

Roberts names Ingram as Bishop's replacement

Colonel Richard A. Ingram will be the new commander of the 64th Flying Training Wing at Reese. The announcement was made at Randolph Air Force Base Tuesday morning by Gen. John W. Roberts, Commander of the Air Training Command.

Colonel Ingram will replace Colonel Charles E. Bishop who has been nominated for promotion to the rank of Brigadier General and assigned to Holloman Air Force Base in Alamogordo, N.M., as the Commander of Tactical Training Holloman.

Colonel Ingram has been serving as the Director of Information for Air Training Command since September 1977. He will take command at Reese on Feb. 24.

Colonel Ingram is no stranger to Reese or the West Texas area. From August 1972 through September 1976 he was stationed at Reese. During that time he served as the Commander of the 54th Flying Training Squadron, the Commander of the 64th Air Base Group, and as the Deputy Commander for Operations. Throughout his stay here, Colonel Ingram was a popular public speaker, noted for his interest in the history and culture of the West Texas area.

Colonel Bishop has been Reese's commander since May 21, 1977. During his tenure Reese has passed such milestones as the initiation of training in the Instrument Flight Simulator, and the start of training for women pilots. Colonel Bishop will take command at Holloman on March 1.

A graduate of Phillips High School in Phillips, Texas, he received his bachelor of business administration degree in economics from Park College, Mo., and his master's degree in psychology from Troy State University, Ala. Colonel Ingram is a graduate of both the Armed Forces Staff College and the Air War College.

Enlists in 1950

Colonel Ingram enlisted in the Air Force in 1950. As a private, he served as a personnel and administrative specialist. He later served tours of duty as a first sergeant at bases in Texas and Labrador.

In 1958 he entered Officer Candidate School and by July of 1959 he had completed training in the T-28 and T-34 and had earned his pilot wings. He spent the next six months in specialized T-33 training at Vance Air Force Base, Okla.

Through the early 1960s Colonel Ingram was assigned to Craig Air Force Base, Ala., where he served as T-33 and T-37 instructor pilot and member of the wing standardization and evaluation team.

Combat duty

Then came the Vietnam conflict and Colonel Ingram saw his first live combat in the skies over Southeast Asia. From July 1965 to July 1976 he flew

Rosencrans reassigned

Cleveland joins ATC

Secretary of Defense Harold Brown has announced that Maj. Gen. Charles G. Cleveland will become Vice Commander of Air Training Command March 12.

He succeeds Maj. Gen. Evan W. Rosencrans, who has been nominated for promotion and is leaving that position for an assignment to Korea.

General Cleveland is presently director of Personnel Programs, Deputy Chief of Staff, Manpower and Personnel, Headquarters U.S. Air Force, Washington.

The assignment marks the third time the general will be stationed at Randolph Air Force Base, Tex. He entered Air Force basic pilot training at Randolph in June 1949, and from June 1972 to June 1975, served as Headquarters ATC Chief of Staff and then Deputy Chief of Staff for Technical Training.

A native of Honolulu, he graduated from the U.S. Military Academy in 1949. He received his pilot wings in September 1950 upon completion of advanced pilot training at Williams Air Force Base, Ariz.

General Cleveland flew F-86's in Korea as a flight commander at Kimpo Air Base. During his combat tour of duty, he shot down four Mig-15 aircraft and is credited with two probably destroyed and four damaged.

He is a command pilot and has accumulated more than 4,200 flying hours, including 3,600 in jet aircraft from the F-80 through the F-84, F-86, F-100, F-4 and F-111.

Drive gears up

Reese gets AFAF goal

The 1979 Air Force Assistance Fund campaign will begin here and throughout Air Training Command Feb. 21. It will end March 30.

Contributions to the campaign support three agencies whose functions assist Air Force members and their families. These agencies are Air Force Aid Society, Air Force Enlisted Men's Widows Home and the Air Force Village.

Air Force's 1979 AFAF goal is

$2 million. Reese's goal is $7,663.

In 1978, ATC personnel contributed $329,262, which was 179 percent of its goal, to the campaign. Reese people gave $10,800. In addition, all other ATC bases and special activities joined Reese in exceeding their goals by the end of last year's campaign.

