

Report Sees Doubling Of Costs For MX System

WASHINGTON (AP) — The MX mobile missile system, which the Air Force has estimated will cost $34.2 billion, actually will carry a price tag more than twice that amount by the end of the century, the General Accounting Office says in a newly released report.

And the GAO, an investigative arm of Congress, said the precise cost of the strategic nuclear system is impossible to compute because of numerous uncertainties. Undetermined factors include the possibility of splitting the project among four states including the plains of Texas and New Mexico rather than siting it in Utah and Nevada as originally planned.

The GAO report said the required number of intercontinental missiles and shelters is not firm and that the lack of a new arms limitation treaty with the Soviet Union could mean that many more would be necessary, adding billions of dollars to the cost.

The report, based on interviews with military officials and examination of documents, also said the Air Force's July 1986 target date for beginning MX deployment is questionable because of new requirements and a seven-month delay in issuing a preliminary environmental impact statement.

That impact statement was expanded to include Texas and New Mexico when opposition to the project developed in Utah and Nevada. Public hearings on the preliminary statement were not held until early this year and another round of meetings to gather public input is expected in early March.

Among those voicing opposition to basing the MX entirely in Utah and Nevada was Nevada's Gov. Paul Laxalt, who also was instrumental in President Reagan's election campaign.

The GAO said development of a new fuse for the nuclear warhead of the MX missile and construction of facilities for a second operating base are primarily responsible for adding $700 million to the Air Force's $34.2 billion cost estimate, which the service based on the value of the dollar in 1978 with no regard for inflation.

The Air Force told GAO investigators it was working to offset the $700 million boost with cuts in other parts of the program.

The GAO report cast doubt on the accuracy of the $34.2 billion estimate. Even taking the Defense Department's traditionally over-optimistic inflation projections into account and assuming no major program changes, the MX program will cost the Air Force $70 billion to build and operate by the year 2000, it said.

Those figures do not take into account the Department of Energy's undisclosed costs of developing, acquiring and maintaining warheads for the MX or the impact aid to the areas where the missile system will be deployed, the GAO added.

The recently unveiled draft of the environmental impact statement indicated that siting portions of the project in productive farmlands of Texas and New Mexico would be significant.

New Budget Cuts Targeted Administration Refuses To Divulge Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration targeted new and deeper cuts across "the entire spectrum" of federal spending on Friday as a government report showed the economy still weakening from high inflation and interest rates.

Budget Director David A. Stockman refused to divulge any of the new budget-trimming areas, but told reporters that few programs were spared. "We have reviewed every agency from the Veterans Administration to NASA," he declared.

At the Cabinet Room of the White House, the president met with Stockman and other top advisers and, in a show for photographers, pretended to wield a shiny souvenir cleaver upon a book purportedly representing both the budget and federal regulations. Once the cut was made, he joked, "you throw both halves away."

Nearly All Cuts Decided

Later, deputy press secretary Karna Small said the President and his Cabinet had settled upon nearly all of the new cuts. She refused to disclose what they were, but said they fell within the previously announced range of $10 billion to $13 billion.

She quoted Stockman as saying: "The budget savings options sufficient to hold the line were presented to and approved by the president today. We're back on track."

Miss Small said "There were some minor disagreements" among the Cabinet, and decisions were deferred in "less than five" areas.

But even as the president's budget team sought new savings, opposition stiffened from organized labor and other groups on the cutbacks already proposed.

change, each state would decide how to allocate its grant among the 40 programs. Higher spending on one program than under the present system would force cutbacks in spending on other programs.

Meanwhile, a government indicator of future economic activity pointed downward in January for a second consecutive month, suggesting the economy will be slowing in the months ahead.

The Commerce Department said its Index of Leading Indicators fell 0.4 percent in January, after declining 0.9 percent in December. The index had registered a gain for six months in a row prior to December's drop.

Although the latest decline pointed to sluggishness, government economists said the index did not mean that the country was headed for another recession.

The economy has recovered from the recession of a year ago faster than had been expected, growing at a healthy 5 percent annual rate in the fourth quarter of 1980. Most economists predict a significant slowdown from that growth rate in 1981.

President Reagan contends his package of spending and tax cuts, together with a slowdown in the growth of the nation's money supply, will reduce inflation and restore strong growth in 1982.

In his address to Congress on Feb. 18, Reagan urged that the budget for fiscal

This week, however, Reagan ordered up to $6 billion in additional budget cuts after learning that projected federal spending is running higher than his budget experts had estimated. Reagan called for the new cuts so he could limit his proposed spending plan to $696 billion.

American, British Citizens Urged To Live Within Means

WASHINGTON (AP) — British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said Friday the United States and Great Britain will survive their economic woes only if their citizens learn to live within their means at a time when prosperity is suffering from prior government intervention.

"We have to persuade our peoples to match their expectations to a world in which growth is likely to be slower than in the early 1970s, and increases in living standards have to be hard-earned," Mrs. Thatcher said.

"In public expenditure and in the running of private industry the coat must match the cloth," she declared.

Mrs. Thatcher made her remarks in a foreign policy address after receiving an honorary doctorate degree at Georgetown University.

A handful of demonstrators gathered outside the campus carrying placards and shouting slogans protesting British policy in Northern Ireland. But there were no incidents.

The award came on the second day of her four-day visit to the United States. She planned to receive President Reagan at the British Embassy Friday night, reciprocating for a dinner at the White House the previous evening.

During her visit, Mrs. Thatcher has underscored the same conservative economic philosophy that guides President Reagan's attempt to resolve U.S. economic problems. Mrs. Thatcher said the same illness — people trying to live beyond their means — is responsible for high inflation, unemployment, and sluggish economic growth in both nations.

A related fault has been the growing involvement of the government in the economy and people's lives, she said, adding that this must end.

She said economic freedom is one of the pillars for a free society and "is the foundation upon which the unparalleled

ARIZONA Gov. Bruce Babbitt, a politician long recognized for his support of open meetings laws and other freedoms of the press, says he defended the press with no motive in mind other than the First Amendment — and perhaps "a nice editorial" in the newspaper every now and then.

A "surprised, honored and flattered" Babbitt was recognized Friday evening at concluding ceremonies of Texas Tech's Mass Communications Week. Babbitt was presented the Thomas Jefferson Award for his support of press freedoms.

In a press conference before the awards banquet, Babbitt said his interest in freedom of the news media came from his lifelong study of American history. He described himself as a fan of Thomas Jefferson and said that as a result he nat-

Mine Strike Sought

The United Mine Workers called for a two-day nationwide strike in March to protest proposed slashes in benefits for miners disabled by black lung disease. Meanwhile, a coalition of 157 labor, civil rights and consumer groups announced plans to lobby against the Reagan plan in Congress.

More than 100 programs which were not named in the list of 1982 budget reductions President Reagan proposed to Congress last week will be slashed in the new round, sources said.

Congressional sources — who asked not to be named — said the administration plans to cut the supplemental nutrition program for low-income women, children and infants, known as WIC, by 30 percent, or about $300 million from the $1 billion proposed by the Carter administration.

Sources Name Targets

Other new targets, it was learned, include the Veterans administration, farm price support programs, the Job Corps and other employment training, and nuclear energy projects.

The administration also wants to combine a $1.8 billion low-income fuel assistance program and 39 other federal health and social services programs into one, large grant for the states in 1982, with the total costs for all 40 programs cut to 75 percent of 1981 levels.

The fuel assistance program provides extra money for people to meet their home heating bills. Under the proposed

Iraqi Officials Killed In Lebanon Car Chase

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Assassins in a speeding automobile shot and killed two Iraqi diplomatic personnel Friday after a hectic car chase along Beirut's coastal highway that ended in a hail of machine gun fire, police said.

A Lebanese strolling on the seaside promenade was wounded by stray bullets.

The unidentified gunmen overtook the embassy car and fired into the passenger side, immediately killing accountant Mohammed Khodair, police said. The driver, Khodair's assistant Kamel Abbas, died at American University Hospital less than an hour later, they said. Both victims carried diplomatic passports.

The attack in Beirut's plush Ramlet al-Baida neighborhood occurred a few blocks from the apartment where Jordan's charge d'affaires to Lebanon, Hisam Muhaissen, and his maid were kidnapped at gunpoint Feb. 6. Neither has been heard from since.

In the past six months there have been rocket and bomb attacks on many embassies or diplomatic residences in Lebanon, including the American, French, Saudi Arabian, Iraqi, Swiss, Libyan and Iranian.

"Ever since the civil war, there has been no effective government in Lebanon, and with so many undisciplined armed groups around, anyone is vulnerable to attack — for any reason," said a Western diplomat.

King Hussein's government in Jordan threatened to campaign for closure of all foreign embassies in Beirut after the Muhaissen kidnapping, bitterly criticizing the 22,000-man Syrian peacekeeping army in Lebanon that is the country's main security force.

In addition to the attacks, the diplomat said his country was worried about an incident that occurred the same day as the Muhaissen kidnapping in which unidentified gunmen hijacked Iraq's diplomatic pouch at Beirut airport. But he said it was unlikely any nation would pull out of Beirut, a key listening post in the Middle East.

The assailants fled from the scene of the Friday shooting unharmed. Police said the accountants were not armed. The Iraqi Embassy had no comment on the incident.

Both the Iraqi and Iranian embassies, formerly 200 yards apart, have been targets of frequent attacks since the Iran-Iraq War broke out more than five months ago. A grenade was tossed at the Iraqi press attaché, slightly wounding him last fall. Iraq has since moved to a new embassy compound about two miles from the Iranian mission.

Iranian revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini commands the allegiance, even devotion, of many of Lebanon's 950,000 Moslem Shiites, the majority sect in Iran and the largest single religious grouping in this half-Moslem, half-Christian nation of 3 million people.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, leader of the ruling Arab Baath Socialist Party, also has a strong following among Lebanese Moslem leftist groups and the Iraqi-backed Arab Liberation Front, one of eight groups that make up the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Hundreds have died in clashes between pro-Iraqi and pro-Iranian groups in Lebanon since relations between Iraq and Iran soured after the Islamic revolution in Iran.

Police Raiders Hit City Porn Theaters

By EVIE DAVIS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A FRIDAY night raid of Lubbock's adult movie theaters led to the arrests of five movie house employees and the confiscation of five allegedly obscene films and video cassettes.

A special task force of officers from the police department, sheriff's office and criminal district attorney's office also collected the night's receipts at four of the establishments and took the names of about 70 customers.

A fifth theater, however, escaped the crackdown when the film it was showing was not the one listed on the lawmen's search warrant.

Authorities said all films confiscated are alleged violations of the Texas Commercial Obscenity statute. Viewing material now in official property rooms are "Badge 69," "Deep Rub," "A Taste of Sugar," "Joys of Georgette" and "Hot Legs."

Eighteen lawmen, armed with search warrants and divided into five teams, simultaneously converged on the theaters about 9:15 p.m. Friday. Arrests were made at the Varsity Theater, 1805 Broadway Ave., the Circle Drive-In, Avenue Q and 58th Street, The Flick, 2212 19th St., and the Executive Theater, 1652 13th St.

Films were taken and arrests were made at those establishments, but the four lawmen sent to the Fine Arts Theater on the Levelland Highway near the western fringe of the city found their efforts stymied by a problem with their warrant.

Two films were confiscated at the Circle Theater, which has become the symbol for Citizens Against Pornography, a group that has petitioned law enforcement agencies and appealed to city officials for the closure of the theater and similar ones across the city.

Two Circle employees also were arrested and one employee from the other three theaters — Varsity, Flick and Executive — also were taken into custody. They were booked Friday night at Lubbock County Jail on suspicion of exhibiting commercial obscenity, a Class B misdemeanor.

Officers also took the names of the drivers of 23 vehicles at the drive-in, about 15 Varsity patrons, 17 customers at the Flick and a dozen at the Executive.

Cool Weather, More Rain Seen For Area

A WEAK cold front moving across the state today may prompt more rain across the South Plains and should keep temperatures cool.

Light rain fell throughout most of West Texas and the Panhandle Friday as cloudy skies held Lubbock's high reading to 59. The steady drizzle accompanying the clouds also coated city streets with a slick film and police reported more than 40 minor traffic accidents by late Friday.

Today's high is expected to be in the middle 60s, according to the National Weather Service, and a 20 percent chance of more precipitation remains in the forecast.

A possibility of showers for the area continues through Wednesday, forecasters add, and there should be no significant temperature changes.

Lawsuit Challenging Water Election Filed

By MARY ALICE ROBBINS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A SUIT contesting the Lubbock County Water Control and Improvement District's Jan. 17 board member election was filed Friday in 72nd District Court.

Lubbock pharmacist Dale Miller, a three-year veteran of the board, filed the suit against Lubbock fireman George W. Whitworth, one of two candidates declared winners in the election.

Miller's suit contends 20 of the 473 ballots counted in the election were cast by individuals who were not registered to vote, enough to have changed the election outcome. He is asking the court to declare January's balloting void and to order another election.

An official canvass conducted by the water board Feb. 2 showed Miller lost his re-election bid to Whitworth by 18 votes. Final tallies gave R.M. "Max" Wiser, the other declared winner, 270 votes, Whitworth 223, Miller 205 and McKinley Shephard 28. Miller said Wiser and Shephard were not included in the suit because there were not enough contested votes to have changed the election outcome for them.

Miller's suit claims 16 unregistered voters were allowed to cast absentee ballots and that unregistered voters were allowed to vote at the ballot boxes in Shallowater, Slaton and Lubbock's Fire Station No. 6.

The contestant's suit also reserved the right to amend the petition to show "there were numerous violations" of the Election Code during absentee balloting and on election day at both Buffalo Springs Lake and at the fire station.

The Criminal District Attorney's Office also is looking into possible irregularities in the election based on a report by Tax Assessor-Collector Frank Stuart that 22 unregistered voters may have cast ballots in the race. District Attorney John Montford filed a motion in 99th District Court Feb. 3 asking that all records of last month's election be impounded.

Miller's suit is the second election contest to be filed here within the past year. Last summer defeated Precinct 3 commissioner candidate Eliseo Solis sued Franklin Dunn, contesting the outcome of the Democratic primary runoff.

Although Solis failed to persuade Judge Robert Montgomery to order a new election, the judge did rule 81 illegal votes were cast in that election. Dunn had defeated Solis by a 107-vote margin.

Freezing Rain, Snow Spread Across Plains

By The Associated Press

Freezing rain and snow spread across the northern Plains and into the upper Mississippi Valley on Friday, and showers were scattered from the South to the Great Lakes.

Cloudy skies prevailed across the Southwest, and the Northwest was partly cloudy.

Up to 18 inches of snow and drifts three feet deep were reported in California's San Bernardino Mountains as a result of a storm that crossed Southern California. Ski resort owners in the area had lost business to the beaches when temperatures soared earlier in the month to unseasonably high readings.

In central San Diego County, 10 inches of snow fell in the Laguna Mountains, heaviest snowfall of the season. The average depth high on the 6,220-foot Mount Laguna was about 2½ feet.

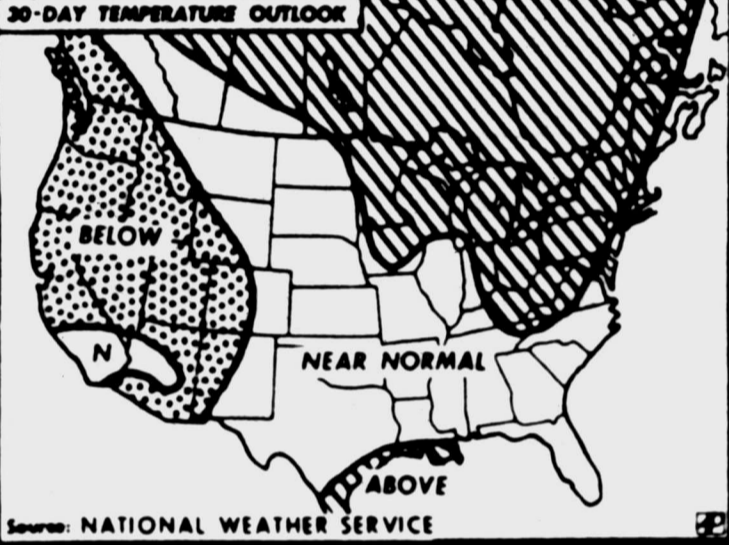

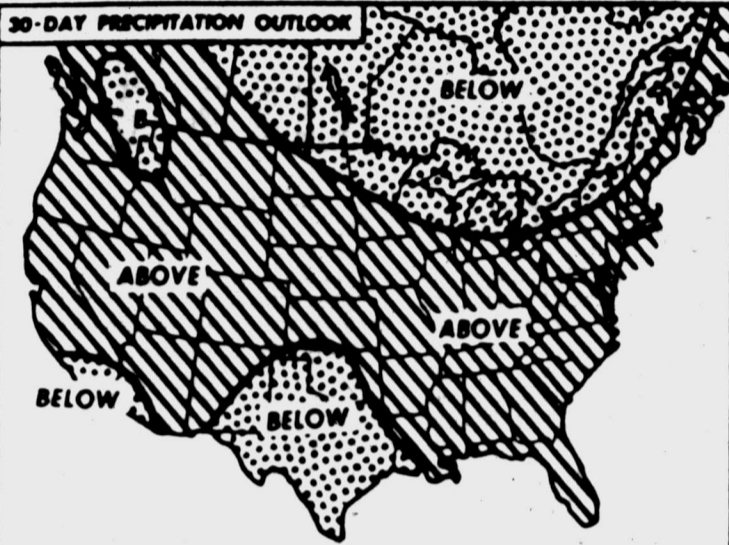

More rain and snow was expected and Saturday.

Colorado's mountains received the first substantial snowfall in more than a week Thursday night with some ski areas reporting as much as 11 inches of new snow.

Temperatures around the nation at 1 p.m. CST ranged from a low of 26 at Duluth, Minn., to a high of 82 at Cross City, Fla.

Here is Friday afternoon weather in selected cities, as supplied by the National Weather Service:

- East Atlanta 67 cloudy, Boston 47 fair, Buffalo 38 partly cloudy, Caribou 32 windy, Charleston SC 62 hazy, Cincinnati 47 partly cloudy, Cleveland 39 cloudy, Detroit 32 cloudy, Miami 80 fair, Nashville 74 partly cloudy, New York 50 windy, Philadelphia 49 fair, Pittsburgh 40 fair, Washington 59 fair

City Jail Floors Nearing Completion

By MARY ALICE ROBBINS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Construction work at the new $4.8 million county jail Friday passed a major milestone with the final pouring of concrete topping for the facility's floors.

Workers were pouring and spreading approximately 800 square feet of the concrete topping Friday morning in the southeast section of the jail's second phase.

"It's a pretty big milestone," commented general contractor H.R. "Doc" Bundock as he watched his employees carefully applying the concrete on the final portion of the floor.

According to Bundock, Friday's work climaxed his firm's efforts to complete nearly 40,000 square feet of concrete floors in the new jail.

The floors in the jail's first phase have caused major problems on the construction project, delaying its completion for more than a year and leading county commissioners to fire the original general contractor, Furr's Construction Co.

Cracked and loose concrete first began to show up in the jail's floors in late 1979, leading to the discovery that the facility's top and bottom slabs had failed to bond properly.

Representatives of Furr's contended that the problems with the concrete floors were caused by defects in the original design for the jail. The detention facility was designed by the local architectural-engineering firm of Mæker and Stephens.

However, test results from the Portland Cement Association indicated possible problems in the cleaning of the facility's sub-slab and in the mixing of concrete for the topping.

After terminating their contract with Furr's last September, the commissioners court hired Bundock's company to complete the problem-plagued first phase of the jail. At the time, Bundock already was serving as the general contractor for the jail's smaller second phase.

One of the major tasks Bundock faced when he went to work on the first phase was the replacement of around 25,000 square feet of the concrete topping on the floors.

To date, Bundock said, only a few expansion cracks have been found in the concrete floors already completed. "There's far less of that sort of thing than we're supposed to have," he added.

Some of the cracks that have appeared are in areas where the concrete topping is thicker than the two-inch slab specified in the construction plans, Bundock said.

In some areas, he noted, the top slab is more than three inches thick. According to Bundock, the reason the top slab is thicker in some places is because the sub-slab is uneven.

Vickie Daniel Invokes Fifth Amendment In Custody Hearing

LIBERTY (AP) — Vickie Daniel invoked her Fifth Amendment rights during a child custody hearing Friday and refused to answer any questions about letters removed from a warehouse that contained her slain husband's belongings.

Mrs. Daniel, charged with murder in the Jan. 19 shooting death of former Texas House Speaker Price Daniel Jr., is fighting to retain custody of the couple's two young sons in a suit brought by Daniel's sister, Jean Daniel Murph of Richardson. Mrs. Daniel's former husband revealed Friday that he is seeking custody of their 12-year-old daughter.

Mrs. Murph's attorney, J.C. "Zeke" Zbranske, filed a motion asking to inspect the letters that have since been turned over to the court and sealed on orders of State District Judge W.G. "Dub" Moore.

Zbranske asked Mrs. Daniel about the contents of the letters between her and her husband and the details of their removal from the warehouse.

"I claim my rights to the Fifth Amendment," said Mrs. Daniel, 33, acting on the advice of her attorney, Richard "Racehorse" Haynes.

Zbranske said the Fifth Amendment covered many areas and asked Mrs. Daniel if she was claiming her right against self-incrimination.

"I refuse to answer the question and invoke protection of the Fifth Amendment of the United States Constitution in the hazard of self-incrimination," said Mrs. Daniel, reading an answer prepared by Haynes after a lengthy conference at the bench.

Mrs. Daniel, making her first appearance in the child custody hearing, stepped down after about 15 minutes and her attorney Andrew Lannie was called to testify.

However, Lannie claimed client-attorney privilege when asked about the letters and Zbranske later withdrew his motion.

Earlier Friday, Wood refused to seal reports on a court-ordered psychiatric examination Mrs. Daniel underwent Tuesday in Houston.

The judge also refused to hold Mrs. Daniel in default for failing to appear to have her deposition taken and heard arguments Friday on a motion by Haynes to stay the proceedings until after the criminal trial.

Haynes argued that holding the civil proceeding before the trial would enhance the prosecutions position in the criminal case.

Haynes called assistant District Attorney Jerry Gene Andrews to the stand and asked the prosecutor if he would use any information he learned in the custody hearing that would help the prosecution.

"I would have no reservations about using such information," replied Andrews.

Mrs. Murph has asked for temporary custody of Franklin Baldwin Daniel, 3, and Marion Price Daniel IV, 1. She claims her sister-in-law is an unfit mother, emotionally unstable and prone to violence.

Haynes argued that the psychiatrist's report has the "appearances of impropriety" because the examining doctor once was represented by a law partner of one of Mrs. Murph's attorneys.

Noting he filed the motion before the Houston doctors released their findings late Thursday, Haynes said attorney Richard Morrison didn't inform him until two hours after the psychological examinations began that his law partner had represented one of the psychiatrists.

Morrison, representing Mrs. Murph, took the witness stand at Haynes' request and testified he was unaware of his association with the doctor.

Zbranske then called Haynes to the stand and quizzed him about reports that one of the psychiatrists had approached a partner of Haynes and asked for legal advice.

Haynes, cross-examining himself, then told the court he was aware that one doctor had asked for advice on a "domestic problem," but said legal services were rejected.

Mrs. Daniel and her first husband, Larry Moore of Dayton, both have been subpoenaed to testify.

Moore said he was ordered to appear by Zbranske. "The only reason I'm here is because I was told to be. I don't care about what's going on here. I'd much rather be at work," Moore said.

Mrs. Daniel has a 12-year-old daughter, Kimberly, and a 10-year-old son, Johnathan, by her marriage to Moore.

Moore said Friday he is trying to work out an "agreeable arrangement" with Mrs. Daniel for custody of their daughter. "We don't want a court fight. She tells me to do what ever she (the child) wants, and Kimberly wants to live with me," said Moore, adding that the girl had been living with him and his second wife in Dayton since Feb. 19.

Zbranske called Houston psychiatrist Dr. Daniel M. Brenner to the stand and tried to question him about reports he had treated Mrs. Daniel prior to her husband's death.

He later withdrew his request and the witness was dismissed.

Ex-McAdoo Man Appointed Judge

A former McAdoo resident has been appointed judge of New Mexico's 13th Judicial District by New Mexico Gov. Bruce King.

Mayo T. Boucher was selected to fill out the remainder of the late Judge Filo Sedillo's term.

Boucher, 62, attended school in McAdoo and also is a graduate of Texas Tech University. He has had a law practice in Belen, N.M., since graduating from the University of New Mexico Law School in 1952.

Boucher was elected to the New Mexico Legislature in 1956 and served four consecutive terms.

He has served as director of the First National Bank of Belen since 1956 and has been involved in the Belen Chamber of Commerce, Rotary Club and Scottish Rite.

He and his wife, Mary, have two children.

UFO SIGHTINGS — Juan P. Saldana, a welder, draws on a chalk board a likeness of a UFO that he and about 30 other people in La Vernia reported seeing last Sunday night. Saldana said the lighted craft he saw made a "whooshing" noise. (AP Laserphoto)

Residents Of Central Texas Town Report UFO Sighting

LA VERNIA (AP) — At least 30 residents of this community 20 miles east of San Antonio say they spotted a triangular-shaped UFO hovering in the area at the same time television sets and telephones were disrupted and a false fire alarm was set off.

The incident happened between 10 and 10:30 p.m. last Sunday but the witnesses said in interviews published Friday by the San Antonio News that the sightings were not reported earlier because of fear of embarrassment.

The witnesses said they kept silent until they began comparing notes Wednesday and Thursday and discovered many other residents made similar sightings.

Welder Juan P. Saldana, backed by his wife and 11 relatives, said a UFO, "came down close to Baumann's store. It looked like a triangle. There were two white lights at the front and a red light at the rear. The lights went up real high, then came back down again.

Saldana, 32, said he heard a strange "low whooshing" sound coming from the craft.

Paul Mattke, chief of the volunteer fire department, said he received numerous telephone reports of UFO sightings.

Mattke said "a smell like burning tar or insulation wiring" hung in the air at a site where two passersby reported smoke coming from the rear of the store in downtown La Vernia.

"We could find no evidence of a fire," said Jim Helmke, co-manager of the store.

Jeff Pierdolle, 24, said he saw what "appeared to be the body of a large aircraft. It had two bright white lights and a red light. We watched it for about 10 minutes. It wasn't making any noise. It was barely moving. It had two bright lights."

Mattke said earlier Sunday a retired Air Force mechanic reported seeing two "saucers" following a plane toward San Antonio. "He thought the plane was towing the objects. Then, all of a sudden, they passed the plane," the fire chief said.

Perhaps the most bizarre part of the sightings was a report from three hunters that they used a flashlight and tried to communicate with what they described as a UFO near La Vernia.

"We're used to seeing aircraft. But, what we saw that night was something we've never seen before," said Vernon Ramzinski, one of three men who have hunted raccoons together near La Vernia for 20 years.

Ramzinski, Anthony Kotzur and Karl Thompson told the newspaper they had just released their dogs when they saw a strange object moving toward them.

"It looked like two eyes at first," Kotzur said. "There were two lights, like street lights. They weren't blinding. They kind of glowed."

"When it got on top of us, it was about the size of an eight-room house. The strange thing was it just made a humming sound. I flashed an SOS at the thing with our flashlight, but it didn't respond," Ramzinski said.

'THE PEOPLE' WOULD PAY

Billboard Lobby In End Run

A BILL CALCULATED to make an end run around—and essentially nullify to a large extent—Lubbock's very popular and effective ordinance to clear out its signboard jungle is up for a committee hearing Wednesday in the Texas Legislature.

If approved, HB 1040 would require cities "to buy the structure and the ground beneath it" any time they want a sign or billboard removed.

Lubbock's ordinance, instead, takes the sensible approach of providing for an abatement period of up to 6 1/2 years, at which time the owners of non-conforming signs and billboards must take them down at their own expense.

Upheld by the Supreme Court, that provision would be wiped out if HB 1040 is approved, thereby nullifying it before it takes full effect next Jan. 1.

TO ITS CREDIT, the Texas Municipal League is mounting a strong campaign against HB 1040, calling it an attempt "to order the taxpaying public to pay the billboard industry for removing its signs."

TML cites the Lubbock experience as Exhibit A proving how beneficial an ordinance regulating the size and placement of signs and billboards can be.

Approved overwhelmingly in a public referendum, the ordinance has had a tremendously good effect already on the city's environment.

Much of the distracting clutter already has been removed from older sections of the city and, in newer shopping areas, businessmen are spared the exorbitant expense of competing with each other for the largest, most garish sign, each blocking out the other's.

As a result, traffic safety is improved, it's easier to find a particular store and environmental pollution is minimized. The situation will be further improved when the abatement period runs its course and the pre-ordinance billboards have to be removed.

"LUBBOCK POSTER Co. sued all the way up to the Texas Supreme Court and then to the U.S. Supreme Court, claiming that Lubbock's sign controls amounted to a taking of property without compensation and therefore violated the U.S. Constitution," the TML recalls.

"This argument was rejected (by the courts) and the case was ultimately decided in favor of the City," it points out.

The Municipal League adds: "In protecting the welfare of their citizens, city governments sometimes step on the toes of a few in order to promote the interests of the many. HB 1040 turns this principle on its head: It steps on the toes of the entire community in order to serve the special interests of a handful."

THAT'S AN EXCELLENT and accurate analysis. As the TML points out, evidence in the Lubbock case showed that 6 1/2 years is ample time for a billboard's useful life to be fully depreciated.

Rep. Charles Evans, D-Hurst, who authored HB 1040, is yielding to a billboard industry lobby that wants the Legislature to substitute its will for that of the people of Lubbock who insisted that the size and placement of signs and billboards be regulated.

His bill would deny that same right to the citizens of other cities because the requirement that the taxpayers buy the over-sized and improperly placed billboards would make such an ordinance unworkable.

The Texas Legislature, as the TML suggests, should follow the example of the Texas and U.S. Supreme Courts and leave the question of reasonable sign and billboard restrictions to the people who are affected by them.

GEORGE F. WILL:

An Itch To Be Rich

WASHINGTON—Journalists are supposed to rush, heedless of their safety, to the defense of the set-up. So now I come forward to assert the usefulness of the most abused minority of the moment: the rich.

Many millions of Americans divide their energy between resenting the rich and aspiring to join their ranks.

One of the greatest American novels is shot through with ambiguous feelings about the rich. Jay Gatsby occasionally looked bewildered, "as though a faint doubt had occurred to him as to the quality of his present happiness."

Today, many Americans who are in a sense, rich, bitterly resent being told that they are rich.

ANDREW TULLY:

No Holds Bar-red

WASHINGTON—In his powerful and trenchant speech on crime to the American Bar Association, Chief Justice Warren Burger told us something that most Americans should have realized long ago.

This is no longer a free country for the law-abiding.

We're not free because we're scared. We are, as Burger put it, "hostages within the borders of our own self-styled, enlightened, civilized country."

When a human being can be murdered walking a few steps from his home to his car, we are not free. When we have to protect our homes with sophisticated locks and burglar alarms, we are not free.

We're scared, and we have a right to be scared. In 1980, the capital of the United States suffered more murders than Sweden and Denmark combined.

WASHINGTON HAS a population of 650,000. Sweden and Denmark combined have a population of more than 12 million. New York City, with the same population as Sweden, has 20 times as many homicides.

More than one quarter of all American households are victimized by criminals at least once every year.

Those are the figures. They are not cold figures. They are hot figures. They are why we have a new growth industry—the selling of devices to secure our homes, the peddling of handguns to be carried for defense when we dare to venture outdoors.

