BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP NATO defense ministers, at a three-day meeting opening today, are expected to take steps to counter US criticism that Western Europe fails to contribute its fair share to the The ministers, according to Spending on NATO's infrastructure program from 1985 through 1991 will represent a 38 per cent to 40 percent increase in real terms over current funding, a senior U.S. NATO official said He said the increase would lengthen the sur vival capability of troops and planes in war and thus delay the moment when NATO might have to use nuclear arms He and other officials, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said they hoped approval of the higher spending figure would alleviate US congressional concerns that the Europeans do not spend enough on defense Last June, the Senate rejected on a 55-41 vote a proposal to pull 90,000 U.S. troops out of Europe

The proposal by Sen Sam Nunn, D.Ga. was designed to force America's NATO allies to step up their spending for the joint defense effort Nunn has said the Europeans should keep enough ammunition in storage to last US com

Judge to decide if teen-ager can get fair trial in Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Teenage murder defendant David Port was to learn today whether he would stand trial in his hometown in connection with the slaying of a woman letter

State District Judge I.D. McMaster studied hundreds of newspaper clippings and broadcast scripts as he considered a defense motion to move the case.

Attorneys for Port, 17, contend the youth could not get a fair trial in Houston because of extensive news coverage of the case

Port is free on $20,000 bond on a murder charge filed in the death of letter carrier Debora Sue Schatz. The 23-year-old woman disappeared June 7 while delivering mail in the West Houston neighborhood where Port and his parents live.

The service was to be provided by Sinclair's Diversified Financial and Management Services, based in Plano, where he then lived, The News reported.

In 1978, Briscoe wrote to Alabama officials that "Mr. Sinclair had not misled any citizen of the state of Alabama and had engaged in a legitimate loan brokerage operation.'

Violence may curtail prison revivals

HOUSTON (AP) - Violence in Texas prisons may force cutbacks in the number of religious revivals scheduled behind bars.

Ten prisons have been dropped from the 18 units whose wardens had agreed to the services, the Houston Chronicle reported Sun-

This is far short of what we had expected," said Bill Robinson, associate director of the Prisoners Bible Institute in Pearland, which organized the revivals.

Robinson, who is an ex-convict, blamed the devil for the increase in prison violence that discouraged some church leaders from holding the revivals.

But Clyde Johnson, head chaplain for the prison system, has right for the revivals, which were scheduled for Dec. 7 to 9.

"I don't think it is the time to have this kind of effort," Johnson said earlier this summer. "If I was a warden, I don't think I would want to accept the responsibility. of having this many free-world people in my prison," Johnson

More than 370 inmates have been attacked in Texas Department of Corrections facilities this year, and 23 have been killed.

The most recent violence occurred Saturday night when two inmates were stabbed while allegedly trying to attack a third prisoner at the Eastham Unit in Houston County.

However, the director of the Bible Institute, the Rev. Paul Carlin, said the revivals would be hindered by "a lot more problems" than prison violence.

"Whenever you are attempting to do that in a system this size, then there will be massive probtems with personnel, prisoners, food service and so forth," Carlin

Carlin said about 575 church leaders and lay members plan to participate in the revivals in an effort to convert prisoners to Christianity.

The revivals will be held in Huntsville's Ellis I & II, Eastham and Ferguson units; the Ramsey II Unit at Angleton; the Hilltop Unit in Gatesville; and Texas Youth Council facilities at Gid-

Mexico to file charges against alien smuggler

HOUSTON (AP) — Mexican prose-cutors were to file murder and kidnapping charges today in the 1982 torture-slaying of four Salvadorans southwest of Houston, U.S. Attorney Dan Hedges said.

Hedges said Thursday he received word that Guillermo Calzada, a Mexican federal prosecutor, was to file charges in Nuevo Laredo, Mexico, against Arturo Martinez Herrera.

Hedges said the agreement was the first time he knew of that a foreign country agreed to prosecute "a major crime which took place well inside U.S. borders.

WEATHER SUMMARY

The National Weather Service forecasts snow flurries for Tuesday for the Texas Panhandle, northern New Mexicoand the upper Great Lakes and showers for the eastern Gulf.

Skies clear, temperatures chilly over most of state

Skies were clear, but temperatures were chilly over much of Texas this morning. Dry, polar air allowed temperatures to fall into the upper 20s and lower 30 across the High Plains, the Trans Pecos region, and North Central

The National Weather Service said rain showers in southern portions of South Texas likely would be the key exception to that weather picture over the state. Afternoon highs in the 40s were expected for the Panhandle and in the 50s and 60s elsewhere.

Overnight readings today were in the mid 40s to mid 50s over most of South Texas and the coastal plain, except the lower Rio Grande Valley, where temperatures remained in the upper 60s. At 4 a.m., temperatures ranged from 22 at Amarillo to 70 at Brownsville.

As high pressure settled southward into the state, cool dry air brought clear skies to all but extreme South Texas. Scattered low clouds hugged the lower coast and the valley with a few widely scattered thunderstorms remaining offshore along the lower coast.

Northeast winds at 5 to 15 mph were common across most of Texas excep the High Plains, where light southeasterly breezes prevailed.

Gusty winds whipped up snow in the Midwest today, snow was moving into northern New England, temperatures dipped below zero in the Plains and rain was widespread elsewhere.

A heavy snow warning was in effect today for upper Michigan near Lake Superior, where as much as 10 inches of snow, accompanied by strong northwest winds, were expected by tonight. Travelers' advisories were posted for the remainder of upper Michigan, northern Lower Michgan, northeast Wisconsin and parts of northern Wisconsin, where several inches of snow were expected.

Gale warnings were in effect for the Great Lakes. Winter storm watches were issued for northern New Hampshire and the western foothills, western mountains and central highlands of Maine. Snow was moving into these areas today. In the West, showers occurred ahead of a cold front that was moving across the central Pacific Coast. Rain changed to snow over the northern Sierra Nevadas and at elevations higher than 7,000 feet in the west half of the Lake Tahoe basin.

Rain was scattered over central and southern Michigan, the lower Ohio Valley, the middle and southern Atlantic Coast states, the central Gulf Coast states and the central and southern Pacific Coast.

Jordan: U.S. should take responsibility

ISMAILIA, Egypt (AP) — Jordan today urged the United States to "shoulder its responsibility as a superpower" and press Israel to withdraw from occupied Arab land.

Jordan's prime minister, Ahmed Obeidat, issued the appeal while King Hussein conferred with Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak aboard a yacht in the Suez Canal on the final day of the monarch's visit to Egypt.

"Jordan urges the United States to abide by principles and to shoulder its responsibility as a superpower by respecting and implementing international resolutions...so there can be a total (Israeli) withdrawal and an overall peace," Obeidat told reporters.

Resolution 242 of the U.N. Security Council calls on Israel to withdraw from occupied lands as part of a Middle East peace settlement in which Arab states would recognize its right to Obeidat said Hussein's three days of talks in Egypt had been designed "to try and build up an Arab position" toward peace moves and that Jordan hoped recent contacts between Hussein and Palestine Liberation Organization leader Yasser Arafat would lead to fresh diplomatic moves "on the international level," such as a .N.-sponsored peace conference.

The Jordanian prime minister said the Soviet Union had a "fundamental role" to play in any future Middle East settlement and disclosed that Jordan would soon sign a final agreement to buy more Soviet air-defense weapons.

President Reagan withdrew an offer to provide Stinger missiles to Jordan after criticism from Congress and Israel. Hussein, who was to fly back to Jordan later today, told the Egyptian Parliament on Sunday that there can be no Arab-Israeli peace talks without the PLO Organization as a "full partner" to the negotiations.

The king said he was ready to work with the PLO in the search for peace but rejected suggestions that Jordan bargain with the Israelis on the PLO's behalf. Israel refuses to deal directly with the PLO, which it considers a terrorist group seeking to destroy the Jewish state.

In Cairo, the semi-official newspaper Al-Ahram quoted Parliament Speaker Rifaat el-Mahgoub on Sunday as saying Egyptian intelligence had learned of a plot by an unidentified Arab country to bomb the assembly building during Hussein's speech. However, Egyptian officials today denied

Before their shipboard meeting today, Hussein and Mubarak made a brief tour of the western Sinai peninsula, the only Arab land captured in the 1967 war to be returned by the Israelis. Israel took the area along with the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip, but returned the peninsula to Egypt as part of the Camp David agreements.

Hussein, in his speech to parliament, criticized the Camp David accords because they did not offer the Palestinians the same return of their lands as it did the Egyptians and offered no role for the PLO in determining the future of the Palestinians.

Hussein's visit, which began Saturday, followed the meeting of the Palestine National Council in Jordan and has focused on prospects for an Egyptian-Jordanian-Palestinian effort to revive peace talks with israel next year.

Despite Hussein's demand for a PLO role in negotiations, an Israeli official who refused to be identified told The Associated Press in Jerusalem there were positive signs emerging from the Hussein-Mubarak talks and that Israel believed the two leaders were discussing "a more realistic approach" to negotiations behind closed doors. Syria and Libya have denounced Hussein's visit, and state-run media in the two countries have said Hussein and Mubarak were planning a

Group sees need for civil rights changes

WASHINGTON (AP) - An influential conservative think tank says President Reagan's Justice Department should further restrict federal civil rights actions in the workplace, the school, the voting booth, and the housing market.

The Heritage Foundation, which has been a private font of ideas for the administration, sees a need for still more sweeping changes in fed-eral civil rights policies despite lavishing praise on the changes wrought during Reagan's first term. Outlining an agenda for the department in Reagan's second term, the foundation assigns a top priority to a new civil rights issue, the "comparable worth" theory of achieving pay equity for women. It calls that issue "the most significant employment discrimination issue of

Advocates of the theory argue that sex discrimination has held down salaries in jobs mostly occupied by women, like secretarial positions, while male-dominated jobs requiring comparable knowledge, skill and judgment receive higher

This year, they convinced a federal judge to order Washington state to give female employees $800 million in back pay based upon a private consulting firm's assessment that their jobs were comparable to higher-paying men's jobs.

But Heritage says, "The fight against comparable worth must become a top priority for the next administration," because it "would lead to a flood of litigation, massive wage redistribution, a distortion of free market principles and, ultimately, widespread job dislocation." This is among a score of Heritage proposals contained in the Justice Department chapter of "Mandate for Leadership II: Continuing the Conservative Revolution. A copy of the chapter was obtained by The Associated Press.

In a separate chapter on labor policies during the president's first term, the Heritage Foundation asserted that "perhaps the key Rea-gan administration failure was the Administration budget cutters, in addition to cutting back $45 billion in 1986, would like to pare $85 billion in 1987 and $110 billion in 1988. That would reduce the deficit to a bit more than $100 billion in 1988. The red ink soared to a record

Even flat tax isn't as simple as it sounds

By MIKE FEINSILBER Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - If Donald Regan came to your front door, the chances are good that he'd be able to sell you on the idea that the American tax system has been patched up too often and ought to be replaced with a new model that he just happens to have.

He brought that sales pitch to the White House, but so far he hasn't been able to register with his No. 1 client, Ronald Reagan.

"There can be no question in anyone's mind that the present tax system is too complicated," says Regan, who worked on Wall Street before he joined Reagan's Cabinet as secretary of the Treasury

'It's unfair, and it retards saving and investment and economic growth," Regan said.

Surely something's wrong, everyone would agree, when two families of identical size and with identical incomes of $100,000 can live next door to each other, with one paying $50,000 a year in federal income taxes, and the other paying nothing.

That's extreme, but it could happen. It would happen, for example, if one family's income came from salary and the other's from investments in tax-free bonds.

Regan has come up with a new tax plan that is simpler, but not yet sim-

Regan's tax plan would cut tax rates, but also diminish the exemptions, deductions and exclusions that make the tax system complicated and, in his view, unfair.

Consequently, it would take a heavy expenditure of the president's political capital to get any broad tax revision through Congress. Such an effort might be worthwhile if the tax changes would help solve the problem created by $200 billion deficits, but it won't. It is, in fact, designed not to.

Reagan promised in running for e-election that taxes would be increased only "over my dead body." So the tax plan Regan designed is "revenue neutral" designed to neither increase nor decrease government revenues

But many in Congress believe solving the deficit problem is more important than fixing the tax code however much it may need repair.

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-III. chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, said, "Tax reform is a noble cause. Deficit reduction is must." And Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., just elected Senate majority leader, said "the deficit is probably our most urgent priority.

The school board began setting up instructional programming for students of all grades over a public radio station beginning Tuesday, Bryan said. Students were given homework Friday and told to take their textbooks home in anticipation of a strike, he said.

How the Justice Department got from fractious school kids to a legal shield for highhanded officials is a weird and frightening story. My associate Indy Badhwar has pieced it together from various sources, including a telltale memo the Justice Department refused to release under the Freedom of Information

In 1871, Congress passed 42 USC 1983, known as the Anti-Ku Klux Klan Act, to protect individuals from the excessess of state and local governments. Since then it has been the principal legal vehicle for citizens to claim in federal court that their constitutional rights have been violated by local authorities. It was under the anti-Klan law, for example, that Brown vs. Board of Education was brought, leading to the Supreme Court-ordered desegregation of the nation's public schools.

