

Criticism By Reagan Fuels Hostage Debate

Powell Says President Inconsistent

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is trying to "have things both ways" when he criticizes former President Carter for negotiating with Iran for release of the American hostages...

something that somebody has already settled for you," Powell told a reporter. But, he added, "I don't think even a new president ought to be allowed to have things both ways on a matter of such importance."

He also said several members of the incoming Reagan administration had "expressed privately their fervent hope that we would resolve the issue before we left office."

The negotiations were completed on Jan. 20, and the 52 hostages were released the same day, less than an hour after Reagan was sworn into office.

Reagan said in an interview with several publications on Monday that the United States never should have negotiated for release of the hostages.

"The first reply we made was the proper reply — there would be no negotiations until the hostages were returned. And then we violated that," Reagan said.

He also said that the United States should have issued its own demands and told the Iranians, "here's the price that we put on your keeping them."

However, in a statement on Sept. 13, Reagan seemed to be endorsing most of the negotiating demands of the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

He said the United States "can and should" agree to three of Khomeini's four demands, including releasing frozen Iranian assets, canceling all claims against Iran and pledging non-intervention in Iran's domestic affairs.

Reagan said Khomeini's fourth condition, the return of the property of the late Shah of Iran, can only be met with "due process of law."

Pledged To Observe

Reagan also said in a statement that, if elected, "I will observe the terms of the agreement." But in the Monday interview, he said the United States "got off on the wrong tack in those negotiations to begin with."

Reagan also said during the campaign that had he been president at the start of the Iranian hostage crisis, he would have given Iran 72 hours to free the hostages or suffer the consequences.

"He stands by that," the current White House press secretary, James S. Brady, told reporters Tuesday.

Christopher Unavailable

Warren M. Christopher, the deputy secretary of state under Carter who was the central figure in the negotiations for release of the hostages, was on vacation Tuesday and unavailable for comment on Reagan's statements criticizing the negotiations.

Carter was on vacation in the Virgin Islands and also not reachable for comment.

But Powell, reached in Washington, said, "Those comments are a little bit surprising. I think, to most of us involved in the efforts to free the hostages."

"So far as I'm aware, in the many hours of briefings provided to the president-elect and to his subordinates, never did any of them suggest that their preference was for us to halt the negotiations and allow them to settle the crisis when

REUNION — Five-year-old Chase Deadman of Garland is obviously happy to have his Shetland pony Apple home again. Apple and eight horses stolen around the Garland area were recovered Sunday and Monday by investigators with the Texas South-west Cattle Raisers Association. (AP Laserphoto)

Nine Stolen Horses Traced, Retrieved

GARLAND (AP) — Apple and his eight hooved friends are home, but authorities still are looking for those who stole the horses from their stables in a two-week period.

"We got back all nine horses and all the tack. It is one of the few happy endings we've had, but this one's a happy ending. It is absolutely great," said Lemuel Langley, owner of the Circle L Corral where Apple lives.

The Circle L lost Apple, his saddle and another horse. Seven other horses were stolen over a two-week period from stables in Garland and nearby Rowlett.

Langley and the Texas Southwest Cattle Raisers Association traced the horses to two East Texas auctions, then officers retrieved them from their new owners in "four of five locations in Clarksville," he said.

Apple's owner, 5-year-old Chase Deadman, waited all afternoon Monday for the return of his beloved Shetland pony.

"I just wanted him back and he's back," the boy said as he sat on the pony and hugged him.

"Apple's lost a little weight, but he could stand to lose a little weight. They took care of him," said Vicki Deadman, the boy's mother.

Apple had a surprise in store when he returned to his barn — a roommate. An Irving man had read of the boy's loss and gave him another Shetland pony.

Chase said he didn't foresee any problems with having two ponies, however. "I'll ride both of them," he said.

Soviets Say U.S. Claim Of Terrorism Backfired

MOSCOW (AP) — U.S. charges that the Soviet Union promotes international terrorism have backfired on Washington, a Soviet commentator said Tuesday.

"They tried to throw a stone at us, but they threw a boomerang," commentator Henryk Borovik declared on Soviet television's main evening news program.

Citing alleged CIA involvement in political assassination plots, Borovik declared, "It would be advisable for the American propagandists not to use the word (terrorism) in their home. The anti-Soviets miscalculated."

The strong commentary maintained Moscow's angry reaction to Secretary of State Alexander Haig's charge last week that the Soviets promote international terrorism, in part by supporting left-wing guerrilla groups in developing countries.

Replying with a barrage of accusations against Washington, the Soviets defended their support of "national liberation movements" against U.S.-backed "reactionary governments," and accused the CIA of plotting political killings in the 1960s and 1970s.

"Terrorism is being used by the United States not only as a means of direct murder but as a means of provocation," said Borovik, of the Novosti news agency. He added:

"Let's remember first the case of the assassination of (President John F.) Kennedy, that there was an attempt to blame Cuba. And when the so-called Red Brigades appeared in Italy, we already knew that the red color attached to them was not in vain: a provocation was being prepared."

Charges Repeated

Borovik repeated previous Soviet charges that U.S. agencies were behind the killings of Congolese leader Patrice Lumumba in 1961, American civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr. in 1968 and Chile's Marxist President Salvador Allende in 1973.

The CIA organized "many unsuccessful attempts" against Cuban President Fidel Castro and "directly assists" terrorism by the "fascist junta" of El Salvador, Borovik said.

He claimed the CIA "financed and supported" terrorism by Italian fascists, but made no mention of the 1978 kidnapping and killing of former Italian Premier Aldo Moro by Red Brigades terrorists.

The Soviet news agency Tass filed a dispatch Sunday claiming that the CIA assassinated Moro because he had become "undesirable to Washington."

Italian President Sandro Pertini enraged the Soviets two weeks ago by hinting at Kremlin ties to the Red Brigades. Tass also unleashed another attack Tuesday on the CIA, calling it the "main headquarters" of international terrorism and "foul operations."

"The CIA tramples under foot the centuries-old standards of relations between states, undermines the normal diplomatic activity of states and their official representatives, sends spies and saboteurs into public and trade union organizations, and into press media for destabilizing the internal situation in other countries and for staging coups," Tass asserted.

Meanwhile, the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia charged on Tuesday that the Voice of America and Radio Free Europe were broadcasting "coded instructions" to anti-socialist forces in Poland. The VOA denied the charge. Attacking Western radio coverage of the Polish crisis, the newspaper claimed that the stations have instigated unrest against the Warsaw government.

"Recently, Radio Free Europe began to devote more than 40 percent of its broadcasts to programs about Poland," Izvestia said. "Not infrequently there are direct appeals to end socialism in Polish soil."

Besides such "open appeals," the newspaper added, "Radio Free Europe also transmits coded instructions. The

25 Years Assessed For Rape Attempt

By KIM COBB Avalanche-Journal Staff

CARLOS Aguirre was sentenced to 25 years imprisonment Tuesday for the July 5, 1980, attempted rape of a young Slaton woman — but it took three trials to reach what prosecutors hope is the end of the line for Aguirre's unusual case.

The 26-year-old man already has faced trial twice on the same first-degree felony charge of burglary of a habitation with intent to commit rape. His first trial resulted in a deadlocked jury and the 40-year sentence handed down by a second jury was overturned when the defense attorney produced evidence that jurors had discussed possible parole in computing his sentence.

Jurors in Judge John McFall's 237th District Court deliberated about 25 minutes Tuesday before finding Aguirre guilty of breaking into the woman's house and attempting to rape her. The defendant elected to receive punishment from the judge, who handed down the 25-year sentence just minutes after the jury's guilty verdict.

Before this week's court proceedings, Aguirre turned down an offer by the Criminal District Attorney's office which would have allowed the defendant to plead guilty and accept a 15-year prison term rather than face a third trial.

The victim reportedly was reluctant to testify against her assailant again in what was her fourth trip to the witness stand. She had testified against Aguirre in a pre-trial bond reduction hearing as well as his three trials.

Prosecutor Marvin Williams, who squared off against defense attorney Paul Berlanga in all three courtroom battles, argued Tuesday afternoon that the only real issue was whether Aguirre was the man who attacked the Slaton woman. He instructed the panel that there was no question of consent because "when she saw someone coming in the front door, she went for her shotgun."

Aguirre wrestled the gun from her and threw her to the floor before sitting on top of her with the words, "I'm going to make love to you," Williams told the jury.

"I submit to you that a very strong evidence of what his intentions were on entering that building," Williams added.

Not only did the victim identify Aguirre as her attacker, Williams argued, but so did two Slaton police officers who had stopped at the woman's house to investigate the screams they heard while on routine patrol in the neighborhood.

Berlanga countered that the only face-to-face contact the victim had with her attacker was at the front door. The man who tried to rape her, he argued, threw her face-down on the floor and flipped off the light.

He also asked jurors to consider why

Bail Bondsmen Protest Keesee's New Policies

By MARY ALICE ROBBINS Avalanche-Journal Staff

ANYONE WHO lands in the Lubbock County jail after normal business hours on weekdays can expect to remain there for at least several hours.

And if an individual is arrested during a weekend, his stay behind bars could last for several days.

Recent changes in the policy for setting temporary bonds in felony cases and the establishment of a more rigid schedule at the jail have made it increasingly difficult for inmates to obtain prompt release.

Those rule changes, which went into effect early last month, have become a growing concern for local bail bondsmen, about half a dozen of whom staged an impromptu meeting in Sheriff D.L. "Sonny" Keesee's office Tuesday to discuss the situation.

Under state law, a sheriff has the authority to set temporary bonds in felony cases. But Keesee said he doesn't plan to exercise that authority too freely.

"The only way I'll let anyone out of jail now is if the district attorney's office recommends a temporary bond," Keesee said.

In the past, the sheriff said, burglary suspects have been arrested by Lubbock police officers and booked at the county jail. Before police detectives could reach the jail to question the suspects about other local burglaries, the individuals have been released on temporary bonds, he said.

"I just don't believe a man who's charged with a felony needs to be running around on the streets before he has gone before a magistrate," Keesee said.

"Not Flexible Enough" But the bondsmen argue that Keesee's policies have not been flexible enough. More consideration should be given regarding the type of offense an individual has been arrested for, they said.

"We don't want convicted felons out anymore than anybody else does," said Houston Trammel, a co-owner of Lubbock Bail Bonds.

But Trammel said his main concern is for youths arrested on a first offense, individuals who land in jail because of family arguments and motorists facing felony charges for driving while intoxicated.

Trammel said he sees no need for individuals arrested for lesser felony violations to have to spend a weekend in the county jail.

Job Needs Cited

Holding a person in jail past the time he normally should report for work also can cause him to lose his job, Trammel said.

District Attorney John Montford said he objects to the practice of setting temporary bonds. "But I also fear the situation where someone can languish there (in jail) without charges being filed," he noted.

The only real problems occur on the weekends, Montford said, when his office is closed. If a case involves a first-degree felony, the staff will come in on a weekend to handle the filing of charges, he said.

Montford said his office also responds, even on weekends, if an attorney calls regarding a temporary bond for a client. But he emphasized that the office could not run around the clock.

And Montford added he is not inclined to question the sheriff's procedures. Managing the bail bond situation is the sheriff's responsibility, he said.

But bondsmen are hopeful they can convince Keesee to make some changes in the temporary bonding policy. They also would like to see more flexibility in

D.A. Seeks Water Panel Vote Study

CRIMINAL District Attorney John Montford's office is looking into possible voting irregularities in last month's water board election based on Lubbock County Tax Assessor-Collector Frank Stuart's report that 22 unregistered voters may have cast ballots in the race.

Montford filed a motion in 99th District Court Tuesday asking the court to impound all election records from the Jan. 17 Lubbock County Water Control Improvement District No. 1 race. He said the motion was filed on behalf of his office after an examination of Stuart's report and has nothing to do with a defeated water board candidate's plans to contest the election.

Lubbock pharmacist Dale Miller, a three-year veteran of the board, has indicated he may file suit to contest the results of the election. An official canvass of votes Monday in that election showed Miller lost the race by 18 votes to firefighter George Whitworth.

Miller charged Monday that 22 of the persons who voted absentee in the election were not qualified voters. He indicated earlier that the number of unregistered voters — if proven — were enough to hand him the election.

Montford has asked the court to impound all records surrounding the election, including records kept by the county clerk, district clerk and all election officials. The prosecutor's petition asks that the records — including ballot boxes, poll lists, returns and keys to the boxes — be put into the custody of the court pending further action.

The water control district board sets policy for Buffalo Springs Lake. A high percentage of the voters that board candidate Miller is contesting are lake em-

Court Ruling May Block Curbs On X-Rated Films

By MARC FLAKE Avalanche-Journal Staff

AN EXISTING city ordinance prohibiting the showing of X-rated motion pictures which are visible from public streets may not be specific enough to comply with First Amendment guidelines, city attorney John Ross said Tuesday.

A 1975 Supreme Court ruling on a similar case in Jacksonville, Fla., may have invalidated Lubbock's ordinance, according to Ross, who checked into the laws after being contacted by a local citizen's group complaining about films shown at Circle Drive-In Theater.

Sam Durden, organizer of Citizens Against Pornography, told The Avalanche-Journal that officials had promised to get together with the police department and district attorney's office and develop a liaison to monitor what the two agencies were doing about the group's demand that the 58th Street and Avenue Q theater stop showing the films.

But Ross said Tuesday afternoon there may be little that city officials can do concerning the complaints.

In the Florida case, which involved a drive-in theater with a screen visible from two city streets, Ross noted the Supreme Court struck down a city ordinance similar to Lubbock's because it wasn't specific enough to safeguard First Amendment rights.

Lubbock's ordinance says it is unlawful "to permit any motion picture film, slide or exhibit rated X to be visible from any public street or highway."

Supreme Court rulings, he added, traditionally demand that the entire content of the film must be taken into consideration.

Criminal District Attorney John Montford also noted the legal limitations his office faces, and said the group shouldn't be looking for any "sweeping shut-downs" because his office must consider each film individually.

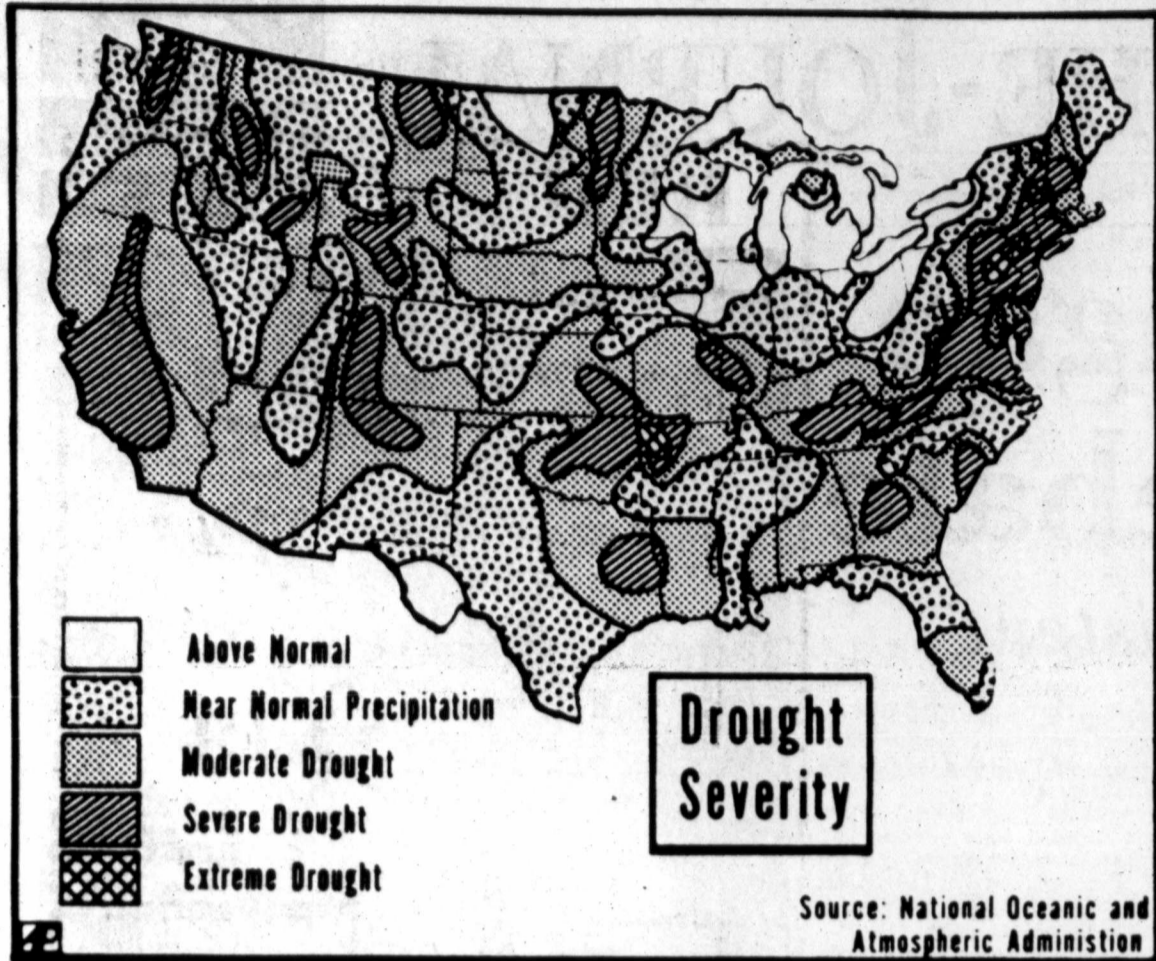

But the relationship between the Lubbock and Jacksonville, Fla., cases doesn't stop with the supreme court ruling. Durden was a vice squad officer in Jacksonville and was serving in the sheriff's office when the high court decision was handed down, according to records at that city's newspaper, the Jacksonville Times-Union.

Durden said he moved from Florida in August 1980 and could not recall the specifics of the case against the drive-in theater there. He said he left Jacksonville to attend the Sunset School of Preaching in Lubbock.

He said he moved from another Lub-

Snowstorms In East, Midwest Inconvenient, Not Beneficial

By The Associated Press
A blinding Great Lakes snowstorm buried parts of Pennsylvania and New York in knee-deep snow Tuesday and squall winds built 5-foot drifts that brought traffic to a halt.

But more serious, in the long run, was the news that this week's snow and rain provided only a "drop in the bucket" toward replenishing dangerously low water reservoirs in the cities of the Northeast and bringing relief to the dusty farmlands of the Midwest.

And in central Florida, where the month of January was the coldest in 150 years, power companies were besieged with calls from irate customers whose electric bills had doubled or tripled.

Tuesday's storm, driven by squall winds, dumped up to 2 feet of snow along the Lake Erie shore, paralyzing the industrial city of Erie and causing a 15-mile-long jam of tractor-trailers along Interstate 90.

"You had to be there to believe it," said Eugene Giza, superintendent of Presque Isle State Park near Erie. "It was what is known as a whiteout."

Dave Bell of the National Weather Service in Erie said the storm "tied the place up pretty good." He said 16 inches of snow fell at Erie International Airport and up to 24 inches was reported in the eastern part of the county.

Parts of New York state bordering Lake Erie also got about 16 inches.

Four brothers ice fishing on Lake Erie were stranded overnight in the blowing snow. They burned everything they had, including their fishing rods, in an effort to keep warm. They found their way safely to shore Tuesday morning after spotting flares fired by a Coast Guard search party.

State police Sgt. Domenic Demarinis said I-90 near the New York state line was closed with up to 100 tractor-trailer rigs unable to move along a 15-mile stretch of the highway.

"The major problem is jackknifed trucks," he said.

About 100 interstate travelers spent part of the night at a Red Cross emergency shelter at the Heard Memorial School in North East.

In Erie, a city of 126,000 people, Mayor Louis Tullio asked private citizens with snow plows to help city crews clear the streets. All public and parochial schools in the city were closed, as were some businesses and industries.

"There's a lot of drifting, especially on the secondary roads," Bell said. "Drifts are running around 3 to 5 feet on the north-south roads."

Snow over the weekend did little to break the drought in the breadbasket of Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Illinois and Missouri, where it has been one of the warmest and driest winters on record and farmers are hurting.

Climateologist Paul Waite of the Iowa Department of Agriculture said Tuesday that while 2 to 6 inches of snow fell across most of his state, it amounts to less than half an inch of moisture.

"It's what they call a drop in the bucket," Waite said. "It'll take a soaking rain."

In Nebraska, Charles Strasia of Mullen, an agricultural extension agent for four counties, said, "We're damn glad to get it to settle the dust."

A rainstorm Monday brought as much as 2½ inches to the Adirondacks in New York, but only a trace of rain in parts of drought-stricken Connecticut. Greenwich, Conn., which had only a 19-day supply of water on Monday, had 25 days worth on Tuesday, thanks to the rain.

In New York, where mandatory water conservation measures have been imposed, John Cunningham of the Department of Environmental Protection said the city's reservoirs were 27.3 percent full before the storm, or about 400 billion gallons below capacity. He estimated that the new rain would provide about 44 billion gallons or about 11 percent of the shortfall.

DISARMAMENT URGED
GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Sweden called on the Reagan administration Tuesday to drop objections to the SALT II arms limitation treaty with the Soviet Union, saying the alternative would be a "futile" stepped-up arms race between the superpowers. Without mentioning the United States by name, Swedish delegate Inga Thorsson told the 40-nation Geneva disarmament conference, opening a 12-week round of talks, that "strong voices" favored shelving eight years of arms limitation talks "in another vain attempt at achieving that... impossible nuclear superiority."

WEATHER FORECAST — The National Weather Service forecast for today predicts rain in most of Texas (AP Laserphoto)

Temperatures To Be Cooler Over Area

Slightly cooler temperatures are expected today and Thursday for the Lubbock area, according to the National Weather Service.

On Tuesday afternoon, temperatures peaked in the low to mid 50s, but today's high is expected to reach only the mid 40s, with a high Thursday expected in the upper 40s. Tonight's low should dip into the mid 20s, according to forecasters.

Tuesday skies were fair to partly cloudy over Lubbock, and the weather service expects partly cloudy skies today and Thursday. South and southeasterly winds in the 5 to 10 mph range are expected to continue today.

Cloudy skies will dominate southern portions of Texas today, with a chance of rain possible. Elsewhere in the state, partly cloudy skies will prevail.

The long-range forecast through Feb. 13 calls for near normal temperatures and no precipitation for West Texas.

MX System Mining Impact Studied

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A report released Tuesday on the basing of the MX intercontinental ballistic missile system in Utah and Nevada said construction of the new system could seriously impair mining operations and development of oil and gas resources in those areas.

The preliminary study for the Air Force by Furgo National, Inc., an engineering and geological firm, said the region where the MX is to be deployed is "a part of one of the premier active exploration areas in the United States."

The MX system, for which $2.4 billion has been budgeted for fiscal 1982, is designed to replace ICBMs confined to hardened silos to make it more difficult for them to be targeted. Up to 200 missiles are to be placed in 4,600 hide-and-seek shelters under Utah and Nevada.

The estimated total cost of the program is at least $34 billion, with deployment to be completed before the end of the decade.

The report covers 29 of the 36 potential areas in which the Air Force seeks to deploy the MX in the Great Basin area.

Donovan Approved As Labor Secretary

FOR YOUR WANT ADS CALL 762-8821

WASHINGTON (AP) — Raymond J. Donovan was approved as labor secretary by the Senate on Tuesday, overcoming persistent, unverified allegations of ties to organized crime.

The vote was 80-17 to confirm Donovan's nomination. He was the last member of President Reagan's Cabinet to win approval.

All the "no" votes were cast by Democrats concerned about the alleged links between Donovan and labor racketeers, despite Donovan's own denials and the FBI's failure to corroborate a single charge.

Republicans countered that fairness required a vote to confirm Donovan, especially since an extensive FBI investigation turned up nothing.

Donovan, a 50-year-old New Jersey construction executive who served as a campaign fund-raiser for Reagan, initially indicated he expected to be sworn in formally later Tuesday at the White House. But a spokesman at the White House said the ceremony would probably be held on Wednesday.

"I have a large responsibility to the president and the American people," he told reporters. "I now intend to get on with that job and to meet that responsibility."

Asked if he had any hard feelings because his confirmation was delayed after other Cabinet officers were confirmed, he replied:

"Not really. I think the problems of the country are so great that I have to put personal feelings behind me."

"I'm not a grudge carrier," he said later in a news conference on the steps of the Capitol.

Donovan watched much of the Senate's debate from the spectators' gallery.

Several sources have alleged that both Donovan and his construction company have ties to labor racketeers and organized crime figures. The nomination was held up for more than two weeks for an FBI investigation, which failed to provide confirmation of any of the charges.

Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, Donovan's chief defender, told the Senate that the nominee deserved confirmation after "the most thorough and exhaustive background investigation ever conducted by the FBI on a Cabinet nominee."

Hatch, chairman of the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee, went through the charges against Donovan one by one, each time offering the response that Donovan provided as well as results of the FBI investigation.

Of Donovan's chief accuser, government-protected witness Ralph Picardo, Hatch said. "Mr. Picardo has lived a life of crime. He is the first person to admit it."

Sen. John East, R-N.C., said that voting against Donovan on the basis of allegations from convicted criminals amounted to "giving a veto power to the underworld on any potential nominee that comes before the Senate."

But Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, the first Democrat to speak during the debate, said he would vote against the nomination.

"I believe that the record fails to show that the nominee possesses the degree of independence and sensitivity essential..." said Kennedy, who added that even viewing the material "in the most favorable light for Mr. Donovan," he would vote against confirmation.

He cited as one reason Donovan's testimony that he was not told when a top employee of his firm, Schiavone Construction Co., was subpoenaed before a grand jury investigating alleged labor extortion.

"Surely, even if we fully credit Mr. Donovan's testimony, we must believe that a responsible construction firm concerned about its integrity would be managed so that grand jury appearances of high-level employees are reported immediately to the chief officer of the firm with responsibility in the relevant area," Kennedy said.

Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., said he was prepared to vote against the nomination because of the range of allegations, "all of which in the aggregate cause me to oppose" Donovan.

Eagleton also said he found it "difficult to believe Mr. Donovan's testimony..." involving the grand jury subpoena.

"I doubt whether the Senate would confirm him if the president had nominated him to be attorney general," he said.

Panel To Propose Japanese Car Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the Senate Finance Committee's international trade subcommittee and the panel's ranking Democrat said Tuesday they will propose legislation to place a three-year restriction on importing Japanese-made automobiles.

Sens. Jack Danforth, R-Mo., and Lloyd Bensten, D-Texas, said their bill will be introduced Thursday. They said it would limit Japanese imports to 1.6 million cars a year, the average number of imports for 1978 and 1979. The limit would begin this year and continue through 1982.

The Japanese exported 1.9 million cars to the United States last year, according to the senators.

Danforth said the measure is necessary to the U.S. auto industry "to give them breathing room to retool" for production of more fuel-efficient cars.

FALL MOUNTAIN TO CLIMB

Now, The Real Job Begins

THE EUPHORIA of President Reagan's first week in office has now been replaced by some of the hard facts of life in the White House.

As we noted earlier, no President could have asked for a more perfect "script" under which to have taken the oath of one of the most powerful jobs in the world. The return of the hostages, the drama and color of the change in Washington itself, all combined to lend something of an unreal fantasy-like aura to it all.

But, now, it's back to business. Mr. Reagan and Congress face some hard choices in the days ahead on everything from inflation to a tough policy with Russia.

THURSDAY, THE President goes before the nation to give his first overall assessment of what his administration thinks can be done on the domestic front.

Those "in the know" have counseled the American people not to expect some dramatic or instant cure for what ails us. "We didn't get in this situation overnight and we won't get out of it overnight," White House Chief of Staff James Baker said this week.

Administration officials have also been emphasizing their belief that things are much worse than at first thought on the home front, or at least more so than during the waning days of the campaign. It holds then, they argue, that "fixing" things will necessitate more time and patience.

Indications are that Mr. Reagan and his advisers plan to go ahead with some sort of major tax cut, for both individuals and business. The odds are it will be less than the widely heralded 10 percent per year for three years and won't be retroactive.

