charlotte Reescano, the leading rebounder in the tournament with 35, and Miss Teal were unanimous selections.
 Canyon, Abernathy and Hardin joined Monterey and Nazareth as 1981 champions. Canyon whipped Bay City 64-53; Abernathy rallied to defeat Sweeny 61-59; and Hardin turned back New Deal 61-46.

Lubbock Pony League & Lubbock Colt League are conducting player sign-ups simultaneously. Pony baseball is for 13 & 14 year olds born between August 1, 1966 & July 31, 1968. Colt baseball is for 15 & 16 year olds born between August 1, 1964 & July 31, 1966.
 The Pony League is the natural growth and progression of a boy in his baseball development. He starts as a PeeWee player, then moves to Major-Minor League level, and then to Pony League and finally on to Colt League and beyond. At each step he moves to a little larger playing field that is suited to his running, hitting, and most importantly, his throwing ability.
 The Pony League's 80 foot base paths and 34 foot pitching distance are ideally suited to the 13 & 14 year old physical and playing ability.
 Following his two years in the Pony League Program, a boy will be well prepared to move to the regulation baseball diamond when he is 15 years old and eligible to play Colt baseball. The Pony League Board recommends participation by 15 year olds in the Colt Program.
 The Pony League has been in Lubbock for many years and is an established respected and competitive baseball league. Most of the outstanding high school baseball players in this city have come through this program.
 Here are a couple of quotes about the Pony League in Lubbock.
 "I believe a transitional league, like Lubbock Pony League, which provides 80 foot base paths and competition for junior high ball players with an age difference of only one year, is a highly beneficial program serving Lubbock's 7th and 8th graders."
 Bobby Moegle
 Monterey High School Baseball Coach
 Winner of the Texas High School Baseball Coach of the Year Award
 "Speaking as a baseball coach, I like the age structure of Pony League (13 and 14 year olds) because I believe it provides the most equitable competitive arrangements for those ages. I believe that the majority of youngsters at that age can perform better on an intermediate size diamond than a full size diamond."

DePaul Replaces Beavers In AP's Top Position

By The Associated Press
DePaul, riding a 14-game winning streak, regained the No. 1 position in the final Associated Press college basketball poll for the 1980-81 season today as Oregon State, knocked from the unbeaten ranks by Arizona State last weekend, slipped to No. 2.

The Blue Demons, who held the top slot for six weeks early in the season, collected 55 of 61 first-place votes and 1,214 points of a possible 1,220 in the balloting by a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

DePaul, 27-1 and ranked second a week ago, defeated Dayton 84-64 and then No. 6 Notre Dame 74-64 in games last week. Ray Meyer's team has lost only to Old Dominion this season.

Oregon State, which had held the No. 1 position the previous two weeks, collected five first-place votes and 1,132 points in easily outdistancing Pac-10 rival Arizona State for the No. 2 position. The Sun Devils, who were ranked fifth when they whipped the Beavers 87-67 last Saturday, got 1,073 points.

The other first-place vote went to defending national champion Louisville, which is ranked 12th this week. The Cardinals, who were 2-7 at one point this season, share the nation's current longest winning streak at 15 with Virginia Commonwealth.

Louisiana State and Virginia both fell a notch after being upset in post-season tournament play and held the No. 4 and 5 positions, respectively. The Tigers, who were surprised by Georgia 68-60 in the semifinals of Southeastern Conference tournament, got 1,073 points, while the Cavaliers, ambushed by Maryland in semifinals of the Atlantic Coast Conference event, received 929 points.

North Carolina, the eventual winner of the ACC tournament, jumped six points and grabbed the No. 6 slot with 806 points.

Notre Dame and Kentucky, ranked seventh last week, also lost ground in the poll. The Irish fell one spot to No. 7 with 784 points, while the Wildcats, upset by Vanderbilt in the SEC tournament, were eighth with 734.

Indiana, which claimed the Big Ten Conference title last weekend, jumped five places and took over the No. 9 slot with 638 points. UCLA, No. 13 last week, rounded out the Top 10 with 577 points.

Eight members of last week's Top 10 were upset during the week and 12 of the Top 20 went down to defeat at least once. Wake Forest, beaten by North Carolina in the ACC semifinals, remained in the No. 11 position, followed by Louisville. Iowa and Utah, ranked eighth and ninth last week but victims of the upset epidemic, occupied the 13th and 14th places. Tennessee, Brigham Young, Wyoming, Maryland, Illinois and Arkansas rounded out the Second 10.