For more than a century, ultra-conservatives have fought the anti-

Klan law and the "judicial activism" they claim it encouraged. The Brown decision was a bitter defeat. Then in 1975 another school-based Supreme Court case brought under the 1871 law galvanized the conservatives anew. In Goss vs. Lopez, the high court ruled that a student facing arbitrary suspension or expul-sion from school was entitled to due

The decision, written by moderately conservative Justice Byron White, simply gave students facing disciplinary action the right to tell their side of the story. But states rights activists reacted with horror, claiming that the decision disarmed teachers and school administrators in their uphill struggle to maintain

A Gallup Poll last year showed that fewer than one teacher in five nationwide thought lack of discipline was a major school problem. But President Reagan, in a pre-campaign sop to his conservative support base, launched a publicity cam-paign for more "good old-fashioned discipline in school."

It was about this time that the Justice Department quietly got into the act. Exactly why is not clear. Maybe it was from an ideological conviction that the anti-Klan law was fundamentally wrong. Maybe it was simply from bureaucratic irritation over a law that had, over the years, forced the Justice Department to do battle with state and local govern-

Whatever the motivation, a 10page memo written by Roger Clegg. director of the department's Office of Legal Policy, suggested using the hue and cry over school discipline as a tool to dismantle the 1871 anti-

Sources who have seen the memo say it includes proposals to make state and local officials immune from lawsuits that arise from their "discretionary" actions; to require that citizens filing suit demonstrate that violations of the constitutional rights by local officials were "knowing and willful," and to increase the burden of proof on plaintiffs who try to take government officials to

The 1871 law has served the nation well. It is often the only remedy available to protect an individual's constitutional rights. Yet the Justice Department is trying to eviscerate the law by drumming up hysteria over the issue of school discipline.

EXPENSIVE HONOR: The rich didn't get that way by throwing their money around, and the Reagan-Bush '84 campaign is no excepion. Though it had more than $37 million in the kitty, it refused to pay the $16,812.67 it cost to arrange security for the president's appearance at Cupertino, Calif., on Sept. 3.

According to Philip Johnson, then mayor of the city of 40,000 outside San Jose, Reagan-Bush headquarters made no effort to discuss security for the visit beforehand, though large crowds were expected. And afterward, the committee maintained that it was legally prohibited from paying for the security Cupertino, which has no police department of its own, contracted with county authorities for security arrangements and sent the bill to Reagan-Bush. Faced with the lawyerly rebuff, the city asked the Federal Election Commission for an advisory opinion stating that the campaign committee can legally pay for the services rendered.

There were no immediate hard feelings from the controversy. President Reagan carried Cupertino with 64 percent of the vote.

Killing a deer isn't the point

confess. I am a deer hunter. Notice that I said, deer hunter - not deer slayer. Deer hunting is a sport in which 99 percent of all the shooting that is done is done on the firing range when hunters sight in their rifles in that annual ritual of optimism:

Oh, there are plenty of deer in-the woods. Thanks to modern game man agement which includes hunting to keep the herds from over-populating, the deer herds United States are in excellent condition. I know some people who are just opposed to hunting for emotional reasons. I have nothing to say to such people. They are not, as you might suppose, concerned about the welfare of the deer. They are perfectly content to see deer die of disease, parasites and starvation. It's hunters they don't like. Not to waste words, they can go to Hades as far as

But if you have just never thought bout deer hunting, let me recom mend it as a family sport. I took it up primarily to have an opportunity to do something with my oldest son. I don't know of anything better a father and son can do than share a tent, a campfire, and treks through the woods.

Deer hunting is something which can be a success even when you never see a deer. On an average, only about 10 percent or so of the deer hunters actually shoot a deer during the season. The other 90 percent, however, have a great time looking for them.

A deer has excellent eyesight and even better hearing and sense of smell. A whitetail deer can go from zero to 40 miles an hour faster than most cars. Mule deer have been clocked at 30 miles per hour.

In short, if you put a hunter and a deer in the woods, the hunter will soon learn - to paraphrase Gertrude Stein — that woods are where there are more places where deer aren't than there are places where deer are.

I even discovered a place where there are invisible deer. I have hunted this place two seasons and seen more deer tracks than you can find in a petting zoo, but never a deer. Either the deer are invisible or there are elves in that forest who come out at night and make deer tracks to torment hunters.

I also had a revelation there. I was in the top of a tree which was sway ing in a 20-knot wind and beginning to make me sea sick. A cold Novem ber rain was peppering my face. After about three hours it was revealed to me that deer are a heck of lot smarter than I am. They had better sense than to be out and about on such a day. No doubt while I clung to the top of my tree like some forlorn sailor on the Pequod looking for Moby Dick, the deer were snoozing in some comfy, cozy

If you hunt in Florida as I do and the cold weather is late you can enjoy the added zest of looking for snakes while you look for deer. Rattlesnakes and water moccasins are ill-tempered creatures. A friend of mine was bellying along a ditch trying to get close enough for clean shot when he felt something chewing on his leg. It was a water moccasin. The deer laughed while my friend went to the hospital.

Several times I have had to cross fields thick with waist-high palmetto. You can't see your feet nor can you move through palmetto without making noise. What you do then is make a lot of noise and pray that you don't run into a deaf rattlesnake.

One bow-hunting season, my son's best friend who has the size, shape and agility of a grizzly bear got so excited when a deer actually walked past his tree stand that he fell out of the tree before he could shoot. The deer was heard chuckling in the dis-

For all that, my son and I have stocked up on fond memories of shared experiences - long conversations by the campfire, magnificent scenery, and solving problems together like unsticking a stuck

I won't say we never hope to shoot a deer but I will say it doesn't matter when we don't.

BUD MOVING UP

Confirmation that National Security Director Robert D. (Bud) McFarlane is moving up in Ronald Rea-gan's inner circle came election night when he was invited to a Los Angeles dinner attended mainly by the president's personal friends.

The host of the Nov. 6 dinner was 86-year-old industrialist Earle Jorgensen, an original member of the Reagan "kitchen cabinet" dating back to his days as governor. The only White House staffers present were James A. Baker III, chief of staff; Michael K. Deaver, deputy chief of staff, and McFarlane.

Baker and Deaver go nearly everywhere the president goes, but McFarlane's presence raised eyebrows. Rising from bureaucratic obscurity at the State Department in 1961 to the White House senior staff in 1963, McFarlane is now emerging as a major influence in national security policy.

So far, he has has mentioned only Barnes, who represents a Washing ton suburban district. Another bor der state comer is Missouri's Rep. Richard Gephardt, slated to become House Democratic Caucus chairman.

Majority Leader Jim Wright, favored to replace O'Neill when he retires in two years, is a Texan who would not qualify under the border-state standard. But it is highly doubtful O'Neill will ever go public with his choice of a successor.

have made another arrest in the assassination of Indira Gandhi and are searching for two more suspected plotters, including a policeman, the United News of India

The independent news agency said the man arrested Friday was accused of administering a sacred oath to one of Mrs. Gandhi's assassins. The oath bound him to eliminate her, UNI reported Sunday.

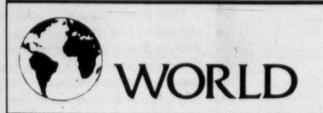

The government has accused two Sikh members of the prime minister's security detail — Beant Singh and Satwant Singh - of shooting her on Oct. 31 at her residential compound. Beant Singh was killed by other security guards soon after badly wounded and is under heavy guard, charged with murder and conspiracy in the slaying, news reports have said.

NEW DELHI, India (AP) - Police 22, confessed to the killing last week and that police on Friday arrested Kehar Singh, a relative of Beant Singh, and charged him with plotting to kill Mrs. Gandhi.

UNI, which cited no sources for its latest report, said police were hunting for another relative of Beant Singh and a sub-inspector of the Delhi armed police, who may have been accomplices in Mrs. Gandhi's death. No details were given.

The government has not made a statement on the latest reports on the assassination investigation. Repeated attempts by The Associated Press to contact Anand Ram, who heads the investigation, were unsuccessful.

Grenada voters will go to polls today for first time in 5 1/2 years

ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada (AP) -Grenadians vote today to restore an elected government for the first time since a coup 51/2 years ago by leftists whose rule ended with the U.S.-led invasion in October 1983.

The United States is officially neutral in the election of a 15-member Parliament, but its clear preference and that of U.S. investors, island business leaders and pro-American allies in the Caribbean - is the moderate New National Party headed by Herbert Blaize, a 66-year-old attor-

Among Blaize's challengers are supporters of Maurice Bishop, the pro-Cuban prime minister whose slaying in a power struggle prompted the U.S. invasion, and supporters of Sir Eric Gairy, a proclaimed mystic and former independence leader whose use of strongarm tactics against leftist opponents led to his ouster in a 1979

Gairy, 62, was not a candidate in today's election but indicated he would lead the government if his Grenada United Labor Party captures a majority, presumably by having a winning party member step aside in his favor Grenadians last voted in 1976, when they elected Gairy to head their government two years after independence from Britain. He then defeated a coalition - united in its dislike for Gairy - that included Blaize and Bishop

The United States has provided nearly $50 million in development aid since the invasion, but U.S. officials and many prominent Grena-

Attorney Herbert Blaize, 66, is the candidate preferred by the United States in today's elections in Grenada.

dians fear a Gairy-led government would bring back violence and instability that would scare away tourists and investors

More than 48,000 people - all but 1,000 of the eligible voters — were registered to cast ballots, election officials said. The paper ballots will be counted by hand.

Fifty-two candidates competed for the 15 seats. Under the parliamentary system adopted from Britain, the party winning a majority of the seats will form the government.

Apparently fearing retaliation from the leftists he repressed before the coup, Gairy, who ended self-exile in the United States in January, rarely appeared in public since

Bill Ingle, an American whose recently opened toy factory employs 80 Grenadians and who reportedly contributed to Blaize's campaign, has said he will close operations if Gairy wins. Ingle said Gairy threatened him. Members of the Grenada Hotel Association, which like most island businesses support Blaize, said they were warned during a meeting with Gairy that he will "deal with them

In 1962, Blaize became chief minister of then colonial Grenada after Jairy's government was dismissed by the British for corruption.

A fourth party, the Christian Democratic Labor Party, was running in only five districts, hoping to become part of a coalition government. Its leader, Winston Whyte, was jailed in 1979 by Bishop for his opposition.

Tillman Thomas, a former Bishop law partner jailed in 1982 after turning against the prime minister, was a New National Party candidate. The eight Caribbean governments which supported the U.S. invasion have made no secret of their preference for Blaize.

The Maurice Bishop Patriotic Movement hopes to capitalize on sympathy over Bishop's death and his wide support.

Death toll reaches 269 from gas leak

NEW DELHI, India (AP) - Poisonous cyanide gas leaking from a Union Carbide insecticide plant seeped through a sleeping central Indian city during the night, leaving 269 confirmed dead, thousands injured and the death toll expected to rise. Arjun Singh, the chief minister of the state of Madhya Pradesh, said in a radio broadcast that 269 people were confirmed dead in Bhopal, the state capital. He told reporters at least 10,000 people were injured. He said 2,000 people remained hospitalized, and 8,000 others were treated at hospitals and released.

Singh said the number of confirmed deaths was expected to climb. The United News of India said the unofficial death toll was more than 300.

UNI correspondents said bodies of men, women and children had piled up outside the main morgue in Bhopal, capital of Madhya Pradesh state, about 370 miles south of New Delhi.

Several thousand people were taken unconscious to hospitals, UNI said. Many people were found dead in their houses and many survivors fled in panic to neighboring towns after the gas leak occurred late Sunday night. Dead water buffalo and other animals lay in the streets. Police arrested four officials of the Union Carbide plant in connection with the leak from an underground storage tank, UNI

The news agency, quoting unidentified official sources, said those arrested were the assistant works manager, the production manager, the plant supervisor and another supervisor. It said the charges were not disclosed.

The factory was closed, the leak sealed and a judicial inquiry was ordered. A team of investigators from the Central Bureau of Investigation rushed to the scene.

All government offices and schools in Bhopal were closed and markets and businesses were shut for the day

Immovable telescope will enable scientists to spy on supernovas

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — How big is the universe, really? About how old? An odd telescope that will stare almost straight up from an Arizona mountaintop may be a key. Immovable and unblinking, the new eye will hunt for hints.

Among other tasks, the telescope is considered almost certain to spy more of the exploding giant stars called supernovas than have been observed before. Conceivably, it could detect more in a few months than the 1,500 or so that have been discovered in decades of searching.

Supernovas are the cataclysmic death dances of stars more massive than the sun. They burn a billion times

That light, the theory goes, could provide a yardstick for universal measurement - "the standard candle" scientists have sought for generations

"In the course of observing," says University of Arizona astronomer John McGraw, "we will see 10,000 to 30,000 galaxies each night. In a galaxy of, say, a billion to 10 billion stars, there's a probability of one supernova going off every 100 years.

