

Tehran Says Agreement Reached On Hostages

Area's Snow Tapers Off, Goes South

DECREASING cloudiness and milder temperatures are forecast for the Lubbock area today after a weekend of sporadic snow left accumulations of up to three inches at South Plains points.

The national weather service in Lubbock issued a travel advisory for Sunday and continuing through today's early morning hours, although no new precipitation was anticipated today. A 20 percent chance of precipitation remained for the Midland area today.

The weather service said that snow that began falling in Lubbock about 6 p.m. Saturday continued intermittently Sunday until early afternoon, with accumulations in most cases around three inches.

Welcomed By Farmers

The light but moist snow generally was welcomed by agricultural interests, who noted that it will benefit subsoil moisture conditions and enhance growing conditions for winter wheat in the area. Little cotton remained in fields as fine post-holiday weather conditions enabled growers to complete the harvest delayed earlier by heavy snows.

A few flakes persisted late Sunday afternoon, and forecasters said a 50 percent chance for continued precipitation would be in effect until this morning.

In the Lubbock area, partly cloudy skies are expected tonight and Tuesday, with a high temperature today in the upper 30s and an overnight low in the mid 20s. The high Tuesday is expected to be in the upper 40s.

Winds To Increase

Winds were light Sunday morning, increasing only to about 8 mph by afternoon. Winds today are expected to be southwesterly at 10 to 15 mph.

The high on Sunday was only 30 degrees, after an early morning low of 27. Elsewhere, Amarillo recorded 32 degrees, while in Midland it got up to only 31.

The snow Sunday appeared to be heaviest in the Permian Basin, where a travel advisory was issued by the weather service for all of Sunday and into this morning. By contrast, there was no travel advisory for Amarillo and Panhandle areas, where snowfall was generally less heavy.

Heaviest Snow To South

A spot check Sunday evening had reports of three-inch falls at Lamesa and Dimmitt and Seminole, four inches at Muleshoe, and about 1.5 inches at Plainview, Post, Matador and Andrews. Most of the snow, which generally began early Sunday morning, had ended by late Sunday afternoon.

Weather service reports had four inches of snow on the ground at El Paso and five inches at Midland as of early afternoon Sunday.

Israeli Cabinet Votes To Call Early Election

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israel's cabinet Sunday decided to call general elections for July 7, four months earlier than scheduled, and Prime Minister Menachem Begin said he was ready to lead his Likud bloc to another victory over the heavily favored Labor opposition.

It was the first time since the state of Israel was born in 1948 that a government had initiated its own premature end. However, barring any unexpected development, Begin's government would become the longest in Israeli history on July 7, surpassing Golda Meir's first term of 1,477 days by one day.

Begin said a bill calling for the Knesset, or parliament, to dissolve itself and set a new election date would be introduced Monday for debate during the week. A Labor spokesman said the opposition would file a bill Wednesday calling for a May 12 ballot. The elections now are scheduled for Nov. 17.

To Keep Negotiating

Begin also vowed to press ahead with the Palestinian autonomy negotiations with Egypt and the United States through the election campaign.

However, U.S. and Egyptian officials have said privately that real progress in the 18-month-old negotiations would be delayed until after the balloting, which

Families Still Not Able To Believe Crisis Ending

By The Associated Press
DISAPPOINTED so often in the past, relatives of some of the U.S. hostages tried in vain to hold back their elation Sunday, at new indications that their loved ones might soon be free after 42 days as captives in Iran. "I feel like a scenic railroad, going up and down," said John Smith of Rising Sun, Ind., stepfather of hostage Don A. Sharer. "We try not to get up, because these crazy people can do anything at the last minute. But we can't help it. We're up."

Some relatives said they were waiting for word from the State Department, while others said they would not believe the ordeal was over until the hostages were actually aboard a plane out of Iran.

Louisa Kennedy, wife of hostage Moorhead Kennedy, told reporters at the State Department that President Carter telephoned her at 3:40 p.m. CST. She said Kathleen Keough, wife of William F. Keough and president of the Family Liaison Action Group, also spoke to the president.

Translation Holdup

Mrs. Kennedy said Carter explained that announcement of an agreement was being held up by the problems of translation. She said each small change in the translations had to be initiated by each side.

Asked to describe Carter's mood, Mrs. Kennedy said, "We're all practicing caution in our thoughts. There's always something that can go wrong."

The announcement that fueled the latest optimism came from Behzad Nabavi, the chief Iranian hostage negotiator, who said that Iran and the United States had reached a final agreement on ending the crisis, with only "trivial points" unresolved.

"You want to see a nervous breakdown!" said Dorothea Morefield to reporters crowding into her home in San Diego.

"It's getting very hard to listen to that little voice of caution that tells me not to get my hopes up," said Mrs. Morefield, wife of hostage Richard Morefield, chief U.S. consul in Tehran.

But Mary Needham, of Bellevue, Neb., mother of hostage Air Force Capt. Paul Needham, said the announcement

Crime Line Spotlights Attempted Rape Case

CRIME LINE Inc. this week spotlights the Jan. 8 attempted aggravated rape of a Lubbock woman who was threatened by a man with a pistol who was wearing a Halloween mask.

The woman told police that she and her brother had returned to her southwest Lubbock residence about 11:30 p.m. Jan. 7, and she went to bed about 15 minutes later while her brother fell asleep on her couch.

She said she was awakened by a man standing over her bed telling her, "Get up, I have a gun." The victim asked the man to help her up, and he responded by allowing her to hold his left arm.

The woman said that as she stood up, she grabbed the man's hair with her right hand and his pistol with her left. A struggle ensued, and the man tripped over a board on the floor.

The woman broke free and ran to an off-duty police officer's home two doors down. The officer told investigators the woman, wearing only underclothes, ran to his home screaming.

The woman suffered a minor cut to her hand, but did not require medical treatment.

Police said entry to the residence apparently was gained by the back door, which had been pried and some of the wood stripped from the latch area.

The suspect is described as a white male, 26 to 35 years old, 5 foot 10 to 6 foot 1, 170 pounds with brown hair and medium build.

Crime Line offers a $500 reward for information leading to the arrest of the suspect. Anyone having such information is urged to call Crime Line at 741-1000. Informants may remain anonymous.

Crime Line is supported entirely by private donations. Tax-deductible contributions may be mailed to Crime Line Inc. at P.O. Box 2000, Lubbock, 79457.

A $300 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest of fugitive Randall Wayne Moore, also known as "Bulldog."

Charged with forgery, he is described as a 28-year-old white male, 5 foot 11, 155 pounds with brown hair and hazel eyes.

Information leading to the arrest of fugitive Roger Eloise Travena will bring a $300 reward from Crime Line.

Exit From Iran May Be Today

By The Associated Press

THE CHIEF Iranian hostage negotiator announced that the United States and Iran reached a final agreement, Sunday, that would end the 14-month-old hostage crisis and bring 52 captive Americans home at last.

"I think the adventure is reaching an end," negotiator Behzad Nabavi said on Tehran Radio.

The government radio quoted him as saying that he expected the hostages to be released in the next few days. A source in Tehran said they would probably fly out of Tehran "before Monday night."

Announcement Closely Awaited

From Sunday afternoon on into the night, announcements of the end of the crisis were awaited in Washington and in Algiers, site of the main negotiations.

There were behind-the-scenes delays. U.S. officials blamed them on the process of translating the documents into three languages — English, French for the Algerian intermediaries, and Farsi, the language of Iran.

In Algiers, reporters were told by U.S. Embassy officials there would be no announcement before 8 a.m. (2 a.m. CST) today. The officials said Deputy Secretary of State Warren M. Christopher, chief of the U.S. negotiators, had retired for the night.

Carter administration officials confirmed that a settlement of the long and bitter international impasse was "imminent." Earlier in the day, both sides had reported that minor points remained in dispute, but these apparently had been resolved.

White House chief of staff Jack Watson Jr. said the hostages would be flown from Iran "virtually instantaneously" once the documents were signed and delivered.

The reported agreement came after 14 months, two weeks and four days of diplomatic appeals, secret contacts, economic pressure and other actions, including a rescue attempt by U.S. commandos that collapsed in tragic failure.

The 52 Americans — 50 men and two women — would be freed in exchange for billions of dollars in Iranian cash and gold frozen by the United States. In New York, London and Algiers, bankers worked on the transfer of the billions into escrow accounts, reportedly in the central banks of Britain and Algeria.

Simultaneous Handing Over

These intermediaries would then hand over the money to the Iranians simultaneously with the departure of the hostages from Iran.

The captive diplomats, Marine guards, communications specialists and teachers, ranging in age from 20 to 64, are the remaining hostages from among 98 seized when young Moslem revolutionaries overran the U.S. Embassy in Tehran on Nov. 4, 1979, nine months after the Islamic revolution in Iran.

Sunday was their 42nd day in captivity.

Authoritative sources in Algiers, focal point of the U.S.-Iranian negotiations, said an Algerian airlines Boeing 707 left there Sunday bound for Tehran. This led to speculation that it would be the 52 Americans' "freedom plane," although the Algerian government denied that such a special aircraft had departed for Iran.

It was believed that the freed Americans would be flown to Algiers and from there on to West Germany, where they would spend a "decompression" period of a week or so at a U.S. military hospital.

Six Algerian doctors were already in the Iranian capital to examine the hostages and certify their condition before their release. There was no word, however, on whether the doctors had seen the hostages, or even on the whereabouts of the 52.

A man who identified himself as one of the doctors told The Associated Press in a telephone interview. "I think that we See AGREEMENT Page 14

Pakistan Said Due Saudi Aid For A-Bomb

LONDON (UPI) — Saudi Arabia will soon sign an $800 million pact to help Pakistan make an atomic bomb, the Sunday Times reported Sunday.

Saudi Arabia made the offer at a secret meeting in Europe, several weeks ago, in a bid to prevent Pakistan from turning to Iraq or Libya for financing of its nuclear project, the newspaper said.

Libyan strongman Col. Moammar Khadafi had offered funds and uranium to his friend, former Pakistani Prime Minister Ali Butto, but after Butto's execution in 1979 Pakistan refused the aid because Khadafi wanted his own nuclear experts to have access to the technology, the Times said.

Pakistan then thought of turning to Iraq for funds, but was warned by Saudi Arabia that Iraqi President Saddam Hussein wanted his country to have a nuclear device so he could exercise a dominant role in the Middle East.

Prince Turki al-Faisal, the Saudi deputy minister for defense and aviation, and Ahmed Yamani, Saudi minister for petroleum and mineral resources, held talks with Pakistani Foreign Minister Agha Shahi, Abdul Qadir Khan, the Pakistani nuclear research director, and the head of the Pakistan atomic energy commission, Munir Ahmed Khan, the newspaper said.

The Saudis then decided the Pakistani project was capable of developing a nuclear weapon if sufficient funds were available, and offered first $250 million and then $800 million, the report said.

Tax Expenditures Cost Government Billions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tax season may convince Americans that the government goes for all the fiscal gusto it can, but a look at the federal budget proves there are billions of dollars it doesn't collect.

Some call the methods of keeping these dollars out of Uncle Sam's hands loopholes. To others, they are special privileges. But those involved prefer to think of them as necessities.

According to the official budget books, the name for the non-collected money is a "tax expenditure."

The reason for allowing these expenditures generally is to encourage or discourage some type of conduct or investment.

Tax expenditures are the cost to the government of not collecting taxes rather than the cost of money actually spent on federal aid programs. And generally they are aimed at different people than are aid programs.

For the poor, for example, there are welfare and food stamps. These involve direct spending of federal money and are aid programs, not "tax expenditures."

But allowing people to deduct mortgage interest on owner-occupied homes is a tax expenditure. It is designed to encourage Americans to own homes. The cost in the 1982 fiscal year is estimated at $25.3 billion in taxes not collected.

Allowing homeowners to deduct property taxes will cost the treasury another $10 billion.

And the law allowing elderly people to avoid income taxes on the sale of a home when they retire is expected to cost $650 million.

The law allowing individuals to avoid taxes on some of their income from interest and dividends costs $3.2 billion. That's to encourage people to save money and to invest.

The government will lose another $6 billion in taxes by allowing tax deductions for the interest paid on consumer credit.

People who invest money over the long term save nearly $19 billion in capital gains taxes.

The government likes to encourage education, too, so it lets parents continue to claim a tax exemption for children aged 19 and over if they are still in school. That is expected to cost $1 billion.

Charities benefit since you can deduct donations to charities. If you had to pay tax on those donations, it would bring in another $8.6 billion. But if you had to pay those taxes, you might not donate as much.

The government loses $4 billion by allowing deductions for medical expenses and $16.6 billion for letting employers avoid tax on their contribution to your medical insurance.

It costs about $12 billion to skip taxes on Social Security payments and special exemptions for the blind and elderly cost about $2.5 billion.

These are just the highlights of five pages of federal budget tables of tax expenditures.

Even letting you put off paying taxes on income from savings bonds costs money — an estimated $335 million in the 1982 budget.

Florida Citrus Growers Fight New Blast Of Frigid Weather

MIAMI (AP) — Florida's cold-battered citrus growers fought another attack by frigid temperatures Sunday, as they started a 10-day embargo of fresh fruit sales and shipments prompted by last week's damaging freeze.

"There may have been some areas that had some potentially damaging temperatures again," said Earl Wells, spokesman for the huge Florida Citrus Mutual growers' cooperative in Lakeland.

Sunday morning, said Wells, it appeared some citrus-belt counties "had mid-20s for six or seven hours." Damage to citrus crops is likely if the temperature goes to 28 for four to six hours.

And the National Weather Service issued a freeze and frost warning for Sunday night and Monday morning for north and central Florida and for inland areas in southern Florida.

Wells said in a telephone interview that the new freeze is likely to "accelerate the deterioration factor" started by last week's record-setting cold wave in orange and grapefruit growing areas.

Wells said, however, he thought the "overall the damage was not as widespread as last week." Growers used giant wind machines and grove heaters overnight to combat the cold, he said.

Record or near-record lows for the date were felt again Sunday around the Sunshine State. The reading of 25 degrees at Daytona Beach broke a record of 27 set in 1965. Tampa's 29 tied a record set in 1977, and Key West, the southernmost point in the continental United States, had a low of 48, three degrees lower than the 1977 record.

The embargo on fresh fruit sales and shipments beginning at 12:01 a.m. Sunday was ordered at Friday's emergency session of the 11-member Florida Citrus Commission.

The action, virtually automatic under a state law aimed at protecting the reputation of Florida's orange and grapefruit crops by controlling the quality of shipments, bans all out-of-state shipments and sales to Florida roadside stands for 10 days.

The embargo does not apply to the 90 percent of Florida's orange crop and the 75 percent of its grapefruit harvest that is processed into juices.

Officials noted that freeze-damaged fruit can be used for juice, but added that the cold could greatly reduce the juice yield.

When the embargo expires, a 14-day restrictive period takes effect, during which no freeze-damaged fruit can be shipped.

Citrus is the largest component of Florida's agricultural industry. Florida's overall orange crop was estimated this year at 208 million 90-pound boxes before the first freeze, with grapefruit estimated at 54 million boxes.

Government Statistics Report Americans Satisfied With Life

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Most Americans are very satisfied with the quality of their lives, the government said Sunday, especially the three components they consider most important — good health, family life and peace of mind.

That assessment is gleaned from thousands of statistical tidbits contained in "Social Indicators III," a nearly 600-page report prepared by the Bureau of the Census and released by the Commerce Department.

"What you see depends on where you stand," the report cautioned in an introduction to its broad view of American life, ranging from health to housing, work to welfare, income to culture and leisure time.

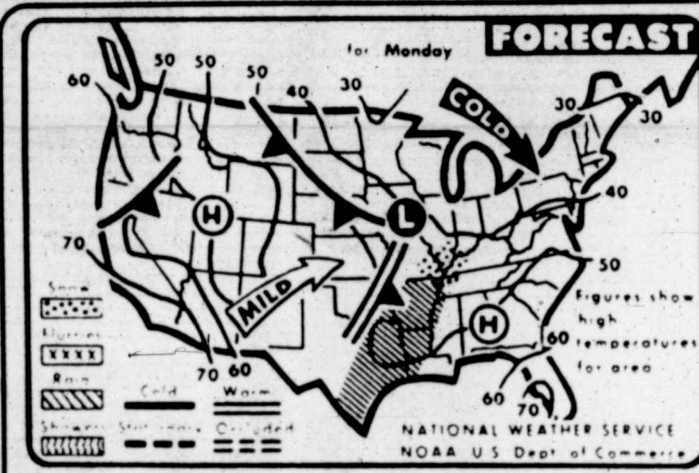

"Any assessment of the overall quality of life in the United States is ultimately an individual judgment," it said.

But Commerce Secretary Philip Klutznick said the study helps us to judge the degree to which Americans live satisfying and rewarding lives.

The study's first offering is "Evaluations of Qualities of a Happy Life." In a bar graph, it shows 97 percent of Americans feel good health is very important to a happy life, and 54 percent are very satisfied with their health.

Family life is considered very important by 92 percent of the persons surveyed, and 67 percent were very satisfied. Of the 1,442 persons questioned, 91 percent said peace of mind is essential to happiness, and 52 percent said they enjoyed it.

Other measures of happiness included respect from others, friends, education, work, money, sex and romantic love.

Dallas Voters Defeat Tax Referendum

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas voters have turned back a grassroots tax revolution, casting ballots in record numbers to reject one of the nation's most sweeping tax rollbacks since California's Proposition 13.

The city charter amendment, defeated by a 2-1 margin Saturday, would have slashed the municipal tax rate by nearly 30 percent and set a 5 percent ceiling on future increases. City officials said the proposal would have cost an estimated $40 million in tax revenues.

The turnout was the largest ever in a non-candidate municipal election — 103,860, or about 10 percent of the city's population.

Californians adopted Proposition 13 by a wide margin in 1978, axing property taxes by about 60 percent.

Petitioning by the Tax Equality Association, or TEA Party, brought about the Dallas referendum. Warnings by civic groups fearing drastic cuts in city services were credited with bringing about its defeat.

TEA Party, a citizens group, had predicted a 2-1 sweep their way.

"I guess it was a miracle," said city Councilman Lee Simpson. "I'm very, very surprised."

A second citizens group formed to fight the tax rollback. Save Our Services Dallas spent more than $170,000 in contributions to blitz residents with a mail and telephone campaign.

"We didn't have the funds to compete with them on a public basis," said Ed Skinner, TEA Party chairman. "We could not finance the publicity to express our points of view when the issues became clouded."

Voters were saying "they don't like the TEA Party solution to the problem," he said. "To say we lost the election only because we didn't have enough money is ludicrous."

SOS chairman David McAtee attributed the outcome to "the sophistication of Dallas voters."

"I think this indicates the voters' basic belief in Dallas in the future. They don't want to sacrifice the quality of life," he said.

TEA Party officials had said the measure would force the city to find business property that could bring in additional revenues.

"It seems to me there are times when issues like this come along and test the character and are a stress on the fiber of the community," said City Manager George Schrader. "This is one of them."

Those who supported the issue "also have won," he added. "They have made their point that something needs to be done and it will be."

Several city council members vowed Saturday night to work hard to install a tax reform program approved in December as soon as possible.

Skinner noted the final number of yes votes — 33,550 to 69,623 no — was roughly equal to the number of signatures the TEA Party had gathered on its petitions.

Even residents of neighborhoods hardest hit by last summer's property tax revaluation, which prompted the petitioning, voted heavily against the tax limitation.

"Deep down inside, I'd been saying that if the people could get the real story, then they'd make the right decision. But frankly, I was very uneasy about the chances for that happening," said Mayor Robert Folsom.

Corn-Laden American Freighter May Have Bought Iran Heroin

CAMDEN, N.J. (AP) — Authorities in the United States and Britain are investigating the possibility that a missing American freighter was hijacked as part of a deal by New Jersey mobsters to buy Iranian heroin, published reports say.

The Poet, missing since Oct. 24, 1980, with her 34-man crew, is the subject of probes by Great Britain's New Scotland Yard and several United States agencies, including the Drug Enforcement Administration, according to a copyright story in Sunday's editions of the Courier-Post of Cherry Hill.

The report says classified cables between the DEA and Scotland Yard indicate those investigations began secretly about Dec. 12, four days after the Coast Guard declared the Poet officially missing and its crew "presumed dead."

On Dec. 12, the Central Drug Intelligence Unit of Scotland Yard informed the DEA's London Office by cable that the Poet might have been part of a bizarre high seas hijacking, the story says.

"We are investigating the disappearance of the Poet as it is possibly related to drug trafficking," said James Judge, a spokesman for the DEA regional office in New York.

The probe centers on an exotic plot by organized crime figures to exchange the Poet's cargo of 13,500 tons of corn bound for Port Said, Egypt, for a large shipment of heroin, the report says.

Investigators from the United States and Europe told reporters they strongly suspect the Poet was seized by drug smugglers while en route to Egypt, according to the report, a joint effort by the Courier-Post and Gannett News Service.

The ship's communication system was destroyed and with a name change and forged documents the vessel was diverted to Iran, the investigators reportedly said.

DEA and Scotland Yard officials say family members of the late reputed South Jersey mob boss Carlo Gambino masterminded the drug deal, according to the report. Neither the Gambinos nor their lawyer could be reached for comment.

Scotland Yard officials would neither confirm nor deny reports of their investigation. Spokesmen for the FBI, Coast Guard, National Transportation Safety Board and U.S. Commerce Department have acknowledged only that separate probes are underway.

Dry Lands Focus Of Discussion

The definition and distribution of the world's dry lands will be discussed by Texas Tech professor Dr. Idris R. Traylor Thursday at The Museum of Texas Tech University.

Traylor is deputy director of Texas Tech's International Center for Arid and Semi-Arid Land Studies.

The lecture will be at 7:30 p.m. in the Main Gallery and is the opening lecture in a six-lecture series on "Arid Lands and Human Responses." The free public lectures are sponsored by The Museum and the West Texas Museum Association. Monthly lectures will continue through June.

In February the series will feature noted classical archaeologist Iris Love. Excavating along the southwest coast of Turkey, she discovered the lost temple of Aphrodite in 1969. She will speak at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 10 at The Museum.

Supplementing the lecture series will be programs on classical Greece and Egypt. "Athens, the Golden Age," a slide/tape presentation on "The Search for Alexander," an exhibit at the National Gallery of Art in Washington, will be shown at 3 p.m. Jan. 25.

The slide show "King Tut and Sythian Gold" will be shown at 3 p.m. Feb. 22.

Traylor has traveled throughout Europe, the Soviet Union, the Near East and Mexico and has lived in Vienna, Paris and London. He has a Ph.D. in history and international relations and came to Texas Tech in 1965.

KING GETS VEHICLES

CHIANG MAI, Thailand (AP) — Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki visited Thai King Bhumipol Adulyadej on Saturday and presented him with seven vehicles worth $155,000, Japanese officials said. Suzuki, on the final leg of a 12-day tour of southeast Asian nations, presented the king with three station wagons, two pickup trucks and two bulldozers for use by northern hill tribes, the officials said.

MEDIA ARMY AT REST

Not All News Fit To Print

THE NEW President, like previous and future occupants of the White House, will be the object of the most intensive and sustained news coverage of any public figure in our society during his term in office.

Yet despite the millions of words that will be written in newspapers and magazines and uttered on radio and television about the chief executive, the public knows very little about how that news is gathered and processed.

Now, however, two political scientists at Maryland's Towson State University have completed an extraordinary study that provides a thoughtful and comprehensive portrayal of the relationship between the President and the press.

THE CO-AUTHORS of the five-year study shatter the myth of Presidents terrified by powerful journalists who hold glamorous, fast-paced jobs.

Those reporters, they explain, actually spend a large amount of time waiting for something to happen—waiting for the briefing to start, for the President to appear for a ceremony, for a visitor to arrive, for a statement or a transcript to be released.

The pressure to be first in presenting the news about the country's foremost celebrity often obviates against thoughtful, in-depth reports, especially in the broadcast media.

George Watson, former Washington bureau chief for ABC news, said "We have to cover what is occurring first, and the perspective is secondary to that."

Mel Elfin, Washington bureau chief for Newsweek magazine, says, "The worst thing in the world that could happen to you is for the President to choke on a piece of meat and for you not to be there."

Barring such disaster, the study concludes that "no matter who is President or who is doing the reporting, (the White House and the news media) are locked into a close and cooperative relationship" based upon "their mutual need...to exploit each other."

There now, feel better?

BALD-FACED MISSTATEMENT

Carter Budget Bubble Busted

SINCE THE FINAL hours of his tenure are ticking away, maybe we ought to just let pass a bald-faced statement by the man who promised "I'll never lie to you."

But when the President of the United States lays out a $739.3 billion budget and labels it "very stringent," our sense of honesty demands that we call attention to his, uh, misstatement.

That is particularly so when he claims that it is "only" $76.6 billion more than this year's, when it's actually $124 billion more than he initially called for a year ago—and when he says it is "only" $27.5 billion in the red, when it actually would result in a deficit of $50 billion or more.

"Adjusted for inflation," Mr. Carter audaciously added, his Fiscal 1982 budget proposal is up a mere 1 percent. This from an administration that caused, with Congress' considerable help, the worst inflation in the nation's history.

Fortunately, the incoming Reagan administration promises to whittle the 1982 budget "by multiples of $10 billion" and it—along with Congress—must be held accountable for that promise.

What must be remembered is that, a year ago, the Carter administration proposed to spend about $615 billion this year, but has let that budget balloon to $662.7 billion and then uses the higher figure to try to make it appear that it is "holding the line" on next year's budget.

"We're going to have to revise it from top to bottom," Reagan budget director David A. Stockman said.

NINE ARE ENOUGH

Cut State Holidays In Half

AN ASTONISHINGLY worthy recommendation has been made by the Legislative Budget Board to whack in half the 18 holidays per year now enjoyed by state employees.

Nine paid holidays are enough for anybody—and approval by the Legislature would bring state workers more nearly in line with the rest of us.

A sour note in this move to eliminate a 9-day waste from the state budget has been sounded, however, by Rep. Ron Wilson, D-Houston. He wants to add Martin Luther King Jr.'s Jan. 15 birthday to the list of state holidays.

We can think of few things more absurd than giving workers another holiday so soon after Christmas and New Year's. If anyone wants to give reverence to the Rev. Mr. King's memory on his birthday, we have no objection, but let him do it before or after working hours or during his lunch break.

The point is that there is no point in declaring so many state holidays in Texas. If we're so overloaded on state employees, or if they're so underworked, that they can take off 18 times a year, then Gov. Bill Clements ought to get back on his White Charger demanding a reduction in their numbers.

We have too much waste and extravagance in government and here is one opportunity to eliminate a little of it.