You want to talk about money and inflation? Americans now spend almost $1 billion a year buying security hardware to protect themselves. Local governments spend ten times more on police protection than they did ten years ago. Add all those hundreds of millions of dollars to the high cost of living.

BURGER THINKS we can do something about it. His proposals make sense. They are also expensive. Burger says that "to change this melancholy picture will call for spending more money than we have ever before devoted to law enforcement."

Burger has handed down his judgment in one area of law enforcement. It relates to what he calls the "startling amount of crime committed by persons on release awaiting trial, on parole, and on probation release."

As Burger notes, it is not uncommon for an accused finally to be brought to trial with two, three, or more charges of having committed crimes while he was free pending trial on the charge for which he was originally arrested.

"SHOULD WE be surprised," asks Burger, "if the word gets around in the criminal community that you can commit two or three crimes for the price of only one?"

That occurs, of course, when overburdened prosecutors and courts drop other pending charges when one conviction is obtained. There's not enough manpower, not enough money, to make the accused pay for all the crimes he has committed.

So more dollars are needed to bring defendants to trial swiftly.

Meanwhile, we are not a free people if we have to think twice before deciding to go to a movie. Free people go where they please.

Call them rich and they exclaim: "This name-calling must cease!" But what should one call the persons in the upper sliver of income-earners in a rich nation?

In 1979, the median income was $19,684. Persons earning $50,000 were in the top five percent; persons earning $35,000 were in the top 15 percent. Surely persons rising above 85 percent of a rich populace are, in some sense, rich. But just try to find someone earning "only" $35,000 who feels rich.

The cost of a home (including financing and heating) is turning many "statistically rich" persons into "house-poor" persons—even before they are hit by their children's college costs. (Harvard, Brown and Stanford now cost more than $10,000 a year.)

People can rise high in a rich society without achieving the gratifications that they assumed would be waiting at such lofty social heights. That is one reason why today there is a lot of envy even—perhaps especially—among the relatively affluent.

BUT, THEN, our economy depends on the endless inculcation of envy. If consumers succumbed to contentment, commerce would slow, dangerously.

It is said that envy, unlike the other six deadly sins, does not provide gratification even in its early stages. But envy can seek gratification in policies aimed at the rich.

"The poog always ye, have with you," according to Scripture. We had better always have the rich. Obviously America is not a perfect meritocracy. Economic reward is not always rationally related to economic performance, much less to social worth, or personal virtue.

The rich often do unproductive or worse things with their money. (Without the patronage of the philistine rich, modern art would not be the plague it is.) But the rich have their uses.

THEY ARE significant sources of untapped revenues. This middle-class nation, with its public benefits weighted toward the middle class, can no more balance its budget by increasing taxes on the relatively few rich than by decreasing aid to the relatively few poor.

But society's investing function (which means capital formation, and job creation) must be done, to a considerable extent, either by the saving and investing class—the rich—or by government.

The rich do it better, and without the diminution of freedom entailed by government allocation of credit and redistribution of income. Furthermore, the existence of a class of rich people helps prevent the state from monopolizing patronage of culture and charity.

A society that wants to be extraordinarily productive and prosperous should resolve to ensure that those who produce extraordinarily also prosper extraordinarily.

ALAS, AN irrational and costly (especially to the non-rich) resentment of the rich has presented implementation of sound policies, including substantial cuts in corporate taxes.

Corporations do not pay taxes, they collect taxes. A tax on a corporation is, primarily, a sales tax—an operating cost passed on to customers. It is, secondarily, a tax on wages. It diminishes the earnings available for distribution as wages.

Furthermore, it is absurd for the nation, which over-consumes and under-invests, to have written into its tax code a punitive distinction between earned and "unearned" income.

What is "unearned" about income from money skillfully put at risk in investments?

THE KEMP-ROTH tax proposal (10 percent across-the-board cuts in three successive years) looks like a Republican adaptation of a familiar Democratic tactic.

For decades, Democrats have drafted social programs broad enough to benefit the middle class, thereby building constituencies for programs that benefit the poor, too.

Kemp-Roth links an economically rational act (cutting the taxes of the investing class) to a politically palatable act (cutting everyone else's taxes).

This broad-brush approach to government is inefficient. But the way Americans act reflects the way they think, and the way they think is apparent in the way they talk. Increasingly, they use "rich" as a four-letter word.

VIRGINIA PAYETTE:

Hit List Targets

DALLAS—If Congressmen are on the same mailing list I am, they have on their desks right now a "hit list" of hundreds of ways to cut more than $100 billion from the federal budget.

Let's hope they don't pitch it out as "junk mail." It could be a handy-dandy check list when they finally sit down to vote on President Reagan's proposals for reduced government spending.

What it is is a draft from the National Tax-Limitation Committee, co-authored by Nobel Laureate economist Milton Friedman—and it goes everybody's ox.

What, you might ask, is the NTL? Well, it was founded in 1975 and it describes itself as a group of "more than 500,000 individuals and 7,500 businesses" whose primary goal (as you may have guessed by its name) is to push for a constitutional lid on federal spending and taxation.

AFTER A critical study of 83 federal programs, the NTL, found so much fraud, abuse, waste, duplication, inefficiency and error in every agency, it drew up its own "road map" to show Congress how to get control of the national spending spree.

It can be done, the report says. And without inflicting any hardship on the truly needy.

Reagan says that's the goal he's aiming for; and, Lord knows, the taxpayers are all for it. The trick is to get Congress to fight off the special-interest groups and get going on it.

Only Congress, remember, holds the power to tax and to spend.

And it's Congress which, in less than 20 years, has mushroomed federal spending from $106 billion to $636 billion—with cumulative deficits of $600 billion. (That's $600,000,000,000, folks.)

WHAT SCARES NTL, not to mention a lot of us taxpayers, is Congress' ignorance of how much we're spending in any given month and even whether we're in the red or the black. Look at last year's 10-month estimates for the 1981 budget:

- January—a deficit of $16.5 billion.
- March—a surplus of $16.5 billion.
- May—the budget will be balanced.
- July—(oops) make that a deficit of $29.8 billion.
- November—up to a deficit of $50 billion.
- December—maybe even $100 billion...sorry about that.

This, understandably, leads the NTL to suspect that Congress doesn't have enough "decent information or knowledge" of the federal fiscal system even to understand it, let alone control it. So the NTL has a few suggestions:

CONGRESS COULD save $18.9 billion if it outlawed that end-of-the-year rush by federal agencies to spend up all their appropriations another $1 billion on fewer consultants almost $2 billion if it would go after uncollected debts; $750 million on low-priority travel, and at least $1 billion on those movie agencies order up to make themselves look good.

More efficient use of federal-aid grants to states and cities would cut from $2 to $5 billion, restructuring of federal pay and retirement practices would eliminate $5.4 billion, and repeal of the Davis-Bacon act (which inflates wage rates on federal construction) would save another $725 million. Etc., etc., etc.

The bottom line, says the NTL, is that there are billions and billions of dollars worth of potential cuts in federal spending.

THEY'VE LISTED only $100 billion—from dubious social programs to wasteful defense appropriations—but the opportunities are there, if Congress can bring itself to seize them.

P.S. There's one more thing to remember. When we talk about "savings," that's not what we really mean.

Big Brother will still go on spending, the best we can hope for is a budget that will force him to slow down the growth of his spending jag.

If we can keep his paws out of the money jar for the next two years, we might even wind up with a balanced budget. The alternative is too frightening even to think about.

L. M. BOYD:

Pass It On...

YOU KNOW about that railway called the Atchison, Topeka and the Santa Fe. The Atchison therein was the fellow who was President of the United States for 24 hours from March 3 to March 4, 1849. David Rice Atchison.

James Polk's administration ended and Zachary Taylor refused to go to work on Sunday, so Senate President Atchison was empowered for that brief time. He'd been working hard to wind up the lame-duck Congress, though, so he slept through his entire term of office.

Q. What's the world's biggest passenger ship?
 A. The Norway, formerly the France. At 1,035 feet and 60,000 tons. Runs seven-day cruises between Miami and the Bahamas.

In San Francisco is a fellow named Jay Stuart who walks around with a sign that reads "Abuse me verbally! 25 cents 3 minutes. Call me anything." He says he has had so much experience in the insult field that he decided to make a living at it. Most imaginative. Maybe he can diversify. And sell his stuff to Rodney Dangerfield.

Berry's World

For heaven's sake — the father of suburban sprawl!

SOME FAT UNTOUCHED

Deeper Budget Cuts Possible

IT SHOULD have come as no surprise to President Reagan that the Carter administration had understated the Fiscal 1982 budget by billions of dollars; even as late as last March it was understating this year's spending by a magnitude of $50 billion.

What's encouraging is that, this year, the Reagan administration launched a hunt Thursday for $3 billion to $6 billion more that can be cut from the '82 budget on top of the $41.4 billion in extravagance it's already identified.

The Democratic-controlled House of Representatives, of course, already was dedicating itself to blocking a major portion of the spending cutbacks and is certain to oppose any further reductions Reagan may suggest.

There are several areas, however, which are fertile for cost reductions but which even the Republican administration has feared to tackle.

For example, while suggestions have been floated that the Social Security retirement age might be phased upward by three years, to age 68, nothing has been said about federal retirement systems which begin paying benefits as early as age 40.

There surely must be ways in which to economize on pay, retirement, benefits and services involving civil service and military personnel without denying anyone their entitlements and by making the entire federal establishment more efficient.

A reduction in cost-of-living indexing for federal retirees, as proposed for Social Security recipients, would be a start.

The government itself needs to tighten its belt as an example to those who are protesting because their handouts in one form or another from the federal treasury are being trimmed.

President Reagan's hiring freeze should be merely the starting point for slimming down the bureaucracy permanently so that it is lean and trim for the job ahead.

Marine Oldtimer Says El Salvador 'Real Test'

"WHAT YOU doing, Paw?"
 "I'm getting out my old Marine Corps boots."
 "What for, Paw?"
 "The United States may have to go fight El Salvador."
 "El Salvador. What's that?"
 "It's a country in Central America, and the Soviets and Cubans have been supplying their guerrillas with arms, so they can overthrow the military junta."
 "You mean to say, Paw, the United States is seriously thinking of getting us into a war over El Salvador?"

I wish it was something more important than El Salvador."
 "Haig's got no choice. They found 'Captured Enemy Documents' on the bodies of the guerrillas."
 "I ain't heard anyone use 'Captured Enemy Documents' since Vietnam. You got any idea how Haig hopes to stop the Commies from giving the guerrillas arms?"

"Wal, I don't want it bandied about, but I saw on television that Haig was thinking about blockading Cuba if they kept it up."
 "THAT'S BIG stuff, Paw. We could get us in a war with Russia at the same time."
 "You got to call their bluff sooner or later. That's why I'm getting my boots ready. If it really gets big, we ain't got enough boys in the service to handle it. They're going to need us old-timers to pitch in and fight!"
 "But you were in World War II. Won't they ask the younger boys to go first?"
 "Ain't going to get no young kids to go into the service to fight for El Salvador."

"THE WHOLE thing smells more and more like Vietnam, Paw."
 "That's not for you to say, Maw. El Salvador has a lot going for it when it comes to seeing who blinks first. It's small, has plenty of jungles and if we win the hearts and minds of the people there, we can scare the hell out of Nicaragua."
 "Nicaragua? What have they got to do with this?"
 "That's how the guerrillas are getting their arms. Believe me, Maw, if this thing keeps up, we're going to be up to our necks in old mudda."
 "When do you think they'll call you, Paw?"
 "As soon as all the young kids in the country realize what's going on and take off for Canada."

"AND WE'RE going to go to war to solve that one?"
 "We ain't going to go to war yet, but I'm getting out my boots just in case, because Secretary of State Haig is taking a hard line against anyone who accepts arms from the Commies."

Further Fuel Price Hikes Predicted

By WILLIAM GLASGALL
NEW YORK (AP) — The surge in U.S. fuel prices of recent weeks may not be over yet, and wholesale gasoline prices soon could be 20 cents a gallon higher than they were at the end of 1980, Shell Oil Co. President John F. Bookout indicated Friday.

But Bookout said in an interview that competition among dealers, who have watched gasoline demand fall steadily as prices have risen, may keep the full effect of the increases from showing up at the pump.

"I'm saying nothing, nor can I say anything, about what the dealer response is," Bookout said, adding, "he may not even pass all that (wholesale increase) along — he may squeeze his (profit) margin."

Standard Oil Co. of California said in San Francisco, meanwhile, it had raised wholesale diesel fuel and home heating oil prices 4 cents a gallon in the East and South and 3 cents a gallon in the Rockies, while its wholesale gasoline prices rose 1 to 2 cents a gallon, depending on region.

The nation's fourth-largest oil company's Chevron U.S.A. division said the hikes resulted largely from Feb. 1 increases of $1 to $2 a barrel in the cost of crude oil from Alaska and California, rather than from President Reagan's Jan. 28 order lifting price controls from crude and gasoline eight months ahead of schedule.

The moves left the company's wholesale gasoline prices up 7 to 8 cents a gallon and diesel fuel and heating oil prices up 8 to 9 cents a gallon, depending on region, since the decontrol announcement. Since Jan. 1, Chevron's wholesale gasoline prices have risen by between 7 and 10 cents a gallon, while prices for gasoline and diesel fuel have climbed 8 to 12 cents a gallon.

Bookout, the head of the nation's eighth-largest oil company, said he expects refiners' crude oil costs this quarter to be "about 15 to 20 cents a gallon higher than what they were in the last quarter of 1980."

Bookout said of that total, "3 to 5 cents per gallon" is directly attributable to President Reagan's Jan. 28 order lifting crude oil and gasoline price controls eight months early. The remainder is due to foreign oil price hikes since mid-December and increased costs resulting from earlier effects of the 19-month-long decontrol program, he said.

Refiners' product prices generally go up "20 to 25 percent more" than crude oil costs, however, because of refinery fuel requirements and attempts to cover losses on sales of low-grade heavy industrial fuel oils, Bookout noted.

Asked if even the 15-to-20 cents-a-gallon crude oil price increase has shown up at the retail level, Bookout said, "I do not believe ... average prices have increased 15 or 20 cents." But he said "if the marketplace permits, I'm sure refiners will be attempting to recover" their increased costs.

Shell and most other major refiners raised wholesale fuel prices by between a penny and 4 cents a gallon in the past week.

Statewide Survey Shows Gasoline Price Range

HOUSTON (AP) — A statewide survey indicates Texas retail gasoline prices now range from $1.20 to $1.52 a gallon.

The American Automobile Association's Texas division reported Friday a new survey of 402 stations also indicates about 8 percent of the stations in small cities and towns now have at least one grade of gasoline priced at $1.50 or higher.

The statewide price range was from a low of $1.208 for self-service regular at a Huntsville independent station to a high of $1.52 for full-service unleaded at a Pecos major brand station.

The AAA reported, however, statewide averages increased only 1.6 cents a gallon the past two weeks compared with more than six cents the previous two weeks.

With the recent increases, the AAA said, gasoline has become much more competitive. The blend of unleaded gasoline and 10 percent alcohol is now said to be averaging $1.339 a gallon where available at self-service pumps. The unleaded gasoline average is $1.334, premium unleaded $1.399.

Current statewide self-service averages were reported as regular, $1.278, up from $1.262 two weeks ago; premium, $1.369, up from $1.354; unleaded, $1.334, up from $1.317, and premium unleaded, $1.399, up from $1.386.

Full-service averages were regular, $1.354, up from $1.338; premium, $1.424, up from $1.411; unleaded, $1.398, up from $1.38 and premium unleaded, $1.454, up from $1.435.

Averages in large cities range from a low of $1.25 for self-service regular in El Paso to a high of $1.464 for full-service premium unleaded in the Beaumont-Port Arthur area.

The current diesel fuel average of $1.28 a gallon compared with $1.258 two weeks ago.

Economist Forecasts Oil Cut Consequences

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Gasoline could cost $10 a gallon and people could spend 27 percent of their income on energy if a war in the Middle East cut U.S. oil supplies by 40 percent, a UCLA economist warned Friday.

"Forty percent looks roughly like the Great Depression," Larry Kimball of the UCLA Business Forecasting Project told the state Energy Commission. The commission hired Kimball to forecast what would happen if oil supplies were suddenly cut 6 percent, 12 percent, 25 percent or 40 percent.

The study is part of the Energy Commission's effort to develop a contingency plan for government action in such a shortage.

Commissioner Emilio Varanini, who is heading the effort, said the commission will give the Legislature and Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. a 500-page document of choices that could be made if such a severe shortage occurred.

Varanini said a conference last summer at the University of Southern California concluded that "there's a virtual certainty of a major U.S. oil disruption" within the next five years and that oil prices would triple by 1990.

Kimball said his economic models should be considered "rough sketches of some of the things that should be monitored ... they should not be taken as what will really happen."

And William Herman of Standard Oil of California pointed out that the models could not be totally accurate because the government would step in well before a 12 percent shortage, institute rationing before 25 percent and perhaps use military intervention in the Middle East.

Rationing would keep the gasoline price down, Herman said. Kimball stressed there was nothing the government or anyone could do to prevent a serious oil disruption.

"It's like an earthquake. It's of such a magnitude, I can't think of any scenario that would let it disappear in a puff of smoke," said the economist from the University of California at Los Angeles.

His models assume that the sudden shortage begins in late summer 1981 and continues through 1984. He also assumes that the price of oil without a shortage would be $44 a barrel and $1.75 a gallon for gasoline.

He characterized a 6 percent cutback as "a growth pause or a mild recession." A 12 percent drop would be "a garden-variety recession." A 25 percent shortfall would be a "severe recession."

At 40 percent, oil would be $300 a barrel and gasoline $8.50 to $10 a gallon. Annual energy costs would be $8,101 or 27 percent of a household's annual budget. The nation's Gross National Product would fall 18 percent, unemployment would be 18.9 percent and car sales would decline 84 percent.

Kimball and Herman agreed that the problem is short-term, and that the impact of a global oil shortage in 10 years would be lightened by increased U.S. oil production and development of alternate energy.

"There's nothing that tells me my grandchildren are going to be living a lousy life because we've messed up the energy situation," Herman said.

Youngster Surrenders In Bank Holdup

NEW YORK (AP) — With his mouthpiece by his side, a button-cute 9-year-old boy surrendered to the FBI Friday in the $118 armed holdup earlier this week of a midtown bank.

The FBI promptly tossed him to the New York City police department.

Ken Walton, deputy assistant director in charge of the New York FBI office, explained: "In a situation like this, the federal government is not set up to handle juveniles and the state is."

Walton said that as far as the FBI could determine, the boy was the youngest person ever wanted for bank robbery in this country. His case was expected to be handled through the city's juvenile court system, rather than the criminal courts.

The 4-foot-5 youngster displayed a shy smile for photographers who mobbed him as he and his lawyer, Mel Sachs, walked into FBI headquarters in lower Manhattan about 1 p.m.

"He is supposedly being sought in a case involving the New York Bank for Savings," Sachs told reporters.

The youngster was not identified by name either by the lawyer or by authorities. Nor would they give any clue as to whether the holdup gun was real, why such a boy might do the stickup, whether an adult might have been behind the heist, or what became of the money.

The boy answered the description of a "very cute" brown-eyed lad who brandished an automatic pistol when he stuck up the bank in Rockefeller Center shortly before noon Wednesday.

The lawyer, his arm around his client protectively, said he had advised the boy not to speak to reporters.

"He wanted to come in," Sachs said. "Members of his family wanted him to be here. Now he's being brought in to the appropriate authorities, and I hope and I believe that he will be released."

"He's not going any place. He's here in New York. He's available and he's 9 years old."

Sachs said the boy's family contacted him and he in turn arranged to surrender the youngster to the Joint Bank Robbery Task Force, composed of FBI and New York City police representatives.

The boy remained in FBI headquarters for about 10 minutes, after which he was turned over to the New York City police. The case was expected to be handled in Family Court, where he would receive juvenile treatment.

FBI spokesman Joseph Valiquette said the boy never was formally arrested, but merely taken into custody.

"This is such a unique case that we have to bend over backwards not to violate his rights," he said.

The boy and his lawyer left with police through a rear exit of the building, avoiding reporters.

The boy wore jeans, new work shoes, a plaid shirt and tie, a beige jacket and a gray knit cap.

The pint-sized bandit first entered the consumer loan department of the New York Bank for Savings about 11:20 a.m. Wednesday and told receptionist Barbara Grecky "This is a holdup."

She told the boy that he was not in the banking section and he left without protest, only to reappear moments later in the proper area.

"This is a holdup," the young bandit repeated for teller Yvonne Patterson, brandishing his weapon anew and peering over a counter almost as tall as he was.

"Don't press any buttons. Just give me the money in the drawer."

He was very calm, like a little man, and she looked at him and thought it was a joke. Police Officer Robert McQuade said later.

However, eventually convinced he meant business, Miss Patterson handed over the $118 in currency.

The boy left, but just before going out the door to Sixth Avenue, he held the bills above his head and jumped up and down triumphantly, according to police.

The only U.S. state with counties divided into areas called "hundreds" is Delaware.

AT FBI OFFICE — A nine-year-old boy stands inside the FBI office in New York Friday. He was accompanied by New York attorney Mel Sachs who said the youngster was wanted for the $118 armed holdup of a midtown Manhattan bank Wednesday. The youngster answered the description of a "very cute" brown-eyed lad who brandished a silver automatic pistol when he stuck up the New York Bank for Savings. Sachs declined to identify the boy by name. (AP Laserphoto)

United Mine Workers Union Asks Coal Miners To Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United Mine Workers union asked the nation's coal miners Friday to strike for two days to dramatize their concern over the Reagan administration's proposed cuts in federal black lung benefits.

UMW president Sam Church said the union is ordering its members to leave the mines for a "memorial period" March 9-10, and that non-union miners are being asked to join the walkout.

The miners' union is fighting efforts by the administration to tighten eligibility — and thus reduce spending — on the 12-year-old Black Lung Trust Fund. The fund was established by Congress to provide benefits to those suffering from the disease, which is caused by inhaling coal dust.

There are about 200,000 active union and non-union miners, of which 170,000 belong to the UMW. The union is negotiating with the soft coal industry on a new contract to replace one that settled a 111-day strike in the winter of 1977-78.

The Labor Department issued a statement saying that Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan "shares the human concern of the United Mine Workers that the victims of black lung receive adequate treatment and benefits."

"He has no intention of gutting the program," it said. "The details of the changes in the program that will be recommended to the Congress will be developed by the Labor Department after discussion with all interested parties, including the United Mine Workers and mine operators."

Police Seeking Missing $1.2 Million Windfall

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The man laughed as he scooped up two bags containing $1.2 million in unmarked $100 bills that had fallen out of an open door of an armored truck.

"It can happen, nothing is secure anymore," said Detective Capt. Robert Eichler, who is heading the search for the man, a companion and the cash that was bound for casinos in Atlantic City, N.J.

"We are waiting for someone to give us information, and a $50,000 reward makes it appealing," Eichler said Friday, adding there was a witness to the incident.

"When someone finds a million bucks, their friends and relatives are going to hear about it, and they're going to want some of it," he said. "And if they don't get some, maybe they'll get angry or jealous enough to give us a call."

The incident occurred as a Purolator armored truck, carrying the cash picked up from the Federal Reserve Bank, hit a bump on its way to its South Philadelphia office Thursday afternoon.

The rear door flew open and a yellow metal cart on wheels, which held two canvas bags filled with money, bounced out — unknown to the two guards up front.

"The door of the truck can't be opened from the outside except with a key," Eichler said. "It locks automatically when pushed closed. When the truck bounced, the door mechanism came open and the money fell out."

There was an eyewitness, whose identity Eichler wouldn't disclose, but he quoted this scenario:

The witness "was in his place when he suddenly heard screeching of brakes, and tires skidding on the street, and he went outside and saw this cart in the street and autos trying to avoid hitting it. One car stopped, and a young man got out, and opened the cart, and grabbed the bags, and he was laughing as he walked back to the car. He threw the bags on the back seat and drove off with his friend.

"I'm sure all those other guys who drove by, and who find out what they missed in that cart, will probably go into their bathrooms and slit their throats."

The two Purolator guards — driver Ralph Sarcino, 21, and William Proctor, 46, both sitting in the cab — didn't know anything was wrong until they pulled into the firm's parking lot, two blocks from where the money vanished.

"We don't suspect the guards are implicated at this point," Eichler said, but they will be given lie detector tests, as will the witness. The FBI is assisting the police investigation.

Purolator, which offered the $50,000 reward for information leading to recovery of the money, declined further comment.

Lawrence Murdock, spokesman for the Federal Reserve, said the missing money was bound for banks in Atlantic City, and eventual distribution to the casinos.

"Purolator got the money and they are responsible for it," Murdock said. "It is their problem."

It's not the first time that money has fallen out of armored trucks in the Philadelphia area.

In 1977, there was a blizzard of $20 bills around a downtown intersection when a bag of cash slipped through the door of a Brooks truck and split open when it struck the ground. But there was a streak of honesty among the folks who grabbed the money, and more than $242,000 was returned. However, the loss was never disclosed.

A year earlier, two bags containing $54,500 bounced out of a Purolator truck on a suburban street. A motorist picked them up and drove off, but turned them in to the police the next day.

Chrysler Reports Record Losses

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp. reported Friday that it lost more money in 1980 than any American company ever — $1.71 billion — as the U.S. car industry suffered through its most devastating year in history.

The news was not all bad for the No. 3 automaker, however, as it received final approval on federal guarantees for an additional $400 million in loans.

The previous record for a corporate loss, $1.54 billion, had been set only eight days earlier when Ford Motor Co. announced its 1980 losses. Altogether, the four publicly reporting automakers lost $4.2 billion last year as the nation's economic ills caused car sales to plummet.

General Motors Corp. reported earlier that it lost $763 million and American Motors Corp. said it dropped $198 million. The accounts of Volkswagen of America are consolidated with those of its German parent, but VW has conceded its U.S. subsidiary lost about $25 million in the first half of 1980.

Chrysler's big loss was its second in a row to exceed $1 billion. In 1979, the company lost $1.1 billion on sales of $12 billion. Its sales totaled $9.23 billion last year.

Before taxes, Ford had the biggest loss, $1.98 billion compared with $1.67 billion for Chrysler. But in relation to the size of the enterprise, Chrysler's loss was incomparable — 19 cents on each dollar of sales vs. 1.3 cents at GM, 4.2 cents at Ford and 7.7 cents at AMC.

After the Chrysler Loan Guarantee Board issued its new guarantees in Washington, the new board chairman, Treasury Secretary Donald Regan, said Chrysler's chances of recover were "reasonably good" but "clearly the sole responsibility of Chrysler's senior management."

Several Other Firms In Financial Trouble

NEW YORK (AP) — Chrysler Corp.'s loss of $1.71 billion in 1980 was the worst performance by any American company in history, but the nation's economic ills also caused hard times for other companies.

- Here are some of 1980's big money losers:
- Ford Motor Co. lost $1.54 billion, which stood for eight days as the highest corporate loss until Chrysler released its figures Friday.
 - General Motors Corp. had a $763 million deficit, its worst showing ever.
 - International Harvester Corp. was $397 million in the red at the end of its fiscal year Oct. 31.
 - American Motors Corp., which also had its worst performance ever, lost $198 million.
 - Pan American World Airways Inc. lost $130 million on its operations, but the airline earned $294 million from the sale of its skyscraper in New York City and finished the year with a profit.

- Braniff International Corp. lost $129 million.
- American Airlines Inc. reported a $76 million loss.
- First Pennsylvania Corp., the bank holding company which nearly collapsed in 1980 from its financial problems, lost $74 million.
- IteI Corp., a leasing company that was saddled with an immense debt when its computer business collapsed in 1979, reported it lost $54 million in the first nine months of last year. The company, which lost $444 million in 1979, filed for court protection from creditors under Chapter 11 of federal bankruptcy laws in January.
- Continental Air Lines Inc. lost $21 million.

board under the Carter administration. The Carter administration approved the basic outlines of the new guarantee the day before Carter left office, but final approval was delayed while Chrysler won concessions from its banks.

Only the forbearance of suppliers, which were owed $270 million in overdue bills on Dec. 30, and strong car sales to dealers kept the company going. Chrysler's workers approved wage and other concessions that will be worth a total of $783 million by September 1982, but those do not begin until next month.

A small group of banks insisted on acceleration of the reduced debt repayments they were supposed to get under Chrysler's plan. Only last week did the banks and Chrysler agree to a modification.

Over the next year, the lenders are to accept 30 cents on the dollar on $623 million of debt and convert an additional $686 million in debt into preferred stock, figures totalling about $200 million more than planned last month. The acceleration comes with payment of 37.5 percent of the total on March 31, about $70 million, instead of 25 percent in the next 90 days.

Chrysler lost $235 million on sales of $2.8 billion in the fourth quarter, compared with a loss of $376 million on sales of $3.1 billion in the same period of 1979.

Chrysler had projected a fourth-quarter profit after it climbed into the black last October.

On Friday, Chairman Lee A. Iacocca blamed the shortfall on "a series of unexpected events" that soured sales, including a prime interest rate that reached a record 21.5 percent last December.

Iowa Motel Blaze Kills Two, Injures 11 Others

WEST DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — A smoky fire early Friday spread rapidly through a two-story motel crowded with fans attending a state high school wrestling tournament, authorities said. Two youngsters were killed and 11 people were injured.

Scores of people — some dressed only in underwear — were forced to flee into the night as the flames swept through the 106-room Executive Inn Motel. Six of the injured were firemen.

"I just went to bed, and I heard a bunch of glass break and also heard some kids running," said one guest, Don McGinnis of Omaha, Neb.

"I got on the phone," McGinnis said, "and told the desk clerk. 'This is ridiculous. I'm trying to get some sleep.' The guy said, 'Hey, there's a fire on the second floor, and we'd like for you to get out.' I put my clothes on and got out after I saw smoke."

Others among the 136 registered guests told authorities they heard firecrackers exploding, but firemen were unable to confirm that report. The cause of the blaze, which erupted shortly before 1 a.m., was not immediately determined.

The dead were identified as Cheryl Martz, 12, and Dale Darnell, 15, both of Durant, Iowa. They were in town for the wrestling tournament.

Firemen said when they arrived on the scene they found people waiting to be rescued on second-story balconies. Some occupants already had jumped to the ground, and others slid down ropes made of sheets.

McGinnis said he threw some of his clothing over the railing of the balcony of his second-floor room.

Representative Criticizes Leg-Feeling Activities

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — A female legislator has criticized a group of male colleagues for holding a staff party at which they put on nylon stockings and had their blindfolded secretaries try to identify them by feeling their legs.

"It was harmless, there were no improprieties," said state Rep. Ray Welker, an Independent-Republican who organized the foot-feeling game at Monday's staff appreciation party in a St. Paul restaurant.

Six male legislators took off their shoes and socks, put on knee-length nylon stockings and let their secretaries try to identify their seated bosses by touch. No above-the-knee touching was allowed. "None of the girls were touched, anywhere," said Welker. "I was making fools of the men, not the girls."

But Rep. Phyllis Kahn, a member of the rival Democratic-Farm-Labor Party, said the game was demeaning to both men and women. She said it was her understanding that several Republican women "were furiously mad about it."

"There's obviously an element of sexual titillation in men wearing nylon stockings having their feet grabbed by blindfolded women on their knees," added Ms. Kahn. "That they would ask their secretaries to do this at a semi-public event is a reflection of their perception of the place and position of women."

The Independent-Republican legislators drafted for the game were Joe Niehaus, Minority Leader Glen Sherwood, John Ainley, Tony Stadum, Dean Johnson and Myron Nysether. The latter two are also Lutheran ministers.

Welker acknowledged that he had heard by Tuesday that "a couple" of the staff women were offended by the game, so he apologized to them.

By Wednesday, a number of female Democratic-Farm-Labor legislators and staff members were complaining about "sexist, degrading activity" at the party.