The AFAF is the only fund drive organized solely to help needy Air Force members, their dependents, widows, widowers and retired couples.

The Air Force Aid Society helps by providing cash to handle temporary emergencies and by making it possible for many dependent children to attend college. Widows of Air Force members who died while on active duty or in retired status, many of whom live on limited fixed income, are given a chance to maintain a reasonable standard of living

Support Officer of Year

First Lt. Karen Hagauer, 3500 Resource Management Squadron commander, works on a squadron project in her office. The San Antonio native has been selected as the 64th Flying Training Wing Junior Support Officer of the Year. She had captured the quarterly version of the award during April, May and June of 1978.

Taking care of people!

I know that we generally do a good job of taking care of people with problems and I am confident that our reception of new people at Reese is positive. We should continue to seek ways to improve our ability to "take care of our own" and to identify and eliminate irritating, unproductive "products of frustration."

Consider the fact that if something bothers even one person, it may be troublesome to many more who simply have not expressed it — yet. Remember that first impressions are critical because you only get one chance and you can never really erase the impressions made during a first meeting.

Commanders should carefully consider the impact of their decisions on their people as well as the mission. We need to be constantly alert for changing circumstances that make past policies or procedures obsolete.

Another area of commander's concern should be associated with the support his people give to and receive from others, especially in fact-to-face situations. For example: People with personal problems should be given that extra consideration which allows them to get the problem solved. Troubled personnel should not be shrugged off with, "you sure have a problem!" attitude. Instead, "How can I help you?" should come through loud and clear.

Newcomers should be given the service they need. Remember, the more help given the new comers, the quicker a happy individual will be on the job to help accomplish the mission. Bad news should be broken to individuals with sensitivity appropriate to the situation and their tasks should be modified. Receivers of bad news frequently let their attention drift from the job with resulting accidents and less than peak performance.

Normal service should be the best possible. Service should be prompt, courteous, geared to correct deficiencies and given with a positive attitude. Let's take care of our own by considering the impact our decisions and actions have on people. And remember, we only get one chance at a first impression — give it your best effort.

Why no inspection?

I just went (Jan. 15) over to the base service station to get my car inspected. I was told there was no way they could do it, because they were short of help.

Well, that kind of irritated me, so I waited 15 minutes to talk to the manager. He told me the same thing — they were short of help and couldn't inspect my car. He said that two people didn't show up for work.

Well, the whole time I was waiting to talk to the manager I saw this man, in what looked like a service uniform, just standing and looking out the window. And, this had been going on for fifteen minutes. And I asked the manager if he worked there, and he said that yes, he is the inspector, but he couldn't inspect my car because he was pumping gas.

I just think this is typical of past experiences with Army and Air Force Exchange Service. It's a lot easier for people to say no than try and serve the customer.

SrA Paul F. Meagher

Your complaint was investigated and found to be valid. Please accept our apologies for the less than satisfactory service received. The following actions are being taken to prevent future customers from being dissatisfied:

- Two additional intermittent (on call) employees will be added to the staff to help relieve shortages of personnel.

- Base Exchange personnel have been briefed on the policy of customer satisfaction and that all efforts will be made to ensure Base Exchange customers receive only satisfactory service.

- In the event of personnel shortages, customers will be informed that they may leave their vehicle and the inspection will be completed as soon as possible. The customer will be called as soon as the inspection is complete.

Three key steps to losing weight

by Robert Gregario
Reese hospital

Successful weight loss is possible for any normal human being. In order for this weight to be lost in a safe and healthy manner, certain rules must be followed; and certain principles must be understood.

The three keys to weight loss are a calorie restricted diet, a daily ritual of exercise, and regular monitoring of the weight. Each of these key elements will now be dealt with individually.

Calorie restricted diet

The calorie restricted diet is undoubtedly the most crucial factor. A 1,000 calorie per day diet supplies enough nutrition and vitamins to sustain a normal American human being. This diet will furnish enough energy to accomplish all normal tasks of the day, both work and play.