AT THE SAME time the tax-cutters are pushing for doing something soon, a rising tide of opinion has been counseling the new President to link any tax slash with a cut in federal spending.

Paul Volcker, head of the all-powerful Fed, says a tax cut without a corresponding cutback in spending will be highly inflationary and make it impossible to balance the budget.

Others on both sides of the political spectrum, also argue that once a tax cut is granted, Congress will be reluctant to bite the spending bullet.

THE ECONOMIC mountain is yet to be climbed. But on foreign policy, Mr. Reagan has made himself clear.

In brief, it is that he intends to restore U.S. stature abroad, that Soviet Russia can't have it both ways—and must answer for its actions—and that terrorism will not be tolerated by America.

Thus far, Mr. Reagan has gotten off to a bright start. But, as they say in any number of endeavors, it's the "follow-up" that counts.

CHUN NOT SHUNNED

Look Who Came To Dinner

THE VISIT of His Excellency Chun Doo Hwan, president of South Korea, was one of the more carefully orchestrated state visits since the grand tours of Nikita Khrushchev and Charles de Gaulle two decades back.

For understandable reasons, of course. Whether they are also good reasons may be another matter.

The U.S. has not had particularly good luck with South Korea, the half-country protegee it acquired almost by accident at the close of WW II when a handful of troops were rushed in to claim the south while the Soviets were moving down in force from the north.

Chun emerged as a formidable power after the late 1979 assassination of strongman Park Chung Hee. He curbed political activity, closed universities, banned strikes and demonstrations, dictated his own new constitution, jailed its opposition and sentenced its leading figure, Kim Dae Jung, to death.

THIS DID NOT endear Chun to the rights-minded Carter administration, and relations between Seoul and Washington rapidly progressed from cool to frigid.

Chun has since taken over as interim president pending elections under his new constitution to begin Feb. 11 with voting for a 5,000 electoral college that on Feb. 25 will name a president for a seven-year term.

And guess who that will be? Chun's rush to Washington is an exception to customary post-inaugural guest protocol that gives precedence to the oldest and closest allies—the West Europeans.

But that is no accident.

Immediately after the Reagan White House extended the invitation, Chun commuted Kim Dae Jung's death sentence, which the President-elect had criticized publicly and on which he is reported to have coordinated tactics with the outgoing administration.

BUT THERE IS more than that simple quid pro quo to the matter.

The new White House and State Department have advertised their intentions to refurbish the U.S. image as a potent, dependable ally of strategically situated nations. South Korea is that in East Asia.

More than that, a renewed U.S.-South Korean connection signals a distancing from the human-rights policies of its predecessor.

And who knows? Word around Washington has it that less public pressure may even induce greater accommodation from South Korea on that very issue.

And with luck, it just might.

ART BUCHWALD:

Laid-Back Look Looks Good, After A Fashion

WASHINGTON—You can say what you will about the Reagan administration, but you can't deny it has turned Washington into the fashion capital of the world.

All it took was a rich First Lady from California, and her richer California friends and suddenly this dusty peanut-farming, Amaretto-drinking town turned into a land of lynx and sable.

The new California laid-back look has affected everyone.

I went to buy a hot pretzel the other day from my favorite stand on K Street when I noticed that Mary had a new look.

Her frayed sweater had been patched all over with ultra-suede, her muffler was thrown back across her shoulder, her wool Redskin hat was perched on top of her head like a pillbox, and she was wearing white gloves as she made change.

MARY: I SAID you look absolutely smashing in that outfit!

Bill Bliss designed it for me, she said.

May I have a pretzel please? I asked.

She handed me one wrapped in a page from last month's Vogue magazine and accepted my 50 cents. "Don't get me wrong, I don't have anything against Adolfo. As a matter of fact, I'll probably change into one of his suits when I move my cart over to Lafayette Park later this afternoon."

"I didn't know you were into fashion, Mary."

"We all are," she replied. "Thank heavens we have somebody to set a standard in the White House. Let's hope the sidewalks of Washington will no longer be filled with uncombed hairdos, messy gold chains and raggedy jeans."

PEOPLE DO look a lot more pulled together since the Reagans moved into Washington, I said, as I ate my pretzel.

Oscar de la Renta is supposed to stop by and show me some fabric for a coat I'm having designed for when I sell pretzels outside the F Street Club.

"I like Oscar's things," I said.

Myra says she prefers Jimmy Galanos, but I don't think he's right for pretzels.

"What does Myra sell?"

"Carnations at 18th and Pennsylvania Avenue. She found her first Galanos gown at Goodwill Industries, and she's been loyal to him ever since."

"Isn't keeping up with the Reagans going to be quite expensive?" I asked her.

I'LL PROBABLY be criticized by some of the other pushcart dealers, but I think when you have money you should spend it any way you want to. It's been a long time since we women have been permitted to dress up, and I'm going to make the most of it.

"I don't blame you," I said. "I notice you're wearing a skirt. You always used to wear pants."

"Pants are out," Mary said. "Particularly at lunch time. If Women's Wear Daily took a picture of me in pants, I'd never hear the end of it. The important thing is for clothes to match. Ruffles are replacing sequins. That's why my sweater is so ruffled."

Who designed the Redskin wool hat for you?"

"Yves St. Laurent. He said he wanted me to have something that was not glitzy or show-off, and it's perfect if you miss your hairdresser's appointment."

I DECIDED to have another pretzel.

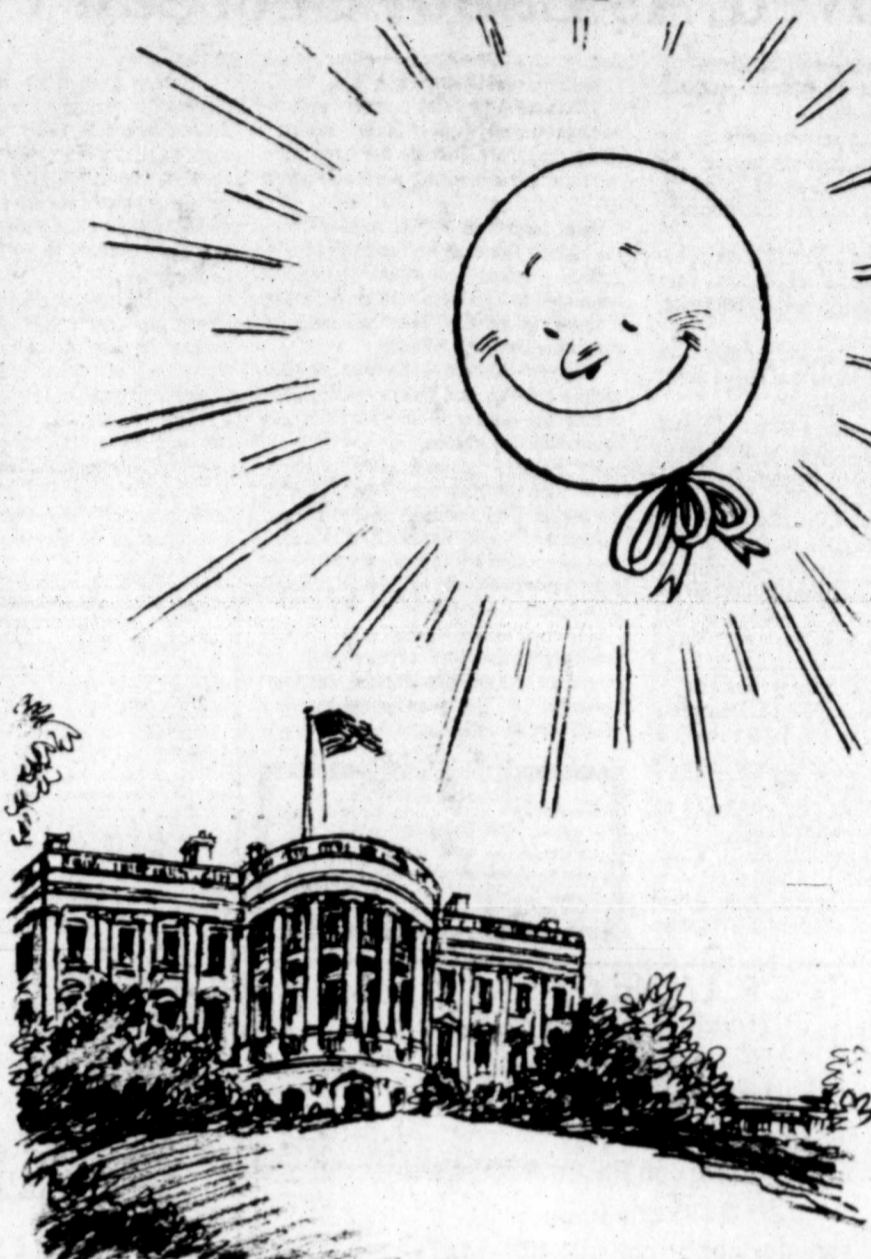

"I don't want to be critical," I said, "but I notice you're still wearing crepe-soled boots."

"That was Halston's idea. He said it was the best way of showing the Californians that we in the East have a laid-back look too."

"He's right," I said. "There's no reason for the Californians to shove Gucci shoes down our throats."

A man came by with his hairbrush. Mary introduced him to me as Julius, her hairdresser. "He always comes by right after the lunch hour to give me a comb-out. If it weren't for darling Julius, I don't know when I'd find the time to sell pretzels."

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

Libs Playing Dirty

WASHINGTON—Trying to repeal the 1980 election and preserve Jimmy Carter's human rights policies, liberal Democratic congressmen are plotting to keep control of the House foreign affairs African subcommittee and retain as a symbol of the past a staffer named Steven R. Weissman.

Weissman's 1978 attack on Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) undercover work in Zaire was reprinted in the book "Dirty Work 2, the CIA in Africa."

It was published in 1979 with an introduction by Philip Agee, the renegade ex-CIA official now living in exile in West Germany to avoid U.S. investigators.

Weissman was hired two years ago by Rep. Stephen J. Solarz of New York who is about to step down as chairman of the African subcommittee. Solarz then did not know Weissman had contributed to "Dirty Work 2," described in an introduction by Agee as an attempt to expose and analyze clandestine operations by the CIA in Africa.

Weissman told us he himself was unaware that "Dirty Work 2" would include an introduction by Agee and an appendix listing the names of 385 undercover CIA operatives in Africa.

Solarz is giving up his African chairmanship for what he thinks will be the more lively Asian affairs panel. The powerplay of liberals vs. moderates in the committee's Democratic ranks revolves around Solarz' push for Rep. Howard Wolpe of Michigan, a liberal scholar on African affairs who is backed by the Congressional Black Caucus.

ANDREW TULLY:

Cats Not Purrfect

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Andrew Tully is on vacation. During his absence, we are running some of his readers' favorite columns.)

WASHINGTON—Cats are getting altogether too much publicity these days since somebody found out that President Ford, an otherwise rather sensible person, is fond of the creatures.

Cats are no good. They are just little lions and tigers and would eat their owners up if they weren't so lazy and didn't prefer their meat served on a silver platter.

Cats are fussy about what they eat, too. They will dine only on cat food they have been assured by television is much tastier and more nourishing than the stuff human beings ingest.

CATS ARE deadbeats. They don't do anything but loiter about on silken beds reading French novels and nibbling on costly bonbons. In any home containing a cat, it is the cat which decided where everybody will sit. The cat takes over the most comfortable chair or sofa in the house, and devils take the hindmost.

Cats are the most egotistical of pets. They demand the best at all times, accepting it as their due. They really don't love any human beings, but occasionally will fake a show of affection when their owner, or slave, fawns on them.

Dogs, on the other hand, love their masters and mistresses—period. You can always expect a loving, or friendly, wag of a tail when you come home to your dog.

A dog doesn't care how important you are. He loves you even if you're only a newspaper columnist. Dogs love masters who are used car salesmen. Dogs love even multi-millionaires.

CATS ARE status-conscious. They are happiest when owned by rich and empty-headed grass widows who call them "precious baby" and "pussykins" and "Momma's little snookums."

A cat I know is constantly badgering his owner to abandon his veterinary practice and run for governor. Said cat also sneers at his master's ties and his mistress's taste in lingerie.

Dogs agree with human beings. Cats are argumentative—born dissenters. A dog would never think of criticizing President Ford when he comes home after a hard day in the Oval Office.

But I have it on good authority, to wit, a cat that owns a top-level White House staffer, that both Ford cats give him a rough time on occasion.

AFTER FORD'S pardon of Nixon, for example, one of his cats gave him a nasty look and told the President: "You sure pulled a clinker on that one." The cat reportedly also told Ford that he didn't "know beans about economics," and took a dim view of the President's amnesty policy.

God knows a President's life is tough enough without having cats around who are always sounding off like John Kenneth Galbraith.

A dog would take Ford on a nice leisurely walk, occasionally stopping to nuzzle a Presidential leg. You can't walk with a cat. As for national security, which includes protecting Presidents, whoever heard of a watchcat?

JAY HARRIS:

The Tech Image...

WHAT ONE thinks of oneself often has a lot to do with what others think.

The same can be said of an institution of higher learning, a city, a nation.

The other day as we talked with Dr. Lauro Cavazos, president of Texas Tech, this point came up. Asked what, after several months on the job, he considered Tech's biggest weakness, Dr. Cavazos said he had been asked the same question in an area city recently. The answer, Dr. Cavazos says, is "Tech's self image..."

The man who graduated here when Texas Tech and the "Double T" was gung-ho on image, says far too many people, both on and off campus, still think of the University as more or less a small West Texas school rather than the sophisticated and many faceted institution it has become.

"IT JUST isn't so, of course," Dr. Cavazos says. "And we need to do something about it..."

Doing something about things is one of the new Tech president's main fortes. And he is lacking this one with a dash of that old-time "gung-ho."

Almost from the moment he landed from Tufts University, Dr. Cavazos has been out "selling" Texas Tech. He has covered the state, speaking to ex-students, civic clubs, business leaders, legislators, student organizations, athletes, you name it. In between, he has been putting things together on campus.

The theme is simple and direct. Texas Tech University is a very good University in every sense of the word. It offers academic studies in almost any field of endeavor one can name, from its world-renowned Agriculture and Engineering schools to its Law School and Health Science Center Complex.

ITS STUDENT body, more than 23,000 for the Fall semester, its faculty and staff rank with any in this part of the nation.

And most important, its graduates long have made a name for themselves in almost every facet of the nation's educational, business, industrial, political, military and civic life.

As a result, Texas Tech, in its slightly more than half century of growing up, young by most standards in education, has made its mark.

Among its Exes, Tech can count governors, lieutenant governors, other state officials, numerous legislators at both the state and national levels, key men in positions of power in domestic and internationally known companies, and literally thousands of successful business men and women around the globe.

And that roll includes ministers, social workers, soldiers, scientists, farmers, newsmen, writers, entertainers, housewives and people of almost every race, color and creed from almost every part of the earth. Many of them excel and hold or have held key positions in their chosen professions.

TODAY, TEXAS Tech no longer is a school whose one proud boast was that its campus "is one of the largest in the nation..."

Today, Texas Tech University truly is a University which can boast it offers subjects ranging from range management to solar studies to one of the most advanced neo-natal units in the nation.

Today, Texas Tech University is a University which justifiably can take pride in the fact its students long have shown that they "came to learn" and for the most part left as not just automatons, versed in a specialized field alone, but as "total citizens."

In an age where the unorthodox and far-out have marked and marred the images of some of the nation's most prestigious schools, Texas Tech can boast that it has sought change and progress through more civilized channels.

We seriously question that anyone, or the school, has suffered any damage to his freedom of expression or psyche as a result. In fact, having met some of those from the citadels of free-wheeling education and expression—translated protests or "doing one's thing"—we would go to hell and back with the Tech grad any day!

ALL OF WHICH brings us back to the business at hand, Tech's "self image..."

That image needs polishing, despite the kudos we have just laid on, and notwithstanding that not only Dr. Cavazos, but hundreds of Tech supporters, students and faculty members do speak out.

Part of the problem, in recent years, has been an intensification of a Town-Gown rivalry, brought on unfortunately by those who failed to understand the great love affair Lubbock and area residents have for Texas Tech. We believe that is now past.

Both those who support Texas Tech, and certainly those who toil there, owe it to the school to give it their best. There is no substitute for loyalty.

SO WHAT do we do about Tech's "self image?"

Well, the first thing is for the city and area to get behind Dr. Cavazos in his role of chief drum-beater. Go out and talk up Texas Tech, to potential students, to legislators, to the Governor, to people with funds—in wills, endowments, trusts—who want to make an investment in America's future.

We have previously noted that those who back the University of Texas and Texas A&M are not reluctant when it comes to constructive—we emphasize that word—criticism. But, they also are more unstinting in "going the extra mile" in fighting at every level, from student enrollment to moral and financial support, for "their" schools.

Texas Tech has one of the best student bodies and some of the hardest-working faculty members to be found anywhere. Its physical plant ranks among the best in the nation. Its brief, yet meretricious, past has been little short of amazing. It got that way by thinking well of itself. Texas Tech's "self image" is still its No. 1 priority...

Fatal Crash Ruled Negligent Homicide

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Nineteen-year-old Eddie Guerra was guilty of negligent homicide when he ran a red light and collided with a car driven by Fern Richardson Kirby, a Lubbock jury found Tuesday after examining the circumstances of the woman's death.

The 137th District Court jury did not convict Guerra of involuntary manslaughter as he was originally charged, choosing instead to find him guilty of the lesser included offense. The original charge is a third-degree felony, while the reduced charge of criminally negligent homicide is a Class A misdemeanor with a maximum jail sentence of no more than a year.

Guerra was charged with involuntary manslaughter in August after Mrs. Kirby died as a result of their collision at the intersection of 58th Street and Avenue U. Witnesses testified this week that Guerra was driving at an excessive rate of speed and entered the intersection after the stoplight had already turned red.

Jurors took just under 40 minutes to deliberate Tuesday afternoon before returning the verdict. The defendant has chosen to accept punishment from Presiding Judge Robert Wright rather than the jury.

It is expected that Guerra's plea of guilty to an earlier automobile-related charge will be included in a pre-sentencing report submitted to the judge. The teenager was charged with aggravated assault with a motor vehicle in March 1979 for striking Lubbock Police Officer Billy Stafford with his car.

Guerra pleaded guilty to the lesser included offense of assault — another Class A misdemeanor — and was assessed a $250 fine and a year on probation.

"The number-one thing that Eddie Guerra did was speeding," prosecutor Jim Bob Darnell argued Tuesday afternoon. "Because he was speeding, he could not stop."

Darnell reminded jurors of the testimony which indicated Guerra ran a red light at the intersection and a police officer's testimony that Guerra's Corvette had been traveling at about 40 mph at the point of impact.

Defense attorney Jim Alexander argued earlier that his client "was involved in a terrible car accident — but he didn't commit a criminal act."

Alexander argued that the primary issue in the case was whether the stoplight was yellow as Guerra entered the intersection, as his client had testified. He reminded the jury that Guerra had testified that he had looked up, seen the green light and entered the intersection before spotting Mrs. Kirby's Pontiac pulling in front of him.

He also told the jury that the accident had not involved just one person — that Mrs. Kirby had been involved as well in the events leading up to the collision.

Guerra took the witness stand early Tuesday to tell the jury how the accident occurred, and under cross-examination by Darnell denied passing witness Mark Lowell Thompson at a high rate of speed.

"I never even got into passing gear," the defendant asserted.

Thompson told the 137th District Court jury that he noticed the Corvette traveling closely behind his own car before it accelerated to about 60 mph and passed him on the right side of the road. As the Corvette approached the intersection, the driver of the car "tried to beat the light," Thompson testified.

"I had looked up, and there was a green light five car lengths before the intersection," Guerra testified. The light was green when he entered the intersection, and he saw the Pontiac starting to turn in front of him, Guerra added.

It was then that he applied the brakes, Guerra told the court.

In earlier testimony, Emergency Medical Services worker Phil Klein told the court that he and another EMS worker used cardio-pulmonary resuscitation and advanced life support methods in attempts to save the woman. Klein told the jury that they were unable to find a pulse about two minutes after the woman was placed in the ambulance.

Justice of the Peace L. J. Blalack testified that Mrs. Kirby died of massive head and chest injuries. He ruled the death a homicide, Blalack testified.

Mayors Mull Reagan's Warning On Aid Slash

WASHINGTON (AP) — Big city mayors said President Reagan told them Tuesday that his drive to prune federal spending means sharp cuts in urban aid and major changes in a program that provides money for cities hard hit by recession.

"These people are serious about cutting and we have to be serious about reducing our expectations from government and accepting and absorbing our share of the cuts," said Indianapolis Mayor William H. Hudnut III, president of the National League of Cities.

Mayor Edward Koch of New York said Reagan promised, however, that "those who are truly in need will not be asked to suffer, but all others hopefully will suffer equally."

Hudnut and others said they were alarmed by plans for changes in the urban development action grant program begun by the Carter administration to help revitalize distressed urban areas.

Reagan also met with black congressmen who are worried that his budget cuts will hurt the poor.

"Black people are disproportionately represented in the ranks of those hardest hit by inflation," said Rep. Walter Fauntroy, D-D.C., chairman of the Congressional Black Caucus. "We told the president that we are gravely concerned that policies devised to reign in inflation do not disproportionately burden the poor, the elderly and moderate income people."

The mayors said they learned that the Reagan administration plans to propose to pay for the urban development action grant program with block grants to cities or states, instead of giving money to individual projects. The city leaders worry that there would be less money for the over-all program and competition for the available money would be increased.

Such a change "would have a devastating effect on us," said Mayor Tom Bradley of Los Angeles. Hudnut, who like Reagan is a Republican, said a block-grant system would not work and would gut the program.

Thirteen mayors met over lunch with Reagan and his economic advisers, as well as Samuel Pierce, secretary of housing and urban development.

Reagan will make a televised speech Thursday to spell out a general view of the nation's economic problems and his proposed solutions. He plans to submit a package of tax cuts and spending reductions to Congress Feb. 18.

The president also will visit Capitol Hill today to talk with members of Congress. White House press secretary James S. Brady called the session "the resurrection of the practice of having office hours on the hill."

After their session with Reagan, the mayors said the president left no doubt that urban programs will be cut, but they said there were no specifics other than the change for the urban development action grants.

"The message we got loud and clear is that the country's economy is in deep trouble," said Mayor Pete Wilson of San Diego. "Everybody's got to make some sacrifice," added Bradley.

"We all came here expecting to get some bad news," said Houston Mayor Jim McConn. "I think the message was loud and clear," he added. "There are going to be cuts. They will be as equal and as even as possible, but I believe the message I got was that they will not be as even as maybe some of us would hope."

Tech Petroleum Engineering Department Gets $250,000 Gift

A $250,000 grant from the Atlantic Richfield Foundation was presented to the Texas Tech University College of Engineering Tuesday to purchase equipment for the Petroleum Engineering Department.

Tech President Lauro F. Cavazos accepted the donation from E. Marvin Pringle, district engineering manager for ARCO Oil and Gas Co. of Midland.

The gift was the first in a $1.5 million fund-raising drive by the College of Engineering to equip the new $4 million engineering building approved for construction last week by the Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System.

Also attending the presentation ceremony were College of Engineering Dean John R. Bradford and Dr. James T. Smith, chairman of the Petroleum Engineering Department.

Atlantic Richfield representatives included Don E. Lamprecht, district engineer, and Ibrahim J. Natour, area engineer, both with ARCO Oil & Gas Co. in Midland, and Richard H. Ostler, public relations manager with ARCO in Dallas. Lamprecht and Natour are engineering graduates of Tech.

"This gift is a substantial first step toward meeting our $1.5 million goal for equipping our expanded facilities," Smith said. "Through the cooperation of the Atlantic Richfield Foundation and others in the petroleum industry we will be able to upgrade our facilities and better teach the growing number of students majoring in petroleum engineering."

Smith said dramatic increases in petroleum engineering enrollments had strained Texas Tech's existing facilities.

This past fall, the department had 434 majors, compared to only 55 majors in the fall of 1970. The department has four full-time faculty members.

When completed, the expanded petroleum engineering facilities will provide 61,350-square-feet of additional space for classrooms, teaching laboratories, research facilities and faculty offices.

Tech has the only accredited petroleum engineering department in the Permian Basin region, one of the nation's major producers of oil and gas.

Prison Battle Victory Foreseen

FORT WORTH (AP) — Texas Attorney General Mark White says he believes the state will emerge victorious from a battle with a federal judge over the prison system.

Speaking to the Texas Polled Hereford Association, White vowed to appeal constitutional issues raised in a sweeping order by U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice of Tyler. In the ruling, Justice ordered Texas Department of Corrections officials to eliminate overcrowding in Texas prisons, to lower the suicide rate and improve food quality.

But White said the alternatives to overcrowding are to release prisoners or to stop bringing them into Texas prisons.

"I haven't found any Texan who has told an armed robber, 'We're not going to send you down there,'" he said.

Instead, White said, the state could build more prisons.

The suicide rate in the state's prisons, he said, is lower than the rate for the population as a whole.

"The food they serve in Texas prisons is every bit as good as I was getting as a private in the U.S. Army," he added.

Communist Head Levels Blast Against Unions

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Poland's Communist Party leader, in his strongest denunciation of the independent trade union movement, accused Solidarity on Tuesday of seeking to become a "political opposition party" and of spreading anarchy.

Stanislaw Kania, in a speech made public Tuesday, affirmed the government's opposition to a union of private farmers and said Poland was faced with "manifestations of anarchy" and with transformation of Solidarity into an organization "far removed from what is laid down in its statutes."

Kania's speech was made Saturday to a closed-door meeting of a committee preparing for next month's party congress and excerpts were broadcast by Polish state radio Tuesday.

It came at a time of new charges from the Soviet Union and its allies that independent labor leaders were hostile to Communist Party rule and exploiting the crisis for their political ends. The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia charged Tuesday that the Voice of America and Radio Free Europe were broadcasting "coded instructions" to anti-socialist forces in Poland.

Solidarity leader Lech Walesa went to the southern town of Bielsko Biala and joined talks between government negotiators and workers to end a general strike that was in its eighth day. The talks were adjourned until Wednesday.

Polish Television said the governor and three deputy governors of Bielsko Biala had submitted their resignations to Premier Josef Pinkowski, who would "consider" them Wednesday. The report gave no reason for the resignations.

Warsaw Radio said Solidarity also was seeking the resignations of the mayor and deputy mayor of Bielsko Biala. The union has sought removal of various officials, accusing them of misconduct in office.

Kania, who agreed to formation of the first independent labor unions in the Soviet bloc, said the government "cannot ignore, let alone accept" that "Solidarity is being steered in the direction of a political opposition party playing with the workers' trust."

He said that while the government recognized a right to strike, it "is a weapon of last resort ... many of our strikes are clearly political in character." Kania also warned party members that they should not take part in strikes.

"The time has come to adopt a stand on the participation of party members in strikes," he said.

"Should party members take part in such strikes? Should party discipline be seen to operate there? Such strikes deal a blow to the interests of socialist Poland and of the workers."

On the issue of Rural Solidarity — an organization of Poland's private farmers — Kania said it comes down to one question: "Is the countryside to be a scene of cooperation between the people's regime and peasant-farmers or is it to be the scene of political struggle?"

Workers also have demanded pay for time they have been on strike. Warsaw television said the government had agreed to reimburse 50 percent of pay for workers who take part in authorized strikes only.

Kania claimed the strike in Bielsko Biala, to back worker demands for firing local officials, had cost the economy the equivalent of $70 million over eight days.

Kania said Monday that coal production in Poland, a major European exporter, dropped sharply last year, according to the official news agency. He said if production continued at levels of last month, "Poland will be set to become a coal importer."

Labor unrest continued in the towns of Bielsko Biala, Rzeszow, Ustrzyki Dolne and Jelenia Gora.

The issue of registration of Rural Solidarity was to be discussed again Wednesday by a government group headed by Agriculture Minister Andrzej Kacala. Some observers predicted that continued refusal by the government to register Rural Solidarity might result in a general warning strike.

