

CFC contributions top $71,000 mark

With only one week left in Combined Federal Campaign, it looks as if Reese may fail to meet its $80,000 goal.

According to Capt. Ron Bailey, CFC project officer, 90 percent, or $71,423, of the goal has been collected. Although six of all the 11 agencies reporting are over 100 percent of goal, the remaining contributions are insufficient to cover the all-time high mark.

Highest among those reporting is wing staff, with 239 percent of its goal accounted for. Field Training Detachment runs second 167 percent, followed by Area Defense Council with 126, Hospital with 125, Management Engineering Team with 124 and Weather with 122.

Those that have failed to reach their unit goals are Resources Management with 66 percent, Communications with 66, Maintenance with 68, Air Base Group with 80, and the DO complex, falling just short with 96 percent.

Captain Bailey commented on the possibility of reaching the overall goal by saying, "Being very optimistic, there is a possibility that we can make it. If the organizations that are low will come through there is still a chance. Operations for instance has very diligently gone back through and canvassed for late pledges. It looks like they will hit 100 percent.

"If everybody would recognize the need we have and dig deep, we could still make it. Anything is possible."

For those who are interested in making or increasing a pledge in order to help Reese over the top, loaned executives are available from each agency to take contributions. They are: Capt. Thomas W. Christensen—Maintenance and Field Training Detachment, Ext. 3424; Capt. (Dr.) Robert L.

Crane—Hospital, Property Disposal and Office of Special Investigations, Ext. 3338; and Capt. Douglas Repaal, Air Base Group and the 1958th Communications Squadron, Ext. 3200.

Others are: 1st Lt. Stephen A. Headley—Wing staff, Ext. 3410; 1st Lt. Howard M. Johnson—Operations and Weather, Ext. 3354; and 2nd Lt. Glenn C. Jones—Resource Management, the Management Engineering Team and Base Exchange, Ext. 3299.

There are approximately 50 service organizations in the Lubbock area that benefit from the CFC.

During Monday visit

Chayes talks with local media

Representatives from local news media, including a Reese Roundup reporter, were on hand at base operations Monday for an interview with Undersecretary of the Air Force, Antonia Handler Chayes.

Chayes had just finished a tour of Reese which included a mission briefing, a drive-around tour of facilities, a look at the flight simulators and the 35th Flying Training Squadron and meetings with groups of instructor and student pilots.

After discussing such international questions as the impact of Sinai withdrawal on the construction of U.S. financed bases, Chayes addressed the problem of retention in the face of eroding military entitlements and shrinking buying power.

"We're looking at a variety of possible changes (to improve retention). I was discussing these with some of the IPs. A general improvement in the compensation system has been a DoD study, including, for example, a variable housing allowance; including improvements in PCS; including some increases in overall pay. We have managed to get a seven percent rather than a five percent pay cap, and while that's not great, it is something.

"I think we're looking at special incentive pays, reenlistment bonuses, and special incentives for certain skill categories. Conceptually, what we're trying to do is, one, be equitable and, two, target special funds to special skill categories."

When asked if this meant a return to proficiency pay, the undersecretary replied, "No, we're talking about such special skill areas as pilots, engineers and those that require bonuses. We're also looking to keep the

Reese installs energy control system

During Fiscal Year-1979 Reese energy conservation measures saved the Air Force nearly $143,000. With the installation of a new computerized energy monitoring and control system, base officials expect even greater savings next year.

The first phase of the new system, which uses computers to control the temperature and humidity in various base buildings, will be completed by the beginning of the year. By then, nine facilities at Reese will be hooked up to the central computer in Civil Engineering headquarters, building 553. Installation of the system in more base facilities is expected to start later next year.

Buildings having the control system installed in them now include the 35th Flying Training Squadron and the 64th Student Squadron buildings, the Corrosion Control facility, the base theater and the Security Police headquarters. Other facilities include the base Arts and Crafts Center, a transfer station and the 1958th Communications Squadron maintenance building.

The $375,000 system is similar to that already in use in the Instrument Flight Simulator, although Civil Engineer spokesmen report that the new

"We hope to have an energy savings of 15 to 25 percent over present usage in the buildings using the control system," projected Lomas Freeman, chief of the Energy Management Section. "Eventually we hope to have every permanent building on base hooked up to the central computer."