Last week the Second 10 was Wake Forest, North Carolina, UCLA, Indiana, Arkansas, Illinois, Louisville, Brigham Young, Wyoming and Maryland.

Aide Maskill Defends Himself, Contradicts Kush

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Former Arizona State University football coach Bill Maskill said in a 1980 deposition that he "had no dislike" for ex-Sun Devil punter-free safety Kevin Rutledge and did not harass him as alleged.

Rutledge, who now attends the University of Nevada-Las Vegas, is suing former Arizona State football coach Frank Kush and others — claiming Kush punched him in the mouth after a 26-yard punt in a 1978 game.

Rutledge also alleges Kush and Maskill harassed him into quitting the team in 1979 and forfeiting his scholarship. Kush has denied both charges.

Monday marked the start of the trial's sixth week.

With lawyers for the defense reading portions of Maskill's Oct. 3, 1980, deposition to the Maricopa County Superior Court jury, Maskill said in it that Rutledge refused his direction.

"Kevin would not participate in my drills, wouldn't come to my (defensive back) meetings and would not do what I told him to do," Maskill said. "Several times I asked him to do things and he responded in a negative fashion."

"He just wouldn't do them. But I had no dislike for Kevin Rutledge. I didn't have any negative feelings toward him."

Rutledge has previously testified that Maskill "told me not to bother coming to meetings because you're not going to play anyway."

He said he was berated by Kush in training camp in 1978 for tackling a player at Maskill's instructions.

Maskill said he didn't recall the incident.

But Maskill did remember Rutledge asking to be redshirted before the start of the '78 season — a fact Kush has denied in testimony.

"I told Kevin I didn't make those decisions and he'd have to talk to coach Kush about it," Maskill's deposition said. "I told coach Kush about it and he said he'd take care of it."

Kush previously told the court "we never thought about redshirting Rutledge" because "he was our No. 1 punter."

Earlier Monday, senior-to-be Sun Devil quarterback Steve Bratkowski said Rutledge and his father decided to take legal action against Kush within a week after the alleged punching incident during Arizona State's 41-7 loss to Washington Oct. 28, 1978, in Seattle.

Bratkowski also told the court that university sports booster Rick Lynch told him he "had Kush" and "to keep my mouth shut or I'd be in trouble when coach Kush was gone."

As Rutledge's roommate in 1978, Bratkowski said he overheard a telephone conversation between Rutledge and his father, Gordon, concerning pending litigation "the first part of the following week" after the Washington game.

"I heard a piece of the conversation and I asked Kevin about it when he hung up," Bratkowski told the court. "He said they were going to sue or bring some action against coach Kush."

Bratkowski said he thought the suit was aimed at a newspaper article quoting Kush as saying "that kid (Kevin Rutledge) will never kick another ball for ASU" after "a sorry effort" in the Washington game.

"Kevin told me he was going to take action for defamation of name. I never saw the article," said Bratkowski. "About a week after that, he told me coach Kush had punched him."

After the Rutledge lawsuit became public in September 1979, Bratkowski said Lynch "called me to say the cavalry is on the hill."

Kush has said Lynch "orchestrated a conspiracy to get me fired" by "stirring things up with the players."

At the request of Arizona State's then-football recruiting coordinator, Gary Horton, Bratkowski said he filled out two statements on Rutledge's character. Bratkowski said the first statement was rejected by Horton because "it wasn't what he wanted."

"All I said was that Kevin was a shy, sensitive guy. I said coach Kush was a disciplinary-type coach who did a lot of yelling and used verbal abuse," Bratkowski told the court. "I said Kevin might have taken a lot of things personally that weren't intended to be personal."

Also Monday, former Arizona State assistant coach Don Baker's Nov. 6, 1979 deposition revealed that Kush instructed his aides "to show loyalty to me" and lie if necessary to retain their jobs.

Baker said in his deposition that Kush gathered his coaches for an emergency meeting sometime in early September 1979 when Rutledge's lawsuit first became public.

"He said, 'You guys have to be loyal to me,'" Baker said. "There were pressures and he said we had to get together if we were to survive as a staff. We were asked to close down, show loyalty, support coach Kush and lie if we had to. After that, I didn't listen anymore."