By Thursday, some Independent-Republican legislators were calling the criticism a "smear" and were threatening to report what transpires at the next Democratic-Farm-Labor party.

"Everyone knows I'm the biggest prude around here," said Sherwood. "If I didn't find anything wrong with it, nobody did."

Of the six secretaries who participated, four were contacted and they said they had no complaints.

Robin Suzle, Ainley's secretary, said the game was "fun."

Women Sought For Federal Jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, criticized for failing to name more women to top government posts, appointed a personnel specialist Friday specifically to recruit women for the administration.

Wendy H. Borchardt, 44, of Los Angeles, was named associate director of presidential personnel. She will report to the White House's chief talent scout, E. Pendleton James.

Mrs. Borchardt since 1977 has been president of a teaching and consulting firm that specializes in organizational management, financial planning and personnel. She has been active in Republican politics for years, and was regional finance director to the Reagan campaign committee in California.

The president has been criticized for failing to name women to policy-making jobs. Reagan did not name a woman to head any government department, but did appoint Jeane Kirkpatrick as ambassador to the United Nations, with Cabinet rank.

A coalition representing more than 50 women's groups accused Reagan in January of "systematically and purposely" excluding women from consideration for high-level jobs. Administration officials denied the charge.

More recently, the only two women in the Senate — Republicans Nancy Kassebaum of Kansas and Paul Hawkins of Florida — said they were disappointed by the lack of women appointments.

UNEMPLOYMENT

DETROIT (AP) — The FBI says eight people in Detroit are the first in the nation to be indicted for fraudulently obtaining unemployment benefits for The Eight, including a supervisor at Uniroyal Tire Co., are accused of fraud in collecting money under the Trade Readjustment Act. FBI Special Agent Patrick Wease said that over a two-year period, about $58,000 in benefits was paid to members or associates of the Vigilantes, a motorcycle club on Detroit's east side.

Democratic National Committee Boss Named

WASHINGTON (AP) — Charles T. Manatt took the reins Friday of a battered and scarred Democratic Party and pledged a renewal to bring back the millions of former Democrats who "see us as unresponsive to their central concerns."

Elected party chairman by acclamation after his last rival dropped out of the race, Manatt told the Democratic National Committee that the party was "out-conceptualized, out-organized, out-televized, out-coordinated, out-financed and out-worked" by the Republicans in the 1980 elections.

He vowed to "bring the greatest party in the greatest country to its senses...."

"We are going to set aside ego, turf and private personal demands that divide us. We are going to renew this party from top to bottom for the challenges of the 1980s and 1990s."

The new chairman also declared that "Ronald Reagan deserves no automatic honeymoon while he marches to his own tune. When we think he goes against the common good, we have a duty to fight for what we believe is right."

The scars from the 1980 election, in which the Democrats lost the White House and control of the Senate, were evident at the national committee meeting.

Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., now the Senate minority leader after four years as majority leader, told the meeting. "The Democratic National Committee should never again become the adjunct of the committee to elect the president."

Byrd's statement reflected lingering bitterness over the way the national committee devoted most of its resources in 1980 to Jimmy Carter's re-election while the Republican National Committee was concentrating on recruiting, training, promoting and financing candidates at all levels of government.

John C. White, Manatt's predecessor as party chairman, told the committee in a farewell speech on Thursday that "I was the president's chairman. I was proud of it then and I'm proud of it now. I'm still Jimmy Carter's chairman."

As the committee was about to elect its new chairman, Joseph Cragle of Buffalo, N.Y., Manatt's only remaining rival, took the floor to declare, "I know how to count." He then moved that Manatt's election be made unanimous.

The two-day national committee meeting also was the scene of some low-key presidential politicking.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., had the members of the committee out to his suburban Virginia home for a reception Wednesday evening. Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California attended the Friday session and urged the party to get started on a 10-year program of renewal.

Your Personal Biorhythms

by Bernard Gittelson

Figure your numbers here — For your own permanent biorhythm number for the Physical (P), Emotional (E), and Intellectual (I) cycles, just follow these steps:

STEP 1	YEAR OF BIRTH	P	E	I
STEP 2	A-B MONTH OF BIRTH
STEP 3	DAY OF BIRTH
TOTALS

BIORHYTHMS FOR FEB. 28, 1981
PHYSICAL			EMOTIONAL			INTELLECTUAL			TOTALS
Highs	10	22	34	46	58	70	82	94	106	118	130

YOUR PERMANENT NUMBERS: P: 21, E: 31, I: 31

Step 1 — Year of birth. Read down the left hand column to find the last number in the year of your birth then go across to the appropriate decade. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

P	0	1	2	3	4	5	6
E	7	8	9	10	11	12	13
I	14	15	16	17	18	19	20

Step 2 — Month of birth. Find the corresponding numbers for the month you were born. If your month is February, and your year numbers were preceded by a B, your month numbers would be 8 for Physical, 3 for Emotional and 31 for Intellectual. Enter your own numbers in the figure chart for Step 2.

Month	Jan	Feb	March	April	May	June	July	Aug	Sept	Oct	Nov	Dec
P	0	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
E	12	13	14	15	16	17	18	19	20	21	22	23
I	24	25	26	27	28	29	30	31	32	33	34	35

Step 3 — Day of birth. Enter your day of birth three times in the figure chart, once each for Physical (P), Emotional (E) and Intellectual (I).

Add the three columns to derive your permanent biorhythm numbers for your Physical, Emotional and Intellectual cycles. Now you can refer to today's biorhythm readings.

Prices For Raw Farm Products Decrease

By DON KENDALL
 WASHINGTON (AP) — Prices that farmers get for raw products as they enter the consumer pipeline dropped 0.4 percent in February but still averaged 10 percent higher than a year ago, the Agriculture Department said Friday.

Officials said lower prices for soybeans, wheat, oranges, cotton and cattle led the decline in the price index from January.

However, higher prices for tomatoes, hogs and potatoes helped offset the decline for the other commodities, the department's Crop Reporting Board said.

The report also included revised figures for January that showed the price index declined 0.4 percent from December. A month ago, the preliminary figures showed a drop of 0.8 percent.

Meanwhile, the prices farmers pay to meet expenses rose 0.3 percent from January and averaged 10 percent above a year ago. Sharply higher fuel prices contributed most to the increase during the month, the report said.

According to the preliminary February figures — which are based mostly on mid-month averages — prices of meat animals as a group rose 0.4 percent from January, despite a drop in beef cattle prices. Even so, the index was 7.6 percent below a year earlier.

The February index for oil-bearing crops — which include soybeans and cottonseed — declined 7.2 percent from January but still was 24 percent above a year ago.

Vegetable prices at the farm jumped 13 percent from a month earlier, higher prices for tomatoes accounting for most of it, the report said. Prices for celery, cabbage and carrots dropped. Compared to a year ago, the overall index was up 62 percent.

Food grains as a group dropped 2.8 percent from January, although a decline for wheat was partly offset by higher rice prices. The index was up 9.2 percent from a year earlier.

The price index for potatoes, sweet potatoes and dry beans rose 6.2 percent from January and averaged 93 percent more than a year ago. Dry beans, for example, were $28.40 a 100-pound bag in February, compared to $27.50 in January and $25 a year earlier.

Department economists continue to predict retail food prices will go up an average of 10 to 15 percent this year, compared to an 8.6 percent increase in 1980, the smallest one-year gain since 1977.

Farm prices in February averaged 263 percent of a 1967 base price average used for comparison, according to the preliminary figures. The revised index for January was 264 percent.

The February parity ratio was 65 percent, unchanged from January. A year ago, the ratio also was 65 percent.

At 100 percent, the indicator would mean, theoretically, that farmers have the same buying power they had in 1910-14.

For example, the average actual price of wheat in February, according to the preliminary figures, was $4.06 a bushel. That was 58 percent of the February parity price for wheat of $6.98 a bushel.

The report also said:

—Cattle averaged $59 per 100 pounds of live weight nationally, compared to $59.30 in January and $66.60 in February 1980. Those are averages for all types of cattle sold as beef.

—Hogs averaged $42.30 per 100 pounds, compared to $40.80 in January and $36.70 a year ago.

—Corn, at $3.22 a bushel, compared to $3.19 in January and $2.39 a year ago.

—Wheat prices at the farm, according to the preliminary figures, averaged $4.06 a bushel, compared to 4.21 in January and $3.78 a year ago.

—Rice averaged $13.30 per 100 pounds, compared to $13.20 in January and $11 in February 1980.

—Soybeans were $7.13 a bushel against $7.80 in January and $6.20 a year ago.

—Upland cotton was 74.5 cents a pound on a national average, compared to 76.9 in January and 66.5 a year ago.

—Eggs were 62.6 cents a dozen, compared to 64.8 in January and 50.8 a year ago.

10 States Export Most Farm Products

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most of the massive U.S. farm export business is being accounted for by 10 states which are the leading producers of commodities most in demand from foreign buyers.

Those states accounted for about 60 percent of the total value of farm commodities exported in the fiscal year that ended last Sept. 30, according to a new analysis by the Agriculture Department.

Values of commodities exported last year totaled a record of $40.5 billion, up 27 percent from about $32 billion in 1978-79. Department experts predict a further gain this year to $47 billion.

The leading states last year, in order, were: Illinois, $3.64 billion; Iowa, $3.27 billion; California, $3.17 billion; Texas, $3.09 billion; Kansas, $2.21 billion; Minnesota, $2 billion; Nebraska, $1.93 billion; Indiana, $1.71 billion; North Dakota, $1.46 billion; and Missouri, $1.44 billion.

State rankings in U.S. farm export trade are an annual exercise by the department, initiated years ago to help emphasize the importance of foreign markets to American farmers and the overall U.S. economy.

The latest breakdown was included in "Foreign Agricultural Trade of the United States" issued this week by the department's Economics and Statistics Service.

Officials stress each year that the figures are simply mathematical amounts derived by stacking a state's production of key commodities against the total export business.

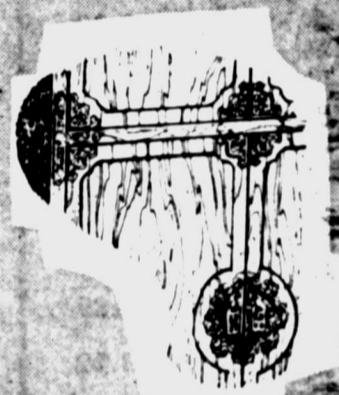

"The values for agricultural exports shown for each state should not be interpreted as actual measurement of state origins of national exports," the report said.

On a commodity basis, leading exports in 1979-80 included feed grains, $9.6 billion; soybeans and soybean products, $8.6 billion; wheat and flour, $6.6 billion; cotton, $3 billion; tobacco, $1.3 billion; and rice, $1.2 billion.

Hobby Says Teachers' Pay Too Low

A-J Austin Bureau
 AUSTIN — Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, in an address Friday night to university professors, said it has been "clearly demonstrated that faculty salaries are currently too low to attract and hold quality faculty."
 Hobby also assured members of the Texas Association of College Teachers and American Association of University Professors that he expects "a positive legislative response within the funds available." But he did not name a specific figure.
 The Legislative Budget Board has recommended faculty salaries be increased by 18.6 percent in fiscal 1982 and 8.7 percent in fiscal 1983, he said, noting Texas "has begun to see an exodus of its faculty members who are attracted to institutions in other states and by private industry by salaries that are sometimes twice as high as their salaries here."
 Texas schools also "are experiencing great difficulty in attracting new faculty members," Hobby said.
 Hobby also told the group organized research and faculty salaries are "key issues." He added, "No element of a university activity is as poorly understood or as much maligned as research," which he called vital to the economic structure of Texas.

"The research capabilities of our universities provide our state with expertise to support our continuing technological development," Hobby said. He said the LBB has provided additional funds for organized research, "as well as for agricultural research and a variety of specialized research programs," in its budget recommendations.
 Much of Friday's session by the TACT and AAUP members, including Texas Tech representatives, concerned whether TACT should affiliate with a labor union or other professional organization or remain an independent body.

Three alternatives were being considered by the group: developing a "comity arrangement" with other groups such as the Texas Junior College Teachers Association and American Federation of Teachers, continued study of affiliation with other groups, or remaining independent, and increasing dues from $25 to $80 annually.

Many of the TACT members present indicated they felt either a dues increase or affiliation with other groups would injure membership.
 TACT committees recommended the group endorse of the principle behind competency testing for teachers, not support tuition increase for 1981, not support creation of a special fund for building on any university campuses and go on record in favor of increased salaries.

A-J Religion Writer

The Lubbock Criminal Defense Lawyers Association has called a Lubbock minister's recent comments about the Billy Wayne Alexander murder trial appalling and a return to vigilante justice.

In a Feb. 20 letter to The Avalanche-Journal, association president Dennis McGill concluded that Caprock Church of Christ minister Grover Stevens' views would lead to the abolition of the U.S. justice system and several basic constitutional rights.

McGill was responding on behalf of the association's board to a Feb. 14 A-J article in which Stevens labeled Alexander's Abilene trial "a travesty on society." He also charged Alexander's court-appointed attorney, Floyd Holder, a member of the lawyers association as well as the Church of Christ, was as guilty as Alexander because of his efforts to prevent the death penalty from being assessed.

Stevens has long advocated capital punishment for convicted murderers. He first presented his Bible-based philosophy in sermon form on KSEL radio in March, 1974, and again on Oct. 12, 19 and 26, 1980. The sermon, complete with rebuttals to popular objections, also has been published in booklet form.

Stevens called for the death penalty in his eulogy at the Oct. 8, 1980, funeral of Department of Public Safety Trooper Jerry Don Davis. Alexander was convicted Jan. 24 of capital murder in Davis' Oct. 5, 1980, slaying, and was sentenced to life in prison Jan. 29. He began serving that sentence Monday when he was transported to Huntsville.

In the article, Stevens predicted the sentence would invite more crime, blamed social decay on lack of criminal punishment and contended Holder had circumvented the law and thwarted justice.

McGill said in his letter that Stevens' position would effectively eradicate the right to due process of law, to representation by an attorney, to the presumption of innocence and to trial by jury.

"He (Stevens) said Alexander should've gotten death," McGill noted in a telephone interview. "That eliminates the need for the jury system."

McGill also took Stevens to task regarding his assertion that Holder, too, was guilty. He pointed out the minister failed to admit that a minister is as responsible for the sins of his parishioners as are the parishioners.

"Clearly, to state that the lawyer is as guilty as the defendant," McGill wrote, "or the minister is guilty of the sins of his parishioners is preposterous."

Citing the Alexander case along with those of Philip Carey Brasfield and Clarence Alan Lackey as examples, McGill wrote that any criminal attorney has had to defend unpopular clients. But he maintained the lawyer's responsibility is to prepare a case requiring the state to show beyond a reasonable doubt that the accused committed the offense with which he is charged.

The state's burden, McGill explained, is to meet the standards necessary for the jury to impose a sentence. "He (Stevens) is shifting the burden from the state to the defense. The defense lawyer ought not to try his best, he's saying, but roll over." McGill wrote that legal ethics require attorneys to defend their clients vigorously using all their skill, adding that anything less would dishonor and discredit themselves, their profession and the greatest justice system in history.

The U.S. Supreme Court has held, McGill related, that a defense lawyer can be sued if he does not defend his client properly.

He concluded the letter by stating, "Every person in our community, state and nation should be outraged at the commentary of Mr. Stevens; for to follow his advice would return us to the dark ages."

McGill said the letter was approved by the association's board after he and other board members expressed their feeling that a response to Stevens' remarks was necessary.

Stevens believes capital punishment is mandated by God in the Bible for murders except accidents. He has said Jesus' teachings about love and forgiveness do not supersede the authority to punish evildoers vested by God in civil governments.

McGill, who defended Brasfield and won a reversal of his capital murder conviction, said he reviewed many opinions on the subject, including those of several churches. He claimed "an eye for an eye" is not the proper legislative standard.

"If we disagree with the law, we go to Austin and try to change it," McGill noted.

Stevens has argued the death penalty would be a deterrent if it were uniformly and speedily enforced. McGill is not so sure.

"I don't know whether it's a deterrent or not," he said. "I kinda doubt it."

Vocalist Leaves Contemporary Area Christian Musical Group

The Imperials, long one of America's top contemporary Christian musical groups, are undergoing yet another personnel change with the recent departure of lead vocalist baritone Russ Taff.

His last concert as a member of the renowned foursome was Feb. 13 at Baylor University in Waco, the city in which much of "The Imperials Live," the second album Taff made with the group, was recorded.

Taff is in the process of forming a backup band to accompany him as a vocal soloist, according to Imperials agent Betty Tatom. She said in a telephone interview Taff had been contemplating a ministry of his own for the past year and that friction with the other three singers was not a factor.

Joining Armond Morales, Jim Murray and Dave Will as the newest Imperial is Paul Smith, whose previous experience has included his own solo ministry, concert promotion in Waco and special vocal assignments for Word Records.

Mrs. Tatom said Taff now is taking some time off and participating in Bible teaching ministries. One of his first concerts may be held in Lubbock this summer. He could not be reached for comment at his home and probably has been in New York the past few days to attend Wednesday night's Grammy awards.

The Imperials, who have won several of the honors, were nominated in the Best Gospel Album category for their 1980 release "One More Song For You."

RUSS TAFF

which was produced by Michael Omar-tian. The Grammy was given to "The Lord's Prayer," a project of Reba Rambo which featured her and nine other gospel stars.

Speculation had arisen that Taff, a vibrant on-stage personality and vocal and creative dynamo, might have begun to attract an inordinate amount of the Imperials' spotlight. But Mrs. Tatom downplayed that notion, saying there was no imbalance of egos among the group.

"Armond and Jim own the group, they produce the sound and they've always spotlighted someone," she explained. "The other two slots have always been interchangeable."

Prior to Will and Taff joining the group, Sherman Andrus and Terry Blackwood occupied those positions and many felt then, as undoubtedly many now feel, that the "Imps" would never be the same when they left and eventually formed their own group.

But the record, and the records, speak for themselves and the group's popularity and influence has increased tremendously in the past five years. According to Mrs. Tatom, their label as gospel music trendsetters is mainly attributable to one factor: "Armond is a musical genius. He has this built-in radar for voices."

She said the group's ability to make personnel transitions is both amazing and uncanny.

Morales and Murray have been with The Imperials since their inception more than 15 years ago and Lubbock gospel singer-composer Tina English, a personal friend and longtime associate of Smith's, said he must be flabbergasted at his new-found status.

But Mrs. Tatom, who admitted she harbored some natural trepidation about the change, said The Imperials have received more than one standing ovation in each of the first three concerts in which Smith has sung.

"I was floored. Smith even got a standing ovation on 'Praise The Lord,' a big hit that Russ used to do," she remarked.

Some may question Taff's timing of his departure. The Imperials not only have been nominated for a Grammy, but they have just released a new album produced by Omar-tian called "Priority."

They also appeared on "The Mike Douglas Show" a few weeks ago and they are to be interviewed as part of an ABC "20/20" segment on current trends in gospel music, which will be shown sometime in March.

Taff joined The Imperials about four and a half years ago after Morales heard him sing in Arkansas. He wrote several songs recorded by the group, something Tatom said Morales encourages all members of the band to attempt.

The albums on which Taff appeared, their release dates and the songs on the albums that he wrote are: "Sail On" (May 1977) — "Try Again"; "The Imperials Live" (May 1978) — "New Creation"; "Heed The Call" (March 1979) — "Whenever I Speak His Name"; "One More Song For You" (January 1980) — "Eagle Song" and "Priority" (January 1981) — "Finish What You Started" and "Be Still My Soul".

Singer-Songwriter Plans Concert

Singer-songwriter Tracy Dartt of Sherman will present a gospel concert at 9:30 a.m. Sunday at Victory Baptist Church, 6508 Ave. P.

Dartt has written many gospel songs including "The Last Sunday," "With Him," "Sing Me An Old Gospel Song" and "The God On the Mountain." He has sung with such groups as The Weather-fords and The Victors Quartet.

He records on the Calvary label in Nashville, Tenn., and is vice president of Renewal Music Publishing Co.

Dartt has appeared numerous times in concert in the U.S. and Canada, in addition to his duties as staff evangelist for Grayson Bible Baptist Church in Sherman.

Pastor Jesse Gillham said a nursery will be provided free for the concert.

YOU COULD LOOK IT UP — And that's what students interested in the roots of the Jewish, Christian and Moslem faiths will be able to do by using the Encyclopaedia Judaica, a gift from B'nai B'rith to University Ministries and the Texas Tech Biblical Literature Department. Department Chairman Dr.

Religious Work Given By B'nai B'rith

The Lubbock chapter of B'nai B'rith, a Jewish men's organization, has presented University Ministries a new set of the Encyclopaedia Judaica, a 16-volume work covering a vast spectrum of subjects relating to the Christian, Jewish and Muslim faiths.

Published in Jerusalem in the early 1970s, the encyclopaedia details all aspects of the Jewish Biblical and post-

Principal Urges Involvement In School Matters

Matthews Junior High School principal Jesse Garza urged a group of young Mexican-American adults and parents to get involved in school matters during a Feb. 20 panel discussion at Arnett-Benson Baptist Church.

Garza encouraged parents as well as the public to visit their children's schools, but also stressed that education and discipline begin at home.

"Training For Service" was the theme of the meeting, which was sponsored by the young adult, single adult and career Sunday School departments of the church. Other panel members were Mrs. Julia Castro, an assistant vice president at Wilson State Bank, and Lubbock Police Detective Joe Nevarez.

Nevarez emphasized the growth of crime in Lubbock that has paralleled the city's economic and population growth. Pastor Paulo Garcia stressed the need for spiritual growth in individual lives as the solution to today's problems.

Following the discussion, American, Mexican, Italian and Chinese dishes, representing some of the cultures found in the United States, were served by Mrs. Rose Ibarra Martinez, Mrs. Luz Garcia and Lupe Castro.

PAKISTAN UNREST
ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Political unrest has resurfaced in Pakistan after 3 1/2 years of relative calm. Creation of a coalition determined to oust the military regime, coinciding with renewed student activism, has triggered speculation about the army's ability to cope with the problem. Taking a major role for herself is Nusrat Bhutto, widow of executed Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto.

Biblical tradition, Archaeology and the Holocaust are given major coverage, as well as other important areas.

The Rev. William Chapman, chairman of the Texas Tech Biblical Literature department, accepted the gift on behalf of University Ministries, a cooperative effort of several protestant denominations. He said he hoped students would seek the roots of Western faith by using the UM library's new acquisition, which is designed to facilitate study of the Judeo-Christian heritage and related subjects.

"While there is much that is unique and distinctive about our respective faiths," Chapman noted, "there is also much that underscores our interrelationship and mutual belief. This gift broadens our library considerably."

In presenting the encyclopaedias, chapter president Robert Inselberg emphasized the common backgrounds and concerns, as well as history and scripture, that unite Jews, Christians and Muslims.

"Hopefully, the study of this common heritage will bring us closer together," he said.

The volumes given by B'nai B'rith are to foster a spirit of better and deeper interfaith relationships, Inselberg indicated. He added that researching the groups' common roots could only improve their relations.

"We are, after all, brothers and sisters," Inselberg stated. "The study of our mutual heritage will reinforce the human connection and concerns that we all share."

Capital Punishment and THE GOLDEN RULE

Does Capital Punishment violate the Golden Rule?? The Apostle Paul did not think so, for he said, "If I be an offender, or have committed anything worthy of death, I refuse not to die". (Acts 25:11). Thus, I learn from an Holy Spirit filled, inspired, apostle of the Lord Jesus Christ and the greatest Christian who ever lived that some crimes are "worthy of death", and also, that if a Christian should commit such a crime -- worthy of death -- that he should "refuse not to die".

DOES GOD VIOLATE THE GOLDEN RULE?? Consider further the fact that God practices Capital Punishment. The flood, Sodom and Gomorrah, Ananias and Sapphira, the final Judgment, etc. Also, those who teach the Rapture and Armageddon theory teach that Christ will SLAY or DESTROY all of the armies and nations of the wicked at His coming, and THIS is capital punishment in a dramatic way!! Does God and Christ act in "violation" of the Golden Rule??

HOW ABOUT LIFE IMPRISONMENT?? Is LIFE IMPRISONMENT in keeping with the Golden Rule? Just where does God sanction LOCKING A PERSON UP IN AN IRON CAGE FOR THE REST OF HIS LIFE? Or for one day, for that matter?? And, is such punishment in keeping with, or in violation of, the Golden Rule?? And where did society get such a "right". Will you answer, please? Ask your preacher, or the director of your conference. Friends, GOD'S WORD, THE BIBLE, teaches, "There is no power BUT OF GOD", (Rom. 13:1-4), or in other words, ALL the power or authority of the civil government is from God. The Lord Jesus Christ said the same thing in John 19:10-11. When Pilate said, "I have power to crucify thee", the Lord Jesus Christ answered, "Thou couldst have no power at all against me, EXCEPT IT WERE GIVEN THEE FROM ABOVE". Thus, we learn that the power to punish anybody for anything in any way is from God, and the same Scriptures also teach capital punishment. Note the words "crucify" and "beareth the sword". Both refer to capital punishment.

Thus, we see that capital punishment is no more a violation of the Golden Rule than life imprisonment, and really, that neither violate the Golden Rule at all. Furthermore, this answers the bare, and false, assertion that "society does not have the right to take another person's life".

Iran Figures Disclose Coming Of 'Antichrist'

If you're into numerology (the study of the Biblical significance of numbers), eschatology (the study of the Biblical prophecies about the end of the world), or if you saw "The Omen" or "Damien, Omen II," then you should appreciate this one.

It seems that in all the excitement and turmoil surrounding the release of the American hostages by Iran last month, no one bothered to notice the prophetic significance of several numbers involved in the crisis.

No one, that is, except Esther Mojica. According to her brother, Butch Mojica of Lubbock, Miss Mojica, entirely on her own and with no prompting or assistance from any other individual, has discovered some inside information about the infamous "Antichrist".

He may appear this year. Now, before you turn the page, rest assured this is not a publicity stunt for the third movie in the "Omen" trilogy, "The Final Conflict." Miss Mojica, her brother says, has the figures to back it up.

Follow closely: start with the number of hostages (52); then add the number of days of their captivity (444); add to that subtotal the number of the president who effected their return (Jimmy Carter, you recall, was the 39th president), and the last two digits of the year (81).

Finally just to be on the safe side, throw in the number of states in the union for all you die-hard confederates, that's 50; and guess what you come up with?

That's right, Hal Lindsey fans — 666, the number in the book of Revelation symbolizing the Antichrist.

The Mojicas feel this could indicate 1981 is the year the Antichrist rises to prominence and history begins moving toward its climax. Of course, well meaning sign-watchers have been wrong before, like those who've sold everything to wait for Christ's return, or the ones who thought Henry Kissinger was the Antichrist.

This is not to say Christians should not be alert to current developments and their possible impact on Bible prophecy. But if Butch and his sister are right, one question remains: is this the last of the Mojicas?

Keep your Bibles open and tune in next week, folks.

Evangelist Plans Appearance

Longtime music evangelist Roger McDuff, formerly of the Stamps and The Blackwood Brothers Quartets, will be singing at 10:45 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. Sunday at First Assembly of God in Levelland.

Known as the man "with a tear in his voice," McDuff has been involved in music ministry around the world for the past 25 years. While with The Stamps he toured with the late Elvis Presley, and he and his two older brothers have sung in the past as a trio.

McDuff hosted his own television program for two years in California on Trnity Broadcasting Network. He has appeared on "The 700 Club," "The PTL Club," "Good News" and has been the guest of Jimmy Swaggart and the Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship International.

He has traveled throughout Europe, Africa and the Middle East, and sung on the stages of Carnegie Hall, the Grand Ole Opry, the Louisiana Super Dome and Massey Hall in Toronto, Canada. During his career he has recorded for RCA Victor, Skylight, Zondervan, Tempo and NewPax.

After his father abandoned him at birth, McDuff grew up in Texas City, and worked the streets as a shoeshine boy. On the invitation of a preacher, he visited a church and there received Jesus Christ as his personal savior. His evangelistic association is now headquartered in Pasadena.

Pastor Danny Fielding invites the public to both services at First Assembly, located at Ninth Street and Avenue G in Levelland.

Tech Professor Plans Program

Texas Tech University Professor Wlodymir Zyla will present a multi-media program on the Ukrainian Orthodox Church at 10:30 a.m. Sunday at First United Church of Christ, 2412 13th St.

Zyla's program will be the first of three sessions in March dealing with other denominations and religions. At 10:30 a.m. March 15, Major Jim Haller will speak on The Salvation Army. Rabbi Stephen Weisberg, pastor of Congregation Shaareth Israel, will speak on Judaism at 10:30 a.m. March 29.

Pastor Clark Ross invites the public to each session and the discussions which follow.

LOOK INTO A MIRROR

Some people claim that they can match husbands and their wives in any large group. It is true that many couples seem to resemble each other the longer they live together.
Children often resemble their parents both in looks and actions. Although many times parents may hesitate to acknowledge it, children's actions, moods, speech and attitudes are often merely reflections of our own. We need not look into a mirror to observe our likeness. Watch the children. They are miniature replicas of us.
Among humans this tendency to imitate may not always be for the good. But the Heavenly Father wants His children to be like Him. He has given us an example to follow. Our lives should reflect the actions, talk and attitudes of Jesus Christ. The more time we spend worshipping Him, the better replicas of Him we become. That is a good reason for worshipping together this week.

U.S. Says Flow Of Arms To Salvador Continues

Haig Implies Action Against Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP) — Shipments of Soviet-bloc military equipment toward El Salvador continue unabated despite Reagan administration protests, but there has been a slowdown of deliveries into the country itself, the State Department said Friday.

"There continues to be a flow in the pipeline. That has not abated," department spokesman William Dyess said. Asked if the United States were considering a naval blockade to interdict the shipments, he declined comment.

Dyess refused, also, to say at what point in the supply line the equipment has reached. The State Department has alleged that at least 200 tons of equipment were sent to Salvadoran insurgents late last year, most of it supplied by Vietnam and Ethiopia to the rebels via Cuba and Nicaragua.

Earlier Friday, Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. expressed concern about the "vast amounts" of equipment which are awaiting shipment to El Salvador and about preparations being made for future deliveries.

He also alluded to "reports of ever-larger shipments on the way" but, like Dyess, he did not make it clear how far along the equipment was on the route to El Salvador.

The administration has alleged that Soviet-bloc countries on four continents committed themselves last year to supplying the Salvadoran insurgents with 800 tons of equipment for the purpose of establishing a Marxist government in that country.

Haig, repeating a warning he has made several times over the past 10 days, said Friday the administration intends to deal with the situation "at its source."

Retalatory Action Implied

He has implied some form of retaliatory action will be taken against Cuba but he has refused to discuss what options are being considered.

Cuba has been depicted by Haig and other officials as the chief conspirator in the campaign although captured documents released here earlier this week indicate Nicaragua has played a major role in the arms shipment process as well.

Haig said Friday that Nicaragua has taken some steps to halt the flow of equipment to El Salvador across its territory. Haig noted that U.S. economic assistance to Nicaragua could be cut off because it is conditioned on Nicaragua's not interfering in the internal affairs of other countries.

As explained by U.S. officials, Nicaragua's support for the Salvadoran guerrillas was orchestrated by pro-Cuban elements within the Sandinista government. It had neither the knowledge nor the approval of the government's moderate factions.

Aid Package Suspended

Because of Nicaragua's complicity in El Salvador, the United States has temporarily suspended disbursement of the remaining $15 million of a $75 million economic aid package.

Haig also said Friday the United States has no intention of sending combat advisers to El Salvador but that additional military training experts may be dispatched to assist the Salvadoran military.