A nationwide warning strike scheduled for Tuesday was dropped by Solidarity after a compromise with the government over the weekend on a 42-hour workweek and greater union access to the mass media.

Walesa went to Bielsko-Biala from Rzeszow, center of the farmers' protest, and Warsaw Radio said the Bielsko-Biala conflict "reflected lack of confidence in the present representatives of administrative authorities."

In Jelenia Gora, where a strike alert continued in force, talks with another government representative, Jan Jablonski, went on for the third day.

Newspapers in Warsaw and local union sources said the main problem there was the strike committee's call for the removal of Trade Union Affairs Minister Stanislaw Ciosek.

Ciosek had been criticized by the local Solidarity chapter for alleged wrongdoing in office.

Government negotiator Stanislaw Kacala, a deputy minister of agriculture, left Rzeszow for the day to go to the small town of Ustrzyki Dolne where a group of farmers has been staging a sit-in for several weeks in the local Solidarity office to protest the government's agricultural policies.

Kennedy Asked To Aid Sirhan Sirhan

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Backers of Sirhan Sirhan have sent a letter to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, asking him to declare that he has no objection to the early release from prison of the man who assassinated his brother Robert.

Sirhan, 36, currently in Soledad Prison, has served 12 years of a life sentence for the June 1968 assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy. The California Board of Prison has made Sirhan, who has been described as a model prisoner, eligible for parole on Sept. 1, 1984.

Mohammed T. Mehedi, president of the New York-based American-Arab Relations Committee, said he has sent a two-page letter to Kennedy, asking him "to say that he has no revenge or vendetta for Sirhan...and no objection to his (immediate) release."

Kennedy aide Patty McHugh, reached Tuesday in the Massachusetts Democrat's Washington office, said she did not know if they had received the petition, "and even if we had, there would be no comment."

Mehedi, a former political science professor at Berkeley, said Sirhan has served more prison time than most murderers and is a "political prisoner."

Mehedi said he will ask California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. for clemency.

If that fails, he said he plans to file a court writ demanding Sirhan's release.

Several Arab countries have agreed to accept Sirhan if he is released, Mehedi said.

LIBERALS WIN CHAIRMANSHIPS
WASHINGTON (AP) — Two second-term liberal Democrats won subcommittee chairmanships Tuesday on the House Foreign Affairs Committee, triumphing over more moderate colleagues. A committee spokesman said Rep. Michael Barnes, D-Md., replaced Rep. Gus Yatron, D-Pa., as chairman of the subcommittee on inter-American affairs.

Major Water Value Increase Forecast

AUSTIN (AP) — Two University of Houston regent appointees and four directors of a Central Texas utility authority testified Tuesday they have the same problem — rising costs.

Director William Archer Jr. of the Lower Colorado River Authority offered the view that early in the next century water may be more valuable than oil.

Without opposition the Senate Nominations Subcommittee approved the appointments of Mack Hannah and Charles Marino, both of Houston, as Houston regents and the four river authority directors — Archer and John Scanlan of Austin, Merritt Schumann of New Braunfels and John Jones of Brady.

The subcommittee also sent to the full Senate the names of Larry Steinmann of Austin and Evelyn Hunter of Dallas, both appointed to the Texas Cosmetology Commission, and 42 other people whose appearances before the subcommittee were waived.

Hannah — described by Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, as a "legend in his own time" — told senators what the University of Houston needs is "money, money, money, money, money."

Asked what the school's biggest problem is, Hannah replied, "You've heard money is the root of all evil. Well, as much money as we may have access to, we need money to grow and expand."

He said the school needs new facilities for its engineering department and new dormitories, and mentioned that it does not have a football stadium.

Marino said the university "is on the threshold of greatness" in making a contribution to the "golden Gulf Coast." Our physical plant must be developed — that's our immediate goal.

Archer, asked about Lower Colorado River Authority problems, said the cost of fuel "is probably our single largest problem." He said the board has to make complex energy decisions for 30 years in the future, but as early as 1987 "we will be at a critical point in our ability to provide electricity to our existing customers."

Energy Firm Reports Increased Earnings

HOUSTON (AP) — Tenneco Inc., the nation's 10th-largest oil company, said Tuesday strong performances by its energy operations helped produce a 27 percent increase in earnings last year to a record $726 million from the previous record $571 million in 1979.

The widely diversified company said the 1980 profits amounted to $5.94 a share, up from $5.16 a year earlier, as operating revenues rose to $13.2 billion from $11.2 billion in 1979.

CHARGED IN THEFT

SALE LAKE CITY (AP) — Former Ballet West comptroller Frederick Kliban has been charged with felony theft and accused of stealing $16,800 donated to the ballet company in 1979. The complaint alleges Kliban stole a check obtained in the sale of 50,000 shares of donated oil company stock. Kliban's whereabouts are not known, authorities said.

Archer said the board is considering building a $1 billion lignite-fired steam generating facility.

He added that as one who has lived in West Texas he realizes "we also have a tremendous responsibility to the people of this state in conjunction with water conservation."

"Possibly in 25 years, the water we have standing behind these dams we're so fortunate to have may be more valuable than that oil you've heard a whole lot about," he said.

Archer said the authority is a wholesale energy supplier for 11 cooperatives and is a retail supplier for 20 cities, giving it between 900,000 and one million customers.

Steinmann and Mrs. Hunter said the Cosmetology Commission's main problem is upgrading beauty schools. Mrs. Hunter, a hair stylist at Neiman-Marcus for 24 years, said, "They don't keep their equipment up to date and they're turning out inferior students."

Steinmann said the commission has only 27 inspectors to police 375 beauty schools.

The subcommittee approved several appointees whose appearances were waived. They included:

Board of Pardons and Paroles — Connie Jackson, Dallas.
State Commission for the Blind — Paula Schumacher, Harris.

Texas 1986 Sesqui-centennial Commission — Mrs. Omar Harvey, Dallas.
Adjutant General of Texas — Maj. Gen. Willie Scott, Travis.

Assistant Adjutant General for Air — Brig. Gen. Belisario D.J. Flores, Bexar.
Assistant Adjutant General for Army — Brig. Gen. Willard Hill Jr., Travis.

State Bar of Texas Directors — William Cox, Harris; Elbert Hall, Taylor; C. Lee McMillan, Nueces; Dr. Janice May, Travis; Lynn Milam, Jefferson; Bill Thornton, Hidalgo; and Allen Washington, Harris.

The full Senate still must vote on the appointees, probably Thursday.

Tenneco Chairman James L. Ketelsen said the company's oil and gas exploration and production operations and natural gas pipeline business reported strong results, but profits were lower for construction and farm equipment, chemicals, and automotive operations.

Integrated oil and natural gas pipelines accounted for 78 percent of Tenneco's operating income, but Ketelsen said Newport News Shipbuilding, with a business backlog of $3.2 billion, showed the most dramatic improvement.

The insurance division also had higher operations because of the acquisition of Southwestern Life last May.

Natural Gas Price Decontrol Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — The country could face shortages of natural gas in the next few years unless the government moves quickly to lift price controls, according to a study released Tuesday.

But the cost to consumers from lifting controls is likely to be almost a tripling in prices they now pay for natural gas, says the study by Dr. Edward Erickson, an economics professor at North Carolina State University. The study was commissioned by the Natural Gas Supply Association, whose members produce 95 percent of the nation's natural gas supplies.

Production of natural gas, which now supplies 26 percent of the country's energy needs, could drop by 16 percent by 1985, declining from 20 trillion cubic feet annually to 16 trillion cubic feet, the study says.

It blamed the decline on economic restraints found in the 1978 Natural Gas Policy Act, which provides for gradual decontrol of natural gas, completing the process in 1985.

The study says the price levels for natural gas set in the act had already been far surpassed by rapid surges in the price of oil.

President Reagan, who campaigned on a pledge to speed up the decontrolling of energy prices, last week lifted the remaining price controls on crude oil and gasoline.

He would have to ask Congress to speed up decontrol of natural gas, however, and his advisers are split on whether to become embroiled in that bitter debate this year.

Erickson's study argues that unless decontrol of natural gas is stepped up, companies will be unwilling to finance the drilling needed to maintain current production levels.

"Natural gas can continue to supply 25 to 30 percent of the nation's energy requirements, but a much higher level of drilling than the 15,000 to 20,000 gas wells per year which are apt to be drilled under the 1978 law will be necessary," the study says.

It says that if gas prices were decontrolled, an additional 60,000 wells could be drilled in the next five years — a number which could assure adequate supplies.

Erickson estimated that the price of natural gas, currently about $1.65 per thousand cubic feet, could rise to $4.50 under decontrol — still less than that for an equivalent amount of oil.

Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of the House Energy and Commerce Committee, said last week he was opposed to reopening the question of natural gas decontrol during the current session of Congress.

Dingell said even at current prices, gas distribution companies are unable to sell all the gas they have.

Russians Reported Boosting Oil Price

VIENNA (AP) — The Soviet Union apparently is demanding that oil-short Eastern Bloc allies, as well as Western customers, pay sharply higher prices for their supplies of Russian crude oil supplies.

Russia does not disclose the prices it charges its allies for oil, but new calculations by the Vienna Institute of Economic Comparisons — a branch of the government-supported Austrian Institute for Economic Research — say the Eastern Bloc nations were expected to face a 27 percent increase in their oil costs at the beginning of 1981.

Other estimates say the Soviet allies face a doubling of oil prices during their new five-year economic plans.

Russia, the world's largest oil producer, supplied 80 percent of the oil burned by its Communist allies in 1980, according to one American government estimate. The Soviet Union also is a major supplier of natural gas and electric power to its allies.

Italy and other Western European countries, who rely on Soviet oil for 7 percent of their petroleum needs, have seen their Russian shipments cut 15 percent to 30 percent and have been faced with sharp price increases, the American trade newsletter Petroleum Intelligence Weekly says.

The newsletter said some of the oil saved was apparently earmarked for developing countries and other shipments were to go to the Eastern Bloc.

It also said the Soviet Union had raised its price for some oil delivered to Mediterranean ports by $4.86, to $39 per 42-gallon barrel, topping the average $3-dollars-a-barrel hike posted recently by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

OPEC's new average price is around $35 a barrel. The prices the Soviets charge Communist allies are thought to vary from customer to customer, although no price figures are disclosed by any Eastern Bloc country and few figures are available on oil consumption.

"The Soviet Union doesn't demand the same price in each country," said Dr. Raimund Dietz, the institute's expert on Soviet Bloc energy matters whose calculations indicated the 27 percent price hike.

The Soviet Union reportedly uses a floating, five-year average of world oil prices to determine its charges for exports to Communist allies. But even accounting for the averaging system, the Eastern Bloc export prices appear to be running about 40 percent below world market levels, Dietz said.

All the Soviet Union's Warsaw Pact allies are oil importers, and one of them, Romania, once was Europe's biggest oil producer outside the Soviet Union.

Romania said in 1979, when it was producing about 280,000 barrels of oil a day, that it had become a net importer. Bucharest officials said last week that production had fallen to 231,000 barrels daily in 1980.

Step 1 — Year of birth. Read down the left hand column to find the last number in the year of your birth then go across to the appropriate decade. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Iraqis Again Offer Cease-Fire To Iran

BEIRUT (AP) — Iraq announced Tuesday the addition of four French jet fighters to its air force and said the Baghdad government remained ready for a cease-fire in the war with neighboring Iran.

Iran's chief of staff, meanwhile, declared the Iranian army has supplies for another year of fighting despite a U.S. arms embargo and claimed Iran's western highlands would be recaptured from Iraq in two or three weeks.

Both sides reported a series of sharp clashes that claimed more than 500 lives along the 300-mile war front, but there was no indication of major territorial gains by either country.

Iraq took delivery of four Mirage F-1 jet fighters, the first aircraft in a total order of 60 planes. In announcing acquisition of the planes, an Iraqi Foreign Ministry spokesman paid tribute to France's willingness to go ahead with the sale.

"Iraq will never forget this sound practice of the French government with regard to future dealing," said the spokesman in a statement distributed by the official Iraqi news agency.

In an apparent criticism of the Soviet Union, the Iraqi statement said President Saddam Hussein's government "will not forget the bad positions taken by others who do not respect their obligations."

The Soviet Union is Iraq's main arms supplier and partner in a treaty of friendship and cooperation under which Iraq reportedly sought but failed to get stepped-up Soviet arms shipments since the war with Iran broke out 135 days ago.

The core of the Iraqi air force is Soviet-made MIGs.

The Soviet Union, and most other countries, have maintained a neutral stance in the Persian Gulf war and have declined to ship arms to either side.

But France, a major purchaser of Iraqi oil, announced Sunday it was going ahead with Iraq's 1977 order of 36 Mirages to be delivered this month. Iraq ordered 24 more of the aircraft in 1979.

Western military analysts in the Middle East said the French Mirages would help Iraq provide better protection for its Soviet-made bombers and help counter Iran's U.S.-made Phantom jets.

Iran hoped to get spare parts for its U.S.-made military equipment after release of the 52 American hostages, but U.S. Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. said last week the United States would not ship arms to Iran or deliver spare parts already purchased by Iran.

Iraq's Foreign Ministry spokesman said that Iraq remained "completely prepared to cease fire and reach a peaceful, just and honorable settlement of the conflict" with Iran.

His remarks coincided with a visit to Iran by an eight-member Islamic Conference mission to explore the chances of a cease-fire. The delegation, headed by Foreign Minister Agha Shahi of Pakistan, met with President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr and other Iranian officials Monday and was scheduled to go on to Baghdad.

Bani-Sadr in a Monday newspaper interview reiterated the Iranian position that there could be no peace before an unconditional withdrawal of Iraqi forces from Iranian soil.

The Iranian chief of staff, Gen. Valiollah Fallahi, was quoted by the newspaper Enghelab Islami as saying Iranian forces were outnumbered five to one in the early days of the war. But he said Iran had established equality with the enemy's 45,000 troops on the western front and 90,000 troops in Iran's Khuzistan province.

He said Iran was counter-attacking in the west and expects to recapture the occupied Iranian border town of Qasr e-Shirin in two or three weeks.

"We are not in a drastic shortage of arms and spare parts because of the American embargo," Fallahi was quoted as saying. "The army has enough arms and ammunition for a full year's war."

The Iranian news agency Pars reported Tuesday that Revolutionary Guards fighting near the Iranian town of Dezful had stuffed mortar shells with pamphlets bearing the words of revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini and shot them over Iraqi lines "to enlighten" Iraqi troops.

Masked Rider To Receive Scholarship

The Texas Tech University Student Foundation will award a scholarship of $1,000 to the 1981-82 Red Raider, according to Kathleen Crowl, junior from Odessa and director of the 50-member foundation.

"We hope that the scholarship we are giving for the Red Raider will be continued through an endowment established for support and recognition of Tech's masked rider," Miss Crowl said. "The Red Raider represents all of the students at Texas Tech and Student Foundation members feel the honor of a scholarship is due such a representative."

She said the Student Foundation Executive Committee, which met Jan. 27, also agreed to dedicate "a large percentage" of the annual Senior Challenge proceeds to a Red Raider Endowment drive.

"Ever since the establishment of the Red Raider tradition," Miss Crowl said, "there seems to have been an effort to support the rider's activities and the mascot from a variety of sources. Often, however, whoever has been the Red Raider has had to pay a lot of the expenses himself or herself. We hope the endowment can correct this."

The Senior Challenge is an annual project of the foundation which solicits graduating seniors to pledge their property deposits and cash gifts to support Student Foundation projects in academic recruiting and new student relations. Cinde Sides, senior from Dimmitt, chairs the fund Raising Committee.

The Red Raider is the masked rider who, during football games, rides at full gallop around Jones Stadium astride Happy VI-II. Tech's black Quarterhorse mascot. The horse and rider also represent Tech at rodeos, parades and some out-of-town football games.

Judi Henry, assistant to the Dean of Students and chairman of the university's Red Raider Committee, said plans to establish an endowment fund to support the mascot and rider are under way.

"The Student Foundation has really taken the ball and run with it," she said. "The committee is grateful for the student support and will be searching for other ways to develop the endowment."

Application forms for the 1981-82 Red Raider are available in the Dean of Students office, 250 West Hall. Deadline for applying is 5 p.m. Feb. 23. Applicants must have completed 60 hours of academic credit and have a 2.0 grade point average. Selection is based on riding ability, responses during an interview and information supplied on the application.

Soviet Bombers Off Cape Cod

OTIS AIR FORCE BASE, Mass. (AP) — Air National Guard jet fighters intercepted two Soviet bombers 180 miles off the coast of Cape Cod last week, the second such incident in six months, Air Force officials reported Tuesday.

"Our pilots made visual contact and then kind of hung in there in the sun and observed the aircraft," said Maj. Richard Penny of the 102nd Fighter-Interceptor Wing of the Massachusetts Air National Guard.

Penny said two F-106 interceptors, piloted by Capt. Thomas Gorman and Mark Ellis made visual contact with two Soviet TU95 "Bear" bombers some 180 miles east of Cape Cod on Jan. 26.

Gorman and Ellis flew with the Soviet aircraft, which turned south, for nearly an hour before turning the escort over to fighters from the New Jersey Air National Guard.

Penny said the Soviet planes were escorted down the East Coast by Air Force aircraft base in Langley, Va., and Florida Air National Guard units from Jacksonville.

The ultimate destination was believed to be Cuba. The Soviet planes were loaded with electronic surveillance equipment that is believed to be used to test U.S. air defense and communications systems.

Fighters from the 102nd performed a similar intercept Sept. 25. The two incidents were the first of their kind since 1975. Penny said there was no way to tell if the Jan. 26 incident spells increased activity by Soviet aircraft.

"It's hard for us to say here," he said. "It's anybody's guess what this means."

SHOOTING VICTIM MOVED

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Michael McAliskey, the husband of Roman Catholic civil rights advocate Bernadette Devlin McAliskey, moved to a secret hideaway Tuesday after being released from a hospital for treatment of wounds suffered in an assassination attempt against the couple, friends reported. McAliskey moved to the secret address with the couple's three children, who were not injured when gunmen burst into their rural home west of Belfast on Jan. 16.

Governor Eyes Jury Duty

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. is no longer seeking exemption from jury duty. The Democratic governor's legal affairs secretary, Byron Georgiou, said Monday that Brown is seeking arrangements to serve at a convenient time. He said an earlier request that the governor be excused was a "staff-level decision." As for the way the attorneys might see Brown, Georgiou said, "As governor, he has ultimate clemency power, so I'm sure there are attorneys who would rather have, or not have, him on a jury. "I'm sure he will have an impact on whatever jury he sits. I think he would be able to fairly evaluate facts and issues like any other citizen."

Magazine Miffs Prince

LONDON (AP) — Prince Charles is said to be upset over a West German magazine story quoting Lady Diana Spencer as saying she wants to give Britain's heir to the throne lots of pretty babies. The magazine "7 Days" also has a mocked-up picture on its front page of Charles holding a baby in his arms. The London Daily Mirror quoted him Monday as saying, "Where do these ideas come from? Incredible — just incredible. If you didn't laugh at some of these things you would go mad." The 32-year-old bachelor prince is on his annual skiing holiday at the Swiss Alps resort, Klosters. The Mirror also quoted Lady Diana, the prince's 19-year-old friend and rumored future bride, as refusing to discuss the magazine story.

'Cat' nip Leads To Hangover

CLIFTON PARK, N.Y. (AP) — A Saratoga County couple has gone through a sobering experience with their 11-month-old cat, who awakened them in the middle of the night with a frightening yelp. Sheri and Bill Estep of Clifton Park found Jake, their black and white pet, in what was apparently a heart attack — his body flopping and mouth frothing. They rushed him to a local veterinarian, who placed the animal on the floor to observe it. Jake promptly walked into a wall and keeled over. "Is he dead?" the owners asked. "He sure is," came the reply. "He's dead drunk." While Jake slept it off at the vet's overnight, the couple returned home to solve the mystery: a bottle of bourbon was found broken in the kitchen. The episode last week cost the couple $77 for transportation to the animal hospital and the vet's fees, and Jake one dandy hangover.

Woodland Theft Discovered

VINELAND, N.J. (AP) — John McCloskey says someone stole his woods, all 30 acres of them. McCloskey, a stockbroker and a co-owner of the land, says his woods were just fine last April. He assumed all would be well when he returned to visit Cumberland County last weekend. But McCloskey said he found his Delsea Drive property has been picked clean of timber, apparently by Vineland homeowners in need of fuel for wood-burning stoves or fireplaces. Left behind are only a few good-sized logs, tire tracks and sawdust. Wood is a very valuable commodity and I guess it's very tempting," McCloskey said. Police put the value of the theft at about $30,000 — based on 10 cords of wood per acre at about $100 per cord.

Noise-Control Bill Eyed

BALTIMORE (AP) — Councilman Thomas J.S. Waxter has gained tentative approval for a noise-control bill which would make it a misdemeanor to play a radio or phonograph at a volume heard more than 50 feet away. The bill must pass the council once more before becoming law, but it drew no objection at Monday night's meeting when it came before the panel with a favorable report from the Judiciary Committee. Waxter said complaints about "big radios" prompted his sponsoring the legislation. The new noise-control legislation would apply to anything loud, he said. "If you're blasting the people next door, I don't care if it's Beethoven or rock. A lot of people don't like Beethoven. You don't have to know anything except, 'Can you hear it at 51 feet?'"

Little Girl Photos Cited In Charges

EULESS (AP) — A felony charge has been filed against an unemployed laborer who told police he snapped Polaroid pictures of semi-nude girls, all under 10 years old, after luring them into his apartment. The charge, "sexual performance, child," was filed in connection with pictures taken of a 7-year-old Euless girl, although police said they confiscated color pictures of four girls. George Washington Sardella, 52, remained in Tarrant County Jail in lieu of $7,500 bond Tuesday.

Performers Of Year Named

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Film and television stars John Travolta and Mary Tyler Moore have been named man and woman of the year by the Hasty Pudding Theatricals, the Harvard University club that lays claim to being America's oldest dramatic organization. Miss Moore, who will be honored by a parade through Cambridge on Feb. 11, was named largely because of her role in "Ordinary People," a movie Hasty Pudding said "revealed a tremendous depth of dramatic ability." Travolta, who has starred in such films as "Saturday Night Fever" and "Urban Cowboy," was named because "his tremendous popularity as an entertainer has been reaffirmed with each new project he undertakes." Travolta will accept the award on Feb. 18 at the opening night of the group's annual production, this year entitled, "Serf's Up."

Soviet Invasion Planned

SEATTLE (AP) — John Runnings is preparing a 35-foot sloop in which he plans to invade the Soviet Union and 14 other nations later this year. The white-haired Seattle carpenter and a group called Unilateral Initiatives want "to raise the hackles on some official necks" by sailing to Russia without a flag, visas or passports. Runnings announced his project last year and officially launched his "Odessa Odyssey" last week with letters to the United Nations. "The purpose of the odyssey is to provoke an international incident that will create an international audience" for Runnings' theories on world peace, he said. "But we are not pacifists," Runnings said. "We hope to precipitate confrontations with the power structures." The ocean-going sloop and crew are scheduled to sail from Ellis Island, New York, on May 2 without a flag or documents.

Burt Lancaster In London

LONDON (AP) — American actor Burt Lancaster arrived in London Tuesday to finish work on his latest film, "The Skin." "I play an American general in the film which is set in World War II," he said at Heathrow Airport. "Most of the work is finished but I'll be over here for about a month just to tidy things up."

Fidelity Postmark sought

FIDELITY, Ill. (AP) — Move over Loveland, Colo., and Valentine, Neb. Make room for Fidelity. Lovers in 14 states have sent Valentines to the tiny southern Illinois community to get that special postmark — Fidelity — says postmistress June Hanold. "We're the only Fidelity in the postal directory," she says. Valentine cards from Texas, Maine and New York arrive at the two-room post office in a block building on the prairie, and each receives the special love and attention their senders had hoped for. Legend has it that the community's name originated in 1829 in a humanitarian act between two settlers, Mrs. Hanold said. A traveler faced the loss of his investment when his horse broke a leg and he was stranded in Jersey County. A friend offered the use of his horse so the man could continue his journey. "This is true fidelity," declared the departing man.

Guitarist Enters Plea

SAN DIEGO (AP) — An attorney representing Grateful Dead rock guitarist Robert Wier has entered a no contest plea for the entertainer in connection with a disturbance after a concert at the San Diego Sports Arena. Alex Landon made the plea Monday to a charge of disturbing the peace and paid a $50 fine for the 33-year-old Wier, who was originally charged with resisting arrest and battery during the disturbance. Those charges were dismissed after the no contest plea. Landon said Wier made the plea to avoid legal costs and said the performer "still feels he was trying to help out the situation thupast July 1."

Jailed Duo Halfway Home

NEW YORK (AP) — Steve Rubell and Ian Schrager, former owners of Studio 54 discotheque, are back in New York at a halfway house after spending almost a year in jail for tax evasion. "I'm excited! I just can't wait to be free again," Rubell said Sunday night as he arrived at Phoenix House, where he and Schrager will be allowed weekend furloughs and weekday outings until 11 p.m. They will be freed April 17. Rubell and Schrager were released from the federal prison camp at Maxwell Air Force Base in Montgomery, Ala., late Friday. They were sentenced to 3½ years in prison and fined $20,000 each on Jan. 18, 1980, for evading more than $400,000 in income taxes for cash skimmed from receipts at the West 54th Street disco palace.

Norwegian Labor Party's Hopes Pinned On Woman Leader

OSLO (AP) — Gro Harlem Brundtland, Norway's first woman prime minister, has loved politics since she was 7. The political daughter of a political family, that was her age when she joined the Labor party's children's movement. The 41-year-old medical doctor with a graduate degree from Harvard is the daughter of former Labor cabinet minister Gudmund Harlem. She is an environmentalist, an advocate of women's rights, the wife of a political foe and the mother of four children. "All Norwegians simply call her Gro," said the Oslo newspaper Dagbladet.

Among party leaders and Labor grassroots alike, she is considered the only person capable of boosting the party's sagging fortunes before elections scheduled for September. As minister for environmental affairs from 1974 to 1979, she added thousands of acres to Norway's national parks system. An avid hiker and bicycle rider, Mrs. Brundtland took a strong anti-pollution stand both in her cabinet post and as a member of Parliament. After elementary school, she was deputy chairman of the National Organization of Norwegian Socialist High School Students. While studying medicine at Oslo University in 1963, she served as deputy chairman of the Labor party's national organization for university students. She received a master of public health degree from Harvard in 1965. After returning to Oslo, she worked at two city hospitals and in the Ministry of Health until 1969, when she was appointed deputy chief medical officer for the capital's school system and did research on girls' adolescence. Mrs. Brundtland was practically unknown to the public when she was appointed environment minister by former Labor Prime Minister Trygve Bratteli. She was elected the party's deputy chairman in 1975 and continued in her cabinet post when Odvar Nordli, whom she succeeds as prime minister, succeeded Bratteli in 1976.

Bill To Repeal 55 MPH Speed Limit Gets Nod

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Two bills aimed at repealing the 55 mph speed limit in Oklahoma have been passed by the state Senate, despite the possibility that federal funds might be sacrificed. "This program is so popular an unknown movie star was elected president on it," said Sen. Gene Stipe, D-McAlester as he prodded colleagues to pass two nearly identical bills Monday deleting all references to the reduced speed limit from two separate sections of the Oklahoma statutes. The bills, passed by votes of 28-18 and 29-19, now go to the House for consideration.

