Former Tech Student Held

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan was wounded in the chest, Monday, by a gunman who tried to assassinate him with a burst of .22-caliber bullets from a "Saturday night special." White House press secretary James S. Brady was critically injured in the blaze of gunfire.

Reagan "sailed through surgery" according to doctors, who said he'd be ready to make presidential decisions by Tuesday.

But Brady was said to be fighting for his life, a bullet through his brain.

Dr. Dennis O'Leary said "a really mangled bullet" was removed from Reagan's left lung. He said the president's condition was stable, the prognosis excellent, and that the president would probably be hospitalized for about two weeks.

"Honey, I forgot to duck," Reagan told his wife as he was wheeled into surgery. Then he told the doctors he hoped they were Republicans.

Secret Service Agent, Policeman Wounded

A Secret Service agent and a policeman also were wounded in the mid-afternoon incident outside a Washington hotel where Reagan had just addressed a union convention. They were reported in serious condition but apparently not in danger.

A youthful, sandy-haired gunman from suburban Denver, a former Texas Tech University student, was wrestled into handcuffs and arrested moments after he leveled his pistol at the president and fired from near point-blank range. The Secret Service identified him as John Warnock Hinckley, 25, of Evergreen, Colo.

There was no known motive, no explanation for the savage burst of gunfire that exploded as the president stood beside his limousine, ready to step inside for the one-mile ride back to the White House.

Roger Young of the FBI described the weapon as a "Saturday night special" and said it was purchased at a Dallas gun shop.

Hinckley was booked on charges of attempted assassination of a president, and of assault with intent to kill a police officer. He was in custody, Monday night, awaiting arraignment.

Hinckley was arrested last Oct. 9 at the Nashville airport for carrying handguns. The FBI said he was carrying three weapons that day — while then-President Carter was making a campaign appearance in the city.

Monday's shooting occurred suddenly on an overcast Washington afternoon.

One of Monday's eyewitnesses said the assailant, standing ten feet from the president, "just opened up and continued squeezing the trigger."

At 1:25 p.m., CST, six shots rang out, one hitting Reagan in the left chest, others felling Brady, a Secret Service agent and a policeman. Secret Service agents and police seized Hinckley — tossing him to the ground outside the Washington Hilton and pinning him to a wall.

Anxious hours later, Reagan was pronounced in good and stable condition.

Two and a half hours after emerging from surgery, Reagan joked with doctors in the recovery room, according to a White House statement.

(Additional Assassination Attempt Stories, Pages 3-14-16, Sec. A)

"Despite the tubes in his mouth, he (Reagan) gave them a note that said, 'All in all, I'd rather be in Philadelphia.'"

At the White House, Vice President George Bush said, "I can reassure this nation and a watching world that the American government is functioning fully and effectively. We've had full and complete communication throughout the day."

O'Leary described Reagan as "clear of head" and said he "should be able to make decisions by tomorrow, certainly."

"We do not believe there is any permanent injury," he added.

O'Leary served as spokesman for two Secret Service agents.

Suspect 'Loner' At Tech

By The Avalanche-Journal Staff
TWICE. DID John Warnock Hinckley Jr. — sporadic Texas Tech student, loner, apparently friendless — break his veil of taciturnity

The first incident, apparently only a few weeks after he left Tech last summer, landed him in a Nashville, Tenn., jail on a weapons-carrying charge. President Jimmy Carter was in town that day.

The second burst into national notoriety came Monday when he was pinned against the wall of a Washington, D.C., hotel and hours later charged with shooting President Ronald Reagan and three other persons.

A check of records on weapons sales indicates that only four days after the Nashville incident Hinckley purchased a pair of revolvers in Dallas. The weapons were of the same type police said they took from the suspect Monday in Washington.

Ex-Dallas Resident

When Hinckley, now 25, entered Texas Tech University in 1973, he was a slim, smiling young man fresh from graduation at affluent Highland Park High School — a classy school in one of the wealthiest neighborhoods in the Dallas area.

Monday, the blue-eyed blond was being held by the Federal Bureau of Investigation for the attempted assassination of President Reagan.

The club records, mementos and clippings that normally mark a student's passage through a university are nonexistent in the case of Hinckley.

Official university transcripts and records were taken from Texas Tech administrators almost by the time President Reagan and the other victims reached a Washington hospital Monday.

The few persons in Lubbock who have known Hinckley say they are shocked.

Recalled As "Low Key"

"He kept to himself," says Beverly McBeath of 3807 47th St. in Lubbock. She attended junior and senior high school with Hinckley in Highland Park. "Most people who went to high school with him probably wouldn't remember him because he was so low-key."

Mrs. McBeath says Hinckley had few close friends "if any." She remembers him as a quiet "B-average" student. "He was quiet and reserved."

Although a member in high school of the Government Club, Rodeo Club and now-defunct Spanish Club, Hinckley was apparently not a "joiner" in his sporadic college days.

He first entered Texas Tech in 1973, as a business administration major. He later switched to an arts and sciences major and attended Tech as late as the first summer session of 1980, without obtaining a degree, university officials say.

A photograph of Hinckley in the 1974 La Ventana, Tech's yearbook, lists no club memberships at the university.

Picture Jolts Memory
Dr. Bill Freeman, a Tech faculty member and sponsor of the rodeo activities, said that when he saw television photos of Hinckley, it jolted a memory.

"That boy looks familiar to me," Freeman said, although he could not remember why. "He looks familiar but whether he was in rodeo, I can't say."

Kevin Crowley, manager of the Westmaire Apartments at 2404 10th St., says he too recognized the photos of Hinckley. Before Crowley became apartment manager, he was a tenant in apartment 202 of the complex. Hinckley lived in apartment 208.

Although Crowley saw Hinckley several times going to the apartment complex pool and on other routine trips, he didn't know him well.

But he did note, after seeing current pictures of Hinckley, "He doesn't look like he used to."

Terry Hetzel, another former Lubbock neighbor of Hinckley, says she has talked to several others who lived in the apartment complex then and "none of us can remember a thing about him." She

Shots, Then 'Terrible Melee' At Hotel Door

By WALTER RODGERS
WASHINGTON (AP) — Whoever fired the shots at President Reagan was standing right beside me. The shots went off right in my ear. I saw flashes of light.

My first thought was it was firecrackers. Then I felt the concussion in my ear, the ringing in my ear and I knew it was gunshots.

One and one-half seconds later somebody screamed. It took one and a half seconds for people to realize what had happened.

There was a terrible melee and shouts of "Back up, back up, get back, get back."

Secret Service agents pushed the president into a crouching position and formed a protective circle around him. They pushed him into his limousine.

I couldn't see the president's face. Just then, agents charged straight at me. I was knocked to the ground along with the gunman.

I was pinned against a wall. It was several moments before I could wriggle free. I stood up just in time to see the president's car speed away from the hotel entrance.

Jim Brady was lying face down on the concrete. A pool of blood was forming around his head.

I could see nothing but a pile of bodies on top of the gunmen.

Everyone around me seemed to be shouting.

The shooting occurred a few feet from the Florida Avenue entrance to the Washington Hilton Hotel. The president had just spoken to the AFL-CIO Building Trades Council.

Several reporters went to the entrance early to get in position to try to ask the president for his reaction to the reports of a settlement between the Polish government and the Solidarity labor union.

I was taking a position right next to the door where the president would leave the hotel.

There was a fellow who matched the description of the gunman, short, long, light hair, who got pretty hostile when I tried to push him out of the way to get into position. He made disparaging remarks about the press always being in the way.

I can't remember exactly what he said, but he resented the fact that reporters and cameramen were given privileged positions along the rope that was holding everyone back from the side door the president would use.

I got into position and started my tape recorder as the president emerged from the hotel.

A couple of agents came out the door first. Then staff and more agents.

The president came out and started waving at the crowd. I was standing right against the wall of the hotel, not more than 10 or 12 feet from the president's right shoulder. The gunman was to my left.

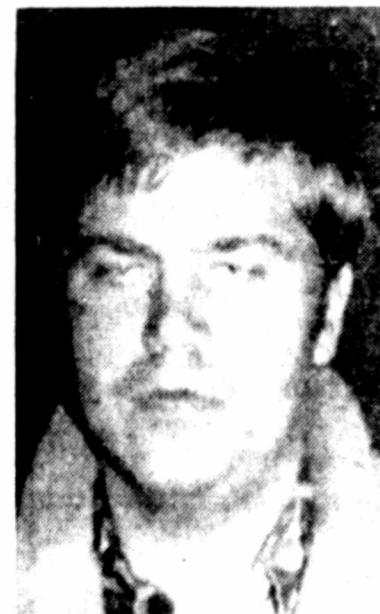

A reporter called out, "Mr. President, President Reagan."

The crowd was breaking into applause when the shots rang out.

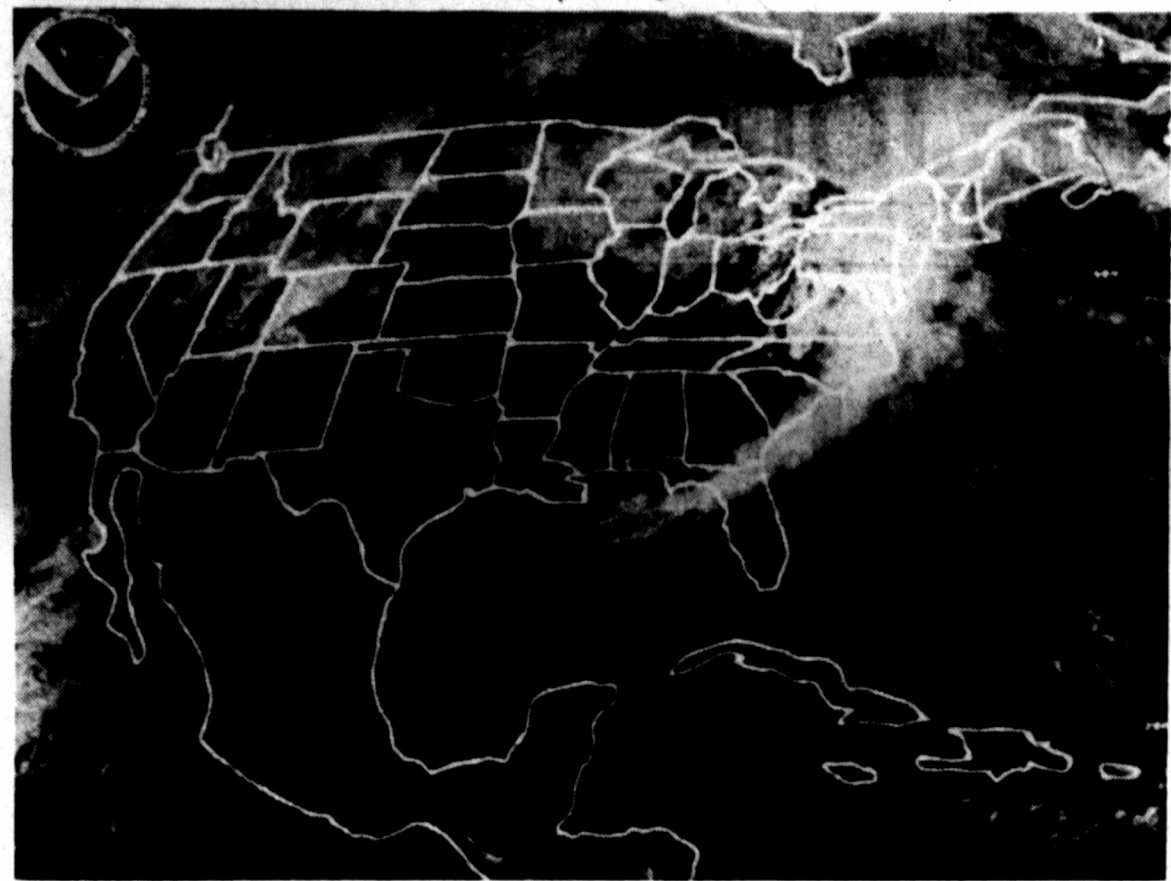

Later, I listened to my tape. Six shots were fired in two seconds.

More Wind Forecast For Today

The blowing dirt that covered the Lubbock area during the weekend may return again this afternoon, according to the National Weather Service.

The weather service issued a wind advisory on area lakes for today, with westerly to northwesterly winds anticipated at 15 to 25 mph and gusty.

Today may also bring somewhat cooler temperatures for the area. The high Monday was 82 degrees in Lubbock, with afternoon temperatures mostly in the low 80s. Today's high is forecast in the low 70s, with a low tonight in the mid 30s. The high Wednesday is expected to be in the upper 70s.

Aside from blowing dirt, the skies are expected to be partly cloudy today, becoming fair during tonight and on Wednesday.

Clear skies prevailed over Lubbock and most of the state Monday, although cloudy skies and fog were reported over the middle and upper Gulf Coast.

Dense fog is expected in coastal areas this morning; otherwise fair and windy weather is likely across the state.

The extended outlook for West Texas is partly cloudy skies Thursday through Saturday. A high in the 70s is expected on Thursday for the South Plains, while the high later in the week on the South Plains may reach only into the 50s. Low temperatures for the South Plains are expected to be in the 40s near the end of the week.

Cavazos Seeks Construction Funding

A-J Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — Texas Tech President Lauro Cavazos asked the House Committee on Appropriations Monday to fund the first phase of construction for the University's proposed expansion of its Health Science Facility in Odessa.

Cavazos said the City of Odessa has donated 6.2 acres of land and the university has secured approximately $350,000 outside of the state budget.

Cavazos made his third appearance before a legislative committee this year to explain the university's programs and asks for increase funding in certain areas.

He said he is pleased with the legislative recommendation that the Tech's School of Nursing receive state assistance.

There is a very high demand for this program in West Texas, he said. He also urged the committee to follow the recommendation.

Crosby County Jail Passes Inspection

CROSBYTON Special — Crosby County officials Monday received a certificate of compliance on the county's 45-year-old jail from Texas Commission on Jail Standards inspector Joe Slater.

Slater has inspected the Crosbyton facility for the past four years and noted that officials here have worked to modify the facility to meet minimum state standards.

The certificate of compliance was presented to county officials after Slater re-inspected the jail Monday.

According to Slater, the jail was built in 1936 and expanded in 1961. The two-story building was renovated in 1975 prior to the time the state jail standards were written, he added.

Because of the facility's age, Slater said some variances have been granted by the TCJS. But he noted that county officials "have done a lot of work" to improve the jail.

They've done a good job without costing the county an arm and a leg," Slater observed. He said Crosby County taxpayers should be proud of their public officials' achievement.

President Reported Well After Surgery

surgeons who operated on Reagan at George Washington University Hospital. They made a 6-inch incision to remove the bullet, which had penetrated about three inches into his left lung, missing his heart by several inches.

Reagan's lung collapsed, and the surgeons inserted two chest tubes to restore it.

They gave him blood transfusions, about 2 1/2 quarts in all, to replace the blood he lost.

The wounded president walked into the hospital, "alert and awake" if a bit lightheaded, O'Leary said. At 70, the doctor said, Reagan "is physiologically very young."

"He was never in any serious danger," O'Leary said.

But Brady was "in critical condition," the doctor said. He was shot in the side of the forehead, the bullet passing through his brain. "He obviously has significant brain injury and he is in critical condition," O'Leary reported.

Brain Damage Feared

He would not speculate on Brady's chances of recovery, but said that it is likely Brady, 40, will suffer permanent brain damage if he survives.

Lyn Nofziger, the Reagan aide who has assumed the role of principal press spokesman, told reporters later Monday night that the "prognosis is certainly better than it was earlier this afternoon."

Brady came out of surgery at 7:15 p.m., CST, and Dr. Arthur Koblitz told Nofziger his vital signs were stable. Nofziger quoted the doctor also as saying that Brady's pupillary reflexes were normal, an encouraging sign.

O'Leary and Nofziger both said President Reagan would be able to handle the decision-making duties of his job, Tuesday.

Nofziger said there was no consideration of turning the duties of the office over to Bush under the constitutional provision for presidential disability.

"The president will be fully capable of making decisions tomorrow, according to the doctors," Nofziger said. "In the meantime the business of government is going on normally and we expect it will continue to."

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said plans for Tuesday were "basically to continue the schedule the president has planned" with Vice President Bush filling in for Reagan.

Cabinet Meeting

The schedule included a Cabinet meeting, a session with congressional leaders and a working lunch with the prime minister of the Netherlands.

Asked if the president has turned over authority to the vice president, Speakes replied "There has been no cause for that to happen."

Dr. Benjamin Aaron and Dr. Joseph Giordano, both of the George Washington University School of Medicine, operated on Reagan.

O'Leary said Reagan might be hospitalized for as long as two weeks, but called that only a guess.

While Reagan was in the operating room, his aides made a point of emphasizing the banter with which he went to surgery, as reassuring evidence that he hadn't been grievously wounded.

He winked, according to Nofziger, then saw three top staff members and said, "Who's minding the store?"

"And when he got into the operating room, he looked at the doctors and he said 'Please tell me you're Republicans.'" According to O'Leary, the surgeons told him "today everyone is a Republican."

While the operation progressed, the doctors gave Mrs. Reagan a preliminary report that matched their final prognosis: stable and good.

Recovery Said "Certain"

At about the same hour, Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. said he was told that Reagan's "recovery is considered to be certain."

Baker told the Senate his information came from Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., a close friend of the president, who was at the hospital with Mrs. Reagan.

All afternoon, the message was the same: reassurance that the president would recover, repeated statements that the government was functioning despite the attempted assassination.

The gunman leveled his pistol at Reagan amid a crowd of newsmen and bystanders as the president left the hotel after addressing the AFL-CIO Building Trades Council.

The shots also felled Secret Service agent Timothy J. McCarthy, 31, and policeman Thomas Delahanty, 45. A Secret Service spokesman said McCarthy was in "stable condition on the plus side." He was shot in the chest. Delahanty was wounded at the base of his neck. He was reported in serious condition.

At the time, Bush was flying to Austin. His plane turned back after refueling in Austin, landing outside Washington at dusk. Bush was flown to the city aboard a helicopter under extraordinary security precautions.

Suspect Little Known

Little was known about the man charged with the Reagan attempt. Hinckley is a son of John W. Hinckley Sr., president of an oil and gas exploration company in Denver. A former high school classmate said Hinckley was unexceptional and "just sort of blended into the crowd."

At first, the White House said Reagan had not been hit, and that he had gone to the hospital because of Brady's injury. But about an hour after the shooting, Nofziger said Reagan had indeed suffered a chest wound.

Nofziger said Monday night that the first report was erroneous because Reagan's own aides didn't realize he had been wounded.

The assassination attempt transformed a routine presidential motorcade into a scene of chaos. Reagan was a few steps away from his limousine when the gunman struck. Two of the shots hit the presidential automobile, one slamming into the door, one bursting a hole in a rear window before Reagan entered the car.

As the shots exploded, Secret Service agents grabbed Reagan and rushed him into his limousine, which sped from the scene.

'Total Shock' Reaction Here Follows Shooting

Public officials in Lubbock found it difficult to speak of their reactions Monday after learning of the assassination attempt on President Reagan.

A few area residents said they "half-expected it."

But uniformly, the underlying emotion was anger.

"My reaction is, I just don't know," a stunned Sheriff Sonny Keesee said. "I couldn't believe it when I heard about it."

"I'm very concerned about the morality of our country and what it's come to at this point," the sheriff observed.

Lubbock County Republican Party chairman Ruth Schiermeyer also expressed "total shock" about the shooting incident, which injured Reagan and three others as they walked from a Washington, D.C. hotel early Monday afternoon.

"My main concern is that any kook off the street can just walk up within 10 feet of the president or the vice president," Mrs. Schiermeyer said.

Dominates Conversations

Talk of the assassination attempt dominated conversations in local offices and public buildings during the afternoon, as workers and shoppers gathered around radios and televisions to hear updates on the incident.

"I've been afraid there might be such a thing," said a 66-year-old Denver City resident who asked not to be identified. "There's always the possibility of such a thing, especially when you have a new president who's trying to make some changes."

"It's my feeling that when they get as much information as they can from him (the assailant), they ought to hang him from the nearest lightpole," the man added.

"It Was Crazy"

A 23-year-old Plainview man, David Arteaga, said, "I think it was crazy." He's just been there three months, and they're already trying to kill him."

Several persons said they were reminded of the day in 1963 when President John F. Kennedy was gunned down while riding through the streets of Dallas.

Criminal District Attorney John T. Montford said he remembered "very clearly" the day Kennedy was shot. "I hope this doesn't stir another mania as we've had in times past," he said, referring to the numerous assassinations and attempts on public officials' lives in the past 20 years.

"It seems like an atmosphere of violence is unrelenting in the entire country," Montford said. "It sometimes makes you question some of the laws we have permitting the unlimited accessibility to handguns and other weapons."

Montford admitted he was having some problems putting his thoughts into words. But the district attorney said he sometimes wonders where the country is headed.

Keesee said he sees the need "for a turnaround at the grassroots level and at the family level." Unless there are some changes, Keesee said he fears the nation will "see more of these things."

Many local school children learned of the attempt on Reagan's life through announcements over school public address systems. Some schools also placed television sets in offices, teachers' lounges and some classrooms.

Coronado High School principal Max O'Banion said students were expressing "anger, shock and disbelief." He said teachers reported some students "acted like they were really mad" that the assassination attempt could have happened.

A similar reaction was noted by Dunbar-Struggs High School principal Roy Roberts. The Dunbar students learned of the shooting incident by word of mouth and "seemed to be really upset and kind of stunned coming out of the classrooms," Roberts noted.

According to one report, a counselor at one local junior high announced the attempt on Reagan's life on the public address system. The counselor then asked teachers and students to pause for a moment of prayer for the recovery of the injured.

Students Appear Concerned

At Monterey High School, school activities director Don Matticks said students appeared concerned. "They're just watching and waiting I guess," Matticks said.

Television sets in the University Center at Texas Tech also were tuned to live reports of the assassination attempt during the afternoon hours Monday.

However, one Tech coed overheard in a UC lounge appeared oblivious to the events going on in Washington. The young woman complained loudly about the news reports on the shootings, expressing her annoyance that the afternoon soap operas had been pre-empted by the news broadcasts.

