Three Dead In Gail Propane Rig Blaze

Tanker Overturns On City Street

By RUSSELL SKILES
A-J Correspondent

GAIL — Three persons were killed and three were injured late Friday afternoon when liquefied petroleum gas leaking from an overturned tank truck exploded and destroyed a nearby building.

Killed were Dewey Everett of Snyder, a former longtime Borden County resident; truck driver John Warren of Abilene and an unidentified passenger in the truck, authorities said.

Gail residents O.L. Lane, Fannie Lee Flint and Leno DeLeon were injured.

Investigators said Warren, 33, was driving a truck owned by Fraley Butane of Abilene east on Highway 180 through Gail about 3:50 p.m. when he apparently swerved to the left to avoid another truck owned by the Flint Construction Company here.

The Flint truck driver, Lee Alexander, told officials he was preparing to make a left turn but stopped in the right lane of traffic when he saw Warren approaching from behind.

Warren's truck left the pavement, barely missed two gas pumps and skidded into the back of an empty water truck parked in front of the construction firm's building by Flint employee DeLeon, officials said.

After hitting the water truck, investigators said, Warren's truck rolled on its side and struck a parked pickup truck before stopping just three feet from the pre-fab building's only door.

Propane spilling from the fuel truck ignited almost immediately, witnesses said, and engulfed the Flint Construction building in a matter of minutes.

Everett, believed to be about 85 and widely known among area residents, was trapped in the bathroom of the construction firm's building.

Warren, thrown from his truck, was found between the truck and the burning building, officials said, but a person who was trapped in the fuel truck died in the flames. The vehicle had to be lifted before the body could be removed, authorities added.

Department of Public Safety officers said late Friday they were attempting to identify the passenger, who was burned beyond recognition.

Lane, a Flint employee, and Mrs. Flint, wife of the company owner, were in the building but escaped through a side window and suffered minor burns and cuts. DeLeon, more seriously injured, was walking into the building when the explosion occurred.

At least 15 paid and volunteer fire fighters from Lamesa responded to a fire call, as did officers from the Lamesa Police Department, Dawson County Sheriff's Department and the DPS in an effort to aid local Sheriff Norman Sneed.

An ambulance and several persons trained by Emergency Medical Services personnel in attendance at a track meet a few blocks from the scene rendered other assistance.

Because the accident involved a fuel truck, a representative of the Railroad Commission in Austin is en route to Gail to investigate.

The accident scene is about 200 yards northeast of the Borden County Courthouse.

The bodies of those killed were taken to Bell-Seale Funeral Home in Snyder. The three injured were treated by Gail medical personnel and released.

$1.5 Million Federal Aid Set For Atlanta Child Deaths Probe

ATLANTA (AP) — The 22nd name was added to Atlanta's list of slain and missing black children Friday as President Reagan announced he is giving an additional $1.5 million to help pay for the investigation aimed at ending the city's "nightmare."

Public Safety Commissioner Lee Brown said the case of 15-year-old Joseph Bell, missing since March 3, was turned over to the special task force assigned to the cases. The addition raises the total number of children on the list to 20 dead and two missing. The cases date back some 20 months.

Bell's case previously had been handled by the police department's missing persons bureau. Also on the missing list is Darron Glass, 10, last seen Sept. 14.

Reagan announced approval of the funds at a news conference in Washington, deploring the baffling crimes as "one of the most tragic situations that has ever confronted an American community."

He said Vice President George Bush would fly to Atlanta today to confer with city officials in a show of administration determination to help end the crisis.

The $1.5 million is earmarked to help cover increased costs for such investigative expenses as police overtime.

Mayor Maynard Jackson, after listening to Reagan's announcement, emerged from his office to tell reporters. "In the midst of continuing sorrow, today is a day for good news for Atlanta."

He said the president's words were "sensitive, caring and, clearly — with Vice President Bush coming as President Reagan's personal emissary — even additional evidence of the continuing concern the Reagan administration has shown for Atlanta's awful tragedy."

Reagan said it made no difference whether the slain and missing Atlanta children were white or black. "This administration is totally color blind," he told reporters in the White House press room.

"This nightmare has continued for more than 19 months and I am determined to continue to assist the city of Atlanta in bringing it to an end."

City officials have said the investigation is costing $150,000 to $170,000 per month in extraordinary costs.

The new money will augment the $979,000 in federal aid sent to Atlanta on March 5. Those funds were for social programs connected with the child slayings.

Jackson expressed frustration that the city's street children, despite months of warnings from police and others, still

Cloud-Seeding Hearing To Continue Next Week

By DOUG McDONOUGH
A-J Correspondent

PLAINVIEW — Weather modification opponents finally opened their case here Friday as the battle over a proposed cloud seeding program ended its third day.

Charles B. Moore of Socorro, N.M., a professor at the New Mexico Institute of Mining and Technology, testified that cloud seeding would not increase rainfall.

Based on his study of clouds physics, thunderstorms and properties of lightning since 1953, Moore said the silver io-rides used in cloud seeding for hail suppression reduced rainfall amounts. He agreed it is possible to initiate rainfall from clouds that otherwise would not have dropped precipitation but the rainfall would not be much, he said.

Moore was the first of two witnesses called Friday by Midland attorney Harold Feldt, who represents Citizens for Natural Weather. The citizens' group is opposed to Plains Weather Improvement Association's proposed hail reduction-rain enhancement program for the Plainview area.

Three more anti-cloud seeding witnesses are expected to be called when the hearing continues at 8 a.m. Wednesday in the American Legion Hall here. Hearing Examiner John Green said he believes one long day of testimony should be all that is necessary before he hears closing arguments from attorneys.

Friday, Feldt also called Dan True, who has 26 years experience as a television meteorologist, to the stand. True worked in Amarillo from 1954 to 1976 and now is employed in Albuquerque.

True's testimony did not last long, however, as Green upheld an objection by PWIA's attorney that the broadcaster is "not qualified" in cloud seeding and hail reduction methods. True originally had planned to present rainfall records and other studies he had conducted about rainfall.

But all he was allowed to say for the record was that he noticed an abrupt change in the Texas High Plains' storm patterns beginning in 1970 or 1971.

Before Moore and True testified, weather modification advocates brought John Girdzue to the stand. Girdzue was operations manager for the rain enhancement project center in Big Spring from March of 1975 to October 1980.

He testified the Colorado River Weather Modification project, which covered all or portions of 14 counties around Big Spring, increased the amount of precipitation in the target area and downwind areas by 30 to 78 percent county by county. Girdzue also credited the project with increasing dry land cotton yields.

Following the conclusion of testimony Wednesday, the hearing will be opened to anyone who wants to give sworn statements. Each person will be allowed two minutes to talk.

But even with the close of the hearing, a final ruling is not expected for at least three months, when Green is to make his recommendation to the State Water Resources Board. The board will allow time for other comments before making its final decision.

Scattered Light Rains, Small Hail Recorded Across Region

By DONNA RAND
Avalanche-Journal Staff

RAIN ALONG with some small hail, was scattered across the South Plains Friday and weather officials say there is a 30 percent chance more of the same is likely throughout today.

The showers reached the Lubbock area about 4 p.m. Friday, and by late in the evening, 17 of an inch was the official reading at Lubbock International Airport. However, National Weather Service officials noted that higher precipitation accumulations were reported in the southern and southeastern portion of the county.

Several Lubbock residents also reported pea-size hail in various portions of the city.

While the light, but steady, rainfall no doubt is welcomed by South Plains farmers, the showers caused problems for many Lubbock motorists. Several city streets, especially north Quaker Avenue, were quickly flooded and police said cars throughout the city stalled because of the standing water.

Police also attributed more than 20 minor accidents Friday evening to slick streets and poor driving conditions.

Surrounding towns reported a trace or more of rain as light showers fell throughout the area, with Idalou recording the most rainfall — close to .20 of an inch by early Friday evening.

An upper level disturbance centered over the Panhandle combined with high afternoon temperatures produced the scattered showers and a 30 percent chance of showers and thunderstorms continues through tonight.

The weather system, however, should do little to affect temperatures. Friday's high was 62, and a similar reading is expected today, forecasters say. Winds today are expected at 10 to 15 mph out of the south and the low tonight should drop into the upper 30s.

Similar temperatures are forecast for Sunday, when weather officials also say partly cloudy skies should return to the South Plains.

Soviet-American Differences Seen As Danger To Peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig, Jr. said Friday that outstanding differences between the Soviet Union and the United States "have brought the state of world peace to a rather precarious level."

Haig said he expects to meet soon with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin to begin a process of talks with the Soviet Union that could lead to a summit meeting between President Reagan and Soviet Premier Leonid Brezhnev.

But barring some major Soviet move to improve the political climate, such as withdrawal of its troops from Afghanistan, there is unlikely to be a summit for some time.

"There are too many outstanding differences between ourselves and the Soviet Union, which unfortunately have brought the state of world peace to a rather precarious level," Haig said in an interview on the MacNeil-Lehrer program on public television.

Concern Expressed Earlier, in a breakfast meeting with a small group of reporters, Haig expressed concern over a "huge" Soviet-led military exercise along the Polish border in the next few weeks that he said could involve more than 25,000 troops.

"We are looking at it very, very carefully because (of) the range of troop concentration," he said.

In the televised interview, Haig said the world cannot any longer ignore "Soviet intervention" of the kind that has occurred in recent years in such places as Angola, Ethiopia, Afghanistan, and Cambodia through "North Vietnam proxies."

"I think it is clear to the American people and I know it's clear to our West European partners, that were we to continue to ignore Soviet activities, the objective of assuring world peace and international stability would be gravely threatened," he said. "Clearly the time has come for the Soviets to understand this is no longer an acceptable action."

But he also said the Reagan administration wants to hold a dialogue with the "oviet Union on the problems." "We have not entered into a period of isolation vis-a-vis the Soviet Union," he said.

In the earlier session with reporters, Haig also revealed that the flow of arms to leftist guerrillas in El Salvador from Cuba via Nicaragua has slowed down and that the insurgents are apparently running out of ammunition.

He said the Cubans may be trying to find new routes for smuggling the arms. He declared, as he has before, that the United States is determined to stop the flow of arms from Cuba "by whatever means are necessary."

Haig said, too, he was "as concerned"

Pentagon Urging 'Try Before You Buy' Draft

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Pentagon advisory board has proposed reviving the draft in a new "try it before you buy it" form giving youths a six-months taste of military life before making them choose between longer active or reserve service.

The proposal was advanced by the Reserve Forces Policy Board as a way of solving a chronic lack of trained manpower available in the event of mobilization. The board's chairman, Louis J. Conti, told Congress the Reserve and National Guard forces still fall short in strength.

Conti called the board's plan a "try it before you buy it" approach to military service for young people.

His report given to Congress this week indicated the board primarily is thinking of drafting young men, but at one point he left open the possibility of drafting women, "if mandated by Congress."

The board recommended changes in the existing registration laws to require classification, which is not now carried out, and to move toward establishment of local draft boards to "enable the deferment process to take place now."

The recommendations, as outlined by Conti, did not address the question of what kind of deferments could be granted.

The board serves as a principal policy adviser to the secretary of defense on matters relating to the reserve components. It includes senior officers in the reserve forces and on active duty as well as civil officials.

In his report, Conti made it clear that the board was not speaking for Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger in proposing the resumption of mandatory military service for the first time since 1973.

Weinberger and President Reagan both have voiced strong opposition to re-

Hobbs School Bond Sale Strikes Snag

By JOHN OTIS MEEKINS
A-J Correspondent

HOBBS — The proposed sale of $8.6 million in Hobbs school bonds has "hit a snag with the municipal bond market in a shambles," according to Tom Ratcliff, a representative of Stern Brothers of Albuquerque, the school's financial agent.

Ratcliff said it may be necessary to sell a smaller portion of the bond issue in order to get an interest rate less than eight percent. A smaller portion of the five-question bond issue approved by voters last September would carry a shorter maturity schedule, Ratcliff said, and could mean a "larger tax bite for property owners."

One reason for the bond market being bad, according to Ratcliff, are two bills now making their way through the New Mexico Legislature and which could "open up a can of worms by allowing the interest rate on bonds to be boosted as high as 12 percent." Another worry would develop if the New Mexico Supreme Court rules such bonds can be sold above eight percent.

In the event the bonds can't be sold lower than eight percent, "it may be necessary to revoke the entire school bond issue," Ratcliff said. And the "whole issue will be dead" if the bonds aren't sold within two years from the time they were approved, he added.

April 23 has been set as the tentative sale date for all of the bonds. However, Ratcliff has received permission from the Hobbs school board to sell a smaller portion of the bond issue in order to try to get the interest rate under 8 percent.

On a shorter maturity period, Ratcliff said, the cost would be more. The maturity date on the whole issue was set for 1989 when voters approved the school bond. At that time, the interest rate was expected to "be no more than six percent."

In the event only one portion of the bond issue can be sold, school officials say, the most need is for a new elementary school. Ray Wasson, director of personnel for the schools, said "we are 20 to 23 classrooms short right now."

Standard Oil Co. Purchases Nation's Largest Copper Producer

CLEVELAND (AP) — Standard Oil Co. (Ohio), after offering $1.77 billion to acquire Kennecott Corp., the nation's largest copper producer, says energy will remain its primary business after it becomes a giant natural resources company.

"We naturally intend to follow through and back them (Kennecott) up with additional capital," said Richard Donaldson, Sohio's vice president for government and public affairs. He said $1.5 billion to $1.6 billion might be injected into the metals producer in coming years for modernization.

"Energy is still our main business," he emphasized. "We're planning to invest approximately $16.5 billion more in energy-related activities in the next five years."

The surprise Kennecott takeover was announced Thursday and still requires approval by shareholders of the Stamford, Conn.-based company. Stockholders are scheduled to meet in May to vote on the merger.

Donaldson said the takeover has created a "very positive mix of things. Kennecott has some attractive mineral reserves. Obviously, we have the capital to develop that."

He said that even though 53 percent of Sohio is owned by British Petroleum Co. Ltd., which itself is almost half-owned by the British government and the Bank of England, the company would continue to be run "as a U.S. company producing U.S. energy for U.S. markets."

The merger calls Sohio to pay $62 for each of Kennecott's 28.5 million outstanding common shares. In trading on the New York Stock Exchange on Friday, Kennecott shares jumped $27.125 to close at $54.50 each, while Sohio closed at $52 a share, down $3 for the day. Neither stock traded Thursday.

Other unspecified conditions of the merger, Donaldson said, without elaborating, "are legal in nature."

Petroleum Price-Fixing Indictments Aired

LONGVIEW (AP) — Police in two states have arrested 12 people named in sealed indictments returned by a Gregg County grand jury in connection with alleged oil price fixing in the huge East Texas Oil Field, officials said.

Authorities still were looking Friday for four others named in the indictments that followed a yearlong investigation, said Gregg County Sheriff Bobby Weaver.

"We've sent out our inquiries and we're just waiting for them to come back," Weaver said.

Officials have declined comment about the size of the ring or how much oil might have been involved.

Weaver said Texas authorities have made eight arrests and four people were arrested in Oklahoma.

The 16 people were named in two sealed indictments returned Monday by the grand jurors, charging the defendants with engaging in organized crime and conspiring to commit theft over $10,000.

Texas authorities have arrested Calvin M. Cathey and Calvin M. Cathey Jr., both of Aransas Pass; Jack Craig Henderson, Sid Scarborough of Longview, W.S. Barber and his son, B.S. Barber, both of Kilgore, Tommy Bolin of Clarksville and Garvin Richardson of Longview, said Weaver.

Authorities in Oklahoma have arrested Jean Brown, 61, and John Wilcox, 42, both of Sapulpa, Okla.; Robert Young, 40, of Salisaw, Okla.; and John Henry Carson, 57, of Hitchita, he added.

All posted bonds ranging from $10,000 to $25,000 and were released, said Weaver.

Regent Committee Functions Undergoing Changes At Tech

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

In a little-noticed move, Texas Tech Board of Regents Chairman J. Fred Bucy has changed the structure of regent committees — dropping two ad hoc groups and spreading their topics among the board's six standing committees.

Bucy was named board chairman last fall and one of his first moves was to appoint a temporary committee on Board Committee Structure. He was chairman of the group and was aided by regents Joe Pevehouse and Roy K. Furr.

Under the previous board chairman, former regent Robert Pfluger of San Angelo, there were committees for Health Affairs and for Museum and Ranching Heritage interests.

Dr. Nathan Galloway, an Odessa physician and vice chairman of the Tech board of regents, explained the health affairs and museum-ranching committees were deleted in a "streamlining" move.

He noted each of the nine regents typically serves on two board committees. Bucy's board structure committee decided to distribute the health and museum-ranching subjects to the specific committees most informed on a particular topic.

For example, a museum sciences proposal which previously would have been considered by the museum-ranching committee now will be handled by the Academic and Student Affairs Committee.

Similarly, financial matters at the medical school or the Ranching Heritage Center now will be examined by the Finance Committee, rather than either a health committee or a museum-ranching committee.

Galloway was chairman of the Health Affairs Committee when it existed and, as the only M.D. on the board of regents, he frequently was called upon for his advice on all matters relating to Tech's Health Sciences Center.

The changed structure of the board's committees, Galloway said, is an "attempt to have all members of the board know about all parts of the university."

He said the new philosophy is "not to look at it as the university and Health Sciences Center, but as one university."

He noted, however, "ad hoc committees serve a purpose" and the new structure still allows ad hoc committees to be formed as needed. "They can be formed for a single problem, report back to the board and have a finite period of existence," he explained.

Now that all vacancies on the board have been filled by Gov. Bill Clements, Bucy has designated committee assignments for each of the members.

One of the new members, Rex Fuller of Lubbock, has been given a committee chairmanship role. Fuller will head the regents' Public Affairs, Development and University Relations Committee.

Other members of that committee are Clint Formby of Hereford and new board member Anne Burnett Phillips of Frisco.

Pevehouse, a Midland oil executive who previously served on the finance and athletic affairs committees, now heads the Academic Affairs Committee. Also on the academic committee are Mrs. Phillips and Bucy.

A former Tech regent said two committees to watch carefully are academic affairs and finance because that's where much of the action will be. Faculty groups recently have argued loudly for more attention in the matters of tenure policy and salaries — and changes in those topics ultimately would be examined by the regents' academic and finance committees.

Under Bucy's new committee assignments, Galloway will head the Finance Committee. Assisting him will be Furr and newcomer Fuller.

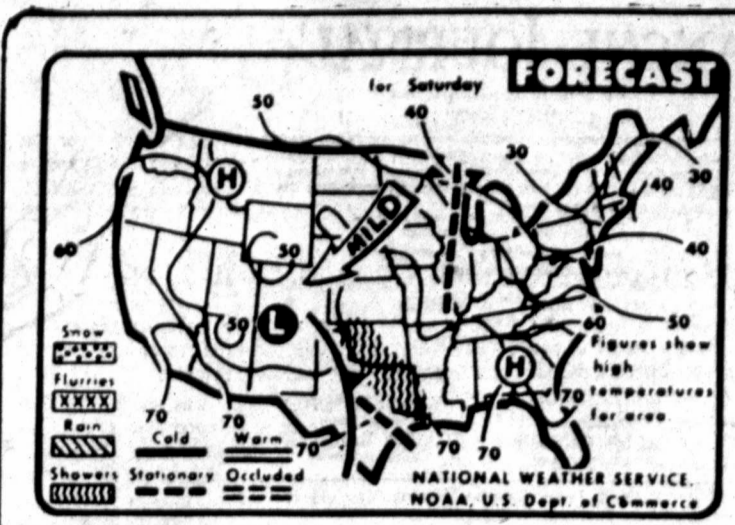

Athletic Affairs will be directed by Formby, with assistance from Pevehouse and new board member John E. Birdwell II of Lubbock.

James Snyder of Baird is chairman of the Campus and Building Committee, assisted by Furr and Birdwell.

Bucy heads the Executive Committee, with Galloway as vice chairman and Snyder as the third member of the group.

Each committee will be responsible for its area as it pertains not only to the university but also the Health Sciences Center. The only exception to that is the Athletic Affairs Committee, which pertains only to the university.

The committees will meet March 26 and the next meeting of the full board of regents is slated for March 27. It will be the first time for newly appointed regents Fuller, Mrs. Phillips and Birdwell to serve.

Da Vinci Manuscript Bought By American

LONDON (AP) — Armand Hammer, head of Occidental Petroleum Corp. of Los Angeles, was granted an export license Friday for a Leonardo da Vinci manuscript purchased for $5.6 million at an auction in January.

No museum in Britain was able to match the price to keep the work in this country, the government said.

Hammer told a news conference that the 15th century Italian genius' 36-page manuscript about water, formerly known as the Leicester Codex after the Earls of Leicester who owned it, will now be known as the Hammer Codex.

DEREGULATION DILEMMA

Foes Are First To Cry Foul

IN TRYING to deliver on its promise of deregulation from top to bottom, the new administration is going to run up against a problem that may not have been anticipated: How do you deregulate an industry that wants to remain regulated?

The business community doesn't really want to see all government regulation eliminated, rather just the rules it considers restricting.

Examples abound. For instance, television station owners continually complain about the FCC restrictions on what they can broadcast.

But let someone suggest that the FCC cease all of its regulatory activities—that restrictions be lifted on the establishment of new TV stations, networks and cable systems—and cries of foul are heard from broadcasters across the land.

THE CLASSIC case is the trucking industry. The previous administration started the deregulation of transportation with the airlines and continued with trucking. So, it would be natural to assume that trucking also would be one of the first deregulation targets.

Don't count on it. Some of the highest officials in the administration were paid handsome sums of money in their previous jobs to oppose any deregulation of the trucking industry.

They can be expected to counsel the President against trucking deregulation.

SIGNAL TO U.S. ALLIES

Defense Gap Needs Mending

ALTHOUGH IT appears inadvisable for the administration to pressure them at this time, Japan and members of the NATO Alliance must assume greater responsibility for their own defenses, either physically or financially.

Certainly, our allies cannot be expected at this time to raise their real growth in defense spending up to an order of magnitude approaching that of either the Soviet Union or their American ally.

However, the U.S. should seek from its allies a consensus as to the seriousness of the Soviet threat, the inadequacy of past plans and programs, and a commitment to increase their defense burden gradually—in spite of economic stringencies, which the U.S. also faces.

"THROUGHOUT THE past three years, the commitment of NATO's allies to the defense of Western Europe has been gauged in terms of whether they were meeting the 1978 pledge to a three percent annual real growth in defense spending," according to the current issue of National Security Record.

By late 1980, however, it became apparent that due to low economic growth, high inflation and budgetary constraints, most of our European allies would fail to meet the three percent real growth pledge this year.

Michael Deaver is the President's deputy chief of staff and may be his closest political confidant. Before moving to the White House, Deaver headed a California public-relations firm that was retained by the California Trucking Association to oppose deregulation.

Robert Gray was head of communications for the Reagan campaign and co-chairman of the inaugural committee.

UNTIL RECENTLY, Gray headed the Washington office of Hill and Knowlton, the public-relations firm that ran a big anti-deregulation campaign for the American Trucking Association.

James Baker sat on the board of a major trucking firm before he became the White House chief of staff.

Last but not least there is talk of deregulating the banking industry. But small bankers say a proposal to allow banks to establish branches in other states would cause little banks to be swallowed up by bigger ones.

All of this poses a dilemma for the administration. Philosophically, the President and his aides favor maximum deregulation of all industry.

Practically, they may have to settle for deregulation of only those industries that want to be deregulated. Many doctrinaire Reaganites might find this latter position untenable. But, at least, it would be a step in the right direction.

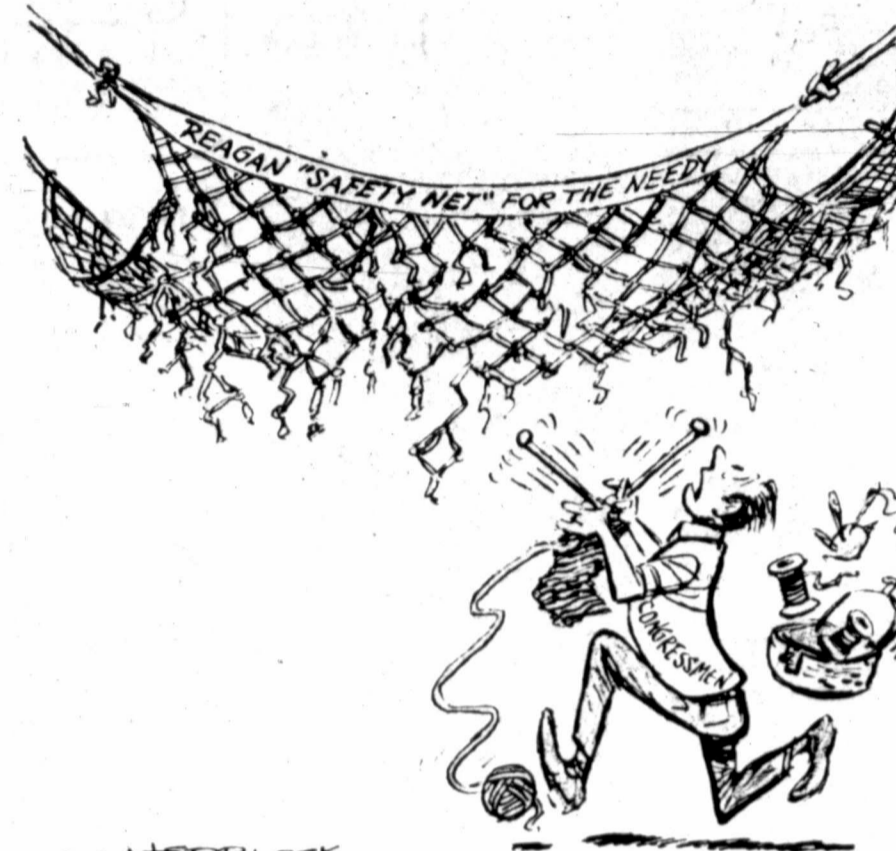

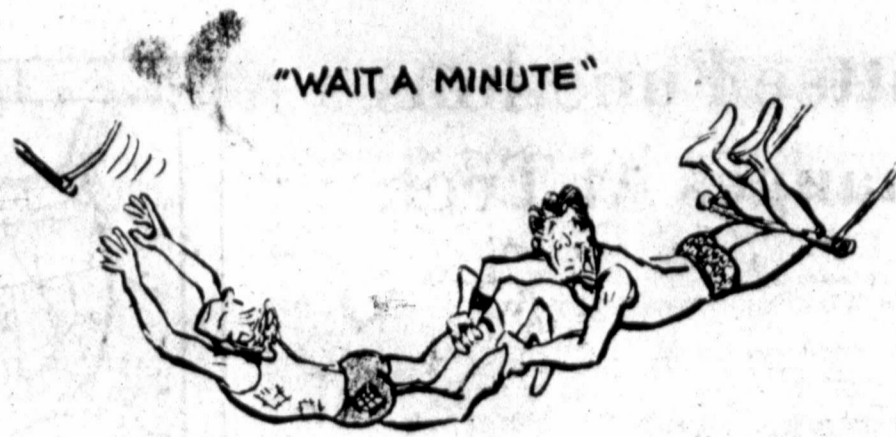

The Wall Street Journal this week reported that West Germany, for example, is seeking to restrain its defense outlays—after a decade of growth.

Hans Apel, the country's defense minister, said over the weekend that an analysis of the medium-term defense budget disclosed approximately $1.08 billion in scheduled outlays for 1982-1984 that couldn't be met.

TO CLOSE the budgetary gap, Apel said, commitments for new weapons would have to be delayed or canceled.

The true measure of leadership for the U.S. is to act now (in the midst of a critical economic and budgetary crisis of its own) to increase substantially its defense spending and revise the security policies it has followed over the past decade.

Such action would signal to our allies that we are serious about redressing the military imbalance, and that they, too, can join in this task, provided the political will exists to do so.

GEORGE F. WILL:

One Party's System

WASHINGTON—Perhaps it was inevitable that the reformers loose in the Democratic Party after 1968, who had so many ideas, would eventually have one that was reasonable.

Certainly it was probable that the liberal party would make even a sensible idea an instrument for litigation, provoking the Supreme Court into a mistaken diminution of a state's freedom.

That is what happened with the reformers' idea that Democratic Party decisions should be made by Democrats.

Wisconsin has an "open" primary: Members of any party, and independents, can vote in either the Democratic or Republican primary without any public declaration of affiliation.

But after 1968, the Democratic Party set about

ANDREW TULLY:

Odds On The NTU

WASHINGTON—Ronald Reagan's attempt to reduce federal spending poses a hard question for members of Congress. Do they have the guts to vote against Big Labor? The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People? The League of Women Voters?

The Reagan honeymoon has come to a jarring halt. A new "Budget Coalition" opposed to spending cuts at this writing includes 157 different groups, all with expertise in telling Congress to do it their way or else.

The membership is frighteningly impressive: It includes the AFL-CIO, United Mine Workers, the National Education Association, the Consumer Federation of America, the American Agriculture Movement, the U.S. Catholic Conference, the National Council of Senior Citizens and the Sierra Club.