After Lynch was instrumental in getting then-Sun Devil linebacker Gary Bouck to come forward and be quoted anonymously in the campus newspaper Oct. 9, 1979, Baker said Kush called Lynch a derogatory name and said that "you can't trust him."

"I know Frank didn't like Rick Lynch. I didn't know if it was the other way around," Baker said.

Baker also said that Kush's attorney at the time, Harry Cavanaugh, was trying to tell the Arizona State players that there was no incident in the Washington game "because it was not reported in the papers and no one has said they witnessed it."

In October 1979, Baker said he filled out a card at the request of then-university athletic director Dr. Fred Miller.

"The only written statement that I made was on that card — saying that I didn't see it (the alleged punch)," Baker said.

Reds' Foster Advertises Future Demands

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — George Foster wants to be the highest-paid player in baseball when he negotiates another contract with the Cincinnati Reds.

The 32-year-old outfielder said the largest salary in baseball will be his starting point when he opens contract talks for the 1983 season.

"The minimum (demand) would be what the highest is when I'm negotiating," Foster said Monday.

Foster said he deserves more than any other player because of his consistency in batting average and run production. He has averaged more runs batted in over the last five seasons than anyone else, and is second only to Philadelphia's Mike Schmidt in average home runs per season.

"There are guys who are able to hit for power or average," Foster said. "I've been able to combine them."

Foster noted that Schmidt and the New York Yankees' Reggie Jackson will negotiate new contracts before his expires. He declined to compare himself individually with other players, but said, "I feel I stand alone."

"I put myself in a different class," Foster said. "I'm not saying that I'm head and shoulders above everyone else, but I've compiled statistics that nobody else in modern-day baseball has done."

Foster led the National League in runs batted in for three consecutive years, 1976 through 1978, and topped the league in home runs in 1977 and 1978 with 52 and 40, respectively.

Foster, making a reported $700,000 a year on his current contract, said baseball players' salaries are a matter of simple economics — when a player is in demand, the salary offers tend to increase.

The power hitter said it is "hard to say," whether ball players are worth the money they make. However, he said the club owners don't have to offer large salaries.

