Bomb threat interrupts Nobel prize ceremony

By WILLIAM C. MANN
Associated Press Writer

OSLO, Norway — In a ceremony interrupted by a bomb threat, Bishop Desmond M. Tutu accepted the 1984 Nobel Peace Prize today, saying it brought new hope to his fellow South African blacks and to the oppressed everywhere.

Tutu, an Anglican Church leader, wore his purple cassock and clerical collar as he took the world's most prestigious humanitarian award for his advocacy of non-violent struggle against apartheid. South Africa's system of enforced racial segregation.

The presentation was held up for an hour and 20 minutes after an anonymous telephone caller told an Oslo newspaper that a bomb had been placed in Oslo University's Aula Reception Hall and would explode in 10 minutes.

Police cleared hundreds of people, including King Olav V, from the auditorium and searched, but no device was found.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Per Paust at first announced that the ceremonies had been cancelled. But later everyone returned and the presentation proceeded.

Tutu had been about to accept his award when police entered the hall and asked that the guests leave. Tutu, his wife and their four children, as well as members of Norway's royal family, left the 580-seat ceremonial hall along with hundreds of others.

In a speech prepared for delivery at the ceremony, Tutu said the prize had given new hope to the "voiceless, dispossessed, oppressed" and those who doubt God cares about the fate of his creatures.

The Norwegian Nobel Committee awarded the 1984 prize to Tutu in October, describing him as "a unifying leader" in the fight against South Africa's racial segregation laws, enforced by South Africa's white-minority government.

Tutu was given a gold medal, diploma and $193,000 stipend in the ceremony held on the 98th anniversary of the death of Alfred Nobel, the Swedish inventor of dynamite whose will established and endowed the Nobel awards.

In his prepared remarks, Tutu described the congratulations he had received from heads of state, church leaders and ordinary people, "notable exceptions being the Soviet and South African governments."

A new hope has been kindled in the breasts of the millions who are voiceless, oppressed, dispossessed, tortured by the powerful tyrants, lacking elementary human rights in Latin America, in Southeast Asia, in the Far East, in many parts of Africa and behind the Iron Curtain, who have their noses rubbed in the dust," he said.

"The world is in such desperate straits, in such a horrible mess, that it all provides almost conclusive proof that a good and powerful and loving God such as Christians and people of other faiths say they believe in could not exist, or if he did he really could not be a God who cared much about the fate of his creatures or the world they happened to inhabit which seemed to be so hostile to their aspirations to be fully human."

However, Tutu said, "The prize has given fresh hope to many in a world that has sometimes had a pall of despondency cast over it by the experience of suffering, disease, poverty, famine, hunger, oppression, injustice, evil and war — a pall that has made many wonder whether God cared, whether he was omnipotent, whether he was loving and compassionate," the bishop said.

Tutu added that his award "says more eloquently than anything else that this is God's world and he is in charge."

Nobel sperm bank has some success

By ALAN L. ADLER
Associated Press Writer

ESCONDIDO, Calif. — Robert Graham still gets some negative reaction to his so-called Nobel Prize sperm bank but his list of genius donors is slowly growing and 15 children have been born to women chosen as recipients.

Graham vigorously denies that he is trying to create a super race through his Repository for Germinal Choice, but he says he does envision a better society populated by smarter children born to parents who meet his standards for health and emotional stability.

"We are, I would think, selective," Graham said in a recent interview at his downtown office. "But we're not racist. We'll accept excellence in any race. What we're really trying to do is optimize the conditions for having children."

Most of the women who receive the frozen semen from Graham's repository are in their mid to late 30s. Many have tried unsuccessfully for years to bear children with their husbands. Occasionally, the recipient's husband has a hereditary problem that he does not want to pass on to his offspring.

It's a slow process that leads people to us, said Julianna McKillop, who manages the repository's office. The parents might plan for this for years.

Secrecy surrounds most of the people involved with the repository, started in 1979. Only William B. Shockley, who shared a Nobel prize for the invention of the transistor and who believes that blacks as a group are intellectually inferior to whites for genetic reasons, has gone public about his donations.

At present nine other men, all possessing an intelligence quotient of at least 140, are regular donors, Graham said.

Women who inquire about insemination through the repository are given a booklet showing the characteristics of the donors, who are identified by colors instead of their names.

Guidelines for receiving sperm — free except for a $50 application fee and $10 a month for liquid nitrogen and shipping costs — require the women to be wed and prove it with a marriage certificate.

An oversight allowed unmarried psychologist Afton Blake to bear her son, the repository's second birth, nearly 2 1/2 years ago.

"There were certain traits I wanted in my child — not necessarily intelligence, although that was important," Ms. Blake said in a telephone interview from her home in Los Angeles. "Doron is wonderful. He is amazingly verbal. He reads a lot of books, toddler books."

American freed by hijackers shows signs of torture

By JOSEPH PANOSSIAN
Associated Press Writer

One American bore signs of torture after he and other hostages were freed from a hijacked Kuwait Airways plane at Tehran Airport by Iranian security men disguised as garbage collectors, Iran's news agency said today.

Seven remaining hostages and four Arab hijackers were taken out of the jetliner Sunday night after the security men posed as a doctor and cleanup men to gain access to the aircraft and end the six-day ordeal, Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency said.

The British flight engineer of the Airbus A 300, Neil Beeston, said every moment of the hijacking was filled with terror. The last captives freed had been "strapped to their chairs with explosives around," said the crewman in an interview with the British Broadcasting Corp. Two American passengers, identified as employees of the U.S. Agency for International Development, were reported killed last week during the hijacking, which began on Tuesday when IRNA said four gunmen commandeered a Kuwait Airways jetliner after a stopover in Dubai during a flight from Kuwait to Karachi, Pakistan.

The operation went by so fast and unexpectedly that I didn't even notice it, the news agency, IRNA, quoted American John Costa as saying. The agency described Costa, 50, as a New York businessman and said he was the most severely beaten of the seven people freed.

IRNA said Costa had cigarette burns on his face from two sessions of questioning by the hijackers and quoted him as saying he had been beaten "in most places of his body."

"What they (the hijackers) wanted was for me to say I was from the CIA, that's all they wanted to hear," IRNA quoted Costa as saying.

"We couldn't tell from one minute to the next what they might do and how they would react to anything you might say. If they got angry they beat, and then they would offer you orange juice," he was quoted as saying.

"It was quite a frightening experience in all, very noisy and always under the threat of death. I was hoping something would happen, but we didn't know what to think or what to expect," he said.

In any case, we are all happy it's all over."

The other American freed in the rescue mission was identified today by IRNA as Charles Kaper. IRNA had previously given the name of the second American as "Charles Kipper," stating he had identified himself so during an emotional appeal by radio to the control tower earlier for an ending of the killing.

Administration 'thankful' for release of two hostages

By BARTON REPERT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The State Department says the United States is "thankful" for the freeing of two American hostages after Iranian security men overpowered the hijackers of a Kuwaiti jetliner at Tehran airport.

Department spokeswoman Vivienne Ascher, citing reports that the two Americans were being treated at a hospital in the Iranian capital, said in a statement Sunday evening that "we look for their speedy return to U.S. custody."

Hours earlier, Secretary of State George P. Shultz declared in a New York speech that "the atrocity of the terrorist hijacking in Tehran underscored this country's responsibility to combat international terrorism."

The plane siege cost the lives of two Americans, Charles Hegna, 50, and William Stanford, 52, identified by the State Department as employees of the U.S. Agency for International Development.

President Reagan, attending the taping of a Christmas television show Sunday evening in Washington, said when asked about the outcome of the Tehran plane situation "We're still trying to get confirmation of that."

A statement issued by Ms. Ascher at the State Department, citing reports from Tehran by Iran's Islamic Republic News Agency, said the U.S. government "has no independent confirmation that all the hostages were rescued. If the announcement proves to be correct, however, we would be thankful that the two Americans among them were saved."

"We continue to believe, although we have not been able to confirm absolutely through recovery of the bodies, that two other Americans were murdered by the hijackers. We believe them to be Mr. Charles Hegna and Mr. William Stanford, both employees of the U.S. Agency for International Development. Our sympathies go out to their families," Ms. Ascher said.

She added, "We have unconfirmed reports that the two surviving Americans are in a Tehran hospital and we look for their speedy return to U.S. custody. We will not have any further statement to make until that time."

Shultz said in New York that "the United States must be a tireless sentinel of freedom."

The secretary's speech, delivered just after news reports from Tehran about storming of the hijacked airliner, did not make any reference to freeing of the hostages.

Men sought in attempted bank robbery

ODESSA — Police are looking for three men suspected to have participated in a Sunday night robbery attempt at an Odessa bank in which the guard was knocked unconscious by a blow to the head, according to reports.

Ed Montgomery, 58, a guard at M Bank, 42nd St. and Grandview, was knocked unconscious after two men approached him about 5:30 p.m. Sunday about making a night deposit. He suffered a laceration to the back of the head, but was treated for his injuries and released from Medical Center Hospital.

It is unknown how much money was taken by the robbers, as the system is secured against entrance during nighttime hours. Montgomery told police he awoke with one man tying him up and another attempting to take money from the night deposit area.

The two men who approached Montgomery were described as white men in their mid-30s, 5 feet, 6 inches to 5 feet, 10 inches tall. One had blonde hair and was wearing a satin jacket and carrying a nylon tote bag. The other was of medium build with light brown hair and a mustache.

A third man, described as Hispanic with dark hair, a dark complexion and a mustache, reportedly drove the getaway car, a late-model black over light blue or gray Buick Riviera.

Montgomery was discovered by a woman who was at the bank to make a night deposit.

Bank securities manager Wes Burkett declined comment on the incident. "We're waiting for the FBI and the Odessa authorities to bring us up to date on the investigation before we make any comment."

WEATHER SUMMARY

The National Weather Service forecasts rain for the East Coast and parts of the West.

High temperatures mock approach of Christmas

From Staff and Wire Reports

It's hard to believe Christmas is just around the corner with temperatures in the 70s as they have been in the Midland area. Warm temperatures are expected to continue through Tuesday, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

Forecasters predict tonight will be fair but will turn partly cloudy through Tuesday. Lows near 40 will warm to highs in the low 70s Tuesday. Winds from the southeast at five to 10 mph will become southerly at 10 to 20 mph.

Sunday's high of 72 was nine degrees below the record set in 1970. This morning's low of 33 was 18 degrees above the record set in 1978.

STATE

A very weak cold front had slowed to almost a halt over the central portions of Texas early this morning.

Clear skies were prevalent behind the front, but ahead of the front, over the coastal bend and surrounding coastal plains, dense fog was forming in the still moist air.

Winds were light not only along the coast but also over the whole state of Texas early this morning.

Overnight temperatures were still residing in the 50s and 60s in South Texas and East Texas, ahead of the front. But behind the front, readings had dropped into the 30s and 40s. The low extreme at 4 a.m. was 32 degrees at Lubbock while the high extreme was 63 located at McAllen.

NATION

Snow and freezing rain hit the Northwest today and rain was scattered from Indiana across the Tennessee Valley, while much of the rest of the nation enjoyed unseasonably mild temperatures.

Winter storm warnings were issued for much of Idaho through tonight, with forecasts of up to 6 inches of snow at higher elevations.

Runner completes Chinese trip

Associated Press

CANTON, China — A 41-year-old American completed a 2,108-mile run through China today and said he lost 16 pounds because his Chinese hosts refused to serve him his favorite high carbohydrate food, potatoes.

"I told the Chinese I need potatoes, please give me potatoes," said Stan Cottrell of Tucker, Ga. "They said no, only peasants eat potatoes." Grasping American and Chinese flags, a 133-pound Cottrell was cheered by thousands of Chinese on the last leg of his 53-day adventure. "I'm just ecstatic today, I'm just pumping pure adrenalin," said Cottrell.

Instead of potatoes, an energy-rich food favored by long distance runners, the Chinese wanted to feed him banquet delicacies and heavy meats that he was not used to. Eventually he convinced his hosts to feed him more rice, he said, "and I gobbled down lots of it."

Ringed by motorcycle policemen, Cottrell broke through a red ribbon outside Canton's White Swan Hotel at 10:30 a.m. as a welcoming committee of Communist Party dignitaries, local officials and U.S. consulate officers cheered.

A young woman from the hotel staff, wearing a traditional Chinese silk slit chipao dress, presented the blond-haired, long-distance jogger with a bouquet of flowers. "It was a success beyond anything I'd ever imagined," Cottrell told reporters waiting at the finish line. "The Chinese people have treated me very well."

Cottrell said he came down with the flu three weeks into the journey. But he did not want to upset his carefully laid out schedule by stopping.

"I was delirious, just walking down the road," he said. "The Chinese said we've never seen anything like this, he should be in bed."

Accompanied by a film crew, Cottrell began the run Oct. 10 from the Great Wall northwest of Peking, taking a zigzag route through several provinces. China Sports Services, a state-run organization that handles athletic events, sponsored the trek.

The final leg was a 15-mile stretch through suburban Canton, a city of 6.87 million on the Pearl River in southern China's Guangdong province.

Cottrell said thousands of bystanders watched as he wound through the streets.

"The people were clapping and cheering," he said. "Some were waving American flags at me."

Cottrell said the project was part of what he called a personal campaign to promote long-distance running and international friendship. He ran through Europe in 1982.

He is the second foreigner to undertake a long-distance run through this nation of 1 billion people. David Griffiths of Britain jogged 1,736 miles from Peking to Hong Kong last year.

Like Griffiths, Cottrell overcame numerous bureaucratic delays in getting the Chinese to agree to the run.

Cottrell said the most exciting part of the adventure came after he traversed Guangdong's northern mountains and knew he was approaching the finish.

Shultz says U.S. must battle brutality

By DAVID GOELLER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State George P. Shultz says the United States has global peacekeeping responsibilities that require it to combat the type of "brutal" terrorism that left two Americans dead at Tehran airport.

"The United States must be a tireless sentinel of freedom," Shultz said Sunday in an address to a Yeshiva University convocation in New York City. "We must confront aggression."

"For the world's leading democracy, the task is not only immediate self-preservation but our responsibility as a protector of international peace, on whom many other nations rely for their security," Shultz said.

Shultz made the speech shortly after authorities in Iran announced the end of the aircraft-hostage situation that saw Kuwaiti terrorists kill two Americans employed by the U.S. Agency for International Development.

Shultz, whose speech was written before the hostages were freed, called the events at Tehran airport "a brutal challenge to the international community as well as to the most elementary standards of justice and humanity."

He said that "one way or another, the law-abiding nations of the world will put an end to terrorism and to this barbarism that threatens the very foundations of civilized life ..."

"We look forward to the day when terrorists, like the hijackers in Tehran, can find not one nation willing to tolerate their existence," Shultz said. "But until that day comes, the United States will fulfill the role that history has assigned to us ..."

"We must use our power with discretion, but we must not shrink from the challenges posed by those who threaten our ideals," Shultz said.

The secretary's speech, which aides said was rewritten to address the hijacking, was less militant than remarks last October, when he said the United States might inadvertently kill "innocent people" while combating terrorism.

Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., who will become chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in January, said Sunday that the United States should use caution in launching any preemptive strikes against terrorists.

"Clearly the intelligence preceding those preemptive attacks is of the essence," Lugar said on NBC-TV. "If we are to be true to our own ideals, and I think we want to be, to indiscriminately attack people for the sake of making a point would not be true to those ideals and simply is not going to wash with the American people."

Much of Shultz's speech Sunday appeared to be a response to a policy statement Nov. 28 by Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, who said U.S. military force should be used only as a last resort and only "with the clear intention of winning."

Shultz, who has frequently been at odds with Weinberger over the use of force, said the United States has "learned that to maintain peace we had to be strong, and, more than that, we had to be willing to use our strength ..."

"Power must always be guided by purpose," Shultz said. "At the same time, the hard reality is that diplomacy not backed by strength will always be ineffectual at best, dangerous at worst."

He said the U.S. invasion of Grenada in 1983 was an example of the "moral and necessary" use of power to "liberate a country, turn it back to its own people and withdraw our forces."

Shultz said that even where moral choices are less clearly defined, "our morality ... must not paralyze us ... I think we can tell the difference between the use and abuse of power."

He said the use of power is "legitimate" when:

— "It can help liberate a people or support the yearning for freedom."

— "Its aim is to bring peace or to support peaceful processes; when it prevents others from abusing their power through aggression or oppression."

— "It is applied with the greatest efforts to avoid unnecessary casualties and with a conscience troubled by the pain unavoidably inflicted ..."

"Our great challenge is to learn to use our power when it can do good, when it can further the cause of freedom and enhance international security and stability," Shultz said.

He said that force "must always be a last resort, when other means of influence have proven inadequate."

The agency said the two were tied up in the front of the plane along with the pilot. Among the reported survivors were two wounded Kuwaiti passengers whom IRNA said previously were killed along with the Americans.

IRNA said that one of the Kuwaiti hostages freed today, Hamad Saleh, 33, the vice consul in Karachi, showed "some stress from his shocking experience." His left hand was bandaged.

Originally, officials in Kuwait said there were 150 passengers and 11 crewmen on board the plane. Most of the passengers and crew were freed in groups during the week.

IRNA today revised the number of hostages rescued, saying there were only seven and not nine as it had reported previously. It did not explain how the difference had arisen.

The drama ended at 11:45 p.m. Sunday (3:15 p.m. EST) when the hijackers, three of whom were "severely beaten" in the rescue mission, and the remaining hostages came down the ramp with their hands over their heads, according to IRNA.

Earlier, IRNA said the hijackers dragged a Kuwaiti passenger to the landing steps and beat him. The screaming man pleaded for the hijackers' demands to be met.

Beeston, among a group of hostages released earlier Sunday, said his captors put a gun to his head several times and fired some 100 shots inside the cabin.

"There was a frightening moment every moment. Every five minutes there was a frightening incident. There was no letup at all," Beeston said in a telephone interview with the BBC in London.

Asked if he thought the hijacking would end as it did, he replied:

"No, I didn't. I didn't think there was much chance of storming the aircraft because it was all wired ready to blow up. We didn't know what the outcome was going to be ... Even after the release, we were still expecting to be shot coming down the steps."