WHEW! MOST people in Congress would not like to be caught offending even one of those outfits.

It is no good dismissing the "Budget Coalition" as just another special interest group. It is the specialist interest groups that usually control most of the votes on Capitol Hill.

A Congressman from West Virginia will defy the UMW at his peril. The member from Detroit is not about to tell blacks to get lost. Nor, for that matter, do many Congressmen dare to cross swords with Big Business.

That's the bad news for Ronald Reagan. The good news is that the National Taxpayers Union is going for it battle.

THE NTU also is a special interest group. But it represents the faceless taxpayers who have to think a few times these days before deciding to buy a steak instead of a pound of bologna.

The NTU doesn't get much publicity. After all, it has only 110,000 dues-paying members. It is not a big spender. But it does do its homework in the form of research that comes up with figures on the Republic's lousy health.

According to the NTU's experts, state, local, and federal governments cost the average family more than $12,000 a year. Those experts figure that the average taxpayer spends at least five months a year working to pay all taxes, direct and hidden. The serfs in the Dark Ages, it is noted, spent only three months toiling for their masters.

THE NTU is working for enactment of two constitutional amendments. One would prohibit government from taking more than 25 percent of your income.

The other would mandate a balanced budget; so far, 30 states have voted approval of that one, with only four more needed in order to force Congress to pass the Amendment.

I don't know whether the NTU has all the answers. Maybe nobody does. But the NTU is trying to do something about the high cost of government, which has become terrifying.

More important, the NTU works for all taxpayers, not just those who belong to a special-interest group.

"opening" the party—but only to people who claim "a stake in the Democratic Party." In 1974, the party adopted a charter which says: "The National Convention shall be composed of delegates who are chosen through processes which...restrict participation to Democrats only..."

The 1980 rules said delegates must be selected in processes "restricted to Democratic voters who publicly declare their party preference and have that preference publicly recorded."

Wisconsin's primary is not only open to all, it is binding. Although the primary does not choose delegates—they are chosen elsewhere, by Democrats only—state law requires that the delegates' votes at the convention be allocated in accordance with the primary results.

WISCONSIN'S SUPREME Court held against the national Democratic Party's contention that the state law unconstitutionally burdens the party's freedom of political association.

Wisconsin's court held that the open primary, including the binding provision, serves compelling state interests by encouraging voter participation and minimizing "machine" control of the process.

Those strike me as perverse aims, but federalism should involve a state's rights to some perversity. And Wisconsin certainly adores its primacy. In 1979 Wisconsin's Senate voted unanimously, and the Assembly voted 92-1, to reaffirm the open primary.

However, in the U.S. Supreme Court, Justice Potter Stewart, speaking for a six-man majority, said, in effect:

SHUCKS. WE settled this in 1975. Then we held that an Illinois court had erred in enjoining the Democratic convention from barring delegates (Mayor Daley and friends) selected in accordance with Illinois law but not in accordance with party rules.

The crucial point, said Stewart, is that freedom to associate for the advancement of political beliefs "presupposes the freedom to identify the people who comprise the association, and to limit the association to those people only."

Dissenting, and joined by Justices Harry Blackmun and William Rehnquist, Justice Lewis Powell responded, in effect (but politely): Fiddlesticks! The majority, he said, incorrectly regards Wisconsin's law as comparable to one regulating delegate selection.

BUT WISCONSIN simply says how the delegates, however selected, must behave relative to primary results. The relevant party rule pertains to the selection process.

Powell indicated that he might have thought otherwise were the Democratic Party "an organization with a particular ideological orientation or political mission."

American parties are characterized by "fluidity"—an exquisitely polite word—of philosophy and membership. That is less true of the Republican Party today, but true enough of both.

Powell put his most interesting point in a footnote, where he said Wisconsin's primary law actually reads: "Voters...shall...be given an opportunity to express their preference for the person to be the presidential candidate of their party."

NOTE THE words: "their party." The law suggests that voting for a candidate for a party's nomination amounts to affiliating with that party.

Most primaries are "closed," but the difference between a "closed" and an "open" primary can be trivial. In Illinois "closed" primary, a voter shows up at the polling place, states his or her party preference, and is given that party's ballot.

The national Democratic Party regards this as a public declaration of affiliation, publicly recorded—this act in the instant before voting. Yet the national party contends that Wisconsin's law raises issues of constitutional dimension, issues so important that a state tradition eight decades old, and recently reaffirmed, must be overturned.

Perhaps the state party now understands why Republicans say that the strongest constitutional argument for Wisconsin's law is this: Forcing anyone to make public his or her affiliation with the national Democratic Party constitutes cruel and unusual punishment.

ROBERT WALTERS:

Matters Of Fact

WASHINGTON—The most surprising element in the continuing saga of Labor Secretary Raymond J. Donovan is not the persistence of allegations about his business background but rather how the Senate ever approved his selection.

While the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee considers the most recent charges of collusion between organized-crime figures and Donovan's former company, the public ought to know more about the material already on the record.

Several of the incidents explored in detail at Donovan's January confirmation hearings are so disturbing that an objective observer can only conclude that the Senate decided to give pro forma approval to President Reagan's nomination rather than seriously consider the case on its merits.

THOSE INCIDENTS involve the Schiavone Construction Co. of Secaucus, N.J., a firm that Donovan and Raymond Schiavone, the company's president, founded 22 years ago.

One of the two principal stockholders in the enterprise, Donovan has been its executive vice president since 1959.

One case involves a successful attempt in late 1977 by a New York City local of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters to place a "ghost employee" (one who performed no work but nevertheless drew a salary) on the Schiavone Construction Co. payroll.

Approximately one year later, the Justice Department subpoenaed three of the company's employees and its records as part of an investigation into efforts by the union to extort money from various firms through such schemes.

AMONG THOSE called to testify before a federal grand jury was Joseph DiCarolis, senior vice president of the company.

"He is my friend of 20 years," Donovan told the Senate committee. "His office is adjacent to mine."

But in an explanation that defies credulity, Donovan testified that DiCarolis failed to even mention the affair to both of his bosses, company president Schiavone and executive vice president Donovan.

Donovan testified that he "was totally unaware of it" before being apprised of the events by the Senate committee.

Even more unnerving is another incident involving the activities of Irving Kantor, a New Jersey businessman who created a phony company, the Kantor Supply Co., on behalf of another man, Joseph Biancone.

IN COURT testimony during a 1970 federal trial, Kantor said the dummy corporation was established as a money-laundering operation to issue fictitious invoices to various companies as a device to collect money from them.

Biancone "said certain contractors had to pay cash to his boss," Kantor testified. The boss was Anthony "Tony Boy" Boiardo, identified during Donovan's confirmation hearings as "an organized-crime figure."

In a sworn statement given to federal law-enforcement officials in 1970, Kantor said he decided to disclose details of the illegal scheme because "I want to help destroy—I want to help cure the illness of—organized crime."

In August 1967, Donovan authorized a Schiavone Construction Co. payment of $13,000 to the Kantor Supply Co., ostensibly for the use of Kantor property to dump material excavated during a construction project.

BUT THE Kantor Supply Co. owned no land. "It was just a name," Kantor testified, "for the purpose of having invoices" used to justify payments that found their way back to mobsters and to crooked politicians in Newark, N.J.

At his confirmation hearing, Donovan admitted that he subsequently learned that the land probably was not owned by Kantor—but he failed to explain adequately why he did not seek to have the $13,000 payment refunded.

The conclusion is inescapable: Donovan's disconcerting testimony suggests that both the President and the Senate have failed to provide the country with a Labor Department leader of unquestioned integrity.

L.M. BOYD:

Pass It On...

Q WHY IS a shopping mall called a "mall"?
 A Came a long way around from "mallet." You've heard of that old game Pall Mall? First, the name identified the mallet used to hit the ball. Then it was the name of the place where the game was played—an alley, a courtyard, a field. Then the placename was shortened simply to mall.

Q Isn't it true that people from generation to generation are getting broader across the beam?

A Men, yes. Women, no. The chairmakers keep track of such statistics. They assume this growth results from the fact that men are sitting more and walking less. But the women are sitting more and walking less, too, so that might not explain it.

Q How many calories in a one-ounce shot of bourbon?

A Check the label. As many calories as the proof. If it's 86 proof, it's 86 calories.

Safety Commission Fights Against Funding Cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission, fighting for funds against the Reagan administration's proposed cuts, said Friday the administration plan would undermine public confidence in the safety of products.

Acting Chairman Stuart Stalter told a House subcommittee the administration proposal would "mean severely limiting collection of injury information, investigation of causes of injuries to prevent their recurrence, and enforcement of existing standards and bans."

The administration has proposed cutting the commission's original budget of $44.6 million by about $12 million. Stalter said this would not allow the relatively small agency enough money to enforce all the laws it now administers and said that would lead to more injuries.

Stalter said manufacturers would lose an incentive to design safety into their products. Consumer confidence in the safety of products eventually would suffer, he said.

The four commissioners supported a bill by subcommittee Chairman Henry Waxman, D-Calif., to authorize $45 million for the agency in fiscal 1982.

The appearance was the first chance for the commissioners to tell Congress their opinion of the administration budget proposal. Ultimately, Congress must decide the issue.

The administration's budget proposal would allow much work to continue at the safety agency, Stalter said. "But our ability to anticipate and prevent other hazards from claiming lives and injuries will be severely diminished," he said.

Dr. Joseph Greensher told of his inability to get some toy manufacturers to agree to make small parts from a substance that will appear on X-rays until the commission put pressure on the companies. The change means that a small part can be located if a child swallows one.

"Without the commission, we would have been right back where we were 20 years ago — whistling in the dark," he testified.

CIA Boss Rules Out Domestic Espionage

WASHINGTON (AP) — The deputy director of the CIA, seeking to defuse a controversy over domestic spying, told the Senate Intelligence Committee on Friday he believes the CIA should limit its work to other countries.

Navy Adm. Bobby Inman was called before a closed meeting of the committee which questioned him for two hours about a proposed presidential order expanding CIA authority to include surveillance of American citizens.

Afterwards, Sen. Daniel P. Moynihan of New York, the senior Democrat on the committee, said Inman "made clear his judgment ... that the job of the CIA is abroad."

"The CIA has no business involving itself in domestic operations, much less those directed against American citizens," Moynihan said.

Some of the proposals in the draft order "are off the wall," Moynihan said.

"Some of them are reasonable."

"Anything which reactivates the CIA as an internal agency of our government dealing with U.S. citizens in the United States would be a great mistake," the senator said.

Earlier in the week, Inman told The New York Times I'm doing my damnedest to keep this train from running off into one where we do end up with a series of repugnant changes for which I would not stay in this administration."

Neither Inman nor the committee chairman, Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., would comment after the meeting with nine members of the panel plus Sen. Jeremiah Denton, R-Ala., chairman of a new Senate Judiciary subcommittee on terrorism.

But Moynihan quoted Inman as saying "no decisions have been made" on an expanded role for the CIA.

The draft order was described by Moynihan as having been prepared by middle-level CIA, FBI, Defense Department and National Security Agency officials seeking new ways to combat terrorism.

The proposed order would permit the CIA or FBI to use break-ins, surveillance or infiltration to keep track of American citizens or companies, no matter whether they were suspected of illegal activities.

The agency also would be permitted to influence the activities of some domestic organizations which have foreign ties.

The attorney general would lose his authority to heads of intelligence agencies to approve such activities.

The draft order would revise or replace a 1978 directive that President Jimmy Carter issued in response to widespread abuses by the CIA in the 1950s and 1960s.

Moynihan said the new document is not a proposed executive order as described in most press accounts. Instead, he said, it is a list of possible changes, none of which has been agreed to by senior officials of any government agency, including CIA Director William Casey, who has yet to see the document.

Moynihan said the committee will have a chance to review any proposed changes before they go to the National Security Council or to President Reagan.

The draft order was sent to the Intelligence Committee two weeks ago for review, Moynihan said.

As a result of the controversy, one senior CIA official who requested anonymity, said, "Everyone is going back to the drawing boards."

Small Businesses Hit Hard By Credit Crunch

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Lowell Weicker Jr., chairman of the Small Business Committee, said Friday that many small businesses are "going belly up" in the credit crunch, and the proposed cuts in federal loans will only hasten their demise.

But Budget Director David Stockman, testifying before Weicker's panel, disputed the assertion: "The best assistance we can give to our small businesses is to reduce inflation and restore consumer confidence."

Stockman argued that President Reagan's economic program will create a positive climate for small businesses.

Roger Jones, acting administrator of the Small Business Administration, supported the loan cuts. "If anything, we came out rather well," Jones added.

The administration proposes a 25 percent reduction in both direct and guaranteed lending programs funded through the SBA's business loan and investment fund in 1982.

Current law for 1981 provides about $400 million for direct loans and authority to guarantee loans up to $4.5 billion.

Under the direct loan program, the government loans funds right to the borrower. The guarantee program guarantees up to 90 percent of the face value of a loan made by a private financial institution to a small business borrower.

The administration also proposes an increase in the interest rate charged for direct loans to make the rate comparable to those charged under the guaranteed lending program. The guaranteed rate is tied to the New York prime rate plus an additional 2 1/4 percent.

Stockman said the federal loan program "has been on a track that is totally unsustainable" for the good of the economy. "It is an explosive trend" that must stop, he said.

Stockman said all outstanding loans will rise from $200 billion in 1979 to $800 billion after 1982.

"We didn't single out SBA in particular," said Stockman. "This is part of the total effort to hold down federal loans."

Weicker, R-Conn., who disguised none of his dislike for the SBA cuts, said two things are killing small businesses: the high cost of money and the high cost of energy.

"And this (Stockman's) program doesn't do anything but exacerbate the problems of small business" because of the fewer federal loans that will be approved and the steeper interest rates for them, said Weicker.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., noting proposed stiffer criteria for disaster loans, said he was concerned that unless some farmers get disaster loans soon they won't be able to make early spring planting.

SBA head Jones said that the proposal changes the regulations so that farmers who can get credit through private business channels — such as banks — would no longer be eligible for SBA disaster loans.

Cigarette Smoking Increase Possible

WASHINGTON (AP) — Preliminary figures by the Agriculture Department showed Friday that a six-year downward trend in the average number of cigarettes smoked by Americans may have ended last year.

But officials said the downward trend may resume in 1981.

According to the report, per capita smoking averaged 3,924 cigarettes in 1980 — slightly more than 196 packs of 20 each. That was the same as the rate in 1979.

Robert H. Miller of the department's Economics and Statistics Service said the preliminary figures show that the per capita smoking rate leveled off after declining for six straight years.

"In 1973, there was an increase and then it declined every year since then, until 1980," Miller told a reporter.

Because of its elastic stomach, a frogfish can swallow a fish almost the same size as itself.

Bill Could Help County Health Services

By DEBBI STALTER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Proposed legislation to provide more state funding for local health departments may cause the state health board to "take a fresh look" at the Lubbock city-county split on public health services if the bill passes, a state official told The Avalanche-Journal Friday.

The legislation involved, Senate Bill 200, could mean as much as $400,000 in additional funds to the local operation over three bienniums, according to City Health Director Dr. Marjorie Orr.

But Dr. William R. Rothe, chief of the bureau of community health services with the state health department, said the mission of the legislation is to provide more money to city-county operations. The Lubbock City-County Health Department officially split in October 1976 after months of budget disputes.

A re-opening of the aspects of a joint department is again a possible consideration of the city health department. Dr. Orr said at Friday's health board meeting that SB 200 may require the city and county to get back together on health services.

Dr. Orr declined after the meeting to detail the split's implications under the upcoming bill.

Rothe, however, noted that if the bill passes, the separation could launch a new study of the Lubbock situation, in particular at funding time.

SB 200 provides a mechanism that would restructure funding to local operations as compared to state health department regional offices for rural areas.

In the past two decades, the state department concentrated its efforts on the regional offices, thereby placing more emphasis on residents of rural areas and reducing attention given to local departments' needs, the bill states.

Dr. Orr estimates that should the bill pass, the city department could receive a 33 percent increase in funding from the state, which now totals about 7 percent of the city health department's budget.

Rothe said Friday that although the legislation has no power to force the city and county to re-unite, the split decision may be a factor in funding because the distribution is intended for city-county operations.

He said the state department has tried for some time to encourage city and county cooperation on services, but to no avail. He explained the cooperative action is pushed because of the cost effectiveness involved if the two entities work together.

He said if the bill passes, a renewed interest probably would be raised in the Lubbock operation and probably would require a decision by the State Board of Health as to whether the divided operation would be acceptable.

Should the board decide to not support the split, Rothe said a denial of funding would be a possibility. He added, however, he does not feel this situation would actually occur — that a compromise would be reached instead.

Dr. Orr noted at the local meeting Friday indications have been the bill will pass, but whether appropriations are made to back it will be a tough situation. "There's a good chance the governor will veto it," she told board members.

If the bill's funding comes through, she said a program for addressing chronic disease in geriatrics might be a possibility for the local operation, as well as upgraded services in environmental health, such as sanitation control.

Dr. Orr lauded the possibility that categorical grants from the federal government may be replaced by block grants to the state, leaving distribution decisions to state, rather than federal, officials.

"Frankly, I think this is a good thing," she said. "I think it should be put back at the local and state level."

Dr. Orr also emphasized the need for programs in preventive medicine and methods when future funding becomes available. She quoted a local hospital administrator as saying his facility has to "write off" half a million dollars in bad accounts because of patients brought to the private hospital from crime incidents.

She stressed the need not only for reduced crime and accident rates in lowering health costs, but also for methods to educate individuals by personal contact. Patients the city department sees, she said, only learn about health care through personal visits, not through mass media information.

"Disease has never been eradicated by treatment," she said, "only by prevention."

If prevention methods are not started, she added, "through insurance or taxes, one way or the other, we'll pay for it."

Air Controllers Begin Picketing

By LARRY ARNOLD
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Local air traffic controllers, emphasizing they are not on strike, plan to begin "informal picketing" at the Lubbock International Airport Sunday morning but said there will be no disruption of air service here.

Members of the Lubbock Tower Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization Local 452 are joining the nationwide picketing effort which will begin Sunday, the day the three-year contract with the Federal Aviation Administration expires.

At a Friday afternoon news conference, Lubbock PATCO President Marvin Franklin and Vice President Rick Frank stressed PATCO members will "never" support a work slow-down and for now there will not be a strike.

The PATCO officers said the 33 local employees will work their designated shifts, with off-duty employees manning the picket lines here. The picketers also will distribute leaflets explaining what PATCO is and what is at issue in the PATCO-FAA contract talks.

Franklin agreed that "overall, conditions here in Lubbock are good." He said Lubbock has 33 air traffic controllers working the shifts which require personnel 24-hours each day, seven days each week on rotating shifts. Some larger airports don't have that many employees, he noted.

However, the local group supports the national PATCO contract issues of retirement, hours of work, pay and improved aviation safety.

Franklin said in 1979, of the 345 air traffic controllers (other than supervisors) who retired, 307 took medical retirements. He added he personally knew of only one controller who had a "normal" retirement. The stress and "unusual occupational hazards" of the job need to be recognized in the retirement plans, Franklin said.

PATCO also is asking for a 32-hour work week. Frank said only France and the United States have a 40-hour week and PATCO members also must handle the traffic load of any five other countries combined, accounting for a greater work load for individual air traffic controllers.

In the area of pay, PATCO is seeking a new pay scale which is different from the government's general schedule scale. PATCO wants a scale that would recognize differences in locality as well as level of responsibility and experience.

Franklin also released a printed statement which in part reads: "We believe that our proposals are reasonable and justified. PATCO is committed to exhausting every means to resolve our differences and to avoid, if at all possible, a major confrontation that would inconvenience the public. We believe that it is important that the people we serve, those who depend on air transportation, be informed on the issues."

Picketing is scheduled for 12 hours on Sunday and Monday and then for one day every third day for at least a month.

Former Employer Gives Description Of Vehicle

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Authorities now believe a Bible-toting man, who attempted to rob two Lubbock women Sunday morning, drove off in a bright yellow Luv pickup just minutes before his alleged accomplice reportedly barricaded himself in a house and briefly held off police with an arsenal of weapons.

And, in another development, the purported accomplice, Franklin H. Payne, lost a bid in 140th District Court Friday morning to have bail set. Bail had been denied by Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy at the suspect's arraignment and Judge William Shaver upheld that action.

Lubbock County Jail officials were told Thursday that Payne, 41, who eventually left a 36th Street residence and surrendered, drove off from his place of employment in Dallas a week ago in the pickup, which has a ladder rack on the cab and a tool box attached to the side of the bed.

The vehicle's license plate number, according to Payne's employer, is RF-9644, and the serial number is CLN-14A8234467.

Lawmen have been looking for such a pickup, first described as faded red or orange in color, since the bizarre attempted holdup of Betty Jean Hensley, 56, and her 20-year-old daughter, Lisa, at their 3506 37th St. home about 10 a.m. Sunday.

The man who remained at large today reportedly was seen leaving the area in the pickup. Police say Payne, his alleged accomplice, attempted to force his way into the Hensley residence moments later and then broke into a 36th Street house after reportedly firing a machine gun at a pursuing police officer.

Payne, who refuses to identify the second man, eventually gave up and was taken into custody. Police found the man heavily armed and confiscated additional weapons inside the house in which he was holed up.

Payne's employer, J.D. Whitlock, owner of the Dallas-based Quick Fill Corp., said the accused man left work in the company pickup about 5 p.m. Friday. He said he did not learn of the electrician's arrest here until Monday when the man failed to show for work and company officials contacted his mother in Dallas.

Whitlock said he had hoped the arrest would lead to the discovery of his pickup.

Whitlock said Payne went to Lubbock several months ago because "he said he had some sick relatives to see." He said Payne, described as a quiet type, once approached a co-worker and asked, "Do you know of any poker games we could rob?"

Payne had been employed with the company, which maintains numerous service stations and convenience stores, for about 1½ years. He lives in Forney, about 25 miles north of Dallas.

 Mayor Pete Wilson and several dozen other people saw Gildred off on the flight which is expected to take 10 days with stops in Mexico, Guatemala, Nicaragua, Costa Rica, Panama and then Quito.
 Along the way, Gildred and retired Air Force Col. Wally Moore plan to hand out keys to the city of San Diego and commemorative medallions of his father's flight in 1931.

 "This is an old bird and we're going to be very cautious," Gildred said. "There are hazards to this trip, but we planned very well and won't be doing anything foolish."
 As a safety feature, Gildred will be followed by a chase plane, a Rockwell Turbo Commander flown by La Jolla financier William Black and Pete Cavitt.

Detective Reveals Story Of Witness In Atlanta

ATLANTA (AP) — A 10-year-old black youth says the last time he saw his friend Patrick Baltazar, the 19th of 20 black children slain in Atlanta, a "big man in a car" called to them, "Come here, you two boys."
 The youth said that when he and the 11-year-old Baltazar declined, the man promised, "I'll be back," and drove off.
 The two boys went to a streetside telephone booth where they called police, according to the youth.
 Fearful that the man might return before the arrival of the promised patrol car, the two nervous youths departed separately for their respective homes, he said. The youth, who has not been identified, said he never saw his friend again.
 Baltazar was last seen Feb. 6 and his body was found a week later behind an office complex in suburban DeKalb County. No date has been given for the purported encounter with the man.
 The youth's story was revealed by retired city detective W.K. Perry, the former head of the police force's homicide squad and a frequent critic of the 80-member task force investigating the 20-month string of slayings.
 Public Safety Commissioner Lee P. Brown said Friday he was aware of the youth's claims but said he would "neither confirm nor deny" that police had a record of any such call. Perry said members of the task force had talked to the youth Tuesday.
 Perry released part of a taped conversation he had with the youngster Wednesday about the man's daytime approach from his car window, including the following section that was broadcast late Thursday by local station WSB-TV:
 "He said 'Come here you two boys. Patrick started to the car. I grabbed him from behind. I said, 'You don't know who that man is.'
 "Then he was going up the hill, he said 'I'll be back.' Then Patrick ran out and tried to get his tag number but we couldn't get it."
 Perry said Baltazar was a streetwise kid who had told friends he wanted to earn the $100,000 reward being offered for the killer's capture.
 The detective said the victim's friend feared that Baltazar may have allowed himself to get close to the driver because he was still seeking to get his license plate number.
 Meanwhile, Mayor Maynard Jackson expressed frustration Friday that despite months of warnings the city's street children continue to abandon caution when strangers offer money.

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Three sisters who took a short ride in a delivery van while clad only in shoes and mustard were convicted Friday of indecent exposure and jorjiding.
 An Ingham County Circuit Court jury returned the verdicts after four hours of deliberation.
 The women showed no emotion when the verdicts were read and left the court room without speaking. Judge Thomas Brown agreed to allow them to remain free on bond pending sentencing April 15.
 The women claimed they were seized with religious fervor and set out to spread the word of God.
 Doshaline McCuin, 30, Charlene Roper, 27, and Sandra Lewis, 26, all divorcees who share a house in Lansing Township, could get 90 days in jail on the first charge and two years in prison on the second.
 In addition, Mrs. Lewis was found guilty but mentally ill, meaning, under Michigan law, any sentence she receives must be accompanied by psychiatric treatment.
 The trio, insisting no crime was committed, had rejected an offer to plead guilty to reduced charges and went on trial Tuesday in Ingham County Circuit Court.
 Four psychologists testified that the women, one of whom has a history of mental illness, experienced a bizarre "group phenomenon" fueled by their intense devotion to a religious television show.

 Witnesses said the sisters, who drove the van a short distance to a local police station, were slathered with mustard and mayonnaise and had pickle relish in their hair.
 Defense lawyer John Mertz said none of the women would deny what she had done but argued none had any criminal intent.
 But Assistant County Prosecutor Don Williams told the jury of eight women and four men that "intent is not something written on their foreheads. Intent is shown by their actions."

Consumers Becoming Cautious About Utilizing Bank Credit

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Today's shoppers are thinking twice before saying "charge it."

It is one year since the government clamped down on credit to try to slow borrowing and curb inflation. The controls lasted less than four months. But the cost of credit went up, inflation is still a problem, and consumers seem reluctant to pile up new debts.

Sandra J. McLaughlin, senior vice president of the Mellon Bank in Pittsburgh, said the use of bank credit cards during the first two months of 1981 was down "rather substantially."

A Chicago bank said that holders of its Visa and MasterCard charged almost one-fifth less this January than they did a year earlier.

And Visa customers nationwide are using their cards less often each month. "People are using the card a little more carefully," said Cynthia Chaddick of Visa, adding that there are fewer active accounts today than there were two years ago, although the number of cardholders has increased.

not only on bank credit cards — increased by less than 1 percent during 1980, but in 1979, outstanding debt rose by 13 percent.

During January 1981, the board said, outstanding debt increased by $869 million, on a seasonally adjusted basis. That compares with an increase of about $1.6 billion in December and an increase of $1.4 billion in January 1980.

The government imposed restrictions on March 14, 1980 to discourage lenders from extending more credit. The annual rate of inflation at the time was 18 percent and Carter administration officials said excessive borrowing was part of the trouble. The controls were lifted early in July, amid warnings that the housing and auto industries were being seriously hurt because people couldn't borrow to buy homes or automobiles. Consumers remained careful, however.

Mrs. McLaughlin said the average outstanding Visa and MasterCard balance for Mellon Bank cardholders in 1980 was 2 1/2 percent less than it was in 1979. "That is the first time we have shown a year-to-year decrease," she said. As of Feb. 28, 1981, there was almost 4 percent less credit outstanding on the bank's Visa and MasterCard than there was a year earlier: volume during the first two months of this year was down almost 9 percent, Mrs. McLaughlin said.

The annual interest rate on Mellon-issued credit cards is 15 percent for purchases and 12 percent for cash advances. Pennsylvania law prohibits higher charges.

In most states, however, usury ceilings have been raised — or even eliminated — in recent months. Many banks increased interest rates and imposed annual fees for the traditionally "free" cards.

The higher costs and an annual inflation rate that is still almost 10 percent apparently are making many Americans reluctant to "buy now and pay later."

"The fact that people are getting more cautious about credit is a direct relection of the economy," Mrs. McLaughlin said. She also said that people are "more aware of the cost of credit."

Phyllis Daignault, a spokeswoman for Citibank in New York, blamed the "economy in general" for the fact that the average sales total on Visa and MasterCard issued by the bank was 2 1/4 percent less in February 1981 than it was a year earlier.

Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Co. of Chicago said dollar purchases by holders of Visa and MasterCard in January were 16.3 percent less than in the same month of 1980; the number of transactions was down by 21.9 percent. The amount owed to the bank on outstanding credit cards is 4.7 percent less than it was a year ago.

Fritz Lyon, a spokesman for MasterCard, said the number of accounts and cardholders increased slightly from the third quarter of 1979 to the third quarter of 1980.

Legislator Seeking Clinic Name Change

A-J Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — Odessa Rep. Jay Gibson has proposed legislation which would change the name of the Permian Basin Regional Academic Health Center to the Richard C. Slack Regional Academic Health Center.

Slack served in the House of Representatives for 28 years before being defeated in 1980. Slack, from Pecos, represented a district which included part of Odessa.

