

Agreement Hinted On Hostage Crisis

U.S. Regards Development Seriously

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has received indications that Iran may be favorably disposed toward accepting the latest American proposals for ending the hostage crisis, U.S. officials said Tuesday night.

The officials, who asked not to be identified, said preliminary signals from Iran suggest that the two sides have reached "agreement on some basic principles" to settle the 14-month old impasse over the 52 Americans.

Word of the new Iranian position came five days after Algerian intermediaries went to Tehran to outline the latest U.S. proposals.

"The Iranians apparently are prepared to come up with figures of their own," one official said.

The officials flatly refused to discuss details of the nature or source of the information they had received from Tehran.

ABC reported Tuesday night that Iran was willing to accept in principle the new U.S. offer but the American officials described that report as much more positive than the situation warrants.

Nonetheless, the new signals prompted a top level State Department meeting late Tuesday involving Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher, White House press secretary Jody Powell and other senior officials.

One official said the new information was "significant enough to take with a degree of seriousness."

Another official, who declined to be named, said he understood that Iran had agreed in principle to a settlement, but he cautioned that a deal had not necessarily been struck. The official said the phrase "in principle" leaves a lot to be worked out and added "until you have an agreement, there is none."

President Carter, in a speech Tuesday to a White House dinner, made no mention of the hostage situation. Across the street, President-elect Ronald Reagan was asked about the report as he entered Blair House and said "Just let me say I think now, at this point with that going on, no comment from me. We'll just hope and pray."

Meanwhile, Carter administration officials said Tuesday that the hostages have been dispersed to secret locations and some may be in jail.

Officials Skeptical

Despite claims by the Iranian government that it had taken charge of the Americans while weighing the latest U.S. proposal for a negotiated settlement of the long hostage issue, officials here were skeptical.

"If they were under government control we would be in touch with them by telephone, letters would get through, and that hasn't happened," one official said.

"I just don't believe the government really has control of the hostages," said the official, who asked not to be identified.

Escrow Account

The latest American proposal for an agreement to end the crisis centers on setting up an escrow account with several billion dollars in seized Iranian assets to be turned over to Iran when the hostages are freed.

In Tehran, meanwhile, Iranian revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini was reported to have given the government permission to accept guarantees that had Algeria's approval.

Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai told Iranian Television that Khomeini had authorized the government to accept unspecified guarantees by Algeria "to solve out problem with the United States" in negotiations to free the 52 American hostages.

But officials here said that does not mean progress toward an agreement since Iranian authorities already had said they would go along with terms the Algerians proposed.

Draft Signup Data Guarded

By MARY ALICE ROBBINS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

IT APPARENTLY will be several months before the American public learns how successful the country's current draft registration of 18-year-olds has been.

U.S. Postal Service officials are in charge of the registration effort, but one local official said he has been instructed to remain mum on the subject.

Don Jones, the man in charge of this area's registration process, said Tuesday that no statistical information regarding the draft signup can be released.

During the first mass registration in July, Jones had kept an unofficial running count of the number of local registrants. But that information no longer can be provided, Jones told The Avalanche-Journal.

Jones said he received instructions this past weekend from the Postal Service's headquarters in Washington, D.C., not to discuss the number of young men who have been registered.

Those instructions gave no reason for the withholding of information, Jones said. However, he said he believes the Postal Service wants its employees "to stay out of the limelight" in the registration effort.

"We're not taking a stand for or against the Selective Service," Jones said. "We're just in the program, the place to register."

Jones said the Postal Service's role is to provide the registration cards to young men and to help them if they have any questions regarding the cards.

All information regarding the Selective Service and the draft registration is printed in brochures made available to registrants, Jones said.

"That's all the information we have," he added. "We don't know anything about the Selective Service."

Avoiding Inaccuracies
The Postal Service also wants to avoid having one of its employees release inaccurate information regarding the draft registration, Jones said.

He noted the difficulty in trying to compile local statistics on the number of registrants. In Lubbock, Jones said, young men can sign up at any one of five post offices, which return all of their registration cards to him. About 80 post offices in this area also return their registration information to Jones' office, he said.

Reports from each station will be turned in twice during the registration period which continues through Jan. 14, Jones noted.

Postal employees also have been instructed to avoid any arguments with the men they are registering. "We're not going to get into any arguments with anybody," Jones said.

If a registration card is returned with an unfiled blank, a postal worker will ask if the registrant meant to leave out that information. If the answer is yes, no more questions will be asked, Jones said.

Postal workers also have been instructed to request some form of identification from the men they register. However, Jones said, if the registrant does not want to provide any identification,

Conservative Democrats Help Hance Land Committee Seat

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

CONSERVATIVE Democrats' successful efforts for more influence in the selection of House of Representatives committee members apparently helped U.S. Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock secure nomination Tuesday to the House Ways and Means Committee.

Hance, 38, was the first of three Democrats nominated Tuesday for seats on the exclusive committee by the 29-member Democratic Steering and Policy Committee.

Members of the Conservative Democratic Forum, which counts Hance among its seven members from the Texas congressional delegation, recently convinced House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., to place more conservatives on the Steering and Policy Committee.

O'Neill, who appoints eight of the members, "gave the conservatives more than we expected," said Rep. Jack Hightower, D-Vernon.

O'Neill named Reps. Bo Ginn of Georgia, Wes Watkins of Oklahoma and Tom Bevill of Alabama to the steering committee, Hightower said. A fourth member of the Conservative Democratic Forum, Rep. Billy Tauzin of Louisiana, also was named to the steering committee as a representative of the 97th Congress freshman class, according to Rep. Charles Stenholm of Stamford.

"Very Helpful" Appointment
Stenholm said Hance's Ways and Means nomination was supported by every member of the Conservative Democratic Forum, and he said the appointment of conservatives to the steering committee was "very helpful."

But both Stenholm and Hightower said Hance's hard work to secure the nomination was a much larger factor in the committee's decision than efforts by the conservative Democrats for more representation on the committee.

"Kent worked very hard for that position," Stenholm said. "I wouldn't take anything away from Kent's ability and the way he was able to present himself to the committee members. It's my understanding he was the first member selected," Stenholm said. "That's quite a feat for a second-term man."

"Kent had worked very hard working with members of the committee and soliciting their support," Hightower said. "I don't think any organization could take any credit for it."

Forum Contributed
However, Hightower said the work of other Texans to regain the third "Texas seat" on the Ways and Means Committee and the efforts of the conservative forum contributed to the nomination.

Traditionally, Texas has had two Democrats and one Republican on the Ways and Means Committee, Stenholm said. But Texans were unsuccessful in holding on to the committee seat of Rep. Omar Burleson of Anson, who retired two years ago, he said.

Other Texans on the committee are Rep. Jake Pickle, D-Austin, and Rep.

tion of the House and Senate called to count the votes.

The mostly ceremonial ratification of the electoral college votes cleared the way for Reagan and Bush to be inaugurated Jan. 20.

And it highlighted a day in which Senate committees began scrutinizing some of the people Reagan has selected to run his new administration.

Although devoid of drama — the electoral college votes paralleled the outcome of the popular vote in each state in the Nov. 4 election — the session did produce a bit of wry wit from the Democratic side.

"It doesn't look good," came a voice from the podium occupied by Mondale and House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill as the tellers tallied the votes announced from each of the states.

Earlier in the day, Senate panels began hearings aimed at confirming Reagan's choices for his Cabinet. Senate Republican leaders hope to complete all committee hearings on the Cabinet choices before Jan. 20, the date of Reagan's inauguration.

Defense Secretary-designate Casper W. Weinberger made a bit of news by predicting Reagan would wait at least six months before trying to renegotiate the SALT II treaty with the Soviet Union.

Reagan has long opposed the arms limitation treaty negotiated by the Carter administration, saying he believes it is too favorable to the Soviet Union.

Weinberger told the Senate Armed Services Committee the Reagan administration would not want to begin the SALT II talks until it had formulated its policy on such matters as production of the controversial MX missile.

"I don't think we should enter these negotiations lightly or ill-advisedly and I think we should have a very clear idea of the objectives we would want to pursue and the way we would like to see it come

O'NEILL TREATED

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. was treated Tuesday night at Bethesda Naval Hospital for a prostate inflammation. O'Neill, who has had prostate problems in the past, was flown by helicopter from the Capitol to the hospital. After the brief treatment, he walked out and was driven home, an aide said.

Polish Farm Group Takes Over Building

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — In Poland's first major protest of the new year, farmers took over an administrative building less than 10 miles from the Soviet border to demand an investigation of local corruption, union sources said Tuesday.

Workers in three towns near the Soviet border staged a one-hour warning strike Tuesday to support the farmers, the sources said. They reported government delegates arrived and opened talks with the workers, but said there was no indication they would negotiate with the farmers.

The talks in the border town of Ustrzyki Dolne were suspended until noon Wednesday to allow the government team to contact Warsaw officials.

The Communist Party Politburo, in what may have been a response to a series of recent farmers' protests, announced approval of a number of agricultural reforms.

Poland's official news agency PAP said the reforms included a freeze on the prices of farm equipment, elimination of the land tax in mountainous areas and more money for farmers cooperative associations. Farmers combine their resources in the associations to purchase fertilizer and other needs.

Members of the fledgling independent farmers union said the sit-in began

Dec. 29 in a government building in Ustrzyki Dolne, a small town in southeastern Poland.

The takeover and were joined Tuesday by a delegation from the Rzeszow area, 40 miles north.

The farmers' group, nicknamed "Rural Solidarity," claims to represent about one-third of the nation's 3.5 million private farmers. Unlike the socialized agriculture in other Soviet bloc countries, Poland's private farmers produce about three-fourths of its food.

Leaders of the self-styled union had promised Dec. 30 not to pressure the regime until the Supreme Court ruled on its appeal to form a union. But they authorized the sit-in because it was not related to the registration issue, sources said.

Poland's largest independent trade union, Solidarity has called for a moratorium on strikes until Jan. 15 to give the government time to implement all conditions of the agreements that ended last summer's strikes.

Sources in Warsaw said the farmers want inspectors from the government watchdog agency, NIK, to come to Ustrzyki Dolne to investigate charges "they are cheated by everybody."

The allegations were not spelled out. See FARMERS Page 16

Iraq Denies Iran Claim Of New Counter-Attack

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iran claimed Tuesday that a powerful counter-offensive was rolling back Iraqi forces from captured Iranian territory and that the onslaught had turned the tide of the Persian Gulf war in Iran's favor.

Iraq's government-controlled media called Tehran claims of an offensive a "myth," but communiques from the Iraqi military command spoke of heavy fighting along the front in which 381 Iraqis were killed.

There was no independent verification of claims from either side.

Tehran Radio reported that millions of Iraqis stood on rooftops to beseech God for final victory as troops and tanks backed by fighter-bomber raids pressed the counter-offensive into a second day.

Iraq claimed its armed forces wiped out two Iraqi brigades and captured between 1,700 and 2,000 Iraqi soldiers on Monday.

Iraq's official Pars news agency said on Tuesday that 830 Iraqi prisoners of war were driven in buses through the streets of Ahwaz, capital of oil-rich Khuzestan province, and that thousands of Ahwaz residents cheered and chanted as the prisoners were driven past. The captives will be at a news conference in Tehran today, Pars said.

President Saddam Hussein of Iraq made no reference to an Iranian offensive in a speech Tuesday in which he vowed to aim stronger military blows at Iran until it bows to Iraq's "legitimate rights and demands."

"Only when we recognize our rights to sovereignty over all our usurped lands and waters, we will pull our forces from war-conquered Iranian territory," Hussein said in a speech marking the Iraqi army's 60th anniversary. "Otherwise we shall carry on teaching them new lessons on the battlefield."

President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr of Iran, who has been under increasing pressure from hard-line Islamic militants to launch a counter-offensive and criticized for the army's inaction, announced the offensive on Monday.

Iraq said the attacks in two major areas drove the enemy into chaotic flight, leaving the Khuzistan and Gilan Garb war zones littered with hundreds of destroyed tanks and other armored vehicles.

"So sudden was the charge that the Iraqis had no time to put up the least resistance once their forward line armor was swiftly annihilated," said Hojatollah Ali Khamenei, personal representative of supreme leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini on Iran's Supreme Defense Council.

Khomeini said the attack had turned the tide of the war and that "the enemy's

Jurors Find Williams Guilty Of Manslaughter

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff
 Joe David Williams was convicted Tuesday night of voluntary manslaughter in connection with the fatal shooting of Willis B. Sheppard in September.

Williams was tried on the first degree felony charge of murder, but after deliberating three hours, 44 minutes the 140th District Court jury found the defendant guilty of the lesser included offense of voluntary manslaughter.

Defense counsel had argued that Williams acted in self-defense or in defense of a third party.

Jurors will return to the courtroom this morning for the punishment phase of Williams' trial. He faces a sentence of two to 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Williams admitted from the witness stand Tuesday afternoon that he shot

Sheppard, but told the jury that he killed the man to protect his girlfriend.

Williams, 46, of 2805 Ivory Ave. Apt. 5, was charged with the Sept. 28 shooting death of Sheppard after the man's body was found in a muddy alley outside Williams' apartment. A Lubbock Police Department detective testified Tuesday that he arrested Williams after the defendant told him that he had shot Sheppard.

"A man lying dead in a puddle on a muddy street," prosecutor Travis Brown said in closing arguments before the seven-woman, five-man jury. "This is not Dodge City — it's Lubbock, Texas.

"You can only use deadly force if you are attacked with deadly force — that is the law."

Williams' former girlfriend, Sharlene Zethelle, testified that Williams fired a gun at Sheppard to prevent Sheppard from dragging her out of the apartment she was sharing with Williams at the time of the incident. Sheppard had come to the apartment to collect an old electricity bill, but came into the apartment without being invited, she testified.

Hart disputed Ware's argument that Williams should have called the police instead of shooting Sheppard, adding that his client simply didn't have time to hunt a telephone and call for help.

"He was dragging her out the door," Williams testified from the witness stand earlier. "If he just wanted to talk to her, he would have asked her outside."

Police Det. J.R. Ashmore testified that he and Det. George Parramore approached Williams' apartment shortly after the shooting to search for possible witnesses.

Explaining that investigators did not know the identity of the body at that time, Ashmore testified that he asked if either apartment occupant knew who the dead man was. Miss Zethelle said that she knew him and had lived with him periodically, the detective testified.

Williams answered, "I did," when asked if he knew who did the shooting.

Parramore then stopped Williams from talking. Ashmore told the seven-woman, five-man jury, and read him his Miranda warning. Williams was taken to the Lubbock Police Department.

Officers read him his rights again and Ashmore typed up a statement from Williams' account.

When Williams indicated that he was unable to read, another officer was brought in to read the statement to him, Ashmore testified.

After hearing the statement, Williams indicated it was correct, the detective testified.

Miss Zethelle singled out Williams in court Monday as the man who killed Sheppard, with whom she lived before moving in with Williams.

Her testimony, considered a crucial piece of evidence against the 46-year-old Williams, came in the first day of testimony in the trial. Williams was charged with attempted murder in late November for allegedly shooting Miss Zethelle in the head and arm in an attempt to prevent her from testifying against him.

WEATHER FORECAST — The National Weather Service forecast for today predicts snow in most of Maine and in portions of New Hampshire and Vermont. (AP Laserphoto Map)

Colder Weather Forecast For Area

Temperatures across the South Plains are expected to take a roller coaster trip for the remainder of this week, according to the National Weather Service.

Partly cloudy skies and colder temperatures should greet Lubbock residents this morning followed by a brief warmup on Thursday.

However, temperatures should drop again on Friday, according to the extended forecast.

Tuesday's cloudiness disappeared when a high pressure ridge entered Oklahoma and North Texas behind a trough line which extended from Arkansas into far South Texas. The ridge brought dry north to northwesterly winds.

Ahead of the trough, mostly in East Texas, low clouds and fog dominated with scattered areas of drizzle reported in the moist south to southwesterly wind flow.

Elsewhere in the nation, snow will spread across eastern Ohio and into New England, rain showers will be scattered from Florida to Virginia while sunshine will prevail from the Mississippi Valley to the West Coast.

Family To Celebrate Nixon Turning 68

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon will be 68 years old on Friday and he will celebrate the occasion by having the family to his New York home for a home-cooked Chinese dinner.

Julie Nixon Eisenhower, her husband David, and their children Jennie and Alexander Richard, will come to New York from their home in Berwyn, Pa., a Philadelphia suburb.

Tricia Nixon Cox, her husband Ed, and their son Christopher live in New York.

The Nixons' live-in cook and housekeeper, a Chinese couple, will prepare the dinner. Nixon, who is particularly fond of Chinese food, would often leave the White House during his presidency for dinner in Washington oriental restaurants.

The family's birthday present to Nixon — Old coffee grounds used as a mulch for house plants will add nitrogen to the soil.

INVESTORS' GUIDE
By BILL DOYLE

Q. I have been accumulating shares of stock in the company for which I work through an employee profit-sharing plan. I bought more shares of this stock through a broker.

The company also has a dividend reinvestment plan, allowing stockholders to use their dividends to buy additional full and fractional shares. I joined that plan.

Any stockholder in the dividend reinvestment plan can make additional investments in the stock by sending money to a New York bank. Is it economical and wise to purchase shares this way? Or, would it be cheaper to do it through a broker?

A. It is a whole lot more economical to make your additional investments through that plan than it would be to do it through a broker.

Although details vary from plan to plan, the basic idea behind every dividend reinvestment plan is the same. It is to give stockholders the opportunity to buy additional shares at relatively low costs.

The plan of the company you named in your letter is typical. Each time you reinvest a dividend and/or send in a check for an additional investment, you pay a service fee of 5 percent of the amount of money involved. That fee, however, never amounts to more than $2.50. You also pay your proportionate share of the brokerage commission on all the shares of stock the bank, acting as the company's agent, purchased for you and other stockholders.

Because the agent bank buys big blocks of stock, your commission charge is low.

The total of the service fee and commission you pay in that plan is much lower than the commission you would pay by buying the same amount of stock through a broker.

More and more investors recognize this and are using dividend reinvestment plans — now offered by more than 600 companies.

Q. I have $50,000 I intend to put into real estate — particularly the motel industry. What is your opinion of investing this amount in real estate, as against the stock market? I don't know much about either.

A. This column has often pointed out that more family fortunes have been made in real estate than in any other business. It has also cautioned that real estate is a highly specialized line that requires either a great deal of time, effort and knowledge or the help of people who have those virtues.

Given my druthers, I'd put that kind of money into the stock market. But I wouldn't put the whole bundle into the market, in one shot. I'd spend my investments over a period of time.

Since you admit to not knowing much about either field, my vote would be for you to steer clear of real estate and move into the stock market — cautiously.

Q. A mutual fund I have been watching calls itself a "no-load fund." However, it is quoted in the newspaper listings as "9.30 bid, $10.16 asked."

As I understand it, I would have to pay $10.16 for each share I buy and receive only $9.30 for each share I cash in. Doesn't that constitute a commission when the shares are redeemed?

A. No. It's a commission when the shares are purchased.

To begin with, that's not a no-load fund. With no-load funds, the bid and the asked prices are exactly the same. With all mutual funds, the bid price is the asset value per share — the actual dollar and cents value behind each share — and the price you get when you redeem. The asked price, which you pay when you buy, is the asset value per share, plus commission — if any.

You pay a commission when you buy shares of "load" funds. There's no commission when you sell. And you can avoid mutual fund commissions altogether, by investing in no-load funds.

Healthier Patients May Prove Threat To Doctors

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Doctors may face their stiffest competition in the future not from other physicians but from healthier patients, a research economist says.

"The most important source of competition for the doctor is going to be the patients themselves because the patients are starting to take care of themselves," said Charles Phelps, head of regulatory policies studies at Rand Corp.

Americans are smoking less, watching their weight and diet more and turning to a variety of exercises, so "they're not having to go to the doctor as much," he said.

Phelps said his conclusions were based more on "educated speculation" than pure research, but he is working now on a two-year Rand project investigating the effects of preventive medicine and lifestyle changes on health care.

Healthier Americans could have major impacts on medicine at a time when medical schools are producing ever-increasing numbers of doctors, Phelps predicted.

The Journal of the American Medical Association recently reported the 64,195 students in the nation's medical schools last year represented a 2.3 percent increase from the year before. A record 15,135 new doctors were graduated last year, continuing an increase that began in the 1960s.

Some federal officials have expressed worry about a coming glut of doctors. But the AMA said the trend isn't likely to continue because medical schools already have begun restricting admissions.

Besides increasing competition for patient dollars, a healthier population might also affect the types of specialties that will attract doctors.

"Twenty or 30 years from now, we're going to have an older population because we're not killing ourselves off as much at a young age," Phelps said, so society will need more gerontologists and specialists in such aging-related diseases as arthritis.

"It's going to have an odd effect," Phelps said. "It's sort of like postponing medical expenses. ... Something kills all of us eventually; the death rate is one person ultimately."

He said the most impressive change in recent years has been the reduction in cigarette smoking. While two-thirds of young men smoked in 1964, only about 40 percent are smokers today.

"The result has been just major reductions in diseases associated with smoking," such as lung cancer, strokes and heart attacks, Phelps said. Sports such as running, tennis, bicycling, swimming and racketball are increasingly popular and "they're all going to have good long-term impacts on heart attacks," he added.

FOR FRIEND AND FOE

Letting Go Of Status Quo

AS THE REALITY of a Reagan administration begins to grip the international community, all sides are wondering whether to expect any sharp lurches, one way or another, in U.S. foreign policy.

If by sharp we mean sudden and unexpected, the answer would appear to be "no." The President-elect has been forthright and consistent in his world view, and it would be unrealistic, indeed, to expect any extraordinary surprises.

If, on the other hand, one means substantial change from today's foreign policy posture, the answer would appear to be "yes."

There is little in the makeup of the Reagan administration or the man himself to suggest that he will accept the status quo.

WHAT, THEN, in the way of change? As a general rule, odds are the Reagan administration will be harder on our foes, and more cooperative with our friends.

The banner of human rights, while understood, will be waved with a steady hand, and applied equally to the totalitarian regimes of the East, or not at all.

After all, the President-elect and his advisors argue convincingly that it makes no sense to squeeze friendly governments on these issues, while letting the Soviets and their stooges completely off the hook.

Watch for the Reagan administration to cement our long-standing friendships with such stalwart allies as Israel, South Korea, and South Africa.

And expect it not to stab our friends in the back, as the Carter administration did to lonely Taiwan—which continues to stand by us, despite the present administration's best efforts to ignore the reality of a thriving island of 18 million.

EVEN HERE, there'll be changes, though experts agree that they are likely to be low key, neither earth-shaking nor insignificant—perhaps as much style as substance.