ART BUCHWALD:

Reporters Are A Breed Apart From Rest Of Us

WASHINGTON—Memo to Reagan Appointees Subject: The Washington Media Mafia
During the course of your stay in Washington, you will have dealings with the Washington media.

Although you may run a multimillion-dollar corporation, or a billion-dollar law firm, do not be under the misapprehension that you can handle a reporter making $250 a week.

The Washington press corps is a type of mafia. The head of the families are publishers, network bureau chiefs, star political reporters and syndicated columnists.

THEY USUALLY can be snowed if you pretend to take them into your confidence, and throw them a piece of red meat every once in a while.

What you have to worry about are the foot soldiers in the families who wear turtle-neck sweaters, socks that don't match and thick rubber soles on their shoes.

These soldiers, both male and female, are the ones who stand out shivering in the cold for hours, and wait for one morsel of information while you are inside having lunch with a noted pundit on his expense account.

They have nothing to lose and everything to gain by putting your ham hocks in the frying pan.

Underpaid and overworked, the soldiers of the media mafia all have fantasies of becoming another Woodward, Bernstein or Barbara Walters. They know the only way they can do it is over your dead body.

SINCE THEY are never invited to swank parties or intimate breakfasts, they have all the time in the world to find out what you're really up to. You would do well not to underestimate them just because they eat their lunch at McDonald's and take notes with a 49-cent Bic pen.

Surly and unresponsive to flattery, the soldiers are not impressed with titles or bloodlines or your old school tie. Most of them have never worn a tie in their lives.

They live in a jungle and are constantly scrounging for food for their stories. They have the killer instinct and would just as soon dine on your carcass as the next public official.

The most dangerous of all the soldiers are the females assigned to cover social functions. Most of them appear to be younger than your daughter, and are selected for their innocent looks and helpless demeanor.

ALTHOUGH THEY always appear flustered and about to cry, they have mastered the art of taking notes with one hand while putting on lipstick with the other.

The big news in Washington is usually made at parties, and while most readers of papers are skeptical of what appears on the front pages, no one questions the facts about what actually took place at a party, when reported in a gossip column.

The electronic mafia is something else again. You have to keep in mind that every TV reporter sent out on a story has only one goal in mind, and that is to get on the air that night.

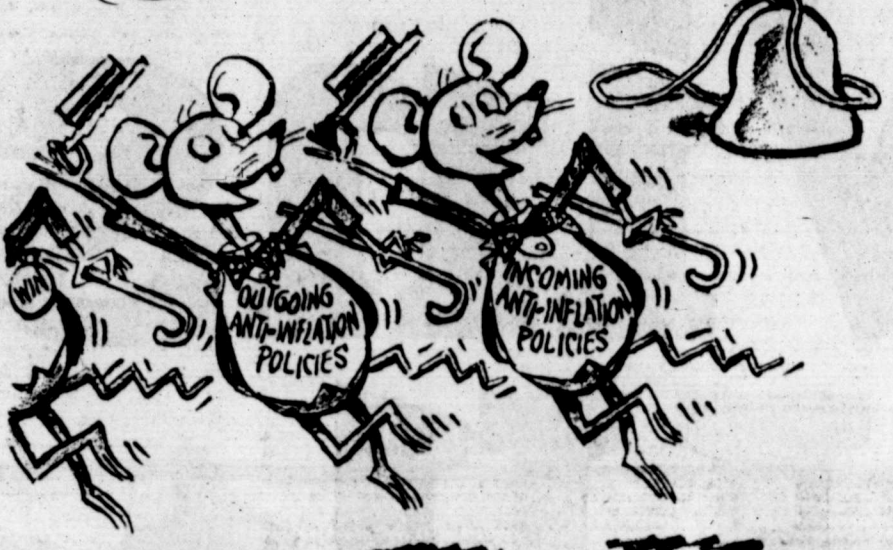

IN ORDER to do that, they have to provoke you into saying something newsworthy, and if you don't say anything of importance, they'll be satisfied with 30 seconds of you bumping your head on your car.

The main difference between the printed-press mafia and the electronic soldiers is that when a story appears in a newspaper about something you said, you can always deny it.

But if you deny something attributed to you on television, they will show you denying it, and then replay the tape of you saying it.

Now that you understand how the Washington media mafia works, it is up to you to decide how to handle it. But don't make the mistake of threatening the soldiers, after they have written something you don't like, by saying "you" know Bill Paley, or Katharine Graham, or Arthur Sulzberger or Otis Chandler—because "they" don't.

"YOU SAY THEY'VE SUCCEEDED IN CLONING MICE?"

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

Cabinet's Locked Up

WASHINGTON—The making of Ronald Reagan's Cabinet ended on the same non-ideological, non-political note on which it began: the choice of a non-Reaganite bureaucrat as secretary of education after rejection of a Reaganite politician.

Secretary-designate Terrel (Ted) Bell is a career school administrator and member in good standing of the "educationist" bureaucracy who campaigned to create the department he will soon head under Reagan's mandate to abolish it.

The Reaganite alternative was uniquely qualified to preside over the dissolution of the Department of Education: Illinois State Rep. Don Tot-ten, a hard-core conservative who backed Reagan for President before Reagan backed himself.

But Totten's philosophical compatibility with and political support for Reagan no more qualified him for the Cabinet than Bell's past record disqualified him.

Almost surely, this choice never reached Reagan. Instead, Reagan was faced with a yes-or-no decision on Bell alone. Hearing no opposition to him, Reagan said yes.

ACTUALLY, IMMEDIATELY following the election, the education transition team considered Ted Bell, read his resume and passed over him. Following two years as a high school teacher, Bell began 36 years as an educational bureaucrat (Utah state education commissioner since 1979).

The cap of his career came as U.S. commissioner of education in the Ford administration, during which he launched the bilingual education program, an exercise of federal power that now threatens young Hispanic-Americans with built-in second-class citizenship.

Upon leaving Washington in 1976, Bell endorsed the need for a Cabinet-level education department. That fit his revised views as he then described them: "I came here feeling that education was almost exclusively a state responsibility. My view has shifted...Congress and the federal statutes can no longer defer to the states and say, 'You take the lead.'"

"The federal government must guarantee certain rights, and in doing so, it should specify the ends of education and provide the financial support to meet those ends."

BELL'S 1976 farewell interview with Time magazine confirmed his new interventionism: "(The federal government's) responsibility ought to be to correct the gross national deficiencies in education." As for busing, the most disliked of all federal "corrections," Bell said "it is hard to find another solution."

With Bell apparently passed over, the choice for education secretary was one of Ronald Reagan's favorite people: Dr. W. Glenn Campbell, director of the Hoover Institution at Stanford University.

What better culmination of Campbell's record of conservative scholarship than to serve in his friend's Cabinet and dissolve a superfluous government department?

But Campbell said no.

BASED ON traditional standards of political eligibility, nobody could be more deserving than Don Totten. Through 1976 and 1980, he had battled for Reagan against an incumbent Republican President, an incumbent Republican governor and the Illinois Republican establishment.

But no such Cabinet-making standards have been followed by Reagan's chief aide, Edwin Meese.

Bell's name popped up again thanks to Dr. Richard Wirthlin, Reagan's pollster-political adviser and a friend of Bell from Wirthlin's Utah days. Meese approved, and the name went to Reagan with endorsement from Utah's two conservative Republican senators.

Not until Jan. 5 did word seep out, too late to build a backfire. Meese, who had let Reaganite William Simon dangle long enough to destroy him as secretary of the Treasury, pushed non-Reaganite Bell with unusual expedition.

TOTTEN WAS asked if he wanted to be Bell's deputy secretary but declined, preferring Illinois politics and a possible 1984 U.S. Senate candidacy. The idea of a Bell-Totten duo dispels theories of any anti-conservative conspiracy, suggesting instead a Cabinet selection process mindlessly free of political or ideological coherence.

That process has produced a Cabinet where Ted Bell is the rule, not the exception. Hardly more than four of its members are committed to the goals for their departments repeatedly pledged by Reagan.

The performance of transition chief Meese makes him an unlikely ideological watchdog. As for Reagan himself, the President-elect is not inclined to that role, either. That explains the concern of those who had been certain that the election of Ronald Reagan would bring radical change.

JAY HARRIS:

The Will, A Way?

A NEW ERA in American politics begins Tuesday...

How well it succeeds, or how miserably it falls short, may well determine the course of this nation's history into the next century.

President-elect Ronald Reagan takes the oath of office as the nation's 40th President Tuesday in a ritual rivaling a coronation in its peripheral pomp, but simple and solemn in its execution.

As he places his hand on the Bible to swear allegiance to and defense of the laws of the land and its physical well-being, the hopes and prayers of millions in the U.S. and abroad will be with him, while at the same time most will wonder what the weeks and months ahead may bring...

A dent in rampant inflation? A halt to growing unemployment? A revival of America's industrial complex? New respect for the dollar and U.S. citizens abroad? New risks and dangers of confrontation?

ONLY TIME and the decisions of the new man in the White House, the new Congress and the American people can furnish the answers.

And in some instances, some of the answers may be out of the hands of most of those just named. Foreign powers, foreign leaders, foreign events over which the U.S. has little or no control may well determine a course of history more world-shaking than that of the past two decades.

Mr. Reagan will be foreseen by many, including many of his most loyal backers of many years, as some sort of "miracle man..."

They, and others new to the game of politics as well as Washington, may expect the new President to launch his own version of "the first 100 days," much as President Franklin D. Roosevelt did back in the throes of the Great Depression.

IT ISN'T likely to happen, and would, in our judgment, be a major mistake.

First, the nation, despite its troubles and the threats from abroad, isn't in the same boat it was in those dark days of 1932. Nor is the mood of the people, here or abroad, the same.

Secondly, Mr. Reagan is dealing with a much more sophisticated electorate, a much more knowledgeable one in the risks of economics and foreign affairs. He would risk his long-range goals for a grandstand play which not only would fall into the "image-making" category of his predecessor, but most likely would fail.

If Mr. Reagan succeeds, in 100 days or four years, he will do so by taking bold steps in unfettering the economy, by taking bold risks in foreign policy and by enlisting the American people in the sacrifices, hard work and dangers. Anything less, especially in involving and getting the cooperation of the citizenry, is doomed.

FOR WEEKS now since his spectacular sweep last Nov. 4, Mr. Reagan and his advisers have been putting together the team and ideas which must start meshing once the fancy clothes of the inauguration are put away.

Much ado is being made in the media of the fact that not only Mr. Reagan but those he has chosen for top-level posts are "renewing" on campaign promises, on everything from that big 30 percent tax cut over three years, retroactive, to balancing the budget.

There will be a tax cut. Mr. Reagan is committed to it. And the nation's hard-pressed, inflation-ridden workers need it. But, it most likely won't be retroactive, nor perhaps as large as once thought. The business of balancing the budget, in due time, may still come about.

But, to build the sort of military force the U.S. must have to survive, to cut taxes and still maintain the "must" items of government, even welfare without waste, will cost unbelievable billions.

Campaign rhetoric, promises, sometimes are better not kept to the letter, whether Democratic or Republican.

ONE OF THE biggest challenges facing the new President and the American people is what sort of stance we take in our relations with other nations.

If anything the Iranian hostage trauma has taught this nation, or should have, is that never again should we be caught in the position of not being able to protect U.S. citizens and property anywhere in the world they have a right to be.

And if the past 40 years or more of tax, tax, tax, and spend, spend, spend and government intrusion into almost every facet of our lives has taught us anything, it should have been that "Big Brother" doesn't know best.

But "doing something" about these facts of life and getting the American peoples' cooperation may be Mr. Reagan's biggest hurdle.

THE PROBLEM is no simple one...

We want inflation halted, prices brought back into line. But we don't want to lose jobs in the process or to sell goods or services at a smaller margin of profit...

We don't want really needy people to starve or suffer, but we don't want to accept the responsibility for such charity ourselves, or pay for it if we can help it...

We want more gas and oil and coal, more urban sprawl and factories, yet we want Nature to be unblemished...

We talk of human rights and seek to implement it, but come off doing so in a double-standard, hypocritical manner that makes our motives suspect to friend and foe...

We want a powerful nation, respected and honored, able to defend its own wherever necessary, but we can't decide who must die, if it comes to that, to preserve this way of life...

In brief, we want it all, "as it used to be or should be." That's what the new man in the White House pledged, and what a sweeping majority of the American people voted for. The only way they will get it is by willing to work for it, all of it...

Yoko Ono Shares Anger, Hope In Open Letter

NEW YORK (UPI) — The widow of John Lennon wrote an open letter Sunday to her husband's millions of fans, calling on mourners of the slain ex-Beatle to use his death to build a world of peace.

"I thank you for your letters, telegrams and thoughts," Yoko Ono said in full-page newspaper ads in major papers in the United States and Britain.

"They came from all over the world," she wrote in her open letter, published in the New York Times, the Washington Post, the Los Angeles Times and the Sunday Times of London.

A New York Times employee estimated a full-page Sunday ad would cost $14,000 to $20,000. The Los Angeles Times said its ad cost $15,280.

Miss Ono described in detail her feelings on seeing her husband shot down outside their posh New York apartment.

Mark David Chapman, 25, of Honolulu, has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity in the Dec. 8 slaying outside Lennon's New York City apartment.

"I thank you for your feeling of anger for John's death. I share your anger," she wrote. "I am angry at myself for not having been able to protect John. I am angry at myself and at all of us for allowing our society to fall apart to this extent."

"The only 'revenge' that would mean anything to us, is to turn the society around in time, to one that is based on love and trust as John felt it could be. The only solace is to show that it could be done, and that we could create a world of peace on Earth for each other and for our children."

"If all of us just loved and cared for one person each. That is all it takes. Love breeds love. Maybe then, we will be able to prevent each other from going insane."

Miss Ono said that "When John fell right beside me, I felt like we were in a guerrilla war, not knowing who or what the enemy was," she said. "I kept telling my staff, who were hiding razors and newspaper articles from me, to show me everything: every telegram, every letter and every message."

She said she tried to understand what happened by looking at newspaper pictures showing her husband signing an autograph for Chapman hours before the shooting — and looking at a photo of Lennon's body.

"I had to know," she said. "I saw the death photo. John looked so peaceful, like in the back of the 'Imagine' (album) cover. Are you trying to show me something John? I saw the photo where he signed the autograph. ..."

"Somehow that photo was harder for me to look at than the death photo. ... He did not have to give his autograph that afternoon, but he did, while the man watched him, the man who was to betray John later. ... I noticed that ... John's head was bent forward, obviously to sign his name. But it was a strange posture for John to show. Then I realized that he was signing for the gate of heaven."

She said donations in tribute to her husband have reached $100,000.

"Every penny, plus the interest it generates will go straight to the people in need at the end of the year," she said.

Miss Ono thanked New York police Saturday for their efforts to save Lennon, sending a handwritten note and a $25,000 check for the families of slain police officers.

"I felt that I owed this letter to you," she told Lennon's followers Sunday. "This may not answer all your questions, but it is the best I can do now. This is also in place of giving interviews, personal appearances and private talks which many of you have asked for. I would like to have some time to myself."

"Remember there's nothing you can do that can't be done. Imagine."

She signed it, "Love, Yoko."

Safety Official To Speak At Tech

The head of the federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration will be the third speaker in the Halliburton Distinguished Lecture Series in the College of Engineering at Texas Tech.

Dr. Eula Bingham, assistant secretary of labor for occupational safety and health, will speak at 4 p.m. Feb. 2 in the Electrical Engineering Annex on the Tech campus. The lecture is free and open to the public.

The lecture series is sponsored by the Halliburton Foundation under the auspices of Tech's College of Engineering.

Since March 1977, Dr. Bingham has been assistant secretary of labor. In that position, she has redirected the activities of OSHA, focusing its attention on serious threats to the lives of American workers.

Before her service with OSHA, Dr. Bingham served five years as associate director of the Department of Environmental Health of the University of Cincinnati School of Medicine. She had been a member of that university's graduate faculty since 1963.

She has served on numerous health advisory groups, including the Food and Drug Advisory Committee, the Department of Labor's Advisory Committee on Carcinogens, the National Air Quality Criteria Advisory Committee, the National Academy of Science Ad Hoc Lead in Paint Committee and the Safety and Occupational Health Study Section of the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health.

Dr. Bingham has conducted research in several fields, including toxicology and chemical carcinogenesis.

She earned her bachelor's degree in chemistry from Eastern University in Richmond, Ky., and received her master's and doctoral degrees in physiology from the University of Cincinnati.

CAREERS

By JOYCE LAIN KENNEDY

Dear Joyce: As a woman engineer, I am never sure which aspects of job-related sexism to ignore and which things to make a big deal of.

— T.R., Paterson, N.J.

Many successful women engineers combine humor, tact and only occasional head-on confrontation in dealing with on-job sexism. Sharing the perspective that many affronts are unintentional, three Boston area engineers — Katherine Becker, Evelyn Murray-Leithall and Patricia Martin — discussed stumbling blocks and solutions with my associate Randy Ring.

The "light touch" category: — Dirty jokes and foul language can be deflected. "I've heard worse" can sap the sting from an effort to embarrass.

— When attempts are made to distract a meeting you are chairing, skillfully redirect the attention. Also, it helps to have an ally in the room.

— Companies often are reluctant to send a woman on trips, worrying that she may not have the savvy to competently represent the firm. To counter this over-protectiveness, insist whenever the occasion arises that you feel ready and would like to travel. Only after a year of volunteering — to no avail — should travel denial be tackled as an ISSUE.

Go to the mat — or at least to your boss — on these:

— While men talking together are considered to be working, even managerial women often are assumed to be wasting time while doing the same. One woman, aware of disapproving glances and remarks, pointed out the inequity to her boss, who supported her viewpoint. Don't succumb to subtle pressure and sit mummy-like at your desk. Studies show that people moving up are out and about, conferring, establishing contacts.

— Companies may overlook giving equal goodies to women. A woman engineer was sent to Chicago with a male co-worker. Because he had the only company credit card, he paid for everything, raising more than a few eyebrows. To get privileges enjoyed by others in your position, persevere in asking for the neglected perks until you have your fair share.

— If, after a reasonable period of proving yourself, you are brushed aside for weighty responsibility, confront the issue directly and congenitally.

Miss Martin, Miss Becker and Miss Murray-Leithall say that women associates are crucial in helping you to sort out which of your reactions are paranoid, which legitimate. If a male superior really dislikes women, find a new job — and tell the personnel chief why you quit; the damage to your self-esteem in sticking it out can be too great.

Remember that a sense of proportion in adversity is the key to surviving on-job sexism. Let the petty annoyances float; do battle only when the stakes are high.

Trials Expected For Thousands Linked To Mao

PEKING (UPI) — China's leaders apparently have decided not to execute Mao Tse-tung's widow but will place the late Communist Party chairman's nephew and thousands of other people on trial for crimes allegedly committed during the Cultural Revolution, diplomatic sources said Sunday.

The second round of trials against "lesser officials" who helped run the "catastrophic" 1966-76 Cultural Revolution is expected to start sometime after the 10 principal defendants, including Mao's widow Jiang Qing, are sentenced for their own crimes.

Hearings against the 10 ended two weeks ago but the court's verdict and sentencing have been delayed at least once as China's leadership struggled to decide the fate of Jiang, the star defendant.

Diplomatic sources said the leadership, including strongman Deng Xiaoping, appeared to be in agreement that Jiang should not be executed, though at one point in the trial there was strong sentiment among China's leaders and throughout the country for the maximum penalty.

But the leaders now apparently have decided it would be "inappropriate" to execute the widow of the country's founding father — a move that would be condemned worldwide as merely political revenge and one which could make Jiang a martyr rather than "the world's most hated woman."

A compromise sentence long under review is that Jiang would be sentenced to death, but execution would be suspended — a common practice in China.

The other nine major defendants also are likely to receive prison terms long enough to prevent them from being free men again, the sources said.

Once the trial of the 10 is out of the way, China will launch a second round of trials involving thousands of people who also allegedly committed crimes during the Cultural Revolution, the sources said.

Preparations for the new trials already are under way and among those who will be in the docket will be Mao's nephew, Mao Yuanxin, the sources said.

Self-Counseling Course Slated

A one-day course in rational self-counseling for people under emotional stress will be offered at Texas Tech University Saturday.

The session will meet from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. in Room 109 of Holden Hall on the Texas Tech campus.

The course, sponsored by Texas Tech's Division of Continuing Education, is designed primarily to benefit persons under stress, but also is recommended for professional counselors.

Dr. Paul A. Knipping, professor of health, physical education and recreation at Texas Tech, will instruct. Knipping has conducted RSC workshops throughout the nation for the past 10 years.

The course on rational self-counseling teaches individuals to manage their emotions and to act the way they would like to act.

According to Knipping, RSC, if learned and practiced, can lessen unpleasant emotions, reduce tension, aid in avoiding heart attacks and increase the general state of happiness.

Registration for the course is $30 per individual or $45 per family. For more information, contact Teresa Katsufakis at (806) 742-2354.

Your Personal Biorhythms

by Bernard Gittelson

Figure your numbers here — For your own permanent biorhythm number for the Physical (P), Emotional (E), and Intellectual (I) cycles, just follow these steps:

STEP 1	YEAR OF BIRTH	P	E	I
STEP 2	A-B MONTH OF BIRTH
STEP 3	DAY OF BIRTH
TOTALS

BIORHYTHMS FOR JAN. 19, 1981
PHYSICAL	Cycles: 11, 28, 38, 51, 52, 74	Highs: 15, 29, 38, 52, 61, 75
EMOTIONAL	Cycles: 9, 25, 37, 51, 65, 79	Highs: 13, 22, 30, 40, 50, 63
INTELLECTUAL	Cycles: 16, 33, 49, 58, 82	Highs: 17, 32, 48, 57, 81

Step 1 — Year of birth. Read down the left hand column to find the last number in the year of your birth then go across to the appropriate decade. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Girls' Parents To Defy Judge On Busing

ALEXANDRIA, La. (AP) — The parents of three white girls will not sign an agreement sought by a federal judge under which the girls would be bused to an integrated high school starting next week, one of the parents and an attorney said Sunday.

"The parents refuse to be intimidated by the Justice Department or the federal government," said Ina Laborde, mother of 13-year-old Michelle Laborde.

At a hearing Friday, U.S. District Judge Nauman Scott, as part of an agreement with state District Judge Richard Lee, asked the parents to promise in writing before Monday that the girls would continue attending all-white Buckeye High School until the semester ends this Friday.

Under that agreement, the girls would then transfer their academic records to racially integrated Jones Street School 15 miles away in Alexandria for the balance of the school year.

Scott stipulated that if the parents rejected the agreement, the girls could not attend any other public school in the nation. He also ruled that if the girls switched to a private school, public school officials could not forward the girls' transcripts — an attempt to deny them credit for work during the past semester.

"They feel as though Judge Scott used legal extortion or blackmail to punish the three children who are just trying to get an education," Mrs. Laborde said. "I will never concede to it. I am more determined now than ever," she said.

The parents insist that they are opposed to forced busing, not racial integration.

J. Minos Simon, the Lafayette lawyer representing the parents and guardians, also said his clients would not submit to the agreement and that the girls would not attend any school Monday.

"They will be engaged in compelled isolation from all schools, except Jones Street," Simon said.

Simon said he would ask Scott today to stay his ruling. Failing that, Simon said, he would appeal to the 5th Circuit and, if necessary, to the U.S. Supreme Court.

"We will not sign that agreement under any circumstances," Simon said. "We are involved in trying to secure to ourselves the constitutional right of free movement and, as citizens of Louisiana, secure the reserved right of residency under the 10th Amendment."

The agreement was worked out in the dismissal of contempt proceedings against Lee, who had defied Scott's busing plan for Rapides Parish by approving the transfer of the girls' legal custody to guardians living in the Buckeye attendance zone.

When Scott interceded and called the transfer a sham to avoid the desegregation issue, Lee ordered state police, then sheriff's deputies, and finally a rural constable to enroll the girls at Buckeye.

After Scott barred the authorities from enforcing Lee's court orders, Lee made Miss Laborde, Lynda McNeal, and Ramona Carbo wards of his court and personally enrolled the girls at Buckeye on five occasions.

The U.S. Justice Department brought contempt of court proceedings against him, school officials, and the parents and guardians of the girls.

Scott's dismissal of contempt charges against Lee in a court hearing last Friday did not depend on the parents' cooperation.

Massachusetts Schools Set To Reopen

BOSTON (AP) — Gas-heated schools in Massachusetts will reopen today after a one-day shutdown that was prompted by a natural gas shortage, Gov. Edward J. King announced Sunday.

King, describing the state's natural gas situation as "guardedly optimistic," gave the go-ahead for more than 100 schools to resume classes after shutting down Friday. He said he had received reports that gas customers across the state had kept consumption below normal for a second straight day.

However, King said gas inventories were still dangerously low and that he would keep stringent thermostat guidelines in effect indefinitely.

Under those guidelines, residential customers of Boston Gas Co., the utility facing the severest shortage, are asked to keep their thermostats voluntarily at 63 degrees or lower.

Commercial and industrial customers are under a "mandatory" directive to obey a 55-degree ceiling, although King has imposed no penalties on violators.

King also ordered the state Department of Public Utilities to continue checking whether Boston-area businesses were honoring his thermostat edict. The department said inspectors had found that about 80 percent of large firms and 50 percent of the smaller ones were complying.

Originally, the department had planned to publicize the violators. However, the agency later backed off, saying it would give companies a chance to justify themselves before disclosing violations.

King said Boston Gas Co., for the past two days, had kept consumption 10 percent below normal. Joseph S. Fitzpatrick, King's energy secretary, said that figure was "weather-adjusted" and reflected actual thermostat rollbacks, not the area's recent warming trend.

"This is encouraging news, and we are certainly grateful to the people for their response," King said. However, the governor warned that the situation could deteriorate within the next few days "if there is a turn in the weather or a failure to maintain these conservation efforts."

The shortage is expected to ease Friday, when a tanker is due back from Savannah, Ga., bringing 900 million cubic feet of gas for the Boston company in liquefied form. The shipment will replenish Boston Gas's seriously depleted reserves.

During a normal winter day, Boston Gas, which supplies about half of the state's gas users, has an output of about 300 million cubic feet. About 280 million cubic feet comes through pipelines, and the balance is made up with liquefied natural gas, propane and synthetic gas.

During the region's recent cold snap, the worst in 105 years, Boston Gas's demand shot up as high as 572 million cubic feet daily, forcing the firm to draw down its liquefied stock. Company officials credited the conservation effort with reducing demand to a more manageable range of about 350 million cubic feet.

Fitzpatrick said the school buildings would add relatively little — about 2 million cubic feet — to Boston Gas's load when they reopen.

Just one more day of zero weather would put the utility back in a "very serious" supply situation, Fitzpatrick said.