The center is part of the Texas Tech University System.

Gibson's bill has been referred to the House Committee on Higher Education.

Arab Billionaire's Wife Makes Plea For Los Angeles Divorce Trial

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A lawyer for Soraya Khashoggi asked a Superior Court judge Friday to put her on the stand and hear for herself why her $2.5 billion divorce suit — largest in history — should be tried in California.

Attorney Harold Rhoden made a plea for a special hearing to be held before Judge John A. Loomis rules on whether the unusual case should be tried in California, England or Saudi Arabia.

Attorneys for her husband, Adnan Khashoggi, the Arab billionaire who made his fortune in the international arms market, say England would be the best forum for resolving the dispute.

However, Mrs. Khashoggi, who lives in Los Angeles, says she can't afford to travel to England or stay there during a trial. In addition, Rhoden said England could conceivably "rule that their courts have no jurisdiction either."

"We want to call Soraya Khashoggi to the witness stand, and we want your honor to bear her testimony and see her," he said.

Lawyer John McDonough, who represents Khashoggi, argued that Rhoden and his associate, celebrity lawyer Marvin Mitchelson, had failed to prove in massive depositions and documents that California courts have jurisdiction over the Arab billionaire's private life.

McDonough said that although Khashoggi owned corporations in California, including two banks, the law differentiates between corporations and individuals.

Mrs. Khashoggi is the former Sandra Jarvis-Daley of England who wed Khashoggi when she was a teen-ager and he a struggling businessman.

Khashoggi favors a trial in Saudi Arabia, but Mitchelson says if his client were to return to Saudi Arabia she could be "stoned to death" as an adulteress.

Mrs. Khashoggi gave birth to a daughter six months ago. She declines to reveal the father's identity.

Khashoggi, known as the most powerful middleman in arms sales to the Arab world and one of the world's richest men, has accumulated a fortune estimated by his wife at $5 billion. She seeks half of the wealth.

The Khashoggis separated in 1974 and Khashoggi claims they were divorced by proxy under Moslem law in Beirut. His wife says that divorce was invalid because she didn't know about it.

Governor Boosting B-1 Bomber Plans

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. James Rhodes on Friday urged President Reagan to select the B-1 developed by North American Rockwell Corp. "to fill America's need for a multi-role bomber."

The Republican governor said that President Carter erred in canceling work on the B-1, a move he claimed cost Ohio 18,000 jobs directly and another 83,000 from related companies.

Glen Campbell Released From Hospital

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Singer Glen Campbell was released Friday from Donelson Hospital where he had been treated for two days after complaining of severe neck and head pains.

Campbell, 44, was in Nashville taping a "Country Comes Home" program for CBS television with his fiancée, singer Tanya Tucker, 21, and others when he complained of the pains Tuesday night.

Dr. Jerry Maynard admitted Campbell on Wednesday morning after the singer said he was still suffering from the pains.

Maynard said X-rays showed no fractures or tumors.

"I understand that a week or so ago, while in Hawaii, he fell, injuring his neck and ribs. Reports that he was hurt in an automobile wreck are erroneous."

MONKEY MAMA — Tanya, a domesticated chimp, has made monkey history by giving birth to a healthy, three-pound son. Researchers say Tanya is the first of her species to give birth after living with a human family isolated from other chimps. ## Reagans Arrive In Big Apple To Attend Ballet

NEW YORK (AP) — President Reagan, wrapping up a week of budget-cutting and diplomacy, arrived in New York on Friday to see a Broadway musical and watch his son dance in the ballet.

Thousands of people lined the streets of mid-town Manhattan during rush hour as Reagan's motorcade rode along streets cleared of traffic to his suite at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel. Thousands more were trapped in a traffic jam off the motorcade route.

The president planned a private evening with his wife in their suite with no public appearances scheduled.

He arrived on Air Force One at Kennedy Airport and flew by helicopter to the motorcade downtown.

It will be the first time the president and Mrs. Reagan have seen their son, Ronald, 23, perform. He will dance Sunday night at a black-tie gala called "Diana Ross and the Joffrey Ballet at the Met."

On Saturday, Reagan will be interviewed by the staff of the New York Daily News before traveling to the "Little Italy" section of the city for a luncheon with Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, a Republican who unseated GOP veteran Jacob Javits last year.

The president also planned to meet later in the day at his hotel with Mayor Edward Koch, who has his own ideas about how Reagan can pare government spending.

Saturday night, the Reagans plan to attend "Sugar Babies," billed as a burlesque musical starring Mickey Rooney and Ann Miller.

Army Criticizes High Schools

DARMSTADT, West Germany (UPI) — American high schools have become so bad that the U.S. Army finds many graduates have trouble reading and writing, the armed forces newspaper Stars and Stripes reports.

It said thousands of soldiers are deficient in basic skills.

The newspaper in a series on army education said Thursday the armed forces have discovered that diplomas often are no more than a joke as high schools lower their standards.

"Many secondary school graduates at army posts in Germany cannot read or write beyond fifth- or sixth-grade levels," it quoted education officers as saying. It said the problem is less acute in the Navy and Air Force.

The newspaper quoted a senior education services officer as saying "Just because an individual has a high school diploma doesn't mean he can read."

Many high school graduates lack the skills for the most routine jobs and army educators say the problem is getting worse, the newspaper said.

Trucker Convicted In Deaths

GRETNA, La. (AP) — A gasoline truck driver was convicted Friday of seven counts of negligent homicide for a fiery collision with a freight train that left seven people dead at a suburban New Orleans railroad crossing.

Glenn R. Russey, 37, of Baton Rouge, found guilty as charged by a jury of five men and one woman, faces a maximum penalty of 35 years on each of the seven counts.

District Judge Charles Gaudin said he will sentence Russey on April 2.

The indictment said Russey, driving a truck loaded with 8,600 gallons of gasoline, pulled around a barrier in an attempt to beat an oncoming train across the crossing in Kenner, La., last Nov. 25.

The train struck the truck broadside, triggering an explosion and fire that engulfed a car waiting at the crossing, a nearby barroom and an automobile upholstery shop.

A 6-month-old baby died in the car. Six people in the barroom also burned to death.

On Thursday, Russey testified that the brakes failed on the truck he was driving for Mobile Oil Corp. of Baton Rouge. Rebuttal witnesses called by the state said that wasn't so.

State trooper Willard Carter, considered an expert on air brake systems for trucks, said he examined Russey's rig twice after the accident and concluded the brakes were working.

Carter said, too, that rigs like the one driven by Carter are equipped with two brake systems, one of them a fail-safe system that automatically triggers when the first system fails.

Churches Seek TV Stations

By PAT GRAVES
A-J Religion Writer

Imagine coming home from work, plopping down in your favorite chair, punching your remote TV control and seeing the vacation Bible school from the church around the corner appear on the screen.

Although far-fetched, this is an example of what could happen if churches, religious organizations and individuals are able to avail themselves of the Federal Communication Commission's television expansion plan known as "low power TV."

The FCC announced in September 1980 it was simplifying rules to permit at least 3,000 new TV stations across the U.S. They would broadcast on channels between existing UHF and VHF stations, mostly within a 20-mile radius.

The small range (or low power) stations also could operate on full channels if they did not interfere with full service stations.

But the prospect of producing their own programs is what has such groups as the Southern Baptist Radio & Television Commission, the Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship International and broadcasting consultant Gary Bayer of Quality Media, a religious broadcasting technical firm, scrambling for applications.

Church News

What the FCC is doing is permitting translator stations, which in the past relayed programming from "mother" stations to remote areas, to originate their own signals, or rebroadcast from sources other than licensed TV stations.

Current examples are cable systems and Home Box Office and other programming sources which are not TV stations.

FCC attorney Molly Pauker said low power TV was created to satisfy the demand from all segments of society for more television outlets and greater diversity of sources for program matter. She said the investment for "neighborhood TV" is relatively small and would allow less affluent groups to get involved.

Miss Pauker added there was some risk in applying for a translator license, and the necessary waiver to originate programming instead of simply rebroadcasting, because FCC criteria on low power TV is not final.

But she admitted cancellation of the proposed program is unlikely since more than 3,000 applications already have been received. And an executive with a Texas firm that has filed 27 applications said the low power rules will become a reality, perhaps as soon as 2-3 weeks.

John Bird, vice president of Presidio Enterprises of Austin, said his company has applied for low power channels in almost every Texas city over 100,000 population, including Lubbock. He said about six companies have applied for Lubbock channels.

To his knowledge, no churches or religious groups have applied as yet. Pauker said most of the applicants are large organizations, financial consortiums and commercial interests.

These include Neighborhood TV, owned by Sears and Allstate; TV and baseball entrepreneur Ted Turner, who has filed 40 applications; Presidio Enterprises, a movie theater and real estate company; and Graphic Scanning, a Delaware-based computerized information transfer corporation.

Each of these concerns, except Turner, have filed for Lubbock channels. Although Bayer is leading something of a one-man crusade to get local churches and civic groups to realize the potential of low power TV, no such organizations have filed for Lubbock.

Miss Pauker said citizen groups are in the minority among applicants. Although the FCC is planning to limit common ownership to 15 stations, she predicted the larger owners would outnumber the smaller ones.

The Southern Baptist Radio & Television Commission has applied for 100 channels around the U.S., including San Antonio, Houston, Fort Worth and Albuquerque, N.M. Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship International has applied in Indiana and Illinois.

Other lesser known religious groups also have expressed an interest in low power TV. These include Davar Ministries, which applied in Beaumont, Christian Telecommunications, Inc., which applied in San Antonio, and Christian Communications, Inc., which applied in Albuquerque, N.M.

Bird said his firm is considering numerous programming options and remaining flexible. Although Presidio has established no specific goals, he said their low power stations would be commercial, not non-profit or public service.

He estimated Lubbock probably would not have a low power station in less than three years, but one could begin here as soon as six months from now.

In instances where two applicants are competing for the same area, Miss Pauker said the FCC will defer a ruling until the final criteria are completed, which could take another year. She indicated minority-owned firms and non-commercial groups would have the best chance in such situations.

"We would give preference to non-commercial, non-profit groups serving the general interest," Miss Pauker explained. "There is some question as to whether that might exclude religious groups."

She added low power TV would provide an opportunity for interested parties to take some of the control of TV away from the national networks, which she described as having "somewhat of a stranglehold" on programming.

That's where Gary Bayer comes in. The 29-year-old former psychologist has called the neighborhood TV concept "the most revolutionary development in broadcasting since the creation of the FM band." He is trying to organize grass roots applications so corporations, commercial interests, pornographers and organized crime do not gain control first.

Bayer sees low power TV as an avenue to ensure wholesome programming through local control, instead of by "... a few people in New York." Urging groups to act quickly, Bayer emphasizes the capital and technology required are not as great as some may think.

He puts the figure for FCC-required paperwork at $6,500, a VHF transmitter at $15,000, a UHF transmitter at $80,000 and a studio at $45,000. Bird and Miss Pauker said his estimates are perhaps a bit low but still close.

"If you want origination as well as rebroadcast capabilities, as we do, then $250,000 is the minimum," Bird pointed out. "If you want a less sophisticated studio, you can get by for much less."

Although he said he was unfamiliar with Bayer, Bird said there is a tendency toward oversimplification among some low power TV proponents, who overlook many expenses incurred in doing the job well.

"So many people are promoting themselves as low power gurus, that many well-intentioned people are going to have their feelings and their pocketbooks hurt."

Nevertheless, Bayer is travelling the country speaking and appearing at conventions.

Ironically, just last month in Fort Worth acting FCC Chairman Robert E. Lee told Southern Baptist Radio & Television Commission members at an awards ceremony they were accountable to the people and to God for their use of broadcasting.

He said the technological expansion of broadcasting is a gift from God to preach love to all people of all lands, but warned broadcasters not to be so enamored of its power that they forget its purpose.

Whether his encouraging words are mere rhetoric, or whether low power TV becomes an instrument for neighborhood religious programs, should be answered in the coming year.

Stay tuned.

Prayers Sought To End Atlanta Crisis

NEW YORK (AP) — The head of the National Council of Churches asked religious leaders throughout the country Friday to join in calling a national weekend of prayer March 27-29 for an end to the ordeal in Atlanta.

The Rev. William Howard, president of the inter-church organization which includes most major Protestant and Eastern Orthodox denominations, urged them and all other religious groups to join in devotions in behalf of Atlanta's people.

Twenty black children have been killed in Atlanta over the past 19 months and two are missing.

In a letter to Christian, Jewish, Moslem, Hindu and Buddhist leaders, Howard asked them, on the Sabbath of their faiths in the March 27-29 weekend, to focus prayerful concern on the Atlanta situation.

"I humbly request that you call upon all adherents to your faith to pray in this time period, according to your own traditions, for the end of this horrible nightmare," he said.

Saying each day brings further news of the "tragic situation," he added: "Little children are being killed and the entire black population is being terrorized by these heinous crimes."

Howard, a Baptist, noted that The situation "affects me in a special way" because he is a native Georgian, spent five student years in Atlanta and is black, with a young son.

He said he and the council's general secretary, Claire Randall, a Presbyterian, will meet next week in Atlanta with city officials to discuss the crisis.

In addition, the council's Church and Society Division is sponsoring a day-long panel discussion March 17 on the problem and related issues at the Ebenezer Baptist Church in Atlanta.

"More and more we recognize Atlanta as a national crisis," Howard said. "Clearly the deaths of 20 black children send a message to the black community in the entire United States."

"When they are put together with an attempt to recall the Voting Rights Act, the increasing visibility of the Ku Klux Klan and other signals, they seem to fit into a larger pattern that the black community rightly or wrongly feels is now emerging."

Ministry Council Urged To Seek Input

United Methodist Bishop Louis W. Schowengerdt urged the Lubbock-based Council on Ministries last week to seek input from the new conference leadership team on new and established extra-church programs.

The council, which oversees programs beyond those of the 254 churches in the 66-county Northwest Texas Annual Conference, met March 6-7 at the Wesley Foundation near Texas Tech University.

The 21 members of the leadership team represent men, women, youth, district superintendents, pastors, conference staff and elected members of the conference's three councils.

"I will chair the leadership team," the bishop explained, "but this is the place where you tell your bishop, 'I don't think that idea will work.' I want to know what you think and feel and want to see happen."

Schowengerdt was assigned to the denomination's New Mexico-Northwest Texas area last July following his election as bishop at the South Central Jurisdictional Conference in Little Rock, Ark.

Headquartered in Albuquerque, N.M., he acts as spiritual leader for the 154,000 United Methodists in the New Mexico and Northwest Texas Conferences.

Among the 24 reports presented to the council by boards and agencies was the name change proposal for the denominational newspaper presented by the Rev. Marvin James of Lubbock. He is council director and editor of the Northwest Texas edition of "The Texas Methodist/United Methodist Reporter."

The weekly newspaper, with a circulation of approximately $20,000 nationwide, is dropping "The Texas Methodist" from its title, James said, to more accurately reflect its scope. The publication now serves more than 40 U.S. conferences, not just the six in Texas in which it circulated a few years ago.

If the seven Texas and New Mexico conferences approve later this year, they will continue to own the largest weekly church newspaper in the country. It is operated within the Newspaper Division of the United Methodist Communications Council.

In other action the council:

— Approved a $129,545 budget for programming beyond the local churches;

— Set a "time action plan" to solicit needs from local congregations and develop programs to meet those needs;

— And established funding for a committee to plan the United Methodist bi-centennial celebration within the Northwest Texas Annual Conference.

Garner Ted Armstrong Starts Over In Texas

By MIKE COCHRAN

TYLER (AP) — He may be banished, but not broken, or even bent. At 51, Garner Ted Armstrong is as handsome and dashing as ever, his silver hair and silver tongue intact.

He is no longer the voice of "The World Tomorrow," as he had been when he was heir apparent to the Worldwide Church of God headed by his father. That was yesterday.

And yesterday was 4,500 radio programs, 720 television broadcasts, hundreds of magazine articles and thousands of sermons and Bible studies. It was world tours and world renown and the presidency of Ambassador College campuses in California, Texas and England.

Yesterday also was anger and acrimony, a bitter split between father and son in a power struggle that captured national headlines and resulted in the son's ouster.

For Garner Ted, yesterday is gone. But today he is back on the air on a smaller scale, the founder and voice of the Church of God International, modeled partly after his father's bigger, richer church.

Garner Ted launched his new church and new electronic ministry here in the piney woods of East Texas, some 1,500 miles from the lavish California Church of God compound he once called home.

It was there, in Pasadena in 1978, that he split with his father, Herbert W. Armstrong, 88, the self-styled "Chosen Apostle" of God.

"He ousted me," the younger Armstrong said in an interview at his comfortable, but leased, ministerial office on the southern fringe of Tyler.

"I didn't quit. He threw me out."

It was not the first time. The old man, claiming his son had slipped into the "bonds of Satan," earlier had ousted him in 1972 after a group of ministers accused him of sexual improprieties. He soon was reinstated that time, but suspicions lingered.

He said his father was "fighting a non-existent conspiracy," a sinister myth created by "party or parties unknown."

The younger Armstrong conceded he battled the church hierarchy "tooth and nail" to curb what he viewed as extravagant, wasteful and fraudulent spending. "I wanted the economy package, but I failed to get it," he sighed.

"I became like smoke to the eyes and vinegar to the teeth to my dad because of my constant disagreements."

In the stormy aftermath, church officials resurrected the old morality charges against the younger Armstrong, accused him of misuse of ecclesiastical cash and excommunicated him.

Herbert, who once said God had selected his son to succeed him, took over the "World Tomorrow" broadcasts.

"After they got rid of me, I became the whipping boy for everything that happened to that institution..." his son said.

"Then they began to get a little dirty about it — unpleasant and scurrilous innuendos. It was very sad. I would not get down in the gutter with them and I won't do it now."

He dismissed old and new charges as grossly distorted, unproven and decidedly never admitted.

Armstrong said he was surprised and a little mystified by a rash of recent developments in California that aroused speculation of a father-son reconciliation.

Lubbock Brothers To Sing In Concert

I shall not want

Sheep and shepherds are mentioned more than two hundred times in the Bible. Economically, that reflects the importance of sheep raising as a means of livelihood in Bible times. Religiously, it suggests that men saw in the pastoral scene vivid implications of religious experience.

Probably the best known passage in the Old Testament is the Twenty-third Psalm. Among the most beloved parables of Jesus in the New Testament are the Good Shepherd and the Lost Sheep. In these and many other verses of scripture the shepherd and his sheep are seen as symbols of God and man. Particularly they emphasize God's faithfulness to us and our dependence on God.

Sheep raising is not the heart of our economy today. But discovering our spiritual needs and realizing God's readiness to fulfill them — that is the religious quest to which the Bible continues to call men.

Stockman Says Changes Would Save $20 Billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — Budget director David A. Stockman said Friday the Reagan administration would not propose scaling back the cost-of-living adjustment in Social Security in its effort to bring the federal budget in line.

At the same time, Stockman told the House Ways and Means Committee's subcommittee on Social Security that the administration's proposed changes in Social Security benefits could save the system more than $20 billion over the next five years.

Describing the changes as "a good start" and "well-justified," he said they would contribute to Social Security's solvency in the short term.

The changes the Reagan administration has proposed in Social Security are: phasing out benefits for college students, limiting the amount of disability payments, eliminating the lump-sum death benefit where there are no surviving beneficiaries and scrapping the $122 minimum monthly benefit program.

"We have no intention to fight per se these recommendations," said Rep. J.J. Pickle, D-Texas, whose subcommittee has been holding a series of hearings on financing the Social Security system. The largest of the system's three trust funds — Old Age and Survivors Insurance — is expected to run short of money as early as next year.

Pickle said the panel had taken no position on the proposals and it wanted to cooperate with the administration in making whatever changes were needed to bolster the financially ailing system. "Whether we can do that or not remains to be seen," he said.

He expressed concern that in order to eliminate the minimum monthly benefit program, extra people would have to be hired to go through Social Security records to remove those benefits.

Extra Cost Defended

But Stockman said it would only be a one-time cost to hire people to do that work.

"It's a question of whether you're willing to spend a little money up front to save $5 billion in the future," he told Pickle.

Questioned about the administration's intentions concerning the annual, automatic cost-of-living increase in Social Security payments, the head of the Office of Management and Budget said, "We do not recommend a change in the existing cost-of-living adjustment for Social Security."

There has been increasing interest on the part of some members of Congress in saving money by reducing the adjustments in all federal benefits, which, according to estimates, may cost $22 billion in fiscal 1982.

Measurement Questioned

Stockman said, however, that while the administration wants benefits to reflect 100 percent of increases in the cost of living, there is some question about how accurately the Consumer Price Index — on which adjustments are based — measures inflation.

During periods of high inflation, he said, the CPI may over-react to rising prices because of such volatile factors as mortgage interest rates, while in periods of slower inflation it may "under-measure" inflation.

Robert A. Beck, chairman of the Prudential Insurance Co. of America and testifying on behalf of the Business Roundtable, endorsed the administration's proposals to eliminate the minimum monthly benefit program, phase out college students' benefits and tighten up the disability program.

Plan Opposed

But John Mallan of the American Association of State Colleges and Universities argued against phasing out the benefits to unmarried, full-time students, aged 18-22.

He contended the program "provides far more aid to needy low-and middle-income students than they would receive under the other federal student aid programs" that the administration says would fill the gap.

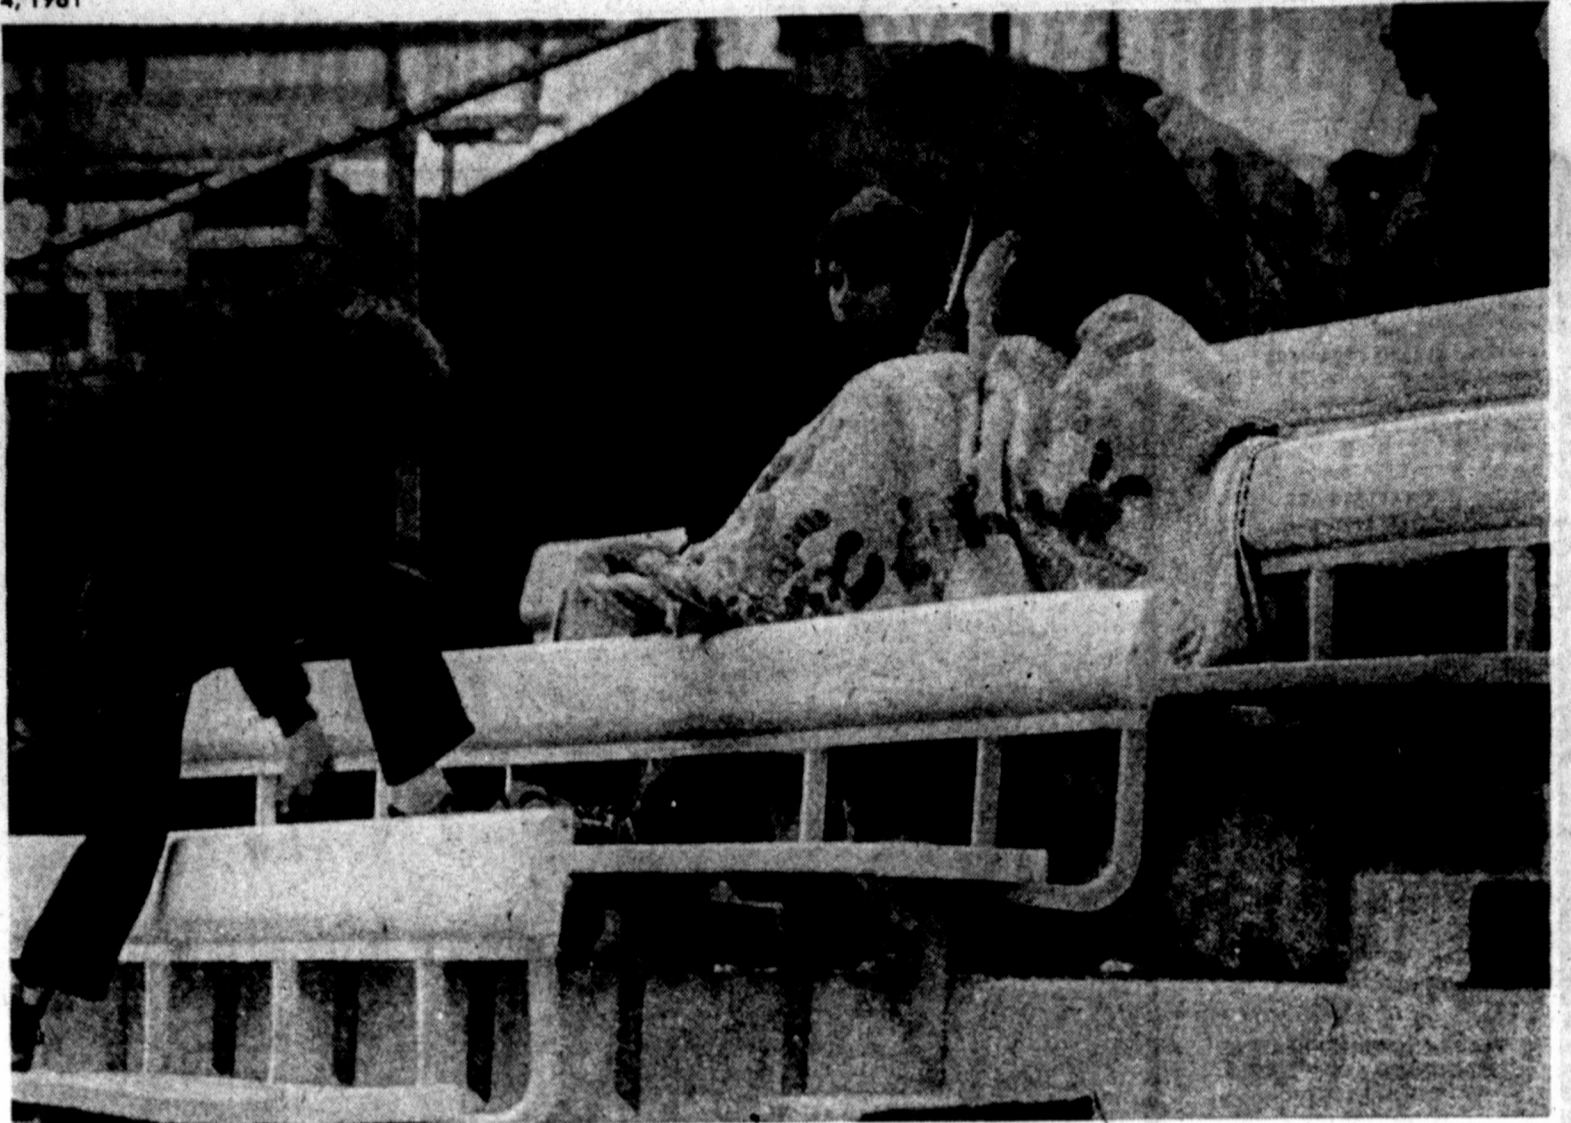

Meanwhile, Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan announced on Friday a series of government actions aimed at ensuring that people thrown out of work because of Reagan administration budget cuts will not join the ranks of the hard-core unemployed.

Declaring the administration wants to find work for the 300,000 participants in the CETA public service jobs program, which is proposed for a phase-out by Sept. 30, Donovan said.

Jobs To Be Found

"It is my intent to see that the men and women... receive all the help we can give them. We will do everything possible to move them into other jobs quickly."

Among the host of actions the Labor Department is taking, Donovan said, is formation of a $245 million pool to cover the costs of providing unemployment insurance benefits to displaced workers who are not able to find new jobs immediately.

Reagan Warned On El Salvador

Senators Oppose U.S. Military Escalation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, planning an additional $63.5 million in economic aid for El Salvador, was warned by senators Friday that they will not support Vietnam-like U.S. military escalation in that country.

Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., said he and other senators told administration officials at a closed briefing that "we are not about to retrace those steps that led us into the longest war in history in Southeast Asia."

Congressional sources said the administration is working out a $140 million economic aid package — $63.5 million in U.S. aid and the rest from international organizations.

Undersecretary of State Walter J. Stoessel, the senior briefer, said those figures are "in the ballpark" but de-lined to be more specific.

Meanwhile, a congressional delegation headed by Rep. Clarence Long, D-Md., was scheduled to leave Friday for a fact-finding trip to the Central American nation.

But as the congressmen prepared to leave from Andrews Air Force Base, the trip was postponed for security reasons. No further explanation was given. The trip is expected to reschedule at a later date.

Stoessel and other State Department, defense and intelligence officials briefed the Senate Appropriations Committee for nearly three hours on El Salvador.

Hatfield, the committee chairman, said "they were given very clear statements by many members of the committee... that they will not get support" for U.S. military escalation in El Salvador.

That is "the message they will take back to the administration," Hatfield said.

He said the officials assured the committee El Salvador will not be another Vietnam.

"I think that is excellent assurance and we are undergirding that assurance by this kind of a hearing today," Hatfield said.

Hatfield said several senators expressed concern that 15 of the 20 additional advisors the president is sending to El Salvador are Green Berets.

