Goodfellows Need Help In Providing Christmas Cheer for Needy Families

Haskell Goodfellows have launched plans to provide at least some measure of holiday cheer for needy and less fortunate families in our community at Christmas time.

To carry out their program, Goodfellows will need the help of every public-spirited citizen of Haskell, and the coopera-tion of all local civic organizations as well.

Food and clothing, along with candy, fruits, and a few toys where there are children in the families, are the principal items going into the Christmas baskets the Goodfellows distribute at Christmas each year.

Weapons Are Needed In TB Fight

The Haskell County Tuberculosis Association is conducting an assault on tuberculosis, a disease long recognized as one of mankind's greatest enemies.

Assaults, however, are costly. Just as weapons are needed in warfare, so is ar munition required in the constant battle against tuberculosis. That is why the 52nd annual Christmas Seal campaign, now underway, deserves unlimited support. In helping this cause, you help your community, and Public health authorities estimate that 1.200,000 Americans need medical supervision for active or inactive tuberculosis. Of this number, 400,000 have the disease in its active form. About 16,000 persons died of TB last year, and next year 100,000 more Americans will be discovered to have TB.

The Right To Know

(The Abilene Reporter-News)

All of the transactions of government should be open and aboveboard, from the lowest and most insignificant to the biggest and most important. The exceptions to this rule are so few and rare as to be negligible.

You would think that after 169 years of constitutional government in this country everybody, citizen and official alike, would realize and abide by the dictum that the people are the masters and public officials are the servants.

But too many of the servants still practice the theory what the people don't know won't hurt them, so they take extraordinary pains to keep the people from knowingbecause what the people do know can make life miserable for

In Austin this week the professional chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, a journalism fraternity made up of working newspaper people, blasted a recent secret session of the Legislative Budget Board which will set the tone and largely the terms of what the Legislature will do with budgetary matters at the forthcoming session.

Acknowledging that the board's recommendations are only tentative and not binding but highly influential, the protest lodged with Governor Daniel points out that "the interest of government is best served by full disclosure of all steps in the governmental process."

It is significant that any board, bureau, commission or legislative group that consistently takes the public into its confidence usually has the respect of the public, and a great deal less trouble in performing its functions. The people have a right to know, and the organs of information have the obligation of keeping them informed. If minor instances of suppression of rews are permitted to go unrebuked, more serious and evil ones soon begin to flourish on all sides.

A Fearful Price

A 35-year-old father of three made headlines and sad news when he returned in an airborne iron lung from a vacation visit to his sister in California. His wife, shocked and heartroken, said her husband just "hadn't gotten around to taking Salk vaccine" when she and the three youngsters were innoculated.

the father is now paying a fearful price for his omis-Stricken with paralytic polio involving his respiratory system, he faces the grim possibility of permanent crippling. before his physical status can be determined, however, he must undergo extensive treatment and long-term rehabilitation.

Heartbreak is implicit in this situation. But the saddest part of the story and its true tragedy lie in the fact thit it need not have happened. Salk vaccine could have spared this young father as it spared his wife and three children. It should be used by people of all ages, from infancy through adulthood. There are no age restrictions on its effectiveness, or its use.

'I was so startled I couldn't believe my eyes, when that rascal jumped up and took off," Kemp said.

Giles had moved an electric fence unit from his farm southeast of town to his home place, and was stringing it around a five-acre oat patch when he surprised the deer, which was lying down in the heavy stand of oats. "He looked fat and sleek and was evidently well fed. The darned thing didn't seem too excited, either, and I had time to estimate he had at least 10 points on a good spread of antiers," Kemp com-

Giles later found a place in his cotton field where the deer apparently had bedded down for the night, then spent the next day foraging in the adjoining oats.

From Kemp's place the deer eaded east across the farm of Jack Hunt, and Giles lost sight of the animal when it plunged into rank cotton in a low spot on the Hunt place.