Mayor Bill McAlister, acting on behalf of the citizens of Lubbock, sent a telegram to the families of all four victims of Monday's assassination attempt.

"The thoughts and prayers of the citizens of Lubbock, Texas, are with your family during these grave moments," said the message. "America is a great country in that its citizens, in a time of tragedy, band together in a spirit of deep love and cohesiveness."

McAlister said he felt a "great sadness" and a "tremendous amount of compassion for the families."

"Anyone who runs for public office, especially a high office like the presidency, understands the risks involved," he said.

Hard To Guarantee Safety

He related that a friend in the Secret Service had told him that whenever the president is in a crowd, there is not way to guarantee his safety. All they can do is reduce the risk.

"Anytime you have a president like Reagan, who is taking a lot of action, it increases the probability of his being a victim," said McAlister.

A similarity of extremes exists between the attempted assassination of Reagan who has been actively changing the government, and the assassination of John F. Kennedy, who also had been actively changing government.

When such changes are taking place, there is "extreme hate" directed at the office of the president, said McAlister.

"I'm hopeful this will not cause the American people to return to a more pessimistic time," said Councilman Alan Henry, explaining that immediately following the Kennedy assassination people across the United States were asking, "What is wrong with our country?"

Isolated Incident

"I hope they see this as an isolated incident, not as some pervading thing that is going over the country," he said.

Henry said he was at the hotel where the president was shot about three days ago.

Shoppers across the city were both stunned and angry.

Jinny Barbato, 21, an employee at Dillard's, said she became progressively more upset as she heard first that Reagan had been shot at and then that he had been hit.

"I was surprised they got to him so easily. There are some pretty sick people around here," she said.

An elderly black man would pause only long enough to ask, "That's terrible, isn't it?"

Phil Hiltbrunner, 29, of Rt. 12, Lubbock, said the assassination attempt "was kind of shocking" but added that he "was kind of halfway expecting it."

Tradition Recalled

Hiltbrunner said he had been mindful that presidents elected in the first year of decades historically have died in office, including President Kennedy in 1960.

"Every 20 years, it seems like something like this happens," he said. "I just hope it comes out all right."

"I kind of had a thought that it would happen again — some weirdo would come out to make sure it happened."

Mr. and Mrs. Danny Fuston of Turkey both expressed outrage at the attempt on Reagan's life.

"Really, it's a pretty sad thing," Fuston, 33, said, noting that assassination attempts on heads of state in western hemisphere countries other than the United States are rare.

"It's getting to be a pretty sad place," he said, "almost to the point where you're ashamed of your own country."

Mrs. Fuston compared the attempt to the recent murder of songwriter John Lennon in New York City. "You just don't feel like you can even walk out on the street without getting shot," she said.

W. H. "Bud" Fielder, 65, an S&H Clothiers employee, said the attempt on Reagan's life "is a disgrace. It's just like when Kennedy got shot and killed," Fielder said. "It was a disgrace then, and it's a disgrace now."

Mac McCracken, 71, of Lovington, N.M., and Wilton Green, 66, also of Lovington, said they thought Reagan was fortunate to have survived the assassination attempt.

Suspect Recalled As Quiet 'Loner'

said only that, "He kept to himself."

Don Barrett, who operates an appliance rental company in Lubbock, said he rented Hinckley a television, and last saw the young man in July 1980, during Hinckley's last days at Tech.

He's a loner," Barrett said. "I never saw the guy with anyone. I saw the guy walking up and down University Avenue with a white bag under his arm carrying his hamburgers. He didn't appear dangerous. I don't know, maybe he wants to write a book."

Those who knew Hinckley in earlier days remember few outstanding traits. Jim Francis, operations manager of the Dallas oil firm Brighton Co. and a fundraiser for Gov. Bill Clements, was Hinckley's basketball coach in the fourth through sixth grades.

"As a kid, he was a beautiful looking blond-headed little boy, a wonderful athlete," Francis said. "I don't know what may have happened since then to him, but he was really a leader. He was one of the best athletes on the team, and the best basketball player."

Although many have described Hinckley as quiet during his high school days, another former acquaintance says Hinckley was gregarious in those years and became "a loner" only after he enrolled in college.

Remembered As Friendly

He was friendly to everyone. He didn't sit off in the corner," says Bill Lierman, sponsor of the Rodeo Club at Highland Park High School. Lierman described Hinckley as "very personable" and "well-mannered."

He was likeable, laughable, cutting up all the time," Lierman said. "I'm sure he had girlfriends, but I never saw any of them. He was a very nice looking young fellow. If he did have a temper, he didn't display it at all. It seemed like he liked everybody."

The sponsor remembers Hinckley attending all the rodeo club functions including barbecues and square dances.

Rodeo Participant

"When the doors were open and things were done, he was there," Lierman said. He thinks Hinckley participated in amateur rodeos in the Dallas-Fort Worth area in 1972-73.

The best I can recollect he rode in a rodeo in Mesquite and I remember he came back and made some comment about how he stayed on the bull for a short period of time," Lierman said.

The youngest of three children, Hinckley apparently stayed in Texas when the rest of his family moved to Evergreen, Colo. in 1974.

But when he applied for a driver's license in Lubbock in May 1979, he also had a Colorado driver's license. He listed his Lubbock address at that time as 2404 10th St. Department of Public Safety records in Texas indicate Hinckley had no criminal convictions in the state and was involved in no traffic accidents.

Highland Park police officers also say they have no record of criminal activity involving Hinckley.

Although the DPS found no arrest or accident records on Hinckley as late as the summer of 1980 when Hinckley still lived in Lubbock, it was only a few months later that Hinckley was arrested in Nashville, Tenn.

Arrested At Airport

Rep. Bill Alexander, D-Ark., said Hinckley whose home is now listed as Evergreen, Colo., was arrested by Metropolitan Airport Police in Nashville on Oct. 9, 1980, for carrying three handguns. Carter was having a town hall meeting that day at the Grand Ole Opry. The Associated Press said Reagan was scheduled to make a campaign stop in Memphis, but canceled the appearance. The FBI confirmed the incident but refused to discuss details.

Bill Brockett, an employee at Snidley Whiplash Pawnshop in Lubbock, said Hinckley bought a 22-caliber pistol from the pawnshop in September 1980. Brockett said that Hinckley may have purchased handguns from two other pawn shops and that they may have been the same weapons confiscated in Nashville.

Reagan was wounded Monday with a 22-caliber pistol outside a Washington hotel just as he was about to enter his limo.

Hinckley bought two identical 22-caliber revolvers in Rocky's Pawn Shop in Dallas on Oct. 13, four days after his Nashville arrest. Federal officials have refused to confirm that the pistol which was confiscated Monday was one of the two weapons bought in Dallas. However, when agents from the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms fanned out to Lubbock gunshops hours after the assassination attempt, they were asking owners about the same type of .22-caliber revolvers purchased in Dallas.

Pawns Guitar, Typewriter

Prior to Monday's violence, the last trace of Hinckley was on March 11 when he pawned a guitar and typewriter in Denver and said he was "going out of town."

The young man was shabbily dressed and "looked like a man down on his luck," said Brent Morris, the clerk at G.I. Joe's Pawn Shop in Denver.

Hinckley's parents issued word through an attorney late Monday afternoon that their son had sought treatment for mental problems.

"John has been under recent psychiatric care," according to a statement by Mr. and Mrs. J.W. "Jack" Hinckley which was read by attorney Jim Robinson. "His evaluation did not alert anyone to the seriousness of his condition. We are grieved and heartbroken by this tragedy... We love our son John and we will of course stand by him. Our hearts and prayers go out to the victims and their loved ones."

The senior Hinckley is a Denver oilman, president of Vanderbilt Energy Corp. Another son, Scott, also works for the company. Daughter Diane Katherine Sims lives in Dallas.

Mr. and Mrs. Hinckley have been described as conservative Republicans and live in a split-level, rock-and-wood home situated among pine trees in an exclusive neighborhood in the foothills of the Rocky Mountains.

Attempt On Reagan Ninth Against U.S. President

WASHINGTON (AP) — The attempt on President Reagan's life Monday, was the ninth assassination attempt against a president of the United States.

The shooting attack came 5 1/2 years after the last shots were fired at a president, Gerald R. Ford, who was twice the target of attempts on his life.

Four American chief executives have been murdered in office, and attempts had been made on the lives of four others, including Reagan. One former president and one president-elect also have been the targets of assassination attempts.

Ford was shot at by a would-be assassin, Sara Jane Moore, in San Francisco on Sept. 22, 1975. Seventeen days earlier, on Sept. 5, 1975, Secret Service agents wrestled a revolver away from another woman, Lynette Alice "Squeaky" Fromme, who tried to shoot Ford in Sacramento.

Both women are now serving life prison terms at the Federal Correctional Institution in Alderson, W. Va.

The four presidents assassinated in office were Abraham Lincoln, James A. Garfield, William McKinley and John F. Kennedy.

Attempts were made on the lives of Andrew Jackson and Harry S. Truman, in addition to Ford.

Kennedy was felled by a sniper's bullet in a Dallas motorcade on Nov. 22, 1963. The Warren Commission said the killer was Lee Harvey Oswald, who was murdered himself while in police custody on Nov. 24, 1963.

Lincoln was killed while watching a play at Ford's Theater in Washington on April 15, 1865. His assassin, John Wilkes Booth, was tracked down and shot.

Garfield was mortally wounded by a disgruntled job-seeker who fired at him from close range in a railroad station in 1881. The assassin was hanged.

McKinley was shot twice while shaking hands in a reception line at an international exposition in Buffalo, N.Y., on Sept. 6, 1901. He died eight days later and his killer was electrocuted.

After the Kennedy assassination, Congress passed a law on Aug. 28, 1965, making it a federal crime to kidnap or assault the president, the vice-president or the president-elect.

Moore, 50, a matronly bookkeeper with a history of mental illness who was once an FBI informer on radical groups, told Playboy magazine in 1976 she tried to shoot Ford to expose the nation's "phony system of government."

"Ford is a nebbish... It was the office of the presidency I was trying to attack," she said in an interview. "Killing Ford would have shaken a lot of people up. More importantly, it would have elevated Nelson Rockefeller to the presidency and then people would see who the actual leaders of the country are."

Miss Fromme, 32, a follower of mass murderer Charles Manson, said she wanted attention for ecological causes and for Manson.

The first attempt on an American president's life was in 1835, when a deranged painter named Richard Lawrence fired two pistols from six feet away at Jackson in the Capitol Rotunda in Washington. Jackson was not injured.

Theodore Roosevelt was shot and wounded twice in the chest as he left a Milwaukee, Wis., hotel on Oct. 14, 1912, after he left office. He survived and his assailant, a saloon-keeper named John N. Schrank, died years later in a mental hospital.

In 1950, a group of Puerto Rican separatists tried to storm the Blair House, where Truman was living while the White House was being redecorated. The president was not hurt, but one guard and one gunman were killed and three guards and one gunman wounded. In 1954, members of a Puerto Rican group fired shots in the House of Representatives, wounding five members.

A plot to kill Lincoln was hatched before he assumed the presidency, but it was discovered and the crime, intended to take place on the inaugural train in Baltimore, was prevented.

VIOLENCE 'WAY OF LIFE?'

Another Sad Chapter Unfolds

THE SHOOTING of President Ronald Reagan and others, including his press secretary and those seeking to protect him, in Washington Monday not only is a tragedy in itself, but serves as a stunning exclamation point to the sort of world in which we now live.

The first thought in the wake of the incident, of course, is to offer prayers for all those who were gunned down in the nation's capital. The second thought is to wonder why such things happen in a civilized society.

While the American people long have half expected, or at least not been overly surprised by such deeds in other supposedly more unstable countries, the fact is that the United States has had more than its share of violence at all levels in the past two decades.

FOR THOSE in the White House to punks on the streets, death by deadly weapons has almost become "a way of life, and death."

Crime in the streets is no longer just an expression to explain what has become both a national disease as well as shame. Its effects touch the lives of millions, many of them innocent victims, from the highest office in the land to the family home.

There are no simplistic reasons why we have arrived at this point. Nor are there any simple solutions, although a solution, simple or otherwise, must be found.

The problem as it involves the nation's leaders is doubly urgent.

TWO SIDES TO ISSUE

Abscam Again In Spotlight

ONE OF Washington's more sensational, but played down, shows is up for another run this week.

We refer to the government's thus far unbroken string of decisions in the Abscam trials of politicians and others charged with taking "bribes" from FBI men who posed as favor-seeking Arab sheiks or their agents.

Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., is scheduled for trial in Judge George C. Pratt's court on Abscam-related charges. He will be the last of seven members of Congress to be tried.

ACTUALLY, THE government's string of victories is under challenge.

Some of the attorneys representing Abscam defendants have argued that the videotaped evidence crucial to the government's case was obtained in violation of the defendants' rights.

Judge Pratt, who heard the arguments, is not expected to rule on this phase of the trials before May or June. In the meantime, the last trial goes on.

The crux of the challenge to the Abscam investigation is the argument that the government violated the Constitution's promise of due process when it laid a trap, lured certain individuals into the trap, coached them how to respond to expected overtures and offers of bribes, and then prosecuted them for accepting the offers.

Audio-visual tapes of the incriminating meetings were the key evidence at the subsequent trials.

ART BUCHWALD:

Only Rich Can Afford To Spread It Around

WASHINGTON—Anyone who has been to the grocery store lately knows what a rare and expensive delicacy peanut butter has become.

Therefore it came as a real surprise when the Brokaws brought out an entire jar of it for cocktails the other evening.

The jar, which weighed at least a pound, contained the extra-crunchy kind that you can find in only the finest restaurants. It was sitting in a carved figure of ice surrounded by toast and pats of jelly.

"I didn't know this was a special occasion," one of the guests said.

Meredith Brokaw replied, "It isn't, but every once in a while Tom and I get the urge to splurge and we treat ourselves to a luxury."

I WHISPERED to my wife, "There must be money on her side of the family, because I know Brokaw could never afford a jar of peanut butter on what he makes."

She said, "Hush, they'll hear you. Anyway, what difference does it make? You only get to eat peanut butter once in your life. Let's make the most of it."

We all gathered around as Mrs. Brokaw started spreading the golden substance on toast and passing it to her guests.

Some people asked for jelly with theirs, but a few purists like myself wanted it without any condiments.

We all "oohed" and "ahhed" as we tasted it.

"THIS IS the real stuff," I said. "Where on earth did you find it?"

"We have a connection at the United Nations," Brokaw said. "He gets it through the diplomatic pouch."

"Did you know it takes three pounds of peanuts to make one jar of peanut butter?"

It is obvious, even to Presidents and those who must attempt to protect them with their own lives, if necessary, that a President can't hide from the duties of his office and public appearances.

IT WAS President Gerald Ford, himself the target of two assassination attempts in a short period of time, who made that observation.

And even though he lost two brothers to assassins, then-President John F. Kennedy and later Bobby Kennedy, Sen. Edward Kennedy took the risks involved to seek the White House job himself in the last Presidential election.

The slaying of Martin Luther King and the wounding of Alabama Gov. George Wallace as he campaigned for the Presidency only add to the epidemic.

IN THE NEXT few days, all sorts of explanations and analyses will be given for what has happened, most recently and before.

But, the sickness in the society, here and in the terrorist attacks abroad, has deep roots for which society itself must be held responsible.

Once upon a time, Law and Order not only was a phrase, it was a way of life which meant Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness. Today, it is a mockery.

BUT THE Supreme Court has placed strict limits on the circumstances in which entrapment may be successfully argued as a defense against criminal charges.

Since the court first recognized the entrapment defense in 1932, it has held that only a truly innocent person—one with no predisposition to commit the crime with which he is charged—can assert the defense effectively.

In 1973, however, Justice Potter Stewart wrote a minority opinion stating that "the government cannot be permitted to instigate the commission of a criminal offense in order to prosecute someone for committing it."

He was joined by three other justices and in 1976, two other justices indicated they felt some government conduct in entrapping a defendant could be so outrageous as to violate the due-process guarantee.

THAT IS precisely the point made by the Abscam defense attorneys.

The defense already has scored one victory. Last Nov. 26, Judge J. P. Fullam of U.S. District Court in Philadelphia ruled that four persons charged as a result of the Abscam investigation should be acquitted because the government went so far beyond "the necessities of legitimate law enforcement" that it violated the defendants' rights to due process.

The whole thing not only raises the issue of integrity on the part of public officials, but of those who would investigate that integrity.

Lubbock Reader Has Concern Over Cost, Value Of MX

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:
 On Sunday, March 22, The Avalanche-Journal quoted you as saying, "I don't think there is any way the Reagan administration can justify putting the MX here because of the cost of the land."

You quote the figure $3.5 billion, which is from the Department of Defense's Split Basing Study released in January. $3.5 billion is the added cost of dividing the MX between Utah, Nevada and Texas New Mexico, but it should be pointed out that only $527 million is needed for land acquisition. The rest, $3 billion, is for additional military hardware. At a time when military expenditures are increasing dramatically, $527 million is almost insignificant.

The study also concluded that a split system would be more "survivable" in a nuclear exchange, ease the socioeconomic impacts, have no effect on the MX timetable, and that there are no environmental reasons not to split it.

You say, "advances in satellite technology are coming so fast that the MX Missile could be outdated before it can be completed." We hope this will be reflected in your voting record on future appropriations for this system.

We in the MX action group also hope you will continue to keep your constituents updated on this "largest project in the history of mankind."

Reader Disputes Claim FDR Saved Capitalistic System

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:
 A letter of March 24, stated that FDR saved the capitalistic system. I have heard this myth all of my life. I guess if a myth is repeated often enough, many people will believe it to be true.

Actually it would be more correct to state that capitalism survived in spite of FDR. To begin with the great depression was not the result of a failure of capitalism. Rather it was a result of the failure of government. The government controls the money supply and at that time, the government let the money supply decrease by over 30 percent. The problem was then deflation as opposed to the inflation which we have today.

FDR initiated this era of big government and deficit spending which has been a tremendous burden to capitalism. To imply that such a system saved capitalism is more than a little ridiculous.

This Democratic hero-worship of FDR is really amazing when you study the list of so-called accomplishments of his administration. Social Security has been hailed as his greatest accomplishment. I don't believe that I need to say any more.

Reader Takes Issue With Ban On North Irish Aid

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:
 I, as an Irish-American, urge all Americans to keep sending much needed funds to friends in Northern Ireland—regardless of President Ronald Reagan's "executive order" to the contrary.

Ulster Catholics are desperate for economic help from the United States. Many are jobless, broke and hungry. Some look for the dollars from America to survive.

Reagan joins Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (D-Mass.) et al in this rignarole about the IRA intercepting contributors funds. Reagan's unfortunate statement will cause great suffering in Bogside if the American people listen to him.

Americans can be assured their money will not reach the coffers of the IRA if the funds are sent to a family whose existence is being jeopardized by unthinking American politicians. The IRA doesn't dare tamper with the United States mail.

The President's actions are a bitter disappointment to Irish-Americans who helped elect him. As for Northern Ireland, Reagan is as crown shy as Jimmy Carter.

Area Writer Defends Those Who Oppose X-Rated Films

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:
 I live in Littlefield, and our family spends much time and money shopping in Lubbock. We have lived in several large cities, and I consider Lubbock the cleanest, friendliest, and all around "best" city of its size that I have been in.

An experience we had while driving on Avenue Q a few nights ago disturbed me very much, however. While driving to K-Mart, on the Loop, we missed the exit for University. Not being familiar with the area, we began driving around trying to get back to K-Mart.

While on Avenue Q, my two young sons, ages 8 and 10, saw the big screen of the drive-in theatre there and said, "Mommy, just think, if we lived in Lubbock, we could come here and see free movies." Now, the scene on the screen was one that I can only describe as pornographic, so my foot got a little heavier on the gas as we went past.

I was under the impression that this type of movie was restricted to those above a certain age, and that none under that age are admitted. If so, then why are they allowed to see the screen from the public streets?

Is this what you want children to see from the streets and homes of your beautiful city? Is there not a saying which goes "your freedom ends where my nose begins"?

Should we, in the name of Liberty, let everyone be allowed to do exactly what seems right to them? Should murder be condoned because one person is angry with another?

Should I be allowed to take something which belongs to someone else just because I want it? What about people who want pornography? Will they be allowed to flaunt it in the faces of others who don't share their tastes? Where would we be without laws to uphold our freedoms? How true it is that Liberty is not free.

VIRGINIA PAYETTE:

Signs Of S. Africa

DALLAS—Peter, the bearded young South African who guided us through Johannesburg, was politely sympathetic over our shock at the "Whites Only" signs, but he refused to apologize for apartheid.

"We whites are outnumbered 5 to 1," he said. "It's the only way to handle the situation. And it's honest. Black is black and white is white and they don't mix. We made it the law."

"We're only doing what the rest of the world would like to do, but doesn't dare say so out loud. And that's hypocritical."

Melinda doesn't agree, although she, too, is a native-born South African. "We have to find a way to help the blacks have a bigger voice in the government," she said as she drove us through Soweto, scene of the bloody 1976 riots.

"It's inevitable."

INTERESTINGLY enough, Peter, a college dropout, doesn't plan to stay in his homeland. "I'm leaving next month...for good. Going to backpack into Israel with my girl, and then maybe wander around Europe. Anyplace but here."

Melinda, however, has her roots planted three generations deep in Johannesburg, is raising three children, and has already traveled the world with her businessman husband.

"This is home and I love it. But we're going to have to change a lot of things—and those changes are beginning to happen. It will take time and education, but it's coming."

She was matter-of-fact about our request to visit Soweto, where 600 Bantus died five years ago in a riot starting from a teen-age bilingual education protest. Soweto, today, she said, isn't anything like Americans picture it.

SHE WAS right. Instead of the grass huts and tin shanties we'd expected, it's a suburban community of tidy little homes, many with grassy lawns and flower gardens, which the government leases to families for 99 years.

Rents range from 7 rands a month ($8 or $9 American) to 21 rands ($26 or $27). Singles live in hostel-like dormitories that are considerably cheaper.

Most of the homes have running water, but not all have electricity yet. "Electrify Soweto" is the city's goal for 1983. There's not much street lighting, either, and the crime rate is high.

