

Loan Program's Kickoff Slated Today

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A LOAN program which could revitalize Lubbock's flagging housing market begins today as $43 million becomes available for 11.05 percent mortgage loans.

The loans for new and existing single-family homes will be available this morning when 12 participating lending institutions open for business.

Money for the loan program came from the sale of tax exempt bonds by the non-profit Lubbock Housing Finance Corporation. Those bonds will be repaid as the loans are repaid.

Corporation president M.B. Smith Jr. said the program is targeted at low and moderate-income persons who earn less than $40,000 per year.

Smith noted that an advertisement in this morning's newspaper lists all guidelines and regulations. Without checking the loan requirements, Smith said, some persons will be "wasting their time" attempting to apply for the loans.

In addition to the maximum income limit of $40,000, Smith said $80,000 is the maximum loan amount. Buyers are required to pay 5 percent of the sales price down and sellers must pay 4 1/2 points under the loan guidelines.

To qualify for the below-market loans, Smith said persons must take their sales agreement for a house, W-2 forms from 1979 and their 1979 income tax returns to one of the 12 participating lenders.

Lenders participating in the program are Brierley Savings & Loan, First Federal Savings & Loan, First National Bank, Investors, Inc., The Lomas & Nettleton Co., Lubbock National Bank, Mortgage & Trust, Inc., Plains National Bank, Sentry Savings Association, State Savings & Loan Association, West Central Investment Corporation and West Texas Savings Association.

Because Texas law places a 10 percent ceiling on the interest which can be paid on bonds, Smith said some adjustments had to be made to the program to keep the rate below 10 percent.

One such adjustment is that the interest on loans made under the bond program is escalated after seven years in a "balloon note," Smith said. Monthly payments are computed as if the loans would be paid in 30 years, but at the end of seven years the loans must be paid so the bonds can be paid off.

Borrowers then can independently refinance the house purchase or take advantage of guaranteed refinancing for the remaining 23 years at existing federal market rates plus one percent to pay for

U.S. Sending Key Official To Algeria Differences With Iran 'Narrowing'

By The Associated Press

A TOP IRANIAN official said Wednesday Iran has "generally" accepted the latest, secret proposals for ending the hostage crisis. U.S. officials, saying important issues remained unresolved, announced Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher was making another trip to Algiers for talks with Algerian intermediaries.

The statement by chief Iranian hostage negotiator Behzad Nabavi, elaborating on sketchy remarks Tuesday by Iran's prime minister, seemed to confirm that some progress, perhaps significant, had been made toward ending the U.S.-Iranian deadlock.

At Carter's Request

The trip by Christopher, announced by the State Department only two hours before the key official left from Andrews Air Force Base, was at President Carter's request.

Speaking to reporters before taking off, Christopher said, "The process is (Algerian Role, Page 3, Sec. A) continuing and the distance between us, which is still measured in very large numbers, seems to be narrowing somewhat."

He added that "serious problems remain, communications are difficult and time is running out," a reference to the 12 days which remain before President-elect Ronald Reagan takes office.

Making Third Trip

Christopher, who is making his third trip to Algiers, said that he could not say that the United States and Iran were on the verge of an imminent breakthrough.

Christopher will meet Thursday with Algerian Foreign Minister Mohammad Benyahia to discuss the status of the negotiations and U.S. responses to the questions received from Iran Tuesday night. Christopher was accompanied by Harold Saunders, the assistant secretary of state for Near East and South Asian Affairs, and two other senior officials, the announcement said.

Questions Remain

Urgent messages flashed back and forth across the Atlantic late Tuesday to clarify some items in the new plan. But details of the proposals remained undisclosed, and cautious officials on both sides refrained from saying a major breakthrough was at hand.

"The process aimed at release of our hostages continues but a number of important questions remain to be solved," State Department spokesman John H. Trattner said in Washington before the Christopher trip was announced.

Another U.S. official said, however, that agreement had been reached on some "basic principles." Iran is prepared to revise its demand that the United States put $24 billion in cash and gold in Algeria's central bank to guarantee eventual compliance with Iran's financial demands, said the official who requested anonymity.

President Carter met for a half hour with Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie, Christopher, National Security Adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski and counsel Lloyd Cutler. Press secretary Jody Powell said after the meeting it wasn't possible "to make a judgment at this point about what, if anything, will come from the events of yesterday."

Brzezinski was asked whether he believed the two sides were working out a deal. "We're moving toward one, I hope," he replied.

Wednesday was the 43rd day in captivity for the 52 American hostages.

Since last weekend, Algerian diplomats acting as go-betweens in the crisis have been discussing the latest proposals with Iranian leaders in Tehran. The Algerians had conferred for five days last week with U.S. officials in Washington in

Scheme To Defraud Feedlot Uncovered

By RICHEL D. REECER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

STATE AND county authorities are investigating a scale-tampering scheme apparently designed to defraud a local feedlot by charging the owners for thousands of dollars worth of nonexistent grain.

The plan, discovered Wednesday morning by employees at the Lubbock Feed Lots on the Slaton Highway, involved the use of a radio-controlled hydraulic device planted in the truck scale mechanism at the feedlot, according to Lubbock County Sheriff D.L. "Sonny" Keesee.

Department of Public Safety officers and sheriff's deputies are attempting to determine who installed the device and how much money the feedlot lost.

Radio Frequency Linked

Authorities say the device, designed to be activated when a truck driver keys his citizens' band radio on a particular frequency, would cause the scale to indicate a load of grain weighed much more than it did, resulting in payment by the feedlot for thousands of pounds of grain it never actually received.

The battery operated mechanism had the capability of altering the weight reading of a truck by as much as 35,000 pounds, according to E.C. Crofoot, chairman of the board of directors of the feedlot. But any exaggeration of more than 10,000 pounds would have been quickly discovered, he added.

With the current grain price of $7.25 per 100 pounds, the feedlot might have been overcharged as much as $7,250 for each of the transport company's deliveries.

Scale Malfunctions

Crofoot said the scheme was discovered when his son, Jay, attempted to weigh a loaded semi-trailer Wednesday morning. The scale would not function properly and the younger Crofoot told the driver to move off the scale.

Dean Killion Stepdown Asked By Tech Officials

By DEBBI STALTER

DEAN KILLION

DEAN Killion, who stepped down Wednesday after 21 years as Texas Tech University band director, said he was asked to resign in a meeting Tuesday afternoon with three Tech officials.

"I never had the slightest thought of retiring," Killion said. "It came as quite a surprise to me."

Killion said he met Tuesday afternoon at "an announcement type meeting" with Len Ainsworth, interim vice president for academic affairs; Lawrence Graves, dean of the College of Arts & Sciences; and Harold Luce, chairman of the music department.

Killion declined to comment on the specifics discussed at Tuesday's meeting.

His resignation was announced Wednesday and is effective at the beginning of the spring semester, which starts Jan. 19. However, Killion will continue to teach music education and conduct classes at Tech through the upcoming semester. He said he was unsure of what his plans would be after that.

The veteran conductor, who one Tech official credited with developing "the best collegiate band program in the nation," said he wouldn't be looking for another job if he had a choice. He added, however, that he may later seek a band directorship at the junior high school level.

He said each time he has taken over a directorship, he has determined whether the school really wants a band, through financial support and otherwise, "and if they do, I'm the man to give it to them."

Killion said he would especially favor working in a junior high school because good teachers are important at that level of band development.

"I'll probably forever be teaching some sort of band," he said. Killion said that in seeking a position with a junior high, he might enjoy working with a smaller school as compared to the university level.

And he said he intends to stay in Lubbock.

"I've enjoyed West Texas and Texas Tech. There's not a band program in the world that has had the support the Tech band has," he said.

Ainsworth said a committee will be named to search for a successor.

"We do not anticipate an early appointment, however," he added. "The high quality of band performance set by Killion will make the position attractive, and we expect that applications will be submitted from throughout the nation."

Killion was named band director and assistant music professor at Tech Sept. 1, 1959. That same year, he became the first minister of music at First Christian Church.

He was named president of the Texas Bandmasters Association for 1970-71 and was selected 1975 Man of the Year by First Christian Church.

Killion was honored in 1967 as Outstanding Community Salesman by the Lubbock Sales Executive Club. He also was elected a member of the American Bandmasters Association, a professional band honorary.

He served as director of bands at Fresno State College in California from 1967 until coming to Tech. He was instructor of brass instruments and assistant director of bands at the University of Nebraska, where he was in charge of training the marching band, arranging band shows and directing performances.

He also served as music supervisor and instructor of instrumental music in Sidney, Neb., public schools from 1951 to 1955. The school system had a high-ranking band in the Tri-State Music Festival in Enid, Okla.

At the University of Nebraska he was a graduate assistant in the brass department.

Stock Mart Plunges In Record Trading

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market suffered a sharp drop in record-breaking trading Wednesday and the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 23.80 to 980.89 — its biggest drop since it lost 26.45 points last Oct. 9.

In the first three sessions of the year the average climbed 40.70 points to 1,004.69, its highest level in more than four years.

New York Stock Exchange volume reached 92.89 million shares, breaking the old record of 84.06 million set last Nov. 5.

The decline, which sent the Dow average down more than 30 points at mid-noon, followed an overnight sell recommendation from a well-known investment adviser, Joseph Granville of Holly Hill, Fla.

Theatre Centre Here May Close

By WILLIAM D. KERNS
A-J Entertainment Editor

LUBBOCK Theatre Centre directors, faced with overdue bills and an apparent lack of enthusiasm from the community, say they may be forced by the end of the month to close the doors of LTC's year-old downtown home.

"I can make a long story short real easily. What it boils down to is this: If someone doesn't bail us out, we're going to have to shut the doors," LTC board executive vice president Mike Hewitt told The Avalanche-Journal Wednesday night.

"There's no income coming in. We can't get support. We can't get people to come out to the plays. We can't get people interested in serving on the board. We've beat our heads against the wall trying to come up with ideas on how to get people to support their own community theater."

Asked for a deadline, Hewitt explained that a new show would have to be cast and funded by late January. "I guess we could wait until the end of January," Hewitt said. "If we don't get help by then, we're just going to have to assume that no one wants a community theater. There will be no more Lubbock Theatre Centre."

Debts Exceed Income

At this point, according to board member Delisa Rampey, LTC "owes $19,493.08, not including the long-term debts. We only have about $2,500 coming in (from a $200 rent payment by a Bible class and a $2,300 grant from the Texas Commission For The Arts). So we'd still owe about $16,000 after that."

"We've sent letters to our creditors, explaining our situation and asking them to consider donating what we owe to the Theatre Centre... We haven't been able to pay the royalties for the plays we've performed since last spring. We haven't been able to pay printing bills, or advertising bills, or even the bill to get the piano tuned."

However, Hewitt emphasized that community involvement and interest is needed just as much as money. "Someone could give us $20,000 and we could pay our bills, and that's very nice. I'd love it. But if we don't start getting more support, we'll be back in the same situation," he said.

Hewitt added that all of the board members had approached what he termed Lubbock's "money people" many times, with the general reaction being "along the lines of 'why throw money down a bottomless pit? It's a PR (public relations) problem. A lot of people have told us they had trouble the last time they worked with the LTC board, but then we find out that was 10 years ago. We're still battling that reputation.'"

Moves To Lindsey Site
Hoping to improve LTC's reputation and bolster support for the program, the company moved its base of operations in December 1979 from the delapidated playhouse at 2508 Ave. P to the downtown Lindsey Theater.

"The Lindsey family sold us the Lindsey Theater and the land for $168,000," he said, "and I still say that's a very good deal. I've had the building appraised since then, and it was appraised at $210,000. And the land's got to be worth another $100,000. If we had support we could turn this building into one they'd have to spend $2 million to duplicate."

"And we've got support from the Lindsey family. They've bent over backwards in trying to help us keep the theater. But I haven't had the heart to tell them that's not the problem. We haven't made our payments to them, and they're

TI Executive Stresses Restoration Of U.S. Leadership, Confidence

By JAY HARRIS
Avalanche-Journal Editor

AMERICA must not only reassert its premier position in world economic and military circles, but in leadership at the board, Mark Shepherd, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Texas Instruments, warned in an address in Lubbock Wednesday.

Shepherd, whose TI plant here is one of the city's largest employers, covered a broad range of problems facing the industrialized world and offered suggestions on ways to combat them.

"The road into the 1980s will not be a smooth one," Shepherd told his audience of Downtown Lubbock Rotary Club members and guests. "It will take America a long time to undo the economic mess created during the past 15 years."

"Confidence in our government must be restored. We have had enough of bureaucratic incompetence, wasteful spending and misguided welfare programs. Our faith in the ability of the American government to handle even our simplest problems has been shattered."

"There is a yearning for leadership, to steer us over these rough roads. But, up until now, leadership has been in woefully short supply at all levels of government."

The Dallas executive, whose TI operations span the globe, said he felt that the nation was embarking on a new and more prosperous future and cited the 1980 election as promising "a renewal of the policies and commitments that made America the great nation that it is..."

However, he warned that before "we can turn things around," the industrialized world in particular faces some major challenges, including the alarming rise of Soviet military power; accelerating inflation; the threat of severe disruptions in the international financial system; declining productivity; and a scarcity of available energy resources.

"Now, as in the past 35 years, the greatest threat to world peace is the Soviet Union," Shepherd said.

"In the past decade, the Soviets have engaged in an unprecedented arms buildup to back up their aggressive foreign policy. For most of the decade ahead, the Soviets could exploit what has been termed a 'window of vulnerability' when Russian power relative to the West will be at its peak."

"But the USSR is not waiting for its military machine to be fully in place before it acts; the wheels of conquest are already in motion."

Reagan Fills Education Post; Mansfield Stays

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect Ronald Reagan tapped Utah education official Terrel H. Bell on Wednesday to be education secretary, ending a long search for someone to head an agency that President Carter created and Reagan has vowed to dismantle.

And Reagan told a meeting of senators Wednesday that he has informed U.S. Ambassador to Japan Mike Mansfield that the former Senate Democratic leader will be re-nominated to his Tokyo post.

Bell, 59, was U.S. education commissioner during the Nixon and Ford administrations. He is now Utah's commissioner of higher education.

The choice of an education secretary comes two weeks after Reagan's earlier self-imposed goal of completing his Cabinet selections by Christmas. The president-elect admitted publicly that some candidates turned down his offer of the education job.

As with the other Cabinet selections, Reagan was not present for the Bell announcement, which was handled by White House press secretary-to-be James Brady. Neither was Bell present at the announcement.

Brady said Bell would be available to answer questions at a news conference next week, when the new special trade representative and the Council of Economic Advisers are expected to be announced.

Brady said Reagan and Bell agree on the administration's approach to the department, but Brady would not elaborate on whether Bell agrees specifically with Reagan's oft-stated intention to eliminate the agency, formed only two years ago.

The naming of Bell left the final makeup of the Reagan Cabinet with one black, New York lawyer Samuel R. Pierce Jr., nominated to be secretary of housing and urban development. For the first time in six years, there was no female Cabinet secretary.

The only woman so far named to a top-echelon job in the incoming administration is Jeane Kirkpatrick, a Georgetown University professor who was named United Nations ambassador, a post Reagan has described as Cabinet-level.

In a speech Nov. 27, Bell said he was concerned about federal domination of local education but did not believe the Education Department was in immediate danger of being dismantled.

"Whether we keep education as a department or just a free-standing agency does not bother me," Bell said. "It is important to keep it from becoming or being swallowed by a monolithic agency."

During the presidential campaign, Reagan called the department unnecessary. But there has been recent speculation that the new president might simply choose to downgrade its status rather than eliminate it entirely.

Reagan, meanwhile, met Wednesday with members of Congress amid indications he was pulling back from his campaign pledge to abolish the Department of Energy.

Sen. J. Bennett Johnston, D-La., said he came away from the meeting with the "clear impression that Governor Reagan will not propose a dismantling of the Energy Department but rather a lessening of its role, a doing away with some of the regulatory provisions like regulation of oil, and to some extent natural gas."

Meanwhile, it appeared conservative Republicans have failed to block Defense

Secretary-designate Caspar W. Weinberger's choice of deputy CIA Director Frank C. Carlucci to be the No. 2 man at the Pentagon.

Republican sources said Carlucci was "about 90 percent" certain to get the influential post of deputy defense secretary.

A behind-the-scenes campaign by conservatives to undermine support for Carlucci last month led to a direct clash with Weinberger, one of Ronald Reagan's closest and most trusted advisers, the sources said.

The sources said Weinberger came out on top in the power play with William Van Cleave, the conservative head of the Defense Department transition team.

Reagan officials have listed 17 Cabinet-level positions, including the 13 department heads, CIA director, budget director, United Nations ambassador and special trade representative.

Expanded Role Not Sought By Algerians

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP)— Amid indications of increasing Algerian involvement in negotiations over the 52 American hostages, top Algerian officials say they have no plans to expand their role despite comments from Iran.

At a news conference in Tehran Wednesday, Iran's chief negotiator said Algeria had offered a new proposal for the release of the American captives seized 14-months ago when the U.S. Embassy was overrun by militants.

The negotiator, Behzad Nabavi, said the Algerians would guarantee their plan and it was generally acceptable to Iran.

But a spokesman for the Algerian Foreign Ministry said the reports from Tehran were "premature" and there was "no question of Algeria exercising the role of mediator."

An expanded role, in the form of a proposal independent of exchanges between Iran and the United States, would represent a marked change in the role of Algeria, which for the past two months has been serving only as an intermediary.

Algeria has been largely silent about its part in the negotiations and has taken pains to avoid attention. The Algerian team that has been shuttling between Washington and Tehran rarely has spoken to the press.

That team is composed of Abdelkarim Gheraib, Algeria's ambassador to Iran, Redha Malek, the Algerian ambassador to the United States, and Mohammed Seghir Moustefai, governor of the Algerian central bank. The Foreign Ministry revealed Wednesday that Ben Hocine, an economics specialist, has been added to the team.

At the end of each of their shuttles, the Algerian negotiators have held long meetings with Algerian officials and it may be that they have become increasingly involved.

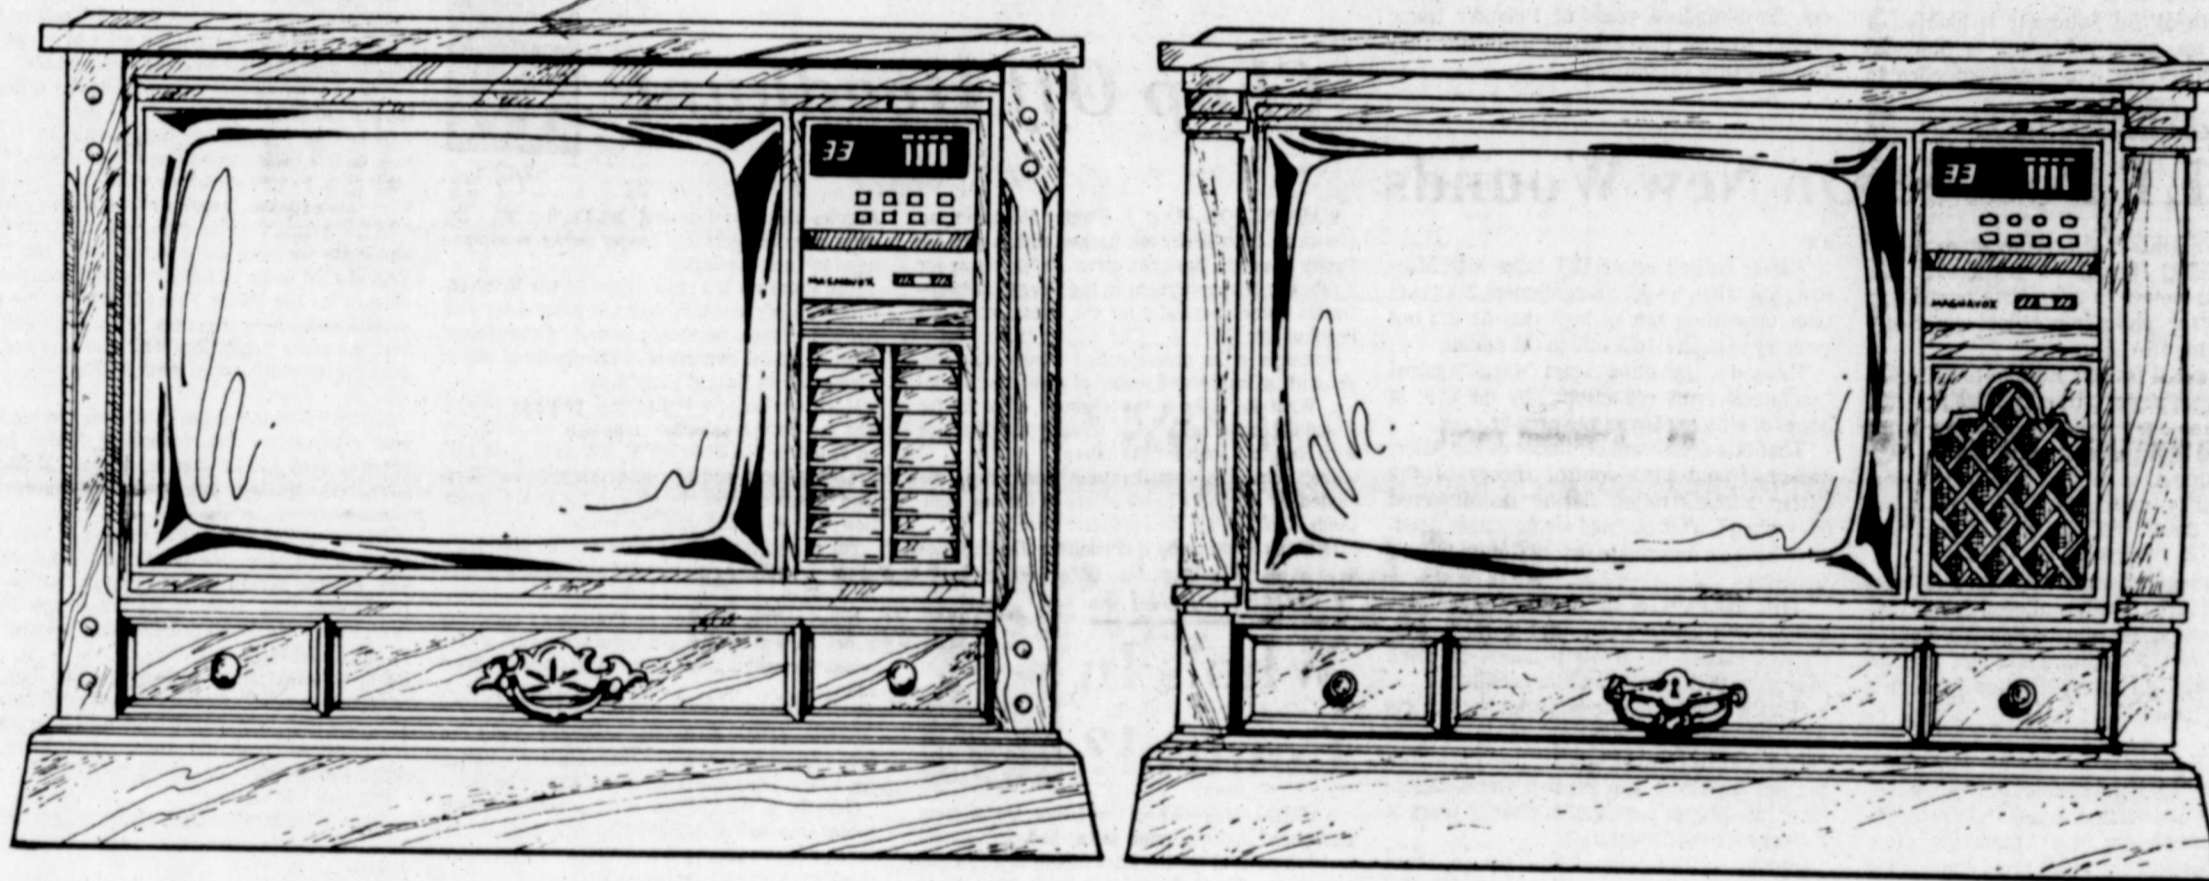

There is little doubt the Algerians will reap some international benefits if their efforts succeed.