In fact, says Dr. James Hsiung of New York University, if the new administration does nothing more than put a stop to the "pettiness" that has characterized U.S. dealings with Taiwan since President Carter discontinued formal diplomatic relations, it will be a step in the right direction.

Dr. Y.M. Kau of Brown University hit the nail on the head when he noted that our current policy toward Taiwan is based on the "fiction" that Taiwan does not exist.

"Even some of the world's most murderous regimes are treated with more respect and dignity," he writes.

Yes, watch for some changes. They may be quiet and gradual, as in the case of U.S.-Taiwan relations, or forceful and bold, as in our dealings with the Soviet Union. But it's doubtful there'll be any real surprises.

TUG OF JUDICIAL WAR

Rights Issue On Other Foot

A JUDICIAL tug-of-war between a federal judge and a state judge in Louisiana has brought the nation full circle in dealing with civil rights issues.

In the 1950s, 1960s and into the 1970s, it was the federal courts which insisted that no person could be discriminated against on the basis of race.

Now, though, the shoe is on the other foot. A federal judge is ordering racial discrimination and it is a Louisiana state judge who is insisting that an individual's rights must be protected regardless of race.

Ultimately, because of the superior power of the federal courts, the issue will be decided there. Whether justice will prevail remains to be seen.

THE CASE AT HAND involves three white teenage girls. The issue is whether they can be assigned to a school because of the color of their skin.

Federal Judge Nauman Scott, hewing to guidelines handed down from above in earlier school desegregation cases, ruled that a public purpose—i.e., racial balance in the classrooms—outweighed the personal choice of the three students and their parents.

As pawns in a busing plan for Alexandria, La., Judge Scott ordered the three girls to be enrolled in predominantly black Jones Street Junior High School, 15 miles away.

M. STANTON EVANS:

Our Allies Sacrificed On Human Rights Altar

WASHINGTON—Among its other legacies to Ronald Reagan, the Carter administration has left a smoldering mess in Central America.

In the four years that Jimmy Carter has occupied the White House, the region between the Mexican border and the Continent of South America has gone up in flames.

Long-time U.S. allies have been toppled, others are under punishing attack, Marxist regimes and movements are flourishing—largely as a result of deliberate policies in Washington.

Currently getting press attention in this respect is El Salvador, but the process is also underway in neighboring Guatemala, and has already been completed in Nicaragua. We are witnessing a broad-gauged Marxist drive to control the region, powerfully abetted by the Carter State Department.

A LEFTWARD clique within our government has labored diligently to promote the cause of collectivist revolution in the area, and to bring inexorable pressure to bear on anti-Communist regimes selected for extinction.

The classic case was Nicaragua, where we cut off aid to the Somoza government, and pressured others to do the same, in the name of human rights.

Once the Marxists were in power, we rushed to shower them with assistance—even though human rights under the Sandinistas are virtually non-existent.

The case of El Salvador is just as bad. Last year our State Department cheered on a coup d'etat against the elected government, then helped ram through a program of collectivist land reform that involved the forcible seizure of private property.

IT IS THE military government that the Carter administration has supported that is currently under attack in El Salvador. In the meantime eco-

Spring is the season of hope. Hope that your garden will grow and your crabgrass won't.

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

Adios To Chrysler?

NOVAK

WASHINGTON—Unless Ronald Reagan succumbs to congressional pressure, he will preside over the biggest bankruptcy in American history by disconnecting the Chrysler Corp. from its federal life-support system as part of radical policy change in Washington.

There is no voice among economic officials appointed so far by President-elect Reagan which favors sending good money after bad to keep Chrysler alive.

The question is not if but when. Their answer: The sooner the better, as close as possible to the Carter administration to avoid a misleading impression that the beleaguered automaker's troubles originated with Reagan.

Far from breeding panic in financial markets, Chrysler belly-up might have the opposite effect, say Reagan advisers.

ANDREW TULLY:

No More Demands

WASHINGTON—"I am disgusted with the government of Iran," said the man at the Embassy of Saudi Arabia. "It is sickening that even today they present themselves as the aggrieved party in the matter of your hostages. They are still saying that they had a legal right to violate international law by seizing those hostages."

He was asked what his government would do under similar circumstances. He smiled.

"We have different ways of handling such crimes," he said. "I think it can be said that we would have gotten our hostages out—or tried to do so—long before now, and then negotiated with an Iranian regime that had been terribly punished by the rescue operations."

LIKE THIS American, the Saudi diplomat is appalled by the terms proposed by Iran for release of the 52 hostages. In effect, those terms only make things worse by demanding payment of ransom while giving nothing in return.

The Iranians now ask that $9 billion in frozen assets be returned forthwith the rest of the claims for $24 billion in U.S. guarantees be worked out.

And only then would the hostages be freed. That only then might not arrive for many months or even years. With the hostages still imprisoned the Iranians would be under no pressure to hasten completion of the negotiations.

Why did Iran's ruling outlaws come up with latest proposal? The answer is simple. Like creeps of their type everywhere, they want to see and handle some American money in advance.

WITH THAT money in hand, their economy would be given a lift and they could be more leisurely in negotiating for the rest of the $24 billion.

I wonder if the Iranians made their latest "final" offer because they didn't like to calculate their chances of dealing with a President named Reagan.

After all, Reagan talked pretty tough when the bums in Tehran first set the ransom at $24 billion.

"I think all of us down deep inside have an anger," Reagan said, addressing "the idea that (the hostages) captors today are still making demands on us for their return when their captors are no better than criminals and kidnapers."

But if the Iranians fear Reagan, they are unwise in down-rating Jimmy Carter.

HE HAS said that paying the ransom and the release of the hostages must be simultaneous events, and there is no reason to believe he has changed his mind.

It seems to me, too, that the Iranian thugs made a mistake in parading the hostages for television. Apparently, they believed this cynical act would make American willing to pay any price for the hostages' release.

But gangsters should be wary of trying to peddle stolen goods on the installment plan.

We all want the hostages back—yesterday. But Iran's latest proposal suggests a certain weakness in its position. This is a very good time for the U.S. to hang tough.

The dramatic sign that Uncle Sam no longer will extend credit to failing enterprises may well promote Reagan's early economic policy goal of reviving the failing bond market.

Specifically, Chrysler will go bankrupt sometime this spring unless it gets more federal loan guarantees on top of $800 million authorized so far.

Among Reagan advisers and Wall Streeters alike, there is practically no hope for Chrysler's ultimate survival. They believe more federal help merely postpones the inevitable, as do concessions by labor and suppliers.

Officials in President Carter's Treasury most familiar with Chrysler could not agree more. In fact, they have been surprised that a signal did not come from the President-elect to pull the plug on Chrysler now—on Carter's watch, instead of Reagan's.

THAT WOULD have required an intricate maneuver. The chairman of the Chrysler Loan Guarantee Board (LGB), Treasury Secretary G. William Miller, would oppose any such cutoff.

Whether a whispered word from Reagan would sway the two other board members—Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker and Comptroller General Elmer Staats—is debatable.

All such considerations are moot, however, considering the President-elect's failure to even consider that option. In the lackadaisical fashion with which high policy has been handled during the transition, Chrysler was not seriously discussed by Reagan.

FOR THAT reason, it cannot be assumed the new President will resist pressure from Chrysler dealers and Chrysler workers funneled through congressmen.

Yet, on this as on many questions, Reagan's first reaction was correct. He intuitively opposed the Chrysler bailout, retreating only under intense pressure during the campaign.

The right to fail is viewed by Reagan as integral to a rejuvenated free market where government subsidy is diminished along with government taxation and government regulation. That was the essential choice for Republicans between Ronald Reagan and John B. Connally.

There are no economic Connallyites in the Reagan Cabinet. Budget director-designate David Stockman was the only member of the Michigan congressional delegation to vote against the Chrysler bailout. He has not repented.

TREASURY SECRETARY-designate Donald Regan has been considered a possible weak link—an impression enhanced by comments over a luncheon in Wall Street Dec. 16 by his friend and fellow stockbroker I.W. Burnham III.

"I have known Don Regan very well for many years," said Burnham, "and I have no doubt that he will not allow Detroit to go bust. He will stop imports by imposing a ban on them for three to six months..."

But Burnham has not talked to Regan lately. In private, the new Treasury chief has opposed any trade protection for the auto industry while agreeing with Stockman on the need to end the Chrysler bailout.

When Regan replaces Miller as chairman of the Loan Guarantee Board, there will no longer be an ardent voice for maintaining the life-support system.

SUCH PROSPECTS a year ago would have sent Wall Street into a frenzy. Today's sentiment there, which turned against further federal help in the wake of massive buyer resistance to the K-car, hopes a Reagan hard line on Chrysler will change investor psychology sufficiently to save the bond market.

The message, transcending Chrysler, would be sent to other troubled businesses, including savings and loan institutions. "We want the financial community to know that the federal government won't be sopping up credit to help failed enterprises," a Reagan adviser told us.

That would be concomitant with less regulation and falling tax rates as part of a lowered federal profile on the business horizon. To achieve that, there seems no way to Reagan's men that Chrysler can be saved.

JAY HARRIS:

A Signup Debate...

ANOTHER ONE of those "great debates," this one on Selective Service registration, may be in the offing...

Over the past 10 months-plus since President Carter first called for a resumption of a signup of young American men, arguments, both pro and con, have raged on the subject.

This week, it is waxing warm and heavy, along with protests, organized and otherwise.

The reason, of course, is that registration for men born in 1962 is underway. And those born in 1963, and later, will be marching to the nation's post offices within 30 days of their 18th birthdays.

Beneath all the hoopla, protests and reasons for the signup is something more basic: Has America lost its will to defend itself?

THERE ARE those who argue that the last premise is not an issue, that other factors are involved, including everything from isn't needed to the fact women aren't included.

Perhaps, but, the main issue is how to keep the nation prepared, militarily and mentally, to meet whatever obligations it may face in a world which as former Sec. of State Henry Kissinger said "is slowly sliding out of control."

The main purpose of the current registration is to build a pool of names and addresses from which Selective Service could draw in an emergency. It is a continuation of the signup begun last summer for young men born in 1960-61.

But those who oppose the registration and see it as a step toward a draft and the draft as a leap toward war are seeking to marshal opposition similar to that which boiled up during the Sixties and the Vietnam conflict.

The odds are it won't happen this time around.

FOR ONE thing, the mood of the country has changed. For another, the international situation has changed.

Back in the days of Berkeley and the campus sit-down protests, the U.S. was involved in a war which wasn't popular, a conflict with somewhat fuzzy aims and one which was being waged by politicians rather than those trained for such things.

In the second place, it was a war we were losing and one which many perceived was being fought by only certain elements of the nation's citizens while others either ran for Canada or evaded their responsibilities by hook or crook.

Today, not only the attitude toward defending the nation, but the recognition of the danger to it is vastly different. The Iran hostage situation, Russia's invasion of Afghanistan, the Soviet-Cuban "adventures" in Africa, all add up to a good case for preparedness.

AND PREPAREDNESS is just what the current Selective Registration is all about, its backers say.

That and the fact that registration was actually a part of the All-Volunteer Force concept when the draft ended back in 1972.

At that time, registration continued until suspended in 1975. Since then, the All-Volunteer idea, while commendable, nevertheless has not provided the nation with the numbers or caliber of people needed to maintain the sort of program most experts deem necessary, especially in an emergency.

Recently, Selective Service officials have answered a number of arguments against the signup. Among the complaints are those that 1. "This silly little post-card registration doesn't help at all," that it saves no time; 2. That the past summer's registration was a fiasco; 3. That even if 95 percent of those who are supposed to register do, you still "have created a generation of felons, or almost 200,000 non-registrants"; 4. "There is no demonstrated need for the draft..."; 5. "There's never been a registration without a draft, and there's never been a draft without a war..."

THERE ARE other accusations in the arsenal of those who were in the streets this week with their protest signs.

Dr. Bernard D. Rostker, director of SS, has sought to defuse some of the anger and emotion ahead of the signup:

"Registration directly improves our capability to respond, actually reducing lead time by at least four weeks. We think that provides a significant advantage, especially when matched with the low cost (less than $2 per registrant) involved."

As for the past summer's signup, officials say that as of mid-December, 95 percent of those who should have appeared had. As for those who don't or won't, the same officials note that the courts can handle such cases, that there have always been those who opposed registration or the draft, some for legitimate reasons, but that for those who evade it there is a stigma hard to erase.

ONE OF THE more emotional protest claims is that registration leads to a draft and a draft to war.

SS officials say that "in U.S. history, a declaration of war has usually preceded, not followed a draft. World War II was an exception, but the world was at war in 1940 when the U.S. moved toward increased readiness with the draft..."

That conflict, including the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor—which wasn't brought about by the draft—and the changing world situation—including the fact the U.S. can't even rescue its own hostages—has done much to change Americans' thinking about such things.

The biggest challenge to the signup may come from the fact that women are not included, which in reality they probably should be. A Supreme Court challenge on that point is now pending.

Behind it all is one fact of history. Seldom in the annals of mankind has a nation with an obviously superior military force been attacked. The pages of history are filled with what happens when a nation becomes weak and loses its will to defend itself. There is no such thing as "too much lead time" on Freedom...

L.M. BOYD:

Pass It On...

Q. "WHAT'S THE average sentence for a first offender, whatever the crime?"

A. If that first offender is sentenced at all, said sentence averages 36 months. But the actual time served only averages 19 months.

Q. "Has it been customary among any of the Africans to eat elephant meat?"

A. Among the Wataveta tribes of East Africa, it has been. Understand it's pretty tough. The English colonialists down that way developed a saying: "You cook it from Monday morning to Friday night and chew it from Friday night to Monday morning."

Designer Selects Worst-Dressed Women

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Described as "looking like a Halloween trick without the treat" 15-year-old actress Brooke Shields was named Tuesday as the worst-dressed woman of 1980 by fashion designer Mr. Blackwell.

For the 21st year, the acerbic designer presented his list of the worst-dressed women of the year, saying all 10 of his selections seemed to "care less" about how they look.

"She's awfully young to be putting herself up as a sex image and I think her mother should be totally condemned for this," Blackwell said of the teen-age actress, star of "Pretty Baby," "Blue Lagoon" and ads for Calvin Klein jeans.

Her wardrobe is too adult, said Blackwell.

"It is outrageous that we don't allow youth to be young," he said. "They should be allowed to stay young as long as they can."

Actress Elizabeth Taylor came in second on his list.

"She should brush her hair and get rid of that baby blue eyeshadow which she lays on like a layer of paint," Blackwell said of Miss Taylor, wife of Sen. John Warner, R-Va. "I don't know of one movie star who has worse taste. No one has made the list so often."

Dubbed as "recycled spaghetti" TV actress Suzanne Somers took third place.

Actress Bo Derek, star of the movie "10," fell from first place on Blackwell's 1979 list to fourth in 1980. Blackwell said Miss Derek looked like "a butterfly wearing her cocoon."

One surprising choice for the list was Princess Grace of Monaco, who in 1960 made Blackwell's best dressed list. The former Grace Kelly was No. 9 on his 1980 worst list.

"Instead of looking more exciting, she has become more dowdy," Blackwell said of Princess Grace. "Because she has gone mature in her figure she should have compensated in her silhouette."

Blackwell no longer does a best-dressed list but does name several "fabulous fashion independents" every year. That list is led by actress Sophia Loren, he said.

Blackwell wore a subdued plaid two-piece suit with a blue shirt and maroon tie as he made his announcement at his home in Hancock Park.

Others on his 1980 worst dressed list were:

- *5. Charlene Tilton of the "Dallas" TV series, "a pinup for Fredericks' of Hollywood."
- *6. Queen Beatrix of The Netherlands, "Cinderella after midnight."
- *7. actress-singer Susan Anton, "an ad for a swap meet."
- *8. pro golfer Nancy Lopez, "a swinging fashion tragedy."
- *9. singer Marie Osmond, "Someone should unplug this Christmas Tree."

wife of the president-elect, as "one of the most beautifully groomed women ... feminine, female perfection."

Blackwell described the "well dressed woman" as someone who knows herself and ignores "the dictates of fashion" to concentrate on what makes her look the best.

Louisville Settles Policeman's Suit

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A black man who alleged he lost an eye when beaten by a white policeman has reached an out-of-court settlement with the city of Louisville, according to attorneys.

Fred J. Harris, 25, had sued the city and Patrolman Robert Whittaker for $3 million, alleging Whittaker beat him in the stomach and struck him in the eye with a flashlight when he was arrested on June 20, 1979.

The case became an emotional cause in the city's black community.

Attorneys for Harris and the city declined to disclose the amount of the settlement Monday. But The Louisville Courier-Journal said it was believed to be about $50,000.

Harris was found innocent of three charges, including resisting arrest. Four theft charges were dismissed.

Dollar, Gold Record Mixed Performances

NEW YORK (AP) — The dollar turned in a mixed showing in late foreign exchange trading Tuesday despite a drop in interest rates that sent the American currency plunging a day before.

Gold prices rose as much as $4.20 an ounce in New York and Zurich, but fell slightly in London. While bullion trading was said to be moderate, "there were just no big players" in the market, one banker said.

The price of gold for January delivery climbed $4.20 an ounce to $597.80 on the Commodity Exchange Inc. in New York. Later, Republic National Bank quoted gold at $597, up $4. Gold rose $4 to $599.50 in Zurich, but fell 50 cents to $601.50 in London.

The fall in U.S. interest rates continued Tuesday as Chemical Bank reduced its prime lending rate a full percentage point to 19.5 percent following Federal Reserve reports of slowing money-supply growth and falling loan demand.

But traders said the federal funds rate — the influential rate on overnight loans of excess cash among American banks — remained steady at 19.5 to 20 percent through the day.

The charge for federal funds is a major factor in the cost of short-term loans, and the indicator "eventually should indeed break" along with other rates, a trader for an international bank said.

On Tuesday, however, the steady rate on the overnight loans "was the reason the dollar did not go down as much as it could have," he said.

Late New York dollar rates included: 1.9385 West German marks, up from 1.9365 Monday; 4.4880 French francs, up from 4.4825; 1.7518 Swiss francs, down from 1.7543; 1.1883 Canadian dollars, down from 1.1892; and 199.72 Japanese yen, up from 199.13.

In Tokyo earlier in the day, the dollar fell to a 23-month low of 199.60 yen, down from 201.40 Monday.

Japanese bankers predicted the dollar would fall to at least 190 yen, although they said a steep drop in American interest rates could send the dollar plunging toward the post-war low of 175.50 yen recorded on the Japanese market on Oct. 31, 1978.

Interest Rate Drop May Ease

NEW YORK (AP) — Falling interest rates, which had sparked a sense of euphoria in the nation's financial markets as the week opened, showed signs of stalling Tuesday, although a major New York bank cut its prime lending rate to 19.5 percent.

Interest rates in the credit markets had plunged on Monday, driving bond prices sharply higher, after the Federal Reserve Board reported an unexpectedly large decline in the nation's money supply. Lower rates also had pushed the dollar sharply lower on foreign exchange markets and had driven stock prices higher.

But on Tuesday, the downward momentum was slowed and interest rates stabilized. For example, three-month Treasury bills trading in the secondary market edged slightly lower on Tuesday after plunging more than one percentage point to 13.60 percent on Monday.

In the bond market, where prices of long-term debt securities jumped more than 2 points, or $20 for each $1,000 in face value, on Monday, the rally stalled. Bond prices, which move up when interest rates fall, edged slightly higher.

In the currency markets, the U.S. dollar was little changed against most major currencies in New York trading after a day of steep declines on Monday. For example, the dollar gained against the British pound after losing ground on Monday. In Europe, the dollar continued its downward descent and gold prices were mixed.

The stock market, which reacted strongly to Monday's announcement of slower growth in the nation's money supply and to declining interest rates, advanced by a smaller margin on Tuesday.

After topping the 1,000 mark at mid-session and then retreating, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks surged in the final half-hour to close at 1004.69, up 12.03 points. On Monday, the Dow Jones average had gained 19.88 points, to close at 992.66.

Many Wall Street analysts believe interest rates will continue to fall, although at a somewhat slower pace, over the next several weeks. That view is also held by some economists who say the sharp decline in the money supply will prompt the Federal Reserve to ease up on its credit-tightening program.

David Jones, a financial economist at the Wall Street securities firm of Aubrey G. Lanston & Co., said he believes the Federal Reserve will ease its stance on credit in coming weeks, thus permitting interest rates to slide further.

"In general, the trend is still downward," Jones said.

The decline in the money supply — funds readily available for spending — has reinforced a growing sense in the financial markets that the Federal Reserve has brought the money supply under greater control and made progress toward its goal of curbing inflation.

The downward trend in interest rates was underscored when Chemical Bank, the nation's sixth-largest commercial bank, cut its prime lending rate by one percentage point to 19.5 percent, the lowest among major banks.

Morgan Guaranty Trust Co., the No. 5 bank, had undercut other major banks by lowering its prime rate to 20 percent on Monday and Marine Midland, the 12th-largest bank, matched Morgan's rate on Tuesday before Chemical's announcement. But most big banks held at 20.5 percent.

The prime rate is what banks charge on loans to their best-risk corporate borrowers. Other, less creditworthy businesses usually must pay at least one percentage point above the prime, and their loans are often tied to changes in the prime rate.

The prime does not apply to consumer loans. Rates on those loans are limited by law in most states, but changes in the prime rate usually signal the direction of change in all kinds of interest rates.

No major banks followed Chemical's lead to 19.5 percent, but United Missouri Bancshares — a Kansas City, Mo.-based bank holding company — cut its rate to 19.5 percent from 20 percent.

The nation's medium and smaller-sized banks usually wait for the larger banks to establish a trend before changing their own rates. But United Missouri board chairman R. Crosby Kemper said, "We just think the prime is artificially high in the money centers. ... We don't feel we have to follow their lead any more. We're just going to paddle our own canoe."

Forced Labor Of Children Alleged Against Pakistan

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — A Moslem newspaper said Tuesday the government used children for forced labor on road construction and other public works projects in Pakistan. There was no immediate government comment.

The English-language daily The Muslim quoted Sadqat Ali, 14, as saying he recently escaped with five other "slaves" from a work camp near Peshawar, north-west Pakistan after being tortured and forced to work without pay for six years.

Congress Urged To Approve Social Security Changes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new Congress was urged Tuesday to approve legislative changes in Social Security programs that could save $1.3 billion in fiscal 1982 and another $4.5 billion by 1985, according to a General Accounting Office report.

The already troubled Social Security system will face more financial problems in the future, said the report from the GAO, Congress' investigative arm. Congress must give the Social Security Administration authority to tighten up on some benefits and calculate others somewhat differently, the report said.

"Implementing our recommendations would help reduce inflation, enhance the financial condition of the trust funds, and improve the equity and integrity of income security programs," said the report signed by Comptroller General Elmer B. Staats and addressed to House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., and the Senate leadership.

