Iran 'Conciliatory' On Hostage Crisis

U.S. Believed Offering Deposit

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A Tehran Radio commentary took a conciliatory tone Friday on negotiations for release of the 52 American hostages as Algerian diplomats arrived in Tehran with the U.S. reply to Iranian demands for $24 billion to free the captives.

Three Algerian envoys, intermediaries in the negotiations, were greeted at Tehran airport by aides to Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai and went to meet Iranian officials. They declined to talk to reporters.

In Washington, informed sources said the U.S. reply contained an offer to deposit about half the money Iran has demanded in an escrow account in a neutral country so that Iran could claim the money once the hostages were released.

Officials in Washington said Iran had been told that Jan. 16 — four days before Inauguration Day — is the last practical day for reaching a settlement during President Carter's term.

There was no official Iranian response to the new American proposals, and unofficial comments have sent conflicting signals on whether Iran was willing to compromise on release of the hostages.

spending their 426th day in captivity Friday.

The commentary broadcast by Tehran Radio indirectly praised President Carter's administration for restraint, contrasting it with sharp criticism of Iran by President-elect Ronald Reagan.

Reagan labeled Iranian militants "barbarians" and "kidnappers" for holding the Americans since Nov. 4, 1979.

The broadcast said the U.S. government was prepared to turn over $6 billion to Algerian banks to cover Iranian demands and "because of this the (Western) news agencies called this the week of ending the hostage crisis."

Commentary Cut Short

Another Tehran Radio commentary that followed a news broadcast late Friday apparently was cut short, with the station switching to its sign-off tune and then a recital from the Koran.

That commentary referred to two earlier U.S. messages as examples of "the filthy and devious nature of the U.S. government," but added, "If we study the texts ... we clearly see that the U.S.A. implicitly accepted all the terms set for the release of the hostages and produced the U.S. president's signature as a guarantee of the implementation of Iran's demands."

The commentary then stated: "However, in Iran's latest reply, made public by the government last week, we only saw two points, neither of them new." At that point, the commentary was cut off without explanation.

Spy Trial Urged

On Thursday, an Iranian clergyman reputed to be a modernist among Iran's religious leaders, said documents found when the U.S. Embassy was seized proved the captives were spies. He said they should be put on trial.

A Tehran Radio commentary earlier this week suggested that if trials were conducted the hostages would be "executed." But Tehran Radio's tone mellowed by the time the Algerians arrived in Tehran.

There are conflicting views in Iran on how to solve the hostage crisis, ranging from moderates who appear to want the issue settled in an effort to enhance Iran's international position to fundamentalist Islamic hardliners who want the hostages tried and are unwilling to make any accommodation with the United States. Observers believe that the sharp split makes it difficult for the government to negotiate an agreement on releasing the hostages.

Reviewing developments in the past week, the broadcast on the state-run radio claimed Reagan threatened a 72-hour deadline for delivering the hostages once

Bani-Sadr At Front, Urges Iran Troops To 'Try Harder'

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, his conduct of the war under increasing criticism in Iran, visited front line positions Friday and urged Iranian soldiers to "try harder" to drive invading Iraqis from Iranian territory.

Bani-Sadr also responded to the criticism by a leading Iranian clergyman, telling him to "come to the front" and see conditions for himself before passing judgment, Tehran Radio said.

Tehran Radio said Bani-Sadr made the plea for a greater effort by armed forces during a visit to an unnamed base at the front on the 103rd day of the Persian Gulf war. The president also conducted a meeting with army and air force commanders at an undisclosed location in Iran's embattled Khuzistan province, the radio said.

Bani-Sadr was quoted as urging pilots and airborne troops to increase their efforts and to "infiltrate fierce blows on the enemy to guarantee victory."

On Friday, two parliament members joined hardline religious leaders in criticizing Bani-Sadr's performance as commander of the armed forces and head of the Supreme Defense Council. They charged inaction has enabled Iraq's invading forces to reinforce positions and escalate bombardment of Khuzistan's main cities, Tehran Radio reported.

Casualties Reported

It quoted Adel Asadnia, the parliament member from Ahwaz, as saying Iraqi guns were inflicting 20 to 30 civilian casualties a day in Khuzistan's capital city and that relentless shelling had raged night and day for the last three weeks.

"The armed forces commander-in-chief has failed to respond to parliamentary pleas for action and to secret session recommendations on how to break the military standoff in Khuzistan and in the western front," Asadnia was quoted as saying.

Another parliament member, identified only as Mr. Kiavash, was quoted by Tehran Radio as saying Iraqi artillery had "crushed the most sensitive areas" of Khuzistan and charged that "inefficiency" had allowed Iraq to strengthen its forces in the province.

Iraqi Reinforcements

"The Iraqis keep getting reinforcements in," Kiavash was quoted as saying. "They keep crushing Dezful and Ahwaz."

Bani-Sadr's political base in Iran rests on the allegiance of Iran's secular moderates and he has been at odds with some religious leaders and with Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai.

Avatollah Hussein Ali Montazeri, Iran's second most powerful religious leader, sent a message to religious leaders in Ahwaz Thursday saying that Iran was "wondering why" Iranian forces do not go on the offensive.

Invited To Front

According to Tehran Radio, Bani-Sadr answered Montazeri's criticism Friday with a telegram inviting the clergyman to "come to the front today or tomorrow to see for yourself on the spot, and then pass your judgment to the people."

"I think it would be useful if you met the battlefield commanders in these crucial days which will decide our fate and

Polish Hint Opposition If Russians Intervene

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — A government-owned Polish newspaper published a commentary Friday calling for more reforms in society and the Communist Party as well as safeguards to prevent a slide into repression.

Meanwhile, the leader of Solidarity, the largest independent trade union, hinted Poles would resist if Soviet forces intervened here, according to a Japanese report.

The state-controlled media made no mention of a fresh warning from Moscow against "anti-socialist forces" allegedly using the labor movement to thwart communist efforts.

The signed commentary appeared in Zycie Warszawy, the city's largest morning paper.

"Reform of the economy is not enough, the renewal is not enough," it said. "What is needed is to build barriers that guarantee all reforms will not be annihilated." Brief periods of liberalization in 1956 and 1970 were followed by repression.

The commentary also called for "openness of political life" in the party and attacked the principle of "democratic centralism," a Soviet doctrine that demands all party members obey every party decision.

The author said Polish authorities have at times been responsible for the "false interpretation" or "rejection" of Marxist-Leninist ideology.

"I don't understand why in such cases the honest and rightful activists are forced to back a group of people with whom they cannot agree," he said.

The article appeared a day after the Soviet Union warned Solidarity, which claims up to 10 million members, not to press for more reforms. The official Soviet news agency Tass said such action could lead to "chaos in the economy."

Tass also said "anti-socialist forces" were using Solidarity to undermine party and government efforts to "normalize the situation" in Poland.

Solidarity leader Lech Walesa was quoted by Japan's Kyodo news agency as saying Poles "would be ready to act in such a way we would not be criticized by the world as cowards" if Soviet forces moved into Poland.

But Walesa said he did not think the Soviets would intervene, according to the agency.

Kyodo also quoted Walesa as saying the union's top priority at the moment was the abolition of censorship, something officials promised during the negotiations that ended last summer's strikes.

The newly elected head of the Polish writers union was quoted as saying censorship should be relaxed but "the climate cannot be changed at once."

Jan Jozef Szczepanski, a novelist and playwright who is not a Communist Party member, told Zycie Warszawy that authorities had been "deluded into believing that literature was a danger."

He said he was optimistic the easing of controls already underway would continue, but added, "It cannot change in one day."

A parliamentary commission is drafting a new censorship bill that should be made public in a few weeks, but newspapers are already publishing commentaries.

Traffic Death Charge Filed

A 29-YEAR-OLD Lubbock man Friday was charged with involuntary manslaughter in the Thursday traffic death of John Willard Keel.

Antonio Rodriguez Rios of 1012 E. 28th St., No. 29, is accused of causing Keel's death in an early New Year's Day car-motorcycle collision at 19th Street and Avenue Q. The charge alleges that Rios was intoxicated at the time of the collision.

The criminal district attorney's office recommended bond be set at $2,500 in the third-degree felony charge, which carries a possible penalty of two to 10 years imprisonment and a fine of up to $5,000.

Keel, 21, was pronounced dead at the wreck scene at 2:30 a.m. Thursday.

Syria Denies Jordan Charge Of Massacre

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — The war of words between neighboring Syria and Jordan heated up Friday with Jordanian allegations that Syrian troops massacred 200 anti-government activists last week.

The report by the state-run Petra news agency in Amman was dismissed by a senior Syrian official in Damascus as "ridiculous" and an attempt to defame the Syrian armed forces.

Syria and Jordan, political foes, massed troops and tanks along their common border a month ago in a tense face-off that was eventually mediated by Saudi Arabia.

Petra quoted unidentified travelers arriving here as saying Syrian troops rounded up 200 people, alleged sympathizers with the outlawed Moslem Brotherhood guerrilla organization, and executed them in the central square of Aleppo, 200 miles north of Damascus. Aleppo has been a center of anti-government Islamic fundamentalist activity since Brotherhood members attacked the artillery school there June 16, 1979, killing 63 cadets.

Syria, which has strong Soviet backing in the Middle East, has blamed Jordan's King Hussein, along with Iraq and Egypt, of training the insurgents and providing them with military bases. Jordanian officials have denied the charge, although the Brotherhood is known to have a presence in the country.

The Brotherhood advocates a social order based on the Koran, Islam's holy book, and opposes Syrian President Hafez Assad's socialist policies.

In an interview with The Associated Press last month, a prominent Brotherhood leader, 59-year-old Jordanian lawyer Mohammad Abdul Rahman Khalifa, said the fundamentalist group operated under constraints in Jordan and was barred from publishing magazines or newspapers.

Travelers returning to Beirut from Syria in recent days have reported Aleppo to be calm, although the official Syrian media reported security forces killed nine Brotherhood members there and in the central city of Homs in the last week.

Petra said the crackdown on activists in Aleppo was continuing.

In Damascus, the senior Syrian official said, "The Jordanian regime wants to spoil the reputation of our armed forces, especially after our air force defended Palestinian camps in Lebanon on Wednesday."

He referred to an Israeli-Syrian dogfight in which Syria claimed to have downed two Israeli planes while losing two of its own MiGs. Israel denied the losses.

Syria has repeatedly accused Jordan's King Hussein of planning to join Israeli-Egyptian-American Mideast peace negotiations and of trying to usurp the role of

December '80 Among Warmest On Record

FAIR SKIES but cooler temperatures are expected across the South Plains this weekend as a cold front enters the area late today.

Today's high reading in Lubbock should be in the lower 60s, while Sunday's high should be somewhat cooler in the middle 50s. Tonight's low should be in the upper 20s.

Westerly winds of 10 to 15 mph are forecast for the Lubbock area this morning, but should shift to a northeasterly direction this afternoon as the front progresses.

Similar sunny, mild weather is expected across the rest of Texas today, but the cold front should lower temperatures over most of the state by Sunday.

Jeff Behrens of the National Weather Service said the cold front should extend to this region from New Jersey, snaking through Virginia, North Carolina, Georgia, Mississippi and Louisiana.

Cooler weather may be just what some West Texans want. December 1980 was the fifth-warmest December in the area since weather record-keeping began in 1914. Lubbock's highest temperature during the month was 78 degrees, achieved Dec. 17.

New record maximum temperatures occurred three times during the month. The 78 degree reading on the 17th broke the old record of 76 reached in 1962. The 77 degree mark the following day broke the 1978 record of 75 degrees. And the 73 degree reading the day after Christmas broke the old mark of 72 set in 1971.

The highest temperature in the South Plains reported during the month was 82 degrees at Post on Dec. 18 and at Seminole on Dec. 28.

The lowest temperature in Lubbock was 17 degrees on Dec. 20, but the lowest reading in the South Plains area came on Dec. 20th, when Silverton recorded a mere 10 degrees.

Most of the month's precipitation came on Dec. 8 and 9 in the form of rain and freezing rain and Tulsa even reported hail and snow at that time.

But for the most part, December was dry and warm, especially the latter half of the month. The weather allowed area farmers to make rapid progress in cotton harvesting so that by the end of 1980 the crop was essentially gathered

Snow Blankets Much Of Northeast Causing Hazardous Driving

By The Associated Press
Snow spread from the Great Lakes region into the Northeast on Friday, causing hazardous driving in several states and bringing Boston's buses and trolleys to a crawl.

At least one death was blamed on icy roads in Maryland, where up to a foot of snow was expected in the mountain regions.

Bone-chilling cold settled over much of the region.

Gale warnings were posted for Lake Erie and Lake Huron as well as along the Atlantic Coast from Rhode Island to Maine.

With more snow coming down, the National Weather Service reported that Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., had its heaviest monthly snowfall ever in December, about 5 1/2 feet. The 69.3 inches broke the previous record of 53.2 inches of January 1972.

A winter storm warning was posted in parts of Maryland, where snow accumulations had reached 3 to 6 inches with more still falling.

Roads in several northeastern states were treacherous. Trolleys and buses of the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority slowed to a crawl, with some becoming temporarily stuck on hills.

Elsewhere, there were a few isolated areas of drizzle over the northern Pacific Coast region. Mostly sunny skies and mild temperatures were the rule across the Gulf and South Atlantic Coast states, most of the Plains, the Southern Plateau, and the Great Basin.

Readings also were mild from the northern Rockies westward. It was very cold across the Great Lakes area, as arctic air spilled southward into Minnesota and Michigan.

Temperatures around the nation at 1 p.m. CST ranged from 11 below zero in Sault Ste. Marie, Mich. to 80 in Palm Springs, Calif.

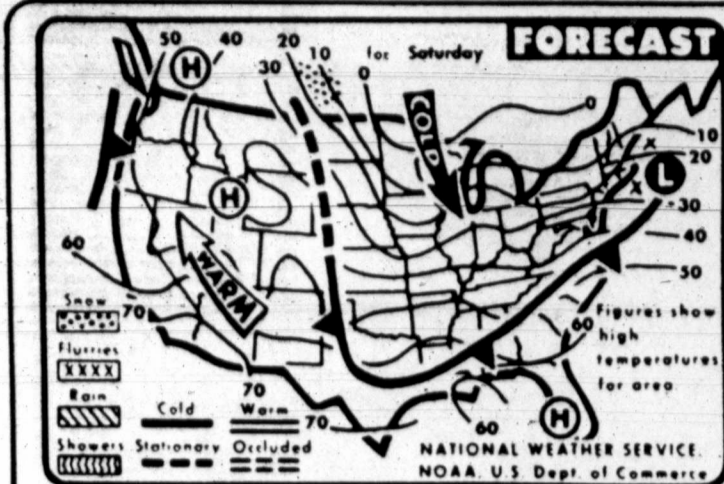

Here were some conditions in key cities around the nation.

Additional Freedom Observed In Poland

NEW YORK (AP) — China and the Soviet Union grew more repressive but Poland showed a marked rise in individual and social freedom during the past year, according to a survey released Friday by Freedom House.

The survey of world freedom called 1980 "the year of the Polish workers" and said their achieving of "relative independence" and "liberalization of expression" was a "significant, if always endangered, advance."

Freedom House, a non-partisan organization that for 40 years has monitored political and civil liberty around the world, lists countries as "free," "partly free" or "not free," based on a number of factors. These include whether a country permits its citizens alternative political parties or factions and the freedom to choose among different public policies.

Also considered are the fairness of elections and whether power is yielded to those elected, prevailing civil liberties and the independence of the judiciary and of the press.

The organization said that in 1980, 35.9 percent of the world's population lived in freedom, a decline of 1.1 percent. It said the free population was 1.6 billion people living in 51 nations and 29 related territories.

An additional 970 million people were living in 76 partly free places and 1.9 billion people lived in 62 countries and territories regarded as not free.

"China and the USSR had been listed as not free since the (survey) began nine years ago," Freedom House said. "At year end, these nations were more repressive than in 1979. The earlier, semi-legal dissident movement in China was extinguished in 1980. Increased suppression of dissent continued all year in the Soviet Union."

According to Freedom House, the sharpest losses of freedom occurred in Turkey, Upper Volta, Surinam, Bolivia, Liberia, Seychelles and Syria. Major losses also occurred in El Salvador, Grenada, Guatemala, South Korea, Taiwan, Western Samoa, Haiti and Zambia.

"Major improvements in their freedom status were noted for 45.9 million persons in four countries," the survey said. "Ghana and Peru went from partly free to free, and Uganda and Uruguay from not free to partly free."

According to Raymond D. Gastil, director of the survey, "the two major gains for the year were in Peru and Poland. This was the year of the Polish worker. It is regrettable that achieving the right of workers to organize their own unions in 20th Century Europe should have been a great achievement for freedom."

CRIME IN THE SUITES

Ring Around White Collar

TRANSITION advisers reviewing the operations of the Justice Department are talking publicly about de-emphasizing investigation and prosecution of anti-trust violations.

The President-elect apparently is committed to a shift away from the government's aggressive campaign against "crime in the suites" and toward a more traditional emphasis upon "crime in the streets."

But before the incoming expatriate businessmen proceed to implement that plan, they would be well advised to read—and consider the implications of—a business news magazine article.

The article is a cover story for a recent issue of Fortune magazine titled "How Lawless Are Big Companies?"

IN EXAMINING the criminal record of 1,043 major corporations since 1970, the magazine found 163 separate offenses committed by 117 of the nation's biggest companies.

Fortune confined its list of offenses to "five crimes about whose impropriety few will argue," i.e., criminal fraud, illegal domestic political contributions, tax evasion, criminal anti-trust violations and bribery (including kickbacks and illegal rebates).

"Eleven percent of major American corporations involved in corrupt practices is a pretty startling figure," the magazine concluded.

"Big-business crime hasn't been swept away by a tide of post-Watergate morality."

Asked Fortune: "What indeed is going on here? Why do some of the largest, most prestigious corporations in America get involved in complex scenarios of illegality that rival the paranoid fantasies of their bitterest critics?"

A NEW BOOK, "The American Way of Crime," offers still another unusually perceptive view of crime from colonial times to the present.

Some examples: In the 1770s, immediately before the Revolutionary War, merchant-patriots amassed fortunes through smuggling, tax evasion and other crimes.

In the 1850s, it was legal for Southerners to own slaves, beat them or even kill them—but it was a crime to help them escape from their sometimes brutal owners.

In the 1870s, it was a crime for mine workers to strike—but it was legal for detectives employed by the mining companies to threaten, assault or even murder the strikers.

"The American Way of Crime" documents the fact that the privileged historically have regularly evaded prosecution and punishment. The transition team would be well-advised to keep this in mind as they attempt to scuttle a program of criminal justice designed to insure that the rich as well as the poor obey the law.

SINCE VETERANS Administration hospitals experience a 40 percent turnover in staff each year, an absolute hiring freeze would quickly and markedly reduce the quality of care they could provide.

The EPA, required to monitor the safety of drinking water, already is in short supply of toxicologists who perform that task. They have moved on to higher-paying jobs in private industry.

If the EPA cannot replace those employees, it cannot meet its mandate.

Last but not least there is the Defense Department. Transition team members say more than 40 percent of the government's civilian employees work for the Pentagon. So any freeze would have to exempt the Defense Department if the President-elect is to keep his promise to strengthen the military.

Transition staffers who came to Washington with axes sharpened to prune the federal work force have their work cut out for them.

HEAT ON TRANSITION TEAM

Job Freeze Effect Chilling

TRANSITION AIDES assigned to figure out the details of an absolute freeze on the hiring of new federal employees are finding out that it's harder than it looks.

For one thing, turnover is considerably more rapid among low-level federal workers than it is among their superiors, that is to say $9,000-a-year clerks leave their jobs far more frequently than do $50,000-a-year managers.

For another thing, a hiring freeze has been in effect for the past two years.

In October 1978, President Carter restricted federal departments and agencies to replacing only 3 out of every 4 employees who left government service.

In March 1979, he tightened that freeze to permit the replacement of only 1 out of 2 departing employees.

AS A RESULT, the federal government has at least 30,000 fewer full-time employees today than it had two years ago.

The federal work force may decrease still further because of a new law modifying the calculation of federal pensions. Under that law, federal workers who retire after Feb. 1, 1981, will receive considerably less in pension benefits than earlier retirees.

The difference is so substantial that the Office of Personnel Management predicts that as many as 100,000 workers eligible for retirement benefits will leave government

Military Arms Business Takes Off Like Rocket

WASHINGTON—What has become an $8.4 billion annual business and is still growing? Soviet arms sales to the Third World.

The CIA, which understandably takes a keen interest in the matter, has made public its well-informed estimate of the Kremlin's trafficking in weapons during the last complete year and concludes that it is thriving.

Arms sales rebounded from a five-year low, the agency informs in language echoing a private corporation's cheery year-end report to its stockholders.

Brisk Soviet sales in 1979 were largely the product of heightened political unrest across North Africa and the Middle East.

To say the least, the countries of those regions absorbed almost 90 percent of the Soviet military exports. India and Ethiopia are other customers of some significance.

THE SOVIETS' success is attributed in part to a willingness to supply expensive advanced weapon systems on short notice.

The report is limited to arms deals with non-Communist developing countries. The Soviets' dealings with their own allies are not included.

Which means that the CIA is telling only part of the full story of the world arms traffic.

The leader has been and remains the United States with current sales to all customers, including its own clients in Third World, running at some $13 billion a year.

THE 1980 ELECTION may be turning out to be one for the books in more ways than history's eventual evaluation of its significance.

Books themselves are becoming a post-election issue in some communities. The American Library Association reports that demands for removal from shelves of works some groups find objectionable are up sharply.

Many of the complainants, according to the association, identify themselves as affiliates of the Moral Majority.

'It's Terrible--We're Going To Be Regulated'

GEORGE F. WILL:

Cabinet Door Open

WASHINGTON—'Tis the season for organization charts, straight lines connecting tidy boxes which purport to demonstrate who will be related to whom just how in Reagan's White House.

Remarkably, such charts are printed in newspapers that would be embarrassed to print astrological tables. But a new administration is like a new shoe: However well crafted, it will pinch until it takes the shape of the foot.

Reagan has surrounded himself with many high-achievers from the private sector. As one Washington veteran says, many of these people probably think they are leaving the world of commerce to do something "elevated."

The veteran Washingtonian says that word with the cutest curl on his lip, knowing as he does how little a Cabinet officer's formal power amounts to when not combined with a kind of cunning that is not often found in corporate life.

Government, even—perhaps especially—a mega-government such as this one, is a very personal business. And Reagan has just raised to the glory

Once Is Enough

WASHINGTON—Receipt is acknowledged of a letter from a federal government employee in Maryland who asked that his name not be used because his boss is a "bully" who reprimanded two other underlings for writing to The Washington Star.

Well, we should all face up to bullies, but that's easy to say for a guy who works only for a splendid boss named me. So we'll call this correspondent Paul Revere, one of our first anti-bullies.

Revere says it is untrue that federal employees contribute half the cost of their pensions.

"The way I figure it," says Revere, "is that the federal government—meaning the taxpayers—pays twice as much as I do into the pension fund."

GOOD POINT. But in fact Revere is wrong. In 1980, Uncle Sam contributed $13.5 billion to the fund—four times as much as that paid in by federal employees. The 50-50 concept of financing pensions was last observed in 1970.

As of now, the government's giant share of the cost is met by tapping taxes paid into general revenues.

Last year, retired federal workers hauled in an average of $1,050 a month. The average Social Security beneficiary got $330 if single and 50 percent more if married.

Federal employees can retire with full benefits at age 55 after 30 years of working, and at age 60 after 20 years on the job. The earliest a worker covered by Social Security can retire is at age 62, and he doesn't get full benefits until he's 65.

YEP, WORKERS covered by Social Security will pay "only" 5.35 percent of their wages in contributions toward their pensions this year. Federal workers pay 7 percent—but that's toward much more attractive pensions.

In most cases, federal pensions are bigger even than those benefits paid to workers who have both Social Security and private pensions.

Meanwhile, the Social Security system faces bankruptcy. That fate won't befall the federal pension system because it's supported by general revenues received in taxes levied against all of us, including those who will have to make do only with Social Security's relative pittance when they retire.

Then there is the matter of cost-of-living increases. Social Security recipients get one adjustment a year; federal retirees get two.

WAIT, THERE'S more. We now have Rep. Bob Michel, Republican leader of the House, saying Congress should consider scaling down Social Security's automatic annual cost-of-living increases tied to the Consumer Price Index.

He says his colleagues should do this because people over 65 don't buy houses and thus don't have to pay high interest rates on mortgages.

True. But apparently Michel has never heard of the federal pension racket. Those involved in administering that racket say the American taxpayer could save $1 billion a year if federal retirees—like Social Security pensioners—were limited to only one cost-of-living increase a year.

of his Cabinet a number of folks whom he simply does not know.

Sooner or later, every President seeks a solution to this problem: He has a number of people of approximately the same formal rank, some of whom he wants to see often, others he does not.

A President can not know in advance who will fall into which category. Lyndon Johnson solved the problem, in part, with his "Tuesday lunch." No one could claim a "right" to come to lunch.

Reagan will devise his solution when he gets to know his problem, meaning his colleagues.