"Even though there are dissimilarities to Southeast Asia, Vietnam, there's enough of a similarity of America becoming militarily involved in an advisory role to a basically civil war, that which existed in Vietnam and now in El Salvador," Hatfield said.

Aid Approval Predicted

The ostensible purpose of the briefing was for an appropriations subcommittee to decide whether to clear $5 million of the $25 million in military aid Reagan plans for El Salvador — and Hatfield predicted easy approval.

"That is a legitimate request at this point to continue the policy that has been announced," Hatfield said.

The president's plan to send additional advisors and $20 million of the military aid is not subject to any action by Congress.

But the $5 million is subject to veto by Senate and House foreign operations appropriations subcommittees.

The $5 million is earmarked for helicopters, patrol boats, radar and other equipment to help El Salvadoran forces stop guerrilla infiltration into that country.

Sen. Bob Kasten, R-Wis., chairman of the Senate subcommittee, said he began polling members after the briefing. He, like Hatfield, predicted they will approve the $5 million.

Kasten said he told the subcommittee members to notify him by Monday noon whether they want to veto the aid.

Mayor Claims Warnings Being Ignored

He said spot checks by undercover police officers, offering $10 and $5 to the children, resulted in "every single person" getting into a car with the officers.

He did not say when the spot checks were made or how many children were involved.

The mayor's comments came as a friend of the 19th victim, Patrick Baltazar, was quoted as saying the last time he saw Baltazar, a "big man in a car" beckoned them with the call: "Come here you two boys."

In a tape recorded recollection of the incident, the youth said that when he and the 11-year-old Baltazar declined, the man promised: "I'll be back," and drove off.

The two boys went to a streetside telephone booth where they called police, according to the youth. But he said they split up to go to their respective homes because they feared the man might return before the arrival of a promised police car.

El Salvadoran President Says He Wants Peaceful Settlement

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Junta President Jose Napoleon Duarte said Friday he wants a peaceful settlement to El Salvador's turmoil but the leftist-dominated opposition of "terrorists and gangsters" is not interested in negotiations.

He also asserted at a news conference that until the Reagan administration made El Salvador a major issue of U.S.-Soviet relations the rest of the world ignored the junta's evidence that leftists were being armed by the Soviet bloc.

There appeared to be a break Friday in fighting between government troops and anti-junta guerrillas, after weeks of bloody clashes in the countryside.

In Washington, Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. said the guerrillas may be "running short of ammunition" and that arms shipments via Nicaragua to the leftists appeared to be slackening off. He also claimed Cuba, which the United States accuses of being a key arms source for the leftists, is looking for alternatives to Nicaragua for delivering the weapons.

Ten unidentified corpses were found in Santa Ana, 40 miles west of the capital, apparently victims of leftist or rightist assassins blamed for the majority of the estimated 16,000 deaths in the past 16 months of violence.

Duarte told reporters he still prefers a political settlement to the bloodshed, but he said the leftists offer no solutions to El Salvador's problems. He called them "gangsters" and "simple terrorists" instead of revolutionaries and said they have no interest in a peaceful, negotiated settlement.

Intervention Opposed

He also reiterated that the government does not want military intervention by other nations, and said superpowers like the United States have a duty to ensure it does not happen.

"For the whole year we have been telling the world that there were infiltrations and participations by other countries in our internal affairs," said Duarte, a civilian and president of the ruling military-civilian junta.

"But nobody would listen. We had these papers for at least three months before they were published. But it was no news, because we said it. Now it has been said by a big power and everybody knows about it."

He was referring to documents allegedly captured from the guerrillas which the U.S. State Department used in its "white paper" on El Salvador to show Soviet surrogates such as Cuba and Vietnam were supplying the leftists with weapons.

Aid Called Message

Duarte said the $35 million in U.S. arms aid — $10 million previously authorized and $25 million planned by the Reagan administration — is a message from the United States to "other countries who are pushing the internal problems of El Salvador to stop pushing."

The administration is also proposing increased economic assistance, which Duarte has repeatedly said is more important than arms if stability is to be restored. But administration officials refuse to disclose the amount although Undersecretary of State Walter J. Stoessel said in Washington a report from congressional sources that it was $63.5 million was "in the ballpark."

The U.S. Embassy here said a six-member congressional delegation was to arrive Friday to confer on the economic aid package, but the trip was probably being postponed "for security reasons."

There was no elaboration. Duarte also disclosed that a former military member of the junta, Col. Adolfo Arnoldo Majano, was charged with military disobedience and would be tried before a military tribunal.

RAIDS ON CUBA URGED

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some of President Reagan's advisers want to unleash anti-communist Cuban exiles for raids on the island to pressure President Fidel Castro to cut his support for guerrillas in Central America and Africa, sources said Friday. Others in the administration think "it's a crazy kind of idea," as one official put it, and there is no indication any formal proposals have been formulated along those lines.

U.S. Remains Cool On Summit Meeting

over a military buildup in Nicaragua as with arms flows to the Salvadoran guerrillas. He said Nicaragua is fashioning an army of 50,000 "with vast amounts of sophisticated military equipment."

"We're not talking about whether they have the right (to do it) or not," he said. "We are talking about whether these are trends which we view with equanimity. We don't."

Haig decried the "total preoccupation" of the public and press with the U.S. involvement in El Salvador, saying it is diverting attention from "what is going on in Poland" and Afghanistan.

A senior State Department official, who did not want to be identified, said the situation is "more tense" in Poland than it was three weeks ago because of the impending exercises and also because of a "hardening line" in Moscow.

The official said the scope of the exercises "gives Western observers pause."

But William Dyess, the State Department spokesman, said that while the situation is serious, it's probably not as tense as last December when there were fears that Soviet intervention was imminent.

Regarding talks with the Soviet Union, Haig said, "I would anticipate talks, as distinct from negotiations, to occur promptly." He said that while the level of talks hasn't been determined, they will start in Washington and "clearly will not be at the summit level."

He also ruled out talks in the near future between himself and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

U.S. Cool To Meeting

Soviet Premier Leonid Brezhnev has proposed a face-to-face meeting with President Reagan, but the administration is cool to the idea unless the Soviets take some action to relieve tension points around the world.

"What we are looking for is a reversal of Soviet illegal interventionism," Haig told the reporters.

Haig said a summit could be accelerated if the Soviets move to withdraw all of their 85,000 troops from Afghanistan. That would be a "major factor," he said.

But barring a development of that magnitude, Haig said, "Meaningful talks at higher levels are some distance away."

Contrary to what some officials say privately, Haig said the Reagan administration isn't de-emphasizing the conflict in El Salvador or the U.S. involvement there. But he contended it is receiving too much attention.

Balance Sought

"We would be better served in the long run if we could keep all this in balance," he said.

Haig also was firm in declaring that the dispatch of 15 U.S. Green Berets to El Salvador was part of the additional team of advisers the administration had described previously and didn't represent a deeper involvement.

"These are not over and above what we announced," he said, reaffirming that the total number of U.S. advisers is 54.

He said the administration believes the Salvadorans should be left alone to determine their own solutions to their problems, and expressed support for elections that are planned there beginning next year.

Pentagon Panel Urges New Form Of Draft

viving the draft and have indicated misgivings about peacetime registration which began last year on orders of former President Jimmy Carter.

Conti said the board "feels that registration has been a significant step in the right direction" but "some hard but necessary decisions about the Selective Service system remain to be made."

As proposed by the board, youths would be obliged to serve six months on active duty, starting with "military orientation" lasting three to four weeks, followed by basic and advanced individual training.

After orientation, the draftee would be given the option of choosing active duty of at least three years in the service of his choice, enrollment in a Ready Reserve unit or in the Individual Ready Reserve of the Army or Marine Corps.

The Individual Ready Reserve is the manpower pool from which active, reserve and National Guard units are reinforced in a crisis and from which casualty replacements are drawn in the early months of a war.

Young people who chose active service would become eligible for full veterans' benefits after a three-year hitch. They would have to serve three more years in either Ready Reserve units or in the manpower pool.

Those who chose the reserves after the six months of active duty would be required to spend an additional 7½ years with a reserve unit or 9½ years in the manpower pool.

"The all-volunteer force was intended for peacetime accessions only," Conti said. "It was never intended to meet the demands of war."

The board recognizes that a draft "will fall short of resolving all the problems of a modern, technologically advanced military force" but sees "many positive outcomes resulting from a draft," Conti said.

Hostages Reported Worn Out

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Political prisoners prepared to leave Karachi, Pakistan, early Saturday to be exchanged for more than 100 hostages held in Damascus in aviation's second-longest hijack, a government spokesman said.

Pakistan's ambassador in Damascus, Sarfaraz Khan, said the plane from Karachi would land in Aleppo in northern Syria, the prisoners would fly on to Tripoli, Libya, after their identities were established by Syrian authorities, then the hostages would be freed.

Syrian sources close to the negotiations, however, told The Associated Press a Syrian airliner would take the prisoners from Aleppo to Damascus, pick up the hijackers and fly the entire group to Libya. The sources, who asked not to be identified, said the hostages would be freed during the Damascus transfer and returned to Pakistan on a Syrian airliner.

Prisoner Missing
The hijackers had demanded the release of 55 prisoners in all, but Khan said the government could not locate one of them.

A Pakistani military jet left Karachi for Damascus late Friday, and airport officials reported the freed prisoners were on their way. A government spokesman said later that none of the prisoners was on board. There was no explanation of the military aircraft's mission in Damascus.

The hostages, who include three Americans and two U.S. resident alien, were described as "terribly worn out" from the 12-day ordeal.

Officials here expressed hope that the drama, which began March 2 when a trio of heavily armed Pakistanis seized the jetliner on a domestic flight in Pakistan, would end this weekend.

Hostages To Have Company

Khan told reporters Pakistani officials and nurses would fly with the freed prisoners to Syria. Airline spokesman said 11 members of the hijackers' families also would be on board the plane.

Libya confirmed that it would be the eventual destination of the freed prisoners.

Libya has agreed to receive the plane for motives of humanity and to save the lives of the human beings on board the hijacked plane, the official news agency JANA said.

It was not immediately clear how the hijackers would get to Libya after the release of the hostages.

Syria and Libya are close allies and last September agreed to unify their two states.

Pakistan agreed to the barter Thursday only minutes before the threatened execution of the three Americans.

The hostages spent their 12th day cooped up in the cabin of the hijacked Pakistan International Airlines Boeing 720, ordered shaving soap and other toiletries and received flowers sent them by airport officials.

A member of the cleaning crew who boarded the green-and-white jetliner overnight said the sanitary conditions were "very bad." He said "there is a terrible smell on that plane."

He also indicated some of the hostages had lost track of time.

"They are terribly worn out," said the cleaning man, who refused to be identified. "One passenger, an elderly man, asked me if I could tell him the date and the time."

Hijackers Keep Watch

While the cleaning crew was aboard, he added, two of three hijackers kept watch, each with a pistol in one hand and a grenade in the other. They were dressed, he said, in the traditional baggy pants of their Pakistan homeland.

The hijackers killed one hostage, a Pakistani diplomat, during a stop in Kabul, Afghanistan, last week.

Aviation's longest hijack was that of an Israeli El Al plane to Algiers in 1968 which lasted 39 days. Diplomats of Pakistani President Zia ul-Haq's military government worked all day Friday to arrange the final details of the exchange of jailed dissidents for hostages, using Syrian go-betweens who successfully mediated the release deal Thursday.

Diplomatic sources said the Syrian mediators were trying to persuade the hijackers to allow the exchange to be made in Syria. They said the crew of the hijacked jet was extremely fatigued and the jet needed maintenance.

Court Gives Go-Ahead For GM Engine Plant

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Michigan Supreme Court gave General Motors Corp. and the city of Detroit permission Friday to raze "Poletown" and build a new Cadillac assembly plant where the neighborhood now stands.

The high court, by a 5-2 vote, said the 6,000 jobs the plant will give economically will outweigh the value of preserving the Poletown community.

"This judgment is final," the high court said. Justice James Fitzgerald wrote a stinging dissent, saying the threatens private property everywhere because it accepts condemnation of private property by a public entity for another private interest, and is an abuse of government power.

Joyce Garrett, a spokesman for Detroit Mayor Coleman Young, said a ruling against the proposed GM plant "would have been our future right down the tubes."

Young called the suit, filed by the Poletown Neighborhood Council, "a very important test" of a new strategy to revitalize aging, industrial cities everywhere.

Poletown straddles the border of Detroit and Hamtramck, and the $500 million GM plant will displace 3,400 residents to clear 456 acres and replace two GM factories in another part of Detroit.

Ronald Reotti, an attorney for the Poletown group, said the "public welfare has been subordinated to the dictates of major corporations."

Publisher Prints Book On Prince

LOUGHBOROUGH, England (AP) — A publisher of children's books beat the hardback publishing race on the engagement of Prince Charles and Lady Diana Spencer with the release of a 52-page book on the couple Friday, 18 days after their betrothal was announced.

Ladybird Books sales manager Gordon Duncan said, "We have the field and the response has been overwhelming." He said 200,000 copies of "HRH Prince Charles" were being distributed.

The brightly illustrated book features a photograph of the prince in naval uniform on the front and a picture of the couple on the back cover and sells for 50 pence, or $1.11. Most of it was written in advance by Ian Morrison, a cartography lecturer at Edinburgh University.

Man Arrested After Alleged Rape Of 16-Year-Old Girl

A 29-year-old Lubbock man remained in the county jail Friday night on suspicion of rape in connection with the Friday morning attack of a 16-year-old girl in the 1500 block of 21st Street.

The girl told police she was attempting to leave her residence with her 6-month-old baby through the front door when the suspect shut the door, took the child from her and placed the baby on a couch. The man then reportedly took the girl into a bedroom and threw her on a bed, police said.

When the suspect began removing the girl's clothing, she managed to run into the kitchen to get a knife, police said. However, she told officers the man chased her and forced her back to the bedroom where he pushed her back on the bed raped her.

The incident was reported by the girl's mother.

Also Friday, a 21-year-old Idalou man was booked at the Lubbock County Jail on suspicion of felony theft after Idalou police recovered a stolen butane tank valued at $203.

Idalou Police Chief T.L. Waggoner said the tank, stolen Feb. 22, was found hidden in the rafters of Blue Flame Gas in Idalou.

The manager of the gas company told police he suspected a man hired to remodel the building. Waggoner said fingerprints taken from the tank are being compared with the suspect's.

Lubbock County Sheriff's Deputies say they have cleared six burglaries with the late Thursday arrest of a 43-year-old Lubbock man.

Sheriff's investigator Alton Hobbs said three rifles and two shotguns believed stolen in Lubbock County were recovered, along with a pistol and a 20-gauge shotgun believed taken in burglaries in Crosby County. Also confiscated was a Lincoln welder which Hobbs said might have been stolen in Oklahoma.

The suspect was booked Friday at the county jail on suspicion of two counts of felony theft.

Lubbock police investigated Friday a burglary at 5429 Avenue D in which a color television, a pistol, stereo and Home Box Office device were taken.

Police said entry into the home was gained by prying open a window in the kitchen and the burglar exited through the back door.

Resident Kirby Allison described the items, valued at a total of $870, as a Zenith 19-inch color TV, a Belgium 44-caliber pistol, an AM-FM stereo with 8-track tape deck and an HBO converter box.

Peggy Lilly Rowe told police a refrigerator, gas stove and a washer were taken from an apartment at 537-A 42nd St. sometime between Tuesday and Friday.

Police said the break-in occurred in the vacant apartment after someone kicked in the front door.

Also taken in the burglary were two end tables, according to reports, and the loss was estimated at $425.

A man armed with a rifle and threatening to shoot the first police officer he saw was arrested about 8:30 p.m. Thursday without injury to anyone, according to reports.

The 28-year-old man put down his loaded weapon and was arrested for allegedly making terroristic threats after police surrounded him in the 2300-block of 21st Street.

The suspect's former girlfriend said the man came to her house Wednesday night, struck her and threatened to rape her in front of her son. The man returned to her residence Thursday evening and when she refused to let him in he allegedly threatened to shoot her and her son.

When the woman said she was going to call police, he reportedly replied that he would shoot the first officer on the scene. The first policeman to arrive said he saw the man standing on the woman's porch with a rifle. The officer said he told the man to drop the gun but that he refused.

The man, after being ordered to put down the weapon a second time, reportedly said, "Go ahead and shoot, that's what I want."

However, when additional officers arrived on the scene, the man put down the rifle and was taken into custody.

Former Texas Policeman Son Of Civil War Vet

WACO (UPI) — Former policeman Reagan Barr is one of those rare living links to history — one of the few surviving children of a veteran of the Civil War.

At age 73, Reagan Barr still likes to recall the stories his relatives told. Through them he knows what it was like more than a century ago when Texas was a haven for those fleeing from the onrush of the Unionists.

Reagan's father James Barr and his maternal grandfather both were in the 11th Tennessee Volunteers, C-Company, under the command of Gen. Baxton Bragg, and fought together at Lookout Mountain, Missionary Ridge, Stones River and Murphreesboro.

"They served all through the war and were in many of the large battles in Tennessee," he said.

Though both were boyhood friends, Barr said, the union of the families did not take place until 20 years after the war when his father married the daughter of his buddy. The fourth youngest son of the Confederate soldier says his father married four times.

"Dad's first wife died of a ruptured appendix," he said. "The next two wouldn't live on the Texas frontier and left him."

Then the soldier married the woman who would become Reagan's mother. When the family moved to Waco after the war, James Barr this time took precautions to make sure his wife had all the protection she needed.

"He appointed a young cowboy, who was good with a six-shooter, to be her bodyguard while he was attending to his work," the son said.

Texas, rugged and unmerciful to those who couldn't cope with its elements, made an exception in the case of the Barr family. The family acquired lands in Hill and McLennan counties and even men like Hardin came to respect the Tennessean after they went to work for him.

"My father always liked this boy (Hardin)," Barr said. "He said this boy was a nice young fellow and never caused any trouble at the ranch."

Together, the senior Barr and his men helped build a stockade and then a fort on the Brazos River "about 25 miles above Waco" at the spot now known as Barr's Hollow.

When the Houston and Texas Central Railroad was laid through central Texas, the senior Barr made his modest contribution to America's entry into the industrial age. The cross-ties for the railroad in that part of the state were built on his farm and installed by his men.

"As a boy, I always liked guns and was raised with them," Barr said. The family arsenal — now on display at Fort Fisher — came in handy on those occasions when his father had to contend with "Comanches and outlaws in then-unsettled West Texas." That familiarity with firearms gave Barr easy entry into the Waco police department.

Governor Eyes Surplus In Water Funds

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements' never-ending search for a way to save Texans from the ravages of the taxman has led him to Speaker Bill Clayton's water trust fund plan.

The governor said Friday the Clayton plan — using half the state surplus to back bond issues for water products — is the "best (tax relief) plan that's come along so far."

"I think the people of Texas are entitled to a tax reduction," Clements said at a news conference. "We do have a surplus."

Clements wants a "direct" method of tax relief and he has looked at "22 or 23 options."

"I have not yet found the means by which I am satisfied we can directly relate tax relief to the taxpayers," he said.

That's where the Clayton plan comes in. If no direct relief plan can be found, Clements said "then I want that money to flow into this water trust fund."

The fund would preserve the money "rather than spend it in the willy-nilly fashion of the Legislature," he said.

Clements wants to find ways to cut property taxes, but said whenever the state tries to do that, "the local governments turn right around and raise the taxes even higher than they were before."

The water trust fund would help Texas' growing population cope with a dwindling water supply, he said.

"We are going to have a water crisis in Texas. There's no question about it," he said, adding the biggest problem would be in urban areas.

When asked how the fund would provide tax relief, Clements said it would be putting money away to "provide for a rainy day."

Also during Friday's news conference, the governor said he supports a strong ethics bill to bar elected officials from using campaign donations for personal expenses.

"That is wrong, although I know it has been the practice in the past," he said. "I haven't engaged in it. I have no reason to, and I don't believe in it," he said.

Clements said he saw no need for bill would bar donations to legislators during the session. "I can see how in some instances that could be wrong," he said.

However, he added it's "normal" for officeholders at all levels to take contri-

"It's not the contribution itself you're talking about. It's the commitment," he said.

Clements reiterated his opposition to a gasoline tax increase that is not coupled with a "highly visible" tax cut in some other area.

Potential Jurors In Daniel Case Questioned

LIBERTY (AP) — Vickie Daniel has a mental disorder that causes her to overreact under stress, an opposing lawyer said Friday while trying to select a jury in a custody case over the woman's two small children.

It is this stress, said lawyer Zeke Zebranek, that eventually led to the shooting death of her husband, former Texas House Speaker Price Daniel Jr., last January.

Zebranek made his remarks before the panel of prospective jurors in the second day of jury selection. The panel will determine if Mrs. Daniel, charged with murder in the Jan. 19 slaying, should retain permanent custody of her two sons by Daniel — Franklin Baldwin Daniel, 3, and Marion Price Daniel IV, 1.

Zebranek represents Jean Murph Daniel, the slain politician's sister who brought the custody suit.

He told the panel he intended to prove that "Vickie Daniel has a mental disorder ... that has manifested in a history of overreaction in stress situation."

This disorder culminated in an overreaction that resulted in the shooting death of her estranged husband.

Right now she is going through "the most stressful situation of her life," Zebranek said. He said he has medical evidence that suggest there is a threat of danger to the two children.

He then asked jurors if they had been through a divorce or a child custody case, if they had raised children who were not their own. He also inquired as to their opinion of psychiatrists and if they knew anyone who had experience as a battered spouse.

Andrew Lannie of Baytown, one of Mrs. Daniel's attorneys, asked the panel if they thought Mrs. Murph would be a better mother because she is more educated than Mrs. Daniel and because her husband is a minister.

Visiting Judge Sam Emison Jr. of Houston told the prospective jurors that the murder charge against Mrs. Daniel might be an issue they have to deal with when considering the welfare of the children but it would not be an issue they would have to determine.

Lawyers will have to get the judge's permission before they can bring up questions sensitive to certain portions of the case. That was the result of motions granted for both sides Thursday by visiting Judge Sam Emison Jr. of Houston.

Citizens Soon To Decide Fate Of Dawson County Bond Issue

A-J Correspondent
LAMESA - A $1 million bond election for proposed improvements to the Medical Arts Hospital may face Dawson County voters soon.
 The Dawson County Commissioners gave hospital board members the green light this week to proceed with a petition to call the election. The petition must be signed by at least 10 percent of the registered voters who own property in the county.

Selection of a bonding company is the next step in the process of calling an election and the commissioners are expected to choose the bonding company as soon as possible. Hospital officials are leaving the rest of the process, which includes setting a time schedule for the petition and election, up to the bonding company.
 Hospital Board President Elwood Freeman made the petition request citing the need for between $900,000 and $1 million to update the 22-year-old hospital in all departments, replacing equipment and doing some remodeling to increase the facility's efficiency.

Freeman told the commissioners "we're to the point where something really needs to be done. We know we can not generate enough money out of operating funds to replace items as we need to."

"After a thorough study, we want to make a proposal to generally update the hospital-not to make it a 'showplace' but just to keep it running up to standard-that would put it in first-class shape for the next 10-15 years," Freeman said. "We're talking about between $900,000 a million dollars."

"We have a nice little hospital," he added. "It is necessary to this community. We need to take some kind of step now before the situation gets worse."

Freeman and board members R.B. Snell, L.D. Echols, Charles Bratcher and Ben Dopson and Hospital Administrator Charley Latham, attended the meeting.

The discussion centered on the hospital's financial situation, which has resulted largely from expensive Medicare regulations, federal building requirements, inadequate reimbursement on indigent care and the inflation factor.

Board members pointed out that even with the bond issue, the hospital still needs some increase in annual reimbursement from the county on indigent care to make up for the huge uncollectible account write-off. The county contributes only about $10,000 annually to the hospital, so even with 90 percent collections, board members noted, the hospital writes off close to $200,000 per year in bad debts.

Latham said the hospital also loses about $150,000 each year because of the Medicare program, which reimburses for only 85 percent of costs in treating Medicare patients.

"This hospital is in the unique position of being penalized for efficient operation," Bratcher said. "Some other area hospitals are operating at such a deficit that they don't get hit so hard by Medicare."

Echols added that in the past 10 years, the hospital used its own funds to add space to the hospital, at a cost of $150,000, and installed new beds, put on a $40,000 roof and spent $100,000 to comply with certain regulations.

City Firm Awarded Contract For Lamesa DPS Construction

A-J Correspondent
LAMESA - A Lubbock firm has been awarded the contract for construction of the new Department of Public Safety building here.

John Gary of Big Spring, architect for the project, said the Ed Lampe Construction Company of Lubbock turned in the lowest of seven bids on the building at $204,545. Gary noted that about $8,000 would be trimmed off that bid with adjustments to bring the construction costs within the budget set by the state.

The Lubbock construction firm is completing work on the Head Start building here and also built the warehouse at the Industrial Park for General Telephone Company.

No date has been established for the start or finish of the building, Gary said, as the State Purchasing and General Service Commission must first hold a pre-construction conference. The bid, however, did declare 220 calendar days for construction once work begins.

The 2,430-square-foot building will be located on a plot of land purchased by the DPS last summer just north of Gibson's on North Main Street. It will be the new drivers' license office and headquarters for local highway patrolmen.

Gary said the building will include a meeting room to accommodate 12-16 people, several offices, a reception area and a large area for drivers' license exams.

Pitchfork Ranch Nearing 100-Year Anniversary

By GERRY BURTON
 Avalanche-Journal Staff

DICKENS - Despite modern technological advancements, the cow remains the most efficient method of turning grass into protein humans can eat.

"Man can't eat grass, but run it through cows and you get protein he can," notes Jim Humphreys, general manager of the Pitchfork Land and Cattle Co. which spreads its cattle operation over three states.

On the 166,000-acre Pitchfork Ranch east of Dickens, the protein project is accomplished with methods as ancient as those used by the first cowboy and as modern as the latest land and animal technology.

In 1983, the Pitchfork will celebrate its centennial under the same group incorporating it in covered wagon days, a thing unique in ranching history.

But, roots of the Pitchfork already go back a century. In 1881 the Pitchfork brand, registered in the Republic of Texas, was purchased by Dan B. Gardner and J.S. Godwin to be used on cattle grazed on land owned and leased by Sam Lazarus in King and Dickens counties.

Two years later Lazarus, Gardner and Eugene F. Williams of St. Louis, a distant cousin of Gardner's, formed the famous land and cattle company. Another Eugene F. Williams, grandson of the founder, is company president today.

The Pitchfork is one of the most modern, efficient, well-run ranches in North America, a model ranch, according to Dr. David Murrah, director of the Southwest Collection at Texas Tech University who is putting together a Pitchfork book for the centennial observance.

While other vast ranges were falling apart due to bad management or family disputes, the Pitchfork, considered an investment by a family of investors, adapted with change and grew.

The combination of "experienced, well-trained managers" and "experienced investors" brought the Pitchfork through the years intact and in better shape, Murrah said.

Murrah noted there were three big eras for the ranch, beginning when Gardner served as general manager from 1883 to 1929, and as company president the last 30 years.

At Gardner's death, the company brought in Virgil Parr, "one of the first to bring scientific methods to ranches anywhere." A former government range conservationist, Parr introduced those principles to the Pitchfork to make it a model ranch.

The D Burns-Jim Humphreys period, beginning in 1942, completed the modernization and saw expansion into Wyoming and Kansas ranges to round out operations.

Burns, who retired in 1965 and died in 1977, will be honored at 2 p.m. today with the dedication of the D Burns Memorial Pavilion at Tech's Ranching Heritage Center, which he helped develop after retiring to become ranch consultant for the Pitchfork.

The pavilion dedication ceremonies, at which Tech Pres-

Unconventional Meatloaf Needs No Recipe

By FRED FERGUSON

JEANNE LESEM
NEW YORK (UPI) — Note: We say "make" not "cook" Ferguson's atrocious chicken meatloaf.

Let it be said up front — this is no recipe. The word deserves better.

This is a report on the extremes to which a non-cook will go to survive in a recession.

With good old chopped chuck at the $2 a pound mark, New York City supermarkets have been peddling ground-up chicken and turkey at a good deal less but still far more per pound than whole chickens.

Still, if you hate chicken, one alternative is trying to make the ground stuff seem different.

The following is the result of some months of occasional fowl experiments:

Put a pound or so in a deep bowl.

Dump in as much cooked rice and almost as much uncooked chopped onion (helps disguise the taste).

DON'T MEASURE!

Dump in soy sauce — a lot. Someone told us this helps. Someone else said it would kill us. Live dangerously.

Now a dollop or two of steak sauce. If you've got more than one kind on the shelf, use both.

Powdered garlic? Why not? Be liberal.

One raw egg helps bind the mess.

Mix with a fork or something. Talking on the phone while churning passes the time.

Fill a loaf pan — whatever kind and size is handy.

Put something on top. We've tried pizza sauce, spaghetti sauce, ketchup, tomato paste, sometimes in combination. Doesn't seem to hurt. May help. Looks better.

Place in oven. Cook at 425 degrees F, or 400, or 450. Somewhere in there. For an hour or so.