Over the past several years, the GAO has issued numerous reports recommending changes in Social Security programs, Staats said. Although some of those suggestions were carried out, legislative action is needed to implement recommendations that would result in greater savings, he said.

"We believe further consideration is warranted as part of congressional efforts to reduce the budget deficit, control inflation, and resolve the serious problems of the Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund," Staats said.

The GAO estimated that in addition to the $1.3 billion in savings projected for fiscal 1982, a total of about $4.5 billion would be saved in fiscal years 1983 through 1985 if all its recommendations were enacted.

Ending Social Security benefits for dependent students beyond high school by this fall would save $1.1 billion almost immediately and still larger amounts in future years, the GAO report said. Those students receive funds under Social Security programs designed to provide income to retired or disabled workers, their dependents and their dependent survivors.

If this recommendation is enacted, the report said Congress should take steps to ensure that the U.S. Office of Education can meet any increased demand for student aid arising from discontinuance of the Social Security benefit.

Schweiker Vows To Aid Social Security

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard Schweiker declared Tuesday that ensuring the soundness of the Social Security System is essential to restoring trust in government and said that would be his top priority as secretary of health and human services.

But Schweiker, seeking confirmation for the Cabinet post at a hearing before the Senate Finance Committee, was forced to take issue with his party's platform, which calls for wholesale return of welfare programs to the states.

Under stiff questioning led by Sen. Daniel P. Moynihan, D-N.Y., Schweiker said he does not consider Social Security retirement benefits or Medicare to be welfare, although both are paid by Social Security trust funds. He said it was unlikely that the Reagan administration would seek to turn those programs over to the states.

And, he said his preference would be to keep the Medicaid program, whose recipients are generally poor people, under federal control.

"I personally am not for a transfer of it to the states," he said.

The Republican Party platform opposes federal control of welfare, calls for making block grant payments to the states, which would determine eligibility and payment amounts and eventually the "orderly wholesale transfer of all welfare functions to the states" along with the methods of financing.

Despite exchanges with Democratic senators, there appeared to be little doubt that Schweiker, a former GOP senator from Pennsylvania, would win easy confirmation to President-elect Ronald Reagan's Cabinet. Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., chairman of the committee, said the panel would meet later to send Schweiker's nomination to the Senate for final action.

Most of the questions from the panel focused on Social Security. The system faces short-term problems for the old age trust fund, which may run short of money by mid-1982, and long-term problems because the number of young workers contributing to the system will shrink compared to the number of older Americans who will collect from it in future years.

Schweiker said any proposal he sends to Congress would outline "a positive, constructive program that takes both the short-range and long-range problems into consideration. One without the other is a mistake."

He also noted the unpopularity of the available tools for strengthening the system — raising withholding taxes further, reducing or holding down benefit levels or raising the eligibility age.

And he said the program should not be financed by general treasury funds.

On other matters, Schweiker said:

"The Reagan administration will propose some welfare changes, probably a system giving block grant funding to states with tighter eligibility requirements and high benefits "for those in need." Schweiker said he favors allowing states to experiment with work incentive programs for recipients.

"Comprehensive national health insurance won't be pursued. Instead, the administration would favor "a combination of some kind of catastrophic program with something I would call 'filling in the gaps.' About 10 percent of our population is not covered (by health insurance) anyway. Anything beyond that wouldn't fit this administration's philosophy or the budgetary crunch we face."

He suggested demonstration projects in various states to try various methods of offering competitive health insurance plans.

"Combating fraud, waste and abuse should be emphasized. He proposed a program with the Justice Department to deal with abuses in Medicare.

Savings, Bond Purchase Campaign Set

Roy Holmes, division manager of Southwestern Public Service Company, has been appointed chairman of the 1981 "Take Stock in America" campaign for Lubbock.

Holmes will direct volunteers who encourage Lubbock residents to join Payroll Savings or Bond-a-Matic plans. The volunteers also suggest increasing allotments if bonds have been purchased or buying the Savings Bonds as gifts.

Series EE bonds pay 8 percent interest compounded semiannually when held to maturity of nine years, Holmes said. Intermediate yields have been increased from 5 1/2 percent to 7 1/2 percent after five years and the term of original maturity has been shortened from 11 to nine years, he said.

SWINE FLU AWARD
SIOUX CITY, Iowa (AP) — A Sioux City man was awarded $212,000 by a federal judge who ruled the government failed to warn of the possible dangers of the swine flu vaccine he received over four years ago. In testimony before U.S. District Judge Donald O'Brien last June, Robert Petty, 37, said he was inoculated on Oct. 31, 1976. He said that eight days later, his muscles became sore and he was hospitalized for a month.

If you are thinking about opening an interest-paying checking account, here's a thought from First National Bank:

COMPARE.

Regular checking accounts have not earned interest because a 1933 Federal law prohibited financial institutions from paying interest on checking.

Now, that law has changed. And all kinds of financial institutions, even those who never offered checking accounts before, can provide interest-bearing checking to their customers. This has been accompanied by some very loud, noisy, and sometimes confusing advertising claims.

First National Bank has offered INTEREST/CHECKING to our customers a long time. And quite frankly we've found that earning interest on transaction-type accounts won't be to the advantage of everyone.

Things To Consider

At some places the service charge on interest-paying checking accounts may be a lot different than the charge on regular checking. There may even be a per check charge, too.

Some financial institutions won't return checks with the monthly statement on interest-paying accounts, unless you pay an extra charge.

And some will pay interest only on fully collected deposits. So you wouldn't earn interest on the amount of any check you deposited until that check cleared the bank on which it was written.

The point is, you may need to shop carefully to find the services that best suit your needs. And if you decided to switch to an interest-paying checking plan, be sure you understand the plan you are considering. And especially what its true cost to you will be.

How To Determine If It's Right For You

Get answers to these important questions:

- “What is the minimum balance required to earn interest?”
- “What is the minimum balance required to avoid service charges?”
- “What are the per check charges?”

“How is the interest calculated?”

“Are there any hidden charges?”

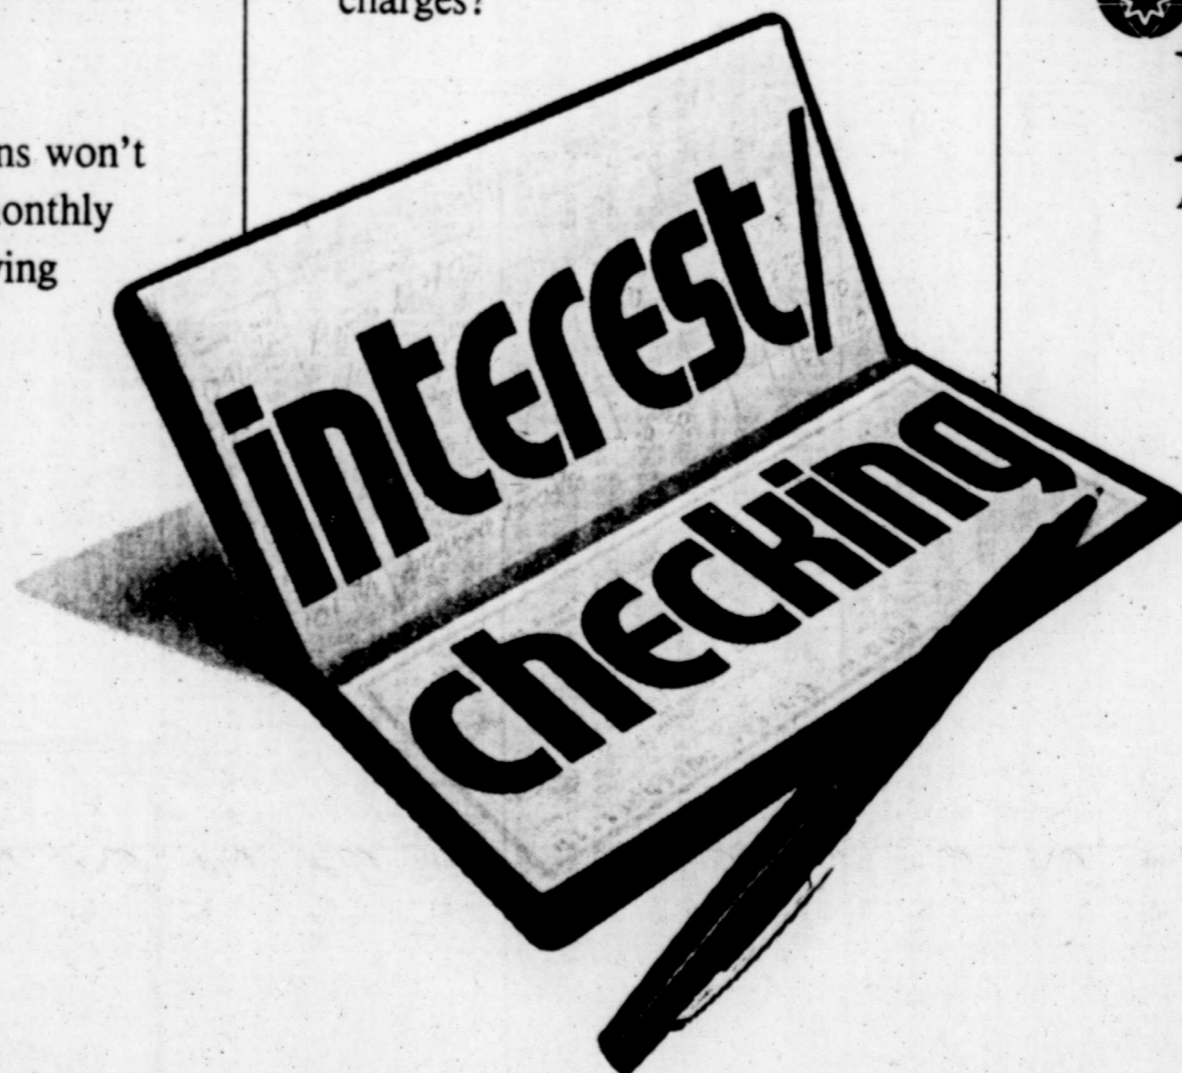

“Will I get my checks back at the end of the month?”

One Final Note

Naturally, we think our INTEREST/CHECKING plan is the best one offered by any financial institution in West Texas. It's both a checking and a savings account. And if you keep $500 in your account, you pay no service charge, you earn interest, and there are no per check charges, no matter how many you write. It's that simple. We'll be glad to show you how it can work for you.

We want you to compare plans. Because we think when you do, you'll find First National Bank's INTEREST/CHECKING the best plan around.

Dow Breaks 1,000 Level

NEW YORK (AP) — The Dow Jones industrial average broke through the 1,000 level to its highest closing level in more than four years Tuesday as the stock market extended its early-1981 upsurge.

The widely recognized average climbed 12.03 to 1,004.69, its highest close since it finished at 1,013.13 on Sept. 27, 1976.

Its record closing high of 1,051.70 was reached almost eight years ago, on Jan. 11, 1973.

New York Stock Exchange volume reached 67.40 million shares, the ninth-heaviest total on record, against 58.71 million Monday.

The Dow Jones industrials climbed to about 1,003 at mid-session, retreated to the mid 990s during the afternoon, and then came on with a rush again just before the close.

Buying was heavily concentrated in the big-name issues that make up the Dow, leaving most broader indicators with much less dramatic showings.

Ten Dow stocks recorded gains of a point or more. DuPont was up 2 1/4 at 44 1/2 as of the 4 p.m. close in New York.

Other gains went to 2 1/2 for Procter & Gamble, 2 1/4 for Union Carbide, 2 1/4 for Eastman Kodak, 1 3/4 for 7-11.

Action Threatened Halting Haig Tapes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon's lawyer threatened court action Tuesday to keep Senate Democrats from receiving the former president's tapes and other documents relating to Alexander M. Haig Jr., a federal lawyer said.

The Democrats have asked for all tapes and papers on Haig's role in Nixon's Watergate defense, on Nixon administration wiretapping, decisions on bombing Cambodia and other issues for use in hearings starting Friday on Haig's nomination to become Ronald Reagan's secretary of state.

Before Nixon's resignation at the height of the Watergate scandal, Haig served as White House chief of staff.

Stephen Garfinkel, counsel for the National Archives, said Nixon's lawyer, Herbert J. Miller, served notice he would go to court to stop the archives from searching out the material the Democrats want for Haig's confirmation hearings.

But Garfinkel said that when Miller had taken no legal action by a 3 p.m. deadline Tuesday, the archives began to make its search for the information.

He said Miller later indicated that instead of seeking an immediate court order blocking release of the information he might insist on advance notification about all material the archives finds so that Nixon can decide whether to formally object to its being made available to the Senate.

Miller had confirmed in a telephone interview before the deadline that he was considering going to court.

"You'll know it," Miller said.

"When and if that decision is made, you'll know it," Miller said.

He said his position is that the Presidential Recordings and Materials Preservation Act, passed by Congress during the Watergate trials, does not allow material to be made public "at the request of one senator."

"If Congress wants something, the normal way to get it is with a subpoena," Miller said.

Garfinkel said, "we notified counsel for Mr. Nixon that we were going to search for the material and...he said to me 'well, we'll have to go to court.' He said he was not given proper notice."

Not Enough Time

Garfinkel also said he does not believe the material can be supplied in time if the Haig hearings are to be completed by Jan. 20 when President-elect Reagan is to be sworn in as president.

The lawyer said the Democrats' request "involves thousands upon thousands of pieces of paper" so the archivists will spend most of this week determining how much of the material they have.

Former presidents Nixon and Gerald R. Ford then must be notified of specific documents and tapes the Democrats select so they can object to the release on privacy grounds, Garfinkel said.

Problems Cited

"The regulatory scheme here is just not conducive to immediate production (of material) unless everyone agrees to cooperate, which clearly will not be the case," Garfinkel said.

A second problem, the lawyer said, is that the request from Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., ranking Democrat on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, is broad.

He said it is not for specific tapes or papers but rather for "all documents," including tape recordings, in a number of categories.

Garfinkel said he could not list the areas because the Democrats asked him not to do so.

Categories Given

But Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., a member of the committee and assistant Senate Democratic leader, said the categories include Haig's role in wiretapping of Nixon administration aides and reporters to stop news leaks, the bombing of Cambodia during the Vietnam War and Haig's role in Nixon's Watergate defense.

Cranston said the list includes a request for a tape of a June 4, 1973, White House conversation in which Haig told Nixon he could respond to certain Watergate allegations by telling investigators "you just can't recall."

"It's not our desire to resurrect Watergate, but the fact that the man's been nominated makes it necessary to ask these questions," Cranston said.

Solons Plan Latin Trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional delegation headed by Rep. Clement J. Zablocki, chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, leaves today on a 10-day fact-finding trip to five Latin American nations.

An announcement issued Tuesday by the committee said the group planned to discuss key foreign policy issues with leaders in Jamaica, Brazil, Argentina, Peru and Costa Rica, which borders on Marxist-ruled Nicaragua.

Zablocki, D-Wis., will be joined on the trip by four other committee members — Reps. L.H. Fountain, D-N.C., Benjamin Rosenthal, D-N.Y., Larry Winn Jr., R-Kan., and Tennyson Guyer, R-Ohio — as well as Rep. Charles B. Rangel, D-N.Y.

Also accompanying the group, the announcement said, will be Frank Moore, congressional liaison chief for the Carter administration.

He discussed a number of Iranian possibilities.

He refused to be more specific.

Haig also said he and Reagan "discussed a number of current foreign policy issues which are very urgent and very important."

He mentioned Poland, East-West relations in general, the Caribbean and Latin America, the Far East and "some problems of urgency in the Middle East."

Asked if his mentor, former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, would have a role in the Reagan administration, Haig said he wouldn't ignore the "experience, skill and knowledge" of any former secretary of state and might seek advice from time to time.

But pressed as to whether there would be any specific role for Kissinger, Haig said: "I don't foresee that at this time."

Reagan also hosted a lunch Tuesday for a bipartisan group of women members of Congress, several of whom said they came away from the meeting pleased.

"Overregulation is hurting the growth of medium-sized and small companies," he said. "The larger companies can better afford the cost of overregulation. It is just an additional cost where it is not necessary. We should deregulate from top to bottom."

Exporters Hurt

Baldrige also said high interest rates are hurting American exporters and said government should do more to help companies increase their exports.

In another hearing, Agriculture Secretary-designate John R. Block appeared to backtrack from earlier statements he made advocating the use of food as a foreign policy tool.

Block told the Senate Agriculture Committee he would be "very reluctant" to use a food embargo against foreign countries as a tool of diplomacy. "I really think the market should allocate our resources," he said.

Farmers Stage Major Protest In Poland

Warsaw radio reported Tuesday that the Polish-Soviet friendship society had underlined its support for Poland's "process of renewal," a phrase used by party leadership to describe liberalization efforts.

"This policy guarantees national interests, the realization of socialist principles of friendly contacts with the USSR and other socialist states," the broadcast said.

It echoed a similar official press report Monday in Czechoslovakia that noted approvingly the labor situation in Poland was "normalizing."

Solidarity's national presidium announced a two-day meeting to begin Wednesday in Gdansk to review progress on its remaining differences with the government and to discuss various organizational problems.

Solidarity leader Lech Walesa held a surprise, 4½-hour preparatory meeting Monday with Deputy Premier Mieczyslaw Jagielski, who negotiated the Aug. 31 agreement authorizing the first independent unions within the Soviet bloc.

Walesa described the session as "spirited." Asked if any agreements had been reached, he said: "It depends on how you look at it."

Differences between the government and Solidarity include such issues as the number of work-free Saturdays workers will receive, collective bargaining procedures and draft legislation on labor and censorship laws.

Walesa is preparing to visit Italy next week for meetings with Italian labor leaders and Polish-born Pope John Paul II. In what may be a related development, Polish newspapers reported that party leader Stanislaw Kania had conferred with the chief of Poland's Vatican liaison team.

Although the papers made no mention of the purpose for the meeting, it seemed clear that the maverick labor leader's audience with the pope was a prime topic.

Khomeini's Statement Speculated

This suggests, at the same time, an enhanced role for the Algerians, who have shuttled between Washington and Tehran for two months with proposals and counter-offers.

In the view of U.S. officials, it could provide a way for Iran to back off its demand for $24 billion in guarantees as the price for releasing the hostages.

Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie was asked by reporters about the statement attributed to Khomeini.

"If I could read the ayatollah's mind, I could answer your question," Muskie said. "The statement is too ambiguous. We have no other report out of Tehran to help us interpret it so I think it's better not to speculate."

"It sounds positive. On the other hand, there have been other references in Tehran to statements by Iranians to the effect that guarantees approved by the Algerians would be sufficient. But we don't know what those statements mean."

Asked whether the Algerians would be willing to serve as arbitrators or guarantors, Muskie replied, "That is not their role as we understand it. They have been intermediaries."

Appearing later on the McNeil-Lehrer report on the Public Broadcasting System, Muskie seemed to discount an enlarged role for the Algerians. He described them as "a positive intermediary," and said they asked helpful questions here and in Tehran, "but they are in no sense more than intermediaries."

Muskie, stressed, meanwhile that "time is running out" to work out a settlement during the Carter administration. He advised the incoming Reagan administration that if it declared war on Iran, as has been suggested as a possible option, it might risk the safety of the hostages.

Wreck Injures Lubbock Man

Victor Gene Rotramel, 23, of 5602 48th St. was undergoing treatment late Tuesday at Methodist Hospital after he was injured in a near head-on collision at Brownfield Road and Quaker Avenue.

Rotramel was trapped in his 1980 Mercury Cougar for about 15 minutes following the 10 p.m. accident. He was freed by Lubbock firemen using the Jaws of Life metal cutting device.

Emergency Medical Services paramedics said Rotramel suffered possible head and arm injuries, as well as a possible fractured left leg. He reportedly was unconscious for several minutes after the collision.

Three unidentified passengers in Rotramel's car and the driver of the other vehicle suffered minor injuries and refused medical treatment.

Police said Rotramel's car struck a 1976 Chevrolet Suburban van driven by Eddie William Goodgion, 59, of 4406 16th St.

Witnesses told police the van, headed northeast on Brownfield Road, was turning left onto Quaker Avenue when the collision with Rotramel's southwest bound car occurred.

The impact of the collision crushed the left front portion of Rotramel's vehicle, pinning him behind the steering wheel.

A fire department engine was called to the scene to hose down the wreck site and protect against possible gas explosions while the Jaws of Life workers cut Rotramel from the wreckage.

Stories On Nancy Irritating Reagan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President-elect Ronald Reagan told reporters Tuesday he is rapidly becoming an "irate husband" over some of the stories written about his wife Nancy, "none of which are true."

Reagan rose to the defense of his wife in a brief encounter with the press when he stepped out of Blair House to announce the appointment of transition spokesman James Brady as press secretary and former TV anchorwoman Karna Small to be his deputy.

Last week the Washington Post reported that Mrs. Reagan had decreed that Reagan's news secretary be "reasonably good looking." She denied making the statement.

But when a reporter teasingly asked Reagan if Brady "good looking enough," he bristled, making it clear that he was riled not only by that report but a number of others concerning his wife recently.

"That question leads to a story that has been written concerning Nancy which was a total invention out of whole cloth and there have been several more of those and I am getting to be an irate husband at some of the things that I am reading, none of which are true," he said.

Then, with a smile, he said of Brady: "Nancy couldn't be more delighted and thinks he's absolutely handsome."

When asked what other stories about Mrs. Reagan had perturbed him, he said "there are a number of them and I think some of you are aware of them."

In recent weeks, there have been reports that Mrs. Reagan had expressed the wish that President and Mrs. Carter would move across the street to Blair House before Jan. 20 so that she could get on with decorating the family quarters before Inauguration Day.

Her office said later Mrs. Reagan had simply said that when the Reagans' term in the White House ends, she would consider moving out a few weeks early to give the new tenants time to redo the family suite.

In addition, cartoonists and essayists have had a heyday with Mrs. Reagan's revelation she has a "tiny little gun" which she keeps in the drawer of her bedstand for protection when her husband is away.

Mrs. Reagan did not make the trip to Washington this week with her husband.

Robin Orr, who is serving as her press secretary until the position is filled permanently, said Mrs. Reagan remained at home in Pacific Palisades, Calif., to supervise moving their personal belongings and other chores.

She will accompany her husband to Washington Jan. 14, six days before they move into the White House.

Key House Seat Goes To Hance

"I'm most appreciative."

The Congressman also said the support House Majority Leader Jim Wright of Fort Worth, a Steering and Policy Committee member, was the primary reason he received the committee nomination.

"He contributed tremendously," Hance said. "He had to be the number one factor."

Hance said he has been in contact with all Steering and Policy Committee members recently and "worked extremely hard to secure their vote."

Because he was the first Democrat to be nominated to the committee, Hance will have seniority over the other two nominees if all are confirmed by the Democratic Caucus.