Duarte won't give up his effort to renew peace talks

By SHEILA ALLEE
Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO — El Salvador President Jose Napoleon Duarte, despite stalled peace talks, says he is not giving up on his quest for an end to the war in his nation.

The 59-year-old Duarte, in San Antonio to speak at Trinity University, said he questions whether leftist guerrillas share his desire for peace.

"Do they really want peace talks or is this a tactical maneuver," he said when asked at a news conference if the talks would resume. "I have to find this out."

"If I see a little open space that they might be willing to pursue peace, I will go through that opening," Duarte said.

"I have been fighting for 23 years to see my country in a Democratic position and I'm not going to stop now."

Duarte, founder of the moderate Christian Democratic Party, was elected president in El Salvador in June.

He attributed his visit to San Antonio to his desire to let the world know what is going on in his country.

His appearance at Trinity on Saturday was met with shouting, sign-waving protesters, some claiming Duarte is a communist and others charging he is bombing civilian areas in El Salvador.

But in his speech, Duarte said he is working to unite the leftist guerrillas, the right-wing factions and the people in a democracy.

The guerrillas, he said, have changed their tone markedly since the first round of negotiations.

"What they are asking is total surrender. They have asked the president to resign his post and form a new government," Duarte said.

"They want to destroy the political system by destroying the constitution. The third thing they want to do is destroy the army," he said.

The rebels, he said, also have rejected a Christmas truce and his efforts to "humanize" the war.

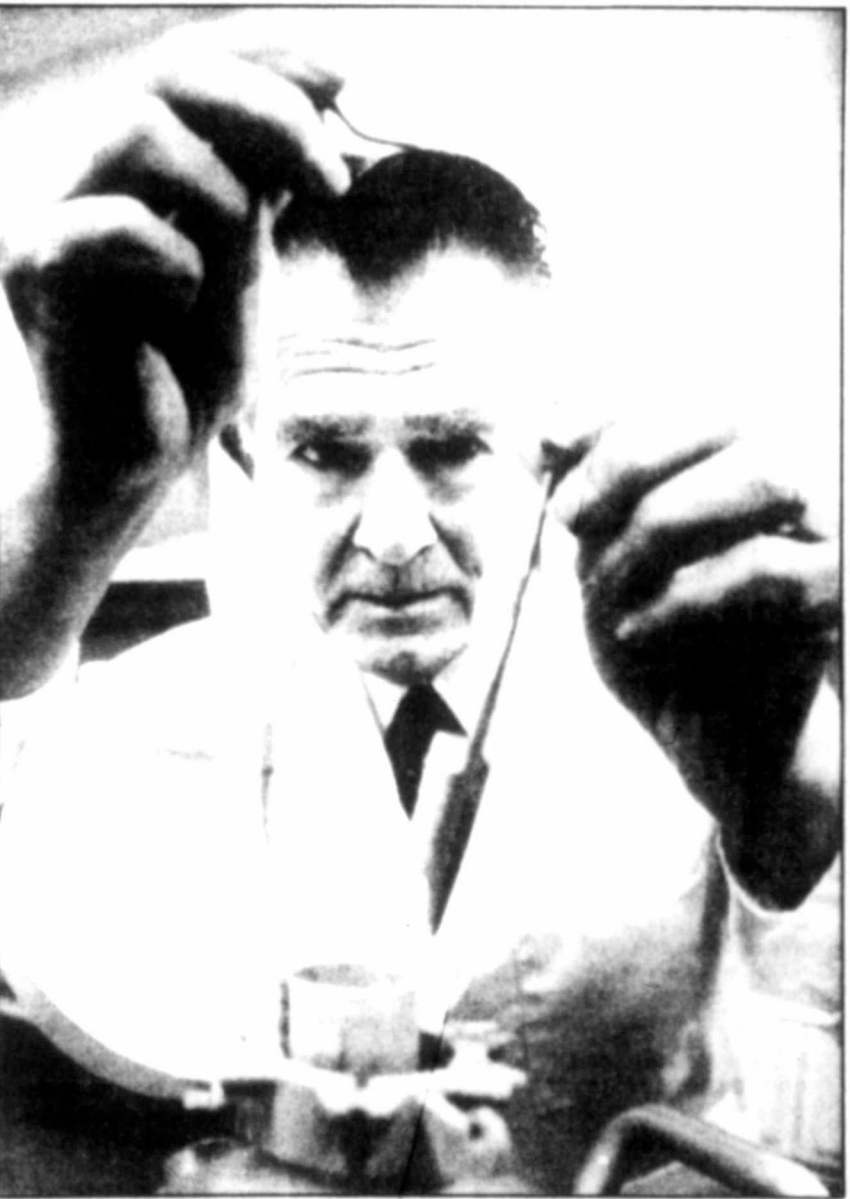

"We felt very sorry to hear the people on the left who had guns in their hand rejected it," Duarte said of the holiday ceasefire.

"We are asking all others to raise their voice and help make everyone understand. We want peace in our country next Christmas," he said.

None of the parents since Ms. Blake have gone public about receiving sperm from the repository.

"The parents may not want the child known as special," Graham said. "We don't want to tinge the child's future adversely. This is why anonymity is so important. The parents want them regarded as normal youngsters. That is especially true of the fathers."

Graham, 78, does not pay the repository's donors, but he says he requires little of their time and dispatches someone to pick up their donations.

"These are men who would never be on call to a doctor. And they don't do this because they need the money," Graham said.

But running the non-profit repository and paying its four full-time employees costs Graham several hundred thousand dollars annually. Money, he said, is no problem because of the fortunes he made through the invention of shatter-proof eyeglasses.

Since the repository's founding, Graham has been primarily interested in attracting men whose area of excellence is sciences or the arts. Since the 1964 Summer Olympics in Los Angeles, he also has been looking for donors who are superb athletes and have high intelligence.

"We have an interview with a gold medal winner in a week or two," Graham said. "Our present donors are all geniuses. Now we're also emphasizing outstanding bodies."

Graham said he is not concerned that his work is lost on many people. Nor does negative publicity bother him.

"There's quite a lot of understanding of what we're trying to do," he said. "But I sense the average person doesn't comprehend this and that it isn't of great interest to them."

"Every time something is written about us, the people who need us read between the lines," Graham said.

Authorities declare water, air safe

BHOPAL, India (AP) — Authorities concerned with the fallout of the industrial gas leak that killed almost 2,000 people have banned meat sales but declared Bhopal's air and water safe.

Meanwhile, Calcutta's Amrita Bazar Patrika newspaper quoted Indian scientists as saying the methyl isocyanate gas that escaped from the Union Carbide pesticide plant Dec. 2 ruined $5.2 million in agricultural crops and could keep the land barren for years.

Doctors continued Sunday to report new cases of poisoning — people experiencing delayed effects from the pesticide plant's leak — and said viral pneumonia was endangering those with lungs damaged by the gas.

An estimated 200,000 citizens were affected by the methyl isocyanate that escaped in the early morning hours one week ago from a 45-ton underground tank.

Moti Singh, Bhopal's city administrator, said slaughterhouses were ordered closed after official reports said attempts were being made to sell meat of livestock stricken by the gas.

Ambassador calls for political change

WASHINGTON (AP) — South Africa's ambassador acknowledges a need for more political rights for his nation's majority black population, but a leading critic of the government says things there are getting worse instead of better.

Bernardus Fourie, South Africa's ambassador to the United States, said "there's need for change (in South Africa). Why argue about it? We realize it ourselves ... We're continually changing."

But Fourie, appearing Sunday on ABC's "This Week With David Brinkley," said such changes do not include giving the vote to South Africa's 22 million blacks.

Asked whether his country's white-minority rulers believed in a goal of "one man, one vote," Fourie said: "It's not the answer in South Africa. We've got to work out a different system... But at the same time, I'm the first to concede that we've got to work out something that will satisfy as many people as possible."

He did not specify what reforms his government would seek and what role blacks would play under a new constitution.

Fourie also said he did not believe a growing protest movement in the United States aimed at South Africa's apartheid policies would have any effect on his government. The protest organizers, as well as President Reagan, claimed victory last week after the Pretoria government released 11 political prisoners.

Appearing on the same program, black South African Bishop Desmond Tutu said recent change has been in the wrong direction.

"From the perspective of blacks, things have actually gotten worse" in the last four years, said Tutu, the 1984 Nobel Peace Prize Winner.

Tutu, who met with President

Reagan on Friday, repeated his criticism that the administration policy of "constructive engagement," or quiet, low-key diplomacy is accommodating the Pretoria government and delaying racial progress.

He called on the administration to "make it quite clear they would no longer be protective of the South African government" and urged economic sanctions placed on South Africa.

He said unless other countries — particularly the United States — exert pressure for the rights of the oppressed, whites and blacks in South Africa could come to bloody conflict.

In an appearance on NBC's "Meet the Press" Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., incoming chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, also urged Reagan to become more vocal in his opposition to apartheid.

Airport seizes jet owned by Saudi sheik

LONDON (AP) — A Boeing 707 private airliner belonging to a Saudi Arabian sheik has been seized by the owners of an airport near London after the owner failed to pay two years' parking fees, municipal officials say.

David Ward, principal legal assistant for Luton borough council, which owns Luton Airport, said that Sheik bin Birjis al-Muraibidh abandoned the 179-seater jet as if it was an old car. The plane has rusted and its tires are flat.

Ward told London's Daily Telegraph on Sunday that the jet incurred $42,000 in parking charges.

Ward said the High Court has given the council permission to sell the aircraft to recover the parking fees, which are imposed by the hour.

The sheik engaged a company to refit the Boeing with luxury accommodation costing $900,000 so that he could tour Europe in style. But the money failed to arrive on schedule and the project was abandoned.

Can America survive with illiterate citizens?

By MIKE FEINSILBER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Thousands of Americans have fought to preserve the rights and liberties in the Constitution, but one adult in eight can't read the nation's charter.

"Functionally illiterate," they're called, those 23 million.

Can't read constitutions. Can't read street signs. Can't read the television guide. Can't read medicine labels. (Nobody can read doctors' prescriptions, but that's another story.)

Life must be difficult, a state of semiblindness, if one is unable to read.

The simplest questions — Who won the Giants game last night? Does this bus go down Broadway? — become a puzzle.

Historian Daniel J. Boorstin, the head of the Library of Congress, has just presented Congress with a report on the future of the book — he says it's assured, despite computers — and on the state of reading in America, which is not in such good shape.

His report cites a finding by the National Commission on Excellence in Education, that at least 23 million adult Americans "by the simplest tests of everyday reading, writing and comprehension" can be characterized as functionally illiterate.

T.H. Bell, who just resigned as secretary of education, cites the 1975 Adult Performance Level Study, which found that the number may be as high as 26 million and, says Bell, "an additional 46 million are functioning at a marginal level."

Three-quarters of the unemployed, Bell says, "lack the basic skills to get or be trained for jobs" at a time when the number of jobs for the unskilled is shrinking. Ninety-five percent of prisoners will eventually be released from prison — and 60 percent of them can't read.

The Boorstin report proposes as a national goal the elimination of adult illiteracy in America by 1989 — in time for the 200th anniversary of the U.S. Constitution.

It is a sentimental, touching and idealistic goal.

Even Boorstin notes that the number of illiterates is not shrinking, but growing — rising by 2.3 million a year, including school dropouts, immigrants and refugees.

The report does not call for a big new government program to solve this problem. That's probably an act of simple realism: the Reagan administration, slashing expenditures to curtail the deficit, is not about to embrace any new social programs.

In any case, the problem is probably one of those that government is least able to solve. It requires volunteers. Already many thousands of people give up time, the biggest gift of all, to help their fellow men learn to read.

It is painstaking, often frustrating work, for tutor and student alike.

But the tutor is giving the gift of the ages.

A few nights ago, Boorstin delivered a speech on this topic: "Will America Live Without Books?"

"The book — the mysterious, versatile book — in its traditional form is both the most concrete and the most abstract of objects. A small book can be put under the leg of a wobbly table, or can provide texts for prayers to our Creator," he said.

"A large book can be a doorstop, or on a chair in our dining room, can lift our children and grandchildren to a comfortable height, and yet it can be an encyclopedic guide to the worlds of art, philosophy and literature.

"A book can be as ephemeral as the paperbacks which dissolve from airport counters every three weeks or as enduring as the dialogues of Plato and the wisdom of the Bible.

"It can spread the petrified lies of dictators, or carry the free-flowing ideas of a democratic republic. It can bind enslaved people in plegmatic acquiescence, or it can stir them to revolt.

"Historically speaking, a book is a kind of everything and anything."

But not for those who cannot read. For them, it is nothing.

Will America live without books? Good question; scary question.

French priest again works with Hmong, this time in U.S.

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — When a fellow priest learned the Rev. Daniel Taillez was headed for Laos in 1964 to do missionary work during the Vietnam War, he asked Taillez, "Hey, Daniel, do you plan to be a martyr?"

"I told him, 'No, don't worry. I can take care of myself,'" Taillez recalled during a recent interview in his small office at St. Mary's Church in St. Paul. "Nothing bad will happen over there."

Taillez was right. For 11 years, without incident, Taillez taught Hmong about Christianity at the Catechist Center in Vientiane. But the French priest was ordered home by his bishop after the Pathet Lao tried to blackmail him.

Nearly 10 years later, Taillez, 48, finds himself again working with the Hmong people he grew to love and admire in Southeast Asia.

As one of three priests in the United States who can speak Hmong, Taillez works with the 800 Hmong parishioners at St. Mary's. He teaches catechism classes, baptizes Hmong adults and children, and has made 30 religious instruction tapes in Hmong. He has visited Hmong communities across the country, helping them establish catechism classes with Hmong instructors.

"It's a ministry we could have never covered had he not come to the United States," said the Rev. David Kalert, vicar provincial in the central U.S. province of Taillez's order, the Missionary Oblates of Mary Immaculate. "His knowledge of the Hmong culture and language is very important. And he has a real warmth for the Hmong people."

Taillez came to Minnesota in 1981 after a Hmong man he had worked with in Laos moved to Minneapolis and recommended Taillez to Twin Cities church officials.

"When he got to know the language, he liked Hmong people and liked to help the Hmong everywhere," said Vang Thait Lo, 39, who in September became the second Hmong ordained a deacon in the United States. "Sometimes he visited Hmong villages far from the city.

Animal activists disrupt City of Hope research

DUARTE, Calif. (AP) — Anti-vivisectionists went on a rampage at the famed City of Hope research center, splashing paint on operating tables, stealing more than 100 laboratory animals and disrupting $500,000 worth of research, officials said.

Some of the animals were infected with cancer and oral herpes, but City of Hope officials said there was minimal health danger to the public.

The Animal Liberation Front claimed responsibility Sunday for the raid at the City of Hope National Medical Center's animal care facility. Authorities say the raid took place some time after noon Saturday.

The theft disrupted $500,000 worth of cancer, herpes and emphysema research efforts, said Dr. Joseph T. Holden, the facility's associate director for research.

Grace gets baby in act

WASHINGTON (AP) — Millionaire industrialist J. Peter Grace is willing to try anything — even pay for a $2.6 million television ad campaign featuring a crying baby — to rally public support for his ideas to trim federal spending.

Grace, who heads a presidential cost-cutting commission, is hoping a 60-second spot now on the airwaves will encourage voters to prod Congress into enacting some $424 billion in proposed budget cuts.

The ad shows a newborn baby girl being told that she is entering the world with all the rights of an American, including her $50,000 share in the federal debt.

"Wah! Waaaaaaaah!" she bawls in reply. An announcer then urges viewers to write their congressmen, and a toll-free telephone number for comments flashes on the screen.

Tape 'irritated' jurors

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jurors who acquitted John Z. De Lorean in a cocaine-trafficking case say they were irritated by repeated screenings of videotape showing De Lorean with drugs and by the star prosecution witness.

But they say their Aug. 16 verdict was not intended as a criticism of government "sting" operations.

"The press has made a lot of this verdict — that we were sitting in judgment on the government or trying to make some point," said jury foreman W. Vern Lahr, 57, an auto insurance claims superintendent. "As far as I'm concerned all we were doing is reading the indictment against the instruction and the evidence."

Teacher negotiations fail

CHICAGO (AP) — Marathon week-end bargaining failed to get striking teachers back to work today, sending the 430,000 students in the nation's third-largest school district into a second week without classes.

Weary negotiators talked for nearly 30 hours straight over the weekend, finally calling it quits at 5:15 p.m. Sunday. Bargaining was to resume this morning.

"It's unfortunate that the union felt it had to go home now," said school board president George Munoz after the talks ended. "It would have been productive to continue."

Time's techniques tried

NEW YORK (AP) — Ariel Sharon's lawyers have put Time's news gathering techniques on trial at the former Israeli defense minister's $50 million libel suit against the news magazine.

Sharon, once Israel's defense minister and now minister of industry and commerce, claims Time libeled him in a Feb. 21, 1983, cover story that reported he discussed revenge for the assassination of Lebanon's president-elect, Bashir Gemayel, with Christian Lebanese leaders the day before hundreds of Palestinians were massacred in Beirut.

To win his suit, Sharon must prove that Time editors either knew the report was false and published it anyway or that they had reason to suspect its truthfulness and published it with reckless disregard.

Lawyers go after CBS

NEW YORK (AP) — After spending nine weeks trying to build a wall of protective testimony around the reputation of retired Gen. William C. Westmoreland, lawyers for the former Vietnam commander are going on the offensive against CBS.

