SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) Heavy fighting was reported Wednesday in a guerrilla-infested area near the Honduran border as the government awaited a final contingent of 12 U.S. advisers to help train the Salvadoran army.

In Washington, Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. said that some investigators looking into the murders of four American Catholic church workers in El Salvador theorize they were slain when the vehicle in which they were riding ran a security road block.

But the facts are not clear enough to draw a definitive conclusion," Haig said.

FBI Monitoring Probe
Haig told the House Foreign Affairs Committee that the Federal Bureau of Investigation is closely monitoring the search by the government of El Salvador for those responsible for what he called the "belnous" murder of the three nuns and a lay worker in El Salvador last Dec.

Warplanes backed infantry attacks against guerrillas in the north and northeast, part of a cleanup operation now in its third week, military sources said.

The heaviest action was reported 120 miles east of here near the border with Honduras, according to the military sources who asked anonymity.

One national guardsman was reported killed. The area has been a guerrilla stronghold for two years. Suchitoto Fighting Reported Fighting was also reported again in Suchitoto, 25 miles north of here. The city and surrounding communities are fre-quently vacated by the populace during raids by guerrillas and many persons are said to be wandering in the area.

In the village of Aceituno, near Suchitoto, residents said a group of guerrillas ambushed an army convoy and killed 10 soldiers. But the military sources said they had no comment on this report.

In Santiago Nonualco, 25 miles east of the capital, guerrillas blew up a key bridge on a coastal highway forcing traffje to take cumbersome detours, the government said.

In a related development, national police said they cracked a gun-smuggling

Wind Damage Calls Deluge Area Firms

Avalanche-Journal Staff INSURANCE, glass and roofing companies were deluged with calls Wednes-day as South Plains residents began sorting through wreckage left by Tuesday's hurricane-like winds and damage estimates and the storm-related injury toll continued to grow.

A traffic accident which occurred shortly after the storm struck the area Tuesday claimed the life 28-year-old Judy McKennon of Lubbock shortly before noon Wednesday.

Her young son also was injured in that wreck and was in critical condition Wednesday night at a local hospital, as were two area residents who were hurt in separate collisions along South Plains highways.

Nurse Injured

However, apparently only one injury resulted directly from the 60-mph-plus winds. Jean Leserve, a 40-year-old volun-teer nurse at Lubbock General Hospital, reportedly suffered a ruptured spleen about 5 p.m. Tuesday when she was struck in the side by a wind-tossed board. She was in serious but stable condition Wednesday night at the hospital.

property damage in the city Tuesday oc-curred at Lubbock International Airport, where more than $40,000 worth of windows were shattered by the gusts. Aviation Director Marvin Coffee said 12 glass panels, measuring six-by-eight feet, and 14 smaller panes were shattered when anchors supporting the window frames gave way in the wind.

Supports Gave Way The glass panels had been tested and reportedly were able to withstand gusts of up to 100 mph, Coffee said. He noted the glass itself was not shattered by the wind, but the anchors and supports around the frames gave way. Coffee said contractors and the original architect are examining the windows and probably will redesign the supports around existing windows as well as those blown out by the storm. He said wood panels will be used temporarily until repairs can be made. Windows elsewhere across the city, both in automobiles and in homes, also were blown out by the wind and shattered by rocks being carried by the storm. Area glass dealers received hundreds of calls Wednesday regarding broken windows, doors and windshields.

George Morris, president of Lubbock Auto Glass Inc., said an estimated 100 damage reports were called in to his business before 5 p.m. Wednesday.

"This was much more than we had expected based on past duststorms in Lubbock," Morris said. "We have taken probably twice as many calls as we normally do following a storm of this type." Employees at Crafton Glass ordered 54 pieces of tempered glass for doors, windshields and side windows, according to business manager Debbie Dickey.

Reagan Proposals Win Panel's Okay

Welfare, Jobless, Social Security Hit

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate Budget Committee, in virtual lockstep with President Reagan's economic program, called for billions of dollars in cuts Wednesday in welfare, unemployment and Social Security benefits and recommended an end to the $3.6 billion public service jobs program.

Continuing its review of the administration's proposals for massive spending cuts, the panel also recommended a re duction of more than $1 billion in education programs.

In a rare departure from the Reaganbacked budget blueprint, the panel voted to restore a third of the money the president wanted cut from the Export-Import Bank for 1982. The bank subsidizes American exports, and administration officials say two-thirds of the bank's lending benefits about a half-dozen corpora

Difference Made Up

Restoring the $110 million for 1982 came at the suggestion of Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., who persuaded the committee to cut more deeply into public housing and community service programs than the president wanted to more than make up the difference.

The public service program, which provides jobs for more than 300,000 people, has been cited frequently by mem-bers of Congress as wastefull and fraudridden.

Haig also confirmed that American participation in a peacekeeping force in the Sinai Desert may be in the works as U.S. negotiators head back to the Mideast in an attempt to bind the remaining loose ends of the 1979 Camp David pact between Israel and Egypt. Haig himself will visit the region next month.

The secretary noted the Soviet Union already has vetoed a United Nations military presence, while Israel insists it will not withdraw its forces until a buffer force of some type is established.

The Associated Press reported Tues-

er this month to seek a tentative agreement on a Sinai peacekeeping force that would include more than 1,000 U.S. troops. Israel originally wanted an overall buffer force of 4.000, while Egypt argued for 2,000. Both have agreed that at least half of the total would be Ameri-

Haig also stoked the fires of the Reigan administration's war of words with the Soviet Union, accusing the Russians of maintaining terrorist training camps "where literally thousands of third-world embryo terrorists are run through a training course to go back to their coun-tries and deprive those people of their human rights."

Issue Addressed

"I think its time that this issue should be addressed publicly and stated forth-rightly." Haig said. "If we do not seize control of this hemorrhaging internationally today, we are going to find it within

Our own borders tomorrow."
Haig defended the administration's $6.5-billion foreign aid package in testimony before the House Foreign Affairs Committee. The authorization bill is heavily weighted towards military assistance in strategically important areas.

In response to questions, Haig de-nied the administration has an unrealistic preoccupation with the Soviet Union or, in the words of one congressman, that it is intent on "beating our plowshares into swords.

Policy Called Sterile

"It would be a sterile policy that suggested a total preoccupation with a socalled 'The Russians are coming' syndrome." Haig said. Nonethelesss, the former NATO com-

Wednesday's testimony began with seven persons opposed to the project. Speaking on behalf of Citizens for Natural Weather were Oliver Newton, Dr. Bruce Dod and Owen Thornton.

Lubbock resident Newton, who recently retired from the National Weather Service, testified that small hail, depending upon wind velocity, often does more mage to young plants than the larger hail. A major contention of PWIA is that the project will reduce the size of hail. Dr. Dod, professor at Wayland Baptist College here, said silver iodide used in cloud seeding possibly could be harmful to micro-organisms in the soil. He said that based on studies he has read, he doesn't think a project could provide both rain enhancement and hail suppression at the same time.

Thornton, a retired farmer and vice president of the MacKenzle Municipal Water Authority, said the Water Authority Board has passed a resolution opposing cloud seeding. He said the MacKenzie reservoir was built in 1974 but the first significant inflow came in the spring of 1977. A second inflow was in 1978, he said, immediately before and after weather modification was used in the

Texas House Approves 19-Year Drinking Age

AUSTIN (AP) — The House voted overwhelmingly Wednesday to raise the drinking age from 18 to 19 years old and strengthen the law against selling alcoholic beverages to underage customers.

The Senate-passed bill was given preliminary approval, 115-20, and is expected to Senators then would have to decide whether to accept a change made by the

Rep. Dan Kubiak, D-Rockdale, won approval of his amendment that would make easier to convict persons of selling alcoholic beverages to minors. The amendment creates a legal presumption that a person knowingly sells to a mi-nor if he or she falls to ask for a driver's license or similar proof of age. Under present law, the burden is on prosecutors to prove a person knew a customer was a minor but sold him or her alcohol anyway.

"This simply puts a few teeth in the law," Kubiak told the House.

Rep. Henry Allee, D-Houston, the bill's sponsor, tried to keep the bill free of cendments but accepted Kubiak's after a motion to table it failed, 11-120. Allee said the bill was introduced to attack a growing problem of teenagers coming to class drunk after imbibing on their lunch hours. State law already makes it a crime

He said many seniors are 18 and buy beer and hard liquor for younger students.

"All the 16-and 17-year-olds who are not responsible want to be accepted into the 18-year-old peer group," Allee said.

Rep. Al Price, D-Beaumont, said raising the drinking age was not the answer.

"Your bill is not going to do anything but create the impression we have done something in Austin when we have not. It's cosmetic," Price said.

Rep. Ed Emmett, R-Kingwood, said the better approach would be for school ad-inistrators to get tough and enforce their rules.

"What the teachers say is they would rather teach the student than expel him. I'd rather have them in school sober than expel them for coming to school drunk," Allee

School administrators, teachers and PTAs lobbied hard for the bill.

"The whole thrust of the bill is to create a gap between persons who have comped high school and those who have not. And 19 is an ascertainable age," Allee said.

State law provides a $25 to $200 fine on first offense for consumption or posse of alcoholic beverages by minors and $100 to $500 on first offense.

The penalty on first offense for selling alcohol to a minor is a $100 to $500 fine andor a year in jail. On subsequent offenses, the penalty is a $500 to $1,000 fine and a year in jail. Sellers also could lose their alcoholic beverage licenses.

House Panel Taking Radical Approach To Support Reform

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House Agriculture subcommittee shoved aside President Reagan's plan to scrap an April 1 increase in dairy price supports Wednesday, endorsing instead a complete overhaul of the support program.

The new proposal, backed by both Democrats and Republicans, will tikely mean a $20 million to $40 million boost in mean a $20 million to $40 million boost in price supports next month, according to estimates by Rep. Tom Harkin, D-lowa, chairman of the livestock, dairy and poultry subcommittee.

Reagan had proposed eliminating the stomatic April 1 increase at a savings of $147 million. It is the first part of his massive budget-cutting program to begin working its way through Congress.

Should the full increase take effect, the Agriculture Department says consumers can expect to pay an extra 71/2 cents for a gallon of milk, a dime more for a pound of butter and 9 cents more for a pound of cheese.

With a glut of milk on the market, subcommittee members agreed the automatic increase is too much and should be blocked. But they said not bolstering dairy prices at all this spring could pro-duce market disruptions. Without the al-ternative plan, Harkin said, dairy sup-ports would fall to their lowest levels since the program began in 1949.

The House subcommittee rebellion was also sparked in part by the administration's failure so far to send Congress its proposal for the future of the dairy program. Agriculture Secretary John Block, meanwhile, told the House Foreign Affairs Committee that the administration's legislative plan would be released next week.

"I wish they would tell us what they'd like to do because we might be able to accommodate them," Rep. Kika de la Garza, D-Texas, chairman of the full Agriculture Committee, said after the meeting. "Let the subcommittee work its

It was the second time in as many days that the administration plan to block the increase has run into trouble in

On Tuesday, Senate Republican lead-er Howard Baker was forced to postpone for two days floor debate on the plan when Democrats and Republican defectors kept alive an amendment that Reagan's supporters said jeopardized the dairy support bill,

The Senate is scheduled to take up the dairy measure again Thursday. But any crucial showdown votes were put off until next Tuesday because about a halfdozen senators were planning to be out of town Thursday and want to vote on the measure, said Ron McMahan, an aide

The president's supporters in both houses, however, say they believe Reagan's plan will be approved unchanged. "I think we'll still pass it." Rep. Tom Hagedorn, R-Minn., ranking Republican on the House subcommittee, said.

'I think it's irrelevant what we do in this committee," Hagedorn said. His attempt to win approval of the Reagan plan failed on a 7-6 vote.

The subcommittee plan would maintain price support levels at no less than 75 percent of parity, the theoretical price farmers must get to have the same buying power they had in 1910 to 1914. Har-

Reagan Claims Support, Despite Poll

Donors' Gifts To Further Redecoration

WASHINGTON (AP) - Contributors have pumped more than $375,000 into the private fund for redecorating President and Mrs. Reagan's living quarters, an 88 percent bonus atop the goal of $200,000. Officials won't name the 167 donors, but say none was politically motivated.

A number of the contributors, who averaged $2,248.67 each during the period between Feb. 11 and March 12, specifically asked not to be identified, officials

Peter McCoy, chief of staff for Mrs. Reagan, said "I can tell you that most of the money, the larger contributions, came from foundations. They have absolutely no political interest, no political motives and are smaller than similar contributions to acquire past dinner services and past refurbishment of some of the McCov stressed also that the restoration effort is the first major one in 20 years and will benefit all future occupants of the White House. The project was designed to re-establish the dwelling, the edifice," McCoy said. "It's not as if the Reagans will be taking the painted walls with them. Mrs.Reagan's press secretary, Sheila that we accept the finding. I think this is probably an unprecedented time in that this early in the administration the president would send up (to Congress) as complete a package that was designed to change the direction of government.

