

MARCY NOTES.

A Newsw Letter from our Regular Correspondent.

I guess my last letter found its way to the waste basket, as I never saw it in print.

Mrs. S. R. McCrary and her daughter, Miss Berta, are visiting relatives in Kosse.

The Methodists and Presbyterians will hold a meeting together, beginning Friday night.

The dry weather still prevails and the farmers are getting very blue about their cotton crop.

Mr. E. D. Garner returned home last Sunday from Dallas where he had been to purchase his fall stock of goods.

The normal singing school at Marcy is doing nicely. It is led by Prof. Stevens of Knox county, with about 75 pupils.

Mr. J. F. Mitchell and lady, who have been visiting their daughter at Tishomingo, I. T., returned home last Saturday.

Miss Lucretia Dickenson left last week to visit her sister in Paris, Ill. She will also visit the Fair on her way home.

Quite a lot of Marcy people took in the Confederate reunion at Stamford last week. They report a fine time with just oodles of beer and red dust.

C. M. Chapman left last week to take in the sights of the St. Louis fair and buy goods. The last account we had of him he was reading signs and bumping strangers on every corner.

A Baptist meeting is being held at this place. Rev. Lusk of Haskell assisted in it last week and Rev. J. H. Stewart of Erath county is with us this week. He is an able minister and much interest is manifested each day. Several conversions have occurred. NELLY BLY.
Marcy, August 24, 1904.

A little paper printed way out on the plains, a hundred or so miles west of this, says that it has heard of a good many worms, including boll worms, depredating on the cotton east of there, but that there are none in the cotton there. Well, it need not be afraid of them getting there by migration as they are still east of this section, if there are any—and from reports we presume there are some.

Senator Fairbanks, republican nominee for vice-president, is to make a speaking tour through the Northwest. We have recently seen it stated that much of the wheat in that section is late and that fears are entertained that it will be caught by an early frost. From what we have heard of Senator Fairbank's temperature, we will suggest that the farmers up there petition him to hold off until their crops are ripe and out of danger.

Already Panama is complaining about this country taking a bigger dish down there than it is entitled to under the treaty stipulations. Panama should remember that when we stood in with her in robbing Columbia we became entitled to a fair division of the loot. She should also take cognizance of the fact that we are the biggest, decidedly so, and that if we conclude at any time that we haven't had a fair divvy we'll put our own construction on the treaty and take what we want. Indeed, she had best shut up before we get mad and give her a spanking and "assimilate" the whole thing. We are in the "benevolent assimilation" business, we are, even if it takes bullets and warships to do it.

American manufactured plows, cultivators, mowers, reapers, threshers and various tools and implements are shipped to South America, Egypt and half around the world to Australia and some of the Asiatic countries and after paying the freight are sold for 25 to 50 per cent less than the American farmer and mechanic has to pay for them. There are enough American farmers who vote the republican ticket and thus keep the protective tariff on to turn the political scales and get the protective tariff cut off if they would vote the democratic ticket for one or two terms. But it appears that they do not understand the question or that their partisan prejudices are so strong that they prefer to stand the extortion rather than vote to have a democratic administration.

The week before last the Stamford News told that it had heard that Col. Hamilton had said that about the first of September he would put a parlor car on the Stamford train. The News then went on to say that Col. Hamilton had been especially courteous to Stamford, and it threw bouquets at that gentleman in the name of Stamford. The Albany News took the matter up and said that from reading the Stamford News' article one who didn't know better would suppose that there were no towns on the Western division of the Central until Stamford, the great "It." In its own estimation, was reached. The Albany paper then took about a column to tell the Stamford paper that Albany is Stamford's granddaddy and that about all it has of any account came from Albany, and it then recounted what Albany had left. The last issue of the Stamford paper notices all this and in a tone of surprise wonders why it should have been expected to mention Albany in connection with the matter, as it was only speaking for Stamford. This is the way us mortals make "Much Ado About Nothing."

A news item from Texarkana calls attention to a rather unusual feature in the Bowie county tax rolls as made up for this year. The resident roll shows 843 dogs rendered for taxation. A Mr. Blocker put his dog down at a valuation of $1000. Another party assessed one at $500, and several are listed at from $100 to $200. Most people don't consider that their dogs have any taxable value, yet many a man is ready to resent it to the extent of blows if you abuse his dog. If there were a tax of not less than a dollar each on dogs, it would result in ridding the country of thousands of worthless canines, and a good riddance it would be.