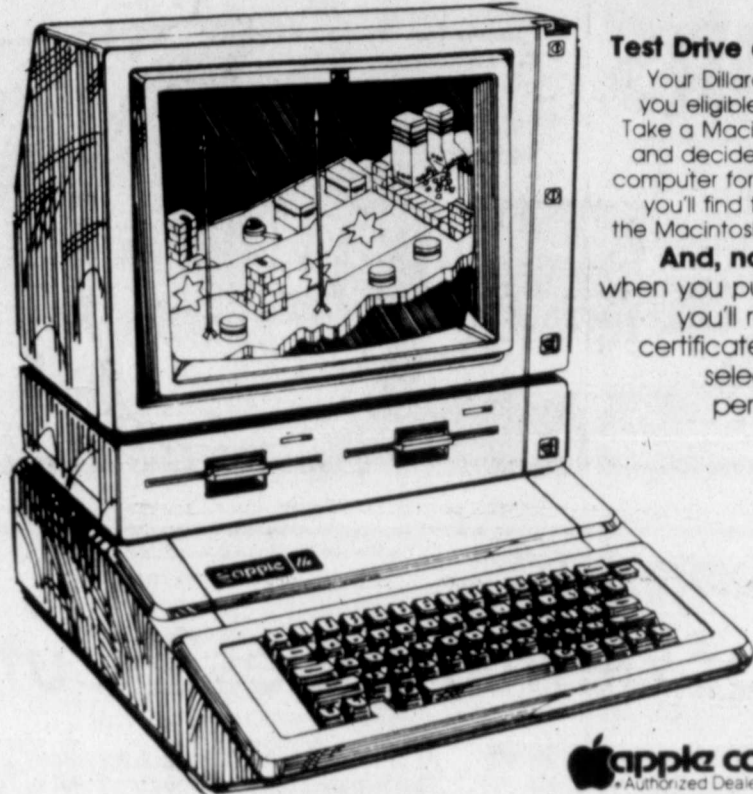

Network producer George Crile was due back on the witness stand today as Westmoreland's $120 million libel suit against the network moved into its 10th week.

Crile produced the 1982 documentary, "The Uncounted Enemy: A Vietnam Deception." The broadcast accused Westmoreland of trying in 1967 to prevent information about enemy troop strength from reaching President Lyndon B. Johnson and others in Washington.

Westmoreland, who commanded U.S. forces in Vietnam from 1964 to 1968, deliberately understated the size of the enemy in order to make it appear that U.S. forces were winning the war, the broadcast charged.

No to terror

The plane hijacking in Tehran, Iran, underscores once and for all that the United States should take the lead in developing an effective defense against terrorism.

Unfortunately that's about all that is clear in the wake of this most recent terrorist assault in which two American diplomats were killed along with a number of the jetliner's passengers.

That's one of the identifying characteristics of terrorism: The inability of the civilized world to know how to respond. Yet a response must be formulated because the number of terrorist assaults increases each year and the number of innocent victims grows.

Often it's not clear what terrorist group is responsible for a particular incident or even what was the intent of the terrorists. The difficulty arising from that uncertainty is compounded in the Islamic nations by the fact that terrorists there apparently are willing to participate in suicide missions in the belief they will be rewarded in the hereafter.

Those factors and numerous others such as the concern for the safety of hostages, combine to make formulating a defense against the attacks a difficult task. Still, it's imperative that such a plan be drawn.

The Reagan administration has been studying proposals for countering terroristic attacks and a number of studies have been conducted by such groups as The Heritage Foundation and noted authorities including Claire Sterling. They all agree that terrorism is going to continue to grow and that as it spreads personal safety will become a thing of the past.

Despite all the concentration devoted to such a plan, none is in place and, meanwhile, terrorism continues to grow. It's well past time for action — before many more innocent lives are lost.

In a recent interview, Secretary of State George P. Shultz told the Washington Post National Weekly, "Terrorism is an unbridled form of warfare. We need a strategy to cope with terrorism in all of its varied manifestations... We must reach a consensus in this country that our responses should go beyond this passive defense to consider means of active prevention, preemption and retaliation."

Terrorism is as Secretary Shultz termed it "unbridled warfare." If the terrorists insist on filling the world with hatred and bloodshed, they should be given what they want: A full-fledged war.

Getting a plan off the drawing board and onto the field should be a priority consideration of the Reagan administration.

Another View:

Captivity, not peace

The latest "peace proposal" made by El Salvador rebels contains a booby trap that would open the way, if accepted, for an armed takeover of the government and the country by Cuba — and Soviet — directed forces.

Guerrilla leaders and government officials met in a hillside religious retreat at Ayualo for the second round of peace talks aimed at ending the country's five-year civil war.

The guerrillas outlined a three-phase plan.

The first called for an end to U.S. military aid, "dismantling" of right-wing death squads and lifting the existing state of siege; the second, power-sharing by the rebels and the government, and the third, integration of the government and guerrilla armies and staging of general elections.

No mention was made of the guerrillas' military support or political influence from the Soviet Union, Cuba and other communist bloc countries. The guerrilla leaders did not appear to consider these crucial matters negotiable.

Acceptance of these proposals by the government would amount to suicide. It would simply spare the rebels the need for battling their way into power.

Non-elected leaders who scoffed at the democratic election process and boycotted the elections would wind up in positions enabling them to put their fingers on the arteries of power.

Integration of the military forces would enable conspiratorial cadres of the hard-core Moscow/Havana-aligned leftist leadership to capture control of the army, assassinate or exile members of the elected government and the officer corps of the government army and establish an uncontested dictatorship as the Marxist junta did in Nicaragua.

El Salvador's president, Jose Napoleon Duarte, has repeatedly rejected power-sharing. Duarte says that power can only be won through elections. The regular army's leaders have stated that they would never permit rebels to integrate their armies into the armed forces.

Both Duarte and the army must stick to those positions if El Salvador is to survive as a free nation with an elected government outside the Central American camp of Soviet client states run by dictatorships and secret police.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Monday, Dec. 10, the 345th day of 1984. There are 21 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Dec. 10, 1898, a treaty was signed in Paris officially ending the Spanish-American War. The agreement ceded the Philippines, Puerto Rico and Guam to the United States.

On this date, Martin Luther publicly burned the papal bull, or edict, demanding that he recant or face excommunication.

In 1817, Mississippi became the 20th state.

In 1830, American poet Emily Dickinson was born in Amherst, Mass.

In 1869, women were granted the right to vote in the Wyoming Territory.

In 1906, President Theodore Roosevelt was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize for helping to mediate the end to the Russo-Japanese War, the first American so honored.

In 1920, President Woodrow Wilson received the Nobel Peace Prize. In 1931, Jane Addams was named a co-recipient of the Nobel Peace Prize, the first American woman so honored.

In 1950, Ralph C. Bunche was presented the Nobel Peace Prize, the first black American to receive the award.

In 1958, the first domestic passenger jet flight took place in the United States as a National Airlines Boeing 707 flew 111 passengers and seven crew members from New York to Miami in about 2 1/2 hours.

In 1967, singer Otis Redding died in the crash of his private plane in Wisconsin. He was 28.

JACK ANDERSON

Got deficit blues? Cut waste!

WASHINGTON — At the end of President Reagan's second term — if the federal government doesn't change its spending habits — the typical family's share of the $2.5 trillion national debt will be $40,000.

One way or another, this debt must be paid. Here are the bleak alternatives: (1) Each family could shell out more taxes; (2) the government could slash its services; or (3) the Treasury could devalue our money and pay off the debt in cheap dollars.

There is a fourth alternative, which the harried taxpayers might prefer. Its basis is this: There is so much waste in government programs that if the misspending and mismanagement were eliminated, the budget could be balanced without cutting legitimate benefits or raising taxes.

The idea is not new; Ronald Reagan floated it back in 1976. What is new is the execution of the idea by a presidential commission of business efficiency experts, established by President Reagan and headed by industrialist J. Peter Grace.

What began in the Gipper's old speeches as a few anecdotes from his index cards ended up a massive study by 160 top business executives, containing 2,478 proposals to cut waste — at a savings of $424 billion over three years.

At first, politicians clambered aboard Grace's bandwagon and gave lip-service support to his reforms. The Senate rushed through a resolution by a 93-to-1 vote endorsing many of his recommendations. In the small print, of course, the bill added cautiously, "These specific recommendations are not binding."

Just about everyone hailed Grace's proposals until President Reagan indicated he might actually be serious about them. He began issuing directives ordering the bureaucrats to implement the reforms that didn't need congressional approval. Now he has let it be known that he'll press Congress to adopt the rest of the proposals, give or take a few.

In a sudden change of tune, many politicians have started howling for Grace's scalp. The loudest hue and cry has come from the congressmen who misappropriate our tax money and the bureaucrats who misspend it.

You see, Congress caters to little groups of voters and contributors who have glommed onto extra benefits at the taxpayers' expense. The congressmen are opposed to waste, of course, as long as it is in someone else's preserve.

There are more than 12,000 post offices, for example, that serve 100 people or less. But even 100 people frighten a congressman when there's no one on the other side. So Congress won't let the inefficient post offices be consolidated.

Take Rep. Gene Taylor, R-Mo., for instance. He's a staunch conservative and an implacable foe of government waste. But let someone try to close one of the tiny post offices in his native Ozarks, and he'll raise a howl.

Of the 4,000 military installations in the United States, only about 300 are really needed. But congressmen have blocked the closing of any of them since 1976. Sen. Paul Trible, R-Va., is typical. He favors the Grace Commission's economies — except for a proposal to close down Ft. Monroe, Va.

Even when there are no voters defending waste or no sectional pressure for preferential treatment, there are the bureaucrats. Behind almost every inefficiency, there is a covey of bureaucrats who gain from its continuance. Any waste that is eliminated will reduce their appropriations, so they will fight fiercely for every last dollar. And they are adept at hornswoogling Congress.

Footnote: For taxpayers who want to fight back, Peter Grace and I invite you to join Citizens Against Waste. This is a non-profit, non-partisan, grass-roots organization whose sole purpose is to reduce federal waste and staunch the terrible financial drain. It neither supports nor opposes government programs, per se; it seeks only to stop the misspending by the people who administer the programs.

Write to Citizens Against Waste, P.O. Box 1000, Ben Franklin Station, Washington, D.C., 20044. Or call 1-800-USA-DEBT.

EXECUTIVE MEMO: Undeterred by the FBI's exclusive jurisdiction over acts of terrorism, Louis Guffrida, the aggrandizing ataman of the Federal Emergency Management Agency, appears determined to horn in on the area.

Kirkpatrick being eased out

WASHINGTON — Not only will Jeane Kirkpatrick be eased out of the Reagan administration without being offered the Cabinet-level job at the White House conservatives still want for her, but her job as ambassador to the United Nations is likely to be downgraded below Cabinet status.

In a late but failed effort, Kirkpatrick's friends have been promoting her for Edwin Meese's post as presidential counselor, if and when he is confirmed as attorney general. But White House senior staffers argued to the president that an independent foreign policy voice based in the White House would undermine Secretary of State George Shultz and would not be acceptable to national security aide Robert McFarlane.

By the same reasoning, Reagan is being urged to remove the UN ambassador, always subordinate to the secretary of state, from the Cabinet. Current front-runner to replace Kirkpatrick is ambassador-at-large Vernon Walters, but other possibilities are Max Kampelman, a hard-line Democrat, and Ambassadors Evan Gairaith and John Gavin, now in Paris and Mexico, respectively.

THE GOVERNORS' CHOICE

The first choice of Democratic governors seeking a centrist, non-East Coast voice as Democratic national chairman is Neil Goldschmidt, who resigned as mayor of Portland, Ore., to become President Carter's secretary of transportation.

If Goldschmidt (now a Portland-based business executive) says no, the governors may turn to Texas political fund-raiser Jess Hay or former governor William Winter of Mississippi. As a last resort, the governors would prefer ex-North Carolina governor Terry Sanford rather than the front-runner among announced candidates: Democratic National Treasurer Paul Kirk, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's former top aide.

A footnote: Gov. Chuck Robb of Virginia has been heading the search of the governors for a national chairman — frustrated when their first choice, Utah's outgoing governor Scott Matheson, said he was not interested. Robb himself turned down the suggestion of his colleagues that he take the chairmanship on a part-time basis.

ED MEESE'S CLOUT
Presidential counselor Edwin Meese, out of the news lately, showed on Dec. 5 that he has not lost his clout by single-handedly killing the proposal to make veteran arms control specialist Paul H. Nitze Reagan's "special envoy" for nuclear negotiations.

The proposal originated with Secretary of State George Shultz. It was picked up by White House chief of staff James Baker, who originally talked of making Nitze the "czar" of nuclear negotiations scheduled to start next month with the Soviet Union.

But at a crucial meeting of top arms control officials in the White House Situation Room, Meese quietly signaled that the president did not like the idea. One reason: It would upgrade Nitze at the expense of Gen. Edward Rowley, who shared arms control negotiations with Nitze the last four years. Meese's veto leaves Nitze with the title of "adviser" to Shultz.

NO GARY HART FAN
Post-election efforts by Sen. Gary Hart to broaden his political base beyond yuppies encountered an early rebuff when "super-lobbyist" J.D. Williams spurned an intimate Capitol Hill luncheon invitation.

Hart hosted the small luncheon for Williams and other heavy-hitting lobbyists who had no previous contact with the senator. Williams is a money-raiser of legendary proportions who would be invaluable in helping erase Hart's massive 1984 campaign debt.

What Hart's managers really had in mind were heavy-hitting allies for the 1988 campaign. Williams, who supported Walter F. Mondale in 1984 but has been critical of the Democratic Party's leftward trends, showed no interest in Hart.

GRAMM BUDGETING AGAIN
Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole is helping to win a coveted seat on the Senate Budget Committee for a newly-elected Republican: Phil Gramm of Texas, who as a House Democrat in 1981 was kicked off the Budget Committee.

That would be a happy ending to the budget chapter of Gramm's story. He was removed from the House committee by Democratic leaders for backing Reagan, causing him to switch parties. His election this year rolled up the largest majority ever accorded any Republican Senate candidate in Texas.

Dole has privately passed word that Senate Republicans should give Gramm and Sen. elect Mitch McConnell of Kentucky, the only other new Republican, special consideration in committee assignments. Naturally, Gramm wants the Budget Committee.

Cutting deficit job of all

The wrangle over the federal budget and tax reform has already begun. In the arena are selfish gladiators fighting to preserve their privileges or subsidies, partisans attempting to paint themselves as benefactors, and disappointed Walter Mondale supporters whose only interest in the matters will be to prove that Ronald Reagan is going to raise taxes after all.

Reagan, of course, is not going to raise or lower taxes or cut the budget. He is only going to make proposals and campaign for their adoption. The matters of the budget and taxes are in the hands of Congress because that's where the Constitution puts them.

That's one point to keep in our heads. Another is that the central issue remains the survival of democracy which is under attack by totalitarianism. If democracies fall, all other issues become moot.

Each of us should reflect that we share a common interest in the survival of our nation which is larger than the different, more narrow selfish interests we may have in our little shares of the federal treasury. Only by doing this can we unite to strengthen the economy of our democracy.

To strengthen that economy, the deficit must be reduced and the fiscal affairs of the federal government moved toward balance in a way that does not either impede economic growth or hamstring our military strength. It should be obvious to everyone that there is no way to do that without sacrificing some short-term personal benefits.

Already lobbyists for various categories of Americans are shouting, "Hands off our piece of the pie!" Don't touch veterans benefits, don't touch federal pensions, don't touch welfare programs, don't touch Medicare, don't touch Social Security, don't touch educational or environmental programs.

It is fraudulent to assert or to imply even that the deficit can be significantly reduced only at the expense of the Defense Department. Defense consumes only about 30 cents of the federal dollar. Of that, most of it is personnel and operational costs, not weapons purchases.

Moreover, in any honest comparison between the military forces of totalitarianism and democracy, democracy is still out of balance and vulnerable. We should for yet awhile spend more, not less, on military forces.

If we lack the will to do this, we shall be in the same position of spoiled Romans who indulged themselves at the expense of the Roman Legions. Atilla the Hun and his soldiers taught the Roman civilians the price of self-indulgence.

Communist forces stand ready to teach us the price of self-indulgence and work diligently for the opportunity to do so. They arm while they and their agents among us preach disarmament; they prepare for war while they preach peace; and they practice aggression while preaching appeasement.

It is a weakness of democracy, but a weakness we treasure, that we do not silence the agents of our enemies who live among us. Nevertheless, this granting of freedom to enemies of freedom imposes on the citizens of a free society a heavy obligation to view information critically and to pursue the truth with determination.

The greatest ally of totalitarianism, however, is not its little band of traitors but some loyal Americans. Among these unwitting allies of evil are those Americans who, out of fear, refuse to recognize the threat. They are like the old man who wheezes, coughs and suffers chest pains but insists he is healthy. Other unwitting allies are those who simply cannot see beyond their own wallets or purses — people who live in a universe of mirrors.

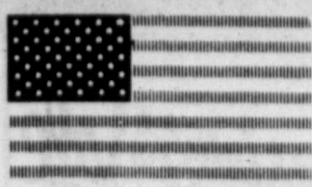

The task of bringing order to our fiscal affairs is a strategically important one that bears on our chances of survival as a free people. The principle of equality — which liberals disregard in building the deficit by handing out favors on the basis of political clout — should certainly be observed in reducing the deficit. To reduce it at the expense of defense would be self-defeating; to reduce it at the expense of those who cannot afford lobbyists would be unjust.

But the only way it can be reduced at all is for each of us who values the country above self to speak out — especially to those who claim to speak for us — and say let's cut that spending even if it has to be at my expense.

Budget-cutting focus shifting to Pentagon

By CLIFF HAAS
AP Economics Writer

WASHINGTON — Having given preliminary approval to nearly $34 billion in domestic spending cuts, President Reagan shifts his focus to the Pentagon this week and is expected to consider a plan that would virtually freeze his planned military buildup.

Budget Director David A. Stockman has been drafting recommendations to hold most military spending programs to current levels, according to sources who spoke only if not quoted by name. They said such a freeze would produce about $8 billion in savings next year.

Reagan has set a goal of holding total federal spending at current levels for the 1986 fiscal year that begins Oct. 1. To do that will take $42 billion in savings next year.

"We know that it's important across the board to see that everyone participates in trying to achieve this freeze," Reagan said last week, leaving the door open for reductions in military spending.

The president ordered his Cabinet last week to come up with $33.6 billion in domestic spending cuts. Another $8 billion in military spending savings would meet the overall $42 billion goal.

Decisions on the Pentagon budget were delayed last week while Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger was out of the country meeting with allied defense ministers and other foreign officials.

Some administration officials have argued against paring the military buildup now, saying it would weaken the U.S. position in upcoming arms control talks with the Soviet Union.

However, Stockman's plan would retain planned increases in major weapons programs, including the controversial MX nuclear missile.