Brady said the high negative rating has had no impact on White House policy decisions. He added that Reagan prefers to believe his mail, which last week ran 30.691 for his economic proposals and 285

The nationwide Gallup poll, completed Sunday, said 59 percent approved of Reagan's record so far; 24 percent disapproved and 17 percent was undecided.

Brady said it was possible that some of the negative reaction was due to uncertainty over Reagan's support for the civilian-military junta in El Salvador, but he blamed most of it on the economic

"We feel it's because of the comprehensive program," the spokesman said.
"This early in the presidency that is really a departure from business as usual.

He said, "People feel that maybe this is a different kind of animal and it is. Asked whether the poll indicated that life of a honeymoon. Brady said the negative rating has gone up because "people are getting more organized" presumably against the economic plan.

Reagan's honeymoon had ended, Brady

MAKING 'LINKAGE' WORK

Summits And SALT II--Nvet

THERE HAS BEEN much talk, but little action, of late on proposals by Soviet leaders for a renewal of top-level talks on two fronts.

In the wake of President Reagan's and

Sec. of State Alexander Haig's tough talk at the start of this administration's tenure, Moscow has made definite overtures for a possible summit meeting and a resumption of arms control discussions.

Thus far, the White House has diplomatically resisted committing itself on either count, although making it clear that there must be more than a change in rhetoric before either of the two events takes place.

ACTUALLY, THE whole process of summit sessions is a subject about which diplomats have no little reservation.

Soviet Leader Leonid Brezhnev's suggestion that he and Mr. Reagan should meet has only breathed new life into the centuries-old debate over whether heads of state should confer face-to-face or through diplomatic representatives

The traditional view, as expressed by Philippe de Comines, a 15th century French historian and diplomat, is that "two great princes who wish to establish good personal relations should never meet each other face to face, but ought to communicate through good and wise ambassadors."

THAT REMAINS the prevailing opinion among professional diplomats to this day.

tional methods of diplomacy are time-consuming in an age of push-button warfare and fast-moving events. Furthermore, summit meetings, by giving leaders personal knowledge of one another, may enable them to make more accurate judgments of intentions and probable reactions and thus reduce the risk of war by miscalculation.

By the same token, such assessments sometimes can be misleading. It is widely believed that when then-Soviet leader Nikita Khrushchev met with then-President John F. Kennedy he may have mistaken Kennedy's inexperience at Vienna for weakness.

It is argued that Khrushchev may have thought he could then get away with creating the Berlin crisis of 1961 and later the Cuban missile crisis. The world teetered on the brink of an atomic holocaust as a result.

AS FOR Mr. Reagan's meeting with Mr. Brezhnev, we feel the President's laying down of "conditions" of good intent on the part of Moscow is a good policy.

Linking Soviet actions to Soviet words is something that should have been done long ago. As for resumption of SALT II or whatever it might be called, again Moscow must be made to understand that not only "linkage" but parity in weapons is a must prerequisite.

If the Soviet leaders do not understand this, then no number of summits or arms talks will make any difference in the final

On the other hand, it is asserted that tradi-BIG BROTHER IN CLASSROOM

Bad Grade For Ed Department

A SURVEY conducted for the Public Service Research Council underscores the public's growing disenchantment with bureaucratic interference from Washington in otherwise purely local issues concerning edu-

Decision Making Information, President Reagan's polling firm during the 1980 election campaign, found that Americans disapprove of the Department of Education by a margin of more than 2-to-1.

Moreover, half of those who said they approve of the department changed their minds after hearing arguments concerning whether establishment of the new agency has resulted in greater federal control over local schools.

"THE DEPARTMENT was established dent Carter's campaign pledge to the National Education Association," said David Y. Denholm, president of the PSRC.

"The NEA." adds Denholm, "is generally regarded as the (department's) prime benefi-

Public attitudes toward the NEA, the largest public sector union, also were tested in

Of those who had heard of the NEA, only 31 percent had favorable opinions of it, with 17 percent unfavorable, 21 percent with no opinion, and 31 percent who had never heard of the NEA.

Disapproval of the Department of Education is only slightly stronger among non-union respondents in the survey among those who are union members, 37.3 percent to 34.6

"The survey confirms what we, public and private educators and most of the nation's press have been saying for years," Denholm concluded, "and that is the American people do not want their education dominated from washington by a bureaucracy that nated by one segment of society."

ministration will move more rapidly to dismantle the department which, in Denholm's words, resembles a giant octopus thrust upon the American people against their wishes.

Wage Earner Falls Prey To Marginal Tax Rates

WASHINGTON-While the spending cuts in President Reagan's budget are catching their share of flak, it is generally agreed that his propos-als to reduce the federal tax load are much more controversial.

On first reflection, it would seem that tax cuts would be more popular than spending cuts, but the conventional wisdom of the hour has reversed

Most Americans, it is now reasoned, agree that Uncle Sam has been living beyond his means, and that the federal budget should be reduced. So, relatively speaking, there is a strong economy mood in Congress.

Tax cuts, however, are thought to be another matter. The usual justification for tax reductions has been to "stimulate" the economy by increasing the amount of money in the hands of the con-

SUCH A policy, it is feared, would increase the federal deficit and intensify inflation, already spiraling upward into double-digit regions. So tax cuts are less popular than the spending cutbacks. This treatment of the Reagan tax plan suggests that many of the critics haven't been paying atten-

It assumes the reason for the proposal is the oldfashioned Keynesian idea of "priming the pump" through increased purchasing power-an approach that, in intention and effect, has been sharply inflationary

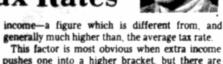

Reagan's proposal, however, has nothing to do with "purchasing power" theory, and is the opposite of Keynesian in its assumptions. It is oriented not toward jacking up total spending in the economy, but toward restoring incentives to work, produce and save. The object is not to increase demand, but to crank up the machinery that creates supplysomething the Keynesian analysis routinely ig-

THE KEY concept in the Reagan approach, tirelessly promoted on Capitol Hill by Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., is the "marginal tax rate."

This is the amount of tax a worker, or business man, can expect to pay on the next dollar of the study.

It is to be hoped that Congress and the ad-many other examples of the same effect. If the marginal tax rate is unacceptably high, the hour of work that might otherwise have happened, the business investment that might otherwise have taken place will not occur.

The affected individual will instead seek increased leisure refuse an extra hour or day of work, or not accept employment at all, put his money into a tax shelter, and so forth.

HIGH MARGINAL tax rates, which currently exist throughout our economic system, will be a drag on productivity.

Far from being an answer to this problem, inflation intensifies it. Because it pushes up nominal dollar incomes, it constantly moves people into higher tax brackets, even when real incomes haven't grown at all. The result is higher and higher marginal tax rates.

"In 1965," notes Kemp, "only 7 percent of all taxpayers faced marginal income tax rates of 25 percent or higher; in 1977, more than 39 percent were in those high brackets.

It is this problem of disincentives to which the Reagan tax plan is addressed. In essence, it attempts to remove some of the barriers to work, investment and production that have been created by years of heavy government spending, taxes, and inflation.

IT ADDRESSES only part of the problem, which also includes such disincentives to work and productivity as wide-ranging business regulation, punitive treatment of savings, and welfare programs that are more lucrative than work.

If cuts in marginal tax rates are adopted, on the Reagan analysis, the supply side of the economy will be invigorated, and production can begin to climb back upwards. Tax revenues, they contend, will rise as well, since the lower rates will be applied against a higher base. The contention may be right or wrong, but that's the point the argument should be about.

'That's It -- You're Getting Drowsy'

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

Supply-Side Setback

WASHINGTON-"Why, this is just a supplyside primer," complained Murray Weidenbaum, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, who then rolled up his sleeves to rewrite totally the introduction to President Reagan's economic report that had been drafted by bestselling economics writer George Gilder.

When Weidenbaum and the White House staff had finished no trace of Gilder was left in the report-not even the words "supply-side" describing the economic philosophy Reagan has adopted as his own. It was not just the rhetoric that was

Along with it, the White House decided not to mitigate Jimmy Carter's massive tax increase before July 1, and scrapped two alternative methods of encouraging investment by the wealthy.

ANDREW TULLY:

Recon's No Con

WASHINGTON-It is called the "reconciliation process" and it just might work to reduce federal spending for fiscal 1982 by an amount close to the $41.2 billion President Reagan had proposed.

What the process does is take the crucial decisions away from Congressional committees, where the special interest lobbyists have the most clout, and move those decisions on to the House and Senate floors where members must stand up and be counted.

Each committee is assigned a spending figure it must not exceed. Committee members will decide how they will stay within that figure, set by the Budget Committees in both houses, which draft "instructions" on all spending bills.

IT SOUNDS simple, but of course it isn't, After all, the Budget Committee in the House in controlled by Democrats, the Senate panel by Republicans. Anybody who believes those committees will always think alike was born yesterday.

But prospects look bright for an end to profligacy. A voter may like a certain program, but he must ask himself whether he wants to finance it with his tax dollars.

Remember, there will be no final action on a tax cut bill until Congress finishes work on the bud

Anyway, Reagan moves from a position of strength. The opposition can't shrug off his landslide victory last November.

REAGAN IS accurate in telling Congress that victory was a "mandate for change," and there was a hint of the iron hand in the velvet glove in his pronouncement that only "politics-as-usual" could deny the country reduced inflation and a return to prosperity.

Meanwhile, Reagan's program of three 10-percent income tax cuts in a row is already in trouble. Democrats and more-or-less nonpartisan experts claim that such cuts would do most American

They say continuing inflation keeps pushing the middle income taxpayers into steadily higher tax brackets because of inflation-adjusted pay raises.

On the other hand, wealthier Americans would do very well. If the tax cuts are passed as they now stand, a family with an income of $200,000 a year would get to keep about $30,000 that it now pays in federal income taxes.

BUSINESS WOULD benefit, too, through increased depreciation allowances. The big corporations could use their savings to invest heavily in new plant and equipment

That would be good because it would mean more jobs and higher productivity-but not an immediate increase in the average taxpayer's takehome dough.

Defense industries are where to be. Reagan wants to spend a whopping $188.8 billion on defending us from potential enemies. Thus defense industries will get the benefits given to other businesses, plus tens of billions of dollars in new government contracts. But all that is for another day. Congress is putting the horse before the cart in tackling the job of producing a leaner budget overall. Wish those poor fellows on Capitol Hill well. They'll have to do some unpopular things in the next several

To the knowledgeable in Congress, those events are more important than Reagan's stirring words: The Treasury has been downgraded in determining tax policy.

Less obvious but equally important, doctrinal justification for tax reduction is put down by everybody in the White House, with the notable exception of Ronald Reagan.

The first defeat of the supply-siders had doctrinal roots. Despite Reagan's campaign promise that Jan. 1, 1981, would begin tax reduction, the effective date was set at July 1 because of concern over revenue loss.

NEW ECONOMIC models authorized at the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) by its new supply-side director, David Stockman, showed dynamic, revenue-building growth rates generated by tax reduction.

But they were rejected as unrealistic by Weidenbaum (agreeing with his predecessor from the Ford administration, Alan Greenspan). That undermines supply-side analysis, which forecasts dynamic growth as the federal government lessens

Next to go was a Treasury-OMB proposal to energize the economy by immediately dropping the 70 percent top tax rate on "unearned" income (dividends and interest) to 50 percent. The White House announcement on Black Friday, Feb. 13, included the extraordinary statement that the Treasury had been overruled, publicly downgrading the supply-side economists placed in charge of tax policy at the Treasury

A SECOND Black Friday event was the outraged reaction by Weidenbaum when he saw the economic report submitted by OMB. Gilder, author of the widely-acclaimed book, "Wealth and Poverty," had been brought in by Stockman to write the introductory chapter. It was trash-

The President's men professed to love the tax cut while disdaining supply-side theory.

The one aspect of the tax bill that survived intact and with the Jan. 1 effective date undisturbed, faster tax depreciation for new equipment, is the proposal least likely to stir entreprenurial juices, according to supply-side doc-

Indeed, senior administration briefers on the tax program never mention the word "incentive," which is pervasive in supply-side literature.

THEIR LIMITED knowledge of the doctrine was betrayed when they defended the package's failure to reduce the top marginal rate on 'earned" income from the present 50 percent on grounds that lower rate reduction for a family with over $215,000 of such income would mean a $17,000 tax cut over three years anyway; central to supply-side doctrine in motivating greater work effort is not total tax relief but the top marginal rate-how much Uncle Sam takes of the last dollar earned.

Stockman had been sponsored for the Cabinet by Rep. Jack Kemp and other supply-siders as the man at Reagan's elbow to remind him of broad tax reduction.

But supply-siders grumble that OMB has co-opted Stockman, bestowing on him a green eyeshade mentality that concentrates on budget line items which lack a fraction of tax reduction's economic

WHEN THE White House complained about Gilder's and other papers coming over from OMB, Stockman did not defend them but replied, accurately, he had no time to read them.

More ominously, Stockman fought against reducing that economically poisonous extra $50 billion in federal revenue for the first half of 1981 inherited from President Carter's tax increases.

