

IRS Ruling Threatens Bond Plan

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
 Avalanche-Journal Staff

AN INTERNAL Revenue Service ruling which goes into effect Saturday could destroy the market for tax exempt municipal bonds, city Finance Director Robert Massengale told the City Council Thursday.

The council approved a telegram to U.S. Sens. John Tower and Lloyd Bentsen and to U.S. Reps. Jim Wright of Fort Worth and Kent Hance of Lubbock protesting the IRS ruling and asking for help in having the ruling withdrawn.

Massengale said the IRS ruling, its potential effect still being debated, declares the interest earning from state government certificates of deposit not deductible by banks if the CDs are secured by pledges of municipal tax exempt bonds.

Significant Effect Seen

"Banks are the major market for municipal bonds," Massengale said. "If the IRS allows the ruling to stand, it will have a significant effect on the municipal bond markets and impair our ability to raise funds for capital projects."

Massengale said it will increase interest which must be paid by cities on municipal bonds. With a 10 percent ceiling in Texas on interest which can be paid on municipal bonds, Massengale said the problem is particularly worrisome.

In the telegram to the Congressmen, Massengale said "hopefully they can express our concern to the Secretary of Treasury and help him realize the significance of his ruling."

Massengale said he thinks the ruling is a product of the increasing number of sales of tax exempt bonds for low-interest mortgage loans and for industrial development, which he said is "robbing the U.S. Treasury" of taxes.

"I think they figured they'd fight this from the back door," he said.

Built-In Market

Massengale said Texas has a "built-in market for our bonds" because state law requires bonds issued in Texas to be pledged against state deposits. He said the ruling, in addition to dramatically increasing the taxes banks (and possibly savings and loans) must pay, could make it more difficult to find a depository for

Advisory Group Blasts Council

THE CITY Council was blasted Thursday by members of the Community Development Advisory Committee for ignoring that committee's recommendations on how $3.48 million in federal funds should be spent.

But the council only slightly altered its tentative decision of two weeks ago following the discussion.

The council primarily was criticized for ignoring the CDAC recommendation that no funds be included for an overpass at East 34th Street and Quirt Avenue and the widening of East 19th Street between Quirt Avenue and Loop 289.

CDAC chairman Shelton Berry said the committee felt Community Development funds should not be used for preliminary planning for the two street projects when there is no assured source of funding to complete the projects.

Time Claimed Wasted
 Berry said the council had "completely disregarded the long work and hard study the committee put into it (the recommendation). There was a lot of time put in which was of frankly no use. I hate going to meetings of no purpose."

CDAC member George Nelson, who also is chairman of the Urban Renewal Board of Directors, echoed Berry's thoughts, adding the street projects would be better included in a bond issue voted on by the electorate.

He said committee members do not oppose the two east Lubbock projects, but opposed tying up $530,000 for projects which are so uncertain. By pulling CD money away from other projects, Nelson said the council's decision would "directly and adversely affect the health and welfare of low and moderate income citizens who would benefit from the other projects."

Nelson added that many of the other CD-funded projects have no other funding source, while bond funds could be used for the street projects. And he criticized the council for dropping funding recommended by the CDAC for Neighborhood House, for security at Hub Homes and Green Fair Manor and reducing recommended funding for urban renewal activities.

'Granville Massacre' Drops Stocks Again

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market suffered widespread losses for the second straight session Thursday as the "Joe Granville massacre" continued.

Trading was heavy by usual standards, but well off Wednesday's record pace. Volume on the New York Stock Exchange totaled 55.35 million shares, against the record 92.89 million in the previous session.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 15.19 to 965.70 on top of Wednesday's 23.80 drop.

The average, which had risen more than 40 points in the year's first three sessions, thus settled back to within 2 points of its close on New Year's eve.

The decline began Wednesday after a well-known investment advisor, Joseph Granville of Holly Hill, Fla., recommended that his clients sell all their stocks.

"CDAC members feel like pawns performing a useless act made necessary by the rules of HUD (U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development)," he said. "Our advice is unwanted and rather consistently ignored."

Nelson urged the council to call a bond election on the street projects "and leave the CD funds for people-oriented projects where they belong."

However, T.J. Patterson encouraged the council to include funds for engineering work on the 34th and Quirt overpass, expected to cost about $9 million to construct.

Patterson said the project has been on the back burner since 1970. "We must start somewhere," he said, adding that the overpass would positively contribute to the economic redevelopment of East Lubbock.

The council split 3-2 in favor of including funds for the street projects.

Diversion Of Funds Urged
 Councilwoman Joan Baker suggested deleting the street projects from CD funding and using the funds for Neighborhood House, Urban Renewal and rehabilitation of sheltered workshop facilities for Lubbock Mental Health-Mental Retardation Services.

Mrs. Baker said she does not oppose the street projects, but agrees with CDAC members that they should be included in a bond election. Councilman

P&Z Rejects Game Room After Opposition Voiced

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY
 Avalanche-Journal Staff

AFTER ALMOST two dozen audience members voiced opposition to a zoning change request which would have allowed a game room at the old Broadway Drug building, the Planning and Zoning Commission voted 7-1 Thursday evening to deny the change requested by Aladdin's Castle Inc.

The issue involving the former drugstore captured the most attention during the commission's meeting, during which the panel members also approved a zoning change to allow construction of a multi-story condominium for elderly residents and designated Chatman Hospital as a Historic Landmark.

Supporting Letters Presented
 Harold P. Brown Jr., representing the game room establishment which operates about 250 such entertainment centers across the country, presented the commission with 15 letters from various police departments testifying to the company's reputation as a well-supervised family-oriented establishment.

But Larry Gautreaux, proprietor of La Crepe Suzette restaurant, 2420 Broadway, three doors down from the Broadway Drug building, argued that a game room "will bring a lot of problems" to the area.

"We have a very nice clientele at our

'Serious' Obstacles Seen On Hostages

Algerian Official Advises Patience

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — American envoys here and Algerian diplomats in Tehran worked long hours behind closed doors Thursday searching for solutions to the "serious" obstacles remaining to a U.S.-Iran agreement on the hostage crisis.

U.S. officials said in Washington a key remaining difference involves almost $6 billion in frozen Iranian assets that the Carter administration says it cannot immediately release to Iran once the 52 American hostages are freed.

Nevertheless, one Algerian official in Tehran expressed guarded optimism about prospects for the Americans' release. He advised, "Be patient."

Details Explained

The chief U.S. negotiator in the hostage crisis, Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher, met for almost three hours Thursday with Algerian Foreign Minister Mohamed Benyahia to explain detail of the latest American message to Iran.

Christopher was to meet again today with the Algerians, who have been acting as go-betweens in the negotiations.

On Tuesday, Algerian intermediaries relayed to Washington questions from the Iranians about new U.S. proposals designed to end the stalemate.

The U.S. reply to the questions was drafted under Christopher's direction Tuesday and sent to Algiers for relay to Tehran. But Christopher and senior aides flew here late Wednesday after both the Americans and Algerians realized there was a need to discuss the message face-to-face, U.S. officials said.

'Serious Problems'

Before leaving Washington, Christopher said the United States and Iran were "narrowing somewhat" the distance between them, but it was "still measured in very large numbers" and "serious problems remain."

Neither U.S. nor Algerian officials would make any comment after the discussions here.

In Tehran, a four-man Algerian diplomatic team continued talks with Iranian officials, dividing its day between the Algerian Embassy and the Iranian Prime Ministry.

One of the four, Algerian Ambassador to the United States Rehdia Malek, told a reporter he did not know when the intermediaries might leave for Algiers or Washington. "We are busy working," he said.

Not Returning

An Algerian Foreign Ministry official said the four-man team would not return here to meet Christopher.

An official at the Algerian Embassy in Tehran, not involved directly in the talks, sounded cautiously optimistic when reached by telephone from Lebanon.

Asked whether he believed the hostages might be freed soon, he replied, "We hope so. Be patient."

The Iranians had demanded that the United States put up $24 billion in financial guarantees — $14 billion to ensure that their $8 billion to $14 billion in frozen Iranian assets in the United States are eventually released, and $10 billion to guarantee that U.S. assets of the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi are surrendered to Iran.

The United States has offered to release several billion dollars' worth of Iranian assets when the hostages are freed, but an estimated $5.5 billion or more are tied up in litigation, blocked by U.S. courts that are hearing claims by American firms and individuals against the Iranian government.

U.S. officials in Washington said Thursday the Iranians continue to question why these funds must be held in the United States.

On the Shah's assets, the Carter administration has made clear its position that it cannot legally confiscate Pahlavi property on Iran's behalf.

In Plains, Ga., President Carter said the latest U.S. proposals "are reasonable and a foundation for resolving the differences between us, but I can't predict success."

Earlier, before he left the White House, Carter predicted the U.S. proposal "would be acceptable to the American public as fair and also to the Iranians as fair."

The president noted that "obviously, time is getting close but we will try to do our best," referring to the inauguration of Ronald Reagan on Jan. 20.

Christopher's visit is his third here since the first announcement Nov. 3 that Algeria was willing to play a role in efforts to free the hostages, who on Thurs-

Reagan Feels Free On Hostage Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect Ronald Reagan said Thursday he would feel free to review all hostage negotiations with Iran and possibly take a different stand than the Carter administration if the American captives are not released before he takes office.

He also refused to declare flatly that he would go along with the terms of a hostage agreement completed before he moves into the White House on Jan. 20.

"I'm quite sure that any agreement would be one that, yes, I could carry out," Reagan declared. "On the other hand, I don't think anyone should be asked to sign a blank check, and so I can't give you an unequivocal yes."

"I can tell you I am confident that the president is working toward an agreement that does preserve the honor of our country and is aimed at trying to get those people home which we all hope he'll be successful in doing."

In a statement issued Sept. 13, during the presidential campaign, Reagan said of efforts to free the hostages: "I will not make those negotiations a partisan issue in the campaign. I also pledge that if elected, I will observe the terms of an agreement" reached by the Carter administration.

Reagan spoke with reporters briefly Thursday as he concluded his final pre-inaugural visit to Washington and headed back to California. He will return to the capital on Jan. 14, six days before he is inaugurated as the nation's 40th president.

Standing before a bank of microphones and cameras in the lobby of the State Department, where he held his first business meeting with his designated Cabinet secretaries, Reagan said he and his staff are not receiving day-to-day briefings on negotiations for the hostages' release.

He said they have not sought the information because "I worry about the possibility of anything that could possibly throw a monkey wrench in there or reveal something that shouldn't be revealed."

Asked if he would feel free to review the negotiations and take some different stand if the hostage stalemate remains unresolved when he takes office Jan. 20, Reagan replied, "That's right, yes."

The president-elect said later in the day, while his airplane was being refueled at Tinker Air Force Base in Oklahoma City, that "all of us feel a little more optimistic" about the situation in Iran.

"At last we might be getting someplace," he said, "at least I feel that way."

"There must be something cooking," he said in reference to the sudden departure of Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher for Algiers. But he said he did not have access to the information that prompted the trip and he said, "I really don't know," when asked if the trip was cause for optimism.

The president-elect also clarified that the Defense Department budget would be spared from his efforts to slash federal spending in hopes of balancing the budget.

Earlier, asked what he would do about the $60 billion deficit he is expected to inherit, Reagan said "We're going to start whittling" at it "across the board."

Clouds To Break Today; More Cold Due Tonight

MUCH OF Texas had a gray day Thursday, but the National Weather Service says most of the cloudiness and drizzle should disappear today.

Locally, forecasters say the cloud cover which dropped a trace of moisture on Lubbock Thursday, the city's first precipitation of the new year, should break up somewhat, leaving only partly cloudy skies across the region. No rain is called in today's forecast, which also calls for temperatures this afternoon to be slightly warmer than Thursday's high reading of 52 degrees.

By tonight, however, weather officials say another spell of cool weather is expected to return to the South Plains. Chilly readings in the upper 20s are predicted for tonight, with forecasters calling for Saturday afternoon's high across the region to climb only to near 45.

Early Thursday afternoon, an official 0.2 of an inch of moisture fell in Lubbock. The rainfall, weather officials said, was part of a system of light rain stretching from the northern portion of the South Plains to an area about 100 miles to the south and southeast of the Hub City.

Sudan garnered the most South Plains precipitation Thursday, recording one inch of rain. Springlake reported .50 of an inch. Hale Center registered .32. Earth recorded .25 and .20 of an inch was reported at Muleshoe.

Trace amounts of precipitation also fell at Crosbyton, Levelland, Abernathy, Floydada and Seminole.

The upper level disturbance which produced Thursday's cloudy skies and light rain also touched off showers over much of West Texas, parts of the Panhandle and a portion of Southwestern Oklahoma, weather officials said.

As the system moves across Texas, forecasters say the showers should continue over the eastern half of the state. Late Thursday, light drizzle already was being reported over parts of south Texas and in the lower Rio Grande valley.

The extended forecast for West Texas calls for partly cloudy skies Sunday through Tuesday, with mild days and cold nights. High temperatures across most of West Texas early next week are expected to be in the 50-degree range, with lows mainly in the 30s, except for slightly colder readings in the Panhandle.

The weather service's outlook for the region through Jan. 18 calls for above normal temperatures and no precipitation.

Huge Power Failure Hits Western States

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A power failure struck the entire state of Utah and parts of Idaho, Wyoming and Nevada on Thursday, knocking out electrical service to more than 1 1/2 million people, cutting off radio and television stations and disrupting phone service.

Ski lifts, elevators and traffic signals also lost power during the blackout, which occurred at 11:38 a.m. MST.

Power was restored in isolated areas during the afternoon, but Utah Power & Light Co. spokesman David Mead said some 450,000 UP&L customers remained without power.

By 3 p.m. MST, about 15 percent of the power had been restored in Utah.

One man was injured in Provo when he pried open the door of a stuck elevator and fell four floors, dislocating both knees.

Hospitals quickly switched to standby power. A spokesman for University Medical Center in Salt Lake said an open heart operation continued even as the lights flickered. Further operations scheduled for Thursday were canceled.

Temperatures in the region were cold, with the afternoon reading at Salt Lake City in the 30s. Many people use natural gas for heat, but the electrical failure meant furnace fans were out of service.

The Western Area Power Administration said the blackout was triggered by the failure of a 230,000-volt power line extending from Glen Canyon Dam in southeastern Utah to Sigurd, Utah, but Utah Power spokesman Grant Pendleton later said that couldn't have been the cause.

Pendleton said he didn't know why the line failed, but he said it definitely didn't cause the system-wide outage. After the system is restored, he said, engineers will be able "to go the detective work" necessary to find the cause. That would take a day or more, he said.

Mead said the utility was bringing in power from neighboring utilities in Idaho and Arizona to restart its six coal-powered plants. Automatic safety devices shut down the plants, he said.

Business telephones were put out of service because office building exchanges depend on local power to ring bells. In addition, because of overloads from the number of people trying to place calls, many residential customers had to wait 10 to 15 seconds to get dial tones, said Mountain Bell spokesman Dave Felice in Denver.

Many schools throughout Utah were dismissed, and Salt Lake City police reported several minor traffic accidents at intersections where signals were not working.

Salt Lake City Police Chief Bud Wiloughby said there didn't appear to be any sudden increase in crime, although stores were blacked out, electronic cash registers froze and shoppers were put on the honor system.

Bob Wadman, Utah's deputy commissioner of public safety, said relatively few problems were reported around the state. He said the National Guard was standing by to help supply power generators if they should be needed.

The outage also knocked out power to Utah P&L customers in eastern Nevada and three counties of Wyoming, utility officials said. The utility also serves customers in southern Idaho, but only the town of Preston was reportedly affected.

Parking Ticket Fine Arrives At City Hall With Skunk Scent

SIoux FALLS, S.D. (UPI) — There was something particularly odious about Marvin Fluth's parking ticket.

He sent his fine wrapped in plastic. When it was opened, the distinctive odor of skunk wafted through City Hall.

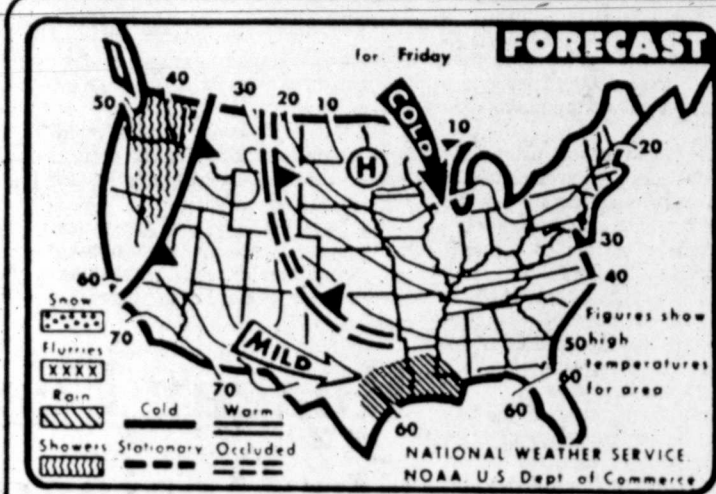

"I never encountered a skunk before but I see what they mean now," said Marilyn Cox, who first opened the envelope.

The city refused to accept the payment and, instead, hauled Fluth into court — for both the parking ticket and the more serious charge of obstructing a public officer — which authorities said is precisely what sending in a skunk-scented ticket amounted to.

Fluth, a furrier, told the court Wednesday he handled skunk scent as part of his business and accidentally spilled some on his clothes. He said the parking ticket was in his pocket at the time and also got a dose of the skunk-scent. He even produced an invoice to prove he purchased the skunk scent.

"If you think that was bad," he said, "you should have smelled my clothes."

But Magistrate Peter Lieberman was not impressed.

Weather Remains Frigid In Northern States

By The Associated Press
Weather remained frigid Thursday from North Dakota all the way to Maine and there was light snow over the northern Plains and around the Great Lakes.

Near-zero temperatures were recorded from eastern North Dakota through the Great Lakes to New England and there were readings from 10 to 20 below zero over much of the Upper Great Lakes region.

Cloudy skies prevailed over Texas and New Mexico and light rain spread into western Texas and southern New Mexico.

Temperatures around the nation at 1 p.m. CST ranged from 73 at Homestead Air Force Base near Miami to zero at Massena, N.Y.

For today, rainshowers were forecast from San Francisco to Washington state, becoming snow in the northern Plateau and northern Rockies. Scattered snow was forecast around the Great Lakes and over the central and northern Appalachians.

Freezing temperatures were predicted from the northern Plains through the Northeast, mile temperatures in the South, cool in the Northwest, and warm in southern Florida and the desert Southwest.

Here is Thursday afternoon weather in selected cities, as supplied by the National Weather Service:

•East: Atlanta 41 fair, Boston 17 windy, Caribou 7 windy, Charleston S.C. 43 cloudy, Cincinnati 14 snow, Cleveland 12 partly cloudy, Detroit 13 cloudy, Miami 70 hazy, Nashville 38 fair, New York 19 windy, Philadelphia 19 partly cloudy, Pittsburgh 11 partly cloudy, Washington 25 partly cloudy.

•Central: Bismarck 13 cloudy, Chicago 20 fair, Denver 38 fair, Des Moines 18 fair, Fort Worth 54 cloudy, Indianapolis 15 snow, Kansas City 30 fair, Minneapolis-St. Paul 9 cloudy, New Orleans 49 partly cloudy, St. Louis 28 cloudy.

•West: Anchorage 39 cloudy, Los Angeles 58 hazy, Phoenix 56 fair, Salt Lake City 30 foggy, San Diego 61 hazy, San Francisco 46 foggy, Seattle 41 cloudy.

•Canada: Montreal -1 fair, Toronto 10 fair.

Two Children Witness Shooting Of Mother In Front Of School

HARKER HEIGHTS, Texas (AP) — Two children watched in horror as their mother was gunned down in front of an elementary school Thursday morning just minutes before morning classes began, officials said.

Police say the 36-year-old woman was shot four times in the chest at point-blank range as she escorted her 4-year-old and 6-year-old sons to Harker Heights Elementary School in this small Central Texas town.

She was pronounced dead at the scene, said Harker Heights Police Chief Ted Wermuth.

Staff Sgt. Edward Groce was in critical condition and underwent surgery Thursday afternoon at Darnall Army Hospital at nearby Fort Hood following a shootout with police officers in a field about a block from the school, officials said.

Witnesses told police that a man dressed in army fatigues arrived with the woman in a car. As the two children walked across the school parking lot the woman jumped out of the car and started to run, Wermuth said.

The man allegedly knocked her down and shot her with a pistol in front of horrified teachers, parents and children in the crowded schoolyard, Wermuth added.

The woman's two sons reportedly were treated for shock by the school nurse, police said.

School officials said many of the 735 students already were in the classrooms and parents were called and assured that no children had been harmed.

Police said the shooting occurred about 8:38 a.m. and one officer, only three houses away from the school at the time of the shooting, was at the scene almost immediately.

Officer D.J. Johnson said the man opened fire when the patrol car pulled up, then turned and fled around the back of the school. Other officers responding to the call cornered him in a field and told him to drop the weapon, Wermuth said.

The man reportedly shot at two of the officers who returned fire, striking him on the leg, police said. The man was shot in the neck and chest when he again opened fire on the three officers, Wermuth added.

Police said the woman's husband is reportedly stationed at a U.S. Army base in Korea. Officials are withholding the woman's name pending notification of relatives.

Mountaineer Suspected In Wardens' Deaths

MURPHY, Idaho (AP) — Authorities searched the canyons, mine shafts and caves along the rugged Owyhee Mountains on Thursday for a 30-year-old mountain man suspected of killing two game wardens who were trying to arrest him for poaching deer.

A party of 25 to 30 people also was searching the mountainous terrain of southwestern Idaho and the northern Nevada desert for the body of William H. "Bill" Pogue, 50, of Boise, one of the two officers last seen on Monday.

The body of Pogue's partner, Wilson Conley Elms, 34, also of Boise, was found in the South Fork of the Owyhee River late Wednesday, downstream from a cabin occupied by trapper Claude L. Dallas Jr.

State Fish and Game Director Jerry Conley said as far as he could determine it was the first time in the state's history that game wardens were gunned down while enforcing the law.

An Idaho magistrate on Wednesday signed warrants charging Dallas, the man described by authorities as a "mountain man," with two counts of first-degree murder.

The FBI also issued a fugitive warrant against Dallas.

"We consider him extremely dangerous," said Owyhee County Deputy Sheriff Mike Moysard in Murphy. "We feel he is still armed with a .357 (caliber) Magnum pistol and a rifle of unknown caliber."

Officers concentrated their search in an area about 200 miles south of Boise and south of Dallas' cabin, which is about three miles north of the Nevada line and 13 miles east of the Oregon line.

Moysard described Dallas as an outdoorsman who might be hard to find in the remote area. Another deputy called Dallas "a self-professed mountain man" and "pretty much of a loner."

Moysard said Dallas could be difficult to find because "he knows the area like a mountain man should."

"He has trapped that area off and on for at least the last four years," Moysard added.

Dallas was believed to be carrying an olive drab Army duffel bag and perhaps a sleeping bag, Moysard said. Dallas, a sturdy man who is 5-foot-10 and weighs 170 pounds, has shoulder-length hair and a 2-inch growth of beard.

Jim Stevens of Winnemucca, Nev., told investigators he saw Dallas shoot the two officers who were trying to arrest him for poaching deer at the remote camp site.

Stevens, who was delivering mail and supplies to Dallas at the time, told officers Dallas dumped Elms' body into the freezing river and later drove off into the Nevada desert in a pickup truck hauling Pogue's body.

Stevens said Dallas came back several hours later without the body. He last saw Dallas walking into the desert northwest of Winnemucca.

Officers said Elms' was shot once in the head and twice in the chest at close range.

Humboldt County Sheriff Frank Weston said bloodhounds, airplanes and helicopters were used in the search Thursday.

Pogue, a 15-year veteran of the conservation service, had once held Weston's job in Humboldt County as sheriff. He was the father of four children.

Conley and his wife, Sheryl, had no children, but they were in the process of adopting an Indian baby.

Mrs. Elms, like Mrs. Pogue, got a call from Gov. John Evans following the discovery of the body. Mrs. Elms told the governor: "He loved his job so much he wouldn't do anything else."

Father Charged In Shooting Of Son

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston osteopath was charged Thursday in the fatal shooting of his 29-year-old son during a heated argument about the salary of Earl Campbell, the Houston Oilers star running back.

Arthur Franklin Tripp, 59, was charged with the murdering his son, Lon Franklin Tripp, and released from city jail on $10,000 bond.

Investigators said the victim — an oil field worker — was shot once in the chest with a .38-caliber revolver at the family's home. He was pronounced dead at the scene.

Joleta Tripp, 56, the victim's mother, told investigators the shooting occurred Wednesday night.

"They started arguing over Earl Campbell's salary — really silly, silly stuff," Mrs. Tripp said. She said the quarrel then degenerated into "personal things, just digs at each other."

Campbell, the National Football League's three-time rushing champion, has demanded the Oilers either renegotiate his contract or trade him.

The 1977 Heisman Trophy winner from Texas, Campbell earns about $300,000 a year. However, his agent is trying to negotiate a new contract that would give Campbell between $5 million and $6 million a year over six years.

During the quarrel, Mrs. Tripp said, her husband went to the den and returned with the revolver. The younger Tripp approached his father, the quarrel continued and her husband shot his son, Mrs. Tripp said.

"I screamed for my other son to call an ambulance, but they sent a fire truck instead. Can you believe it?" she said.

Rick Hernandez, a spokesman for the Houston Fire Department, said it is policy to dispatch a pumper if it can reach the scene before an ambulance.

Her son died before the pumper arrived, she said.

Tripp, who suffered a heart attack two years ago, sat down and waited for police, Mrs. Tripp said.

"He said he just couldn't take the arguing any longer," she said.

ALSO A CHALLENGE

An Honor For Hance, Area

WINNING A SEAT on the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee is a prestigious accomplishment for second-term Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock and an important plum for the 19th Congressional District of Texas.

How well it works out for the taxpayer, locally and nationally, will depend on how well Hance does his job. On his record to date, there is reason for confidence and optimism.

Several factors combined to give Hance his opportunity to be on the key Ways and Means panel, one of the three most powerful committees in the House.

FIRST OF ALL, there was the conservative sweep of the national elections in November. Then there was the Democratic majority's decision to hang on to a 2-to-1 majority on Ways and Means despite a mere 5-to-4 edge in the House.

Finally, there was Hance's own ability to sell himself to the House leadership and to the 29-member Democratic Steering and Policy Committee, which has recommended him for what normally is rubberstamp approval by the full membership.

The ouster of old-line Democratic liberals by the voters, who replaced them with Republicans and conservative Democrats, gives the House its first conservative majority in a generation.

Thus, while the Democrats retained the votes to organize the House, chairing all committees and having a majority on them all, it's a new ball game this January.

In negotiating with the Republican leadership, the Democrats gave ground on some committees but insisted on keeping 23 seats in the Ways and Means panel, thus providing openings for Hance and two other Democrats.

However, Majority Leader Jim Wright of Fort Worth, who was instrumental in promoting Hance's candidacy, and other leaders recognized that conservatives such as he held the balance of power.

Hance had the backing of the powerful Texas delegation and of the Conservative Democratic Forum, which is just beginning to flex its muscles.

As a member of Ways and Means, the Lubbock lawmaker will be in a strong position to head off and even reverse such liberal tax policies as the punitive windfall profits tax on oil, which directly affects his district.

IT ALSO WILL give him clout which, if wisely used, can help him persuade eastern liberals to modify their positions on other legislation and not obstruct a return to sane fiscal management of the government.

Hance also, of course, will have to have one eye on the 1982 elections, when further Republican gains could reduce the number of Democratic seats on Ways and Means. As the first new member nominated by the Steering Committee, he at least will have seniority over the other two.

Finally, of course, we are reminded that the 19th Congressional District is once again represented on one of the most powerful committees in Congress. Hance's predecessor, Rep. George Mahon, was chairman of Appropriations.

We like the feeling.

FOR FBI OPERATIONS

New Guidelines Make Sense

NEW GUIDELINES which, it is claimed, will prevent the FBI from inducing people to commit crimes they would not otherwise commit have been laid down—and not an undercover operation too soon.

There has been a growing concern that, especially in investigating politicians, the Justice Department might be abusing its power.

In last year's attempt to entrap Texas House Speaker Bill Clayton, for example, the investigators not only picked on a man they had no reason to suspect would take a bribe: They tried to trick him into making promises that would look like he'd taken one.

Criticism of a serious although not so flagrant nature has been leveled against the FBI as an outgrowth of Abscam bribery probes involving congressmen.

UNDER THE new guidelines outlined by lame duck Attorney General Benjamin R. Civiletti, "fishing expeditions" are prohibited.

An operation could not be undertaken unless the FBI had reason to believe it would reveal illegal activities. It could not involve unduly large bribes or other inducements.

ART BUCHWALD:

Enlightened Sage Sees Dark At End Of Tunnel

WASHINGTON—Gleam, the neighborhood soothsayer, was sitting in front of his crystal ball when I was ushered into his dark room.

"What do you see?" I asked him.
"Fifty dollars," he said.
"You see $50 in the ball?"
"No, that is what it will cost you before I tell you what 1981 holds in store for us."
"But last year you only charged me $25."
"That was before I saw a double-digit inflation figure in my ball."
I handed him $50, and waited.
"I see Dunkirk," he said.
"Dunkirk? That was in World War II!"

"I SEE an economic Dunkirk. I see economists fighting to get into lifeboats and retreat from their forecasts of 1980."

"Do you see a tax cut?"
"I see a tax cut."
"That's good."
"I also see a rise in Social Security, real estate assessments and gasoline prices. Now I don't see the tax cut anymore."
"What do you see now?"
"I see Lee Iacocca."
"What is he doing?"
"A TV commercial for American Express cards."
"That's bad."

So They Say...

A waiter stricken at work was rushed to the hospital. Lying on an emergency table, in pain, he waited for a doctor. He saw an intern passing by and pleaded, "Please, Doc, I'm in awful pain. Can't you do something for me?"
"Sorry," said the intern, recognizing the waiter. "This is not my table."

Most significantly, investigators would have to be certain that potential subjects understood the corrupt nature of the activity.

In the Clayton case, he promised only to look into the procedure for re-opening a state insurance contract for competitive bidding. There was nothing illegal about that but the FBI, by having an undercover operative offer Clayton a campaign contribution at the same meeting, hoped to make it appear he had accepted a bribe.

A jury, once the facts were in, quickly found Clayton not guilty and some members offered him their support for governor before they left the courtroom.

HOPEFULLY, the new method of operation will reduce the risk that targets will be picked out for political purposes while maintaining the FBI's flexibility in gathering evidence against persons who may indeed be on the take.

"Sting" operations are a legitimate tool of law enforcement, if properly handled. And a congressman or state official who actually does take a bribe has no squawk coming if it turns out that the FBI has him on tape.

The new guidelines appear to be a positive improvement.

THE NEGOTIATION ROUTE

ANDREW TULLY:

The Haig Issue...

WASHINGTON—Ronald Reagan might have spared us this one. In selecting a Cabinet there is nothing a President-elect has to do, and Reagan didn't have to nominate Gen. Alexander Haig to be Sec. of State and thereby reopen that can of worms called Watergate.

Yes, Haig was the conservatives' candidate. And yes, Reagan owed the conservatives a substantial bundle. And yes, Haig is a brilliant man who under different circumstances would be the ideal selection.

Ah, there's the rub. The circumstances are not different. The circumstances are that Alex Haig—justly or not—has been tarred by the Watergate brush, and thus will be subjected to an intensive and perhaps crippling inquiry during Senate hearings into his confirmation.

AND EVEN if Haig is confirmed, his ordeal will not end. Every time questions are raised about his conduct of foreign policy the word Watergate will be tossed around.

More than any other Secretary of State in our time, Haig will be called upon to explain, to justify, to defend his official acts.

One of the items in Haig's past that the opposition will refuse a decent burial concerns the general's role during the early months of the first Nixon administration.

FBI records show that in those months Haig was the official who formally requested 12 of the 17 wiretaps of government officials and reporters initiated by the White House.

Later, Haig testified that he couldn't remember whether he requested all those 12 wiretaps. He also claimed that the only names he ever gave the FBI were supplied to him by either President Nixon or Henry Kissinger, then Nixon's national secretary affairs adviser.

ALL RIGHT, Haig's defense has always been that he was acting under orders of the President of the United States. But the opposition is set to question that "good soldier" role on the grounds of professional morality.

Haig will be questioned about his role in arranging Nixon's resignation in August 1974. Democrats in the Senate want to know whether Haig offered Gerald Ford the Presidency in return for a pardon for Nixon.

In his 1979 autobiography, "A Time to Heal," and in testimony to a House subcommittee on Oct. 17, 1974, Ford said that he met with Haig on Aug. 1, 1974, and that Haig laid out six options open to Nixon for Ford's consideration, involving his assumption of the Presidency. One option was "a pardon to the President (Nixon) himself should he resign."