Stipe, chairman of the Senate Transportation Committee, has been reluctant in the past to go along with moves to repeal the federally mandated speed limit because of the threat of a federal fund cutback. But he said Monday "the emergency that brought this about has long since passed. We have a surplus of gasoline. "I know a popular issue when I see one," he said, adding President Ronald Reagan had gained politically by supporting the speed limit repeal. Because of Reagan's stance, Stipe said he does not think the state would face federal sanctions by repealing the law. Legislators in several other states are also considering a speed limit repeal. Such a bill is in a House committee in Wyoming. If Stipe's proposals win House approval and are signed into law by the governor, Oklahoma's speed limits would return to the 1974 limits of 70 mph on four-lane, limited access highways and 65 mph during daylight hours and 55 at night on two-lane highways. A year ago, the Federal Highway Administration threatened to withhold 5 percent of the state's federal highway trust fund money unless state motorists achieved at least 50 percent compliance with the 55 mph speed limit. Transportation Department spokesmen said they had not received any official word from the federal agency on any change in its policy. A spokesman said Oklahoma's share of the federal highway trust fund is about $65 million.

Tenure Appeal Policy Accepted By Tech Faculty

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A policy which proponents say provides more explicit details on tenure denial appeals was adopted Tuesday by Texas Tech University faculty members, but President Lauro Cavazos says he will carefully study the whole tenure policy before deciding whether he favors or opposes the revision.

"It's a very very serious proposition any time you change the rules," Cavazos said of tenure policy. "It can't be approached in a casual manner."

After discussion at the next Faculty Senate meeting, Feb. 11, the proposed revision will be sent to Cavazos for his consideration. The policy ultimately would need a stamp of approval from the board of regents before it could take effect.

The vote was 64 in favor of revision and 42 against at the Tuesday afternoon meeting attended by about 150 faculty members, including several department

Embassy Taken By Mexican Student Group

MEXICO CITY (AP) — About 60 unarmed students from a private high school seized the Lebanese Embassy Tuesday but left peacefully about five hours later when told the secretary of education would hear their grievances.

One of the student leaders, sipping coffee on the embassy's patio before the occupation ended, said they were demanding the federal government turn Miguel Serrano school into a public school and also investigate the alleged slayings of two students active in a five-month strike at Miguel Serrano. He did not say why the Lebanese Embassy was chosen for the action.

The youths charged into the embassy in the exclusive Polanco district in the early afternoon, demanding that Ambassador Hani El-Amine arrange an interview with Education Secretary Fernando Solana. They complained that Education Department officials had refused several requests for a meeting.

At 5:10 p.m. a city school bus arrived and the students trooped out, saying a meeting had been promised with Solana when he returns later this week from a cabinet meeting in the northern city of Hermosillo.

Police surrounded the embassy, across from Chapultepec Park, and a police helicopter circled overhead during the occupation.

The invaders hung a banner with the portrait of Ernesto "Che" Guevara on the embassy gate but it was not known if they had any affiliation with leftist organizations that still revere the revolutionary leader slain in Bolivia about 14 years ago.

Ambassador El-Amine refrained from any direct intervention but invited a senior government official, who was not identified, to talk with the invaders.

The student leader, who declined to give his name, said students at the school have been on strike since September, when tuition was raised from $35 to $65 a month.

He claimed that after the strike started, two members of a student commission appointed to negotiate with school authorities were shot and killed and four were wounded. He said all six were shot in separate attacks but gave no further details. Government officials did not comment on the alleged shootings.

The Argentine-born Guevara was Fidel Castro's chief lieutenant in the Cuban revolution in the 1950s. He left Cuba in 1965 to lead revolutionary activities in other countries and was captured and slain in 1967 while leading a guerrilla movement in Bolivia.

Strip-Search Ruled Okay By Judge

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The Illinois Supreme Court ruled Tuesday that although strip-searches of suspects by police are "a serious invasion of one's rights," police may, and should, conduct such searches in some cases.

The court ruled a strip-search was necessary in the case of William Seymour, a Cook County man arrested July 27, 1977, in Chicago for carrying a concealed, loaded handgun. The justices said that because the arrest on the weapons charge was proper, cocaine found during the strip-search could be used as evidence.

And they said the strip-search was called for in Seymour's case — although the weapons charge was a misdemeanor — because he allegedly told officers he had been previously arrested.

Two Chicago policemen spotted Seymour leaning into a parked car's open window, stopped him, and found the gun in a pat-down search. He was taken to a police lockup, and charged with a misdemeanor offense of unlawful use of a weapon.

Police testified Seymour told them he had been arrested previously, and had a narcotics charge pending. At the police station, police conducted a strip-search and found a packet with .22 grams of cocaine, the court said.

Seymour said the strip-search was "degrading" and unjustified. At trial, he asked a Cook County Circuit Court to disallow the cocaine as evidence. The trial judge agreed, saying Seymour should not have been strip-searched as he was only charged with a misdemeanor.

The Supreme Court rejected that finding.

chairmen and at least two college deans. There are an estimated 800 eligible voting faculty.

During almost an hour of discussion before the vote, Dr. Len Ainsworth, interim vice president for academic affairs, spoke out at least five times against the revision. He criticized it as a "piecemeal" approach and suggested faculty members wait for Cavazos to review a study of the tenure policy which was conducted in 1978.

Three presidents have held office since that study was completed — Cavazos, interim president Dr. Lawrence Graves, and previous president Dr. Cecil Mackey — yet no changes have been made.

Dr. Ben Newcomb of the history faculty noted the presidency changes and still-unreviewed policy and suggested, "It may be easier to do it piecemeal rather than wait for a comprehensive plan."

Dr. Jacqu Collins, also from the history department, helped write the 1978 tenure study but said he had reservations about the final report. "I'm happy three presidents sat on it." Instead, he favored Tuesday's proposition, saying, "I hope it passes. I hope the president and board of regents pass it."

Under Tech's existing policy, the only reason listed for a faculty member appeal of a denial of tenure is if the teacher "alleges that a decision not to reappoint him is caused by considerations violative of academic freedom."

In addition to that reason, the proposed revision adopted Tuesday by the faculty would allow an appeal if the teacher believes the decision to deny tenure was:

•made without adequate consideration of professional performance;

•made after significant noncompliance with prescribed procedures;

•based upon factors lacking a substantial relationship to professional fitness or performance; or

•based upon a criterion not listed among the prescribed evaluative criteria for reappointment or admission to tenure.

Ainsworth was particularly critical of the last item of the proposal, saying it could be abused to keep the tenure and privilege committee continually tied up in appeals hearings.

Dr. Ernest Sullivan of the English faculty, however, argued that, "Not a single one (of the tenure and privilege committee members in the audience) has complained about working too hard for the university and justice."

Dr. John Walkup of the electrical engineering faculty was among those who voted against the proposal. He questioned the value of the item regarding "adequate consideration of professional performance," saying that the word "adequate" was vague.

Another electrical engineer, Dr. Russell Seacat, chairman of the department, twice questioned the value of the revision saying that in his own department he saw no need for revision because procedures were being followed.

Faculty members in other departments, however, were shaking their heads no and saying that procedures are not always followed in each department on campus as Seacat spoke.

Dr. Lawrence Graves, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, brought a bit of levity to the discussion with his opening remarks of "I could be wrong — ah, perish the thought — but," before explaining his objections to the proposal. Graves said the university administration should be responsible for seeing to it that tenure evaluation procedures are followed in each department and college.

Dr. Margaret Wilson, professor of health, physical education and recreation and a former officer in the Faculty Senate, said she understood Graves' point, but argued, "This document will force colleges to do that (rather than find their decisions questioned by the appeals committee)." She claimed that some departments don't have adequate tenure review procedures and said of the revision proposal, "Maybe now they'll get them."

Throughout the debate, Dr. Rod Schoen defended the revision. A Tech law professor who helped write the revision and a former member of the tenure and privilege committee which is responsible for dealing with appeals when a teacher is denied tenure, Schoen said the change will simply expand the categories under which a faculty member who is denied tenure may appeal the decision.

Painful Budget Cut Process Beginning

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of the House Budget Committee began examining specific ways to chop federal spending Tuesday as a Reagan administration list proposing major cuts in social programs circulated through Congress.

Even as government officials were talking about budget trimming, the House Ways and Means Committee voted to raise the national debt limit to finance the current budget deficit, estimated to top $55 billion in 1981.

At the same time, big city mayors and black congressional leaders visited President Reagan in hopes of protecting urban and social aid programs from sharp reductions. However, the mayors said later that Reagan told them his drive to prune federal spending will mean deep cuts in urban aid and major changes in a program that provides funds to areas hit by recession.

"These people are serious about cutting and we have to be serious about reducing our expectations from government and accepting and absorbing our share of the cuts," said Mayor William H. Hudnut III of Indianapolis.

As the House Budget Committee began examining ways to slice the budget, the chairman of the panel, Rep. James R. Jones, D-Okla., told his colleagues, "We begin what may well turn out to be the most painful political process through which any of us will ever go."

Facing the committee were 105 suggestions from congressional economists on how to cut billions of dollars from the budget and increase revenues.

"We leave behind the easy talk and get down in the trenches with 105 specific items, every one of which will do some damage to some people somewhere," Jones said.

Meanwhile, details of some of the administration's own tentative proposals for slashing billions of dollars from federal programs surfaced Tuesday.

The targets for possible trimming included Social Security, import-related unemployment benefits, extended jobless benefits, Medicaid, food stamps, public service jobs, farm-related loans and energy development subsidies.

The proposed "hit list" was drafted by Budget Director David A. Stockman for consideration by Republican leaders in Congress, which must ultimately approve any budget changes.

Administration officials have cautioned that Stockman's list has not been approved by the president, and that a final package of proposed spending cuts will not be completed for at least another two weeks.

Reagan, who has called for major cuts in both the budget and federal taxes to combat inflation, said in an interview Monday that he still aims to fulfill a campaign pledge to cut the current budget 2 percent, or about $13 billion to $14 billion.

Deeper Cuts Studied

Congressional sources said the administration is considering cuts of between $30 billion and $40 billion from the 1982 budget, which former President Jimmy Carter proposed at $739 billion.

Reagan planned to make a general address to the economy to the nation Thursday at 8 p.m. CST and provide a broad outline of his economic program in a State-of-the-Union address to Congress on Feb. 18.

Reagan also will visit Capitol Hill on Wednesday for talks with members of Congress on his economic plans.

The president has said no federal program would be immune from potential cuts, although the administration would not reduce overall defense spending.

Budget Cuts Prepared

Congress' own list of possible budget cuts were prepared by the Congressional Budget Office, whose director, Alice M. Rivlin, warned that wherever cuts are made someone is bound to be hurt.

The proposals by the non-partisan budget office are not recommendations but examples of what Congress might do for fiscal 1982, which begins Oct. 1.

To achieve cuts in social programs, Ms. Rivlin said Congress will have to tighten eligibility rules and reduce benefit levels, actions requiring changing the laws that created the programs.

The Chicago Sun-Times reported Tuesday that it had obtained the Reagan administration's tentative list for 1982 budget cuts. The newspaper said some of the specific reductions being proposed included:

Social Security Cuts
— Altering Social Security to phase out survivor benefits for college-age students, eliminating the $122 minimum retirement benefit and trimming disability payments.

— Trimming $1 billion in federal funds to states for running Medicaid, medical care programs for the poor.

— Changing the Trade Adjustment Assistance program, which pays up to $269 a week for import-related unemployment benefits on top of regular jobless pay, so workers can receive the benefits only after exhausting regular benefits.

— Changing the rules covering extended unemployment benefits to cut spending on the program by 40 percent.

Public Service Jobs
— Phasing out the 350,000 federally subsidized public service jobs provided under CETA — the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act.

— Reducing food stamp payments by $2.6 billion from a $12.2 billion budget estimated by the Carter administration. The savings would come from reductions in benefits and elimination of 2 million to 3 million people from eligibility.

— Trimming $1 billion from child nutrition programs by cutting per meal payments, abolishing subsidies for snacks in day care centers and summer meal programs.

— Barring the Rural Electrification Administration from borrowing at bargain federal interest rates and chopping 25 percent from loan commitments by the Farmers Home Administration.

City Development Cuts
— Canceling a program providing economic development money for inner cities.

GOP Assured Debt Ceiling Hike Okay

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration asked Congress on Tuesday to raise the government's borrowing power and assured lawmakers such a vote would not endanger their credentials as fiscal conservatives.

Administration officials also said the president is almost certain to recommend a tax cut this year.

Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan and Budget Director David A. Stockman told the House Ways and Means Committee that the need for a higher debt limit is an unpleasant but necessary fact of life.

"Unappetizing as it may be, there is no choice but to increase the debt limit if we are to honor the commitments already made by the government," Stockman said. "The commitments were made, the bills are coming due and they must be paid."

The current debt limit is $93.1 billion, but federal debt is expected to hit that level within a few days, which would leave the government without borrowing authority. The Reagan administration asked for a $985 billion ceiling.

Members of the committee seemed prepared to vote for an increase, but not before reminding the new Republican administration that most GOP lawmakers have opposed such legislation in the past.

Republican members of the House "almost to a person acted almost totally irresponsibly — almost as demagogues" when asked to raise the debt ceiling, said Rep. James Shannon, D-Mass.

Stockman, who voted against every such proposal during his four years as a Republican representative from Michigan, said there has been some "excessive politicking" in the past but declined to apologize.

"I voted against those debt ceiling bills because I had no confidence anybody was developing a plan to control spending," he said. "I have confidence that such a plan is being developed now because I am writing it."

What about conservative organizations that label a vote for a higher debt ceiling as a vote against fiscal responsibility? asked Rep. Pete Stark, D-Calif.

"I don't think this should be a test vote," said Regan, adding that he considers the vote purely a housekeeping measure — making sure the government can get the money needed to pay its debts.

As director of the Office of Management and Budget, Stockman is leading the Reagan administration's effort to control the growth of federal spending. That and other parts of President Reagan's economic program will lead to a balanced budget and a sharp decline in the government's need to borrow, Stockman said.

Regan and Stockman would not say specifically what the president will include in his proposed package of spending and tax reductions. Many decisions remain to be made before Regan announces the program later this month, the treasury secretary said.

Felony Bond Policies Tightened

the jail's daytime schedule.

"They've got it cut down so we can't get anybody out of jail except for a few hours each day," complained National Bonding Co. owner Sonny Byrd.

Byrd said prisoner releases are not permitted during mealtimes or visiting hours. If necessary paperwork cannot be completed before one of these periods, an individual must sit in jail another two or three hours, the bondsman said.

Another problem, according to Byrd, involves individuals who are arrested for DWI or public intoxication.

State law requires persons arrested for drinking to be held at least four hours. In the past, the four-hour period started when the individual was arrested, Byrd said.

However, the new policy requires the four hours to begin after a suspect is booked, Byrd said. If there is a backlog in booking at the jail, he said, an individual probably will be detained all night.

Byrd said he sees the need for "some minor changes" on the release time procedures.

X-Rated Film Ban Doubted

back residence to the 58th Street apartment complex about two weeks ago.

Durden's complaints about the theater mark the second time in three months city officials have been asked to do something about the visibility of the theater's screen. Councilman Alan Henry alerted the council to the complaints in November after receiving a letter from Ramada Inn Manager Marvin Parker.

At the council meeting, Ross cautioned that the Supreme Court has issued several opinions stating theater owners have a first amendment right to show what they want unless the films are found to be obscene by a jury. A theater could not be closed, but could be prosecuted for showing a particular film, he said.

The Supreme Court also has said cities can't use traffic or zoning laws to circumvent the theater owner's rights, Ross told city officials.

Council members asked Ross to investigate ways to require theater owners to shield the X-rated movies from view of passers-by.

But Ross said Tuesday that with the high winds in the area, it would be difficult to require something like large corrugated metal sheets to block visibility because they could be blown onto nearby houses.

Hobbs School Posts Kept By Incumbents

A-J Correspondent

HOBBS — Voters here provided no surprises Tuesday night as they handed resounding victories to the two incumbents seeking reelection to the Hobbs school board.

In position 1, Jack Kernan kept his seat, tallying 974 votes to Jim McIlroy's 554 and write-in candidate Anita Maldonado's 66.

Ralph Littleton, also an incumbent, took the position 2 seat, receiving 1,191 votes to challenger Jerry Klipstine's 426.

Mrs. Maldonado, who originally filed to run for the position 2 seat before deciding to run against Kernan in position 1, wound up a write-in candidate after school district attorneys cited a 1979 election code amendment preventing someone from filing for more than one position in the same election.

This apparently confused some voters. Mrs. Maldonado received not only the 66 votes in the position 1 race but an additional 14 write-in votes for position 2.

Third Trial Sets 25-Year Sentence his client, if he had committed the crime, would have waited in his car behind the house, where Aguirre was arrested, if he had been guilty of a crime.

"Waiting for what?" Berlanga asked. "He didn't have any reason to run."

Aguirre took the witness stand — as he did in his two previous trials — to tell jurors he was in his car behind the woman's house not because he had been inside the residence, but because he had thrown up a large amount of liquor.

The defendant told the jury he went to a friend's house at about 8 p.m. and stayed two hours while drinking. After that visit, he went to play dominos with some friends at a service station, Aguirre testified.

He was on his way home sometime after 10:30 p.m. when he was forced to pull his car off the road, he continued.

"My stomach started hurting," Aguirre told the jury, adding that he stopped the car and got out to throw up. He was out of the car about five minutes then crawled into the vehicle to lie down when police approached him, he testified.

The defendant acknowledged hearing testimony from the woman that he was the man who had broken into her home through a front door, taken a shotgun from her hands and attempted to undress her until the arrival of the police.

"Is that a true statement Carlos?" Berlanga asked.

"No sir," Aguirre answered.

"Did you attempt to rape her?" Berlanga asked.

Palestinians Report Retreat Of Israelis

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Palestinian guerrilla gunners opened fire Tuesday night on Israeli gunboats and helicopters just south of here and forced them to retreat, the Palestinians reported.

The Israeli military command in Tel Aviv had no comment on the latest report of cross-border fighting, which would be the fourth cross-border Israeli raid since last Thursday.

The Palestinian-leftist Lebanese joint communique said several Israeli gunboats appeared at midnight (4 p.m. CST) offshore from Beirut's Khaldah International Airport, five miles south of the capital, but were forced to retreat.

Twenty minutes later, an Israeli gunboat and a helicopter approached Naameh, another 10 miles south of the airport, and also were driven off by guerrilla fire, the communique said.

Israeli helicopters still were in the area about an hour after the first incident, the communique added.

Earlier in the day, seaborne Israeli commandos landed near a rocky Mediterranean beach along the Lebanese coast and rocketed a Palestinian guerrilla jeep on the adjacent highway, killing three guerrillas and injuring two others, according to Lebanon's state radio.

In Israel, a military spokesman said the commandos attacked the jeep with rocket-propelled grenades two miles north of the coastal town of Sidon shortly before midnight Monday. He said all the vehicle's occupants were killed but gave no specific figure. All the raiders returned safely to base, he said.

Israeli army radio had said of the raid: "If previous attacks were seen as retribution, last night's raid represents a new stage in which the army sets the time, place, and means of action."

Palestine Liberation Organization chief Yasser Arafat visited the scene of the attack on the jeep, about 40 miles north of the Israeli border, before going to the PLO hospital in Sidon to visit the wounded guerrillas, provincial authorities said.

"I defy imperialism and Zionism with these heroes," Arafat was quoted as saying.

The Lebanese state radio broadcast reported that the raiding party, backed by Israeli gunboats, exchanged machine gun and rocket-propelled grenade fire with Palestinian guerrillas and their leftist Lebanese allies.

The Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, the radical guerrilla organization headed by Dr. George Habash, said one of its guerrillas was killed and another injured.

On Thursday, Israeli war planes attacked Palestinian targets near Sidon, Tyre and Nabatiyeh, killing four Palestinians and 10 Lebanese villagers. The air attack followed a Palestinian rocket attack on the northern Israeli border town of Kiryat Shmona that injured seven Israelis.

A second Palestinian attack on Kiryat Shmona on Friday left three more Israelis injured. Israeli artillery bombarded guerrilla bases in southern Lebanon Saturday, killing three Lebanese villagers.

Garwood Trial Nearing End

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — Pleading for the freedom of Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood, who is accused of collaborating with the Vietnamese communists, defense lawyers on Tuesday argued the case is "one of a kind" and will not create any precedents for the Marine Corps.

That assertion came as the final arguments concluded. The jury of five Vietnam veterans then decided to wait until today to begin deliberations. The presiding military judge said he will give his final instructions to the jury at 8 a.m.

In closing arguments in the court-martial, which has been a year in the making, chief defense counsel John C. Lowe characterized Garwood as a victim of systematic intimidation that drove him insane during 14 years of captivity in Vietnam.

Defense lawyers have managed to whittle the charges against Garwood from four to two. But he still faces possible life imprisonment if convicted on either charge of collaboration with the enemy or maltreatment of a fellow American.

"This is a one-of-a-kind case and it has never happened before and never again," Lowe said. As the military jury listened intently, he insisted "it is not a precedent."

The court-martial of Garwood, 34, an Indianapolis native who was captured by the Viet Cong in 1965 and returned home voluntarily in 1979, is seen by many as a test of the U.S. military's code of conduct that requires captives to resist.

Lowe, trying to counter government testimony that Garwood accepted favors from his Vietnamese captors that were turned down by other American prisoners of war, said, "The Department of Defense recognizes that things happen in POW camps. The code of conduct has a new bounce-back provision that in fact allows soldiers to go ahead and do something, to cooperate and then bounce back."

The government case, which is based on testimony from eight fellow captives of Garwood, portrays him as a survivor who put personal well-being ahead of any other consideration.

Soviets Say Haig's Charges Backfired transmitter of VOA, located somewhere in Portugal, also exhorts them" in the same way.

Acting Voice of America director M. William Harantunian said in Washington the VOA has no transmitter in Portugal and transmits no coded instructions to Poland. He added: "The Soviet charge is totally without foundation."

Izvestia did not specify what was in the "coded instructions."

However, it claimed that Western broadcasts in recent days have "established such close ties with anti-socialist elements in Poland that they advertise in advance further provocative actions. Such a schedule was already announced Feb. 1."

VOA is the station of the U.S. government information agency and Radio Free Europe is a privately operated, U.S.-financed station that broadcasts to Eastern European countries.

Transmissions to Poland by the British Broadcasting Corp. and West German Radio share the same "tricky" techniques of VOA, the Izvestia report said.

The broadcasts claim to provide "objective information" about the Polish situation but in reality "instigate ever more complications and destabilization" in the country.

"The leadership of Solidarity is prompted to carry out political activities opposing the organs of authority and not to subordinate themselves to power," the newspaper claimed.

Western broadcasts last month gave a "special accent" to "hindering" the Polish leadership's ability to deal with the unrest, it said.

"At the same time, they spread the completely false invention about outside danger allegedly threatening Poland from the side of the Warsaw Pact alliance," Izvestia declared.

Such reports, the newspaper said, are directed by "those centers of NATO for which the struggle and psychological war against socialism and hatred of a new world was and is one of the principal tasks."

Izvestia said the Polish leadership, party members and other Poles have urged a "decisive rebuff" for these "intrigues" by the enemies of the socialist system.

Man Becomes Burglary Victim During Overnight Jail Stay

A Lubbock man jailed on suspicion of public intoxication Monday night after an incident at a local club told police his home may have been burglarized and his car stolen by four men he had been fighting with at the nightclub.

The 30-year-old man was arrested about 11 p.m. outside the Jiggers Up Club, 4801 Ave. Q, and taken to the Lubbock County Jail, according to reports. He was arrested after being involved in a fight with the four men in the parking lot of the club, police said.

When he went home Tuesday morning after bonding out of jail, the man said he discovered his home had been ransacked and burglarized. He said he then went to the club parking lot and his 1977 Chevrolet El Camino was missing.

The man told police he had placed his sport coat on top of the vehicle during the altercation and the coat and car were left at the club when he was arrested.

The victim told officers he believes the four men found the coat, which contained personal papers and his home and car keys, entered his home and stole his car.

Taken in the burglary were a .38-caliber revolver, a .357-magnum revolver, a gold pocket watch and chain, a gold pen and pencil set, a wedding ring, a gold stick pin, a 12-piece silverware set, three bottles of liquor, a stereo system and $1,400 to $1,600 in cash.

The loss was estimated to be between $6,000 and $8,000, reports show.

In other activity, a Lubbock woman told police a man tried to force her car off the road Tuesday morning.

Brenda Paulene Martin said she was westbound on Loop 289 between Indiana and Quaker Avenues when she attempted to pass a pickup truck.

As she was doing so, the woman said she noticed a man in a Chevrolet Monte Carlo "inches" behind her vehicle. The man then passed her on the right side of the road and pulled in front of her car, police said.

Both motorists then stopped, and the man began cursing the woman and advising her that she did not own the loop, according to reports. He then got back in his car and drove away, but the woman provided police with the license number of his car, reports show.

A 36-year-old woman told Lubbock police she was beaten and robbed of $620 by a man who confronted her inside a club in the 600 block of Idalou Road shortly after midnight Tuesday.

Willie Brantley of Lubbock said she was making change in the club when the man approached her and demanded the cash. She said he then grabbed the loot, knocked her to the floor and kicked her several times.

The victim suffered injuries to the back and stomach, but police said she refused medical treatment at the scene.

After beating the woman, the bandit fled. He was described as a short, black man, between 26 and 35, wearing a multi-colored shirt and jeans.

In other activity, police took a boy into custody for allegedly sexually assaulting a 9-year-old girl shortly before 6 p.m. Monday.

The girl told officers she was playing with the suspect's sisters at his house when the boy's mother left. Reports state the 16-year-old youth coaxed the victim into the garage, refused to let her leave and sexually assaulted her.

Police were told the boy's grandmother heard screams, went into the garage and found the victim on the floor partially disrobed.

The boy, who was hiding behind a freezer when the girl was found, later confronted his grandmother and the victim and reportedly admitted committing the assault.

The boy also went to the victim's parents' house to apologize after his brother talked him into coming down from a tree he had climbed after the incident, reports state.

The victim was treated and counseled at Lubbock General Hospital. The teenager was questioned by authorities and then turned over to officials with the juvenile detention center here.

A 26-year-old Lubbock man was arrested about 5 p.m. Monday after he allegedly attempted to rob another man in a field north of the 3500-block of Municipal Drive.

Henry Ray Williams, 53, of 120 Ave. T told police he had won some money from the suspect in a dice game. He said the suspect then drove him near Municipal Drive where he demanded the winnings. When Williams refused to hand over the money, the two men began to struggle, according to reports.

Williams said he broke loose and began to run when the other man brandished a shotgun and began shooting at him. Uninjured by the gunfire, the victim ran to a business and called police.

Homeowner Badly Hurt In Early Morning Fire

An early morning house fire seriously injured a 76-year-old man, whose life may have been saved by his wife, who dragged him out of a burning bedroom.

Marvin Wilson of 2506 53rd St. was listed in serious, but stable condition Tuesday at Methodist Hospital with first and second-degree burns covering 30 percent of his body.

A Lubbock Fire Department spokesman estimated damage to the three-bedroom residence at between $15,000 and $20,000.

The 6:30 a.m. blaze erupted in a southeast bedroom occupied by Wilson, who was recuperating from a broken right arm. Asked what caused the fire, Lubbock Fire Marshal Robert Stokes said "smoking in bed."

The fire was discovered by Wilson's wife, Mary, who helped pull the injured man away from the blaze. "His wife dragged him out of bed and into the hallway. And then she couldn't take the smoke any longer," and fled to a neighbor's house to call for help, Stokes said.

District fire chief Jack Carlisle said the blaze was tapped within 20 minutes.

A pet dog, which the couple had for 13 years, died from smoke inhalation, according to officials.

Baker said he laughed at the robber because he initially thought the man was a friend playing a joke on him. The gunman then became angry and again demanded money, the clerk said.

The robber forced Baker to open the cash register, the attendant said, but he carefully removed the bills so the store's Crime Eye camera would not be activated.

After taking the money, Baker said the bandit made the clerk lie on the floor. Police do not know whether the suspect was on foot or in a vehicle.

The robber was described as a young, slender white man wearing a gray jacket with a hood.

Opposition To Iran Retaliation Aired At Debate

By LARRY SUTHERLAND
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A Texas Tech University Forum debate Tuesday on whether the United States should retaliate against Iran for their taking of hostages produced a slight edge of participants who oppose retaliation.