The outside voice supposed to monitor supplyside doctrine is Kemp's, but he has proved an uncertain trumpet of late. Kemp blasted trimming of the tax bill by the White House that he himself has been lead to accept

But when that blast vielded a 50-minute telephone conversation with the President, Kemp was back on the reservation.

Kemp's point of view is that the Reagan economic program hinges not on cutting dairy price upports or food stamps but on protecting the dent's radical tax cut from congressional lashes and special interest amendments.

That seems most difficult without embracing the supply-side philosophy that the President's men at the White House abhor.

Gee As In Georgia

IF TEXAS is a state of mind, then Georgia and two of its leading cities are that, plus places to re-

We recently made a quick trip to the state that has contributed more than its share of fact and fancy to the nation's past. It still is doing both.

Both Augusta, which we saw closeup, and Atlan-ta, which we followed through the news, are steeped in history dating back to the earliest days of the Republic.

Today, the two cities mix the modern with the historic and come off as part of not only the New South, but beacons of the Sunbelt business boom.

And while Lubbock and most of Texas parlay their state of mind and growing diversified eco-nomic base into money and people, both this city and state could take a lesson in promotion from the two "A-pluses."

BOTH AUGUSTA and Atlanta spend plenty of time and apparently money polishing their respective images, although Atlanta currently has a crime problem it wishes would go away. The overall effort has paid off, in spades

Augusta existed as a river settlement known as Fort Moore as early as 1717. At that time, it was a busy trading post on the Savannah River and a focal point for the rapidly expanding land and river commerce in that part of the new world.

It was in 1736, that the city was given official status by Gen. James Oglethorpe, who renamed the outpost Augusta in honor of the wife of the Prince of Wales. He ordered the construction of Fort Augusta. The area around the city was renamed Richmond County, for the Duke of Rich-

THE WESTERN part of Richmond County was laid out in 1790 and named Columbia County in honor of Christopher Columbus

So, as one can see, Augusta's claim to history is

Following the fall of Savannah to the British in 1778, Augusta became the temporary capital of Georgia, and served that role again from 1785-95. Augusta was incorporated as a town Jan. 2, 1789.

After the American Revolution, Augusta oomed as a tobacco center and later as a cotton market. By 1820, the small but thriving city was the terminus for riverboats, barges, wagon trains and traders who linked the interior with the Atlantic only 130 miles away.

The city's first major textile plant was built in 1828 with machinery brought from Philadelphia and a new chapter was launched in its industrial

tary involvement in the clash between the states. The city served as a major population center during Reconstruction and by 1885 had a census of almost 30,000 persons, impressive even by today's boom standards. By the turn of the century, what is now the Augusta Metro area was well set in the role it continues to play today in Georgia's educational, medical, industrial, transportation and military life. Augusta's greater trade territory takes in 13 counties in Georgia and five in South Carolina. The immediate three-county area around Augusta has a population of about 342,000. Augusta is proud of its role as the site of the famed Augusta National golf course and Masters golf tournament, and as a garden city. The profusion of colorful flowers, especially during late March and the weeks that follow, turns the city and area into a floral fantasyland. Tall Georgia pines and rolling hills add to the scenic beauty.

AUGUSTA ITSELF is a mixture of the historic and ultra modern. It boasts buildings and homes dating back al-1801, is an example. The First Presbyterian Church was organized in 1804 and the cornerstone of the existing building laid in 1809.

The city is the site of Woodrow Wilson's boyhood home, and Meadow Garden, restored, in 1791 was the home of George Walton, who was one of the Georgia signers of the Declaration of Independence.

Today, Augusta, which has a city population of just at 50,000, has two of the largest shopping malls in the state. It also has a downtown problem like many of its counterparts and unfortunately may have compounded it by building a Chamber of Commerce building in the center of historic Broad Street

AUGUSTA BOASTS a new Civic Center, nearby Fort Gordon, an Army communications and MP training center, a busy cultural life and a thriving economy, three colleges, a Med complex.

It also is home for The Augusta Chronicle, "the South's Oldest Newspaper-Established 1785." and with its sister publication, The Augusta Herald, the hub for a growing news empire.

Augusta is 135 miles east of Atlanta, one of the nation's more unusual cities. Atlanta rose from the ashes to become a major airlines and trade center. Atlanta International, or Hartsfield Airport as it is known, is the world's largest air terminal and the second busiest in the U.S. Atlanta is headquarters for highly successful Delta Airlines, the Atlanta baseball Braves, football Falcons, basketball Hawks.

It also is the financial capital of the South, Peachtree Center and some problems. The latter includes the current crime wave in which more than 20 black youngsters have disappeared or have been found slain.

The Atlanta Constitution newspaper reflects the city's life style, from ultra-chic fashions to abortion clinic ads. Songs have been written about the state, people swear by and at it. But, Georgia, like Texas, is a state unto itself...

Approval Sought For Increased Military Aid, Sales Of Arms

Train Robber Possible Kidnap Victim

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) -Escaped British robber Ronald Biggs is missing and may have been kidnapped from his fugitive haven in Brazil, a federal police source said Wednesday.

Self-Defense Group Formed In Atlanta

ATLANTA (AP) - A leader of a community self-defense group said Wednes-day that members armed with guns and baseball bats will "stop at nothing" to protect their youngsters from killers.

The group was formed as a special police task force remained stymied in its investigation of the murders of 20 black children over the last 20 months. Two others are missing. Police have labeled the group "vigilantes" but members ob-ject to that term, saying they are not doing anything outside the law.

Filling Reserve Cost Estimated At $47.1 Billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional Budget Office Director Alice Rivlin estimated Wednesday that filling the Strategic Oil Reserve to levels proposed by the Reagan administration will cost $47.1 billion by 1986.

Assessing various proposals for filling the reserve. Miss Rivlin said the current system of paying for the oil out of federal revenues "may be the most efficient in the long run."

Filling the reserve — huge salt domes in Texas and Louisiana — is designed to provide a cushion if there is another cutoff of supplies from oil exporting nation.

Various proposals are being consi-

Italy Ski Resorts Get Belated Snow

TRENTO, Italy (AP) — Snow blanketed Italy's eastern Alps and the Dolomites Wednesday, ending an unusual dry spell that curtailed tourism in the region's fashionable ski resorts.

More than three feet of fresh snow fell and many hotels that had closed for lack of snow quickly reopened.

The drop in tourism, estimated at more than 50 percent, was accompanied by a slump in sales of ski equipment.

Variances For Mini-Buildings To Be Considered By Board

By MARC FLAKE
Avalanche-Journal Staff
Kiosks, those mini-buildings used for everything from 24-hour banking to self-

Since many of these buildings do not comply with existing ordinances, most must come before the city's Zoning Board of Adjustment to get variances.

Recently several kiosks for Fox Photos, Inc., have been approved by the ZBA and this week, variances have been re-quested for four such mini-buildings.

Lubbock National Bank owns two while State Savings and Loan owns a third. The fourth variance is for a snow cone stand to be located in the Town and Country Shopping Center.

 Lubbock National bank wants to build kiosks at 71st Street and Quaker Avenue and at 5001 University Ave. Both need a variance because they are closer to the property lines than allowed by ordinances. The structure to be located at University Avenue also needs a variance because it is located in front of an existing medical building.

The kiosk owned by State Savings and Loan would also be located too close to its property line at 6601 Indiana Ave.

Robert Waltman, for Mr. Snow Cup, will ask for a set-back variance for his kiosk, which will be located just west of the Town and Country Shopping center sign at Fourth Street and University Ave-

Variances in parking requirements is the second most common request on the 17-item ZBA agenda this week. Two requests involve doctor's offices while a third is for an office building to be constructed at Broadway and Avenue Q.

The doctors' offices, to be located at 3511 21st St. and at 23rd Street and Nashville, will be specialists in surgery, said Zoning Administrator Jerrell Northcutt. Since most of their business would be conducted at hospitals they would not need as much parking space as other spe-

The office building to be located on the southeast corner of Broadway andAvenue Q would have more landscaping space than required resulting in a loss of parking spaces, he said.

In other business at the 8:15 a.m. meeting today in Council Chambers, the ZBA will consider:

- Requests for sign variances from the Country Inn Motel, at 4105 19th St., and Lorenz Service, at 2408 Ave. H.

— A variance to allow the expansion of a single family residence at 314 Ver-non Ave., a high density housing soning

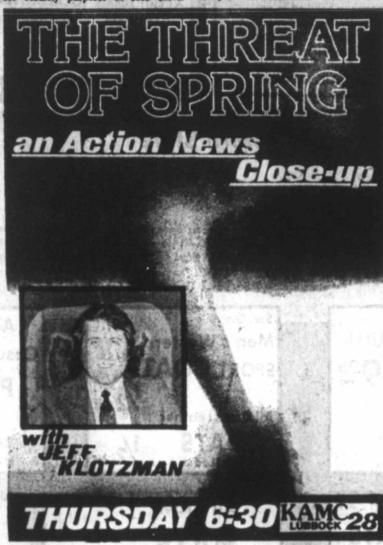

- A variance to build a self-service gasoline station in a local retail district, at 82nd Street and Quaker Avenue.

- A request to install a mobile home for security purposes at 2112 Clovis

'Tonight Show' Causes Jurors' Dismissal

were dismissed from Carol Burnett's $10 million libel suit against the National Enquirer on Wednesday after they heard Johnny Carson attack the tabloid on the "Tonight Show," but the judge denied a defense motion for a mistrial.

Superior Court Judge Peter S. Smith excused the jurors after questioning the panel individually in his chambers.

With only one alternate juror left to fill an empty chair, attorneys for both sides agreed to continue with 11 jurors.

Every juror and alternate was questioned rather extensively as the result of certain publicity that went on last night on television," the judge told the reas-sembled jury without elaborating on the

Miss Burnett had testified just hours before that the story which triggered her suit — a 1976 gossip column item about a purportedly rowdy episode at a Washington D.C. restaurant — was "a pack of lies."

Enquirer attorney William Masterson had asked Smith to poll the jurors to find out if any of the them saw the Carson show, then moved for a mistrial after two jurors acknowledged seeing it.

"I asked for a mistrial I think for fairly obvious reasons," Masterson told reporters outside court. "It was prejudicial publicity containing one-sided views (which were) unsubstantiated."

Piranha Mystifies Wildlife Officials

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Wildlife officials said Wednesday they are baffled as to why a piranha — a fish that is sup-posed to be at home in the fresh tropical waters of the Amazon — was found in the chilly and salty Bayou St. John in downtown New Orleans.

Howard Rogillio, a biologist for the Louisiana Wildlife and Fisheries Department, speculated that the meat-eating fish, which weighed more than a half pound, was a pet tossed away by its owner. It was found thrashing in the water March 7 by fisherman Paul Barbarin, 33, who got it to shore with a stick. He froze it, turned it over to game officials and now says he may mount it.

"We don't think they would live in Louisia Rogillio said. "We think the cold weather would get them, but on the other hand they may find a hot-water discharge where maybe the temperature during the winter would be warm enough so they could live.'

Game officials said it is illegal to own a piranha in Louislana because the species is considered a threat to other marine

Rogillio said game officials put gill nets in Bayou St. John in search of more piranhas, but found none and will look seen a replay of Carson' fore she came to court. "I thought he was wonderful," she

JOHNNY CARSON Challenges National Enquirer

Attorney Barry Langeberg, represent-ing Miss Burnett, said Carson's attack was the Enquirer's own fault.

"If they hadn't printed the story, the whole incident on the Johnny Carson show would not have happened," Langeberg said. "If they can generate that kind of thing and then come in and complain in court, it doesn't seem right."

Carson, host of the "Tonight Show, referred to the Enquirer's current edition, which features him on the cover and says Carson's third marriage is

"I'm going to call the National En-quirer and the people who wrote this liars," Carson said. "This is absolutely, completely, 100 percent falsehoods."

"We are making no comment at all," Rogers spokeswoman Anne De Wolfe said Wednesday. "On the advice of the Enquirer's attorneys, we won't have any statements...until the end of the trial."

Miss Burnett claims in her suit that a 1976 article in the tabloid falsely reported she had an argument with then-Secretary of State Henry Kissinger at the posh Rive Gauche restaurant in Washington.

THE SUPERMARKET SHOPPER

By MARTIN SLOANE

DEAR SUPERMARKET SHOPPER — I am district manager for Saleway Stores, and I read with great interest your recent column on double coupons and how they were spreading to different parts of the country.

and how they were spreading to different parts of the country.

I sent the column to our division manager, and both he and his staff were very impressed. After rending the column, they decided to offer double-value coupons on Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays in 64 of our stores in Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri and Texas.

I thought you would like to know that not only the thrifty consumer reads your column but management in the supermarket industry as well — and that your column played a part in a new endeavor for us at Safeway Stores. — Pat Bearden, South District manager, Little Roch, Ark.

DEAR PAT — Many thanks on behalf of all my readers who live within a day's drive of any of your 66 stores and who have taken advantages of your offer.

day's drive of any of your 64 stores and who have taken advantage of your offer of double coupons.