REGARDING ONE unfilled position—press secretary—Reagan's people show signs of dizziness. First they floated, or leaked (the elephantine transition empire leaks at the seams, perhaps because it has so many seams) the thought that there should be perhaps four press secretaries.

Then Ed Meese—looking even more than usual like a cherub who fell, astonished, from a Rubens canvas—said: Golly where did that idea come from? It came from the Reagan people's idea that press secretaries have become too "prominent."

In a sense, they have. John Kennedy, with his eye for ways to focus attention on the White House, encouraged the centralization of information, of briefings, and other services that helped attract and institutionalize a large White House press corps.

IT MIGHT be nice—for Presidents, for the institutional balance of the executive branch, and especially for the suffering captives in the White House press room—were press secretaries more frequently to say: "There's no news here today—try the departments."

But in a more important sense, the office of press secretary is not prominent enough. To be effective—the press secretary must speak with the authority that can only come from access to the President and the policy-making process.

Jody Powell could do this, but only because he had a kind of personal relationship with the President that the country can not count on in every administration.

Therefore, something should be done to institutionalize the press secretary's stature. At the least, he should be a member of the national security council and the domestic council.

OFTEN IN any policymaking process, this question must be asked by policymakers: "How are we going to explain this?"

This is not just part of the process of showing what the Declaration of Independence calls "a decent"—decent, not slavish—"respect for the opinions of mankind." And it is not just elementary political prudence.

Another reason for institutionalizing the insistent asking of the question, "How are we going to explain this?" is that until you are clear in your own mind about your reasons for doing what you are doing, you can not be clear about what you are doing.

Especially in government, the nature of an act, and often its consequences, are contingent on the rationale for the act.

Perhaps the press secretary should even be raised to Cabinet rank. That could be compensated for—after Jeane Kirkpatrick's term, of course—by stripping Cabinet rank from the ambassador to the United Nations.

REAGAN'S PEOPLE are undoubtedly glad that the UN ambassador has that rank. Their nominee, Kirkpatrick, is, so far, the only woman in the Cabinet.

But it is zany for the UN ambassador to have that rank. It falsely suggests that the United Nations should be important to U.S. policy, and it confers upon the United Nations unmerited respect.

Kirkpatrick is one of the best selections Reagan has made, and not the least of her many virtues is that she has no illusions about that mischievous illusion-factory, the United Nations.

The Brighter Side...

It's said we don't see ourselves as others see us. That can be cured by running for office.

One big plus in solar energy is that you can look up and see how much of it we have left.

Overheard on the CB: "Watch out, there's a mop-head on a moped coming at you."

VIRGINIA PAYETTE:

Well, It Figures!

DALLAS—I knew it, I knew it, I knew it.

The reason I can't do math isn't that I'm stupid, it's just that I don't have a "math gene."

Somewhere along the line, back there when my genetic computer was being programmed, Mother Nature short-changed me in the digital makeup of my personal "chip."

Through no fault of my own, I wound up with a permanent "glitch" in whatever component it takes to balance a checkbook.

Boys have it because they're born with it. Girls don't because they aren't. It's as simple as that.

So say Johns Hopkins psychologists Camilla Benbow and Julian Stanley, who decided to settle, once and for all, the question of why girls don't take to arithmetic.

FROM 1972 through 1979, they researched 10,000 kids and came up with the conclusion that it's all in the genes.

Well, of course. It's the only possible answer. (Ask any woman.)

The children they studied were the brightest ones they could find—seventh and eighth graders who all tested out in the top 2 to 5 percent in mathematical reasoning ability.

They'd all been exposed to the same educational background (grubby stuff like fractions and percentages and square roots) and they all, girls as well as boys, liked math and felt it would be useful in their careers.

So what happened? The boys outperformed the girls on every one of the standard Scholastic Aptitude Tests (the ones high-school seniors take) by at least 32 points.

NOT ONLY that, the top-scoring boy in each group did better than the top girl, up to as high as 190 points better.

In one eighth-grade sampling, more than half the boys scored above 600 (800 is perfect)—and not one of the girls did.

This explains a lot of things. Like why my eyes used to glaze over whenever I was confronted with a problem that began: "If Farmer Brown sold six bushels of corn for..."

And why, when confronted with something that looked like  $2a + 8b \times 4c \times x$  my brain cells went on permanent "hold."

I fought addition to a draw by sneakily counting on my fingers and felt guilty about it for years, until somebody told me fingers were the earliest form of computers.

BUT I never conquered "concepts" or "sets" or "factors" or how to figure the angles of even an isosceles triangle.

Whenever my children needed help with their homework I sicced them on to Old Dad and escaped to the kitchen to bake a pie. (Not "pi"; 3.1416 never meant a thing to me.)

All through high school, I cleaved unto a skinny genius named Donald Wilcox (boy, was he ever blessed with that precious gene), who carried me through algebra, geometry and calculus like a mathematical monkey on his back.

On days when he turned up sick, I worried more than his mother did.

"Math anxiety"? Nah. "Math agony" is what I had.

One of the main reasons I latched on to Old Dad is that he's a genius when it comes to "creative financing." He has to be, to figure out my system of family budgeting.

I COULDN'T function these days without my handy-dandy calculator, and I'm not real sure I know how to work that right, either. (When it comes to figuring percentages, either it won't or I can't.)

So you can see why I leap at any theory that even suggests it's not my fault I'm a mathematical moron.

And never mind those theories from environmentalists who say it's only because my mother hated math and my father told me not to worry my pretty little head about it. She didn't... and he didn't... and I still do.

I'm with the Johns Hopkins folks, especially when they conclude that "sex differences in achievement in and attitude toward mathematics result from superior male mathematical ability."

It's as obvious as  $2 + 2 = 4$ . And let Farmer Brown do his own bookkeeping.

L.M. BOYD:

Pass It On...

Q HOW DO you account for the fact that other democracies get out far more voters on election days than the U.S. does?

A Some vote on Sundays. Austria, France, West Germany, Italy and Sweden, for examples. And some, like Australia, require the vote by law.

Juvenile authorities say their records prove that four out of five youngsters hauled downtown on delinquency charges are related by blood to other youngsters who've been hauled downtown on delinquency charges.

Q Which of the world's soldiers have the best rifle now?

A The Chinese, evidently. Or so contend the weapons experts. None other is as good as the Chinese AK-47 assault rifle, they say.

Women Join To Help Out Handicapped

By PAT GRAVES
A-J Religion Writer

In October 1967, David Todd married Beverly Ray at Oakwood Baptist Church in Lubbock and they moved to Oklahoma City, Okla.

In the fall of 1968, unknown to the Todds, Elena Arroyo, then 5½, a member of Mexico's Otomi tribe who was born without ears, underwent corrective surgery in Oklahoma City.

For the Todds and for Miss Arroyo, those two events marked the beginning of two distinct and significant paths. Those paths eventually and incredibly crossed 11 years later, thanks to a boy with cerebral palsy and an elderly foreign missionary.

The boy was Kelly Todd, the Todd's first child who was born with damage to the brain's motor functions. The missionary is Vola Grist, 72, a retired Wycliffe Bible translator now living in Duncanville.

Because there were no cerebral palsy centers near their home in Muskogee, Okla., Mrs. Todd began a one-woman campaign to start one in 1973, after being impressed by the center in Lubbock. It was during the initial fund-raising drive that she met Marguerite Bankston, who later proved to be the connection to Elena Arroyo.

First In A Series

Miss Grist went to Mexico around 1950 to live with the Otomis, formulate their dialect into a written language, teach them to read and write it and, ultimately, to translate the New Testament into their written dialect.

She lived down the hill from the Arroyos and was instrumental in getting Elena help and, finally, a home with the Todds.

It is ironic that the efforts of these two remarkable women of faith, on behalf of two handicapped children from two different cultures, should one day unite all of them in a common bond. How it came about seems more than a coincidence.

Elena Arroyo is one of 200,000 Otomis in Mexico. Her village, population 2,000, is in the mountains 80 miles west of Tampico and 200 miles northeast of Mexico City.

To get there, one must travel by car to a nearby market town, then proceed by foot or burro for up to six hours, depending on the depth of a river which must be crossed 16 times.

There is no electricity, no running water and no medicine. To the Todds' knowledge, a doctor has not been there since the 1940s. Many of the villagers have tuberculosis. One of Elena's brothers lost a child recently, probably to dysentery.

"Heart attacks and cancer are major illnesses here (in the U.S.)," Mrs. Todd said, "but there it's a snakebite or a cavity."

Todd said when children in Elena's village get cavities, they cry until the tooth rots or the nerve endings die. Elena, who had never been to a dentist, had 17 teeth filled and one pulled after coming to Muskogee, where the Todds now reside.

Her father grows corn and coffee and raises pigs and chickens, but Mrs. Todd said they must replace the animals each year because they die of cholera.

Only boys are allowed to attend school, which is conducted in Spanish, and illiteracy is high because the villagers speak Otomi. Elena, who had no concept of mathematics or age, ranked her brothers and sisters by height.

The Todds said, according to Miss Grist who was in the village this summer, that pagan religion and witchcraft are prevalent. Converts to Christianity are allegedly harassed and sometimes murdered.

Furthermore, the Todds claimed the Mexican Department of Education, heavily influenced by anthropologists and Communists, are not renewing the visas of Wycliffe Bible translators. They said the government has accused Wycliffe of exploiting the native tribes and ruining their culture.

"It's a precarious situation," Mrs. Todd said.

Even more precarious is the position of Otomi infants born female or deformed. They are often killed. Elena was spared, Miss Grist said, because her parents and two older brothers had become Christians through reading the Otomi New Testament Miss Grist translated.

Mrs. Todd said the Arroyos' neighbors told Elena's parents they could easily rid themselves of Elena by just not nursing her, not cutting her umbilical cord or by stepping on her neck.

Although he did accept Elena, her father had little hope for her future. He reportedly told Miss Grist, "She can at least use the broom and sit on the doorstep and keep the chickens out of the house."

Elena's brothers and sisters, however, were ashamed of her. And the other villagers called her "the crippled one."

But Miss Grist agreed to Mrs. Arroyo's request that, when Elena was old enough, she would seek medical help for her. The ninth of 11 children, three of whom died, Elena was born with no outer ears and only a partial left inner ear. She was totally deaf.

In 1967, at the age of 5½, Elena accompanied Miss Grist to Oklahoma City. During the trip she met Don and Marguerite Bankston. Years later that encounter would prove crucial.

Although she was never allowed to be alone in her village, Elena was anything but inhibited. When a Sunday School class asked for Miss Grist's autograph, Elena insisted on signing hers, too. Her make-believe celebrity status was a portend of things to come.

The surgery to give Elena hearing was performed for free by an ear specialist who still maintains anonymity. When Elena's story was publicized, local citizens raised the money to pay her hospital expenses.

But somehow the Todds did not hear about it, although they were living in Oklahoma City at the time.

The surgical procedure involved grafting skin from Elena's left leg to form an ear canal, and combining that with what inner ear she had. Mrs. Todd said the doctor was unsure how much, if any, hearing would result.

Shortly after the operation, a nurse observed Elena in her room dialing a toy telephone she had been given. The nurse realized Elena was preoccupied with the ringing bell.

What is sometimes a nuisance in modern society was the first sound ever heard by a native Mexican girl.

Months later, members of a California labor union who had learned of Elena's situation, presented her with a pair of artificial outer ears. This gift would have allowed her to wear her hair braided on top of her head, as is the Otomi girls' custom.

But the adhesive used to affix the ears irritated her skin so, for that and other reasons, Mrs. Todd said the girl did not wear the ears much.

Nine months after her operation,

Church News

Elena returned to her village and began to learn some Otomi words.

She could not attend the Spanish school and her parents were too busy trying to survive. Miss Grist was engaged in full-time translating and did not have time to teach Elena.

And so, despite her handicaps, Elena began learning to listen. A thousand miles away, in Muskogee, Okla., Beverly Todd was learning to get people to listen about her son's handicap, cerebral palsy.

Her quest began in 1972. Her eventual goal was a cerebral palsy center for Muskogee, but because of that commitment she ended up providing a home for an Otomi girl as well.

How that happened, and what Elena's life has been like since, is the subject of the concluding segment of this series which will appear Sunday.

Jewish Group Argues For Tax Exemption

NEW YORK (Special) — In a brief filed last week with the U.S. Supreme Court, the American Jewish Congress (AJC) has argued against distinguishing between churches and church schools in granting unemployment compensation exemptions.

The congress believes if churches are exempt from paying unemployment taxes for their employees, church-related schools should be too.

The AJC filed the friend-of-the-court brief in support of two South Dakota church schools. The case could involve millions of dollars in church funds, according to AJC spokesman Richard Cohen.

Prof. Abraham S. Goldstein, co-chairman of the AJC Commission on Law and Social Action, said the case raises First Amendment issues of religious freedom and church-state separation that could affect the operations of parochial schools across the country.

The case is St. Martin's Evangelical Lutheran Church v. South Dakota. It concerns Northwestern Lutheran Academy in Moberg, S.D., and St. Martin's Evangelical Lutheran School in Watertown, S.D.

Prior to Jan. 2, 1978, the Federal Unemployment Tax Act (FUTA) permitted states to exempt certain organizations from unemployment compensation taxation.

The exemptions, codified in a parallel South Dakota law, included churches, church associations, organizations operated primarily for religious purposes by churches, ministers and members of religious orders and schools other than state schools.

In 1976 Congress amended FUTA, eliminating the clause on non-public schools, and South Dakota did likewise. In 1978 the Secretary of Labor determined that, in light of the repeal, church-related schools were not exempt from state unemployment tax.

As a result, South Dakota issued a determination that both the Lutheran Academy and St. Martin's School were subject to coverage by the state's unemployment tax.

The Supreme Court of South Dakota upheld the order. It held that whatever burdens were placed on parochial schools were justified by compelling governmental interests, and that the statute did not unduly entangle church and state.

The schools are members of the Wisconsin Evangelical Lutheran Synod. If the court finds that the legislature intended to bar the exemption for church-schools, the AJC has urged the court to declare the unemployment compensation law unconstitutional.

"Our theory of unconstitutionality is a simple one," the brief states. "We believe that Congress might, consistent with the First Amendment, impose unemployment tax liability on all religious institutions, including churches...and church-related schools."

Since churches are excluded from coverage, the brief continues, Congress may not include church-related elementary and secondary schools in the unemployment tax scheme.

"A church is not merely a house of worship," the brief concludes. "And a church-school is not something apart from the church, but rather a part of it."

Family Enrichment Seminar Scheduled

Joseph E. and Sue Sutherland will lead a family enrichment seminar Sunday through Wednesday at University Christian Church, 3601 82nd St.

Sunday sessions will be at 9:30 and 10:30 a.m. and 6 p.m. Weekday sessions will be at 7 p.m. The Sutherlands also will be available for counseling during the day.

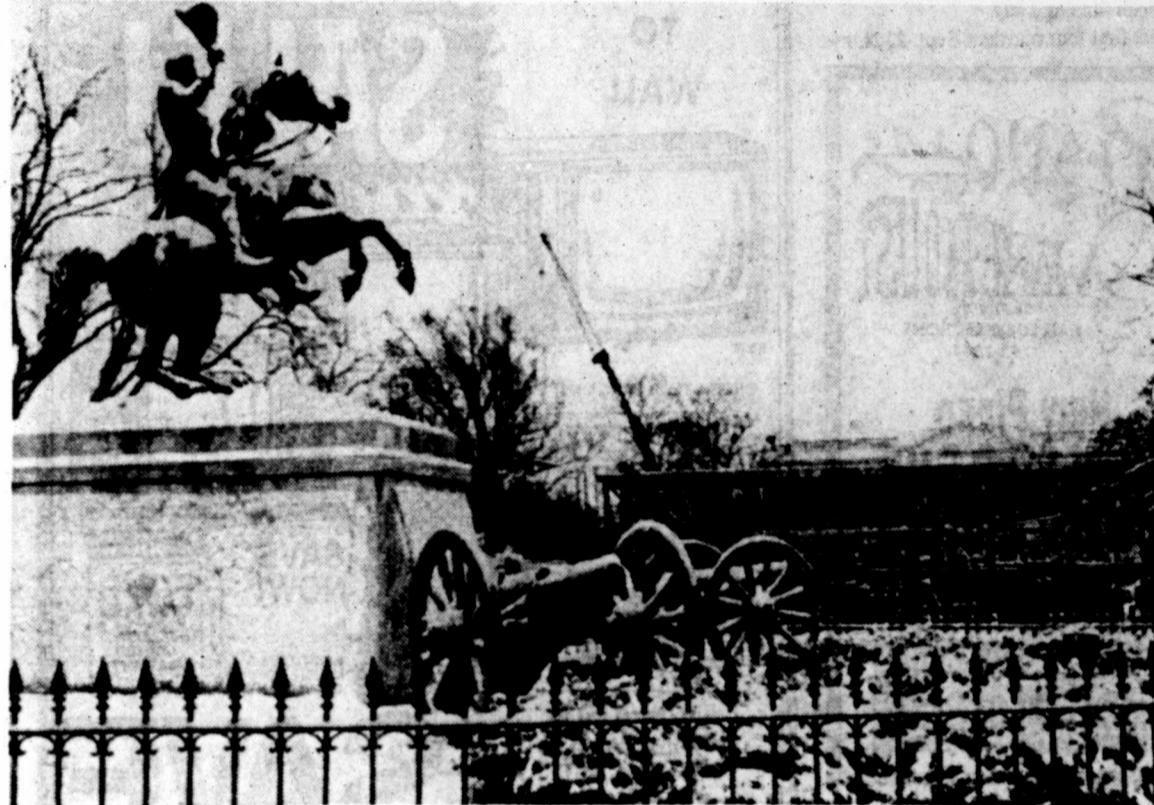

Classes will be provided for children during the adult seminar. Sutherland is associate professor of psychology of religion at Emmanuel School of Religion in Johnson City, Tenn. He conducts seminars and retreats on death, dying, grief, parent, stress and spiritual maturity.

Sutherland is also a professional musician and hymn writer.

Churches Sponsor Child Abuse Clinic

The Texas Conference of Churches is sponsoring a child abuse and neglect workshop for Lubbock and 15 surrounding counties from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Jan. 10 at Westminster Presbyterian Church, 3321 33rd St.

Calvary Baptist Minister To Lead Study

Dr. Bill Thorn will be at Calvary Baptist Church, 8202 Aberdeen Ave., Sunday through Wednesday to lead the January Bible study in the Apostle Paul's letter to the Philippians.

Thorn will preach at 10:45 a.m. Sunday, and then begin the teaching sessions at 6 p.m. They will continue Monday through Wednesday at 7 p.m. The church is located 1½ blocks west of Slide Road on 82nd Street.

According to Mary Lee Johns, workshop coordinator, the sessions are designed to provide understanding of the problem of child abuse in general and dispel myths about it in particular.

A third of the program will be presented by Mrs. Johns, a third by staff of the Texas Department of Human Resources and the remaining third will consist of small group activities, discussion and films.

A one-hour film, "Raised In Anger," which was originally a Public Broadcasting Service special, will be shown. Mrs. Johns said the presentation, narrated by Ed Asner, deals with six parents who were involved in child abuse.

A variety of printed materials detailing data on child abuse, its prevention and how to aid its victims also will be available.

"The amount of child abuse and neglect is vastly underestimated," Mrs. Johns said. "Also, we want to dispel the myth that it's rare and happens somewhere else."

A common misconception about child abusers, Mrs. Johns noted, is that they are crazy or psychotic.

"Actually, only a small percentage are," she said. "Most are people with intelligible problems who can be helped."

The morning session will focus on data about child abuse, particularly in the West Texas area, she said.

Lunch will be served for $4. In order to prepare adequately, Mrs. Johns suggests interested persons or groups pre-register by calling her at (512) 478-7491. They also should contact their minister, as many area churches have been advised about the workshop.

The films and materials to be used in the seminar are available to any individual or non-profit group concerned about preventing or helping the victims of child abuse and neglect.

Film Concerning Russian Church Slated

"Beyond the Cross," a film about the underground church in Russia, will be shown at 7 p.m. Sunday at Trinity Baptist Church, 2707 34th St.

Sid Carroll of Dallas, area representative for Underground Evangelism, producers of the film, will speak.

The color motion picture took several years to make and was filmed largely by members of the persecuted Russian church. The slogan of Underground Evangelism is "The Gospel must not stop at the Iron Curtain."

The film will be shown in the auditorium and admission is free.

Fort Worth Pastor To Lead Bible Study

The Rev. Joel Gregory, pastor of Gambrell Street Baptist Church in Fort Worth, will lead First Baptist Church, Broadway and Avenue V, in its January Bible study Sunday through Wednesday.

The study will cover the New Testament book of Philippians and will stress the unity and joy found in Jesus Christ.

Services will be at 5:45 p.m. and 7 p.m. Sunday, 7 p.m. Monday and Tuesday and 7:10 p.m. Wednesday. Noon sessions will be held Monday through Wednesday. A $2 lunch will be served

Mart Makes Big Gains

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market started off 1981 with a broad advance Friday, picking up where it left off in the bull-market year of 1980.

Cannon Mills, subject of a takeover bid, chalked up the day's best gain with a 9% jump to 35 1/2 at the 4 p.m. close in New York.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which climbed 125.25 last year, picked up 8.79 to 972.78 in Friday's trading. For the week it recorded a 6.40 advance.

New York Stock Exchange volume dropped off to 28.87 million shares from 41.21 million Wednesday.

A light-volume session had been expected with many investors taking a long holiday weekend.

Many large banks lowered their prime lending rates from 21 1/2 to 20 1/2 percent during the day, matching a reduction initiated by Chase Manhattan of New York and a few others in late December.

The news gave some fresh reinforcement to hopes that interest rates might have passed their peak.

Cannon Mills' gain followed word that the company had received a $40-a-share takeover bid from a group of private investors including Harold S. Geenen, former chairman of International Telephone & Telegraph.

Eastman Kodak, which said it would raise prices on film, cameras and other products and services by an average of 8 percent, picked up 1 1/2 to 7 1/4.

On the downside, Deere & Co. lost 2 1/4 to 45 1/2. Deere disclosed plans to offer 4 million new shares.

Stocks often decline when faced with such news because of the prospect of "dilution," with earnings, dividends and assets being spread over an increased number of shares. Deere had about 62.5 million shares outstanding as of last Oct. 31.

Hi-Shear Industries dropped 1 1/4 to 22 1/4. The company reported earnings of 55 cents a share for the quarter ended Nov. 30, down from 74 cents in the comparable period a year earlier.

Friday's session got the market off to a promising start in a calendar period watched closely by analysts who subscribe to an indicator known as the "January barometer."

Dollar Climbs; Gold Price Falls

NEW YORK (AP) — The dollar rose slightly against most key currencies in extremely light trading Friday following the New Year's holiday.

Gold prices fell slightly on major billon markets, but trading was also very light, dealers said.

In New York, the price of gold fell $5 a troy ounce to $586.30 in contracts for current delivery traded on the Commodity Exchange Inc. Gold was bid at $586, down $4 from Wednesday's price, in later trading at Republic National Bank. Markets were closed Thursday because of the New Year's Day holiday.

One London dealer said the bullion markets were so inactive that "It's a complete waste of time being here." He gave an "indicated" gold price range in London of $581 to $583 a troy ounce Friday, down from $589.50 at the close Wednesday.

Because of the New Year's holiday, there was no London silver fixing or late quotation Friday.

Financial markets closed Friday included those in Japan, Switzerland and South Africa. In many others, traders worked only a half day. Dealers described currency trading as "essentially trendless, uneventful and extremely thin" and as "virtually dead."

In Frankfurt, the price of gold fell to $584.99 a troy ounce from $588.03 on Wednesday, the last day of trading.

In Paris, gold fell to $617.93 a troy ounce from $620.55 Wednesday. Paris prices are higher because of a 5 percent tax levied on gold transactions.

Step 1 — Year of birth. Read down the left hand column to find the last number in the year of your birth then go across to the appropriate decade. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Deputies Open Office In County Courthouse

District judges' concern about courthouse security has prompted the opening of an office for Lubbock County deputies on the courthouse's third floor.

Deputies Arthur Casey and Travis Clements of the new courts division of the sheriff's department will make the courthouse office their new headquarters and will call in whatever additional help they need in various cases. Don Stapleton, chief administrator for newly installed Sheriff D.L. "Sonny" Keesee, said Friday.

"The judges had requested that we provide some sort of increased security, both for the district courts and for the courthouse in general," Stapleton said.

"They do a lot of transporting of prisoners from the courthouse to the jail, and we felt like it would be to our advantage and the judges' advantage to have them stationed over there (the courthouse) rather than here (the jail)," he added.

Stapleton said the concern about security is not based on any specific recent incidents but on an apparently increased potential for incidents.

"It's just the growth of the county and the increase in court loads," he said.

"I don't think there have been any incidents as such, just the potential of incidents happening over there. Emotions run high, and there are a lot of cases when we do have a high security risk over there."

"With (capital murder defendant) Billy Wayne Alexander, we've had to increase security quite a bit."

Keesee has appointed Casey chief of the newly created courts division of the sheriff's department.

Teen Steals Plane, Crashes With Family

EL CAJON, Calif. (AP) — A 15-year-old youth, trying to show his mother, stepfather and two others that he could fly, stole a twin-engine plane and took them all to a fiery death, police said Friday.