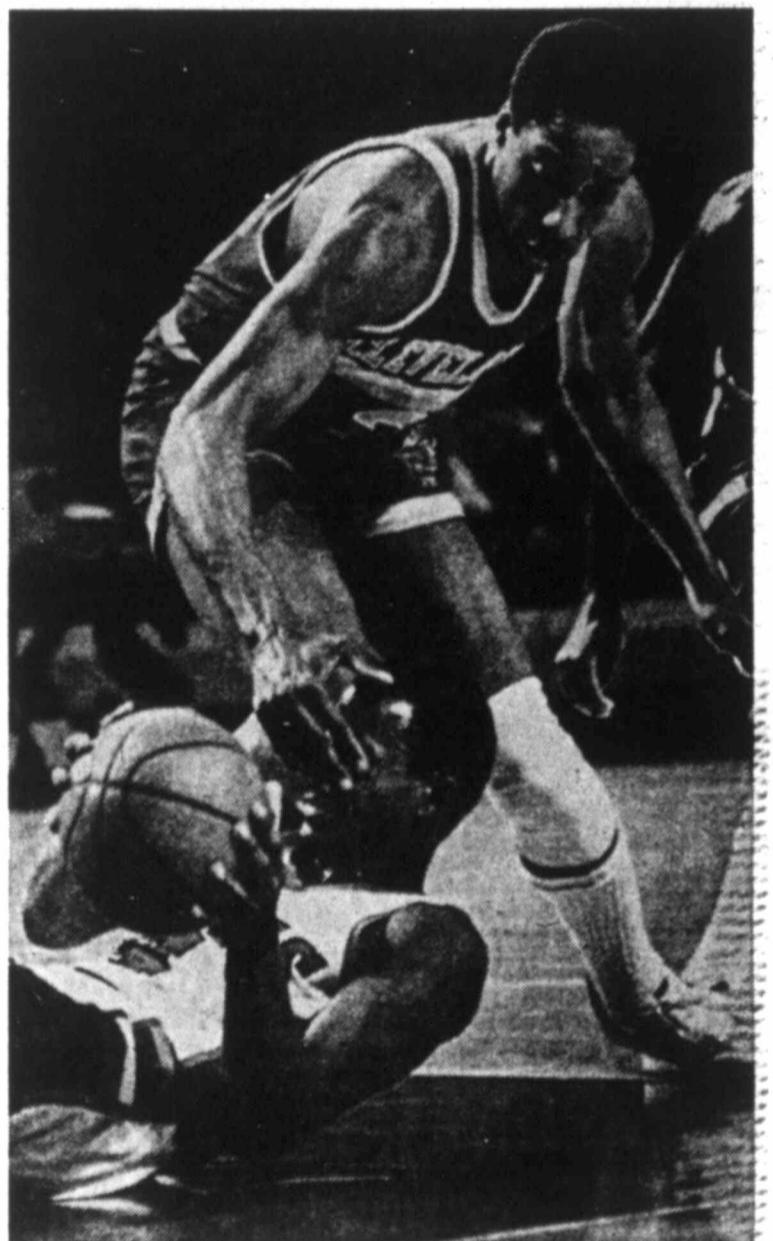

"While they are paying them, why should we refuse?" he said. "We are not holding them at gunpoint, forcing them to give us the money."

Foster signed with a Cincinnati public relations firm last year to promote his image and help secure endorsements. Previously, he was represented by a public relations group in California.

The deeply religious outfielder said he wanted "to get better known and let people know what I'm doing" in order to advance his work with youngsters. Foster is involved with numerous community activities, including a halfway house for youths in Dayton, Ohio.

Foster said he went to a public relations agency because the Reds promote "certain people that they feel they are able to sell to people."

"If the team is not going to promote you, you have to go out and promote yourself," he said.

Hearns, Shields Ready To Sign

PHOENIX (AP) — Thomas Hearns, World Boxing Association welterweight champion, will defend his title here April 25 against Randy Shields, the Arizona Republic said today.

Phoenix promoter Steve Eisner said Bob Arum, head of Top Rank Inc., talked to him Monday about helping to promote the fight.

Rick Bjorklund, manager of the Veterans Memorial Coliseum, said Top Rank has a hold on the building for April 25, although contracts for that date have not been signed.

Arum said a news conference was planned for Thursday in Phoenix "to announce a very big fight ... will be a world title fight."

Contracts for the Hearns-Shields fight were signed late last week.

Hearns, 30-0 with 28 knockouts, won the title Aug. 2 when he knocked out Jose "Pipino" Cuevas in the second round. Cuevas had held the title since July 1976. In Hearns' first title defense, he knocked out Luis Primera of Venezuela in six rounds Dec. 6. Hearns, 22, started his pro career in November 1977.

Shields is 37-6-1 with 19 knockouts. He lost a controversial split decision to Cuevas in a title fight in July 1979 in Chicago. In his last fight, Shields knocked out Louis Mateo in four rounds Aug. 14.

Shields is ranked fifth in Ring Magazine's welterweight international ratings behind Hearns, Wilfred Benitez, Cuevas and Roberto Duran.

Classes Recess As Chaps, Raiders Divide Pair

By ERIC GALE

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
Texas Tech enrolled Lubbock Christian College in the school of hard knocks during a 9-5 victory in the first game of a double-header Monday at Chaparral Stadium.

The Red Raiders, however, were enrolled in umpire's school in the second game, which was won by LCC 6-5 with the aid of two runs on five walks during the Chaps' final at-bat in the seventh inning.

Hard knocks, hard feelings.

"It's hard to forget that second game," Tech coach Kal Segrist said. "We felt like we were hurt by a number of questionable calls. Our pitchers (Matt Dean and Robert Bryant) threw at least 10 strikes that were called balls in that last inning. I don't ever like to get beat, but I really hate to lose on questionable calls at any time."

LCC trailed 5-4 entering the final inning of the second game. Dean walked four consecutive Chaps to tie the score, then gave way to Bryant, who retired Jeff Craig on a force at the plate for the inning's second out. Pinch-hitter Gary Hix proceeded to work the count to three-and-one before Bryant's next — and last — pitch was ruled high. Ball four. Chaps win.

"The last pitch of the game was right down the middle," Segrist said. "I hate to see those kind called balls."