Pentagon sources said that the Joint Chiefs of Staff has recommended sending "Somewhat less than 30" more U.S. military advisers. Currently, there are eight permanent U.S. advisers in El Salvador and 19 U.S. Army specialists. The new group would come from the Navy and Army, said the sources, who declined to be named.

Meanwhile, President Reagan was expected to name a new ambassador to El Salvador — the fifth career diplomat to head the American mission there in a little over a year.

Diplomat To Be Named

He is Deane Hinton, 58, an international economics affairs expert who is a former ambassador to Zaire.

The rapid turnover at the embassy is a reflection of the political upheaval in El Salvador — and in the United States as well.

Two of the four envoys who have served since February 1980 were assigned to El Salvador on an interim basis, replacing ambassadors who terminated their appointment prematurely.

The most controversial of the appointees was Ambassador Robert White, who was fired less than two weeks after President Reagan took office because of policy differences.

This week the controversy over White intensified when he criticized administration policies toward El Salvador in public, prompting a State Department charge that White violated propriety and common sense.

Running Battles Fought

Army troops and leftist guerrillas fought running battles Friday in San Lorenzo, 40 miles north of the Salvadoran capital and in the nearby countryside, government sources and area residents said.

There were no immediate casualty reports from the Friday fighting although the government said it had killed 50 guerrillas in San Lorenzo on Tuesday and taken control of the town because "that was the only solution."

EYEING FURTHER CUTS — Budget director David Stockman, right, appearing at a news briefing with Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige, is eyeing additional budget cuts in virtually every agency. Baldrige, noting proposals to cut his department's budget by 25 percent, said he believes an additional 7 to 8 percent reduction could be achieved. (AP Laserphoto)

Possible Budget-Cutting Delay Blamed On Administration

pected to settle on the complete list of savings by this weekend.

At a briefing for reporters, Stockman declared that "We have reviewed every agency from the Veterans Administration to NASA (the National Aeronautics and Space Administration), and there will be cuts across the entire spectrum."

Asked if the administration planned to seek any new tax increases rather than cut programs deeper to compensate for the higher 1982 spending estimate, he replied: "No. Unquestionably, no."

Gasoline Tax Hike Rejected

Last weekend, Stockman said the administration was considering a 2-cent-a-gallon increase in the federal tax on gasoline to offset planned cuts in federal highway construction spending that idea has since been rejected.

Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige, who appeared at the briefing with Stockman, said he believes his department's budget could be cut by 7 percent to 8 percent on top of the 25 percent reduction already proposed by the administration. This new cut would include a reduction in the department's workforce by 8 percent, or 2,600 people, by Sept. 30, 1982.

Interior Secretary James Watt, also at the briefing, said he anticipated no additional cuts in his department beyond those previously announced.

Meanwhile on Capitol Hill the Senate Budget Committee may be forced to delay work on Reagan's request for spending cuts by as much as a week because of administration tardiness in providing detailed information, aides disclosed.

Budget Work Delayed

The committee had hoped to begin work on budget-cutting legislation on March 11, but officials said it now appears the earliest the panel could start would be the week of March 16.

"It looks almost impossible to go ahead then (March 11)," said one aide, who asked not to be identified by name.

"There may be a remote possibility of holding to the earlier schedule, the aide said, but added it was more likely "we'd have to slip it a week."

As part of a three-year, $125.9 billion package of proposed cuts, Reagan has asked Congress to approve $44.1 billion in spending reductions for 1982. But administration officials have not yet provided detail on an estimated $6.6 billion of next year's total.

In addition, administration officials announced on Wednesday the president will be recommending another $3 billion to $6 billion in cuts to compensate for the discovery that government spending is growing faster than anticipated.

The Budget Committee had hoped to have information on at least the $6.6 billion by next Monday at the latest, but now doesn't expect the material until late in the week, officials said.

It would ordinarily take the committee a few days to begin hearings after receiving the material, since the Congressional Budget Office routinely ly reviews the figures submitted by administration budget experts.

Democrats in both houses have complained in the 10 days since Reagan announced his economic program that the administration has been slow in providing the mass of backup material that normally accompanies a formal legislative proposal.

But the disclosure that the committee will put off its work is the first confirmation that congressional action will be delayed because of the delay in producing material at the Office of Management and Budget.

Under the procedure adopted by majority Republicans in the Senate for speeding Reagan's spending cut package through Congress, the Budget Committee will set targets for spending reductions.

The panel also will prepare a set of instructions to the other committees in the Senate, telling each one how much money to cut from the programs it is responsible for.

It is this process, known as drafting reconciliation instructions, that the committee had hoped to begin on March 11.

Under an earlier tentative schedule, the committee had hoped to complete work on the instructions by March 13, and the full Senate was to have acted by a week later.

The governor of Arizona since 1978 said the United States government is founded on the premise of freedom of the press and that without it "Our system can't work."

Former Attorney General

Before becoming governor of Arizona, Babbitt served as the state's attorney general. In both offices, his supporters say, he gave continued support of the state's open meetings law.

He was nominated for the award by the Grand Canyon Professional Chapter and the Valley of the Sun Chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, the Society of Professional Journalists.

Babbitt is the ninth recipient of the Thomas Jefferson Award, which Tech, the Texas Press Association and the Texas Association of Broadcasters give to either an elected or appointed public official who has made outstanding efforts to protect freedom of the press.

"Champion Of First Amendment"

Past recipients include Leon Jaworski, special Watergate prosecutor; Richard Wiley, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission; the late former Connecticut Gov. Ella T. Grasso; and the late U.S. Sen. Hubert Humphrey.

"In the course of conducting his office as governor, whenever a conflict emerges that places in jeopardy the right of free citizens to have access to public information, Babbitt immediately becomes the champion of the First Amendment."

Grand Canyon Sigma Delta Chi President Mann; Romero and immediate Past President Dal M. Herring wrote in behalf of Babbitt's nomination.

Influential Elsewhere

This kind of attitude on the part of the chief executive of the state filters down into all aspects of state and local government, they said. "It creates a legal and professional climate in Arizona which places us leagues ahead of other states in our constant battle to keep freedom of information from eroding."

Cited as one example of Babbitt's commitment was his calling the state legislature into special session to repeal sections of a revised criminal code which some interpreted as closing police records to the media.

At Friday's news conference, Babbitt said his fellow politicians need a better appreciation of the press. "Many of them view the press as trouble with a capital T," he said, admitting that "once in a while some member of the press does a hatchet job. But he said that only proves reporters are human and sometimes make mistakes."

Praise For Media

In general, he praised today's media for its sophistication and investigative reporting and said "voters are better off because of the press."

However, he did note that in a complex society issues are more difficult for the press to understand and report.

Babbitt, who was among those appointed by President Jimmy Carter to a nuclear commission after the Three-Mile nuclear incident, said, "Ninety-nine percent of the press at Three-Mile Island didn't know a gamma ray from a nuclear reactor."

Advice For Newsmen

"I hesitate to give advice to the press," he told the roomful of reporters with a laugh, adding, "The press doesn't cotton to that."

But after being asked to do just that — give advice — he said reporters need to develop more expertise in specialized areas in order to report today's complex issues.

He also said the news media has not spent enough time "looking at the institution of government."

"The press needs to go after something other than the guy with his hand in the till and cover the institution itself," he said.

She said, "The role of government in a free society should be to insure that people can go about their business freely and without fear and to protect the weak and those in need. But both in Britain and also in the United States the reach of government has far exceeded this limited role."

She said, "Governments in both our countries have pursued policies of extensive and detailed intervention far beyond those one would expect to find in a free society."

Difficulties Seen

She said her Conservative Party government is taking steps to free up business in Great Britain, including the British aerospace and telecommunications industries. But she said reducing government involvement in the economy poses "immense difficulties," especially at a time of world recession and rising unemployment.

Progress, however, is being made, she said.

"After these many years of inflationary drift the costs of recovery have to be paid," she said. She recommended four propositions for both nations to follow in restoring economic freedoms and prosperity to their peoples, which are:

— Restoring "the soundness of money"

— Persuading the population to adjust their expectations to slower economic growth

— Internationally and nationally we must let markets function more freely and we must intervene in them less

— We must reduce the excessive dependence of the Western economies on imported oil

Space Center Visited

Mrs. Thatcher took a tour Friday of the Goddard Space Center and also the Genex Corp., a firm doing research in genetic engineering, both in the Washington area.

In the afternoon, she spent more than an hour with Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger at the Pentagon, where she was greeted with an "honor cordon" of troops lining the steps.

Mrs. Thatcher left without talking to newsmen, but defense officials at the meeting said it was marked by a "good atmosphere" and "little or no disagreement on major issues."

Weinberger told Mrs. Thatcher he felt Britain "was doing its share" in contributing to NATO, officials said, and he complimented Britain on "keeping up its defense effort in a difficult time."

Apparently, much of the discussion centered on the possibility of greater U.S. purchases of weapons and military equipment made in the United Kingdom.

Weinberger was pictured by defense officials as sympathetic to the idea of buying British-made equipment where possible.

There were indications that Mrs. Thatcher suggested the United States has been less than cooperative in this field.

WATER POLICY OFFICE SET

WASHINGTON (AP) — Interior Secretary James Watt said Friday he is creating a new Office of National Water Policy to better coordinate government action on water development. The new office will assist states and counties plan their water needs. Watt told reporters at a briefing, Watt sidestepped a question whether the new office would take the place of the Water Resources Council, a controversial interagency review group created by the Carter administration. He said further details would be announced soon.

High Plains Water Importation Costs Fall; Opposition Persists

By The Associated Press

Although the projected cost of taxing Missouri River water for six and southern and western states has been diminished, South Dakota officials say the option is still too expensive.

Earlier estimates placed the cost of transferring water from Lake Francis Case as high as $24 billion. But at Washington briefing on the High Plains Study this week, consultants said they have narrowed the cost to a range of $5.9 billion to $13.4 billion, said Dick Howard, deputy water and natural resources secretary.

Ten members of Congress, including Rep. Tom Daschle, D-S.D., attended the briefing conducted by consultants for the High Plains Study Council states, Howard said.

The $6 billion study is examining options for replacing water from the Ogallala aquifer, which is the major irrigation source for Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Colorado and New Mexico. Diversion of as much as 6.4 million acre-feet of water a year from the Missouri River in South Dakota is one of the options. The river's annual flow at Sioux City, Iowa, is 21 million acre-feet.

The high cost of the Missouri River option means the federal government would probably have to help pick up the tab, Daschle said.

"There will by necessity have to be federal involvement," he said, "but I don't know if we should have to look toward 'Big Daddy' in Washington every time we need financing. If the states want additional responsibility, they will be looked at to take on more costs."

One Representative told the Washington meeting the cost of transferring the water from the Missouri River is so high the potential users couldn't afford it, Howard said.

Howard also quoted New Mexico Sen. Pete Domenici as saying the water shortage will become the nation's biggest domestic problem in the 1990s, but with the current economic situation, it's not realistic to expect new water project starts in the near future.

"The cost of the interbasin transfers is an impediment to the High Plains effort," said Water and Natural Resources Department Secretary Bob Neufeld.

The High Plains study so far shows the six-state region will lose 6 million of its 20 million irrigated acres in the next 40 years because of underground water losses. But it also shows Nebraska alone will gain 7.1 million acres, Neufeld said.

"Their (the High Plains states) attitude is one that they're just waiting to see what results they can get from water conservation practices and what effect other technology can come up with," he said. "They feel that unless something is brought about by new irrigation technology changes, the only solution they see is an interbasin transfer of water so they don't lose the 6 million acres."

But Neufeld said he thinks the High Plains states should solve their own problems.

"Isn't it reasonable to expect them to clean up their own house before they take other states' water?" he asked.

Black, Silver Auto Linked To Shooting

Lubbock police Friday were looking for a silver car with a black top which might have been involved in a Thursday night apparent sniper attack in which two Avalanche-Journal employees were injured.

Detectives say they continue to lean toward the random-shooting theory in the incident at 2901 Bangor Ave., but note a silver and black car had been seen in the area about the time of the 10 p.m. attack. A similar vehicle had been described several months ago by a witness to another shooting of a vehicle, they said.

The possible suspect vehicle, detectives said, was the only new lead in the Thursday shooting at A-J Advertising Director Carl Cannon's home. Authorities late Friday also remained stymied as to a reason for the single shot through the residence's front picture window.

Fragments of the large-caliber bullet struck Cannon's 19-year-old secretary, Shannon Kennedy, and advertising salesman Bryce Cockerham, 23. Miss Kennedy was wounded in the neck and was in satisfactory condition Friday at Methodist Hospital. Cockerham, who suffered two wounds to the back, was released from the hospital Friday evening.

Authorities say they do not believe the perpetrator of the Thursday shooting is responsible for the multiple snappings along Lubbock County streets within the past two weeks. A suspect has been charged in those incidents and remains in the county jail.

But several investigators expressed

MX Costs

cantly more expensive than in Utah and Nevada, where much of the land is federally owned.

The statement also pointed out the boom-bust economic effects that could be expected in cities near the proposed sites in Texas and New Mexico.

Full-scale work on the MX system began more than a year ago, with emphasis on development of the missile itself.

Under present plans, 200 missiles would be moved on truck-like transporters among 4,600 shelters clustered in remote areas of Utah and Nevada so that their exact location could not be pinpointed and targeted for destruction by enemy missiles in a nuclear attack.

The Reagan administration has not said whether it will remain with this arrangement, although a Pentagon spokesman said recently that Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger considers an alternative suggestion to base the MX system as unlikely to be chosen.

The final selection of a deployment area is scheduled for this June under a revised Air Force timetable, eight months behind the original schedule.

In its revised timetable, the Air Force retained the July 1986 date for beginning deployment of the MX system by compressing the time allowed for interim steps.

For example, the GAO noted, the service provides only 10 months for obtaining needed land, although "this process normally takes about three years."

It also does not allow for any delays caused by lawsuits that MX opponents, of whom there are many in Utah and Nevada, may file.

More Charges Name Suspect In Shooting

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A second attempted capital murder charge was filed Friday against Clyde Ross, the man accused of shooting a Lubbock police officer Tuesday evening as the officer tried to make an arrest at an Avenue Q motel.

In the latest charge, the 29-year-old Ross is accused of wounding an employee at an Ideal Road club during a hold-up of the business Feb. 20. A count of aggravated robbery also was filed against Ross in connection with the incident.

Three other aggravated robbery charges also were filed against Ross Friday in connection with the Feb. 21 robberies of three persons.

Ross and his 27-year-old companion JoAnn Ross, were jailed Tuesday following a shooting at the Grand Motel, 21st Street and Avenue Q, in which police Det. Cpl. George Parramore was wounded. Each was charged with attempted capital murder in Parramore's shooting and aggravated robbery in connection with an earlier robbery at a Lubbock service station.

The additional attempted capital murder count and one of the aggravated robbery charges filed Friday against Ross stem from the Feb. 20 holdup at the Roadrunner Lounge, 416 Ideal Road, during which club employee Connie Moore was wounded.

Moore, 60, told police a man came into the lounge shortly before closing that night. He said the man smiled and said, "This is a stick-up."

The robber ordered Moore to take off his pants and hand over his wallet, which the victim did, according to police reports. After taking the wallet and walking toward the front door, Moore said, the suspect turned and began firing a small-caliber gun at the club employee.

Moore was struck in the upper right shoulder by the gunfire.

The lounge employee told police he had just put the bills from the cash register in his wallet to close the lounge when the suspect entered. Moore estimated the bandit escaped with between $300 and $400.

The three other aggravated robbery charges allege Ross was the gun-wielding man who took approximately $710 in cash Feb. 21 from a group of persons at a 23rd Street home.

City Man Reports Robbery By Wife, Stepdaughter

A middle-aged east Lubbock man told police he was robbed of $210 about 12:30 p.m. Friday by his wife and stepdaughter.

The man told police he had received his paycheck Friday and he left work to cash the check. He was stopped in the 2800 block of East Sixth Street as he rode his bicycle, he said, when he saw his relatives who were carrying large, open folding-type knives.

He said the suspects are ages 50 and 21.

In other activity, a 22-year-old bartender said she was beaten "for some unknown reason" by a man she visited after she got off work at 2 a.m. Friday.

The woman said she left work with the man and he began beating her about 4 a.m. at his residence. She finally was able to get his permission to leave, she said, and she called police.

Police said the woman suffered two black eyes, a swollen and split lip, a swollen right jaw and she had blood on her blouse.

A 50-year-old retired woman told police she was tired of receiving strange telephone calls from a man who has been bothering her for two years.

She said the man calls her a derogatory term, then tells her to "Leave me alone." She added that her neighbor has received a letter from the same man, accusing her of "false actions."

A 55-year-old woman told police she was pistol-whipped by her husband, but she refused to file charges because "he's old" and she does not want him in jail.

The east Lubbock woman told police at 9 a.m. Friday that she had an argument with her husband and he threatened her with a gun. He did not fire the weapon, she said, but did hit her in the head with the gun butt.

Two boys, ages 13 and 14, were taken into custody about 9:15 p.m. Thursday after a police officer allegedly caught them burglarizing Jim's Drive-In at 2601 Clovis Road.

The loot that the boys had bundled up before their apprehension was a bag full of bubble gum, reports state.

After hearing an alarm had been triggered at the fast-food restaurant, officer C.L. Graham said he went to the scene and immediately saw a face disappear from a window. He said he circled around to the back of the building and saw a door ajar.

Graham said he threw open the door and heard movement inside. Reports state he then discovered the younger of the two intruders hiding behind a refrigerator. Seconds after the captured youth had said he was working alone, the other juvenile was spotted behind the cooler.

Both boys were turned over to juvenile authorities.

In other activity, a 29-year-old Lubbock man arrested last week on suspicion of being an accomplice in a holdup at the Fin station at Brownfield Highway and Quaker Avenue and then later released, was in jail again Thursday after he allegedly was seen selling dope in the 300-block of Flint Avenue.

Police said they confiscated 2½ ounces of what was thought to be hashish when they arrested the man about 5:40 p.m. Reports state that once confronted, the man handed over one bag of a green substance. But when an officer reached for another bag in the man's coat pocket, the suspect ran, according to authorities.

Reports state the man was chased down about two blocks down the street, handcuffed and jailed on suspicion of possessing a controlled substance and resisting arrest. Police said the man had been traveling in the maroon Monte Carlo thought to have been the getaway car used in last week's robbery.

Mother-In-Law Of Media Firm President Dies

COLUMBUS, Ga. (Special) — Graveside services for Mrs. John Tyler (Susie Blackmar) Ellis, 86, of Columbus will be at 2 p.m. today in Linwood Cemetery here.

Drug Reveals Clues To Girl's Identity

PEMBROKE PINES, Fla. (AP) — An injection of "sleep-talking" drugs has prompted Jane Doe, the young amnesiac found naked and near death in a state park last fall, to answer questions about her name, birthdate and high school, hospital officials said Thursday.

But they say they would not discuss the leads until they had time to check them out.

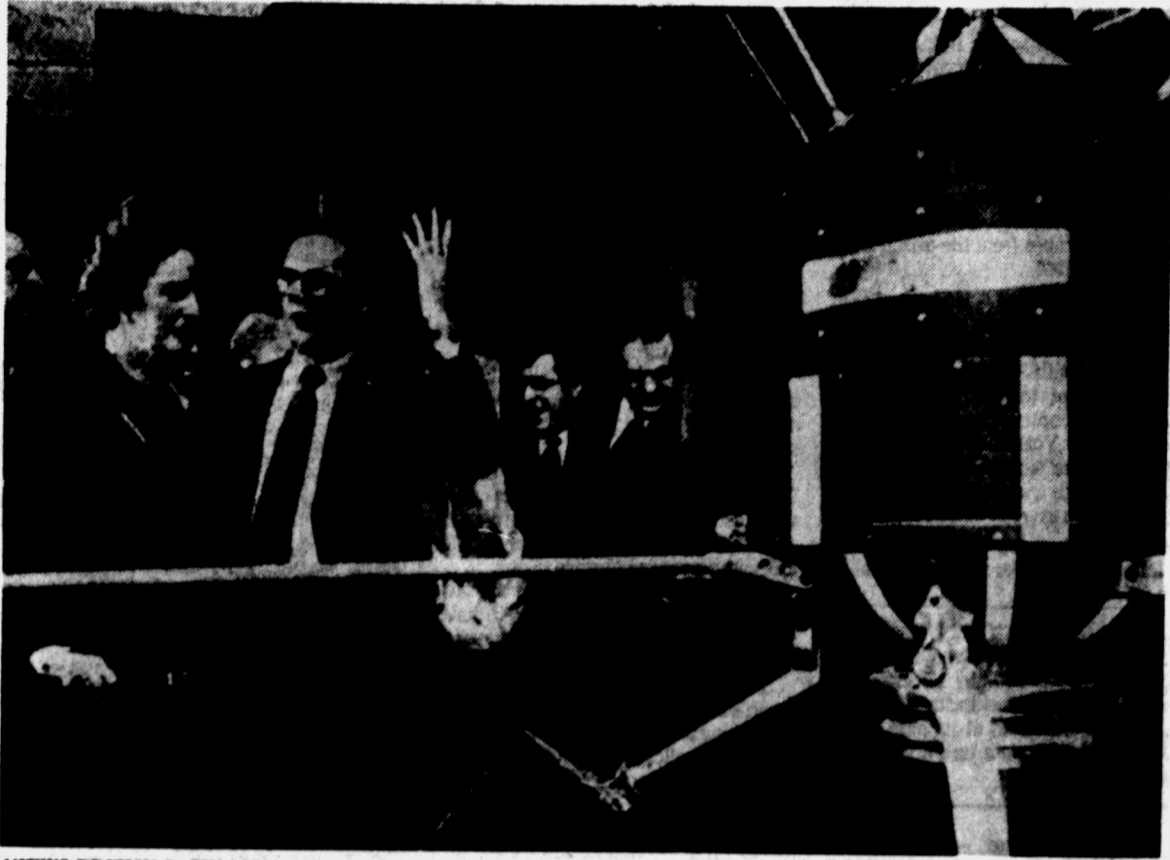

Jane has no memory of anything, including her name or home, before Sept. 19, 1980.

When accounts of her plight, first reported by The Fort Lauderdale News and Sun-Sentinel, were distributed nationally last month, South Florida State Hospital here received thousands of calls and letters.

ABC-TV flew the woman, who doctors say suffers from trauma-caused amnesia, to New York to appear on "Good Morning America" on Feb. 10, and more calls and letters poured in.

Spectacular Helicopter Escape Mirrors Adventure Fiction

PARIS (AP) — A hijacked helicopter landed in the middle of a prison soccer game Friday, picked up two dangerous convicts and zoomed away in a spectacular breakout from "the prison of no escape."

In a precise operation that lasted only 30 seconds, unarmed guards watched helplessly as an ace French pilot with a gun pointed at his head plucked the two inmates from the soccer field and then eluded police choppers that gave chase.

Police said the two convicts and their two rescuers were still at large hours after their flight to freedom from Fleury-Merogis Prison — 24 miles south of Paris. Once considered escape-proof by French prison officials, there have been three other escapes from the prison since it was built in 1968.

Reality mirrored Hollywood in France's first helicopter prison escape, which resembled the American film "Breakout" with Charles Bronson. A similar attempt to free a prisoner by landing a helicopter on top of a federal prison in New York City on Jan. 25 was foiled when the would-be rescuers could not cut through a steel-mesh cage covering the rooftop exercise area.

In an ironic twist, Claude Fourcade, the pilot who was forced at gunpoint to land the red and white helicopter on the soccer field, had worked on "Breakout" and in many other films where crack helicopter pilots were needed.

Police said the operation began Friday morning when two men paid hired Fourcade, telling him they wanted to be flown south from Paris to Orleans in the Loire Valley. The two men twice before had hired Fourcade to make the same trip, said a spokesman for the Helicap Helicopter Co.

After 10 minutes in the air, the two "customers" pulled weapons, told Fourcade, 48, that his wife and 15-year-old daughter were being held hostage, and ordered him to fly to the prison, police said. The hostage story was a lie, the police added.

Officials said the helicopter landed on a field where inmates were playing a soccer match that had been scheduled for several days. Unarmed guards were watching from the sidelines.

Two inmates ran to the helicopter and climbed in. The prison sirens were sounded and armed guards rushed to the scene, but were too late.

One of the fugitives was Gerard Dupre, 33, who officials regard as one of the most dangerous criminals in France and who is suspected in a series of hold-ups, some involving hostage taking.

Authorities said Dupre was arrested Jan. 7 while allegedly preparing a hold-up at the Gare du Nord railroad station in Paris.

The other fugitive was Daniel Beaumont, 41, a bank robber and holdup man with a long prison record.

Police helicopters gave chase but were unable to catch the escape craft.

The four men in the helicopter ordered Fourcade to take them to a sports field on the edge of Paris where they alighted, ran to a waiting car and fled, police said. Officials said they may have already left the country.

Police said Fourcade was not a suspect in the case. He is regarded as France's top helicopter pilot and has logged 10,000 hours of flight time during his 23-year career.

After the escape, French Justice Minister Alain Peyrefitte said better security measures must be installed in the nation's prisons, including Fleury-Merogis.

The high-security prison, which houses 4,000 men and women prisoners, was opened in 1968 and hailed at the time as the most modern prison in Europe. It has no bars but windows with unbreakable glass. When it opened, officials confidentially called it "the prison from which no one escapes."

Three previous convicts, however, staged successful escapes from Fleury-Merogis in 1974, 1975 and 1977.

Guide Mechanism Automatically Runs Tractor Without Farmer

By GERRY BURTON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

TAHOKA — There are a lot of things a farmer could do if he didn't have to drive a tractor around the field all day at groundbreaking time.

Ricky Gandy is doing them. For only 30 minutes each daylight and 30 minutes each twilight, does Gandy have to go to the field and fuel up the tractor that does the plowing by itself the remaining 23 hours of the day.

Among the bonuses of operating a robot tractor are arrowheads the deep-plowing vehicle brings to the surface. And, with the tractor going by itself, Gandy has time to find them.

The Lynn County section now being turned by the special machine is about six miles from Mound Lake where Quanah Parker often camped.

"People have found a lot of arrowheads, some real old, around there," but Gandy doesn't know how the age of the ones he discovered.

On the serious side of robot farming, Gandy is saving more than two tractor hands' wages each day the tractor breaks ground.

"It can pay for itself breaking one section of ground," which Gandy says costs $1.50 per inch. And the plow goes 16 to 18 inches down, he notes, bringing up the clay which it discs and then mixes with the upper sand.

The guide mechanism, he explains, has been on the market about 20 years and his father-in-law has had two for 18 years, but Gandy has been working with "year 2001 farming" only six years.

"We've modified it with electrical switches to take out the bugs. We made the brackets and things and then took it to the shop for wiring to get the switches."

Now, there is no danger of surrounding countryside if the guide accidentally jumps out of the marking furrow because the sharp turn involved would trigger a switch and kill the motor.

There also is a switch to kill the motor if it "spins down" and stays in one spot with wheels spinning. Another switch keeps track of the motor, ready to flip it off if it runs too hot or the oil pressure gets too low with no one in the driver's seat to notice.

Gandy just has to grease it and fill it with 100 gallons of butane twice a day.

The twilight fillup also involves turning on the lights for the night operation, mainly so Gandy can find it when he goes to check, just to be sure, in the wee hours of the morning.

Marking off a quarter section and plowing the first round is all the extra work Gandy does for groundbreaking.

"I put the guide in and turn it loose. It takes seven or eight days to plow a quarter."

Breaking ground is all the robot is good for, but it pays for itself over and over by saving $3.50 an hour tractor hand wage every hour it makes the rounds, plowing from the perimeter to the center.

And it leaves Gandy free to do other chores around the farm 16 miles southwest of Tahoka and some of the fun things, like finding arrowheads where the tractor has dredged them up.

Or allowing the time to take curious friends out to the field to see the tractor plowing steadily away all by itself.

PART OF THE HARVEST — Ricky Gandy, who farms about 16 miles southwest of Tahoka, admires one of the arrowheads he found last year in a field broken by the robot tractor plowing behind in a new rented field. Gandy believes there is only one other farmer in Lynn County using robot mechanisms while there probably are a half-dozen or more in Dawson County. (Staff Photo)

Production Credit Board Plans Meeting

A-J Correspondent

CLOVIS, N.M. — The Board of Directors of the Clovis Production Credit Association has set Thursday as the date for their annual stockholders meeting. The dinner meeting will start at 7 p.m. in the ballroom of the Campus Union Building of Eastern New Mexico University in Portales, N.M.

This meeting, one of the largest agriculture gatherings held in the state, will feature Frank Pollard of San Antonio as after-dinner speaker. Mr. Pollard is widely known throughout the southwest for his inspirational talks.

The association, which is member owned, is the largest in District 9 and is made up of five counties which are: De Baca, Quay, Curry, Roosevelt and Guadalupe.

Short and intermediate financing to farmers, ranchers and farm-related businesses is provided by the association.

Reception For Art Students Scheduled

A reception scheduled in conjunction with an art exhibit by Lubbock public school secondary art students will be at 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday at the Municipal Garden and Arts Center.

More than 300 works will be on display at the exhibit, one of the activities celebrating Youth Art Month. The artwork will be on display from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays and 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. weekends throughout the month of March.

Youth Art Month is being celebrated on the local, state and national levels to emphasize the value of art in the development of youth. Supporters of art education claim art stimulates creativity, imagination and perception — all necessary attributes for any vocation.

Boy Scout Officials Prepare For $500,000 Funding Drive

By NEAL FARMER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Area Boy Scout officials have sounded the bugle for a "once-in-a-generation" fund drive they hope will net more than $500,000 from the South Plains.

Alan Henry, general campaign chairman for the 1981 Development Fund Campaign, said the drive is a "must" for area scouters.

"An evaluation of our camps, begun in 1975, has confirmed a significant, vital need. The time has come to expand or renovate facilities of all three camps on the South Plains," Henry said.

The chairman said approximately $300,000 of improvements are planned for Camp Post, near the town of Post; $15,000 is needed for Camp Haynes near Silverton; and almost $30,000 is planned for building at Camp Tres Rios in the Sangre de Cristo Mountains of northern New Mexico.

In addition, repairs for the South Plains Council Service Center, or Scout office, as well as a development program and operations support round out the final financial picture, Henry said.

"This drive is a 'must' if we expect to provide our growing scout population with adequate camp facilities and programs during the '80's and '90's," Henry explained.

He added, "Consideration of this all-important program will be deeply appreciated by all of us who are interested in maintaining the Scout program as a vital force in developing future community, state and national leaders."

Dr. Roy C. McClung, South Plains Council president for 1981, said the total financial figure desired was $523,500. "We are asking you and all your friends to join us in improving the 'tools' of our three camps," he said.

McClung added, "An investment in this program is an investment in our youth. The Boy Scouts character-building program has been operating in our West Texas communities for well over 50 years.

"At this very time, hundreds of adult volunteers are aiding our youth in growth toward healthy, honest, responsible patriotic citizens," McClung said.

The president of the 20-county council said all three council-operated camps were in need of upgrading and improving. "In particular need of repair is 55-year-old Camp Post. Some of the buildings at this camp were donated by neighboring ranches and were built years before," McClung said. "The last active material work on some of the facilities was 18 years ago," he added.

The council president also noted another benefit to the improvement of the camps would be preservation of historical and archaeological significance, as well as a protection of the environment.

According to a Scout brochure, several ways of giving money will be noted by Scout officials.

A "Wall of Honor" will be erected with the names of those who donate $1.

Professor Warns Of Dangers Of Household Chemicals

PORTALES, N.M. (Special) — Dangerous household chemicals and flammable liquids are among the highest causes of accidents involving children in America, according to Bonnie Dickinson, associate professor of home economics at Eastern New Mexico University.