There are seven "neighborhoods," cordoned off by wide green areas designed, as one apartheid critic puts it, to get men and equipment in and out in a hurry.

These security parks would help the police confine trouble to one section—and the police are everywhere, all black.

THERE'S EVEN a "rich section" where wealthy doctors, lawyers and politicians have private homes that would be considered luxurious anywhere.

They build them in Soweto because, under "influx control," no blacks are allowed to live in Johannesburg except as domestics (where they earn $100 a month, plus room and board).

Dotted throughout the Soweto neighborhoods are 600 schools, including 66 high schools. And that's not enough, says Melinda.

"Soweto blacks crave education, partly because they realize their high illiteracy rate works against them. Most of the teen-agers aim for college."

On the drawing boards is a $25-million school project and a $50-million shopping center, which will provide jobs for thousands of blacks. Which brings up another apartheid problem: "job reservation," a policy that is now being softened.

IT'S ONE that has kept the blacks locked into a caste system that restricted them to certain occupations and prevented them from moving up to better jobs.

Blacks now form labor unions, and they are finding more desirable work in the diamond and gold mines. But they are still paid less than whites.

As in the United States, where it once existed, job reservation, indeed the whole apartheid thing, is supported largely by rural and blue collar whites.

Melinda says that's because they're afraid the blacks will take their manual-labor jobs, but "educated whites realize that has to change."

With all their problems, South African blacks generally would appear to have the highest standard of living for blacks anywhere in Africa.

PLUS FREE education and almost-free medical care. The two hospitals in Soweto charge 50 cents for the first visit, and nothing for follow-up treatment.

But they don't have the vote or full freedom of movement, and this rankles.

Meanwhile, back in the city, wealthy white families enjoy what they believe is the world's highest standard of living for whites.

Money and philanthropy abound and, for now, it's a lovely, sheltered life in a beautiful, rich country.

Pass It On...

ITEM NO. 933A in our Love and War man's file is an observation by the renowned prime minister of Great Britain, Lloyd George, who was known generations ago to dally occasionally with the ladies of the day. You get the impression he was the sort of fellow who doubleparked his horse-and-carriage. Said he: "Love is all right, if you lose no time."

Remember, young lady, the facial makeup experts say a lot of women ought not wear false eyelashes because they make some eyes look smaller.

Among the Plains Indians long ago, a man was considered particularly brave, if he could touch an enemy without having to kill him first. Such a man was given an eagle feather to wear on his head as a sign of his courage. You know those picture-book headdresses with feathers dripping down both sides? The originals were just a string of so many feathers to show the wearer had been brave that many times over.

Son, your granddad and mine were taught two basics: Save your money and get an education. Basics. They go way back. So today's facts are scary. Bank savings waste in worth more than you earn from them. School classes waste in time more than you learn from them. Save your money and get an education? The principles are still sound. But the institutions can't deliver anymore. At least for the moment. You're on your own.

You can have colorful, appetizing meals in minimum time and with less energy if you plan and manage them properly.

Did you know that the average homemaker spends about a third of her time in planning, preparing and serving meals? Of course, some homemakers spend more time on food preparation than others. The size of the family, elaborateness of meals and the convenience and use of kitchen equipment influence the time spent on meals.

A good meal meets the health needs of each individual in the family by providing one serving of all food groups, vegetable and fruits group, bread and cereal group, milk and cheese group, meat, poultry, fish and beans group the fats and sweets group.

Try to Make Better Use of Time

Set aside a time and place for menu planning. Have the tools handy that are needed — paper, pencil, recipes, use copies of menus that you have found to be timesavers as well as family favorites. Think through your menus. Some possible timesavers are as follows:

- Serve fewer and well-prepared foods in generous amounts
- Use foods that can be cooked together.

- Use foods that require few cooking utensils, serving dishes and last-minute preparation.
- Use foods that can be cooked and served in the same container.

- Use foods that take little preparation.
- Use foods that cook in time-saving equipment.

Plan menus for several days or a week at a time. Decide what foods have to be bought ahead of time, keeping in mind what foods are on hand.

Make a shopping list to save time, steps and money. Foods listed in the order that they are found on the grocery shelves speeds shopping.

Better Use of Energy in Preparation

- Clean fruit and vegetables before placing them in the refrigerator.
- Organize stored food for ease in locating according to the food groups.
- Keep master mix handy for quick breads. Except for the time used mixing the master mix, it is as speedy as commercial mixes and generally costs less.
- Prepare larger portions of foods to be fixed in a different way later. Some foods that can be prepared ahead without losing quality are meat roasts, gelatin desserts and salads, dried beans and peas, potatoes with jackets and hard-cooked eggs.
- Prepare double quantities of foods that freeze well and freeze half for use another day.
- Arrange kitchen equipment so that utensils used together are stored together. Keep baking supplies and equipment together: the flour scoop in the flour canister, measuring spoon in the coffee can.
- Keep small equipment within easy reach. Hooks, small nails or pegboard are convenient for hanging measuring cups, separated measuring spoons, sifter and grater.
- Let other family members have a responsibility in meal preparation. It may utilize time and energy better while giving them a feeling of satisfaction.
- Clean up after each job as it is completed.

Quick Tricks for Quick Meals

Crosscut celery rolls — Make a lengthwise and a crosswise shallow cut in the top of six brown-and-serve rolls. Combine 2 tablespoons soft butter or margarine, ¼ teaspoon celery seed, ¼ teaspoon paprika and a dash of cayenne pepper. Spread a teaspoon of celery mixture along cuts in each roll. Bake in a greased shallow pan at 400 degrees for 12 minutes.

Caramel-Nut Triangles — Cream equal amounts of butter or margarine and brown sugar until smooth. Spread on toast slices. Sprinkle with chopped nuts. Place on a cookie sheet. Toast in 350-degree oven about 5 minutes or broil until topping bubbles. Cut slices in quarter.

Fix It Fast

I will conduct a leader training meeting on April 16 on "Fix It Fast Foods." The meeting will be at the First Federal meeting room, 3845 50th St. from 2-4 p.m. Any community club or organization may send two leaders to this meeting. Please call the Extension office at 741-8084 for reservation. The meeting is free.

ANN LANDERS

'Man Talk' Not Same As Gossip

Dear Ann Landers: You agreed with "Oregon Woman," who said she was convinced that men are bigger gossips than women. Well, I disagree with both of you. I went to beauty school, worked in a salon, enrolled in barber college and am presently employed as a barber. I have listened to an awful lot of "man talk" and I know the difference between gossip and egotism.

Women are the real gossips of the world. According to the dictionary, a gossip is a person who passes on information or rumors, usually of an intimate or uncomplimentary nature. "Oregon Woman" referred to the junk that men tell on their wives and girlfriends. These men are not gossips, they are egotists. For example, if a man sees a good-looking woman, he might say, "I think I could go to bed with her." A woman would say, "I'll tell you who did." Get the difference? — Made the Scene in Illinois

Dear Scene — I sure do — and you're right on. Thanks for recovering my fumble. The next letter is a bit of fluff on the same subject.

Dear Ann Landers: In reference to the letter that carried the head, "Quiet Please — Men Gossiping," warn all your women readers to be wary of men who work in banks, because most of them are tellers. — Ashamed To Sign My Name To Such A Groaner

Dear Ashamed: You should be! And so should I — for printing it.

Dear Ann Landers: Please print four brief but wonderful lines for people who find it difficult to let down the protective barriers and allow someone special to come into their lives. I am sure a great many people have this problem and they don't know what they are missing. These words can change their lives:

"A bell is no bell till you ring it.
A song is no song till you sing it.
And love in your heart wasn't put there to stay —
'Cause love isn't love till you give it away."
— Bianca, Who Finally Learned

Dear Bianca: Thank you for sharing that bit of wisdom. It's true... every word of it.

Dear Ann Landers: Do you publish all the mail that is sent to you? I wrote about a very important problem three weeks ago and have been looking in the paper every day for my answer. I haven't seen it yet.

How far behind are you in your work? The public has a right to know. — Losing Faith (White Plains, N.Y.)

Dear Plains: Behind in my work? No way.

Sorry about your letter, but it may never appear in the paper. In fact, the chances are very slim. Here is why: I receive about 1,000 pieces of mail a day. Approximately one-third are requests for booklets offered at the foot of the column. The rest are from readers who want advice.

Of the 600 or so letters, only three, at the most, can be printed in one day's column. This means no more than 21 letters a week out of 4,200 will be selected for publication.

Although I have several assistants who help with the mail, I do all the selecting of column material myself. Nobody screens the mail. And every word

Homework Hotline Set Up To Help Students, Parents

By WILLIAM P. COLEMAN
United Press International

Filmsy excuses for not having homework assignments completed may become a thing of the past in at least one American school district.

The Porterville (Calif.) Educators Association has opened a homework hotline to help students whose parents can't cope with today's math or who don't remember who the real villain was in "Marbeth."

Help now is only a telephone call or a short ride away for first grade through high school seniors in the farming community of Porterville, in the San Joaquin Valley.

Association members are teachers of all grades through high school. Their recently established hotline has an elementary and a high school teacher on duty from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday to take calls from students who need help with that night's homework assignments.

If it is convenient a student may instead get help in person at the city library, where the two teachers take phone calls.

Bob LaTour, a high school teacher who helped set up the hotline, said the library donated a room for the service.

Teachers volunteer to man the hotline, so the only cost is the monthly charge for the telephone line, which LaTour said is being underwritten by the association.

"We've really gotten a lot of cooperation from the library and the school district," he said in a telephone interview. The district agreed to let us use a complete set of textbooks from every grade, kindergarten through the 12th grade, and then the library set up in a room and let us build shelves for the books.

LaTour said the homework aid program was developed because many of association's 300 teachers were dismayed by the number of students who came to school with uncompleted homework.

"We were getting excuses such as 'I didn't understand it' or 'I forgot how to do it,'" he said. "Now those kinds of excuses won't be valid because any student in the district can get the help he needs to do his homework."

LaTour said teachers manning the hotline also will have somewhere to turn for help if, for example, an English teacher on duty gets a call from a student with a complicated calculus problem.

"We're putting together a list of all 300 teachers by subject and home telephone numbers so we can call them for help if we need it," he said.

The Association of Mexican-American Educators likes the hotline idea so much it has joined the project, promising at least one Spanish-speaking teacher available each Monday evening. The teacher would help students having problems with Spanish courses or Spanish-speaking students having trouble with other studies.

"And we'll be able to call one of the Spanish-speaking teachers if we need help with a student on the other nights," LaTour said.

"We won't be doing their homework for them," he said. "But we'll be able to provide the assistance they need to get it done themselves."

LaTour said there seemed to be an increase in noncompletion of homework over the past few years.

Second Opinion Wouldn't Hurt

By PAUL DONOHUE, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Could you explain uterine prolapse and methods other than hysterectomy to correct it? My problem started with my lively four-year-old bouncing onto my lap and landing his whole weight on my abdomen. Can I get a second opinion on hysterectomy? — C.C.

The uterus is suspended in position by ligaments such as a hammock is suspended by supporting ropes. When ligaments loosen the uterus drops. I have never heard your explanation for a prolapsed (fallen) uterus. I suppose it is a remote possibility, but very remote. Most of the force of the bouncing would not have been transmitted to the uterine supports. Childbirth, however, is a common cause.

Whether action need be taken for a fallen uterus depends on how troublesome it is. For example, is the drop affecting the urinary bladder, which is attached to the front of the uterus?

You raise an interesting point. Why not just tighten up the supporting ligaments? It is a good idea, but it doesn't work. I am afraid we tend to think of organs too often as machine parts, much as I did with the hammock analogy. After all, you fix a sagging hammock with new ropes. It can't be done in the body. There is a delicacy to tissue that defies comparison to anything mechanical.

There are operations to try to re-establish uterine support, but they are seldom used and only in a few people for very special reasons. Further, they do not always work too well. Eventually, a hysterectomy (removal of the entire uterus) has to be done. This ends both the prolapse problem and any attendant pressure on the bladder.

If a woman cannot have the hysterectomy, then a pessary can be used. This is a donut-shaped device that fits onto the bottom of the uterus to keep it in place. Again, this is used only in special cases. Pessaries can be troublesome and require checks from time to time to avoid irritation of the vagina and uterus. All in all, a woman who has been given good reason for removal of a prolapsed uterus should seriously consider that advice. Second opinion? Sure, why not?

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have been told that my spitting up of blood occasionally may be due to my hiatal hernia, which I have known about for years. I also have severe acid heartburn and wonder if the hernia is causing that. When would surgery to repair the hernia be advisable? — N.V.

Bleeding from a hiatal hernia is a rare occurrence. In most instances, the bleeding is found to emanate from stomach ulcer or from erosion of the esophagus. Both conditions are frequently found in persons with H.H. You certainly need to be examined to determine just where the bleeding is coming from. I am not ruling out your hiatal hernia altogether.

It seems to me your first concern should be to control the acid symptoms (with antacids, for example). In the meanwhile, have your hernia area fully examined. If you are overweight, reducing will relieve extra pressure on the hernia area (where the esophagus passes through the diaphragm to the stomach).

Most hiatal hernias are treated with simple measures, i.e. control of acid reflux (splashing) and weight loss. The booklet "Hiatal Hernia and Eight Ways to Combat It" might help you to better understand this very common problem. I am sending along a copy. Other readers may obtain a copy by writing Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I notice that it is very common for doctors to recommend hormones for women following removal of their ovaries, and it seems this is highly successful. I have never heard of doctors recommending hormones for men following removal of their prostate glands. Do doctors ever recommend such treatment for this? — J.R.E.

The prostate gland does not make any hormone that needs to be replaced when the gland is removed. Prostaglandins are, as the name implies, hormone-like substances, and they were first found in the prostate gland. However, they are made in many other places in the body, so there is no deficiency resulting from prostate removal. Ovaries, on the other hand, are the chief source of female hormones, and removal may produce a deficiency. Estrogen therapy is sometimes used as prostate cancer chemotherapy.

To learn about the major categories of prostate trouble — symptoms, treatment, how to speed recovery — read the booklet, "The Pesky Prostate." For a copy write to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Opera Singer Avoids Career Rut

By ANGELO NATALE
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Julia Migenes-Johnson sings the starkly dramatic title role in the Metropolitan Opera production of "Lulu" to wide acclaim. She is also considered a deft comedienne.

She sings the lead role in the Met's "Pagliacci," and is right at home doing lively Latin-American tunes.

She can act, dance, is hostess on a British television variety series, has appeared in Broadway musical comedies, is a popular favorite in West Germany. She is a wife and mother.

"I don't want to be one of those singers who become known for five good roles and that's it," she says. "I would love to act. I always wanted to be a dancer. I would look at Fred Astaire, Ginger Rogers and Leslie Caron in awe."

"I also want to enjoy myself. I never want to get in a rut."

A rut is obviously not where Julia Migenes-Johnson is.

Her Met contract for the 1981 season calls for her to "cover" the "Lulu" role, done normally by Teresa Stratas, and do six Neddas in "Pagliacci." She sang two performances at the Met last season as Jenny in Kurt Weill's "The Rise and Fall of the City of Mahagonny."

When Miss Stratas became indisposed recently, Julia went on, in true show-business tradition, with only the meagerest stage preparation for two performances of "Lulu." One of those performances turned out to be a live, nationwide telecast of the production.

She may not have had all the stage directions down pat, but she certainly knew the complex Alban Berg score.

"I spent a whole year preparing it," she says. "My nightmare was that I'd have to go on stage and not remember it. I went around for six months with earphones on my head, learning the score. I had to learn Lulu by counting. There was no other way for me to come in correctly."

But with only a few hours' notice, Julia was "on" in the star role in perhaps the world's most renowned opera house. All the practice, the counting, the earphones, paid off.

Julia is in her middle 30s, a native New Yorker with a father of Greek origin and a mother of Irish and Puerto Rican background. She took her mother's name of Migenes.

At age 3, she played the little boy, Cio Cio San's son, in an amateur production of "Madama Butterfly," at 6 won a scholarship to a dance school. Then to the High School of Music and Art in Manhattan, from which she was selected by composer-conductor Leonard Bernstein to sing an aria on a television program.

At 15 she left home, at 18 she was married and at 20 had the marriage annulled. She played the role of Hodel in the Broadway musical "Fiddler On The Roof," and that of Maria in a 1964 revival of "West Side Story."

Then Europe beckoned, and she was off to Austria for "West Side Story" at the Vienna Volksoper.

She got married for the second time, had a daughter, Martina (now 6), got divorced again, and went to Paris in 1977 with Martina. Her next stop was West Germany, where she starred in variety television shows, did some TV specials, and became a favorite.

She made a couple of record albums, one of them, "Latin Lady," in which she sings popular Latin songs and displays a keen sense of humor.

It was back to the United States in 1978, and back to opera as Musetta in Jean-Pierre Ponnelle's production of "La Boheme" in San Francisco. There she met the man who became her third husband, Jervis Johnson, whose career as a writer enables them to travel together. The Musetta role brought her to the attention of the Metropolitan Opera.

She is set for some Musettas, "Mahagony's" and "Lulu's" at the Met in the future. Broadway musicals are now her prime goal, but television has a strong appeal for her. She is doing a series of variety shows for ITV in Britain, and looks forward to appearing in more of them.

West's ace of diamonds held the first trick. He continued to his partner's king. South ruffed and promptly led four rounds of trumps to discard two hearts and a spade from dummy. Then South led the ace of spades, continued with a spade to dummy's king and ruffed a spade.

Everyone was down to four cards at this point. South held his three hearts and the last trump. North held one spade, one diamond and ace-nine of hearts. West held the top spade and Q 10 5 of hearts. East held the top diamond and three useless hearts.

South led his last trump and West had to chuck a heart to retain the good spade. The last spade in dummy had done its work. South threw it away. Now East was forced to let one of its hearts go. They weren't any good anyway. A double squeeze had been made.

South didn't care who had the queen of hearts. He knew it was doubleton and sure to drop to make all three of South's hearts good.

HINTS FROM HELOISE:

Wide-Leg Pants Brought Up-To-Date Easily

DEAR HELOISE:
Please help! Please tell those of us who have quite a few good wide and flared leg slacks and cannot afford to throw them away, how to fix them and convert them into the narrower-legged slacks that are in style now. — P. Snyder

You really don't have to be an expert seamstress, even a part-time (out of desperation-type) either, to alter the pant legs on your slacks.

If you can stitch a fairly straight line and can borrow a friend's machine, you've got it made.

For flare legs, first remove the hem on both pant legs. Decide how much you want to narrow the legs by pinning them while you have them on.

On the wrong side, starting where the pants begin to flare out (usually about the knee), stitch equal seam widths down both sides of each leg, sewing straight down instead of following the original seam line. Cut off the extra width, leaving a 5/8-inch seam all the way up. Press the seams flat and restitch the hems in place.

Follow the same principal for wide-legged pants. You must do the same thing on all four seams (two on each leg) taking in an equal amount all the way down the seam. Usually you have to begin seaming about the hipline, starting on the seamline and easing on out into a wider seam.

After trying them on to make sure you have a proper fit, cut away the excess fabric, leaving a 5/8-inch seam. Press flat and re-stitch the hem.

That should put you back in style again — Heloise with was those plastic pages of a photograph album that had lost their sticking power.

I'm sure I'm not the only one! But, before you apply adhesive tape or throw the album out, try rubbing a candle over the page that you place the pictures on, applying a little pressure.

The friction of rubbing plus the deposit of wax creates static electricity when the plastic cover page comes in contact with it.

FABRIC STORAGE

DEAR HELOISE:

Our newspapers arrive rolled up in a long, clear plastic bag. The width depends on the size of the paper.

I save all of them to store the fabric I buy on sale from year to year. Fold the fabric, then roll it to fit into the plastic bag.

The fabric stays neat, clean, is easily located and doesn't get snagged. — Gina Peterson

SALMON FONDU

- 2 tbsps butter
- 2 tbsps flour
- 2 cups milk
- 1 tsp salt
- 1 tsp onion powder
- 1 tsp prepared mustard
- 1 tsp lemon juice
- 1 tsp minced parsley
- 3 large eggs, separated
- 1 1/2-cz. can salmon, undrained
- 1/2 cup fine dry bread crumbs

In the top of a double boiler over hot water, melt the butter; stir in the flour, milk, salt, onion powder, mustard, lemon juice, parsley and slightly beaten yolks; cook, stirring constantly, until thickened — 7-10 minutes; mixture will look like a pale-yellow, soft custard sauce. Mash salmon well with its liquid; stir in the crumbs and the sauce. Beat the whites until they hold soft peaks; stir about 1/4 of them into the salmon mixture; fold in the remainder. Turn into a buttered 2-quart round casserole (about 8x2 inches); put the casserole in a pan of hot tap water so that the water comes at least half way up the salmon mixture. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until top is golden and slightly crusty — 25-30 minutes; a knife inserted in center will not come out clean. Serve at once; pass parmesan cheese. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

LETTER OF THOUGHT

DEAR HELOISE:

It seems that when everthing gets especially tense around home, like late paychecks of unexpected bills my tenseness carries over to my preschool children.

That's the time I need to have a moment to myself to sort my thoughts out. However, if I take the time to spend a few minutes alone with each child instead, talking to them, it calms me as well as them down.

Then they're more receptive and willing to let me have "my" time alone — Judy

Chicken Best Buy Today For Consumer-Minded

COLUMBIA, S.C. (Special) — With inflation pinching the purse of most families, everyone is looking for ways to cut expenses. And because food purchases take an average of about 16 percent of disposable income, it's no surprise that the nation's economy influences what we eat.

One of the best buys at the meat counter is chicken. Even with the severe shock wave that soaring grain prices have had on poultry (almost 70 percent of the cost of producing broilers is feed), the price of today's chicken is little more than it was in the late 1940s and early 50s.

By comparison the consumer price index for all goods and services was 71.4 in 1949 and over 250 in 1980 — more than 3.5 times the 1949 level.

According to USDA figures, the price of beef rose more than 55 percent between 1976 and 1980 while chicken prices were up just 16 percent. At the same time, per capita beef consumption dropped about one-fifth but the consumption of chicken increased 19 percent.