That is a remarkable story which comes from Muskogee, I. T., and which will be found in this paper, about Mrs. Merriek, a half-breed Creek Indian of that place, recently carrying on a conversation with an Igorot native of the Philippine Islands, at the St. Louis World's Fair. If true it goes a long way toward establishing the truth of the theory advanced by some ethnologists that this continent was originally populated by people of the Asiatic or Mongolian races who in some way reached its shores from the Far East. Some advance the idea that they made their way through Siberia, possibly being driven by stronger tribes, and crossed the narrow channel of Behring's Straits to Alaska and then drifted southward in search of a warmer climate. Others suggest that boats may have been caught in a storm and driven so far out of their course or reckoning that the occupants were bewildered and could not find their way home, but finally landed on the Pacific coast. But the former supposition looks far more reasonable. It seems hardly possible that boats no larger than are known to have been in existence in remote ages could have weathered such a storm as the one supposed, or, if they had, that they would have had a supply of provisions to sustain their occupants through months of aimless drifting on the ocean.

TREE GROWING ON PLAINS.

Hundreds of People Successful in the Culture of Black Locust in the Panhandle.

Fort Worth, Tex., Aug. 22.—The Denver Road will continue its campaign for a forest in the Panhandle and plains country without any let-up during the coming spring, as the result obtained from trees set out during the spring of 1903 has been successful beyond all expectations. The policy this year will be to push the planting of the black locust, which has proved to be very successful, very few of those set out being killed. Then if the locust is cut down and seemingly dead the upper portion of the tree can be cut to the ground and a new sprout will come out and make a good tree.

A nursery in Nebraska, writing to Mr. Sterley, the general freight agent of the line, gives the following advice as to the best care for the cultivation of the black locust:

"It is best to cut them back to the ground in the spring. All but one shoot should be cut off and generally this one will grow seven to eight feet and make a straight tree in one year. We do this altogether in raising shade trees for the market. We plant one year seedlings in nursery row, cultivate them all well, and the next year cut them all back to the ground, and we always get a straight, nice tree the next year.

"We have a letter from A. Frinswald of Mobeetie, Texas. Mr. Frinswald got black locust seedlings of us seven years ago and planted them in good sandy soil. The last three years he has cut posts to repair his fences and has built a new fence of fourteen miles in length, all from seedlings planted seven years ago. As far as we can find out, black locusts are the best trees for your part of Texas. The following is a list of those living in the Panhandle that were successful in their efforts to grow the black locusts that were planted in the spring of 1903:

Then follows a list of people along the Denver road through the Panhandle together with the number of trees of different varieties each has. The number of trees range from 25 to 42,000 each, J. V. and C. B. Farwell near Channing have the latter number also 5,000 honey locust, 4,508 Russian mulberry, 7,250 Osage orange and 2,000 ash trees, a total of 59,750 trees. The total number of trees for all parties and all varieties is 149,900.

REMARKABLE STORY.

Muskogee, August 12.—"Nasket cheo chifkee." And these words made a connecting link that reaches from the Philippines to the Creek nation. They were spoken by Mrs. Edward C. Merriek of the Creek nation to an Igorot at the Philippine village at the World's Fair in St. Louis last Tuesday. The language is that of the Creek Indians and means "what is your name?" The Igorot was sitting lazily smoking in front of his hut. When he heard the words he sprang to his feet and answered in his native tongue, "are you a Philippine?" in his eagerness not stopping to answer the question. Mrs. Merriek is a half-blood Creek Indian and shows her Indian blood. She talked to the Igorot for an hour. He could not understand a word of English, but could carry on a conversation in Creek readily enough. Mrs. Merriek did not ask a question that he could not answer nor that he failed to understand. Neither did she do all the talking. The Igorot asked her many questions and the conversation, according to her statement, was carried on as easily as if he were a Creek Indian. The Igorot said she was the only person outside the small band brought over with him from the Philippines, that he had seen who spoke his language and was very much surprised when she told him that it was the language of the Creek Indians. While Mrs. Merriek was in conversation with the Igorot a crowd of 200 people gathered marveling at this discovery that seems conclusive proof that in ages past the East Indians and the North American Indians must have been of common blood. They asked her to repeat many questions for them. In the meantime the rest of the small band of Igorot from the same Islands gathered around and listened eagerly to the conversation, all understanding what the Creek woman said and making comments which were intelligible to her.

Mrs. Merriek states that the only difference between the language as spoken by the Igorot and by a Creek is that the former shows an absolute lack of knowledge of anything modern. He knew nothing of railroads or machinery of any kind, but talked with directness and lucidity of his native home and its surroundings. He said that he liked this country and that when the fair was over he would remain in America. That all the Igorot had been told that they had to go back to the Philippines when the fair was over, but that he believed he was now a United States man and that he did not have to go unless he wanted to. He took Mrs. Merriek all through the huts in which the Igorot lived and explained their manner of living, what they eat and drink. He says that it is true that in their island they eat dogs and that he likes them, but since he has been in the United States that he has learned to like "cow" better.

