U.S., Mexican 'Friends' Meet

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — President-elect Ronald Reagan and Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo conferred here for three hours, Monday, and the Mexican president, after four years of rocky relations with Washington, said, "This has been a meeting of friends."

Reagan echoed those comments a few minutes later when he boarded an Air Force jet in nearby El Paso for a flight to Washington. "Friendship was the subject," Reagan said.

Before the meeting, Reagan said it was intended to lay the foundation for future consultation on specific issues. Later, he said he accomplished this.

"Friendship, Respect"

A communique issued by Mexican authorities and the Reagan staff said the men met in "an atmosphere of friendship and mutual respect and laid the foundation for a personal relationship between the president of Mexico and the next president of the United States.

"They agreed to develop a bilateral mechanism in order to make the cooperative relationship between both countries productive and beneficial," the communique said.

There was no indication that the two men discussed specific problems.

There are differences between the two countries over a number of issues — unrest in Central America, illegal immigration and fishing rights. And there have been discussions between the two neighbors about the U.S. interest in Mexican energy exports.

Reagan and Lopez Portillo met on the middle of a bridge across the Rio Grande, shook hands and walked to the Mexican side of the river for lunch and their afternoon of talks.

Short Bus Ride

On the Mexican side of the bridge, Reagan and Lopez Portillo climbed into an elaborate bus bearing the Mexican flag for a short drive to the museum where they had lunch.

As the motorcade wound through the streets of the border city, thousands lined the route waving Mexican and American flags.

Later, Reagan presented Lopez Portillo, a gun collector, with a Remington single-shot, bolt-action rifle and a case of California wine of a variety originally begun by Franciscan missionaries who moved to California from Mexico.

He said the wine symbolized the intertwined paths of the two nations and was "a symbol of better future understanding."

Lopez Portillo gave Reagan several gifts, including an etching in glass of a drawing of horses he once made.

On arriving in El Paso, Reagan indicated that his administration will continue to support the current government in strife-torn El Salvador. Asked whether the "right-wing" government there was responsible for the murders Sunday of two Americans, Reagan said, "There isn't a right-wing government. There is a moderate government and a right-wing and left-wing faction, a kind of a three-way civil war."

Asked which will get his support, Reagan indicated he would continue current policy of supporting the government now in power. "We should choose which one of the others?" the president-elect asked.

The president-elect was accompanied by four key aides — Edwin Meese III, who will be counselor to the president after Reagan takes office, two weeks from Tuesday; Richard V. Allen, designated the White House national security adviser; Michael Deaver, a longtime aide who will join the White House as an assistant to the president; and Fred Ikle, formerly of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency and now a member of the Reagan transition staff.

The announcement last month that Reagan would visit Mexico raised some eyebrows because foreign trips by president Reagan have been rare.

Masten Case Gag Order Extends Far

By MARC FLAKE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

LITTLEFIELD — An order issued by 154th District Court Judge Pat Boone has mouths clamped tightly shut from his courtroom here all the way to the state attorney general's office in Austin.

The order prohibits all lawyers, witnesses and officers of the court from discussing the will of F.O. Masten with the news media.

It remains in effect despite an out-of-court settlement and the disbanding of the jury panel which was summoned to determine the validity of the wealthy rancher's will.

During a hearing Monday morning, George Gilkerson of Lubbock, the lead attorney for relatives of Masten who contested the will, told Boone that a settlement had been reached with attorneys representing Abilene Christian University, the principal beneficiary of Masten's handwritten testament.

Tax Problems Surface

Jerome Kirby of Littlefield, speaking for ACU, told Boone he had no objections to the settlement but that additional time would be needed before filing the judgment in order to work out some "tax problems."

Gilkerson told the judge the agreement had been approved by both sides on Jan. 2.

Attorney General Mark White approved the agreement through an assistant.

Youth Center Plagued By Door Lock Problem

By MARY ALICE ROBBINS

LUBBOCK County's youth center recorded its third escape attempt in a month Monday afternoon, when a 17-year-old fled through one of several doors which cannot be locked because of federal restrictions.

The youth, who is to be transferred to a Texas Youth Council facility in Brownwood, escaped through the police entrance at the detention center shortly before 2:30 p.m. Monday.

He was recaptured about 3 p.m. Monday at a residence in the Arnett-Benson area. Officials indicated the teenager apparently called a cab after fleeing the center, and police were able to trace him through the cab company's records.

Twice before, youths held at the detention center have escaped through exterior doors that cannot be locked from the inside.

All three escape attempts are the result of a problem that was not realized before construction was completed at the youth center, said county chief probation officer Lloyd Watts.

Iranians Call U.S. 'Biggest Enemy'

Hostage Reply Under Study

By United Press International
HUNDREDS of thousands of Iranians at a Tehran rally condemned the United States, Monday, as Iran's "biggest enemy" and the Islamic regime studied for a third day the U.S. reply to its demands for the release of the 52 American hostages.

In Washington, the State Department said the three American diplomats held hostage at Iran's Foreign Ministry first resisted being moved to another location last month but "apparently acquiesced" when they were assured the transfer was ordered by Iranian officials.

The weekend move of the three — Bruce Laingen, Victor L. Tomseth, and Michael Howland — now meant the whereabouts of all the hostages, held for 429 days, were not known, and State Department spokesman John Trattner said the United States was concerned.

10 Directions

Tehran Radio said hundreds of thousands of people marched from 10 directions to fill Khorasan Square to mark the anniversary of the death of Islam's main prophet, Mohammed, and the martyrdom of his grandson Imam Husan.

Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajavi addressed the throng but made no mention of the hostages and spoke primarily of the need for unity in Iran, especially in its war against Iraq.

But, the radio said, a resolution passed at the rally condemned the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan and "U.S. imperialist policy."

The resolution particularly cited former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's current Middle East trip and U.S. support of "reactionary regimes" in the region as threats.

"We consider our biggest enemy to be the criminal America," the resolution said.

Iranian officials studied for a third day the latest U.S. answer to Iran's demands for the release of the hostages.

Algerian Delivery

The official Pars news agency reported that Algerian diplomats, acting as intermediaries, had delivered Washington's response to the Islamic regime, Saturday.

Iran's major demand calls for the United States to deposit $24 billion with Algerian banks to cover frozen assets and as a guarantee for the late shah's wealth.

The United States has rejected the demand, but reportedly has offered to return $4 billion to $6 billion of the assets, against which there are no legal claims, as soon as the hostages are freed, while contested assets, estimated at up to $8 billion, are arbitrated by an international commission.

Without setting a formal deadline, Washington has put Tehran on notice that it had better respond to the U.S. offer before the Carter administration leaves office in 15 days or face the prospect of having to start negotiations all over with a new administration.

Earlier Attempt

On the move of the three hostages from Iran's Foreign Ministry, Trattner said the men "resisted" an attempt to transfer them, Dec. 23, because they did not know who had issued the order for the transfer and were unsure of their destination.

The spokesman said he had no information about a possible "fracas or scuffle" in the first effort by unknown Iranians to remove the three hostages from the Foreign Ministry.

The three had been the only hostages whose location had been definitely known since the aborted U.S. rescue mission in April, when the other 49 Americans captured at the U.S. Embassy reportedly were moved around Iran.

The three men had sought refuge at the ministry when the embassy was seized, Nov. 4, 1979.

Suspect Jailed In Oil Scheme

By JAMES WERRELL
A-J Correspondent

BIG SPRING — Law enforcement agents here believe they have uncovered a scheme through which employees of an independent oil firm swindled an estimated $425,000 from Cosden Oil and Chemical Company.

Officers suspect that employees of Jaco Oil Company have sold the same tank of oil to Cosden repeatedly since June without pumping the oil into the Cosden pipeline.

"We have been working on this since October, but we suspect that this has been going on since June," said Texas Ranger Eddie Almond, who coordinated the investigation.

57 Offenses Possible

"It looks like we may have up to 57 felony offenses and the theft of 12,500 barrels of crude," he said.

Almond, Big Spring Herald photographer Bill Forsee, two Howard County Sheriff's deputies, two agents of the Texas Railroad Commission, four Cosden Oil agents and the director of Security for American Petrofina, Cosden's parent company, descended Monday on the W.B. Currie lease operated by Jaco Oil Company Inc. of Midland.

There, they arrested John Theford Sims, a pumper for Jaco.

Charges have been filed against Sims for theft of crude oil. He was released on bond of $20,000 set by Justice of the Peace Bob West of Big Spring. The investigation will continue, Almond said, to determine if others may have been involved in the alleged scheme.

Two-Month Surveillance

The Currie Lease, located five miles west of Forsee, and north of the Continental Oil lease in that area, was the site of two months of surveillance by area agents. Those involved in the stakeout were Almond, Deputy Eddie Owens, Forsee, who photographed the activities at the site during the stakeout, and a Cosden agent who is working undercover on a similar case in the area.

Almond was alerted in October, when Railroad Commission officials became suspicious of improbably large production on the lease.

Railroad Commission officials told Almond that a Jaco official claimed that a "miracle chemical" developed by a German scientist had been pumped into zero-production wells on the lease with phenomenal results.

As a result of the claim, and continued urging by the official, the Railroad Commission raised allowable production to over 2,000 barrels of oil a month at the lease, authorities said. Three pump jacks, Jaco officials claim, produced the oil which was placed in storage tanks for transfer to the Cosden pipeline.

Complicated Scheme

Agents believe that a complicated scheme was devised in which a Cosden gauger was shown a full oil storage tank which was ostensibly to be pumped into the company pipeline.

Instead, law officers theorize, a Jaco employee turned off the pump after the gauger left the site.

Agents believe that this same tank of oil was resold to Cosden each time the gauger returned over a seven-month period.

In order to determine whether any oil from the lease was entering the pipeline during the months of December, Almond, Owens, Forsee and the Cosden agents observed the transaction between the pumper and the Cosden gauger from hidden stakeout positions.

Forsee recorded the events on film and agents monitored a meter which was secretly installed to record the flow of oil from the tank to the pipeline.

During December, Cosden paid for 2-

Police Charge 'Ripper' Suspect

LEEDS, England (AP) — As shouts of "kill him!" resounded outside the courtroom, a 35-year-old truck driver was charged Monday with one of 13 murders of prostitutes and other women attributed to northern England's "Yorkshire Ripper" over the last five years.

Peter William Sutcliffe, described by neighbors and workmates as a loner but a sensitive (Lubbock Man Plays Role In Ripper Hunt, Page 9, Sec. A) and devoted husband, was hustled through an epithet-shouting mob into a magistrate's court in Dewsbury, near here, where he was charged with last November's murder of college student Jacqueline Hill, who was not a prostitute. Some of the crowd of more than 1,000 threw pebbles at Sutcliffe, his head covered with a blanket.

Police said he may be charged with other murders blamed on the Ripper.

It is normal British police practice in multiple murder cases to originally charge a defendant with one killing, usually the one backed up by the best evidence.

Authorities have listed Miss Hill as the 13th and latest victim of a sadistic killer who struck fear in the hearts of Yorkshire and Lancashire county women since the mutilated body of prostitute Wilma McCann was found here Oct. 30, 1975.

Police said Miss Hill's murder was one of the most gruesome. Among other wounds, she had been stabbed through the eye with a screwdriver, they said.

Police have indicated they think Sutcliffe, who was ordered held without bail until Jan. 14, is the Ripper, but prosecutor Maurice Shaffner said there was a lot of work to be done to compile the case against him.

Supt. Frank Morrirt, spokesman for the West Yorkshire Police, said, "I hope other charges will be made."

Costliest Manhunt

Sutcliffe's conviction would end the most extensive and costliest manhunt in British history. Police have already said their investigation, which involved the questioning of more than 200,000 people, was being wound down.

The slightly-built, black-haired and bearded suspect from nearby Bradford stood impassively in the dock during the five-minute hearing, occasionally glancing at his wife Sonya, who sat quietly crying in front of the dock. He said nothing, but nodded when asked if he understood the charges against him.

Police said his wife, a local art teacher, was being questioned as a "material witness."

Sutcliffe, who was not required to enter a plea, was also charged by the three magistrates with the recent thefts of two car license plates. His arrest for the car tag thefts, Friday night in Sheffield, provided the break in the case.

Shaffner said that at the time of his arrest, Sutcliffe was parked in a driveway with a known prostitute in his car and gave a false name to police. When police checked the car registration, they

South Plains Escapes Deadly Lingering Freeze

A-J News Services

Cool mornings and warm afternoons will continue through today and most of the remainder of the week, forecasters say, with highs in the upper 50s expected today and Wednesday.

Despite two weak frontal systems expected to invade the area today and Wednesday, National Weather Service officials say there is little chance of precipitation or significant weather changes over the South Plains.

An upper air disturbance Monday just off the southern California coast is expected to move eastward into the South Plains today, bringing a threat of light showers to the southern portions of West Texas but causing little change in the Lubbock area.

Forecasters say another weak frontal system will form today across the Panhandle, causing only slight cooling when it pushes through the South Plains tonight.

Temperatures will range from an overnight low in the 30s to a high today in the upper 50s. Winds will be northeasterly at 5 to 10 mph today.

A lingering freeze that slipped in from Canada petrified much of the nation east of the Rockies Monday, stalling countless cars, threatening power blackouts in some regions and pushing temperatures to record lows in more than 20 cities from Georgia to Maine.

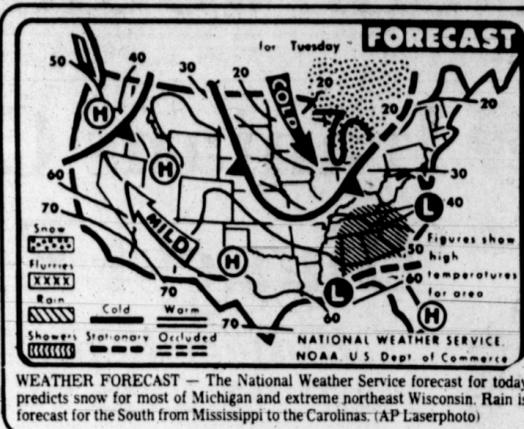

At least five deaths — other than traffic fatalities — were blamed on the cold that moved into the Northeast over the weekend.

In Boston a man and his four-year-old son were overcome by carbon monoxide gas. Police said the fumes came from a gas space heater.

In Philadelphia a 66-year-old man found Sunday covered with a single blanket in an unheated trailer died from what hospital authorities described as severe exposure and possible cardiac arrest.

In Bucks County, Pa., an 86-year-old man was killed when he slid down an embankment and fell through the ice into a shallow stream, and at Braddock, Pa., a 65-year-old man froze to death when he stumbled and fell in the snow outside his house Saturday night.

Cities along the Eastern Seaboard reporting the coldest Jan. 4 in history ranged from Athens, Ga., with 11 degrees, to Caribou, Maine, with 20 below zero.

Temperatures were below zero from the Upper Mississippi Valley through the Great Lakes region and Ohio Valley to the Northeast and were below freezing in northern Florida. Car batteries went dead, fuel lines froze, water pipes burst, ships crunched through ice-clogged waterways and electrical generators were pushed to their limits.

"You hear from a 90-year-old lady who says she has to stay in bed all day because there's no heat in her apartment. Then she starts to cry. The old people just get talking and crying." A spokesman for the bureau, which got 8,074 calls on Sunday and 2,475 more by noon Monday, said it will take a week to respond to all of the complaints.

ATC Senior Enlisted Adviser To Speak

By GERRY BURTON
Avalanche-Journal Staff
Chief Master Sgt. Emory Walker, senior enlisted adviser for the Air Training Command, will be speaker for the annual enlisted awards banquet at 6:30 p.m. today at Reese Air Force Base.

Three outstanding enlisted persons — senior non-commissioned officer, non-commissioned officer and airman — will be named tops in their category from a field of 23 nominees from Reese units.

As the top ATC enlisted person, Walker is the ears, eyes and mouthpiece for the enlisted force and represents Gen. Bennie L. Davis, ATC commander, to enlisted personnel.

He makes sure the enlisted force understands Air Force policy and regulations on one hand, and, on the other, keeps a finger on the enlisted pulse for ATC.

While touring ATC bases such as Reese, Walker hears comments, some positive and some negative, from all areas of the particular base mission. Knowing the hot spots of a base, helps him promote welfare of enlisted persons before unrest affects the mission.

The 21-year Air Force veteran also passes on his own belief that the Air Force is "a great force with good services," with most jobs transferable to civilian careers.

"The Air Force is a good place to be if only for the chance of an education," he said on a Reese visit.

A native of Lexington, Va., with a Navy father and Army brother, Walker volunteered for service in the Air Force. He attended technical school at Chanute AFB and served as an aircraft welder on F-4 maintenance in Vietnam.

Walker moved to ATC headquarters at Randolph AFB from another Lackland, also in San Antonio, where he was director of education at the NCO Academy. Previously, he was a first sergeant responsible for the health, welfare and morale of a squadron.

Trips to Reese sometimes hold a bonus for Walker who has two daughters here — Terri, a junior at Texas Tech University, and Carolyn Myers whose husband, Ben, is a recent graduate of the Sunset School of Preaching.

Candidates for the 1980 senior NCO honor include Master Sgt. James Andrews, Master Sgt. Walter Buford, Senior Master Sgt. Adrian Conger, Master Sgt. Ronnie Craft, Senior Master Sgt. Rodrigo Moreno, Master Sgt. Seminole Moseley and Senior Master Sgt. Jerry Price.

Vying for the NCO award are Staff Sgt. Richard Gray, Tech. Sgt. Bruce Kumlir, Sgt. Victor Magnon, Sgt. Bret McIntire, Staff Sgt. Stanley Peltery, Tech. Sgt. Terry Savoie, Staff Sgt. Keith Stevens and Staff Sgt. Ralph Young.

Competing for the outstanding airman slot are Senior Airman Michael Bell, Senior Airman Glen Elstun, Airman 1st Class Nancy Gillian, Airman 1st Class Steven Hill, Airman 1st Class Billy Hilliger, Airman 1st Class Robert Powell, Airman 1st Class Domingo Rodriguez and Airman 1st Class Denny Weston.

Picketing, Vandalism Mark Draft Signup Over U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the face of protests across the country, a Supreme Court challenge and the opposition of President-elect Ronald Reagan, the Selective Service Monday began registering teen-agers born in 1962 for a possible future military draft.

Sixteen demonstrators were arrested for conducting a sit-in and blocking entry to the draft registration office in the federal building in Boston, while another 40 protesters clogging the lobby chanted, "One, two, three, four, we don't want your macho war!"

Anti-draft protesters vandalized three Los Angeles area post offices by jamming toothpicks and pieces of wood into door locks before the appearance of draft registrants. Sign-carrying pickets gathered in bitter cold outside post offices or federal buildings in Louisville, Ky., Milwaukee, Toledo and many other cities.

Plans for rallies, picketing, news conferences and distribution of anti-draft leaflets outside post office registration sites were reported in cities from Phoenix to New York and from Atlanta to Chicago.

A half-dozen pickets carried signs reading "No Blood For Oil" and "Don't Sign Your Life Away" outside the main post office in San Francisco. Inside, only one teen-ager had registered in the first two hours. In New York, about 200 persons — most of them teen-agers — picketed the block-long General Post Office shouting "Hell No, We Won't Go" and then headed for a Times Square rally.

At least 10 protesters who refused to leave the armed forces recruiting center in New York's Times Square were carried out to a police van, driven several blocks across town and released, authorities said.

In several cities, young men were urged by draft opponents to register as conscientious objectors or under protest. "I didn't register and I won't go if I'm drafted," said Pablo Huffsteter, 19, one of about 500 persons who attended a protest rally Sunday in Los Angeles' MacArthur Park, scene of massive anti-war demonstrations a decade ago.

"They're trying to condition people to some sort of interventionist policy, but we learned our lesson in Vietnam," said George Edwards, a Louisville seminary professor and spokesman for an anti-registration group in that city.

Under a draft registration plan initiated by President Carter in December 1979, after the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan, and approved by Congress, young men who were born in 1962 and who will turn 19 this year are required to register for a military draft through Saturday.

In the first such registration, held last July, 3.7 million of the 3.9 million eligible young men born in 1960 and 1961 have signed up for a draft. If there is a similar turnout this week, nearly all of the 1.9 million eligible young men will register.

After this week, males will be required to register within 30 days after they turn 18.

Even though the military draft expired in 1973, after U.S. disengagement from Vietnam, Carter proposed registration as a means of increasing military readiness. The Selective Service says registration would reduce by four weeks the time required to draft 100,000 men in an emergency.

But during his election campaign, Reagan opposed peacetime draft registration as a "meaningless gesture" that would save little time and would limit registrants' personal freedom.

Reagan, however, refused to respond to a suggestion by Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., that Carter be asked to delay this week's registration until Reagan assumes the presidency on Jan. 20. Then, according to Hatfield, Reagan could issue an executive order canceling the registration.