Conservation also appeared to have taken firm hold in Lowell and on Cape Cod, two areas that went through a supply crisis a week ago and had to close schools and gas-using industries for one to two days.

The Lowell Gas Co. said its consumption was running 15 percent below normal, while Cape Cod Gas said it was down 7.8 percent. Fitchburg Gas reported a 9.4 percent reduction, and Fall River Gas, a 3.1 percent fall-off.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. I am 12 and have just acquired a paper route. I will have $10 a week to invest and would like to put it into stock. Can you please give me some advice as to what kind of stock to buy? Also, do you think this is a good idea, rather than putting my money in the bank?

A. With $10 a week, it would be a far better idea to put the money in the bank — no matter what your age.

You're to be commended for planning to put money aside. Some of the most sincere letters to this column come from young newspaper deliverers. But you're going to find out that $10 a week doesn't go far in stocks and other investments.

My advice is to open a savings account and keep tucking those $10 bills in to it until you have at least $500. But, first, ask and be sure the bank or savings and loan association pays interest on small deposits. Some pay no interest — and even levy "service charges" — until the money in the account reaches $50 or more. And some just won't take small accounts.

Visit as many banks and S&Ls as you can until you find one willing to take your account and pay interest of 5 1/4 or 5 1/2 percent.

While you're building up your savings account, you'll have time to learn more about investments. One lesson will be that most brokers charge minimum commissions of at least $25 on even the smallest stock purchase or sale.

That, I'm sure you will agree, is too big a charge for you to bear.

I suggest you study the no-load mutual funds. A mutual fund is a company that invests in many different stocks. No-load funds sell their shares directly to investors — not through brokers or other salespeople — without any commission charge.

You can get a list of no-load mutual funds and other information about them by writing Department D, No-Load Mutual Fund Association, Valley Forge, Pa. 19481.

Finally, when you have saved enough to invest, you won't be able to do it on your own. It will have to be done through "Gift to Minors Act" form, with your father, mother or some other adult as custodian for your account. That will bend the rules. But it's done all the time.

Q. When I retired, I received 244 shares of stock in the company for which I worked. I received a statement, showing that the cost of the stock was $11,453.10 and that my "basis" — cost for tax purposes, in case I sold — was $46.94 per share.

The stock has been split, twice, since then — both times two-for-one. As a result, I now have 976 shares. I have no present intention of selling, but I wanted to know my basis per share, in case I do sell some.

I called the "benefits plans department" at the company and was informed that my basis is still $46.94 a share. I called the bank which is transfer agent for the stock and was told the same thing.

Can this be true?

A. Not at all. In your shoes, I would write to that company's president and let him know that both the benefits plan department and transfer agent gave you misinformation — that might get you in trouble with the Internal Revenue Service, if you sell some of that stock.

Your basis on your total investment remains at $11,453.10. That worked out to $46.94, when you owned 244 shares. Now that you own 976 shares, your basis per share is $11.73 1/2 — $11,453.10 divided by 976.

If you sell all 976 shares, your capital gain will be the difference between $11,453.10 and the larger amount you receive from the sale.

Thai Fisherman Says

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — A Thai fisherman claims 82 Vietnamese boat people hijacked his trawler and caused the deaths of five crewmen, the English-language Bangkok Post reported Sunday. It quoted police as saying the refugees faced possible charges of piracy and murder.

According to the newspaper, the fisherman told police that earlier this month, the refugees approached his trawler, climbed aboard for food and water, refused to leave and that a fight then broke out.

Deal Would Restore Status Quo

WASHINGTON (AP) — Carter administration officials said Sunday the proposed agreement for return of the 52 American hostages came down to a straightforward deal — the freeing of the imprisoned diplomats for return of Iranian assets.

"The basic exchange is we're getting back what they took from us and giving back to them what we took from them, as a result," said State Department spokesman John Trattner.

Dollars for people, or as Vice President Walter F. Mondale put it: "We are returning to the status quo."

Mondale said the precise amount of frozen Iranian assets was one of the remaining "quibbles" that delayed a final agreement, but he stressed that "we are not paying a dime of American money for the return of these hostages."

Following the Nov. 4, 1979, seizure of American hostages by Iranian militants in Tehran, President Carter froze Iran's assets held in U.S. banks. He did so for two reasons: retaliation for the hostage incident and protection of U.S. commercial interests after Iran said it might not pay its debts.

Mondale said the frozen Iranian assets totaled about $8 billion, although previous estimates had put the figure at $9.5 billion.

"What we did when we froze these assets was to say we're going to hold Iranian assets — their gold, their dollars in American banks and American-owned banks overseas until our hostages are returned," Mondale said.

"In other words, the Iranians are not receiving anything that is ours. We are returning to the status quo."

Besides the amount of the assets, Mondale said, the other remaining "quibble" was over "court jurisdiction" on outstanding claims against Iranian wealth held by American banks.

Although U.S. officials declined to discuss other details of the proposed agreement Sunday, representatives of 12 major American banks reportedly have agreed to drop lawsuits seeking repayment of money they contend Iran owes them.

The New York Times and Washington Post reported Sunday that the proposed hostage deal called for Iran to repay a portion of its debts to the banks immediately with the rest to be settled later.

"I think it's safe to say that the banks are not going to get into a position where they are going to feel disadvantaged," Trattner said.

Administration officials also said Carter was deeply involved in the details of the negotiations as he tried to settle the 14 1/2 month hostage crisis before leaving office Tuesday.

"The president has been working literally night and day on the details of this agreement, making the key decisions, immersing himself in enormously complicated issues — legal and financial in addition to the human and political," national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski said.

Late last week, the Carter administration readied $2.2 billion in gold and cash or "cash equivalents" of those assets for delivery to an escrow account that could be turned over to Iran when the hostages are released.

The Washington Post reported Sunday that the United States would unfreeze more than $4 billion in Iranian deposits now held in European branches of American banks and transfer that money to an undisclosed third country's central bank.

Quoting unnamed American sources, the Post said the $4 billion would go to Iran after release of the hostages sometime before Jan. 20, when President-elect Ronald Reagan takes office.

Iran would, in turn, use about $1 billion of that money to repay American banks in full for the loans they had made directly to the government of the late former shah, the Post said.

Another $2 billion would be placed in an escrow account and used to pay off the remaining loans by American banks to Iranian institutional borrowers, such as development banks, and Iranian companies, the Post said.

Woman Not Included In Talks

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Cynthia Dwyer, held prisoner in Iran since May when she was arrested and accused of being an American spy, was apparently not included in the negotiations to free the 52 American hostages, her husband said Sunday.

"She's not a hostage and so she's not a part of the negotiations," John F. Dwyer said in an interview with a Buffalo radio station.

He said he was told by the U.S. State Department that they were not currently negotiating for his wife's freedom.

Dwyer said he was not optimistic about a quick release for his wife, though he thought her name could come up in later stages of talks between American and Iranian negotiators.

Another American being held by the Iranians is Mohi Sobhani, an Iranian who is a naturalized American citizen. He was seized last September for unknown reasons. He reportedly had been operating a business in Iran.

State Department spokesman Jack Tuohy said Friday that Mrs. Dwyer and Sobhani are "separate cases" from the hostage issue, and they are not part of the negotiations over the release of the 52 embassy captives.

HOSTAGE SISTER HOPEFUL, BUT GUARDED — Judy Blucker, sister of Robert Blucker, who is being held hostage in Iran, wears a slight smile Sunday as she attended a ceremony for the hostages at Sunrise, Fla. She said that she might believe that it had ended when the hostages got on a plane out of Iran. (AP Laserphoto)

American Hostages Oblivious To Large, Small Events In News

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
WASHINGTON (AP) — The human tide from Cuba. The shooting of J.R. the ascendency of Ronald Reagan. Billy Carter and the Libyans. The eruption of Mount St. Helens. The death of Tito, last of the World War II leaders.

What else so dramatizes the vacuum in which the 52 American hostages lived than the news events that have come and gone while they were insulated from all things of home except themselves?

When he was released by the Iranians because of his illness, hostage Richard Queen said he was a Rip Van Winkle, unaware of the world outside his quarters. He did not know, for instance, that a daring rescue attempt had foundered on the sands of the Iranian desert.

The 52 American hostages missed the thousands of news stories, big and small.

They missed the Super Bowl, the presidential election, the 30th birthday of Peanuts. They missed a heat wave that parboiled much of their nation, the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan that kept many countries home from the Moscow Olympics.

The hostages began losing touch with events Nov. 4, 1979, when they were seized by militants in Tehran. A year later to the day, their homeland chose a new president — electing Republican Reagan over Democrat Jimmy Carter.

On Nov. 4, 1979, Carter and Reagan had not yet announced their candidacies, but John B. Anderson was already an official contender for the Republican nomination.

The hostages missed Anderson's independent campaign, as they did the unsuccessful primary bids of Edward M. Kennedy, Howard Baker, John C. Connally, Philip Crane, Bob Dole and others. George Bush, rejected as a presidential nominee, came out a winner as Reagan's running mate.

Taking events at random, what else did the hostages miss?

With small cars filling the roads, in a time of recession, Americans finally cut back their use of oil. Congress slapped a "windfall profits" tax on oil companies, and Republicans won a majority in the U.S. Senate.

Five pounds of sugar went from $1.30 to $2.60 and more, but the price of coffee dipped. A French restaurant in New York's theater district might have charged $36 for a dinner for two in November, 1979. The same meal now is likely to be at least $45. New York transit fares went to 60 cents.

Buying a home became a financial nightmare with mortgage rates rocketing beyond 15 percent. The prime rate hit 21 percent. Consumer prices accelerated at a rate of more than 18 percent a year. Draft registration resumed.

A predicted recession became a brief reality. Four out of every 10 auto workers were laid off as Americans stopped buying big cars and Japan became the industry leader. The federal government bailed out Chrysler Corp.

One winter there wasn't much snow in the Northeast, and the next winter there was drought. In summer 1980, drought and heat took lives and killed crops.

There were deaths: John Lennon, William O. Douglas, George Meany, Alice Roosevelt Longworth, Josip Broz Tito, Harland Sanders, Mae West, Alfred Hitchcock, Peter Sellers, Steve McQueen, to name a few.

One death the hostages probably knew about — Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, the ousted shah of Iran.

Richard Nixon moved to New York. He published a book warning about the Soviet Union, and granted interviews. When the shah died, the former president went to Egypt for the funeral.

The public was allowed to hear the Watergate tapes. Watergate mastermind G. Gordon Liddy, always silent before, published a book.

John Wayne Gacy was convicted of murdering 33 boys and young men and was sentenced to death. Fires took 84 lives at the MGM Grand Hotel in Las Vegas and 28 lives at an inn in White Plains, N.Y.

The slayings or disappearances of 16 black children were disclosed in Atlanta. Six Nazis and Klansmen were acquitted on charges in the shooting deaths of five Communists at a "Death to the Klan" rally.

Kramer vs. Kramer, a story about a divorced couple's child custody battle, won most of the Oscars. The winners of television's Emmys were obscured by an actors' strike that kept nearly all of them from the ceremony and delayed the 1980 fall season.

Johnny Carson signed a three-year contract with NBC and cut his show to an hour. The CBS program "60 Minutes" continued to fly high, but Dan Rather prepared to leave to succeed the retiring Walter Cronkite.

There was a 36-hour rampage of murder and vandalism at the New Mexico state prison that killed 33 inmates. Computer errors triggered false alerts in the U.S. air defense networks twice in a week.

In Colombia, 222 people were killed and 500 injured when rain-soaked wood bleachers collapsed. Some 10,000 people died in an earthquake in Algeria and about 3,000 Italians were killed in a devastating tremor near Naples. Iran and Iraq went to war.

Frank Sinatra offered to act as a commercial spokesman for Chrysler for $1 a year and the offer was accepted. Sinatra later ran Reagan's inaugural entertainment gala.

A big political issue was disclosure by the Carter administration that a radar-evading airplane called "Stealth" had been tested for two years. The Reagan camp said the disclosure was pure politics and damaged national defense.

The U.S. hockey team took the Olympic gold medal at Lake Placid, N.Y., and a roving satellite sent back spectacular pictures of Saturn. The Moral Majority emerged.

A biography of Errol Flynn, published decades after his death, alleged he was both a homosexual and a Nazi agent. Comedian Richard Pryor recovered from critical burns.

Vernon Jordan, the civil rights leader, was gravely wounded in an ambush. Eighteen people died in race riots in Miami. The United States took in 125,000 Cubans, refugees brought by the "Freedom Flotilla," but months later thousands were without homes.

In Poland, a protest over the government's raising meat prices turned into a countrywide workers' strike. It ended in victory for strikers, formation of independent unions and a continuing threat of Soviet intervention.

Super Bowl XIV matched Pittsburgh and Los Angeles and the Steelers won 31-19. Muhammad Ali tried to regain the heavyweight title for the fourth time and failed miserably.

A new expression "She's a 10" became the vogue after a movie. "10," applied the rating to Bo Derek. Bert Parks was dropped as the emcee of the Miss America contest in favor of Ron Ely, a former movie Tarzan.

Airline fares soared and deregulation of the industry fueled a fare war that at one point had New York to San Francisco flights for $99. Disco faded, punk rock glowed. John Williams, who scored "Star Wars" and "Jaws," was named conductor of the Boston Pops.

The Supreme Court made another abortion decision: the government doesn't have to pay for most abortions of women on welfare.

Billy Carter, the president's brother, had to register as a lobbyist for Libya after accepting $220,000 from that country. The FBI produced a devastating series of television tapes, showing congressmen and others taking bribes from aides to phony Arab sheiks.

Wiretap Bill Sponsors Revise Plan

AUSTIN (UPI) — Sponsors of the wiretap bill that died in the House two years ago are coming back this year with a new, improved version they hope will be more acceptable to legislators who are skittish about privacy.

The Senate bill this year has been loaded with safeguards against invasion of privacy, said Sen. Ed Howard, D-Texas, its sponsor.

"It tracks the federal law but it's stronger," he said. "It gives more safeguards than last time or than the federal."

The new bill, a key element in Gov. Bill Clements' anticrime package, makes an illegal tap a third degree felony and gives victims of illegal taps the right to sue for damages.

Only the director of the Texas Department of Public Safety could request a court order for a tap and only a DPS officer could install the tap. Local police would not be authorized to tap wires.

The officer requesting the tap would have to show that he had exhausted all other investigative methods, Howard said.

The tap would be authorized for only 30 days. A court hearing would be necessary for an extension.

Taps would be authorized only for felony drug cases.

"One of the major problems in the state of Texas is the fantastic, large, huge drug traffic," Howard said. "It's a multi-billion dollar business. The people we're trying to get at are the big guys, the smugglers and manufacturers, not the little guys on the street."

"They're so well-insulated," he said. "They have bodyguards and assumed names."

"According to the testimony we've heard, they do operate by phone, especially in Texas."

For all the new safeguards and all the horrors of the drug traffic in Texas, with its land and sea borders, Howard concedes that passage will be difficult.

"From what I hear, it's going to be difficult, but I think it's going to pass."

he said.

One of the main obstacles to passage will come in the Senate Jurisprudence Committee, whose new chairman, Sen. Oscar Mauzy, D-Dallas, has been opposed to any wiretapping bill.

If the bill can pass the Senate, it could fall again in the House and will fall again, if Rep. Robert Bush, D-Sherman, has his way.

"I just have a whole package of safeguards I'm going to propose," Bush said with a chuckle.

If Bush cannot severely weaken the bill with amendments, he will appeal to the members' concern about privacy and freedom of thought.

London Students Urge Strict Punishments

LONDON (AP) — Students at a suburban London junior high school believe the crime rate in Britain, where capital punishment was abolished 15 years ago, would drop if criminals were punished by public hangings, thumb screws, whipping or amputation, a British news agency reported Sunday.

The children, aged 11 and upwards, were asked by their teachers at Charnwood Comprehensive School in the low-income area of Clifton, in the London area, to suggest ways of solving the problems of a violent world, the Press Association of Britain said. It did not say how many children took part in the poll.

According to the agency, some children suggested public punishments including hangings and the televised broadcast of executions.

A choice of electric chair, guillotine or the gas chamber was proposed for serious crime, and for lesser violence, the rack and thumb screws, it said.

The agency quoted the children as saying thieves should have a hand or two chopped off, juvenile delinquents should be whipped, shoplifting should bring 10 years in prison, and the theft of a chocolate bar at least nine months.

It said the children also suggested force-feeding hunger strikers, arming women with knives and guns for their own protection, and closing bars on Christmas Eve.

One of the more lenient children suggested abolishing life sentences and holding prisoners only until the age of 70 or 80, the agency reported.

It said another child offered this simple remedy for violence: more work and less sex.

Capital punishment was abolished in Britain in 1965.

On Jan. 8, a Royal Commission recommended giving British police sweeping new powers to arrest, hold and interrogate suspects despite an outcry from civil liberties groups.

The proposals, which did not recommend bringing back hanging, were seen as a victory for the country's law-and-order lobby.

Reagan Hears Hostage News

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "Oh, I pray you're right," said President-elect Ronald Reagan Sunday when told of news bulletins saying the hostage crisis was over.

Reagan made the comment as he walked out of worship services at the National Presbyterian Church.

Reagan was also asked whether he would sign a pact between the United States and Iran, and told reporters that he would "if there was an agreement pending and they insisted on my signature before they would release the hostages. What I really meant was I would sign that agreement when they release the hostages."

"But you're not going to sign a blank check," he was asked and replied. "No." A reporter buttonholed the president-elect after he attended the 9:45 a.m. EST church service with his wife and told him there were news bulletins that the hostage crisis was over.

"I pray you're right," Reagan replied.

Cabinet Confirmation Expected Soon After Inauguration Day

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With the probable exception of Labor Secretary-designate Raymond Donovan, the Senate is ready to confirm Ronald Reagan's Cabinet either on or shortly after Inauguration Day.

The Senate has scheduled a 2 1/2-hour session Tuesday, just after Reagan takes the oath as president, and plans to confirm those nominees who face little or no opposition.

Those whose nominations face considerable debate — like Secretary of State-designate Alexander Haig — will be put off until Wednesday.

But Donovan, under intensive scrutiny by the Senate Labor Committee and the Justice Department, could be in trouble.

Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, chairman of the committee, has asked FBI Director William Webster to expedite an investigation of new allegations concerning Donovan, a northern New Jersey construction contractor.

Hatch did not outline the specifics of the allegations but they reportedly deal with purported payoffs to assure labor peace.

After the charges surfaced last week, Reagan said he was confident Donovan, his 50-year-old New Jersey campaign manager, would be confirmed.

Only eight Cabinet appointments have been rejected by the Senate. The last was Lewis Strauss, named by President Eisenhower to head the Commerce Department in 1959.

Senate committees were set to approve several more cabinet and cabinet-level nominations Monday, setting the stage for their confirmation the following day.

They are John Block, agriculture secretary; Caspar Weinberger, defense; Andrew Lewis, transportation; Malcolm Baldrige, commerce; Donald Regan, treasury; Richard Schweiker, health and human resources; William Brock, special trade representative, and David Stockman, budget director.

The Senate Banking Committee was polling its members of the nomination of Samuel Pierce, named to head housing and urban development.

Already approved by committees are Haig; James Watt, interior secretary; James Edwards, energy; Terrel Bell, education; William French Smith, attorney general; William Casey, CIA director, and Jeane Kirkpatrick, ambassador to the United Nations.

ANN LANDERS:

Husband's Words Too Late For Wife

Dear Ann Landers: I just came from a very sad funeral. The woman was only 53. Before they closed the casket her husband patted her hair, kissed her cheek and whispered, "Goodbye, Honey."

I was deeply moved by what I saw because I knew this couple well. They lived next door to us for nearly 20 years. I heard him call her many names, and "Honey" wasn't one of them. She was a wonderful person and deserved a lot better treatment than she got from him.

Why do husbands wait until their wives die before they call them "Honey"? I hope every man who reads this will start today — while his wife can still hear him. — Tragic Day in W. Islip

Dear Friend: Thank you for a letter that is certain to make some husbands stop and think. I hope some wives out there will get the message, too.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 42-year-old woman — average-looking and slightly overweight, maybe 15 pounds. I am a good cook and love to eat. I decided a long time ago I wasn't going to starve myself to death so I could get into a size 14 dress.

My sister-in-law is so thin she looks consumptive. The girl never touches a piece of pie, cake, candy or ice cream.

She insists she doesn't care for rich food. How can anyone NOT care for chocolate cake, lemon pie and home-made cherry ice cream with nuts? Is it possible that she is lying and would just love to indulge in these treats? — Las Vegas Question

Dear L.V.: I hate to ruin your day, but some people have no desire for rich desserts, candy and ice cream. Your sister-in-law may be one of them.

Dear Ann Landers: Before my parents moved out of the state they gave a few pieces of furniture to some neighbors. There was a wash basin in the basement that these neighbors asked for. It belonged to my paternal grandmother. I thought surely it would be mine one day. I sat down and wrote a letter to the neighbors expressing my feelings. They replied at once, saying they were not aware of my attachment to the wash basin and to come get it.

I felt uncomfortable because they were so nice about it. I said they should keep the wash basin and enjoy it.

Another letter came saying they wished I would take the basin — all that would be required was that I pay for the finishing they had done before it was put into use. Again, I replied, "No — my folks gave it to you — keep it."

A few years later they moved to Oklahoma and took the wash basin with them.

A few months ago they moved back to town. I want desperately to have this only remembrance of my father's family.

I feel anger toward this couple for having had the nerve to ask for something that had so much sentimental value to me and none to them. I am also mad at myself for not having the guts to take it back years ago. What should I do? — Barbara In Kentucky

Dear Barbara: You have no cause to be angry with them. They offered the wash basin to you on more than one occasion, and you declined. Now — go over there with your checkbook, pay the price of the refinishing and take it home already.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

I have been saying hello and goodbye for over 40 years now, and I still don't have the hang of it.

No matter how hard I try, I still can't anticipate who are the kissers, the shakers, the huggers, or the wavers.

Every time I think I'm saying hello to a shaker, he's invariably a hugger and I end up with my arms stiff at my side looking like a mummy that has just fallen out of its case, or taking a giant step forward and standing on both of his feet.

On the other hand, if he's a kisser and I think he's a waver, I end up with my hand in his ear.

I've observed a lot of hellos and good-byes and frankly, for sheer drama, no one kisses hello better than show biz people. On talk shows they swoop out from behind a curtain, are surprised to see the host whom they just saw 15 seconds before, and go for the left cheek. They sometimes stand on tiptoe and raise one foot off the floor.

There is never any confrontation of noses, no earrings catching in his hair or fountain pens puncturing inflated parts of your anatomy.

If the guest has known the host for over an hour, they touch lips, being careful not to smudge the gloss or leave a trace on the kisser. The kiss has all the warmth and passion of blotting excess lipstick on toilet tissue, but it looks wonderful.

For sheer pucker power no one compares with Richard Dawson, on his game show, Family Feud. I clocked him on one 30-minute show and he dispensed a total of 23 kisses. One thing I discovered is that when you're tense about winning $10,000, you kiss with your eyes open.

The prize for the most awkward greeting kiss has to go to the Catholic Church's Kiss of Peace. During the more progressive services, you are asked to turn to the person standing next to you and extend to him a wish for peace and a kiss. It's like a religious blind date.

The problem is we are expected to do now what our mothers used to say we'd go blind for if we weren't married. Touching with affection now is an acceptable part of our society.

We all stumble through it somehow, but I was secretly impressed the other night when I saw a woman leaving a party. The host reached out to kiss her and she said, "I have a cold." He reached out to hug her and she said, "I have a bad back." When he reached out to shake her hand, she said, "Sorry. Too many rings." When he waved she grinned, "I have a jealous husband."

Then she turned and winked, "But write me!"

Several important events going on in the Lubbock Club Circuit this week...

The Women's Division of the Chamber of Commerce is planning several exciting events for coming months. Connie Chapman told us at lunch the other day. Most immediately, the division will have a theatre party for the Ballet Folclorico Nacional de Mexico, scheduled for the Municipal Auditorium Jan. 30. Reservations by Jan. 30...

A note from president Terry Krelger, informs us the annual meeting of the Friends of the Lubbock City-County Library will be Saturday at the Reese Officers Club. Election of officers and adaptation of revised by-laws are on the agenda. A jazz musical program and the premier showing of a film on the history of the Lubbock Library will be featured. Social hour starts at 6:30 and dinner at 7 — all members and friends are invited.

Our friends from the United Daughters of the Confederacy have plans to observe Confederate Heroes week this week, with such events as honoring the graves of Civil War soldiers, placing a wreath on the monument to Colonel Lubbock, and special displays at the Museum and Library.

Phi Delta Kappa is planning its Diamond Jubilee Celebration Monday at 7 p.m. in the Senate Room of the University Center at Tech. Featured speaker will be Dr. Bertie Fallon, on "What's Right With Education?" (Sounds like a winner!) Dr. Fallon is a delightful speaker, and we know this will be an enjoyable evening. (Mayor Bill McAlister has proclaimed this week Phi Delta Kappa Week in Lubbock, to pay homage to this valuable organization for educators.)

Lubbock Symphony Guild is planning a new members' orientation and coffee Wednesday from 10-11 a.m. at Sue Clary's, 3001 79th St. Lisa Greer says this will be a very informal coffee, chat, and get-acquainted time.

AT THE LUBBOCK WOMEN'S CLUB:

Claude Dollins will give an all-day workshop Monday for Enrichment and Heritage, on "Pulling Your Own Strings."

Friday, "Gems of Kenya, Africa" will be the theme of the luncheon meeting, at which sister-and-brother team Mrs. Garth English and S. S. Forrest will show slides and share experiences on their trip to Kenya.

BEST BETS:

Techsan Garden Club will meet Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the home of Lou Mattson, 3118 21st St., to hear Rosemary English talk about "Planting to attract birds into your garden." There will also be information about the Audubon Society.

Roxanne McDonald, a Tech student, and a clerk in the office of the District Attorney, will present a program on "Current Drug Laws" Tuesday for Lunch Bunch at Mahon Library.

Creative Crafts Coop will meet Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Garden & Arts Center. Those attending can register for the winter term of arts and crafts classes offered by the co-op. The meeting will also feature Valentine holiday demonstrations and election of officers for the coming year. Anyone interested in arts and crafts is welcome, or can obtain further information by calling Rae Bolles, 792-8149.

Texas Retired Teacher Association and the National Retired Teachers Association will meet for luncheon Thursday at First Christian Church. Our own Jay Harris will speak on "Where we have been and where we are going" for this always-delightful group of active oldsters.

