AT FIRST GLANCE, the cars look like they just rolled off the assembly line.

The gleaming chrome, spotless interiors, shiny paint and engines clean enough to dine from indicate new cars, but a closer inspection reveals that the vehicles date from a quarter-century ago.

The 10 Chevrolets of 1955, '56 and '57 vintage have been restored to the way they looked when they first rolled out of Detroit more than two decades ago.

They are an exhibit put together by Hub City Classic Chevy club for the World of Wheels Car Show beginning at 5 p.m. today in the Civic Center and running through tomorrow evening.

The club represents 17 members with interests in '55-'57 Chevrolets. It is affiliated with the national Classic Chevy Club of Orlando, Fla., which has attracted nearly 28,000 members — including many in Europe and other parts of the globe — since its founding in 1974.

Charles Jasper, who started the Lubbock branch of the club four years ago, said not all members have an eligible car, but most do and some own more than one of the sought after Chevrolets.

The restoring business can be a thorough and involved one and can run into many thousands of dollars, Jasper said. Cars can be restored in either an original or modified manner and the price involved depends on how nice the owner wants to make the car and how authentic he wants to make it, he said.

When cars are originally restored, the work complies with the General Motors specifications in effect when the cars were built. These original specifications cover not only engine, trans-

Haig Eyes Nuclear Deterrent To Reds

'Willingness' To Act Underscored

WASHINGTON (AP) — Alexander M. Haig said Friday that the best deterrent to war is to demonstrate to the Soviet Union "our willingness to do whatever is necessary" — including the use of nuclear weapons — to protect America's vital interests.

That, he said, would be a message Soviet leaders can understand.

Haig, Ronald Reagan's nominee as secretary of state, said he does not advocate "flirting with the desirability of getting into a nuclear conflict." But, he told his Senate confirmation hearing:

"Whatever Is Necessary"

"My experience in the international community suggests to me that our deterrent achieves its credibility by the perception of our willingness to do whatever is necessary to protect our vital interests if they are challenged."

"And that must include the arsenal of nuclear weapons that we maintain at such great cost today."

The Foreign Relations Committee hearing was recessed for the night after Haig promised "generally" not to pursue a policy of nuclear superiority or to approve covert military operations without consulting Congress.

"Absolutely," he said. "We'll share that burden together."

Capability Concern

He declined to be drawn into a discussion on what factors might prompt a decision to commit American troops to the Middle East should there be an oil cutoff. And he said he is concerned about America's capability to conduct such operations — a concern, he said, that was shared by the Carter Administration.

In his six hours of testimony, Haig praised the Camp David agreements reached under Carter as "a tremendous achievement in diplomacy."

The hearing will continue today and Monday — and perhaps longer. It may be drawn out by efforts of Democrats who want to subpoena records and tape recordings from Haig's days in Richard M. Nixon's administration.

Release Opposed

Former President Nixon's lawyers oppose release of the materials and Haig, who once was Nixon's chief of staff, told a senator he would not encourage the former president to release them.

"I have no reservations whatsoever what may or may not have been on those tapes," he said. "I'm just not going to interpose myself in this question."

But Haig told the panel his actions in behalf of Nixon always were "within the boundaries of the law," and complied with what he saw as his duty "to preserve that office in the national interest."

Haig, a former NATO commander, said he has always supported arms control, "especially efforts to get the nuclear genie back in the bottle," but he warned against making such efforts an end in itself.

"There are things we Americans must be willing to fight for," he told the committee. "This republic was formed by armed conflict for the freedoms and liberties we enjoy today... We must understand that. We must structure our policy under that credible and justifiable premise."

Haig said also: — He never advocated the use of nuclear weapons in Vietnam and "I know

U.S. Drafts Replies To Iranian Queries

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — A U.S. negotiating team consulted with Algerian mediators in secret sessions Friday to draft answers to new questions Iran has raised about financial arrangements for freeing the 52 American hostages in Iran.

In Washington, Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie told reporters, "The reality is the negotiations are going on and that is a positive sign." He was asked if the Iranian questions indicated Iran had serious intentions of settling the crisis and he replied, "That's a fair conclusion."

Earlier in the day, a State Department spokesman said the U.S. negotiating team reported "serious problems continue to exist" but the U.S. government still believed remaining differences seemed to be narrowing in negotiations to free the hostages, held captive 433 days.

The American negotiators here remained behind the walls of the U.S. Embassy and were reported "in frequent contact" with Algerian mediators as they tried to nail down an agreement to free the hostages before President Carter leaves office Jan. 20.

Reports from the negotiating team were sent to Washington, where U.S. officials said Iran had raised new questions on the substance of the American proposals for depositing frozen Iranian assets in an Algerian bank and on how the plan would be carried out.

Warren M. Christopher, deputy secretary of state, told the State Department in a telephone conversation about the new Iranian questions. State Department spokesman John H. Trattner said the Christopher team is working on responses to Iran's new round of questions and will consult with the Algerians before sending the answers to Tehran.

There was no indication of whether a breakthrough could be expected or of how long the U.S. negotiating team would stay in Algiers.

Iran has demanded $24 billion in deposits in Algeria to cover Iranian assets frozen in the United States and as a guarantee for recovery of the wealth of the late shah. The United States has offered to set up an escrow account in the Algerian Central Bank and to transfer several billion of the estimated $8 billion to $14 billion in frozen assets so that the money would be available to Iran when the hostages are released.

The Algerian go-betweens were said to be urging the U.S. negotiators to make clearer explanations of the plan in an effort to meet Iranian objections.

The Carter administration ruled that the Iranian demand for $24 billion was excessive and offered a counter-proposal. Iran, according to U.S. officials, came back with 15 questions about the proposal and a reply was drafted Tuesday night.

An American negotiating team was hurriedly dispatched to Algiers to discuss the response with the Algerians before sending it on to Tehran where four Algerian diplomats were maintaining direct contact with the Iranian government.

There was no new word on the progress of the negotiations from Tehran, where the Moslem country was observing the Islamic sabbath.

In Chicago, commodity futures slumped on rumors the United States had transferred billions of dollars to Algeria as part of the hostage negotiations

Disco Owner Named In Arson Charge In Burning Of Downtown Night Spot

By KIM COBB
 Avalanche-Journal Staff

RODNEY Holloman, part owner of the former Studio One Disco, was indicted for arson Friday by a Lubbock County grand jury for his alleged part in the July 8, 1979, burning of the downtown night-spot.

Holloman's indictment was one of 85 true bills handed down by the 99th District Court grand jury, which also indicted Vernon R. Gilmore and Samantha Davidson for murder in the slaying of a Spicewood man whose body was found in a caliche pit near Lubbock last November.

The panel passed on five cases and no-billed, or declined to indict, 11 others, including a Lubbock police officer who fatally shot a city woman while working as an off-duty security guard.

Holloman, now living in Dallas, is accused of participating in the early morning arson which gutted the former club at 714 Broadway. However, a source close to the investigation indicated that additional indictments may follow in connection with the fire.

The Lubbock Fire Marshal's office ruled the blaze arson after a Department of Public Safety analysis of debris indicated that a flammable liquid had been poured on the building and furnishings.

U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms agents also looked into the fire and their evidence was taken before a federal grand jury in September 1979. However, no indictments were returned by that panel.

The case was reopened recently by the Lubbock County Criminal District Attorney's office after information gleaned from another investigation yielded more evidence in the Studio One fire.

A civil lawsuit filed in 237th District Court and recently postponed because of the criminal investigation into the fire states that the building and its contents were insured for $400,000. The lawsuit is seeking collection of the insurance which seven different insurance firms have refused to pay as a result of the arson question.

The building and contents damaged by the fire, the lawsuit claims, amounted to $428,209.77

Gilmore, 31, and Miss Davidson, 32, were indicted for the shooting death of Richard Grier Luster, whose body was found Nov. 8 on a sloping road leading into a caliche pit near Lake Ransom Canyon.

State Usury Law Reform Sought

By RAY WESTBROOK
 A-J Business Editor

A CONFEDERACY of Texas businessmen whose operations depend primarily upon consumer credit have launched a concerted effort to gain revision of Texas usury laws.

Don Cavness, Austin consultant for the Texas Bankers Association, met Friday in Lubbock with representatives of the financial community and retail firms, including automobile and furniture dealers, to discuss the politically volatile subject.

Cavness said the state's business people are attempting to present a single, unified front in dealing with the issue rather than a variety of individual petitions.

The group hopes to obtain a floating ceiling tied to Treasury bills. That method, they believe, would result in a greater availability of credit by allowing loan money to more closely parallel market value.

Many younger couples who have not established credit over a period of years now find it difficult to obtain loans for such major purchases as automobiles and furniture, according to the businessmen.

Cavness said 21 states have no ceiling on interest rates and the group he represents hopes to obtain legislation in Texas to bring the state's lending laws in line with the marketplace.

The prime interest rate, which reached the 20 percent level twice within the past year, was six percent as recently as 1973. With such variations in interest rates, inflation and the amount savers are being paid for the use of their money, the group thinks a law that would allow consumer interest rates to be responsive to the market would be beneficial to the economy.

If higher interest rates were allowed, a consumer would have an economic choice in whether to take out a loan or to

Clements Names New College Regents

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements on Friday tapped his predecessor's wife and the two top-ranking people on the Texas College Coordinating Board for seats on the University of Texas Board of Regents.

Janey Briscoe, wife of former Gov. Dolph Briscoe, and Beryl Milburn, chairwoman of the coordinating board, were on hand when Clements made the announcement of their selection.

He also picked Tom Rhodes, a long-time friend and associate, who is now vice chairman of the coordinating board. Mrs. Milburn and Rhodes will give up their coordinating board posts. The governor also found three new members for the Texas A&M Board of Regents: Harvey Bright of Dallas, Joe Richard Jr. of Amarillo, and William McKenzie of Dallas.

All three appointees to the UT board are UT graduates. Rhodes, an attorney, worked for SEDCO Inc. when the firm was owned by Clements.

Mrs. Briscoe will replace Tom Law of Fort Worth. Mrs. Milburn will succeed Walter Sterling of Houston. Rhodes replaces Dan Williams of Dallas, now board chairman.

The three A&M appointees are A&M graduates.

Bright, 60, is an oil and gas production firm executive and will replace Alfred Davis of Dallas. Richardson, 53, is in oil and gas production, real estate and farming, and will replace Ross Watkins of Uvalde.

McKenzie, 57, is a lawyer and chairman of the Republican Party of Dallas County. He will replace Joe Reynolds of Houston.

Instructional Materials Due For Review

Films and other instructional materials available to the public schools through Region 17 education service center will be shown to the public during a review session on Jan. 23.

The open house will be from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the media division of the service center, 4000 22nd Place. Those wanting to view specific materials are advised by the center to notify it at least 10 days in advance to insure availability.

Snow Hits Upper Mississippi Valley

By The Associated Press
Bitter cold and light snow struck the Upper Mississippi Valley on Friday, with sub-zero temperatures common in parts of Minnesota and North Dakota.

International Falls, Thier River Falls and Warroad, Minn., were the country's coldest spots at 1 p.m. CST with readings of 7 degrees below zero.