Few Teens Register For Draft

By MARY ALICE ROBBINS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The final mass draft registration of American males got off to a slow start in Lubbock Monday, with less than 20 registrants signed up at the main post office by mid-morning.

And some of those who did show up expressed little enthusiasm for the Selective Service's registration requirement.

"It's kind of scary," noted 18-year-old Estacado High School senior Larry White, one of the first to register on the opening day of the signup period.

White said he only registered because he is required by law to do so. The thought of having to go to war is terrifying, he added.

Perry Harmon, an 18-year-old electrical engineering major at Texas Tech, voiced even stronger opposition to the draft registration.

"I don't think it's worthwhile," Harmon commented. "We shouldn't have to fight other people's battles."

However, Harmon said he would not be as reluctant to go to war if the nation were forced into an armed conflict with Iran.

Tim Schuehler, a chemical engineering major at Tech, was less opposed to the registration requirement than other 18-year-olds interviewed.

"I guess it's a good thing," Schuehler observed. "With the situation today as far as the world is concerned, if they need us, then they can call on us."

Schuehler also said he believes the draft would bring better qualified men into the nation's armed forces.

The Lubbock 18-year-olds are among nearly 2 million American men born in 1962 who are expected to register for the still nonexistent military draft during the next week and a half.

Last summer, almost 4 million males born in 1960 and 1961 signed up during the first mass registration period since the draft was halted five years ago in the wake of protests over the Vietnam War.

Selective Service officials reported about a 95 percent turnout during the earlier registration period that began July 21.

President Carter pushed for the renewal of draft registration, saying it would increase the nation's military preparedness.

Although the second mass registration is underway, the fate of the mandatory signup remains in doubt. One of those who has voiced opposition to registration during peacetime periods is President-elect Ronald Reagan.

There also is a case before the U.S. Supreme Court in which registration is being challenged as discriminatory because only men are registered.

A U.S. District Court judge in Philadelphia ruled earlier that the mandatory registration is unconstitutional because women were not included. But the Supreme Court is not expected to issue its ruling in the case until sometime this spring.

The beginning of this registration period apparently drew less interest here than did the first day for registering last summer.

A small crowd of young men gathered at the front door of the main post office prior to the opening of the building July 21. Reports indicated that nearly 30 men had signed up at the post office within the first 15 minutes.

"I think it's going to be slow today, but I expect it to really pick up later," said Don Jones, the post office official in charge of the Selective Service registration here.

The earlier mass registration covered the earlier mass registration covered 18- and 19-year-olds, Jones said. The present signup is aimed only at those men born in 1962, he added.

Jones noted that the registration effort will continue through Jan. 14, and signup facilities will be open at all post offices.

If a young man fails to register during the official period, he can still sign up at a later date, Jones said.

The postal official noted that several young men who should have registered in July were registered at the main post office last week. "We're not going to turn anybody down," he added.

This will be the last mass registration effort, Jones explained.

Woman Testifies Accused Man Killed Her Former Boy Friend In Dispute

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Joe David Williams' former girlfriend singled him out in court Monday as the man who killed Willis B. Sheppard, with whom she had lived before moving in with Williams.

Sharlene Zethellee's testimony, considered a crucial piece of evidence against the 46-year-old Williams, came in the first day of testimony in Williams' murder trial in 140th District Court. Williams was charged with attempted murder in late November for allegedly shooting Miss Zethellee in the head and arm in an attempt to prevent her from testifying against him.

Miss Zethellee was shot while she was sitting in the East Side Cafe in Slaton Nov. 27. The incident occurred after Williams had been charged with murder for the Sept. 28 shooting of Sheppard. He was free on a $25,000 bond after being accused of shooting Sheppard once in the chest with a .22 caliber pistol as Sheppard attempted to force Miss Zethellee from the 2806 Ivory St. residence she was sharing with Williams.

Miss Zethellee had known Sheppard for about nine or 10 years before his death, she told the jury Monday afternoon. She had lived with him periodically during that time, she testified.

She described the shooting incident at the apartment she shared with Williams, testifying that Sheppard came to the Ivory Street apartment asking for an old electricity bill dating back to the time they had lived together. She retrieved the bill and opened the door to hand it to Sheppard, Miss Zethellee testified.

Sheppard came into the apartment, she told the court, and began talking to her. Williams could hear the conversation from the bathroom door, where he was standing, she testified.

The two men spoke to each other, she testified.

Miss Zethellee walked Sheppard to the door, she told the jury, and asked him not to come back. But Sheppard answered her request with "I'll see you later," she told the court.

As she started to close the door, Sheppard reached in and grabbed her arm, she testified. She said, "Oh, my God."

Thomas Jefferson's father, Peter, was a civil engineer of Welsh descent.

because she was losing her grip on the doorknob, she testified.

"Joe David fired over my head — and that made him turn loose my arm," Miss Zethellee testified. "He just fired four (shots). He didn't stop shooting."

After the shooting, "I closed the door," Miss Zethellee told the jury.

Under cross examination, Miss Zethellee testified that Sheppard had beaten her on several occasions in years past and that she had related these experiences to Williams. She described an incident where Sheppard banged her head against a table corner, leaving a gash that bled freely. Sheppard also beat her with a rubber hose, she told the jury, and broke her arm on one occasion.

Williams knew she was afraid of Sheppard, Miss Zethellee testified. She didn't have Sheppard arrested, she told the jurors, because she didn't know if it would make Sheppard more violent toward her.

"But he didn't have a habit of just hurting me," she testified. "He was jealous."

Testimony was scheduled to continue at 9 a.m. today.

30 Suspected Leftist Guerrillas Slain By Salvadoran Soldiers

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Government troops killed 30 suspected leftist guerrillas in an assault on two hideouts filled with guns, ammunition and medicine, military authorities said Monday.

The camps, less than 10 miles from the capital on the side of a volcano that towers over the city, were wiped out by the soldiers in the late Sunday afternoon operation. There were reports that "a large number of guerrillas" were captured by the troops, but the reports were not confirmed.

There were no new leads, meanwhile, in the shooting deaths of two U.S. specialists in agrarian reform and the leader of El Salvador's Agrarian Transformation Institute, Mark David Pearlman 36, and Michael Peter Hammer, 42, were killed late Saturday as they finished dinner in the Hotel Sheraton here. Jose Rodolfo Viera was also killed by the gunmen in the attack.

One police source said the bullets that killed the three men came from 45 caliber and 9 millimeter handguns. One source, who asked to remain anonymous, said the assassination appeared to be the work of the extreme right.

The killings also raised fears among the foreign community in the capital. One long-time foreign resident who asked not to be identified said "if we go from being an object of vilification to an object of attack, then we are in big trouble."

The judge assigned to the case, Danilo Velado, told The Associated Press that at least 10 persons would be interrogated Monday in the investigation of the killings.

In the raid on the guerrilla hideouts, a government spokesman said one captured guerrilla was a Mexican national, identified as Jose Alfonso Gregorio Cortez Zamora, 24. "I am filled with a conscience of the Salvadoran struggle and that's why I joined," Cortez told reporters at a news conference. He said he had been paid about $150 a month to join up.

A military source, who also asked not to be identified, said among the dead taken down from the volcano there appeared to several bodies of men who looked like "Cubans, Nicaraguans or Panamanians." One dead man was identified as a Honduran national.

Residents of the capital watched in the joint ground and air assault on the camps, high up on the volcano. The camps were reportedly discovered when a military patrol was attacked by the guerrillas as it approached the area.

A reliable source, who asked not to be identified, said one unofficial report indicated the guerrillas tried to set fires to block the military's advance, but the wind changed direction and the victims were burned to death.

A witness said a group of uniformed armed men carrying a wounded comrade ran down a street that leads up the volcano. They commandeered an American-made passenger Jeep, but permitted the driver to escape with his two-year-old daughter, the witness said.

There were five other battles between government troops and suspected leftists Sunday night, government sources said. The sources said at least 16 persons were killed in the gunfights, bringing the 24-hour death toll to at least 46 persons.

More than 9,000 persons have died in political violence here this year, most of them suspected leftist sympathizers killed by the military or right-wing paramilitary groups. The left is fighting to topple the government, now led by President Jose Napoleon Duarte.

Leading New York Bank Decreases Prime Rate

NEW YORK (AP) — A leading New York bank reduced its prime lending rate to 20 percent Monday, undercutting most other major banks and fueling hopes that interest rates will continue falling.

The move by Morgan Guaranty Trust Co., the nation's fifth-largest bank, was not immediately followed by other big banks, most of which were quoting a prime rate of 20.5 percent.

Economists and Wall Street analysts, however, predicted that a prime rate of 20 percent, or possibly lower, would spread through the banking industry within days.

"The trend is downward now, there's no doubt," said Thomas Thomson, chief economist at Crocker National Bank in San Francisco. "I would think we'll see that 20 percent rate being followed by other banks during the course of the week."

The prime rate is what banks charge on loans to blue-chip corporate borrowers; other, less creditworthy businesses usually must pay at least one point above the prime.

The prime does not apply to consumer loans, rates on which are limited by law in most states. But changes in the prime rate generally signal the direction of changes in all kinds of interest rates.

For example, Gibraltar Savings & Loan Association, the nation's sixth-largest S&L, reduced its home mortgage rate to 15.25 percent for loans of up to $150,000 from a range of 16 percent to 18 percent on various loan amounts.

ENERGY PROBLEM CHRONIC

Weighing Anchor On Alliance

EVENTS IN Iran and Afghanistan and a jump in oil prices have illuminated the gravest threat to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization during the new year.

This threat is not Soviet military power, although that is a real enough problem, but rather the corrosive political tensions that can easily arise among nations so economically inter-dependent as the North Atlantic partners.

The security impact of the energy revolution has been most noticeable in the instance of Turkey.

OWING TO A precipitous drop in demand for Turkish goods and surplus labor as well as Turkey's inability to pay for essential oil imports, this southeastern anchor of the alliance—which fields the largest NATO army in Europe—now faces more than 20 percent unemployment, 60 percent inflation, and 50 percent industrial idleness.

There are numerous other strains among NATO governments that are a direct or indirect result of the chronic energy problem.

One obvious source of friction is the nationalistic scramble for supplies at any price at the first sign of a shortage.

FORMULA FOR SUCCESS Foreign Policy Home-Grown

THE AMERICAN presidency enters 1981 with a challenge as easy to state as it is difficult to meet: how to build a solid domestic base for U.S. foreign policies.

In part this is a problem of executive-congressional relations, in part it reaches beyond Capitol Hill to the matter of broader public sentiments and expectations.

The importance of building such a base is underscored by the reception accorded the SALT II treaty. So is the difficulty of doing so.

Notwithstanding a generally negative reputation for congressional relations, the Carter administration achieved several foreign policy victories from its perspective.

The Panama treaties were ratified, the arms embargo to Turkey was lifted, and arms sales to Egypt and Saudi Arabia were approved.

THESE WERE impressive individual triumphs, the product of enormous, organized efforts at persuasion. But the whole proved less than the sum of its parts; they did not combine to create broad support for administration policies or to instill confidence in administration competence to execute these policies.

Each so-called victory was won separately, by distinct methods with differing coalitions.

On Panama, the left and the center prevailed over the right. On the arm sales votes, by contrast, it was conservatives who were the Carter administration's allies.

ART BUCHWALD: Fan Doesn't Know Beans About Watching Football

WASHINGTON—Hello, Dr. Schuster. This is Wayne Berman. I can't talk to you now, Wayne. I'm watching the Orange Bowl game.

That's what I'm calling about, Doctor. I can't see. What do you mean you can't see? I tuned in the Orange Bowl and I'm blind. I can't make out anything on the screen. Maybe there is something wrong with your set. My set is fine. Everyone in the family can see the game except me. How many football games did you watch today? Three. The Orange Bowl would have been my fourth. Do you still have your eyeballs? I don't know.

WELL, ASK somebody in the family. My wife says I look like little Orphan Annie. Do you think I could have lost my eyeballs? It's been known to happen. What were you eating while you were watching the games? Jellybeans. Tell your wife to look in the jellybean dish and see if she can see anything that looks like eyeballs. She found two things that don't look like jellybeans. That could be them. Tell her to take them out of the dish and stick them back in your eyes. She wants to know if she should wash them first.

THAT'S A good idea. Suppose they're not my eyeballs. Then you're going to have to get the family to look elsewhere. I've been sitting here all day. I haven't moved out of my chair. That was very smart of you. Some people like to move around on New Year's Day and then they have a heck of a time finding their eyeballs. She's washed them off. Does it matter which eyeball goes in which eye? Not really, as long as they're aligned properly. Just lean your head back and tell her to press them in as far as they can go. Is she doing it?

Washington brought down a storm of European criticism when it announced in June 1979 a $5-a-barrel subsidy for imported heating oil.

"Carter declares oil war," the London Daily Mirror headlined.

OUR RECENT successes in obtaining military facilities in Egypt, Oman, Kenya, and Somalia illustrate some of the practical benefits of economic and military assistance.

However, in the U.S. the flexible use of foreign aid is strongly inhibited by public attitudes.

The outgoing administration made some effort to bridge this chasm. But its efforts generally have been limited to last minute scrambles to save a tattered foreign aid bill.

"The future," as David K. Hall, Brown University political science professor, writes in the American Enterprise Institute periodical Defense Review, "holds no promise for the American citizenry that the economic costs of maintaining the NATO alliance will be either small or easy to bear."

Letters to the Editor

Plainview Man Says His Piece On Bible Changes

Editor, Avalanche-Journal: Andrew Tully and one of your readers have discussed the King James Version of the Bible as in contrast to the modern versions. I would like to add the following comments.

The King James translation of the Bible is faithful, true, and pure. The King James Version was bought by the blood of martyrs.

The modern theologians' versions leave out such words as blood, propitiation, and grace. God consistently and emphatically states that He requires accuracy concerning His Word... not simplicity.

The only popular English translation based on God's providentially preserved Greek and Hebrew texts (through the churches) is the KJV. Over ninety percent of the old manuscripts and writings of the early church substantially agree with the manuscripts used in the translation of the KJV.

How can the moderns believe that God can preserve men's souls if (according to them) He cannot preserve His own Word? If the modern versions are correct then for fifteen hundred years (from the 4th to the 19th century) the Bride of Christ did not have the Bridegroom's Word. How absurd! Jesus said, "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away."

Like the Jews still looking for the Messiah, the moderns are still looking for the appearance of the written Word of God. They expect to find it anywhere... in a wastebasket in St. Catherine's convent (Codex Aleph), in an overlooked and discarded manuscript in the Pope's library (Codex Vaticanus), or in scrolls found in caves (Dead Sea scrolls).

Whatever, and wherever, the moderns ceaselessly run to and fro seeking something new for their Bibles. Some of them, as other prophets in the past, might dig up a real bonanza. James Son, 209 Juanita St., Plainview

Midland Man Is Grateful To Lubbock Samaritans

Editor, Avalanche-Journal: Nowadays we hear much about people refusing to stop and give aid to strangers in trouble. This does not seem to apply to Lubbock, Texas.

I was in an automobile collision on the Loop one night early last week. Before I could get out of my car, other cars were stopping right and left, despite the cold. One man ran to me and asked if I were hurt. Another ran to check the other car involved. A third man began directing traffic. Directly another man asked if he could do anything to help.

The patrolmen and ambulance people also were unusually polite and thoughtful. I'm still thanking the good Lord that no one was killed or seriously injured. I'm also grateful to the "friendly strangers" who stopped and helped. R. L. Denton, 1104 Mogford, Midland

Lubbock Reader Would Get Tough On Hostage 'Ransom'

Editor, Avalanche-Journal: Your editorial with the headline "U.S. Deal Still Blackmail," Dec. 31, 1980, is very candid and deserves more than just a cursory glance.

Since Mr. Reagan has currently identified Ayatollah Khomeini and his hoodlums as kidnappers and barbarians, it would seem strange that Mr. Carter, et al. would surrender to the demands of the blackmailing outlaws, unless we remember that Mr. Carter's first act upon taking office was to slap every veteran who served in the armed services in the face by forgiving all the draft dodgers.

It does not seem to be in keeping with American principles to reward these barbarians by paying a ransom. In fact since they are the violators of law, it would seem more appropriate to fine them $52 million a day for violating international law and agreements. If they refuse to pay, we should drop a corresponding amount of bombs or missiles (negotiator-exterminator), until such time there is no more Iran. In addition, I think we should give them Ramsey Clark, whether they want him or not.

This may not free the hostages but it won't worsen their plight. Adrian Connally, Lubbock

Wolfforth Reader Sees Godless America Hurting

Editor, Avalanche-Journal: It is disgraceful how society today is accepting the movies, articles, and other related materials that are degrading our Savior, Jesus Christ.

If we allow this sacrilegious material to exist, then we are guilty too. If we watch school administrators ban prayer from our schools, and if we watch certain individuals make achievements with their atheist beliefs then we have failed as Americans and as Christians.

I believe in God, and I also believe we must stop this sacrilegious movement. America without God is America without freedom and liberty. James C. Preston, Wolfforth

Hostage Affair Also Is Shameful to U.S., He Says

Editor, Avalanche-Journal: The hostage affair, though smaller in scope, is nonetheless as equally shameful to our nation as the Vietnam maggot.

Leaders in most of the countries in the world, including our British brothers, normally conservative, would have solved the problem long ago simply by demanding that the prisoners be freed or else they would be forcefully released either by hook or by crook, and then set a time-limit on the declaration.

Instead, our spineless leaders invoked prayer and tied yellow ribbons on trees and fence posts for the prisoners release.

How silly can you get? Anyhow, I've about decided that the hostages must like their position as prisoners else many, if not all, would have negotiated an escape long before now. Ace Lambert, 417 Hub Homes

Jewish Impact On History Cited By Lubbock Writer

Editor, Avalanche-Journal: The Dec. 27 UPI article "Rise In Anti-Semitism Troubles Theologians" attracted my attention. Tom F. Driver, Paul F. Tillich professor of Theology and Culture at Union Theological Seminary in New York City, put it most bluntly in a recent issue of the magazine Christianity and Crisis.

"There is a rising anti-Semitism today among people who are very religious and very nationalistic," he said. Driver specifically named the Rev. Jerry Falwell and television evangelist James Robison, and the movement associated with their leadership, as source for the new anti-Semitism.

He also cited the remarks made by the Rev. Bailey Smith, President of the 13.4 million-member Southern Baptist Convention at a political rally of religious conservatives to effect that "God does not hear the prayers of a Jew." Rev. Bailey Smith was revealing his ignorance of history. In the year 70 the Romans burned the Temple and destroyed Jerusalem. The Jewish prayer "Next Year in Jerusalem" was heard by God, and after two millennia, the Jews are back in Jerusalem. Rome has long since crumbled.

Telly Savalas likes to say "my ancestors invented democracy." Rev. Smith, my ancestors invented God. Without the Jews, we would not have so-called Christians and Muslims today, which raises an interesting thought, perhaps the Jews can be justly blamed for that fact.

The Jews, and the Jews alone, have been contemporaneous with all recorded history. The six who changed the world are Moses, Jesus, Paul, Marx, Freud and Einstein. The one thing they all had in common was their Jewish birth, which influenced all of them, although in different ways. Sam Robbins, 3609 40th St.

Reader Asks About Wills' Quotation From 'The Prince'

Editor, Avalanche-Journal: In George Will's column in the Avalanche-Journal Dec. 31, he quotes a passage from "The Prince" by Machiavelli. Here is a portion of the quotation: "...and whomever becomes master of a city accustomed to live in freedom and does not destroy it, may expect to be destroyed."

My translation says, "And he who becomes master..." One might also correctly translate the passage as "And whoever becomes master..." Did Mr. Will make this mistake? Or whom is responsible? Margaret James, 2321 56th St.

JOSEPH KRAFT:

Year Of Failure

WASHINGTON—Few heads will turn to look back fondly on 1980. Failure marked the old year, and the bad news did not even come on the grand scale.

Instead, there were drabs and drabs too disconnected to concentrate the public mind in a sense of crisis and determination to solve basic problems.

The greatest of perils—a breakdown of relations between the superpowers—came a little closer in the course of 1980. Arms control, the most important area of cooperation, stalled after Russia's invasion of Afghanistan.

Political, commercial and cultural connections thinned out. Though the door remains open for improvement, Russia and the U.S. have come to eye each other with the grim wariness of the Cold War.

Not without reason, either. In 1980, the vortex of world politics shifted to an area where both Russia and the U.S. find it hard to act with wisdom and restraint—the Persian Gulf.

IN THE CASE of Russia, all the countries on its southern frontier—Turkey, Iran, Afghanistan and Pakistan—are vulnerable to the subversive religious message put out by the Ayatollah from Iran. Apart from eyeing those countries as a jumping-off place for new adventures, the Russians feel a need to maintain stability on their southern frontier.

Hence the continued presence in Afghanistan, the rising pressures on Pakistan and the stationing of troops near Iran.