"Just statistically, since we will see so many galaxies, we could see one new supernova every week or even every other night.'

Allowing the UA astronomers to do this will be a telescope of dramatically different design — the first, for one thing, without moving parts.

When the computer that operates the system commands the roof to slide back, the instrument will peer almost directly overhead.

Usually, telescopes are designed with a gearing that allows them to turn slowly, keeping focused on a given space phenomenon. But this telescope will hold still, scanning vast swaths of the rotating sky "Our real goal is a Harris poll of the universe," McGraw explained recently. "We want to do an unbiased survey of what's in the sky - stars, galaxies, quasars, everything. A logical way to accomplish this, he said, was with "a non-moving telescope where you don't make any selec-

Post cards

portray history

SUNBURY, Pa. (AP) - Post cards are not only associated with vacation periods and the usual messages of "having a good time; wish you here." They can also provide historical data and a look at another era.

J. Lester Marshall Jr., a resident of this Northumberland County seat, can attest to that. He is a deltiologist, the technical name for a post-card

Marshall has thousands of post cards that portray the history of central Pennsylvania, depicting current events sometimes in a rare and amusing manner.

Starting his collection in 1976, Marshall began with cards from only the Sunbury area. Then he widened his collection to show towns in Snyder, Montour and Union coun-

Some of his older cards show the dirt streets in towns of the Susquehanna Valley. Horses and buggies in use at the turn of the century are pictured on cards in his collection.

'Most of the older cards were printed in Germany before World War I," Marshall said. "After the First World War, post cards sort of disappeared. A short time later, the U.S. Postal Department offered cards for messages only, a pattern which began around 1880. There were no pictures on the cards.

Marshall said the first cards did not have the vertical line dividing the card into two equal parts. One side was used for a message and the other side for the address, he said. There were no pictures of particular spots or events. The concept behind today's picture post cards began in 1893 with lithographed post cards sold as souvenirs of the Columbian Exposition in Chicago.

Marshall has a set of the first picture cards. A set of 10 cards sold for 25 cents at the exposition. The format of the early picture post card differed from that of the modern post cards used by vacationers and travelers. Originally, both the picture and the message appeared on the front of the card, and only the name and address were written on the back.

The standard post card in use today made its debut around 1907 or 1908, Marshall said.

In the early 1900s, Americans were using the cards to advertise their products and businesses. As the popularity of photography increased, the use of the picture post card increased correspondingly.

Marshall has some cards in his collection which he considers extremely rare.

One set of his cards shows President Reagan and Vice President George Bush taking the oaths of office on Inauguration Day. The one card shows Reagan apparently raising his left hand while he was taking the oath.

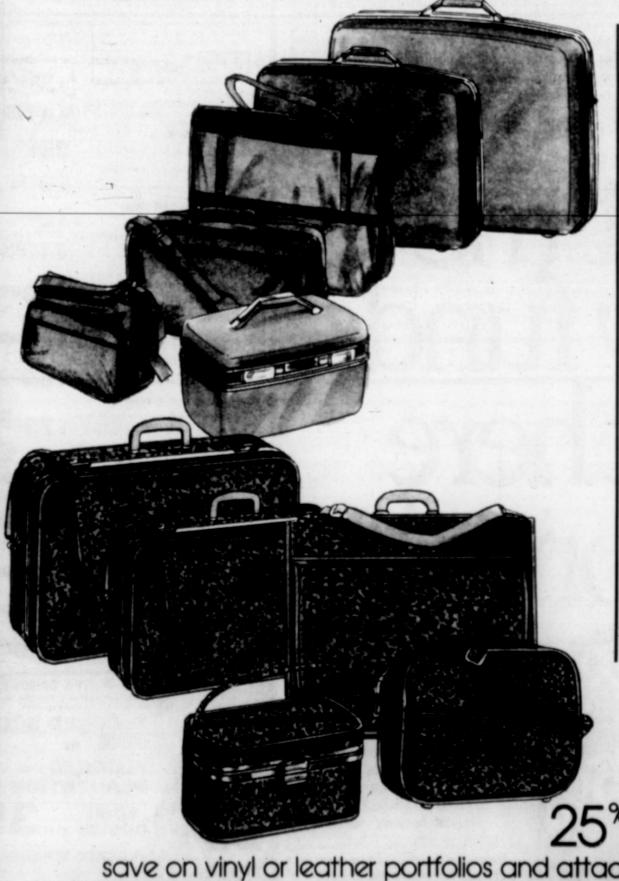

The same thing is shown on the card with Bush raising his left hand while taking the oath. Marshall believes the person who processed the film reversed the negative, and the maker of the post card did not detect the mistake until he had many of the cards made

Cards in Marshall's collection not only provide a valuable resource for ns interested in the history of area, but provide a quick look at rent events. (arshall is a member and founder 25-member Susquehanna Val-est Card Club. He says there are ny collectors and dealers oughout central Pennsylvania. idea of the club is to meet and nge items as well as ideas

Dallas defense clips Eagles

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Eagles learned Sunday that the "Big D" stands for defense when the Dallas Cowboys come to town.

Dennis Thurman opened Dallas' scoring with a 38-yard interception return in the first period, and the defense kept the Eagles to 38 yards on the ground and 135 in the air while the Cowboys clicked in for a

The victory allowed the Cowboys to retain a share of first place in the National Football League's National Conference East. The Cowboys are tied for the division lead with the Washington Redskins and the New York Giants, all with 9-5 records.

Landry said the Cowboys' offense finally took over on a 57-yard touchdown pass play from quarterback Danny White to running back Ron Springs in the third quarter.

'We moved the ball after that,"

Eagles Coach Marion Campbell said his offense simply did not get the ball moving.

"Our defensive intensity level was up for this game. But our offense could not do anything," he said.

"It was a case of our offense not doing anything with the ball when we had turnovers.

Tony Dorsett gained 110 yards on 22 carries to go over 1,000 yards for the seventh time in eight years, despite a slight concussion that kept him out 131/2 minutes of the second quarter. The strike-shortened 1982 season was the only one in which Dorsett missed the 1,000 mark. The Eagles' only scores came on a 23-yard field goal by Paul McFadden in the second period and a 2-yard pass from quarterback Joe Pisarcik to tight end Vito Cab at 10:58 of the final quarter. The loss was the seventh of the season for the Eagles against five victories and a tie.

The teams combined for 10 turnovers in the game. Dallas lost the ball once on a fumble and five times on interceptions while the Eagles "I guess it was a combination of lost two fumbles and were inter-Philadelphia's defense and White cepted twice.

The Cowboys drove 63 yards on 11 plays, with Timmy Newsome sweeping the final eight for a touchdown to boost the Cowboys' lead to 23-3 with 2:13 left in the third period.

Dallas' final points came with 1:51 left, on a 32-yard field goal by Rafael Septien after Michael Downs intercepted a pass and returned it 26 yards to the Eagles' 14.

After taking a 7-0 lead in the opening quarter, Dallas had an opportunity to score when strong safety Dexter Clinkscale recovered a fumble at the Philadelphia 34. But three plays netted just one yard and the Cowboys punted.

Baseball winter meetings start

HOUSTON (AP) - One year ago, the major issue at baseball's annual winter meetings was the commissioner

Bowie Kuhn was on his way out and a successor had not yet been named. This year, with Peter Ueberroth in the job for barely two months, the commissioner again could provide a major focus of the meetings.

With a trend toward less trading activity expected to continue at this annual convention of baseball's executives, Ueberroth is threatening to steal the show with his crusade against the invasion of the sport by television "superstations.

The major league portion of the meetings opens Monday with the draft of minor league players not protected on any team's 40man roster. The meetings continue until 5 p.m. CST Friday, the interleague trading deadline After the draft, Ueberroth will address his first winter meeting, and baseball insiders expect him to present a hellfire and brimstone plea for unity among owners in dealing with the sport's

'The issue of the superstations is the most serious problem" in baseball, Ueberroth said at a briefing last week in New York. "It is a very, very serious problem for baseball ... it is one of the insidious reasons I don't think the owners can work together now."

Ueberroth feels the superstations, particularly the cable stations that own or are affiliated with one team and use their satellite signals to broadcast different baseball games all over the country, are at the root of many of paseball's financial prob

'It does, without question - in all our research - dramatically affect attendance negatively, Ueberroth says.

'And here's the one that tears it apart," he said. Saturation created by superstations "dramatically affects TV ratings," and that not only will hinder teams from making decent deals with local stations but will affect the sport's contracts with the networks.

"There are a lot of areas where we've got to pull together to help the industry," Ueberroth says. "Superstations are here. We have to understand the problem and

Also on the agenda will be discussion of management's stance in continued labor negotiations. Baseball's Basic Agreement with players expires on Dec. 31, and talks will continue in New York after the winter meeting. The Major League Players Association is holding its annual winter meeting this week in Las Vegas. A committee report on the possibility of expansion to as many as six cities - four in the National League and two in the American League - also is scheduled, but baseball will take no action on that issue at least until after it has negotiated a new labor contract. Expansion is not expected to occur in the very near future.

LA Raiders rob Marino, 45-34

By BRUCE LOWITT AP Sports Writer

Dan Marino of Miami set a touchdown passing record Sunday, but Mike Haynes' two interceptions one returned 97 yards for a touchdown - and Marcus Allen's three to a 45-34 victory over the Dolphins.

Marino went into the game sharing the National Football League record of 36 TD passes in a season with Y.A. Tittle and George Blanda. He came out of it with 40 for the year - with two games to go - and 470 yards passing in the game. He passed 4 yards to Jimmy Cefalo late in the first period to break the record, combined with Mark Clayton on scoring passes covering 64 and 11 yards in the third and found Mark Duper on a 9-yarder in the fourth for No. 40. But Haynes' interceptions, Allen's 158 yards rushing and quarterback Marc Wilson's scrambling touchdown bomb defused the Dolphins.

Wilson, avoiding a Miami rush, found Dokie Williams on a TD pass that covered 75 yards and put Los Angeles ahead to stay at 27-24.

Marino started driving the Dolphins back, but Haynes intercepted him again and ran the ball back 54 yards to the Miami 15. Three plays later. Allen scored his second touchdown, from 6 yards out, giving LA a 38-27 lead.

After Marino's toss to Duper trimmed the Raiders' lead to four points with 2:09 to go, Allen locked up the victory when he broke loose on a 56-yard run for the final TD with 1:43 remaining.

It put the Raiders' record at 10-4 and just about guaranteed the defending Super Bowl champs an American Conference playoff berth. Miami, 12-2, is tied with Seattle for the AFC's best record.

In Seattle, Dave Krieg threw a club-record five touchdown passes as the playoff-bound Seahawks took sole possession of first place in the AFC West with their eighth straight

Krieg, who completed 27 of 38 passes for 294 yards, had scoring passes of 13 and 3 yards to Steve Largent and 4 yards to Daryl Turner in the first half, then added fourthquarter TD passes of 51 yards to Turner and 5 yards to Mike Tice.

Eric Dickerson of the Rams, continuing his assault on O.J. Simpson's single-season rushing record of 2,003 yards, ran for 149 yards against the visiting Saints to give him 1,781 yards - 222 away from the record with two games remaining.

Dickerson ran 7 yards for one touchdown, Jeff Kemp and Henry Ellard teamed on scoring passes of 16 and 34 yards and LeRoy Irvin ran yards with an interception of a Richard Todd pass for another TD as the Rams, 95, remained in the chase for an NFC wild card.

How big is it? Ask Ronnie

An outsider who moved to Midland or Odessa a year ago probably thinks that they hold Texas' state high school football playoffs just for the rematch between Lee and Permian. Just mention Rebels and Mojo in West Texas and you start thinking of December in Lubbock. If America is apple pie, Lee-Permian is the cheese topping.

Lee assistant coach David Browning decided Sunday that this game has gotten so big "that the winner will receive a call from the President." Are you listening, Ronnie? After all, Richard Nixon once made national champion out of Texas before the season was over.

All this madness started a year ago when Lee pulled off two wins over the Panthers, who are so playoff-rich in tradition that bills fall from their pockets when they walk. went on to the state finals in 1983, starting what has become known as the "New Tradition." Permian came back in 1984 with a sign prior to the Lee-Permian regular season outing that said, "It takes more than a year to build a tradition." Mojo went on to win, 28-13, and now here we are again. Permian fans think it's their turn for a sweep. Lee fans are saying that Permian caused it to rain on a key night. Everyone wants the rematch.