LCC coach Larry Hays offered an explanation of the umpiring. "Umpires everywhere are going to these umpiring clinics, listening to the pro umps, and they're getting the idea to narrow the strike zone," Hays said. "It's happening on all levels, and it's messing up some pitchers."

"The incredible shrinking strike zone failed to discourage Tech's Bobby Kohler in the opening game. He stretched pitches by Bo Hargrove and Frank Davalos into conspicuously long home runs. Those blasts accounted for five of the eight runs scored by the Raiders during the crucial third and fourth innings when they overcame a 1-0 LCC lead.

Rusty Laughlin also homered for Tech, but it was Kohler who drew praise from Hays as "one of the two best hitters we've faced this year. He's a super hitter."

LCC led 4-1 entering the sixth inning of the second game, but a four-run Raider outburst promptly gave LCC its momentary 5-4 deficit.

LCC, which scored its first victory over Tech in four tries this season, is 9-12. These two teams were to meet again in a double-header at 1 p.m. today at Chaparral Stadium. Tech entered at 10-2.

"The way we've been playing, it helps anytime we win a game," Hays said. "It would've killed us — it would've killed me, I don't know about our players — if we'd have lost that second game. We've been so lousy that we're doing everything we can to turn things around."

Segrist, meanwhile, was anxious to resume the series today. "My players will certainly come back and play hard," he said. "This team comes from behind and doesn't give up. That's something we try to work on."

Veteran Catcher Fisk May Try On White Sox

CHICAGO (AP) — After almost a decade as the pride of Boston, Carlton Fisk says he's ready for a change of Sox. But Chicago White Sox owners Eddie Einhorn and Jerry Reinsdorf still are trying to get the All-Star catcher to sign on the dotted line.

Fisk appeared Monday at a news conference with White Sox officials amid speculation that a contract already had been signed. But the veteran catcher said only that he had made a decision — "a potential decision, really" — to come to Chicago.

White Sox board chairman Reinsdorf said, "I'll be very, very surprised if a contract were not executed by the end of the week."

But Fisk, asked if the deal might fall through, said, "There's always a chance. I'm actually not signed and, in actuality, I am a free agent."

White Sox until an early-morning plane flight Monday from his home near San Diego.

About joining the White Sox, Fisk said, "I think a major consideration was the city itself. That and the realization that the potential on this club is real and things are flowing in a positive direction.

"I mentioned to my parents a couple of years ago that if I ever was uprooted from New England, I'd like to go to the Midwest," said Fisk.

Asked if he were bitter toward the Red Sox management, Fisk replied: "I don't think bitter. I have a lot of fond memories of playing there. I have a lot of friends and had a good rapport with the fans and the media. But bitter — no, I'm not bitter."

However, Fisk added later that he expects a move to Chicago to spark a less-than-enthusiastic response in Boston.

"There's going to be a reaction," he said. "There's going to be a loud reaction. It's going to tug a little bit at the heart. But I can handle it."

Fisk missed much of the 1979 season because of an elbow injury, but came back last season to club 18 home runs and drive in 62 runs with 478 at bats. He batted .289, in line with his career .284 average.

"My health is great," Fisk said. "I feel as good now as I've ever felt — no problems."

Fisk said he hopes to be in the White Sox spring training camp at Sarasota, Fla., by the end of the week and added he hopes to catch as many as 130 games this season.

Fisk's Boston teammates, upon learning of the catcher's decision to join the White Sox, said in their Winter Haven, Fla., training camp they were sorry to see him go.

"We're going to miss him, mainly because we've always played together," said pitcher Bob Stanley.

Manager Ralph Houk took the matter in stride, saying, "We've been operating all spring with this in mind. As for a trade, I don't think you just go out and get a catcher. I think I'd rather go with these young catchers we have here."

Baseball agent Jerry Kapstein was meeting with White Sox lawyers beginning today to work out the final details of the contract, Fisk said. He hinted that a multi-year deal was in the works, but no other terms were disclosed.

Fisk, 33, became a free agent when the Red Sox failed to mail him a new contract before a date spelled out in his previous contract. That episode apparently soured his relations with Red Sox management, particularly executive vice president Haywood Sullivan.

"What it has come down to was a breach of contract," Fisk said. "Let me put it this way," he added. "Over the course of the last few years, I've had very, very few conversations with him (Sullivan). It doesn't take two hands to count them. In the last 3 1/2 weeks I haven't talked to Haywood Sullivan, haven't heard his voice."