FORD PASSED on the options to three staff members—Robert Hartmann, Jack Marsh and Bryce Harlow. All three told him that Haig's suggestion of a pardon for Nixon was dangerous.

So much for that? Not quite. Senate Democrats plan to ask Haig, in effect, what he was doing trying to "bribe" Gerald Ford to accept the Presidency on Nixon's terms.

Haig, of course, can explain that he was merely a messenger.

It is too bad. I happen to think Alex Haig would be a strong Secretary of State. He would bring intelligence, experience in international politics, toughness and discipline to a complex department that is often torn by infighting.

tion to give them political asylum would depend on the incoming Reagan administration, he was informed.

That hands-off policy is in for massive change after Jan. 20. The besieged government of Angola, never recognized by the U.S., has now become totally dependent on Soviet, East German and Cuban help.

Savimbi continues to extend his territorial holdings, his guerrillas ranging at will over half of the former Portuguese colony. Although Reagan advisers are planning ways to help UNITA, those two Soviet airmen will have to sweat out hope for U.S. asylum until Reagan is sworn in.

OUTGOING REPUBLICAN National Chairman William Brock, viewed with awe by his Democratic opponents but treated with contempt by the Reagan operation, has a last chance for a senior post in the new administration: special trade representative (STR), in charge of negotiating international trade agreements.

While widely acclaimed for rebuilding the party organization the past four years, Brock never was forgiven by the President-elect's insiders for his early coolness toward Ronald Reagan.

Brock craved a Cabinet post (specifically, secretary of commerce), but the only job offered him was secondary: ambassador to the Organization of American States (OAS). He turned it down.

Brock's major rival in Washington-based financier William Middendorf, a former secretary of the Navy who has substantial conservative support.

EX-WATERGATE prober Terry Lenzer's law firm insisted that he reject the offer of Senate Foreign Relations Committee Democrats to be chief prosecutor of Alexander Haig during confirmation hearings of the secretary of state-designate starting today.

Lenzer kept anti-Haig liberal Democrats waiting two weeks while he pondered the offer, which grew out of his inside knowledge as a top staffer for the Senate Watergate committee.

Whether or not he really wanted the role, he had little choice. His law firm (Wald, Harkrader and Ross) decided there was no good case against Haig and that if Lenzer took a leave of absence to prosecute it, the firm might be hurt.

IN HIS effort to ingratiate himself with a stand-offish Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas as chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, President-elect Reagan may have offended one of his staunchest allies: Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina, chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee.

Dole won his battle for the nomination of Illinois State Agriculture Director John Block as secretary of agriculture over the opposition of Helms. Helms was miffed that the finance chairman was given precedence over the agriculture chairman on the top farm appointment.

The reason: Reagan desperately needs a warmer attitude than Dole has displayed so far toward his vital tax legislation. That explains Dole's remarkable batting average during the transition, apart from the Block appointment.

His wife, former Federal Trade Commissioner Elizabeth Dole, was named chief of public liaison at the White House, and Dole was instrumental in scuttling William Simon as secretary of the Treasury.

KEY SUPPORTERS of the newly-elected House Republican leader, Rep. Bob Michel of Illinois, are disappointed in what they privately complain is his failure to stand up to stonewalling tactics of Democratic House Speaker Thomas P. (Tip) O'Neill, even before the actual new Congress convenes.

"Bob is just too deferential to Tip," confided one of Michel's major backers in his closely-contested victory for the floor leadership over Rep. Guy Vander Jagt of Michigan. "He comes over as a supplicant in dealing with Tip."

Such critics complain that Michel has not stood up to O'Neill's refusal to change the party ratio on the all-important House Ways and Means Committee to reflect Republican gains in the last election.

Michel reached O'Neill by telephone at his vacation retreat on Cape Cod, but the speaker budgeted not an inch on the ways and means question.

The New Tech?..

JULIUS CAESAR might feel at home on the Texas Tech campus these days. The one in Shakespeare's realm, that is.

"There is a tide in the affairs of men, which taken at the flood, leads on to fortune. Omitted, all the voyage of their life is bound in shallows and in miseries."

That oft-repeated saying might well apply to the Big Red Spread in West Lubbock at present, for a number of reasons.

The University stands on the threshold of heading into what could be one of its more productive and rewarding periods, or it stands still, which in the academic, business or political world means going backwards. We have no doubt about the choice. But, implementing it won't be easy.

THE DECISION as to what may happen at Texas Tech in the immediate years ahead rests upon many things and people.

It rests not just on Tech's officials and faculty, its student body and friends and backers, but with the state of the economy, the attitude of citizens across Texas and certainly the Texas Legislature.

Recently, a former Tech board member noted that seldom in the school's recent history has there been an opportunity to make "the needed changes, in certain policy matters, in personnel and positions to help bring about the next logical stage in Tech's development."

He was referring to the fact that with a popular new president in Dr. Larry Cavazos and numerous jobs from the level of vice presidents to deans' posts open, Tech is in a position to reorganize and move with new vigor, and in several instances new talent, toward its stated goal of becoming truly a "first class university."

NOT LONG AGO, Fred Bucy, who is president of worldwide Texas Instruments, a Tech graduate, one of its most ardent boosters and currently chairman of the Tech Board of Regents cited his goals for the University.

"A sound future for Texas Tech depends in a large part upon the ability of its officials to define Tech's proper role in the technological basis of modern society," is the way an A-J staffer summed up the Dallas man's remarks.

The first role of a University, Mr. Bucy, noted "is to educate the students. A college graduate," he continued, "should be educated broadly enough so that he has a foundation on which to begin his real education, which starts after he leaves college."

Such graduates, Mr. Bucy added, "should know the great works of literature, history, politics, economics and have a broad foundation in math and science...Through these classical disciplines, the student can begin to understand the world he is living in and how we got where we are, so that he will be equipped to understand the effects of the choices he will make after college."

TEXAS TECH obviously has been doing a good job in this area. Its students for the most part have been well-grounded and have made their marks in just about any field one can name in all parts of the world.

But, it is a changing world, a changing society. High technology, from home computers to machines that "talk," are realities. It also is a world with age-old problems, inept politicians, hunger, war and threats of war, an energy crisis.

In the world of academia, it is a world of intense competition, for students of the future, for funds, for citizen support and legislative approval.

Texas Tech and this area, with its food and fiber production, not to mention its diversified economy from electronics to oil and health care, can play a vital role in the nation's future, if it so chooses. But, to obtain the funds and support necessary for such a role will mean putting its own house in order in quick order and convincing the powers that be in Austin it can do such a job.

AT THE present, Tech is searching for top-level people in several areas...

How things finally are constructed, from Dr. Cavazos' office and those who help him to the bottom teaching level will say something about Tech's future.

To attract the type people Tech needs and to retain those it has will take good pay, ingenuity, leadership, a challenge. Sometimes the latter is as important to the real pros as the other factors.

We would like to see Tech restructure some of its administrative functions. It would seem a most appropriate time to name a sort of triumvirate to aid Dr. Cavazos in running the affairs of the college, from the Health Sciences Center to the regular academic affairs to a wholly new position of a vice president for public affairs, the latter combining the office of development, public relations and information.

TO A DEGREE, Tech has a good organizational plan. But, it can be improved upon.

There are those who think not only Tech, but other schools overemphasize athletics. Perhaps some do. Thus far, Tech hasn't. A good football or basketball team can be a "show window" for an institution. It says something about a school's pride, and if successful, should pay its own way.

Something also is said by a school band, a debating team, a crop judging group, a good campus paper, a good Law School dean. In brief, it takes a whole school to make up a good university. It takes all its components working together, supporting each other. It takes unwavering support from exes, friends and the business community.

This is not to create alarm. Tech basically is in good hands. Its student body, which has always had its feet on the ground, most of its faculty and Board of Regents, are as good as any to be found anywhere. But, it is extremely vital that Tech and its supporters build on what we have gained, in everything from new directions to new board members to proper support and funding from the Legislature. The time is now...

Reagan Makes Final Cabinet Level Selection

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect Ronald Reagan has picked Bill Brock, Republican National Committee chairman, to be special trade representative, filling the final Cabinet-level slot in the new administration, sources said Thursday.

Brock's appointment will be announced formally early next week along with the selection of Reagan's Council of Economic Advisers, said sources close to the transition.

Reagan reportedly settled on Brock,

50, despite opposition from conservatives who objected to his ties to the moderate wing of the Republican Party.

In another Cabinet development, Howard Phillips, a prominent conservative leader, urged the Senate to reject the nomination of Donald T. Regan, Reagan's choice to be treasury secretary.

"Mr. Regan's statement indicating acquiescence in federal budget deficits for the next four years is not what the American people expect or require," said Phillips, national director of the Conservative Caucus. "A vote for Donald Regan is a vote for deficit spending."

In congressional testimony Tuesday, Regan acknowledged that balancing the budget before 1984 would be difficult. The Merrill Lynch Co. executive is seen as likely to win overwhelmingly Senate approval.

Brock spearheaded a GOP rebuilding campaign widely credited with making possible the party's sweeping electoral victories last November. Brock's appointment to a top government job was seen as his likely reward.

But the delay in appointing Brock — and earlier efforts to place him in a sub-Cabinet level job — reflected the deeply felt opposition of some influential conservatives.

Brock particularly alienated the GOP's right wing two years ago when he refused to use the Republican Party's national treasury to fight the Panama Canal treaties.

After Reagan clinched the 1980 GOP nomination, some of his conservative backers even mounted a drive to purge Brock from the national committee, but Reagan decided to keep him on through the election.

Brock bolstered his standing with the right wing several days ago when he won the support of Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., a leading conservative and one of Reagan's closest advisers.

Reagan aides have listed 17 Cabinet-level jobs — the 13 department heads plus CIA director, budget director, United Nations ambassador and special trade representative.

Reagan named Utah education Administrator Terrel H. Bell as his choice for education secretary Wednesday, leaving only the trade representative post open.

A former one-term senator from Tennessee, Brock was defeated for re-election in 1976 by Democratic Sen. James Sasser. Brock took over control of the GOP National Committee in 1977 with support from moderate Republicans.

After becoming national chairman, Brock organized a grassroots rebuilding program that was considered so successful that it has even won grudging praise from Democratic leaders.

Brock is expected to be replaced as chairman of the Republican National Committee by former Utah state GOP Chairman Richard Richards, the man Brock defeated for the job in 1977.

Brock previously had rejected several sub-Cabinet level jobs, including ambassador to the Organization of American States and deputy U.N. ambassador.

The post of special trade representative is designated as Cabinet-level by law. Some Reagan aides have said they might seek to downgrade it, but others have indicated that it will likely retain its Cabinet ranking.

Block reportedly insisted on a post with Cabinet rank.

Easy Confirmation Of Watt Expected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee predicted Thursday that James G. Watt will be confirmed with "strong bipartisan support" to be the new interior secretary as the panel finished its hearings on the man who has been much criticized by conservation groups.

The committee ended two days of hearings during which environmentalists attacked the Denver lawyer's environmental record while Watt maintained he was simply trying to bring balance into the management of the nation's vast public lands.

"I am confident now that Mr. Watt will receive strong bipartisan support in the committee and in the full Senate for his confirmation," said committee chairman Sen. James A. McClure, R-Idaho. He said he hoped the committee can vote on Watt's nomination next week, probably Thursday.

States as labor secretary.

"We are concerned, indeed alarmed, by the prospect of a secretary who brings to his office what we believe to be a strong anti-environmental bias and who is strongly supported and closely identified with those interests which have been in the forefront of the fight against environmental standards for the past several years," said Nelson.

Louise Dunlap of the Environmental Policy Center, an influential environmental lobby on energy issues, urged the committee to require formal commitments from Watt on conflict-of-interest questions.

"The public has a right to know under what circumstances Mr. Watt would excuse himself (not participate) from specific actions of the department," she said.

Meanwhile, Rep. David A. Stockman, R-Mich., was headed for apparent approval as director of the Office of Management and Budget as confirmation hearings by the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee drew to a close.

Stockman raised the possibility during his hearings that the Jan. 1 tax cut the president-elect has called for repeatedly may be postponed until later this year.

"Whether you make the first (tax cut) installment effective Jan. 1 or June 1 or any other date, I don't think is very important," Stockman said.

On Friday, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee is to start considering Alexander M. Haig's nomination to be secretary of state. Anti-war opponents of the former White House chief of staff and NATO commander planned a protest demonstration outside the Senate office building where the hearings will be held.

Nelson and Miss Dunlap joined a series of opponents, including the Sierra Club, the National Audubon Society and Friends of the Earth, which have urged the committee to reject Watt's appointment.

What McClure called "the one open issue resulting from the hearings" was resolved late Thursday when Watt agreed to broaden his pledge against taking actions that might appear to be a conflict of interest.

In a written statement submitted to the committee and the Office of Government Ethics, Watt promised to disqualify himself from any court or administrative proceedings involving the Mountain States Legal Foundation, the conservative public interest law firm he headed until picked by President-elect Ronald Reagan for the Interior post.

Watt previously had pledged to excuse himself from cases that began when he was with the foundation. The broadened pledge covers cases that are begun by the foundation after he becomes interior secretary.

The broader pledge had been requested Wednesday by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., the committee's ranking minority member. Jackson said Thursday he was pleased with Watt's new promise and said he would trust Watt's "common sense and sense of propriety" in any other potential conflicts not covered specifically by the pledge.

The two days of hearings concluded after environmentalists launched a final attack on Watt's nomination, even though it was clear even to their supporters they had virtually no chance of derailing Watt's appointment.

Representatives of the Wilderness Society and the Environmental Policy Center told a hearing of the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee that Watt's selection to be the chief government conservation officer was inconsistent with his record of fighting conservation policies.

Former Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., testifying for the Wilderness Society, said the nomination would be akin to naming the president of the AFL-CIO as secretary of commerce or the head of the Chamber of Commerce of the United

Four Men Accused In Capital Murder Of Police Officer

AMARILLO (AP) — Four men charged with capital murder in the Christmas night shooting death of an Amarillo police officer were indicted Thursday by a Potter County grand jury.

Ernesto Gutierrez, 17, and his two brothers Victor Gutierrez, 23 and Guadalupe Gutierrez, 19, and Urbano J. Flores, 18, all of Dumas, were held without bond in the Potter County jail.

The grand jury met for about an hour Thursday morning before returning capital murder indictments against each of the men.

Police say Officer Barry McGuire, 26, was shot to death with his own .357 Magnum service revolver during a scuffle with four men he stopped on a routine traffic violation.

Witnesses told police McGuire was overpowered by three of the men as he was trying to arrest the driver of the car. McGuire was beaten severely and shot twice in the abdomen and once in the head, officials said.

When McGuire was found by an officer responding to his call for assistance, police launched a massive manhunt for the suspects.

Two men were arrested shortly after the shooting when their car apparently ran out of gas just outside of Amarillo. One man was wearing the handcuffs McGuire had placed on him, police said.

Another man was arrested the next day as he walked along a railroad track in the city. Ernesto Gutierrez was arrested Dec. 26th at his mother's home in Dumas.

Police said officers found what they believe was McGuire's service revolver underneath the floor of one man's home.

Cool Season Grasses Offer Grazing In Lean Days

BUSHLAND (Special) — Irrigated cool season perennial grass can furnish grazing after winter wheat pasture and prior to spring growth of native grass.

The critical time when no other forage grows is from March 15 to June 1. Farmers and ranchers who want to carry cattle year-around usually have to feed over this period.

In order to test the value of cool season grasses for supplying forage during this time, Dr. H. V. Eck, soil scientist with the U.S. Department of Agriculture Center at Bushland, conducted an experiment with irrigation water and fertility levels on tall fescue and smooth bromegrass.

The Science and Education Administration scientist found that irrigation for spring growth and fertilizing with 300 pounds per acre of actual nitrogen gave the most efficient production. This treatment produced five tons of dry forage per acre annually in a three-year experiment.

Eck started his research by planting Fawn tall fescue and Southland bromegrass in the fall of 1973 on level borders. The borders were made on dryland Pullman clay loam that never had produced an irrigated crop. Starting in 1974, forage was cut at a two-inch height when the grass headed about May 10, and at three later dates at about six week intervals.

The scientist used three water levels requiring 20, 24, and 40 inches of irrigation water annually. For the lowest water level the grasses were irrigated at midwinter, April and after each harvest. The treatment that received 24 inches of water was irrigated mostly during the early part of the season when grasses produced the most growth.

Applications were made in midwinter, April, two weeks before the first harvest, midseason, after third harvest and two weeks before the fourth harvest. With 40 inches of water, irrigations were at midwinter, and twice before each of the harvests.

Ammonium nitrate was used on each water treatment at 0, 150, 300, 450, and 600 pounds per acre of actual nitrogen. Feedlot waste was applied at 12 and 24 tons per acre each year to give nitrogen at 300 and 600 pounds per acre.

As the researcher expected, yields were greatest with 40 inches of water. Pounds of forage produced per inch of water used greatest with 24 inches of irrigation water, applied mostly in early spring. This came about because the first cuttings yielded 75 percent of the total forage produced during the year.

The optimum nitrogen fertilizer rate proved to be 300 pounds per acre. Eck also found that additions of phosphorus and potassium fertilizer did not increase yield. About one-half of the nitrogen in feedlot manure was released the first year, so it took 24 tons to produce yields equal to 300 pounds of nitrogen.

Average yield for the three years was 5.3 tons per acre of air dry fescue and five tons per acre of bromegrass with 24 inches of water and 300 pounds per acre of nitrogen. With 20 inches of water, fescue and bromegrass yields averaged 4.4 and 4.7 tons per acre. Irrigating with 40 inches of water and using 200 pounds per acre of nitrogen produced 6.6 and 5.8 tons per acre of fescue and bromegrass.

The grasses yielded much more the first year than the second and third years. On unfertilized plots the two grasses averaged five tons the first year with 24 inches of water. As residual nitrogen in the soil was used up, yields dropped to 1.5 and 0.7 tons per acre the second and third years.

With 300 pounds of nitrogen per acre and 24 inches of water yields were seven tons the first year. The second and third year, yields dropped to five tons per acre. Late summer temperatures were hotter the last two years and late season growth slowed down accordingly.

"Our study shows that a good fertility program is necessary to produce economical yields of irrigated and cool season grass," Eck said.

In a separate experiment the researcher found that cutting at three-week intervals reduced forage yield 25 percent as compared with cutting at six weeks. This indicates that keeping the grasses grazed short would cut yields.

"The secret to maximum production is leaving adequate leaf area to feed the plant but grazing enough so the grass does not become too large and stemmy," the researcher said.

The scientist checked protein, nitrates, digestibility and the ratio of potassium to calcium and magnesium in the forage. The tests showed the grasses, fertilized with 300 pounds of nitrogen per acre, would furnish a good diet for cattle. The forage contains from 13 to 15 percent protein and the nitrate level was not high enough to be poisonous.

Grass fertilized with 300 pounds per acre of nitrogen was more digestible than unfertilized grass. If potassium level gets too high in relation to calcium and magnesium, cattle may get grass tetany. With fescue there was no danger of grass tetany.

Bromegrass, however, was higher in potassium and lower in magnesium than fescue and at the higher nitrogen rates. With 300 pounds of nitrogen per acre, ratios of potassium to calcium and magnesium were close to the level causing grass tetany. This hazard could be minimized by reducing nitrogen fertilizer or supplemental feeding magnesium, according to the researcher.

After all the work, the scientist figures he could irrigate cool season grass more efficiently by managing the irrigation water differently from any treatment in his experiment. Irrigation in midwinter, April 20 and late August would produce good yields and maintain the grass.

Eck figures this would cut irrigation water to 12-16 inches annually, saving considerable water and irrigation expense. Most years rainfall during the summer will keep the grass alive.

The August irrigation is needed to encourage growth and build up root reserves for winter survival and spring growth. Under this system fertilizer should be applied just before the winter irrigation, he said.

Irrigating cool season grasses fits well with corn or grain sorghum farming. The grasses use water in the early spring and late fall before or after summer crops need irrigation. "My research tells Southern Great Plains growers how to manage cool season grasses and how much feed or hay they can expect. Cool season grasses furnish good quality forage at a time when other forage crops do not produce," Eck said.

Ag Nominee Pledges Voice For Farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) — John R. Block, who thinks more U.S. exports can help farmers prosper, says he would speak out loud and clear on their behalf if the Senate approves him as Ronald Reagan's secretary of agriculture.

For example, Block said this week, he would make it known within the administration that he:

—Would be reluctant to use a food embargo as a tool of diplomacy except under the most dire circumstances.

—Has no preconceived budget targets or plan to demolish the government's $11 billion food stamp program, the estimated cost in 1980-81 if current projects are allowed to stand.

—Thinks Americans should have mostly a free choice on what they eat and not be subjected to so much federal dietary advice.

Block, responding to questions before the Senate Agriculture Committee headed by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., said food is "a valuable instrument of peace" but is valuable only if other countries can count on the U.S. supply.

An embargo, he said, should be ordered "only as a last resort under extreme circumstances."

President Carter ordered a partial embargo of U.S. grain sales to the Soviet Union more than a year ago in response to its intervention in Afghanistan.

Sen. Walter Huddleston, D-Ky., asked whether the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan would qualify as an extreme circumstance. Block said, "I don't know all the details on that."

Helms said final committee action on Block's appointment would be postponed until Jan. 19 or possibly earlier so financial and ethics paperwork could be completed on behalf of the 45-year-old Illinois farmer and state director of agriculture.

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., one of Block's strongest supporters for the nomination, said there is "a concern by many of us and by everyone on the committee" that in speaking out for farmers others are not forgotten, including those who rely on government food stamps and other feeding programs.

Dole, who has supported revisions in the food stamp program, told Block "there is a need for those programs" and that he hoped budget cuts could be made "without any meat-ax approach" to any single program.

Food stamps this fiscal year are expected to account for about half of the Agriculture Department's $21.6 billion budget, counting supplemental money currently under review.

Block told Dole he has not yet singled out "any particular program" to cut and that "I agree the whole budget needs to be looked at."

Sen. Roger Jepsen, R-Iowa, asked Block what he thought about some of the Agriculture Department's recent publications about human nutrition, including guidelines that are intended to help consumers eat better.

Jepsen questioned whether some of those were of any value because there has been so much disagreement among food experts about additives, meat in diets, cholesterol and other issues.

Block said he thought people "are pretty good at figuring out what to eat and what they should eat" for themselves so long as poisonous foods are kept off the market.

"I know that they're not the same, but hogs are ...." Block began before laughter interrupted the hearing.

"You can provide protein and grain to a hog and he'll balance his ration (meal)," Block continued. "He'll eat about the right amount of protein to go along with the grain. He won't overeat on the grain. And people surely are as smart as a hog."

Block's farming enterprise includes 3,000 acres of land and produces about 6,000 hogs a year.

Members Plan New Orleans Bureau Fete

WACO (Special) — More than 125 Texas Farm Bureau members are planning to attend the 62nd annual meeting of the American Farm Bureau Federation Jan. 11-15 in New Orleans.

Texas Farm Bureau will send 19 voting delegates this year — the largest number in history from this state — to help decide national Farm Bureau policy for 1981. Representation is based on membership, which stands at 263,000 in Texas.

Among the proposals to be considered are the recommendations adopted at the TFB convention in San Antonio in early December. Delegates from the 49 state Farm Bureaus (all except Alaska) and Puerto Rico, who represent the 3.3 million member families in the organization, will participate in the business session on the final two days of the meeting.

Several well-known leaders will address the annual meeting. They include Robert B. Delano, AFBF president; Gen. William C. Westmoreland, honored military man and former head of West Point Military Academy; and Paul A. Volcker, chairman of the Federal Reserve System.

Pete Fountain and his jazz band will entertain at the New Orleans Superdome on Jan. 13.

TFB president Carrol G. Chaloupka of Dalhart, will head the 19 delegates from Texas, who comprise the present TFB board of directors and five former directors. Chaloupka also will preside at a wheat and feed grains conference Jan. 12.

AFB board members from the High Plains who will serve as voting delegates include S. M. True Jr. of Plainview, vice president; Jack Osborne of Pampa; and Vester Smith of Loop. Former director Bill Reid of Lamesa is an alternate delegate.

Soybean Meet To Feature Innovations

PLAINVIEW (Special) — The latest innovations in weed control and new varieties will headline the annual Texas Soybean Association meeting Jan. 30 in Plainview.

TSA president LaMarr Ramsey of Plainview said registration will begin at 8:30 a.m. in the Hale County Agriculture Center.

Speakers for the morning sessions will include Texas Agriculture Extension Service specialists Ray Brigham, Mike McWhorter, Leon New and Marvin Sartin. Topics will include fertilization, weed and insect control, irrigation and production costs. There will also be a film on marketing.

Following the noon luncheon sponsored by the Plainview Production Credit Association, American Soybean Association director of market development Dennis Blankenship will describe market opportunities available through grower-sponsored programs.

In the afternoon, the business meeting will be held and winners of the yield contest announced. The contest is sponsored by the association and prizes are awarded by Elanco Products Co.

More information may be obtained from Texas Soybean Association, 812 East 8th St., Plainview, Texas, 79072, (806) 293-3806.

CLOSED-BOLL COTTON PRODUCTION is feasible if yields could be increased to near current levels for conventional open-boll cotton, a U. S. Department of Agriculture economist said this week.

Dale Shaw told the National Cotton Council's annual Beltwide Conference in New Orleans that the costs of closed-boll production are very dependent on yields.

It currently is impossible to attain the same yields as with open-boll cotton, he said.

Closed-boll cotton in beltwide tests has averaged about 300 pounds an acre, Shaw said, compared with about 517 pounds for conventional cotton.

The costs of closed-boll cotton production through the ginning stage are estimated at 113.9 cents a pound, he said, compared with 76.5 cents a pound for conventional cotton.

Most of the increased costs of closed-boll cotton stem from higher assembly, drying and ginning costs, he said. However, if yields can be raised, he said, lower harvesting costs of closed-boll cotton could offset those higher processing costs.

ADDITIONAL RESEARCH IS NEEDED to raise yields of closed-boll cotton, Shaw said.

Studies to date, he said, have shown that closed-boll cotton is cleaner and whiter than open-boll cotton and should be attractive to textile mills.

Shaw said U. S. textile mills could realize a 17 percent reduction in their mill investment if economical closed-boll cotton production were possible.

Despite encouraging developments in closed-boll cotton research, the USDA official said, various issues need to be resolved.

Results have been inconclusive as to whether closed-boll cotton alleviates byssinosis among textile workers, Shaw said. Byssinosis, allegedly associated with cotton dust, commonly is known as "brown lung."

Research still is being done on developing harvesting and drying technology for closed-boll cotton, Shaw said, and on its performance in textile processing.

AREAWIDE COTTON CLASSING RECEIPTS on the High Plains through Wednesday totaled 1,747,234 running bales, including classings of 1,553,084 and a carryover of 194,150.

Receipts on the day were a combined 19,309 samples at Lubbock, Brownfield and Levelland and 5,700 at Lamesa. An estimated 98 percent of the crop is off the stalk, agricultural officials said Thursday.

Most of the cotton that is stored in modules is said to be in an area north of the Idalou highway and east of the Amarillo highway. A couple of gins in Gaines County still have a considerable amount of moduled cotton to process.

The majority of gins still operating expect to be done by late next week. Some gins to the south have only enough cotton left to run another one to three days.

Classings at Lubbock totaled 1,194,466 bales, up from 1,081,674 a year ago, and the office here had a carryover of 145,200 for total receipts of 1,339,666.

Receipts at Levelland totaled 101,026 bales, including classings of 91,726 — against 171,388 a year ago — and a carryover of 9,300. The Brownfield office had classed 48,833 — compared with 160,033 a year ago — and had a carryover of 6,200 for total receipts of 55,033.

ACTUAL CLASSINGS FOR THE SEASON were a combined 1,335,025 running bales at Lubbock, Levelland and Brownfield, down 78,370 bales from 1,413,395 a year ago.

The Lamesa office had classed 218,059 bales and had a carryover of 33,450, making total receipts of 251,409. With daily receipts dropping sharply, the night shift may be pulled off at Lamesa next Thursday as well as possibly a portion of the day shift.

Some trade officials now believe areawide classings from the 1980 crop could total approximately 1,860,000 running bales. This, in rough and rounded figures, would include around 1.4 million at Lubbock, a combined 160,000 at Levelland and Brownfield, and 300,000 at Lamesa.

The classing figures, for reasons noted earlier, are not necessarily an accurate gauge of the final production tally for the 25-county area in 490-pound net weight bales. The classing-production difference over the years has been highly erratic.

But it is interesting to note that the 10-year average difference between classings and final official production figures would translate into a 1980 crop — based on the latest private classings estimates — of about 2.062 million bales. The 1979 crop totaled 2,750,600 bales.

WITH A BURST OF ACTIVITY IN THE last half-hour, cotton futures Thursday rallied to the session's highs and then fell back to finish a mostly sluggish session up 60 to 75 points in current marketing year months.

For most of the session, analysts said, prices had traded within a narrow 60-point range, with many usual participants sidelined ahead of Thursday afternoon's weekly export report and today's production estimate.

Late local buying, as well as commission house and trade support, sent prices to the 94-cent level, basis spot March, where stops were triggered to send the front month to the day's high of 94.35 cents, a gain of 107 points, analysts said.

Toward the close, they added, the market fell off the highs as commission houses forcefully took profits on long positions.

"Activity overseas has picked up in the last couple of days as Japan has been a good buyer of Arizona and Texas cottons," one analyst reported.

THE OVERNIGHT EXPORT SALES WERE said to have been for both Arizona and Texas growths, with estimates on the amounts ranging from 30,000-80,000 bales.

"Domestic mill activity has been slow," the analyst said, although one of the major mills was reported to have bought approximately 25,000 bales late last week.

The USDA reported after the close that net new U. S. export sales in the week ended Jan. 1 totaled 46,100 running bales for current marketing year delivery, with a purchase by Thailand of 45,000 bales the only major transaction.

The 1980-81 export commitment — shipments plus outstanding sales — totaled 4.477 million bales. No new sales were reported for 1981-82 delivery.

Shipments for the week slowed to 101,700 bales, with 11 percent going to Europe and 84 percent to Asia, including 33,500 bales to China. This brought exports for the season to 2,149,200 running bales, compared with 2,752,700 a year ago.

AN AVERAGE OF CROP ESTIMATES made by eight commission house analysts and specialists totaled 10,851,875 bales, down from 0.79 percent from the ASDA's December estimate of 10,938 million.

Crop analysts here don't expect the High Plains estimate to change much from the December projection. They believe it could range from slightly lower to slightly higher, with a leaning to the view that a bit of an increase wouldn't be surprising.

Nor is the Texas estimate thought likely to show anything more than a relatively minor change, although some believe it could be down a maximum of possibly 50,000 bales. A basically unchanged Texas number generally wouldn't be considered surprising.

The eight commission house estimates on the U. S. crop ranged from a high of 11 million bales to a low of 10.774 million.

Trading on Telcot totaled 7,552 bales on an average price of 74.93 cents, an average of 3,445 points over the loan, with a volume of lower grade cotton pulling down the premium. There was no market difference.

Cotton in the firm offer program rose to 96,623 bales, believed to be a high for the season.

to stop their losses from mounting as the value of contracts declined. Prices also had been lower Wednesday when almost all commodities slumped amid rising interest rates.

Sources also pointed to the strengthened U.S. dollar overseas, which makes purchase of grains less attractive to European interests. They said there also is some nervousness about labor and farmer unrest in Poland.

At the close, soybeans were 8 cents to 13 1/2 cents lower, January futures at 79.98 a bushel; oats were 1 cent to 1 1/4 cents lower, March $2.22 1/2 a bushel; wheat was 1/4 cent to 1 1/2 cents lower, March $4.97 1/4 a bushel; corn was 1 1/4 cents to 5 1/2 cents lower, March $3.74 1/4 a bushel.

New Mexico Excellent For Cross-Country Buffs

By MICHAEL E. PITEL
New Mexico Tourism & Travel Division

Offering miles and miles of spectacular scenery and solitude throughout its coniferous northern mountains, New Mexico boasts of a trio of superb destination areas to meet the growing demands of enthusiasts of the fastest growing outdoor winter sport in the United States.

The activity is cross-country skiing. Its compatriots cite a number of advantages over its kissing cousin, downhill skiing: Inexpensiveness of equipment ($200 can get you top-of-the-line skis and poles); no lift tickets to buy (free skiing as opposed to $13 a crack); no waiting lines; and plenty of peace and quiet, far from the noisy crowds and the heavily trafficked downhill slopes.