Controlling the temperature and humidity aren't the only things the new system can do. It can automatically shut on or off energy using devices. "This system can do about anything we want to program it for," explained Freeman.

In addition to this system, Reese will have another computerized energy saver at work by next summer in Reese Village. This system will regulate the number of air conditioners running in the village at any one time to keep

Military courtesy affects us all!

by Col. Monte Montgomery
64th Air Base Group
commander

Military courtesy is a subject affecting each of us individually. It belongs not only to officers - nor only to our enlisted force. Each Air Force member must be willing to live within the parameters set by our regulations and standards.

Courtesy entails more than saluting when forced — it's an attitude, one of commitment to a goal and to a cause. The goal is the preservation of the Air Force way of life — to quote the recruiters, "a great way of life." The cause is to maintain and uphold the long standing traditions of the military.

Many businesses require sacrifice and discipline, yet the Air Force requires even more. But then the Air Force depends on it more. Our people serve to defend and protect their country and they must be disciplined. We owe it to the Americans we serve with and defend. I personally want the "best" looking out for our country and if, in order to be the best we must be disciplined — then I want and demand that discipline from my fellow Air Force members.

To continue on our present course we must each exercise discipline. Discipline is the key — from an airman basic to a four star general. The discipline to want to look crisp and neat; to want to salute one another; to be cordial and helpful to our civilian counterparts; and to work each day at the proudest profession in the land.

Being a member of the Air Force is more than putting on a uniform and pulling an 8 to 5. It is being totally and unquestionably dedicated to a profession. It is putting your personal desires and wishes aside — making sacrifices that other people can't begin to imagine. It is living and professing a commitment to a very unique life style. In short it is discipline.

Each and every one of us should be proud of our traditions and our style. We stand out in a crowd, other groups try to emulate us, and we are admired by our youth. The impression we make on our civilian communities is critical. They expect and anticipate a very professional, clean cut, uniformed service. We owe them nothing less! This is an important reason to be even more conscious than ever about how you as an individual are representing our country.

The military demands a consistency — in appearance, as well as in performance. We all take an oath of enlistment or office and we must live by that oath. In case you have forgotten, that oath requires us to comply with regulations regardless of what our personal feelings and choices may be.

We must never sell short our value as an institution to our country and we must never fail to understand the importance of military courtesy in upholding our standards of conduct and hence our value. I challenge each individual reading this today to be the best you can be. We, the country, can no longer afford "sunshine" patriots. We need airmen!

Colonel Montgomery

Dining Hall

It started yesterday morning when I went to the dining hall at 7:45 a.m. The scrambled eggs were undercooked, and the french toast was burnt. They were also out of "SOS."

Tonight at 6:55 a.m. I went over there to get a hamburger and some french fries. The lady said she was out hamburgers and hamburger buns. How could they be out of hamburger meat and buns that early? I do not get separate rations and it is my only place to get something hot to eat.

So finally, after arguing with her for five minutes I finally got myself a hamburger. All the while I had to put up with her arguing with me saying, "I don't have to take your lip and I don't have to do this." I was just explaining to her that at 6:55 a.m. I need a hot meal as I won't have anywhere to eat all night. It is the day before payday and I can't afford to leave base and buy food off base and I don't have any transportation downtown and the food on base is expensive for an Airman only making $524.10 a month.

Dear Undercooked Eggs and Burnt Toast

We offer no excuses for what happened; however, the following changes have been made to correct the problems you encountered.

First, the fry cooks have been briefed on the proper method to cook eggs. Second, the procurement of food items has been adjusted to insure sufficient quantities are on hand.

Lastly, and most importantly, the project manager has been instructed to brief and counsel all employees on the proper manner to address customer complaints and the attitude displayed toward the customer.

As a matter of information, we are initiating an extensive program to enhance the total operation and appearance of the dining hall. You and all the customers should be seeing changes immediately. If not, sound off again. We appreciate your comments.

Halloween brings out 'trick or treaters'

With Halloween approaching, it's time to consider the safety and potential hazards children should be made aware of.