If you take it out after two hours, it doesn't matter. Tastes about the same burned and dry as gloppy.

Don't eat it hot. Tastes awful.

Try it cold, in small lumps, over a week or two. Spreads the misery. Chewing salad with it helps.

We don't know if it's nutritious. But it is more or less filling — or felling.

Why do it? Someone told us we should eat more chicken, less red meat. But mostly, it's cheap.

The author of the above declines responsibility for what happens to anyone else who makes this — and eats it.

Please don't tell us how to improve it. Too many have done that already.

Or, to quote one co-worker: "If you ever have a dinner party at your house, I want to make sure it's catered."

Anyone hungry enough — or foolhardy enough — to try the Ferguson's atrocious chickenloaf might follow it with Lesem's garbage salad.

As a pinchpenny cook, we practice what Mother taught us: Never throw away leftovers. Disguise them.

If possible, start with leafy greens: iceberg lettuce, romaine, watercress, Boston or butterhead, chicory, leaf lettuce, whatever. Cut away the brown spots.

Dump wilted leaves into hot soup. Pretend you're having Italian escarole soup. If the soup has flavor, who cares if it's not escarole?

Search the refrigerator for other oddsments, cooked or raw, whose signs of decay are not yet fatal — to the food or you.

A few nubbins of dried-up or moldy hard cheese. Scrape off mold. Grate what's left. Mold on hard cheeses really is harmless.

Half an apple, browned on the cut edge? Core, dice or shred it into the bowl.

A spoonful or so of cooked corn, beans, peas, carrots would not be amiss. Almost anything except spinach or other cooked, leafy stuff. Drain it, of course.

Nuts. (That's an ingredient, not a comment.) Salted or not. Roasted or not.

A stalk of celery, chopped up. If it has lost its crunch, cut away a thin slice and stick that end in a glass of water in the fridge. Capillary action will do the rest.

Grate in a little raw onion. Or slice in a scallion.

A slice of meat or scraps of chicken, turkey, cooked fish? Tear it up. Toss it in.

An anchovy? Great! Make anchovy dressing. Squish the fish to a paste in a cup. Grind in black pepper. Herbs of your choice. Prepared or powdered mustard.

Add vinegar. Any kind.

Or try lemon, lime or grapefruit juice. Or a little wine, burgundy, sherry, vermouth, what have you. Add oil. Whip dressing into a frenzy. Add to salad and toss.

Congratulations! You've cleaned out the refrigerator.

HINTS FROM HELOISE:

Microwave Oven Provides Clean Solution

HI THERE:

One of my little pleasures in life is to have a good cup of coffee in the morning before the hectic day starts.

I have told you before how I put the coffee in a teapot — all ready with milk and artificial sweetener — and then go sit in the old favorite chair and enjoy the morning paper without having to get up for a second cup.

Now, I have found the ultimate in delicious coffee. I love the way they serve coffee in Europe, with warm milk or cream. I don't know why it makes it better, but the taste is so much smoother and richer.

I used to warm the milk on top of the stove, then have a yucky pan to clean, etc.

The solution — microwave I put a dash of skim milk in my coffee cup, put it in the microwave oven and zap it for about 30 seconds. Then, I add my coffee and I'm in hog-heaven, with no pans to clean and no boil-over to watch.

Give this a try and see what a difference it makes, in taste and in the ease of doing it. — Hugs, Heloise

LETTER OF THOUGHT

DEAR HELOISE:

Now that cold weather is here and you can't get out often and you start feeling housebound, don't resort to watching soap operas all day long to ease your boredom.

All that misery, depression, unhappiness, merely helps to create negative moods, which certainly aren't what you need on dreary days.

So, I've decided to meet this winter's stint in the house by keeping the TV set OFF during the day. My new recipe for getting over the blahs is to try to create a little sunshine for someone else.

I can't help but feel that taking on extra negative moods, in addition to winter doldrums you may already have, could be more than you bargained for. — Mrs. A.

SUGAR STORAGE

DEAR HELOISE:

I pour a five-pound sack of sugar into a 1/2-gallon plastic pitcher and set it on a shelf. It is so much easier to fill sugar bowls, measuring cups, etc., simply pouring the sugar out of the spout.

No spilled grains of sugar to contend with. — Mrs. John Kane

By Oswald Jacoby
and Alan Sontag

Almost everyone knows that in defending against no trump you should attack in a long suit in the hope of setting up winners. In defending against suit contracts, the same principle applies although not with equal force. Just bear in mind that if you do attack dummy's long suits you may well develop low card winners for declarer.

When you attack short suits with your side's long ones, you can only develop your own low cards.

In general, try to avoid opening new suits. The late Hal Sims once said, "Every time you break a new suit from declarer's left you lose half a trick on the average."

Leading through declarer and up to dummy's weakness is far better. You probably tend to gain when you do that.

In signalling strength, signal with the highest card you can spare, but never signal with a card that may be an important winner if you hang on to it.

Remember what the bidding has been. As soon as you see the dummy, add your and dummy's high card points to what declarer has shown and try to figure how many HCP your partner can hold. Then see if you can figure out the exact cards those points may represent.

Try to count everyone's distribution if you can and make it a point to protect jacks, tens or even nines when it appears that they are important.

Then, while this may seem far-fetched and is hard to understand, don't throw low cards from nothing when it seems that declarer may have to work on that suit later on.

As an example: Dummy shows king-jack-ten in a side suit. You hold 4-3-2. Don't throw one or two of those cards away carelessly. If your partner happens to hold the queen, you may be showing declarer where it is. Let him guess—don't draw a diagram for him.

Of course there is the converse. If you are declarer and have to find a queen, beware the ingenious discard of a deuce. Maybe that player holds her ladyship.

Teen-Ager Frustrated With Recurring Knee Problems

FOR YOUR WANT ADS
CALL 762-8821

By PAUL DONOHUE, M.D.
Dear Dr. Donohue: I am a boy of 13. I am very frustrated about a problem with my knees. I play sports, and once in awhile I have pain in my knees. I had Osgood-Schlatter last year and had to quit sports for four months. I had no problems until now. Could this be a return of Osgood's C.M.

gans. Is this true? Also, is it true that swimming can weaken the muscles that support the breasts? — K.S.

I find no evidence that jogging has an adverse effect on the female reproductive organs. I have heard it stated, but have not seen any proof. I know many jogging female doctors willing to back me on this. There is no evidence that intensive swimming has harmed female Olympic athletes. Nor does swimming weaken the muscles that support the breasts. If anything it strengthens them.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Is there any reason why an elderly person with arthritis should not try a whirlpool bath? — K.O.

No reason whatsoever. The whirlpool is, in fact, good therapy for keeping joints mobile. Besides, it makes you feel good.

In response to reader requests, Dr.

Donohue's publisher now has a complete listing of all the booklets on various medical problems. Readers wishing this list can write Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for return mailing.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Reader's questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Copyright 1981 Field Enterprises, Inc.

It is possible for Osgood-Schlatter disease to flare up again, but I'm afraid only your doctor can tell you if that is what is happening. O-S is a frustrating illness for any youngster. The symptoms are pain, tenderness and swelling in the front of the leg just below the kneecap. It happens in boys between 10-15 years of age, when the joint is developing. It might help to know why that precise spot below the kneecap is so troublesome.

The upper and lower legs are two long levers, with the knee joint being the hinge. The levers are held together by more than skin. Large muscles stretching down from the thigh do that job. They attach by tendons into a little shelf at top of the lower leg (the tibia). Because the thigh muscles are very powerful they can exert too much force and pull the shelf away from its position. That is Osgood-Schlatter disease.

Rest is the cure for about 90 percent of youngsters, but it may take eight weeks or so. Sometimes a cast is necessary to put the bone at complete rest. Injections of steroids into the area around the shelf of bone have been employed, and in a very few cases surgery is necessary. Most often, though, the bones and muscles connected to those bones adjust and the problem is ended. You are frustrated, and I can understand why. You should see the doctor who treated you earlier to make sure of the diagnosis.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am into body building and was wondering if there are safe supplements to take to speed up training, like gland supplements? Also, is it true that a body builder needs more protein? — T.A.

If you keep to a regular exercise program, and if you eat sensibly, you will make muscular progress. Stop your search for a magical formula beyond that. There is none. Thousands of body builders engage in a never-ending search for rapid improvement in muscular development. For some, the search leads them to male hormones, which they hope will add muscle bulk. A number of careful studies demonstrate that there are no gains in muscle development from using such gland drugs. In fact, there are serious complications: weight and water retentions, which can lead to high blood pressure; decreased sperm production; prostate gland enlargement. These are a few. Don't experiment with gland supplements.

The second common misconception surrounds protein need. Muscle is protein, therefore to make bigger muscles you need more protein. Wrong. Although this idea has the appeal of simplicity, it is not true. Our bodies make protein from all kinds of foods. All you need is a balanced diet with increased amounts of calories to keep up with the extra calories you burn with exercise.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am on a competitive swim team. I've heard that jogging can weaken a female's reproductive or-

Individual's Personality Type Should Be Focus When Buying Clothes

By ANN EVANS
Family News Staff

You always wore ruffled, white eyelet dresses when you were young, when actually all you wanted to do was be the first woman president. And you always loved those beautiful ivory and jade necklaces, but your mother insisted you wear dainty pearls.

You're a man who has a job in a bank, and day after day you wear dull, business-like tweed suits and come home in a depressed mood, although you don't know why. You dream someday of becoming a photographer or living in a castle and wearing velvet suits.

In a new sophisticated job, you try hard to conform to the dress of the people around you by wearing black and white combinations. But you come home a nervous wreck. What you long to do is don an apple red jogging outfit and go to aerobics class.

Obviously, none of these people are wearing clothes they enjoy. Yet this is a common problem — about 99 percent of people on the street are camouflaging their personalities and what they are by the clothes they wear.

Jane Sergerstrom, a Houston image specialist, spoke at Texas Tech University during Home Economics Awareness Week on getting the right clothes on the right people.

"Everyone feels insecure about their looks," she said. "What you are is what your focus needs to be."

The way to find out what clothes and colors go best with your personality is to first decide what "type" you are. Jane said there are four basic "types" of people, and she uses the same groups or "types" that Hippocrates did.

"People may be part one type and part another," she explained. "The key to what type you are is what colors you wear best. No type is regulated to nationality, age or sex."

Type One is the boy or girl next door. They are extroverts who have rounded faces, cheeks, and bodies and are athletic. They have boyish or girlish looks all of their lives and never really look grown up. Type Ones make excellent salespersons and get along well with people. Their interests change quickly from week to week and there is a brightness or a source of light through their skin. The colors these people wear best are clear, clean and bright, with no muted colors. Their jackets have curving lapels and they wear peter pan collars, crisp bows, ruffles and eyelet. Polka dots and flower prints look best on Type Ones, and so do "cute" designs.

Introverted romantics make up Type Two. These are the last ones at a party who are shy and withdrawn. They seek out other "gentle" people and are reserved. These creative individuals are writers and artists who have the most potential for success, but tend to be melancholy and concentrate on their failures. They are sensitive romantics who wear their heart on their sleeve. The colors best for Type Twos are softened colors with the edge taken off, such as pastels. Their skin is not bright and they have elongated features. Lavender, mauve and french blue look well on them, as do soft lace and soft ruffles. Women in this category are feminine "southern belles".

Barbara Walters is a Type Three person. These people are extroverts who generally get where they're going, even if they step on someone else's feet. They always get the job done and never get way-laid by emotions. They are warm, sexy and earthy and are often president of the board. Type Threes stride across the earth as if they own it and are less refined. Their features and bodies are angular and they have rough hair and skin. Their coloring is warm earth tones. Bright colors with weight, such as avocado green or marigold are what they look best in. Tweeds and herringbones are the textures they choose, and they prefer more jewelry, especially ethnic ideas, hammered metals and ivory.

Type Four people have contrasts such as light skin and dark hair and are considered to have the most beautiful features of all four types. Cher or Cary Grant are examples of Type Four introverts. This type is intelligent and enjoys expensive or good quality things. They have a wall around them, with an unspoken feeling of "go away". They are perfectionists and can see through things clearly. The colors that look best on them are contrasts such as black and white or brilliant colors. Since these people are sophisticated, they choose simple, classic clothing to offset themselves. They do not use much clothing ornamentation, and go for pure line and pure color.

After deciding on your "type", Jane suggested then finding out the shades of color that are best for you.

"Find swatches of material the same color (or as close as you can get it) of your hair color, eye color, skin color and natural blush color (to find this, turn down your bottom lip so you can see the inner shade of skin) and glue these swatches on posterboard. Then cut out a hole in the middle of the posterboard so you can compare what colors look good with your skin, hair and eyes." The swatches should be centered close to the hole.

Jane has done this with her coloring and showed a color wheel with the colors she can wear.

"There are around 200 colors that are right for you," she explained. "You may think there are colors you cannot wear, but there may be a different shade of the color that does look good on you. The trick is to isolate the colors that compliment you."

Jane has written a book on her ideas called "Look Like Yourself and Love It". Checklists, charts and illustrations all are given in the book to separate individuals into types, plus tips on colors and fabrics.

ANN LANDERS

Fireman Lists Hotel Safety Tips

Dear Ann Landers: This column will surely save some lives if the people who read it will take it seriously. These suggestions are from a Los Angeles fireman, Richard Kauffman, who believes that he would have survived the Las Vegas MGM Hotel fire. Because of what I have learned from him, I am sure I would have survived it, too.

First, when you check into a hotel, make sure you find out exactly where the fire exits are. Check to see if they are open and where they lead to. In other words, be familiar with them. If they are NOT open, call security and ask them to open the fire exit on your floor at once.

Know where your room key is at all times. Some of the Las Vegas victims were wandering in the halls. The smoke was terrible, but they were unable to get back into their rooms (which would have been a lot safer) because they didn't have their keys. There is a bedstand table in all hotel rooms, and that is where your key should be — not on top of the TV or in your trouser pocket or your pocket-book. The room key belongs on the bedside table. Make it a habit to keep it there.

At the first hint of the smell of smoke, call the fire department, NOT the desk. The desk will probably send you a security guard. The fire department will send fire-fighters. Tell the fire dispatcher what room you are in.

Then feel the doorknob. If it is hot, don't open the door. If it isn't, peek outside. If it's not too smoky, go to the fire exit. Keep a wet towel over your face. NEVER USE THE ELEVATOR. When you use the stairwell, walk — do not run — down. If it gets too smoky, turn around and go ALL the way up. A fireman will greet you on the roof.

If you are forced to stay in your room, DO NOT break the window. If there is smoke outside, you will need to close it.

Fill the bathtub with water. Wet the towels and sheets and stuff them around the door. Block all vents with wet towels and sheets.

If the walls are hot, use the ice bucket and throw as much water on the walls as you can. Put a wet cloth over your nose and mouth. Smoke inhalation kills more people than fire. Above all, keep fighting. Don't quit. The longer you stay conscious, the better your chances for survival.

Dear Readers, I suggest you tape a copy of these rules inside your suitcase so you can refresh your memory before every trip.

Dear Ann Landers, I didn't care for your advice to the woman whose husband divides the newspaper with her and then falls asleep under his half.

You have an eye for business, all right. You told her to buy TWO papers. I say, why waste the money? If the big ad is going to sleep, he can sleep just as well under yesterday's paper. I wish you would correct that answer. It bothered me. — Minnie In Davis, Cal.

Dear Minnie: Sorry, dear, you didn't read the whole letter, and I did. It seems Sleeping Beauty likes to fall asleep with the paper over his face. When she tries to lift it off, she wakes him up and he gets mad. He wants to sleep under the current paper, so when he wakes up he can start in where he left off.

The man is a light sleeper and has a hot temper. Once when she tried to remove the paper and substitute it for the half she had read, he belted her. So I suggested two papers, and I stand by my advice. It's worth the extra money. A fat lip can be a nuisance, and dental work is expensive.

Discover how to be date bait without falling hook, line and sinker. Ann Landers' booklet, "Dating Do's and Don'ts," will help you be more poised and sure of yourself on dates. Send 50 cents along with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995 Chicago, Illinois 60611.

WHAT'S UP?

A capsule view of tastes, interests and attitudes

Everything's coming up daisies

By Ann Ferrar

Princess Marguerite Alexandrovna Valensky — otherwise known as Daisy — has been endowed with such natural-blond beauty that she doesn't even have to use lightener on her roots every month. She's the perfect height (a model's 5-foot-7), and she has a perfect voice (just enough of a foreign accent to sound exotic). Her father is a prince and her mother a movie star. Needless to say, Daisy hangs out in only the most glamorous circles.

Judith Krantz

Judith Krantz, the novelist who created "Princess Daisy," doesn't frequent the same circles.

Ms. Krantz — who, prior to writing her first novel, "Scruples," spent nine years as a contributing editor at Cosmopolitan magazine — is not exactly in the habit of skiing every winter in Europe, despite what the original dustjacket of that jet-setty book would have you believe.

Ms. Krantz considers herself a hard-working writer and mother. She describes her own life as "fairly pedestrian" — though one would never know it since the monstrous success of "Scruples" skyrocketed her from obscurity to the top of the best-seller lists.

"Princess Daisy," her second book, has been issued in paperback by Bantam. NBC has bought the rights to make it a TV mini-series.

"Scruples," which has already been done as a mini-series, is being considered now for a continuing series.

While working on a third novel (she's up to chapter seven and won't reveal another clue), Ms. Krantz has been on the road promoting these various extensions of her books, as well as writing a free-lance article or two.

Her piece about American "princesses" is in the March issue of Ladies Home Journal.

Is Ms. Krantz an American princess?

"Oh, no!" she exclaims. "I work too hard — and I'm certainly not mysterious enough. A princess has to be aloof, so that no one knows too much about her."

That sounds like an insecure person.

"Some princesses may be insecure," Ms. Krantz says. "We don't know enough to be sure."

Marilyn Monroe must have been a princess.

"Oh no!! She was too much of a waif."

Brooke Shields, then, could never be a princess.

"So far she is. She's so unspoiled."

Princess Caroline of Monaco...

"Is not a princess, really," says Ms. Krantz. "Her life is so obvious and banal."

Ms. Krantz claims: Jackie O. is the consummate American princess, even though she's made some pretty controversial choices (Ari) in her life; Nancy Reagan is not automatically a princess just because she's the First Lady; and Barbara Walters and Barbara Streisand are both princesses who happen to be Jewish, but they aren't JAPs (Jewish-American Princesses).

Citibus Transfer Point Due To Test Compromise Solution

By PAT GRAVES

Avalanche-Journal Staff

The moving of the Citibus downtown transfer point to Broadway and Texas Avenue, effective at 5:45 a.m. Monday, is a compromise among several groups involved in the ongoing controversy.

The present transfer point (where all bus routes intersect) is at Broadway and Avenue K. That location caused problems for merchants on Broadway's north side because passengers were waiting for buses inside and in front of their stores.

So the City Council moved up the timetable for a transfer point site from 1983 to the present. Several locations have been discussed: the new transit facility under construction at Eighth Street and Texas Avenue, Broadway and Avenue J (with a blocked-off area extending to Main Street); the former John Halsey Drug Store at Broadway and Avenue K; the corner across from that building; the block of Broadway between Texas Avenue and Avenue H; and the final choice — the intersection of Broadway and Texas Avenue.

Actually, the decision is anything but final, because the City Council has instructed the staff and the transit department and board to come up with a permanent site as soon as possible. The Broadway and Texas location is temporary.

Transit Coordinator John Wilson said Friday he plans to resubmit his original proposal, that of buying the former John Halsey Drug Store, at the transit board's Tuesday meeting. The council previously expressed misgivings about the cost, which Wilson estimates at $45,000-50,000.

In the meantime, he said the temporary transfer point is a good compromise. The transit staff likes it, he noted, because it will require no route changes, cost increases or significant bus driving time to implement.

Wilson also said fewer parking spaces will be taken than if the point were farther east on Broadway toward Avenue H. He said Monday's change will eliminate six spaces adjacent to the federal building and five along the County Courthouse. Citibus already has spaces on the northwest corner of Broadway and Texas, but a few spaces will be taken on the southwest corner in front of the Mental Health-Retardation offices.

MH-MR is glad to have the transfer point there, Wilson said, because 30-40 of its patrons ride Citibus. County Judge Rod Shaw said Feb. 27 he foresaw no significant problems with the parking loss. Undoubtedly the Broadway merchants' displeasure with the parking loss, which would be a few parking spaces returned, will welcome the change.

Motorists trying to park near the Regina, capital of Saskatchewan province in Canada, once bore a less majestic name — Pile of Bones. The city was named in 1882 for Victoria Regina, Queen of England.

NEW TRANSFER POINT — As this map indicates, the Citibus downtown transfer point will move east Monday morning to the intersection of Broadway and Texas Avenue. Westbound routes 3 and 15 will board on Broadway next to the courthouse, and eastbound routes 1, 10 and 14 will board on Broadway next to the federal building. Eastbound and southbound routes 2, 6, 7 and 9 will board on Broadway in front of the MH-MR building. Westbound routes 5, 8, 12 and 13 will board across the street to the north next to the parking lot at Texas Avenue.

square may feel differently, however, but Citibus drivers should like the new location because they will have longer spaces in which to stop. The council at least has taken some action on the problem, while the transit board has given itself more time to find a permanent solution.

And bus passengers, at least those whose buses stop on the corners adjacent to the courthouse and federal building, will have benches to sit on and a more open area in which to wait. Wilson predicted the council will approve buying two temporary shelters with revenue sharing funds for the site.

The council is to decide which projects will be included in revenue sharing funding March 26. Wilson said the three-sided shelters could be erected within 90 days of approval. He said they will be located in the areas of the highest passenger concentration.

Wilson acknowledged the Broadway merchants' displeasure with the present transfer point and the council's desire for a speedy solution were the primary reasons for the change at this time. Extra curb space for the buses, the official reason, was also a factor, he said.

He expects a smooth transition next week, noting the change will affect 80 percent of the bus riders who use the transfer point, which sometimes means up to 100 persons at a time. Transit department supervisors will be present at Broadway and Texas and Avenue K, which will remain a bus stop, to assist passengers Monday and Tuesday.

New benches and signs indicating bus routes are to be installed at Broadway and Texas this weekend.

In the meantime, the search for another compromise on a permanent transfer point continues.

Official Chauffeur Dies

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher interrupted her schedule Friday to attend the funeral of her official chauffeur, 63-year-old George Newell, who died last week.

Howard County Hires Predator Trapper

BIG SPRING (Special) — The Howard County Commissioners Court has approved a plan to have two trappers hunt predatory animals in the county.

Under the plan, Larry Tubb of Big Spring will trap animals from Sept. 15 of each year through June 15. Tubb would work for the county on the nine-month basis, with a state-employed trapper hunting animals for the entire year in an effort to help prevent the killing of livestock by wild animals.

Commissioners also have appointed Big Spring City Councilman Larry Miller county civil defense director, which is a non-paying position.

Additionally, commissioners voted to allow some 73 petitioners in the Silver Hills Addition near Big Spring to annex their property into the Forsan Independent School District.

Air Force's Top Enlisted Man To Attend Reese Wing's Dining-In

Chief Master Sergeant of the Air Force James A. McCoy, the service's highest ranking enlisted man, will visit Reese Air Force Base Tuesday and Wednesday to attend the 64th Flying Training Wing Enlisted Dining-In.

Boardings At Airport Up Slightly

Passenger boardings at Lubbock International Airport are up less than one percent for the first two months of this year compared to January-February 1980, according to statistics released by the airport administration.

But the 64,886 boardings for the first two months of this year are still about 5,000 passengers below the number boarding planes for the first two months of 1979.

Southwest Airlines, as it has since 1978, led the five airlines serving the city in passenger boardings. Southwest had 37,931 boardings for January and February, an 8.5 percent increase over the same two months a year ago.

Braniff, which has in recent months been experiencing serious financial problems, is second so far this year in passenger boardings with 18,798 customers recorded through February. Braniff's boardings are up 17.7 percent this year compared to the first two months of 1980.

Experiencing a loss of passenger boardings has been Continental, down from 6,577 for January-February 1980 to 4,220 during the first two months of 1981. Texas International is off in the same period from 5,864 to 3,524 and Air Midwest declined from 1,037 to 413 boardings.

Continental's and Texas International's declines in passenger boardings have continued on an annual basis since at least 1979 in Lubbock, which airline officials attribute in part to increasing fuel costs and rising ticket prices.

and the chief of staff of the Air Force on matters concerning welfare, effective utilization and progress of enlisted members.

Dining-In is an old tradition in England, but is not exclusively military. It is believed to have begun as a custom in the monasteries, was adopted by the early universities and later spread to military units when the officers' mess was established.

The current program of Dining-In probably had its beginning in the Air Corps when the late General H.H. "Hap" Arnold used to hold his famous "Wing Dinings." The association of U.S. Army Air Corps personnel with the British and their Dining-Ins during World War II gave additional impetus for its growth in the Air Force.

Chief McCoy will be the guest speaker and guest of honor for the event, which will begin at 6 p.m. Tuesday. After the Dining-In, spouses and guests will be inited in for a social hour.

The chief is a native of Creston, Iowa, and entered the military in January 1951. He attended St. Benedict's College in Atchison and St. Ambrose College in Daventry, Iowa. He received a bachelor of science degree in business administration from Centenary College of Louisiana in 1966.

During his career, he has filled numerous positions, ranging from a radar operator and instructor to a technical training instructor at Lackland AFB. But it is the field of professional military education that the chief has emphasized.

Beginning as assistant commandant of cadets, Air Force Reserve Officers' Training Corps at the University of Notre Dame, he eventually filled posts in the Strategic Air Command Noncommissioned Officer Preparatory School, the Second Air Force Noncommissioned Officer Academy, SAC Headquarters (where he served as PME monitor for the deputy chief of staff for personnel) and also served as chairman of two worldwide senior enlisted advisers' conferences for the Air Force Association.

During this time, the chief helped prepare numerous courses of study and PME programs and was recognized for his efforts in 1974, when he was chosen one of the 12 Air Force Outstanding Airmen.

He assumed his current post Aug. 1, 1979.

GENERAL RELEASE

CHARLIE CHAN AND THE CURSE OF THE DRAGON QUEEN (PG) — Peter Ustinov, Lee Grant, Angie Dickinson. (Comedy mystery) Ancient proverb: He who forgets script is caught with plots down. The idea to bring back the old Oriental sleuth was a good one, and Ustinov is a dandy Chan. But they simply forgot a decent story line. The result? This is a pretty bland Chan. GRADE: C

BREAKER MORANT (PG) — Edward Woodward, Jack Thompson. (Drama) Filmed in Australia, this is the story of three Australian carabineers in the Boer War who are tried by a British military court for murdering seven Boers and a German missionary. A taut film adaptation of a play which explores man's heart as well as an empire's psyche. Brilliantly acted, it truly excites, in the best meaning of the word. GRADE: A

DOGS OF WAR, THE (R) — Christopher Walken, Colin Blakely. (Action adventure) A first-rate version of Frederick Forsyth's thriller about the mercenaries who try to take over a corrupt Idi Amin-like African country. Great action sequences and some fine touches of the bizarre, but it's all marred by the fact that Walken, a fine actor, is much too young to play the supposedly veteran mercenary who commands the operation. GRADE: B

FORT APACHE, THE BRONX (R) — Paul Newman, Ken Wahl, Edward Asner. (Police Drama) This is certainly one of the finest about New York's finest, or any police force for that matter based on truth, it is a look at the workings of the police in a Bronx precinct so wild it's nicknamed Fort Apache. And one cop — Newman — is faced with a terrible decision. This is first-rate filmmaking all the way. GRADE: A

INCREDIBLE SHRINKING WOMAN, THE (PG) — Lily Tomlin, Charles Grodin, Ned Beatty. (Comedy) The old sci-fi favorite has been modernized, humorized and feminized for Lily, and the result shrinks. She's a nice, typical housewife whose body reacts adversely to today's chemical additives, and she begins shrinking. Some very funny moments, but the script is weak and so this is little more than a series of skits strung together. GRADE: B-minus

POPEYE (PG) — Robin Williams, Shelley Duvall, Paul L. Smith, Paul Dooley. (Comedy with music) The comic strip hero is reborn, in a stylized version by Robert Altman that grows on you. The film story is the weakest thing, but the acting (especially Shelley Duvall as Olive Oyl) is fine, the effects are fun and the music fits neatly. It's a pleasant romp. GRADE: B

RAGING BULL (R) — Robert DeNiro. (Drama) This is a film by Martin Scorsese that depicts the rise and fall of prize fighter Jake LaMotta. It is powerful, but always very self-conscious of its artistry; you never for a moment forget you are watching a movie (and a performance by DeNiro) that is designed to be arty. Thus, it loses its punch. It is bloody and raucous, but never for a moment real. GRADE: B

District Judge To Name Board Election Winner

By MARY ALICE ROBBINS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

It will be up to a district judge to determine the winner in the January 17 board election held by Lubbock County Water Control and Improvement District, the district's board of managers agreed Friday.

Board members spent more than an hour and a half closeted behind closed doors with their attorney Friday morning, discussing the election contest suit filed by former director Dale Miller.