One diplomat described Algeria's involvement in the hostage crisis as an attempt to change its image from that of a hard-line revolutionary Arab state to that of a moderate peacemaker. He suggested the result may be more American aid.

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

Chop Off Headhunt

EVANS

WASHINGTON—That J. Stanley Pottinger, an erstwhile John Anderson backer with a yen for Teddy Kennedy, has been given the top rating for a subcabinet appointment in the Reagan administration comes naturally for the President-elect's headhunters.

Pottinger is an accomplished Washington lawyer with an impressive record of government service. What he lacks is the slightest empathy for Ronald Reagan, with what Reagan stands for or with Reagan's goals for the nation.

Such subjective considerations were simply excluded by Reagan's headhunters in feeding thousands of names into the computer since Nov. 4.

The operation run by E. Pendleton James, a Los Angeles-based professional headhunter who fits corporate managers into proper niches, is non-political and non-ideological.

Stan Pottinger is a classic case. As the Nixon administration's assistant attorney general for civil rights, he fought for steady federal intervention in favor of racial minorities. That clearly is not in harmony with Reagan's intentions.

More startling is Pottinger's political record. For the 1980 presidential campaign, he contributed $1,000 to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, gave $250 to George Bush and ran, unsuccessfully, for Maryland delegate to the Republican National Convention pledged to Rep. John Anderson.

The one consistency in these eclectic presidential preferences: no support of any kind, any time for Reagan.

None of this is noted on Pottinger's computer punch card in the Reagan transition office, a card which incredibly gives him No. 1 (tops of three) ratings.

ANDREW TULLY:

Who's In Control?

WASHINGTON—When the Labor Department announced that consumer prices had risen another 1 full percent for the third month in a row and nobody in official Washington knew what to do about it, I recalled the naughty days of Nixon.

History says that unfortunate President tried without success to get Big Business and Big Labor to cooperate in the battle against inflation under a voluntary guideline policy.

Frustrated and properly petulant, Nixon finally went to controls. He told John Ehrlichman, his domestic affairs chief: "If those guys won't play ball without controls, then (expletive) we may as well put them on. What have we got to lose?"

STILL, SOME Reaganite ideologue might restore reality by eventually throwing away Pottinger's card. The same is not true of David Gergen.

Gergen, a Nixon-Ford administration speechwriter who now edits Public Opinion magazine for the American Enterprise Institute, is a conservative Republican but no Reaganite.

As a sometime adviser to Bush's presidential campaign, he not only was stridently anti-tax cut but belittled Reagan personally. Even today, Gergen does not embrace Reagan's tax-cutting philosophy.

Yet, Gergen is set to join the White House staff as deputy to chief of staff James Baker—unless he gets something better.

WHILE ANTI-Reaganites get preference, there is back-of-the-hand treatment for longtime Reaganites such as Ohio state Sen. Donald (Buz) Lukens. In an administration filling up with officials who did not support Reagan for the nomination in 1980 or in 1976, Lukens dates his Reaganite loyalties back to that first try for President in 1968.

Lukens' desire to become chief of congressional liaison may have been reaching too high, but it was rudely and summarily rejected on grounds of inadequate experience.

Whatever he may lack, former Congressman Lukens would have brought to that highly-political post personal and ideological commitment to Reagan.

The same cannot be said of the man who got the job: Federal Election Commission (FEC) Chairman Max Friedersdorf, a professional Washington officeholder and former Nixon aide without ties to Reagan.

AS IT turned out, the administration lost nothing. Phase 2 of the controls policy was working when Nixon unaccountably knocked it in the head once he had been re-elected in 1972.

Prices, of course, rose out of sight because Nixon hadn't learned anything from Harry Truman, who lifted World War II and Korean War controls gradually—warning everybody that he'd reimpose them if business and labor didn't behave.

All of which is my way of putting in my two cents worth about President-elect Reagan's plan to labor vigorously at the task of controlling the high cost of breasting.

Reagan is against controls. Unfortunately, he is vague about what steps he is for.

WITHOUT CLAIMING any underground contact with Ronald Reagan, I suspect he'll do a lot more "monitoring" of the situation. I suspect he'll try to get voluntary prior notices of important wage and price increases.

All of us, of course, should wish Reagan lots of luck.

Remember what happened to Carter? When he proposed such voluntary rules and regulations, both business and labor turned thumbs down on the grounds that Carter was taking the first step toward controls.

Some of Reagan's people, in what they conceive as ominous language, have warned that their tiger would chide the country's business and labor establishments if they failed to be good boys and good girls.

Treasury Secretary nominee Regan says "Talking (jawboning) is not to be under-rated."

HA! JAWBONING didn't work for John Kennedy, Lyndon Johnson, Nixon or Carter. Maybe it would work for Reagan.

But the voluntary "prior notice" approach has one big obstacle. Often, labor and management bargaining sessions go right down to the wire of contract deadlines.

He could an administration be informed before then? One suggestion is that no contract be signed without Presidential approval. I don't quite see either side agreeing to let Reagan have the final say on such important matters.

But have at it, Governor. You have nothing to lose. Nothing, that is, but the goodwill of the voters.

JAY HARRIS:

The New You?..

ABOUT THIS time of the year, most persons have junked or ignored those New Year's vows, pledges or whatever from a week ago.

In most cases, it's just as well. Guilt feelings aren't "in" anymore.

We can sympathize. We never have been much for resolutions, New Year's or otherwise. Mostly because they seldom work. But, taking stock, assessing the past, present, future. Okay.

If one knows where they have been, where they are and where they hope to go, then half the battle has been won. The problem is that far too many live day-to-day or week-to-week or paycheck-to-paycheck. There should be more to life...

FINDING THAT "something else," at whatever age, often isn't as hard as many seem to think.

While the chore of making ends meet these days keeps the nose to the grindstone, as it were, there's still a way of making life better, more rewarding, if one so wishes. In brief, it's a great, big, and sometimes small, world out there.

And a mighty interesting one, if we take the trouble to find out...

How we see that world, including the one we share with friends, family, business associates, the public, depends a lot on our attitude. How we view ourselves is the way we often see others.

And this is where those "resolutions," assessments or whatever come in handy. Taking stock of oneself in a serious, objective way can pay dividends. The hardest part is setting the standards.

WE HAVE always argued that one should set one's sights on the stars.

You may never reach them, but, to paraphrase, if one doesn't set such aims, what's a heaven for?

Many persons argue that setting goals, especially "impossible" goals is a foolish fad, that failure to realize one's dreams can be damaging to the ego and the will to keep trying.

We don't buy this anymore than we buy the idea that classroom work or games or autos or newspapers should be pegged to the lowest common denominator. If there has been one hallmark of this nation, indeed western civilization, it has been to improve upon what has been done. It has paid off in spades...

SO, HOW in a complicated society, where "someone" somewhere seems to be pulling the strings on everything from the price of prunes to politics, does one "get a handle" on one's life?

Well, it's not all that difficult. The key is deciding to do so. Next, doing it.

Of course, millions are happy with the status quo. Others prefer to wallow in self misery. Still others don't know what they want. But, for those who want a change, there's a way, if there's a will.

In this respect, of the many sets of resolutions and goals we have come across since the New Year started, some by Bill Porterfield, who pens a column for the Dallas Times Herald hit the proverbial nail where it counts. With some editing, here are some suggestions which he says are his goals for the coming year, if not the Eighties...

SIT DOWN at the end of each week and regroup your main selves and reconnoiter. Makes plans for next week and list them by priority. Make the list specific by days, and general for the months ahead.

Think "no" to every offer instead of "yes." It won't offend, since the skeptic is still within you. Let the person who has approached do the convincing. Stop agreeing to things you really don't want to do. Don't promise what you may not be able to deliver.

Stop watching the late talk shows. You wouldn't have these people in your home every night (much less your bedroom) if they were next door neighbors...Instead, read the dialogues of Plato, or watch Dick Cavett.

Pay your bills on time.

Don't enter into business arrangements or any kind of collaborative work with relatives or friends.

Talk less about your work and your expectations of it. Let it speak for itself. Talk less about friends with other friends. Talk more about ideas and the world outside yourself and your circle.

Be less accommodating to strangers, more so to your intimates and loved ones. This habit of being hearty, hale and well-met in public and an old crab at home is a southern inclination, and damned hypocritical. The world may love you, while your family hates you.

Be less accommodating to your children, more so to your sense about what's right and wrong for them. This habit of being one of the neat old guys with the younger set is a contemporary hallucination, a hangover from the 1960s and silly. The kids may love you, until they grow up and wish you'd been stricter.

THE MAN from "Big D" has more to say... Every day, look at your lady as if you've just seen her for the first time, and you'll be struck by her freshness and beauty.

On the other hand, stop looking at yourself in the tiny little bathroom mirror. It doesn't show all and it lies. Catch yourself in a store window as you sashay down the sidewalk. Such reflections don't lie...

Don't be so serious. Take yourself and your life with a grin and a grain of salt. Be prepared to fail, because failure is given in human experience, even among the superstars and the gods.

Don't apologize for your tastes and eccentricities...

There is more. But you get the idea. Life can be, to a great extent, what we make it, even in today's world. If we were making such a list we would add that one should read—history, the classics, the Bible, current events; travel—there's a great and wonderful world and peoples out there; and be thankful—to be alive. And make it count. You pass this way only once...

L.M. BOYD:

Pass It On...

Q. WHY ARE marshmallows called that?

A. Because the first of them were made from roots of mallow herbs that grew near marshlands in France. In 1884, it was. Incidentally, mostly you see that word misspelled "marshmallows," do you not?

Man's fastest speed for about 500,000 years was maybe 25 m.p.h. sprinting on foot. For the next 5,000 years, figure 38 m.p.h., hard-riding a horse. Then in 1829, the steam locomotive picked up the speed to 44 m.p.h., and the next 70 years, all the way to 120 m.p.h. In 1910, the car jumped it to 131 m.p.h. By 1920, a French airplane went 188 m.p.h. What these words are all about is acceleration. Astounding acceleration. In time.

EMBERS OF OPTIMISM

Eyes Of The World On Poland

WHILE THE threat of imminent Soviet intervention has faded, the longer term threat from Moscow looms indefinitely.

This is so despite nearly two months of surface peace in the struggle for reform that Lech Walesa and his Solidarity union of 10 million workers carried into the Communist Party's Politburo.

Walesa's spectacular success in winning party approval for his "free" union stirred hot embers of nationalism and political revival in every nook and cranny of Poland.

Even the optimists doubt that these embers can be kept from flaring up at grave risk of Soviet invasion in the months ahead.

"Solidarity has loosed passions," observed columnist Rowland Evans and Robert Novak, "and passions have an appetite that grows with success."

slow down for fear of overwhelming the Communist Party—and thereby inviting Soviet aggression.

In slowing down, as Walesa has warned repeatedly of late, Solidarity risks being split by more radical and activist factions willing to push the party to the wall even if it means Soviet troops patrolling Polish streets.

Walesa himself agrees that Solidarity must be content to advance toward its goals slowly and deliberately, never challenging the party frontally.

SO THE GAME becomes a delicate, three-sided balancing act:

- * Solidarity making dangerously-slow advances to correct a political and economic system that is rotten to the core;
- * The Communist Party permitting this slow advance, while always talking confidently about its ultimate controls; and,
- * Dissidents in both the party and the union denied the right to escalate the struggle, but always on the verge of making the kind of trouble that will bring in the Russians.

"What makes Solidarity important is my confidence and faith in a better tomorrow," a worker at a big steel plant told interviewers. Two-hundred years of Poland's tragic history suggest that a better tomorrow may be a long time in coming.

MARGIN OF SAFETY

SALT Poured On New Wounds

A CONFIDENTIAL recommendation to President-elect Reagan for a pause in new SALT talks points to a decisive break with arms control philosophy that any SALT treaty is a good SALT treaty.

The proposal for Mr. Reagan to go slowly in new super-power arms talks came from the transition team turned loose on the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency.

Now required reading by Mr. Reagan's national security strategists, the report is described by those who have studied it as "exactly what the President-elect wants."

It espouses full linkage, advocates complete disclosure of widely-alleged Soviet violations of past agreements and insists that the rebuilding of U.S. military strength to provide a "margin of safety" should precede a new SALT treaty.

THE TEAM was headed by James Malone, ACDA's general counsel during the Nixon-Ford administration. Its central proposal: Until completion of a "thorough, inter-agency reassessment of all arms control and national security strategy...a pause in all arms control negotiations" is essential.

If as expected that becomes the President-elect's policy, the Reagan administration would follow an arms control strategy exactly opposite that of Jimmy Carter four years ago.

Carter rushed into SALT talks with Moscow, but when he got an agreement 2½ years later opposition ran so high that he did not even try to push it to a vote in the Senate.

Reagan's transition team warns against "unilateral arms reductions" by the U.S. in hopes of enticing Soviet reciprocity.

That is a deliberate reminder of the Alice-in-Wonderland arms-control theory of the Carter administration during its blinkered days when Carter claimed we no longer needed to have an inordinate fear of Communism.

THE REPORTS strongest argument for going slowly is that SALT has become "a permanent excuse for Western failure to come to grips with the Soviet military challenge."

This shrewd move to confront the Soviets with cold-steel will and determination could help put arms control, which clearly is an important aspect of the super-power relationship, into proper perspective after 10 years of dangerous experimentation.

Senate critics who would try to shoot down this philosophy should soon learn this fact: President-elect Reagan wants a new SALT treaty, but a treaty that is good, not bad or only fair, for the U.S.

In arms control treaties, a bad one is worse than none at all.

M. STANTON EVANS:

Media Repeat Of False Data Compounds Error

WASHINGTON—A few weeks back, this column noted the egregious misbehavior of the major media in misreporting the suicide of actress Jean Seberg.

When Seberg took her life in September, 1979, TV networks and other outlets carried stories suggesting she had been a victim of harassment by the FBI.

According to those accounts, the FBI had planted a rumor that she was pregnant by a Black Panther activist, that she was so distraught at this smear that she had a miscarriage, and that every year thereafter on the anniversary of this event she attempted to take her life.

It turned out that virtually none of this was true. The watchdog group, Accuracy in Media, filed a freedom of information action to get the FBI files on this subject, and found that almost all the comments of the story as thus reported were backwards.

THE FBI had reason to believe Miss Seberg was pregnant by a Black Panther activist, but did not plant the story.

And when the story was leaked to a gossip columnist by some other source, Miss Seberg did not seem in the least despondent about the matter.

Having uncovered all this by painstaking investigation, AIM brought the facts of the case to the attention of the major media.

Most of them had simply relied on the emotional testimony of Miss Seberg's former husband, Roman Gary, and had not checked out the FBI files for corroboration.

A few who had conveyed the original story—including the Washington Post and NBC—made corrections of the original allegations about the Bureau.

Nowhere in these reports was it acknowledged that the original stories, now repeated in detail, had been debunked and retracted.

The facts that go to show the true character of the Seberg case were derived from FBI wiretaps on the actress and her Black Panther friends.

In the record of those phone conversations, Miss Seberg joshed about her pregnancy, strongly implied it was the child of the Panther to whom she was speaking, urged her friends to get and read a Newsweek item about the pregnancy, and suggested she might sue the magazine and net a considerable amount of money.

THE PANTHERS, of course, were a violence-prone radical group in continuing conflict with law enforcement agencies.

The FBI therefore had an interest not only in monitoring their activities but in countering the efforts of such as Seberg who were strong financial supporters of the group.

It was on these grounds that local agents in the field suggested planting the story about Miss Seberg's pregnancy, but the suggestion was negated by Bureau high-ups.

Thus, instead of planting a false story about the actress, the FBI wound up not planting what it believed to be a true story.

Given the deadline pressure that we all confront and the atmosphere in which the doings of the FBI and other security and intelligence agencies have been reported in recent years, it is perhaps understandable that many media went with the original false allegations about the FBI.

THEY HAD Gary's statement, and most of them did not have access to the raw data in the Bureau's Seberg file.

Repeating the error a year later, however, after it has been called to their attention and in several cases corrected, appears to be a far more serious matter.

On the first go-round, we were dealing with inaccuracy; on the second go-round, it looks as though we are dealing with ideological commitment at the expense of truth.

Hunts Reported On 'Buying Binge'

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) — Money from the billionaire Hunt brothers of Texas is gushing into Western Canada.

Nelson Bunker, William and Lamar Hunt invested $93 million in Western Canadian mineral properties in a buying binge this week and New York bankers say the brothers have been given the go-ahead to purchase holdings in "at least a half a dozen mining ventures."

This week's buying involved three Western Canadian mining concerns, but a spokesman for Hunt Energy Corp. of Dallas would not confirm or deny that other approved acquisitions also involve Canadian properties.

The Vancouver-based Inveq group said it sold royalty interests in two of its mining properties Tuesday to Procan Exploration Co., the Hunt brothers' Califor-y-based partnership.

The same day, Cadillac Explorations Ltd. of Calgary said it sold Procan a 40 percent royalty interest in some of its mining claims and leases for $35 million.

The purchases came one day after the Hunts bought for $35 million a 50 percent royalty interest in certain mining claims and leases in the Northwest Territories owned by Terra Mining and Exploration Co.

A royalty interest is a percentage of net profit, as opposed to a working interest which gives the owner the right to put the mine into production.

Terra operates three high-grade silver mines in the Camshell River district near Great Bear Lake, 250 miles northwest of Yellowknife.

Before the Hunts embarked on their spending spree, they needed to get person from Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York and First National Bank in Dallas under the terms of a $1.1 billion refinancing program to bail the brothers out of a disastrous foray into the silver market last year.

Repeat Of Mild Weather Forecast For Area

Wednesday's relatively mild temperatures are expected to repeat again today and at least through Friday, according to the National Weather Service.

Temperatures Wednesday climbed to 58 degrees after a chilly overnight reading of 22. Today, forecasters are calling for temperatures to again reach the mid-50s, with a similar prediction for Friday. The low tonight is expected to be near 30 degrees.

Partly cloudy skies are expected through the week, and winds today should be from the north at 10 to 15 mph. The extended forecast for West Texas calls for continued partly cloudy skies through Monday with above seasonal temperatures. High temperatures are expected to reach the upper 50s and low 60s in the northern portion of the region, and edge into the 60s in the southern part.

Wednesday, an upper level low over Southern Arizona was responsible for an increase in mid level cloudiness over the Panhandle and much of West Texas, NWS officials said, and small amounts of rain were reported over El Paso and near Amarillo.

Weather officials said the upper level low pressure zone will likely weaken and move eastward by Friday, bringing widely scattered showers to the southern half of the state.

Two Found Dead In Plane Wreck

IRAAN (AP) — Two people were discovered dead Wednesday at the site of a single-engine plane crash about three miles east of this southwest Texas town.

The plane took off from the Iraan airport about 6:15 a.m. Tuesday, but the wreckage was not discovered until shortly after 11 a.m. Wednesday, said Texas Department of Public Safety and Federal Aviation Administration officials.

The victims had not yet been identified, but a DPS spokesman in Austin said the owner of the Bellanca plane was believed to live in Iraan.

He said the plane was en route to Wichita Falls. An FAA spokesman in Fort Worth, however, said it was headed for Amarillo, but that no flight plan was filed.

Federal authorities were investigating the crash site Wednesday.

 The City Council will consider giving disabled persons a $10,000 homestead tax exemption when the council meets at 9:30 a.m. today.

If approved, disabled persons who own their own homes and qualify for benefits under Federal Old Age, Survivors and Disability Insurance could qualify for a $10,000 reduction in the market value of their homes for tax purposes.

An identical exemption already is offered by the Lubbock Independent School District as mandated by state law. If the same 325 persons who qualify for the school exemption apply for the city exemption, city revenues would be reduced by $21,450 a year. The exemption would become effective on this year's taxes.

As with the school exemption, persons over age 65 could qualify only for the over-65 exemption or the disabled exemption, but not for both.

Also at the meeting, the council will hold a final public hearing at 1:30 p.m. on the expenditure of $3.48 million in federal Community Development funds.