"If children have access to these chemicals they will play with them, either inhaling or swallowing them," Mrs. Dickinson said. "The childproof caps do keep the very young from these chemicals, but older children will discover how to uncap the container and spray it or drink it."

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission estimates that 5,000 people receive emergency room treatment for inhalation or chemical burns from aerosol cans each year, Dickinson said. She added 70 percent of the people who swallow flammable liquids must be admitted to the hospital for extensive and painful treatment.

"Where people store these chemicals is important; you want to make sure that they are all out of the reach of any children," she said. "Most people tend to put household chemicals under their kitchen sink. That is the worst place possible, because it is so accessible to the children."

"The chemicals you want to store away safely are pesticides, paints, hair-sprays and any other aerosol type of household item. All flammable liquids should be stored away safely in a locked cabinet in a tightly capped, non-breakable container that is clearly labeled. The cabinets should not be near any open flames or intense heat. Most people prefer their cellar or garage," she said.

Mrs. Dickinson said labeling is important so a parent can determine what has been swallowed and doctors will then know how to treat the person.

HINTS FROM HELOISE:

White Uniforms Made Bright

DEAR HELOISE: I am really in need of your help on how to get my washable white uniforms white again. They are so dull-looking I'm ashamed to wear them, yet they are far too good to just toss out. I know other gals who have to wear white uniforms would appreciate this information also. Thank you very much. — B.W.

'Tis my pleasure, luv, especially since I've had oodles of requests from those "other gals" who have the same problem. There are two or three things you can do, but the one I like most uses chlorine bleach and dishwasher detergent — items most of us already have around the house. Besides that, it's very simple to do. (Be sure to check the care label first to be certain it doesn't say "don't use bleach.")

Pour one gallon of very hot water into a plastic, stainless steel or enamel container — DO NOT use aluminum as it will discolor. Add one cup of dishwasher detergent and one-fourth cup household liquid chlorine bleach. Stir until the detergent is thoroughly dissolved then add the uniforms. Let them soak for about 30 minutes, then wash as usual.

This formula is also great for other dingy white clothes, especially baby clothes. However, you may need to soak these longer than 30 minutes as baby stains are very difficult to remove.

Another thing you can do for white uniforms is buy a nylon brightener available in supermarkets or buy a package of color remover, also available in supermarkets. Follow directions on the package.

Whichever method you choose, you should have the whitest, brightest, uniforms in town. — Hugs, Heloise important of all, they have a right to a hug and a kiss each day. — Jan Bennett

Dust a little powder on the table too each time you play with the cards. Keeps them slick as a whistle. — Heloise

STICKY CARDS

DEAR HELOISE: A new deck of playing cards were so "sticky" that they had to be tediously separated, one at a time.

So, I spread them out on a piece of newspaper, sprinkled each one with baby powder, then wiped it off.

They were slippery enough to separate easily and, as an added bonus, I had the sweetest smelling cards around. — Betty Moore

MAKE CANDLE FIT

DEAR HELOISE: If a candle is too large for a candlestick holder, carefully apply a burning match to the bottom until the candle is slightly soft.

You can then fit it into the holder easily. — Julie Cochrane

Sprouts Bring Fun To Kitchen

By JEANNE LIVELY
Family News Staff

Bring the fun of a harvest into your own kitchen, with a crunchy crop of sprouts.

Just think, sprouted beans, seeds or grains are ready to eat in a week or less, add flavor and good nutrition to meals. Also, they're economical.

Those who know say it pays to buy seeds packed especially for sprouting, and these are available locally at some supermarket produce sections, seed and health-food stores.

What sprouts? — Alfalfa seeds are fastest. In fact, within 3-4 days you can raise crisp sprouts from Alfalfa seeds to use in sandwiches, toss in salads or on soups.

Another good bet — green mung beans (the type used in Chinese cooking) that sprout in 4-5 days. Mustard seeds have flavorful shoots. Radish and hand-cress make zesty nibbling.

HOW TO TIPS

Seeds will sprout in ordinary food jars (preferably tinted, such as large coffee jars) or in canning jars. Prepared quart jars come with strainer lids, but you can buy an inexpensive screened lid that fits most standard jar tops. Or you can make your own with fine plastic netting, held in place with a rubber band.

Other tips: You can also place 4-5 layers of moistened paper towel in a flat tray with 1-inch rim, spreading soaked seeds in a single layer on paper and covering loosely with clear plastic wrap. Or arrange seeds on shelves of a growing container.

Sprouts grow easily. To start the process, rinse 1/4 cup seeds in warm water, drain. Store in jar, on tray or in growing container. If a screen-covered jar is used, set on side to improve circulation.

Then, put in a warm (75-80 degrees), fairly dark place until sprouts come up, 2-4 days — a tinted jar provides sufficient darkness. Rinse seeds in jar morning and night each water to keep moist.

If plastic wrap is used, raise for ventilation, replace to retain moisture. For green tips, place sprouts in light. Use when sprouts are 1-inch long. One-fourth cup seeds makes about 3 cups sprouts. Refrigerate extra sprouts in a plastic bag for up to a week.

HOW TO USE

Nibble them raw as a snack, pack in lunch sandwiches or sprinkle on salads. Also eat the hulls clinging to the sprouts, or dip sprouts in water to float hulls off.

Add sprouts to stir-fried vegetables at the last minute, or drop onto soups for a crunchy, low-calorie topping. And try them in a quick Chinese dish.

To whet your appetite and stimulate interest in growing and using sprouts, here are two recipes to try and cherish.

BEEF AND BEAN SPROUTS

1 lb lean beef, partially frozen
3 tbsps peanut or corn oil
1 clove garlic, minced
Fresh or powdered ginger to taste

2 cups bean sprouts
4 scallions, sliced diagonally
1/4 cup sweet mixed pickle, diced
2 tbsps each sherry, soy sauce
1 tsp cornstarch
1/2 cup beef broth

Slice the meat very thin, diagonally across the grain; dry with paper towel. Add to oil in pan, with garlic and ginger. Stir-fry until just browned, about 1 minute.

Add sprouts, scallions, pickles, stir. Stir sherry, soy sauce, cornstarch and broth together, add to pan. Stir and cook another minute. Serve with boiled rice. Makes 4 servings.

CREAMY SPROUT DRESSING

1 1/2 cups alfalfa sprouts
2 tbsps lemon juice or vinegar
1/2 cup salad oil
Salt and pepper to taste
1/2 tsp mustard (optional)
2 tpsps chopped walnuts (optional)

Combine all ingredients in a blender or processor (or chop finely, then pulverize with mortar and pestle). Whirl smooth, about 1 minute. Serve over green salad, with fruit or as a dip. Makes almost 1 cup.

ANN LANDERS

Parents Receive Blame

Dear Ann Landers: This letter is for parents everywhere. The reason so many young couples are getting divorced these days is because they don't have any time together to have fun. Our marriage of six years is over, and I can lay it right on the doorstep of my husband's parents and mine.

They gave us a car, clothes and gifts of food — steak, chops, etc. What we really needed was a baby-sitter for one weekend a month so we could go fishing or camping — alone. It was the only interest we had in common. We couldn't afford to hire a sitter because it would have put us over our budget.

Three weeks ago my husband got so fed up with the kids he walked out. To this day he hasn't even called to see how they are. If we had had some vacations along this never would have happened.

I hope parents everywhere will read my letter and ask themselves how much they are helping their children's marriage. — Too Late For Us fectionate, but now she is belligerent, hostile and disagreeable.

She hollers at me and the children constantly and uses a lot of profanity — which she never did before. Our sex life was once very good, but now she resents being touched, even accidentally. A colleague has had the same experience with his wife, who also had a radical mastectomy.

I would greatly appreciate a response to this letter. I'm hoping you will point me in some direction, so life may be a little easier for me and the children. — The "Old Prof" in Eugene, Ore.

Dear Prof: Very few women can sail through a mastectomy with no psychological problems. Most are not so fortunate.

I hope you will talk to your wife's doctor about the trouble you are having at home. He has heard this story before and should be able to recommend a competent therapist. The suggestion that she seek counseling should come from him — not you. Good luck to the whole family.

Dear Ann Landers: Our 15-year-old son wants to shave. No problem? Well, actually there is. The boy has nothing to shave. He is blond and there's just a little peach fuzz on his chin. Nothing more.

I say there's nothing wrong with letting him shave if he wants to. My wife says he will only cut himself. What do you say? — Long On Arguing In Short Hills

Dear Long and Short: I say let him shave. If he cuts himself a few times he won't think it's so much fun.

Dear Late: So your husband walked out on you, and it's your parents' fault? Well, now I've heard everything.

This may come as a shock, but when two people get married it's THEIR responsibility to make the marriage work. If parents want to provide baby-sitting services, fine, but children have no right to expect it.

You don't say how old you and your husband are, but you sound very immature. Go to the clergyman who married you and ask him for guidance.

Dear Ann Landers, I am a university professor. My wife has a good executive position with a large firm. We have two teenagers. Our combined income makes it possible to enjoy all the necessities of life and some of the luxuries.

The problem is this: Six years ago, my wife underwent radical surgery for the removal of a breast. Since the operation she has had a complete personality change. She used to be very warm and af-

Crimes Against Women Increasing

NEW YORK (Special) — Almost seven out of every 100 women surveyed — predominantly 18 to 35 years old — revealed they had been raped, according to a national poll of "Glamour" magazine readers on the fear of crime.

The study of 1,351 readers, appearing in the current (March) issue of "Glamour", disclosed that 51 percent have been crime victims and that three-quarters fear they'll be the victim of a violent crime. Of those who have been victims, 50 percent were robbed, 16 percent were mugged and 13 percent were raped.

Overwhelmingly, rape is the crime most feared by women. Survey respondents cited it by a margin of more than two to one over murder, 55 percent to 23 percent. "It may be irrational since murder is more final," said one respondent. "but I feel that rape is the worst possible thing can happen to a woman."

The "Glamour" fear of crime study also revealed:

•More than three-quarters of the respondents said that fear of crime has caused them to change the way they lead their lives.

•More than four out of ten women said they carry something such as a knife or a whistle for protection.

•By a margin of almost three to one (74 percent to 23 percent) the women respondents said they would be willing to pay higher taxes for increased police protection. Though 66 percent said their community has not considered increasing police protection.

Art Association's Library Updates Reading Material

Are you a book duster or a book buster? There are approximately 1,500 books in the Lubbock Art Association Library, literally a storehouse of facts, available to those seeking help and reading entertainment in the fields of arts and crafts.

As of January 12, Jean Badger, with a degree in art from Texas Tech University, has accepted the position of executive secretary for the Lubbock Art Association. She already has spent many hours processing books, bringing card files up to date, and generally making the library attractive as well as useful. Badger has been diligent in acquainting herself with the many books and subjects in both art and crafts. She will be able to answer questions and suggest books for your enjoyment.

The library is a good place to follow up on some special classes in portrait sketching and watercolors that have been going on the last couple of weeks at the Garden and Arts Center.

Edward Laning, in his book called "The Art of Drawing", has special appeal for beginners as well as advanced students. After an introduction of materials, he turns to composition, rhythm and perspective, all accompanied by practical illustrations and techniques.

Also new and just processed for checking out is "Experimental Watercolor Techniques" by Bud Shackelford. This book is literally exploding with information on a wide range of materials and techniques, including wet-in-wet.

folding, crushing, sanding, burnishing and getting the effect of spatter and sparkle to name a few.

Do yourself a favor and spend a few moments browsing in the library. The only requirement for its use is a membership in the Lubbock Art Association. Fees are $8 per year and $3 for students.

The two books mentioned above will be displayed on the Reading Table of the library at the Garden and Arts Center until they are checked out. Watch for announcements of other good books. Some new ones on crafts are expected soon. For a membership, interested persons should drop by the Garden and Arts Center at 4215 University or call 762-6411 and information will be mailed to you.

Motivation Source Seen As Key To Fitness Plan

Motivation Source Seen as Key to Fitness Plan

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Why is it that some people show results from an exercise program, and others don't?

"How well you do with an extended exercise regimen has a lot to do with how — not how well, but how — you are motivated," says Maurita Robarge, professor of physical education at the University of Wisconsin, La Crosse, and fitness consultant to Scholl here.

Miss Robarge says there are two kinds of motivation: internal and external. Those people who have internal control are motivated from within, and can often stick to an exercise routine from thick to thin.

Externally motivated people depend on other people, situations and environment for direction. Without those external controls, they often lose the momentum to continue exercising.

"These are just different approaches to life," she says. "One is no better than the other. But each requires a different type of exercise planning."

Externally motivated people often do better in an exercise class or other group, she explains. But an internally motivated person doesn't need the support and subtle pressure that a group provides for its members.

Realizing this difference is a big step toward finding the right exercise method, she points out. Those who have tried it alone and failed, for instance, may want to try once more in a group situation.

Recognizing a need for outside support can be crucial, especially if you reach your exercise goals," she advises. "At that point, many people simply stop exercising, and lose the benefits they've built up so carefully."

Even those who are internally motivated can have lapses if the routine becomes boring, or a schedule is just too busy, she adds.

In that case, says the fitness expert, try to integrate exercise into a daily routine by biking to work, using stairs instead of elevators, wearing exercise sandals on errands, or walking more briskly than usual.

"The most important thing," she says, "is not how you exercise, or when, or with whom. It's most important to try different approaches until you find one that works for you."

SWEET ALMOND

The sweet almond we eat and use in cooking has been used since the earliest recorded times. Almonds are used in desserts, pastry, souffles, liquor, sauces, cakes, candy, cookies, vegetables and with meat, fish and chicken. Whole, halved, sliced, or chopped, almonds can be blanched or used plain, salted or toasted.

Young Man Wishes To Correct Swayback

By PAUL DONOHUE, M.D.
Dear Dr. Donohue: I am a 25-year-old male. Please discuss swayback. It seems I've had this problem for as long as I can remember. Is there anything medical or in the way of exercise to help me at my age? — S.S.

Inherited back structure can set a person up for poor posture or it can be due to an early injury of the spine or its muscles. So first of all, you must be checked for such problems. If there are none of those factors involved then you can start thinking of exercises to correct the sway. A helpful one is done lying on the floor on your back. In this position bring your knees up to your chest, holding them there for a full minute. When you do this, allow your hips to leave the floor at the same time (rolling up into a ball, hugging your knees).

Another exercise is done standing with your back leaning against a wall and the heels six to 12 inches away from the wall. You force your spine back flush against the wall by thrusting your hips away from it. In doing this the knees bend slightly. You may need a demonstration of this by a therapist, who may have other effective exercises to add. Some people graduate to attempts at knee bends with the back against the wall. The purpose of all this is to flatten out the curve of the spine.

You can help by habitually using straight chairs rather than the overstuffed kind. Try, as my third grade teacher used to say, to "stand tall". This will help flatten out the lower-back sway. It takes a long time to correct faulty back posture, but do not be discouraged. You can still accomplish it, even at your age.

First, have your back evaluated by a doctor expert in such matters. An orthopedist is one. Let me know how you make out, will you? The back and its problems is discussed at length in the booklet "Backache and Spine Problems." For a copy write Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am 61 years old, an old-time athlete. I have a problem when I play tennis which I do in the winter months indoors. I have debilitating pain in my knees and hips that lasts for one to three days. I can play tennis outdoors in the summer (afternoons) and feel no effect. I control the pain by aspirin and heat to the areas involved.

My conclusion is that the temperature is the causative factor. But tennis courts are warm indoors and the surfaces softer than outdoor courts. Why the inconsistency? I would appreciate your judgment. Under no circumstances do I intend to stop my activity, which is important mentally and physically. — D.G.

I would say that the pain in your hips and knees is telling you that something is wrong. The exact something I do not know, but you can imagine the innumerable possibilities. I think the fact that this pain is coming on in the wintertime and not in the summertime may indeed be related to the cold. Indoor tennis courts are never really very warm.

Are you doing preliminary stretching exercises and calisthenics to warm up your muscles and joints? You really should. Younger athletes might get by without heeding this rule. They shouldn't try at your age and in a cold environment you would almost certainly be asking for muscle sprain and ligament strain without warming up first.

But you should also see an orthopedic surgeon to find out what the basic problem is. I note from your letter head that you are a dentist. I wonder if you can tell me why my upper left first molar hurts when I drink warm coffee. I can already hear your answer — call up my dentist. Quid pro quo. I suppose.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Do you have any thoughts on the effects of swimming in ice cold water, like the Polar clubs do? — S.L.

In Belgium, 28 swimmers were studied after swimming in waters with a temperature of 38 degrees and air temperature of 32 degrees. They stayed in the water for one minute of swimming.

No dangerous changes occurred in their blood pressure or electrocardiograms. Perhaps no serious changes were seen because they only stayed for one minute in the water. For longer periods, it would seem that dangerous drops in the body temperature would occur. I do not know of any other studies where swimmers stayed in water that cold for longer than one minute.

In response to reader requests, Dr. Donohue's publisher now has a complete listing of all the booklets on various medical problems. Readers wishing this list can write Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Suit preference signals can be used in following suit or in discarding. They should be used by any good partnership, but only as subsidiary to the more important signals of high for strength, low for weakness and an echo to give count.

Thus when following to partner's lead, the play of your lowest card seldom tells partner where to shift, but merely that you have no interest in further leads of the same suit. The play of a high card should merely mean that you like the suit he is leading. The only exception is when you clearly do not want the suit led again.

One possible exception here occurs when your partner leads a king (almost surely, or surely) from ace-king against a suit contract. Dummy has a singleton and you play a very high card.

He should stop, think and decide if you can want a shift to the higher off suit or if you are just telling him to keep on and force dummy. On the other hand, the play of a low card merely asks him to pick the suit to shift to, if he wants to shift.

In discarding, you should almost never use a suit preference signal. A low card merely shows weakness — a high card shows strength.

Let's close with a sample hand.

SOUTH S-J 3, H-Q J 9 8 7 2, D-J 8, C-A Q 7.
WEST S-2, H-K 10, D-10 7 5 2, C-J 9 6 4 3 2.
NORTH S-8 4, H-A 6 4 3, D-A K Q 6 4, C-8 5.
EAST S-A K Q 10 9 7 6 5, H-5, D-9 3, C-K 10.

South dealer, the bidding proceeds.

SOUTH-Pass, WEST-Pass, NORTH-1 diamond, EAST-4 spades.

SOUTH-5 hearts, WEST-Pass, NORTH-Pass, EAST-Pass.

West leads the deuce of spades. East takes two spades. If he leads a third spade West is sure to get a trump trick.

The normal good partnership simply gets this third spade lead when West discards the deuce of clubs to ask partner not to lead that suit.

The way-out suit preference partnership may get it by a ten of diamonds discard by West, but maybe East will read that as a singleton and try to give West a diamond ruff.

Childress Home Factory May Soon Reopen Doors

CHILDRESS (Special) — Like the legendary phoenix bird of Egypt which rose from its ashes after a fire to be born again, the mobile home building plant of Lanchart Industries Inc. soon may be starting operations again.

The Childress facility, which covers a quarter-mile area, was destroyed by a Nov. 24, 1980, electrical fire and 125 workers were left without jobs.

But rebuilding of the plant already has started and recently, preliminary approval was given by the Department of Housing and Urban Development for a $600,000 loan to finance the rebuilding. And Keith Finley, general manager of Lancer Homes, said full production of mobile homes may be resumed by May 1.

In all, more than $2 million in funds will be forthcoming directly or indirectly to Lanchart Industries to rebuild its mobile home manufacturing plant, operated here as Lancer Homes.

From HUD, the federal government will provide a $600,000 loan through an Urban Development Action Grant. The money will go directly to the City of Childress and in turn be loaned at 8 percent annual interest to the company, with repayment over 20 years, said City Manager David Galligan.

Although technically only preliminary approval has been given to the federal loan, Galligan said the city is virtually certain now to receive the money. "From here on in it's a matter of getting the paper work done," the city manager said.

Mayor Walter Lockhoof said the city would receive $1.2 million — without having to go back to the federal government — in interest and principal over 20 years as a result of the federal loan if the money is used again for industrial development.

The mayor said he is optimistic the new plant will be even better than the old one. "They had 370 employees before the fire and hopefully in the next four years they'll add another 100 to it" with a work force at the plant nearing 500, he said.

The fire damage totaled about $8 million to building and contents, but did not damage a modular home building unit. That unit was expanded after the fire to allow construction of mobile homes.

In addition to the $600,000 loan, the company will receive proceeds in another loan from the sale of $1.4 million in industrial revenue bonds.

Under this program, a non-profit corporation was established by the city following the fire to issue the tax-exempt bonds with state cooperation. Corporation secretary Russell Jones said once the bonds are sold, which is expected in one to two months, the proceeds will be loaned to the company to help in rebuilding. Lockhoof said there will be 14 percent interest on this loan.

Also helping to rebuild the plant is $400,000 collected on insurance for the fire loss.

The rebuilding of the mobile home manufacturing plant may have averted a serious economic problem for Childress, city officials say, noting the plant was the city's largest industry and the loss of much of its function had an adverse effect on overall business in the community.

"My department store business dropped off 30 percent in the month of December," Lockhoof said. He said many other businesses also experienced slumps after the fire left many without jobs.

Cloud Seeding Opponents Gather To Plan Fight

A-J Correspondent
TULIA — Citizens for Natural Weather, nearly 100 of whom gathered here earlier this month to map plans for fighting cloud seeding and hail suppression efforts, will attend a public hearing on the issue March 11.

The hearing, set for 10 a.m. in the Plainview American Legion Hall, has been called by the Texas Department of Water Resources in response to an application for a weather modification permit requested by cloud seeding advocates.

At the anti-weather modification meeting here, which drew cloud seeding opponents from eight South Plains counties, principal speaker Oliver Newton said it is impossible to control all weather factors involved in the proposal.

Newton, who for 34 years was an agricultural meteorologist for the U.S. Department of Agriculture, stationed much of the time at Lubbock, reviewed the history of weather modification and said research to date has been limited and totally inconclusive.

He said hailstones could be reduced in size or dissipated, but the situation must be totally controlled as to time, place, amount of "seed" used, temperature and other important factors. He said it is impossible to discover and control all these factors and because of that, any error could result in achieving an undesirable result.

If by luck the desired effect is partially achieved, Newton said, large hailstones might be altered in size, but because the quantity of water is constant, the greater number of smaller stones could do more damage to crops than fewer large ones. Large stones do greater roof damage to a building but less damage to a crop because they usually are fewer in number, he said.

Newton added that if at some future time cloud seeding becomes scientific and predictable beyond dispute, the courts would be flooded with litigation because "one man's medicine would be another man's poison." Not every farmer wants rain at the same time, Newton said, adding one crop might be ready for harvest while a neighboring one might desperately need rain.

Citizens for Natural Weather contend any attempt to dissipate hail also will reduce rain, not only for the particular area seeded but also in areas "downstream."

They also argue the amount of moisture in a particular cloud is fixed and if rain is induced prematurely over a given area, crop land "downstream" in the path of the cloud would be robbed of a share of the rain.

WHAT'S UP?

A capsule view of tastes, interests and attitudes

The elephant lady returns Neo-Nazis are coming?

English actress Carole Shelley recently returned to the Broadway role for which she won a Tony, that of Mrs. Kendal in "The Elephant Man."

Carole Shelley

"I've been in New York 17 years now," Ms. Shelley says. "I didn't know what I was fighting against in England until I left the apathy and the slowness. I love the energy in the Big Apple. I could never live in Los Angeles. I love to work there, but when I'm finished, I'm ready for the red-eye special."

Has the role of Mrs. Kendal changed after a year's hiatus?

"She's softer and wiser now than she was in the beginning," the actress says. "I think it's probably a result of my own year of maturing... I'm trying to unclutter my work. I write KISS on my dressing room mirror. It stands for 'keep it simple, stupid.'"

"I get to the theater about two hours early. It's a sort of time-warp period when I begin to focus in on my character, on the smells of the theater, on the play... To be an actor, you must be a selfish person, self-aware, self-centered. Yet, on stage, you must be generous and ready to give."

Ms. Shelley frequently coaches young actors and believes the return to traditional theater training is a good thing.

"I wasn't born with this voice," she admits. "This is a manufactured voice I've worked on every day of my life. Students are becoming aware that even a semi-classical background will open up many more opportunities."

"It's sad that high schoolers don't really appreciate the difference between stage and television. They don't know the actors can hear them when they're talking. They haven't been given the opportunity to behave in a theater."

Andrew Kaplan has led the kind of life that many adventure novelists only write about.

Kaplan is one of the only three foreigners decorated by the Israeli army. He's a journalist versed in 12 languages, as well as an Olympic fencer and an accomplished sailor who has traveled widely in Africa and South America, where he lived with Indians along the Amazon. He helped found the University of the Negev Desert (now the Ben-Gurion University) and started his own computer consulting firm in Los Angeles. He has twice been offered a position with the CIA, been a prisoner in a Mexican jail, covered the Algerian War, written two plays and hosted a TV talk show in Oregon.

Asked about the resurgence of neo-Nazis (the subject of his recently published novel, "Hour of the Assassins"), he paints a negative picture: "People don't realize how wealthy and widespread their influence is. The future of Nazism in the United States depends on us. There's a lot of money behind them. Some of the things they say appeal to a far greater faction than will admit it. They advocate simple solutions accompanied by a lot of flag waving and media coverage.

"The violence in Europe now is coming to this country; it'll take a year or so. We've been lucky too long. They'll get great press coverage here. There's fertile soil for this kind of thing — bigotry, anti-semitism, political and/or economic instability, official or unofficial approval of violence (widespread crime, sending troops to international hot spots).

"This year will be worse. America is the world's last, best hope. Most of the world is in the grasp of savage, brutal and violent upheaval and it's going to get worse as natural resources get rarer.

"People must become aware that it doesn't have to be this way. Americans are the descendants of survivors. Decent people must realize they're being threatened."

BIRTHDAY ALMANAC

Compiled by the editors of The World Almanac Book of Who

March 1 — Ron Howard (1954-), the actor and director who appeared in the television series "The Andy Griffith Show" in the 1960s. He starred in the "Happy Days" TV series from 1974 through 1980.

March 2 — Sam Houston (1793-1863), the frontiersman, soldier and political leader who commanded the Texas revolutionary army and was the republic's first governor. He served for 14 years in the U.S. Senate after Texas joined the union.

March 3 — Emil von Behring (1844-1929), the German bacteriologist who discovered antitoxin serums against tetanus and diphtheria. He was awarded a 1901 Nobel Prize.

March 4 — Knute Rockne (1888-1931), the football coach at Notre Dame from 1918 to 1931. He revolutionized the game by developing the forward pass and stressing plays of speed and deception. His teams won 105 games, lost only 12 and tied 5.

March 5 — Rex Harrison (1908-), the British film and stage actor. His films include "Major Barbara," "Dr. Dolittle" and "My Fair Lady," for which he won an Oscar as best actor in 1964.

March 6 — Ed McMahon (1923-), the television announcer who is best known for his long association with Johnny Carson on the "Who Do You Trust" game show in the 1950s and on the "Tonight Show" since 1962.

March 7 — Lynn Swann (1952-), the wide receiver for the Pittsburgh Steelers since 1974. He was selected the most valuable player in the 1975 Super Bowl game.

Bus Transfer Point Project To Reduce Broadway Parking

By PAT GRAVES

Lubbock motorists stand to lose as many as a dozen parallel parking spaces on Broadway to the Citibus temporary transfer point, but city and county officials do not feel the reduction will cause a problem.

City Manager Larry Cunningham estimated five or six spaces on each side of Broadway between Avenue H and Texas Avenue will have to be eliminated to allow Citibuses access to passengers. The city also plans to erect two shelters on each side of Broadway adjacent to the federal building and the County Courthouse.

Cunningham said he anticipated no adverse effect on parking in the area and characterized the situation as nothing unusual.

"We don't like to inconvenience anyone to provide for a public need," he said, "but this always happens. It's a problem but the transfer point is temporary and off street parking is available."

The city manager termed the possible effects no greater than for any other business. County Judge Rod Shaw had no criticism of the decision, saying less parking would be available but that parking is never guaranteed anyway.

"There are times it's difficult to find a parking place (around the courthouse) but that's a problem anywhere," Shaw commented. "We have such small problems in Lubbock compared to other municipalities (e.g. New York City) we ought to be thankful we live in such a convenient place."

Shaw said when the new county jail is completed the temporary recreational facility for inmates just east of the courthouse on Avenue H will revert to county employee parking, along with another nearby lot. Cunningham emphasized the continued availability of on-and-off-street parking in the area.

Although all street parking is public and city-controlled, Shaw said he appreciated Cunningham's consultation with him on the matter. He said it was the county's responsibility to cooperate to improve the convenience of Citibus routes. Cunningham maintained many people using the federal building already ride the bus.

He said the present transfer point between Avenues J and K on Broadway will remain a bus stop but some of the space now being used by Citibuses might be returned to parking, unless that block becomes the permanent transfer point in the future.

The dilemma of finding a permanent site resulted in the decision to designate the block in front of the federal building as the temporary location. Transit Coordinator John Wilson said it represented a consensus compromise among the city council and transit staff and management.

Pending city staff authorization, which may include the taking of bids, Wilson said he is prepared to order two $2,100 glass and steel shelters from Transtec Manufacturing of Miami, Fla. The three-sided structures are five feet deep, 14 feet long and about seven or eight feet high, Wilson said, with a metal roof.

He estimated they could be delivered and erected within 60-90 days of his order. Cunningham said he did not know what funds would be used for the purchase. The process could begin as early as Monday.

Wilson said peak transfer point usage, which sometimes involves up to 100 passengers, is at 7:15 and 9:15 a.m. and at 2:30, 3:30, 4:30 and 5 p.m. The permanent transfer point is still under study by the transit board and staff.

SUSPICIOUS OF TURKEYS

If wild turkey did not immediately become the superstar of Thanksgiving, part of the reason may have been some Pilgrim's vague suspicion that eating the bird led to leprosy.

What's up in bathrooms?

AMHERST, Mass. (AP) — About 100 University of Massachusetts students rallied Friday to protest elimination of the sharing of dormitory bathrooms for men and women.

"This is a school where people are supposed to learn about each other and coed living is a part of it," Larry Wright, a 23-year-old junior from Weston, told demonstrators at a noon rally outside the student union building.

Researchers View Stroke Treatment

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) — The best weapon against strokes is vascular surgery, while aspirin is the least effective, a 10-year University of California study has concluded.

Researchers say the use of anticoagulants may worsen the patients' condition and may be only slightly more effective than aspirin in improving it.

The report issued Thursday by Dr. Eugene F. Bernstein, chief of vascular surgery at the UC San Diego School of Medicine, was based on the results of 456 endarterectomies performed since 1971.

As a surgical procedure, the endarterectomies usually were performed on the two carotid arteries in the neck which provide much of the brain's supply of blood. The surgeon splits the artery open and scrapes out fatty deposits blocking the bloodstream flow.

"This is a very controversial area," Bernstein said of stroke treatment. "Many physicians are very reluctant to recommend surgery in these cases."

"With aspirin, there's no risk, but there's always some risk with surgery," he said. "The question is whether to take that risk. Our study shows that, for selected patients, the risk is worth taking."

After comparing surgery and other therapies in people who had suffered mini-strokes known as transient ischemic attacks, the researchers said they found surgery reduced the stroke rate in 150 cases to 2 percent.

Aspirin, which has been the most common treatment for stroke-risk patients because of its help in preventing blood clotting, lowered a male's risk of having strokes by only 1 to 3 percent and had no effect at all on a female's risk of stroke, Bernstein said.

Anticoagulants may lower the risk of strokes, he said, but complications from bleeding were brought on by the drug, outweighing the benefits.

As soon as anticoagulants are discontinued, Bernstein said, the patient is thrown back into another high-risk period.

