Further Delay Seen On Hostages

RESCUER RESCUED — These pictures show what happened when Charlene Taren tried to rescue her dog after it broke its leash, chased some geese on the thin ice of City Park Lake in Fort Collins, Colo., and fell in. The dog got out on its own, but Miss Taren fell in during the rescue attempt and had to be rescued by a boat crew of the Fort Collins Fire Department. (AP Laserphoto)

Iran Denies Rumor On Release

By The Associated Press
AN IRANIAN negotiator in the hostage crisis said Tuesday the date for release of the 52 American captives "is approaching," but a final agreement has not been achieved and there may be further delays.
The Iranian Parliament, meanwhile, postponed debate on two emergency bills that would aid in resolving the crisis. A parliamentary spokesman indicated the two measures probably would be approved today.
Iran's official Pars news agency quoted Ahmed Azizi, the chief hostage negotiator, as denying "rumors" that the captives would be released on Friday, the deadline Washington has set for an agreement with the Carter administration.

Reagan's "Threats"

In an interview with Pars, Azizi mentioned President-elect Ronald Reagan in connection with the negotiations, saying, "Obviously Reagan's threats would not have a positive effect on the normal process of this task."

Azizi did not elaborate and it was not clear if he was suggesting that negotiations might not be completed before Reagan takes office Jan. 20. Reagan has said that if agreement is not reached by Jan. 20, the new administration would feel free to start the negotiations anew.

In Washington, State Department spokesman John H. Trattner said no agreement had been reached and "fundamental differences remain to be resolved." But he added, "Progress continues to be made on several aspects of highly complex issues."

Agreement Speculated

In Paris, the French newspaper Le Monde reported that complete agreement may have been reached on the contents of an accord and on procedures to be followed. The paper, attributing the story to an unnamed principal negotiator, presumably Iranian, said the United States has agreed to return frozen assets estimated at $9.5 billion with a first payment of $7 billion to be made through the Algerian Central Bank before release of the hostages.

A U.S. negotiating team was in Algiers maintaining contact with Algerian intermediaries and trying to get Iranian agreement to an American plan to exchange the hostages for Iranian assets frozen by the United States.

Date "Approaching"

Azizi, an official in the prime minister's office who has been involved in negotiations to end the 14-month hostage impasse, discussed the latest developments in an interview with Pars.

The news agency quoted him as saying: "In view of the fact that the United States' commitment has been accepted by the Algerian government covering the return of all Iranian assets and necessary measures for returning the assets of the deposed shah and his relatives... it seems that the date of the release of the hostages is approaching."

But Azizi said that "because no official agreement has taken place so far and the definite answer of Iran has not been handed over to the Algerian government... it should be noted that the failure to reach agreement on some of the conditions may virtually cause a postponement of the release."

Azizi apparently was referring to See IRAN Page 14

City's Flu Virus Siege Believed Nearing End

By DEBBI STALTER
Avalanche-Journal Staff
HUNDREDS of Lubbock residents still are suffering from an apparent mild epidemic of influenza-type illnesses, but state health officials say they believe the virus has run its course here.

City Health Director Dr. Marjorie Orr said 320 cases were reported to her office last week, an increase from 157 cases counted the week before.

But, in contrast with the city statistics, the state health department's regional office here is showing a decrease in flu-like illnesses from two weeks ago to last week.

Jim Wolfe, who directs the immunization division of the state department's Region 2 office here, said his office sets up a surveillance system within three stations in the city during flu season each year. Posts are at Methodist Hospital, the Student Health Center at Texas Tech University and in the public schools.

Wolfe said cases at Methodist were down last week, numbering 155 cases from the 177 reported the week before, and he said he feels the virus is on its way out of the city.

City health department figures on the illness indicate that the recent outbreak is the largest during flu season in recent years. In November and December, 30 to 40 cases were being reported to Dr. Orr's office weekly. Two years before, the figures were even lower.

Texas Department of Health officials have not confirmed the type of virus afflicting South Plains residents, but Dr. Orr and Wolfe speculate the type A virus is the culprit here.

Wolfe noted that the state health department follows the guidelines of the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta in not declaring an epidemic until increases in flu cases are reported for two consecutive weeks. Because of the drop in cases last week, an epidemic was not declared in the 15-county region Wolfe's office oversees.

His office did cite, however, an increase from 13 to 14 in pneumonia cases in the past two weeks. Pneumonia sometimes follows as a secondary infection to a bout with flu, he said.

Wolfe warns patients to make sure their physicians listen for breathing irregularities signifying a secondary infection during visits to check flu symptoms.

Killer Cold Wave Stuns Florida

By The Associated Press
THE "STRANGE" Siberian cold wave punishing the East stunned Florida on Tuesday with a record killer freeze from Tallahassee to Miami that hung icicles on orange trees and glazed vegetables in their fields.

Florida Power & Light Co. was forced to impose rotating 20-minute blackouts on cities along the entire peninsula as the coldest weather since the turn of the century put a strain on generating plants in many areas. The power outages affected about 250,000 homes and businesses.

Records for the coldest day ever in January fell across the Southeast — 7 degrees in Wilmington, N.C., 8 degrees in Tallahassee, Fla., 14 in Savannah, Ga. — while many cities of the Northeast logged new lows below zero.

The deaths of two persons in Florida and another in Virginia were blamed on the cold as the toll mounted.

A city agency in New York reported it has received 9,000 calls this week from tenants complaining of no heat or hot water, bringing the total to 65,000 since Christmas Day. Mayor Edward Koch personally stepped in to investigate the problem.

An organization of utilities serving most of New England reported a record use of electricity for the first 12 days of January, up more than 12.5 percent over the same period last year.

Customers of Philadelphia Gas Works were asked to lower their thermostats 5 to 20 degrees because of potential shortages.

The cold wave that has fishing boats frozen to their docks in New England and fuel barges icebound in Chesapeake Bay may have wiped out 20 percent of Florida's bountiful orange crop, the equivalent of 49 million gallons of concentrated orange juice, citrus officials said.

Temperatures ranged from 20 to 26 degrees in most of the citrus belt of Central Florida.

In the nation's winter vegetable garden near Homestead, south of Miami, heavy losses also were reported.

"It's a disaster," said Betty Tilson, wife of bean farmer Ed Tilson. "Our fields aren't frosted, they're iced over. My husband said every bean field we've got is just black, and the tomato fields next to us are too."

Mrs. Tilson said they used four helicopters to keep the frigid air circulating and 13 giant sprinklers to keep a blanket of warm ground-water on the fields, trying to save their 160 acres of beans valued at $240,000.

Alvin Samet of the National Weather Service said some other Florida freezes over the years have been more damaging because they lasted for several days.

"But this isn't over," he said. "We're going to have a brief break, but then it'll be back cold again. It'll probably warm up a bit tomorrow, but who knows what will happen later. It looks like temperatures are going to remain below normal, looking ahead to Jan. 21."

Jack Hales, lead forecaster for the weather service's Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City, Mo., also said there was no early relief in sight. The cold is caused by a high pressure ridge over the Rockies that is blocking warm air blowing eastward from the Pacific Ocean and deflecting it northward into Canada.

At the same time, a low pressure system over the eastern part of the country is drawing in cold air from the north, all the way from Siberia and the Arctic Ocean.

"Because this is so strange, we're

City Police Records Show Drop In Major Crimes

By NEAL FARMER
Avalanche-Journal Staff
CRIME IN Lubbock increased slightly in 1980, but most major criminal offenses were down in the Hub City, according to a preliminary report by the Lubbock Police Department.

Bill Morgan, police information officer, said Tuesday crime rose by 6.3 percent in Lubbock in 1980 as compared to 1979.

"But we're in a better boat than most cities our size," Morgan said, noting that Lubbock's population grew by approximately four percent last year.

"Serious crime in the United States was up 11 percent, so we're holding our own considering our population increase," he said.

Morgan attributed lower-than-national crime rate increase to several recent crime fighting programs, which he said were beginning to show results. He specifically praised Crime Line Inc., an informant hotline, and Operation Identification, which allows people to engrave property.

In serious crimes, murder decreased slightly, with 28 cases in 1980 as compared to 31 deaths in 1979, according to the preliminary figures.

All of the cases were cleared, or had a suspect at least named, except for the April beating death of Manuel Miguel Madril at the Peppermint Lounge on the Clovis Road, Morgan said.

Rape, robbery and burglary also were slightly down in Lubbock, according to the report.

Assault cases showed the biggest increase last year. There were 1,798 reported cases last year, compared to 1,312 in 1979, the report showed.

Morgan said that even with the larger numbers, not all cases were reported. "We have no way of knowing the actual numbers, we can go only on what people report," he said.

Theft also increased in the Hub City, rising 5.9 percent over 1979. Even though shoplifting was down almost 11 percent, car burglary helped to offset the shoplifting decrease with almost 300 more cases reported in 1980 than the year before.

Thieves evidently wanted mostly what was in the cars rather than the actual automobiles, as car thefts were down 2.2 percent in 1980, the report showed.

Forgery was up dramatically in Lubbock in 1980 with a 17.6 percent increase over 1979. Also showing moderate increases were arson and fraud. Criminal mischief activity remained almost unchanged last year.

One of the most dramatic decreases in crime was the 85 percent decrease of

Clayton Wins Fourth Term As Speaker

AUSTIN (AP) — Bill Clayton, whose political recovery from Brilab corruption charges bordered on — to use his word — the miraculous, won an unprecedented fourth term as speaker of the Texas House on Tuesday.

Clayton's re-election was the most dramatic moment of the 67th Legislature's opening day and followed Rep. John Bryant's withdrawal from the speaker's race.

In the Senate, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby appointed the nine committees that will screen bills, and senators chose Sen. John Traeger, D-Seguin, as assistant presiding officer.

Despite Bryant's withdrawal, the House took a record vote on whether (Area Lawmakers Appointed To Panels, Page 8, Sec. A) Clayton should be speaker, and 120 of the 150 representatives said he was their choice.

Twenty-one representatives voted "no" to a renewed Clayton speakership, five cast a "present" vote — equivalent to a "no" — and three were absent. Clayton didn't vote.

(Lubbock Rep. Froy Salinas voted against Clayton. State Reps. Nolan "Buzz" Robnett of Lubbock and Jim Rudd of Brownfield voted for him.)

Bryant allowed himself to be nominated but then withdrew, freeing his pledged supporters to vote for Clayton — the certain winner — if they feared reprisal.

Bryant said his supporters would have asked for a record vote on the speakership if Clayton's had not.

"I think we wanted to make clear there were some people who don't agree with the idea of unlimited power and unlimited tenure in the speakership," said Bryant, D-Dallas.

Clayton, 52, of Springlake, now talks of about seeking a fifth term in 1983.

Nominating and seconding speeches delicately avoided mentioning Clayton's trial on corruption charges arising from the FBI's Brilab (bribery and labor) "sting" investigation.

A federal court jury in Houston acquitted Clayton on Oct. 22, and four jurors were part of the crowd who cheered the speaker's re-election Tuesday.

"I have stood three times before you in this spot, but the honor you bestow on me today is truly gratifying. Miraculous as it appears, let me assure you it carries with it a humbling effect, for only by God's grace could I be a participant in this special occasion," Clayton told the House.

Bryant said he thought it in the best interest of his supporters for him to withdraw because Clayton's control over House redistricting made this "a time of the greatest possible political peril" to them.

But he used the occasion to blast Clayton for maintaining a $300,000 staff payroll and a "personality organization" that dominates the House.

Clayton's supporters, however, said he treated all members fairly, and speeches were made for him by a black, a Mexican-American, a Republican and a conservative Democrat.

"He is a man of character, a man of deep compassion," said Rep. Bill Hall, D-Laredo.

"I'll have to hand it to him, he's a master at pleasing members," said Rep. John Whitmire, D-Houston, one of Bryant's strongest supporters and among the 21 House members who voted against Clayton's election. "You can go in and talk to him about a committee chairmanship, and even if you don't get it you come out smiling and feeling like you'll get it next time."

Car-Bicycle Crash Kills Tulia Youth

A-J Correspondent
TULIA — A 15-year-old Tulia boy was killed Tuesday night in a car-bicycle collision on a half-mile east of here on FM 1318.

Raul Moreno, son of Mr. and Mrs. Guadalupe Moreno, was dead on arrival at Swisher Memorial Hospital following the 7:15 p.m. accident.

Department of Public Safety troopers investigating the wreck said the teen was riding his bike west in the middle of the road when it was struck by a westbound car driven by a 16-year-old Tulia girl.

Troopers said Moreno was wearing dark clothing and his bike was not equipped with reflectors.

Services for the teen-ager are pending with Wallace Funeral Home.

LCLU Lawyers' Fee Cut In Prayer Suit

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

U.S. DISTRICT Judge Halbert O. Woodward Tuesday awarded attorneys representing Lubbock Civil Liberties Union attorneys who filed suit questioning the constitutionality of the school district's prayer policy less than half the combined amount they requested for their services.

Woodward ruled that lead counsel Tom Griffith should receive a total of $17,775.64 compared to the $40,125 he requested, while co-counsel Wendell Coffee was awarded $2,587.50 instead of the $6,850 he sought.

Griffith commented little on the ruling, saying only that he "wouldn't have any notion" whether the LCLU would appeal the fees awards.

The organization, which won a partial victory in its attempt to ban religious activities in the public schools, decided last month to appeal portions of Woodward's decision in the case.

Damages Of $1 Awarded
The group will ask for a Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals review of the lower judge's award of only nominal damages of $1 to the LCLU and his denial of an injunction to prevent school officials from allowing religious practices in the future which would violate students' constitutional rights.

LCLU members also will appeal Woodward's decision approving a portion of the school board's current policy

Three Alexander Jurors Selected

A-J Correspondent
ABILENE — Three jurors were selected here Tuesday in the capital murder trial of Billy Wayne Alexander Jr., leading one courtroom participant to label the three picks in one day as a "streak of luck."

The first two jurors, a man and a woman, were selected Tuesday morning and the third juror was selected in the early afternoon after being examined by attorneys for one hour, 20 minutes. The third juror, Sandy Meador, 23, was only the fourth person examined since jury selection began Monday.

After Meador's selection, attorneys examined two more veniremen but failed to select another juror before recessing until 9 a.m. today.

Meador, administrative assistant to the executive vice president of Abilene's Hendrick Medical Center, is a graduate of Hardin-Simmons University. He grew up in the Clovis area, worked his way through school as a piano tuner and comes from a large family.

 "I'm not thrilled about it," Meador said of being sequestered in a motel for the duration of the trial, "but I could accept it." And when questioned about punishment, Meador said, "In some cases I think they (the courts) are too lenient; then in others, I feel they go the other way."

Selected before Meador were Jeanette Weitzel, a 45-year-old working mother with four children the approximate age of both the defendant and the murder victim, and Joe Preston Goetz, 38, a Baptist deacon and father of three who serves as business office manager for West Texas Medical Center.

Mrs. Weitzel, a Mormon, works with her husband and children in the family's oil operating business. A former third-grade teacher in Wyoming, she has two sons and two daughters ranging in age from 21 to 25.

 Lubbock District Attorney John T. Montford and defense cocounsel Dick Alexander questioned the woman for about 75 minutes before announcing that she was acceptable.
 Goetz, who has children 16, 14 and 12 years of age, was accepted about 12:15 p.m. after being quizzed for about the same length of time.

Asked about seating two jurors out of the first three prospects, Judge Robert Wright beamed, "It's too good to be true. You know what's going to happen? I'm afraid we're going to stall out now. We might not get another one until Thursday."

Of the two other jurors examined and rejected Tuesday, one was stricken because his father works as a Department of Public Safety drivers license officer. Alexander is on trial for his life for the Oct. 5 shooting of a DPS trooper.

Defense attorney Floyd Holder questioned the DPS officer's son for an hour before using the second of his allotted 15 strikes.

"We're not questioning the sincerity of your answers," Holder told the man. "It's just hard for us to understand." The prospective juror apparently had answered most questions without obvious bias.

The fifth prospective juror examined Tuesday was excused for cause after 15 minutes of examination after he told Montford that he already had formed an opinion that Alexander is guilty of capital murder.

Each prospective juror is questioned individually in a capital murder trial and the 104th District Court trial may last as long as three weeks. If Alexander is found guilty, the jury will have to decide between a life sentence and the death penalty as his punishment.

Garwood Testimony Unlikely

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (UPI) — Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood, the only U.S. serviceman to be tried for desertion and aiding the enemy in Vietnam, may decline the opportunity to testify in his own behalf, the military judge in the case said Tuesday.

Col. R. E. Switzer said defense attorneys could pull a surprise and call the 34-year-old Marine, but they had indicated they would not do so.

Without Garwood's testimony, his account of the 14 years he spent with the Communists will be before the court only in the form of testimony of three psychiatrists and a psychologist who testified for the defense. The doctors spent hundreds of hours interviewing the accused turncoat.

The defense has called eight witnesses during ten days of testimony in the court-martial, which took months to get to the trial stage.

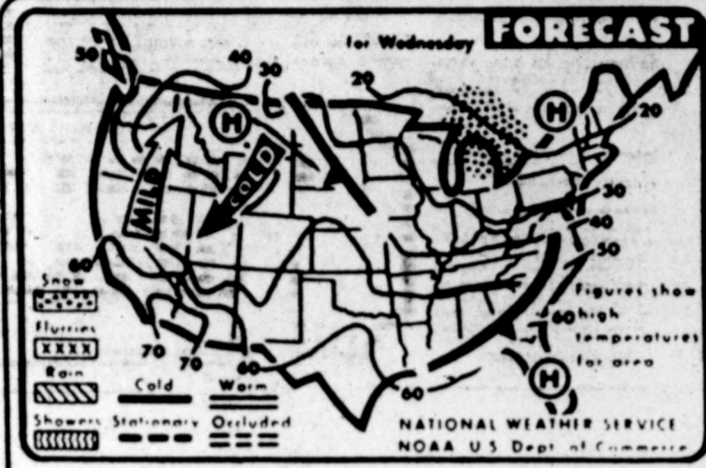

From the outset, the defense has made no attempt to dispute accusations by former POWs that Garwood lived as a comrade among the Communist prison camp guards, carried a weapon and helped question American prisoners. Instead they have contended Garwood was driven insane by torture he received at the hands of the Viet Cong and was not responsible for his actions.

An Air Force psychiatrist who underwent cross-examination by the prosecution Tuesday was expected to be the final witness for the defense. Switzer said during an interview.

Col. James F.T. Corcoran, head of psychiatry at the School of Aerospace Medicine in San Antonio, spent about four hours testifying Monday, recalling Garwood's description of his years with the Communists.

Garwood maintains he was captured by Viet Cong in a gunbattle outside Da Nang in 1965, driven insane by torture and forgotten by the American government when the other POWs returned home in 1973.

Tuesday, prosecutors attempted to uncover discrepancies between the account Garwood gave Corcoran and entries in Garwood's medical file.

Louisiana Judge Faces $1,000 Fine Daily For Defying Busing Order

BUCKEYE, La. (UPI) — Although he faces a possible $1,000-a-day fine for defying a federal busing order, state judge Richard Lee returned to all-white Buckeye High School Tuesday to make sure three white girls could attend classes.

Lynda McNeal, 13, missed school with a sprained ankle but the other two were admitted without incident.

As he approached the school about 7:20 a.m., Lee angrily yelled at reporters who crowded around the entrance.

"Get away from the building or I'll throw every one of you in jail," Lee shouted.

He backed off when Principal Charles Waites, visibly irritated, stepped in.

"Judge Lee or Judge Scott, either one, can tell me to enroll the girls or drop them," Waites said. "What the television people and the press do here, well, that's my business."

"I want you to be here," Waites told reporters. "The American public deserves that."

Lee said last week he wanted to avoid disruptions at the school and accused the media of creating problems. But Waites said Tuesday he saw no conflict with reporters.

"We have never had a disruption here," he said. "The press has been very cooperative. It's a national story and deserves to be covered."

Lee went to the rural central Louisiana school for the fourth day in two weeks in his continuing custody-desegregation fight with federal Judge Nauman Scott. Lee threatened Waites with arrest if the girls were barred from the school.

Scott, who has been battling with Lee for several months, is to hold a hearing Wednesday on whether to finalize his temporary order barring state troopers from intervening in the dispute.

On Thursday, Scott has scheduled another hearing on whether to hold Lee in contempt of court for defying his desegregation order. Lee could be fined up to $1,000 a day. Others involved in the dispute, including the girls' parents and guardians and school officials, could be fined up to $500 a day.

Scott has asked for extra seats in his courtroom to handle the large crowd expected Thursday and has also requested additional U.S. marshals to maintain order.

Several groups, including the Ku Klux Klan, have announced they will attend the session to protest Scott's desegregation orders.

The three girls at the center of the dispute are Miss McNeal, a 13-year-old eighth grader, Michelle LaBorde, another eighth grader, and 12-year-old Ramona Carbo, a seventh grader.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals refused late Monday to step into the controversy, saying all the Rapides Parish public school desegregation cases and related issues would be heard in March by the appeals court.

Mild Weather Seen For Area

Mild temperatures are expected to remain on the South Plains today and Thursday, with slightly lower readings expected Thursday.

Skies will be partly cloudy, according to the National Weather Service, with the high today forecast in the middle 50s. Thursday's high, weather officials say, should be in the low 50s.

Tonight's low should be in the low 20s, and winds today are expected to be out of the northeast at about 5 mph. While South Plains residents enjoyed balmy January weather, cloudy skies blanketed much of the southwestern half of the state and drizzle and fog fell over portions of far south Texas.

Rain is expected to continue in the southern half of the state, while the northern portion of Texas is expected to be fair to partly cloudy and cooler today.

A stationary front from the Atlantic Ocean is expected to reach into southern Texas this evening, bringing cooler temperatures and continued rain to that region.

Childress Panel Axes Motel Tax Proposal

By SHIRLEY ANDERSON
A-J Correspondent

CHILDRESS — A proposed motel tax was axed in recent city council action after a delegation of motel owners objected to the legislation.

By a vote of four to one, council members turned thumbs down on their own proposal in deference to arguments voiced by operators of the city's motels. The purpose of the proposed ordinance, which would have levied a four percent fee on motel room rates, was to establish a source of revenue to improve tourism facilities in Childress.

The council proposed the motel tax last October and the first reading of the ordinance was at the next meeting. A delegation of motel owners turned out for the session, however, and advised the council that such a tax would seriously damage their business.

Spokesman for the group, Del Summers of the Trade Winds Motel, explained that Childress is not a tourist town and that most of the motel trade consists of salesmen, many of whom are not on company expense accounts. He contended that a four percent increase in room rates would send these customers to the next town.

After hearing the delegation's arguments, the council tabled the ordinance and instructed City Manager David Galligan to check with officials in other cities where such a tax is in effect.

Galligan told city officials that among cities he checked were Dalhart, Floydada, Jacksboro and Plainview, where the tax has been in effect from three to five years.

"All the cities reported that there had been no problems whatsoever with the tax," Galligan said, "and officials in Plainview said they recently increased their tax from two to four percent."

He did note, however, that most cities are using a two percent rate.

Alderman Charles Rodgers, however, said that he has second thoughts on the issue.

"It is designed to let tourists help with the cost of tourism," he said, "but if our motels accommodate salesmen and other workers who are out there trying to make a living, I'm not sure I like the idea."

Alderman Larry Moore said that he felt a salesman would take a pretty hard look at a room rate increase.

The lone councilman standing firm on the issue was Pat Steed, who said he still sees benefits in the idea.

"I don't view the situation that way," he said. "I feel there are a lot of things we could do with the revenue that would benefit motel owners and their customers as well as attract tourists to Childress."

Mayor Walter Lockhoff stressed that he feels the tax is a good one, but sees problems.

"We've had no citizen support whatsoever on the issue, and I don't mean the motel owners. I mean the people of Childress, who should be in favor of the tax since it would benefit them with improvements to the community. I really feel like we're swimming upstream on this," he said.

Summers charged that levying a tax to improve tourism attractions is unfair.

"It's charging for something we haven't got," he said. The motel owner added that the situation could change.

"In the future, perhaps the lakes will be developed and will bring in tourists. But right now, it would hinder our business."

Officials estimate that the tax would have amounted to about $25,000 a year, with the funds going for various tourism projects. Immediate need mentioned is renovation of the City Auditorium, to possibly attract conventions and other gatherings to Childress.

English Conversation Course Set

Conversational English, a course for persons who speak English as a foreign language, will be offered evenings this semester by the Texas Tech University Division of Continuing Education.

"This course is especially for people who want to learn standard English as it is spoken in Texas," said Rod MacIntosh, course instructor. MacIntosh is a part-time Spanish instructor at Texas Tech.

He said the course is designed to improve oral English communication skills, especially pronunciation and listening comprehension. Extensive practice and dialogue memorization will help the students improve their speaking of English, he said.

The class will meet 7-8:30 p.m. Mondays and Wednesdays, Jan. 26 through March 18 in Room 8 of Holden Hall. Registration is $50.

For further information, contact Teresa Katsufakis at (806) 742-2354.

Gift Doubles Memorial Building Fund

A-J Correspondent

TULIA — The permanent maintenance fund of Swisher Memorial Building was doubled recently with a donation from Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gayler of Kress.

Mr. and Mrs. W.A. Jordan of Tulia contributed $6,000 to establish the fund in 1979. The Swisher Memorial Board added $4,000 to make a total of $10,000 and the Gayler donation has doubled the amount in the fund.

The Memorial Building, dedicated to all residents of Swisher County, is nearly completed.

Begun several years ago, the building in downtown Tulia houses the Chamber of Commerce, Swisher County Library, Senior Citizens Center, Memorial office, recreation and meeting rooms and kitchenettes and a basement.

The last phase of construction will be the Swisher museum.

In 1979, the Gaylers gave $100,000 to complete the cost of constructing the Memorial Building and in 1980 gave $4,000 to wind up the contract for building the Mid-Tule Village Apartments for senior citizens.

COMA Awards Fete Planned At Reese

The Annual Installations and Awards Banquet of the Lubbock COMA Chamber of Commerce has been set for 7:30 p.m. Saturday at the Officer's Club facility of Reese Air Force Base. A cocktail hour scheduled at 6:30 p.m. will precede the banquet.

The installation of the 1981 elected COMA officials will be conducted and outstanding achievements and contributions to the promotion of minority business development will be recognized. Annual awards include the "Outstanding Member of the Year," the "Outstanding Business of the Year," the "Outstanding Financial Institution of the Year" and many others.

Dr. Lauro Cavazos, president of Texas Tech University, will be keynote speaker and other guests expected to attend include Melissa Gore, 1981 South Plains Maid of Cotton; Rosalinda Perez, La Senority 1981; Mayor Bill McAllister; and various other city and state officials. Abner Eureski from KCBD-TV will serve as Master of Ceremonies.

Advance tickets to the event are available at the COMA office. For more information and/or reservations call 762-5059.

CHILD MURDERED

DALLAS (AP) — A man charged Monday with stabbing a 6-year-old boy to death told police he did so in self-defense. David Pecina Lopez, 25, remained jailed in lieu of $50,000 bond on a charge he stabbed Ralph Luna 15 times in his family's home Jan. 6. He also was being held on $2,000 bond on charges of sexually abusing a 14-year-old boy on two separate occasions. Lopez, who has been convicted of sodomy, attempted rape and burglary, told officers he stabbed the child after the boy came at him with a steak knife.

REASONING OUT OF FOCUS

Bilingual Vision Not 20-20

"SERIOUSLY FLAWED," the phrase he uses to describe the state's bilingual education program, is an apt description of federal Judge William Wayne Justice's way of looking at the world.

The Tyler jurist, who marches to the beat of a different drummer, ordered Texas schools to expand bilingual education significantly beyond the three years of basic courses now offered.

He said the three-year program is inadequate to serve the needs of Mexican-American children who inhabit the state's school rooms by the tens of thousands.

Judge Justice gave lawyers for both sides until March 2 to submit an agreed plan of improvement to him, or until March 9 to submit separate proposals if they can't agree.

"PREJUDICE and deprivation remains a significant obstacle to equal educational opportunity" for Spanish-speaking children in Texas, the federal judge decided on the basis of testimony he heard more than a year ago.

Justice's proposed remedy, though, even if his reasoning were not flawed, runs the risk of encouraging a dual society that will discourage Mexican-American students from becoming fully integrated into the nation's economic mainstream.

Everyone can agree that it helps Spanish-speaking students if they get special help in learning English during their early years in the public schools. The disagreement comes over whether they should be treated as a special class and given instruction in Spanish throughout their 12 years in school.

It is also a matter of deep concern whenever the federal courts intrude so deeply into curriculum matters that neither the educators, the legislators nor the taxpayers have the authority to consider costs and make decisions which rightfully belong to them.

JUDGE JUSTICE is the same man who only recently ordered sweeping changes in the Texas prison system without regard to cost.

Before that, he created havoc in the state's juvenile detention system and often has been on the leading edge of substituting his own opinions for those of legally constituted state and institutional authorities.

In his latest opinion, he ruled from the safety of his lifetime tenure that only by expanding bilingual education can Spanish-speaking children "achieve a productive and fulfilling place in American society."

Whether his final order will leave any room for flexibility that takes into account the realities of teacher availability, etc., remains to be seen but is doubtful.

Judge Justice's track record does not indicate he has any tolerance for people who don't see the world as he sees it.

DEFICIT GROWING

Budget Cutters Sharpen Axe

TOP REPUBLICAN financial experts are trying to figure out how President-elect Reagan can keep his oft-stated campaign promises to cut federal spending, balance the budget and provide meaningful tax relief.

The Reagan aides are discovering a truth with which government budgeters have grappled for years: the federal budget is out of control.

One reason the new administration may have so little control over federal spending is that fully 76 percent of the outlays in FY 81 are mandated.

Without changes in the law, those monies can be cut only minimally.

IN THE FISCAL 81 budget, more than 75 cents of every mandated dollar goes into the so-called "entitlement programs," such as Social Security, Medicare, Medicaid, retirement benefits for government employees and the military.

The rest goes for such things as interest on the federal debt (at $75 billion a year, the third largest federal outlay), revenue sharing and the federal payroll.

The growth in these mandated programs has been phenomenal.

Demos Miss The Point In Questioning Of Haig

WASHINGTON—With its usual penchant for missing the point, official Washington is debating all the wrong things about Alexander Haig, Ronald Reagan's choice to head the Department of State.

The main point people want to talk about with respect to Haig, it seems, is Watergate. His role in the final days when Richard Nixon was being de-fenestrated, what he might have said on White House tapes, whether there are other records reflecting on his role.

Reckitrant Democrats suggest there might be something sinister. Republicans insist there isn't. All of which leaves one wondering: What do such things have to do with U.S. foreign policy?

IF HAIG did something culpable in Watergate, or anywhere else, that of course should be known, though there is no evidence of such wrongdoing and plenty of evidence that the Democrats are fishing.

But even if Haig is pure as the driven snow on Watergate, does that mean he is qualified to head the State Department?

The questions that ought to be getting debated with respect to Haig are rather different.

As previously noted in this journal, he rose to national prominence as a protégé of Henry Kissinger, a background that suggests a similarity of views between the two.

We know a lot about the views of Henry Kissinger, of course. About Al Haig, we know a great deal less.