Investigators said Grant Thompson, a ninth-grader, promised the group a New Year's Day flight to Las Vegas, Nev.

But the plane didn't get 100 feet off the ground.

The boy, described by a chum as "nuts about flying," took a high school course teaching the principles of aerodynamics.

Pillsbury Receives Damage Settlement

CHICAGO (AP) — The Pillsbury Co. after employing the unusual tactic of withdrawing from a class-action lawsuit, has received $21.5 million in a damage settlement against 23 paper carton manufacturers accused of price-fixing.

The out-of-court settlement was completed Wednesday.

Attorneys for Pillsbury said their legal strategy of withdrawing from a class action suit, and instead suing the 23 firms independently, increased the size of their settlement nearly twenty-fold.

The 23 paper carton firms were indicted in federal court in 1976, and were convicted on criminal charges of price fixing conspiracy.

About 2,500 buyers of paper cartons, including Pillsbury, subsequently brought a class action suit against the 23 firms. But Pillsbury withdrew from the action on Jan. 12, 1978, said Edward F. Ruberry, a partner in McConnell & Campbell, the Chicago law firm that represented Pillsbury. The firm then "simultaneously continued its own suit independent of the class," Ruberry said.

The class-action suit was settled out of court in 1979 for $200 million. Had Pillsbury not withdrawn, it would have received only between $1.2 million and $1.7 million as its share.

By withdrawing and suing on its own, Pillsbury was able to show damages "in excess of 18 percent" during the period between 1960 and 1974, on purchases from the paper manufacturers of $100 million.

Attorney Francis McConnell said, "we were able to establish a special price fix, or bid rig as to the Pillsbury Co., and we were also able to establish a significantly higher percentage of overcharge than was the class."

By contrast, settlements granted in the class-action suit were limited to purchases between 1971 and 1974, with plaintiffs able to establish overcharges amounting to only 3.6 percent during those four years but achieving a settlement of 5.5 percent.

"We recovered over 21 percent of the purchases for an entire period. It's never happened before," said Ruberry. "But I think you're going to see more of this," where major firms decide to pursue suits independent of class-action litigation.

Defendant firms included: Alton Box Board Co., Alton, Ill.; American Can Co., Greenwich, Conn.; Brown Co., Pasadena, Calif.; Burd & Fletcher Co., Kansas City, Mo.; F.N. Burt Co., Inc., Buffalo, N.Y.

Also: Champion International Corp., Stamford, Conn.; Consolidated Packaging Corp., Chicago; Container Corp. of America, Chicago; Diamond International Corp., New York; Eastex Packaging, Inc., Silsbee, Texas; Federal Paper Board Co., Inc., Montvale, N.J.; Fibreboard Corp., San Francisco.

Also: A.L. Garber Co., Inc., Cleveland; Hoerner Waldorf Corp. (now part of Champion International); International Paper Co., New York; Interstate Folding Box Co., Middletown, Ohio; Mead Corp., Dayton, Ohio; Packaging Corporation of America, Evanston, Ill.; Potlatch Corp., San Francisco; Rexham Corp., Charlotte, N.C.; St. Regis Paper Co., New York; Michigan Carton Co. (now part of St. Regis); and Weyerhaeuser Co., Tacoma, Wash.

Hearing Officer Finds In Pilot's Favor

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Harbor pilot John E. Lerro of Tampa acted reasonably and prudently in guiding the ship that rammed the Sunshine Skyway Bridge in a mishap that killed 35 people, a state hearing officer ruled Friday.

Administrative Hearings Director Chris H. Bentley's recommended order concluded that Lerro was neither negligent nor incompetent in piloting the Summit Venture, an empty phosphate carrier which rammed the bridge during a blinding rainstorm last May 9.

The collision brought down the bridge's southbound span, sending cars, trucks and buses plunging into the murky waters of Tampa Bay just before morning rush hour.

Lawyers said it will take several months for the state board which oversees harbor pilots to make the final administrative decision on whether to accept, modify or reject Bentley's recommendations and set a penalty, if any. Any appeal would be in the courts.

Bentley's 21-page order notes that the state's expert witnesses agreed that Lerro had three options when he lost all visibility and radar contact with some key marker buoys during a sudden surge of rain and wind as the 608-foot ship approached the bridge.

"Those three options including turning hard port, turning hard starboard and attempting to steer successfully through the bridge," Bentley said. "The option chosen by Lerro, steering through the bridge, was a reasonable, prudent option."

Meanwhile, state Department of Transportation officials said they had submitted a $22.9 million insurance claim for the loss of the bridge. National American Insurance Co. officials in Omaha said the claim submitted Dec. 17 was the company's largest of 1980.

the bridge," Bentley said. "The option chosen by Lerro, steering through the bridge, was a reasonable, prudent option."

Meanwhile, state Department of Transportation officials said they had submitted a $22.9 million insurance claim for the loss of the bridge. National American Insurance Co. officials in Omaha said the claim submitted Dec. 17 was the company's largest of 1980.

Bentley said Lerro acted properly in trying to blindly navigate past the bridge rather than turn or stop the vessel, and urged that the state's attempt to suspend or revoke Lerro's pilot's license be dismissed.

Bentley had informally disclosed his recommendations last week, but the formal issuance starts the clock on the 10 to 20 days for either Lerro, as defendant, or Professional Regulation Secretary Nancy Kelley Wittenberg, as prosecutor, to file written exceptions.

Bentley's recommended order is a major break for Lerro. However, his license remains under an emergency suspension which a state court has ruled does not have to be lifted until after the case has been concluded.

Fight Over Puppy Ends In Stabbing

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Police say two people suffered stab wounds in a fight over a puppy at a party in an apartment.

William Reed, 25, and William Warren, 16, suffered multiple stab wounds Thursday and were hospitalized in serious condition.

Police said the New Year's Eve argument was over who owned a puppy and who threw the animal from a third-floor window at the party.

TEXTILE MILL CLOSED

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — India's oldest private textile mill, the Buckingham and Carnatic Mills Ltd., has been closed permanently, putting about 13,000 people out of work, news reports said Friday. The 102-year-old mill in the southern city of Madras, shut its doors Thursday after negotiations among management, trade union leaders and the Tamil Nadu state government broke down the United News of India said.

Bani-Sadr Visits War Front, Asks Army To 'Try Harder'

future," said Bani-Sadr in his telegram. Revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini made a plea Thursday for cooperation among Iran's armed forces and told Revolutionary Guards to avoid friction with regular forces.

Iraq claims its forces have captured one-third of the 24,000-square-mile territory of Iran's oil-rich Khuzistan province and controls the oil port city of Khorramshahr. Iraq has also besieged Abadan, Iran's major oil refining city, and advanced to positions that allow the shelling of Ahwaz and Dezful.

Ahwas and Dezful, 70 miles apart, control all highway, railway and pipeline networks that link Iran's oil heartland with the Iranian capital of Tehran.

A communique broadcast by Baghdad Radio said 14 Iranian soldiers were killed by Iraqi forces during the last 24 hours. Iraqi losses were five soldiers killed, it added.

The communique also said Iraq sunk two Iranian speedboats and a motorboat in the Shatt al-Arab waterway.

A communique from the Iranian military command claimed 135 Iraqi troops were killed or wounded in fighting at the war's three major theaters Thursday and Friday. It conceded 11 Iraqis killed and 38 wounded as a result of Iraqi artillery barrages against Abadan.

U.S. Believed Offering Deposit For Hostages

he took office on Jan. 20 and warned that a military invasion would be launched if the Americans were not released.

The radio praised the "quick U.S. reaction" by Carter administration officials and said the officials "did not take Reagan's comments seriously — they described him as a kind of political cowboy."

The radio detected a further softening of the U.S. stand in the "calm tone" of Voice of America broadcasts and statements by U.S. State Department spokesman John Trantner.

Deadline Contemplated
Both sides, however, appeared to be contemplating a deadline for resolving the hostage crisis.

Some Iranian members of parliament this week demanded a deadline be set to force the U.S. government to meet Iranian conditions. And Washington officials, who asked not to be identified, said Iran was told agreement must be reached by Jan. 16 in order to "move assets in banks or to make arrangements to move assets" before the Carter administration leaves office on Jan. 20.

"It's a fact of life that the clock is ticking," said Trantner in a public reminder to Iran to act swiftly.

Conditions Stated
On Nov. 2, Iran's parliament approved the release of the hostages if the U.S. government returned the wealth of the late shah, released frozen Iranian assets, cancelled pending lawsuits against Iran and pledged not to interfere in Iran's internal affairs.

The United States agreed in principle but an impasse developed when Iran demanded financial guarantees totaling $24 billion be deposited in Algeria before the hostages could be freed. U.S. Secretary of State, Edmund S. Muskie, said the figure was "unreasonable" and Carter said Washington would not pay "ransom."

The hostage negotiations took place in the context of a power struggle between Rajai and his political rival, President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr.

Main Issues
Informed sources in Beirut said the hostage issue and the conduct of the war with Iraq were the two main issues in the Rajai-Bani-Sadr dispute.

The sources said that revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini was prepared to order the unconditional release of the hostages before the Sept. 22 outbreak of the Persian Gulf war, which Iran has called an American-inspired plot.

Bani-Sadr, the sources said, wanted to resolve the hostage crisis, presumably to end Iran's international isolation over the issue. But Rajai adopted a hard-line position and was not likely to be flexible on the hostage issue, the sources said.

Bani-Sadr Criticized
Bani-Sadr, commander of the Iranian armed forces, also has been sharply criticized for failure to make good on promises to launch a counter-offensive against Iraqi forces.

Officials in Washington stressed that the Carter administration actually would need more "lead time" than four days to begin the shifting of Iranian bank assets and to implement other aspects of the proposal now under study in Tehran.

"We'll need at least a week to get all the pieces in place," one official, who asked not to be identified, told The Associated Press. He said Iran was reminded that Jan. 16, a Friday, is the last practical day "to move assets in banks or to make arrangements to move assets."

The U.S. plan is known to focus on transferring several billion dollars in seized Iranian deposits into an escrow account under the control of a neutral country. The money would be released to Iran when the hostages were set free.

"It's a fact of life that the clock is ticking," John H. Trantner, the State Department spokesman, said in a public reminder to Iran to act swiftly on the American proposal.

However, he also gave assurances that the Reagan administration could be counted on to carry out any remaining, unimplemented provisions — provided there is an agreement by Jan. 20.

"Obviously, there are certain parts of what we have proposed that would require more time than remains in this administration," Trantner said. "If the Iranians and the United States agree to this kind of proposal, then it would carry beyond Jan. 20."

Trantner said Reagan and his aides had indicated several times "they would accept any arrangements agreed to by this administration before they take office."

However, if no formal agreement is reached before Reagan takes office, it would be up to him to decide how to deal with the Iranian situation. Earlier this week, Reagan referred to the Iranians as "barbarians."

who was parked at 19th Street and Avenue M, spotted the speeding car and followed it to the hospital, where he learned of the stabbing.

Doctors said they worked 30 minutes attempting to revive the young victim. Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy ruled the death a homicide — the city's first of 1981 — and ordered an autopsy, which revealed the puncture severed the youth's aorta.

Police said they had not recovered a murder weapon. The suspect reportedly dropped the knife while fleeing the scene.

Senators To Open Cabinet Hearings

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate begins hearings next week on Ronald Reagan's cabinet nominees and all seem assured of confirmation — but the road promises to be rocky for Alexander Haig and James Watt.

Haig, nominated to be secretary of state, and Watt, picked to head the Interior Department, have drawn the most fire.

But they, along with the other Reagan nominees, are expected to win Senate approval — only eight cabinet appointments have been rejected over the years.

Tradition dictates the Senate give a president the cabinet he wants and Reagan's choices will be confirmed unless the hearings expose a "smoking gun" in a nominee's past.

But Senate committees will undertake thorough, possibly lengthy, hearings on the nominations.

Members of the Senate have not forgotten how they were burned when the bank dealings of Bert Lance, President Carter's first budget director, were exposed long after he took office.

Resilience Of Economy Surprising Forecasters

Factory Orders, Construction Rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Factory orders and new construction increased modestly in November, the government said Friday, offering further evidence that the economy is holding up despite record-high interest rates.

The economy's strength has surprised many forecasters who had been predicting a downturn, if not another recession. They now foresee a weakening in the first half of 1981, but not the sharp decline once feared.

November's 1 percent rise in factory orders to a seasonally adjusted $159.6 billion does mark a continued slowdown in the rate of increase. Orders for manufactured goods had climbed 1.8 percent in October and 5.5 percent in September.

Steel Orders Down
In addition, steel orders were down $200 million, or 2.3 percent, to $7 billion in November, following five consecutive monthly increases of 10 percent or more, the department said.

Shipments of manufactured good also rose in November — 1.1 percent to a seasonally adjusted $158.4 billion, but this was less than October's 2.6 percent increase and September's 4.2 percent jump, the department said.

With November's increase in both orders and shipments, the important inventory-to-sales ratio continued to improve last month, the department said. It stood at 1.54 in November, compared with 1.55 in October, 1.60 in September and 1.66 in August.

Effect Of Inventories
When inventories get too high because of waning sales, manufacturers are forced to cut production, and this could lead to layoffs. Such cutbacks are even more likely when interest rates are very high, because producers don't want to finance their inventories.

William Cox, the Commerce Department's deputy chief economist, said the economy "has a certain vitality." At the same time, he noted that it is "tapering down, as must be expected."

"The fact we have had surprisingly rapid growth in the third and fourth quarters of 1980 is pushing against monetary restraint and is now creating fairly formidable pressure against continued growth," he added.

Construction Rises
In another report Friday, the Commerce Department said the value of new construction rose 2.5 percent in November to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $231.8 billion, after increasing 1.1 percent the month before.

Even after adjusting for inflation, new construction increased 1.5 percent to a seasonally adjusted $101.4 billion, the department said.

Until October, "construction put in place" had declined for six consecutive months, reflecting last spring's recession and the imposition of temporary credit controls to fight inflation.

For the year so far, new construction has gone up slower than in 1979, the department added.

Following are highlights of the Commerce reports:

—New orders for durable goods increased 1.3 percent last month to a seasonally adjusted $81.8 billion, after rising 2.2 percent the month before. The biggest improvement last month was in the transportation sector, due primarily to aircraft activity.

—New orders for non-durable goods rose 0.7 percent to a seasonally adjusted $77.9 billion, following a 1.4 percent increase in October.

—Shipments of durable goods went up 1 percent last month to a seasonally adjusted $80.3 billion, compared with a 3.8 percent rise in October. All major industries except transportation equipment recorded increases. That sector's decline was attributed to the auto sales slump.

—Shipments of non-durable goods rose 1.2 percent in November to a seasonally adjusted $78.1 billion, following a 1.3 percent increase the previous month. The largest boost occurred in the petroleum industry.

These figures are not adjusted for inflation.

Major Banks Lower Prime Rate, Signal Trend In Borrowing

NEW YORK (AP) — Several major banks cut their prime rates by one percentage point Friday to 20.5 percent, signaling a widespread trend toward lower borrowing costs for businesses.

A number of other banks had lowered their rates last month, but the majority of big banks were more cautious, holding their fees at a record 21.5 percent.

Citibank, the nation's second-largest commercial bank, led the latest rate reductions. Bank of America, the nation's largest, was among those to follow. Others included No. 4 Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co., No. 7 Continental Illinois National Bank & Trust Co. and No. 13 Crocker National Bank.

The prime rate is the interest rate banks charge on loans to blue chip corporate borrowers. Less creditworthy businesses usually pay at least one percentage point above the prime, and their rate often is changed when the prime rate changes.

The prime does not apply to consumer loans. Those rates are generally lower and are limited by law in most states. But changes in the prime rate often indicate the direction in which all kinds of interest rates are moving.

Banks set their prime rates in line with their cost of acquiring funds and the demand for business loans. Those costs had soared in early December, and loan demand remained relatively strong. As a result, the prime rate climbed from 15.5 percent in mid-November to the record 21.5 percent a month later.

But even as many economists were predicting further increases, rates started dropping amid growing concern that the economy was heading into another recession.

Wells Fargo Bank in San Francisco was the first major bank to cut its prime rate to 20.5 percent, and a few other big banks followed suit. They included Chase Manhattan Bank, the nation's third-largest.

Holiday Toll Passes 200

By The Associated Press
Holiday travelers in parts of the East were greeted with continuing snow showers Friday, as the nation's traffic death toll passed 200 with more than half of the long New Year's weekend ahead.

The nation's traffic death toll had reached 210 by late Friday.

The National Safety Council estimated in advance that 420 to 520 travelers might lose their lives on the streets and highways between 6 p.m. Wednesday and midnight Sunday.

During a similar non-holiday weekend at this time of year, 420 deaths might be expected, the council said.

There were 493 traffic deaths during the four-day New Year's weekend a year ago. The worst toll on record was in 1965 when 564 people were killed in a three-day New Year's weekend.

The 494 killed during the four-day Christmas holiday was well below the 650 to 750 advance estimate made by the council.

Polish Opposition Hinted If Russians Intervene

and articles that would have been unthinkable a year ago.

PAP reported Friday that further delays were expected in implementing a meat rationing program demanded by the summer strikers to promote more equitable distribution of scarce supplies.

Citing "reservations from the side of the community," the government said it would draft a new proposal that might be ready by late March. The ration plan was to have begun in February.

Poland got its 54th independent union Friday when the Warsaw district court approved the charter for an organization of tax and financial employees.

PAP, which reported the approval, did not say how many members were in the organization.

There are still 23 "branch unions" in Poland, survivors of the state-controlled labor system that began crumbling after the summer strikes.

est, and No. 6 Chemical Bank. Despite the rate declines, economists and financial analysts were divided on the question of whether rates would continue falling or turn upward again.

Friday's rate reductions were seen on Wall Street as firm evidence that lower prime rates will spread throughout the banking industry.

"We've seen a peak, and we're going to go lower," said David Jones, a financial economist at Aubrey G. Lanston & Co., a Wall Street investment firm.

Jones said rates are likely to decline gradually and erratically over the next several weeks, unlike the precipitous drop in rates last spring after the prime peaked at 20 percent. The decline will be slower because the outlook for economic activity in the first few months of 1981 is uncertain, Jones said.

And loan demand remains relatively strong, especially among larger businesses, he added.

Last spring, as the prime was climbing to 20 percent, the economy was slipping into a recession and economic activity slowed rapidly. The prime rate fell as low as 10.75 in July before turning upward again in August.

Volcano Hints New Blast

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Molten rock is moving beneath Mount St. Helens again, indicating "an appropriate need for caution" and the possibility of a new eruption, officials reported Friday.

The U.S. Geological Survey issued an advisory, notifying authorities that new molten rock, also called magma, was detected underneath the volcano in southwestern Washington.

"Until the nature of this new magma can be determined," the advisory said, "it is not possible to say whether further activity will be explosive, continued dome growth with or without mild explosions, or non-explosive."

Shortly after the advisory came out, the state Department of Emergency Services said in a statement that the change indicated "an appropriate need for caution."

A large amount of molten rock spewed from the volcano during its May 18 eruption, and smaller amounts were detected in subsequent blasts.

The restricted state and federal red zones around the mountain have been closed since Christmas because of river flooding in the area and because of increased activity inside the volcano.

In recent days, the molten rock has oozed to the surface of the crater and formed giant domes, said Tom Corcoran, a U.S. Forest Service spokesman. The domes have congealed into a single dome.

Corcoran said scientists can't determine if the mountain will erupt but that "magma in the chamber isn't necessarily a bullet in the barrel."

Small earthquakes quivered Friday beneath the volcano, which has been "rebuilding itself" with the growing dome, said Corcoran.

Longer Zip Code Gets Zapped Until June

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Postal Service said Friday it will delay until June plans to begin implementing a controversial nine-digit zip code so that people can learn how to use it.

Postmaster General William F. Bolger said the extra time to begin switching to the voluntary nine-digit system will be spent explaining it to mailers and to perfect the system.

The Postal Service had planned to provide business mailers — beginning in February — with computerized tapes showing the new zip codes for city blocks nationwide so they could adapt their mailing lists.

A spokesman said those tapes now will be furnished large volume mailers in June, and the general public will be notified of their new codes — Which add four digits to the current zip — in October.

Bolger said the delay followed a proposed congressional amendment, dropped in the waning hours of the last session, that called for the delay to make sure the program was implemented effectively.

"In keeping with the spirit of that amendment — even though it did not become law — we will continue the developmental work that the amendment not only allowed, but encouraged," Bolger said.

Bolger said the Postal Service plans to consult with large volume mailers in the next few months about implementing the nine-digit code.

"Since business generates 80 percent of all mail, the program is aimed mainly at business mailers, and it is incumbent upon us to do a better job of explaining the program's benefits," he said.

The nine-digit zip, which has come under fire from Congress and industry groups, is expected to save the Postal Service about $600 million per year by 1987 and hold down postal rates.

The Postal Service maintains the code is needed to handle growing mail volume and reduce the size of the postal work force.

Bolger said proposed incentives will be announced in March for volume mailers to use the new zip.

There is no deadline for conversion to nine digits, according to Bolger, and there will be no penalty for nonusers.

In December, the Postal Service announced plans to spend $316 million for the first phase of its zip code expansion.

That expenditure would be used to buy 252 optical character readers and 460 bar code readers — automated equipment that would be deployed through 1983 so mail can be sorted by computer to individual city blocks.

Police Make Seven Arrests For DWI

Lubbock police, on the prowl for persons drinking their way into the New Year, scored seven arrests Thursday for driving while intoxicated, and five others were picked up for public intoxication.

Three of those five PI suspects could have very well been charged with DWI if they had been sober enough to get their cars rolling. They were awakened behind the steering wheel of their parked vehicles, with one sleeping motorist accompanied by two drunken buddies, police said.

A department spokesman said the number of arrests was low compared to past New Year's Day celebrations.

Oratorical Contest Slated By Legion

The American Legion will hold its Oratorical Contest Jan. 30 at Lubbock Christian College for students in the 9th through 12 grades.

The winner will receive between $200 and $300 and a chance to attend the national Oratorical Contest.

Each contestant will make a nine-minute talk relating to the U.S. Constitution followed by a four-minute extemporaneous talk.

The 19th District boundaries include on the west Bailey through Andrews counties, and on the east Floyd, Dickens, Garza, Burden and Mitchell counties.

For more information, prospective contestants should contact Bill R. Neel at 793-4618.

Grocery Bills Take Giant Step In 1980

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Boosted by drought and an international taste for sugar, grocery bills rose almost 15 percent last year — about 1 1/2 times faster than they did in 1979, an Associated Press marketbasket survey shows.

The AP survey of a random sample of items on supermarket shelves also showed that prices rose much more slowly during December than they did during November, but the good news is not expected to last.

The AP drew up a list of 15 commonly purchased food and non-food products and checked the price at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973. Prices have been rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month. One item — chocolate chip cookies — was dropped from the list after the manufacturer discontinued the package size used in the survey.

Among the findings of the latest survey:

•The marketbasket bill increased at the checklist store in every city during 1980, rising an average of 14.4 percent. That compared with a 9.5 percent boost in 1979.

•During December, the marketbasket bill increased at the checklist store in nine cities — up an average of 1.9 percent — and decreased in four cities — down an average of 2.9 percent. Overall, the bill increased by an average of four-tenths of a percent. During November, the average increase was 2.4 percent.

•Sugar was to blame for much of the increase in supermarket bills during the year. Raw sugar prices have surged because production has not kept pace with demand and retail prices have followed. The U.S. Department of Agriculture estimates the 1980 average retail price of sugar at 37 cents a pound — up 50 percent from 1979 — and says prices will rise further this year. The AP survey showed the average price of a five-pound sack of granulated sugar at the checklist store went from $1.42 at the start of 1980 to $2.85 at the end of December.

When sugar was removed from the marketbasket totals, the AP found the average bill at the checklist stores went up only 7.2 percent during 1980 — half as big as the increase with sugar included.

•Last summer's drought is expected to cause increases in meat prices next year because of higher feed grain costs. The drought already has caused price increases on supermarket shelves. The December survey by the AP showed the price of peanut butter was up at the checklist store in nine of the cities checked. The hot, dry weather heavily damaged the nation's peanut crop and raw peanut prices have more than doubled.

•Egg prices, which have been rising steadily, were mixed during December. The AP survey showed the price of eggs increased at the checklist store in five cities and decreased in seven. Medium eggs were temporarily out of stock at the checklist store in the 13th city. The USDA says egg production is expected to decline in 1981 which could mean still higher prices ahead.

A look at the overall number of items in the AP survey showed slightly more increases during December than during November, but it also showed more decreases. Here are the percentages of increases and decreases:

	Nov.	Dec.
Up	33.0	34.6
Down	15.9	18.7
Unchanged	45.6	40.7
Unavailable	5.5	6.0

The AP did not try to weight the survey results according to population density or in terms of what percentage of a family's actual grocery outlay each item represents.

The day of the week on which the check was made varied depending on the month. Standard brands and sizes were used when available. If the requested size and brand was not available on March 1, 1973, a comparable substitute was selected. Items temporarily out of stock on one of the survey dates being compared were not included in the overall total.

The survey does not compare actual prices from city to city — saying, for example, that eggs cost more in one area than another. Comparisons are made only in terms of percentages of increase or decrease — saying a particular item went up 10 percent in one city and 6 percent in another.