Elsewhere, skies were partly cloudy across the Gulf Coast states and light rain fell in some areas. Sunny skies extended from northern Georgia through the middle Mississippi Valley into the Rockies and along most of the West Coast.

Temperatures were mild in the Southwest, with temperatures in the 60s in southern California and desert areas. The nation's warm spot at 1 p.m. CST was Palm Springs, Calif., with a reading of 77.

For today, snow was forecast from the Lower Great Lakes region through the central Appalachians and the Northeast, with rain showers over the Washington coast. Sunny skies were forecast from the southern Atlantic Coast through the Plains and the Rockies, with mostly cloudy skies over the Western states and fog and smoke along the central Pacific Coast.

Bitterly cold temperatures were predicted across the northern states from North Dakota to Maine with highs barely above zero. Freezing temperatures were predicted from the central Plains through the Ohio and Tennessee valleys to the middle Atlantic states. The warmest spots will be southern Florida, southern California, and the desert Southwest, with readings in the 60s.

Here is Friday afternoon weather in selected cities, as supplied by the National Weather Service:

New Sheriff Requests $27,000 Budget Increase

By MARY ALICE ROBBINS
Avalanche-Journal Staff
After only a week in office, Sheriff D.L. "Sonny" Keesee already is hitting up the Lubbock County Commissioners Court for about a $27,000 boost in his department's budget this year.

In a letter sent to commissioners Thursday, Keesee asked for salary increases, new uniforms, more ammunition, badges for the jail staff and a king-size chair for his personal use.

"I think we're well documented on everything we've asked for," Keesee said. "We're not asking for anything that's not needed."

And the sheriff said that more requests for budget increases are likely to be presented to commissioners in the near future.

However, Keesee's bid for more money to run his department apparently will meet with strong opposition from at least one member of the commissioners court.

Commissioner Alton Brazell said he isn't ready to begin adding to the county's 1981 budget. "Generally, my position is that all departments, at least for a month, ought to live with the present county budget," Brazell said.

County Judge Rod Shaw said he was surprised to receive a budget increase request from Keesee so soon after he was sworn into office.

"I understood during his (Keesee's) campaign that he said he was going to give better management of the personnel and resources available," Shaw added.

Around half of Keesee's proposed budget increase would go to hike salaries for some personnel in his department. He proposed to establish "a promotion ladder" that calls for seven captains' positions, two lieutenants and two sergeants.

County records indicated that only four captains' posts currently are authorized for the sheriff's office, and there are no authorizations for the other positions.

The proposed promotions would cost the county around $14,880 this year, according to County Auditor Dale Gallimore.

But Keesee said the promotion system is needed. "We're trying to establish right now a department that can expand for the next 20 years by just the addition of personnel," he explained.

The addition of the lieutenant and sergeant positions will be necessary to handle the chain of command as the department grows larger, Keesee said.

The sheriff also is seeking $175 monthly raise for his personal secretary. That request would add about $2,000 to the county's budget this year.

Another request calls for the purchase of 55 badges for correctional officers and captains in the jail division. The estimated cost for that purchase is $1,100.

Keesee has asked commissioners to purchase new uniforms for the deputy staff, estimating the cost will run about $20,160 over the next five years.

However, county officials noted that Keesee failed to consider the turnover rate in personnel at the sheriff's office. They said the uniform costs could go as high as $42,525 over the five-year period, based on a 50 percent turnover rate.

In his letter, Keesee noted a new policy that will require deputies to regularly qualify in weapons use on a firing range. He is asking commissioners to purchase ammunition for deputies to use in practice training and qualifying. In addition, he has requested the purchase of replacement rounds of tear gas.

The estimated cost for the tear gas and ammunition is $5,000, according to the sheriff's letter.

Keesee's final request is likely to draw at least a few chuckles from members of the commissioners court. What the new sheriff is seeking is a chair big enough to hold his bulky frame.

The letter notes that the base for many of the weighty decisions in the sheriff's department "is one of width and breadth which heretofore has not been brought to bear on this office or its office furniture."

County officials estimate it will cost between $350 and $500 to purchase a chair large enough to adequately fill the sheriff's needs.

Keesee's budget requests will be considered by commissioners when they meet at 10 a.m. Monday.

IRS To Review Bond Issue Before Ruling

An Internal Revenue Service ruling which had caused great concern in city government and financial circles has been delayed until May 31, spokesmen for Sen. John Tower and U.S. Rep. Kent Hance announced Friday.

The ruling, which Lubbock city officials said could destroy the market for tax exempt municipal bonds, was scheduled to become effective today.

However, a spokesman for Hance's office said Friday that after a series of meetings with IRS and Treasury Department officials on Thursday, the IRS had agreed to postpone the ruling until May 31 and completely restudy the measure in the meantime.

The ruling would have declared the interest earnings from state government certificates of deposit not deductible by banks if the CDs are secured by pledges of municipal tax exempt bonds.

The Hance spokesman said the matter will be taken up by the House Ways and Means Committee, for which Hance has been proposed for membership, and the House Banking Committee.

The reprieve came as welcome news to Lubbock city officials and bankers, who had been stunned by the IRS ruling.

City Finance Director Robert Massengale told the City Council on Thursday that the ruling would wreck the market for tax-exempt municipal bonds.

After Massengale delivered the ominous message to the council, council members quickly fired off telegrams to Tower and U.S. Sen. and Lloyd Bentsen and to U.S. Rep. Jim Wright of Fort Worth and Hance.

"Banks are the major market for municipal bonds," Massengale said. "If the IRS allows the ruling to stand, it will have a significant effect on the municipal bond markets and impair our ability to raise funds for capital projects."

Massengale said it will increase interest which must be paid by cities on municipal bonds. With a 10 percent ceiling in Texas on interest which can be paid on municipal bonds, Massengale said the problem is particularly worrisome.

In the telegram to the Congressmen, Massengale said "hopefully they can express our concern to the Secretary of Treasury and help him realize the significance of his ruling."

Clements Says Not Reconsider Ruiz Pardon

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements said Friday he would not reconsider his denial of parole to David Ruiz until the Board of Pardons and Paroles reviews the case in March.

Ruiz, serving 25 years for armed robbery, is the plaintiff in a federal suit that is expected to cause sweeping changes in the Texas Department of Corrections.

The governor indicated the dismissal of a sexual abuse charge against Ruiz this week would not change his decision to keep Ruiz in prison. Clements said the charge was not the reason why he denied Ruiz a parole last April.

The parole board twice has recommended Ruiz be released.

On Wednesday, after the charge of abusing a Harris County Jail inmate was dropped, Ruiz asked Clements to reconsider the case.

The governor said he would not reconsider, but would take another look at the case after the parole board reviews it.

"It is my understanding that the Board of Pardons and Paroles will be making another decision on Mr. Ruiz' case in March. Should the board recommend parole for Mr. Ruiz I will again give him a fair and open-minded review," Clements said.

Ruiz, 38, has served 14 years on his conviction of robbing an Austin grocery store. It was his second conviction.

Clements said the dropping of the sexual abuse charge probably would not change his view on the parole request.

In April, when Clements turned down the parole recommendation, the governor said Ruiz "has a long record of lawlessness and violent crime."

Skeletons Possibly Remains Of Children

MOUNTED SEARCHER — A mounted Atlanta police officer and his horse jump a railing while searching a south Atlanta neighborhood Friday for one of 16 black children who are missing in the area. The child, a 14-year-old boy, was last seen near a shopping center last Saturday. (AP Laserphoto)

ATLANTA (AP) — Two skeletons, apparently those of children, were found Friday in a southwest Atlanta suburb during a search by police investigating the disappearance and slayings of 16 black children.

Atlanta Public Safety Commissioner Lee P. Brown, in a written statement, said the remains were taken to the State Crime Lab for identification and examination.

His statement said an officer participating in the search "found two sets of skeletal remains of what appeared to be children. The discovery was made in a wooded area on Redwine Road in the city of East Point."

Police blocked off the area and began what Brown said would be a thorough search of the vicinity.

Earlier Friday, police combed the Lakewood Fairgrounds area in southeast Atlanta in an effort to locate the 18th victim of the city's baffling child deaths and disappearances, a teen-age boy reported missing last weekend.

Public Safety Commissioner Lee Brown and Police Chief George Napper directed the search by more than 200 officers in the area around the Lakewood Fairgrounds in southwest Atlanta.

Brown said the search would be concentrated in wooded areas around the shopping center where Lubie "Chuck" Geter was dropped off Saturday by his stepbrother. The youth had said he planned to sell car deodorizers to shoppers.

Meanwhile, City Councilman Arthur Langford, head of the United Youth Adult Conference, told a news conference Friday that a group of volunteers would comb the same general area Saturday.

"None of us can rest in this city until we find the person or persons that have done these vicious attacks," said Langford, whose group has conducted 12 other volunteer searches.

"We need the participation now more than ever," said Langford, noting that the number of searchers had dropped off prior to the Geter disappearance. "This is a very serious crisis we face in this city."

Local 218 of the Textile Processor's Union volunteered Friday to search an estimated 600 to 700 vacant apartments in housing projects in areas where the children disappeared.

Geter was reported missing by his family Sunday. The case was first handled by the Atlanta police missing persons unit, but was turned over Tuesday to a special task force investigating the child deaths and disappearances.

Brown said Friday's search was prompted by a "reassessment" of the investigation in the Geter case, not by any specific clues or tips.

Police and volunteer searchers using tracking dogs scoured the area around the shopping center Wednesday, but no solid clues were reported.

Eleven black children have been slain in Atlanta since July 1979, and five others — including Geter — are missing.

Garwood Admits Carrying Enemy Rifle

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood admitted carrying a rifle at a Vietnamese prison camp but said he had it only because his Vietnamese captors didn't want to carry heavy things themselves, an Air Force psychologist testified Friday.

Capt. Richard D. Wheatley, testifying for a second day in Garwood's court-martial on charges of desertion and collaboration with the enemy in Vietnam, characterized the rifle as part of Garwood's torture in prison camps.

Defense attorneys have not denied testimony by several former POWs during the lengthy trial that Garwood wore a uniform of the North Vietnamese and carried a rifle while in captivity. But they contend the actions resulted from his deteriorating mental condition.

Before the court-martial recessed for the day, Wheatley said Garwood was isolated and "pretty much left to rot" in the prison camps. He said Garwood was singled out for manipulation by his captors because of his youth and passive personality.

Wheatley said Garwood's unstable mental condition caused him to easily conform to Vietnamese behavior, becoming a victim of coercive persuasion at the hands of his captors.

"I think he was targeted by his captors in a very special way," Wheatley said. "He was very youthful, very passive, easily manipulated and had a strong will to survive."

Garwood, 34, is accused of taking up the cause of the Vietnamese Communists during almost 14 years he spent in Southeast Asia. A 19-year-old 10th-grade dropout at the time, he disappeared in September 1965 and returned to the United States in March 1979.

Under questioning by prosecutor Capt. Werner Hellmer, Wheatley described Garwood's first weeks in captivity as related to him by Garwood in a series of interviews. He said he did not believe Garwood, a native of Indianapolis, was capable of fabricating all the details he presented.

But Hellmer said the picture painted by Wheatley of the conditions under which Garwood was held contrasted with the way Garwood described his surroundings in a letter he wrote to his parents shortly after his capture. The letter said he was well, not being tortured and that another American was held in the camp with him.

