SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) The chairman of a House subcommittee that votes next week on the military aid President Reagan wants to send El Salvador is questioning members of the ruling junta today. He said he is not convinced American military advisers are needed in the war-torn Central American

Rep. Clarence Long, D-Md., opened a two-day inspection of the situation in El Salvador Monday with a meeting with President Jose Napoleon Duarte, the head of the civilian-military junta.

After his talk with Duarte, Long said he was concerned about Reagan's decision to send military advisers to teach the Salvadoran troops fighting left-wing rebels. He said he wondered why Salvadorans trained in the United States couldn't do the same job.

Long, chairman of the foreign operations subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee, said of Duarte, "I think he leveled with me

Long was to meet today with junta members Jose Antonio Morales Ehrlich and Dr. Ramon Avalos Navarrette to discuss the government's public health and agrarian reform program.

He also planned to visit a ranch that has been expropriated and turned into a peasant cooperative and to meet with military commanders, business leaders and officials of the Roman Catholic Church

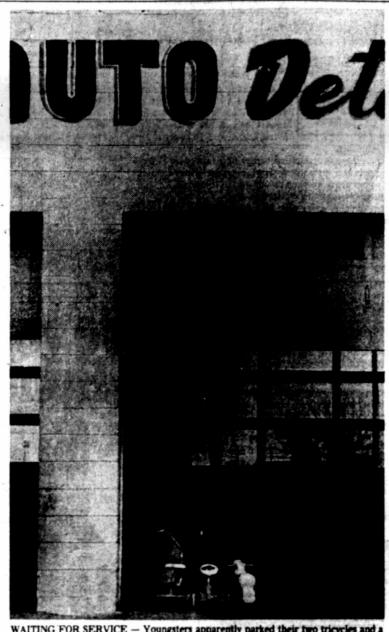

Long's subcommittee is to vote next week on the appropriation of $5 million additional which the administration asked to send to the junta for patrol boats, helicopters, radar, vehicles and other equipment to be used against the leftist guerrillas fighting to install a Marxist government. The Senate foreign relations appropriations subcommittee voted 6-2 Monday to approve the expend-

The funds are subject to veto by either Long's subcommittee or its Senate counterpart because they are being redirected from other appropriations. Reagan has used his own authority to send 20 additional military advisers and $20 million in military aid to El Salvador.

Army and police sources reported scattered battles Monday between leftists and government soldiers and said 20 victims of political terrorists were found. including three headless corpses in the capital, three victims in the suburb of Sovapango and the bodies of five women in Apopa, about 20 miles to the north

School officials from 28 of the country's largest cities complained Monday at the Council of Great City Schools meeting in Washington, D.C., about Reagan's. proposed cutbacks that they said would devastate their systems.

Local school officials have not worked up any loss estimates for the school system here, but trustee Buddy Forbess said the effect of the budget slashes would be minimal. He noted that direct federal funds, as opposed to federal aid that is channeled through the state, amounted only to $441,870 this year.

Reagan Attacks
'Phony' Report

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan, meeting with Republican members of Congress to reinforce support for his economic program, today declared 'phony" a report that his budget target was $25 billion off.

He later softened his criticism of the report by the Congressional Budget Office, however, stressing the administration's faith in the impact of its economic

Before the breakfast session with administration officials and GOP members of Congress began, the president was asked about the report, which contends there is a $25 billion mistake in his budget estimates for fiscal 1982.

"My response is — I would start out with the word 'phony," Reagan said. "That's them practicing what they have been practicing for the last 30 years. The figures are phony Later, as he left the Capitol, Reagan said he probably shouldn't have used the word "phony.

"Actually, what they really are is differing assumptions, and I think their assumptions are based on the continuing curve of decline in the economy," the president said before waving to a crowd and flashing a button in celebration of St.

"In other words, that our program is not going to have any effect on the econ-

Asked whether he intended to find new budget cuts to offset the $25 billion, Reagan replied: "No, no. We believe our assumptions or projections are correct. The difference will be that our program is going to have a different effect on the economy which they did not factor in. ... What we claim about our program is that our program is going to change that."

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said the Republican leadership gave Reagan a "very optimistic" forecast for his economic plan.

Reagan was welcomed to the Capitol by Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker of Tennessee and House Minority Leader Bob Michel of Illinois.

Winds, Dust Rake Plains

An intense low pressure system in western Kansas and an approaching Pacific cold front today sent strong, gusty winds sweeping across southern Great Plains and stirred dust in West Texas and eastern New Mexico.

Winds up to 40 miles per hour were recorded at Amarillo at midmorning, and by 11 a.m. the National Weather Service at Lubbock International Airport reported blowing dust and northwesterly winds gusting to 33 mph.

Weathermen issued a dust storm warning for the South Plains, with the expectation that visibility could be reduced to less than a mile in some places.

"An intense surface low-pressure system in western Kansas this morning will move southeastward and continue to intensify through this afternoon," weathermen said in a special statement here. "A strong upper-level disturbance in the Pa-cific Northwest early this morning will continue to move southeastward through the Rocky Mountains today. The combination of these two

Various Groups Reserve Seats On Future Space Shuttle Trips

Most Earthlings can't hitch a ride on the space shuttle just yet, but many are plunking down dollars to reserve room on the craft for their fantasies

Vanilla plants, clams, bees - and Mickey Mouse balloons - may be among those to experience space travel before their human owners.

Their reservations on the shuttle are called "getaway specials," available for a down payment of $500 from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Although few companies have taken up NASA's offer to sell an entire space shuttle mission to conduct experiments. the small spaces have fired the imaginations of everyone from high school students to government agencies.

Since the program was announced in 1976, 139 industrial companies, 78 schools and universities, 49 private individuals and 27 federal agencies have reserved space on the shuttle. Thirteen Texas individuals and groups are among them Commercial gimmicks aren't allowed

Three payload packages are available: a space of 21/2 cubic fact for a payload weighing up to 60 pounds for $3,000, the same size for a payload up to 100 pounds for $5,000, or a space of 5 cubic feet for up to 200 pounds for $10,000.

The motor was transported from the wrecking service with a battered, 1971 Chevrolet pickup truck that had been left at the business for work, police said.

DALLAS (AP) - Job offers are scarce and the need for housing is "desperate," but the first group of 1,000 Cambodian refugees targeted for Dallas will be arriving in April, a local resettlement coordinator said

There are 5,000 refugees currently getting English instruction at a holding area in Thailand, the last stop before the Cambodians immigrate to the United State, said Fay Worrall, just back from a New York meeting of resettlement agency representatives. Dallas and Houston are among nine

A five-day plan to help individuals stop smoking will be presented Monday through March 27 in the Fellowship Room of the Lubbock Seventh-day Adventist Church, 802 Frankford Ave. The clinic will begin at 7 p.m. each

More information may be obtained by calling clinic director Mrs. Joe B. (Doris) Pate at 795-0738. The seminar is free to the public fessional cry-babies, remarkable for their predictability, has announced plans to fight the administration's supply-side tax cut proposal, calling it just another scheme to help the rich, while making patsies of the poor.

All the same old faces were there, ranging from representatives of the AFL-CIO and the League of Women Voters to the State, County and Municipal Employes Union, all still

The general thrust of their argument was thus: A guy making $100,000 a year will benefit to the tune of several thousand dollars under the proposed 10 percent across-the-board tax cut proposal, while your typical "working poor" will get only a few bucks.

BY ARGUING THAT the tax cuts will result in a significant increase in savings and investment-the backbone of advanced industrial technology and economic growththe Reaganites are only deluding themselves, the liberals say.

Thus, they argue that the biggest tax breaks should be given to the poor—the peo-ple with the least disposable income, and those who would appear to need it the most.

In a totally egalitarian society, these arguments might make sense. But they really show little or no understanding of supplyside theory, and what the Reagan administration is trying to accomplish.

The tax cut plan is intended to promote non-inflationary economic growth. And economic growth can occur only if more money is made available to the private, productive sector for expansion, and for technological

While it may be true that the working poor will use their tax cut gains to "make both ends meet," those with higher incomes are the ones who invest in stocks and bonds -in other words, the people who generate the capital needed for economic growth.

THE HARSH REALITY of the situation is that the tax cuts at the top are the only ones that are really meaningful in terms of accomplishing the administration's goals.

By opting for an across-the-board cut, the President is serving several needs at once: the need of lower-income families for more disposable income, and the need of the economy for a major growth-oriented transfusion.

As Ted Hagans, president of the National Business League (the nation's largest organization of black businessmen), told a skeptical newsman recently: "Poor people can't give Likewise, poor people can't supply the capital needed to invigorate the American economy. That's why the President's plan not only seems equitable but would appear to have a good chance of working.

Death Of LSC Self-Inflicted

WASHINGTON-This is a hard column to write. For the past seven years, in lonesome opposition to fellow conservatives in Congress and in the press. I have been sticking up for the Legal Services Corporation.

Now President Reagan wants to abolish it. It hurts to abandon a favorite cause, but maybe the time has come to let it go.

If Congress concurs, it will be said of the Legal Services Corporation that Reagan and the New Right "killed it off." Don't believe it. This would be a case of suicide, not homicide The Legal Services Corporation, through its own failure to heed repeated warnings against its own activism, will have done itself in. The concept was so good. Call me a starry-eyed idealist if you will, but some American ideals deserve a starry-eyed devotion.

ONE OF THESE is carved in stone above the Supreme Court: "Equal Justice Under Law." It is an impossible ideal, to be sure, but no matter. We ought to strive for the impossible now and then.

The idea behind the Legal Services Corporation was to put some element of balance in those famous scales of justice. The idea was to see that the poor person got a fair shake in his encounters with the civil law.

Was he being wrongly evicted from his home?
Was he being unfairly persecuted by a creditor?
Was he being denied some public benefit that rightfully was his? Was he trapped in some impenetrable mase of regulations?

Almost 40 years ago, as as young reporter, I covered what were known as the Civil Justice Courts.

Here a rough form of justice was administered, rubber stamp style.

Every city has such tribunals. Here merchants and doctors and loan sharks sue for unpaid bills. Landlords seek eviction orders. Many defendants never appear at all.

Other defendants stand in bewildered resentment. They never heard of a garnishee. "Judgment granted. Judgment granted. Judgment granted." Ordinarily the poor fellow never stands

THUS IN 1974 came the Legal Services Corporation, with a mission to help. And it has helped.

Through 323 local programs employing 5,000 lawyers, the corporation has gone to bat for thousands of poor persons in need of legal assistance; domestic relations, child custody, housing problems, welfare checks, divorce, employment. Such humble causes are overwhelmingly the business of the LSC.

But the corporation is heavily and unhappily influenced by ideological activists who have grander ideas. They see their role as a remaking of society. Often their energy is surpassed only by their immaturity. Their passions cannot be fired by the humdrum fuel of a custody case. They want to be

Market Mirrors Muted Mood

NEW YORK-With each passing day, it becomes more evident that the story being told on Page One about Ronald Reagan differs markedly from the one being told in the financial pages.

Out front, we read the familiar Washington pap about anguished liberals and embattled conservatives, about a tough new President boldly slicing into the heart of federal spending.

Inside, however, where numbers must replace adjectives, an entirely different reality unfolds. Hence, it seems clear, the sense is not that the President has been too vigorous in pursuing budget reductions but that he has been entirely too meek. And there is growing evidence that the agate type is reporting the more valid tale EVEN WITHIN CONGRESS itself, an entity against those who would cut even less, but it will not remain so forever and the real story is that it already exists so substantially so early in Reagan's supposed "honeymoon" period. The financial markets, for their part, have made economy, suggests unmistakable skepticism about the ability of Reagan's budget-plus-tax-cuts proposals truly to contain the nation's overriding economic problem. THESE HIGH INTEREST rates are not, as is commonly supposed, the result of a "tight money' policy from the Federal Reserve Board (whose performance through most of 1980 was, in fact, distinctly loose) so much as continuing demand by lenders for extraordinary protection against what they perceive as extraordinary future squeeze on our cost of living, it is at best apathy or stupidity to waste your money buying perishable foods that are on the verge of becoming inedible or worse, are actually dangerously spoiled. Yet, countless millions of you, men and women are doing just that. You are not even aware that you are supposed to get some protection from "open dating," and that you can use it for your own benefit

Other countless millions of you who do know there are dating codes on foods and who do know how to read the codes are simply yawning when you see the figures (if you see them).

THE DAMAGE YOU unnecessarily do to your pocketbook and the risks you take with your own health and that of your family make me cringe.

