U.S. priest deported from Chile

MIAMI (AP) A crusading Catholic priest from Chicago who was deported from Chile after his fifth arrest for protesting alleged torture of political prisoners arrived here today and was greeted by a Hispanic crowd who shouted. Com munist" and "Get out"

The Rev. Denis O'Mara, 48, arrived early today at Miami International Airport on an Air Jamaica flight after his expulsion Thursday from Chile, where he, a Chilean nun and two other human rights activists had been arrested last weekend

O'Mara said he had not been mistreated by Chilean police after his arrest for handing out Christmas cards wishing Chileans a New Year without torturers."

"There is more torture (in Chile) now than there was a year ago," O'Mara said to reporters at the Miami airport, adding that his deportation showed that "the Chilean government has committed itself to torture"

He said he was "pessimistic" about the political situation in Chile, where he had been living for six years.

Upon overhearing O Mara's comments to reporters, some 50 people mostly Hispanics awaiting other arrivals, followed him out of the waiting lounge and started shouting Communist!" and "Get out, get out"

O'Mara, visibly upset by the crowd's reaction, said, "I've protested human rights abuse in Afghanistan and Cuba, too"

He was met at the airport by several people, including a priest who refused to identify himself. O'Mara said he had not yet talked to anyone in the Catholic church hierarchy in the United States.

He said he would continue travel to Chicago but did not know what his plans were after that Before O'Mara left Chile a spokesman for Gen Augusto Pinochet's government. Francisco Cuadra, accused him of taking part in political activities." Since imposing a state of siege Nov. 6 to combat growing unrest, the government has decreed a law barring foreigners from intervening in internal politics.

The expulsion appeared to be a warning to more than 600 foreign priests in Chile most of them working in politically volatile slum districts

During a stopover in Lima. Peru. O Mara called his ouster "an unjust act, and said he had been upholding the Chilean Roman Catholic bishops position of opposing torture.

Economic gauge makes most gain in nine months

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's main economic forecasting gauge jumped 13 percent in November, the biggest gain in nine months, as various business barometers offered new evidence that a four-month slowdown is ending, the Commerce Department reported today

The sharp increase in the Index of Leading Economic Indicators followed a revised 0.5 percent drop in October

Before November, the index had fallen in three of the last five months — something that had not occurred since the recession year of 1981.

The declines had spurred growing concern that a new recession might be imminent. Overall growth, as measured by the gross national product, dipped to an anemic 16 percent from July through September — far below rates of 10.1 percent and 71 percent turned in during the first and second quarters this year.

However, a variety of economic statistics have pointed to renewed strength last month. Unemployment fell sharply and orders for manufactured durable goods posted their biggest gain in almost four years.

Despite the revival in the domestic economy, the country is still suffering from huge trade deficits.

In a new report today, the Commerce Department and the trade deficit rose to $9.9 billion in November, up 7.6 percent from the October level of $9.2 billion

The increase stemmed from a 27 percent rise in imports and a slight 0.1 percent dip in exports. For the first 11 months of the year, the country has posted a trade deficit of $115.4 billion, virutally guaranteeing that the total deficit will almost dou-

The Commerce Department's Index of Leading Indicators is a compilation of 12 forward-pointing reconomic measurements.

The increase for November was broad based with nine indicators

contributing to the gain

The biggest boost came from an increase in building permits during November. Other positive factors in order of their influence were a gain in the money supply, an increase in plant and equipment orders, a rise in sensitive materials prices, gains in net business formation and the length of the average workweek, a drop in initial claims for unemployment insurance, a rise in stock prices and in new manufacturers orders for consumer goods.

Two indicators which detracted from the gain were a change in the growth of credit and in the time it takes companies to fill orders

One measurement, business inventories — was not available when the report was compiled

The actual index in November rose to 166 6 of its 1967 base, compared to a level of 164.5 percent in October

The gain of 1.3 percent was the best since a February increase of 1.5 percent. Following that gain, the economy posted some of its best growth of the current recovery.