The USDA marketbasket issued each month is based on a complex set of statistics. It is used to keep track of changes in

Local Company Joins Lawsuit On Insulation

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A local installer of urea formaldehyde foam insulation says he will join a $36 million suit filed by the nation's largest manufacturer of the insulation against the Consumer Product Safety Commission.

James Smyer of Basin Insulation said he plans to become a party to the two-week-old suit filed by Rapco Foam Inc. in Columbia, S.C. Rapco is asking for $9 million in damages and $27 million in punitive damages from the federal commission and its individual members from business losses caused by the commission's consideration of a ban on the insulation.

Commission staff members have recommended the panel propose a ban on the insulation based on findings by government scientists that formaldehyde causes cancer in rats.

However, commission meetings to consider proposing the insulation ban have been postponed several times. The commission now is scheduled to meet at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday to decide what action to take on the insulation.

In a letter to urea formaldehyde foam insulation installers, Rapco officials say the CPSC has produced 14 news releases during the past 12 months, "eagerly disseminated by the news media, suggesting that our product... is harmful to the health of the consumer."

"The inference was that the product was inherently dangerous, regardless of whether or not it had been properly manufactured and installed," the letter says.

"Since the beginning of the fuel crisis in 1973, more than one-half million homes have been re-insulated with UFFI, and despite active solicitation the CPSC has received only about 1,500 complaints."

"Upon checking 299 such 'complaints,' industry found that only 37 were health related and connected with formaldehyde gas," the letter says.

Rapco officials say the commission has a report from the Franklin Research Center confirming two previous studies which found that "properly installed UFFI does not contribute more formaldehyde gas to indoor air than there already is as background."

"Despite these findings and numerous opportunities to enter into a consumer protective agreement with industry for defective installations, the CPSC has continued its attack upon us without following the rules of due process," the letter says.

Smyer said he's not entering the suit for the monetary damages he might receive, "but so we can stop them."

He said it's imperative that all formaldehyde foam insulation installers band together in opposition to the proposed ban.

Journalism Students Available For Public Relations Work

Non-profit organizations in need of free public relations expertise may call on senior journalism students at Texas Tech University, according to mass communications professor Ralph L. Sellmeyer.

Seniors enrolled in the public relations class taught by Sellmeyer are required to perform about 150 hours of public relations work during the spring semester.

"They're available to do news releases, general advertising, journalism and PR type work including photography, writing, planning and so forth," Sellmeyer said.

Instead of receiving money for their work, the students will receive academic credit for their service. In past semesters, students in the class have worked for such groups as Red Cross, Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts.

Sellmeyer urges interested groups to call him between Jan. 12 and 16 at 742-3385. Students and employers coordinate work hours and schedules.

Snyder Museum Boasts Finest In Western Art, Americana

By GERRY BURTON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

SNYDER — The Americana of Currier and Ives forms an honor guard up the stairs where a bright image of Maria, San Ildefonso's famous potter, commands the landing which leads to the cowboy and Indian world of outstanding western art.

It's the entrance to the Diamond M Foundation Museum of Fine Art, which is typically western in flavor with a healthy dash of traditional American, European and ancient Far Eastern art.

Tucked away in the midst of Snyder on U.S. 84-180, the museum is a cultural oasis open to all at no charge. Its nine rooms and one 50-by-75-foot gallery are full of the work of great names from the past and today's upcoming artists.

This year, South Plains art lovers will be getting a bonus, one Sunday afternoon a month to browse through the collection amassed by the late Mr. and Mrs. C.T. McLaughlin from all over the globe.

Regular hours are 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays, with new hours of 1-4 p.m. set for the third Sunday of each month.

This will give South Plains residents unable to visit during the week time to view exhibits leisurely, according to museum director Terry Gilbreth.

The bulk of the collection is the same as that which often drew West Texans to the museum for McLaughlin shows, Gilbreth said.

About five percent has been obtained by the foundation since McLaughlin's death in 1975 and reflects an attitude of "gambling" a little on new artists just beginning to make a name in the art world. Gambling on new artists was a McLaughlin habit.

A memorabilia room holds mementoes showing the interests of the rancher-oilman-philanthropist — photographs of state and national figures McLaughlin met along the way.

Western art ranges from the Old West of Frederic Remington and Charles Russell to the more modern versions of George Phippen and Melvin Warren. Among the many along the museum path are Paul Wylie of Lubbock, 1979 Texas Cowboy Artist of the Year, and Glenna Goodacre, former Lubbockerite.

In another room, the mood moves to porcelain and alabaster with a spattering of marble plus carvings in jade.

A display of carved ivory, stained with herbs in an ancient manner not known today, leads to an ivory collection assembled by Helena Rubenstein and purchased long ago by the Diamond M.

There are tiny figures and massive tusks intricately carved in many scenes, one so elaborate it encompassed the lifetimes of three generations of Chinese artists.

The N.C. Wyeth room holds 16 huge originals of works done as illustrations for famous books by authors such as Jules Verne, Mark Twain and James Fenimore Cooper. To the side is a small watercolor by Andrew Wyeth.

Through art-filled rooms, mixing the look at the Old West with the new modern versions, the path leads to a spacious gallery centered by a large figure — Will Rogers on his famous mount, Soapsuds.

Until two years ago the collection was displayed much as McLaughlin had collected and displayed it himself, with space a rare commodity.

Today, parts of the collection are stored to allow viewing room for exhibits plus variety through the year through changing displays.

In addition, a Diamond M sampler travels around Texas showing the scope of the museum. It has just returned from helping launch the fine arts center at Tarleton State College.

Art always has been synonymous with Diamond M in Scurry County and on the national scene.

Increased Food Prices Observed In Lubbock

By NEAL FARMER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The New Year is here, but with it came a slight increase in Lubbock food prices, causing the monthly 16-item food bill to reach its highest total ever.

January's price tag on The Avalanche-Journal's 16 regularly checked items ended up at $25.77, as compared to last month's $25.26 total. The previous monthly high in The AJ survey was $25.32 in November 1980.

A check of the year-long food tally showed January 1980 to be the lowest total food bill of the year. The year saw a steady increase in prices to the figure reported today. Only September and December surveys noted decreases, slight as they were.

The biggest story of this month's prices is the rise of almost 40 percent in peanut butter, shelled on by the national peanut shortage.

Peanut butter came in at $1.45 for a 12-ounce jar compared to $1.04 in the previous month.

The second biggest price gainer for January was potatoes, which went from $1.99 for a 5-pound sack to $2.29. However, the new price is still less than August, September and October when the potatoes sold for $2.79.

Also increasing in prices were round steak at $2.59 a pound, up from last month's $2.49 a pound, a gallon of milk at $2.83 compared to $2.59 in December, and a dozen large eggs at 89 cents compared to last month's 83 cents.

The only other item increasing in price in the 16-item check list was detergent. The cleanser rose from $2 for a 49-ounce box to $2.15, the previous total of October and November.

On the brighter side, coffee continued its downward trend with buyers paying less than at any time since May 1979.

Coffee was offered at $2.69 a pound, down from the all-time high of $3.45 which lasted from September 1979 until the downward trend started in October 1980.

Shows at the Diamond M museum drew art fans by the busloads from Lubbock and other Texas cities and plane-loads from more distant points.

Going to Snyder for a glimpse of great artworks was a habit for many on the South Plains until McLaughlin's death. Plans for resuming exhibits are underway.

McLaughlin art has spread into many areas.

While a member of the Texas Tech Board of Regents in the 1950s, McLaughlin donated a number of paintings to the permanent collection of the Museum of Texas Tech University, including works by Remington and Joseph Inhof, Frank Gervasi and Paul Salisbury.

Over the years, McLaughlin presented other artworks to Tech and other colleges, including Western Texas College at Snyder and the U.S. Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs, Colo.

The Diamond M Foundation, a non-profit organization, operates the museum to perpetuate the collection.

The safety lamp, invented by Sir Humphrey Davy, was used for the first time in the coal mines in 1816.

Two other items settled down in price and both were in the meat department.

All-beef wieners fell from $2.19 a pound to $2.03, the first decrease in wieners since August.

Also, fryer chicken trickled down from 77 cents a pound to 75 cents, equalling its August 1980 price.

On special at the store visited by The AJ were green beans, which were down from 48 to 45 cents a can. A five-pound sack of flour also was down to 89 cents from $1.03 last month.

Items that stayed the same from last month's prices were bread at 83 cents a loaf, a pound of stick butter with a 77-cent price tag, and bacon at $1.98 a pound.

Also, a 5-pound sack of sugar remained at $2.79 and lettuce was 59 cents a pound.

Panel Gets Funds For DWI Program

AUSTIN — A $700,000 contract to establish a statewide traffic safety education program for persons convicted of driving while intoxicated has been awarded to the Texas Commission on Alcoholism.

TAC notes Lubbock Rep. Froy Salinas has announced he will introduce legislation making attendance at such classes mandatory for probation on first-offense DWI cases.

The contract is funded by the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation, and is aimed at standardizing and upgrading existing DWI educational programs and establishing new programs.

TAC hopes to establish such programs in all Texas counties.

Applications for funds under the program will be accepted after mid-February.

Getting Back In Shape Requires Training

WASHINGTON, D.C. (Special) — If one of your New Year's resolutions is to get back in shape, there are a few things you should know before jumping into your sweatsuit to jog a couple of miles.

Pat Lamboni, head athletic trainer at the Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C., believes the same procedures athletes follow during training can also apply to people who are concerned with getting in shape to feel or look better.

"It's important for everyone to exercise, and to do it the proper way," said Lamboni. "Exercising the proper way strengthens your heart and other muscles, as well as causing your blood to flow better. The blood flow cleans out impurities in your system and helps prevent some illnesses."

The first step is to get a physical and develop an exercise program that fits your needs, according to the trainer. "Athletes get physicals and then follow an established training program designed to allow them gradually to reach their full potential," said Lamboni. "The same should hold true for people trying to get into shape for their own well-being."

"It's a must to have a physical before you try to get back in shape, especially after an extended period of inactivity. Certain problems can develop quickly, and if you don't get a physical, you may never know that some exercise is irritating the problem. It's also important to know what type of exercising will fit your needs the best. Not all the exercises improve the areas you may need to work on. I suggest talking to a doctor or reading books or magazines on the subject."

After having a physical and developing an exercise program, the next step is learning how to stretch your muscles, properly, said Lamboni. Stretching is one of the most important parts of exercising, because it fulfills two vital needs that very few other exercises can accomplish.

"The first reason you should stretch is to warm up the deep muscle tissue," said Lamboni. "This is important because the deep muscle tissues are the ones most often injured because they have not been warmed up properly. Muscles are much more flexible when they have been stretched and warmed up. Many athletes strain and rip them because they haven't stretched properly, and the same can happen to anyone who exercises without warming up. You could compare them to a piece of plastic. A cold piece is going to break if you try to maneuver it, while a warm piece has more flexibility and can be more easily maneuvered without breaking."

"Stretching also allows your muscles to develop patterns of motion, which permits people to get stronger and more flexible. This is very important for athletes, and it's just as important for others because it allows them to advance in their exercising programs."

There are various types of exercises that can help people get into shape, said Lamboni. There is, of course, jogging, which builds up endurance and strengthens many muscles, but jogging is not the only means of getting in shape. Walking works on many of the same areas, as does swimming and bike riding. Sit-ups, push-ups, swimming, and "jumping jacks" will also prove valuable, according to the trainer.

But, the most important thing to keep in mind when starting a fitness program is to start slowly and build up gradually. "Don't go out and work until you're ready to collapse on the first day," said Lamboni. "Start slowly and then gradually build up."

"If you start out too fast, bad things may happen. Not only will you strain your muscles to the point that they will hurt badly, but you may also give up your fitness program because you may believe it is not worth suffering to get into shape. It's much easier to get into shape if you allow your body to slowly adjust to the new movement. Athletes go through the same type of procedures during training camps, before they can perform to the best of their abilities."

Each person should determine what he wants from a fitness program. "You can work out several hours a day, or you can take 15 minutes to walk around the block a couple of times. What counts is that you allow your muscles to work and your blood to clean the impurities from your system," he said.

"Being on a fitness program doesn't have to be painful if you do it the right way."

ANN LANDERS:

Death Of Spouse Most Traumatic

Dear Ann Landers: This morning's mail brought news of the suicide of a friend. He was a lovely man whose wife recently passed away.

His daughter had assumed that he had adjusted well, but since she was not living near him she had only his letters to go by.

Most people are not aware that the death of a spouse is the most traumatic of all life's changes.

The difficult problems usually begin weeks after the funeral, when the last relative has gone and the day-to-day routine resumes. The bereaved widows and widowers should be told about the help they can get from a government agency.

Those who are interested should write to Widowed Persons Service AARP/NRFA, 1909 K Street NW, Washington, D.C. 20049. Thanks for all the good you do. —Arlene But No Longer Fearful

Dear Friend: I'm grateful for the information. I did not know this service was available. Thank you for helping me to help others.

Dear Ann Landers: My mother is retired and has very little to do. So she calls me on the phone. Yesterday it was seven times. She never has anything to talk about — just wants to make sure everybody is "all right."

My mother is not a widow. She and Dad are in good health, have a car, no financial worries and many friends, but suddenly I have become the center of her life. This woman does more bossing now than when I was 15. In fact, she had a job then and had very little time for me. Now she can't leave me alone.

It annoys my husband when she phones so often, and we've had arguments about it. I've asked Dad to help, but he says, "She is a good person and means well."

I don't want to put my mother out of my life. All I want is a normal relationship. Please help. —Baby of 39

Dear 39: I hate to be a bore, but I'll have to say it again. It takes two people to create a situation like yours — a mother who is a compulsive neurotic and a daughter who will permit herself to be imposed upon. Seven calls a day just to see if everybody is "all right" is too darned many.

At some point you must say, "Enough and no more." Assert your independence and tell your mother that her smothering is creating problems in your marriage. Make it plain that one call a day is enough unless there is an emergency. If she insists on calling more frequently, say, "Sorry, I've got to run. I'll phone you tomorrow." Then do it.

Dear Ann Landers: I have never seen this subject discussed in your column and have been a daily reader for many years. Please respond in the paper. I would like several people to see it — especially a certain clergyman.

Does the minister of the gospel (Presbyterian) have the right to ask a couple who come to him about wedding plans if

Indoor Activities Can Take Place Of Running In Cold Weather

By PAUL DONOHUE, M.D.
Dear Dr. Donohue: This winter I see an end to my running program. Too darned cold. I'd like to continue the heart and lung improvement made during the summer and fall. Any suggestions? — H.K.

No need for your muscles, heart or lung to go into hibernation just because nature has. If you lay off, you quickly lose gains you have made. There are many indoor activities to fill the seasonal gap.

Rope jumping is a good substitute for running. The equipment is inexpensive. A piece of clothesline is all you need. I am asked about the length of line. To find out, step on the line and bring the ends to be cut up to your armpits. That is about the desired length.

If you are just starting out, take time to learn the skill first, so that you can jump with a graceful motion suited to your weight and build. Begin exercise sessions modestly, jumping for 15 seconds, resting for 30 seconds. Then repeat. Perhaps four or five minutes of this will tell you it's time to quit. You can gradually build up your time according to your abilities.

While jumping rope is an excellent way to keep the heart and lungs in shape, there are some disadvantages to it. The feet take a great deal of pounding, especially if you are overweight. The balls of the feet take most of the punishment, so your shoes should be well-padded.

Swimming, cross-country skiing (not for you, apparently) and stationary bike riding are good alternatives. Any exercise should be preceded by leg muscle stretching exercises, the kind you see football players and others do just prior to competition.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Is there a way to combine training for the heart and training for muscle strength? I'd like to do both. — B.P.

Here's a new term for you physical activists — circuit training — which gets to the heart of B.P.'s question.

Circuit training is a way to combine aerobic exercise (for the heart and the lung) with strength training for muscles. There are a number of ways to approach it. You have to be pretty heavily into body building to do it the way experts suggest. You need a lot of room, a lot of equipment and probably a whole lot of fortitude.

If you have the room and equipment, you can set up about eight stations at some distance apart. Each station contains equipment for a particular exercise. For example, at station No. 1 you might have equipment to do bench presses. When you decide the heaviest weight you can bench press, you use about 60 percent of that weight and do as many bench presses as fast as you can. Then you hurry to the next station, allowing only about 15 seconds before the next exercise, which might be rope pulls. You get the idea.

When you complete the entire eight stations besides being mighty tired, you will have raised your pulse rate to sufficient levels for a long enough period to benefit your heart and lungs. You also, of course, will have benefited various muscle groups involved at the various stations.

Another way to do this is to own one of the universal weight training machines. Do I have to add the warning that such exercise is not for the frail-hearted (literally and figuratively)? This kind of training is done only after a doctor has approved it.

Dear Dr. Donohue: When I married my husband he was a superjock and looked great. He still weighs about the same (235) but, believe me, he doesn't look the same. Did all that muscle turn to fat or what? — B.J.L.

Contrary to popular notion, muscles do not turn to fat. They just shrink when exercise is abandoned. What happens to athletes who are quite large and who stop exercising is straightforward.

They have gotten used to training table eating habits during their active days. When they stop exercising regularly, they retain these appetites, which are then out of proportion to their needs. Their caloric intake stays the same, but they burn less. They begin to store calories as fat, which looks flabby on their less muscular frame. Time to wean this ex-gliadiator away from his training table — unless he gets back into training.

Dear Dr. Donohue: A year ago I was hospitalized for tests because of diarrhea, which I'd had over a period of years. They said I had diverticulosis (pockets on the colon). I was told to eat a lot of bulk and roughage. How long do I have to keep this up. I'm 74. — Mrs. E.G.L.

You must continue for the rest of your life. You should have noticed a difference by now from the roughage. Have you? The bulk will help give the bowel work to keep it active and thus keep the outpouching problem under control. This intestinal disorder is discussed at greater length in the booklet "Don't Let Diverticulosis Throw You." For a copy, write Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

HINTS FROM HELOISE:

Store Christmas Wrapping In Plastic Can Holders

DEAR HELOISE: I've always saved those plastic six-ring can holders, knowing someday I'd find a use for them.

While putting away the Christmas things today, I almost automatically reached for the rings to slide the tubes of wrapping paper into!

Some of the smaller tubes won't fit, though sometimes two tubes will fit into one ring.

However, when stored on the shelf, the rings keep the tube from rolling, even if they are a bit loose, as I put one six-pack holder at each end of the tubes.

I've never had my Christmas wraps so neat. I also store rolls of non-seasonal paper this way, stacking it on top for easier access. — Mary Balmediano

Boy! You sure got through the holiday festivities with your wits intact. Storing those "uncooperative" tubes is a real hassle and I think you've come up with a nifty solution to the problem. Thanks from all of us. — Heloise

EASE 'EM OFF

DEAR HELOISE: To get tight-fitting rubber gloves off without tugging and tearing them, put a drop of liquid detergent in each one and hold your hands under running warm water from the faucet.

Let the gloves fill with the water and they will slip right off. — Ruby Laws

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

DEAR HELOISE: Being the mother of five small children, I can truly sympathize with the poor mother kangaroo on a rainy day — when the kids have to play inside. — Barbara

USE A SHOEHORN

DEAR HELOISE: To keep from breaking your fingertips when putting your sandals on without unbuckling them, use a shoehorn under the back strap.

It (the strap) will slip on like magic! — A.C.

RINSE-HAND WATER

DEAR HELOISE: I draw a pan of comfortably hot water and place a hand towel beside it as the first step toward cooking.

By rinsing my hands in this when necessary, I no longer have sticky hands to contend with or faucet handles to clean.

But the big bonus is that the warm rinse is more comfortable to my arthritis-prone fingers than a quick jet of cold tap water. — Mrs. John Bean

Besides that, you're saving water in the process which, of course, means a few extra pennies in your pocket.

Great idea, Mrs. B. — Heloise

STRONG 'THAD'

DEAR HELOISE: To sew on coat or jacket buttons, or to sew together any heavy material or braided rugs, use clear limp nylon fishing line, four-pound test. This really holds, lasts and doesn't show. Isn't expensive, either. — Mrs. Eleanor Olson

BARRETTÉ HOLDER

DEAR HELOISE: A plastic ice cube tray is perfect for holding a little girl's barrettes and pony-tail holders.

Sure keeps the mess to a minimum and you can get the one you want without untangling the whole bunch.

HINTS FROM HIM

DEAR HELOISE: The catsup bottle! I've observed people and their handling of this little palatable condiment.

Some use the cap to catch the last drop and that puts the catsup all over the top of the bottle. Some use a fork or spoon.

But the best solution I've come up with is to hold the bottle in a horizontal position, which will leave the last drop hanging.

Turn the bottle a full half turn (180) and that last drop will lay back into the bottle. Then you can replace the cap without filling the cap with catsup.

Be sure and keep the bottle level while turning, though. I enjoy reading your column. — David Hunt

And I enjoyed your informing us of the do's and don'ts of pouring that delectable catsup! What would we do without it? — Heloise

Solved a difficult support problem? Write Heloise, 235 E. 45th St., New York, N.Y. 10017 and tell her all about it. She can't answer your letter personally but, sure as it's 1981, she will print the dandiest ideas received in her column.

Methodist Home Names Center For Mrs. Cone

Mrs. Fern Cone of Lubbock has been honored for her donation of a work training center, at a cost of $100,000, to the Methodist Mission Home's Southwest Center for the Hearing Impaired, in San Antonio.

The Fern Cone Work Center was dedicated in November. Taking part in the dedication ceremonies was Harold Harger of First United Methodist Church, Lubbock, of which Mrs. Cone is a member.

A member of a pioneer family that settled in Lubbock in 1907, Mrs. Cone has been active in local cultural and philanthropic affairs for many years. She has contributed to the recreational building of Texas Boys' Ranch and the school building of Boys Ranch at the Methodist Children's Home in Waco.

A life member of the executive board of her church, she has served on various boards, including the YMCA and Methodist Hospital, and is one of the founders of Texas Boys' Ranch and a member of its executive board.

The work center will provide a place for training and education of the hearing impaired at the Methodist Mission Home in San Antonio, which also operates a maternity center.

STAR QUALITY — Joan Crawford is among the stars of a new exhibition of photography from Hollywood's Golden Years at New York's Museum of Modern Art. This photo of the late actress was taken by Laszlo Willinger in 1939 — the year that she starred in MGM's "The Women." Among the other actors featured in the exhibit are Clark Gable, Jean Harlow, Humphrey Bogart, Katherine Hepburn and Bette Davis.

Getting Back In Shape Requires Training

WASHINGTON, D.C. (Special) — If one of your New Year's resolutions is to get back in shape, there are a few things you should know before jumping into your sweat-soaked jog a couple of miles.

Pat Lamboni, head athletic trainer at the Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C., believes the same procedures athletes follow during training can also apply to people who are concerned with getting in shape to feel or look better.

"It's important for everyone to exercise, and to do it the proper way," said Lamboni. "Exercising the proper way strengthens your heart and other muscles, as well as causing your blood to flow better. The blood flow cleans out impurities in your system and helps prevent some illnesses."

The first step is to get a physical and develop an exercise program that fits your needs, according to the trainer. "Athletes get physicals and then follow an established training program designed to allow them gradually to reach their full potential," said Lamboni. "The same should hold true for people trying to get into shape for their own well-being."

"It's a must to have a physical before you try to get back in shape, especially after an extended period of inactivity. Certain problems can develop quickly, and if you don't get a physical, you may never know that some exercise is irritating the problem. It's also important to know what type of exercising will fit your needs the best. Not all the exercises improve the areas you may need to work on. I suggest talking to a doctor or reading books or magazines on the subject."

After having a physical and developing an exercise program, the next step is learning how to stretch your muscles properly, said Lamboni. Stretching is one of the most important parts of exercising, because it fulfills two vital needs that very few other exercises can accomplish.

"The first reason you should stretch is to warm up the deep muscle tissue," said Lamboni. "This is important because the deep muscle tissues are the ones most often injured because they have not been warmed up properly. Muscles are much more flexible when they have been stretched and warmed up. Many athletes strain and rip them because they haven't stretched properly, and the same can happen to anyone who exercises without warming up. You could compare them to a piece of plastic. A cold piece is going to break if you try to maneuver it, while a warm piece has more flexibility and can be more easily maneuvered without breaking."

"Stretching also allows your muscles to develop patterns of motion, which permits people to get stronger and more flexible. This is very important for athletes, and it's just as important for others because it allows them to advance in their exercising programs."

There are various types of exercises that can help people get into shape, said Lamboni. There is, of course, jogging, which builds up endurance and strengthens many muscles, but jogging is not the only means of getting in shape. Walking works on many of the same areas, as does swimming and bike riding. Sit-ups, push-ups, swimming, and "jumping jacks" will also prove valuable, according to the trainer.

But, the most important thing to keep in mind when starting a fitness program is to start slowly and build up gradually. "Don't go out and work until you're ready to collapse on the first day," said Lamboni. "Start slowly and then gradually build up."

"If you start out too fast, bad things may happen. Not only will you strain your muscles to the point that they will hurt badly, but you may also give up your fitness program because you may believe it is not worth suffering to get into shape. It's much easier to get into shape if you allow your body to slowly adjust to the new movement. Athletes go through the same type of procedures during training camps, before they can perform to the best of their abilities."