Browning, of course, is right. This has become a big game. It has more monikers attached to it than names in a phone book You can go back to last year when as a mass Exodus headed for Lub-bock. Shop keepers in the middle of Lee's first win over Permian was called "The King is Dead." When the king (Permian) proved it wasn't dead and went on to win the District 45A title, the quarterfinal matchup became Shootout II. Then an amazing thing happened

Around 35,000 fans showed up for Shootout II. The Petro-Plex was left stranded in the dust of West Texas the Christmas rush had open suops with no customers, dreaming only nightmares of Midland-Odessa doing Christmas shopping in Lubbock during an already tough economic year for the area And now the fourth key game is at hand in this 24-year rivalry. Again fans are expected to leave the Petro-Plex by the thousands during the Christmas holidays. So, what else, this game has become Exodus II. Like many football series that grow in stature, the event is bigger than the game itself. Who wins and who loses is not lost by any stretch of the mind, but being part of this new West Texas lore has become the

Don't dare tell anyone that you are not going to "The Game." Just owning a ticket is a status symbol. All Lee fans will have Rebel Flags. All Permian fans will dress in black. If you don't fit this mold, you're going to feel funny come 2 p.m. Saturday at Jones Stadium. Some are saving that 40,000 may see this game - bad news for Midland-Odessa merchants. So, to make everyone happy, please pack a sack lunch, buy your gas in the Petro-Plex, avoid Lubbock stores and promise to do one hour of Christmas shopping when you get home.

But don't miss this one. You may not be able to carry on a conversa tion with anyone for at least a year Besides, Tyrone Thurman and Alton Holloway would never forgive you.

Let's see now - plans need to be made. What if Ronnie does call?...I wonder if Sports Illustrated has its cover planned yet?...Does Spike Dykes need a ticket?...Is John Wilkins having a birthday Satur-day?...Oh yes, have we called Geral-dine? We don't want to leave anyone out...Will my car make it?... Oh my, this game is getting big Who has a new car?

Jordan gets help in Chicago win

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD AP Sports Writer

If the Chicago Bulls are to become winners this season, they realize they can't count on rookie Michael Jordan to be their hero every game.

The Bulls, playing their seventh road game in 10 days, got 28 points from backup guard Quintin Dailey and 23 from Orlando Woolridge, including the game-winner with 14 seconds left, to defeat the Los Angeles Lakers 113-112 in a National Basketball Association game Sunday night.

"Michael is getting a lot of press and he deserves it, but we have to play together a lot more and play good against good teams," Dailey said. "There's a lot of work to do, but we're learning. The trip home-will feel real good. The Bulls finished their western trip with a 34 record, including a sweep of the Clippers and Lakers in Los Angeles. In the only other NBA games, Boston bombed Cleveland 122-99 and Philadelphia edged New Jersey 114

San Francisco forced six Atlanta turnovers, turning two into touch-downs on Gary Johnson's 33-yard fumble return and Dana McLemore's 54-yard interception run-back, as the 49ers put their record at 13-1. They had gone into game already champions of the NFC West.

Joe Montana threw first-half TD passes covering 64 yards to Freddie Solomon and 6 yards to Dwight Clark as the 49ers won their ninth consecutive road game. Atlanta, 3-11, lost its eighth in a row — one shy of the club record.

"We were lucky the defense picked up some big plays," Montana said. "If we (the offensive players) continue to play the way we are, we're not going to go anywhere in the playoffs. We have got to play

IN KANSAS City, Nick Lowery kicked fourth-quarter field goals of 46, 28 and 42 yards to lift the Chiefs past Denver as the Broncos' kicker, Rich Karlis, experienced a mirror-image replay of his last-second failure of a week ago.

After Lowery put the Chiefs ahead with 1:56 to play, the Broncos reached the Chiefs' 25-yard line and called on Karlis to kick the tying field goal with 10 seconds left. But Karlis, who hit the right upright a week ago in a 27-24 loss to Seattle, hit the left upright this time. Denver, dueling with Seattle for the AFC West title, fell to 11-3.

"It felt good when I kicked it," Karlis said. "When it got to about the 10 it started fading to the left and I knew it wasn't going to be any good. I should have played it more to the right. I can face myself a little bit better because I know I kicked it well enough this time. I thought maybe it would sneak in. It just missed. their new co-tenants, the Jets, got touchdown runs by Rob Carpenter and Joe Morris to remain tied for first in the National Conference

They are 9-5 with two games to go in the division, as are Washington, a 31-17 winner in Minnesota last Thursday night, and Dallas. If the Giants win their final two games against St. Louis and New Orleans, they will win the NFC East title regardless of what the Redskins and Cowboys do, based on their record in division games.

The Giants built a 20-3 lead one play into the fourth period on the TD runs of 1 yards by Carpenter and 8 yards by Morris and Ali Haji-Shiekh's field goals of 48 and 30 yards before the Jets scored their only TD on Ken O'Brien's 32-yard pass to Lam Jones. O'Brien had the Jets on the move again, but with about four minutes to play, cornerback Mark Haynes intercepted him at the Giants' goal line to preserve the final victory margin.

St. Louis, stung in recent games by its own turnovers, turned the Indianapolis.

tables on the New England Patriots in Foxboro, Mass., as linebacker Thomas Howard rambled 29 yards for a TD with Craig James' first-quarter fumble that helped the Cardinals to their victory.

The Cards are 8-6, within one game of first place in the NFC East. New England also is 8-6 and bidding for an American Conference wildcard playoff berth.

In Cleveland, Jim Breech's 35-yard field goal five minutes into overtime gave the Bengals their victory. They overcame a 10-point deficit late in the game, tying it 17-17 with one second to play on a 1-yard TD pass from rookie quarterback Boomer Esiason to tackle Anthony Munoz, who had lined up as a tight end.

Green Bay quarterback Lynn Dickey ran 1 yard for a TD and pass 13 yards to Ray Crouse for another score and Eddie Lee Ivery ran for two TDs as the Packers rallied from a 14-0 third-quarter deficit against Tampa Bay. After one of the wackiest Southwest Conference seasons on record, everybody has a place to go. The Cougars, who will face Heisman Trophy winner Doug Flutie and his Boston College teammates in the New Year's Day Classic, just took a round-about way of getting there. "I don't think there's any question this team has overcome more adversity than any other I've had," Yeo-man said following a regular season ending 38-26 victory over Rice. "The kids have worked hard and just gotten better and better and it's all a matter of frame of mind. Until your head is right, you don't have a snowball's chance in a hot place.'

While the Cougars were winning a of the SWC title for the fourth time since joining the SWC nine years

The Aggies, closing out with a 6-5 record, stuffed Texas' offensive ground game, holding the Horns to 80 yards. Give the credit to the coaches, defensive end Rod Saddler said. They told us that Texas cannot run the football on us if we play our game and they were right. The coaches had us prepared for the game. All we had to do was go out and play hard. Houston's Raymond Tate capped a 205-yard rushing performance with a 72-yard touchdown run late in the trip to the Cotton Bowl and a share game to go with runs of 1 and 27 yards for the Cougars. "We've been standing around all ago, Texas A&M continued the upset season waiting for Raymond Tate to flavor of the season with a 37-12 vic-run like that," Yeoman said. "The big plays started coming when Raymond Tate started running faster."

Houston and Southern Methodist share the title with 6-2 records but the Cougars are the Cotton Bowl hosts by virtue of a 29-20 victory over the Mustangs. Houston shared SWC titles in 1976 and 1979 and won it outright in 1978 and in each case they had to defeated the Owls to advance. Rice ended its season with a 1-10 record and extended its SWC losing string to 25 in a row.

The Cougars finished the regular season at 7-4.

The only other loss among the Top Twenty came courtesy of Ohio State, which edged No. 17 Arkansas 85-84. Dennis Hopson's two free throws with 57 seconds left made the difference. Joe Kleine had 31 points in a losing effort.

Top-ranked Georgetown is unbeaten in three games after an 80-46 mauling of Southern Connecticut. No. 2 DePaul is 2-0 following an 80-61 romp over UCLA, and third-ranked St. John's barely made it to 20 after edging St. Bonaventure 58-57 in the finals of the Joe Lapchick Memorial Tournament.

Top seeds Lendl, Wilander take third-round endurance victories

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) -Top seed Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia advanced into the fourth round of the $1.28 million Australian Open Tennis Championships Monday with a victory over French teen-ager Tarik Benhabiles. Lendl defeated Benhabiles 2-6, 6-2, 6-4. 6-4 in a match that twice was delayed by rain - once Sunday night and again Monday.

Also on Monday, defending champion Mats Wilander, the No.2 seed, rallied after making a slow start and defeated fellow Swede Stefan Simonsson 2-6, 6-1, 5-7, 6-2, 6-3 to advance to the quarterfinals.

Benhabiles, 19 years old, served well against Lendl, but the No.1 seed had too much power and compo-

"I'm happy with the way I'm serv-ing and volleying," said Lendl, "but I wasn't too pleased with the way returned serve, although I played the big points okay.

Lendl will face ninth seeded Kevin Curren of South Africa in his fourth round match.

Simonsson, energetic and quick, belied his lowly ranking of 133rd in the world by fully extending the 20year-old Wilander.

Simonsson, 24 years old, a former practice partner of Bjorn Borg's, is regarded as a clay court specialist, but has adapted his game impressively for grass and played some fine serve-and-volley points.

Australian Open

Wilander, however, sprung to life in the last two sets and reeled off four straight games from 2-3 in the final set.

Wilander now faces yet another young swedish player — 18-year-old Stefan Edberg — in the last eight. Edberg, the No. 8 seed, used his strong, deep groundstrokes to great effect in trouncing American Lloyd Bourne 6-2, 6-2, 6-2 in their fourth round match. The powerful and mobile teenager completely outplayed No.11 seed Bourne, 26, a two-time all american at Stanford University. In another fourth-round match Pat Cash of Australia defeated American John Sadri 7-6, 6-4, 7-5. On Sunday, defending champion Martina Navratilova and secondseeded Chris Evert Lloyd both needed three sets before advancing into the quarterfinals of the women's singles.

Navratilova dropped the first set to 17-year-old Kathy Rinaldi of Mar-tin Downs, Fla., before storming back to win 46, 60, 61, while Lloyd recorded the 1,000th singles match victory of her career, but had to fight hard before downing 18-year-old Pascale Paradis of France 6-1, 6-7, 6-2.

Pam Shriver of the United States, No. 3 seed, also advanced into the quarterfinals with a straight-set 6-2, 6-2 triumph over unseeded Australian Elizabeth Minter on the grass

Lloyd, a 29-year-old native of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., now has a 1,000-97 career singles record and has won 133 titles - the most of any player, male or female - since playing her first tour tournament in 1969. Billie Jean King holds the record for most match victories with 1,046.

'I was thinking about the occasion during the match," Lloyd admitted. was a little nervous because I hadn't seen Pascale play before and I knew she was tough.

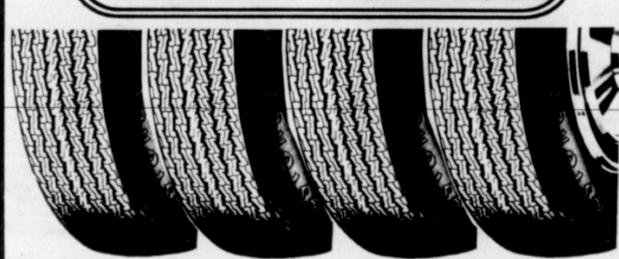

Lloyd has compiled the best match won-lost record since women's tennis went open in 1968. Navratilova has the second-best record of 843 victories against 135

'Martina keeps breaking my records, but I'm hoping to hold on to this one," Lloyd said.

Immediately after her victory, Lloyd was presented with a silver tray and a set of crystal glasses by the Lawn Tennis Association of Australia. The Women's Tennis Associa-tion, of which Lloyd is currently the president, later gave her a cake decorated with 1,000 candles.

"It's pretty interesting. I feel like I've played that many (matches) on some days, and other days it feels like I haven't been around that long," she said.

What action do you take? A. - At this vulnerability, there is a temptation to double because of the possibility of a large penalty. However, if East is a reasonably sane player, don't expect too large a gift. For our money, we'd take the near-certain game by bidding three no trump. Enroute, however, it won't do any harm to cue-bid two spades to advise partner of your strength. He might just have enough shape to be interested in slam

What action do you take? A. - In support of hearts your hand revalues to 11 points, and that's enough to issue a game invitation. Raise to three hearts.

What action do you take? A. - You have a good hand - indeed, it is odds-on to be considerably better than partner's. What action do you take?

A. - You would like to close out the rubber, if possible, and facing a partner who freely raised to two hearts you have just enough to invite game. We don't care much whether you choose to do so by bidding three diamonds or three hearts, ojust as long as you make some move.

Sir John Gielgud, Elton John team up for pantomime

LONDON (AP) — Actor Sir John Gielgud and pop musician Elton John teamed up on stage in a Christmas ritual as familiar in Britain as plum pudding: the annual pantomime.

In a one-night charity performance of "Mother Goose" at London's Theater Royal on Sunday night, the 80-year-old Gielgud played Egg Yolk the First, The Goose King, and John was cast as Elton Watford, a poor villager on his way to Gooseland to get the Golden Egg.

It may have seemed like eccentric casting, but pantomime devotees audience.