However, analysts cautioned about reading too much into the latest increase

It would be a mistake to get carried away and say things will really bounce back next year." Michael Evans head of Evans Economics, a Washington forecasting firm, said in advance of today's report. "This is just telling us things are returning to normal."

The government reported last week that overall economic growth bounced back somewhat to a rate of 2.8 percent for the final three months of this year.

Most analysts expect a further strengthening early next year with many predicting growth rates between 3 percent and 4 percent for all of 1985

While that would be below the 6.7 percent estimated for this year, it would still be strong enough to keep unemployment from rising.

Regean may propose broader freeze on Medicare payments

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Reagan says he may propose a broader freeze on Medicare payments for physician and hospital treatment of the nation's 30 million elderly and disabled Social Security beneficiaries

In a brief exchange with reporters before leaving for his California vacation, Reagan acknowledged Thursday that the plan was under consideration

Health care industry groups said

Health care industry groups said the plan could lower the quality of care accorded the aged John J Coury Jr., chairman of the American Medical Association's board of trustees, said the administration was showing "total disregard for the elderly."

Reagan said an extended Medicare freeze is "something we're talk ing about, as part of the whole budget process, the deficit process."

Without more details regarding President Reagan's proposal to extend a freeze on Medicare payments, officials at Midland Memorial Hospital are adopting a "wait and see" attitude before determining the possible consequences on local Medicare payments.

The latest proposal stems from the Deficit Reduction Act of 1984, which was enacted in July The law imposed a 15-month freeze on the amounts Medicare will pay for covered expenses. Singling out Medicare or hospitals for disproportionate cuts, however, strikes us as unfair," he said.

"We fear that further limits on Medicare payments to hospitals will make it increasingingly difficult for hospitals to deliver the high-quality care that beneficiaries have come to expect," Owen said.

Psychics strike out in '84 predictions, skeptic says

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — California hasn't slipped into the ocean. No lightning bolt has struck Mr. T. And Sen. Edward M. Kennedy has yet to elope to Europe with his secretary.

None of these non-happenings surprised Robert Sheaffer, a skeptic who says the nation's psychics generally struck out in this year's spiritual game with dozens of predictions that haven't come true.

"It never ceases to amuse me some of predictions that are made — and how short people's memories are," said Sheaffer, a member of the Bay Area Skeptics, a group that since 1962 has traced the track records of psychics' annual prognostications.

Presuming the final four days of 1964 don't prove the seers correct after all, this year's predictions were dismal, but no worse than other years, Sheaffer said Thursday. "1963 was quite terrible, too. This kind of thing happens every year."
For example, Jeanne Dixon of Fidel Castro's agents would take over two small Latin American countries, that drug scandals would leave the "outcome of the Olympic games in doubt" and that Richard Burton was "very likely" to step back into Elizabeth Taylor's life.

"She somehow failed to predict Burton's death." Sheaffer said

"Some psychics are experts at being vague," Sheaffer said. "Jeanne Dixon is the best of these. She might say, 'Nancy Reagan is entering a time of great crisis.' That's a great prediction because it says nothing. It's bound to be true."

Dallas psychic John Catchings predicted Kennedy would elope; Miami psychic Micki Dahne predicted that Mr. T would be struck by lightning attracted to his gold jewelry; and local psychic Barbara Mousalam foresaw an assassifiation attempt

"People say, 'What about the serious psychics?' Well, these are the serious psychics," said Sheaffer, adding that psychics use publicity from their annual predictions to attract customers for private readings that cost as much as $300.

ings that cost as much as $300.

But even Sheaffer admits the tellers of the future occasionally were on the mark.

For example, Ms. Mousalam predicted a woman would run for vice president on the Democratic ticket. However, journalist Jack Anderson made the same prediction in a Parade magazine article, he said.

"Most people can do as well by guessing. And a lot of the predictions could be made by anyone who reads the newspaper," Sheaffer said.

The Rev. Woods Mattingley,

The Rev. Woods Mattingley, leader of The Seeker's Quest Ministry in San Jose, was responsible for what Sheaffer called the most dramatic prediction of 1984; that the California coast would drop into the ocean.