Miller, a three-year veteran of the water district board, filed suit last month against George W. Whitworth, one of two candidates declared winners in the election.

Following the executive session, the board voted unanimously to let the court settle the election dispute.

Chariman W. D. (Billy) Sims read a statement regarding the board's decision, saying the "board does not believe it is proper at this time to suggest or volunteer that a new election be held."

According to Sims, the board will abide by the court's decision in the case.

In his suit, Miller alleges that 20 of the 473 ballots counted in the election were cast by unregistered voters.

The official canvas of the election showed Miller lost to Whitworth by only 18 votes. Miller contends that the 20 contested votes would have changed the course of the election.

The former board member also claims there were other "irregularities at polling places" on the day of the election. Those alleged irregularities will be spelled out in an amendment to the original suit, he said.

But Whitworth claimed in his answer filed earlier this week that Miller is at least one and possibly three votes short in his effort to have a new election ordered.

"I feel like I won it (the election) since I was declared the winner," Whitworth said following today's meeting.

Ironically Whitworth's response to the suit was filed by attorney Elmer East, who also serves as legal counsel to the water district board.

Miller questioned whether East's legal representation of Whitworth represented a possible conflict of interest.

East said he merely filed the response for Whitworth and has not discussed with him whether he will be representing him at the hearing.

District Judge Robert Montgomery of Memphis has been appointed to hear the election contest suit, which was filed here in 72nd District Court.

Ambulance Policy Talks Tabled By Commissioners

BROWNFIELD (Special) — Terry County Commissioners have tabled action on a new policy affecting the ambulance service in the county, deciding to postpone action on the matter until they talk with Brownfield Police Chief J.T. Churchwell.

The county, along with the Terry County Hospital District, join the Brownfield city government in funding the ambulance service here. The police department operates the service.

Earlier this month, the city council voted to increase the base rate for the ambulance service from $40 to $60 and added provisions requiring ambulance emergency patients within the county to be sent to the emergency room of Brownfield Regional Medical Center. Provisions concerning care of ambulance patients also were added.

City officials said the rate increase and ambulance policies would be presented to the commissioners only to provide them with information about the changes and would not require their formal approval.

County Judge Herbert Chesshir said commissioners also have approved the disbursement of $200,000 in equal amounts to the four precincts for road maintenance projects. The money is from fees collected on vehicle registrations.

Commissioners also have begun discussion of what to do about raising the $3,000 homestead exemption on property assessments to persons 65 or older in the county. "It will definitely be raised to $10,000 or better," Chesshir predicted, basing that estimate on a need to keep up with rising assessments expected as a result of the Peveto Act.

Robbery Suspect, Wife Plead Guilty To Lesser Offense

A 140th District Court jury which apparently could not reach a verdict was called out of deliberations Thursday afternoon to be told that aggravated robbery suspect Humberto Lara would plead guilty to the lesser offense of aggravated assault under an agreement between the defense and the state.

Lara, 35, had been on trial since Wednesday for allegedly pulling a gun on his former employer in a dispute over wages allegedly owed the farm worker. The jury had been deliberating his fate for several hours and could not reach a unanimous verdict when presiding Judge William Shaver instructed them that Lara would plead to the lesser offense.

Shaver sentenced Lara, who has no criminal record, to a 10-year probated sentence for the third-degree felony assault charge. Lara's 35-year-old wife, Thomasa Garcia, also pleaded guilty to the same charge and was assessed the same probated sentence.

Mrs. Lara was prosecuted because she allegedly encouraged her husband to take the money from their employer.

PSYCHOLOGY TODAY

Evening Hours Best Time To Remember

By the Editors of Psychology Today

The evening hours seem to be the time many people's memory for things they have worked to learn is at its peak.

That is the conclusion of a recent experiment by three British researchers at Cambridge led by Keith Miller, a psychologist. The finding involves long-term memory — data we have consciously tried to learn, like the date of the Battle of Hastings or our best friend's telephone number. Short-term memory, by contrast, is the active memory we use when we look up a telephone number. Short-term memory, by contrast, is the active memory we use when we look up a telephone number and dial it, forgetting it 15 or 20 seconds later. This kind of memory, studies show, deteriorates as people become more tired.

Miller and his colleagues used a highly precise testing method on 54 housewives who are part of the university's pool of research subjects. Since no differences between man and women have been found so far in other memory experiments, the researchers think it is plausible to apply their findings to both sexes.

Each of the women sat before a visual display unit. When she pressed a bar, it flashed the name of a category like "animal" or "flower." The first word was joined 1.5 seconds later by another word. If the woman thought the second word fit the category ("animal" and "horse," for example), she said "yes" into a microphone. To make the decision, she had to demonstrate her use of the recall and categorizing processes that are usually associated with long-term memory.

The women were divided into three groups of 18, who took the test either in the morning, in the afternoon, or in the evening. The crucial measurement was how long it took to respond to unfamiliar words, which take longer to recognize and categorize than familiar ones, because they involve greater use of long-term memory.

For the women tested during the evening, the difference in response time between familiar words and unfamiliar ones was significantly smaller than it was for women tested earlier in the day. An electronic timer recorded an average difference of 103 milliseconds, compared to 178 milliseconds during the afternoon and 181 during the morning.

One implication of the finding is that tests and experiments involving memory may have to be reinterpreted. For convenience, most such tests are conducted during the day. The researchers warn, however, that such tests "should not be regarded as providing any absolute picture of the functioning of semantic memory."

People who lose weight with the help of behavioral techniques such as weighing themselves regularly and keeping records of what they eat seem to need the same techniques to keep the weight off.

In a recent study, Michael D. LeBow at the University of Manitoba, Canada, surveyed former participants in one such program and found that five years later, about half of them had kept off at least 15 pounds.

Of the "maintainers," 83 percent said they still weighed themselves daily or weekly, 43 percent said they occasionally kept records of their food intake, and 88 percent reported daily or weekly exercise. By contrast, among people who had not maintained their weight loss, only 5 percent weighed themselves regularly or kept records, and only 18 percent exercised.

In short, LeBow and his colleagues note, "the more triumphant patients" during the follow-up interval "were the more cautious."

Mail Order Gardening Increases

Mail order buying has been an integral part of the American way of life for over 100 years. Smart buyers in the cities and suburbs are joining their counterparts in the rural areas who have long valued mail order shopping. The buying of plants and gardening items by mail is no exception in the recent resurgence of this time-honored shopping method, so much so that mail order gardening rose 10 percent last year to become a $375-million industry. The American Association of Nurserymen offers this explanation:

More than 25 percent more women are working today than years ago. If you are or know one of these working women, you know that available shopping hours and schedules are severely limited. Shopping for gardening needs from home at any hour, with daily deliveries of plants to the door can be the answer.

Catalogs contain full descriptions of the plants they offer, a welcome benefit in today's mass marketing where sales clerks don't always have the answers. Smart gardeners are also realizing that the increased cost of gasoline requires them to economize on shopping trips. As transportation costs continue to soar, more and more gardeners will be turning to shopping at home.

Gardeners are becoming more edu-

Judge Orders Pair To Jail For Graffiti

NEW YORK (AP) — A Criminal Court judge has sentenced two men to 15 days in jail for scrawling the name of their street gang on a Brooklyn subway station.

"Get caught splashing your technical or trash on our subways and stations and I'll send you to Rikers Island until your spray cans dry up," Judge Jerome Becker said Thursday, referring to the jail where the youths will spend their two-week sentence.

The Transit Authority, which operates the city's bus and system system, had been willing to accept restitution as punishment against the two defendants, Roberto Quinones, 21, and Ismael Gonzales, 19, both of Brooklyn.

They pleaded guilty to defacing walls in the Greenpoint Avenue subway station with the name of their gang, the "Sparkling Angels."

"Totally unacceptable," Becker told a TA representative. "I don't see restitution as a viable solution to this enormous problem."

"Our subways, stations and buses have been turned into horrible eyesores. The situation is so out of hand that we must treat it more severely. My way of dealing with it is jail."

Then, turning to the defendants, Becker said: "Fifteen days!"

Becker received public attention last year when on two occasions he sentenced first offenders to prison, despite recommendations by the probation department that they be fined.

Both had been arrested for illegal possession of guns, and each got a sentence of one year.

Man, Women Accused In Exorcism Scheme

ROME (AP) — A priest and two women have been accused of a bogus exorcism scheme in which they tied up young women, covered their bodies with ice and recited prayers over them, police said Friday.

In some cases, the three burned a sign of the cross on the young women's foreheads, Police Commissioner Paul Nash said in an interview.

Nash said police believe the suspects, the Rev. Domenico Bernardini, 56, Rosa Rosati, 70, and Jole Fabiani, 43, were not sincerely attempting to free the women of evil spirits, but wanted to cheat them out of money.

A spokesman for the Salesian Order in Rome said Bernardini was released from his vows 12 years ago at his request because of mental problems, was later taken on by the diocese of Latina south of Rome, but does not have a parish. Police said Bernardini wears clerical garb.

Friday The 20th Called Real Day To Fear

SEATTLE (UPI) — An occultist says Friday the 13th is just a superstition, but people should beware of Friday the 20th.

The first day of spring will coincide with a full moon for the first time in possibly 100 years, said Richard Alan Miller, formerly the owner of an occult bookstore in Seattle and now a spice farmer and writer in Okanogan County.

"Friday the 13th is a superstition that doesn't have much occult significance, in my opinion," Miller said Thursday. "It doesn't have any major energy to it. Seasonal changes are much more significant."

Miller said next Friday will be especially influential because the vernal equinox coincides with a full moon.

"I believe this equinox is probably the most important of your personal life in this century," the occultist said.

Miller also has a doctoral degree in physics and claims there is a scientific basis for his belief.

He said it has something to do with the brain's sensitivity to light, which is high during a full moon equinox.

Miller said a full moon equinox does not necessarily mean events of a negative nature will occur. He said positive events are just as likely.

But Laura Osterfeld, who observed her 13th birthday today, wasn't reassured by Miller's opinion.

"I hate Friday the 13th," she said. "I was always superstitious about it and having a birthday on Friday the 13th is the worst. It wouldn't be so bad if I was turning 12 or something."

AIRPORT STUDY

WYLIE (AP) — A committee studying the feasibility of a general aviation airport in the Northeast Dallas area may again be considering a site near Wylie — to the dismay of about 600 area residents who already have signed a petition opposing an airport. The panel has been looking over six sites for more than a year.

Nash said he believes the suspects swindled about 50 million lire — $50,000 — from the women who were persuaded to work for free or donate their paychecks to the priest after they had been "liberated" from "demons."

He said he fears the three have organized other bogus "exorcism" ceremonies still taking place undetected in many private houses in Rome.

The Roman Catholic Church permits exorcism in some cases, but it may be performed only by a priest with the specific permission of a bishop.

The priest and the two women apparently sought out young women who had family problems and encouraged them to go to a "religious ceremony" at the institute Opera dell'Amore about 30 miles south of Rome, Nash said.

The women, mostly in their early 20s, were told they were possessed by demons and they must stay at the institute to be exorcised.

"Mothers complained in letters to the police and the state's attorney. They talked about strange things that happened in the institute," Nash said. "These girls, to liberate themselves from demons, agreed to close themselves in the institute."

Nash said he did not exclude the possibility that the three were acting in good faith and really believed the women were possessed by demons but he thought it was unlikely.

The formal charges against the three include association to commit crime, fraud and assault, and a count involving deprivation of will.

Nash said police are investigating the possibility that the young women were molested sexually. He said about 30 women lived at the institute, a decrepit 60-year-old building on a mountain road.

He said police believe the crimes have been going on for five years. The arrests took place Tuesday, but not made public until paperwork was completed. Bernardini, who lives in the institute, turned himself in. Mrs. Rosati, of Rome, was arrested at home. Mrs. Fabiani, of Ascoli Piceno, was arrested at an old people's home she was visiting in her hometown. All three were jailed pending trial.

Modern Blacksmiths Keep Ancient Craft Alive

HERE'S HOW IT'S DONE — Jack Roth, a 36-year-old veterinarian and founder of the Oklahoma Horseshoeing School, shows student Craig Nichols, 28, of Benton City, Wash., the correct way to file down a horse's hoof. (AP Laserphoto)

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Today's forge is fueled by gas, not by coal, and the "village smithy" like a not parks a pickup equipped with a portable shop under the "spreading chestnut tree" of verse.

"I don't know if any of us are quite as strong as the guy in the poem," says horseshoer Jack Roth, "but we like to think we are."

Roth, a 36-year-old veterinarian, is founder of the Oklahoma Horseshoeing School, located in a big red barn five miles from the heart of Oklahoma City. He and his students see the art of shodding horses not as an antique trade, but as a flourishing business worth $25,000 a year to the professional — after expenses.

More than 200 horseshoers, or farriers, took Roth's course the past year. Only about 10 of his students were from Oklahoma; the rest came from as far away as Japan and Malaysia.

Recreation horses account for most of the horseshoeing business. "They say there's something about the outside of the horse that's good for the inside of a man," says Roth. "People are just crazy about horses."

"In the late '60s and '70s we had kind of a period of semi-affluence in this country, and when a lot of these people were kids, their dream was to have a pony. Now they're grown people and they have their pony, and their kids have their ponies."

Horseshoeing has changed from the days of the hot forge, hammer and anvil.

The modern horseshoer can forego the forge entirely, using instead shoes made of molybdenum steel, cut to size at the factory and shaped to the horse's foot without heating.

Despite improvements, horseshoeing still is physically demanding work. "You're knock-kneed and bent over trying to clasp the horse's leg between your knees," says Roth. "You take the hoof knife and pare the dead sole away, then use your hoof nippers and trim the excess hoof wall away, use your hoof rasp to level the hoof, select the correct size shoe and shape it to the hoof. Then you nail the shoe in place on the hoof using six or eight nails."

With Roth's 20 years' experience, the whole process takes 15 minutes.

The basic horseshoeing course at Roth's school lasts two weeks. Graduates "can do real nice work at the rate of one horse shod in an hour and a half or two hours."

An eight-week course gives advanced students "the skills to do most anything required, such as ... corrective shoeing for lameness problems," Roth says.

Now more than halfway through the course, Craig Nichols, 28, expects to earn $20,000 his first year of horseshoeing, more than enough to support his wife and two children.

The former construction worker from Benton City, Wash., considers it a good return for the $1,250 he has invested in the course, lodging included.

Horseshoeing built Roth's school. "When I was a kid I wanted to be a cowboy," Roth says. "There wasn't enough money in cowboying, but horseshoeing paid pretty well."

And Roth says the trade has attractions beyond the money. "I'd have to say my most enjoyable days are when I go and pull up under a shade tree with my trailer. It's nice there, and I'm doing what I like doing ... There's a certain camaraderie among horseshoers. It's a life."

County, City Plan Negotiations On Rural County Fire Service

By MARC FLAKE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lubbock County Commissioners are ready to listen to city proposals to provide back-up fire service outside the city limits, but they're not ready to talk about it with the news media.

County Judge Rod Shaw explained that "some media" try to create a feud where one doesn't exist. "It would be nice to have some kind of arrangement with Lubbock for major fires," he said. "Everybody agrees there are some county areas that are closer to Lubbock" than to rural volunteer fire stations.

Members of the city council agreed in a work session Thursday afternoon that the city should make the county an offer to reinforce rural VFD's at major fires.

While Mayor Bill McAllister proposed that the letter sent to the commissioners should include options and cost estimates, most of the council seemed to agree with Councilman Alan Henry's proposal just to ask if the county wanted a contract for fire service — and if they did, what kind of service they would want.

Once that has been determined, said Henry, the city could put cost estimates on the types of service the county may want.

City firefighters stopped making county fire calls in September 1976 after the county refused to pay $1,250 per call, which the city sought in its contract.

Other offers made by the city since then have also been turned down by the county, which has been paying rural VFD's $275 per call for about four years.

Council Jack Brown said during Thursday's work session that McAllister "took a lot of heat" after Brown suggested another contract attempt be made.

McAllister's business, KAMC-TV is located outside the city limits and its only fire protection is from rural VFD's.

"Our danger is more a danger of an electrical fire," McAllister said after the meeting. "We could take care of that ourselves."

The risk of a fire at the building is low and the type of building the television station is housed in — brick — would reduce the seriousness of the fire, he said.

During the work session Brown also said that since the city won't be offering the same type of service to people outside the city limits as it does to those inside, using the same formula to calculate the cost wouldn't be fair.

The 1976 contract offer of $1,250 was based on dividing the total cost of operating the city fire department by the total number of calls made in a year.

McAllister said the figure had increased to $1,861 per call because of inflation.

County Precinct 2 Commissioner Coy Biggs said he didn't think it would be fair for the county to pay for the same service city residents get.

"I would give you my opinion in about 10 seconds," he said today, "and it would tear down any negotiations."

A reciprocal agreement with the city "might be nice to have," he said.

"It looks like some new people on the commissioners' court have been talking to some new people on the council," he added.

According to city officials, interest in reviving the county fire call contract was revived when Precinct 1 Commissioner Boyd Roberts talked to members of the council.

Roberts and Precinct 3 Commissioner Franklin Dunn, both new members of the court, were out of town this morning.

Precinct 4 commissioner Alton Brazzell also declined to comment on the city proposal.

Pitchfork Nears Century Mark

ident Lauro Cavazos will be guest speaker, will be at the RHC new barbecue facility built from funds in the D Burns Memorial Fund at the Ranching Heritage Association, which Burns headed for many years. The dedication is open, free of charge, to the public.

The Pitchfork's third major era began when Humphreys came to the Pitchfork in 1948 and took over the general manager's job at Burns' retirement. Humphreys continued in Burns' footsteps at the RHC, becoming chairman of the board of overseers of the RHA and now heads the RHA's Endowment Fund for the Preservation of Ranching Heritage in America.

In addition to a cow-calf operation in Dickens and King counties and grazing facilities in Wyoming and Kansas, the Pitchfork has 4,000 acres in cultivation for feed, a feed lot and a hog segment.

Cowboying is much the same as always, though fewer hands are needed and there are pickups and modern conveniences, like running water and electricity, at cow camps, with a radio network connecting all vehicles and camps with headquarters.

But a cowboy still climbs into the saddle for the basic chores of working-cattle much as the first Pitchfork cowboys did.

And even though there are shorter hours in the usual 12-hour day work week, which ends at noon Saturday except in heavy work periods like roundup and shipping, all hands still pitch in, Humphreys emphasized, "when somebody fails to show up," a grass fire looms on the horizon or the sheriff needs help combing the rough country for a fugitive.

The Texas range is divided into camps for specific operations — Purebred, Croton, South, North, Farm and Headquarters — with a camp boss family at each station. Humphreys, assistant manager Bob Moorhous, other cowboy families and single cowboys live at headquarters along with the wind miller and cook.

A registered herd of Herefords, with about 230 mother cows, is maintained, Humphreys noted, chiefly to control herd quality by raising the ranch's bulls using bulls purchased off the ranch for the purebreds.

While Herefords keep to the better portions of the Pitchfork, a crossbred commercial herd — cows with one-quarter Brahma and Beefmaster or Simbra bulls — work out better for the rough Croton Brakes. "We also run black baldies, the Hereford-Angus cross," Humphreys added.

All told, about 8,000 head of cattle roam Pitchfork range which can handle a cow unit about every 20 to 30 acres, depending on weather. "When it's good, we can't keep enough on it, but when it's dry there always are too many," Humphreys said.

A mild winter plus rain has the range in very good shape now with winter rye, termed rescue grass by the Pitchfork boss, and weekends coming on fine.

Crossbred yearlings are trucked to Kansas for one season on grass before sales while the Hereford steers go to Wyoming to double their weight in "a double summer and winter" on grass before topping out on grain for market.

Even a crop failure at the Pitchfork farms is a money making proposition, since the crop is salvaged as graze for weaning calves, cheaper than farming out the calves on rented grass.

The dryland farm operation, overseen by the Farm Camp boss, provides grain and roughage for the feedlot and the hog operation.

"We raise horses for our own use, ride the geldings and sell the fillies," Humphreys said, explaining that horses are parceled out among the cowboys according to seniority.

"We keep about six to 10 per man and as long as they're here, they are like they are theirs," he said. "When we have sales, if they don't want to sell a horse, they don't have to, but they get a commission."

Horses are halter broken at headquarters before going in to cowboy strings to complete their training while being used on the ranch.

Another one of the Pitchfork's continuing programs, begun in the 1930s with handgrubbing, is mesquite control because "where the mesquite is thickest the most fertile grass is."

Where families used to camp out in tents and grub mesquite for "beans and groceries and a little money" during the depression, a spraying operation topped off by a Caterpillar dragging chains now wages war on the mesquite.

The mesquite, Humphrey explained, can come up from a bean lying on the ground for years and is spread around by cattle eating the beans, making it a continual problem.

Another consistent, though not troubling, happening is a wildlife study by Tech students.

However, the most constant occurrence is the stream of visitors who want to see a real working ranch and the members of the agri-business world who want to take a look at the way the Pitchfork, a leader in its field for almost a century, does things.

Memorabilia Auction Planned

BALTIMORE (AP) — Rosa Ponselle, the famous dramatic soprano who is now 84, will make a rare public appearance when she holds an auction of celebrity memorabilia May 31 to raise money for the Peabody Conservatory of Music, the nation's oldest conservatory.

ROSA PONSELLE

The auction at Miss Ponselle's estate Villa Pace in rural Stevenson, Md. will be conducted by the New York gallery Sotheby Parke Bernet Inc.

"This was Miss Ponselle's idea. She wanted to do something unique," said Elayne Duke, a spokeswoman for the women's board of the conservatory.

Miss Duke said the items to be auctioned, yet to be announced, will include memorabilia donated by prominent musicians, opera singers, conductors, composers, artists and writers. The money will go toward encouraging young musical talent, she said.

The former star of the Metropolitan Opera for two decades retired in 1937. She made her debut opposite Enrico Caruso in 1918 and was the first American-born artist to sing a major role at the Met without benefit of European training.

In her five decades of retirement, Miss Ponselle has encouraged many prominent performers, including Beverly Sills, Sherrill Milnes and James Morris.

Creationist Sued By Creditors

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Kelly Segraves, the creationist who sued the California school system for teaching evolution, is being sued by creditors claiming nearly $180,000.

Among them, according to court records, is the printing company which put out Segraves' literature outlining the biblical version of the origin of man.

Segraves, director of the San Diego Creation Science Research Center, responded Thursday that his group is "always working" on paying bills.

"We've never made a whole lot of money doing what we're doing," he said.

The books printed by the W.F. Hall Printing Co. for Segraves included "The Great Dinosaur Mistake" and "Handy-Dandy Evolution Refuter." The printing company won a court judgment for $70,686, and International Telephone & Telegraph Co. won another for $47,008, the San Diego Union said.

In the "Scopes II" trial in Sacramento, Superior Court Judge Irvin Perliuss declined to order the teaching of creationism or a ban on evolution instruction.

First Buzzard Of Spring

HINCKLEY, Ohio (AP) — Despite their shyness, the buzzards that have descended on this small northeastern Ohio town every March 15 for at least three decades are expected to return again this year, greeted by 50,000 people.

Buzzard's Day, the annual rite of spring, goes back to 1816. Local legend has it that the Great Hinckley Varmint Hunt of Dec. 24, when 475 men and boys lined the settlement's 25-square-mile borders and moved in to rid the area of farm predators, left tons of decaying carcasses in its wake. The game froze, then thawed in spring and attracted the buzzards.

The sightings at what is now a wooded park called the Hinckley Reservation have been documented for just 30 years.

The arrival from the Great Smokey Mountains of what should properly be called turkey scavengers has been an institution for 23 years, with the townfolk holding an all-you-can-eat pancake and sausage breakfast the Sunday after the sightings.

This year, the breakfast falls on the day of the landing of the big, black vultures, which are known to stay away from people.

Fire Hits Governor's Mansion

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — The private mansion of Delaware Gov. Pierre du Pont IV was hit by a fire Friday that burned for an hour before it was brought under control, authorities said. There were no injuries.

Du Pont's wife, Elise, was the only person at home, authorities said. The governor was on business in Chicago.

The fire broke out in the ceiling of a wing of the home at about 4:30 a.m. and left extensive damage that was confined to a small area of the residence, police Sgt. James Cazer said. The fire apparently was caused by an electrical problem and was not considered suspicious, officials said.

The mansion, known as Patterns, is on a family compound in Rockland, about two miles north of Wilmington.

Ex-Governor In Hospital

ORVAL FAUBUS

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Former Arkansas Gov. Orval Faubus says stress from recent travels across the state could be to blame for ulcer pains that sent him to the hospital.

Faubus, 71, was resting at Baptist Medical Center on Thursday, one day after undergoing tests that will determine whether he needs surgery. He said there is an obstruction of the valve leading from his stomach to his small intestine.

"It's that old trouble," Faubus said. "They say I've got an ulcer there that might be blocking it so much that surgery might be required."

Faubus has been traveling through Arkansas recently to promote his political autobiography "Down From The Hills."

Actress Testifies At Hearing

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Actress Mercedes McCambridge, a reformed alcoholic, says significant advances against alcoholism cannot be made until society "makes room for us to walk as tall as any of you."

Miss McCambridge, testifying Thursday at a state hearing on heroin and alcohol abuse, decried the blocking of a halfway house for women alcoholics in Buffalo by homeowners who, she said, did not want "those women" as neighbors.

"Does this mean they would not allow women like Betty Ford, Joan Kennedy, Joy Baker, Sen. Howard Baker's wife, and myself, bringing up the rear, into their homes?" she asked. The women mentioned had suffered from alcoholism.

Miss McCambridge, 62, who won an academy award in 1950 for best supporting actress in "All the King's Men" said the "dignity of the client" is stressed at her Livingrin Foundation for alcoholism treatment in Bucks County, Pa.

The hearings complement a state drug-abuse study under the direction of Joseph Califano Jr., former secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services. Hearings also are planned for New York City.

Miss McCambridge refused to discuss details of her addiction, saying only that it never interfered with her professional life.

The disease rests on "a three-legged stool" of depression, perfectionism and dependency, she said. "One in three people in this country is using something to interrupt the harshness of life."

She said her clinic operates on a direct approach. "The more you expect of the alcoholic the more he will give. You draw out the excellence of the individual. You don't push, you lift."

Carson Says No 90-Minutes

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Tonight Show" host Johnny Carson has said no to NBC's request to return the program to its original 90-minute format.

Henry Bushkin, Carson's lawyer, told NBC Carson would not allow an extra half-hour of showtime because he feared "it would confuse his audience," an NBC source said. Carson spent more than a year in intense negotiation with NBC to reduce the show to 60 minutes.

The network wanted to lengthen the show to counter the success of ABC's comedy show "Fridays." The refusal led NBC to develop a new late-Friday program to compete with "Fridays" and replace "Midnight Special," which has been canceled after eight years on the air.

Pavarotti Sings At Cathedral

NEW YORK (AP) — Metropolitan Opera star Luciano Pavarotti charmed an overflow audience at St. Patrick's Cathedral to help the Vatican's permanent observer to the United Nations celebrate World Peace Day.

The crowd gave each of Pavarotti's five numbers loud applause, with the biggest response reserved for the tenor's closing piece "Ave Maria."

The ambassadors and other officials of many nations who attended the Wednesday night service heard United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim praise Pope John Paul II for calling for a Day of Peace, and for linking world peace to human rights and freedom.

Cardinal Terence Cooke, head of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of New York, said "any violation of human rights is a form of warfare against humanity." He also deplored "the wide gap between the excessively wealthy and the desperately poor" in many parts of the world.

The ecumenical service was opened with prayer by Archbishop Iakovos, primate of the Greek Orthodox Church of North and South America. The closing prayer was led by Ms. Nan Cox, general director of Church Women United.

Chamber Fills Board Vacancy In Childress

A-J Correspondent
CHILDRESS — Steve McReynolds has been appointed to fill a vacancy on the board of directors of the Childress Chamber of Commerce.

Meeting in recent regular session, chamber officials approved McReynolds' appointment to the position vacated Jan. 1 when Herold Kitchens resigned to accept the position of chamber manager.

McReynolds is an employee of the editorial staff at the Childress Index.

In other business, Pat Horn, administrator at Childress General Hospital, told board members of the proposed new school of registered nursing. Horn said the RN school would be in addition to the LVN school now in operation at the hospital. He estimated that when both schools are in session they would include as many as 60 students.

Horn said he is confident the community is on the threshold of becoming a regional medical facility. He told board members three specialists now practice here, bringing the number of physicians on the hospital's staff to 10.

Stanley Terry discussed the recent Childress County Youth Project show, which he said was successful this year. The chamber donated trophies and ribbons for the show. Terry said some $20,000 in premium money will be paid to 77 youths who had livestock entered in the premium sale.

A Great Day for the Irish

St. Patrick's Day is March 17

There are many statues of St. Patrick in Ireland. He stayed over 300 churches and brought the Christian religion to over 120,000 people.