Offering double coupons gives store managers an opportunity to meet new customers. The challenge is for them to keep these customers coming back with low prices and good service.

Good luck and best wishes. DEAR SUPERMARKET SHOPER — I recently cut out a coupon and I not-iced that the expiration date was "June 1981." Does this mean that it expires on June 1 or on June 30? - Debbie from Dayton.

DEAR DEBBIE - This is taken to mean that the coupon will be accepted at the check-out counter through the last day of the month.

SMART SHOPPING TIP: Chris Johnson of Gladstone, Mich., tells us that she puts her coupons in order of lowest value to highest value while she is waiting on the check-out line. "So many cashiers have thanked me for this," she says, "because it makes it easier for them to ring up the coupons and saves us both time." She and other readers whose smart-shopping tips are published in my column will receive my "1981 Guide to Coupons and Refunds." So, send your suggestions to me in care of this newspap

Department Of Defense Will Update Air Base

FORT WORTH (AP) - Carswell Air Force Base stands to win $33 million in defense construction because of a decision to move the most vital B-52 bombers inland, a Pentagon official said.

Another $5.5 million is slated to build simulator of a B-52G, a bomber that can carry a cruise missile. Unlike earlier models, this simulator would let an entire crew practice at once.

The $33 million would be used to house and maintain air-launched cruise

Funds to be directed to Carswell represent the biggest chunk of the $122 million the Reagan administration wants to spend in Texas in 1982.

The Pentagon plans the move out of concern about attack from enemy submarines.

We want the B-52Gs carrying the cruise missiles, our prime nuclear weap-on, inland at places like Carswell," the official said Tuesday.

He said that would mean a swap of Carswell's 33 B-52Ds, which will continue to carry conventional bombs, for 30 B-52Gs in 1983, the official said. He said the move of planes to bases at least 200 miles inland will begin in the middle of that

The 30 planes to be moved to Carswell would be part of the nation's fleet of 170 such planes

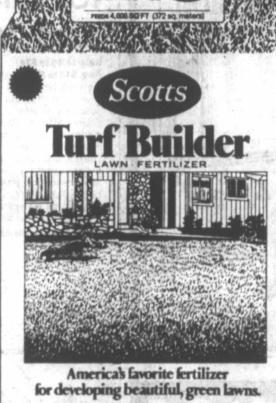

The Air Force is asking Congress for money to build storage facilities for unarmed missiles and for "igloos" for armed cruise missiles

Plans call for several other buildings for maintenance and inspection, as wellas administrative quarters for those overseeing the missiles, the official said. Roads to link the buildings to the rest of the base would also be needed.

Presidential Yacht Takes Dive

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - The Potomac, once the shining presidential yacht of Franklin Roosevelt, sank early Wednesday at a Navy dock, where it had been moored since late last year following a government marijuana raid.

The ship went down about 4 a.m. CST in 35 feet water at Treasure Island. Only the wheelhouse remained above

Mike Fleming, a spokesman for the U.S. Customs Office, speculated the tide carried the 135-foot yacht against a mooring, causing a puncture.

The Potomac was seized by Customs agents as local, state and federal drug agents raided it and a sister ship docked on San Francisco's waterfront. Agents. seized 21 tons of marijuana from the boats and arrested seven people, all of whom face drug possession charges. Several people have filed petitions claiming ownership of the Potomac and the claims remain under government review, Fleming said.

Fleming said the Potomac is still under seizure and it will be the Customs Office responsibility to salvage the boat, which has been valued at up to $300,000.

"The boat was not in the best of condition," Fleming said. "It was quite rusty. The Navy had been pumping water from it all week."

President Jimmy Carter told Princeton University upperclassmen at a private meeting Wednesday that he was not as 'effective' in the White House as he wanted to be and "might have been more forceful" with Iran, the students said.

Carter also told the invitation-only group that "the American press to some extent hampered his ability to act," according to Steve Yelenoski. The senior from Houston said the former president claimed the media "deliberately distorted information and didn't check out all

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. There are marvelous returns available from the dividends paid on many preferred stocks. Some have yields of 15 percent or even higher. Why, then, is there so little activity in good preferred stocks?

Rather than "appreciation" of preferreds as investments, it seem to us that this is "depreciation" of what we consi-der good deals.

A. Let's put your word "appreciation" to its Wall Street usage, where it means "increase in value." Unlike common stocks, preferreds usually don't hold out the luce of growing in value.

Both common and preferred stock represent ownership in the corporation which issued them. They are "equity securities.'

The dividends on common stock can be raised, lowered or omitted, depending upon the company's earnings. If the company does well, the common stockholders share in the company's profits through increased dividends. Some companies increase the dividends on their common stocks just about every year.

With most preferred stocks, however, the dividend payment is set at the time preferreds are issued and never change. "Participting preferred stocks" - of which there aren't too many - are exceptions to this general rule.

So, when you buy the typical preferred stock, you buy a fixed-income security on which the dividend will never change. With no hopes of increased dividends, preferreds provide no hope of protection against inflation.

Like other fixed-income securities, such as bonds, the market prices of preferreds move in an inverse relationship to interest rates. When interest rates go up. the prices of fixed-income securities go down. And, when interest rates go down, the prices of fixed-income securi-

With interest rates high, as they have been recently, preferreds have dropped in price - so that their dividends provide high current yields. If your investment aim is strictly income, there's nothing wrong with buying preferreds. Most investors, however, are looking for growth in value and increased dividends. So, they steer clear of preferreds.

Q. Why are there no price-earnings (P-Es) ratios listed in newspaper stock tables for preferred stocks?

A. Because it would be a meaningless number. P-Es are calculated only for common stocks.

A common stock's P-E is the price of a share of that stock dividend by earnings per share over the most recent 12-month reporting period. A company's earnings for common stock are tabulated after meeting its preferred dividend requirements. Say that XYZ Corp. had total sales and other revenue last year of $20 million. Say that its total expenses and taxes were $9 million. That left it with a net profit of $11 million Say that XYZ had exactly one million shares of preferred stock outstanding owned by investors - on which the annual dividend is $1 a share. After meeting that preferred dividend requirement, net earnings for common stock came to $10

If XYZ has five million shares of common stock outstanding, earnings per common share were $2 Now, say the market price of XYZ common is $12. It had a P-E of "six-toone." Expressed another way, it's "selling at six times earnings. There's no reason to calculate a P-E on the preferred. But holders of preferred stock should keep an eye on the "dividend coverage." In this example, the $11 million net income covered the $1 million preferred dividend requirement 11 times - a very safe margin.

Polish Leaders Face Farm Strike

Warsaw Pact military forces began exercises in and around Poland on Wednesday. The embattled government faced a continuing sit-in by private farmers seeking to unionize, and a strike alert by lum-

The Polish Communist Party newspaper Trybuna Ludu and the official Soviet news agency Tass announced the "Sovuz '81" maneuvers were under way in Poland, East Germany, the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia. In Washington, Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., vers are within the limits that have been described by the Soviet leadership.

The three-day sit-in by some 160 farmers, as spring planting nears, is in the Polish northwest. Like farmer sit-ins that ended in the southeast over a month ago, it is inspired by demands for a "Rural Solidarity." The farmers say such an organization would be a counterpart to Solidarity, the independent union federation that emerged after last summer's nationwide labor rebellion.

Another $1 billion would be saved by changing the system for paying extended unemployment benefits beyond the regular 26 weeks, and another $900 million would be cut from existing social service

The committee also recommended imposing a requirement that a worker spend 20 weeks on the job out of one year before becoming eligible for unemployment compensation. The requirement which would replace a wide variety of state standards, would mean no savings next year but a cut estimated at $900 mil

In all, the committee voted reductions of $8.8 billion in security and health programs - about $200 million in cuts beyond those proposed by Reagan.

Budget Cut Support Qualified

WASHINGTON (AP) - After meeting with President Reagan, Republican senators criticized opponents of the administration's budget cuts Wednesday but said they will fight some reductions that would hurt their home states.

"I do not think the president would say he has to have it all his own way,' said Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa. "He is not asking the senators to be rubber

In another bid to woo support from Congress, the president invited the 16 GOP senators elected last year to the White House for breakfast with him and his senior staff. They talked over bacon and eggs and orange juice.

Leaving the session, the group scorned Reagan's critics and said their mail and visits to their states show that determination to prune the budget by $48.6 billion in fiscal 1982.

Unity Of Purpose Urged

"If there is not unity of purpose and if the budget proposals are chipped away piece by piece, then it will not emerge in the cohesive, well-planned program which was designed," said Specter, chief spokesman for the group.

He said Reagan expressed the view at the breakfast that "it would succeed only if the carefully crafted program went through all the way with respect to the budget approach.

He is concerned about those who would chip it away and would therefore destroy its integrity as a cohesive program and would then revel in its failure "Specter added.

But Specter acknowledged that he opgoses Reagan's proposed deep cuts in mass transit aid. "I am optimistic there will be some changes in that.

pressed the same hope, adding "There are areas where reasonable people will have disagreements.

In addition, the committee faced decisions on cuts in public service employment, mass transit and other programs long popular in Congress as it reviewed Reagan's proposals for $48.6 billion in reductions in the 1982 budget he inherited from former President Jimmy Carter. The panel recommended $12.5 billion in cuts in its first day of work on Tuesday, departing infrequently from Reagan's blueprint. Domenici said he hoped the committee could complete its work by the end of the day.

Meanwhile, Budget Director David A. Stockman, in an appearance before the Senate Finance Committee, again defended the president's economic forecasts and discounted an estimate by congressional economists who said the administration has underestimated 1982 federal spending by as much as $25 bil-

As he has before, Stockman said the administration does not oppose efforts in Congress to cut spending more than the president has recommended.

But he reiterated Reagan's opposition to changes in the automatic Social Security increases to account for inflation.

The president has taken "a pretty unequivocal" stand on retaining indexing. Stockman said.

Technically, the committee is drafting instructions to the other committees of Congress, who would have broad discretion in apportioning the reductions among programs under their jurisdic-

But it was clear from the debate that the senators felt they were discussing specific programs.

Chiles, trying to restore more than $1 billion of the Reagan-backed cuts in Social Security, said that going along with the president would reduce benefits for more than a million older Americans living on income of less than $3,100 a year.

Riegle complained that Reagan's proposed cut of $1.2 billion in extended unemployment benefits would fall particularly hard on workers in industrial states. He tried unsuccessfully to restore $800

Wojciech Jaruzelski, and Communist Party chief Stanislaw Kania in Warsaw. Protection Promoted

Tass said, "It was stressed that the Polish army, together with the Soviet army and armed forces of the other states of the socialist community, is reliably protecting peace and socialism."

Under the 1975 Helsinki accords on European security and cooperation, notification a month in advance is required when exercises involve more than 25,000

Warsaw Pact officials have not specified how many troops are involved, how long the exercises will last or their precise location. But before they began, Soviet officials in Moscow told a U.S. envoy fewer than 25,000 troops would be involved and there would be no large-scale crossings of the Polish border.

The United States has consistently warned Soviet leaders against military intervention in Poland's labor crisis.

Washington Relieved In Washington, Haig told reporters "I think there's been some relief that thus far there's been no excessive Soviet entry into Poland, which we would of course be very concerned about

But he cautioned, "We still see somewhat stricter Soviet attitude on the (labor) movement inside Poland proper."

A Solidarity spokesman in Bydgoszcz said about 160 farmers are occupying a building of the United Peasant Party, which is part of the ruling Communist Front of National Unity. Bydgoszcz is about 90 miles southwest of Gdansk, a Baltic port and Solidarity stronghold.

Jan Kulaj, leader of the independent farmer movement, said, " Our first problem is registration of our union over which we are optimistic.

The farmers also demand access to state-owned land, revisions in current farm policies and free elections of farmer representatives.

Poland's Supreme Court has rejected the farmers' charter for a union independent of the Communist government, saying they are not laborers like the workers Solidarity represents.

Timber workers claim the state Forestry Ministry is reneging on promises for clothes and improved pay and working conditions agreed to last year.

Production Dips

A day earlier, the Commerce Department had reported that industrial production dipped in February and that construction of new homes fell sharply.

Maury Harris, a financial economist at the investment firm of Paine Webber. Jackson & Curtis Inc., said he believes those developments are a sign of a weakening economy. A result, he says, will be lower interest rates. "Interest rates in general have a ways on loans to their best-risk corporate customers, although banks sometimes make very short-term loans at rates below their stated prime. Smaller businesses usually are charged at least one percentage point above the prime.

The prime rate does not apply to consumer loans. Rates on those loans are limited by law in most states. The prime, however, is considered a key indicator of trends in all kinds of interest rates.

The prime peaked at a record 21.5 percent last December and began falling gradually in early January.

But mission leaders hope a new church with a 104-foot bell tower will lure The tiny, fork-tailed birds, a compelling tourist attraction for decades, have been forsaking the adobe ruins for quieter spots where food and mud for nestmaking are more plentiful. Because of the "noise and all, they've moved away in recent years. They're rather shy birds," said the Rev. Paul Martin, pastor of the famed "Mission of the Swallows." 'We're hoping the height of the tower will attract them back."