At its last meeting, the council tentatively agreed to accept the city staff recommendation on how to spend the coming year's allocation and discarded changes in that recommendation made by the Community Development Advisory Committee.

But council members tentatively approved CD funding for both projects, with a stipulation that CD funds not be spent on planning for the overpass until it is approved in a bond election or another funding source is found to complete the work.

The council also will consider the request of the Lubbock Industrial Development Corporation for approval of the issuance of $10 million in industrial revenue bonds to improve the facilities of Magnolia Seed Company. If approved, the bond issue will be the second approved by the council since the program began.

Interior Secretary-Designate Urges Reasoned Resources Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — James G. Watt, nominated as interior secretary and already under fire from conservationists, said Wednesday the nation must adopt "a reasoned, environmentally conscious program for developing and utilizing" its resources or risk a disastrous crash program in the future.

"All too often, the federal government moves in a crisis not with the precision of a surgeon's scalpel, but the force of a meat ax," Watt said in his opening statement to the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee, which is considering his nomination.

"Those of us who live and are committed to preserving the beauty and values of our environment fear this possibility," he said. "We want the right kind of development to come over time, not the wrong kind of development to come in a crisis."

Although Watt describes himself as an environmentalist, established conservation organizations disagree and are vigorously opposing his nomination.

Meanwhile, Transportation Secretary-designate Drew Lewis appeared before the Senate Commerce Committee and pledged less government involvement in transportation industries. He acknowledged there was room for exceptions such as the nation's ailing automobile industry, whose troubles he called "probably the single most important problem we have in transportation."

Lewis, a 49-year-old business troubleshooter from Pennsylvania, said the Reagan administration is committed to letting the free enterprise system work without government interference, but cannot let a major auto company go bankrupt "if there is a reasonable solution to it."

He indicated the new administration will move ahead with deregulation of the airline, trucking and railroad industries, saying, "However, we would like to look at the problems and assets created by deregulation."

Lewis also said the Interstate Highway System "should be defined in its entirety and recognize the need to finish the missing links." But he said on sections of the system that are "environmentally unsound or too costly, we should walk away."

The conservation groups fighting Watt's nomination base their opposition on his service for the past 3½ years as president and chief legal officer of the Mountain States Legal Foundation in Denver. That conservative public-interest law firm has opposed many federal land management policies in the courts.

Watt said about 20 percent of the firm's cases were filed against the Interior Department, although the foundation supported the department in other cases.

In a joint statement issued Wednesday by The Wilderness Society, Friends of the Earth, the Sierra Club, the Environmental Policy Center and the National Audubon Society, conservationists said

Watt's record "is one of consistent and unbending advocacy for the destructive exploitation of the public lands."

Mansfield Due To Keep Post With Japanese

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect Ronald Reagan announced Wednesday that he will nominate Mike Mansfield, former longtime Senate Democratic leader, to continue as ambassador to Japan.

The surprise announcement, which Reagan said was prompted by advice from Secretary of State-designate Alexander M. Haig, was greeted with delight from Democratic senators who held a lunch for the president-elect in the Mike Mansfield Room of the Capitol.

Mansfield, who will have served under eight presidents and who held the majority leader's title longer than any other senator in history, accepted the offer immediately when it was offered in a morning telephone call, Reagan said.

When Reagan emerged from the luncheon, he told reporters: "Just before coming over here, at the suggestion of General Haig, I called the embassy there (in Tokyo) and spoke to Ambassador Mike Mansfield, asked him, and he accepted, to continue on as the ambassador to Japan in our administration."

Reagan refused to comment when asked if he intends to ask any other ambassadors to remain in their posts.

The selection is expected to please not only Senate Democrats, whom Reagan was courting Wednesday, but the Japanese as well, who have expressed fondness for the retired senator who nurtured a lifelong passion for the Far East.

Mansfield served 10 years in the House and represented Montana in the Senate for 24 years, retiring in 1977 when he was named ambassador to Japan by President Carter.

Mansfield's successor in the Senate, Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., now the minority leader, said he had indicated to the Republican president-elect that the Democrats hope to work with him and the GOP majority and expressed a desire for similar meetings in the future.

But he and Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., the Democratic whip, said their cooperation won't extend to the point of rubber-stamp confirmation of Reagan's Cabinet nominations. They said Reagan had asked for prompt consideration, and they promised there would be no unnecessary delays.

But Cranston said he "simply told the president that there is no partisan aspect to the confirmation process and to the issues that will be dealt with in that process." But he reminded Reagan of the Senate's constitutional responsibility to offer its advice and consent and said that responsibility compels senators to ask questions "that relate to the competence, the character, the viewpoint, of the nominees."

Cranston added he still has "many questions" to ask Haig in particular, but he said he had made no decision on how he would vote after the retired Army general's confirmation hearings, which begin Friday.

Plane Feared Lost With Three Aboard

UVALDE (AP) — Texas authorities were searching Wednesday for a single-engine light plane with three people aboard that disappeared three days ago on a flight from La Junta, Colo.

Officials said the pilot, George Benschmidt Jr., left La Junta Monday at 11:30 a.m. and was expected in Uvalde, Texas, about 6 p.m. Two unidentified passengers were aboard.

"The pilot's last contact was Monday with flight services in Abilene," said Texas Department of Public Safety spokesman Clarence Born.

The search, involving the Federal Aviation Administration, the DPS, Civil Air Patrol and various sheriff's departments, extended from Wichita Falls in far North Texas to Del Rio, along the southwest Texas-Mexico border, DPS officials said.

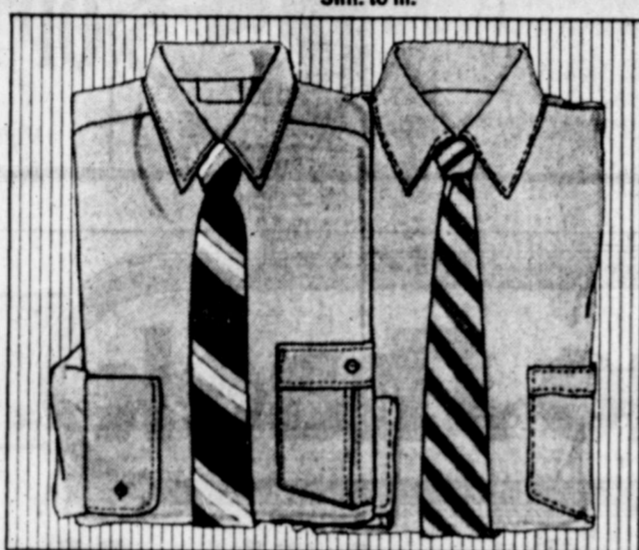

"At this point, we've looked everywhere in the Austin flight service, down to Hondo and up to Brownwood," Born said.

Born said Civil Air Patrol planes flew several search missions Wednesday and law enforcement officials were searching on the ground.

The plane was registered to the Western Food Canning Co. in Hutchison, Kan. Benschmidt's father.

Government Charges Sex Discrimination

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — The federal government has charged that John Wanamaker Inc. discriminated against its female department store employees here by paying them less than it pays men for the same work. The suit filed by the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission asks the court to bar the company from continuing the alleged discrimination, which it said has been going on since 1964 when the store opened. The suit also asks the court to order Wanamaker to pay 66 women back wages to make up the difference between what the government says they should have earned and what they did earn. Officials of the department store chain could not be reached Tuesday for comment. Cincinnati processed so many hogs in the early 1800s that it was called "Porkopolis."

Unarmed Lawman Gets Man

PARIS (AP) — Lamar County Constable Albert Jones remained undaunted when he found himself with a fleeing suspect but no firearm.

He simply used a bit of psychology.

"Halt, or I'll shoot!" Jones said he shouted.

The 20-year-old man screamed to a halt, threw up his hands and cried, "Don't shoot me!" Jones said.

"I walked up to him, turned him around so his back was to me and put my finger to his head," the constable recalled. "Then I put my finger in my pocket like it was a gun and marched him back to the car."

Jones was not accompanied by his gun Tuesday night because he and his wife, Effie, were working at their part-time jobs as bus drivers for the North Lamar School District. They were refueling one of the buses when Mrs. Jones found a tube leading from the gas tank of a bus into a five-gallon pail, which was almost full of gasoline.

She shouted to her 59-year-old husband just as the suspect sprang from one of the buses, Jones said.

"I didn't have my gun or handcuffs or anything," Jones said.

Jones said he wouldn't hesitate to finger another suspect.

Neighbors Tree Lot Owner

CUPERTINO, Calif. (AP) — Richard Chadwick looked out his window one Monday morning last month to discover that the stately oaks, pines, redwoods and laurels in a nearby lot had been razed. He was not happy. Neither were his neighbors.

Chadwick and 20 of those neighbors Tuesday convinced the Cupertino City Council to order the lot owner to replace the trees.

"It was unfortunate and we're sorry," said Robert S. Pollack, the land owner. "And now we not only have paid for the removal, but we've got to pay to put the trees back."

City officials claimed Pollack's contractor violated city ordinances against removing trees without a permit and against tree-cutting on a Sunday. Pollack said he didn't know about the laws.

"This is a very angry row of people," said Gary Turner, a resident of Jamestown Drive, which runs near the lot.

"Once you take down a tree, there's no way you can glue it back together," he added. "They ought to have their tails punished."

Chennault Draws Criticism

TAIPEI, Taiwan (AP) — Anna Chennault is drawing criticism in Taiwan following her recent trip to Peking.

A Taiwan newspaper Wednesday reacted harshly to comments by Mrs. Chennault, the Chinese-American widow of the late Gen. Claire Chennault and a member of the Republican Party's finance committee, that she was softening her attitude toward mainland China.

"Her statements in Peking make us worry," the newspaper said, "and her changing attitude puzzles people."

Mrs. Chennault reportedly told Chinese aviation officials during her three-day visit to Peking last weekend that despite her ardent championship of the Nationalist Chinese regime in Taiwan, the cargo airline her late husband founded wants to do business with the People's Republic.

Number Unlucky For Man

PITTSFIELD, Mass. (AP) — The number 3 is definitely an unlucky one for a Pittsfield man charged with intent to sell marijuana.

That was the mistaken digit an unidentified man dialed in Pittsfield Tuesday night, hoping to connect with a drug dealer. Instead, he dialed the police station.

"Stop puttin' me on. Stop puttin' me on. You're the man," the unidentified caller said to Sgt. Gerald Lee when the officer informed him he was talking to police.

Failing to convince the man that he had dialed the station, Lee asked the caller what number he wanted. The number in the prefix was one digit off; the caller wanted 442, but he dialed 443.

Police then dialed the number, and an undercover plainclothes detective set up a meeting to make a sale at a home on Wahconah Street.

Police said after a sale was made, they arrested Jere P. Brown, 25, and charged him with possession of marijuana with intent to sell.

Braniff Boss Takes Command

DALLAS (AP) — John J. Casey assumed command of the Braniff International Corp. Wednesday and promised to lead the financially strapped airline back to profitability.

Board members voted unanimously Wednesday to elevate Casey, 62, from vice president to president and chairman of the board.

Harding Lawrence, who resigned abruptly last Thursday as chairman and chief executive officer, was named chairman emeritus.

Casey, who praised Lawrence's competitive foresight as the force that made Braniff a major American airline, said his main objective in 1981 is "to re-establish financial soundness."

The new chairman outlined plans for a streamlined corporate management, a new marketing strategy and a more efficient use of aircraft.

Casey said Braniff and Eastern Airlines executives would decide later whether to continue merger talks which he described as still being "in a very preliminary stage."

"We have exchanged data and are analyzing the information, but have not reached any conclusion. It may be weeks or even a month before either of us decide whether or not to carry on the talks," said Casey.

Casey announced that all Braniff departments would be headed by three executive vice presidents.

Neil J. Robinson, vice president for finance and control, was named head of the marketing department; Edson E. Beckwith, senior vice president of financial services, was named head of finance; and William E. Huskins, senior vice president of engineering and maintenance, was named head of operations.

Reagans To Keep Fit

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — To keep his 6-foot-1-inch frame trim, President-elect Ronald Reagan reportedly will have a complete physical fitness gym installed at the White House.

The center will be designed by Michael Abrams, a private physical fitness instructor who has worked with the president-elect, according to the weekly newspaper Beverly Hills People. The paper said the facility will also be designed for Mrs. Reagan's use.

Dana Rohrabacher, a press spokesman for Reagan, said Tuesday he did not know Abrams and could not confirm the report.

"The governor has a daily program of rigorous personal exercises, which he does at his home," said Rohrabacher, who noted the Reagans have a swimming pool at their home in the Pacific Palisades area of Los Angeles. "When he goes to his ranch near Santa Barbara he engages in rigorous work such as digging for fence posts and clearing brush."

"Over the years, the governor has carried different pieces of exercise equipment with him as he travels — such as a bar with a roller on it. He uses it sort of like doing push-ups, stretching out."

Car Thief Fools Locksmith

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — The distraught stranger watched in relief New Year's Eve as the locksmith expertly fashioned a key to get into the locked 1981 Datsun 280Z.

The stranger, effusive in his thanks, then paid the locksmith's bill, offered to pay the 35-cent Pensacola Airport parking fee of another man who had offered help, paid his own parking tab and drove away.

Police say everything was fine until Monday, when Anthony J. Simeone showed up. Simeone, 22, is a pilot-trainee at the Pensacola Naval Air Station and the real owner of the $13,700 sports car.

Pensacola police detective Jim Leath said Tuesday the man who hired the locksmith apparently didn't arouse suspicion because he acted exactly like someone who had lost his keys.

"Every witness said the guy came out of the airport and went through all the motions, like, 'Gee, I couldn't find them,'" Leath said.

Leath said locksmiths normally would check for identification before making keys for someone to drive away in a car.

"But this fellow acted like he knew what he was doing," the detective said.

Pinball Marathon Ends

POTTSTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Six teen-agers have concluded a 132-hour pinball marathon to raise funds to help pay the hospital and funeral expenses of a crippled youth who died on Christmas Day.

Scott Giarrocco, who manages the arcade where the 5½-day marathon was held, said pledges and donations will mean several hundred dollars for the family of Leo Wampole, 18, who died Dec. 25 of pneumonia complicated by cerebral palsy.

None of the six youths had known Wampole, but they decided to use their holiday vacations to raise money for the Wampoles after several church groups publicized the family's financial straits.

To raise money and generate publicity for Wampole's family, the marathoners played "Asteroids," a computer video game.

Country Singer Hospitalized

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country music singer and Grand Ole Opry regular Marty Robbins, best known for his hit "El Paso," underwent tests in a hospital Wednesday following a heart attack, his daughter said.

Janet Robinson said her father started complaining of chest pains New Year's Day and was hospitalized Monday after consulting a doctor.

"It was a minor heart attack," she said from her father's recording studio. "I don't know if they'll have to perform an operation. He'll probably be in the hospital for a week or two."

A hospital spokeswoman said Robbins was in serious condition.

Defendant Handed 10-Year Sentence

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Joe David Williams, 46, was sentenced to a 10-year prison term Wednesday for the September shooting death of Willis B. Sheppard, which the jury had earlier had determined was voluntary manslaughter.

Presiding Judge William Shaver recessed the jury for lunch shortly before noon, after the panel had deliberated for about an hour and 45 minutes. He instructed the jurors to continue deliberations after the break.

The seven-woman, five-man jury returned the 10-year sentence just a few minutes after returning from lunch.

Williams was tried on a first-degree felony murder charge, but after deliberating three hours and 44 minutes the panel found the defendant guilty of the lesser, included offense of voluntary manslaughter. The defense had argued that Williams acted in self defense or in defense of a third party.

Williams admitted to the witness stand Tuesday afternoon that he shot Sheppard, but told the jury that he killed the man to protect his girlfriend.

Williams, 46, of 2805 Ivory Ave., Apt. 5, was charged with the Sept. 28 shooting death of Sheppard after the man's body was found in a muddy alley outside Williams' apartment. A Lubbock Police Department detective testified Tuesday that he arrested Williams after the defendant told him that he had shot Sheppard.

"A man lying dead in a puddle on a muddy street," prosecutor Travis Ware said in closing arguments before the seven-woman, five-man jury. "This is not Dodge City — it's Lubbock, Texas."

"You can only use deadly force if you are attacked with deadly force — that is the law."

Williams' former girlfriend, Shariene Zetheliee, testified that Williams fired a gun at Sheppard to prevent Sheppard from dragging her out of the apartment she was sharing with Williams at the time of the incident. Sheppard had come to the apartment to collect an old electricity bill, but came into the apartment without being invited, she testified.

Defense attorney Kevin Hart argued that if his client had not shot Sheppard, that Sheppard probably would have been on trial for murder this week — and that either Williams or Miss Zetheliee could have been the victim.

That's the way Williams saw the situation, he told the jury.

Hart disputed the argument that Williams should have called the police instead of shooting Sheppard, adding that his client simply didn't have time to hunt a telephone and call for help.

State-Recommended I-27 Route Outlined

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The preferred route of Interstate 27 through Lubbock would carry the massive freeway along Avenue A, down the west side of Avenue H and through the problem-plagued Tahoka traffic circle, the Department of Highways and Public Transportation announced Wednesday.

The department announced three final choices for the more than $200-million project, which has been discussed since before Congress approved the interstate extension through Lubbock five years ago.

It is expected to be another four years before construction starts on the six-lane divided highway.

The state-recommended route is from the north side of Loop 289 southward along Avenue A to Fourth Street, from Fourth between Avenue C and Avenue D to approximately 16th Street, southwest from 16th to about 26th Street and south along the west side of Avenue H through the traffic circle to Loop 289 South.

Alternative routes shown on maps put on public display Wednesday follow along the east side of H and follow Avenue A through the city.

The preferred route would use H as an east frontage road, and the second Avenue H route would use the street as a west frontage road.

A public hearing on the route and design of the highway will be at 7 p.m. Feb. 19 in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center banquet hall.

Maps were put on display Wednesday in city hall and at highway department headquarters at 601 Slaton Highway.

The recommended route is subject to change, based on input received at the public hearing. District Engineer George Wall Jr. said.

With the preferred route or "corridor," Avenue A would be the east frontage road between Erskine Avenue and Fourth Street, between Avenues C and D and curving to H at about 29th Street.

Department officials several years ago estimated that any of the three routes would have cost about $120 million, but they said that the cost has almost doubled since then due to inflation.

Thirteen suggested routes emerged from public hearings and departmental suggestions in early 1977, and the choices were narrowed to three or four routes in a May 1978 public meeting.

Each of the routes was then scrutinized by a 14-member interdisciplinary team for effects on school zones, social effects, division of neighborhoods, number of city residents displaced and any change in neighborhood character which might result from the selection of a particular route.

A route recommendation following the public hearing must be forwarded to state highway department headquarters in Austin, and state officials then will forward a recommendation to the Federal Highway Administration.

Lubbock city councilmen are expected to discuss the project in a meeting Jan. 22.

Maps, aerial photographs and other exhibits will be on display at the civic center from 3 p.m. to 7 p.m. prior to the Feb. 19 public hearing, Wall said.

A draft environmental impact statement and other information about the project are on file and are available for copying at department headquarters here, he said.

Despite the route selection, the fate of Interstate 27 appears to remain uncertain. The Reagan administration is decidedly cool toward further expansion of the interstate system and has even talked of a freeze on federal highway funds.

Miami Requires Alarm Permits

MIAMI (AP) — The police say they spend too much time answering false alarms, so the city is requiring business owners and residents who install burglar alarms to buy a $25 permit and submit the device for inspection.

Police have complained that they're fed up with responding to false alarms, which totaled about 23,000 in 1980.

"We estimate it requires at least one patrol man-hour to respond to each false alarm," said Sgt. William Nelson of the burglar alarm unit. "Last year, that meant 23,000 patrol man-hours."

"Now the (burglar alarm) industry is indicating they're going to triple their business in the next three years. At that rate we would soon be in the 100,000 false alarm range."

An ordinance approved Nov. 26 by the Miami City Commission went into effect Jan. 1. More than 4,600 residents with alarms were notified that they have until Jan. 31 to buy a permit. They must also pay $10 to the city building department to have the device inspected.

So far, only 74 people have applied. Failure to buy a permit could result in a fine up to $500 and a year in jail. In extreme cases, police said they could refuse to respond to unlicensed alarms.

"We've met with some resistance," Nelson admitted. "Some people naturally don't feel that they should be required to pay for police service. They feel the permit is another form of taxation."

The permits must be renewed each year by Oct. 1. The permits are expected to generate $230,000 for the city this year.

BUS, TRUCK COLLIDE

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — A passenger bus and a cargo truck carrying chickenfeed collided head-on 40 miles north of Manila today, killing at least 12 people and injuring 37, police said. Six of the injured were in serious condition in different hospitals, they said.

'Inadequate' Rate Hike Trks Phone Company

DALLAS (AP) — Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. officials Wednesday promised to battle a stripped-down rate increase recommended by a Public Utilities Commission hearing examiner.

The recommendation was hailed as a "tremendous victory for the Texas consumer," however, by a spokeswoman for the Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now, which intervened in the rate battle.

In a prepared statement, Bell vice president Paul Roth called the $114.3 million rate hike "inadequate" and said Bell would "argue strongly" for more money when the three-member commission meets to consider the recommendation Jan. 28.

Bell had requested a $326.3 million rate increase, which would translate into about $1.25 a month more for most residential customers in Texas.

Phil Ricketts' 55-page report chopped that increase to a nickel more a month and undercut the PUC staff recommendation of $152 million.

"There has never been a ruling like this," said ACORN spokeswoman Willo Hardin of Austin.

"I guess I can find another nickel a month. I can sure find another nickel easier than I can $1.25. This is good news for the low and moderate income people of Texas," she said.

Roth pointed out the report is only one factor the board will consider and said it "ignores that we have demonstrated fully the need for $326 million."

"The commission should take into consideration the facts we have presented plus the recommendation of their own staff," he said.

If the PUC goes along with Ricketts' recommendation, Bell could take the matter to court, he said.

Levi Settlement Plan Approved

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — An elaborate plan to alert 8.6 million California households of a potential share in a $12.25 million Levi Strauss antitrust settlement has been approved by a state judge.