For enthusiasts seeking the luxury of stepping from their lodge or cabin, strapping on their cross-country skis and slipping off into some of the most gorgeous high country in northern New Mexico, there are three places to go. They are:

Angel Fire, a 22,600-acre resort in the Moreno Valley near the Cimarron Mountains, for those who want to be pampered by posh surroundings at night (phone 505-377-2301).

Chama, a quiet village near the Brazos Mountains and the headwaters of the Rio Chama, for those who abhor crowds and savor uninterrupted scenery and solitude (505-756-2235).

And there is Red River, a rompin', stompin' resort town in the Sangre de Cristo Mountains of Carson National Forest, for those who like to party hardy all night (505-754-2366).

Angel Fire, already established as a downhill skier's delight, has a number of attractions for cross-country.

Chama, the busy summer home of the Cumbres & Toltec Scenic Railroad, is absolutely perfect for the true cross-country skier whose get-away-from-it-all spirit Craves a place few people know about.

Located far from the madding crowds, Chama has already acquired a reputation among New Mexican enthusiasts as the best place to cross-country ski in the Land of Enchantment.

Its terrain varies from flat land and rolling hills, to secluded forest roads among high ridges, mesas and towering mountains. Interspersed among trout-teeming streams and deep valleys are hidden lakes and thickly wooded forests. Understandably, Chama lures all levels of skiers.

Also, it is the scene of the most prestigious cross-country skiing event in New Mexico, the arduous Chama Chili Chase, every February. A 13-mile ascent of 10,022-foot high Cumbres Pass (the highest railroad pass still in use in North America), the race is expected to lure more than 250 participants from Arizona, Colorado, New Mexico and Utah. The entry fee for the race — slated for noon on Sunday, Feb. 15 — is $8.

A further bonus to cross-country skiing in Chama are its inexpensive accommodations. Among 13 places to stay that can house a collective 550 patrons, are six lodges that rent a combined 70 housekeeping cabins. Three of those six places are guest resorts north and south of town.

Chama also has a cross-country ski rental shop, restaurants, and a New Mexico Welcome Center.

Red River, a resort town that lures hundreds of downhill skiers on winter weekends, has a number of forest roads that radiate into the surrounding national forest. They range from easy treks to hardy excursions. Few of them even wind past played-out mines and abandoned mine buildings north, east and southeast of town.

The former gold-mining town also has nearly three dozen places to stay for almost 3,500 patrons. Some of them have housekeeping cabins with fireplaces.

Red River also has two cross-country ski rental shops, and nearly a dozen restaurants.

New Mexico doesn't stop there at cross-country skiing. The Land of Enchantment has four other cross-country skiing destinations that have cross-country ski rental shops and plenty of places to stay. However, the quartet lacks the luxury of strapping on skis and slipping off into the mountains. You'll have to drive a short distance from them in order to do that. They are:

Albuquerque, where practitioners can ride the longest tram in North America to the Crest Trail, a four-mile trek (rated beginner/intermediate) along the summit of the nearby Sandia Mountains of Cibola National Forest (505-243-4421).

Los Alamos, a short drive east of more than a dozen trails (mostly beginner level) that wind southward from the lip of the pristine Valle Grande, a huge caldera in the Jemez Mountains of Santa Fe National Forest (505-662-5595).

Santa Fe, a short drive southwest of popular Aspen Vista Trail, a six-mile ascent (intermediate/advanced) to a point overlooking Santa Fe Ski Area in the Sangre de Cristo Mountains of Santa Fe National Forest (505-983-7317).

And finally, Taos, several miles north of Penasco, a village on the fabled High Road to Taos, where Santa Barbara Campground oad winds four miles (beginner) into the Sangre de Cristo Mountains of Carson National Forest (505-758-3873).

MOVING OUT — Getting away from the crowds is a favorite attraction for cross-country skiers. These skiers are following a trail in the Santa Fe National Forest. Cross-country skiing appeals to persons of all ages, and is a popular family activity. (U.S. Forest Service Photo)

Exercise Imitates Terrorist Tactics

ASPEREN, Colo. (AP) — In a commando-style game that kept two men bound and gagged at gunpoint for four hours, FBI agents and local law officers pretended four ski resorts had been threatened with destruction unless they turned over $1 million in ransom.

Law officers faked the gunshot wound of one captive, staged the destruction of a lift tower and produced $475,000 in counterfeit ransom money before the operation ended on Wednesday.

The exercise cost $10,000 in real money to produce.

ADDED TO LANDMARKS

AUSTIN (AP) — Lost Maples State Natural Area, four miles north of Vanderpool in Bandera County, has been added to the National Registry of Natural Landmarks.

The 1,280-acre site was acquired by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department from private landowners in 1973. The department said it is noted for its isolated stand of the uncommon Uvalde bigtooth maple.

The hostage game was patterned after an actual extortion attempt two years ago when several Colorado ski areas received letters threatening to blow up lift towers if $1 million in ransom was not paid.

"Aspen is a potential spot for terrorism because we have notable figures, including movie stars, other celebrities and wealthy Arabs, coming here on a regular basis," said Aspen Police Chief Rob McClung, who helped plan the anti-terrorist game.

The simulation began on Tuesday when officials at Vail, Copper Mountain, Aspen and Keystone ski resorts received a letter from would-be terrorists who threatened to destroy 10 chairlifts. McClung, Pitkin Sheriff Dick Kienast and Aspen Ski Corp. employee Buddy Ortega were captured at gunpoint by Aspen police officer Terry Quick and FBI agent Neil Forbes.

While McClung was held captive, he said he experienced "the Stockholm Syndrome," in which hostages identify with their captors.

"When the negotiators are using delaying tactics, you can't understand why they are not trying to help you," he said. "And on the other hand, the captors are negotiating for food, they loosen your shackles and provide for your comfort."

Ortega was removed early in the game when the terrorists announced he had been shot in the knee to demonstrate their commitment to their cause.

Negotiators then declared the lift tower at Vail destroyed and the exchange of money for Kienast was arranged.

Kienast was released after negotiators decided McClung's bald head and stout figure made it easier for would-be gunmen to distinguish him from his captors. Officials turned over $457,000 in play money in return for Kienast's release.

The FBI conducts similar operations twice each year in each of its 15 regions. Tom Miller, member of the FBI Special Operations and Research Unit in Washington, D.C., said the Aspen game was a success.

Snowshoeing Popular, Easily Learned Activity For Family

Once you've tried it, you'll understand why snowshoeing is such a popular activity in snow country. Snowshoes are easy to use (just keep your feet apart) and require no formal instruction. After an hour or so of practice, you'll find yourself moving along with reasonable skill.

The Mahon Public Library in Lubbock has several books that will interest the person that may be planning to try snowshoeing for the first time. Walk into Winter by Gerry Wolfram is a complete snowshoeing and winter camping guide. The book (127 pages) explains how to select equipment, what to wear, and how to take that first adventurous step.

Cold-Weather Camping by Ray Stebbins, and The Complete Snow Camper's Guide by Raymond Bridge, have information pertaining to snowshoeing. Both books are available at the Mahon Library.

New Mexico-bound vacationers will find plenty of country that is perfect for snowshoeing. Wherever there are forest roads in the snow-covered mountains of the Land of Enchantment, you can strap on snowshoes and slip away for sylvan spectacles.

There are show-shoe rental shops in Albuquerque, Chama, Santa Fe and Taos; rental fees are $3 to $5 for a pair per day.

Guided snowshoeing hikes will be conducted in the Sania Mountains of Cibola National Forest every Saturday and Sunday, beginning this Sunday and continuing to early March.

Registered participants gather at the base of Sandia Tram in the northeast heights of Albuquerque at 11:15 a.m., on those days. There they can rent a pair of snowshoes ($4.50) and purchase a tram ticket ($6) for a 20-minute ascent to 10,678-foot high Sandia Crest.

Participants for the popular hikes must make reservations in advance through the Sandia Ranger District (505-281-3304). Note: The group excursions have already been booked to 15-person capacities for this weekend through Presidents Weekend in mid-February.

Snowshoeing is the oldest of the "Silent Sports." It is a sport that is fun and rewarding for persons of all ages. And snowshoeing in New Mexico is an absolute delight!

Disney Milestone Reached

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Gert Schelvis walked into Disneyland on a red carpet Thursday to a fanfare of trumpets and the ringing of bells. He was the amusement park's 200-millionth visitor.

"We've been here four times already," said Schelvis, a 26-year-old Santa Barbara resident accompanied by his wife Debbie and 2-year-old son Nicholas.

For his part in the historic event, Schelvis and his family received a glass key to the Disney kingdom and a lifetime pass.

"We will really enjoy that pass," Schelvis said. "It's what you could call a national institution, isn't it?" said Disneyland spokesman Bob Roth.

Park attendance had soared to a record 11.5 million in 1980, the year of Disneyland's 25th anniversary, despite a rain-soaked winter last year that sapped attendance.

"We've got a centralized counting machine and we've been keeping track of attendance since the day we opened," Roth said.

Among other gifts presented to Schelvis was a lifetime pass to the park. (AP Laserphoto)

Julie Harris Hospitalized

NEW YORK (UPI) — Actress Julie Harris has entered Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center for exploratory observation, it was learned Thursday.

A spokesman for the play, "Mixed Couples," in which Miss Harris had been costarring on Broadway, said the 55-year-old Tony Award winner was hospitalized Wednesday. "Mixed Couples" closed abruptly last Saturday after nine performances due to her illness.

The spokesman said producer Frederick Brisson hoped to revive the James Pridoux comedy with Miss Harris in the cast for a national tour in March. Costarring with Miss Harris was Geraldine Page. Other members of the cast were Rip Torn and Michael Higgins.

Presley Mansion Quiet

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Elvis Presley's uncle says Graceland mansion is quiet Thursday on what would have been the singer's 46th birthday.

"It's about as dull as I've ever seen it," said Vester Presley. "I don't know what the problem is — it could be inflation or the gas crisis."

He said about 300 persons toured the grounds Wednesday.

Presley was 42 when he died at his home Aug. 16, 1977. He is buried in a garden on the estate along with several other family members. The grounds have been opened to the public since shortly after the singer's death, but the mansion itself remains private.

VESTER PRESLEY

For the first time since his death, no ceremonies are planned at the Presley birthplace in Tupelo, Miss., about 100 miles from Memphis.

The restored shotgun-style home, a nonprofit souvenir shop and a memorial chapel built in Presley's honor have been opened to visitors in east Tupelo.

Flagman Course Rejected

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston City Council has turned down a request for $900 to hire an instructor to teach a course in flag-waving.

The proposal suggested that an instructor from Stephen F. Austin State University in Nacogdoches come to Houston and give 30 workers in the wastewater division lessons on how to be flagmen.

Councilman Dale Gorczynski said, "It's no big deal, $900. But it's a principle."

Presidential Jelly Beans

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — "We can hardly start a meeting or make a decision around here without passing around the jar of jelly beans," Ronald Reagan wrote the candymaker years ago when he was California's governor. "Thanks for helping keep state government running smoothly."

Now candymaker Herman Rowland says he stands ready to keep the president-elect well-supplied with jelly beans.

Rowland, president of Herman Goeltz Inc. of Oakland, said he has received "four or five" letters about the jelly beans from Reagan, the latest on Monday.

"It's a really neat treat to get a letter from the president," Rowland said. "We are working with his group on some ideas."

Ex-Agent Given 18-Year Term For Espionage

BALTIMORE (AP) — Former CIA agent David H. Barnett was sentenced Thursday to 18 years in prison for selling information, including the names of 30 U.S. operatives and seven potential double agents, to Soviet spies for $52,600.

Barnett could have received a life term for his guilty plea to a single count of transmitting secrets to a foreign power. He will be eligible for parole in six years.

"I don't think there is any question that you did harm to this country," U.S. District Judge Frank Kaufman told Barnett before ordering him to begin the sentence immediately. He had been free without bond.

Kaufman said he was imposing a shorter sentence because Barnett had cooperated fully with the FBI and the CIA after entering his plea last Oct. 29.

Barnett, 47, of Bethesda, Md., admitted revealing the names of seven Soviet consulate officers the CIA had sought to recruit as double agents and the identity of 30 covert CIA operatives and several foreign collaborators with the CIA.

The government has never revealed what happened to the people Barnett identified, but prosecutors said they were endangered.

"Obviously the Soviet Union thought (the secrets) had some utility because they paid good hard United States currency for the information," said U.S. Attorney David D. Queen.

A spokesman for the federal Bureau of Prisons said no decision had been made on where Barnett would be sent.

In its statement of facts about the case, the government said Barnett told the Soviets the U.S. had discovered the radio frequencies used to guide Soviet SA-2 ground-to-air missiles and the amount of time Soviet W-class submarines could stay submerged.

Barnett declined to make a statement before Kaufman sentenced him.

He had quit the CIA in 1970 in hopes of making more money, but failed as a businessman in Indonesia and mounted $100,000 in debts.

The government said that during his 3½ years as a Soviet spy Barnett managed to reveal the details of a covert CIA operation known as HA-BRINK, described as "one of its highest priority operations" in the 1960s. Justice Department attorney George Matava said the program obtained manuals and even parts from almost every weapon the Soviets had sent to a foreign nation, which sources have said was Indonesia.

The operation obtained details of SA-2 surface-to-air missiles, Styx naval cruise missiles and W-class submarines never available from any other source.

Matava said the information saved the lives of U.S. bomber pilots in Vietnam, because it enabled the United States to jam the SA-2's guidance system.

Within a week after Barnett offered his services in late 1976 to the Soviet cultural attaché in Jakarta, Indonesia, he was giving information to an agent who gave him $25,000, the government said.

Barnett made a trip to Vienna, Austria, to meet with other KGB men, but resisted trying for a CIA job for fear a lie detector test required of full-time employees would uncover his Soviet work.

Matava said. But he did agree to try to get jobs on the Senate and House intelligence committees and the White House's Intelligence Oversight Board, the government said.

Ex-Star Victim Of Robbery

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Former silent screen star Mary Miles Minter, who was robbed of $10,000 in antiques, jewelry and cash, was recovering in Santa Monica Hospital from a broken wrist and other injuries received during the theft, authorities said.

Santa Monica police said Miss Minter, 78, a semi-invalid, was asleep in her home early Tuesday when she was awakened by three intruders, one of whom matched the description of a man sought for two other robberies and a rape in Santa Monica.

The robbers bound Miss Minter and ransacked her house. Items taken by the thieves included a cedar chest filled with old linens.

Marijuana Greenhouse Found

NOVATO, Calif. (AP) — A warehouse that had been using an unusual amount of electricity was discovered to contain a sophisticated, indoor hydroponic marijuana farm, authorities report.

Police said they discovered about 200 lush marijuana plants, lit by grow lights and nourished through tubes and pipes inserted into their styrofoam soil, during a raid Wednesday in this Marin County city north of San Francisco.

Each of the plants, police estimated, would have yielded $1,000 worth of marijuana on the street.

The lighting and feeding of the plants was managed by electric timers and controls, police said.

No arrests had been made and an investigation was continuing, a police spokesman said.

Tenor Cancels Performance

LONDON (AP) — Tenor Luciano Pavarotti has cancelled his Jan. 15 opening night performance in Verdi's "Un Ballo in Maschera" at the Royal Opera House, Covent Garden, because of his father's illness.

The opera house announced that Pavarotti is expected to sing the remaining seven performances of the "Ballo" revival and a replacement will be sought for Jan. 15.

Pavarotti is in New York City where his father is undergoing surgery and the Italian tenor does not want to leave him.

Tickets for his "Ballo" performances — opposite diva Montserrat Caballe — sold out almost immediately at prices up to $65.

Community Development Grant Running Out For Apartments

By PAT GRAVES
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Security guards will not patrol Greenfair Manor apartments after March 31 if the Lubbock Housing Authority cannot come up with funds to replace a dwindling Community Development grant.

Only about $8,800 remains from a $35,000 CD grant the authority received in fiscal 1979. The grant has been used to pay an armed off-duty Lubbock policeman to patrol the half-vacant apartment complex. Two attempts to secure more CD funding have failed.

Two weeks ago the City Council rejected a Community Development Advisory Committee request for $110,000 for security patrols at both Greenfair and Hub Homes, another low-income housing project run by the authority.

Thursday the council heard a plea from newly elected authority board chairman Julian Simpson for a three-part appropriation from CD contingency funds totaling $33,900. The request, which included $18,900 to hire a security guard for June through December and $15,000 to board windows and doors of unoccupied apartments, did not make the council's final group of approved projects for CD funding.

On the suggestion of Mayor Pro Tem Alan Henry, the council did, however, agree to reconsider a portion of Simpson's proposal at its Jan. 22 meeting. That part calls for $5,500 to fund Greenfair security for April and May, to be allocated from CD contingency monies.

Simpson, who was appointed to the authority board only last month, told the council Greenfair hopes to develop a tenant security program and also will seek to incorporate security costs into its operating budget.

The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development already has told the authority it has no money available for security. HUD also is the agency which administers the CD funds the authority has been denied.

More than $800,000 has been spent from federal sources in the Greenfair area recently, and Simpson was hopeful that other CD money might be available if, as it appears, that sector becomes a target area for further expenditures.

Hub Homes has had no real security force since May 1980, Simpson said, adding there has been an increase in minor crimes in the project. Authority Community Services Coordinator Fulton Berry told board members at Thursday's meeting the biggest security problem in Greenfair is youth vandalism by outsiders, not tenants.

Simpson said he feared the gradual deterioration of both projects, which could discourage prospective renters from moving in.

Authority director D.C. Fair said three years ago it was common in the Greenfair area to find rape, shootings, drug dealing and prostitution. Berry, a former Lubbock policeman, said when he was on the force in 1977 officers feared making patrols through that part of town.

"A routine traffic ticket could result in an incident," Berry said. "It was a powder keg."

He said police-citizen relations have improved and that the security guard's presence has helped. Board member Vernon Behner pointed out the guard reduced the time police must spend in the area. Simpson mentioned that, along with the $76 per police call, to the council, hoping to show the net cost of the funding would be relatively low.

In other action, the board raised tenants' utility allowances in response to a HUD directive. The increases match the amount of increase in costs as reported by utility companies for the past three years.

Tenants will benefit by 36 per cent for electricity, 56 per cent for water and 73 1/4 per cent for gas, but assistant authority director Mary Myers said the net effect will be to reduce revenue to the authority.

Actual rent is figured based on 25 per cent of a tenant's income, and arrived at by subtracting the utility allowance from the gross rent. Fair said rents are examined annually and modified according to changes in income.

In Hub Homes, each tenant pays for the utilities he uses over a base rate. In the other three projects, tenants use their allowance to pay their utility bills directly to the companies.

Mrs. Myers said she was unsure how much revenue the authority would lose, but said it would be substantial. She added she did not know how HUD would compensate for it.

The board also charged off some $3,128 in unpaid debts owed by previous tenants and referred them to the Retail Merchants Association for collection.

Town's Name Change Prompts Suggestions

CLUTE, Texas (AP) — Cute, Texas. Clout, Texas. Ameslan, Texas.

Those are among the suggestions officials in this coastal community have received from across the nation since scheduling an April 4 vote on whether Clute should change its name.

A city charter review committee has suggested a switch to Brazoswood because some people think Clute is so abrasive to the ears it is preventing some business firms from locating here.

The Clute problem has prompted suggestions from coast to coast — Cute, Clout, Ameslan, Sweet, Honey Bun, John Wayne City.

But a Hingham, Mass., family named Clute was irate over the name change possibility. They wrote Mayor Bobby Jacobs they had been planning for six years to visit Clute but had cancelled their plans.

Winnie Sweatt of Pampa, Texas, sent this poem:

Heard the town of Clute is sad,
Over the name for years it's had.
Guess they would have rose to fame,
If it wasn't for such a name!
You wouldn't change from Clute to Brute,
Or something like the name of Fruit.
How about the name Sweet?
Or Honey Bun can not be beat.
No need to cry about the past.
Change that name for one to last.
One way to make the townfolk shout
Would be to change from Clute to Clout."
From Emil A. Gonzales Sr. of El Paso came a suggestion to drop the "l" in Clute and "you'd have a city with the cutest people in Cute, Texas, and on Valentine's Day you will celebrate the cutest couple contest."
From Buffalo, Wyo., Velma Githens suggested Clute become CLUTE:
"C is for the citizens that helped your town take root.
L is for loyalty and love that has born fruit.
U is for unity and understanding too.
T is for the toll and tears of the tested, tried and true.
E is for everyone that gives a toot.
What's wrong with being proud to be a resident of CLUTE?"
Ameslan came from Louis Levin, 42, a Maryland sign language teacher who said it would be a beautiful name because it looks very American and is short for American sign language.
Jacobs and City Manager Bill Pennington say they appreciate all the suggestions but Brazoswood remains the only alternative now under consideration.

Trio Misses Segregated Classes

BUCKEYE, La. (AP) — Three white girls failed to show up for classes and were dropped from the rolls at all-white Buckeye High School Thursday, one day after a federal judge began contempt proceedings against their parents for defying a desegregation order.

The federal judge's order called for them to be bused 15 miles to a racially mixed school in Alexandria, but they did not attend classes there. It was not known where they were, and their parents would not comment.

The girls — Michelle Laborde, 13, Linda McNeal, 13, and Ramona Carbo, 12 — had re-enrolled with a state police escort Monday at Buckeye High, which is about two miles from the rural homes.

State District Judge Richard Lee had ordered their enrollment after assuming custody of the girls, saying the dispute was purely a matter of family law and therefore came under the jurisdiction of state courts.

But U.S. District Judge Nauman Scott on Wednesday set a hearing in Alexandria for Jan. 15 to consider contempt of court charges against Lee, school officials, and the girls' parents and guardians.

Scott, who has said the girls' parents sought a custody change to avoid desegregation, will decide if Lee should be assessed $1,000 daily fines for contempt of the federal court.

COMPLETE STOCK MARKET

Mart Slide Continuing

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market suffered heavy losses for the second straight session Thursday, still reeling from the effects of a well-known investment adviser's "sell" recommendation.

Oil issues and International Business Machines, the market's No. 1 stock in total market value, were among the most prominent casualties.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 15.19 to 965.70, on top of Wednesday's 23.80 drop.

That left the average, which had risen more than 40 points in the year's first three sessions, back within 2 points of its close on New Year's eve.

New York Stock Exchange volume dropped off to 55.35 million shares from Wednesday's record total of 92.89 million.

The decline began on Wednesday after Joseph Granville of Holly Hill, Fla., recommended that subscribers to his telephone "early warning service" sell their stocks.

Late Wednesday and early Thursday, the market staged a brief recovery. But by Thursday afternoon the market was sinking fast again under renewed selling pressure.

IBM, the most active issue as of the 4 p.m. close in New York, showed a 1 1/2% loss at 67 1/2.

NEW YORK (AP)—Thursday's national market for New York Stock Exchange issues as of NYSE close. Prices and volume consolidated for securities also traded on other markets.

Article Describes Escape Attempts

By The Associated Press

In the early days of their captivity, one of the American hostages in Iran tried to escape by scaling the U.S. Embassy wall, but he was caught hiding inside an empty oil drum beside the wall, according to an underground Tehran newspaper published Thursday.

The anonymous writer of the article in Mojahed, the paper of the Islamic Socialist movement Mojahedin, claimed to have been one of the militants who seized the embassy and hostages Nov. 4, 1979. He said he left the group because he concluded the militants were not truly "anti-imperialist."

The article said three Americans tried to escape at different times, but all three attempts failed. The writer described only one of the incidents, involving an unidentified hostage.

He "knew an American who was being kept on the ground floor of the embassy tore off a screen window one night and lowered himself to the ground in front of an armed guard who had fallen into a 'sweet sleep.'" The article continued:

"The American walks past the sleeping guard and starts for the northern wall of the embassy grounds.

"Another guard patrolling the grounds spots him, orders him to halt and fires warning shots into the air.

"The hostage reacts deftly, snatching the bullet loader off the guard's gun, then sprints again for the north wall."

The story said the hostage made it to the 10-foot-high wall and jumped onto an empty oil drum to try and scale the wall.

"Other guards alerted by the sound of shooting start shooting into the air, too," the article said. "The hostage is frightened. He drops down into the barrel to hide."

After a long search, one guard decided to look over the wall and "as he lifts his foot onto the rim of the barrel, he realizes the hostage is inside," according to the writer.

Combatants Describe Heavy Fighting

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iran and Iraq claimed to have killed hundreds of each other's troops Thursday in furious infantry, armor and air battles in Iran's western highlands and southwestern oil region.

On the fourth day of the Iranian counter-offensive against Iraq's invasion force, a Tehran military communique said Iranian paratroopers and tank-led infantry dealt "crushing blows" and made "great advances" into Iraqi lines at Gilan e-Gharb on the mountainous northern end of the 300-mile battlefield.

Iraq claimed its ground forces, backed by warplanes and helicopter gunships, blunted repeated Iranian assaults against Iraqi advance positions in both Gilan e-Gharb and in Khuzistan, the southern Iranian oil province.

The Iranian communique claimed 460 Iraqi troops were killed and dozens of tanks destroyed in Thursday's fighting. That placed beyond 1,700 the number of Iraqi dead claimed by Iran since Iranian President Abolhasan Bani-Sadr ordered the counter-attack Monday.

An Iraqi communique said 1,060 Iranian soldiers had been killed over the previous 24-hour period, many in two separate clashes in Gilan e-Gharb. It said the bodies of "hundreds" of Iranian soldiers littered the snow-capped heights and claimed an additional 310 Iranians were killed in fighting at Dezful in Khuzistan.

Iraq's Deputy Prime Minister Taha Yassin Ramadan told the official Iraqi news agency Iran's losses in the four-day-old onslaught exceeded its losses during the past 15 weeks of the war but gave no figures.

The Baghdad communique said an Iranian Phantom jet and three helicopter gunships were shot down over Ahwaz, the Khuzistan capital, and Iraqi jets made 12 raids on Iranian military targets in the Khuzistan town of Susangerd, returning safely to base "after destroying a large number of enemy tanks."

The claims by the two sides in the 3½-month-old war at the head of the Persian Gulf could not be independently verified. Journalists have not been allowed up to the front lines since the Iranian offensive began.

Bani-Sadr, who is also Iran's military commander-in-chief, ordered the new campaign after coming under bitter criticism from political rivals in Iran for not taking the offensive against Iraq.

Tehran Radio said Bani-Sadr continued touring the Khuzistan battlefields Thursday.

Saudi Arabia and Kuwait had hoped to bring the two sides together for possible peace talks at an Islamic summit conference Jan. 24 in Taif, Saudi Arabia. But the Iranians have refused to attend.

Iran has been insisting on an unconditional Iraqi withdrawal from Iran before a cease-fire could be considered. Iraqi President Saddam Hussein ordered the invasion in late September to press Iraq's territorial claims against neighboring Iran.

Consumer Columnist Fired By Newspaper

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Consumer advocate Herb Denenberg has been fired as a columnist for the Philadelphia Daily News after using a local television show to criticize the newspaper's series on cancer.

Daily News Editor F. Gilman Spencer said Denenberg's dismissal Wednesday had no connection with his criticism of the series two days earlier. But he said conflicts had developed over Denenberg's commitments as consumer reporter for WCAU-TV and radio in addition to his work for the Daily News.

But Denenberg, 51, implied he had been fired after taking the cancer series to task on WCAU's "Live at Five" show Monday. He said the story wrongly suggested that cancer "hot spots" in the city were the result of industrial pollution.

Polish Union Wants Shorter Work Week

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Poland's largest independent union on Thursday demanded a five-day work week and some local chapters instructed members to stay home Saturday, raising the specter of a nationwide union-government confrontation.

In another development, Warsaw Television said there were signs of "anarchy" in scattered Polish towns including Wloclawek, Jelenia Gora, Krosno, Olsztyn, Czestochowa and Torun.

It claimed "open pressure" was being exerted on local authorities to force leadership changes and added, "This is simply a display of noisy anarchy hindering the development of public law and order."

Although the national union federation Solidarity vowed during a meeting in Gdansk to defend its demand for free Saturdays, it stopped short of threatening a nationwide strike. The action was taken despite the government's claim that a 40-hour work week would further cripple the nation's economy.

Solidarity's determination to gain free Saturdays was the first major threat to the relative calm that has prevailed in Poland since last December, when Soviet and Soviet-bloc troops massed on Poland's borders, raising fears of military intervention.

Western and Czechoslovak sources said, however, that military activity along Czechoslovakia's border with Poland has decreased.

The action by Solidarity, which claims to represent some 10 million workers, rejects outright a government plan to phase in reduced working hours. That promise was made last summer, along with an agreement to allow the creation of independent trade unions, as measures to end a series of nationwide strikes.

The government did not specify when the new working hours would go into effect and the union maintains that the government's current response is a violation of the agreement that ended the strikes.

First Deputy Premier Mieczyslaw Jagielski, who negotiated the strike settlements, said Wednesday the government could not afford a shortened work week and called on all Poles to accept a compromise.

It would allow workers two free Saturdays each month or give them all Saturdays free but add 30 minutes to each working day.

Western Nations To Discuss Poland Foreign Debts

PARIS (AP) — Top officials of the Western nations that are Poland's main creditors will meet in Paris Jan. 16 to discuss rescheduling the country's foreign debt estimated at $24 billion — banking sources said Thursday.

Poland, with a shaky economy aggravated by labor unrest, is said to be seeking to reschedule official debt payments due this year and next year and to obtain additional credits.

European governments — West Germany, France, Britain, Italy and Austria — are reported to hold about 80 percent of the debt. Representatives of these countries held an informal meeting here on the subject in December.

The United States, Canada and Japan hold the remaining 20 percent.

Poland's economy was badly hurt by a summer of strikes that brought establishment of the independent union movement. Continuing labor unrest and food shortages have further shaken the Warsaw Pact nation, arousing Western fears of intervention by the Soviet Union, Poland's neighbor to the east.

Political Pressures Felt Blocking Iran

WASHINGTON (AP) — Carter administration officials believe Iran wants to end the hostage stalemate before President-elect Ronald Reagan takes office but has been unable to do so because of internal political pressures.

"They're nervous about Reagan," one official said. "The problem is no one in Iran wants to take the responsibility for cutting a deal with the Great Satan," a term Iranian officials frequently use to describe the United States.

The official, thoroughly familiar with all aspects of the hostage crisis, said anyone in Iran who undertook such a responsibility would face "incredible political risks." The official asked not to be quoted by name.

Despite the strong consensus in Iran that the nation's long-term interests would be served by ending the deadlock, the official said prospects for a breakthrough before Reagan's inauguration Jan. 20 are "very small indeed."

To the extent that possibility exists, he added, the prospect of a Reagan presidency may be responsible.

Reagan has called the Iranians "barbarians," said that Iran should not expect better settlement terms under his administration and hinted that, after Jan. 20, all options would be open for ending the crisis.

Carter administration officials believe the uncertainties generated by Reagan's broadsides may be having an impact in Tehran. Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie said Thursday that Iranian officials seem interested in discussing U.S. counter-proposals even though Iran had said late last month that its $24 billion price-tag for ending the stalemate represented its "final offer."

Sell Clerics Idea

The key question, as outlined by officials here, is whether Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai and Executive Affairs Minister Behzad Nabavi can sell Iran's hard-line clerics on the idea of a peaceful solution to the crisis.

The clerics, who control the Iranian parliament and the Iranian media, are believed to have been primarily responsible for the $24 billion demand, which Washington has rejected as excessive. They also have been trying to strip authority from President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, who long has advocated a negotiated settlement.

Thus the signals from Iran, especially during the past few weeks, have been mixed.

Urges Spy Trial

One leading cleric, Ayatollah Mohammad Beheshti, has said the hostages should be tried as spies once the United States irrevocably rejects Iran's demands.

Radio Iran has carried that proposal a step further, ruling out any compromise with the United States and suggesting that spy trials could lead to the hostages' execution.

Nabavi, on the other hand, insisted last week that Iran is "ready to listen" to the United States. He also has said that if a U.S. proposal on financial guarantees is acceptable to the Algerian intermediaries, "it will be acceptable to us also."

Deadline Rejected

Rajai, in turn, has rejected a demand by the clerics that Iran set a deadline for U.S. capitulation to Iran's terms.

The United States long has believed that the benefits for Iran in settling the crisis are obvious. Not only would Iran receive billions of dollars in assets now frozen in the United States, it also would be able to resume normal diplomatic and trade relations with the traditionally friendly country and would win more international sympathy in its 3½-month-old war with Iraq.

The sanctions imposed by the United States and other western countries clearly have had an impact on the Iranian economy. Industrial unemployment is said to be about 50 per cent and shortages of staple items are chronic.

Difficult To Judge

But as American officials point out, the political impact of economic hardship is difficult to judge in a country where people are told by their leaders that sacrifice is a virtue.

A fundamental question being asked here is whether the forces favoring a negotiated solution to the hostage stalemate are willing and able to overrule the hard-line clerics.

The differences between the United States and Iran may be narrowing, as Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher suggested Wednesday night, but the internal struggle in Iran is still seen here as the biggest barrier to a settlement.