By following the tips included here, children can enjoy a safe and happy Halloween, Reese safety officials note.

Be careful of the material in costumes. Many are extremely flammable. With jack-o'-lanterns and candles present, the possibility of a billowing costume or long wig catching fire is very real.

Though people don't like to think others would give unsafe treats, there are always a few who do. Tell children not to eat anything until it's been checked out. Throw away any item that causes the slightest suspicion, including any upwrapped treats.

Children can become excited and forget even normal road precautions. Remember that dusk is the time of poorest visibility for drivers. Instruct children to avoid dark streets and make sure they wear a bright, reflective costume.

Know the plans of children. Where will they be going? Who will they be going with? Ideally they should be accompanied by an adult or older child.

What will they be doing? Do they have any pranks planned? What time will they be home? Agree on what time they must be home before they leave.

If possible, attach reflective tape to the children's costumes. Give them a flashlight.

Don't obstruct the porch with potted plants or jack-o'-lanterns.

Make sure the porch light is on. Don't ask or encourage children to come into your home.

Check heating devices

Have your furnace and kitchen stove installed and checked periodically by a competent tradesman. Avoid portable gas, kerosene, gasoline or oil burning heaters which consume the room's oxygen and given off deadly fumes. Never resort to makeshift heating or cooking units in your home.

A screen should always be placed in front of the fireplace to keep sparks from flying onto the rugs and furniture. Keep your supply of fuel well away from the fire. Fires should be tended by an adult, and small children should never be allowed to throw paper or wood into the flames.

Check your furnace and chimney to be sure they do not overheat, especially in very cold weather when furnaces work overtime. If adjacent combustible material feels hot to the hand, a fire danger exists.

ones we have at the second enlistment, the career point decision."

Questioned in more depth about keeping pilots against the lure of civilian airlines she stated, "Airline requirements are running about 1800 to 2000 per year through the year 2000. My guess is that the airlines will take all the pilots they need from all the military services, but I think that we are doing a number of things in the Air Force to stem these losses and see that we don't lose people to non-flying units and positions."

The recent recall of rated supplement pilots to flying status illustrated Chayes comment.

Upon departure from Reese Undersecretary Chayes flew to Sheppard AFB, Texas, to tour their facilities.

Four get CCAF degrees

Three base airmen and a former Reese worker now attending Texas Tech University have been awarded associate degrees in applied sciences through the Community College of the Air Force.

The four awardees were among the Air Force's 1,720 CCAF students that received associate degrees Tuesday.

The three Reese graduates their units and degrees are: MSgt. Octavio Guerrero, 64th Air Base Group, Resource Management Technology; SrA David Ducharme, 64th Field

Maintenance Squadron, Avionics Instrument System Technology; and SMSgt. Roger Barton, FMS, Aerospace Ground Equipment Technology.

MSgt. Jerry W. Merryman, formerly a member of the 64th Civil Engineering Squadron, received his degree in Civil Engineering Technology. He is presently attending Texas Tech under the Airmen Education and Commissioning Program.

Air Force wide, some 82 degrees were conferred in radio communications technology, and 84 airmen earned degrees in resource management technology. Fifty-seven received degrees in material management, 69 in data processing, 62 in avionics systems technology and 64 in aircraft maintenance technology.

Other degrees included dental hygiene, food and nutritional science, music, ophthalmic technology and religious institution management.

Tuesday's graduation brings the number of CCAF associate in applied science degree holders to more than 7,600.

AFROTC program expands

Airmen at Reese and throughout the Air Force previously denied eligibility for Air Force commissions because of age restrictions stipulated in Air Force Regulation 53-20 may be eligible for commissions through the Air Force Reserve Officers' Training Corps.

According to AFROTC officials, airmen who will be less than 35-years-old when commissioned, may, with an approved age waiver, apply for an early release from the Air Force to enter AFROTC.

Applicants for this program must be able to complete bachelor's degree requirements within two academic years. Any academic major is eligible and academic study plans must be approved by Air Force ROTC.

Other requirements for applicants include: obtaining an enrollment authorization from the school they plan to attend in the category they wish to enter AFROTC; taking an Air Force Officer Qualifying Test and scheduling an Air Force medical examination.