Californians who bought Levi's jeans between 1972 and 1976 will be told next month in mass mailings and television advertisements how to claim their refunds. No more than $2 per pair will be distributed.

In settling the suit and others in various states, Levi admitted no guilt.

THE SUPERMARKET SHOPPER

By MARTIN SLOANE

DEAR SUPERMARKET SHOPPER — I recently decided to give my sister a coupon wallet as an extra wedding gift.

My mother and I stuffed it with kinds of coupons we thought she could use on her first trip to the supermarket as a married lady.

My sister and her new husband were surprised when they opened the small package and found the coupon wallet. They laughed, thinking it was only a joke.

Mom and I felt a little foolish, so we smiled and pretended that it was only a gag.

The honeymoon came to a sudden end at the supermarket check-out counter when the newlyweds realized the total of all their purchases.

They had just gone merrily up and down the aisles throwing everything that looked good into their shopping cart. Of course, they forgot to bring along their wedding present.

Well, the love birds are now clipping coupons like crazy. My brother-in-law is even building shelves on which to store their proofs of purchase.

Mom and I laughed ourselves silly last night as we watched my sister at her first coupon-club meeting. On her way out, my sister thanked us and said that the coupon wallet was the most important wedding present she received.

— Barbara from Baltimore.

DEAR BARBARA — You have again demonstrated the great value of a gift of coupons and refund forms.

I have received dozens of letters telling a story similar to yours: "They laughed at the wedding (or the shower or the housewarming party), but they thanked me later for my thoughtful gift."

SMART SHOPPER AWARD

Kathy Wright of Joplin, Mo., found Bolt paper towels advertised at 59 cents a roll. She had a Bolt coupon good for $1.00 off on three rolls. That brought the cost of the three rolls down to 77 cents.

Two weeks later, another store offered the same special as well as double coupon savings. This time, Miss Wright had a coupon for 50 cents off on two rolls. When the value of that coupon was doubled, the two rolls cost her only 18 cents.

What's more, the five rolls that together cost only 95 cents provided the proofs of purchase that she needed for a $1.50 Bolt refund. Subtracting the cost of the postage stamp needed to send for the refund, Miss Wright received five free rolls of paper towels and a 40-cent profit.

We refunders call that a home run!

Employment Figures Released

A-J Correspondent
HOBBS, N.M. — The latest figures on employment in New Mexico show Lea County with a 2.7 percent unemployment rate, as compared to a 7.7 percent rate for the whole state, according to Arlene Dorsey, area director of the Employment Security Department in Hobbs.

Mrs. Dorsey said there are only about 738 people without work in Lea County and many of these are the "hardcore jobless," who for one reason or another cannot be employed.

She described "hardcore" unemployed as those individuals, who for reasons of a handicap or lack of training or education, cannot be placed in most jobs that are available.

Mrs. Dorsey added that Lea County is in the same employment district as Roswell and Las Cruces, both larger cities than Hobbs, but the employment office in Hobbs consistently places more persons in jobs than the other larger cities.

Insurance Men Against Profit-Determined Rates

AUSTIN (AP) — Insurance men told state regulators in emphatic terms Wednesday they don't want investment income used as a means for lowering insurance rates.

One executive, Russell Perry of Dallas, told the State Insurance Board such an approach could push the industry into a "floating crap game" that could bring on its collapse.

The board denied an auto rate increase in September because of record insurance company profits from investing policyholders' premiums.

The board's staff had recommended an 18.9 percent increase.

Board Chairman Bill Daves repeated his September statement that while inflation had increased the cost of settling insurance claims, it also had raised the return on investments.

Daves cited data showing insurers got a return on investments in 1979 equal to 10 percent of the premiums they received from policyholders.

"The board's concern for what is fair and right along with the realities of the marketplace have brought us to this hearing," he said, adding that the board wants fair rates for consumers and adequate profits for insurers.

Perry, board chairman of the Republic Insurance Group, said it was OK for the board to keep investment income in mind when it sets rate formulas that assume a 5 percent before-tax profit.

But he warned of grave consequences if the board used investment income as a reason for not raising rates or for keeping them lower than they should be.

The Texas Consumer Association issued a statement saying insurers made $11.2 billion last year from investments.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. I inherited 55 shares of stock in a chemical company in 1957. At that time, it was $88 a share. Because of a two-for-one split, I own 110 shares, now worth $48 a share. For most of the time I have owned this stock, the dividends have been low. Even now, the dividend return is only about 6 percent. That's not much better than a savings account.

We are now retired, with an income that meets our present needs. But we have no protection against inflation.

With all the talk about wildfire inflation, would you advise me to still hold this stock?

A. Indeed, I would. You have overlooked one very important point. It is that the dividends paid on that stock have increased, nicely, over the years.

When you inherited the 55 shares of stock you named in your letter, that company paid dividends of $3.60 per share. So, for the first year you owned that stock you collected dividends of $98.

On the 110 shares you own as a result of the two-for-one stock split, dividends are now at the annual rate of $3.20. This year, you'll get dividends of $352.

That works out to a 77 percent increase.

More important, over the past nine years, that company has hiked its dividend payments by 60 percent.

That's protection against inflation — the thing you are looking for and something you don't get from savings accounts and other fixed-income investments.

If you needed higher income now, the obvious thing to do would be to sell your stock and put the money in something such as an higher-yielding, insured savings certificate.

But, because you can live on your present income, the main thing is to keep your stock and look for future dividend increases to help offset the ravages of inflation.

Q. A newsletter I read stated, "In place of U.S. Treasury bills, you should henceforth buy U.S. Treasury notes, which are obligations of the U.S. Treasury and which will come to you personally from the U.S. Treasury and which you can place in your own safe deposit box and which you can personally cash anywhere in the world."

The newsletter stated that U.S. Treasury bills (T bills) are now merely "paper transactions in Washington and you receive nothing to show you have a T bill."

This seems to be true. We have two T bills but no certificate. Do you recommend, for this reason, we buy Treasury notes and not Treasury bills?

A. Not for one minute. Treasury bills have been in "book entry" form for a number of years — basically to cut down on paperwork.

When you buy a T bill, you receive a "discount check" within a few days after your purchase. Four to six weeks later, the U.S. Treasury sends you a statement of your account.

That's all the proof you need that you own a T bill.

Anyone who followed that newsletter's advice has lost money recently — because, for the past several months, Treasury bills have been providing higher interest than Treasury notes.

Q. Please define "growth-mutual fund." And, is a money market mutual fund considered to be a growth fund?

A. A growth fund is a mutual fund — an open-end, managed investment company — which invests the money it receives from the sale of its shares to investors in stocks and other securities which are expected to increase in value.

If things work out as planned, the value of the stocks in which the growth fund invests will rise and, as a result, so will the value of the growth fund's shares.

By no stretch of the imagination can a money market mutual fund be called a growth fund.

A money market mutual fund invests the money it receives from investors in short-term "money market" instruments, which produce high income but have no real hopes for growth in market value.

DOYLE welcomes written questions, but he will be able to provide answers only through the column.

Blood Drives Beginning Early

A low supply of blood at United Blood Services of Lubbock has made blood drives in the area, which would ordinarily be scheduled for the end of January, necessary now, according to Barbara Wright, donor supervisor at South Plains Blood Services.

The shortages tend to occur around holidays and during the summer when many Tech students who are regular donors are out of town, Mrs. Wright said.

Denver City Tuesday conducted a blood drive to help replenish the low supplies at UBS. Floyd Lane of the Denver City advisory for UBS said 32 pints were donated.

"We had hoped for more than 48 pints to beat the old record," Lane said, "but the flu kept a lot of people home who probably would have come out to donate."

Thyme grows in full sun from seeds, cuttings or plants. Because it is a forceful herb, only one or two sprigs are required when it is used for seasoning.

Republican Raps Hance's Appointment

A-J News Services
WASHINGTON — A top House Republican argues the placement by Democrats of "two liberals and an oil man" on the powerful House Ways and Means Committee will create roadblocks to Ronald Reagan's conservative programs. "I'm offended," Rep. Barber Conable, R-N.Y., angrily said of the appointment of Reps. Donald Pease, D-Ohio; Robert Matsui, D-Calif.; and Kent Hance, D-Texas, to the committee that handles all tax legislation.

Conable, ranking Republican on the committee, said appointment of the three will make it more difficult to reach compromises on key Reagan proposals.

Democrats have "been out of phase with the people," he said, and now have added three people designed to not add to the possibility of consensus in the committee.

Conable tagged Pease and Matsui "liberals" and said while Hance is a cattleman by trade, "anybody from Texas is a knee-jerk oil man."

Anyone with a special interest such as oil is "very likely to sell all his chips for his special interest," he said.

Hance said Wednesday that he felt Conable's blast stemmed from the New York congressman's reaction to Republicans' failure to gain any additional committee seats.

"I think it's amazing and amusing that I got attacked by a Republican for getting on the Ways and Means Committee," Hance said. "I think that's something a lot of Republicans in Texas don't realize — that Republicans in New York are just as anti-oil and gas and agriculture as some of the Democrats."

Addressing Conable's label of Hance as a "knee-jerk oil man," Hance said Conable was at a loss for words during a news conference called to blast the Democrats for getting three positions on the committee.

Hance said Conable termed the three Democrat appointees "a bunch of liberals," but was trapped by a reporter who pointed out that Hance is one of the more conservative members of Congress.

Hance said that notation prompted Conable to retaliate by calling him a congressman with special interest in the oil industry.

"I think it didn't show very much taste — not much class," Hance said.

Hance took the liberty of getting in his own remarks about the New York representative, saying he has always been amazed that Conable, a veteran congressman, has never bothered to learn new representatives' names, a practice Hance said other congressmen consider top priority.

Hance said Conable will address him by saying, "Hello, there," adding that he recalls being called "there" for more than two years.

Hance said his associates have been kidding about the attack and that he has been informed Conable's remarks were not anything out of the ordinary from the congressman.

In response to Conable's tagging Hance a cattleman by trade who, with the other two Democrats' appointed, would block Reagan's conservative programs, the Lubbock attorney said he has in the past owned a few head of cattle and some mineral interests. He said he plans to work with the Reagan administration when "I think they're right."

Conable and other Republicans have fumed for weeks over the near 2-to-1 advantage Democrats maintain on the panel — 23 Democrats to 12 Republicans — and the 10-5 split on the equally important Rules Committee, despite GOP election gains that reduced the Democratic margin by 30 seats.

Last year Democrats had a 25-12 Ways and Means margin, two more than this year.

Iraq Claims Iran's Offensive Blunted

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iraq claimed Wednesday to have blunted an Iranian counter-offensive in Iran's northwestern mountains and to have trapped charging enemy infantry in a strategic hold in the oil province of Khuzistan.

But Iran said its counter-attacking troops had driven the Iraqi invasion force farther back in the two major theaters of the 3½-month-old war.

Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr has moved his battlefield headquarters to a newly recaptured area in Khuzistan, the official Tehran Radio reported in a broadcast monitored in Beirut.

Bani-Sadr watched "the progress of the fighting ... (and) is satisfied," it said.

The claims from the two sides could not be independently verified. No outside journalists have been allowed in the area of the front since Iran announced Monday it had launched its counter-offensive in two sections of the border war — on the strategic heights of Gilan e-Gharb, 330 miles southwest of Tehran, and in war-conquered Khuzistan province, at the southern end of the battlefield.

There was no firm word from either side on how much land was won or lost in the 3-day-old Iranian offensive. But the two Middle East neighbors claim to have killed hundreds of each other's troops.

The Iranian news agency Pars said the first batch of Iraqi war prisoners, 495 men, arrived in Tehran by train from Khuzistan on Wednesday. Crowds chanting "Long live Khomeini! Long live Bani-Sadr!" jammed the Tehran railway station as the Iraqi captives disembarked, hands tied behind their backs, Pars said.

Iraq Attack Claimed

An army spokesman in the Iraqi capital of Baghdad said Iraqi forces surrounded an attacking Iranian infantry force supported by tanks just south of the key Iranian highway town of Susangerd, 20 miles east of the Iraqi border in western Khuzistan.

The surrounded force was being pounded by helicopter gunships and tanks, the state radio quoted the spokesman as saying. He claimed the Iranian counter-offensive was "rapidly running out of steam."

Iraqi military communiques claimed the Iranians had been driven into chaotic retreat in the Gilan e-Gharb region, leaving hundreds of dead and dozens of wrecked tanks littering the snow-capped heights, which command strategic highways in western Iran.

Claim Iraqi Retreat

But Tehran Radio said it was the Iraqis who were retreating at Gilan e-Gharb. It reported "fierce fighting" in the hills and valleys of Gilan e-Gharb, and said troops in three areas of the western region were locked in hand-to-hand combat to dislodge the Iraqis from their trenches on the slopes of the Zagros Mountains.

The Tehran reports also claimed fresh Iranian victories in the drive to flush out the Iraqis from positions around Susangerd and the Khuzistan capital of Ahwaz, 40 miles southeast of Susangerd.

An Iraqi communique claimed its MiG warplanes flew 10 sorties over Susangerd and Ahwaz and said its air defenses shot down two Iranian warplanes.

Downing Reported

Iraq's joint staff said in a report carried by Pars that it had downed an Iraqi MiG at Ahwaz and a helicopter gunship near Susangerd.

An Iranian photographer returning from the front said he saw dozens of burned bodies of Iraqi soldiers strewn over a plain littered with smashed Iraqi tanks and trucks.

The photographer, Mohammed Sayyad, said Iranian troops had pushed the Iraqis back about 14 miles in an area south of Ahwaz, and had overrun an elaborate tunnel system.

The Iranian offensive was helped by sunny weather all week, he said. Normally the plains of Khuzistan province are swamped with rain at this time of year.

Visit Scrapped

Meanwhile, Iraqi military officers scrapped plans at the last minute to allow nine foreign reporters to visit Gilan e-Gharb. Iraqi officials had said the visit would disprove Iranian claims of victory, but when the reporters, accompanied by an official of the Foreign Ministry, arrived at a border outpost they were turned back.

The reporters protested that the action cast suspicion on the Iraqi claims, but the Iraqis remained firm, saying the road was flooded, the trip was hazardous and the major in charge had not received orders to let the journalists pass.

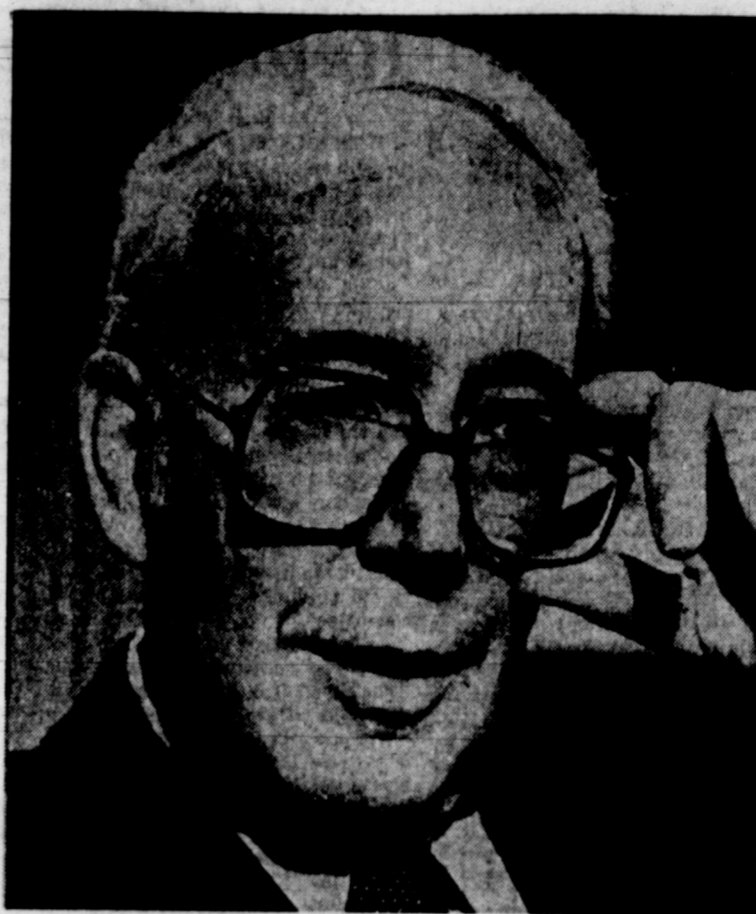

Arab Iraq invaded its predominantly Persian neighbor Sept. 23 to press its territorial claims against Iran. Tensions also had increased between the two because of the support each had given to anti-government elements inside the other's territory.

Iran Warns UAE

At a Tehran news conference Wednesday, Iranian government spokesman Behzad Nabavi said Iran has warned the United Arab Emirates against demanding the return of three small Persian Gulf islands to UAE sovereignty.

Iraq has called for the return of the islands — Abu Mousa, Greater Tunb and Lesser Tunb — to Arab sovereignty. The islands, at the entrance to the Gulf, were captured by Iranian forces during the late shah's regime in December 1971. At the time they were part of Ras al-Khaima, one of the seven Trucial States that later formed the UAE federation.

Nabavi was quoted by Pars as saying Wednesday Iran has warned UAE officials "not to get involved in the U.S. imperialist plots in the region."

Texas Demo Solons Getting Choice Posts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic congressmen from Texas once again appear headed for key committee assignments of their choice, with a boost from House Majority Leader Jim Wright of Fort Worth.

"I had a lot of good help, especially from the majority leader," Rep. Phil Gramm of College Station said about his apparent snaring of a seat on the House Budget Committee.

"The Texas delegation worked very hard ... and I'd have to give special praise to Jim Wright and (Rep.) Charlie Wilson," Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock said Wednesday. He had received the House Democratic Steering and Policy Committee's endorsement for a position on the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee.

Clark Probe Terminated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General Benjamin R. Civiletti said Wednesday the government is dropping its criminal investigation into a trip by Ramsey Clark and nine other Americans to Iran last spring.

Clark's group went to Iran in defiance of a travel ban imposed by President Carter after American diplomats in Iran were taken hostage.

"The Department of Justice has closed its criminal investigation of 10 individuals who traveled to Iran May 31, 1980," Civiletti's brief announcement said. "No indictments will be sought."

However, Civiletti said the law provides for civil penalties in such cases and no decision has been made about the possibility of pursuing that route.

Clark, who was attorney general himself in the administration of former President Lyndon B. Johnson, said at the time he made the trip in hopes of helping speed release of the hostages. While in Tehran, the group took part in an international conference on alleged U.S. crimes against the Iranian people under the regime of the late shah.

President Carter issued an executive order in April of last year placing a number of sanctions on Iran, including a ban on travel by most American citizens to Iran.

The order was issued under authority of the International Emergency Economic Powers Act of 1977, which carries criminal penalties of up to ten years in prison and $50,000 in fines.

Civiletti said the decision to drop the case was based on his conclusion that the central issue of any court fight probably would be claims that the travel ban infringed on constitutional rights.

Wright and Wilson, of Lufkin, are members of the steering and policy committee that establishes committee assignments for the 97th Congress to be approved later this month by the full House Democratic Caucus.

The other major change among returning Texas Democrats would be a move by Rep. Marvin Leath of Marlin to the House Armed Services Committee, crucial for a congressman whose district includes the massive Fort Hood complex.

Texas fared remarkably well two years ago when seven freshmen Democrats arrived in Washington and received committee assignments of their choice.

This year, the two freshmen Democrats from Texas appear to be placed in the same way.

The steering and policy committee tabbed Rep. Ralph Hall of Rockwall for the House Energy and Commerce Committee and Rep. Bill Patman of Galveston for the House Banking Committee.

Reasons For Seeking

Hall had said he was hoping for the energy and commerce committee because of the East Texas oil production areas in his district, while Patman was interested in the banking committee because of his work on interest rates during his years in the Texas Senate.

Gramm would take a leave of absence from the House Veterans Affairs Committee to fill the position on the budget panel, a committee that limits its members to three two-year stints. He retains his seat on the energy and commerce committee.

The College Station conservative would be the third Texan on the budget committee, joining Wright and Rep. Jim Mattox of Dallas. Mattox is starting his third term on the panel, while Wright has the seat because he is majority leader.

Gramm "delighted"

"I have wanted this position since I've been in Congress," Gramm said. "Needless to say, I'm delighted."

He said he was particularly pleased because his work with a bipartisan conservative budget coalition had produced some strong enemies.

"I got 19 out of 29 votes (from the steering and policy committee) and given my maverick position on the budget over the last two years, I'm honored by that vote," Gramm said.

He added that a part had been played by a new caucus of conservative Democrats which asked House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill to add conservative representation to the steering and policy committee.

Success In Committee

"I think our success in putting conservatives on the steering and policy committee made it possible," Gramm said. "Without that victory, it might well have been impossible for me to get on budget."

Hance agreed that the conservative caucus' efforts had helped. One of the conservative Democrats' complaints was that they were not represented on the four most powerful standing committees — rules, appropriations, budget and ways and means.

"I think it was definitely a benefit," Hance said about the caucus' campaign. "It just reminded the speaker and some of the other leaders that the conservative wing of the party and the moderate wing needed representation. I think the speaker bent over backwards to be very fair."

Contact Colleagues

Gramm and Hance both said they planned to contact colleagues during the next two weeks to make sure their new assignments are approved by the full Democratic caucus, even though there were no early reports of opposition.

"I'm covering all my bases and contacting everyone and just following through on it," the Lubbock congressman said.

He would take the third seat on the ways and means committee traditionally held by a Texan, which has been out of the state's hands since former Rep. Omar Burleson, an Abilene Democrat, retired in 1978.

Hance said his top priorities as a member of the ways and means panel would be agricultural export policy and the "windfall" tax on domestic oil production.

TI Official Sees Rough Road Ahead

ments in Afghanistan, the turmoil in Poland through "use of proxies and puppets" and Russia's influence in Asia, Africa, Latin America and Southeast Asia.

Noting that Iran was "bordering on anarchy and diplomatically isolated while it holds the U.S. hostages," the TI official said Iran presents an attractive target for Soviet aggression. And he said Mexico, which he characterized as exhibiting some of the characteristics of pre-revolutionary Iran, offers another opportunity for the Communists to weaken American power.