On a recent trip to Moscow the only serious criticism I heard against Leonid Brezhnev was that he moved too slowly in imposing order on the clownish regime that ran Afghanistan before the Soviet invasion.

THE U.S., conversely, has a vital interest in the oil of Saudi Arabia and the smaller monarchies of the Persian Gulf. The influence of the Ayatollah threatens that interest as do Soviet moves.

But despite talk of a Carter Doctrine and Rapid Deployment Force, the U.S. in 1980 was not able to develop a credible policy for asserting influence in the Gulf.

That is the true significance of the long, drawn-out, shameful affair involving the hostages in Iran. The European allies and Japan, even more dependent on Middle East oil than the U.S., were inevitably put off by this failure.

The French and Germans led the Europeans in the various initiatives to do business for themselves with the Russians and the oil exporting countries, and showed during the year a consistent unwillingness to help the U.S. resist Soviet pressure.

AMERICAN FRIENDS in the area, dubious of this country's strength and staying power, moved last year to get theirs while the getting was good. Saudi Arabia led the other oil exporting countries in a price increase that moved the average to just under $40 a barrel.

That rise of about 25 percent followed an increase of over 100 percent in 1979—with devastating consequences for the rest of the world.

The developing countries have had to finance huge increases in basic fuel bills. Some of the non-oil nations of Asia, Latin America and Africa scraped through last year only thanks to loans from industrial countries.

China, which is beyond the help of mere loans, experienced so much trouble that it had to cut back on development plans—perhaps with results inimical to the rule of Vice Premier Deng Xiaoping and his pro-American stance.

MOST OF the industrial countries also suffered extraordinary economic trouble. Inflation and slow growth became evident through Western Europe, including West Germany, in 1980.

Japan kept moving forward, but only thanks to rising exports, which are inevitably threatened by the rise of protectionism in other countries.

The U.S. has traditionally served as the balance wheel of the international economy. It managed its own affairs in ways that promoted growth for most of the other countries—both undeveloped and developed.

But in 1980, chronic inflation and threats to basic American industries forced a retreat. Interest rates of record highs were mobilized against inflation.

THEY STIMULATED a recession the first quarter of 1980, and now threaten to abort a recovery.

As 1980 winds to a close, hope for improvement turns on the new President elected in the U.S. But the new administration is pledged to defense, tax and energy policies that promote inflation. It disdains the direct weapon of getting at wages and prices.

So it is hard to see how the downward spiral that picked up such force in 1980 will soon be arrested. A fair bet is that in 1980 events entered into cahoots with fate to make 1981 look even worse.

L.M. BOYD:

Pass It On...

Q "I'VE READ that accountants are among those professional men least apt to get divorced?"

A That's right, evidently. Studies show approximately 86 percent of the gentlemen who take up accounting marry but once.

Q "I've got an aunt who feeds her white poodle in a high chair at the dining room table and just generally makes a fool out of herself over that pooch. What do the canine experts advise...?"

A Opinions vary greatly. Personally, though, much admire the advice of Martha Scott. Said she: "Don't make the mistake of treating your dogs like humans, or they'll treat you like dogs."

Half the homecoming queens in the nation's colleges don't know anything at all about football, they readily tell the pollsters.

In Broward County, Fla., the Post Everglades Power Plant is expected soon to make electricity by burning contraband marijuana. Lot of it seized by the authorities thereabouts. Tons. Presumably, the furnace smoke will be double burned to clean it. Otherwise, I suspect you'd get numerous heads picknicking daily downwind.

Picture the young lady in front of the mirror, taking one last look before stepping out amongst them. For her and all the others like her, Miss Puggy said it perfectly: "You got to go with watacha got."

Weddings

MRS. JOHN H.T. TYLER

ALEXANDER-TYLER
WOODROW (Special) — Amanda Kay Alexander became the bride of John Harold Truett Tyler Thursday in Cancun, Mexico.

The bride is a daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Jack W. Alexander of Lamesa. The bridegroom is a son of Mrs. Ira Graham Tyler, and the late Mr. Tyler, of Tahoka.

Mrs. Tyler received her associate of arts degree from Stephens College, Columbia, Mo., and her bachelor of science degree in nursing from Texas Christian University-Harris College of Nursing, Fort Worth.

The bridegroom received his Bachelor of Science Degree in Mathematics from Angelo State University, San Angelo.

After a wedding trip in Mexico, the couple will make their home in Woodrow.

Yeast Infections Often Difficult To Cure

By PAUL DONOHUE, M.D.
Dear Dr. Donohue: My daughter has had yeast for a year. She has been treated twice and told she would always have it. Can you help, please? — L.S.

There are situations in which vaginal yeast infection is difficult to get rid of, especially if the woman has another illness, like diabetes. But often, with persistence, even the most entrenched yeast infection will yield to therapy. The medicine used may have to be taken for longer periods of time than perhaps your daughter has in the past, well after all symptoms have disappeared. Premature discontinuation of medicine may be a factor in her chronic infection.

Your daughter must also do the usual things that lessen the likelihood of yeast growth. She should avoid occlusive (tight-fitting) underclothing, such as panty hose. They keep the genital area moist, an environment yeast like. Cotton underclothing should be worn. If one medicine has not worked well, then a switch to another one might do the trick. There are several available.

And, finally, she may have an infection with organisms other than a yeast, some of which cause very similar symptoms. It would be worthwhile for your daughter to check out the possibility of infection with trichomonas or Hemophilus vaginalis. Neither of those would respond to medicine for yeast infection.

For more information on this troublesome problem, see the booklet "Vaginitis: The Hidden Ailment." For a copy, write to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Is it true that a woman with diabetes should not use birth control pills? If so, why? — Mrs. P.P.

Birth control pills are not absolutely forbidden for diabetic women. The pill may make it more difficult to control blood sugar, though. Further, diabetes, as you know, places women at a higher risk for development of blood vessel disease. The pill, too, seems to add to the risk of developing such problems. The thinking, then, is why add one risk factor to another? This is one reason why some doctors discourage use of birth control pills for their diabetic patients.

If the diabetic woman feels that the Pill is the only reasonable method of birth control for her, then the doctor watches her more carefully for either disturbance in her blood sugar or for signs of developing blood vessel disease. If you are diabetic and want to use the Pill, you would do well to discuss this with your physician.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am 17 years old and am dieting. On the diet it says to drink 10 to 12 eight-ounce glasses of water a day. Why all the water? My parents think this will damage my kidneys. How many ounces of water a day can you drink safely without taking chances of hurting your kidneys? — C.H.

Do you mean you are taking that much water in addition to other liquids, like milk, pop, juice? The normal range of liquid intake for people in temperate climates is from one to two and one-half quarts a day. That means all liquids. You are taking two and a half quarts in water alone. Don't forget, you get a lot of liquid in food.

I can think of one reason why a diet plan would suggest such a high liquid intake. In the early stages of a very restrictive diet (close to starvation), or in diets where the amounts of carbohydrates are very low, there is an increased production of urine, hence heavy liquid loss.

Two and a half quarts of water a day will not damage your kidneys. But if you keep up that amount in addition to other sources of liquid, you could get into trouble. You might dilute the concentrations of minerals in your body. So it is not a good idea to keep up such a large intake of water for long periods.

What kind of a diet are you on? Are you sure it is a sensible one? I think you had better check it out. Mother seems to have some good instincts. Ask her.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My son, who is 48, had a checkup. He checked out all right, but the doctor noticed a lump on his back about the size of a quarter and he said it was a lipoma and he could take it out in his office. My son has hesitated to have it done. Please tell me if a lipoma is serious, and what is it? — B.M.C.

A lipoma is not a serious condition. It is a benign growth of fatty tissue. If one becomes bothersome because of its location it can be removed rather easily.

In response to reader requests, Dr. Donohue's publisher now has a complete listing of all the booklets on various medical problems. Readers wishing this list can write him care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for return mailing.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Chinese Cooks Illustrate Craft For European Chefs

By CATHERINE KAYLOR
United Press International
COLOGNE, West Germany (UPI) — Anyone who thinks European chefs are hard to please obviously hasn't had to deal with a small army of China's best cooks, transplanted from Peking for a culinary tour de force in the West.

Figuring in advance the transition to Occidental kitchens could prove traumatic, the 13 chefs flew in more than a ton of equipment and special ingredients that included each one's personal six-inch-thick wooden chopping block and cleaver.

"It's not easy to make good Chinese food away from China," said Guo Wenbin, a jolly, round-cheeked man whose figure indicates he's often sampled specialties like braised sea cucumber and gong bao chicken from his native Sichuan region. "I'm not used to sophisticated Western utensils, and I cannot cut properly without my own block."

There were other problems, such as finding three-year-old chickens, the only kind the chefs can use to produce greaseless, clear broth in hours of boiling, and ducks that still possessed their heads, feet and intestines.

In the end the dishes of Fujian, Hunan, Peking, Canton and Sichuan that were produced were magnificent, said guests who sampled them at the opening of a two-week demonstration of China's cooking art. It was the first such demonstration ever done overseas with cooperation of the Peking government.

The chefs were all from the Hotel Peking, an establishment that is, not surprisingly, better known for cuisine than living accommodations. It has 315 of China's most accomplished chefs, roughly one for each three of its 900 rooms.

The group, none of whom had ever been outside China before, was brought to Cologne by America's Intercontinental Hotels, which has been negotiating with Peking for the past three years to build hostels in several Chinese cities.

The chefs finally settled for two-year-old hens from an egg farm to make their broth. But Peking duck, the golden, crispy-skinned dish for which China's capital is renowned, didn't make the final menu because the chefs would accept nothing less than perfection.

"There's a law in Germany that requires all ducks to be already cleaned when they arrive at the butchers, and the bodies are split open," said group leader Cai Jingzhi.

"We take the intestines out through two little holes under the wings and then pump air inside before basting with honey and drying the ducks for 24 hours. That way they arrive at the table whole."

Cai located a farm that provided complete ducks — the webbed feet make a separate, special dish after being carefully peeled, boiled in broth and daubed with oyster sauce. But no charcoal-fired ovens were available and it was found gas couldn't produce the same results, even after three special burners were installed. So a recipe for crispy fried duck was substituted instead.

The final menu included such cold specialties as duck in salt, Yunnan ham, dace (a variety of fish) with black beans, spring bamboo shoots with chili and spicy Sichuan sausage. Hot dishes included abalone with fish maw, deep fried Sichuan duck and sauteed pork in molded rice crusts.

"It's completely different, than Chinese food we've had before," said one German guest. "The Sichuan dishes are a bit tongue-burning in the beginning, but after the initial shock, they are really delicious."

Some of the best dishes were family-style ones the chefs prepared for their own meals, giving the public a taste along with the more exotic items. They included fresh water fish in oil, and fish in a sour sauce made of chicken broth, sesame oil and a touch of soy sauce and vinegar.

German chefs who shared the same hotel kitchens took a keen interest in the different cooking techniques. But the Chinese chefs had little taste for Western food — with the sole exception of Black Forest chocolate cake, which they devoured with chopsticks and pronounced "quite good."

They also discovered German beer. Don't let word get back to Peking, but the Tsingtao beer flown in from China stayed untouched in a corner while the chefs quaffed Cologne beer with every meal.

FOUR SMALL ROOMS were combined to create this "great room" kitchen, a prize winner in the American Institute of Kitchen Dealers Design competition. Baking center, barbecue and snack bar are part of the large central island, above which the ceiling was removed to expose the roof beams. Built-ins for the gourmet cook include a 34-inch hood above a custom wok.

Changing Lifestyles Affect Kitchens

NEW YORK (Metro Communications) — What people eat and where they eat are important factors in kitchen design, it's pointed out by the professionals who plan a large percentage of this country's kitchens.

"Before convenience foods, who needed a microwave oven?" ventures one certified kitchen designer, stretching a point but illustrating, nevertheless, the link between what goes into one's stomach and what goes into one's kitchen.

"People who like Chinese food have been known to build in a wok, and certainly they have a built-in chopping block to prepare the ingredients for sukiyaki," comments another.

At times in our history, the kitchen has been the heart of the home; at others, a mere laboratory for food preparation. Dining facilities have moved in and out, as lifestyles, eating habits and entertaining have changed.

Now the kitchen is phasing in not one direction but two, on the one hand, becoming part of the "great room" that combines living spaces and, on the other, taking capsule form as a convenience facility for the family of one.

The more important trend, that of the multi-purpose room incorporating the kitchen, is encouraging, some say, the trend of cabinetry from blonde to brunette, from the ultra-light woods and purity of line that succeeded the dark and ornate Mediterranean styling to a compromise cabinet that looks more like furniture, with a warm, mellow finish and some detail in its design.

Along with warmer woods, industry experts forecast increasing popularity for the ready-to-assemble cabinet.

Does this doom to oblivion the professional planner? Not at all, says the American Institute of Kitchen Dealers, the national association of kitchen/bath specialists.

"There's a lot more to installing a kitchen than installing the cabinets, AIKD members contend. For one thing, there's the planning; for another, the plumbing — not to mention the wiring — that not every do-it-yourselfer is equipped to cope with."

Then, too, there are people who don't want to tackle their own kitchens. They'd rather do the cooking and leave the preliminaries to the professional.

Modern kitchens cater to a variety of family needs and life-styles, from the person heating up a small dinner for one to the busy modern family where everyone gathers in the kitchen to prepare the meal together. Contemporary kitchens reflect this variety, as well as the desire of many families to have both a functional working place and an attractive area in which to eat, serve meals, and entertain guests.

'Superwomen' Combine Families, Winning Careers

NEW YORK (Metro Features) — The Superwomen are here. Six winners have been selected in the 1980 Diamond Superwoman Award Competition, sponsored by the Diamond Information Center on behalf of De Beers.

The competition, which was announced last April in "Harper's Bazaar" magazine, was geared towards women who had taken time out of their careers for marriage, children, relocation or further education, then re-entered and risen to the top.

The basic eligibility criterion was a minimum absence of five years from the work force. An independent panel of five judges, all super career women in their own rights, deemed these six winners' achievements most worthy of this honor, out of more than 2,000 entries received.

The competition's concept arose from an awareness that the majority of working women fit into this category. Many women who are working now never thought they would work again when they got married and had children.

It is this group of women, those who didn't set out to conquer the working world at age 18 and yet have succeeded in doing so, that received recognition.

Not only did they succeed in raising a family, but they also pulled ahead of the younger women (and men) to get to where they are today.

The judging criteria used to select the Superwomen were as follows: leadership, job advancement, dedication to the job, outstanding honors, community interests and activities, stability and the uniqueness of the position or field — whether "new roads" were blazed into a previously male-dominated field. The winning six women excelled in all areas.

The superwomen named were:
•Yvonne Brill, manager, Nova Propulsion at RCA ASTRO Electronics, New Jersey. Brill was absent from the work force for eight years.

•Dr. Leslie Lazar Kanuk, commissioner, Federal Maritime Commission, Washington, D.C. Kanuk was absent from the work force for 12 years.

•Martha Morgan MacGuffie, M.D., chief of plastic surgery, Nyack Hospital, and attending burn unit, New York Medical College, Valhalla, N.Y. Dr. MacGuffie was absent from the work force for five years.

•Clarie Rothman, vice president and general manager, The Forum (a sports and entertainment arena complex), Inglewood, Calif. Rothman was absent from the work force for 15 years.

•Katherine Eriksson Sasseville, commissioner, Minnesota Public Utilities Commission. Sasseville was absent from the work force for 12 years.

•The Hon. Marie Tansey, state representative, Ohio. Tansey was absent from the work force for 10 years.

The women named have a total of 24 children.

Each "superwoman" was brought to New York City in November for a luncheon presentation where they met the judges and press. The event culminated with the presentation of a diamond pen-dant, an award plaque, and a lifetime subscription to Harpers'.

The panel of judges included Mary Covington, vice-president for corporate affairs, Philip Morris International; Donna R. Ecton, vice president and area director, Citibank NA; Glorie E. Lemos, vice president and assistant to the chairman, the Coca Cola Company; G. G. Michelson, senior vice president for external affairs, Macy's New York; and Nancy Clark Reynolds, vice president for national affairs, Bendix Corporation.

CHOCOLATE WHIPPED CREAM
One of the quickest frostings for homemade or store-bought cake is Chocolate Whipped Cream. Add 3 tbsps. each cocoa and confectioners' sugar to 1 1/2 cups whipping cream. Chill 30 minutes. Whip until stiff. This will give you 3 cups of frosting and filling, which is enough for the average cake.

ANN LANDERS:

Ann's Advice Annoys Reader

Dear Ann Landers: Because you have repeatedly said in your column, "Life is for the living," your advice to "Highland, N.Y." disappointed me. "Highland," a widow of two years, planned to marry her deceased husband's friend. Friend John wanted to adopt her young children. The grandparents were against it because the grandson was the only male in the family left to carry on his deceased father's name.

Your advice was: "Don't do it. It would be another heartbreak for the bereaved parents and it might be interpreted as total disregard" for her first husband's memory. "Highland" might welcome another viewpoint, based on my personal experience. May I share it with you?

My brother, the only male in his generation, died in his early 30s, leaving two pre-school sons, the only males to carry the family name in their generation. After four years my sister-in-law married a fine man who wished to adopt the boys. My mother became very upset when she heard of his plans, and wrote a long letter to my sister-in-law asking her to please reconsider. I pleaded with my mother to destroy the letter, love the grandchildren regardless of their last name, and remain on good terms with the family. Thank God, she took my advice.

For over 20 years my sister-in-law and her present husband have "respected the late husband's memory" by being considerate and helpful to all members of our family.

As a veteran teacher I have witnessed many upper elementary schoolchildren who refuse to use their legal last name and insist on using their remarried mother's last name instead. I am convinced that these children feel a sense of security when all members of the family have the same last name. Feelings of unity are very important. Believe me, changing a name will not lessen the grief of a loved one's death. Instead, let the grandparents share the rebuilding of a family unit and experience some therapeutic moments of happiness. — Nameless In Clinton, Iowa

Dear Clinton: You are right. I was wrong. And hundreds of readers let me know it. You said it best. Thanks for setting me straight.

Dear Ann Landers: I am married to a woman I can't please, no matter how hard I try. The first year we were married I bought her a bottle of her favorite Perfume for our anniversary. She said it was too expensive and made me take it back.

When I sent her flowers on her birthday, she never said, "Thank you." Instead I got a sermon on "spending money foolishly."

Last Christmas I bought her an electric floor buffer. She was insulted. I have yet to pick out a gift she liked. Everything has to go back to the store. Yet, when I ask her for a hint of what she wants, she says, "Surprise me."

— What can I do with a woman like this? — Louisville Headache

Dear Head: Nothing. Send a donation in her name to a worthy charity. If you want some suggestions write to me and send a self-addressed, stamped envelope. (Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Ill. 60611).

WINTER MONTHS and cold-weather climates provide an ideal time for community-action groups to build artificial fish attractors. With the thaw, the assembled Christmas trees, brush and other materials settle to the bottom to provide needed structure for game fish. Similar projects are being carried out in Texas and other southern states.

Old Christmas Trees Help Game Fish

NEW YORK (Metro Features) — If there is anything older than yesterday's newspaper, it's a Christmas tree in January!

But now, someone has come up with a solution to what to do with old Christmas trees that is thrifty and ecological.

The AFTMA Sport Fishing Educational Foundation, headquartered in Arlington Heights, Ill., has found a unique use for old Christmas trees.

A youth-fishing organization in Southern California, a university class in Washington, an adult fishing club in Arkansas and a body of forest-preserve district volunteers in Illinois represent a growing list of groups now collecting Christmas trees after the holidays to build their own "fishin' holes."

Fishin' holes are man-made fish attractors that literally provide game fish with a home they can call their own. In addition to old Christmas trees, brush piles, used tires, stake beds, clay or metal pipes and old car bodies provide excellent building materials.

"Artificial fish habitats work to attract fish and to increase fish populations because they offer structure for development of the food chain and provide many species with protection from predators," says Bob Bluth, educational director for the Foundation.

"Our fish shelters have been particularly effective in providing a place where the first or second-time angler can experience the thrill of catching a fish," says Howard Carr, director of the American Youth Fishing Program in Southern California.

"It's important that youngsters or beginning adults have success when learning to fish, and our fish-attractor sites have proven to offer a better-than-usual chance of making the catch," he said.

Sugar Ferris and the Bass 'n' Gals organization, headquartered near Dallas, have worked closely with the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department to construct Fishin' Holes throughout Texas and other southwest and southern states.

"Constructing artificial fish habitats has provided an excellent conservation project that our members can perform in cooperation with local fishery administrators," says Ferris.

For free details on how to build a Fishin' Hole, interested persons may write: AFTMA Sport Fishing Educational Foundation, Dept. M-181, 2825 Clearbrook Dr., Arlington Heights, IL 60005, or call (312) 364-4666.