CRUNCH! — Seven cars, two of which were police cruisers, were damaged when a 300-foot-long crane toppled over while unloading steel at the site of the new Wayne County jail in Detroit. Four of the vehicles were parked in a no-standing zone when the crane inexplicably fell. Six persons were treated for minor injuries, but the crane operator, Ray Campbell, 62, was not injured during his abrupt trip sideways. The fine for parking in no-standing zones is normally $20 in Detroit. (AP Laserphoto)

Reagan Feels Free On Hostage Action

(Continued From Page One) briefing Wednesday, told him economic conditions are worse than they had expected. They said that in addition to the red ink, federal spending is up $45 billion over levels projected last June.

The bleak economic outlook also is reflected in predictions that the 1981 inflation rate will exceed 12 percent and the rate of unemployment may reach 8 percent.

Reagan was escorted into the State Department by Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie and Alexander Haig, designated Muskie's successor. The president-elect met with his Cabinet nominees around a large, square table in a conference room.

Reagan said it was an organizational meeting about "establishing the routine and how we're going to function, and I told them how to be courteous and kind to the press."

Rep. Bob Michel, the House Republican leader, attended part of the meeting and said he saw no indication that the new administration had any plans to delay the effective date of income tax cuts. He said any cuts "would have to be retroactive to the first of the year."

Reagan, asked if he had decided to delay the effective date, replied, "No. We're working right now on the entire package of our economic proposal which we hope to be submitting very early within a matter of weeks to the Congress. We want to submit it not piecemeal but the entire economic package."

Plans No Delay Later, after he landed in California, Reagan reiterated that he plans no delay on the effective date. "We had quite a meeting on this in Washington. All of us agreed on a total economic package."

As he prepared to leave the State Department, Reagan stopped when someone in the crowd shouted a protest against nuclear weaponry.

Reagan listened patiently as the man, who identified himself as Mickey Crowe, 23, of Eau Claire, Wis., said the United States and Soviet Union have no right to fire nuclear missiles because radioactive fallout would land in neutral countries.

"I'm going to do my best to see that there's never an occasion for anyone to fire missiles," Reagan responded.

Physician Named In another development, Reagan announced that Dr. Daniel Ruge, a Veterans Administration neurosurgeon, will be appointed White House physician. Ruge, 63, an expert on spinal cord and brain injuries, replaces Dr. William Lukash, who has served as White House physician for 14 years under four presidents. Lukash will retire Jan. 20.

In California, Reagan plans few public activities, although the city of Los Angeles is planning a celebration in his honor on Jan. 13.

Most of his time was expected to be spent at his home in Pacific Palisades consulting with key advisers, including Edwin Meese III, who will be his White House counselor, and working on his inaugural address.

Envoys Work On Terms For Hostages

(Continued From Page One) day spent their 432d day as prisoners. He came here a week later for two days of talks, and then again in December.

Benyahia delayed a planned visit to neighboring Tunisia by several hours to meet with Christopher. The Algerian foreign minister flew to Tunis Thursday afternoon, the official news agency Algerie Presse Service said.

Accompanying Christopher here were Harold H. Saunders, assistant secretary of state for Near Eastern affairs, legal adviser Roberts Owen and Arnold Raphael, special assistant to Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie.

Officials in Washington said there is a continuing lack of understanding in Tehran that President Carter cannot turn over to Iran nearly $6 billion in Iranian assets that are the subject of claims by U.S. citizens and American corporations.

Iran has offered to put up $1 billion as a guarantee to settle that much in claims, it was learned. The Carter administration has proposed that an international claims commission resolve the dispute.

U.N. Appointee Draws Fire

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — A statement by Jeane J. Kirkpatrick, the U.S. ambassador-designate to the United Nations, that she favors withdrawal of U.S. support from the world body if it works against U.S. interests drew criticism Thursday.

In Moscow, the Soviet news agency Tass called it a "tactless statement."

Mrs. Kirkpatrick, President-elect Ronald Reagan's nominee for the U.N. post, made her controversial remarks in Washington Wednesday in an address to B'Nai B'rith, the Jewish service organization.

A Third World diplomat at U.N. headquarters in New York said he hoped Mrs. Kirkpatrick would change her attitude. "I am sure when she knows the place she will feel more warmly about it," he said.

FACING CRISIS — Israel's Prime Minister Menachem Begin is shown leaving his Jerusalem office wearing a dejected expression. Begin is facing his gravest crisis since taking office in 1977. Israeli newspapers are saying he will resign next week, since there is little hope for compromise on the teachers' pay demands. (AP Laserphoto)

Council Rejects Paving Request

Some have estimated the ruling would cost the nation's banks billions on dollars in taxes.

The American Bankers Association was successful in convincing the IRS not to make the ruling four-years retroactive, as originally planned, Messengale said, and the bankers continue to work on getting the ruling revoked.

Paving Project Denied Also at the meeting, council members approved a tax break for disabled persons, but rejected a request by some Northeast Lubbock residents to have their street paved.

The measure approved by council will give disabled persons a $10,000 home-stead tax exemption. The exemption means disabled persons who own their own homes and qualify for benefits under Federal Old Age, Survivors and Disability Insurance could qualify for a $10,000 reduction in the market value of their homes for tax purposes.

An identical exemption, required by state law, already is offered by the Lubbock Independent School District and 325 persons received the exemption. If the same number apply for the city exemption, city revenues would be reduced by $21,450 per year.

Residents of the two-block-long Kemper Street lost out in their bid for paving. They complained of trucks and employees' traffic on the caliche street, creating a dust and safety problem.

The residents had asked the council to allocate about $14,700 to strip-pave the street to correct the problem. But on a 3-to-2 vote this morning, the council rejected that request.

Councilman Jack Brown, who made the motion to deny the request, said the residents' complaints had not been borne out in staff observations of traffic on the street. A staff study made during peak hours on Nov. 11 revealed only three trucks traveling on the street, while residents estimated about 30 trucks a day traverse the road.

Brown added the area surrounding the small neighborhood is destined for industrial use, according to city zoning and the city's master plan.

Brown's motion to deny the request was seconded by Councilwoman Joan Baker Councilman Bud Aderton and Mayor Bill McAlister voted against Brown's motion.

At the request of members of the Lubbock Industrial Development Corp., the council approved the issuance of $500,000 in industrial revenue bonds to pay for the relocation of facilities of the Magnolia Seed Co.

Corporation president Peck McMinn said the lawn and garden supply wholesaler plans to use the bond funds to move from its Fourth Street and Avenue H location to 66th Street and Magnolia Street. He said the move will create four additional jobs.

Arts Projects Funded On the recommendation of the cultural affairs council, council members approved five arts projects for funding from the hotel-motel tax.

David Hess, vice president of the cultural affairs council, told the council the group recommended funding for KTX-T-FM, $2,000 for the purchase of classical records; the Lubbock Civic Choral, $2,500 for the group's 1980-81 season; the city parks and recreation department, $20,000 for the development of a fine arts center; the Texas Tech Department of Music, $1,900 to bring in two guest artists; and Lubbock Christian College, $475 to purchase a final painting to complete a collection of portraits of American presidents.

Accident Victim Awarded Money MOUNT HOLLY, N.J. (AP) — A 27-year-old Willingboro man who suffered massive facial injuries in a car accident and underwent 20 operations has been awarded $3.3 million.

Michael J. Schettini's car was struck head-on in 1976 in New Brunswick by a car driven by Cesar G. Perez of Piscataway. Perez, an American Telephone & Telegraph Co. employee, was driving a car leased by the utility from Car Rental Inc. of Piscataway.

Perez, the utility company and the leasing company were sued.

Begin Faces Crisis, May Resign Soon JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin, challenged by his worst government crisis, may resign next week to set the stage for new elections as early as this spring, government sources said Thursday.

After weeks of negotiations, Begin said Sunday was the deadline for resolving a split between two key Cabinet ministers over teachers' salaries.

If either Finance Minister Yigal Hurvitz or Education Minister Ze'evulun Hammer quits, sources say Begin will offer his own resignation or act to dissolve Parliament and hold elections.

Begin has not taken a public position on the teachers' dispute or the Cabinet crisis. Begin's spokesman said the prime minister had not decided what to do if he failed at Sunday's meeting to force a compromise between Hurvitz and Hammer.

"I see no way out," said an official in Begin's office. "Neither of the ministers is showing any signs of backing down."

Begin's ruling Likud coalition is now walking a thin wire in the Knesset (parliament), controlling just half of the 120 seats and relying on the support of independents to remain in power.

The resignation of either minister and the loss of his party to the coalition would reduce Begin's support below the required 50 percent.

Hurvitz, who leads a three-man faction, wants the government to abrogate its promise to improve teachers' pay, saying it is more important to fight inflation that is now hitting a yearly rate of

In other matters the commission approved: — H.A. Sessions' request for a zone change from single family to high-density apartment to allow construction of efficiency apartments west of Frankford Avenue between 36th and 37th Streets.

— Sanford Whitaker's request from Texas Bank and Trust Company for an apartment-medical specific use zoning to allow conversion of duplexes into professional offices at 2433 20th St.

— Sam Reyes' request for a zone change from R-2 to R-2 specific use to allow townhouses at 5402 34th St.

Numerous zoning changes in the Whisperwood addition, requested by Jerry Bradshaw of Tara Land Co., also were approved. But many details, such as cul-de-sacs and street islands, were turned over to the city staff to work out with the developer before the matter comes before the commission for final approval.

Commissioners also Thursday amended Sonny Arnold's request for zoning to allow commercial use and townhouse use south of 87th Street and east of University Avenue to allow townhouses only.

Boat Sinking Drowns 70

MACAPA, Brazil (AP) — A boat carrying the wives and children of Brazilian workers sank in a tributary of the Amazon River near here, drowning at least 70 people, authorities said Thursday. Seventy-seven others were feared dead and only two of the 149 passengers were known to have survived, they said.

The boat sank Tuesday night in the Jari River in extreme northern Brazil, about nine miles upriver from Macapa, capital of the Brazilian jungle territory of Amapa, the governor's office confirmed.

The boat reportedly was carrying mostly women and children, the families of workers at the huge Jari development project of American shipping billionaire Daniel K. Ludwig in the Amazon jungle, the governor's office said. All the passengers were thought to be Brazilians, officials said.

The public security department of Amapa territory said the cause of the sinking was not known.

Brady Resident Reports Items Taken From Truck

A Brady resident told Lubbock police Thursday that $550 worth of goods were stolen from his truck at 6025 Ave. A between 9 p.m. Wednesday and 7:45 a.m. Thursday.

Reports show that three CB radios, an 8-track tape player, tools and a hydraulic jack were taken from Domingo R. Cortez' truck. Three windows were broken on the vehicle with damages estimated at $450.

A marble grave cover was stolen from the City of Lubbock Cemetery between 4 p.m. Jan. 1 and noon Thursday, according to police reports.

The value was estimated at $475.

A 15-year-old Lubbock girl told police she was threatened by a man with a gun in her bedroom early Thursday but that she managed to escape by taking the offensive.

The teen-ager told police she was asleep when the man woke her and said "Get up! I have a gun!"

The girl sat on the edge of her bed and asked the man to help her up, reports said. When the gunman came close, she grabbed his hair with one hand and the gun with the other.

The gunman fell, reports said, enabling the girl to run to a neighbor's house.

Investigation showed the back door to the house had been pried open, reports said. The girl said the gunman was wearing a gray rubber ski mask and brandishing a blue steel revolver.

The girl's brother was asleep on the couch in the living room during the entire incident, reports said.

The gunman was described as a tall, white male, 26 to 35 years old, with brown hair.

In another incident, a man wearing only a coat and a woman's slip grabbed an eight-year-old girl walking home from school at 3:05 p.m. Wednesday and exposed himself to her.

The man, described as a tall, white male with light brown hair, approached the girl in the 5900-block of Nashville Avenue, reports said. The man, who was standing near a silver or grey late model Monte Carlo, told the girl her mother was at the mall and wanted him to pick her up, police said.

According to reports, the girl hesitated because she did not recognize the man, but he grabbed her and made her lie down in the front seat.

The girl told police the man drove into an alley where he relieved himself near a dumpster. Reports said the man let the girl go after he exposed himself to her, and the girl ran home to her sister, who called police.

In another criminal incident, two Texas Tech students told police someone broke into the rear garage apartment at 1617 Ave. Y between 5 p.m. on Dec. 19 and 4 p.m. Wednesday and stole $4,205.

Death was attributed to natural causes.

The Lingville native had resided in Big Spring from 1927 to 1971 when she moved to Levelland. She was an employee at Webb Air Force Base, which was named for her son, Louis, until her retirement in 1966. She was a Methodist and a Gold Star Mother.

Survivors include a daughter, Niha Rose Walker of Levelland; a brother, J. Rex Davis of Carlsbad, N.M.; four grandchildren; and eight great-grandchildren.

Mary Wellman

TURKEY (Special) — Services for Mary C. Wellman, 80, of Turkey will be at 2 p.m. Saturday in First Baptist Church here with the Rev. Melvin Clinton, pastor, officiating. Assisting will be Brett Parsley, minister of the Turkey Church of Christ.

Burial will be in the Hulver Cemetery under direction of Seigler Funeral Home of Turkey.

Mrs. Wellman died Thursday morning at her residence. Justice of the Peace Curtis Tunnel of Turkey ruled the death by natural causes.

She was born in Guthrie, Okla., and lived in the Turkey area for 57 years. The former Mary C. Imel married William Wellman on March 19, 1926, in Memphis. He died Nov. 18, 1976. She was a member of the First Baptist Church of Turkey.

Survivors include three sons, Carl Thompson of Evafla, Okla., Lloyd of Shallowater and Harvey of Wellman; two daughters, Fay Cavley of Turkey and Owana Turner of Mesquite; a brother, John Imel of Tulsa, Okla.; a sister, Mattie Weatherly of Memphis; 13 grandchildren, and eight great-grandchildren.

Rodney Charles Logsdon, 24, and Donnie Dee Lewis, 20, told police they came back after Christmas vacation to find their apartment broken into through the window at the front of the structure.

Missing were a portable black-and-white TV, 100 albums, two gold wedding bands, a stereo system and clothes.

Four persons reported having items stolen from their cars Wednesday night from the west parking lot of the fair grounds on the 800-block of Ave. A.

Norma Evorene Visage, 56, of Wolf-forth said personal records, soft drink cases and tapes and records were taken from her car. Also an attempt to remove her radio in the dash caused considerable damage, reports said. The total loss was estimated at $954.

Frank Mendoza Alvarez, 26, of Morton told police a tire, a wheel and a jack were taken from the bed of his pickup truck.

Also, Isaak K. Wiebe, 22, of Seminole said a graphic equalizer, a stereo and a tape case were stolen from his car. His loss was estimated at $480, reports said.

Mathew "Stymie" Beard, one of the "Our Gang" comedy actors who were known on television as "The Little Rascals," died Thursday at a Los Angeles hospital. He was 57.

Beard suffered a stroke last Friday and was admitted to Los Angeles County-USC Medical Center where he died this morning.

His sister Loretta Beard described "Stymie" as "the little baldheaded kid with the derby," his trade marks in the once popular movie and TV series.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Beard leaves five brothers in addition to his sister.

He was divorced and had no children.

AUSTIN (AP) — What the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department calls the "most significant" fish catch of 1980 was made by Jim Kimbell of Pittsburg, who landed a 14-pound 1½-ounce largemouth bass at Lake Monticello in Northeast Texas.

Kimbell's fish was a Florida largemouth that had been stocked in the lake and broke a 37-year-old state record. Department biologists had predicted the introduction of the Florida strain of fish would produce a state record.

Housing Seminar Slated At Tech

Two one-day seminars designed for potential homeowners, contractors, architects and engineers interested in earth-sheltered housing will be conducted at Texas Tech University today and Saturday.

Designed for the layman or professional unfamiliar with earth-sheltered housing, the seminars will examine the advantages, problems and special considerations connected with this energy-efficient, storm-resistant housing design.

Speakers will be Dr. E.W. Kiesling, chairman of Tech's Civil Engineering Department; Richard A. Behr, Tech civil engineering research associate; Ray Boothe, architect with Boothe & Associates of Fort Worth; and Raymond Powell, Lubbock architect and engineer.

Both today's and Saturday's sessions will begin with an 8 a.m. registration in Room 169 of Tech's Home Economics Building. Registration costs $45 and may be paid at the door, although participants are requested to notify the Civil Engineering Department in advance by calling (806) 742-3525.

Kiesling explained that earth-sheltered dwellings are designed to reduce the wall and roof areas in direct contact with the atmosphere. By partially excavating sites, building the housing unit and covering much of the walls and roof with soil, homeowners can realize several advantages over conventional homes.

ROUNDUP

County Slates 'Farm Facts Day'

LITTLEFIELD — Lamb County's annual Farm Facts Day has been scheduled for Monday in Littlefield and Springlake. The meeting in Littlefield will be from 1:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. in the Lamb County Agriculture and Community Center. The Springlake program will be from 7 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. in the Springlake Community Center on Texas 385. The annual programs will feature Dr. James Supak, cotton specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, who will speak on "Making Cotton Work in '81." Dr. James Leser, area entomologist with the extension service, who will speak on pest management; and Leon New, area agricultural engineer and irrigation specialist with the extension service, whose topic will be "Pumping Equipment Performance and Fuel Cost." Marvin Sartin, area economist with the extension service, will present programs on computers in farming and the agricultural outlook for 1981.

New Chamber Head Elected

CHILDRESS — John Lott has been elected president of the Childress Chamber of Commerce. The new president assumed his duties Jan. 1. He is owner of the Childress Otas-co store.

Other incoming officers include W.J. Hubanks, business manager at Childress General Hospital, vice president; Wayland Bratcher, manager of Montgomery Ward's here, second vice president; and Stanley Terry, owner of Circle N. Cleaners, secretary-treasurer. New members of the board of directors are Bruce Evans, manager of West Texas Utilities in Childress; Charlene Smith, a First State Bank vice president; Joe Robinson, owner of Wash Pot Laundry; Gene Anderson, owner of Anderson's Studio; and Hubanks and Bratcher.

Directors beginning the second year of their terms of office include past president Ray Leatherwood of Leatherwood Enterprises; Herold Kitchens of White Auto; Lorene Raines, Lorene's Paint 'N Place; Mark Hutsell, Hutsell Jewelry; and Terry and Lott.

Former Cowboy To Speak At Banquet

CHILDRESS — Former Dallas Cowboy John Niland will be featured speaker at the Childress Chamber of Commerce Banquet set for Jan. 24 in Fair Park Auditorium.

Tickets for the affair now are on sale and may be obtained at the chamber office or from any director.

Chamber officials are accepting nominations at the chamber office for the annual outstanding man and woman of the year awards. Recently elected Chamber President John Lott said letters of nomination may be sent to the Chamber of Commerce, and should list reasons why the candidates are suggested for the community service awards.

SBA Loan Office Opens

CLOVIS, N.M. — William E. Giennon of Albuquerque, district branch manager of the Small Business Administration, has announced the opening of a temporary disaster loan office here for farmers and ranchers in Curry and adjacent counties.

Temporary offices have been opened in Room 210 of the Federal Building here, where loan applications and other disaster information may be obtained. Giennon said the temporary disaster loan office will remain open until more permanent quarters are obtained.

Hours will be from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Because of this summer's drought, he said, many farmers are eligible for SBA loans.

Littlefield Chamber Elects Officers

Other recently elected officers include Billy Tom Grant, administrative vice president; Deryl Bennett, activities vice president; Bob Hale, industrial vice president; and Charles Hinds, agricultural vice president. Tom Hilburn will serve as treasurer.

Elected to serve three-year terms on the Board of the Littlefield Chamber of Commerce were Ray Lynn Britt, Charles Hinds, Pete Simmons, Bob Hale and Bill Minyard.

Man Convicted Of Possessing Illegal Plants

A Lubbock man was convicted of possession of marijuana Thursday for growing the illegal plants in a backyard greenhouse and will be sentenced by 99th District Court Judge Thomas L. Clinton at a later date.

Michael Philip Lewaren of 2528 69th St. faces a possible sentence of from two to 10 years imprisonment for the offense, a third-degree felony. A Lubbock County jury took about 30 minutes early Thursday afternoon to hand down the guilty verdict, after hearing more than a day of testimony.

Defense attorney Dan Hurley argued that mere presence of the substance in Lewaren's back yard was not enough to prove that Lewaren actually had possession of the marijuana. Hurley had called a witness earlier in the trial who testified that Lewaren had two sons, ages 17 and 19, living at his home at the time of the incident.

Hurley stressed before the jury that the two young men living in the house should be considered before convicting their father.

But prosecutor John Tabor countered with "Any decent parent would go out and pull it up if it belonged to the children."

Hurley argued that two Drug Enforcement Administration officers may have changed their stories to meet the circumstances required for a conviction. He cited their claims that they confiscated 19 pounds of marijuana as false, saying that after dirt and non-useable portions were removed, no more than four pounds of the contraband substance would be left.

Well, that upsets me, Tabor said of Hurley's accusation that the DEA officers had changed their stories. "I don't know what it does to you," he argued to the jury.

Priorities Approved By Chamber

By JOE GULICK
 Avalanche-Journal Staff
 The Lubbock Chamber of Commerce board of directors Thursday voted to approve a list of recommended state legislative priorities drawn up by the chamber's governmental affairs committee.

The committee mailed in mid-December a survey on state legislative issues to about 1,800 chamber members. The four-page survey included items of economic development, education, community development, criminal justice, governmental operations, transportation and natural resources. Participants were given the opportunity to list issues which they felt had the highest priority.

In response to the survey, 417 completed forms were turned in and the results were tabulated and organized by the governmental affairs committee. Buddy Forbess, committee chairman, presented the results to the chamber board today for approval.

When the list of recommended state legislative priorities is in its final form, the lists will be distributed to state legislators, Forbess said.

The list is intended to represent the positions of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce on the appropriate legislative issues, he said.

The Chamber will support funding of the Texas Tech School of Nursing and legislation to spread the costs of salaries of doctors in teaching hospitals to residents state-wide rather than in the local area served by the teaching hospital.

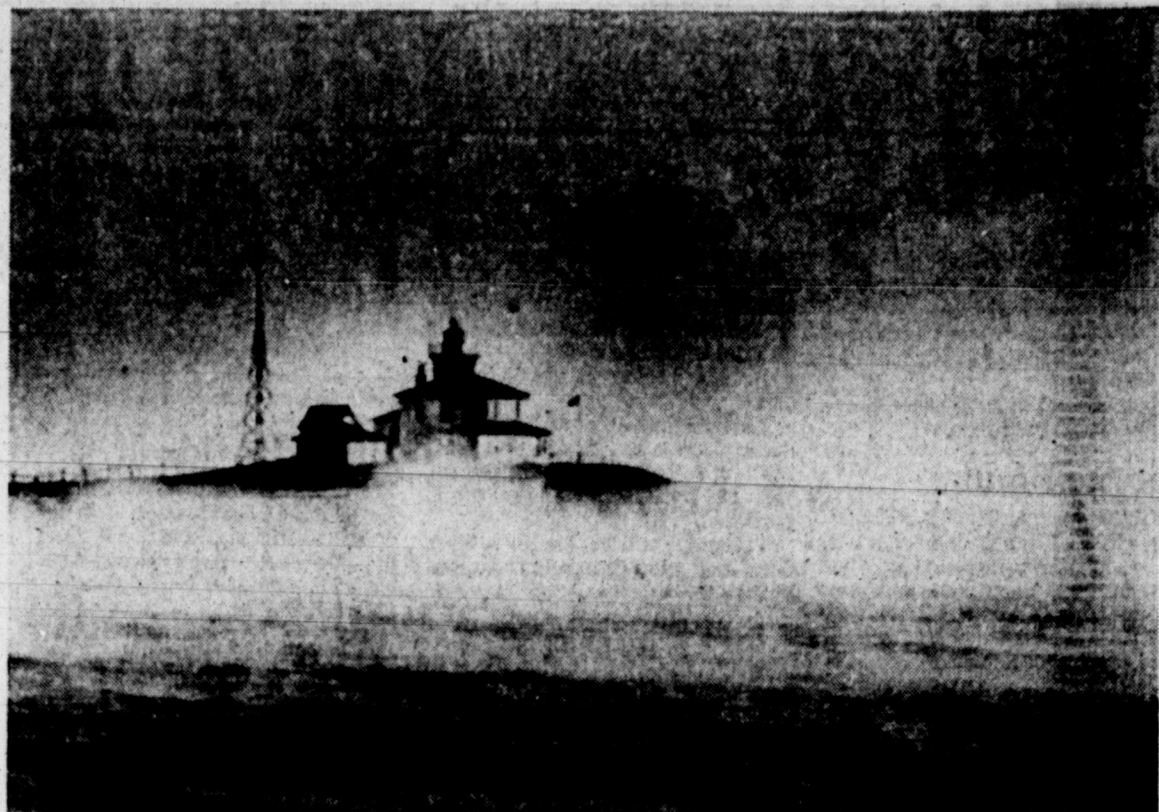

Texas Tech University President Laura Cavazos, who sits on the Chamber board of directors, pointed out that placing the salaries of the doctors on local residents is unfair, because the doctors graduating are likely to move to other parts of the state when they graduate.

In the area of governmental operations, the Chamber will support state funding of juvenile probation programs under direction of State District Judges of Texas and will support legislation allowing municipal utilities and utilities franchised by a city the right to extend service to newly annexed areas of that city.

The Chamber supports a proposal requiring the state to furnish a fiscal impact statement of any state project concerning its cost to any local governments that might be affected.

In the area of criminal justice, the Chamber is supporting legislative efforts to secure a Court of Civil Appeals in Lubbock. They also will support proposals allowing properly obtained oral confessions to be admissible as evidence in a court and allow the Department of Public Safety to operate, with prior judicial approval, wiretaps against alleged drug traffickers.

In the area of economic issues, the Chamber will oppose any legislation allowing a state corporate or personal income tax, but will support removing interest rate ceilings and thereby aid in the availability of capital.

Suit Filed Against Company In Alleged Oil Fraud Scheme

By CAROL HART and JAMES WERRELL
 A-J Correspondents

BIG SPRING — Cosden Oil and Chemical Company filed a $1.5 million civil lawsuit Thursday in state District Court against Jaco Oil Company of Midland in connection with an alleged oil fraud scheme here.

Named in the suit, which was filed in 118th District Court here, are Jaco president Dwight Chester "Butch" Wheeler and John Theford Sims, a Jaco employee. Also named were the Jaco and Wheelco Oil Companies, which share offices in Midland's Oil and Gas Building.

John Dunlap, attorney for Cosden, flew into Big Spring Thursday morning to file the suit for the company. He is a member of the Dallas firm of Seay, Gwinn, Crawford, Mebus and Blakeney, which has been retained by Cosden.

The petition filed with Judge James Gregg alleges that a conspiracy on the part of the defendants resulted in the loss in excess of $500,000 to Cosden through fraud.

In addition to these losses, the company is asking for $1 million in exemplary damages.

The petition alleges that on Dec. 19, 22 and 24, the defendants claimed to deliver 686.49 barrels of crude oil through the Cosden pipeline. They then submitted invoices to Cosden "indicating that defendants were entitled to be paid for (the) oil when in fact no such oil was delivered," according to the petition.

This practice, Cosden officials also claim, occurred on other occasions.

The lawsuit stems from a criminal investigation, began in October, coordinated by Texas Ranger Eddie Almond. Investigators allege that the same tank of oil was repeatedly sold to Cosden Oil and Chemical, but no oil was ever pumped into the Cosden pipeline.

The alleged offense took place on the W.B. Currie lease, five miles west of Fortson and north of the Continental Oil lease in that area, according to authorities. Sims, the Jaco employee named in the civil suit, was arrested Monday in connection with the alleged scheme and he has been charged with theft of crude oil.

Sims was released Monday on $20,000 bond.

Home Buyers Flock To Apply For Loan Program

By MARY ALICE ROBBINS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The opening day for a new $43 million loan program offering below-market interest rates to prospective Lubbock home buyers attracted a steady flow of applicants to participating lending institutions Thursday.

Plains National Bank official Jim Shearer said he found about a dozen applicants lined up in front of the bank's doors early Thursday morning when he arrived at work.

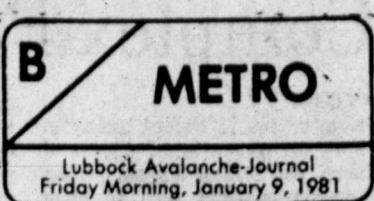

But Shearer and other lenders interviewed said that Lubbock is not experiencing the long lines of applicants as have other cities where similar bond-funded loan programs have been offered.

Spokesmen at most of the 12 participating lending institutions said they have received numerous phone calls from individuals interested in the program.

"We've had many, many inquiries,"

Mortgage Bond Data Incorrect

The Avalanche-Journal incorrectly reported Thursday that those who sell houses to persons obtaining money through the mortgage bond program must pay 4 1/2 points. Instead, the buyers must pay 4 1/2 percent plus 5 percent down.

Lubbock Avalanche-Journal
Friday Morning, January 9, 1981

said Lubbock National Bank vice president Marland Ribble. He noted that LNB loan officials had appointments throughout the day with applicants hoping to qualify for the loans.

Steve Phillip, vice president at First National Bank, reported a similar situation in his loan department. "I would imagine it will be pretty busy here for the next several days," Phillip said.

The home mortgage loans are being offered at an 11.05 percent interest rate and are available on a "first-come-first-served" basis. Loans obtained through the program can be used to purchase either new or existing single-family houses.

"With the market conditions as they are today, they (loans through the new program) are probably the best available vehicle for people who want to buy a new home," Ribble said.

Money for the loan program was provided through the sale of tax exempt bonds by the non-profit Lubbock Housing Finance Corp. The bonds will be repaid as the loans are repaid.

The program is aimed at low-and-moderate-income persons who earn less than $40,000 per year, explained corporation president M.B. Smith Jr.

Under the program, Smith said, the maximum loan amount available is $80,000. Participating lenders will provide loans up to 95 percent of the sales price of a home.

Burl Greaves, president of State Savings and Loan Association, said most lenders will require program participants to make "a good faith deposit" of three percent of the loan plus $200 at the time of the loan application.

The three percent deposit will be refunded when the sale of the house closes, Greaves said. Applicants who fail to qualify for the loan program also will have their deposit returned, but those who decide not to close the deal will forfeit their deposit money, he explained.

Home buyers also will have to pay a 4 1/2 percent commitment fee, Greaves said. And either the buyer or the seller, or a combination of both, will have to pay the 4 1/2 points required under the loan guidelines, he added.

The new loan program is expected to boost the city's flagging housing market during the next several months. "I imagine this weekend will be very productive for the Lubbock housing market," Greaves said.

To qualify for the below-market loans, Smith said applicants must take their sales agreement for a house, W-2 forms from 1979 and their 1979 income tax returns to one of the 12 participating lending agencies.

Those that are participating in the loan program are Briercroft Savings and Loan, First Federal Savings and Loan, First National Bank, Investors, Inc., The Loams and Nettleton Co., Lubbock National Bank, Mortgage and Trust Inc., Plains National Bank, Sentry Savings Association, State Savings and Loan Association, West Central Investment Corp. and West Texas Savings Association.

New Ranching Heritage Association Head Named

By GERRY BURTON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Alvin G. Davis of Brownfield, who has enthusiastically supported heritage appreciation for years while helping develop the South Plains, Thursday was named executive vice president and managing director of the Ranching Heritage Association.

He assumes duties Feb. 2 with offices in the David M. DeVitt and Mallet Ranch Building at the Ranching Heritage Center.

The announcement was made at a meeting of the association's executive committee at the RHC.

Directions his life has taken over the years, Davis said, now seem "always another step along the cowboy heritage trail" which brought him to his new position.

He has worn many hats, all western, since growing up on a Garza County farm just outside the Catclaw Pasture of the John B. Slaughter U Lazy S Ranch.

After obtaining a degree in agriculture from Texas Tech, he wore the hat of a banker with farm and ranch advisory duties in Brownfield and New Mexico for 14 years.

And for two decades, his western wear stores in Lamesa, Levelland and Brownfield kept him close to the cowboy scene, due in large part to an awards segment aiding rodeo and Appaloosa horse shows he was promoting on the side.

A feud with trophy companies over horse confirmation led to his latest avocation, bronze sculpture — first for award plaques and then for western art itself.

On the civic scene, he served with the South Plains Association of Governments and is a member of the Brownfield City Council. He also works with all Brownfield development boards and the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

Unlike most cowboy fans, he recalls to the day the beginning of his fascination with western heritage — July 4, 1935.

"I was 7, seeing my first rodeo at the Texas Cowboy Reunion. Will Rogers had been seen in the crowd that morning, and all afternoon he was in the arena, riding a gray horse of Scandalous John Selman's."