Shepherd also concentrated on the dangers of inflation, saying that "in the past decade, the major industrialized countries have experienced rates of inflation which are two and or three times as high as those prevailing in the 1960s."

And although he acknowledged the effect of rising OPEC prices, Shepherd said "rising petroleum prices should not receive a disproportionate share of the blame for inflation."

But he warned that "the rising level of dollar-denominated assets held by the oil exporting nations — $300 billion by the end of last year, and possibly $1 trillion by the mid-1980s — does represent a fundamental threat to international monetary stability."

Shepherd also cited the financial instability of the less developed countries, the large Western loans to such nations as well as to the Soviet bloc nations and warned that "the Soviets could threaten default in order to blackmail America, and especially, Western European governments."

The TI official, whose company deals in heavy amounts of foreign trade, also said that "protectionism" carried to far could result in a backlash which would prove detrimental to U.S. interests and exports, including those of agricultural products.

Productivity, Shepherd said, is one of the major keys to restoring American superiority at home and abroad and in fighting inflation.

"We must get our house in order by focusing on five fundamental issues," he warned. Those issues he cited are: establishment of attainable national goals and priorities; enhancement of U.S. power and influence abroad; control of inflation; improvement of productivity growth; and a solution to the energy problem.

Saying the nation can no longer "muddle through" as it has in the past on crucial issues, Shepherd urged the establishment of a Board of National Goals, with status similar to that of the Fed, but with no independent power of implementation.

He also urged major tax reforms, including those which "would encourage savings, increase business investments and eliminate the double taxation on dividends, as well as making further reduction in the capital gains tax rate."

U.N. Appointee Questions U.S. Support

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jeane J. Kirkpatrick, Ronald Reagan's choice for ambassador to the United Nations, said Wednesday she favors withdrawing support from the organization if it works against the interests of the United States and its allies.

She said the world body has "strayed rather far" from the high purposes for which it was established after World War II.

"I must say I find it very difficult to see why we should support and finance organizations which are explicitly and seriously undermining our most basic values and commitments and those of our friends and allies," she said in a speech to B'nai B'rith.

But first, she said the United States should undertake a "good effort" to make the United Nations "less harmful, damaging, unfair and less hypocritical." "I am not in favor of eliminating the United Nations, actually," she said. Mrs. Kirkpatrick said she was expressing her personal view and was not reflecting policies of the Reagan administration may adopt.

She declined to answer questions regarding Reagan's policies toward Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization, saying his positions were a matter of public record and hadn't changed.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick, 53, a former Georgetown University professor who already has gained a reputation for outspokenness, also said she regrets having once said the U.S. government could support "moderately repressive" governments on occasion.

With respect to the United Nations, Mrs. Kirkpatrick said it has improved the well-being of peoples of the world and made important contributions to freedom during its history.

She said some activities of the United Nations and its agencies "have been very positive and have made very large contributions, in fact, to values that we do hold and we do share."

"What I think we should try to do, as most effectively as we possibly can, is to maximize that kind of activity and minimize the others," she said. "I am very hopeful that the United Nations can in fact be a very effective instrument to expand human freedom."

While the United Nations was founded on high ideals and high hopes, she said it has strayed from those purposes and that some people have tried to use it as "an instrument of ideological warfare."

Home Loan Program Kickoff Scheduled

the refinancing, Smith said. A hitch remains in the on-again, off-again loan program, Smith said. Because of federal guidelines on future tax exempt bond sales, the bond sale had to be consummated by Dec. 31, he said.

However, that did not give bond rating companies enough time to rate the bonds, Smith said. The bonds were sold, but to the bond sale underwriters, not to investors.

The underwriters have until Feb. 15 to have the bonds rated and sell the bonds to investors, Smith said. If the bonds are not rated by then, Smith said no more loans will be made and only loans to persons who have received full commitments will receive loan funds.

However, Smith is optimistic that situation will not occur because of Lubbock's stable economy and its history of good bond ratings. And he said he thinks most persons can secure loan commitments in four or five days after applying for loans.

Smith estimates 650-700 loans will be made with the bond funds and said he expects the money to be gone within 90 days.

However, he doesn't expect people to camp outside lending institutions to apply for the loans as they have in some cities.

"They have to have a sales contract, and that will delay a great deal of it," Smith said, adding the demand will be spread among the 12 lenders.

Smith said half the money being loaned must be applied to purchases of new houses and 25 percent of the money is earmarked during the first 90 days of the program for persons making $22,500 or less annually.

Servicing Fee Included

He said the participating lenders bid on how much of the bond money they wanted to handle. The lenders will collect a servicing fee of 1/12 of one percent of the loan amount, he said.

Many lenders did not participate "because they don't have mortgage loan departments set up for the paperwork," he said.

Response to the program has been good so far, Smith said, with some realty companies using the loan program in advertising campaigns.

"I think it is a very needed and necessary program for Lubbock right now," he said.

Plot Against Feedlot Here Being Probed

The truck driver apparently had attempted to activate the device and Keesee said a transport company is suspected of installing the mechanism. Crofoot said the firm is not based in Lubbock, but he added that he is not sure which transport company was involved.

"We have heard the names of two different companies," Keesee said. "We're having trouble locating the trucks involved."

Feedlot officials have not determined a dollar loss from the scheme, but Crofoot said he believes the device had been installed only recently, perhaps as late as Tuesday night.

Debts, Lack Of Enthusiasm May Close Theatre Centre

still helping. But we flat can't pay the bills. We haven't paid the utilities for "We don't need sponsoring. We need operating money."

Miss Rampy noted that there is one grant LTC may be eligible for — a $50,000 grant from the National Endowment For The Arts. "But it's a matching grant. That means someone has to donate $50,000 and they'll match that figure. No one's going to donate that much, evidently, since we can't even get them to come to the plays," she said.

To emphasize her point, Miss Rampy pointed out that Lubbock Theatre Centre's 1980 musical production, "On A Clear Day You Can See Forever," lost money for the first time in 10 years.

In 1979, LTC performed "Gypsy" at the old playhouse. And that musical made $5,000, despite all its problems. That's why we decided to schedule two musicals this season, to take advantage of their popularity," Miss Rampy said.

"But 'On A Clear Day' had a total of seven performances, and drew less than 500 people total."

Lubbock Theatre Centre has also failed to make up the necessary funds through several special projects, including a large loss from a show which, on the surface, appeared to be LTC's biggest success: the August production of "Throckmorton, Texas 76083" by former Lubbockites G.W. Bailey and Barry Corbin.

Board members agreed the show was "supposed to be a benefit" to raise money for LTC, but that after the performances were over it was discovered no contract had ever been signed to that effect.

The result was the show, which drew the biggest attendance of any LTC production, made $3,200 in ticket sales — but the LTC board ended up paying out more than $3,700.

Board member Kim Murchison said, "That is absolutely insane for a one-set show." Board member Jackie Golightly said simply, "We got took."

And attendance has fallen since then. "Obviously we were mistaken when we thought the old building was the problem. Complaining about the old building was just an alibi for not coming," Hewitt said.

However, one thing not losing support is LTC's Children's Theater, Hewitt stressed. Since going under the direction of Toni Cobb, Children's Theater has made a profit — "the most profit it's ever made," according to Miss Rampy. Sixty children are involved in theater classes and performances and all board members indicated that Children's Theater would not close even if LTC did.

But Lubbock Theatre Centre is on its last legs unless a drastic change in attitude and financial status takes place in the next three weeks. Miss Rampy said, "The next play is 'Lil' Abner,' and that's going to cost $8,600 to put on. We flat haven't got it. And even if we did, we still have to pay off our creditors first."

"We haven't even chosen a committee to start working on next season's plays, which would begin in June, because we don't know how long we've got left. I guess what we're trying to find out now is whether the people of Lubbock want Lubbock Theatre Centre."

New Labor Conflict Sharpens In Poland

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — A new labor conflict in Poland sharpened Wednesday as militant workers and farmers in a town near the Soviet border refused to negotiate with a government commission dispatched to hear their grievances.

In another development, the government and the nationwide independent union Solidarity appeared headed for a showdown over the issue of free Saturdays, agreed to by both sides during widespread labor unrest last summer.

A spokesman for the workers and farmers in the town of Ustrzyki Doine, about 10 miles from the Soviet border, said they rejected the commission as not being authorized to sign an agreement.

The commission arrived in Ustrzyki Doine on Tuesday after workers in 17 nearby factories stopped work for an hour to support some 70 farmers and workers occupying an administrative building in the town since Dec. 29.

The spokesman, Jan Wolinski, said the talks would be "nonexistent" until the government provided "a competent commission equipped with powers" to negotiate response to a list of 14 demands. He said these included government investigation of local corruption and an end to alleged local "repression" of members of Solidarity, Poland's biggest independent trade union.

He said the protesters would call regional strikes if no agreement is reached with the government by Saturday.

Solidarity leader Lech Walesa warned the union's ruling presidium in Gdansk on Wednesday not to get too involved in local disputes. It was not clear if he was referring specifically to the Ustrzyki Doine protest.

The location of the latest unrest aroused fresh fears of possible military intervention by the Soviet Union, which increased troop concentrations near Poland's borders late last year.

In Washington, Secretary of State Edmund Muskie said Tuesday "there has been some reduction in Soviet military activity" on Poland's borders, "but their state of readiness is still at the high level it achieved in December."

Muskie said in a public television broadcast that the Soviet Union is "in a position to move (into Poland) on fairly short notice."

A warning of possible action by Poland's own army against disension was sounded last Monday by the Communist Party newspaper which said the army was worried about tensions in the country and ready to defend the government's socialist measures.

In Gdansk, Walesa told union delegates from 38 regions they were concentrating too much on "unimportant details" instead of on reforming the censorship law or drafting legislation on trade unions.

Walesa has called for a moratorium on all strikes until Jan. 15 to give the government time to implement all concessions agreed in the Aug. 31 pact that ended months of widespread strikes last summer. The agreement authorized creation of the first independent trade unions in communist Poland and the Soviet bloc.

Deputy Premier Mieczyslaw Jagielski on Wednesday called for public support of the government's plan to phase in free Saturdays, either allowing two Saturdays off a month or ending consideration of Saturday as a regular working day and adding a half hour to the other five working days.

The Solidarity presidium, however, approved a resolution reiterating its demand for free Saturdays, no extension of the work day and no reduction in pay.

Anonymous Tip Leads To Prisoner's Capture

A 24-year-old Lubbock man who escaped from a police patrol car en route to the county jail Tuesday, was recaptured early Wednesday afternoon and charged with escape and with burglary of a building.

Bobby Lee Bethune of 7502 Ave. H was picked up by police at the Satellite Motel, 2921 Clovis Road after an anonymous tip, police said.

Lubbock police officer Mark Kirkpatrick said he had stopped at 19th Street and Avenue Q when the suspect, his right arm in a cast, jumped from the back of the car. Bethune's left hand was handcuffed to his belt, his seat belt was buckled and the door was locked when he managed to make his escape.

Reports state the handcuffed prisoner ran south and Kirkpatrick lost sight of him about a half block from 19th Street. Police converged in the area within minutes, but did not locate Bethune until Wednesday afternoon.

Bethune had been out on bond after being indicted for burglary of a habitation by a December grand jury. He, along with a 22-year-old companion, were apprehended after they were caught during what police said was a burglary at The Pavilion medical building at 3719 22nd St.

The district attorney's office has recommended that bond be denied Bethune who is charged with several other offenses. Bethune will be arraigned today.

In another incident, Beulah Fae Foster of 2407 E. 108th St. told police two televisions and a sewing machine valued at nearly $820 were stolen from her home between 10 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. Wednesday.

According to reports, the burglars entered through a bedroom window and escaped through the back door leading to the alley.

In other activity, a Roswell, N.M., man told city police he was robbed of $450 by two women who kidnapped him from outside a club in the 2400-block of Fourth Street about 10:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Jeffrey E. Miller said the bandits pushed him into a car and drove to a dirt road north of Loop 289 where one of the two suspects, both wearing high heeled shoes, displayed a knife, pressed it to his side and demanded money.

Money Talks: ERA Gains Endorsement

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — The City Commission of Miami Beach, hurt by a convention boycott imposed by militant women, passed its own Equal Rights ordinance Wednesday and one commissioner predicted the local level action would have a "steamroller effect" for ERA throughout the nation.

The National Organization for Women ordered a boycott of Florida and 14 other states which have not approved the Equal Rights Amendment. As a result of the boycott, NOW says more than 500 groups have refused to hold conventions and meetings in the state.

Hotel owners and business groups, anticipating a $150 million loss over the next decade because of the boycott, urged the city to adopt the ordinance in an attempt to revive trade the community lost when Florida rejected the ERA.

"We pushed an ordinance that was not passed by the state legislature or the U.S. Congress. We did what was in our power to eliminate sex discrimination in our city," Commissioner Alex Daoud said.

"We predict that our actions will have a steamroller effect that will spread to the grassroots level across the country. It will not only put pressure on the state government, but on congress and the president," Daoud said.

The municipal measure will become law if passed on second reading at the next commission meeting, Jan. 21, Daoud said.

The city commission has voted twice in the past two years to endorse ERA, but the Florida Legislature has failed to ratify the amendment because of opposition in the Florida Senate.

Petitions Circulate After Visit By Tax-Buster

By BOB CAMPBELL

The apparently certain appointment of U.S. Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock to the House Ways and Means Committee this month will help restore some of the power Texas has lost in Congress in recent years, former longtime Rep. George Mahon, Hance's 19th Congressional District predecessor, said Wednesday.

Mahon also expressed hope that President-elect Ronald Reagan will continue to take a firm stand on federal spending and be able to trim the budget. Tough decisions must be made to restore economic stability, Mahon said.

Interviewed by telephone at his Arlington, Va., home, Mahon said he was not surprised that Hance is being nominated for the powerful committee after only one term in Congress.

"I wasn't surprised because Kent worked at it and had lots of friends in the House," the former Appropriations Committee chairman said. "It strengthens the voice of Texas and the Southwest in the Congress.

"Kent has done well in getting this major committee so early in his service," he said, adding, "You've got to have friends in the House to be effective, and you've got to have friends at home to be elected."

Mahon noted that he won appointment to the Appropriations Committee in 1939 after two terms and with the backing of House Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas.

He said the support of House Majority Leader Jim Wright of Texas helped Hance win the nomination of the House Steering and Policy Committee in much the same way.

The nomination of Hance will go before the House Democratic caucus Jan. 22, but the committee action is considered tantamount to a final appointment.

"This will give him additional stature in the House and will enable him to be more effective in serving the interests of West Texas," Mahon said. "A man, to be effective, must have friends in the Congress, and it will be helpful to him should problems arise for his district."

Mahon, the only representative the 19th District had prior to Hance's election after his retirement in 1978, said the Ways and Means Committee will have much to do with the Reagan administration's economic program and will be crucial in efforts to curb inflation and stabilize the dollar.

"Probably as much as 90 percent of Reagan's economic program will be handled by the Ways and Means Committee," he said, adding that the 35-member committee also has jurisdiction over foreign agricultural trade and handles oil and gas legislation.

Mahon became appropriations chairman after 25 years on the committee, which is considerably larger than Ways and Means with 55 members, and de-

Petitions calling for a constitutional amendment which would give Texas voters the right to propose and vote on legislation began circulating in Lubbock Wednesday following a brief visit here by tax foe Howard Jarvis.

Jarvis, who led the campaign resulting in passage of California's Proposition 13, addressed a crowd of about 150 Lubbock residents Wednesday as part of an 18-city tour of Texas, sponsored by a statewide tax relief organization called Texas 13.

One of the chief purposes of Jarvis' tour is to drum up public support for initiative and referendum measures used by Californians to reduce their local property taxes. Initiative is a process that allows the people of a state to pass laws directly. The referendum process effectively gives voters a veto power over their state legislators.

"If you get the right of initiative and use it right, the state of Texas will have a new birth," Jarvis told the audience.

Former Attorney General Waggoner Carr, who heads up Texas 13, encouraged the crowd to sign petitions calling for Texans to have the right of initiative and referendum. He said the petitions will be sent to state legislators to convince them there is strong grassroots support for a constitutional amendment.

At a news conference prior to his speech, Jarvis said he is interested in Texas and about 15 other states which still do not have initiative and referendum measures.

"The people of this state really don't have the power to control their own government," Jarvis said. "It's important that you have it (initiative and referendum), even if you don't use it."

With the initiative power, Jarvis said, Texas voters can force politicians "to look at a budget, not just a blank check."

Jarvis claimed that Texas' government is growing at a rate five times faster than the state's population. "That means you're running into a hell of a lot of trouble," he added.

Texans don't really have as good a tax situation as many people think they do, Jarvis said. When property in the state is revalued this year under the new system — which requires all valuations to be at 100 percent of market value — Texans may realize they have a problem, he said.

A tremendous increase in property taxes in the mid-1970s prompted California to manufacture poor people in this country," he said.

Carr said his organization is seeking to return an estimated $1 billion surplus in the state treasury to taxpayers through some form of tax benefits.

But legislative leaders are against that proposal, he said, because they want to spend the surplus. Carr noted that the Legislative Budget Board already has recommended about a $5 billion increase in the state's biennial budget.

Carr said the 55,000-member Texas 13 organization has initiated its campaign to educate taxpayers and to involve them in their government. The organization's program is aimed at moderating government spending, slowing the growth of bureaucracy and holding down taxes, he said.

"We know we're going to lose if we don't involve all the taxpayers in the state," Carr said.

The tour's stop here was sponsored by the Lubbock Eagle Forum.

nians to use their initiative power to pass Proposition 13 in 1978, Jarvis said. He claimed the measure has prevented a recession in that state and created thousands of new jobs.

Jarvis said Texas has not faced as "outrageous" a tax problem as California had, but Texas taxpayers could find themselves in a similar situation in the future.

The average American already is turning over about 45 percent of his income for taxes, Jarvis said. "The tax sys-

Local Chapter Of AARP Honors Member For Services Rendered

By JEANNE LIVELY
Family News Staff

As far as Mrs. Eunie Stephens knew, the Tuesday evening meeting of the Lubbock Chapter 537 of the American Association of Retired Persons was to be a routine meeting of the group.

But at the catered dinner by the City of Lubbock, the energetic member of AARP was greeted by a banner in the dining area of the Lubbock Adult Center that read "Eunie Stephens Day."

Again, no ordinary meeting this.

Tips Given To Help Refinish Furniture

NEW YORK (Special) — Fall means brilliant colors on trees, cool, crisp breezes and outdoor fun for the whole family. Hayrides, bonfires, country auctions and flea markets are enticing fall activities. During your outdoor rummaging if you encounter an irresistible piece of furniture that needs a little work, remember, fall is the ideal time to refinish it.

Here are a few tips from the Consumer Service Department of International Playtex to make your furniture refinishing as easy and safe as it is fun and profitable.

— Always work in a well-ventilated area, either in the house or on the back patio (in good weather). Chemical fumes from the stains or varnishes you use could be potential health hazards.

— To eliminate costly mistakes have all your materials and tools ready in advance and know the procedure you will be following.

— Avoid spilling the chemicals on your skin or clothing. It's a good idea to wear rubber gloves to protect your hands while stripping, sanding, glueing, staining or varnishing.

members and guests heard laudatory remarks concerning Mrs. Stephens from a host of local dignitaries, including Charley Pope and City Councilman Alan Henry. Mayor Bill McAlister was also on hand to read the proclamation designating the honoree's special day.

Although Mrs. Stephens had just begun a four-year term of office as assistant state director of AARP as of Jan. 1, she has long given service not only to the organization but to her community as well.

In June 1978, Mrs. Stephens was appointed by the City Council to serve a three-year term on the Transit Advisory Board for the City of Lubbock.

In 1979, Mrs. Stephens received a Certificate of recognition in appreciation for leadership and unselfish service as an older Texan and was designated the Senior Citizen of the Year by Gov. Bill Clements.

Currently, Mrs. Stephens chairs the Board for Title Three Nutrition Councils which reviews menus served Senior Citizens at the community centers. In addition, she was appointed by the City Council in 1980 to serve as a member of the Community Service Board.

During Mrs. Stephens' term of office as president of Lubbock Chapter 537 of AARP, she and her committee worked to secure central meeting place for Senior Citizens.

Regarding her own and the committee's efforts to accomplish this, she says modestly, "We had a lot of help from the City Manager, the City Council and the Parks and Recreation Department. But everybody will benefit when the remodeling of the old Godeke Library is completed and we get to move in."

Not all the plaudits during the evening went to Mrs. Stephens, however. Mrs. Lelah Adams was also presented a certificate of appreciation on completing a four-year term as assistant state director of AARP.

If North had been a hand hog he might have bid three notrump over South's three hearts. Or South might well have bid three notrump over North's three spades. If so, there would be no article. North would play in three notrump and make four or maybe five odd.

As a matter of fact, the game was duplicate and two North declarers did play in notrump and collect 11 tricks. At all other tables South played in four spades.

The defense started with the jack of diamonds lead. East took his ace and king. Some East players continued with a third diamond since they knew that West could ruff. This made things easy for South. He just discarded his deuce of clubs and claimed the balance after West ruffed.

At a few tables East stopped to think. South had bid spades and hearts as if he had a lot of cards in those two suits. He had also produced two diamonds. It was quite likely that he would hold just a singleton in clubs. So the thinking Easts played the ace of clubs before leading the third diamond and no matter what South did he would have to lose a trump trick, his contract and most of the match points. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Panel Not Supporting FDA Stand

WASHINGTON (Special) — An Ad Hoc Consultative Panel of worldwide medical and health experts has found no reason to support the U.S. Food and Drug Administration's decision to refuse approval of Depo-Provera as a contraceptive in the United States.

According to a news release from the Upjohn Company, the panel also recommended that the United States Agency for International Development make Depo-Provera available to nations which request it for use as a contraceptive.

The panel's recommendations and findings were revealed at a Sept. 9 hearing of the Subcommittee on International Economic Policy and Trade, Committee on Foreign Affairs.