The question of retaliation has itself in one form or another been considered recently by the Reagan administration after the release of the 52 hostages held at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran. But the president has indicated military force will not be a form of retaliation.

And none of proponents of "retaliation" at the Tech debate specified military force as means to punish Iran, instead suggesting some form of economic retaliation.

"The United States has a very legitimate complaint, the taking of hostages at the embassy," said Dennis Garza, opponent of retaliation, "but Iran has legitimate gripes over U.S. involvement in Iran." Another retaliation opponent argued that the United States previously has acted improperly in Iran by helping to overthrow the Iranian government in 1953 and replace it with a government headed by Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi.

"Will you base U.S. foreign policy on something so childish as revenge?" Garza asked. "What will we have to gain by retaliating against Iran? It will eliminate no wrong, but make two wrongs and that does not make a right."

Garza, a political science sophomore at Tech, joined with Dr. Harry Mossman, an assistant professor in speech communication, in formally presenting arguments against retaliation against Iran. Dr. S.M. Kennedy, a political science professor, and Tom Nichols, a teaching assistant in speech communications, presented formal arguments favoring some form of retaliation.

Of the approximately 50 persons in the audience for the debate, more lined up on the side favoring retaliation. However, when an informal poll was taken at the end of the debate it produced 35 opposed to retaliation and 23 in favor, according to Dr. John F. Deethardt, chairman of the debate.

"In short, the Iranian crisis was an embarrassment to the United States — something that brought us to our knees," Nichols said, in favoring retaliation that "means bringing (Iranians) to their knees politically and economically."

"The crisis in Iran was a Third World crisis" and United States involvement in negotiating with Iran had weakened America's position with the developing Third World countries, he added.

"We should not hold to that treaty because it was a contract signed under duress," Nichols said of the agreement reached by the Carter administration ending the hostage crisis.

Mossman countered that punishing Iran for the taking of the embassy personnel might be too broad and negate the influence of moderate elements in Iran. He said the Third World countries already see the United States as not trustworthy in many instances and retaliation would only add to the lack of trust.

Kennedy said "protection of embassies" in foreign lands is an accepted position of virtually all nations and Iran deserves retaliation for violating this principle. He said the captors sought advice from the leadership of Iran on what to do, and this clearly meant Iranian government involvement in the hostage keeping.

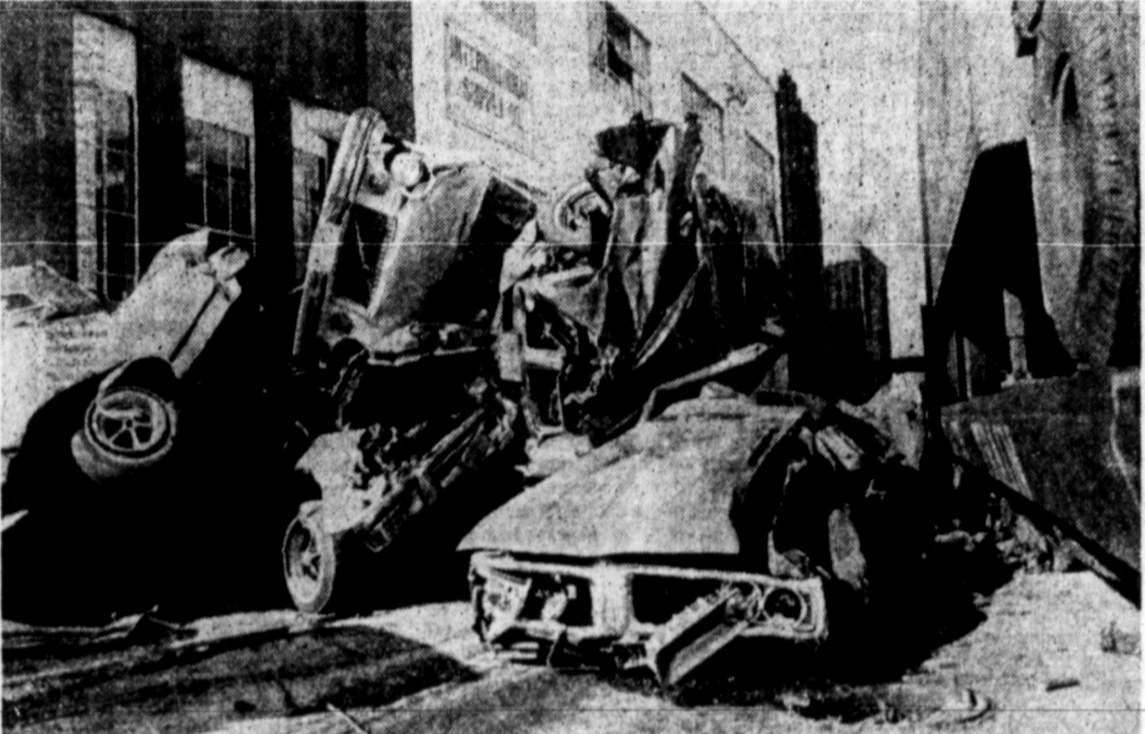

"Both our friends and opponents were aghast at the way we acted" by dealing with the Iranians, Kennedy said, adding stronger action is needed. Kennedy pointed to cutting off trade and aid to Iran and with returning illegal Iranian aliens to Iran as retaliation methods.

"Terrorists all over the world will take advantage of the United States" unless some retaliatory actions were taken, agreed Jeff Alley, a junior at Tech who agreed in some type of retaliation.

But graduate student Patricia Smithee said retaliation would not be feasible. "I think the 52 people over there paid the price for our meddling over in Iran," she said.

Alley also argued that not retaliating might increase an arms race, while Garza countered that retaliation would add to the build up of arms.

The debate forum on Iran was one of two dozen debates on a variety of topics held at the university during the past two years.

Hispanic Leader Here Raps Bilingual Reform

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A Lubbock Hispanic leader Tuesday condemned the Reagan administration's decision to withdraw federal guidelines for expanding bilingual education, but school officials said the program would have been costly and damaging.

Chevo Morales, president of the Lubbock council of the League of United Latin American Citizens, said "We're not very pleased" with Education Secretary Terrel Bell's move to scrap the federal regulations. Developed under the Carter administration, the guidelines would have mandated instruction in a student's native language through grade 12.

"Reagan has taken the wrong step right away by doing this," Morales said. "We felt this coming," he said, adding that Hispanics are willing to make sacrifices but that the move by the new administration is an arbitrary "whacking away" at strides made by Hispanics.

"It's taken us years to get this far." He echoed national LULAC President Ruben Bonilla's criticism that Reagan appears to be showing little gratitude for the massive Hispanic vote he gained.

Morales said, however, that the Lubbock bilingual program is "one of the best in the state" and said he is concerned more for the national status of bilingual education.

He said his group probably will issue in the next few days a formal statement concerning the action taken by the new education secretary.

The president of the Lubbock school board, however, was critical of the proposed federal regulations because of the potential cost involved.

"I think it is not practical to teach everyone in their native tongue," said trustees president Monte Hasie. "I don't think it's something we could do as a nation or in the local school district because of the cost involved. We would need a lot more classes to teach the same number of kids."

The director of bilingual education for the district agreed with Hasie, explaining that it would have been close to impossible to provide teachers to instruct every child in the district in his or her native tongue. "Students come to us with many different languages," said Lucy Gutierrez. "Sometimes there might be a teacher for just one or two students. How could we do that?"

Mrs. Gutierrez said the scrapped proposal would have called for a maintenance program that would prolong a student's acquisition of the English language.

The philosophy of Lubbock educators has always been that bilingual education should be a transitional, not maintenance program. With a strong program in the elementary grades, bilingual education beyond that level should in most cases be unnecessary, she said.

Some school districts may need a beefed-up bilingual program. Mrs. Gutierrez said, but not necessarily one that would continue through grade 12.

She pointed out that Texas probably will have to await word on the new philosophy on bilingual education voiced by the new administration before the state plan will be affected.

A Texas federal judge ordered last month that the state's bilingual program be improved and expanded and has given time for development of a new plan.

Mrs. Gutierrez said that no matter what regulations are mandated, "We're (Lubbock educators) going to deal with our children's needs. We are meeting our students' needs."

Weekends Called Dangerous For Drivers In Lubbock

By PAT GRAVES
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Mayor Bill McAlister warned Lubbock motorists Tuesday that, according to 1980 traffic statistics, the most dangerous time to drive in Lubbock is on the weekend.

Of the 31 fatal accidents last year, McAlister said 15 occurred on Fridays and Saturdays, as did 35 percent of all accidents. He called the period between 5 p.m. Friday and 3 a.m. Sunday the most hazardous.

The mayor told the Citizens Traffic

Commission Tuesday morning that figures show one third of the 1980 fatal accidents occurred between the hours of midnight and 4 a.m., and eight occurred between 4 p.m. and 8 p.m.

McAlister also stressed the influence of alcohol on drivers as an integral factor in 11 of the 31 deadly wrecks, which accounted for 34 deaths last year. So it would appear Lubbock streets are least safe late at night on weekends when many drivers are returning from nightclubs and parties.

The mayor pointed out, however, that almost 68 percent of all accidents occurred last year during daylight hours, although the more serious ones were at night, and 73 percent in clear weather. Another particularly dangerous time to drive, McAlister said, is between 3 p.m. and 6 p.m. on weekdays, when 22.5 percent of all 1980 accidents happened.

The mayor announced the city's Selective Traffic Enforcement Program (STEP) has been funded by the Texas highway department through June with a $110,665 grant. An additional $27,000 in state money has been granted to pay for the police department's computerized traffic analysis system.

Calling STEP very successful, McAlister noted traffic accidents have decreased 17 percent since the program went into effect in 1978. McAlister did not mention, however, that traffic deaths rose in 1980.

Lubbock recorded 23 traffic fatalities in 1979, and 34 in 1980, despite some 25,000 tickets being issued last year by STEP officers. Three persons have lost their lives on Lubbock streets this year. In fact, the first death occurred on New Year's Day when a man trying to right his motorcycle was struck by a car on 19th Street.

McAlister stated that 19th Street accounted for 10 percent of all 1980 accidents. The most dangerous portion is between Avenues A and J, he said. Of the approximately 9,700 accidents last year, 937 were on 19th Street.

The second highest number of accidents occurred on 50th Street, where 910 were reported. McAlister said its most hazardous stretch is between Avenues A and K. The next most dangerous streets, in order of number of accidents, were 34th Street, University Avenue, Slide Road and Loop 289.

Surprisingly, McAlister said, statistics show more than half (56 percent) of all 1980 Lubbock accidents occurred at intersections controlled by traffic signals, stop signs or yield signs.

Announcement Delayed On Tech Regent

Although Gov. Bill Clements may announce his intentions this week on his choice to fill the remaining vacancy on the Texas Tech University board of regents, no name is expected to be presented to the state senate this week for confirmation.

Clements is out of the state and although he could send word of his announcement to Austin to be released, he may wait until next week.

Although a spokesman said Friday when two other Tech board vacancies were filled that the third announcement was merely a matter of paperwork to be completed, that apparently has changed.

"The person he had in mind didn't work out," Linda Howell, a member of the governor's appointments office, said Tuesday. She said additional names had been given to Clements for his consideration and that he may have reached a decision already but that no official announcement is ready for release.

Officials Unsure About Proper Care To Help Suicidal Woman

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Three persons walking down Avenue D last week gave little notice to the short, obese woman as she walked past them. They didn't realize she held a kitchen knife in her right hand.

The three said that moments later they saw the woman, her back turned to them, pull open her coat and blouse and move the right hand toward her stomach.

She then wheeled around and, with her clothes still pulled back, revealed the handle of the knife she had just buried into her abdomen.

The horrified trio called police. The first officer on the scene said the woman was sitting on a porch, her shirt pulled up and the "knife was in almost to the hilt."

The 42-year-old woman told officer Dexter McKay she had been jumped and stabbed in the street by an assailant whom she could not describe. She told a person standing nearby that she was attacked by a white man.

"And she later told me that she was stabbed by her husband, a black man," McKay said in his report.

The woman was taken to Lubbock General Hospital where Emergency Medical Services technicians told officers it was the fourth time within a month the woman had been taken to the hospital, each time the victim of a self-inflicted stab wound.

A hospital spokesman said the woman left the next morning "against medical advice."

She is well known to local lawmen, many of whom have investigated her complaints of being attacked — by a black man, a Mexican-American or a white. Her assailant, she tells the officer each time, displays a knife when she rejects his sexual advances.

But investigators say there is overwhelming evidence, at least in most cases, that she is the one who reveals the weapon and turns it on herself. She has cried wolf too many times, they say.

Most who know her say they don't feel the woman means to seriously harm herself, although one officer said her stomach "is just a big mass of scar tissue," and a doctor said it is now hard to find a vein to inject antibiotics and other medicine when the woman enters the hospital.

Acquaintances say her actions are just a radical cry for attention.

"She simply likes to be around people who can take care of her," said one officer, who asked not to be identified. "I've been around her only one time and she doesn't strike me as being crazy...other than poking herself in the stomach and passing it off on someone else," he said.

Medical attendants say the woman's fatty build has so far prevented her from piercing a vital organ. The knife has usually had a short or average length blade. But she at times has been listed in serious condition upon entering a hospital, and medical personnel say there is always the danger of infection.

In the past decade, the woman has reported being assaulted about 20 times. Last November, she walked into the Lubbock County Jail and, much to the jailer's surprise, revealed a knife with an eight-inch blade sticking in her stomach.

As in many of her reports, she told of walking down the street (one she could not remember) when a Mexican-American man drove up and offered her a ride, which she accepted. She said that when they neared 13th Street and Avenue F, the man asked her for a "date." When she refused, the man stabbed her and kicked her out of the car, she said.

She told officers she was unable to see where the assailant went, but that she managed to walk to the jail for help.

On Sept. 21, 1980, a police officer was waved down by two persons who said a woman stopped their car and asked for directions to the nearest hospital. The woman's shirt was torn, revealing a wooden knife handle, they said. She was located and taken by ambulance to Methodist Hospital where she told of being assaulted by two white men who had confronted her on 19th Street.

She said one man stabbed her and the other hit her in the back of the neck after she turned down money for sex.

A year earlier, the woman, bleeding profusely from the stomach, walked into the emergency room of the then-Health Sciences Center Hospital. She said an unknown male, driving a green pickup, gave her a ride and then began fondling her. When she pushed him back, the man cut her with an unknown object, according to the report.

Her complaints used to be classified as aggravated assaults. But the complaint last week was labeled attempted suicide, indicating officers are incredulous from the very start. In fact, the woman, also a familiar face to ambulance attendants and emergency room personnel, has become a joke.

But the laughing stops when someone asks why the woman has not been helped. Why is it the injured woman is simply allowed to leave, with everyone knowing well they will see her again?

Texas' revised civil statutes state, "Any health or peace officer who has reason to believe...that the person is mentally ill and because of his mental illness is likely to cause injury to himself or others if not immediately restrained, may upon obtaining a warrant from any magistrate, take such person into custody and immediately transport him to the nearest hospital..."

The law further states, however, that detention can only be at a place where there is proper psychiatric care. And the person cannot be held more than 24 hours unless there is a written order from the county court. An application also can be made through the court for temporary hospitalization.

"The application may be made by any adult person, or by the county judge, and shall state upon information and belief that the proposed patient is not charged with a criminal offense, that he is mentally ill, and that for his own welfare and protection or the protection of others he requires observation and/or treatment in a mental hospital," the law says.

Records show the woman was briefly committed to a state hospital in 1971. But there has been no recent attempt made to

When you think about it, technology has come no appreciable distance in this country. Oh, sure, we have electronic games to amuse us and garbage compactors (a spinoff of pantyhose), but we still sit around the campfire and our children still carve on the walls.

Medical technology is even worse. The common cold is still a mystery. No one knows why hot flashes occur in the summer but never in the winter when you need them. And not one member of the medical community has tackled the biggest mystery of all — how to stop children's feet from growing.

For years, parents have tried to anticipate the rate of growth. From the time a child is old enough to walk until his final days of college, he never had a pair of shoes that really fit.

I have seen my children's feet through an X-ray machine and have known for a fact that there are a good two sizes to go before he outgrows them. In the two short blocks from the store to the car, there is growth beyond belief and he is saying, Mom! These shoes are pinching my toe and rubbing my heel.

You could buy 135 pairs of shoes in assorted sizes and not once during the entire year would your child fit in one of them. That's the ways kids' feet are.

There are other mysteries surrounding children's feet. I had a son who took a cab to the bathroom. He never walked anywhere. Everywhere I turned I saw his feet propped up at eye level — on coffee tables, over chairs, on top of the TV set, on the dashboard, on the walls.

I drove him to school right up to his desk. I drove him to ball practice, the library, his friends, houses, to the playground, the activities center, the gym and the drugstore. The kid had virgin feet. Believe me, a piece of lint would have caused him pain. He had his shoes three weeks when he reported there was a hole in the toe.

I figured out once if children's intellect developed at the same rate as their feet, by the time they were five they could speak 15 languages, debate Freud (and win), explain Plato, outwit Shakespeare, challenge Einstein and make parents obsolete.

You have probably wondered why more children don't run away from home. The truth is, their feet hurt. They go through life with nose tissues stuffed in the toe or their toe stuffed in the toe.

I don't know what the answer is, but until children's feet are given scientific priority, the little toddler with the flipper feet that slap with every step will always be with us.

Workaholic Husband Makes Wife Happier

Dear Ann Landers: I read the letter from the wife who complained that her husband was a workaholic. It really made me mad. What do these women want from their husbands, anyway? If you ask me, they are crazy. I would rather have a husband who works too hard than not at all, and I have had both kinds. My first marriage was a disaster because the man's main aim in life was to take it easy. He worked about one-third of the time. The rest he spent hunting, fishing, playing golf and poker. His favorite pastime was pointing out in the obituary columns the names of young men who died of heart attacks. "Overwork," he always said. "It won't happen to me."

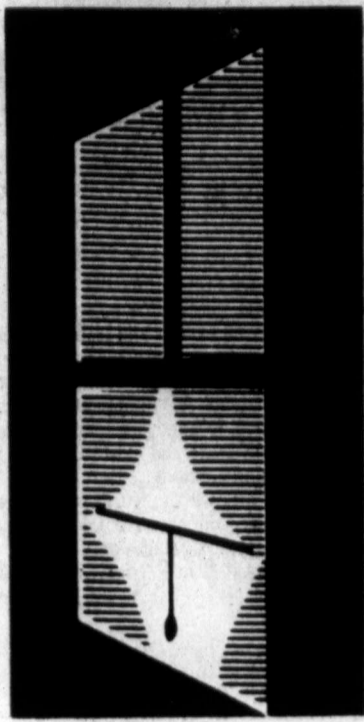

After working a double shift for six years so we could eat and pay the rent, I got smart and filed for divorce. I am now married to a man who loves to work. Some people say he's a workaholic, but I don't care what label they put on him — he's full of pep, always has a smile and we don't owe anybody a dime. — Been Both Places And This Is Better

Dear Better: Read on. There's more.

Dear Ann: Your advice to the woman who was married to the workaholic was right on. You said, "Stay off his back and keep yourself busy. He's not going to change."

When we were first married I felt resentful because my husband's work was more important to him than I. After I sat down and had a good talk with myself I decided to stop nagging him or he might work even later to avoid coming home.

You were right when you said women nag men for the very qualities they complain about later. I wanted an ambitious husband who would "go places." Well — I got one. I no longer feel sorry for myself and am looking at the positive side. Believe me, Ann, life is a whole lot better. — Got It All Together In Bridgeport

Depression: Women More Likely To Suffer From Costly American Epidemic Illness

EDITORS NOTE: Depression is more than feeling down in the dumps. It's an illness and it strikes women twice as often as men. In the first of a three-part series, AP Writer Jane See White describes the disease, its terms and its costs.

By JANE SEE WHITE
Associated Press Writer

Odds are, someone you know is depressed — someone who doesn't laugh anymore, who's lost weight, can't sleep. Odds are 2-to-1 that the someone is a woman.

Depression is an epidemic that University of Pennsylvania researcher Martin Seligman estimates costs Americans up to $4 billion a year in lost work and medical bills. Its social cost is enormous — broken marriages, troubled children, suicide, even homicide.

The National Institute of Mental Health says one in every five Americans, 40 million people, have significant symptoms of depression at any one time. About 2.4 million of them suffer severe, clinical depression.

Two-thirds of them are women. Why? The experts aren't sure.

In 1979, 3 million Americans took medicine to fight depression and even more Americans turned to therapists for help.

"Depression is a natural disaster. It breaks up marriages, costs jobs, hampers the capacity to mother," said Maggie Scarf, author of "Unfinished Business," a study of depression in women. "Freud said nobody who has a toothache can be in love. Well, a person who is depressed has a life-ache — the pain just overwhelms everything else."

The pain can be fatal, too. One in 200 episodes of depression ends in suicide. Some victims are well-known — Marilyn Monroe, Jean Seberg. For each suicide, 10 depression victims try to kill themselves and fail.

Depression is the oldest known psychiatric disorder. Even the ancient Greeks suffered from it. But scientists still don't know what causes depression, much less why most of its victims are women.

"Depression isn't like strep throat.

We can tell you why you get strep throat," said psychiatrist Jack Ewald, chief of mental health at the Veterans Administration. "Depression is more like cancer — we know there are some things that tend to cause it in susceptible people."

Though scientists believe there may be more, two forms of depression have been identified. Most common is what laymen call "a real downer" — an intense sense of sadness and despair, guilt and hopelessness.

"A depressed person isn't just down in the dumps ...," said Frank Ayd, psychiatrist and research director at Taylor Manor Hospital in Ellicott City, Md. "At times life may get lousy for all of us, but guilt and hopelessness are out of place."

Ninety percent of victims suffer this form, called unipolar depression. A moderate case dulls the ability to feel pleasure, causes a nagging sadness, a clinging sense of hopelessness. A severe case can be immobilizing.

—A Kansas City housewife: "I have no desire to do anything ... I don't want to cook and I don't want to eat. Then I get to the point where I don't want to live."

—A Philadelphia mother with a graduate degree in social work: "I've been so depressed for six or seven months that I can hardly get out of bed ... Life's not worth living anymore. I feel like I'm failing in every way — as a wife, as a mother and as a human being." She considered suicide, she said, "but I'd probably mess that up, too."

Most unipolar depression victims lose interest in food — though a few begin to eat all the time. Most feel tired, sapped of energy and have trouble sleeping — though a few begin to sleep all the time.

Indeed, the symptoms of unipolar depression can be so contrary that many depression victims don't know what's wrong.

"I would estimate that half of depression cases are misdiagnosed," said Robert Hirschfeld, a psychiatrist and chief of the NIMH Center for the Study of Affective Disorders.

"It's commonly misdiagnosed because people don't complain about feeling sad, they complain about the physical symptoms."

Depression attacks the whole body. It causes constipation, churning stomachs, impotence or frigidity, headache, back-ache, insomnia.

The complex of symptoms is well documented, but a doctor who isn't thinking of depression might conclude there's something physically wrong. And sometimes depressed people insist they're ill.

"Wearing the dark glasses of melancholia, they think they must ... have some terminal illness," said Ayd, who once surveyed 500 depressed patients and found they'd taken their symptoms to 1,500 medical specialists.

"They kept asking for more tests because they couldn't believe they didn't have a brain tumor," he said.

People who suffer unipolar depression generally get better. Treatment ranges from talk therapy and drugs to electrically induced brain seizures. One type of therapy or another helps in 85 percent of cases, experts say.

Depression takes another, less common form, known as bipolar or manic-depression. It strikes only one person for every 10 struck by unipolar depression, and it strikes men almost as often as women.

Actress Vivien Leigh suffered from bipolar depression, according to her biographers. Dance pioneer Alvin Ailey is another well-known sufferer.

At its most severe, manic-depression torments its victims with wide, uncontrollable mood changes, from high and confident — best in the business, ruler of the earth — to low and worthless.

Studies have found that bipolar depression tends to run in families and experts believe it may be inherited. Treatment with lithium, an antidepressant, works in most cases — but most manic-depressives take the drug for life.

There may be other forms of depressive illness that medicine has not yet identified from these two relatively broad categories.

"Depression may be a group of disorders with a number of different causes," said Hirschfeld.

Safety First With Iron Stove

LAS CRUCES — Many families are trying to ease the cost of other home heating fuels by turning to wood and coal. When installing and using cast iron stoves, safety should be the first concern, according to JoAnn Less, Extension housing specialist at New Mexico State University.

A stove with fire brick lining is necessary for burning coal, but most good quality cast iron stoves can burn wood safely without the fire brick lining.

When installing a new stove, make sure it is on a brick platform or fireproof asbestos stoveboard. Even the fireproof stoveboard might conduct too much heat for safety if the stove's legs are shorter than six inches. The new stove should be installed at least 24 inches away from the nearest sidewall, and a heat resistant covering might be advisable on a sidewall that is only a few inches beyond this minimum.

Never use a pipe labeled "vent" for a stove chimney. A vent pipe is made from only a single thickness of metal and can get extremely hot. It could start a fire in combustible materials in walls or ceilings, or in curtains or drapes if they are hung near the stove.

Use a pipe labeled "all fuel" for the chimney, and the pipe should also have the Underwriter's Laboratory seal. This chimney pipe is either double thickness with asbestos between the pipes, or a triple-walled pipe with an air gap between the individual pipe walls.

If you have any doubts about the way your stove is installed, your local fire department will probably be glad to make an inspection and give recommendations for changes, if needed.

There are some basic safety precautions about use of a wood or coal stove after it's installed.

Never stoke up a wood or coal fire to the point where it changes the color of the stovepipe. A glowing red stovepipe is a signal of immediate danger. Cool the fire as quickly as possible by closing the stove's dampers and partially closing the stovepipe damper.

If that doesn't get results fast enough, shovel some ashes on top of the burning wood or coal.

Before opening the firebox to add fuel, or to check the fire, always open the stovepipe damper first and wait a few seconds. This allows gases that may have accumulated in the firebox to escape up the chimney. Without this precaution, accumulated gases may flare up or explode when air suddenly comes in the firebox door.

Check regularly to make sure that no wood, kindling, newspapers, furniture, or other flammable material has been left close to the stove. Keep anything flammable at least three feet from the stove.

Wood stoves, like fireplaces, can accumulate creosote in the chimney that may result in a chimney fire. To clean, drop a line with rag attached down the chimney. The stovepipe should be taken down at least once a year to thoroughly clean out any creosote deposits.

Don't keep kerosene or other flammable liquids in the same room with a wood or coal burning stove. Never use any of these to start a fire because there is always danger of spilling them, or an explosion resulting from the vaporized liquids.

Finally, don't dump stove ashes into a cardboard box or plastic sack. A live coal could be buried in the ashes and ignite the box or sack. Ashes should be put in a metal container, and then taken outside the house as soon as possible.

Dear Ann Landers: Much has been written about the male workaholic. One hardly ever sees a word about the female of the species. I am an authority on the subject, because I am married to one.

My wife does not hold a paying job, but she is busy morning, noon and night doing for our five kids, helping out with church activities, cooking, cleaning, marketing, shopping and reading Time magazine. She manages to do everything except get enough rest and spend time with her husband.

Whenever we sit together to watch a TV show she falls asleep. She also dozes off the minute we get into the car to go someplace. Any loving that can be fitted in must be in the middle of the night. She is never ready to go to bed when I am because there's always something she has to do. I get up before she does and fix my own breakfast.

Any suggestions for a husband who doesn't hang out in bars or chase other women? I am — Lonely In The Night In Paterson, N.J.

Dear Lonely: Your problem is not "workaholism." It's a marriage that has gone flat. All the busy stuff that occupies your wife's attention is designed to keep you at arm's length.

Show her this letter and tell her it's yours. Tell her, too, that I hope you will sit down together and talk about what went wrong. If you both make a genuine effort you should be able to get things back on the track. A counselor may be helpful. Good luck, and let me know what happens.

How young is too young for a child to learn about sex? That's just one thing you'll find in Ann Landers' new booklet.