Entrance Foyer Sets Mood Of Home

NEW YORK (Special) — What's one sure way to give everyone a warm welcome to your home this winter? Brighten up your entranceway with a new look that adds a feeling of cheer and hospitality. You'll find that it's the front entrance that usually sets the mood which pervades the rest of your home.

Many entryways are considered problem areas because of the number of openings that lead off into other living areas of the house.

According to Sharon Fodor, director of the L. E. Carpenter and Sanitas Design Center, "The entry hall is the neglected child of interior decorating, but it can be just as visually exciting as the rest of your home and should be integrated with it."

One way to have the entryway coordinate with the rest of the home is to have it convey the same ambience — feeling and mood — of the rooms that open onto other areas — living and dining rooms, for example — and should be integrated in pattern and color to go with them.

In order to achieve this room-to-room integrated look, the Sanitas people have made it exceptionally easy for the home decorator. Their latest collection, "The American Way," presents groupings of their strippable, scrubbable vinyl wall-coverings that are carefully matched. Each section of the book is arranged so that patterns are shown in conjunction with other designs that coordinate. Furthermore, many of the patterns and colors

The foyer can be brightened by personal touches, to keep it from becoming a set, semi-public room. The touch you add yourself, whether it is a picture or a group of pictures, bric-a-brac which you have collected on your travels, a beautiful plant — serves as an introduction to the rest of the home, and to you, and is the first impression which visitors have of your home.

ors in one section of the book work well with patterns and colors in other sections.

In addition to the entranceway, another area that often gets slighted is the hallway. Again, as is the case with the front entrance, doors open out onto the hallway, and rooms can be seen from it (and vice versa). There should be a cohesive look that carries over from room to hallway.

Because halls often tend to be long and dark, there are some inherent problems in making them interesting. You can overcome this by creating a feeling of visual drama. Use a substantially sized open pattern with a light background to add interest to an otherwise dull expanse of wall. Another suggestion is to add molding for a chair rail and use the reverse print below it.

Since there is usually no room for furniture, captivate the eye by turning your halls and entryways into miniature galleries, showing off favorite paintings. Or if you're into collecting unusual memorabilia, it's a good place to show it to advantage.

By adding a little interest and imagination, you can liven up these "non-living" areas of your home and turn them into a focus of attention.

INVITATION — Warm, cheerful entrance foyer says "welcome" to expected, or unexpected guests. This one emphasizes the warmth, comfort of traditional decor, with vibrant coordinating prints in wallpaper, rug and chair.

DOUBLE PLEASURE
Hearty entree salads offer a double bonus — fewer calories than rich main dishes and a great way to use leftovers. Combine cooked seafood, poultry, meat or cheese and vegetables with crisp chunks of iceberg lettuce.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

In the mid 1960s, a group of experts formulated a "system" of opening leads they called Journalist. Although some of these, such as leading the lower of touching honors against suit contracts, were known of since the 1930s, most Journalist ideas were relatively new.

Today's hand came up in a regional championship in San Diego. Unfortunately for West, his opponent knew he was using Journalist leads and took advantage of it. The auction was fast. Although South might have raised hearts at his first opportunity, he was playing duplicate and notrump scores more than hearts.

The opening lead was the jack of spades. Normally, most players lead the jack against notrump when they hold either no higher honor or when it is the top of an interior sequence, i.e., K J 10 or A J 10. If the opponents had been playing standard leads, South might duck the opening lead around to his queen. He would feel quite unlucky when East produced the king and switched to the club jack, trapping the queen. When the opponents gained the lead with the diamond ace they would run their clubs and defeat the contract.

Our declarer didn't allow this scenario. His opponents were using Journalist leads and he knew where the king of spades was going to show up. His spade queen was going to keep and he could not afford to have East win the first trick and shift to the really dangerous club suit. So he rose with the ace, knocked out the ace of diamonds and wound up with 11 easy tricks. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Men's Spring/Summer Styles Casual, Bright, Fun

NEW YORK (Special) — Summer is men's clothing designer Ron Chereskin's favorite time of year, and his spring/summer sportswear components reflect his enthusiasm.

There is a lightness about them and an ease to wearing that make men look and feel good, but the colors are what make them remarkable.

Ron's collection of sweaters, knits, pants, jackets and rainwear revolves mostly around natural fibers, which most men prefer to wear for ease and comfort: cotton, silk, ramie.

The six key fabrications, interlock, jersey, terry, Shaker cloth, poplin and twill, appear again and again.

They are all done in Ron's Funshine colors, red, US blue, golden, tangerine — or his cool ones, silver, mauve, French beige, rhubarb, stone and periwinkle.

And always, in between, there is fantastic, blazing white to set off the other colors to their best advantage.

"Men are into the comfort and ease of activewear, in the gym, running, playing golf or tennis," Ron says. "So my line, while completely functional, has a neater line, a shot of color that also makes it attractive for spectator sports or lounging."

The New York designer takes old favorites, long and short-sleeve T-shirts with crew and V-necklines, sweaters and football shirts, shapes them closer to the body and then brings them alive with unbelievable colors and combinations of color.

Bi-color neck, sleeve and armhole bandings and stripings in off-beat combos like cadet blue/mauve, yellow/silver are standouts.

And tri-tone treatments like a blue shirt with white banding around the neck and grey armholes comes off brand new and terrific.

Cotton interlock, Rugby cloth and terry are featured, because men like them so well, Ron says.

He recommends mixing and matching these fabrics in the same color family; for example, a clay-colored terry short, cut to perfection, is foil for a natural-colored sweatshirt with clay accents.

Speaking of shorts, there are other slim-shaped bottoms, including a cuffed cotton twill short with bellows pockets and a cotton twill pant with an elasticized waist and back pocket with a shiny snap.

Also in cotton twill, a zip-front jacket with bellows pockets, drawstring waist and elasticized cuffs.

Another jacket in the line is an all-purpose nylon boating jacket in grey, red, black that works with everything else in the collection.

"Quality is back in style," says Chereskin. "I'm proud to say it has always been in style with me."

'Home-Made' Spray Starch Another Way To Save

DEAR HELOISE:

With prices the way they are today, I find it more and more difficult to afford all the cleaning supplies I need.

I buy the cheapest brands — find most of them do as good a job as name brands — but lately there seems to be less money for food and more spent on household items. Consequently, I'm trying to substitute as much as possible.

One thing I feel would be a savings for me is a cheaper way of making spray starch. Can this be done? — Minot Sure can, hon! Just find yourself a good spray-type bottle — like spray cleaners come in, either pump or trigger — and wash it out.

Now you can invest in a bottle of liquid starch or buy the powdered kind and make up your own batch.

The next step will be trial and error. Just put a fraction of the liquid starch into the bottle and fill the rest with water. The amount of starch will depend on the amount of stiffness you desire. If your clothes aren't stiff enough, add more starch to the next bottle.

Be sure to shake the bottle from time to time to keep the starch mixed up. You might want to add a drop of your favorite cologne to give your ironing a little "flavor." — Heloise

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

DEAR HELOISE:

It's bad enough to make a mistake, but it's worse to make a mistake and find out you're so unimportant that nobody notices it. — E.D.

That's still better than being "so" important that everybody suffers because of it. — Heloise

LEFTOVER SHELF

DEAR HELOISE:

I have always been one who saves leftovers. Often the leftover food got lost in the general confusion of my refrigerator and, by the time I discovered it, was too old or spoiled.

Now I reserve a special area of my refrigerator just for leftover food. I always check the shelf before taking a trip to the supermarket.

It's surprising the kind of meal you can whip up using leftovers, and you save yourself the time and gasoline needed for a trip to the store. — Kathy Olney

PARTY PLAN

DEAR HELOISE:

For her last birthday party, my 6-year-old suggested we let her guests choose a number for the order in which they would play games.

This also worked for the order in which they would sit in a circle around her while she opened the presents, as well as the order in which she would open them.

It sure helped things run smoothly. — Tanya Kohl's Mom

SWEATER SHAVING

DEAR HELOISE:

Use an electric razor (or a double-edged razor) to "shave" off those little fiber balls that pile up on sweaters and some fabrics.

Lay the garment on a flat surface and very gently cut them off. The fabric needs to be taut to prevent nicking it.

It'll look like a new garment when you're through. — Adele Nichols

TRAVEL TIP

DEAR HELOISE:

A small plug-in nightlight is a handy gadget to carry along when traveling.

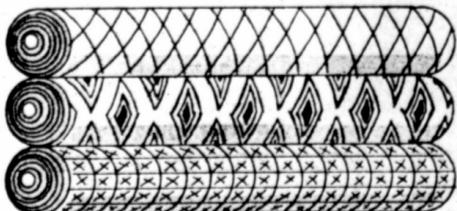

Used in a bath or dressing room outlet, its light casts a soft glow and eliminates stumbling around in unfamiliar surroundings should one get up during the night.

It's really great when children are along. Just don't forget to pack it when you leave in the morning. — Leah Newberry

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

A WITNESS SAID A COMMODITY TRADER should be careful not to use statistics the way a drunk uses a lamp post — that is, for support, rather than for illumination.

There were no statistics to indicate Chinese buying of American cotton of the record scale that was reported during the week ended Dec. 18, a cotton futures analyst points out.

And there were even suggestions earlier in the season that China might go through the entire year without adding U. S. cotton to her purchases of last spring, he notes.

That wave of Chinese buying during the week ended Dec. 18, totaling 484,800 running bales, came just a week after the U. S. Department of Agriculture increased its estimate of the Chinese crop by 500,000 bales.

Thus what the statistician had seen was a larger Chinese crop from last year's output, a far cry from the disaster levels that were talked about during last summer's floods.

In addition, a record volume of polyester purchases, which have pushed American poly staple manufacturers to near capacity, had hinted that the Chinese would make a considerable shift away from cotton in response to strong prices.

BUT STATISTICS WERE OF NO AVAIL.

The Chinese were large buyers during that period around mid-December, the purchases of that size were largely unanticipated, and the sales were a significant market factor.

But some merchants reacted with surprise at last week's official sales report, which showed no fresh sales to China during the week ended Dec. 25.

Speculation in some quarters had been that last week's report, released on Friday, would show additional sales to China. Although the size of the Chinese purchases shown in the previous report had caught many in the trade by surprise, rumors had circulated that the 484,800-bale figure didn't include one merchant's sale.

U. S. cotton export sales were an overall total of only 31,600 running bales for 1980-81 delivery during the week ended Dec. 25, the USDA reported, and no new sales were reported for 1981-82 shipment.

The week's major cotton purchasers included Japan with 8,300 bales and South Korea with 3,400 bales. Sales of 14,300 bales were reported to unknown destinations.

CHINA DURING THE WEEK CANCELED 500 bales for 1980-81 delivery, leaving its current marketing year U. S. cotton commitment at 1,372,300 bales. Shipments during the week totaled 172,100 bales, including 90,300 bales to China and 81,800 bales to Japan.

Meanwhile, little activity was reported last week at domestic textile mills, many of which were closed or were operating on abbreviated holiday schedules.

Overall cotton buying by domestic mills was limited to small lots during the week sources reported.

There is a lot of cotton that has to be bought by major consuming nations other than China, the market analyst commented, and a lot of cotton that has to be priced domestically.

"It will not be easy," he said.

Springtime, in his opinion, has the highest odds for significantly lower prices. This, he hastens to add, will depend on both good plantings and poor business.

"The current business environment has certainly not done the job so far for the buyers," he commented, adding that it may not do it at all.

HIGH PLAINS COTTON HARVESTING remained in high gear during the Christmas and New Year holidays, agricultural officials here reported. Many ground salvage machines had moved into the area from other cotton regions. Virtually all the crop now is off the stalk, officials said, although quite a number of modules still are scattered around the area.

"God-sized" backlogs in trailers and modules were reported at many gins as the New Year began. Other gins had closed for the season.

Mack Bennett, area director for the USDA's Marketing Services Office at Lubbock, said High Plains cotton classings may exceed earlier volume estimates.

Although precise figures weren't available, areawide classing receipts — classed and carried over — through Saturday were estimated at approximately 1,623,000 running bales.

THE AREAWIDE TOTAL INCLUDED ROUGHLY 1,280,000 bales at Lubbock, 53,000 at Brownfield, 95,000 at Levelland, and 195,000 at Lamesa.

Daily receipts, which had been running around 22,500 to 24,300 as a combined total at Lubbock, Levelland and Brownfield (not including Lamesa), appeared to have begun dropping a little over the weekend.

The Lubbock office classed 99,000 samples during the week ended last Thursday. The season's total classings here approached 1,089,000 running bales, compared with 1,003,000 through the corresponding period last season.

Quality statistics at Lubbock, Brownfield and Levelland for the week (figures were not available for Lamesa) showed a combined total of 5 percent white grades, 74 percent light spots, and 20 percent spots.

Below grades totaled 1 percent, cotton reduced one grade because of bark amounted to 20 percent, and "grassies" were 1 percent.

Staple lengths of 1 inch and longer totaled 76 percent and the average staple was 32.132nds-inches. Micronaire readings of 3.5 and higher totaled 64 percent, with 63 percent in the preferred range of 3.5-4.9. Fiber strength data weren't available because of holidays at the Clemson lab.

Classings for the week were 99,412 bales at Lubbock, 8,622 at Brownfield, 9,286 at Levelland and 36,464 at Lamesa for an areawide total of 153,784.

COTTON FUTURES CLOSED BELOW THE HIGHS Monday but retained gains of 86 to 57 points, with spot March adding 85 points at 95.50 cents.

Analysts said cotton rallied decisively, in sympathy with generally firm commodity markets at New York, as speculators reacted to easing interest rates by withdrawing from fixed-income instruments in favor of futures.

The quiet cotton market ran into resistance around the 95.50-cent level, basis March, the high of the day on Friday, but broke through to a high of 96.20 cents for the session Monday.

Prices fell off the highs on local profit taking and trade selling, analysts said. A now-somewhat-outdated on-call report, issued for the week ended Dec. 26, indicated the mills still had interest in first-quarter cotton, one analyst said, although "they are pretty well covered by now."

THE REPORT SHOWED TOTAL SALES of 17,347 lots, up 893 from the previous week, and included 10,027 in March, up 397; 4,185 in May, up 269; 1,832 in July, up 87; 318 in October, up 81; 883 in December, up 83; 52 in March 1982, down 24; and 50 in May 1982, unchanged.

Purchases totaled 37,163, up 1,563, and included 3,602 in March, down 202; 484 in May, up 39; 176 in July, down 48; 89 in October, up 3; 622 in December, up 148; and 35 in March 1982, up 1.

"I wouldn't look for major increases in sales against the farther months," this analyst said, "as the basis still is quite high for distant deliveries."

"The report also tells us that producers were fixing prices in the mid-nineties."

The analyst commented on the question of why the market didn't react more to the upside on the heels of the big export report of week before last.

SOME THOUGHTS MIGHT INCLUDE THE absence of players in the ring over the holidays or perhaps that the large figure already had been discounted or that the speculator just has not been willing to buy cotton at these levels, he said.

"My feeling is that it was a combination of the three factors, with the unwillingness of the speculator to buy at these levels as the most influential," the analyst commented.

In any event, he said, "if we sell 30,000 to 40,000 bales a week from now on, we will have used up our available supplies anyway."

With that context, he said, last week's export report "was not relatively small for this year's crop," especially not since it came on the heels of the previous week's report of sales to all destinations of 538,500 bales.

Trading on Telcot Monday totaled 5,265 bales on an average price of 75.57 cents, an average of 3,507 points over the loan. There was no movement in the market difference.

TAES Alcohol Plant Draws Attention

COLLEGE STATION (Special) — A number of state officials were on hand at Texas A&M University recently when the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station officially began operation of a new alcohol distillation unit.

An experimental permit for the unit has been granted for research on making alcohol from agricultural biomass and farm by-products. The new alcohol fermentation and distillation equipment was acquired jointly through a grant from the Texas Energy and Natural Resources Advisory Council and Experiment Station resources, Dr. Neville P. Clarke, Experiment Station director announced.

The project also has the support of A&M's Center for Energy and Mineral Resources.

"This unit will be used to provide research data and demonstration information for interested Texans," Clarke said.

Capable of producing 190 proof alcohol, the unit is 10 by 20 feet wide and stands 26 feet in height.

Research is urgently needed to determine answers to problems associated with production of alcohol from biomass, Clarke emphasized, pointing out that this research will be a continuing function of the Experiment Station.

Dr. Edward A. Hilser, head of A&M's Department of Agricultural Engineering and leader of the alcohol fuels program, said answers are needed in determining pre-processing requirements for non-grain feedstocks. Specific crops offering promise in this area include, among many others, sweet sorghum, sugar cane, sugar beets, sweet potatoes and cull fruits and vegetables.

Hilser said more information also is needed about costs of alcohol made from these various feedstocks.

Additional research is needed to find out the quantity and nutritional quality of various stillages that animals can consume, feed processing alternatives, degree of dewatering needed before feeding, and storage alternatives.

"Since alcohol production plants will produce wastes if stillage is not disposed of immediately — and it is yet to be determined if all the stillage can be fed — more research is needed to develop environmentally sound disposal systems," Hilser said.

Import Policy Decision Delayed

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — Administration officials said they now expect that no decision will be made on the 1981 meat import policy until after President Ronald Reagan takes office on Jan. 20.

They said this means there are no restrictions on meat imports entering the United States effective Jan. 1 and until a decision is made on the import policy.

The Carter administration in late November asked for public comment on a proposal to suspend the 1981 meat import quota and allow unlimited meat imports this year.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture has estimated that the amount of meat available for import this year totals 1.458 billion pounds, slightly above the so-called trigger level of 1.447 billion pounds.

With estimated imports exceeding the trigger level, the two available policy options are for the United States to suspend the quotas, allowing unlimited meat imports in 1981, or to restrict meat imports at the quota level of 1.315 billion pounds, the officials said.

The comment period on suspending the quotas ended in late December. Most of the comments received expressed opposition to allowing unlimited meat imports, they said.

The officials said the meat import issue poses a potential policy dilemma for the Reagan administration.

If Reagan decides to go along with the Carter administration proposal and allow unlimited meat imports, then it would anger domestic cattle producers, who strongly supported Reagan in the presidential election, the officials said.

But if Reagan decides to set meat imports at the quota level of 1.315 billion pounds, then it would anger major meat exporting nations and consumer groups who want as much imported meat as possible, especially in view of the expected surge in retail domestic meat prices, they said.

The officials said Reagan's transition team at USDA had been notified that a decision on meat imports probably will make a new estimate of meat imports in February.

At that time, the forecast might fall below the trigger level, partly because of less available supplies in Australia and because U. S. demand for imported meat will be less than previously expected, they said.

Drought in Australia, a surge in feed costs and a larger-than-expected slaughter rate will mean that Australia will have less beef available for export than previously thought, the officials said.

Second, U. S. meat supplies, especially pork, will be more abundant than previously expected and overall demand for meat may ease somewhat due to a sluggish U. S. economy, they said.

Thus, the officials said it now appears less likely that retail beef prices this year will go up by 12 to 15 percent and pork prices by 25 to 30 percent, the levels forecast last November.

Another factor working against unlimited meat imports is that domestic cattlemen may be facing more severe financial problems this year than expected, especially with sharply higher feed costs, they said.

If the second meat import estimate is below the trigger level, then the law would not require the imposition of quotas, the officials said.

Another important area of research is the use of ethanol in internal combustion engines. Emphasis also needs to be placed on its use in diesel engines since these are most important in agricultural production systems. Vaporization of the ethanol and use in natural gas engines also has much promise, the researcher added.

Biomass combustion or gasification potential can be used to produce the process heat for operation of an alcohol system, and Experiment Station research has shown that biomass can be used successfully in small processing units.

To hold down costs, such equipment needs to be interfaced with an alcohol system. This could substitute a low-grade fuel for high-grade fuels such as natural gas or fuel oil presently used in small systems and would improve the economic return and energy balance for small-scale plants.

Hilser said that to insure safety to operators and adjoining property, procedures need to be developed for construction and operation of small-scale systems. Alcohol is flammable and can be dangerous if proper procedures are not followed, he cautioned.

Environmental impacts that result from ethanol production in small-scale systems also need to be assessed more completely, he added.

With Hilser as leader, a broad-based research program has been developed and launched with the goal of helping A&M become a center of excellence in fuel alcohol work.

This research will center on the Agricultural Experiment Station with support from the Center for Energy and Mineral Resources, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, and the Texas Engineering Experiment Station.

"External support from the Texas Energy and Natural Resources Advisory Council, as well as private industry, is vital to expediting the research program," Clarke said.

Texas has the potential to virtually free itself — insofar as agriculture is concerned — of most of its dependency on petrochemicals, he asserted.

Iran Claims Start Of Counter-Drive

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr announced Monday that Iran had launched a long-awaited ground and air offensive against Iraq's invading forces and claimed the first stage of the attack was an "outstanding victory."