And this goes particularly for the shoppers who can least afford to waste the money on food, who can least afford to pay the health care bills if they consume spoiled food.

It has been far too long since I have written a word about food dating codes.

Foolishly, I have taken your knowledge for granted and assumed you would use every weapon you could get to save money on buying quality foods and to maintain the safety of your food. But I have been wrong. So here goes:

* Leading food manufacturers, food processing companies and most supermarket chains as well as major local stores identify basic facts about the freshness of their foods by "codes.

. THE CODES USED vary widely in appearance, in location on the package of product and in their meaning. * As a shrewd shopper, you must become familiar with the different codes and their variations from product to product, from company to company, from food chain to food chain. Some numbers and/or letters involved in a code may indicate the date a food was produced; others may show the date the food was processed: still others may tell you the last date the food may be safely sold or the last date after which you, the consumer, may safely consume the food, or the date after which the quality of the food product will start to degenerate. All these are facts of vital money-saving, even life-saving value to you!

. THE LOCATION OF the code may be on the top or bottom of a can, on the label of a product, the side or end panels of a box, on a bottle cap.

The code may be printed or embossed or stamped on the package. It's up to you to look, to

Offhand Thoughts

Overheard: "More accidents happen in the kitchen than in any other room of the house-and some of them end up on the table.

Overheard: "It's gotten so bad that I have to moonlight to see daylight.

As just one illustration, you might see a series of numbers such as "1014" on a package. Translation? The year 1981 (the first "1"), the month of January (zero), the day of the 14th (14). That might mean a variety of things.

Specifically: (1) Expiration date. This is the date after which the product concerned will start to decline in quality. It also could stand for the date by which you should use the product.

(2) Sell by date. This is the last date on which the product may be sold. This allows you, the consumer, a period of time in which to use the product. This date also is known as the "buy before date," or "pull date," or "last sale date."

These two are the dates of most practical meaning to you, for, as the Montgomery County (Maryland) Office of Consumer Affairs emphasized in a booklet released some time ago, these dates tell you how much longer the food will be edible.

(3) PACK DATE. THIS is the date the product was packaged. It also is known as the "packaging

(4) Date of manufacture. This is the date the product was manufactured or processed.

Tip: Look with special care at perishables stacked on low shelves. Market clerks are as reluctant as most of you are to bend to rearrange lower shelves; foods that should be removed at once-or should have been removed days ago-may remain untouched

Common sense: But use your head. A secondor third-day loaf of bread on a store shelf at a reduced price because of its age is just as edible as a second- or third-day loaf in your home.

paign already is under way, with letters like the one that accuses Kennedy of leading the pro-Hanoi forces in the United States.

Even if they cannot overcome the long odds, Kennedy's conservative and Republican foes would see some measure of success in a campaign that tied him down in a costly campaign in Massachusetts. That would keep one of the Democrats' more effective campaigners from lending much personal help to other liberal candidates next year.

Kennedy managers anticipate a bitter and probably well-financed conservative offensive, beginning in the Democratic primary next year and escalating in the

So they're starting early, too. John

Leslie, who has been a special assistant to Kennedy, will be managing the campaign. The Committee to Re-elect Sen. Kenned filed with the Federal Election Commission on Feb. 9. Its headquarters has opened on Federal Street in Boston.

Commentary

Kennedy is commuting to Massachusetts often these days. He is speaking out on national issues - on President Reagan's budget and tax programs, for example - but he is doing it almost entirely in his home state.

'He's working very hard up there," said spokesman Robert Shrum. "But that's not unusual. He is in what are fairly regular rythyms for him in an election campaign.

What is unusual is the head start on organization and fund raising. Leslie said that phase of the campaign was launched earlier than before, in part because of the looming conservative challenge. The New Right was a potent force against such liberal losers as Frank Church, George McGovern and Birch Bayh in the 1980 elections that put Republicans in

Kennedy said long ago he would be running for re-election next year, and reaffirmed his plans after announcing Jan.

He dismisses talk about another presidential bid in 1984 as premature. The 1982 election at home comes first.

Kennedy contends that the conservative tactics of 1980 won't work in Massachusetts. "The politics of negativism really won't have much of an appeal to Massachusetts voters," he said.

But he's not ignoring the political threat. He will launch Senate fund-raising efforts April 22 with dinners in Boston and elsewhere in Massachusetts. Leslie said the Kennedy organization is de-termined to take and hold the offensive in the coming campaign, starting now.

In the last campaign, he said, conservatives succeeded in forcing liberal Democrats to react to their charges, and put them on the defensive. Kennedy wants to avoid that.

Leslie said Kennedy anticipates a challenge in the Democratic primary from conservatives seeking to soften him up for the general election. So far there is no real indication of who will be running against him, then, or on the Republican ticket.

That's where the help-wanted ad comes in. In its political newsletter, the conservative Free Congress Foundation says the Northeastern Conservative Political Action Committee plans to take out advertisements this month looking for candidates.

We want these ads to show con-didate to replace Kennedy and that we will begin our search early," the organization's executive director, Rick Reed,

But the newsletter said conservative groups will proceed gangerly, given the odds against a successful challenge to Kennedy. They have campaign money to spend, but not to squander. They want to see some polling numbers before deciding how much to invest.

Whether they put big money into Massachusetts or not, the Kennedy people figure he will be a prime target in national conservative fund-raising efforts. "It's a great direct mail device," Shrum said. "You can get a lot more money by saying it's to beat Kennedy than by say-

"He's the greatest fund-raising tool in the world for them," Leslie said. He said the question is how much of the money will be invested in the Massac race, and how much will be used against other conservative targets who presumably would be more vulnerable. Either way, there is likely to be considerably more campaign money arrayed against Kennedy than in the past, when his challengers have run cut-rate campaigns. Last time, his campaign budget was five times that of his opponent. But the Kennedy organization is get-ting ready for that. Leslie said the 1982 campaign budget could be double that of 1976, when Kennedy spending totaled

More than two-thirds of the 1980-1981 General Revenue Sharing Budget of $2.7 million has been set aside to obtain additional water for the city and to pave a one-mile strip of University Avenue. according to a proposed budget presented to the Lubbock City Council.

About $1 million would be set aside for each program, if the council approves the budget after a public hearing set for March 26. Fourteen other projects will share the remaining $700,000.

City officials are keeping quiet about several projects listed under "Water Production and Supply," saying only that some additional water supply purchases similar to one approved in last week's council meeting will be made.

"We're concerned about our Lake Meredith supplies," said Assistant City Manager Jim Blagg. The Canadian River Municipal Water Authority already has cut the city's annual allotment to 80 percent and if there is a hard summer this year the allocation may be cut more, he

Last week the council approved the purchase of 1,350 acre feet of water per year from a 1,500-acre farm in Bailey County. The purchase should give the city an additional 439,898,850 gallons each year for a 10-year period, said Sam Wahl,

Masso was scheduled to go on trial Monday on the federal charges but the plea bargaining arrangements were completed Friday

A Lubbock federal grand jury indicted Masso and 13 others in June 1979 after a 14-month investigation into a drug-traf-ficking operation between Lubbock and Ruidoso, N.M.

In pleading guilty to simple posses-sion in Travis County's 167th District Court. Masso entered into his half of a plea bargain which resulted in the dropping of the federal charges here. He was assessed a two-year probated sentence and a fine of $5,000.

Fort Worth U.S. Attorney R.H. Walace, who represented the government in the resolution of the Masso case, said Monday that Masso pleaded guilty to possession in Travis County — rather than Lubbock County — because the evidence against him in Travis County was greater than the evidence against him

Dispatcher For Carlsbad Police Testifies About Telephone Calls

By BARRY CASEROLT

A-J Correspondent CARLSBAD - A police dispatcher said in court here Monday that Mayor Pro Tern Johnny Volpato's voice was "calm" but still "a little excited" when he called to report that he and his wife had been robbed and shot at the drugstore he operates. Volpato, 43, was charged last month with first degree murder in the shooting death of his wife, Elaine, 36, on Feb. 5. 1980. Monday's testimony came during a preliminary hearing in the case.

At the time of his wife's death, Volpato said that they were shot by one of two men trying to steal drugs. Police said Mrs. Volpato was shot four times and Volpato was shot in the hand and chest.

Among the first witnesses Monday was Darlene Valenzuela, Carlsbad police dispatcher on duty the night Mrs. Volpato was shot to death in the Corner Drugs-Special prosecutor Ernest Carroll said the hearing is expected to last about four days with 36 witnesses to be called. The testimony is being given before Magistrate Judge Donald D. Hallam of Hobbs Dick Blenden is serving as defense attorney assisted by Jim Shuler and Mike Volpato has been free on a $100,000 bond awaiting the hearing that was originally scheduled for last month. He was charged following a lengthy investigation by District Attorney Mike McCormick. The charges were filed after an examination of a bullet that struck Mrs. Volpato.

McCormick removed himself as prosecutor in the case because he is a close friend and former college roommate of Volpato, Carroll formerly was an assistant district attorney here.

Mrs. Valenzuela said she received a first call from Volpato about 11:20 p.m., when the druggist informed her he was going to the drugstore to fill a prescription and that the burglar alarm would be triggered.

She said she received another call at 11:43 p.m. which she logged, and it was about 10 minutes after the burglar alarm went off at the drugstore. She described Volpato's tone of voice for the court and added Volpato told her he needed an ambulance because he had been robbed and Blenden, on cross examination, questioned how the voice could be "very calm" but still "a little excited." Mrs. Valenzuela told him Volpato's voice was slightly high in pitch but his enunciation of words was clear.

Two patrol units were dispatched to the scene, she continued, and one of the dispatched officers said a dark Monte Carlo vehicle was leaving the area. This was at 11:45 p.m. She said it took the first officer about a minute to reach the scene. She also said she never again heard about the Monte Carlo.

Mrs. Valenzuela said Volpato had called about eight times in the past three years to report he was going to the drugstore after normal hours. He had requested an officer to meet him several times because he did not know the person or because something about the person having a prescription filled bothered him.

She said Volpato sometimes told her why he wanted an officer to meet him but she told Carroll that Volpato did not ask for an officer when he called on the Carlsbad Police Detective Ron Forbes described from a diagram the layout of the Corner Drugstore. Much of his testimony to Carroll, and later to Blenden, concerned the area where drugs are

'Blarney Stone' Labeled Fake

COMMITTEE

By DONNA RAND Avalanche-Journal Staff

For almost half a century, Texas Tech students have heard of the university's own private piece of the fabled rock from Blarney Castle in County Cork, Ireland.

As legend has it, those who kiss the Blarney Stone will be endowed with the gift of eloquent speech. Theoretically, that same power applies to Tech's own small portion of storied stone, which sits atop a pedestal near the entrance to the Electrical Engineering Building.

But that assumption, according to Robert L. Newell, associate dean of engineering at Tech, is simply blarney.

Newell explained Tech's touted Blarney Stone chip in reality is an impostor, born 45 years ago when two senior mechanical engineering majors found the rock somewhere on the campus, decided to christen it Tech's Blarney Stone and later built the pedestal upon which it's perched.

For several years following the arrival of the "Blarney Stone" at Tech, annual ceremonies took place each March 17 around the pedestal and the mythical stone, Newell said.

Patrick as their own patron saint.

At the campus St. Patrick's Day celebrations, limericks were recited and traditional Irish songs were sung, Newell orated by bronze said, noting the events are complaques set in the concrete pedestal.

However, the Irish enthusiasm of yore has largely been lost on the campus. Newell said engineering students still celebrate St. Patrick's Day, but not in the same grand fashion. The traditional ceremonies around the stone ended shortly after the mechanical engineering department was moved to a building separate from electrical engineering, he explained. Newell and other engineering professors say they don't know what prompted the stone's originators to name the small rock after the famous Irish monument.

Although Tech's stone didn't come from the Emerald Isle, it apparently has at least a bit of its namesake's persuasive power, some professors note, for the exaggerated tale of its origin has been told the same way throughout the years and the blarney likely will continue for many more.