QUICK CLEANING
Take faster baths. Too much soaking in warm water dissolves your skin's protective layer of oil, helps moisture escape all over. Also, since vigorous scrubbing exposes a more porous skin surface, moisture-escape is made even easier — but this situation is corrected when you finish your bath or shower with plenty of good moisturizing lotion.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH:

Uterus Transplant Reality Not Near

By PAUL DONOHUE, M.D.
Dear Dr. Donohue: I and another woman friend both have had hysterectomies. We are still relatively young and would like to be able to have more children. Of course, without a uterus we cannot. So our question is: will the time come in the real near future when a woman will be able to have a uterus transplant? We both have both of our ovaries and fallopian tubes. Just the uterus is missing. Why would a uterus transplant be any different from other kinds? — Mrs. E.A. and V.V.

Anything is possible. The transplantation of a uterus is not technically unthinkable, but I am not aware of any medical center in the world where this kind of surgery is being attempted. If there is I will hear in return mail, be assured.

Organ transplantation is not a "free lunch" proposition. Organs are transplanted today to relieve a life and death situation — kidneys for kidney failure, for example. Surgical removal of an organ from one person and placing it in another is not the greatest problem. The real problem is to keep the transplanted organ alive in the new body. To do this some price must be paid. Our bodies recognize alien tissue for what it is and immediately try to kill it.

It is this rejection phenomenon that poses the real transplant problem. To stop this from happening, the body's rejection mechanisms must be altered by powerful drugs. Doing that puts the person who is receiving the transplant at greater risk from infections, because, as you know, the body views germs themselves in the same cautious way and uses the same mechanisms to kill them.

This is one good reason why transplants are reserved for very serious illnesses. Wishing to have your own children is a serious matter for you, but the inability to have them is not putting your life in jeopardy. The drugs you would have to take to stop your body from rejecting the transplanted tissue could make you ill, possibly affect your ovaries and make you unable to conceive anyway.

So, although the possibility of a uterine transplant does exist, I doubt if the reality of it will be here soon. Have you considered foster children if adoption is difficult to manage?

Dear Dr. Donohue: Would you please explain in your column the disease called "herbie scerbie?" I have heard of it before and am not sure of the spelling. — Mrs. J.P.

I am basing my answer to you on the hope that you mean scurvy, which results from a deficiency of vitamin C. This deficiency is rare in our society, where most people have ready access to many food sources of that vitamin. It is found in milk, liver, fish and a wide variety of fruits and vegetables. The vitamin is partially preserved in most food processing — boiling, steaming, pressure cooking, freezing, etc. A daily glass of orange juice satisfies our needs.

From time to time, scurvy develops in older citizens living alone and depriving themselves of nourishment. Signs of scurvy include easy bruising, bleeding of gums and poor healing of minor cuts. These signs develop because vitamin C is needed to form the body's "glue" — its supportive tissue, which keeps small, fragile blood vessels from breaking. Treatment of scurvy is, quite simply, to provide vitamin C. If I am wrong and "herbie scerbie" means something else, write again. If there is no disease by that name, there certainly should be.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Is it bleeding of the blood vessels that causes muscles to swell? — K.S.

Blood does rush into the network of vessels in an exercising muscle, making it temporarily swollen. That's why body builders pump iron (lift weights) before contests. It makes their muscles look bigger, if only temporarily.

A related question follows.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My son had rheumatic fever when he was eight years old. It left him with a heart murmur. He is 19 now and wants to take part in sports. He has been active, but not in organized programs, where, I note, the coaches demand so much more strenuous exercise. Is it safe for him to take part in school sports? Does a murmur of itself mean it is out of the question? — Mrs. R.P.

The answer depends on the degree of damage to his heart, if any. The fact of a heart murmur does not automatically exclude him from physical activity. It does not have to mean there is something seriously wrong with his heart. Even if it is found that he has a leaky valve from the rheumatic fever, that doesn't necessarily rule out sports participation. But if he does have such a condition, and if he has an enlarged heart, along with an abnormal EKG reading and abnormal pressure within the heart chambers, then activity would have to be restricted.

In light of the history of rheumatic disease, you would certainly be well-advised to have your son undergo a thorough heart examination before giving the green light to organized sports activities.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Service To Women Award Presentation Slated In March

The "Women Helping Women" award will be presented March 26 by Soroptimist International of Lubbock at its third annual awards banquet to be held in Lakeridge Country Club.

The award is granted to a woman who has, by example or by direct action in her respective field, advanced the status of women.

Any person or group may nominate a local woman for the award. Forms have been sent to various civic and professional organizations but additional forms may be obtained from Stephanie Owens at 797-3177 or by writing the organization at P.O. Box 88, Lubbock, Texas 79408. Deadline for nominations is Feb. 15.

Soroptimist International is a service organization of professional, executive and career women whom are concerned among other interests with working to obtain human rights for all people and especially to enhance the status of women.

was no reason to go against the percentage here and South was properly punished.

Why did South get five match points instead of a zero? Because some players got to six notrump and could only come to 11 tricks.

So much for the play. The bidding to seven diamonds is very interesting. South's jump to three diamonds is subminimum by most standards, but it works perfectly here. North raises to four diamonds and now South abstains from Blackwood and cue bids five clubs.

North can now afford a five heart cue bid of his own and South makes the fine bid of five spades.

North's five notrump is a multi-purpose attempt to reach a grand slam. North does not know if spades or diamonds should be the final contract, but he wants South to bid seven in either suit in which he happens to hold two of the three top honors. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Dear Dr. Donohue: I hope you can help me. My husband and I have two children and six years ago we decided we didn't want any more, so my husband had a vasectomy. Now the doctor tells me I am pregnant. Is this possible? I am afraid to tell my husband for fear he may think I have been an unfaithful wife. — D.A.

Yes, it is possible to become pregnant after your husband has had a vasectomy. The failure rate for a vasectomy is low, about one in 1,000, but it does happen. The cut ends of the tubules grow back together or form new channels. As I mentioned, this is rare.

By Gerald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Top score on a board at the Olympiad mixed pairs was 128 match points. Only three pairs reached the excellent contract of seven diamonds. Two made it for 127 and one-half match points each. At the third table West opened the ace of hearts. South ruffed in dummy and led the ace of diamonds.

Lubbock Young People Eligible For Rotary Study Scholarships

Outstanding young men and women in the Lubbock area are being sought by the Rotary Club as candidates for Rotary Foundation scholarships for study abroad in 1982-83, announced president, Dr. John Selby.

The foundation offers five types of educational scholarships:

1. Graduate Scholarships — for those who have received a bachelor's degree or equivalent and are between the ages of 20 and 28.
2. Undergraduate Scholarships — for those with a minimum of two years of university level work and are between the ages of 18 and 24.
3. Technical Training Scholarships — for those with a secondary education and at least two years working experience and are between the ages of 21 and 35.
4. Awards to Teachers of the Handicapped — for those who have been engaged as full-time teachers of the mentally, physically or educationally handicapped for at least two years at the time of application and are between the ages of 25 and 50.
5. Journalism Awards — for those who intend to pursue the profession of journalism and are between the ages of 21 and 28.

Each award includes round-trip transportation, educational and living expenses for one academic year and funds for intensive language training, if necessary.

In 1974, the Foundation started its programs of sending young adults abroad for study. Since that time, the Foundation has awarded more than $35 million for its various programs, and more than 10,000 young men and women have gone to countries other than their own for a year of study.

As a non-profit organization, the Rotary Foundation is supported by voluntary contributions from Rotarians, Rotary Clubs and friends of Rotary in 154 countries.

The deadline for application is March 1, 1981.

Further information and applications are available from Harley D. Oberhelman, Department of Classical and Romance Languages, Texas Tech University, Lubbock, Texas 79409; telephone 742-1564.

TRADITIONAL GLORIA VANDERBILT — Straight-leg jeans in washed out twill are paired with a V neck French-style sweatshirt for the most comfortable, yet most stylish look in the Vanderbilt spring collection for 1981.

ON LAND OR SEA — Gloria Vanderbilt introduces her all-white pleated walking shorts and short-sleeve sweatshirt to stay cool and fashionable during the spring.

SMOOTH SAILING — Gloria Vanderbilt's fresh madras bermuda shorts and matching shirt has a nautical flair with naval epaulet shoulders and a button-down collar. The outfit is from her spring collection for 1981.

Designer's Spring Array Offers Sportiness, Comfort

By ANNE EVANS
Family News Staff

Always on top of fashion, Gloria Vanderbilt again designs with sportiness and comfort in mind for spring.

Her main colors are red, white and blue with nautical flair, but pastels also are sprinkled throughout her spring collection.

Ease of style is important with the West Texas wind, and Vanderbilt's clothes seem to be designed with dusty weather in mind. Not only do the bright colors add to the dusty dullness of a windy day, but they also pop right into the washer for quick cleaning.

Clip 'N' Cook

AUNTIE MAME
CHICKEN LIVERS

12 chicken livers (about 3/4 lbs.)
2 tbsps. flour
1/2 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. paprika
6 tbsps. butter
1/2 lb. Spanish onion, cut in thin strips
1 lb. (3 med.) McIntosh apples (cored but unpeeled and each cut into 4 rings)
Parsley or watercress or other garnish

Cut livers in half, discarding center membranes; dry thoroughly. Dust with a mixture of the flour, salt and paprika; reserve.

In a 10-inch skillet heat 2 tablespoons of the butter, add the onion and cover; cook gently, stirring occasionally, until soft — About 20 minutes; remove and keep hot in covered foil or dish in a warm oven.

Add 2 tablespoons more butter to the skillet, and over moderate heat quickly brown the livers — they should be barely cooked through; remove to a hot serving platter and keep hot in the warm oven.

Add the remaining 2 tablespoons butter to the skillet and quickly fry the apple rings in single layers (in 2 batches) until they are cooked through and golden brown but still hold their shape.

Spoon the onions over the livers; top with the apple rings; garnish. Serve at once.

Makes 4 servings.

Vanderbilt's denims with the famous fit are available in faded lightweight fabrics as well that will look great with cowboy boots. If sailing is your thing, wear sneakers with the jeans and set a new sailing style.

New twill shorts in a variety of colors and canvas bermuda walking shorts are in the collection for those who prefer strolling through the park on nice spring days.

Fabrics are always important, and who wants clothes that restrict or confine movements? Murjani fabrics span the entire Vanderbilt collection, which help put spring and shape into each design. Stretch fabric jeans are comfortable, whether you enjoy riding, jogging, or just shopping in them. Two styles also are available, depending on your preference. The pleated, baggy look is perfect for those days you want to look like the height of fashion, and the classic, five pocket silhouette is always a good standby.

Vanderbilt's French Sweatshirt collection is another idea to top off your favorite Vanderbilt jeans. The tops feature boatnecks, extended shoulders, and contrasting piping to make this spring a truly comfortable season.

Other Vanderbilt items to collect for the spring weather include stripes, madras plaid and solid color shirts to top off pants of many shades. T-shirts also come in round, sweetheart, and crew necks.

No matter what your favorite spring sport, the Vanderbilt spring collection has the action clothes you are looking for, as well as the most stylish, sophisticated looks around.

HINTS FROM HELOISE:

Nail Polish Remover Solves Toaster Worries

DEAR HELOISE:

I happened to get part of a plastic bread wrapper — quite a large piece — stuck across the top of my little toaster oven.

It looks awful and I can't figure out how to get it off! Help! — Ruth Worley Luv, just pour a bit of fingernail polish remover onto a wad of cotton and rub it on the stuck plastic, whether it's on a toaster or some other appliance.

If feasible, let the cotton stay on the plastic for a few seconds before rubbing — it will speed up the gunk's disappearing act.

You may have to leave the cotton on for more than a few seconds, and apply more remover if the plastic is badly burned on, but patience and elbow grease, applied liberally, is the key.

Don't forget fingernail polish remover is a flammable liquid, so be sure there are no open flames around. Hope this solves your problem. — Heloise

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

DEAR HELOISE:

I solved the problem of lint on my husband's wash and wear uniforms...

He was lying on the bed when his eye caught sight of them hanging in the closet, full of lint.

My, the words he did use. I was vacuuming the floor at the time and got so peeved I just stuck the hose on the suits and the lint came off slick as a whistle. I was positively amazed.

Then I thought how funny it would be to just turn the hose on my husband and scoop him up in the sweeper! I got tickled and thought to myself, "Lord, for give me... but it sure would solve a lot of problems at times!"

Only in jest, though... love that man! — K M

CLAY TRICK

DEAR HELOISE:

The other day my two children were playing too close to my curtains and pulled the rod holders out of the wall.

Trying to find something to hold the screws in the wall, I thought of the kid's modeling clay. I applied it to the holes, inserted the screws and let it dry for several days.

To my surprise, the screws held when I put the rod back on the holder and it seems as good as new. — Louise Rawls

GUEST KIT

DEAR HELOISE:

Put a pincushion in the guest bedroom along with several needles threaded in different colors of thread as well as a few safety pins.

Your guests can sew on a button, etc., without assistance on your part and will appreciate your thoughtfulness even if the items are not needed. — Carmen Guerra

POSTAL TRICK

DEAR HELOISE:

I mark a line down the front part of postal cards, using only half of the card for the address.

By using both sides, I can write a longer message and the postcard is not impaired in any way. — Nora Dutton

RUBBER BANDS

DEAR HELOISE:

I'm always looking for rubber bands. Now, I keep a couple on the inside of the door knobs.

One is always within-easy reach. — Mrs. M. Walters

SALT THE GRIDDLE

DEAR HELOISE:

When frying hamburger patties, lightly salt your grill or skillet instead of salting the meat.

The meat won't stick yet will still absorb the salt flavor. — Mrs. Betty Ward.

PRETTY PICTURE

DEAR HELOISE:

Many of us mothers sew for our daughters who are away from home. I've found a special "love token" to include with the garment when mailing it to her.

I make a copy of the picture on the front of the pattern envelope, then she knows how the garment is modeled with added accessories and such, plus she has the pattern number for future requests to Mom.

Include this with the gift and your labor of love will be returned doublefold. — Pearl Carr

Lucky daughter to have such a sharing mom. Thanks! — Heloise

Send a clever cooking cue to Heloise, 235 E. 45th St., New York, N.Y. 10017 and, while she can't answer your letter personally, you can count on her using it in her column if it's a real doozy of an idea!

Grain Embargo Decision Called Complex, Difficult Problem

By Reuters
WASHINGTON — U. S. Trade Representative William Brock said Tuesday he would be surprised if President Reagan and the cabinet make a final decision today on the future of the Partial grain embargo against the Soviet Union.

"It seems to me there are so many elements to this decision that it would take at least a reasonable period of time before all are adequately considered," he told Reuters.

Brock said the United States should adopt a policy of linkage between future grain trade with the U.S.S.R. and with other issues but he declined comment on what concessions the United States should get in return if the embargo were lifted.

Asked about the situation in Poland, with Soviet troops massed on the border, he said:

"Poland is so sensitive it simply would not be possible to consider any action, any relationship with the Soviet Union, that did not take that into major account."

Brock said national security questions are the most important single factor that the United States has to consider in deciding whether to lift or continue the trade restrictions against the U.S.S.R.

Texas Cattle Embryos Flown To Egypt

AUSTIN (Special)—It sounds like science fiction: 150 seven-day-old cattle embryos frozen at -196 degrees C. in liquid nitrogen fly from Houston International Airport to Cairo, Egypt, a journey that may result in upgrading the diets of an undernourished people.

Granada Land and Cattle Co., located near Marquez. With him on his flight was Jim Eller, executive vice president of the cattle company.

They carried a cargo of purebred Brangus cattle embryos, valued at more than $100,000, for delivery to Arab Contractors, a private company, in Cairo. Though the Egyptian government is not directly involved, it is supporting the program. President Anwar Sada is expected to visit the project.

Brangus were chosen for their performance as beef producers and their ability to withstand a hot, arid climate. "Scientific advances are making it possible to take the superior genetics developed by the U.S. cattle industry to countries trying to improve their standard of living," said Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown. "An important advantage of transferring embryos over shipping live animals is that fetuses develop immunities to native diseases. Cattle born in the United States and shipped to other countries are more susceptible to illness."

The embryos were bred by artificial insemination and flushed from the uteruses of 13 cows which had been administered multiple hormones to make them ovulate multiple eggs. Superovulation makes it possible for a cow to produce 30 eggs or more at a time, though six to eight is average. Three to five pregnancies usually result for each collection and transfer of eggs. A cow can be superovulated several

A REVOLVING EXPORT CREDIT FUND to help finance agricultural exports has broad support in farm and agribusiness circles. But Sen. Thad Cochran, R-Miss., says it would be difficult for Congress to start such a program in its current budget tightening mood.

A large appropriation of funds would be required initially, he pointed out at the recent National Cotton Council convention at Atlanta. The revolving fund concept, supported by the NCC, would be a good method for financing exports in the long run, Cochran said at a press conference.

Cochran said the recent switch from direct loans to risk assurance for export financing was unnecessarily restrictive. The Mississippi senator is chairman of the Senate Agricultural Appropriations Subcommittee and a member of the Senate Agriculture Committee.

IF THE UNITED STATES DECLARES a trade embargo against another country, Cochran said, the embargo should include all products, not just agricultural commodities. Saying he hopes there will be no decline in appropriations for agricultural research, Cochran declared that more research is needed to improve productivity and offset increases in production costs.

The food stamp program, funded under the U. S. Department of Agriculture's budget, will be closely scrutinized this year to cut costs, fraud and waste, he said. Congress will work to improve agriculture this year so that producers are able to make a profit, Cochran told NCC delegates. He said he expects a new four-year farm bill to be approved by May 15.

The United States must seek new ways to develop export markets and consider new methods of export financing, the senator said. THE CURRENT DEBT-INCOME RATIO for farmers is the highest ever, Cochran noted, adding that cotton producers especially have suffered during the past year.

In writing a new farm bill, Congress must determine methods of calculating support levels for commodities so that target prices cover rising production costs, he said. He added that loan rates allow U. S. commodities to maintain price competitiveness with other markets. Production controls, such as acreage limitations and the normal crop acreage (NCA), also will come under close review, Cochran said.

It is important to bring supply back in line with demand, he said, adding that acreage adjustments may be tied to levels of stocks. Cochran said he expects Congress to look at the farmer-owned grain reserve program and to consider changes in the disaster and crop insurance programs.

Wives Lobbying With Gasohol Goodies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Armed with a six-quart alcohol still and a jar of mash, a group of Montana farm wives is lobbying Congress to convince lawmakers that food can be made from fuel.

when Rep. Ron Marlenee, R-Mont., invited them to offer taste tests to congressmen and their staffs beneath the chandeliers in the House Agriculture Committee's hearing room in Capitol Hill.

For disbelievers, they offer platters of cookies and brownies, spice cakes and buns, all made from the protein-rich mash that's left over from the production of gasohol.

"We are trying to prove that we are not taking food from people when we use gasohol," said Shirley Ball of Nashua, Mont. "We like to point out that we could be shipping the protein overseas, as the protein is what is most often lacking in the diets of many of the world's hungry."

On Tuesday, they hit the big time times a year without harmful effects.

MEANWHILE, REP. KIKI DE LA GARZA of Mission, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, says no major changes are expected in commodity support provisions in the 1981 farm bill.

He told a conference sponsored by the U. S. Chamber of Commerce that he expects basically an extension of the current farm bill, with some modifications.

Saying he could not be specific about new farm bill provisions, de la Garza told the conference he is interested in easing the burden on farmers caused by excessive government regulations.

De la Garza urged farm, agribusiness, university and other leaders attending the agricultural policy conference to help convince consumers that farmers — whose costs are rising steadily — deserve a fair profit in return for giving Americans the world's best diet.

The chairman reported he has met with Secretary of Agriculture John Block several times and said they have similar goals for agriculture and will be able to work together well.

COTTON FUTURES CLOSED A MODERATELY active session sharply higher Tuesday in what some analysts classified as mostly a short covering rally. The market finished with pared gains of 163 to 130 points in current marketing year months, with spot March adding the most at 90.18 cents. Deferreds gained 48 to 67 points.

force the woman to undergo psychiatric care, and hospital personnel say she will not willingly do so.

"I don't even see any papers started on this case," said Helen Ramby, secretary for Lubbock County Judge Rod Shaw. "It takes someone interested enough to come down and get commitment application papers. So many people are not willing to do this," she said.

"We just haven't had anybody come to this office who's interested enough. It's very sad," she added.

Shaw, who was reluctant to talk about the case, said "I don't have any idea" why no one has attempted to seek mandatory help for the woman. The judge, who would have to be contacted before psychiatric care could be forced on the patient, said, "I know absolutely nothing about the woman."

A Mental Health, Mental Retardation case worker also has never been assigned. The Avalanche-Journal was told.

Maj. K.O. Stuart, head of the police department's uniform division, said officers are not "discouraged or encouraged" to seek psychiatric help for ailing persons they come into contact with. "We're not doctors and we have no way of knowing how crazy a person is. It's not an officer's place any longer to try and commit them," he said.

While refusing to discuss the woman's individual case, Dr.

John Farquhar, director of emergency services at Lubbock General Hospital, said physicians must weigh the seriousness of the victim's self-inflicted wound and exhaust every other avenue of care before considering involuntary treatment.

But a nurse at Lubbock General said the woman has repeatedly turned down any help offered by the hospital.

"She very definitely should be committed," Stuart said, "but her family should do it."

Not surprisingly, however, the woman's 61-year-old mother does not feel the youngest of her two daughters should be detained in a mental health institution.

Asked if she has ever attempted to commit her daughter to the state hospital in Big Spring, the woman said, "Never have. She might not last too long down there. She's a mother's child and needs me. She's not crazy. She's just got too much on her mind. Maybe she has to talk to a psychiatrist... a good one."

"She'll be real sick sometimes. She's a nervous type of person. She likes to work, but the doctors won't let her no more. Psychiatrists have talked to her. They told her she had too much on the brain."

The mother shares a tiny apartment in a run-down East Lubbock complex with her daughter. Asked how many times her daughter has been stabbed, she said, "I can't count that high. I can't go through it."

University Businessmen Ready Appeal To Street Change Plan

By MARC FLAKE

Avalanche-Journal Staff
About 15 people made an initial attempt Monday night at organizing resistance to the city's proposal to change angle parking along University Avenue to parallel parking, according to Stephen Jantzen of Stephen Craig, a men's wear store on the mile-long strip of street slated for widening.

Steve Shanklin, part owner of the Warehouse, said the group mainly discussed what it would say at a meeting with city officials scheduled for 7 p.m. Thursday at the Mahon Library.

"We're all concerned with the proposal and how it will affect our businesses," he said.

Burl Pigg Jr. of University Jewelry said the group intends to offer alternatives. "They could redo the street without affecting us," Pigg said. "They want to put planter boxes in front of our store fronts that will hide our businesses."

According to a plan revealed Saturday by Texas Tech regents, the city is planning to widen University Avenue from four to five lanes. The regents voted to provide 11 to 17 feet of right-of-way for the widening.

The proposal to be placed before the city council affects University Avenue from Fourth to 16th streets. It includes a provision for three northbound lanes and two southbound lanes from Fourth to 16th, where the street then will become six lanes. North and southbound flow will be divided by brick medians and shrubby plantings.

The medians and plantings will prevent left turns off University heading east and off westbound streets onto University by blocking all but three intersections — Broadway, Sixth and 15th streets.

Store owners say they fear the widening will increase traffic and speeds on the street, making it more difficult — if not dangerous — for students to cross University Avenue.

However, Jim Bertram, city planning director, said Monday that the street widening was proposed because of an 11 percent traffic volume increase seen in a 1980 study of the street.

The opening of Indiana Avenue in 1977 helped decrease traffic along University, but the city is now forecasting a trend of increasing volumes on University, he said.

The brick medians and shrubby plantings will provide a refuge for pedestrians negotiating the street, he said, noting it is safer to cross three lanes of traffic going in one direction than to cross four with vehicles going in both directions.

A pedestrian light tied into the traffic signal at Broadway will be installed at Main Street to make crossing University easier, he added.

The main bone of contention between business owners and the city is the reduction of parking spaces in an area already lacking in such facilities.

According to the plan, the change from angle to parallel parking will take away about 40 parking spaces between Fourth and 19th streets.

Most half-block sections of businesses will lose two or three spaces; two sections will lose as many as six spaces.

Bertram pointed out that at best one business would lose about two-fifths of its parking spaces and at worst another group of businesses would lose 1 1/2 spaces each.

However, shopkeeper Lora Hunt put it another way: "That would mean only about one space per business here."

Human Relations Priorities Studied

A better relationship with the news media and compliance with the Open Meetings Law were two items discussed Tuesday by a Human Relations Commission designed to establish priorities for 1981.

The committee, drawn from commission membership during its regular meeting Tuesday, includes Bishop Haynes, Theron Cole, Gilbert Flores, Tavita Dorow and Joan Ervin, with Ida Alfaro selected as alternate.

Flores and Harold Chatman expressed dissatisfaction that the Open Meetings Law would prevent citizens from taking complaints directly to the commission.

According to the law, the specific topic to be discussed by the commission must be posted at least 72 hours before its meeting or at least two hours prior to the meeting if the topic is considered an emergency.

People who approached commissioners about an incident the day before a meeting would have to wait until the next meeting — about 30 days later — before the commission could discuss the problem, Flores complained.

"I see the commission becoming the aristocrat it was meant to oppose," Chatman added.

Commission chairman Cole said people could contact Human Relations Director Carolyn Lanier, who is authorized to take action on policies set by the commission.

The commission itself is only a policy making board, he emphasized, adding that when topics are introduced on the spur of the moment, the commission usually can't take any action until after all the facts on the case have been gathered.

"All it does is provide publicity," Cole said.

Commissioners also discussed creating a Crisis Contingency Committee that could gather facts about emergency problems and distribute them to other commissioners.

Since the committee would not be a quorum of the commission, it wouldn't have to post its meetings, according to discussion by the commissioners.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Heartline is a service for senior citizens. Its purpose is to answer questions and solve problems. If you have a question or a problem not answered in these columns, write to Heartline, 114 East Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio 43281. You will receive a prompt reply, but you must include a self-addressed, stamped envelope. The most useful replies will be printed in this column.

HEARTLINE: I get so frustrated when I call one of your retirement agencies for information about my benefits. They all have to have a number. It's either a Social Security number, a VA number, a discharge number, an account number etc. Is the country run completely by number? Don't our names appear anywhere? Why is all this necessary? B.O.

ANSWER: It is true, and very necessary that most agencies which deal with large numbers of people must keep their files by number. Names just don't work as well or as accurately.

Take for example, the Veterans Administration. There are about 305,000 Smiths in their files, 203,000 Johnsons, about 150,000 Williamses, 145,000 Joneses and around 137,000 Millers. Granted, these are very common names, but their files are also bulging with no-so-common names. And it is of the utmost importance that they locate the right file for each person.

So, anytime you need information about any retirement benefits, loan payments, bank accounts or charge accounts, be sure to have your number available so that the correct information and benefits will be sure to be given to you.

HEARTLINE: I have been looking for a book that contains numerous educational and informative topics of interest at the library, but they seem to be rather out-dated. Can you help me in my search? R.W.

ANSWER: As a matter of fact, Heartline has just written a book called "Heartline's 1981 Almanac for Older Americans." This book will not become outdated because it will be revised and reprinted each year.

The almanac contains complete explanations of Social Security, Medicare, Railroad Retirement and Veterans Benefits, plus an information and referral directory of county, state and federal government agencies and other organizations of interest to older Americans. There are chapters on such topics as diets, wills, nursing homes, insurance, taxes, consumer protection, settling your estate, trust, etc.

The almanac sells for $7.95 ($7 per book on orders of two or more). For a copy, send your check to Heartline's Almanac, 114 East Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio 43281. Allow six weeks for delivery.

FTC Planning Crackdown On Errors

The Better Business Bureau of the South Plains has launched a new effort to try and curb the large number of errors in advertising, relevant to the Truth in Lending Act. The BBB has been contacted by Juretta Smith, Regional Federal Trade Commission in Dallas, and informed that the FTC plans a crackdown on abuses of this law.