Depo-Provera, an injectable contraceptive produced by Upjohn, has been attacked by various activist groups in recent years. Despite two favorable recommendations by its own Advisory Committee on Obstetrics and Gynecology, the FDA in 1978 refused to approve the drug for use as a contraceptive in the U.S.

Following that decision, USAID requested that the Ad Hoc Consultative Panel be formed to review the risks and benefits of the drug and advise USAID on appropriate action the agency could take in response to requests for the drug from developing countries.

The panel's written report was completed in July 1980. The report also recommended that if USAID should decide to supply Depo-Provera to nations that request it, the agency should provide consumer information and education on the drug and that long-term surveillance studies should continue on Depo-Provera.

An Upjohn spokesman said that the panel's recommendations confirmed both the company's belief in Depo-Provera and more than ten years of positive experience with the drug. Depo-Provera is currently approved for use as a contraceptive in more than 80 countries.

Included on the panel of 13 medical experts were Chairman Allen Rosenfield, M.D., Columbia University; Giuseppe Guiseppe Benagiano of the World Health Organization; Suporn Koetsawang, M.D., Mahidol University, Bangkok; and Judith Rooks, C.N.M., M.P.H., of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Washington, D.C.

Vegetable Gardening Mail Orders Increase

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

Vegetable gardeners who order by mail have more than doubled in number in the past two years. Their numbers grew from 6 million in 1978 to 13 million in this year. They now make up 37 percent of all vegetable gardening households.

Seeds dominated the mail order purchases, with 63 percent of gardening households buying them. Plants and books were the second and third-ranked purchases.

These figures are from The Gallup Organization's 1980-81 national gardening survey for The National Association for Gardening, of Burlington, Vt. The Mail Order Association of Nurserymen wants to make sure all those customers receive good value and good service.

"We try to set standards and ethics," says Will Jung, membership chairman of the association and a second generation nurseryman himself. Jung is secretary-treasurer of the Jung Seed Co. of Randolph, Wis.

In a telephone interview, Jung said the association works with the American Association of Nurserymen and the Federal Trade Commission to monitor advertising. It also sponsors an annual survey by the horticulture department of the University of Iowa at Ames to see how well mail order firms serve their customers.

Every year the department orders catalogs and a few products to check on delivery times and product quality. The seeds and plants are checked for quality both on arrival and in midsummer, after they have been planted and growing for several months.

The association also urges consumers to shop carefully: Don't be misled by deceptive ads or outrageous claims, association experts say. "If something sounds unbelievable, it probably is."

NAM's other shopping tips include:
•Buy from companies with established reputations. If you are new to gardening, or if a company's name is unfamiliar to you, check with friends, garden clubs, plants societies or your local newspaper garden editor — or look for the MAN Logo in catalogs and ads.

•Read plant descriptions carefully before making your selections.

•If you do not want a substitute in case a particular variety is sold out, say so clearly on your order blank.

•Look for — and make sure you understand — the company's guarantee policy.

•Fill out the order blank clearly and fully. Include item numbers, plant names, a street address and/or box number and your ZIP code.

•To avoid delay, include shipping and other charges as requested.

•Keep a copy of your order, including the company's name and address, the date you placed the order and products chosen.

•Some companies maintain toll-free numbers for customers. They are especially useful if you have questions or want to discuss substitutions. To obtain such a number, telephone the toll-free area code's information service: 800 5551212, and give the operator the name of the company you want to order from.

If you do order by telephone, be sure to keep an itemized record of what you ordered, the company's name and address, the date and the name of the person who took the order.

For a copy of the association's active membership listing, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to MAN, Dept. C, 210 Cartright Blvd., Massapequa, N.Y. 11762.

The sheet lists member companies by name, address and specialties. For example, one Michigan firm specializes in rare and bird attracting plants; a New York state firm, dwarf and espaliered trained fruit trees; and a California company, aquatic plants and supplies.

ANN LANDERS:

Talented Teen Rejects College

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I are heartsick. Our beautiful, bright, talented daughter, age 17, just informed us that she does not want to go to college. She prefers to go "right into life" — whatever that means. In her opinion, "College is a cop-out unless you plan to be a doctor or lawyer."

Mary Ellen is a good student and has a lovely singing voice. She also plays the piano. Her teacher believes she is conservatory material, and we have the money to send her. M.E. is a whiz at math and has shown interest in the business world.

When we ask M.E. what kind of a job she would look for, she says she doesn't know, just that she insists on being on her own straight out of high school. Thank heavens she plans to live at home until she can afford a place of her own. Will you please say something to change her mind? — Troubles In Tucson

Dear Tucson: I wouldn't try. A college education is a privilege — and an expensive one at that. If your daughter views it as a "cop-out," let her be. Perhaps after a year or two of knocking around in "the real world" she might decide you were right. Let her know she can change her mind and no one will say, "I told you so."

Recently both organizations changed the style of their uniforms. For some silly reason they decided to have Halston design the ones for Brownies and Girl Scouts. They chose Oscar de la Renta for the Cubs and Boy Scouts.

Would you believe a Cub Scout's shirt now costs $14.95? The pants cost more. These kids MUST be in uniform. Surely the executives in scouting realize that many children can't pay such prices.

I am mildly handicapped. Boy Scouts are a godsend for my young son. He has been able to go places and learn things I never could have taught him. We are on a fixed income, and it's all we can do to scrape up the money for scout dues and troop trips. Now there is this $30 for a new uniform. Why do they put scouting out of reach for so many children? — Concerned Illinois Parent

Dear Parent: Here are the facts. According to Mrs. Ryan at the Chicago Area Boy Scout Council, the uniforms are indeed designed by Oscar de la Renta. The shirts cost $12.49; the pants cost $14.99. Uniforms can sometimes be picked up for much less at Good Will or other resale shops. Many troops have their own recycling service where the outgrown uniforms are passed down to the smaller boys.

According to Kathleen Smythe at the Chicago Girl Scout Council, Halston designed a uniform for the ADULTS. The senior scouts and cadets designed their own uniform this year. The younger scout's uniform has not been changed for five years. A Brownie uniform costs $19.55 (jumper, blouse and beanie); the scout uniform is $24.90 and the new senior scout uniform is $40.25. Patterns and material are available for mothers or fathers who would like to make the uniforms.

Good Will periodically sends uniforms to the council, which distributes them. Some troops do not use THE uniform but dress in the same color skirts and blouses and wear the scout pin. It is not necessary to have a uniform to participate in scouting.

Now don't sit around and have the after-holiday blues, get busy!

Last week, the column was devoted to holiday fare, recipes to save for next year. Wouldn't you like a few more?

BLACK-EYED PEAS SALAD
(Submitted by Mary Peterson, Lamesa)
1/2 cup purple or salad onions, sliced
1/2 cup green pepper, sliced thin
1/2 clove garlic (peel and place toothpick through it, removing garlic before serving)
2 14-oz. cans black-eyed peas with snaps, drained
1/4 cup mild vinegar
1/4 cup sugar
1/4 cup salad oil
1/2 tsp. salt
Dash of pepper
Dash of hot sauce
Combine ingredients and marinate 12-24 hours covered in refrigerator.
From Mrs. George W. James, comes this unusual black-eyed pea dip.
NEW YEAR'S DIP
1-1/2 cups black-eyed peas, drained

1 tsp. garlic powder
4-5 green onions, chopped
1 stick butter or margarine
2 jalapeno peppers, chopped
8 ozs. processed cheese, cubed
Mash black-eyed peas. Add other ingredients. Microwave on "roast" to 150 degrees (about 4 minutes). Serve with chips or raw vegetables.
Now, this one is to use anytime!
HOMINY
(Submitted by Mrs. E.J. Abney, Ropesville)
1 lb. lye
1 gallon shelled corn
Put in cast iron pot. Cover with water. Cook until skin slips easily and juice gets thick.
Rinse the corn until lye comes off. Cook until it begins to get tender. Pressure about like beans.
The following is Birda Joiner's recipe. Do keep it for next year.
FRUIT CAKE
1-1/2 cups large seeded raisins
1-1/2 cups dates
2 cups sugar
2 cups boiling water
5 tbsps. shortening
3 cups flour
1 tsp. soda
2 tps. cinnamon
1 tsp. cloves
1 tsp. salt
1 cup chopped nuts

Place raisins, dates, sugar, water and shortening in a saucepan and simmer gently for 20 minutes. Bake for 1-1/2 hours in a slow oven (325 degrees).
BROWN SUGAR DIVINITY
(Sent by Oleta Beesinger)
1 cup brown sugar
1 cup white sugar
1/4 cup white corn syrup
1/2 cup water
Few grains salt
2 stiffly beaten egg whites
1/2 tsp. vanilla
1-1/2 cups chopped pecans
Cook first 5 ingredients to 265 degrees or hard ball stage. Slowly beat syrup into stiff egg whites. When mixture begins to thicken, add vanilla. Then, continue to beat until mixture holds shape. Add pecans. Pour into slightly greased platter.
MILLIONAIRE FUDGE
(Submitted by A Reader)
4 1/2 cups sugar
1/2 tsp. salt
1 large can evaporated milk
1 stick oleo
1 lb. pecan halves
1-12 oz. semi-sweet chocolate chips
1 medium jar marshmallow creme
1 tsp. vanilla
Cook sugar, salt, milk and oleo. When mixture begins to boil, stir constantly. Cook exactly 5 minutes. Pour over prepared chocolate chips, marshmallow creme and vanilla. Quickly stir in nuts and pour into buttered 9 x 13-inch pan. Use heavy aluminum pot to cook. Makes about 5 lbs. candy. Walnuts may also be used.

PROUD PEANUT BUTTER LAYER CAKE
(From Mrs. Lee Walding of Floydada)
2 eggs, separated
1/2 cup white sugar
2-1/4 cups sifted cake flour
3 tps. baking powder
1 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. soda
1 cup brown sugar, packed
1-1/3 cup crunchy peanut butter
1/3 cup vegetable oil
1-1/4 cups milk
Beat egg whites until frothy. Gradually beat in white sugar. Beat until very stiff and glossy. Sift flour, baking powder, salt and soda into another bowl.
Add brown sugar, peanut butter, oil and one-half milk. Beat 1 minute at medium speed on mixer or 150 strokes by hand. Scrape sides and bottom of bowl constantly.
Add remaining milk and egg yolks. Beat 1 more minute, scraping bowl constantly. Fold in meringue. Pour into oiled round cake pans or oblong pan. Bake 8-inch layers 35-40 minutes, 9-inch layers 25 to 30 minutes, oblong 35-40 minutes at 350 degrees.
Cool. Frost with sweetened whipped cream and sprinkle with crushed peanuts or peanut brittle.
The reader who sent the following recipe is anonymous, but the recipe sounds terrific!
PEANUT CLUSTERS
1 lb. almond bark
1 lb. chocolate chips
1 lb. salted peanuts
Melt almond bark over low heat in 2-quart saucepan. Add chocolate chips and stir until melted. Add peanuts to mixture.
Drop by teaspoon onto foil or waxed paper. Makes 4 dozen.
Mae Osbourn would appreciate the recipe for Orange Bon-Bon Coconut Cake that appeared in the Spry cook book.
Mary Peterson would appreciate a candied apple recipe using either cinnamon and red hot or cream cheese and pecans in the middle.

Mom Right About Reason For Sitting Properly

By PAUL DONOHUE, M.D.
Dear Dr. Donohue: My mom tells us girls to sit up straight in our chairs. She says that if we don't we can hurt our tailbones. I want to know if there is any truth in this or if it's just another hassle parents dream up. I want to be able to show your answer to mom, so she'll get the facts. — Miss G.G.

coccyx usually have it there only. The cause can usually be traced to chronic injury to that little cluster of bones. Letters like this always draw nice mail from moms.
There is good reason to get into good sitting habits early in life. Your mother is right.

Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My wife is a diabetic. She is on NPH Insulin U-80, 120 units. Now the company making the insulin makes only the U-100 kind. Since this is stronger and I want to use the same syringe, what should I do? — F.J.S.

Here are the facts. The very end of the spine has a cluster of from three to five small bones that are more or less fused (joined) together. They make up the coccyx (CAWX-sicks). When you sit up (normally) there is no pressure on the coccyx because of the natural cushioning. When you slump, the cushioning effect is lost and there is abnormal pressure on the coccyx. Continued abuse of the spine in this way can result in permanent problems.
Some people have problems with the coccyx stemming from birth, and proper sitting posture becomes even more important for them. Repeated injury can cause bone changes leading to arthritis of the coccyx later in life.
In this regard, it is interesting to note that people who develop arthritis of the

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have been through menopause and now have no discharge or bleeding. Does that mean I am unlikely to get cervical cancer? — Mrs. C.C.
Bleeding and discharge can be signs of cancer, but absence of those signs does not mean cancer is not present. That is why regular checkups are valuable — to detect cancer before such signs appear. I do not mean to say that bleeding or discharge always indicate cancer, however. What I do mean is that checkups are valuable for the woman both before and after menopause, with or without symptoms. See the booklet "Make Menopause Easier," which discusses problems associated with this event. For a copy, write

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have been having a tingling, sort of pins and needles in my hands and forearms off and on for several months. This is my only symptom, and I am embarrassed to go to someone because I feel like a hypochondriac. But I keep worrying about it. Could I have anemia, heart disease or something? I am a female, 28, and in good health. — L.K.M.
You are not a hypochondriac. Do not feel the least embarrassed about seeing a doctor about your symptoms. Tingling in the fingers and hands may represent no abnormality. But it can be due to circulation disturbances, local neurological problems or abnormalities such as an extra rib — perhaps a thoracic outlet syndrome. I don't have to explain all these possibilities to you. Your symptom does require investigation. Incidentally, you are not really too far off the mark when you suggest anemia. Pernicious anemia is another possibility with such symp-

The number after the "U" in insulin preparations stands for how many units of insulin are in each unit volume (milliliter or cubic centimeter) of the preparation. U-40 means 40 units in each; U-80 means 80 units; U-100 means 100 units. My advice to you is to get rid of the U-80 syringes you now have and get the 100's. That way you will not make any mistakes in the dose. The units are marked on each syringe, but you have to use the right syringe for the particular preparation of insulin. That is done so you won't make mistakes.
Dear Dr. Donohue: I do not like getting Pap smear tests because I can't help wondering about whether they actually contribute to cervical cancer. The doctor does scrape at the cervix, and that causes a little bleeding. Could this, in itself, cause cancer? — Mrs. R.M.
The slight irritation associated with having a Pap smear has never been reported to be a risk for cancer.

HINTS FROM HELOISE:

Soiled Gasket Lessens Efficiency

DEAR HELOISE:
The rubber gasket around the door of my refrigerator has become very soiled. No amount of cleaning makes it white again. The ridges seem to be holding the soil.
Any suggestions? — Meg and let it set. When you serve it, it's in neat little uniform shapes.

Tastes the same as cut fudge, but adds a little extra pizzazz for this time of year. — Camille

PILLOW TALK
DEAR HELOISE:
I take a roll of paper towels and remove the cardboard center. I stuff the roll into an old nylon stocking so it can't unroll, and it makes a nice neck pillow for traveling.
The towels can be unrolled from the center to be used as needed for all those cleanups. Our car won't leave the driveway without one.
You can leave the cellophane wrapping on to keep the towels clean and usable to the end. — Esther Willmott

Those gaskets catch everything from spills to fingerprints. And nothing is more vital to the efficiency of your fridge than a tight-fitting gasket, as the gasket seals in the cold air.
Each time you defrost your refrigerator, wash the rubber or plastic strip. The accumulation of soil and grease will cause the gasket not to adhere tightly, thus allowing air to seep in.
Gently lift the edge of the gasket back and see what you find. Bet it's full of goop from jars and things that have run over and spilled out when the door was pushed shut — sometimes too vigorously.
Take a damp cloth and remove as much of the soil as possible, then wash the inside and outside of the gasket with a strong solution of baking soda and water.
It's also very important to keep the gasket clean to prevent having to replace it. If you've ever had to replace one, you know how expensive they are.
I also think you'll find a lot of those odors will be gone when you thoroughly clean around the gasket. Once you've got it clean, try putting a paste wax on the gasket (not a self-cleaning wax — one that cleans as it shines — as it could harm the rubber). Waxing will help keep the gasket clean longer, plus save on wear and tear. — Heloise

SHelf PAPER
DEAR HELOISE:
I found a shortcut to fitting the shelf paper in my kitchen cabinets. The shelf paper is a little wider than my shelves, and I had always struggled to fold the excess under while the end of the paper tried to re-roll itself.
Now I cut the proper length, let it re-roll, then take the rolled up piece and put it firmly against the back of the cabinet, marking the excess and cutting off the entire length in one snip.
The cut edge is placed against the back of the shelf as cutting it off all at once doesn't allow for a perfectly straight edge. — Ann Miller

FUDGE GOODIES
DEAR HELOISE:
I love fudge, and really enjoy making it. But one of the neatest things I've come across is to mold it in little paper cups — the size smaller than standard cupcake size.
Just spoon the fudge into the cups

Zoning Commission Approves Request

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
 Avalanche-Journal Staff
 The Planning and Zoning Commission Wednesday reversed a previous decision and granted a request to permit overhead utility lines in a public housing development at 24th Street and Frankford Avenue.

The commission had denied the request of Duane McQueen, the architect for the 96-unit project, last month after lined to predict what the future may hold for Hance.

Mahon Urges Spending Cuts

"The business of politics is an unpredictable business," he said. "You've just got to do your job from day to day and month to month and year to year."

"You don't have to be chairman to be effective."

Asked if he thinks Hance has been "a worthy successor" so far, Mahon said, "I think Kent has done a good job so far and has done a good job representing the people of our area."

"The people of our area are a conservative people, not extreme radicals on the left or on the right, and he has represented their conservative sentiments."

He indicated that Reagan and Congress are entering a period in which decisive action must be taken to restore economic stability.

"Reagan talked tough during the campaign," he said. "I'm hoping that he and his administration will be able to make substantial savings in the operation of government and reduce programs where reductions can safely be made—reduce expenditures and move toward balancing the budget."

"This would have a very wholesome psychological effect on the American public and American business."

"I think the answer to our problems is not a tax cut, but a reduction in government spending and better management of our fiscal affairs," he added.

Asked if substantial cuts in federal programs are politically feasible, Mahon said, "People feel that we should make some sacrifices, but they want the other fellow to take them."

"I hope the new administration won't be easily discouraged. As I see it, the new administration needs to show some muscle and leadership within the next few months. Otherwise, the chances of success for the new administration won't be very good."

"Not everyone is going to be pleased, but you can't run a country and keep everybody happy all the time."

DOBROVSKY ARRESTED
 VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Czechoslovak police have arrested Lubos Dobrovsky, the former Moscow correspondent for Czechoslovak Radio, emigrant sources reported here Wednesday. The sources said Dobrovsky, a supporter of the human rights manifesto Charter-77, was arrested Monday after police searched his Prague apartment.

McQueen did not appear at the meeting.

However, the commission agreed Wednesday morning to reconsider its decision after learning there are overhead lines already traversing the property.

The city's policy requires overhead utility lines in all new subdivisions and McQueen's request is thought to be the first one for a waiver of that policy.

Apparently commission members reversed their previous decision based on the presence of overhead lines already on the property and information that overhead service would not have to be provided to an adjacent area between the housing project and Loop 289.

Following the meeting, McQueen said additional funds would have had to be found to pay for the housing project if the commission had not changed its stand.

"I don't know where the money would have come from," he said, adding he didn't know how much more costly underground utility service would have been.

He said the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development has approved a certain amount of money, based on having overhead service, to buy the housing project once it is completed.

The project still is entangled in a federal lawsuit filed by the Frenship School District to halt construction of the housing units.

The suit contends there is no room for additional children in Frenship's already overcrowded schools and school officials were not consulted about the location of the housing project.

Temple Management, which is under contract with the Lubbock Housing Authority to build the housing project, also will construct a nearly 40-unit project at 51st Street and Avenue L, McQueen said.

Airmen Honored At Banquet

Senior Airman Glen C. Elstun, Tech. Sgt. Bruce F. Kumler and Master Sgt. Ronnie J. Craft were named the 64th Flying Training Wing's airman, non-commissioned officer and senior NCO for 1980 at the annual awards banquet Tuesday at Reese Air Force Base.

Elstun is a member of the 64th Field Maintenance Squadron, while Kumler is assigned to the Security Police Division and Craft is commandant of the NCO Professional Military Education Center. Chief Master Sgt. Emory Walker, senior enlisted advisor for the Air Training Command, was speaker for the event honoring the 23 candidates for the awards.

Elstun, a native of Fayetteville, N.C., is an administrative specialist in FMS' Propulsion Branch where he reorganized the documentation program to eliminate a large volume of unnecessary documents.

He has 130 hours toward a bachelor's degree in administration and is enrolled in three college courses as well as the Community College of the Air Force.

Kumler, who hails from Cincinnati, Ohio, is non-commissioned officer in charge of the administrative security section. He organized and implemented the Automated Security Clearance Approval System and, in other efforts, helped reduce classified material held by all base units.

Mart Drops In Trading

NEW YORK (AP) — An overnight sell recommendation by a well-known investment adviser touched off a steep decline in the stock market Wednesday in the busiest session in Wall Street history.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off more than 30 points at its afternoon low, finished with a 23.80 loss at 980.89.

New York Stock Exchange volume reached 92.89 million shares, shattering the record of 84.08 million set in the session after the election last Nov. 5.

The Dow's slide marked an abrupt reversal of the strong rally that had been in progress over the first three sessions of 1980, when it climbed 40.70 points to its highest level in more than four years.

The turnaround came after Joseph Granville of Holly Hill, Fla., publisher of a market letter with a following, sent out a "sell" message to subscribers to his "early warning service."

Granville could not be reached for comment. His message, however, was quickly relayed through Wall Street.

Several sources confirmed he had recommended that his subscribers sell all their stock holdings, and sell short some of the stocks that have risen the most in recent months.

Lunacy Rules SWC

THE ONLY LOGICAL CONCLUSION appears to be that there is no logic at all involved in this sporting business.