Hellmer asked Wheatley if the letter proved Garwood lied about his treatment by the Viet Cong. The psychologist replied that he believed Garwood was forced by his captors to write the letter.

"I think at that point he had been promised release, his hopes were raised," Wheatley said, adding that he believed Garwood was under the influence of coercive persuasion at that point.

Wheatley, chief of psychology in the neurological division of the School of Aerospace Medicine at Brooks Air Force Base, San Antonio, testified Thursday that a battery of psychological tests indicated Garwood was passive, resigned to his fate and anxious to please others. He also said Garwood was suffering from several mental disorders when he examined him last September and October.

Under cross-examination Friday, Wheatley said Garwood had taken one of the psychological tests at least three times before they were administered last fall and that he was familiar with several others. But he said that did not affect the validity of the test results.

Terrorists Slated Red Cross Visit

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — A spokesman for the International Red Cross said Friday it will visit two suspected Armenian terrorists, one an American citizen, who have been imprisoned here since Oct. 3.

Alex Yenkovichian, 25, and Suzy K. Mehseredjian, 24, an American citizen, were arrested after a crude homemade bomb they were making exploded prematurely, police said.

The arrests set off bombing reprisals against Swiss institutions here, in Beirut and in three Western European capitals. The Armenian Secret Army for the Liberation of Armenia has accused Swiss authorities of mistreating the two suspects.

What you'll see on January 20 . . .

When the Parade Passes By

A president and his first lady either walk or ride from the Capitol to the White House. The Carters walked in 1977.

On January 20, at high noon, the president of the United States will be inaugurated (or sworn in) in a ceremony outside the Capitol building.

He will give a speech called the Inaugural Address. Next there is usually a luncheon for him and special guests inside the Capitol. Then he either will walk or ride from the Capitol to a viewing stand built in front of the White House.

There our new president will watch the inaugural parade. It lasts for about an hour and a half.

Thousands of people come from all over the country to march in it. Millions watch on TV.

The Mini Page went to the 1977 inaugural parade held four years ago.

We took these pictures to give you an idea of what you will probably see in this year's parade.

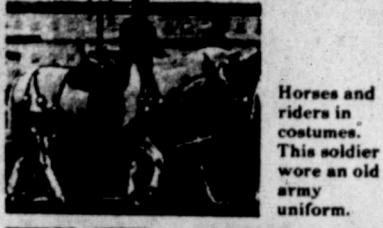

Crowds strain to see. A boy climbed up a traffic light pole.

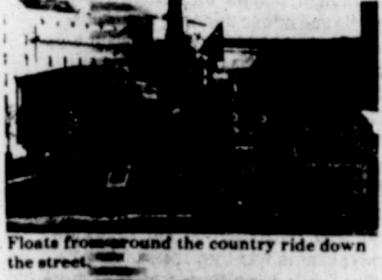

Buttons worn as souvenirs show that you were there.

Marchers take a step as they parade down Pennsylvania Avenue.

Horses and riders in costumes. This soldier wore an old army uniform.

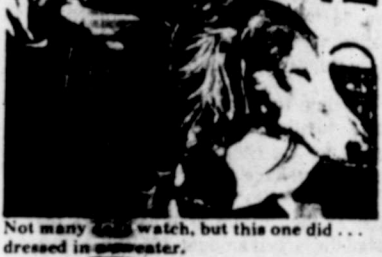

Floats from around the country ride down the street.

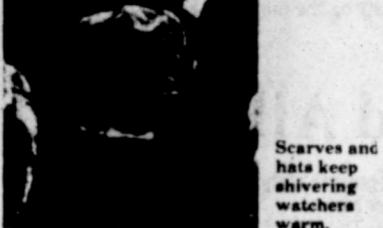

Parade planners keep in touch by using a portable phone.

Members of the press walk along the parade route recording the sounds.

Not many watch, but this one did... dressed in a sweater.

Scarves and hats keep shivering watchers warm.

The Parade Route

The Marchers

Where the 1981 inauguration ceremony will be held.

Where all other outdoor inauguration ceremonies have been held.

The Lincoln Memorial and the Washington Monument can be seen from the west front of the Capitol where the 1981 swearing-in ceremony will take place.

This is the view of the east front of the Capitol. Look closely. Can you tell the difference between the two fronts?

The Paper Box: You'll want to read and save the inaugural stories in your paper as souvenirs.

Next week... read about the dresses of first ladies and the inaugural balls.

When presidents have been sworn in outdoors in front of the Capitol, the platform was in front of the east side of the building. For the first time, the ceremony will be held on the west front. This plan will allow more people to be seated. It is also a prettier setting, since people can look across the Mall (a big park) and see the Washington Monument and the Lincoln Memorial in the background.

Jimmy Carter is sworn in during the 1977 ceremony.

All presidents since Washington have taken the same oath. It is written in Article II, Section 1 of the Constitution.

"I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will faithfully execute the office of the president of the United States, and will, to the best of my ability, preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States."

President Washington added the words "So help me God" to the inaugural oath. These words have been said by all other presidents.

ROCKE COOKIES RECIPE

Rocke Cookie Cocoa

You'll need:

- 1 box instant non-fat milk (25.6-ounce box)
- 1 16-ounce container instant chocolate flavored mix
- 1 16-ounce box powdered sugar
- 1 6-ounce jar non-dairy creamer
- 6 tablespoons cocoa

What to do:

- Combine all ingredients in a large container.
- Mix 1/2 cup mix with 2/3 cup hot water to serve.

Makes about 36 servings. Store in an airtight container. Great for those chilly winter days!

SPELLING MAZE

Here is a new kind of maze. Start at the center block. Go block to block, up, down or across the blocks, following the letters that spell the word "inauguration."

Protecting the President

Vice President and Mrs. Mondale being protected by the Secret Service in the 1977 inaugural parade. The Service members are always looking for anything unusual in the crowd.

When you watch the inaugural parade, you will see several men walking or riding beside the president. These men are members of the United States Secret Service. It is their job to protect the president and his family.

The Secret Service was started in 1865 as a part of the Department of the Treasury. Its main duty was to help stop the passing of counterfeit (fake) money.

The Secret Service was not assigned to protect the president until 1906. Three presidents, Lincoln, Garfield, and McKinley, had been assassinated.

There are two divisions of the Secret Service.

The uniformed forces are trained in Washington. They protect the White House, presidential office, vice president's home, places where important people from other countries are staying and the main Treasury Building.

The special agents are trained in Brunswick, Georgia. They must be in top health and pass many tests to get this job. Their duties include protecting:

- the president and his family;
- the vice president and his family;
- any former president and his family;
- children of a former president until age 16;
- presidential and vice presidential candidates;
- visiting heads of foreign governments.

GI'S GOODSPORTS

Supersport: Denny Crum

Denny Crum is a super coach. In nine seasons at the University of Louisville in Kentucky, his basketball teams have won 219 games and lost 55. Crum's team won the 1980 national championship and played in a lot of tournaments.

Denny grew up in California where he played basketball and also served as assistant coach under John Wooden, the famous UCLA coach.

In his spare time, Denny likes to read westerns and play golf and cards. He lives on a farm with his wife and two children.

GOLLY G. BEE FACTS

Not all presidents have been inaugurated at the Capitol in Washington, D.C. President Lyndon Johnson was sworn into office aboard a jet plane on a runway in Dallas, Texas. This took place after John Kennedy had been shot in 1963.

In 1841, William Henry Harrison caught cold on the day he was sworn in and died 30 days later.

It was raining when Benjamin Harrison was inaugurated. The outgoing president, Grover Cleveland, held an umbrella for Harrison when he took the oath of office in 1889. If it rains this year, the plans are to move the ceremony inside the Capitol.

This is the seal of the U.S. Treasury Department.

This is the badge of the Secret Service.

The uniformed forces can be seen in front of the White House.

Plain-clothesmen are with the president.

Teacher's Guide

For use by teachers and parents at home and at school.

For use with issue: When the Parade Passes By Main idea: To familiarize the children with the upcoming inauguration. Pre-reader: Read the story to the children. Then ask them to find a dog, a train, a phone, a traffic light, a president, a horse. Ask them to count the number of pictures.

Beginning reader: Introduce these words: address, inaugural, uniform, recording, Pennsylvania Avenue, first lady.

Point to the word "parade." Ask the children to circle it each time they see it.

Reader: After the children have read the story, ask the following questions:

- When will the inauguration be?
- How long does the parade last?
- Name six things you might see in an inaugural parade.

Follow-up activity for all ability groups: Watch this year's parade on TV. Draw pictures of what you see. Make a bulletin board.

Page 4: Pre-reader and beginning reader: Read the story to the children. Discuss what will happen during the inauguration. Talk about the oath.

Reader: Why is this inauguration different from all others? Follow-up activities: Invite someone who has been to an inauguration to your class to discuss what going to one is like.

Communiques Claim Iran Fighting Heavy

FOR YOUR WANT ADS CALL 762-8821

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Paratroop and tank battles flared for a fifth straight day Friday along the Persian Gulf war front, according to communiques from Tehran and Baghdad, and Iran said the oil refining city of Abadan came under heavy Iraqi artillery bombardment.

In the fifth day of what Iran has called a counter-offensive to drive the Iraqi invaders from Iranian soil, both sides claimed their forces inflicted massive casualties on the enemy in some of the heaviest fighting of the war.

Iraq said Iranian attacks were repulsed in two areas and that tank-led troops were "hot on the trail of the fleeing enemy" and that two Iranian jets were shot down in dogfights. Iran claimed 2,057 Iraqi troops had been killed since President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr ordered the offensive launched on Monday. And Iraq said 1,878 Iranian troops were killed in the same period.

There was no independent verification of the rival claims and foreign reporters have not been allowed access to the battle zones. Many observers consider the reports of battles and casualties inflated.

Tehran Radio quoted Bani-Sadr as saying that Iran would carry the fight to Iraq and again accused the "superpowers" of backing Iraq's war effort in an attempt to overthrow Iran's Islamic revolution.

But Bani-Sadr did not make any claims of victory and Tehran Radio quoted him as saying "the price of holding out, however heavy, is not as high as the price of surrender."

At U.N. headquarters in New York, it was announced that Olof Palme of Sweden would go to Iran and Iraq next week in another attempt to arrange a ceasefire.

Iran's official Pars news agency said 11 civilians were killed in the shelling of Abadan's residential areas by Iraqi artillery ringing the besieged city on the Shatt al-Arab waterway.

The two Moslem nations said their infantry and armor fought battles around the Khuzistan province army garrison town of Dezful and the highway town of Susangerd. But no major change of battlefield positions was claimed by either side.

Communiques from Baghdad and Tehran said paratroopers fought from hill to hill in Iran's western highlands of Gilan e-Gharb on the 110th day of war.

Iran said the Iraqi invaders were driven back at both ends of the 500-mile war front. But Iraq claimed the Iranian counter-attacks were repulsed in some of the war's heaviest combat.

Senior Iraqi government officials in Baghdad insisted Bani-Sadr ordered the offensive as a last-ditch attempt to cling to power in the face of mounting criticism of his conduct of war as commander-in-chief.