The National Broiler Council expects the 1981 consumption of chicken to reach an all-time high, exceeding 50 pounds per capita. In 1945, Americans ate only five pounds of chicken each.

A recent study conducted for Home Economists in Business indicates that good nutrition, saving money and quick-and-easy meals are the top considerations of consumers in making food purchases. Chicken fills the bill on all three counts and more than half of those surveyed expect to eat more poultry in the 1980s.

Fortunately chicken is so versatile it can be served often and in a seemingly endless variety of ways. It provides the same quality protein as red meat but is lower in calories and in fat content. And chicken can be quickly turned into nutritious family meals, gourmet dishes or attractive party foods.

For a hearty hot hors d'oeuvre that's delightfully different, try "Corn Chicks." The recipe was adapted from one entered in the National Chicken Cooking Contest. A mixture of chicken and corn sticks, it's also good served with chicken soup or stew — made with chicken bones, skin and broth not used in the recipe.

Approximately $60 billion is tied up in American shopping centers which account for about half of all the retail business in the U.S.

CORN CHICKS

- 1 broiler fryer, cut in parts
 - 2 cups water
 - 1 rib celery, with leaves
 - 1 small onion, quartered
 - 1 tsp salt
 - 1 1/4 tsp pepper
 - 1-3/4 cups unsweetened corn bread mix
 - 1 egg, slightly beaten
 - 1 cup chicken broth
 - 1 tsp minced garlic
 - 1 1/4 tsp crushed red pepper (optional)
 - 1-1/2 cups finely chopped onion
- In deep saucepan, place chicken, add water, onion, celery, salt and pepper. Cover and simmer about 45 minutes or until fork can be inserted in chicken with ease. Cool in refrigerator, reserving broth. Separate meat from bones. Discard bones and skin. Cut chicken in bite-size pieces. In large bowl, mix together corn bread mix, egg, chicken broth, garlic and red pepper. Stir until smooth; add onion and chopped chicken and mix well. Spoon into hot greased corn stick pans and bake at 400 degrees Fahrenheit about 15 minutes or until golden brown. Makes 15 sticks.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. My brother died in November, 1976. I inherited his stocks and bonds. I get checks from the companies in which he left me shares of stock, but I have never heard from the company whose bonds he left me.

might put a "hold" on that interest, as it does on out-of-town checks, until the amount is received from the company whose bonds you own.

about $8,000. My initial cost in these bonds was about $1,800. I am in the 40 percent income tax bracket and will be 65 in April, 1982.

I have three such bonds, all in the same company. Each bond has interest coupons on it. Each coupon is worth $23.50. I haven't received any of this interest. How do I collect it?

That company can't send you the interest directly, because the bonds are in "bearer" form. There's no record of your ownership, either on the bonds or on the company's books.

If I redeem the bonds, how can I ease the "present" of taxes to the government on $6,200?

A. Clip the coupons and present them for payment. You can do this through your local bank. In addition to the dollar amount of interest, each coupon has printed on it the date that each interest payment is due.

Your stocks are a different story. You're recorded as the owner of those stocks. So, each company mails dividend checks to you.

A. You can exchange your E bonds for Series HH bonds — in multiples of $500 — and postpone the tax bite on the accumulated interest until you redeem the HH bonds received in the exchange.

Some of the interest payments on the bonds you own are past due. Most bonds pay interest semi-annually and have two coupons attached for each year. Some pay interest quarterly and have four coupons attached for each year.

Q. Why do different institutions pay different interest rates on similar savings accounts? I've found that savings and loan associations and savings banks pay higher interest than commercial banks. And credit unions pay still higher interest. Why?

DOYLE welcomes written questions, but he will be able to provide answers only through the column.

You should clip and cash all past-due coupons. In the future, clip and cash each coupon as it comes due.

However, the Depository Institutions Deregulation and Monetary Control Act — better known as the "Banking Reform Act of 1980" — calls for the phasing out of Regulation Q over a six-year period.

This Month Only!!! Rebuilt Kirbys at reduced prices. Discount on new traditional Kirby. Kirby Sales & Service 5410 Slide Rd. 792-3718

The first time you clip coupons, I suggest you take the bonds — with coupons attached — to an officer of your bank. Explain that you are new at the coupon-clipping process. The bank officer should show you how to do it.

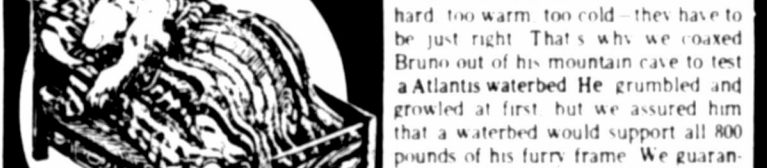

So, unless Congress changes the banking laws in midstream, we will see wide-open competition on regular savings account interest rates among all federally insured institutions by the year 1986.

Beginning Thursday, banks and thrift institutions may pay as much as 12.328 percent interest on six-month money market certificates, which have interest rates limited to 0.25 percent above the 26-week Treasury rate.

Savers investing in 2½-year certificates can earn 12 percent at thrift institutions, and 11.75 percent at commercial banks. Those yields are at their federally controlled ceilings.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

A MOVE BY THE REAGAN ADMINISTRATION to relax federal regulations that limit exposure to cotton dust by textile workers could render a Supreme Court case moot, some sources believe.

The Labor Department Friday issued advance notice of proposed rule-making on the cotton dust standard and said it was filing a motion and supporting memorandum with the Supreme Court asking the court to vacate a lower opinion and remand the case to the Occupational Safety and Health Administration for reconsideration.

The high court had been scheduled within the next few months to rule on the constitutionality of imposing federal regulations requiring the textile industry to protect workers from cotton dust exposure at any cost.

It was announced that OSHA will reconsider in light of President Reagan's executive order that all Executive Department regulations meet a cost-benefit test. In the past, OSHA has claimed that cost-benefit analysis was inappropriate for its regulations.

CURRENT STANDARDS, PROMULGATED UNDER the Carter administration, will remain in effect during the reconsideration process. The cotton dust standards were issued June 19, 1978.

Assistant Secretary of Labor Thorne Auchtung, now head of OSHA, said the agency is requesting comments on the extent to which cost-benefit analyses should be used in setting worker health standards.

The cost-benefit issue is thought to be the crucial issue in the Supreme Court case.

The current standards require such measures as supplementary use of respirators and implementation of medical surveillance and employee education and training programs.

A provision that cotton dust be controlled solely by engineering and work practice methods is not scheduled to go into effect until 1984, giving the Department of Labor time to study the practicality of the cost-benefit issue, Auchtung said.

The cost-benefit issue was not considered during the original rulemaking, he said.

IT IS POSSIBLE OSHA OR THE LABOR Department will make changes in the standards during the review, Auchtung said.

The public may submit comments on the cotton dust standards until May 15. Comments should be sent to: Docket Officer, OSHA, Docket No. H-052b, Room S-6212, Frances Perkins, Labor Department Building, Third Street and Constitution Avenue, NW, Washington, D. C. 20210.

Oral arguments in the case were heard Jan. 21 by the Supreme Court. The court's current session ends June 22 and the following session begins Oct. 5, according to a court spokesman.

The U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia in October 1979, acting on the industry's challenge to the regulations, ruled the law does not require OSHA to employ the cost-benefit test in proposing such standards.

The industry, contending the standards could put small textile firms out of business, then appealed to the Supreme Court.

MEANWHILE, THREE INFLAMMATORY COTTON dust publications and a slide presentation have been ordered withdrawn from circulation by Auchtung.

The agency's memorandum said the publications, believed to total more than 50,000 copies, no longer represent administration policy and should be destroyed. The directive also applies to warehouse stocks.

A spokesman said Auchtung was concerned that the booklets take sides and that he is committed to overcoming adversarial approaches to safety and health.

The publications were identified as "Cotton Dust: Worker Health Alert," "Cotton Dust Standard: Management's Role," and "Cotton Dust Can Destroy Your Lungs."

These were prepared and distributed by the previous OSHA administration.

COTTON FUTURES CLOSED A FAIRLY QUIET session Monday with pared losses of 32 to 5 points in active contracts.

Spot May lost the most at 86.05 cents. Floor brokers said the market moved lower, in sympathy with weaker gold and grain prices, on local selling which triggered commission house downside stops around 86.50 cents in May.

Prices then bounced up, mirroring recoveries in gold and grain values, on mill price fixations and other trade buying as well as short covering in thin afternoon activity.

About 40 minutes of trading were left in the day after the assassination attempt on President Reagan was reported. Analysts said the news had scant impact on prices.

"The market continues to tell us that there is no speculative interest and no demand on either the domestic or export front," one analyst said. "But, at the same time, there appears to be a general fear to sell the market."

The analyst added that "some type of news is needed to give the market a spurt one way or the other."

DOMESTIC MILL PURCHASES WERE intermittent last week and consisted mostly of fill-ins, the U. S. Department of Agriculture reported in a weekly review.

A few mills continued to fix prices or take up cotton. Recent purchases consisted mostly of new-crop cotton for prompt to nearby shipment.

Inquiries for western growth increased and a light to moderate volume was bought for fourth quarter shipment. Mills continued to fill product orders already booked but a noticeable slowdown in business remains in evidence.

Recent sales of finished textile goods were spotty. Apparel remained cotton yarn, polyester-cotton printcloth and materials for sports apparel retained the best sellers in an otherwise sluggish market.

Some mills remained on shortened work schedules to hold down product inventories.

UNFIXED CALL SALES TOTALED 1,044,600 bales as of the week ended Thursday, off 29,000 from the previous week, while unfixed call purchases totaled 669,200 bales, up 13,000, according to the weekly report of the Commodity Futures Trading Commission.

A reader inquired Monday about last week's export figures showing — as reported here — shipments for the season of 3,914,400 running bales, against 3,725,900 a year earlier.

The year-earlier figure was incorrect. What was reported as the year-earlier shipments actually was the week-earlier figure for this season. Year-earlier shipments were 5,237,200 running bales.

Recent encouraging developments for Taiwan's textile industry have led a U. S. agricultural attache in Taipei to raise his estimates of the nation's 1980-81 cotton imports and consumption.

The attache said sales of yarn and piece goods to Hong Kong and an order for 40 million yards of mostly high quality cotton cloth from Iran have improved the outlook for Taiwan's sluggish textile industry.

TAIWAN'S 1980-81 COTTON CONSUMPTION was estimated at 1 million bales (480 pounds), an 80,000-bale increase from the previous forecast. Imports now are expected to reach 920,000 bales, up 120,000 from an earlier prediction.

However, the United States probably will not benefit from larger cotton imports because of comparatively high U. S. prices and government import subsidies to buyers of Central American cotton, the attache said.

The U. S. share of Taiwanese cotton imports is expected to be 410,000 to 460,000 bales, a slight percentage decrease from last season, the attache said. The report said trade sources indicated that as much as 100,000 bales of Central American cotton have been imported with the aid of import subsidies.

A DRAFT OF A 10-YEAR PLAN for Taiwan's textile industry has been completed by the nation's Council for Economic Planning and Development, the attache said.

Although not an official document, the plan calls for textile exports to increase 8 percent annually to $8 billion in 1989, up from $4.2 billion in 1980.

Textile production is expected to increase at an annual rate of 5 percent, with more emphasis on high value and quality goods.

Trading on Telcel totaled a meager 824 bales on an average price of 64.80 cents, an average of 2,614 points over the loan, with a market difference of minus 100 points.

Two Lubbock Residents Attend Convention

By LINDA CHAPMAN
Burney Chapman Horseshoeing
Horseshoers have long been a symbol of good luck.

In fact, many believe that a horseshoe placed above the door should be placed with the open end up to "keep the luck from running out."

If you are a farmer, horseshoes represent much more than a source of luck. At least they did at the 10th Annual American Farriers Association convention earlier this year in Albuquerque.

Two Lubbock residents, Burney Chapman and Dwayne Powers, both AFA members, were among the 750 to 1,000 members and others from all over the United States, Mexico, West Germany, Canada, England and Scotland who attended.

The American Farriers Association is composed of professional horseshoers and other interested individuals brought together by several common needs: to inform the horse-owner of the quality and standard of farrier service to which he and his horse are entitled; to provide a means to develop and express policies of the profession to the public and to private organizations; to establish a medium for discussion of mutual problems; and to assist in developing public understanding and appreciation of the horseowner's role and contribution to the use and enjoyment of horses.

Certification of farriers and the approach to professionalism were the high priorities. The goal for 1981 is to design a program that establishes levels of proficiency and accomplishments for the certification of practitioners. As AFA President, Walt Taylor of Albuquerque, addressed the American Association of Equine Practitioners last year, saying: "It is conceivable that this program might be of more value to horsemen than to the farrier, and it should be invaluable to veterinarians, as well. You will be able to refer and/or prescribe in confidence, matching the job to be done with the skill levels of farriers, as attested to by the certification level."

The AFA is working with the U.S. Department of Education and Labor in an effort to establish basic curriculum standards. Liaison continues with the American Horse Council, U.S. Department of Agriculture, individuals and groups in such places as England, Europe and the Republic of China.

Activities and scheduled events at the AFA convention were horseshoeing and forging contests, films, videotapes, triphammer demonstrations and a view of the North American horseshoeing team members in action. The feature event was a 90-minute North American Challenge Cup Futurity with more than 40 entries. Winner of the 1979 Futurity, Bruce Daniels of New Jersey, again came out winner of the Capewell Cup (furnished by the Capewell Horse Nail Co.), a new forge (Centaur Forge Ltd.), a handmade belt buckle and cash of more than $1,000.

Also competing were members of the Texas Professional Farriers Association and 1980 winner, Dr. Doug Butler of Sul Ross University at Alpine. Butler also was a member of the North American Horseshoeing team which competed at the Royal Dublin Horse Show, Farrier Competition, Dublin, Ireland last August.

Convention hosts were the New Mexico Professional Horseshoers Association and AFA president Taylor. Plans for February 1982 convention in Valley Forge, Pa., will be hosted by the Pennsylvania Guild of Professional Horseshoers, Eastern Chapter.

Concluding the three-days of activities were presentations of contest awards and a dance.

KEEPING WATCH — Students in the University Center at Texas Tech University keep posted Monday on developments surrounding the shooting of President Reagan in Washington, D.C. The FBI confirmed that shooting suspect John Warnock Hinckley attended Texas Tech University sporadically between the years 1973 and 1980. He entered Tech as a business administration major but dropped out for a time. (Staff Photo)

Bush Takes Crisis Reins

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President George Bush took up his post as the administration's crisis manager, late Monday, and assured the nation "and a watching world that the American government is functioning fully and effectively" following the shooting of President Reagan.

Bush declared that the President, who underwent surgery hours earlier for removal of a bullet from his chest, "has emerged from this experience with flying colors and with the most optimistic prospects for a complete recovery."

Meanwhile, Bush said in a nationally broadcast statement from the White House: "I can assure this nation and a watching world that the American government is functioning fully and effectively. We've had full and complete communications throughout the day, and the officers of the federal government have been fulfilling their obligations with skill and with care."

agreement is in effect" following the wounding of the chief executive, and pronounced himself in charge at the White House while Bush was en route. Bush canceled an address to the Texas legislature and flew directly to the capital upon learning of the assassination attempt.

Bush went to the White House shortly after his arrival in early evening. Not long thereafter, the president was reported out of surgery, awake, and in "stable condition" following removal of a bullet in his left chest.

On the flight back, House Majority Leader Jim Wright of Texas said Bush told him he found it "utterly incomprehensible that anybody could work up sufficient malice against President Reagan to want him dead."

While Bush was airborne, Haig said that "as of now, I am in control in the White House pending the return of the vice president."

Haig said that in such an emergency, "Constitutionally, you have the president, vice president and secretary of state, in that order." Actually, under law, the secretary of state is fifth in line, behind the vice president, speaker of the House and president pro tem of the Senate.

Reagan only last week named Bush the administration's crisis manager — a role Haig sought for himself. Asked if "crisis management" would be put into effect when Bush arrived, Haig replied: "The crisis management is in effect."

Haig said it was "a fundamentally premature question" to ask if Bush would effectively be acting president.

Bush never left his cabin during the flight. He met with his military aides and congressmen Wright and Republican Jim Collins.

After the plane landed at Andrews Air Force Base, Wright said Bush "demonstrated utterly no lack of self-control."

Wright said Bush learned of the shooting shortly after leaving Fort Worth, where he had addressed the Southwestern Cattle Raisers Convention, enroute to his scheduled appearance in Austin. The plane merely refueled in Austin.

Commendable Mood

"It was 20 to 25 minutes later until we learned the President actually was struck by one of the bullets," Wright said. "The mood of the vice president was one that all Americans would find very commendable."

The vice president's plane taxied into a hangar at Andrews Base immediately boarded a helicopter outside the hangar and flew to his residence, an aide said, before going on to the White House.

The plane took off from Austin at 3:10 p.m. CST for the three-hour flight to Washington.

"We had been airborne about 10 minutes when a Secret Service guy said there had been an attempt on the president's life and two men were down," said Rep. Bill Archer, R-Texas, who also was on board Bush's plane.

"The report was very fragmentary, but our first information was that the president was unharmed. About 10 or 15 minutes before we touched down, we learned the president had been shot, but it seemed that he was in pretty good shape — and even now I'm not sure what the situation is," Archer said.

Texas Gov. Bill Clements and his wife Rita, along with Texas Secretary of State George Strake, went aboard the plane in Austin to speak to Bush during the refueling.

Grateful For Concern

"I know I speak on behalf the president and his family when I say that we are very grateful to all the many people from across this country, who've expressed their concern at this act of violence," Bush said.

Bush expressed "profound concern" for White House press secretary James S. Brady, who was gravely wounded, and for "two brave law enforcement officers who serve to protect the president." The officers also were wounded.

Earlier, as Bush hurriedly returned from a trip to Texas, Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. had assumed interim control.

Haig had declared that "crisis man-

Voter Registration Fraud Suspected

MALLEN (AP) — An investigation has turned up evidence of possible large-scale voter fraud, Mayor Othel Brand said Monday.

Brand, who is up for re-election in balloting, Saturday, told a news conference that computer printouts of voter registration show about 500 duplicate listings.

"I don't think we've scratched the surface," he said.

The voter affidavit forms in question will be given to Hidalgo County District Attorney Robert Salinas, the mayor said. The secretary of state's office in Austin and the FBI also have been notified.

Mine Workers' President Gets Cold Shoulder Over Contract

By The Associated Press

Striking coal miners snubbed United Mine Workers President Sam Church in the union's largest district, Monday, as he made a last bid to sell a proposed contract one day before it goes to the 160,000-member rank and file for a vote.

Meanwhile, trouble flared in southern West Virginia where UMW pickets tried to keep non-union miners from reporting to work. A sheriff's deputy was struck in the face by a rock and a picket was charged with malicious wounding, authorities said.

Mingo County Circuit Judge John Bronson later issued a temporary restraining order against the striking miners, limiting to three the number of pickets who may gather at each mine entrance.

Showdown With Critics

Church was in West Virginia at the end of a five-day tour of the coalfields for a showdown with critics of the proposed contract, but most of the miners he wanted to reach stayed home.

Only about 50 of the 26,000 members of UMW District 17 showed up in Charleston to hear him defend his settlement, which will be put to the membership for a ratification vote Tuesday.

"I think the men just don't want to hear that," said Alum Creek, W. Va., miner Bill Kirk.

"Everybody's gone fishing," added district lobbyist Frank Thurman.

"They've already asked all the questions they have."

Turnout was higher but the reception equally cool at a subsequent rally in Beckley, W. Va., where several hundred miners from the 24,000-member District 29 showed up. Church said he was not pleased with union concessions, but that the contract is the best that could be negotiated.

"I feel like a great many of you do," Church said. "It wasn't our choice."

Benefits Increase

The proposed contract calls for a 36 percent increase in benefits and wages over three years. Opposition has centered mainly on other features, including provisions to let coal operators sublet mines to non-union operations and to discontinue royalties they pay when they process non-union coal.

Union officials hope to know the results of the voting by 10 p.m. Tuesday, once locals have telephoned the results in to headquarters in Washington, D.C.

Some UMW officials said they think the contract's opponents have simply been more visible than its supporters.

"They're going to take a chance with the contract because they're afraid they may not get another one," predicted John Darcus, vice president of District 31.

The rock throwing came as about 200 UMW members picketed a Marrowbone Development Corp. mine near Delbar-

Four Hijackers Die In Hostage Rescue

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Indonesian troops swarmed onto a parked Indonesian jetliner in early morning darkness, Tuesday, killed four of the five hijackers who had held 55 people hostage, and after a three-minute gunbattle set the captives free, a Thai spokesman said.

Indonesian officials said none of the hostages was killed, denying the Thai government's earlier report that a 4-year-old boy had died in the attack. Two Americans were among those held.

Meanwhile, Karl Schneider, a former Lubbock resident wounded by the hijackers during an escape attempt, was reported to be doing well.

"Much Improved"

Schneider's sister, Mrs. Lois Wilcoxson, 5409-B Temple St., said Monday afternoon that she and her mother, Mrs. Grace Porter, 3605 61st St., received word from the State Department, Monday morning, that Schneider is "much improved."

"If he continues to progress as well as he has so far, he'll be moved to a Singapore hospital in a week or so," Mrs. Wilcoxson said.

Schneider is experiencing some numbness in his back, Mrs. Wilcoxson said, but doctors told officials of his employer, the Milchem Company, that it could be from the surgery to recover the bullet. Schneider reportedly can move his legs in spite of early fears of paralysis.

"It may have been the best thing" for him to try to escape, Mrs. Wilcoxson added. "Especially in light of what happened."

At 2:40 a.m. local time, about 20 soldiers crossed the airfield, thrust ladders against the plane's fuselage and several of the men clambered onto the wings, witnesses said.

Machinegun Fire

The troops forced open two doors and burst inside. Witnesses said machinegun fire was heard.

Spokesman Trairong Suwankiri said one commando and the chief pilot were wounded. He said all others aboard had been "saved" but did not say if there were other injuries. He would not elaborate.

Three of the hijackers were killed outright and a fourth was mortally wounded, dying later at a local hospital, Thai and Indonesian officials said.