As one cellmate said to his roomie, "who are you to call me a criminal?" Let me explain.

It began with the 1980 Southwest Conference football race. Before the season began we all sat down and mapped out the plan. It was a very simple scheme.

The Houston Cougars had just about everybody coming back off 1979's Cotton Bowl winning team so they should win the league race again. And if the Cougs didn't to it, well, Texas was supposed to be mighty tough too.

If the Longhorns didn't dominate, it was supposed to be those tougher-than-nails Arkansas Hogs who would rise to the top. The Baylor Bears never entered our discussion — they were lumped with the also-rans.

Early on Houston ruined things by losing three of its first four games. Good-bye Cougs.

That was okay, though; Texas won its first five (including nationally-televised victories over Arkansas and Oklahoma) and was ranked second in the nation. Along came SMU, then came Texas Tech, then Baylor, then . . . aw, get outta here Horns.

Fred Akers' crew finished nowhere in the top twenty with a 7-5 mark. Arkansas never threatened either, piling up a 6-5 record but earning (?) a post-season trip to the Hall Of (De)Fame game.

That set up, of course, the cinderella story of the Baylor Bears — 10-1 and in the Cotton Bowl, where they were bleached by the Tide of Alabama.

All this is ancient history by now, but it suitably sets the stage for the SWC basketball season.

NOT YET A WEEK old, the pre-season cage picks already appear a sham-ble.

I mean, everybody knew exactly how this story was supposed to go. Texas A & M and its fabled Wall would ride through the league race — fight off a tough challenge from Arkansas — and take home another SWC crown. Rudy Woods, Rynn Wright, Vernon Smith and Claude Riley — all the legendary bricks in the wall — were back.

Ask anyone on the A&M campus, "What's happening?" and the quick response would naturally be, "Us, my man, us!"

And then came the Anteaters of Cal-Irvine. The Aggies were 7-0 and ranked 12th in this great land until the Anteaters, who didn't even own a winning record, whipped A&M by 15. After that came a 39-38 loss to Eastern Montana College.

Eastern who? Us, my man, us.

TCU, traditional doormat of the SWC, opened 1981 by knocking off the Aggies 56-51 in the league opener for both teams Saturday night. On Tuesday it was Baylor, with its 5-5 season mark, whipping the Aggies.

FOR CRYING OUT LOUD, what's going on? Nothing figures anymore.

For instance, the Texas Longhorns looked about as good as a team can look in defeat while falling 89-79 to Tech on Saturday yet turned around and lost a home game to SMU on Tuesday. The same SMU squad that had looked about as bad as a team can look asleep while falling 92-50 to Arkansas on Saturday.

Rounding out the SWC's Tuesday night action was the Raiders' three-point loss to the suddenly frontrunning Houston Cougars.

"I just can't believe some of the scores tonight," admitted Tech's Gerald Myers on Tuesday. "They are shocking."

And everybody wants to know what's happened to the Aggies. Coach Shelby Metcalf tried several combinations with eight different players and still couldn't come up with an answer against the Bears.

"I'm sure I've been through something like this before, but I don't know when," said Metcalf, following his team's fourth straight setback Tuesday. "It's got to be mental, and our shot selection has got to get better."

The Aggies hit a season-low 31.3 percent of their efforts against the Bears and hardly any better against TCU.

IT'S NOT LOOKING like a wall right now, just a bunch of brick layers — card carrying union members. Against the Bears, Smith hit four of 12 shots, Riley missed eight of 11 attempts, Wright was good on five of 11 and Woods battered-for-three. Smith, usually the team's leading scorer, has hit 15 of 61 tries in the last five games.

"We're missing leadership on the floor," concedes Metcalf. "You've got to have it. It's like Al McGuire said, 'You cut off the head and the body dies.'"

And the headless Aggies are coming to town Saturday night.

"During every season you go through a crisis or two," said Metcalf, prior to the Baylor game. "How well you recover usually determines your season. I'm sure we'll come back and play well. Losing a game is not a felony."

My inclination is to agree with the Aggie coach. A&M can't be as bad as they've seemed against TCU and Baylor. No team can stay that cold for that long.

In other words, it won't be any cakewalk for Tech when the Raiders and Aggies clash Saturday night in the Coliseum. A&M might not be scoring a lot of points right now, but the Aggies haven't been yielding many in defeat either.

AS FOR THE RAIDERS, well, after two conference games they appear pretty solid. The addition of Clarence Swannegan, Bubba Jennings and Steve Smith to the starting five has made Tech a better team than it was a year ago.

In addition, junior Jeff Taylor is off to his best start yet and the Raiders are beginning to shoot the ball like they are capable of doing. Tech and A&M both sport 7-4 marks and each team has lost all of its games on the road.

Of Tech's four losses, three of them came by a combined total of seven points. Only Minnesota, of the powerful Big Ten, really dominated the Raiders.

Since winning in hostile surroundings has proved difficult indeed, home games take on gigantic importance for the Raiders. Obviously Saturday's contest will be critical for both teams.

Exactly how critical is hard to say. While Arkansas looked unbeatable against SMU, only a crazy man would try and do any SWC prognosticating now.

Campbell May Sit Out '81

HOUSTON (AP) — Earl Campbell's agent Witt Stewart said Wednesday the three-time National Football League rushing champion is seeking a $1 million per year contract with the Houston Oilers and will sit out next season if the Oilers refuse to renegotiate his contract.

Stewart said he and Campbell had decided during the past season they would return to the Oilers, who renegotiated the former Heisman Trophy winner's contract last February, and seek another contract.

Stewart said he didn't want to discuss details of his contract proposal but when asked if $1 million per year for six years was close he replied "That's pretty close."

There is nothing complicated about what happens next, Stewart said.

"There are no loopholes," Stewart said. "The Oilers can renegotiate Earl's contract, trade him or Earl Campbell can't play pro football for the next five years."

Oiler general manager Ladd Herzog already has said the Oilers would not, "under any circumstances," renegotiate Campbell's contract.

Campbell, who has five years remaining on the contract that pays him an estimated $500,000 annually, did not attend a news conference called by Stewart and has refused to talk about his contract problems.

"It's not really a matter of money," Stewart said. "It gets down to what is fair to one man. Earl came out of college and someone negotiated what they thought was a good contract. But it was a bad deal and the Oilers have tried to hang that over Earl's head."

The Oilers are within their rights to demand Campbell live up to the contract he signed, Stewart said.

"But we're asking them to put aside legalities and rules and look at this unique situation," he said.

Stewart said he and Campbell agreed to sign a $3 million, six-year deal last year "because that was the best we could get at the time and we didn't want to start any negative publicity. We decided if things went well for Earl this year we'd go back."

Campbell does not want to be traded or sit out next season, Stewart said, and hopes Oiler fans will understand why he is seeking more money.

"I can't think of anything positive about Earl sitting out the season," Stewart said. See CAMPBELL Page 2

Moore Brings In Six Assistants

By NORVAL POLLARD
Executive Sports Editor

Less than three days after being named Texas Tech's head football coach, Jerry Moore has assembled a staff and sent his assistant coaches on the recruiting trail.

Moore, the former North Texas State grid boss named to replace Rex Dockery as coach of the Red Raiders Sunday, made a quick trip to Denton Monday afternoon to consult his assistants. He returned Wednesday morning with six members of his old Mean Green coaching staff.

Moore also announced Wednesday that Jim Bates, Tech's defensive coordinator and secondary coach in 1980 under Dockery and one of six finalists interviewed by school officials to replace Dockery, will remain with the Raiders in the same capacity.

The defensive coaches are: Bates, defensive coordinator and secondary coach; Dean Slayton, line coach; and Clarence James, defensive end coach.

One defensive staff opening was not filled Wednesday. Moore is expected to name his final assistant coach before the end of the week.

Also joining Moore's staff are recruiting coordinator Taylor McNeel and trainer Ken Murray. McNeel and Murray held similar positions on Dockery's staff.

Tech's new staff held its first meeting Wednesday afternoon to discuss recruiting and assign areas of recruiting responsibility. Moore met with his assistant coaches again Wednesday night before many of them hit the road to try to catch the Raiders up on recruiting. Tech's 1981 recruiting effort has been at a relative standstill since Dockery's resignation Dec. 16.

Even before Wednesday's first staff meeting, Bates, Slayton and James made a visit to Estacado High School to call on a trio of athletes Tech is very high on: Kelvin White, Jerry Gray and Kenneth Cade. Moore has made it clear that Tech will concentrate on recruiting West Texas prospects.

Dockery waited three weeks for Bates to make a decision on whether to stay at Tech or go with him to Memphis State as defensive coordinator. Bates said Wednesday it was a difficult decision, but he went with his heart.

"My first love right now is Texas Tech," declared Bates. "I've recruited a lot of players on this team, and they haven't picked the fruit yet, so to speak. I want to be with them when they pick that fruit."

"I'm elated to be staying at Tech, but I also felt bad for Rex because he waited," Bates added. "We're very close friends, he showed great patience and he made me a tremendous offer, but my decision was from the heart."

Bates, generally regarded as the most successful recruiter on Dockery's staff, will continue to recruit the Dallas-Fort Worth area and Oklahoma City.

James will be recruiting the Houston area. West and Ritchie are expected to handle the West Texas recruiting duties. The other recruiting areas were still being discussed Wednesday night.

Ritchie, 25, quarterbacked Texas A&I to three consecutive NAIA Division I national championships in 1974, '75 and '76. He is a graduate of Mineral Wells High School. He was assistant backfield coach at Texas from 1977 through 1979.

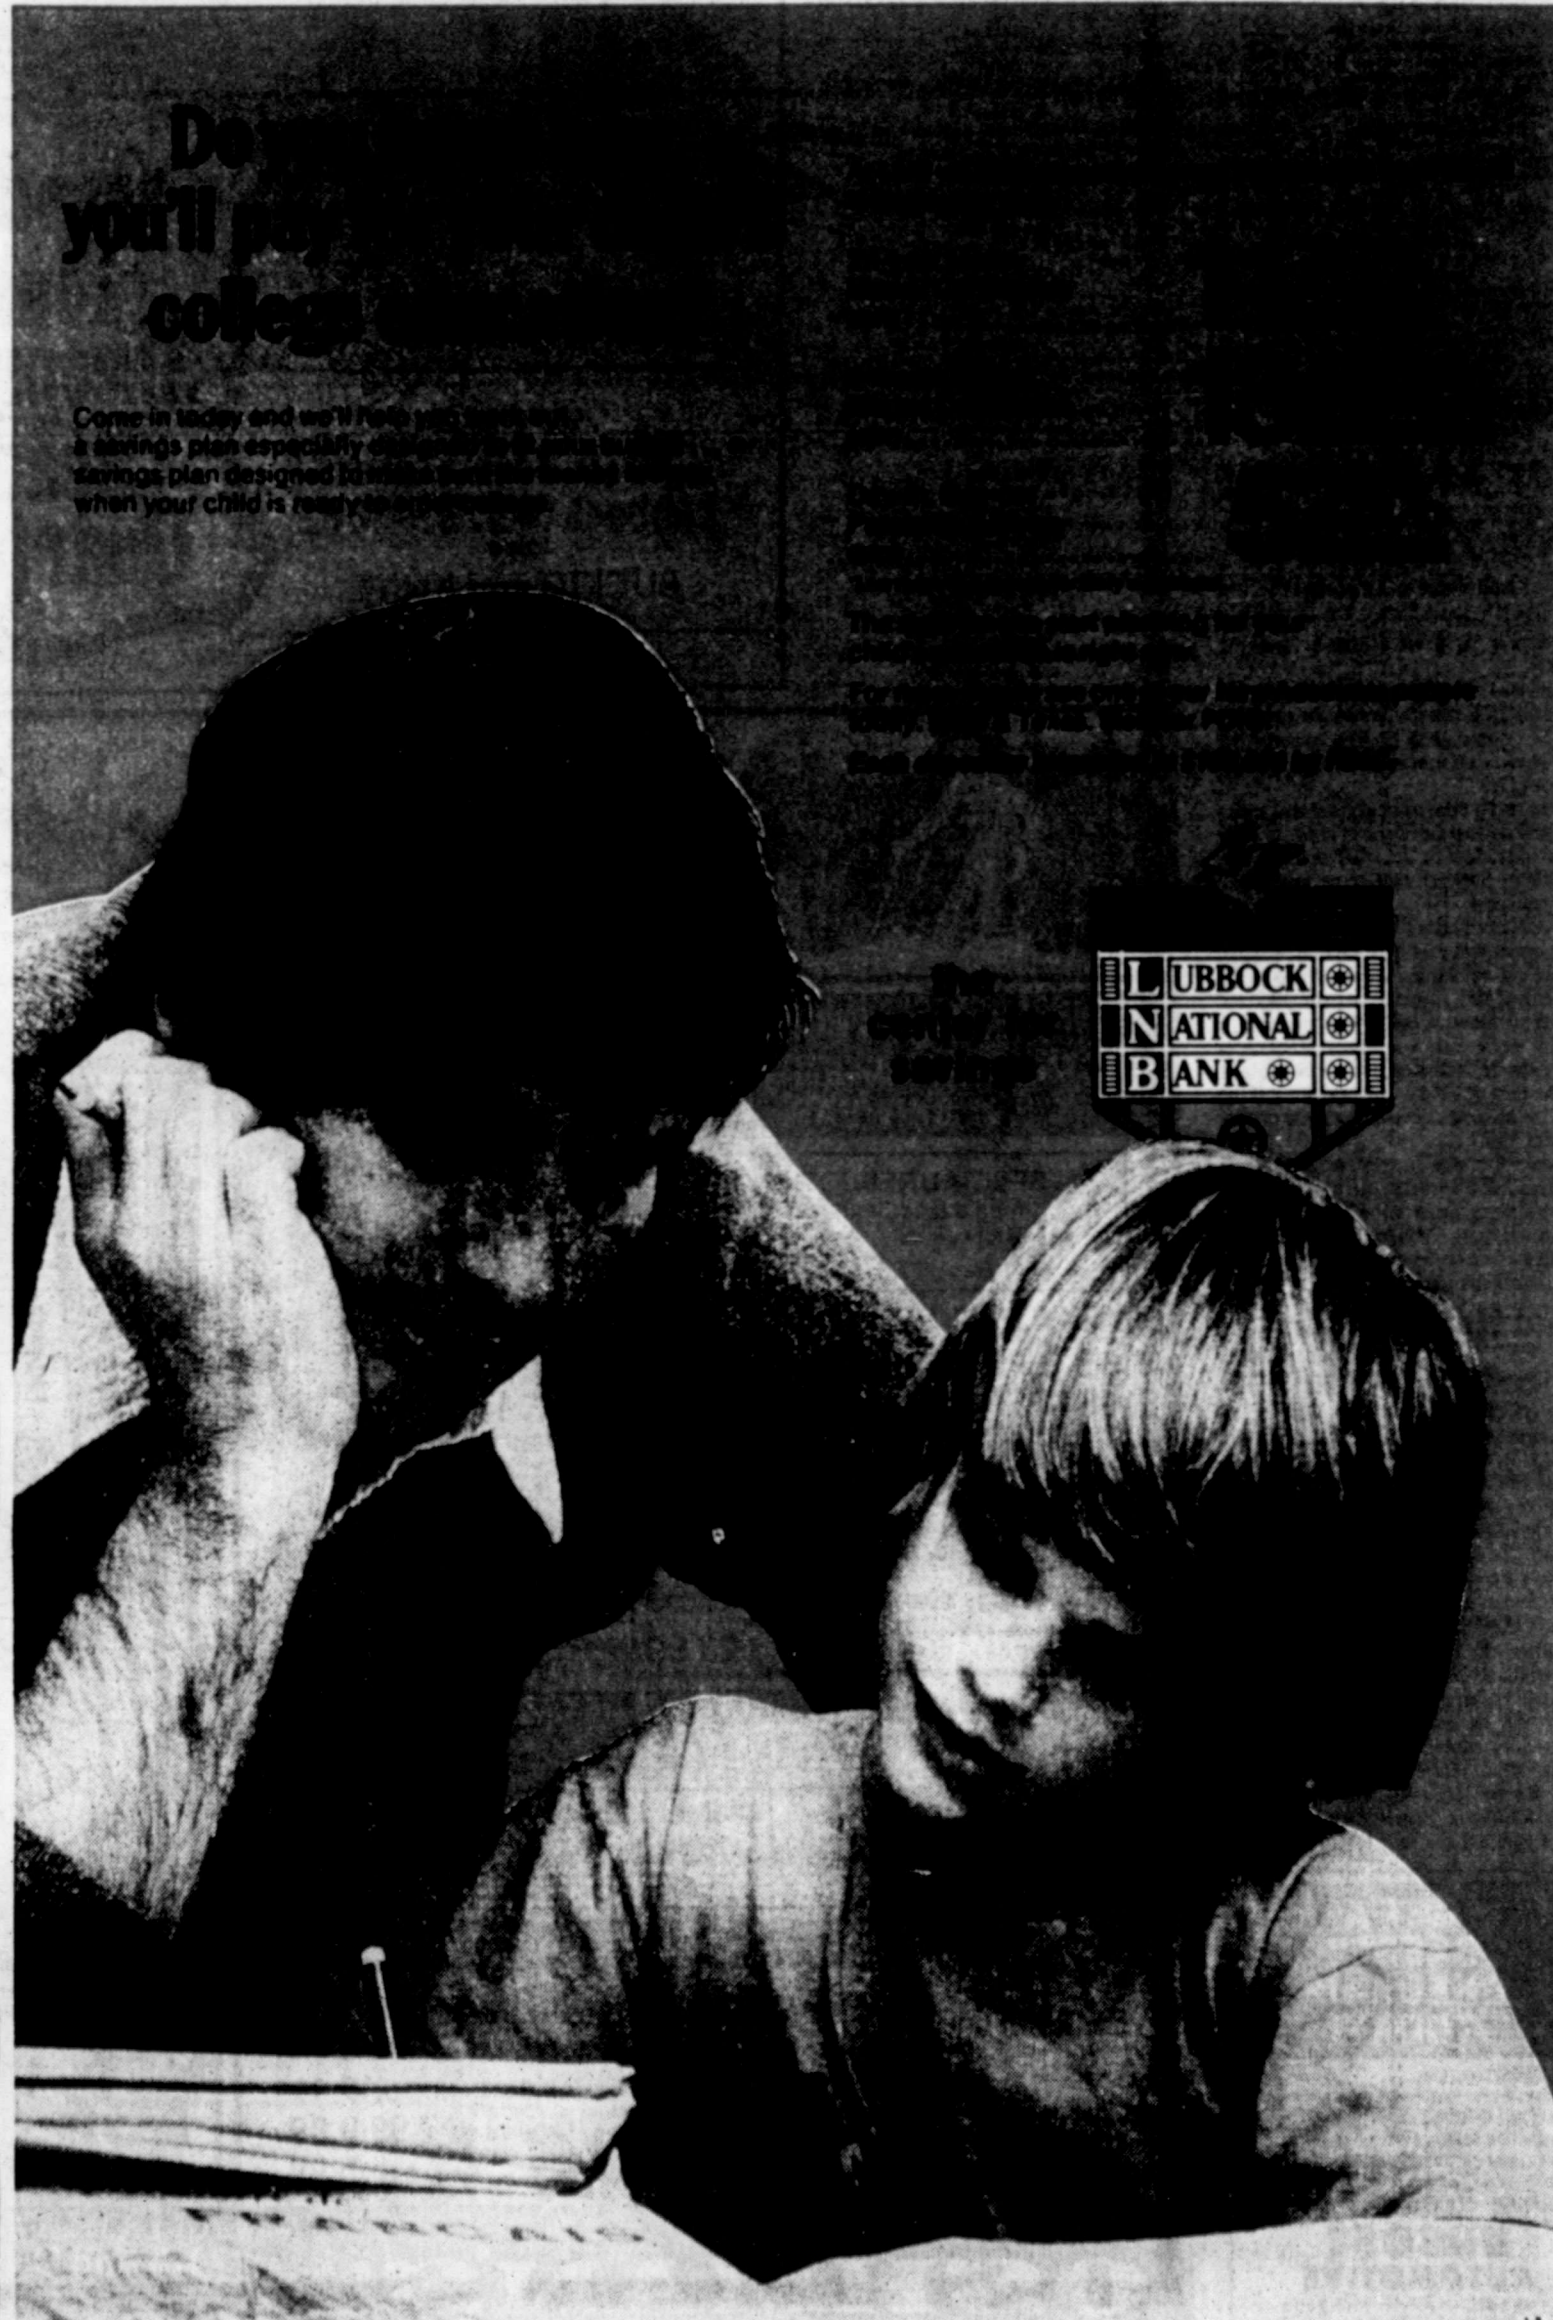

Krischke, 28, was an all-state performer in track and football at Houston's

St. Thomas High. He played three seasons at SMU as a wide receiver. Krischke was named SMU's recruiting coordinator in 1975. He was an assistant and recruiting coordinator for one season (1976) at Michigan State, and held the same positions at Oklahoma State during the 1977-78 seasons before joining Moore at NTSU.

Best, 31, earned three letters (1969-71) during his Red Raider playing days. The Dallas Jefferson grad began his coaching career in 1973 as an assistant at Dallas Adamson. In 1976, Best went to NTSU where he coached defensive backs as a graduate assistant. He coached the Mean Green tight ends in 1977.

West, 23, joined Moore's staff in March, 1980. He played junior college football at Marion Military Institute before transferring to Clemson, where he played tackle and guard. West was an assistant defensive line coach at Livingston (Ala.) University in 1979.

Slayton, 44, was born in Arp and graduated from Carlisle High in Price. He played two years at Tyler Junior College before going on to earn all-Missouri Val- See RED RAIDERS Page 2

AP Votes Campbell NFL Offensive Player Of Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Earl Campbell of the Houston Oilers, whose near-record 1,934 yards brought him his third National Football League rushing title in his three pro seasons, was named Wednesday as The Associated Press Offensive Player of the Year.

Just as he ran away from the rest of the league — he wound up 474 yards ahead of the 1,460 posted by Chicago's Walter Payton — Campbell also ran away from the competition in the balloting by a nationwide panel of sportswriters and sports broadcasters, three from each NFL city.