Airmen accepted in this program will not be discharged more than 30 days prior to entry into college and concurrent enrollment into AFROTC's Professional Officer Course.

To verify eligibility and rule out other regulation restrictions, AFROTC officials recommend that interested persons write the Office of Public Affairs, Air Force ROTC, Maxwell AFB, AL, 36112, or call (205) 293-2825 or contact the Professor of Aerospace Studies at the university or college they plan to attend.

peak load costs down. The computer will automatically turn off and on air conditioning units in the Village with no unit remaining turned off for more than a few minutes at a time. Freeman noted that Village residents probably won't even notice the system in use.

Using computers to save energy is not a new idea in the Air Training Command. Other bases with energy monitoring and control devices such as that being installed here are: Williams AFB, Ariz.; Vance AFB, Okla.; Lackland AFB, Texas; and Keesler AFB, Miss. Randolph AFB, Texas is also having a similar system put in.

And the command's search for ways to save energy doesn't end there. Several programs designed to reduce dependency on non-renewable energy resources are underway. For example, solar energy systems are being tested on several military family housing units at Sheppard AFB, Texas and the Randolph Base Exchange.

A feasibility study recently completed by the Department of Energy indicates that a practical geothermal source may be available to provide heating and cooling at Williams. Planning is underway to tap this geothermal source.

Saving America's fossil fuels is a major priority of the Air Force. At Reese and at bases around the world the Air Force is looking for better ways to conserve.

Members of the Civil Engineer Prime Beef team prepare to depart for a Bold Eagle exercise at Eglin AFB, Fla. While there, members will participate in combat skills training such as rapid runway repair, revetment construction, airfield lighting and bomb damage facility repair.

Some specialty codes convert

Seven Air Force specialty Codes will undergo complete or indirect conversions Wednesday, changing the selective reenlistment bonus offered people in those fields.

Air Force personnel in AFSC 276X1 will be converted to 276X0 with a zone-A SRB of "three" and a zone-B SRB of "one." Those in AFSC 316X1F will convert to 316X25 with a Zone-A SRB of "one" and no

Zone-B SRB. AFSC A431Xoc/D will become 113X0B with a SRB of "one" in both Zone A and B.

Four AFSCs will have indirect conversions, meaning that, based on individual qualifications, a member may or may not be converted to the new AFSC. Career fields affected are 472X0 to 472X4; 472X1/A/B/C/D to 472X4; 472X2 to 472X4 and 472X3 to 472X4.

Depending on individual qualifications, SRBs may vary. People in any of the four listed AFSCs should contact SSgt. Kenneth Zielinski, base career advisor.

In another SRB change, a reported termination of SRBs for AFSC 251X0 was an error. People in AFSC 251X0 are eligible for an Zone-A and Zone-B SRB of "one."

Don Crow Chevrolet Announces Payton Heading Firm's Body Shop Operations

Thoroughly in keeping with its emphasis on providing the utmost in customer satisfaction, Don Crow Chevrolet, Inc., is proud to announce J.D. Payton as its new Body Shop manager.

Service Manager Jess Nichols joins with the firm's ownership in enthusiastic introduction of Payton as a member of the Don Crow family of professionals who at the same time are genuinely interested in the customer's particular needs, as one good friend to another.

Payton is no stranger to area folks or the motoring public throughout the region. A longtime Lubbock resident, he is a '71 graduate of Coronado High School, and since '74 has been associated with Chevrolet dealerships in service, parts or body shop.

"We are really trying to provide an outstanding body shop at Don Crow Chevrolet, Slide Road at South Loop 289," Payton states, "and I want to say that I believe we have the best auto painter in Lubbock in person of Larry Paez. We do any type body work and sincerely solicit your patronage."

It all fits in with the picture at Don Crow Chevrolet, where personnel, from ownership and department heads to every staffmember, take pride in the ultimate in customer service.

The Service Department is one of the areas in which the firm takes justifiable and distinct pride.

Jess Nichols (with 23 years of service in Lubbock) tells how all service work is guaranteed 90 days or 4,000 mile on all General Motors parts and accessories. More than a dozen technicians, plus three service advisors, are on the job.