When contestants turned a calf loose, Rogers displayed several fancy rope

Resignation Of Killion Surprises Tech Regents

By DEBBI STALTER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

One of two Texas Tech University regents who met with Tech President Dr. Lauro Cavazos concerning the resignation of veteran band director Dean Killion said Thursday he was surprised more communication within the administration did not precede the announcement of Killion's stepdown.

Board of Regents member Don Workman said he and regent Lee Stafford met with Cavazos Wednesday after learning Tuesday night that Killion would no longer serve in his 21-year capacity as director of the "Goin' Band from Raiderland."

Killion announced his resignation Wednesday after meeting the day before with Len Ainsworth, interim vice president for academic affairs; Lawrence Graves, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences; and music department chairman Harold Luce.

Killion said the meeting with the three officials was an "announcement-type" gathering in which he was asked to resign with no alternatives left open.

"I never had the slightest thought of retiring," Killion said Wednesday, noting that although he was aware of past attempts "at the lower level" to seek his resignation, this is the first time the effort was pushed so far.

"It came as quite a surprise to me," he said.

The announcement also came as quite a shock to the Board of Regents.

Workman said he only knew of the announcement after the meeting with Killion Tuesday afternoon, which he said prompted him and Stafford to contact Cavazos to find out the reasons behind the action.

Workman indicated that there was a great deal of sentiment for Killion among the regents, but said that he feels the board will stay out of the matter and let the decision stand.

Workman said only employment matters involving those of the ranks of vice presidents and coaches and higher officials have to be approved by the regents.

Workman said he was told during the meeting with Cavazos that the music department feels that a decrease in enrollment in the band has contributed to an overall decrease in students within the music department.

Killion argues that the enrollment in the entire department is not necessarily traceable to him, citing a decline in vocal classes with which he is not concerned.

Workman said the question of Killion's position was never brought before the regents, but that the board agreed upon hiring Cavazos as Tech president that lower-echelon decisions on employment would stop at the president's office.

Workman added, however, that "I was surprised that a decision of this magnitude was made without some flow of information through the administration."

Killion underwent major surgery to remove a brain tumor in 1978, but said Wednesday that health was not a factor in prompting his resignation.

Stafford said he has been instructed by Tech's legal counsel not to comment on the reason behind Killion's resignation or any future action the regents might take concerning the matter.

"I'll probably forever be teaching some sort of band," Killion said, adding that a position with a junior high school might be attractive to him in the future.

But the longtime conductor, whose resignation goes into effect Jan. 19, said he wouldn't be looking for another job if he had a choice.

He said he will continue to teach conducting and music education classes through the spring semester, but after that time he is unsure what his plans will be.

He said each time he has taken over a directorship, he has determined whether

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

Returning anything to a department store for adjustment is one of my favorite things. It ranks right there under getting three estimates on a crushed car door.

It isn't that the salespeople give you a bad time, it's just time-consuming.

On Christmas when I opened a box containing a blouse, a cardigan and slacks, I was flattered that my husband saw me as a 5-10, 36-pound girl.

"The pants have Cheryl Tiegs right on the pocket," he said proudly. I weighed more than Cheryl Tiegs at my birth.

"Maybe you could exchange them for a designer with a longer name and a bigger pocket," he said.

The day after Christmas I tried on the blouse. The sleeves held my arms to my side like a vise. The sweater would never button in this life.

Two days after Christmas, the department store set up special desks to handle the returns more efficiently. I took a second look at my outfit.

"How are you at handling stress, Cheryl?" I said in the closet to no one in particular. If I did without breakfast, didn't drink a glass of water in 36 hours, left the top zipper open, secured the zipper with a pin to keep it from easing on down, rolled up the legs and wore an overblouse, I could get by with it. I hung them in the closet and watched TV.

Four days after Christmas, my husband asked if I had returned my outfit. I took another look at the blouse. If I did arm circle exercises every morning for the next year, rolled up the sleeves, didn't button the two bottom buttons and didn't use my hands or shoulders to open doors, answer phones or drink coffee, I could wear it under a coat. I hung it up in the closet.

A few days ago, I ran across the box holding the Christmas sweater. I thought about returning it when I took another look at it. What the heck, if I hung it loosely over my shoulders and looped the arms under my chin and looked breathless like I'd just come off the courts, it would fit like a glove. I took it out of the box, threw away the tags and sales slips and viewed my coordinated sports outfit that Barbie would have to wear a truss to get into.

Foolish? Maybe. On the other hand, there isn't a day goes by that I'll not look at that trio and quote a wise man who once said, "Some men see things as they are and say why. I dream of things that never were and say why not?"

Peanut Outlook Improving

TIFTON, Ga. (Special) — Peanuts, peanut butter and other peanut products should continue to be available to consumers in sufficient quantities through most of 1981, despite a peanut crop shortfall of 46 percent, a peanut growers group said today.

J. Tyron Spearman, spokesperson for the Georgia, Alabama and Florida peanut growers, said "Consumers have heard reports of peanut and peanut butter shortages since the shortfall was announced last month. However, last year's surplus crop of peanuts, plus the existence of new imported peanuts this year, should carry most peanut and peanut butter lovers well into 1981."

Until 1980, there had always been an oversupply of peanuts in the U.S., Spearman noted. Last year, for example, Americans consumed 1.28 million tons of peanuts out of a crop totalling 1.9 million tons. The United States Department of Agriculture reports that this year's peanut crop is expected to total 1.04 million tons.

In addition to last year's carryover, this year's peanut outlook will be strengthened by the Carter Administration's recent easing of the 27-year-old peanut import restrictions. Two hundred million pounds of shelled peanuts will be allowed to be imported into the U.S. during the first half of 1981.

"There should be an adequate supply of peanuts, peanut butter and other peanut products on supermarket shelves next year," Spearman said, "although prices may be slightly higher."

This is the first peanut crop shortfall in 26 years and Spearman expressed confidence that peanut growers will yield a bumper crop in 1981. He points specifically to the additional 125,000 acres that the USDA has allotted for next year, the addition of irrigation systems in the South and an adequate seed supply as positive indicators that provide hope for peanut butter lovers everywhere that 1981 will be a better year.

The 46 percent peanut crop shortfall this year was caused by severe draught and heat in the Southwest and South major peanut-producing states in the U.S.

Sleep Disorders Clinics Provide Answers To Complex Problems

NEW YORK (Special) — Knowledge gained through sleep research in recent years is rapidly being put to practical use, according to The Better Sleep Council, an organization that makes available information on sleep.

The number of sleep disorders centers or clinics in this country has increased from a mere three or four in the early 70's to over 30 at present. And, reports the Council, that number is expected to double within the next five years.

Sleep disorders clinics are usually units of hospitals or medical centers where individuals with persistent, life-disrupting sleep disorders can go for diagnosis and treatment; an estimated 10 million Americans fall into this category. Data on success rates is still being gathered, but according to Dr. Merrill Mitler, secretary of the Association of Sleep Disorders Centers, it's generally held that the vast majority of patients seen at these centers are helped overcome their sleeping difficulties.

Because of the multi-faceted nature of sleep disorders, most centers are staffed with sleep specialists from different disciplines — neurologists, psychiatrists, cardiologists, otolaryngologists, and pulmonary and internal medicine specialists. Because it is often necessary to evaluate certain bodily functions while a patient sleeps, all centers contain bedrooms and sophisticated equipment.

Though procedures vary from clinic to clinic, those belonging to the Association of Sleep Disorders Centers follow specific guidelines for handling patients, says the Council.

Prior to someone's first appointment, most centers will request that medical records be forwarded and that the individual keep a complete log of their sleep habits for a few weeks.

At the initial evaluation, which can take a few hours, a patient will undergo a complete physical, neurological and, in some cases, psychiatric examination; he or she will be asked to supply medical and sleep history and to take a series of simple tests to further ascertain sleep habits and psychological state.

Most individuals must then have their actual sleep patterns assessed for an accurate diagnosis to be made. Depending on the person's problem, the sleep recording, or polysomnogram, will be made during one or more naps or full night's sleep. Before retiring, a trained technician will hook the patient up to a series of electrodes and sensors so that certain physiological activities such as brain waves, eye and leg movements, and respiration and heart rate can be monitored.

Electrodes are small metal disks or cups at the end of wires connected to monitoring devices called polygraphs; having them attached to the skin surface on the head, body or limbs is completely painless. Once in place, they are comfortable and patients are able to sleep without difficulty.

Except for the monitoring devices, sleeping in a sleep disorders center is much like sleeping anywhere else. Each private room has a comfortable bed, nightstand and light. If desired, it's permissible to read or watch television before dozing off. The technician will be in a room nearby throughout the night observing the polygraph recordings and, in some cases, the movements of the sleeping patient through closed-circuit television. If one needs to communicate with the technician, a two-way intercom is close to the bed.

Upon waking in the morning, the patient will probably be offered a cup of coffee, chatted with briefly and sent on his way.

After all the pertinent information is gathered, the specialists in the unit collaborate to determine the diagnosis and treatment plan. Depending on the particular case, treatment will be provided by the center, the physician or other appropriate source and will consist of behavior or drug therapy or psychiatric or psychological counseling. In some cases of sleep apnea, surgery may be necessary to keep the air passage open during sleep.

According to the Council, treatment can take anywhere from a few weeks to the rest of the patient's life, since each case is different. Because rates vary from center to center, it's not possible to predict what the total cost for an individual will be. Insurance policies also vary greatly, but people with good outpatient coverage are being reimbursed from 50 to 80 percent of the total cost at the accredited sleep disorder centers.

If you have trouble sleeping, consult your doctor. Dr. Merrill Mitler, secretary of ASDC, says that though some centers take self-referrals, it's important to see a physician first to rule out underlying medical ailments that might be causing the disturbance.

He also suggests that, in order to insure getting the highest quality of treatment available, you go only to a center that is a member of the ASDC since that association requires that strict standards be met and consistent procedures followed before granting certification.

For a list of member centers write: Dr. Mitler at the Association of Sleep Disorders Centers, c/o Dept. of Psychiatry, 10T Health Sciences Center, Stony Brook, Long Island, NY 11794; or to the Better Sleep Council, 1270 Avenue of the Americas, New York, NY 10020.

SELF-EXAMINATION

Self-examination as a defense against cancer is not for women only. According to Dr. Marc B. Garnick of the Sidney Farber Cancer Institute of Boston, testicular cancer, the most common malignancy in men aged 20-34, can often be detected by self-examination. Garnick advises that men examine themselves, after a warm bath or shower, for enlargement of the testicle; any hard lumps that were not there before; any unusual changes. A once-monthly examination is recommended.

ANN LANDERS:

Therapist Rejects Drug Abuse Patient

Dear Ann Landers: I am a female, age 18, who started using drugs when I was 12 and engaged in sexual activities when I was 13. That isn't my problem. I have been straight for six months and am determined to stay that way.

For the last year I have been in a drug abuse program. I have also been seeing a private therapist and doing well. Six months ago I went a little nuts and shot myself in a suicide attempt. I was extremely self-destructive and clung to my therapist as a lifeline.

After I regained consciousness I tried to reach my therapist, but she refused to speak to me. I am deeply hurt by this rejection, and have been depressed ever since.

I still have a long way to go before I can face the world on my own, and I know I will never succeed unless I get back into therapy. But I find it hard to trust a therapist, since the one I did so well with turned her back on me and won't tell me why. I need your advice on how to pick up the pieces. — No Name In Motor City.

Dear Motor City: Accept the fact that your therapist has written you off. Move forward and don't look back or waste time and energy in search of "answers." Check with friends or family members who are in treatment. Get the names of therapists whose patients think well of them. Contact the county medical society and your own physician for names. Check the mental health facilities in your city.

A fresh start can do wonders. Your determination to get well is the best thing you have going for you.

Dear Ann Landers: I was married to a wonderful man for 20 years. He was disabled for the last 10 years of our marriage but there never was a more loving husband or a better father. He died in 1979 and left me with three terrific kids.

Last year I met a very nice divorced man who has three children also. Four months ago we decided to live together. I didn't feel I was ready for marriage but I did enjoy his company. He was over here all the time and it made no financial sense to keep two places. We talked it over with the kids and they were all for it.

My "Love-In" is kind, considerate and thoughtful. We never fight. His children and mine are best friends. Everything sounds too good to be true? Well, wait a minute. This man has not contributed one penny to the household since the day he moved in. I am independent and don't need financial help — but I believe as a matter of principle he should carry his share of the load. How do I broach the subject without appearing petty? — Unbalanced In Appleton, Wis.

Dear Unbalanced: Too bad you didn't broach the subject before he moved in. Now it's a bit awkward. Simply tell the Last of the Big Spenders that he can no longer be a free guest in your home and from now on he must pay half the household expenses. Everything should be cut right down the middle. I wouldn't be surprised if he has been waiting for you to say something. So say it already and don't worry about appearing petty. If you don't say something you are a fool.

How to — and how much? Find out with Ann Landers' new booklet, "How, What, and When to Tell Your Child About Sex." For your copy send 50 cents along with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Cardboard Tube Shapes Cookies

DEAR HELOISE:
 After molding cookie dough into a cylinder for chilling in the refrigerator, it usually wound up in a flat tire shape as one side would flatten down, thus spoiling the appearance of the cookies.

So, the last time I made cookies, I slit a cardboard tube (the kind from wax paper, plastic wrap, etc.), lined it with wax paper, slipped the dough inside and rolled the tube a bit.

After chilling, the dough had a nice cylindrical shape and made extra pretty cookies. — MaryMcJunkin

Fantastic! Should you want to make square cookies chill the dough in the wax paper box. Works great! — Heloise

SHEET CORNERS

DEAR HELOISE:
 A lot of time and trouble can be saved by checking the stitching now and then at the corners of fitted sheets.

If these are restitched when the threads first begin to break, it isn't much trouble to repair them. However, if the tape is allowed to come off at the corners it is difficult to put back on. — Marie Lovil

FIT FOR FLOWERS

DEAR HELOISE:
 Recently, I had flowers to deliver in my car. Since I was alone, I set the vase in a soft drink cardboard container — one that holds 32-ounce bottles.

The flowers arrived right side up and beautiful for the patient at the hospital. — M.O.

TRACING TRICK

DEAR HELOISE:
 I made cute quilt blocks for my daughter's bed by using pictures out of coloring books. Here's how:

Instead of using regular carbon paper to trace the picture and transfer it onto the cloth, I used dressmakers tracing paper.

I found it didn't smear as carbon paper does. — Tina Chavez

CLEANING ORDER

DEAR HELOISE:
 I have been a working wife for many years and have found that each week when I vacuum the house (my husband helps too), I alternate which end to start in as, at first, I am very thorough and that room really gets cleaned.

After I tire, however, the rest isn't cleaned so thoroughly, but now the next week I start where I finished the week before.

This way, the whole house gets a good cleaning every two weeks. — Mr. Hugh Cameron

DUSTING DUTIES

DEAR HELOISE:
 Dusting isn't one of my favorite pastimes.

 Is there a recipe for pre-treating dustcloths so you don't have to use furniture sprays so often and cause an unsightly buildup? — Hope

Sure is, sweetie! Add two teaspoons of turpentine to a jar of hot sudsy water, put in several clean dustcloths, screw the lid on tight and let them soak overnight.

Next day just hang them out to dry and they're ready to tackle the dustiest of jobs, leaving a nice shine.

But, use old rags for dusting, as they're softer and the lint has worn off. — Heloise

Immunization Of Babies Activates Passive Antibodies More Quickly

By PAUL DONOHUE, M.D.
Dear Dr. Donohue: Immunization is fine and I don't have anything personal against it, but I have done some research and read that babies have a strong immunity and anti-body protection against diseases. This is transmitted to the baby during pregnancy and is good protection until the child is nine months old. Since babies are blessed abundantly with this mechanism of protection, can you please explain to me why on earth doctors immunize them at such early dates? With the extra antibodies, isn't there a chance there could be damage to blood cells and other parts of the body? — A.M.P.

What you have to understand is the difference between passive and active immunity. A baby is, as you say, born with antibodies against many infectious diseases. He has gotten those antibodies passively from the mother. They do not last forever, and when they are gone the baby is susceptible once again to infection. You must also understand that during pregnancy the baby is not exposed to many of the infections which he will meet out in the world.

So we have active immunization. A small dose of the agent or of a modification of the agent that causes a disease is given. It is not enough to produce the illness, but sufficient to teach his body to make the necessary antibodies on its own. You might say that the baby's body has now been programmed to recognize germs that cause illnesses and to produce protective antibodies on demand. This reaction is immediate.

Without immunization it would take a long time for the baby to recognize the germ and make the antibodies from scratch. That's what active immunization is all about. It will not harm blood cells or other parts of the body.

At about the third month, immunization against tetanus, diphtheria, whooping cough and polio is begun. Every child should be immunized against all childhood disease for which protection is available, including measles, mumps and rubella. The best times for these immunizations have been carefully worked out. If you have any doubts about your child's status, check with your doctor or county health department.

mouth open, nothing comes out. There is no pain, and only water appears. This might last from one to five minutes, with no after effects. — C.B.D.

Nausea is the feeling of immediate desire to vomit. With severe nausea, there is often an increase in perspiration and also of salivation. This might explain the water. Nausea is not always followed by vomiting.

Why this is happening to you could lead us into myriad possibilities. I would not have to be the wisest person in the world to suggest that you need medical attention. Disorders of the swallowing mechanisms, food intolerance (such as to fatty foods), diabetes, drug toxicity, air swallowing — all these give you some idea of the range of possibilities. One thing is for sure; this is far from normal, especially on a chronic basis. Please get a firsthand opinion on this, okay?

Dear Dr. Donohue: I had a virus infection, a cold, I guess you'd call it. Suddenly, I lost my sense of smell. Is this uncommon? Why would it happen? — E.L.

A loss of smell happens because there is an inflammation of nasal membranes. The nerve endings that detect odors are damaged by the inflammation. Since smell is such an integral part of taste, people often complain that they have lost that sense also. Both sensations return to normal when the inflammation of the nose subsides. This may take longer in some people than in others.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Since I have been non-orgasmic for 23 years of my marriage, I would finally like help. How do I find a sex therapist without asking my own doctor? — Anon.

Call your state or county medical society, your state psychiatric society or the psychiatric department of the excellent medical school in your city. You will not have to give them your name.

Dear Dr. Donohue: What exactly is in the fertility pills that helps a woman get pregnant? — Mrs. P.L.

The so-called fertility pills contain substances that stimulate the pituitary gland, which turns on the ovaries to produce eggs.

CONFIDENTIAL to Indigestion and Sore Feet: I'll bet you are wearing your "sit-down shoes" and "standin'-up girdle." Dress more comfortably when you know you will be standing in a receiving line for hours. Since it's going to be part of your life for the next two years, you'd better learn how to cope with it.

Are you bothered with ringing in the ears? If so, write to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, for his booklet, "Ear Noises — Their Causes and Cures." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Shirley Silverman of Barclay Bridge Supplies has written a little book on some basics of play and defense. In today's hand she just shows the North and East hands and asks you to plan the defense against three notrump after partner opens the 10 of spades. Dummy plays low and you are in with the queen.

She asks what you should know about the hand. The first thing is that declarer holds the jack of spades. The next thing is that you can probably kill the dummy by leading your king of spades at trick two. This will probably set up the jack for declarer but the sacrifice will be worth while.

You lead your king of spades. Dummy's ace wins and a club is led. You play low and your partner drops the eight. This is the start of an echo to show an even number of clubs so you duck the second club and win the third. Now you lead your last spade to set up your partner's nine.

Now your partner will win a spade, a heart and a diamond to leave declarer with just eight tricks.

Flu-Like Illnesses Increasing In Lubbock Area

By DEBBI STALTER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lubbock, like much of the nation, has been hard hit by influenza this winter, with city Department of Health statistics showing a dramatic increase over last year in reports of flu-like illnesses.

City Health Director Dr. Marjorie Orr said that in the first week of January, her department recorded 157 cases of illnesses earmarked by flu symptoms. This figure compares to the 30 to 40 cases reported weekly during November and December, she said, and the 30 to 40 reported weekly during the winter months last year.

Dr. Orr was in the process of contacting a state epidemiologist Thursday to determine what type of flu is being reported in the city.

Preliminary information from the national Center for Disease Control in Atlanta shows a full-blown flu epidemic is underway in New York state, with other states reporting regional or sporadic outbreaks.

Most of the cases were blamed on the virus A Bangkok, a prototype of the A Hong Kong microbe that touched off a worldwide influenza epidemic 12 years ago.

El Paso health officials have declared a countywide flu epidemic, reporting a 25 percent absenteeism rate in some city and county offices and a 10 percent rate in city schools.

Dr. Bernard Rosenblum, director of the City-County Health Unit, said the disease — believed to be Type A Bangkok — has not had time to spread through the two school systems, following a 16-day holiday recess.

He said the flu should spread through the El Paso and Ysleta Independent school districts later this month in an outbreak expected to last through February.

One indication that the flu may spread, officials said, is the relatively high rate of pupil absenteeism reported a week before schools closed in December.

Lubbock public schools report attendance is near the normal 94.5 percent now, but the school district's medical adviser and school nurses have reported seeing a lot of flu since the week before school let out for the holidays.

Bill Parker, director of pupil personnel, said attendance has been unusually good for this time of year, but of the children out of class with illnesses, most have flu symptoms.

Parker said he did not feel the cases within the school system were at an epidemic stage.

Dr. Orr said the amount of immunity built up in a population may affect the high rate of incidence of flu symptoms, which may be a factor in this year's high rate. She said an immunity may wear off, or a city can experience a new population of people who are not immune, which can set off an outbreak of flu.

Many people, she pointed out, can pick up the virus from people who are in the incubation period of an onset of flu — before they are experiencing the symptoms and have chosen to stay home in bed.

Dr. John Farquhar, emergency room director at Lubbock General Hospital, also warned of the effects of persons neglecting their health during the first 24 hours of being exposed to the flu virus.

He recommended a day of rest in bed when a person first thinks he has contracted the illness, adding that "the old hot soup and motherhood routine" is still the best bet for staging war against the disease.

His recommendation, of course, includes consuming a lot of fluids and intelligent use of aspirin to control fever.

Farquhar noted, however, that a worsening of conditions after a day of rest may warrant the advice of a physician.

The severity of the effect on a person's health naturally depends on a person's age, physical condition and other factors, Farquhar said, but he cautioned that a fever lasting more than two days should be checked by a doctor.

Frequently a call to a doctor familiar with that person's health history can bring just some simple advice that can inform the person how serious his case is and what he should do, Farquhar noted.

Although the flu often has to run its course, Farquhar warned that a person who has waited a long time to contact a physician and has developed a secondary infection, such as pneumonia, is in need of medical attention.

A person who is a heavy smoker or drinker and keeps late hours while experiencing flu symptoms should not be surprised that he has developed a secondary infection, the physician said. Farquhar pointed out the great need for persons to take care of themselves during flu season as the best measure of preventive medicine.

Farquhar dispelled the notion that a high concentration of students at Texas Tech University has anything to do with the spread of flu.

He said students' young age and good health contributes to better conditions for overcoming flu, and that students are frequently easy to treat because of their better health.

Lubbock Girl Boasts Presidential Pen Pal

Melodi Lester has two reasons to celebrate her birthday this year: The candidate she wanted to win the presidency will be inaugurated, and she has received a letter from him noting their cause for mutual celebration.

Melodi, who will be 11 Jan. 20, has been a Reagan fan since before the Republican National Convention last year and was thrilled to get a letter from him this week.

The letter from "The Office of the President-elect" says in part, "As the father of four, I especially value the thoughts and views of America's youth. I hope you will continue your interest in national affairs and strive to fulfill your responsibilities as an American citizen."

It is signed, "Sincerely, Ronald Reagan."

The fifth grade student at Parsons Elementary School wrote Reagan Nov. 30 before her family moved here from Amarillo, congratulated him on winning the election and mentioned that her birthday would fall on inauguration day.

Melodi said she decided she wanted Reagan to be president after the American hostages were taken in Iran.

"After Carter got our hostages in there, it scared me and I was afraid we were going to war again, and I didn't want that," she said.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Lester of 9315 Elgin Ave.

tricks before roping the calf and leading it from the arena. After that, Davis, who learned to ride horses used on the family stock farm, made about all the cow work possible on the U Lazy S next door.

"The dope boy (who carried the medicine around at roundups) and I formed a flanking team for the small calves," he recalled.

Though never actually a working cowboy, Davis "had feelings and attitudes always toward cowboys, an inner feeling probably to have a tie with the past."

And, though he never came out of a rodeo chute as a contestant, Davis' name brings a big smile from contestants and parents involved in the American Junior Rodeo Association he founded in 1962. The AJRA, founded as a family oriented sport, graduated many alumni into the championship ranks of the Professional Rodeo Cowboy Association.

Davis also was secretary-manager of the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association (1956-58) after serving as president and rodeo director for the Texas Tech Rodeo Association. He has announced and boosted rodeo all over the Panhandle and South Plains.

When the Appaloosa began hitting the breeding scene, Davis joined the effort to upgrade the breed and founded the first Appaloosa Halter Futurity in conjunction with the Tri-State Fair in Amarillo.

While building up his own horse herd, Davis helped begin Appaloosa shows in West Texas and New Mexico. His first bronze sculpture was presented to the grand champion stud of the National Appaloosa Show in Albuquerque.

In addition to judging Appaloosa shows, Davis also judges paint and 4-H horse shows in Texas, New Mexico and Indiana.

His own 4-H Club work ended with the nation's top honor as outstanding 4-H boy in the country, one of two Texans ever to win the prestigious title.

Among other honors coming his way over the years was being in the top 10 competing for the Outstanding Young Men in Texas title given to only five.

As an adult, he has continued his 4-H association as a leader and adviser.

Davis is married to the former Barbara Ann Hext of Apache Creek, N.M., also a Tech graduate. They have two sons, Glen Robert of Hobbs, N.M., and Jay Todd, a student at Brownfield schools, and a daughter, Debbie of Midland.

the school really wants a band, through financial support and otherwise, "and if they do, I'm the man to give it to them."

Killion said he intends to stay in Lubbock.

"I've enjoyed West Texas and Texas Tech. There's not a band program in the world that has had the support the Tech band has," he said.

Music department chairman Luce credited Killion with developing "the best collegiate band program in the country in the past 21 years."

Tech officials say a committee will be appointed to search for a successor to the director's spot, but added that they do not expect an early selection.

Workman said he is sure Killion will be properly recognized for his years of sacrifice to Tech, noting that Killion had job offers at higher salaries in the past but chose to stay with the Lubbock university.

"It's not in the nature of Texas Tech to be ungrateful, especially to someone who has served as long as he has," Workman said.

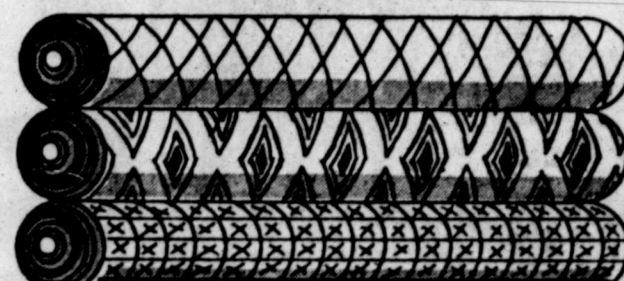

Killion was named band director and assistant music professor at Tech Sept. 1, 1959.

JOINT COAL VENTURE

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — The first U.S.-Hungarian joint venture to recycle coal mine slag heaps will begin production at a still undetermined location in the United States in September, the Hungarian news agency MTI said Thursday. The venture will be jointly operated by the Tatabanya coal mine in west Hungary and the Island Creek Coal Co., a subsidiary of the Occidental Petroleum Corp. MTI said. Occidental's Chairman of the Board Armand Hammer, a long-standing advocate of East-West trade, negotiated the contract during a visit to Hungary in December.

School To Appeal Teacher Firing Ruling

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lubbock school attorneys have prepared a notice of appeal of a ruling by the state commissioner of education that black teacher-coach Elton Conger, fired in 1978, was denied due process and is entitled to back pay.

Attorney Tom Johnson says Thursday that the notice of appeal to the State Board of Education conceivably can be withdrawn, but added, "We are likely going to appeal what the commissioner did."

He added that he does not know whether Conger will appeal any part of the ruling. Neither Conger, nor his attorney Tom Griffith, were available for comment.

Commissioner Alton Bowen, in upholding a ruling proposed by a Texas Education Agency hearing officer, said Conger should receive the salary promised him in his 1978-79 Lubbock school contract, but that he should not be reinstated.

Conger, who allegedly was fired for insubordination and unprofessional conduct, was dismissed Jan. 1, 1979, before his contract was up.

He appealed the local school board's decision to TEA in 1979. This fall, hearing officer Margaret Cooper finally filed her "proposal for a decision." School attorneys contested the decision, which subsequently was submitted to Bowen for review.

Conger also has taken the case to federal court, but U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward ordered a stay of proceedings until the matter could be taken through all administrative channels.

Bowen affirmed the hearing officer's decision that Conger should not be reinstated, since the school district is not required to renew a contract beyond its stated expiration date. Lubbock schools operate on a one-year contract basis.

In her proposal, the hearing officer agreed with Conger's contention that he was denied due process during the events leading up to his dismissal. The former Atkins Junior High teacher-coach was granted a hearing before the board after Supt. Ed Irons reassigned him to other duties. The reassignment was ordered following allegations by Atkins school officials that Conger used profanity with his team, made an obscene gesture at a passing car during practice and generally failed to obey the orders of his superiors.

But rather than rule on the fairness of the reassignment, school trustees voted to terminate his contract.

The TEA hearing officer ruled that Conger was denied due process because he was not notified that the hearing might result in his termination. Conger

"was thus not afforded a meaningful opportunity to defend himself against the proposition that the conduct for which he was reassigned justified termination," the decision states. She added, however, that Irons did not abuse his power in reassigning Conger.

The hearing officer found that lack of communication and poor personnel management largely was responsible for the situation surrounding Conger's dismissal.

Office-Designate Hints Tax Cut Postponement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ronald Reagan's budget director-designate, David A. Stockman, raised the possibility Thursday that the Jan. 1 tax cut the president-elect has called for repeatedly may be postponed until later this year.

"Whether you make the first (tax cut) installment effective Jan. 1 or June 1 or any other date, I don't think is very important," Stockman said at his Senate confirmation hearing. "The real importance is that there be a permanent reduction in tax rates over the next three or four years, he told the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee.

The 34-year-old conservative Republican congressman from Michigan also said he is against President Carter's proposed 22 percent pay raise for Congress, Cabinet members and other federal officials.

Although Reagan reportedly has endorsed the pay increase, Stockman said that approving higher pay before the incoming administration reduces federal spending and turns the economy around would be "a very bad signal to the American people."

"That would have a devastating impact on the country," he said.

Stockman's comments on tax policy suggested Reagan may retreat from his campaign vow to seek a 30 percent reduction in personal tax rates over three years, effective Jan. 1.

His remarks also marked the second time this week that a Cabinet designate has hinted that the incoming administration may be backing away from a major economic promise Reagan made during his presidential campaign.

On Tuesday, Treasury Secretary-designate Donald T. Regan said that under current economic forecasts, the new president may be unable to balance the federal budget until 1984 at the earliest, at least one year later than Reagan had vowed while campaigning.

Aides to the president-elect's economic advisers said Thursday that some of the advisers, including Regan, believe the effective date of a tax cut should be postponed until later this year because of a growing federal budget deficit now estimated to reach $60 billion for 1981 — twice as large as projected just two months ago.

Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., another close economic adviser to Reagan, is adamant about making any tax cut retroactive to the start of the year.

Stockman still leans toward a tax cut taking immediate effect but would not be strongly opposed to a delay, said one aide.

The aides emphasized, however, that the advisers are divided on the question and that the president-elect has not made a decision yet.

Rep. Robert Michel, the House minority leader, said after a meeting with Regan and his Cabinet nominees Thursday that he heard no indication that the new administration plans to delay the effective date of a tax cut.

Stockman's conservative economic views, particularly his call for major reductions in taxes, federal spending and government regulation of business, came under fire from Democratic senators on the committee. However, both Democratic and Republican senators praised his abilities to serve as director of the Office of Management and Budget, and his confirmation appears certain.

During his hearing, Stockman also said:

"He remains committed to reducing taxes as soon as the administration and Congress can work it out. 'If we fail to cut taxes, then we have no hope, no real chance, over the next three or four years of bringing the budget into balance.'"

"It would be 'a catastrophe to impose a wage-price freeze even on a short-term basis' to control inflation. He likened the action to 'trying to change a tire on a car moving down the road at 45 miles an hour.'"

"The United States should not try to reduce its dependence on imported oil in the short term if the cost would be 'very, very high.' Instead, he said, a build-up of the nation's strategic petroleum reserves is 'the most practical, efficient and least costly way' over the next four or five years to protect against another disruption in oil supplies from the Mideast.