Stroke is the third-leading cause of death in the United States and leaves many survivors with permanent neurological damage.

Older Adults Chosen For Interviews

About 500 rural older adults living in Hale and Dickens counties will be randomly selected for interviews to determine the characteristics and needs of persons age 65 and older, according to Dr. Jean Pearson Scott of Texas Tech University.

Local county residents have been trained to administer the interviews, scheduled to begin in March.

Dr. Scott, an assistant professor in the department of home and family life in the College of Home Economics, received a research grant from the National Retired Teachers Association and American Association of Retired Persons Andrus Foundation and Texas Tech for the project.

Topics to be covered in the interviews include food habits, family relationships, consumer practices and housing characteristics.

"The diversity of characteristics among older rural adults needs to be given important consideration, especially in planning services and programs," Dr. Scott said. "Many studies are too out-dated to be useful in designing programs or guiding policies for the 80s."

Results of the study will provide up-to-date information for use by home economists, area service providers, researchers and other professionals working with the elderly, she said.

Hale County was chosen for the project because the estimated incomes of senior citizens there more closely match the national average income level for older adults, Dr. Scott explained. Dickens County was selected, she said, because an estimated 40 percent of that county's senior citizens have incomes below the poverty level and the isolation is greater, with an average of four persons per square mile. Information from both counties should provide a contrast and range in answers, she said.

Among the questions which interviewers will ask are such things as how often senior citizens shop, how far they live from a grocery store, whether they have transportation and the nutritional adequacy their diets.

Pakistani Doctors Announce Strike

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — A number of Pakistani hospitals began accepting only emergency cases Friday after a union of government doctors called an indefinite strike to protest the arrest of 21 members.

A senior physician at the Islamabad Polyclinic, the main hospital in the capital, confirmed that all members of the Pakistan Doctors' Organization — about 80 percent of the professional staff — had walked out.

"We can cope only for another day or so," said the doctor, who declined to be identified.

Dr. Farid Anwar, a union official, charged that four union officers were arrested when they tried to discuss pay grievances with the top martial law official in Rawalpindi Thursday night.

An emergency meeting Friday was broken up by riot police who detained another 17 doctors at Rawalpindi's Holy Family hospital, he said. Police officials at the hospital declined to speak to reporters.

INDIA MEETING
NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The Dalai Lama, self-exiled god-king of Chinese-ruled Tibet, on Friday met with Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi. A spokesman for the 45-year-old Tibetan leader described the meeting as "a courtesy call" and said "no specific issues were discussed."

Lawyer To Fly Accident Victim Home

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Attorney F. Lee Bailey, who heard about the case through a company he owns, plans to fly a young comatose man home to the Boston area this weekend so specialists can treat head injuries suffered in a traffic accident.

With the famous attorney at the controls of his own airplane and accompanied by a registered nurse and special life-support equipment, 20-year-old Robert J. Beale will be flown from nearby Melbourne to Boston's Logan International Airport, Bailey's spokesman said.

From there, he will be transferred to Massachusetts General Hospital for treatment by coma specialists.

"Lee is a neighbor of his (Beale's) Massachusetts parents, and his plane is adaptable to handle this project," said

Weatherization Program Ended

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Indiana's home weatherization program, the most successful in the nation, exhausted its annual allocation of money Friday and went out of business, becoming the first such program to end because of federal budget cuts.

Jean Merritt, state director of the Community Services Administration, said the U.S. Department of Energy informed her Wednesday that the state would receive no more funding for weatherization this year.

Wayne Smith, the attorney's business manager in Washington. "We have to put all the life-support systems into the airplane, so it isn't feasible to take a commercial flight."

Beale, a former high-school ice-hockey star from Cohasset, Mass., was struck by a car here Jan. 30, and has been in a coma ever since. Hospital spokesmen listed his condition as serious but stable. He is suffering head injuries, two broken legs and a dislocated right shoulder.

Described by friends as a "hard-working, physical kid," Beale came to Florida seeking work and had landed a job on a Cocoa Beach-based shrimp boat two days before the accident.

Friends in Massachusetts launched a "Bring Bobby Home" fund-raising drive, and students at his former high school were asked to help in a door-to-door drive to collect the more than $6,200 needed for an air ambulance flight.

Bailey, who lives in Marshfield, Mass., near Cohasset, heard about the fund drive after a friend of the Beale family asked Advocate Airways for assistance. Bailey owns the Plymouth, Mass., company and offered to make the flight free of charge.

Attractive Landscaping Requires Imagination, Not Space

CREATIVE LANDSCAPE — Creating attractive landscaping does not necessarily require a large amount of space. Dwarf plants, containerized trees and careful designing gives the small gardener a diversity of options.

Parents Of Recent Quintuplets Revealed

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The parents of quintuplets born Feb. 12 identified themselves publicly for the first time Friday.
Two of the babies born to David and Vivian Potter — Trisha and Allan — had died last week.
"We feel confident at this time that our remaining babies — Cheryl, Kenneth and Brian — will have the strength to continue and to survive," the couple said in a statement released by the University of Oregon Health Sciences Center.

"We asked to remain anonymous up to this point because we wanted to enjoy the experience of pregnancy, childbirth and the arrival of our babies without any outside pressures, just like any average couple," said Potter, who works for the U.S. Postal Service.
The three surviving quints remain in critical but stable condition in the hospital's neo-natal intensive care unit. Cheryl was taken off a respirator Thursday and was breathing on her own. The two boys still were on respirators.
The quints were born 12 weeks prematurely.

TRICK SHOOTER
EL DORADO, Ark. (AP) — An El Dorado police officer shot the gun out of the hand of a man who was threatening to commit suicide, managing to lodge the bullet between the hammer and the firing pin of the would-be suicide's gun. Officers spent 30 minutes trying to talk the man out of his suicide attempt.

To create an inviting landscape which you and your family can admire and enjoy does not require a two-acre estate, or even a half-acre plot. All it takes is a little imagination and, perhaps, some help from the Green Survival experts at the your local retail nursery or garden center.

With the housing trend turning to townhomes with postage-stamp yards, to condominiums and apartments with small balconies, the art of landscaping has become even more creative. Dwarf varieties designed patios and decks offer the small-space gardener a diversity of options for an attractive, livable landscape. Evergreens and flowering shrubs provide privacy screening to townhouse dwellers, ground covers allow for easy maintenance, and potted plants give sesonal color.

According to the American Association of Nurserymen, the same rules of landscaping apply to small spaces as large areas. The difference, of course, is in the size and scope of the plantings. You'll still want to harmonize colors, shapes and textures. But avoid the tendency to put a landscape designed for half-an-acre in your 20x30 foot backyard. With the help of your local nursery, select only the plantings which will enhance the space, not overwhelm it.

Balcony gardeners can take advantage of the nursery industry's latest technology in container plants. Small shade and flowering trees, dwarf fruit trees, evergreens, shrubs, even vegetables — all are prime candidates for container living.

Your nursery can advise you on the best varieties for your location. Hanging baskets of foliage and flowering plants add interest to your balcony garden and brighten your indoor landscape when temperatures turn cold.

When planning your outdoor living space, remember that an attractive landscape relies on quality, not quantity. Unleash your creativity on your small space garden. You may be surprised with the result!

LUNG SETTLEMENT
BLOOMINGTON, Ill. (AP) — A woman who claimed her husband's work-related illness cost her years of companionship as well as his sexual services has been awarded $500,000 by a Circuit Court jury. PSYCHOLOGY TODAY

Social Scientists Fear Research Funds Cuts

By the Editors of Psychology Today
 "If social science research, academic enterprise and all of those things were on the New York Stock Exchange, I would sell short right now. I would dump everything."

Shortly after Ronald Reagan's election last November, those were the gloomy thoughts of a university psychologist who is an expert in federal science policy. He was convinced that Reagan's passion for shrunken government would squeeze funding for social science research.

He may have been overreacting. Psychologists with more direct experience in government are expressing less hysteria, although they do worry that the new administration may direct federal funds toward research with immediate applications at the expense of research on basic issues that will pay off in the long run.

The stakes for psychology are high. In the past few years, according to the Public Committee on Mental Health, a full 88 percent of the several hundred million dollars spent on mental health research has come from the federal government. Though difficult to estimate precisely, the proportion of federal money spent on all other psychological research is probably nearly as high.

One reason for worry, as another psychologist notes, is that "it is bad news for social science when political figures attempt to cut waste, because they always define social science as waste. Many politicians think social scientists invented drug abuse, child abuse, abortion, poverty and juvenile delinquency, instead of just studying them. We are the harbingers of bad news who get executed."

Still, Clarence Martin, executive director and lobbyist for the Association for the Advancement of Psychology says that "psychology is in the mainstream of the American body politic and we're not going to get washed away."

An equally sanguine view is expressed by the psychologist Nicholas Cummings, who was president of the California State Psychological Association during Reagan's term as governor. Cummings asserts that "surprisingly, psychology flourished" during Reagan's tenure, with state encouragement for new ways of training and licensing psychologists.

Cummings was against a "knee-jerk reaction" to the new president. He claims it is now clear that "society is not ready to pick up a carte blanche tab on research," and that Reagan's rule will force psychologists to prove there is some payoff to their work. "That," he says, "is not necessarily bad. In fact, it's high time they did."

Taking a longer perspective is Robert Lowman, scientific affairs officer of the American Psychological Association. He is among those who worry about long-term consequences of decreased funding for basic research that does not have any instantly apparent payoff — research on motivation and learning, say, as opposed to more applied work on employee selection and productivity.

Lowman points out that the United States now has a "near monopoly" on Nobel prizes only because of massive federal funding for basic scientific research during the early 1960s. It can take 20 years for such achievements to be recognized and applied by the scientific community. Lowman says. Any over-emphasis on applied research could shut off the supply of findings on which future applications rest.

Birth Defect Research Views Link To Alcohol

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — A University of Iowa scientist has turned up experimental evidence that may help explain why some babies born to chronic alcoholic mothers are mentally retarded.

The research by James West, professor of anatomy at the University of Iowa college of medicine, dealt with rats, and West said the results may not apply directly to humans.

"But if I were a pregnant woman, I would not drink," he said. "We have demonstrated convincingly that alcohol alters the brain (cell) connections" in test animals.

West's study was published in Friday's issue of Science magazine and relates to a human birth defect called "fetal alcohol syndrome."

Fetal alcohol syndrome, a complex of symptoms that affects many infants born to alcoholic women, is the third most common type of birth defect of the central nervous system after Down's syndrome and spina bifida, both genetic disorders.

The syndrome is characterized by a variety of facial malformations — thin upper lip, flattened nose and small head — as well as varying degrees of mental retardation.

"It occurs once in every 750 births, and it's the only one (of the three) that's preventable," said West.

"The fetal alcohol syndrome was only defined in 1972, although it had been suspected for generations," he said. "Aristotle even wrote that mothers who drank had defective children."

"The (disrupted) facial features are a minor problem," said West. "The big problem is the brain."

In his study West fed pregnant rats liquid diets composed of 35 percent alcohol. He examined the offspring and found that their brain cells were connected abnormally when compared to a control group.

"In the hippocampus the timing of the brain's electric activity gets all fouled up," said West. The hippocampus is the area of the brain associated in humans with short-term memory, he said.

"In adults a memory loss might not be critical, but in an infant, that short-term loss can disrupt learning," he said.

"I'm not saying this change is the cause of mental retardation — we can't make that jump yet from rats to humans. But as I said, if I were a pregnant woman, I would not drink."

West and his colleagues, Asa Black Jr. and Cheryl Hodges, are currently studying other aspects of maternal alcohol consumption, including how much alcohol is harmful and if there is a time during gestation that the fetus is particularly susceptible to alcohol.

FOUNDER OF CANADA DISPUTED
 French explorer Jacques Cartier is generally regarded as the founder of Canada. But his exploration of the Gulf of St. Lawrence in 1534 followed by 37 years the sighting of Newfoundland in 1497 by English seaman John Cabot. Centuries prior to that, increasing evidence shows, Vikings had reached Canada's Atlantic coast and Newfoundland.

Genetic Link Possible Cause Of Cancer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A scientist theorizes that hidden within every cell of every human may be few normal genes that carry the seeds of cancer — seeds that will grow if the gene is somehow unleashed.

"The idea is that it's always the same set of genes that cause human cancers ... and we all have these genes," said Michael Bishop of the University of California at San Francisco.

He contends the cancer genes may be "the direct target of environmental carcinogens" — the substances such as cigarette smoke that induce certain cancers.

"I think that sometime in the next five years — maybe in the next one year — a molecular biologist is going to have in a test tube a piece of DNA (the material of heredity) that he knows to be such a gene."

Bishop said he and other researchers "may have stumbled on the same genes by studying tumor viruses" that cause cancers in chickens and other animals, but not man.

Bishop described his findings, and the theory he drew from them, Thursday at a privately sponsored conference on recombinant DNA technology.

Identifying the specific genes that apparently go awry and begin the cancer process should have major medical value, he said later in an interview. "If I didn't believe that, I wouldn't be here."

Bishop said it's too early to guess what that value might be. Treatments aren't likely to be as straightforward as just identifying the guilty genes and figuring out how to turn them off.

The cancer genes almost certainly play some normal, vital role, perhaps as regulators of cell growth or differentiation, so "if you turn them off, you may cure the cancer but turn off the rest of the body as well."

The presence of some cancer genes in humans, he said, is proven because a few

X-Rays Elimination

To Save Millions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is saving at least $4 million a year by eliminating routine chest X-rays for employees in 37 departments and agencies, Health Secretary Richard S. Schweiker reported Friday.

A report from the Food and Drug Administration's Bureau of Radiological Health said that at least 160,000 fewer X-rays were being performed at a savings of $25 each. Most of those screenings had been made as part of employees' annual examinations or before new employees were hired.

President Carter first ordered that routine X-rays be eliminated where possible in a directive on Feb. 1, 1978.

Some agencies still require periodic X-rays for high-risk employees such as those with a history of tuberculosis, those with cardio-pulmonary ailments and those in asbestos surveillance programs. The military services, law enforcement agencies and foreign service agencies also continue to require chest X-rays because of their special working conditions.

forms of cancer are obviously inherited.

Bishop said he's been studying tumor viruses of chickens for 12 years and has found that the cancer-causing viral genes are essentially identical to certain genes in normal living cells.

He said the genes — about a dozen have been identified and more may be found — seem to appear in similar forms in all vertebrate animals, including man.

This conclusion led to his theory that the genes must have an important normal function and that sometime in the evolutionary past they were stolen from some species "through an act of piracy" by viruses.

Now when the normally harmless virus invades a cell of that species, the normally harmless gene it carries produces cancer. No such cancer viruses have ever been confirmed for humans, despite a decades-long search.

The theory suggests that the normal cellular genes perform their functions safely as long as they are regulated by the cell. When that fine tuning is somehow lost, the cancer genes work out of control and transform a normal cell into the wildly reproducing cancer cell.

Bishop said researchers have used genetic engineering to extract the alleged cancer genes from various animal cells. When returned to normal cells, as part of a virus or through gene-splicing, the genes induce cancer.

The next step, he said, is to prove the theory in human cells and identify the guilty genes. Some researchers already are testing human tumors for evidence that the suspected genes are abnormally active in cancer cells.

"Your Tree...Our Treasure"

Beginning Of Spring Three Weeks Away

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spring, that always welcome time of flowers and growing warmth, arrives March 20.

The U.S. Naval Observatory reports that the change of seasons will arrive officially at 12:03 p.m. EST. For people living in the Southern hemisphere, it marks the beginning of autumn.

For skywatchers, Leo is the prime constellation in March.

Experts at the observatory report that the Lion can be identified by two bright stars, Denebola and Regulus.

If you face southeast and look directly overhead between 8 p.m. and 10 p.m., local time, Regulus will be to your right and Denebola to the left.

Jupiter and Saturn remain quite close together, rising just before sunset and setting about sunrise.

Mercury, Venus and Mars are too close to the sun for observation.

The Moon will be closest to Earth on March 8, 225,278 miles, and farthest away on the 24th, 251,999 miles.

Agency Provides Talking Books To Blind

By LOUISE COOK
Thousands of Americans who are unable to see well enough to read conventional books and magazines get a regular information lifeline from a federal agency celebrating its 50th anniversary this year.

The "lifeline" is provided by the Library of Congress through a network of 160 regional libraries which distributes special copies of reading material to the blind and visually handicapped.

The agency's Braille and Talking Book Program was established March 3, 1931. It now provides information in a variety of forms to an estimated 350,000 people.

People who have a vision problem can contact the Library of Congress or one of the local libraries in the system. They receive, through the mail, not only the reading materials — in Braille, on flexible discs or on tape cassettes — but also the equipment needed to use them. Every other month, subscribers get a list of new titles, along with a special order form. There is no charge.

Martha Robinson, a spokesman for the Library of Congress, said the program includes about 22,000 titles. There are thousands of books — including most best-sellers; about 50 magazines — from Playboy to National Geographic; and public service material — ranging from income tax information to sports schedules.

Mrs. Robinson said there are several ways eligible people can find out more about the system. Local libraries should be able to provide information. If they can't, check the telephone book. The program should be listed under "library." Details also are available from the Library of Congress itself. Write National Library Service for the Blind and Physically Handicapped, Library of Congress, Washington, D.C., 20542, or call, toll-free, 800-424-9100.

One of the latest additions to the system comes from the U.S. Customs Service which has issued a special tape to provide the blind and handicapped with basic information about regulations governing travel overseas. Copies of the tape and a Braille pamphlet are available from the Library of Congress system or from the International Travel Staff, Room 6316, U.S. Customs Service, Washington, D.C., 20229.

Among the suggestions, which apply to people who can see as well as to those who have a vision problem, are:

•If you plan to take foreign-made items like tape recorders or cameras overseas, register them with the nearest U.S. Customs office before you go. Otherwise, you may be asked to pay duty on them when you return. If you cannot get to the Customs office, take a copy of the original sales receipt so you can prove you bought the item in the United States.

•Make sure all drugs and medicines are clearly labeled. If any of your drugs contain a narcotic, bring a copy of your prescription or a statement from your doctor saying the medicine is necessary.

•Learn about Customs regulations before you leave home. As a general rule, U.S. residents returning from a foreign country can bring back $300 worth of merchandise, duty-free, per person. That works out to $600 per couple or $1,200 for a family of four. Items purchased in duty-free shops abroad must be included in the total; the "duty-free" applies to the country where the store is located — not to the United States. If your purchases add up to less than the maximum, you can make what is known as an oral declaration. You do not have to list each item separately on the customs form you will get on your return flight.

There are some conditions attached to the $300 duty-free limit, however. You must stay out of the country for 48 hours. And you can use the duty-free exemption only once every 30 days. If you do not meet these conditions, your duty-free maximum drops to $25.

A special packet of information for people planning an overseas trip is available from U.S. Customs, P.O. Box 7118, Washington, D.C., 20044. Ask for the "Travel Pack."

Deposits Outweigh Withdrawals

WASHINGTON (AP) — American savers deposited about $550 million more than they withdrew from savings and loan institutions in January, the smallest net-deposit volume for that month since 1970, the government reported Friday.

The report by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board said the drop was at least partly due to heavy activity in six-month money market certificates in December.

That activity, designed to take advantage of near-record interest rates in December, "had the effect of overstating deposit flows in December and understating the January experience," the report said.

"The poor January deposit flow occurred despite a significant inflow of funds to associations last month" because of new nationwide authorization of interest-bearing checking accounts, the board said.

Meanwhile, mortgage loans closed by the federally insured S&Ls totaled about $4 billion in January, slightly less than a year earlier, the report said.

Commitments for future mortgages also added up to about $4 billion, about 7 percent below the level of January 1980, it said.

PROPOSED AMENDMENTS
Of the proposed amendments clarifying individual's and state's rights in the Constitution and originally submitted to the states by the First Congress in 1789, two were not approved. These related to the apportionment of representatives to Congress and compensation of members. The 10 amendments that were adopted are known as the Bill of Rights.

Truffaut Ruins Film With Promising Plot

NEW RELEASE

LAST METRO, THE (PG) — Catherine Deneuve, Heinz Bennent. (Drama) Paris, World War II. The Nazis occupy the city and we watch as a theater tries to stay open. The theater's guiding spirit, a Jew, is hidden by his wife, the company's star, in the basement. And the show must go on. A promising plot, but director and co-writer Francois Truffaut lets it fall apart totally, with a preposterous love affair contributing mightily to the downfall. GRADE: C

GENERAL RELEASE

BREAKER MORANT (PG) — Edward Woodward, Jack Thompson. (Drama) Filmed in Australia, this is the story of three Australian carabineers in the Boer War who are tried by a British military court for murdering seven Boers and a German missionary. A taut film adaptation of a play which explores man's heart as well as an empire's psyche. Brilliantly acted, it truly excites, in the best meaning of the word. GRADE: A

DOGS OF WAR, THE (R) — Christopher Walken, Colla Blakely. (Action adventure) A first-rate version of Frederick Forsyth's thriller about the mercenaries who try to take over a corrupt Idi Amin-like African country. Great action sequences and some fine touches of the bizarre, but it's all marred by the fact that Walken, a fine actor, is much too young to play the supposedly veteran mercenary who commands the operation. GRADE: B

FORT APACHE, THE BRONX (R) — Paul Newman, Ken Wahl, Edward Asner. (Police Drama) This is certainly one of the finest about New York's finest, or any police force for that matter based on truth, it is a look at the workings of the police in a Bronx precinct so wild it's nicknamed Fort Apache. And one cop — Newman — is faced with a terrible decision. This is first-rate filmmaking all the way. GRADE: A

IDOLMAKER, THE (PG) — Ray Sharkey, Peter Gallagher, Paul Land, Toivah Feldshun. (Drama with music) Loosely based on the career of Bob Marcucci, who created Frankie Avalon and Fabian, this is the story of ambition — how a man found and forged two kids into teen-age singing idols in the '50s and '60s. Overlong, but often very strong. A great vehicle for Sharkey and Gallagher, two coming stars. GRADE: B

INCREDIBLE SHRINKING WOMAN, THE (PG) — Lily Tomlin, Charles Grodin, Ned Beatty. (Comedy) The old sci-fi favorite has been modernized, humorized and feminized for Lily, and the result shines. She's a nice, typical housewife whose body reacts adversely to today's chemical additives, and she begins shrinking. Some very funny moments, but the script is weak and so this is little more than a series of skits strung together. GRADE: B-minus

MELVIN AND HOWARD (PG) — Paul LeMat, Mary Steenburgen, Jason Robards. (Drama) The improbable, perhaps even impossible, but maybe true story of the together, and what the "Mormon will" meant to poor Melvin and his family. It's more about Melvin's life before the will, however, and that pretty dreary, although touching. The whole thing is strangely touching, and very well done. GRADE: B-plus

POPEYE (PG) — Robin Williams, Shelley Duvall, Paul L. Smith, Paul Dooley. (Comedy with music) The comic strip hero is reborn, in a stylized version by Robert Altman that grows on you. The film's story is the weakest, but the acting (especially Shelley Duvall as Olive Oyl) is fine, the effects are fun and the music fits neatly. It's a pleasant romp. GRADE: B

RAGING BULL (R) — Robert DeNiro. (Drama) This is a film by Martin Scorsese that depicts the rise and fall of prize fighter Jake LaMotta. It is powerful, but always very self-conscious of its artistry; you never for a moment forget you are watching a movie (and a performance by DeNiro) that is designed to be arty. Thus, it loses its punch. It is bloody and raucous, but never for a moment real. GRADE: B

SPHINX (PG) — Lesley-Anne Down, Frank Langella. (Drama) In her search for the well-concealed tomb of an ancient pharaoh, a beautiful young Egyptologist (Down) runs afoul of black marketeers dealing in antiquities, and falls in love with a mysterious Egyptian official (Langella) who may not be what he seems. The narrative line is undecipherable and cliché-ridden, and the love story is strictly no-sparks. Though filmed on location in Egypt, it's all pretty forgettable. GRADE: C-minus

(Film grading: A — superb, B — good, C — average, D — poor, F — awful)

Historic Drive-In To Close

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Skillful carhops will no longer dash between celebrity limousines and Volkswagens carrying trays of Dolores burgers, Suzy-Q fries and homemade pies at Dolores, one of the last authentic drive-ins in Southern California.

On Monday, the drive-in, straight out of "American Graffiti," closes its doors, a victim of urban renewal.

A Superior Court judge had ordered the restaurant to close to make way for new development.

"We'll appeal the decision, of course," said owner Dean Williams after the judge refused to stay the order Friday. "But if we're not out by Tuesday we'll be in contempt of court and I don't need those kinds of troubles right now."

The drive-in has been a favorite with celebrities, who especially enjoyed the anonymity afforded them as they munched Dolores burgers in their cars.

Newly constructed steel and high-rise buildings now line Wilshire Boulevard and another old and famous Wilshire restaurant, the Brown Derby, had been similarly scheduled for destruction earlier this year to make way for new development.

That landmark was saved from the wrecker's ball by the efforts of historians but it will be moved to another site off Wilshire.

There was a faint glimmer of hope Dolores might be saved through the efforts of such celebrity patrons as Sally Struthers, Ricardo Montalban, Shelley Winters and Chuck Barris.

They are members of The Dolores Foundation, which along with the American Institute of Architects is trying to convince site owner Don Levin he could incorporate the restaurant into the building that is to be constructed on the site.

"They have come up with sketches. But, regardless, we'll have to vacate Monday," Williams said. "After that, who knows?"

Los Angeles' first Dolores restaurant (it was named after the daughter of founders Ralph and Amanda Stevens) opened on Sunset Boulevard in 1945 and a year later moved to its present site on Wilshire Boulevard. Levin bought the site a year ago.

Williams has not yet been able to collect enough signatures to get the drive-in designated as an official "landmark historic site," although his petition glitters with the signatures of numerous film and TV stars.

"The case was decided strictly on the basis of tenant-landlord relations," said Williams. "Nostalgia wasn't considered."

Rockefeller Speech Marred By Protests

BOSTON (AP) — A speech by Chase Manhattan Bank Chairman David Rockefeller was interrupted Friday by protesters who screamed "murderer," threw an egg at the banker and dumped garbage on the stage.

Several demonstrators shouting "Rockefeller, murderer" were dragged from a balcony over the stage at the Boston Park Plaza Hotel.

MICHAEL MURPHEY TO PERFORM — Progressive country singer Michael Murphey will headline a concert to-night at the Pike Fest at the Civic Center exhibition hall. Murphey has spent the past year negotiating a record deal with EMI Records and wrapping up a movie based on his song. The movie, co-written by Murphey and due to open in mid-March in Lubbock, is titled "Hard Country." A full interview with Murphey will be printed in the Avalanche-Journal closer to the film's release date. Tickets for Murphey's concert tonight will be sold at the door. (Staff Photo by Milton Adams.)

Money Hearing Underway

WACO (AP) — The "Alice Rich Kids," who attracted national attention four years ago when they were found with more than $400,000 in their car, should be denied the money because they dug it up on a ranch illegally, a state official told a federal jury Friday.

Assistant Attorney General David Bragg told the U.S. District Court jury that the money does not legally belong to Percy Garcia, 20, and James D. Bridges, 19.

Bragg — representing one of four government entities which has laid claim to the money — said Bridges decided to dig up the $481,816, buried in a quail pen on his father's ranch, after a father-son spat over smoking.

Carter Meets With Publishers

ATLANTA (AP) — Former President Jimmy Carter was in Atlanta Friday to meet with publishers interested in his memoirs and possibly a book about the Middle East peace accords.

Carter took an overnight hunting trip with friends to north Georgia Thursday and had a meeting scheduled with the publishers Friday in his office at the Richard B. Russell federal building in Atlanta.

The Atlanta Journal on Friday quoted New York book agents as saying books by Carter and his wife, Rosalynn, could net the former first family between $1 million and $2 million in publishing rights alone.

On Saturday, Carter will join his wife in Calhoun to attend the wedding of Lucy Langford, daughter of former state Sen. Beverly Langford. Langford also is the father of Judy Carter, the Carters' daughter-in-law.

Unusual Costumes Featured

GREENSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Kristen Booser, dressed as a bunch of grapes and bearing a half-empty bottle of wine, won this year's best-costume event at the Miss Pennsylvania-USA contest.

"This was full when I came, but I was a little nervous," the 20-year-old Erie resident joked after claiming her title in Thursday night's event.

Miss Booser wore a wine-colored leotard and stockings with an overlay of large grapes, made of cloth-covered plastic balls on strings.

Second prize went to Glenda Warheit, Miss Host City, who appeared as a tooth fairy. The 23-year-old dental office employee wore a mauve and pink costume with a handkerchief hemline topped by a halo of flowers and outfitted with wings.

Cheryl Antoniak, Miss Jeannette, dressed as a champagne glass, was the third-place winner. She wore a tightly fitted silver lame gown tied at the ankles and topped with a plastic cup holding balloon bubbles.

Miss Dauphin County, Stephanie Simpson of Harrisburg, dressed as a baked potato with white stuffing bulging out and a pat of butter on her stomach, was the fourth-place winner.

The 109 contestants at the four-day pageant are competing for the title of Miss Pennsylvania-USA. The winner will be crowned Saturday night and go on to the Miss USA Pageant, which will be held in Mississippi on May 22.

Nun Teaches Gambling In Class

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — It takes more than Godspeed and a few Hail Marys to beat an odds-wise pit boss, and Sister Madeleine Rose Ashton has what it takes.

Sister Madeleine Rose — or "Mad Rose," as her math students call her — is well-acquainted with casino odds, and is known in the Bay area for her lecture entitled: "How To Gamble... If You Must."

The Holy Names College instructor, who last year celebrated her 50th year as a sister of the Holy Names, said Friday that odds-making grew out of her work in probability.

"This (lecturing) is just something I do, because part of the philosophy of the college is that we should go out and share our resources with the community," said Sister Madeleine Rose, a former president of the co-educational liberal arts school.

She said her lectures began when she sat beside a police chief at a service club luncheon and the subject of gambling came up.

"About three weeks later, the chief called and asked if I'd speak to his Kiwanis club because they were going to Reno," she said. "I spoke to them and then they offered to pay my way if I'd go with them." She turned the offer down.

Hydraulic Jack Service Faulty

The Better Business Bureau of Lubbock has warned all businesses using hydraulic jacks to be on the lookout for the Hydraulic Jack Service of Odessa.

Several local car dealers have reported faulty workmanship done on their jacks, according to the Better Business Bureau. The company services jacks at the customer's location. The owner of the Odessa business gives a false address and phone number.

The BBB asks that any business contacted by the jack service to notify the BBB immediately. The Bureau also warned local businessmen to look out for two stolen money orders from Ham's Food Mart of Lubbock. The orders, 0564394800 and 0563830799, are in the amount of $275 each. Anyone spotting the money orders should contact the Lubbock Police Department.

Award Comes As Surprise

BURNS FLAT, Okla. (AP) — It took 10 or so undistinguished years in the music business before Chris Price had something this grand to celebrate: his share of a Grammy Award.

The 28-year-old Price, who lives in this small, western Oklahoma community, was congratulated all day Thursday after the song, "That Lovin' You Feelin' Again," won a Grammy. He wrote the song with singer Roy Orbison.

Orbison and singer Emmylou Harris won the award, for best country performance by a duo or vocal group, with the vocals for the song.

For Price, winning recognition for a Grammy came after years of playing Oklahoma clubs and touring as a backup musician with Orbison.

"I'm in shock," Price said Thursday. "Maybe in a week or so I'll wake up and say, 'Hey, I won a Grammy.'"

The song was written about two years ago, but finishing touches weren't completed until last March, when Orbison was asked to write a song for the movie, "Roadie."

Price met Orbison at a Nashville recording studio about five years ago, he said.