DURING THE period when Haig was serving as Kissinger's aide in the White House, the latter conceived the ill-starred policy of detente, launched the equally unfortunate SALT accords, concocted a jerry-built peace agreement in Vietnam, and began the process that led to the ouster of Free China from the United Nations.

Other Kissinger activities of note during his years in the Nixon-Ford administrations included endorsement of the "mutual assured destruction" (MAD) concept that dictates an absence of defenses for our civilian population (a key ingredient of SALT), concealing data about Soviet violations of

In 1965, for example, 20 million Americans received an average of $84 a month in Social Security benefits. Sixteen years later, 42 million are receiving an average of $385 a month.

During the same period, welfare payments have tripled while the average Medicare benefit payment has doubled. The amount paid to civil service and military retirees has increased fourfold!

THESE MASSIVE increases are primarily the result of persistent inflation. Most of the benefit payments are linked to the cost of living, so outlays have skyrocketed.

To achieve a meaningful reduction in the federal budget, therefore, the new administration has no choice but to trim the entitlement programs.

That will require changes in the law that could prove both time-consuming and politically unpopular.

If the growth in mandated outlays is indeed stemmed, some real budget cutting may be possible. But, as the Republican planners are coming to realize, regaining control over federal spending isn't going to be easy.

SALT I, barring Alexander Solzhenitsyn from the White House, and pushing for the treaties that surrendered American control of the Panama Canal.

"While all this was going on, where was Alexander Haig? It is intimated that he disagreed with Kissinger on some of these things—favoring tougher policy in Vietnam, for example.

HE DID give critical testimony on Jimmy Carter's SALT II agreement, including some negative commentary on MAD. As head of the NATO forces, also, he got high marks from our European allies. Beyond this, however, there is not a great deal by way of public information.

Conservatives backing Haig as better than the talked-about alternatives intimate that, somewhere along the line, he broke with Kissinger. But how and why the break occurred, and what hard evidence there is concerning it, have not been spelled out on the record.

Since Ronald Reagan became a contender for the White House chiefly by pounding away at Kissinger's foreign policy performance, some judicious questioning about these matters would seem to be in order.

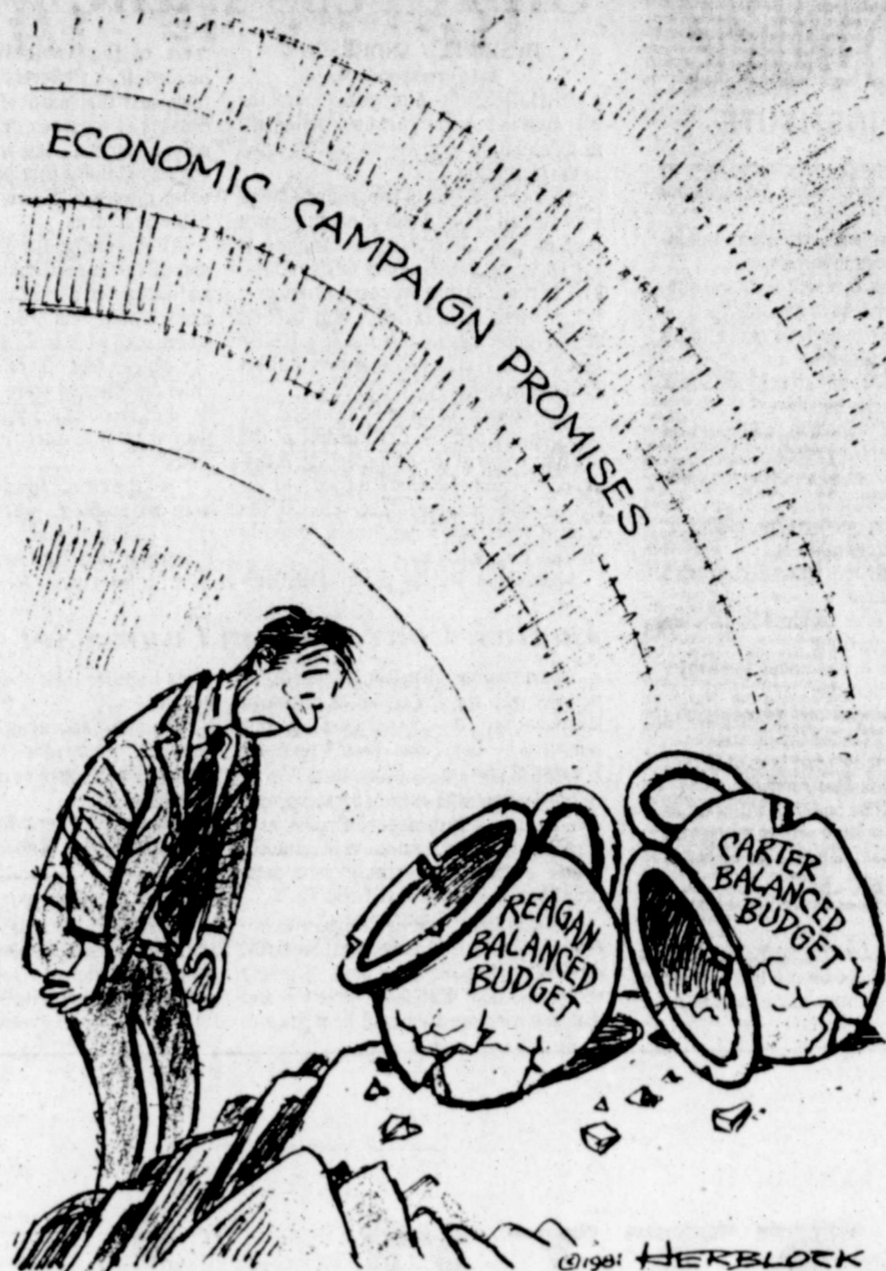

THE ISSUE is prospective: The kind of foreign policy we are going to have in the next few years, the kinds of people who are going to be brought into the State Department, and the world view that controls such critical decisions.

Right now, for example, a cauldron is bubbling in Central America, largely as a result of misguided U.S. policies. Revolutionary forces continue to churn in Africa.

Soviet expansionism in recent months has reached new levels of audacity. The flow of critical Western technology to the Communists continues to be a major issue on which the new administration will have to make some tough decisions.

Gen. Haig's position on these and related matters—and the policies he will pursue concerning them—are far more important than what he did, or didn't do, on Watergate. One hopes that, in the confirmation process, they are questions that will receive some answers.

AT THE END OF THE RAINBOW

JOSEPH KRAFT: A Quid For A Quo

WASHINGTON—American honor finds cold comfort in the final offer made by the Carter administration to spring the hostages. Still the national interest lies in an acceptance by Iran.

For the incoming administration, while holding a basically sound position, is ill-prepared to deal with what has become a well-nigh hysterical issue. The offer transmitted to Iran by Algerian intermediaries last week is a straight quid pro quo deal.

The Iranians turn over the hostages through the good offices of Algeria. The U.S. makes available to Iran, through the Algerians, some $5 or $6 billion in assets frozen by President Carter after the hostages were taken.

ANDREW TULLY: All You Can Eat

WASHINGTON—One of Ronald Reagan's troopers told me something the other day that I hope is true. Indeed, it made me so happy that I have no intention of checking it out.

"His Nibs," said this guy, "is always nervous when he has to make a speech. He relaxes after a few lines, but his opening remarks are hell for him."

Bless your heart, Gov. Reagan, sir. It is always comforting to suspect that any big shot is human, especially in regard to speech-making.

For their prospective audience's sins, Washington columnists occasionally are hired to relieve themselves of several thousand words for what is singularly known as an honorarium. I find the experience chilling.

MOST PEOPLE like an invitation to speak, especially for pay. They like it all the way up to the day they have to deliver the goods.

Then they react as Abraham Lincoln described the burden of public office: "I feel sometimes like a man who had been ridden out of town on a rail, who remarked that if it weren't for the honor of the thing he'd rather walk."

Like many part-time orators, I put off preparation of a speech as long as possible.

It often turns out all right, but it's nerve-wracking waiting for that first soft murmur that says one's words are not falling on totally indifferent ears.

THEN THERE is the movement involved. Whenever I travel these hustling, shoving days, I always feel a little like Winston Churchill when he arrived for a holiday stay with the actress, Maxine Elliott, on the French Riviera. Churchill emerged from his Rolls Royce sulking.

"Do you realize, Maxine," he whimpered, "that I've come all the way across France without my valet."

"Oh Winston," cooed the beautiful Miss Elliott, "How brave!"

Then there is the problem of food. I seem always to be billeted in plastic hostels where the vittles are prepared by the cunning hand of an unfrocked undertaker.

Ingesting such frightful comestibles, I'm reminded of that literary Colossus, Oscar Wilde, who described fox hunting as the pursuit of the uneatable by the unspokeable.

BIDDEN TO forage in the dining rooms of most hotels and motels, one wishes he had the courage to reply as Bernard Shaw did when he received a card announcing that a particularly tedious female would be "at home" on a certain day, at a certain hour. Forthwith, Shaw penned his reply. "So," he wrote, "shall I."

The late great reporter, Pete Lisagor, took his revenge on a niggardly editor who had condemned him to cover a murder trail in a bleak hamlet set in an arid wilderness. After his 'umpteenth meal in the town's leading ptomaine palace, Pete added an item to his expense account.

The item read, simply: "Champagne, $150. Damage to lady's slipper from which it was drunk, $50."

In addition, the Iranians are given a license to hunt for the assets of the late Shah, insofar as they are located in this country (which is to no great degree) and the courts will allow (which is uncertain).

Compared to previous terms accepted by the Carter administration, the final offer is a Gibraltar of firmness. The U.S. does not, as President Carter once said he would, turn over important stocks of weapons to Iran.

It does not admit the principle, explicit in the dealings through the United Nations last year, that an international tribunal (largely composed of America Lesters) sit in judgment of past actions by this country in Iran.

Still the very idea of a bargain for the hostages is abhorrent. It gives legitimacy to illegitimate actions. It shows the U.S. can be held up by the threat of violence against a handful of citizens. It invites further blackmail.

GOV. REAGAN, throughout the election campaign and since, showed a keen understanding of those points.

He is well placed now to take the position which some of us urged upon the Carter administration at the beginning of the affair.

That position starts from the premise that the seizure of the hostages was an illegal act in violation of all accepted norms of behavior. It includes an expression of willingness to negotiate legitimate complaints.

But not under duress. As a precondition for any discussions pertaining to Iran, it requires release of the hostages.

By taking such a stance, the U.S. would reverse the conditions which have obtained for the last 14 months.

It would lay upon the Iranian government the burden of proving that it is a responsible actor in world affairs, a legitimate regime able to discipline its citizens, including those who held the hostages.

THAT POSITION is still the first position. It is the stance a Reagan administration should, and probably would, take, if the hostage problem fell into its lap.

But the issue now goes beyond the matter of a basic stance. The hostages, always an element in the affairs of Tehran, have now become part of the griddle of Iranian politics.

They are not merely being held. If no deal is done, some at least may well be subjected to trial. Some, perhaps, to harsh punishment.

For that eventuality, a sit-tight policy does not suffice. Retaliatory actions have to be taken. They need to be organized in a ladder of graduated chastisement.

They have to be coordinated with other countries—friendly and not so friendly. For at some point, and probably early on, blockade of the Persian Gulf approaches to Iran would come up for consideration.

BUT GOV. Reagan and his people are not ready for such a test. They have not studied the negotiating records in detail.

They have not familiarized themselves with the cases of the individual hostages. They have not sounded the attitudes of foreign governments.

In those conditions, the incoming administration would probably make even more of a mess of the hostage affair, thus worsening the American position in the Persian Gulf and the world.

It is better by far that the final Carter offer be accepted, and that the Reagan people learn the basic lesson of the outgoing administration—namely that it takes more than good intentions to govern.

As to American honor, there are the famous words of Burke on a disgraceful British transaction with French revolutionaries:

"I pass by all the insolence and contumely of the performance as it comes from them. The present question is not how we are to be affected with it in regard to our dignity. That is gone. I shall say no more about it. Lie light the earth on the ashes of English pride."

Our stockbroker grumps that the bears are so active in the market he thinks the bulls have been put out to pasture.

JAY HARRIS: And Dial 'O' For...

ONE OF Lubbock's "best sellers" is getting mixed reviews this time around...

We refer to Ma Bell's new phone book for Lubbock and nine immediate area communities which hit the market in late November, and which by now should have been given a good going over.

"There's something new in this directory," the people at Southwestern Bell say on the opening page. And there is. For one thing, residential and business phone customers are listed separately. And not everyone is happy about it. Or at the least the way the sections aren't better divided.

Other changes find surnames listed only once in the residential section, and in larger type than previously. First names then come beneath. This is a plus. In addition, there is a new Customer Guide in front of the book. And, the new cover features a Charles M. Russell painting, "Come Out of There."

OVERALL, WE tend to agree with Ma Bell's folks that the book is an improvement, but with reservations.

The way the names are listed, with space under each surname, makes it easier to locate people. But, the "only phone company in town," more or less, made a major blunder in one of its "improvements," putting residences and businesses in two separate but adjoining white page sections.

The problem is that when one picks up the book, it's a hassle to determine where one ends and the other begins.

Jim Goodwin, who beats the drums for Southwestern, says that in "large city phone books, there is a Blue Pages section of government listings which separates the business and residence sections...But, our directory production people tell us that we didn't have enough government listings to justify a Blue Pages section..."

SOMEONE DIALED a wrong number on that one...

In the first place, since the book more or less covers Metro Lubbock, with some 221,000 or more persons, we wouldn't call the city small.

Second, the city and county's governmental agencies, when one includes the public schools, Texas Tech and other such listings, if in large type as it should be, would fill up to four or more blue pages. So what was the problem?

In any event, Goodwin says the local business office has passed on the complaints about the book, and while a color section dividing residential and business phones may be out of the question, some solution should be in the offing the next time around.

As a suggestion, why not use a somewhat stiffer paper, similar to the phone book backs, with all government, school and other such data listed, plus a blank page for one's own special, most-often called numbers, as a divider.

MAYBE IT would be asking too much of the powers-that-be at Ma Bell's to send out a questionnaire about what its customers would like.

Most residents and many businessmen we have talked to say they never were consulted about the new book's format, and would like a say the next go-around.

As for the product overall, it has its good points, a few surprises. On the back cover, for instance, is a 1981 calendar, the better to know when the phone bill is overdue. There is a Zip Code heading up the Yellow Pages. Major emergency numbers, Fire, Police, Ambulance, are on the inside cover.

There's more, like services for the disabled, how to handle obscene or harassing calls, data on consumer rights, when is the best time to call, Texas and interstate rates, area code and time zone map, how to call Brezhnev or maybe Fidel Castro on international calls, a map and facts on Lubbock.

JUST FOR the record, this year's book has 303 white pages and 610 Yellow ones, compared to 288 and 630 last year. Which proves something.

If you are in another Area Code and want a Lubbock book, it'll cost $2.75. The company printed 230,524 and handed out 146,000 in December. The extras are to replace those torn, ruined by kids, dogs, grumpies, for new customers, you name it.

The first name is Aaron, the last one Zyla. And since you would ask anyway, there are 742 Smiths in the book, Goodwin says. Using a rough estimate, he says there are 552 Jones, 504 Johnsons, 471 Williams, 416 Browns, 250 Whites, 128 Greens and 49 Blacks.

There are 186 listings under Young. Garcia outnumbers Rodriguez 188 to 100. Goodwin notes the names represent roots from all over the world. Just for the record, there's not a single Lubbock in the whole book, as a family name that is.

JUST HOW much attention do people pay to those front covers which Ma Bell goes to so much trouble to choose and publicize?

Sometimes, a lot. But, quick now, what was on last year's cover? Besides a lot of doodling, a special number or so, a cigarette burn and a torn spot? It was a painting by Austin artist and historian Bruce Marshall, depicting some of the leading figures in Texas' past.

Along that line, the best one, for our money, was the 1976 Bicentennial cover which wrapped around the front and back and displayed some of America's best-known historical figures and personalities, from the Statue of Liberty to baseball players to singers to actors to George Washington and phono-visions. We know people who framed that one, or copies of same.

We are sure the people at Ma Bell's place sometimes feel maligned. At times, the criticism is justified. Customers don't like having to go by way of San Antonio to get their business handled and they don't like some other things. But, having had experience with phone service abroad, we should be thankful that indeed it works. We may criticize on occasion, but we'd hate to be without it. Most of the time...

Q. WHAT DO car salesmen mean by "lowball" and "highball"?

A. Lowball is a price quotation set low to interest a prospect. It's then jacked up during the deal. Highball is a high offer on a trade-in. It's then whittled down during the pitch.

Suspect the client who asks the whereabouts of the Piddle River already knows. It's in Southern England, and is noteworthy in particular because it runs from Puddletown to Poole.

Berry Withdraws Resignation

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The conflict between the Community Development Advisory Committee and the City Council appears to have subsided, but neither is backing away from its position.

Committee chairman Shelton Berry withdrew his resignation Tuesday, saying a meeting with Mayor Bill McAlister had opened lines of communication between the two groups.

"We'll probably still disagree, but we'll be communicating," Berry said. McAlister does disagree with the assessment by Berry and other committee members that their work on formulating a recommendation on how $3.48 million in Community Development funds should be spent was wasted.

"I don't at all think it was a waste of time," McAlister said, adding "the council did not totally ignore their recommendations. In most cases we supported their recommendations. There was not that much difference."

"However, I don't think the council should be a rubber stamp for the CDAC," McAlister said. The council is required by federal law to hold two public hearings on expenditure of the funds before a final decision is made on how the funds will be spent.

"If we endorse everything they recommend, it would make a mockery of the public hearings," he said.

The major points of contention between the council and the committee are the expenditure of funds for preliminary work on the widening of East 19th Street between Quirt Avenue and Loop 289 and for an overpass at East 34th Street and Quirt Avenue, McAlister said.

The widening of East 19th was a citizen priority in 1978, McAlister said, and the council promised to fund the project but delayed it until 1980-81 to provide funds for a park in the South Overton Addition.

"We made a commitment of sorts. We gave the impression it was going to be delayed to the 1980-81 (funding) year," McAlister said.

On the East 34th Street overpass, expected to cost about $9 million to construct, McAlister said citizens had expressed their "strong desire to see the project developed" and the past council committed Community Development funds to the project.

"It's not out of character at all for us to use CD money for street projects," McAlister said, citing the CD-funded improvements on Indiana Avenue and Quirt Avenue.

"We need to be flexible with CD funds. I hate to narrow it down to just one or two things" we can use the money for. "We need to have a broad spectrum."

As for committee contentions that Community Development funds should be reserved for more people-oriented projects, McAlister said streets "get as much people use as other things."

McAlister said he didn't ask Berry not to resign as committee chairman. "I wouldn't convince anyone not to resign," he said.

"I'm not upset with him and I surely would be receptive to him staying, but I'm not pressuring him into it," he said. "I do greatly appreciate the job he has done and I'm in no way unhappy with his performance."

Should committee membership be more in line philosophically on the expenditure of Community Development funds?

"Not necessarily," McAlister said. "We're not that far apart and the council doesn't need a rubber stamp committee. Disagreement is healthy. This is a very honorable disagreement and we still differ to some degree."

Berry submitted his letter of resignation to the mayor and City Council Friday after a council meeting in which Berry criticized council members for ignoring committee recommendations.

He said the meeting with McAlister "basically just straightened out communications between the council and the CDAC," with each pledging to "pay more attention to what the other is doing."

"They aren't changing their mind" about the allocation of Community Development monies, but "we're communicating better about it," Berry said.

In his letter, Berry said, "I do not believe that I can give the direction to the committee that you require. I therefore resign as CDAC chairman effective immediately."

Berry and committee member George Nelson told council members last week engineering work for the two street projects should be funded through a bond election.

The council decided on a split vote to include Community Development funding for the two projects — $200,000 for East 19th Street and $250,000 for the East 34th Street overpass — with the condition no funds will be spent on the projects until a bond election is held or another source of funds to complete the road work is found.

Councilwoman Joan Baker and Councilman Jack Brown voted against using Community Development funds for the street projects, with the other three council members voting in favor of funding them.

FOUND MONEY IN BEDROOM — Rita Jenrette, seen here taping an appearance on NBC-TV's "Tomorrow" show in December, has told friends she recently found a substantial amount of money hidden in their bedroom and believes it may be Abscam bribe money. Rep. Jenrette, D-S.C. was convicted of accepting a $50,000 bribe from an FBI agent posing as an Arab Sheik, but the money was never recovered. Mrs. Jenrette announced over the weekend she would seek a divorce. (AP Laserphoto)

Decline Reported In Sales By Retailers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sales by U.S. retailers fell off in December after climbing slowly but steadily since May, the Commerce Department reported Tuesday.

The department noted a 1.3 percent dip from November figures, even though the dollar value of the December sales total was swelled by continuing inflation.

Sales of about $942.5 billion for all of last year were up about 6 percent from 1979, Commerce reported, but that gain also was more than wiped out by inflation.

The National Association of Realtors had more bad economic news Tuesday, reporting a five-year low in sales of existing homes last year as high interest rates kept potential buyers out of the market.

And the government said that although completions of new housing units held firm in November, the rate was down 31 percent from a year earlier.

The Commerce Department said its survey of retail businesses showed about $80.8 billion in sales last month — adjusting the figures for seasonal variations but not for inflation. The total compares to $81.9 billion the previous month and to $77.2 billion in December 1979.

Sales in the troubled auto industry sank about 7.4 percent in December, dragging down the overall retail figures which would have showed no change from November if automotive dealers had been excluded, the department said.

Seasonally adjusted sales of durable goods in general slid about 4 percent in December, while sales of nondurable goods such as food and gasoline remained basically unchanged.

In housing, the realty association estimated that total home resales totaled 2.86 million in 1980, the lowest level since the recession year of 1975. Sales totaled 3.7 million houses in 1979 and a record 3.86 million in 1978. The figures do not include new houses.

Association president John R. Wood said mortgage interest rates of more than 15 percent in some cases softened sales in every region of the country, particularly in the West, where sales fell 18.5 percent during the last two months.

Sales in the other regions were off between 9 percent and 10 percent, he said.

Despite the slackening demand, housing prices continued to rise rapidly. The association said the median price for an existing home in November was $64,300, up 15.6 percent from $55,600 the year before.

Creative financial arrangements devised by buyers and sellers to help offset the high interest costs kept the market from deteriorating even more, Wood added.

Although interest rates have begun to decline slowly, inflation and mortgage costs are expected to remain high for the immediate future, keeping the housing market sluggish in early 1981, Wood predicted.

Other economists expect mortgage rates to range between 11 percent and 13 percent this year. That compares with an average mortgage rate of 15 percent in early December, according to the latest government figures.

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board estimated the median price of a house at $73,000 in early December, up from $69,800 the month before.

In other economic developments Tuesday, the Commerce Department said American businesses plan to increase capital investment by 10.8 percent this year. But the "real" rise, after considering inflation at its current 9 percent rate for nonresidential investment, would be just slightly more than 1.5 percent, the department said.

Capital spending rose 8.8 percent in 1980, but amounted to a slight decrease after taking inflation into account, the government said.

Treasury Bill Rates Up

WASHINGTON (AP) Interest rates on short-term Treasury securities broke their recent slide by rising to the highest levels since mid-December, the government reported Monday.

The average discount rate on 26-week Treasury bills rose from 13.182 percent last week to 14.228 percent at Monday's auction.

Meanwhile, the average rate on 13-week Treasury bills shot up from 13.601 percent to 15.318 percent, the highest mark since 16.667 percent on December 18, the Treasury Department said.

As a result of Monday's auction, banks and thrift institutions may pay up to 14.478 percent on six-month money market certificates, effective Thursday. The current yield on the $10,000-minimum-deposit certificates, which are linked to the 26-week Treasury rate, is 13.432 percent.

Depositors choosing 2-year certificates requiring smaller minimum payments — can earn 12 percent at thrifts and 11.75 percent at banks. This is the top yield allowed by the federal government.

The discount rate on short-term Treasury bills understates the actual return to an investor because a portion of the price is refunded at the time of purchase. The actual return, or investment rate, came to an average 15.54 percent on 26 week bills; 16.16 percent on 13-week securities.

Both Combatants Claim Gains In Iranian Fighting

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) Iran and Iraq reported paratroop and tank battles at both ends of their war front Tuesday as U.N. special envoy Olaf Palme headed for the Persian Gulf in a new bid for peace.

Each Moslem nation said its tank-led troops attacked the other's positions in Iran's Khuzistan province and both claimed combat gains in the western Iranian highlands 300 miles north of the embattled oil heartland.

War communiques from Tehran claimed Iranian forces wrested more of the strategic western heights from Iraqi invaders in the regions of Gilan Gharb and Ilam. The highland areas, about 75 miles apart, control to highways leading to the Iraqi capital of Baghdad.

But Baghdad Radio asserted again that the Iraqis have beaten back all enemy assaults on the slopes of the Zagros mountains, stalling a nine-day-old Iranian counter-offensive.

Foreign newsmen have been barred from both sides of the front lines, making independent verification of any war claim impossible.

Iraq communiques said 338 Iranians and 44 Iraqi died in the highland battle zones Tuesday.

Iran's official Pars news agency claimed Iranian paratroopers backed by rocket-firing helicopter gunships dealt "crushing blows" to enemy forces in the Gilan Gharb and Ilam heights, killing 150 Iraqi and capturing 34. The agency said 60 Iraqi tanks were destroyed.

Pars claimed one Iraqi MiG-21 jet-fighter and three helicopter gunships were downed.

It also reported that Revolutionary Guards repelled an attack by 35 autonomous Kurdish rebels against the Iranian radio and television station in the city of Mahabad in northwestern Iran Monday evening. Pars said six rebels were killed.

Iranian Kurds, who have waged a sporadic rebellion against Tehran for decades, have taken advantage of the Iran-Iraq war to step up their offensive.

In a separate report over Tehran radio, Pars said 100 Revolutionary Guards killed in battle during the previous 24 hours would be buried at a funeral in Tehran Wednesday. The figure was the highest single-day death toll for the guardsmen yet reported.

Baghdad's communiques claimed Iraqi infantry and armor, backed by air assaults, knocked out 4 Iranian tanks near Gilan Gharb. Iraq also claimed its forces shot down an Iranian U.S.-made Phantom jet in the highlands.

Palme, a former Swedish prime minister, left Stockholm Tuesday for Baghdad, where he was to meet with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, Vice Premier Tarek Aziz and Foreign Minister Saadoun Hammad on possible means of ending the 16-week-old conflict.

Palme is due in Tehran Friday for similar talks with Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr and Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai. Both leaders have adamantly insisted on an unconditional Iraqi withdrawal from all occupied Iranian territory before a cease-fire could be considered.

Iraq has declared it is ready to withdraw its forces if Iran recognized Iraqi sovereignty over the Shatt al-Arab waterway that forms part of their border and a 14 square-mile chunk of territory north of the shatt. The 120-mile-long waterway is Iraq's only outlet to the Persian Gulf.

Palme will try to complete arrangements for the safe departure of about 70 foreign-flag commercial ships trapped in the shatt since the outbreak of the war. The Swedish mediator won tentative approval for the safe-passage during his first trip to the combatant nations last November.

The United Nations has since dispatched technical experts to determine when the sunken ships or mines need to be removed from the waterway.

Manslaughter Defendant Testifies

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Levelland man accused of involuntary manslaughter in connection with the death of Reese Airman Donald B. Livermore told a jury Tuesday that he first saw Livermore walking along the side of the road, but that Livermore was "just out in the middle of the highway" when the defendant accidentally struck him with his pickup truck.

Attorneys are scheduled to begin final arguments this morning in the case of Jerry Ray Fincannon, charged in Livermore's death. The 18-year-old airman was hit by a vehicle in the 3200 block of Fourth Street during the early morning of May 17.

If convicted, Fincannon could face a sentence of from two to 10 years imprisonment for the third-degree felony.

Prosecutors Travis Ware and John Tabor are attempting to prove that Fincannon was intoxicated at the time of the incident. A Department of Public Safety breathalyzer machine expert testified Tuesday morning that Fincannon's reading of .16 percent alcohol content in his bloodstream after the accident indicates that the defendant was very intoxicated.

But Fincannon testified that he had consumed only two drinks before driving home the night of the incident and was not intoxicated. "I didn't finish my second drink," the defendant told the jury.

Fincannon described to the court how he was driving back home to Levelland May 17 after a day at work and a few hours at a Lubbock nightclub. He was traveling west on Fourth Street, he testified, when he noticed a person walking along the side of the road — also traveling west.

"As I approached, he was just out in the middle of the highway," Fincannon said. "About the time I hit my breaks is when I hit him," the defendant said, his voice quavering.

Under questioning by defense attorney Clifford Brown, Fincannon testified he could not tell if Livermore had walked, staggered or fallen into the road in front of his truck.

He drove down the road a little way after hitting the man, Fincannon said, then stopped the truck. "It made me real sick," he testified, and then he turned the truck around and drove back to where a group of people already were forming around the body of the dead airman.

He stayed in his pickup and waited for the police to arrive, Fincannon testified, adding that he identified himself as the man who had hit the airman.

Lubbock Police Officer William Workman testified Monday that Fincannon exhibited slurred speech and an unsteady walk after the incident, leading him to believe the man to be intoxicated. Fincannon also had the strong smell of alcohol about him, he testified.

Workman told the court that Fincannon's hands shook as he lit a cigarette, further leading the officer to believe the man was intoxicated.

But Fincannon told the court that his hands shook because he was frightened. "It was a life that was lying there."

The defendant testified that Workman had him blow into the breathalyzer machine twice, saying on the second attempt that something was wrong because the machine didn't show him as drunk. He then refused to blow again, he testified.

But Ware called Workman back to the witness stand to rebut Fincannon's testimony. And the officer told the court that he did not remember any kind of malfunction with the machine that night.

Final arguments are scheduled for 9 a.m. today in Judge William Shaver's 140th District Court.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. I put some money into a mutual fund which invests in common stocks. By reinvesting my income dividends and capital gains distributions, I now own 606 and a fraction shares.

Because I retired recently, the agent who put me into this fund says I should transfer my investment into an income fund run by his company. There would be only a $5 charge for the transfer.

This seems to make sense. But the agent says I should draw only the income dividends from the income fund — leaving the capital gains distributions to buy more shares. He says this will eventually increase the size of my dividend checks.

What do you advise?

A. Go along with that agent's suggestion. It's good advice.

Most income mutual funds, which invest in fixed-income securities such as bonds and preferred stocks, pay higher dividends than mutual funds which invest in common stocks.

The common stock fund was fine for you, while you were working and building a nestegg for retirement. Now, it's natural for you to start taking the income from your investment.

The income dividends come from the interest and dividends a mutual fund collects from securities it holds. After deducting the expenses of operating the fund, that money is passed on to shareholders. That's income.

Capital gains distributions come from the net profits — if any — a mutual fund realizes by selling securities it has held at higher prices than it paid for those securities. Capital gains distributions can vary, greatly, from one year to the next.

If you take your capital gains distributions by check, you eat into your capital. By reinvesting your capital gains distributions, you buy more shares and keep your capital intact.