Each person should determine what he wants from a fitness program. "You can work out several hours a day, or you can take 15 minutes to walk around the block a couple of times. What counts is that you allow your muscles to work and your blood to clean the impurities from your system," he said.

"Being on a fitness program doesn't have to be painful if you do it the right way."

Children are the most frequent recipients of violence in this society — violence directed against them by parents and other children.

ANN LANDERS:

Death Of Spouse Most Traumatic

Dear Ann Landers: This morning's mail brought news of the suicide of a friend. He was a lovely man whose wife recently passed away.

His daughter had assumed that he had adjusted well, but since she was not living near him she had only his letters to go by.

Most people are not aware that the death of a spouse is the most traumatic of all life's changes.

The difficult problems usually begin weeks after the funeral, when the last relative has gone and the day-to-day routine resumes. The bereaved widows and widowers should be told about the help they can get from a government agency.

Those who are interested should write to Widowed Persons Service AARP/NRTA, 1909 K Street NW, Washington, D.C. 20049. Thanks for all the good you do. — Alone But No Longer Fearful

Dear Friend: I'm grateful for the information. I did not know this service was available. Thank you for helping me to help others.

Dear Ann Landers: My mother is retired and has very little to do. So she calls me on the phone. Yesterday it was seven times. She never has anything to talk about — just wants to make sure everybody is "all right."

My mother is not a widow. She and Dad are in good health, have a car, no financial worries and many friends, but suddenly I have become the center of her life. This woman does more bossing now than when I was 15. In fact, she had a job then and had very little time for me. Now she can't leave me alone.

It annoys my husband when she phones so often, and we've had arguments about it. I've asked Dad to help, but he says, "She is a good person and means well."

I don't want to put my mother out of my life. All I want is a normal relationship. Please help. — Baby of 39

Dear 39: I hate to be a bore, but I'll have to say it again. It takes two people to create a situation like yours — a mother who is a compulsive neurotic and a daughter who will permit herself to be imposed upon. Seven calls a day just to see if everybody is "all right" is too darned many.

At some point you must say, "Enough and no more." Assert your independence and tell your mother that her smothering is creating problems in your marriage. Make it plain that one call a day is enough unless there is an emergency. If she insists on calling more frequently, say, "Sorry, I've got to run. I'll phone you tomorrow." Then do it.

Dear Ann Landers: I have never seen this subject discussed in your column and have been a daily reader for many years. Please respond in the paper. I would like several people to see it — especially a certain clergyman.

Does the minister of the gospel (Presbyterian) have the right to ask a couple who come to him about wedding plans if

Indoor Activities Can Take Place Of Running In Cold Weather

By PAUL DONOHUE, M.D.
Dear Dr. Donohue: This winter I see an end to my running program. Too darned cold. I'd like to continue the heart and lung improvement made during the summer and fall. Any suggestions? — H.K.

No need for your muscles, heart or lung to go into hibernation just because nature has. If you lay off, you quickly lose gains you have made. There are many indoor activities to fill the seasonal gap.

Rope jumping is a good substitute for running. The equipment is inexpensive. A piece of clothesline is all you need. I am asked about the length of line. To find out, step on the line and bring the ends to be cut up to your armpits. That is about the desired length.

If you are just starting out, take time to learn the skill first, so that you can jump with a graceful motion suited to your weight and build. Begin exercise sessions modestly, jumping for 15 seconds, resting for 30 seconds. Then repeat. Perhaps four or five minutes of this will tell you it's time to quit. You can gradually build up your time according to your abilities.

While jumping rope is an excellent way to keep the heart and lungs in shape, there are some disadvantages to it. The feet take a great deal of pounding, especially if you are overweight. The balls of the feet take most of the punishment, so your shoes should be well-padded.

Swimming, cross-country skiing (not for you, apparently) and stationary bike riding are good alternatives. Any exercise should be preceded by leg muscle stretching exercises, the kind you see football players and others do just prior to competition.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Is there a way to combine training for the heart and training for muscle strength? I'd like to do both. — B.P.

Here's a new term for you physical activists — circuit training — which gets to the heart of B.P.'s question.

Circuit training is a way to combine aerobic exercise (for the heart and the lung) with strength training for muscles. There are a number of ways to approach it. You have to be pretty heavily into body building to do it the way experts suggest. You need a lot of room, a lot of equipment and probably a whole lot of fortitude.

If you have the room and equipment, you can set up about eight stations at some distance apart. Each station contains equipment for a particular exercise. For example, at station No. 1 you might have equipment to do bench presses. When you decide the heaviest weight you can bench press, you use about 60 percent of that weight and do as many bench presses as fast as you can. Then you hurry to the next station, allowing only about 15 seconds before the next exercise, which might be rope pulls. You get the idea.

When you complete the entire eight stations besides being mighty tired, you will have raised your pulse rate to sufficient levels for a long enough period to benefit your heart and lungs. You also, of course, will have benefited various muscle groups involved at the various stations.

Another way to do this is to own one of the universal weight training machines. Do I have to add the warning that such exercise is not for the frail-hearted (literally and figuratively)? This kind of training is done only after a doctor has approved it.

Dear Dr. Donohue: When I married my husband he was a superjock and looked great. He still weighs about the same (235) but, believe me, he doesn't look the same. Did all that muscle turn to fat or what? — B.J.L.

Contrary to popular notion, muscles do not turn to fat. They just shrink when exercise is abandoned. What happens to athletes who are quite large and who stop exercising is straightforward.

They have gotten used to training table eating habits during their active days. When they stop exercising regularly, they retain these appetites, which are then out of proportion to their needs. Their caloric intake stays the same, but they burn less. They begin to store calories as fat, which looks flabby on their less muscular frame. Time to wean this ex-gladiator away from his training table — unless he gets back into training.

Dear Dr. Donohue: A year ago I was hospitalized for tests because of diarrhea, which I'd had over a period of years. They said I had diverticulosis (pockets on the colon). I was told to eat a lot of bulk and roughage. How long do I have to keep this up. I'm 74. — Mrs. E.G.L.

You must continue for the rest of your life. You should have noticed a difference by now from the roughage. Have you? The bulk will help give the bowel work to keep it active and thus keep the outpouching problem under control. This intestinal disorder is discussed at greater length in the booklet "Don't Let Diverticulosis Throw You." For a copy, write Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

HINTS FROM HELOISE:

Store Christmas Wrapping In Plastic Can Holders

DEAR HELOISE:

I've always saved those plastic six-ring can holders, knowing someday I'd find a use for them.

While putting away the Christmas things today, I almost automatically reached for the rings to slide the tubes of wrapping paper into!

Some of the smaller tubes won't fit, though sometimes two tubes will fit into one ring.

However, when stored on the shelf, the rings keep the tube from rolling, even if they are a bit loose, as I put one six-pack holder at each end of the tubes.

I've never had my Christmas wraps so neat. I also store rolls of non-seasonal paper this way, stacking it on top for easier access. — Mary Balmediano

Boy! You sure got through the holiday festivities with your wits intact. Storing those "uncooperative" tubes is a real hassle and I think you've come up with a nifty solution to the problem. Thanks from all of us. — Heloise

EASE 'EM OFF

DEAR HELOISE:

To get tight-fitting rubber gloves off without tugging and tearing them, put a drop of liquid detergent in each one and hold your hands under running warm water from the faucet.

Let the gloves fill with the water and they will slip right off. — Ruby Laws

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

DEAR HELOISE:

Being the mother of five small children, I can truly sympathize with the poor mother kangaroo on a rainy day — when the kids have to play inside. — Barbara

Touche! — Heloise

USE A SHOEHORN

DEAR HELOISE:

To keep from breaking your fingernails when putting your sandals on without unbuckling them, use a shoehorn under the back strap.

It (the strap) will slip on like magic! — A.C.

RINSE HAND WATER

DEAR HELOISE:

I draw a pan of comfortably hot water and place a hand towel beside it as the first step toward cooking.

By rinsing my hands in this when necessary, I no longer have sticky hands to contend with or faucet handles to clean.

But the big bonus is that the warm rinse is more comfortable to my arthritis-prone fingers than a quick jet of cold tap water. — Mrs. John Bean

Besides that, you're saving water in the process which, of course, means a few extra pennies in your pocket.

Great idea, Mrs. B. — Heloise

STRONG 'THAD'

DEAR HELOISE:

To sew on coat or jacket buttons, or to sew together any heavy material or braided rugs, use clear limp nylon fishing line, four-pound test.

BARRETTE HOLDER

DEAR HELOISE:

A plastic ice cube tray is perfect for holding a little girl's barrettes and pony-tail holders.

Sure keeps the mess to a minimum and you can get the one you want without untangling the whole bunch.

HINTS FROM HIM

DEAR HELOISE:

The catsup bottle! I've observed people and their handling of this little palatable condiment.

Some use the cap to catch the last drop and that puts the catsup all over the top of the bottle. Some use a fork or spoon.

But the best solution I've come up with is to hold the bottle in a horizontal position, which will leave the last drop hanging.

Turn the bottle a full half turn (180) and that last drop will lay back into the bottle. Then you can replace the cap without filling the cap with catsup.

Be sure and keep the bottle level while turning, though. I enjoy reading your column. — David Hunt

And I enjoyed your informing us of the do's and don'ts of pouring that delectable catsup! What would we do without it? — Heloise

Solved a difficult storage problem? Write Heloise, 235 E. 45th St., New York, N.Y. 10017 and tell her all about it. She can't answer your letter personally but, sure as it's 1981, she will print the dandiest ideas received in her column.

Methodist Home Names Center For Mrs. Cone

Mrs. Fern Cone of Lubbock has been honored for her donation of a work training center, at a cost of $100,000, to the Methodist Mission Home's Southwest Center for the Hearing Impaired, in San Antonio.

The Fern Cone Work Center was dedicated in November. Taking part in the dedication ceremonies was Harold Harriger of First United Methodist Church, Lubbock, of which Mrs. Cone is a member.

A member of a pioneer family that settled in Lubbock in 1907, Mrs. Cone has been active in local cultural and philanthropic affairs for many years. She has contributed to the recreational building of Texas Boys' Ranch and the school building of Boys Ranch at the Methodist Children's Home in Waco.

A life member of the executive board of her church, she has served on various boards, including the YMCA and Methodist Hospital, and is one of the founders of Texas Boys' Ranch and a member of its executive board.

The work center will provide a place for training and education of the hearing impaired at the Methodist Mission Home in San Antonio, which also operates a maternity center.

STAR QUALITY — Joan Crawford is among the stars of a new exhibition of photography from Hollywood's Golden Years at New York's Museum of Modern Art. This photo of the late actress was taken by Laszlo Willinger in 1939 — the year that she starred in MGM's "The Women." Among the other actors featured in the exhibit are Clark Gable, Jean Harlow, Humphrey Bogart, Katherine Hepburn and Bette Davis.

PRINTS, PRINTS, PRINTS — Prints are all the rage this year: for wall covering as well as bed linens and curtains. Combinations of small prints, in coordinating colors, are quite acceptable. If you are taking advantage of January white sales to re-decorate your bedrooms, here are some ideas (the prints are combining with traditional furniture to create a classic look). At left, Sperry and Hutchinson company decorates a bedroom with wallcoverings and coordinating fabric in a charming rosebud pattern from Kassel's "Sugar 'n Spice" Collection. Wallcovering is pre-pasted vinyl. Furniture is from American Drew's New Kinsman Collection. At right, a dramatic bedroom by Strahan's new Colonial Portfolio IX collection of wallcoverings and fabrics. The floral ribbon design adds lively color to walls above dado, and the coordinating fabric shows up in draperies, a cozy comforter, and slipcovers. Ribbons from the wallcovering design are used vertically to emphasize ceiling, chair rail and baseboard moldings.

Dental Meeting Unveils 'Invisible Intruder,' 'Secret Weapon'

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Health Editor

Down at the dental work, they are hard at work on projects that may be of great help to family dental health in 1981. For instance, one project is to combat the "invisible intruder in the dentist's chair." Another is to promote the use of dentistry's new secret weapon in sports.

Reports on the "intruder" and the "secret weapon" were among dozens at the 56th Greater New York Dental Meeting, said to be the nation's most important such molar meeting.

The "invisible intruder" in the dentist's chair is fear, said Dr. Edwin Joy, chairman of the department of oral surgery at the Medical College of Georgia in Augusta.

The dentist and his office should be the greatest psychological factors in allaying this fear, Joy said.

"Although drugs calm even the most fearful patient, psychology is often more effective — and less hazardous."

Here are some fear-allaying strategies Joy recommended to fellow dentists:

—Once the patient walks in, getting him to relax is the most important first step. This can be done by a soothing conversation, through hypnosis or by creating a fantasy with the patient by discussing subjects which would immediately put him in another setting — one far away from dental procedures.

—The office most likely to relax a patient is one done in soft colors, featuring soothing music and decorations which make the place appear to be something other than a dental office.

—Murals should feature mountains or seascapes depicting tranquil scenes.

—Mask or hide much of the dental equipment so it does not frighten the patient as he enters the office.

—Most dentists overlook the fact that patients spend a good deal of their time looking at the ceiling. "White can be frightening," Joy said, "because it is empty." He suggested dentists hang mobiles and plants in a way to distract patients and calm anxiety.

—Children do better as dental patients when they are treated in groups. Joy said the dental office should be set up as an open bay with cubicles so kids can see one another as they are being treated. He said peer pressure being what it is, kids tend to be less anxious and less fearful when they can see how the others are doing.

"Dentistry's secret weapon in sports" is a mouthpiece.

Long used in boxing to protect the fighter's teeth, a new version of the mouthpiece may be a new secret weapon that infuses its wearer's muscles with "extra strength," said Dr. Richard Kaufman.

The Oceanside, N.Y., dentist said the mouthpiece design does not actually manufacture additional strength in the body but it does relieve the athlete's tension and pain so a greater effort is possible.

Kaufman, involved in dentistry in the sports field, calls his mouthpiece a MORA — mandibular orthopedic repositioning appliance.

Kaufmann said it:

—Corrects most misalignments by filling in any unevenness between upper and lower teeth even where teeth are missing and lines up the teeth properly.

—Lowers the bottom jaw and brings it forward, taking pressure off the temporomandibular joint which connects the lower jaw to the skull.

"The brain picks up the dental misalignment of the bite when you swallow and from your teeth when they touch," Kaufman said.

"Then the brain sends the message to, let's say, your arm to compensate for the dental misalignment, and the arm has to work that much harder and it will tire faster."

He said athletes using the device report most headaches disappear. The resultant sense of well-being enables them to produce extra energy and strength for their game.

Kaufman said the MORA was used by the U.S. Olympic team in the luge and bobsled events and by baseball, lacrosse and track athletes.

He claims the MORA makes a neurological change in the athlete as well as a change in the electrical firing pattern from the motor cortex in the brain. With the mouthpiece in, muscles seem to be much stronger all over the body.

In case anybody asks, a MORA is made of two strips of acrylic material that fit precisely over the lower molars and bicuspids, while a bridge of stainless steel fits behind the lower incisors. Kaufman said most wearers can speak clearly and chew food while wearing a MORA.

If something about your face bugs you, why not have a dentist check out options before you see a plastic surgeon? Dr. Sidney I. Silverman said many of the not-so-attractive aspects of the face can be caused by teeth, gums, jaws. "These can be corrected by a dentist and the procedures are often safer, more economical and more durable in restoring a youthful, vigorous look," the New York dentist said.

He claimed:

—Sagging jaws, thin lips or neck wrinkles may not be natural aging but may be caused by the teeth. If teeth have been lost through decay, gum disease or other problems, the face may age prematurely.

—Dentist can restore the face height and profile and as a result jowls and deep furrows in the neck assume softer contours. In many cases patients may be spared plastic surgery.

—Jowls, thin lips or wrinkles on the upper lip and crusting on the corners of the mouth can frequently be alleviated through orthodontic treatment, crown and tooth replacement. This is supposed to help diminish wrinkles and prevent makeup from caking in deep furrows of the lips.

Fat prices for gold and silver are pushing dentists to other materials. Most promising are space-age techniques using nickel-chrome alloys to which ceramics can be fused in constructing crowns and bridges.

Dr. Gordon J. Christensen, co-director of Clinical Research Associates, Provo, Utah, told about the use of micro-filled resins as an alternative.

He said the smooth surface plastic filling materials have many of the advantages of gold and silver — they do not collect food stains, blend well with the color of the teeth and can be worked like the high-priced metals.

Additional replacements for gold and silver include alloys of chrome, nickel, copper, cobalt, palladium and others being tested.

In major oral reconstruction, Dr. Joel M. Leon, of Greenwich, Conn., said the nickel-chrome alloys are preferable to when work is extensive, Leon said. The alloy's cost is far less than the precious gold and silver. They have twice the strength with half the weight of precious metals.

Weight in the mouth can be a factor metals, yet they are every bit as serviceable and reliable.

Dr. Peter A. Weiss of Needham, Mass., has been working with nickel-chrome, a space-age alloy. He expects use of the alloy to grow — "more because of the material's excellence rather than as a price alternative."

Capsules of what's new in dentistry:

—Making dental enamel from laser materials. Bernard Rubin, research coordinator, department of physics and astronomy at the University of Maryland, said the technique utilizes invitro precipitation of calcium phosphate salts from a gel medium onto the surface of a tooth.

—Reducing patient radiation exposure from X-rays. A Presentation on xeroradiography by Luther S. Jeromin of Xerox Medical Systems featured a new, non-silver imaging system for intraoral dental radiology.

Dr. Stuart C. White told about preliminary clinical trials of the system. White said the processing time is only about 20 seconds and patient radiation exposure is reduced by at least half.

More and more informed medical consumers are refusing dental x-rays due to fear of cancer from too much exposure to radiation — which is cumulative. It's a pain for a lot of dentists — and in the pocketbook, too. Income from x-rays is a staple in your usual dentist budget.

WHAT'S UP?

A capsule view of tastes, interests and attitudes

LEE SMITH has written a vivid, evocative, haunting novel, "Black Mountain Breakdown," which is reminiscent of "To Kill a Mockingbird."

Laying the blame

Philippe Junot, saying "I still love Caroline," blamed Princess Grace, Prince Rainier and the press for contributing to his divorce from Princess Caroline in an interview in the January issue of Ladies Home Journal.

Junot also debunked rumors of a large financial settlement from Prince Rainier in exchange for agreeing to the divorce. "That's as stupid as if he said I was tall and blond," he said. He said he was financially independent and implied he paid for everything during his brief marriage with the princess.

"We had some problems, Caroline and I — like all couples," said Junot. "But being public persons, we weren't allowed the privacy to work them out. There were problems with her parents. I like them. But they saw Caroline unhappy at a certain moment, and everything got exaggerated. What I really wanted was some time for Caroline and me to be alone and work out our problems. But her parents interfered and the whole thing became impossible."

Commenting on his alleged infidelity, Junot said, "As far as infidelity is concerned, I think as long as the man respects his wife and doesn't make an affair obvious... (his voice trailed off)

"The press is responsible for creating an atmosphere of infidelity between Caroline and me, which does not reflect the reality. When Caroline saw that photograph of me dancing at Studio 54 with Agneta (von Furstenberg), she was very upset. Caroline had a tendency to think — if he does that, why shouldn't I pay attention to other men? So more and more she began to flirt and to invite the attentions of other men. But one day this kind of behavior reaches a point where it completely changes the relationship, and the trust is gone, which is exactly what happened to us."

"If I had it to do over again, I would be more concerned to find out exactly who she is and I would have tried to be with her more instead of devoting so much time to my work," said Junot. "After all, business is not that important. I succeeded in my business, but failed in my private life."

New Year rituals

The electric ball that marks the new year in New York City's Time Square is already being checked out for its annual appearance by chief engineer Russell Brown.

For 51 weeks a year, the ball is kept locked in a special vault in the Allied Chemical Building. Soon after Christmas, it is brought out, inspected and hung near the bottom of the flagpole out of view from the street below.

Its brilliance, says Brown, comes from 180 25-watt bulbs that screw into sockets on the sphere's aluminum bars, for, in fact, the ball is not solid. Rather, it's a construction of 20 bars, bound at the top, bottom and circumference. The ball is 6 feet tall and weighs 100 pounds. Considering that the light bulbs are only lit for six hours each year, they should last for 6,000 years.

At 6 p.m. on New Year's Eve, Brown and six assistants spend two minutes hoisting the globe 77 feet up the flagpole.

At 8 p.m., Brown places a phone call and synchronizes his watch with Naval Observatory Time.

At 10 p.m., he places a second call to confirm the time.

At 11:59 p.m., the seven men ease the ball, hand over hand, into its descent. The ball glides down slowly for 59 seconds. At one second before midnight, it is extinguished, and the switch welcoming the new year is turned on.

On the other side of the country, Pasadenans have spent weeks preparing for the Tournament of Roses Parade. In the 92 years of the parade, it has only rained seven times — the last time in 1955 — and only once caused a delay. It is often possible for the parade to be seen before a backdrop of snow-capped San Gabriel Mountains, which rise to 8,000 feet just to the north of the city.

A few firsts for the world-famous parade:

1901 — Automobiles are allowed for the first time in the parade, but "they must appear at the end of the parade so they don't frighten the horses."

1916 — The parade's first "bathing beauties," outfitted in fetching black bloomers, ride the Ocean Park, Calif., float.

1927 — The year national radio coverage begins. Czechoslovakia becomes the first foreign nation to enter a float in the Rose Parade.

Grocery Bills Increase By Wide Margin In 1980

The proportion of the food dollar received by the farmer, wholesaler and retailer and does not correspond to actual family spending.

The items on the AP checklist were: chopped chuck, center cut pork chops, frozen orange juice concentrate, coffee, paper towels, laundry detergent, fabric softener, tomato sauce, milk, frankfurters and granulated sugar.

The cities checked were: Albuquerque, Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Los Angeles, Miami, New York, Philadelphia, Providence, R.I., Salt Lake City and Seattle.

ALBUQUERQUE: The total for 13 available items went from $20.06 to $23.72, up 3.3 percent. Pork chops, orange juice, paper towels, peanut butter, detergent, tomato sauce and milk increased; only eggs declined. The regular brand of frankfurters was temporarily unavailable at the checklist store. Other items were unchanged.

ATLANTA: The marketbasket bill increased 2.6 percent, from $20.89 to $21.44. Eggs were on sale at 68 cents a dozen instead of the regular 91-cent price and coffee also decreased. But the drops were more than offset by increases in the cost of pork chops, paper towels, butter, peanut butter, frankfurters and sugar. The other items were unchanged.

BOSTON: The marketbasket bill jumped 5.2 percent, from $20.84 to $21.92. Chopped chuck, pork chops, coffee, eggs, peanut butter, frankfurters and sugar all increased. There were no decreases. The other seven items were unchanged.

CHICAGO: The marketbasket total for 12 available items went from $16.88 to $16.93, up about one-third of a percent. Chopped chuck, eggs, peanut butter, tomato sauce and frankfurters went up; pork chops, orange juice and sugar went down; the requested size of coffee and fabric softener was not available at the checklist store. Other items were unchanged.

DALLAS: The bill for 13 available items went from $20.33 to $19.67, down 3.2 percent. Coffee, peanut butter and frankfurters increased, while chopped chuck, pork chops, orange juice and eggs decreased. The requested size of paper towels was temporarily unavailable at the checklist store on one of the survey dates. Other items were unchanged.

DETROIT: The total dropped 5.2 percent, from $22.03 to $20.88. Orange juice, peanut butter and milk increased slightly, but there were sharp declines in the price of pork chops, paper towels, eggs and detergent. The remaining seven items were unchanged.

LOS ANGELES: The total for 13 available items went from $19.08 to $19.29, up 1.1 percent. Pork chops, chopped chuck, orange juice, coffee, eggs, detergent and tomato sauce increased; butter, peanut butter, fabric softener, milk and frankfurters decreased; sugar was unchanged and the checklist size of paper towels was temporarily unavailable on one of the survey dates.

MIAMI: The marketbasket rose 1.9 percent, from $20.31 to $20.70. Pork chops, paper towels, peanut butter and detergent went up; eggs and sugar decreased; remaining items stayed the same.

NEW YORK: The marketbasket for 12 available items went from $23.60 to $23.88, up 1.2 percent. Pork chops, chopped chuck, orange juice and sugar increased. Butter — on sale at $1.99 a pound compared to the Dec. 1 price of $2.35 — was the only item to decrease. Eggs and fabric softener were temporarily unavailable at the checklist store. Other items were unchanged.

PHILADELPHIA: The marketbasket bill went up eight-tenths of a percent, from $22.39 to $22.56. Peanut butter and milk went up; coffee, eggs and sugar went down; the remaining nine items were unchanged.

Curtain going up on another term

The Roles of the President

Ronald Reagan will be sworn in on January 20. But here are some of the many roles he must play as the leader of our country.

The stage—Much of the action during the next four-year term will take place in the White House. The official name is "The Executive Mansion." The address is 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, Washington, D.C., 20500. The president and his family live on the second floor. There are also offices in the wings of this building.