St. Patrick is the patron saint of Ireland. Hundreds of years ago he brought the Christian religion to that small island. Many legends have grown up about St. Patrick. One story is that, as a young boy, he was kidnapped from his home in England or France. He was sold into slavery in Ireland and spent six years herding sheep. He escaped to France, where he became a monk. He had a vision to return to Ireland. Today there are no big snakes in Ireland. Another legend is that St. Patrick charmed all of them and led them down to the sea where they drowned themselves. March 17 honors the date of his death.

The Leprechauns

The Irish love to tell tall tales about fairies. The leprechauns are the most famous. These tiny little men are the shoemakers for the fairies. The story is that every leprechaun has a little pot of gold. If you see one of these little men, you can have his treasure if you keep both eyes on him. If you glance away, the leprechaun will vanish. At least all of them have up until now!

The Shillelagh

The shillelagh (she-LAY-lee) is a wooden stick that the Irish sometimes carry as a cane. These sticks got their name because at one time they were made from oak trees that grew in the forest near the village of Shillelagh. The first shillelachs were used as weapons. One blow could kill you. Today's shillelachs are used as canes and souvenirs.

The Shamrock

The shamrock is the national flower of Ireland, England and Wales. The story is that St. Patrick brought this clover-like flower to Ireland. There are many shamrock farms in Ireland. Shamrocks are shipped all over the world, especially around St. Patrick's Day.

At one time, Ireland was one country ruled by England. Today, it is divided into two parts. The smaller part is Northern Ireland. It is a part of the United Kingdom and is closely tied to England. The larger part is called the Republic of Ireland. It is free from outside rule.

Are you Irish? Millions of Americans have Irish ancestors. Here is a list of some of the most popular last names in Ireland.

An Irish Blessing

The Irish are known for their love of fun and their toasts and blessings. Here is a very popular blessing.

May the road rise to meet you
May the wind be always at your back
May the sun shine warm upon your face
May the rains fall soft upon your fields
And, until we meet again,
May God hold you in the palm of his hand.

The Gaelic language

Most of the Irish speak English. However, in their everyday life, about 5 percent speak another language called Gaelic. Here are some Gaelic words. Conat tu: How are you? Salan agat: Goodbye.

Kissing the Blarney stone is an old Irish custom

The Blarney stone is in a tower in Blarney Castle, near Cork, in the Republic of Ireland.

To kiss the stone, first you have to lie flat on your back.

You bend your head back so that it is upside down. Then you kiss the stone. Someone has to hold your legs because there is a crack between the floor and the stone.

Today many tourists visit Blarney Castle in Ireland to kiss the Blarney stone.

There is an old belief that when you do kiss the stone, you will be given the "gift of gab." You will be able to flatter people into believing what you say.

There are many stories about how this custom started. One story goes:

Once a king saved the life of a small fairy who was drowning. She wanted to thank him in some way.

When he said he wanted nothing, he stammered.

The fairy knew then that he did indeed need the gift of being a good speaker.

She told him to go to the highest tower in a nearby castle and kiss a certain stone. When he did, he became an outstanding talker.

The fairy asked the king to keep the stone-kissing a secret, but he did not. He told all of his people.

Another story is that many years ago Queen Elizabeth I kept getting letters from the Lord of Blarney Castle.

These letters did not answer the questions she asked him. He rambled on, really saying nothing. One day she got so angry that she cried, "This is all Blarney; what he says he never means."

Still another story is that the Lord of Blarney Castle used to flatter his enemies so they would leave without attacking.

Meet Shelley Duvall, Popeye's girlfriend Olive Oyl

Shelley Duvall plays Olive Oyl in the motion picture "Popeye."

She is a natural for the part because she is so tall and skinny.

In fact, when she was growing up, her friends called her Olive Oyl.

Shelley, who is now 30 years old, was born in Houston, Texas.

She started acting 10 years ago when she was a science student at a junior college in her hometown.

Shelley got her first break in Houston. She gave a party for a friend who was having an art exhibit. The guests included three people who worked for movie director Robert Altman. Instead of buying a painting, these three guests became interested in Shelley. They asked her to try out for a part in a film that was being shot on location in Houston. She auditioned and won the role.

Since then Shelley has appeared in seven movies directed by Altman.

Shelley has also been on TV in "Cannon," "Love American Style" and as a guest hostess on "Saturday Night Live."

She has homes in both New York City and Beverly Hills.

The Mini Page Teacher's Guide

For use by teachers and parents at home and at school.

For use with issue: St. Patrick's Day is March 17.

- Read the story to the children and discuss St. Patrick's Day and how it is celebrated.
- Point to the "x" to show positions. Show the children how to make their name backwards.

Ask the children to draw pictures of things that are green and help them label them.

Beginning reader:

Ask them to circle the name St. Patrick each time they see it on the page.

Reader:

- Find Ireland on a world map.
- Circle the countries mentioned on this page.
- Visit the library and find out more about Ireland.
- Answer the following questions:
  - Why do we celebrate March 17?
  - What was the first use of a shillelagh?
  - How can you catch a leprechaun?
  - What are the two parts of Ireland?
  - What part of Ireland is closely tied to England?
  - What is the legend about the snakes in Ireland?
- Creative writing: Ask the children to make up a story about the day they caught a leprechaun!

GUS GIBBERTS Sports in Ireland

Golf is a big sport in Ireland. This tiny country, about the size of Maine, has nearly 200 golf courses!

Hurling is the national game of the Irish. It is known as the fastest field game in the world. It is played on grass by two teams of 15 players each. The teams try to get control of a small leather ball.

The Irish love horses. Horse-riding is very popular. Horse races are, too. There are over 30 race courses on the island.

Irish horses are famous the world over for their fine breeding. Irish horses usually win the Grand National, the most important steeplechase event in the world.

*A steeplechase is a cross-country race where horses jump over hurdles such as fences and hedges.

Trio Recaptured Following Hair-Raising Police Chase

HARVARD, Mass. (AP) — Three fugitives from a jail were recaptured here Friday after a shootout and chase that began when they jumped three policemen and stole their cruiser and ended when they smashed into a police car at a roadblock.

The three were identified as William Hamilton, 31, originally from Manchester, Conn.; George Douglass, 24, of Clinton, and William Griffith, 19, of Gardner. They were among four prisoners reported missing from the Franklin County Jail in Greenfield on Tuesday night. The fourth fugitive was recaptured Wednesday night.

Douglass and Griffith were taken to the state police barracks in Leominster.

TV NEWS TRIAL

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — Finland will start a two-year trial in September on allowing independent, commercial television-produced news on state-run television, state television officials announced. The independent producers will pay the equivalent of $2.8 million for 20 minutes during weekdays and 15 minutes on weekends during the test, officials said.

Hamilton, who was injured in the collision, was taken to a local hospital for treatment.

Lancaster Police Chief Patrick Ryder said the incident began about 8:30 a.m. there when three of his officers discovered three men trying to break into a church.

"I brought them outside to check them," said Officer Rick McAvine. "We had them up against the car. As it turned out one had a crowbar up his sleeve, and the other had a screwdriver. We went down and it was a wrestling match for the revolver."

The fugitives grabbed the gun and fired shots at the officers, but missed, police said. They fled in the cruiser.

Next, the escapees broke into the Lancaster home of former selectman Donald Bouche, authorities said. After binding Bouche and his wife with neckties on a bed, they escaped with $60 in cash and a green station wagon, police said.

"They were extremely nervous," said Boucher, 54. "They said they just shot a cop so don't fool around. They kept assuring us they didn't want to hurt us."

A high speed chase through several communities of central Massachusetts followed. Lancaster police reported shots were exchanged throughout the chase.

It ended at a police road block on Route 111 in Harvard. Inspector Sy Erule said officers were stationed alongside the road with rifles. He said two shots were fired at the men when they aimed their stolen car at the officers. No one was hit.

The car then crashed into a cruiser, shaking up Officer Roland McKune who was crouched behind an open door.

Ironworker To Get Legal Settlement

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Ralph Winner, a 51-year-old ironworker whose shattered leg was amputated to free him from the collapsed girders of a bridge in 1978, will receive a $750,000 out-of-court settlement.

The settlement was agreed upon this week during negotiations supervised by Allegheny County Judge Bernard McGowan. Winner will be paid $250,000 by the state of Pennsylvania and $500,000 by Joseph Bucheit & Sons Co. of Youngstown, Ohio, the contractor for the demolition of the Brady Street Bridge.

Villanova Whips Houston

By The Associated Press
CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Led by the trio of Alex Bradley, John Pinone and Tom Sienkiewicz, Villanova raced to an easy 90-72 victory over Houston in a first-round game of the NCAA East regional basketball tournament Friday night.

Villanova now faces Virginia on Sunday afternoon.

While Sienkiewicz was destroying the Cougars with his outside shooting, Bradley and Pinone anchored a powerful front line that gave the Wildcats a big lead early in the game.

Bradley connected on a three-point play early in the first half to give Villanova a 4-4 lead.

Houston pulled to within one point on two more occasions, but Villanova proved too strong for the Cougars and the Wildcats raced to a 41-28 halftime lead.

Houston made two runs at the Wildcats in the second half.

Eric Davis' jumper at 16:28 pulled Houston to within eight points at 46-38. But the Wildcats shook off the scare and extended their lead to 13 again on Bradley's free throws with 15:12 remaining.

Villanova had five players in double figures in raising its record to 20-10. Bradley led the way with 22, Pinone had 19, while Sienkiewicz had 16. Aaron Howard had 15 and Mike Mulquin came off the bench to score 10.

Rob Williams had 21 for Houston, which ends its season at 21-9.

Michael Young added 12 for the Cougars.

EL PASO (AP) — Dwayne Wallace banked in a 10-foot jump shot with 3 seconds left in overtime to give Pittsburgh a 70-69 victory over Idaho Friday night in a first-round NCAA West basketball game.

Pittsburgh earned the right to meet sixth-ranked North Carolina in the second round here Sunday afternoon.

It was Wallace who took the game into overtime with a 15-foot jump shot with 38 seconds left in regulation play, tying the score at 61-all.

The Panthers trailed by as much as eight points in the first half and didn't regain the lead until overtime.

Sam Clancy led Pittsburgh with 22 points, and Wallace added 20. Ron Maben led Idaho with 22.

Pittsburgh took the lead 24 seconds deep into the overtime on a bucket by Lennie McMillan, but Idaho's Ken Owens answered with a three-point play and a free throw for a 65-63 lead.

The lead changed hands five times in overtime before Maben sank two free throws for a 69-68 Idaho lead with 17 seconds left.

WICHITA, Kan. — Darnell Valentine scored 15 points and Johnny Crawford tossed in two free throws with 22 seconds remaining to lift Kansas to a 69-66 win over Mississippi Friday night in a regional game.

Tech's Mays Third At NCAA Meet

DETROIT (Special) — James Mays became the second athlete in Texas Tech history to earn double All-America honors Friday night with a third-place finish in the 800-yard dash at the NCAA Indoor Track and Field Championships being held at Joe Louis Arena.

Mays, a senior, finished the race in a time of 1:54.74, more than two seconds behind winner Sammy Koskei of SMU (1:52.29). BYU's Agberto Guimares was second in 1:52.74.

Mays had to finish with a strong kick in the final 50 yards to nip Richard Ouma of Farleigh-Dickerson at the wire. Ouma who finished fourth in the 800 meters at the 1980 Moscow Olympics, turned in a time of 1:54.84. Dyrk Dahl of Oklahoma was fifth (1:57.55) and Sam Summerville of Manhattan was sixth (1:59.66).

"I had a lot of odds against me," said an overjoyed Mays after the race. "It was a real small track and that is something I was not used to. I think I could have had a better race on a larger track."

Tech's only entrant in the NCAA meet was the fastest American in the race. Koskei is from Kenya and Guimares from Brazil.

Mays was assured of All-America honors Friday afternoon by qualifying for the six-man finals with a time of 1:53.97. Mays' career best time in the 800 is 1:51.90, which would have won Friday's race.

The Hereford product, who earned All-America honors last spring with a fourth-place finish in the same event at the NCAA Track and Field Championships, joins former Red Raider football star Donnie Anderson as Tech's only two-time All-Americans. Anderson was an All-America selection in 1964 and 1965.

Keith Connor's world record performance in the triple jump and record-smashing victories by shotputter Michael Carter and weightthrower Robert Weir spurred surprising Southern Methodist University to a commanding lead Friday night in the NCAA indoor track and field championship.

The Mustangs, who had finished only fourth in the recent Southwest Conference championship, piled up 79 points after the first seven finals. The remaining 11 finals will be held today.

In addition to the victories by Connor, Carter and Weir, SMU got a first-place finish from Koskei in the 800, a second

Indians Meet Mustangs In Finals

By RICHARD DAY
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

There are countless different ways to win a basketball game, but the victors in the four Region I Class 2A and 3A tournaments played at the Coronado gym Friday each chose different ones to achieve the same end.

In the 2A tourney opener, the state's fourth-ranked team, Morton used its balanced attack to oust Sanford-Fritch 59-52.

In the other 2A semifinal game, Shallowater used the old "stop me one-on-one if you can" approach and whipped Crowell 55-46 to earn a berth in the regional finals. Morton and Shallowater will square off for a berth in the state tournament today at 10:30 a.m.

The semifinal game between Slaton and Coahoma which opened the Class 3A tourney turned into a free throw shooting contest and though Slaton shot a worse percentage, it prevailed 45-42.

The state's top-ranked 3A team, Perryton, held off a late charge by No. 3 Coleman to eke out a 44-43 victory.

Slaton and Perryton will battle for the Class 3A regional title today, beginning at 1:30 p.m.

The first half of the Sanford-Fritch-Morton battle was a see-saw battle. It was so close that neither team led by more than four points through the first 16 minutes. The score was tied eight different times.

But the second half belonged to Morton's Indians. They trailed by two points at halftime, 28-26, but hit the first two buckets of the third quarter to go up 30-28 and were never caught.

They went to a full-court press to start the second half and forced 10 Eagle turnovers through the next two quarters while outscoring them 33-26.

Leading the way for the Indians was 6-2 junior Billy Cadenhead who scored 12 of his 13 points in the second half despite playing only 12 of the final 16 minutes.

Cadenhead went to the bench with four minutes to go in the third period after committing his fourth foul and Morton leading 31-30. In his absence, the Indians ran to a 43-37 advantage. Ronnie Patton scored four of his six total points in that span.

Canford-Fritch's Carey Boyd was the game's leading scorer with 24 points. Todd Washington added 10 points for the Eagles, but that wasn't enough to stop the balanced Indian attack.

Bruce Johnson scored 14 points to go along with Cadenhead's 13. Jerry Williams had nine, Todd Willingham eight and Kelly Taylor seven as Morton ran its record to 28-10.

Sanford-Fritch ends its season 24-4.

The Robert Sanders-Willie Johnson show made its appearance and after its outstanding performance will have a return engagement today in the 2A finals.

Sanders hit 25 points and Johnson 20 to lead Shallowater to its victory.

In addition to their scoring barrage, Sanders and Johnson combined for 14 rebounds. Johnson also rejected five Wildcat shots.

Crowell, which ends its season with a 25-3 record, jumped out to a 5-2 lead at the outset, but from then on Shallowater was in control. After a three-minute period in which everything they threw up was a brick, the Mustangs slowed down and went to their old reliables.

After one quarter, it was 13-7 Mustangs and two minutes later it had ballooned to 18-7. But another scoring drought hit — this one lasting 4 1/2 minutes. Another dry spell lasting 1 1/2 minutes enabled Crowell to cut the Shallowater lead to two points at halftime.

Johnson came out of the locker room after intermission and hit three straight buckets as Shallowater ran up a nine-

Nazareth, Valley Win, Advance In Regional Cage Tourney

By RAY GLASS

LEWELLAND — Senior guard Dwayne Acker pumped in 10 third-quarter points to pull Nazareth back from a four-point halftime deficit to a 70-60 first-round victory over Wellman Friday in the semifinals of the Region I IA boys' basketball tournament.

Acker's big night, he finished with 18 points, was one of several outstanding individual performances in the first round as Valley, Greenwood and Roby all joined the Swifts in today's semifinals.

Valley's 6-7 junior post Richey Fuston poured in 26 points and grabbed 13 rebounds as the Patriots had to fight off a determined Wellman club for their 70-60 first-round victory. Valley and Nazareth will meet today at 11 a.m. in one of the semifinal games.

On the other side of the bracket, the Greenwood duo of Rex Evans and Tommy Pyle combined for 46 points and 25 rebounds to lead the Rangers past last year's regional finalist Motley County 73-65.

In the final first-round game, Roby downed lethargic San Elizario 57-48. Roby and Greenwood meet this morning at 9:30. The semifinal winners will meet at 7:30 p.m. for the regional championship.

Nazareth, a state finalist last year, trailed 33-29 at halftime before Acker led a surge that ripped off the first 14 points of the third quarter. He hit a 17-footer jump shot to open the period and seconds later stole an inbounds pass and converted a layup to tie the score at 33-33.

One minute later, he performed the same feat and finished the surge with a 20-foot jumper at 3:51 that put Nazareth ahead 43-33.

Wellman didn't score until the 3:18 mark and totaled only three points in the quarter.

Bryan Huseman led the Swifts with 20 points while Calvin Schulte had 14 points and 14 rebounds. All three were starters on last year's regional championship team.

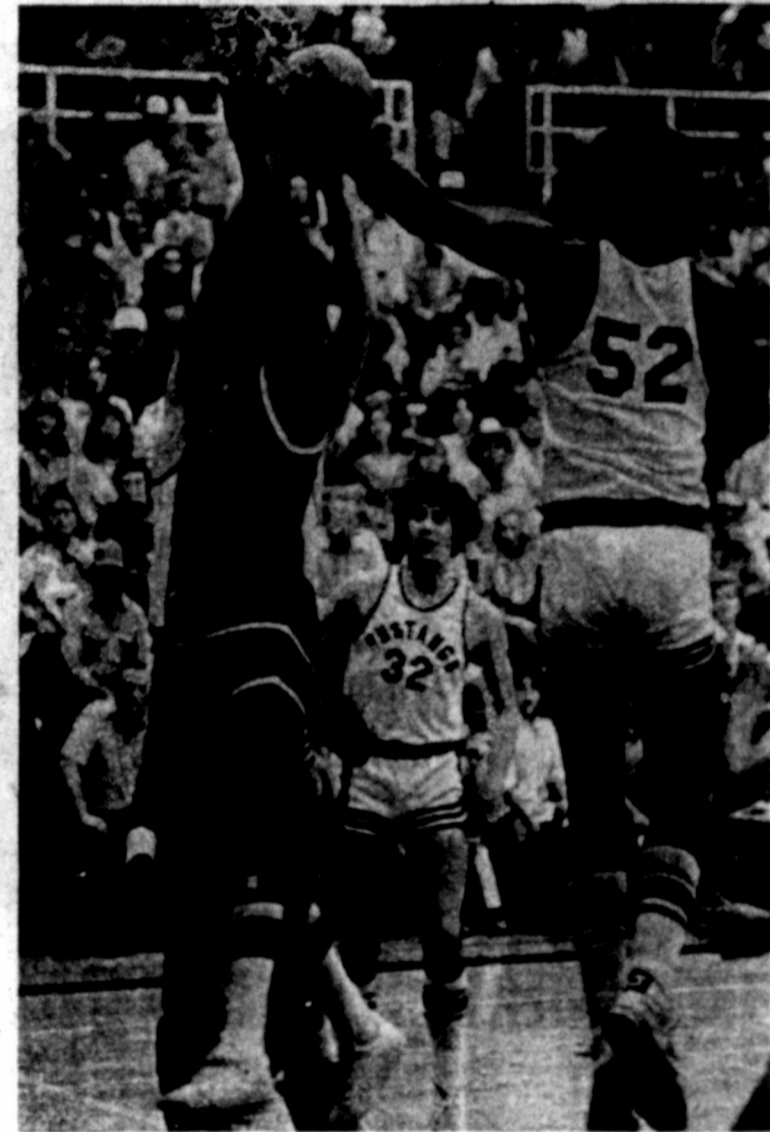

The Wildcats were paced by Bill Tankersley's 23 points and 11 boards but he sat out almost the entire third period with foul trouble. Douglas Young scored 11 points and Coy Paris added 10 for Wellman.

Valley had all it could handle with tournament longshot Hartley, which entered the game with an 18-14 overall record.

The Patriots led by as much as six points in the first half but the Tigers, after trailing by four at halftime, scored the final nine points of the third period for a 45-44 lead.

The score was tied at 56-56 with 3:39 to play before Valley reserve guard Kevin Hendrix hit a layup and a pair of free throws to put the Patriots on top for

UT Continues Mastery, Smashes Raiders 17-3

AUSTIN (Special) — The Texas Longhorns continued their mastery over Texas Tech here at Ditch-Falk Field Friday afternoon by blasting the Red Raiders by an awesome 17-3 score in the Southwest Conference season opener for both squads.

Tech, now 12-3 on the year, has never won at Ditch-Falk. The Longhorns Raise their season mark to 16-2-1 with the victory and the two teams will meet again today in a 1 p.m. double-header.

In other SWC diamond action Friday, Rice dumped Texas A&M 4-3, Arkansas defeated TCU 4-1 and the Baylor-Houston game was rained out.

Tech hurler David Carroll sailed untouched through the first three innings and the Raiders owned an early 2-0 advantage, pushing across runs in the first and second. Shortstop Andy Dawson led off the game with a single, stole second and scored on a single by Bobby Kohler. Then, in the second, catcher Kevin Rucker reached base on a fielder's choice and came across on a long double by John Grimes.

But that 2-0 lead was the Raiders' last hurrah because the Horns narrowed it to 2-1 in the fourth and then erupted for eight tallies in the fifth and another eight in the sixth. The Longhorns had only 13 hits to the Raiders' nine but a pair of costly Tech errors allowed Texas to score eight unearned runs.

Twelve Longhorn batters paraded to the plate in the fifth frame and eight came across to score as Bryan Burrows had two hits and two RBI's in the inning. After a Burrows leadoff single, Spike Owen reached first when Burrows was forced at second. Larry Long drew a walk from Carroll and a Mike Zatopek single loaded the bases.

Chris Campbell hit a sacrifice fly to center that scored Owen, tying the game at 2-2, but Carroll was only one out away from getting out of the inning. But Mark Reynolds followed with a single, scoring Long and knocking Carroll out of the box.

With Matt Dean now on the mound for the Raiders, Robert Culley singled and the bases were loaded again. Burt Goldthorn hit a grounder to first baseman John Grimes that could've ended the inning but it went through his legs for an error and Reynolds scored. Burrows and Owen then followed with a single and double that drove in four more runs — all unearned.

Tony Arnold, now 5-0, logged his fourth complete game of the year to get the win while Carroll, 3-1, absorbed the loss.

Delgado, Pinkerton Key LCC Rout Of Cameron

Noel Delgado twirled a one-hitter, striking out seven, and Ricky Pinkerton drove in five runs with a triple and single Friday as Lubbock Christian College blasted Cameron State 14-0 in a rain-shortened opener of a scheduled double-header.

The game was called after five innings and the second game was postponed. The two teams will play a triple-header, weather permitting, today at 10 a.m. at the LCC field.

Delgado allowed only two base runners — one a second-inning leadoff double by John Denbow and the other on an error in the third inning — in fashioning his first win of the season against four setbacks. He walked none and his seven strikeouts included three in a row following Denbow's hit.

The Chaparral offense, meanwhile, cranked up and shelled four Aggie pitchers for 15 hits. LCC coach Larry Hays, following recent sub-par showings against Texas Tech, decided to insert more speed into the lineup as a method of pushing across a few more runs.

He got them.

Pinkerton walked to lead off the game, was sacrificed to second by Lewis Stephenson and scored when Billy Montemayor doubled.

Jimmy Durham, primarily used as a pinch-runner in LCC's first 23 games, was part of the speed Hays decided to insert into his lineup and responded quickly. With one out in the second inning, he beat out the first of two bunt singles, stole second base and scored on a single by Jerry Hix.

Montemayor led off the frame with a single and scored when Leland Creel slammed his eighth home run of the season. Durham drove in another run by beating out a bunt with runners at first and third, before Pinkerton drilled a two-run single.

The Chaps made the score 10-0 as Montemayor walked with the bases loaded. Creel's ground out drove in a run and an Aggie error allowed another marker to score.

LCC padded their lead in the fourth as Pinkerton slapped a bases-loaded triple and Stephenson doubled to right to score him.

The win lifts LCC to 10-14 for the season, while Cameron State falls to 2-5.

Downpour Arrives Just In Time For LHS

For the Lubbock High Westerners, the downpour came at the right time Friday afternoon — because it coincided directly with an Odessa Permian outburst.

The Westerners took a 4-0 lead into the top of the fifth inning at the Texas Tech diamond in a game that was played in a steady mist. But the Panthers exploded for four runs to tie the contest and had runners on first and third with only one down when the game was called due to rain.

For the Westerners it was their third rainout in the school's last three attempts. Friday's no-game decision left coach Bart Hernandez still searching for answers.

"Heck, I'm still trying to find out what I've got," said Hernandez. "But Bobby (Balch) did a good job for us pitching today until it got so wet."

In other city prep baseball action Friday, Monterey defeated Midland 5-0 and Amarillo Tascosa 8-3 in the rain-delayed Midland Tournament and Estacado blanked Ector 11-0 behind the two-hit pitching of Jerry Benavidez.

The Plainsmen, who upped their record to 8-0 with the two victories, were involved in a third game late Friday night.

Balch sailed through the first four innings without allowing a Permian player past second base but got in trouble in the fifth before finally giving way to Lupe Vasquez. The Westerners' leadoff hitter, Craig Smith, scored in the first and third frames, with James Jackson and Vasquez getting RBI hits, and LHS scored twice in the bottom of the fourth.

Monterey, highlighted by Nathan Swindle's two-hitter in the first game of the tournament, grabbed a pair of wins in the first day's competition Midland's Tournament of Champions.

The Plainsmen blanked Midland 5-0 in the first game as Swindle limited the Bulldogs to a pair of singles and retired the last 14 batters he faced.

Monterey moved on to take an 8-3 victory over Tascosa with Mike Reid handling the pitching chores and allowing only seven hits.

The Plainsmen were playing a third game against Midland Lee at presstime Friday. Should they win, the Plainsmen will move on to a 5:30 p.m. contest today. Should they lose, they will play at 12:30 p.m.

Estacado improved its record to 4-0 with the trouncing of Ector. The Matadors scored three times in the first, four in the second and four in the fourth to clinch the win.

The Mats pounded out six hits and didn't commit a single error. The Eagles helped EHS with five fielding mistakes.

In today's action involving city squads: Estacado and Lubbock High square off at 1 p.m. at the EHS field for a double-header; Coronado and Odessa Permian meet at 1 p.m. at Lowrey Field for a twinbill; and Dunbar entertains Ector at 1 p.m. at Connie Mack Field.

Floyd, Wadkins Hold Edge In Doral Tournament

MIAMI (AP) — Defending champion Ray Floyd, playing in a steady rain, birdied his last two holes for a 4-under-par 68 that enabled him to retain a share of the lead Friday in the second round of the $250,000 Doral-Eastern Open Golf Tournament.

He was tied for the top spot with Lanny Wadkins, who put a 66 on the scoreboard before the rains the steady showers diluted the hopes of any other would-be challengers.

Wadkins, a former PGA champ but a struggling non-winner for almost two years, and the veteran Floyd had 36-hole totals of 134, 10 shots under par for two trips over the 7,065 yard Blue Monster course at the Doral Country Club.

"I'll admit I'm pleasantly surprised with the way I'm playing," Wadkins said. Jack Nicklaus was not so pleased.

Nicklaus, a playoff loser in this event a year ago and a runner-up last week, played in the worst of the rain, shot a 73 and, with a 147 total, failed to qualify for the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday. It was the first time he'd missed a cut since the Atlanta Classic last summer.

Dr. Gil Morgan, a non-practicing optometrist who played with Wadkins in the better conditions of the morning, had a 69 and trailed the leaders by a shot at 135.

Tom Kite, a winner last week at Inverrary, shot a 69 that kept alive his hopes of picking up one of the biggest prizes the game has offered. A special bonus of $250,000 would go to Kite if he could sweep both Inverrary and Doral, $500,000 if he could sweep Inverrary, Doral and next week's Tournament Players Championship.

He had a 138 total, four strokes back with two rounds to go, and was tied with Keith Fergus, who shot a 71.

The group at 139 included Bruce Lietzke, David Graham, Tom Weiskopf, Tim Simpson, Bud Allin and Bob Murphy. Lietzke, winner of two titles already this season, closed up with a 66. Allin shot 67, Simpson 68, Murphy 69, Weiskopf 71 and Graham 73.

"After we made the turn, the conditions were very trying," said Floyd, whose home is only a few miles away from this posh resort. "The rain was medium to hard with some wind mixed into it."

But, just before the weather really turned sour, Floyd scored an eagle-3 on his 10th hole with a 4-wood second shot that set up a 20-foot birdie putt. He regained a share of the top spot with the birdie-birdie close when the weather was at its worst. He chipped to three feet on his 17th and hit a 6-iron to 10 feet, and made the putt, on the final hole.

Wadkins scored eight birdies in his round and dropped two long putts, each about 30 feet, before the rains made play more difficult.