On Thursday, Mattingley said he backed away from that prediction this year but was convinced it would happen "before the year 2000."

"There will be a geological distur-

"There will be a geological disturbance along the Southern California coast that will lead to a very large earthquake or innundation by the Pacific Ocean or both." he said. "The

After he sensed the disaster would

After he sensed the disaster would occur, Mattingley said, he turned to prayer.

"I think the power of prayer changes things," he said. "When I get a negative forecast, I apply prayer. I see it make a difference in people's personal lives, so why can't we apply it to the planet and expect to see it work there?"

No matter the record, polls show show 50 percent to 75 percent of the public believes psychics can see the future, Sheaffer said.

"For many people, this is a kind of substitute religion," he said. "For other people, they've simply seen and heard it so many times, and they've never heard it effectively challenged. The skeptics are just now starting to get organized."

Murderer put to death; Family witnesses execution

wink to the nun who helped him through his last hours, a cocky Robert Lee Willie went to his death in the electric chair today for raping and murdering an 18-year-old woman on the night before she was to join the Army

Elizabeth and Vernon Harvey, the mother and stepfather of the victim, watched intently but showed no emotion as Willie was strapped into the electric chair and was jolted by four alternating surges of 2,000 and 500 volts.

Willie, 26, winked at Sister Helen Prejean, his spiritual adviser and a death penalty opponent, but avoided eye contact with the seven other witnesses in the death chamber, the Harvevs.

He was pronounced dead at 12:15 a.m. by Dr. Alfred Gould, said C. Paul Phelps, Secretary of the Department of Public Safety and Corrections.

"I would just like to say Mr. and Mrs. Harvey that I hope you get some relief from my death," Willie said in a statement 12 minutes before his death. "Killing people is wrong. That's why you've put me to death. It makes no difference whether it's citizens, countries or governments. Killing is wrong.

During trials and interviews Willie had expressed no remorse and said he had "lived a good life."

When Gould, coroner for West Feliciana Parish, pulled back Willie's white sweat shirt to check his pulse, he revealed tattoos of a woman and of the Grim Reaper carrying a knife and a burning hourglass.

"I'm sorry every victim doesn't have the opportunity I had to see the perpetrator's sentence carried out," Harvey said after leaving the Louisiana State Penitentiary. "I wish everyone could have the same satisfaction.

Lizabeth Harvey joined a group of pro-death penalty demonstrators at the prison gates, where a group of seven nuns also had gathered to protest the execution.

Harvey and his friends were laughing after the execution. Asked if he were happy that it was over, he responded, "You want to dance?

Sister Helen said, "He died sorry for what happened.'

Willie dined on a last meal of fried fish, oysters, shrimp, french fried potatoes and a salad, said Warden Frank Blackburn.

He was the 32nd person executed in the United States and the sixth in Louisiana since the Supreme Court allowed states to reinstate the death penalty in 1976.

Willie and Joseph J. Vaccaro testified during the trial that they were "loaded" when they saw Miss Hathaway walking on the side of a road and picked her up. She was walking home from a farewell party at a Mandeville disco.

They said they blindfolded her, raped her in the back seat of the car and drove to a remote area. Willie and Vaccaro each blamed the other for inflicting the 17 stab wounds that killed her.

Vaccaro was sentenced to life in prison. Gov. Edwin Edwards turned down Willie's requests for a PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) - A man who faces trial next year in a $500,000 Seattle armored car robbery that authorities say was intended to finance a white supremacist organization also was linked to a $3.6 million northern California heist, an FBI agent says.

Denver D. Parmenter, 32, who was arrested Dec. 18 in connection with the April 23 Seattle robbery, was placed at the scene of the July robbery in Ukiah, Calif., by an informant, FBI agent Norman D. Stephenson testified Thursday.

Parmenter also was charged Thursday during the pre-trial hearing with possessing a weapon without a serial number.

Times Square building may be demolished

NEW YORK (AP) — Officials say the countdown to New Year's Day will continue to be capped by the dropping ball in Times Square, even though there's a chance the building it falls from will be demolished.