Physicians Disagree About Diet, Ulcers

By PAUL DONOHUE, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Why can't you M.D.s get your stories straight? You have written that diet control is not important in duodenal ulcers. Yet, my doctor has told me that it is. Granted this was several years ago, but I can't see where the human body has changed all that much since. Don't all medical schools teach the same way, or what? Anyway, I guess my question is how do you support such a statement about diet and ulcers? — Mrs. F.K.

Many physicians today question the necessity of a special diet for treatment of duodenal ulcers. For years, special diets were prescribed as part of ulcer therapy. Many doctors may well continue to advise this, although studies do suggest that diet plays no role in the essential problem of the peptic ulcer — that of over-production of stomach acids. There is no proof that bland diets, for example, either reduce the amount of such acids or hasten the healing of the ulcer.

I should remind you that milk was once suggested as the ideal food for a person with ulcers. This has since been proved not only ineffective but potentially aggravating. Milk is a producer of the acids referred to.

The result is that today many physicians allow their ulcer patients to choose their foods freely, but urge them to reduce greatly their coffee intake and to abstain from alcohol during the healing phase.

It is possible that the doctor you consulted several years ago might think differently today if you were to ask him. I might not. There is still a lot of room for variances of medical opinion regarding many ailments.

May I paraphrase the great Indian statesman and patriot, Gandhi? I am not concerned with consistency. I am concerned with trying to be consistent with the truth as it is revealed to me.

Since I am not convinced that diets affect the course of peptic ulcer, I see no need to prescribe them.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Would you please tell me why a woman in her 40s should not have a baby when she is in good health? My doctor can see no reason why I shouldn't. We can afford to take care of one better now than when we first started out in our marriage. Our friends think people will say it was an "accident." I say if they are our friends they will not think of it in that way, and if they do talk, who cares? — Mrs. M.H.

Statistically, there is an increased risk of certain congenital abnormalities with the increased age of the mother. I am sure you and your doctor are aware of this. But there are many other variables besides age involved, not the least of which is the relative health of the woman. That's another factor both you and your doctor have to weigh in making a decision.

There's a lot left out of your letter — for example, how far you are into your fifth decade of life. If you are near menopause, which you very likely are, there might be difficulty conceiving. In the final analysis, if you and your husband, with the advice of your doctor, decide to have a child now, you are quite right in saying that it is no one's business but yours and your medical advisers'. If you wish, you might discuss this with a genetic counselor.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am an 85-year-old female and my problem is eating. I just don't get hungry. A piece of toast for breakfast and then nothing until 5 p.m. Even then, I can only eat a bite or two. I just don't want any more. I am beginning to lose weight. I have always weighed about 148, but in the past few months I have gone to 123. I am about 5 feet, 6 inches tall. I suppose I should be taking vitamins of some kind. Do you think so? Do you have any suggestions? I don't want to lose any more weight. — C.M.

I don't want you to lose any more weight, either. My first suggestion is that you quickly get to your doctor to find out if there is any physical cause for this sudden loss of appetite and weight. If there is not, it might stem from mental depression, and that may be your real problem.

Or if you are eating alone and cooking for yourself, that might lead to a disinterest in food.

Anemia would not be a surprising finding in one your age, and that should be treated, if present. Yes, if you are not getting your share of various food groups you would need some supplements, such as multi-vitamins and minerals.

What are ulcers? How can you help yourself get rid of ulcers and stay rid of them? Read the booklet, "How to Heal Peptic Ulcers." For a copy write to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

CHOCOLATE FLECK COFFEE CAKE

1/2 pkg. (9 squares) sweet cooking chocolate, chopped
1/4 cup chopped nuts
1/4 cup sugar
1 tsp. cinnamon
1-3/4 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
1/2 tsp. double-acting baking powder
1/2 tsp. salt
1 cup (1/2 pt.) sour cream
1 tsp. baking soda
1/2 cup butter or margarine
1 cup sugar
2 eggs 1/2 tsp. vanilla
Combine chocolate, nuts, 1/4 cup sugar and the cinnamon, set aside.
Sift flour with baking powder and salt. Combine sour cream and soda. Cream butter. Gradually beat in 1 cup sugar and continue beating until light and fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Add vanilla. Add flour mixture alternately with sour cream mixture, beginning and ending with flour mixture. Spoon half the batter into greased 9-inch square pan; then top with half the chocolate-nut mixture, spreading carefully with spatula. Repeat layers. Bake at 350 degrees for about 30 to 35 minutes, or until cake just begins to pull away from sides of pan. Cool in pan; then cut in squares. Makes 9 servings.

Local Couple Hunts Together, Shares Recipes For Wild Game

By JEANNE LIVELY
Family News Staff

Candidly, Nita and Larry Hibler love to hunt. Just this past season, they went on two deer hunts and brought back two bucks.

But something the Hiblers always have been adamant about is to take wild game only in the amounts needed to fill the family larger and use whatever game they brought home.

For so long, the Hiblers assert, they tried to learn all they could about preparing wild game — both for their own enjoyment as well as that of friends.

The following recipes are "tried and true" family favorites. Nita has used the recipe for Venison Roast for at least 20 years. Nearly traditional now is a dish called Salmi of Pheasant, that she serves at the employee Christmas dinner of her husband's firm.

VENISON ROAST

1 8-10 lb. leg of venison (hind-quarter with all fat cut away)
1 large onion, peeled, minced
Salt and pepper
3 tps. instant meat tenderizer
1/2 lb. bacon slices
1 cup hot water
2 bay leaves
1 onion, peeled, sliced
About 4 to 5 hours before serving:
(1) Start heating oven to 325 degrees. Arrange venison on wire rack in large covered roasting pan. Combine minced onion with 1/2 teaspoon salt and 1/4 teaspoon pepper.

(2) With sharp knife, over surface of venison, make deep gashes, about 2 inches apart. Stuff each gash with some of the onion mixture, then rub top and bottom surface of venison with meat tenderizer.

(3) Lay bacon slices over surface of venison. Pour the hot water into roasting pan, add bay leaves and sliced onion, and cover pan tightly (use foil if pan does not have a cover).

(4) Roast venison, allowing about 25 to 30 minutes per pound, depending on rareness desired, basting frequently.

(5) When done, lift venison to heated platter, and keep warm. Make gravy as follows: Skim fat from drippings in roasting pan; measure drippings. To the drippings add a paste made of 1 tablespoon flour, stirred smooth with 1/2 cup water for each cup of drippings. When creamy, simmer, while stirring, until thickened; add salt and pepper to taste. Count on about 1/2 pound of venison per serving.

CROCKPOT VENISON

2 2 1/2 lb. venison
Meat tenderizer, if desired
1 envelope onion soup mix
1 can golden mushroom soup
1/2 cup water

Tenderize meat if desired. Cut into serving pieces and place in slow cooker. Add remaining ingredients and cook on low for 6 to 8 hours. Serves 6.

VENISON MARSALA

1 lb. venison backstrap
Flour, salt and pepper
1/2 cup butter
1/2 cup sweet Marsala wine
1/4 cup canned concentrated bouillon
Cut meat into thin, even slices. Pound slices lightly until very thin. Season flour with salt and pepper to taste. Dredge meat in mixture. Melt butter, add meat and brown on both sides.

Add Marsala and cook a couple of minutes longer over moderate heat. Remove meat from pan and place on a warm platter. Add bouillon to pan, stir well to loosen all brown particles and bring to a boil. Pour over meat. Serves 4.

VENISON COCKTAIL MEATBALLS

1 lb. ground venison
1/2 tsp. pepper
1/2 lb. butter for frying
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 cup finely grated raw potato
Combine all ingredients. Form into small balls. Cook slowly in melted butter until done. Drain and keep hot. Yields: 30 meatballs.

SWEET 'N SOUR SAUCE

(To Serve With Meatballs)
1 14-oz. bottle hot-type catsup
1/4 cup lemon juice
Dash of Tabasco
Dash of Worcestershire sauce
1/2 tsp. pepper
1/2 cup white corn syrup
1/3 cup white vinegar
2 finely minced cloves of garlic
1/2 tsp. seasoned salt
Combine all ingredients for sauce. Bring to a boil. Simmer 10 to 15 minutes to blend flavors. Place meatballs in chafing dish; pour sauce over meatballs. Serve hot with toothpicks.

OLD WEST VENISON PEPPER STEAK

1 3-lb. venison roast, 2 inches thick
2 1/4 tps. instant minced onion
1 crushed bay leaf
1/4 cup bottled cracked pepper
1 tsp. marjoram
Salt
2 tsp. unseasoned meat tenderizer
1/2 cup cooking oil
2 tsp. thyme
1 cup wine vinegar
3 tps. lemon juice

Sprinkle meat evenly on both sides with meat tenderizer and pierce deeply with a fork. Place in a shallow, glass baking dish. Mix instant onion, thyme, marjoram, bay leaf, vinegar, cooking oil and lemon juice in a small bowl. Pour over meat. Let stand at room temperature 2 hours, turning every 15 minutes.

When ready to grill, remove meat from marinade. Wipe meat with paper towels. Use 1/2 tsp. salt for each side of meat. Pound half the cracked pepper into each side of the meat, using a wooden mallet.

Grill about 6 inches above hot coals, turning until meat is done to a rich brown. Time will depend on heat of coals and desired doneness of meat. Allow approximately 15 minutes on each side for rare.

BREAST OF DOVE IN WINE SAUCE

Flour
Salt
Pepper
Garlic salt
Oil for frying
1 cup chicken broth
1 cup dry white wine
1 pkg. long grain and wild rice mix, cooked
Season flour with salt, pepper and garlic powder to taste. Dredge dove breasts in mixture and brown in hot oil. Pour off excess oil and add broth and wine to cover breasts (adding more liquid in equal parts if necessary).

Bring to a boil, then simmer covered for 2 hours or until tender. If desired, remove meat from bones and return gravy. Serve over wild rice mixture. Serves 4.

POTTED QUAIL

8 quail
Salt and pepper
Flour
1/4 cup butter
Water
6 large mushrooms, sliced
2 tps. chopped parsley
Buttered toast
Sprinkle salt and pepper on quail inside and out, lightly flour and brown in butter. Add mushrooms and 1/2 cup of water. Cover and cook 10 minutes over low heat. Add parsley, cover and cook 10 minutes or a little longer, turning them occasionally. Salt and pepper sauce to taste and spoon over quail on toast.

FRIED QUAIL

Salt and pepper quail inside and out. Roll in flour and fry in very hot deep cooking oil until they begin to brown.

Lower heat and continue to fry until well-browned.

SMOTHERED QUAIL

8 quail
Salt and pepper
1/2 cup cubed bacon
6 tps. flour
2 scallions and tops minced
1 tsp. minced celery leaves
2 1/2 cups canned chicken broth
Pinch of thyme
1/2 bay leaf
1 tsp. chopped parsley
Sauté bacon until brown and remove from skillet. Put lightly peppered and salted quail in drippings and when browned remove and add flour to brown, then onions and stir a minute.

Add all other ingredients and return bacon and quail to gravy, cover and simmer 20-30 minutes. Turn occasionally until done. Add more chicken broth if needed. Serve with white rice, whole hominy or grits, snap beans or field peas, biscuits or corn bread and fried tomatoes.

SALMI OF PHEASANT

1 pheasant (an older one)
2 tps. salad oil
1 chopped medium onion
1 chopped shallot
1 mashed clove garlic
4 1/2 tsp. flour
2/3 cup red or white wine
1 cup canned whole peeled tomatoes
1/2 tsp. salt
3 whole black peppers
1 faggot (2 stalks celery, 4 sprigs parsley, 1/2 bay leaf, sprig thyme, tied together)
12 mushrooms
3 tps. butter or margarine
Day before: Roast cleaned pheasant and refrigerate. To roast, heat oven to 450 degrees. The legs and wings of pheasant close to body.

Sprinkle with salt, pepper. Cover breast with slices of fat salt pork or bacon; tie in place with string. Place bird on its side in heated pan; pour 1/4 cup salad oil over all. Roast bird, uncovered, 15 minutes, basting often.

Turn onto other side; roast 15 minutes. Then, turn bird onto back and roast 10 to 15 minutes, basting often. Bird is done when juice is clear, not pink.

Next day: Cut breasts and legs from roast pheasant and cut up carcass; set aside. For sauce: in saucepan, heat salad oil; add onion; cook until golden. Add shallot, garlic, flour; cook 2 minutes. Stir in wine; cook, stirring, until thickened.

Add tomatoes, salt, peppers, faggot, cut-up carcass and pheasant legs. Simmer, covered, for 1 hour.

Remove legs; remove and discard skin; slice meat from bone; slice breast meat. Place leg and breast meat in skillet; strain sauce over them; heat over low heat until meat is hot. Meanwhile, saute mushrooms in butter 5 minutes.

To serve: Top pheasant and sauce with mushrooms. If desired, garnish with toast spread with Roennaise. Makes 2 to 3 servings.

HINTS FROM HELOISE:

Reader Asks Help Cleaning Sticky Wooden Salad Bowl

DEAR HELOISE:
I recently purchased a wooden salad bowl set. The instructions said to rub a little oil on the bowl after each use.

The bowls have only been used three times and they have become sticky already. I followed the directions to the letter. I thought, What am I doing wrong? — Helen Racano

If you rinse the bowls in cold water, quickly wash them in warm suds, rinse again in cold water and thoroughly dry the surface, you're on the right track.

After letting them sit a spell to make sure they are dry, rub them with warm olive oil and let them again sit overnight. The thinner the oil, the better it will penetrate. The next day, wipe off any excess oil with a clean, soft cloth.

Perhaps your problem stems from letting the salad and dressing stay in the bowl for too long a period of time.

If you must mix your salad ahead of time, line the bowl with a sheet of plastic wrap, and don't pour the dressing on until the last minute — especially if you're using vinegar and oil.

Same goes when cleaning up after the meal — rinse those bowls out pronto. Don't leave them piled up with the rest of the dishes you plan to do later.

Hopefully this will solve your problem and have you enjoying those wooden bowls for years to come. — Heloise

STUFFY NOSES

DEAR HELOISE:
When newborn infants get stuffy noses and can't turn themselves over to help them breathe, do what the hospital nursery does.

Lower one end of the crib a notch or two, allowing the baby's head to be slightly higher than his or her feet. This helps the mucus to drain, thus giving the baby a more restful sleep.

HAMBURGER PATTIES
DEAR HELOISE:
I buy ground beef in large packages when on sale. Not ever knowing exactly what I'll use it for during the week, or how much I will need at one time, here's what I do.
I make it all into patties, freezing each one separately on a cookie sheet in plastic sandwich bags. When frozen, I package them all together.
Now, no matter what's on the menu, if I need meat for tacos or spaghetti sauce, I take out the necessary number of patties and they thaw and cook up very quickly.
Same goes for meatballs. And, of course, hamburgers are a cinch! — Cathy Vander Toorn

SLIPPERY TRAY

I'd like to share a trick I learned when I was a flight attendant.
When serving food on a tray, never put the dishes directly on the tray's slippery surface. At home I use pretty kitchen towels to line my serving trays.

COOKIE SUBSTITUTE
DEAR HELOISE:
The other day I was making oatmeal cookies. Unfortunately I was low on oats. I substituted some of that new natural cereal for the oats. The cookies were delicious and really different. — Catherine Sims

Nancy Reagan Chooses Designer Fashions

By FLORENCE DE SANTIS
 NEW YORK (NEA) — If the ladies don't go to Halston, they go to Adolfo and Nancy Reagan is no exception.
 Her daughter doesn't buy at Adolfo, but then Patti Davis, (she uses her mother's maiden name as her career name) is still a struggling young actress. Even she, however, has shown a family penchant for name designers and has spurred for the inaugural wedding Tuesday. Patti will wear a sensational red Dior dress from Giorgio, one of the posh Beverly Hills boutiques.
 Patti's choice of red is also often that of the first lady-to-be, because it's the favorite color of Ronald Reagan. Mrs. Reagan's inaugural gown remains, of course, a secret until the big night, but her fashion tastes have been well known for a long time. She's been in the Hall of Fame of the Best Dressed list since 1973, meaning that she was voted onto the list three times and thus retired from competition. You don't get on that list without patronizing the best designers.
 Mrs. Reagan may do more than bring designer fashions to the White House. She will provide a much-needed image of the mature woman as a fashion example. She has always known how to adapt fashion trends to her own figure. She also has the indefinable knack of wearing clothes well, that something which is called "style" and that only mature women usually develop. She always looks impeccable, but never stiff.
 Nancy Reagan is also one of the many women who are a "special size." She is among the "petites" whom the fashion market has lately begun to service more energetically. Mrs. Reagan, of course, can have her clothes custom-made, although she usually doesn't have them specially designed. She chooses from the regular collections of a number of designers. In New York, her custom maker is Adolfo, who designs in the couture manner. His Chanel-style suits look especially good on her figure.
 On the West Coast, her custom designer is Jean Louis, once among the great designers for films. Now a commercial designer, he says that Mrs. Reagan always selects from his seasonal collections. Recently, she bought his two-piece red jacquard dinner dress with V-neck and pleated skirt. She also has his black dress with a lace peplum top and a green and blue silk print which she wore in November on election night.
 The manner in which Nancy Reagan adapts styles to her figure is shown in what happened to a red and white striped dress she recently ordered from the Bill Blass spring collection: Its skirt became longer than the original knee-length, the neckline ruff was replaced by a soft bow, the balloon sleeves narrowed to shirt width and the fluffy sash turned into a simple belt.
 Mrs. Reagan has ordered several new outfits from Bill Blass and Adolfo for her first months in the White House. Her Blass choices include a slim coat, a chemise tunic dress, the red and white already mentioned, and a short-jacketed red suit quite different from the Chales she buys at Adolfo.

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

 What is your opening bid?
A.—In terms of high cards, your hand is not strong enough for a reverse. Therefore, you might think that this hand should be opened one diamond so that you can rebid two clubs over partner's response. However, the playing strength of this hand is so great that we would not hesitate to bid our suits naturally. We would open one club and bid two diamonds over any action by partner. Partner needs very little to allow us to make game in one of our suits.

could begin an involved sequence by cue-bidding the ace of spades but we suggest a more direct approach—four no trump Blackwood. If partner announces three aces and two kings, a grand slam is a virtual certainty and we would be willing to chance the grand if he shows only one king.

 Partner opens the bidding with one heart.
 What do you respond?
A.—This is simply a question of whether you should pass or raise partner's hearts in the hope of making it more difficult for the opponents to enter the auction. If it's their hand, a raise won't keep them out but a more live possibility is that your partner, thinking that you have a sound raise, might get excited and that could prove expensive. In the long run, the prudent course is to pass when you don't have enough to respond.

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠ 6 ♣ K763 ♣ AK8 ♠ AQ765
 The bidding has proceeded: South West North East
 1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass

2 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass ?
 What action do you take?
A.—You have a very good hand and you have done nothing to show it. Since partner's bid was forcing, to bid three hearts would merely confirm the impression that you have a minimum. Not even a jump to four hearts would do justice to your hand. We would jump to four diamonds. Since you did not reverse into diamonds at your second turn, this can't be natural. It must be a cue bid, and the only thing that could have improved your hand so rapidly is a good fit for partner's hearts.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 1 ♠ Pass 3 ♠ Pass
 4 ♠ Pass ?
 What do you bid now?
A.—You have a good hand for your jump raise—all prime cards. However, you should exercise some caution. Your queen of hearts might not be pulling its full weight and if partner's four-club bid is a cue bid, your ace of clubs is duplication of values. Also, your trump support could be better. For the moment, we would content ourselves with a bid of four spades and wait to see if partner makes another move.

 Alan: "South needs four club tricks to come to the nine he needs for his contract. He plays dummy's king of clubs, returns to his ace and leads his last club which produces the nine from West."
 Oswald: "The beginner has been taught that he should go up with dummy's queen. Many more experienced players might make this same error. A man who bothers to count, finesses dummy's ten and has game and rubber."

 Alan: "He goes back to the early tricks. West led the deuce of hearts to indicate a four-card suit. East returned the four spot to indicate that he also started with four. West showed up with a singleton diamond. There was no reason why he wouldn't have opened a five-card suit if he had one. So West was marked with 4-4-1 distribution and the finesse for the jack was likely to be a sure winner."

A.—To bid less than three spades would be a dereliction of duty; a bid of four spades, however, would be rather optimistic, especially since you can't be sure just how good your heart holding will prove for partner. If partner has the right hand, he will go on to game.

 Alan: "How about devoting a few Monday articles to fairly simple play problems that occur regularly?"
 Oswald: "Here's one that might well have been used by Milton Work writing on auction. It is a better problem at contract because at auction South would just be in one notrump."
 Alan: "South starts out by hopping up with dummy's jack of hearts. Maybe West led away from the king-queen."

Carter Aide Unfazed By Stormy Events, Fascinated By Politics

WASHINGTON (AP) — You'd think Jack Watson would know better. You'd think that of all those who rose from obscurity with Jimmy Carter, Watson would be willing — no, eager — to fade quietly back into the red clay of Georgia.

After all, it was just four years ago, amid the euphoria that accompanied Carter's inauguration, that Watson was exiled to the outskirts of the White House inner circle — his reputation mangled among political gossips.

Now Watson, alone among Carter's top advisers, is considering a run for public office.

"Right now I'm confronted with the stark choice of two different directions," he says. "To return to private life with absolutely no thought of seeking elective office, to make money which would be very nice, to stay out of the glare of public criticism and exposure, retreat to the safe harbor of the private sector. That's an appealing course.

"Or, the other choice, to seek elected office and forgo a great deal of what I've just described."

Few who know Watson, ex-Marine, White House chief of staff and director of the Carter transition efforts, could imagine him retreating anywhere.

The best guess is that he'll return to Georgia and run for governor in two years and maybe some day for president.

"For president? That's too presumptuous for me to even comment on," Watson said.

Of a bid for the governorship, Watson would say only: "I've made no decision. It's something I'd like to look at very carefully."

The proper, preppy Watson was sitting, coatless, in his spacious, bright office, only a gentleman's nod from the Oval Office. A fire snapped in the fireplace, and whenever he wanted to think more about a question, he got up to stoke it. The phone rang repeatedly.

"Tell (Carter campaign chairman) Bob (Strauss) about this and be sure he understands the political sensitivity," he informed one caller.

Watson is fascinated with politics — and the presidency.

For months now, he has been absorbing countless biographies of past presidents. He recites dates, events, presidential styles like a history teacher giving a quiz. And he's studied the Carter presidency from a unique vantage point — presidential adviser in exile and, finally, commandant of the inner circle itself.

It was only last June that Watson, 42, was appointed Carter's chief of staff, replacing Hamilton Jordan, who left the White House to run the president's reelection campaign.

But the appointment was significant for Watson, a personal victory for a man who had been the victim of a highly publicized power struggle with Jordan and who had been relegated to a relatively flimsy position, secretary to the cabinet and liaison with state and local government officials.

"There's nothing quite like Washington in terms of public exposure," Watson said, getting up to toss a log on the fire. "In private life, your reputation is formed by people who deal with you directly. Your reputation is almost a direct reflection of your performance. But in public life, there can be great distances between the cup and the lip.

"That was something that hit me hard when I first got here because I was embroiled in what was being portrayed as a titanic struggle for power."

Watson had been a bright, young attorney in the Atlanta law firm of Charles Kirbo, one of Carter's closest friends. And it was at Kirbo's recommendation during the fall of 1976 that Carter asked Watson to organize the transition.

After Carter was elected, Watson arrived in Washington to head the transition operation. Jordan, who had directed the victorious campaign, arrived, too. Both were obvious choices for the top White House post of chief of staff.

By all reports, Watson underestimated Jordan's post-election ambitions and assigned him a staff of one secretary. Jordan, by all reports, did not take kindly to the slight and made it his business to reorganize the pecking order.

And after the final shakedown, Jordan was appointed to the top spot and Watson received a job nobody had heard of before.

Pained and disappointed, Watson says now that he considered leaving Washington.

At the time, he found himself the focal point at one of the classic Washington dinner parties which the host, columnist Joseph Alsop, remembers as "a jolly good evening. The cook performed well. The wine wasn't spoiled."

His select guests included such social establishment figures as Washington Post publisher Katharine Graham, Post editorial page editor Meg Greenfield, superlawyer Joseph Califano Jr. and World Bank president Robert McNamara.

At the dinner table, Watson was asked by the other guests, most of whom he was meeting for the first time, for his reaction to the public beating he was enduring.

"I told them it distressed me greatly," said Watson.

Waiter To Attend Inauguration

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — When candidate Ronald Reagan visited Jacksonville last year, Gonzalo Mendoza stood atop a car and played "Hail to the Chief" on a kazoo.

He caught the attention of Nancy Reagan, who smiled at the 26-year-old Gainesville waiter, nudged her husband and pointed in Mendoza's direction. Reagan glanced at Mendoza, who is working his way through Santa Fe Community College, and nodded his head.

Mendoza later was invited to Reagan's inauguration as president. "I just feel honored," Mendoza said in Miami on Sunday as he prepared to board a flight for the nation's capital. "It all seems like a fantasy story."

For a week, it appeared that Mendoza, who came to the United States from Cuba in 1960, wouldn't be able to make the trip. He received the invitation Jan. 3, but couldn't afford the air fare.

He resigned himself to staying home. But he happened to mention the invitation to his boss, Ronald Loog, maitre d' at the Gainesville Hilton.

Loog told The Gainesville Sun, which published a story Jan. 4. It triggered a flood of donations.

Dri-Tech of nearby Alachua, a company that sells oil drills, bought Mendoza a round-trip ticket to Washington and gave him some cash. The Republican Women of Gainesville kicked in more money and the Alachua County Republican Executive Committee paid for his ticket to a dinner tonight as well as an inaugural ball Tuesday. The tickets were $125 each.

Tropic Formal of Gainesville provided a free tuxedo and shoes. "I never thought I would get invited, nonetheless go," Mendoza said. "The people of Gainesville were very nice."

Although no formal explanation accompanied Mendoza's invitation, he said he thinks the encounter in Jacksonville was what won him the invitation.

"Nancy Reagan thought it was nice," Mendoza said.

He was also publicly identified as a Reagan supporter last year when a photographer snapped a picture of him holding a Reagan campaign sign at the University of Florida. The photo was distributed nationwide.

A former Coast Guardsman, Mendoza said he couldn't vote for Reagan because he only became a U.S. citizen Jan. 1.

"I'm looking forward to trying to meet Reagan," he said. "Maybe I can get a second to say hello to the people in Gainesville on prime time."

Governors Attraction At Capital Reception

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thirty-two state and territorial governors were the special attraction Sunday at a $10-per-person reception for about 5,000 persons.

Neither President-elect Ronald Reagan nor Vice President-elect George Bush was scheduled to attend the first invitation-only affair during the official inaugural period.