"The British are the most eccentric nation in the world, and the panto is the great British tradition," writer John Morley, Britain's widely acknowledged King of Panto, told The Associated Press

Morley's script for the Gielgud 'Mother Goose" marks one of 16 pantomimes he has written this year. The former actor and 20-year veteran of panto-writing estimates that 200 pantomimes are performed around the world each year - all by insist that the time-honored enter-tainment is perfectly suited to its Morley said the extravaganza's origins lie in Italian commedia dell'arte, which the British adapted

> "Mother Goose" was performed at Broadway's Bowery Theater in 1820 a time when, said Morley, "America was much smaller and largely British.

Pantomine died in America when the Wild West legends of the 1860s and 1870s gave it its own folklore, he said. Musical comedy and burlesque arrived soon after, and the pantomine was finished - except on Brit-

Based on well-known stories and fairy tales, pantomime titles include "Puss In Boots," "Jack and the Beanand took to America in the early: stalk," "Humpty Dumpty," "Robinson Crusoe," and the two most popular: "Cinderella" and "Aladdin."

The stories always feature a clear fight between good and evil, a woman plays the Principal Boy, a man is Principal Dame, and there are plenty of occasions for audience hissing and cheering.

"For thousands of children, this is their very first encounter with the theater," said Roger Redfarn, director of the Gielgud "Mother Goose" and artistic director of the Theater Royal in Plymouth, 180 miles southwest of London.

"Children must come away with a sense of something exciting and magical," Redfarn said, adding, The panto is the one thing families go to see even if they don't go to the theater the rest of the year

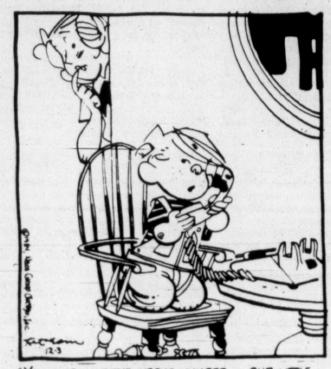

"Pantos are aimed absolutely at mum, dad, and the kids," said Morley, explainilg that the panto constitutes "its own sort of ritual, a whole series of amazing rules."

The cross-gender casting is chief among these rules, but Morley said that the attitude towards transvestitism must be kept innocently saucy.

'The Principal Dame is often a jolly, beery man of 50 or 60, with three or four kids," said Morley.

Pantomimes often have a historical base. "Mother Goose" is based on the mother of the French King Charlemagne (742-814), who was known as the "mere d'oie" Mother Goose - because she had flat feet, waddled, and told fairy

Bird lovers threaten some falcon species

— Wheeling and swooping in the sunshine, the majestic peregrine falcons of Sudeley Castle represent something of a renaissance for a sport that was once as popular as football. But professional falconers aren't rejoicing.

After a centuries-long decline to the brink of extinction, hawks and falcons are becoming sought-after birds in many countries.

But experts say that despite stricter controls introduced during the past five years, a worldwide illegal trade is thriving. At the same time, they say, innocent bird lovers threaten some species by taking on a sport that demands far more time and expertise than they have reck-

"More people are getting interested and demand (for birds) is exceeding supply. That is our very great difficulty," says Anthony Jack, head of the British Field Sports Society.

Falconers are reluctant to talk about their sport. They say publicity can encourage thieves as well as irresponsible bird lovers. Gary Cope, who trains falcons at the 3,000-acre Sudeley Castle estate in the Cotswold Hills 80 miles west of London, was wary of publicity, saying he was afraid of attracting thieves.

In June, U.S. and Canadian authorities arrested 45 people they said were smuggling falcons to Europe and to Arab countries where falconry is regarded as a princely sport. They said more than 400 birds of prey had been stolen from the North American wild since 1981 and sold on the black market.

A peregrine is worth about $1,000, while the rare Arctic gyrfalcon can fetch $50,000. England abounds with stories of Arab sheiks offering for-

SUDELEY CASTLE, England (AP) tunes for good birds. While dismiss-Wheeling and swooping in the ing the stories as sensationalism, falcon experts say the myth encourages falcon thieves dreaming of wealthy Arab customers.

The surest way to rile a falconer is to mention "Kes," a renowned film made some 20 years ago in Scotland about a lonely boy who turns a kestrel into his friend and defender.

"Kes" was seen by millions of Britons, but, Cope says, "It was a very bad film. Firstly, the hero stole the bird from the wild, which was naughty. Secondly, the film sent masses of schoolboys into the countryside to take birds out of their

Dr. A. Melland, administrator of the British Ornithologists Union, says that each time "Kes" is revived on television, her office is deluged with queries from children, sometimes whole school classes, about how to become falconers.

The trouble is, falconing takes more patience and expertise than they realize. Dr. Robert Kenward of the Institute of Terrestrial Ecology says falconing "is not a weekend sport like fishing or shooting. It requires at least two hours of attention every day."

Falconry is believed to be the world's oldest sport, originating in China in 2000 B.C. It came to England in about A.D. 860 and until the 17th century and the advent of firearms was unrivaled in popular-

It was the common man's means of getting food, and the nobleman's mark of distinction. A code written in 1486 defined which type of bird could be owned by which class - 15 categories ranging from eagles for emperors to kestrels for knaves.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sultry singer Lena Horne made her professional debut as a teen-age chorus girl in Harlem's legendary Cotton Club 50 years ago. Thirty-five years ago, Arthur Miller watched nervously as his play, 'Death of a Salesman" opened on Broadway. And, 47 years ago, Gian Carlo Menottti was hailed for composing his first operatic success, Amelia Goes to the Ball."

The five world-renowned artists came together Sunday night in the presidential box of the Kennedy Center. The star-studded audience paid tribute to their selection as recipients of the prestigious Kennedy Center Honors of 1984 for lifetime achievements in the arts and contributions to American culture.
"They worked long and hard, following their dreams, and succeeded in bringing music, drama and laugh-ter into our lives," President Reagan said earlier at a black-tie reception at the White House, accompanied by his wife, Nancy. "And tonight, as we appreciate their work, let us take comfort and inspiration from their lives," said the president, who also attended the Kennedy Center gala.

The audience was filled with members of the Cabinet and Congress and celebrities such as Karl Malden, Sid Caesar, Carl Reiner, Maureen Stapleton, Dina Merrill, Lillian Gish, Martin Landau, Edward Albee and Walter Cronkite.

Miss Horne, 67, went from the Cotton Club to the big band circuit to Hollywood, where she was the first black actress ever signed to a longterm Hollywood contract.

She starred in the black musicals 'Cabin in the Sky" and "Stormy Weather," and became a top nightclub attraction.

Known for her rich, sizzling voice, she won a special Tony Award for distinguished achievement in the theater for her 1981 production, Lena Horne: The Lady and Her Music," the longest running onewoman show in Broadway history.

"What magic - to hold an audience all alone for two hours," former actress Lillian Gish said in tribute to Miss Horne.

Kaye, now 71, went from nightclubs and vaudeville to Broadway, beginning in 1940 with "Lady in the Dark," stopping the show nightly as he reeled off the names of 54 Russian composers in 38 seconds.

Actor, singer, dancer, mime, and comedian, Kaye starred in films such as "The Secret Life of Walter Mitty" and "Hans Christian Ander-sen." In 1964, he was honored with a special Academy Award.

"The man is the prime goofball in America," Carl Reiner told the Kennedy Center audience.

The Italian-born Menotti, 73, wrote his first opera at age 11, but it was never performed professionallly. He had better luck with the double-bill "The Medium" and "The Telehone," the first successful operas on Broadway.

Menotti won a Pulitzer Prize and Drama Critics Circle Award for "The Saint of Bleecker Street." His "Amahl and the Night Visitors" has become a Christmas classic touted as the most performed opera in the

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — William Schroeder, the second person ever to receive a permanent artificial heart, says the plastic pump beating in his chest feels like "an old-time threshing machine" but he thinks life is "fantastic."

Depending upon Schroeder's strength, they may begin a series of tests with three drugs to gauge his response to the substances. They would like to experiment with the power systems that drive the heart, increasing and decreasing the speed of blood through the circulatory system, Lansing said.

The interview was conducted at 10:30 p.m. Sunday at the Humana Heart Institute and released today by medical officials. At the time, Schroeder's heart was being powered by his 11-pound portable. Heimes driver.

Cuban patrol boat 'acting within maritime practice

MIAMI (AP) — Despite Pentagon fears that Cubans might seize a disabled American ship for political purposes, a Cuban patrol boat was "acting within maritime practice" when it moved in to help, a Coast Guard spokesman says.

The 105-foot Seaward Explorer, a marine research vessel chartered by the Navy to map the coast of Haiti, was under tow back to Miami, and was expected to arrive in port today, said Duty Officer Christopher Kelly.

The nuclear-powered aircraft carrier Nimitz was scrambled from St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands to assist the Seaward Explorer, which broke down Thursday and drifted within the 12-mile territorial waters

The Nimitz, and the nuclearpowered cruiser USS Arkansas, which also headed for the area, never arrived at the scene because the Coast Guard cutter Reliance already had arrived to tow the vessel home

The New York Times reported Sunday that Cuban officials told their U.S. counterparts that if the Seaward Explorer's damage was slight, they would tow it to rendezvous with the Reliance, but if it was seriously damaged they would take it to Cuba for repairs.

Plutonium trapped in pipes

RICHLAND, Wash. (AP) - Officials say 10 to 13 kilograms of plutonium unaccounted for at the Hanford Nuclear Reservation is trapped inside new pipes installed at the plant before it restarted in November 1983.

The missing plutonium, one of the most toxic and long-lived radioactive elements, does not pose a danger to workers at the plutonium-uranium extraction facility or to the public, Department of Energy officials said.

The Spokesman-Review in Spokane reported the problem in its Sunday editions. Michael Lawrence, manager of the Hanford facility, said the missing plutonium had not been stolen but was lost in a bookkeeping problem.

Jury selection was to begin today in U.S. District Court, and Judge James C. Turk has scheduled a week for the trial, which will be conducted amid tight security, Turk's clerk, Terri Dial, said. We need more crowd control with Jerry Falwell and his notoriety and Larry Flynt's notoriety in the opposite direction, just as a safety precaution," Ms. Dial said.

Falwell, head of the conservative Moral Majority, contends that the liquor ad parody that appeared in the November 1983 issue of Hustler damaged his reputation and emotional well-being.

The fake ad, which carried a small disclaimer at the bottom, was head-

Corrigan City Manager Pee Wee Drake takes down the flags at the Victorian-style city hall in Corrigan. The town paid $65,000 for the building and property that is valued at $250,000, with the remainder being made up from donations.

Corrigan has unique city hall

CORRIGAN, Texas (AP) - City officials like it when passers-by look twice at the Victorian-style house in the heart of downtown: They think there is something to see.

"You bet it's the pride of Corrigan," councilman Juanita James said of the nine-month-old edifice that serves as Corrigan's city hall.
The Allan Shivers Library and Museum in Woodville was the model for the front exterior only. We brought this Victorian style into the lobby. But somewhere you have to stop and it becomes a functional office building," said City Manager Pee Wee Drake.

Appreciated now, city hall was a sore subject with many residents in the lat 1970s, according to Mrs. James, who campaigned on the need for a building.

The city government conducted its daily business at two small offices in the Citizens State Bank Building. while holding meetings at the city housing authority or Polk County sub-courthouse, she said.

"We needed something for these big companies to relate to," said Mrs. James, noting the arrival of Champion International and Louisiana-Pacific plants in the 1970s.

But many residents opposed a building on cost grounds.

The city already had some of the property — a vacant lot on Ben Franklin Street — it later would use. In September 1981, voters passed a $250,000 bond issue, but the margin of approval was so slim - 29 votes and the subject so controversial that the city council decided not to issue the bonds, according to Drake.

Drake credited Mrs. James with taking the lead role in carrying the cause and soliciting funds. Mrs. James said that Drake and City Secretary Thelma Stanford helped her with the backing of the city council and segments of the community.

The breakthrough came inf June 1982, when Mrs. R.L. Rothe contacted Frank Barringer, a Corrigan native who had made a fortune in ness ventures, according to Drake. Mrs. Rothe's late husband had been close to Barringer, and Barringer had an added interest in the city since he was planing to move there upon retirement.

Barringer began the building for the city and spent about $65,000 before leaving, returning to Houston in September 1982 for personal reasons, according to Drake.

After Barringer's departure, city hall advocates found themselves in a better position than in the 1970s. The thinking was, "We had this thing sit-ting here, and why aren't we doing something?" "Mrs. James said.

In September 1983, voters overwhelmingly approved a $65,000 bond issue and businesses, foundations and citizens gave the rest of the money or materials needed. Mrs. James said the structure is valued at

'Florida Swamp Man' now captures alligators with chain saw, wood

By CINDY HORSWELL

SHEPHERD, Texas (AP) — Before moving to the piney woods here four years ago, he was known as the "Florida Swamp Man." A man who knew the swamps better than the alligators he then illegally hunted or the game wardens who hunted him as he deftly moved from tree houses to makeshift camps in the murky, soggy marshlands.

Today, Frank Hunter is using a chain saw to carve himself an entirely new reputation in Texas. One that has nothing to do with swamps, hunting or alligators. In fact, about his only encounter with his old adversary — the alligator - these days comes when he meticulously chips a chain-saw sculpture of one from a tree trunk.