Assuming your mutual fund is well-managed, the reinvestment of capital gains should produce larger dividend checks and provide some protection against inflation.

Q. I sent, by certified mail, my certificate for 5,000 shares of a mutual fund to the fund's home office — with written instructions to redeem my shares and send me a check.

A few days later, I received a form which I had to fill out, sign and have my signature guaranteed by either a brokerage firm or a commercial bank. I did this and sent the form back.

I then received a statement and a check, showing that my shares were redeemed at $5.99 each — the price for the day the form reached the mutual fund office. My certified mail return receipt shows my certificate arrived at the fund office 12 days earlier — when the share price was $5.23.

The fund's delay in redeeming my shares cost me $700. I say I should have received the price on the day my certificate reached the fund. Don't you agree?

A. Sorry. But the answer has to be "no."

Because you did not send in your certificate, with your signature guaranteed, you did not make "good delivery." The mutual fund acted properly and according to the rules.

It's very unfortunate for you that the fund's price fell 14 cents a share during the 12-day period. This unhappy experience would teach you to double-check and make sure you follow all the groundrules in any future financial transaction.

Q. As a retired banker, I realize this country is so far down the inflationary road that turning back is going to be horribly difficult. But I am shocked by people who write books, claiming the stock market is going to crash and make other dire predictions.

One such book claims, "The U.S. gov-

Firm To Divest Plants In Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — Owens-Corning Fiberglass Corp., a major manufacturer of construction materials, has agreed to divest four asphalt roofing plants to settle an antitrust case, the Federal Trade Commission announced Tuesday.

Owens-Corning acquired the plants in 1977 from Lloyd A. Fry Roofing Co., which had been the country's largest privately held manufacturer of asphalt roofing products.

The FTC said the ownership change eliminated competition between Owens-Corning and Fry in the sale of those products, and eliminated Fry as a substantial independent competitor in the market.

Under the agreement, Owens-Corning must divest the plants — in Portland, Ore.; Wood Cross, Utah, and the California communities of Compton and San Leandro — within two years of when the agreement is finalized. The agreement must be opened to public comment until March 16 before it can be made final.

ernment will issue a new currency within 12 to 24 months. It will change 100 old dollars for one new hard dollar."

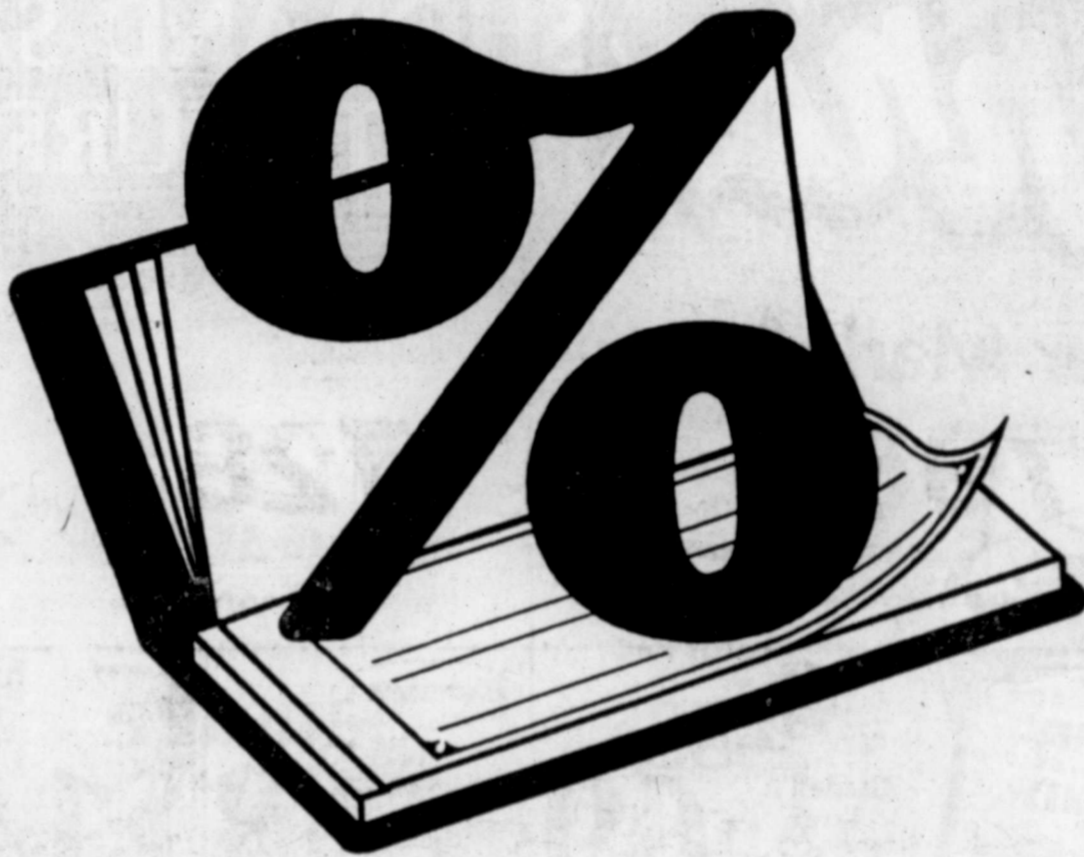

Can you write a few words about these "professional doom-sayers?"

A. The fewer, the better. As long as there are suckers to buy their books, they'll keep writing and promoting them.

I've been reading that ridiculous statement you quoted for at least 20 years.

South Plains Senators To Head Subcommittees

A-J News Services
AUSTIN — Two South Plains senators were named to several committees and received appointments as chairmen of Senate subcommittees during Tuesday's opening session of the 67th Legislature, as predicted in Tuesday morning's Avalanche-Journal.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby appointed State Sen. E.L. Short of Tahoka to the finance and education committees and renamed him chairman of the subcommittee on water, which is under the natural resources committee.

Hereford legislator Sen. Bill Sarpalus was named to the human resources, economic development and natural resources committees. As a member of the human resources committee, Sarpalus also will serve on the public health subcommittee.

The freshman senator from the 31st District also was appointed chairman of the Senate subcommittee on agriculture.

"The finance committee, which writes the state's two-year budget, is of the utmost importance to the people of our West Texas area," Short said.

He said his appointment to the finance committee will provide the 28th Senatorial District with a direct voice concerning funding for the Texas Tech School of Nursing. The nursing school, which is considered Tech's top legislative priority, already has received a funding recommendation from the Legislative Budget Board.

The shortage of nurses in the West Texas area is far greater than the statewide shortage, Short said. "I believe it is mandatory for our state government to be responsive to the needs of this area and to provide us the opportunity to train nurses in order to fulfill those needs," he said.

Short also said he is pleased about his appointment to the education committee and noted that his three daughters hold teaching certificates.

The senator said he has met with representatives of professional educators' organizations, administrators and school board members during the past several months to discuss issues that will come before the legislature this session.

Short was the first cosponsor of the teacher pay raise bill sponsored by Sen. W.E. "Pete" Snelson of Midland two years ago. Snelson was named Tuesday as chairman of the education committee.

Short said his reappointment to the water subcommittee chairmanship is important because all legislation affecting Texas's two major industries — agriculture and energy — will be referred to the natural resources committee.

"Our efforts to import water to meet our agricultural, municipal and industrial needs will continue to be vigorously pursued," he said.

Also during the opening day of the legislature, Hobby, who has predicted Gov. Bil Clements's wiretap proposal will not clear the Senate, stacked the odds against it by naming Sen. Oscar Mauzy, D-Dallas, chairman of the Jurisprudence Committee. Mauzy has been outspoken in his criticism of any state wiretap legislation.

He previously served as chairman of the Education Committee, the post now filled by Snelson. Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, an advocate of bilingual education, was named vice chairman of that committee.

Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, succeeded W.T. "Bill" Moore as chairman of State Affairs. Moore, former Senate dean, was defeated by Kent Caperton in the Democratic primary last year.

A Republican, O.H. "Ike" Harris of Dallas, was promoted to chairman of Economic Development, replacing Tom Creighton, who did not seek re-election.

Sen. Tati Santiesteban, D-El Paso, replaced A.R. "Babe" Schwartz, who had a reputation as a strong environmentalist, as chairman of Natural Resources. Schwartz was defeated in the 1980 general election.

Sen. Grant Jones, D-Abilene, and Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, retained their posts as chairmen of the Finance and Human Resources committees respectively.

Sen. Jon Traeger, D-Seguin, the new assistant presiding officer of the Senate, was named chairman of Intergovernmental Relations, succeeding Snelson.

Sen. Roy Blake, D-Nacogdoches, got his first committee chairmanship with his appointment to Administration, which handles Senate housekeeping duties.

Sen. Peyton McKnight, D-Tyler, was appointed chairman once again of the Subcommittee on Nominations, which considers hundreds of gubernatorial appointments.

Activist Gets Fine, Probation

DOHRN GETS $1500 FINE, PROBATION — Former radical leader Bernardine Dohrn speaks to reporters Tuesday in Chicago after receiving a $1500 fine and three years probation for her role in the 1969 protest in Chicago. On right is her companion William Ayers. (AP Laserphoto)

CHICAGO (UPI) — "Days of Rage" activist Bernardine Rae Dohrn pleaded guilty Tuesday to bail jumping and aggravated battery charges and was fined $1,500 and sentenced to three years probation.

Miss Dohrn, 38, who surfaced last November after nearly 11 years in hiding, appeared before Criminal Court Judge Fred G. Suria.

The plea followed a conference between Miss Dohrn's attorney, Michael Kennedy, Suria and Assistant State's Attorney Mary O'Connor.

Miss Dohrn, a member of the Weather Underground, was accused of attacking a policeman during antiwar protests — The so-called "Days of Rage" — in October 1969. She was charged with aggravated battery, mob action, soliciting mob action, resisting and obstructing police, and bail jumping.

In imposing sentence, Suria noted Miss Dohrn had not had any other "contact with the law" while living underground in New York.

For the past decade, Miss Dohrn was underground, living with fellow radical William Ayers, 36, and raising their two children in a working class section on the Upper West Side of Manhattan.

She opened negotiations with the Cook County State's Attorney's office hoping for a plea bargaining arrangement that would get her a suspended sentence or probation.

Friends and neighbors in New York expressed surprise when they learned the quiet couple were fugitives.

"They were really very ordinary people. There wasn't anything you would call unusual," said one neighbor.

In April 1970, Miss Dohrn, Ayers and 10 other members of the Weathermen were indicted by a federal grand jury on charges they conspired to incite the "Days of Rage" riots during the Chicago Seven conspiracy trial.

Miss Dohrn was sought by the FBI for unlawful flight to avoid prosecution, violation of federal antiriot laws and conspiracy to transport explosives in interstate commerce with intent to injure persons and destroy buildings.

Federal charges against her and Ayers were dropped in 1974 after the U.S. Supreme Court ruled electronic eavesdropping techniques used by the government to build a case against Miss Dohrn and 11 other Weathermen were unconstitutional. She was taken off the FBI's Most Wanted list at that time.

Her affiliation with the SDS began at the University of Chicago. While making a campaign speech in 1968 at an SDS convention at the University of Michigan, Miss Dohrn proclaimed herself a communist revolutionary and began emerging as a powerful force of the SDS faction that evolved into the Weathermen.

Reagan's Prospective Cabinet To Include Two Schwenkfelders

WORCESTER, Pa. (AP) — When Ronald Reagan takes the presidential oath of office next Tuesday, his prospective Cabinet will include two Schwenkfelders.

Richard Schultz Schweiker, Reagan's choice for secretary of health and human services, and Andrew Lindsay "Drew" Lewis Jr., the designated secretary of transportation, are social friends, long-time political cronies, neighbors and former Sunday school teachers for the Schwenkfelders, one of the world's smallest organized churches.

If they are confirmed after being formally nominated with Reagan's inauguration, they will be making decisions that affect every American — the poor, the sick, the retired, the car owner, the truck driver, the bus and train rider.

No members of any religious denomination ever had such influence in proportion to their numbers.

Who are the Schwenkfelders? There are fewer than 2,700 Schwenkfelders in just five congregations located in and near Philadelphia and Valley Forge. All members are descendants or followers of Caspar Schwenkfeld von Ossig, a 16th century Silesian nobleman and Protestant Reformation contemporary of Martin Luther and John Calvin.

"That's all there is in the world," said Dr. Jack Rothenberger, pastor of the Central Schwenkfelder Church here. Schweiker, a former Republican senator for Pennsylvania, and Lewis, once a candidate for governor, are among its 1,350 members, the largest of the five congregations.

Rothenberger, in his January church letter, asked members to "pray for Dick and Drew as they give witness to their Christian faith and ideals in their important new responsibilities."

"What makes this so special to us is that two of our members will serve as advisers to our president on his cabinet. In a way they follow in the steps of Caspar Schwenkfeld von Ossig, who was an adviser to his duke in the courts of Silesia in the 16th century."

Rothenberger, quoting church documents, said: "Schwenkfeld sought no following, formulated no creed and did not attempt to organize a church based on his beliefs. He labored for a reformation of life, for liberty of religious belief, for a fellowship of all believers, for one united Christian church, the ecumenical church."

"What Schwenkfeld disliked about the Protestant Reformation was that there was too much attention put on the institution, instead of on the individual."

Schwenkfeld's followers were persecuted for centuries by Europe's orthodox churches. In 1734, 184 exiles from the Prussian state of Silesia — now part of Poland — immigrated to Pennsylvania.

Schweiker traces his ancestry on his mother's side to the Rev. Christopher Schultz, who was on that first voyage across the Atlantic and who kept the Schwenkfelder faith alive in America through worship in homes.

"They just wanted to be left alone," Rothenberger said. "They didn't want to force their ideas on other people or convert other people."

Most of the early settlers were farmers. All dressed plainly and often were called German Quakers because they adopted the Meeting House style of prayer and originally took the name Society of Schwenkfelders after the Society of Friends. They built no churches until 1909, when they were formally chartered in Pennsylvania with fewer than 600 members.

"The primary interest was education, and they built schools before they built churches," Rothenberger said. "Their schools were open to the public, and they taught reading, writing and arithmetic, not religion."

"They weren't interested in making more Schwenkfelders but in helping people. Their schools were the forerunners of the public school system."

Rothenberger was headmaster of the Perkiomen School in nearby Pennsburg before he became pastor of the Central church, which has owned the private college preparatory school since 1891. Few of the students are Schwenkfelders.

"Half of our members today come from other denominations. We are a community church. It is not a weird sect. It is in the mainstream of the Protestant church. Our service is non-liturgical, like New England Congregational churches and some Baptist."

Except for a few Asians who live in the neighborhood, all members of the Central Schwenkfelder Church are middle-class whites. Other churches are nearby in Palm, Lansdale and Norristown. The fifth, in Philadelphia, is all black.

"We are very ecumenical," Rothenberger said.

The church has a Board of Charities, a direct link to the immigrants who landed at Philadelphia on Sept. 24, 1734. Those settlers had spent a brief time in Holland where Mennonites paid their passage to Pennsylvania and gave them money to aid the poor in the colony.

"This was the beginning of the charity fund," the church history says. "Thus the Schwenkfelders were freed from the slavery of the 'redeemtor'."

The denomination gains about 50 members annually.

"The fact that Schweiker and Lewis are members of our church hasn't had any effect on membership," Rothenberger said. "But we do get a lot of visitors for Sunday worship and maybe that's because of our two political people."

CABINET MEMBERS' CHURCH — Dr. Jack Rothenberger is pastor of the Central Schwenkfelder Church in Worcester, Pa. Two of Rothenberger's parishioners have been nominated by President-elect Reagan to his cabinet. Drew Lewis was nominated for secretary of Transportation and Richard Schweiker was named secretary of Health and Human Services. (AP Laserphoto)

Florida Troopers' Stay In County

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The state Cabinet on Tuesday extended for two months the deployment of 100 Florida Highway Patrol troopers in Dade County to help local police fight a growing crime wave.

In a unanimous vote, the Cabinet and Gov. Bob Graham extended the troopers' temporary 30-day assignment to 90 days. The officers are primarily assigned to traffic duties so local authorities can concentrate on violent crime.

Miami and Dade County officials appeared before the Cabinet and thanked the state officials for dispatching the officers.

"They are very visible and they've certainly had an impact," Dade County Commissioner Barbara Carey told the Cabinet. "I've even slowed down a few times when I've seen them."

Patrol commander Col. Eldridge Beach told the officials morale among the special Dade County unit is "outstanding, and the response from the Miami area has been positive."

Haig Angrily Denies Any Wrongdoing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State-designate Alexander Haig angrily denied any wrongdoing while Richard Nixon's chief of staff and emotionally refused to offer "the kind of mea culpas I sense you want" in confirmation hearings Tuesday.

But despite the controversy over Haig's role in the final months of the Nixon presidency, Senate Foreign Relations Committee chairman Charles Percy, R-Ill., said there are enough votes to assure confirmation.

In his fourth day on the stand, Haig called Watergate "one of the greatest tragedies ever to befall this country," and said, "It would be just as great a tragedy to have it reborn here," referring to the hearings.

"It was a period worse in many aspects than the McCarthy era," he said in answer to a series of questions by Sen. Paul Sarbanes, D-Md.

But he said Watergate resulted from "honest differences of opinion between honest men."

"That's what government is about. Nobody has a monopoly on virtue — not even you, senator," he told Sarbanes.

"Mistakes were made ... (and) there were tremendous abuses on both sides," he said, but angrily declared, "I didn't make them. I wasn't there when they were made. I inherited them.

"I never willingly, consciously or unconsciously, participated in anything that I considered wrong, immoral or illegal," he told the panel. "I never went along with, supported or recommended anything that I thought was illegal."

It was the first time since his opening statement Friday that Haig made such extensive remarks about his role on Nixon's staff during Watergate. The committee in the meantime has sought information about White House tapes from the National Archives to help it investigate that aspect of Haig's background.

But those tapes, even though subpoenaed by the committee, can only be released by the archives with Nixon's consent — so far not forthcoming. The committee now is awaiting an index of the tapes involving Haig.

Sen. Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., said he had hoped to leave the hearings with some kind of assurance from Haig that things like covert actions, wiretaps and Chile-type operations are a thing of the past. He was, Tsongas indicated, asking Haig to say in some way that he is sorry about what happened.

"I will not indulge in mea culpas and I don't think it would be in the best interest of the country to do that," Haig retorted emotionally. "I just can't give you the kind of mea culpas I sense you want."

He said he regrets that, "I have not been able to assure you (the committee) that I will act responsibly" as secretary of state.

Tsongas said he expects Haig to be "the strongest person in the Reagan administration," and for that reason he is concerned that Haig "would not abuse those powers."

Haig also said:

"The secret bombing of Cambodia and the way it was done" was very much in line with past practices of American history. No one is perfect. No administration is impeccable in this area ..."

"On the wiretapping of National Security Council staff members and reporters: 'I think in today's environment ... it no longer would make good sense unless you had some very, very good evidence that a staff member has put the nation's security at risk' and then only through the courts."

First 1981 Nuclear Test Set Thursday

LAS VEGAS (AP) — The first announced underground nuclear test of the year is to be conducted Thursday at the Nevada Test Site, the Department of Energy announced Tuesday.

The weapons-related test will have a yield of between 20,000 and 150,000 tons of high explosive and shock waves may be felt outside the test site, the department said.

The test, code-named "Baseball," will be fired at noon CST 1,850 feet beneath Yucca Flat, some 90 miles northwest of here.

Shanghai was the Paris of Asia to the 60,000 foreigners who lived in the huge port city before the Japanese occupation of World War II.

Polish Union Plans 'Warning Strike'

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Independent labor leaders in Rzeszow, beside the Soviet border, vowed Tuesday to hold a two-hour warning strike if the government doesn't open negotiations on their demands within 24 hours.

A spokesman for Poland's biggest independent trade union, Solidarity, said selected factories would be shut down from noon to 2 p.m. today unless negotiators arrived to talk to some 300 protesters.

He said the protesters have been occupying a former government trade union building for two weeks to support a list of 69 demands including government recognition of an independent farmers' union.

In Przemysl, also on the Soviet border, workers at some 120 firms staged a one-hour warning strike Tuesday in support of the protesters.

Solidarity leaders met at the union's national headquarters in Gdansk Tuesday night but issued no statement on the Rzeszow action.

Lech Walesa, the head of the union, said before leaving for Rome that a two-hour strike seemed reasonable, "but I hope they make sure their watches don't jam."

Communist Party leader Stanislaw Kania and Premier Jozef Pankowski met with Marshal Viktor Kulikov, the Soviet supreme commander of the Warsaw Pact forces, the official news agency PAP reported. Poland's defense minister, Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, and senior officers joined in the meeting, it said, but gave no details.

The official Soviet news agency Tass also reported the meeting without comment.

There were reports last month of increased military activity along Poland's borders by its Warsaw Pact allies, sparking fears in the West that the Soviets might intervene to halt the labor unrest.

A union spokesman in Rzeszow said the local would ask for a general strike in the area if police tried to break up the sit-in.

"The whole responsibility lies with the government which so far has never responded if not forced by a strike," he said.

In the past two days, police broke up similar sit-ins in the nearby towns of Ustrzyki Dolne and Nowy Sacz, where farmers and workers were demanding government registration for their independent union. In all incidents the protesters left the government buildings quietly.

The evictions indicated the government's patience with labor protests was wearing thin. They were the first use of force against workers since the regime signed labor agreements last summer ending months of widespread strikes that crippled the economy.

The agreements created the first independent trade unions in communist Poland and the Soviet bloc, but did not end labor unrest.

Saturday Dispute

Part of the settlement, the unions contend, was an agreement to give all workers every Saturday off. The government, arguing that such an arrangement would further damage Poland's troubled economy, wants to give workers half of all Saturdays off.

Last Saturday, 2.9 million workers failed to show up for work as scheduled, according to PAP. Another 7.4 million workers reported for work and about 1.6 million took the day off with the understanding they would work on Saturday, Jan. 31, the news agency reported.

PAP quoted officials of the Communist Party Politburo as thanking all those who did report to work.

Hearings Held

Poland's Supreme Court held hearings Dec. 30 on the farmers' appeal to establish an independent union. It adjourned without a ruling, saying it needed time to study documents.

Since then, Kania and others have made public statements against establishment of a farmers' union, claiming existing "agricultural circles" could be revitalized to represent the farmers' interests.

Poland is the only country in the Soviet bloc that does not depend on socialized farming for most of its agricultural production. Private farmers produce about 75 percent of Poland's food.

Polish television carried a brief report on Walesa's arrival in Rome, the 37-year-old labor leader's first visit to the West.

Departure Reported

Warsaw newspapers reported his departure on the front page of their editions, and the government-controlled radio noted that the visit was "non-political."

Walesa was met at the airport in Rome by a senior Vatican official, Archbishop Giovanni Coppola, emphasizing the links between the labor movement and Polish-born Pope John Paul II. Walesa has said he would meet with the pope Thursday "as a son visits his father."

The labor leader also was met by about 10 Polish residents of Rome and his stepfather, Stanislaw Walesa, who left Poland seven years ago and lives in Jersey City, N.J.

Need 'Moderation'

Lech Walesa told the crowd, "The meaning of what has been happening in Poland is that Poland should be Poland. We are in the process of carrying out important things in Poland, although it's a temporal chore. And to do it well, we need reflection and moderation."

The pope gave a speech on the eve of Walesa's arrival praising the resilience of the Polish people.

"I am the son of a nation which has lived through the greatest experiences of history, whose neighbors have on numerous occasions condemned (it) to death, but which has survived and has remained itself," John Paul told diplomats accredited to the Holy See.

"It has preserved its identity, and despite partition and foreign occupations, has preserved its national sovereignty, not relying on its physical force, but relying entirely upon its culture," the pontiff said.

Statue Of Liberty Polishing Sought

PARK CITY, Utah (AP) — The green-tinged Statue of Liberty may look just like new at the age of 100 because a former stock broker took the problem to the incoming president of the United States.

Now, President-elect Ronald Reagan and other politicians share Bob Grace's dream and "I feel I'm 75 percent of the way" toward restoring the statue's copper-penny shine, Grace says.

Grace has spent the past 2 1/2 years trying to convince anyone — and everyone — to underwrite the multi-million dollar task of scrubbing the statue in New York Harbor with a hydrochloric acid wash to remove the green oxidation that lies film-like above the copper.

"It won't hurt the statue at all," he said. "It won't take any of the copper off. It's just like giving her a bath."

Reagan has expressed interest in the concept, Grace says, and the idea also won support from Grace's old boss at Merrill Lynch, incoming treasury secretary Donald Regan.

An aide to Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, said Hatch has promised to seek a federal grant for the project, and Illinois Gov. Jim Thompson offered a letter of support, Grace said in an interview.

"I'm really, really excited," he said. "It looks like finally on July 4, 1984 — the 100th birthday of the statue," it may gleam again.

With a preservative applied after the bath, the statue might go six months before turning brown and then green again, Grace said. He proposes that the federal government and private economy each contribute $2 million for the project.

David Moffitt, superintendent of the Statue of Liberty for the National Park Service, isn't so sure the statue shouldn't stay green.

"We're really impressed that this guy is concerned," Moffitt said. But he said the staff, after studies last year, had concluded cleaning the statue "would be wasted money because you couldn't keep it from recurring very rapidly."

"Originally the statue was meant to be gold, but it was never meant to be a statue that would be polished every year or cleaned in that respect," he said. It was never gilded because money was available, he added.

"I'm sure there would be a lot of people who would be upset if the Statue of Liberty were shining like a copper coin in the harbor," he said.

Grace said Anaconda Co., testing corrosion on copper, pulled a piece off the statue in 1963 and verified it could "be cleaned like a penny."

But it's been a tough fight convincing people it could be done.

"I've been thrown out of some of the finest board rooms in the country," the 35-year-old former broker said.

Television's "Real People" didn't believe him, and "when 'Real People' doesn't believe you, then you know you have a problem," he said.

Grace said he visited the Statue of Liberty four years ago on a business trip to New York where the statue stands on a small island in the harbor.

A guard told him it was made of copper and Grace asked, "Why don't they clean it up?" He got no answer, so he went to the library.

When Grace wrote Reagan, the candidate responded: "Your idea is a fascinating one. At the moment, because of my campaign travels, I am not in a position to pursue it with you. But I would like to explore it further if I am successful in the election, Nov. 4."

Grace received a Dec. 12 letter from Reagan secretary Elaine Crispin and administrative assistant Doty Livingston promising a meeting with the new president. But they couldn't say when.

"There isn't any obstacle that can't be overcome," Grace said.

American proposals to release about $12 billion in frozen Iranian assets by stages. According to Washington sources, the first installment would be paid to Iran when the hostages were released and the final amounts freed after American legal claims against the fund were settled or arbitrated.

Iran originally demanded $24 billion from the United States to cover the frozen assets and cash guarantees against recovery of the wealth of the late shah.

Earlier Tuesday, Azizi told Tehran Radio that although no final agreement had been reached, the "discussions are being conducted in a positive framework."

Action Postponed

Action by the Iranian Parliament on the two emergency bills was postponed because the 12-member Council of Guardians could not be convened in time to attend the session, a parliamentary spokesman said. The council is a body of hard-line Islamic clerics which must approve all legislation to insure it accords with Islamic tenets.

The parliamentary spokesman said in a telephone interview with The Associated Press in Beirut that there was no indication of opposition to the two measures.

One bill would approve appointment of a third-party arbitrator of the financial and legal claims between Iran and the United States. The second would formally nationalize the wealth of the shah and his relatives, providing a legal basis for transferring the royal family's assets to Iran.

Growing Understanding

Officials in Washington said the questions being asked by the Algerians on behalf of the Iranians indicate Iran's growing understanding of the terms offered by the United States and approval of some of the U.S. replies to those questions. But the officials cautioned there is no basis for predicting a breakthrough in the long crisis before the Carter administration leaves office next Tuesday.

Iran has not yet responded to the U.S. proposal taken to Tehran on Jan. 2 by Algerian diplomats. That proposal calls for release to Iran of billions of dollars of Iranian assets under U.S. control in return for the hostages' freedom. They have been held captive for more than 14 months. The Americans were seized on Nov. 4, 1979, by a mob that overran the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

Informal Deadline

The administration has set Friday as an informal deadline for the Algerians to agree to a plan for release of the Americans because the Iranian assets would have to be transferred from banks in the United States and overseas to a special fund controlled by Algeria.

"The calendar is there for everyone to see and I want to let it go at that," Trantner said.

Where all 52 hostages are being held is not clear to the State Department. In the past, U.S. officials have said they believe some are in prison.

But Trantner said, "We have no evidence one way or the other" about the whereabouts of the Americans.

Chicago Schools Hire Superintendent

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Ruth Love, credited with largely improving public schools for Oakland's minority students, was given the nod Tuesday to do the same for the Chicago schools.

Dr. Love, who superintends 48,000 pupils in Oakland, said she learned she was elected general superintendent and will assume the position March 25.

"I will be signing a contract as soon as I am able to travel to Chicago," she said, noting the terms would be spelled out in a letter of agreement.

Chicago's 11-member school board, of which eight are minorities, voted 8-2 to hire Dr. Love, a 48-year-old black with the reputation of being a tough administrator. One black member of the board abstained.

Chicago has been without a permanent schools chief since late in 1979, when Joseph P. Hannan resigned in the middle of a fiscal crisis.

church deacon, Clayton came to the Legislature in 1962 with a strong interest in water resources vital to his region. It didn't take long for him to shed his bow tie and slicked down hair-do for tailored suits and styled haircuts, and in 1975 he outmaneuvered two strong opponents and won the speaker's race.

He had said two years ago the 1981 session would be his last in the House, that he would either run for statewide office or "go back to the farm."

But shortly before the opening gavel fell Tuesday, Clayton dropped hints he may consider seeking a fifth term as speaker.

Clayton, 52, earned a degree in agricultural economics from Texas A&M University, and said he never intended to become a farmer.

Had Heart Attack

"I planned on being a college professor, but my father had a heart attack a week before my graduation," he said. He took over the farming operations near Springlake, and suffered a heart attack of his own in 1968 at the age of 39.

"I'm supposed to be dead. It was one of those kind," he said.

His "good ol' boy" image and straight dealing with House members have earned him the support of a number of House liberals and minorities, even though they differ philosophically with Clayton on many issues.

His friends around Springlake, with a population of just over 200, believed Clayton when he proclaimed his innocence in the Brillab case.

'Good As Gold'

"His word is good as gold," one neighbor said. "If Billy Clayton says tomorrow is Easter, then you better start looking for the Easter bunny."

One hundred forty-six representatives were present when the roll was called twice — once by district number and once by name. There's one vacancy from Houston, where Republican Chase Untermeyer quit to become an aide to Vice President-elect George Bush. Three members were absent.

Twenty-nine Senators answered the roll call on the other side of the rotunda. Sen. Betty Andujar, R-Fort Worth, is home recovering from a heart attack an expected here within a few weeks. Raul Longoria of Edinburg quit his Senate seat to become a state district judge.

Red Rose Welcome

House members, packed into a chamber crowded to record levels by friends and family, sat down to a red rose welcome from the Austin City Council and a subtle lobbying hint from the Parent's Association for the Retarded of Texas. PART had a yellow rose placed on each desk, next to the red rose sent by the city council.