Legend has it that the swallows return each year exactly on March 19 - the Feast of St. Joseph - from their winter home in Argentina, 6,000 miles away. Bird experts, however, say the swallows can arrive several weeks before and after the religious date.

Groundbreaking for the $2.5 million church and bell tower is scheduled for early next year, and it is expected to be completed in 1984.

It will be a replica of the Old Stone Church built as part of the 21 Franciscan missions constructed two centuries ago by Spanish padres on the West Coast. That church was reduced to rubble when a major earthquake rumbled through the seaside settlement in 1812. Only the adobe ruins exist today.

The new 800-seat, seven-domed church will be built with structural steel making it highly resistant to earthquakes, said John Bartlett, the architect who "The old church must have been a beautiful sight," he said. "It must have been the most ambitious of all of the missions in vertical design. For that time, to attempt a church all in unreinforced stone must have been an adventurous undertaking City officials predict that 10,000 tourists will jam the small downtown in the next four days for the annual Swallows Week fiesta. 'Those birds are this town's only claim to fame," said bartender Steve Lilly. 28, who works at a railway saloon a block from the mission.

Lubbock Avalanche-Journal Thursday, March 19, 1981

McCoy said the Alr Force has only missed enlistment quotas once - two years ago - but added that dissatisfaction with pay, compensation and the military role has led to problems of keeping those enrolled in the service.

The military is under a constant threat to lose benefits, McCoy said, and that factor, combined with a general feeling that the public does not appreciate what the military is doing, has been a stumbling block to recruitment and retention, he said.

But McCoy noted a "strong signal" from ?resident Reagan that attitudes are going to change with a new emphasis on national defense

McCoy said that six or seven years ago, the uniform he has worn for the past 30 years brought negative reactions from current position Aug. 1, 1979. civilians. But now, he said, people stop him on the street to thank him for the job he and other servicemen are doing.

And because of this renewed outlook. McCoy said, "Right now, we don't need

McCoy noted higher pay levels, the 'return to patriotism' and other factors as part of an overall improvement of the quality of life available to and attitude of those serving in the Air Force.

He mentioned specifically upgrading of dormitories, dining facilities and recreational equipment at Reese Air Force

McCoy said that in keeping skilled personnel, he feels an increase in the years required before retirement would only hamper attempts to keep personnel in the service as a full career.

He pointed out that after a person has served eight or nine years, he is at an age when important decisions are being made on lifetime choices. He said that if a person sees he has another 20 years left before retirement benefits come along. he may decide to scrap his current emMcCoy addressed the complaint that more time is required in the Air Force to 'make the grade" than in other branches. He said it takes longer to become a senior non-commissioned officer in his branch because people are retained long-er and vacancies must become available before promotions are made.

But he noted a new promotion cycle announced Monday which he feels may better the situation.

Under the new announcement, he said, 1,194 personnel were promoted to chief master sergeant - totaling 44 percent of those eligible.

McCoy said that even with increased enlistment, however, the real question of military preparedness will be with the length of time the Air Force can sustain its capabilities at adequate levels.

He said the test will be whether the military can sustain manpower, spare parts and other shortage areas in enough force to maintain defense requirements.

McCoy, the sixth chief master sergeant appointed to that ultimate noncommissioned officer position, will retire at the end of this term. He assumed his

By PAUL DONOHUE, M.D. Dear Dr. Donohue: I am a 15-year-old boy who is ashamed to go swimming. My breasts have enlarged. I know I would be made fun of if I ever had to. Is there something wrong with me? Can I do anything about it? - F.F.

Gynecomastia, which you have, is a common condition. As many as 70 percent of normal boys have some breast enlargement during puberty (early teens). It's due to a slight hormonal imbalance and it's so common that it is just about considered normal. The enlargement disappears in a year or two.

The enlargement can even be seen after puberty in some. It has been found in as many as 36 percent of army recruits, and most often does not mean any serious abnormality even then. However, a male with enlarging breasts should be seen by a physician.

Because there are a few rare illnesses associated with it examination is recommended to be on the safe side. I don't want to go into the details of that, except to note that rarely breast enlargement can be associated with abnormalities of the pituitary or adrenal glands or of the testicles. Young males should also know that smoking marijuana can cause breast enlargement, as can many other drugs. These few examples do not exhaust the list of possibilities.

But most cases of gynecomastia are not caused by serious illnesses. If pronounced enlargement does persist into adulthood it can be corrected surgically. I don't think you will need that. But see a physician. I understand your embarrass-ment. Given your age, I would expect your breast enlargement to begin to diminish shortly. No, I'm not going to suggest that you necessarily go ahead and don your swimming trunks and tough out the wise cracks of your buddies. I'm sure you will find ways to weather this temporary embarrassment on your own.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have been a daily user of aspirin for a few years now. The aspirin seems to clear my head up, and I even feel more alert. I haven't had any stomach problems or any other side effects—so far. Can you tell me if taking two aspirins a day can be hazardous to your health? I know of other people that say they are addicted to aspirin also. I think your response would be very helpful to a lot of aspirin users out here.

Many people with arthritis take far more aspirin every day than you say you are taking. Some doctors have their patients take an aspirin tablet a day for prevention of stroke. So, under most circumstances I cannot say that taking one or two aspirin a day should lead you into serious trouble.

BUT - if you are having a headache every day without the aspirin it is much better to find out why than mask that important sign with a pill. Secondly, I believe that the less we take of anything, especially of unnecessary substances, the better off we are. Thirdly, aspirin can have side effects, not all of them involving the stomach. Admittedly, in the dose you mention that would be rare. But why ask for trouble? Fourthly, I don't think you or your friends are addicted in the sense that if you stopped your body would react adversely, as, for example, it would with narcotics.

You have a habit, but not an addiction. Aspirin is a useful and effective drug, but it should not be taken to mask symptoms. For more on stroke, which is probably your chief concern, see the booklet on that subject. For a copy, write Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

Bridge Players Compete Today For Charity

Lubbock and area bridge players will join thousands of other 'addicts' from throughout North America today in competition to benefit the American Diahetes Association

Marguerite Marquam, charity chairman and director for the benefit game, says the competition will be unique because every player in every game in every city will play the exact same hands.

Master points will be awarded to all winners, in separate sections for master and novice players. Mrs. Marquam said the League's Charity Foundation sponsors research into the causes and treatment of diabetes.

Sue Thomas, president of ACBL unit 197, said the local chapters of the diabetes association in home areas of contest winners will benefit directly from a special grant. A donation of $1,000 will be made in the names of National winners, with $750 for second place winners and $500 for third place winners. A $250 donation will be made in the name of each remaining pair who win in their district.

Entry fee for each player is $3.50. Proceeds will be distributed through the American Contract Bridge League's Charity Foundation.

Chris Hayter is national charity chairman. Dottie Gentry of Levelland will assist Mrs. Hayter with partnerships for advanced players. Ruth Willingham will arrange partnerships for novice players.

All interested players are invited to participate.

HINTS FROM HELOISE:

Vinyl Clothes Cleaned In Washing Machine

After checking with several friends, I believe my problem is common to many and seems to defy solution.

How do you successfully remove soil from white or light colored vinyl jackets and purses?

Soap and water work when they are new but eventually makeup and other types of soil resist routine care. Plus, the lining needs cleaning

It seems wasteful to discard perfectly good clothing because it will not come clean. — Doris Shank

I wholeheartedly agree, Doris. Before I would discard anything, I would try something, even if it seemed drastic. If it doesn't work, what have you got to lose?

So with that in mind, if you're sure the jacket is vinyl and not leather, don't hesitate to wash it in your washing machine along with a regular load of

Dear Ann Landers: This is in response to "Concerned Spectator" who castigates football officials for ignoring rule infractions that could lead to serious injury or death. He does a disservice to the large number of dedicated football officials at whatever level they are working. be it Little League, Pop Warner or

Football is a sport of violence and intense emotion. There are 22 men on the field and anywhere from three to seven officials assigned to keep an eye on everything that goes on during the game. The rules committees at each level of competition have spelled out the area responsibilities for each official in the various game situations (pass, run, punt, kickoff etc.). Yet some rule infractions are never called because one of the officials didn't see them. Thousands of spectators, of course, did see it all, even while sitting 50 to 200 yards away. In short, Ann, the rules committees are officials at all levels, dedicated to seeing that sports events are conducted with safety. Booklet Alerts Students

NEW YORK (Special) - "Ice Cream Isn't Always Good" is not a plot against this cooling treat, but rather a 24-page booklet that alerts elementary school children to the dangers of talking to strangers. Originally distributed through school systems, single copies are now available to concerned parents.

As the crime rate against children rises, the incidents in Atlanta being in the forefront of everyone's mind, the need to educate children becomes critical. The photographically illustrated booklet warns against accepting lures and rides from strangers and spells out vital safety lessons: the importance of always telling your parents where you are, and the value of the telephone and the police in our. society. The text is followed by key questions that underscore the significant messages and guide parents into further safety discussions with their children.

"Ice Cream Isn't Always Good" has been approved for use in school systems throughout the country. Quantity prices for PTA's and other concerned groups available on request. For single copies, send $1.00 and a 28-cent stamped envelop to Project Two, P.O.Box 5091-N, F.D.R. Station, New York, N.Y. 10150.

State Lands Compensation Bill Eyed

WASHINGTON (Special) — U.S. Senator Harrison "Jack" Schmitt has introduced a bill designed to ensure that New Mexico and other public land states are fairly compensated for the loss of state lands when the federal government acquires property for military and other uses.

Schmitt ssaid the immediate problem is the federal government's apparent plan to condemn 350,000 acres of state land in the White Sands Missile Range in fee simple.

"The general provisions of my legislation provide that where lands are taken by the federal government for government use, the state is given an option to take payment in other unappropriated public lands," Schmitt explained. "This option contains a time limit.

"The state makes its selections of public lands on a value-for-value basis and if a dispute arises as to the value which cannot be settled by negotiation, either party may refer the matter to the U.S. District Court for a final determination.

"At a time when the Congress and the President are trying to balance the federal budget, this proposal would eliminate the need for the federal government to expend large sums of tax dollars to compensate states for condemned lands," he added.

"Further, there is the argument presented by the 'Sagebrush Rebellion' that the federal government should not be expanding its boldings of lands within the boundaries of the individual states," Schmitt said. "It should hold land needed only for strictly governmental functions authorized by the Constitution. "This particular problem has a long history in New Mexico arising out of mil-

"This particular problem has a long history in New Mexico arising out of military acquisition of state lands during World War II," Schmitt noted, "and with new problems being created today as the federal government seeks to acquire lands for other purposes such as a nuclear waste disposal facility (at Carlsbad)."

Bush To Address Texas Lawmakers On Federalism

AUSTIN (AP) — Vice President George Bush will talk to Texas legislators about federal and state relations on Monday, March 30, Speaker Bill Clayton said Wednesday.

The 3 p.m. address to a joint session of the 67th Legislature will follow a noon speech to the Southwestern Cattle Raisers Convention in Fort Worth.

This will be Bush's first official visit to his adopted state of Texas since taking office in January, Clayhton said. Bush formerly lived in Houston and retains a residence there along with one in Connecticut.

Clayton said Bush will land at nearby Bergstrom Air Force Base and go by car to the Capitol. He will return to Washington immediately after the half-hour

Bush will be the third U.S. vice president to address a joint session of the Legislature

The last vice presidential visit to the Capitol was by Vice President Hubert Humphrey on April 24, 1967, when President Lyndon B. Johnson was in office.

Bad Day Burglar Gets 20-Years

HOUSTON (AP) — Friday the 13th was a bad day for James Dukes.

Dukes was arrested and charged with burglary of the home of Deputy Police Chief Fred Bankston in a neighborhood where only police officers reside.

An auto theft detective and a burglary detective, two of Bankston's neighbors, responded to a burglary alarm and began a chase that led to the arrest of Dukes and a woman.

During a preliminary hearing on the burglary charge, Dukes entered a plea of guilty and was sentenced to 20 years in prison by State District Judge Frank Price.

Bankston said Tuesday he was pleased with two things, including the fact he had subdivided the land around his house and sold lots to other officers.

"And I can hardly believe he pleaded out for 20 years only three days after he was caught," Bankston said.

Public Law 480 (foreign food aid) spending would not hurt U. S. agricultural ex-moderate plantings.

Schnittker Associations, a Washington consulting firm, said a large boost in winter wheat plantings may have pre-empted an increase in corn plantings.

Growers seeded 57.4 million acres for the 1980 winter wheat crop and 63.9 million acres for the 1981 crop, according to U. S. Department of Agriculture data.

Martin Abel, a Schnittker consultant, said farmers who boosted winter wheat plantings to offset a cash squeeze may not have the physical capacity to plant more corn or soybeans than they did last

However, "it takes extreme price anges to change a farmer's mind" out what will be planted and how much, he said.