At the same time, it does not supply unnecessary calories that will be used in the production of fat. Remember that once an adipose or fat cell is created in the body, it can never be lost. It may shrink down to a minimal size, but it will never disappear entirely. The idea, therefore, is not to create any new fat cells.

The observance of this diet maybe tailored to individual needs. One need not eat three balanced meals per day. The breakfast, lunch or dinner maybe weighted heavier than the rest of the meals during the day.

The counting of calories, never to exceed 1,000, is the crucial issue. In order to lose weight, one must calculate these calories as if one was calculating their bankbook.

Proper exercise

No doubt, with observance of the calorie restricted diet, weight will be lost. However, exercise is what molds and shapes the body to its new weight.

If a person ignores exercise, then flaccid, flabby spots appear on the body, such as the abdominal apron. If a strict regimen of exercise is observed, however, the weight will disappear; and the body will remain firm. This involves strengthening of the abdominal and back muscles, as well as the major muscle groups in the thighs and buttocks.

The most ideal exercises for weight reduction in the average American are sit-ups and deep knee bends. Naturally, the more exercise that one indulges in the more calories that are burned up, making the diet easier. As a by-product, low back pain will disappear and posture will be improved.

Weight monitoring

The third critical element in successful weight loss is the regular monitoring of the weight reduction program.

Most diets should be done under a doctor's care to watch out for vitamin deficiencies, and to provide incentive and inspiration for the depressed dieter. Anyone who has successfully dieted knows that plateaus can occur, where weight will not come off despite strict adherence to the rules. The patient should have professional counseling at these times, so that the diet program is not abandoned. Various laboratory studies maybe ordered, if necessary, to insure the patient's continued good health during the diet program.

In some cases, a medication maybe given which will help the dieter achieve his goal. These medications are known as anorectics. These must be prescribed by a physician, as many are controlled substances. The patient should be seen regularly to watch out for the potential side effects of these medications. When used successfully under a doctor's care, they can be quite beneficial and safe, but are not always necessary in every dieter.

Overweight propagates a poor self-image. It increases hypertension and promotes hardening of the arteries. A trim figure is a great boost to the ego and maintains one's youth. Weight control requires discipline and a touch of vanity. It is within the reach of everyone.

Chaplain's comment

by Chaplain (Lt. Col.)
Charles H. Locklin

Recently I purchased an inexpensive book entitled, "How to Save Time in the Ministry" written by Leslie B. Flynn.

The book begins with the following paragraph. "The late Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, whose staggering schedule included writing a regular newspaper column, numerous speaking engagements, and participation in both national and international projects, was once asked how she managed to do so much. She simply replied, "I never waste time."

Time is valuable! No conscientious person wants to waste time. The "achiever" diligently seeks to save time. Benjamin Franklin once said, "Dost thou love life? Then do not squander time, for that is the stuff life is made of."

The story is told about an officer's revolver accidentally discharging in a police station in Louisiana. The bullet tore into the clock in the wall. The local newscaster facetiously reported that the policeman had murdered time.

When asked what they are doing some people reply, "I'm just killing time." What has time done to us that we should kill it?

The late Dr. Robert G. Lee gave the following illustration: "If you had a bank that credited your account each morning with $86,400, that carried no balance from day to day, allowed you to keep no cash in your account, and finally every evening cancelled whatever part of the amount you had failed to use during the day, what would you do? Draw out every cent - of course!

Well, you have such a bank and its name is 'Time'. Every morning it credits you with 86,400 seconds. Every night it rules off - as lost - whatever of this you have failed to invest to good purpose. It carries no balances. It allows no overdrafts.

Each day the bank named 'Time' opens a new account with you. Each night it burns the records of the day. If you fail to use the days deposits the loss is yours. There is no going back. There is no drawing against tomorrow. You must live in the present - on today's deposits. Invest it so as to get from it the utmost in health, happiness, and success!"

The Apostle Paul has stated, "Therefore be careful how you walk (live), not as unwise men, but as wise, making the most of your time because the days are evil." (Ephesians 5:15-16)

Someone has shared, "Yesterday is a cancelled check. Tomorrow is a promissory note. Today is the only cash you have. Spend it wisely."