The House included two members who hope to move across to the Senate before the session ends. Reps. Tony Garcia,

Damage Rises From Freeze In Florida

working off very skimpy data," Hales said. "But there's a good chance it could last quite some time, at least for another week and probably longer."

Since Christmas, the arctic air has set daily records in cities throughout the eastern United States. Some cities posting subzero records Tuesday included Atlantic City, N.J., minus 6; Concord, N.H., minus 21; Hartford, Conn., minus 9; Scranton, Pa., minus 13; Wilmington, Del., minus 2.

Harbors in New England were clogged with ice. The Cape Cod Canal was closed to commercial fishermen, small vessels and most barges, including those with heating oil and gasoline for Boston and northern New England.

The ice also has frustrated fishermen trying to pull up their lobster pots, with lobster prices approaching $7 a pound. Nantucket scallopers, who need at least 28-degree weather to fish, estimate they have lost $200,000 and that figure is expected to reach $400,000 to $500,000.

Despite the efforts of nine Coast Guard ice cutters on Chesapeake Bay, "it freezes right back 30 minutes after we've been through it," said Lt. Rodney Bowles, assistant coordinator for the 5th Coast Guard District's ice-breaking operations.

"I've got two dozen boats frozen in," said Harbormaster John Simons in Scituate, Mass. "Everything's at a standstill. The men are getting chain saws and just cutting around their boats to keep the ice from crushing the hulls."

As Florida growers braced for more frigid temperatures to come, Gov. Bob Graham, declaring an emergency, lifted weight limits on trucks hurrying frozen citrus to processors.

Further south in the "winter vegetable basket" of Dade County, the nation's largest producer of vegetables this time of year, officials said it also appeared damage to crops could be severe.

Officials at Florida Citrus Mutual, a cooperative based in Lakeland representing 15,000 growers, put their loss at the equivalent of 49 million gallons of concentrated orange juice, or about 36 million 90-pound boxes.

Orange juice prices jumped as reports of the damage reached commodity markets. On the New York Cotton Exchange, the price of frozen concentrate futures rose by 5 cents a pound, a much as it is allowed to increase in a day's trading. The latest increase brought the price to 88 cents a pound.

Damage to grapefruit was less serious.

Records fell with the thermometer throughout Florida early Tuesday, with a reading of 8 degrees in Tallahassee that broke a 1971 record of 11, and a morning low of 13 in Jacksonville, 2 degrees below the previous January record set 95 years ago.

In Tampa, a 22-degree reading broke the record set in 1905. Miami had 32, the coldest for the date since 1962, and tourists seeking respite from cold weather back home shivered on Miami Beach, where a record low of 36 broke the 43-degree mark set in 1962.

A St. Petersburg man apparently rolled over a charcoal grill he was using to heat his apartment and died in the resulting fire.

Flu Virus Nearing End Here

Flu symptoms are similar to other respiratory infections common this time of year, including strep, the common cold and various types of pneumonia.

Dr. Orr listed several symptoms which should be checked by a physician regardless of the type of illness causing them.

She said a high fever for more than two days needs medical attention, especially in adults suffering temperatures of 103 to 104 degrees. Children's temperatures are more variable, she said.

Other symptoms include a bad cough and troubled breathing or severe vomiting or headache.

The health director estimated that the virus' worst spell takes three to four days to run its course, even though the victim of the disease may not feel completely well for several more days.

She attributes the outbreak to possible lowered immunity among the current city population and to the great amount of travel during the holiday season.

Herbert G. Brink

PLAINVIEW (Special) — Services for Herbert G. Brink, 87, of Plainview will be at 4 p.m. Thursday in Wood-Dunning Colonial Chapel here with Dr. Charles Teykl, pastor of Plainview First Presbyterian Church, officiating.

Burial will be in Plainview Cemetery under direction of Wood-Dunning Funeral Home.

Brink died at 2 p.m. Monday at his home after a lengthy illness. He was under a doctor's care.

The St. Louis, Mo., native came to Plainview in 1943 from Athens. He was an architect, and an ordained Baptist minister.

He was contractor and builder of many of the Archie Underwood cotton compresses and warehouses in West Texas. He worked as an architect for L.D. Harrison building contractors until his retirement.

He married Emma Mae Coker March 27, 1927, in McAllen. She died Aug. 17, 1980.

Survivors include two sons, Herbert E. and Charlie E., both of Lubbock; three daughters, Mrs. W.J. (Jane) Hyatt and Nancy Clark, both of Lubbock, and Mrs. Deris (Viola) Steelman of Plainview; two sisters, Viola Phillips of Plainview and Mrs. Olin Williams of Stillwater, Okla.; 15 grandchildren; and five great-grandchildren.

Bishop Givens

PLAINVIEW (Special) — Testimonial services for Bishop E.N. Givens, 68, pastor of the Immanuel Church of God in Christ here, will be from 6 p.m. until 8 p.m. Thursday at the Immanuel Church of God in Christ.

Funeral services will be 2 p.m. Friday at the First Baptist Church here with Bishop J.E. Alexander, bishop for the Texas Northwest District of the Church of God in Christ, officiating.

Burial will be in Plainview Memorial Park under direction of Wood-Dunning Funeral Home.

He died at 4:45 a.m. Monday at his home after a sudden illness. He was under a doctor's care.

The Travis County native established the Immanuel Church of God in Christ church here in 1940 and served as pastor since that time. He was licensed as a minister in 1938 and ordained in 1946.

He took correspondence courses from the Christian Foundation and the Charles Mason Seminary in Lexington, Miss. He helped organize and was associate minister of the Alexander Temple Church of God in Christ in Midland and also served as pastor of the Church of God in Christ in Lamesa, which he also established.

Givens was founder of the Plainview Community-Nursery and served on the zoning board for the city of Plainview and the Plainview Ministerial Alliance.

He was assistant bishop of the Northwest District Church of God in Christ and district superintendent of the Plainview district. He helped establish mission churches in the area.

The street where he and his wife, Essie, lived was named after the couple, as well as a nearby park.

They were married Dec. 10, 1933, in Colorado City.

Survivors include his wife; four sons, Edgar of Santa Clara, Calif.; Charles of Houston, Shelby of Las Vegas, Nev.; and Don of San Jose, Calif.; two daughters, Cathryn Tolson of Foster City, Calif.; and

Collision Kills Man Near Friona

FRIONA (Special) — A former Texas Tech University professor was fatally injured Tuesday morning in a collision about five miles north of here on FM 3140.

Wilbur L. Edelman, 74, of Friona was pronounced dead at the scene of the 10:40 a.m. accident by Justice of the Peace Frances Euler. She ruled the death accidental.

A spokesman for the Department of Public Safety said Edelman was driving his 1971 Ford pickup truck east on a dirt road near here. He was crossing FM 3140 when the collision with a 1975 Peterbilt tractor trailer occurred, according to the DPS.

Vernon Redwine of Brownfield, driver of the truck, was not injured, the DPS said.

Services for Edelman, who taught parliamentary law at Tech in 1929, are pending with Parsons-Ellis Funeral Home here.

The Lometa native and retired farmer moved to Friona in 1937 from Springlake. He was a 1929 Tech graduate and taught in public schools 15 years. He was superintendent of schools at Springlake and Friona, where he was a charter member and president of Friona Lions Club.

He was director of Girlstown U.S.A. for 10 years; Friona Man of the Year in 1967. Soil Conservation Service Chairman of the Board four years and former Texas Corn Growers Association director. He also served 12 years each as High Plains Research Foundation trustee and Plains Cotton Growers county director.

He served from 1967 to 1970 as mayor of Friona. He married the former Ruth Officer June 1, 1929, at Lubbock.

Survivors include his wife; a son, Von of Friona; a daughter, Jan of McLean, Va.; a sister, Mildred Williams of Mesa, Ariz.; two brothers, Grady of Muleshoe and Claude of Dumas; and four grandchildren.

The family suggests memorials be made to Girlstown U.S.A.

Motorcycle Wreck Kills Youth

IDALOU (Special) — Alan N. Emery Jr., 18, of Idalou died Tuesday from injuries suffered Sunday afternoon in a motorcycle accident at a caliche pit west of here.

The teen-ager died at 12:45 p.m. at Lubbock's Methodist Hospital, where he had been undergoing treatment for multiple injuries received in the accident. Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy is withholding a ruling in the death.

Idalou Police Chief T.L. Waggoner said Emery had been riding his motorcycle with friends Sunday afternoon in a caliche pit and plays lake area a half-mile west of here. Witnesses said he was riding out of the pit when the motorcycle came down hard on the front tire.

Emery was injured when he was thrown over the handlebars, Waggoner said.

He is the first person to die from injuries suffered in a Lubbock County motor vehicle accident this year.

Services for Emery will be at 2 p.m. today in the Idalou Church of Christ with the Rev. Larry Heard, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Idalou, and Charles Billingsley, minister of Idalou Church of Christ, officiating.

Burial will be in Idalou Cemetery under direction of Franklin-Bartley Funeral Home of Lubbock.

He was born in San Angelo and was a 1980 graduate of Idalou High School. Emery was a member of the Idalou Church of Christ.

Polish Union Plans 'Warning Strike'

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Independent labor leaders in Rzeszow, beside the Soviet border, vowed Tuesday to hold a two-hour warning strike if the government doesn't open negotiations on their demands within 24 hours.

A spokesman for Poland's biggest independent trade union, Solidarity, said selected factories would be shut down from noon to 2 p.m. today unless negotiators arrived to talk to some 300 protesters.

He said the protesters have been occupying a former government trade union building for two weeks to support a list of 69 demands including government recognition of an independent farmers' union.

In Przemysl, also on the Soviet border, workers at some 120 firms staged a one-hour warning strike Tuesday in support of the protesters.

Solidarity leaders met at the union's national headquarters in Gdansk Tuesday night but issued no statement on the Rzeszow action.

Lech Walesa, the head of the union, said before leaving for Rome that a two-hour strike seemed reasonable. "But I hope they make sure their watches don't jam."

Communist Party leader Stanislaw Kania and Premier Jozef Pinski met with Marshal Viktor Kulikov, the Soviet supreme commander of the Warsaw Pact forces, the official news agency PAP reported. Poland's defense minister, Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, and senior officers joined in the meeting, it said, but gave no details.

The official Soviet news agency Tass also reported the meeting without comment.

There were reports last month of increased military activity along Poland's borders by its Warsaw Pact allies, sparking fears in the West that the Soviets might intervene to halt the labor unrest.

A union spokesman in Rzeszow said the local would ask for a general strike in the area if police tried to break up the sit-in.

"The whole responsibility lies with the government which so far has never responded if not forced by a strike," he said.

In the past two days, police broke up similar sit-ins in the nearby towns of Ustrzyki Dolne and Nowy Sacz, where farmers and workers were demanding government registration for their independent union. In all incidents the protesters left the government buildings quietly.

The evictions indicated the government's patience with labor protests was wearing thin. They were the first use of force against workers since the regime signed labor agreements last summer ending months of widespread strikes that crippled the economy.

The agreements created the first independent trade unions in communist Poland and the Soviet bloc, but did not end labor unrest.

Saturday Dispute

Part of the settlement, the unions contended, was an agreement to give all workers every Saturday off. The government, arguing that such an arrangement would further damage Poland's troubled economy, wants to give workers half of all Saturdays off.

Last Saturday, 2.9 million workers failed to show up for work as scheduled, according to PAP. Another 7.4 million workers reported for work and about 1.6 million took the day off with the understanding they would work on Saturday, Jan. 31, the news agency reported.

PAP quoted officials of the Communist Party Politburo as thanking all those who did report to work.

Hearings Held

Poland's Supreme Court held hearings Dec. 30 on the farmers' appeal to establish an independent union. It adjourned without a ruling, saying it needed time to study documents.

Since then, Kania and others have made public statements against establishment of a farmers' union, claiming existing "agricultural circles" could be revitalized to represent the farmers' interests.

Poland is the only country in the Soviet bloc that does not depend on socialized farming for most of its agricultural production. Private farmers produce about 75 percent of Poland's food.

Polish television carried a brief report on Walesa's arrival in Rome, the 37-year-old labor leader's first visit to the West.

Departure Reported

Warsaw newspapers reported his departure on the front page of their editions, and the government-controlled radio noted that the visit was "non-political."

Walesa was met at the airport in Rome by a senior Vatican official, Archbishop Giovanni Coppola, emphasizing the links between the labor movement and Polish-born Pope John Paul II. Walesa said he would meet with the pope Thursday "as a son visits his father."

The labor leader also was met by about 10 Polish residents of Rome and his stepfather, Stanislaw Walesa, who left Poland seven years ago and lives in Jersey City, N.J.

Need 'Moderation'

Lech Walesa told the crowd, "The meaning of what has been happening in Poland is that Poland should be Poland. We are in the process of carrying out important things in Poland, although it's a temporal chore. And to do it well, we need reflection and moderation."

The pope gave a speech on the eve of Walesa's arrival praising the resilience of the Polish people.

"I am the son of a nation which has lived through the greatest experiences of history, whose neighbors have on numerous occasions condemned (it) to death, but which has survived and has remained itself," John Paul told diplomats accredited to the Holy See.

"It has preserved its identity, and despite partition and foreign occupations, has preserved its national sovereignty, not relying on its physical force, but relying entirely upon its culture," the pontiff said.

Statue Of Liberty Polishing Sought

PARK CITY, Utah (AP) — The green-tinted Statue of Liberty may look just like new at the age of 100 because a former stock broker took the problem to the incoming president of the United States.

Now, President-elect Ronald Reagan and other politicians share Bob Grace's dream and "I feel I'm 75 percent of the way" toward restoring the statue's copper-penny shine, Grace says.

Grace has spent the past 2 1/2 years trying to convince anyone — and everyone — to underwrite the multi-million dollar task of scrubbing the statue in New York Harbor with a hydrochloric acid wash to remove the green oxidation that lies film-like above the copper.

"It won't hurt the statue at all," he said. "It won't take any of the copper off. It's just like giving her a bath."

Reagan has expressed interest in the concept, Grace says, and the idea also won support from Grace's old boss at Merrill Lynch, incoming treasury secretary Donal Regan.

An aide to Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, said Hatch has promised to seek a federal grant for the project, and Illinois Gov. Jim Thompson offered a letter of support, Grace said in an interview.

"I'm really, really excited," he said. "It looks like finally on July 4, 1984 — the 100th birthday of the statue, it may gleam again."

With a preservative applied after the bath, the statue might glow six months before turning brown and then green again, Grace said. He proposes that the federal government and private economy each contribute $2 million for the project.

David Moffitt, superintendent of the Statue of Liberty for the National Park Service, isn't so sure the statue shouldn't stay green.

"We're really impressed that this guy is concerned," Moffitt said. But he said the staff, after studies last year, had concluded cleaning the statue "would be wasted money because you couldn't keep it from recurring very rapidly."

"Originally the statue was meant to be gold, but it was never meant to be a statue that would be polished every year or cleaned in that respect," he said. It was never gilded because money wasn't available, he added.

"I'm sure there would be a lot of people who would be upset if the Statue of Liberty were shining like a copper coin in the harbor," he said.

Grace said Anaconda Co., testing corrosion on copper, pulled a piece off the statue in 1963 and verified it could "be cleaned like a penny."

But it's been a tough fight convincing people it could be done.

"I've been thrown out of some of the finest board rooms in the country," the 35-year-old former broker said.

Television's "Real People" didn't believe him, and "when 'Real People' doesn't believe you, then you know you have a problem," he said.

Grace said he visited the Statue of Liberty four years ago on a business trip to New York where the statue stands on a small island in the harbor.

A guard told him it was made of copper and Grace asked, "Why don't they clean it up?" He got no answer, so he went to the library.

When Grace wrote Reagan, the candidate responded: "Your idea is a fascinating one. At the moment, because of my campaign travels, I am not in a position to pursue it with you. But I would like to explore it further if I am successful in the election, Nov. 4."

Grace received a Dec. 12 letter from Reagan secretary Elaine Crispin and administrative assistant Doty Livingston promising a meeting with the new president. But they couldn't say when.

"There isn't any obstacle that can't be overcome," Grace said.

church deacon, Clayton came to the Legislature in 1962 with a strong interest in water resources vital to his region. It didn't take long for him to shed his bow tie and slicked down hair-do for tailored suits and styled haircuts, and in 1975 he outmaneuvered two strong opponents and won the speaker's race.

He had said two years ago the 1981 session would be his last in the House, that he would either run for statewide office or "go back to the farm."

But shortly before the opening gavel fell Tuesday, Clayton dropped hints he may consider seeking a fifth term as speaker.

Clayton, 52, earned a degree in agricultural economics from Texas A&M University, and said he never intended to become a farmer.

Had Heart Attack

"I planned on being a college professor, but my father had a heart attack a week before my graduation," he said. He took over the farming operations near Springlake, and suffered a heart attack of his own in 1968 at the age of 39.

"I'm supposed to be dead. It was one of those kind," he said.

His "good ol' boy" image and straight dealing with House members have earned him the support of a number of House liberals and minorities, even though they differ philosophically with Clayton on many issues.

His friends around Springlake, with a population of just over 200, believed Clayton when he proclaimed his innocence in the Brilab case.

'Good As Gold'

"His word is good as gold," one neighbor said. "If Billy Clayton says tomorrow is Easter, then you better start looking for the Easter bunny."

One hundred forty-six representatives were present when the roll was called twice — once by district number and once by name. There's one vacancy from Houston, where Republican Chase Untermeyer quit to become an aide to Vice President-elect George Bush. Three members were absent.

Twenty-nine Senators answered the roll call on the other side of the rotunda. Sen. Betty Andujar, R-Fort Worth, is home recovering from a heart attack an is expected here within a few weeks. Raul Longoria of Edinburg quit his Senate seat to become a state district judge.

Red Rose Welcome

House members, packed into a chamber crowded to record levels by friends and family, sat down to a red rose welcome from the Austin City Council and a subtle lobbying hint from the Parent's Association for the Retarded of Texas. PART had a yellow rose placed on each desk, next to the red rose sent by the city council.

The House included two members who hope to move across to the Senate before the session ends. Reps. Tony Garcia, D-Pharr, and Hector Uribe, D-Brownsville, are among six candidates in a special election to replace Longoria.

Secretary of State George Strake opened the session with a "that government which governs least governs best" speech, accompanied by a screaming of statewide opponents.

Many children on hand to see a parent at work found various ways to pass the time. A young son of Rep. Dan Kubiak, D-Rockdale, mimicked Strake as the secretary of state wielded the gavel.

A small blonde girl seated on the desk of Rep. Bob Leonard, R-Fort Worth, gummed a cracker and waved her hands in an imitation of the woman who translated the ceremony for the deaf.

working off very skimpy data," Hales said. "But there's a good chance it could last quite some time, at least for another week and probably longer."

Since Christmas, the arctic air has set daily records in cities throughout the eastern United States. Some cities posting subzero records Tuesday included Atlantic City, N.J., minus 6; Concord, N.H., minus 21; Hartford, Conn., minus 9; Scranton, Pa., minus 13; Wilmington, Del., minus 2.

Harbors in New England were clogged with ice. The Cape Cod Canal was closed to commercial fishermen, small vessels and most barges, including those with heating oil and gasoline for Boston and northern New England.

The ice also has frustrated fishermen trying to pull up their lobster pots, with lobster prices approaching $7 a pound. Nantucket scallopers, who need at least 28-degree weather to fish, estimate they have lost $200,000 and that figure is expected to reach $400,000 to $500,000.

Despite the efforts of nine Coast Guard ice cutters on Chesapeake Bay, "it freezes right back 30 minutes after we've been through it," said Lt. Rodney Bowles, assistant coordinator for the 5th Coast Guard District's ice-breaking operations.

"I've got two dozen boats frozen in," said Harbormaster John Simons in Scituate, Mass. "Everything's at a standstill. The men are getting chain saws and just cutting around their boats to keep the ice from crushing the hulls."

As Florida growers braced for more frigid temperatures to come, Gov. Bob Graham, declaring an emergency, lifted weight limits on trucks hurrying frozen citrus to processors.

Farther south in the "winter vegetable basket" of Dade County, the nation's largest producer of vegetables this time of year, officials said it also appeared damage to crops could be severe.

Officials at Florida Citrus Mutual, a cooperative based in Lakeland representing 15,000 growers, put their loss at the equivalent of 49 million gallons of concentrated orange juice, or about 36 million 90-pound boxes.

Orange juice prices jumped as reports of the damage reached commodity markets. On the New York Cotton Exchange, the price of frozen concentrate futures rose by 5 cents a pound, a much as it is allowed to increase in a day's trading. The latest increase brought the price to 88 cents a pound.

Damage to grapefruit was less serious.

Records fell with the thermometer throughout Florida early Tuesday, with a reading of 8 degrees in Tallahassee that broke a 1971 record of 11, and a morning low of 13 in Jacksonville, 2 degrees below the previous January record set 95 years ago.

In Tampa, a 22-degree reading broke the record set in 1905. Miami had 32, the coldest for the date since 1962, and tourists seeking respite from cold weather back home shivered on Miami Beach, where a record low of 36 broke the 43-degree mark set in 1962.

A St. Petersburg man apparently rolled over a charcoal grill he was using to heat his apartment and died in the resulting fire.

Charges committed by juveniles who were referred to detention officers decreased in 1980 from 1,935 cases to 1,803.

The report also revealed that traffic offenses and fatalities increased dramatically in Lubbock last year, even though there was a 26 percent increase in driving while intoxicated arrests. Police arrested 761 persons for DWI last year as opposed to 605 arrests two years ago.

Traffic offenses rose from 584 in 1979 to 785 in 1980, an increase of 34.4 percent. Fatalities increased from 23 in 1979 to 34 in 1980.

prostitution, the reports showed. Arrests in that area went down from 86 cases in 1979 to 13 cases in 1980.

Showing slight decreases were unlawful carrying of weapon, narcotics and sex offenses other than prostitution.

American proposals to release about $12 billion in frozen Iranian assets by stages. According to Washington sources, the first installment would be paid to Iran when the hostages were released and the final amounts freed after American legal claims against the fund were settled or arbitrated.

Iran originally demanded $24 billion from the United States to cover the frozen assets and cash guarantees against recovery of the wealth of the late shah.

Earlier Tuesday, Azizi told Tehran Radio that although no final agreement had been reached, the "discussions are being conducted in a positive framework."

Action Postponed

Action by the Iranian Parliament on the two emergency bills was postponed because the 12-member Council of Guardians could not be convened in time to attend the session, a parliamentary spokesman said. The council is a body of hard-line Islamic clerics which must approve all legislation to insure it accords with Islamic tenets.

The parliamentary spokesman said in a telephone interview with The Associated Press in Beirut that there was no indication of opposition to the two measures.

One bill would approve appointment of a third-party arbitrator of the financial and legal claims between Iran and the United States. The second would formalize nationalization of the shah and his relatives, providing a legal basis for transferring the royal family's assets to Iran.

Growing Understanding

Officials in Washington said the questions being asked by the Algerians on behalf of the Iranians indicate Iran's growing understanding of the terms offered by the United States and approval of some of the U.S. replies to those questions. But the officials cautioned there is no basis for predicting a breakthrough in the long crisis before the Carter administration leaves office next Tuesday.

Iran has no yet responded to the U.S. proposal taken to Tehran on Jan. 2 by Algerian diplomats. That proposal calls for release to Iran of billions of dollars of Iranian assets under U.S. control in return for the hostages' freedom. They have been held captive for more than 14 months. The Americans were seized on Nov. 4, 1979, by a mob that overran the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

Informal Deadline

The administration has set Friday as an informal deadline for the Iranians to agree to a plan for release of the Americans because the Iranian assets would have to be transferred from banks in the United States and overseas to a special fund controlled by Algeria.

"The calendar is there for everyone to see and I want to let it go at that," Trattner said.

Where all 52 hostages are being held is not clear to the State Department. In the past, U.S. officials have said they believe some are in prison.

But Trattner said, "we have no evidence one way or the other" about the whereabouts of the Americans.

Flu Virus Nearing End Here

Flu symptoms are similar to other respiratory infections common this time of year, including strep, the common cold and various types of pneumonia.

Dr. Orr listed several symptoms which should be checked by a physician regardless of the type of illness causing them.

She said a high fever for more than two days needs medical attention, especially in adults suffering temperatures of 103 to 104 degrees. Children's temperatures are more variable, she said.

Other symptoms include a bad cough and troubled breathing or severe vomiting or headache.

The health director estimated that the virus' worst spell takes three to four days to run its course, even though the victim of the disease may not feel completely well for several more days.

She attributes the outbreak to possible lowered immunity among the current city population and to the great amount of travel during the holiday season.

FRESH FROZEN ORANGES — Record-shattering, below freezing temperatures combined with water from sprinkler systems resulted in these ice-shrouded oranges in Florida's famed Indian River fruit belt. More sub-freezing weather was expected to hit the area Tuesday night. (AP Laserphoto)

LCLU Lawyers' Fee Cut In Prayer Case

on religion allowing students to gather before and after school on school property for religious purposes.

School trustee Brad Crawford said Tuesday the $100 per hour fee on which Woodward based Griffith's payment was within the acceptable range for the type of case involved. But he added he does not know whether the school board will appeal the matter of attorney's fees, saying, "There will be further discussion on it."

School attorney Tom Johnson filed last month his objections to the fees the two LCLU lawyers requested, charging that their account of time spent on the case showed unnecessary and duplicated efforts.

Woodward struck down Griffith's motion for an award based on a $250 per hour fee, stating that $75 to $100 is the customary amount charged by other attorneys in this area for representation in similar cases.

He also denied Coffee's contention that his payment should be determined according to a $200 per hour base rate, awarding the attorney on the basis of a $75 per hour fee.

But the federal judge left intact the LCLU attorneys' assessment of hours spent on the case. Griffith figured 160.5 hours on his time sheet, while Coffee estimated he worked 34.5 hours.

However, Woodward disagreed with Griffith's assertions that the novelty of the school prayer case, the legal skill required and the "undesirability" of the litigation should result in the substantial fee he requested.

"It does not appear to the court that a case of this type is any longer to be classified as one as novel or difficult in nature," Woodward states in his ruling. "Counsel for plaintiff has consistently argued through the trial that the law (concerning prayer in schools) is well settled and has been so for many years."

He also said that the skill required to try the case was no more than that required by any other experienced trial lawyer.

Finally, Woodward ruled that there has been no "massive protest" against the LCLU attorneys because of their involvement in the case or the final ruling, making the undesirable factor "minimal in this case."

Your Personal Biorhythms

by Bernard Gittelson

	P	E	I
STEP 1 YEAR OF BIRTH
STEP 2 A, B MONTH OF BIRTH
STEP 3 DAY OF BIRTH
TOTALS

BIORHYTHMS FOR JAN. 14, 1981

Exceptional Performance Equals Stripes

Staff Sgt. Victor M. Magnon became the first person at Reese Air Force Base to win promotion under the new Stripes for Exceptional Performers program instituted in November.

Magnon, one of only six in the Air Training Command promoted under the program, is a crew chief in B Flight of the 64th Organizational Maintenance Squadron.

He was chosen by his superiors and recommended by Col. Monte D. Montgomery, 64th Flying Training Wing commander.

Under Magnon's influence, Montgomery noted, the flight has achieved the highest maintenance standardization evaluation program ratings in the wing for five of the past 10 months.

Other achievements include being named T-37 crew chief of the month OMS maintenance man of the month. He was promoted to senior airman below-the-zone, received the ATC inspector general superior performer award for 1980 and has been nominated for the ATC Outstanding Maintenance Specialist of the Year award.

During his off-duty hours he formed a martial arts club and model airplane club on base. He is active in intramural sports and serves as a volunteer member of the Reese honor guard.

Promotions under the new program will be limited to about 200 per year Air Force wide.

Archaeology Course Announced

A graduate course in public archaeology, dealing with contract archaeology, historic preservation and cultural resource management, will be taught this spring at Texas Tech University by visiting professor Dr. James E. Fitting.

Dr. James A. Goss, chairman of the anthropology department, said, "This is a unique opportunity for students in this area to study under such a prominent anthropologist and archaeologist."

Fitting, who lives in San Diego, Calif., is manager of the human resources division for Science Applications Inc. He has done archaeological and historical studies in 32 states and has worked with projects in Guatemala and the Caribbean.

In 1979-80, he was principal investigator for the $2.8 million Cultural Resource Mitigation Program for the New Melones Lake Project in Sonora, Calif., one of the largest single archaeological studies ever undertaken in the United States.

He also has done anthropological development impact studies in the Caribbean, South Asia and rural and urban United States areas.

In the Texas Tech graduate course, Fitting will work privately with students on archaeological projects. Offered as Anthropology 5344, the course will be at 1:30 p.m. to 3 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Fitting has served as Michigan state archeologist and has more than 17 years' experience in human resources planning, having served in university, government and private positions.

For more information, call the Tech anthropology department at 806-742-2228.

Music Literature Course Set

Students and members of the community with little or no music background may enroll in a music literature course to be offered evenings this semester by the Texas Tech University Division of Continuing Education.

Award Winners

Vying For Honors

Two contracts division workers at Reese Air Force Base, recently named outstanding in the Air Training Command, are vying for honors on the Air Force-wide level.

Nannie J. Tinney, chief of the systems management branch, was named outstanding supervisor for ATC, and Master Sgt. James Burger, executive contracting non-commissioned officer, received the outstanding contracts NCO for 1980.

Both were credited with being responsible for the branch receiving the highest possible rating during the 1980 management effectiveness inspection.

The course, "Music Literature 239: Heritage of Music," satisfies the fine arts or humanities requirement for various degree plans. Members of the community may take the course on a credit or audit basis. Registration is $60.

Course instructor Paul R. Ellsworth said the course will examine the historical, functional and cultural significance of musical compositions, including the opera "Carmen," Mozart's "Symphony Number 40" and Beethoven's "Symphony Number 5."

Ellsworth, associate chairman of the university's Department of Music, was conductor of the Texas Tech Symphony Orchestra 25 years.

The class will meet 7-10 p.m. Thursdays, Jan. 22 through May 7, in Room 205 of the Music building.

Governments Panel Warned Of Fund Cutbacks

By DEBBI STALTER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The pending administrative takeover by President-elect Ronald Reagan may leave the South Plains Association of Governments with some empty office space where former manpower training program staff members once worked.

Executive Director Jerry Casstevens said in an executive committee meeting Tuesday that the association has been notified to expect substantial cutbacks in Comprehensive Employment and Training Act funds.

Casstevens said he probably will know just how much the association stands to lose on Jan. 29.

Casstevens told The Avalanche-Journal he feels the cutbacks will come through attrition, by the association not being allowed to replace employees who leave the training program staff list.

"We have quite a few holes already," Casstevens noted. Training operations have been in limbo since Reagan's election.

The cutback could have more than one negative effect on the association's operations, especially in regard to recent negotiations the association completed on a building lease agreement for the next three years.

Lubbock Avalanche-Journal Wednesday Morning, January 14, 1981

Training act staff members occupy about half of the association building at 1709 26th St. Preliminary considerations would possibly be to ask another governmental group to occupy the portion of the building left vacant.

Under terms of the lease agreement, the governmental association will rent its site at payments of $61,000 this year, $65,000 in 1982 and $69,000 in 1983.