A 46-year-old Lubbock man has been charged with murder in connection with a fatal shooting which investigators say may have been sparked by an argument over whether marijuana should be smoked in the pool table area of an eastside motel Joe Otis Duran, also known as Joe Horace Duran, of 608 Idalou Road No. 5, was charged Monday with the death of Pete Flores Donery, who was killed Saturday afternoon in the pool hall of the Alarno Motel on Idalou Road. The Criminal District Attorney's office has recommended that Duran's bond be set at $35,-000 for the offense

Police said that Duran reportedly told Donery to refrain from smoking a marijuana cigarette in the motel's pool hall An argument began, detectives said, and the suspect allegedly shot Donery three times with a .22 caliber pistol after the victim allegedly tried to hit Duran in the face with a beer bottle. Municipal Judge Robert Baber pron-

Lunch-Time Fitness

Busy working women have trouble fit-ting physical-fitness routines into their daily schedules. According to an article by Emily Pattner in the January 1981 issue of "The Working Woman," because of their work patterns - long hours, sit-ting or standing, working in confined areas and against tight schedules - they especially need to get into shape and to release tension. The main excuse for avoiding exercise is that there is not enough time to get to and from a place to exercise. There are some exercises that may be done in a limited space and time. Look for a few stretchers and take 10 to 15 minutes during your break or lunch hour to relieve stress and tension. Take a few minutes to identify your particular "danger" spots of tension and release them. Working women tend to have tension and weight problems in these areas: head and neck, abdomen, buttocks, legs and general circulation. Entertaining in a Hurry

Keeping your guests' likes and dis-likes in mind, as well as your own capabilities and facilities, helps make entertaining easier. In any event, it pays to plan company meals or refreshments early and carefully. Eliminate as much last-minute preparation as possible. The meal may be as individual and as informal as the service. Delicious, filling food, easily prepared and attractively served, will make a hit with guests.

Consider foods that can be prepared several hours or days in advance. These include meat loaf, scalloped or casserole dishes, baked ham or turkey, salads and desserts, and fresh vegetables that can be prepared and stored in the refigerator.

Many foods available are designed to save time and energy. There are frozen foods, frozen precooked foods, packaged mixes, quick-cooking cereals, hundreds of canned goods and ready-to-eat bakery products. They provide an endless variety in selection and should be used to save as much time and energy at home as possible. Keep basic items, such as instant tea and coffee, and dried soups, in stock and handy for quick entertaining

Use a grocery list to shop intelligently. Keep the list flexible enough to take advantage of bargains. Also, buy in quantity to save money and shopping time. If you make weekly meal plans that include the company dinner, putting a shopping list together is simple. Look over the menus and write down the items you need. Check the pantry shelf, refrigerator and freezer and add any needed staples.

As another shopping time-saver, list foods in the order in which they are stocked on the market shelves. Study the food ads for the day you shop, making practical substitutions or additions as you find them

The defenders started with three rounds of hearts. and declarer ruffed the third. Since he had to lose a diamond trick, it seemed that declarer would have to rely on the club finesse. Our contention was that East, for his opening bid, had to have the queen of clubs, so the finesse was bound to fail. We suggested a backward finesselead the jack of clubs, East covers and you win the ace, then finesse the nine of clubs.

Several of our readers have pointed out that there is no need to rely on West's having the ten of clubs. East must also have both the king and queen of diamonds, so he can be squeeze end played.

After ruffing the heart, cross to the ace of diamonds, take the trump finesse and run trumps, reducing the hand to this position:

When South leads the last trump, East cannot afford to let go a club, so he must part with one of his diamond honors. Now declarer simply exits with a diamond, giving East his trick in that suit. East must lead away from the queen of clubs, and the contract is fulfilled even if East started with Q-10-x in clubs.

True enough. But an expert East, foreseeing the end position, will not discard so revealingly. He might well discard a club and hold the K-10 of diamonds. Now when you lead a diamond, he cashes the ten of diamonds for the setting trick, and you are left redfaced for going down in a "cold" contract.

Dr. S.P. Yang and Dr. Xian-Mao Luo from the Department of Food and Nutrition at Texas: Tech University, have discovered a relationship between molybdenum deficiency and esophageal cancer

Two years ago Yang returned to China, at which time he met Luo, who was studying cancer. He had found that certain parts of China had a low molybdenum (trace mineral) content in the water and food. Of the regions with the low content, 199.7 per 100,000 population had esophageal cancer

According to Yang, studies have revealed that between 60 and 90 percent of cancers are produced by environmental factors. "The food you eat, the water you drink and the air you breathe is responsibile for all types of cancer," said Yang.

VAN NUYS, Calif. (Special) - Calamari, or giant squid, and shark are two varieties of fish that may not be familiar to you. However, they are two fish varieties you will be seeing more and more as you shop the fish section of your local markets.

You'll want to try these lesser known varieties of fish. When you do you'll find them delicious, versatile and a boon to the family food budget. You'll also find that fresh lemons, now in good supplies from California-Arizona, do wonders for both calamari and shark. Here are two easy-to-prepare ideas for using these special fish. Both call for the juice and grated peel of fresh lemon to add that extra bit of zest for tasty eating.

Letdown Occurs After Childbirth

By ALICE NOBLE

United Press International CHICAGO (UPI) — More prospective fathers are taking an active part in the delivery of their offspring - But traditional sex roles reappear when the baby goes home.

Myra Leifer, an assistant professor of psychiatry at the University of Chicago, says the advent of natural childbirth classes and the women's movement are responsible for fathers' newfound interest and help during the months of pregnancy and the delivery.

There is some disservice in highlighting the birth of the child as the peak experience," Mrs. Leifer said in an interview. "Nobody quite thinks about what happens afterward. So there is a peak experience and then there is a severe letdown afterward and nobody around to pick up the pieces." Mrs. Leifer has done intensive re search on the pregnancies of middleclass, college-educated women. She said most men still consider child care a role reversal and leave that work to their

That in itself is difficult for today's career-minded woman to handle, Mrs. Leifer said, but it is even worse when the father takes an active part in the child's

During pregnancy, a husband and wife's relationship goes through shifts and turbulence and many conflicts occur as they go through the process of working out their new identities as parents,"

'It's a honeymoon period: they're really close to each other in sharing prep arations for baby, their childbirth preparations and sharing in running the home

Even husbands who are very traditionally male and usually do not assume this responsibility, often, out of chivalry or whatever, will take over the needs of the household.

When the husband is included in childbirth preparation, she said, "It is an active sharing and relaxing of traditional sex roles." But because our culture doesn't make this easy, father's help tends to end abruptly after the birth.

Even husbands who are primed to participate often lose interest or don't have the time for child-rearing activities, Mrs. Leifer said.

For example, she said, many young couples plan their children to coincide with completion of the husband's professional studies

They have lots of flexibility as students, but they time the baby to occur when they take a first job," she said. "So they are caught up in the bind of being productive in their job at exactly the same time the needs are greatest at

One husband in her research group was studying for the ministry.

'He was totally involved in the delivery of his daughter and, from psychological variables, it would have appeared he would be an active father, but in fact ended up spending little time with child and family," she said.

As a result, there was a lot of marital stress in the first year following birth."

The researcher said the problem is multiplied when the mother has a career.

"The timing is much more important then," she said. "One woman was a graduate student and became a teacher. She had her baby in the summer and began teaching about a month after baby was Her husband also was very involved in his work. They were probably the most highly stressed couple in the study Their infant was colicky and difficult and they were grappling with a number of issues: To bring the baby into their lives, to solidify their relationship and also to deal with commitments to their ca-

Mrs. Leifer said most women experience anger and tension when the fathers drop child care responsibilities in their laps. They also are economically dependent on their husbands.

"On one hand they felt the husband was working for them, but on the other hand they often felt abandoned," she said. "The contrast (in the husband's attitude), I think, was even more striking and painful because of the closeness they had during pregnancy.

Mrs. Leifer, author of "Psychological Effects of Motherhood: A Study of First Pregnancy" (Praeger Publishers $22.95 hardcover, $8.95 paperback) advocates change on a societal level.

That would mean, first, some changes in the work world," she said.

"Primarily, even though maternity benefits are increasing, they're still not very good and paternity benefits are unheard of. We need a new solution to foster the home involvement, such as flexitime and part-time jobs.

She said such work practices are used successfully in Europe and some American companies have adopted them.

Safety Precautions Taken By Elderly Citizens

By GEORGE KING

Twenty-four million Americans over age 65 face increasing risks of being robbed, swindled or mugged. For this reason, 25 percent of our senior citizens have become recluse in an effort to reduce their chances of becoming victims.

Still, the senior citizen can be fairly safe on the streets by taking some precautions. The street triminal strikes the elderly by catching them unaware, taking advan-tage of carelassness. Here are a few important tips." When you are walking, where and how you walk can help reduce your risks.

Plan your route carefully to avoid alleys, thick trees, shurbs and abandoned buildings. Choose busy, well lit streets, even if it means a longer walk, and try to go with companions. Muggers usually attack lone pedestrians, so there is safety in numbers, particularly at night

Try to walk with confidence and as deliberately as possible. Studies have shown that if you appear frightened, you are prey for the street criminal.

Always have your keys ready as you approach your home so that you can enter without delay. If you arrive by taxi, tip the drives and have him wait until you are safely inside.

Always secure your money and valuables. Avoid carrying checks or more cash than you need. Don't wear expensive jewelry. Women should try not to carry a purse, but if you do, hold it close to your body under your arm and don't dangle it. Don't carry your bag with the strap wrapped around your wrist. If a criminal grabs your bag and runs, you could be dragged along and injured.

Be especially cautious in your own neighborhood. Two-thirds of crimes against the elderly occur within ten blocks of home. So don't establish a regular pattern of coming and going by the same routes, and try to know your neigh-

Coal Pact Talks Hit Snag

WASHINGTON (AP) — Contract talks between the United Mine Workers and the soft coal industry broke off early today in an apparent impasse over the volatile issue of miners' working hours. Representatives of the UMW and the Bituminous Coal Operators Association. the industry's bargaining arm, had continued to talk past the union's self-imposed midnight deadline, signaling prog-ress toward a settlement that would avert a strike March 27, when the current three-year contract expires.

But the session at a downtown Washington hotel broke up shortly after 3 a.m. CST and negotiators left the room grim-

And, for the first time since the talks entered the critical stage over the week-end, the two sides failed to announce jointly when they would meet again.

But the BCOA's three representatives, asked if that timetable were correct, refused to comment. The trio, briefcases in hand, headed to the association's Washington headquarters.

UMW spokesman Eldon Callen confirmed subsequently that the two sides had not scheduled another bargaining ion's 39-member bargaining council had scheduled an afternoon session at the union's headquarters near the hotel.

But Callen said a contract settlement could still be achieved in time to avoid a

"If we work through the night tonight and Wednesday night, we could jam the administrative procedures up front and still make our (strike) deadline," he said. UMW bargainer Tom Gaston said the two sides had failed to resolve differences over the industry's efforts to put mines on a seven-day production sched-

"There is still a lot of ground to be covered ...," said Gaston.

He said the industry had dropped its proposal to have miners work mandatory overtime, but said the mine operators were continuing to insist on keeping mines open all week.

The 160,000 miners covered by the UMW contract now work a six-day week with Sundays off. Gaston indicated the union is willing to work on Sundays but only if the miners get a five-day week in exchange.

The industry has sought the seven-day production schedule to utilize expensive mining equipment and to improve mine

Gaston said he feels the industry will retreat from its efforts to replace the existing multi-employer pension fund with company-by-company plans handled by private insurers

Until now, the pension issue, and not the production schedules, had been considered the chief obstacle to a settle-

Gaston said the union negotiators also feel the industry's wage-and-benefits package "is inadequate at this time" but predicted that issue would not be dealt with until there is "some movement" on the issue of production schedules.

Earlier, when the talks recessed about an hour after Monday's original midnight deadline had passed, UMW negotiator Jack Perry told reporters, 'We're separated by several obstacles,' including pension issues and an overall economic package.

However, Walter Suba, another member of the union team, said, "There's still a chance" to reach a settlement sometime today. UMW President Sam Church was pictured by his chief spokesman as eager to talk as long as it takes to reach an agree-'He believes it's necessary for the industry, foreign markets and the econospokesman Eldon Callen said of Church, presiding for the first time over contract talks with the soft-coal industry. Church had said earlier that "we have a shot" at averting a strike. Chief industry negotiator B.R. Brown had said he was not optimistic.

The UMW has struck the coal industry in five successive contract negotiations since 1964. The last strike, for 111 days in the winter of 1977-78, caused widespread industrial layoffs and some power cutbacks in the Midwest as coaldependent states tried to ration dwindling supplies

If there were to be a strike this year. about 44 percent of the nation's coal production capacity would be idled. But a strike would not likely have an immediate impact on the economy because electric utilities, major purchasers of coal, are believed to have a 90-day stockpile. Also, spring is approaching, lessening the need for coal.

Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan said Monday he was confident a settlement could be reached But he ruled out any last-minute role by the Reagan administration in the talks, saying the government should not interfere in the collective bargaining process.

tion funded at the local level because nobody else can know what our problems and needs are Mrs. Sisco said that "the parents of the children here do have an influence on us. When parents voice their concerns, attention is paid to it although they may not like how it's handled. But there is no real input at the national level. I want the federal government off our backs and I welcome the budget cuts.

But if children are going to lose out on any educational needs the board feels are necessary, Mrs. Sisco said, the local level would make up the lost funding. This board is dedicated to quality education for every child.

If they took every single nickel of that (direct federal fund amount) away and we (trustees) put every single nickel back in, it's not going to blow us out of the sky." Mrs. Sisco said.

Board member Deaton Rigsby said he does not feel "the overall educational process in Lubbock" is going to suffer because of Reagan's proposals. He said the board is committed to provide a good education for youngsters and that "we are going to look at" any programs affected by the cuts. Forbess attacked some of the programs targeted for budget cuts, complaining that they either waste money or command excessive financing.

He zeroed in on Title I funds for the educationally and financially disadvan taged, noting that the money and teachers do not follow the students that need the assistance when they are bused to non-Title I schools Guadalupe Elementary, for instance, is a Title I school, Forbess said "All of a sudden those students are being bused out and the Title I teacher is still at Guadalupe.

Forbess also said he does not believe handicapped students will suffer from budget cuts. Noting that criticizing aid for the handicapped is "like talking against mothers or apple te." the trustee said. 'Tthere is a place for handicapped children in the public schools." but added that facilities should not have to be totally reconverted for their convenience

'We do want to educate them," he said, but noted that school boards cannot be expected to spend excessive amounts of money to put in ramps, elevators and other devices at every school.

The trustees polled also said they do not fear tuition tax credits, at least in this part of the country. Mrs. Sisco said she believes people in West Texas still have not given up on making the public school system one that provides quality education, despite the barbs that are aimed at the institution. She also noted that Lubbock does not have the established sysother cities have.

Tuition tax credits would create competition for the public schools, Mrs. Sisco and Forbess noted "Competition is healthy," Mrs. Sisco said, adding that "I don't think the public schools can ever hope to meet the needs of every child.

But she said she can foresee a barrier being erected between the two systems nationwide. "If the public schools are considered inferior, I think we need to be

Trustees also said that while the government is doing its own brand of chopping, the local school board must trim excess fat from its own expenses. "We can't ask the federal government to make cuts without making some cuts of our own," said board president Monte

Forbess said he anticipates no drastic cuts in the local budget, but "I think you'll continue to see us keep a watchful eye on all our expenditures

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation's industrial production declined about 0.5 percent in February after six straight monthly increases, the government reported today

Federal Reserve Board officials said output dropped off "in most major components of the board's production index and that significant drops occurred in the production of primary metals, instruments, furniture and lumber The overall production index had

Briley's execution in the electric chair had been scheduled for Wednesday evening, but no exact time had been set, said Wayne Farrar, a spokesman for the state prison system.

Ott and Hayes have said Briley has asked them to appeal his death sentence all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court, if necessary.

Petitions for a stay were filed with the appeals court after U.S. District Judge D. Dortch Warriner last Friday de-old son, Harvey Wayne Barton.

At the same time, he was convicted of first-degree murder and given a life sentence for the slaying of Miss Barton's common-law husband, Harvey Wilkerson. He also was convicted of rape, rob-

Briley's brothers, Linwood and Anthony, were convicted in the same case and Linwood is on Death Row, waiting for an execution date to be set. Anthony

James Briley's convictions were affirmed in a one round of appeals. But his attorneys contended in their latest petition for a stay that the defense was not told before the trial about inconsistencies in statements made to police by another defendant in the case, Duncan Meekins.

Meekins later testified for the prose-for peaceful uses of nuclear energy.

Pakistan, Cranston said, "will most likely have the capability and the materials for fabricating a number of nuclear weapons by the end of 1982."

Cranston said French and Italian companies in particular are supplying the Iraqi program. He said a strong argument can be made for terminating U.S. nuclear trade with those two countries until they curb the companies' assistance "I believe we must not be reluctant to

He said the United States should also make clear to Pakistani nuclear suppliers - particularly France, West Germany and Switzerland - that U.S. law may require a moratorium on nuclear trade with any country that supports such nuclear weapons development.

Writer Says Barris May Help Baseball

LOS ANGELES (AP) - I see that TV producer Chuck Barris is trying to buy the Philadelphia Phillies. Hmm. Perhaps the development is not as ominous for baseball as it might seem.

Indeed, we could have here a simple solution to baseball's problems, and it might help television, too.

Barris, for those of you blessed with memory-erase, spent the 1970s as television's circus master. He made shows such as "The Gong Show," "$1.98 Beauty Contest" and "Three's a Crowd," programs that suggested clever parody but delivered sleazy humiliation.

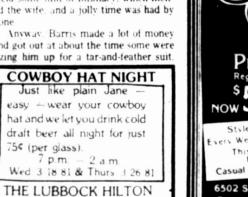

'Gong Show' was a mock amateur talent show that invited the studio audience to yield to its mob instincts. The crowd loudly exhorted the "celebrity panel" - composed of Hollywood fringe types - to gong the performers, whose talents ranged from ghastly Elvis imitations to the rendering of "Smoke Gets in Your Eves" on a set of burning candles. It was fun, until it got depressing.

"Beauty Contest" skipped the fun stage. It featured a lot of ladies you wouldn't take home to Mama (at least, not before covering up the tattoos), many of whom betrayed as their lonely talent the undulating grind of the ecdysiast. Skin and ridicule were served up in heavy doses here, television's lowest

"Three's A Crowd" was a short-lived variation on Barris' 1960s hit, "The Newlywed Game" (which also came back in the new Barris era, in seedy version). 'Three's a Crowd' asked a secretary and wife to compare notes on the man they shared, e.g., "Where does Jim like to be tickled?" The secretary would invariably yield some hint of intimacy, which incited the wife, and a jolly time was had by and got out at about the time some were sizing him up for a tar-and-feather suit.

Now he wants to buy the Phils, once known as the Phutile Phils but now the reigning champs of all baseball.

How could that be good? Consider: The Phils are for sale because the club's owner, Ruly Carpenter, is fed up with the place baseball has come to, a place where sweet associations of the summer game are smothered by the bitter stench of greed. It's a place no longer peopled by "Minnies" and "Dizzys" and "Pee Wees" but by "Daves" and "Steves" and "Georges," faceless professionals who "go to work" when they come to the ballpark.

A place with no Van Lingo Mungo. Now, Barris doesn't strike me as the type who'd foster an atmosphere of quiet professionalism. Say, for example, that a 140 utility infielder comes to owner Barris at the end of the season, demanding renegotiation. He wants $350,000 a year, and a no-cut contract.

The Phillies would soon be shed of prima donas. I'll bet, and the effect might be felt throughout the bigs.

Baths Gain Popularity

JERUSALEM (AP) - Shiny porcelain tiles meet oriental arches in this modern city's century-old Turkish baths, a steam-filled relic of a bygone era with newfound popularity.

Today, oldtimers, young Israelis and tourists flock to the renovated baths as if to a health spa to spend a langorous day in the sauna and hot pools, or to sunbathe nude on the roof in the summer.

Built in 1890 in the Bukharian quarter, one of the first Jewish neighborhoods outside the Old City walls, the baths are a functioning antique and reminder of when Jerusalem's houses were built around central courtyards with commun-al kitchens and toilets, but without show-

Many old homes still lack modern plumbing and even homes with showers rarely have bathtubs.

Shimon Khoushy, a Yemenite Jew who remembers collecting firewood as a child for the baths' giant furnace, reopened the crumbling remains in 1967, and is now giving the entire building a modernizing facelift.

'I felt sick once and came to lie on the hot marble slabs, and that's when I decided to fix the place up," he said.

Khoushy, who takes pride in his historic neighborhood, swears by the baths' medicinal properties and claims they have kept him away from doctors for

When Khoushy bought the baths, they were in much the same condition as they had been for nearly 70 years. Giant cisterns collected rainwater and a few pennies bought a hot bucket.

During summer drought, the price went up and only the rich could afford to wash. Such was the shortage of water that even the used soapy bath water was recycled and sold to wash laundry.

Khoushy turned the furnace room into a wet sauna and the old cisterns into hot, warm and cold swimming pools. In a side room closed off from the baths, carnel-hair Arab carpets cover divans and floor pillows where bathers bring baskets of food and fruit to picnic under a skylight partially covered by ivy tendrils.

The baths are similar to the originals in Turkey, but instead of muscled attendents who scrub bathers with young birch switches, the Jerusalem baths have a full staff of modern cosmeticians and masseurs for separate men's and women's days. A snack bar serves spicy oriental dishes.

The once-elegant Bukharian quarter is filled with one-and two-story stone

Six Children Die In Chicago Blaze

CHICAGO (UPI) - Six children were trapped and killed in a blaze possibly caused by an overloaded fusebox and faulty wiring in a basement apartment, a fire official said today.

The children, five boys and a girl ranging in age from 3 months to 8 years, were in the basement when the blaze broke out Monday night. They died from smoke inhalation and burns Bomb and arson detective Carl Menconi said a faulty outlet in the basement apartment into which a portable dishwasher was plugged could have been responsible for the blaze.

Menconi said one fusebox socket was servicing 12 different fuses and could have overloaded the unit.

The victims were identified as Jose Cabrales, 18 months; Jorge Cabrales, 3: Enrique Reyes, 2: Angel Reyes, 7: Yolanda Reyes, 8, and Rene (last name not known), three months.

Police said the children were alone at the time of the fire and their mother, Evelyn Reyes, told them she left the children for a few minutes to buy a box of diapers from a nearby store.

Burglar bars hindered firemen's efforts to get to the children and they had to knock down a heavily locked basement door to make the rescue

The children were still alive at the time of the rescue and were rushed to Cook County and St. Mary hospitals, but died about an hour after their arrival, a hospital spokesman said

Lino Guerro, 27, said he and his brother were watching television in their apartment on the second floor when the blaze started and a neighbor from the first floor warned them to get out

Trent Tucker, hitting 14 of 17 shots from the field, scored a career-high 35 points as Minnesota rolled past Connectiut. Seven-foot-two sophomore center Randy Breuer added 19 points for the Gophers, 16 in the second half when the Big Ten team pulled away from a tight 37-33 lead at intermission.

Tech Cagers Reflect Mixed Bag

Assistant Sports Editor It was a season full of surprises that no longer come as surprises to anyone Because the Texas Tech basketball team, while winding through its roller coaster season was as unpredictable as. . . well, as the Raiders were during the 1979-80 campaign directly preceding it.

For two straight years, the Raiders have romped at times and been stomped at others. For the second straight season the Raiders were awesome at home and pathetic on the road. For two straight years now Tech has managed an even draw with every team in the conference save Arkansas and TCU. The Hogs swept Tech, while the Raiders dumped TCU twice.

Unfortunately, 1980-81 was a carbon copy of 1979-80. There was only one difference: Tech won its quarterfinal game in the Southwest Conference tournawith a 15-13 record - a year ago they were 16-13. Not good, not bad - just in between. And it's hard to get excited about these non-commital records

And for the second straight season, the Raiders were - unexplainably - probably at their best early in the season. The form Tech displayed in a runaway 89-79 win over the Texas Longhorns on Jan. 3 was possibly the best the Raiders would play all year. It was both teams' Southwest Conference opener.

Remember, the Raiders finished the season by losing a pair of games to the Longhorns over a two-week span. Even more disappointing was the fact that, in the tournament game in San Antonio, the Raiders had the Longhorns on the ropes. Tech led by seven points eight minutes into the final half and Texas appeared to be out of air. But the Raiders let it slip away and wound up losing by

The Raiders dumped Western Kentucky by a 68-58 count back on Dec. 4 but the Hilltoppers wound up in the NCAA tournament with only seven losses in the regular season. # Chap Surges Polish Off Jewell

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff The Lubbock Christian College baseball team never fears falling behind. The Chaparrals do it all the time.

Some of the time they manage to win anyway. Two of those times occurred against William Jewell (Mo.) in a doubleheader Monday at Chaparral Stadium.

LCC fell behind in each game - but not too far behind - before felling the Cardinals 10-7 and 8-4.

The Chaps overcame three-run William Jewell leads on both occasions and crossed the better half of the .500 mark for the first time in 1981. LCC is 15-14 and, of greater consequence to coach Larry Hays, the Chaps are showing signs of melding rather than symptoms of disintegration.