'Neither a borrower nor a lender be . . .'

by Capt. Richard A. McDonald, Legal office

Obviously in this day and time it is sometimes necessary to borrow money; however, serious problems may arise if an individual acts as a "surety" or cosigner on a note for another.

If a person cannot obtain a loan on his own credit, he may ask a "friend" or acquaintance to cosign on the note with him. Those who act as cosigners in such situations often think that they are merely assisting a friend by witnessing his signature and are not aware of their true liability on the document they have signed. Normally, both individuals who sign for a loan are comakers and are jointly and severally liable for the debt; that is, each maker is responsible to the lender for the entire amount of the loan.

Consider for a moment the fact that if your friend's credit were good, he could get the loan without having you sign with him. If you cosign a note and the debtor does not pay, you will become liable for his entire debt. Of course, you would have a right to recover from the one who defaulted on the loan, but if the bank could not recover from him, do you really think that you could?

You have a responsibility to yourself and to your family to protect your financial status; an important part of financial security is a good credit rating. Remember, the best rule to follow when asked to cosign a note for someone else is simple - "don't do it!"

Area nurses attend child abuse seminar

More than 100 area nurses will attend a "Would You Believe Child Abuse?" seminar being sponsored Friday by Reese Air Force Base's Nursing Services.

The 6-hour workshop is designed to update the nursing care and skills of health care personnel who may come in contact with the abused child. The program's focus will be recognizing, caring for and working with the abused child and family, as well as understanding the aspects of follow-up procedures.

"Our main objective is to provide these nurses a better understanding of what abuse actually is," said Lt. Col. Kathleen Wagner, Chief Nurse at the Reese Hospital. "We want to make them fully aware of their legal obligations to the child, the parent and society, as well as providing them the necessary informational resources to answer their questions."

The seminar will be taught by: Dr. Edgar Ledbetter, vice-chairman of pediatrics at the Texas Tech School of Medicine; Dr. Daniel Benson, associate professor of law at Texas Tech; and Jonette Walker, supervisor of Lubbock County Children's Protective Services. Maj. Terry Moore, charge nurse at Wilford Hall Medical Center's pediatric ward (San Antonio), and Capt. Kathryn Graziani, pediatric nurse practitioner at the Reese Hospital, will also be teaching at the seminar.

Emergency room, pediatric, licensed vocational, educational coordinator and school nurses will attend the workshop, as will nurses from the Lubbock State School. Reese's Red Cross volunteers will provide administrative assistance during the program.

Social Actions adds new drug counselor

The Social Actions office has added a new member to its staff.

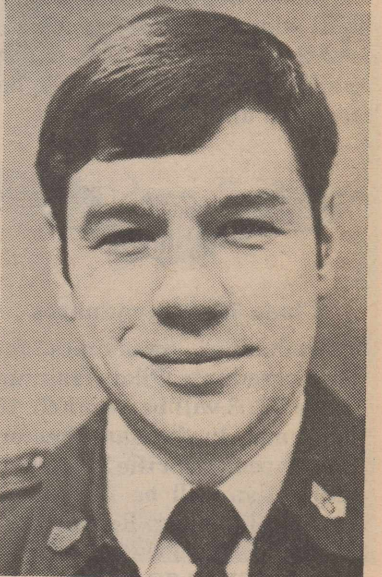

SSgt. Tommy Chmitlin, the On-The-Job Training NCO for 64th Air Base Group until Dec. 31, has cross-trained into the Social Actions career field.

The Lubbock Christian College graduate holds a bachelors degree in psychology and will be working as a drug and alcohol counselor.

"I'll be helping Doug (SSgt. Doug Stevens) with group counseling until I go to tech school," says Sergeant Chmitlin. "But, when I get back from training at Lackland in May I'll be able to do more on a one-to-one basis."

The Rawson, Ohio native has been stationed at Reese since 1973. Through off-base courses and the Community College of the Air Force he has been able to earn a degree while on active duty in less than six years.

Senior Academy moves in March

The Air Force Senior NCO Academy will be relocated from Gunter AFS, Ala., to Maxwell ABF, Ala., in March 1980.