The greatest errors locally are the failures of businesses to reveal all the terms of a loan offer when they use one of the "kicker" terms in an ad, according to BBB officials. Other problems include the quoting of add-on rates and the use of the abbreviation, APR, for annual percentage rate.

The BBB hopes to inform local businesses through direct contact of their oversights and hope to keep local businesses from getting into trouble with the FTC, which sometimes does more than just issue a warning.

All business advertising will be monitored for obvious errors. The BBB will also inform member businesses of minor infractions. Businesses having trouble with the Truth in Lending Law, should contact the BBB office.

Child Care Program Contracts Awarded

AUSTIN (AP) — Sid Wieser, executive director of the Texas Department of Community Affairs, said the department has awarded $30,750 in contracts for two innovative approaches to child care.

A contract for $27,050 went to the Trinity Coalition of El Paso to establish self-sustaining family day homes in El Paso County. The money would go to train parents in basic skills needed to operate a registered day home.

Five In Family Die In Blaze

MILLTOWN, Ind. (AP) — Fire gutted a two-story, wood-frame house in this small southern Indiana town early Tuesday, killing a man, his three young children and his teen-age nephew, authorities said.

Some authorities said the predawn blaze may have started from an "overheated woodstove downstairs right under the bedroom." But Fire Chief Jerry Mackey blamed faulty wiring.

"I don't know why it happened, but I know my children are in heaven," said Agnes Nesmith, 27, who escaped death by leaping from a second-story window. "The preacher came over, and we talked and prayed."

She apparently was not injured, and her brother also escaped unharmed.

The victims were identified as Mrs. Nesmith's husband, Bobby Dean, 31, and their children, Shirley Marie, 7; Frank Matthew, 4, and Mark Andrew, 23 months.

Also killed was the Nesmiths' nephew, Randall Manus, 15, who had been living with the family in the house, which Mrs. Nesmith said the family had been sleeping in an upstairs bedroom when the fire erupted. She said her brother, Paul Elliott, 17, had been downstairs taking a bath.

"I woke up coughing," said Mrs. Nesmith. "I saw flames and smoke."

She said she opened a window, kicked out a screen and jumped. On the ground, "I told him (her husband) to throw the kids, and that's the last I heard of him."

Elliott told officers he tried to run upstairs when he heard his sister's screams but was unable to do so because of the flames and smoke. He said he ran to a neighbor's house for help.

Plight Of War Refugees Viewed

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Two years after the film "Holocaust" reminded West Germans of the extermination of Jews, German television has begun detailing complaints of mistreatment of Germans driven out of Eastern Europe at the end of World War II.

A three-part documentary entitled "Flight and Expulsion" has received "an extraordinary positive response," according to a spokesman for the sponsoring Bavarian Television Network.

But the series has also pricked nerves outside West Germany. Czechoslovakia's Communist Party newspaper denounced the series as one-sided and designed "to revive revanchism," an East bloc code word to describe alleged efforts by West Germany to recover lost territory.

After the first show, Czechoslovak officials filed a formal protest with the West German Embassy in Prague.

The documentary blends previously unpublished film from U.S., Soviet and Czechoslovak archives with first-person accounts of middle-aged or elderly Germans, forced from their homes in Eastern Europe by people who had suffered Nazi atrocities.

Events are portrayed in documentary style as a straightforward depiction of how Germans were driven out of parts of Eastern Europe as the end of the war drew near.

Often, witnesses burst into tears while describing such horrors as the deaths of parents or the separation of families in forced labor camps.

Arthur Bader, the spokesman for Bavarian Television, said some 6 million people watched the first segment on Jan. 29.

Figures were not immediately available on how many West Germans viewed the second part on Sunday night, but Bader said the number was expected to increase for the third segment Feb. 8.

Entitled "The Inferno in the East," the first installment dealt with the forced exodus of Germans from East Prussia, now part of Poland and the Soviet Union, the Sudetenland of modern Czechoslovakia, and from Romania and Yugoslavia.

Germans had lived in some of those areas since the 14th century, and other areas had been considered German territory for centuries.

In all, West German historians estimate some 14 million ethnic Germans — almost equal to the present population of East Germany — fled the advancing Soviet troops or were forced to move from their homes by people who had suffered under the Nazi occupation.

Bader said his office was deluged with calls after the first show.

"Many were so upset that they cried on the telephone," he said. "It reminded many of them how their family members were killed."

The first installment included faded color film taken by American soldiers during the first hours of the U.S. occupation of Czechoslovakia and showed Germans who had been beaten, some to death.

The Czechoslovak paper Rude Pravo criticized the show, saying "the viewer will see neither shots from the executions of Czech students, torture in the Gestapo chambers nor the proposals for the so-called final solution of the Czech problem."

The paper also complained that the 1938 Nazi occupation of the Sudetenland of Czechoslovakia was portrayed as being favored by the German residents, but ignored the opinion of the 800,000 Czechs who lived there.

In a report on the series, the conservative Frankfurter Allgemeine newspaper commented, "Europe was a slaughterhouse and it should come as no surprise that the slaughter and brutality did not stop after the truce was called."

"We could easily see the same horrors in Polish, Russian or Serbian faces if they related their experiences about the Nazi occupations," the commentary said.

"Hopefully this report about the destruction of Europe, its collapse, the expulsion and the new beginning will bring the experiences of the older generation before the eyes of the younger and teach them understanding for it."

Although the series has been in production for several years, it is being shown at a time when relations between the West and the Soviet bloc have been strained by Moscow's intervention in Afghanistan and by the possibility of intervention in Poland.

"The whole thing is quite controversial since it's so anti-Slav," said one 32-year-old West German woman. "It really should not be shown now, given the problems with detente and the Soviet Union."

Associations of Germans expelled from various parts of Eastern Europe, however, have hailed the show and described it as the German version of the film "Holocaust," which portrayed the Nazi extermination of 6 million European Jews.

NERVOUS — Dorothy Loudon said she was nervous when she was picked to co-star with Katherine Hepburn in "The West Side Waltz" a world premiere play opening in Los Angeles. (AP Laserphoto)

Broadway Star Fretted Working With Legend

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Despite having won a Tony and numerous other awards for Broadway's "Annie," Dorothy Loudon admits she was nervous when she was picked to co-star with Katherine Hepburn in the world premiere of Ernest Thompson's "The West Side Waltz."

"I thought, 'My God, it's going to be like working with the Washington Monument,'" recalls the vivacious actress, relaxing in her Beverly Wilshire suite, where she's staying during the play's run through March 14 at the Ahmanson Theatre of the Los Angeles Music Center.

"I think the anticipation was much worse than the actuality," she laughs. "It's been a joyful working relationship."

In the play, by the author of "On Golden Pond," Miss Hepburn portrays a feisty woman of about 70 who lives alone with her music and her protective crustiness. Miss Loudon plays Cara, a spinster of "about 50" who lives downstairs and pursues a friendship that takes a long time to bloom. Her "rival" is an unconventional young woman (Regina Baff) who hires on as Miss Hepburn's companion.

The play, directed by Noel Willman, has won glowing reviews for both stars, but, on being told of the raves, Miss Loudon admits in amazement: "It doesn't say Katherine Hepburn and what's-her-name?"

Miss Loudon had to audition for the part, despite her many credits — which include a Tony nomination for Michael Bennett's "Ballroom," a starring role on Broadway in "Sweeney Todd" and the leading part in the national company of Paul Zindel's Pulitzer Prize-winning "The Effect of Gamma Rays on Man-in-the-Moon Marigolds."

"A lot of people won't read (audition), but I don't mind, because that way they see what they're really getting," the actress says.

She arrived home after the audition to find a message telling her she had the part.

"Miss Hepburn told me that they had seen 500 people for the role," she says. "It's always a mystery to me that they don't call me sooner. I think people tend to sit you, because of 'Annie,' maybe."

In that musical, she played the nasty Miss Hannigan, a markedly different part from the naive, somewhat silly, vulnerable Cara.

She says she believes Miss Hepburn may have favored her for the part, recalling that their only previous meeting had been when the legendary star came backstage after a performance of "Ballroom" to compliment Miss Loudon.

The two will have a good chance to get to know each other better in "Waltz." Following its Los Angeles run, it will travel to San Francisco, March 16-April 25; Vancouver, the week of April 27; Seattle, May 4-30, and, after a summer hiatus, Broadway.

This is Miss Loudon's first extensive pre-Broadway tour, but she says she can understand the trend toward such travels.

"I think that's come with the acceleration of theater prices," she says. "You really can't afford to fail on Broadway any more."

Miss Loudon, who began her career as a nightclub performer and has concentrated primarily on the stage, admits to mixed feelings about movies and television.

Ironically, she broke into the theater (making her Broadway debut in "No-where to Go but Up") as a result of recognition gained in two years as a regular on television's "The Garry Moore Show" in the early 1960s.

"I suppose when I was a kid I wanted to be a movie star," she reflects. "I loved Shirley Temple and Jane Withers. In New Hampshire, theater was Romanoff and His Magic Violin coming through once a year."

"I've never made a movie. I've never been asked to make a movie." Would she like to? "Sure. Are you kidding?"

As for television, she says, "Today people become stars by being in one successful series. I could work in the theater all my life and do work I'm proud of, and never reach the position people do on television."

After she sang a song from "Ballroom" on the televised Tony Awards Show, Miss Loudon says, "Someone told me that in that one evening I was seen by more people than I would be seen by if I remained in the theater for the rest of my life."

She admits there could be advantages to fame, such as having her name spelled correctly. Currently, she sees it mangled as Louden and Lauden by everyone from critics to hotel clerks.

"If you're successful in a series, you become a star," she says. "But if you're contractually trapped in the series, there's a good chance you will never work again in any kind of character other than the one you're playing in the series."

"In TV, I've noticed you are the last thing you did," Miss Loudon is surprisingly lacking in egotism. She was willing to pad her figure to play the plump Cara, and doesn't balk at giving her age.

"I'll be 47 in September," she says promptly. When it is observed that September is eight months away, she explains, "If I say I'm 46 it sounds like I'm lying."

Miss Loudon also denies being unusually humble.

"If I were a big star sitting here and talking like this, you could say I was modest," she says. "But I know what I am, and I'm happy with it. Only certain people become stars. I don't know that that's such a terrific thing. I'd rather be a working actress."

Ailing Ex-Hostage, Wife, Doing Better

WASHINGTON (AP) — Returned hostage Robert Ode and his wife were reported "doing very well" Tuesday at National Hospital in Arlington, Va.

Ode, 65, was hospitalized last week suffering from bronchitis and exhaustion. A few days later Mrs. Ode was admitted with the flu.

Hospital spokeswoman Mary Shaw said the Odes have been walking around and may "be getting a little cabin fever."

Both are listed in good condition and she said "the physician is very pleased and is looking toward Thursday" as the day they can go home.

REAGAN'S BIRTHDAY FRIDAY
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan will celebrate his 70th birthday Friday, but the White House is keeping quiet about celebration plans. One story leaked out that a surprise birthday party was planned, ruining the surprise, said first lady Nancy Reagan's press secretary, Sheila Patton.

Famed Architect Plans 'Bathroom Of Future'

NEW YORK (AP) — Architect Warren Platner is the designer of some of America's best-known modern landmarks, yet he is little known outside engineering and architectural circles.

If and when his name does become a household word, it will probably be, ironically, for one of his smaller projects: the bathroom of the future.

Platner, 61, of New Haven, Conn., won't discuss what the bathroom of the future will be like.

"That would be like giving away a trade secret," he says, always wary of competitors who have become increasingly willing to adopt some of his innovations over a 40-year career.

Platner, however, will discuss that earlier work, which began with designs for steel plants in World War II and continued with first transcontinental double-decked bus, Water Tower Place in Chicago, the MGIC complex in Milwaukee, the American Restaurant in Kansas City, the Tecknor Apex Co. headquarters in Pawtucket, R.I., Prospect Center at Princeton University in New Jersey, the General Motors technical center in Detroit and the terminal at Dulles Airport in Washington.

His work in New York alone includes the CBS headquarters, the Ford Foundation building, the TWA terminal at Kennedy Airport and the Windows on the World restaurant and observation deck atop the World Trade Center.

The latter assignment, completed 4 1/2 years ago after $7 million worth of construction spread over eight years, was one of the toughest imaginable for an architect and designer, Platner says.

He had to put an elegant yet affordable restaurant on top of the world's tallest — and perhaps most complicated — building system.

He did indeed end up with an opulent restaurant, one with a spectacular view of the New York skyline from each of its 900 seats.

"We knew the view would upstage whatever we did," Platner says, "so we were at pains not to upstage the view. We tried to accentuate the view."

"People love restaurants on top of mountains or tall buildings, you know. But after a while, they take the view for granted."

Disc Jockey Retracts Cartoon Claims

TEMPLE (AP) — This Boris Badenoff may be bogus, but he's good enough to stay at radio station KTEM.

Boris, alias Bob Raleigh, became somewhat of a celebrity when the disc jockey came to work here three weeks ago.

In his resume and in three interviews, Raleigh claimed to have been the voice of Boris, the pint-sized television villain on "Rocky and His Friends" as well as the cartoon voices of Astro the dog on "The Jetsons" and Scooby Doo, another animated pooch, plus voice work on the cartoon version of "Star Trek."

The Temple Daily Telegram printed a story, KRLL-AM in Dallas interviewed him and The Dallas Times Herald published a feature that was transmitted nationally by The Associated Press.

It was his age — 36 — that finally gave Raleigh away. He admitted none of the claims were true Monday when confronted with statements from "Rocky" producers that he never worked for them when the show was produced in the early '60s.

"My ego sort of got carried away and I sort of embellished on a lot of things," Raleigh said.

He said he was "embarrassed" about the deception but that he was glad it was over.

Raleigh said he began making the false claims about his cartoon voice work in a "situation where I was among a bunch of people of notable talent," and felt he had to enhance his own background to "be on equal footing."

Raleigh said he wanted to "apologize to anyone who was misled to believe I was anyone I was not."

"I'm sorta glad this happened, because now I can dump the story."

A spokesman at Jay Ward Productions, the Los Angeles producers of the cartoon show, said Boris' voice came from veteran actor Paul Frees.

But Raleigh's claims went unchallenged because his impressions of the characters were uncannily accurate.

"He sounded like Boris to me — he was damn good," said KRLL-D interviewer Alex Burton. "I sat in the studio and listened to him do all those voices."

Raleigh said he uses the cartoon-character voices on his radio program.

"The voices say things I can't because of their personalities. It may sound old-fashioned, but I really like to entertain," he said.

Raleigh said he never tried to do cartoon voices professionally because he

The hoax didn't unduly alarm Raleigh's superiors at the station.

"Boris Badenoff came to Temple," said KTEM official Steve Cannon, "and he's going to stay here."

"Nor did it anger Bill Scott, a writer-producer for the old 'Rocky' series."

"I'm not upset," he said, "but he shouldn't say he was a member of our happy crew."

"Have him give me a call," Scott added. "I may not have a job for him, but I'd like to hear from him."

SWAN SNIPER SENTENCED

PEKING (AP) — A Chinese district court on Tuesday sentenced a young construction worker to three months in jail for shooting a swan in a Peking park, the Peking Evening News reported. The newspaper said Chao Yung-ming admitted deliberately killing the swan when he went to the park on Dec. 21 with a co-worker, who was earlier fined $33 for his part in the crime.

Cable Adds Spanish Programming

By CELESTE HENLEY
A-J Television Editor

Spanish-language television has been introduced to Lubbock viewers with the advent this week of Spanish International Network and GalaVision.

The former is a basic cable service, airing on cable channel 10, 24 hours daily. Programming includes movies, novelas, live coverage of sporting events, specials, news and variety, comedy and public service shows.

GalaVision, according to Jim Brown, general manager of Lubbock Cable TV, is comparable to Home Box Office. This is a pay station for Spanish-speaking subscribers and offers approximately 70 hours per week of first-run movies, novelas, specials and sporting events, all presented uncensored and without commercial interruptions.

GalaVision, like HBO, is on a convert-or-persons having one may tune into cable channel 21 for programming.

"We had no other choice, since the Spanish International Network is on the air 24 hours daily," Brown said of the cancellation of WFAA and KERA programming from cable channel 10.

"We have moved WFAA to cable channel 12, signing on at 11 p.m. daily after the Texas Tech radio station signs off, and continuing until Tech signs on in the morning. We have completely dropped KERA, since it was in competition with our own public broadcast station," Brown said. "We feel it is our duty to get behind our local station and give it our full support. During fund-raising drives, we learned that some area viewers were sending donations to KERA instead of supporting Channel 5."

"Everyone has phoned who could phone," admitted Brown in talking about the deletion of the Fort Worth/Dallas stations. "The biggest complaint has been about the news carried on WFAA. However, it is the corporation's position that we serve all the populace of Lubbock and we have had innumerable requests for Spanish programming, both the network and GalaVision."

Brown added that the changing of WFAA to cable channel 12 is temporary, because Lubbock Cable TV has ordered sufficient equipment to carry eight to 10 additional channels "effective as early as May or as late as June."

"WFAA is a strong consideration when we add the channels," Brown said. Other considerations are the Cable News Network, WOR New York and ESPN, a sports network comparable to cable channel 6.

Brown said that over the weekend more than 250 viewers subscribed to GalaVision, and numbers were not available for new subscribers due to the added Spanish-speaking network.

Actor Discusses 'Kent State' Film's Point Of View

'KENT STATE' ROLE — Actor Keith Gordon was nine years old in May, 1970, when shots rang out at Kent State University in Ohio and a confrontation between National Guardsmen and antiwar protesters left four students dead. Today, Gordon portrays one of the slain students in a made-for-TV film to be broadcast by NBC Sunday night (AP Laserphoto)

NEW YORK (AP) — Keith Gordon was 9 years old in May 1970 when shots rang out at Kent State University in Ohio and a confrontation between National Guardsmen and antiwar protesters left four students dead.

At the time, Gordon remembers being aware of the incident, but he could not conceive of its implications. To him, the Kent State tragedy was something on the 6 o'clock news.

Gordon portrays one of the slain students in a made-for-TV film, "Kent State," to be broadcast by NBC Sunday night. And for the young actor, the meaning of the Kent State tragedy now is clear.

"As far as television goes," he said, "it's gutsier than most, especially considering the tone of the country right now. Because of the shift toward conservatism, I don't know who will even watch it, but I hope those who do are affected by it."

"I doubt if somebody who was glad the students were shot is going to be turned around by this," he said, "but I hope it will hit the arm-chair liberals who never did anything. I think it will arouse some anger and remind people what happened."

Written by Richard Kramer and Gerald Green, who won an Emmy for "Holo-caust," "Kent State" follows the lives of four key students, National Guardsmen and school officials in the days leading up to the confrontation.

"The program's point of view," said Gordon, "is not to blame the guardsmen who did the shooting so much as the people who put them there with loaded weapons, such as Gov. (James) Rhodes. It shows that at the time of the shooting, the guardsmen were in no danger, which I don't think most people know."

"Also," he added, "after the shooting there was strong sentiment in the country that the kids deserved what they got and that this should teach them a lesson. Well, what the movie hopes to get across is that those kids did not deserve to die and that two of the students killed were not even attending the rally and were on their way to class."

Filmed in documentary style, "Kent State" is set during the weekend that ended with the four students dead and nine others wounded. It begins with President Nixon announcing his decision to send troops into Cambodia and shows that announcement arousing concern among the students that the war in Vietnam is spreading.

After Nixon's speech, students begin to gather around the city of Kent, and a spontaneous festival turns into a near riot. Saturday, the campus is calm until nightfall, when students set ablaze the ROTC building. That prompts officials to call in the National Guard.

Confrontations between students and guardsmen escalate until Monday, when students begin throwing rocks at the soldiers. Feeling threatened, the guardsmen retaliate with tear gas and one contingent fires on a group of students.

"I think philosophically more than anything," Gordon said, "this film is a plea for rationality. What happened at Kent State was a classic case of America reacting to a crisis situation with violence, sending a thousand armed troops onto a suburban college campus that had no reputation for violence.

"More than anything," he said, "the show is about what the presence of troops does to people."

Gordon has appeared in several feature films, including "Dressed to Kill," "Jaws II" and "All That Jazz."

Growing up with parents in the theater, he decided at an early age that he wanted to be an actor.

"I remember seeing my father do 'Of Mice and Men,'" he said. "I saw how much power an actor has in affecting people and changing their points of view. That was when I knew what I had to do."

Currently, Gordon is in an Off-Broadway production of "Album," a four-character play about teen-agers growing up in the 1960s.

Acclaimed Violinist Mischakoff Dies

DETROIT (AP) — Mischa Mischakoff, a violinist who served as concertmaster under such symphony conductor giants as Leopold Stokowski and Arturo Toscanini, has died at the age of 85.

Mischakoff died Sunday at Petoskey, where he had been hospitalized for about a month.

Mischakoff joined the Detroit orchestra in 1952 after serving as Arturo Toscanini's concertmaster with the NBC Symphony. Mischakoff retired in 1968.

Born Mischa Fishberg, he also served as concertmaster with the Baltimore city orchestra and taught classes in Boston and at Detroit's Wayne State University.

He was concertmaster with the New York Symphony under Walter Damrosch (1924-27), the Philadelphia Orchestra under Stokowski (1927-30) and the Chicago Symphony under Frederick Stock (1930-37).

Company Takeovers Announced

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Columbia Pictures Industries Inc. of New York has bought Eller Media Co. Inc. and has named Karl Eller president of a newly formed Columbia Pictures communications division.

Also Monday, Charter Co., a Florida conglomerate with which the 52-year old Eller was associated briefly, completed its purchase of the Philadelphia Bulletin, a newspaper that Eller once was buying. Charter, in partnership with Eller, had formed Charter Media Co., a joint venture in which Eller sold his interest in November.

Meanwhile, Eller's key Phoenix associate, Ray Cox, 47, was in the process of setting up a company to provide financial and investor-relations counseling.

Clients of the new company are expected to include Eller's new Columbia Pictures Communications, which will be based in Phoenix.

Red River Resources Inc. of Phoenix, of which Eller is chairman and Cox vice president, and Swensen's Ice Cream Co., a chain of restaurants which Eller bought last year, also are expected to be clients of Cox Investor Relations.

Another possible client is Intertel Inc. of Phoenix, a maker of computerized telephone systems. Eller is among the company's directors.

Cox Investor Relations, said to be the first company of its kind in Arizona, is to provide financial counseling to publicly traded companies, acting as liaison between client companies and their investors.

Eller once headed Combined Communications Corp., a media conglomerate sold to Gannett Co., a newspaper and broadcasting group. After Eller left Gannett, he began rebuilding his empire by buying broadcasting stations and setting up the Charter Media venture.

After the Charter Media affiliation formally ended last Friday, Eller Media retained New York Subway Advertising Co., which controls major transit advertising in New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Detroit and San Francisco. New York Subway Advertising then was sold to Columbia and Eller Media was dissolved.

Neutron Warhead Deployment Eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger indicated Tuesday he is leaning toward recommending deployment of the controversial neutron warhead shelved by the Carter administration.

Such a move, if made, probably would rekindle a dispute that caused President Carter in 1978 to defer production and reverse an intention to deploy "enhanced radiation" warheads on Lance battlefield missiles and eight-inch guns in Europe.

"I think that the opportunity that this weapon gives to strengthen tactical nuclear forces is one that we very probably would want to make use of," Weinberger said at his first Pentagon news conference since becoming the civilian chief of the armed forces two weeks ago.

On other matters, Weinberger said: "We certainly would consider a request to station troops in Israel" if the Israeli government made such a bid. But he said he would be surprised at such an Israeli move and stressed that he spoke of the possibility only as "a hypothetical kind of thing" in response to a reporter's question.

Weinberger also said the United States would give similar "sympathetic" consideration to troop-stationing requests from Egypt or any other friendly country.

"We want to decide very shortly" on a longstanding Saudi Arabian request for extra fuel tanks and bomb racks. Such enhancements on F-15 fighters would give the Saudi planes offensive capability, possibly against Israel, critics of the proposed sale have claimed.

"We want to make them (the F-15s) as effective as we can ... in providing additional security."

Weinberger said the Saudi Arabians "have a very difficult defensive problem, with a long coastline and a small number of forces and immensely valuable resources for the free world."

"I don't have any intention at this point" of reducing the two-carrier battle group force in the Indian Ocean area.

Any decision to order production of the neutron warhead, which is designed mostly to offset the Soviet advantage in tank strength, would have to be made by President Reagan.

Carter ordered production of neutron weapons put off indefinitely and then authorized the Energy Department to manufacture some critical elements so they would be ready in the event a decision was made later to deploy the weapons.

Military specialists say that neutron warheads would limit the area in which human life and structures would be destroyed by blast and heat from nuclear explosions, even while sickening and killing the crews of attacking tanks with shafts of intense radiation.

During the debate that preceded Carter's decision-reversal almost three years ago, opponents of the neutron warheads argued that the less widespread damage from such weapons, compared to older and "dirtier" tactical nuclear weapons, would make it easier for leaders of warring nations to order their use without concern about catastrophic civilian casualties.

When asked about the neutron warhead, Weinberger said, "We have had in the recent past a strong recommendation that it be used," an apparent reference to Carter's pre-1978 position.

"I have so far seen very little that would indicate in my mind that that was wrong," Weinberger said.

"What I think was wrong was the sudden change," he said.

Weinberger said Carter's reversal of position and decision not to employ the neutron warhead caused "consternation" in the government of West Germany and other European allies.

"Obviously, with the locations involved and other relationships involved, we certainly would want to consult with all of our allies and friends and try to persuade them that we have a greater degree of constancy this time."

Hiring Freeze Featured In State Budget Plan

AUSTIN (AP) — Speaker Bill Clayton has recommended a 1982-83 state budget that freezes government jobs at November levels, gives top officials fat pay raises and beefs up funding for school districts.

Clayton's proposal — $200 million lighter than the Legislative Budget Board's — will be the basis for the House version of the general appropriation bill.

"It will be the one the (appropriations) committee will work from," he told reporters Tuesday.

Clayton's bill would cost $26.5 billion, compared with the LBB's $28.7 billion and Gov. Bill Clements' $28.2 billion.

One major difference is Clayton's recommendation that statewide elected officials such as the comptroller, agriculture commissioner and treasurer receive the same pay as associate justices of the Texas Supreme Court.

If Supreme Court justices receive the pay recommended by the LBB, the salaries of officials such as Comptroller Bob Bullock would rise from $51,000 to $66,100 on Sept. 1 and to $74,100 a year later.

"The agriculture commissioner is just as important to agriculture as a Supreme Court justice is to the legal system. We need the best people we can get in there," Clayton said.

Putting statewide officials on a par with Supreme Court justices was suggested recently by Bullock but the House rejected the idea when it was submitted as an amendment to an emergency pay raise bill for state employees.

Clayton also put $150 million more in state aid to public schools in his bill than the LBB included in its version of the budget.

A school district would receive the aid according to a formula that multiplies $60 per student times the percentage of its tax base consisting of rural acreage and residential property. Districts with commercial, mineral and industrial property would not receive as much per child as bedroom communities and rural areas.

Debbie Cartwright, the speaker's research assistant, said the extra aid is a form of reimbursement to school districts whose tax bases were eroded by homestead and agricultural land exemptions granted by the 1979 tax relief bill.

She said the proposal does not discriminate against urban districts because "they have a greater ability to tax on that tax base" including commercial and industrial property.

Clayton was able to hold down the cost of his bill while offering more state aid to school districts by inserting a state employment freeze at November 1980 levels.

Mrs. Cartwright said that had the effect of excluding 6,000 jobs contained in the LBB bill.

Clayton also filed for introduction of a constitutional amendment that would allocate half of any state treasury surplus to retiring state bonds and the other half to water projects.

He said he has not shown the proposal to Clements, who recommended a water savings account as a form of future tax relief.

Harvard's Racial Relations Eyed

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — A study group suggests that Harvard University set up an agency to work to improve racial relations at the school.