Postal Service Seeks Stamp Price

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service made its final appeal Friday for authority to increase the price of a first-class postage stamp from 15 cents to 20 cents.

The 20-cent stamp is still the lowest

Money Transfer Rumor Causes Futures Slump

CHICAGO (AP) — Commodity futures prices slumped for a time on Friday in part because of rumors that the United States had transferred billions of dollars to Algeria as part of an Iran hostage deal.

Chase Manhattan Bank in New York, mentioned in rumors on the trading floor of the Chicago Board of Trade, denied it had transferred any large amount of money.

The rumor had it that Chase sent $10 billion and Chemical Bank of New York transferred $6 billion to Algeria as part of a plan to have the 52 American hostages in Iran released.

"Chase has not transferred any money to Algeria, unless there was some routine business transaction," said Steve Rautenberg, a bank spokesman. He added that any such routine transaction would not have involved such a large sum.

There was no immediate comment from Chemical. In Washington, State Department spokesman Jack Cannon said, "We haven't heard anything about the report, and because of that we are unable to confirm it or deny it."

Road Department Announces Change

Elmer E. Self, assistant maintenance foreman for the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation in Floydada, will be in charge of the Lamb County maintenance section for the highway department beginning Feb. 1.

The department made the announcement this week, and said Self will replace Grady Trotter, a maintenance construction supervisor who is retiring Jan. 31.

Trotter began working for the department in 1953 with the Littlefield maintenance section.

Self started with the highway department in 1964.

rate anywhere in the civilized world except in Canada, where the mail service is heavily subsidized," Postal Service attorney Frances Beck told a panel that must decide by Feb. 20.

She made the final argument before the Postal Rate Commission, an independent agency that decides on requests for higher mail rates.

The Postal Service last April asked for approval of rate increases averaging 28 percent for the various types of mail, saying it needed an extra $3.75 billion per year to make up for rising labor and other expenses.

Mrs. Beck called the request for extra cash "a lean, pared-down revenue requirement."

Opposing much of the request was Stephen Sharfman, who serves as a "people's advocate" with the title of officer of the commission. He repeated his proposal that the first-class rate be raised only to 18 cents and that increases be steeper for classes of mail used by businesses.

Sharfman said the Postal Service had failed to make cost studies as requested by the commission, a charge Mrs. Beck denied. "There should be no allowance for Postal Service contingencies until the Postal Service justifies it with studies," Sharfman said.

Since the request for higher rates was made last April, the commission has been hearing testimony and receiving legal briefs by the Postal Service and dozens of business groups, including parcel shippers, publishers and mail order companies.

The Postal Service request includes increases of 1.9 percent for the second-class rate used in mailing mass circulation newspapers and magazines, 17.7 percent for third class advertising mail and 8.4 percent for fourth class parcels.

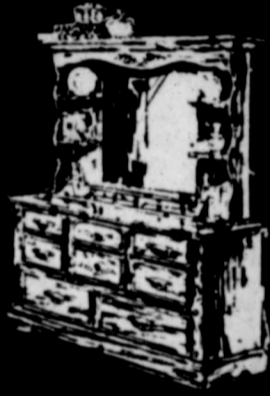

The rate commission can make changes in these requests, and has until Feb. 20 to decide, 10 months after the Postal Service request. The new rates are expected to go in effect around March 1.

Snyder Artists Help Finalize Art Association

FOUNDRY PERSON — Clarissa Cantrell chips away at casting marks while finishing a bronze sculpture at Hide Town Foundry in Snyder. The foundry is one of two in the West Texas town and its owner, veterinarian Robert Taylor, is himself an accomplished sculptor. (Staff Photo)

SNYDER — Among the handful of West Texans now finalizing plans for a new national western art association are two Snyder artists, Terry Gilbreth and Dr. Robert Taylor.

Both have fulltime professions in other veins — Gilbreth as director of the Diamond M Foundation Museum and Taylor as a veterinarian — but the art filling their spare time has added two businesses to the already booming Snyder economy.

During regular working hours, they pursue their separate careers. After hours and on weekends, they turn into artists and foundrymen, creating and then performing all the demanding chores of turning a wax shape into bronze.

Gilbreth's Warrior Creek Foundry and Taylor's Hide Town Foundry operate full blast all week, with two fulltime employees each, casting for the two owners and for artists and hobbyists over a wide area of West Texas.

All the major equipment — slurry mixer, burnout kiln, fire box and sand blaster — was custom built through trial and error to fit the individual needs of each foundry.

The two operations expanded from a Gilbreth-Taylor partnership formed two years ago. When the original foundry burned in 1980, the partnership dissolved in favor of two foundries to handle the growing trade.

Gilbreth discovered the three dimensional world of bronze about a decade ago when, as a young art teacher on his first job in Odessa, he learned from another teacher.

"I thought if you did it, you had to cast it, too, so I learned it all."

With sales growing, he turned to basic security jobs to keep the family going while he built up a bronze sculpture career. He tried several, including being fireman in his native Abilene, before the perfect position happened with the Diamond M Museum.

Taylor, a do-it-yourselfer from way back, just went down to the Snyder craft shop one day and bought some wax to learn by himself from scratch after discovering how bronze sculpture he

Renovation Project Director Selected

By BUDDY BAKER
A-J Correspondent

PLAINVIEW — Mary K. Crites, a 22-year-old architecture major at Texas Tech University, has been chosen as the director of the Plainview's pilot Main Street downtown renovation project.

In announcing the selection of Mrs. Crites, City Manager John Hatchel said, "We are sure that her being at the helm of the project will ensure success."

He said Mrs. Crites, in her senior year at Tech, would be working about 30 hours a week until she graduates in August. After that time, she would work full time.

Plainview was selected in September as one of 30 towns in the nation to participate in the federally backed project, which will funnel about $50 million in low-interest loans to those cities.

The money is designed to help with the revitalization of the downtown area, to prevent the "demolition by neglect" of the town's historic buildings and provide for "adaptive re-use" of those structures.

"I am interested in the revitalization of the downtown area," Mrs. Crites said. "I think it is a good alternative to the shopping malls and strip shopping that you find now. I think it's a good way to make the downtown sound."

While a student at Tech, she conducted field survey work in architectural and historical research in two Eastern New Mexico counties as part of a contract between the university and the state to determine the number of buildings constructed before 1945. In those two counties, she said her team found 8,000 such dwellings.

Hatchel said he had turned down applicants he termed "professional resume writers" and had looked at about eight applications before picking Mrs. Crites. He said she would be paid about $9,800 a year while she was working part-time and that her salary would be adjusted after her graduation.

He said he anticipated the project lasting about 18 to 24 months. The city manager said the project office would be located at city hall "for the present time."

In order for Plainview to participate in the project, the city council had to agree to hire a project director to coordinate and plan all work. Training for the directors in the cities chosen is scheduled to begin in Washington, D.C., at the end of the month.

Hatchel said Mrs. Crites will go to Austin Wednesday to meet with the project directors of the other four cities in the state which also are participating.

She is married to Jim Crites, a teacher in the Idalou school system.

UT Vice Chancellor Gets New Position

AUSTIN (AP) — Robert L. Hardesty, vice chancellor for administration of the University of Texas System, has been elected chairman of the board of governors of the U.S. Postal Service, federal officials said Thursday.

He succeeds Myron A. Wright, Houston business executive.

Hardesty, who has been vice chairman, has been a member of the board since 1976. He formerly was an assistant to Postmaster General John A. Gronouski and a speech writer for President Lyndon B. Johnson. He was a special assistant to Johnson when the former president moved back to Austin and edited his memoirs, "The Vantage Point."

HINTS FROM HELOISE:

Leather Should Be Treated Like Human Skin

Hi!
Leather!
 Boy, oh boy, is it nice! Nice and expensive! There really is nothing nicer than the feel or smell of leather. If you have leather things, you know that it takes good care to keep 'em healthy.
 Let's talk about leather care so we can keep leather in good condition, and enjoy it for a long, long time.
 The thing to remember about leather is that it is skin, just like your skin. If you treat it with care, it will last a long time and retain its beauty — just like taking care of your face. If you abuse it, boy, do the wrinkles show! But, if you keep it clean and moisturized, how nice it looks.
 Leather should be cleaned. It doesn't hurt to take a damp cloth and run it over the surface of calfskin to get off all that dirt. You can use a little mild soapuds too (the kind that's gentle for baby's clothing). It's also a good idea to use a special leather dressing on it.
 Those lovely suede coats and boots that are all the rage need care too. For surface soil, try a damp cloth. Brush over the surface with it and you will be amazed at the dirt that comes off. An art gum eraser may help remove some spots too. For real soil problems, don't fool around. Do take your coat to a professional leather cleaner.
 Write me with your hints on home leather care. — Heloise

Today's Physical Fitness Activists Show More Interest In Nutrition

SAN ANTONIO (Special) — Increasing interest in physical fitness is causing changes in U.S. diets, according to a recent survey documenting the attitudes, knowledge and behavior of the American people in terms of the relation of exercise to diet.
 Survey results showed that "some activists, particularly those involved in boom activities like running or tennis, are more careful not only about how much they eat, but also about what they eat."
 "The more active the sports participants, the greater their consumption of foods from the basic four food groups, the survey revealed. The most frequently increased foods among runners, for instance, included water (72 percent increase), fruit and fruit juices (62 percent), green vegetables (55 percent), whole wheat products (44 percent), fish (35 percent), dairy products (34 percent) and poultry (32 percent).

 The wide variety of foods mentioned in the survey indicates people are eating a good diet, according to Daniel Hanley, M.D., former U.S. Olympic team physician.
 "There is no single best food for athletes," Hanley said. "The increased calories required for training should be supplied by increased portions of all foods found in a good diet."

 I always use all of the hints or shortcuts which are available to me, but I still think housework is like stringing beads without having a knot in the end of your thread.

Learning To Ski Not Out Of Question For Middle-Aged Woman

By PAUL DONOHUE, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: At age 55, I have decided to take up skiing. My daughter thinks I'm bananas. That's fine with me. I tell her. I put up with her silly shenanigans all of her life. Why can't I have some fun now myself? Yet, I seriously want to know if you think it is out of the question for me to do this? — Mrs. R.E.

There's no reason why you should not try skiing at 55. Many people have started at your age. Since about 60 percent of all skiing injuries happen to legs and knees, you should take especially good care of those structures. For this, it is important to buy good-quality equipment — skis, bindings, boots. If you are not willing to do that, you should not ski. A qualified instructor, which you'll find at most slopes, will show you how you can avoid most of the accident-producing mistakes.

Finally, be aware of fatigue, the greatest single contributor to skiing accidents. Stop when you feel the least bit tired, which should be frequently in your early stages. Finally, get yourself in shape a bit first. Try a bit of jogging or swimming to improve your heart and lung systems. This will also strengthen your leg muscles so you can put up with the twists and turns of skiing fate. Other 55-year-old ski-bunnies, take note.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I was interested in the letter from Mrs. P.G. who said her husband breaks out in hives after playing tennis. Has he considered the dye on the handle of the tennis racquet? Our daughter did not like the feel of paper on her arm when writing in school, so I got her a piece of vinyl-covered cloth. It was navy blue. She broke out in hives.