Announcing the move, Lt. Gen. Raymond B. Furlong, Air University commander, said the relocation will provide senior noncommissioned officer students with better living accommodations and will make the academy a part of the Air Force's professional military education complex located at Maxwell.

The academy, which draws its students from the best of the enlisted corps' top three NCO grades, is scheduled to move into three buildings at Maxwell that are included in a previously announced $2.4 million renovation program.

Defense adds final satellites; Completes worldwide network

The last two satellites in the five-vehicle Defense Satellite Communications System have become operational, completing the worldwide network.

Officials at the Space and Missile Systems Organization, Air Force Systems Command, said the two satellites, launched on a single Titan booster in December, are on station in a 22,300-mile-high orbit above the Pacific Ocean.

Three other satellites in the system are also in orbit, one each over the Atlantic and Indian Oceans and a third satellite — more than five years old — is being used as a spare over the Pacific.

The Defense Communications Agency has responsibility for prioritizing and channeling use of the 1,300 data and voice circuits on each spacecraft.

Major users of the system will be State and Defense Department officials. With the arrival in orbit of the new satellites, officials believe worldwide communications will be quicker and more efficient. (AFNS)

AFMPC lists board slate

Several boards will meet at the Air Force Manpower and Personnel Center, Randolph, AFB, Texas, during the first half of 1979.

The regular colonel board, to evaluate officers for permanent promotion to O-6, convenes Feb. 26.

The central chief and senior master sergeant promotion boards will begin March 26 and May 7, respectively.

Flying training boards scheduled include the test pilot school board, Feb. 12, and the undergraduate pilot and navigator training board, April 2. (AFNS)

Blood drive

Capt. Bruce Johnson, chief of the base Personnel Utilization Section, gets his blood pressure checked by one of the South Plains Blood Service volunteers here last week. The test is taken as a precautionary measure before allowing people to donate blood. Eighty-six pints were collected here during the drive. Added to the 110 pints collected during an emergency drive two weeks earlier, the base totaled 196 pints during January. (U.S. Air Force photo)

"Just What The Family Ordered!"

NASA spices up space meals

If all goes as expected with the research now in advanced stages, the crew aboard the Space Shuttle orbiter will not suffer from malnutrition: nor will mealtimes be monotonous — instead they should be pleasurable interruptions of the daily chores.

Officials at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration say the dining table aboard the Shuttle may not be set with fine silver, but it will offer tasty meals served in an attractive manner.

Menus will be balanced with piping hot entrees, reasonably cold fruit beverages or dessert and plenty of condiments.

Crew members who like to put catsup on everything may do so; those who can't get to sleep without cookies and a drink may choose from a fairly wide selection.

A typical daily menu aboard the Shuttle may be: breakfast — orange drink, peaches, scrambled eggs, sausage, sweet roll, cocoa; lunch — cream of mushroom soup, ham and cheese sandwich, stewed tomatoes, bananas, cookies and tea; dinner — shrimp cocktail, beefsteak, broccoli au gratin, strawberries, pudding, cookie and cocoa.

All meals will be prepared with variety in mind, so that a space traveler may have a different menu for six successive days. Dining can be at a table in the galley from a food tray, or the tray may be held in the lap or fixed to the wall. (Zero gravity requires special fastenings on trays.)

Laurie Voigt, who works in Base Administration's word processing center, takes time during her lunch break to study for an upcoming sociology exam. Miss Voigt is currently enrolled in on-base courses through South Plains College. The base education office offers several on-base courses. For a complete listing of courses available contact the Education Center staff at extension 3469. (U.S. Air Force photo)

Rattlers surprise fans; Grab regional bronze

by R.D. Monson

A lot of people expected the Rattlers to make a token appearance at the Central Division playoffs, quietly accept their two defeats and make their usual "early" trip back to Lubbock.

They didn't!

Instead, the Rattlers proved to be the surprise team at last weekend's regional tournament, ousting Goodfellow and Randolph before being eliminated by the hosting Laughlin Raiders.