The only recourse the association would have in breaking that agreement is if requested building repairs are not completed within an agreed 90-day period.

The association also is involved in searching for a new director of its employment and training operation. Present director Juanita Forbes will leave the position Feb. 15.

In other business, the executive committee learned that a House subcommittee may recommend to the new session of the Texas Legislature that the House speaker appoint one state legislator to serve on each of the councils of government across the state.

The subcommittee report also is expected to recommend that some degree of minority representation be mandated on each of the councils.

The South Plains association most likely already conforms to the minority request, inasmuch as it was required to add eight minority board members in 1978 in order to receive federal economic development funds.

Casstevens says he feels the subcommittee, charged with conducting interim investigations into council of governments activities, is one of the most objective of past years.

"This is probably the first committee that didn't have an ax to grind going in," Casstevens said.

Parks Panel Urges Free Lunch Program In City

By MARC FLAKE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Lubbock Parks and Recreation Board recommended Tuesday the city's participation in a free lunch program this year, despite known opposition to the program from the city council.

Through the past four years, the Parks Department has administered a summer program for low-income youths, providing them with free lunches. The program is federally funded.

Last year, the city distributed about 36,000 lunches at 16 distribution sites over a six week period.

However, the program almost didn't get approved by the council. In April 1980, it voted against city participation in the program because of a lack of controls.

Mayor Bill McAllister said the council was "not trying to keep food from needy children, but there's now way to determine who's getting it."

Two weeks later, about 10 Lubbock residents asked the council to reverse its decision.

Councilman Alan Henry called the program an example of "cradle to grave socialism," but made the motion to continue the program with four conditions:

- The city must seek an alternate sponsor.
- A way of monitoring eligibility must be found.
- Statistics should be compiled to prove the program contributed to a decrease in the crime rate.

"Statistics should be compiled to show the impact of the program on the city's recreational program.

Jim Underwood, city recreation superintendent, told the parks board Tuesday that the staff had discussed alternate sponsors, but no one could be found to take over the program.

The Lubbock Independent School District offers a similar program while in session, Underwood said, but did not want to administer the summer program.

If smaller organizations were allowed to take over the project on a community basis, it would fragment the program, making it less efficient, he added.

He emphasized that it cost the city nothing to operate the Summer Nutrition Program because it is funded by the Department of Agriculture and audited by the Texas Department of Human Resources.

The summer program is a continuation of the school's free lunch program, Underwood said. A school official told him "there was no doubt in his mind the city was serving the children who need the lunches," he said.

Eligibility would be hard to monitor because the city cannot ask the children if they are also involved in the school's free lunch program, he said.

According to federal guidelines, lunch distribution sites must be set up in neighborhoods where at least 30 percent of the children subscribe to the school program. The participation percentage in the 16 sites range from 39 percent to 79 percent, Underwood said.

"We might have some kids eating who could eat lunch at home, but we are serving those who need it," he said.

Data relating to a drop in crime rate and the program cannot be compiled because there is no way of correlating the figures, according to Underwood.

"The rates go up and down," he said. "Who can say whether it was affected by the program?"

In the final condition posed by Henry, Underwood said the program does draw people to the city parks, but most leave without participating in the city parks programs.

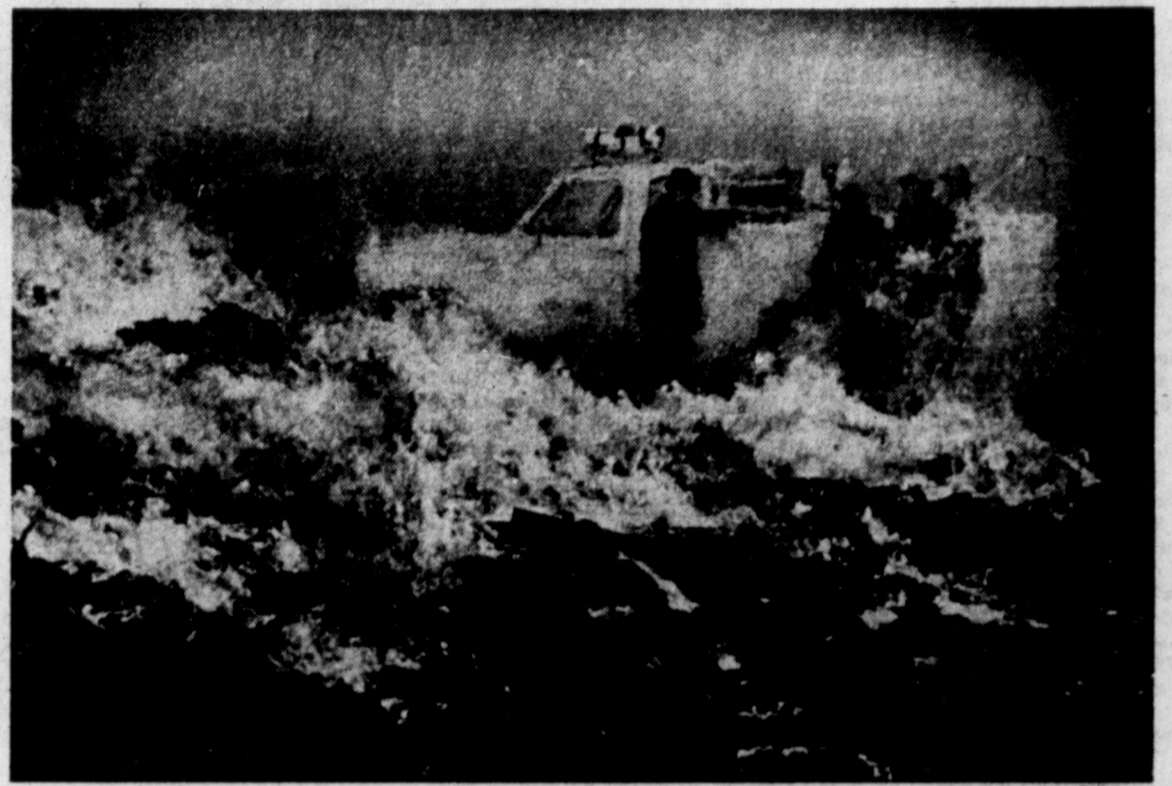

Board member Ethel McLeod said the children should be asked to police the park before they leave. "That would save us some money," she said.

She was also concerned about reports that the children were throwing salad away after eating the lunches. She suggested it would be better to feed them hamburgers and hot dogs.

Underwood said the TDHR requires a nutritious lunch be served and it approves each menu.

"Well, it just gets thrown away," Mrs. McLeod said. "Kids are delighted to eat

Evaluation Of LEAP Program Set For Presentation Thursday

The first formal evaluation of Lubbock High School's LEAP magnet program by a team of parents, students and school officials will be presented Thursday to school trustees.

Board members also will see a 30-minute documentary film on LEAP (Lubbock Exemplary Academic Program). The film was produced by KXTX-TV.

Lou Conner, who also serves as chairman of the 1980-81 Lubbock High PTA LEAP committee, is scheduled to report to board members the evaluation team's findings concerning the 1½-year-old program.

Supt. Ed Irons said parents, students, administrators and teachers were appointed this winter to the evaluation team in order to comply with a proviso set out when LEAP was developed requiring that it be periodically evaluated.

Mrs. Conner also is expected to present recommendations by the 12-member committee for future proposals to continue development of LEAP.

She declined Tuesday to discuss the report pending a review of the findings with Lubbock High principal Knox Williams. But she said she will deliver a "routine evaluation" and that there were no problems with the program.

Mrs. Conner said that appraisals of the program solicited by the evaluation committee from other students and teachers were surprisingly positive. "We expected more input that was negative because that's usually the way it works."

She said she believes "the program is going very smoothly," adding that plans are underway for recruiting students for the 1981-82 school year.

This year, the unique academic project, which has sparked controversy since the planning stages, drew fewer new transfer students than in its first year. But about half of last year's transfers returned for the current school year.

Irons said enrollment figures show 116 new students participated in LEAP this year compared to 142 last year. Of that first group of students, he said, 72 chose to remain at Lubbock High for LEAP.

He added that about 11 students have elected to drop out of LEAP for the upcoming semester, leaving a total magnet enrollment (of transfer and Lubbock High home students) of 503.

The superintendent said he is most encouraged by total school population figures showing a jump from 1,260 students in 1978-79 to 1,523 students this year.

The magnet program, which features a slate of advanced academics, honors courses and preprofessional and expanded elective classes, was designed to boost enrollment at the downtown high school

Health Course Offered In A-J

Are we living beyond our health care means?

With the country's yearly medical tab approaching $250 billion, health authorities acknowledge that cost control is a problem that's not likely to be solved by a system that encourages consumers to shop for the finest in health care and send the bills to third parties such as insurance companies and government agencies.

Readers of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal will have an opportunity to learn how that system developed and how it may have to be changed by following "The Nation's Health," a series that will be making house calls every Sunday in The A-J beginning Jan. 18.

The series, consisting of 15 weekly articles by leading medical and health experts, is administered by Courses by Newspaper, an educational project of University Extension, University of California, San Diego, and is funded by the National Endowment for the Humanities.

In addition to providing insights into the complex and emotional subject of health care in terms non-professionals can understand, this timely series serves as the basis for a credit course at Texas Tech University and more than 300 other colleges and universities.

For more information, call the Continuing Education department at Tech, university CbN coordinator, 742-3797.

The national program is coordinated by Philip R. Lee, M.D., a former Assistant Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, who now directs the Health Policy Program at the University of California, San Francisco, School of Medicine.

Other series contributors include Pulitzer Prize-winning author Rene J. Dubos; Stanford University President Donald Kennedy, who formerly headed the Food and Drug Administration; and City College of New York professor H. Jack Geiger, M.D., who conceived and implemented the Neighborhood Health Center Program.

For those who want additional information on the subject, CbN has compiled a Reader of essays, articles and documents from an array of authorities on medicine and health, a Study Guide for students, which relates the newspaper articles to selections in the Reader, and a Source Book of ideas for using the series as the basis for discussion groups and community forums.

The nation's Health" is the 14th in a series of provocative courses CbN has developed since its inception in 1973.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

To bug or hot to bug mom on her job. That is one of the burning questions that face youngsters with mothers who work outside the home.

Naturally, there are no blanket rules, as emergencies do arise and Mom would insist on being called. But there are a few guidelines to follow. First, you must ask yourself: (1) Will Mom drop dead when she hears this? (2) Can she find a plumber after five? (3) Will she carry out her threat to move to another city and change her name?

If you answered yes, no, yes, you might try putting the incident in a proper perspective.

For example, if there is blood to report, consider these questions: Is it yours? Your brother's? Is there a lot? A little? On the sofa that is not Scotch-guarded? From a loose baby tooth? Or the $80 one that they are still making payments on? Will the bleeding stop? Was it an accident? Can you shut up about it and pass it off as an insect bite?

Another example: When every kid in the neighborhood decides your house would be a neat place to play because there is no adult at home, ask yourself, Do I want to spend my entire puberty locked in my room with no food and no television? Do I need the friendship of a boy who throws ice cubes at the bird? Will Mom notice we made confetti in her blender?

Other situations you can be definite about:

When a group of children decide to wash the cat and put him in the dryer and want to know what setting to use, CALL.

When you and your brother are hitting and slapping over the last soft drink and you want a high-level decision on who gets it, DON'T CALL.

When a couple of men in a pickup truck tell you your Mom is having your TV silvered, your silverware stored, her jewelry cleaned, and your 10-speed bicycle oiled, CALL.

When you forget to defrost the hamburger so you put it under your Mom's hair dryer and the dog is licking meat off the walls, CALL.

When your sister chases you into the house with the garden hose and the furniture is turning a funny-looking white, RUN.

When you are bored and have nothing to do and just want to talk, CALL YOUR FATHER.

LEMON SALMON BAKE

1 can (15 1/2 oz.) salmon
2 cups mashed cooked potatoes
3 eggs, slightly beaten
1/3 cup sliced green onions
Grated peel and juice of 1 fresh lemon
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. pepper
1/2 cup shredded Cheddar cheese
Drain and reserve salmon liquid, flake salmon. In bowl, combine mashed potatoes, eggs and reserved salmon juice. Stir in salmon, green onions, lemon peel, juice, salt and pepper. Pour salmon mixture into 4 small (about 1 1/2 cup) oven-proof individual casseroles. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes or until knife inserted in center comes out clean. Sprinkle with cheese. Makes 4 servings.
You can also bake salmon mixture in a 1 1/2 qt. casserole for 45 minutes.

ANN LANDERS:

Farmer's Wife Offers Rebuttal

Dear Ann Landers: That letter from Sidney Jaffe critical of farmers is typical of people who find it easy to complain on a full stomach.

The challenge facing farmers today is how to continue to farm when they didn't harvest enough crops to buy seed, fertilizer, chemicals, and fuel in the coming year.

The farmer must deal with floods, drought, early frost, hail, exorbitant interest rates and the ever-increasing cost of equipment. Please tell Sidney to relax, because in 1981 there may be no farmers. They may get fed up trying to eke out a living and head for the oil rigs, factories, big business and industry.

If this happens, I hope Sidney will enjoy his glass of gasoline, his broiled gravel and the gravy on his mashed sand. Furthermore, if he has no solutions, we don't need his screwed-up "logic" that only adds to the problem. — Farmer's Wife In The Midwest

Dear Wife: If Sidney is still reading your blistering rebuttal, the following should pop his optics. It's a bumper sticker that came in the mail from St. Louis, Mo.: "PUT A FARMER OUT OF BUSINESS — STARVE!!!"

Dear Ann Landers: Could it be part of a normal growth pattern when a 13-year-old boy enjoys trying on ladies' undergarments? The boy's father insists that many physical and psychological changes occur at this age, and the lad is merely fascinated with the softness of feminine attire.

Our son shows no other signs of femininity. His physical growth this past year has been extraordinary. He has popped up six inches, gained 20 pounds and his shoe size has gone from 6 1/2 to 10.

Please consult with your experts and rush an answer. Although my husband is not the least bit concerned, I am. — No Name, No City, No State

Dear N.N.N.: I suggest that you or your husband buy a paperback edition of the Ann Landers Encyclopedia (Ballantine Books, available at all Walden and B. Dalton bookstores) or get one at the public library. Like many others, you both need to read up on transvestism — as well as homosexuality, bisexuality, child molesting, transsexualism and exhibitionism. Most people don't know one from the other.

I suspect that your son has transvestite tendencies. This does not necessarily mean he is a homosexual. Many transvestites marry and have families. (Some homosexuals do, too.) Generally speaking, transvestites get their jollies from dressing as women — and this is the extent of their bizarre behavior.

Peanut Production Down; Supermarket Prices Up

COLLEGE STATION (Special) — Such all-American favorites as peanut butter, peanut candy and salted peanuts will cost consumers more in the months ahead.

Why? Because peanut supplies are short due to this year's draught.

"Peanut products will not only be higher at the supermarket, but some may even be scarce," points out Johnny Feagan, economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. He expects this situation to last until new crop peanuts start coming in next August.

Just how short are peanut supplies? Production of edible grade peanuts is down about 50 percent in the United States this year, points out Feagan. Texas production should drop about 45 percent.

Supplies of edible grade peanuts for the 1980-81 marketing year, which ends next August 31, should total about 2.5 billion pounds, down from 4.4 billion pounds the past year. With normal demand, usage of edible peanuts during 1980-81 should be near 3 billion pounds — 2.1 billion pounds consumed in this country and 800,000 pounds exported. So, when compared with the total supply, this means a deficit of about 20 percent.

"Such a deficit is considerable but it's nothing to cause manufacturers and processors to panic," assures Feagan.

What will be done to increase peanut supplies in 1981?

The U.S. Department of Agriculture will lift import controls to allow more foreign peanuts to be shipped into this country, notes the economist.

HINTS FROM HELOISE:

Ammonia, Water Good For Soiled Collars

DEAR HELOISE: What's a good home formula for pre-wash spray that's good for ring around the collar and other stains? — Edith Larson

It's a doozy, so clip this out and keep it handy in the laundry room.

Fill a plastic pump bottle or squirt bottle with one-third cup each of ammonia, liquid dishwashing detergent and water. Shake well.

This is great for those soiled collars and cuffs, as well as other heavily soiled areas. Just spray a little directly on the stain.

As a word of caution: it is a good idea to wash the garment immediately after applying the spray just in case the fabric is sensitive to ammonia.

Also, NEVER, NEVER mix bleach with ammonia, or any product containing ammonia.

I think you'll find this pre-wash formula is really great and a lot cheaper than your commercial pre-wash sprays. — Heloise ing to worry about!

Talking to yourself and then answering yourself? Well, that's nothing to worry about either.

But when you talk to yourself, answer yourself, and then ask, "What did you say?" — that's the time to start worrying! — M.G.

Good! I haven't quite reached the "worrying" stage! — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE: About twice a week, while my 4-year-old is taking his bath, I clean the sink and toilet, wipe down the walls and shine the mirrors. After his bath, I clean out the tub.

The dreaded chore gets done while I supervise his bath, and I'm able to make a "pleasant time" with my son out of an "unpleasant task."

Being a full-time working mother, I have to work household chores in when I can, so I hope this tip will help other mothers save more precious time to spend with their family. — Bethanne McCann

Talk about saving double time — you're a winner! — Heloise

FOR CLAY PLAY

DEAR HELOISE: Use a large broiler pan as a tray when your toddler wants to play with doughy clay.

Keeps all the mess and tools contained in one place. — C.O.

TOASTY TOES

DEAR HELOISE: When my husband broke his ankle, after having it set in a cast, he complained of his foot being cold.

Since I had no sock that was large enough to cover the cast, I found that a stocking cap fit just right, and covered his whole foot.

I just secured the cap with a large safety pin and no longer heard complaints about cold toes. — Kathie

Anything to keep hubby happy. If the cap survives wear and tear on his foot, when the cast is removed, he can wear it on his head again. — Heloise

Microwave Oven's Convenience To Be More Popular, 'Smarter'

NEW YORK (Special) — The gift of a microwave oven would likely be regarded as modern-day mealtime manna by those who have spent many of their holiday hours slaving over hot stoves.

As commonplace as the microwave unit is now, it's expected to occupy even more space in kitchens of the future. However, future microwaves will be a lot "smarter." Computer designers already are perfecting appliances that "listen" and reply with a cheery "O.K." when asked to do tasks.

A recipe card will be inserted into a slot to tell the oven how long to roast, turn and simmer each dish, as well as give spoken instructions to the person preparing the ingredients. When the dish is done to perfection, the oven will let you know by calling, "The meatloaf is ready now!"

The popular microwave oven is very likely to be a part of nearly everyone's future because it's convenient; recipes require little advance preparation; and it reduces time and labor spent in the kitchen. Perhaps more importantly, the microwave will be used to extend the shelf life of perishable foods.

Searching for advanced ways to prepare foods to nourish astronauts during long space voyages, government scientists have tested radiated foods for many years. They've found that certain fruits and vegetables treated with microwaves can stay on the shelf without spoiling or needing refrigeration for days and weeks. The microwaves work to disrupt sprouting and slow down the ripening process.

Scientists also are excited about industrial use of the microwave process to extend the life of liquids, like milk. At this time, however, the process is impractical since there is no way to cool pasteurized milk fast enough for storage to prevent air-borne microorganisms from becoming active.

The microwave oven, which uses ionizing radiation to heat food molecules, is the first entirely new method used to preserve food since Nicholas Appert discovered thermal canning in 1809. Though we can't rule out the possibility that still another cooking method will be discovered (solar cooking?), the microwave oven, with imminent innovations in application, will likely be part of our future.

Anemia Victims Lack 'Intrinsic Factor'

By PAUL DONOHUE, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: What are the symptoms of pernicious anemia? I have read about the "intrinsic factor." Why is it not produced in the stomach, as it should? How long does it take to repair nerve damage this does to the hands and feet? I would like a good rundown on these facts. — L.S.

I'll do my best. I did write on this re-

Weddings

MRS. THURMAN STANLEY O'BRIANT-STANLEY

Cynthia Rene O'Briant became the bride of Thurman James Stanley Friday, Jan. 9 in Broadway Church of Christ Chapel. Ken Dye officiated at the 7:30 p.m. rite.

Honor attendants were Nell O'Briant, of Brownfield, sister of the bride, and Scott Ryndro.

Parents of the couple are Wilma O'Briant, Jack O'Briant, Mrs. Elizabeth Hogan of Pirmissons, West Germany and the late-Thurman Lee Stanley.

The bride was graduated from New Deal High School and attended Texas Tech University. She is employed by Texas Instruments. The groom was graduated from Kaiserslautern High School in Kaiserslautern, West Germany. He also is employed by Texas Instruments.

The couple will make their home in Lubbock.

DEADLINES

Any information for a daily edition must be in our office two days in advance of publication.

Sunday edition deadlines are 5 p.m. the preceding Tuesday for articles with pictures and noon the preceding Wednesday for articles only. Only Friday and Saturday weddings will appear on Sunday; wedding announcements must run within five days of the event.

Engagement announcements must be submitted at least five weeks prior to the wedding date.

cently, but I couldn't cover all the ground.

As I have said, medicine has taken most of the perniciousness out of pernicious anemia. It has symptoms common to other anemias — lowered red blood cell numbers, weakness, fatigue, shortness of breath with exertion, dizziness, etc. But it also has its own unique signs — a yellowing of the skin, numbness of the hands and feet and tongue soreness.

The problem is one of the body's inability to absorb vitamin B-12, which is essential in production of red blood cells. The stomach must produce what is called the "intrinsic factor" for absorption to take place. Normally, this factor takes B-12 "by the hand" and leads it from the intestines into the bloodstream. That's intrinsic absorption. People who lack this intrinsic factor have anemia, because, of course, without B-12 absorption fewer red blood cells are made.

Since B-12 is also needed for nerve health (spinal cord, too) numbness sets in. Fortunately, this problem can be overcome through B-12 injections, and the tingling and numbness go away in time. The injections are needed for life because the intrinsic factor deficiency usually persists for life.

It's not clear why some peoples' stomachs don't make the factor. Perhaps the body develops an allergy to some of its own stomach cells — the ones that are supposed to be producing it.

Note: Strict vegetarians may suffer a B-12 deficiency and develop a form of pernicious anemia. Vegetables are poor sources of that vitamin. They can reverse the deficiency by adding B-12 foods or by using vitamin supplements. Those with the factor deficiency cannot do this.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Please help us with our 49-year-old son. He has always done strenuous physical exercise, and within the last two years he has had four spells of his heart beating too fast. He was told he has P.A.T. Can you explain? What is to be done for this? — Mr. and Mrs. E.A.

"P.A.T." comes by its name honestly. It occurs suddenly (paroxysmally), begins in the upper part of the heart (atrium) and produces a rapid beat (tachycardia).

Most people with P.A.T. hearts are healthy. Emotional upset might cause it one time, nervousness, fatigue or alcohol, for examples, on others. Some hearts are just built to react in such ways under a variety of circumstances.

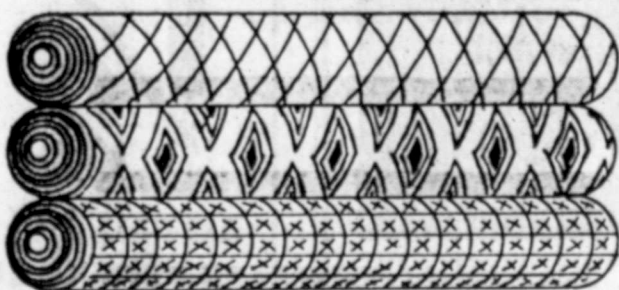

Unless the episodes are numerous, no treatment is needed between attacks. Four episodes in two years does not seem an inordinate frequency. If they come on with regularity, then drugs — digitalis, quinidine or propranolol — are sometimes prescribed. If an attack does not stop quickly on its own, your son should head for the nearest emergency room where he can be treated to stop it.

There are some simple measures he can try on his own to stop an attack, but I'd like to defer to his doctor for descriptions. He is the best judge as to their appropriateness.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I've heard of surgery to make the ears smaller. Can you explain how it's done? Would a person have to be put to sleep? — Mrs. M.

I presume you are speaking of protruding ears. This often results from a lack of a normal antihelix fold. That's the prominent fold inside the ear which dis-

MEALTIME STARDOM — A surefire way to launch fish to mealtime stardom — team it up with colorful exciting fruit flavor gelatin salads. Shown here are two lemon flavor gelatin salads specially selected to make the most of fish. Pimiento Circle features mandarin oranges and diced pimiento and Cucumber Dill Slice stars chopped and sliced cucumbers.

MEALTIME STARDOM

Fish Key Nutrition Component

NEW YORK (Special) — With just about everyone involved in the pursuit of good nutrition, it's no surprise that fish has emerged as a key component in many a weekly meal plan. Still, while most people will readily acknowledge its protein value, it has yet to achieve rave reviews!

Here's a sure fire way to launch fish to mealtime stardom. Team it up with colorful, exciting gelatin salads. They are a perfect pair! The mellow flavor of the fish is an ideal backdrop for the fruity, tangy gelatin salad. It's an enjoyable production from start to finish, with taste, texture and color in perfect balance.

Children, who don't always share their parents' enthusiasm for fish, will delight in it when it's presented with one of those "fun" gelatin salads. The two presented here — Pimiento Circle and Cucumber Dill Slice — both feature lemon flavor gelatin. So ... the next time you buy fish, pick up some extra gelatin. When you serve them as a duet, they'll be a sell-out!

PIMIENTO CIRCLE
2 cans (11 oz. each) mandarin orange sections
2 pkgs. (3 oz. each) or 1 pkg.

(6 oz.) lemon flavor gelatin
2 cups boiling water
1/4 cup lemon juice
1 tsp. vinegar
2 tbsps. diced pimiento
1 tsp. grated lemon rind
Drain oranges, reserving syrup. Add water to syrup to make 1 1/3 cups. Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Add measured liquid, lemon juice and vinegar. Chill until thickened. Add oranges, pimiento and lemon rind. Pour into 5-or-6-cup mold. Chill until firm, about 4 hours. Unmold. Garnish as desired. Makes about 5 cups or 10 servings.
Note: Recipe may be halved; chill in 2 1/2-or-3-cup mold.

CUCUMBER DILL SLICE
2 pkgs. (3 oz. each) or 1 pkg.
1/6 oz. lemon flavor gelatin
2 tbsps. salt
2 cups boiling water
1 cup cold water
20 thin cucumber slices, cut in half
30 cups chopped seeded peeled cucumbers
1/4 cup finely chopped onion
2 tbsps. dill weed
Dissolve gelatin and salt in boiling water. Add cold water. Measure 1/4 cup and pour into 6-cup mold or 8x4-inch loaf pan. Arrange overlapping cucumber slices in gelatin. Chill until set but not firm. Chill remaining gelatin until thickened. Fold in chopped cucumbers, onion and dill. Spoon into mold. Chill until firm, about 4 hours. Unmold. Garnish as desired. Makes 6 cups or 12 servings.
Note: Recipe may be halved; chill in 3-cup mold.

two notrump, not the worst overbid we have ever seen, and North had overbid right back at him and jumped to six. South would have had an automatic play at his disposal. He would win the heart in his own hand, lead the nine of diamonds and let it ride. If West held the queen South would score four diamonds tricks plus five clubs, two hearts and one spade for his slam.

Playing at three, South looked around to find a sure thing play for his three notrump. With everything wrong he could come to nine tricks and he decided to settle for the sure nine and leave the overtricks for optimists.

He won the first trick with his ace of hearts and played the ace and six of spades. West took his king and set up his hearts, but dummy's queen of spades became the ninth trick.

Textbook Investigator Plans Workshop

Textbook watchdog Norma Gabler, whose controversial investigations into school materials has drawn worldwide attention, will lead a workshop here Saturday at the Lubbock Women's Club.

The Lubbock Eagle Forum, headed by Skeet Workman, is sponsoring the seminar, scheduled from 9:30 a.m. to noon, on textbooks and curriculum.

Mrs. Workman told Lubbock school board members last month Mrs. Gabler will discuss some controversial school subject items including sex education, survival games, values clarification, situational ethics and death education.

Mrs. Gabler and her husband Mel, who call themselves textbook analysts, have lectured throughout the country for 20 years on textbook content, attacking materials they believe are morally objectionable. They also have criticized books they see as replacing educational basics with the teaching of values.

Mrs. Gabler's appearance in Lubbock will be her second following a 1977 speech that sparked vocal protest from a Texas Tech student in the audience. The man was assisted out of the auditorium by angry audience members.

She and her husband began reviewing school textbooks after their son complained about a lack of information about traditional patriotic leaders in his history textbook, according to Mrs. Workman.

The Gablers have been featured on network news and talk shows and they are the subject of a book entitled, "Textbooks on Trial."

Gabler served as a delegate last year to the White House Conference on Families. Mrs. Gabler has received numerous honors, including two nominations for Texas Mother of the Year, the Texas Senate Award of Appreciation and the Texas Merit Mother Award twice.

Mrs. Gabler has received requests for information throughout the nation and from more than 25 countries.

Workshop reservations, which must be made in advance, are available by calling 792-0362 by noon Friday. Cost of the workshop and lunch is $10. The Women's Club is located at 2020 Broadway. Mrs. Gabler also is scheduled to speak at 7:30 p.m. Friday at the Eagle Forum meeting in the Ralls grade school cafeteria.

She will make an additional appearance at 7:30 p.m. Saturday at the Post Eagle Forum meeting in the Primary Auditorium.

All of Mrs. Gabler's appearances are open to the public.

Clovis Entry Selected For Pageant Finals

A-J Correspondent

CLOVIS, N.M. — Donna J. Stanley, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Frank Stanley of Clovis, has been selected as a state finalist in the 1981 New Mexico National Teen-Ager Pageant to be held at the Albuquerque, N.M., Hilton Inn on July 3, 4 and 5.

Miss Stanley is sponsored by Burger King, Travel Center, Classic Corner and Betty's Hair Affair, all of Clovis.

Miss Stanley said she hopes to become an attorney upon completion of her college education. She received second place recently in the 1980-81 VFW Post 305 Voice of Democracy Scholarship Speech Contest and was a 1980 State Women's Extemporaneous Speaking and Debate qualifier. Her hobbies include reading, sewing, watching old movies and playing volleyball.

The New Mexico National Teen-Ager Pageant is the official state finals of the Miss National Teen-Ager Pageant, which will be in August.

The winner of the pageant will receive a $500 cash scholarship, a full modeling scholarship from Barbizon, an all-expense paid trip to the National Finals to compete with the 51 other winners (representing every state, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico) for the title of Miss National Teen-Ager for 1982.

This will be the 10th Annual Miss National Teen-Ager Pageant.

Eckerd College in St. Petersburg, Fla., will award a $4,000 tuition scholarship to the State Citizenship Award Winner ($1,000 a year for four years) and a $20,000 tuition scholarship to the National Citizenship Award Winner.

Contestants will be judged on scholastic achievement-leadership, poise, personality and appearance. There is no swimsuit or talent competition.

Each contestant will participate in the National Teen-Ager Volunteer Service program as well as recite a 100-word speech on the pageant theme: "What's Right About America."

The reigning New Mexico National Teen-Ager is Cathleen Clear of Albuquerque and the reigning Miss National Teen-Ager is Danelle Black of Hastings, Neb.