The two Americans, a Japanese and a Dutchman among the hostages were reported unharmed. Thai officials identified one American as Ralph Donald Hunt, 28, from Houston, and Thomas Heischman, about 45, of Carmel, Calif. An embassy source said both were "totally unscathed and in our custody."

ton, W. Va., according to Mingo County Sheriff Johnie Owens. He said deputies and state police had gone to the mine after pickets began throwing rocks at the cars of non-union miners.

Second Incident

The injured deputy, Jim Gilman, needed four stitches but was not hurt seriously, Owens said. A similar rock-throwing incident had been reported at the mine when the UMW went on strike, Friday.

Church appeared tired and edgy on the last leg of his tour of the coalfields, which took him to eight states. In Charleston, he parried questions from miners concerned about the contract's effect on union security.

Bill Honick, a local union president from Comfort, W. Va., said his president was getting ready to sublet two mines to non-union operators. He wanted to know if the company could do that.

"Yes," replied Church, "but I'm sure your local wouldn't put up with it."

"We'll just have to organize those non-union operations. We have increased our non-union (organizing) staff from 40 to 63, and we'll be sending organizers to these mines."

Later, Church described the session as "a good, constructive meeting."

As he left, he told the miners: "Brother, you can reflect your opinion with your vote. If you reject this, I'll just have to go back and try again."

General Strike Called Off After Polish Accord

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Independent labor leaders on Monday called off a nationwide general strike that had threatened this Soviet bloc nation with its worst crisis in months of political and economic strife.

The decision to suspend a walkout, scheduled for Tuesday, came after nearly seven hours of talks between Lech Walesa, leader of the independent union Solidarity, and Deputy Premier Mieczyslaw Rakowski. At issue were several union demands, especially punishment of those responsible for injuring three union members in a beating March 19 at Bydgoszcz, 170 miles northwest of Warsaw.

The government agreed to suspend people responsible for the beating, Polish television said.

"Common sense and moderation have won," said Walesa after the talks.

Maneuvers Extended

Rakowski had warned that a strike could be "catastrophic" and bring the nation to "the threshold of a precipice." Warsaw Pact military maneuvers have been in progress in and around Poland and reportedly had been extended because of the situation.

Polish, Soviet and East German troops simulated opposing an enemy landing, Monday, along the Polish Baltic coast, the East German news agency ADN said.

In Washington, President Reagan's press secretary James F. Brady said that "suppression" in Poland would force a cut-off of U.S. economic aid. (Brady was wounded along with Reagan in a shooting in Washington, later in the day.)

Brady said Reagan and West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt had discussed the situation in a 15-minute transatlantic call.

He said both leaders felt "that in the event suppression is applied from either external or internal (sources) it would be impossible to render further economic assistance to Poland."

Warnings Supported

He added that the statement "firms up" administration warnings last week aimed at preventing Soviet intervention.

"Tomorrow we go to work," said Andrzej Gwiazda, second in command of the union's estimated 10 million worker members.

A formal decision calling off the strike was left to the union's 55-member national coordinating commission, which was expected to go along at a meeting, Tuesday, barring unforeseen developments.

Walesa said he was satisfied with "70 percent of the agreement," hammered out in the talks but that the union did not get all it wanted, including registration of an independent union of farmers.

The agreement, read over Polish television by an announcer, said the government would suspend people responsible for the beatings after an investigation of the incident. It also said special police units were withdrawn from Bydgoszcz.

"The use of police was contrary to accepted and observed political solutions," the agreement said, referring to police removing Solidarity members who had refused to leave a government meeting.

But it also said the authorities fear that their refusal to leave the meeting had provided "certain justification of the action."

Other points included:

- Accelerating work on a new union statute codifying aspects of last summer's agreements.
- Question of registration of an independent farmers' union, although left ungranted, will be studied by a parliamentary commission.
- The government will send a delegation to study farmers' grievances that sparked a sit-in, three weeks ago in Bydgoszcz.
- The agreement said a special government commission will study union demands for ending prosecution of dissidents, and the government would grant workers full rather than half strike pay for last Friday's strikes if Tuesday's strike was called off.

The union had threatened an indefinite general strike starting at 6 a.m. Tuesday (10 p.m. CST tonight).

As the strike deadline had approached, Warsaw was outwardly calm, but people flocked in droves into food stores to buy bread and whatever else was available following a wave of panic buying preceding a four-hour warning strike last Friday.

As they did last summer during strikes and strike threats, drivers formed lines hundreds of yards at filling stations, hedging against the possibility that they would be closed today.

Trio Killed In Rioting In Calcutta

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Thousands of demonstrators fought with Calcutta police, Monday, in a riot that left at least three people dead, more than 1,000 injured and 768 under arrest, news agencies said. It was the worst violence so far in West Bengal's political conflict.

Supporters of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi paralyzed central Calcutta with a demonstration against the state's communist government and stormed a police cordoned around the governor's palace, the agencies said.

Police opened fire into the crowd when 56 teargas shells failed to halt the rock-throwing demonstrators, according to Jyoti Basu, West Bengal's communist chief minister.

Congress Members

The demonstrators belonged to Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's Congress Party, which in West Bengal forms the opposition to the Marxist coalition state government.

Monday's violence was the most serious outbreak so far in a series of confrontations between pro-Gandhi Congress workers and the state political machine led by Basu's Marxist Communist Party and other Marxist groups.

Ranjan Bhattacharya, a Calcutta Congress leader, charged that police shot and killed six "innocent party supporters," but Chief Minister Basu said three bodies had been recovered and only one death by gunfire was confirmed.

The Congress Party demonstration was called to demand dismissal of the state government because of "deteriorating law and order" in West Bengal, placing of Marxists in the administration and the recent dropping of English as a second language in primary schools.

Park Battlefield

Calcutta's central esplanade and Curzon Park, named after a former British viceroy of India, turned into a battlefield as demonstrators hurling stones tried to fight past police barring the way to prohibited areas, reports from the city said.

Police swung their cane clubs and fired tear gas, and demonstrators set fire to vehicles and two city streetcars. The crowds dispersed after police opened fire, the reports said.

The 768 arrested included Asoke Sen, one-time law minister of the Indian government, and several former members of the Congress Party state Cabinet which ruled West Bengal before the communists came to power in 1977, the United News of India reported.

Most of those injured were treated at aid stations and released.

West Bengal officials have accused Mrs. Gandhi's party of provoking violence in Calcutta as an excuse for dismissal of the state government.

dent, and the government would grant workers full rather than half strike pay for last Friday's strikes if Tuesday's strike was called off.

The union had threatened an indefinite general strike starting at 6 a.m. Tuesday (10 p.m. CST tonight).

As the strike deadline had approached, Warsaw was outwardly calm, but people flocked in droves into food stores to buy bread and whatever else was available following a wave of panic buying preceding a four-hour warning strike last Friday.

As they did last summer during strikes and strike threats, drivers formed lines hundreds of yards at filling stations, hedging against the possibility that they would be closed today.

Information Service Work Halt Ordered

AUSTIN (AP) — A Texas District judge has ordered Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. to stop preparations for consumer testing of its Electronic Information Service, a computerized home information retrieval system.

Southwestern Bell said Monday its lawyers were still studying the March 20 decision by Judge Charles Mathews and had not decided whether to appeal the ruling.

Mathews agreed with the Texas Public Utility Commission that Bell should take no further action with regard to testing of the electronic service until the PUC can hold a public hearing. He said the PUC has the authority to grant or deny a certificate to carry out the project.

Another Battle

In Washington, meanwhile, the American Newspaper Publishers Association announced that it was joining a legal battle to keep American Telephone & Telegraph Co., the world's largest telephone company, out of the information business.

The ANPA said it would seek to intervene formally April 13 when AT&T asks for U.S. District Court permission to enter the field of electronic news delivery.

The Texas Daily Newspaper Association challenged the Austin experiment and won the PUC decision to hold full public hearings before allowing it to proceed.

More than 700 homes and businesses would take part in the experiment, free of charge, if the PUC gives the go-ahead, Bell said.

Computer terminals would be installed in businesses and homes, and users could call up on their screens such information as telephone numbers and advertising by about 2,400 merchants.

Advantage Seen

The TDNA contends that Bell's monopoly control over telephone lines and equipment would give Bell an unfair advantage over possible competitors in the fledgling computerized home information business. Among the possible competitors are Readers Digest, American Express, H&R Block and the A.H. Belo Corp., parent company of the Dallas Morning News.

During the hearing before Mathews, Dennis Sullivan, assistant AT&T vice president, said the company had no intention of producing news, weather and sports.

Sullivan said "billions of dollars" in revenue would be realized if the home information service succeeds.

He said Bell has invested $20 million testing the service, including $6.2 million preparing for the Austin experiment. AT&T also has run tests in Albany, N.Y., and Coral Gables, Fla.

KEEPING WATCH — Students in the University Center at Texas Tech University keep posted Monday on developments surrounding the shooting of President Reagan in Washington, D.C. The FBI confirmed that shooting suspect John Warnock Hinckley attended Texas Tech University sporadically between the years 1973 and 1980. He entered Tech as a business administration major but dropped out for a time. (Staff Photo)

Bush Takes Crisis Reins

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President George Bush took up his post as the administration's crisis manager late Monday and assured the nation "and a watching world that the American government is functioning fully and effectively" following the shooting of President Reagan.

Bush declared that the President, who underwent surgery hours earlier for removal of a bullet from his chest, "has emerged from this experience with flying colors and with the most optimistic prospects for a complete recovery."

Meanwhile, Bush said in a nationally broadcast statement from the White House, "I can assure this nation and a watching world that the American government is functioning fully and effectively. We've had full and complete communications throughout the day, and the officers of the federal government have been fulfilling their obligations with skill and with care."

Grateful For Concern
"I know I speak on behalf of the president and his family when I say that we are very grateful to all the many people from across this country, who've expressed their concern at this act of violence," Bush said.

Bush expressed "profound concern" for White House press secretary James S. Brady, who was gravely wounded, and for "two brave law enforcement officers who serve to protect the president." The officers also were wounded.

Earlier, as Bush hurriedly returned from a trip to Texas, Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. had assumed interim control.

Haig had declared that "crisis management is in effect" following the wounding of the chief executive, and pronounced himself in charge at the White House while Bush was en route. Bush canceled an address to the Texas legislature and flew directly to the capital upon learning of the assassination attempt.

Bush went to the White House shortly after his arrival in early evening. Not long thereafter, the president was reported out of surgery, awake, and in "stable condition" following removal of a bullet in his left chest.

On the flight back, House Majority Leader Jim Wright of Texas said Bush told him he found it "utterly incomprehensible that anybody could work up sufficient malice against President Reagan to want him dead."

While Bush was airborne, Haig said that "as of now, I am in control in the White House pending the return of the vice president."

Haig said that in such an emergency, "Constitutionally, you have the president, vice president and secretary of state, in that order." Actually, under law, the secretary of state is fifth in line, behind the vice president, speaker of the House and president pro tem of the Senate.

Reagan only last week named Bush the administration's crisis manager — a role Haig sought for himself. Asked if "crisis management" would be put into effect when Bush arrived, Haig replied, "The crisis management is in effect."

Haig said it was "a fundamentally premature question" to ask if Bush would effectively be acting president.

Bush never left his cabin during the flight. He met with his military aides and congressmen Wright and Republican Jim Collins.

After the plane landed at Andrews Air Force Base, Haig said Bush "demonstrated utterly no lack of self-control."

Wright said Bush learned of the shooting shortly after leaving Fort Worth, where he had addressed the Southwestern Cattle Raisers Convention, enroute to his scheduled appearance in Austin. The plane merely refueled in Austin.

Commendable Mood
It was 20 to 25 minutes later until we learned the President actually was struck by one of the bullets, Wright said. "The mood of the vice president was one that all Americans would find very commendable."

The vice president's plane taxied into a hangar at Andrews. Bush immediately boarded a helicopter outside the hangar and flew to his residence, an aide said, before going on to the White House.

The plane took off from Austin at 3:10 p.m. CST for the three-hour flight to Washington.

"We had been airborne about 10 minutes when a Secret Service guy said there had been an attempt on the president's life and two men were down," said Rep. Bill Archer, R-Texas, who also was on board Bush's plane.

"The report was very fragmentary, but our first information was that the president was unharmed. About 10 or 15 minutes before we touched down, we learned the president had been shot, but it seemed that he was in pretty good shape — and even now I'm not sure what the situation is," Archer said.

Texas Gov. Bill Clements and his wife Rita, along with Texas Secretary of State George Strake, went aboard the plane in Austin to speak to Bush during the refueling.

Four Hijackers Die In Hostage Rescue

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Indonesian troops swarmed onto a parked Indonesian jetliner in early morning darkness Tuesday, killed four of the five hijackers who had held 55 people hostage and after a three-minute gunbattle set the captives free, a Thai spokesman said.

Indonesian officials said none of the hostages was killed, denying the Thai government's earlier report that a 4-year-old boy had died in the attack. Two Americans were among those held.

Meanwhile, Karl Schneider, a former Lubbock resident wounded by the hijackers during an escape attempt, was reported to be doing well.

"Much Improved"
Schneider's sister, Mrs. Lois Wilcoxson, 5409-B Temple St., said Monday afternoon that she and her mother, Mrs. Grace Porter, 3605 61st St., received word from the State Department, Monday morning, that Schneider is "much improved."

"If he continues to progress as well as he has so far, he'll be moved to a Singapore hospital in a week or so," Mrs. Wilcoxson said.

Schneider is experiencing some numbness in his back, Mrs. Wilcoxson said, but doctors told officials of his employer, the Milchem Company, that it could be from the surgery to recover the bullet. Schneider reportedly can move his legs in spite of early fears of paralysis.

"It may have been the best thing" for him to try to escape, Mrs. Wilcoxson added. "Especially in light of what happened."

At 2:40 a.m. local time, about 20 soldiers crossed the airfield, thrust ladders against the plane's fuselage and several of the men clambered onto the wings, witnesses said.

Machinist Fire
The troops forced open two doors and burst inside. Witnesses said machinegun fire was heard.

Spokesman Trairong Suwankiri said one commando and the chief pilot were wounded. He said all others aboard had been "saved" but did not say if there were other injuries. He would not elaborate.

Three of the hijackers were killed outright and a fourth was mortally wounded, dying later at a local hospital, Thai and Indonesian officials said.

The two Americans, a Japanese and a Dutchman among the hostages were reported unharmed. Thai officials identified one American as Ralph Donald Hunt, 28, from Houston, and Thomas Heischman, about 45, of Carmel, Calif. An embassy source said both were "totally unscathed and in our custody."

General Strike Called Off After Polish Accord

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Independent labor leaders on Monday called off a nationwide general strike that had threatened this Soviet bloc nation with its worst crisis in months of political and economic strife.

The decision to suspend a walkout, scheduled for Tuesday, came after nearly seven hours of talks between Lech Walesa, leader of the independent union Solidarity, and Deputy Premier Mieczyslaw Rakowski. At issue were several union demands, especially punishment of those responsible for injuring three union members in a beating March 19 at Bydgoszcz, 170 miles northwest of Warsaw.

The government agreed to suspend people responsible for the beating, Polish television said.

"Common sense and moderation have won," said Walesa after the talks.

Maneuvers Extended
Rakowski had warned that a strike could be "catastrophic" and bring the nation to "the threshold of a precipice."

Warsaw Pact military maneuvers have been in progress in and around Poland and reportedly had been extended because of the situation.

Polish, Soviet and East German troops simulated opposing an enemy landing, Monday, along the Polish Baltic coast, the East German news agency ADN said.

In Washington, President Reagan's press secretary James F. Brady said that "suppression" in Poland would force a cut-off of U.S. economic aid. (Brady was wounded along with Reagan in a shooting in Washington, later in the day.)

Brady said Reagan and West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt had discussed the situation in a 15-minute transatlantic call.

He said both leaders felt "that in the event suppression is applied from either external or internal sources) it would be impossible to render further economic assistance to Poland."

Warnings Supported
He added that the statement "firms up" administration warnings last week aimed at preventing Soviet intervention. "Tomorrow we go to work," said Andrzej Gwiazda, second in command of the union's estimated 10 million worker members.

A formal decision calling off the strike was left to the union's 55-member national coordinating commission, which was expected to go along at a meeting, Tuesday, barring unforeseen developments.

Walesa said he was satisfied with "70 percent of the agreement," hammered out in the talks but that the union did not get all it wanted, including registration of an independent union of farmers.

The agreement, read over Polish television by an announcer, said the government would suspend people responsible for the beatings after an investigation of the incident. It also said special police units were withdrawn from Bydgoszcz.

"The use of police was contrary to accepted and observed political solutions," the agreement said, referring to police removing Solidarity members who had refused to leave a government meeting.

But it also said the authorities fear that their refusal to leave the meeting had provided "certain justification of the action."

Other points included:
—Accelerating work on a new union statute codifying aspects of last summer's agreements.

—Question of registration of an independent farmers' union, although left ungranted, will be studied by a parliamentary commission.

—The government will send a delegation to study farmers' grievances that sparked a sit-in, three weeks ago in Bydgoszcz.

The agreement said a special government commission will study union demands for ending prosecution of dissi-idents, and the government would grant workers full rather than half strike pay for last Friday's strikes if Tuesday's strike was called off.

The union had threatened an indefinite general strike starting at 6 a.m. Tuesday (10 p.m. CST tonight).

As the strike deadline had approached, Warsaw was outwardly calm, but people flocked in droves into food stores to buy bread and whatever else was available following a wave of panic buying preceding a four-hour warning strike last Friday.

As they did last summer during strikes and strike threats, drivers formed lines hundreds of yards long at filling stations, hedging against the possibility that they would be closed today.

Trio Killed In Rioting In Calcutta

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Thousands of demonstrators fought with Calcutta police, Monday, in a riot that left at least three people dead, more than 1,000 injured and 768 under arrest, news agencies said. It was the worst violence so far in West Bengal's political conflict.

Supporters of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi paralyzed central Calcutta with a demonstration against the state's communist government and stormed a police cordon around the governor's palace, the agencies said.

Police opened fire into the crowd when 56 teargas shells failed to halt the rock-throwing demonstrators, according to Jyoti Basu, West Bengal's communist chief minister.

Congress Members
The demonstrators belonged to Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's Congress Party, which in West Bengal forms the opposition to the Marxist coalition state government.

Monday's violence was the most serious outbreak so far in a series of confrontations between pro-Gandhi Congress workers and the state political machine led by Basu's Marxist Communist Party and other Marxist groups.

Ranjan Bhattacharya, a Calcutta Congress leader, charged that police shot and killed six "innocent party supporters," but Chief Minister Basu said three bodies had been recovered and only one death by gunfire was confirmed.

The Congress Party demonstration was called to demand dismissal of the state government because of "deteriorating law and order" in West Bengal, placing of Marxists in the administration and the recent dropping of English as a second language in primary schools.

Park Battlefield
Calcutta's central esplanade and Curzon Park, named after a former British viceroy of India, turned into a battlefield as demonstrators hurling stones tried to fight past police barring the way to prohibited areas, reports from the city said.

Police swung their cane clubs and fired tear gas, and demonstrators set fire to vehicles and two city streets. The crowds dispersed after police opened fire, the reports said.

The 768 arrested included Asoke Sen, onetime law minister of the Indian government, and several former members of the Congress Party state Cabinet which ruled West Bengal before the communists came to power in 1977, the United News of India reported.

Most of those injured were treated at aid stations and released.

West Bengal officials have accused Mrs. Gandhi's party of provoking violence in Calcutta as an excuse for dismissal of the state government.

Voter Registration Fraud Suspected

MALLEN (AP) — An investigation has turned up evidence of possible large-scale voter fraud, Mayor Othal Brand said Monday.

Brand, who is up for re-election in balloting, Saturday, told a news conference that computer printouts of voter registration show about 500 duplicate listings.

"I don't think we've scratched the surface," he said.

The voter affidavit forms in question will be given to Hidalgo County District Attorney Robert Salinas, the mayor said. The secretary of state's office in Austin and the FBI also have been notified.

Mine Workers' President Gets Cold Shoulder Over Contract

By The Associated Press
Striking coal miners snubbed United Mine Workers President Sam Church in the union's largest district, Monday, as he made a last bid to sell a proposed contract one day before it goes to the 160,000-member rank and file for a vote.

Meanwhile, trouble flared in southern West Virginia where UMW pickets tried to keep non-union miners from reporting to work. A sheriff's deputy was struck in the face by a rock and a picket was charged with malicious wounding, authorities said.

Mingo County Circuit Judge John Bronson later issued a temporary restraining order against the striking miners, limiting to three the number of pickets who may gather at each mine entrance.

Showdown With Critics
Church was in West Virginia at the end of a five-day tour of the coalfields for a showdown with critics of the proposed contract, but most of the miners he wanted to reach stayed home.

Only about 50 of the 26,000 members of UMW District 17 showed up in Charleston to hear him defend his settlement, which will be put to the membership for a ratification vote Tuesday.

"I think the men just don't want to hear that," said Alum Creek, W. Va., miner Bill Kirk.

"Everybody's gone fishing," added district lobbyist Frank Thurman.

"They've already asked all the questions they have."

Turnout was higher but the reception equally cool at a subsequent rally in Beckley, W. Va., where several hundred miners from the 24,000-member District 29 showed up. Church said he was not pleased with union concessions, but that the contract is the best that could be negotiated.

"I feel like a great many of you do," Church said. "It wasn't our choice."

Benefits Increase
The proposed contract calls for a 36 percent increase in benefits and wages over three years. Opposition has centered mainly on other features, including provisions to let coal operators sublet mines to non-union operations and to discontinue royalties they pay when they process non-union coal.

Union officials hope to know the results of the voting by 10 p.m. Tuesday, once locals have telephoned the results in to headquarters in Washington, D.C.

Some UMW officials said they think the contract's opponents have simply been more visible than its supporters.

"They're going to take a chance with the contract because they're afraid they may not get another one," predicted John Darcus, vice president of District 31.

The rock throwing came as about 200 UMW members picketed a Marrowbone Development Corp. mine near Delbar-ton, W. Va., according to Mingo County Sheriff Johnie Owens. He said deputies and state police had gone to the mine after pickets began throwing rocks at the cars of non-union miners.