"We hadn't beat an Air Training Command team all year," said assistant coach Gene Powell, "but we knew that we had a club that could compete with anyone in our regional."

Coach Powell moved into the head-coaching role at the regionals when an illness in the family prevented Rattler mentor Nate Jones from making the trip.

For a while it looked as though the local cage buffs' forecast would stand up.

Lackland's Warhawks exploded for 70 points in the second half to rout the Rattlers 124-89 in the opening game and the Reese squad found itself down by five at the half of game-two. But faced with elimination, the Rattlers refused to fade. With Willie Hollis and Don Fuller providing the offensive punch and reserve Paul Caviel spearheading the defense, the Rattlers came back to take a 104-97 victory over Goodfellow.

In game-three, the Randolph Ramblers moved out to a nine-point advantage at the half and again it was Caviel's defensive play off the bench that turned things around. While Caviel helped hold down the Rambler offense, Hollis bombed in a game-high 43 points, Fuller added 32 counters and Bo Wilson chipped in 18 from the post.

That win guaranteed the Rattlers third place in the five-team tourney and set up the losers' bracket final with Laughlin.

Despite the most balanced scoring effort of the tournament for the Rattlers (Hollis-26, Fuller-22, Wilson-22 and Caviel-14) the base squad couldn't contain the Raiders in the second half and fell, 116-100.

"The team gave 100 per cent all year long and played like champs in the regionals," added coach Powell. "We didn't have the pure talent that some of the other teams had, but the guys never quit."

Hollis, who scored 118 points in four games was picked to augment the regional champion Warhawk roster. He will play with the Warhawks in the command championships next week.

The 1979 Rattler regional team included: Hollis, Fuller, Wilson, Caviel, Randy Core, Alex McClanahan, L'Thanyan Johnson, Roy Bradley, Robert Cobb and Savington Nickens.

DermaCulture Clinic
3331-70th (70th at Indiana Ave.)

BENEFICIAL TREATMENT FOR ALL SKIN COMPLEXIONS

Specializing in Control of Oily Skin and Acne

If you are young, old, male or female your complexion will be improved with DermaCulture treatments. People with acne problems, blackheads or oily skin will especially benefit from these treatments.

Mrs. Chris Farmer, who has opened the DermaCulture Clinic at 70th and Indiana here in Lubbock, is a registered surgical nurse and licensed esthetician. Mrs. Farmer has considerable experience in complexion care and in helping to control unsightly acne. She originally discovered DermaCulture while trying to control her own skin problem several years ago and has been successful.

The DermaCulture method was originally developed for problem skin. It has even restored severely damaged complexions and enjoys an enviable reputation for creating fragile, flawless complexions. Many famous personalities including movie and TV greats have patronized the clinics in California where DermaCulture, Inc. headquarters was first established. Several airline stewardess schools, including American and Texas International, regularly send their stewardesses or trainees to DermaCulture for treatment when skin problems are discovered.

Treatments begin when the customer reclines on a comfortably padded, vibrating table with his or her legs elevated to promote good circulation and relaxation. A satiny facial cleansing is administered followed by a vaporizing solution which is applied to soften the skin. This solution softens pore trapped bits of film that clog and stop normal secretions of oil.

Next the application of an infra-red mask which warms and opens the pores and further softens any unwanted accumulations. Foreign particles, excess oil and bits of dead skin are then gently and thoroughly vacuumed away. The end of the vacuum cleaner resembles a bent, plastic drinking straw.

The final step is a pleasant firming technique using highly perfected patented equipment. The customer's reward is a consistently improving complexion with each treatment.

Interestingly, a great many of DermaCulture users are men, especially those who have some form of acne. Currently, 35-40% of the customers at the 70th and Indiana Clinic are men.

DermaCulture features a complete line of cleansers, conditioners and make-up which can be mixed to match an individual's complexion.

DermaCulture . . . a whole new concept in complexion care. If you value your skin, your looks, your poise and personal ego; if you would like to achieve that serene self confidence that only comes with looking your very best try DermaCulture.

Post-season play nears; Scribe picks 54th FTS

by R.D. Monson

With only a handful of games left in the regular season, the 54th Flying Training Squadron is the "odds on" favorite capture the intramural title.