Republican congressional leaders have told the president that his hopes for another round of significant budget reductions will fail in Congress unless the Pentagon also takes a share of the cuts.

The decisions on military spending come as Reagan and his senior aides try to build congressional support for the president's ambitious deficit-reduction effort to freeze, reduce or eliminate almost all domestic federal programs.

Reagan has moved to seize the budget debate early, arguing that he is translating last month's election returns into action.

"In the November elections, the people made clear that first and foremost, they wanted to continue policies that would assure strong economic growth," Reagan told reporters Friday.

"So the people voted against tax increases, and they were right," Reagan said. "And they voted against wasteful government spending, and they were right."

Reagan has tentatively agreed on a broad program that includes drastic steps such as a 5 percent pay cut for federal workers, reductions in welfare programs, elimination of the Small Business Administration, cuts in federal grants to local governments and significant reductions in farm price-support programs.

First lady Nancy Reagan carries Lucky as she repeats a reporter's question to President Ronald Reagan.

Inspection order issued on aircraft

By RON WORD
Associated Press Writer

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — Investigators probing a Provincetown-Boston Airline crash that killed 13 people have issued an emergency order for immediate inspection of all commuter planes of the same model flying in the United States.

The Federal Aviation Administration said Sunday that last year it had warned the owners of the aircraft that crashed of potential defects that could cause the tail to break off.

But the airline said it had thoroughly inspected the plane and investigators said they had not yet been able to reconstruct the chain of events that led to crash.

The PBA twin-engine plane crashed Thursday evening just after takeoff when a 21-foot section of the tail separated. All 11 passengers and two crew members aboard died.

The FAA on Sunday called for the inspections of the Brazilian-made Embraer Bandeirantes Model 110 planes. A day earlier PBA, which had been completely grounded by the FAA last month for alleged safety violations, announced that it had grounded its 18 other Embraer Bandeirantes to check their tail assemblies.

Crews today were to go over records in Miami on the last FAA inspection of the downed aircraft and documents at PBA's headquarters in Naples, said Patricia Goldman, vice chairwoman of the National Transportation Safety Board.

In Washington, the FAA said Sunday it had issued an inspection order for all Embraer Bandeirante Model 110 airplanes flying in the United States.

There are about 130 such aircraft in use in this country, said FAA spokesman Ed Pinto, but he did not know how many were being used commercially to carry passengers.

Aviation inspectors over the weekend found cracks or loose rivets in tail sections of other Model 110s across the country, Ms. Goldman said without further elaboration.

The newly found problems are not serious, said Newton Berwig, president of Embraer's U.S. operations.

"We're getting inspection reports from all the different operators," said Berwig from Fort Lauderdale. "But we have not found anything that would have caused the accident."

The 3-year-old plane that crashed shortly after leaving for Tampa had only flown about 5,000 miles since it returned to the skies three weeks ago along with about two-thirds of the airline's fleet, said PBA President Peter Van Arsdale.

"I'll state until I drop that we did absolutely everything we had to do to get recertified by the book, rule by rule," Van Arsdale said Sunday. "We met all the federal standards and went beyond them."

The plane had been inspected twice in the past two weeks and logged 25 hours of flight time since it was returned to service, he said.

Preliminary NTSB findings of the plane indicate the horizontal stabilizer broke loose, Ms. Goldman said Sunday.

But officials were uncertain as to the chain of events that caused the tail section to separate.

Cotton crop hampered by prices, weather

PECOS, Texas (AP) — The double dose of low prices and boll-weevil problems due to wet weather have West Texas cotton farmers singing the blues and has left some wondering if they'll be back in the fields next year.

Besides low prices, West Texas cotton farmers are suffering with boll deterioration caused by wet weather.

"I borrowed up what all my land's worth," said L.G. "Bo" Worsham, 71, who has been farming for 36 years. "I'm on my way out. I can't stay in business."

Worsham, who tills 412 acres of cotton land, said his years of experience don't give him an answer for an expected yield of 500 bales of cotton this year, when his land usually produces "1,000 bales or better."

After several recent freezes, the cotton has become spotted and taken on a darker color, said Tommy Brantley, manager of the Pecos Valley Gin, five miles south of Pecos. As a result, cotton processed at his gin has decreased in value by as much as 6 cents a pound.

If recent "off and on" rains continue, "We're going to lose a bunch of cotton in the field," he predicted.

Brantley said his gin has processed about one-fourth the bales of cotton of a normal year.

He estimated cotton this year would sell for about 60 cents a pound, about the same as last year.

The wet weather also has delayed the harvest, leaving most farmers with crops still in the field.

Once the harvest is complete, producers will face the dilemma of whether to take their crops to the market or offer them as collateral in government loans.

Report says aquifer must be preserved

HOUSTON (AP) — An 11th-hour effort must be made to preserve the Ogallala Aquifer if the large underground water table is to be available when the nation's food supply is at stake, the research organization Worldwatch says.

The Ogallala Aquifer lies under the Texas Panhandle and High Plains, most of Nebraska, the eastern edges of New Mexico and Colorado, the western parts of Kansas and Oklahoma and a small portion of South Dakota.

Worldwatch, which is supported by private foundations, called the Ogallala "one of the most flagrant cases of mismanagement" of water, with much of it from farming abuses, the Houston Chronicle reported Sunday.

Farmers are "mining" the Ogallala's water — pumping it out faster than it is replaced and are giving too little thought to crops and techniques that could reduce the use of the aquifer, said Sandra Postel of Worldwatch, who has studied water issues throughout the world.

"Hydrologists estimate that the aquifer is now half-depleted under 900,000 hectares (about 2.2 million acres) of Kansas, New Mexico and Texas," Ms. Postel said.

Farmers find their pumps begin to run dry, requiring deeper drilling or abandonment of some farmed land, she said.

One-fifth of the irrigated cropland in the United States is supported by water pumped up from the Ogallala, Ms. Postel said.

In her report, Ms. Postel said, "In just four years, 1978 to 1982, irrigated land in Texas dropped by 20 percent."

"Lack of water to grow crops periodically threatens millions with famine," she said. "Water tables in southern India, northern China, the Valley of Mexico and the U.S. Southwest are falling precipitously, causing wells to go dry. Rivers that once ran year-round now fade with the end of the rainy season. Inland lakes and seas are shrinking."

The Worldwatch report comes out at the same time Texas officials are suggesting a multipronged legislative approach to Texas water problems.

They include underground water-conservation districts that would encourage and bring about conservation of aquifers; a cost-sharing program to lure farmers into crops that use less water; and a system of marketing advice and incentives to help line up buyers for water-stingy crops.

Extracurricular rule passed

AUSTIN (AP) — A controversial rule barring students from extracurricular activities if they fail a course has been unanimously approved by the State Board of Education.

Interim Commissioner of Education W.N. Kirby said the rule, contained in the Legislature's education reform package this summer, will not become final until second and third votes in January and February.

The rule says any student wanting to take part in any school sport or other extracurricular activity must have a passing grade of 70 for the past six weeks.

The rule also limits practice and travel time for any sport or extracurricular activity to 8 hours per week or a total of 20 hours.

Skins rally to beat Pokes, can win title against Cards

Associated Press

In the often confusing, and very mathematical, world of the National Football League, the Washington Redskins and St. Louis Cardinals need worry about only one thing. Victory next Sunday means a division title and an automatic playoff spot.

The Redskins hold the upper hand in the National Football Conference East with a 10-5 record after rallying Sunday for a 30-28 victory over the Dallas Cowboys. The Cardinals, meanwhile, stopped the New York Giants 31-21 to pull into a tie with the Giants and Cowboys at 9-6.

Washington hosts St. Louis on Sunday, and the winner will claim the East title — Washington with a better record, St. Louis by virtue of the NFL's tie-breaker procedure.

"We control our own destiny now and that's what is important," said Washington quarterback Joe Theismann, who rallied his club from a 21-6 halftime deficit at Dallas.

"We're in good shape now," added St. Louis linebacker E.J. Junior.

Tonight's game features the Los Angeles Raiders at Detroit. "This game was probably one of the all-time gut checks that I've been part of," Washington Coach Joe Gibbs said after the Redskins' third straight victory over Dallas. "It looked like it was over about 10 different times."

It certainly looked over at halftime, after Dallas' Danny White had thrown three scoring passes to give the Cowboys a 21-6 lead.

Cornerback Darrell Green, victimized on two of White's first-half strikes — including a 60-yarder to Mike Renfro — got revenge and started the Washington comeback when he returned an interception 32 yards for a third-period touchdown. "I was at a low peak after Renfro's touchdown, but I kept the faith," said Green.

His interception cut Dallas' lead to 21-13. Theismann threw 22 yards to Calvin Muhammad and Mark Moseley kicked a 21-yard field goal for a 23-21 Redskin lead.

White's fourth TD pass, a 43-yarder to Tony Hill, gave Dallas its last lead, but Theismann then directed a fourth-period drive that settled things. John Riggins, troubled all week by a bad back, capped a 111-yard rushing day with a one-yard plunge.

Cardinals 31, Giants 21

Neil Lomax was sacked five times, but he nonetheless found time to shred the New York secondary for 305 yards and three touchdowns. Lomax's third TD throw, a fourth-down toss to Roy Green that covered 35 yards, gave St. Louis a 21-14 lead.

But New York stormed back to tie it on Rob Carpenter's one-yard run.

St. Louis finally got the deciding score on Otis Anderson's 12-yard sweep of left end with 12:17 left in the game. Neil O'Donoghue's 34-yard field goal with 4:54 to play added insurance.

"We're just tickled to be where we are," said St. Louis Coach Jim Hanifan.

"We just played completely different than last time," said Lomax, referring to a 16-10 loss to the Giants earlier in the season. "We just took our time, showed patience, and made it work."

"They did the same thing as they did the first game," said Giants Coach Bill Parcells. "They just did it better."

Steelers 23, Browns 20

Gary Anderson's 34-yard field goal with five seconds to go provided Pittsburgh's margin of victory. But the celebration was tempered by the knowledge the Steelers probably must beat the defending Super Bowl champion Los Angeles Raiders next Sunday to gain a playoff spot.

If Pittsburgh loses, the Cincinnati Bengals can gain a tie for the Central Division title with a victory over the Buffalo Bills. And Cincinnati would then advance to the playoffs because of the NFL's tie-breaker system.

"This is the single most important game for us," Steeler Coach Chuck Noll said in looking ahead to the Raiders. "Everything will be on the line for us."

The Pittsburgh passing combination of quarterback Mark Malone and wide receiver Louis Lipps accounted for a 61-yard score and an 18-yard gain that set up Frank Pollard's short touchdown run.

Cleveland rallied from a 17-6 second-quarter deficit to tie it 20-20 on Paul McDonald's three-yard bootleg run with 8:49 left in the fourth period.

Hanford Dixon's interception of a McDonald pass set the stage for Anderson's winning kick.

Bengals 24, Saints 21

Ken Anderson passed for two touchdowns in his first outing in a month after injuring a shoulder. The Bengals led just 3-0 when Anderson relieved starter Boomer Esiason in the second period. He completed scoring passes of 27 yards to James Brooks and 15 yards to Stanford Jennings for a 17-7 halftime lead.

Reserve Dave Wilson threw three touchdown passes for New Orleans, the last with 49 seconds left in the game to cut Cincinnati's lead to three points.

Dolphins 35, Colts 17

Indianapolis held a 17-7 halftime lead, but it was all Miami — and Marino — after that. The second-year pro from Pittsburgh led Miami to its 13th victory in 15 games with scoring throws of two yards to Nat Moore, two yards to Bruce Hardy, 25 yards to Jimmy Cefalo and seven yards to Mark Clayton.

Marino's 44 TD passes tied the professional football record of 44 set this year by Jim Kelly of the United States Football League's Houston Gamblers.

Dickerson breaks Simpson's record

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Shortly after setting a National Football League single-season rushing record, Los Angeles Rams running back Eric Dickerson already was looking ahead.

Of next Friday's matchup with San Francisco, Dickerson said, "Getting the record won't take anything out of that game for me. There's no way they're going to hold me to 38 yards again."

Dickerson ran for 215 yards Sunday to up his 1984 rushing total to 2,007 yards, rewriting the 11-year-old mark set by O.J. Simpson.

His performance paced the Rams to a 27-16 victory over the Houston Oilers and gave the Rams the opportunity to win an NFC wild-card playoff berth outright with a victory over the 49ers. Even a loss wouldn't necessarily knock Los Angeles out of the NFL's post-season tournament.

The Rams, 10-5, had lost a 33-0 decision to San Francisco in the ninth game of the season, with Dickerson limited to only 38 yards.

"We're looking forward to San Francisco," said Rams' offensive guard Kent Hill. "We felt really embarrassed the last game and we're going to go in there and win."

Dickerson said he and his teammates originally thought he might get the NFL record against the 49ers, commenting, "We had said we wanted to get it in San Francisco on national TV, but we had some big runs and the offensive line was getting upset."

"They said, 'Let's break it today.'"

They came to the sidelines and said, 'You just need five yards, just five yards.' So I said, 'Let's get it.'"

Dickerson carried 27 times, with a nine-yard gain late in the final period putting him past the record of 2,003 yards set by Simpson in a 14-game season. Dickerson left the game after the play.

He said the Oilers' defenders had some words for him during the contest.

"They thought they could get some good shots on me and knock me out," said Dickerson, who also scored on runs of 7 and 6 yards. "They said the line did most of the blocking and that I am just an average back."

"I wanted to prove them wrong. I was going to make it a long day for them."

The Oilers, 3-12, who were within striking distance of the Rams until Dickerson scored in the final quarter, complemented him after the contest.

"I always thought he was great," said Houston quarterback Warren Moon, who completed 19 of 29 throws for 200 yards in the loss. "You've got to contain him or he'll gain 25 or 30 each time."

Oilers Coach Hugh Campbell said, "The guy is great. He earned his yards."

Campbell said having the record set against his club, which is the worst in the league at stopping the run this season, wasn't as disappointing as "losing a game that was in our grasp."

Eric Dickerson (29) scoops up the ball after dropping in on his way for a Los Angeles Rams touchdown Sunday against the Houston Oilers.

Dickerson set the single-season rushing record as the Rams beat the Oilers, 27-16.

Bird, Wilkins do battle as Celtics win

Associated Press

The individual battle between Boston's Larry Bird and Atlanta's Dominique Wilkins was so brilliant that the rest of the players felt like they were taking an instructional course.

"I loved it; the two professors, Professor Bird and Professor Wilkins, taking each other to school," said Atlanta guard Eddie Johnson. Bird outscored Wilkins 48-47, and perhaps fittingly, the Boston Celtics also won Sunday night's game by one point, 128-127, Sunday night.

"Dominique was awesome and I can't say enough about Bird," said Johnson, who had 21 points for the Hawks. "It was two superstars playing to the maximum effort. This was the way the game should be played."

Despite the heroics of Bird and Wilkins, the game was decided at the final buzzer when Kevin McHale tapped in a rebound.

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was Philadelphia 110, New York 94; Seattle 96, Houston 90; Los Angeles Clippers 126, San Antonio 123; and Utah 123, Kansas City 120.

Atlanta, 8-13, led 127-126 and had guard Glenn Rivers at the free-throw line with five seconds remaining. But he missed both shots to give the Celtics a final chance to win.

Bird missed, but McHale's rebound extended the Celtics' unbeaten record at home this season to 10 games and their overall mark to 18-2.

"They are the world champions and we played them even," Atlanta Coach Mike Fratello said. "The fans saw a great individual effort on one side (Bird) and another on the other side (Wilkins), but overall this was a great game for us. We'll be looking at the films for a long time."

The high-scoring Bears were gunned down 84-81 by unbeaten Vanderbilt's Commodores in Waco.

Baylor's Carlos Briggs scooped a game-high 35 points but it wasn't enough as Phil Cox made the clutch

"Cox does things in the clutch that you want all your players to do," said Baylor Coach Jim Haller. "We got some new players their first taste of a close game against a good team."

Texas Christian ran into a toughie, losing 76-74 to Texas-San Antonio although Carven Holcombe had 27 points for the Horned Frogs.

EIGHTH-RANKED SMU blasted Centenary 97-79 behind center Jon Koncak's 16 points to improve its record to 4-0.

"We played pretty good considering we were coming off such an emotional victory over Kentucky," said SMU Coach Dave Bliss.

In other games, the Texas Aggies crushed Pan American 74-53 in Edinburg, Houston knocked off LSU 72-61, Texas Tech lost 58-48 to Iowa in the championship game of the Amana-Hawkeye Classic, and Texas beat Long Beach State 86-62.

Permian, Lee legend grows

Being a writer of games people play is not all fun and games. There comes a time when you have to write the final obituary of a team.

Saturday afternoon in Jones Stadium's visiting lockerroom, I felt like an intruder, much like a reporter would if he was assigned to cover the death of a public figure.

It was a time of deep grief for the Midland Lee Rebels' football team. It was a time that should have been private. But there were questions to ask — tough questions.

Quite frankly, the job stunk at that particular moment. I wouldn't have blamed any of the Lee staff if I had been tossed out on my ear.

But this classy Rebel unit did the best they could at recounting a 15-14 loss to District 4-5A rival Odessa Permian in a quarterfinal game that was being hailed Texas-wide as the state championship. If it turns out not to be for the state championship, it should have been.

It was everything you could ask of one football game. And that's all it was — a football game.

In truth, it was a football game that will be remembered for a long time in West Texas sports lore. Exodus II. The Pay Back Bowl. The Game of the Phantom Touchdown. Mojo Returns. The Pat Young-Dal Watson Trap Special. They will all be remembered.

But the final line is that this rare indeed series between Midland Lee and Odessa Permian grew to greater legendary proportions. The 1985 rematch is already on the lips of the Permian Basin.

These two teams have done more for the promotion of West Texas high school sports than any other single factor. Only H. Ross Perot would fail to see the significance.

Nearly 100,000 fans have witnessed these two teams play in their last four meetings. These two teams have a great respect for each other. If nothing else showed Saturday, that factor was loud and clear when the game was over. To a man, the final verdict was that if Permian is

No. 1, then surely Lee is No. 2.