Second Incident
The injured deputy, Jim Gilman, needed four stitches but was not hurt seriously, Owens said. A similar rock-throwing incident had been reported at the mine when the UMW went on strike, Friday.

Church appeared tired and edgy on the last leg of his tour of the coalfields, which took him to eight states. In Charleston, he parried questions from miners concerned about the contract's effect on union security.

Bill Honick, a local union president from Comfort, W. Va., said his company was getting ready to sublet two mines to non-union operators. He wanted to know if the company could do that.

"Yes," replied Church, "but I'm sure your local wouldn't put up with it."

"We'll just have to organize those non-union operations. We have increased our non-union (organizing) staff from 40 to 63, and we'll be sending organizers to these mines."

Later, Church described the session as "a good, constructive meeting."

As he left, he told the miners, "Brother, you can reflect your opinion with your vote. If you reject this, I'll just have to go back and try again."

Shocked Solons Decry Assassination Attempt

GUNS DRAWN — An unidentified secret agent, automatic weapon drawn, yells orders after shots were fired at President Reagan Monday outside a Washington hotel. (AP Laserphoto)

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate halted legislative business Monday as shocked legislators were told that President Reagan had been shot. Shaken lawmakers then prayed with the rest of the nation and some called for gun control and measures to protect presidents.

Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., said the "general atmosphere of all of us is one of shock and horror."

He said news of the 1963 assassination of President John F. Kennedy seemed "like only a month ago."

Sen. Edward Kennedy, who lost two brothers to assassinations, spoke briefly on the floor of the Senate before the recess.

"With our prayers for those who have been wounded today must go our resolution to rid our society of violence and to commit ourselves to do everything that we possibly can to eliminate hatred and the causes which contribute to hatred in our society," he said.

"Violence and hatred have no place in our society or in our country. They know no partisanship, they know no party, they know no rationality. Nonetheless, we see it continue in our society and in our country," Kennedy said.

Shortly after news organizations reported the president had been wounded, Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. recessed the Senate, citing the "gravity" of the situation.

The House already had finished its business for the day before the president was shot.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., who is in the constitutional line of succession to the president immediately after the vice president, was in a meeting in his office when notified of the shooting.

O'Neill watched developments on his office television with aides. He issued a statement, saying: "I am shocked that this has happened and I join all Americans in praying for the president and the others who were injured."

In Georgia, former President Carter's office issued a statement saying he was "anxiously awaiting further word on President Reagan's condition and that of the others wounded. He and Mrs. Carter join the entire nation in prayer for the well being of all those wounded and for their families."

Former Vice President Walter Mondale said he and his wife

Joan "share all America's outrage at the terrible violence we have witnessed today... Such needless acts are visited not just on our president or other officials, they strike all Americans. The nation weeps that such cruelty continue."

Sen. Charles H. Percy, chairman of the Senate Foreign Affairs Committee, said that he believes Monday's shooting will result in stepped-up security, meaning presidents no longer will be allowed to mix as freely with the public.

"To deprive him of the chance to meet with people and be with people and exchange ideas with them, even if it's just a quick thought, is just a tragedy," Percy said. "The long-term consequences are just a very, very grave."

Senators were debating a legislative blueprint for achieving budget reductions recommended by the president when the news came.

Baker told a hushed chamber that Reagan had been wounded. He then recessed the Senate while awaiting further word on Reagan's condition.

Shortly before 6 p.m., after being told Reagan was still in surgery, Baker sent word to the senators to return for a brief session.

Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., an ordained Episcopal minister, closed the Senate session with a prayer for Reagan, asking God to "look upon him with the eyes of Thy mercy." He also offered a prayer for those wounded along with Reagan and a prayer for the nation.

Baker said the Senate would reconvene at 9:30 a.m. today. Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., the assistant Democratic leader of the Senate, said he was chatting with Sen. S.I. Hayakawa, R-Calif., when Sen. J. James Exon, D-Neb., walked by and said the president had been shot at but apparently not hit.

Cranston said he went immediately to the Democratic cloak room, just off the Senate floor, to watch television accounts of the assassination attempt.

Cranston said Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., stood by the television set and turned the dial from channel to channel as the senators watched in silence. Hart winced when it was announced that the man arrested at the scene of the shooting was from Colorado, Cranston said.

Citizens Voice Anger, Disbelief Over Shooting

By The Associated Press

In bars, on subways, at work and in their homes, Americans gathered in shock, sadness and anger Monday as word flashed across the land that President Reagan had been shot and wounded.

Public officials called for increased gun control and tighter presidential security, with one saying the shooting was "an instant replay of an American nightmare."

Prayer services were hastily called as the president underwent surgery in a Washington hospital. A hospital spokesman said Reagan was in "stable and good condition" after the surgery.

"God, keep him alive," was the prayer Anna Dresel, of Danbury, Conn., offered at St. Patrick's Cathedral in New York City.

The New York and American stock exchanges halted trading minutes after hearing the news. Senate Republican leader Howard Baker adjourned the Senate, which had been considering Reagan's tax cut package.

And organizers of the 53rd Academy Awards ceremony decided to postpone the nationally televised program for 24 hours. ABC said it will be broadcast live Tuesday night.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., whose two brothers were assassinated in the 1960s, declared: "With our prayers I think must go our resolution to rid our society of hatred. Violence and hatred are alien to everything this country is about."

Trinity Church on Copley Square in Boston scheduled an evening service to pray for the president. Trinity Episcopal Cathedral in Pittsburgh began conducting public prayer services at 30-minute intervals and special services were scheduled for Tuesday.

The Rev. Robert B. Hall entered the sanctuary of St. Paul's Episcopal Cathedral in Oklahoma City and announced that shots had been fired at the president. About 30 people who had been viewing a 765-year-old copy of the Magna Carta, which went on display Monday, knelt and Hall led them in prayer.

People began to gather around television sets and newsstands Monday afternoon for the latest word on the shootings, which also wounded presidential press secretary James Brady, a Secret Service agent and a local police officer.

A moment of silence "for the recovery of our president" was observed prior to the start of the consolation game in the NCAA basketball championships in Philadelphia. And the announcer at an exhibition baseball game in Winter Haven, Fla., between Detroit and Boston also asked for a moment of silence.

John Anderson, independent candidate for president in 1980, called the attack "cruel and violent." He said it was like "a mental flashback of what happened in 1963 when President Kennedy was shot."

"You know, the numbing horror... to know that he has been assaulted in this cruel and violent and apparently senseless manner that he has literally made your blood run cold," he said.

In a statement issued by his Atlanta office, former President Jimmy Carter said he and his wife "join the entire nation in prayer for the well-being of all those wounded and for their families."

Evangelist Billy Graham flew to Washington, saying "this shocking event is a grim reminder that violence has become part of daily life in America. We have lost sight of what is right and wrong, and we have come to value life cheaply."

In London, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, who visited Washington last month, sent a personal message to the president, saying she was "very distressed" and "praying" he was not seriously wounded.

John Connally, who himself was wounded in the 1963 assassination of President John F. Kennedy, said he was "terribly upset, grieved and then outraged" when he heard about the shootings. Another of those injured, Brady, was press aide for Connolly in the former treasury secretary's bid for the Republican presidential nomination.

"There are far too many guns in the hands of far too many people," Circuit Judge James Bales, a boyhood friend of Reagan's, said in the president's hometown of Dixon, Ill.

Colorado Gov. Richard Lamm called the shooting "a tragedy for the whole nation and a double tragedy for Colorado." The man taken into custody in the shooting was from Colorado, authorities said.

"One of the things Reagan has done is get out among the people," Lamm said. "If an assassination attempt has a chilling effect on this openness, even if we write the best possible scenario, it's bound to have a negative effect on the whole American political scene."

Pennsylvania Gov. Dick Thornburgh, in the state's Washington office, said he was "shocked and saddened by this attempt on the life of our president. Like other Pennsylvanians, I am praying for him and for the other victims of this senseless act."

"I'm shocked. Just shocked and saddened," said Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz. "It was as though we were watching an instant replay of an American nightmare."

Rep. Stan Parris, R-Va., a friend of Brady, said he would introduce a bill Tuesday to extend the penalties for killing or wounding law enforcement officers protecting the president to members of the cabinet and the president's immediate staff, including the White House press secretary.

"Attempts to assassinate the president are becoming a reappearing national nightmare," he said. "We as a people must do everything we can to stop this periodic horror."

Governors, members of Congress and state and local officials across the country expressed sorrow and said they were praying for the president and the others wounded.

"I'm sitting here with chills," said Joseph P. Merlino, president of the New Jersey Senate. "Reagan, Lennon, Wallace, Kennedy, King... when are we going to learn? I don't need any more of those incidents to convince me on gun control."

"The president was walking on the street, just like anybody else. Today the president. Tomorrow it could be you or me."

President's Prospects 'Excellent'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Doctors made a six-inch incision across President Reagan's chest Monday and removed a bullet from the chief executive's lung during a two-hour operation.

The president was said to be in "stable and good condition" with an "excellent" prognosis for recovery, a spokesman for George Washington University Hospital said.

The president was shot Monday afternoon as he left a Washington hotel where he had delivered a speech to a labor gathering. His press secretary, James Brady, was gravely wounded in the attack and two lawmen also were shot.

Dr. Dennis O'Leary of the hospital said a single bullet had entered Reagan's chest, ricocheted off his seventh rib and penetrated three inches into the lower left lobe of his lung.

"He was at no time in any serious danger," said O'Leary of the 70-year-old president.

The bullet was removed and then the incision was closed. He is stable and in good condition. The prognosis is excellent," O'Leary told reporters shortly after 6:30 p.m. CST.

He said the operation took two hours because the surgeons spent part of the time ascertaining that Reagan had no blood in his abdomen, "and indeed he had not."

O'Leary said surgeons made a six-inch incision from just beneath the left nipple to the armpit.

He called Reagan "an excellent physical specimen. We do not anticipate any problems." He said the president was likely to be in moderate pain for a day or two, but could not predict how long he would be hospitalized.

O'Leary said Reagan did not suffer any permanent injury.

He said the president was given five units of blood before surgery, but none during surgery.

Bill Hobby (dark suit) and Texas House Speaker Bill Clayton are on the right. Others are members of the Texas Senate. Zero-Ending Election Year Hex Seen

NEW YORK (AP) — From William Henry Harrison in 1840 to John F. Kennedy in 1960, seven consecutive presidents elected in years ending with a zero have died in office. Four of them were assassinated.

Kennedy was killed Nov. 22, 1963, when he was struck by slugs from a high-powered rifle as his motorcade moved through downtown Dallas. Lee Harvey Oswald, arrested for the murder, was shot to death two days later by nightclub owner Jack Ruby. The Warren Commission later said Oswald had acted alone.

Franklin Delano Roosevelt, elected in 1940 to the third of his four terms, died of natural causes on April 12, 1945 at his retreat in Warm Springs, Ga. He was a victim of polio before he was elected to his first term in 1932.

Warren Harding, elected in 1920, died Aug. 2, 1923, of an undetermined illness. No autopsy was held, and doctors said they did not know the exact cause of death.

William McKinley, elected to his second term in 1900, died on Sept. 14, 1901, eight days after he was shot by Leon Czolgosz, an avowed anarchist, in Buffalo, N.Y.

James Garfield, elected in 1880, was shot in Washington by Charles Giteau, described as a disappointed office seeker, on July 2, 1881, three months after his inauguration. He died on Sept. 19, 1881.

Abraham Lincoln, elected to the first of his two terms in 1860, was shot by Confederate partisan John Wilkes Booth at Ford's Theater on April 14, 1865. Lincoln died the next day.

William Henry Harrison, the first president to die in office, was elected in 1840, and came down with pneumonia a week after he was sworn into office. He died three weeks later, on April 4, 1841.

The only other president to die in office was Zachary Taylor, who was elected in 1848 and died of cholera in mid-1850 after 16 months in office.

Transfer Of Power Never Considered

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the first anxious hours after President Reagan was felled by an assailant's bullet Monday, Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. told reporters he had assumed command of the government.

"As of now, I am in control, here in the White House, pending the return of the vice president and I am in close touch with him," Haig said.

"The crisis management is in effect," Haig told reporters, alluding to last week's row between Haig and the White House over whether he or Vice President George Bush should be in charge of a team Reagan created to handle foreign or national emergencies.

When Reagan gave the job to Bush, Haig was pictured by his associates as pounding the table in frustration and anger.

Haig made his White House appearance while Bush was in Texas, where he had planned to make two speeches. Bush hurried back to Washington to take charge of the crisis but the power of the presidency never left Reagan.

Lyn Nofziger, an adviser to the president, told reporters he did not want to comment on Haig's assertion that he was in charge.

"The president will be fully capable of making decisions tomorrow according to the doctors," Nofziger said. "In the meantime, the business of government is going on normally and we expect it will continue to."

Nofziger said the administration had not considered using the procedure spelled out in the Constitution for the temporary transfer of power from a disabled president to his vice president.

Under the Constitution, the authority of the office remains with Reagan while he is recovering from his wound unless he yields his authority or is declared disabled.

Dr. Dennis O'Leary of George Washington University Hospital told reporters after Reagan underwent surgery that once the effect of anesthesia wears off the president will be fully capable of discharging the duties of his office, suggesting that no transfer of power would be called for.

Haig, in his appearance before reporters, said, erroneously, that the secretary of state stands next in line, behind the vice president, in succession.

In fact, under law, the secretary of state is fifth in line, behind the president, vice president, speaker of the House and president pro tem of the Senate. The speaker of the House is Democrat Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. of Massachusetts. Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C. is president pro tem of the Senate.

The last president to be stricken and hospitalized for a period of time was Dwight D. Eisenhower, who suffered a heart attack in 1955. His vice president, Richard Nixon, took over informally. Two years later, he and Nixon entered into a personal agreement providing for an orderly transfer of power if during a future illness Eisenhower decided he was incapable of performing his duties.

Earlier in U.S. history, James A. Garfield, shot and wounded on July 2, 1881, was incapacitated for a long period. He died the following Sept. 19. Woodrow Wilson suffered a stroke on Sept. 25, 1919, and was partially paralyzed. He was unable to perform his duties until the following April. But in neither case was presidential power assumed by the vice president.

Twelve years after Eisenhower's 1955 stroke, the 25th Amendment to the Constitution was ratified.

It provides that a vice president becomes acting president only under two circumstances — the president declares in writing that he is "unable to discharge the powers and duties of his office" or when the vice president and most of the principal officers of the government inform Congress that the president is unable to carry out his duties.

Texas Folk Artists To Be In Directory

The Texas Commission on the Arts is seeking names of groups and individuals to include in the first Texas Directory of Folk Artists.

Deadline for receiving information is April 1, 1981, said TCA Folk Arts coordinator Pat Jasper Monday.

"Folk arts contribute greatly to the cultural diversity of Texas," said Miss Jasper. "The purpose of the directory is to inventory folk arts throughout Texas and develop an initial list of individuals and groups who create and present these arts."

Local organizations in contact with folk artists and folk artists themselves may forward artists' names, addresses, and their respective folk art skills to Miss Jasper at the Commission. Respondents are asked to provide information which will make the directory representative of both rural and urban areas as well as all ethnic groups in Texas.

Folk artists are performers or artisans whose skills are an important part of the life and history of their ethnic community or geographical region. They have learned their skills from older, recognized folk artists in their family or community and regard these skills as traditional ways. Usually, they have practiced the skills most of their lives.

Folk arts may include activities such as: quilting, crocheting, tamale-making, sausage-stuffing, mariachi music, Sangerrunden, gospel singing, blues music, instrument-making, blacksmithing, santos and retablos painting, Blessing of the Fleet, cowboy reunion, church homecomings, jamaicas or kermeses, and storytelling.

"The new directory will provide a means of expanding the scope of arts information to include those skills and events which are central to the lifestyle of many Texans and enrich our common heritage," Miss Jasper adds.

The Texas Commission on the Arts serves Texas — its arts organizations and its people — by providing coordination, information and financial assistance for arts programs.

For further information, contact Miss Jasper or Connie Higdon at the Commission, Box 13406 Capitol Station, Austin, Texas 78711 or phone toll free 1-800-252-9415.

Record Radio Prices Sought

NEW YORK (AP) — The owners of an FM radio station have filed an application to sell it for $15.5 million, believed to be the highest price ever paid for a single station.

The station is WKTU, the top-rated radio station, according to the latest Arbitron ratings for New York City. The station, which has a format emphasizing disco music, was purchased in 1975 for $2 million.

According to papers filed with the Federal Communications Commission, WKTU is being sold by the San Juan Racing Association to a new firm, Infinity Broadcasting Corp.

A researcher at Broadcasting magazine said the previous high sales price for a single radio station was $15.1 million paid for KFL, a 50,000-watt AM station in Los Angeles, in 1973.

The previous high for a New York City radio station was $14 million paid for WHN, a 50,000-watt AM station sold to the Mutual Broadcasting System last year.

The researcher said the previous high for an FM station was $12 million for KIOI in San Francisco. Being sold along with WKTU is the station's AM sister, WJIT, which has a Spanish language format.

WJIT is being sold to the Sagitarus Broadcasting Corp., which has the same ownership as Infinity, except that 20 percent of it will be owned by Herman Badillo, a former deputy mayor and congressman.

The sales price for WJIT is $8.5 million, which a station spokesman said is a record high for an ethnic station.

Newspaper Editors' Writing Awards Recipients Revealed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Saul Pett, an Associated Press special correspondent, has won one of four 1981 American Society of Newspaper Editors' Distinguished Writing Awards, the ASNE has announced.

Pett, whose stories during the year included a profile of New York Mayor Edward Koch and reports on the 1980 presidential campaign, received his award in the non-deadline category, the society said Sunday.

Pett, a graduate of the University of Missouri, is assigned to the AP Newfeatures in New York but travels throughout the world in search of stories. It is the first time a news service has won an ASNE writing award.

The deadline writing award was shared by Tom Plate of the Los Angeles Herald Examiner and Richard Zahler of the Seattle Times.

Plate, the Herald Examiner's editorial page editor, was cited for his coverage of the 1980 presidential conventions, campaign and election.

Paul Greenberg of the Pine Bluff (Ark.) Commercial received the commentary prize. Greenberg, editorial page editor and columnist for the Commercial, won the Pulitzer Prize in 1969 for editorial writing.

Thomas Boswell, a sports writer for the Washington Post, took the top honors in the sports writing category.

THE MARRIAGE OF MARIA BRAUN

Shooting Of Jailer's Wife Investigated

The Sunday afternoon shooting of a Lubbock County jailer's wife is being investigated by police, according to a detective, and the case reportedly will be examined by the next grand jury.

Joyce Elaine Robinson, 19, who was shot once in the neck with a .357-magnum revolver, was in critical condition Monday night after undergoing surgery at Lubbock General Hospital.

The wife of jailer Jobie Robinson was found lying on a bed at the couple's apartment suffering a single wound. Police were led to the 2301 Seventh St., Apt. 9, residence about 2:45 p.m. by a neighbor who said he had heard a gunblast.

Police reports quote the jailer as first saying, "Hey man, I'm a deputy at the county jail and my gun accidentally went off and hit my wife...I was taking it out of the case and it accidentally went off."

Robinson showed police his .357-magnum revolver which was lying on the floor with the cylinder open and one bullet next to the weapon. The cylinder contained four live rounds and contained one empty shell, police said.

Police Det. Cpl. George Parramore said the incident was being investigated by police. The case also will be presented to the next grand jury, scheduled to meet next week, a spokesman with the Lubbock Criminal District Attorney's Office said.

Lubbock County Sheriff D.L. "Sonny" Keesee went to the apartment after Mrs. Robinson and her husband had left the scene. He said today he did not want to comment on the case until there was further investigation by police.

The sheriff said Robinson has been a jailer just less than a year and described him as an "excellent" officer.

Body Scanner Readied At Hobbs

A-J Correspondent
HOBBS — An $800,000 General Electric whole-body CT (computerized tomography) scanner has arrived at Lea Regional Hospital here about four months ahead of schedule.

Ernie Meier, hospital administrator, says the CT scanner used for head examinations now on loan to Lea Regional from the University of New Mexico School of Medicine is being removed to make room for the new whole-body unit. Installation of the new unit is expected to begin April 1 and it is expected to be operational by May 1, Meier said.

A certificate of need was filed for the scanner about a year ago, Meier said, although study for the unit began in December 1979. Final approval of the scanner from the federal Health and Human Services Office in Dallas and from the New Mexico Health Systems Agency was received in January.

Meier called the arrival of the unit about four months ahead of schedule a "complete surprise."

According to Meier, the unit was offered to Lea Regional when another hospital scheduled to get the unit was not prepared to receive it.

Lea Regional has one neurosurgeon on its medical staff and another is expected to join the staff this summer.

The new unit is not only a total-body scanner but also can be used to outline various organs in the body and determine if tumors are present in or around an organ, according to Dr. William McPherson, Chairman of Lea Regional's Department of Radiology. McPherson said the scanner also can be used in radiation therapy by outlining the exact location of a tumor, helping doctors to know where to direct radiation.

VIRGINIA TAKES CONSOLATION GAME

Hoosiers Win Dampened NCAA Cage Tournament

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Isiah Thomas, Indiana's All-American guard, broke North Carolina's frontcourt barrier and led the Hoosiers to a 63-50 victory over the Tar Heels Monday night for the 1981 NCAA basketball championship, whose texture was entirely changed by the shooting of a president.

When President Ronald Reagan was shot Monday afternoon, it lent a somber note to this championship, the second for Indiana coach Bobby Knight.

As the NCAA Division I basketball committee listened to reports on the President's condition, game-time drew nearer. It was not until the NCAA, the presidents of both schools involved and NBC television, which was broadcasting the event, all were sure that the President was out of danger, that the game was given the go-ahead.

It started only 15 minutes late and was preceded by a public address announcement of the president's condition and a prayer offered by the Rev. Donald Bolton of the University of North Carolina, who asked the basketball-crazy to pause one moment to pray for the safety of the President.

The game began as an anti-climax. But as it progressed, the tension of a national title was driven home.

Indiana took its first lead of the game at the buzzer ending the first half when Randy Wittman hit a jump shot from the right corner. That made it 27-26. And after Knight talked to his players in the locker room, Thomas, the 6-foot-1 Indiana guard, went to work.