'We're starting to be a team now." Hays said, relieved at the prospect. "Earlier, we just weren't a team. Everyone intended for it to happen, but it wasn't happening. We've been a different club since last Friday. We're good and we're going to get better every day

Lineup changes instituted during a four-game sweep of Cameron State last weekend continued to spiral upward on LCC's success chart. Hays' adjustments have mended fences in the Chap defense. Karl Mahan, who was sent back to his familiar right field after starting the season as second baseman, used his speed to make an outstanding over-the-shoulder running catch of a drive to deep right-center field in the Balls like that have been dropping and making for long innings the last couple weeks," Hays said, of the Mahan reception. "Our defense is shaping up.

New second basemen Gary Hix and Scott Lockwood handled their chances without error Monday, while third baseman Lewis Stephenson and shortstop Oscar Cardenas, who traded positions last Saturday, show promise of solidifying the left side of the infield.

Mahan and Jimmy Durham, the new ly-installed leadoff duo in the Chap batting order, once again got the offense in motion. They combined for five hits, including a home run apiece.

The middle of the Chap lineup was its usual self.

LCC lagged behind 5-2 in the middle of the third inning. Leland Creel, who had swatted a two-run homer in the first inning, then drove in two more runs with a double in the third. That closed the gap

While relief pitcher Jeff Craig limited the Cardinals to a pair of runs over the last four innings, the LCC batsmen knew no limitations.

Durham's two-run homer and Craig's run-scoring single in the fifth inning gave LCC a 7-5 lead. Pinch-hitter Mitch Mackey's two-run homer in the sixth gave LCC

The Cardinals plagued Chap starter Frank Davalos in the second inning of the second game. They scored the game's a loss for extra-base hits, retaliated in the bottom of the third.

Cardenas and Mahan each hit a solo homer and the score was 3-2. One inning later, LCC led 4-3 on Stephenson's tworun homer. Four rest-and-relaxation runs crossed the plate in the fifth, the key hit another two-run home run, again by

NCAA's Highest-Flying Seeds Fly Home Early

"It would seem," Ron Abernathy observed, "that this year, the word 'bye' is short for 'goodbye.'

Louisiana State's assistant coach knows whereof he speaks. Eight of the 16 teams which received first-round byes waved bye-bye to the rest of the field in the National Collegiate Athletic Association tournament by the end of last weekend's second

And that included the nation's three top-ranked teams -DePaul, Oregon State and Arizona State - leaving LSU's Tigers, rated No.4 in the final regular-season poll, the highestranked team still alive heading into the regional semifinals.

The other teams to receive first-round byes, and then left sooner than expected, were UCLA, Wake Forest, Kentucky, Louisville and Iowa. Along with LSU, the "bye" teams still alive are Notre Dame, Virginia, Tennessee, Illinois, Utah, North Carolina and Indiana

"Considering all the other upsets," Notre Dame coach Digger Phelps said Monday, "we are awfully happy to be where we are right now.

Thursday night it's Brigham Young, 24-6, vs. Notre Dame, 23-5, and Virginia, 26-3, vs. Tennessee, 21-7, in the East Regionals at Atlanta; and Kansas State, 23-8, vs. Illinois, 21-7, and Utah, 25-4, vs. North Carolina, 26-7, in the West at Salt Lake Ci-

Notre Dame has been a giant-killer of sorts dating back to the 1940s. More recently, the Fighting Irish have halted winning streaks of 28 games by Virginia (this year), 26 games by DePaul (last year), 29 games by San Francisco (1977), 34 games by South Carolina (1974), and 88 games by UCLA (also 1974).

Now Notre Dame faces the unenviable task of trying to put the clamps on Danny Ainge, BYU's scoring machine whose 37 points last Saturday helped demolish UCLA's once-awesome

In the schools' only previous meeting, in New York's Madison Square Garden Dec. 28, 1956, the Irish routed the Cougars

"We couldn't have been more impressed with Brigham Young after watching them beat UCLA," Phelps said. "Danny Ainge is a true All-American and the rest of their players complement him so well.

"They've got tremendous size up front, yet they run the fast break as well as anyone. They look like a lot of the Olympic teams you see because they are big and physical. They beat UCLA at their own game, and I didn't think anyone could out-

"I don't know whether we'll be able to count on Orlando or not," Phelps said. "We'll keep him out this week and see how things look Thursday night."

Physicians have indicated that rest - perhaps six weeks' worth or more - is the only medicine for Woolridge.

Fans In Stands Support Coach Kush's Innocence

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) - Former Arizona State University football coach Frank Kush grabbed punter Kevin Rutledge by the face mask after a bad kick in a 1978 game and shook it vigorously but did not punch him, three spectators testified

One other witness said he watched Kush latch onto Rutledge by the shoulder pads "near the neck area," but did not see a punch.

Rutledge is suing Kush, the university and others for $2.2 million in damages. He claims Kush split his lower lip with a "knuckle-punch" following a 27-yard punt in the fourth quarter of Arizona State's 41-7 loss to Washington Oct. 28, 1978, in Se-

Kush has previously testified that he "can't ever recall touching Rutledge" in the game and "was nowhere near him" when the incident supposedly happened. Rutledge, who now attends the University of Nevada-Las Vegas, also alleges Kush and former Arizona State defensive secondary coach Bill Maskill harassed him into quitting the team in 1979 and forfeiting his scholarship.

Kush, in testimony, and Maskill via a deposition, have denied the harassment

The four Washington witnesses called to the stand Monday represented the final ones for the defense in the trial's first phase which is now in its seventh week. Maricopa County Superior Court Judge Thomas C. Kleinschmidt said he may present the case to the jury of 10 women and three men "sometime on Wednesday for deliberation.

Monday's first witness — Edward "Jed" Jennings, a Seattle retail store owner and season-ticket holder to University of Washington football games - said he was "250 feet from the Arizona State sidelines" when the alleged altercation occurred.

"After the punt, the punter was trotting slowly off the field. Two or three steps from the sidelines. Frank Kush confronted him straight on and grabbed him by the front here." Jennings said, pointing to a spot slightly below the knot of his necktie.

He (Kush) shook him. They conferred for about 10-15 seconds and then the punter walked away to a spot behind the team bench. Another coach in street clothes - or it could have been another player - then came over to him (Rutledge) and talked to him. It looked like he was being consoled after being chewed

"There was no such action," he said. "But I thought it was kind of odd that someone would grab somebody like that when the game was already lost. I didn't think it was right.

The 41-7 loss to Washington was the worst of Kush's 22-year career as head football coach at Arizona State

Three ex-Sun Devil players have previously testified they saw Kush grab Rutledge by the face mask with his left hand, shake his helmet from side to side and then deliver a right uppercut under the face mask to Rutledge's mouth.

Three other former Arizona State players, however, said they observed the grabbing of the face mask by Kush but saw no punch thrown. After the game, Kush allegedly berated Rutledge in front of the team - telling him to "go stick your head in a bucket of water and drown yourself." Kush is also accused of telling writers that Arizona State's kicking game "was sorry" and "that kid (Rutledge) will never kick another ball for ASU.

Judge Rejects Motion In Mason's Case

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) - A Tucson Superior Court judge has again denied a motion by Tony Mason's attorney that all records, documents and evidence in the case be sealed, but agreed Monday to a one-month postponement of the former of Arizona football

In his argument for preventing further public access to the Mason court files, attorney Richard Gonzales said that recent articles in the Tucson Citizen and Arizona Daily Star have hed the effect of tent that his client cannot get a fair trial.

In criminal law, there is a clear distinction between confession and incriminating statements. Gonzales said.

He described a confession as a defendant's complete acknowledgement of the commission of a crime. He said nowhere in the Mason depositions state that Mason "confessed" to a crime.

The 'blurring' of this distinction, he said has had the "out-and-out effect" of creating a prejudicial atmosphere for the Star Feb. 22 and in the Citizen on March 5 and March 13 have contributed to a "trial-by-press" atmosphere because they contained "reporters' inferences' of what Mason's defense will be. The articles cited by Gonzales contained references to university travel documents, interviews with university finance officials and sworn depositions by the school's president John P Schaefer and athletic director David Strack.

This is not a classic fair-trial, freespeech situation," Gonzales said, explaining that he was not attempting to prevent the media from covering pretrial developments in open court.

'All I'm asking the court to do is restrict the media's access to documents being filed in this case and not to permit them to obtain and interpret the documents in a manner they feel will sell newspapers. In a short rebuttal to Gonzales' argument, state assistant attorney general Lindsay Brew said the documents Gon-file at the university or were obtained from a private court-reporting service in each instance, "not in the court's power to control."

Rural Solidarity Farmers' Union Calls Strike Alert In Poland

ficial Rural Solidarity farmers' union called a province-wide strike alert in northern Poland today, ignoring a call for moderation from labor leader Lech Walesa that helped cancel a strike in Radom Province.

The peasants union, which lost a court battle for government recognition, declared the provincial strike alert, which can lead later to actual strike action, in the northern city of Bydgoszcz to support a farmers' sit-in Walesa in his most fervent plea to give the new government a chance, had warned Monday that Poland is in bad economic shape and urged workers to stay on the job and not squander the gains made by the free union since last summer's mass strike.

JERUSALEM (UPI) - Israel has warned the United States no amount of compensation will offset the damage to its security caused by a sale of sophisticated AWAC spy planes to Saudi Arabia.

Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir said Monday that relations with the Reagan administration have become "clouded" over U.S. sales of sophisticated weapons to the Saudis, which started with equipment for F-15 fighters, and he warned of an "explosion" in the region.

Aides say Shamir, who recently returned from a visit to the United States, was not told Washington that was also considering selling four E-3A "Sentry" spy planes, commonly known as AWACs, to the Saudis.

official prepared for talks with a Solidarity group from Radom today in a concession aimed at preserving the fragile labor peace the Soviet Union has demanded.

The announcement on the discussions with government negotiators prompted Radom's Solidarity group to cancel both a warning strike set for Wednesday and a week-long strike alert in the industrial center of 200,000 people, which is located 20 miles south of Warsaw.

Western fears that the Polish government might use a campaign against Jews to divert dissent from officials were dismissed by Communist Party Politburo member Mieczysław Moczar, who instigated anti-Zionist purges in 1968.

Moczar said in an interview with Zyc-Warszawy newspaper that he didn't think "anti-Semitic sentiment can be instigated in Poland" and said "we simply shall not allow it to happen." There are only a few thousand Jews left in Poland.

There were two anti-Jewish rallies earlier this month in which hundreds of demonstrators erected a plaque to Poles tortured or killed by "Jewish nationalists" in the security service in the early partment, charging that three hijackers of a Pakistani jetliner received machine guns during a stopover in Afghanistan, says it is holding Soviet authorities ac-

A statement from the Soviet Embassy in Washington called the accusations "completely groundless" and "crude and undignified."

The allegation, outlined Monday by spokesman William Dyess, was based on eyewitness accounts of the events at Kabul airport, where the Pakistani International Airlines flight spent the first five days of the 13-day hijacking ordeal which began in Pakistan.

'At one point, all three hijackers stood in view of Afghan and Soviet security personnel without any apparent con-cern for their own safety," Dyess said.

He added that several passengers aboard the plane alleged that the hijackers received additional weapons while in

They arrived with pistols, they left with machine guns," he said.

The hijacking started March 2 and ended last Saturday in Damascus when the three Pakistanis surrendered to Syrian authorities and freed more than 100 hostages in exchange for the release of 54 Pakistani political prisoners.

Dyess suggested that the Soviets, because of the 85,000 troops they have stationed in Afghanistan, are the controlling authority in that country. Asked whether the Soviets should be held accountable for the events at Kabul airport. Dyess said, "I don't see how the Soviets can entirely escape responsibility for what took place," He added that the Soviets refrained from publicly condemning the hijacking for a full 10 days.

Dyess said he did not know what motive Moscow may have had for its alleged complicity in the hijacking, but one offi-cial theorized the Soviets' actions may have been aimed at weakening the re-gime of Pakistani President Mohammed Zia ul-Haq.

The hijackers have identified themelves as members of political group led by Murtaza Bhutto, son of former Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto, who was ousted by Zia in a coup four years ago.

tions of Soviet complicity in the hijacking follow previous charges that Moscow has been engaged in international terrorism in such areas as El Salvador, the Middle East and Africa

While criticizing the Soviets, Dyess indicated he was encouraged by Libya's de-cision not to give landing rights to the plane carrying the Pakistani prisoners who had been freed in exchange for the release of the hostages aboard the air-

Pentagon Wants Hospital Beds Reserved For War Casualties

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Pentagon is urging the nation's civilian hospitals to set aside about 50,000 beds to help care for heavy casualties that would be expected early in a major war.