'It's like an automatic chisel," says Hunter, gently rubbing the sharp chain of his powerful saw. The hardest part is keeping my hands from going to sleep when use it a long time. There is so much vibration. And the noise is so bad. I sometimes use ear plugs. With an easy touch, he brushes the saw against the cheek of his half-finished sculpture of Uncle Sam. Tiny chips of wood fly into the air like snowflakes dancing in a

Oddly enough, detailing is not impossible with a chain saw. He demonstrates this as he shapes the cheek bone. He uses no other carving tools.

that it offended some officials in this East Texas town who asked that it be covered with a sheet.

"I like using the chain saw because of the speed involved. You can see it blossom right before your eyes," he says. And that is what also intrigues large numbers of curious onlookers who gather to watch him as he carves along roadsides or at festivals and fairs.

He attempted his first carving eight months ago after seeing another Big Thicket native trying it. Hunter says he now is one of three persons in East Texas who do chain-

"I'd used a chain saw before but never thought of using it to carve. It looked like fun," he says.

He'd always had a knack for painting and drawing. The only time he ever got decent grades in school before dropping out in the seventh grade — was through his art.

"My science teacher used to like me to draw bugs and animals fullsize in colored chalk," he recalls. Today, he has 25 chain-saw carvings to his credit, including Indian heads, country and Western singers, birds and alliigators. His alligators are the most popular, though.

A 40-year-old bearded man with collar-length hair, he has a natural affinity for the alligators. In some ways, he has more in common with these beasts than he does with modern society.

Hunter's treks into the swamps

His female nude was so realistic started when he was still in diapers. His father, a noted "big cat hunter," used to take him deep into swamplands for weeks at a time, where they they lived in Indian-style huts or treehouses As he grew older, Hunter's favorite pastime was to go cave hunting for alligators. He would straddle a small cave, duplicate the alligator's grunting sound and then attack it with a hatchet whenever the gator jumped out. "It was a thrill. I like the personal contact and challenge," he says. Today, they use baited hooks to snare gators in the water. Then, when they're weak and no fight in them, they shoot them. It's like tying a deer to a fence and blasting it.'

When he hunted the alligators, he avoided using his guns whenever possible. He not only liked the challenge, but he didn't want to attract that much attention.

"Game wardens used to hunt me in packs, but they only caught me once," he recalls. "Sometimes they would follow me from my home, and it would take several hours before I lost them with my air boat. I could be a few feet away from them, and they never knew it.

Hunter grew up in Immokalee, Fla., on the edge of the Big Cypress Swamp. "It was nicknamed 'the last frontier town' because it had Western-style buildings and wooden sidewalks until it was modernized in the 1960s," he says.

o Sgt. Ed Nicks, the 114-pound German shepherd who rides beside him in the patrol car "is not my pet — he's my partner."

Only given to married officers living in houses with backyards, however, the Midland Police Department's K-9 Division dogs are family pets after hours, Nicks said. But once the collar goes on, the dogs are on city time.

Although still used as "attack dogs" by some police departments, Midland K-9 officers insist this isn't the case locally and the role the dogs play is changing across the

"The old biting dogs are no more," Nicks said. "They were abused just like a lot of other law enforcement methods. It used to be the tallest, toughest guy was a police officer; now, it's the one with the master's

"The emphasis is on control and safety for the innocent people," said Patrick Cahill, a 60-year veteran of police canine training and handling. "We don't have to prove to the criminals how bad our dogs are. We have to show people like you how good they are."

Last week, Midland's 6-yearold K-9 Division took another step in expanding the national network called the United States Police Canine Association. For the first time, USPCA trials that determine which canines will proceed to the national competitions were held in Texas. More specifically, they were held in Midland and "It's because these fellows here have taken the energy to get it started," said Cahill, who acted as chief judge for the District 2 trials.

It was easy for Cahill, who was with Scotland Yard the last 10 of his 27 years with the London Metropolitan Police, to become interested in working with the dogs: "Because I like dogs."

"I'd been wanting a German shepherd all of my life, but I couldn't afford it," the 76-year-old said, smiling. "To have one and get paid for it — what more could I want?"

Since then, Cahill relocated to Baltimore and Washington, D.C., training police canines. He now flies throughout the country to testify in court trials as an expert on police canines in suits involving the dogs.

Cahill still has a German shepherd, Alex 4, who happens to be the successor of Alex 1, Alex 2 and Alex 3, Nicks said. "It's easier for a dog to learn a new name than him."

During the local trials, the dogs that earned more than 490 of a possible 700 points are eligible to attend the national competition in Chicago in October. Usually about 80 to 100 dogs are in the annual competitions.

According to Cahill, the contest is tough on the dogs. After traveling from all parts of the country (some of the dogs are on the road for two to three days), they are housed with their handlers in a motel for at least a week.

"We get little maid service," Cahill said.

A Seminole man was killed in a one-vehicle accident Sunday morning one-half mile north of State Highway 214.

Tommy William Smith, 24, of Seminole, was pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace Mary Parrott, according to the Texas Department of Public Safety. HOLLYWOOD - Exercise and age have leached away the subcutaneous layers of fat from around Jack LaLanne's stone-hard muscles.

At 70, it would seem that not even the Ace of Exercise is immune to the rigors of time.

The major difference is that he'll tell his audience straight out that they don't need books or special oducts to stay healthy.

'Non-diet' strategies suggested for holiday occasions

Hearst News Service

Julie Waltz, author of the best-selling "Food Habit Management," shed 42 pounds while eating a chocolate sundae every night. She now maintains her trim 108-pound weight while treating herself to occasional chocolate bars, cookie dough, ice cream and other goodies she has always enjoyed.

The University of Washington Medical Center staffer says it wasn't a "diet" but an experiment, "a sort of adventure" that caused her to lose the extra pounds and keep them

While studying her "natural grazing instinct" in the kitchen, she determined that she and most other people "tend to wander around the house to relieve tension, or when changing gears between tasks. The room we most frequently wander through is the kitchen."

In the kitchen, however, she found a "certain laziness factor" which kept her from eating things which weren't easily available. For example, she found she would nibble sliced cheese, but not be inclined to chop a hunk off block cheese. She'd go for ice cream in her refrigerator, "but not dig to the bottom of the chest freezer for it."

The laziness factor is one of the main reasons why the low-cal vegetables recommended by many diets don't work, she believes

"Vegetables take time and effort to prepare. You're not going to do it when a cracker is handy."

Her ultimate attempt at making high-cal snacks less handy, she admits, "was sealing the peanut-butter jar shut by painting the jar rings with fingernail polish. I knew I wouldn't spend a half hour running it under a hot tap just for a snack."

Waltz's book now is in its third printing and has sold 30,000 copies. ("Food Habit Management." National Learning Associates, $15.95)

High fidelity components are unusual products. The very attributes which attract enthusiasts are just the ones which turn most people off.

dotal information have shown that the general public finds the elaboration confusing or annoying. As a result, many individuals tend to shy away from purchasing audio compo nents, although they could afford to do so, according to Dr. Amar G. Bose, a pioneer in the field of high fidelity speakers.

Bose pointed out that the number of households in which stereo components are found remains at less than 30 percent of all American households. In comparison, television, which was introduced to the marketplace at about the same time in the 1950s, is found in virtually all American homes.

Is it that music is less valid as an entertainment form? Not at all, insists Bose, who is founder and chief executive of the Bose Corp. in Framingham, Mass., which produces high fidelity components. (Bose also teaches electrical engineering at Massachusetts Institute of Technol

He says that the difficulties of understanding, selecting, installing

Employing a new type of technology, Bose recently began producing a combination stereo speaker system, cassette player, recorder and AM-FM radio. The system, which is no larger than a portable TV set, is operated by plugging it into a wall outlet. It measures 18 by 11 by 8 inches, weighs 18 pounds and can be carried around in an optional portable case with a built-in battery pack. Another optional accessory allows it to be plugged into a car's cigarette

A set of auxiliary input and output ports at the rear of the unit makes it possible to attach a record turntable, a compact disc player, a microphone or television set to the unit.

Automatic controls eliminate most of the knobs and switches beloved by audiophiles and the unit operates in such a way as to make standard comparisons on sound distortion and power measurements pointless,

Stepping outside its usual channels of distribution of audio specialty retailers, the manufacturer has been marketing its "acoustic wave" music system directly to consumers in the Boston area.

According to Bose, the idea of developing a single, simple-to-oper-ate player capable of producing high

Heirloom gardens family treasures

By ELVIN McDONALD

Several years ago I asked any reader having a Christmas or other holiday cactus that had been passed down from a previous generation as a family heirloom to write me, giving the plant's age, size and possible secrets of its longevity. Hundreds responded in the sharing spirit for which gardeners have always been known.

A fascinating new book, "The Heirloom Gardener," by Carolyn Jabs (Sierra Club Books, $9.95 paper, $17.95 cloth; by mail from Sierra Club Catalog, 205 S. McKemy, Chandler, Ariz. 85224; paper $13.45 postpaid, plus applicable sales tax) takes another look at the subject: Why it's important to preserve vanishing heirloom plants such as the Garnet Chili potato, Mortgage Lifter tomato and Early Tennis Ball lettuce, and how home gardeners can start their own environmental Victory gardens of old and rare fruits and vegetables.

Among indoor gardeners there is unprecendented interest in collecting the original species Saintpaulias, from which today's most popular flowering house plant, the African violet, developed. It's especially fun for relatively new gardeners to experience the beginnings of a highly developed plant. One source for heirloom saintpaulias is Kartuz Greenhouses (1408 Sunset Dr., Vista, Calif. 92083; catalog $1).

Once again I invite readers to submit snapshots and brief essays about the oldest living house plants. Tell where it came from, present state and the family "secrets" for such longevity. When I wrote of heirloom cactus in 1980, Mrs. J.M.H. of Palatine, Ill., reported the oldest: "I am in my early sixties and have a Christmas cactus that belonged originally to my grandmother. According to my father, it is 120 years old. It grows in a clay pot, has not been transplanted and is not fed supplemental food.

"In the summer I place the cactus under trees in the garden and bring it in the house in early October. The base is about 3 inches around, the leaves stand 2 feet tall and I water once a week. It blooms profusely."

Mrs. L.L. of Oldenburg, Ind., cherishes a Christmas cactus "well over a hundred years old," inherited from her brother: "It is in a 30-inch butchering kettle and measures 16½ feet around, at one point more than 5 feet across. There are about a thousand blooms each year. I feed it plant food in October and again after flowering. In warm sunny weather I apply about one gallon of water every 10 days to two weeks. The plant stands in a window where a street light shines on it each night and is too large to be moved oudoors, or even turned for that matter."

If you should be the proud owner of a Christmas or other holiday cactus, perhaps a mere youth just brought home with nursery-grown buds and blooms, here is the care I recommend:

— Place in a sunny or bright window where temperatures range from bout 60F. at night, up to 70 or so at mid-day.

Water well when the soil begins to feel dry at the depth of one knuckle of your index finger

A. Yes, it's easy; in fact, if simply left where they fall on moist soil, roots will soon show, then potting can be done, using a packaged mix such as Pro-Mix, Hyponex Professional Potting Mix, or a combination of equal parts all-purpose potting soil, sand, peat moss and well-rotted leaf mold (or other humusy matter).

Readers: Abolish trick-or-treat

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Shame on you. Your campaign to abolish the tradition of trick or treat on Halloween is unreal. Why deny children the fun of dressing up in costumes and going from door to door to show off and collect a few treats just because a few rowdies have abused the custom?

I usually agree with you, Abby, but this time I think you were wrong to suggest ending a cherished tradition that is second only to Christmas for some children. Please let us know how the voting went.—LOVES CHILDREN IN MILWAUKEE

DEAR LOVES: My readers voted

Please understand, I see nothing wrong with dressing children (under 12) in costumes and sending them around the neighborhood to show off and collect a modest treat, but trick or treat has escalated to extortion by teen age hoodlums. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: Congratulations for having the courage to suggest that trick or treat be abolished.

I refuse to spend my retirement money for candy or anything else kids don't need.

I'm no Scrooge, but each year on Halloween, I turn off my lights and hide upstairs, reading by flashlight until the dread hours of trick or treat are over. — W.K.H., LEXINGTON, KY.

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for condemning trick or treat. It's high time somebody did.

A few years ago I opened my door to a band of trick-or-treaters and gave them some good apples. They took them, threw them on my lawn and started to threaten me, so I quickly shut the door and called the sheriff. I was told, "It's only a game. It's Halloween!"

The next morning my lovely white brick wall had been spray-painted red and my windows had been pelted with eggs. When I told my neighbors I was outraged, they said I was "un-American."

Please run that column every year, Abby. — S.M.F. IN COLO-RADO

DEAR ABBY: Bravo for you! It's time someone suggested calling a halt to trick or treat. As an older person living on a fixed income, I can't afford to buy candy for kids who throw it in the street because it's not the kind they like. (One band of fully grown hoodlums demanded menacingly, "Never mind the candy, let's have some money"!)