New Device Aimed At Cleaner Cotton

VISALIA, Calif. (AP) — A method to make cotton clean enough to use in sanitary napkins and tampons may provide the solution to the toxic shock syndrome problem, a cotton industry official says.

Cotton Inc. has helped develop a high-speed mechanical cleaning device called "Cotton Master," said J. Dukes Wooters, president of the grower-supported agency.

The new concept still is being tested but apparently makes cotton "an inherently clean fiber to begin with," as clean or cleaner than synthetic fibers used in making tampons, he said.

Toxic shock syndrome, a disease that has been fatal to some women, has been linked to use of highly absorbent tampons in some cases.

INFANT'S BODY

FORT WORTH (AP) — A private disposal firm employee found the body of an infant girl late Monday afternoon as he began to unload a truckload of garbage at a landfill. Police said the infant was found in a small container resembling a coffin and that it was wrapped in a shawl. Officers said they did not know where the body had been picked up and they had no information regarding its identity.

If you are thinking about opening an interest-paying checking account, here's a thought from First National Bank: COMPARE.

Regular checking accounts have not earned interest because a 1933 Federal law prohibited financial institutions from paying interest on checking.

Now, that law has changed. And all kinds of financial institutions, even those who never offered checking accounts before, can provide interest-bearing checking to their customers. This has been accompanied by some very loud, noisy, and sometimes confusing advertising claims.

First National Bank has offered INTEREST/CHECKING to our customers a long time. And quite frankly we've found that earning interest on transaction-type accounts won't be to the advantage of everyone.

Things To Consider

At some places the service charge on interest-paying checking accounts may be a lot different than the charge on regular checking. There may even be a per check charge, too.

Some financial institutions won't return checks with the monthly statement on interest-paying accounts, unless you pay an extra charge.

And some will pay interest only on fully collected deposits. So you wouldn't earn interest on the amount of any check you deposited until that check cleared the bank on which it was written.

The point is, you may need to shop carefully to find the services that best suit your needs. And if you decided to switch to an interest-paying checking plan, be sure you understand the plan you are considering. And especially what its true cost to you will be.

How To Determine If It's Right For You

Get answers to these important questions:

"What is the minimum balance required to earn interest?"

"What is the minimum balance required to avoid service charges?"

"What are the per check charges?"

"How is the interest calculated?"

"Are there any hidden charges?"

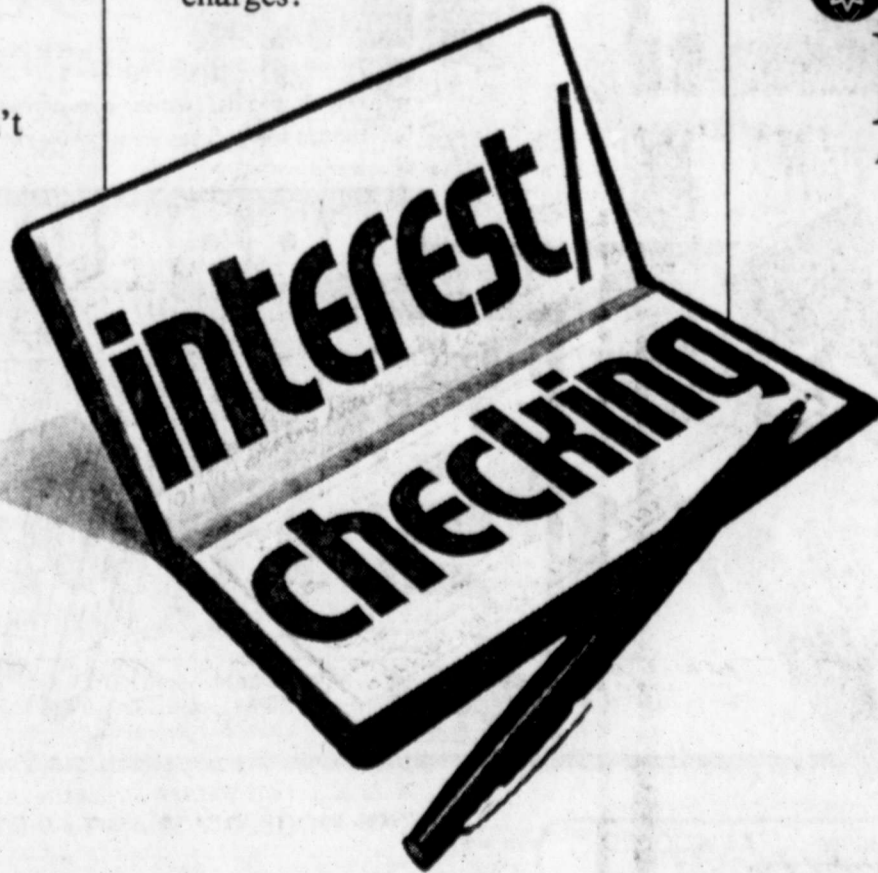

"Will I get my checks back at the end of the month?"

One Final Note

Naturally, we think our INTEREST/CHECKING plan is the best one offered by any financial institution in West Texas. It's both a checking and a savings account. And if you keep $500 in your account, you pay no service charge, you earn interest, and there are no per check charges, no matter how many you write. It's that simple. We'll be glad to show you how it can work for you.

We want you to compare plans. Because we think when you do, you'll find First National Bank's INTEREST/CHECKING the best plan around.

Fuel Tool To Boost Mileage

By PAT GRAVES
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Thinking of trading in your large or mid-size car for one of those smaller models that gets better gas mileage? Former Lubbockite Jerry Moen thinks he has a better idea.

So does his cousin, farmer and contractor W.E. Medlock, who is financing the development and marketing of Moen's invention, a carburetor jet resizing tool which tests show can increase a car's gas mileage by an average of 20 percent.

Moen guarantees the conversion will improve most cars' fuel efficiency at least 10 percent and some 40 percent. He said he has tested one car that improved 50 percent.

The former car dealer from Austin said the need for his product stems from the way carburetor jets, which carry fuel into internal combustion engines, are set at the factories. The manufacturers set the jets for sea level or 4,000 feet, Moen said, because it would be impractical and expensive to set each carburetor individually.

As a result, many cars do not have carburetors set for the altitude in which they are driven. Moen estimated 90 percent of carburetors in Lubbock autos are off.

Another essential factor in Moen's analysis is the air-fuel ratio. Moen said his resized jets give a car the optimum ratio of 14.5 or 15 to 1, which also cuts down on emissions and, Medlock claims, makes the engine run smoother.

Medlock adds that Moen's device, which resembles a miniature guillotine, also puts a tiny ring inside the jet which sprays the gasoline into the engine instead of just letting it flow. This earlier atomizing of the fuel, Medlock claimed, also improves mileage and efficiency.

Moen said a car would lose about 5 percent horsepower at the 14.5 ratio, but that it would not be noticeable.

In an EPA-style road test today at a local car dealership, Moen selected at random a 1977 Ford LTD which had an EPA estimated rating of 10-12 miles per gallon. Moen determined the car had an air-fuel ration of 13.5 or less and, after driving it on a portion of the loop at about 55 miles per hour, determined the gas mileage to be 11.8.

After removing and resizing the jets four-thousandths of an inch in about 15 minutes, the car was driven in the same area at the same speed. This time it got 16.6 miles per gallon, almost a 40 percent increase, and emissions were reduced significantly.

Moen said his process would be most effective on older, larger cars which would need to be driven at 65 mph or less to maintain the higher fuel efficiency. Ideally, he said the procedure should be done at the new car make-ready stage, but most car dealers do not stock the jets or have the training necessary to perform the resizing on a large scale.

Moen and Medlock hope to sell the Lubbock-based firm's idea to national automotive service centers. Moen already has been working with the makers of the scanner he uses to test engines prior to resizing.

hamburgers and they've got a lot of nutrition."

Board member Adolphus Cleveland said he thought the city could more efficiently and effectively operate the program than any other group, that the program was economically sound and is a deterrent to crime because supervised children are not involved in vandalism.

The board voted unanimously in favor of continuation of the program.

"We don't object to their objecting," Cleveland said of the council. "But, we don't object."

In other business, the board approved guidelines for the Living Memorial Fund and an agreement with the Lubbock Memorial Arboretum Foundation. Both documents must have the final approval of the city council.

The board listened to two proposed changes in the administration of the Lubbock Tennis Center. The facility has been losing money over the past three years because of declining attendance, said Parks and Recreation director John Alford.

One way to get the facility to break-even would be to run it like a recreation center where instructors would be brought in rather than have them on the staff.

The second alternative would be to hire a pro, allowing him 90 percent of the total gross, with the city getting 10 percent and paying the utilities.

Currently the city is getting 2 1/2 percent of the pro's fees, he said.

The details of both plans have not been worked out, but the staff will study the alternatives and report back to the board at a later date, Alford said.

Mexicans Hike Natural Gas Export Price

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico on Tuesday said it has raised the price of the natural gas it sells the United States by nearly 8 percent.

The Mexican state petroleum monopoly Pemex said its action was retroactive to Jan. 1 and raised the cost of the gas to $4.8246 per thousand cubic feet from $4.47 per thousand.

Pemex said it sells an average of 300 million cubic feet of gas a day to a consortium of private companies in the U.S. Southwest. The exports comprise about 0.5 percent of U.S. natural gas needs.

A U.S. Energy Department spokesman, who also asked anonymity, said Mexico's increase was expected following the country's decision last month to raise crude oil prices about 11 percent.

"I don't think we have any idea yet of the impact" of the move on American consumers, the spokesman said.

A U.S. government source in Washington, who asked not to be identified, said the price increase is likely "to be a subject of discussion" with Mexico because it may exceed a formula agreed to by both countries. Mexico's export priorities are tied to crude oil prices set by several leading exporters.

The source said the United States may press Mexico to set a gas price of $4.75 per thousand cubic feet.

Mexico's old price had been in force since January 1980, when the country began its exports.

Canada also has been charging $4.47 per thousand cubic feet on the 1 trillion cubic feet of gas it exports annually to the United States. It has agreed to give the United States three months notice before raising prices.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stockmarket drifted lower in a relatively quiet session Tuesday amid doubts about the interest-rate outlook.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial slipped 3.67 to 965.10, and losers outnumbered gainers by about 5-3 margin in the daily tally on the New York Stock Exchange.

But while the general market was listless, some individual issues showed widensings.

Data General, for example tumbled 4 1/2% to 55 1/2 as the 4 p.m. close in New York. The computer manufacturer reported that its earnings in the quarter ended Dec. 20 fell to 81 cents share from $115 in the comparable period a year earlier.

Superior Oil, on the other hand, jumped 1 1/2 to 203. The New York Times reported that the company has an 80 percent interest in possibly significant oil and gas properties in Peru.

Ranchers Exploration & Development climbed 3 1/2 to 32 1/2. The company reported a gold discovery in Arizona.

The majority of stocks retreated as a bit of a letdown settled over the market on the subject of interest-rate prospects.

NEW YORK (AP) — Tuesday's national prices as of NYSE Close Prices and consolidated as of other markets.

Public Broadcasting President Says System's Future Assured

WASHINGTON (AP) — The president of the Public Broadcasting Service, calling commercial television "a vast swamp," said Tuesday it would be wrong for anyone to assume the growth of cable television and reductions in federal funding spell the death of public television.

"There's no question in my mind that public television will survive and flourish," said Lawrence K. Grossman. "We shall always have a pre-eminent need for a service that stands for quality, that serves as a model of excellence, and that represents the very best that our civilization has to offer."

Beyond that philosophical argument, Grossman told the Federal Communications Bar Association that those who predict PBS' death are ignoring its current record audience levels, viewer financial support and new vitality in programming.

"They are also ignoring PBS' knowledge and experience in satisfying a cultural audience and its willingness to take on the competition," Grossman said.

"Twenty years ago, former FCC Chairman Newton Minow called commercial television a 'vast wasteland,'" Grossman said. "Today, I would suggest it as become a vast swampland."

"Too much of what fills our screens is cynical, insulting, vulgar, hedonistic and debasing to the quality of our society," he continued. "Today our country has more need for public television than ever before, and people are responding to that need and turning to us in record numbers."

The PBS president said he was not convinced that ABC and CBS, which have unveiled plans to operate cultural channels for cable television, were being realistic with their revenue projections. And even if they were he said, "it is time we realized just how far head public television actually is in this new environment."

Grossman predicted PBS will be ready to launch its own pay television plan by 1983, a plan that will be based on a partnership between PBS stations and major cultural institutions such as theaters and opera companies, orchestras, museums and universities.

"The Public Subscriber Network" will not rely exclusively on cable but will also use microwave systems, subscription TV stations and low-power stations wherever appropriate, he said.

The service will cost about $10 a month for those who already support local PBS stations; about $12 for non-members. Revenues will be shared by the local stations and the participating cultural institution.

Radio Programming Deregulation Proposal Stirs Controversy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission, at the urging of its outgoing chairman, today will consider a controversial proposal to deregulate the nation's radio stations.

Charles D. Ferris, the Democratic chairman who is sure to be replaced, is trying to fashion a favorable vote in the face of strong opposition by religious and public interest groups. He has also ignored a suggestion by Republican congressmen that the FCC postpone any major votes until Ronald Reagan assumes office.

By any measure, the radio deregulation proposal fits the bill as a major decision. The commission is considering the repeal of internal licensing standards that limit the number of commercials a station can air each hour and which specify minimum amounts of news and public affairs programming.

Also under consideration are the repeal of rules that set out a normal survey procedure for radio stations to follow in ascertaining the needs and concerns of their communities and that impose strict program logging requirements.

The proposal is considered one of the most sweeping ever issued by the FCC because it would substitute some of the agency's strict regulation of individual stations with more reliance on "market-place forces," meaning competition between stations.

The proposal is premised on the fact that the radio industry has now become quite large and diverse, with more than 8,900 stations throughout the country. With that many stations all trying to carve out their own audience with specialized programming like all-news or classical music, the competition appears sufficient to guarantee the public is served, the FCC has suggested.

If adopted the deregulation proposal would have no effect on requirements that all broadcasters must serve the public interest; that radio stations follow the fairness doctrine and equal-time standards; that they not discriminate against women or minorities and that they undergo FCC scrutiny every three years to obtain a new license.

As might be expected, the nation's broadcasters are strongly supporting the proposal. They have gained the backing of the Justice Department and the Council on Wage and Price Stability.

The White House Office of Consumer Affairs and the Commerce Department have opposed the plan, however, and public interest and church groups are convinced the radio stations will ignore news and public service programs if they are not specifically required.

"The current scheme of programming standards helps to assure that all radio listeners, regardless of which station they tune in, are exposed to at least a modicum of news and public affairs programing." White House consumer affairs adviser Esther Peterson argued last year.

The commission was described by one source earlier this week as leaning toward repeal of the commercial, logging and ascertainment guidelines. But it was said to be still debating the question of what to require in lieu of fixed minimum amounts of news and public information programming.

BUILT IN AMERICA FOR AMERICAN'S NEEDS!

WHAT YOU GET WHEN YOU CHOOSE PLYMOUTH FRONT WHEEL DRIVE

11 billion miles of front-wheel-drive experience.

- Our front-wheel-drive technology is known in the industry.
- We have more front-wheel-drive experience in small, U.S. fuel-efficient cars than GM, Ford, AMC, Toyota or Datsun.
- We introduced an American-made, high mileage, front-wheel-drive car two years ahead of GM and three years ahead of Ford.
- We have sold more small, fuel-efficient, front-wheel-drive cars in the U.S. than GM, Ford, Datsun and Toyota.

Outstanding overall est. mpg.

- Plymouth has more front-wheel-drive cars rated over 23 est. mpg than GM, Ford, Toyota, Datsun or VW.
- Plymouth has the highest projected overall mpg of any American car company brand.

Most front-wheel-drive choices in America.

- Plymouth has more 5-passenger front-wheel-drive car models than any other American automobile manufacturer.
- Plymouth has the only 6-passenger, front-wheel-drive cars in America.
- Plymouth offers more front-wheel-drive choices under $6,000 than any other American automobile manufacturer.

Ease and economy of maintenance.

- Plymouth front-wheel-drive K-cars with the standard 2.2 liter Trans-4 engine incorporate ease-of-maintenance features, so you'll probably find your service bills lower than for your previously-owned vehicle.
- Most routine maintenance can easily be done by the driveway mechanic.

Electronic fuel control system.

- Provides smooth engine performance during warm-up.
- Contributes to fuel economy.
- Promotes good acceleration.
- Improves engine performance and smoothness throughout the engine speed range.
- Helps control engine emissions—even before they leave the engine.

1980 Plymouth Horizon with front-wheel drive has terrific gasoline mileage ratings* and more passenger and cargo space than Pinto Runabout or Chevette (based on EPA interior volume index.)

Our special priced 1980 Plymouth Horizon has front bucket seats, 4-speed manual transmission, two-barrel, 4-cylinder 1.7 liter overhead cam engine, remote control mirror, air conditioner, wheel trim rings and white stripe, steel-belted radial tires.

Self-Storage Buildings Thefts Probed

Lubbock police are investigating the burglaries of several self-storage buildings in the city where good worth several thousand dollars may have been stolen.

Helen Faulkner told police four kitchen chairs, a set of dishes, an electric blanket and assorted men's clothing were stolen from a storage building at Southwest Mini-Storage, 5811 49th St.

The loss was estimated at $200, reports show. The intruders apparently used bolt cutters to remove the padlock from the building.

Michael C. Shaw, who rents storage space at the same address, told police two microwave ovens were stolen between 3 p.m. Monday and 8 a.m. Tuesday.

The ovens were worth $900, he said, and police believe the lock at Shaw's storage building also was cut off.

In a similar incident, three buildings at Aardvark Storage, 4433 Brownfield Road, were burglarized Monday night or Tuesday morning.

Manager Stephen Payne told police he had not yet contacted the renters and could not provide an estimate of the loss.

The locks on the three buildings also had been removed with bolt cutters, police said.

A 1978 Ford LTD worth $3,000 was stolen from the home of Krista Henderson, 23, 5410 91st St., reports show. The woman told police the car was stolen from the driveway of her home between 10 p.m. Monday and 9:15 a.m. Tuesday.

A Lubbock man was robbed and threatened with death Monday night by a knife-wielding assailant who later stole the man's van after the two men reportedly had met to look at jewelry.

David Yocum, 43, of 3109 31st St. told sheriff's deputies he and the assailant met in the parking lot of the Stardust Apartments to look at jewelry. When Yocum met the man, described as a white male in his early 20s with fuzzy blonde hair, the man pulled a knife on him, reports said.

Yocum was made to lie down in the back of the van, which belonged to a bakery, as another man entered the van and drove it from the lot.

Reports said the two assailants drove to near Canyon Gin on FM 40 where Yocum was robbed of his wallet and jewelry. The two men then left the victim there and drove away in the van.

Reports said the victim could not say what the second man looked like since Yocum did not have a good vantage point when lying down in the back of the van.

Tests Started On Hormone To Aid Growth

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Adult volunteers are being injected with a growth hormone made by gene-splicing, as scientists for the first time test a substance that they hope will help thousands of dwarfed children.

Ten healthy adults began a series of injections this week at Stanford University Medical Center. Five of them will receive the hormone HGH in its natural form; the others will be injected with the "bio-synthetic" substance made by Genentech Inc., a South San Francisco pioneer of genetic engineering.

The two groups will be switched later in the three-week test period.

The test is the first time one of Genentech's gene-engineering products has been used on humans, said Gary Hooper, a marketing manager.

About 10,000 to 15,000 children in the United States are hypopituitary dwarfs, meaning the pituitary gland, which controls growth, does not produce enough of the hormone.

Until the gene-splicing technique HGH could be obtained only from human cadavers. Thus, treatment of the hormone efficiency has been extremely limited.

Once a hypopituitary dwarf passes puberty, the chances of stimulating normal growth are slim, scientists say.

If the government gives final approval, Genentech hopes to begin marketing the artificially produced HGH sometime in 1982, Hooper said.

The adult test is to see if there are any harmful effects and if the artificially produced hormone works as well as the natural one.

Next month, doctors at medical centers in the United States and Europe will begin testing it on young dwarfs, Hooper said.

Scientists believe HGH can help treat various disorders, including one that causes short stature in some women. But because the natural hormone is so precious, human testing has been limited.

Genentech first made HGH in 1979, he said.

Caterer Requests Contract Release

DALLAS (AP) — A caterer has asked commissioner to release him from a contract with the Dallas County Detention Center because he claims food has been sabotaged after delivery.

Ron Wall, owner of Wall's Catering, said Monday someone at the center was tampering with the food to ruin his company's reputation.

"There's something very fishy going on here, and we want no part of it," Wall said.

County officials said last week that spoiled, uncooked and contaminated food was being delivered to the detention center by Wall's.

But Al Richard, director of the county juvenile department, said, "It's difficult to sabotage food by making rolls moldy or ham appear off-color."

The wonderful thing about America is that sooner or later, everyone's dream can come true. Congratulations, President-elect Ronald Reagan.

George Bush Assesses Likely Role In New Administration

WASHINGTON (UPI) — George Bush predicted Tuesday he will be an active and influential vice president who enjoys Ronald Reagan's confidence, but that he will not try to become a powerful public figure in the new administration.

In an interview one week before being sworn in as vice president, Bush said Reagan has talked to him about assignments in the areas of foreign policy, intelligence and congressional liaison in addition to his constitutional job of presiding over the Senate.

Bush also said he wants to help Reagan with the major economic plan which he predicts will be the new administration's No. 1 objective for its first 100 days.

"I want to get to work," Bush said, expressing the wish that the inaugural ceremonies and the 30-odd parties, balls, ceremonies and other events he must attend in the next week were over.

"I want to be a useful, informed, active, substantive vice president," he said.

But the former U.N. ambassador and liaison to China described his new role as that of a low-key presidential helper who will stay out of the limelight.

"I want to be helpful to the president," he said. "And that's the best and really only thing to do. If you're not, he views you as something of a problem, the whole mechanics of the thing works that you don't have anything to do, useful, except (to view) the world's biggest turkey ... but you can't help solve the biggest problems. And I want to do the latter."

In an office around the corner from Blair House where Reagan stays when he's in town, Bush said he has developed a comfortable relationship with his new boss since they teamed up almost six months ago.

"There is no real problem ... we've been on the same wave length," he said. "That's a tribute to Governor Reagan, the way he reached out to me."

Have there been differences?

"Sure, just as there will be in the future. The reason I think I have the confidence of the president is that he's not reading about them (the differences) in the UPI. I think it's the kind of thing where a good confidential relationship is one in which you speak up and make differences, but the two people there don't think one or the other is going to run out and make it public."

"He's very easy to do that with," Bush said.

Bush defends Reagan against charges he has been remote from his advisers during the transition.

"I know he's been involved. He's made the final Cabinet decisions," Bush said.

"He's not going to be worrying about every detail. We are in for a different kind of president. He really does want to get more of an active Cabinet approach and I think he wants to have conflicts of ideas debated in front of him," he said.

Bush said he can learn a lot from the way his predecessor handled the job.

"Vice President Mondale set a standard that none other has achieved," he said. "I'd like to see certain ingredients of his vice presidency be part of what I try to do — access to the president, confidential relationship, not out there posturing, trying to build himself up."

Like Mondale, Bush has been assured he will have some status not given other vice presidents — a seat on the National Security Council, an office in the White House and a vice presidential staffer sitting in on all White House senior staff meetings.

"You know the whole thing is to knock the vice president, and everybody laughs," Bush said. "I keep saying to myself, that's true, but everybody seems to want to be that. So here I am. Now try to be useful."

Black Nominee Supports Curbed Social Programs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Samuel Pierce, whose nomination to head the Housing and Urban Development Department makes him the only black in Ronald Reagan's cabinet, Tuesday joined the Republican chorus demanding spending cuts in social programs.

But Pierce, 58, promised "we will not turn our backs on the needy."

Pierce said his department's spending might have to be cut 10 percent, but he agreed with Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, chairman of the Housing and Urban Affairs Committee, that it is possible to get more housing with less money by slashing red tape.

His suggested budget cuts are in the $125 million solar energy program, air conditioning of federally assisted apartments and housing aid to cities that impose rent controls.

Pierce also said he expects the Reagan administration to propose strengthening existing fair housing laws, and said he opposes a suggestion from some transition aides and others that the problems of declining industrial cities could be solved by encouraging people to move to the thriving Sun Belt.

Pierce, a former New York judge who served as an assistant labor secretary in the Eisenhower administration and as general counsel to the Treasury Department under Richard Nixon, was assured of unanimous backing in the committee when Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., who voted against three of the last four HUD secretaries, said he supports the nomination.

Garn planned to poll the committee by telephone.

Pierce said his top priority will be to look at all HUD Programs "with a view toward cutting unnecessary costs."

Asked if a 10 percent cut in his budget is realistic, the nominee agreed, "We may have to cut like that. I'm sure there is going to be a substantial cut."

But Pierce said he would resign if the administration reduced HUD programs to a degree he could not accept.

"I'm a man of principle. If I couldn't agree, I would have to leave the administration," he said.

He said spending cuts will be aimed at the more prosperous among those eligible for housing assistance. "We will not turn our backs on the needy — the people who are poor and old, et cetera," he said. "When we have to make cuts we will be cutting the more affluent."

Robbery Suspect Arrested

Lubbock's first convenience store robbery of the year saw swift retribution Tuesday, with the money recovered and the suspected assailant captured by city police within 17 minutes of the event.

The 7-Eleven convenience store at 313 N. Detroit Ave. was robbed at gunpoint around 6 a.m. Tuesday, said Bill Morgan, police public information officer.

The two employees of the store, Bobby Don Nabors, 48, of 2218 10th St. and Milton Harris, 21, of 2928 E. Colgate St. told police a masked gunman wearing a black overcoat and white mask entered the store and demanded money.

The employees told police the man said "Don't give me any trouble or I'll kill you. I want the money."

The registers were opened and $121 in cash and $2 in food stamps were put in a brown paper bag. The gunman then ran north from the store.

Officers were contacted at 6:08 a.m. and were at the scene one minute later. Two minutes after that, a man matching the description of the robber was seen and taken into custody in an alley near the 2700-block of Dartmouth Street.

At 6:25 a.m., police found the stainless steel handgun and paper bag with the money in a backyard in the 2700-block of Dartmouth Street. A black raincoat was found beside a dumpster in the alley of the 2800-block of Dartmouth Street and a white rag matching the description of the mask of the robbery suspect was found in the same dumpster.

The suspect was taken to Lubbock County Jail and booked on suspicion of robbery. The man was described as a 34-year-old Mexican-American male.

TECH UPS SWC MARK TO 3-1 Defense Keys Raider Win

By CHUCK McDONALD
Assistant Sports Editor

After 17 consecutive victories over the TCU Horned Frogs, the Texas Tech basketball team apparently expected the Frogs to do little more than show up for Tuesday night's Southwest Conference encounter at the Municipal Coliseum.

The Raiders couldn't have been more wrong. The Frogs showed up all right — and shot the lights out in the first half to go ahead 29-22 over the lackluster Raiders.

Oh, Tech managed to somehow escape with a 57-54 victory, but win No. 18 was anything but pretty.

Steve Smith hit both ends of a clutch one-and-one with only 13 seconds left to play and TCU missed three attempts in the final 10 seconds as the Raiders rode a gutsy defensive performance to the their third league win in four attempts.

Tech is now tied with Houston for second in the SWC, both team are 3-1 after the Cougars fell 72-70 to SMU in triple overtime Tuesday in Dallas. Overall the Raiders are 9-4 while the Frogs fall to 4-10 and 1-3. Baylor, a 72-61 victor over Rice on Tuesday, leads the league at 3-0.

"It was a very important comeback for us," said Tech coach Gerald Myers. "In the first half we were just trying to do things do easy — we were sloppy, and our defense was not effective."

That ineffective zone defense allowed the Frogs to hit 63.6 of their first half efforts so the Raiders came out for the final half in a more serious man-to-man alignment.

While the Raider defense forced the Frogs into eight costly turnovers, Tech got its desperately needed offensive boost from freshman Bubba Jennings and junior Clarence Swannegan.

Leading 42-36 after a Browder 30-foot-er, the Frog sophomore finished with 18 points to lead all scorers. TCU saw its lead begin to melt.

Jennings hit his second long jumper in a row to cut the gap to 42-38 and then Ben Hill hit one of two free throws to make it 42-39.

On the defensive end, Jeff Taylor swatted a Browder shot out of the sky where Jennings fell under it, drove the court and put in a short jumper to make it 42-41 with 10:40 left to play. Twenty seconds later, Taylor again pulled the feat on Browder and this time it was Swannegan who dropped in a 10-footer to put Tech ahead 43-42.

Jennings, who hit six of seven attempts in the final 20 minutes, and Swannegan (who was five of six in the second half) finished with 16 and 14 points respectively to pace the Raiders.

"Bubba and Clarence hit some key baskets," admitted Myers. "But really it was our defense in the second half that won the game for us."

"Jeff Taylor did not have a good game shooting the ball (Taylor was two of nine from the floor) but he sure made some big plays on defense."

TCU came back to tie the score at 43-43 when Warren Bridges, who had 16 for the visitors, hit one of two freebies but another of Swannegan's soft jumpers put Tech back on top 45-43 with 9:27 left. The Frogs came within a single point on two different occasions after that, but Tech would not fall behind again.

"I thought we had one or two crucial turnovers at the wrong time," said TCU coach Jim Killingsworth. "Actually I thought we played better in the second half than in the first."

Leading 53-49, the Raiders twice misfired on attempted alley-oop passes from Smith to Ralph Brewster and when Browder made good on a three-point play, TCU had cut the gap to 53-52 with 4:26 remaining.

Then things really got wild. Taylor tossed up a brick on the Tech end, but came back to strip Browder of the ball on the TCU end of the floor. Once more the Raiders tried the alley-oop pass to Brewster and this time it worked for a 55-52 advantage.

Taylor was whistled for a charging foul though, and Bridges followed in a Browder miss to make it a narrow 55-54 game with 1:38 left to play.

Slowly but surely, Tech worked the clock down till the last 13 seconds — five time outs were called in the process — when Smith was hit in the face and the officials ruled that a one-and-one was in order.

While Myers screamed that it should've been a two-shot foul, Smith stepped calmly to the line and hit nothing but net both times for the final margin.

"I knew that they were going to foul me so I just held onto the ball because the seconds were running off," said Smith, who finished with 10 points. "I knew I had to hit those free throws."

"TCU has improved greatly since last year," said Myers. "They played with more confidence and were just better than a year ago."

"We underestimated TCU," said Smith. "They have a good ball team."

That was obvious in the first half — which was a total disaster for the Raiders. The bad news started when Hill stepped to the free throw line 1:08 into the contest and casually missed a pair of free throws to leave TCU's early 2-0 lead intact.

Tech tied the game for the last time on Swannegan's only bucket of the first half at 10:10 with 11:18 to go, but the Frogs took control as Bridges and Larry Frevert canned buckets to make it 14-10.

Jennings hit from 20 feet but the Frogs got four points from Deckery Johnson, who finished the night with 12, and led 20-14. Browder, who had nine in the first half, made good on a three-point play to stretch the margin to 23-16.