Sporting a gaudy 9-0 record in regulation, the 54th is expected to remain unbeaten into and through the post-season playoffs.

With unquestionably the league's best front line, the 54th has rolled through the circuit schedule without ever being really tested.

Towering Jeff Stieg, the 54th's 6 foot 7 postman, anchors an intimidating front line. Flanking the loop's probable MVP are 6 foot 3 Mike Narkiewicz and 6 foot 4 Roger Rechsteiner.

Danny Clifton and Pat Moran provide an aggressive backcourt tandem with sixth-man Jack Clements coming off the bench as the third guard. Rounding out the roster are Ben Phillips and Kevin Grady.

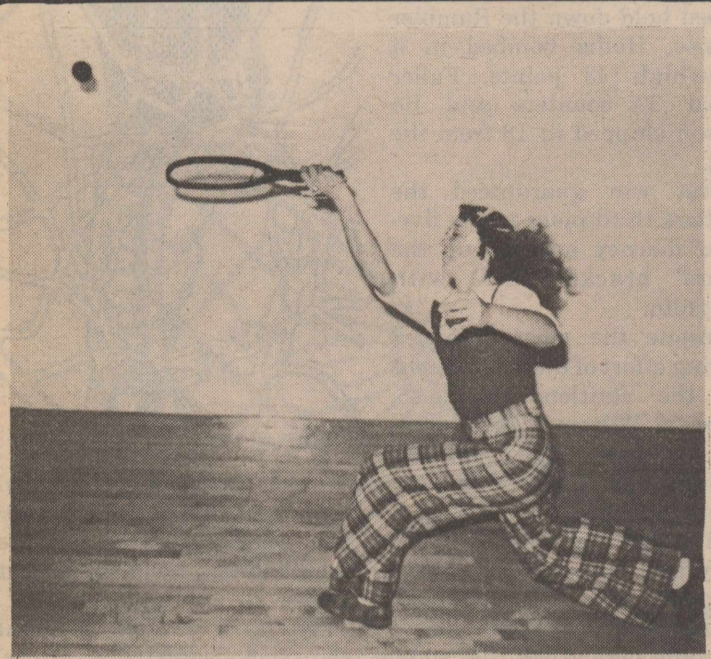

The 54th and either Air Base Group or Resource Management (depending on Wednesday night's action) will sit out the first round of the playoffs on Tuesday night. RM was scheduled to play the 54th Wednesday night. A win would put RM into second place — a loss would leave Group in that spot.

At any rate, the 54th, Group, RM and OMS have all clinched playoff berths. The Youth Center, Supply, the Hospital, Sturon-1 and Sturon-2 were to battle for the final two playoff spots this week. Only the top six teams qualify for the post-season tournament.

The tourney begins Tuesday night and will continue through Feb. 14, the night of the scheduled title game. Most intramural cage fans are predicting a 54th rematch with Group for the title. Others favor a 54th vs. RM championship.

Last week's intramural results are: Group 72, OMS 65 - Youth Center 51 - 35th FTS 41, Field Maintenance - Civil Engineers 44, Group 58 - FMS 51, 35th 2 - CEO, Youth Center 49 - Sturon-2 38, RM 43 - Comm., 40, and Medics 50 - Sturon - 1 48.

Court action

Elva Whitehead slaps a shot into the corner during a recent racquetball match here. Racquetball and handball players are reminded that the only way to reserve a court on base is to call the gym after 8 a.m. on weekdays and after 2 p.m. Friday for weekends. (U.S. Air Force photo)

'Ecology' tourney set

The Reese golf club will launch the 1979 season with an "Ecology" tournament Feb. 17.

According to base officials, the special tournament will begin at 8:30 a.m. with two hours of sprucing up the golf course. After the clean-up is complete, participants will form teams for a round "four-man scramble" golf.

Anyone helping with the clean-up will play in the tournament for free. A no-cost spread of good things to eat and drink will be provided workers after the tournament.

For more information on the ecology scramble tournament contact the golf course staff at extension 3819.