He scored eight points, three on lay-ups and two after his own steals, as the Hoosiers outscored North Carolina 12-4 in the opening 4-28 of the second half.

Indiana led 39-30 with 15:35 to play and the Hoosiers were on their way to a fourth national title, the second in Knight's 10 years at Indiana.

Indiana won the title in 1940, 1953 and 1976, the last under Knight. It capped off a season in which the Hoosiers had been all but written off.

After a 7-5 start this season, Hoosier fans nearly had given up. But Knight, the consummate coach, would not let his players even think of folding. The Hoosiers wound up winning the Big Ten Conference and came into the final game of this tournament with a 25-9 record. The nine losses is the most ever by an NCAA champion.

Early on in this game, it appeared as though the Hoosiers would be beaten.

North Carolina opened the game by outscoring the Hoosiers 8-2. Indiana did not get a field goal until 5:16 had elapsed. That basket came on a tip-in by reserve Steve Risley and started a run of six straight points that created the first of four ties in the first half.

Indiana outscored North Carolina 12-4 in a 3:48 stretch that began midway in the first half and tied the score 20-20 with 5:14 to go before intermission.

The two teams battled evenly until Wittman hit his final-second shot that gave the Hoosiers a one-point lead at the half.

Thomas scored 23 points for Indiana and Wittman added 16. Al Wood topped North Carolina with 18. However, freshman center Sam Perkins was held to 11 and James Worthy scored just 12 before he fouled out with 5:07 to play.

The loss marked the third time North Carolina coach Dean Smith has made it to the title game without winning college basketball's ultimate prize.

Earlier in the week, newsmen talked with Smith about the criticism that he could win everything but the big one.

"I think this criticism is foolish," Smith had said, "but at least if I win it, maybe I won't have to answer any more questions about it."

Monday night, the questions remained unanswered.

Smith led North Carolina through a 29-8 season that included the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament title, but in his 19 years with the Tar Heels, in his 11 tournament invitations, and in his six times to the Final Four, he has never come away better than second.

He finished second in 1977 and in 1968. This year, he can add one more.

For Knight, it was a vindication of sorts. His team, young and inexperienced, was supposed to have been better next year. However, the victory was Indiana's 10th in a row and in the Hoosiers' past five games, they have won by margins of 35 over Maryland, 15 over Alabama-Birmingham, 32 over St. Joseph's (Pa.), 18 over Louisiana State and lucky 13 over the Tar Heels.

When it became apparent to Knight that a conventional lineup would be too slow to handle the Tar Heels, he removed Risley, a reserve forward who

Thomas Earns MVP Honors

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "I just happened to be at the right place at the right time," little Isiah Thomas said Monday night after leading Indiana to a 63-50 victory over North Carolina's Tar Heels for the NCAA basketball championship.

The 6-foot-1 sophomore point guard from Westchester, Ill., outside Chicago, was voted the final game's Most Valuable Player after scoring 23 points and dominating the floor with second-half brilliance.

Even then, with strands of the net dangling over his red Hoosier uniform, he was reluctant to accept the role of game hero although he was so appointed by not only the press who voted on the award but by his own coach, Bobby Knight, and the Tar Heels' Dean Smith.

"I thought the turning point of the game was Randy's shot just before the half ended," Thomas said, referring to Randy Wittman's last-second shot which sent the Hoosiers into intermission ahead 27-26.

"That gave us the momentum — we went on from there," insisted the unselfish Thomas.

Smith, whose Tar Heels failed to win the national title for the sixth time after reaching the Final Four, said Isiah's two steals and subsequent field goals at the start of the second half definitely turned the tide.

"Isiah has amazing quickness and good hands," said the North Carolina coach. "He is always moving in. Sometimes he makes fouls, most of the time he doesn't."

"We were very happy with our situation in the first half and hoped to come out in the second half and take charge. Thomas kept us from doing it. He broke the game open."

Smith's assessment was repeated by Knight, whose voice was shaking and whose eyes showed signs of tears as he described the victory.

"Isiah has been the spokesman for our team all along," the controversial Indiana coach said. "He has been telling this team, even when we were 7-5 and seemed to have no hope, 'We know we can be a good team. All we have to do is work at it and improve, and we can go where we want to go.' The team never lost sight of that and Isiah saw to that."

Thomas got off to a shaky start, hitting only one field goal in seven tries and converting two free throws in the opening half.

Starting the second half, he made those sensational steals for four quick points and from then on was virtually unstoppable as he seemed to be all over the court, not only directing Indiana's attack but voiding that of the Tar Heels.

"He did a good job on keeping Al Wood from getting the ball," said Smith, referring to his star, high-scoring forward who was held to 18 points.

Thomas scored 19 points in the second half.

Asked to describe important steals, Thomas tried to shrug the matter off and said modestly:

"On the first one, I was just trying to help inside. On the second, Kenny Black lost the ball and it fell into my hands."

Thomas, one of nine children, has made himself a lure for the professionals although he has two more years of college to go. He said he would make a decision on either remaining in college or turning pro when he has had time to relax from the tournament.

"It depends on what kind of an offer I get," he said.

Red Raiders Eye Improvement

By RAY GLASS

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Texas Tech will attempt to rebound from its second consecutive disastrous conference road trip today when the Raiders play host to Greenville, Ill. College in a college baseball double-header beginning at 1 p.m. on the Tech Diamond.

The Raiders lost the final two games of their SWC series with Baylor Saturday in Waco after winning the first game Friday. The losses dropped Tech to 1-5 in conference games and into the league cellar during a weekend when Tech could have moved into the thick of the SWC race.

Texas, after sweeping Houston in three one-run games, is atop the standings with a 6-0 mark. The surprising TCU Horned Frogs stand at 5-1 following a sweep of Texas A&M.

Arkansas and Rice are deadlocked at 5-4. Baylor and Houston each stand at 3-6 and A&M is 2-5.

"We missed a really great opportunity to make a move into the conference race," Tech coach Kai Segrist said. "We played exceptional ball Friday and I felt we had put it all together. But we simply did not get the pitching we should have for either Saturday game."

Baylor won Saturday's first game 5-4 after the Raiders took a 3-0 lead in the second inning. In the nightcap, Baylor jumped on Tech pitchers for seven runs in the first three frames and swept to a 16-5 victory.

"I felt we had the first ball game won when we got that three-run lead. But we gave up a two-run home run and let them back in the game and then walked in the winning run," Segrist said.

"We can't seem to thrive on success. We seem to become satisfied with a victory and not get up and go after the next game. If we're going to be successful, we've got to build on success."

"There's a lot of baseball left (this season). We're certainly not out of the (SWC) race by any means at this point."

Last week, when the Raiders returned from a 3-8 road swing that included three losses to the Longhorns, Tech rebounded with a 21-15 hit-and-run marathon victory against Southeastern Oklahoma State.

Segrist said Monday he expects to work at least six pitchers in today's two games with the Panthers, who opened a week-long stay in Lubbock with a double-header against Lubbock Christian College Monday.

David Carroll, 5-1 with a 4.03 ERA and the winner of first game against Baylor, will probably open on the mound for the Raiders. Derek Hatfield, 2-1 is the probable starting pitcher for the second game.

Kyle Fahrnthold, the Raiders' second pitcher in their normal rotation, has a tender arm and will not pitch against Greenville College, Segrist said.

The Raiders are 17-12 overall and have now lost 10 of their last 15 games following a blazing 12-2 start. Tech continues its SWC schedule this weekend when it plays host to Rice in one game Friday and a Saturday double-header.

Gretzky Relieved

PITTSBURGH (AP) — First came the elation, then the relief when Edmonton whiz kid Wayne Gretzky toppled the National Hockey League's single-season scoring record of 152 points.

"I'm glad I finally got (Phil) Esposito's record out of the way. It takes away a little of the pressure that's been building up the last few days," Gretzky said after the Oilers beat the Pittsburgh Penguins 5-2 Sunday night.

Oakland Trial Hits More Roadblocks

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The much-delayed trial of the Oakland Raiders' antitrust trial against the National Football League ran into more roadblocks and the judge declined Monday to set a new trial date.

"Nothing will be happening for a while, one attorney said after a lengthy hearing and a meeting in the judges' chambers.

Members of the massive team involved in the litigation speculated that the trial will not be held before May or June.

The delay came when U.S. District Judge Harry Pregerson told attorneys he wants written outlines of each sides planned presentation of evidence at the trial — a task which lawyers said would take weeks to perform.

The request came after a hearing at which Maxwell Blecher, attorney for the Los Angeles Coliseum Commission argued that the trial should be broken in two phases, one to discuss antitrust issues and one to discuss possible damages.

The judge indicated he would consider breaking the trial into as many as three phases, if attorneys can prove this would be more efficient.

I'd like to approach the trial of this lawsuit rather clinically, but I think we tend to get dazzled by a lot of rhetoric from both sides. That interferes with a cold, hard analysis.

He indicated the new writout line he requested would qualify the complex issues.

Pregerson noted that if he separates the trial into different phases, all of those phases would be heard by the same jury in consecutive proceedings.

The lawsuit stems from the Raiders' efforts to move its championship team to Los Angeles and the NFL's vote to forbid them from moving.

The Raiders sued claiming that an NFL rule violates antitrust laws. Side issues including the allegations of ticket scalping have added complexities to the case and produced a roomful of legal documents already.

Pregerson said he would issue a minute order later in the week outlining a tentative schedule for submission of the lawyers' outlines, but he did not mention a trial date.

PRAY FOR THE PRESIDENT — Indiana coach Bobby Knight and several of his players bow their heads in a minute of silence for the wounded President Reagan before the start of the NCAA finals in Philadelphia Monday night. AMERICAN LEAGUE EAST PREVIEW

Strong-Armed Orioles Get Division Nod

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Writer

A baseball philosopher once observed that pitching is 75 percent of the game.

With that in mind, say hello to the Baltimore Orioles, who have the best set of arms in the American League. That impish grin on manager Earl Weaver's face can be traced directly to the mound where the Orioles have assembled an all-star cast.

Start with Steve Stone, the 1980 Cy Young Award winner with a 25-7 record. Move to Jim Palmer, 16-10 and a three-time Cy Young king. Don't forget Mike Flanagan, 16-13, who won the Cy Young in 1979. Of course, there's also Scott McGreggor, 20-8, the youngest of the four and the only one who hasn't won the Cy Young yet. This could be his year.

Palmer calls himself Cy Old and says Stone is Cy Present, Flanagan is Cy Past and McGreggor is Cy Future.

The bullpen has the proper righty-lefty balance with Tim Stoddard (5-3, 26 saves) and Tippy Martinez (4-4, 10 saves). Baltimore also has some bats. Ken Singleton (.304, 24 homers, 104 runs batted in), Al Bumbry (.318, 44 stolen bases) and Eddie Murray (.300, 32, 116) lead the attack.

The new faces are free agent utilitymen Jose Morales and Jim Dwyer, who came somewhat more cheaply than baseball's richest re-entry draft player, outfielder Dave Winfield of the New York Yankees.

Even with 103 victories for the best record in baseball last year, New York did not stand pat. In addition to making Winfield the richest kid on the free agent block, owner George Steinbrenner decided he needed another new manager. So, Gene Michael became the fourth Yankee pilot in three years.

He inherited the division champions with some quality starting pitchers in southpaws Tommy John (22-9), Ron Guidry (17-10) and Rudy May (15-5). But they tilt the New York staff precariously to the left. He's also got the best reliever around in Goose Gosage (6-2, 33 saves).

The attack is in the hands of people like Winfield (.276, 20, 87 at San Diego), Reggie Jackson (.300, 41, 111), Bob Watson (.307, 13, 68), and Rick Cerone (.277, 14, 85). But third baseman Graig Nettles and center fielder Ruppert Jones must recover from illness and injury-plagued seasons.

No team in the American League East improved itself as much as Milwaukee. In one multiplayer trade, general manager Harry Dalton came up with a bullpen stopper in Rollie Fingers (11-9, 23 saves at San Diego), a solid starter in Pete Vuckovich (12-9 at St. Louis) and one of baseball's best pure hitters in Ted Simmons (.303, 21, 98 at St. Louis).

Vuckovich, Moose Haas (16-15) and Mike Caldwell (13-11) are the heart of the Brewers' starting rotation. If they can keep it close, the bats will do the rest. Milwaukee's exciting offense includes Cecil Cooper (.352, 25, 122), Ben Oglivie (.304, 41, 118), Robin Yount (.293, 23, 87), Gorman Thomas (.239, 38, 105) and Paul Molitor (.304, 34 steals), as well as Simmons.

It is Cleveland's misfortune to be playing in the best division in baseball. Elsewhere, the Indians could be expected to make some progress in the standings, but in the AL East, forget it.

Rookie of the year Joe Charboneau (.298, 23, 87), Miguel Dilone (.341, 61 steals), Mike Hargrove (.304, 11, 85), Alan Bannister (.328), and Ron Hassey (.318, 8, 65) should produce some runs along with Andre Thornton, returning after missing last season with injuries. And the pitching staff has some interesting possibilities with Len Barker (19-12), Bert Blyleven (8-13 at Pittsburgh), Wayne Garland (6-9) and John Denny (8-6).

Detroit is in much the same fix as Cleveland — a talented team stuck in a tough division. Spary Anderson's Tigers have some quality players like Steve Kemp (.293, 21, 101), Alan Trammell (.300), Al Cowens (.280), Lance Parrish (.286, 24, 82) and Richie Hebner (.290, 12, 82). But the pitching is perilously thin after Jack Morris (16-15), Dan Schatzeder (11-13), Milt Wilcox (13-11) and Dan Petry (10-9).

You'll need a program to follow Boston. The Red Sox have a new look, courtesy of California, with ex-Angels Joe Rudi (.237, 16, 53), Carney Lansford (.261, 15, 80), Rick Miller (.274), Frank Tanana (11-12) and Mark Clear (11-11).

The keys for new manager Ralph Houk will be replacing Carlton Fisk, Fred Lynn and Rick Burleson, longtime Red Sox mainstays, and finding some dependable pitching, always a problem in Fenway Park.

Toronto has two respected pitchers in Dave Stieb (12-15) and Jim Clancy (13-16) and some legitimate power with John Mayberry (.248, 30, 82) and Otto Velez (.269, 20, 62). But in the AL East, the Blue Jays seem stalled on a treadmill to oblivion.

A long distance view of the finish says: Baltimore, Milwaukee, New York, Cleveland, Detroit, Boston, Toronto.

EXHIBITION BASEBALL ROUNDUP

Rangers, Astros Tumble In One-Run Contests

By The Associated Press

Gary Roenicke capped a two-run eighth inning with a game-winning single, giving the Baltimore Orioles an 8-7 exhibition victory over the Texas Rangers Monday.

Terry Crowley hit a sacrifice fly to tie the score against Ranger reliever Jim Kern, and after a walk to Floyd Rayford, Roenicke delivered the hit that raised Baltimore's spring record to 9-and-9.

Texas had taken the lead, with four runs in the seventh inning, capitalizing on the wildness of Oriole rookie pitcher Jeff Schneider, who also committed an error which allowed two runs to score.

The game featured 26 hits, including 16 by Baltimore. Tippy Martinez was the winning pitcher in relief, with Tim Stoddard earning a save.

A pinch-hit single by Claudell Washington in the 10th inning provided the winning run Monday as the Atlanta Braves defeated the Houston Astros 4-3 in an exhibition baseball game.

Washington, batting for relief pitcher Larry Bradford, ripped a Frank Lacorte pitch through the right side in the infield, scoring Rufino Linares.

Bradford, who pitched two innings of scoreless relief, picked up the win, Atlanta's eighth in the last 10 games. All three Houston runs came off starter Bob Walk, obtained last week from Philadelphia in a trade for Gary Matthews.

In other exhibition developments, Danny Ainge, the college basketball star who would have preferred to be in Philadelphia Monday night had he been able to lead Brigham Young to the NCAA finals, reported to the Toronto camp to become his third season with the Blue Jays. "It's baseball 100 percent from now on," he said.

The New York Yankees disclosed that slugger Reggie Jackson has a partially torn plantaris tendon and had his right leg placed in a cast. Jackson is expected to be sidelined a minimum of two weeks and is doubtful for the Yankees' season-opener April 9.

The Jackson-less Yankees used Bucky Dent's two-run homer and a two-run triple by Dave Winfield to key a five-run sixth inning that carried them to a 6-4 exhibition victory over the Dodgers.

Mike Easler slammed two home runs and a double to lead the Pittsburgh Pirates over the Twins 9-8 while the Phillies batted around three times, scoring five runs in the first and seventh innings in a 15-3 rout of St. Louis.

Jerry Humphrey drove in four runs, three with a seventh-inning homer, as San Diego beat Oakland 11-5 and Ted Simmons drove in three runs with a single and homer and Larry Hise also homered as Milwaukee nipped the Chicago Cubs 9-8.

Jerry White had five hits, including a two-run homer in the 10th inning, as Montreal defeated Kansas City 8-6. The Expos rallied with six runs off Renie Martin to tie in the ninth, three on a triple by White.

White Sox Purchase Luzinski From Phils

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Greg Luzinski, the Philadelphia Phillies' veteran slugging outfielder, was sold to the Chicago White Sox for an undisclosed amount of money on Monday, the two clubs jointly announced.

The deal climaxed days of rumors that Luzinski, 30, would be leaving the Phillies, since the World Champions acquired outfielder Gary Matthews from the Atlanta Braves in a trade last Wednesday.

The Phillies' first selection in the June 1968 draft out of Notre Dame High School in Niles, Ill., a suburb of Chicago, Luzinski has been the Phillies' regular leftfielder since the 1972 season.

In his nine-year career, Luzinski has compiled a .281 average with 223 home runs and 811 RBI. Four times he played in All-Star games for the National League, starting three times.

Luzinski had a .310 average for four NL championship series with the Phillies, but he was hitless in nine at-bats in last year's World Series.

Known as "The Bull," Luzinski had a strong start last season before going in a slump at the end of June. In July, he had surgery on his right knee, which kept him out of uniform for 45 games. He returned Aug. 24 from the disabled list.

Luzinski, however, has been unhappy with the way he has been handled by manager Dallas Green. He felt he should have played more when he came back from knee surgery, and said recently that maybe it would be better if he were traded.

Luzinski's home run total ranks fourth on the Phillies all-time list behind Chuck Klein, Dale Ennis and leader Mike Schmidt. His RBI total is sixth.

This spring, Luzinski was hitting .160 in eight games with three doubles and two RBI.

Despite his spring performance and the trade rumors, Green had said he thought the outfielder was "on his way to having a good year."

"I sure hope so for his sake and ours too," Green said on March 8 after he and Luzinski had a 20-minute meeting in the outfield during a spring workout in Clearwater, Fla.

Neither Green nor Luzinski would discuss specifics of their conversation, and speculation that Luzinski was on the way out persisted.

"It is between he and I," Green said after the March 8 meeting. "It was no big deal. It seemed a perfect time for him and me to visit so we did."

Green said Luzinski initiated the conversation. "You know me. I don't like to call guys in," the manager said. "I do my weaving around and I'm always available if somebody wants to give me a piece of their mind."

But Green apparently never reached an understanding with the outfielder, who has had two consecutive off-seasons and was being challenged for the left field job this year by second-year player Lonnie Smith.

The 25-year-old Smith hit .339 and set a club record for a rookie with 33 stolen bases last season. In the National League playoffs, he hit .600 (three hits in five at bats) and batted .263 in the World Series.

Bibby Becomes Complete Pitcher At Age 35

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — Gene Mauch, who is considered one of the keenest people in baseball, was impressed with the 6-foot-5 pitcher throwing "bullets" at the Pittsburgh Pirates' spring training camp.

"What a difference," said Mauch, now the personnel director of the California Angels, who was doing a little scouting of the Pirates.

"He's matured. He gets his pitches over. He works like he knows what he's doing," Mauch remarked to Pittsburgh manager Chuck Tanner.

Tanner couldn't have said it better, and the Pirates' manager is rarely at a loss for words. Listen to Tanner and you wonder how the Pirates ever lose.

The pitcher Mauch and Tanner mutually admired was 250-pound Jim Bibby, who at age 35, experienced his most successful season last year in the major leagues. He was so overpowering that he finished in third place for the Cy Young Award as the National League's best pitcher.

Bibby is proud of his 1980 accomplishment, a 19-6 record with a 3.33 ERA. He worked 210 innings, struckout 144 and walked just 88. He led the league in win-loss percentage for the second straight year, and made the All-Star game for the first time in his nine-year big league career.

"I think anytime a pitcher can come up as the third best in his league, it has to be a plus for him," Bibby said before an exhibition game.

"These are things that you hope for when you go to spring training," Bibby said. "It was a great feat for me to be classified as one of the top pitchers in the league."

When fans and baseball people think of Pirates' pitching, the first name mentioned is John Candelaria. If you look at the statistics, however, you'll be surprised to learn that Bibby, the brother of pro basketball player Henry Bibby, has won more games in the past three seasons (39-37).

Tanner points out that in the past two years, Bibby has a 31-10 record, averaging 34 starts a year.

"The difference in Bibby," says Tanner, is that he's no longer just a fastball pitcher. "Now he gets all types of pitches over the plate. He's built a confidence that he can throw anything for strikes."

Bibby might have reached the magic 20-game victory level, but he missed a start on the final day of the season because of a slight injury. He had hoped to be the club's first 20 game winner since Candelaria in 1977.

Bibby was pleased that Mauch noted he had changed from the thrower he was in his American League days when he worked for Cleveland against Mauch's Minnesota Twins.

"When I first came into the big league, I was plagued with being a little wild, not being able to get the curveball over the plate consistently. I think in the last couple of years I've matured to the point where I can throw breaking balls over the plate when I want to," Bibby said.

"There comes a time in everybody's career that you find yourself, find that particular release point or that good rhythm you need to throw consistently for strikes. I think I found that," he declared.

How disappointing was it not to record that 20th win?

"I'm satisfied with what I did last year," Bibby replied. "It would have been nice if I could have won 20, but to me it's only a number. Anytime you can come up 19-6, I don't think you have a bad season."

Tanner smiled and said, "Touche."