Some guests thought Reagan might be coming when the Marine Band struck up a tune that sounded like "Hail to the Chief." But it was to herald the entry of Gen. Omar Bradley, the nation's only living five-star general.

John Connally, the former Texas governor and for a time a challenger to Reagan during last year's Republican primaries, drew a large crowd when he entered. And Reagan's oldest daughter, Maureen, attended briefly.

The governors and other state officials each occupied a special booth where visitors could shake their hands, talk and get autographs. The most popular booth appeared to be that occupied by California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr.

The leaders of 27 states and five territories made themselves available for the ceremony.

For their $10, ticket holders were permitted to keep the red, white or blue tickets which indicated which of the three hours they were to attend. They also got buttons with colors matching their tickets. And the major souvenir was an elaborate printed resolution carrying the signature of every governor, which served as proof of attendance.

There was no food or drink, however.

Inauguration Galas Take Over Capital

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
 WASHINGTON (AP) — With gospel hymns and opera, bluegrass and ballet, the capital is whooping it up for the inauguration of Ronald Reagan, a celebration made all the sweeter by brightening prospects for the hostages' release.
 Reagan, who will become president of the United States at noon Tuesday, contributed to the cautious euphoria Sunday on his way to church by remarking that if Iran gives up the hostages, "I'll sign anything."
 The president-elect and his wife, choosing carefully which of the dozens of inaugural events to attend, worshipped at the National Presbyterian Church, attended a luncheon and planned to make an appearance at three black-tie Kennedy Center inaugural concerts — opera, ballet and classical music — in the evening.
 Reagan long ago finished writing the inaugural speech that will set the tone of his administration. A senior transition aide said the speech, only 15 minutes long, will "give Americans a sense of what kind of president Ronald Reagan is going to be."

 The theme is "begin an era of renewal," this official said. "The tone is upbeat, can-do spirit, tap the American spirit, trust in the people, cut back on government, give more power to the states. Its content is economic urgency: move on inflation, taxes and big government...it tells the Reagan constituency they have an ally in their work."
 Reagan will deliver the speech from the flag-festooned west front of the Capitol, reading from 5-by-8 inch cards. The transition aide said Reagan wrote 80 percent of the speech in longhand on a yellow legal pad during a recent five-hour flight to Los Angeles from Washington.
 "This is what he wanted to say," said the aide. "This is the way he wanted to say it."
 The Bible Reagan will use to take the oath of office belonged to his mother, Nellie Reagan, and will be open to II Chronicles 7:14:

"If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal the land."
 Vice President-elect George Bush and his wife were the attractions at some inaugural parties Sunday. Bush told one gathering of diplomats that the new administration's top priority will be the economy but "You must not interpret that to mean there will be less on foreign affairs. It's a small world, and things go hand in hand."
 Mrs. Bush, who fell and cut her leg at the Texas State Society party Saturday night, wore a bandage as she accompanied her husband to three receptions in less than an hour.
 One reception, for 5,000 guests at $10 a head, had neither Reagan nor Bush as an attraction. Instead, 32 state and territorial governors were featured and Reagan's older daughter, Maureen, was on hand briefly. Former Gov. John B. Connally of Texas was nearly mobbed when he came in.
 Television crews were rehearsing Tuesday's big show: at the Capitol, where Reagan will take the oath of office, down the Pennsylvania Avenue parade route, and in front of the White House, where Reagan will review the bands, marchers and riders.
 City officials talked in terms of 100,000 out-of-town visitors for the hoopla surrounding the inauguration of the nation's 40th president. One special group: 206 of the nation's 272 living holders of the Medal of Honor accepted invitations to festivities.
 The grandeur of the capital was enhanced by the weather, a brilliant sun and crisp temperatures reflecting the snow patches remaining from a snowfall a week ago. About the same conditions were forecast for inauguration day: a bit more clouded, noon temperature about 42, and — to the relief of inauguration planners — no new snow.
 At the church, the same one that Dwight D. Eisenhower attended when he was president, the Reagans were greeted by a small band of demonstrators carrying signs extolling the Equal Rights Amendment. Reagan, who opposes adding the amendment to the Constitution, shrugged his shoulders.
 Even if they wanted to, Reagan and his wife could not attend all of the functions, public and private.
 Washington has become a veritable fair, with something for everybody.
 At the Corcoran Gallery of Art, a rare 470-year-old Leonardo da Vinci manuscript: at various Smithsonian Institution buildings, gospel music, jazz, Mexican music, Cajun and Appalachian music and dance, special exhibitions. An art gallery had an exhibit of Reagan movie posters.
 Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians, a fixture in American entertainment for more than a half-century, gave a concert; there was a soprano recital, bluegrass, solo jazz and chamber music.
 There was a reception for governors, another for Reagan cabinet designees and the diplomatic community, and yet another by the National Republican Congressional Committee.
 According to their schedule, the Reagans did not plan to attend any of these.
 They stood in sub-freezing weather Saturday at the Lincoln Memorial for the formal opening of the inaugural celebration, which featured 13,000 aerial rockets and a laser light show linking Washington's most famous monuments.
 Robert K. Gray and Charles Z. Wick, co-chairmen of the inaugural committee, have said the celebration will be the biggest and most expensive ever.
 The $3 million-plus cost is borne by participants and wealthy contributors. The nine inaugural balls, to which more than 40,000 people have been invited, are expected to gross half the total. Admission prices are $100 a person, but corporations have been invited to buy 10-person boxes for $10,000.
 Today's gala at the Capital Centre, seating 19,000, has ticket prices of $50, $100 and $150. Television advertising time for the two-hour show, organized by Frank Sinatra with Johnny Carson as host, is being sold at $250,000 a minute.
 Additional funds come from selling advertising time for the showing of today's gala, from inaugural medals that range from $5 to $975, various inaugural items such as a $675 porcelain rose, and from selling outdoor seats along the parade route.

LIKE THE NORTHEAST — Lisa Jordan, a Texas Tech student from Arlington, found West Texas to be a bit like the Northeast Sunday. She went through an exercise many Lubbockites went through — scraping off the car windows. More icy windshields may be faced this morning, the forecast for more snow being 50 percent overnight. (Staff Photo by Milton Adams)

Rebel Victory Seen In Afghan Province

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (UPI) — Rebels now control most of the Afghan province of Herat and killed more than 100 government supporters and Soviet troops in clashes in that Iranian border area, a rebel spokesman said Sunday.
 In New Delhi, an Afghan rebel said two captured Soviet tank drivers defected and taught guerrillas how to shoot down helicopter gunships.
 A spokesman for the Pakistan-based Islamic Alliance for the Liberation of Afghanistan said guerrillas control most of Herat province and the capital city, Herat.
 In a recent attack on 150 pro-Afghan government troops in the Guzara area of Herat province, rebels killed 82 members of the force and captured 22, he said.
 In a separate clash on an unspecified date in the Malik Ahwaz region of Herat, rebels killed 27 Afghan government and Soviet troops, the spokesman said.

 The claims could not be independently verified and in the past some rebel statements have been exaggerated.
 A rebel who escaped to India for medical treatment, 40-year-old Salah Mohammad, said he and other Moslem guerrillas in Kunduz province attacked a Soviet supply convoy several weeks ago about 38 miles south of the Soviet border.
 During the raid, the drivers of the two Soviet tanks escorting the convoy fled on foot but were captured, the rebel said.
 He identified the two Soviets as Harifov, a non-Moslem, and Omarov, a 19-year-old Moslem from the neighboring Soviet Central Asian republic of Tadzhikistan who spoke perfect Farsi, one of the main languages of Afghanistan.
 "We didn't tie them up or hurt them," said Mohammad. "They were friendly from the beginning."
 "I don't know why they wanted to join us. They had come from Russia three months ago and their parents told them 'please don't kill the Afghans because they didn't do anything wrong to Russia.'"
 The Soviet defectors advised the guerrillas to change positions when they see reconnaissance planes because they report back to helicopter gunships, Mohammad said.
 They also instructed the rebels to flatten the tips of captured Soviet machine gun bullets for greater firing impact and to aim at the passenger side of helicopter gunships where the aircraft are more vulnerable, Mohammad said.
 When Soviet authorities discovered the two tank drivers were with the guerrillas they launched a bombing attack, said Mohammad, whose report could not be confirmed independently.
 The entire group survived but Mohammad was hit by shrapnel that became embedded near nerves in his left leg. Indian doctors said they will have to amputate the leg unless Mohammad flies to the United States or Europe for treatment.
 "I just want to get a trigger finger so I can shoot a gun and join the Mujahideen," he said, referring to the Afghan rebels fighting the Moscow-backed regime in Kabul.

Avalanche Kills Six In Japan

TOKYO (UPI) — A massive pre-dawn avalanche smashed into a home for the elderly in northern Japan, Sunday, killing six people and burying 11 more, police said.
 They said 48 elderly residents were in the Nanzan Lodge when the avalanche, 100 yards wide and 13 feet deep, rumbled down onto part of the village of Yunotani, in a rugged hilly area of Niigata province, about 100 miles north of Tokyo.
 About 200 firefighters and local residents managed to dig out alive 11 people buried in the snow, and the remaining 31 were able to escape by themselves. Six people were dead and seven of the survivors were hospitalized, police said.

Agreement Said Final On Hostages

 can leave before Monday night. We shall go back by special airplane. We leave Tehran with the hostages, and I don't know if we shall go to Algiers or West Germany."
 In its report of Nabavi's announcement, the Iranian news agency Pars said, "The U.S. government has finally accepted all the terms set by the agreement of the Islamic Republic of Iran for the release of the American hostages. The minister said that the details of the agreement will be disclosed in a press conference today, Monday, Jan. 19, 1981."
 The Pars report, dated early Monday-Tehran time, was received late Sunday in Nicosia, Cyprus. The Iranian media said Nabavi would conduct a news conference about 3 p.m. Tehran time (5:30 a.m. CST) Monday.
 Not Yet Signed
 Nabavi indicated in his remarks that the agreement had not yet been formally signed and the documents entrusted to the Algerians, as has been planned.
 Nabavi had similarly announced a "final agreement" several hours earlier, but said at that time that "several wholly trivial points" remained unresolved. His later announcement apparently was made after Iran became satisfied that those points had been settled.
 Vice President Walter F. Mondale said, earlier Sunday, that the remaining differences were "not substantial," involving the precise amount of frozen assets to be returned to Iran, and a problem concerning court jurisdiction of certain claims.
 A U.S. official said the second problem related to arrangements for transferring U.S. court claims against Iran to an international arbitration panel.
 Affirmative Reply
 Tehran Radio said Nabavi was asked whether he now expected the hostages to be released in the next few days.
 "Yes, of course," he reportedly replied. "On the basis of the agreement reached after the statement has been signed by both sides and the Algerian government has made it public and the assets which it has been agreed to deposit in an account with the central bank of a third country have been so deposited the hostages will be released immediately."
 The reported settlement followed four days of urgent message exchanges between Washington and Tehran — Iranian questions and American answers about the latest U.S. plan for returning the frozen Iranian assets in exchange for the hostages.
 The message exchanges were conducted in Algiers through Algerian intermediaries and an American negotiating team led by U.S. Deputy Secretary of State Warren M. Christopher.
 A key unsettled item had been arrangements whereby U.S. banks would return Iranian money while still being guaranteed that Iran would make good on defaulted loans. The Carter administration and 12 key U.S. banks were reported to have reached an agreement on those terms, Saturday, but presumably the arrangements still had required final Iranian approval.

Salvadoran Troops Claim Raid Coup

SAN SALVADOR (UPI) — Some 300 troops of the U.S.-backed government of El Salvador raided a leftist guerrilla command post and killed 97 rebels, military spokesmen said Sunday.
 Earlier the head of the Roman Catholic Church accused the ruling junta, which was awaiting renewed shipments of U.S. helicopters and "lethal" military aid, of injustice and abuse of power in fighting the guerrillas.
 Armed forces spokesmen told UPI the attack on the guerrilla command post occurred late Saturday at Penas Blancas, 50 miles west of the capital. They said no soldiers were killed.

Area's Snow Tapers Off, Goes South

 scried that city's streets as "a mess," and said that there were so many minor accidents that persons involved were being asked to delay accident reports until today, when more personnel would be on hand to handle them.
 Snow was persistent across southern New Mexico, too, with Interstate 10, running west out of El Paso through Las Cruces, Deming and Lordsburg, described as "a solid sheet of ice."
 The weatherman late Sunday afternoon said the storm will likely move out of West Texas Sunday night, with precipitation tapering off in a westerly direction. But the weather service cautioned that an additional one to two inches of snow was possible over parts of West Texas by this morning.
 Eastward Movement Seen
 For West Texas, the forecast was for decreasing cloudiness in southwestern and Panhandle areas today.
 For the state as a whole, cloudy skies and lowering temperatures were anticipated over the Hill Country, the Edwards Plateau, most of West Texas and North Texas.
 The forecast for Wednesday through Friday in West Texas is partly cloudy skies and mild temperatures in the afternoons and cold nights.

The bodies of the rebels, presumably members of the leftist Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front guerrilla group, were dumped in a common grave and burned, said the spokesman.
 Entrance to the area was blocked to journalists for security reasons, the official said. There was no independent evidence to support the military's claim.
 If confirmed, the deaths brought to nearly 800 the number killed since the Liberation Front, a coalition of five Marxist-led guerrilla groups, launched a general offensive against the ruling junta eight days ago.
 The death toll included another 58 people reported killed Sunday in the Central American nation of 4.8 million.
 Authorities said government troops in Tecoluca, 37 miles east of the capital, used gasoline to burn 35 corpses found in the town, although details of the deaths were not available. Another eight bodies were found in San Salvador.
 "Abuses Of Power
 During his Sunday homily at the Metropolitan Cathedral, acting Archbishop of San Salvador Arturo Rivera y Damas said: "There have been great injustices and great abuses of power in this country."
 The Catholic church estimates that about 80 percent of more than 10,000 people killed in political violence last year were cut down by government troops and right-wing extremists operating with the tacit approval of the ruling junta.
 Rivera y Damas, who has been an outspoken critic of alleged abuses of human rights by the junta, added: "The immense majority of the Salvadoran people are indifferent to the current conflict."
 Air Force officials said Sunday they are awaiting the arrival of $5 million in U.S. military aid, including four Huey helicopters and an unspecified amount of "lethal" equipment such as arms and ammunition.
 "Non-lethal" aid was resumed last Wednesday to the ruling junta in the Central American nation. It was suspended shortly after government troops were implicated in the Dec. 2 slayings of three American nuns and a U.S. layworker.
 The "non-lethal" aid includes two Huey helicopters and a team of advisers who, according to a spokesman for the U.S. Embassy in San Salvador, arrived last Friday.

Israeli Cabinet Votes To Call Early Election

 polls say Labor will win handily.
 Labor Party leader Shimon Peres, in an interview with the West German newspaper Bild published Sunday, said he favors returning most of the occupied Arab territory. He said he would keep only a few stretches of land needed for Israel's security.
 "We do not want to lure 1.3 million Arabs against their will," Peres said.
 But he said Israel would retain all of Jerusalem, while guaranteeing freedom of religion for all in the holy city.
 "A Democracy
 Asked if he would personally lead Likud in the race, Begin said, "If my friends will express confidence in me, then I will do whatever they decide. This is a democracy."
 Cabinet Secretary Arye Naor, explaining why the government was taking the "unprecedented" step of calling early elections, said Begin did not want to rule with an "unstable majority" that would have to rely on several independents to survive no-confidence votes. "The government feels it has certain obligations it must fulfill and declared policy it wants to carry out," Naor said, citing its settlement, economic, social and foreign policies.
 From a once-unassailable parliamentary majority that ranged as high as 78 of the 120 Knesset votes, Begin now heads a government with assured support from only 58 members, three short of a majority.
 Even as the government proposed a date for its own end, intra-coalition haggling continued. Ministers were unable to agree on a successor to Finance Minister Yigal Hurvitz whose resignation last week brought on the government crisis. Deputy Prime Minister Yigal Yadin said he would formally oppose the establishment of a new settlement on the West Bank.

Families Still Unbelieving

 by Nabavi "doesn't mean anything. When they are on a plane on their way home, we'll know."
 David Schaefer, 23-year-old son of hostage Col. Thomas Schaefer, said in Tacoma, Wash., "Until the thing is official, I don't want to get my hopes up. I'm not going to believe it until they're gone."
 On the patio outside the Memphis, Tenn., home of Ernest and Susan Cooke, a bottle of champagne sat in a cooler, watched over by a reporter whom Cooke assigned to make sure it was chilling properly.
 For the Cookes, the presence of a large number of reporters, television cameramen and photographers was an encouraging sign that 14 months of waiting for their son, hostage Donald J. Cooke, to be freed was nearing an end.
 Something From Algiers
 Richard Hermening, of Cudahy, Wis., whose son, Marine Sgt. Kevin Hermening is, at 21, the youngest hostage, said, "The thing that I think I'm waiting for is something that (Assistant Secretary of State) Warren Christopher might say from Algiers."
 "They could maybe still be out of there by tonight, but that's wishful thinking."
 Doris Moeller, of Loup City, Neb., mother of hostage Marine Staff Sgt. Michael Moeller, burst into tears when a reporter telephoned her with the latest developments.

New Thefts Added To Crime List

 eyes, has been charged with robbery.
 A $300 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest of a suspect in a Dec. 24 burglary in which jewelry valued at more than $22,000 was stolen.
 Police met a witness at Broadway Jewelry and Pawn Shop at 815 Broadway Ave. at 8:09 p.m. after responding to an alarm. Once inside, police saw that the west display case had been entered and ransacked. Guns previously in the case were missing.
 Roof Entry Indicated
 Police believe burglars chopped a large hole in the roof of the building, then lowered themselves to the floor. Officers found several tools and a toboggan and blue nylon jacket near the hole on the roof.
 A white nylon rope was found hanging from the hole, and police found a silver dagger inside a crawl space. Police found a green burlap bag containing several assorted handgrips, believed from the display case, underneath the rope.
 Property not recovered in the heist were several rings valued at $22,566.04, all taken from inside a display counter beside the business' east wall.
 A $300 reward is offered for information leading to the suspect in the theft of a Honda Express 2 Moped motorcycle.
 Police were called to the South Plains Mall parking lot at 7:10 p.m. Jan. 3, where the victim told them his motorcycle was taken between 8:30 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. that day. He said he parked the vehicle just north of the J.C. Penney store in a loading area, chaining it to a fence and securing it with a padlock.
 Thieves, however, cut the lock with bolt cutters, police believe, and the lock was found in a dumpster by the victim.
 The motorcycle bore 1981 license tag No. 4Jx-121. The vehicle identification number on the $600 cycle is AB015104375.

Two Rapes, Car Theft Reported

A 22-year-old Lubbock woman was raped early Sunday morning by a knife-wielding man who abducted her from the parking lot of her southwest Lubbock apartment, police said.

The woman told police she arrived home about 3 a.m. Sunday, and that the man, wearing a ski mask and gloves, approached just as she got out of her car.

The man told the victim he wanted to "borrow" her car and forced her back inside the vehicle at knifepoint. He told the woman to move to the passenger side of the front seat and ordered her to look out the right window of the vehicle, police said.

The abductor then drove south on Slide Road before turning east in the area of 66th Street, the woman told police. As he was driving, the man told the woman to remove her pants or he would "cut (her) up," police said.

The woman said she slowly removed her pants, and the man stopped the car in the vicinity of 58th Street and Utica Avenue. The driver then ordered the woman to remove his pants, but she was unable to do so, reports show.

The man raped the woman while the car was parked on a residential street before driving the victim back to her apartment complex.

The man stopped the car in the parking lot and instructed the victim to place her head between her knees and wait five minutes before moving. As the man exited the car, he took the woman's pants, which contained a small amount of money and her driver's license, and the ignition key to her car, reports show.

The woman then ran to her apartment and notified police.

When officers arrived, they followed the rapist's tracks through the fresh snow and found the woman's pants in another part of the parking lot. All her belongings except the car key were recovered, police said.

The suspect was described as a white man, 18 to 25 years old, 5 feet 8 and weighing 130 pounds. The man had black hair and was clad in a blue coat, blue jeans, a navy blue ski mask and dark brown gloves, the woman said. He was armed with a knife about 4 1/2 inches long, reports show.

In a separate incident, a 48-year-old woman was raped and robbed by two men who offered her a ride from a north Lubbock night club early Sunday morning.

The woman, who was forced out of her car naked, went to a nearby residence, where she notified police of the 2 a.m. incident.

She told officers the two Mexican-American men, ages 19 and 20, offered her a ride home from the club after it closed Sunday morning.

One of the men drove to the 5600-block of Ursuline Street, and the other man demanded that the woman remove her clothes. The woman said she refused, and the man began hitting her in the face.

The man then removed the woman's clothing and raped her in the car. The driver also raped the woman, and the men forced her out of the vehicle without her clothes and drove away, police said.

During the assault, the men apparently removed the woman's two rings and gold watch, valued at $600.

In other activity, 19-year-old Rodney Dale Roussarie of 2807 Second Place told police three Mexican-American teenagers threatened him with a knife and stole his $10,000 car early Sunday morning.

Roussarie said he was using a telephone outside the Furr's Supermarket at Fourth Street and University Avenue shortly after midnight when one of the youths grabbed him from behind and placed a knife against his throat.

"Give me your keys or I'll kill you," the boy said, but Roussarie told police he broke the youth's grip and started toward his car, a 1980 Chevrolet Camaro.

However, before he reached the vehicle, a second teen-ager had entered the car and was attempting to drive away. Roussarie said he left the keys in the unlocked vehicle while using the telephone.

He ran to the car and attempted unsuccessfully to break the driver's window with his hand to stop the car thief, police said.

The youth in the car then drove north on University Avenue, while his two companions fled the scene on foot.

The trio all were between 14 and 17 years old, police said. The car apparently had not been located late Sunday.

Museum Presenting China Slide Show

A lecture and slide show on major Chinese and Asian cities will be at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in Classrooms A & B of The Museum of Texas Tech University.

Hurley Fuller of Dallas, a representative of Japanese Airlines, will show slides of several cities, including Peking, Tokyo, Hangchow and Hong Kong, and provide tourist information.

The lecture will provide a preview of places to be visited on a tour sponsored by the West Texas Museum Association (WTMA).

Tour registration deadline is Feb. 10. Thirty persons may participate. Interested persons may call the WTMA office at 742-2443.

Mother Insisted Oswald Innocent

DALLAS (AP) — Marguerite Clavier Oswald, who died in a Fort Worth hospital early Saturday of cancer at the age of 73, steadfastly maintained her son was innocent of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, is dead of cancer at the age of 73.

Mrs. Oswald's physician, Dr. John Johnson, said she had been hospitalized for the past two months. He declined to specify the type of cancer.

"She was alone and estranged from her family and had to make all the decisions concerning her own care and welfare," he said. "She was quite courageous."

One of Mrs. Oswald's last requests was that she be buried next to her son in Fort Worth's Rose Hill Cemetery, Johnson said.

Mrs. Oswald once said her son should be buried beside the slain president because "Lee Harvey has become a part of history. In death, he should take his place alongside the man they say he murdered."

Lee was Mrs. Oswald's second son by her second husband, Robert Edward Lee Oswald, who died two months after Lee was born in 1939.

Her first son, John E. Pic, was born in 1932. Robert Oswald Jr. was born in 1934, and has served as a family spokesman.

Mrs. Oswald, who lived in near-seclusion in suburban Fort Worth, repeatedly insisted there was no proof her son killed Kennedy in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963.

She said her own investigation into the assassination confirmed her son's innocence, but her testimony before the Warren Commission in 1964 revealed no new information, panel members said.

"Nothing in my investigation shows any involvement of Lee at all," she said. "I have devoted my life to my investigation and expect to as long as I have a nickel to buy a loaf of bread."

Mrs. Oswald said she was "pleased and delighted" with the 1978 report issued by the House Assassinations Committee, which concluded Oswald killed the president but may not have acted alone.

She said she believed Oswald, who in 1959 defected to the Soviet Union, was a spy for both the CIA and the FBI. She said conspirators plotting Kennedy's death were in the U.S. government, and that she believed her son was framed because he informed the FBI of their plans.

When British author Michael Edmonds claimed a Soviet spy was buried in Oswald's grave, Mrs. Oswald said she had wanted her son's body exhumed in 1967 to check reports of scars on his left arm.

During the controversy over the identity of the body in her son's grave, Mrs. Oswald telephoned an Associated Press reporter to contend that it was, indeed, her son buried at Rose Hill.

A state district judge in Fort Worth declined to allow the exhumation.

Mrs. Oswald was barred from the trial of Jack Ruby, the man accused of shooting her son in the basement of the Dallas police station, and she accused local police of following her whenever important political figures came to the area.

She was a private nurse before Kennedy's death, but after her son was accused she was unable to find work, she said.

"I took early retirement and now I get $104.60 a month (in Social Security benefits)," she said in 1973. "I could work part time but nobody wants me. To exist, I have had to sell personal possessions, interviews and my story and my personal possessions are all I have."

Mrs. Oswald was bitter because publishers had rejected her book, a manuscript she claimed "revealed something of great importance to unraveling the assassination mystery."

"I can't understand why I don't have a book. I think the publishers are under the impression I'm just a mother defending her son. I'm going to defend Lee Harvey Oswald until the day I die, but I'm not going to take up for him. There's a difference," she said three years ago.

Mrs. Oswald was sued in 1968 by the Internal Revenue Service for $681.91 it said she owed in 1964 taxes.

In January 1969, she asked for $25 million in damages in five libel suits against authors of several books about the assassination, including U.S. Rep. Gerald R. Ford, who had served on the Warren Commission. A federal judge later dismissed the suits.

"I've experienced and survived this trauma. I've lived it and I know it... I may look stupid, but I know everything that's going on. Don't kid yourself about that," she once said.

It is helpful to understand the typical relationship between national and local health agencies. National voluntary health agencies fulfill many of the same functions that are filled by state and local agencies. Education, service and research are their primary concerns. National agencies also make every effort to strengthen state and local agencies. They offer advisory and consultant services and promote inservice education of workers at all three levels. They prepare educational materials which are generally distributed to the public by the state and local agencies.

Iran Turmoil Hinted At U.S. Seizure

BEIRUT (AP) — The U.S.-Iran hostage crisis did not burst on the world scene unexpectedly. The weeks before Nov. 4, 1979, the day the U.S. Embassy in Tehran was seized, were a period of growing anti-Americanism and tension in Iran.

The ferment of the revolution that brought Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini to power had not yet settled. The nation was searching for a new identity, and many Iranians were becoming disillusioned with the government of Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan.

Leftists, especially the student members of the Marxist Fedayeen and Mojaheddin Khalq, felt disenfranchised. Secular moderates objected to the closing of restaurants, a liquor ban and the heavily ideological television and radio programming.