And it was from the most unlikely source that you begin to realize just what kind of year Lee had. That source is Permian head coach John Wilkins.

Wilkins said following the game, "People just don't realize what kind of job the Lee coaching staff did this year. They lost 55 seniors from that team they had last year and barely skipped a beat. You have to give Lee a lot of credit for that."

Coaches say that kind of thing on a regular basis when they know they will have to play that team again. But somehow, you got the feeling that Wilkins meant what he said because he was so proud of what his kids had accomplished against Lee this year.

People forget that during pre-season predictions, Lee was picked to finish anywhere from fifth to third in 4-5A. Pronosticators were saying that the loss of 55 seniors in one year was too much to overcome. That three returning starters in 22 positions was just too thin. That Lee was too small.

Only eight of the 240-plus Class 5A teams reach the quarterfinals. To do that two years in a row is awesome. Only Converse Judson, Lee and Permian can claim that status.

We said last year that Permian's two defeats did nothing to destroy the Panthers' rich tradition. Now we can say that Lee's two losses to Permian didn't destroy what has become the "New Tradition."

Today, both are alive and well. We owe a lot to Midland Lee and Odessa Permian.

Saturday afternoon was not a Lee obituary. It was the growth of a legend. A legend that both schools can be proud of forever. A legend that should be shared because no one wants to see the end.

Louisiana Tech gives notice at Wendy's Classic

Associated Press

Louisiana Tech turned a few heads while knocking off sixth-ranked Louisville enroute to the team title at the Wendy's Classic last week.

Tech polished off Louisville 73-64 Friday night and then captured the team title with a 59-54 win over host Western Kentucky Saturday night.

"I hope that the writers here will vote for this club as a top 10 team," Western Kentucky Coach Clem Haskins said after the finale. "They're big, strong and balanced. They are one of the great teams in the nation today."

SLC Roundup

The Bulldogs had to fight back second-half charges in both games to come out the winner, holding off a Louisville rally that cut a seven-point halftime lead to just two and turning back a Western rally that trimmed a 46-33 advantage to 53-50 with 1:06 left to play.

"We do so much better against teams that pressure us," Tech Coach Andy Russo said. "That's because we pressure ourselves each day at practice. It's teams that play us soft that we have troubles with."

But Russo added, "You can't take away any win that led to this one (the Louisville victory). It was a great win obviously and I will have to humbly accept it."

Willie Simmons was named the tournament's Most Valuable Player, scoring 34 points, pulling down 13 rebounds and blocking a tournament record 13 shots in the two games.

Simmons scored 20 points and had a record seven blocks against Louisville, taking up the slack as Karl Malone played just 14 minutes due to foul trouble.

"When Karl Malone goes out of there," Russo said, "Willie Simmons goes out of his mind."

Simmons wasn't the only one, guard Wayne Smith had a career-high 24 points against the Cardinals while also being named to the all-tournament team.

But the Bulldogs aren't the only team in the Southland Conference on a roll. Northeast Louisiana has opened up with six straight wins for the first time since the 1965-66 club jumped out to an 8-0 record.

The Indians captured the team title at their own Pacemaker Classic with wins of 95-66 over Northwestern Louisiana and 90-78 over Southern in the finals, Thursday night.

ANSWERS TO WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold: ♠KQ73 ♥95 ♦A4 ♣AKQ83

The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 1 ♠ Pass 1 ♦ Pass 1 ♠ Pass 3 ♣ Pass ?

What do you bid now? A.—You have considerably more than you have shown so far. Slam is a distinct possibility if partner has a heart control, and even a grand slam may be in the offing. For the moment, though, you can do no more than show your key card in partner's suit. Cue-bid three diamonds.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold: ♠A96 ♥5 ♦KQ876 ♣J1052

The bidding has proceeded: North East South West 1 ♠ Pass 1 ♦ Pass 1 ♠ Pass 3 ♣ Pass ?

What do you bid now? A.—The companion hand to the one above. Partner is probing for the right contract by showing the diamond ace, and there is no reason why you should do anything other than cue-bid in return. Three spades is the only action we accept.

Q.3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold: ♠KQJ75 ♥AKJ ♦KQ ♣QJ8

What is your opening bid? A.—You have a balanced hand of 22 points, which is a textbook opening of two no trump. The fact that you have a five-card major suit is no reason to eschew the most descriptive bid available.

Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold: ♠AKJ54 ♥AJ6 ♦762 ♣62

The bidding has proceeded: North East South West 1 ♥ Pass 1 ♠ Pass 1 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now? A.—Obviously you are in the slam zone, but how are you supposed to tell partner about both the quality of your spade suit and your fine trump support? The solution is to delay raising hearts for the moment. Rebid three spades then bid five hearts at your next turn. Partner should get the message that you are making a slam try in hearts with no control in either minor suit.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold: ♠AJ5 ♥762 ♦KJ3 ♣10762

The bidding has proceeded: North East South West 1 ♥ Pass 1 NT Pass 3 ♦ Pass ?

What do you bid now? A.—Despite the fact your support for diamonds is much better than for hearts, you must return partner to his first suit because it is as long, or longer, than his second suit. But three hearts is not enough. You have an absolute maximum no trump that is made even better by the fit in partner's second suit. Jump to four hearts.

Q.6—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold: ♠654 ♥752 ♦J109754 ♣6

The bidding has proceeded: West North East South 1 ♠ Dble Pass 1 ♦ 2 ♣ Dble Pass ?

What action do you take? A.—Partner's action is primarily for penalties. However great your respect for partner's judgment might be, there are still limits to what you should have to pass. To expect partner to produce at least six tricks on defense is a bit too much. For safety reasons, we would pull to two diamonds.

Schroeder says he hopes his experience will help others

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — William Schroeder entered his third week with an artificial heart that was pounding "like a horse" and said that while he once had only 40 days to live, he now looks forward to fishing and going to ball games.

"I'm not here for praise or glory. I'm just here to get well and show people what can be done," Schroeder said Sunday night during his first interview with reporters since he received the Jarvik-7 heart on Nov. 25.

Schroeder, 52, dressed in pajamas and reclining in bed at Humana Hospital Aududon, said the metal-and-plastic heart had given him "a real new purpose in life."

"That purpose is to be with God, and I feel like he was No. 1. He saved me," he said, the heart's mechanical drive whirring loudly nearby.

Breaking into tears, Schroeder kissed his wife, Margaret, and looked at her as he said, "I've got a purpose right here. We've been married 33 years."

He said he felt "super," and no longer as short of breath as he was before the implant.

Schroeder suffered from chronic congestive heart failure and was given only 40 days to live before he decided to undergo the implant. The world's second artificial heart recipient, Schroeder was moved to a private room Friday, and is listed in satisfactory condition.

"With the new heart, I feel like I have 10 years," he said.

Schroeder wept again near the end of the 35-minute interview, when he talked about how he decided to allow doctors to implant the heart.

After discussing it with his family, Schroeder said he was "gung-ho for this thing" and that his only fear was that his diabetes would keep him from healing.

The Jasper, Ind., native said he had adapted well to the new heart and likened himself to the "bionic man" of 1970s television.

"I don't even know it's there," he said. "It's beating like a horse."

Schroeder, who is constantly tethered to a whirring, clicking machine, said he did not see that as a handicap and looked forward to going fishing and to "ball games."

Schroeder said he wants to drive a specially equipped van to carry his 323-pound Utahdrive pumping machine. Under current regulations, he also can for three hours a day use the 11-pound portable Heimes driver.

"You get around, maybe not like you want to," Schroeder said, adding that some handicapped people are worse off than he is.

When asked if he wanted to say anything to the public, Schroeder advised, "If you have a heart problem, you need to take care of it. Don't wait."

When asked if he wanted anything, Schroeder looked up at his wife and smiled. Others in the room laughed and one person said, "You can't have that."

"Since you put it that way, no," Schroeder said.

He said he felt no more pain from the artificial heart operation than he did from open-heart surgery.

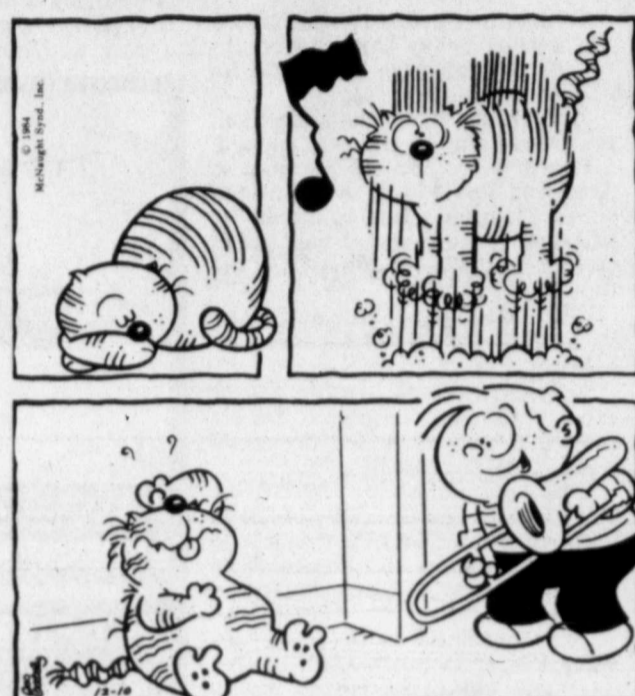

"The only difference is that you got two tubes coming out of your side," he said, referring to the air lines to the pump that would also keep a person from "swimming and things like that."

Collins voted most beautiful

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) — The eyes have it — as do the nose and mouth — according to a panel of 10 experts who chose Joan Collins of "Dynasty" as the most beautiful woman on television.

Jaclyn Smith of "Charles Angels," Linda Evans of "Dynasty" and Veronica Hamel of "Hill Street Blues" followed Miss Collins in order of loveliness, according to the panel of makeup artists, modeling authorities, fashion photographers and beauty editors selected by TV Guide.

In the voting, outlined in the Dec. 15 TV Guide, the 49-year-old Miss Collins outdistanced the others by more than a nose.

"You can tell she absolutely loves to be beautiful — and consequently is," said panelist Michael Maron, celebrity makeup artist and photographer.

Joan Collins

OAK BROOK, Ill. (AP) — John DeLoe's are tried and true, Boy George's are cultured, Martina Navratilova's are "tenn-acious," and the Statue of Liberty's are the most restored.

Their lips were among 12 kissers chosen as the world's "Most Beautiful Lips," according to Richard K. Green, executive vice president of Blistex Inc., the contest sponsor.

Weatherman Willard Scott, of NBC's "Today Show," was picked for the "most weathered" lips in the fifth annual selections, announced today by the company, which makes lip care products.

The "sweetest lips" title went to Chicago Bears football star Walter "Sweetness" Payton, while Britain's Prince Charles, married to Princess Diana, has the "most Di-vine lips."

Hockey great Wayne Gretzky scored as the "most puckered lips," while actor Clint "Dirty Harry" Eastwood has the "most harried lips."

The "most golden lips" award went to Olympic gold medalist Mary Lou Retton, and acerbic comedian Joan Rivers has the "cattiest" lips.

And for the "heartiest lips," the winner was actress Sally Field, who stars in the movie, "Places in the Heart."

MILAN, Italy (AP) — It was a dismal night at the opera, according to Italian critics, who called American soprano Shirley Verrett "pallid" in the lead role in "Carmen," which opened the La Scala season.

"This 'Carmen' opening the La Scala season is sad. Rather, you could say it's oppressive," Rome's Il Tempo newspaper said Sunday.

Milan's Corriere della Sera said of Ms. Verrett's role: "Hers was a pallid Carmen, almost tired."

However, critics sang the praises of tenor Placido Domingo as Don Jose, with Corriere della Sera saying, "in the fourth act he reached the height of his artistic and vocal knowledge."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Veronica Hamel, who usually represents the underprivileged as a public defender on TV's "Hill Street Blues," joined Disney characters and Santa Claus at a Christmas party for 700 children from Skid Row and other poor neighborhoods.

The children, who lunched on cheeseburgers and milk at the Police Academy gym near Dodger Stadium, squealed with delight Saturday when the Disney characters appeared.

REDONDO BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Vince Neil Wharton, lead singer of the heavy-metal rock band Motley Crue, has been freed on bail after being arrested in connection with a car crash that fatally injured a British musician from the "trash-rock" group Hanoi Rocks.

Wharton, 23, whose stage name is Vince Neil, was booked for investigation of driving under the influence and vehicular manslaughter after the Saturday evening accident, said police Sgt. Paul Rossiter.

Wharton was released early Sunday after posting $2,500 bail, said Alex Gayson, a Redondo Beach jailer.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan joined a star-packed Christmas television special, but it was a surprise appearance by a 9-year-old boy that stole the show.

Reagan and his wife, Nancy, were guests of honor Sunday night at the taping of NBC's "Christmas in Washington" special, which was being recorded for broadcast Dec. 16.

The holiday show, taped at the old Pension Building in downtown Washington, was produced for the benefit of the Children's Hospital National Medical Center.

The 70-minute show also included Hal Linden, Nell Carter, Donnie and Marie Osmond and the Osmond brothers, and opera soprano Frederica Von Stade.

At the conclusion of the show, Reagan went on stage and introduced Danny LaBocchetta of Queens, N.Y., who designed this year's Santa Claus postage stamp.

Capitals gain tie with Islanders, set sights on Flyers

Associated Press

The Washington Capitals have finally caught the New York Islanders and have the Philadelphia Flyers in their sights.

With a 4-0 National Hockey League victory over Detroit on Sunday night, the Capitals' seventh win in eight NHL games, Washington moved into a tie with the Islanders in the Patrick Division. The Caps and Islanders each have 31 points, eight fewer than the Flyers.

In other games, Winnipeg stopped Minnesota 4-2, Chicago ripped Toronto 7-2 and Quebec tied Buffalo 4-4.

Washington had been experiencing trouble scoring goals with a man advantage, but got a pair of power-play goals to put away the touring

Red Wings.

"We've been much more demanding in front of the net," said Washington Coach Bryan Murray.

"We've spent more time recently looking for active people to play on a regular basis, and they seem to be jelling," he added. "In the past, we'd become frustrated when things didn't go right and we'd put different people in."

Bobby Carpenter and Scott Stevens converted first-period power-plays into goals as Washington lowered Detroit's road record to 1-11-1. Carpenter connected at 8:53 of the period and Stevens added a rebound shot at 19:32 for a 2-0 bulge.

Doug Jarvis made it 3-0 at 2:52 of the second and Larry Murphy completed the scoring with a goal at 8:16 of the middle stanza.

Bob Mason turned aside 24 shots in posting his first NHL shutout.

Jets 4, North Stars 2

Defenseman Robert Picard got the game-winning goal on a power play late in the second period to spur Winnipeg into third place in the Smythe Division, two points out of second.

"Picard feels at home here," Winnipeg Coach Barry Long said of the off-season acquisition from the Montreal Canadiens. "He is playing the type of hockey that a lot of people thought he could play, and we're happy with him."

session of the Norris Division lead. The Blacks Hawks have 29 points, two more than idle St. Louis.

Savard converted a pass from Wilson into a goal at 10:49 of the first period, then took a pass from Al Secord and scored on a five-foot shot at 11:08. He got his third goal on a power-play 1:38 into the final period.

Nordiques 4, Sabres 4

Coach Scotty Bowman's hopes of establishing a career-victory record was put on hold for another day when Quebec defenseman Mario Marois scored a goal with only 1:04 left in regulation. Bowman had tied Dick Irvin's record of 690 on Saturday, the Sabres' only victory in the last 10 games.

Ballesteros wins $300,000 at MDGC

SUN CITY, South Africa (AP) — Severiano Ballesteros of Spain pocketed golf's richest payoff, $300,000, despite shooting his worst round of the Million-Dollar Golf Challenge.

Ballesteros finished the 72-hole tournament with a 2-over-par 74 Sunday. But it was enough for him to capture golf's biggest payday for the third time.

"I made very few mistakes," said Ballesteros, who won the title last year and in 1981. "I wish I could play this way every week."

The Spaniard finished with a total of 279 after leading the tournament in each of the four rounds. His best round was Saturday when he fired a 65.

Second place and $150,000 went to Nick Faldo of Britain, who shot a 72 Sunday to finish at 285, while Lee Trevino of the United States was third with a 286 total following a closing 69. He received $105,000.

"Seve undoubtedly is the best player in the world when he is on his game," South Africa's Denis Watson said of the winner. "He's got a lot of wonderful moves in his swing. I am trying to imitate some of them."

"I must thank Gary (Player) for designing this course for me," Ballesteros said. "I played safe today. I played to win. It's my normal game. The best thing about winning this tournament is you can come back next year."

Ballesteros, two-time winner of the U.S. Masters and the British Open, required five more shots this year than he needed to win in 1983. But recent heavy rain slowed the roll on the fairways and made for overgrown rough.

"I think this is one of the best golf courses we play on all year," he said. Fourth place and $85,000 went to American Ray Floyd, who finished with a 291 after a final-round 68. He had shot himself out of contention earlier with two 74s and a 75 in the first three rounds.

Fifth was Japan's Isao Aoki, who shot a 78 to finish at 292. He earned $75,000.

Tom Kite of the United States carded a 72 and finished at 293 for $67,000. Countryman Ben Crenshaw had a 75-294 for $60,000.

Host Player finished at 297 after a 74. His four-round total tied him with Australian Greg Norman, who shot a 75 Sunday, and Watson, who ended with a 76. Each pocketed $52,666.

The tournament at the 7,665-yard Gary Player Country Club in this golf and gambling resort is the game's richest, even for the loser. If there had been a single, last-place finisher, he would have won $50,000.

Wilkins, in his third year with the Hawks, hit 18 of 31 field-goal attempts and 11 of 13 free throws to register his career-high point total. Bird was 20-for-32 and 8-for-9 and added 14 rebounds.

"I'm sure Dominique was playing that good because he was playing against Larry," Boston Coach K.C. Jones said. "It was like there were two separate games going on."

"We were pumped up for this game," Wilkins said. "It was a team effort. Both teams ran, never slowed down. Bird makes you work hard. He plays hard and he does so many things."

"We're lucky he didn't score 50 points," Bird said of Wilkins. "I just wanted to win like I do every game. I'd rather win by a big score. We don't need close games to shake us up. We come out to win every game and play hard."