The city Board of Estimate has approved plans for a redevelopment of Times Square, but has left the decision on the former Times Tower to a committee that will consider options ranging from renovation to demolition, said Urban Development

Corp. spokeswoman Catie Marshall. In any case, she said, there will "still be a ball falling" in Times Square each New Year's Eve, though no one knows where the sphere will be perched.

Test flights planned over national park

New York Times News Service

HELENA, Mont. — Plans by the Air Force to test guidance systems on B-52 bombers in low flights over Glacier National Park have drawn criticism from park officials, members of Congress and several environmental groups.

According to Maj. David MacNamee, a spokesman for the Strategic Air Command, the bombers would fly over the park in western Montana at altitudes about 2,000 feet.

Robert Haraden, superintendent of the park, said the proposed flight path was over a large portion of the Going-to-the-Sun Highway, which winds 50 miles through the park's mountains and is one of its major tourist attractions.

"Our concern is invasion of the solitude of the park," Haraden said. He criticized the Air Force for not notifying park officials about the proposed test flights. He said he found out about the plans when he happened to see a letter written to another federal agency.

"I'm not sure a lot of people will notice the flights," MacNamee said. He said the plans called for one plane to fly over the park once a month for two years.

The park superintendent said, however, that the flights would have a serious effect on the park. "Even at 2,000 feet a B-52 bomber is going to invade the wilderness solitude," he said. Park officials are also concerned about the possible effect of the flights on wildlife, especially grizzly bears.

grizzly bears.

By themselves, Haraden said, the planned flights might not appear to be a serious threat to the park, "but they are in addition to sneak helicopter flights, and sonic booms from oil exploration..."

Rep. Pat Williams, D-Mont., said the flights would be "completely disruptive to tourism."

WEATHER SUMMARY

The National Weather Service forecasts snow for Saturday for the Northwest and northern Plains and showers from east Texas to the Great Lakes and Northeast.

Rain, cooler temperatures to be expected for weekend

Rain and cooler temperatures are in the forecast for tonight and Saturday as the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport forecasts a 20 percent chance of showers or thunderstorms tonight. Lows in the lower 40s will warm to highs in the lower 60s Saturday. Winds from the south at 10 to 15 mph tonight will shift to the west to northwest Saturday at Thursday's high of 63 was 12 degrees below the record set in 1970. This morning's low was 40 degrees above the record set in 1983.

STATE

Patchy, light rain and showers developed over a wide area of Texas today with mostly cloudy skies and unseasonably warm temperatures, and forecasters predicted the precipitation and warming trend would continue.

The National Weather Service said an intensifying storm over the Central Rockies and a high-pressure ridge east of Texas continued to pump Gulf moisture northward into the state on strong breezes.

Winds were generally southerly at 15 to 25 mph, and higher gusts

Low cloudiness predominated statewide, with precipitation falling in Southeast Texas, the plains, the Trans Pecos region and portions of South

Early-morning temperatures were unseasonably warm, ranging from the low to mid 60s to a few lower 70s in South Texas. Readings west of the Pecos and over the Panhandle remained in the mid 50s.

NATION

Freezing rain, fog and snow hit much of the nation today, while North Dakota had numbing cold with a wind-chill factor as low as 50 degrees below zero and floods threatened parts of Arizona and New Mexico. Freezing rain was widespread over Rhode Island, Connecticut, Massachusetts and southern New York. Freezing rain combined with fog to prompt travelers' warnings in parts of the Dakotas, northern Minnesota and eastern upper Michigan. The rain was expected to change to snow in extreme southeastern North Dakota, with accumulations of up to 3 inches.

Fog and snow combined in the mountains of southern California and snow continued in northwestern Montana, where several inches fell over-

Officer: Superiors knew about crime

TORUN, Poland (AP) — The trial of four secret police officers charged in the killing of a pro-Solidarity priest resumed today with one of the defendants continuing testimony about alleged involvement in the crime by his superiors.