At the same time, followers of Iran's militant Moslem clergy — the only institution left untouched by the upheaval — were pushing for a fully Islamic government and constitution.

Kurdish separatists, who renewed their autonomy drive soon after the overthrow of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, were engaged in an armed rebellion in the west and had captured the cities of Mahabad and Sanandaj from central government forces.

The army was called out to suppress the rebellion. But distrust of the military remained strong less than a year after troops opened fire on anti-shah demonstrators in Tehran, and consequently revolutionary guard irregulars were sent to Kurdistan to keep an eye on the army, as well as to fight Kurdish insurgents.

Unable to contend with the political divisions, Bazargan's government tottered on the brink of collapse and the prime minister repeatedly threatened to resign. Khomeini persuaded him to stay on.

The weakness of his position was demonstrated in early September, when Bazargan recorded for television a rambling resignation speech. But authorities at the state-run TV refused to air the speech until after midnight, when most of the nation was asleep.

Economically the country was paralyzed. Iranians who had been living abroad returned with the idea of rebuilding the nation. Few found jobs. Doctors and lawyers found themselves driving taxis. A man with a Ph.D. tacked up his diploma on a roadside shack in Tehran and sold hamburgers.

The nation's capital city was raged by abandoned construction projects. Unemployment became a key issue and provided the foot soldiers for mass demonstrations.

A major rally was held Oct. 26, 1979, the exiled shah's birthday, and his effigy was burned. It was billed as the "Burning of the Shah," who continued to be the focus of public protest.

Anti-American diatribes by Khomeini, denunciations of the Western news media by prominent revolutionary figures, and anti-U.S. rallies created an uneasy atmosphere for Americans still living in Iran. Rumors circulated in the fall that identifiably American interests would be the targets of demonstrations or takeovers.

The U.S. Embassy compound on Takhte-Jamshid Street — renamed Taleghani Street after the revolution in honor of a well-known ayatollah — had been occupied in the summer by extremist followers of a religious sheik.

The occupiers lived day and night in the embassy compound for several weeks, walking freely into offices and across the tree-covered grounds.

U.S. Charge d'Affaires Bruce Laingen complained to Bazargan's foreign minister, Ibrahim Yazdi, without success, until a U.S. Marine found the militants on the roof one night carousing and drinking confiscated beer. They were expelled at gunpoint the next day by revolutionary guards dispatched by the government, U.S. Embassy officials later recounted.

Only days before the hostages were seized that November Sunday, Bazargan met in Algiers with U.S. National Security Adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski, stirring an outcry among Iranian leftists.

At the same time, the cancer-stricken shah was in a New York hospital for treatment. To Iranians, the shah's presence in the United States was seen as the beginning of a new conspiracy to overthrow the revolution.

On Nov. 4, rumors flew in Tehran about a demonstration to be held by students at Tehran University to mark the first anniversary of a clash between the shah's troops and students. "University Students' Day," as it was called,

U.S. Still Indebted To Canada

By DOLORES A. BARCLAY
Associated Press Writer

When angry Iranian militants thundered past Marine guard stations into the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, six Americans crept away in the storm of confusion and fear.

Three months later, their cloak-and-dagger escape from Iran provided one of the few happy endings in the hostage affair — with a group of gutsy Canadian diplomats earning the joyful thanks of Americans as daring allies in an hour of need.

It was a caper cloaked in secrecy, built upon the shared convictions of international neighbors with a long, friendly tradition and engineered by Canadian Embassy officials and the CIA.

When the six Americans finally made it home, it was a moment for all Americans to cheer, at a time when the cheering had stopped.

"Thank You, Canada," signs popped up along the border and thousands of callers jammed Canadian consulate switchboards to say thanks. In Detroit, billboards blinked messages of gratitude. Congress passed resolutions of thanks, and President Carter personally called Canadian Prime Minister Joe Clark to express appreciation for "a tremendous exhibition of friendship and support."

But the joy was tempered by the knowledge that 53 Americans remained captive in Iran. "We must not and will not forget them," the freed U.S. diplomats said after their return.

For the six, the experience began Nov. 4, 1979, when they slipped away from the consular section at the rear of the embassy compound, some distance from the chancery where the main attack was centered.

They somehow traveled the hostile streets of Tehran arriving unnoticed at a number of friendly embassies. Soon, all were in the care of the Canadians and were hidden away at various residences in Tehran.

"Most of our days were spent following events in the world," they said. "We avidly read newspapers and listened to overseas radio broadcasts."

"Also during the course of the three months, we played Scrabble to the point where some of us could identify the letter on the front by the shape of the grain on the back of the tile."

While hiding, consular officer Mark Lijek, his wife, consular assistant Cora Amburn Lijek, consular officer Robert G. Anders, agricultural attache Henry L. Schatz, consular officer Joseph D. Stafford, and his wife, consular assistant Kathleen F. Stafford, had no contact with Washington except to report they were alive and well.

Their plight was known to several news organizations, but Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and the Canadian External Affairs Ministry pleaded with editors and reporters to sit on the story. All complied.

The Canadian government and the CIA eventually decided it was time for Canada to close its embassy in Tehran. That meant it was time to put into action a plan to spirit the Americans out of Iran.

"We knew every day the danger was becoming greater," Canadian External Affairs Minister Flora MacDonald said. "When the country was occupied by its own internal election, we were able to move."

Canada began withdrawing diplomats from its staff, saying it was doing so to protest the continued holding of American hostages by the Iranian militants. Canadian embassy personnel began making frequent trips in and out of the country to establish a pattern.

Meanwhile, false Canadian passports were supplied for the Americans. According to one account, they were doctored by U.S. intelligence agencies and taken into Iran in Canada's diplomatic pouch.

"I got the passports," said Canada's Ambassador to Iran, Kenneth Taylor. "I think the rest is what you would call ... a trade secret."

When Canada coolly announced it had decided to shut down its embassy and evacuate all personnel, the Americans — divided into at least two groups — were the first out. Taylor and three aides were the last to leave.

Special Hostage Mass Held

NEW YORK (AP) — With former hostage Richard Queen in attendance, Cardinal Terence Cooke conducted a special prayer service for the hostages in Iran at St. Patrick's Cathedral on Sunday. He said the hour was filled with "hope and expectation."

Speaking to a congregation of thousands, Cooke thanked God for the announcement by the Iranian news agency Pars that agreement had all but been reached for the release of the 52 hostages.

"After 442 days, we dare to begin a song of joy and thanksgiving which will find full voice when finally our 52 brothers and sisters return to our shore, and are reunited with their families and loved ones," he said.

Cooke also applauded all the people who he said had been "working so tirelessly for the release of the hostages."

He said the long ordeal had demonstrated the spirit of Americans as free people and had intensified America's love for freedom.

"We should never again take these blessings of God for granted," he added. Queen, who was released by the Iranians last year when it was determined that he suffered from multiple sclerosis, led the congregation in applause and in the singing of "America the Beautiful."

Hospital Personnel Awaiting Hostages

WIESBADEN, West Germany (AP) — Behind a Sunday afternoon calm, servicemen and women stood by expectantly at a U.S. military hospital here, waiting for word that the American hostages were on their way.

"We're ready if they need us," a U.S. Air Force spokesman said. He said he knew of no special steps being taken Sunday to prepare medical or other facilities here for the 52 hostages.

"We're in the same status we've been in all along," another military spokesman said.

After their release, the hostages are expected to spend about a week at the rambling U.S. Air Force hospital complex in this spa town on the Rhine River.

Reporters and camera crews maintained vigils in snow and ice outside the hospital's gates. They were among at least 400 journalists who military officials said have gathered for the possible arrival of the hostages.

The hospital, a German-built wartime military facility with giant red crosses on its roof, has served as the first full-fledged stop for Americans homeward bound from Iran twice since militant revolutionaries seized the U.S. Embassy in Tehran on Nov. 4, 1979.

Thirteen women and blacks were taken to the hospital after their release Nov. 19-20, 1979, as was Richard Queen, a hostage released last July after contracting multiple sclerosis.

American diplomats smuggled out of Iran on Canadian diplomatic passports were also ferried through West Germany but were not hospitalized at Wiesbaden.

U.S. servicemen wounded in the failed military effort to rescue the hostages were treated here last April.

Military spokesmen said late Sunday afternoon there had been no movement of U.S. medical aircraft from their German base. Two of the four DC9 jets, modified for medical evacuation uses and on standby at nearby Rhein-Main Air Base, are expected to bring the hostages to West Germany if they are released.

It was considered likely that the freed Americans would be flown first to Algiers, where U.S. envoys and Algerian intermediaries have been working on negotiations to end the crisis, and then on to West Germany. Medical buses of a U.S. Air Force ambulance service, thought likely to bring the hostages from the air base to the hospital, still stood covered in snow Sunday in Wiesbaden, about 20 miles from the air base.

The State Department has asked relatives of the hostages to stay away in the initial days of their freedom to allow for adjustment to life outside captivity.

There was no sign of hostage families in the Amelia Earhart Hotel, a military facility next to the hospital. American GIs on leave strolled through the lobby, and no extra security was evident at the hospital or the hotel, both of which technically are off-limits to non-military personnel.

Military officials involved in preparations for a possible release said they were trying to follow the progress of negotiations in Algiers.

"We are listening to the news," said an official at the air base, a facility sharing runways with Frankfurt's immense commercial airport.

Kelly's Tile & Supply Affords January Clearance Sale Values

Fantastic first-of-year clearance sale prices still are in effect at Kelly's Tile & Supply Co., affording values one simply cannot afford to overlook.

The place: Kelly's Tile & Supply Co., 2862 34th St., phone 799-4317.

The sale opportunities include:

- Save to 80 per cent on wallpaper! Discontinued patterns (single rolls and more) actually are as little as 25 cents per roll! Lots of regular stock is marked down to exceptionally low prices, too.
- As for carpet, look at this: "Remnants and short rolls are priced to move, with some remnants actually 10 per cent to 15 per cent below our cost!"
- Short rolls are substantially reduced in price, with some of these even as low as cost.
- As example, there's a 12 x 46 elegant gold cut and loop nylon, regular $16.95 per yard but sale marked at $6.95 per yard! (There are other comparable savings throughout, with first-line Saxony, cut loops, kitchen carpets, shags, etc., with good colors and patterns.

The fact is that the firm bought heavily last week, and space is needed for the added rolls arriving.

To fully realize the scope of the sale, one should visit Kelly's Tile & Supply now and save accordingly. It can be an eye-opener.

Hours are 7:30 until 5:30, Mondays through Fridays, and 9-1 on Saturday.

Long Serving Region

Kelly's Tile & Supply is a veteran Lubbock business, at its present location 12 years and on the retail scene here since 1945.

The professionals at Kelly's Tile & Supply are skilled in assisting in selections to complement one's home and one's furniture, with an eye to style, color, utility and savings.

"If interested in floor coverings that have withstood the tests of consumer recognition and acceptance through the years, if thinking 'colorful thoughts' in indoor or outdoor floor covering, if intrigued by the beautiful patterns and styles now available, if interested in doing business with an established firm where your needs come first, then may we suggest an early visit to:

Kelly's Tile & Supply Co., 2862 34th St., where Frank Woodard and staff are especially anxious to save for you during the current sale.

"There are bargains throughout the big store; let us prove it to the benefit of your pocketbook!"

Anchor Steel & Supply Meeting Largest Or Small Order Needs

For the largest or smallest orders, Anchor Steel & Supply, 500 N. University, is a mighty good firm to know.

The folks at Anchor Steel & Supply, Inc., have been around a long time; they know the business, they know customer needs and preferences and have stocked accordingly.

And through the years they have earned the confidence of steel buyers throughout the area, whether contractors, gns, farmers, welding shops, etc.

Anchor Steel & Supply actually is a relatively new firm, just one year and nine months old (and even more recently at its sprawling 500 N. University location, moving from 2401 Erskine). Heading and staffing it, however, are men who have served for years in the steel supply industry here in Lubbock, formerly familiar faces at another company.

Doug Williams, with 15 years steel experience here in Lubbock, is president. Jim Height is vice president, and serving in sales are John Williams and Nolan Robins.

Also Auto Salvage

A related company, under same ownership, is Anchor Auto Salvage, at the same location. On hand there is George Marshall, with 20 years in the salvage business here; and Gilbert Zepada, another longtime specialist in the wrecking and salvage field.

The salvage company has an exceptionally good stock of motors, transmissions, rear ends, starters, alternators, etc. on hand. Wrecked cars and pickups are bought through the region. Just give the folks at Anchor Auto Salvage a call at 747-9687, or visit them at 500 N. University.

Full Stock Steel

The stock at Anchor Steel & Supply includes such needs as H-beams, I-beams, channels, rebar, expanded metal, grating, remesh, angles, strips, flats, girders, sheets, plates and pipe.

Truckload orders are welcome. Delivery service is available.

Some items are available in special cut lengths.

All in all, it is a young company built and conducted by experienced, trusted men long in the steel trade in Lubbock. They invite your business and confidence. Come by 500 N. University or call 747-2999, for all your steel needs... at Anchor Steel & Supply, Inc. where large or small orders are appreciated alike.

FUNCTIONAL BEAUTY — BY BROADVIEW CONSTRUCTION

Broadview Construction Cites Pine Groves Park Development

Broadview Construction and Delta Steel Buildings wish to congratulate W.F.J. Investments on the development of Pine Groves Estates Commercial Park located at 66th Street and Santa Fe Drive, just off the Brownfield Highway next to Badley Lumber Co.

An all-new warehouse complex for lease or sale to qualified companies, the development will consist of eight 60 x 100 x 20 Delta Steel Buildings with all the best features including:

- (1) Energy-saving 2-in. insulation;
- (2) Korad 20-year double lam sidewall sheeting;
- (3) City code construction;
- (4) Paved yards;
- (5) Fenced storage yard;
- (6) Twenty-foot stack height;
- (7) Concrete floor;
- (8) Overhead door;
- (9) Electrical, plumbing and restrooms included;
- (10) U.L. 90 wind resistive roof system for insurance savings on both building and contents.

(11) Office layout optional with purchaser.

Inquiries may be directed to Broadview Construction, 4011 Clovis Road, phone 763-5441, where full details will be gladly given.

As in the other construction for which Broadview is noted, beauty, quality and economy are clear in these and all Delta units from Broadview Construction.

Quality is the foremost consideration in every job from Broadview Construction, where turnkey construction is available . . . from design to construction.

W. M. (Bill) Wright, president, heads the versatile construction firm, with Winston Berryman as vice president in charge of construction; Jerry Tranchina, secretary; and Howard Stroud as plan coordinator.

Broadview Construction has built for many industries and uses in Lubbock and surrounding area, including churches, warehouses, supply houses, office buildings, storage units, warehouse / office combinations, manufacturing facilities, cotton gins, auto parts houses, uniquely designed special buildings, sportsman supply houses, farm buildings, airplane hangers, and more.

"You can see these for yourself; check with Broadview for examples of their handwork in an area near you."

Reliance upon Broadview and Delta results in insurance savings, tax savings, construction financing savings, maintenance savings, and a reliable construction source, Wright emphasizes.

Each year, more businesses and industries are turning to Broadview Construction and its Delta system for solutions to space needs. They discover that Delta building systems deliver maximum square footage for dollars spent without sacrificing beauty in design or quality in construction.

"May we give you full details of the Pine Groves Estates Commercial Park; your own operation most possibly can be best served from utilization of this location and these facilities. Check now with Broadview Construction, 4011 Clovis Road, phone 763-5441, in Lubbock.

Brunken Toyota Lists Factors Making Firm 'Largest Import Volume Dealer'

"Over the past 10 years, Brunken Toyota, Inc., with the combined efforts of its knowledgeable sales force and award-winning parts and service departments, has become West Texas' largest import volume dealer."

Owner Calvin Brunken emphasizes that much of the dealership's growth is due to the quality product provided by Toyota.

In the last 80 years, Toyota has built a sound reputation for making precision machinery, beginning as a manufacturer of sophisticated textile looms, equipment so good that in its day it captured a world-wide export market. With this as a foundation, Toyota emerged as a major auto manufacturer in the 1930's. By the '50's Toyota's small car expertise made it the No. 1 automobile in Japan, and by 1957 it had entered the U.S. market.

In 1965, the year the Corona arrived, more cars were sold than in all previous seven years. New products were introduced in the 70's with the millionth Toyota delivered in 1972, the three millionth in '77 and the five millionth expected early this year.

For Style, Performance

Much of Toyota's sales success is a direct result of the widespread recognition of Toyota style and performance.

Road Test magazine named Corona "import car of the year," Motor Trend awarded "import car of the year" to Celica Liftback in 1976 . . . and to the entire Celica line in '78.

The 4x4 truck won the honor in 1979 from PV4 magazine, and Corolla Tercel in 1980 from Road Test.

Since '75, every Toyota passenger car rated by Consumer Reports magazine has received high ratings on overall frequency of repair.

"Toyota always has been a leader in product development, introducing the competitively low-priced, high-mileage front wheel drive Toyota Tercel in 1980.

This year brought another new Toyota, the Starlet, proving that the No. 1 gasoline mileage car in the U.S.A. can and should be sporty, comfortable and fun to drive."

Starlet Excels

With 39 EPA estimated mpg, 54 EPA estimated highway mpg, and standard features like fully transistorized ignition for fewer, simpler tune-ups; low maintenance battery; a service saving, self-adjusting clutch; power-assisted fade-resisting front disc brakes and steel-belted radial ply tires, it is no wonder the Starlet, even with such a short time on the market, is proving to be very popular.

"Before you buy that new car, you owe it to yourself to check around and compare the manufacturer's quality and workmanship as well as the dealer's sales, parts and service after the sale. Brunken Toyota, Inc., 5117 SW Loop 289, has built a 10-year reputation on satisfied Toyota customers."

PRODUCT QUALITY, BEAUTY EMPHASIZED — Shown with a new '81 SR5 Corolla Coupe at Brunken Toyota, Inc., are Dickie Jackson, Othman Ghneim and Jerry Eitter who are among the sales staffmembers of that dealership that has chalked up enviable records for more than a decade.

Robert C. Joiner Jr. is president of the firm at 4902 Homestead Ave.

Locally-Owned J & J Electric Excels In Contracting, Service

Capacity for service and a track record can be mighty important considerations in reliance upon any business. J & J Electric Co., 4902 Homestead Ave. in Lubbock, measures up admirably in these respects, customers of long-standing will attest. Exclusively in the business of electrical contracting and service, the firm equally appreciates trade in residential, commercial or industrial needs. They have served superbly in each category and can recount jobs from $25 service calls to $380,000 installations. Any size installation or service can be handled.

Located at 4902 Homestead Ave., just south of the Brownfield Highway and just past Loop 289, J & J Electric Co. is housed in easily spotted and functionally attractive quarters. Established in 1974 at a 3230 Oberlin location, the firm has been in its new location and facilities since late 1977.

Serving Lubbock and region, trouble calls are honored day or night. Six vehicles are radio dispatched, and J & J even has a bucket truck enabling operations to 45 ft. in the air.

Eight or more licensed electricians are maintained on the staff, together with a three-person office force.

Locally owned and operated, J & J Electric Co., Electrical Contractors, is headed by R.C. Joiner, president, who literally grew up in the business. Marie D. Joiner is vice president and secretary treasurer.

Capacity for installations of any size and for service to be appreciated, J & J Electric Co. merits one's confidence, they want to prove to you, too. Remember the location, 4902 Homestead Ave., P.O. Box 6644, office phone 793-3136, and residence phone 794-4198, Lubbock.

Expanded Kay Rhea Electrolysis Now Is Exclusive Ladies Beauty Center

"For complete care for the woman who cares" it is the exclusive ladies beauty center, Kay Rhea Electrolysis, 3008 50th St.

Long recognized for its electrolysis service, the Kay Rhea center has added through the months to its services, even doubling the size of its quarters, to finally arrive at its present stature of a "ladies beauty center."

Included in the now-available and popular services are:

- (1) The new Body Wrap process specifically designed to aid those people who need to look their best in the shortest period of time.
- (2) Electrolysis, a method dating back over 100 years as a successful manner of superfluous hair removal.
- (3) Nail caps.
- (4) Sculptured nails and manicuring.
- (5) Skin care including cosmetic face-lifts, and
- (6) Hair service including cuts, iron styling and perms.

Ear piercing is available. And look at this:

Exercise Room
Exercise equipment is arriving for the added exercise room! Numerous exercise plans are made available, but no contract is involved, it is emphasized by Dean Graves, owner of the center.

Kay Rhea Electrolysis, at 3008 50th St., phone 793-7388, recently marked completion of its first year in business... 12 months of outstanding service and growth. A beautiful reception area and six private rooms is now provided.

Enlarged Staff
Dean Graves is owner, assisted by Sandra Rucker and Vicki Raymond, certified electrologists, and by newest staff addition, Margie Hiles. Margie and Dean are licensed beauticians, and Margie taught cosmetology for 10 years in the Plainview High School.

"We feel most fortunate in having Margie with us," Dean emphasizes, "and customer response has been most appreciative."

Helen Foster, certified electrologist, serves at the firm's 606-C Quincey facility in Plainview.

The Kay Rhea Electrolysis staff represents hundreds of hours of training and study in the principals and techniques of electrolysis and the other beauty center services afforded, and they consequently serve in a most commendable manner. Dean points out that it was back in 1867 that electrolysis was first used with success to remove superfluous hair.

"And while scientific and medical authorities are not entirely agreed as to the cause of such hair, it has been generally accepted that heredity, racial characteristics, glandular disturbances and even hormone imbalance are possible factors as to why superfluous hair affects so many of us."

Permanent, Satisfying Solution
Dean further emphasizes:

"I enjoy meeting and being with my patrons, helping them. They come to me with hope in their eyes, and you can't imagine the sense of satisfaction I feel, knowing I have a permanent solution to offer. I cannot tell you adequately enough how wonderful it is to see the expression of delight and gratitude when a woman has had a series of treatments and sees the results that have been achieved."

Get full details of the Body Wrap and all the many services at Kay Rhea Electrolysis Center at earliest opportunity.

AMONG CENTER'S STAFFMEMBERS — The Kay Rhea Electrolysis Center in Lubbock has evolved into an exclusive ladies beauty center, with the new and added services listed in the accompanying report. Shown are (standing) Dean Graves, owner, and staffmember Sandra Rucker and (seated) Margie Hiles. Vicki Raymond was absent at time the picture was taken.

AMONG CONTRIBUTORS TO RESTAURANT'S SUCCESS — Owner Jose Ramirez and daughter Rachel are shown here at Jose's Fine Mexican Food Restaurant, 5029 Ave. H. where they and other family members head the staff assuring properly prepared and served Mexican food at the unique establishment.

Jose's Fine Mexican Food Long Appreciated For Food, Service

"For authentic Mexican food, delicious and sensibly priced, folks hereabouts long have recognized Jose's Fine Mexican Food, 5029 Ave. H. phone 744-3784, as outstanding."

This family-owned and family-operated restaurant now is in its 13th year serving Lubbock and region. Mr. and Mrs. Jose Ramirez (Jose and Pajita), daughters Rachel and Leticia, and grandson Armando Jr. head a staff that is dedicated to exceptional food goodness and exceptional service.

Even with its outstanding menu, the following is pointed out as further reasons for the popularity of Jose's:

- Take Out Service, Too
- "Everything we serve also is available for take-out service."
- "Reservations are welcomed, with these especially desirable to many customers at noon so that office workers can be served in minimum time... 30 minutes even!"

"Private parties are available by arrangement."

Gift certificates are available, and Visa, Master Charge, American Express and Diners Club cards are honored.

Cold mugs are furnished for BYOB service.

New Items

Added to the enticing menu are Fajitas (beef skirts) even available a la carte.

And there are the tamales, corn and flour tortillas, taco and chalupe shells, taco meat, savory sauces, chili con queso, tostadas for parties, etc.

"Eating at Jose's Fine Mexican Food is an experience to be enjoyed and recommended."

Unique Decor

The decor alone might well be reason enough for a visit to this Lubbock landmark. Jose Ramirez long has served in civic and other worthy enterprises in his long residency here, and the walls of the unique restaurant are literally covered with autographed pictures of the "great and even near-great" who have crossed the path or worked hand in hand with the genial owner, Jose Ramirez.

Jose's, just east of the 50th Street — Avenue H intersection in south Lubbock, is easily accessible from major traffic arteries and provides lots of off-street parking room right at the door. The facility is open 11 a.m. until 2 p.m., and from 5 p.m. until 9 p.m., Tuesdays through Saturdays, and on Sundays from 11 until 2:30, closed Mondays.

For the highly recommended Jose's Special (taco, cheese enchilada, chalupe, rice and beans), El Chiquitín, Para Los Dos, Marvin's Special, El Republicano, enchiladas, tacos, chile rellenos, burritos, nachos, the Holmes Deluxe Dinner, Smith Mexican Dinner, El Democrata, carne guizada, fried chicken, sandwiches, omelettes, steaks and more, Jose's Fine Mexican Food invites your patronage.

Bolton's Barber Shop Prides In Staff Marking Decades Combined Experience

"You'll like Bolton's Barber Shop!"

Owner Harold Bolton and staff members Jack Clayton, Leo Baggett and H. R. "Bill" Waits are on hand at Bolton's Barber Shop on South University, welcoming old and new customers alike to that Golden Horseshoe Shopping Center facility, rendering a service appreciated by many for years and years!

Actually, there's no place quite like Bolton's Barber Shop, 6405 University Ave. where the four full-service professionals mark a total of some 172 years of barber service right here in Lubbock and county!

"You've known, appreciated and patronized these skilled barbers at one time or another, there is strong probability, but possibly you did not know their present location. So come on in!"

Harold Bolton, with 33 years barbering experience right here in Lubbock, is owner, purchasing the 6405 University facility (formerly Bob's Hair Stylists) in September of '79.

Also on hand is Jack Clayton, with a similar 33 years experience in serving with his barbering skills. He and Harold graduated in the same class in 1947 from the Lubbock Barber College!

Leo Baggett qualifies as "dean" of Lubbock County! Think of the times he has served you, your friends, and even more than one generation of families who have turned to him for their barber needs!

"Bill" Waits marks a full half-century of barbering right here in Lubbock, believe me, he has lots of friends and customers! Mrs. Waits is a teacher in the Lubbock schools.

Stepped in experience and professional execution of their trade, these men without exception have kept abreast of all modern hair styles, rendering a service that has kept the young folks just as enthusiastic as their older customers.

The Bolton's Barber Shop, in the Golden Horseshoe Shopping Center, remember, is a Men's RK Retail Center, with the quality RK products used, recommended and sold.

Though appointments are not necessary, they are welcomed and honored. The shop is open from 8:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m., Tuesdays through Saturdays.