"I was pleasantly surprised that I got the first spot," he said.

Leaving Other Committees

Ways and Means is one of three "exclusive" House committees, meaning its members cannot hold seats on any other committees. If Hance is confirmed, he will relinquish his seats on the Agriculture and Science and Technology Committees.

Hance said his priority in the coming Congressional session will be repeal or alteration of the windfall-profits tax.

"I also want us to look at some type of reciprocal trade act that would impose a tariff on goods coming into this country from countries that have tariffs on our agricultural products," he said.

For example, he said, Japan has a 5% per bushel tariff on wheat and a high tariff could be placed on Japanese automobiles and television sets coming into the United States if Japanese tariffs were not reduced.

"It's going to be an active committee because all tax legislation will be going through there," he said.

Social Security Concern

Hance said the committee also must concern itself with problems in the Social Security system.

Hance became a prominent candidate for membership on the committee late last year when the Texas congressional delegation endorsed him for any vacancies that might occur.

In addition to his nomination to the Ways and Means Committee, Hance was singled out by the Fort Worth Star-Telegram Sunday as one of the seven best members of the Texas congressional delegation.

Hance, a former state senator who was popular both at home and in the Texas Senate as a genial conservative, capped his first term in Congress with passage of an amendment to block the Treasury Department from requiring banks to withhold income tax from the interest earned on savings accounts," the newspaper article said.

He also had a near-miss with a plan to exempt independent oilmen from the windfall profits tax. He lost that one on a vote in the Rules Committee," the story says.

Reagan, Haig Confer On Iran

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect Ronald Reagan filled two more vacancies on his incoming White House staff Tuesday and spoke with Secretary of State-designate Alexander M. Haig about the Iranian hostage stalemate that may be inherited by the new administration.

Reagan stepped out of Blair House, coolly despite Washington's freezing temperatures, to formally announce to waiting reporters that James Brady, his transition team spokesman, will be White House press secretary, and Karna Small of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce will be Brady's deputy.

The appointments were the first Reagan has announced personally. The president-elect also pledged to hold regular press conferences, but would not say how often.

Reagan's unscheduled appearance followed a 1½-hour meeting with Haig, who faces a promised grilling later this week when the Senate Foreign Relations Committee begins consideration of his nomination. A number of senators, particularly Democrats, want to question the retired Army general about his White House role during the Richard M. Nixon administration.

After his first meeting with Reagan since the Republican National Convention last summer, Haig said he expects his confirmation hearing to be "very thorough" but that he is prepared and doesn't expect any problem.

The upcoming hearings were mentioned during his session with the president-elect, Haig said, but they focused on "the organizational arrangements that we will set up for the conduct of American foreign policy."

Asked if options have been drawn up for handling the 15-month-long hostage crisis, Haig said, "No, I wouldn't conclude that. There's some preliminary work done, of course, by transition groups."

Asked if they discussed Iran's assets in the United States, which were ordered frozen by the Carter administration, Haig said, "We discussed a number of Iranian possibilities."

He refused to be more specific.

Haig also said he and Reagan "discussed a number of current foreign policy issues which are very urgent and very important."

He mentioned Poland, East-West relations in general, the Caribbean and Latin America, the Far East and "some problems of urgency in the Middle East."

Asked if his mentor, former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, would have a role in the Reagan administration, Haig said he wouldn't ignore the "experience, skill and knowledge" of any former secretary of state and might seek advice from time to time.

But pressed as to whether there would be any specific role for Kissinger, Haig said: "I don't foresee that at this time."

Reagan also hosted a lunch Tuesday for a bipartisan group of women members of Congress, several of whom said they came away from the meeting pleased.

Ruling Held In Shooting Of Teen-Ager

Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy is withholding a ruling in the Tuesday morning death of a 17-year-old Monterey High School student.

Laurie Lea Brister of 3302 58th St. died about 12:30 p.m. Tuesday at Methodist Hospital after suffering a single gunshot wound to the head, LeCroy said.

The girl's father, U.S. Magistrate Bill Brister, found her about 7:40 a.m. lying in A.M. Leftwich Park at 60th Street and Elgin Avenue.

The teen-ager had suffered a single small-caliber wound to the right temple, police said. A .22-caliber automatic pistol was found lying near the victim, reports show.

Brister told police his daughter awoke about 6 a.m. Tuesday, as she often did to jog in the park or prepare for school. She then apparently left the home, and Brister told officers he became concerned when he found her jogging clothes in her room.

The man then began driving around the park and saw the girl lying on her back in the park. He flagged down a passing motorist, who called for an ambulance, reports show.

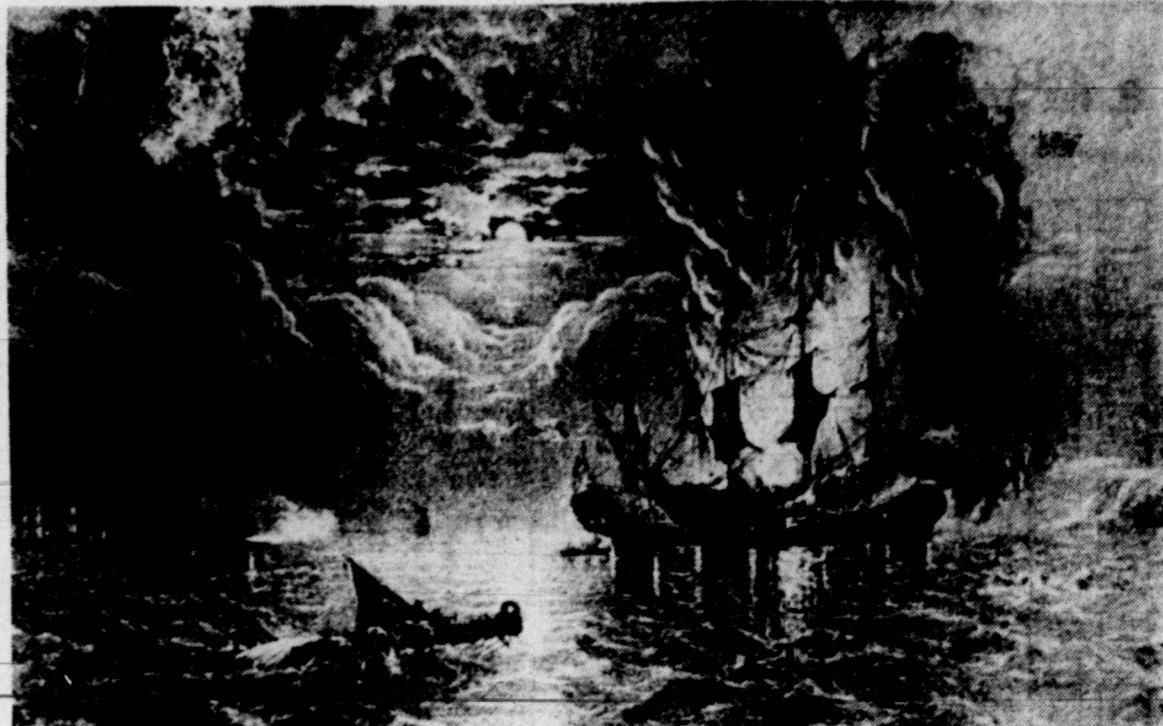

LeCroy said he would withhold a ruling on the death until the investigation is completed.

Graveside rites will be at 3:15 p.m. today in Resthaven Memorial Park with memorial services at 4 p.m. at Lubbock-view Christian Church.

Officiating will be the Rev. Page Foster, pastor, and the Rev. Doug Skinner, pastor of the First Christian Church in Plainview. Burial will be under the direction of Franklin-Bartley Funeral Home.

Miss Brister, a native of San Antonio, had spent most of her life in Lubbock. She was a junior at Monterey High School and a member of the Lubbock-view Christian Church.

Survivors in addition to her father, include her mother, Carolyn of Lubbock; a brother, Jeff of Lubbock; a sister, Julie of Lubbock; and her paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C.H. Brister of Sieper, La.

Lubbock Police Arrest Couple Found Fighting In Pickup

A Lubbock man and woman were jailed Tuesday morning when police found them fighting in a pickup truck at a north Lubbock motel.

The 25-year-old man was arrested on suspicion of unlawfully carrying a weapon, and the female combatant was jailed for suspicion of disorderly conduct by fighting, reports show.

When police arrived at the El Dorado Motor Hotel, 2120 Amarillo Highway, they found the 26-year-old woman on top of the man, who was in the driver's seat of a 1949 GMC pickup truck.

The woman was attempting to hit the man, who was trying to push the attacker out of the vehicle, according to reports. A second woman was sitting on the passenger side of the pickup cab, police said.

The couple was pried apart, and the woman reportedly told police the male suspect "was supposed to be her man."

The woman explained that she had caught the man with the other woman, reports show.

The woman said she had been watching the man and the other woman, and that she attacked her boyfriend when he and the woman exited a room at the motel, police said.

The woman then told officers the man always carried a gun, and police found a .32-caliber pistol in the pocket of his jacket, reports show.

The couple then was taken to the Lubbock County Jail.

In other activity, a 16-year-old girl was referred to the Lubbock County Youth Center after she was detained Tuesday in on suspicion of writing forged checks totaling more than $2,000.

Det. David O'Haver said the juvenile was detained as she attempted to pass a check at the Furr's Supermarket at 1944 19th St. A store employee recognized the girl from past back check incidents, reports show.

O'Haver said a second 16-year-old girl is to be questioned today about the forged checks. The two girls together allegedly wrote checks totaling about $2,070 on the Plains National Bank account of B and R Auto Inc., 2110 Clovis Road, police said.

The 20 checks were passed at various supermarkets in Lubbock, O'Haver said. Several blank checks on the same account, as well as a number of checks made out to the suspects, were confiscated, O'Haver said.

A painting, a stereo receiver and turntable, and a small television were stolen from the home of Cynthia Cerniglia, 4645 52nd St., police said.

The woman told police she arrived home about 8 a.m. Tuesday and found her front door unlocked. Several drawers and bookshelves in the home were ransacked, but the intruder left behind several valuable items, police said.

The loss was estimated at $780. A woman who flagged down a Lubbock policeman Monday night told the officer she was fleeing from a man who had threatened her with a shotgun, reports said.

The 29-year-old woman told police at 8:30 p.m. she was getting out of her car to go into her apartment in the 2000-block of Fifth Street when a man jumped out of some bushes with a shotgun pointed at her.

The woman said she ran behind a truck in the apartment complex parking lot, but fled when she heard glass breaking behind her. The woman happened upon a policeman around the corner and flagged down the officer for assistance.

When the officer and the woman returned to the scene, the gunman was gone, but the keys from the woman's car were missing, reports said.

Reports said the man was described as a black male between the ages of 26 and 35, short, and with a medium build. The suspect was wearing a brown coat, a brown hat and red pants, reports said.

In another incident, Julian Mercado Jimenez, 21, of 2621 First Place told police someone entered his house between 9 p.m. Sunday and 9 a.m. Monday and took almost $1,775 in household goods, including a Les Paul guitar, stereo equipment and jewelry.

A light bulb on the back porch had been unscrewed, apparently so no one could observe the break-in, reports said. The glass on the back door was broken and the door chain unlatched.

The intruders also made themselves at home, taking time out to have a glass of orange juice, reports said.

A 23-year-old woman told police she was assaulted by three white men at the South Plains Mall. The woman said the men grabbed her as she left a store and forced her to swallow an unknown type and quantity of pills. Reports said the woman was taken to Methodist Hospital.

Crude Swindle Suspect Freed

BIG SPRING, Texas (UPI) — An oil company pumper was free on bond Tuesday in the wake of an alleged crude oil swindle where up to $425,000 in payments may have been made for oil that was never delivered.

Howard County Sheriff A.N. Standard, meanwhile, said an investigation coordinated by Texas Ranger Eddie Almond — is incomplete.

"One phase of it's over. It's an ongoing and a continuing investigation," Standard said. He declined comment when asked if additional arrests are expected.

A multi-agency task force including Almond, Howard County deputies, Railroad Commission and Cosden Oil Co. agents descended Monday on the W.B. Currie Lease operated by Jaco Company Inc. of Midland.

John Thedford Sims, a Jaco pumper, was arrested and charged with felony theft of crude oil. He was released later after posting a $20,000 bond set by Justice of the Peace Bob West.

The Currie Lease, located five miles west of Forsan, was the site two months ago of a stakeout, officers said.

Authorities believe Jaco Oil Co. employees had sold the same tank of oil to Cosden repeatedly since last summer, without ever pumping it into the Cosden pipeline.

"It looks like we may have up to 57 felony offenses and the theft of 12,500 barrels of crude," Almond said.

Almond was alerted in October, when Railroad Commission officials became suspicious of the large production reported at the lease.

Fear Remains Despite Murder Indictment

LEEDS, England (AP) — I once indicated Tuesday they believe the five-year reign of terror of the Yorkshire Ripper is over after the indictment of a truck driver for one of the slayings. But fear and tension has not vanished from England's northern cities.

Police chiefs sifted through a mountain of evidence on the 13 killings blamed on the Ripper the day after 35-year-old Peter Sutcliffe was charged with last November's grisly murder of Leeds University student Jacqueline Hill.

They were careful not to state flat out that Sutcliffe is the knife-wielding killer who mutilated his victims, all of them women, and legal restrictions on the British press kept news reports to a minimum.

Even so, detectives said tire tracks found at the scene of Hill's murder and witnesses' descriptions of the killer link the murder to at least two other slayings and one non-fatal attack attributed to the Ripper.

Many people in Yorkshire and Lancashire counties, the Ripper's killing ground, appeared convinced he had been captured.

But others, noting that Sutcliffe has only been charged with one of the murders, were more cautious.

"I won't rest easy until they put the other murders down to him as well," said Jane Garland, a young Leeds housewife. "For all I know he's still out there."

Sarah Dixon, organizer of the Women Against Attack movement, cautioned: "We should all be relieved if the Ripper has indeed been detained. But we're not counting our chickens yet."

Even if police have brought a halt to the savage slayings, many people believe social scars will remain.

"The Ripper murders left their mark on society here no less than the battered bodies of his victims," the Leeds Telegraph and Argus noted Tuesday.

Strong emotions were evident Monday outside the courtroom in the mill town of Dewsbury where Sutcliffe was indicted. A mob of more than 1,000 men, women and children gathered and some brandished rope nooses.

Police chiefs, who had been criticized for their failure to catch the killer, said the Ripper task force was being "scaled down" but the investigation was continuing.

After the indictment, they added the hope that "further charges will be made."

Even before Sutcliffe's arrest Friday night in the company of a prostitute in the nearby steel city of Sheffield, detectives admitted that three of the 13 killings were in a "gray area" with "an element of doubt" about whether they were carried out by the Ripper.

Most of the victims were prostitutes.

"If we were only able to charge him with 10 murders and not 13 we wouldn't mind," said Assistant Chief Constable George Oldfield, who led the manhunt until last November.

Method of attack was the common factor in the 13 murders and four other assaults in which the victims survived.

The killer hit the victim on the head from behind with a 1 1/4-pound round-headed hammer, dragged her a few yards and stabbed or slashed her with a screwdriver or a thin-bladed knife, often disemboweling her.

Reporters' Notes Shielded By Court

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two Los Angeles Herald Examiner writers cannot be forced to surrender their notes or reveal their sources for stories about alleged Super Bowl ticket scalping by Los Angeles Rams owner Georgia Frontiere, a federal judge has ruled.

The decision by U.S. District Judge Harry Pregerson rejected subpoenas served on reporter Scott Paltrow and columnist Melvin Durslag by the National Football League in the court battle to prevent the Oakland Raiders from moving to Los Angeles.

The NFL sought the subpoenas to support a claim that media coverage in Los Angeles had been biased and that the Feb. 9 trial should be moved to another city.

In a 16-page opinion, Pregerson called such subpoenas "unrealistic and oppressive."

NFL attorney Clark Waddoups said the ruling would have no effect on the league request to move the trial, however, since it would be "impossible to select a jury in this jury district" because of media coverage.

A HELPING HAND HOLD — That's what Ace Lambert, who suffers from rheumatoid arthritis, is getting above in the bathroom of his new residence at Hub Homes, 4th Street and Avenue F. Three units in the project, along with three apartments in Greenfair Manor, have been renovated by the Lubbock Housing Authority to accommodate handicapped persons in wheelchairs. For Lambert, the first tenant in the barrier-free units, it will be the first time since he was disabled in 1941 that he has lived in such a house. (Staff photo by Dennis Copeland)

Housing To Aid Handicapped

By PAT GRAVES
Avalanche-Journal Staff

It's the little things that count, so the saying goes, and few know the truth of that adage better than the incapacitated and the handicapped.

For most people, taking a bath, cooking a meal, getting something out of a cabinet or walking in and out a door are as automatic as blinking. We take them for granted.

But Ace Lambert and Hattie Easter don't. Lambert, 65, has been confined to a wheelchair since contracting rheumatoid arthritis in 1941. Mrs. Easter, 50, has been in a wheelchair for about a year, having had a leg amputated after a broken bone would not heal because of her diabetic condition.

Along with having to adjust to an artificial leg, Mrs. Easter also had to deal with something Lambert had encountered years earlier: houses are not designed with the handicapped in mind.

But, as of this week, that has changed for Lambert and Mrs. Easter. They are scheduled to move into two specially remodeled, barrier-free units in two low-income housing projects operated by the Lubbock Housing Authority.

Hub Homes, 323 Ave. F, and Greenfair Manor, 2807 Weber Drive, each have three of the units. At present, Lambert and Mrs. Easter are the only tenants, he in Hub Homes and she in Greenfair Manor.

They will benefit from these features:

- In the bathroom, handrails around the toilet and bathtub, which is equipped with a shower hose attachment, and a large, high, hospital-type sink.
- Wider doorways and a ramp with rails which leads from the front door to the sidewalk.
- Lowered kitchen cabinets and sink, with recessed baseboards and sinktraps parallel to the wall, and lowered shelves.
- Emergency alarms in the bathroom and each bedroom which, when the switch is flipped or the cord pulled, activates a signal light and bell on the front porch.

Although he has been a bachelor for years, Lambert said he will be much more self-sufficient now in his new home, the first of its kind he has ever lived in.

"Regular housing has its drawbacks," Lambert noted. "The light switches are hard to get to, and it's hard to get in and out of the bathtub. But here I can put a special seat across it and take a shower."

Mrs. Easter said the best thing about the handicapped housing is the bathroom and the kitchen. "It will be better than where I was living," which she said was a privately owned apartment that was too small for her and her seven-year-old daughter, Ambra.

Both tenants learned about the special facilities through authority director D.C. Fair, who is still trying to rent the remaining four units.

"The rent's the same — that's the main thing, oh boy," Lambert remarked.

"This is a good deal. It's a New Year's present."

Rent for the units is based on the tenant's income. Lambert's monthly rent is $54. He also gets a utility allowance. Mrs. Easter, who subsists on Social Security disability payments, will pay $30 per month, but her utility allowance is deducted from her rent because, unlike Lambert, she pays her bills directly to the utility companies.

Lambert has been a Hub Homes resident since 1974, and has been anticipating the move for more than a year. Fair noticed Mrs. Easter around June 1, 1980, in her yard in a wheelchair and advised Greenfair manager George Paul to contact her.

Still vacant are a one-bedroom and a three-bedroom unit at Hub Homes, and two three-bedroom units at Greenfair. Handicapped persons who are interested in applying should contact the Lubbock Housing Authority at 762-1191.

The housing for the handicapped, which is still being touched up this week, is the culmination of more than three years of planning.

Larry Gardner, a sector representative for the handicapped on the Community Development Advisory Committee, said he and Fair began talking about the need for such a project three or four years ago. Fair said the CDAC approved the authority's request for funds in June, 1979, and $80,000 became available a year later.

Fair said although the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development has emphasized making handicapped units available, particularly in new construction, no federal funds have been available.

Fair said there were no such dwellings in the authority's projects prior to the renovation of these six, but HUD has mandated that five per cent of future projects must be barrier-free.

Although he would prefer every house or apartment were designed for handicapped use, Gardner said the authority did a good job with the units they did convert. Fair said Gardner, a systems analyst with West Texas Home Health Agency who himself is in a wheelchair, provided valuable input for the remodeling.

Gardner said Fair gained experience in handicapped housing by converting a residential unit for the Lubbock Area Extended Rehabilitation Service, and applied it to Hub Homes and Greenfair Manor.

"The LHA units remove most of the architectural barriers," Gardner said. "Lubbock's all flat and the only barriers here are man-made."

Gardner also lauded Fair for making his office accessible to the handicapped, adding, "Sometimes a project is accessible but its offices aren't and handicapped persons can't apply."

Lambert said a lot of progress has been made toward helping the handicapped cope in today's world, especially the many who are now in wheelchairs.

"There can always be more improvements," Lambert said. "I'm not suggesting anything specifically; I'd have to study on it."

For Lambert, that study, along with everything else, should be easier in his new home.

Price Of Gasoline May Go To $1.50

By MARY ALICE ROBBINS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Filling up at the gasoline pump is likely to take an even bigger bite out of the American consumer's pocketbook within the next several weeks.

And some industry observers have predicted pump prices will hit $1.50 per gallon by the end of the year.

However, several local distributors say it's impossible to tell at what level gasoline prices will be in the next 12 months. "It's just anybody's guess," observed Benton Oil Co. spokesman Nelson Hall.

Joe Horkey, owner of Horkey Oil Co., said the gas price situation depends heavily on what happens in the Middle East during the next several months. "It's all very volatile and very iffy," Horkey said. Since Saturday, five of the nation's refiners have raised wholesale gas prices by as much as three cents a gallon. That price hike follows steady increases that occurred during the final two months of 1980.

Those increases led Dan Lundberg, publisher of the Lubbock Letter in Los Angeles, to predict the possibility of $1.50 per gallon gas prices before the year ends.

Exxon Corp., the nation's largest refiner, announced a one-cent increase in its wholesale prices Saturday — the company's fourth hike since mid-November.

Other companies that have upped their wholesale prices since the weekend include Sun Oil Co., Getty Oil Co., Atlantic Richfield Co. and Diamond Shamrock Corp.

Exxon's price hike will affect chiefly the Gulf and East Coast states and portions of the Southwest, including Texas, explained C.D. Sandison, public relations spokesman for the corporation in Dallas.

According to Sandison, the driving force behind the price hike is the increased cost for crude oil. Wholesale prices also have somewhat affected by increased costs for raw materials, he added.

But Sandison said it was just "a guessing game" to try to predict what level gasoline pump prices will hit before the end of the year.

"Over the long haul, energy prices will likely increase at a rate somewhat faster than that of world inflation," Sandison said. "But over the short term, it really is not possible to predict a specific level gas prices will go to."