E. S. Peters of the State Cotton Growers Association advises farmers to hold their cotton for 12 cents. He claims that the situation justifies this advice.

The Baptist Sunday school is growing under the new management.

Hon. Wm. Pierson of Greenville, left Thursday on his return to home and business. Mrs. Pierson and child will remain a week or so longer.

Mr. A. P. McLemore paid his old stamping ground a flying visit Thursday.

Mr. S. W. Scott returned Wednesday from a trip to Waco. He says the crops in Haskell are better than any he saw along the Central after passing California creek in Jones county, except that the black land corn was better. Cotton and feed crops seem to have suffered greatly from drouth.

Mr. A. G. Lambert who is farming on Capt. J. S. Williams place about one mile northeast of town brought to town Wednesday the first bale of new cotton. The Haskell gin not being in operation yet, he could not get the cotton ginned, but sold it in the seed to S. L. Robertson on a basis of 10:30 for lint cotton. There was 1400 pounds in the seed. A premium of $22.00 was made up for Mr. Lambert.

Judge P. D. Sanders returned Monday from a trip to Waco. He, like every one else who has been in that section, says Haskell county has the best crops. He says the cotton down the Central has been badly damaged by drouth, boll worms and weevils.

CONCERNING THE STREET FAIR.

SESSION OF EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

Finance Committee Requested to Hustle.

The executive committee of the Street Fair met last Saturday and organized for the work by electing R. W. Williams chairman, J. E. Poole secretary and J. W. Johnson treasurer. H. S. Post, who was originally appointed as a member of the executive committee, said that his private affairs would be such during the fall as to prevent him from acting with the committee and give proper attention to the interests of the fair, hence he would decline the appointment. At the solicitation of the committee Mr. A. C. Lewis agreed to serve and he was appointed to fill the vacancy.

None of the ladies having responded to the invitation to appoint an auxiliary committee to take charge of a ladies' department at the fair, and it being feared that no one would voluntarily come forward for that purpose, the committee decided to tender the appointment of lady manager to Mrs. H. R. Jones with the request that she select a committee of such ladies as she could find to assist her in the planning and arranging of a ladies department.

The executive committee will meet again regularly on Saturday Sept. 3, to receive the reports of the finance committee as to the amount of the subscription they have secured to the premium fund. The secretary was requested to urge said committee through the Free Press to push their work with all possible haste, as upon their report will depend the ability of the executive committee to make up the list of articles on which premiums will be offered and to designate the amount of the premiums.

They desire to do this work at their next meeting if possible and publish the list so that the people will know what and how much of everything to prepare for exhibition.

The various members of the finance committee are therefore requested to act accordingly.

J. E. POOLE,
Secretary.

Mrs. E. J. Hunt and Miss Eva Fields returned from St. Louis Thursday.

Dr. Oldham, the Dentist.

Requests The Free Press to state that he will be in Haskell today, August 27, and will stay only a few days, to do any dental work that may be required. All the old timers know his professional skill. He will be found at Dr. Neathery's office.

Sunshine Girls and Cake.

The Sunshine girls announce a lawn party at the home of Mrs. Buchanan on next Tuesday evening from 8 to 11 o'clock p. m. Ice cream, cake and lemonade will be served for a consideration. Everybody invited.

Clean Up Notice.

The Board of Health are of the opinion that it is very essential to the health of the town that all premises be thoroughly cleaned up, including the cutting and burning of weeds, etc., in yards and out lots, and they request that all citizens give this thorough attention before the Board makes its inspection at an early date, so that there will be no complaints to file with the county attorney.

A Texan Abroad.

A Texas man was touring New York and while sitting at his hotel was asked by a reporter:

"You are from Texas I understand?"

"Yes sir, I am a native of that grand state."

"Will you give us some idea of your native land?"

"Certainly," the tourist replied, "Texas is a whopper, she is a peach. She is the broadest and longest country on earth, extending from north to south and also from east to west. She could put Rhode Island in her vest pocket. She could swallow three or four states like Maryland and Vermont and wash 'em down by drinking the Mississippi dry and could digest them without having the colic. Texas is the empire state of the union without any Kiser Bill for emperor. She's the chiefest among 10,000 and altogether lovely, winsome and gay. She's one of the old blue hen's chickens; she's the cook of the walk and the Democrat of the world; she's a wolf and its her day to howl. Texas is bounded on the north by the tomahawks and war whoops of the Red Men; she is bounded on the west by the chill on carne of New Mexico and the hot tamales of Old Mexico; she is bounded on the east by Louisiana and the huckleberry thickets of Arkansas, and if it wasn't for that measly body of salt water she would extend beyond the south pole. As I said in the beginning, Texas is a whopper, she is a jim dandy, and don't you forget it!"