For corn, Abel estimated that farmers would plant either 84 million acres about the same as last year's actual plantings — or slightly less. In the heart of the corn belt, he said, plantings likely will hover near 1980's acreage or below. Marginal areas, where corn is a secondary crop, may show some upward shifts but probably not great enough to change acreage all that much,

Abel noted how much farmers outside the corn belt decide to plant ultimately will determine corn acreage.

Schnittker estimated soybean plantings will change little from last year's

Producers planted about 70.08 million acres to soybeans in 1980, down from the 71.6 million planted in 1979, USDA said. The Washington consultants said growers would plant about the same amount or Heinold Commodities, Inc., also forecast both corn and soybean acreage The firm said corn plantings will drop 3 percent to 81.6 million acres. Ten major growing states could cut plantings. Heinold predicted, based on a survey of states covering conditions up to March 1.

Soybean acreage also will decline, Heinold forecast. It said farmers will plant an estimated 69.3 million acres, down 1.1 percent from last year's

Washington representatives for two major producer groups echoed the con-sultants' view that corn and soybean acreage likely will remain constant or fall Michael Hall of the National Corn

Growers Association said farmers he has contacted are growing increasingly cost High fertilizer and fuel prices are just two factors encouraging a downward adjustment in plantings, he said.

EEcessively dry soil in some spots may require more preparation and farmers may choose to compensate for the extra input costs by planting fewer acres, he said. John Baize of the American Soybean Association said his organization expects a slight downturn in soybean acreage Earlier, ASA senior economist Robert Acton estimated that farmers would plant between 68 million and 70 million acres of the oilseed crop. Baize said the range Acton estimated still is about where the ASA places prospective plantings.

Taking another view, Chase Econometrics said improved farm prices and better financing prospects will create incentive to plant more.

An economist with the Pennsylvaniabased consulting firm, Dennis Steadman, said he will be "very surprised" if the corn acreage is lower than last year.

"We expect to see quite an increase in said, the USDA's report may not show an 1981 corn plantings," he said in a telephone interview.

Chase estimates about 86.5 million acres of corn will be put into the ground this spring, Steadman said. Farmers will respond to the better economic climate by increasing their acreage, he said.

For soybean plantings, Steadman was less certain. He said, however, that early prospects indicate farmers will plant about the same amount of the oilseed as last year's 70.8 million acres.

An apparent increase in soybean and wheat double-crop ping may offset acreage drops in some areas, the economist said, resulting in a Chase projection of 69 million to 71 million acres.

Steadman cautioned that the March intentions report may not reflect actual circumstances. For corn in particular, he

The USDA will release forecasts today based on a surv of thousands of growers in 48 states. Although farmers in some areas will not start seeding for a few weeks, the USDA's early estimates in the past have not deviated too far from actual plantings. Despite claims that the number of acres a farmer intends to plant can vary from what actually is seeded, the USDA said early indications often mirror actual Department analysts said last year's report on what producers intended to plant, issued in January, was 98.8 percent accurate for corn acreage.

4-H Barrow Takes Grand Prize

Jana Winter, 16-year-old Lubbock County 4-H member closed out a season of stock shows this week by receiving the purple banner for her grand champion barrow in the San Angelo Stock Show.

The San Angelo Stock Show is the last of the major stock shows for the 1980-81 season. Lubbock County youths placed four out of six barrows in the show with two of those going into the auction.

Miss Winter's heavyweight Crossbred barrow weighed 244 pounds. The barrow was picked best of about 450 hogs by show judge Cecil Lewis of Rule. The animal was first of a class of 64 barrows and champion Crossbred, prior to being selected grand champion.

COTTON FUTURES CLOSED A FAIRLY QUIET session slightly above the day's lows Wednesday with losses of 131 points in spot May at 86.12 cents and 127 points in near July at 87.15 cents. Analysts said prices declined on trade, local and commission house selling, including strong liquidation of long positions following Tuesday's sharp advance. Mill price fixations provided resistance, they added. Local unwinding of bear speards was noted in buying spot May and selling

Some bearish sentiment was attributed to the USDA's global production and consumption report, which showed cotton demand decreasing in Japan. A rumor — unconfirmed, as usual — circulated that a major shipper may have sold around 150,000 bales to China. It was rumored that cotton from the Far West may have been involved.

A GOVERNMENT REPORT RELEASED EARLIER this week, showing a 24.6 percent decline in U. S. housing starts during February, fueled expectations in some quarters of lower interest rates.

One source, however, said fewer housing starts eventually might be bearish for cotton because the report could indicate less demand for cotton for home

COTTON PLANTING IN THE LOWER RIO Grande Valley was interrupted by rain last week, the joint agricultural weather facility of the USDA and the Commerce Department said.

Some recently planted fields were washed out by locally heavy rains, the re-The agency said land preparation for planting was in full swing on the Texas

Plains. Seedbed preparations and planting in Arizona progressed at an accelerated rate as fields dried, the agency said, while California growers continued to prepare fields for planting. Private analysts, in preliminary assessments, believe cotton planting intentions on the High Plains will be roughly about the same as last year's acreage to up slightly, largely on the strength of expanded cotton acres in northern areas.

EXPECTATIONS OF SOME RECOVERY in Italy's textile industry late this year or early in 1982 mean Italy probably will slightly increase its cotton imports in the next year, a U.S. agricultural attache in Milan said. The attach estimated Italy's 1981-82 raw cotton imports at 963,900 bales (480 ounds), up from 940,950 in 1980-81. The extent of any recovery in Italy's textile industry still is questionable and to 150 points lower paced by April at the daily limit with sellers over Wednesday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. April through December posted new season's lows. Sales totaled 21,511 cars. Futures broke in late trade on general selling which touched off stop loss orders. Sources noted lack of follow through to early gains despite firmer cash beef and mostly higher slant to cash cattle. Limit declines in feeder cattle also stimulated liquidation. Wholesale beef was up 1 at 92 to 93

moderate plantings.
Schnittker Associations, a Washington consulting firm, said a large boost in win-ter wheat plantings may have pre-empted an increase in corn plantings.
Growers seeded 57.4 million acres for the 1980 winter wheat crop and 63.9 million acres for the 1981 crop, according to U. S. Department of Agriculture data.

Martin Abel, a Schnittker consultant, said farmers who boosted winter wheat plantings to offset a cash squeeze may not have the physical capacity to plant more corn or soybeans than they did last

However, "it takes extreme price changes to change a farmer's mind" about what will be planted and how much, he said.

For corn, Abel estimated that farmers would plant either 84 million acres about the same as last year's actual plantings - or slightly less. In the heart of the corn belt, he said, plantings likely will hover near 1980's acreage or below. Marginal areas, where corn is a secondary crop, may show some upward shifts but probably not great enough to change acreage all that much,

Abel noted how much farmers outside the corn belt decide to plant ultimately will determine corn acreage.

Schnittker estimated soybean plantings will change little from last year's

Producers planted about 70.08 million acres to sovbeans in 1980, down from the 71.6 million planted in 1979, USDA said. The Washington consultants said growers would plant about the same amount or Heinold Commodities, Inc., also forecast both corn and soybean acreage The firm said corn plantings will drop 3 percent to 81.6 million acres. Ten major growing states could cut plantings, Heinold predicted, based on a survey of states covering conditions up to March 1.

Soybean acreage also will decline, Heinold forecast. It said farmers will plant an estimated 69.3 million acres, down 1.1 percent from last year's

Washington representatives for two major producer groups echoed the con-sultants' view that corn and soybean acreage likely will remain constant or fall

Michael Hall of the National Corn Growers Association said farmers he has contacted are growing increasingly cost

High fertilizer and fuel prices are just two factors encouraging a downward adjustment in plantings, he said.

EEcessively dry soil in some spots may require more preparation and farmers may choose to compensate for the extra input costs by planting fewer acres,

John Baize of the American Soybean Association said his organization expects a slight downturn in soybean acreage.

Earlier, ASA senior economist Robert Acton estimated that farmers would plant between 68 million and 70 million acres of the oilseed crop. Baize said the range Acton estimated still is about where the ASA places prospective plantings.

Taking another view, Chase Econometrics said improved farm prices and better financing prospects will create incentive to plant more.

An economist with the Pennsylvaniabased consulting firm, Dennis Steadman, said he will be "'very surprised" if the corn acreage is lower than last year.

"We expect to see quite an increase in said, the USDA's report may not show an 1981 corn plantings," he said in a telephone interview.

Chase estimates about 86.5 million acres of corn will be put into the ground this spring, Steadman said. Farmers will respond to the better economic climate by increasing their acreage, he said. For soybean plantings, Steadman was less certain. He said, however, that early prospects indicate farmers will plant about the same amount of the oilseed as last year's 70.8 million acres.

An apparent increase in soybean and wheat double-crop ping may offset acreage drops in some areas, the econo mist said, resulting in a Chase projection of 69 million to 71 million acres

Steadman cautioned that the March intentions report may not reflect actual circumstances. For corn in particular, he

increase at all.

The USDA will release forecasts to-day based on a surv of thousands of growers in 48 states. Although farmers in some areas will not start seeding for a few weeks, the USDA's early estimates in the past have not deviated too far from actual plantings.

Despite claims that the number of acres a farmer intends to plant can vary from what actually is seeded, the USDA said early indications often mirror actual

Department analysts said last year's report on what producers intended to plant, issued in January, was 98.8 percent accurate for corn acreage

They said their predictions almost always represent more than 95 percent of actual plantings

4-H Barrow Takes Grand Prize

Jana Winter, 16-year-old Lubbock County 4-H member closed out a season of stock shows this week by receiving the purple banner for her grand champion barrow in the San Angelo Stock Show.

The San Angelo Stock Show is the last of the major stock shows for the 1980-81 season. Lubbock County youths placed four out of six barrows in the show with two of those going into the auction.

Miss Winter's heavyweight Crossbred barrow weighed 244 pounds. The barrow was picked best of about 450 hogs by show judge Cecil Lewis of Rule. The animal was first of a class of 64 barrows and champion Crossbred, prior to being selected grand champion.

This is the first champion for Miss

Winter after exhibiting for six years. She is the daugther of Mr. and Mrs. Buddy Winter of Idalou.

Ralph Cisneros Jr., Lubbock County extension agent who accompanied the 4-H group to the show, said this year's hog show was the biggest in the history of the San Angelo Stock Show and Rodeo.

Other Lubbock County 4-H exhibi tors included Reagan Stuart, 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Stuart of Lubbock. He exhibited the eighth place lightweight Crossbred barrow.

Lyle Keeton, 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Keeton of Lubbock exhibited the ninth place lightweight Duroc barrow and Miss Winter also exhibited the third place mediumweight Hamp-

Cattle Futures Close Lower

By Reuters

CHICAGO - Cattle futures closed 25 to 150 points lower paced by April at the terminals are expected to total 6,700 daily limit with sellers over Wednesday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. April through December posted new season's lows. Sales totaled 21,511 cars.

Futures broke in late trade on general selling which touched off stop loss orders. Sources noted lack of follow through to early gains despite firmer cash beef and mostly higher slant to cash cattle. Limit declines in feeder cattle also stimulated liquidation.

Wholesale beef was up 1 at 92 to 93 cents a pound, f.o.b. river points. Cash cattle were up 75 to off 50 cents with the best top $61 per hundredweight at Omaha. Slaughter totaled 121,000 head. About 10.300 head are expected today at the major markets. Feeder cattle futures closed 120 to 150 lower paced by March thorugh August at the daily limit with sellers over. All contracts fell to new season's lows. Volume Futures slumped on late active commercial selling. Sources noted lack of buying and concern over live prices in the country. Some hedge selling was noted in front months early. Offset were declining interest rates and firmer cash far. Cash feeders were off $4 to up $1 a pound, f.o.b. river.

with the best top $88 per hundredweight at San Antonio. Receipts at the major head today.

Hog futures closed 10 to 132 lower paced by April on sales of 11,065 contracts Futures broke on commission house selling which quickly touched off stops as lack of support was uncovered on the scale down. Spillover selling from limit down cattle pits also lent pressure. Pit sources cited evening up ahead of Friday's quarterly pig crop report. Wholesale hams were unchanged to up one-half at 67 to 691/2 cents a pound, f.o.b. river. Cash hogs were up 25 cents to $1.50 with the best top $40.75 per hundredweight. Kill totaled 361,000 head. The major markets are expecting about 24,000 head today.

Pork belly (bacon) futures closed 92 to 165 lower paced by February on sales

Futures plunged on selling by locals and a wirehouse. A commission house with cash hog connections also sold after buying early. Spillover weakness from limit down cattle pits was also cited. Trade was nervous ahead of Friday's cold storage and pig crop report.

Deliveries total 577 thus far. Whole-There have been 146 deliveries thus sale bacon was up 1 to 3 at 34 to 38 cents

Airline Tickets Stolen By Use Of Credit Cards

AMARILLO (AP) - At least five stolen credit cards were used in Southwest Airlines ticket machines to buy $28,000 in airline tickets, which then were resold at reduced prices, officials of the airline

"This has gotten so bad ... we may have to discontinue the use of the auto-mated machines," said A.W. Donelson, Southwest Airlines manager in Amarillo. Since December, at least five stolen credit cards have been used in the airline's automated ticket sellers in Amarillo, Dallas, Houston, Austin, San Antonio and Corpus Christi, Donelson said.