Since I felt this was the only new thing she had come into contact with I removed it, and she was not bothered again. Several weeks later we tried the vinyl again — hives again. I think we found the cause. Perhaps the handle of the tennis racquet is causing this man's problem. He might try a different racquet or remove the wrap from the handle. — Mrs. J.

That's certainly a good thought. For a trial, there are cheap terry cloth coverings for racquet handles.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have been skating in competition for four years. I noticed that the toe next to the big toe is turning under. Is this due to my skating? I haven't noticed this in my companions. — Miss R.I.

Many figure skaters develop hammer-toe, in which the tips of the toes begin to bend downward. The number of toes involved and how severe the bending is depends on the number of years skating. The best prevention calls for the skate to fit less snugly in the toe area. And, of course, the skates must be changed as the foot grows. Neglecting that is the chief contributor to the problem. If hammer-toes are not painful, they will not interrupt your career. Make sure you are not making things worse with too tight skates.

Dear Dr. Donohue: This concerns my 31-year-old son, who has an office job. He runs six out of seven days a week, is a nervous type, and is always doing something. Also, he has three young ones who keep him on edge with their normal screaming and fighting. I saw him last week when he came back from running and thought he looked as though he was going to drop. He's thin, by the way. I'm just wondering about moderation. Should I scold him? — D.B.

So long as his general health is good, and so long as his runs are not making him feel ill, then the running is fine. Not only will it benefit him physically, but many find running a great antidote for the tensions and anxieties of daily life. I should note that your son does seem to be, from your letter, what has been called a "Type A" personality, meaning one who is more prone to problems, such as high blood pressure, than are other people.

With this possibly in his background, and from your description of his condition following his running, he would be wise to be examined. He should find out what limitations he should observe before trying to get into top shape. That's good advice for anyone who decides to join the running people. As to this thinness: in a world of obesity, this is a virtue and a definite medical plus.

There's an old saying — if your feet hurt, you hurt all over. Dr. Donohue's booklet, "Relief and Care of Your Feet," shows you how to avoid and take care of foot problems. To get your copy, write to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents. Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible. Copyright 1980 Field Enterprises, Inc.

MOORE—BESSENT

Mrs. Truman L. Moore of Idalou, an-

Bridge

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

If you could always find the best opening lead you would almost never lose at bridge. It just isn't an exact science nor is it even close. As the late Commander Winfield Liggett once said, "I don't care who does the nation's bidding if I can just make the nation's winning leads."

There are certain general rules here that work pretty well. The first is to lead a suit that your partner has bid. The second is not to lead a suit that declarer has bid.

There is an old expression: "When in doubt lead trumps." We have revised it to: "When not in doubt lead trumps."

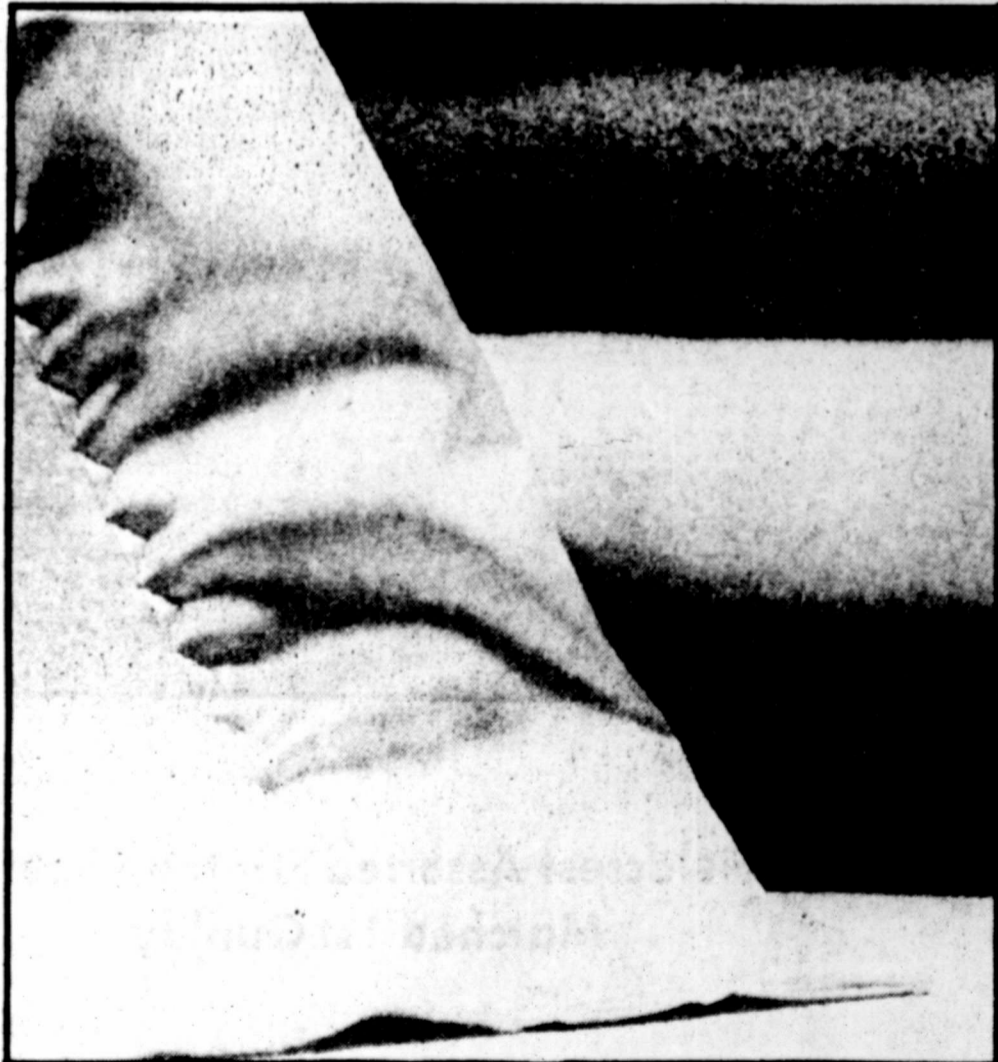

It is good policy to tend to lead long suits, particularly against notrump. When you lead a long suit you may develop low cards to take tricks later. When you lead a short suit, you will probably develop tricks for one of the other hands and you have two opponents and only one partner.

There is a rather fatuous expression, "Don't lead from a king."

Charles Goren has the best word on this. He said that he hoped that the person who first thought of that one would be doomed to an eternity of playing in Hell, on lead with all four kings in his hand. Actually the lead from a king is very likely to be a winner. It may cost you a trick, but it is also likely to start a successful attack against declarer. You get nowhere sitting on a park bench although you aren't likely to fall down.

Next Saturday we will discuss the lead against notrump when no suits have been bid by anyone.

Uneasy Peace Settles Over Battle-Scarred Mexican University

MEXICALI, Mexico (AP) — Workers cleaned up the charred debris Friday from a strike-breaking riot at the Autonomous University of Baja California, as an uneasy peace settled over the battle-scarred campus in this border town.

"storm troopers" who surged onto the campus Wednesday to break the 52-day old strike by faculty members and non-teaching workers that left at least two persons hospitalized. The government prepared elections next week to allow workers to choose between rival unions that sparked the confrontation.

Workers alleged that the assault included "soldiers and police dressed as civilians ... and imported local scabs." "The storm troopers took the university. We are tired and we are battered. The strike was killed," said one student leader who asked not to be identified.

The strike ended abruptly Wednesday when some 400 people — armed with clubs and some guns — stormed the Mexicali school.

At least one student was reported shot. Seven cars were burned. Flames damaged a concrete architecture building and the union's cinder-block headquarters.

At one point Wednesday, about 35 strikers fled to the roof of the architecture building and held out for about eight hours. Firebombs were hurled, allegedly by both sides.

"It got violent," conceded Gustavo Almaraz Montano, undersecretary of education for Baja California, "but not to the point where anybody is dead. There are only two hospitalized. There were very few shots fired."

He contended the campus was retaken by "students and teachers who got tired of that situation," which was illegal.

Strikers surrendered Wednesday afternoon, then negotiations between the state government and the strikers continued until early Thursday, when the agreement was reached and approved on next week's election.

The strike began Nov. 17 because, the workers contend, the university fired 78 employees and ousted the two unions — one which represents faculty and the other for non-teaching personnel. The strikers contended the college installed two new unions controlled by the administration.

Despite the riot and the bitter feelings left in its wake, the modern, tree-lined campus was quiet Friday, with only scattered students milling about and workers cleaning debris and fire-damaged buildings. Officials said the dispute was vitally settled and classes will resume Monday.

Spokesmen for striking teachers, other workers and sympathetic students said they planned only rallies and marches and will seek support from other unions and colleges.

The unions had reservations about conditions of next week's vote but said their professors probably would be on the job Monday.

However, a strike leader added: "If the workers don't get their contract, the whole thing's going to start all over again."

Almaraz Montano contends the strike reached only seven of the state university's 30 schools.

Mart Gains In Trading

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market, closing out the busiest week in Wall Street history, recovered enough from the steep decline of the past two sessions to post a modest gain Friday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, coming off a two-day slide of almost 39 points, rose 2.99 to 968.69.

The average finished the week with a net loss of 4.09.

New York Stock Exchange volume totaled 50.19 million shares, down from 55.35 million Thursday.

That put weekly turnover on the Big Board at $24.54 billion, topping the previous record of $26 billion set last Nov. 17-21.

The market benefited from an easing of the selling pressure touched off Wednesday by investment adviser Joseph Granville's recommendation that his subscribers dump their holdings.

The Dow Jones industrials climbed more than 6 points in early trading, slipped back to the minus side at mid-day, and then turned upward again just before the close.

In the economic news, several banks which had not yet joined in a recent prime rate reduction to 20 percent did so. But one that had gone to 19 1/2 percent, Chemical Bank of New York, raised its basic rate on business loans back to 20.

Hopes for a further decline in interest rates were heightened after the close by the Federal Reserve's report of another large decline in the basic measures of the money supply.