At that point Myers inserted five fresh faces into the game, putting senior Leslie Nichols and junior college transfer Ricky Guy inside along with Joe Washington, Dwight Williams and Nelson Franse.

Baskets by Williams, Nichols and Washington kept the margin at seven points as Tech trailed by a 29-22 margin at intermission.

"I put the entire new team in during the first half because I had told them in practice yesterday (Monday) I would," said Myers.

Beavers Garner No. 1 Position

By The Associated Press

Ralph Miller admits that being No. 1 is something you have to work toward. He should know: it's taken him 30 years to get there.

Miller's undefeated Oregon State team edge Virginia for the No. 1 position in The Association Press college basketball poll Tuesday as DePaul, which held the top spot for the past six weeks, tumbled to No. 4 after a shocking loss to unheralded Old Dominion last Saturday.

"This is the first time any one of my teams in 30 years has had the No. 1 ranking," Miller said in a telephone interview. "You work for it. It's something that anyone who works in basketball works toward."

Oregon State, 12-0 and ranked second last week, collected 39 of 61 first-place votes and 1,197 points of a possible 1,220 in the balloting by a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. Virginia, 11-0 and No. 3 last week, was 28 points back after collecting 20 first-place votes.

"All of our state is enjoying it (being No. 1)," said Miller, who is in his 11th year as head coach of the Beavers. "The state has a population of two million, and they've all been looking forward to it."

Miller hopes his players aren't blinded by No. 1.

"I don't know what the difference between No. 1 and No. 2 will be," Miller said, "but I hope it won't be serious. We have gained lots of experience, and the ranking should be no problem if we don't change our attitude."

Preseason favorite Kentucky jumped from fourth to third with 1,041 points. The Wildcats, 10-1, defeated Auburn and edged Tennessee 48-47 last week.

CHAP LUNCHEONS RESUME

The Lubbock Christian College athletic department will resume its weekly media luncheons today at noon on the LCC campus. The luncheons will continue every Wednesday throughout the spring.

DePaul collected the final two first-place votes despite the 63-62 loss to Old Dominion and received 1,002 points — 12 more than undefeated Wake Forest, 12-0.

Louisiana State, 12-1, climbed from ninth to sixth this week, while Notre Dame, UCLA, Michigan and Maryland rounded out the Top 10.

The Irish, a 54-52 loser to Marquette last week, slipped from No. 5 to seventh with 690 points — 15 more than UCLA, which was stunned by Southern Cal 68-66 and dropped one notch to No. 8. Michigan, knocked from the undefeated ranks by Purdue last week, edged Maryland for the No. 9 slot. The Wolverines got 597 points, while the Terps, who were beaten by North Carolina, 75-66, received 583 points.

Tennessee jumped three positions in the poll and headed the Second 10. Arizona State was 12th, followed by South Alabama, Iowa, Brigham Young, Utah, North Carolina, Illinois, Clemson and Minnesota.

Last week, the Second 10 was Iowa, Illinois, Tennessee, Arizona State, South Alabama, North Carolina, Brigham Young, Utah, Minnesota and Clemson.

There were no newcomers in this week's Top 20.

New Yorker First Pick In Major League Draft

NEW YORK (AP) — A left-handed pitcher who celebrated his 20th birthday on New Year's Day was the No. 1 selection Tuesday in the regular phase of baseball's 16th annual amateur winter draft.

James Rooney of Stony Point, N.Y., who will graduate in June from Morris Community College in Dover, N.J., was picked first by the Chicago Cubs.

"It's pretty prestigious to consider that you're the first guy picked in the entire nation," said Rooney. "That's what creates most of the excitement."

For St. Louis, picking first in the secondary phase of the draft, the excitement was created by catcher Harry McCulla, another 20-year-old, who attends Delgado Junior College in New Orleans.

Selected by Atlanta last June, McCulla did not sign at that time. But the Cardinals were more successful with the native of Houma, La., and announced before the end of the second round that they had signed the young receiver.

Rooney describes himself as a control pitcher.

"I think I have pretty good control," he said. "I throw pretty hard but I don't look at myself totally as an overpowering pitcher. I usually move the ball around and try to set up hitters."

Rooney said he would negotiate for himself with the Cubs and did not have an agent or a lawyer. "I'm just going to talk to them man-to-man," he said.

After the Cubs picked Rooney, Seattle selected shortstop Brett McAfee from Merced (Calif.) College. McAfee was the first of 10 straight California players chosen in the first round. In all, 15 of the 26 regular phase first rounders were Californians.

Included in that group were a pair of batterymates. Atlanta made catcher Terry Cormack from Long Beach City College the 11th choice in the opening round. One selection later, Pittsburgh picked Cormack's teammate, right-handed pitcher Brian Reams.

There were other sets of teammates picked in the first round.

The New York Mets, picking No. 3, chose Randy Milligan and Kansas City, with the No. 24 selection, took Richard Rizzo. Both are outfielders from Mesa Community College.

California and Los Angeles each picked a pair of right-handed pitchers from Cosumnes River College in Sacramento, Calif. The Angels, with the fourth pick, took Kevin Price, and the Dodgers, drafting No. 21, selected Kevin White.

San Francisco, choosing ninth, took right-handed pitcher Mel White from Fullerton Junior College and Oakland, with the No. 16 choice, went shopping at the same school, picking shortstop Steve Kiefer.

Another Merced player, left-handed pitcher Nick Brandt, was selected by the Cubs in the secondary phase. Also in the secondary phase, Seattle chose Thor Edgell, a right-handed pitcher, who became the third player picked from Fullerton JC.

Philadelphia's world champions selected a right-handed pitcher from Antelope Valley Junior College in Lancaster, Calif. His name is Eric Schmidt but the Phils insist he's no relation to their Most Valuable Player, third baseman Mike Schmidt.

Cardinal Tormentor Now Club's Top Ace

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Bruce Sutter, the spit-fingered fastballer who regularly threw roadblocks into the plans of St. Louis while a member of the Chicago Cubs, will be a Cardinals tormentor no more.

The National League's 1979 Cy Young Award winner took a break Tuesday from house-hunting to make it clear his hopes are high with a club he stopped five times in relief last summer.

"It's the object of every ballplayer in the major leagues — not to be the highest-paid player but to be on a winning team," the 28-year-old hurler said. "I hope I will be here. If I do my job, I think we have as good a chance as anybody."

Sutter, who in 1979 tied an NL record with 37 saves, was introduced at a news conference with Whitey Herzog, the St. Louis manager and general manager, at his side.

"I've talked to Mike Roarke; I've talked to Hermie Franks," Herzog said of two former close Sutter associates. "We used about 17 guys last year to get 27 saves. Bruce got more than that by himself."

Sutter, who also led the NL with 28 saves in 1980, was acquired by the Cards last month as the bona fide stopper out of the bullpen the club has long been seeking.

Earlier, in a multiplayer deal, St. Louis also dealt for Rollie Fingers of the San Diego Padres, another leading reliever. Less than a week later, however, Fingers was sent to the Milwaukee Brewers along with All-Star catcher Ted Simmons.

Sutter said he envisions no problems in pitching on the artificial turf at Busch Stadium in a shift of terrain from natural grass at Chicago.

"The grass infield at Wrigley Field slowed the ball down," he said. "If anything, it's going to make the choppers be fielded instead of stopping on the grass."

While with Chicago, the won-loss record compiled by Sutter in nearly five full seasons was 32-30 to go with 133 saves and an earned run average of 2.40.

"I don't see any problems here. I'm just going to keep the ball down and hope somebody catches it," the NL's winning pitcher in 1978 and 1979 All-Star games said. "I don't know if I'm the answer, but I certainly think I'm going to help the club."

Contract negotiations by the right-hander, who went to arbitration a year ago in order to pull down a $700,000 salary at Chicago, were not discussed.

"Whether I sign a contract or not, I'm going to buy a house here," a confident Sutter said. "I've always liked playing in St. Louis. They have a good, high mound here. There's a good dropoff. All you've got to do is stay low."

Durham Hopes To Add Punch To Cubs' Attack

DES MOINES Iowa (AP) — Leon Durham, acquired to give the Chicago Cubs some more batting punch, says he feels no pressure to produce just because he was traded for Bruce Sutter.

Durham says he's taking the attitude that he'll be himself, work as hard as he can and hope for the best.

The 23-year-old Durham, seen as an excellent prospect by the Cubs, came to Chicago from St. Louis in December long with infielders Ken Reitz and Ty Waller in exchange for Sutter, one of baseball's premier relief pitchers.

"I know the Cubs are looking for help from me," said Durham, who is ticketed for right field. "I'm not saying I'm better than Bruce Sutter, but it makes me look good to go for a guy like that. Bruce Sutter is nobody to mess around with."

"But there's nothing I have to change just because I was traded for him. I'm just going to go out and play baseball. I'm going to stay the same. I'm going to stay Leon Durham and do the things I'm capable of doing. I feel good about coming to Chicago."

Durham said "even if they traded me for Reggie Jackson, I wouldn't have any pressure on me."

"I'm going to work hard very day," he added. "There's a lot to be done and I want to help this team."

Durham, who is nicknamed "Bull," was in Des Moines to join a Cubs promotional tour. Manger Joe Amalfitano also was in the group and it was the first time they had met face-to-face since Durham was acquired.

"I finally got to shake hands with Leon Duham," Amalfitano said. "I like his handshake. If that's any indicator, he's going to do a great job for us."

A 6-foot-1, 185-pounder, Durham batted 277 and hit eight home runs in 87 games as a rookie for the Cardinals last season. He started the season at Springfield, where he was the American Association Rookie of the Year in 1979 after hitting 310 and slugging 23 home runs.

Durham is expected to improve his home run total at Wrigley Field, which is a power hitter's delight when the wind is blowing out. Although he has set no goals for home runs, Durham said he is anxious to hit in the Northside park.

"Every day and every night I think about playing in Wrigley Field," he said, a smile flashing across his face. "I'm looking forward to going there. I hit my first major league home run here off (Lynn) McGlothlen."

Davis-Rozelle Meeting 'Frosty'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — National Football League commissioner Pete Rozelle and Oakland Raiders' managing partner Al Davis met in a frosty encounter Tuesday before opening arguments to a federal judge trying to resolve a lawsuit aimed at freeing the Raiders to move to Los Angeles.

Rozelle, Davis and William Robertson, head of the Los Angeles Coliseum Commission, met in the chambers of U.S. Appellate Judge Harry Pregerson. Rozelle was accompanied by Billy Sullivan, owner of the New England Patriots, and Wellington Mara, owner of the New York Giants.

In the first time the two have met since the suit was filed, Rozelle said,

"Hi, Al," but Davis simply ignored his long-time foe and walked away.

Former San Francisco mayor Joseph Alioto, representing Davis, told reporters he did not expect a settlement Tuesday.

Also present were attorneys for the NFL and the Los Angeles Coliseum commission, the other principals in the antitrust suit, which was filed by the Super Bowl-bound Raiders and the Coliseum against the NFL. The suit, filed last January, argues that the league's rule requiring three-fourths of the teams to approve a franchise move is a violation of antitrust laws.

First into the judge's chambers were Rozelle and his legal aides. Pregerson was to meet with Davis and the Coliseum group later in the day.

A federal court in Los Angeles granted the commission an injunction against the NFL, but in December the 9th U.S. Court of Appeals reversed the injunction.

The case is scheduled to go to trial in Los Angeles Feb. 9.

Davis, whose lease with the Oakland Coliseum has expired, claims that by moving to the larger Los Angeles Coliseum the Raiders could make nearly $50 million over the next 10 years.

The Raiders planned the move despite consistent capacity crowds through the years in Oakland. Attendance dropped off early in the 1980 season in an apparent reaction to the planned move, but picked up toward the end.

More than 8,000 fans greeted the team at the Oakland airport following Sunday's American Conference championship victory at San Diego.

Rozelle and Davis have been at odds since the mid 1960s, when Davis, the commissioner of the American Football League, forced a merger with the NFL, headed by Rozelle.

Rozelle has been an outspoken critic of Davis' plan to uproot the Raiders after 20 years in Oakland, calling it "anarchistic" and claiming that if the Raiders move, any team could finish its lease and take bids from other cities.

Davis has been equally vocal in claiming that Rozelle has undermined his plans.

Vermiel, Philadelphia Confident

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Will the Philadelphia Eagles be able to enjoy their first trip to the Super Bowl?

"There is only one way to enjoy a football game and that's to win," said Eagles coach Dick Vermeil.

"And I've only been in this kind of situation one other time and that was the Rose Bowl," he added.

Vermiel's UCLA team upset Ohio State in the 1976 Rose Bowl, less than two months before he took the Eagles' coaching job.

Vermiel recalled that his Rose Bowl team almost had a walkout before the game.

"They thought I was crazy the way we were preparing for the football game," Vermiel said. "But that's my responsibility, to prepare them to win. The only way you have a good time is to win."

"I don't care about all the parties, celebration, champagne. You can do that any time in your life. But you can't always win a Rose Bowl, and you can't always win a Super Bowl.

"It's an amazing thing. None of us have a guarantee of being back here next year, because all four teams who played in the conference championship games a year ago didn't play in them this year. So, if you get that opportunity, you better take advantage of it," Vermiel said.

He added, however, there was no question in his mind that the Eagles would enjoy going to the Super Bowl.

"But we will go down there for one reason. That's to play the best of our ability, and we'll play better than we did in beating Dallas (for the National Football Conference title)," Vermiel said.

The Eagles dominated the Cowboys 20-7 Sunday, sending them into the Super Bowl against the Oakland Raiders in the Louisiana Superdome Jan. 25.

Vermiel was asked if he was concerned that his players might be caught up in the massive week-long pregame hype for the game.

"No. I don't think we'll have any trouble," Vermiel replied.

"This is a very disciplined football team. Now, we're not the kind of team that is going to get off the airplane as the best-dressed group. John Bunting (linebacker) is going to look terrible. Jerry Sisemore (offensive tackle) is going to be in a Texas tuxedo. Guys will be in dungarees and a T-shirt. We are not hung up on all those things."

Vermiel said that overall the discipline of the organization was very good and he was not concerned about his players' ability to handle the off-field activities. He said he never had a curfew or a bed check during the practice time the team spent at Tampa, Fla., before the conference playoff games.

Pass-Oriented Gibbs Assumes Washington Coaching Position

WASHINGTON (AP) — Joe Gibbs got the job he wanted Tuesday — head coach of the Washington Redskins. Now, all he needs is the players to make it work.

At a hastily called news conference, the Redskins introduced the 40-year-old Gibbs, offensive coordinator for the San Diego Chargers, as their new head coach, replacing Jack Pardee, who was fired following the 1980 season.

"This was the job I wanted. This is where I belong," said Gibbs.

Terms of his multiyear contract were not announced, but sources placed the five-year package in excess of $100,000 per year.

Gibbs listed formation of his staff and meeting with Redskins' players as his first priorities.

Tuesday, Redskins general manager Bobby Beathard announced the rehiring of defensive secondary coach Richie Peterson. The Redskins ranked first in pass defense in the National Football League in 1980.

An assistant coach for 17 years in college and the pros, Gibbs has understudied under the likes of Frank Broyles at Arkansas, Bill Peterson at Florida State, John McKay at Southern California, and command, an area of contention which is believed to have led to the dismissal of Pardee, and the general direction of the club. When the meeting ended, the Redskins had a new coach and Gibbs was left with the problem of implementing his high-powered, pass-oriented offense into the Redskins' game plan.

At San Diego, Gibbs drew plays for standout quarterback Dan Fouts to throw to a trio of talented receivers — Charlie Joiner, Kellen Winslow and John Jefferson. With Fouts working behind an offensive line that gave him the time to pick apart defenses, the Chargers became the first team in NFL history to average over 400 yards per game in total offense.

Hotel Rates Up For Super Bowl

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Increased hotel room rates are a fact of life wherever big events are involved, even when there is a concerted effort to hold the line, said the mayor of this year's Super Bowl city.

"I think we have to understand that we are dealing with a free market economy in this country," said mayor Ernest Morial.

However, he said that New Orleans officials have tried to keep Super Bowl hotel rates comparable to special-event rates in other cities.

The mayor's comments came in response to an NBC feature aired between last Sunday's National Football League conference championship games.

The feature reported that the Rault Center Hotel in New Orleans was asking $990 for a four-day stay. Rault Center is within walking distance of the Superdome, where Super Bowl XV will be played Jan. 25.

Joseph Rault Jr., owner of the business district hotel, said the price was for a four-person suite and included breakfast each morning, a catered cocktail party, tours of the city and Superdome, round-trip transportation to the airport, baggage handling and souvenir glasses.

Jim Jones, hotel manager, said a double room rents for $110 a night, including breakfast.

Lee Dennis, who aired the story, said he included a disclaimer saying that "larger hotels in New Orleans have held the line on prices."

Joseph Fredrick, president of the New Orleans Hotel-Motel Association, said Dennis and his camerawoman were quoted a price of $93 a night when they checked at the New Orleans Hilton.

Alborn Claims 'No Interest' In NTSU Job

HOUSTON (AP) — Rice University football coach Ray Alborn, whose name has been mentioned in connection with the vacant head coaching job at North Texas State University, said Tuesday he's happy at Rice and intends to stay.

"I have not heard from anybody and I am not a candidate for any other job," Alborn said before leaving on a recruiting trip. "I am honored my name keeps coming up for other coaching jobs, but I am not a candidate for anywhere else."

Alborn earlier was considered for the Texas Tech head coaching job before the position was taken by former North Texas State coach Jerry Moore.

Alborn, whose Owls finished with a 5-6 season last year after being picked for last place, currently is in contract negotiations with Rice athletic director Augie Erforth, who says he's offered Alborn a three-year pact.

The Owls lost 23 players to graduation last season and Alborn already has added seven junior college transfers and has welcomed two former starters back to school after a year's scholastic ineligibility.

Offensive guard Paul Garcia and defensive lineman Ernest Crockett have returned to school.

Junior college enrollees are linemen Doug Halcomb, 6-2, 242, Blinn Junior College; Doak Stay, 6-4, 245, Groesmont, Calif.; Junior College; Dan Edling, 6-2, 240, Navarro Junior College; running back Terry Nezy, 5-10, 175, Taft Junior College; quarterback Mike Calhoun, 6-1, 175, Taft, and defensive back Brian Mica, 6-0, 180, Blinn.

NCAA Convention Adopts Controversial Package

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The NCAA assimilated women's athletics in a historic move Tuesday, bringing females into its governing structure and voting to have women's championships.

Tuesday morning, after a long and heated debate, a package of proposals termed "governance" was adopted that will place women in the upper levels of NCAA management.

But the most bizarre event came later when Division I delegates voted to sponsor women's championships after first defeating the proposal by a one-vote margin.

Ironically, the motion to reconsider was made by Bob Steidel, faculty representative from Cal-Berkeley, who first voted against it and apparently was seeking to insure its defeat.

The Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women had bitterly opposed the NCAA's entry into what it considered its private domain.

Donna Lopiano of the University of Texas and the AIAW president, attempted to shrug off the crushing setback.

"The suggestion that women will have a choice as to whether they want to be with AIAW or NCAA is ridiculous," she said. "There will be no choice for many, I'm afraid."

The drama began unfolding as a move led by Mrs. Lopiano to reorder the agenda was defeated. The governance proposals, which immediately will place about 215 women in such key committees as the NCAA Council, Executive Committee and Infractions Committee, was passed by a vote of 369-169 when first taken. A recount was requested, since the measure required a two-thirds majority. The recount brought in a 383-168 vote, or 69.5 percent.

The convention moved on to a number of important recruiting proposals until it came to number 72, the Division I women's championships.

Frank Broyles, athletic director and former football coach at Arkansas, spoke forcefully against its adoption, slamming at the NCAA's contention that each school would have a choice to go with NCAA or AIAW championships.

"I've never seen such a power play, such a blitzkrieg, as I've seen here today," Broyles said. "I wish I'd had such a power play when I was coaching football."

At the core of the issue was the difference in NCAA and AIAW recruiting rules. The AIAW allows no off-campus recruiting, while the NCAA, of course, does.

"Let me clear up once and for all that we have no choice in national championships," Broyles said. "Any coach knows he's got to meet the competition. Most everybody will choose the NCAA route. There is no option."

His voice thundering, Broyles declared, "There is no option. Believe me, there is no option. You're asking women to join a method of recruiting that has driven men out of college and we may have to double the enforcement staff."

Linda Estes, women's athletic director at New Mexico and one of a beleaguered minority of women who has supported the NCAA's entry, argued that the Division I championships only made sense in light of the governance passage. Finally, the vote was taken and came to a 124-124 tie. A second vote and a careful counting defeated the measure 128-127 and Broyles jumped to his feet and gave the familiar Arkansas victory cry.

Mrs. Lopiano moments later was holding an impromptu news conference outside the hall, hailing Broyles as being the deciding factor in the vote when the most bizarre incident of the day occurred.

Steidel asked that the proposal be reconsidered, believing, according to several observers, that a second consideration on Tuesday would have no chance of passage, whereas the vote might be overturned today.

But in the meantime, Division II and III schools voted overwhelmingly not to rescind women's championships in five sports, which they had voted to sponsor at the 1980 convention. And, perhaps most significantly, all three divisions had voted to sponsor women's championships in fencing, golf and lacrosse. This meant that Division I schools could send their female athletes to those championships in Division II and III.

The vote to reconsider wound up 137-117 in favor.

Mrs. Lopiano, Broyles and other opponents seemed momentarily stunned.

"It's going to cost the major football powers," said Broyles. "They're going to fund their national championships for all divisions from the football and basketball."

NCAA officials on Monday had told the convention the funding would come from existing NCAA programs and revenues generated by a Sunday newspaper supplement on football and basketball which the NCAA would produce along with NCAA souvenir and momentos that will be sold.

"I've never found great money in souvenirs," said Broyles.

Mrs. Lopiano said the turnaround on Division I championships meant the AIAW would have to work harder to keep its members.

"If Division I championships didn't pass it would have given us one more year to breathe," she said. "Now we've got to go back and make our championships even better. Ten years ago, the men told us don't get involved in off campus recruiting. Now they're putting women in the same basket."

The women who had fought for the NCAA's programs seemed in a state of happy exhaustion.

"This is just the first step," said Judie Holland of UCLA. "Now we've got a lot of work to do, let's get to it. And I have nothing but respect for the women who fought on the other side. They were very worthy opponents."

The convention will conclude today with proposals mostly related to football and coaching limitations.

Football Schools Defeat Need Proposal

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The nation's major football schools protected their interests with a determined goal-line stand Tuesday when the National Collegiate Athletic Association rejected another attempt to make financial need the basis for awarding athletic scholarships.

In voting that was not as close as anticipated, delegates to the NCAA's annual convention from Division I and II rejected a claim by Dr. Charles Lein, president of the University of South Dakota, that continuing the present system "full ride" athletic grants could kill non-revenue sports.

Heeding warnings that awarding athletic scholarships based on need would lead to rampant cheating — "it could destroy the game of football as we know it," said Frank Broyles, athletic director and former head coach at Arkansas — Division I voted 148-101 against the need proposal, while the Division II count was 72-47. Division III adopted need several years ago.

The delegates also acceded to the wishes of the College Football Association — 61 major football schools — by restricting in-person recruiting off the college campus to the months of December, January and February. Additional off-campus evaluation of prospects is permissible in May and Aug. 1-Dec. 1, but without contacts.

Off-campus basketball recruiting was limited to the periods from Aug. 1-Oct. 1 and March 1-May 15, with additional no-contact evaluation permitted from June 15-Aug. 1 and Dec. 1-March 1.

In a compromise proposal, the delegates voted to give football coaches three more in-person visits to a prospect — in addition to the current three — provided the new ones take place at his high school and with its permission.

That piece of legislation also abolished the early signing date for a conference letter of intent enjoyed by the Southeastern and Atlantic Coast Conferences, as well as by a number of Southern independents. Traditionally used to signing on the second Saturday in December, those schools must now subscribe to the national signing day, the third Wednesday of February — which other leagues recognize as their conference signing dates.

"We were very strongly against it," said Sal Bailey, assistant athletic director at the University of Alabama. "It extends our recruiting for the year and we don't want the added expense of recruiting for two more months."

Broyles said the early signing date gave Southern schools "a tremendous advantage," against colleges outside their area.

Broyles, Penn State coach Joe Paterno and the Rev. Edmund P. Joyce, executive vice president of Notre Dame, led the fight against the proposed need legislation which would have exempted tuition costs, but not room and board.

"Anybody in this organization can go on need anytime they want to," Broyles said. All three indicated that financial aid based on need would be difficult, if not impossible, to administer.

"If a financial officer of a particular institution had the ability to change a grant," Paterno said, "you're naive, if you think I'm gonna sit back and look at another coach manipulating his financial officer without something happening."

Rev. Joyce said a need rule would create "an aura of mistrust," adding, "its the hype of folly to say that football doesn't play a unique role in our institutions and a similar case can be made for basketball."

Rejecting attempts to compare football players with other students, he said:

"A football player at a majority of institutions is in quite a different position than a student seeking normal financial aid. We don't give other students more than they need, but in football the shoe is on the other foot. We actively seek a player's services because of the talents he possesses. He helps bring in millions of dollars in revenue, which works to the benefit of his fellow students and helps

New Orleans GM Says Phillips 'Leading Candidate' For Position

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Steve Rosenbloom, general manager of the New Orleans Saints, said Tuesday the National Football League team hopes to name its new head coach next week, and Bum Phillips is the leading candidate.

The two are in Mobile, Ala., for the Senior Bowl.

"He's right next door to me," Rosenbloom said in a telephone interview. "I'm going to take the opportunity to get together with him."

Phillips, fired from his job with the Houston Oilers, has had at least two talks with team owner John Mecom Jr. about the coaching job with the Saints.

Mecom said Phillips is the favorite in the race for the job as coach, but he emphasized that the Saints already have a general manager.

Rosenbloom said he saw no potential struggle for control of the team if Phillips is hired. He said he still has not completed interviewing candidates for the job, but hopes to be ready to make an announcement next week, prior to Super Bowl XV on Jan. 25.

"I'm very excited that Bum Phillips became available," Rosenbloom said Tuesday. "Obviously, he is the one person of everyone we will talk to who has had success as a head coach in this league."

He said he would never have been a stumbling block to the hiring of Phillips as coach to replace Dick Nolan, fired with four games to go in the season when the Saints were 0-12.

There was speculation that Rosenbloom, in his first year with the team, shopped off some of Nolan's authority after the coach led the Saints to their best seasons ever, 7-9 and 8-8, in his first two years at the helm.

Dick Stanfel was promoted from offensive line coach for the final four games and had a 1-3 record.

Rosenbloom said he hasn't been concerned with protecting his flanks while interviewing prospective replacements.

"The only thing we have tried to do, despite all the rumors and speculation in the media, is to do our homework and talk to all the available people," he said.

"Once we are able to do that — which shouldn't be too much longer — we will narrow the field down, and Bum would have to be one of the finalists, certainly."

He said he knows the coach has to have sayso over team members in order to do his job.

"As far as who is in charge at any time, the media pays too much attention to all that gabage," he said.

"When you have a coach, the coach has to have the authority to go along with the responsibility of coaching the football team."

"Dick Nolan had that authority, along with the responsibility, as far as the football team was concerned."

"Bum Phillips would have the same authority and responsibility just like any other head coach we would hire."

"When you get into the other things, you would have to have a philosophy — a club philosophy.

"When it comes to trades, we've never had a trade without it either being the decision or suggestion of the head coach or with the head coach concurring in the trade."

"As far as the draft goes, the best people in our organization to tell us who the best people are, obviously it's Dick Stanfel and the people in our scouting department, because that's their job, and they work at it all year long."

"I don't foresee any problems whatsoever with Bum, and I think it's a shame that the rumors and the media speculation have turned it into a circus."

He said Phillips is the favorite on the basis of his record. He took over at Houston when the team was a perennial doormat and took it to three straight playoffs.

"Bum is the only one of the group we are talking to who has had success in this league," Rosenbloom said. "That speaks for something."

"The rest of the people we have talked to are highly qualified for the job but you don't know how some of them will do unless one of them actually gets the job."

"Bum Phillips, John is very excited about and I'm very excited about."

"But there are three or four more I want to talk to."

"Hopefully, we'll wrap it up this week."

Pressed, he said the Saints would probably be ready to make an announcement next week.

Jack Nicklaus Tees Up Season In Annual Hope Desert Classic

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, perhaps the greatest golfer of all time, opens his 20th pro season this week in the $64,500 Bob Hope Desert Classic.

The only 90-hole event, the longest tournament on the PGA Tour schedule, begins a five-day run today on four beautifully-conditioned desert courses, La Quinta, Indian Wells, Tamarisk and Bermuda Dunes.

The tournament, which features social events, scores of parties and gatherings at various posh watering holes along with a formal ball as well as the competition, also kicks off the national television schedule. Portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday will be televised by NBC from Bermuda Dunes.

Saturday's telecast probably will focus on the various political and sports figures and show business friends of the host who are competing in the pro-am section of the event. The unique format calls for each of the limited field of 128 pros to play one round on each of the four courses, each day with a different, three-man team of amateurs, before the field is cut for the pro-only final round at Bermuda Dunes Sunday.

Former President Gerald Ford, who will play one round each with Nicklaus, Lee Trevino, Tom Kite and defending champion Craig Stadler, tops the amateur field, which also includes Speaker of the House Tip O'Neill.

Sports figures include George Brett, Billy Martin, Pancho Gonzales and Johnny Bench. From the entertainment field, there are Charlie Pride, Telly Savalas, Jack Lemmon, Gordon MacRae, Andy Williams, Fred MacMurray, Robert Goulet and Foster Brooks.

Although he hasn't played competitively since early last fall — when he closed one of the greatest seasons of his matchless career — Nicklaus heads the pro field chasing the $50,000 first prize.

Nicklaus, who scored record-setting victories in the U.S. Open and PGA last season in one of the outstanding comebacks in golf history, rarely plays in this tournament and scored his only victory in the early season event in 1963.

Nicklaus said he allowed himself his usual off-season letdown, but, in recent weeks, has started working on his game again in hopes of establishing a more consistent performance than last season.

Among his chief challengers, in addition to Trevino, Kite and Stadler, are Tom Weiskopf, Ray Floyd, Lon Hinkle, Bill Rogers, Curtis Strange, John Mahaffey, Jerry Pate and Arnold Palmer, a five-time winner here.

Johnny Miller, a winner last week at Tucson, is not competing. Tom Watson will not start his season until the end of the month.

Percentages Lie With Beavers

By The Associated Press
If you like to play the percentages, you've got to go with undefeated, top-ranked Oregon State.

Senior center Steve Johnson, the highest percentage shooter among NCAA Division I basketball players last season, has taken up where he left off, shooting at a 77 percent clip. Through last weekend's games, he had hit 92 of 119 attempts and was averaging 18.9 points.

That, alone, is sufficient cause to admire the efficiency of the Beavers' offense, but consider also the statistics of the other four Oregon State starters:

- Charlie Sitton forward, 16.3 ppg, 57 percent.
- Jeff Stouff forward, 9.4 ppg, 52 percent.
- Ray Blume, guard, 10.8 ppg, 56 percent.
- Mark Radford, guard, 13.9 ppg, 55 percent.