Sandison said Exxon went about six months during 1980 without instituting increases in its wholesale gas prices. Since Nov. 22, however, the corporation has announced four increases, all of them one-cent hikes.

Sandison said he was unsure what the latest increase in wholesale prices will do to gasoline pump prices.

Exxon owns two retail outlets in Lubbock, he said. In those cases, he said, pump prices will be determined based on location and the competitive market.

The vast majority of Exxon stations in Lubbock are owned by independent operators, Sandison said. "I can't speculate whether those independent businessmen will change their prices," he added.

Owners of several local Exxon stations said their pump price for regular gasoline is nearly $1.15 per gallon at self-service pumps and almost $1.25 a gallon at full-service pumps.

One owner said he did not always raise his prices when his wholesale prices were increased. Any decision to increase retail prices depends on what other stations in the immediate area are charging, the station owner added.

Horkey, who serves as distributor for Shell Oil Products, said he foresees about a 25-cent per gallon increase in wholesale costs this year.

However, Horkey said there is a positive side of the ever increasing costs for gasoline. For each 10-cent per gallon increase in cost, there is a 1 percent decrease in the demand for gasoline nationwide, he said.

Police Spokesman Says Traffic Death Increase Noted In 1980

Avalanche-Journal Staff

A Lubbock police spokesman told the Citizen's Traffic Commission Tuesday that, despite increased enforcement and the lowest traffic accident total in eight or nine years, Lubbock's 1980 traffic fatality count rose by 11 over 1979's.

Sgt. Jerry Stevens, who directs the police department's Selective Traffic Enforcement Program (STEP), reported there were 34 deaths on city streets in 1980, up from 23 in 1979. The total number of accidents, however, declined from 10,399 to 9,726 last year.

"Accidents have been decreasing in number, Stevens said, since 1978 when STEP was initiated. But injury accidents, injuries and fatalities increased last year despite more than 25,000 traffic citations being issued by STEP alone.

"One problem is the increasing number of vehicles on the road as the population continues growing," Stevens noted. He also attributed the high death rate to carelessness, speeding and the use of alcohol.

Stevens said that in 50 per cent of 1980's fatal accidents, one or more of the parties involved had been drinking.

Public Information Director Vaughn Hendrie reported that municipal court had processed almost 90,000 moving violations tickets through November, with a 95 percent conviction rate. Stevens said 75-80 percent of those were speeding citations.

Lubbock wasted no time recording its first traffic fatality of the new year, as a Lubbock man was killed shortly after midnight Jan. 1 by a car while trying to right his motorcycle.

Stevens said the police department is pushing for reinstatement of the helmet law, which he admitted would not completely solve the problem of motorcycle fatalities, but would help.

"A few (of the five) motorcycle deaths this year could've been prevented if helmets had been worn," Stevens told the board. Regarding the total fatality trend, he said, "If you have any answers, I'd be happy to hear them."

Responding to a question by Mrs. James Graves, Stevens gave the credit for the lower number of accidents to the entire police force, not just STEP, and to what he termed an increased interest in traffic safety.

Hearing Examiner Prepared To Issue Recommendation On Bell Rate Hike

AUSTIN (AP) — A Public Utility Commission hearing examiner was prepared Tuesday to issue his recommendation on Southwestern Bell's request to increase telephone bills.

Hearing Examiner Phil Ricketts' report will be forwarded to the three-member commission for final action.

On July 7, 1980, Bell told the PUC the company needs $326.3 million in rate hikes, an 11.6 percent jump in revenues. The increase would mean a $1.75 per month increase for Bell residential customers using plain dial telephones.

The PUC staff studied the Bell request and said the company needs only $152 million.

The Texas Municipal League, representing many of the cities served by Bell, argued the phone company needs only $68.2 million.

Bell's rate request included $120 million more from various business services, $95 million from increases in residential service, $11 million from increased directory assistance charges, $8 million from higher service connection charges and $74 million from private line customers, such as burglar alarm services.

Ricketts conducted six weeks of hearings on the Bell case in September and October, the longest since the PUC began rate regulation in 1976.

Bell wants to reduce the number of free directory assistance calls from 10 to five per month. Calls over the limit would cost 25 cents apiece, compared to the 20 cents now charged for extra information calls.

The Bell request includes no increase in long distance rates, pay phones or WATS service.

Recommended Rate Hike Would Affect Lubbockites

A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Basic monthly telephone rates for Lubbock residents would increase from $7.40 to $7.45 under a rate hike recommended for Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. by a Public Utility Commission hearing examiner.

Southwestern Bell had sought an increase to $8.65 for Lubbock residents. The recommended rates are approximate and may vary with the number and type of telephones, use and other factors.

The rates still must be appraised by the PUC, which is scheduled to consider the hearing examiner's recommendation on Jan. 28.

Custom Auto Show Slated For Weekend

The World of Wheels Custom Car Show has been scheduled Friday through Sunday at the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center.

Over 100 hot rods, custom cars, motorcycles, race cars, trucks, vans and antiques will be displayed from 5 p.m. to 11 p.m. Friday, from noon to 11 p.m. Saturday and from noon to 10 p.m. Sunday.

Included in the display will be three feature cars of special interest: The $60,000 "Morque Machine," an 800-horsepower "Pizza Wagon" and an intricately designed "Pinball Wizard."

The Morque Machine, inspired by the television series, Mork and Mindy, was designed by Larry Wood of Los Angeles and built by Rod Powell of Salinas, Calif. Creative ingenuity coupled with experienced craftsmanship resulted in an innovative, egg-shaped vehicle.

The Pizza Wagon, designed to provide very hot deliveries with very fast service, has a handmade wood and fiberglass body painted in shades of purple, lavender and violet. It houses an 800-horsepower engine.

Sonny Shroyer, star of a television comedy series "Enos," will be present during the car show. Shroyer is known for his role as Deputy Sheriff Enos in "Dukes of Hazzard" and also for his appearance in several Walt Disney movies.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBKE

Since the holidays, Mother has been looking a little peaked. It's nothing you can put your finger on — just a lot of dragging from chair to chair and heavy sighing.

When I saw her doctor at a social gathering, I mentioned mother to him and he suggested we run a G.S. series on her.

"What's a G.S. series?"

"I asked, 'Garage Sale,' he said, popping a cheese puff into his mouth. 'Run an old ice cream freezer before her eyes and say, 'I'd let this go for a buck,' or a chipped candy dish that you'd be willing to sacrifice for a quarter and see how she reacts.'"

"That's going to make her well?"

"I've seen women at death's door who hiked three miles in the dark to get dubs on last year's calendar and a box of melted candle stubs. It's worth a shot."

The next time I saw Mother, I mentioned I had a pair of cuff links with scorpions on them, a lawn chair that wouldn't open, a drinking glass with a picture of Johnny Bench on it, a jewel box that played Happy Days Are Here Again, and four milk-stained bibs.

Mother's blank face slowly came alive. Her droopy shoulders straightened, her limp hands became clenched and she stood up and announced, "That sounds like the beginning of a garage sale."

From that moment on, she became a blur. She moved the cars from the garage to the street, hung lines for display, carted card tables out of closets and attics, posted signs, ran ads, orchestrated the comings and goings of merchandise and barked orders like a dock worker unloading the QE II.

It was like watching a transformation in slow motion. Her steps quickened, her cheeks flushed with excitement, her humor was restored, her wit sharpened, and I would have been willing to bet this frail woman would never have been able to carry a grill otisserie under her arm a week ago.

The day of the sale was her finest hour. "No, dear, we don't do alterations." "You want that stuffed hamster head or not? I got three waiting." "Ask yourself, if the boots didn't have a hole in them, would you be able to buy them for 50 cents?" "We don't deliver. Who do you think we are, Saks?" "We call that a husband and put him down, he's not for sale. He's just resting."

I asked the doctor if all G.S. series were that successful.

He said, "If a woman doesn't respond to a garage sale, very frankly, I'm not too optimistic about her."

To remove rust from scissors, let them stand in ammonia for a few minutes and then wipe them off with a paper towel.

Keep Records On Home Appliances

COLLEGE STATION (Special) — Ask for appliance-repair receipts, even when no charge is involved, advises Linda McCormack, a family resource management specialist.

Maintain a permanent file of all appliances including warranties, use-and-care booklets, purchase receipts, and both in-warranty and out-of-warranty receipts for as long as you own the appliance, she recommends.

Mrs. McCormack is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the Texas A & M University System.

The ability to document recurring problems can help the consumer if future problems occur after the warranty expires, she points out.

Also, the consumer can use a complete record of service calls to determine whether or not an identical problem has occurred.

Lack of proof that the problem did exist during the warranty weakens a consumer's position for consideration later.

For problems you cannot resolve with the local dealer or service agency, write or call the manufacturer, the specialist suggests.

If you are still not satisfied, write the Major Appliance Consumer Action Panel, 20 North Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill., 60606.

They will study the problem and recommend a solution.

When making a complaint, be sure to give:

- Your name, address and phone number,
- kind of appliance, brand, model and serial number,
- dealer and/or service agent's name and address,
- location of appliance,
- clear description of problem and difficulties experienced.

Fab

DEAR HELOISE
I read in your recent issue that softener sheets were good for fabric. I've been using them for quite a while and I can't say I've noticed any difference in the way my clothes feel. Can you help me out?

I had to laugh. Just grab your sheets and put them on your bed. You'll be out right now, on which you'll be sleeping.

Use the foam and lint from your dryer. They're great for cleaning up a spill or a stain on a small waistband or a fold of your dress.

When the foam is fresh, use it to freshen clothes. It's a great way to freshen clothes.

Stitch several times around the end of a yard of fabric to make a duster for your bed and behind the door.

Use one of your dusting mirrors, etc. How about polishing silver?

One of my foam sheets will keep them from the foam tamer. How about a little "paper doll"?

Did that help? Can come up with that you've got.

HINTS FROM HELOISE:

Fabric Softener Sheets Good For Cleaning

DEAR HELOISE:

I read in your column about using fabric softener sheets after they no longer were good for the dryer.

I've been saving the sheets and now have quite a collection, but have forgotten what your suggestion was. Can you help me out? — Shirley Keela

I had to laugh, but I know your plight! Just grab your scissors and clip this hint out right now, and attach it to the shelf on which you store those fabric softener sheets.

Use the foam sheets to remove hair and lint from your clothes and furniture. They're great for keeping that shirt-tail in or that slippery scarf on. Just attach a small strip of the foam to the waistband of your slacks, or across the fold of your head scarf.

When the fragrance is gone, add your own favorite cologne and use the sheets to freshen closets and drawers.

Stitch several foam sheets together and make a sponge, or attach some to the end of a yardstick and make a handy duster for those hard-to-get-at places under and behind large appliances.

Use one of the tear-apart sheets for dusting mirrors, glassware, T.V. screens, etc. How about interfacing a collar or polishing silver...

One of my favorite uses is to glue a foam sheet under a set of bookends to keep them from sliding.

The foam type make rolling your hair easier. How about bringing a smile to the face of a little child by making a foam "paper doll."

Did that help, Shirley? I'm sure you can come up with some more ideas now that you've gotten started. When you do, be sure to let us know. — Hugs, Heloise

PERFECT GELATIN

DEAR HELOISE:

At a party I was amazed to find out that the ladies didn't know they should add gelatin to the boiling water rather than pour the water over the gelatin.

The granules dissolve as they hit the boiling water, so you don't have to stir "forever." And there's never a rubbery layer at the bottom of the bowl. — Martha Stewart

POT PAINTING

DEAR HELOISE:

Take your clay flower pots and use model car paint to paint scenes on them, giving them a bright, new look.

Even your children would enjoy doing it. — Mrs. Shirley Mullins

PATTERN ORGANIZING

DEAR HELOISE:

Having three daughters, I sew a lot. Sometimes I forget which pattern I used for a favorite garment until one day I had a brainstorm.

I found a composition book, attached a small swatch of material from the garment under construction, and added the person's name, pattern size, pattern number, adjustments, if any, and amount of material needed.

Not only has it saved me time but money when it comes to buying material. Many times buying the suggested amount of fabric leaves one fourth to one half yard excess which is just added expense.

A year and several dozen garments later I find I've referred to my "book" many times.

Now, when one of my daughters wants another pair of slacks like the "blue" pair, I'm certain of using the right pattern and making them fit the same. — Helen Cameron

RUST REMOVER

DEAR HELOISE:

Is there anything to take rust out of material? I am making a quilt and the pins rusted in the material. — Mrs. A. Pitko

There are commercial rust removers available on the market, but be sure to spot test before using, plus follow the directions on the package carefully.

If the sun's shining out your way, a good "home remedy" is to pour a little salt on the rust stains, then squeeze a little lemon juice on the salt. Set the quilt out in the direct sunlight and let "old Sol" do the rest. It may take a couple of tries.

When the rust is gone, wash the garment as usual. — Heloise

Don't hoard a favorite household hint. Do send it to your friend Heloise, 235 E. 45th St., New York, N.Y. 10017 and let her share it with her readers. She'd like to answer your letter personally but it just isn't possible.

South thought about bidding the grand slam since North's five notrump had guaranteed all four aces in accordance with correct Blackwood practice, but South did have a real minimum hand.

The first two tricks went to the ace and king of trumps and South was reduced to finding the best play for six. He went after diamonds. West showed out on the second diamond and South could get only one discard on dummy's diamonds. He took the discard immediately and discarded his 10 of clubs!

Needless to say, West did not use his master trump to ruff either the king or queen of diamonds. Now South led a third trump. West was on lead and down to all black cards.

He had to lead one of them and selected a club.

Now we can see the value of South's 10 of clubs discard on the third diamond. It was a matter of eating his cake and having it left. With the 10 of clubs left in his hand, he would have had to decide between the black suit finesses. With the 10 of clubs discarded earlier, he could afford the club finesse and have the spade finesse to fall back on later. South played dummy's queen and got two spade discards for slam, game and rubber.

Frostbite Needs Quick Attention To Prevent Future Complications

By PAUL DONOHUE, M.D.
Dear Dr. Donohue: Could you please give me some information on what could be done for frostbite? My husband got frostbite on his foot from deer hunting several years ago. Today, he has developed what looks like a bunion next to the small toe. This is giving him great pain. Please give him some advice. How is frostbite treated? — Mrs. C.R.B.

Frostbite means that ice crystals have formed in tissues beneath the skin. With this, the part feels cold, becomes painful, then finally numb. The skin color varies from white to violet. Did your husband's initial symptoms match these?

The proper first treatment for frostbite is prompt rewarming in a place where refreezing will not occur. If a partially-warmed frostbitten area refreezes, larger ice crystals form and even greater damage occurs. The treatment is to immerse the frostbitten part in water at a comfortable temperature (between 100 and 108 degrees Fahrenheit). Recirculate the water. Use a thermometer to regulate the temperature of the water. Thawing usually takes from 30 minutes to an hour.

It is wise, when possible, to have a frostbitten area examined and treated professionally. A tetanus booster may be needed, and the care of the frostbitten part after thawing requires close follow up to be certain adequate circulation has been restored and that infection has not developed.

As to your husband's problem: Even minor frostbite can leave a lifelong condition of decreased tolerance to cold in the area affected. Pain would occur in dampness or cold. Once a finger or toe has been frostbitten, great care must be taken to protect it in the future. I cannot relate the development of a bunion to frostbite, however. That may be an entirely different matter. A bunion should be padded so that no pressure is placed on the area. If that doesn't help, your husband ought to ask his physician if it needs to be removed.

Since frostbite is a hazard in many of the winter activities, prevention is the best treatment. Adequately covering all exposed parts is a must. If a person notices pain in an exposed area or a blanching of the skin, he should seek shelter promptly to warm the part.

Dear Dr. Donohue: About three times since I began having regular physicals several years ago I have had a few red blood cells in my urine. Urological tests showed no other symptoms. I am 48 and in excellent health otherwise. Please tell me what the general medical opinion would be regarding the seriousness of this intermittent condition. — Mr. R.J.O.

The finding of red blood cells in the urine, although often a benign sign, should be thoroughly investigated. This was done in your case. It is most important to determine whether a tumor is causing red blood cells to be shed in the urine. Other conditions can cause the same symptom — for example infection or injury. However, vigorous exercise or exposure to cold also may cause the appearance of the cells.

So long as the important causes have been ruled out, then you can feel assured that nothing serious is going on. Actually, under normal circumstances we pass upwards of 100,000 red blood cells in the urine daily. That sounds like a lot, but at that level they would not be detected from a regular urine test. This is why a further investigation is warranted when blood cells do show up on a routine test. Even a few extra red blood cells does not imply there is trouble with the kidney or bladder. They may have been there because of some exercise you engaged in prior to the regular test. Athletes often show such signs after a contest.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Please give us your thoughts on use of large doses of vitamin C as a cold preventative. — Mrs. T.O.

I guess I am obliged to get on the record on this one. From the evidence I've seen, I find no reason to believe vitamin C helps or prevents colds. Keeping well-nourished with all necessary nutrients (including vitamin C) will help a person weather the onslaught of a cold virus, however.

For a better understanding of colitis and other intestinal ailments, their causes and treatment, write to Dr. Donohue,

ANN LANDERS:

Teen's Suicide Creates Guilt

Dear Ann Landers: Some friends of mine recently buried their son. He was 16 and committed suicide. Survivors include the parents and a 14-year-old brother.

The lad who took his life was a "good kid" from what appeared to be a stable family. He was involved in a church that has an active and effective youth group. The parents are relatively young and will have a good many years ahead of them to live with the guilt. The 14-year-old brother is bewildered and stunned. His brother's suicide will undoubtedly have a strong effect on his life.

What can these parents do to help themselves overcome their feelings of grief and failure? My heart aches for this couple. When I see them I want to reach out and press a hand and say something. But I don't know what to say. It is such a tragedy. — Looking On With Sad Eyes In Elgin, Ill.

Dear Sad: There is little you can say beyond, "We are so sorry." But perhaps you can do something to help them. Suggest that they phone or write to Compassionate Friends. This is an organization founded in Oak Brook, Ill., for parents who have lost their children to death. Like so many self-help groups, they give one another the quality of emotional support that can come only from someone who has been there.

There are many chapters around the country, and they do a wonderful service. The headquarters address is P.O. Box 1347, Oak Brook, Ill. 60521. The phone number is (312) 323-5010.

Dear Ann Landers: People have a tendency to think of gossips as females. I am here to tell you that men have bigger mouths than women, and anyone who doesn't know this should smarten up.

My husband works with a group of men. You would not believe the junk these men tell on their wives and girlfriends. No detail is too intimate. If these women knew what was being said about them, they would never show their faces in public.

I'll bet millions of men read your column. I hope you pick my letter as one to print because I would love to have the clatter-traps at my husband's shop see it. Then maybe they will shut up. — An Oregon Woman

Dear Woman: Don't bet the rent, honey. Men have always been bigger gossips than women. (P.S. In my opinion, nothing is more unattractive than a fella with a loose lip.)

Dear Ann Landers: I work as a waitress in a nice restaurant. My very steady boyfriend comes in for lunch almost every day and sometimes for supper. The question: Should he leave a tip or not?

Actually, I am embarrassed to take his money and have asked him several times not to leave any. He says I am entitled to a tip because I give him great service. Also, he doesn't want to look like a cheapskate in the eyes of the other waitresses or the people he sometimes brings in as guests.

I told him I was writing to Ann Landers, and he said, "She is a sharp apple. I

Dear Ella: The "sharp apple" says you should accept tips graciously — then squirrel away the money and buy Mr. Wonderful a gift for his birthday or Christmas: whichever comes first.

A no-nonsense approach to how to deal with life's most difficult and most rewarding arrangement. Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage — What to Expect," will prepare you or better or for worse. Williams, Cougars Trip Raiders 73-70

By CHUCK McDONALD
Assistant Sports Editor

HOUSTON — For the third time in as many years, Texas Tech fell victim to the Houston Cougars' half-court press in the second half here at the rowdy Hofheinz Pavilion.

And for the third time in as many years, the Red Raiders fell in Hofheinz, this time by a narrow 73-70 count. The difference on Tuesday was that Tech did not fall apart in the face of the Houston press — the Raiders fell behind by as many as 12 points, but they kept coming back.

While it was the Cougar defense that forced the Raider unraveling, it was the hot hand of sophomore sensation Rob Williams that unwound Tech on the other end. Williams, either bombing from way, way out, or driving up the heart of the Tech defense for lay-ins, finished the night with 30 points.

Tech falls to 1-1 in Southwest Conference play while the Cougars lead the league with a 2-0 mark. Overall, Tech sports a 7-4 record (all four losses coming on the road) while Houston is 10-2.

"That press was the turning point in the game," admitted Tech coach Gerald Myers. "We made 15 turnovers and it gave them 17 points. We were breaking the press, but we were making the wrong decisions at the end of it."

"We didn't have our shooters shooting the ball." Until the Cougars went to their trap-press defense in the final half, Tech and Houston had exchanged buckets at a furious pace.

"We were just playing tic-tac-toe with 'em, and that's Tech's game," said Houston coach Guy V. Lewis. "I didn't think we could keep doing that in the second half and beat them."

Houston led 33-30 at the intermission as Clarence Swannegan and Bubba Jennings combined for 20 points to offset Williams who had 19 in the opening half. Jeff Taylor scored two quick buckets sandwiched around a Jennings jumper and when Swannegan dropped in a 15-footer at the 17:27 mark, Tech led 38-37.

But Williams stripped Jennings of the ball on Tech's next trip downcourt and converted it into a fast-break layup making it 39-38.

Then came the play that sank Tech. Leading scorer Jeff Taylor drove the lane and put up an underhanded layup that wouldn't fall and took an elbow to the top of the head for his efforts.

While Taylor lay on the floor in pain, Houston went to the other end where freshman Clyde Drexler took a Williams feed and laid in a quick two points. Taylor left the game and did not return. "Jeff's got a bump on his head the size of a goose-egg and nobody called a foul," said Myers. "If he'd gotten the call and hit his free throws we'd have been back ahead."

But what did happen was six more Houston points following a traveling call against Ben Hill, a Ralph Brewster miss and finally a Swannegan miss. Down 47-38, Tech came right back hand tied the contest at 49-49.

First, Hill made good on a three-point play. Jennings hit from 15 and Swannegan — who led Tech with a career-high 20 points — hit a soft jumper from the outside to make it 49-45. Swannegan then followed in his own miss and then at the 11:15 mark hit a 10-footer and it was even at 49.

But just as quickly as Tech tied it, Houston stretched the lead back out to 10. Eric Davis hit from a cannon-shot away. Clyde Drexler hit a pair of free throws after a Ben Hill miss and it was 53-49. Steve Smith turned the ball over for Tech and Larry Micheaux got a layup.