Robert Parish had 21 points, McHale 20, Dennis Johnson 17 and Danny Ainge 15.

Sikma had 24 points and 21 rebounds to help Seattle break away from Houston.

The two teams were tied 40-40 after the first half, but the Super-Sonics outscored the Rockets 32-22 and outrebounded them 16-4 in the third period to take the lead for good.

Houston, which got 19 points from Rodney McCray, played without starting guard John Lucas, who announced his retirement after a mandatory drug test revealed traces of cocaine in his system.

Clippers 126, Spurs 123

Norm Nixon scored 26 points and Derek Smith 24 to lead Los Angeles over San Antonio.

The Clippers had a 100-89 advantage going into the fourth quarter, but the Spurs rallied to make the game close at the end as Mike Mitchell scored 13 of his 25 points in the period.

Johnny Moore had 17 points, 14 assists and 10 rebounds for San Antonio.

Jazz 123, Kings 120

Utah got 38 points from Adrian Dantley, but nearly blew a huge lead before holding on to defeat Kansas City in Las Vegas.

The Jazz led by as many as 24 points in the second quarter and 72-51 at halftime before the Kings cut the deficit to two points late in the game.

Reggie Theus led the Kansas City rally with 23 of his 28 points in the second half. Eddie Johnson added 25 points and Larry Drew 22 for the Kings, while Darrell Griffith and Thurl Bailey added 24 each for the Jazz.

76ers 110, Knicks 94

Philadelphia won its seventh in a row, beating New York to remain two games behind the Celtics in the Atlantic Division.

Moses Malone scored 28 points to lead the 76ers, who forced 17 first-half turnovers en route to taking a 56-47 halftime lead.

Pat Cummings had 20 points to pace the Knicks, who have lost six of seven games without injured forward Bernard King.

Sonics 96, Rockets 90

Tom Chambers scored 16 of his 31 points in the third quarter and Jack

Broncos 16, Chargers 13

Rich Karlis, who missed last-second field goals in Denver losses the previous two weekends, connected on a 28-yarder with 2:08 left to give the Broncos a victory over San Diego.

Karlis and San Diego's Rolf Benirschke each kicked two field goals in the first half before Denver took a 13-6 third-period lead on Sammy Winder's four-yard run. San Diego tied it for the last time after Winder fumbled at the Denver 4-yard line. Ed Luther passed to Buford McGee for the touchdown early in the final period.

Chiefs 34, Seahawks 7

Bill Kenney threw for 312 yards and two touchdowns and Kansas City's aroused secondary intercepted six Dave Kreig passes as the Chiefs atoned for a 45-0 loss to Seattle earlier in the year. One of the thefts was returned 19 yards by linebacker Scott Radecik to give Kansas City a 17-7 lead early in the second quarter.

Kenney made it 24-7 at the half with a 26-yard strike to Henry Marshall.

Packers 20, Bears 14

Rich Campbell, a third-string quarterback pressed into action when Randy Wright was hurt, threw a 43-yard scoring pass to Phil Epps with 34 seconds left as Green Bay hurt Chicago's hopes for the home-field advantage in the playoffs.

Walter Payton was heroic in defeat, rushing for 175 yards and a touchdown and passing two yards to Matt Suhey on a halfback option for another.

Eagles 27, Patriots 17

Quarterback Joe Pisarcik ran for a pair of touchdowns and Wilbert Montgomery dashed 10 yards for another as the Eagles ended playoff aspirations for the Patriots. Pisarcik's 16-yard scramble set up Montgomery's scoring run that gave Philadelphia a 17-10 edge with 54 seconds left in the first half. Pisarcik's three-yard run following a blocked punt killed a Patriot comeback that had reduced the Eagle lead to 20-17.

Buccaneers 23, Falcons 6

James Wilder rushed for 125 yards and a touchdown and became the seventh player in NFL history to account for more than 2,000 offensive yards in a season in helping Tampa Bay to its fifth win. Wilder has 1,441 yards rushing and 625 on pass receptions. Obed Ariri kicked field goals of 30, 36 and 28 yards to ensure Atlanta's ninth-consecutive loss.

The cattle business in Midland got caught up in high fashion Sunday night when Clayton and Modesta Williams put together their first Williams' Cowboy Christmas Classic in the atrium of ClayDesta National Bank.

Cowboys and ranchers already had shed their boots, chaps and outdoor garb and slipped into coal-black shoes and tuxedos. And after all the yipping, yelling, fast talking and auctioning was all over, Dallas fashion designer Jay Jacks brought out his force of hip-swaying models who promenaded, strutted, danced and swirled to the tempo of jazzed-up classics, such as Tchaikovsky's "Nutcracker Suite" and Toreador Song from the opera "Carmen," and other numbers, including George Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue," "Old Black Joe," "Putting on the Ritz" and the theme from television's "Dallas."

The setting could have been a lavish scene from "Giant." But Williams' country flavor and business acumen would have snuffed out any Eastern influence had it crept in.

"We are going to sell some cattle as high as we can — get as much money for them as I can," said Williams, a 52-year-old Midland entrepreneur who's deep into oil and gas, committed to ranching but who reflected, "I guess I'm really a farmer at heart."

He's also probably Texas A&M University's No. "Aggie" who yells "Gig 'em, Aggies!" at most any opportunity.

Sunday night was one. And despite the formality of the tuxedos, cocktail dresses and evening gowns, the atmosphere was casual and country.

THE BLACK-TIE wear matched the deep black of the 19 Brangus heifers and the single bull that grossed $362,000 for Williams' gain. The average sale was $18,100. The top bid was $43,500 for Lot No. 13, the heifer Ms ClayDesta Tremor 419S, by Fall Creek Brangus Co. of Kerrville.

More than just exhibiting the fashion world of Jay Jacks International and even showing off the angular and firm build of the cattle, Williams' intent ultimately was to sell more beef in the marketplaces and to get the Brangus breed well into the commercial world.

"Let's talk about what quality food beef is," Williams said.

Williams has a vested interest in beef. The Williams Brangus, a trendsetter in the cattle industry, is an operation which was started 11 years ago in Alpine. His "Breeding Up To Brangus" program has produced new genetics for the breed, which came out of the Brahman and Angus breeds.

"You're reaching for perfection," he said.

Williams specializes in embryo transplants to produce prime cattle. "One top quality cow can produce 20 calves," said James Fuller, manager of Williams Fort Stockton Ranch. "You transplant at day seven."

Williams is a promoter who makes his work enjoyable. "We're going to have some fun." He flaunts beef.

"The athletes in the Olympics ate double the beef ration that the dietitian had for them and half the fish and half the chicken," Williams said, "because they were active people. And they needed some fuel."

But Williams said the cattle industry has done a "poor job" in promoting beef.

"AND WE'RE HOPING that this occasion will make the cattle business and the beef business more conscious (of promotions)...We've got to market our product...Look at what the orange grove people have done; they're growing and selling more oranges than they ever have before because they've been advertising...They've got a pretty lady to advertise, you know...We're going to try something like that."

Williams, too, tried on something different: a fuchsia — reddish purple — sequined dress coat, designed by Oscar de la Renta. The jacket shined like a torch above his black pants which were tucked inside his cowboy boots.

"I told my wife (to) get me something so I can compete with him (the colorfully-dressed auctioneer, Ruben Reyes of San Antonio). 'I'm laughing at myself when I wear this silly thing.'"

"Really," he said, "we're kind of laughing at ourselves a little bit, having some fun out of it — putting on the dog a little bit."

WILLIAMS, a die-hard Aggie, got plenty of cheers and applause from the second-floor balcony overlooking the cattle, the 450 buyers and guests, the models and the flora-adorned atrium.

The night's bidding reached its pinnacle when a Hook-'em-Horns rancher from The University of Texas made a challenge to Williams. He'd bid higher on the heifer Ms ClayDesta Tremor if Williams would sing "The Eyes of Texas" — the UT song.

"If you just bid and don't buy it," promised Williams, "you'll hear the Aggie War Yell."

Williams sang "Eyes of Texas" and with gusto after the rancher, Granger MacDonald of the Fall Creek Ranch of Kerrville, bought the heifer for $43,500. He was top bidder.

"It may ruin the whole damn sale," Williams lamented. His version of the UT "Eyes of Texas" bled into "I've Been Working on the Railroad" and back to "Eyes of Texas."

Williams auctioned off 19 Brangus heifers and one bull ("All Aggies out there who took animal science know you have to have a bull to have a baby calf.") for his own profit.

Williams auctioned off a heifer, Ms ClayDesta 457-81R, to benefit the National Cattlemen's Association and its campaign to promote beef. Granada Land & Cattle Co. of Marquez paid $25,000 for the sleek "critter."

ANOTHER CHARITY auction was the sale of a string of pearls, donated by Barbara and Gail Nelson of San Jancinto Fine Jewelers.

The $5,500 which the Circle B Ranch of Marble Falls paid for the pearls go to the International Brangus Auxiliary Scholarship Fund.

And Williams, who owns a safari agency, auctioned off an African Safari Hunt to Lone Star Feed Yards of Happy for $18,000. Proceeds go to the Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association.

After the auctioning and dinner came the stylist models who pranced with flair in their wear, which ranged from furs to gowns to silk-like chaps.

Jacks, the 43-year-old designer who grew up as a rancher in Refugio, earned his fashion background in Florence, Italy, and for years has been friends of the Williamses.

"His wife (Modesta) asked me to do it," he said. "She's a very, very dear friend...We're both from ranching families."

"We really and truly, first of all, are known as a high-end market," Jacks said. "The styling is high fashion...and a lot of it is very low-key."

He's a tuned to detail and subtleties.

The night's unorthodox billing was full of fanfare.

"Fashion and cattle in a sense have been brought together this evening because of the cattle ties and land ties...in the families," Jacks said. "We've never done anything quite like this: To promote the beef industry by combining cattle, fashion, jewelry, furs."

THE COWBOY Christmas Classic got "super" and "fantastic" ratings.

"I think it was super," said Van Baucum of Sweetwater. "Claytie has always put on a straight cowboy sale." Baucum said some people get a fixation on what they perceive as Williams' strong ego, but suggested the rancher-oilman is quite personable, down-to-earth and astute.

"You don't work for the man," he said. "You work with him."

Jacks' fashion show got cheers and a standing ovation from the spectators.

"I've been to a lot of style shows," said Jan Cole of Midland, "and this is the best one I've seen. Oscar de la Renta can't hold a candle to his style show."

Vietnam veterans want memorial in Texas

DALLAS (AP) — A fund to raise money to build a memorial to casualties of Vietnam has been established in Texas, where officials say half of the surviving veterans of the Southeast Asian conflict will be living by the end of the century.

After a hard-fought battle, veterans of Vietnam succeeded in getting the National Vietnam Memorial built in Washington, D.C., and to many people, the monument symbolized the end of the most traumatic and divisive event since the Civil War.

"There are a lot of veterans here in Texas who can't make it to Washington to see that monument," said Richard Martratt, who survived 13 months in Vietnam as a Marine mortarman and is now a Dallas architect.

"Each state should honor the contribution of its own people. The veterans of every state would like to have a place of honor, so that what happened is never forgotten. We who were in it, we've all sworn to ourselves that we'll never forget it. We need a place of remembrance," Martratt said.

About one-sixth of the 3 million Americans who fought in Vietnam during the decade of heavy U.S. military involvement there were located on the grounds of the State Fair of Texas. Plans were presented Thursday to a subcommittee of the Dallas Park and Recreation Board.

Currently, an estimated 875,000 Vietnam veterans — one of every four survivors — now live in Texas.

Because of continuing migration to the Sun Belt, the Veterans Administration estimates that by the year 2000 half of the surviving veterans — almost 1.5 million men and women — will be living in Texas.

Martratt, a partner in an architectural firm, said he and his partner, Gary Garmon, have designed a $3 million memorial that would be located on the grounds of the State Fair of Texas. Plans were presented Thursday to a subcommittee of the Dallas Park and Recreation Board.

The memorial's three basic elements — tablets displaying the names of the Texas dead and missing, an eternal flame and a seating area for conversation and meditation — have been designed to harmonize with the scale of Fair Park's buildings and their architecture.

The full seven-member parks board is scheduled to consider the idea Dec. 20.

Police pursue possibility two girls abandoned

WAXAHACHIE, Texas (AP) — Two young pajama-clad girls who were found wandering along a highway in a downtown neighborhood of this North Texas town have been placed in a foster home by authorities.

The girls' pajamas were soiled and their bodies were covered with scratches and sores when a couple saw them in front of their home alongside busy U.S. Highway 287, police said.

"We don't have any idea at present where they came from or why they happened to be out there," Waxahachie Police Lt. Mike Kelso said Sunday.

Police are exploring the possibility that a passing motorist abandoned the two children in this town of 16,000, Kelso said. Officials are also looking into the possibility they wandered away from home, Kelso added.

The older of the two girls was estimated to be 3. The other girl, apparently her younger sister, appears to be about 18 months old, Kelso said.

County child welfare officials placed the two girls into a foster home while the police investigation continued.

Waxahachie residents Allie and Ernestine Renfro said they found the girls about 1:30 p.m. Sunday in front of their house on West Main Street, also known as U.S. 287, several blocks from Interstate 35.

"They were in their pajamas and holding hands, and the little one was dragging her coat behind them," Renfro told The Dallas Morning News.

Man arrested for using credit cards

HOUSTON (AP) — A 21-year-old man was jailed on charges he used credit cards allegedly stolen from a Texas Railroad Commission executive found shot to death in Austin, police said.

Cesar Francisco Rodriguez, 21, was arrested Friday at a Houston shopping mall while attempting to use credit cards taken from Larry Joseph Bourque, 46, who was found slain three days earlier at his Austin apartment, investigators said.

Rodriguez was charged with two counts of credit card abuse and jailed in lieu of $4,000 bond, authorities said. Other charges may be filed.

Toddler is stable

HOUSTON (AP) — A 12-month-old toddler was in stable condition after she fell three stories from an apartment window and landed on her feet, a hospital spokeswoman said.

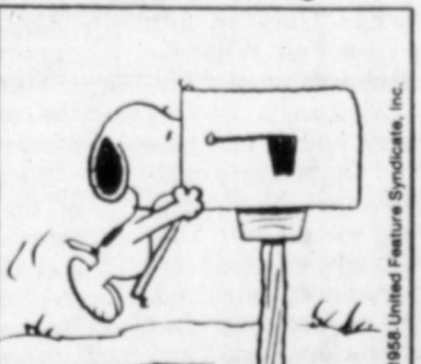

Kathleen Larson was "a little lethargic" but in good shape otherwise following Saturday's accident, said a nursing supervisor at Memorial City General Hospital.

Businessmen form PAC

HOUSTON (AP) — Developer Walter Mischer, investor Jack Trotter and other influential Houston businessmen are forming a political action committee to raise $500,000 annually for city and county campaigns.

The Greater Houston Association will provide financial support only to selected City Council and commissioners court candidates at first, said spokesman Jim Edmonds.

Man shot over ball game

DALLAS (AP) — A 73-year-old man was fatally shot after an apparent argument over the Dallas Cowboys-Washington Redskins and his assailant suffered a heart attack, authorities said.

Ernest Faulkner was shot in the abdomen about 6:45 p.m. Sunday during the argument. He died later at Plano General Hospital.

Police said his assailant, a 78-year-old man, was taken to Parkland Memorial Hospital with an apparent heart attack after the incident.

Dallas police homicide investigator said the incident began when a 70-year-old woman turned off the television in the final minutes of the football game.

Authorities said Faulkner argued with the woman and that she then turned the set back on, but the game was over with the Redskins taking a 30-28 win.

Faulkner and the woman began showing each other and the woman's husband came to her aid. The man took a single-action revolver from his room and when the struggle resumed the pistol discharged.

Police said Faulkner was a lodger in the three-bedroom brick home of the couple.

Furs reported stolen from store

From Staff Reports

The owner of the Swartz women's clothing store at 4410 N. Midkiff Rd. reported a Sunday night burglary in which about $5,200 in furs was taken.

According to police reports, eight fur vests and three mink hats were taken. Burglars apparently pried open a delivery door. The owner told police he found two hangers on the pavement near this entrance about 7:30 p.m. Sunday. Officers were called to the store when an alarm sounded.

Also, a residential burglary was reported to have occurred sometime over the past weekend in which $2,450 was taken from a home in the 5200 block of Brazos. The homeowner told officers he returned from the weekend to find an Akai stereo system, 19-inch RCA color TV and a jewelry box with assorted jewelry gone.

The burglars apparently entered through a window on the north side of the home leading to the living room, according to reports.

Odessa arrested in drug bust

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — A Crime Stopper's tip aided police in the arrest Friday of a man in possession of drugs believed to have been taken in a pharmacy burglary.

John D. Kingston, 19, listing an Odessa address, was in the county jail this morning with bond set at $15,000 for three charges of possession of narcotics. Two additional bonds had not been set for charges of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle in Haskell and an outstanding Ector County warrant for criminal trespassing.

Officers entered Kingston's room at the Sahara Hotel about 5 p.m. Friday after obtaining a search warrant and found a bottle of morphine sulfate, 16 tablets of ritalin, 24 tablets of dilaudid, one bottle of morphine sulfate in liquid form, 204 tablets of morphine, one baggie of marijuana and various syringes and drug paraphernalia.

Officers continue to investigate the location of the pharmacy they suspect was burglarized.

Victorian-style home furnishings regaining popularity

New York Times News Service

NEW YORK — Never was a style so heartily embraced, later to be so much maligned, as the decorating during Queen Victoria's long reign — 1837 to 1901.

It was an era of unabashedly opulent interiors.

In both America and Europe the upper classes and the newly affluent middle class collected and displayed their possessions with abandon. High-Victorian rooms were stuffed with furniture, draped with fabric, hung with a myriad of pictures and ornamented with bibelots.

Victorian furniture includes a host of revival styles: classic, Egyptian, Gothic, Renaissance and rococo. Many pieces were upholstered in velvets or brocades, edged in fringes and tassels and laden with needlepoint pillows. Coziness and comfort, which the 18th century had sorely lacked, were what the Victorians craved.