Mondale Elected To Board

NEW YORK (AP) — Columbia Pictures Industries Inc. has announced that former Vice President Walter F. Mondale has been elected to a position on the corporation's board of directors.

In a statement released Thursday, Leo Jaffe, chairman of the board at Columbia, said Mondale's "knowledge in a diverse range of political, economic and social fields and his international experience will aid us greatly as Columbia confronts a changing and demanding future."

The appointment of Mondale, 53, becomes effective March 15.

In accepting the position, Mondale said he was pleased to "become involved in a business which provides such superb entertainment to people all over the world."

"I recognize the special challenges facing Columbia as it begins to deal with the technological revolution occurring in the communications field. These developments have a strong public policy dimension where I hope my experience in government will be helpful."

After leaving his government position earlier this year, Mondale joined the Chicago-based law firm, Winston & Strawn. He is also a board member of the Control Data Corp. and is a distinguished fellow at the University of Minnesota's Hubert H. Humphrey Institute of Public Affairs and Law School.

Artichokes Battle Arabs

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — When Richard Baillie accepted $29,817 from the federal Department of Energy to determine if methane could be produced from Jerusalem artichokes, he figured he'd be spending most of his time in the field and laboratory.

But his research carried him into the kitchen, as well. Baillie, a chemical engineering professor at West Virginia University, says he has found that the Jerusalem artichoke would be a more reliable source of methane than now popular feed grains like corn.

"They can grow on marginal land, and with three to five times the yield per acre in comparison to corn. They require no cultivation, no fertilization and they're drought resistant," he says.

The rate the artichokes convert to methane is probably three times as fast as with other materials, Baillie says.

But during his preliminary research, Baillie also learned the food value of the artichokes.

Inventor Plans To Search For Lost Titanic

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP) — Fred Koehler, a Coral Gables inventor, says he plans to challenge a Texas oil man in a summer race to find the 69-year-old wreck of the luxury liner Titanic.

Last year, Jack Grimm of Abilene, Texas, financed a scientific expedition in the North Atlantic to search for the Titanic and believes his group saw the ship on its sonar screen.

Grimm plans to head another mission this summer and return with photographs.

Grimm also wants to get remote equipment aboard the ship and reach a cache of jewels, estimated to be worth $17 million, said to be locked in the safe of the ill-fated ship when it hit an iceberg April 12, 1912 and sank with 1,490 people aboard.

Koehler, who sold his electronics shop to finance his expedition, also wants those jewels.

"I'm going to beat out Jack Grimm," Koehler said. "His equipment is obsolete. I'm going to get to the Titanic first, and I'm going to bring back the diamonds."

Grimm, whose expedition set out from Fort Lauderdale last year but will be based in Boston this year, told The Miami News he isn't too worried about finishing second.

"I think the chances of anybody doing that are very slim. But let him try. It's in international waters. It's anybody's ocean. I don't envision a sea battle over it," Grimm said.

Koehler says he is building a submarine he's been working on for two years. He claims it can take two men to a depth of 15,000 feet. He will test the 14 1/2-by-7-foot sub off Bimini in the Bahamas in late April.

"I wish him luck," Grimm said. "That's a good way to get planted down there with 1,500 other people. I think."

Grimm has in the past financed scientific searches for the fabled Loch Ness Monster, the abominable snowman and Noah's Ark. He spent $1 million on his last Titanic expedition.

Aggie Engineers Study Ways To Deal With Sunspot Effects

COLLEGE STATION (UPI) — Engineers at Texas A&M University at looking for ways to lessen the disruptive influence of solar explosions.

The charged particles and magnetic field blasted off in sunspots — which some describe as "clouds of yuck" — Already have resulted in power line overloads that exploded a transformer and tripped safety relays and circuit breakers nationwide.

The Electric Power Institute has been working under a $450,000 grant to identify and characterize the magnetic interference. The interference under study can come from power equipment itself, sunspots and nuclear explosions.

"We use the same equipment employed by the Air Force at Kirtland (N.M.) Air Force Base for nuclear blast studies," said Dr. Don Russell, power protective systems specialist and director of the Electric Power Institute in Texas A&M's Electrical Engineering Department and Texas Engineering Experiment Station.

But where the military studies electromagnetic pulses around missiles and aircraft, the electrical engineers set up equipment near power lines, transformers, substations and switching yards.

Explosions on the sun's surface are causing increased havoc on Earth by interrupting power distribution systems, reports an electrical engineer who says utilities are now wary of the power of sunspots.

"The whole power system is not going to just fall apart," said Dr. Don Russell. "But power distribution systems in the United States are not meant to withstand widespread disturbances such as solar activity or, say, nuclear blasts which are scaled-down versions of solar flares."

Astronomers say the chance of solar flares blowing material at the earth is now at its highest probability, due to the current solar sunspot maximum.

The material is spewed out as huge clouds of charged particles and a magnetic field generated by the sun. If the earth is in the way, the atmosphere first gets flooded with X-rays that cause radio blackouts, make navigation satellite signals unreliable and add ghosts to radar images.

Within two hours after the X-ray, high-speed protons and electrons blown from the sun's corona reach the Earth and are captured by its magnetic field. It results in long-term communication blackouts and radiation hazards to air travelers crossing the poles.

Then the main blob of particles and magnetic field roars past, rattling the Earth's magnetic field with intense electrical currents.

The barrage produces aurora — shimmering, flickering curtains of light usually seen over the Earth's poles. At sunspot maximum, aurorae can be seen farther south. At the surface, the Earth's magnetic field fluctuates, confusing homing pigeons and inducing electrical surges in power and telephone lines and the ground itself.

The electromagnetic interference coincides with the sunspot cycle maximum that supposedly occurs at 11-year inter-

The poet Percy Bysshe Shelley was born in 1792.

It actually varies seven to 17 years from peak to peak.

"The implication for power systems' sensitivity to sunspots is that as new control technology predominates our system, we can expect a greater sensitivity to these previously ignored phenomena," Russell said.

"Utility companies are spending research dollars now to learn how sensitive the systems are and how to devise protective measures."

Raiders Host Tough Hogs

By CHUCK McDONALD
Assistant Sports Editor

The last 10 meetings between Texas Tech and Arkansas have run the gamut. There have been nip-and-tuck thrillers — take last season's 71-69 overtime Arkansas win in which Mike Young tossed in the game-winning bucket from somewhere in the Municipal Coliseum parking lot — and then there have also been blow-outs. Consider, for instance, this season's 60-35 debacle when the Hogs laid it on the Raiders up in the hills.

But a common thread has run through these last 10 basketball games between Tech and Arkansas. The Razorbacks, you see, have won them all. Every single one.

Yes, the Hogs have dominated the Raiders over the last four and a half seasons like nobody else in the Southwest Conference.

Tonight, these two bitter rivals will get together once more in the regular-season finale for both squads at 7:30 p.m. in the Coliseum. Arkansas, after starting the SWC season with a 2-3 record, has reeled off 10 straight wins, while Tech is 8-7 (14-11 overall) and looking for its first win over the Hogs since 1976.

But it could be worse — the Hogs could be mad, too.

Instead, the Razorbacks should be feeling pretty good about themselves. Their 12-3 league mark has already assured them of an outright SWC title — the school's fourth in the last five years — and a berth into the finals of the post-season tournament.

Opposing Coahoma will be the Abernathy Lady Antelopes, winners of the only real rout of the day. Abernathy, which never trailed in the game, ran away with an 84-31 victory over Comanche and will face Coahoma in today's finals.

Forsan could only score three points but Sanford-Fritch opened the first 2A semifinal game with a scoring drought that lasted the first 5 1/2 minutes. The Buffalo Queens led 11-6 after one quarter, but saw their lead vanish by half time as Sanford-Fritch led 28-21. Leading the Forsan comeback was a balanced scoring attack which saw no one score in double figures, just the way it was all season as Arkansas' current 21-6 record marks the school's fifth straight 20-win season and gives coach Eddie Sutton an unprecedented 89-21 SWC record in the last seven years. The Hogs, unquestionably, were the class of the league during this stranger-than-fiction season.

The Raiders, on the other hand, are assured of a fourth-place finish and in all likelihood will host SMU on Monday. Only a combination of: a) a Tech win over Arkansas, b) a Texas decision over Rice and c) a TCU upset of Baylor would affect the Tech situation — giving the Raiders third place and a bye into the tournament.

"I don't put any stock in all that happening," said Tech coach Gerald Myers. "We're preparing ourselves for a game Monday."

But Myers also shushes the wishful thinkers who claim Arkansas, with a league title already wrapped up, will have little to play for.

"I think Arkansas will have a lot of incentive," he explained. "They are the conference champions and they're ranked in the (Top 20 AP and UPI) polls."

"But since this game itself will have no bearing on the (SWC) standings, the pressure is off for both teams. But both teams are going to want to do well. I know it'll give us some confidence if we can do well."

When Arkansas sent the Raiders scampering back to Lubbock after that 60-35 spanking (on television, no less), it was the Raiders' fifth straight setback and dropped Tech to a 3-5 conference mark.

Ironically, it also marked the beginning of a turnaround that has seen the Raiders go 5-2 in the second half of league play.

"We're playing a very good basketball team," Myers cautions nonetheless. "I don't think there's going to be any carryover effect from that last game. After that game our guys kind of turned it around and we've become more consistent."

But the Hogs give the Raiders a unique problem in that Arkansas' pressing man-for-man defense is the only one Tech has seen in SWC play. Everybody else has thrown a zone at the Raiders.

"For us to play with Arkansas, we're going to have to play good on offense and defense," noted Myers. "Their defense just destroyed our offense last time."

"We had 22 turnovers," he said, shaking his head, "and they scored a bunch of breakaway baskets. We can't give them cheap points like that."

Two Hogs that worry Myers most are 6-10 junior post Scott Hastings and 6-2 senior guard U.S. Reed, who average 16.6 and 13.0 points per game, respectively.

"We have got to try and contain Scott Hastings," said Myers. "but it seems like he's always had great games against us. He's been the most consistent big man in the conference for the last two years."

"And Reed's another one who's really hurt us. We'd like to contain those two to their averages but I don't know if we can do it. We never have before."

At forward the Hogs will open with a pair of 6-6 juniors, Keith Peterson and Tony Brown. Peterson hasn't started for the entire season but he poured in 24 in the Razorbacks recent win over Houston. Senior Young, another who has been an off starter this year, will open with Reed in the backcourt.

Actually, the team's third-leading scorer is 6-4 sophomore Darrell Walker, averaging 10.6 a game. In Fayetteville.

New Deal, Abernathy Post Wins

By RICHARD DAY
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Coaches Ron Taylor of Forsan, Jan Whisenhunt of New Deal, Billy Gordon of Coahoma and Larry Steele of Abernathy got just what they wanted Friday — a victory in their girls' regional basketball openers.

But they all got their wins in drastically different ways.

The Forsan Buffalo Queens opened the Region 1 2A Tournament with a 48-41 victory over Sanford-Fritch to earn a berth in today's finals against New Deal at the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum at 10:30 a.m. It was a see-saw battle.

Next on the court were the New Deal Lions, who reached last year's finals here before losing to eventual state finalist Panhandle by two points. The Lions easily handled Winters, winning 52-43, but lost star forward Melissa Mayo. She went down with a severely sprained ankle late in the game. It is doubtful that she will see action in today's finale.

Opening the Class 3A regional tourney were Coahoma and Dummitt. No more than six points ever separated the two teams, but Coahoma came out the victor 46-45 for a chance to go on to state. The Region 1 3A championship game will tip off today at noon.

Opposing Coahoma will be the Abernathy Lady Antelopes, winners of the only real rout of the day. Abernathy, which never trailed in the game, ran away with an 84-31 victory over Comanche and will face Coahoma in today's finals.

Forsan could only score three points but Sanford-Fritch opened the first 2A semifinal game with a scoring drought that lasted the first 5 1/2 minutes. The Buffalo Queens led 11-6 after one quarter, but saw their lead vanish by half time as Sanford-Fritch led 28-21. Leading the Forsan comeback was a balanced scoring attack which saw no one score in double figures, just the way it was all season as the Eaglettes went 28-1.

Melanie McCoy led Sanford-Fritch with nine points, while teammates Lori Barnes, Tracey Tryon and Leisa Durr added eight apiece.

For Forsan, which ran its record to 26-3 with the win, Christy Adams overcame stomach cramps to score a game-high 22 points and put on an inspiring performance.

The Buffalo Queens outscored the Eaglettes 6-3 in the third period and rallied for 21 points in the final quarter to win by seven.

"I thought experience really helped us," said coach Taylor, who saw his team fall to New Deal in last year's regional tourney. "It was a sloppy game with a lot of turnovers, but when you get this far you have to have them — the defenses are so good."

But Forsan's was the stronger defense as it held the Eaglettes to 10 points in the final quarter. And they did it without fouling. Forsan was called for only five fouls in the game and the Eaglettes shot only one free throw.

New Deal fell behind early against a short, quick Winters squad, but after Miss Mayo hit an inside jumper off a feed from Vickie Teal to give the Lions an 8-6 advantage, it was all New Deal.

Though Miss Teal was the game's leading scorer with 25 points, it was Miss

Bean Ties Watson For PGA Lead

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Andy Bean birdied all the par-3 holes on the way to a record-setting, 9-under-par 62 and tied Tom Watson for the lead Friday in the second round of the $300,000 Bay Hill Golf Classic.

"Any time you put four twos on your scorecard, you ought to shoot in the low 60s," said the powerful, 6-foot-4 Bean, who Watson calls "the birdie machine."

"It's one of the best rounds I've ever played; one of my best chances to shoot in the 50s," Bean said. He hit every green in regulation figures and didn't even come close to making a bogey.

And it could have been even better. He missed two potential birdie putts from about 3-4 feet.

His effort, in warm, hazy weather without a hint of the breezes that often make Florida courses difficult, set a record for the 7,102-yard Bay Hill Club layout and equaled the low score of the year on the PGA Tour. His 36-hole total of 130, 12 under par, also tied the low two-round total for the season and left all but Watson straggling all but out of reach in his wake.

Watson, the first-round leader and golf's outstanding performer over the past four years, salvaged a share of the top spot with a magnificent effort on the last hole.

"I turned a seven into a five. It was a heckuva bogey," Watson said. He was 6-under par for the day before hitting his tee shot out of bounds on the 18th and when he came up lying four in the fringe, his lead seemed certain to disappear. But Watson using a putter from off the green, rolled in a wide-breaking putt of some 45 feet. "It broke about 12 feet," he said.

It saved a bogey and finished off a 66.

It was the second time in the round the current British Open champion had holed from off the putting surface. Watson chipped in from about 90 feet for birdie on the second hole.

"I was staring bogey in the face on No 2 and made birdie. I was staring a seven in the face on the 18th and made bogey. That's a four-shot swing," Watson said.

Those two big recoveries and Bean's scoring heroics put the co-leaders almost out of sight of the rest of the field.

Don Pooley, with a career-best 63, and Mark O'Meara were the closest at 135, five strokes back. O'Meara had a second-round 68.

Curtis Strange, Tom Purtzer, Charles Coody and Rod Nuckolls were the only other men within eight shots of the runaway leaders.

Strange had another 68 and a 136 total. Purtzer was 69-137, Coody 69-138 and Nuckolls 72-138.

Lee Trevino shot a 69 but was 10 strokes off the pace at 140. Arnold Palmer, the tournament host and owner of the Bay Hill Club, had a 72 and a 145 total.

Management Prepares For Strike

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball management authorized the final premium payment on $50 million of strike insurance Friday and Ray Grebey, director of the Player Relations Committee, denied reports of problems with the coverage.

"Our brokers have talked to all the carriers today," Grebey said. "There is no problem. All of the policies have been delivered. All of the coverage is in place."

The total policy premium, which is in excess of $1 million, was to be made in three steps, the final one coming only after the players association filed notification of a strike. That action was taken by the union on Wednesday and triggered the last payment by the owners.

The first payment was made at the time the policies were purchased and the second was made some two or three months after that. The final payment is the largest of the three made by management and, according to Grebey, completes a defense fund of some $70 million which the owners have assemble to protect themselves against a possible strike.

"We have taken the same prudent steps any industry would," Grebey said. "We have a combination of insurance and an industry-wide fund to cover the contingencies."

Strike insurance is commonplace in private industry but unusual in sports. The National Football League, for example, has not carried any policy despite the fact that dealings with its players union have been every bit as stormy as the relationship between the baseball players association and management in that sport.

Most of the baseball strike insurance is being handled by Lloyd's of London, one of the most prestigious insurance companies in the world. But there are American carriers involved as well and the coverage has been widely distributed, Grebey said.

There were reports that the premium payments had wiped out management's strike resources but Grebey said that was simply not true. He also denied any problem with the coverage.

"I don't know where that information comes from," he said. "As far as major league baseball is concerned, there is no substance to those stories."

One of the reported problems with the insurance is that some of the underwriters apparently were unaware that the owners had the right to implement unilaterally a free agent compensation clause in the contract which might touch off strike action by the players. Management put the compensation clause in place last week and then the players, meeting on Wednesday in Tampa, Fla., set a strike date of May 29.

A year ago, when baseball faced a May 22 strike deadline, there was $30 million in strike insurance in place. This year, the amount of insurance has been increased and so has the level of the defense fund with revenue generated by the clubs mainly from television receipts.

"The level of planning is more extensive this year than it was last year," said Grebey.

Why, he was asked, "Because," he said, "I'm being smarter this year than I was last year."

Niekro Says Owners Should Open Books

COCOA, Fla. (AP) — Joe Niekro suggests major league club owners open their books instead of their mouths.

The Houston Astros pitcher was among the player representatives who declared Wednesday a May 29 strike date in their free agent compensation dispute with owners.

The owners want compensation to teams losing a player to free agency. Free agency status was won in court five years ago and players fear such compensation would diminish their bargaining power.

"If free agency is hurting the game, let the owners show us they're losing money and we'll do something," Niekro said.

"We're not demanding anything. We have something they're trying to take away from us. They can't tell us why they need compensation."

Magic Johnson's Return Gives Boost To Lakers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Magic Man is back, much to the joy of the Los Angeles Lakers and legions of National Basketball Association fans throughout the country.

Earvin "Magic" Johnson first captured the hearts of millions during his days at Michigan State. As a 19-year-old sophomore, the tallest point guard in the world led the Spartans to the NCAA championship.

Instead of finishing school, Johnson went to the pros and was the first player drafted soon after Michigan State won its championship. As a 20-year-old rookie last season, he provided the spark as the Lakers won the NBA title.

It was more of the same last fall as the charismatic 6-foot-9, 215-pounder, appearing even better than before, led the way as the Lakers began defense of their title impressively.

However, the Magic disappeared the night of Nov. 18. It was late in the second quarter of a game against the Kansas City Kings at the Forum when Johnson suddenly pulled up, his left knee injured.

Surgery was performed six days later as the Lakers and their fans began a 101-day period of mourning. But that's over now.

Johnson was scheduled to return to action Friday night against the lowly New Jersey Nets. The game was sold out early in the week, guaranteeing a crowd of 17,505. Without Johnson, the game probably wouldn't have drawn more than 12,000.

Another sellout crowd will be on hand Sunday when the Lakers entertain Pacific Division-leading Phoenix in a nationally televised game. The Lakers trailed the Suns by 4½ games when their Magic returned.

Just to show the importance of Johnson, the Lakers had sold out only two games this season prior to Friday night, meaning they're doubling that figure in less than 48 hours.

Last season, the team averaged 14,217 for its 41 home games with nine sellouts. This season, through the first 33 home dates, an average of 12,158 fans turned out.

Los Angeles was 15-5 with Johnson and 28-17 without him. The versatile performer who has played point guard, shooting guard, small forward, power forward and center during his brief pro career averaged 21.4 points, 8.2 rebounds and 8.6 assists in the 20 early-season games in which he played.

Judge Hears Williams Case

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal judge reserved decision Friday after listening to lawyers' arguments on a claim by the Seattle SuperSonics that it must receive compensation if Gus Williams signs with another National Basketball Association team after the current season ends in June.

The arguments before U.S. District Judge Robert L. Carter involved the Sonics' appeal of a contrary ruling last Dec. 31 by Special Master Telford Taylor.

Taylor, the arbiter of National Basketball Association disputes, ruled the Sonics forfeited their compensation right by failing to make Williams a valid new contract offer before the high-scoring guard chose to sit out the season to become a free agent.

The Taylor ruling was based on a finding that a one-year new contract offer by letter to Williams last September was invalid because it was unaccompanied by a standard player contract.

"Do you take the position that the letter was a valid offer?" Carter asked Sonics lawyer Alan Rothenberg.

"Absolutely," replied Rothenberg. Rothenberg's position was supported by David Stern, lawyer for the NBA, which also wants Taylor's ruling upset.

The Taylor ruling was defended by James Quinn, attorney for the players' association. Quinn claimed Williams was later willing to sign a one-year contract renewal but refused when he read the wording.

Quinn said language was wrongfully inserted that reserved the right of the Sonics to collect compensation if Williams signed and played for the team another year.

Carter did not indicate how long it would take for his decision.

'Sluggish' Swiftettes Squash San Elizario 75-22

By RAY GLASS

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
LEVELLAND — If Joe Lombard could get his Nazareth girls' basketball team to come out snappy in the first half, the Swiftettes might just retire the state Class 1A basketball trophy.

Nazareth, the four-time defending state champions, opened its quest of a fifth consecutive crown Friday with a 75-22 drubbing of San Elizario in a first-round regional tournament game in the Texas Dome at South Plains College.

But Lombard, claimed his squad played a sluggish game, especially in the first quarter when they rolled to an 18-6 lead, effectively putting the game out of reach.

"We just have a little more balance," Lombard said of the 53-point winning margin. "But we sure were sluggish in the first half. Playing a quick team like that made us look bad."

Despite their "sluggish" performance, the Swiftettes easily won their 19th consecutive game and the District 5-1A champions moved to 29-2 for the season. San Elizario, 15-1A titlist, finished its year at 21-4.

Nazareth will meet Borden County in today's first semifinal game at 9:30 a.m. The Coyotes leveled Motley County 50-31 in the opening game of the two-day regional tourney.

In Friday's other pair of first-round games, 2-1A champion Follett drilled 11-1A champ Roby 88-41 and 13-1A titlist Robert Lee edged Valley, the 4-1A winner, 53-46. Follett and Robert Lee meet in today's second semifinal game at 11 a.m., with the winner advancing to the championship game tonight at 7 p.m.

While the Eagles may have had the advantage of quickness, Nazareth had the height advantage and immediately took advantage of it.

The Swiftettes' Sharon Gerber, a 5-9 senior, and Lori Gerber, a 5-10 senior, were both taller than any of the Eagles and combined for 42 points from the low post slot.

Sharon had 24 points, including 10 in the second period, while Lori poured in 18 points, 12 in the opening quarter, as the Swiftettes continually relayed the ball into the low post area.

"We had a size advantage," Lombard said. "If someone is going to play us man-to-man like San Elizario tried, then we're going to take advantage of it."

"I was pleased with the way the kids played in the third period. But we'll have to play as well as we possibly can against Borden County. They'll have a size advantage in that game," he added.

Nazareth opened a 10-0 lead in the first five minutes of the game as Lori Gerber scored eight points, including a pair of fast-break buckets.

They increased their 18-6 lead at the end of the first quarter to a 36-10 halftime margin and blew the game wide open in the first four minutes of the third period, when the Gerbers combined for 10 consecutive points from no farther than four feet away. Nazareth hit 31 of 45 field goals (69 percent) for the game and 10 of the 11 Swiftettes scored as Lombard sat his starters down for the final time with 6:03 left in the game and 63-16 lead.

Elizabeth Guerra led the Eagles with 14 points as San Elizario hit only 10 of 31 field goal attempts.

In the tournament's opening game, Borden County rolled past Motley County with a big first quarter. The Coyotes outscored the Matadors 18-2 in the first eight minutes and led 24-10 at halftime as they ran their overall record to 20-1. The Coyotes' 5-11 senior post, Jana Edwards, who had only eight points in the first half, exploded for 20 points in the final two quarters and led all scorers with 28. She also had 15 rebounds and five blocked shots.

Gena Faugt scored 12 for Borden County, including eight in the first-half surge, and finished with 12 rebounds as the Coyotes outscored Motley County 39-21.

Shelley Jackson was the lone Matador in double figures with 11 points. Motley County star Bonnie Zablieski, who entered the game averaging 16 points a contest, was held to two points as Motley County ended its season at 18-9.

Robert Lee edged Valley by seven points in the first round's only close contest after surviving a third-quarter Patriot comeback. The Steers led 25-17 at halftime but Valley hit 10 of 16 field goal efforts in the third period to rally and tie the score 39-39 entering the final eight minutes.

The score was knotted at 43 with 5:06 to play in the game when Lee put together a 6-1 spurt and pulled away to lock up its 30th win of the season.

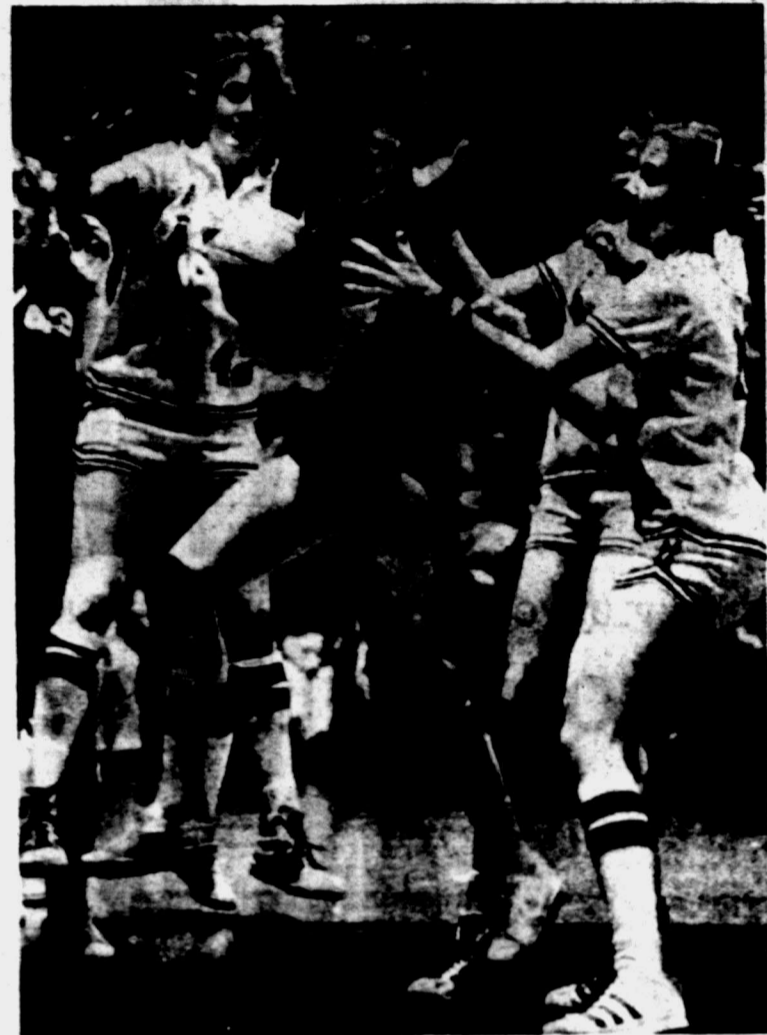

Leigh Ann Runnion scored 19 points, 15 in the second half, and pulled down a game-high 13 rebounds to pace the Steers. Frankie Walker added 10 markers and Dianna Tinkler tossed in nine, all in the first half. Angie Eudy scored 10 points, including six in the crucial third period, to lead the Patriot attack. Jenny Turner and Candy Jones scored eight points each in a losing effort while Mary McNary led Valley with 11 boards.

Follett rolled over out-manned Roby in the evening's third one-sided contest. The Pantherettes ran off to a 27-9 first-quarter lead and never looked back. They led 43-22 at halftime and 65-34 at the end of three quarters.

Dorice Bedell had 22 points for the winners, 16 in the first two quarters. Carrie Sheen tossed in 20, Mardy Tyson had 16 and Cathy Ehlich added nine as all 14 each scored 11 points for Roby, who finishes the season 15-13.

Follett players saw action. Tana Mauldin and Gena Galloway

MHS Reaches Regional Finals

"But it takes a lot of class to come back after that," added Tasker. "Any other team might've folded when it got to two, but we had been there before."

"Sure, I'd like to have four quarters all like the second, but that doesn't happen very often at this level of play. Teams just don't fold their tents up at halftime."

"Still," admitted Tasker, "I didn't expect them to cut it all the way back to two."

One thing that bothered Monterey all Friday night, and for that matter all Monday night in the 66-62 bi-district victory over Amarillo High, was giving up easy baskets after the opposition broke the Monterey press.

Asked whether this tendency to let up bothered him, Tasker seemed non-plussed.

"El Paso has been doing it (breaking the press) that way all year," said Tasker.

ker, "and they're a good ballclub. But if you take a ballclub that hasn't faced a press like that and they won't be able to react as well."

"El Paso's a good team and they've been working on that long pass to beat the press every day all year — I know that for a fact. But I also felt like we had the two best athletes on the floor back there."

The two athletes Tasker was referring to are the Ethridge sister. And in addition to keying the Monterey press (which forced 29 Irvin turnovers) the sisters did Kamie was the games high scorer with 27 points, including 14 in that pull-away second period. Kris finished with eight.

Following Kamie in the scoring list was Miss Gilmore with 16 and Andrea Moore and Miss Muehlrad with eight each.

For Irvin, Laura Geurin scored 19 points, Erica Roberson scored 18 (including 10 in the third quarter) and Maria Linggi scored 16 (with 10 in the fourth quarter). Those three players combined for all but 14 of Irvin's points.

On his way out to watch the Dunbar, Lewisville game immediately following his own victory, Tasker turned confidential for a moment:
 "You know," he confided, "some people out there right now think we're not going to Austin. Bull."

Lobos Defeat EHS 71-69

Scott Barton hit eight of his 12 points in the fourth quarter and teammate Todd Weese canned four free throws in the same eight minutes to lead Levelland to a 71-69 District 1-4A basketball victory over Estacado Friday night.

The Lobo trailed 49-48 heading into the final period, but Barton and Weese erased Estacado's lead to give Levelland its 17th win in the season against 10 losses. The Lobos finished the second half of District 1-4A competition with a 4-2 mark.

Estacado, with one game remaining, dropped to 15-16 on the year and 2-3 in loop action.

Dwight Phillips, playing on a badly injured ankle, led the Lobos with 20 points. Weese, Barton and Myron Jones each chipped in 12 points for Levelland.

Estacado was paced by James Bar-nett's 17 points. Freddie Harris added 16, Rodney Guyton 12 and Jerry Gray and Kenneth Cade 10 apiece for the Matadors.

The Mats took an 18-16 lead after the first eight minutes of action and increased that advantage to six points (34-28) at halftime. Levelland outscored Estacado 20-15 in the third stanza to narrow the spread to only one point, 49-48.

The Matadors outscored the Lobos 10-8 from the field in the final quarter, but the Lobos canned seven free throws and the Mats didn't hit a one. That proved to be the difference in the game.

Motocross Events Closely Contested

With only three more programs left to determine the winter motocross racing champion, at least four close contests were keeping points tabulators busy at Lubbock Trik Trak.

Races are slated at the track, two miles southeast of Idalou on FM 400, Sunday afternoon. Gates open at 11 a.m., practice is at noon and the first of nine events starts at 1 p.m.

Close contests are being fought in the mini-mini division, where Brandon Black and Kaylon Young were a close 1-2; the 80cc senior class, with Mark Blankenship leading Ronnie Wooten, the 125 novice division, with Eddie Tivis just ahead of Darren Quinn, and the open expert class, where Cary Pendley maintains a slim lead over Danny Hooks of Plainview.