Tehran Radio reported that in a telegram to revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, Bani-Sadr said the Iranian attack began Monday morning and "with myself and the imam of Ahvaz present at the front, the triumphant forces of the Islamic Republic began their counter-offensive and accomplished the first stage with an outstanding victory."

The Tehran claim did not specify the area of the reported attack. But since Ahvaz and the city's religious leader were mentioned, it apparently referred to an area in the southern sector of the front in Iran's oil-rich Khuzistan province.

Increasing Pressure

Bani-Sadr, commander of Iran's armed forces, has been under increasing pressure to attack Iraqi forces, which had advanced into Khuzistan province since the war broke out Sept. 22 and had brought the provincial capital of Ahvaz under artillery fire.

Tehran Radio said Khomeini replied to Bani-Sadr's telegram by asking the president to convey commendations to the Iranian officers and men and saying he hoped to receive news of final victory soon.

A late Iranian military communique broadcast by Tehran Radio said that in a series of "massive operations" in the Ahvaz region, 200 Iraqis were killed, 45 wounded and more than 500 were taken prisoner. It claimed the Iraqis were in retreat and said the Iranian troops destroyed or captured 45 tanks, 15 missiles, three helicopters, and more than 100 pieces of other military equipment.

The communique also said 100 enemy troops were killed and 250 wounded in fighting at Gilan Garb on the northern front.

Iraqi military communiques made no mention of a major Iranian offensive, but said Iraqi troops backed by tanks and helicopter gunships blunted a "surprise" enemy assault in the Gilan Gharb region, killing 47 Iranian paratroopers in 24 hours of combat. Gilan Gharb is about 300 miles north of Ahvaz.

Attack Near Hamid

Some reports indicated a strong Iranian attack may have been launched in the Hamid area, about 30 miles southwest of Ahvaz. An Iranian officer in Ahvaz, contacted by telephone, spoke of about 3,000 Iraqi prisoners captured when Iranian forces overran the Hamid garrison.

There was no independent verification of the war claims. Western military observers in the Middle East have noted that rival claims in the war have in the past been exaggerated.

Those observers believe that neither side seems capable of mounting a major offensive in the winter months to break the standoff on the 550-mile-long war front.

At a mass meeting in Tehran, Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai appealed for Iraqis to heed the words of Bani-Sadr and present a united front in the war against Iraq.

Rajai's remarks, broadcast by Tehran Radio, were seen as an effort to tone down criticism of Bani-Sadr, his chief political rival. Bani-Sadr, commander of the armed forces, has been heavily criticized recently for his conduct of the war and the failure of Iranian troops to take the offensive in the 16-week-old conflict.

Clerical Criticism

Much of the criticism has come from hard-line Islamic clergy who align themselves with Rajai and against the more moderate, secular supporters of Bani-Sadr.

According to Tehran Radio, Rajai told a crowd in downtown Tehran to "listen to the words of your brother, the president." He said Iraqis "must take a lesson from what the president says: that war waged on the basis of belief cannot be lost."

Rajai did not refer to Bani-Sadr by name, but called repeatedly for Iraqis to put aside their differences and heed the words of the president, the government and Khomeini.

The prime minister also appealed to the armed forces to strike at "the enemy who has reached the low ebb of his strength. Send him to the graveyard."

Soviets Condemned

Tehran Radio also quoted Ayatollah Hussein Ali Montazeri, political heir-apparent to Khomeini, as again urging Iran to launch a counter-offensive. Montazeri clashed with Bani-Sadr last week over lack of progress in the war and the president countered in a newspaper article accusing his critics of "a treasonous campaign against the president and demoralizing the armed forces on the battlefield."

The radio report said the mass rally endorsed a resolution condemning the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan and voiced support for Afghan Moslems who were struggling to drive the Soviets out.

The resolution also condemned the United States and said, "We consider our biggest enemy to be criminal America," Tehran Radio said.

The Tehran rally was one of several staged Monday in cities throughout Iran to commemorate the death of the prophet Mohammed, founder of the Islamic faith.

Safety Feature Helps Youths Flee Center

stalled, Watts explained. He hopes to have a new lock system installed in the near future.

"But we have to keep it flexible because of the danger of fire," Watts added.

He has suggested that the interior double doors be locked only when youths are in the check-in area or the hallway adjacent to the exit.

Another escape attempt occurred shortly before Christmas and involved three youths who ran through a door leading to the fenced-in recreation area, Watts said.

In that incident, he said, the teenagers had flipped a lock that secures the door leading into the lock-up facilities. Watts said the door was apparently unlocked when the boys returned from outdoors.

Jogging Youths Flee

A houseparent at the center later allowed the youths to jog around a hallway for exercise but failed to keep a careful watch on the teenagers, Watts said. When the houseparent was not looking, the boys ran through the door they had unlocked earlier and hit the panic bar to escape through the outside exit.

All three escapees were back in custody within 36 hours, according to the probation officer.

"A part of our problem is we have hired all new staff," Watts said. He noted that staff members are accustomed to working with young people but not in a lock-up situation.

"Whenever you lock somebody up, the first thing they want to do is get out," Watts said.

Watts said that the staff is being trained to avoid further escape attempts. Also, he said, control officers are making regular checks to be sure all locks are in place.

Gag Order Continued By Judge

ant on Jan. 3, Gilkerson said. The attorney general entered the case April 3, 1980, seeking a motion to admit the will to probate. That action apparently was taken in connection with possible inheritance taxes on the estate.

Boone asked both parties whether they had any objection if he continued the gag order he issued on Oct. 16, 1980.

Settlement Disclosure Banned

Gilkerson said he didn't know how much prior restraint could be used by the court, but that attorneys for both sides had agreed not to disclose the details of the settlement until after it had been filed in public records.

Kirby said he didn't know whether the gag order could be continued since a settlement had been reached.

Boone initiated the order in October apparently to prevent potential jurors from being prejudiced in the case, which might have caused a change of venue and a delay in the trial.

However, the 163-member jury panel has been disbanded by the court and will apparently not be needed now that a settlement has been reached.

Boone refused to state his reasons for continuing the order.

Nobody needs to understand, he said, The Avalanche-Journal after the hearing. It's just there.

"I don't want to get hostile, but I will let you continue to ask me about this case," he said as he left the bench. "Why don't we talk about the weather?"

The first assistant to Texas Attorney General Mark White could come up with no explanation of Boone's continuance of the gag order.

It's not that frequent, but not all that uncommon either," said John Fainger Jr. He apparently felt it was in the best interest of all parties to do that and was acting within the discretion of the court.

He said that Ed Garvey, an assistant to the attorney general, is restricted by the order as much as the other lawyers in the case and could not comment on the settlement.

Court Records Open

When the gag order was initiated, Boone allowed all court records to remain open, including 22 depositions of witnesses.

However, after a story utilizing the depositions was published in The Avalanche-Journal, an attorney representing the relatives filed a request to seal all depositions, which was granted by Boone.

The Masten estate has been valued at between $12 million and $50 million. It consists of more than 100,000 acres of land in six Texas counties, more than $1 million in bank deposits and the oil and gas rights to the property.

On Oct. 28, 1979, Masten scrawled a one-paragraph note leaving all of his estate to Abilene Christian University. Two codicils, dated the same day, indicated he also wanted a woman friend in Amarillo, as well as his nieces, nephews and some hired men, to have portions of his estate.

Seventy-two days later, Masten died and a day after that, the will was filed in Lamb County.

Although no one at the hearing would comment on the details of the settlement, Gilkerson indicated ACU managed to obtain a substantial part of the estate.

"They agreed to it didn't they?" he asked.

Dr. John Stevens, president of ACU, refused to comment on the case when contacted in Abilene this morning.

Israel Gets New Man In Cabinet

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin's coalition government, its future jeopardized by a dispute over teachers' salaries, named a new cabinet minister Monday.

Press reports said the 67-year-old Begin, who has suffered at least two heart attacks, appeared exhausted during the Cabinet meeting and hinted he might resign if no settlement is reached with the teachers.

Yoram Aridor, 47, a close ally of Begin, was named Communications Minister, replacing Yitzhak Moda'i who became the new Energy Minister. Aridor was the fifth new minister to join the now 17-member cabinet since the Begin government came to power in 1977.

Election Possible

Elections are scheduled for November, but some newspapers have predicted Begin's government would collapse, bringing about an earlier election, over the issue of teachers' pay.

Finance Minister Yigael Hurvitz has vowed to quit if the government gives in to Israel's 58,000 teachers, who staged a one-hour "warning strike" Monday. They are demanding that college-graduated high school teachers get a $65 raise to $546 per month. The average wage in Israel is $630 a month.

At a cabinet meeting Sunday Begin, Hurvitz and Education Minister Ze'evulun Hammer, who supports the teachers' demands, agreed to seek a compromise.

Government sources said Begin's conservative Likud coalition could manage to remain in power without Hammer, since his National Religious Party probably would stay in the government.

Oil Scheme Claimed Uncovered

467.4 barrels of oil from Jaco at a cost of $85,766.82. The meter registered only one barrel of oil leaving the tank between Dec. 18 and Jan. 1, according to investigators.

Jaco has sold Cosden oil on a regular basis, usually three times a week, from the Currie Lease since June, investigators said. The smallest amount sold was 865.86 barrels during the month of June, with the largest amount being sold in December.

Company-Wide Crackdown

According to Mike Tate, director of security for American Petrofina, the case is the beginning of a company-wide crackdown. He was hired by the company July 1 after serving as an agent for the FBI.

"We're going to be on top of this sort of thing, checking to find irregularities in production," he said. "We'll be watching the people in charge of the pipeline to make sure proper procedures are being followed. They can expect to find me there when they least expect it," he added.

Among the safeguards will be a double check of the readings made by company gaugers, he said.

Reagan Holds Talk With Mexican Head

Mexico City. Reagan's eight-year tenure as governor gave him a unique position from which to view the U.S.-Mexican relationship as it evolved while Mexico grew stronger from its increased oil wealth.

Mexico now sells at world market-level prices approximately 700,000 barrels of oil a day to the United States, and is the United States' third largest trading partner. But the disparity in income between the two nations remains great and the flow of illegal immigrants into the United States from Mexico has not been slowed.

When Reagan declared his presidential candidacy in late 1979, he focused briefly on the nation's ties with its neighbors and proposed that they be governed by what he called a "North American Accord."

Not Foreigners

"It is time to stop thinking of our nearest neighbors as foreigners," he said.

The last top-level meeting between leaders of the United States and Mexico took place in February 1979 when President Carter visited Mexico City and touched off a diplomatic tempest by mentioning a case of "Montezuma's Revenge," an intestinal disorder that afflicted him on an earlier visit. At the same time, Lopez Portillo did little to disguise his dissatisfaction with the course of U.S.-Mexican relations.

That set the tone for the strained ties during Carter's presidency, although according to one Carter administration official, those problems have been overcome.

The final stop on Reagan's schedule Monday was Washington, where he planned to attend a reception in the evening honoring Sen. Howard H. Baker's ascendency to the post of majority leader in the Republican-controlled Senate.

Reagan will hold a series of meetings in Washington, including one with the designated members of his Cabinet, before flying home to California on Thursday.

wish him well."

Floor Fight Lost

O'Neill then administered the oath to the members.

Michel, beginning his first Congress as the House Republican leader, initiated — but lost — a floor fight in the opening session.

Republican leaders, still smarting over O'Neill's decision to pack key committees with Democrats, sought to trim the lopsided ratios on the Ways and Means Committee and the Budget panel, and attempted to win adoption of a proposal to limit federal spending to 22.5 percent of the gross national product. Spending is now running about 24 percent.

The GOP moves failed on nearly straight party-line votes — 216-179 against changing the rules on proposals such as setting a spending limitation, and 220-180 against changing the committee ratios.

The new Democratic chairman of the House Budget Committee, James Jones of Oklahoma, promised that the House will have a chance to vote on a spending limitation this year. Jones himself has proposed such limitations in the past.

Harmonious Opening

The Senate opening, which lasted about 90 minutes, was harmonious and Republican leader Howard Baker and Democratic leader Robert Byrd, who are swapping roles of majority and minority leaders, exchanged handshakes as the proceedings opened.

In most cases, the senators being sworn in were escorted by their colleagues from the same state. But Sen. Paula Hawkins, R-Fla., was escorted by GOP National Chairman Bill Brock while Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., remained behind his desk.

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., 78, was elected president pro tem of the Senate, a largely honorary post that goes to the senior member of the majority party.

Congress does not plan any substantive activity until after Reagan's inauguration, Jan. 20, except for a joint session for the formal counting of the electoral votes in the House chamber, Tuesday.

Senate committees, however, have scheduled confirmation hearings, beginning Tuesday, for members of Reagan's Cabinet.

Punitive Damages Ruled Out In Suit

CHICAGO (AP) — A federal appeals court ruled Monday that McDonnell Douglas Corp. and American Airlines are not liable for punitive damages to the estates of 273 victims of the 1979 crash of a DC-10 airliner.

A three-judge panel of the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, in a 61-page opinion, said Illinois law does not allow punitive damages in "wrongful deaths" suits.

The appellate panel — Judges Robert A. Sprecher, William A. Bauer and Richard D. Cudahy — held that compensatory or actual damage claims in the suits are not affected. At stake were millions of dollars in punitive damages — awards made to punish defendants and to deter future misconduct.

A total of 118 suits, filed in five states and the commonwealth of Puerto Rico and consolidated here, were affected by the ruling.

The decision overturned a lower court ruling last May that McDonnell Douglas, designer and manufacturer of the DC-10, was liable for punitive damages. At that time, U.S. District Judge Hubert L. Will also ruled that American Airlines, which owned and operated the plane, was not liable.

TV TO CARRY FAREWELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — All three television networks have agreed to broadcast live President Carter's farewell address to the nation on the night of Jan. 14. White House press secretary Jody Powell said Monday.

TRAIN CRASH KILLS SIX

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — A passenger train ran a red stop light, Monday, and slammed head-on into a diesel train north of Madrid, killing six people and injuring 19 others, officials said. Five of the dead were railroad employees. Officials of the state-run railroads, Renfe, said the accident appeared to have been caused by human error when the Madrid train from Burgos in central Spain ignored a stop light at small Miraflores station.

discovered the vehicle had stolen plates.

The prosecutor said "certain items" were found near Sutcliffe's car during his arrest and "these have special significance in the murder charge."

Police sources said these included a ball peen hammer and a knife — the type of weapons detectives say the Ripper has used to club and mutilate his victims.

Sutcliffe, looking dazed after three days of interrogation, was expected to undergo more questioning and psychiatric tests.

Morritt told reporters earlier that Sutcliffe's "facial features will ... form part of the prosecution's case." Police have said a bite mark on the body of one of the Ripper's victims indicated the murderer had a gap in his front teeth.

The suspect's employers at the Bradford trucking firm, Clark Holdings Ltd., said police had questioned Sutcliffe "two or three times" in 1977.

Company chairman Tom Clark described him as a "funny chap, very sensitive and if I had to say something sharp to him would break into tears."

has cost nearly $10 million and at its peak involved more than 5,000 officers in various forces.

First Charged

Sutcliffe was the first person charged in the case.

The mass murderer killed five women in Leeds, three in Bradford, two in Manchester and one each in Halifax, Huddersfield and Preston, all northern industrial towns.

Because his first victims were prostitutes, he was nicknamed after Jack the Ripper, who killed six prostitutes in London's East End in 1888 and was never caught.

The Yorkshire Ripper's last three victims were respectable young women.

Jacqueline Hill, an English student at Leeds University who hoped to be a probation officer, was killed as she headed back to her dormitory after an evening lecture.

Her murder prompted women in northern England's cities and towns to travel in pairs or groups for protection. Female college students armed themselves with knives and whistles and feminist groups stormed movie houses in Leeds and Bradford showing films depicting violence against women.

City Woman Allegedly Assaulted By Husband

A 39-year-old Lubbock woman told police her husband beat her during an argument Monday morning at the couple's east Lubbock home.

The woman said she and the 40-year-old man were arguing about whether he should leave Lubbock when the man became angry. He reportedly struck his wife several times on the face and head.

The woman suffered a cut to her nose, a blackened left eye, numerous bruises and scratches on her right arm, police said. She was treated for the injuries at South Park Hospital and later released, reports show.

The woman told officers she plans to divorce her husband and file assault charges against him. The man had not been arrested late Monday.

In other activity, a 1980 Chevrolet pickup truck was stolen from Don Crow Chevrolet, 5211 S.W. Loop 289, and vandalized over the weekend.

Used car sales manager Roy H. Butler told police the pickup, valued at $6,750 was stolen from the used car lot between 6 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. Monday.

Lubbock County Sheriff's deputies found the abandoned vehicle near the intersection of U.S. 87 and FM 1585, south of Lubbock, reports show.

Several items had been removed from the pickup, including all four tires, both running boards, both bumpers, the battery, the jack assembly, the spare tire and the "bed rails," police said.

In addition, the body of the vehicle was battered, and every light, lens and window was broken, reports show. Police had no suspects.

Several power tools and automobile transmission parts were stolen from Henderson Transmission, 2510 Texas Ave., police said.

Owner David Hendrick told police the items, valued at $850, were removed from the establishment between 2 p.m. Sunday and 8 a.m. Monday. Entry was gained by breaking a window on the west side of the building, police said.

In a separate burglary, a large color television and an 8-track tape player were stolen from the 1920 E. Brown St. home of Lucy May Chew, police said.

The woman told officers she arrived home at 1:25 p.m. Monday and found the back door of her residence open. She then discovered the television and tape player, worth $800, had been removed from a bedroom.

Police said the back door had been forced open.

A 200-pound safe containing a small amount of cash, stamps and money orders was lifted from Furr's supermarket at 12th Street and Slide Road during a break-in between 12:30 a.m. and 4 a.m. Monday, police said.

The burglars apparently gained entry through a glass door which had been shattered. Store manager James Piersall told police the loss would amount to about $2,820 in damage and stolen property.

In connection with the burglary, authorities were looking for a man reported prowling near an apartment complex behind the store early Monday. The suspect was described as a white man, about 6 feet, weighing 180 pounds, with brown hair and a mustache. He was clad in a blue jacket, blue jeans and was seen entering a van, possibly a Chevrolet.

In other activity, a 23-year-old Lubbock man refused medical treatment about 10:20 p.m. Sunday after he reportedly was assaulted at 34th Street and Avenue Q.

Man Jailed In Murder Attempt

An 18-year-old Lubbock man was jailed Monday night after being charged with attempted capital murder in connection with a Christmas Eve incident in which a prowler exchanged gunfire with a Lubbock policeman.

Roger Lee Thomas of 601 N. Dover Ave. was arrested at his home about 6:15 p.m. Monday. He was taken to the Lubbock County Jail after questioning by police.

Thomas was charged with attempted capital murder Monday afternoon, and Justice of the Peace L.J. Blalack issued a warrant for his arrest. The Criminal District Attorney's office has recommended bond be denied.

Thomas allegedly exchanged gunshots with Officer Gilliam W. Moody about 4:15 a.m. Dec. 24, 1980, in the 5700-block of Emory Street.

Moody said he was patrolling the neighborhood and thought he saw someone jump over a fence into the back yard of a residence in the area. When the officer entered the yard to investigate, a black man fled into the alley, reports show.

As he was pursuing the man on foot, Moody noticed the suspect turning toward him with what appeared to be a gun in his hand, police said.

Moody then dove into a darkened area of the alley, and the prowler fired a single shot at him and fled. The officer, who was slightly injured when he fell against a garbage dumpster to escape the gunfire, pursued the prowler to a pickup truck parked at the end of the alley.

Moody fired two shots through the back window of the fleeing vehicle, but the suspect and the driver of the pickup apparently were not wounded.

Men Steal Autos, Rob Store In Spree

Two men stole a car in Lubbock early Monday, abandoned it in Anton after stealing a pickup, then robbed a convenience store in Earth in a crime spree authorities say they are still tracking down.

Lamb County Sheriff E.D. McNeese said Littlefield police officer Robert Monroe chased the pickup following the holdup, but lost it on Highway 385 between Whitharral and Levelland.

After stealing the vehicles in Lubbock and Anton, the men reportedly robbed the Allsup's store in Earth of $70 about 4:30 a.m. McNeese said the older of the two suspects entered the store wielding a shotgun, held the female attendant at bay and made off with the money.

"I guess they were just riding around in that stolen pickup and decided to rob the store in Earth," the sheriff said.

Lubbock police said the two-man crime wave apparently began about 3 a.m. when Johnnie Laverne Parr's 1973 Lincoln was taken from in front of his 2110 48th St. residence. Authorities found that car in Anton, but discovered missing a 1980 Chevrolet pickup containing a loaded shotgun and .22-caliber rifle.

Following the robbery, the men traveled through Littlefield and were spotted by Monroe. McNeese said there was no gunfire exchanged during the high-speed chase.

The suspects were described as Mexican-Americans, one about 35 years old and his companion about 17.