The group urged President Derek C. Bok to establish a "Harvard Foundation" because "relations among the races have reached a critical juncture in both the nation and the college."

RED RAIDERS FINALLY WIN ON ROAD

Tech Sticks Frogs In OT

By CHUCK McDONALD
Assistant Sports Editor
FORT WORTH — Well, what do ya know? There is life on the road after all.

Of course, after going a full season and a half without a Southwest Conference win outside of Lubbock, nothing came easy for Texas Tech here Tuesday night at the Daniel-Meyer Coliseum. But somehow, even after missing five of nine free throws in the final minute and a half of regulation, the Red Raiders went wild in overtime and defeated TCU 70-60. And for the Raiders it was a sweet win indeed.

"It sure is good to win one on the road," said Tech coach Gerald Myers. "I'm telling you, it's been a long time." The win boosts Tech to 5-5 SWC mark (11-9 overall) while the Frogs slipped 4-6 and 7-13.

It was a victory the Raiders nearly didn't get. Leading 44-34 on a Ralph Brewster layup with four minutes to go regulation, it seemed like Tech had this one in the bag, but as has often been the case when the Raiders leave Lubbock, they let it slip away.

When Clarence Swannegan, who scored 20 for the Raiders, hit both ends of a one-and-one, the Raiders still led 46-38 with only 1:46 to go. But after Darrell Brewer tossed in a long bomb to make it 46-40, the Raiders suddenly got weakened at the free throw line.

First, Ben Hill missed both ends of a two-shot foul with 1:30 to play. Then, Nelson Franse missed the front end of a one-and-one, and, suddenly, TCU made it a 46-44 game on another Brewer bucket with 1:11 to play.

Over the next 30 seconds, freshman Bubba Jennings hit four in a row from the line and with only 38 ticks left, Tech led 50-46. After TCU had made it a 50-48 game, Steve Smith missed yet another one-and-one opportunity and with 14 seconds left, TCU's Kenny Hart went to the line with a chance to tie it.

Hart had the same affliction as the Raiders, and missed both shots on the two-shot foul.

Jennings was fouled and went to the

The Raiders scored those 20 points by missing only one shot in the overtime period, and taking the ball away from the Frogs and scoring on break-away layups.

Swannegan put Tech up 52-50 with a short bank shot 50 seconds into the OT, and then Jennings found the back door open for a layup to give Tech a 54-52 lead with 3:17 left.

Hill, who finished with 11 points, worked his way inside for two layups, and it was 58-52. After a couple of Brewer free throws, Hill got his third inside bucket, and Brewer hit a pair of free throws to make it 62-54.

Tech's final eight points came on two Jennings' layups, two more Brewer free throws and, finally, a pair of free throws from Jennings.

Brewster, making only his second start of the season, had 12 rebounds and 10 points for the Raiders.

Defensively, Tech was led by Jeff Taylor, who calmly neutralized TCU's high scoring Darrell Browder. Although he fouled out in only 25 minutes of playing time, Taylor limited Browder to a six-of-20 shooting night. As a team, the Frogs hit only 25 of 66 efforts, and in the second half shot only 24 percent.

"This was the worst team game we've played," said Killingsworth. "We had no patience out there tonight. The reason we didn't make many shots is because we

MAPS Officials Silent On Suit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Muhammad Ali Professional Sports Inc., hit with a suit by Wells Fargo that claims $21.3 million was embezzled from the bank by some MAPS officials, remained silent on the matter Tuesday with two of the officials named in the suit still missing.

The suit filed Monday asks that the sports promoters replace the money allegedly embezzled from two different branches.

"Wells Fargo alleges the fraud was accomplished through an internal manipulation of funds involving some 13 accounts," a statement released from the bank's San Francisco headquarters said. "Appropriate law enforcement and regulatory authorities have been advised."

FBI spokesman John Hoos said no warrants have been issued in the case.

"We're still at the bank. That's where the main thrust of our investigation is," Hoos said. "We're going over the records ... (to find) how did it occur, how much was taken."

Asked how the alleged embezzlement was carried out, Wells Fargo vice president George Caulfield said, "It's pretty confidential. I'd better not comment."

Reached by telephone in San Francisco Tuesday, Caulfield did say the suit alleged that money was illegally taken out of the 13 accounts — 12 in Beverly Hills, one in Santa Monica — possibly by checks written to individuals or in some other way.

He acknowledged, moreover, that the bank believes the key to the alleged embezzlement was that one individual was both a bank officer and an official of MAPS.

The civil suit, filed in Superior Court here, names as defendants L. Ben Lewis, a MAPS director and loan officer at Wells Fargo's Beverly Hills branch, who left the bank Jan. 23 after 11 years and who is missing; Harold J. Smith, 37, chairman of MAPS, who is also missing; Muhammad Ali Amateur Sports Inc., also run by Smith; MAPS President Sam

Marshall; Barbara Smith, Gladys Lewis and Bodak Productions Inc.

A woman who said she was "just answering the phone" at the MAPS Santa Monica headquarters Tuesday said there was no one in "an official position" available to answer questions.

Asked about the apparent disappearance of Smith and Lewis, the woman — who declined to give her name — said, "Oh, yes, that's right, we haven't seen them in over a week. We're concerned about them."

The woman said Barbara Smith is the wife of Harold J. Smith, but she was not sure whether Gladys Lewis was the wife of Ben Lewis.

The MAPS-sponsored fight card scheduled for Saturday night at the New Olympic auditorium here "is still on as far as I know," she said.

The California State Athletic Commission had said the fight could proceed if MAPS provides the commission with a $200,000 cashier's check guaranteeing the fighters' salaries and a $250 license fee, as MAPS does not have a current license to operate boxing matches in California.

The scandal has thrown millions of dollars in planned fights into doubt, among which was a Feb. 23 card in New York's Madison Square Garden, featuring a heavyweight bout between Gerry Cooney and Ken Norton along with three title fights.

At a news conference at the Garden Thursday, MAPS president Sam Marshall would only mutter "No comment" when asked about the suit. M. Edward Franklin, MAPS attorney, said Feb. 11 was the deadline for putting together the big Feb. 23 show.

Robert Rosberg, director of the Mosler Safe Co.'s anti-crime bureau in Hamilton, Ohio, since he started it 21 years ago, quoted an FBI report on bank crime as saying 82 percent of all bank fraud and embezzlements are perpetrated by an

Kush Refutes Rutledge's Testimony Of Abuse

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Former Arizona State football coach Frank Kush testified Tuesday that he "couldn't recall ever touching" ex-Sun Devil punter-defensive back Kevin Rutledge in a 1978 game and says he first learned of the alleged punching incident through a booster almost a year later.

Rutledge is suing Kush, the university, former Sun Devil assistant coach Bill Maskill and others for $2.2 million in damages — claiming Kush punched him in the mouth following a poor punt during Arizona State's 41-7 loss to Washington Oct. 28, 1978.

He also claims Kush and Maskill subsequently harassed him into quitting the team and forfeiting his scholarship.

Kush, testifying for the second straight day, told the court that he had no recollection of ever grabbing Rutledge's facemask but said there was "a possibility" that he may have slapped Rutledge's helmet at the time.

Rutledge testified Kush grabbed his facemask in the Washington game while he still had his helmet on and chinstrap fastened, shook his head from side to side and up and down and landed a "knuckle-punch" which Rutledge said split his upper lip.

Kush said he was unaware of the alleged incident until a conversation with Gene Felker — the executive director of Arizona State's football booster club, the Sun Angels.

"It was on Oct. 6, 1978. We had an open date on our schedule that weekend and I ran into him at a jog-a-thon at the ASU track," Kush told the court. "He said he saw a confrontation up there at the Washington game between me and Rutledge."

"He said my arms were in back of me and Rutledge was in front of me," Kush added. "He said my hands were in a position that it looked like I was going to swing."

Kush said he told Felker that, "I definitely did not hit the young man."

Kush also told the jury Tuesday that "it was quite obvious" that Rutledge "was punting poorly" during the 1978 game in question.

Game accounts cited in court showed that three of Rutledge's punts traveled 26, 29 and 27 yards and eventually led to two Washington touchdowns and a field goal.

"They were all critical," Kush said of the punts. "They gave the other team good field position."

Asked by Rutledge's attorney, Robert Hing, if he were angered enough by the punts to attack Rutledge in the manner alleged, Kush said: "No, sir. Not necessarily. I don't recall if I did or I didn't."

Rutledge has testified that Kush called him "gutless" after the alleged incident and swore at him repeatedly. In the locker room after the game, Rutledge said Kush told him to get stick his head in a bucket of water and drown himself.

Kush said Tuesday that it was "pretty possible" that he swore at Rutledge but denied the post-game comment. "I would never say a thing like that to a young man," Kush said.

Rutledge said he didn't don a player's uniform for Arizona State's 1978 season-opening game against Pacific and figured he was going to be redshirted.

Kush said Monday that he "never thought about redshirting Rutledge" because "he was our No. 1 punter."

MAPS Faces $21 Million Suit Brought By Wells Fargo Banks

Known bank embezzlements netted $143 million in 1979, the latest year for which statistics are available, Rosberg said, compared with $39 million netted in bank robberies, burglaries and larcenies.

"But Rosberg, like Caulfield, said he preferred not to give a scenario with particulars of how an embezzlement works. "We don't want to give the store away," Rosberg said, and Caulfield said he didn't want to give people ideas.

The defendants are the names that were on the accounts as being authorized to write checks against the accounts," Caulfield said.

It "wasn't even an audit" that uncovered the alleged embezzlement, he added. "An irregularity was noticed by an employee and an investigation uncovered the fraud," he said.

Bodak Productions was one of the 13 accounts, Caulfield said, adding that he was not familiar with its business.

The FBI's Hoos, like Caulfield, said one case of embezzlement can't be compared with another.

"We have to determine how the funds were manipulated, where did they go, and so on," Hoos said.

The only connection the defendants have with former heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali is that they were using his name in return for a $10,000 fee or a percentage, whichever was greater. Ali has asked that his name no longer be used in connection with the company.

In recent interviews, Smith was quoted as saying that MAPS lost upwards of $1.3 million but boxing sources said the figure was probably in the neighborhood of $7 million.

Wells Fargo said the total amount of missing bank funds was $21,305,000.

"Wells Fargo ... believes that all but $1 million of the loss would be covered by insurance," the bank added.

The California State Athletic Commission has confirmed that MAPS, which has staged fights at the Forum in Inglewood, does not have a license to operate boxing matches this year in California.

Don Fraser, boxing organizer at the Forum in Inglewood, said MAPS always came up with enough money to stage fights at the Forum, but last year at two bouts roughly only 2,000 people showed up for each fight.

Horns, Aggies To Return Clash To Thanksgiving

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Texas A&M University and the University of Texas have agreed to renew their traditional Thanksgiving Day rivalry, beginning next fall, the schools announced Tuesday.

"We thought the Turkey Day tradition should be resumed," said A&M athletic director Marvin Tate. "We felt that the students would have a longer holiday weekend since they wouldn't have to return to the campus on Saturday. And we believe it will enhance our chances of being on national TV on Thanksgiving Day."

"All our people and all the A&M people would like to get back to Thanksgiving," said UT athletic director Bill Ellington, announcing the UT athletic council for men's sports had voted to revive the old tradition.

Oilers Add Former Packer As Coach

HOUSTON (AP) — Elijah Pitts, a running back on six Green Bay championship teams and an assistant coach at Buffalo the past three seasons, was named Tuesday as offensive backfield coach for the Houston Oilers.

Pitts joins the staff of head coach Ed Bovee that already includes offensive line coach Ray Callahan, hired last week, and Bob Gambold and Andy Bourgeois, holdovers from the staff of former Coach Ben Phillips.

"It's important for us to have people that are known winners," Biles said in announcing Pitts' appointment. "He brings a wealth of knowledge to our organization. It's a tremendous boost for us to have people that have been successful at all levels of the NFL."

Pitts was a running back on Packer teams coach by Vince Lombardi that won the first two Super Bowls. Pitts scored two touchdowns in Green Bay's 35-10 victory over Kansas City in Super Bowl I.

The Aggies and Longhorns will play their next three games — through 1983 — on Thanksgiving. The 1984 game will drop back to a Saturday, then the next four will be on Thanksgiving.

"What it boils down to is that every fifth year we won't be able to play on Thanksgiving because the Saturday after Thanksgiving calls for us to play TCU and Texas to play Baylor," Tate said.

Rumors of playing the game at Texas two consecutive years are not true, he added.

"We certainly aren't going over there two years in a row and I doubt that Texas would want to come to College Station two straight years," he said. "We'll seek another route in getting our schedules changed so that we don't play Texas, Arkansas and Houston on the road the same season."

The Thanksgiving Day clash between Texas and Texas A&M was moved to Saturday for the first time in 1977 after Houston's entry into the Southwest Conference led to a revision of the league schedule.

Notre Dame Arena Rivals Any College 'Snakepit'?

By The Associated Press
The two golden domes of the Athletic and Convocation Center at Notre Dame were covered with snow. A storm had moved in from Lake Michigan, bringing with it a bitter cold shroud of pristine white that somehow seemed befitting of the campus.

marked — like an Alpine meadow — on the floor of the football stadium. One almost expected to see four sets of footprints, those of Harry Stuhldreher, Elmer Layden, Jim Crowley and Don Miller, tracing their way from the locker room. But the Four Horsemen of Notre Dame did their deeds under a blue and gray October sky. The sky of February was pure white.

The Fighting Irish were playing a basketball game that night at the center, a small gymnasium by comparison with many other major college facilities. And that night, with the temperature dropping below 10 degrees, far fewer than the capacity 11,345 would attend.
Hours before the game, the halls of the building rang empty. Those ticket holders who decided to attend came late. The 14 rostered players from St. Mary's, (Calif.) College arrived before most of the fans. They took their warmup shots without the din, the hoots and hollers of the Notre Dame fans.

Even in the ACC, whose home gymnasiums are sometimes called snake pits, coaches are beginning to wonder if the roar of the home crowd might not be affecting the players adversely.

Still, one couldn't help but wonder if the ghost of George Gipp wasn't causing some of those airballs that St. Mary's tossed up. Maybe he was just nudging them aside slightly, biding his time until the football season started, so he could deflect some of those UCLA passes.

"Still, it's pretty hard to shoot a jump shot with the ghost of George Gipp looking over your shoulder," one courtside veteran observed.

"I think it's true, to some extent," says Wake Forest's Carl Tacy. "The home crowd puts a lot of pressure on the players, while the other team can be loose, relaxed. They have nothing to lose."

If that's his wish, he can get some practice Sunday when the basketball teams of Notre Dame and UCLA meet for the second time this season. Notre Dame lost its first game of the season, 94-81, at Pauley Pavilion, and national television will chronicle the rematch at the Athletic and Convocation Center.

When college basketball aficionados talk of the most difficult places in the country to play, they talk of the cauldrons of the Atlantic Coast Conference, the huge facilities at Kentucky, Brigham Young and Syracuse, the stylishly new Assembly Hall at Champaign, Ill., or the tradition of Pauley Pavilion at UCLA.

That is not to say, certainly, that playing at home has become a disadvantage. As Phelps points out, the Irish did crack UCLA's record winning streak of 88 games at Notre Dame on Jan. 19, 1974.

"No doubt about it. There's nothing that gets Digger pumped up like UCLA," says assistant sports information director John Heiser. "He begins to worry about that game a little earlier in the week than he usually does."

Yet, how can a 20-year-old player dress in the same locker room with the ghost of the fabled "Gipper" or walk the hallways with the memory of Johnny Lujack without feeling the effect?

"When you've got the rhythm going and the momentum going, the crowd keeps you going that much longer," Phelps says. "It's like the UCLA game. John Shumate gets two points to cut it

There is no tougher place in the country to play basketball than Notre Dame.

Plainview Edges Coronado 52-49

By RAY GLASS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
A pressuring Plainview zone defense shut down Coronado's inside game in the second half and the Bulldogs' Gilbert Wright exploded for 16 points in the final 16 minutes to give PHS a come-from-behind 52-49 district victory over the Mustangs Tuesday in the CHS gym.

The Plainview defense, which allowed 6-foot-5 John Lord 14 points on seven of nine field goals in the first half, held Lord and 6-6 Mark Sobosle to a combined seven points in the final two periods before both Coronado big men fouled out late in the game.

Meanwhile, the 6-3 Wright had six points in the third period and 10 in the final eight minutes as the Bulldogs erased a 26-24 Mustang halftime lead and survived a last-second shot to finish the first half of the District 4-5A with a 3-1 record and a 13-14 overall mark.

Coronado, with one league game to play before winding up its first-half schedule, slipped to 1-2 and 12-14.

"Their defense in the second half beat us, that and our inability to stop Wright. They pressured our outside shooters and we didn't get any inside scoring," Coronado coach Barry Arnwine said.

"We didn't shoot as well in the second half as we did in the first (40 percent to 50 percent) and we didn't get as good shots in the second half. They (Lord and Sobosle) went after Wright hard on defense but he just did a super job inside."

Despite the Bulldog's comeback, Coronado had a chance to tie the game and send it into overtime with a shot in the final seconds.

Wright's offensive rebound and layin with 1:58 to play put the Bulldogs up 50-45 and Jerry Walker added a free throw 56 seconds later to push the advantage to 51-45 with 1:02 to play.

Lord, who was one of six from the floor in the second half, missed a short jumper but Mike Ahlenius put the rebound back in to cut the lead to 51-47 with 47 seconds to play. O Plainview's next trip down the floor, Walker was called for an offensive foul, sending Robney Garner to the free-throw line.

Garner calmly sank both ends of the one and one, pulling the Mustangs to within a single bucket, 51-49, with 37 seconds showing on the scoreboard clock.

The Bulldogs ran a spread offense to run the clock down and Garner fouled point guard Alton Jackson with 12 seconds to play. But Jackson, who earlier missed the front end of a one and one at the 1:24 mark, missed his first shot and, after Ahlenius yanked down the rebound, Coronado called time out to set up a play.

The Mustangs' Kurt Johnson brought the ball downcourt and passed into the corner to forward Cody Love. But Love was pressured by two defenders and passed back to Johnson, who's 20-footer bounced off the back of the rim.

"The final play was similar to what we wanted," Arnwine said. "But 12 seconds doesn't give you a whole lot of time. We would rather Cody had shot the shot but the last shot didn't beat us."

Bulldog Richie Norrell, who pulled down the missed shot and was fouled by Lord with no time showing on the clock, hit one of two free throws to give Plainview its final three-point margin.

Wright led all scorers with 22 points and teammate Lee Carter added 12. Lord paced the Mustangs with 16 points while Love tossed in 12 and Garner had 10.

Lord's torrid shooting in the first two periods put the Mustangs on top. He connected on five of his first seven field-goal attempts and scored 10 points as Coronado managed a 14-12 lead after the first quarter.

CHS five times led by its largest margin of the night, six points, in the second period before Carter rolled in a layin and canned a 20-footer in the last two minutes of the half to bring Plainview within 26-24 at halftime.

Lord dominated the middle of the lane in the first half and had seven blocked shots and three rebounds to go with his 14 points.

Plainview outscored the hosts 12-10 in the third period to pull even at 36 entering the game's final eight minutes and the Bulldogs took their first lead of the contest at the 7:48 mark when Wright hit both ends of a one and one for a 38-36 lead. The score was tied three times after that before the Bulldogs opened their five-point margin.

Wright and Norrell had eight rebounds apiece while Lord, Sobosle and Garner finished the night with six apiece.

Eagles Race Past Trojans 74-58

By RICHARD DAY
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
The Christian Athletic Trophy belongs to Lubbock Christian High forever.

The trophy, which was dedicated in 1968 and been given to the winner of a LCHS-Christ The King boys' basketball game each year since, will remain in the Eagles' trophy case after Tuesday's 74-58 victory.

Tuesday night's game was the final game of the year for CTK and following it the Trojan athletic program will be abolished.

LCHS more or less owned the trophy anyway, as it was in its trophy case every year except two — 1974-75 and 1978-79, and will continue to do so until CTK resurrects its athletic program.

But early in Tuesday's game, it looked like the Trojans would take the trophy and run the Eagles out of the gym. CTK burst out to a 6-0 lead before LCHS knew what was happening.

But that was the only lead the Trojans could come up with in the game.

Then, for five minutes, the Trojans couldn't buy a basket and it was LCHS which found the range and took the lead.

During that five-minute period, the Eagles built an 18-8 lead. By the end of the quarter, it was 20-10 LCHS and the rout was on.

The Eagles scored four more unanswered points to start the second period to take its first of three 14-point leads in the game. But by halftime, the Trojans narrowed the gap to eleven points, the last basket coming on one of Charlie Opperman's nine bombs from the ratters, with eight seconds to play.

LCHS put on another big surge in the third quarter and outscored the Trojans 16-10 for a 54-39 lead. The advantage reached its highest point in the game — 52-26 when Scott Phelan hit brother Pat with a pass under the goal for an easy layup with 1:21 remaining in the quarter.

Pat was the Eagles' leading scorer with 14 points, while Mike Self added 12 and Scott Phelan chipped in 10.

The game's leading scorer was CTK's Mike Connors, who hit eight field goals and was four of seven from the charity line for 20 points. Opperman scored 19 for runner-up honors.

"After six games last week, it was tough to get up for this one," LCHS coach Don Walker said. "It took us a while to get started, but I was happy with the way we played. Now we're going for the TAPS title."

Miss Hemphill, Plainview Smash Coronado Girls

Seniors Gay Hemphill and Donna Jackson shredded a sagging Coronado zone defense for 43 points as the Bulldogs blasted past the Mustangs 56-35 in the District 4-5A second-half opener for both teams Tuesday in the CHS gym.

The 6-foot Miss Hemphill glided for 33 points from both post positions while Miss Jackson, operating mainly from the low pivot spot, tallied 10 as the Bulldogs moved to 22-7 for the season.

The loss dropped the Mustangs two games below the 500 level with an 11-13 season mark.

Miss Hemphill, voted a high school All-American last year, showed some all-anything moves within five feet of the bucket, twisting and driving around defenders for nine layups.

She connected on all but two of 13 during the contest, nailing 13 of 17 field goals and all seven of her charity tosses to come within three points of outscoring the entire Coronado squad.

The Bulldogs blew the game open in the first eight minutes, outscoring the Mustangs 21-6 in the first quarter with Miss Hemphill collecting 10 points, a pair of free throws, a short jumper and three layups. She also had a game-high nine rebounds.

Leanne Wade led the Coronado effort with 15 points and Tami Scott pumped in 10, all in the second half.

But the Mustangs had problems generating an offense, due in part to 29 turnovers, full-court Plainview defensive pressure and a tight man-to-man curtain thrown up by the Bulldogs.

LCHS Girls Roll To Win

The Lubbock Christian High girls basketball team gave rival Christ The King a rude exit from high school athletics Tuesday night in the LCC Fieldhouse by defeating the Trojans 55-37.

Christ The King High School has decided to drop its athletic program, so the final record for the final girls' team is 2-21.

Kristy Logan scored 12 points to lead the Eaglettes, now 20-10, to victory, while teammates Dene Bowe and Kim Phelan added 10 each.

The game's leading scorer was CTK's Leslie Schmidt, who poured in 21 points.

The Eaglettes took the lead early, and though CTK got close several times, never relinquished that lead.

The biggest LCHS lead was six points, 12-6 at the end of the first quarter, but the Trojans, led by Miss Schmidt who had six points in the second, cut the margin to one by halftime.

Levelland Girls Nip Estacado

LEVELLAND (Special) — Karen Kinnison pumped in 17 points and Rebecca Phillips added 12 as they lead the Levelland girls to a 53-52 victory over Estacado in district 1-4A action Tuesday.

Maxine Walker and Cassandra Mann each hit 16 to lead the Matadors. Miss Mann scored her 16 without benefit of a free throw, while Miss Walker hit on six of seven from the line.

For Levelland, Miss Kinnison netted eight field goals and Miss Phillips notched four from the field and four of five from the line. Christi Jo Dycus also added five buckets for the Lobos.

Levelland led Estacado 31-18 at the half, but the Matadors pulled within nine at the end of the third period. In the fourth quarter, Estacado outscored Levelland 16-8, but fell one point short in the final tally.

The victory for the Lobos boosts their record to 15-10, and 1-2 in the second half of district play. Estacado falls to 12-13 on the year and 0-2 in district.

Westerners Score First Loop Victory

HEREFORD (Special) — Lubbock High, paced by three players in double figures, scored its first district win in three seasons Tuesday, defeating Hereford 57-54.

"It was our first district win in three years," Westerner boss Craig Wells said, "but it was the worst game we've played all year."

The win over the Whitefaces (now 3-21 for the year, 0-3 in District 4-5A play) gives the Westerners a 12-13 season mark, 1-2 in loop competition.

The contest was a see-saw battle, with Lubbock High grabbing a two-point first quarter lead before the Herd tied it at 26-26 at halftime.

The score was deadlocked heading into the final period at 42-42 before the Westerners opened an eight-point lead.

Hereford, hitting well at the charity stripe, closed that gap to three points at the end of the game.

Kirk Cole paced LHS with 19 points, with Andy Marquez adding 13 and Charlie Quade 10. Brad Ruff also canned eight.

Alan Wartes and Gary Parman combined for 34 of Hereford's points, with Wartes scoring 18 and Parman 16.

Levelland Squeaks Past Mats

LEVELLAND (Special) — Levelland's Dwight Phillips canned a game-high 28 points to lead the Lobos to a 65-62 win Tuesday over Estacado in a District 1-4A basketball game.

Phillips hit 11 shots from the field and added six of seven free-throw attempts to lift the Lobos, 13-8 on the season, to their third league win against as many losses.

Four Matadors scored in double figures, led by Kenneth Cade's 16-point performance. James Barnett added 12 and Rodney Guyton and Jerry Gray each chipped in 11.

Ricky Lawless added 10 for Levelland, while Scott Barton scored eight.

The Mats built a 17-11 first quarter lead before Levelland closed it to 29-27 at halftime. Estacado still led 48-47 heading into the final period before the Lobos outscored the Mats 18-14 in the final frame to take the win.

The loss drops EHS to 12-13 for the season, 2-3 in loop play.

Estacado won the junior varsity game by a 79-71 count.

Houston Stuffs Mustangs 79-64

By The Associated Press

HOUSTON — Houston's Larry Micheaux shaved his head for inspiration and Rob Williams scored 29 points and befuddled Southern Methodist with his ball-handling wizardry Tuesday night to lead the Cougars to a 79-64 Southwest Conference basketball victory.

The win boosted Houston's SWC-leading record to 8-2 while the Mustangs fell to a 3-7 mark.

Micheaux, who shaved his head after Saturday's 81-70 loss to Texas Tech, played one of his best games of the season, hitting 7 of 7 shots in the first half and finished with 19 points and 10 rebounds for the game.

Williams, the SWC's leading scorer, got 16 of his game-high 29 points in the second half when the Cougars pulled away from the outmanned Mustangs, who upset UH 72-70 in triple overtime earlier this season.

Arkansas led 14-17 at halftime, as Texas hit only six of 29 field goal attempts, a dismal 20.7 percent.

WACO — Joe Copeland took a feed from Ronnie Blake and scored a layup with one second remaining to give Baylor a dramatic come-from-behind 60-59 victory over Rice in a final finish to a Southwest Conference basketball game Tuesday night.

Although Rice led throughout most of the second half, the lead changed hands four times in the final 35 seconds.

Baylor took the lead at 56-55 when Terry Teagle, who finished with 15 points, scored on an 18-footer from the corner.

Rice regained the lead at 57-56 with 33 seconds left when Anthony DeCello hit both ends of a one-and-one from the free throw line.

Blake then countered with a layup to give Baylor the lead again at 58-57.

Bobby Tudor scored on a 15-footer with 10 seconds remaining to give Rice the lead at 59-58.

Sharp Decline Recorded In Property Taxation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Property owners in the nation's biggest cities paid $2 billion less in property taxes in 1979 than the year before, primarily thanks to California's Proposition 13.