 Chief executive	 Economic leader	 Commander-in-chief	 Chief diplomat	 Chief of state	 Party leader
As chief executive, the president is the boss of 3 million U.S. government employees. He also must present laws to Congress that he thinks should be passed.	As economic leader, the president has to keep prices from going up and up. He also must help keep our businesses busy and our workers on the job.	As commander in chief, the president is in charge of our Navy, Marines, Air Force, Coast Guard and Army. He must see that our armed forces are ready for combat.	As chief diplomat, the president helps decide how our country will act toward other countries. He picks the ambassadors that the Senate then approves.	As chief of state, the president represents our country here and in other lands. He attends many ceremonies as a symbol of the United States. A king might carry out these duties in other countries.	As party leader, the president has a lot of say about the way his political party feels about problems. He also makes speeches and tries to raise money for his party.

The supporting cast: How the president sets up his staff of over 350 persons is up to him. Here are a few of the people who might help him.

 The press secretary speaks for the president to the members of the press.	 The appointments secretary arranges the president's day.	 The president's counsel is a lawyer who advises him on government legal matters.	 The president's congressional aides try to get his programs passed by the lawmakers.	 The president's doctor checks him often and always travels with him.

GUS GODDSPORT'S REPORT

Supersport: Larry Bird

Larry Bird flew straight to stardom in his first season of pro basketball. The Boston Celtics' forward was named Rookie of the Year and first team All-Pro in the 1979-80 season.

He is an excellent shooter, strong rebounder and one of the greatest passers in the game.

Before signing with the Celtics, Larry played for Indiana State University. He was named college Player of the Year his senior season.

Larry is from French Lick, Indiana. He also enjoys playing softball.

Ura Bird talks with a bald eagle

Q. How did you get to be so famous?
A. I am the national bird of the United States. I am found only in North America and mostly in Alaska. My picture is on a lot of important things.

Q. Are you really bald?
A. No, my head is covered with white feathers and my body has dark brown feathers. This makes me look bald.

Q. Where do you live?
A. We build our nests (called "aeries") on the tops of tall cliffs or on the tops of tall trees near water. Mrs. Eagle and I have two children ("eaglets") each year, although only one usually lives.

Q. What do you eat?
A. We eat fish, but we are not able to swim. We have to snatch them from the water. We also eat small animals. We only hunt in the daytime.

Q. Will you describe yourself for our readers?
A. I am about 35 inches long and weigh about 10 pounds. When I spread my wings, the tips are about 7 feet apart!

Q. Is it true there are not many bald eagles left?
A. Yes, but in 1940 the U.S. passed a law against killing us.

GOLLY G. BEE FACTS

Oval Office Facts

Amy Carter sits behind her father's desk. President Carter chose this desk because it was made from an old ship, and he is a Navy man. Ronald Reagan will choose his desk from several desks kept in storage.

- Presidents really don't work in the famous Oval Office. They use a nearby study.
- The Oval Office is used for ceremonies, for greeting important guests and for TV talks.
- The Oval Office is in the West Wing of the White House. Teddy Roosevelt had it built away from the private living quarters of the president and his family because he didn't like White House visitors hanging around his front hall.

Branches and Buildings of the U.S. Government

The U.S. government can be divided into three branches or parts. The people who work for the government work for the executive, legislative or judicial branch. Here is more about these branches and the buildings where some of these people work.

- 1. Executive Branch: These people carry out the laws.
 The president heads the executive branch. It is his job to see that the laws of the land are carried out. He has help from the vice president and many other government employees.
 The president has his office in the White House. Many of his aides do, too.
 The Old Executive Office Building is a large building right next to the White House. The vice president has his office here. Many other people who help the president do, too.
 There is a New Executive Office Building across the street from the White House.
 *Keep in mind that there are state, county and city governments, too.
- 2. The Legislative Branch: These people make the laws.
 The 100 people in the U.S. Senate and the 435 in the U.S. House of Representatives make up the legislative branch of government.
 Right: The Congress meets in the Capitol building.
 The judges on the Supreme Court and other U.S. federal courts decide if the laws passed are in keeping with the Constitution. They also decide court cases involving federal laws.
 The Supreme Court, the most important court in the country, meets in this building.
- 3. The Judicial Branch: These people make certain that the laws are enforced.

A day in the life of a president

Every president has different routines, and every day is different. Here's how a typical day might go:

- 5:30: Up and at 'em. (Shower and exercise. Presidents usually get up early.)
- 6:30: Eat breakfast and read the newspapers.
- 7:30: To the office.
  - Meet with advisers to discuss plans and policies.
  - Meet with press secretary.
- Meet with members of Congress, foreign visitors and other important people.
- 1:00: Lunch and a swim.
- 1:45: Afternoon meetings.
- 6:30: Meet with chief adviser and talk about the next day.
- 7:30: Dinner and evening activities.

The Mini Page Teacher's Guide

For use by teachers and parents at home and at school. For use with issue: The Roles of the President

Page 1: Pre-reader and beginning reader:

- Read the story aloud to the children. Many of these words will need further clarification. Also explain that the president usually just wears a business suit, although he is doing many different jobs. Explain that he has many duties, just like their parents might have. Ask them to discuss the many different roles their parents might fill.
- Ask the children to count the number of hats they see. Count the light bulbs.

Reader: Words to present: Executive Mansion, Pennsylvania Avenue, economic, commander, diplomat, ceremonies, appointments, counsel, congressional, supporting cast

- Discuss the different problems that the president might have when he is doing each job or carrying out his different roles. For example: What should he do as chief executive, economic leader, etc.
- Clip pictures from the newspaper and identify the role or roles the president is playing in each one.

Page 4: All ability groups: Point out the different buildings and ask the children to discuss how they are different or alike.

Study Indicates Breast Size Affects Opinions

By the Editors of Psychology Today

At first glance, women with small breasts impress college students as more competent, ambitious, intelligent, moral and modest than their large-busted peers, according to some recent research.

Chris Kleinke, a psychologist, and Richard Staneski, a university administrator, asked 52 male and 56 female students from two California colleges to rate three head-to-waist photographs of three college women.

Each of the three had used cotton to make her breasts appear progressively larger from one photograph to the next, and each wore clothing that fitted tightly enough to make her breast size "visible but not provocative." Earlier, a test panel of students had examined the photographs and had been unable to distinguish contrived models from actual sizes. The models were trained to keep their facial expressions neutral.

The students each rated one of the photographs, using 22 rating categories such as appealing/unappealing, selfish/unselfish, and "would be a good wife"/"would be a poor wife."

Breast size did not affect the ratings of the women's overall likability or personal appeal. The bias in favor of women with small busts (about 34 inches) turned up only on the ratings of competence, ambition, intelligence, morality and modesty.

Average ratings by men and women were virtually indistinguishable and when the researchers repeated the experiment with 92 male and female undergraduates from Eastern schools, the ratings were similar.

Although studies of breast size and first impressions have been done since 1968, in the past students have only been asked to rate silhouettes, in order to keep the influence of breast size separate from the influence of facial appearance and clothing. The earlier studies confirmed the stereotype of male students preferring female silhouettes with slightly larger breasts and female students preferring silhouettes with slightly smaller breasts.

When the subjects in the recent test evaluated the more realistic photographs, the researchers think, other features may have overridden breast size in influencing general impressions of attractiveness, even though breast size did influence judgment of particular characteristics.

Is there a link between love and health? Indeed there is, according to a study done by Theodore D. Kemper, a sociologist at St. John's University in New York. Kemper reported his results at the annual convention of the American Sociological Association.

College students are more likely to suffer from digestive problems, headaches and a variety of "bodily disorders, pains and fears about ill health," Kemper found if they have never been in love or have been in love more than three times.

if they have been involved with someone for two to six months rather than more or less time; or if they have just broken up with someone, especially if they blame that someone for the breakup.

No Oil Crisis Seen; Just Higher Prices In 1981

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP)—Barring an unforeseen upheaval in a major oil producing nation, the United States probably will not face any serious oil shortages this year, but Americans will be paying up to $1.60 for a gallon of gas in 1981, a Cornell University economist says.

Robert J. Kalter, a specialist in energy policy and the former director of the U.S. Energy Department's leasing policy development office, also doubted that President-elect Reagan's administration would have an immediate impact on the energy supply situation.

Kalter said Reagan is likely to take steps that could affect the domestic energy supply in the long run, such as moving toward faster deregulation of natural gas prices, releasing more public lands for energy exploration, and encouraging increased use of coal.

Even without major oil shortages or price increases by oil-producing nations, the cost of oil products will rise, Kalter said. He noted that deregulation of domestic oil prices is expected to continue until October.

Kalter estimated in a recent study released by Cornell that oil prices will increase to an average of $43 to $45 per 42-gallon barrel by the end of 1981. That translates into $1.40 to $1.60 a gallon for gasoline at the pump, he said.

The latest round of price increases by members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries pushed crude oil prices to about $41 a barrel.

Kalter said he expects gasoline prices to climb at a rate of 2 cents to 4 cents a month.

Home heating oil prices, which are about 25 to 30 cents lower than gasoline prices, are expected show similar increases, he said. That would bring the price of home heating oil to about $1.10 to $1.30 a gallon.

Deregulation of natural gas prices is scheduled to continue until 1985, but could be completed as early as 1982 if the Reagan administration pushes quicker action, Kalter said. The availability of natural gas will increase as major industrial users of gas switch to coal.

Price Of Canadian Petroleum Increases

OTTAWA (AP)—The prices Americans pay for the small amount of crude oil they import from Canada have risen sharply.

The increases, which took effect Thursday, were contained in the budget plan the Liberal party government of Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau announced in October. Controlled domestic oil prices, which are well below world prices, also were increased.

Canadian shipments of 130,000 barrels of crude a day amount to 2 percent of U.S. crude oil imports. American imports of Canadian crude have fallen sharply recently as Canada kept most of its higher-quality light crudes for domestic use and as demand in the United States for heavier Canadian crudes declined.

Canada's new export prices for a 42-gallon barrel of oil are:
*Very heavy Lloydminster grades, up 42 percent to about $19.47 (U.S.) from $13.70.

Policeman Wants To Quit

LAPWAI, Idaho (AP) — Dan Quackenbush says $950 a month is not enough for getting shot at, fought with and threatened in his job as the one-man police force of this Nez Perce Indian reservation town of 1,050.

"It hasn't been too much fun," Quackenbush said this week of his two months on the job. He said he never liked all the bottles tossed at his house and office, but the last straw came when a bullet smashed through his squad car window and just missed him.

"That's when I decided they'd have to pay me a lot more if they wanted me to stay here," he said.

Quackenbush, who said he encourages his wife to use the guns he keeps around the house against anyone who tries to break in, said federal laws give him little or no enforcement powers against the reservation Indians who make up two-thirds of the town's population.

Tribal officials said Quackenbush, who did not say when or where he would go if he quit his job, has blown things out of proportion. But other law enforcement officials don't blame him for thinking about quitting.

"Quackenbush is doing his job," Ron Koeper, the county sheriff, said. "and anyone who does the job out there (Lapwai) is in trouble."

Elected Official Refuses Pay

BURRILLVILLE, R.I. (AP) — John Nolan Jr. says he doesn't work hard enough, so he is refusing his salary as town welfare director.

Nolan, a retired steamfitter, has turned back his first two biweekly paychecks of about $415 each.

He was elected to the job in November after campaigning to make it part-time or eliminate it altogether. He promised to accept only $1,000 of the $10,000 salary.

Nolan said he has handled his responsibilities with a couple weekly two-hour visits to his office. In the last four weeks, he said, he has answered only two requests for assistance from welfare recipients.

But, typically, Nolan "battles against bureaucracy" in creating even more red tape. Town Solicitor Irving I. Zimmerman is preparing an opinion on whether it is legal for an employee to refuse his pay.

Carter To Wear Formal Dress

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter almost certainly will wear formal dress to President-elect Ronald Reagan's inauguration if that's what Reagan thinks is "appropriate," a White House spokesman said Friday.

But Carter probably won't pay as much money for his morning suit as Reagan is spending for his, said press secretary Jody Powell.

At his own inauguration four years ago, Carter wore a dark business suit, following a practice begun by President Lyndon B. Johnson in 1965.

Johnson broke long-established tradition by not wearing formal wear to his swearing-in ceremony. Richard Nixon followed that example in 1968 and 1972.

Atheists Ask For Prayer Ban

AUSTIN (AP) — Two atheist leaders have asked the U.S. Supreme Court "to preserve at least the appearance of neutrality" by forbidding an appeals court to open with a prayer prior to hearing arguments in two church-state separation suits.

Director Jon Murray of the American Atheist Center said, "We are simply asking the United States Supreme Court to affirm that the right to freedom from religion also legally exists in the United States today."

Murray said atheists are without legal safeguards, and consequently "it has become impossible to restrain atheists from self-help."

New Governor Takes Office

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — It was moving day Friday as workers toiled new Gov. William O'Neill's furniture one flight downstairs from the state Capitol office where he worked as lieutenant governor for two years.

O'Neill arrived at the neo-Gothic stone building at mid-morning for his first full day in the Capitol as Connecticut's chief executive.

One of his first orders of business was a closed luncheon meeting with state budget chief Anthony Milano and the rest of the governor's staff.

O'Neill was sworn in Wednesday as Connecticut's 84th governor, replacing Ella T. Grasso, who resigned because of cancer. She remains in Hartford Hospital.

Words, Phrases Attacked

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (AP) — The phrases "Moral Majority," "campaign rhetoric" and "serves no useful purpose" top the list of catchwords and phrases to be shunned by language purists in 1981, the Unicorn Hunters say.

The group of writers and professors, based at Lake Superior State College here, on Thursday issued a "Redundancy Alert," asking Americans to be wary of phrases like "past history" and "exact same," as in "the exact same thing."

The group also called an all-points "Red Suffix-Alert" on the use of "gate," as in "Koreagate" or "Billygate."

"Moral Majority," the title of the conservative religious and political group led by the Rev. Jerry Falwell, was nominated for banishment by Michael R. Maloney of Lexington, Ky., who said, "I'm not sure how moral they are, but I am convinced they are not a majority."

In banishing "no useful purpose," the Unicorn Hunters translated the phrase: "I don't want it done, but I can't think up a good reason why."

The group's list of "Words That Cloy the Ear" included "fruitworthy," "funeralized" and any word used by celebrities in talk show interviews referring to "paying our dues" or "surviving."

Two phrases branded as "totally useless" included "deplane" and "for sure" when used instead of "yes."

The Unicorn Hunters placed "share" and "adult" under "Limited Banishment" as "OK words, but subject to abuse."

Japanese Celebrate New Year

TOKYO (AP) — Japanese Emperor Hirohito and Empress Nagako waved New Year greetings to some 80,600 people from the balcony of the Imperial Palace in Tokyo on Friday.

Hirohito, who will be 80 in April, appeared seven times — several minutes each time — and waved to the assembled visitors who carried Japanese national flags and yelled "long live their majesties." The emperor was accompanied by his wife, Crown Prince Akihito and other members of the imperial family.

The imperial household agency said the public turnout for annual greetings to the imperial family was the lowest since 1969 when new villas were built inside the palace grounds.

An estimated 128,300 people visited the palace to pay New Year greetings last year. The agency attributed the poor turnout to chilly and rainy weather in the morning.

The palace grounds are opened twice a year to the public, at New Year's and on the emperor's birthday.

Reagan Says Budget Deficit Forces Difficult Priorities

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Ronald Reagan said Friday he will try to pare America's budget deficit without hurting programs such as Social Security and Medicare — but can't make any promises because the deficit is double what he expected.

The president-elect also said the Soviet grain embargo — Extended this week by the Carter administration — remains a topic for "a great deal of study."

Reagan and his wife returned to Los Angeles after a two-day visit to the Palm Springs estate of publisher and former ambassador to Britain Walter Annenberg.

On his arrival at Santa Monica Airport, Reagan repeated that he hopes for an end soon to the hostage crisis, and said: "I think the idea of a deadline makes sense."

But he refused to talk further on that subject.

"I've expressed my personal feelings about their captors in the last several days, but I think it would be improper for me, while the president is still in charge of these negotiations, to say anything, beyond expressing my personal beliefs."

Reagan was asked in Palm Springs to comment on a Washington Post report budget experts in his administration and Congress as saying new developments require reconsideration of eligibility requirements or trimming cost-of-living clauses in such programs as Social Security, Medicare, unemployment compensation, veterans benefits and federal retirement pay.

Asked if there will be cuts in entitlement programs, Reagan said: "I can't answer that until I have been able to sit down with all of the reports that have come in from the task forces."

He said he is going to try to deal with problems of a ballooning deficit "without penalizing anyone who is dependent for help on the rest of us."

But he said he and his staff found the budget deficit will be double what had been anticipated "and we're going to have to deal with that problem."

Reagan said he still believes there is a "great deal" of waste and fraud in the government that could amount to "some savings. We're going to look at every program."

During the campaign, Reagan said he wanted to lift the grain embargo if elected but he has since eased his opposition. Asked Friday if he would cancel the embargo, imposed after the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, he said it will be a subject "for a great deal of study."

"You have to determine whether we're having as much effect on the Soviet Union or if that's been offset by a worse effect on our own agricultural community," he said.

The recent drought has changed the farm situation, and the situation in Poland may be a factor in Reagan's decision. An agricultural advisory task force has proposed the embargo be partially lifted.

Airline Seeking Increased Fares

Southwest Airlines Friday filed an overall fair increase of approximately 8 percent with the Civil Aeronautics Board. The increase, subject to CAB approval, would go into effect Jan. 12, according to a Southwest Airlines spokesman.

On most one-segment flights, Southwest's Executive fair will increase 8.1 percent from $37 to $40, the spokesman said. The $24 Pleasure Class fair will increase 4.2 percent to $25.

The spokesman said the Pleasure Class fare applies to all flights departing after 7 p.m. weekdays and all weekend flights. The Executive Class fare is applicable to all flights between 6:30 and 6:59 p.m. weekdays.

Southwest cited a 30 percent rise in jet fuel costs for the air fare increase. The airline had considered increasing fares last June but high passenger volume, moderating fuel costs and conservation of fuel delayed the increase, the spokesman said.

Faculty Members Suffer From Stress

MACOMB, Ill. (AP) — University faculty members suffer an abnormally high incidence of stress-related psychological problems, according to a new study by a Western Illinois University professor.

Charles Clark, a reading education specialist, said Friday that while faculty members show a relatively low incidence of physical symptoms such as high blood pressure, ulcers or heart disease, his survey of 700 faculty members at 30 universities showed frequent depression, anxiety, fatigue and insomnia.

The pickup that picks up the most mpg.

Introducing the 1981 Volkswagen Diesel Pickup.

Thinking of picking out a pickup? If so, you'd do well to consider our 1981 Diesel. It's mileage is fairly impressive, we think, especially since it happens to be the very best there is for a pickup.

In fact, it gets an EPA estimated 37 mpg, 47 mpg highway estimate. (Use "estimated mpg" for comparison. Mpg varies with speed, trip length, weather. Actual highway mpg will probably be less.

Burglars Use Auto To Smash Club Wall

Burglars used a car to punch a hole in a local nightclub wall and took more than $3,500 in property Friday morning, according to police.

Police arrived at the Honky Tonk club at 4815 Ave. H to find the intruders had left the 1963-model Chevrolet Impala about 30 feet from the nightspot after using it to create a 3-by-6-foot hole in the wall.

Taken from the ransacked office inside was a .38-caliber chrome special pistol, a man's gold watch and several loose coins, all worth $3,550, according to club manager Ron Odom. Odom added that the break-in occurred between 2:30 and 10:25 a.m. Friday and he estimated damage to the wall at $2,000.

A 29-year-old Lubbock man, apparently unhappy with a bill collector who visited him Friday, reportedly threatened him and his furniture with a butcher knife.

Jim Sims, 30, who works for C.I.C. Finance Co., told police he visited the man's house after the October and November payments for a living room set and dining room set were not received.

Instead of paying, however, Sims said the man told him, "I'll take a butcher knife and cut the junk into 50 pieces, and I'll take the same butcher knife to anyone coming up here and messing with me."

The furniture is valued at $1,060, Sims told police.

Three dozen corn dogs and 30 cases of hamburger meat were stolen from the Husky Burger at 529 34th St., police were told.

Alan Terrell, 19-year-old son of owner John A. Terrell, told police burglars kicked in the back wooden door to gain entry between 10 p.m. Wednesday and 9:40 a.m. Friday.

The food items were valued at $62, while damage to the door was placed at $100.

A 43-year-old dentist told police his $10,000 Rolex watch possibly was stolen while he was participating in a skating marathon at Skate Machine.

J. Taylor Evans told police he fell a couple of times at the rink at 4900 34th St. and the watch could have fallen off his wrist.

L.L. Hendrix told police tools and other hardware were stolen from his business at 2709 Clovis Road between 3 p.m. Thursday and 8:30 a.m. Friday. He estimated his loss at $2,000.

A 26-year-old woman told Lubbock police a man kidnapped her at gunpoint Thursday night, then accused her of burglarizing his apartment and demanded she return the stolen property.

The woman said she was inside an Idalou Road restaurant about 8:45 p.m. when she was confronted by the man who allegedly pulled a small-caliber automatic pistol and threatened to shoot her if she did not come with him.

Reports state the victim first indicated she had pulled the break-in and directed the man to a girlfriend's house where she said she had left the loot. However, when they arrived at the residence the woman pulled away from the gunman, denied stealing his property and ran into the house.

The man allegedly forced his way in the residence and threatened to kill everyone present, including a 17-year-old female. However, the armed man fled when he was told police were en route.

The suspect earlier Thursday had told police more than $5,000 in property, including clothes and a gun, were stolen when his apartment was burglarized between 3 p.m. and 7 p.m.

In other activity, an 18-year-old Idalou woman told city police she was raped twice between 1:30 a.m. and 7:30 a.m. Thursday by a man with whom she had left a Lubbock nightspot. However, the teen-ager did not report the attack until 2 p.m. that day.

The woman said the man drove her to a residence where he allegedly told her she could not leave until he had sex with her. About 7:30 a.m., the man drove her to a convenience store at 40th Street and Avenue A where she called her aunt.

The suspect reportedly sported a tattoo on his left arm of a mouse wearing a brown sombrero high and he traveled in a 1979 brown Thunderbird.

An 18-year-old Lubbock man was arrested shortly after 10 p.m. Thursday after he allegedly broke into one house, attempted to burglarize another and killed a dog.

The teen-ager was apprehended in the 3700-block of Avenue S after the two offenses were reported in the area.

Police said they arrested a 19-year-old Lubbock man about 7 a.m. Thursday after he reportedly fell from a ceiling and onto the hallway floor of the South Plains Mall at 6002 Slide Road. The teen-ager, reports state, apparently was attempting to escape through the ceiling when officers answering a burglary alarm arrived on the scene.

The suspect allegedly did about $940 damage to the mall, reports state.

About $2,900 in cash and checks were found missing from a Braniff Airlines' safe at the Lubbock International Airport Thursday.

Employees told police the safe apparently was left unlocked most of Wednesday.

Movie Pioneer Raoul Walsh Dies In Hollywood

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Movie pioneer Raoul Walsh, whose 70-year career as a director included such classics as "What Price Glory?" and "White Heat," was mourned Friday by the film industry.

Walsh, 93, who will be buried in private services Monday, died at a hospital Wednesday after an apparent heart attack. His wife of 35 years, Mary, was at his bedside.

"I'm greatly shocked to hear of Raoul's death. I will miss him terribly," said James Cagney, who starred in the 1949 gangster film "White Heat."

"He spans the whole history of motion pictures," said director Frank Capra, who described Walsh as "the biggest man in motion pictures at the time of his death."

"His films were very clean, moral, interesting entertainment."

Burma," "Captain Horatio Hornblower," "Band of Angels," "The Naked and the Dead."

Despite his age and blindness, Walsh was active and mentally sharp to the end. "I can still sit on my porch and enjoy the bird calls and the aroma of the flowers," he once told a visitor.

Born March 11, 1887, Walsh was the son of the chief designer and tailor for Brooks Brothers, the famed New York men's clothiers. As a child, he lived in Manhattan and met such celebrities of the time as fighter John L. Sullivan, Mark Twain and actor Edwin Booth.

Walsh would later play the role of Booth's brother, Abraham Lincoln assassin John Wilkes Booth, in Griffith's

"Birth of a Nation."

As a teen-ager, Walsh sailed to Cuba and Mexico on a schooner owned by his uncle. He later left the ship and became a cowboy.

Recruited in Texas to a traveling stage company to ride a horse on a treadmill, Walsh ended up back in New York and began working as an action rider in silent films.

He came to Hollywood in 1910 where he met Griffith, who in 1913 assigned him to find the Mexican bandit Pancho Villa and persuade him to star in a film about his life. Walsh not only accomplished that task, but wrote the script and directed the film.

After a stint with William Fox, directing the likes of film vamp Theda Bara, Walsh was hired by Fairbanks in 1924 to direct "The Thief of Bagdad."

In 1929, while directing "In Old Arizona," — the first talking Western shot outside a studio — Walsh lost sight in one eye when his car hit a jackrabbit and the windshield shattered. He later wore a black eyepatch, and in recent years lost sight in his other eye.

Spanish Political Violence Hits Peak

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Political violence in Spain reached its peak in 1980 when 126 persons were killed, according to police sources. ETA, the separatist organization seeking independence of northern Spain's Basque region, was blamed for some 85 such killings. Eight ETA commandos were killed by police. Extreme rightists or leftists were blamed for 33 assassinations.