Chaparrals Dominate Cowboys

By ERIC GALE
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

It was time to take a leisurely stroll around the block. The marathon men of the Lubbock Christian College basketball team were able to shorten their strides during a 96-65 defeat of New Mexico Highlands Tuesday in the LCC fieldhouse.

The Chaparrals, who had played 11 of their first 13 games before unfamiliar road audiences, had familiarized themselves with defeat. LCC lost 10 of those initial 13 encounters, all to scholarship-level programs, and had not enjoyed a home game since Nov. 28.

It was time to end the marathon, time to take a breather. A combination of the fieldhouse and the fellows of New Mexico Highlands proved to be to the Chaps' liking. It is games like this that help to balance a schedule that has included formidable teams such as West Texas State, Howard Payne and Dallas Baptist.

LCC had beaten the Cowboys 106-70 last month in Las Vegas, N.M. That time, New Mexico Highlands was equipped with its two top players, who not incidentally, represent the team's only size at 6-foot-6 and 6-4. Both Cowboys were absent Monday due to illness and classroom duty, respectively, so the Chaps, whose guards were generally taller than the NMH baseline, exploited the small fry.

"I felt, when we played them at their place, that we would've beat them by 30 without those two big kids," LCC coach John Copeland said. "That's a lot of points to beat anybody by, but they had all sorts of people out of position today and that hurts. They were relatively small."

Copeland, who admitted that New Mexico Highlands (winless in eight games) is the least competitive team on LCC's schedule thus far, then added that the relaxation of returning home, plus the Cowboys' depleted ranks, may have undercut his own Chaps' effort.

"There's always a mental letdown when you know somebody is coming in without their two top players," he said. "I was pleased that we won, but I was disappointed that we weren't a little sharper. We did lots of things decent but our mental preparation was not that good."

LCC led by only four points, 26-22, with seven minutes remaining in the first half. Then, there was a sudden change. The Chaps outscored the Cowboys 20-6 before halftime to build a 46-28 advantage.

It was outside shooting, and more outside shooting, that produced the majority of the points as LCC connected on 63 percent of its field-goal attempts in the opening period.

New Mexico Highlands, which is to quality basketball what the hosts of "Real People" are to investigative reporting, sneaked back into contention and trailed 52-43 on James Branch's 20-footer with 12:40 left in the game.

But LCC forward Gary Norris scored

Brian Sipe Garners NFL MVP Plaudits

NEW YORK (AP) — Brian Sipe, whose superb passing propelled the Cleveland Browns to their first division title since 1971, was named The Associated Press' Most Valuable Player Tuesday for the 1980 National Football League season.

The 31-year-old quarterback, who ranked first among the league's passers this season, received 47 of the 84 votes cast by a nationwide panel of sports writers and sports broadcasters; three from each NFL city.

Sipe easily beat Houston running back Earl Campbell, a distant second with 22 votes. The only other players to receive more than two votes were three other quarterbacks — Philadelphia's Ron Jaworski and Atlanta's Steve Bartkowski with four apiece and San Diego's Dan Fouts with three.

Sipe completed nearly 61 percent of his passes — 337 of 554 attempts — for a club-record 4,132 yards. It would also have been a league record had not Fouts smashed his own record with 4,715 yards. Sipe surpassed 300 yards in six games during the season.

Sipe passed for 30 touchdown passes, another club record. And he threw only 14 interceptions during the regular season, a 2.5 interception percentage which was the lowest in the NFL.

Sipe was drafted in the 13th round by the Browns in 1972 off the campus of the passing factory called San Diego State.

But success was anything but instantaneous. He spent two years on the taxi squad and threw his first regular-season pass as a pro in 1974 in the first of his two years as Mike Phipps' understudy. He finally got a chance to become a starter when Phipps was injured during the 1976 season opener.

And last Nov. 3, Sipe became the most prolific passer in the Browns' storied history in the NFL, moving past both Frank Ryan and Otto Graham during a 27-21 victory over the Chicago Bears. He now has 15,207 yards passing to Graham's 13,499 from 1950-55 and Ryan's 13,361 from 1963-68. Graham also quarterbacked the Browns during their four seasons in the All-America Football Conference, gaining 10,085 yards.

Sipe gave credit to "a great coaching staff and the greatest offensive line in the league" for his winning the AP award. That line protected him brilliantly all season, permitting only 23 sacks in 16 games, second only to Buffalo's 20.

Sam Rutigliano, after taking over as Cleveland's head coach in 1978, gave Sipe the freedom to pass as often as he wished.

Said Sipe: "I think quarterbacks get themselves into trouble by trying to avoid mistakes or being too conservative. If there's anything I've picked up from the quarterbacks I respect, it's that you have to take a chance sometimes."

Hill was whistled for travelling, Young put in a followup and it was 57-49.

After a Raider time out and two more missed shots, Williams dropped one in from the parking lot and it was just about over at 59-49. On the other end, Nelson Frane turned the ball over and Williams drove the lane for two more and it was all over at 61-49 with 7:11 left in the game.

"You've got to give the defense credit," said Myers. "But we just made too many mistakes. Rob Williams really played good — we just didn't cover him good enough."

But a funny thing happened to the Cougars before they could put the icing on the cake. The Cougs, who hit a red-hot 63.3 percent from the field, couldn't buy a free throw.

The Cougs went to the line eight times in the final 3:57 and could only come away with six points. They finished the contest by hitting only 11 of 20 free throws and missed the front end of five one-and-ones. Tech, on the other hand, hit eight of 11 attempts at the charity stripe.

Ahead by 10, 65-55, when the free throw drought began, the Cougs let Tech close within two points before finally putting it away.

Brewster scored on an alley-oop dunk pass from Frane to make it 65-57. Young hit one of two freebies and Ricky Guy hit a follow shot and the score was 65-59. Frane hit from 20 feet, Houston got three points out of six tries at the line and Brewster hit two follow shots and the score stood 69-65 with 58 seconds left in the game.

Finally, Jennings hit a 28-footer with four seconds left to pull Tech within two, 72-70, but it was just too late.

"It's just a lack of concentration at the free throw line," explained Williams. "Those last four minutes seemed like two hours," said an exasperated Lewis. "We let them back in the game with all those misses."

Young and Drexler, Houston's freshman tandem inside, combined for 22 points to complement Williams' supreme effort but had only nine rebounds between them.

Swannegan led all players with nine boards as Tech outrebounced the Cougs 35-23. Jennings had 14 points for Tech and Taylor added 10 in 25 minutes of action. Brewster and Frane each had eight for Tech.

"Swannegan is tough inside," admitted Drexler. "He has a good shot."

For the second straight game, the Raiders shot well, hitting 50 percent of their shots (31 of 62) but this time the Cougs shot better (31 of 49). Williams was a phenomenal 13 of 16 from the field.

Tech now returns to Lubbock to face the Texas A&M Aggies, who have dropped back-to-back shockers to TCU and Baylor — a couple of lower division clubs.

"You have to give Houston plenty of credit for what happened," said Myers. "But that wasn't in any way our best game of the year."

Midland Upends Estacado 83-71

By RAY GLASS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Midland High suffered through its characteristic first-half blues Tuesday before producing a 50-point effort in the final two quarters behind deadly free-throw shooting to dump Estacado 83-71 in boys' basketball action at the Matador Gym.

Estacado was the third Lubbock team the Bulldogs have faced this season and for the third time Midland High fell behind at halftime, trailing the Mats 39-33.

But the Bulldogs, ranked No. 2 in the state and owners of a 16-3 record, hit 24 of 28 charity tosses while posting consecutive 25-point quarters in the second half. They led by as many as 18 points in the final period before the Matadors scored the final six points of the game.

"We changed our effort in the second half," Midland coach Jack Stephenson said of his club's turnaround. "We were standing around too much in the first half. I talked to them more harshly at halftime than I have all year."

"In the second half they started to do what I told them to do. We worked on the fundamentals of our game, like our press. We started to play our 'we game' instead of an 'I' game."

Principally among the 'wes' for the Bulldogs in the second two quarters were Horace Brown and Herb Johnson. Brown, a 6-foot-4 forward, and Johnson, a 6-10 player who competes at all three positions, controlled the rebounding and converted repeatedly at the foul stripe.

Brown hit four of six free throws and finished as Midland's leading scorer with 23 points. Johnson was seven of eight from the foul stripe and had 21 points, 13 rebounds and three blocked shots.

As a team, the Bulldogs converted 27 of 34 free throws during the game as the smaller Mats were forced to foul in the second half. Estacado inside musclemen Jerry Gray and Danny Boyd both fouled out in the final two quarters as the Matadors committed 24 fouls, 16 in the third and fourth periods.

Midland High led 17-14 at the end of the opening quarter, thanks to a Johnson baseline stuff with 24 seconds to play in the period.

The Bulldogs opened their lead to 23-16 before James Barnett hit three of four free throws and Kenneth Cade and Boyd added layins to knot the game at 23-23. The Mats went ahead 29-27 two minutes later on a 20-foot jumper by Freddie Harris and five points from Cade and three from Barnett down helped form the six-point halftime lead.

The Bulldogs outscored the Matadors 25-14 in the third period to take a 58-53 lead with eight minutes to play. But the Midland full-court press, which bothered the Mats throughout the game, produced four turnovers in the first two minutes of the fourth quarter, giving the Bulldogs four buckets and an insurmountable 66-53 advantage.

Cade led the Matadors in scoring with 26 points, while Barnett added 18 and Rodney Guyton 10. Guyton had nine rebounds for Estacado while Grey, who picked up his third personal foul with 6:43 to play in the first half, fouled out with 42 seconds remaining in the third period with two points, eight rebounds and five blocked shots.

The two teams meet again Friday at 7:45 p.m. in Midland.

Palo Duro Rips Lubbock Girls

The Lubbock High School girls' basketball team lost to Amarillo Palo Duro 53-34 Tuesday night in the LHS gym.

Palo Duro broke the game open in the second quarter by outscoring Lubbock 18-3 to take a 31-14 lead as they ran away for their fifth win against 13 losses.

LHS, 4-13, was led by Oliva Vasquez with 16 points.

Palo Duro also won the junior varsity

Tascosa Nips Coronado

AMARILLO (Special) — Marvin Jones hit a 10-foot jump shot with only 07 left Tuesday night to nullify a Coronado comeback and give Tascosa a 43-41 victory, only its fourth of the season.

After trailing 36-28 after three periods, the Mustangs fought back to tie the game on a Mark Sobosie free throw with 3:0 remaining but then missed an opportunity for the win.

Sobosie was CHS' only player in double figures with 15 points and Jones was Tascosa's with 14.

Coronado falls to 10-10 on the season while Tascosa now stands 4-9.

Mustang boss Barry Arnwine was whistled for two technical fouls in the contest, after protesting too vehemently when the officials called Tascosa for walking and then proceeded to give them the ball inbounds anyway.

Monterey Girls Smash Estacado

Monterey's entire starting lineup scored in double figures as the Plainsmen advanced to 17-1 on the season with a 99-60 whipping of Estacado Tuesday night on the MHS floor.

Kriss Ethridge tallied 20, Kamie Ethridge 18, Alayna Gilmore 15, Andrea Moore 14 and Tracy Muehbrad 10 for the dominating Plainsmen.

Estacado, meanwhile, got 16 points from Maxine Walker and 11 points each from Stephanie Peoples and Cynthia Mann. The Matadors stand a respectable 11-6.

Monterey led 22-14 at the end of the first period and 44-34 at halftime before blowing open a 75-42 third-period lead that sealed the victory.

Dunbar Girls Drop Berger

Dunbar's girls' basketball team exploded for 24 points in the third quarter while holding Berger to just five en route to a 55-41 district victory Tuesday.

The Panthers squared their loop record at 1-1 while moving to 10-6 for the season.

Leading 21-18 at halftime, Dunbar scored 24 points in the decisive third period while limiting Berger to just five and cruised on in with the win.

Lisa Cavieel scored 14 points and Cynthia Hardaway added 12 to pace the Panthers. Marie Brooks scored a game-high 20 points to lead Berger.

Palo Duro Marathon Slated For Saturday

AMARILLO (Special) — "The Southwest's Most Scenic Course," located in the Palo Duro Canyon, will be the site of the Fifth Annual Palo Duro Marathon and Four-Mile Run sponsored by the West Texas Running Club and The Hub Clothiers in Amarillo Saturday.

The marathon will begin at 11 a.m., with the four-mile run to follow at 11:30 a.m. A sign-in table will be located at the last camp site on the main Canyon Road. The table will also be the starting location for both races.

The entry fee will be $5 per runner, except those running the four-mile high school and 15 and under division, if it is received before race day. The fee will be $6 on the day of the race. The high school and 15 and under division entry fee will be $3.

The course is located entirely within the Palo Duro Canyon State Park. It will consist of five laps around a looped course. The course will be entirely on asphalt roads and is undulating. There are no major hills on the course. The Canyon offers a relatively sheltered location. Temperatures in the Canyon normally average degrees warmer than on the table land above. The Canyon also offers some protection on windy days.

received before race day. The fee will be $6 on the day of the race. The high school and 15 and under division entry fee will be $3.

AP Names Buffalo's Chuck Knox Coach Of Year

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — For turning the also-ran Buffalo Bills into a National Football League division champion, Chuck Knox has been named Coach of the Year by The Associated Press for the second time in eight years.

He edged Leeman Bennett of the Atlanta Falcons by one vote in balloting announced Tuesday.

"I think it's a compliment to our players and to my assistant coaches and reflects on the Buffalo Bills," Knox said of the honor.

The Bills feel the same way about their coach.

Free safety Bill Simpson, who came out of retirement to play for Buffalo this season, said Knox was the only head coach who could have talked him into returning.

"We owe it all to him," said linebacker Shane Nelson, one of 15 veterans left from the team Knox took over in January 1978. "He came in and showed us how to win."

Knox received 27 1/2 of 84 votes cast by a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters — three from each NFL city. Bennett, one of his closest friends, was second with 26 1/2 and Sam Rutigliano of the Cleveland Browns was third with 18. The only other coach to receive more than three votes was Oakland's

Tom Flores, with four.

Buffalo's 11-5 squad which won this season's American Football Conference East title barely resembles the team Knox inherited, a 5-23 team in the two preceding seasons. However, he resisted the urge to amputate, taking a thorough, patient look at each veteran before deciding their future.

One exception was star running back O.J. Simpson, whom Knox quickly dealt to San Francisco for five draft choices over the next three years.

"I think a couple of things have happened. We were able to get four starters (Bill Simpson, linebacker Isiah Robertson, receiver Frank Lewis and guard Conrad Dobler) in three years through trades. Then it's been a matter of having good drafts for good, young players and blending them together. That's been a big part of our success," Knox said.

Buffalo was 5-11 in Knox' first year and 7-9 last season before winning its first playoff berth since 1974 and first division title since 1966 in the old American Football League. However, Buffalo was eliminated from the playoffs in the first round Saturday, losing 20-14 to the San Diego Chargers.

"Getting that far and then losing was a disappointment," Knox acknowledged.

Knox also was The AP Coach of the Year in 1973, when he turned the 6-7-1 Los Angeles Rams into a 12-2 National Football Conference West champion. It was the first of five straight division titles for the Rams, who were 54-15-1 under Knox from 1973 through 1977.

Knox made two of his biggest changes — the "shotgun" formation on passing downs and a four-linebacker defense — in 1979, but saw his preparations bear fruit with a zingy 1980 offense led by rookie back Joe Cribbs and veteran quarterback Joe Ferguson.

Cribbs rushed for 1,185 yards and Ferguson had a career-high 251 completions for 2,805 yards. The Bills allowed an NFL-low 20 sacks.

Landry Discounts 'Psyche Job'

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas coach Tom Landry said Tuesday Philadelphia coach Dick Vermeil's psychological warfare won't work against the Cowboys.

Vermeil has opted for white jerseys Sunday in the two teams' National Conference title game so the Cowboys will have to wear their dreaded blue jerseys in which they are only 10-10 lifetime. He said Monday that Dallas was the best team.

"We have a pretty good team," said Landry at his jam-packed weekly news conference when asked if Dallas was best. "Vermeil used to coach for George Allen (long Landry's nemesis at Washington) and he still has a little bit of it in him.

"The psychological warfare has started. The jerseys are a typical move. The press jumps on it quick. I don't blame you (the press). It's a story. They (the Eagles) are just trying to distract us as a team. The jinx is part of the football game."

Landry added "none of that is going to do any good. The best team Sunday will walk off the field a winner."

Although Landry tried to stay above Vermeil's psyche moves, special assistant Ermal Allen pointed out later "The Eagles are 1-13 in white shirts the last eight years."

Landry also took note of Philadelphia's injury situation and said that wouldn't make any difference.

"The Eagles scored 27 points against us in the second half of our last game and they had (running back) Wilbert Montgomery and (wide receiver) Harold Carmichael on the bench," said Landry. "Montgomery is a pro. He will play the best he can."

"Besides, the Eagle defense is the nucleus of the team. They were the best in the National Football League in allowing the fewest points. Their defense is what keeps the game under control."

Landry said the big advantage for the Eagles, aside from playing on their homefield, was "the consistency of their play. They always play a consistent game. They keep plugging along until something good happens."

He said the big plus for his inconsistent team was "knowing we can win and not worrying too much if we fall behind. That's something they (the Eagles) have to worry about. We also have a good offensive team. The best thing we did this year was score touchdowns."

Dallas advanced to the championship game by defeating Los Angeles in the wild card game then coming from behind to oust Atlanta 30-27 last Sunday in the first round divisional playoff contest.

The Cowboys will fly to Philadelphia Friday afternoon and work out Saturday in Veterans' Stadium.

Cowboys, Eagles Ready For Title Clash

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Eagles and the Dallas Cowboys seem genuinely pleased they have a third opportunity to play each other this year, especially since the winner Sunday will be crowned champion of the National Football Conference and go to the Super Bowl.

"It'll be a war. No question about it. But that's the way it ought to be. That's why we put on pads," said Dallas free safety Charlie Waters after the Cowboys stole Atlanta's come-from-behind scenario.

Two fourth-quarter touchdowns lifted Dallas to a 30-27 win over the Falcons last Sunday and a trip to the NFC finals here. The Eagles, too, came from behind, although their 31-16 victory against Minnesota in an error-filled second half last Saturday was not as dramatic as the Dallas game.

Sunday's 12 p.m. (CST) game will be nationally televised.

The two NFC East Division adversaries split their regular season games against each other, the Eagles capturing the division title despite losing to the Cowboys in the final regular-season game Dec. 21.

Both teams finished with 12-4 records, but Philadelphia took the division on technicality No. 5 (best net points within the division) of the National Football League's tiebreaker rules. The Cowboys' 35-27 victory left short of the 24-point differential needed to unseat the Eagles.

The two teams also split their two games last year in what is becoming a classic rivalry.

"The Eagles are really improved," said Cowboy defensive tackle Randy White. "They love to beat us; we love to beat them, so it should be a heck of a game."

"We'll go in even — none of this 24-point cushion junk," said Eagles offensive tackle Stan Walters.

Philadelphia's Jaworski Wins NFC Player Honor

NEW YORK (UPI) — If Ron Jaworski has learned one thing in his seventh and finest NFL season, it's not to force the big play.

"If I made an improvement this year, it is that I learned to be much more aware of the secondary," said the Eagles' All-Pro quarterback, named Monday as UPI's NFC Player of the Year. "Now I can get the ball to our backs because now I know where all my receivers are at all times."

"In the past, I was always looking for the big play and I was always trying to make it. I didn't give defenses enough credit and even though I would occasionally make the big play, I would also get beat a lot. Now, I've learned to take what the defense gives, yet I can also challenge them for the big play."

Jaworski, who has led his Eagles to within one victory of their first Super Bowl, beat out Atlanta quarterback Steve Bartkowski in balloting by 56 sports writers — four from each NFC city. The NFC's top-rated passer received 22 votes while Bartkowski, who led Atlanta to its first NFC West title, totaled 15 votes.

Safety Nolan Cromwell of Los Angeles finished third with five votes, Rams' quarterback Vince Ferragamo was fourth with four votes and Falcons' running back William Andrews fifth with three votes.

"It's a very nice honor and, although it goes to me, it's a reflection on the team," said Jaworski. "Most of the focus is on the quarterback but we wouldn't be having the season we are having if it weren't for the guys playing around me."

Jaworski, who finished second in the NFL to Brian Sipe in passing efficiency, threw for 3,529 yards, 27 touchdowns and was intercepted just 12 times in 451 passing attempts during the regular season. He completed 57 percent of his passes and averaged 7.82 yards per completion.

"Personally, I think the high point in the season so far came when we had a streak of four or five games with Wilbert (Montgomery) out," said Jaworski. "There was more pressure on me to put points on board and our offense became more wide open. I made some big plays and we went on an eight-game winning streak. That's a darn good feeling for me when I knew I was being relied on more because Wilbert was hurt."

Jaworski, 6-foot-2, 196 pounds, began to blossom in 1979 when he led the Eagles to an 11-5 record — the most victories for the team since 1961 — and a second straight wild-card playoff berth. Jaworski finished that season with 2,669 yards passing and 18 TDs and threw just 12 interceptions in leading the Eagles to the NFC title game, where they lost, 24-17, to Tampa Bay.

Jaworski is only the second Eagles' player to receive the honor with quarterback Norm Van Brocklin taking the award in 1960 — the last time Philadelphia won the NFL Championship.

Football Conference and go to the Super Bowl.

"It'll be a war. No question about it. But that's the way it ought to be. That's why we put on pads," said Dallas free safety Charlie Waters after the Cowboys stole Atlanta's come-from-behind scenario.

Two fourth-quarter touchdowns lifted Dallas to a 30-27 win over the Falcons last Sunday and a trip to the NFC finals here. The Eagles, too, came from behind, although their 31-16 victory against Minnesota in an error-filled second half last Saturday was not as dramatic as the Dallas game.

Sunday's 12 p.m. (CST) game will be nationally televised.

The two NFC East Division adversaries split their regular season games against each other, the Eagles capturing the division title despite losing to the Cowboys in the final regular-season game Dec. 21.

Both teams finished with 12-4 records, but Philadelphia took the division on technicality No. 5 (best net points within the division) of the National Football League's tiebreaker rules. The Cowboys' 35-27 victory left short of the 24-point differential needed to unseat the Eagles.

The two teams also split their two games last year in what is becoming a classic rivalry.

"The Eagles are really improved," said Cowboy defensive tackle Randy White. "They love to beat us; we love to beat them, so it should be a heck of a game."

"We'll go in even — none of this 24-point cushion junk," said Eagles offensive tackle Stan Walters.

Winter Draft Set

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league baseball will hold its 16th annual winter amateur free agent draft Jan. 13-14, with the 26 teams making their picks via a conference call originating from the office of Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Players eligible for the regular phase of the draft generally are junior college players, players who withdrew from a four-year college or January high school graduates. Those eligible for the secondary phase of the draft were picked previously, but not signed.