But it may have been costly. "I finished the round with six cracks in the head of my driver," he said. "I'll have to replace it tomorrow."

Snead Takes One-Stroke Vintage Golf Lead

INDIAN WELLS, Calif. (AP) — The venerable Sam Snead, still working his golf magic at 68 years of age, fired his second consecutive 3-under-par 69 Friday to take a one-stroke lead in the $300,000 Vintage Invitational golf tournament.

Snead and the other 29 players in the event for former PGA stars 50 years and over battled gusting winds that made the 6,683-yard, par 72 Vintage Club course extremely challenging.

Bob Goalby, who is just one year over the tournament's minimum age, stood one stroke off the pace after two rounds as he carded a 69 to go with an opening 70.

Dow Finsterwald and Gene Littler were four strokes off the pace at 142 through 36 holes of the 72-hole tournament, while BobRosenburg was alone at 143. Arnold Palmer, who began the day one stroke back of leaders co-leaders Snead, Littler, Don January and Julius Boros, struggled to a 74 and was in a group of four golfers at 144.

Snead, in the last group to tee off for the second round, birdied the final two holes and said afterward: "The last holes were really something because, of the wind. If they'd offered me par, I would have taken it and just walked back into the clubhouse."

Goalby, on the other hand, got off early and was finished when the wind kicked up sharply.

"I was fortunate to be in the third group," Goalby said. "But that's the luck of the draw. In the wind, you've got to keep your composure and not get upset. Everyone will make bogeys on a day like this."

January, apparently bothered by the winds, had to settle for a 76 after his opening 69. Boros fared little better, posting a 75.

The tournament, which carries a $50,000 first prize, concludes Sunday.

Pair Tied At Sun City

SUN CITY, Ariz. (AP) — Pat Bradley set a course and tournament record Friday with a seven-under-par 66 to gain a share of the second-round lead with Patty Hayes in the $100,000 LPGA Sun City Classic.

Miss Bradley was just one-under on her round after the first nine holes, but then strung together five consecutive birdies to join Miss Hayes at eight-under-par 138 after 36 holes.

The 29-year-old Floridian, who finished second to Nancy Lopez-Melton last week in the Arizona Copper Classic in Tucson, needed just 12 putts in shooting six birdies over the final nine holes.

"It's something you almost had to do," Miss Bradley said. "The morning group just stormed out there."

That morning group included Miss Hayes, who had a double-bogey and bogey on the first two holes.

Miss Hayes started her round on the 439-yard par-5 10th and hit her drive next to a tree. She missed her second shot entirely after her club hit a tree. She then chipped her third shot to the fairway and got down in four from there for a double-bogey seven.

Miss Hayes followed that with a bogey-five on the par-four 11th to go three over after two holes. She then put together seven birdies to finish four under.

"I tell you, it's the greatest round of golf I've ever played," said Miss Hayes. "If I was 3-over two years ago, you could have kissed me goodbye. I'd have lost my composure. I did get mad this time, but I'm not going to blow it again. I've been here too many times before."

Tied for second were Carolyn Kertzman and Donna Caponi, who both shot six under par 67s over the 6,279 yard Hillcrest Golf Course in Sun City West to trail the leader by one stroke at 139.

MHS Girl Golfers Win Loop Tourney

PLAINVIEW (Special) — Monterey's Holly Ryan shot a 78 to take the medalist honors and her Plainmeins teammates followed her to a 376 team total Friday in the second round of the District 4-SA girls' golf tournament here.

The total gives Monterey a two-round score of 763, nine strokes better than second-place Coronado, which carded a 395 Friday. Plainview is a distant third with a 411-816.

Trailing Miss Ryan in the medalist competition was Coronado's Colleen Crump, who scored an 85.

The tournament will resume March 30 at Plainview.

Mayberry, Griffin Lead Blue Jays Past Astros 8-6

By The Associated Press
John Mayberry blasted a two-run homer and Alfredo Griffin continued his torrid spring hitting as the Toronto Blue Jays beat the Houston Astros 8-6 in a major league baseball exhibition Friday.

Toronto trailed 6-4 going into the seventh, but the Blue Jays went ahead on a run-scoring single by Otto Velez and Mayberry's homer. Griffin, now hitting .563 after his second straight three-hit game, singled home the final Toronto run in the eighth.

lifting the Minnesota Twins to a 3-1 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers. Rudy Law homered for the only Los Angeles run.

Bucky Dent hit two sacrifice flies, Willie Randolph added one and Dave Winfield had three hits as the New York Yankees defeated the Atlanta Braves 3-1.

Gold Glove second baseman Doug Flynn opened the gates on Philadelphia's five-run sixth inning with two errors and the Phillies went on to a 6-1 victory over the New York Mets.

Lynn Jones singled home former Michigan football star Rick Leach in the bottom of the ninth inning to give the Detroit Tigers a 7-6 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

Ed Ott's fourth-inning double keyed a three-run rally as the Pittsburgh Pirates defeated the Chicago White Sox 5-2.

Tom Verzyer hit a three-run homer and four Cleveland pitchers shut out Seattle on five hits as the Indians beat the Mariners 9-0. Starter Rick Waits gave up two hits in four innings Eric Wilkins, Mick Paxton and Gordy Glaser blanked the Mariners the rest of the way.

Bill Buckner drove in two runs with a triple and a single to lead the Chicago Cubs to a 6-0 victory over the San Francisco Giants. Mike Krakow, Bill Caudill, Willie Hernandez and Dick Tidrow combined on a four-hit shutout.

Ricky Henderson hit a two-run double and scored on Oakland's four-run fourth inning, and the A's went on to a 14-6 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers. Derek Bryant and Kelvin Moore had two-run homers in Oakland's four-run seventh.

Jose Moreno collected three hits, scored twice and knocked in a run to lead the San Diego Padres to an 8-5 victory over the California Angels, who got four doubles from 39-year-old Bert Campaneris.

Bump Wills had three hits and Mickey Rivers had a homer and two RBI to pace the Texas Rangers to a 9-4 victory over the Tokyo Giants. The Rangers' No. 1 reliever, Jim Kern, pulled a muscle in his neck and had to leave the mound in the fourth inning.

Plainsmen Take 4-5A Golf Lead

The District 4-5A golf season opened amidst ideal weather Friday with all five league schools competing in the first round of play at the Meadowbrook Golf Course. And, after the first round of this six-round district tourney, the Monterey Plainsmen picked up right where they left off a year ago.

The Plainsmen, link champions the last two years, shot a 301 on Friday for an early 10-stroke advantage. Coronado was next in the event with a 311 and the Monterey B team was third at 315.

Monterey's Jeff Cranford fired a 73 and was the day's low medalist. Coronado junior Gilbert Moreno led a host of players at 74. That group also included Monterey's Brad Sinnacher.

Next Friday the district link action will move to the Plainview Country Club for the second round.

Miss Muldowney Nabs No.3 Spot

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Shirley Muldowney moved to the No.3 position in the Gatornationals Top Fuel drag racing competition Friday with a time of 5.76 seconds at 247.93 mph in one qualifying run.

Defending champion Jeb Allen and Marvin Graham were No.1 and No.2 in the 16-car event.

Miss Muldowney, of Mount Clemens, Mich., will have two more attempts to improve her position in the race before Sunday's single elimination finals.

In the Top Fuel competition, Tony Ceraolo of the Bronx, N.Y., was fourth with a time of 5.76 seconds and Mike Tarter of Houston was fifth at 5.77 seconds.

Sports In Brief

MHS Boys Clinch District Title

Monterey's boys' tennis team sewed up the league championship Friday and the Plainsmen's girls' team will go down to the wire with Coronado today in the finals of the District 4-5A tennis tournament.

Consolation finals begin at 9 a.m. at the Tennis Center, with championship finals starting around 10:30 a.m.

The MHS boys will send Jimmy Burkholder against Coronado's Greg Conway in the singles finals. Kenneth Colter and Rick Denham of Monterey will face teammates Chuck Rogers and Doug Culp for the doubles title.

Rogers and Culp scored a big win Friday over Peter Brown and David Wright of Coronado to advance to the finals today.

In the girls' division, Coronado and Monterey are tied for the lead in the team standings and will square off today in four matches to determine the team champion.

The Mustangs' Missy Johnson will meet Lee Meyers of the Plainsmen for the singles championship, while Monterey's Sandra Thomas faces Coronado's Cindy Ferguson for the consolation crown.

In the girls' doubles finals, Monterey's Cheryl McCorkle and Shelly McGill will meet Coronado's Kristi Gruber and Louise McNamara for the title, while Brenda Bewley and Mary Sobosle of CHS take on Amy Irons and Missy Casstevens of MHS for the consolation crown.

Monterey entered the spring tournament leading the boys' division with 34 team points, with Coronado second with 28, Lubbock High third with 14, Hereford fourth with eight and Plainview fifth with six points. The Plainsmen and Mustangs each had 31 points in the girls' division, while LHS had 13 points, Plainview 11 and Hereford four.

Tech Women 19th In Betsy Ralls Golf

AUSTIN (Special) — Texas Tech ranks 19th of 21 teams involved in the Betsy Ralls Invitational golf tournament after the first round of play Friday.

The Raiders, with a 331, trail team leader Texas by 25 strokes. Leading the medalist chase is UT's Debbie Petrizzi with a 74 on the par-72 course. Tech's leader is Mary DeLong with a 78. Behind her trailed Linda Hunt with an 81, Robin Wohlman at 85, Liz Remy at 87 and Linda Bletz with a 81.

Houston Race Attracts 11 Area Bikers

Eleven Lubbock and South Plains motocyclists are in Houston today to compete in championship races sanctioned by the National Motorsport Association.

The event, slated at the Astrodome Sunday, is open to the top 100 riders in each class and participants come from all over the United States.

Of the Lubbock contingent, which qualified largely through regular events conducted at the Lubbock Trix Trak southeast of Dalou, seven have guaranteed spots and four were to seek to earn spots in the Astrodome lineup via qualifying races today.

Those with guaranteed starts in the heats are Kaylon Young, 60cc and 80 junior classes; Monte and Levi Sullivan, 80 senior; Mike Scott, open expert; Tommy Barber, Jay Holcombe and Steve Turner, all 250 C, and Tony Schertz, over 30 class.

Mark Blankenship, Eddie Tivis, Monty London and Danny Hooks were to run in a qualifying event at Rio Bravo Raceway in Houston today in quest of a spot in the national finals.

SMU Takes NCAA Indoor Lead

from Richard Olsen in the weight throw and a sixth from Conner in the long jump.

Connor, a junior from Slough and the fourth-place finisher in last year's summer Olympic games in Moscow, increased the world indoor record in the triple jump to 56-9½ inches, one-quarter inch farther than the mark of 56-9¼ set earlier this season by Shamil Abbtasov of the Soviet Union.

Weir, a freshman from Birmingham, England, competing in the 25-pound weight throw for only the third time, became the second all-time performer in the event with the fourth-best performance, 73.7.

Only 1980 Olympic hammer throw champion Yuriy Syedikh of the Soviet Union has surpassed Weir. Syedikh has three throws over 75-feet, all on March 10, 1979, when he set the world mark of 76-11¼ at Montreal.

Carter, a husky sophomore from Dallas, won the shotput for the second consecutive year — breaking the meet record with a toss of 69-8½, a personal best.

Meanwhile, Houston sophomore Carl Lewis fell only one-quarter inch short of breaking his world indoor long jump record winning with a meet record of 27-10.

The other opening night winners were from Texas-El Paso — Bert Cameron in the 440, in 48.23, and Micheal Musyoki in the three-mile, in 13:25.03.

Despite SMU's impressive point total, the Mustangs do not figure to improve much today, as their only remaining competitor is Dennis Brantley, who reached the semifinals of the 60-yard high hurdles.

Even SMU coach Ted McLaughlin was virtually conceding the team title to heavily favored Texas-El Paso.

"We're not going to score any more points," said McLaughlin. "Unless UTEP falls apart, our maximum is less than theirs."

Texas-El Paso, seeking its second straight championship and sixth in the last eight years, collected 32 points Friday and was in second place. The Miners still have several athletes left in the competition, including Tanzania's Suleiman Nyambui, winner of the mile and two-mile in each of the past two years.

Connor's sensational leap in the triple jump came on his second attempt in the trials, after he already had cracked the meet record by soaring 55-10¼, two inches farther than the mark set by Ian Campbell of Washington State in 1978.

"I prepared for this meet really well," said Connor, who transferred from Texas-El Paso to SMU last year. He said he accomplished the record despite an ailing heel and a poor runway.

"It's probably the worst runway in America," said Connor, who had to shorten his run-up from his usual 130 feet to 99½. "But, nobody can help that. I'm not making a big thing out of it. But it is a bad runway."

The 20-year-old Weir, the British champion in the discus and hammer throw, never had seen a 35-pound weight before arriving in the United States from England in January. That's "because they don't throw it in that country," McLaughlin explained.

McLaughlin said he had expected one of his two entrants in the weight throw to win and set a record, "but it surprised me which one did it."

The other SMU entrant, Richard Olsen of Norway, who also transferred from Texas-El Paso last year, finished second at 70.5.

Area Track Squads Set To Run As 12 Separate Meets Begin

There is a busy weekend in store for area track athletes as 12 separate meets will be going on involving South Plains teams.

Headlining are the big school affairs: Estacado and Monterey, probably the two powers in the city this season, will go to the West Texas Relays in Odessa; Lubbock High will travel to the Amarillo Invitational and Coronado and Dunbar head for Hereford.

At the same time, the 5A girls' schedule has Monterey, Lubbock and Estacado at Hereford and Coronado and Dunbar at the Amarillo affair.

But that's only the tip of the iceberg. There are plenty of other meets going on for both boys and girls in the small school division. There's the Borden County Invitational at Gail, the Sudan Relays, the Twin Cities Invitational at Farwell, the Hornet Relays at Lorenzo and an open meet at Silvertown.

Also, there is a girls-only meet at Kermit and Sterling City and the boys-only Tornado Relays at Lamesa.

Several area athletes are included on the first state's top track times list released Friday. Kelvin White of Estacado had the third-best 100-meter time with a 10.4.

Andrews' superb Van Peary clocked a 48.45 400-meters, second best in the state so far, and jumped 22-11, the third-best long jump.

Dale Jenkins, who transferred from Snyder to Abilene Christian High after being declared ineligible by the UJL, vaulted 16-0 in his first meet of the year — the best in the state.

Monterey's Ian Hyslop is in a tie for fourth in the high jump after going 6-6 his first time out and three area weightmen are ranked in the shot put — Snyder's Kenny Matney is second at 57-11, Big Spring's Greg Jones has a 56-11½ and Coronado's Felipe Elizondo went 56-2½.

NIT ROUNDUP

West Virginia Clips Penn 67-64

By The Associated Press MORGANTOWN, W.Va. — Greg Jones and Diego McCoy sank pressure, free throws in the closing seconds Friday as West Virginia University recovered after blowing a 16-point lead to edge Pennsylvania 67-64 in a first round National Invitation Tournament game.

81 basketball victory Friday in a National Invitation Tournament opening-round game pitting two teams that failed to make the NCAA post-season tournament for the first time in several years this season.

Playing before 20,123 fans, Syracuse, which had played in eight straight NCAA post-season tournaments, took the lead for good on a Danny Schayes layup after 13 minutes of play. The Orangemen followed with nine straight points in the next two minutes, including seven points by Bruin, to take a 13-point lead.

Marquette, which had appeared in the NCAA post-season tournament 10 consecutive times, rallied and moved within a single point late in the second half. The Warriors trailed 76-74 when Glenn Rivers sank two foul shots with 1:46 left to play.

Syracuse then held off Marquette to raise its record to 19-11 going into Monday's second-round game against Holy Cross, which Syracuse will host.

Marquette finished its season with a 20-11 record. Rivers led the Warriors with 28 points. Oliver Lee added 20 points for Marquette.

Erich Santifer scored 18 points for Syracuse and Schayes added 17.

TULSA 81, PAN AMERICAN 71 TULSA, Okla. — Phil Spradling's outside shooting and Greg Stewart's muscle inside sparked Tulsa to an 81-71 victory over Pan American in a National Invitation Tournament first-round game Friday night.

Tulsa broke away from a 53-53 tie midway through the second half, and built a lead of 12 points before Coach Nolan Richardson pulled his starters for good.

Tulsa, 22-7, hosts Texas-El Paso in the second round of the tourney Monday night. Pan American ends its season at 18-11.

Spradling finished with 17 points, while Stewart added 15.

Slaton Faces Perryton For Title

(Continued From Page One) point lead, but the Wildcats narrowed the gap to one point — 32-31 — while the Mustangs were missing seven straight third-quarter field goal attempts.

A pair of free throws by Crowell's John McGee kept his team close at 36-35, but the Wildcats only scored 11 more points while Shallowater was hitting 19 in the final eight minutes.

No more than four points separated Slaton and Coahoma in the first half of their Class 3A semifinal game until four seconds remained in the second quarter. That's when Bruce Nedd picked up a loose ball and hit a basket to give Slaton a 27-21 lead.

That basket set the tone for the final 16 minutes of play as the Tigers trailed only once — 41-40 with 5:03 to play in the game. Coahoma did not score for the next five minutes and Slaton hit its final five points, all by Charles Phenix, for the victory.

The majority of the fourth quarter was played at the free throw lines. The Tigers were unsuccessful in four attempts at the charity stripe when they could have put the game away while Coahoma's Bulldogs, in their efforts to narrow the gap, hit only one of seven free throw attempts.

All the Tigers had to do was defend against the Bulldogs' Phillip Ritchey and Michael Meyer

Interior Secretary Describes Conservation Goals

WASHINGTON (AP) — Interior Secretary James G. Watt said Friday that his predecessors did a better job at public relations than in conservation.

"If I can achieve 10 percent of the objectives I have, it will be a monumental leap over past administrations," he told the Senate Energy Committee.

Without mentioning his predecessor, Cecil Andrus, by name, Watt said the Carter administration was more successful than the Reagan administration in getting good publicity about its commitment to the environment.

"The past administration had a great deal of public verbiage about conservation," Watt said. "While we're not as fluent in PR (public relations) rhetoric as the past administration, this administration recognizes the realities of the marketplace."

He said he intended to achieve conservation without spending as much of the taxpayers' money in federal subsidies.

As he has before, Watt testified that he intends to balance "the development of our domestic resources, including energy, and the protection of our environment."

He was particularly critical of past efforts to develop water and other natural resources.

Two Witnesses Dispute Article In Burnett Libel Lawsuit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two diners disputed in court Friday a National Enquirer gossip item which suggested comedian Carol Burnett behaved boisterously in a Washington restaurant five years ago.

Andrew Wiessner and his wife, Charlotte, said they were sitting at a table next to Miss Burnett's, that she talked in a very low tone and that they had shared desserts, but that the exchange had been made by the waiters.

An Enquirer article in March 1976 said Miss Burnett had a "loud argument" with former secretary of state Henry Kissinger, who was in the restaurant, Rive Gauche, at the same time. The article has triggered a $10 million libel suit by the actress.

The article said Miss Burnett traipsed around the restaurant offering other diners a bite of her dessert and that she accidentally knocked a glass of wine over a diner and started giggling instead of apologizing.

Mrs. Wiessner said she went to the restaurant on Jan. 26, 1976, with her husband and his parents for a birthday celebration. She said they sat at a table next to Miss Burnett's party.

She testified that Miss Burnett was "definitely not" loud, and the sharing of desserts occurred when Miss Burnett arrived at her table at about the same time a souffle dessert arrived at the Burnett table.

Wiessner testified that the offer to exchange desserts came from his mother. He said Miss Burnett had commented how pretty the baked Alaska was when a liqueur was poured over it and ignited.

"My mother said, 'Would you like to have some? We have more than enough,'" he said. "They (the Burnett party) then offered us some of their souffle. The waiters made the exchange, and Miss Burnett never got up."

Both witnesses said they did not see the alleged incident between Miss Burnett and Kissinger because they left the restaurant before she did. They did see Kissinger sitting at a table near the door as they left.

Rock Group Followers Turn Deaf Ear To Critics

By YARDENA ARAR
LOS ANGELES (AP) — The band the critics love to hate is at it again, selling albums like hotcakes and packing fans into giant concert halls like nobody's business.

By the time Styx finishes its 140-date "Paradise Theater" tour, the group estimates more than a million and a half people will have experienced its signature brand of heavy metal rock, applied to everything from romantic songs ("Lady," "Babe") to earnest commentary on modern America ("Suite Madam Blue"). If the attendance estimates prove correct — so far, and based on past experience, they should be — Styx will have set a record beating out the 1.2 million mark set in 1976 by ZZ Top.

The band's last three albums — "Cornerstone," "Pieces of Eight," "Grand Illusion" — all went triple platinum, meaning each sold more than 3 million copies, and the "Paradise Theater" has already topped 1 million in the four months after its release.

For the last two years, Gallup polls have found Styx to be the most popular band among American teen-agers.

So much for the critics, or at least their power to keep a band from the top. Styx, which formed in Chicago in 1968, survived quite a few years of having its music variously described as derivative, pretentious and overblown, before rising to prominence in the mid-70s.

"The biggest problem has simply been communication," says keyboard player Dennis De Young, one of the group's three lead singer-songwriters.

"We've become successful without really any hype — never any big ad campaign, never talked to the press, so consequently the press has developed an attitude that we didn't need them. The fact of the matter is, the press has played no part in our success, and there's ego involved."

Band members say they've learned to develop what guitarist James Young described as "a thick skin" towards detractors, a process helped considerably by the ecstatic response of fans.

"We're not a fad," De Young said. "We've been around too long, sold too damn many records, and it's not a fluke."

"The upside is I have millions of people who say, 'Dennis and Styx, you guys are doing the right thing.'"

As rock stars go, the members of Styx — De Young, Young, guitarist Tommy Shaw and twins John Panozzo on drums and Chuck Panozzo on bass — are fairly low-keyed, business-like types all in their early 30s. As Young puts it, "We are five somewhat conservative people from a midwestern city, be it the second largest city in the country."

The band in fact spent its early years building a solid base in the Midwest, much the way REO Speedwagon and Kansas have done.

"We combined a lot of styles in new and unique ways," says Young. "And lyrically, we've talked about things that are very close to the heart of the American people. It's accessible, yet its complex enough that people can appreciate its complexity."

In "Paradise Theater," the emphasis is on social issues. The idea for the album came from De Young, who generally contributes the slower, "ballad-like things," as opposed to Young's straight-on hard-rockers and guitarist Tommy Shaw's somewhere-in-between tunes.

The Paradise Theater, De Young explains, was a real theater in Chicago that opened in 1928 and was demolished in 1958.

NO FRIEND OF THE CRITICS — The rock group 'Styx' has been called "the band the critics love to hate," but, in spite of less-than-enthusiastic critical response, the band's fans keep flocking to see them. ## Ray Price In Pursuit Of Lifelong Ambition

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Innovative Ray Price, often branded a rebel in his 30-year country music career, has a goal left to achieve:

"I want to be known as the best damn singer in the world."

Record-buyers currently have a stacked opportunity to judge Price's talent. There are four Price albums on the market now — the swift-selling "San Antonio Rose" with longtime friend Willie Nelson, "A Tribute to Willie and Kris," an album of songs written by Nelson and Kris Kristofferson, "Town and Country," and an album of old songs being sold over television.

Price, 55, who has a reported 39 top-selling singles to his credit, said becoming the No. 1 singer in the world has been a lifelong quest.

"I've been working on it all my life," he said as he sat at a table just before a brief rehearsal at Nashville's Exit-In nightclub. "I want to master my instrument — my voice. I'll get there when people tell me I'm there."

Price's hits range from acid country to lush popular styles, including "For the Good Times," "Heartaches by the Number," "Danny Boy," "City Lights," "Crazy Arms" and "Don't Let the Stars Get in Your Eyes."

Along the way, he picked up the reputation as a rebel. He pioneered use of electric instruments, stringed instruments and drums in country music. He was criticized by country music traditionalists for using a 47-piece orchestra on "Danny Boy."

But today's progressive country music is filled with stringed instruments and the sound Price was criticized for launching in 1967.

"I have fought prejudice since I got in country music, and I will continue to fight it," he said. "A lot of people want to keep country music in the minority of people. But it belongs to the world. It's art."

He said he thinks the recent upsurge in the popularity of country music can be traced to admiration for the cowboy.

"Everyone loves the cowboy," Price said. "He's nice, humble and straightforward. And country music is the same thing. The kids have discovered what mom and pop told 'em."

And the upsurge, he predicted, is far from over.

"If country music gets any bigger, it will blow the world up. It's already taken Europe. It will be the biggest music in the world," he said.

Price went into semi-retirement for five years before resuming his career about three years ago. His nerve for singing is as intense as ever.

"It's more fun now," he said. "I promised myself I would enjoy it and not let it be a job, but let it be a labor of love. I decided I'd have a good time or forget it."

The soft-spoken, urbane Price said he and Nelson are as "as close as two friends can be." Nelson was in Price's band 20 years ago, long before Nelson became a superstar.

A year ago, Price suggested they record together, and Nelson agreed. The result was the album "San Antonio Rose," which has been on the charts for 40 weeks, and the hit singles "Faded Love" and "Don't You Ever Get Tired (Of Hurting Me)."

Meanwhile, Price and associates are sponsoring a nationwide search for country music talent. More than 400 radio stations are involved in promoting the contest.

The winner will receive $50,000 cash, a recording contract and services of an agent.

"This will help some talent," Price said. "After all, I had help from people like Hank Williams (Sr.), Ernest Tubb and Bob Wills."

Red Sox PR Man Injured In Scuffle With Rice

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (AP) — Bill Crowley, vice president and director of public relations for the Boston Red Sox, had the skin ripped from the back of a hand when grabbed by slugger Jim Rice Friday in a heated argument before an exhibition game with the Detroit Tigers.

The incident occurred near the batting cage as the Red Sox took routine hitting practice before the game in nearby Lakeland. Crowley, who will be 62 in May, went immediately to the club house to have the hand treated and bandaged.

Crowley, treated by the Red Sox trainer Charlie Moss and Dr. Frank Carr of Worcester, Mass., remained for the game with his right hand heavily bandaged, applying an ice pack.

Haven. "I'll talk only about baseball. What's there to say about it? There's a bandage? Who cares? I have a bandage on my hand every day."

Rice, a 205-pound muscleman and one of the most feared sluggers in baseball, showed no remorse. He apparently referred to his wrist taping as bandages.

There has been a mutual dislike for out the last three years," Crowley said after returning from Lakeland. "In more than 20 years in baseball, he is the only player I've had difficulty with."

"It's the third year in a row down here that he has pulled this (parking stuff on me. He's just challenging me. So I went up to him today.

"I didn't threaten him. I just told him that if I found the car in my spot again he would have four flat tires. He told me that if that happened he would get a baseball bat and beat the hell out of me."

years in a prisoner of war camp after being shot down over Germany, said earlier, "I just wish I were 30 years younger."

Red Sox executive vice president and general manager Haywood Sullivan, a co-owner of the club, was stunned when he arrived at the ball park and heard of the incident.

He later met behind closed doors with Crowley back in Winter Haven and said only, "I'll meet with Rice and (Player Representative) Tom Burgmeier."

"I don't know what I'll do," Crowley said when asked about possible legal action. "I'll wait and see what Sully does."

Raiders Ask For Delay In Trial

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An attorney representing the National Football League in the anti-trust suit filed against the league by the Los Angeles Coliseum and the Oakland Raiders asked Friday that the scheduled March 23 trial date be delayed once again.

U.S. District Court Judge Harry Pre-

erson, who is still deliberating on a motion by the NFL to change the venue of the trial, said he will probably rule on the delay request by attorney Patrick Lynch at the same time, "within three or four days."

The trial, with Raiders' managing general partner Al Davis seeking the right to move the team to Los Angeles in defiance of the NFL, was originally scheduled to start Feb. 9.

Most of Friday's pre-trial session was spent by attorneys on both sides arguing whether testimony and evidence regarding alleged Super Bowl ticket scalping by Los Angeles Rams owner Georgia Frontiere should be allowed to be presented in the trial. The NFL has asked that the allegations, made in depositions, be excluded from the trial.

Pregerson said he expected to issue a ruling on that important motion and some other related motions later in the day.

After listening to the complex, lengthy presentations in the morning, the judge, who has been striving for the parties to settle out of court, sighed and said, "I sit here and think if we could just get the case settled, all this would go away."

The opposing attorneys went over well-covered ground during most of the session.

Lynch accused Joseph Alioto, who represents the Raiders and Davis, of trying a "snow job" by raising the Super Bowl ticket issue and other matters the NFL considers irrelevant to the main issue of whether Davis can move the club to Los Angeles in violation of a league rule requiring three-quarters of the team owners to approve such a shift.

Referring to the plaintiffs' allegations that Mrs. Frontiere taped phone calls between herself and NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle, Lynch said, "They're trying to raise the notion that this is a mini-Watergate."

Arguing that the trial jury should hear evidence and testimony about the alleged ticket scalping, Alioto said, "Whether Rozelle and Frontiere have had memories or a lack of credibility... should come before a jury."