In that time, though, he's heard a lot from Einhorn and Reinsdorf, who acquired the team this year from a group headed by Bill Veck. The White Sox sales pitch reached a climax last weekend with four days of intensive negotiations involving Fisk, the two owners and Sox general manager Roland Hemond.

But Fisk said he didn't reach his decision to sign with the

Baseball Player Finances Film

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Ever hear of Louis B. Mayer, Darryl Zanuck and the Warner Brothers? Another multi-millionaire has joined them. Meet Hollywood's newest young dynamic producer, a guy who said good-bye to the Big Apple for some larger bananas — Claudell Washington.

Yup, the same fellow who played the outfield for the A's, Rangers, White Sox and Mets.

Let all those other jocks get into TV. Washington is smarter. Sometimes it can get a little too crowded in the booth. As soon as he got all that money from the Atlanta Braves, he put a good chunk of it into a movie. You may have even seen it, "First Family," starring Bob Newhart and Gilda Radner.

"I haven't seen it yet, but they tell me it's doing all right," says the Braves' broad-shouldered, left-handed hitting outfielder. "Not great, but it's making money at the box office."

Washington is even beginning to talk like a movie mogul, but the Braves are a little more interested in how he's going to swing the bat for them. They paid him a lot of money on the basis of that expectancy.

He had barely gone through the re-entry draft last November after becoming a free agent with the Mets when the Braves made him an offer he couldn't refuse.

For those who like breakdowns, Washington's maximum salary this year can be as much as $815,000. His base pay is $550,000 and there are incentive bonuses of $265,000. The Braves gave him a signing bonus of $250,000 plus an interest-free loan of $250,000.

Last year, he made $15,000 with the Mets and the White Sox, with whom he split the season, hitting .289 with Chicago and .275 with New York. He says he enjoyed playing with the Mets and really didn't want to leave them but they didn't offer him as much as the Braves did.

"You couldn't expect a guy to turn down $3.5 million, could you?" he says. "Whether you think he's worth it or not. People were saying it was too much money. I was already at $3 million when I decided to go free agent. That's what the Mets were offering me. I feel I'm worth what the Braves gave me. The fact I got the money won't make me lazy, it'll just make me work harder."

The Braves are due to meet the Mets in an exhibition game on March 21 and that makes Washington feel good because he's anxious to see Joe Torre, the Mets' manager, and speak with him.

"I wanna tell Joe there's no hard feelings on my part toward him or the Mets' organization," says Washington. "What I did had nothing to do with Joe. I believe he'd have done the same thing if he had been in my position."

No one's really blaming Washington for taking the money. The one they're blaming is Ted Turner, the Braves' owner, for giving it.

In his eighth season in the majors, Washington is one of those players who has performed acceptably enough at the plate and in the field although he never turned out quite as good as many people thought he would after hitting .308 in his first full season with Oakland in 1975. He's relatively young — 26 — and what gets him is he has never been given the opportunity anywhere to play regularly the past few years.

"There's nothing wrong with me physically," he says. "I've never been a problem or a disruptive force on a ball club. I've been 100 percent healthy ... but I still don't get to play as much as I should."

If Washington does what the Braves expect, he'll have the right-field job all to himself.

"He can hit and he has good running speed," says manager Bobby Cox. "We need that. I've liked what I've seen of him so far. He seems loose and happy."

Washington has every right to be. He has bought himself a brand new home in Orinda, Calif., and in Atlanta he's going to get his chance to play regularly. And then there's that investment he has made in the movie picture business.

"I kind of like it," he says about the movies, "but I don't know how long I'll stay in it. I Like music more."

Cubs' Buckner Hungers For Trade

By The Associated Press

Never let it be said that Bill Buckner is picky. Last year's National League batting champion just wants out of Chicago, and he doesn't care much where he winds up.

Buckner is trying to renegotiate his contract with the Cubs, who say they don't do such things. While the impasse goes on, the first baseman yearns to be elsewhere — almost anywhere.

"There aren't too many," Buckner said Monday, referring to teams for which he would not play, after leading the Cubs to a 10-6 victory over the Taiyo Whales at Mesa, Ariz. "I'd just like to go somewhere else."