The three-province Basque region recorded 105 political killings, followed by Madrid 10, Navarre six, Logrono three and Barcelona two.

In addition, rightists crossed the border into southern France to kill four alleged ETA activists living there, and went to Venezuela where they assassinated two Basques.

The total figure for the year compared with 99 deaths in 1979.

As an actor or director and sometimes both, Walsh worked with almost all of Hollywood's legendary greats, from D.W. Griffith and Douglas Fairbanks Sr. to Errol Flynn and John Wayne, who was virtually an unknown when Walsh directed him in the 1930 western "The Big Trail."

Walsh went for action and clear-cut good guy-bad guy conflict in the films he directed, which included "Sadie Thompson" — in which he also starred — "The Bowery," "They Drive By Night," "High Sierra," "Gentleman Jim," "Objective

Covent Garden Plans To Tape Ballet, Opera

LONDON (AP) — Britain's Royal Opera House at Covent Garden announced Friday that it would make opera and ballet more accessible by means of video cassette and video disc recordings.

It disclosed an agreement with the British Broadcasting Corp. and a private video company which it said would make Covent Garden the world's first major opera house to take advantage of the latest innovations in home entertainment.

Placido Domingo, the Spanish tenor, will star in the first production: Offenbach's "The Tales of Hoffmann" which was being recorded Friday night.

Sir John Tooley, opera house general director, said the agreement with the BBC and Covent Garden Video Productions Ltd. also includes plans for more television broadcasts.

"This is a means by which we can get more of our productions from Covent Garden seen on the television screen throughout this country, and we hope abroad," he said.

After initial television relay, versions would be made on commercial cassette and video disc. The first Covent Garden video cassettes should be available by the summer. Video discs will follow.

For those with the new cassette or disc machines — both of which are plugged into an ordinary television set — seeing a production should be much less expensive than the real thing. Cassettes and discs will cost about $30, compared to orchestra seats for "Tales of Hoffmann" which cost a minimum 22 pounds ($52).

The British Musicians Union and actors Equity have insisted that the agreement be renegotiable as it becomes clear how the video market develops.

Royalties and profits will go to the artists, to Covent Garden and to the video company. The BBC will benefit by being able to screen each opera or ballet twice, without having to meet production costs. Humphrey Burton, head of BBC TV music, called the deal "a jewel in our crown."

English Policemen Hurt During Fight

BIRMINGHAM, England (AP) — Fighting erupted between police and 100 West Indians in this industrial city early Friday, leaving four policemen injured, one seriously, police said.

Police had been summoned by neighbors complaining about a noisy party said to have been going on for several days. When they got there, officers were hit by bricks and beer cans, police said.

Police Sgt. Anthony Peatman received serious head injuries and three others needed hospital treatment. A police spokesman said one man was arrested.

Birmingham has a large number of West Indian and Asian immigrants.

This area of England, the industrial Midlands, has been the scene of tension between whites and black or Asian immigrants. Enoch Powell, former Cabinet minister and prominent foe of immigration, represented the region for many years.

Famed London Times Still Up For Purchase

LONDON (AP) — The Times of London said Friday it remains open to bids from potential buyers, despite the passing of a New Year's Eve deadline.

Although the 196-year-old newspaper's management declined comment on the status of bids, a report in the paper itself said, "It is understood that if other serious potential purchasers appear they will not be turned away despite the passing of the deadline."

Two bidders made themselves known before the deadline passed: a consortium of Times journalists and their financial backers, and Robert Maxwell, owner of the Pergamon Press printing group.

There were rumors along Fleet Street, London's publishing row, of other bidders. But only one newspaper, the Daily Telegraph, published a report to that effect, claiming the Times had received 10 firm offers.

A spokesman for Thomson British Holdings, which owns The Times group of newspapers under the management of Canadian millionaire Lord Thomson, refused to confirm or deny the report.

Spokesmen at The Times itself and at S.G. Warburg, the bank handling the sale, also declined to say how many bids had been received.

"There's nothing new to be said," said Times Deputy Editor Louis Heren. A Warburg spokesman said as far as he was concerned, the deadline of midnight Dec. 31 was final, but he declined to discuss the paragraph in the newspaper suggesting that further offers would be considered.

On Oct. 22, Thomson, struggling with heavy financial losses and union troubles for years, announced that The Times, The Sunday Times and three literary and educational supplements would be closed in mid-March if a buyer was not found.

On Thursday, a group of Times journalists and a group of businessmen drawn together by William Rees-Mogg, the paper's editor, announced a joint proposal to buy The Times. The consortium's steering committee is chaired by Sir Michael Swann, provost of Oriel College, Oxford, and former chairman of the British Broadcasting Corp.

It issued a statement saying, "The objective of the group is that a new company to be formed by it should acquire the title to and publish The Times (and, if practicable, the supplements) to the high standards of the present and past under new operational arrangements which would enable the new company to be profitable."

Moon Plays Matchmaker For Unification Church

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Rev. Sun Myung Moon has played matchmaker for more than 1,600 people, many of whom never met each other before.

The Unification Church said Friday that over the past two days, Moon performed a mass engagement ceremony for 843 couples in New York City. Church members came from as far away as Australia to be matched up with a spouse.

The wedding day for the 843 couples and the location of the ceremony will be set later by Moon and will be part of a ceremony for 10,000 couples.

"Unconsciously I've always been searching for an ideal lover," said 31-year-old Richard Biddlecombe from London. "I see this as an end to that search."

Biddlecombe, a freelance broadcaster, was promised to Monika Jung, a 23-year-old church member from Essen, Germany. Both were set to return to their homes Friday and did not expect to see each other again until the wedding ceremony.

The couples said they prefer to have the church founder suggest their matches for them, and said he has done a good job.

Debbie Thompson, 28, who traveled from Purcell, Okla. for her match to Joe Taylor of Trenton, N.J., said she is pleased with Moon's choice.

"I'm quiet and easy-going and Joe is confident and outgoing," she said. "It's complementary."

Joe, a singer in the church band, had his own explanation. "My character is much more aggressive and she's more set back. If we're going to spend a day together we have to take this into consideration."

'Seems Like Old Times' Falls Short On Quality

NEW RELEASES

SEEMS LIKE OLD TIMES (PG) — Goldie Hawn, Chevy Chase, Charles Grodin. (Romantic comedy) Well, Neil Simon hasn't done it again. The comedy master has concocted a pleasant fable, a triangle, with Goldie at the apex and Chase as her first husband, innocently involved in a bank robbery and Grodin as her present husband, a D.A. But it's all too strained, too forced, too deliberately cute. Some good moments, but they are rare. GRADE: C

GENERAL RELEASE

FLASH GORDON (PG) — Sam Jones, Melody Anderson, Topol, Max Von Sydow. (Adventure) The intergalactic hero is back in an expensive, gaudy, dumb-funny version. It doesn't pretend to be anything but what it is: an old Saturday afternoon serial, modernized to take advantage of today's technological advances in movie making. Everybody has a ball with it, obviously, and if you don't expect too much, you will, too. GRADE: B

IDOLMAKER, THE (PG) — Ray Sharkey, Peter Gallagher, Paul Land, To- vah Feldshun. (Drama with music) Loosely based on the career of Bob Marucci, who created Frankie Avalon and Fabian, this is the story of ambition — how a man found and forged two kids into teen-age singing idols in the '50s and '60s. Overlong, but often very strong. A great vehicle for Sharkey and Gallagher, two coming stars. GRADE: B

IT'S MY TURN (R) — Jill Clayburgh, Michael Douglas, Charles Grodin. (Romantic comedy) Should Kate remain a math professor in Chicago or take an administrative job in New York? Should she stay with her funny-but-distant live-in lover or make a play for an intense former baseball star? Frankly, we don't much care what happens to this self-absorbed daddy's girl. A more insightful script might have turned this generally well-acted fluff into something more closely approaching "An Unmarried Woman." GRADE: C-plus

POPEYE (PG) — Robin Williams, Shelley Duvall, Paul L. Smith, Paul Dooley. (Comedy with music) The comic strip hero is reborn, in a stylized version by Robert Altman that grows on you. The film's story is the weakest thing, but the acting (especially Shelley Duvall as Olive Oyl) is fine, the effects are fun and the music fits neatly. It's a pleasant romp. GRADE: B

TRIBUTE (PG) — Jack Lemmon, Robby Benson, Lee Remick. (Drama with comedy) A tour de force for Lemmon, as a compulsive extrovert who learns he is dying while, simultaneously, trying to reconcile with his son, a compulsive introvert. Very strong stuff that will hit you where you live, if you live in a fairly decent neighborhood. CAUTION: Despite the PG rating, there is nudity. GRADE: A

(Film grading: A — superb; B — good; C — average; D — poor; F — awful)

City Police Investigating Shooting Of Lubbockite

Lubbock police Friday continued to investigate the mysterious shooting of a 65-year-old Lubbock man as he and his wife drove to church Wednesday.

Raymond Winfred King of 2215 60th St. was released about noon today from Methodist Hospital where he had been recovering from pellet wounds to the arm and facial cuts.

King described his assailants as two ski-masked occupants of a brown pickup who drove past his Lincoln at 60th Street and Avenue W about 6:45 p.m. Wednesday.

King said he and his wife heard a burst as they pulled to the intersection, but thought it was a vehicle backfiring. However, the pickup, which had been behind the Kings' car, pulled around them and traveled through the intersection. The couple said it was then that they saw the barrel of a shotgun sticking out the passenger window of the truck.

Reports state one of the suspects fired, striking King's windshield. King was struck in the left arm by two pellets and cut on the face by flying glass. The pickup then sped east on 60th Street.

King and his wife told police they had no idea who would want to harm them.

Fire Damages Aerobic Research Facility

DALLAS (AP) — A laundry-room fire early Friday caused an estimated half-million dollars damage to The Aerobics Center, a health club operated by Dr. Kenneth Cooper, officials said.

Cooper, author of four books and sometimes called the "father" of aerobic research, founded the center more than 10 years ago. Aerobic exercise is strenuous, repetitive training for strengthening the heart and lung.

The fire apparently started in the laundry area of the activities building shortly after midnight, said Dallas Fire Department spokesman Bill Jernigan. "It looks like it perhaps will be related to one of those large, commercial dryers," he said.

The fire was brought under control about 2:30 a.m. and was confined to one of two buildings on the 11 1/2-acre health complex.

It damaged the locker room area, part of the gymnasium, an indoor track and a lounge, Jernigan said.

The fire was the second at the center in the past 90 days.

Entertainer Suffers Second Miscarriage In Year

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Entertainer Liza Minnelli and her husband are grieving over her second miscarriage in just over a year, a spokesman said Friday.

Michael Maslansky, a press relations representative for the couple, said they were "profoundly grieved by the late, sad turn of events."

Miss Minnelli suffered the miscarriage at about 10 p.m. New Year's Eve at Washoe Medical Center in Reno, near where she and her husband, Mark Gero, had been in seclusion for three months.

Miss Minnelli, who also had a miscarriage in December 1979, had entered the hospital last weekend for minor surgery Tuesday.

"Only yesterday, her doctors were optimistic that she would be able to carry her child to full term following some minor surgery," he said.

The baby had been expected to be born in May, Dr. Robert Stitt, Miss Minnelli's physician, said.

"There was nothing wrong with the baby," the doctor said. "We've learned the difficulty. It's probable that she will be able to conceive again."

Maslansky said Miss Minnelli would return to the couple's New York home after a few days of rest, and said she would resume working in the near future.

Miss Minnelli is the daughter of film director Vincente Minnelli and the late singer-actress Judy Garland.

LIZA HAS MISCARRIAGE — Liza Minnelli, shown in this 1980 file photo with her husband Mark Gero, has suffered another miscarriage and lost the baby she was expecting in May, it was reported Friday. Columnist Earl Wilson reported in the New York Post that Miss Minnelli, 34, suffered a "mid-second trimester pregnancy loss" about 10 p.m. New Year's Eve at a hospital near Reno, Nev. # Oilers Name Ed Biles New Head Coach

HOUSTON (AP) — Ed Biles, Houston Oilers defensive coordinator for the past six years, was named head coach of the Houston Oilers Friday to replace Bum Phillips, and he promised to open up the sagging Oilers offense.

"We will not have a simple Earl Campbell-type football team next year," Biles said, "Hopefully Earl will get the same yards on fewer calls. But we want to get all of our talent into the offense."

Phillips, who guided the Oilers to the National Football League playoffs the past three years, was fired New Year's Eve by owner Bud Adams following a dispute over Phillips' refusal to hire an offensive coordinator.

Biles said he intended to hire an offensive coordinator but he would make no quick decision.

Biles, who had been defensive coordinator throughout Phillips' tenure as head coach, said his contract was for more than one year and less than five years. "I can't count the money figure on five fingers, and the rest is my business," said Biles.

The Oilers finished second in American Football Conference total offense last season yet had the lowest scoring average of any team that made the NFL playoffs. Biles said correcting that problem and beating the teams the Oilers should beat were his major problems.

"A couple of teams beat us last year that shouldn't have," Biles said. "Obviously that's a problem that kept us from winning our division. If we had won those games, Bum would still be here and I wouldn't be talking to you right now."

Players and fans had started to criticize Houston's offense as being too simple and lacking imagination.

"I can only say we will have more formations next year than we did this year," Biles said.

Biles attended Miami of Ohio University where he played under Ara Parseghian and later was an assistant coach for the New Orleans Saints and New York Jets before joining the Oilers in 1974.

Biles replaced Phillips as defensive coordinator when Phillips was elevated to the head coaching job in 1975.

Phillips, meanwhile, requested a final news conference to "clear the air".

Phillips, whose homespun wit and shrewd knowledge of talent helped the Oilers to the National Football League playoffs three straight years, asked the media to let his firing be forgotten.

"Instead of talking about the last six years, look forward to the next six years," Phillips said. "I just got fired, I didn't die. I am a survivor and I'll land on my feet."

The immensely popular Phillips said Adams was within his rights to fire him. "If I told somebody working for me to do something and they didn't, I'd fire him right there," Phillips reasoned.

"I know you all don't believe this but Bud Adams did everything I asked him to do. He gave me the football to run with. I guess I just didn't run far enough."

The Oilers' three offensive coaches have shared the duties of offensive coordinator in the past years. The Oilers have made the playoffs in each of those years and finished second in total offense this season.

The lack of scoring punch, however, led Adams to request that Phillips hire a coordinator. Phillips refused.

"If I ever form another staff, I'll hire an offensive coordinator but it wouldn't be right here," Phillips said. "I felt our setup was adequate. How could I bring in another guy and say he's over the other three. I just felt it wasn't worth it."

Phillips said his dismissal would not affect the Oilers' success and that he felt no bitterness toward Adams.

"This game is way too big for one guy to have any effect," Phillips said. "I've had to tell hundreds of players that we had somebody we thought could do a better job than they did. I'd be a hypocrite if I couldn't accept it when my cutting time came."

"I came here eager and I'm going out the same way, eagerly looking forward to the next job."

Texas Tech Officials Interview Candidates

By NORVAL POLLARD
Executive Sports Editor

Texas Tech moved a step closer to naming a head football coach to replace Rex Dockery Friday as university officials gathered in Dallas to interview the top six candidates for the job.

Rice head coach Ray Alborn, West Texas State mentor Bill Yung, Wake Forest head man John Mackovic, North Texas State mentor Jerry Moore, Tech defensive coordinator Jim Bates and former National Football League star Bobby Layne met individually with school officials in the Amfac Hotel and Resort at the Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport. The Avalanche-Journal learned from informed sources.

The interviews, which varied in time according to each candidate, were conducted by Tech President Lauro Cavazos, university athletic director John Conley, athletic council chairman Robert Sweazy and seven members of the Tech Board of Regents.

Absent from the interviews were Board of Regents chairman J. Fred Bury and vice-chairman Nathan C. Galloway.

Three of the candidates confirmed to The Avalanche-Journal that they were interviewed. One candidate refused to reveal whether or not he was interviewed. Two candidates could not be reached for comment.

Tech officials reportedly departed Dallas late Friday night. That development sparked speculation that the regents have already decided on a replacement for Dockery, who resigned Dec. 16 to accept the head coaching job at Memphis State University.

Raiders, 'Horns Open Loop Play

By CHUCK McDONALD
Assistant Sports Editor

Texas Tech coach Gerald Myers says he'd be happy if the Raiders could just hold him to his 20 points, 12 rebounds per game average.

Lubbock Avalanche-Journal
Saturday, January 2, 1981

Texas coach Abe Lemons says that when he's on his game, nobody can stop him.

The man that everybody is talking about is the Texas Longhorns' 6-10, 245-pound center LaSalle Thompson. Only a sophomore, Thompson is nonetheless the key in tonight's 7:30 p.m. Southwest Conference season opener between the Red Raiders and Longhorns at the Municipal Coliseum.

Plenty of tickets will be available at the door tonight as the 6-3 Raiders and 5-4 Longhorns open league play. Also on tap is a unique SWC double-header at Dallas' Reunion Arena as the rest of the conference begins loop play. TCU hosts Texas A&M at 7:10 and SMU meets Arkansas at 9 p.m. in Dallas. The rest of the league schedule shows Houston at Rice and Baylor entertaining Alaska-Anchorage.

"I say the same thing every time we play Texas," said Tech's Myers. "We've got to try and neutralize the big man. We've got to have good team defense and at least hold him to his average (20 points)."

"If we can do that, we'll have done a good job."

A glance at Thompson's statistics reads like this: 78 of 126 (61.9 percent) from the field, 24 of 37 at the line for 180 total points, 110 rebounds (a 12.2 norm), 13 blocked shots and seven steals. For a player that averaged 12.8 as a freshman, that's coming in a hurry.

"He's been playing awful good," admits Lemons. "And when he's playing well, they can't stop him. But nobody plays good every night."

So obviously the Texas game plan would be to get the ball down low to Thompson where the Raiders will have 6-6 Clarence Swannegan and 6-6 Ben Hill (and 6-8 junior Ralph Brewster is likely to see action as well) going against him.

"Well, that's what we try to do against everybody," acknowledges Lemons. "Gerald's smart enough to know how to shut off a big center. And Tech's got great quickness — quickness offsets size."

The Longhorns are a young team, starting two freshmen, two sophomores and a junior. The lone junior is 6-6 forward Henry Johnson (second on the team in scoring with an 18.1 average) and at the other forward will be 6-8 freshman Mike Wacker — averaging 7.5 points and 5.6 boards a game.

At the guards will be 5-11 hotshot freshman Ray Harper (10.5 points a game) and 6-1 sophomore Fred Carson.

Tech will open with the same starting five Myers has been employing all season: Hill and Swannegan inside with 6-4 junior Jeff Taylor, 6-1 sophomore Steve Smith and 5-10 freshman Bubba Jennings on the outside. Taylor leads the club in scoring with a 15.1 average. Swannegan is next with an 11.6 figure while Hill and Jennings are scoring 10.8 and 10.7, respectively.

"They have a bunch of good shooters," notes Lemons. "It seems like they always do. But you can't tell about Gerald's bunch — you can't ever be sure who's going to have a good game against you."

While it is too early in the season to be tabbing any game as crucial, tonight's opener is obviously important — especially so for Tech.

"The thing is that it's a home game for us and that's what makes it so important," said Myers. "You have just got to do well at home during the conference. And Texas has been real rough on us the last few years. I'd sure rather open against somebody else."

Lemons sees the game in a slightly different light.

"Hey, we're not going to win the conference," he insists of his Longhorns that were picked third in most pre-season polls.

"We're not a contender. We know what Arkansas has got and we know what the Aggies have got. Everybody else is just playing ... playing for home court in the first round of the SWC post-season tournament. You want to stay out of that bottom division."

"And one year we got beat up here by 19 and wound up winning the conference," added Lemons. "So many things can happen to you ... people can get hurt and we're just not that deep."

The game could offer several interesting matchups and one of those should be between freshmen guards Harper of Texas and Jennings of Tech.

"I don't know about matchups," said

Kelly Leads Hurricanes To Peach Bowl Victory

ATLANTA (AP) — Howard Schnellenberger, coach of the 20th-ranked Miami Hurricanes, saw Miami's 20-10 Peach Bowl victory Friday over stubborn Virginia Tech as a steppingstone to a national title.

"It's a nice place to rest on the way to a national championship," Schnellenberger said, referring to the Peach Bowl, where Miami saw postseason action for the first time in more than a decade.

"It wasn't a real beauty, but that was because Virginia Tech would not allow it," said Schnellenberger, who is in his second year as coach of the Hurricanes.

Miami sophomore quarterback Jim Kelly, named offensive player of the game, felt the Hurricanes did a good job of mixing runs with pass plays, gaining 179 yards in the air and 157 on the ground.

"I was especially pleased with the way we moved the ball in the first half, but I knew Tech would tighten up later in the game," said Kelly, who threw for one first-half touchdown and set up another with his pinpoint passing.

"They beat us, but they aren't that much better than Virginia Tech," said coach Bill Dooley, whose Hokies played in a bowl game for the first time since 1968.

"We just gave them a little too much to be able to overcome," said Dooley, who, like Schnellenberger, has turned around a losing program. Dooley is in his third season at the Blacksburg, Va., school.

Kelly capped a 68-yard drive following the opening kickoff with a 15-yard touchdown strike to Larry Brodsky to give the Hurricanes a 7-0 lead after only 2:23.

The 6-foot-3, 203-pounder then passed for 66 yards on three completions in a 99-yard drive that ended 1:13 into the second period with Chris Hobbs climaxing the march with a 12-yard scoring run.

Dan Miller added field goals of 31 and 37 yards for Miami's only scoring in the second half.

The victory climaxed a 9-3 season for the Hurricanes, who were making their first bowl appearance in 13 years.

Virginia Tech scored its only touchdown on the opening drive of the third quarter when sophomore tailback Cyrus Lawrence scored from one yard out. Lawrence, who rushed for a school-record 1,221 yards during the regular season, finished with 134 yards on 27 carries.

The Hokies, 8-4, threatened twice in the opening half but were stopped both times by Miami's potent defense, settling for a 42-yard field goal by Dennis Laury only 29 seconds before intermission.

On that drive, the Hokies reached Miami's 12, but on third-and-seven, defensive guard Jim Burt sacked Tech quarterback Steve Casey for a 13-yard loss, forcing the field goal try.

Tech, making its first post-season appearance since 1968, earlier drove 84 yards to the Hurricanes' 6 before defense back Ron Lippett made a leaping end-zone interception. The drive included a fourth-and-two gamble at midfield which was successful when Casey kept the ball on a rollout and gained five yards.

Kelly, who finished the game with 11 completions in 22 attempts for 174 yards, was seven of 12 for 133 yards in Miami's two first-half touchdown marches.

He hit Brodsky on completions of 18, 29, and the final 15 yards in the Hurricanes' first scoring drive. The sophomore from East Brady, Pa., then completed passes of 28, 27 and 11 yards in the 99-yard, nine-play drive which concluded with Hobbs' 12-yard burst up the middle.

Lawrence's scoring run at 6:08 of the third period got the Hokies within four points at 14-10, but Tech failed to provide much offense the rest of the way.

Phillips Leaves Behind Strong Base For Oilers

Editors Note — Dale Robertson has covered the Houston Oilers for the Houston Post the past five seasons. In Friday's editions, he wrote this analysis of Wednesday's abrupt firing of the legendary Bum Phillips.

By DALE ROBERTSON
Houston Post Sports Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — Bum Phillips begins 1981 out of a job because he badly underestimated Bud Adams' ego and he forgot the Golden Rule of Business.

He who has the gold rules. Adams has the gold. He's the millionaire oilman-rancher who owns the Oilers. Phillips was an employee who, in Adams' mind, got too big for his britches.

Phillips was fired Wednesday, on New Year's Eve. Only Bud Adams could fire a man on New Year's Eve.

Adams said he fired Phillips because the coach was adamant in his position not to hire an offensive coordinator. Phillips had taken his stand Monday despite the Oilers' inept offensive performance in a 27-7 playoff loss to Oakland a day earlier.

Adams, it seems, wanted an offensive coordinator. A classic one-on-one confrontation resulted: Phillips' stubbornness vs. Adams' ego.

It's Adams' candy store. He won. But the coordinator issue was only a smoke screen. Sure, the Oilers need one. I said so myself in a column two days ago. I also believe Phillips would have changed his mind and agreed, given more time to think about it.

Remember one of his previous "absolute" statements: "I'll never trade Dan Pastorini as long as I'm coaching the Houston Oilers."

A week later, Pastorini was on a plane to Oakland.

But Monday Phillips let himself get painted into a corner. He's loyal to a fault. He spoke out to protect the feelings of his assistant coaches and said something that, this time, he wouldn't have a chance to take back. Instead of being openly defiant, he should have said diplomatically, "We'll consider all possible options."

Then he could have done what he dang well pleased, and nobody would have had a thing on him.

Instead, he gave Adams the opening he needed. Forget verbal promise to extend Phillips' contract for another two seasons. That was yesterday. Adams had wanted to hang Phillips from the nearest tree for a long time. This finally gave him an excuse.

Why? Jealousy. It's that simple. Adams resented Phillips' larger-than-life image as a living, breathing folk hero who, through shrewd dealings and homespun charm, had hand-molded one of the best little football teams in the NFL.

all by himself. All the while, however, Adams was paying the bills and nobody ever said, Luv ya Bud. When his name came up, it was taken in vain just like in the old days when the Oilers were losers and he took the blame. To the public at large, he was still Bottom Line Bud, a black hat amid the white hats.