Giles thinks the deer either ranged up from Paint Creek east of town, or was moving eastward from the Brazos

Ralph has been following his hobby for years, and is well acquainted with all the "choice" hunting areas in this section

His favorite hunting ground is southeast of town, on a part of the old Hughes Ranch. He found literally hundreds of rattlesnake dens there, and although he makes big inroads on the snake population each year, he declares they're still as numerous as ever.

Included in Friday's bag of rattlers was a monster 6-foot diamondback, with a body 4 inches in diameter at its largest point. Several who viewed the monster reptile declared it was "as big as a boa constrict-

Wayne Perry, farmer-stockman living southeast of town and who has lived in this section 70 years declared "That's the biggest rattler I've ever seen, and I've seen and killed some mighty big ones myself."

With food prices continually rising, it's probably a good thing that people are not the hearty eaters they were two or three decades ago.

We recall the story, which actually happened, when a Dallas cafe operator got his first introduction to a West Texan who liked his food in quantities.

The Dallas cafe man and his wife had leased the Tonkawa Coffee Shop when the hotel was built in 1925.

They'd been here about a week, when early one morning a well known farmer, bringing a bale of cotton to the gin, was the first customer after the cafe opened.

The farmer, a huge man, was known to everybody as "Big

When the waitress, the cafe man's wife, asked for his order, Big John said gruffly "Gimme a dozen fried eggs and coffee."

The startled waitress, relaying the order to the kitchen, went into consultation with her husband, the chef. Thinking there was a misunderstanding, he walked out behind the counter, spoke courteously to Big John, then queried "How would you like your eggs, sir, and how many did you order?"

Big John again repeated ihs "A dozen, over easy." He got them, and stowed 'em away in short order, as the cafe man and his wife watched in amazement. Then, when he started to pay for his breakfast at the cash register, the admiring cafe man said, "Just pay me 25 cents for the dozen eggs, sir. The rest is on the house you'll just tell your friends to come in and eat here." A Childress man who makes it plainly clear what he wants, and wants now at once without fail, writes as follows: Gentlemen: I'll write you this to tell you that I am en-closing 12 cents in stamps for a new, late copy of your paper to see and read as I'd like to get it and see it now you see. And so now please do be sure and mail it on to me at once to see and read as I'd like to get it now at once to see and read you see without fail. So you all please do be sure and refund my 12 cents back to me now at once too if you all don't mail me the new late copy of your paper to see like I have ask you all to do for me now you see, or I'll put the matter into higher official hands for some kind of service to me from you all about it now you see. Mrs. Lane introduced Mrs. Tom Paul Barnett of Haskell, whose lively review of Agnes Newton Keith's "Bare Feet In the Palace" rewarded those in attendance with a key-hole view of family life in Manila, giving an insight into the Philippine government as seen through a woman's eye. Mrs. Keith's observation on living conditions and everyday economics shows results of her interested study of these people. Mrs. Barnett, a native Berlin, Germany, has resided in Haskell for the past five and one-half years. Chic in appearance, Mrs. Barnett, who is the wife of Haskell's Chief of Police, confirmed the idea of creative fulfillment in the giving of oneself to many worthwhile activities. Since her move to this area, she has thrown herself wholeheartedly into the ways of her adopted country and has been much in demand as a speaker for various civic groups. In addition to her job as Price Support Loan Clerk in the office of the USDA she is the mother of two vivacious daughters, Gail aged 4, and Jan aged 3.

Mrs. Hubert Bell's vocal group known locally as the Nine Teens, and much in demand because of their delightful musical renditions of old favorites and songs, was another program highlight as they sang "Over the Rainbow" and "Summertime."

The referendum therefore is of vital concern to every cotton grower, says Searcy M. Ferguson, chairman of the Texas Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

The marketing quota program will be in operation for next year's crop, the chair-man explains, if at least twothirds of the votes cast in the referendum are in favor of the program. In that case, farm

Polio Epidemic Emphasizes Need For Vaccination

The current polio epidemic in Detroit, Mich., is a vivid reminder that paralytic police will remain a threat to every community in the nation as long as millions of Americans neglect vaccination, Harold R. Spain, chairman of the Haskell County Chapter of the National Foundation, declared today.