Buckner, who hit .324 last year, had a three-run homer and a single against the Whales, one of the Japanese teams training with major-league clubs this spring.

Another Japanese club came close to victory Monday, but not close enough. Larry Littleton drove in Von Hayes with the winning run in the bottom of the 10th inning to give the Cleveland Indians a 14-13 victory over the Hanshin Tigers at Tucson, Ariz.

Dave Winfield, baseball's richest free agent, made his first appearance in a game for the New York Yankees, playing three innings in left field and collecting a single in a 6-1 victory over the University of Florida. The Yanks also got an impressive performance from rookie pitcher Andy McGaffigan, who pitched three hitless innings and struck out six of the 10 batters he faced.

their Orlando, Fla., training camp, though. They announced the signings of outfielders Ken Landreaux, who hit .281 and drove in 62 runs last year, and Gary Ward. Ward played at Toledo of the International League last summer, hitting .282 with 13 homers and 66 RBI.

Tech Women Split With Illinois State

Dana Holloway had a single, double and triple and drove in three runs as the Texas Tech women's softball team won its season-opener Monday, downing Illinois State 11-6. Illinois State won the second game of the double-header 13-0.

Texas Tech Netters Nip Angelo State

The Texas Tech men's tennis team scrambled to a 5-4 victory Monday over Angelo State at the Tech courts.

The Raiders picked up singles victories from Mark Thompson, David Earhart and Jeff Bramlett.

NCAA Sweetens Cage Tournament Pot

MISSION, Kan. (AP) — A berth in the NCAA basketball tournament builds more than school pride — it also helps bolster the sagging finances of many athletic departments, statistics show.

The 1980 NCAA tournament promises a payday of at least $90,000 for each of the 48 schools involved and $360,000 for the Philadelphia four.

NCAA sources said Monday that participating schools would earn, conservatively, at least 10 percent more this year than they did in 1980, thanks to a $1.5 million increase in the television contract.

Last year, each team that played in the first or second round received $81,594. The 16 teams making it to the regional competition earned $203,985 while the final four earned $326,327. A 10 percent hike would mean $90,000 for the 32 casualties of this week's action, $224,000 for the 12 teams eliminated in regionals March 19-22 and nearly $360,000 for the four teams advancing to the Philadelphia playoffs March 28-30.

The income provides a financial windfall for athletic departments wracked by soaring travel costs and expenses involved in the government-mandated Title IX program, which calls for equal expenditures for men's and women's programs.

The payments represent a net profit to the schools, since all costs, including travel and per diem expenses for participants, are paid before the profits are divided. Some schools divide their earnings with other conference members while others, particularly independents, are the lone beneficiaries.

Tournament planners fretted Sunday that some deserving teams didn't make

Young Witness Says Smith Shot Uncle

A small child riding in the car with Amador Gutierrez just moments before Gutierrez was fatally shot told a jury this morning his murder defendant Byron Johnson Smith Jr. fired a single rifle shot into his uncle.

Eight-year-old Jose Hernandez, barely tall enough to see over the witness box, described to a 140th District Court jury today the moments just before Smith, 59, allegedly shot his neighbor, Gutierrez.

On cross-examination, Smith told prosecutor Travis Ware that he believed in law enforcement, but that he has called the police on several occasions and that they have never done anything about his complaints.

Astronauts Confident Of Shuttle Flight

SPACE CENTER, HOUSTON (AP) — The astronauts who will fly the first space shuttle say they have great confidence in the machine, but caution there's a good chance the mission could end early because of a system failure.

They emphasized, however, that a shortened flight would not necessarily mean a failed flight.

"If we get Columbia up and back down again and it's in shape to fly again, it will be a successful mission," astronaut Bob Crippin said Monday. "This is the most complex vehicle ever flown. The way we've designed the mission right now, we'll probably come home early," he said.

"Just about anything can break and we'll decide to go ahead and terminate it."

Crippin, a rookie astronaut, and Mission Commander John Young, a veteran of four space flights, are scheduled to take Columbia up for a 54-hour orbital test flight on April 8.

"We'll check everything from the solid fuel rockets that get us off to the potty we use in waste management," Crippin reported.

Columbia is the first of a planned fleet of four or five shuttles which will spearhead this nation's military and civil space effort for most of the remainder of this century. Each will be capable of 100 or more roundtrips into space, landing back on earth like an airplane.