JP Withholds Ruling In Shooting Death

Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy Monday was withholding a ruling in the shooting death of a 29-year-old Lubbock man.

Larry Allison of 1909 46th St. was found with a single gunshot wound in the chest at his home about 7 p.m. Sunday. He died about 12:30 a.m. Monday during surgery at Lubbock General Hospital. A weapon was found at the scene, police said.

Allison was an Olton native and married Terri Ogle Nov. 23, 1973, in Denison. He lived in the Lubbock area most of his life and had been a Lubbock resident the past seven years.

He was manager of the automotive department at the Target store since it opened Feb. 28, 1980. He was a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Survivors include his wife, his parents, Paul Allison of Cartwright, Okla., and Mrs. June Allison of Lubbock; his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Neely Thomas of Lubbock; his paternal grandfather, Lawrence Allison of Cartwright, Okla.; a daughter, Michelle of the home; two brothers, Kirby and Scott, both of Lubbock; and a sister, Regina of Cartwright, Okla.

New FBI Regulations Bar Entrapment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General Benjamin R. Civiletti laid down new standards Monday that the FBI must meet in conducting undercover investigations such as "sting" operations and the Abscam bribery probes.

The guidelines prohibit the FBI from inducing people to commit crimes they would not otherwise commit — a practice known as entrapment.

But undercover operations that involve an invitation to commit a crime would continue to be permissible. In those cases, however, a number of requirements would have to be met.

The Justice Department said the standards "are significantly more restrictive than those required by the law of entrapment or the constitutional principles of due process."

John Russell, a Justice Department spokesman, said nothing in the 18 pages of guidelines would have prevented the FBI from conducting its Abscam operation.

Russell said the guidelines had been Baltimore Theater May Stage Broadway Shows

BALTIMORE (AP) — Officials say the 86-year-old Lyric Theatre is being considered for staging Broadway shows if additional renovation funds can be found.

Currently undergoing a $12 to $14 million remodeling job, the Lyric is home to the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra and Baltimore Opera Company. Broadway shows in Baltimore are now staged only at the Morris Mechanic Theater.

The Lyric Foundation, which received a $317,000 federal grant in December, is considering asking the Legislature for an additional $3 million under preparation for 18 months and were not adopted in response to criticism of the Abscam operation by defendants in the case, a federal judge and some civil libertarians. Abscam led to the indictments of seven members of Congress and several other persons and to 12 convictions so far with a number of trials still pending.

In that operation, undercover FBI agents posing as representatives of wealthy Arab sheiks offered bribes in exchange for legislative favors. Former Rep. John Jenrette, D-S.C., who was convicted and defeated for re-election and subsequently gave up his House seat rather than face possible expulsion, is appealing his conviction on grounds he was induced by FBI bribes to break the law.

Under the guidelines concerning undercover operations involving an opportunity to commit crimes, the FBI would have to be certain that potential subjects understood the corrupt nature of the activity.

"Fishing expeditions" are prohibited. An operation could not be undertaken unless the FBI felt it would reveal illegal activities. And the bribes or other inducements offered may not be unduly large.

"The FBI's use of undercover employees and operation of proprietary business entities is a lawful and essential technique in the detection and investigation of white collar crime, political corruption, organized crime and other priority areas," Civiletti said.

"However, use of this technique inherently involves an element of deception and occasionally may require a degree of cooperation with persons whose motivation and conduct are open to question, and must be carefully considered and monitored," he said.

The guidelines require approval by higher authorities, sometimes by top FBI or Justice Department officials, before major, long-term or costly undercover operations start. The FBI director must approve those involving public corruption, operations carrying a risk of violence and situations in which FBI agents participate in criminal activities to catch criminals.

In the Abscam case, a number of those already convicted are appealing on grounds they were entrapped. So far, there have been 12 convictions and a number of trials are pending.

On Nov. 26, U.S. District Judge John P. Fullman overruled the convictions of Harry P. Jannotti, a Philadelphia city councilman, and George X. Schwartz, a former city council president, on grounds they were induced into committing crimes. The Justice Department is appealing.

"The rights of all citizens not to be led into criminal activity by governmental overreaching will remain secure only so long as the courts stand ready to vindicate those rights in every case," the judge said.

Even though Civiletti issued the guidelines in the closing days of the Carter administration, the Justice Department said they would remain binding on the FBI until amended by another attorney general.

Under the guidelines concerning "sting" operations — in which FBI agents pose as illegal purchasers of stolen goods — Washington's approval would be required if the operation involved an expenditure of $20,000 or lasted longer than six months.

Chrysler Exception In Car Sales Slump

DETROIT (AP) — Sales of domestic cars fell 22 percent in mid-December from the same 1979 period with only troubled Chrysler Corp. showing an increase, according to company reports Monday.

The five major producers sold 151,616 cars compared with 194,248 in the Dec. 11-Dec. 20 period of 1979.

That amounted to an annual rate of 6.1 million domestic cars, about midway between the 6.6 million of early December and 5.6 million in late November.

Chrysler jumped the gun over the holidays to report its U.S. car sales rose 20 percent under the stimulus of its rebates, now 7 percent, tied to the prime lending rate.

The No. 3 automaker's 19,529 cars gave it 12.9 percent of the market for domestic makes, its best market share of the year. The company's 16,301 cars in the 1979 period, when its sales were depressed by the widely publicized debate in Congress over its survival, accounted for only 8.4 percent of the market.

General Motors Corp. sales in the period fell 31 percent from 122,533 to 85,162. Market share plunged from 62 percent in the first 10 days of the month to 56 percent, making the period only the sixth this year that the No. 1 automaker's slice has been less than three-fifths of the pie.

At No. 2 Ford Motor Co., which is offering below-market interest rates to credit buyers of six lines, sales fell 13 percent from 46,277 to 40,380.

American Motors Corp. sales were estimated at 3,100 against 4,900 in the mid-December 1979 period, which would be a drop of 37 percent. AMC and the importers release sales figures only once a month.

Volkswagen of America Inc. also reporting early, sold 3,445 U.S.-built Rabbit models, down 19 percent from 4,237.

Norval Pollard Moore Makes Great First Impression

IT ALL HAPPENED SO QUICKLY that Jerry Moore didn't even have time to tell his North Texas State assistant coaches of his new job. Texas Tech's newly named football coach had to pinch himself to make sure he wasn't dreaming.

Moore, head coach at North Texas State the past two seasons and a top assistant at Nebraska and SMU before that, was standing in a Denton hardware store shopping for nuts and bolts to repair his son's go-kart. Tech athletic director John Conley, unable to reach Moore at home to give him the good news, telephoned the hardware store and caught the 41-year-old Bonham native before he finished his shopping.

"John told me to get ready because the plane was coming to pick me up and take me to Lubbock," related the easy going Moore. "I had to ask him if he was kidding. My wife thought he might want to give me some bad news before I heard it on the television.

"I was so excited after I hung up the phone that I couldn't even pick up the bolts," Moore added.

THE SPECULATION AND NAME-DROPPING that accompanied Tech's three-week search for a replacement for Rex Dockery finally came to end early Sunday night in the Lettermen's Lounge at Jones Stadium. That speculation was quickly replaced by excitement as Moore expressed his feelings about Tech, the Lubbock community and his future and the future of the Red Raider football program.

I've talked with Moore only twice since he was introduced as Tech's new boss Sunday, but those brief conversations were enough to impress me. Moore has apparently made a good first impression with the community, too. The things he had to say Sunday are what members of the community and Tech football followers want to hear. It was no soft-sell, either. Moore spoke from the bottom of his heart.

We know that the Raiders will become an I-formation team this spring. That is a very welcomed change from Dockery's veer that never seemed properly suited to the abilities of its key players. Change brings excitement and interest.

WE KNOW THAT MOORE LIKES and practices wide open football. He's been known to put the football up 30 to 35 times a game. You must be feeling some of the excitement by now. Think of the wonderful results Ron Reeves can accomplish throwing the ball 30 times a game.

We found out that Moore has a strange desire to raise his family in Lubbock and live here the rest of his life. I say strange because it's not a desire shared by many of Tech's recent grid coaches. Moore is a Texan and actually likes this portion of the state; speaks the language, knows the country, isn't afraid of the wind, knows how to get to Bovina, enjoys the challenge of recruiting West Texas. What more could you ask for?

Moore will be the best paid Tech football coach. He has a five-year contract that calls for a base salary of $45,000 a year. When outside considerations like television and football camp are added in, Moore is expected to make an annual salary in the neighborhood of $80,000.

WHAT WE DON'T KNOW IS WHO Moore will bring with him to Tech. He flew back to Denton Monday afternoon to discuss the situation with his assistants. Monday morning he talked to the members of Dockery's staff who would like to remain with the Raider program. Moore also talked to Dockery to get his opinion of some of his old staff members.

There isn't much left of Dockery's offensive staff. Rocky Felker is with Dockery at Memphis State. Al Tanara also went with Dockery, but returned to Lubbock Monday is hopes of finding another job. Bud Casey is on his way to Florida (the state, not the university). It's rumored that Casey will join Pat Dye's staff at Auburn. Walt Bragg has several irons in the fire.

Plenty of Dockery's defensive staff members are still here, and Moore might benefit from several of them.

First of all, there's Jim Bates. Bates was a candidate for the job, and may not want to stay in Lubbock. If he does, I don't think a better secondary coach can be found. And it's no secret that Bates was the best recruiter on Dockery's staff.

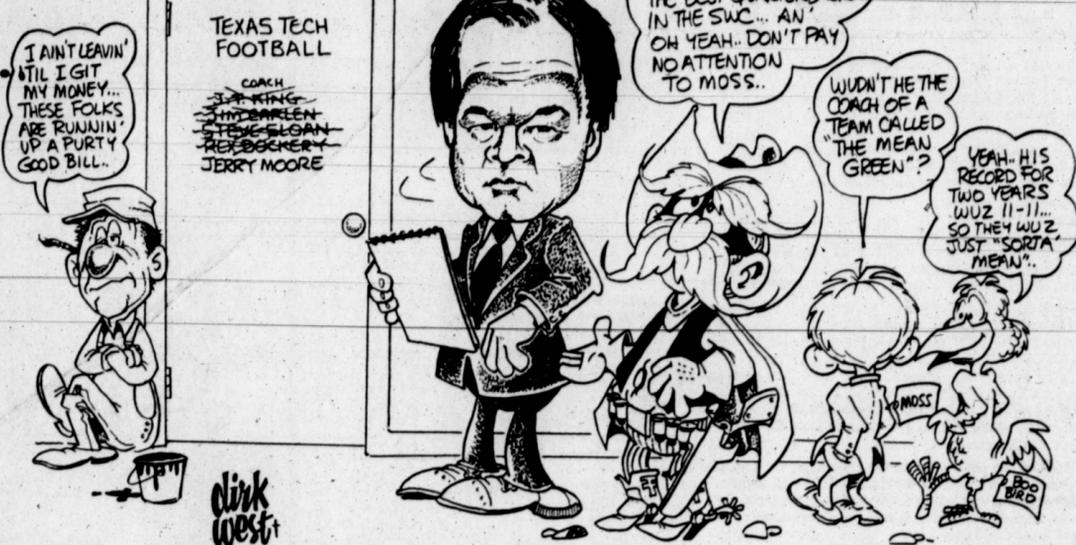

DAVID KNAUS HAS LET IT BE KNOWN that he wants to stay at Tech. Knaus did an excellent job with Tech defensive linemen in 1980, as did Al Groh with the inside linebackers. Punkin' Patterson was in Memphis Monday to visit Dockery, but he's not sure yet what he's going to do.

Recruiting coordinator Taylor McNeel and assistants Rodney Allison and Craig Harris are also interested in sticking around.

Moore said he'll know today who will comprise his staff. And he will begin recruiting immediately.

Moore's initial impression is that of a smooth, well-organized coach who knows exactly what he wants and, more important, knows exactly how to get what he wants. This is his "dream come true," so you know that he's going to make the most of it. And that adds to the excitement.

Red Raiders Test Cougars

By CHUCK McDONALD
Assistant Sports Editor

HOUSTON — Last Saturday night, in an 89-79 Southwest Conference season-opening victory against the University of Texas, the Texas Tech basketball team appeared sharper than it has all year.

In fact, the Red Raiders may have looked better than they have in several years in their win over Texas. The Raiders executed the fast-break with precision, they shut down Texas' dominating center LaSalle Thompson, they made a minimum of mistakes and they rebounded about as well as was humanly possible.

But right now, that's ancient history. Now the Raiders must prepare for an even greater challenge — the 9-2 Houston Cougars. Tech, now 7-3, and Houston will match perfect 1-0 SWC slates in a 8 p.m. showdown at Hofheinz Pavilion. Tonight's contest is especially important for the Raiders, a team that has struggled on the road the past two years.

GAME TO BE TELEVISED

Lubbock cable television subscribers will be able to view tonight's Tech-Houston game live beginning at 8 p.m. on Channel 6. ESPN (Entertainment Sports Programming Network) is televising the contest and the management at Channel 6 assured Tech officials that the game will be aired live in Lubbock.

So while praising his squad's effort against Texas, Tech coach Gerald Myers says the memory of that game is already fading like a lawn chair left too long in the sun.

"I hope the team's forgotten it," said Myers. "It was nice to think about for a day or so, but we've got to get ready for this one."

"Houston has really improved from last year (when the Cougs were 14-14)," added Myers. "I think one of the big differences is that they have settled into a set lineup. I think the players feel more secure — that can help a team."

A year ago, Houston coach Guy Lewis experimented with several lineups during the season and the only consistent starter was freshman guard Rob Williams.

Williams, everybody's SWC newcomer of the year as a freshman when he led the team in scoring with a 16.7 average, has been even more dominating as a sophomore. He's currently averaging 24 points an outing.

"Rob is probably the best guard in the conference," admitted Myers. "And they're a good rebounding team — their big guys are really quick."

The big guys Myers refers to are a pair of outstanding freshmen at forward and 6-9 sophomore Larry Micheaux at the post. Micheaux is averaging 10.4 points and 7.5 rebounds a game, but the real surprise in Houston has been the play of 6-6 freshmen Clyde Drexler and Michael Young.

Drexler is averaging 12.8 points and 11.6 boards per game while Young is chipping in 11.3 points and 8.2 rebounds. Rounding out the Houston starting five is junior guard Lynden Rose.

"They are both good players," Myers said of Drexler and Young. "They are two excellent freshmen. But what Houston generally upsets us with down here is the press."

"They've beaten us pretty bad down here the last two times because we haven't attacked that press and we just haven't played well."

Last year's venture into Hofheinz was particularly painful for the Raiders as Myers picked up three technical fouls early in the second half and was ejected from the contest as Tech fell 75-63. In 1979, the Cougs blew Tech out by a 103-89 margin in the same arena.

The Raiders will likely open with their set lineup of 6-6 forwards Ben Hill and Clarence Swannegan inside with 6-4 Jeff Taylor, 6-2 Steve Smith and 5-10 freshman Bubba Jennings outside.

Taylor leads the team in scoring with a 16.3 per game average, and every starter but Smith is scoring in double figures through 10 games. Swannegan and Hill have carried the bulk of the rebounding

DePaul Keeps No. 1 Ranking

By The Associated Press

Undeclared DePaul, which left Georgetown, San Diego State and Furman in its growing wake last week, retained the No. 1 position in The Associated Press college basketball poll for the fifth consecutive week Monday.

The Blue Demons collected 59 of 62 first-place votes and 1,237 points out of a possible 1,240 in the balloting by a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. Ray Meyer's cagers, who also spent most of last season in the No. 1 position, are now 12-0 this season.

Oregon State, 9-0, and Virginia, 8-0, remained in the second and third positions in the poll. Oregon State, which outlasted then-No. 13-ranked Arizona State 71-67 last weekend, was tabbed No. 1 on two ballots and received 1,159 points. Virginia, which had a scare last week before edging James Madison 53-52, garnered one first-place vote and 1,098 points.

Preseason favorite Kentucky, 8-1, and Notre Dame, 7-1, played musical chairs with the No. 4 and 5 positions. The Wildcats, who routed Maine and defeated Georgia last week, collected 989 points. The Irish, an easy winner over Davidson and the only team to defeat Kentucky this season, got 915 points.

Wake Forest, 10-0, jumped up two notches and took over the No. 6 spot in the poll with 874 points — seven more than UCLA, which retained the No. 7 position following its easy triumph over Washington.

Maryland, 10-1, moved up a notch to No. 8 with 773 points, while Louisiana State, 10-1, and Michigan, 9-0, rounded out the Top 10. LSU, No. 10 last week, collected 744 points and the Wolverines had 664.

North Carolina, Texas A&M and Indiana were the major casualties in this week's poll, with the Tar Heels dropping from No. 6 to 16th. The Aggies, who went into last week undefeated and ranked 11th only to suffer three losses, and the Hoosiers, ranked 15th and surprising losers to Clemson and Pan American, both dropped out the poll.

Vermeil: 'Dallas Better Team'

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Eagles coach Dick Vermeil isn't conceding, but he says the Dallas Cowboys are the better team in their Sunday confrontation for the National Football Conference championship and a spot in Super Bowl XV.

"It will be very tough to beat Dallas unless we play the best game we can possibly play," Vermeil told his jam-packed weekly news conference Monday.

The Eagles reached the conference title game by overcoming a 14-0 deficit to beat the Minnesota Vikings 31-16 Saturday.

Vermeil is very much aware that many so-called professional football experts don't look upon the Eagles as a championship team.

"Some people can say we lucked into the championship game and all that kind of nonsense, but... it wasn't easy," Vermeil said. "I like to think that we deserve the opportunity to play for the championship. I like to believe that we've earned the right."

He said of Dallas: "They've been there before. Nobody respects Tom Landry (Dallas coach) anymore than I do.

Sunday's Winning Catch Rates Tops With Pearson

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas receiver Drew Pearson says his winning catch in Sunday's divisional playoff with the Atlanta Falcons meant more to him than his "Hail Mary" reception in 1975 when he caught a last second bomb from Roger Staubach.

"This one ranks No. 1 with me over the Hail Mary in Minnesota because I feel I did this with a purpose," said Pearson. "All of this is for a reason."

Pearson dedicated the 1980 season to his father, Sam Pearson, who died in the middle of November. Several weeks later the Dallas receiver broke Bob Hayes' all-time club reception record.

Pearson caught two fourth-quarter touchdown passes from Danny White, including one with 49 seconds to play, in Dallas' 30-27 come-from-behind victory over the Falcons Sunday.

"I thought he might have time enough to make it," Pearson said of his father's battle with cancer. "But since he didn't get to see all of the season, I dedicated all of my efforts to him, whether he is here or not. He may not be here physically but I know he's here spiritually. And that right now is my purpose for playing."

After Sunday's game, Dallas coach Tom Landry, turned to Pearson and said "Man, you are super. You are super, just super."

Pearson said that White is "performing like Staubach now."

Of his winning touchdown catch on a play that covered 23 yards, Pearson said he never saw White throw the ball.

"I looked back at Danny and he was looking back at me," said Pearson. "And he didn't have the ball. What he'd done was lofft the pass to give me time to find the ball and adjust to it. That's what made the play."

Pearson added "I knew I had it... but when it happens to you, you think it's a dream. You think that it's not real, that it's something like a vision."

They score a lot more points than we do. They've come on awfully strong, played three great, big ball games in a row."

Vermeil referred to the Dallas triumph over the Eagles in the last game of the regular National Football League season and their playoff victories against Los Angeles and Atlanta.

Vermeil noted in retrospect that the Eagles lost three big games at the end of the season.

"We weren't able to beat the San Diego Chargers, Atlanta or Dallas (three of the last four regular season games)... so, I think that would mean the chances are that Dallas is a better football team," Vermeil said.

"Hey, we won't know until the ball game is all over on Sunday, but I mean going into the ball game if you would evaluate it honestly... you have to say that Dallas has proved they're a better football team than the Eagles on the basis of being able to win the big ones," Vermeil declared.

"On the basis of Tom Landry going into his 32nd playoff game, it's got to be a heck of a plus. On the basis of the maturity of their program, and the maturity of their athletes in these situations, and the quality of their athletes, you'd have to say that Dallas has a heck of an edge," Vermeil insisted.

Then, Vermeil applied the zinger:

Injury Bug Bites Chargers, Eagles

By The Associated Press

San Diego and Philadelphia, host teams in Sunday's National Football League playoffs, approach their games with injury problems which could cause them to recast their passing games.

The Chargers are four-point favorites against the Oakland Raiders, and the Eagles are rated a pick 'em with the Dallas Cowboys as the final four teams battle for Super Bowl berths.

The Raiders and Cowboys are playoff wild-card teams and will be facing the champions of their respective divisions — San Diego in the AFC West and Philadelphia in the NFC East. But the Chargers and Eagles may have slightly altered looks on offense because of their casualty count.