Police Chief Orders Officers To Shoot To Kill, Not Wound

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. (AP) — Police Chief Gerald Loudermilk has ordered his officers to shoot to "to kill, not to wound" fleeing felony suspects.

Loudermilk says his get-tough policy, which went into effect Monday, was prompted by a recent increase in crime in the western Indiana city of about 65,000.

"If it boils down that it's us against them, I want it to be us," said Loudermilk, who has been chief about a year.

An officer should shoot, the chief says, when necessary to capture "a person whom the officer has reasonable cause to believe has committed a felony, or to rescue a person held hostage."

An officer also can use his gun "when all other available means have failed or when the officer reasonably believes that no other means can possibly succeed."

Diamond Connection Suspected In Execution-Style Slayings

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Police are checking a possible South African diamond connection in the execution-style slayings of a sculptor, his live-in female companion and a business partner, it was reported Thursday.

The Santa Barbara News-Press said it learned from unidentified sources that law enforcement officials are checking reports by associates of Giovanni Schoeman that the slain sculptor "may have been involved in some way with large amounts of diamonds."

The 40-year-old Schoeman, a resident alien from diamond-rich South Africa, was termed a "wheeler-dealer" in the art world by friends and other sculptors. He was also described as kind and outgoing socially.

Schoeman's brother, Pierre, a resident of South Africa, has visited several times in the last three years, friends said.

The News-Press said detectives were also believed to be looking into reports that Schoeman knew someone possibly associated with organized crime.

Each victim was shot once behind the ear, a method sometimes used by professional killers. Police termed the killings execution-style.

Schoeman and Cornelius Moll, a 41-year-old Ventura chiropractor who was a business partner of the sculptor, were found dead on a rural road Wednesday.

Police later found the body of Kimberly Roberts, 26, of Glen Cove, N.Y., some 25 miles away at the rented house she shared with Schoeman in Santa Barbara.

Schoeman, a native of Praetoria, South Africa, was known to carry large amounts of money and sometimes visited Las Vegas, Nev., according to friends who asked not to be identified.

His works are on display in South Africa, Europe and in the United States. Actor Sylvester Stallone, who met Schoeman in London in 1975, bought several sculptures for his collection at $5,000 each.

Miss Roberts often modeled nude for Schoeman and kept detailed records of his phone calls and business dealings, friends said.

'Vastly Usable' Actor Stars In Nighttime Soap Opera

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — With characteristic modesty, John Forsythe terms himself "a vastly usable, not widely talented actor."
Many of his colleagues would say he underestimates himself, but Forsythe persists: "I figure there are a few actors like Marlon Brando, George C. Scott and Laurence Olivier who have been touched by the hand of God. I'm in the next bunch."
Wherever he figures in the rankings, John Forsythe remains one of the most serviceable of actors. Even more so since he played a judge with a kinky sex life in "And Justice for All."
On Jan. 12 he takes on another meaty role, as tycoon Blake Harrington in "Dynasty." ABC's broad-scale new series about power, politics and personal turmoil in Denver. Does that sound like another series about another city on another network? But of course.
"I think there is a place on the air for different variations of an 'art form,'" Forsythe smiles, without apology.

"Dynasty" has a big cast (Bo Hopkins, Dale Robertson, Pamela Bellwood, Lloyd Bochner, Peter Mark Richman, etc.), the classy producer-writer team of Esther and Richard Shapiro, and is out of Aaron Spelling Productions.
Said Forsythe: "I hate to go out on a limb, but I think the series will put some real distinction in the nighttime soap opera. A lot of care and devotion are going into the writing and acting. I have no illusions about it being another 'Upstairs, Downstairs' or 'Forsythe Saga,' but I think 'Dynasty' can be a high-ranking series of distinction — with, of course, an eye to the commercial market."

He described Blake Carrington, with some delight, as a "ruthless, powerful, cruel, selfish, kind, loving, tender, passionate man — the kind of part I don't think I would have gotten if I hadn't played the infamous Judge Fleming in 'And Justice for All.'"
He credits producer-director Norman Jewison with the inspired casting: "He wanted to create suspense on whether the judge was guilty of such dark deeds. So he went for offbeat casting with a fellow from 'Bachelor Father' and 'To Rome with Love,' an actor who has been playing Smiling Jack all his life. With all immodesty, I think the casting helped the picture enormously."

Orchestra Cancels Rest Of Season

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Kansas City Philharmonic canceled the rest of its winter season Thursday because of a musicians' strike, the first such cancellation in the orchestra's 48-year history.
The 78 musicians struck in September for higher pay and improved benefits. They are represented by the Kansas City Federation of Musicians.
The management's "final offer" was approved 39-30 Tuesday night, short of the two-thirds majority needed for approval. Philharmonic officials rejected a counter-proposal Wednesday night.
Bill Cheek, Philharmonic Association president, said he considers the cancellation a beginning "rather than a day of gloom." He said he would try to reorganize the orchestra and expressed concern for the 39 musicians he said "want to work."

TV Game Show Host Allen Ludden Recovering

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "The good Lord and Betty White got me out of it, and I'm going to live because of her," says longtime TV game show host Allen Ludden, who survived a five-day coma he says apparently was cancer-related.
Betty White is Ludden's wife.

He said he was uncertain when he would be able to go back to work.
Ludden collapsed while vacationing in Monterey, Calif., on Oct. 7, two days after his 62nd birthday. He said the coma was first diagnosed as a stroke, but later a doctor determined it was caused by "a super-high calcium count, which should have killed me."

"The one who pulled me out of the coma up there was my wife because the doctors up there had said, 'Forget it,'" Ludden recalled.

TV Producer Paying Attention To Teen-Agers

By TOM JORY

NEW YORK (AP) — Few television producers can claim a better record in programming for young people — and young minds — than Frank Marrero, who lists shows like "Carrascolendas," "Mundo Real" and "The Big Blue Marble" among his credits.

"You try to fill a need," says Marrero, speaking of his previous work as well as his latest effort, a 24-part series for teen-agers called "The New Voice."

"With my background in commercial television," he says, "I was very aware of how little attention is paid to the teen-ager. They're never addressed seriously, as to the nature of the problems they face, and the problems they face are very great."

In that context, Marrero says he was "chomping at the bit to get at the issues that face teen-agers.

"Even at the elementary school level," he says, "you have kids dealing with problems like drugs and sex, and they are never addressed in a serious way. I felt it was high time we pull no punches. Kids today are sophisticated, and television has a tendency, for some reason, to talk down to them."

"Shows for teen-agers, like 'Welcome Back, Kotter,' kids say, 'Yes, we watch it, but when we turn it off, we forget all about it.'"

"The New Voice," which premieres Sunday evening at 6 CST on many Public Broadcasting Service stations, is designed to convey to a teen audience information on subjects like prostitution, suicide, homosexuality, pregnancy, gang violence, rape, drugs, teacher abuse, venereal disease and alcoholism in a dramatic as well as meaningful manner.

The vehicle is The New Voice, the newly revitalized student newspaper at Lincoln Abraham Lincoln High School. As the student journalists pursue their stories, they encounter the range of social and personal issues vital to teen-agers.

The core of the program is a short documentary segment on the subject at hand — the reporter's story — designed to define and clarify the problem raised during the dramatic portion of the half-hour program.

There is a similarity, to a point, with CBS' newsroom drama, "Lou Grant," Marrero says, "though we knew that with 'Lou Grant,' while you do deal with issues, you never see the results of their investigation into an issue."

"We said, 'Let's establish the issue in dramatic format, then set out the facts in a short documentary.'"

Thus, in the premiere episode, while interviewing patrons of a pinball arcade in the city, New Voice reporters Ken and Lorraine meet Marguerite, a teen-ager who tells them about her past as a runaway and her degrading and dangerous present as a prostitute.

The documentary segment details the problems of teen runaways and prostitution.

It took nearly two years to produce the 24 episodes of "The New Voice," Marrero says.

Researchers interviewed 1,500 teen-agers nationwide, and "brought back tapes in which they verbalized their concerns," Marrero says. "From those tapes, we identified the 24 most common and significant problems."

Specific programs were assigned to writers with special interest in the problems to be considered, and considerable attention was paid to construction of the documentary segments.

"We tested the approach nationally," Marrero says, "and the feedback was fantastic. Our objective was to let our kids raise and examine these problems, and to suggest alternatives, never solutions."

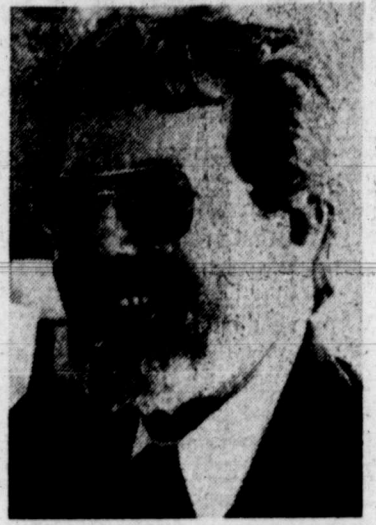

A viewer's guide, in newspaper format, covering each of the 24 programs, was produced to accompany the television series.

At least two time slots were considered for the PBS series, and Marrero says "it was flattering to see we were put up against '60 Minutes.' I don't know what will happen."

"They originally had us Thursday nights at 8, opposite 'Mork and Mindy' and 'Buck Rogers.' I felt that would be too tough an audience to go up against."

Marrero says his inclination is to stop at 24 episodes. "Who was it who said, 'There are only 10 TV shows in the world?' Well, we did 14 more than that."

"I felt with 24 shows, we had covered every issue that was common to a large number of kids," he says.

FRANK MARRERO
Focusing On Teen Problems

Marrero, a native of Puerto Rico who has produced feature films, documentaries, TV specials and hundreds of commercials, says the overriding teen-age problem is one of communications. "It's amazing how far we've advanced in communications technology," he says, "and how many steps we've taken backward in actually communicating."

Commission Standing Behind Decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission refused to back down Thursday from its September decision to authorize temporarily the operation of some low-power TV stations while it considers a permanent rule change.

The decision was viewed as providing additional evidence that the commission will permanently authorize mini-TV stations when it considers the matter again later this year.

By a unanimous vote, however, the FCC did agree to limit to 15 the number of low-power stations that any single applicant can operate on an interim basis. That decision is expected to affect about 10 companies that have already filed dozens, and in some cases hundreds, of applications.

"I think that's a pretty good solution," observed commissioner Robert E. Lee. "Nobody gets everything and nobody gets nothing (during the interim)."

Thursday's discussion followed an historic Sept. 9 vote by the commission to propose the creation of an entirely new broadcast service in which so-called translators could be used as mini-TV stations. If finally adopted later this year, the proposal could allow thousands of small TV stations on the air.

A translator is a low-cost, low-power transmitter used to rebroadcast the signal of an existing station. Under the FCC's proposal, translators would be allowed to originate their own programming.

The theory behind the low-power proposal is that a TV station can provide a valuable service even if it can't reach a large area. For example, such a station could provide minority programming to the heavily black portion of a city even though its signal might not reach the suburbs.

There are drawbacks, however, beyond a small coverage area. Low-power stations would carry a "secondary" status and could not cause any interference to existing full-service stations. The secondary restriction means a low-power station would have to shut down if a new full-service station was authorized to use its channel.

Despite such restrictions, the FCC has been flooded with applications and inquiries from individuals and companies interested in starting their own TV stations. Michael Couzens of the FCC's staff said Thursday he expected 1,000 applications to be on file by the middle of this month.

Bandsman Ready For Inaugural

NEW YORK (AP) — Lester Lanin, the spritely, enduring society orchestra leader, is tuning up to perform at his sixth presidential inaugural ball. Or is it his seventh?

"I honestly can't remember whether I played at both of Eisenhower's. But I played for Ike. He didn't dance at all, but Johnson did. At his ball, LBJ danced all night and changed partners constantly."

Since Eisenhower, the only presidential inauguration that hasn't included Lester Lanin and his orchestra was Jimmy Carter's in 1976.

"An inaugural ball," Lanin remarks,

"is synonymous with Lester Lanin."

So is society. Lanin's performed for them all, at their debuts, wedding receptions, anniversary galas: "Vanderbilts, du Ponts, Astors, Whitneys, Fords, Morgans. I live at those places. I haven't had a week off since '45."

On President-elect Ronald Reagan's inaugural day, Lanin will bus two 20-piece orchestras to Washington because he's performing twice: first in the evening at a formal cocktail party and, later, at one of the eight inaugural balls.

"I play the favorites," he said. "I know the requests of half the people there. As soon as they walk in the door, I play their number. They seem to like that."

And Lanin is careful to cater to the reigning first lady's musical tastes: Mamie Eisenhower wanted "In Old New York," Jackie Kennedy liked "Mac The Knife."

He remembers John F. Kennedy as a stiff dancer and Richard Nixon as "a wonderful man."

"Nixon used to stand behind the band — he'd actually get behind us — and say, 'Go, go Lester! Just like a little kid.'"

Though Lanin has played at parties the Reagans attended, he's never performed for a Reagan party. He says Nancy Reagan, whom he describes as "divine," likes the sort of music Lanin classifies as "society music."

Customer Returns

Extra Change

A South Lubbock doughnut shop took in $5 Thursday in a way owner Barbara Benedetti never expected.

It came in an envelope with a note saying, "I owe this to your business. I was given too much change some time ago and didn't notice it till later."

The unsigned note was accompanied by a $5 bill.

"I think that's super," Mrs. Benedetti said. "Most people don't do that in this day and time."

The Mr. Donut Shop at 1908 50th St. has been open under her management since May 1 last year, and she had no idea when the transaction took place.

"I don't think we do that too often, but of course everybody does occasionally," she said.

"We have had customers spot it first and say, 'You gave me too much change.' But to go away and mail it back later — we haven't had that happen before."

WHAT YOU GET WHEN YOU CHOOSE PLYMOUTH FRONT WHEEL DRIVE

11 billion miles of front-wheel-drive experience.

- Our front-wheel-drive technology is known in the industry.
- We have more front-wheel-drive experience in small, U.S., fuel-efficient cars than GM, Ford, AMC, Toyota or Datsun.
- We introduced an American-made, high mileage, front-wheel-drive car two years ahead of GM and three years ahead of Ford.
- We have sold more small, fuel-efficient, front-wheel-drive cars in the U.S. than GM, Ford, Datsun and Toyota.

Outstanding overall est. mpg.

- Plymouth has more front-wheel-drive cars rated over 24 est. mpg than GM, Ford, Toyota, Datsun or VW.
- Plymouth has the highest projected overall mpg of any American car company brand.

Most front-wheel-drive choices in America.

- Plymouth has more 5-passenger front-wheel-drive car models than any other American automobile manufacturer.
- Plymouth has the only 6-passenger, front-wheel-drive cars in America.
- Plymouth offers more front-wheel-drive choices under $6,000 than any other American automobile manufacturer.

Ease and economy of maintenance.

- Plymouth front-wheel-drive K-cars with the standard 2.2 liter Trans-4 engine incorporate ease-of-maintenance features, so you'll probably find your service bills lower than for your previously-owned vehicle.
- Most routine maintenance can easily be done by the driveway mechanic.

Electronic fuel control system.

- Provides smooth engine performance during warm-up.
- Contributes to fuel economy.
- Promotes good acceleration.
- Improves engine performance and smoothness throughout the engine speed range.
- It helps control engine emissions—even before they leave the engine.

1980 Plymouth Horizon with front-wheel drive has terrific gasoline mileage ratings* and more passenger and cargo space than Pinto Runabout or Chevette (based on EPA interior volume index.)

Our special priced 1980 Plymouth Horizon has front bucket seats, 4-speed manual transmission, two-barrel, 4-cylinder 1.7 liter overhead cam engine, remote control mirror, air conditioner, wheel trim rings and white stripe, steel-belted radial tires.

1980 'Disappointing' For Retail Chains

NEW YORK (AP) — Retail sales ended their slump and rose sharply in December, providing a happier holiday season for shopkeepers but leaving 1980 still a disappointing year, reports from the nation's retail chains indicated Thursday.

"Santa Claus came," said one Wall Street analyst, Jeffrey B. Edelman of Dean Witter Reynolds. "He was there the night before Christmas."

The surge of sales, which came in the week before Christmas and continued after the holiday, gave two major chains, Sears Roebuck and J.C. Penney, their best monthly showings in about two years.

The sales were aided by a burst of price-cutting, which followed disappointing November and early-December sales, and by cold weather in many areas. Frigid temperatures help winter clothing sales.

Sears, the nation's largest retail chain, said sales totaled $2.54 billion for the five-week period that ended Saturday, a 6.3 percent increase from a year earlier. It was the largest monthly gain for Sears since mid-1978.

"Sales surged as Christmas approached and finished strong," said Sears Chairman Edward R. Telling. "Business was excellent during Christmas week, and sales continued to be strong the week after Christmas."

Sears reported increases in all areas except the industrial Midwest. Penney, like Sears, has been stumbling in recent months and its 9.5 percent rise in monthly sales was the biggest such gain since early 1979. Its December sales totaled $1.97 billion.

Despite the country's economic problems, there were indications that sales of higher quality and more expensive items were strong. Penney Chairman Walter J. Neppi cited sales of "high quality fashion apparel" as being especially good.

K mart Corp., a leading discounter and the second-largest retailer, had a 10.9 percent sales gain, to $2.31 billion, in the five weeks that ended Dec. 31. Its sales have been generally strong, and the increase was below its gain for most of the year.

Federated Department Stores, which owns Bloomingdale's in the Northeast, Bullock's and I. Magnin in California and other states, Rich's in the Southeast and Filene's in Massachusetts, among others, reported a 13.3 percent gain to $1.11 billion in the five-week period that ended Saturday. Carter Hawley Hale Stores, whose subsidiaries include Neiman-Marcus in Texas and other states, Broadway in California and Bergdorf Goodman in New York, reported a gain of 13.2 percent to $489.5 million for the same period.

"They are the companies who best serve the high income customers," said Stuart M. Robbins, an analyst with Paune Webber, referring to Federated and Carter Hawley Hale.

F.W. Woolworth said sales in the five weeks ended Dec. 30 rose 5.3 percent to $1.23 billion. Montgomery Ward & Co., a subsidiary of Mobil Corp., reported an increase of 8.1 percent to $791.8 million in the five weeks ended Saturday.

Most retail chains end their fiscal years around Jan. 31, and the December figures showed those years will not be good ones.

For the first 11 months, Penney sales were up 2.9 percent from 1979. Woolworth was up 6.2 percent and Sears was off 0.4 percent.

Redistricting Effort Likely, Says Clayton

A-J News Services
AUSTIN — House Speaker Bill Clayton said Thursday the U.S. Supreme Court's decision to allow the Census Bureau to release population figures will enable the Legislature to redraw congressional and legislative boundaries this spring.

"I think we're back on schedule now," Clayton said at a Capitol news conference. "The Supreme Court has ruled that the census data be released. I think we can produce a bill."

A federal lawsuit against the Census Bureau by several cities and states had threatened the exclusion of redistricting legislation this year. However, the Supreme Court ruled the census figures could be released, although the case will be litigated later.

Clayton also told reporters that he might run for a fifth term as speaker of the Texas House.

Clayton is expected to win an unprecedented fourth term when the House elects its presiding officer Tuesday, the day the 67th Legislature begins its 140-day regular session.

He disclosed he might be open to a fifth term while talking informally with reporters following a news conference about prospects for the upcoming session.

Reminded that he had stated unequivocally in the past that his fourth term would be his last, Clayton answered with a grin, "I've made New Year's resolutions, too."

"All I am doing is looking at the 67th session. When I see how everything is rolling, I will make my decision on my future at that time," Clayton said.

Clayton said he had not decided on committee chairmanships, including the House Committee on Region, Compact and Districts. That is the committee currently headed by Rep. Tim Von Dohlen, D-Goliad, and the one responsible for reviewing and analyzing redistricting legislation.

Speculation has abounded for several months that the speaker would replace Von Dohlen. But neither Clayton nor Von Dohlen has been willing to discuss the question.

"I'm not suggesting anything," the speaker replied when asked if Von Dohlen would not be named to continue as the committee's chairman.

Clayton said he thought committee assignments could be completed by late next week. He said the House would consider rules on Tuesday and receive a report by a special committee that is investigating the contested race between Rep. Al Brown, D-San Antonio, and Republican Alan Schoolcraft.

Schoolcraft defeated Brown in November, but the incumbent wants the race voided and a special election declared. Brown claims voting irregularities occurred during the Nov. 4 election.

"I believe we can move with the debates on rules and the election committee can have its report by Tuesday," Clayton said.

The speaker also said he was investigating the possibility of setting up a trust fund to help with declining natural resources in the future. Clayton has said the special trust fund, to be used especially to augment declining water resources in the state, should be set in lieu of property tax relief.

Recent demands by school districts involved in mandatory desegregation for court-ordered state aid provides a glimmer of hope for Lubbock taxpayers now shouldering integration costs, the local school attorney said Thursday.

Lubbock school attorney Tom Johnson said a request for state aid that was sought and won Thursday through federal court by Columbus, Ohio, school officials certainly "could happen here."

He added that a victory by Austin school officials seeking a similar desegregation cost sharing plan will set the ball rolling for other requests throughout Texas and boost the chances of success for districts like Lubbock.

He cautioned, however, that he is not familiar with the details of either the Austin or Columbus cases and that a high court review of the Ohio situation probably will be forthcoming before the issue is resolved.

A federal judge ordered the Ohio Board of Education to share equally the expenses of integrating Columbus schools with the local school district. U.S. District Judge Robert M. Duncan ruled that Ohio was aware of the segregation in Columbus and was negligent in failing to investigate the matter.

Parties involved in Lubbock's desegregation case believed that the 1979 Supreme Court ruling in the Columbus and Dayton, Ohio, integration cases would be a key factor in the decision made by the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in the local case.

Additionally, Austin school officials recently have filed a motion in federal court asking that the state of Texas absorb almost $23 million they estimate has been spent in integrating Austin schools during the last 10 years.

Austin school attorney Bill Bingham said the motion basically is for any expenses incurred by the district that would not have been necessary if desegregation had not been ordered, such as capital outlay for buses, personnel, buildings, additions and renovation, the cost of fuel and legal expenses.

Bingham said that all lawsuits "are unique enough that they are not necessarily controlled" by decisions in other cases, but admitted that the Columbus ruling "would help" the Austin case.

Should Lubbock school officials elect to seek some help from the state, Texas could be presented for a bill that includes $800,000 for buses, $300,000 per year for bus operating costs and about $4.9 million that has been eroded so far from the schools' 1977 bond program stalled by integration proceedings.

Ronnie Gooch, assistant superintendent for business affairs, said those figures are extremely rough, but added that other expenses such as legal fees and the cost for extra personnel and equipment could be added as well as about $200,000 for renovation and partial costs of a $400,000 bus maintenance facility.

But Johnson said there are some questions that must be answered and obstacles to overcome before taxpayers can start holding out their hands. The attorney noted that although the federal court has spoken in Ohio, the state probably will end up at the Supreme Court level.

And other northern school districts have operated under a different form of segregation so that the court ruling might not apply in southern schools.

He explained that northern schools did not function under de jure or "by law" segregation as did districts, like Lubbock's, in the south. Therefore, he said, the judge might have decided the state should help pick up the integration tab because the state was negligent in not correcting a situation that existed as a matter of fact, not law.

Johnson said the ruling might not hold up in Lubbock, where segregation was required by law. But, he also acknowledged, Texas could be judged as negligent in not trying to change that law.

Gilbert Conoley, head of Technical Assistance for the Texas Education Agency, said Thursday that the impact of the Columbus ruling conceivably could filter into Texas.

Grain Scam Not First, Owners Of Lot Claim

By EVIE DAVIS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The men who allegedly shorted a local feedlot of approximately 200,000 pounds of grain may have been involved in a similar scheme last summer, the owners of Lubbock Feed Lots believe.

Terry Crofoot, assistant manager of the family owned business, said the lot was shorted on about 150 loads of grain last summer in a scale-tampering scheme similar to one used recently on seven loads.

He declined to comment on how a radio-controlled hydraulic device was planted in the truck scale mechanism, expressing concern that the knowledge would make other lots easy targets.

The scheme was discovered Wednesday morning by feedlot employees. The hydraulic device apparently was linked to a citizens band radio frequency, activated when the suspects touched the microphone of the radio.

The feedlot owners believe they were shorted on about seven loads in the more recent incident when the device caused their scales to indicate the grain load weighed more than it actually did.

The owners of the lot estimated their loss this time at $14,000.

Investigator Jerry Johnson of the Department of Public Safety said no arrests were made by late Thursday, adding that the investigation points to several possible suspects. "We are looking at some names," he said. "The originators of the scheme) might possibly be from Kansas or from Texas, or might be from both."

Authorities were searching for a red and white Peterbilt or Kenworth tractor-trailer, possibly towing a trailer with a hooper bottom, and driven by a man described only as "Sam."

A blue and white cabover bearing the name "Bailey" on the door and driven by a man named "J.D." also may be involved, lawmen said.

Crofoot said he was suspicious of the trucks that came into the lots because they were from the same company he believes defrauded Lubbock Feed Lots last July. "I know they know we suspect them," he added. "They ran."

"After a little investigation of our own, we knew they had done it last summer. We decided to try them one more time to see if we could catch them," he said.

Crofoot said he was unable to balance the scales when he tried to weigh the two suspected trucks.

"I went ahead and weighed them, and told them to go up and wait, but they didn't," he said. "They went ahead and took off."

Crofoot said he called the Texas Department of Agriculture, which sent a representative to inspect the weights. Area supervisor Wayne Cure said he called the DPS after finding the hydraulic device.

Cure said the large feedlots in the Panhandle are easy targets, and he advised the owners to weld the manhole covers that lead to the scales.

"The reason we used the DPS is because they're dangerous," he said. "They'll kill you."

He added that a witness to a similar incident in New Mexico was slain a week before he was to testify against a scale-tampering ring.

Petroleum Giants Raise Prices Of Oil Products

By WILLIAM GLASGALL

NEW YORK (AP) — Exxon Corp., Mobil Corp. and Texaco Inc. — the nation's three largest oil companies — joined several other refiners Thursday in raising wholesale heating oil and diesel fuel prices as much as 2 cents a gallon.

Standard Oil Co. (Ohio) and Marathon Oil Co. also raised wholesale prices of the products by 1 to 3 cents a gallon in the third round of increases since last week as cold weather continued to boost heating oil use and rising crude oil prices pushed refiners' costs higher.

Mobil, Sohio and Marathon also said they had raised wholesale gasoline prices 1 to 3 cents a gallon. The increases can be passed on to consumers.

Persian Gulf OPEC members Kuwait and Qatar, meanwhile, were reported by industry sources to have raised crude oil prices $4 a barrel, while Britain was said by sources to be boosting the price of a 42-gallon barrel of its North Sea crude $3.

The moves raise the price of a 42-gallon barrel of Kuwaiti oil to $35.50, increase the cost of oil from Qatar to $37.42 a barrel, and raise the price of oil from Britain to $39.25 a barrel.

The reported increases were the latest in a series that started with a decision last month by Saudi Arabia — the largest member of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries — to raise the price of its crude from $30 to $32 a barrel.

Five other OPEC members quickly followed the Saudis with increases of as much as $4 a barrel that lifted the cartel's top price for a 42-gallon barrel of oil from $37 to $41.

And according to some sources, the latest increases by Kuwait and Qatar now might trigger another $2-a-barrel price hike by Saudi Arabia, whose oil accounts for 8 percent of U.S. petroleum needs.

"Saudi Arabia is going to go up again — the question is when," said a trader for an international oil company who also said "we're of the opinion that yes, in fact," Kuwait's oil prices had risen by $4 a barrel. The $4 increase by Qatar was confirmed by Exxon.

While Kuwait and Qatar are not major suppliers of oil to the United States, a new $2-a-barrel price hike by the Saudis would add 1.5 cents to American gasoline and heating oil costs.

Thursday's price increases for heating oil and diesel fuel followed announcements of higher prices Wednesday by about 10 refiners and came after a similar wave of increases a week before.

Heating oil "isn't in any danger" of running out, said Tom Waterman, an editor at the trade publication Oil Buyers' Guide. But he said "fear of the future," in which shortages and new price hikes stemming from the cutoff of nearly 4 million barrels of oil exports a day from warring Iran and Iraq, loom large in oil traders' minds.

Among the refiners raising heating oil and diesel fuel prices, Exxon, the nation's largest oil company, said wholesale prices for the fuels rose 2 cents a gallon on the Gulf and East coasts and 1 cent a gallon in the Rocky Mountain states.

No. 2 Mobil said its wholesale prices for the fuels rose 2 cents a gallon in the East and Central areas and 1 cent a gallon in the Southwest, and said its wholesale gasoline price rose 1 cent a gallon and jet fuel prices climbed 2 cents a gallon nationwide.

Frozen Survivors Not Uncommon, Doctors Say

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The recovery of a Minnesota woman frozen stiff after a nightlong ordeal in sub-zero weather was described as a miracle by her doctor.

But other physicians say such "miracles" are not all that rare: freezing victims have recovered fully even after prolonged periods without heartbeats.

"There's a term we have that says no one is dead until he's warm and dead," said Dr. Richard Iseke, associate director of the Boston Emergency Medical Center, which every winter treats victims of freezing or, more accurately, hypothermia.

Jean Hilliard, 19, of Lengby, Minn., was frozen "like a piece of meat out of a deep freeze" after spending the night of Dec. 20 in the snow with temperatures reaching 22 below zero, said Dr. George Sather of the rural Fosston, Minn., hospital where Miss Hilliard's life was saved.

Her temperature was too low to register on thermometers that go down to 88 degrees and her heart was beating about 12 times a minute, less than one-fifth its normal rate.

She is due to return home in a few weeks with frostbite the only permanent damage, and that will be repaired with a few skin grafts. She suffered no brain damage.

Although Miss Hilliard is undeniably lucky to survive, Iseke said, "There are numerous case reports in the (medical) literature of people who have survived (with interior body temperatures) as low as 68 or 69 degrees."

The human body reacts to extreme cold much like a hibernating animal: internal activity is slowed, which dramatically reduces the cells' demand for oxygen from the blood. In that slow-motion state, even sensitive brain cells can survive many minutes after the heart has stopped pumping.

Dr. Richard Young of the Hershey (Pa.) Medical Center said frigid temperatures actually protect some people, such as those who appear to have drowned but are revived after being pulled from icy water with no pulse or respiration. Such survivors sometimes show some temporary mental impairment but recover with no permanent damage.

"We believe hypothermia gives the brain added protection. It puts it in sort of suspended animation," he said.

This protection, which may sometimes last up to an hour, seems to work only when the body temperature dips below 89 degrees. At the normal body temperature of 98.6, permanent brain damage occurs if the heart stops beating for a scant three to five minutes.

Young said the record drowning survival seems to be a 5-year-old who was trapped under the ice of a partially frozen pond for 40 minutes.

Not every person could survive such an experience. But Young and others say it happens often enough that an apparent victim of exposure or cold water drowning should never be written off — even if there are virtually no signs of life — until near-normal temperatures are restored.

Some physicians even suggest that failure to continue treatment with these patients may help explain why survivors are so rare.

Deep hypothermia, in fact, is often induced in infants by surgeons who must completely stop the heart, while protecting the brain, in order to repair congenital heart defects.

"Our infants are not frozen, but they are cooled down" to about 60 to 68 degrees, said Dr. K. Alvin Merendino, whose researchers at the University of Washington Medical School helped pioneer the technique.

"Everything is stopped," he said. "There is absolutely no circulation. There are no brain waves visible at all. It actually amounts to a suspension of life."

He said the tiny patients can remain in that condition for up to an hour without damage before being warmed and revived, and UW researchers have "taken animals down to a total suspension of circulation for three hours and had survivors."

Merendino said Miss Hilliard couldn't have been "frozen solid," as has been reported by Sather — and by the neighbor who had to put her stiff body diagonally across the back seat of his car to take her to the hospital.

The stiffness was probably due to the resistance of very cold muscles, Merendino said. Cells that are literally frozen "go through a crystal phase in which the fluids actually crystallize like ice." When that happens, he said, the cells are destroyed and "when you thaw them out they're just a mass of nothing."

Iseke said the body's first reaction to cold is to constrict blood vessels to the skin, especially on arms and legs. The brain chooses "to warm the blood (to protect crucial internal organs) at the expense of the extremities."

Next, Iseke said, a thermostat in the brain turns on the shivering reflex. Muscles quiver involuntarily, producing heat.

"But if it keeps getting colder," he said, "we're just overcome. When the body temperature drops below 90 degrees, we can't even shiver."

Then the central nervous system feels the cold and starts turning things down. As brain cells become less active, speech slurs, movements slow and the mind becomes confused. The victim may slip into a coma. As the heart cools, it may beat chaotically or even stop.