COZINESS AND COMFORT — and sometimes clutter — are just what is being re-created in many interiors. Patterned walls, elaborate curtain treatments, flowered chintzes and needlepoint rugs have become de rigueur in some decorating circles. "Ten years ago the mere mention of anything Victorian was taboo," said Ronald Grimaldi, president of Rose Cumming, a Manhattan fabric and antiques firm. "Now people can't seem to buy the furniture and accessories fast enough."

One reason for the current Victorian revival is that as 18th-century pieces have become rarer and more expensive, quality 19th-century pieces have emerged at more affordable prices. "The 19th-century look also follows the current craze for the English country style," said Keith Irvine, a principal in the decorating concern of Irvine & Fleming. "People are attracted to the enormous romance and sense of security which Victorian rooms, when carefully executed, can inspire."

While decorators generally borrow elements of Victorian style and blend them with contemporary colors and furnishings, a small group of devoted collectors insist on authenticity. After years of collecting Victoriana, their homes capture the period vividly.

RICHARD REUTLINGER, a San Francisco accountant, has amassed his collection over a quarter of a century. "The Victorians liked an ostentatious show of possessions and that is exactly the look I've created," he said.

In his 1886 San Francisco town house, mantels and tables are laden with pictures, candlesticks and bibelots. Typical of the period, his walls are papered using wide borders, and some ceilings are elaborately stenciled. Reutlinger is not shy about using fabrics in profusion. His crowded dining room mantel is festooned with a double swag of satin and lace.

Today's Victorian revival has inspired the reissue of many 19th-century wallpapers, borders and fabrics. For example, Sanderson, the English concern that specializes in reproducing William Morris fabric and wallpaper designs, has recently opened a New York showroom. And Bradbury & Bradbury of Benicia, Calif., has become well known for its reproductions of flamboyant period wallpapers and borders.

Because Reutlinger began collecting before the Victorian period became popular, he bought many of his pieces at prices that seem bargains today. His most prized possession is an 1870's loveseat upholstered in seven different types of needlework.

"I followed that piece for years," he said. "It has a Renaissance revival frame but the upholstery is so intricate you don't even notice it." He bought it 10 years ago for $600, far less than he would have to pay today.

FRINGES AND TASSELS were essential to Victorian curtain treatments, which hung under valances in deep swags on beds, doorways and windows. This lavish use of fabric is what decorators find so appealing now.

But in some cases, Grimaldi said, "These curtains can make rooms look dark and depressing." In the little semicircular windowed niche of his 1880's Long Island house, Grimaldi has chosen simple transparent muslin curtains.

Designer Sharon Bosworth covered this Chesterfield sofa and English barrel-back wing chair in an oxblood leather and repeated the fabric on the wall with added moldings. Accents are of rose and burgundy.

Victorian neighborhood in LA being restored

New York Times News Service

LOS ANGELES — The tall and growing skyline of downtown Los Angeles is only a short view away, but the immediate scene along Carroll Avenue in Angeleno Heights is Victorian: The 1300 block has the highest concentration of Queen Anne Eastlake Victorian houses in southern California. The neighborhood, developed in the late 1880's, is much as it was at the turn of the century.

The difference between this and the many other old, inner-city neighborhoods with a suburban character near downtown is that the individual houses have been carefully restored and now form a historic enclave, and the block itself has been improved by a group of residents working together, the Carroll Avenue Restoration Foundation.

The foundation first came together in 1975 when four families, who had already started working on their own homes, arranged to move two Victorian houses onto property that risked being developed with an apartment building out of keeping with the street's historic character. The effort was financed with house tours. The more recent projects have been the installation of period street lights and the planting of about 200 trees.

The fourth and current project, to bury unsightly overhead wires, is perhaps the most ambitious and costly, and awaits money expected from the next yearly house tour, held the third weekend in May.

"Originally, each family contributed $350 to start the foundation," says Barbara Thornburg, one of the original residents. "Since 1976, we've made about $200,000 from the tours."

THERE MAY BE two architectural gaffes along this block — both houses built in stucco — and cars seem an anachronism. But otherwise, the street recaptures the feeling of the period without being overrestored or precious. Mrs. Thornburg says, "It's a working neighborhood of working people."

An impressive three-story, 12-room 1886 mansion with high gables and trim resembling architectural lace presides over the corner of Carroll Avenue and East Edgeware Road, and starts the promenade along what is, effectively, a museum of homes.

The house at 1316 Carroll Avenue, built in 1887, perhaps best exemplifies the Eastlake style with its rectangular wooden panels; 1345 Carroll, with its fish-scale shingles and wrought-iron work along its widow's walk, also built in 1887, typifies the Queen Anne. The Sessions house at 1330 Carroll, designed by the California architect Joseph Cather Newcome and built in 1888, is the largest and most elaborate, with spindle work on its two front porches, several changes in shingle patterns and wood siding along its three and a half stories.

IF THESE HOMES have been the background for many movies in recent years, they have been very much the foreground in the lives of their resident owners. Andrew and Barbara Thornburg, for example, bought their home about 10 years ago and have been restoring ever since, spending much of their vacation time.

Flower show has British accent

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "A Touch of Britain — Our Garden Heritage" is the theme of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society's 1985 Philadelphia Flower Show, to be held March 3-10 at the Philadelphia Civic Center.

The main exhibit area will be a carefully researched formal British garden with a fountain, stone sculptures of mythological figures, topiary, ornate Versailles containers holding pear trees and other elements borrowed from the French and arranged in an overall design dating back to the Roman conquest of Great Britain.

Craft successfully tested

Copley News Service

A new hybrid craft, a cross between a helicopter and an airplane, has been successfully flight-tested. The craft is lifted off the ground by rotors on each wing tip, and when a certain speed has been attained the rotors tilt forward and work like standard turbo props on an airplane. A top speed of about 350 mph is predicted for this craft.

Starting ceramics hobby not expensive anymore

Copley News Service

If you never have tried hobby ceramics because of the expense of "just getting started," you can use that excuse no longer. Today there are over 20,000 ceramic studios nationwide who carry greenware (unfired, preformed items) and are willing to let you use their kiln for a small fee. A beginning hobbyist can skip the cost of purchasing a mold and liquefied clay called slip, and proceed right to decorating and painting the greenware.

To begin really is quite simple. After selecting a piece to work on, erase mold marks and seams from the greenware by gently scraping with a ceramic cleaning tool. Smooth down any surface irregularities with a grit cloth or a damp silk cloth. Any clay or dust adhering to the piece can be sponged off before glazing.

There are many ways to decorate greenware. Detailed painting should be painted directly onto the surface using underglaze and sable brushes. Sponges, airbrushes, marbling techniques and stenciling all are suitable techniques for ceramics. If your piece is to be used as a kitchen utensil or a serving piece, lead-free glazes and paints must be used.

Once painted, your piece then can be fired in the studio's kiln. Some people prefer to buy greenware that already has been fired but not stained or glazed. This is called "bisque." It comes ready for decorating with a non-firing glaze or stain. These new glazes are easier to use and allow a beginner's first attempt to be a big success.

Available are large varieties of birds, animals, figurines and other collector's items in both greenware and bisqueware.

For an easy-to-finish custom-made lamp, select a figurine and a lampshade, then wire it with a widely distributed lamp base kit.

New materials and techniques eliminate trial-and-error guesswork and ensure outstanding results. Ceramic workshops and classes offer an opportunity for creativity as well as relaxation and socializing, much like the quilting bees of yesterday.

To find the hobby ceramics store nearest you, consult your local Yellow Pages under "Ceramics — Equipment and Supplies," or write the National Ceramics Manufacturers Association Teachers Certification Program, P.O. Box 601, Curtis Heights, CA 95611.

Like other children, Britain's little princes spend holidays with relatives

Associated Press

Britain's little princes will spend Christmas at Windsor Castle, celebrating the holiday in the way the royal family has done for 150 years.

They also will receive thousands of presents from all over the world but, according to the December issue of Redbook, they only will be allowed to keep those from family, friends and members of the household.

All others will be acknowledged with a letter of thanks and donated to charity.

The holiday will begin for Prince William Arthur Philip Louis, 2, and newborn Prince Henry Charles Albert David (called Harry) with their arrival on the Friday before Christmas at 900-year-old Windsor Castle, where they will be greeted by their grandmother, Queen Elizabeth.

Nursery routine will be followed for the next few days, except that while Harry sleeps, William will visit the Queen Mother's house, the Royal Lodge, and Y Bwthyn Bach, the "Little House," a Welsh cottage one-quarter the size of an actual one, that was given to Queen Elizabeth on her sixth birthday.

Saturday morning, Princess Diana probably will take William to the Waterloo Chamber to see two giant Christmas trees and preparations for the Servants' Ball, which the royal family will attend that night.

Then comes naptime — William in bed for two hours and Harry outdoors in a pram because the royal family believes in fresh air.

After lunch, the royal family goes for a long brisk walk, no matter what the weather.

Nursery tea will consist of milk, boiled egg, sandwiches, cookies and sponge cakes. Prince Charles and the Princess of Wales may stay on for bathtime — the prince considers himself an expert at baby-bathing, while Diana bathes her son to the music of favorite groups such as Abba, Duran Duran or Genesis.

At bedtime, William's parents will read him a story, hear his prayers, and tuck him in with a good night kiss.

During the weekend, Princess Anne and her husband, Capt. Mark Phillips, will arrive with their children, as will princes Edward and Andrew and the royal cousins — Gloucesters and Kents.

On Christmas Eve, the grownups gather in the Green Drawing Room, where Prince Philip hands out presents.

Christmas Day begins in the nursery when the children awake to find the stockings Father Christmas left at the foot of their beds during the night.

DEAR ABBY

Rekindled romance burns too bright

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: We were childhood sweethearts for six years. Many efforts were made by our parents to split up the Lutheran minister's daughter and her Catholic boyfriend, but we fought against it. I was drafted in 1951.

Absence did not make the heart grow fonder. In 1953 she married someone else, and so did I. We both left our hometown and lost track of each other.

Thirty-two years later we met at a class reunion. Both of us were unscathed. We took one look at each other and knew the flame of love was still burning. The problem: We both have been married (happily) for over 30 years and have families, but we can't deny these super strong feelings we have for each other.

At first we thought it was only "curiosity" because we had never had sex during our six-year courtship. But now that we have, it's serious, and is threatening our respective marriages.

We live a thousand miles apart and could see each other only once or twice a year. What has happened to us? And what are we going to do about it? — REKINDLED THE FLAME

DEAR REKINDLED: What has happened to you has happened to many others. Fate presented the perfect opportunity to consummate an unfertilized romance and you yielded.

You say that you are both happily married with families, and ask, "What are we going to do about it?" If you could walk away from your families to start a new life together, you wouldn't be writing to me — you'd be planning to be together regardless of whom you hurt.

Although the flame of love has been rekindled, I'm betting that cool heads will prevail.

DEAR ABBY: We have a problem that I'm sure a lot of people have, but so far I haven't seen it in your column.

Last evening my husband and I went out for dinner. This is a rather small town and we are quite well-known. The two of us were seated at a table for four and had already ordered when a couple we knew came in and spoke to us.

Should we have asked them to join us? We've done so in the past, and we always had to go through that embarrassing check-grabbing scene. One time a lady filled her handbag with crackers, French bread and packets of sugar.

Well, this other couple was given a table directly across the aisle from us, so we chatted back and forth. It was very awkward, and I've felt uncomfortable about it ever since.

Prices are so high these days, we don't always have enough money for four meals, and we don't carry credit cards unless we're traveling. What should we do if this happens again, as I'm sure it will? — A LA CARTE IN ALAMEDA

DEAR A LA CARTE: If a couple whose company you think you'll enjoy comes in, ask them to join you. An invitation to sit with you doesn't necessarily imply that you will pick up their tab. (If they couldn't afford to eat there, they wouldn't be there.) Bon appetit!

DEAR ABBY: I feel foolish asking a question like this because I'm 33 years old and I guess I should know the answer, but I don't.

I have a friend I like a lot, but I don't consider her a really close friend. She's expecting her first baby, and I have a feeling she's going to ask me to be the baby's godmother.

Here's my situation: I am already godmother to two children — my younger sister's and my favorite cousin's. My husband and I both work hard to make ends meet, and buying our two godchildren gifts for their birthdays, Christmas, Easter, etc. is just about all we can handle.

So how can I turn her down without losing her friendship? She's rather pushy and might not take no for an answer. — TWO IS ENOUGH IN TEXAS

DEAR TWO: Tell her that you appreciate the honor and feel flattered, but you think the honor should go to someone closer — perhaps a relative.

And if she won't take no for an answer, haul out the heavy artillery and tell her you already have two godchildren and that's your limit.

Government warnings on DES urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 25,000 American women may have breast cancer because of a drug they took over two decades ago, and a public health activist says the government should be warning thousands more of the potential risk.

Dr. Sidney M. Wolfe, director of the activist Health Research Group, a project of the Ralph Nader group Public Citizen, said the government should help persuade physicians to track down women who received the synthetic hormone diethylstilbestrol, commonly known as DES, in the 1940s and 1950s.

An estimated 2 million women received DES while pregnant to prevent miscarriages, but research in recent years has found the drug to be dangerous. The most recent, an article published in the New England Journal of Medicine last week, indicated that women who took DES have a 41 percent higher risk of contracting breast cancer.

The research also suggested that the increased risk, which does not appear until more than 20 years after exposure, may increase as time passes.

Wolfe, in a letter to Health and Human Services Secretary Margaret Heckler, said the government should act to be certain women who received the substance are notified of their potential risk.

"The government should take all steps possible to ensure immediate notification of all women exposed to DES that they are at significantly greater risk of breast cancer so they can be examined ... more frequently than many might otherwise be inclined to do," Wolfe said.

"All doctors who have ever administered DES to women should search their files to identify all such women and immediately notify them," he said.

The Health and Human Services Department said it had no comment on Wolfe's letter.

Oil minister says OPEC won't boost production

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Saudi Arabia's oil minister, Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, said Sunday that OPEC ministers will not restore the cartel higher production rate when they meet later this month, the Kuwait News Agency reported.

Ministers of Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries cut the 13-nation's overall production from 17.5 million to 16 million barrels of oil a day when they met last October in Geneva.

Yamani said the Dec. 28 OPEC meeting in Geneva "will not be able to raise production to the previous level," because importing countries have increased their own production, the agency reported.

The OPEC ministers had hoped their reduction would end the glut of oil on the world market and force up the price of crude.

Yamani also said that ministers of the 10 Arab OPEC nations, who met in Kuwait on Saturday, had worked out a formula in connection with the contentious issue of charging different prices for different grades of oil. He did not elaborate, saying it would be presented at the Geneva meeting for approval, but reiterated that OPEC would maintain its current benchmark price of $29 a barrel for light Arabian crude.

Meanwhile, the United Arab Emirates' oil minister, Mana Saeed Otaiba, was quoted Sunday as insisting that OPEC would not start an oil price war, because this "would precipitate a world economic crisis."

"OPEC will not voluntarily go into a price war, because we would be the first losers," Otaiba was quoted as saying by the Saudi newspaper al-Sharq al-Awsat.

Canadian labor leader predicts autonomy for automobile union

OTTAWA (AP) — Canada's top labor leader says he believes the United Auto Workers union soon will grant its Canadian branch the autonomy its leaders are demanding.

"I suspect — it's only a guess, I could be wrong — that an accommodation will be made (this) week," said Dennis McDermott, head of Canadian Labor Congress, in an interview broadcast Sunday on "Question Period," an interview program broadcast nationally in Canada.

The UAW's international executive board was scheduled to begin meeting today in Dearborn, Mich., and was to consider the Canadian UAW's autonomy demand this afternoon.

McDermott, who was Canadian director of the UAW from 1968 to 1978, said American labor leaders usually don't resist Canadian demands, but they also don't take the initiative in meeting the needs of Canadian labor.

"It's up to the Canadians to get in there and bore from within and agitate and bring it to their attention," he said. "In my own experience, when that was done, the Americans didn't give us any problems."

The president of the 2 million-member labor federation said efforts by Robert White, the UAW's Canadian director, are a logical continuation to the work McDermott began during his term as UAW director.

White has said he would set up an independent union unless the Canadian UAW is given complete autonomy.

The Canadian move follows friction between White and UAW President Owen Bieber in bargaining between the Canadian union and General Motors Corp. in September and October.

White reportedly rejected pressure from Bieber to follow the bargaining pattern set in the United States. After a two-week strike, the Canadian UAW won wage increases instead of profit-sharing and lump-sum payments negotiated earlier between the union and GM in the United States.

Dollar gains; gold drops to 2-year low

LONDON (AP) — The dollar posted modest gains in early European trading today on the strength of commercial demand and optimism about the American economy. Gold prices eased to their lowest levels since the summer of 1982.

Currency dealers said trading was quiet, but there was strong year-end demand by commercial interests which need dollars for foreign exchange.

They also noted last Friday's news of a fall in America's unemployment rate to 7.2 percent in November and late Thursday's announcement of a $2.2 billion rise in the Federal Reserve's weekly M1 money supply index.

The indices were taken as suggesting a continuing American economic recovery, but a possible future rise in interest rates. Both would boost the dollar's value as an investment.

In Tokyo, where trading ends before Europe's business day begins, the dollar rose to a closing 247.50 yen from Friday's 246.70. Later Monday, in London, the dollar was quoted at 247.40 yen.

Newspaper reveals millions of dollars lost in gasoline-tax thefts

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — "Fly-by-night" gasoline wholesalers are evading federal, state and local gasoline taxes on a huge scale and costing the state of Florida between $40 million and $200 million, a newspaper reported Sunday.

"There is no doubt about it, we are talking in terms of millions upon millions of dollars in gasoline fuel taxes," said Samuel Alexander, director of the Division of Audit for the Department of Revenue.

Fifteen wholesale petroleum companies are currently under investigation, the Fort Lauderdale News and Sun-Sentinel reported, and so far two officials have been accused of siphoning off more than $500,000 in fuel taxes.

"The gasoline tax collection system is like a gentleman's agreement, an honor system," said Harry Solowsky, supervisory agent for the Florida Department of Law Enforcement in Broward County. "Obviously changes need to be made in the system."