North Texas State AD Resigns

DENTON, Texas (UPI) — North Texas State University athletic director Andy Everest resigned Tuesday, two days after the university's head football coach resigned. NTSU Athletic Department officials said Tuesday.

There was no indication that Everest's resignation was forced, but Fred

Polk, an executive assistant to NTSU President Frank Vandiver, said Everest's resignation would give the school the flexibility to offer "a competitive salary to fill the new position of athletic director and head coach at NTSU."

Jerry Moore resigned Sunday as head football coach to accept a similar position at Texas Tech University. Moore had been NTSU football coach for two seasons.

In discussing his resignation, Everest said he had a Monday afternoon meeting with Pole to presumably discuss the approach to hiring a new head coach.

"After discussing that briefly, I was told that in making an evaluation of our program, it would be an economic move to combine the position of head coach and athletic director," Everest said. "I was told that if I was interested I would be considered as a candidate."

"I told them I was not interested and that I don't personally feel it is feasible to combine the two jobs. We went through that one time and it was extremely difficult for the other sports and it was difficult for the other coaches on the football staff."

Everest, in his letter to Vandiver, asked that his resignation be effective upon appointment of his successor with his duties at the university terminating May 31 or "at such time that I secure other employment."

He said he did not think he would continue at NTSU in another position and that no other position had been discussed.

Everest joined the NTSU staff in 1973 as assistant head football coach and became assistant athletic director in 1977 when head coach and athletic director Hayden Fry left. The roles were separated and Everest became athletic director.

Everest hired Moore from the University of Nebraska.

Everest said the combination of the two positions was likely a step by the administration to save money.

Wayland JV Rips Lady Chaps

Things do not always get better before they get worse.

The Wayland Baptist College junior varsity women's basketball team had defeated the Lubbock Christian College Lady Chaps 67-51 in their season-opener Nov. 7.

The Queen Bees once again mistreated the Lady Chaps, 79-58, Monday night in the LCC fieldhouse.

Wayland Baptist, a bit more skilled and a bit more developed than the non-scholarship Lady Chaps, used eagle-eyed outside shooting to establish a 22-4 lead. LCC had experienced a scoreless span of over seven minutes during which the Queen Bees helped themselves to 18 uninterrupted points.

An array of missed layups, misguided

Fortunately for LCC and coach Dave Simpson, things did get better. Slowly but surely.

After trailing 51-26 on a Marsha Coates' layup early in the second half, the Lady Chaps began to shoot well themselves. In fact, they hit 54 percent of their field-goal attempts across the final 20 minutes. LCC never moved closer to the lead than 15 points, but Simpson was grateful for the improvement. Any improvement.

"We got down at first and couldn't recover," Simpson said. "We missed six or seven layups and the girls got discouraged. And then we went a long period without scoring. It disturbs me to have those gaps in scoring.

"We came back a little bit in the second half and I was extremely pleased with our bench in that half. It was a good sign. Even though we lost Daria (Lynch) and Cindy (Bigham), the squad's only representative height) on fouls, Sherry Brown and JoAnn Phillips did a fair job of posting up and giving us an inside game."

"And let's remember. We were playing a skilled team. We were playing a team that works out consistently with a varsity as tough as Wayland's has to be fundamentally sound — and they were."

Miss Phillips led LCC with 14 points and nine rebounds.

The Lady Chaps, 4-9, host South Plains College at 6 p.m. Thursday in the fieldhouse before they open Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association play against Austin College at 1 p.m. Saturday, also in the fieldhouse.

Morton Races Past Dunbar

MORTON (Special) — Morton placed five players in double figures as it raced away from Dunbar in the second half for an 84-62 boys' basketball victory here Tuesday.

Morton led 27-26 at halftime before outscoring the Panthers 29-16 in the third period and 28-20 in the final stanza for its 12th victory in 20 games this season. Dunbar fell to 5-12.

Bruce Johnson paced Morton with 20 points, while Kelly Taylor had 19. Billy Cadenhead 11 and Todd Willingham and Junior Ortega 10 apiece.

Dunbar had four double-figure scorers of its own, led by Tyrone Young with 20 points. Roland Comacho pumped in 13 while Kirk Coats and Ralph Bryant contributed 10 apiece.

Mustang Girls Bomb Pampa

The Coronado girls' basketball team used some sharp shooting from both the field and free throw line to defeat Pampa 66-45 Tuesday night in the Mustang gym.

The Mustangs hit 23 field goals to 19 for Pampa and were successful on 20 of 27 charity attempts as compared to seven of 18 for the visitors.

"We got off to a slow start and didn't play very good defense early," CHS coach Miles Johnson said. "But we got a good team effort. We played a lot of good people which was good. I thought we handled the ball very well and it pleased me that we got the ball down the floor as easily as we did."

Leading the way for the Mustangs were Teresa Ritchie and Dee Dee Thomason who each scored 11 points. Leanne Wade chipped in 10.

Bobbie Skaggs of Pampa led all scorers with 14 points.

Dons Manhandle Monterey

AMARILLO (Special) — Ian Hyslop scored 27 points Tuesday night but his Monterey Plainsmen still fell to Amarillo Palo Duro by a wide 59-48 margin.

MHS, which stands 14-6 on the season, led 31-19 at the end of the first half, but Palo Duro came storming back after intermission to outscore the Plainsmen 41-17 and take the victory.

Palo Duro, now 10-4 on the year, was led by Joel Washington and Vincent Wells who scored 14 points each. Robert Daniels added another 12.

Houston Women Nip Red Raiders 65-63

HOUSTON (Special) — The Texas Tech women's basketball team fell behind 34-27 at the intermission here Tuesday night against the University of Houston but despite outscoring the hosts in the second half, the Raiders dropped a 65-63 heartbreaker.

With the loss Tech falls to 5-9 while Houston is 8-3.

Once again, it was freshman Carolyn Thompson who led the Raiders with 29 points and 15 rebounds but she got little help from her teammates as only Tammy Anderson could manage double figures with 12 points.

Regina Gray paced the Cougars with 25 points and Kip Anderson added 10.

The game was decided in the first half when the Cougs dominated the backboards to hit 16 field goals out of 43 attempts while the Raiders got only 28 shots, making 12.

Down by seven, Tech gradually fought back but could come no closer two quick baskets and Bruce Carver hit six consecutive free throws to gain a 66-

45 lead at 9:34. All six free throws were the result of three technical fouls — and ejection — charged to Cowboy coach Edward Abreu. Abreu's insolent body language became verbal, and he leaked one profanity too many to the referees.

Carver led LCC with 23 points — in less than 20 minutes of floor time. Norris, Jim Steensma and Larry Holt scored 12 apiece, while reserve Rick Murdoch led in rebounds with eight.

LCC, 4-10, opens its Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association schedule by hosting Austin College at 3 p.m. Saturday in the fieldhouse.

BUILT IN AMERICA FOR AMERICAN'S NEEDS!

WHAT YOU GET WHEN YOU CHOOSE PLYMOUTH FRONT WHEEL DRIVE

- 11 billion miles of front-wheel-drive experience.
- Our front-wheel-drive technology is known in the industry. We have more front-wheel-drive experience in small, U.S. fuel-efficient cars than GM, Ford, AMC, Toyota or Datsun. We introduced an American-made, high mileage, front-wheel-drive car two years ahead of GM and three years ahead of Ford. We have sold more small, fuel-efficient, front-wheel-drive cars in the U.S. than GM, Ford, Datsun and Toyota.
- Outstanding overall est. mpg.

SPIRITUAL LEADER — Chan Kin Viejo, 85-year-old spiritual leader of the Lacandon Indians, gestures as he talks about his jungle dying. Anthropologists Say Mexican Forest, Mayan Tribe Imperiled

NAJA, Mexico (AP) — Anthropologists say logging, cattle ranches and peasant squatters are killing Mexico's last virgin forest and snuffing out the culture of its most traditional Mayan tribe, the Lacandon Indians.

"When the jungle is destroyed, the world dies. There won't be any water and the roots die. When there are no roots, there is no land," said Chan Kin Viejo, the 85-year-old spiritual leader of the Lacandons.

Anthropologists and ecologists say nearly half of the 40-square-mile jungle, a tropical rain forest near the Guatemalan border, has been cleared by loggers, cattlemen and invading peasants, who slash and burn the natural vegetation to plant subsistence crops of corn and beans.

If the clearing continues at this rate, they say, today's 25,600 acres may be whittled down to as few as 7,000 acres by 1990.

The tropical forest that 30 years ago was home to no more than 3,000 Lacandon, Chol and Tzeltal Indians is now home to more than 100,000 peasants who left their homes to find more land. Officials say their numbers increase daily.

"The jungle is full and the world is going to end," Chan Kin said.

Among the invading peasants are thousands of Indians from other, already Westernized tribes. The Chols and Tzeltals also have been exposed to Western influences over the decades, and absorbed them into their cultures. But the fragile Lacandon culture, protected by jungle isolation for centuries, is directly threatened.

Many of the 450 remaining Lacandons are giving up their white togas, barbed feet and flowing, long hair for jeans, tennis shoes and haircuts. Some drive trucks, sport expensive watches and pray to new gods.

In Naja, Chan Kin and his son, K'ayum, pray to Hacha'kyum, the God of Real People, and to Kianto, the God of Foreigners. In the village of Lacanja, 75 miles away, K'ayum's brother, Chan Kin III, prays to Jesus Christ in a crude bamboo Baptist church.

Kianto, once considered the god of disease, guns and machetes, is now honored as the god who brought machines, electricity and money to the jungle. He is the most powerful god.

The Lacandons, who for 900 years lived on a subsistence level, now sell mahogany and cedar to lumber companies, bows and arrows to tourists. They buy Coca-Cola, powdered milk and meat to replace a diet of wild boar, monkeys and parrots, which are becoming scarce. Some employ newcomers to work their fields and speak Spanish as well as their native dialect.

Gertrude Duby Blom has been visiting the jungle since 1943. She doesn't like the changes.

"They are already more aggressive. They want radios, cars, more cars," she said. "There was no stealing when I came. All that comes with greediness. There was no competition. That comes, too. They were reliable. They had time to sit and look at nature."

James Nations, an ecological anthropologist, blames the jungle's demise on land scarcity and a government push to develop a cattle industry. "The Mexicans are seeking to colonize the jungle to decrease pressure for land reform in other areas. It takes the pressure off the government to break up large land holdings," he said.

Ernesto Gonzalez Castillo, a government Agrarian Reform official, disputed Nations' charge, saying the peasants are moving to the forest because of heavy erosion in the highlands.

But an official from the government's National Indigenous Institute, who asked not to be identified, agreed with Nations: "The (peasant) Indians don't go to the jungle because they want to. They go because their problems in the highlands aren't resolved. There isn't any more land there. It is in the hands of big landholders, or their lands have been subdivided among children. The government sends them to the jungle to resolve political problems."

Nations said peasants clear land for crops and are then offered cheap loans from the government Rural Credit Bank to get them to raise cattle.

Manuel de la Torre, another Agrarian Reform agent, said cattle production is limited to areas already cleared by the peasants, but Nations alleges that ranchers illegally rent collectively owned lands from Indians, who then clear more land for crops, destroying more jungle. He said the rain forest's northern third has already been turned into pasture land.

De la Torre said that in an effort to save the remaining jungle, the government is relocating some 25,000 peasants to a southern section of the jungle called Marquez de Comillas.

Divorce Papers Filed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Doris Day and her fourth husband, Barry Comden, have filed for divorce in Los Angeles Superior Court.

In the court papers filed Monday, the couple cited irreconcilable differences and stated they required no legal assistance in dividing community property.

The 56-year-old actress married Comden, a 45-year-old businessman, on April 16, 1976. They separated on Aug. 25, 1979.

Miss Day's third husband, producer Marty Melcher, died in 1968.

A second marriage to musician George Weidler lasted three years and ended in divorce in 1949.

Her first marriage in 1941 to musician Al Jordan, with whom she had a son, Terry, ended in divorce in 1943.

Royal Wedding Planned

MARIE-ASTRID

LONDON (AP) — Princess Marie-Astrid of Luxembourg, one of several women that British gossip columnists have speculated Prince Charles would marry, is going to wed a West German count instead, the London Daily Mail reported Tuesday.

The newspaper predicted an official announcement in March that Marie-Astrid, 26, will wed Count Georg von Eltz.

Reports that Prince Charles, a Protestant, might marry the Catholic daughter of the reigning grand duke of Luxembourg stirred up a fuss in the British Parliament and loud opposition from militant Protestants in Northern Ireland last July.

After a two-day flap, Buckingham Palace announced that Charles scarcely knew the woman and had no intention of marrying her.

Oklahoma Star Honored

EUFAULA, Okla. (AP) — Move over, Andrew Jackson. The Eufaula City Council has voted unanimously to rename Andrew Jackson Street to J.C. Watts Street in honor of the University of Oklahoma football star who is fresh from an Orange Bowl victory over Florida State University.

City Council members made the decision Monday. Watts' parents, Helen and J.C. "Buddy" Watts, still live on the road.

"I've received quite a few honors, but this is at the top of the heap," Watts said on Monday night after learning of the council's decision.

Try Gasohol, Say Officials

FRANKLIN, Tenn. (AP) — Authorities told a Williamson County man he should have tried brewing gasohol when he confessed to making moonshine to cover gasoline bills.

Williamson County Deputy Mark Lucas said Monday that George Tomlin is charged with operating an illegal moonshine whiskey still and repossessing untaxed whiskey.

"He said he needed the extra money to buy gas," Lucas said. "We told him he ought to be making gasohol."

He said Tomlin "was pretty good-natured about the whole thing. He just 'fessed up."

Authorities destroyed four barrels of moonshine and the still following the Saturday raid.

Low Priced Quality Eyed

BOSTON (AP) — John O'Bryant, the first black to head the Boston School Committee, says he is optimistic about meeting the challenge of providing quality education with a minimum of resources.

O'Bryant, elected president of the five-member board on Monday, is serving his third two-year term on the board.

He takes office at a time when the 65,000-student school system has a majority of black and Hispanic students.

O'Bryant said there were problems in 1975 when he first ran for the committee, but "then we had enough money to do the job. In 1981, we no longer have the resources."

But he described himself as "an eternal optimist... I believe in God, in my ability to succeed and in the people of the city."

Androcles Needed Now

JOLIET, Ill. (AP) — Judy Tomich is trying to give a lion a helping hand, but she has to come up with about $600.

Leo, a 300-pound, 2-year-old feline, was saved from the butcher's cleaver about 2 1/2 weeks ago, but he's in limbo, cared for by one friendly human, while another tries to arrange for a home on the West Coast.

It began when Bernard Haake, who operates a petting zoo in Highland Park north of Chicago, met an Omaha, Neb., man at a farm near Lockport while looking for some ponies to buy.

Haake noticed a lion caged in the back of a pickup truck, and discovered that the man was taking the animal for slaughter to supply restaurants which feature exotic meats. The man told Haake he had raised the lion from a cub but that he had grown too big and ate too much — 15 pounds of chicken and beef a day.

Haake paid the man $300 to save the animal, planning to donate it to the Brookfield Zoo or Lincoln Park Zoo. Neither wanted it, though.

Then he contacted Mrs. Tomich of the Will County Humane Society.

Opera Films Planned

LONDON (AP) — Tenor Placido Domingo says he plans to join conductor Herbert von Karajan and director Franco Zeffirelli in Peking next year to make a spectacular film version of Puccini's opera "Turandot."

The 39-year old Spanish opera star told The Associated Press in an interview that negotiations are nearly completed for the project.

"The Chinese have apparently given their approval," he said.

Negotiations are under way to determine who will sing the role of the icy Chinese princess Turandot, conquered by the love of a stalwart tenor.

Domingo said he, Zeffirelli and conductor Leonard Bernstein also plan to make a film version of Verdi's "Aida" next year on location in Egypt.

"They are both on a big scale and are two ideal works to do on film," said Domingo, who has already made movies of Puccini's "Tosca" and "Madame Butterfly."

Mabel Mercer Honored

NEW YORK (AP) — The legendary singing voice of Mabel Mercer was on display for two hours when the Whitney Museum turned its fourth floor into a cabaret in her honor.

A letter from Frank Sinatra, read at the festivities Monday night by singer Sylvia Syms before she sang "Remind Me," called Miss Mercer "the best music teacher in the world." Sinatra added, "I am the luckiest of all because I learned the most of all."

Listeners, dressed formally, paid $150 each to huddle at tiny tables and listen to specialists in the cabaret art sing songs seldom heard outside night clubs.

The evening benefited the museum and was also a belated celebration of Miss Mercer's 80th birthday, as a lavish St. Regis Hotel party had previously honored her 75th birthday. She actually will turn 81 on Feb. 3.

Miss Mercer led all the performers and band on the small stage as the evening ended in singing "S Wonderful."

Marines Stage Rescue Drills Of Civilians

TOKYO (AP) — The "country," was El Capistrano, but the backdrop was snow-covered Mount Fuji.

And on the ground were Marines staging a mock rescue of American civilians from the unfriendly but fictitious country.

The 800 Marines were from the 2nd Battalion, 9th Marine Regiment, based in Okinawa. The simulated helicopter evacuation at Camp Fuji west of Tokyo pitted the rescue force against demonstrators, played by other Marines, and staged enemy sniper fire at the American embassy in the fictitious country of El Capistrano.

A Marine spokesman said the evacuation exercise, held Dec. 11, was modeled after similar Marine operations in Saigon and Cambodia during the Vietnam war and "had nothing to do with Iran," where 52 Americans have been held hostage for more than a year.

A Marine press release said the exercise "was formulated to offer the troops a challenge and to familiarize them with working with civilian personnel should the need arise."

Titan Missile System Called 'Basically Safe'

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's 18-year-old Titan missile system is basically safe, but action is needed to further limit its "potential hazards," according to an Air Force study launched after one of the huge missiles exploded last fall.

Although there have been suggestions in Congress that the oldest U.S. long-range missile be retired, the report released Tuesday by a special Air Force military-civilian review group found that the Titan system "represents a capable and important instrument of U.S. national policy."

In its nearly 400-page report, the group recommended several measures

"to provide an extra margin of safety now and in the future."

Those recommendations are "intended to reduce further the probability that mishaps, especially serious accidents, will occur" and that any such episodes "will be responded to in a manner that provides for public safety," the report said.

The report encompassed the entire force of 52 liquid-fuel Titan II missiles near Little Rock Air Force Base in Arkansas, McConnell AFB near Wichita and Davis-Monthan AFB near Tucson.

But it obviously drew on lessons learned from the Sept. 19 explosion at Damascus, Ark., in which one airman was killed and 21 were injured. The accident occurred after a technician performing routine maintenance on the giant rocket dropped a wrench socket, piercing the fuel tank and allowing volatile fuel to leak.

The Titan force, armed with the biggest nuclear warheads of any U.S. missile, is only a small part of the U.S. land-based missile arsenal.

"The Titan II as a weapon system is assessed as safe and supportable," the review group included in its over-all assessment.

"The basic design was and is safe," it said. "System currency is being maintained adequately. Operations and maintenance procedures are adequate to insure safety and supportability."

However, the report acknowledged "potential hazards," saying that "mishaps involving propellants are more likely to produce a serious hazard, with a greater potential adverse effect on the public."

While steps have been taken to reduce the possibility of mishandling, the report said, "inadvertent propellant release remains a concern."

At the same time, the report stressed that the nuclear warhead is the "least hazardous" aspect of the Titan.

The group held that "under only the most extreme circumstances would the warhead react adversely in an accident" and that the "worst plausible outcome would be a conventional, high-explosive detonation with limited scattering of warhead components."

Resultant radiation and toxic dangers

"would be minimal," it said.

While the design of the Titan II is "essentially safe," the report said, "new, more stringent standards ... have been applied to the missile system to improve the margin of safety."

The report contended that design changes to make the missile less susceptible to incidents like the one at Damascus "are not practical."

However, the review group said a number of steps already have been taken to lessen the dangers of accidents during maintenance: tools are being attached to lanyards to prevent their being dropped, and a safety net has been developed.

The report said there have been only seven major mishaps attributable to material failure over the nearly two-decade life of the Titan II system, but expressed concern over "the increasing number of mishaps ... which resulted from personnel error."

The report said "this adverse trend must be reversed," calling for "strong leadership ... to promote discipline" and compliance with technical orders.

The report's recommendations included speeded-up development of hardware and procedures "to scrub, burn, suppress, neutralize, remove major insulo propellant spills and resultant vapors." It proposed a more modern system for detecting vapor leaks into the missile silos.

The report also called for "realistic exercises with rigorous accident scenarios" and urged closer coordination between Air Force and state-local officials to minimize the consequences of possible accidents.

It suggested improved communications between the Titan missile wings and "the considerable expertise available at higher headquarters, depot, civilian contractors, and other agencies."

Joint Air Force and state and local warning and evacuation planning "needs to be done in the near term on a site-by-site basis, to include selection and deployment of an effective immediate warning system," the study group said.

According to the Air Force group, four clear lessons have emerged on the need to improve communication and "interaction" with the public in any future accidents.

"First, there is a need for expeditious, authoritative statements locally concerning any accident," the report said.

"Second, these public statements rapidly should confirm the presence or absence of nuclear weapons in the accident and frankly discuss safety features and potential hazards."

"Third, procedures should be refined to provide timely notification and an ongoing flow of information to interested members of Congress and other federal agencies."

"Fourth, interagency agreements should be established to coordinate government-wide public affairs responsibilities, procedures and activities in nuclear accident situations."

Speaker To View Texas In '80s

Mark Shepherd, chairman and chief executive officer of Texas Instruments Inc., will be the main speaker today at the Downtown Lubbock Club's weekly luncheon.

Shepherd will address the group at the Civic Center ballroom on "Perspectives On The 1980s: A View From Texas."

The TI chief officer was named in an August 1980 Wall Street Journal-Gallup survey as among the top 20 business executives in the United States most respected by his peers.

He graduated from Southern Methodist in 1942, earned his masters at the University of Illinois in 1947 and has been awarded two honorary doctorate degrees in engineering, one from SMU and another from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute.

Shepherd joined TI in 1948 as a project engineer. He has served in almost every key planning and production job, as well as management in the worldwide organization, which has one of its main plants in Lubbock.

In 1961, he was named executive vice president and chief operating officer. He was elected to the company's board of directors in 1963 and in 1967 became president. In 1969 he was designated chief executive officer and in April 1976 was named chairman of the board. He holds numerous other civic positions as well as memberships on other boards.

The United States, Britain and the Soviet Union signed a nuclear test-ban treaty in 1963.