San Diego and Philadelphia both survived injury problems Saturday, the Chargers scoring in the last two minutes to defeat Buffalo 20-14 and Philadelphia using eight Minnesota second-half turnovers to defeat the Vikings 31-16.

Oakland and Dallas advanced with dramatic last-minute victories Sunday, the Raiders holding off Cleveland 14-12 and the Cowboys scoring three touchdowns in the fourth quarter, two of them in the final four minutes, for a 30-27 victory over Atlanta.

Much of San Diego's league-leading offense this season was built around a double tight end attack. The big name is Kellen Winslow, who led the league with 89 catches and was one of three Charger receivers to gain more than 1,000 yards.

Winslow is able to do a lot of roaming because the traditional tight end duties fall to Gregg McCrary, who is less widely known but a vital cog in the offensive scheme of things for the Chargers. But San Diego lost McCrary with three cracked bones in his back against Buffalo. It hurt Winslow almost as much. With his moves more restricted, the NFL's leading receiver managed only one catch for five yards after McCrary went out.

"Not having him (McCrary) changes our offense drastically," said Don Coryell, coach of the Chargers.

The Raiders, of course, hope the alteration in San Diego's attack reduces its efficiency. The Chargers led the league with their high-powered passing game but Oakland's secondary is waiting for it. The Raider defenders are led by cornerback Lester Hayes, who topped the league with 13 interceptions and has made three more in Oakland's two playoff victories.

The Raiders and Cowboys are the only two remaining playoffs squads that have been involved in Super Bowl action. Oakland lost to Green Bay in Super Bowl II, but defeated Minnesota in Super Bowl XI. Dallas has been to five Super Bowls, winning Super Bowl VI against Miami and dropping Denver in Super Bowl XII.

Philadelphia's air game has injury problems, too. Charley Smith, who caught 47 passes for 825 yards during the regular season, missed the Minnesota game because of a broken jaw. His replacement, Scott Fitzkee, was carried off the field in the second quarter after breaking a bone in his foot for the second time this season. That left third-stringer Rodney Parker in the starting role across from Harold Carmichael, who's been banged up lately, too.

Things got so serious that linebacker Jerry Robinson even volunteered to play wide receiver, if necessary. Robinson played some offense for Eagle coach Dick Vermeil when both were at UCLA, but he'll remain on defense for now, though.

Eagle running back Wilbert Montgomery, who was the team's leading receiver with 60 catches, also is hurting. "I won't be 100 percent on Sunday, but I'll be close enough," he said.

Three of last weekend's four playoffs went down to the wire with Philadelphia's victory over Minnesota the only decisive verdict. Even then, the Eagles were trailing with less than five minutes remaining in the third quarter before staging their winning rally.

San Diego was behind by one point as time began winding down against Buffalo. But Dan Fouts threw a 50-yard touchdown pass to Ron Smith to give the Chargers their victory.

Oakland hung on to its narrow victory in frigid Cleveland when Mike Davis intercepted a pass in the end zone as the Browns tried for a last-minute touchdown instead of a field goal that could have won the game.

Perhaps the most dramatic comeback of all belonged to Dallas. The Cowboys charged from behind with Drew Pearson grabbing a pair of touchdown passes from Danny White to sink Atlanta.

Now it's on to the conference championship games, the threshold of Super Bowl XV, set for Jan. 25 in New Orleans.

WINNER AND LOSER, BUT STILL FRIENDS — Dallas Cowboys fullback Robert Newhouse, right, shakes hands with Atlanta Falcons wide receiver Wallace Francis as he and a teammate sit on the bench after the Falcons' stunning 30-27 NFC playoff loss to the Cowboys last Sunday afternoon in Atlanta. (AP Laserphoto)

Falcons' Super Bowl Dream Vanishes In Rally

ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta Falcons wide receiver Wallace Francis told his teammates time and again they would reach the Super Bowl this year. But he saw his dream die Sunday when a final pass escaped his fingertips and the Falcons lost a playoff match to Dallas 30-27.

"My mind went blank. It just went blank," he said after missing the pass in the final seconds of the National Football Conference quarterfinal game.

After the touchdown that put Dallas ahead, the Falcons still had time, with 36 seconds left, to take the ball and drive into field goal range for kicker Tim Mazzetti.

They never made it. On the Falcons' final play, Francis dove for a wide throw from quarterback Steve Bartkowski, and missed.

Francis said he stood frozen for a few seconds on the field.

"We won't go the Super Bowl. I don't know why we won't go. I don't think anybody here thinks we got beat," he said. "But we got outscored. Dallas did it. So they deserve to go."

The Cowboys, who came from behind to win on a 23-yard touchdown pass with 42 seconds remaining, will meet the Eagles in Philadelphia Sunday to determine the NFC representative in the Super Bowl Jan. 25.

The Falcons will go home and wait for next year, stunned by the loss but consoled by a 12-4 season and their first divisional championship.

Mazzetti, who waited in vain Sunday for a chance to kick a field goal that would tie the score in the final seconds, said he found it hard to put aside his anger at losing.

"It would be one thing if we got blown out or if I had missed," he said. "But I couldn't do a thing about it and that's what made me so damn mad. You can't imagine how frustrating it is just to stand there and watch it slip away."

"There's a lot of disbelief in here," fullback William Andrews said as the Falcons' locker room emptied Sunday. "We played as well as we thought we should have — well enough to win. Dallas came out on top."

"Why this way?" asked Lynn Cain, Andrews' running mate.

Atlanta coach Leeman Bennett echoed his players' disappointment.

"It's a very, very empty feeling," Bennett said. "When you lose in the playoffs, you don't know what to do with yourself for three or four days until you begin to settle into the off-season routine."

"I still feel we're good enough to go to the Super Bowl," he added. "Any team that wins 12 games in a season is good enough for the Super Bowl."

Dallas running back Tony Dorsett said the heroics of Danny White, the quarterback heir to former Cowboy great Roger Staubach, should resolve the debate over whether Dallas could win a key contest without Staubach.

"We should have ended all questions about this team and Roger Staubach," Dorsett said. "I don't think anyone should ever ask if we can win the pressure game without Roger. We proved today we can. Case closed."

CELEBRATION TIME — Oakland Raiders quarterback Jim Plunkett left hugs teammate Mike Davis after Davis' end-zone interception of a Brian Sipe pass with less than a minute to play preserved the Raiders' 14-12 AFC playoff victory over the Cleveland Browns last Sunday. Biles Vows To Fight Lateral Staff Moves HOUSTON (UPI) — Houston Oilers head coach Eddie Biles Monday said he would fight the possible raiding of his coaching staff by fired head coach Bum Phillips in the event Phillips gets another NFL job.

Biles also said the league office would back him in disapproving of "lateral moves" by any of six assistant coaches, who are under contract to the Oilers through 1981 but still considered loyal to the fired coach.

"Someone who is getting a promotion can make a move," Biles said. "But it is forbidden for someone to make a lateral move from one job to a job at the same level. Coaches under contract are not allowed to make lateral moves."

Biles' comment followed a statement by defensive line coach Wade Phillips, Biles' son, that the assistants would try to join his father with another team.

Bum Phillips has said he wants the vacant head coaching job with the New Orleans Saints, but so far there has been no contact, the parties say.

If Bum Phillips gets that job, however, there is the possibility of a struggle for the assistant coaches even though Phillips and Biles are the closest of friends.

Wade Phillips, 33, faces a tough career decision because Biles has offered him a job as Oilers defensive coordinator. No deadline has been set, Biles said, for Wade to make up his mind.

The young coach said in a quest column in the Houston Chronicle Monday his mind was all but made up to reject the offer because he did not want to work for Oilers owner K.S. "Bud" Adams, who he believes unfairly fired his father.

"I think it's becoming obvious what my decision will be," he wrote. Adams fired Bum Phillips last Wednesday, three days after the end of a disappointing season in which the Oilers had an 11-5 record and made the playoffs for the third straight year.

"There's a difference between what is somebody's right and what is fair," Wade Phillips said. "Mr. Adams had the right to do it, but was what happened fair? My sisters are mad at him. But I don't hold any grudges. Daddy taught me the difference between what's right and what's wrong."

Biles was Bum Phillips' defensive coordinator for six years before made head coach Friday.

Wade Phillips said he was "glad" Biles got the job, but there was one area of responsibility where he would not measure up to his father.

"I can't say I learned more about people from Eddie than from my father. I know, and I think everybody knows, that Daddy understands how people should be treated. Nobody handles that part of it better than he does," he said.

Davis, Raiders Eye Date With Rozelle, Destiny

CLEVELAND (AP) — Do the Oakland Raiders have a date with destiny — or with Los Angeles — or both?

Does Al Davis have a date with Pete Rozelle?

The owner of the Raiders, who would very much like to move his Bay Area franchise a few hundred miles south next year, is only one step away from moving into the Super Bowl.

And should he manage to beat the San Diego Chargers Sunday and then defeat either Dallas or Philadelphia, the National Football Conference representative in the Super Bowl on Jan. 25, Davis and Rozelle, the commissioner of the National Football League, will find themselves cheek by jowl in the Raiders' locker room.

One thing is for certain, though, the Raiders will be far more comfortable in San Diego than they were in Cleveland, where 1-degree temperature combined with whipping winds off frozen Lake Erie threw the wind-chill factor in Cleveland Stadium down to minus 46 degrees late in the game.

"No more gloves! No more heaters! No more thermal underwear!" Keith Moody, an Oakland kick-returner, shouted gleefully as he raced out of the bitter cold and into the locker room following the Raiders' 14-12 victory over the Browns.

It was built on Mark van Eeghen's two 1-yard touchdown runs and preserved when strong safety Mike Davis lunged in front of Cleveland wide receiver Ozzie Newsome for an end-zone interception of a Brian Sipe pass with 41 seconds to play.

"I don't know why they did what they did, but I'm happy they did what they did," Mike Davis said after the Browns, trailing by two points but on the Oakland 13-yard line and within field-goal range, chose to go for the touchdown rather than have Don Cockroft battle the tricky winds. Cockroft had kicked two field goals earlier but had also missed two and had had his extra point blocked following the Browns' only TD.

When the Raiders returned home Sunday night, more than 1,000 fans cheered their arrival — and many of those fans jeered their disapproval of Al Davis and suggested that he move to LA and leave the team in Oakland.

WYOMING NAMES GRID COACH LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP) — The University of Wyoming has named Cowboy offensive coordinator Al Kincaid its new head football coach and signed him to a pact that will withhold nearly 20 percent of his salary until he completes his three-year contract. Athletic director Bob Hitch announced Kincaid's appointment Monday at a news conference in Laramie.

City Cage Squads Resume Full-Time Action

The District 1-4A girls' basketball race, interrupted by the holiday vacation, resumes today with six of seven teams in action as local schools begin the first full week of games since mid-December.

Borger, the only 1-4A team not to play a district contest prior to the holiday break, meets Dunbar in the Panther's gym at 7:30 p.m. Brownfield is at Leveland and Dumas at Canyon in other district contests, while Estacado travels across town to visit Monterey in non-district play.

The Estacado boys' squad plays host to Midland High, the state's second-ranked team, at 8 p.m. while Dunbar travels to Morton for an 8 p.m. matchup.

The Borger-Dunbar contest is a crucial game for the Panthers, who are 0-1 in 1-4A, said DHS coach Jim Washburn. "Every game we play here at home is a must-win game for us," he said. "Just off the top of my head, whoever loses at home will be out of the district race and whoever can win on the road will have a shot at it."

The Bulldogs and Panthers met once before this season, with Dunbar coming out on top 54-53 in the Hereford Tournament. "They (Borger) are pretty tough inside and they have some good outside shooters," Washburn said of the 6-9 Bulldogs.

Borger is led by 5-foot-11 post Marie Brooks, who is averaging 19.4 points each game. Miss Brooks is only a sophomore and is helped inside by 5-10 senior Brenda Boyer, scoring at a 12 points-per-game pace.

"It's going to be a tough game. I understand Dunbar has been playing real good basketball lately," said Borger.

coach Bobbie Sliger. "To stay in the game, we'll have to play real good defense because they have us tremendously outsized."

"It (the game) could go either way. We have been so up and down recently, it's hard to know how we'll play," she said.

The Panthers are 9-6 going into tonight's game and is led by guard Lisa Cavie and posts Cynthia Hardaway and Marcia Holmes. Miss Cavie leads Dunbar in scoring, averaging 16 points per game while the 6-1 Miss Hardaway and 5-10 Miss Holmes are averaging 12 and 11 points, respectively.

Miss Hardaway and Miss Holmes are also each averaging about nine rebounds each game.

Estacado's boys will meet Midland

High twice in the next three games, tonight on the Mats' home floor and Thursday in Midland. Estacado is fresh from successfully defending its Caprock Holiday Tournament title with victories over Midland Lee, Monterey and Coronado, but faces a much stiffer test with Midland High, led by 6-10 Herb Johnson.

Dunbar, 5-11 after winning one of three games in the Caprock Tourney, will also be pushed to the limit when it takes on Morton. Morton is only 10-8 but all of its losses have come to 4A and 5A schools and it won the small-school division of the Caprock Tournament last week, edging Dimmitt 74-70.

Five of the city's six Class 5A basketball teams will be playing tonight and three of them will be in town.

Girls' teams from Lubbock High, Coronado and Monterey will all be playing on home floors while the boys from Coronado and Monterey hit the road to Amarillo.

Lubbock High's girls, which won their last two games before the Christmas break, will host Palo Duro in one of the contests. It is the first meeting between the teams this season and Palo Duro boasts a similar 4-12 mark.

Coronado, now 9-8 on the season after losing both of its contests in the West Texas Girls' Invitational at Slaton, will host Pampa. The Harvesters have struggled to a 2-13 mark this year, but beat Lubbock High 54-45 earlier in the year.

In the other city game, Monterey's girls give Estacado another crack at an upset. The Plainsmen won the first meeting between the teams by an 82-66 score, but the contest was much closer than the score indicated. MHS is 16-1 on the year while Estacado stands 11-6.

In the games involving city boys' teams, Monterey travels to Palo Duro while Coronado visits Tascosa.

Monterey, currently 13-5 on the season, has yet to play the 10-4 Palo Duro bunch and this shapes up to be a dandy as both teams sport the best records in their respective districts.

Coronado's fortunes are on the upswing after finishing second in the Caprock Tournament. The Mustangs stand 9-8 on the year while the Tascosa team they face has only managed three wins in 12 outings. But included in those nine losses are a 35-34 decision to Monterey, a 65-64 setback to Clovis and a 58-56 loss to Canyon.

All games are scheduled to begin at 8 p.m.

Impressive Tech Tests Houston

chores, averaging 14.3 a game between them.

The Cougars opened SWC play with a tough 62-57 win over cross-town rival Rice on Saturday night. It was reserve forward David Bunce who sparked the Cougs in that win, coming off the bench and scoring eight critical points late in the contest. Guard David Rose was another key reserve in Houston's opening win, chipping in eight points off the bench.

The Raiders will again operate primarily out of a zone defense as they have done for most of the season, and Myers looks for a team effort to shut off the high-scoring Williams.

"I hope we can contain him," said Myers. "I hope he doesn't score 35 points on us. He's capable of that kind of game."

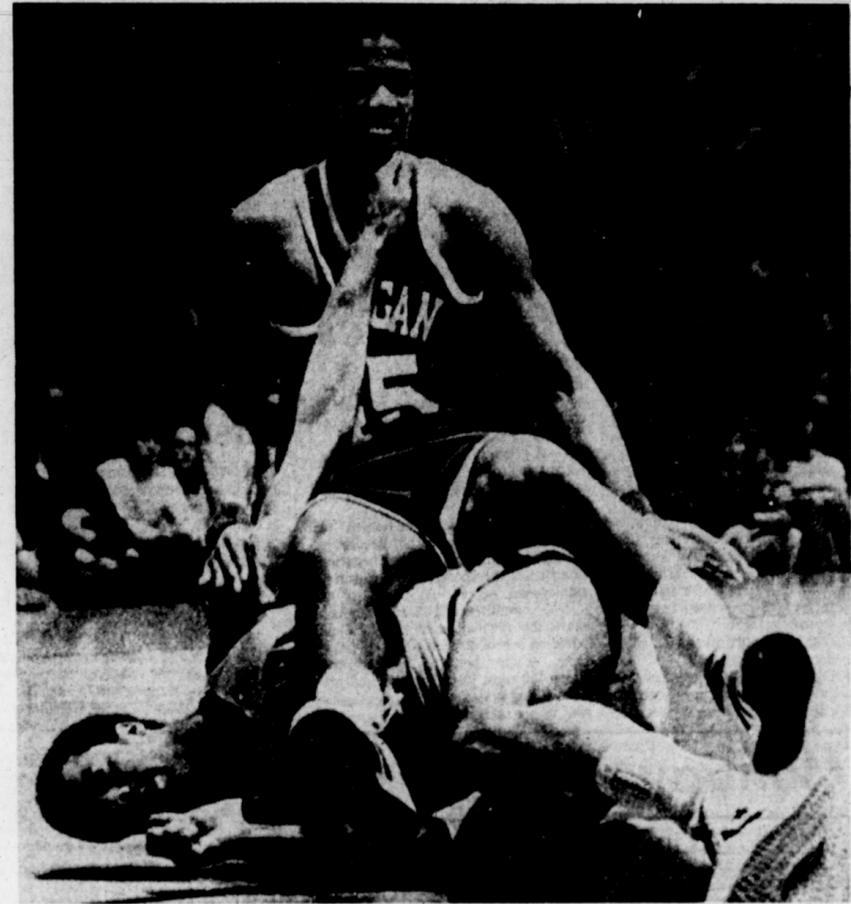

Myers is also hopeful that Tech will be able to run the fast break with the same effectiveness it had against Texas.

"I think we've got a pretty good running team," he said. "We've had some low scoring games this year but that's because most of the teams we've played have held the ball on us."

"We ran pretty good against Texas, though," he admitted with a smile. "We got some good breaks."

But that was long ago.

RAIDER CAGE NOTES: Myers is still beaming over Saturday night's crowd of nearly 9,000 in the Municipal Coliseum for the Texas game — Tech's largest of the year. "I especially want to thank those people who filled up the student section," said Myers. "Those were non-season ticket holders and those are the kind of people we need to have out here."

Loop Play Starts On South Plains

By RICHARD DAY
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Fresh from a holiday break that saw the area basketball schedule look sporadic at best, cagers from all over the South Plains will return to regular action tonight.

An added attraction to ring in the new year will be several districts tipping off league schedules. Districts 5-2A and 9-1A will begin loop action tonight while the 4-2A girls continue district play.

Those 5-2A games will have O'Donnell traveling to Forsan and Stanton taking on Ropes in Ropesville.

O'Donnell's boys, 8-5, whipped Southland 75-55 Tuesday and finished second in their tournament which ended the weekend before Christmas. District rival Seagraves, 11-1, spoiled the Eagles' hopes of winning the tourney finale 68-53. Forsan, 7-6, lost its last game to Sands by a score of 67-40.

Stanton, 9-4, also lost its last game, a 82-62 decision to New Deal. Ropes has a 6-6 record and has been out of action since the O'Donnell tourney when it took third place.

On the girls' side, O'Donnell is 12-5 after beating Southland 44-39 last Tuesday and winning its tournament with a 46-26 finals victory over Dawson. Forsan has an impressive 12-3 record with its last win being a 62-51 triumph over Sands.

The Stanton girls, only 2-8, have been playing some toughies; like last Tuesday's game against powerful New Deal which they lost 62-27. Ropes has fared a little better with a 6-8 record, and only a 45-31 loss to Southland kept them from taking third place in the O'Donnell tourney.

There will also be a pair of games to begin district play in 9-1A as Borden County hosts Sands and Grady will invade the Wellman gym.

Borden County's boys have won only two of 10 games in pre-district play, but have been playing some tough competition.

The BC girls are 15-1. They whipped Roby 63-43 Tuesday night. Sands' boys have also been playing some strong teams, but has come out on top 11 of 15 times it has taken to the court. The Sands girls are 11-4 and in their last game lost to Wilson 50-47 in the consolation finals of the Borden County Tournament.

Wellman's boys have won half of their eight games, but Grady is winless in six outings. The Wellman girls have not won this season, either, while the Grady girls are 4-6.

Defending district champion New Deal will be in Petersburg in one of tonight's three 5-2A girls' openers. The Lions were regional finalists last season and have Vickie Teal and Melissa Mayo leading them again. The Lions ripped Dimmitt 59-49 Dec. 20 for the championship of the New Deal tourney and whipped Stanton 62-27 Tuesday to run their record to 13-2.

Petersburg, 2-6, has not seen action since Dec. 18 when it opened its district schedule with a 61-38 loss to Spur.

In non-district action tonight, Morton will be in Lubbock to take on Dunbar, Crowell will tackle Childress, Frenship will host Idalou, Littlefield will entertain Bovina, defending state champion Abernathy will invade Cooper, Springlake-Earth will be in Nazareth, Kress will travel to Happy, Tulia will host Friona, Amherst will be at Smyer, Three Way at McAdoo, Anton at Spade and Western Hills at Sundown.