Woman May Face Fine, Jail For Book Dispute

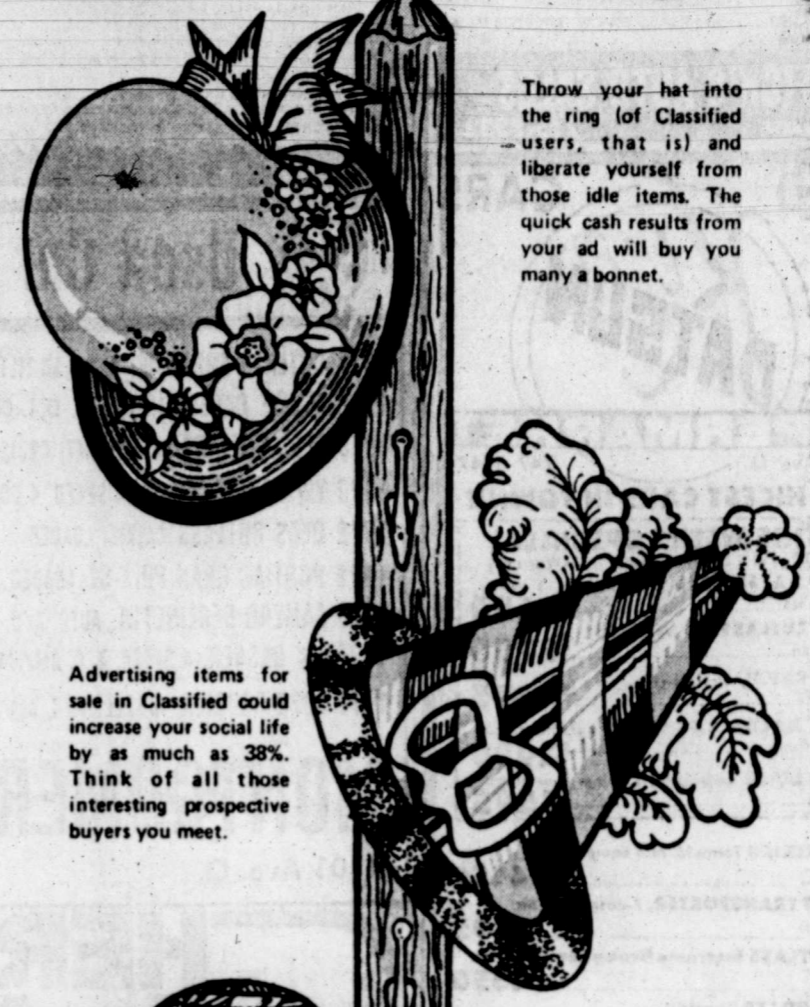

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — A woman jailed for five hours in a dispute over 13 allegedly overdue library books faces a court hearing that could result in a $50 fine and more time behind bars.
"The whole thing would be funny except that this woman was put in jail for five hours," said attorney Lillian Dykes of her client, Lily Prymus.
At issue are 13 books — fiction and nonfiction — Mrs. Prymus said to have borrowed from Memphis-Shelby County Public Library last summer. Mrs. Prymus has said she returned the books and never received any notice to the contrary.
Library records show the Memphis woman did not return the books and was notified they were overdue, said director Bob Croneberger. He refused further comment.
Mrs. Prymus, 31, was charged with violating a City Charter provision — the first such case of its type. A City Court hearing was set for Feb. 5, and if convicted on the misdemeanor charge, Mrs. Prymus could be fined $50 or sentenced to 30 days in jail, or both.
Miss Dykes said her client came home July 17 to find a summons to appear in City Court on Aug. 28 because of overdue books. After calling the library and being told there was no record of any such overdue books, Mrs. Prymus forgot about it.
Two months later, police told her there was a warrant for her arrest for failing to appear in court. She then went to the library's main branch and spoke with an official who showed her a letter, addressed to her, stating she owed $122 for 13 overdue books.
"She was told that she either had to pay for the books or go to jail," Miss Dykes said.
Mrs. Prymus gave the library $23.35

Nurses Begin Walk To Raise Money For Longest Strike

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — Three striking nurses from Ashtabula General Hospital and four members of the Ohio Nurses Association began a two-day, 56-mile walk Friday to raise money for the nation's longest nurses strike.
Shortly after a 9 a.m. rally, the nurses, accompanied by five cars, departed from a golf course club house near Youngstown. They planned to spend the night at Pymatuning State Park and continue today on the trip to Ashtabula.
The strike by 120 nurses at the 234-bed Ashtabula General Hospital began July 21. Nurses have no strike defense fund. The walk is a show of solidarity and an effort to raise money through financial pledges, said Rosanne Butch, one of the walking nurses.
"No talks have been held to end the strike since November. Nurses are holding out for a union shop, something the hospital administration opposes."

Dissident Arrested By Soviets

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet authorities have arrested the last free member of an unofficial group monitoring what the World Psychiatric Association called the Soviet Union's "systematic abuse of psychiatry for political purposes."

Felix Serebrov, a 50-year-old geologist and a founder of the organization, was taken from his home Thursday night by a team of seven security police who also searched the apartment.

His wife, Vera, said official documents left at the house did not spell out what charges Serebrov faces.

Serebrov's arrest completed a crackdown on the "Working Committee on the Use of Psychiatry for Political Purposes" that was launched last September.

Since then, three other members of the committee have been put on trial on charges of slandering the Soviet Union and sentenced to maximum terms of three years in prison. A fourth member of the group, Irina Grivina, the mother of a seven-year-old daughter, was picked up at her home last September and is believed still held.

Serebrov was imprisoned in early 1977 on charges of using false working papers. Dissident leader Andrei Sakharov, now in exile in Gorky, claimed at the time the charges were politically motivated.

The Soviet Union has denied that it abuses psychiatry. The Soviet news agency Tass called the World Psychiatric Association's charges in 1977 "inventions, slander and juggling of facts."

But the five-member watchdog group, similar to other unofficial human rights monitoring groups, published more than 20 newsletters detailing cases of alleged abuses.

One issue published in June, 1978, said, "Considering persecution for beliefs or for speech to be against the law, the committee seeks to attain the release from psychiatric hospitals of those persons whose forced hospitalization is a consequence of their having expressed their own political or religious convictions or their having defended their own civil rights."

The document did not estimate the number of such persons, but dissidents claim many political opponents of the Communist regime are routinely held without trial in mental hospitals after being declared insane.

One dissident source claimed Friday that during the 1970s hundreds of "hippies" were also sent to mental hospitals for periods of up to three months because authorities "didn't like their way of life."

Electrical Short Blamed For Fire

A fire that apparently started from an electrical short caused more than $1,000 damage to a Lubbock apartment complex late Thursday night.

Firefighters responded to the alarm at Twin Oak Apartments at 5817 22nd St. at 9:49 p.m. with 17 men and four units.

No injuries were reported, but a part of the complex sustained smoke damage in the fire, reports said.

Chap Men, Women Begin TIAA Play

By ERIC GALE
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
A stethoscope is not required to hear that hearts are beating rapidly in the Lubbock Christian College fieldhouse today.

The Chaparral men's and women's basketball teams open their respective Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association schedules with games against Austin College today. The Lady Chaps play at 1 p.m.; the men's game follows at 3 p.m.

And coaches John Copeland, of the men's squad, and the Lady Chaps' Dave Simpson, hope that, by 5 p.m. today, the fieldhouse is not in need of being nicknamed "heartbreak hotel."

The Chap squads represent equality of the sexes: both have records of 4-10. The Kangaroos are 4-8 and the Lady Roos are 1-4. All four teams have played pre-conference schedules that were almost exclusively composed of scholarship-level opponents. The TIAA is a non-scholarship league in both football and basketball.

"We didn't play great all the time on the road, but we did play some solid ball," he said. "Anytime you play eight or nine games in a row on the road — and against people like West Texas State, San Angelo and Howard Payne — you expect to take some knocks."

"We're getting beat but still staying together. If we had lost seven or eight at home, it would be real disappointing. Considering the circumstances, I'm not displeased with our record. We'll never have a schedule like that again, but maybe we can benefit from it now. The toughest part of our schedule is behind us."

Oiler GM Releases Assistants

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oilers general manager Ladd Herzog Friday released five of six Oiler assistant coaches from their contracts to seek employment anywhere in the National Football League except New Orleans.

Herzog, who intends to pursue tampering charges against former Coach Bum Phillips, said the Oilers would also pay expenses of the assistant coaches to attend the Senior Bowl in Mobile, Ala. to help them seek other employment.

The six Oiler assistants have one year remaining on their contracts. "All we ask is that they let us know by Jan. 31 if they intend to remain with the Oilers," Herzog said following a morning meeting with the coaches. "This will handicap the Oilers by keeping our staff unsettled but we want to be as much help as possible."

"As you know, the Senior Bowl will allow them to circulate and see what other opportunities might be available."

Phillips is considered the favorite to replace Dick Nolan as coach of the Saints, which skidded to a 2-14 record last year. Herzog said the Oilers would seek compensation in the form of draft choices if any assistant other than Wade Phillips accepts a job with the Saints.

Herzog said he hoped the assistant coaches would remain with the team to retain continuity and that he delayed a formal meeting with the assistants to give them time to consider their situation.

Bradshaw Status Still Uncertain

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Pittsburgh Steelers quarterback Terry Bradshaw missed a Friday news conference in Los Angeles where he was expected to explain whether he was giving up football for an acting career, but his mother said she doesn't believe her son is quitting football.

Bradshaw's agent said in Los Angeles Friday that Bradshaw now belongs to NBC, but his future in football will not be known until the network decides whether it wants Bradshaw's proposed TV series. The agent said the deadline for an NBC decision was May.

"In signing to do the series, Terry Bradshaw has given NBC the option to not allow him to play football," said David Gershenson, Bradshaw's agent. "He has already made the decision that if the series is successful, in terms of NBC picking it up and ordering further episodes, he's not going to play football."

Bradshaw, 32, discussed possible retirement last winter. However, he announced at the start of training camp that he would play as long as possible.

any other team plays or anything else. Tech is 6-0 in the Coliseum this year and 16-8 versus the Aggies in Lubbock. Last season, the Raiders handed A&M one of only two league defeats the Aggies suffered in the Coliseum. In fact, Tech has won the last five meetings in the Coliseum. Overall the series is tied at 27-27.

Bradshaw was reported heading back to his Shreveport home on Friday, but nobody answered his residence telephone, and the staff of his Shreveport office said his whereabouts were unknown.

"He hasn't retired. That's just a big old rumor that got out of hand," said Novis Bradshaw, the quarterback's mother. "If he were going to retire, he'd hold a press conference and let everybody know."

Greyhound Cagers Drop Tilt 82-76

LAWTON, Okla. (Special) — The University of Science and Arts of Oklahoma laid a practical lesson on Eastern New Mexico University Friday afternoon, beating the Greyhounds 82-76.

ENMU, now 3-10 on the season, had four players score in double figures with Royce Blackshear leading the way with 19. John Dalzell added 17, Lee Faria scored 14 and Brent Timm wound up with 10.

But USAO was just a little better. Ron and Frank Davis combined for 46 points (Ron got 24 and Frank 22), Mark Jones scored 17 and Sam Alexander put in 11 as USAO advanced to 6-11 on the year.

Wind, Distance Affect Rifle Accuracy

HUNTING IN OUR western areas gives rise to some problems that are not as acute with the eastern or southern hunters. Here we have two factors that must be coped with: distance and wind.

We have plenty of both here, these factors invoke gravity and drift. The instant a bullet leaves the barrel, physics start, i.e. gravity. As freshman physics tells us, an object is affected by gravity at the rate of 16 feet per second per second, i.e. 32 feet the second second. This is the rate of acceleration of a falling object in a vacuum.

Bill A. Davis

Would you believe that a feather will fall just as fast as a steel ball if there is absolutely no air resistance? Setting aside small variations, if a bullet is in the air one second before hitting the target, it will be 16 feet lower than the gun muzzle. It doesn't take a smart fellow to figure out that the quicker a bullet gets to the target, the less time it has to fall and therefore the less it has fallen. This is why the high velocity bullet is much more popular in the west than it is in the east.