Officials emphasized this effort is in no way prompted by any current tensions, but is part of prudent, long-term planning "to build a wartime system on foundations existing in peacetime.'

Help from civilian hospitals, especially in the first month of a major war, would be vital because the anticipated casualties likely would swamp military and Veterans Administration hospitals in the United States, officials said.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger has signed an appeal for aid from civilian hospitals and the program, in the planning stage for about five years, has the backing of the American Hospital Association and the American Medical Asso-

"Because of technical advances in weaponry on the battlefield, we are now faced with the possibility of substantially short period of time," Weinberger said.

"In addition, we will not have the past luxury of time to build and mobilize the necessary military medical support base here in the United States for casualties returning from a large-scale war fought in another part of the world," the defense secretary said.

So far, officials developing the Civilian-Military Contingency Hospital System report they have won voluntary agreements from 58 civilian hospitals to allocate nearly 4,200 beds in the St. Louis, Seattle and Norfolk, Va., areas.

James T. Doherty, the program director, said in an interview he and aides planned to visit 28 areas of the country to explain why the system is needed and to solicit their interest."

The objective is to enlist as many civilian hospitals as possible in the vicinity of existing military bospitals and within a relatively short reach of air bases into which casualties would be flown from with hospital officials in the Sacramento, San Francisco and Oakland areas of Cali-

In the event a civilian hospital accepted military casualties, officials said, they would be paid for their services.

The hospitals would be expected to use their own staffs of doctors, nurses and other personnel to treat the casualties, which experts said would begin to arrive in the United States from the war zone within 48 hours of the outbreak of fighting.

After the initial crunch period, officials said, military hospitals in the states would gradually expand to wartime capacity, including assignment of reservist doctors who would be ordered to active Weinberger has expressed concern about an Air Force proposal to shuttle 200 of the missiles among 4,000 shelters in Utah and Nevada. Environmentalists and economists have warned the com-plex system would have an adverse im-pact on those states.

A great deal of Weinberger's concern centers on lawsuits that could be brought against the basing program, thus delay-ing deployment of the missile beyond 1986. The program is estimated to cost. more than 340 billion.

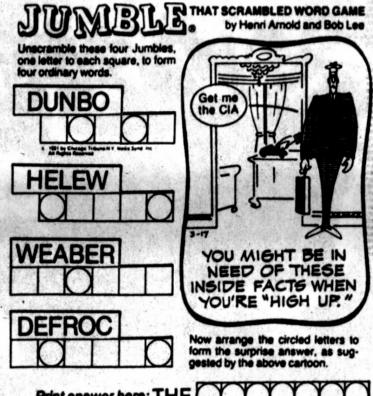

Weinberger has mentioned the possi-bility of deploying the MX aboard small surface ships, while other proposals would place them aboard submarines.

The appointment of three naval ex-perts to the panel suggests Weinberger has not totally dismissed the concept of sending the missile to sea, in part to make it more invulnerable to Soviet at-

Consumer Group Claims States Should Lower Insurance Rates

WASHINGTON (AP) - Auto insurance rates in most states should be lowered between 5 percent and 10 percent because high gasoline prices are causing people to drive less, a consumer group said today.

The report by the National Insurance Consumer Organization said a study could find no state where rate-making calculations have been changed to take into account current driving habits.

Patrol Team Formed By Atlanta Citizens

ATLANTA (AP) - Police have refused to approve an armed citizens patrol determined to protect children at a housing project, and only a handful of people turned out for a meeting aimed at uniting police and community in the city's investigation of 22 child slayings and disap-

One of two meetings scheduled Monday night to kick off a series of policecommunity "unity forums" had to be canceled for lack of interest when only 25 people attended the first session. Public Safety Commissioner Lee P. Brown said police had anticipated "a substantial amount of interest - which is not evident by the number in attendance so far."

"Certainly, though, it's not the number." Brown said. "If anyone's interested, we're willing to meet with them.

Meanwhile, young men said they would arm themselves with baseball bats and walkie-talkies to patrol a housing project near downtown Atlanta, despite criticism from top law enforcement offi-

Israel Green, head of the United Tenants Association at Techwood-Clark Howell Homes, said 40 people between the ages of 16 and 21 would patrol in pairs to protect the children living there.

Brown lashed out at the plan, saying, There is only one police department in this city and we will not condone any group that will be performing police activities.

Monday also brought word that a nationally known cult "deprogrammer" met with a special police task force investigating the cases. Deprogrammers are hired, generally by a cult member's parents who believe their child has been brainwashed, to persuade cultists to leave their groups. Paul W. Sloniowski, an attorney for

Ted Patrick of San Diego, said the deprogrammer met with task force memb over the weekend to discuss possible involvement by organized cults in the 20 slayings and two disappearances since Patrick will provide information on "different cults they have in their d here in Atlanta," his attorney said.

He said task force members told Patrick that no physical evidence on or near the victims' bodies indicates involvement by a cult.

Brown refused Monday to confirm Patrick's purported session with task force investigators.

The possibility of cult involvement was raised last year when volunteer searchers found a shrine-like altar near some railroad tracks. A burning candle and a can of olive oil were found under a cardboard box, but police have refused to comment on whether they believe the discovery significant.

A Cabinet-level task force headed by Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis was to meet again later today to discuss the issue with hopes of making a recommendation to the president this week.

Pressure has increased in recent weeks for Reagan to begin negotiating with the Japanese a voluntary reduction of cars allowed into the United States in an attempt to take some of the competitive pressure off the ailing U.S. auto industry, which lost $4.2 billion last year.

Lewis is known to favor such a rollback for the next three years, arguing in Cabinet sessions that Reagan's overall economic recovery plan will not be enough to help the industry immediately.

Government Delays Aid Applications

WASHINGTON (AP) -The Reagan Administration is reported to be holding up thousands of applications for the federal government's principal college aid program, which gives money to one student in four, while it tries to get Congress to tighten requirements The Washington Post today quoted unidentified officials as saying they had blocked processing of "basic educational opportunity grants" by Systems Development Corp. in Santa Monica, Calif., the contractor that does the paperwork. The grants can provide up to $1,750 a year About 2.8 million college students are getting them this year, about 6 million are expected to apply eventually for 1981-82 grants. Grants are awarded according to a formula that determines how much a family should spend on college expenses

The formula deducts certain living costs from total family income to determine how much is available for college. The Carter administration decided in January to increase the allowable deduction for 1981-82 living costs by 12.5 percent to compensate for inflation, thus reducing the amount to be applied to college expenses. The Reagan administration, however, announced a regulation to eliminate the adjustment. The elimination probably would drop 100,000 students from eligiblity, and would save $183 million in the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, administration officials have said. Most of those dropped probably would come from families with annual incomes of $21 000 to $25 000

The administration also wants to tighten eligibility for loan subsidies now going to an additional 2 million students in a program that, in 1978, made everyone eligible regardless of income

Either house of Congress could overturn the regulation that dropped the 12.5. percent adjustment. Democrats in control of the House probably could muster the votes, but that would take time and leave many students uncertain about what they could count on this fall. Congressional sources were reported to be hoping to persuade the Education Department to substitute an across-theboard cut in grants for the regulation dropping the 12.5 percent adjustment.

More Banks Lower Prime

NEW YORK (AP) - More major banks today cut their prime rates to 17.5 percent, matching the industry low set last week.

Among those cutting their rates from the 18 percent level that had prevailed for a week were Citibank, the nation's second-largest, and No. 5 Morgan Guaranty Trust Co.

ne smaller, regional banks followed suit, and industry analysts said they expected the lower rate to spread nationwide within days. Chemical lead the move to 17.5 percent last week, but no other major banks followed until Chase Manhattan Bank, the third-largest, and No. 9 First National Bank of Chicago cut their rates Monday. The cuts reflect slackened loan demand from corporations in recent weeks and reductions in banks' cost of funds.

Some economists say they believe the economy will slow in the next few months. Henry Kaufman, chief economist at the Wall Street firm of Salomon Brothers, said he thinks the prime rate "may well fall further" this week.

Certificate Rate Lower

WASHINGTON (AP) - Banks and thrift institutions will be able to pay a maximum of 12.346 percent interest on six-month moneymarket certificates beginning Thursday, the lowest level in nearly five

The rate on the certificates, which require a $10,000 minimum deposit, is limited to 0.25 percentage points above the rate for 26-week Treasury bills, which sold for an average yield of 12.096 percent Monday, the Treasury said after its weekly auction.

The interest ceiling on the six-month certificates is down sharply from the current rate of 13.677 percent. The rate for 26-week Treasury bills dropped from 13.427 percent, the lowest since the 11.407 percent reported last Oct 20

Savers investing in 21/2-year certificates can earn 12 percent at thrift institutions and 11.75 percent at commercial banks. Those rates are at their federally controlled ceilings.

Patriarca, who already faces Rhode Island charges of ordering the 1965 slaying of Raymond Curcio, is free on $100. 000 cash bail after pleading innocent to that charge. No arraignment was scheduled on the latest charge.

The indictment charging Patriarca with being an accessory to murder was handed up Monday by a Bristol County Grand Jury in New Bedford, Mass. It alleged Patriarca ordered the execution of Robert "Bobby" Candos, an alleged bank robber, whose skeleton was found in North Attleboro, Mass., 11 years ago.

Authorities believe Patriarca allegedly ordered the slaying "because he thought Candos was going to turn federal witness against Patriarca in an investigation of mob activities," Rhode Island state police detective Anthony Mancuso

The case against Patriarca was based on information from an informer identified by Mancuso as avowed mob hitman Nicholas Palmigiano. A source who asked not to be named said Palmigiano was granted immunity in the case in exchange for his testimony

The Providence Journal-Bulletin quoted Palmigiano as saying he shot Candos on Patriarca's orders.

Palmigiano said he and reputed mob lieutenant Rudolph Sciarra drove Candos to a wood in North Attleboro after telling him they wanted to pick up stolen gold coins hidden there, according to the

Irish Avoided Color Green

AMHERST. Mass. (UPI) - The green that revelers don on St. Patrick's Day was for many years considered unlucky and was avoided by Irishmen who believed wearing the color was dangerous, says a folklore specialist.

Maria Tymoczko, a University of Massachusetts comparative literature professor who specializes in Irish folklore, says an Irish legend dating back more than 1.-000 years indicates the color green was associated with the other world ... a color associated with fairies.

'As with most supernatural things, fairies are dangerous," Miss Tymoczko said. "They not only did mischievous things, they did dangerous things like stealing children, young men and brides. They also did things like causing death to livestock and burning houses.

But about 200 years ago a wave of nationalism swept Ireland and the Irish adopted the color as their own, she said.

And the rampant wearing of green by Americans on St. Patrick's Day could have evolved because "fairy presence" is not so keenly felt in the United States. Miss Tymoczko said. 'Some people say the fairies never came to America.

Lebanese Hit Slopes To Escape War

FARAYA, Lebanon (AP) - Moslem and Christian skiers are swarming over the snow-blanketed mountains of this Mediterranean nation this winter, more worried about ice than the street battles and bombings below and Syrian-Israeli dogfights above.

Five seasons after the civil war. Lebanon's ski centers in the Christian-controlled Mount Lebanon enclave are booming. The closest, Faraya, barely a 45-minute drive from the capital, is open from late December until April.

The Lebanese tend to react to the violence in their war-weary country with

Most of the services at Faraya are run by Christian Phalange Party militiamen, who are responsible for security in the absence of the regular Lebanese government forces in Mount Lebanon.

The Moslems of West Beirut must cross leftist Moslem, Christian and Syrian peacekeeping checkpoints near the "green-line" that has divided the city into mostly Christian and Moslem halves since the war to get to the snow-capped mountains that tower over Beirut. But they don't complain.

I feel so totally isolated from the rest of Lebanon in Faraya. Nobody here cares if you are Christian or Moslem or Chinese," said one Moslem skier, adding quickly. "Don't quote me by name.

Since the civil war, there have been few instances of Moslem-Christian fighting. Street battles in various parts of the country most often pit rival private militias of the same religion against each other. or Syrians against Lebanese Chris-

At Faraya, it is not unusual to see Phalangist militiamen with Americanmade M-16 rifles slung over their shoulders having a beer at a recreation center or skiing in their green army fatigues - a sharp contrast to Lebanese skiers sporting the latest, brightly colored European ski fashions

Lebanese skiers are never far behind the latest European trends and fashions This year, teen-agers are wearing stereo headphones as they race down the slopes. On sunny days, many wear shortsleeved T-shirts.