My neighbor (another elderly woman) handed out homemade cookies, only to find her lawn was covered with them the next morning. — DISGUSTED IN IOWA

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I agree that trick or treat should be abolished. When our children were small, we followed the crowd and went along with it. When they came home after touring the neighborhood, there would be squabbles over which sibling had the better "haul." Much of what they brought home gathered dust until Christmas. Then it was thrown out.

Each year Halloween grew increasingly repugnant to us. As you say, "It's legalized blackmail" — a poor concept to instill in children. Finally after several years of dreading Oct. 31, I thought, "Why should I go against my principles to follow the sheep?" So, instead, on Halloween we took our children to a restaurant for a festive dinner.

They never felt deprived, and I hope they respect us for holding out against a bad custom. It's a shame more parents don't put down a firm foot and behave like responsible guardians. — MOTHER OF SIX IN WORCESTER, MASS.

Special children seek adoption

Nine "special needs" children who were profiled in Family Circle magazine are available for adoption.

According to the magazine, these children are older or have a disability or are siblings who want to be placed together. The children are now registered with the National Adoption Exchange, a non-profit organization which tries to fill adoption requests from all over the country.

Economists predict 1985 downturn BUSINESS BRIEFS

WASHINGTON (AP) - No new recession is looming in the first part of next year, but a downturn could well arrive toward the end of 1985 or the start of the following year, a national group of business economists said today

Chicago Tribune Charts by Terry Volpp

Their views, tabulated in a new forecast survey, are less optimistic than those of Reagan administration officials who are projecting steady economic growth for years to come. However, the survey also shows no sign that business analysts are greatly upset by recently negative government economic reports. Talk of a new business downturn has increased in the light of a rash of such negative reports, including one showing a drastic third-quarter slowing in overall economic growth and another showing the third decline in five months for the government's main economic forecasting gauge.

However, today's release covering the new quarterly forecast survey of the National Association of Business Economists quoted association president Ben E. Laden as saying: "The message from the forecast is clear: The slowdown is not the beginning of a recession.

Laden, who is chief economist for T. Rowe Price Associates of Baltimore, said the analysts expecting the broadest measure of economic activity - inflation-adjusted gross national product - to grow about 3 percent in the next 12 months.

In the new version, 29 percent forecast the peak for the second half of next year, 25 percent said the first half of 1986 and 21 percent the second half of 1986. Eighteen percent thought the peak would come this year or in the first half of next year, while the rest thought it wouldn't come until 1987.

The survey, in which the University of Michigan's Survey Research Center questioned 250 of the association's 4,000 members, was taken during the first two weeks of October before last week's report of a new decline in the government's Index of

- Inflation, as measured by the Consumer Price Index, will rise to about 4.7 percent for 1985 from about 4 percent this year.

Banks' prime interest rates, now at 11.25 percent to 11.5 percent, will rise to an average of 12.4 per-

Foreign trade deficit slims

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation's foreign trade deficit narrowed to $9.2 billion last month, the government reported today, but that was still enough to push the yearly total past $100 billion for the first time ever.

Exports rose slightly from their September level while imports declined, the Commerce Department report said.

October's deficit, an improvement from September's $12.6 billion, was the smallest monthly figure since June's $8.9 billion. Still, for the first 10 months of the ear, the value of imports flowing into the United States outpaced American companies' exports by $105.5 billion, the report said. That dwarfs the old deficit record for a full year - last year's $69.4 billion and this year's total is now expected to nearly double the old mark. The main reason for the increase, by all accounts, is the relatively high value of the U.S. dollar in relation to most other nations' currencies, a situation which makes foreign goods cheaper for Americans to import and American goods more expensive for foreigners to buy.

In October, today's report said:

—Exports totaled $27.6 billion, up 1.2 percent from September, including increases for various kinds of machinery and some farm produce such as corn, cotton, soybeans and tobacco.

-In major categories, there was a $1 billion surplus for agricultural produce, a $6 billion trade deficit for manufactured goods and a $4.7 billion deficit for oil.

CHICAGO (AP) - Federal banking officials' efforts to oust 10 board members of Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Co. are a warning to other banks to keep watch on their officers, according to published reports.

LONDON (AP) - The dollar rose against all major currencies in quiet trading early today as European currency markets digested the dollar's gains in U.S. trading Friday. Gold prices fell.

Currency dealers said there was strong demand for the dollar in expectation of higher interest rates in the United States.

The interest rate expectations, which forced the dollar up sharply in the U.S. on Friday, resulted from Thursday's Federal Reserve Board announcement of an unexpected $6.7 billion rise in the U.S. basic money supply and by Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volker's statement that he expected faster

Computer takes place among company's architectural tools

nications tool.

By RUTH RYON Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — Automate or die may be an exaggeration, but the architectural, planning and engineering company Leo A. Daly isn't taking a chance.

Since being asked by the U.S. surgeon general to analyze the use of computers in the design of medical facilities about seven years ago, the company has adopted the computer as a favorite child in its family of tools.

As architect Joseph D. Vaccaro, vice president and regional director-Western operations of the firm, explained: "After doing the analysis, we were so sold on the use of computers, we got one."

And that one has expanded into a network connecting the company's seven permanent offices in the United States: six on the mainland and one in Hawaii and one in Hawaii.

"It's great," Vaccaro said about the system, which — in computerese — is called the LAD CAD (Leo A.

Daly Computer-Aided Design.)
"It doesn't take coffee breaks, and it doesn't misspell very much

Is there anything it can't do?
"It can't talk back," he said with a laugh, "but, seriously, it is subject to the limitations of the person who puts in the design. It still takes a person to design the building, but the computer can graphically assemble all the information at tremendous speed, and it is also a great commu-

Graphics and data terminals are tied into the company's mainframe computers in Washington and Omaha as well as Los Angeles. The firm's offices in Seattle and San Francisco and temporary facility in Baltimore are connected to mainframe computers through dedicated telephone lines, and the Hawaii and St. Louis offices are connected through the telephone by modems.

"We can communicate with our other offices just by sitting down at our stations," Vaccaro said. "We can simultaneously see the same graphic material. We can review the same drawings with somebody 3,000 miles away, but it seems as if they are sitting at the next desk. Once we agree on something, we can print it." (A giant printer produces hard copies of graphics in several sizes.)

of graphics in several sizes.)
Or they can build it in the form of a model.

Architects at Leo A. Daly basically use two software programs: the two-dimensional GDS or General Drafting System and the three-dimensional BDS or Building Design System, which can depict a model from different angles and in several colors.

D. Michael Fuller demonstrated the BDS with a project being built in Baltimore by Murdock Development Co. of Los Angeles. Daly's Washington, Omaha and Los Angeles offices have had input in the design.

Like a firefly on the screen, a little light appears to draw the model in red and adjacent structures in blue, yellow and pink. "The project is red because its exterior is being built of brick," Fuller said.

"And look, we can walk around the model if we like," he said, pushing keys to show the model from another perspective.

Fuller estimated that use of the design computers has made the Daly operation about twice as efficient, but Vaccaro was quick to add, "We must be careful in saying that, because the question of (computer) efficiency is part of the ongoing discussion in the profession."

There are many factors to consider in determining how much a computer adds to the efficiency of an architectural office, he said, "but if you have 50 floors all the same in a design — like a hotel or hospital — the computer can contribute tremendous efficiency."

And as for design analysis through a computer, he was emphatic: "Some wouldn't be possible otherwise."

Law judge butts heads with bosses

By PETE EARLEY
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Joseph B. Kennedy is irritated. His round face is turning rose-pink and he is spitting out his words.

Some claim that indignation is Kennedy's normal state.

Since he became an administrative law judge 11 years ago and began hearing cases under the federal coal mine laws, Kennedy has raised hell with nearly everyone who has come before him — and a few who have not.

few who have not.

He has accused the Labor Department of lax safety enforcement, imposed large fines on coal companies, chastised the United Mine Workers for not doing more to protect miners, criticized his fellow judges and, most recently, lectured his bosses at the Federal Mine Safety and Health Review Commission.

The Justice Department and Rosemary Collyer, former chairman of the commission, are the subjects now stuck in Kennedy's craw.

But first, some history.

There are 1,121 administrative law judges, commonly called ALJs, assigned to 29 federal agencies. All of them are lawyers and some are former judges. ALJs conduct hearings, issue decisions, levy fines and interpret federal laws.

Kennedy became an ALJ at the age of 51. He gra-

Kennedy became an ALJ at the age of 51. He graduated with honors from George Washington University Law School in 1949, then, for the next 24 years, he criss-crossed from private practice to government jobs with the Army, the Federal Trade Commission and the Armed Services Board of Contract Appeals. In 1973, he became an ALJ and was assigned to the Interior Department, which at that time was responsible for administering federal mine safety laws.

One of his first cases involved small-mine operators who contended that regulations designed to control coal dust could not be met. Kennedy surprised all sides by visiting several small mines to see conditions first-hand, trips that convinced him the companies could meet the standards.

In another early case, Kennedy ruled that the Interior Department was responsible for protecting not only coal miners, but the public as well. The department reacted by taking the case out of his hands.

Kennedy again butted heads with Interior officials in 1976 when he fined a coal company for 41 safety violations. His action outraged Kent Frizell, then undersecretary of the interior, because the agency had promised the coal company that it would not take action until a federal district court had ruled on several questions in a related case.

Frizell stayed Kennedy's decision and placed an official reprimand in his file — a move that caused such a public flap that then Attorney General Edward H. Levi investigated it. Levi eventually removed the reprimand and Congress passed legislation to prohibit agencies from rating ALJs under the civil service system's evaluation program.

Kennedy's current problems stem from his unbridled criticism of the Reagan administration's policy of "cooperation, rather than confrontation" between safety inspectors from the Labor Department's Mine Safety and Health Administration and coal operators.

"It's easy not to see the real implications of 'cooperative enforcement' if you are the type of judge who only looks at the trees," Kennedy said. "But if you can see the forest, in other words, see a pattern in the cases that you hear, then you know that death rates have been zooming as coal production has increased."

Fatalities in coal mines have increased from 32 for the first six months of 1983 to 57 for the same period this year. But the fatality figures have gone up and down since Reagan took office, and MSHA officials contend that it is too early to tell whether the new enforcement policy is to blame.

But Kennedy said he is convinced. "Inspectors are so torn between their sworn duty to enforce the law and the administration's policy of 'cooperative enforcement' that it is well nigh impossible for them to reconcile their findings of violation with their attempts to trivialize gravity and culpability," he wrote in one decision.

Kennedy stepped up his attack recently by accusing MSHA inspectors in another case of "ignoring the conditions of wanton, if not criminal, endangerment." Labor Department attorneys asked the review commission to strike Kennedy's comments, arguing in part that Kennedy could not prove his charges. The commission voted to remove the criticism.

Shortly after that, Kennedy received a call from a miner in Kentucky who claimed he had information about federal inspectors accepting payoffs and kickbacks.

Kennedy notified the Justice Department, which, he said, asked him to introduce one of its investigators to the informant. But the investigator backed out a few hours before Kennedy left for Kentucky.

Kennedy briefed Justice Department officials when he returned and submitted a $479 travel claim to his boss, Collyer. She refused to pay, saying Kennedy had overstepped his authority and misled her by claiming that Justice had asked him to go. Justice officials insist they never asked Kennedy to investigate on his own.

Kennedy's critics claim that he is arrogant and egotistical. "He has become a crusader for coal miners," complained one coal company attorney. "He is simply trying to stick it to the Reagan administration," said a Labor Department official.

Small business income increasing faster than wage, salary employees

LUBBOCK—Income of small business owners in Texas continues to increase faster than income of wage and salary employees, the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA) has reported.

During the first quarter of 1984, the latest figures available, income of sole propietorships in Texas increased by 23.9 percent, compared to the similar 1983 percentage. Wage and salary income rose only 7.8 percent, according to Phillip J. O'Jibway, director of the SBA's Lubbock office.

For the nation, sole proprietorship income rose 23.4 percent from March 1983 to March 1984. Wage and salary income rose nine percent.

"Given the continuing rise in national production and sales, there is every reason to believe that small business income will continue to exceed wage and salary income," O'Jibway commented.

Last year, a study by SBA's

Office of Advocacy showed that sole proprietorship income reversed a 10-year trend and began to increase faster than income of wageand salaried employees. In that report, sole propietorship income rose by 23.13 percent in 1983, as compared with an increase of 6.19 percent for wage and salaried employees, O'Jibway said.

The SBA's Office of Advocacy estimates that 85 percent of all small businesses in the United States are sole proprietorships.

NEW YORK (AP) Stock prices sagged today in a carryover of selling from last week. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off 31.36 last week dropped 4.31 to 1,184.63 by noontime today.

Losers held an 8-5 lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

A highlight of the session was the trading debut in London and New York of British Telecommunications. Slightly more than half of the telephone company, heretofore owned entirely by the British government, was sold to investors.

In early activity on Wall Street today, more than 12 million American depositary shares of British Telecom changed hands. At midday, they were trading at 10%.