"If you cool the cells, they can tolerate this loss of blood for a longer time," Iseke said. "That time is different for different people and different temperatures." He said children are better able than adults to survive such conditions without permanent damage.

Victim's Recovery Puzzles Physician

FOSSTON, Minn. (AP) — Jean Hilliard arrived at the tiny hospital in Fosston loaded like a board across the back seat of a car. Doctors couldn't bend her body to fit her into a tub of warm water. She was literally frozen stiff.

Hypodermic needles couldn't pierce her skin. Her heart was beating 12 times a minute. She was scarcely breathing.

"She was living on a very thin margin," said Dr. George Sather, who now predicts Miss Hilliard will go home in a couple weeks — with her toes and fingers intact and perhaps only with some minor skin grafts to repair frostbite damage.

Sather, 70, is one of three physician brothers who practice medicine, as did their father, in this cold-weather town of 1,600 in northwestern Minnesota.

They've treated scores of frostbite and freezing victims, but Sather still doesn't know why the 19-year-old Miss Hilliard survived.

"I can't answer it yet," Sather said in an interview this week. "There's no question but what the body was frozen. ... We were unable to flex her joints to get her into a bathtub of warm water. That's why we had to use these warm moist pads around her."

Proceeding on experience, but with limited facilities, Sather started giving her oxygen from the first moment, to get more oxygen into the brain and into the tissues to help the metabolism.

Her body was "just like a piece of meat out of a deep freeze," Sather said then.

Bernice Hilliard, 52, of nearby rural Lengby, can't account for her daughter's recovery. "I really don't know how she could survive," she said. "She's always been just a happy-go-lucky teenager, but I didn't know she was this strong."

Miss Hilliard was returning to her parents' home late the night of Dec. 20 when her car ran off the road. It was 22 below.

With western boots, a coat and mittens her only outer clothing, she set out to walk two miles to the farm house of Wally Nelson, an acquaintance. She collapsed 15 feet from the door after dragging herself the last several yards. Nelson found her about six hours later, at 7 a.m., and drove her to the hospital.

Sather tried various treatments over the next few days to save the young woman's life. "I was acting on what I've known about other conditions, trying to maintain the physiology of the body with the limited equipment we have. She kept on improving all the time."

Sather didn't know how deeply the body was frozen. "It took several hours before she thawed out enough for us to locate a vein and start an intravenous solution to replace body electrolytes. It was the safest solution I had."

Mrs. Hilliard said doctors eventually ordered "warm enemas to warm her up from the inside."

"I was doing this off the top of my head," Sather said.

Your Personal Biorhythms

Dallas Front Four Concerns Jaworski

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Quarterback Ron Jaworski has four problems on his mind as he prepares to lead the Philadelphia Eagles into Sunday's National Football Conference championship game against the Dallas Cowboys.

Not necessarily in this order, they are:

1. Randy White
2. Too Tall Jones
3. Harvey Martin
4. Larry Cole

White, Jones, Martin and Cole are the Cowboys' defensive front four who will be attempting to rush or sack Jaworski in the battle for the conference spot in Super Bowl XV at New Orleans Jan. 25.

"From an offensive standpoint, being the quarterback, the thing that I'm most concerned with is their front four. I believe that will be the real key to the football game."

Jaworski, who completed 257 of 451 passes (57 percent) in directing the Eagles to the conference Eastern Division title, says his protection is going to have to block Dallas' four down linemen in passing situations.

The quarterback recalled that in the second half of the last game against Dallas, the Eagles were able to do that.

"We got about 280 to 290 yards in the air in that second half, so my main concern is that my guys up front are able to keep those people away from me to be able to get the ball down field," Jaworski said.

The Eagles came to Tampa Tuesday to escape the frozen north and work out under the temperate Florida weather conditions. Actually, it's been unseasonably cool here, but nothing like the snow and frigid weather in Philadelphia.

"We can get longer and better workouts and work on our execution here. Home, we'd be forced indoors most days," Jaworski explained.

Jaworski isn't unaware that his job against Dallas will be tougher because of injuries that have sidelined two of the Eagles' top three wide receivers. Charley Smith is out with a broken jaw, and his right, Scott Fitzkee, is on crutches with a broken foot.

"We do have some problems at the wide receiver spot," Jaworski said. "It's going to be important that Rodney Parker (a free agent wide out) come up with a big game."

Jaworski said he felt that Parker had the ability to fill the void.

"He showed that in the second Dallas game... making some big, big catches," Jaworski said. "Of course there was the one that he caught for a touchdown that put us ahead in that point differential that enabled us to win the division."

Dallas and the Eagles each posted 12-4 regular season records, but the Eagles earned the championship on the basis of more points scored in intra-division competition.

"Right now we're still up in the air as far as who the third guy (wide receiver) is going to be. I think... you'll see (running back-special teamer) Louie Giammona as the third receiver," Jaworski observed.

"Right now we'll start with Harold Carmichael and Rodney Parker, and I have all the confidence in the world that Rodney will get the job done," Jaworski said.

The Eagles and Cowboys split their regular season two-game series, each winning at home. How does Jaworski feel about the chances of the Eagles winning the odd game out?

"It can be done, there is no question about it," Jaworski said. "We're there and we've just got to find a way to win this football game."

"The Dallas Cowboys are a great football team and so are the Philadelphia Eagles... We just have to go out there and execute better than the Cowboys."

Jaworski's passes accounted for 3,529 yards in the regular season. He tossed 27 touchdown passes. It easily was the best season for the one-time Youngstown State quarterback, a second-round draft choice of the Los Angeles Rams in 1973. He came to the Eagles in 1977, in exchange for the rights to tight end Charles Young. Jaworski credits his fine season to the change in offensive philosophy this year in the Eagles' game plans.

"I was given an opportunity to show what I could do with the football when we had to throw it, 30 or 35 times," he explained. "A lot of that can be attributed to (assistant) coach Sid Gilman who is a great innovator and someone who knows the passing game as well as anyone."

Jaworski admitted that he set a dream this year of being the quarterback of a Super Bowl team. He's 60 minutes from making that dream a reality.

WEIGHT STRAINING — Dallas Cowboys safety Charlie Waters strains on a weight machine at the Cowboys' practice field in Dallas Thursday. Waters, who has problems with his right knee, is expected to be the anchor in the defensive secondary for the Cowboys in their NFC Championship game against Philadelphia Sunday and is the only seasoned link in the unit that has had problems defending the pass this season. ### White Sox Executives Approve Sale Of Team

CHICAGO (AP) — The sale of the Chicago White Sox for $20 million was approved Thursday to a local group headed by real estate investor Jerry Reinsdorf and television executive Eddie Einhorn, officials of the American League club announced.

The 12-man board of directors, headed by Andrew McKenna, unanimously approved the sale after a 90-minute meeting.

The next step will be the expected rubber-stamp approval from the White Sox shareholders, since the board of directors owns a majority share of the ballclub. That is expected Jan. 23 with American League approval expected the following day.

"We expect to be running the club beginning Feb. 1," said Reinsdorf. "There will be no changes. We're taking over an operating business on the assumption that everyone will stay with us."

Einhorn said that "Jerry will run the baseball end of the operation and I will run the non-baseball end."

Einhorn, a producer with CBS-TV's "Sports Spectacular," said the purchasing group would include "25 to 30 people," adding "Jerry will be the chairman and I will operate as president of the club. Jerry and I have equal amounts and are the largest stockholders."

The $20 million price tag was the second-highest amount ever paid for a major league baseball franchise. The New York Mets of the National League were sold for $21.5 million in 1979 to a group headed by Nelson Doubleday.

The sale of the club could spell the end of the colorful baseball career of Bill Veeck, 65, who has run the White Sox organization since putting together a group which purchased 80 percent of the club for $8 million in December 1975.

Asked if Veeck would remain associated with the new organization, Reinsdorf said, "we asked him if he were interested, but he refused to commit himself."

Someone then asked Reinsdorf if he would want Veeck, and before he could answer, Veeck shouted from the other end of the room, "Jerry, be careful what you say."

Reinsdorf then said, "How could you not want a man with 50 years of experience?"

Reinsdorf also said that Tony LaRussa would remain the field manager and Roland Hemond would be retained as general manager of the club.

"We will be a well-capitalized group," said Reinsdorf. "We will be able to do things Veeck couldn't because of our capital and new tax structure."

"We believe in building a nucleus from our farm system and if necessary, fill out with free agents," he concluded. "We do not believe in going out and purchasing free agents only. We will be a better club in 1981 than in 1980 because of the changes Veeck made this winter."

Reinsdorf was referring to the acquisition of free agents Ron LeFlore from the Montreal Expos and Jim Essian of the Oakland A's, two deals reportedly financed with loans from Ohio multimillionaire Edward J. DeBartolo Sr.

Twice last year, the sale of the club to DeBartolo had been approved by the club's board of directors only to have the AL veto the sale both times.

The first occurred during an October meeting when DeBartolo gained approval from eight of the 14 owners, two votes short of the total needed.

Little-Known Canadian Fires 63 To Grab Lead In Tucson Event

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Canadian Dan Hallidorsen, a winner in the last tournament of 1980, scored a 7-under-par 63 and took a 2-stroke lead Thursday in the first event of the 1981 PGA Tour, the $300,000 Joe Garagiola-Tucson Open.

"Just a very fortunate day," murmured the soft-spoken Hallidorsen, who coaxed eight birdies from the rain-soaked, 6,762-yard Randolph Park Municipal course for the best score of his pro career.

Hallidorsen, 28, has reached golfing maturity in the past few months when many of the game's leading lights were taking time off. He won the Pensacola Open, the final individual event on the 1980 schedule, then teamed with Jim Nelford in Bogota, Colombia to win the coveted World Cup for Canada and now has opened up with the lead in the first event of 1981.

"We'll see what we can do," Hallidorsen shrugged. "It'd be real nice to make it two in a row."

He played the American tour briefly in 1975, lost his playing rights for lack of performance, spent the next three years competing in Canada, rejoined the U.S. circuit in 1979 and last year won $111,000.

"Last year just helped so much. It gave me confidence, a real boost," he said.

Lon Hinkle birdied his last three holes for a 65 and sole possession of second place.

The group at 66, 4 under par, included defending champion Jim Colbert, John Mahaffey, Johnny Miller, Bruce Lietzke, Howard Twitty, Lee Elder, Terry Diehl and Jim Simons.

Fourteen golfers were jammed together at 67, including Miller Barber, George Cadie, Scott Simpson, Don January, Grier Jones and Mike Brannan.

Lee Trevino shot a 68 to place him in a tie with 16 others including Dave Hill, Ed Flori, Peter Oosterhuis, Andy North, George Archer and Bobby Wadkins.

Sarn Sneed, 68, had a 74 that placed him far back.

Lubbock's Jeff Mitchell hit a 37-35-72 in the opening round of play.

Hayes, one of the first to get away on the course that was soaked by overnight rains, set out with a conservative plan in mind.

"I was just trying to shoot under par," he said. "I hadn't played in three weeks, before yesterday, and I was just trying to hit it to the middle of the greens, keep it in play."

"I worked pretty well. I only missed one green and every time I got it close I made birdie."

He matched a birdie with his only bogey over the first four holes, then reeled off three birds in a row, two of them on 10-foot putts and the other after reaching a par-5 in two.

He hit short irons within tap-in distance on consecutive holes on his back side, scored a "2" from 12 feet and then went to 7 under par on his final hole with an overly aggressive 30-foot putt that hit the back of the cup, popped into air and then fell back in.

(quarterback) Dan Fouts too much time to throw," Hayes believes.

Words don't always come easily for Hayes, because of a speech problem. He is rarely interviewed on radio or television. But the 25-year-old native of Houston can best be described as outspoken.

"I started out as a linebacker at Texas A&M, and I was the best strong safety in the 1977 NFL draft, but as soon as I got to the Raiders they put me at cornerback. I was sort of baffled because I'd never played there and it didn't seem logical," he recalled.

Was he upset? "Yes, indeed. It didn't make any sense. I think Mr. Al Davis wanted to save George Atkinson's job," said Hayes. "I think I could have won that job in a matter of weeks."

Atkinson, the starting strong safety on the Raiders' Super Bowl team of four years ago, left the Raiders after the 1977 season, but Hayes remained a cornerback, becoming a starter in 1978.

Hayes admits now that Davis, managing general partner of the Raiders, "saw something within me that I couldn't see."

Coach Tom Flores, who was an assistant to John Madden when Hayes arrived in 1977, says the Raiders were just following a team policy in their handling of Hayes.

"We always try defensive backs at corner first to see if they can handle the position," he explained. "Lester was a strong safety-linebacker type in college, but we could see he had tremendous quickness and speed."

Hayes was a fifth-round draft pick, described by Flores as "one of the best lower round picks we've ever made. If he'd played corner in college, he probably would have been taken a lot higher."

Raiders Name Mock New Weight Coach

Mike Mock, former Texas Tech All-Southwest Conference linebacker, was named the Red Raiders' weight coach Thursday and will assume his duties immediately.

Mock, 25, will be in charge of Tech's off-season weight program and will work with all Raider athletes in improving their strength and conditioning. He replaces Russ Polhemus, who resigned in late November.

The New York Jets drafted Mock in the eighth round following the 1977 season. He played one year at outside linebacker and punter for the Jets before returning to Tech and earning a degree in finance and real estate.

Texas Football named Mock the SWC's best linebacker following his senior year, when he was a consensus All-SWC choice after playing in every game for three years at outside linebacker. He was in on 102 tackles during his senior year and 109 his junior season.

Mock was an All-America and All-State selection at Longview High School, where he was linebacker, running back and kicking specialist.

Wagner Plans To Retire

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Safety Mike Wagner, wanting to quit football while still strong and playing well, Thursday announced his retirement from the Pittsburgh Steelers after 10 seasons.

"I feel I could still play if I wanted to push it, but I think timing is important. You have to understand and be objective about your abilities and your performance," Wagner said.

"I just think that I'd rather do something else right now and deep down in my heart I can't play the type of football that I would want the fans in Pittsburgh to accept and my coaches to accept."

Wagner, 31, joined the Steelers in 1971 from Western Illinois as an 11th round draft choice and immediately became a starter.

"At that time I said, 'I'd like to make the taxi squad for a couple of years and see if I can make my way into the 49 roster and be a starter by my fifth year and maybe play seven years.'"

But Wagner did better than that. He was a starter since his first game as a rookie and twice overcame serious injuries to continue his career with the Steelers.

His 36 career interceptions are the third most in Steeler history. He is the only current team member to intercept three passes in one game and did it twice — first against Cincinnati in 1973 and again this past season against Chicago.

Wagner cracked a vertebra in his neck in the third game of the 1977 season. He recovered by the next year and helped the Steelers win their third Super Bowl.

He was again sidelined in 1979 after eight regular season games because of a hamstring and hip injury. He again recovered and won back his starting job from J.T. Thomas.

Wagner kept repeating Thursday that he'll soon be 32 years old. He has family responsibilities, a daughter in fifth grade and will now become a coal trader.

"I think I have a responsibility to the team, myself and to my family to decide now whether or not I could play football next year, six or eight months from now," he said. "I think that's a risk I don't want to assume when I have other opportunities."

"Football has become, as you get older, an insecure thing to gamble on, or to count on," he said. "It's harder to go into summer camp every year assuming you're going to make the team."

Wagner is the second Steeler to retire since the season ended. Running back Rocky Bleier, who began playing for Pittsburgh in 1968, quit in December to become a local sportscaster.

"I'm kind of glad Rocky's not here. When I talk to Rocky he gets teary-eyed and I get teary-eyed," Wagner told reporters. "It's a moving time. I think it's hard for an athlete to retire. But the time has come."

Bradshaw May Pursue Acting

NEW YORK (AP) — Terry Bradshaw's agent said Thursday that the football career of the Pittsburgh Steelers' star quarterback would probably come to an end if NBC agrees to purchase a television series that the player is involved in.

"The verbal agreement calls for Terry to star in pilot," said David Gershenson by phone from his Los Angeles office. "Once Terry signs to do a pilot, at the same time he agrees to do a series."

"Whether the series goes on is totally NBC's option. Terry will have no choice. If NBC picks up the series, it will go into production right away. Terry won't be able to play football. Only if NBC doesn't pick up the series will Terry be available to play."

Bradshaw was not available for comment, but a spokesman for the club said he'd be surprised if Bradshaw retired.

Gershenson said NBC has until May to decide whether it wants to make a series from the pilot. "I expect them to decide earlier than that," the agent said. He added that the pilot, called "Short Trackers," should go into production in February. It's about a two-man auto racing team and it also stars country-and-western singer Mel Tillis. Johnny Carson Productions and Al Ruddy, producer of "The Godfather," are backing it.

How likely is it that NBC will turn the pilot into a series? "The vast majority don't get picked up," said Gershenson. "But there are a lot of heavyweights involved in this. I would be amazed if this one isn't picked up."

A source at NBC agreed that the people involved indicates that the network is very serious about the project.

On Thursday, NBC announced plans to have Bradshaw at a news conference in Los Angeles Friday at 6 p.m. But Gershenson said: "Although these negotiations have been verbally concluded and agreed to, Terry has been advised not to attend any press conference until the lawyers finish preparing the written deal memo."

"I don't see any stumbling blocks," the agent said. "If the press conference isn't tomorrow (Friday), it can happen whenever the papers are signed. It's just a matter of doing it by the numbers."

Joe Gordon, public relations director of the Steelers, confirmed that Bradshaw has verbally agreed to the pilot. He said Bradshaw had another year left on his contract.

Falcons Share Rookie Honors

NEW YORK (AP) — Linebackers Al Richardson and Buddy Curry, who stood side-by-side in Atlanta's defense and helped turn the Falcons into division champions in 1980, were named The Associated Press Defensive Rookies of the Year in the National Football League Thursday.

It was the first time two men playing the same position on the same team had been selected to share the honor.

Richardson, playing the left side, and Curry, in the middle, received 23 1/2 votes apiece from a nationwide panel of 84 sports writers and sports broadcasters, three from each NFL city. Cornerback Royne Young of the Philadelphia Eagles was next with 13 votes. The only other players receiving more than two votes were Oakland linebacker Matt Millen with seven, Miami cornerback Don McNeal, five; Seattle defensive end Jacob Green, four, and Denver defensive end Ruon Jones, three.

Richardson, an eighth-round draft choice out of Georgia Tech, had seven interceptions (second in the National Football Conference), three fumble recoveries, 57 tackles, 27 assists and three quarterback sacks.

Curry, selected in the second round out of North Carolina, led the Falcons in tackles with 80 and had 65 assists, 1 1/2 sacks, a fumble recovery and three interceptions. He never had intercepted a pass in college or high school.

After his freshman year at Georgia Tech, Richardson tore up a knee, sat out his entire sophomore year, then came back as a junior but resisted attempts to convert him to wide receiver. If I'm going to play, he'd say, I'm going to be a linebacker. He was Tech's Most Valuable Player that year and, as a senior, received the Brian Piccolo Award as the Atlantic Coast Conference's most courageous athlete.

He wasn't picked until the second day of the NFL draft. "If he stays healthy," Falcons general manager Eddie LeBaron said after the choice was made, "it's gonna be a steal. And certainly, with his ability, it's worth an eighth-round gamble."

Richardson was a starter from the moment training camp opened and started all 16 regular-season games. From Oct. 26 through Dec. 14 — an eight-game stretch — Richardson had a turnover in every game, five interceptions and three fumble recoveries. The string ended in the final regular-season game against Los Angeles, when he forced a Mike Guman fumble ... but safety Ken Johnson recovered it. "He played as well as any linebacker in the league, rookie or veteran," said Atlanta coach Leeman Bennett, "and nobody made more big plays than he did."

Curry was the less spectacular but steadier performer. He'd hurt his shoulder as a senior at North Carolina and figured to be a middle-round draft choice. But after the season, the Falcons' scouts gave him a closer look and decided he was worth going for earlier. He, too, started every game and called the defensive signals.

"The great thing about Buddy," Bennett said, "was that he played like a veteran from opening day. You'd only have to tell him things once and didn't have to worry about it after that. His instincts for where the play was going was amazing for a guy who'd never been in pro football."

Waters Keeps Watch On Shaky Right Knee

DALLAS (AP) — Charlie Waters plays professional football with a constant fear of what happened to him Sunday in the second quarter of the miracle victory over the Atlanta Falcons.

"I was by myself and made sort of a torque move and fell to the ground like I was shot," the Dallas Cowboys' strong safety said. "For a millisecond, I thought 'Oh, no! Here I go again!'"

Waters bounced up, tested his still shaky right knee and played the rest of the game without incident.

"That's the way the knee goes," Waters said. "Sometimes it feels like it doesn't have a joint in it. But I'll keep playing until I can't."

Waters, bum knee and all, is the one player coach Tom Landry can't lose going into Sunday's National Conference title game with the Philadelphia Eagles.

He's the only seasoned link in a green secondary that has been bombed by every quarterback the Cowboys have faced this season.

"I've got a brace on the knee and I think it will be O.K. for the Eagle game ... the swelling wasn't too bad," he said.

Waters tore knee ligaments in an exhibition game at Seattle and missed the 1979 season. The knee collapsed on him in a preseason meeting with Los Angeles and did the same thing last Sunday.

"I've had to change my playing style because of the knee," Waters said. "My forte has always been putting myself into the right position for a play. Now, I really have to be one step ahead to make up for the one step I've lost."

Waters calls the pass defense for the Cowboys and has the authority to make any changes or audibles he deems necessary.

"I like that responsibility," Waters said. "I was a quarterback in college (Clemson) and I think like one."

Waters said other teams don't throw in his area much.

"They did early in the season but don't do it much now," he said. "I want 'em to throw on my side. That's how I got five interceptions this year and should've had four more."

Waters said he isn't certain he'll be back next year.

"I'll see how it goes in the off season," he said. "I'm not going to play unless I can contribute. The Cowboys know that if I say to count on me, they can count on me."

Green Bay Board Votes To Split GM Job Duties

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — The Green Bay Packer executive committee's decision to have two current employees share the general manager's duties will mean little change in club operations, several directors said Thursday.

The seven-member executive committee, in a brief statement after its regular monthly meeting, said it had decided not to hire an outsider as general manager.

Rather, the committee said, the duties will be shared by Bob Harlan, who has been the National Football League club's corporate general manager, and Tom Miller, who has been business manager.

The 43-member board of directors decided Dec. 27 to retain Bart Starr as head coach through 1981, the final year of his contract, but to relieve him of his general manager's duties.

Some directors said Thursday's action has the effect of keeping Starr in charge of football operations, including the area of player personnel.

One official said the action was intended to ease Starr's workload and enable him to concentrate on coaching.

"I'm sure they'll let the football people handle the football, but get the business part and the contracts away from them," the official said. "This operation has gotten so doggone complex that he (Starr) just didn't have time to devote to the business part."

"There is really nothing different after this decision," said Ted Jamison, a director from Green Bay. "Miller and Harlan can continue to do what they always did. What the board decided to do was study the separation of the two positions."

"I think this team needs a general manager, and the board thinks so, too," Jamison said. "We don't have one now, even with this announcement. Starr is still going to be the coach and general manager."

A Packer spokesman said he assumed Thursday's executive committee action does not require approval by the board of directors.

"They crawled in a hole and just didn't do anything," said Charles "Buckets" Goldenberg, a director from Milwaukee.

"I think this is just an interim thing," Goldenberg said. "They are waiting to see what happens next year. It's just what I thought they would do."

Club president Dominic Olejniczak, asked who will have authority over Starr, said, "Bart Starr is responsible to me and to the Packer executive committee."

Seven City Cage Teams To See Action Tonight

All five of the city's boys' teams and two of the girls' squads will be in action tonight in local basketball contests.

Running down the boys' schedule, Coronado is at Levelland, Dunbar is at Dimmitt, Estacado is at Midland, Lubbock hosts Palo Duro and Monterey hosts Odessa. In girls' games, Dunbar travels to Dimmitt and Estacado hosts Levelland.

All three of the city's Class 5A boys' teams will be playing opponents they've yet to play this season, but in two of the cases, they've probably read plenty.

Lubbock's Westerners host Palo Duro in one game. The Dons just defeated Monterey 59-48 Tuesday night to boost their record to 11-4. The main reason? 6-5 Joel Washington, who is leading the area 5A schools in both scoring and rebounding with 20.1 and 13.3 marks, respectively.

But the LHS bunch has a big man of its own. Kirk Cole is just a tad shorter at 6-4, and his stats aren't far behind Washington's either.

With Cole scoring 16.9 points per game and pulling down an average of 10.7 rebounds, Lubbock High has managed to go to 8-11 so far this season. That equals last season's total win mark, which was the highest in some time for a Westerner team. Guard Brad Ruff is also starting to come into his own, averaging 12.5 points a game after a relatively slow start.

Coronado is the other city team facing a much-talked about big man. The Mustangs will have to fend off 6-8 Dwight Phillips, who is averaging 20.6 points and an incredible 22.2 rebounds a game.

Coronado, now 10-10 on the season, can't counter with an outstanding big man but the Mustangs have had good success alternating 6-6 Mark Sobosle and 6-5 John Lord. Sobosle is averaging 8.4 rebounds a game.

Most of the Mustang scoring is coming from guard Robby Garner and forward Cody Love. Garner, a 5-11 junior, is averaging 12.5 points a game while Love, a 6-2 junior, is leading the club with 12.7.

In the other game involving a city Class 5A boys' team, Monterey hits the road south to face Odessa. The Plainsmen, now 14-6, are still recovering from last Tuesday night's loss to Palo Duro that snapped a string in which they'd won six of their last seven games, dating back to Dec. 12.

The Plainsmen are paced by 6-7 post Ian Hyslop, a 19.3-point per game scorer who is also pulling down 8.3 rebounds a game. In addition, 6-3 forward Gary Hodges is scoring 11.9 points a game.

The Estacado girls' squad entertains Levelland in the only district game among the city's 4A teams. The Matadors, 0-1 in district and 11-7 overall, meet the Lobos, 1-1 and 9-8, at 7:30 p.m.

Estacado, playing its first district game since Dec. 18, may be without the services of senior 5-foot-11 post Maxine Walker. Mat coach Mary Ann Cobb said, Walker resprained her left ankle Tuesday against Monterey.

"Hopefully we'll have everybody well. Maxine helps keep the team together with her experience and its going to hurt us if she's not able to play, Miss Cobb said.

Miss Walker is averaging 8.9 points and 9.7 rebounds per game.

The Estacado boys' squad travels south to face Midland High, 17-3 and the state's No. 2 ranked team. The Matadors, 10-8, played host to Midland Tuesday and lost 83-71.

"We're going to try and handle their press better this time," Mat coach J.J. Wood said. Midland's full-court pressure defense for the entire game helped force 31 Matador turnovers when the teams met in the Estacado gym.

Both Dunbar squads travel to Dimmitt to take on the 3A powerhouse Bobcats. The Dunbar girls are 10-6 and face their Dimmitt counterparts, 11-7, at 6 p.m. The Panther boys' squad, 5-12, takes on the 1B-2 Bobcats at 8 p.m.

Both Christ the King teams will be on the road today, the girls playing at Lamesa at 7:30 p.m. and the boys playing at Lorenzo at 5:30 p.m.

Big Area Schedule On Tap

Basketballs will be bouncing on hardwoods all over the South Plains tonight as half the area cage teams will be in tournament competition and the other half in single games.

Nine tournaments — in Canadian, White Deer, Abernathy, Roosevelt, Colorado City, Phillips, Reagan County, Claude and Ropesville — began Thursday to accommodate many teams. But with close to 100 teams in the Class 3A, 2A and 1A ranks alone, that they couldn't take them all.

Tonight's action will combine both non-district and league games as Dunbar's boys and girls travel north to take on the tough Dimmitt Bobcats and Bobbies. The Bobcats have lost just twice in 20 games this year, while the Bobbies are 11-7.

The Dimmitt teams have four of the top scorers in the area in Kevin Cleveland (21.1), Randy Washington (20.0), Becky Andrews (18.4) and Pam Nelson (15.2).

The Dunbar boys are 5-12 while the girls have a 10-4 record.

In district action, three 4-2A girls' games are scheduled, six 5-2A girls will be played and four 5-1A games will be played. In another district encounter, 9-1A representatives Wellman and Sands will square off.

The New Deal girls will put their perfect district record on the line when they travel to Lorenzo, which is winless in district-play in one 4-2A game. The other two will pit Hale Center against undefeated Spur and Shallowater at Crosbyton.

In 5-2A action, Seagraves, 12-1, will host 11-8 Morton; O'Donnell, winless in district play, will travel to Plains and Forgan, undefeated in two district games will be in Ropesville.

The four 5-1A games will be between the boys' and girls' teams of Nazareth and Sudan, both of which are among the top Class 1A teams in the area this season, and Spade and Cotton Cente.

The Nazareth Swifts, 14-3, went to the state finals last season, while the Swiftettes, 19-2, have won the state title the last four years.

In other big non-district games, Slaton will be at Lockney, Tahoka will be at Idalou, Anton will host Wilson, New Home will travel to Sundown and Three Way will host McAdoo.

South Plains College Whips Garden City

ALTUS, Okla. (Special) — Brad Blastic scored 18 points and three other South Plains College cagers tallied in double figures Thursday night as the Texans bumped Garden City Community College 86-73 in the first round of the Altus Invitational here.

In addition to Blastic's 18, B.J. Jones and Anthony Ferguson scored 12 each and Scott Ferrell tallied 10 as SPC advanced to 9-5 on the season.

For Garden City, now 4-8 on the year, Jeff Rattov tied with Blastic for game-high honors with 18 points, Rod Dudley scored 14, Rich Humphrey 13 and Terry Schippers 13.

Hearing Set In Walsh Case

CLEVELAND (AP) — An Ohio Court of Appeals will hear the request of Cleveland television station WKYC in its effort to obtain laboratory results from the Cuyahoga County Coroner's office on the body of slain Polish-born Olympic star Stella Walsh.

Station executive producer Cliff Abromatz Thursday said that the court has set an informal guidelines hearing, possibly Friday, on the station's request. It was filed at the 8th judicial district of the Ohio Court of Appeals Monday, a court official confirmed.

The station reported shortly after the gun-slaying of Miss Walsh, 69, in a suburban shopping center parking lot by an unknown assailant Dec. 4 that Miss Walsh may have been a male instead of a female.

The station defended its decision to air the report on the grounds that the public should know the truth in the case. It said that the coroner's records under Ohio law should be open to the public.

The Cuyahoga County Coroner's office said shortly after an autopsy was performed that its laboratory examination of the body would not be complete for some six weeks. The office said that the death certificate listed Miss Walsh as a female. The autopsy report has not yet been issued and the station said that a writ would permit it to either examine the records or force the coroner's office to show just cause as to why the station should not examine the records.

Albuquerque Hosts Gymnastics Meet

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — A star-studded field of American and international gymnasts is entered in the two-night Albuquerque Journal Gymnastics Meet that gets under way Friday night.

The Americans include Kurt Thomas, the former world champion who is now an assistant coach at Arizona State; Jim Hartung and Phil Cahoy, teammates on the two-time NCAA champion University of Nebraska team and Kathy Johnson and Julianne McNamara, both members of the U.S. Olympic team.

Meet director Rusty Mitchell said 14-year-old sensation Tracee Talavera had to withdraw from the meet because she injured a foot in training for the meet.

Prep Blocking Rules Changed

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Hoping to reduce knee injuries, a football rules committee for high schools voted Thursday to eliminate all blocking below the waist outside of the free-blocking zone.

The change was announced by the National Federation of State High School Associations, holding its annual convention.

"That is, blocking below the waist will be permitted to stop a ball carrier, or in close line play where the incidence of knee injuries is negligible," said Tom Frederick of Kansas City, associate director.

"In all other instances, blocking below the waist will be illegal, effective with the 1981 high school football season," he added.

Frederick said the federation's football rules committee represents 15,000 high schools where football is played — about a million players.

Schnellenberger Lures Schnellenberger

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP) — Howard Schnellenberger's success at the University of Miami has lured a Duke University player here — the coach's son, Stu Schnellenberger.

The 6-foot-3, 220-pound sophomore tight end says he will work out with the Hurricanes this spring, then sit out next season as an ineligible transfer.

"I didn't like the program up there," he explained. "I think being redshirted next season will benefit me because it will help me get a lot of coaching I didn't get up there."

Schnellenberger, a highly recruited star at Miami's Pace High School, played little his freshman year at Duke, then last year spelled All-Atlantic Coast Conference first-team John Brinkman at tight end.

NAIA Honors McGarvey

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Stan McGarvey, who led William Jewell College of Missouri to the semifinals of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics Division II football playoffs, was named NAIA Division II Coach of the Year Thursday.

William Jewell finished the regular season with a 10-0-1 record and a share of the Heart of America Conference championship. The Cardinals downed Baker (Kan.) 20-17 in the first round of the playoffs before losing 31-17 to Wilmington (Ohio) in the semifinals.