Phillips' square-jawed countenance and folksy humor was everywhere, car-ments," Phillips told me at the time, "if Bud would pay me fair."

Phillips' salary was less than $150,000. In comparison, Don Shula, Tom Landry, Chuck Noll, Bud Grant and John McKay — whose teams Phillips' teams have beaten in the last two years — make in excess of $200,000. Shula, who lost four of five games to the Oilers in the Phillips era, earns almost $500,000.

At any rate, Adams couldn't contain his pent-up resentment any longer. He gave Phillips his walking papers.

Others blame his purported "lack of discipline." I think that's hog-wash.

Should they do better next season, if a new regime does indeed lead them to the Super Bowl, Adams had best remember it will be because of Phillips' legacy.

Win or lose, I know this: The Oilers without Bum Phillips will never be as much fun as they were with him.

AP Sports Analysis

ried along in a tide of cowboy chic. He, not Adams, was the Houston Oilers. He endorsed airlines and aluminum siding on television, cowboy boots and hats in magazine ads. We read about him in the pages of every conceivable sporting publication, not to mention Playboy.

Adams tolerated the hoopla, but he never liked it. He went so far as to accuse Phillips last summer of using the Oilers' good name for his personal gain.

Heaven forbid.

Three Close Matchups Mark Division Playoffs

By The Associated Press

These are the National Football League playoffs, the battle of the best in the annual Pete Rozelle Tournament.

So naturally, you'd expect to find outstanding matchups, created by esoteric tie-breaking formulas which would challenge the most sophisticated computer.

For the weekend, there are three intriguing pairings: Buffalo's top-rated defense goes against the high-powered attack of the San Diego Chargers Saturday.

Sunday, it will be Oakland's sack-happy Raiders challenging Cleveland, the sole survivor of the brutal American Football Conference Central Division, and brash, young Atlanta challenging longtime kingpin Dallas for National Football Conference survival.

Then there is Minnesota at Philadelphia.

The Vikings are the have-nots of the playoff field, carrying a 9-7 record as champions of the NFC Central Division. It is a record that could qualify them for postseason play only in their division.

The Eagles were the first team to finish a playoff berth, and at 12-4, tied with Dallas and Atlanta for the best record in the NFL.

On paper, it looks like a mismatch, and yet the Vikings come into the game with some legitimate qualifications. There is, for example, their passing game, which averaged 230.5 yards per game and was rated No. 1 in the NFC. No quarterback in the NFC playoffs completed more passes (299) for more yardage (3,582) than Minnesota's Tommy Kramer this season.

MAVS SIGN ROOKIE

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Mavericks signed rookie free agent Monti Davis to a 10-day National Basketball Association contract and put center Ralph Drollinger back on the injured list, the team announced Friday. The Mavericks said Davis would suit up against Houston Friday night.

And if momentum means anything, the Vikings may have an edge. They won six of their last eight games and three of their last four to take the division title. Philadelphia lost three of its last four after an 11-1 start.

The Eagles spent the week in the warmth of Tampa, Fla., preparing for the game. They have their share of weapons to employ against a Minnesota defense that finished near the bottom of the NFC statistically.

Start with Ron Jaworski, who won the NFC passing championship, throwing for 3,529 yards and 27 touchdowns. Running back Wilbert Montgomery, limited by injuries to 778 yards, could test a Minnesota defense that yielded opponents 4.6 yards per carry.

This will be the second meeting for these teams this season. The first time, Philadelphia walloped the Vikings 42-7.

Saturday's other playoff game offers what appears to be a better pairing. Statistically, San Diego and Buffalo provide classic matchups.

The Chargers led the NFL in offense and the Bills were No. 1 in defense. Defensively, San Diego recorded 60 quarterback sacks while Buffalo, on offense, allowed only 20.

Chargers quarterback Dan Fouts set a passing record for the second straight year, throwing for 4,715 yards and San Diego had the league's top three receiving trio in tight end Kellen Winslow and wide receivers John Jefferson and Charley Joiner. Each of the three went over 1,000 yards — another first.

Much of Buffalo's offense is constructed around rookie running back Joe Cribbs, who rushed for 1,178 yards, second in the conference behind Houston's Earl Campbell.

The game is the Bills' first playoff contest since 1974. Cleveland won its first AFC Central title since 1971. With Pittsburgh and Houston finished for the year, the Browns, making their first playoff appearance since 1972, are the lone survivors from the division considered to be the toughest in the NFL.

Cleveland quarterback Brian Sipe passed for 4,132 yards — only the third quarterback in NFL history to go over 4,000 yards in a single season. The others are Fouts, who has done it each of the past two years, and Joe Namath.

Sipe, the NFL's top-rated passer, will be the target of the tough Raiders' defense, which sacked Houston's Ken Stabler seven times in last Sunday's AFC wild card game.

Oakland was second in the conference with 54 sacks and second in defense. The Raiders also led the league with 35 interceptions, 13 by cornerback Lester Hayes, who fell one short of the league record. So, when Sipe starts triggering the Browns' passing game, which averaged 244.6 yards per game, second in the league, the Raiders will be ready.

Of all the playoff teams, Atlanta may be the biggest surprise. After a "6-10" season in 1979, the Falcons split their first six games this season, then spun off nine consecutive victories to win their first NFC West crown.

Dallas' multi-faceted offense will be tested by a young, talented Atlanta defense. The Falcons start three rookies on defense — linebackers Al Richardson and Buddy Curry and cornerback Kenny Johnson. And another rookie, tight end Junior Miller, is a vital part of the offense.

U.S. Swimmer Tops World Best

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Tracy Caulkins of Nashville, Tenn., recorded a world best time in the preliminaries for the 100-meter breaststroke and beat East German world record-holder Ute Geweniger on the first day of the 1981 U.S. International Swim Meet Friday.

Miss Caulkins surpassed her own world best standard of 1 minute 9.16 seconds, while Miss Geweniger, the 1980 Olympic gold medalist in the event, finished in 1:10.43.

Miss Caulkins also swam brilliantly in the women's 200 butterfly preliminary for the second-best qualifying time for Friday night's final. She was just behind world-record holder Mary T. Meagher of Louisville, Ky., and both were three seconds ahead of the Olympic gold medal winner in the event, Ines Geissler of East Germany.

Twenty nations have entered teams here for the biggest international swim meet in 2 1/2 years. The Soviet Union sent its first athletes to the United States since the Americans boycotted the Moscow Olympics.

Other Americans with the best qualifying times in their events were: Rick Carey of Mount Kisco, N.Y., in the 200 backstroke; Cynthia Woodhead of Riverside, Calif., in the 100 freestyle; and world record-holder Craig Bardsley of Harrington Park, N.J., in the 200 butterfly.

Carey edged the Olympic gold medalist in the 100 backstroke, Bengt Baron of Sweden, for the first qualifying position, Miss Woodhead beat East German Olympic medal winners Caren Metschuck and Ines Diers in the 100 freestyle and Bardsley paced a group that included Olympic gold medalist Sergei Fesenko of the Soviet Union, who was fourth.

Other top qualifiers in the preliminaries were Jorg Woithe of East Germany in the men's 100 freestyle, Lara Gorchakova of the Soviet Union in the 200 backstroke and Peter Lang of West Germany in the 100 breaststroke.

Woithe was only five hundredths of a second behind the world best mark set two years ago by David McCagg of Mission Viejo, Calif., who was the second best qualifier. Olympic silver medalist Pelle Holmertz of Sweden, and the top sprinter in the world in 1980, Rowdy

Gaines of Winter Haven, Fla., were the third and fourth best qualifiers. Official world records cannot be set in this meet at the University of Florida's O'Connell Center because the races are being contested over a 25-meter course.

Plainsmen Break Away To Rip Panthers 72-60

Monterey turned a slim three-point lead at the end of three quarters into a 72-60 win over Dunbar Friday night in girls' basketball action in the MHS gym.

Monterey led 51-48 entering the final eight minutes after the Panthers had rebounded from a 47-41 halftime deficit to briefly take a three-point lead in the third period.

Then the Plainsmen outscored Dunbar 21-12 in the final quarter to raise their season record to 15-1. Dunbar fell to 9-6.

"We sort of lost our concentration in the fourth quarter," Dunbar coach Jim Washburn said. "Up until then it was nip and tuck all the way. The kids really played good. They took the ball inside real well."

MONTEREY 72, DUNBAR 60

Total fouls: Dunbar 16, Monterey 14. Records: Monterey 15-1, Dunbar 9-6.

The Ethridge sisters, Kriss and Kamie, led the Monterey attack as usual, scoring 26 and 13 points, respectively. Tracey Muehlrad added 10.

Marcia Holmes scored 21 to pace Dunbar while Lisa Cavell pumped in 16 and Cynthia Hardaway added 13.

Three-Time Rose Dies

ROYAL OAK, Mich. (AP) — Mauri Rose, one of only five men to win the Indianapolis 500 auto race three times, has died at the age of 74.

The Warren resident died New Year's Day at Beaumont Hospital in the neighboring Detroit suburb of Royal Oak.

Rose, a lifetime engineer, taught the trade and worked for American Motors Corp.'s American General truck, military vehicle and bus subsidiary at the time of his death. He had kept his hand in the Memorial Day classic he loved, for years driving the pace car at the start of the race after his retirement following a 1951 crash at the "brickyard."

He started racing on dirt tracks in Ohio in 1927 and raced in 15 Indy 500s beginning in 1933, winning in 1941, 1947 and 1948 and finishing second in 1934 and third in 1940 and 1950.

Only Louis Meyer before him and Al Unser, Johnny Rutherford and A.J. Foyt in recent decades won the race three times. Foyt holds the record, winning four Borg-Warner trophies.

Rose shared his first Indy victory. When his car failed after 310 miles, he took over another car he helped build from teammate Floyd Davis and took it from 11th place to the checkered flag, beating Rex Mays by little more than a lap. His average speed was 115.117 mph.

His back-to-back second and third victories was a record until Bill Vukovich pulled it off in 1953 and 1954 and Unser did it in 1970 and 1971.

Funeral services were set for Monday at 10 a.m.

Raiders Host Longhorns In SWC Opener

Lemons. "They're different kinds of players so I couldn't compare them. Harper's an all-around guard and Bubba's more of a shooter.

"Shooters can sure save you some nights," added the Texas coach. "I'd like to try and play with five Bubba Jennings-es some night and see what I could do."

"Harper and Wacker are two of the best freshmen in the conference," said Myers. "But I think Johnson is the glue that holds their team together. He gives them leadership."

Another interesting sidelight could be the contest between Tech's Swannegan and Texas' Virdell Howland, who were teammates and close friends at Tyler Junior College last year. Howland started two games for the 'Horns earlier in the year and is averaging 7.6 a game.

"Virdell started a couple of ball games for us but his shot hasn't been what it ought to be," said Lemons. "He did pretty well the last couple of times out, though. It might be coming back."

Tech is 14-9 in SWC openers and 8-2 in conference openers in Lubbock. Last year the Raiders opened the season by handing the Longhorns a 57-54 loss in Austin but Texas repaid the favor with a 76-63 decision in the Coliseum.

"They'll give us all we can handle and then some," says Lemons of the Raiders.

"I've been worried so much all week about this game that I'm just drained out," said Myers. "We just don't have any one man that can hold him down low."

"Him," of course, is the big man — LaSalle Thompson.

Young Falcons Test Cowboys

ATLANTA (AP) — Sunday's National Football League playoff match at Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium pits a young Atlanta team against the experienced Dallas Cowboys — but the Falcons aren't worried.

"People probably expect us to make mistakes because we don't have any playoff experience," said inside linebacker Buddy Curry. "But we're treating it exactly as if it were a regular season game."

Atlanta, which won its first NFC West title this year with a 12-4 record, is favored by three points in the 3 p.m. CST nationally televised playoff battle.

But the Falcons, whose only other playoff appearance was in 1978, are less experienced than Dallas, which also finished the season at 12-4 and has been in the playoffs 15 times in the past 16 years.

Second-year linebacker Joel Williams acknowledges that "the whole season is at stake right there. If we lose we have to go home and start thinking about next season."

Nevertheless, the Falcon players say they are well prepared for Dallas.

The fact that the Falcons' average age is just under 25 "can be a disadvantage — if the team that doesn't have the experience makes it that way," said rookie linebacker Richardson.

"If you don't go ahead and play your normal game, it can be a problem," he said. "We plan to play our normal game."

"Of course, an offense like the Cowboys' could come up with something unexpected. But we've gone over films and gone over films, and unless we and the coaches together overlook something, we should be prepared."

"I feel like we're going to win it," added defensive end Jeff Merrow. "I feel we're the better team. We've had the advantage of a week's rest and we're playing in Atlanta.

"To me, losing this game, I haven't even considered it. And I don't intend to. This is just another step. I feel it's our year and that's the only way I can approach it."

Merrow said the Falcons, not the Cowboys, should be called "America's Team," a title the Cowboys have given themselves in recent years to promote an image of the prototype U.S. professional football team.

"There are very few teams who have defensive linemen making tackles downfield, and there are very few teams who have defensive backs pasting people in the chest all the time," Merrow said.

"People enjoy watching us. It's fun to watch us... We should be America's Team."

Red-Hot Vikings Face Cooled-Down Eagles

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Minnesota Vikings, who played like chumps the first half of the season and champs the second half, start a third season today as they try to upset the favored Philadelphia Eagles in a National Football League playoff game.

Coach Bud Grant's Vikings, the National Conference Central Division winners, are at least a 7-point underdog against the Eagles, champions of the conference's Eastern Division.

The Vikings were 3-5 in the first half of the 16 game regular season and written off as a playoff contender. The defense was shaky and quarterback Tommy Kramer directed a spotty offense. It appeared a rebuilding year for the Vikings, who had been in the playoffs 11 of the 14 years since Grant became head coach.

The stone-faced Grant, however, pulled his team together, made changes until he came up with a mix that won six of the last eight games and boosted the Vikings to 9-7 record, good enough to win their division. Only one team in the NFL, Atlanta (7-1) posted a better record than Minnesota through those last eight games.

Kramer set a Minnesota season record of 3,582 yards passing, completing 299 of 522 for a 57.3 percentage. He threw for 19 touchdowns. His main targets are receivers Ahmad Rashad, Ted Brown, Sammy White, Joe Senser and Rickey Young Brown, with 912 yards on 219 carries assumed the brunt of the ground game.

Minnesota's problem is its defense, which ranked 12th in the 14 team conference. The Vikings allowed 3,856 yards, 366 per game. They gave up 2,456 on the ground and 3,400 against the pass. They had only 30 quarterback sacks. It was an ironic commentary on a team that lived for years on its savage defense, playing and losing in four Super Bowl games.

The Eagles exploited the Minnesota defense for a 42-7 triumph in the second game of the season. But there will be five changes in the Viking lineup for the 12:30 p.m. EST game. The winner meets the survivor of Sunday's Dallas-Atlanta playoff matchup on Jan. 11 for the right to advance to the Super Bowl.

Both coaches insist that the Eagles' overwhelming triumph in the early season game will have no bearing on Saturday's struggle. Grant says, "it was 100 years ago." Eagles' coach Dick Vermeil notes tersely, "they are capable of beating us."

The Eagles' season has been a reverse of the Vikings. Philadelphia took its division lead with a first half 7-1 record, then slipped to 5-3 in the final eight games. The Eagles, in fact, lost three of their last four. They lost the finale to Dallas and had to rally in the second half to maintain a conference point scoring edge that gave them the division crown, although both teams finished 12-4.

The Eagles, who haven't won an NFL championship since 1960 and made the playoffs last year for the first time since the present system was initiated.

CARPET PRICES TO SOAR

Although the prices of carpeting and all other floor coverings have remained stable and very reasonable in comparison to other consumer products, the situation is due for a drastic change.

According to a spokesman for one of Lubbock's leading carpet stores, Casey Carpet Company, wholesale prices have begun to escalate drastically in the past few weeks. This is due mainly to the rise in cost of carpet yarns and of course also to labor, transportation and all factors related to manufacturing and distribution.

Carpet yarn is a product of petroleum and technology and the cost of this raw product to the carpet mills is in direct relation to the cost of petroleum.

Carpet yarn manufacturers, carpet mills and floor covering retail dealers have endeavored to hold price increases to a reasonable level and will continue to do so, according to the spokesman for Casey Carpet.

"Just as energy costs rose drastically and quickly to its present level in the recent past, we expect carpet prices to surge in a similar manner," he said.

To hedge against this inflationary trend in yet another consumer product, it is suggested that those who are contemplating a carpet purchase, do so very soon.

To quote this spokesman for Lubbock's oldest and most respected carpet store, "Fine carpeting will never again be as reasonable in price as it is today."

Georgia Victory Ends National Title Speculation

By The Associated Press
Let's see, if No. 4 Oklahoma beats No. 2 Florida State and No. 3 Pitt beats No. 18 South Carolina...

For weeks, the speculation over a national champion raged as college football's bowl game matchups were announced. Much of the talk, naturally, involved Georgia, unbeaten, untied and undisturbed in the No. 1 slot in The Associated Press poll.

All the "ifs" were predicated on the Bulldogs losing their Sugar Bowl game against No. 7 Notre Dame. The problem for the "ifs" is it didn't happen.

Georgia's defense held off several second-half surges by the Irish and scored a 17-10 victory on New Year's Day. That sent coach Vince Dooley's club back to Athens, Ga., unconcerned with the results of the other games.

By winning, the Bulldogs made Oklahoma's 18-17 upset over Florida State in the Orange Bowl mostly academic. The same could be said for Pittsburgh's 37-9 trouncing of South Carolina in the Gator Bowl earlier in the week.

In Thursday's other games, No. 9 Alabama, national champion each of the past two seasons, blasted No. 6 Baylor 30-2 in the Cotton Bowl, and Michigan, ranked No. 5, defeated No. 16 Washington 23-6 in the Rose Bowl.

Miami, ranked No. 20, faced Virginia Tech in the Peach Bowl Friday.

Forgive Georgia if it paid little attention to the other games. All the Bulldogs are doing now is sitting back, waiting for Saturday night's announcement of the results of the final AP poll and the crowning as national champion. Dooley thinks he knows who the winner will be.

But what if Georgia doesn't win?
"I would be shocked to say the least," Dooley confessed.

Dooley could even understand if some writer or broadcaster on The AP panel slips in a No. 1 vote for some other school. He doesn't expect the count to go completely Georgia's way.

"I don't think there has ever been a unanimous No. 1 in the history of No. 1," he said.

So give the man the edge in poll points and he'll take it, just the way his team took the Sugar Bowl game. Except for 150 yards rushing by freshman sensation Herschel Walker, Notre Dame won the battle statistically. The Irish had 328 yards in total offense and limited the Bulldogs to 127 yards total offense, sacking quarterback Buck Belue four times. But Georgia, taking advantage of Irish mistakes, put the points on the scoreboard and that spelled the difference.

Walker scored both Bulldog touchdowns on short bursts. The first came shortly after Georgia had tied the score

3-3. On the ensuing kickoff, there was a mixup between Notre Dame returners Jim Stone and Ty Barber. Each moved up to block for the other but neither took the ball and it was recovered by Georgia's Bob Kelly at the 1-yard line.

The other TD came after Georgia's Chris Welton recovered a fumble by Notre Dame's John Sweeney at the Irish 22.

Lucky?
"I'm sure luck plays a part," said Dooley. "But do you take advantage of it?"

His team certainly did.

When Georgia won in the afternoon, it took some edge off the Orange Bowl clash between Florida State and Oklahoma at night. Had the Bulldogs lost, the winner of the Orange Bowl would have been talking about No. 1. But No. 3 will satisfy Sooners' coach Barry Switzer.

"We've been No. 3 so many times that that's what I wanted," he joked after quarterback J.C. Watts had marched his club 78 yards in the closing minutes for the winning touchdown against Florida State.

Switzer figures Pitt will move up a notch and so will his Sooners in the final poll. "We've been three more than anybody else in the last decade," he said. He'll know for sure Saturday night.

Watt hit Steve Rhodes on an 11-yard pass with 87 seconds to play, then added the winning two-point conversion pass to tight end Forrest Valora to cap the Oklahoma comeback.

Alabama, which was celebrating its second straight national championship at this time a year ago, took out the frustrations of a difficult season on Baylor, beating the Bears convincingly.

It was the sixth consecutive bowl victory for coach Bear Bryant, whose club should move up in the final standings.

Michigan's Bo Schembechler snapped a streak that was going in the opposite direction. He had been a losing bowl coach seven straight times before the Wolverines protected their No. 5 position by thumping Washington.

Butch Woolfolk rushed for 182 yards as Michigan gained revenge for a 27-20 Rose Bowl loss to Washington two years ago — one of those seven straight Schembechler setbacks in postseason play.

Chargers Plan No Fold-Up Job

SAN DIEGO (AP) — San Diego quarterback Dan Fouts, the force behind San Diego's high-flying offense, sees no chance of the Chargers turning conservative in Saturday's AFC semifinal clash with Buffalo.

"We all realize how fast the season can end. We either win Saturday or we pack Sunday," Fouts said Friday.

A year ago, San Diego's Super Bowl hopes went up in smoke when injury-depleted Houston grounded the Chargers' awesome passing game. Fouts was intercepted five times in the 17-14 loss.

That same self-destruct tendency flared several times this season, often after San Diego streaked to quick leads.

In two of their five losses — to Buffalo and Dallas — the Chargers raced out front early, only to go flat in the second half and lose.

Fouts rejects the idea that San Diego tends to get too conservative.

"We don't feel we've let down in the second half," he said. Then he compared two halves of football to a golf game. "It's not what you shoot on the first nine: it's what you get for 18."

Against Buffalo, San Diego took a 24-12 lead into the fourth quarter, only to lose 26-24.

Three weeks later, the Chargers roared to a 24-14 halftime lead against Dallas, then collapsed under their own mistakes, losing 42-31.

In a 22-21 victory over powerful Philadelphia, San Diego bolted to a 19-0 lead and held on for a 22-21 triumph.

As Fouts goes, so go the Chargers, it seems.

A humiliating 40-17 loss at Washington came after Fouts was intercepted four times and sacked four times.

"It seems like we lay an egg about this time every year," All-Pro cornerback Willie Buchanan said afterwards.

Fouts acknowledges that "people in charge tend to get a little conservative" as the stakes grow. "That's only natural when you're playing for all the marbles."

However, he emphasized, "I don't expect us to play conservatively (Saturday)."

For the second straight year, Fouts shattered the NFL's single season record for most yards passing with 4,715.

But, he said Friday, "I won't be satisfied with anything less than winning the Super Bowl."

Losing to crippled Houston was a bitter blow, he acknowledged.

"I think it will be a motivating factor, if we need one," he said.

Facing the NFL's No. 1 defense is another. San Diego, with five victories in its last six games, is a 5½-point favorite.

"We have a lot of respect for them. Nose tackle Fred Smerlas gave us a lot of problems. And their linebackers are excellent."

Browns May Try To Run On Raiders

BEREA, Ohio (AP) — Those who have tried to run against the Oakland Raiders this season have usually been dismayed with the results.

But Cleveland Browns coach Sam Rutigliano has some little-used backs dusting off their running shoes anyway.

"We may use Cleo Miller and Charlie White more this week," said Rutigliano as his Browns prepared for Sunday's American Football Conference playoff battle with the Raiders. "If it's the type of game where we might need more balance, Cleo and even Calvin Hill might play more."

The strategy at first glance would appear unwise, since the Oakland defense ranked second in the conference in defending against the run in 1980, allowing about 108 yards per game.

The Raiders were considerably more vulnerable against the pass, ranking only 10th in the AFC.

However, Oakland's secondary was opportunistic all season, as evidenced by defensive back Lester Hayes' 13 interceptions, tops in the National Football League. The Raiders' pass rush was also known to demoralize opponents, most notably Ken Stabler and the Houston Oilers in the AFC wild card playoffs last Sunday.

"It might have been the best effort of the year by the defense, and we got the big plays on offense," second-year Raiders coach Tom Flores said of the 27-7 triumph.

The Oakland success against Houston's passing attack prompted Rutigliano to consider adding some running plays to his game plan, even though 70 percent of Cleveland's offensive yardage this year has come through the air.

"We're going to have to run the ball to take some of the pressure off (quarterback) Brian Sipe," he said.

To attain balance in their rushing attack, the Browns would have to rely on more than fullback Mike Pruitt, who carried for 1,034 yards this season as the workhorse of the backfield.

White, the rookie from Southern California, was scarcely seen once Greg Pruitt returned from a knee injury early in the season, and even Pruitt rarely carried the ball. He was most often utilized as another of Sipe's many targets.

"Greg's done a great job (as a receiver) coming out of the backfield, but he just hasn't responded completely running the ball," Rutigliano said. "He'd be the first guy to tell you that. But Greg Pruitt is the kind of guy who might find himself in the 17th game."

The Browns' defense statistically resembles Oakland's, ranking third in the AFC against the run but dead last in pass defense.

Nonetheless, members of Cleveland's secondary are confident they can keep up with the high-arching passing of strong-armed Raider quarterback Jim Plunkett.

"It gives the defensive backs time to get back on the coverage," said cornerback Ron Bolton.