The highest summit in Lebanon is the 9.881-foot-high Kornet Sawda, the Black Peak, in the northeast. But Faraya, with its 7.860-foot Mzaar summit and 12 lifts on three million square feet of land is the most accessible.

The Faraya-Mzaar Co has dropped plans for expanding the resort to meet international standards. The high-priced Faraya Hotel was closed due to lack of mid-week bookings, but the hotel's nightclub is still open on weekends

But in December last year, the company issued $2.7 million in convertible bonds to its shareholders in a move unprecedented in Lebanese history

Anthony Asserly, managing director of the British holding company that handled the bonds, said pre-1977 corporate laws in Lebanon had discouraged such transactions. Company officials hope the successful bond issue will be a harbinger of more seasons like 1980-81

Ingenuity Used In Smuggling

gling is big business in Hong Kong.

The drug smugglers use every conceivable method of getting past customs officers: some wear shoes with soles 3 inches thick, some carry suitcases with a secret compartment, and some wear jackets and vests with concealed pockets.

But despite the smugglers' many tricks, Hong Kong customs officers seized a record $16.6 million worth of illicit drugs last year.

The drug business is so profitable that smugglers are even prepared to risk their lives when trying to beat the customs

David Tong, assistant superintendent of the investigation division of the customs and excise service, said some smugglers even used the hard-to-detect "body cavity method" of hiding drugs inside their body.

"But smuggling drugs in this way can be lethal," warned Tong, referring to a case when a courier died of overdose after a plastic bag containing heroin burst inside his body.

In one peculiar case, a Thai 10-pin bowler who had previously won the Hong Kong Open championships, was caught carrying a bowling ball stuffed with hero-

The core was extracted from the ball and the cavity filled with heroin. With the thumbhole refilled by molten rubber, there was no trace left that the ball had even been tampered with.

But the trained customs officers noticed the nervousness of the bowler and in a thorough search of his baggage uncovered the drugs.

Most of the drugs brought into Hong Kong are from Thailand or Malaysia, and visitors from these two countries are often faced with a more rigid customs Knowing this, some sly couriers use diversionary routes by traveling via the Philippines or Taiwan, after picking up the drugs in Thailand or Malaysia, before coming to Hong Kong.

But the drugs seized from individual smugglers represent only a small fraction of the total amount confiscated by the customs department.

The customs officers made two remarkable hauls on ocean-going vessels at the end of last year, seizing almost $10 million worth of heroin base.

They uncovered 21 kilograms of heroin base, worth $7.6 million when converted into heroin, on board a Polish vessel

The drug was found during a search of the "My Jastarnia Bor," which was carrying a cargo of bone-meal fertilizer

Tong said: "That was the largest heroin-base seizure made on board oceangoing vessels in Hong Kong history."

And only nine days later customs officers confiscated another $2 million worth of drugs found on board the Panamanian-registered freighter "Singapore Is-

The customs and excise service also plays an important role in international cooperation on drug suppression by exchanging information on international drug trafficking with foreign law-enforcement agencies.

The magazine said other "headache jobs" are held by:

- And entrepeneur E. Sterling Hunsaker of Salt Lake City, Utah, who is $613 billion in debt - a figure about twothirds of the national debt. People magazine said Hunsaker, who has found and lost 40 businesses and easily qualifies for the "crowning award" for job headaches, is philosophical about his problems.

"I may be wiped out," he told the magazine. "But if worse comes to worst there's always the Guinness Book of

BELOW THE CREEK LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) - A 4,500foot sewer line has been laid here in solid rock, three to four feet below a creek. Engineers knew the new line would be submerged year round. "This meant the line would be subject to infiltration. To prevent that, the county used polyethylene pipe with fused joints that were literally infiltration free," said Jack Edmiston, engineer with Lexington-Fayette Urban County government. The 38-foot joints of Driscopipe were butt-fused on site above the trench through use of mobile fusion equipment.

Triglycerides are blood fats. When you hear triglyceride, think fat. Often high cholesterol and high triglycerides are associated with being overweight and with diet, but you can be skinny and have high levels.

Your cholesterol level is set by your liver. If you don't get a lot of cholesterol or fat in your diet, your liver may still manufacture too much cholesterol from other food substcholesterol from other food substances, and that can even include making cholesterol from carbohydrates.

Whether your cholesterol is in small packages of fat or is in larger fatty-cholesterol particles in your bloodstream makes a difference. This, and other important aspects of cholesterol and triglycerides, is explained more fully in The Health Let-ter number 15-2, Understanding Your Cholesterol, Triglycerides and Other Cholesterol, Triglycerides and Other Blood Fats, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, P.O. DEAR DR. LAMB - I drink diet soda because I don't want to gain weight. Recently I heard that a person would be better off to drink a smaller portion of regular soda in-stead, because diet soda contains a lot of salt, which causes the body to retain water.

DEAR READER — Nonsense.

Any weight a normal healthy person gains from reasonable amounts of salt intake is from retaining needed body water, except for water retention with premenstrual tension. Water retention is not body fat and has noting to do with being fat.

Granville's Prediction Faces Test

By CHET CURRIER

NEW YORK (AP) - In less than a month now, a verdict will be returned on the forecasting abilities of Joseph E.

The subject at hand is not Granville's much-publicized predictions of the stock market, although his Jan. 6 "sell everything" recommendation is still being hotly debated by many people in the financial community.

Rather, what's on the line is Granville's declaration that a major earthquake will hit the Los Angeles area in the early morning of April 10.

Glen King Parker, who like Granville is an investment adviser based in Florida, has taken up the gauntlet thrown down by his competitor, and scheduled a trip to southern California for the day in question. His firm, the Institute for Econometic Research, plans a $1,000-aplate "pre-earthquake gourmet dinner" at a Los Angeles restaurant on Thursday.

If there is a quake, the institute says, the proceeds of the dinner will be handed over to the city for a relief fund. If not, Parker says, he will give a champagne breakfast on the 10th for those who attended the festivities the night before.

Our own studies have concluded that there definitely will NOT be a major earthquake in Los Angeles at 5:31 a.m. April 10," Parker's organization reports.

All this proves nothing more than that Granville has no monopoly on showmanship in the forecasting game. When it's played by the current rules, both the winners and the losers get a prize - lots of publicity

With such doings afoot, it came as ironic news last week when Granville himself declared that he planned to soft-pedal some of the more flamboyant trappings of his act.

In his future meetings around the country with groups of investors and bro kers, he told subscribers to his market letter, he will be "changing the 'mix, putting more stress on 'teaching' in my seminars than on 'entertaining,' although any Granville presentation will always be

For now I will put away the chimpanzees, the costumes, the songs, and tell the story in deadly serious words,

Whether he dresses in the robes of Moses or a pin-striped business suit, however. Granville is certain to remain a controversial figure in the world of Wall

When he tosses off one-liners like "I tell you in all candor that I'll never make another major mistake in the stock market Vancouver, British Columbia, Feb. 24, 1981), it provokes snarls of anger and contempt from people who work in Wall Street under the watchful eye of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

If I said the kind of things he does, I'd be thrown out of this business in a minute." one such analyst muttered the other day.

Wall Street hates my guts," Granville acknowledged during his February stopover in Vancouver. "But I could be the brokerage industry's best friend, because if they would eliminate their fundamental research departments and follow the market as I do, their commissions would soar.

In that last sentence. Granville made a telling - and remarkably frank point about the large coterie of admirers he has attracted among brokers dealing with the public

You may argue, if you choose, that Granville's system makes big money for the investors who follow it. Or you may argue that he inevitably will lead them to

But either way, anyone who follows Granville's periodic changes of advice winds up doing a lot of buying and selling, paying commissions on every ticket. And that, whether it turns out profitable or not for the investor, is a broker's bon-

The Gift of Self Need For Reindustrialization Apparent

By JOHN CUNNIFF NEW YORK (AP) — Does the United States need to reindustrialize? A little reminder might help you answer. The automotive industry spilled more than $4 billion in red ink last year. Its share of the market is shrinking, forcing cutbacks among suppliers. Chrysler Corp. still bleeds, losing $140 million in

Passenger railroads are probably a thing of the past, commuter lines are los-ing money, and all but a few airlines are struggling to remain aloft. Meanwhile, the cost of energy to drive them rises re-

So do interest rates. One consequence is that many savings banks and savings and loan associations, which have longterm, low-rate home loans outstanding, are losing money every day. Many of them could fail.

Meanwhile, some of them are effec-tively out of business, a condition to which builders and homebuyers can at-test. The housing industry is a disaster. The demand is there, but the ability to fill it is not

Analysis

Housing and cars are basic industries. So is steel. Steelmakers are managing, despite accusations that their production facilities aren't competitive, but mainly because they are diversifying outside of Small business is also basic, and it is also hurting. High interest rates, taxes, paperwork, regulations and frequently an inability to compete for labor are harassing it. Small business, remember, is the vocational school for many trades, the apprenticeship system for jobs. So, does the United States need revitilization? Of course; the system has broken down. Beyond the generalization, however, the details aren't clear. There's even confusion about the meaning of reindustrialization.

Some critics maintain that with services now dominant we shouldn't try to re-establish smokestack America. Some fear reindustrialization might be turned into a return to the past rather than an attempt to crack new frontiers. Some claim the breakdown of the old economy should be let to run its coarse, because the new economy already is being de-

If the old economy should be left to die, however, the question arises about how to accommodate to the death throes. If other energy sources are to propel automobiles, what is to be done with Chrysler until then? If steel is an industry that inevitably moves to the nation with the latest equipment and low labor costs - for example from the United States to Japan and, who knows, eventually to China — should the United States fight to retain it? And textiles? Shoes? And transistor

Should the nation return to coal, of which it has an abundance? Or should it nurture the embryonic solar industry, in which thousands of innovative entrepreneurs are now seeking breakthroughs?

Should stick builders — those who build houses board by board on site - be encouraged, or should we seek to develop the construction of homes in factories, with possible advantages in productivity?

America to get the lead out of its pants. It's a very safe position to take, and it makes for great public relations. But where should it get moving to? And how?

Should there be a blueprint and feder-al incentives for it, or is that just asking for more federal intervention, which may have been one of the major factors in peeding the breakdown of the old

Would it be more the American way to simply relieve the negative pressure of interest rates, taxes, regulations and other impediments and let market factors dictate?

Those are the questions. Far tougher questions than whether or not the country should reindustrialize.

Diplomat Reminded Of Ireland's Contributions

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

NEW YORK (AP) — The rain, no doubt, was spilling out of a black sky, and a wind that would shave you was blowing in off Dublin Bay. The praties at lunch probably were cold, and the beer warm and a taxi wouldn't stop if you were the Cardinal-Archbishop of Armagh.

You do get an occasional day like that in Ireland. It was probably on just such a day that stoom ton, the cultural affairs and press officer (a contradiction in terms there?) at the U.S. Embassy in Dublin, poured It was probably on just such a day that Robin Berring-out his rain-sodden soul to a friend in a private letter.

Ireland, he sobbed into his typewriter, "is pretty small potatoes" compared to the rest of Europe, "a great place to visit ..." but "the high cost of goods, their unavailability, the dreary landscapes, the constant strikes and the long, dark and damp winters combine to gnaw away at one's enthusiasm for being

The amazing thing, he wrote, was that "the Irish manage to muddle through with such good humor, pluck and inventiveness," even if the most gripping is-sue among them seemed to be whether President Reagan's ancestors really came from Tipperary.

As the luck of the non-Irish would have it, a copy of the letter was mistakenly put in a packet of press releases and wound up in the hands of the Irish

Ah well, not to worry. The Irish are a tolerant people. Berrington (which sounds like an English name) was already on his way to a new assignment in Japan before the Provos could hasten him on his way by adding a touch of realism to that old Celtic blessing about the road rising with you and God holding you in the palm of His hand.

Your man, as they say there, may have spoken the truth. One or two days out of 365 may be a trifle on the beastly side in the Auld Sod.