Coaches Award Dooley, Carter

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Vince Dooley called it "a little icing on the cake" while Rick Carter saw it as "kind of like the Academy Awards" in the football coaching profession.

That was their reaction Thursday

COACHES OF THE YEAR — Rick Carter (left) of Dayton and Vince Dooley of Georgia, who led their respective teams to undefeated national championships, were awarded Coach of the Year honors Thursday by the American Football Coaches' Association during the group's annual convention in Miami Beach. (AP Laserphoto)

when they were voted Coach of the Year honors for 1980 by some 2,400 fellow members of the American Football Coaches Association for leading their teams to perfect seasons and national championships.

Dooley was elected University Division Coach of the Year in the wake of Georgia's 12-0 record and first-ever national title. Carter, who has accepted the head coaching position at Holy Cross, won in the College Division for coaching Dayton to a 14-0 mark. The season was capped by a 63-0 rout of defending champion Ithaca in the NCAA Division III playoffs.

Dooley's award came exactly one week after his Bulldogs defeated Notre Dame 17-10 in the Sugar Bowl to clinch the national championship.

And the 48-year old coach, who was heavily wooed by his alma mater, Auburn University, said he has no plans to give up the Georgia coaching reins to concentrate on his duties as athletic director.

Dooley, who has been Georgia's head coach for 17 seasons, described coaching as "a few-year profession." He said his wife, Barbara, "would like for me to have more time, but she realizes I'd probably put as much time into anything. I'd find things to do. I'd also like to be president of this association and I'm five years or so away."

Dooley serves on the AFCA's Board of Trustees and has been chairman of its ethics committee for many years. He also wouldn't mind winning another national championship.

"The only thing you can do now with this standard is do it again," Dooley said. "It took 89 years for Georgia to win its first one. I hope the next one doesn't take that long, or I won't be around."

"We could win it again, but the percentages are really against it. The possibility is very slim. There are so many good teams and we had everything come our way this season."

Carter, 37, was an assistant for one season at Earlham College, his alma mater, before becoming head coach. He also was head coach at Hanover College and spent the last four seasons at Dayton, where he posted a 39-7-2 record. His overall mark in 15 years as a head coach is 102-39-5.

Dooley was one of nine district winners in Coach of the Year balloting. The other were Carm Cozza of Yale, George Welsh of Navy, Dick Crum of North Carolina, Bo Schembechler of Michigan, Chuck Shelton of Drake, Grant Teaff of Baylor, LaVell Edwards of Brigham Young and Don James of Washington.

Carter won out over Jim Butterfield of Ithaca, Bill Manlove of Widener, Claude Gibson of Mars Hill, Wayne Grubb of North Alabama, Charles Finley of Missouri-Rolla, Jim Hess of Angelo State, Bob Blasi of Northern Colorado and Joe Harper of Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo.

The actual vote count was not announced.

East Loads Up For Hula Bowl

HONOLULU (AP) — If the key to winning a football game is to have well-known players who win prestigious awards, then the East all-stars would have to be a heavy favorite over the West in Saturday's 35th annual Hula Bowl.

East coach Jim Young of Purdue has on his squad Heisman Trophy winner George Rogers, who posted a 1,781-yard senior season as a running back at South Carolina, and Heisman runner-up Hugh Green of Pittsburgh, who is acclaimed as the top defensive end in the country.

Then, too, there's Pittsburgh's offensive tackle Mark May, who won the Outland Trophy as the country's top interior lineman and the Lambert Trophy as the best blocker in the East.

Young says that while the big-name talent has collected on his side of the field, "the other side has a lot of talent. I think (Jarvis) Redwine (of Nebraska) and (Freeman) McNeil (of UCLA) are two outstanding running backs we'll have to face."

Young says he'll probably begin with his own Purdue quarterback, Mark Herrmann, but added quickly that Tennessee State's signal caller, Joe Adams, and all the East players definitely will see some action.

Herrmann, the all-time major college passing leader, will have his favorite target on the field, Purdue tight end Dave Young, who was the nation's top pass receiver.

Practice, an hour a day in the morning since the teams arrived last weekend, has been low-key and the players have had the afternoon and evenings off.

"We're in sort of a relaxed atmosphere. At least practice certainly has been," coach Young said.

"But when the game starts, they'll feel the competitive desire and really play. In practice, they really haven't been hitting, but it'll be different when the game starts; they'll be hitting," he said.

As for the Hula Bowl's unique rule allowing the team trailing in the scoring to receive the kickoff regardless of who scores, Young says it'll make things exciting.

"It'll make it a close game. It means nobody will be out of the game," he said.

California's Roger Theder, who heads the coaching staff for the West, thinks the East should be the early favorite, but notes he's not exactly without talent.

"We also have some outstanding players," Theder said, noting in particular his quarterback tandem of Phil Bradley of Missouri and Washington State's Samoa Samoa.

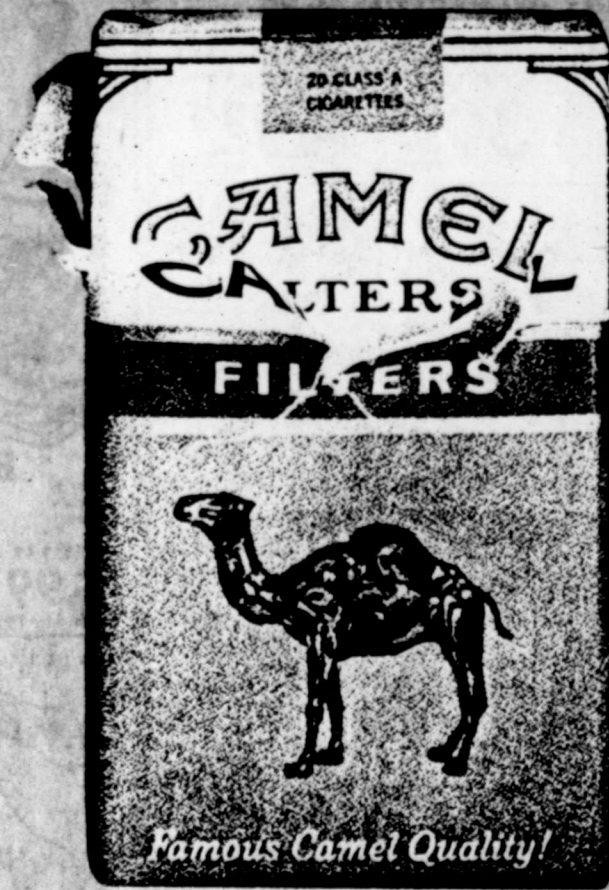

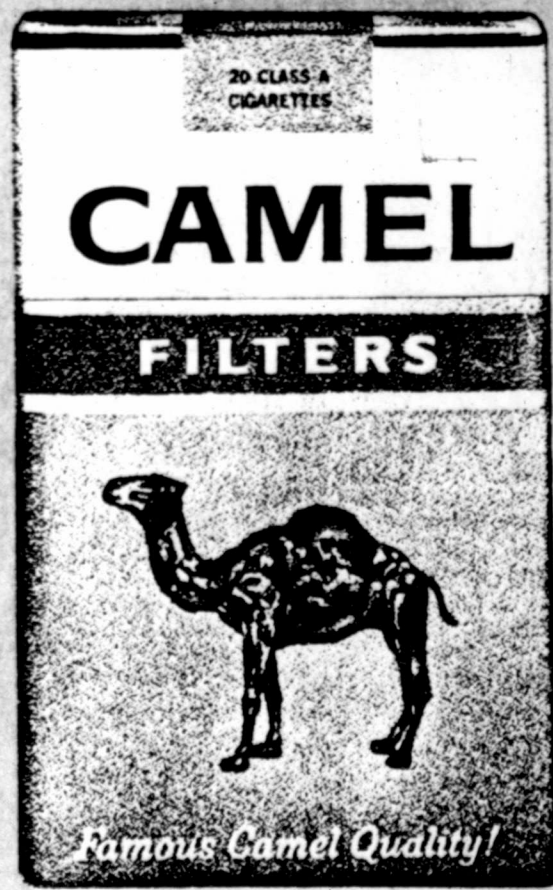

Theder, like Young, cites Redwine and McNeil as two running backs who can hardly be considered second-rate in anyone's book.

And Theder agrees that the West defensive secondary could be his team's strongest point, boasting three Associated Press All-Americans: Ken Easley of UCLA, Ronnie Lott of Southern California and John Simmons of SMU.

Esposito To Retire As Hockey Player

NEW YORK (AP) — Realizing he could not longer get mentally prepared for hockey, Phil Esposito announced his retirement from the National Hockey League on Thursday.

Esposito, the second highest scorer in NHL history, will make his final appearance as a New York Ranger on Friday night at Madison Square Garden in a game against the Buffalo Sabres. He then will assume duties as an assistant to Craig Patrick, the team's coach and director of operations.

Esposito's decision to retire came suddenly, though he was having a poor year — only seven goals and 12 assists for the man who led the Rangers in scoring the last four seasons and won the NHL scoring title five times while with the Boston Bruins.

"After the Islanders game last Friday (a 3-1 Ranger victory), I said to myself, 'If I can't get up for all the games the way I could get up for this one, and I wasn't having much fun, I should retire.'"

"On Sunday, against Quebec (a 2-2 tie), it reverted back to being like a job."

"On Monday, I informed Sonny (Werblin) and Craig and they seemed mildly surprised. To their credit, they both asked me to make sure and to make the decision myself.

"Physically, I believe I'm as fit as any guy on the team. The difference for me is mentally, I found myself getting down easily. I didn't score as I should have and that added to the mental pressure."

"I saw the kids on the team seeing me get down. I heard Mike Allison say he draws energy from me when I'm up, like for the Islander game. When I was down — and I was down a lot more than I was up this season — the energy wasn't there like it always used to be."

In truth, neither were many of the skills that made Esposito the most feared scorer in the game. At 6-foot-1, 205 pounds, Esposito would park himself in the slot in front of the enemy goal and take a brutal pounding each night. But he wouldn't budge and, eventually, his mates would get him the puck.

And bang ... it was in the net.

But the quick release was gone and the deadly shot strayed more often than it found its target. And Esposito came to the realization that the team might be better if he retired.

Dionne Changes Opinion About Kings' Chances

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles center Marcel Dionne has become the 13th player in National Hockey League history to score 1,000 points. But right now, he's much more excited about his change of opinion concerning the Kings.

Dionne, who will be remembered as one of the greatest performers in the history of hockey when his playing days are over, has been saying for years that the Kings have had no chance to challenge for the Stanley Cup, which annually goes to the NHL champion.

But he's feeling differently these days.

"I've been saying it every year, that we didn't have a chance," said Dionne in an interview. "Now, it's changed. I could feel it in training camp this year. It's so important to have good management. That's the whole key."

So when can the Kings, who were sold by Jack Kent Cooke to Jerry Buss prior to the 1979-80 season, put forth a serious challenge for the Stanley Cup?

"This year, why not?" Dionne said. "This team is way better than I expected, than anybody expected. It all depends on when you peak. Look at the Islanders last year. I think it would be the greatest accomplishment of my career, that would be something."

"The next couple of years, it's there. Maybe this year. All you ask is a chance, we have a shot at it. You have to be realistic, too."

They've only played half a season, but the Kings seem to have established themselves as championship contenders with a 26-11-4 record after beating Hartford 5-3 Wednesday night.

Dionne entered that game with 998 points. He had two goals and an assist, making his current total a league-leading 73 for this season and 1,001 points for his career.

The Kings' next game is Saturday night at St. Louis against the Blues.

While the Kings are playing well, Dionne is aware that half a season is half a season. Last year, Los Angeles was 18-13-9 during the first half of the campaign and 11-23-6 in the second half.

Rote Boosts Soccer, Religion

IF I EVER HAVE A KID, I want her or she to be just like Kyle Rote, Jr.

The three-time Superstars Competition winner, professional soccer player, television commentator and all-around nice guy was in Lubbock Thursday — not to just take advantage of the January Clearance Sale at Holton's Home Furnishings, but to spread the word of God, conduct three soccer clinics and see his old high school buddy, James Holton.

It was Rote's first visit to Lubbock since 1975. That's when he and his former Dallas Tornado teammates played an exhibition game against Texas Tech.

"The main thing I remember about that visit was that it was so cold — about 10 degrees with the wind-chill factor, and about 5,000 people still turned out to watch," Rote recalls. "It was then I realized that youth soccer in this area was growing and had great potential to grow even more."

ROTE ADDED THAT HE expected to see a reflection of that growth when he conducted his four clinics that night. He's was also anxious to see the skill level of the kids who attended the Tornado clinics five years ago.

Rote, like former Tornado teammate Bobby Moffatt, who has been conducting clinics in West Texas for several years, feels a responsibility to be an ambassador for soccer. "Many Tornado players from the early 70s, including Bobby and myself, have been going out to spread soccer for years," Rote said. "We're anxious to sell and go overboard with the publication of our sport."

"There are a lot of youth leagues in Lubbock, but there are also women's leagues. I remember one time before they were formed, a woman asked me about women playing soccer. I told her it was a good way to lose weight. A way to lose weight was all she needed to hear — she was all for the idea. You get out in this Texas heat and run through an entire game and you're sure to lose some weight."

ROTE IS HAPPY THAT THERE are leagues for the older generation, because he believes it's important for the whole family to be involved in something together. "I like to emphasize that fact — the building up of the family and relationships when I'm promoting soccer. When the mother goes out to see her son play Saturday morning, she can't yell too loudly at him because she knows he will be watching her with that same chance Tuesday night."

"However, the problem of the little league complex sometimes exists unless the family is completely unified in the sport. When that happens, it can work in the opposite direction. Instead of unifying, it divides the family."

Rote is one of the top performers in the North American Soccer League — he's the only native American to lead the league in scoring — even though he didn't start playing the sport until he was 17. He was a star in football, basketball and baseball at Highland Park High School and was named to the all-state football team in 1968.

FOLLOWING HIGH SCHOOL, HE went to Oklahoma State on a football scholarship. New Tech coach Jerry Moore, then an assistant at SMU, tried to keep Rote in Dallas, but Rote opted for the Cowboys. Rote says that's probably the only thing Moore probably remembers him for.

While at OSU, Rote played soccer in the off season, but only as a conditioner. "After three summers of soccer, I knew I had more God-given ability in soccer than in football. It was funny, though. I grew up with a football. I never had a teddy bear. As I child, I used to throw a football up in the air before I went to sleep at night."

Rote grew up with football because his father, Kyle Rote, Sr., was a Hall of Famer for the New York Giants. When his son chose soccer over football, rumor has it that he didn't like it one little bit. But Kyle, Jr., says his father never said a discouraging word about his decision.

"MY FATHER ALWAYS taught me to be a balanced individual," Rote says. "He loved me whether I was a good athlete or not, and no matter what sport I played."

"Whatever sport was in season was my favorite when I was in high school. I already had enough athletic influence from my father so it didn't matter what sport I played — I liked it. There were two things my father did that showed me you have to be balanced. I didn't understand them then, but now I'm thankful he did them."

"He never saw me play any sports until my last game of high school. It was hard to accept because everybody's else's parents were there, but he did it for a purpose. It really bothered me that he didn't come to watch me perform, but now I understand. By not being there, he let me be on my own. Another thing he did was to introduce me to the guys who were cut from the team to show me there were going to be bad times as well. My dad and I love each other as father and son, but we're friends as well."

WHEN ROTE WAS AT OSU, he says he didn't have the discipline to do as well as he wanted to in academics. After a couple of years there, Rote transferred to Sewanee University in Tennessee to play soccer. Then, after his college career was over, Rote decided to combine a professional soccer career with law school when he was drafted by the Dallas Tornado of the NASL.

Just like his father had taught him, Rote knew he needed to be balanced. "I knew I would need something to fall back on some day. After law school, I knew I wouldn't have to play soccer the rest of my life in order to make it."

"That's what I try to teach the kids in my clinics. I tell them they must consider the other abilities they have as well as their athletic talents."

ROTE PRACTICES WHAT HE PREACHES in his everyday life, using his professional athlete status to spread God's word. And, unlike most people who earn the majority of their living from athletics, Rote preaches that sports is not a god. He says there is life after a professional career.

Rote took this past season off to help cover the Olympics for the ABC Television Network. He also went to India to work with Mother Teresa, a Nobel Prize winner, on a study of world hunger.

"That experience (in India) had a big impact on my life," Rote said. "It made me appreciate American and my Christian beliefs more. The Indians believe in suffering."

ROTE HAS A CONTRACT to play for the Houston Hurricane for the next two seasons, but he believes the franchise will "dismantle" before then. The team has drawn poorly, something Rote blames on the players and management. He calls it "negligence" on their part.

As the Tornado's leading career scorer, Rote was one of the most popular athletes in Dallas — but only in Big D.

Then came the Roone Arledge's brainchild called "The Superstars," and Rote burst onto the national sports scene by becoming the only athlete winning the competition three times. "I really enjoyed the Superstars competition," Rote said. "The money was nice and being able to make Howard Cosell speechless was very gratifying, but the exposure I got from that opened the door for me to glorify God. My prayer before the competition began was to honor God through my performance whether I finished first or last."

ROTE DID HONOR GOD, with three first places. After winning the competition, proving he was one of the best athletes in the world, Rote was looked upon as a "special" professional athlete. Now he honors God even more by using that label in his clinics, saying, "The only reason I'm special is because God loves me. God loves us all, so we're all special. I don't think I'm any better than anybody else."

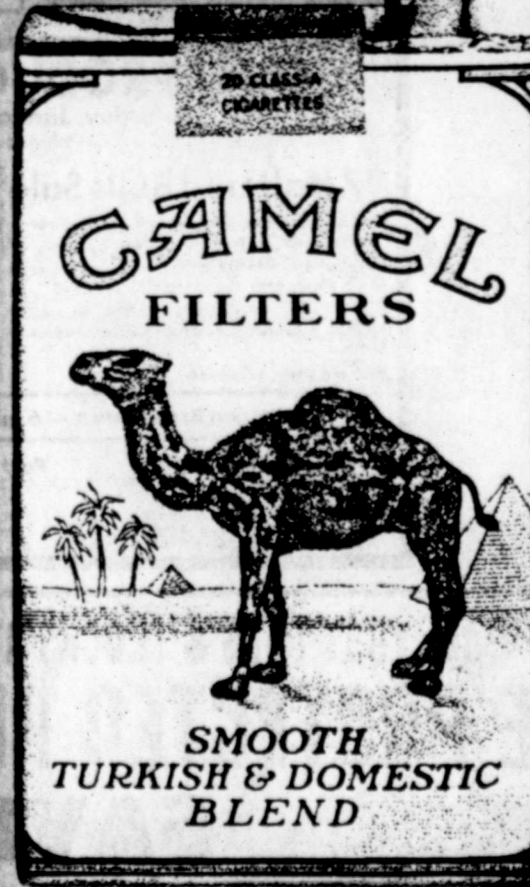

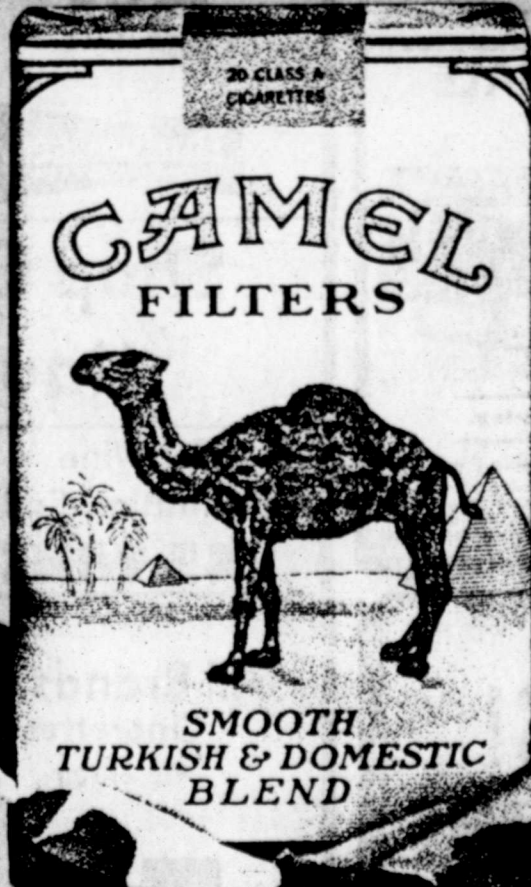

Not only does Rote keep his balance between being a pro athlete and a sportscaster, but he's balanced between the man in the public eye and the everyday citizen.

The main thing in Rote's life, what he looks out for most, is his family.

Every Friday night of the off season, Rote can be seen on the Soccer Game of the Week, a production of the U.S.A. Cable Network, a division of Madison Square Garden Sports. That's just his way of keeping other opportunities open and following the teachings of dear old dad who said to keep that delicate balance.

Herzog Says Phillips 'Tampered' With Oiler Assistant Coaches

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oiler general manager Ladd Herzog said Thursday he will pursue tampering charges against former coach Bum Phillips and seek compensation in the form of draft choices if Oiler assistant coaches accept jobs with the New Orleans Saints. "Please don't say that I'm going to force the assistant coaches to stay," Herzog said. "If they don't want to be here I won't hold a gun to their heads. But we will want compensation from the Saints."

What would be just compensation? "Well, I understand they have 18 draft choices and we could use some," Herzog said.

Phillips, fired Dec. 31 as coach and general manager of the Oilers, has been removed from the New Orleans as head coach and all six Oiler assistants have asked Herzog to release them from the final year of their contracts.

"I firmly believe the assistant coaches were tampered with," Herzog said. "No one in the world walks away from a guaranteed year's contract in this economy unless he has another job already lined up."

Herzog is scheduled to meet with the Oiler assistant coaches Friday to discuss his plans, a task Herzog admits may be difficult.

"These coaches are friends of mine who I've worked with," Herzog said. "The hardest thing right now for me to do is my job but I have to protect the interests of the Houston Oilers."

Herzog said his top priority after Phillips was fired, was to retain as much continuity as possible in the organization.

"All the assistants came to me and asked what they should do and I told them we should go on just as things had been," Herzog said. "I was just as bewildered as they were about what was coming down around us. They all wanted to stay. Then Friday night something happened to change their minds."

"They all started filing by Ed's house to say they wanted out. I've got to believe they were offered something else."

Oiler defensive line coach Wade Phillips is the only assistant coach to say flatly he wants out. Others, offensive coaches King Hill, Andy Bourgeois and Joe Bugel and defensive aides John Paul Young and Bob Gambold, has declined comment.

Bum Phillips, meanwhile, took a break from two days of discussions with Saints' owner John Mecom to appear on the Johnny Carson Show in Los Angeles. Mecom says Phillips is a favorite for the head coaching job but no decision has been made.

Herzog returned from San Francisco Thursday to face the sticky problem of Earl Campbell's contract demands. Herzog said he had lunch with Campbell's agent Witt Stewart and reiterated the Oilers' policy of not renegotiating player contracts.

Estacado Teams Advance In Tourney

Both Estacado ninth-grade basketball teams advanced to today's semi-final round of the city junior high basketball tournament with victories Thursday at the Lubbock High gym.

The Estacado girls' slipped past Matthews 42-38 and were joined in the final four by Hutchinson, a 37-28 winner over Evans.

Sheila Stewart scored 14 points for Estacado while Cindy Garcia poured in 24 in a losing effort for Matthews. Hutchinson was paced by Kermit Becknell with 11. Marti Troger had nine for Evans.

In boys' games Thursday, Estacado dumped Hutchinson 71-48 and Evans rolled past Slaton 75-30. Donnie Briggs scored 16 for Evans while Greg Zamora had 17 for Slaton.

Today's games, which will all be played at Chapman Gym, pit Wilson and Evans in a loser's bracket girls' game at 3 p.m. and Atkins and Estacado in a winner's bracket girls' contest at 8:20 p.m.

In two winner's bracket boys' games, Atkins and Estacado meet at 4:20 p.m. and Mackenzie and Evans square off at 7 p.m.

The tournament will continue with Saturday games at the Lubbock High gym.

LCHS Girls Drop Stanton

COLORADO CITY (Special) — The Lubbock Christian High girls' basketball team recovered from a mid-game slump and, with the help of an effective press, rallied to sweep past Stanton 61-53 Thursday in the first round of the Colorado City Tournament.

The Eagles jumped out to a quick 15-7 lead after the first period but saw their lead cut to a single point, 26-25, at half-time and trailed 44-41 entering the final period.

"We jumped out to the early lead and the kids didn't expect that. I think they were cruising after we got the 1-7 lead,"

LCHS coach Dale Pectol said. "The Stanton got really hot. They were hitting everything they shot in the second quarter."

Stanton led 51-48 with 5:23 to play in the game when Lubbock Christian, which had used a pressing defense ineffectively earlier in the game, went into a three-quarter court defense. The Eagles finished the game with a 13-2 spurt for their 12th victory in 17 contests.

"Our press finally just started working and everything fell together," Pectol said.

Guard Brendell Baker led all scorers with 37 points on 11 of 24 field goals and 15 of 21 free throws. Jana Rogers scored five points and pulled down three rebounds, all in the final period, and it was her three-point play that broke a 51-51 tie and put the Eagles ahead for good.

Stanton, 4-12, was led by Della Brown with 13 points while Mandy Givens and Leigh Ann Graves contributed 12 apiece.

In the only other girls' game of the day, Clyde beat Colorado City 55-49.

The Lubbock Christian High boys are among the teams competing today in the boys' side of the bracket.

Mecom Says No Terms Discussed With Phillips

He and Saints owner John Mecom Jr. had long talks Tuesday and Wednesday, which left Mecom describing Phillips as his "heads-on favorite" for the job.

After Wednesday's talks, Mecom said he still had to talk to four other candidates but said the job was just for coach — not for general manager, too.

Phillips was coach and general manager at Houston.

"He has not been hired," Mecom said. "I have not talked terms with him. I have not offered him a salary. That's the truth."

Mecom said there would be no conflict between his future coach and general manager Steve Rosenbloom. Rosenbloom is in charge of personnel with the Saints, working through Dick Steinberg, whom he hired from Los Angeles shortly after joining the Saints before last season.

"I am not out to replace anything but a head coach," Mecom said. "Bum and I have talked about that."

The two are scheduled to talk again before the week is over, but Mecom said he is going to take his time picking his eighth head coach in the 14-year-history of the franchise.

Mecom said he has eliminated George Allen from the list of contenders, saying the Saints don't want someone with Allen's philosophy. That philosophy is generally described as "the future is now" — not one of long-range building. With Phillips' emergence as the favorite, the odds also dropped considerably for Lou Holtz, coach of the University of Arkansas, who said Wednesday that he considered the Saints job a plum.

Phillips was fired by owner Bud Adams on Dec. 31 because he refused to hire an offensive coordinator. Phillips said he and Mecom talked only in generalities.

"We talked more along the lines of what my theories of football are and what I think I need staff-wise," Phillips said. "We didn't go into anything about the people they've already got."

"I'm sure John's gonna want some things I might not want

Chargers Owner Levels Blast At Davis

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Owner Gene Klein of the San Diego Chargers accused Oakland Raiders general manager partner Al Davis Thursday of a "devious plot" to intimidate National Football League officials assigned to Sunday's semifinal playoff game in San Diego.

In a news conference, Klein hinted that Davis fed derogatory information about NFL officials to a Los Angeles newspaper indicating prejudiced calls against Oakland in last Sunday's playoff game at Cleveland.

Klein then accused columnist Mel Durslag of the Los Angeles Herald Examiner of being "a mouthpiece" for the Raiders, who want to move to Los Angeles, and of writing "huge lies."

"It's an insidious attempt to intimidate officials and cast dispersions on the NFL from top to bottom," Klein claimed.

In a Monday column, Durslag noted that no major penalties were called against Cleveland. He wrote that perhaps the Raiders should ask for a change of venue or bring in Canadian referees for the American Football Conference championships.

Durslag, informed of the statement from San Diego, said: "Klein is a scurrilous individual who takes the position that if you are not on his side, you must be a crook. There is no logical reason for any of the NFL in the current argument."

"The NFL is not above reproach, nor is Mr. Klein."

Durslag said all are accused of being in the enemy's pocket merely because they reject the "political conspiracy that is keeping professional football out of Los Angeles."

Klein said the issue was "more of the smoke screen and big lie" that Davis has employed in his effort to move the Oakland franchise to Los Angeles.

Klein voted with other club owners 22-0 to deny the Raiders permission to move.

Durslag said, "Klein voted for the Rams to move to Anaheim, openly embarrassed by the land heist. He could tolerate such a caper and then turn around and call me a (Los Angeles) Coliseum and Raider house man for encouraging a replacement for that team."

"As for his remarks on the Cleveland officiating, his piety is touching. When Oakland rolled the ball to beat him in a pony fumble a few years back, Klein objected strenuously and brought in a new NFL rule."

Davis, general managing partner of the Oakland club, is suing the NFL for $160 million for blocking his attempt to relocate.

"It's not so much a question of being allowed to move but rather do we have rules or don't we," Klein said. "If the courts decide we don't have rules, I or Al Davis or Lamar Hunt or somebody is going to sign Herschel Walker (Georgia's freshman rushing sensation)."

"Or why should I have to go with 45 players for the championship game? I may want 90."

Cager Declared Ineligible

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — University of Oregon starting guard Barry Walker was declared academically ineligible Thursday for the Ducks' next two basketball games.

Walker had started six of Oregon's 11 games this season. He was averaging 4.7 points per game and leading the team in assists with 39.

The university said a scholastic review committee would review Walker's situation next week. If the review is favorable, Walker could return to the team in time for a game against Oregon State Jan. 17.

Monterey Girls Pound Sandies

The Monterey Plainsmen, ranked No. 2 in the state Class 5A girls' basketball poll, handed No. 15 Amarillo High a decisive defeat Thursday night, whipping the Sandies 77-63.

Monterey, now 18-1 on the year, climbed to a 20-9 first-period advantage and never looked back.

Leading MHS was Kamie Ethridge with 33 points, including 13 field goals. Andrea Moore and Tracey Muehlbrad were the only other MHS girls in double figures, tallying 11 and 10 respectively. Kriess Ethridge had nine.

For Amarillo, which now stands 12-6 on the season, Carmen Wynn scored 23, Liz Jones 14 and Cindy Marten and Felicia Cotton 10 each.

"That's probably the best game we've ever played in that gym, here at home," said coach Tim Tasker.

"I'll tell you why — two reasons. First, Amarillo is ranked right up there in the top 15 and they just got done beating Plainview by two the other night.

"And second, Kriess Ethridge got in foul trouble early and sat on the bench for two quarters. That's a good sign, anytime you can go in and hang on to your lead with one of your stars on the bench."

"Kamie did everything but coach the team. She had eight steals, 33 rebounds, seven assists and of course the 33 points. And Molly Hasie got eight rebounds. That's something we haven't been doing very well lately."

SPC Defeats LCC Women

South Plains College rode the hot shooting of Lynette Joiner to a 62-49 win over Lubbock Christian College Thursday in women's basketball action at the LCC Fieldhouse.

Miss Joiner, a forward, matched the scoring of the entire Lubbock Christian squad in the first half as South Plains ripped off the first eight points of the contest en route to a 36-18 halftime margin.

Miss Joiner hit six consecutive field goals in the first 20 minutes and finished the half eight of 12 from the floor. She was 10 of 17 for the game and finished as the leading scorer with 27 points.

LCC, now 4-10, had a dismal first-half shooting performance, connecting on just seven of 27 field goal attempts.

Meanwhile, South Plains, 5-7, hit 16 of its 37 shots.

Diane Hochstein joined Miss Joiner in double figures, scoring 13. Darla Lynch paced LCC with 10 points while Sherry Brown tossed in eight and Cindy Bigham had seven.

LCC will play host to Austin College Saturday at 1 p.m. in its TIAA conference opener.

Palo Duro Thumps Coronado

AMARILLO (Special) — Coronado shot only 28 percent from the floor Thursday night and, predictably, fell to Palo Duro 46-37 as a result.

The Mustangs, who coach Miles Johnson said had one of their better defensive games this year, just couldn't put the ball in the hoop. Only Tami Scott and Leanne Wade broke double figures, scoring 14 and 12 points apiece.

Palo Duro didn't do much better. Tonya Folsom scored 11 Pat Wormsley got 13 to be the only Dons in double figures.

In fact, Coronado trailed by only four points, 30-26 after three periods of play. But when it came time for the stretch run, the Mustangs' turnovers and bad shooting caught up with them.

"It was a close game till the last minute or two," said Johnson. "But when we needed to go out and get them we couldn't do it."

"We only shot 28 percent and we turned the ball over quite a bit on offense — it was just poor fundamentals. It's a shame because we played one of our best presses in a long time."

Coronado's junior varsity beat Palo Duro 49-24 to advance to 11-2 to save some face.