A survey, reported over the weekend, by the National Association of Purchasing Management concluded that business activity was sluggish in November for the third consecutive month.

BUSINESS MIRROR

Signals mixed for Midwest

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - The battle of the industrial Midwest was accented recently by two events that seem to carry different messages

In the first, from Peoria, Ill., Caterpillar Tractor Co., in its own way as American as Coca-Cola, Ivory Soap or Life Savers, announced tentative plans to reduce U.S. capacity by transferring some operations abroad.

The goal, said Cat, maker of those bright yellow earthmoving behemoths so familiar during construction of the nation's interstate highway system, was to lower costs and reduce excess capac-

The other event was disclosure of tenative plans by Mazda Motor Corp., a Japanese automaker, to assemble compact cars at an empty Ford Motor Co. plant near Detroit, joining three other Japanese carmakers with U.S. facilities.

One leaves, the other comes. But the two events are part of the same, larger story that is still unfolding and which, unfortunately, presents more questions than answers. Especially unfortunate because the stakes are high.

The fate of Caterpillar, for many years the world's most respected name in heavy earthmoving equipment, may involve U.S. labor and management practices, the dollar, and the trade deficit. In short, competitiveness. For now, the dollar is the predominant issue of the dollar in relation to other currencies means that many American goods cannot compete abroad. In fact, some cannot compete even within the borders of the United States, a sorry condition that is depicted in the balance of trade deficit. For this year alone that deficit will exceed $100 billion for the first time ever. It means this: Foreign goods are able to come into the United States and undersell domestically made products. And American, "dollar-made goods increasingly find it impossible to compete with foreign goods in foreign lands.

A high-priced dollar makes imports relatively inexpensive, and therefore attractive, while making exports relatively more expensive and unat-

When this happens, some American companies seek to resolve the problem by moving operations abroad. That is, they export jobs. Cat, for instance, is likely to lay off American workers and hire European personnel. But if such a problem exists, why should the Japanese switch some of their manufacturing operations to the United States, even to the embattled Midwest, the heartland of heavy manufacturing? Again, because of the dollar - but more indirectly.

Because the U.S. automotive industry became damaged by Japanese imports, the United States and Japan agreed to quotas. And those quotas have helped the U.S. industry overcome the highpriced dollar problem.

But once applied, quotas are difficult to remove. Almost every American gives allegiance to the theory of free trade, which is quotaless trade, but then the issue of jobs comes up. Nobody is for exporting American jobs.

The Japanese, therefore, have decided in effect that they must come within U.S. borders if they are to sell all the automobiles they wish to sell. In effect, they have decided they must export Japanese jobs to the United States.

But why should all this be necessary? Why, for instance, should the dollar be so high?

The obvious answer is that it is such a good investment. Interest rates are high in the United States, and liking that, foreign investors ship their money to the United States. They invest in dollars, and up goes the price.

But why the dollar is so high is not as pleasant a consideration. It is high because of high interest rates, of course, but why are interest rates high? Most likely, in part at least, because of the U.S. budget deficits.

The questions finally become distilled to management: management of U.S. government finances, which haven't been in balance in two decades, and management of large U.S. businesses, which critics say has been inefficient.

We might get some answers to the questions. If Japanese managers in the United States can beat domestic automakers, and if Caterpillar in Europe still cannot make a profit, it would suggest American management, governmental and private sector, is still part of the problem.

Baby born under water

Dear Dr. Solomon: My son and daughter-in-law went to Europe on their honeymoon, and they came back with a story about a woman who gave birth underwater. If it wasn't my own son, I wouldn't beleive it. What I would like to know is how this could be. - Mrs. N.L., Marietta, Ga.

Dear Mrs. L.: Underwater births that take place in a small pool have been reported from France and may have occurred elsewhere. The water in the pool is warm and free of chemicals or other additives. Some of the women who used the pool left it before they gave birth, but others actually delivered under water. Apparently there is no danger that the infant will inhale any water during the few seconds it takes before the babe is brought to the surface and given to the mother.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My doctor mentioned that instead of flu shots, we may soon be getting nose drops. Is there anything to this? It sounds like it would be a much more pleasant protection. - Sara, Dover, N.J. Dear Sara: The National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Disease has been supporting studies of an influenza vaccine that can be administered as nose drops. Experiments conducted at the University of Maryland in Baltimore and at the University of Rochester in New York have shown that the vaccine is more effective than the traditional flu shots. However, more studies are needed. One area to be investigated is the vaccine's possible side effects in elderly and weakened patients who are at high risk of complications from influenza. Nevertheless, the outlook for the development of a nose-drop flu vaccine seems promising.

Dear Dr. Solomon: One of my children dreads the thought of a needle or anything else that might cause pain, while my other child isn't bothered by it. Sure enough, the first one always complains that the needle or whatever hurt, while the other one hardly pays any attention to it. Do their different attitudes in regard to pain have anything to with their reactions to it? - Mrs. .Y., Cleveland, Ohio

Dear Mrs. Y.: The perception of pain is very subjective, and this makes it difficut to evaluate how much discomfort any person is actually experiencing. What may be significant pain to one individual may amount to little more than an annoyance for another individual.

The specific answer to yor question is that anxiety magnifies a person's perception of pain, and this is probably a factor in the different reactions of your children. For Lydia, Little Rock, Ark.: Dr. Kenn

Jones, of the University of California, San Diego, School of Medicine in La Jolla, reports that lithium can cause birth defects, and women who become pregnant while taking the drug should be aware of this. The results of one study indicated that 13 of 143 women who took the drug while they were pregnant gave birth to mal formed children.

Elderly must file tax returns

By BILL DOYLE

Q. One gal I know, who is in her 80s, does not file an income tax return, even though she gets interest and dividends from her investments. She says she was told you do not have to file after age 72. A couple of her friends, who also are way up in years, file every year. The question of whether or not to file is causing a bit of disagreement. Can you settle

A. Reaching age 72 does not determine if you must file a federal income tax return. Age 65 has a bearing on it. But the principal determining factor is your income. After all, some of the richest people in this country are way up in years. Uncle Sam's not going to let them off the tax hook.

A single person 65 or older is required to file a return if his or her annual income is $4,300 or higher. For a married couple filing a joint return that number is $6,400 when one spouse is 65 or older and the other is under 65; it's $7,400 when both are 65 or older. For a qualifying widow or widower 65 or older with a dependent child it's $5,400. For married people filing individual returns it's $1,000.

Under age 65, the filing requirement is $3,300 for a single person, $5,400 for a joint return, $4,400 for a qualifying widow or widower with a dependent child and $1,000 for marrieds filing individual returns. Also required to file are: 1. People with self-employed earnings of $400 or more; 2. Children who have interest, dividend and other so-called "unearned income" of at least $1,000 and who are taken as dependents on their parents' returns: 3. Anyone who can exclude income from sources within U.S. possessions, and 4. Workers who receive advance earned income credits from their employers.

The rules call for anyone who meets one of the requirements to file a federal income tax return even if he or she owes no tax. All your friends, of course, have to worry only about the filing requirements for seniors 65 and older.

Q. Someone told me that the amount of income a person receives before being required to file a federal income tax return has been increased by 4 percent. Is this true?

A. Not for 1984 returns. However, that change will take effect for 1985 returns. It will reflect the new "indexing" of federal income taxes. The "zero bracket amounts" - formerly called the standard deductions — will rise approximately 4 percent in 1985 and go up in line with inflation in

Q. I receive Social Security benefits of approximately $7,700 a year. My only other income is about $550 interest from a certificate of deposit and a savings account. Do I have to make out an income tax return?

A. No. SS benfits are among the things you do not list as income to determine if you must file a federal tax return. You'll find that under the heading of "Examples of Income You Do Not Report" in the Internal Revenue Service's 'Instructions for Preparing Form 1040" booklet.

Q. I'm self-employed and haven't filed an income tax return for four years. I'm tired of looking over my shoulder. I want to do the right thing and start filing. Will this "ring a bell" at the Internal Revenue Service's computers and advise that previous returns were

A. There's a strong chance that will happen. There's even a greater possibility you will be nabbed by continuing to operate as you have been doing.

Unless you are doing an "all cash" business by buying and paying in currency, some kind of "information return" will be filed — most likely by someone with whom you do business. The computers then will ring a bell and you'll hear from the IRS.

If you really want to do "the right thing," you should contact your nearest IRS office and arrange to file your past-due returns. You'll have to pay your back taxes, plus penalties.

An IRS spokesman says taxes and penalties owed normally must be paid up — immediately. He adds, however, that arrangements can be made to pay off on the installment plan, in cases of undue hardship.

Sri Lanka army guards kill escaping prisoners

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) - Army guards today killed 20 rebel prisoners trying to escape, the day after guerrilla attacks on two fishing villages left 11 people dead, the government said.

The deaths were among 194 reported since Friday in skirmishes involving rebellious Tamils

Others slain in scattered violence across northern Sri Lanka included a Tamil rebel killed by a night watchman, an army sentry and a member of a rebel band who fired at him, one person in an unarmed but unruly crowd that marched on a fishing village and an army guard killed in the rebel prisoners' escape attempt, authorities

The government radio said the army guard was killed by rebels attacking an army camp in Vavuniya in an attempt to free comrades being held for suspected terrorist activities. As the prisoners tried to escape, the broadcast said, other guards opened fire, killing 20 rebels.

Tamil separatists killed 11 residents of two fishing villages populated by Sri Lanka's dominant Sinhalese community on Sunday, the government said, and 10 guerrillas were killed when their boat was destroved Saturday.

Three children, one an infant, were among those killed at the fishing villages, authorities said. Fisheries Minister Festus Perera said survivors told him 14 or 15 guerrillas with bombs and guns attacked the villages of Nyaru and Kokkilai.

The rebels want a separate Tamil state in northern Sri Lanka, where Tamils form the bulk of the population. Militant leaders among the Tamils, a Hindu sect making up about 16 percent of Sri Lanka's population of 17 million, claim Tamils are victims of discrimination by the majority Sinhalese, who are Buddhists.

Italian court reviews terrorists' cases ROME (AP) — An appeals court today began reviewing the cases of 23 Red Brigades terrorists convicted of kidnapping and killing former Premier Aldo Moro in 1978. Nearly 20 defendants took their seats in room-sized metal cages in an isolated auditorium near Rome's Olympic Stadium. Dozens of policemen wearing bulletproof vests and carrying submachine guns surrounded the concrete structure. Among those missing from the trial was Mario Moretti, a Red Brigades founder who directed the Moro operation. Under the Italian law, a defendant is not required to attend the trial Valerio Morucci and Adriana Faranda, both sentenced to life imprisonment for the Moro killing, were in the first led into the courtroom The peak of terrorism that plagued Italy during the 1970s, Moro's slaying in 1978 continues to haunt this country in much the same way the assassination of President John F. Four other defendants were found innocent and 27 others received sentences ranging from four months to 30 years, following a trial that lasted more than nine months.

The Appeals Court of Assize proceeding which opened today is in the same auditorium where the trial was held.

Neither prosecutors nor defense attorneys have said how long the appeals proceedings will last, but they are not expected to take anywhere near the amount of time as the trial. The cases of all of the defendants in the trial are before the appeals court.

The appeal, automatic in the Italian legal system, is expected to answer several key questions. They include whether political flexibility in dealing with the leftist terrorists, many of them in their 20s and 30s, could have saved Moro's life.

Moro's daughter, Maria Fida, revealed on Oct. 19 that she and her husband had visited Morucci and Ms. Faranda in a Rome prison because the pair "wanted to hear from our own voices that we have forgiven them." She appeared on Italian television last month to talk about the visit with the impri-Morucci and Ms. Faranda, serving life sentences in the slaying, have been cooperating with investigators in tracing the Red Brigades' steps during the weeks the case captured worldwide attention.

While Moro's death marked the high point of leftist terrorism in Italy, there have been noted incidents since then. Red Brigades kidnapped U.S. Brig. Gen. James L. Dozier in

Dec. 17, 1981 and held him for 42 days before police freed him in the northern Italian city of Padua. Suspected Red Brigades terrorists last February in Rome

A Rome trial court on Jan. 24, 1983, handed down life senshot and killed Leamon Hunt, the U.S. director-general of the tences to 32 Red Brigades terrorists convicted in the Moro multinational force that patrols the Sinai.

Hammer to meet with Chernenko

MOSCOW (AP) - American industrialist Armand Hammer arrived for a discussion with President Konstantin U. Chernenko about the need for regular meetings between U.S. and Soviet leaders, a spokesman for Hammer said

Hammer, 86, head of the Los Angeles-based Occidental Petroleum Corp. and a longtime associate of Soviet leaders, planned to encourage Chernenko to agree to regular meetings with President Reagan in efforts to establish better relations between the superpowers. 'My message to President Chernenko will be for an increased dialogue between Moscow and Washington stressing trade, cultural and scien-tific exchanges as a bridge leading to renewed disarmament talks," Hammer said in Los Angeles last month when he announced his visit here.