For example, taking into consideration the muzzle velocity and the shape of the bullet, which is important relative to the ability of the bullet to retain velocity, at a range of 200 yards a 22 long rifle will fall or drop 50 inches, a 30-30 with 170 grain bullet will drop 18 inches, the 30-06 with 180 grain will drop 11 inches, and the 270 with 130 grain drops 8 inches. A 22 probably should never be sighted in at a range over 100 yards, to much guess work. Even with the 30-06 and the 270, unless you are really an experienced expert, you probably should refrain from shooting at a deer over 200 yards. The vital area of a West Texas deer is pretty small and if he is moving, I'd just let him go at anything over 200 yards and wait for a better shot.

HOWEVER, IF YOU think you have the gravity problem solved by sighting in to be 3 inches high at 100 yards, for instance, then you can start working on the wind drift problem. Often here in West Texas this can be a bigger problem than the gravity or drop. Any projectile, whether it be airplane or bullet, moves along with the air mass in the same direction and same speed the air mass is moving.

That is one of the basics in air navigation, therefore the longer the projectile is in the air mass, the farther it will drift — unless the projectile is going in exact same or exact opposite direction in which the air mass is moving.

Another reason the high velocity bullet is more popular in the west, (ie. — it is subjected to this air mass movement a shorter period of time).

Now if the air mass, or wind, is at a right angle to the path of the projectile, it will have the maximum effect on the bullet, if it is 45 degrees, less effect, and as I said, if the path of the projectile is exactly straight into the wind or exactly away from the wind, the wind will have no effect. For instance, the wind is 20 mph blowing from 3:00 o'clock, a 270 with 130 grain bullet will drift about 5 1/2 inches at 200 yards, now if the wind is from 11:00 o'clock or 5:00 o'clock, you will have less drift.

Now when, that relatively small deer is loping away at 200 yards at about a 45 degree angle, and you can compute the lead necessary, the drift and the bullet fall, go ahead and shoot. If you have time to figure all that and can shoot exactly where you want to, then don't hesitate to shoot a small running deer at 200 or more yards. For me, I'm not that smart nor that good. It's better not to have even gone than to see an animal run off with one leg dangling or to disappear after being gut shot.

MY WHOLE POINT IS practice at the rifle range enough to be accurate with your shots, with a rifle you can do your best with, then don't be a fool and overestimate your ability, or trust to luck.

If you hunt for the meat and don't care how many wounded animals you leave in the pasture, you and I don't have much in common anyway. In spite of everything you do, you are going to occasionally wound an animal. I have and it ruins the whole season for me, therefore I do everything I can to keep it from happening, sometimes I don't get anything, but so what, I like chicken better than I do venison anyway.

Quail season remains open in most of our counties until February 1, but it varies, so check the book. This will be our last fling of hunting this year, then we can clean and refinish our guns, put them away, clean the reels, put on new lines, wrap the damaged eyes and get ready for the big ones to get away. You might check the old kicker on the boat and recharge the battery. They last a lot longer that way.

HAPPY ANGLERS — Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Wiley of Lubbock are enthusiastic about the fishing available at Port Isabel. Using live shrimp as bait in shallow water, the Wileys caught speckled trout weighing up to five pounds each. The fish are most catchable in the spring, but are found in the Texas Gulf year around.

Names Drawn For Hog Hunting

AUSTIN (Special) — The names of 502 people were selected in a public drawing to hunt feral hogs on the Palestine in Northeast Texas. The hunts, beginning Jan. 21, are held by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department to reduce the herd.

Outdoors New Mexico Lands Proving Popular

SANTA FE, N.M. (Special) — Nearly all of the 13 million acres managed by the Bureau of Land Management (BLM) in New Mexico are open to hunting during seasons set by the state. A few small areas identified as game management areas in cooperation with the Department of Game and Fish may be restricted to specific animals and periods of use.

Persons going onto the public lands should obtain a map of the area. Most public land areas have intermingled private lands. Maps are available from the BLM office in Santa Fe, Albuquerque, Carlsbad, Farmington, Las Cruces, Roswell, Socorro and Taos.

There are three types of maps available. A small scale map of the public lands in the state sells for $1. There are 1/2-inch to the mile color quads of various segments of the state which show an area about 30 by 36 miles which are $1.50 each.

J. D. Peer Southwest Sportsman Report Cold Weather Poses New Hazards

Most of the Texas water skiers have stored their gear till next spring. There are a few hardy boaters found cruising around on a warm day along with the waterfowl hunters and winter fishermen and these individuals should be aware of the increased danger of cold water.

Cold weather compounds the chances for a boater to commit a boating error or mistake. Winter winds, low temperatures, ice and cold hands go together to make a potential accident.

Capsizing is the number one killer in boating accidents and staying with the boat until rescued is recommended by both the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department and the U.S. Coast Guard officials. Most small boats will continue to float even when upside down or full of water due to the extra flotation built into the craft.

This winter hazard of capsizing is the reason you should wear your personal flotation device (life preserver) at all times. Many lakes require the wearing of this safety device at all times and this is especially recommended for winter boating.

If you fall overboard or capsize, there is the temptation to swim to shore. If you do try to swim, remember how quick the cold water can chill your body and create cramps and stiff muscles caused by hypothermia or heat loss. It is also difficult for most persons in the water to judge distances accurately and it could be farther to shore than you expected which will add extra time in the cold water.

Being caught in a small craft in foul weather can be a harrowing experience even for veteran boaters. Most winter storms are forecast by the weather experts, but West Texas winds can come up any time and high winds account for most of the dangerous boating situations in our part of the state. When the wind and waves start to build, it is time to head for shore or cover. Learn your boat's capabilities and limitations in rough water during the summer. When heading into heavy waves, it is generally best to steer the boat so the waves hit the boat slightly on one side of the bow. Of course, this might not be the direction you want to go, so it is necessary for you to have additional coves or landing sites in mind to get in out of the weather.

If it is impossible to get to shore, use your motor to keep the craft headed into the wind with just enough power to steer. Don't use the anchor unless the motor quits, and then only from the bow of the boat. Also, keep low in the cockpit and bail any water taken aboard.

Advise someone of your destination on a large lake and give the approximate time you will return from your water activities. This will alert a rescue team if you fail to return.

Winter boating can be fun if you take into account the extra danger of cold water and are prepared for the trip.

A new pamphlet explaining the "Why and How" of waterfowl regulations has just been released by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

The publication goes into the factors determining hunting seasons and bag limits and the results of post-season hunting surveys such as the sandhill crane questionnaire. They also discuss the relationship between nesting surveys and waterfowl hunting.

If you are a waterfowl hunter or would like to know about the study of these birds, write for the publication entitled, "Waterfowl Regulations: Why and How" from the Publications Unit, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Dept. of the Interior, Washington, D.C. 20240.

The increase in ownership and use of pistols by women has prompted a local firearms instructor to setup pistol classes for women in West Texas.

The classes will be taught by chief instructor Joe Davis and cover subjects such as safety, storage, cleaning, firing and pistol laws.

Those women interested in this class who have or are going to purchase pistols should leave their name and phone number by calling 863-2306 which is a local Lubbock phone number.

Motocross Series To Open Sunday

A two-race motocross series extending over the next two Sundays has been scheduled by Lubbock Trix Trak.

The program both days will consist of both trophy and expert class riders and is open to motorcycles ranging from "mini-mini" (less than 80cc displacement) to open class (in excess of 250cc).

Gates at the track, two miles southeast of Idalou on FM 400, will open at 11 a.m. and the track will be open for practice at noon. The first of the day's series of races is set for 1 p.m.

Country Music Singer Returns To Perform At Saturday 'Opry'

Terri Sue Newman will return to the stage here Jan. 17 after an absence of almost two years.

She will be performing with other local entertainers on the West Texas Saturday Night Opry, slated for 8 p.m. in Municipal Auditorium. Proceeds from the show will benefit Texas Boys Ranch. The opry previously has raised more than $15,000 for local charities.

Miss Newman began a growing career two years ago when she released "Gypsy Eyes" on the Texas Soul label. Shortly afterward:

TERRI SUE NEWMAN

the song hit country music hearts and was "recommended" by Billboard Magazine.

However, at the same time Miss Newman was experiencing elation over the promising recording, she received even happier news — she was pregnant with her first child. At that time she and her husband Don Caldwell, opry co-sponsor with KLLL Radio, decided to put her career on "hold" for a while and concentrate on parenthood.

Miss Newman said she has wanted to be a country music star ever since she can remember. At age 5, she was already performing before audiences on local television and began to model herself after Brenda Lee. Now, though, she said she has developed a style all her own but treasures the songs of her first teacher.

"Success would be wonderful," the Levelland native said. "That's what I've always wanted as far as my singing — to go as far as possible."

With one record already hitting the charts, Miss Newman is hoping to have a second crack at it with an album, which is currently in the planning stage of production. She is writing some of the songs for the record and is hunting for talent in Lubbock's song-writing community.

She said she will release a single off the album in anticipation of reaching the charts again. If that happens, she said, she'll begin to set even higher goals in music.

The opry is providing a good opportunity for Miss Newman to get in front of the Lubbock audience again — the audience which has helped her all through her career. And although she calls Levelland her "hometown," she said she is thankful and proud of Lubbock and the professional talent which is currently emerging from the area.

"The opry is so professional and Lubbock is so full of good talent," said Miss Newman. "I'm honored to be part of it. It's like a football game — everyone cheers each other on. It's important for everyone to have a professional show, but it's a lot of fun, too."

Joining Miss Newman on stage will be her husband, and Opry regulars David House, Cecil Caldwell and Jim Pullingim.

Also appearing will be Joey Allen and Tommie Anderson, who will serve as master of ceremonies.

The opry will welcome newcomers Rudy Morales and Deann Parker, with an appearance by Jewette James.

The opry stage band will be present to entertain with the Maines Brothers Band and the Brownlow brothers, with a segment from the KLLL Radio personalities.

Tickets are $3 and may be purchased at all three locations of Flipside Records.

Slain American Buried At Arlington Cemetery

WASHINGTON (AP) — Michael P. Hammer, the labor organizer assassinated in El Salvador, was buried Friday in a ground hallowed by the remains of America's heroes.

Representatives of the Carter and incoming Reagan administrations watched silently as Hammer was eulogized as a man who carried the flag of freedom and justice.

Hammer was buried in Arlington National Cemetery, less than a mile from the State Department and the AFL-CIO headquarters with which he worked.

Hammer and Mark David Pearlman, a fellow labor organizer, were gunned down last Saturday as they sat in a hotel cafe in San Salvador, the capital of El Salvador. Hammer died on the day he arrived in that Central American country.

Both Hammer, 42, and Pearlman, 36, worked for the American Institute for Free Labor Development, an international arm of the AFL-CIO whose activities are supported by the State Department.

More than 300 persons crowded into the memorial chapel at Fort Myer, Va., just across the Potomac River from the Lincoln Memorial, for the funeral mass that preceded Hammer's burial.

Vice President Walter F. Mondale and Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie represented the outgoing Carter administration. Richard V. Allen, national security adviser to President-elect Ronald Reagan, and Jeane Kirkpatrick, Reagan's choice as United Nations ambassador, represented the incoming administration.

Also attending was AFL-CIO president Lane Kirkland.

Muskie told the mourners, "We will not forget the sacrifice. We will not abandon the work. Mike gave his life for his country in the service of the American labor movement. Our government supported his work and we commit ourselves once again to it."