LCHS Squads Turn Back Cotton Center

Brendell Baker canned 20 points, Glenna Jeffreys added 16 and Kristy Logan chipped in with 13 Monday night to lead the Lubbock Christian High School girls to an easy 68-31 basketball win over Cotton Center.

The LCHS boys had a tougher time with their Cotton Center opponents, but rode the 18-point scoring performance of Pat Phelan to carve out a 59-54 victory.

The Eagle girls took a 13-7, first-period lead and built that advantage to 18 points at intermission, 33-15.

The LCHS boys fell behind 16-15 after the opening eight minutes of play, but rallied to take a 31-24 lead at halftime. Cotton Center threatened to regain the lead in the third and fourth periods, but the Eagles withstood the rally.

Joining Pat Phelan in double figures for the LCHS boys were Robert Hinds with 11 and Barry Sikes with 10 counters.

LCC Schedules Basketball Double-Header

The Lubbock Christian College men's and women's basketball teams will stage a game double-header today in the LCC fieldhouse.

The men's game will mark the squad's final warmup before it opens Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association play against Austin College Saturday at 2 p.m. and the Lady Chaps, 4-8, host the Wayland Baptist College Queen Bees at 6.

The men's game will mark the squad's final warmup before it opens Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association play against Austin College Saturday, also in the Fieldhouse. The Lady Chaps have one more game, that against South Plains College Thursday, prior to tipping off their conference schedule with Austin here Saturday.

The Chaps, despite their non-scholarship status, have yet to play a non-scholarship team in 1980-81. They defeated New Mexico Highlands 106-90 Nov. 28 in Las Vegas, N.M.

LCC coach John Copeland is expected to start a revamped lineup of 6-foot-4 center Brian Fortner; 6-5 Jim Steensma and 6-4 Larry Holt at forward; and 6-2 Bruce Carver and 5-10 Keith Money at guard. Money and Holt are newcomers to the LCC first unit after replacing Bill McGee and Gary Norris, respectively, in the Dallas tourney.

Carver is the team's leading scorer at 16.5 points per game. Norris and McGee rank second and third with 15.2 and 10.5 points, respectively. Fortner, who averages 9.2 points and 7.5 rebounds per game, was voted to the all-tournament team in Dallas where he pulled down 25 rebounds in three games.

The Lady Chaps of coach Dave Simpson return to action after a three-week layoff.

They are expected to start center Darla Lynch, the team's leading scorer and rebounder with averages of 15.6 and 10.8, respectively; forwards Cindy Bigham and JoAnn Phillips; and guards Sherry Brown and Debby Pitchford.

Miss Brown is second in scoring with 9.9 points per game, while Miss Bigham contributes 8.9 rebounds per outing.

The Lady Chaps were defeated by the Queen Bees 67-51 in the season-opener Nov. 7.

Frogs Seek Second Win

By United Press International
TCU does not win two Southwest Conference basketball games in a row very often, but the Horned Frogs have a chance to do that tonight.

The Frogs, an upset 56-51 winner over Texas A&M in their conference opener last Saturday night, hosts the Rice Owls tonight in one of four SWC games on the calendar.

And TCU coach Jim Killingsworth is justifiably anxious to see how his club performs.

"We're a much better team than last year," said Killingsworth, starting his second year with the school. "The players are playing together as a team, even in games we've lost. We didn't do much that year."

"Last year, if a certain guy got his 20 points and we lost, he was happy. The few times we won, if a player didn't get his points he was upset."

The highlight attraction tonight, however, will have Texas Tech visiting Houston in a matchup of opening-night winners. Houston, which has the best inter-sectional record this season, opened with a victory over Rice while Texas Tech played well in a 10-point decision over Texas.

Otherwise, SMU will be at Texas and Texas A&M will try to bounce back against Baylor in Waco. It will be the conference opener for the Bears.

Arkansas will have the night off after clobbering SMU in their league opener, 92-50.

The Razorbacks, however, will play an inter-sectional game Wednesday night in Pine Bluff against Alaska-Anchorage, which is touring the South and Southwest. Baylor beat the Alaskans last Saturday.

Caprock Trips Lubbock 48-44

AMARILLO (Special) — Greg Ewing and Phillip Fry each scored 12 points Monday night to lead the Caprock Longhorns to a hard-fought 48-44 basketball victory over Lubbock High.

The Longhorns jumped out to a 15-8, first-quarter advantage. The Westerners, behind the shooting of Brad Ruff, Charlie Quade and Kirk Cole, cut that lead to six points (26-20) at halftime and two points (36-34) after three periods of play but could not quite overtake the 'Horns.

Ruff finished as the game's leading scorer with 16 points. Cole and Quade each canned 12 in a losing effort.

Lubbock high is now 8-11. Caprock upped its record to 10-9.

Changes In Education Eyed

EDITOR'S NOTE: Education will be one of the more emotional issues to come before the 1981 Legislature, which might pass far-reaching new laws on the subject. This is one of a series of AP stories on matters before the Legislature.

By LEE JONES

AUSTIN (AP) — Better teachers with better salaries, a no-nonsense public school curriculum and higher state university tuition could come out of the 67th Legislature.

Poor showings by young Texans on statewide tests on the "basics" virtually guaranteed the new Legislature would spend a lot of time on education issues.

"Everybody's not satisfied with the product coming out of the school system," said Jim Kaster, legislative point man for Gov. Bill Clements.

Kaster said public school bills — particularly curriculum reform and competency testing for new teachers — will have high priority with Clements — "right up among the top, if not the top."

Clements and his Advisory Committee on Education, the Texas State Teachers Association, the State Board of Education and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby's Special Committee on Higher Education Financing all have recommended changes.

These look like the top educational issues of the 140-day lawmaking session that begins Jan. 13.

•Competency testing for teachers. The State Board of Education wants $1 million to start a program that would include a general literacy test before a young person is accepted for teacher training. Graduates would be certified only after passing tests in their subject areas and in teaching methods. Lifetime certification would come only after three years of teaching, a graduate degree and the recommendation of a teacher's employer and college.

•A teacher pay raise. The TSTA wants 33 percent over the next two years, counting automatic "step-ups" that teachers get for each year of experience. Clements favors 22 percent. The Legislative Budget Board has recommended 23 percent.

•Curriculum "reform" — meaning repeal of all laws requiring specific courses or subject matter, such as free enterprise, consumer education, kindness to animals and the dangers of drugs. The Board of Education would prescribe a basic statewide curriculum.

•Tuition increases at state universities. Hobby's committee said tuition — now $4 per semester hour, or $60 per semester for a normal course load, for residents — should be at least doubled.

•Establishment of a guaranteed State Higher Education Assistance Fund to pay for construction, remodeling and other capital improvements at state colleges outside the Texas A&M and University of Texas systems. Hobby's committee wants to establish the fund with money from a tuition increase.

Each of those issues is expected to have a strong chance of reaching final votes in the House and Senate.

One issue that probably will generate some heat but has no real chance of floor action is collective bargaining for teachers.

Collective bargaining is a dead issue as far as any chance of being passed goes," said Sen. Pete Snelson, D-Midland, whom Hobby is expected to appoint chairman of the Senate Education Committee.

Snelson and his probable House counterpart, Rep. Hamp Atkinson, D-New Boston, predicted legislative approval of teacher competency testing.

Atkinson said he expects the Legislature to exempt present teachers and require only new ones to be tested.

Teachers themselves, to get compensation to a more adequate level, are going to have to clean up the field and make it more professional," he said.

Jim Butler, executive secretary of the TSTA, said competency screening of teachers should take place in college, not after graduation.

He also said a teacher's employer should have no say in the awarding of a lifetime teaching certificate, leaving that decision to the state.

"A hospital administrator doesn't tell a doctor whether he is qualified to stay in surgery," Butler said.

Few seem to disagree with proposals to purge the law books of required school subjects and leave the job of curriculum-writing to the experts.

"I think we need to do that. We now mandate so many subjects that it is impossible to have a day long enough to cover everything."

Vesco Back In Nassau For Appeal

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) — Financier Robert Vesco returned to Nassau on Monday to press his appeal for political asylum before Bahamian officials deport him on Jan. 14.

The 45-year-old financier, who has given up his U.S. citizenship, has been eluding U.S. authorities since 1972. Vesco allegedly looted Investors Overseas Services of $224 million while heading the company, then tried to have charges in the case dropped by contributing $200,000 to President Richard Nixon's re-election campaign.

After asking for political asylum, Vesco dropped out of public sight last Tuesday — a day before Bahamian immigration officials went to his home and left the deportation papers with Vesco's son, Anthony.

"Deportation and political asylum are unrelated," said government spokesman Bill Kalis. "It (asylum) is still being considered, subject to review procedures."

The mandate gave Vesco two weeks to leave the nation of islands off Florida's east coast. On Nov. 11, Bahamian officials had ordered him out within 30 days, but later granted an extension, which expired last Wednesday.

Vesco said he has no intention of running away and "besides, I have no place to go."

In a statement, he said he hadn't "disappeared, vanished or absconded" and was only out of town on his annual New Year's vacation to a remote out island. Attorney Arthur D. Hanna Jr. refused to identify the island or comment further, but his aide confirmed that Vesco had returned to Nassau on Monday.

Bahamian Home Affairs Minister Clement Maynard said earlier that Vesco held an "annual resident permit" that was renewable yearly.

Vesco has spent the past several years shuttling between Costa Rica and the Bahamas, averting various extradition attempts.

Last year, Vesco reportedly foiled an FBI plan to lure him onto a plane that would return him to the United States.

'Disco For Tots' Class Taught

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — Move over John Travolta, there's a new kid in town.

Actually, there's a whole class full of new kids.

It's disco for tots, an afterschool course for children ages 3 to 8, taught at South Oklahoma City Junior College.

Kay Lynn Cawyer, 24, originated the course last summer and had 15 students. She expects a bigger enrollment when the course begins Jan. 12.

The students come dressed in leotards, pants, or shorts to learn dances like the robot, the marionette, and the box.

"Children let go a lot easier than adults," Mrs. Cawyer said. "They pick up the steps easier because they don't have the fears of not doing well as most adults do."

Mrs. Cawyer said the idea of the class is to help the children get in touch with their bodies, and learn to feel the rhythms.

She said disco gives tots more confidence and coordination, and is practical.

"The schools are incorporating disco into everything. They use it in cheerleading, and it's popular at sock hops," Mrs.

Cawyer said.

Disco for tots is an eightweek session, with one evening class each week. Mrs. Cawyer said parents are invited to attend the final course, a small disco production.

"I think the class has been very successful," she said. "Disco really goes over big with little kids."

Mrs. Cawyer said her youngest students so far have been 5-year-olds, but she expects some 3-year-olds to enroll in the coming session.

Girl, 12, Riot Victim, Says She's Not Bitter

MIAMI (AP) — Nine months ago, Shanreka Perry was a hard-charging forward on the Holmes Elementary School basketball team and enjoyed an occasional neighborhood game of softball.

Today the rail-thin 12-year-old walks with crutches. She has no left leg or hip, scars left by the city's bloody racial explosion last May on an evening that began with a neighborhood game of softball.

Shanreka's leg was amputated at Jackson Memorial Hospital after a car, careening out of control with a shattered windshield, crashed into her the night of May 17 in the first outbreak of violence of what became three days of rioting.

After six months in the hospital, the shy, soft-spoken youngster is back in her Liberty City home. The accident stole her mobility, but she says it hasn't broken her spirit.

"I feel the same," Shanreka said as she stood up from a couch and smiled broadly while her sister snapped a picture with an Instamatic camera, a Christmas gift. "I don't feel sorry about it at all. I don't like for people to feel sorry for me."

Shanreka has received a lot of attention and sympathy since she was injured. Her sixth-grade class started the Shanreka Perry Trust Fund to help pay her medical bills, and an Elks Lodge in Liberty City has set up a separate trust fund to be turned over to her when she is 18.

"It (the loss of her leg) is not going to of control, hitting Shanreka and a pedestrian, 75-year-old Albert Nelson.

The mob dragged the occupants out of the car and beat the Kulp brothers severely. Jeffrey was also stabbed and shot and his right ear and part of his tongue were cut off. He died in Jackson Memorial 26 days later. Miss Gettman escaped with minor injuries after being rescued by a black taxi driver.

Last fall, James McCullough, 20, was convicted of manslaughter in Kulp's death. One man was acquitted, and charges against two other young blacks were dropped for lack of evidence.

The Kulp's car had pinned Shanreka against a wall. Her left leg dangled from her body, her eyes were dilated and she was almost unconscious.

"I was in a shock," Shanreka recalled. "I don't remember what happened."

Already overburdened with riot victims, doctors and nurses at Jackson worked furiously. They pumped 10 units of blood into her body. At 10 p.m. that night, Shanreka lapsed into unconsciousness and didn't wake up until 12 hours later. She was to spend the next six months in the hospital.

It was a mild surprise, and an early Christmas present for Miss Small, when the girl was released from Jackson the day before Thanksgiving, a month before doctors had anticipated she would be healthy enough to return home.

Doctors say they plan to replace her lost limb with an artificial leg.

"They haven't sent me a bill yet, but I'm not going to worry about it," Miss Small said. "I can't worry about that."

Shanreka, too, said she isn't worried about her misfortune. On Christmas Day, she told everyone she wanted a normal holiday free of depressing talk about her injuries. She clowned with her brothers and sisters and experimented with an electronic tic-tac-toe game.

She said she's glad her family moved from an upstairs apartment to a downstairs unit.

"It's easier to get around," Shanreka said. "It's bigger and it doesn't have an upstairs. I like it."

In September, Shanreka will return to school, probably Miami Edison Middle School because it has an escalator, she said.

"Yeah. Things are back to normal," Miss Small said. "The only thing missing is her leg."

Today's FOCUS

stop me from doing what I want to do," Shanreka said. "I care about it and I wish I still had it, but you think I'm going to let that get me down?"

"Shanreka does everything for herself," said her mother, Patricia Small. "She puts on her clothes, makes her bed — everything."

Miss Small isn't as forgiving as Shanreka, one of four children who live in a small, four-bedroom apartment in African Square, a snappy-looking housing project only three blocks from an old restaurant leveled by fire during the riots.

"I appreciate all what has been done for me," the 29-year-old divorcee said. "But it'll never be enough. It's not going to get her leg back."

Shanreka was playing softball in front of her home that Saturday evening just as word reached the neighborhood of the acquittal in Tampa of four former Dade County police officers, all white, on charges stemming from the beating death of black businessman Arthur McDuffie.

As enraged blacks were taking to the streets in protest, a carload of whites — Michael Kulp, 18, his brother, Jeffrey, 22, and Debra Gettman, 23 — unknowingly drove into the developing riot on their way home from a day at the beach.

Their 1969 Dodge was surrounded and pelted by rocks and bottles. The windshield was smashed and the car spun out

Spanish King Has Birthday

MADRID (AP) — King Juan Carlos spent his 43rd birthday Monday with his family at their La Zarzuela Palace residence in the outskirts of Madrid.

A spokesman for the royal household said the king had received many congratulatory letters from Spain and abroad.

The king and his Greek-born wife Queen Sofia and their three children returned home Sunday from the winter ski resort of Baqueira Beret where the royal family spent the year-end holidays.

Press Angers Royal Family

LONDON (AP) — Prince Charles, Britain's heir to the throne, has delivered a special message to editors in Fleet Street, Britain's newspaper row: "Have a nasty New Year."

The Prince's comment, which drew widespread publicity in Britain's newspapers Monday, was the latest in a series of public expressions of royal disapproval over the nation's newsman.

The Queen, Prince Charles and other members of the royal family, currently on their customary New Year vacation at Sandringham, are being hounded by reporters and photographers whenever they leave the estate.

The press is on the look-out for Lady Diana Spencer, who is rumored to be on the verge of marrying Prince Charles, 32.

"Neither the queen nor any other member of the royal family can leave the grounds of Sandringham without running into the press," said Michael Shea, the queen's press secretary. "The queen has become increasingly angry about this, to put it bluntly."

Waterbed Catches On Fire

DU QUOIN, ILL. (AP) — The DuQuoin Fire Department got an unusual call over the weekend: somebody's waterbed was on fire.

Fire officials said Robert Krummerich had put plumbing heating tape around the perimeter of the mattress as a heater. That would have worked fine, said Fire Chief Richard Fronck, but excess footage of the tape was wadded in a ball in the corner where the overlapped wires in the tape caught fire.

Fronck said the carpet, sheets and wooden bed frame sustained only minor damage in Saturday's blaze. Firefighters used two gallons of water and a fire extinguisher to put out the flames, he said.

Billy Graham Goes To Poland

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — American evangelist Billy Graham arrived in Poland Sunday night to receive the first honorary degree given to an American by the Polish Theological Academy.

A spokesman for Graham said he would meet with Cardinal Stefan Wyszyński, Poland's Roman Catholic primate, on Tuesday before the award ceremony.

The American clergyman goes on Wednesday to Hungary for a three-day visit and will receive an honorary degree from the Hungarian Calvinist Church. He is expected to meet with Imre Miklos, president of the Hungarian government's Church Affairs Bureau, and will visit Debrecen, in eastern Hungary, the center of Hungarian Calvinism.

Sherlock Holmes Honored

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — Sherlock Holmes fans can almost always hunt up some occasion to honor the Master Sleuth.

The latest was the centennial of that dark and stormy night in London when Holmes first met Dr. John Watson in a cluttered chemical laboratory in London.

"The centennial is particularly important because ... this was the beginning of their careers," society member Donald Henderson said at a Saturday night celebration in this Los Angeles suburb. "Had Holmes and Watson not met, we'd never have heard of Holmes, for Watson sat down what little we know of Holmes. He was his Boswell."

Club Hangs Money On Ceiling

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — There is money hanging from the ceiling at Frank's Restaurant on Asylum Avenue in Hartford — $51,000 worth.

Checks and bills — ones, 10s, 20s and 50s — are stuck to the ceiling beams with tacks. And hanging nearby is a sign that says "Connecticut Italian Earthquake Relief Fund."

The money was put there by members of the Sausage Club, a social club that has been meeting for 12 years on Sundays at Frank's to eat none other than sausage. But while they eat, they talk about their semiannual charity drive. And the latest cause is Italian earthquake victims.

During the big breakfast, including mozzarella cheese fried in bread crusts with tomato sauce, scrambled eggs with zucchini and ham, assorted pastries and plenty of wine, the club's president and also the state's official photographer, Aurel Couture, goes around collecting money that he tacks to the ceiling with a long pole.

Film Subject Kept Secret

ROME (AP) — Federico Fellini has begun preparations for a new film, but with the Italian director's usual secrecy only the title is known.

The film will be called "The Sarajevo Assassination." Film sources said they doubted it would be an historical epic about the incident that triggered World War I.

It will be filmed at the Rome studio Cinecitta, where Fellini has made most of his movies including his last film, "The City of Women."

Jarvis To Tour Texas

AUSTIN (AP) — Howard Jarvis, leader of the Proposition 13 campaign in California, will start an 18-city tour of Texas on Tuesday. It will end with a statewide tax relief rally here Jan. 12, the day before the Legislature convenes.

Jarvis' tour was announced by Waggoner Carr, president of Texas 13, a statewide organization that advocates initiative and referendum, reduced government spending and lower taxes.

Many Texans are complaining about increases in their property taxes, but the Texas Research League says the burden of state and local taxes — 8.53 percent of total personal income — is the lowest in the nation.

Jarvis' schedule includes appearances in El Paso on Tuesday; Lubbock and Midland on Wednesday; Odessa, Abilene and Fort Worth on Thursday; Tyler, Waco and Dallas on Friday; Lufkin, Beaumont, Galveston and Houston on Saturday; Victoria and McAllen on Sunday; and Harlingen, San Antonio and Austin on Monday, Jan. 12.

Carr, a former state attorney general, said Texas 13 was not named for Proposition 13 but for the original 13 colonies "which fought against unjust and burdensome taxation."

He said his organization is a coalition of 28 local groups with about 55,000 members.

The Avalanche-Journal is one of the few things left in the world that is worth considerably more than the price you pay for it.

The Avalanche-Journal means value. Value that is both tangible and intangible.

Then there are the tangible benefits derived from reading the Avalanche-Journal. The cash benefits. The money you can save by subscribing to the A-J.

Intangible value that comes with the quality of news coverage you receive by reading The Avalanche-Journal — a level of editorial excellence on the local, national and international levels unparalleled in West Texas.

For instance, we publish a variety of store coupons each week. By using just some of them, you can save enough on purchases to more than pay for that week's A-J. Add to this the many advertised sales and your savings are greater.

All this boils down to one point. Subscribing to The Avalanche-Journal is more than getting a newspaper. It's making a profitable investment.