As a team, Oregon State is averaging 58.1 percent from the field, nearly a point better than the NCAA Division I record of 57.2 by Missouri last season. The Beavers' poorest shooting performance this season was 50 percent in a 76-62 victory over Stanford.

Coupled with a per-game scoring average of 81.416 vs. 59.916 for the opposition, the statistics seem to support coach Ralph Miller when he says: "The scheme always has been, as far as we're concerned, that the pass is the chief weapon of our attack."

Miller, in his 30th year of college coaching, has built his program on home-grown talent. His is a total team concept that rarely includes the mention of an individual player unless specifically asked. He stresses an aggressive defense and a patient offense.

"This is strictly a team," he says. "There are some very good individuals on it, but they are totally dedicated to a team concept."

"The pass is our weapon of attack, and we are very strongly defensive-minded coaches."

"We are the best passing team in the country, or at least one of them. Therefore, our people get the ball to Steve (Johnson) wide open possibly more times than anybody in the country, and he's an excellent shooter. By the same token, we have other excellent shooters."

"The kind of shots we get are the ones we want. We believe in control, but our offense still likes to capitalize on mistakes for our transition game. Our opponents are averaging 25 turnovers game, and we are averaging 12 to 13 steals. That allows us to capitalize on mistakes for our transition game."

This season, Miller starts four seniors and one freshman, Sitton, a 6-foot-8 power forward recruited from McMinnville, Ore. Johnson, of San Bernardino, Calif., is the only non-Oregonian on the starting five. Blume and Radford, both quick and excellent shooters, are from Portland, and Stout, a reserve last season, is from Lake Oswego, Ore.

This week's No. 1 ranking is the first in Oregon State's history and Miller's first in a coaching career that included 13 years at Wichita State and six at Iowa. "We've never been No. 1, but being up high is not a new sensation. We were No. 2 for part of last season, and we were No. 2 for two weeks this season."

"I don't know what the difference will be between No. 1 and No. 2, but I don't think it'll be serious — at least I hope not. We've gained a lot of experience."

Miller said the parity in college basketball means that no opponent, "no matter what name they've got on their shirts," can be disregarded.

"Sure, you have your top 20 teams, and probably they belong here," he says, "but on the other hand, the people out of that vicinity are tough ball clubs. If you have a bad night or you're not prepared you're in for a bad night. Anytime you do not respect the opponent, you're asking for trouble because everybody wants to play the No. 1, 2, 3, and 4 teams."

Last season, Oregon State was 26-4, but lost to Lamar in the first round of the NCAA playoffs.

"That loss did us more good 'than harm,'" Miller says. "We might have gone all the way, but we didn't. Fortunately, we've got a good number of these kids back. I made them realize that you don't go to sleep ever. Ever!"

"We just about have to win this one," Diesell said, and the added: "We don't have to, but it's home, and if we want to win the ACC, we have to win all our home games and several on the road."

King, an All-American choice as a junior last year, scored only 12 points in Maryland's 94-79 victory over ACC rival Duke last Saturday.

"Gene Banks was doing a good job on Albert," Diesell said, "so he tried to get the ball to the open man instead of going crazy. That's the attitude I want our people to have."

"But Albert did overpass a little, and I don't want him satisfied with 12 points. He's a great offensive player, and he's got to be hungry to score."

"I know we have a good team, because we beat some good teams last year," Diesell said. "But we want to beat somebody now. If we beat Virginia, we're pretty good."

"I'm not sure that's the most important matchup," he said. "I don't think you can beat Virginia by just stopping Sampson. He's the kind of guy who can get 30 points, but so can Jeff Lamp and Lee Raker."

Last year, Williams had 32 points and 21 rebounds in the two victories over Virginia, as compared with Sampson's totals of 24 points and 19 rebounds.

"I'll be physical when we meet," Williams said. "Ralph is better this year because he's more in control of his body and goes to the inside more. My job will be to keep him from getting started."

"Buck will take it to him," Diesell said, "he's not going to back off. Buck's not scared of Sampson, and I don't think Sampson is afraid of Buck."

Driesell contends the game will be won on the boards, and said it would take a team defensive effort to shut down the Cavaliers.

"Nobody can stop Sampson or Lamp one-on-one... or Albert King or Ernest Graham, either," Diesell said, tossing in a couple of Maryland sharpshooters for comparison.

For the second straight year, McEnroe won the Volvo Grand Prix bonus pool in singles and the $300,000 that went with it. He has qualified for the Masters in both singles and doubles for the third straight year.

Only 21 years old, McEnroe has captured the U.S. Open the past two years, last year stopping Bjorn Borg's bid for a Grand Slam.

Borg, the defending champion in the Masters, is seeded fourth after playing in only 11 tournaments last year. Ranked No. 1 in the world, the Swede still won six titles and reached three other finals.

Both the singles semifinals and finals will be televised nationally by CBS-TV. Earlier matches will be telecast by the USA Cable Network.

Only one format change has been made this year: the final will be a best-of-five set match.

While McEnroe feels last week's tournament helped hone his game, he believes that Borg's layoff since the middle of November may cause the Swede some problems.

"This certainly is not his favorite surface and it's my best surface," McEnroe said of the synthetic court. "I'm hoping he'll have to change his game."

Borg's major victories last year were the French Open and Wimbledon. Besides the U.S. Open, McEnroe won the Italian Open and the WCT Challenge Cup.

Lendl had a remarkable streak in October and November when he won five titles in six weeks. He finished the year by leading Czechoslovakia to its first Davis Cup championship.

Connors won the first pro tennis tournament ever held in mainland China and the WCT final in Dallas. Clerc and Vilas combined to give Argentina a stunning upset over the United States in Davis Cup play.

Mayer won five Grand Prix events and was runner-up in three others, while Solomon won the ATP Championships, the German Open, Baltimore and Tel Aviv events.

McEnroe Highlights Final Eight In Master's Tennis Tourney

NEW YORK (AP) — John McEnroe, who already has earned $300,000 in this tournament, aims at his second Volvo Masters tennis championship tonight when he begins play in the $400,000 tourney in Madison Square Garden.

Fresh from a triumph over Jimmy Connors in a $200,000 tournament in Chicago, McEnroe will meet Gene Mayer in the first round of the eight-player, round-robin Masters.

"It helped a lot playing in that tournament in Chicago," McEnroe said Tuesday. "I took off three weeks before Chicago. I feel I'm about as prepared as well as I can be."

Heavyweight's Career Headed Backwards

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — It's been two and one-half years since Greg Page started his quest for the heavyweight crown but some boxing people say he's been going backwards.

"The only guy he's fought of any worth is George Chapin," said Bert Sugar. "And he barely came out alive" in the national TV bout which Page won by majority decision.

Sugar, who publishes Ring Magazine, has Page rated eighth in the world among heavyweight contenders.

"That's based on his potential and the fact that he's undefeated" in 13 bouts, said Sugar. "But then, so am I."

The young Louisvillean hasn't fought since Oct. 2 when he scored a sixth round technical knockout over Dave Johnson in Madison Square Garden.

Later, a proposed match with Ossie Ocasio was scrubbed for various reasons.

"Ocasio looked worse than Page" in his last outing, said Sugar. "He fought Barry Funes, the moonlighting postman. The way Ocasio fought in the fight you'd think it was a federal offense to assault a postman. But why does Page keep losing behind him to fight Ocasio and that type?"

Louisville promoter Bill King said at the rate that Page is going, "the guy's going to be in a wheel chair, dying of old age before he gets a shot" at the title.

King said that last November he ran into Earnie Shavers, a puncher who's been around for years, and asked him if he'd climb into the ring with Page.

When Shavers agreed, King said he telephoned J. Bruce Miller, the attorney for Page, and proposed a five-fight package, starting with the Shavers fight. The package would earn Page $250,000 and presumably move him in an upward direction.

"Page would jab Shavers to death," said King. "No way Shavers would catch him. But Earnie's a name fighter and people would pay $25 to see the fight without feeling ripped off."

"Right now I think Page could beat seven of the top 10 guys in the heavyweight division," King continued. "The kid has a lot of talent, and with the right management, he could be the heavyweight champion. But a fighter must fight."

The majority of Page's fights have been promoted by Butch Lewis and there is no love lost between Lewis and King.

King said he is convinced that Lewis has a last-day tieup governing any of Page's fights.

Success May Depend On Farmer's Attitudes

By KATHLEEN HARRIS
Avalanche-Journal Farm Writer
A farmer's willingness to change attitudes and become an effective businessman and manager may determine if he is able to continue farming in the 1980s, according to several extension service specialists.

About 120 producers and agribusinessmen clustered around slides, graphs and charts to get a hint of what economists are predicting for 1981 Tuesday at the West Texas Outlook Conference at the Civic Center. The program was sponsored by the South Plains Development Program, a regional organization of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

While the outcome of those issues remains to be seen, Knutson said, those factors will be likely be tackled by a U.S. Department of Agriculture that is more oriented around the market system and producers.

Prices for grain sorghum and corn, he predicted will peak in June or early July, then level off at $6.00-10 per hundredweight for sorghum and $6.50 per hundredweight for corn for the harvest period. Wheat, he believes, will be around $4.30 per bushel in the High Plains at harvest.

Quarantine Eyed On Citrus Fruit

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas may have to post a quarantine against California citrus fruit because of the Mediterranean fruit fly, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown said Tuesday.

Overall the TAES economists foresee an optimistic future for area agriculture stemming from tight supplies and strong demand, but the specialists were quick to point to some uncertainties that could cause problems in the farming sector.

Leading to a better look in the agriculture picture, says cotton marketing economist Dr. Carl Anderson of College Station, are a 10 percent drop in the 1980 harvest, smaller meat supplies ahead, strong export demand and a 12-14 percent increase in food prices.

Anderson said the High Plains will have a big hand in the 1981 cotton market with more than half of the expected 14.0 million planted acres in the United States to be planted in Texas.

BIDDING FOR GULF-BOUND SORGHUM

last week at Kansas City was aggressive and basis bids rose rapidly in reaction to corn shipping difficulties and renewed export demand, trade sources said.

The bidding surge followed Mexico's partial lifting of its rail embargo against U. S. shipments and was intensified by shipping delays on the Mississippi River, according to cash and export merchandisers.

Traders attributed the sorghum basis strength to a switch in foreign demand to sorghum from corn as Gulf track and river corn values escalated because of lower Mississippi River traffic snarls.

In addition, the recent sale of more than 60,000 metric tons of sorghum to Venezuela boosted demand for cash sorghum, following slack December export demand and extremely light producer selling, the traders said.

Direct Gulf bids for spot hoppers of sorghum jumped from four cents over March corn on Tuesday to 13 cents over March on Monday morning at Kansas City.

BECAUSE OF SHARPLY HIGHER VALUES for Gulf-delivered corn, countries were showing interest in switching contract purchases from corn to sorghum, export sources said.

Japan, buying for feeding purposes, reportedly was interested in some switches and in more sorghum purchases until price ratios are more favorable for corn.

Mexico last week announced that some grain will be allowed across eastern border points to fill a storage facility, located about 10 miles south of Brownsville.

The widespread rail embargo on most other shipments remained in place. The embargo originally was imposed because of rail car accumulation at Mexico border points and in the interior.

The rail embargo was announced just after Mexican grain buyers booked additional feed grains, oilseeds and soymeal in mid-December.

ASSOCIATION OF AMERICAN RAILROAD officials indicated this shipment allowance of an estimated 200,000 metric tons of grain at Brownsville beginning this week may have caught committed exporters off guard.

This, sources said, created a short-term scramble for sorghum, reflected in the Kansas City basis.

Export sources indicated about 75 percent of feed grain sales to Mexico in December, for January through March delivery, were backed with cash holdings.

In mid-December, Mexico purchased 981,715 metric tons of sorghum and about 636,000 metric tons of corn.

Therefore, trade sources said, exporters were bidding to gather sorghum in a tight supply market.

RICHARD LYNG, FORMER HEAD OF THE American Meat Institute, is said by Washington sources to have been chosen for the No. 2 job at the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Lyng was a top contender for the job of agriculture secretary but he lost out to Secretary-designate John Block of Illinois after both men met with President-elect Ronald Reagan in California.

The selection of Lyng would be subject to confirmation by the Senate. Block was chosen for the top job partly because he is a working farmer, sources said.

Government sources said the appointment of Lyng would allow Block to have an aide who is experienced in the workings of the USDA and Capitol Hill.

Lyng, in addition to having headed the AMI, a Washington-based trade group, has held previous USDA policy-making posts. He has ruled out the possibility that he would head the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, another recent rumor.

SOURCES CLOSE TO BLOCK SAID NOMINATION of Lyng to be deputy secretary was the only firm choice the secretary-designate has made. They said Block hopes to have people selected for other top jobs before the inauguration.

Lyng, 62, heads Reagan's transition office at the USDA.

Before his tenure as AMI president from 1973 through 1979, Lyng was in charge of regulation of the meat industry handled federal regulation of agricultural products and nutrition programs, such as food stamps and school lunches.

Glenn Tussey, an official of the American Farm Bureau Federation who served in the USDA's Foreign Agricultural Service under previous Republican administrations, also had been mentioned as a candidate for deputy secretary.

Government sources expect some realignments at the USDA if Block, as expected, is approved as agriculture secretary. The possible combination of the duties of the assistant secretary of marketing with those of the assistant secretary for food and consumer affairs has been mentioned.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain and soybean-futures prices closed mixed Tuesday on the Chicago Board of Trade. Sources said trader were selling soybeans because of poor export demand figures released on Monday and reports that Argentina is expected to boost world supplies with a record-high crop this year.

The stronger U.S. dollar was said to be keeping European buying interest low in all trading pits.

The U.S. Agriculture Department reported Monday that soybeans imported for export last week amounted to 3.9 million bushels compared to 26 million bushels at the same time last year.

Cotton Futures

The average price for strict low idling 1 & 1-16 inch spot cotton declined 138 points to 85.54 cents a pound Monday for the nine leading markets, according to the New York Cotton Exchange.

Grain markets were steady to mixed on Tuesday. Grain sorghum and corn were mostly unchanged. Wheat was trending firm and soybeans moved lower.

Prices to the farmer, f.o.b. elevator:
North of Canadian River — milo $5.40-60, mostly $5.50 per hundredweight; wheat $4.15-20, mostly $4.15 per bushel; corn $3.24-22, mostly $3.25 per bushel.

Plainview-Canyon-Farwell Triangle — milo $5.70-95; wheat $4.15-25, mostly $4.22; soybeans $6.80-90, mostly $6.90 per bushel; corn $3.51-63, mostly $3.60-60.

South of Plainview-Muleshoe Line — milo $5.40-60, mostly $5.50; wheat $4.15-25, mostly $4.22; soybeans $6.45-70, mostly $6.90; corn $3.48-54, mostly $3.51.

Elevators in the High Plains were reporting offers and bids for No. 2 grain from $4.30-35 per hundredweight and No. 2 yellow corn from $6.85-65 per hundredweight.

CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat No. 2 hard red winter 4.30-4.35; No. 2 soft red winter 4.20-4.25; No. 2 yellow 3.90-3.95; No. 2 white 3.80-3.85; No. 2 yellow 3.90-3.95; No. 2 white 3.80-3.85; No. 2 yellow 3.90-3.95; No. 2 white 3.80-3.85.

Bilateral Parley With Japan Eyed

TOKYO (Reuters) — Japanese agriculture ministry officials said there has been no decision made when to hold the next bilateral talks on agriculture with the United States.

The economic daily, Nihon Keizai Shimbun, said the ministry was hoping to have talks over grain supplies in March.

The newspaper added the talks would center on Japanese concern over the availability of grain from the United States should the Reagan administration lift the embargo on shipments to the U.S.S.R.

However, one official said the ministry is studying the idea of proposing such talks fairly soon, adding any decision would have to wait until Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki returns from his Asian tour on Jan. 20.

Officials noted that at the last bilateral talks held in Washington in early December, Japan received assurances from the United States over the availability of grain supplies.

Cattle Futures Close Mixed

April led the advance with only January off. Commercials were active buyers before the trade turned to spreading. Locals were on both sides.

Support stemmed from a firm tone to cash beef, mostly higher grain futures and steady to strong cash cattle.

Deliveries total 110 thus far. Wholesale beef was unchanged to up 2 cents at 104 to 105 cents a pound, f.o.b. river.

The six markets expect 16,900 head today. Cash cattle were steady to up $1, with the best top at $66 at Indianapolis. Slaughter totaled 128,000 head.

Feeder cattle futures closed 60 to 100 points higher, paced by November, on sales of 2,100 cars. The late rally was prompted by the strong tone to cash beef and spillover demand from the cattle pit, which tended to offset easing Treasury bill futures.

Deliveries total 13 thus far. The six markets expect 6,900 head today. Cash feeders were up $1 to off $4, with the best top at $93.50 at Greeley.

Hog futures closed up 70 to off 2 points on sales of 6,948 cars. April paced the upturn with only February off.

Dallas Backs Off After Indianapolis Protests Use Of Faulty Information

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — An official of the Dallas Chamber of Commerce says "no ill will" was intended when the organization released mistaken figures showing Indianapolis to be the highest in taxes of 19 cities surveyed.

But the Dallas figures are way off, said Robert D. Palmer, director of economic research for the Indianapolis Chamber of Commerce.

"Those figures are crazy — it's just ridiculous," he said.

The Dallas group, in a study of state and local taxes, put Indianapolis at the top of three lists — higher in property taxes, highest in total local taxes and highest in total state and local taxes.

According to the survey, the owner of a $60,000 house in Indianapolis pays $4,812 a year in property taxes.

Ronald B. White, vice president for business development at the Dallas chamber, said, "There seems to be some discrepancies in our figures for Indianapolis. We've done some checking up, and it appears there's been a mistake."

Palmer calculated that the maximum property tax for a $60,000 house in the city's most costly taxing district — Center Township — would be only $2,091 a year. Taking a 20 percent property tax relief fund credit and a 10 percent homestead credit into account, the bill drops to $1,463.70.

"On top of that, the 1979 reassessment (of property values) was based on 1975 building costs," said Palmer. "So a house with a market value of $60,000 probably would be on the tax rolls a $48,000" with a tax bill of $1,170.

It appeared that someone, either officials in Dallas or someone they talked to here, failed to distinguish between the nominal tax rate (the dollars-per-hundred figure that's publicly announced) and the effective tax rate (the actual tax that's paid after all adjustments are made).

Since Marion County charges property taxes only on about one-third of the assessed valuation of residential real estate, the Dallas figures were about three times higher than homeowners' actual tax bills.

"There seems to have been a language barrier," said White.

The revised results would move Indianapolis from the top of the property tax list to No. 6, using $1,463 as the tax bill, or No. 12, using the $1,170 figure.

For local taxes, Indianapolis's $1,463 would rank 10th — just above Dallas's $1,432. Based on $1,170 in taxes, the city would rank 13th.

In either case, Indianapolis would rank 13th among the 19 cities for total state and local tax burden. For a family with annual income of $30,000 the Dallas chamber figured that Indiana's income, auto, sales, gasoline and cigarette taxes would add $1,045 to the local property tax bill.

White said he'd prepare new lists "based on the facts."

The new figures apparently would move Boston to the top of the list.

"I assure you that our motives were pure," said White. "We weren't trying to prove any points."

White said the figures were prepared for "internal use only."

"I don't know how the newspaper (The Dallas Morning News) got hold of them," he said.

Heartline

Heartline is a service for senior citizens. Its purpose is to answer questions and solve problems. If you have a question or a problem not answered in these columns, write to Heartline, c/o East Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio 45381. You will receive a prompt reply, but you must include a self-addressed, stamped envelope. The most useful replies will be printed in this column.

HEARTLINE: I am going to see an attorney in a few weeks to have a will drawn up. Before I go, I am trying to determine how I want my property divided among my family. I also want to decide who to appoint the executor of my will. Can you tell me the duties of the executor so that I can make this decision based on the one who will be best suited for this responsibility? R.B.

ANSWER: Choosing an executor is a very important decision that should be thought over carefully. Below is a list of the duties of the executor. Hopefully this list will help you to make this very important decision.

a. to submit your will to the court for probate, which is proof of the validity of the will.

b. to take title of all of the deceased's property.

c. to collect all money and debts owed to the deceased.

d. to pay all the debts of the deceased.

e. to compile an inventory of all of the assets of the deceased, including appraisals.

f. to file estate tax forms on both the federal and state levels.

g. to manage the estate until the time comes to distribute the assets according to the provisions of the will.

h. to get receipts from all beneficiaries and present them to the court.

Your executor's fees are paid by your estate and the fees of our attorney are paid from your estate by your executor.

The amount of legal fees involved in will drafting can vary according to the complexity of the estate involved. The most common fees range from $35 to $150. Another cost factor might be the detail in which you want your will. If you plan on giving each individual item you own away piece by piece, item by item, it will increase the size of your will, and thus increase the cost of drafting. A fee sheet listing the costs of will drafting in your area can be found at your local bar association.

Ex-Political Priest Joins University

WASHINGTON (AP) — Robert F. Drinan, a Jesuit priest who gave up his seat in Congress at the direction of Pope John Paul II, has joined the faculty of the Georgetown University Law Center and will teach a seminar in international human rights, the university announced Tuesday.

Drinan was dean of Boston College Law School from 1956 through 1970, when he was elected to the first of five terms in the U.S. House as a Democrat. He won his law degrees from Georgetown and a doctorate in theology from Gregorian University in Rome.

In May, the Vatican announced that Roman Catholic clergy should not participate in political activity. The directive appeared aimed directly at Drinan, an outspoken liberal who supported federal funding for abortions.

Drinan said the he accepted the decision "regret and pain."

Nixon To Speak At Dinner

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon will speak on "foreign policy issues" at a Republican fund-raising dinner here Feb. 18, the state Senate Campaign Committee announced Tuesday.

NIXON

It will be Nixon's first political speech since he resigned as president in 1974 in the wake of the Watergate scandal, said Senate President Paul E. Gillmor. Nixon hasn't been in Ohio since he toured the Xenia area in April 1974 after a tornado struck.

Gillmor said the event does not have the official blessing of the Ohio Republican Party. "He's controversial, but he's an attraction," Gillmor said.

A reception will precede the dinner. Tickets for the reception and dinner will be $500 per couple and $300 for individuals.

Nixon will be introduced at the diner by Woody Hayes, former football coach at Ohio State University. Hayes left Ohio State in 1978 — also in controversy. He resigned after he was televised coast-to-coast striking a player in the Gator Bowl football game between Ohio State and Clemson University.

Grammy Nominations Aired

NEW YORK (UPI) — Christopher Cross and Barbra Streisand dominated Grammy award nominations Tuesday.

The 23rd presentation of the awards, the recording industry's equivalent of the Oscars, will be presented Feb. 25 at the Radio City Music Hall by the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences.

A total of 305 recording artists have been nominated in 59 categories.

Singer-composer Cross won five nominations for record of the year and song of the year, "Sailing," album of the year, "Christopher Cross," best new artist, and best male vocal performance.

Miss Streisand is up for awards in four categories — Record of the year, "Woman in Love," best album of the year, "Guilty," best female vocal and best pop group performance.

Frank Sinatra picked up two nominations for album of the year for his "Trilogy: Past, Present and Future," and record of the year, "The Theme from 'New York, N.Y.'" CBS will telecast the awards ceremony live.

Carter To Say Farewell

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter put the finishing touches Tuesday on a farewell address that aides said will reflect his dedication to nuclear arms control, conservation of natural resources and the protection of human rights.

Press secretary Jody Powell said the speech, trimmed from previous drafts, will be short — perhaps 1,700 words and 25 minutes long. It will be delivered on nationwide television and radio at 8 p.m. CST.

"I'll talk about what he believes in," Powell said.

Town Supports Baker Humiliated By Judge

SAO PAULO, Brazil (UPI) — A small Brazilian town has voted to throw out its only judge because he humiliated the local baker, forcing him to kneel in his pajamas and beg forgiveness for allegedly selling bad cakes.

Officials in Capivari voted unanimously Monday night to declare persona non grata Judge Massami Uyeda, and to ask state authorities to remove him.

Uyeda has built up a long history of high-handed behavior during his five months as judge in the community of 30,000, local residents said. But matters came to a head when he ordered two policemen bring baker Helio Bresciani, 38, from his bed in the early hours of New Year's Day.

"I had to beg forgiveness four times, and even to the judge's wife, because he ordered it," the baker said.

Bresciani was taken from his bed after a 48-hour stint in the family bakery, preparing bread and cakes for New Year's celebrations.

Commercial Association President Antonio Mattar said Uyeda was known throughout the town for "always wanting to be treated like a judge, even in a bar."

He won't even wait his turn at the barber's," Mattar said.

Soon after the cakes incident Judge Uyeda took a holiday and reporters were unable to hear his side of the case.

But a local police inspector who was in the judge's house when Bresciani was brought in said the baker knelt voluntarily, asking that the matter of the bad cakes be kept quiet lest it harm his trade.

Not so, said Bresciani. They were fresh cream cakes and they went bad because the judge's wife didn't follow instructions to keep them in the refrigerator.

Despite his troubles, baker Bresciani said business has never been better, with cream cakes proving in particular demand.

"Give me a judge's cake," customers were reportedly asking.

Identities Not Believed

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — Actor Ed Asner, who plays the role of city editor Lou Grant on the television series of the same name, called a Kalamazoo Gazette columnist but got Barbara Walters instead.

ED ASNER

Only this Barbara Walters was not the television personality of the same name. She is a Gazette reporter.

"This is Lou Grant," said Asner, who was calling Art Sills, a writer he met last fall during a political campaign. But Sills was on vacation and his phone was answered by someone else.

"And this is Barbara Walters," came the reply.

Asner's response of "You're putting me on" also had occurred to Mrs. Walters, who is accustomed to the jokes about having the same name as the television personality.

"His voice was familiar," she said. "And the switchboard operator is sure it was him."

Sills has returned from vacation but he hasn't heard from Asner.

Singer Replaces Partner

BROWN

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country music singer Jim Ed Brown says he has chosen two female vocalists to replace Helen Cornelius as his singing partner.

"I'm going in a whole new direction with a whole new show," Brown said Monday. "For the first time in a very long time I'm doing things I want to do. It's very exciting."

In a less-than-cordial break-up last year, Brown and Miss Cornelius parted in order for her to concentrate on her own career.

Brown's newest singing partners are Dianne Morgan, 26 of Nashville, and Christy Russell, 25, of Oklahoma City, Okla.

King Sr. Hospitalized

ATLANTA (AP) — The Rev. Martin Luther King Sr., father of the slain civil rights leader, was hospitalized on Tuesday in the coronary care unit of Crawford Long Hospital with a viral infection, according to his daughter.

Christine King Farris said in a statement that her 81-year-old father, known affectionately as Daddy King, was resting comfortably and is expected to be released in a few days. A grandchild of King said doctors wanted him admitted to the coronary care unit because of past heart problems.

"It's basically the flu," said Steve Klein, a spokesman for the King family.

His daughter-in-law, Coreta Scott King, said King "has just got a cold."

Mystery Marks Trial Of Florida Man On False Document Charge

FORT WORTH (AP) — Veteran criminal attorney F. Lee Bailey is defending a Florida millionaire accused of failing to disclose $34,875 he and his wife were carrying on a return flight from Mexico.

In the mystery-cloaked trial, which began Monday, 37-year-old Clyde W. Cobb of Golden Beach, Fla., is accused of submitting a false document to U.S. Customs officials in October. His wife was not indicted.

The document stated the Cobbs were carrying less than $5,000 each when they returned to the Dallas-Fort Worth Airport.

Cobb also is charged with failing to file another form required of travelers entering the United States with more than $5,000.

If convicted on both counts, Cobb could face a maximum sentence of six years in prison and a fine of up to $11,000.

In one of several mysterious developments, U.S. Attorney Nick Geeker of the Northern District of Florida confirmed Monday he might be a prosecution witness.

Geeker, contacted in Pensacola, said, "I've got an idea. I don't want to make that public."

U.S. District Judge Elton Mahon also conducted a private hearing on a defense motion to dismiss the indictment because of "prosecutorial misconduct."

In Cobb's briefcase, Bailey said, Customs officials found letters to Cobb from his attorneys relating to an undisclosed matter.

"The contents of the letters were of a sensitive and highly confidential nature and clearly shielded from public view by the attorney-client privilege," Bailey's motion said.

Customs officials discussed the letters with both Cobb and U.S. attorney's officials, the motion said.

Mahon refused to dismiss the case, but limited evidence to the facts relevant to the two charges in the indictment.

In his opening statement to the jury, Bailey said Cobb had not violated the law knowingly. He thought he did not need to report money unless it was obtained outside the county, Bailey said.

The attorney described Cobb as a businessman who distributes suntan lotion, deals in real estate, operates a cattle feedlot and buys Caribbean lobster tails for sale abroad.

The Cobbs traveled to Mexico last October to vacation and to buy a residence for Mrs. Cobb's father, a victim of bone cancer, Bailey said.

The best way to buy property in Mexico, Bailey said, is "when one has cash on the barrelhead to lock up the deed."

The couple did not buy any property during the trip, he added.

The first witness in the trial was Robert Linder, the Customs inspector who first asked Cobb about carrying more than $5,000.

"I believe at this time Mr. Cobb did reply 'no,'" Linder said.

Cobb "said he didn't have anything to hide, that that was just pocket change to him," said Philip DeHojos, Linder's supervisor.

"We gave him an opportunity to amend his declaration," DeHojos said. "He said (the law) did not apply to him because he had taken the money out of the country and had not obtained it in Mexico."

CAREERS

By JOYCE LAIN KENNEDY

Dear Joyce: For the future I plan to proceed into the field of business. My dad insists that in order to have a guaranteed job and good money, business is out and computer technology or engineering is in. Would you please settle our argument on which field is the best, its outlook, etc.?

J.D., Mt. Prospect, Ill.

"Computer technology is sizzling but could crowd up if hordes of workers hear it's hot and move in."

"Engineering has been up some years and down others."

"The go-go demand for business grads is over although superior managers are always sought."

"At least half — some say two-thirds — of all engineers wind up managing other engineers and workers."

"Executives will be needed to run high-technology enterprises. Additionally, there'll be a need for people who sufficiently understand business administration functions to automate them in any industry, using such tools as audiovisual conferencing, electronic mail, computerized tickler files and digital decision systems."

"It seems clear that tomorrow's top honors will go to individual who can manage technology and money. So, if you are technically-minded, why not pool your ideas? Seeking an undergraduate degree in engineering or in engineering technology and topping it with a master's degree in business administration with ample coursework in finance — or some variation of this education, like an engineering management program — is a prudent approach.

In fact, a third of all new MBA graduates have a technical background. Whether you become an "engineer who manages" or a "manager who does some engineering," you'll be in position to pursue a topflight career.

Begin now to keep files or notebooks with data on such growth industries as semiconductors, biotechnology, robotics, telecommunications and energy. Your data will become invaluable in refining career aspirations as your education progresses.

Dad correctly identifies engineering and computers as offering outstanding prospects. But your business ideas are solid too. Both of you can win the argument.

Send career questions for possible use in this column to Joyce Lain Kennedy at this newspaper. Sorry, the volume of mail makes it impossible to send personal replies.