In a nutshell, what Bolton's Barber Shop has going for it are several important things: (1) excellent service, (2) experience, and (3) friendly atmosphere with the owner and staff really enjoying being your friend, knowing your first name and serving to serve again year after year. (Leo can tell you the names of customers he has been consistently serving since back in '27!)

Bolton's Barber Shop is a business that appreciates your patronage... and shows it.

"Come on in; let's renew acquaintance or make new friendships; we are confident the service will be to your liking as it has been for so many others. Ask your friends, if you have not visited us; likely they have benefited from the barbering expertise of one or all our full service professionals.

Now you know where we are... so don't delay; we'll see you at Bolton's Barber Shop, 6405 University, phone 795-7332!"

Full-Service Village Pharmacy Lauded For Specials, Other Aid

The currently-posted specials at Village Pharmacy reflect the advantages of patronizing this full-line, full-service pharmacy at 3703-C 19th St., just west of Methodist Hospital.

Among these significant specials are:

- Gaviscon (100's) tablets, regular $5.75, on sale at $3.95!
- Afrin Spray, 15 ml. regular $2.29, now $1.39!
- Coricidin D 24's, regular $2.32, but now sale marked at $1.29!
- Dextrin, extra strength 20's, regular $3.99, for $2.29!
- Geritol tablets (100's) regular $8.80, for just $4.99!

Check for these and still other special values from the large selection at Village Pharmacy where drugs, beauty aids and health aids are stocked.

Special attention to nursing home accounts is another of the numerous and very definite considerations one can expect at Village Pharmacy.

Special Services

As to the nursing home accounts, Village Pharmacy comes through with filling of Medicaid prescriptions, a 10 percent Senior Citizen discount, use of generic drugs when possible, and free delivery on prescriptions!

Full-Line Pharmacy

David Bills, area native and formerly with another pharmacy in Lubbock, is owner and active operator of the relatively-new pharmacy serving as the closest full-line pharmacy to most doctors in the area.

He has arranged so many plus benefits for Village Pharmacy customers that it is hard to adequately describe all.

Upon request, family tax and insurance records are made available at no added charge, as example of this service.

Don't forget the free delivery on prescriptions.

Bills was reared at Spur, graduated from high school in Waco, attended ACC for two years and graduated from the University of Texas Pharmacy School.

Bills is one of 12 pharmacists in Texas to serve on a task force for young pharmacists for the Texas Pharmaceutical Association. When in pharmacy school he was extensively involved in research, and he was cited for his published contributions in B vitamin study.

Assisting on the floor at Village Pharmacy is Sofia (Mrs. Sam) De Anda, who marks experience in another pharmacy here and is thoroughly experienced in serving the customer, showing a dedication to her job that is most commendable and of benefit to every customer. The folks at Village Pharmacy are "your kind of folks." They want to know your name and serve your needs... in a friendly and qualified manner... at this so-convenient location just west of Methodist Hospital.

Business & Industrial Review

New Commander's Room Proves Versatile, Popular Facility

It is a fact: the beautiful, spacious room in which you enjoyed your holiday party serves equally well for meetings, banquets, club sessions, etc. throughout the year.

(That is, if the room is the Commander's Room, the striking new facility at 73rd Street and Indiana, located just west of Southern Sea Restaurant there.)

The Commander's Room is a versatile facility for all types and sizes of meetings, parties or banquets... cozy for a small group or comfortable for a large get-together.

It is not a plain, bare-looking room... far from it. Actually, it is quiet, private, tastefully decorated and includes a beautiful wood-burning fireplace.

Well-Equipped

Civic clubs can find this room ideal, with its equipment including sound system, chalkboard, podium, etc., with excellent acoustics and roominess for arrangement as preferred.

Because of the unique interior planning of the Commander's Room, wedding receptions, special parties and meetings can be set up, and your own decorations can be easily added to make the party or other functions distinctively "you".

Southern Sea can custom plan and serve for any occasion at the Commander's Room, with a wide menu variety and with the same concern for quality and good service long synonymous with other facilities and departments of Southern Sea. Whether the preference is a complete steak dinner, or whatnot; hors d'oeuvres and setups, etc., meals or snacks at the Commander's Room can be arranged professionally and deliciously!

"We invite you to visit the Commander's Room, get full details on how it can best serve your club or other meeting or dining needs, and for dinner-dances or receptions, etc. For these details and reservations call 799-2099 or come by the Commander's Room at 73rd and Indiana, just off Loop 289, and easily reached from anywhere.

Remember, the Commander's Room is newest service of the home-owned and home-operated Southern Sea firm that has made quite a name for itself with the finest chicken and fish menu imaginable, with the goodness of roast beef, barbeque, ham, turkey and more, custom planned menus, catering for any size group, and two popular Lubbock restaurants where dining or carry-out service is provided.

"If you have appreciated any or all the services of Southern Sea as provided by Robert and Priscilla Sims and staff, then you'll be especially thrilled at the thoughtfulness of the all-new Commander's Room."

Zuriel Apparel Designs Relates Top Value, Low Cost In Annual Clearance

"You still can profit from the biggest sale of the year at Zuriel Apparel Designs, 2409 34th St."

"The values are almost unbelievable when it is recognized that this unique outlet store stocks only first-quality designer label and famous-name brands... always presented at discount prices but now marked even lower for the sensational sale!"

As example:

All Dresses Included

All dresses are marked 50 per cent off regular Zuriel discount prices during the sale!

Yes, first-quality junior and missy apparel consistently discounted 20 per cent to 50 per cent off normally expected prices is marked even lower for this Annual Clearance Sale at Zuriel's involving storewide reductions, it is pointed out by owners W. Z. "Bill" McNew and wife, Mary.

Further examples of the sale opportunities include:

Jean (a designer label), compare at $30, now marked just $6!

Blouses (compare at $36), now marked $9!

And a large selection of ladies slacks,

and the McNew's resourcefulness coming from years in the business.

Junior and ladies sizes are stocked, juniors 0 to 15, and ladies 4 to 18.

Visa, Master Charge and layaway purchases are welcomed. Store hours are 10 until 6, Mondays through Saturdays.

As graphic example of the concept of the store and how the McNews seek to serve best, they call attention to the customer survey blanks always prominently displayed near check out in the store. These questionnaires seek to correctly determine the preferences, needs, impressions and other comments of the customer. Comments are invited including:

"How did you hear of Zuriel; what specific media was involved; what do you think of our merchandise; which department most interests you; what merchandise would you like for us to carry; will you come back; how did you find our sales people; would you like to be included on our mailing list or to be called when special merchandise is available; and still other invitation for comments about Zuriel's."

"Isn't this a refreshing way of doing business, of considering and appreciating you, the customer?"

Massive Star Shakes Scientific Theories

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — A faint blue light shining from a galaxy near the Milky Way has astronomers questioning old theories about stars and the sun. The light has traveled 150,000 years from a "super massive star" thousands and thousands of times bigger than our sun, three stargazers say.

"In one second, this object puts out as much energy as the sun does in five years," said Joseph P. Cassinelli, a professor of astronomy at the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

He and colleagues John S. Mathis and Blair D. Savage announced their discovery of the super-sun in the Tarantula Nebula to an American Astronomical Society meeting last week in Albuquerque, N.M.

Until now, the biggest known stars were about 100 times the size of the sun. The star the Wisconsin astronomers reported has a mass 3,500 times the sun.

"People are excited," Harry Shipman, the society's education officer said. "I'm excited about it."

Astronomers had thought a heavenly body of such immensity impossible, Cassinelli said, because it could not form and, even if it did, it could not survive. He conceded there are still skeptics.

"Astronomers will review their ideas about the formation of stars and, maybe, almost certainly as a result of these kinds of studies, we will develop a better understanding of how our solar system was formed," he said.

The star has no name — only a catalog number, R136a.

"It just turns out that there's a catalog of hot blue stars and this is just the 136th star in that catalog," he said.

The star is 150,000 light years from Earth at the center of the Tarantula Nebula, a cloud of ionized hydrogen gas in what is called the Large Magellanic Cloud. The Large Magellanic Cloud is a small galaxy near the Milky Way.

"It's not a particularly bright object," he said. It is visible only with a telescope and only from the Southern Hemisphere. "An amateur astronomer with a small 6-inch telescope could easily see it — the region."

"He wouldn't be able to identify that particular star. It's a very crowded region. There are lots of stars. This is just one. A person with a small telescope would just see this blotch of stars."

"It's not a particularly impressive star to the eye," he said. "It's not until you make observations with satellites and other things like that before you realize that it's in fact a very impressive object."

The star's surface temperature is 60,

000 degrees Centigrade, 10 times the sun's. It loses atoms at a rate of one sun every 1,000 years and will shine for about a million years. The sun's life is estimated at 10 billion years.

Savage first observed the star last summer while using the International Ultraviolet Explorer satellite. The three astronomers have access to IUE data through the Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Md.

"Blair Savage was making observations of bright stars in the Large Magellanic Cloud," Cassinelli said. "The region was very, very peculiar, hotter than any stars we are familiar with."

They first thought it was a cluster of stars matching the Milky Way's brightest and rarest stars, but later determined the region spanned a light year — the distance light travels in a year, about 6 trillion miles.

"That's just an absurd density to have for those limited stars in the galaxy," he said. The region may even be smaller than one light year across, he said. "We concluded that the more plausible explanation was a very massive star."

"We were very skeptical," he said. "We would sort of just bounce ideas off each other. It's a small department. We see each other every day. The excitement just built up slowly."

"It's taken the last six months or so," he said. "It's a very slow process. You don't say, 'Hey, we've got a discovery.' It's not like suddenly seeing something nobody else has seen."

If you are thinking about opening an interest-paying checking account, here's a thought from First National Bank: COMPARE.

Regular checking accounts have not earned interest because a 1933 Federal law prohibited financial institutions from paying interest on checking.

Now, that law has changed. And all kinds of financial institutions, even those who never offered checking accounts before, can provide interest-bearing checking to their customers. This has been accompanied by some very loud, noisy, and sometimes confusing advertising claims.

First National Bank has offered INTEREST/CHECKING to our customers a long time. And quite frankly we've found that earning interest on transaction-type accounts won't be to the advantage of everyone.

Things To Consider

At some places the service charge on interest-paying checking accounts may be a lot different than the charge on regular checking. There may even be a per check charge, too.

Some financial institutions won't return checks with the monthly statement on interest-paying accounts, unless you pay an extra charge.

And some will pay interest only on fully collected deposits. So you wouldn't earn interest on the amount of any check you deposited until that check cleared the bank on which it was written.

The point is, you may need to shop carefully to find the services that best suit your needs. And if you decided to switch to an interest-paying checking plan, be sure you understand the plan you are considering. And especially what its true cost to you will be.

How To Determine If It's Right For You

Get answers to these important questions:

- "What is the minimum balance required to earn interest?"
- "What is the minimum balance required to avoid service charges?"
- "What are the per check charges?"

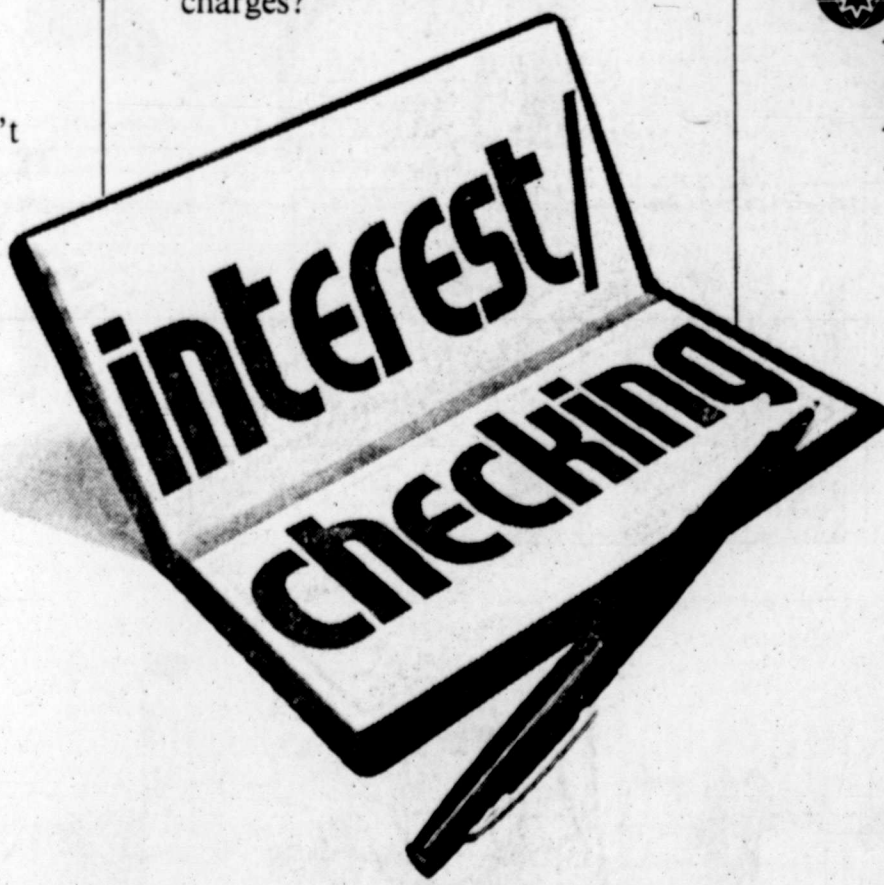

- "How is the interest calculated?"
- "Are there any hidden charges?"
- "Will I get my checks back at the end of the month?"

One Final Note

Naturally, we think our INTEREST/CHECKING plan is the best one offered by any financial institution in West Texas. It's both a checking and a savings account. And if you keep $500 in your account, you pay no service charge, you earn interest, and there are no per check charges, no matter how many you write. It's that simple. We'll be glad to show you how it can work for you.

We want you to compare plans. Because we think when you do, you'll find First National Bank's INTEREST/CHECKING the best plan around.

Heartline

EDITOR'S NOTE: Heartline is a service for senior citizens. Its purpose is to answer questions and solve problems. If you have a question or a problem not answered in these columns, write to Heartline, 114 East Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio 45381. You will receive a prompt reply, but you must include a self-addressed, stamped envelope. The most useful replies will be printed in this column.

HEARTLINE: I am a widow, age 53. I have been looking for a job for several months. Really all I have done is to let my friends and acquaintances know that I am available for work and to follow-up on any ads in the newspaper that I feel I may qualify for. I have had several job interviews, but I think I am a victim of age discrimination. I do not want to fight it. I wouldn't want to work for anyone that didn't want me, for any reason. Can you give me any other suggestion that might help me to get a job even at my age? P.W.

ANSWER: First of all, make sure you are listed with your local state employment office (call them and make an appointment with an employment counselor). Also let the county welfare office know that you are seeking employment. Contact any local senior citizen centers to see if they know of any available jobs for someone of your age and abilities. You should make application with your local Board of Education and the local schools, as they employ persons in a wide variety of positions. It might also be of advantage to you to list your name and qualifications with any employment agency that caters to older workers.

HEARTLINE: My sister, who lives in another state, saw an article in the paper about a book you have recently written called Heartline's 1981 Almanac for Older Americans. She ordered a copy at an introductory price of $7.95. She did not tell me too much about the book, except that it would be an excellent retirement guide. I am now age 59 and plan on retiring at age 62. I am trying to get everything organized so that my retirement will be smooth and hopefully without any major traumas. I think the book would probably be an asset to my retirement planning but I'd like to know a little more about it. Can you tell me more? C.M.

ANSWER: The Heartline Almanac contains a very wide variety of information on many subjects that we feel will either directly or indirectly influence the retirement years of the majority of senior citizens. These topics include wills, estate planning, nursing homes, government agencies and benefits, health care employment, crime prevention, etc. There are in-depth discussions of Social Security, Medicare, Medicare Supplements and Health Insurance, Railroad Retirement, Veterans benefits, etc. We also feel that it will be a very valuable retirement guide. The Almanac will be updated every year to contain the changes in all government programs and for budget planning. Due to overwhelming response to the introductory offer, we are extending the discount price of $7.95 per copy through March, 1981. To order, send $7.95 to Heartline's 1981 Almanac, 114 East Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio 45381. Please allow 6 weeks for delivery.

Japanese Excluded From Oil Sale

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Saudi Arabia will renew temporary crude oil supply contracts with countries whose fuel supplies have been affected by the Iran-Iraq war, excluding Japan, for the first quarter of 1981, the Middle East Economic Survey reported Sunday.

In a report quoting unidentified "reliable sources," the weekly newsletter said Japan, previously the largest recipient at 140,000 barrels a day, was excluded because of reports of irregularities in oil pricing to customers.

The war relief contracts, involving a total of about 600,000 barrels daily, were concluded for the last quarter of 1980 with countries facing shortages because of the war which erupted Sept. 22. Other customers are France, Italy, Brazil, Greece, Spain, Turkey, Yugoslavia, India, Pakistan, Morocco and Somalia.

Chuck McDonald Raiders Cagers Dig Hole

WACO — IT WAS BOUND TO HAPPEN sooner or later. As it turned out, it was sooner.

And when it did happen, Texas Tech didn't know how to handle the situation. Only 14 games into his collegiate career, Red Raider freshman Bubba Jennings found out what it's like to be a marked man.

A fugitive, always hunted, always on the run. The Rice Owls figured the only way to stop Tech was to stifle Jennings. So while the rest of the Owls lined in something like 1-3 zone defense, fleet Teddy Washington set up shop in Jennings' hip pocket.

That's pretty royal treatment to have directed at a freshman, but the Owls' plan worked like a charm.

Bubba was stifled and Tech was sunk. Jennings played only 28 minutes in Tech's 52-50 loss to the Owls Saturday night and was only able to get off three shots (making all three of them).

"THE THING ABOUT IT IS THAT WE weren't really setting picks for him," said Tech coach Gerald Myers. "When they did that, they left a lot of open spots on the floor."

"I thought we would be able to capitalize on that," Myers added. "We were trying to use him (Jennings) as a decoy. We were trying to run them out of it. We had so many open shots, but we just didn't hit."

Jennings' former Clovis, N.M., teammate, sophomore Nelson Franse, hit only three of 11 shots against Rice. And the boys from Hobbs, Jeff Taylor and Steve Smith, hit four of eight and six of 12, respectively.

The shots simply would not go down. Still, even on this most dismal of nights, the Raiders looked like they would finally be able to leave Houston with a win. Then came a play that turned the game around and could even turn the entire season around.

Leading 41-39, Tech's Smith was fouled and the Raiders were faced with a routine in-bounds situation. As it turned out, there was nothing routine about it. Taylor couldn't find anyone open and — rather than calling for a time out — just heaved the ball in the general direction of the Rice basket.

THE REST IS HISTORY. RICE GOT an easy two points out of the play. And, although the Owls didn't win it until Ricky Pierce tossed in a prayer at the buzzer in OT, Tech was never in control after Taylor's fatal pass.

"That might have been the biggest play of the season," said Myers Sunday. "It looked like we were going to come out of there with a win even though we had not played a very smart game."

"It just puts us in a different frame of mind." The Raiders, who desperately wanted to salvage at least a split on this trip, have managed to dig themselves into a deep hole.

Now Tech must face Baylor here tonight, with the Bears currently the best team in the Southwest Conference with a perfect 4-0 league slate. If you happen to see the Bears dispense of Arkansas on television Saturday afternoon — and believe me, Myers watched every minute of that contest — you know how well Baylor is playing.

"I THOUGHT THE BIG GAME WAS LAST NIGHT," said Myers. "You try to figure that you want to win the ones where all the contenders are going to win. That's what made the Rice game so big."

Baylor, for example, has already beaten the Owls at Autrey Court. By now, the obvious question has to be whether Tech is capable of beating anybody on the road? The Raiders are 1-5 away from the Coliseum and that lone victory came at a neutral site.

Even though Tech has lost by two points three times and three points once, nobody really cares how close you come. It still goes under the loss column. A year ago, this Houston-Waco jaunt proved to be the Raiders' Waterloo. A dispondent Myers only hopes that his sorry doesn't repeat itself one more time. Nothing would help the Tech coach shake Saturday's bad memory better than a win against Baylor.

But if you can't beat the Rice Owls, who can you beat? It's overcast and gray here in Waco, and that's just about the way Myers is feeling — gloomy.

Borg Masters Lendl For Championship

NEW YORK (AP) — The master craftsman from Sweden, Bjorn Borg, thrashed Czechoslovakia's Ivan Lendl 6-4, 6-2, 6-2 Sunday to add the $400,000 Volvo Masters tennis tournament to his long list of major victories.

Borg's victory avenged two straight losses to Lendl, one of which came when the Swede had to retire in the final at Toronto last year because of an injury. Borg now has beaten the young Czech four times in six meetings.

A five-time winner of both Wimbledon and the French Open, Borg captured his second consecutive Masters crown.

It was the first trip for Lendl to the eight-man, round-robin tournament that climaxes the 92-tourney worldwide Grand Prix circuit. The 20-year-old Czech was the top junior player in the world in 1978 and has risen quickly to the top of the professionals ranks.

Lendl was accused by Jimmy Connors of having deliberately lost their Friday night match so that he could avoid a Saturday afternoon clash with Borg. Connors called Lendl a "chicken."

Whatever his intention, Lendl lost to Connors 7-6, 6-1, with his game falling apart in the 17-minute second set. He beat Gene Mayer easily in Saturday's semis.

But Sunday he ran into a brick wall. Borg and Lendl are both masters in the backcourt. But Borg attacked Sunday, and everything Lendl hit was returned. Borg never lost his serve and seized every opportunity that Lendl presented him.

Lendl could have gone up 3-1 in the opening set, but he failed to convert three break points on Borg's serve.

Borg took advantage immediately, breaking Lendl in the fifth game with a cross-court forehand winner. The rout was on.

Opening the second set of this best-of-five final before a crowd of 18,297 at Madison Square Garden, Lendl changed tactics and started to serve and volley. It worked only in the first set, which the Czech won at love.

After holding his own serve, Borg broke Lendl again, winning the final four points.

After a 50-minute first set, which saw numerous long rallies, Borg stepped up the pace volleying sharply and increasing the pressure on Lendl, particularly his backhand. Lendl is known for his strong forehand.

Borg broke again in the fifth game, then held serve for the 6-2 second set victory.

The final set was over almost as soon as it began. The Czech was broken in the first game and again in the seventh.

Seeded fourth in the Masters, Borg, the world's No. 1 player, defeated Argentina's Jose-Luis Clerc and John McEnroe before losing to Mayer 6-0, 6-3 in the round robin. Lendl had advanced into the semifinals with victories over Harold Solomon and Argentina's Guillermo Vilas before his controversial loss to Connors Friday night.

In the semifinals, Borg downed Connors 6-4, 6-7, 6-3, while Lendl toppled Mayer 6-3, 6-4.

The tournament's top seed, McEnroe, lost all three matches in the round robin.

The victory was worth $100,000 and a new Volvo for Borg. Lendl received $64,000.

A five-time winner of both Wimbledon and the French Open, Borg captured his second consecutive Masters crown.

It was the first trip for Lendl to the eight-man, round-robin tournament that climaxes the 92-tourney worldwide Grand Prix circuit. The 20-year-old Czech was the top junior player in the world in 1978 and has risen quickly to the top of the professionals ranks.

Lendl was accused by Jimmy Connors of having deliberately lost their Friday night match so that he could avoid a Saturday afternoon clash with Borg. Connors called Lendl a "chicken."

Whatever his intention, Lendl lost to Connors 7-6, 6-1, with his game falling apart in the 17-minute second set. He beat Gene Mayer easily Saturday.

But Sunday he ran into a brick wall. Borg and Lendl are both masters in the backcourt. But Borg attacked Sunday, and everything Lendl hit was returned. Borg never lost his serve and seized every opportunity that Lendl presented him.

TECH FACES BAYLOR TONIGHT

Bears Surprise SWC Foes

By CHUCK McDONALD
Assistant Sports Editor

WACO — It has been a year of surprises, the pleasant type, here at Baylor University.

The Baylor football team, generally picked to go nowhere, wound up making a trip to the Cotton Bowl as the Southwest Conference champions. And now, the Baylor basketball team is trying to pull the same stunt.

The Bears, picked by most experts to do no better than sixth in the SWC cage race, currently lead the lead with a perfect 4-0 mark.

Tonight, here at the Heart O' Texas Coliseum, the suddenly sagging Red Raiders of Texas Tech will try and put a dent in the Baylor title hopes. The game, scheduled for a 7:30 p.m. tipoff, will be carried live on KFYO radio.

Both teams will be taking 9-5 season records into the game, although Tech is only 3-2 in league play after Saturday's 52-50 overtime loss to Rice. Baylor, on the other hand, is fresh off a rousing win over Arkansas.

For a team that could do no better than 5-5 in non-conference play, its been quite a turn around for the Bears. But BU coach Jim Haller is taking it all in stride.

"Nothing is going to surprise me this year," said Haller with a laugh. "I said it before, but nothing this team does or anything that happens in this league is going to surprise me."

Haller is right. There's just no reasonable explanation for the presence of Texas and Texas A&M, two of the preseason favorites, in the league's cellar. And no one, not even Haller, expected to see the Bears on top.

As has been the story since the day he stepped on campus, the Baylor attack has revolved around the play of 6-5 junior Terry Teagle. As a freshman Teagle was the league's newcomer of the year. As a sophomore, Teagle was the SWC player of the year. Although his scoring output has dipped a bit, Teagle is still averaging 20.7 points a game.

"Terry's a premier player," said Haller. "I would compare his abilities to those of Tech's Jeff Taylor."

Taylor, Tech's 6-4 junior, leads the team in scoring with just over 14 points per game. But against the Owls on Saturday, he scored only eight.

Besides Teagle, the Bears will start 6-

10 junior Tommy Teraat at the post with 6-6 Joe Copeland at the other forward spot. Senior Pat Nunley and sophomore Jay Shakir — both 6-4 — will operate in the Baylor backcourt.

Nunley is the team's second leading scorer, averaging 11.0 points per game. Against Arkansas, Shakir had his finest outing of the season, scoring 15 for the Bears.

The big difference for Baylor this year has been the addition of the big men — Teraat and Copeland, both junior college transfers. Another JC transfer, 6-8 Ozell Hall, along with 6-5 Mike Battle and 6-6 Andy Sears, have also aided the Bears attack coming off the bench. With a better supporting cast, Teagle is even more dangerous.

"Sure, Teagle is the key to Baylor," Tech coach Gerald Myers said, "but if you do something special on him, Nunley and those other guys can hurt you."

Although Rice was effective in hurting the Raiders by playing a man defense against Bubba Jennings and a zone on on the remainder of the team, Haller says his Bears won't try the same approach.