Areas of service within the department include the paint and body department, the new car make ready, used car make ready, quick service and heavy line service.

The advisors, together with technicians, mark both practical experience and special training among their qualifications. Several are certified as master technicians.

"We are fully aware that the customer signs our paychecks in the Service Department at Don Crow Chevrolet! May we have the consideration of your next visit when auto preventative maintenance, repair or paint and body work are in the picture? Come by, whether in need of immediate services or not, and renew acquaintance or make the new acquaintance of J.D. Payton in the Body Shop."

"You're Number One with us!"

Command volleyball players make all-Air Force squad

Two Air Training Command airmen have been chosen to participate in the international military volleyball competition in Athens, Greece.

Sgts. Ieti Sagiao and David Martin, both of Randolph AFB, Texas, were selected to compete in the Conseil International Sport Du Militaire, a tournament of military sporting teams from over 72 member nations.

Sergeant Sagiao, along with the remainder of the all-services volleyball team, will train at Wright Patterson AFB, Ohio before departing for the CISM competition, which started Monday and ends Nov. 3.

Sergeant Martin, the volleyball coach at Randolph, chose to decline the CISM invitation due to the impending birth of his first child.

Sergeant Sagiao has twice been named to the Air Force volleyball team, and twice participated in the inter-service volleyball tournament which the Air Force won. He was also twice selected as a member of the armed forces team that competed in the United States Volleyball Association National Tournament.

This is the first time that the United States has entered a volleyball team in the CISM

Reese sets 'best ball' tournament

A two-man scramble turkey shoot will be held at the Reese golf course Nov. 3 and 4.

According to Kelley Cartron, tournament coordinator, the rules require teammates to make their tee-shots, then both members will make their second shot from where the best shot lands.

Tee-time for the two day event is 8:45 and the cost will include a $5 entry fee with the usual green fee.

Frozen turkeys will be awarded to first place winners and further prizes determined by the number of entries.

Participants will be flighted after the first day of play. The tournament is open to all military, DoD civilians and all invited guests.

Rattlers remain winless; women lose cage debut

Still searching for their first win of the season, the men's varsity cagers followed last week's disappointing debut of the women's team with their fifth straight loss, an 83 to 73 defeat by the Cannon Roadrunners.

Although the Rattlers have yet to find the winner's circle, co-coaches Gene Powell and Nate Jones fell the squad is on the right track. Last Wednesday's 10-point losing margin was the lowest to date. In their first four starts the team lost by an average of 38 points per game.

"We're starting to come around," predicted Jones. "Right now our inexperience is hurting us. We keep taking ourselves out of games with mental mistakes — breakdowns in concentration."

But Jones and Powell think that the team is close to finding itself.

"In our search for an effective backcourt combination we haven't been able to get a stable starting unit together," admitted Jones. "But we think Hugo (Aruizu) and Randy (Love) may be the guards we've been looking for."

Powell added that first-year center Elijah Davis has been getting some extra attention from the coaching staff and is expected to become a solid force in the Rattler attack. And with Don Fuller hitting at close to 30 points per game and able running mates Savington Nickens and Bo Wilson sharing the other forward slot, the front line should be the Rattler strength.

The team will test its new starting formula this weekend at the Kirtland Invitational at Albuquerque, N.M.

Coach James Lawson's women's team lost its opening game 39-22. Elaine Collette led the Reese with eight points, six in the second half.

Supply, Sturon-1 chase 54th FTS

Charging Supply Squadron knocked off the 1958th Communications Squadron last week to pull to within a single game of the league leading 54th Flying Training Squadron in the loss column.

Supply improved its season grid record to 5-1 by pounding Comm. 37-0. The loss dropped Comm. to 2-7 on the year.

Organizational Maintenance continued its climb up the standings by upsetting Sturon-1, 14-8. The win hoisted OMS to within two games of the idle 54th.

Sturon-1 bounced back from the loss to defeat the Hospital, 14-6 and remain in the title hunt at 7-2.

In other loop action, Field Maintenance bombed the Civil Engineers, 26-9; Sturon-1 blanked Comm., 36-0; the 35th FTS beat FMS; 14-6; CE dropped Comm. 14-6 and the 35th FTS shut out OMS, 6-0.