Donelson said an Amarillo man was questioned Saturday by airline officials and security officers after his ticket to Houston was confiscated in a routine check of the machine-sold ticket.

'He is a prominent man whose name is known to everyone in Amarillo," Do-nelson said. "He gave several different versions of how he obtained the ticket.

No charges have been filed.

Donelson said the airline has verified that two Mastercards, two Diners Club cards and a Visa card - all reported as stolen - have been used.

The airline is now requiring all passengers traveling on tickets obtained from the automated machines to show their credit cards to gate personnel.

"Signs have been posted on the machines," Donelson said.

"If we find a ticket that has been obtained with one of the stolen credit cards, the ticket is confiscated and the holder is out the money he paid for it," Donelson said.

He said Southwest Airlines is the only carrier in the southwest that offers ticket machine sales.

Donelson said the total loss figure "is much higher" than the $28,000 in actual ticket sales. The FBI probably will be called in, he added, because stolen credit

Bad Luck Lava Rock Returned To Hawaii

EL PASO (AP) - Nixon Morris, while vacationing in Hawaii, was warned by a tour guide not to take any rocks from the Mauna Loa volcaho.

"He said if we took a piece of lava the goddess Pele would put a curse on us.

Right away I got the idea I had to have a piece of that lava," said Morris, 59, who said he was not a superstitious man.

Now he's just hoping that if he mails the rock back to Hawaii his life will

"I just got nine days to go before they take this cast off my leg," said Morris, a hardwood dealer who said he had always led a quiet life until he took the black rock home with him two years ago. That's when all the trouble started.

Morris fell off his roof, lightning struck an antenna and ruined several appliances in his house, and his wife got sick with a mysterious infection that left her

Then a burglar broke into their house and Morris fought with the intruder and suffered a broken hip and thigh, the family's cat was sleeping under the hood of Mrs. Morris' car when she started the engine and stripped one side of the pet bald, and Morris' granddaughter fell and broke her arm in two places just last Thursday. "That was really the last straw," Morris said Tuesday.

He said he had broken the rock in two when he returned home from his Hawaiian vacation and had given a piece to a friend as a souvenir. But it brought his friend a streak of rotten luck too, Morris said.

"He brought the rock back to me after he wrecked four cars in less than two years, and he'd never before had a wreck in his life," Morris said.

Miss Hill's "Closeup" unit has not, in

By TOM JORY
NEW YORK (AP) — Pamela Hill took charge of ABC News' "Closeup" unit just over three years ago, and since then has helped puncture a couple of old myths about TV documentaries. Nota-

•That they had to be narrated, perhaps even anchored, by a correspondent who would appear on screen several times to convey information not particu-larly adaptable to film. "Youth Terror: View from Behind the Gun," was broadcast June 28, 1978, without narration.

•That dramatization, with actors playing real people in history-making, or at least socially significant, events — the so-called docudrama, was not acceptable network news fare.

'Invasion," a British-made documentary on the 1968 Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia, broadcast Jan. 1, 1981, used actors to portray leading characters in the international confrontation.

In addition, Miss Hill took an intriguing step away from convention last fall hiring Marshall Frady, the wellknown author and journalist - and a man with no television experience - as a "Closeup" correspondent. Frady's first documentary for ABC, "The Apocalypse Game" on the nuclear weapons race, was broadcast Oct. 17.

Frady's second "Closeup," "Soldiers of the Twilight" on mercenaries and their motivations, will be broadcast 9-10 p.m. CST tonight.

"I'm not sure how much is possible within the network documentary form as it now exists." says Miss Hill, who is vice president and executive producer of ABC News Television Documentaries. "I do know I'm always looking for new ideas. I just got back from England and France, where I was looking at things they are doing that we are not.

"I think one of the areas we have not really touched on is the artist's insight and I think here of the work of some of the European directors," Miss Hill says. For example, I'd love to bring Alain Resnais from France to do a piece on the South Bronx, though I've never spoken to him about it. You would get a very singular point of view of that very troubled

Resnais directed the film "Mon Oncle d'Amerique," now being shown in this

"And I think we haven't done much, really, with non-fiction storytelling." Miss Hill says. "I'd like to use real people in real situations in a sort of shortstory form. We're looking now at a film from Houston on the shooting of a policeman that uses the actual people. It's fas-cinating, almost as if it had been cast, but it was not."

'Youth Terror" sparked controversy

Gottlieb has announced that the Citizens Committee for the Right to Keep and Bear Arms will resume scheduling of its half-hour television documentary on gun control which will be aired in Lubbock on television station KAMC, Channel 28, at 7:30 p.m. today.

Featured on the program are: James Drury, "The Virginian," nationally known television and movie screen actor: U.S. Sen. James McClure (R-ID), U.S. Rep. Mickey Edwards (R-OK); Alan Gottlieb, Chairman of the Citizens Committee for the Right to Keep and Bear Arms: Jeffrey D. Kane, Vice-President of the Second Amendment Foundation; and Detective Jeannie Bray, a Columbus, Ohio, policewoman.

Gottlieb said the program is "a response to back-door attempts and the

Film Director Expert Budget Cutter

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Movie studios afflicted by obese budgets might consider sending their young film makers to MGM's Stage 11 for lessons from Prof.

At 74, Wilder is directing old pals Jack Lemmon and Walter Matthau in "Buddy, Buddy." No "Heaven's Gate" is this. After returning from a complicated location in Riverside, Calif., Wilder's film is two days ahead of schedule and moving along smartly. "The guy is amaz-ing," says his admiring producer, Jay Weston. "He prints only one take, and usually it's the first one."

Nothing unusual, says Wilder.
"I've always worked this way — except with Monroe," he adds.
He referred to the historic "Some

Like It Hot," which many experts consider the best performance by Marilyn Monroe. The director recalled a simple scene in which she had merely to knock on a door, announce herself and enter, I had to do 87 takes," Wilder recalled. "In the middle of them I stopped ything and took Marilyn aside and 'Now I don't want you to get wor-And she said, 'Oh, I'm not wor-

A good part of Wilder's swift filming is preparation. He knows what he wants, since he is co-author of the script — with I.A.L. Diamond, his collaborator for 24 ars. Not that Wilder considers the script as gospel, as did the late Alfred Hitchcock. Diamond remains on the set at all times, and he and Wilder change nes when necessary.

Wilder's instructions are usually lanic, and he doesn't overwork the ac-

"Too many prints only confuse the utter," he remarked. He chuckled over the legend about George Cukor, a meticulous craftsman who likes to print a number of takes so he can select the one he prefers. Once his assistant printed the

"Buddy, Buddy" is Lemmon's sev-enth film with Wilder-Diamond, his third with W-D and Mathau (others: "The Fortune Cookie," "The Front Page").

"It's a dream," said Lemmon, drying out in his dressing room after a fullyclothed shower scene. "Not only do Walter and I know what each of us is going to do. We also had the advantage of three days of rehearsal, something Billy hasn't done before. This movie is like 'The Odd Couple,' with much of it scenes between Walter and me.

The film casts Lemmon as a discarded husband trailing his wife (Paula Prentiss) to the sanitarium of a sex therapist (Klaus Kinski). Matthau plays a Mafia hit man. Says Lemmon: "The best script I've read since 'Some Like It Hot'

The rule on advancing fumbles was modified in relation to snaps on field goal, extra point and punt attempts and also on shotgun formations. If the ball is fumbled on such plays, a player may pick up the ball and attempt to advance it.

Previously, in all cases, only the player originally handling the ball could recover a fumble and advance the ball.

Also passed was a rule where a passer intentionally grounding the ball will give the defense two options instead of just the 10-yard penalty and loss of down cur-rently in the book.

The owners approved a resolution against chop blocking by interior linemen, a rule already in effect for the ends.

Coaches will agree not to coach the chop block. If a official notes an infraction, it will be a 15-yard unsportsmanlike conduct penalty. The block is one where a player goes after the knee of one al-ready engaged by another.

The new move was made in a further effort to prevent knee injuries, and provides the commissioner be notified of any such infraction noted in films which was not called by the officials. There was a clarification on protection given pass receivers who can be bumped only once and within five yards of the line of scrimmage. The clarifica-tion is that the rule will not be effective if the quarterback does not stay in the pocket and rolls out.

The owners voted to retain the present rule concerning onside kicks.

If one goes out of bounds, the kicking team gets to kick over from five yards further back.

The defeated proposal would have given the receiving team the option of taking the ball at the point it went out of

The rule gives the offensive team the ball at the point of infraction.

Also kept in the books was the rule that the offensive line cannot move for one second before the ball is snapped. Defeated proposals were for either no delay or one of two seconds.

The committee made about 30 suggestions of rule changes altogether, but no action was taken Wednesday on a proposal to move Super Bowl semifinals to warm-weather cities to avoid the chances of ice and snow marring a playoff game, such as the Oakland-Cleveland AFC championship last season.

Other members of the committee are Don Shula of Miami, Paul Brown of Cincinnati and Eddie LeBaron of Atlanta.

Cool Chaps Take Triple-Header

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
It was too cold for comfort Wednesday at Chaparral Stadium, and it may have been a bit too close for comfort for the Lubbock Christian College baseball

The Chaparrals, though, survived icy winds and the William Jewell (Mo.) Cardinals for a sweep of a triple-header, 7-4, 7-5 and 11-9. LCC, after a horribly slow start, now has stretched its winning streak to nine games in addition to raising its record to 18-14.

Those final figures were sufficient to raise the temperature of LCC coach Larry Hays, icy winds or no icy winds. "The cold bothered both teams," he said. "It wasn't very comfortable.

Lubbock High pounded out 12 hits and took advantage of seven errors to dump Estacado 13-3 Wednesday to gain a split in their double-header and hand the Mats their first loss of the season.

The Westerner rout came on the heels of a 10-2 Matador trouncing in the first game of the re-scheduled twinbill at the Estacado field. The Mats are now 6-1 for the season while the Westerners improved to 2-4.

Carlos Hernandez singled to open the inning for Lubbock High and went to second on the first of three consecutive Mat errors. Bryant Hurls Tech To 4-3 Win

EDINBURG (Special) — Texas Tech squandered six innings of no-hit pitching by Robert Bryant only to come from behind in the bottom of the seventh and take a 4-3 victory over Kansas Wednesay in the Pan American Tournament.

Texas Tech meets Pan American again today at 4:30 p.m. with lefty Kyle Fahrenthold (4-1) on the mound and concludes the tourney Friday with an 11 a.m. contest with Kansas. The team with the best record after playing each other squad three times will win the week-long affair.

Leading 2-0 in the top of the seventh-inning of the first game with Bryant cooking along with his no-hitter, Kansas first baseman Brian Gray drew a one-out walk. Pinch-hitter Kent Shelley broke up the no-hitter with a single and, as Tech's Bobby Kohler mishandled the ball in left field, Gray scored.

Shelley was lifted for pinch-runner Matt Gibson. Another Tech error by An-dy Dawson got Jim Heeney on base and left runners on the corners.

But that's when the Raiders railied. John Grimes grabbed a leadoff single. Steve Roper, a pinch-runner, stole second base and scored when Jeff Harp's single down the third-base line was mishandled.

With Harp on third after the single and two-base error by Hineman, Kanasa intentionally walked Andy Dawson and Pat Moore to load the bases. But when starter Duke Lohr threw two more balls to Gene Segrest, the Jayhawks went for a new pitcher. But Segrest greeted Randy includes with a base hit to center field, secretally the winning run.

Trevino Heads Strong TPC Field

PONTE VEDRA BEACH, Fla. (AP) - Lee Trevino generally is regarded as one of the most proficient, accurate strikers of the ball golf has ever produced.

Two U.S. Open, a PGA and two British Open titles attest to his ability tomaster the game's more severe tests. And it was that ability that brought him the 1980 Tournament Players Championship, a title he will defend this week on the links of Sawgrass.

The man who wins here." Trevino said after a practice round for the $440,-000 event that offers $72,000 to the winner, "must have a well-rounded game. Nothing else will do. You can't win without it.

"The first time I saw the course I didn't like it all that much. Now, I realize. it's my kind of course. It not only requires good putting, it also takes very accurate driving and good iron shots. You have to know how to hit different types of shots with the wind blowing the way it

"It favors the player with the most shots. You have to work the ball left to right, or right to left. You have to hit high shots and low shots. And most of all you have to hit the driver. It's an extremely tight course.

The demands of the course and the quality of the field last year produced one of the more exciting finishes season, with Trevino, Gary Player, Seve Ballesteros, Hale Irwin, Ben Crenshaw, Jack Nicklaus and John Mahaffey all in the chase over the last 18 holes for the title in the annual championship of golf's touring pros.

"On Saturday I played with Watson and Irwin and on Sunday I played with Nicklaus and Player," Trevino said. That's two of the more exciting days I've had in golf, playing with, competing against players of that stature.'