Campbell received 43 of the 84 votes cast. Quarterback Brian Sipe of the Cleveland Browns received 26 votes. The only other players to receive more than two were a pair of San Diego Chargers — quarterback Dan Fouts with seven and wide receiver John Jefferson with six.

Now, following his outstanding season, Campbell has threatened to sit out the 1981 campaign unless the Oilers renegotiate his contract.

"Earl may not be in a class by himself," former Houston coach Bum Phillips was fond of saying, "but it doesn't take long to call the roll."

Phillips was so enamored of Campbell, in fact, that it may have contributed to his downfall. The coach was accused of having an unimaginative offense, but he countered: "When you've got a runner like Earl, you use him — period."

And use him he did. Campbell carried the ball 373 times, an NFL record surpassing Payton's 369 of last season. He scored 13 times, rushing and receiving, tying Jefferson and Baltimore's Curtis Dickey for the most touchdowns in the American Football Conference.

And in the 16-game season, Campbell gained more than 100 yards 10 times and exceeded 200 yards four times, the latter another league record, breaking the mark set by O.J. Simpson in 1973.

Campbell also came within 70 yards of breaking Simpson's single-season rushing record of 2,003, also set in '73. Had he been healthy the entire season, Campbell might have broken the record. But he missed one complete game and parts of three others with a groin injury.

He started slowly, gaining only 57 yards and scoring a TD against Pittsburgh. In that game, he also threw a 57-yard touchdown pass.

He got 106 yards against Cleveland before the injury limited him to 11 yards against Baltimore, kept him out of the Oilers' first game against Cincinnati and limited him to 50 yards against Seattle.

The next week he began tearing up the league. A 178-yard game against Kansas City was followed by a 203-yarder against Tampa Bay, 202 against Cincinnati, 157 against Denver, 130 against New England and 206 against Chicago before he aggravated the groin pull and was held to 60 yards by the New York Jets.

After 109 yards against Cleveland, 81 against Pittsburgh and 181 against Green Bay, Campbell finished the season with a flourish, 203 yards against Minnesota. He also had 91 yards and a TD in the Oilers' playoff loss to Oakland, the game which cost Phillips his job.

"Tackling Earl is like tackling a runaway train," free safety Bill Simpson of Buffalo said.

"All you can do is close your eyes and hope he doesn't break your helmet," former Dallas safety Cliff Harris said.

But linebacker Tom Jackson of Denver was most succinct. "He's unreal," he said. "This guy may be the best ever."

San Diego Heads All-Pro Team

NEW YORK (AP) — Explosiveness is the word to describe the San Diego Chargers — and they burst onto The Associated Press All-Pro team in 1980 with eight players, five of them as starters.

Defensive end Fred Dean, defensive tackle Gary "Big Hands" Johnson, tight end Kellen Winslow and wide receivers John Jefferson and Charlie Joiner are the first-team Chargers named Wednesday to The AP's team of National Football League all-stars. Quarterback Dan Fouts, place-kicker Rolf Benirschke and defensive tackle Louie Kelcher are San Diego's second-team representatives.

Of the 50 first- and second-team players picked by a nationwide panel of 84 sports writers and sports broadcasters, three from each NFL city, 27 players came from the American Conference and 23 from the National Conference. But on the first team, the AFC is far more dominant with 16 players to 9 from the NFC. It reflects the AFC's domination during the season, when it won 33 of 54 games from the NFC.

Fouts, who passed for an NFL-record 4,715 yards this year and made the Chargers the first team in NFL history to have three 1,000-yard receivers in a season, finished second in the All-Pro balloting to Cleveland's Brian Sipe, the top-rated passer according to the league's formula. Winslow caught a league-high 89 passes for 1,290 yards. Jefferson had an NFL-high 1,340 yards on 82 receptions and Joiner added 1,132 yards on 71 catches.

In the first-team backfield are Houston's Earl Campbell, who gained 1,934 yards in 1980 to lock up his third rushing title in three pro seasons, and Chicago's Walter Payton, who earned his fifth consecutive NFC rushing crown.

The Pittsburgh Steelers put three players on the All-Pro team, all of them starters — middle linebacker Jack Lambert, center Mike Webster and strong safety Donnie Shell.

Cleveland, Houston, Oakland and Los Angeles have two first-team players apiece — Sipe and defensive end Lyle Alzado of the Browns, Campbell and tackle Leon Gray of the Oilers, outside linebacker Ted Hendricks and cornerback Lester Hayes of the Raiders, and cornerback Pat Thomas and free safety Nolan Cromwell of the Rams.

Guards John Hannah of New England and Herbert Scott of Dallas, tackle Mike Kenn of Atlanta, defensive tackle Charlie Johnson of Philadelphia, outside linebacker Matt Blair of Minnesota, punter Dave Jennings of the New York Giants, place-kicker Ed Murray of Detroit and kick-returner J.T. Smith of Kansas City round out the first team.

Campbell Asks For $1 Million Per Year Deal

art said. "Earl feels he has to make a stand now to protect himself and his family."

Stewart said Campbell had been impressed by former heavyweight champion Joe Louis, who advised him not to throw away his money and to get it while he could.

Stewart said Campbell was also making his contract demands in order to help other members of the Oiler team, many of whom Stewart said were underpaid and unhappy.

"A lot of players went to Earl during the season and told him the only way he would get anything done was to go in on Thursday and threaten not to play on Sunday," Stewart said. "Earl wouldn't do it then."

"Now he feels kind of like the captain of the ship and if he can help himself he will be helping some of the rest of the players, too."

After Campbell's contract was renegotiated last February, there were grumblings among other Oiler players. Linebacker Robert Brazile walked out of training camp when the Oilers refused to renegotiate his contract.

vey Conference honors at Tulsa in 1956 and '57.

Slayton was head coach at Howard Payne for seven years (1972-78) before he became a member of Moore's North Texas staff. He also served as an assistant at Howard Payne (1969-71), Texas-El Paso (1963) and at various high schools in Texas and Oklahoma.

James, 30, played as a running back and wide receiver at Langston (Okla.) University. He signed a free agent contract with the Packers before beginning his coaching career in 1973 as an assistant at his alma mater, Okmulgee (Okla.) High. He was an assistant for four seasons (1975-78) at Lamar High in Rosenberg. He joined Moore's staff in 1979.

Training Camp Cut Plays Major Role For Eagles

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Rodney Parker, a training camp cut, has assumed a big role in Sunday's National Football Conference championship game between the Philadelphia Eagles and Dallas Cowboys.

That leaves the Eagles with only one of their top wide receivers, Harold Carmichael, available for the game that means a spot in Super Bowl XV at New Orleans Jan. 25.

Some effort is being made to provide Smith with a special protective device. But even if this is done, his effectiveness will be questionable.

Enter Parker, a 23-year-old wide-out, who was a sixth-round draft choice of the Atlanta Falcons in 1978, after having played at Tennessee State.

Parker didn't make it with the Falcons, after suffering a knee injury in training camp. He then played one season in the Canadian Football League.

The Eagles signed him as a free agent and took him to camp last summer. The Eagles liked him as a wide receiver, but let him go in favor of a player who could play on special teams as well as a regular position.

When Parker was cut, coach Dick Vermeil told him, "Keep your head up. You never know what may happen. You may be back."

Something did happen. Fitzkee broke his foot for the first time in the fourth game of the season and Parker was resigned.

He made some key catches, including a touchdown reception against Dallas that helped clinch the NFC East Division title.

Vermeil claims to have great confidence in Parker. "Every time I put him in there he has done a good job," Vermeil said.

Parker, who worked as a deputy sheriff in between National Football League tryouts, realizes his important role Sunday.

"I feel pressure ... but I believe that I can take on anything right now," he said after a practice at the Tampa Bay Buccaneers' complex where the Eagles came to escape the north's cold and snow.

Parker, who caught nine passes for 148 yards during the regular season, is aware that the Dallas defense presents problems for a young, inexperienced receiver. But he refuses to let it bother him.

"I'm prepared to play a big game," Parker said. "I'm getting physically and mentally prepared. I'm building intensity, and I'll give it my best."

Spoken like a true sheriff — right from the hip.

Cowboys Confident Behind Danny White

DALLAS (AP) — Danny White looked at the next-door locker Wednesday and shook his head.

"Ironic isn't it?" said the quarterback of the Dallas Cowboys. "That's where all of you guys (the media) were standing last year."

Then he laughed. "Where were you when I needed you?"

No longer does No. 12, Roger Staubach, hang his clothes next to White's. Now it's rookie Gary Hogeboom on one side and veteran Glenn Carano on the other.

"I'm getting tired of all this," said Carano in mock anger.

"You never know," White replied. "They might be standing in front of your locker next year."

White has been more than a surprise as the retired Staubach's replacement. He has been sensational.

"There aren't enough words in Webster's (dictionary) to describe what Danny has meant to us this season," said center John Fitzgerald. "The only thing he hadn't done this year was produce a miracle and now he's done that."

White brought Dallas from a 24-10 deficit to beat Atlanta 30-27 in the divisional playoffs and the Cowboys' hopes in Sunday National Conference title game in Philadelphia rides on the nerve and nerve of their new leader, who replaced the retired Staubach.

"We knew he was talented but this season makes you wonder just how really good he can be with good health and some more experience," said Fitzgerald.

White handled the praise of his performance with balance.

"The quarterback is naturally the one to get all the praise and all the blame," said White.

Vermiel Says Jerseys To Make No Difference

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Dick Vermeil was amused when he heard Wednesday about Dallas coach Tom Landry's reaction to the Eagles' forcing the Cowboys to wear blue jerseys in their National Conference championship game in Philadelphia Sunday.

It is customary in National Football League games for the home team to wear dark jerseys and the visitors white. But the Eagles were aware that Dallas' record when wearing blue was 10-10.

Since the home team has the right to select the uniform color, the Eagles felt it might be a psychological edge to make Dallas wear their blues.

"First off, I really don't believe in what I did," said Vermeil before a practice session at the Tampa Bay Buccaneers training site here where he has brought his team to get away from the cold, snow-plagued North.

"All I know is that the Eagles' organization knows Dallas doesn't like to wear blue," Vermeil said. "I did it on what most of our people thought would give us an edge. It has become more controversial than I ever intended."

Landry, when asked Tuesday about the Eagles' uniform caper, observed that Vermeil had worked for former NFL coach George Allen, who was recognized for psychological ploys, and that it must have rubbed off on the Philadelphia coach.

While Landry maintained that psychological warfare won't work against the Cowboys and that "the best team Sunday will walk off the field a winner," Dallas special assistant Eral Allen pointed out later Tuesday. "The Eagles are 1-13 in white shirts the last eight years."

Pro Golfers Begin 1981 Tour In Tucson Event

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — The 43-event PGA Tour begins its 10-month schedule for 1981 this week with the $300,000 Joe Garagiola-Tucson Open Golf Tournament.

Although it is at the start of the season that television audiences often are at their largest, the kickoff event is not scheduled for national TV coverage by any of the three major networks.

It is one of two events — the Byron Nelson Classic in Dallas is the other — that has disappeared from the NBC schedule for the year. That slight reduction in the TV schedule, a slight increase in total prize money, the move of one tournament from the West Coast to the East and the elimination of one event constitute the more important changes on the Tour.

The prize money has increased from about $13.3 million to about $14 million.

The Anheuser-Busch Classic moves from Napa, Calif. to Williamsburg, Va., and the IVB-Philadelphia Classic drops off the schedule — at least for one season — to make way for the U.S. Open at Merion in suburban Philadelphia.

Most of the rest of Tour stops appear to be solid, with financially secure sponsors. An indication of the overall stability of the Tour is provided by the fact that, despite the worst weather in a decade, the various tournament sponsors provided more than $5 million, a record, to local charities last season.

The lack of controversy and the apparent stability of the Tour tends to focus attention more closely on competition than on the off-the-field, front-office, legal-financial maneuvers that often claim the spotlight in other major sports.

That competition begins today with the first round of the 72-hole Tucson event on the par-70, 6,762-yard Randolph Park Municipal course.

Lee Trevino, one of the game's top three performers, tops the 144-man field. Trevino, who often skips the opening, western portion of the Tour for the warm-weather stops, has made some changes in his schedule for this year.

"I'm adding some, dropping some," said the 41-year-old Trevino, who last year won three American titles, two foreign events, a career-high $385,000 and compiled the lowest stroke average of any player in 30 years.

"I always think — or hope — my game is competitive," Trevino said, "but to tell you the truth, I hadn't played for 20 days coming in here and I really don't know what's going to come out of the bag."

Tom Watson and Jack Nicklaus, the other two dominant figures in the game last year, will make later starts. Nicklaus, who capped one of the great comebacks in sports history last season with record-setting triumphs in the U.S. Open and PGA, will play next week in the Bob Hope Desert Classic, an unusually early start for the man who ranks as the most proficient performer in the game's history.

Swannegan Keeps Raiders On Board

By CHUCK McDONALD
Assistant Sports Editor

For awhile there last spring, it appeared that Texas Tech's 1980 basketball recruiting haul hadn't been much to get excited about.

After all, the Raiders signed only one incoming freshman — 5-10 guard Bubba Jennings — and only two big men in junior college transfers Ricky Guy and Clarence Swannegan.

But now, 11 games into the season, coach Gerald Myers' recruiting class of 1980 keeps looking better and better. Everybody knows about Jennings, Tech's long-range bomber who has steadily improved his per game average to its current 11.4 figure.

As for the 6-6 Swannegan, well, his rather imposing 225-pound figure has given the Raiders a new-found dominance underneath the boards.

In Tech's first two Southwest Conference contests, "Daddy Swann," has been a wrecking crew. In the Raiders' 89-79 win over Texas Saturday he dropped in 18 points and hauled down nine rebounds while aiding a Tech defense that just about nullified 6-10 LaSalle Thompson.

And Tuesday night, in a tough 73-70 loss to the Houston Cougars, Swannegan did everything humanly possible to keep the Raiders close. He scored 20 points — his best in a Tech uniform — and completely dominated the backboards, again pulling down nine.

No one else on either team had more than five boards to his credit.

For his play, Swannegan is The Avalanche Journal Player of the Week.

After two league games, Swannegan leads the club in SWC scoring with an 18.5 average and is hitting 53.6 of his shots from the field.

"Clarence played well in the last two games," said Myers. "He did a good job against Houston but I think he's had some other games this year where he did just as well for us."

Throughout the season, Swannegan has been a steady force for the Raiders who occasionally looked lost on the court. For the season he's averaging 12.9 a game and pulling in 8.3 rebounds — best on the team.

Often overlooked Steve Smith leads the team in assists with 50 while Jennings has 32. Junior Jeff Taylor continues to lead the team in scoring as he has done most of the season with a 15.7 average.

Senior Ben Hill is the fourth Tech starter who's putting in over 10 points a game.

Girls' Squads Play Tonight

All three city Class 5A girls' basketball teams will be in action tonight, but only one of them will be playing in Lubbock.

Monterey, currently ranked No. 2 in the state with a 17-1 record, hosts Amarillo, now 12-5 and ranked 15th according to MHS coach Tim Tasker. That contest will start at 8 p.m.

Coronado, coming off a Tuesday night win, will face Palo Duro in Amarillo. The Mustangs now stand 10-7 while the Dons, who beat Lubbock High Tuesday, are 5-12.

Finally, Lubbock High will take on Tascosa, the team which handed Monterey its only loss of the season. The West-erners are 4-12 while the giant-killing Tascosa bunch stand 6-9.

MOB Registration Continues Today

Two more dates remain for registration for the Monterey Optimist Basketball (MOB) season this week.

Boys in grades three through eight may sign up today at Wilson Junior High from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. or Saturday at South Plains Mall from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Plans to include ninth graders in the program were temporarily suspended by the MOB board of directors because of present University Interscholastic League regulations. Under UIL rules, a ninth grader who participates in such a program is ineligible for varsity competition as a sophomore. That UIL rule is now in litigation.

More than 800 boys are expected to sign up for the MOB basketball season, which begins play at the end of the junior high season.

Eight Tournaments Begin In Area

The final state of area basketball tournaments begins today, with eight events on tap.

The Eagle Classic is slated in Roosevelt, while Canadian, Abertamy, Colorado City, Phillips, Reagan County, Claude and Ropes will all be hosting cage tournaments.

Most area schools begin district play either Friday or next week, culminating in March with district tournaments and playoffs.

Razorbacks Blast Alaska-Anchorage

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP) — Darrell Walker and U.S. Reed combined for 44 points to lead the University of Arkansas to a 92-58 nonconference basketball victory over Alaska-Anchorage on Wednesday night.

Walker scored 23 points and Reed added 21 as the Razorbacks collected their 10th victory in 13 games. Alaska-Anchorage fell to 6-7.

Arkansas led 45-31 at halftime and expanded that to a 60-40 lead during a five-minute span early in the second half.

Orange Bowl Helps NBC Slip Out Of Nielsen Ratings Cellar

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC emerged from the ratings cellar for the first time since late October, jumping over ABC into second place with plenty of help from the Orange Bowl football game and a movie, "Harper Valley PTA," figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. showed.

It was NBC's best showing in the prime-time sweepstakes since the week ending Oct. 26, when the network beat both CBS and ABC with a big boost from baseball's World Series.

CBS, meantime, won the three-way race for the week ending Jan. 4, with six of the 10 most-watched programs. CBS' "Dallas" and the post-game program for the National Football League playoff match between Dallas and Atlanta, also on CBS, tied for the No. 1 position in the week.

Both programs registered ratings of 36.1. Nielsen says that means of all the nation's homes with television, 36.1 percent saw at least part of each show.

"Dallas" has finished first or tied for first eight of the last nine weeks.

CBS' rating for the week was 19.7 to 18.7 for NBC and 16.4 for ABC. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 19.7 percent of the country's TV-equipped homes were tuned to CBS.

CBS now has won the networks' competition, or tied for first place, four weeks running.

CBS leads for the season that began Oct. 27 with an average rating of 19.9 to 18.3 for ABC and 16.4 for NBC. NBC maintains the season started Sept. 15, and by that measure, it's CBS 18.5, NBC 18, ABC 17.8.

New series did not fare particularly well in the most recent survey. "Barbara Mandrell and the Mandrell Sisters" on NBC was No. 31, with ABC's "Bosom Buddies" 33rd and "It's a Living" and "Too Close for Comfort" both from ABC, 37th and 38th.

ABC's "I'm a Big Girl Now" was 42nd, with "Freebie and the Bean" from CBS 48th.

Two new series — one of them already canceled — were among the week's five lowest-rated programs. CBS' "Secrets of Midland Heights" was No. 61, with "Number 96," which has been dropped by NBC, 62nd. An "ABC News Closeup," "Survival," was 63rd, followed by "CBS Reports: Embassy" and "Run America" on NBC.

Here are the week's 10 highest-rated programs:

National Football Conference playoff, Dallas vs. Atlanta, post-game show, and "Dallas," with ratings of 36.1 representing 28.1 million homes, both CBS; "60 Minutes," 33.7 or 26.2 million, and "Dukes of Hazzard," 29 or 25.6 million, both CBS; "Love Boat," 26.5 or 20.6 million, ABC; "M*A*S*H," 24.8 or 19.3 million, and "Archie Bunker's Place," 24.7 or 19.2 million, both CBS; Orange Bowl football game, 24.1 or 18.7 million, NBC; "Fantasy Island," 23.5 or 18.3 million, ABC, and Movie—"Harper Valley PTA," 23.3 or 18.1 million, NBC.

The next 10 shows:

"Alice" and "One Day at a Time," both CBS, tie; Movie—"Flamingo Road," NBC; "WKRP in Cincinnati" and "House Calls," both CBS; Movie—"The Boys in Company C," NBC; "The Jeffersons," CBS; "CHiPs," NBC, and "Knots Landing" and Movie—"The Mating Season," both CBS.

Battle Rages Over Broadcast

HOUSTON (AP) — The state of Texas has asked a federal judge to stay her order demanding the University of Houston public education television station air the controversial film, "Death of a Princess."

The notice of appeal, filed Tuesday by the Texas attorney general's office, urged U.S. District Judge Gabrielle McDonald to stay her Dec. 18 ruling that orders KUHT-TV, Channel 8, to televise the program.

The station cancelled the program, depicting the 1977 execution of a Saudi Arabian princess and her lover for adultery, shortly before it was to be aired last May.

If the judge fails to comply with the state's wishes, the UH Board of Regents said, the appeal will be carried to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

"The board cannot passively allow this unprecedented intrusion into the editorial discretion of public television broadcasters to go unchallenged," said Leonard Rauch, chairman of UH regents.

"Programming decisions are the right and responsibility of the television and radio license holders, not the federal judiciary," Rauch said.

The decision to cancel the film was made by Patrick J. Nicholson, then a university vice president.

Parents Steamed Over Demise Of TV Program

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — About 20 parents and children trooped through the snow outside Evansville's ABC television affiliate for the second straight day Wednesday, protesting the demise of a local version of the show "Romper Room."

"Miss Annette" Shanks, hostess of the now-defunct show, packed up her toys and went home Tuesday after being fired by WTVW's new owner, Charles Woods.

Woods, who assumed ownership of the television station a week ago, has since fired six people, including Mrs. Shanks.

The show ended Tuesday. On Monday, Mrs. Shanks made an on-the-air appeal to parents, asking them to contact the station owner to express their support for the show.

A San Diego businessman who also owns a TV station in Alabama, Woods decided last week to replace "Romper Room" with reruns of "The Love Boat," a comedy, and "Family Feud," a game show.

"There are many factors involved in programming," Woods said. "Ratings is just one of them."

Program director Jim Abbott said the protests were unprecedented at WTVW.

"There's a stack of letters five inches high," he said.

But Abbott said he didn't yet know how many dealt with the demise of "Romper Room" and how many focused on the decision to cancel Merv Griffin, effective Monday, in favor of "Gilligan's Island" and "Andy Griffith," which he described as "children appeal" programs.

Abbott said he could not say one way or the other whether the protests would result in the resurrection of "Romper Room."