Foundation, declared today.
"What is happening in De-troit could happen here," Spain said, "There are far too many unvaccinated individuals in our county and many others who have had only one or two shots. While expanding our program to take in arthritis and birth defects, we must not lose sight of the fact of crippling polio. It is still with us."

By the end of September more than 650 persons had been stricken with polio in Wayne County (Detroit) half of them paralytic, and more cases were being reported each day, the chapter chairman revealed.

The Wayne County chapter of the National Foundation has purchased 100,000 shots of Saik vaccine for large-scale group vaccination programs through out the county and also in supplying large quantities of needles and syringes for use in the program. Chapter volunteers are assisting doctors of the Wayne County Medical So-ciety in the operation of the group centers.
"We have been fortunate in our county this year in that the polio rate has been light,' Spain said. "However, with many of the children and young adults unvaccinated, we are

How Much Can You Pay For Feeder Cattle?

By F. W. MARTIN County Agent

How much drop in price can we take between feeder cal ves and finished beef and still make a profit out of a cattle feeding operation? This is a question that is being asked over and over during this period of high feeder cattle prices. Midwestern cattle feeders have used as a rule of thumb the following guide: If slaughter beef prices are $28 per hundred, then you can afford to pay $30 per hundred for feeder calves weighing 500 pounds or less and expect to make a reasonable profit. If slaughter prices are $28 per hundred, you cannot pay more than $28 per hundred for feeder steers weighing 500 pounds

This rule of thumb is used during years when feed prices are about normal in relation to meat prices. During periods like the present when feed prices are relatively low in relation to meat prices, then you can afford to pay a little more for the feeder animals.

However, the feeder who pays $34 per hundred for feeder calves, 500 pounds and under. and has to sell them when they probably as susceptible to an are finished at $28 per hun-outbreak as Detroit." dred is going to have to buy his grain cheap and do an extra good job of feeding in order to realize a profit.

The spread between feeder calves and feeder steers, 500 pounds and up, is extremely wide at the present time. On several of our markets feeder steers have been selling for $26 to $27 per hundred. At the same time feeder calves of like grades have been selling for $34 to $35 per hundred. When this situation exists feeder steers look like the better buy if they are available. Sheep numbers are expected to be up about two mil-lion head on Jan. 1, 1959 over Jan. 1, 1958. By January sheep and lamb numbers are likely to total about 33½ million head. This will be our largest inventory since 1949. Texas alone will account for over one-third of this increase.

This increase is due primarily to two reasons: The 1958 lamb crop showed about four per cent increase over 1957 or an addition of almost one million head, whereas, the number slaughtered in 1958 was down about one million over the previous year. Lamb prices are expected to hold up well for the next few months. However, the impact of larger supplies of meat, especially pork. will likely cause a decline in lamb prices during the second half of 1959.

Quail Hunters To Be Plentiful

Early reports have indicated there'll be a big crop of quail for the opening of the season Dec. 1. Now indications also point to a good crop of quail hunters, according to the assistant director of wildlife of the Game and Fish Commission in Austin.

The quail season begins Dec. 1, and ends Jan 16. The limit is 12 birds per day, or 36 in possession.

ment for 1959 will be about nine or ten per cent less than the 1958 allotment, ASC officials estimate.

The allotment for the U.S. was set at 16 million acres, plus a reserve of 310,000 acres for small farms. Cotton legislation affecting the 1958 crop has several major changes, including mini-mum allotments for 1959 that allotment for the farm of 10 acres, whichever is the smaller. Under the 1958 program the minimum was four acres. The national reserve is earmarked to bring farms to the minimum allotment provided for by law. This does not mean that every farm will have a 10-acre allotment. The mini-mum provision affects only that had an allotment God bless and keep you is our prayer. — Mrs. Mike Watson farms In the cotton legislation effective for 1959 and 1960 crops, a farmer will have a choice in