"I watched that game (Tech-Rice), and what they (the Owls) did was effective, but we don't have time to put that into our defense in just one day," Haller explained. "We've been using multiple zone defenses since the conference started and that's what we'll stay with."

"The last six games I've been happy with my team," Haller added. "We're playing harder, now. We didn't play worth a lick early in the year and we were lucky to be 5-5."

Myers, as can be expected, is hardly happy with his team.

"We've got to play a lot smarter than we did against Rice," Myers said. "Baylor is a fine team."

Tech will open with the starting five Myers has used all year. Ben Hill and Clarence Swannegan, who both has poor games against Rice, will start inside with Taylor, Jennings and Steve Smith outside.

Smith was the only player to score in double figures for Tech in Saturday's fiasco and he only had 12 counters.

"I know Tech is a very good ball club," said Haller. "People don't realize that Rice is also an excellent team. We played our best game of the year against the Owls and it was close all the way."

The difference was, though, that the Bears beat Rice.

Lietzke Wins Hope Golf Classic

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Bruce Lietzke, the leader all the way, turned back Jerry Pate with a solid, 3-under-par 69 and won the Bob Hope Desert Golf Classic Sunday with a tournament-record score.

Lietzke acquired the sixth title of his career with a 335 total, 25 under-par and two shots better than the old record of 337 set by Rik Massengale in 1977 for this, the only 90-hole, five-day event on the PGA Tour.

Lietzke, one of the game's longer hitters and the most successful cross-handed putter in golf, collected $50,000 from the total purse of $304,500 and marked the fifth consecutive year in which he has won at least one title.

Pate, a deeply frustrated man who has won more than $400,000 without taking a victory since 1978, was the only golfer who really had a shot at overtaking the front-running Lietzke. Pate at one time pulled to within a single shot of the top spot.

But Lietzke, playing in the final threesome with Pate and Bill Rogers, stretched his margin to two strokes with a 30-foot birdie putt on the 13th hole, then put it away with a 15-footer for birdie on the 16th. That gave him a 3-stroke advantage with only two holes to play in the warm desert sunshine.

Pate also finished with a 69 on the 6,793 yard Bermuda Dunes Country Club course and a 337 total, matching the old record.

David Edwards birdied the final hole for a 71 and third place at 341.

The exceptionally low scoring was aided by the beautiful condition of the four desert courses used for the first four rounds of this unique event and five days of near-perfect golfing weather.

J.C. Snead, D.A. Weibring and Rogers were next at 342. Snead, who birdied five of his first seven holes, had a 66, Weibring shot 68 and Rogers, Lietzke's college roommate, matched par 72.

Arnold Palmer, now 51, a five-time winner of this title, hit his first shot of the day out of bounds and struggled to a 76. He finished at 361 and was the only man in the final field over par for the tournament.

Lietzke had a 2-stroke lead over Pate starting the final round and Pate closed to within 1 at the turn.

But Lietzke's long, long putt on the 13th, "took the breath out of me," Pate said, and gave Lietzke a 2-stroke lead again and Pate missed a potential birdie from about 10 feet.

Lietzke, a bachelor who sometimes dates Pate's sister-in-law, virtually clinched the title with the birdie on the 16th, going 3 ahead with two holes to go.

"That was the big turning point — the push I was looking for," Lietzke said.

But there was still one little piece of drama to play out. On the par-5 18th, Pate reached the green in 2 and had a 35-foot putt for an eagle. Lietzke was on in 3 and left a 50-foot birdie putt about 4 feet short.

Now Pate had an outside chance to win. Should he drop the eagle putt and Lietzke miss his par putt, they'd be tied. But Pate missed and Lietzke took a deep, deep breath and bent double in relief.

Pate had to settle for a meaningless birdie and Lietzke made the par putt.

Madden Expects Raiders To Win

OAKLAND (AP) — The Super Bowl-bound Oakland Raiders, marveling over the new friends they've picked up since the decision, head for New Orleans Monday as former coach John Madden, who brainstormed them to their No. 12 Bowl victory, picks them again for the XV classic.

Madden, who from behind a microphone has seen the Philadelphia Eagles live from TV broadcast booths around the country, said he's seen the Raiders only on the telly from hotel rooms this season, but he picks them to win.

"Is that my head or my hair talking?" he asked in a telephone interview. "It's both. The Raiders are getting better every week, which is so doggone important this time of year. They played as well as they have all year against San Diego."

For most of the Raiders, they can't leave town too soon. They've been maddened to death for days with phones from long lost relatives, assorted pigskin fans from all over, and a blizzard of unilateral chums.

"I had one guy call from Houston who said he was my old high school coach," snickered Tom Jackson, adding that the joker rang off in a hurry when he couldn't come up with the name (Austin Jackson).

Jackson said he's been asked for a grand total of 253 tickets, a story not unlike that told by managing partner Al

Davis' executive assistant Al LoCasale.

His phone started ringing off the hook before dawn last Wednesday morning. The guy insisted LoCasale knew him from the time he was counselor at boy's camp in Maine year's ago.

"Here's a guy I may have known for 17 days in 1955 and he wants tickets to the Super Bowl," mused LoCasale.

Kenny King's been getting calls at 4 a.m. from people out east who haven't heard about the time difference. Ted Hendricks' relatives, 25 of them, want to come up for the game. Guess what they also want.

Back to Madden, he rates Philadelphia's main strength in teamwork. "They play well together. As you look down their team, they don't have a lot of potent big names. In some cases you don't know who these people are. But they play as 11, especially on defense."

Madden wasn't about to dope the hostilities in advance. "I can't tell you all that stuff. Philadelphia beats Dallas and Wilbert Montgomery gains 194 yards. Who would have guessed that?"

"The running game doesn't play as big a part anymore. I know Oakland and Philadelphia can throw the ball, but the team that runs the ball the best probably will win."

This is Oakland's third Super Bowl. Madden piloted the team when Oakland iced the Norsemen from Minnesota.

4-5A Boys Struggle Into League Play

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

If you're one of those people who are completely at a loss to pick a winner in the District 4-5A boys' basketball race, don't feel alone.

With only one non-conference game remaining, only one team has scaled the lofty heights of plus-500 ball and even the coaches themselves are saying the, uh, ball is still up in the air.

Now you and I both know that that's what coaches usually say. But typical comments always sound something like this: "This is sure to be one of the eve-nest district races we've had. Everybody is playing just super-tough; it'll be a super year."

But there is a hard undercurrent detectable in the 4-5A coaches' pronouncements leading up to this year's race.

Coronado coach Barry Arnwine probably summed it up best. "We're struggling but we knew we'd be struggling at this point," he said.

"We've had about as many good games as bad ones. All we've proven in playing 20 games of non-conference ball is that we can all play and beat good people but we can all lose to mediocre teams."

And there was nary a dissenting word heard.

Monterey is the only team playing better than break-even ball. The Plainsmen's 17-6 record is glamorous compared to the rest of the loop, but you're never really sure which Monterey team you're going to see on the floor on any given night.

The Plainsmen have lost to teams with as widely disparate records as 19-3 and 6-9. Of their six losses, some were to bad teams (6-9 Tascosa for example), some were to good teams (19-3 Midland and 19-2 Borger) and some were to the merely mediocre (12-8 Canyon, and 11-10 Estacado).

As a further example, Monterey has lost by one point to both Tascosa (of the 6-9 mark) and Midland (of the 19-3).

And Joe Michalka, for one, isn't about to let that escape anybody's attention.

"You can't pick a favorite this year," he said. "Lubbock High beat Estacado pretty good the other night, Lubbock High beat Palo Duro, Coronado beat Palo Duro, Hereford beat Palo Duro. Palo Duro whipped us."

be the favorites to win the loop before the season started

Though most folks around here figured Monterey to be the loop favorites before the season started (after all, MHS has won the district title eight of the last 11 years), one state-wide publication called for Coronado to take it. The idea has Arnwine practically in stitches.

"We're 11-11 right now and if everybody wants to make an 11-11 team the district favorite, that doesn't say much for the district," he said.

CHS had no returning experience at guard, but had a couple of big men who were supposed to make up for that shortcoming. Things haven't really worked out that way.

"We really don't have anything we can count on yet," Arnwine said. "As a coach that really hurts because in the crucial situations you need to have something that you know you can go to."

"We've all been inconsistent all year and I'm afraid the kids are losing a little bit of confidence."

"Really, the purpose of non-district play is to develop your team's personality. What I'm afraid of is we haven't really established anything at all."

"If I had to describe our personality right now I'd say we were very inconsistent. Our defense has been our most consistent spot but I tend to look at the offensive end of the loop first every time."

If all this poor-mouthing is getting you down, relax, there is one optimist in the crowd. Lubbock High has won 10 games this year (after winning eight all of last year and only two the year before) and Craig Wells isn't afraid to say he's pleased.

"I'm extremely pleased," he said. "We've had a different kind of ballclub than we did last year. Last year I felt like if we were going to win we had to win early. And that's what we did, we went full speed right out of the gun. We won eight games early and then we didn't win one in district."

"This year's different. Our last two wins were against Palo Duro and Estacado and I think we beat two real fine basketball teams. For the first time since I've been here we've got a legitimate shot at pushing somebody in district."

"If we play well we can push people, but if we don't play well we can get blown out."

It's no secret that Wells had a terrific job of rebuild to do when he took over the LHS job. Since 1967 Lubbock High has had two seasons of p.us.-500 ball (the most recent a 15-14 slate in 1977) and recorded fewer than five wins five times and fewer than 10 wins 12 times — that's out of 14 years.

Now, believe it or not, the Westerners have a legitimate shot at winning more than they lose.

"I think the most important thing we've done is that our kids believe they have a chance to win every time they step on the floor," Wells said. "That can't be said for the first two years I was here."

"Now we've just got one more hurdle to overcome. We have never won a district game since I've been here. Until we do that you can't really call us a favorite — but you'd better not overlook us."

City Cage Teams Bid For Title

By RAY GLASS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

While the Estacado boys' team took a mighty swing at a giant — and brought it crashing down — the EHS and Dunbar girls' squads took steps to move into their conference race in District 1-4A action last week.

The Matadors of J.J. Wood, inconsistent during a 10-10 pre-district schedule, dumped the 19-1 Borger Bulldogs 72-69 Friday in a game strangely reminiscent of the first contest between the two last season.

With the victory in the first district game of the season, the Mats grabbed a third of the 1-4A lead, joining Brownfield and Levelland. Borger, Dumas and Dunbar all lost, the Panthers by a 68-54 margin to the Cubs, while Canyon plays its first 1-4A game Tuesday.

The Panther and Matador girls' teams picked up district victories Friday but will probably have to wait until the second half of the 12-game district season to challenge for the crown.

Dunbar is 2-2 after a last-second shot by Terri Henderson boosted the Panthers past Brownfield 59-58. Estacado won its first district game in four tries by blasting Borger 53-40.

However, Canyon, which was idle Friday after knocking off Dunbar Tuesday, is still 4-0 with two games remaining in the first half of the district schedule.

Levelland is 3-1. Dumas 3-2, Brownfield 2-3 and Borger 0-4.

The three-point Estacado win brought out both the usual and the unusual in the run and shoot Matadors and yet, in the end, it came down to judgement foul that sealed the victory.

As usual, the Mats combined their lightning quickness on defense which forced Bulldog turnovers and their one-on-one style of play to build 12-point lead early in the fourth period.

But they also slowed down their offense in the final eight minutes, went into a spread formation and — not unlike other games this season — saw their lead shrink down to almost nothing before making, and getting, breaks late in the contest to preserve the win.

Borger came into the game 19-1 and the state's No. 1 ranked 4A team, much like last year when the Bulldogs visited Lubbock with a 2-0 district mark and ranked No. 4 while the Matadors were also 2-0.

Estacado won that game 65-56 (but Borger won the district title), thanks in part to a charging call against Borger with less than 10 seconds to play and the Mats clinging to a 59-56 lead. And Friday's rematch couldn't have been much more identical.

Estacado scored the first field goal of the game but the Bulldogs raced to an 11-6 lead, maintaining it at 22-16 at the end of one quarter. But with Rodney Guyton and Jerry Gray combining for 12 points, the Mats deadecked the game at 34 at halftime.

The quick Mat defenders took over at the outset of the second half, stealing two passes and running off an 8-2 streak on James Barnett's two free throws. Barnett's two feeds to Guyton for layins and Danny Boyd's jumper from an offensive rebound for a 42-36 lead with 6:28 to play in the quarter.

Estacado opened their advantage to 56-47 at the end of three periods and to 61-49 with 6:04 to play in the game. But then spread offense, designed to pull the defenders away from the basket and run time off the clock, went awry.

With Scott Hunt and Jeff Forrest combining for eight points, most on 20-foot jumpers, Borger rallied and used three Estacado turnovers to creep within two points, 67-65, with 1:52 to play.

"We knew they were going to make us come away from the basket with the spread offense," Borger coach Duane Hunt said. "So we had to put pressure on them out front. They got a couple of easy baskets from that formation, but we got several steals."

A driving layin by Barnett and one of two free throws by Kenneth Cade moved the lead to 70-65. Borger's Gregg Belton converted a layin with 40 seconds to bring the margin back to three points and two Mat turnovers and a foul on Guyton gave Forrest a one and one with 15 seconds to play.

Forrest missed the first shot but Belton yanked down the rebound. He drove to the bucket and collided with Barnett under the hoop, but the 6-foot-6 Bulldog senior was called for charging, erasing the basket and a possible tying three-point play.

Cade and Hunt traded baskets in the final seconds to end the scoring.

"The win is such a good rebound from the last three games (all losses) for us," Wood said. "But it was tough. I couldn't help but have a little apprehension in the closing seconds."

"We beat Borger the first time last year also but then let it (the district title) slip away. It's a big win but there are a lot of district games to go," he said.

In the other dramatic Friday night game, the Dunbar girls edged Brownfield on a bucket by Miss Henderson with three seconds showing on the clock. Miss Henderson was brought up to the varsity from the JV just prior to game time and replaced Cynthia Hardaway, who fouled out late in the game.

The Mat girls, after a close 13-10 first-quarter lead, blasted Borger to climb out of the district cellar. Cassandra Mann, with a precision 15-foot set shot, led the Mats with 16 points while Maxine Walker worked inside for 14 points.

Dunbar lost its opening district boys' game as Brownfield slipped to a 25-12 lead after the opening eight minutes and never looked back. Dirk Bush canned 31 points for the Cubs while Turon Patterson had 18 and Ralph Bryant 17 for Dunbar, in the throes of a five-game losing streak.

Indiana Beats OSU

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ray Tolbert and Isiah Thomas supplied the offensive punch and Indiana's defense held Ohio State to 26 second-half points Sunday, leading the Hoosiers to a 67-60 Big Ten basketball victory.

The victory lifted Indiana, 10-6 overall, into a tie for the conference lead with Illinois, Iowa and Purdue. All have 3-1 records.

Tolbert scored 17 points, 11 in the second half. Thomas had 12 of his 16 in the last 20 minutes as the Hoosiers rallied from a three-point halftime deficit in the nationally televised showdown.

Monterey To Host Girls' Cage Tourney

Monterey High School will play host to the Lubbock Invitational girls' basketball tournament during the holiday 1981 holiday vacation, Plainsmen coach Tim Tasker announced Sunday.

The tournament will include eight-team brackets for varsity and junior varsity squads and will be held Dec. 29-31 at the MHS gym.

Coaches interested in entering teams in either or both brackets should contact Hollis Gainey at (806) 747-2641.

District Cage Seasons Tip Off

By RICHARD DAY
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

With all but two districts playing intra-league games, action on the South Plains basketball scene has accelerated to a pace unseen on area courts since last year's state playoffs.

Teams in districts 2-3A and 7-1A have not started playing among themselves yet. They've waited to have their fun later in the season, but it's better late than never. The 2-3A league race begins Jan. 27, while the 7-1A battle for district supremacy will be tipped-off Friday evening. The 2-3A girls have gotten a head start on their male counterparts, starting district play last Friday. They weren't the only ones who started the long haul for the state tournament on January's third Friday. Districts 3-3A, 4-3A, 6-3A, 4-2A and 6-1A began intra-league play as well.

However, in districts where playing league foes has been a way of life for several weeks already — namely 5-2A, 5-1A, 8-1A and 9-1A — the teams at the top are beginning to pull away while the cellar-dwellers are sinking deeper and deeper.

With two runaway victories last week, the Morton boys (4-0) have maintained their pace with Stanton which also has a perfect league record. The Indians are newcomers to 5-2A, but are letting it be known the new kids on the block can shoot hoops with the best teams around. Stanton, always a contender, is quietly winning at a 7.50 pace.

For the 5-2A girls, Forsan is still undefeated and has at least a two-game lead on everybody.

The Nazareth Swifts and Swiftettes, both 5-0, are wasting no time in building up their 5-1A leads, but the Happy boys and Amberg girls may have something to say before it's all over.

In both 8-1A races there are a pair of teams tied for the league leadership. For the boys, Smvyr and New Home have identical 2-0 records, while the Wilson and Meadow girls own clean records in the girls' race.

The 9-1A races are fairly tight, but are led by teams with exceptional seasonal records. The Sands boys, 15-4 and 4-0 against district foes are being chased by Wellman and Klondike, both of which have dropped one league game. In the girls' race, Borden County, 19-1 overall and 4-0 in 9-1A play, also has some company at the top. Both Klondike and Sands are one game behind at 3-1.

Eagles' Young Ends Rookie Year Right

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Finishing off his rookie year in the Super Bowl has a little extra significance for Philadelphia Eagles' cornerback Royne Young, who will be playing in his home town in front of his family and friends.

"I feel real good about going back home for the game," Young said. "I can't think of a better way to end a rookie season than to win a Super Bowl. Now, I've just got to suck it up for one more week."

But Young, the Eagles' first-round draft pick last year, is keeping an inner calm about the situation.

"I can understand the jubilation that the older guys, the ones who have been here through all the bad years, feel. And I'm excited, too. But I have a job to do down there next week and I'm not going to let anything get in the way of that."

Young and his 44 teammates held their final workout in Philadelphia Saturday, braving freezing weather at snow-rimmed Veterans Stadium.

at the practice site of the New Orleans Saints for Monday.

Young, 23, fully expects to be deluged with requests for time, tickets and who knows what else from friends he didn't even know he had in his home town. He says he's ready.

"I've already told my family and my friends that I have a job to do and after it's done, then everything else follows," he said. "My family is understanding. They respect my judgment on these things."

Young learned his lesson, he said, when the Eagles came to New Orleans during the regular season to play the Saints. He was besieged with ticket requests and wound up providing 40 or 50 for his childhood friends — and almost as many headaches for himself.

This time, Young's biggest headache should be Oakland Raiders quarterback Jim Plunkett and 10-year veteran pass receiver Bob Chandler.

When Oakland played Philadelphia during the season, Plunkett threw 13 of his 36 passes into Young's coverage. He completed just two — a 29-yarder to Chandler and an 86-yard touchdown stunner to Cliff Branch.

Young was credited with six deflections. The rest of the passes were blanketed or poorly thrown.

"Royne will be the rookie, and like most smart clubs, they went after him," commented fellow cornerback Herman Edwards. "He turned it back and I think this time they'll have to balance it out more."

Young refused to speculate.

"I don't know if they'll try that again," he said. "To answer that, I'd have to be inside their coach's head, so I really can't say. All I can do is prepare and be ready in case they do try it again."

Longhorns' Johnson Declared Ineligible

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Henry Johnson, the University of Texas basketball squad's second-leading scorer and rebounder, has been declared scholastically ineligible for the last 12 games of the season.

Johnson, a 6-6 junior forward from Los Angeles, passed nine hours of classes in the fall semester — three hours short of the minimum required.

The speech communication major met with academic counselors here Saturday before leaving for Fort Worth and Texas' match with Texas Christian, where he had six points and five rebounds. TCU won the game, 66-64, and Texas' record dropped to 6-8 overall and 1-4 in conference play.

Before that game, Johnson averaged 16.4 points and 5.3 rebounds per game.

"I was trying to work something out with my grades, but things just fell through," Johnson said Saturday. "It's a sad day, having to break news like this to the coaches and the team. I feel like I've let myself down, and I team, too."

Eleven of the 12 remaining games are against Southwest Conference teams.

"Henry's not unintelligent," said coach Abe Lemons. "He's really wanted to go to complete his schoolwork."

"Really, I'm sick about this," said athletic counselor Joe Eivens. "Henry and I have been together for 3½ years. It's always been a struggle and it's never been easy, but I feel he's come a long way as a person and as a student."

Andrea Jaeger Wins Avon Tournament

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Second-seeded Andrea Jaeger continued her hex over No. 1 Martina Navratilova with a 3-6, 6-3, 7-5 victory Sunday to win the $150,000 Avon Tennis Championships of Kansas City.

The 15-year-old Jaeger broke Navratilova's service four times in the final set to defeat the native Czechoslovakian for the third time in her career and the second time in nine days. She claimed a $30,000 first prize.

Navratilova held a 4-2 lead entering the seventh game of the final set before Jaeger won four straight points to break her service. Jaeger held her service in the eighth game, then broke Navratilova again in the ninth.

Navratilova rebounded to knot the set at 5-5 in a controversial 10th game that saw Jaeger hotly contest a call by line judge Lee Jackson.

Jaeger ruled a Jaeger shot out of bounds, prompting Jaeger to throw her racket down and stretch her arms in a frustrated plea to a line judge.

"I thought it was in," said Jaeger, who followed the controversial game by breaking Navratilova's service in the 11th game.

"I'm surprised that I came back and broke her serve. Usually, when that happens, the person gets mad and loses eight straight."

Navratilova won the first two points of the final game before Jaeger came back with two of her own. Two backhand shots into the net by Navratilova put Jaeger at match point, but the game went to deuce when the teen-ager couldn't handle Navratilova's drop shot.

Jaeger gained the advantage again with a baseline shot, then locked up the match when Navratilova's crossing shot was long.

Navratilova, who had 66 unforced errors, blamed most of her problems on a poor serve.

"I didn't double-fault any. But if I don't get my first serve in, I'm in trouble," she said. "That's where I lost the match, my serve."

Navratilova, the defending champion, was a last-minute replacement for Tracy Austin, who withdrew from the tournament Monday because of a pulled hamstring. Navratilova's second-place earnings came to $15,000.

The victory made Jaeger the youngest winner on the Avon tour. Austin was 16 when she won the Avon tournament in Washington, D.C. in 1979.

Oldest West Point Grad Has Birthday

SAN ANTONIO (UPI) — The oldest living graduate of West Point, Maj. Gen. Walter E. Prosser, celebrated his 99th birthday Sunday with a visit from his World War II aide.

Prosser, who has lived in San Antonio since his retirement 35 years ago, is bedridden and planned no big celebration. But his attorney, Josh Groce, stopped by to call on the man he served with in World War II.

"I've known the general 40 or 50 years," Groce said. "He was the one who got me into the Army to be his aide."

Groce said he served under Prosser at the Signal Corps training school at Camp Crowder, Mo. It was Prosser's last assignment in a career that began before World War I.

Prosser was born in New Albany, Ind., and graduated from West Point in the class of 1905.

His first posting to San Antonio came with his commission in the Field Artillery, and he stayed in the city until 1910.

Prosser shipped out for World War I with the 350th Field Artillery Regiment, and was stationed in Brest, France. His outfit fought with the 92nd Division, ending with the Second Army's general offensive in 1918.

Prosser got in on the expanding Signal Corps early, transferring in 1920.

Star Of New Polanski Movie Surprised At U.S. Reception

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — When the Academy Award nominations for 1980 film achievements are announced Feb. 17, "Tess" and Roman Polanski will undoubtedly be included.

Yes, the same Roman Polanski who remains a fugitive from California justice in a case concerning sex with a minor. His adaptation of Thomas Hardy's "Tess of the D'Urbervilles" was released in Los Angeles in time to qualify for the awards and immediately became a leading contender.

On Feb. 13, filmgoers in 75 U.S. cities will be able to see "Tess" as it begins a national release. After being declined by most releasing companies, the film was taken on by Columbia Pictures. So far the results have been positive. Good to rave reviews from most critics (though some found it pretentious), excellent business in L.A. and New York.

The American reception to "Tess" surprises its radiant young star, Nastassia Kinski.

"When we were making the film and even afterwards, we never thought it would show in the United States," said Miss Kinski, who turns 20 on Jan. 24. "Not only because of Roman's problems here. It seemed too long and serious for American audiences."

"Nothing has been changed from the version seen in other countries. It would have been like cutting off an arm to try to shorten it. "Tess" has its own rhythm; it needs time to develop."

Miss Kinski is here for her first Hollywood movie, "One from the Heart," a musical directed by Francis Coppola. It's a modern story about Las Vegas. And Coppola insisted that she cut her shoulder-length hair to a short bob. "I feel naked," she remarked one morning at the spacious house she is renting off Coldwater Canyon.

She was born in Berlin, daughter of the noted German actor Klaus Kinski ("Nosferatu"). Her parents divorced when she was 9, and Miss Kinski has lived in Rome, Munich and Caracas — "because my mother happened to be in love with a man who lived there." She started speaking English at 14, studied in New York with Lee Strasberg, has acted in a few features and television films in Europe.

How did she win "Tess"? "I had known Roman for five years, and two years ago he started talking to me about playing "Tess." He asked me to read the book, which I loved. I never knew how serious he was about having me play the role; he never gives the impression that he really wants you.

"The crucial matter was whether I could handle the Dorset accent. He sent me to Dorset, and I lived in the country and listened to how the people talk. I also had a coach from the National Theater. At first I didn't think I could do it. My accent was bad, then it got worse, finally it started being better. The Dorset talk has a melody, and once you get the rhythm it comes easily."

Polanski substituted Normandy for the Dorset countryside, capturing a scenic beauty that has rarely been seen in films. The schedule stretched to nine months, partly because of a strike by French film workers.

"But working with Roman was easy," said Miss Kinski. "He knows exactly what he wants. Many directors know what they want, but they cannot express themselves, they can't communicate with the actors. Roman depends on what the actors contribute; at least 80 percent of what you give you prepare yourself. It's up to you to make it happen."

Miss Kinski's contract included travel to the film's openings, and she has visited 15 countries. Results have varied. The Japanese loved "Tess" ("women there can understand the inner suffering"), the more volatile Argentines and Italians were less responsive.

"The only bad reaction was in Germany, where they wrote mean articles about me and Roman," she said. "Since I left Germany, they have not been nice to me." Her home is now Paris.

Wherever she goes, Miss Kinski hears the same question: Was there a romance between her and Polanski?

Her reply: "I was in love with him when the picture started, but nothing happened. We are just good friends."

A collection of the world's rarest postage stamps would have an estimated value of half a million dollars or more, and yet the entire accumulation easily would fit in a man's wallet.