He is survived by his wife, Magdalena, and son, Michael Jr., 15.

FILMETER

A capsule look at cinema

FILMETER is compiled by Dick Kleiner in Hollywood and the N.E.A. staff in both Hollywood and New York.

Fine Performances Help Slow, Stodgy 'Formula'

NEW RELEASES
THE FORMULA (R) — George C. Scott, Marlon Brando, Marthe Keller. (Espionage-mystery) Steve Shagan's novel, about a Nazi-developed formula to turn coal into gasoline, has a fine premise. But the film is so full of exposition and explanation that it becomes a slow, stodgy exercise — and it's still hard to follow. Great performances, especially Brando's, make it worth seeing, however. GRADE: B-minus

GENERAL RELEASE
FLASH GORDON (PG) — Sam Jones, Melody Anderson, Topol, Max Von Sydow. (Adventure) The intergalactic hero is back in an expensive, gaudy, dumb-funny version. It doesn't pretend to be anything but what it is: an old Saturday afternoon serial, modernized to take advantage of today's technological advances in movie making. Everybody has a ball with it, obviously, and if you don't expect too much, you will, too. GRADE: B

IDOLMAKER, THE (PG) — Ray Sharkey, Peter Gallagher, Paul Tapel, Tovah Feldshuh. (Drama with music) Loosely based on the career of Bob Marley, who created Frankie Avalon and Fabian, this is the story of ambition — how a man found and forged two kids into teen-age singing idols in the '50s and '60s. Overlong, but often very strong. A great vehicle for Sharkey and Gallagher, two coming stars. GRADE: B

IT'S MY TURN (R) — Jill Clayburgh, Michael Douglas, Charles Grodin. (Romantic comedy) Should Kate remain a math professor in Chicago or take an administrative job in New York? Should she stay with her funny-but-distant live-in lover or make a play for an intense former baseball star? Frankly, we don't much care what happens to this self-absorbed daddy's girl. A more insightful script might have turned this generally well-acted fluff into something more closely approaching "An Unmarried Woman." GRADE: C-plus

POPEYE (PG) — Robin Williams, Shelley Duvall, Paul L. Smith, Paul Dooley. (Comedy with music) The comic strip hero is reborn, in a stylized version by Robert Altman that grows on you. The film's story is the weakest thing, but the acting (especially Shelley Duvall as Olive Oyl) is fine, the effects are fun and the music fits neatly. It's a pleasant romp. GRADE: B

SEEMS LIKE OLD TIMES (PG) — Goldie Hawn, Chevy Chase, Charles Grodin. (Romantic comedy) Well, Neil Simon hasn't done it again. The comedy master has concocted a pleasant fable, a triangle, with Goldie at the apex and Chase as her first husband, innocently involved in a bank robbery and Grodin as her present husband, a D.A. But it's all too strained, too forced, too deliberately cute. Some good moments, but they are rare. GRADE: C

TRIBUTE (PG) — Jack Lemmon, Robby Benson, Lee Remick. (Drama with comedy) A tour de force for Lemmon, as a compulsive extrovert who learns he is dying while, simultaneously, trying to reconcile with his son, a compulsive introvert. Very strong stuff that will hit you where you live, if you live in a fairly decent neighborhood. CAUTION: Despite the PG rating, there is nudity. GRADE: A

Provisions Of Will Benefit Secretary

NEW YORK (AP) — A former secretary forced to return over $1 million in stocks and art to the conservators of her one-time employer's estate has been left $1 million, a Park Avenue co-op and a Renoir painting in the General Motors Corp. executive's will.

Helene Barak was named as the chief beneficiary of Paul Garrett, who died last November at age 89, in a will offered for probate in Manhattan's Surrogate Court on Thursday.

Mrs. Barak was Garrett's secretary for 20 years. Three years ago, she was forced by the conservators of his estate to return two Renoirs and one Signac, valued at a total of $350,000, which she said Garrett gave her.

She also was forced to return 50,800 shares of TelePrompster stock and 4,035 shares of GM stock, plus dividends, valued at $850,000, and a $48,000 group insurance policy of Garrett's that made her daughter, Brenda, his beneficiary.

Garrett's physician, Dr. Thomas Fahy, had testified at the state Supreme Court trial that the executive had shown signs of progressive senility since 1974.

Intoxicated Driver Sideswipes Auto

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — A man who drove eight miles on the wrong side of a foggy superhighway was arrested after sideswiping an oncoming car, authorities say.

Oregon state trooper Robert Milton said Angelo Giangrosso, 45, was charged with driving while intoxicated and hit-and-run driving on Interstate 5 near Salem Thursday night.

Author A.J. Cronin Dies In Switzerland

MONTREUX, Switzerland (AP) — A.J. Cronin, Scottish-born author of novels about doctors and priests — including the best-selling "The Citadel" and "The Keys of the Kingdom" — has died near his home in Switzerland at the age of 84.

Cronin, a surgeon who gave up his lucrative practice in London 50 years ago to become a full-time novelist, died Tuesday at a nursing home near here and was buried Friday after funeral services at La Tour-de-Peilz on Lake Geneva.

He had lived in Switzerland since 1955 and before that spent 15 years in the United States. He was criticized for leaving Britain during the war and in 1942, when he produced "Keys to the Kingdom" — one of his most popular books — he instructed that it should not be published in Britain.

He is survived by his wife — also a physician — the former Agnes Mary Gibson who is in a nursing home in Canada, and by three sons, one of whom is the writer Vincent Cronin.

He practiced in London until 1931, when the success of his first novel "Hatter's Castle" prompted him to give up his medical career and do what he said he had always wanted to do — become a full-time writer.

Much of his success as a writer resulted from his experiences as a doctor and his insight into human triumphs and failings. His works were marked by realism and social criticism.

In 1935 came "The Stars Look Down," a story of life in the coal mines and of the struggles of mining families. Two years later he hit the headlines with the controversial novel "The Citadel" in which he accused the medical profession — particularly the administrative hierarchy — of corruption and incompetence.

His assertions were challenged by the British Medical Association but Cronin said: "The horrors and iniquities detailed in the story I have personally witnessed. This is not an attack against individuals but against a system."

During World War II, he worked for the British Ministry of Information, spending several years in the United States where he lived in Blue Hill, Maine, Greenwich, Conn. and finally in New Canaan, Conn.

He became a U.S. citizen but then returned to Europe, settling in Switzerland in 1955, first on Lake Lucerne and later at the Lake Geneva village of Baugy-sur-Clarens.

In 1975, his Baugy villa was burglarized and paintings, sculptures and other works valued at $390,000 were reported stolen.

Home Appliances Standards Questioned

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Federal regulators are putting the final touches on energy-efficiency standards for home appliances, and the government and the industry disagree sharply about the effect of the program on consumers.

The Department of Energy says the rules will save money and energy. The industry says that, as proposed, the regulations will cost more than they are worth and will result in products that don't do the job as well as they do now.

The preliminary standards were announced last June; the final version is expected early this year.

The rules are being issued under legislation which directed the Department of Energy to develop appliance standards that would result in "significant energy savings," said Maria Oharenko, a department spokesman. They cover eight types of appliances: refrigerators, refrigerator-freezers, freezers, clothes dryers, kitchen ranges and ovens, water heaters, room and central air conditioners and furnaces.

The Energy Department said manufacturers could make products more efficient by doing things like improving insulation and using intermittent rather than continuous pilot lights.

The department and the industry agree that the standards will save energy. They also agree that they will boost the cost of appliances. They disagree on the payback period — the amount of time it will take for the savings in energy bills to offset the higher prices — and on what the rules will mean for appliance performance.

The department, for example, says that the energy standards would add about $10 to the price of a refrigerator-freezer; the increased cost would be offset in a maximum of 10 months. Stephen R. Sizer of Whirlpool Corp., a spokesman for the Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers, says the price boost would be $37.50; the payback period would be up to 1 1/2 years. The Energy Department says the payback period for a clothes dryer would be 3 years to 5 1/2 years; the industry says it would be 16 years.

Sizer also says the standards would mean major changes in appliances and possibly poorer performance. "The industry has made significant gains in the efficiency of its products," he said in a recent interview, adding that energy efficiency has increased by about 55 percent since 1972. "So far, we've been able to do this without sacrifice of performance. But given everything we know, we aren't going to be able to go much further without cutting into performance," Sizer said.

Refrigerators may get bigger because of extra energy-saving equipment. Air conditioners may be bulkier. Extra insulation in ovens may mean less space for cooking and less margin for errors, like a setting that isn't exactly what the recipe calls for. "The user is going to have to pay a lot more attention to get the desired results," Sizer said.

He denied that the industry is trying to scare consumers. "We have laid on the line the prices that have to be paid," he said, adding that the law requiring standards also requires that they be "technologically feasible and economically justifiable."

Apprehensive Galveston Eyes Students

GALVESTON (AP) — Galveston leaders fear their clean beaches, trendy nightclubs and fancy restaurants may be invaded by college students boycotting Florida resorts to protest a law raising the legal drinking age in that state from 18 to 19.

Local leaders and residents contend the presence of thousands of college students idling away their spring vacations at this coastal resort will revive "Splash Days," a celebration popular in the 1960s.

The ritual, however, was halted in 1962 after crowds of riotous students were arrested.

The Florida Youth Alliance recently mailed letters to universities, organizations, fraternities and sororities across the country urging students to spend spring break at Galveston "as a means of protesting the action of the Florida Legislature raising the legal drinking age from 18 to 19 on Oct. 1."

Steve Kingsley, the alliance's public relations director, claimed Thursday the Florida legislature's action dealt a big blow to one of the state's major industries — tourism.

"I'm sure that many of the cities whose residents scream about the trouble caused by younger visitors each year would scream even more loudly if they lost the money that those youthful tourists bring in," Kingsley said.

In the letter, the group pointed out Galveston's virtues — excellent beaches, availability of entertainment at a variety of bars and clubs and Texas' legal drinking age of 18.

But leaders of this coastal city of 80,000 view the youths' arrival with reservation.

"We welcome all tourists," said City Councilman Rudy Teichman, "but they're not gonna come down here and hold drunken parties just to protest something they can't do in Florida."

But Kingsley said Galveston residents have little to fear because the boycott of Florida beaches is "sort of symbolic."

"I don't think they will come down in huge numbers," he said. "We're mostly interested in them boycotting Florida."

Kingsley noted student tourists spend $66 million each year in Fort Lauderdale, the traditional college spring-break capital.

If just 5 percent of the 220,000 spring-break visitors decided not to come, this would cause the city to lose around $3 million in revenue.

Jim Smith of the Department of Energy disagrees. "They (the manufacturers) are trying to get the consumer up in arms," he said. "The Department of Energy isn't going to do anything that doesn't benefit the consumer."

Smith also said the department is using information the manufacturers themselves provided, although he said the government is "having great trouble" getting some of the data. "We have worked with the manufacturers," he said. "There is nothing that we know of to substantiate" the charge that the energy-efficiency standards will mean poorer performance.

The standards are designed to take effect in stages: final regulations would not be implemented until 1986. "These standards are in no way cast in concrete," Smith said. "They will be re-evaluated prior to 1986." If the rules don't work, he said, they will be changed.