Tendon Benches Jackson

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Slugger Reggie Jackson of the New York Yankees has a partially torn plantaris tendon and had his right leg placed in a cast Monday.

Jackson is expected to be sidelined a minimum of two weeks and is doubtful for the Yankees' season opening series beginning April 9 against the Texas Rangers.

The injury began bothering Jackson while he was running in the outfield before Monday's exhibition game against the Los Angeles Dodgers, but he traced it to a weekend series in the New Orleans Superdome.

"I think I hurt it in New Orleans," the outfielder said. "I did too much running on the artificial turf. When you get older, you can't come to spring training and play every day. But with the advent of big salaries, there has been too much emphasis on making stars play every day in spring training."

Dr. Dan Kanell, the Yankees' spring training physician, examined Jackson.

"We'll know more when the cast comes off, but it probably won't be too much longer than two weeks," he said.

MILLER LANDS ACE PLAINVIEW (Special) — J.V. Miller shot a hole-in-one on the 155-yard 14th hole at Plainview Country Club Sunday. Witnessing the shot were Curtis Mangum, Gene Dalton, Glenn Day and Harry Garretson.

Twins Ship Landreaux To Los Angeles

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — The Minnesota Twins sent centerfielder Ken Landreaux to the Los Angeles Dodgers Monday in exchange for a third baseman, a first baseman and a left-handed pitcher.

Twins' spokesman Tom Mee said Minnesota received third baseman Mickey Hatcher, first baseman Kelly Snider and pitcher Matt Reeves in the trade.

Hatcher, 26, stands 6-foot-2 and weighs 195 pounds. He batted .226 in a partial season with the Dodgers last year and hit .359 the bulk of the season with an Albuquerque minors team last year.

In another partial season stint with the Dodgers in 1979, Hatcher batted .269. He also led the Pacific Coast League with a .371 average that year.

Hatcher, who also played football for Oklahoma, will report to the Twins immediately. Snider and Reeves will move to the Twins' Toledo farm team.

Snider is 26, 6-foot-1 and 187 pounds. The Springfield, Mo., native batted .303 at Albuquerque last season in 102 games.

Reeves, a native of Napa, Calif., is 22, 6-foot-2 and 180 pounds. He was 5-11 in games at Lodi in the California League.

Landreaux, 25, hit .281 last season, including a 31-game hitting streak.

Landreaux came to the Twins two seasons ago in the trade which sent Rod Carew to the California Angels. He hit

BOWES LANDS MISS BOORAS

Texas Tech women's tennis coach Mickey Bowes has announced the signing of a nationally ranked player, Pamela Booras of Flossmoor, Ill. Miss Booras, a 5-9 left-hander, has been ranked nationally since her second year of competition in the 14-year-old division. Last year, she played on the National Junior Circuit and Junior Whiteman Cup Team for the Chicago District Tennis Association.

305 with 15 home runs in 1979, his first year with Minnesota.

Landreaux will report to the Dodgers at Vero Beach immediately and said he was very happy to be traded to Los Angeles. He is expected to play right field for the Dodgers.

"Dodger Stadium is only 35 miles from my home," Landreaux said. "They were my club when I was growing up."

Philadelphia, Indiana Open Three-Game Playoff

By The Associated Press
The Philadelphia 76ers appeared to be shoo-ins for a first-round bye in the National Basketball Association playoffs when they opened the season with only four losses in their first 37 games and led the Atlantic Division by 5 1/2 games Dec. 27.

But the Sixers' failure to win the last game of the regular season means they'll be in action tonight when the Eastern Conference playoffs open with a pair of three-game miniseries.

Philadelphia entertains the Indiana Pacers, a team they beat in all six of their regular-season meetings, while the New York Knicks are home against the Chicago Bulls, the league's hottest team.

The Western Conference playoffs open Wednesday night. The Portland Trail Blazers entertain the Kansas City Kings and the Los Angeles Lakers are home against the Houston Rockets.

Philadelphia wound up tied with Boston for the NBA's best regular-season mark, 62-20. The Celtics, however, beat them 98-94 in Sunday's finale and, based on a better record within the division, earned the right to draw a bye in the first round. They open the playoffs with a best-of-seven series against the winner of the Bulls-Knicks first-round series.

The 76ers, losers to the Lakers in last year's championship round, had been hoping for the week's rest that accompanies the bye.

"I would have liked the extra few days rest," said Philadelphia forward Julius Erving. "I was planning to go to Florida. But now we'll have to get ready for the Pacers and take it from there."

Coach Billy Cunningham was confident his club would be ready for the Pacers.

"I think this team will be able to bounce back," said Cunningham, who is expected to start his regular lineup of Erving and Caldwell Jones at forwards, Darryl Dawkins at center and Maurice Cheeks and Lionel Hollins at guards. Andrew Toney, a rookie who started in the backcourt for much of the season, will see frequent action off the bench.

Indiana, 44-38, finished third in the Central Division. While the Pacers were unable to handle the Sixers during the regular season, coach Jack McKinney was confident the playoffs would be a different story.

"It's a short series and you just have to get hot and win two games," he said. "Oh, there's a little more intensity, but it's the same doggone team you played six times before."

The Pacers finished the season with a 101-77 loss to Chicago — the Bulls' eighth victory in a row. No other team is riding such a hot streak into postseason play.

The Bulls also are the NBA's tallest team. They boast a frontcourt of 7-foot-2 center Artis Gilmore, the league's top field goal percentage shooter, and forwards Dwight Jones, 6-10, and David Greenwood, 6-9 1/2. The backcourt isn't much shorter, with Reggie Theus at 6-7 and Bobby Wilkerson 6-6.

"Their tall lineup creates problems for us," said Ray Williams, a Knicks guard. "They hit the boards well, and you know we're no charm on the boards."

New York assistant coach Butch Beard, however, thinks the key to the best-of-three series will be away from the basket.

"If we don't put pressure on their backcourt, we're in for a heckuva night," said Beard, who has scouted the Bulls. "They've played good defense the times I've seen them. Their defense has made their offense."

The Knicks finished 50-32. Twenty-two of their victories came on the road, and the last time they won that many away from Madison Square Garden was the 1972-1973 season — the last time they won the NBA championship.

Sports In Brief

Dantley Wins NBA Scoring Title

NEW YORK (AP) — Veteran forward Adrian Dantley of the Utah Jazz has ended the three-year reign of San Antonio's George Gervin as National Basketball Association scoring champion and Houston's Calvin Murphy has set a league record for free throw percentage.

Final statistics released Monday showed that Dantley, the one-time All-American from Notre Dame and now in his fifth NBA season, finished with a 30.7 scoring average, nearly three points per game ahead of runner-up Moses Malone of the Houston Rockets.

Malone, who averaged 27.8 points, also was the league's leading rebounder for the second time, with a 14.6 average.

Murphy broke Rick Barry's single-season free throw shooting mark by hitting .957 from the foul line.

Other individual winners included Washington's Kevin Porter, the assists champion for the fourth time with a 9.1 average, Chicago's Artis Gilmore, field goal percentage, .570; San Antonio's George Johnson, blocked shots, 3.39 average per game; Los Angeles' Magic Johnson, steals, 3.43 per game, and San Diego's Brian Taylor, three-point field goal percentage, .383.

Dantley is the second member of the Jazz to win the scoring title since the team joined the NBA for the 1974-75 season. The other was Pete Maravich in 1976-77.

Dantley had three games with 50 or more points, including a season-high of 55 against Denver Feb. 6, and seven other games with 40 or more points. He scored in double figures in each of his 80 games, with a low of 11 against Los Angeles Jan. 27.

Malone, the NBA leader in rebounds for the 1978-79 season, regained the crown from San Diego's Swen Nater, last season's champion. Nater finished second this time, with a 12.4 average, and Golden State's Larry Smith was third at 12.1.

Smith was the first rookie since Milwaukee's Kareem Abdul-Jabbar in 1969-70 to finish among the league's top three rebounders. He also had the season's single-game high with 31 against Denver last Saturday night.

Murphy, who earlier in the season had broken Barry's consecutive free throw record of 60, established in 1976, by hitting 78 in a row, also shattered his former teammate's percentage mark of .947 set in 1978-79.

The free throw title was Murphy's first after seven second-place finishes, six behind Barry.

Among the team, the Denver Nuggets led in scoring with a 121.8 average and the Philadelphia 76ers were No. 1 in defense, yielding 103.8 points per game.

The 76ers also equaled the league record with 37 victories at home, tying the mark set by Los Angeles in 1976-77 and matched by the 76ers in 1977-78 and Los Angeles in 1979-80.

And Denver, with David Thompson averaging 25.5, Alex English 23.8 and Dan Issel 21.9, became the first team to have three full-time players average 20 or more points in the same season since the 1971-72 Golden State trio of Jeff Mullins, Nate Thurmond and Cazzie Russell.

False Alarm Rouses NCAA Visitors

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A fire alarm that rang through all 26 floors of the headquarters hotel roused guests shortly after dawn Monday and sent them off to an early start for one of sport's top attractions — the NCAA basketball championship final.

More than 100 guests, including NCAA representatives and part of the huge press corps, gathered in the lobby of the new Franklin Plaza Hotel to learn that it was a false alarm caused by a truck that left its motor running and sent diesel fumes pouring through an open door.

Once just another of the many athletic events on the collegiate schedule, the so-called Final Four showdown has become one of the nation's great spectacles — beginning to challenge such spectacular fixtures as football's Super Bowl, baseball's World Series, the Kentucky Derby, Indianapolis 500 and a heavyweight title fight for the attention of the nation's sports buffs.

The ticket is one of the toughest in sports to get and the 18,000-capacity arena has been a sellout for months.

The press contingent numbered around 600 — print and electronic media — with many newspapers sending several columnists and reporters.

This historic, founding city of the nation took on the atmosphere of one of the old Army-Navy football games when the military institutions had their classic confrontations.

Miss Hemphill Inks With WBC

PLAINVIEW (Special) — She can do it all. She's just one of the many college coaches who sought her basketball playing services.

She's undoubtedly the best girl I've ever coached. She's just got good basketball sense. Her high school coach, Melvyn Hunt, said.

She is Plainview's Gay Hemphill, and she'll remain in her home town to play college ball with the Wayland Baptist College Flying Queens.

Regarded as perhaps the best high school player in Texas and one of the best in the entire country, Miss Hemphill has signed a letter of intent with WBC.

The signing of Miss Hemphill, who was actively recruited by more than 100 colleges across the country, brings an end to a recruiting struggle that has followed the 6-0 Plainview High product through her entire senior year.

Gay was been at the top of our list for a long time and we are thrilled to have her," WBC coach Cathy Wilson said.

The all-time leading scorer in Plainview history chose Wayland over a list of schools that included national champion Louisiana Tech, Kansas and other powerhouses from the Lone Star state: Stephen F. Austin, Houston and Texas.

Writers Honor LSU's Alcorn

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mark Alcorn, the Louisiana State basketball guard who was sidelined by cancer, was presented the Most Courageous Athlete Award by the United States Basketball Writers Association Monday.

Alcorn twice postponed surgery to be with his team as it advanced through the regional to the NCAA's Final Four. He is scheduled for an operation Friday to remove lymph nodes and tumors from his chest.

"Right now, I'm feeling pretty good," he said. "I'm pretty saddened by the loss, obviously."

LSU lost a Final Four semifinal game to Indiana 67-49 on Saturday. Alcorn was on the team bench for the game.

The 6-2 junior said his weight is back up to 145 pounds — about 10 pounds heavier than he was when he went through chemotherapy treatment but still 20 pounds below his playing weight.

The 25-year-old USBWA is made up of sports reporters whose annual convention coincides with the NCAA collegiate basketball championship tournament. Members presented Alcorn with his award on Monday prior to LSU's meeting with Virginia in the consolation game of the

Barnes Receives Probation

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — A District Court judge Monday gave former professional basketball player Marvin Barnes, 28, three months probation on a charge of eluding Providence police.

Another charge of possessing marijuana was dropped.

Judge Paul P. Pedernani Jr. Monday the charge was dropped at the prosecutor's recommendation following plea bargaining.

The former Providence College All-American pleaded no contest to the eluding charge, said Lt. William J. Schiageter, Providence police court officer.

The charges stemmed from a Jan. 15 incident in South Providence. Police said they spotted Barnes running a red light. They said they gave chase by car and on foot, before apprehending him.

Barnes said he did not know he was being chased because the car was unmarked.

Police also alleged Barnes was caught with a stub or "roach" of a marijuana cigarette.

Publishers Joining Opposition To AT&T News Business Bid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Newspaper Publishers Association is joining a legal battle to keep American Telephone & Telegraph Co. out of the information business, saying such expansion could pose a "serious threat" to freedom of the press.

The ANPA has notified attorneys in the case that it will seek to formally intervene next month when AT&T asks for court permission to provide advertising and information directly to the public.

AT&T, the world's largest telephone company, stirred controversy in the information industry March 4 when it filed a motion in a U.S. district court in New Jersey seeking removal of certain key restrictions in a consent decree it entered in 1956 in settlement of a federal anti-trust suit.

Until now the 1956 decree has been interpreted as barring AT&T from entering any unregulated fields. Now AT&T asks the court to rule that the prohibition does not apply to providing advanced terminal equipment or services such as data processing that are "incidental" to telephone communication.

The move already has been opposed by the computer industry and others entering the new field of electronic news delivery. The newspaper industry, which had raised objections to AT&T intent, now says it will enter the case formally on April 13, when first arguments on the AT&T petition are scheduled before U.S. District Court Judge Vincent Biunno.

A lengthy affidavit by Jerry W. Friedheim, executive vice president and general manager of ANPA, says that because of AT&T's size and its domination of delivery facilities, if it begins providing news and advertising over its own lines of transmitting them for others, it could achieve a monopoly of the news business.

"The result of an AT&T market takeover would be the creation of a nationwide monolithic information network, whose contents would be determined by a single corporation," Friedheim said. "Such a development would be a serious threat to the free and independent press, which is so fundamental to our democratic form of government."

"AT&T could establish immense national data banks and sell information to the public using its transmission facilities and home terminals. The information available on the system could be selected, edited, even censored, by AT&T," Friedheim said.

"Because of AT&T's vast corporate resources, exclusive control over telephone lines, and manifold other advantages, competing information systems could be squeezed out, or be regulated to minor roles," he said. "As a practical matter, AT&T could become the sole source to the public of much information of a general nature," he said.

Among the operations endangered, ANPA says are several newspapers, which "have initiated or joined a number of experiments to provide sophisticated enhanced information services to members of the public by way of regular telephone hookup."

The newspaper industry has been looking for some time toward the possibility of electronic newspapers of the future with news read on home computer terminals instead of from printed pages. Although this is considered a distant prospect, the industry says it is a realistic one and a monopoly over it could effectively monopolize news dissemination.

AT&T has said it is interested immediately in electronic delivery of its directories, but is not ruling out the possibility of offering more than just phone numbers.

The ANPA filing says the phone company already is engaged in pilot projects which include weather reports, sports, horoscopes, dial-a-joke, "and similar informational features."

The phone company also wants to sell advertising in its electronic yellow pages as it does in the printed version. It says newspapers oppose it for fear of losing advertising rather than the free-press issue.

Atlanta Area River Yields Child's Body

ATLANTA (AP) — The body of a black boy was found Monday afternoon in the Chattahoochee River in southwest Fulton County. The 21st black child to be found dead in the Atlanta area in the past 20 months, authorities said.

"The only thing we know is we have located a young black male that meets criteria of those found recently," Fulton County Police Sgt. Denny Hendrix said.

Residents of south Fulton County found the body about 3:30 p.m. while boating on the river. Hendrix said Clad only in underwear, the body was not decomposed, he said.

Members of the special police task force that has been investigating the slayings and disappearances of 22 black children since July 1979 were called to the scene.

Asked to estimate the age of the victim, Hendrix said he was "more than 10 years old and less than 20."

The two children whose disappearances have been under investigation by the task force are 10-year-old Darron Glass, last seen Sept. 14, and 16-year-old Joseph Bell, who disappeared March 2.

Another youngster, 13-year-old Timothy Hill, was reported missing on March 13.

Volunteers At Hospital Work To Alleviate Fear

By DEBBI STALTER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Waiting to be admitted to a hospital room can be a frightening, sometimes frustrating, experience for patients often unfamiliar with the facility's procedures and practices.

In an effort to bridge the gap between persons entering a hospital and the barrage of uniformed personnel that meets them upon arrival, Lubbock General Hospital volunteers have undertaken a new program — serving as the patients' hosts and hostesses.

Each day, volunteers get a list of patients expected to be admitted to the hospital and then remain stationed at the hospital's front desk to await their entrance.

Patients' names are taken by the volunteers, who contact proper personnel that the patients have arrived. And if someone is kept waiting longer than 15 minutes, the volunteers make a note and go about finding why the delay is being caused.

Volunteer auxiliary president Mary Mills said that if the volunteer is unable to expedite the admittance procedure through making the proper checks, the patient can at least be told why he or she is having to wait.

"This is the time when they get angry," she said, "when they are sitting there, and nobody tells them what is happening."

Once the admitting procedures are completed, the volunteers' job is not finished. They accompany the patient to the room and brief him on all facets of his hospital stay.

Later, when the patients are dismissed, volunteers again come to the scene and escort them all the way to the hospital parking area to ensure they get to the proper destination safely.

About 11 volunteers participate in the hosting service from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. — primary admitting and dismissing hours. Mrs. Mills said this way the volunteers meet most of the patients to be admitted, except for those "drop-ins" who come at odd hours from the emergency room or the adjoining medical school's ambulatory clinics.

Mrs. Mills said the service not only keeps the patient informed, but also allows volunteers to bring in help at the admitting area if a large number of patients come in at once.

And better feelings are the result, she said, if patients know something is being done to meet their needs.

Gun 'Silencer' Ads Spur Warning Here

By MARY ALICE ROBBINS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Law enforcement officials have expressed concern about a recent advertisement promoting the sale of construction plans for a silencer for firearms.

The ad, which appeared in a weekly shopper distributed in Lubbock, offers an opportunity to purchase plans to construct a silencer to fit weapons of various calibers. The plans may be purchased, the ad says, for only $5, which is to be sent to a Lubbock post office box number.

The ad, published for the past several weeks, already has attracted the attention of several law enforcement officials.

Criminal District Attorney John T. Montford noted that his office investigated the individual running the ad after receiving an informal complaint.

"We have looked into it," Montford confirmed. But, he added, there is no law against running the ad.

However, anyone who uses the plans to manufacture a silencer could be in violation of federal laws.

Vance Johnson, resident agent for the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, explained that federal statutes require an individual to obtain a permit to manufacture or own any type of illegal weapon.

And the National Firearms Act of 1938 includes a silencer in the illegal weapons category, Johnson said.

Anyone planning to build a silencer must submit his request for a permit to an office of the ATF Bureau, Johnson said. He noted that a full investigation is conducted to determine if the applicant should be granted a permit.

If, after an investigation, the application is approved, Johnson said, the applicant must pay a $200 tax to obtain the manufacturing permit.

According to Johnson, unlawful possession or manufacture of a silencer constitutes a felony offense and can be punishable by 10 years imprisonment in a federal penitentiary and/or a $10,000 fine.

But possible violations of the law aren't the only problems that could be faced by anyone who attempts to construct a silencer. "They're not very easy to build," noted Bill Morgan, information officer for the Lubbock Police Department, "and they are awfully hard to attach to a barrel."

A silencer does not work the way it is depicted in the movies, Morgan said. "You can hardly silence a revolver," he noted.

Unless an individual is a good machinist, Johnson said he would not advise him to try to build a homemade silencer. "It can be very hazardous," the ATF agent observed.

Johnson said he had seen several guns that had the silencer blown off or the barrel blown up. Unless the silencer were perfectly aligned with the gun's barrel, the bullet probably would not pass through the barrel correctly, he said.

"I have seen homemade silencers," Johnson said. "But very seldom have I seen one that is effective."

One of his biggest worries about the advertisement, Johnson said, is the possibility that youngsters may order the silencer construction plans.

A youngster could be seriously injured trying to use one of the homemade devices on a rifle or handgun, he stressed.

New Vote Set In Water District Dispute

Directors of the Lubbock County Water Control and Improvement District made an about-face Monday, agreeing to call a special election to fill the contested seat on the district's board of managers.

However, board chairman W.D. "Bil" Sims noted that a district judge still must approve the proposed election between former director Dale Miller and George W. Whitworth, one of two candidates declared winners in the Jan. 17 board elections.

Miller, a three-year veteran of the water district board, filed suit against Whitworth in February contesting the election.

In his lawsuit, Miller alleges that 20 of the 473 ballots counted in the election were cast by unregistered voters. Miller's suit also alluded to other possible election irregularities, but no specific allegations have been made.

Miller lost the election to Whitworth by 18 votes.

Earlier this month, the board voted unanimously to let the district court settle the election dispute between Miller and Whitworth.

At the district's March 13 meeting, Sims read a statement that the "board does not believe it is proper at this time to suggest or volunteer that a new election be held.

But after spending less than 20 minutes meeting in executive session with their attorney Monday, board members voted to reverse their earlier decision and adopted an order setting guidelines for a special election.

Whitworth, who has been serving on the water district board for the past month, abstained from the vote.

Following the closed door meeting, Sims read a statement noting the board had been approached by Miller and his attorney, George Gilkerson, "with a proposal that all controversial contentions by the parties could be settled in a more amicable manner" if the board would agree to hold another election.

Sims said the board was advised by its attorney that the judge hearing Miller's suit would likely order a new election to be held.

Elmer East, attorney for the water district, explained the earliest possible date for the election, if it is approved by the court, would be Aug. 8.

Among the election guidelines approved by the board is a provision that the Lubbock County clerk serve as administrator for the special election.

One of the issues raised by Miller and Gilkerson has been an alleged lack of ballot security. When the board canvassed election returns Feb. 2, Gilkerson noted that none of the ballot boxes were locked as required by law.

The water district's election also has gained the attention of Criminal District Attorney John T. Montford, who filed a motion last month in 99th District Court to impound all election records.

Montford's action came after he received a report from Tax Assessor-Collector Frank Stuart indicating that 22 unregistered voters may have cast ballots.