Licensed gasoline wholesalers are responsible for collecting from retail service stations 9.7 cents per gallon in state taxes, 9 cents in federal taxes and any additional local tax. Florida's tax collection system relies on reports filed by the wholesalers themselves.

Department of Revenue auditors are reviewing the records of all 500 licensed wholesalers in the state, along with those of some 3,000 unlicensed jobbers.

Florida collects $452 million per year in gasoline taxes, the second-largest revenue producer after the sales tax.

State and federal agencies have coordinated their efforts to fight the tax evasion in Operation Tiger Tail, headed by Joseph Pappadoca of the FDLE, who cited several methods some wholesalers use to cheat the government.

They include reporting fuel actually sold to retailers as having been sold to other wholesalers, and thus tax-exempt, claiming that fuel which has been sold was still part of end-of-the-month inventories; and reporting fuel sold in Broward County as having been sold in lower-tax Palm Beach County.

Investigators said the companies, many registered in Panama, were set up here specifically to exploit the weaknesses of the state gasoline tax collection system.

"We've documented $15 million in losses," Solowsky said. "But we know the bottom-line amount is going to be enormous. The figures are staggering. Right now our focus is on South Florida, but we're talking about a scam that is operating statewide."

Ken Zimmerman, 44, president of Sun Coast Petroleum of West Palm Beach, has been charged with stealing gasoline taxes along with company Vice-President William Welter, 35, officials said. The amount involved was more than $500,000 in gasoline and diesel fuel taxes, police said.

ComputerLand has new 26-year-old president

By DIANE CURTIS
Associated Press Writer

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Barbara Millard is 26 years old, a college dropout and the president of a company that takes in $1.5 billion a year. She is also the first to admit that she would not be where she is if she was not the boss' daughter.

But she would be close, says Ms. Millard, the recently appointed chief operating officer at ComputerLand Inc., a leading retailer of personal computers.

"I'm only what I am, but I'm a lot," she said. "I've done a lot and I've learned a lot and I know a lot. I don't know where I would be (without her father's position), but I'd be far."

While her office was being redone, Ms. Millard met with a reporter in the elegant, Japanese-motif office of her father, William Millard, ComputerLand's founder, chairman and chief executive officer, to discuss her climb in a company that has more than 800 franchised outlets around the world.

She said she has worked for various Millard enterprises since she was 12 — starting with typing, answering phones, making copies. When she dropped out of the University of California after one quarter, she did so with a commitment to her father — and one from him — that business would be her career and that she was abandoning aspirations to be an entertainer.

Even before that decision, Ms. Millard said, she had worked as a sales statistician and office manager at her father's companies.

After she left Berkeley, she was in charge of accounts payable at IMSAI, an earlier Millard computer business that went bankrupt, where she "grew up a lot" as the person responsible for telling creditors they would not be paid.

She then went to the parent company, IMS Associates, as business manager, and, among other things, learned how to read financial statements.

Barbara Millard, 26, is a college dropout and the president of a $1.5 billion company called ComputerLand.

Ms. Millard counts her financial knowledge among her strongest assets, and also points to a "sense of people and a sense of organization" as attributes she brought to ComputerLand.

"I know that if I didn't know what I know about finance, I probably wouldn't be here and I really would consider myself handicapped in terms of managing the overall company," she said.

But in addition, she said, "My father's vision of the company and what he's up to and what we're up to is very much in me."

Ms. Millard acknowledged that she was promoted above others with more experience, but she said it had proved to be a "non-issue" at the company.

From the beginning, she said, it has been necessary to hire older and more experienced employees than herself. "It was tough for me because I thought, 'Oh, I know what we need for this job, but would the person be willing to work for me?' Because at that time, I was really young. I'm young now, but I was really young then."

People responded, not to her age, but "to what I knew and what I was doing," she said.

Another "non-issue," she said, is working with other corporate chiefs who are usually male.

"If I were a man and I was 45, it would only get me in the door. After that, it's 'What can I do, what do I know, what have I done?' It's only a question perhaps initially," she said.

Norsk Hydro interested in Phillips share of Ekofisk

N.Y. Times News Service

LONDON — Norsk Hydro A-S confirmed in Oslo on Sunday that it had told the Phillips Petroleum Co. it was interested in the possibility of acquiring the Phillips share of Ekofisk, the oilfield in the Norwegian sector of the North Sea. The American company operates the field.

The statement, however, said that Norsk Hydro would not disclose the content of the talks. International investment bankers said on Friday that a sale had been discussed in connection with Phillips' effort to fend off a takeover attempt led by T. Boone Pickens, chairman of the Mesa Petroleum Co.

Ekofisk is actually a complex of seven North Sea oilfields. Most are on three blocks in which Phillips has a stake of almost 37 percent.

Grain handling at Ethiopian port surprises donors, experts

ASSAB, Ethiopia (AP) — Freighters laden with grain and other emergency relief supplies unload around the clock at this Red Sea port at a pace that has amazed donors and transport experts.

"We didn't believe it when they said they would remove the bottleneck at Assab, but they surprised us," said a Western ambassador in Addis Ababa, the capital 534 miles to the South.

On Oct. 30, 48,000 tons of grain clogged the port, and a month ago about 10,000 tons were still piled up, according to relief officials.

Ethiopia was under pressure from donors and world public opinion to back up its hefty requests for relief aid by demonstrating it could move what it already had and was able to handle even more.

But the backlog of a month ago was bagged and trucked out of Assab "in a few days — not because of me but because it was necessary," said Joop H.T. Van Essen, a Dutch transport economist and logistics specialist, sent by the Rome-based World Food Program to assess the situation and make recommendations.

In the last month, the rate of grain moved out of port increased from 1,000 and 1,500 tons a day to 3,000, said Van Essen, 54, a former sea captain from Tilburg, the Netherlands. "On Nov. 19, 5,200 tons was off-taken."

"I wouldn't be surprised if Assab has become the most efficient port in East Africa for grain handling," he told The Associated Press. It offloads slightly more than 70 percent of the country's sea freight, with the remainder split between Massawa and the port in neighboring Djibouti.

Assab is all the more important because road transport is difficult out of Massawa, located in strife-torn Eritrea, due to attacks by secessionist guerrillas. And goods arriving at the former French territory of Djibouti can only be shipped to points in Ethiopia by the narrow-gauge railway whose capacity has been limited to the equivalent of 500 tons a day.

"I think they are doing their best, especially in managing the port as Assab," Van Essen said. All three ports have expanded monthly capacity from a total of 87,000 tons to 122,000, of which 88,000 is Assab's share. The combined handling capacity should be ample for 1985, according to a recent World Food Program report.

Measures taken recently to speed up grain handling included mobilizing an extra gang of baggers, dropping midnight curfew restrictions on relief trucks so they can operate round the clock and giving berthing priority to vessels carrying supplies for the 7.7 million famine victims, Van Essen said.

"When there is one kilo (2.2 pounds) of relief goods aboard a ship, she goes in," the Dutch transport specialist went on. "There is absolute priority for relief."

The key to the quickened pace of port activity is the use of four large hoppers and two bagging machines normally reserved for bulk fertilizer shipments, he said.

But imports of fertilizer resume in January, so the World Food Program requested — and got — pledges to supply similar equipment for two other berths to help cope with the 93,000 tons of relief goods expected that month.

The Netherlands is sending the jaw-like machines which pick up and drop the grain into the hoppers, France the bagging machines, Britain 10 dump trucks and the United States a device that sucks up wheat and transfers it to the bagging machines.

There has been a delay because Ethiopia said it preferred a Leyland truck now out production to the Bedford model Britain had offered, since Assab has Leyland spare parts on hand, Van Essen said. Now it's getting the same body dump truck with a different engine and gearbox.

In port when a group of American journalists recently visited was the Scan Venture, a ship which experienced rough sailing getting 233,654 bags of sorghum from Galveston, Texas, to Assab.

The Hong Kong-owned, Liberian-registered freighter ran into hurricane Josephine while heading to Baltimore, Md., and the storm, through water leakage, rendered 1,799 bags "unfit for human consumption." It suffered no other damage.

Also being unloaded was an East German ship, the Mittenwalde, carrying relief supplies including 35 trucks, rice, powdered eggs, milk powder, tents, sugar, noodles and canned beans and peas.

Last year, the same freighter took aboard at Assab Ethiopian oil seeds — "and it wasn't as efficient an operation as our offloading now," commented the Mittenwalde's captain, Ulrich Liedmann, 38, of Rostok, East Germany.

Police arrest student demonstrators protesting nuclear aircraft carrier

YOKOSUKA, Japan (AP) — Police arrested 13 students among more than 400 demonstrators protesting the arrival today of the nuclear-powered aircraft carrier USS Carl Vinson at the U.S. naval base.

The demonstrators contended that the giant warship was secretly carrying nuclear arms into Japanese territory in violation of official policy.

Police reported no violence, but said the students were arrested for disorderly behavior outside the gates of the base. Three managed to scale a fence and get inside, they said.

About 390 other protesters sailed from shore in 24 chartered boats, waving banners and chanting anti-U.S. and anti-nuclear slogans. They were kept at a distance by a phalanx of more than 20 police and Maritime Safety Agency boats as the 81,600-ton flattop arrived at 8:31 a.m., 30 minutes ahead of schedule.

Yokosuka police said the seagoing protesters included representatives of the Japan Socialist Party, the Japan Communist Party, trade unions and anti-nuclear and pacifist groups.

It was a far smaller demonstration than on Sunday, when some 12,000 unionists and leftists staged marches opposing the first-ever visit by the Vinson, the newest and among the largest of American carriers, to Yokosuka.

The port, 28 miles south of Tokyo, is the base of the U.S. 7th Fleet.

The USS Vinson will remain through Wednesday to provide a time of rest and recreation for its 5,600 crew members and those of its accompanying battle group, following naval exercises in the western Pacific.

Rear Adm. Walter T. Piotti Jr., the battle group commander, told a shipboard news conference that the visit was "a routine port call of friendship." He said "no significance should be taken from the Carl Vinson's visit at this time."

In Tokyo, Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone told Japanese reporters he believed the Vinson was not carrying nuclear weapons "because the visit is based on the trust provided by the U.S.-Japan Security Treaty." That accord requires that the United States consult with Japan before bringing nuclear weapons into Japanese territory.

Japan by law may not maintain or produce nuclear arms, or introduce them into the country. The Carl Vinson is capable of carrying nuclear weapons, but it is U.S. policy not to comment on which vessels are actually equipped.

Few can read new book

LONDON (AP) — A novel that only 300 of Britain's 56 million people can read has been written by 82-year-old retired schoolmaster, Melville Bennetto.

The new book is in Cornish, the almost extinct language of the rocky, southwest England county of Cornwall that juts into the Atlantic Ocean.

Called "The Bloody Crown of Kelyta," the story is a romantic thriller which includes an assassination attempt on Prince Charles, who holds the title Duke of Cornwall.

"With so few potential readers I'm not expecting to make my fortune," the author told London's Daily Telegraph today.

Bennetto said he can trace his Cornish ancestry to the 16th century. He began studying the language when he retired in 1965 and the novel took him 18 months to write.

Cornish is one of the Celtic family of languages and is akin to Welsh and to Breton, which is spoken in northwest France.

Filipinos march against alleged human rights abuses by military

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Riot troops, firing water jets, turned back about 10,000 people who tried to march on the armed forces headquarters in suburban Quezon City today to protest alleged violations of human rights by the military.

More than 50,000 other demonstrators marched in two provincial cities as foes of President Ferdinand E. Marcos observed Human Rights Day by denouncing what they called his "reign of terror" and calling for an end to U.S. support for his regime.

In the central Philippine city of Bacolod, 300 miles southeast of Manila, a five-day march by several thousand rural residents grew to 50,000 after city-dwellers joined them as they entered the city.

At a rally in a Bacolod Plaza, the protesters demanded the ouster of "the U.S.-backed Marcos regime."

About 5,000 others marched in Iloilo city, 280 miles southeast of Manila.

In Quezon City, no one was reported hurt and no arrests were made when a firetruck standing behind some 500 riot troopers shot streams of water at students, churchmen and professionals marching toward Camp Aguinaldo, the general military headquarters.

Some protesters replied by throwing rocks and bottles at police.

The marchers regrouped with linked arms, but police kept up the blockade of the main avenue leading to the military camp and the protesters turned around at an intersection to disperse, jeering at the policemen.

The day's protest included the start of a two-day lawyers' strike in metropolitan Manila and the provinces by some lawyers' groups which defend political prisoners in subversion trials. The lawyers are protesting the judiciary's "subservience" to Marcos and alleged military abuses, including torture and secret killings of political prisoners.

Juarez mayor fasts in response to suspected electoral fraud

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — Juarez Mayor Francisco Barrio Terrazas says he will "endure whatever is necessary" in his protest of alleged electoral fraud by the Chihuahua State House of Representatives.

Barrio today entered the second day of a hunger strike he launched in response to Thursday's voiding of a 1983 Juarez state representative election.

If left intact, the election would have given Barrio's conservative opposition National Action Party, known by its Spanish initials as PAN, a crucial one-third voting block in the 14-member House of Representatives.

Five PAN state representative candidates were declared winners in July 1983 as part of an unprecedented PAN electoral sweep that extended to mayoral races in Juarez and Chihuahua City.

The state government allowed only four of the five PAN candidates to serve in this year's Chihuahua state legislature.

Calling that decision "electoral fraud" by Mexico's dominant Institutional Revolutionary Party, or PRI, Barrio has decided to abstain from all food, drinking water only, in protest.

The 34-year-old mayor began his fast at 3 p.m. CST Sunday.

At a downtown Juarez rally attended by nearly 3,000 people, Barrio said Sunday he would "endure whatever is necessary" during his protest.

Barrio, a certified public accountant, received permission on Friday from his 12-member city council for a 15-day leave of absence while he fasts. Vice-mayor Miguel Corral Olivares will govern in his absence.

Barrio's mayoral victory last year broke a 54-year stranglehold that PRI had in Juarez. He said he will continue his hunger strike until 44,000 signatures are collected in support of Juan Saldana, the PAN state representative candidate not allowed to serve in the legislature. Saldana won the 1983 election by 44,000 votes.

At the Plaza de Armas in downtown Juarez, four booths were set up at which people could sign petitions. On a nearby wall, a large tote board hung, displaying the current number of signatures received.

By 6 p.m. CST Sunday, officials said, 19,000 signatures had been collected.

Asked if he thought that meant the goal of 44,000 would be reached quickly, Barrio said, "whatever."

He also said his fast, considered drastic action by some, was a sign of "what will happen if they try to defraud us again."

After his 1983 victory, Juarez District 4 candidate Saldana was not allowed to hold office pending a ruling on his disputed election by a three-member committee of PRI state representatives.

On Thursday, 17 months after the election, the panel voided the election on grounds that 46 of the 260 voting booths in Saldana's district had been relocated on election day.

"They should have done it before this," Barrio said Friday of the committee's ruling. "They didn't want to annul the election before this to avoid angering the people of Juarez."

Barrio said there was no way to appeal the representatives' action.

But he said he wanted to make sure Juarez citizens were aware of what happened.

Sunday's rally was attended by several PAN officials, including Chihuahua state party leader Guillermo Prieto Lujan, who said PRI members have "doctorates in electoral fraud."

Barrio's family also attended the hour-long rally.

The mayor's wife, Hortensia Olivares de Barrio, said she supported her husband's fast, adding she was not worried about his health.

"I have faith in God that the pueblo will respond," she said.

Juarez Mayor Francisco Barrio Terrazas speaks at a downtown rally Sunday before beginning a hunger strike to protest alleged electoral fraud by the Chihuahua state house of representatives.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Saudi minister says OPEC won't restore higher production rates

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Saudi Arabia's oil minister, Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, says OPEC ministers will not restore the cartel's higher production rate when they meet later this month, the Kuwait News Agency reported.

Ministers of Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries cut the 13-nation's overall production from 17.5 million to 16 million barrels of oil a day when they met last October in Geneva.

Yamani was quoted as saying Sunday the Dec. 28 OPEC meeting in Geneva "will not be able to raise production to the previous level," because importing countries have increased their own production, the agency reported.

The OPEC ministers had hoped their reduction would end the glut of oil on the world market and force up the price of crude.

Shells fired at NATO facility

OEIRAS, Portugal (AP) — Three 60mm mortar shells fired at a NATO communications post in this Lisbon suburb caused only slight damage to a parked car, base officials said. There were no injuries.

A Portuguese extremist group, the Popular Forces of April 25th, claimed responsibility hours after the attack early Sunday. The group had claimed responsibility for a similar attack on the U.S. Embassy two weeks ago.

The base information officer, Eric Capela of the Portuguese air force, told The Associated Press three rounds hit the facility at 2:30 a.m. Two fell away from the building complex at the base and the third landed in the base parking lot, shattering the windows of a car, he said.

The base is a communications post for NATO's southern Atlantic operating area. Just over 200 Portuguese, British and U.S. servicemen are stationed at the site 10 miles west of Lisbon.

Stores defy Sunday shopping ban

LONDON (AP) — Two big London stores drew huge crowds when they opened for business in defiance of a law banning Sunday shopping, but one was forced to evacuate shoppers because of a bomb threat hoax.

Habitat, the home furnishings chain, and Heals, which sells furnishings fabrics, took the action to pressure the government into acting on an official report recommending an end to the ban.

The storeworkers' union mounted peaceful pickets, protesting that the move was illegal. But Scotland Yard said it did not know of any plans to prosecute, and no attempt was made to force the stores to close.

Heals store on Tottenham Court Road in London's West End was the target of the bomb threat.

Political party's offices bombed

PARIS (AP) — An explosion at the headquarters of the the conservative Rally for the Republic Party caused considerable damage but no injuries.

Police said a bomb damaged a half-dozen cars in the vicinity Sunday, blew out windows of nearby buildings and badly damaged a room in the party's offices, not far from a wing of the National Assembly building.

No one immediately claimed responsibility for the blast. Police specialists were trying to determine the type of explosive and the system used to set off the charge.

The party, RPR, is the main opposition group to France's Socialist government. RPR Secretary General Jacques Toubon said the bombing was "part of the general climate of insecurity...in our country."