And the squat and swarthy Trevino faces the same quality in the 72-hole test that begins Thursday. The field is, quite simply, the best of the year, almost certainly the best that will be assembled for any tournament this season.

Only one of the leading money-winners is absent, veteran Don January. All the rest of golf's greats are on hand.

Chief among Trevino's challengers are, of course. Nicklaus and Watson, each seeking his first victory of the year.

Nicklaus, who won the U.S. Open and PGA last season in one of golf's great comebacks, is a 3-time winner of this event that is growing annually in stature

Magazine Hits WBA Ratings System, Execs

NEW YORK (AP) - Sports Illustrated, which in its March 16 issue exposed the World Boxing Council for its questionable ratings system, accuses the World Boxing Association in its March 23 issue of "blatantly sanctioning ridiculous title fights while clogging the ratings with fighters who are ranked far higher than they should be."

The WBC has produced "some of the most dubious boxer ratings and bizzare mismatches in the history of the sport," the magazine said last week. But in the story in this week's issue, also written by Pat Putnam, the magazine maintains: "The World Boxing Council at least attempts a facade of respectabiltiy. Snug in their safe Panamanian haven, the WBA powers care not." The WBA is called "a fraternal club for Latin Americans, with its base of power in Panama. A few auxilaries have been granted conditional licenses in South Africa and the Orient, but for only as long as South Africans continue their unanswering support and the Far East provides a steady cash flow. Complainers are banished to the rear of the line, just behind the U.S. However, it should be noted that half of the WBA's 14 champions are Americans. One of them, middleweight Marvin Hagler, also is recognized by the WBC and is the only universally recognized champion in the sport. "With the exception of the two years (1978-79) when Mandry Galindez of Venezuela was president," Putnam writes, since 1975 the WBA has been in the tentacular grasp of Dr. Elias Cordova and Rodrigo Sanchaz, Panamanians who maintain iron control of the only execuctive posts that matter: the presidencey and the ratings committee chairmanship.

Everything else is a rubber stamp." One example of WBA ratings used by the magazine is that of junior middleweight champion Ayube Kalule, an Ugandan living in Denmark, who didn't get a shot at the title he now holds until 23 months after he became the No.1 con-

Another example of favoritism given by the magazine is in the case of former junior lightweight champion Sammy Serrano of Puerto Rico. Putnam writes that Serrano made just three mandatory defenses in 42 months even though WBA rules demand a champion defend against the top contender every six months.

Zimmer Planning To Start Darwin

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) - Texas Ranger Manager Don Zimmer insists it doesn't matter whether Jim Kern can overcome his shoulder and neck problems - Danny Darwin will be his starting pitcher in 1981. "He's going to start and that's it," Zimmer said.

Zimmer denied that Darwin's pitching performance in the Rangers' 2-0 loss to Los Angeles Dodgers Tuesday - striking out seven batters in four innings - clinched the job for the righthander. Earlier in spring training, the manager had said Darwin's status as a starter or reliever would be determined by Kern's comeback attempt

And Watson, golf's Player of the Year for the past four seasons, also has an ex-cellent record here, finishing second and third in his last two starts.

Tom Kite and Ray Floyd, winners of the last two tour stops in Inverrary and Doral, obviously have their games at a peak and are gunning for a big, extra bonus prize put up by the sponsors of the TPC, Inverrary and Doral. A victory here would be worth an additional $250,000 to Floyd as the winner of two in a row, and $100,000 to Kite as the winner of two non-consecutive events in the 3-tournament series.

The other 1981 title holders in the field include Johnny Miller and Bruce Lietzke, each a 2-time this year, Irwin, David Graham, Andy Bean and John

Arnold Palmer, Crenshaw, Jerry Pate, Mahaffey, Lanny Wadkins, Lon Hinkle, Tom Weiskopf, Arnold Palmer, Player and Ballesteros, the current Masters

That '69 team was the most exciting

Joe's was taking the play away from De-Paul and that the Blue Demons were doing nothing to counter these tactics. These breaks take nothing away from the college game. Rather, as the commercial used to say, it's the pause that Pauses provide time to think about strategy - what St. Joe's was doing to dictate the pace of the game, what De-Paul should have been doing to break loose. This thought process adds to the enjoyment of the college game and more than makes up for the occasional lack of fast-paced action caused in part by the absence of a shot clock and the widespread use of zone defenses.

The ideal would be the skills and thrills of the NBA, at a pace that permits occasional reflection and speculation about strategy. Maybe this can be achieved by legalizing the zone defense and liberalizing the shot clock to 30, 45 or even 60 seconds. Or maybe these changes would take too much away from the speed and excitement of the pro game.

Rules and Competitions Committee to think about before their summer meetlar season in a decade with a 15-11 re-New Nets' Coach Brown Plans To 'Continue Teaching' Players

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) -

Larry Brown was formally introduced

Wednesday as the New Jersey Nets' next coach, ending months of speculation over major reshuffling of the club's organizational structure. Brown, who resigned this week from UCLA to take the Nets' helm, called his National Basketball Association assignment "a dream come true." The 40-yearold coach cited the opportunity to utilize his knack for molding young players and to play in the new Meadowlands Arena.

Also whetting Brown's appetite is a hefty salary increase. He jumps from UCLA's $40,000 paycheck to a four-year $200,000-a-year package plus incentive bonuses.

At a morning news conference, Brown immediately introduced Bill Blair, who recently resigned as head coach at Colorado, as his No. 1 assistant. He mentioned Kevin O'Connor, his UCLA assistant coach, and Don Walsh, an old college buddy and former Denver associate, as candidates for the other Nets assistant coaching job.

The Nets current coach, Bob MacKinnon, will finish out the season before taking over as general manager, bumping GM Charlie Theokas into the newly created post of executive vice president for business affairs. Assistant coach Phil Jackson will be out of a job. In his first public statement on the ap pointment, Brown emphasized his reputation as a teacher, an ability the Nets will need with six rookies and three firstround draft choices coming up.

"It was very difficult for me to leave the kids at UCLA. I'll never forget the experience there. But this is a dream come true for me," he said.

"They (the Nets) have a lot of good, ng players, and the fact that we have a lot of draft choices in the future will be a positive thing. With the young kids here I'm going to continue to teach," Brown said shortly before taking a tour of the Meadowlands Arena, which is scheduled to open June 15.

Brown said his rocky tenure with the NBA's Denver Nuggets had not soured him on pro ball.

"I was disenchanted with my situation in Denver, but now, after two years away from it, I'm ready to step forward. resigned from Denver because I didn't think I was doing the kind of job I wanted to do. Management and I weren't going in the same direction.

"I was suffering. Yet, I think I'm fairly stable, and I don't think UCLA would have called me if I were a raving maniac," he said, referring to reports that he was on the verge of a nervous breakdown when he left Denver two years ago.

Brown said that despite his difficulties at UCLA, he might have stayed on had the Nets not asked him to take over at the end of this NBA season.

"My kids were upset by my leaving, but they cared for myself and my wife," "I've heard from a lot of pro teams in the last year, but this is a special opportunity for me. They (the Nets) have a lot of young people and this gives me a chance to come back home. My wife and I are both comfortable in this area," the Long Beach, N.Y., native said.

'He's a teacher and that's what we need for our young kids and future players," said Nets board chairman Alan Cohen. "And he's a motivator, which is what we need for out older players."

Brown predicted he will be able to cope with the pressure of building the Nets, who led only the expansion Dallas Mavericks in the NBA with a 23-52 record before Wednesday's contest with

"I would want to be a winner right away," Brown said. "But I don't think people expect a change overnight. I've got to look and get some realistic goals."

Nets president Joe Taub said, "I don't want any pressure on the coach. I'd be very pleased just to have a playoff contender next year, but I'd certainly be disappointed if we only won 25 games.

Brown will be at the Rutgers Athletic Center to watch the Nets during Friday's contest against Atlanta. He will officially assume his duties at the end of the season, but he already has been consulted for key decisions, particularly last week's acquisition of veteran Bob McAdoo. Brown reached an agreement with the Nets more than a month ago, but an announcement was delayed until the end of the UCLA season, which concluded last Satyurday with an embarrassing 78-55 NCAA playoff loss to BYU. The Bruins finished with a 20-7 record.

He had a 251-134 record in five years. with the Nuggets before quitting Feb. 1. 1979. He was hired by UCLA the following year, and coached the Bruins to a second-place finish in the NCAA tournament and a 22-10 record in his first sea-

EVANSVILLE COACH QUITS EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) - Wayne Boultinghouse, head basketball coach and athletic director at Indiana State University-Evansville, says he will resign both positions effective June 30. Boultinghouse, 38, who led this year's Screaming Eagles to a 21-8 record, said he wants to seek a position that allows him more time to concentrate on coaching.

MoegleReflects On MHS Career

Lowrey Field. A win in either game will call for a celebration of history. And the end is not in sight.

"I don't know when it's going to stop," said Moegle in a recent interview. "I guess 600 is next. But what I see coming up is going to be tough.

"Because, to be truthful, you've got to have the kids," added Moegle. "It doesn't matter who the coach is. And we've been fortunate in that we've had ome good kids at Monterey."

some good kids at Monterey."

Of course, it also helps to have a coach of Moegle's stature. His record over the last 21 years borders on incredible. Consider these figures:

• 18 district championships in 21 years and only once (in 1986) were the Plainsmen beaten outright. The other two times (1976 and '80) Monterey tied for the title and was defeated in the playoffs.

• 14 bi-district titles; seven regional crowns, five quarterfinal victories; seven state tournament appearances and two state crowns, in 1972 and '74.

• Moegle was named the High School Baseball Coach of the Year in Texas and National High School Coach of the Year as selected by the American Association of College Baseball Coaches following the 1972 season. In '74 he again grabbed the Texas bonors.

No less than 52 of Moegle's Monterey players have earned college scholarships and II have signed pro contracts.

And they just keep winning.

"When I came here," recalls Moegle, "I inherited an excellent bunch of kids. They weren't seed to work but they were willing to sacrifice. And I did "They'd always had great talent here, but they'd never won. They didn't Moegle wasn't afraid to show his Plainsmen that winning was a direct result work. A 26-year-old bachelor fresh out of the St. Louis Cardinals minor league system when he took the MHS job, Moegle's early teams worked five or six hours a day.

Nowadays, practices are a more humane two-to three-hour workout.

"Well, I don't work 'em like I used to," admits Moegle, "but I don't think it's because I've mellowed. It's just that with all the new devices like pitching machines you can get a lot more accomplished than you used to.

"Plus, I've got my baseball school now and we've had most of these kids since they were eight years old. By the time they get in high school, they've got a lot of background. I've had 'em since they were little toots."

Ah yes, The Bobby Moegle Baseball School. For 14 years, youngsters from all over West Texas have attended Moegle's month-long school during June. Although long since married and the father of two children, baseball is still the dominant force in Moegle's life. ninant force in Moegle's life.

Moegle came to Monterey on the recommendation of University of Texas assistant coach Buddy Gilstrap after a couple of years of minor league ball that followed two years in the service and four years at college

"The good thing about my playing pro ball was that I already had a college degree and I was ready to go somewhere and do something," Moegle explained. "We were playing over in Raleigh (North Carolina) when Buddy called me and said there were two jobs open in West Texas. One was at Monterey and the other was at Odessa Permia

"He said I ought to try the Lubbock job first."

Ironically, Moegle, originally from East Texas, stands a good chance to pick up win No. 600 against the very school he nearly took a job with.

"I've never regretted any aspects of this job or my stay at Monterey," said Moegle. "I can't say I'll never leave here but it would take a very special situation for me to go. My wife's a Lubbock girl and this is home now.

"You know, a lot of places can run me off in a hurry, but in 22 years I've never had a bad experience here.

The interview nearly concluded, Moegle reflects fondly on his 22-year stay in "You know, I met an old preacher — it's been several years now — and he told me the nice thing about Lubbock is that it gives a young man a chance to

And Bobby Moegle has progressed to the point where the 600th win is just

Hypnosis May Aid TCU Blazes Probe

FORT WORTH (AP) - Arson investigators hope hypnosis will help witnesses give more detailed descriptions of suspicious people reported at the scene of two recent fires in the Texas Christian University area, officials say.

Witnesses give similar descriptions of 'two or three' college-age men who were spotted at last week's fires at the University Christian Church and University Baptist Church, said Fort Worth deputy chief Don Peacock. If they consent, the witnesses would be put under hypnosis by an instructor at the Regional Police Academy in Arlington, Peacock said. After the hypnosis, they would be shown photographs of some suspects, he said. "It's very effective," Peacock said.

'It certainly works best in crimes of violence where the witnesses actually saw the event and know what happened. It's a matter of getting all the details out.

The five fires have caused up to $1 million in damages, officials estimated.

INCREASE IN RAPES

DALLAS (AP) - The number of rapes reported in Dallas in February showed a 41 percent increase over the same month a year ago, but overall serious crime showed the smallest monthly increase in major crime since March 1980, according to police. Dallas leads the nation in the number of reported rapes, officials said