FACING MEDIA — Louisiana State Judge Richard Lee talks to a swarm of television, radio and newspaper reporters outside Buckeye High School. Lee was present at the school to make certain that three girls attend segregated classes there. (AP Laserphoto)

Louisiana Judge Continues To Defy U.S. Court Order

BUCKEYE, La. (AP) — An unyielding state judge defied a federal court and personally escorted three white girls to all-white Buckeye High School Tuesday, refusing for a second day to bend to a federal judge's desegregation order.

State District Judge Richard Lee intervened after Gov. Dave Treen, on the advice of the state attorney general, withdrew the state troopers who had accompanied the girls to class on Monday.

Lee, armed with a copy of his own court order and accompanied by Constable Newton Paul Jr., accompanied the girls to the school guidance office before classes. But the constable later left after he was served with an order by the federal judge barring state officials from interfering in the case.

The girls had no comment for two dozen reporters clustered at the entrance to Buckeye High.

Principal Charles Waites, obviously tense, said the youngsters were admitted on advice of school attorney John Ward.

"He's saying let them in as long as someone's here to enforce the order and don't make a scene," the principal said.

Waites added: "If (U.S. District Judge Nauman Scott) runs out of people, I look for him to go the last step and arrest the people who are letting the girls in — meaning me..."

He added that Paul apparently had not been served with Scott's temporary restraining order of Monday which directed all state officials to stop interfering with the desegregation plan.

At 11 a.m., federal marshals arrived and served Paul with the order. The constable made a telephone call and then left without comment.

School officials said the girls would remain on the campus until the end of the day because there was no one to take them home. It was not known whether they would attempt to attend Buckeye High today.

The youngsters — Ramona Carbo, 12, Lynda McNeal, 13, and Michelle Laborde, 13 — have been ordered to attend predominantly black Jones Street Junior High School, which is 15 miles away in Alexandria, as part of a desegregation program ordered by Scott.

However, their parents have obtained an order from Lee transferring custody to friends who live in the Buckeye attendance zone.

NAUMAN SCOTT Federal Judge Defied

In Baton Rouge, Gov. Dave Treen said he was staying out of the dispute following Scott's order.

"The attorney general advised me yesterday that the federal court order is superior and recommends that it be followed," he said.

Parents of the girls say busing, not race, is the issue. All live within two miles of Buckeye High. Lee says it is a question of constitutional jurisdiction, and that a federal court has no jurisdiction in custody matters.

However, Scott says the custody case is a sham aimed at circumventing his Aug. 6 order extending desegregation in the 52-school system by busing whites into Alexandria, and busing blacks out to predominantly white rural schools.

Buckeye is all-white. The school to which the girls were assigned, Jones Street, is 54 per cent black. However, both are part of the parish system first desegregated in the early 1970s. Buckeye is white because few blacks live in the area.

Emirates Join In Crude Oil Price Boosts

The United Arab Emirates, supplier of 1 percent of the petroleum used in America, was reported Tuesday to have followed Saudi Arabia in raising crude oil prices $2 a barrel as the world oil cartel's latest series of price hikes continued to pick up speed.

The British National Oil Corp. said in London, meanwhile, it probably would announce an increase in the price of North Sea oil by the end of the week. Industry sources said the increase was likely to be in the range of $2.50 to $4 over the current price of $36.25 per 42-gallon barrel.

Britain, which is not an Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries member, usually follows OPEC's lead on prices and accounts for another 1 percent of U.S. oil needs.

Platt's Oilgram Price Report, a daily trade newspaper published in New York, said the increase by the United Arab Emirates would raise the price of a barrel of the country's high-quality Murban grade of crude to $35.56.

The reported move was not immediately confirmed by companies dealing with the Persian Gulf country, which cut its oil output 5 percent on Jan. 1 to 1.62 million barrels a day. The United Arab Emirates and Britain each sell about 200,000 barrels of oil daily to the United States.

An increase in British oil prices has been expected following recent price hikes of $3 to $4 a barrel by OPEC members Libya, Algeria and Nigeria, whose oil is of similar quality to that produced in the North Sea. Other OPEC members raising prices include Venezuela and Indonesia.

Libya's increase raised its price from $37 a barrel to OPEC's new maximum of $41 a barrel for official prices. The other two countries raised prices by $3, to $40 a barrel, but charge premiums of $1.25 to $3 a barrel on some sales.

United Arab Emirates oil prices often move in tandem with those charged by Saudi Arabia, the world's largest petroleum exporter. The Saudis began the current series of OPEC increases in mid-December, raising their crude oil price from $30 to $32 a barrel.

OPEC oil ministers subsequently decided to let the cartel's prices rise by 10 percent to a new average of about $35 a barrel — 171 percent above the average price at the end of 1978.

The latest moves by the cartel and other exporters are expected to add up to 8 cents a gallon to the cost of gasoline and heating oil in the United States. But most American refiners, who also are facing rising oil costs at home, have raised wholesale prices of these products by between 1 cent and 5.5 cents a gallon since late December.

On spot markets, where individual cargoes of petroleum are traded, heating oil prices reached about $1 a gallon Tuesday as cold weather kept home furnaces running overtime. The spot price was up about 3 cents from late last week, traders said.

In another matter, Deputy Petroleum Minister Abdul Aziz al-Turki of Saudi Arabia was quoted as saying the Saudis might "reconsider" their $32-a-barrel oil price if the prices on spot markets remain high.

Saudi oil accounts for 8 percent of U.S. petroleum needs. Platt's Oilgram News, sister publication of the Price Report, reported al-Turki also said in an interview in Riyadh that Saudi Arabia has set its oil output for January at 10 million barrels a day but will reconsider production policies monthly.

Saudi Arabia raised its production by about 500,000 barrels daily to help replace the 3 million to 4 million barrels of oil exports lost from Iran and Iraq since September because of the war between the Persian Gulf neighbors.

The lost exports represent about 7 percent of Western oil needs, but oil prices have not soared as they did follow-

Wholesale Gasoline Prices Up 1-3 Cents

By The Associated Press

Exxon and four other United States refiners have raised wholesale gasoline prices by 1 to 3 cents a gallon, according to the New York Daily News.

The News said the increases should begin to be felt at the pumps almost immediately.

The News said that besides Exxon Corp., the refiners raising prices are Sun Oil Co., Getty Oil Co., Atlantic Richfield Co. and Diamond Shamrock Corp.

Exxon's increase would apply only east of the Rockies, the News said. Sunoco's in the Midwest and Southwest, Getty's in the Midwest, Southwest and Rocky Mountains, ARCO's and Diamond Shamrock's nationwide.

In Los Angeles, an ARCO spokesman said the company's increase would be 2 to 3 cents a gallon, due primarily to increasing costs of domestic crude oil.

He said the rise in price may not necessarily be passed onto the consumer.

"It is up to the individual service station dealer whether he passes it through to the customer. But you can assume that the dealers will be passing it through. It depends on their competitive situation," said ARCO spokesman Raymond Parr.

At a recent meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, members agreed to raise the price they charge for crude oil. Some American oil companies have responded by increasing their wholesale prices to dealers.

But Parr said: "We're not heavy buyers of Saudi Arabian or Middle East oil to the extent of other companies. Domestic crude oil prices which have been under price controls are being gradually decontrolled. We will reach ultimate decontrol by the first of October."

Parr said that about two-thirds of ARCO's oil is produced domestically while approximately one-third is imported.

ARCO raised the wholesale price of gasoline by 2 cents a gallon in most of the country, Parr said, but the price jumped 3 cents a gallon in some Southern states.

Industrialists Gather To Celebrate Victory

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of industrialists and intellectuals gathered in Washington Tuesday to celebrate what they had helped bring about: the election of one of their own to the presidency.

The intellectuals were from California's Hoover Institution on War, Revolution and Peace and the industrialists were members of its board of overseers and from such companies as General Electric, the Adolph Coors brewery and Standard Oil of California.

What they had in common was an admiration for Ronald Reagan, an honorary Hoover fellow.

Reagan is expected to look to the Hoover Institution for some of the intellectual yeast of his administration and he arranged to break bread at a Hoover banquet Tuesday night of the institution's overseers.

Among those participating were Reagan's cabinet appointees, Allan Hoover, son of former president Herbert Hoover; Reagan advisers J. William Middendorf II, Alan Greenspan and Anne Armstrong and a number of members of Congress from both parties.

The Hoover Institution, founded by Herbert Hoover in part "to demonstrate the evils of the doctrines of Karl Marx," will play the role for the conservative Reagan government that the Brookings Institution has played for liberals: It will be an idea factory.

The scholars at Hoover tend to be ardent anti-communists and ardent believers in the free enterprise system.

They do their thinking in a 285-foot tower on the campus of Stanford University in Palo Alto, Calif.

They summed up their views in a book published a year ago:

"We do not want to turn our country into a puritanical garrison state, but we will not survive unless we save more than we spend, work more than we play and spend more on defense and less on welfare."

For years, the Hoover scholars stood isolated, while the ideas from such liberal wellspring as the Brookings and the Ivy League prevailed in Washington.

But now, says W. Glenn Campbell, the conservative economist who runs the Hoover, the rest of the country has caught up with the Hoover way of seeing things.

Campbell was handpicked by Hoover to run the place. He persuaded conservative businessmen to finance it, to the tune of a $40 million endowment.

The Hoover expects to provide foot soldiers as well as ideas to the new administration.

Already, Reagan has tapped Hoover researcher Martin Anderson as his chief domestic adviser and Richard V. Allen, a former Hoover fellow, to be his national security adviser.

Another Hooverite, Darrell Trent, who held six jobs in the Nixon Administration, reportedly is in line to become No. 2 man in the Transportation Department.

Among the other stars at Hoover, some of whom are expected to make the trip to Washington, are:

• Nobel prizewinning economist Milton Friedman, the nation's best known proponent of old-fashioned free enterprise economics.

• Red-haired economist Thomas Moore, a libertarian who is an expert on, and an opponent of, government economic regulation. He believes in unfettered competition.

• Russian-speaking Soviet expert Richard Staar, who keeps track of events in the Soviet bloc and believes Americans are naively indifferent to Russian intentions of world domination.

• Nuclear physicist Edward Teller, "father of the H-bomb," who believes there is a 50-50 chance the United States will no longer exist in 20 years. "In a conventional war in the Middle East, we would be badly beaten," he says. "In a nuclear war, if it should come, we would be wiped out."

• Economist Rita Ricardo Campbell, an expert on Social Security who believes workers should be encouraged through tax incentives to work beyond retirement age. She is Campbell's wife.

• Alvin Rabuska, an advocate of tax-limiting citizen initiatives like California's Proposition 13.

• And African expert Peter Duignan, who believes the United States should make an accommodation with South Africa and who advocates the use of the troops of allies, such as Egypt, to play the same role as Cuban troops have played for the Soviets.

Duignan says that Reagan, when he has visited the Hoover for stimulation and conversation, often came down to the left of his hosts. He says Reagan was more sympathetic to the plight of steelworkers and auto workers idled by foreign competition and was more willing to use the government to help them.

Lennon Death Suspect Says 'Not Guilty'

NEW YORK (AP) — Mark David Chapman, ringed by armed court officers in a heavily guarded courthouse, pleaded innocent Tuesday to killing former Beatle John Lennon. His lawyer said Chapman will not deny the shooting but will offer insanity as his defense.

Defense attorney Jonathan Marks also said he acknowledged that his client is mentally competent to stand trial.

"Not guilty," were the only words spoken by the 25-year-old Chapman during a brief appearance before State Supreme Court Justice Herbert Altman.

The judge appointed two psychiatrists and a psychologist to examine the defendant, one of them a veteran of the Son of Sam multiple murder case. Pretrial hearings were scheduled for Feb. 11 and Feb. 25, with a trial date to be set at the latter appearance.

Chapman is accused of stepping out of the shadows late on the night of Dec. 8 and gunning down the 40-year-old Lennon as he and his wife, Yoko Ono, were entering their luxury apartment building, the Dakota, overlooking Central Park on Manhattan's Upper West Side.

Chapman has been described as an ardent Lennon fan and only a few hours before the shooting had obtained the former Beatle's autograph as Lennon and his wife left the Dakota.

However, authorities said Chapman had come from his home in Honolulu expressly to kill Lennon.

The slaying evoked a worldwide tide of anger at the crime, and mourning for the victim. On the Sunday after Lennon's death, at his widow's suggestion, tens of thousands around the globe paused in their varied activities for 10 minutes of silence as a final tribute to the victim.

Chapman, who is being kept under an around-the-clock suicide watch at Rikers Island prison, stood motionless during most of the brief court appearance, his hands at his side.

CAREERS

Dear Joyce: I am in the throes of deciding on a career and have read a brief article that mentioned all jobs can be classified as having to do with people, data or things. Can you explain more about this?
—F.B., Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

While the notion is simple to grasp — if you like to work with people, choose an occupation mostly concerned with people; if you like working with things, and so forth — to really benefit from it takes pages of explanation.

An outstanding booklet of 12 pages on the topic titled "Data, People and Things" has been developed by Richard Nelson Bolles of the National Career Development Project, Box 379, Walnut Creek, Calif. 94596. A copy is $3 plus a 28-cent stamped, self-addressed, long white envelope.

Dear Joyce: I have been offered a sales position but I would receive only a commission, not a salary. Do you think I would be foolish to try such a job? I can only afford to work a few weeks without money coming in.
—I.R.R., Phoenix, Ariz.

Ask for advance payment or "draw" before taking the job if your financial situation is precarious. The merit of the proposition depends on the product, the company, your sales ability and your comfort level in taking risks.

The Dartnell Corp. found that experienced sales reps on salary in 1979 averaged $22,265; those on part salary, part commission averaged $28,456; those on full commission earned $32,135.

Dear Joyce: I am planning to enter graduate school for a Ph.D. in English. Most institutions seem to offer fellowships or grants to promising individuals but usually not enough to cover their entire cost of education and living. I am wary of borrowing as my plans are to spend four or five years taking a Ph.D. and then to teach; salaries in the future may be even lower than they are now, making payments onerous. Do you know of any source of financial aid for graduate students?
—P.S., Portland, Ore.

Study financial aid guides — like Dr. S. Norman Feingold's "Scholarships, Fellowships and Loans" — but you ought to take another look at the wisdom of your goal. Suggest your read Betty Lehan Haragan's column in the January issue of Savvy magazine on the pros and cons of returning to campus, especially for a doctorate in English.

School Board Elections Scheduled

A-J Correspondent
HOBBS — Twenty-one candidates are seeking election Feb. 3, to fill 11 positions on school boards in five Lea County cities.

Five candidates are seeking to fill two positions on the Hobbs Board of Education and two candidates, Dr. Jack Kernan in Position 1, and Ralph Littleton in Position 2, are seeking re-election to the six-year terms.

Anita Maldonado, a 34-year-old housewife with five children, four of them in school, first filed to oppose Littleton, the first black to be elected to the Hobbs school board, but then withdrew from that position and will run against Kernan instead. Mrs. Maldonado seeks to become the first Mexican-American to be elected to the Hobbs board.

Other candidates in Hobbs include Jim McIlroy, a Hobbs businessman, also opposing Kernan, and Jerry F. Klipstine who will oppose Littleton. Kernan and Littleton are serving their first terms.

Three positions are to be filled in Lovington and there will be six candidates on the ballot. Sam Massey, incumbent in Position 1, is facing a challenge from Patrick Blackburn and in Position 2, Jeanne Graham and Tommy Weaver want to fill the six-year term. Position 1, also is a six year term. James Templeman and Ronnie Rogers have filed for election to the third position, which is a two-year term.

In Eunice, incumbents W.T. "Bill"

Huffman and Robert B. Wallach, both serving six-year terms, are being challenged by Ross L. Robinson Jr. and Freddie E. Tucker, respectively.

Jal, Lea County's southernmost city, has five candidates wanting to fill three positions on their school board. They are Dennis Segars, incumbent running in Position 1 for a six-year term; Francis J. Jinkins and Owen Roberts face each other for a six-year term in Position 2; and Dennis N. Hale and Leo C. Davis face each other for a four-year term.

Only one position, a six-year term, is open in Tatum and incumbent Shirley Jane Jones has no opposition in her bid for re-election to that post.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The early part of the day brings some delays or obstacles in the path of your goals, so make sure you are working at the right pace and with the correct information.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Being patient at your work brings fine results now. Use more care in handling routines. Show that you have wisdom.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You may not get the financial results you want in the morning but later they materialize, so be calm.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You arise feeling frustrated, but by knowing the reason for this you soon get back on the beam and accomplish much.

MOON-CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) If you try to relax you can soon relieve pressure that seems intolerable. Avoid a troublemaker.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Try to help others now who need assistance and later they lend you a helping hand. Avoid temptation to spend too much money.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Know what is expected of you by higher-ups and gain their respect. Don't take any risks when dealing with outsiders.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You have good ideas that should be carried through later in the day for best results. Make this a worthwhile day.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Get an early start to handle important business matters so you can engage in social activities later in the day.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Wait until the afternoon before dealing with a difficult associate for best results. Plan for the future.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Good day to take on difficult work that becomes easier for you now. Take treatments to improve your appearance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You have a heavy work load, so get an early start and you can plow right through it easily. Relax at home tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) Wishes of some family members may not meet with your approval, but come to a happy compromise. Be logical.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have the capability of solving difficult problems, so give the best education you can and success is bound to follow. Give as fine an ethical training as possible. Don't neglect sports early in life.

The stars impel, they do not compel. What you make of your life is largely up to you.

Heartline

Heartline is a service for senior citizens. Its purpose is to answer questions and solve problems. If you have a question or a problem not answered in these columns, write to Heartline, 114 East Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio 45381. You will receive a prompt reply, but you must include a self-addressed, stamped envelope. The most useful replies will be printed in this column.

HEARTLINE: I started drawing Social Security retirement benefits at age 62. I have been drawing benefits for 14 months. Now I have an opportunity for an exceptionally high-paying job, which will last for three or four years. Can I stop drawing my Social Security benefits for now and start drawing again in three or four years? What will be the effect on these benefits? K.P.

ANSWER: Yes, you may suspend your Social Security retiree benefits for the duration of your new job. At the time you reinstate the benefits, the age 62 reduction will no longer apply to your benefits.

When a retired person age 62-64 receives no monthly benefit or only part of a monthly benefit due to work deductions, these months are no longer counted at age 65 and a new reduction factor is computed. In your case, if you are 65 or older when you start drawing benefits again, your benefit would only be reduced by the 14 months you received benefits and not by 36 months, as initially computed. Thus, at 5.9 of 1 percent per month, your benefit would only be reduced 7.8 percent and not 20 percent.

On top of this, your high earnings up to the year you stop work will be included in your benefit increases, depending on how high the earnings actually were. You should notify Social Security as soon as you start this job, or before if possible, so that you are not paid benefits during any months that you work, and then notify them again when the job terminates.

The only other choice you have is to withdraw your claim and refund all benefits you have thus far received. You would then have to file a new claim when you stop work and you would receive the full unreduced benefit if you were 65 or older, since you had refunded all the previous benefits you received. In this case, as above, all your earnings up to the year you reti would also be used to compute your benefits.

Now is the time to order your copy of our 1981 Heartline's Guide to Social Security. This book answers most of the question you will ever have about the social security program and all the different social security benefits. To order, send $2.00 to Heartline, Dept. SS, 114 East Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio 45381.

HEARTLINE: Will Medicare pay in addition to Workmen's Compensation? H.G.

ANSWER: No, Medicare will not pay for services when payment has been made or can be made by a federal or state workman's compensation program.

President Attends Historic Church

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter attended an Epiphany service Tuesday at Christ Church in suburban Alexandria, Va., once the parish church of George Washington and Robert E. Lee.

The Rev. Mark S. Anschutz, rector of the church, said he has been inviting the Carters to attend since they moved to Washington.

The presence of Carter and his wife Rosalynn at the noon service continues a tradition that most presidents since Franklin D. Roosevelt have observed in attending the small, brick historic church. They sat in the so-called Washington pew, which is preserved in its original state.

Industry Examines Laundry Additives

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Detergents containing phosphates were shooed from many supermarket shelves in the 1970s, indicted by environmentalists for their fertilizing powers that clogged lakes and streams with algae and other plant life.

Now the laundry industry is asking consumers to take a more critical look at non-phosphate alternative detergents.

Industry spokesmen say such products not only don't clean as well as phosphate detergents but also damage clothes, washing machines and the family pocketbook.

Andria Brown, an economist for Speed Queen Corp. in Ripon, said her company spent $7 million to redesign coin-operated equipment with non-stainless steel parts which were better able to withstand the abrasiveness of non-phosphate additives.

For the consumer, said Miss Brown, use of nonphosphate detergents may mean higher utility bills because they need hotter water.

In addition, she said, the Soap & Detergent Association of New York calculates it costs four times more to buy extra laundry supplies to boost the cleaning power of non-phosphate detergents than for a consumer to pay his share of improved sewage treatment.

Kay Olson is a home economics teacher in Wausau and a leader of a group of home economists who are planning to lobby legislators this year in favor of a return to phosphate detergents.

Miss Olson complains that non-phosphate detergents are expensive and, like Miss Brown, suggests that environmentalists should be aiming their clean-up efforts at sewage treatment plants.

"I am paying more to have a clean wash while nothing is being done to clean up the lakes," she said.

Duane Schuettelz, an investigator for the state Department of Natural Resources, says "there is a counter argument" to the suggestions that the pollution problem ought to be tackled at sewage treatment plants rather than in the laundry machine.

"The head of the Chicago Metropolitan Sewerage Commission once predicted a 40 percent increase in sludge if polyphosphates were to return," he said.

The DNR has been studying non-phosphate detergents for 18 months and will probably report to the Legislature next year when Wisconsin reviews its 1979 law which banned the chemicals.

But according to Schuettelz, the department has not been "looking at what the laundry capabilities are" of alternative detergent additives or investigating the increased costs people may be paying because of garments prematurely aged by non-phosphate detergents.

In 1971, Indiana was the first state to ban sale of detergents containing more than 3 percent phosphates by weight. Fewer than two dozen states followed that lead, despite findings in a Canada-U.S. study soon after that most phosphorus in the Great Lakes was coming from municipal sewage treatment plants, and that 70 percent of it originated with household detergents.

Several years later, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency also banned use of NTA, nitrilotriacetic acid, a phosphate alternative whose use is allowed in Canada. But the EPA's original fears that NTA was toxic have since been reconsidered, and some researchers suggest it may end the search for a phosphate alternative in the United States.

The problem with alternative detergents seems to lie with the chemical used instead of phosphates — sodium carbonate, or old-fashioned soda. John Harkin, a University of Wisconsin organic chemist and professor of environmental toxicology, explains that phosphates are especially valuable in hard water laden with minerals such as calcium. Phosphates counteract the minerals and suspend dirt particles, making it easier to rinse dirt out of the wash. Manufacturers of laundry machines complain that the limestone also coats moving parts.