It's not every morning one can open the window and exult like the 17th century philosopher-physician John Locke (an Englishman, by the way):

'O Ireland, isn't it grand, you look! Like a bride in her rich adornin With all the pent-up love in my heart

I bid you top o' the mornin' There are those rare other days as Dubliner George Bernard Shaw discovered when he came home for a visit after a long exile in London:

'At last I went to Ireland

'Twas raining cats and dogs; I found no music in the glens. No purple in the bogs, And as for angel's laughter in The smelly Liffey's tide -Well, my Irish daddy sid it, But the dear old humbug lied." Small potatoes?

Then, too, those small potatoes had a way of sprouting. From Irish roots, 15 U.S. presidents from John Adams to Ronald Reagan got to occupy the White House designed by Kilkenny architect James Hoban and modeled after Leinster House in Dublin, the home of the old Irish Parliament. Nine signers of the Declaration of Independence were of Irish ancestry, including four born there. Henry Knox and 21 more of George Washington's generals were from Ireland.

Anyhow, diplomat Berrington should find Tokyo to his liking: the smog, the traffic, the commodity prices, the raw fish, the crowded subways, the lilting language, the courteous people, the cultural richess of Sumo wrestling and Geisha houses, the bowing and kow-towing.

After that, there's always Reykjavik. For the weather.

Indian Craft Revived By Students

PROVO. Utah (AP) - A group of Native American Indians at Brigham Young University is reviving the ancient art of Indian flute-making.

John Rainer, a Pueblo-Creek-Chey enne Indian from Taos, N.M., who has spent the past seven years collecting information about Indian flute-making, was approached in 1976 to teach this unusual craft at BYU. Rainer is a member of BYU's Indian Education Department and now instructs 20 Indian students from several tribes including the Navajo. Comanche, and Apache.

He discovered during his research that, although some music has been written in both early and recent times, most of the sounds and rhythms have been handed down by voice

Historically, most Indian tribes creatof music in two ways - with the voice or

But many flutes probably did not lay easily nor have a range of notes. Very few of the old flutes passed down through the generations play at all, beause of cracks and holes in the fragile instruments. Rainer said.

Initially. Indians would carve their flutes from pine, cedar, alderwood, cottonwood or other soft wood by cutting a tree branch lengthwise. After hollowing not the soft core, the flute-maker would are sap from the tree or scrapings from inimal hide as glue to hold the two mes es together "These early methods. however, created problems when the flutes dried - causing holes or cracks, Rainer said. "Then came the challenge putting the fingoles in the right places ind making them the right size

The flute was a sacred and personal symbol to the Indian, according to Rainer "Some fathers would not teach their own sons how to make or play a flute in certain tribes." he explains "Other tribes had such a religious attitude toward the flute that the owner would keep ! wrapped with special coverings, and only play it at certain rituals. In other ises no one was allowed to touch the flute or even talk about it The flute was also used as a war signal in courting, for religious ceremonies or to accompany the daily work of grinding corn. As a war signal, "the flutist would play the instrument around the Illage where it was clearly understood warning by the people. said Rainer However, the enemy would be fooled this and think the young warrior was playing the flute for his sweetheart.

There are five types of Indian flutes and Rainer teaches his students to carve the variety known as deflector.

The key to making a good flute is having the thickness of the body just right plus having the correct angle on the sharp edge over which the air is flown to produce the sound.

A hole is left in the end as a mouth piece through which to blow. A few inchis down the tube, a vertical wall blocks the air and pushes it up against a raised node (deflector) tied on top of the flute This allows the air to be deflected down into a hole to continue its way through the flute and out four or six holes drilled using the top of the flute. A piece of contruition paper or metal plate raises the

In the early days, flute-makers would use a quill, leaf or a thin piece of bark from a tree as a gasket to raise the node just enough to allow the air to cross the sharp edge and go down the tube. Rainer explained. "This is one of the most difficult things to do in making the flute have a good sound - to get the thickness of the paper or metal gasket

Students can tune the flute at least one octave by using a round file to adjust the holes. If they make the holes too large, then that section of the flute can be removed and a new piece glued on. Since each flute is tuned individually.

few flutes could ever be played together. Rainer bases the flute on the diatonic major and natural minor scales. He tries to get at least an octave and some have an extra note or two "This makes the Indian flute limited in terms of Western music, but with a throat or diaphragm vibrato there's really no sound as entrancing and soothing as an Indian flute," he

Greek Exiles Seek Refuge At Club

MOSCOW (AP) - A storefront club just off Red Square is a hub for former Greek citizens lobbying for Greek government permission to return home after three decades of Soviet exile.

Snow pelts the pastel-green club on Sapunova Road, opposite the huge GUM department store, but the atmosphere inside is as warm as an Athens cafe.

Aging Greeks and their Russian wives huddle at wooden tables over tiny cups of strong coffee, talking animatedly, while a trio of Greek students from Moscow University play board games in a corner.

The walls are hung with pictures of the Acropolis and other landscapes of Greece, and there are portraits of Greek Communist heroes and Red banners.

'Unite your voices for quick unconditional and legal repatriation," one banner proclaims.

The 70 club members are remnants of the estimated 80,000 Greeks who fled their homeland after the 1946-49 Civil War, in which government troops defeated Communist forces.

Most of them settled in Soviet-bloc countries after being stripped of their citizenship by the Athens government for political and common crimes during the uprising. About 15,000 came to the Soviet Union and began new lives, some marrying Russian women and taking Soviet cit-

Greek officials say their numbers increased to 50,000 or more with the birth of children, and there are only about 4.-000 left, including 2,500 of the original emigrants. Those who want to return home are steadily receiving permission to do so. Greek officials say.

But Vasilis Bakalis, president of the Greek Political Exiles Club of Moscow, says not everyone is being welcomed back by Greece

Bakalis said he had been deprived of his citizenship in 1949. He fled to the Soviet Union and settled in Tashkent with the largest group of Greek immigrants, married a Russian woman and moved to Moscow, A Soviet-trained engineer, he is now deputy director of an automotive en-

Now a Soviet citizen. Bakalis was per nitted to take a two-month vaca Greece in 1976. But he says authorities there have refused to restore his citizen-

They only want so-called 'desirable' people to come back permanently. The decisions are made arbitrarily by the government," he said

The Soviets are prepared to let all the Greek exiles return, he added, "The Soviets would pay our way to our hometowns and villages and transport cargo

Bakalis stressed that many Greek exiles had received Soviet university training or acquired skills in professions such as mechanics and agriculture and would be an asset to their homeland. Greek officials said the pace of repatriation had picked up after the overthrow of the military junta in 1974 Recently, however, the Athens government ruled out a "mass repatriation" and stressed that cases would still be decidced on an individual basis.

Bakalis said most of the remaining original immigrants were 50 to 80 years old, although there was a new generation of children in their 20s and 30s who also wanted to go to Greece.

Man Deluged With Offers

ST. LOUIS (UPI) - A 64-year-old man who offered $30,000 to anyone who would marry him has been deluged with hundreds of letters from prospective brides from across the nation in the last two weeks.

Joseph A. Politte, a retired railroad engineer, said this week he has received more than 1,000 letters. He said he still has about 100 names on his list of "likely prospects Politte said he would receive an additional $500 a month in pension benefits from the Railroad Retirement Fund if he is married. He has promised to put $30. 000 in an irrevocable trust for his wife and give her free hospitalization.

Politte said he has received letters from around the country, including several letters from as far away as California and Washington, after United Press International carried the story of his marriage offer Politte, who already gets a pension of about $925 a month, said he doesn't need the extra money but is seeking a "marriage of convenience" to point out what he said is the inequity of the pension pro-

Israelis Produce Electricity From Sun

Israeli scientists has demonstrated a new way of producing electricity from the sun's heat by driving a liquified metal through a magnetic field.

The developer, a new firm called Solmecs Corp., which holds world patent rights on the system, calls it a "quantum leap forward" in technology and says it promises to produce electricity with no pollution, no moving parts, no bulky machinery and no expensive oil.

It could even be cheaper than present nethods of generating electric power. says David Schreiber, Solmecs' managing director. He estimated a total cost of $32,000 for a converter that would run without maintenance for 30 years and provide electricity for five average Israeli families or two more-energy-hungry American families.

The system is an invention of Profes-

One way the invention could work is with rooftop solar panels to absorb the sun's heat in a closed cycle of a liquified alloy of sodium and potassium, metals which become liquid at relatively low

A volatile fluid like Freon, which is used in refrigerators, is injected into the hot metal and vaporizes, acting like a propellant as it expands to drive the liquid metal between the poles of a powerful permanent magnet. Electrodes would pick up the electricity that is generated by the flowing metal. The gas would separate from the metal and be reliquified in a condenser, where its warmth could be used to heat water for homes and factories. Solmecs Corp. also says the system could be based on heat from geothermal sources or industrial plants, to harness the energy that otherwise is wasted by being vented into the environment. The electricity could be used on the spot to power a factory or apartment block, or it could be fed into the area grid at peak consumption periods.

cents per kilowatt hour, compared to 12 cents per kilowatt-hour for conventional generation of electricity. He said costs were more than 10 times higher for photovoltaic cells, the other current technology for generating electricity from the Solmecs is investing a minimum of $2 million, Schreiber said, to build the 10kilowatt prototype. The engineering work will be done by the Rafael group, Israel's armament development authority, and Branover is cooperating in research with the U.S. Government's Argonne National Laboratory near Chicago.

Branover is famous in Israel for having paid a record high "education tax" to emigrate from the Soviet Union - $32. 000 — because of his advanced degrees in physics, math and hydrodynamics.

pelled his laboratory at Beersheba into world ranking, specializing in research in liquid metal magnetohydrodynamics.

The field of magnetohydrodynamics has been considered a promising potential source of electric power for some time, but scientists had not devised a practical way to tap the source. One trend in research was to find a way to drive a conductive gas between the poles of a permanent magnet.

Branover's innovation was to use liquid metal in the process, and his laboratory demonstration model used mercury.

In 1774, Suffolk County delegates at Concord, Mass., passed resolutions condemning British parliamentary acts affecting America. The resolutions were carried to the Continental Congress at Philadelphia by Paul Revere.

Reagan Alters Policy On Human Rights

WASHINGTON (AP) - It took President Reagan just six weeks to dismantle one of the hallmarks of Jimmy Carter's four-year foreign policy.

Without making any major speeches on the subject, without any white papers, the new administration sent clear signals to authoritarian regimes that it will not take a harsh view of transgressions of human rights - so long as the regimes are friendly to U.S. interests.

Item: The Reagan administration lifted the ban on Export-Import Bank fi-nancing of trade with Chile. Carter imposed the prohibition to protest Chile's lack of cooperation with the investigation of a terrorist attack on one of that country's former diplomats - an opponent of the Chilean junta - in the streets of Washington.

Item. The second foreign leader received by Reagan was Chun Doo-hwan, a South Korean military strongman then awaiting election as president of his nation after squelching the opposition.

Commentary

Item: Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. has made clear that human rights will not be given high priority when policy is written. He says "international terrorism" is the ultimate violation of human rights and that is his tar-

Item: The most-outspoken critic of the Carter human rights policy — Ernest Lefever — is Reagan's choice to head the State Department's bureau of human rights and humanitarian affairs. Two years ago, Lefever told a House subcomards for other nations to meet.

Such items send clear messages to-other nations. "It's fair to say that much of what a government will or won't do in the way of repression stems from the atmosphere they sense in Washington," says an official in the Washington office of one major human rights organization.

Reagan, in his lengthiest comments on the subject, said recently that he be-lieves human rights are "very much a part of our American idealism." But, he said in a recent interview, the Carter administration "took countries that were pro-Western, that were maybe authoritarian in government, but not totalitarian," and punished them because they did not meet all of our human rights standards." At the same time, he said, mittee that the United States should have no laws establishing human rights stand-tries where there are no human rights."

In the view of human rights activists, too, Carter's record was far from consistent. His frequent discussion of human rights sometimes was backed up by action cutting off military assistance. But at other times it amounted to little more than lip-service.

Carter was criticized for being selective in his efforts, apparently feeling freer to put pressure on nations where U.S. security interests were not directly involved while treating South Korea and the Philippines more gingerly.

But even in those nations, the more repressive hands of the government seemed restrained by the Carter attitude.

Although authorities in Buenos Aires have reportedly arrested some of the leading dissidents in Argentina, there are few indications that Carter's targets have ernments in terms of the severity of re-pression, and the United States is send-ing out signals that it won't be interest-ed," said the official, who asked that she not be identified. "If a government is re-pressive, it is not restrained in any way by this administration."

Within the human rights community, there is a belief that the publicity generated by Carter's focus on human rights created an awareness that it was in the nation's long-term interests to monitor the treatment of people around the world by other governments.