But before Columbia becomes operational, it is slated to undergo four orbital test flights in the next year.

Young, Crippin and space agency officials told reporters during a series of briefings here Monday not to be surprised if there is an early return to earth.

"We've taken a very conservative approach — we're going to play it safe," said Flight Director Charles Lewis. "It's like the first test flight of a new airplane. Why push it? We can accomplish most of what we want by just getting it up and down."

Lewis said he would consider the flight a success if the launch and landing are good and the astronauts have a chance to exercise each of the major systems, such as computers and control jets.

"A second day up there would be gravy," Lewis said.

Crippin said a major task in the first 90 minutes will be to remotely open and close two giant doors on Columbia's 60-foot-long cargo bay. These doors must be kept open during the flight to expose large radiators that dissipate heat from the spacecraft.

There are 10 pairs of motors which drive the latches that close the doors. If one motor in any of the pairs fails, that would mean an automatic return to earth about eight hours after launching, Crippin said.

Vickie Daniel Expected To Say Death Accidental

HOUSTON (AP) — The widow of Price Daniel Jr. will testify at a child custody trial she accidentally shot and killed the former Texas House Speaker after he became violent when she flushed away his stash of marijuana, a Houston newspaper has reported.

Mrs. Daniel, who is accused of killing her estranged husband Jan. 19 at their Liberty County ranch home, goes to court Thursday in a fight to retain custody of the couple's two young sons.

The 33-year-old mother waived her Fifth Amendment protection against self incrimination as part of an agreement to keep her sons until a jury resolves the dispute.

Sources close to the investigation told the Houston Post on Monday that Mrs. Daniel grabbed the marijuana and flushed the weed down the toilet during a squabble.

Daniel, son of former Texas Gov. Price Daniel Sr., became enraged and threatened to physically harm his wife, sources said. Mrs. Daniel then got a .22-caliber rifle and fired a warning shot, according to sources.

A short time later, sources said, the gun accidentally discharged and the bullet struck Daniel in the abdomen, severing the aorta artery.

Mrs. Daniel, who twice threatened to divorce her husband, spent 14 hours behind closed doors last Friday and Monday giving a deposition in the custody suit filed by her sister-in-law. She returns today for more questioning.

Attorneys representing Mrs. Daniel and Mrs. Murph refused to comment on the depositions.

Daniel's sister, Jean Daniel Murph, is seeking custody of Franklin Baldwin Daniel, 3, and Marion Price Daniel IV, 1.

Motorist Fires Gun Into Crowd

LAFAYETTE, La. (UPI) — A 32-year-old motorist was charged with firing six shots into a group of pedestrians, wounding two college students, in an angry rage because he had to stop his car at an intersection to let them pass.

James R. Pietmeier of New Iberia, La., was booked into city jail on six counts of attempted murder. He is being held on $250,000 bond.

Police said the suspect apparently became enraged when he had to stop at an intersection to let a group of students cross the street after they left a popular nightspot near the Southwestern Louisiana campus.

Authorities say he jumped from his car brandishing a gun and fired six shots at the group, wounding Jody Fontenot, 22, of Opelousas, and Cindy Kline, 19, of Lafayette.

Fontenot is in stable condition after surgeons removed a bullet lodged near his brain. Miss Kline was treated for a superficial wound in the back and released.

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW®

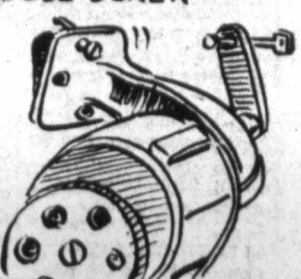

By Whipple and Borth

EVERY WELL-EQUIPPED OFFICE HAS AT LEAST THREE PENCIL SHARPENERS, RIGHT?

...AND THE ONE IN THE STOCK ROOM IS HANGING ON BY ONLY ONE LOOSE SCREW...

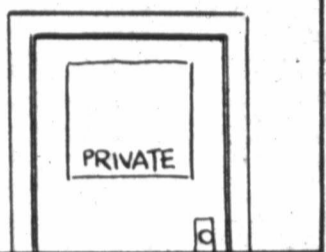

...AND THE OLD ONE IN SHIPPING CHEWS PENCILS DOWN TO THE NUB...