'Yaz' Feeling Like Rookie At 41

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (AP) — Carl Yastrzemski, a physical wonder at the age of 41, is working like a hopeful rookie in preparing for his 21st season with the Boston Red Sox.

"Sure, it's work, but it's still a lot of fun and I'm in real good shape," Yastrzemski said Friday after a three-hour voluntary practice for the third morning in a row at Chain O'Lakes Park.

The only American League player to get 400 home runs and 3,000 hits, Yastrzemski is not ready to rest on his laurels and await certain election to baseball's Hall of Fame.

"I know I can still play this game, that's why I'm here," the veteran left-fielder and first baseman said. "Last year my training schedule down here was slowed by my shoulder (slight muscle tear) trouble. Now I'm just getting a little head start."

Yastrzemski, who will be 42 in August, became the first AL player to appear in 100 or more games for 20 consecutive years in 1980, although he missed 32 games because of a fractured rib suffered Aug. 30 when he crashed into Boston's left field wall on a spectacular catch.

"It took a long time for the rib to mend, so I began thinking of this year last fall," Yaz said. "Actually, I've been working out right along, but not on the muscle-building machines. After hurting my shoulder a year ago, I decided to stick to weights to strengthen the upper body."

Yastrzemski, enthusiastic about playing for old fishing buddy Ralph Houk, the Red Sox' new manager, surprised everyone by showing up in training camp Wednesday, six days ahead of schedule.

Vince Orlando, the Red Sox' clubhouse manager, was one of the few not surprised.

"Every time he came into Boston during the winter he worked out," Orlando said. "Once we went out under the bleachers so he could hit, but he darn near caught pneumonia in the cold, so after that he just worked out in our exercise rooms. He did a lot of that."

"He's just phenomenal," trainer Charlie Moss said in glancing at Yastrzemski, trim, muscular, well-tanned and only a trace of gray in the sideburns of his groomed hair. "I don't know how he does it at nearly 42 when I can't do it at 33."

"I'm probably in as good shape as I've ever been," Yastrzemski said. "I'm 15 pounds lighter than I was a year ago, weighing 179 but feeling just as strong. I'm also adjusting my swing, working hard at it. Of course, I'm doing a lot of running. Heck, the first day I ran for 15 minutes and didn't feel a twinge in my legs."

"I'm probably in as good shape as I've ever been," Yastrzemski said. "I'm 15 pounds lighter than I was a year ago, weighing 179 but feeling just as strong. I'm also adjusting my swing, working hard at it. Of course, I'm doing a lot of running. Heck, the first day I ran for 15 minutes and didn't feel a twinge in my legs."

Yastrzemski, who waved his bat high above the shoulders in younger days, adjusted his swing to compensate for slowing bat speed as he got older. Last year he moved his stance so the bat was out in front of his body. Now he's working on a new swing, starting with the bat resting on his shoulder.

A normal work day for him starts long before other members begin their 10 a.m. practice. At 8:20 Friday morning, he was in the batting cage, hitting against the mechanical pitching machine until 9:45. Then he played pepper before winding up with 30 wind sprints.

"Hey, look at these," he said with unhidden pride as he displayed callouses on the hands which have swung a bat in 2,967 regular season games for the Red Sox.

Bell Says Rangers May Shake Downtrodden Image This Year

POMPANO BEACH, Florida (AP) — Texas Ranger Buddy Bell says he's fed up with his team's unflattering image — especially because a lot of what the fans say is downright true.

"You take the New York Yankees," he said. "And they are probably at the top as far as respect in baseball goes. And I really feel that we're at the very bottom."

But Bell said the 1981 season should erase the public's image of buffoons and bums when they picture the Texas baseball team.

"... there's no guarantee (the season) will be different. Maybe it won't," the third baseman said.

"But I can see things and feel things in just this first week of spring training that what happened last year might even work in our favor this season. Embarrassment is the only way to describe what the players went through."

At last season's end, Bell lambasted the Ranger management as a tangled mess and charged that some teammates cared only for personal statistics instead of team records.

"It's bad to have to say that professional ballplayers at the major league level just didn't care about the fundamentals," Bell said Thursday. "It's something that ought to come natural at this stage. But this missing cut-off men, throwing to the wrong base, messing up bunt plays on the infield... has to stop." Bell said he thought he remained too quiet about the team's shortcomings last year.

"I'm not the kind of person who could walk up to someone and start screaming at him about a mistake. I might if a guy just wasn't trying, but it'd have to be an extreme case. However, we've got to build the kind of situation on this team where I can sit down and talk to a player about a mistake and he can sit down with me about mine."

The third baseman played for the Cleveland Indians for seven years when they were scraping the cellar, but said he never heard the scathing comments in Ohio that he has heard in Texas.

He blamed the insults and epithets on talent.

"Cleveland never had enough people with the physical ability to be a pennant contender. But no one thought of us as bums or jokes there... The difference here is that it's obvious we've got the talent to be a good team, a very good team. Then we let something happen like last year."

Bavasi Claims Miller Misleading Players

TORONTO (AP) — President Peter Bavasi of the Toronto Blue Jays believes average and journeyman baseball players are being misled by their union and its boss, Marvin Miller.

American and National League players are threatening to strike over the free-agent compensation clause being proposed by team owners. Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association, has warned the players that under terms of the owners' proposal, 50 percent or more of the 647 major league players could be affected.

"That is nifty rhetoric," Bavasi says. "This proves how little Marvin Miller knows about baseball."

Under terms of the plan implemented unilaterally by the owners last Thursday, a so-called ranking player would require compensation of an amateur draft choice, plus a professional player not on a team's protected list. The plan defines a ranking player as one who is selected by eight or more clubs within a limited number of rounds in the draft — the number to be determined by a set formula based on the number of players in the draft — and who ranks in the top one-third or one-half of certain appearance categories based on the position he plays. If a free agent falls into the top third, his new team could protect 15 players in its entire system and his old team would select one player from the unprotected. If the free agent falls into the top half but not among the top third, his new team could protect 18 players.

Owners have claimed that if the present plan had been in effect last year, only three players — outfielder Dave Winfield, pitcher Don Sutton and catcher Darrell Porter — would have been affected.

Newscaster Drops Kidnapping Charge Against Former Cabbie

CHICAGO (AP) — CBS newscaster Dan Rather said Thursday he is dropping a disorderly conduct charge he pressed against a cab driver Rather claimed took him for a wild ride down Lake Shore Drive last year.

Rather said in a news release that he still stands by his version of the incident. But he said he is dropping the charge against Eugene Phillips because a "mounting schedule of reporting assignments" was conflicting with the prosecution of the case.

Rather also said he would not pursue the matter before the Public Vehicle Commission, which issues cab licenses in Chicago.

Rather has said that during a Nov. 10 cab ride from O'Hare International Airport into the city, Phillips was abusive, at first refused to take him to his destination and then "kidnapped" him, refusing to let him out of the cab as he drove at high speed down Lake Shore Drive.

But Phillips, 38, a cab driver for 12 years, contended he had difficulty finding the address Rather wanted, a one-block-long street on the city's North Side. He said he only got in an argument with Rather after Rather was cross with him.

Phillips said that when he finally found the address, Rather refused to pay the $12.50 fare. Phillips said that instead of letting Rather get out without paying, he drove off in search of a police officer.

The cab driver said Rather yelled out of the windows at passers-by that he was being kidnapped. He said he stopped when he found a police officer.

Phillips was arrested, charged with disorderly conduct and spent a night in jail before being freed on $35 bond.

Phillips could not be reached for comment Thursday.

He said last month, however, that as a result of the run-in with Rather, he had lost his job, is deeply in debt and has applied for welfare benefits.

Rather, the host of CBS' "60 Minutes," is slated to replace Walter Cronkite, the retiring anchorman of the CBS Evening News.

Reporters Admit Killing Haiti Story

NEW YORK (AP) — Mike Wallace acknowledged Friday that a plan by colleague Morley Safer for a "60 Minutes" segment on Haiti was scrapped after Wallace expressed concern that the story might distress his wife, who has a cousin living on the Caribbean island.

Wallace denied, however, a report by syndicated columnist Jack Anderson that he had "killed" Safer's planned story. "I have no authority to kill a '60 Minutes' story," the correspondent said. "How can I kill a story?"

Wallace, a "60 Minutes" correspondent from the premiere program in 1968, said his concern stemmed from a story he did himself on Haiti.

"I did a very straightforward and very tough piece on Haiti in 1972, the year after young Duvalier came to power," Wallace said, "and my wife, whose cousin is married to a Haitian, living in Haiti, was distraught — and that's putting it mildly."

After he learned of Safer's plan from Don Hewitt, the program's executive producer, Wallace said, "I told Morley how I felt about it. He said, 'Fine,' and that was it."

"I must say, there are priorities in life, and my wife is my No. 1 priority."

Neither Hewitt nor Safer could be reached Friday for comment.

Wallace said he used terms like "savagery" and "bloody" to describe the regime of the late Francois "Papa Doc" Duvalier, and his son, Jean-Claude "Baby Doc" Duvalier, in the 1972 piece.

Wallace said that despite his wife's worries after the first piece, he never heard got any official adverse reaction from Haiti.

"In fact, I went there every Christmas for 16 or 17 years, until this last one," he said.

Anderson, in his column, said Safer told friends that Wallace seemed concerned about his family's business interests, including a small arts and crafts store.

"As for the business," Wallace said, "it consists of a store that maybe grosses $60,000 to $70,000 a year."

'60 Minutes' Announces Sunday Segments

NEW YORK (AP) — Sunday's edition of CBS' "60 Minutes" will include the following segments:

"The Minister of Cocaine" — Mike Wallace reports on the billion-dollar-a-year cocaine business involving top officials of the Bolivian government.

Ex-British Leader Plans Retirement

LONDON (AP) — Former Prime Minister Sir Harold Wilson will not stand again for parliament, Labor Party officials in the west England constituency of Huyton he has represented for 30 years announced Friday.

Wilson, who will be 65 next month, abruptly resigned as prime minister in April 1976, less than midway through the government's normal five-year term of

Pool Player Spends Half Century As Subculture Celebrity

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (AP)—Eddie Taylor was a portrait in precision as he leaned over the pool table and stroked his cue with practiced ease.

"The one ball in the end pocket," he crooned. "Now watch."

As if by magic, the yellow one ball suddenly emerged from the rack and rolled directly into the end pocket.

"Just like it had eyes," said a gaping observer. "How does he do it?"

Taylor grinned.

The silver-haired, Tennessean has been "doing" it for nearly a half-century. During this time he has become a subculture celebrity, a feared hustler known far and wide as the "Knoxville Bear."

"I got that nickname years ago, from a fellow down in Hot Springs, Ark.," Taylor said one recent afternoon as he received admirers at The Side Pocket, a Huntington pool emporium run by his cousin, Ed Haun. "He has a real good player, and when I whipped him he told somebody I was harder to beat than one of those Smokey Mountain bears. For some reason, the name stuck."

However, he was just plain ol' Eddie Taylor when he first began playing the game back in Knoxville during the early 1930s.

"I was about 8 when I started playing," he recalled, looking back across countless acres of green felt pool tables he had played on during the decades. "By the time I was 12, I was the best pool player in Knoxville. But I did have a problem: I couldn't play at any one pool room for very long because as soon as my mother found out where I was playing it, she'd go storming in and threaten to blow the place up."

Taylor chuckled, causing a scar on his upper lip to leap like a trout going for a lure.

"Yessir," he said, "those were the days. I hit the road when I was 13. The first couple of times I hitchhiked to Morristown, which isn't far from Knoxville. There was a real good player there and he busted me both times. But, the third time I got him and I kept right on going."

Taylor went on to win the world championship in 1964, defeating Luther Lassiter in a nationally televised match. He won another national title the following year.

But the big money — $22,000 one night in Hot Springs — didn't come in the tournaments. Taylor made his living doing one-night stands in poolrooms from New York to New Mexico.

"The most I ever played for in one game was $7,600 in Oklahoma City," he recalled, a glint in his eye. "But, I also took my losses. I remember losing $2,400 one night."

During the Depression years, when he first hit the road, Taylor toured the country, regularly playing for as little as $2 a game, or as much as $2,000 if he could find a well-heeled opponent. He picked a lot of pigeons over the years and also took on most of the giants of the game. Ralph Greenleaf, Willie Mosconi, Minnesota Fats and Lassiter all were among his foes.

"Nobody could beat me in bank pool," he said. "I also played a good game of one-pocket."

Failing eyesight took Taylor out of the top ranks a couple of years ago. Now he acts as a host professional in a poolroom at his Shreveport, La. home.

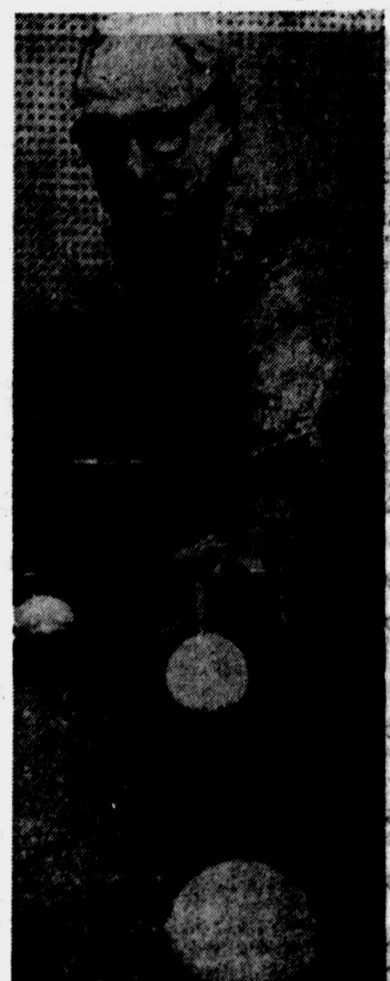

He's also considering a comeback.

"I've started wearing a patch over my left eye when I play and that's helped my game tremendously," he said.

"I'll give you a tip," he said, stroking his cue again. "It's not how good you play, it's how good you match up. The best player in the world isn't going to win any money if he makes a bad game."

"Yessir, the secret is how you match up. I've been on the road with fellows who were good players but I couldn't let them out of my sight because they didn't know how to make a game."

"Remember that," he said. "It'll save you lots of money."

Ever since John Carpenter's "Halloween," which was expected to be just another exploitation picture, emerged as a profitable and stylish horror film, everyone with a script, a camera or a studio has been trying to duplicate his success. And I do mean duplicate.

Killers have emerged on other holidays, such as the demented old lady applauding her sons' abilities as rapists in "Mother's Day," another killer wearing red suit and beard in "Santa" and yet another in "New Year's Evil." And major studios have also started to go after the fast buck, refusing to finance but picking up the distribution rights for many of the sleazy, low-budget films, as 20th Century-Fox did with "Terror Train."

Now it continues as Paramount Pictures releases "My Bloody Valentine," a predictable if gruesome little thriller geared to be re-released yearly around St. Valentine's Day. Everything in the film, with one exception, is easily figured out in advance: the killer hiding his face, the confrontation between the killer and youths (keep in mind the age group these pictures are aimed at) in a location with limited mobility, the resolution revealing the killer as becoming mentally unbalanced after witnessing a traumatic act years beforehand and, finally, an open ending which all but screams out, "Sequel coming! Sequel coming!"

The only confusing aspect of this picture is the opening scene in which a blonde woman is murdered by our disturbed stalker. She is no ordinary victim; she knows her killer — intimately. So who in blazes is she? Or was this opening murder just thrown in to titillate an audience, to whet their appetites for blood?

The story concerns itself with tragedy in the small town of Valentine Bluffs where, we're told in graphic detail, several coal miners were stranded in a cave-in 20 years ago while the townspeople enjoyed a Valentine's dance above. One miner survived, a fellow by the name of Harry Warden, who immediately sought revenge by hacking out the hearts of the mine's supervisors, delivering the organs in heart-shaped candy boxes with an accompanying warning to never again hold a Valentine's Day dance in Valentine Bluffs.

A generation later, yet another dance is planned. The town is decorated in red, and the killings begin anew. As one character puts it, "It looks like Harry Warden's back in town."

Original, huh?

Director George Mihalka, a fledgling whose only other film was evidently something called "Pinball Summer," is aware of what's worked before in the exploitation genre, which may actually hurt his film's box office potential. Sooner or later, after all, audiences are bound to start asking for originality again.

His killer is made imposing through black clothing, his face covered with an old-fashioned gas mask (don't ask me why), his hands clutching a pick axe. And there are the usual many non-suspenseful confrontations in which victims, usually terrified young women, are chased and cut down.

The killings are more diverse than you'd think. Not everyone gets an axe in the heart. One fellow is forced to bob for hot dogs at the party, the killer shoving his head into the pot of boiling water. One woman suffers more than your average sunburn when she's locked in a dryer at a laundromat. (Who would have suspected a guy dressed like that carried small change?) And a teen-aged girl is lifted up and forcibly impaled on a sharp pipe. And on and on and on.

The film fails even in terms of continuity. The script by John Beaird offers little to work with, so it's hard to fault the actors. But Mihalka should have been able to generate more suspense and surprises — or at the very least, expressed a bit of wit — with this silly premise. The exploitation genre is basically boring, but the films have to be checked out to see which directors are able to turn lousy scripts into chicken salad, to see which directors know how to use a small budget and still create some fun.

Mihalka is not one of them.

"My Bloody Valentine" should never have been released by a studio the size of Paramount. It's gory, but never scary. The characters are ludicrous, the dialogue is stupid, the killings and climax are predictable. It's a film mold used too often before. Movie-making by the numbers. An attitude of "the kids loved that one, so let's give them more of the same."

So what will they offer next, I wonder. Any number of the films could be re-titled "Turkey" in time for Thanksgiving, of course. Or maybe the next one will offer demented Playboy bunnies poisoning their customers at breakfast. They could call it "Easter Eggs." Honestly, I wouldn't put it past Hollywood these days...

Scientists Gather To Discuss Food Production

By KATHLEEN HARRIS
Avalanche-Journal Farm Writer

Exchanging ideas and the latest findings from ongoing studies brought scientists from across the U.S. grain belt and two foreign countries together this week at the Hilton Inn.

About 175 scientists from private industry and universities gathered to discuss cultural practices, entomological developments, breeding research and human food uses, at the 12th biennial grain sorghum research and utilization conference.

Dr. Art Onken of Lubbock, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station soil and fertilizer specialist and chairman of the cultural and management practices session, said ways to conserve water and energy are a top priority research area.

Advances are being made in minimum tillage methods, mini-terraces and row damming, for example, he noted.

Chemical advances are aiding the producers' fight against weeds, Onken said. Because grain sorghum is a grass species, control of unwanted grasses has been difficult.

Recent tests, however, have shown that post emergence applications of Prowl and Treflan done properly can control grasses in grain sorghum and allow rotation into cotton or corn the following year, he said.

Another way to protect sorghums from harmful herbicides is to treat the seed with a "seed safener." One such product is currently on the market and another will be available soon.

Devastating chinch bugs and the new biotype E greenbugs are the major pest concerns of the grain sorghum industry, according to state grain and forage entomologist Dr. George Teetes.

Though the insect battle will be tough for producers for a while, the entomologist is optimistic that research will bring the pests under control in two or three years.

Varieties resistant to the biotype C greenbug that attacked grain sorghum fields from 1968 until new cultivars were developed in 1976 are not effective against the biotype E discovered in 1979.

"The $10 million saved by Texas grain sorghum producers annually with greenbug resistant varieties will be lost," Teetes said. "But it won't take as long to breed varieties resistant to the new biotype as it did the previous one."

In addition to searching for ways to improve the nutritional value of grain sorghum for feed, Dr. L. W. Rooney, Texas A&M cereal chemist, said there is hope for making sorghum more useful in certain human foods.

Rooney said lighter colored varieties could make the grain more desirable on the export market and domestically.

Mexico has introduced a milled grain sorghum product called Atole, Rooney noted, that is flavored and added to warm milk similar to malt powder.

Dr. Hugh Doggett, an English scientist who spent many years researching grain sorghum in Africa, has written sorghum textbooks and was instrumental in developing the International Crop Research Institute, was honored Thursday by the group for his contributions to the industry.

The conference was co-sponsored by the Grain Sorghum Producers Association, Texas Grain Sorghum Producers Board, Kansas Grain Sorghum Commission and Sorghum Improvement Conference of North America.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE JOHN BLOCK says he supports higher call prices for the farmer-owned grain reserves as part of the 1981 farm bill. Block told a meeting of the Kansas Farm Bureau this week in Washington that his ideas for the four-year farm bill still are being negotiated with Office of Management and Budget director David Stockman.

The secretary said call prices, the levels at which loans from the federal government must be repaid and at which farmers must redeem their grain from reserves, should be higher because they indirectly serve as a ceiling for commodity price increases.

"I want to give the market a chance to work without bumping into this lid," Block said.

Current call levels, Block said, do not allow grain prices to get high enough to ration demand and may force grain out of the reserve before it is needed for a real shortage.

LOANS MADE UNDER THE FARMER-OWNED reserve program should be repaid with interest, Block said. At present, some loans are interest-free.

Block said he would like to maintain the option of offering interest-free reserve loans if market conditions call for incentives to get more grain into the reserves.

The secretary reiterated his support for a "modest" hike in regular loan rates, adding that "it isn't in the cards to see much of an increase" in the current atmosphere of federal budget austerity.

Block also repeated his view that target prices should be eliminated or kept only as a backup to be used if market conditions warranted.

Later, Block told a meeting of Farmland Industries, Inc., in Washington that he was to present his ideas to the cabinet this week on what should be included in the 1981 farm bill.

THE SECRETARY SAID HE WAS GOING to tell the cabinet "what it (the farm bill) can do and should do for agriculture."

Block said "relatively favorable consideration" will be given in the budget to promotion of agricultural exports and to research. He said these areas have been "sorely neglected in the last few years."

Details still have to be worked out with the OMB for promoting these two issues, Block said, adding that the U.S. Department of Agriculture has been "going round and round with OMB on this."

Block assured the group, a major Midwest-based cooperative with interests on the High Plains, that he is in favor of promoting cooperative interests and would push for programs that agriculture needs to continue production if the United States is threatened with an energy shortage.

He also said he is for "preserving the full integrity of the Capper-Volstead Act," which exempts cooperatives from some anti-trust provisions.

HEARINGS ON THE NEW FARM BILL will begin next week. Initial administration proposals are expected to be ready early in March, sources here reported, with definitive proposals ready by perhaps mid-March.

The Senate Agriculture Committee hearings will begin Monday and continue through March 25. General farm organizations and members of Congress are scheduled to testify Monday and the administration, led by Block, will testify March 25.

Hearings on the cotton program are scheduled Thursday before the Senate Agriculture Subcommittee on Production, Marketing and Stabilization of Prices, headed by Sen. Thad Cochran, R-Miss.

Block is expected to appear during the first day of the hearings before the House Agriculture Committee on Wednesday. Congressional members and general farm organizations will testify before the House panel on Thursday.

Hearings will be scheduled and announced by the various House subcommittees from March 11-20. Block's testimony on March 24 will conclude the House committee hearings.

Subcommittees in the House will schedule business meetings from March 23-April 3 for mark-ups of individual sections of the bill. The full committee mark-up is scheduled from April 6-May 1, except for the Easter recess from April 16-22.

COTTON FUTURES CLOSED ANOTHER DULL session Friday around the bottom to middle of the day's 99-point trading range on an estimated volume of only 4,000 lots.

Spot March, now scantly traded, gained 65 points at 89 cents, near May fell 46 points to 90.14 and December was unchanged at 82.50. Floor brokers said the thin market was dominated by the actions of a large Chicago-based commission house.

Prices initially declined on commission house selling, which triggered down-side stops, before rallying into positive territory on commission house and local buying.

The market gradually backtracked in the afternoon as locals and commission houses turned to selling but rallied slightly on light trade buying toward the close, analysts added.

Speculators might have interpreted the weekly export sales figure released after the close Thursday as bearish because it was lower than in previous weeks, analysts said.

But the trade appeared to have expected an even lower figure than the new 1980-81 sales of 59,300 bales because business has been slow, analysts added.

AN INCREASE IN CERTIFICATED STOCKS along with cotton awaiting certification, coupled with a recent weakening in the Arizona basis, may have allayed fears about a short supply of deliverable cotton, analysts said.

Certificated stocks as of Thursday totaled 51,643 bales, up 7,186 bales from a week earlier, and 2,595 were awaiting review, with none awaiting withdrawal.

Thirty-five new notices were issued Friday, including 18 by one Memphis-based trade firm and 15 by another. The major receiver-stopper got 31 of the 35 and stopped 39 of the 40 notices issued Thursday.

Notices outstanding as of Thursday totaled 278, including the 40 issued that day.

Open interest going into Friday's session was 34,728 contracts, down 1,502 from a week ago, with 423 remaining open in spot March, off 3,097.

MAY CLOSED AT 406 POINTS UNDER THE Liverpool "A" Index, against an extremely narrow 276 points a week ago. The "A" Index at 94.20 was down from 96.35 last week.

The nine-market average spot price on the base quality ended at 83.72 cents, down 268 points from a week ago. The nine-market average basis was 642 points off May, compared with 719 points at last week's close.

The special 90-day upland cotton import quota expired at mid-week. A total of 11,006 bales had been registered as imported through Tuesday under the special quota, which took effect Nov. 28 and expanded the regular import quota by 497,154 bales.

The regular annual upland cotton import quota is about 30,000 bales. About 9,503 bales of the total imported under the special quota were from Mexico.

Trading on Telcel, with the turnover composed mostly of low grades, totaled 2,226 bales Friday on an average price of 66.15 cents, an average of 2,737 points over the loan. The market difference, established after futures closed, was off 25 points.

CATTLE FUTURES

CHICAGO (AP) — Feeder cattle futures closed 85 to 125 points lower on increased sales of 3,466 cars Friday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. March, May and August fell to new season's lows.

Futures recovered from an early limit loss in April on local and commercial short covering before falling in late trade. March then plunged the limit before uncovering profit taking. Sources noted spillover weakness from pork pits and stop loss selling. Cash beef was firmer at noon but sources felt prices would be easier again next week.

Cash feeders were steady to up $5 with the best top $63 per hundredweight at Dodge City. Receipts at the major terminals on Monday are expected to total 600 head.

Hog futures closed 110 to 150 lower with only April and distant April not down the daily limit with sellers over Volume was 8,692 contracts.

Futures plunged on spillover selling from the belly pit. Sources also noted general selling on further weakness in cash pork prices at noon and expectations of lower cash hogs again next week.

GRAIN FUTURES

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain and soybean futures prices closed mixed Friday on the Chicago Board of Trade after trading higher for a large part of the session.

Some last-minute selling by commercial interests and commission houses outweighed buying in soybeans by local traders attempting to even up their contract positions before the weekend, sources in the soybean pit said.

Traders said that because volume was light, waves of buying and selling were able to make prices zigzag a little more than normal throughout the day.

Some of the early buying was attributed to reports that rain storms Thursday night and Friday morning had missed some key grain-growing areas. Wheat was the leader in price advances early in the day as it appeared dry Oklahoma and west Texas winter wheat fields were not going to get any moisture, traders said.

Sources noted spillover weakness from pork pits and stop loss selling. Cash beef was firmer at noon but sources felt prices would be easier again next week.

Cash feeders were steady to up $5 with the best top $63 per hundredweight at Dodge City. Receipts at the major terminals on Monday are expected to total 600 head.

Hog futures closed 110 to 150 lower with only April and distant April not down the daily limit with sellers over Volume was 8,692 contracts.

Futures plunged on spillover selling from the belly pit. Sources also noted general selling on further weakness in cash pork prices at noon and expectations of lower cash hogs again next week.

GRAIN FUTURES

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain and soybean futures prices closed mixed Friday on the Chicago Board of Trade after trading higher for a large part of the session.

Some last-minute selling by commercial interests and commission houses outweighed buying in soybeans by local traders attempting to even up their contract positions before the weekend, sources in the soybean pit said.

Traders said that because volume was light, waves of buying and selling were able to make prices zigzag a little more than normal throughout the day.

Some of the early buying was attributed to reports that rain storms Thursday night and Friday morning had missed some key grain-growing areas. Wheat was the leader in price advances early in the day as it appeared dry Oklahoma and west Texas winter wheat fields were not going to get any moisture, traders said.

CATTLE FUTURES

CHICAGO (AP) — Feeder cattle futures closed 85 to 125 points lower on increased sales of 3,466 cars Friday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. March, May and August fell to new season's lows.

Futures recovered from an early limit loss in April on local and commercial short covering before falling in late trade. March then plunged the limit before uncovering profit taking. Sources noted spillover weakness from pork pits and stop loss selling. Cash beef was firmer at noon but sources felt prices would be easier again next week.

Harley-Davidson Bikes Personify Macho

YORK, Pa. (AP) — They come from all over the world, thousands of them a year. And whether they are police officers, denim-clad outlaws or adventurous little old ladies, they are all pilgrims to the source of America's last macho machine, the Harley-Davidson motorcycle.

Their mecca is an 800,000-square-foot plant here, which each year turns out 57,000 Sportsters, Wide Glides, FLT's and other gleaming Harley mainstays. One rolls off the assembly line every two minutes.

The bikes, the only American-made machines in a market dominated by Japanese models, appeal "to a massive cross section of the American populace," said AMF-Harley Davidson spokesman George Kragel.

Kragel's predictable boast is supported by evidence of the Harley following, in the form of 14,611 people who last year visited the company's museum, located next to the plant.

Many came in groups or clubs from all over this country, Canada and Europe. Even the paragons of mean motorcycle macho, the Hell's Angels and Pagan motorcycle clubs, joined the throngs ogling the 27 vintage Harleys.

Included in the display is one of the three original Harley-Davidsons, 1903 models crafted by company founders William Harley and Arthur Davidson in a 10-by-15-foot factory in Milwaukee.

The assembly plant moved to York in 1969 after the company merged with AMF Inc. This week, AMF confirmed that it plans to sell its Harley-Davidson division. The Wall Street Journal reported Friday that the potential buyer may be the Honda Motor Co., one of Harley's biggest Japanese competitors.

The first Harleys looked like big motorized bicycles, but over the years Harleys grew into beefy, powerful machines meant for only the most experienced of riders.

Police departments, Shriner drill teams and the military are the largest bulk buyers, said spokeswoman Pam Matthews.

The bikes, known for their rugged construction — many 1930s models are still on the road — can reach speeds of 110 miles and more.

The company's best customers, though, are individuals, some into their 80s, who crave the Harleys' hand-painted pin striping, their glassy painted finishes, their hearty vroom.

Many company employees, Ms. Matthews among them, are Harley enthusiasts. Some own as many as four of the two-wheeled behemoths. Each bike costs between $3,500 and $7,500 but the company gives its employees 20 percent discounts.

In summer, the plant parking lot is filled with Harleys. One diehard worker, unwilling to forego biking during the winter, attaches a sidecar and carries a sand-laden box for added stability, Kragel said.

In the face of stiff competition from Japan — Harley has 8 percent of the American market — management keeps a close eye on quality control. Bob Conway, who owns two Harleys and has another on order, is manager of a special independent quality audit section.

Conway's unit randomly picks a bike from each lot of 10 or 20 coming off the assembly line and puts it through a quality control check.

The inspection, a doublecheck of the plant's own quality tests, lasts up to 2½ hours and even involves a 25-mile spin on a special one-mile test track just outside the plant door.

AMERICAN MOTORCYCLE MANUFACTURER — Patrick Keane, a Harley Davidson supervisory employee, sits on one of the company's motorcycles in the York, Pa. manufacturing plant. Harley Davidson is the sole remaining American-owned manufacturer of motorcycles in the United States in an industry that once had over 200 companies. (AP Laserphoto)