A Polish radio report said Lt. Leszek Pekala returned to the witness stand as the trial entered its second Pekala testified Thursday that he was told he had "the agreement of his superiors" to kidnap the priest, the Rev. Jerzy Popieluszko, and would be protected even in the event of the priest's death. The Oct. 19 killing of Popieluszko, a staunch defender of the outlawed independent trade union Solidarity, shocked Poland's predominantly Roman Catholic population.

The impact of the priest's death was so severe that it led Communist authorities to take the unprecedented step of placing secret police National Weather Service NOAA, U.S. Dept. of Commerce officers on trial for the crime. The official Communist Party newspaper Trybuna Ludu commented today that the trial indicated the authorities' determination to reveal all the circumstances of the priest's killing.

The trial "demonstrates that every Polish citizen will answer for his misdeeds before an independent court if he...commits a crime, because there is only one measure of justice and accountability for crimes which incur even the death penalty," Trybuna Ludu said.
During his testimony Thursday,

Pekala was asked to name the "superiors" and he initially said he could not. Later, however, he testified that on several occasions one of the

The indictment - which took 90 minutes to read aloud - charged that Piotrowski, Chmielewski and

Polish authorities issued six passes Thursday to the trial to Western correspondents but did not grant one to The Associated Press, citing a lack of space. Correspondents who attended the trial provided the AP with their notes and described the proceedings in the courtroom.

The trial of the secret police officers is unprecedented in this Communist country. Observers believe the proceedings in this northern Polish city could help determine whether there are any grounds for official claims that the priest's killing was a political provocation intended to undermine support for Polish leader Gen. Wojciech Jaru-

Some Poles speculate that hardline elements in the Communist Party ordered the priest slain in the hope his death would cause public disturbances and force Jaruzelski to adopt tougher policies toward politic cal opponents and outspoken priests.

According to the indictment, Pio trowski said during the investigation that "he took advantage of the support of his superiors" to carry out, the attack on Popieluszko, and that; Pietruszka "mentioned frequently in their talks that there was a need to stop the priest's activities.'

If convicted, the defendants face a minimum penalty of eight years in prison to a maximum penalty of

Three of the defendants - Piotrowski, Chmielewski and Pekala have pleaded guilty to the charges, according to Torun provincial prosecutor Marian Jeczmyk. Under Polish law, a trial is held despite the guilty pleas to determine the circum stances of the crime, the degree of the defendants' responsibility and the severity of their sentences.

Reagan to hear aide's views on arms talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — During his New Year's vacation in California, President Reagan will field final and personal sales pitches from Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Secretary of Defense Caspar W. Weinberger on the tack the United States should take in next month's arms control talks.

The two senior Cabinet members have different views of how Shultz should proceed when he meets with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko Jan. 7-8 in Geneva, Switzerland, according to U.S. officials.

Weinberger, reflecting deep suspicions of the Soviets within the Pentagon, prefers a limited agenda, while Shultz, backed by his own advisers in the State Department, would like to get started with Gromyko on some of the major issues in

That could reopen consideration of possible compromises on both medium-range and longer-range nuclear weapons. When the United States insisted on installing the first wave of new U.S. missiles in Western Europe the discussion - and the negotiations - broke down.

The Pentagon prefers a narrower U.S. approach, with Shultz restricted to sounding out Gromyko on whether the Kremlin is prepared to reopen the negotiations. If the Soviet foreign minister agreed, Shultz would try to work out a schedule with him.

Reagan purposely is putting off a final decision until shortly before Shultz' scheduled Jan. 5 departure for Geneva. In the judgment of U.S. officials, the delay reduces the risk of "leaks" to the news media.

Exceptional secrecy has marked preparations for the Shultz-Gromyko meeting.

Weinberger and Robert C. McFarlane, the White House national security adviser, were interviewed on television last weekend, and McFarlane held a briefing for reporters last week. But, for the most part, officials are under instruction to be guarded in their remarks and to avoid the news media.

Weinberger's trip to California has not been announced. He will precede Shultz who, by participating in the Jan. 2 visit of Japanese Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone, will speak to the president last.

If Reagan agrees, Shultz is prepared to discuss with Gromyko possible "tradeoffs" in U.S. and Soviet strategic weapons. Essentially, this would involve each side cutting back in areas where it is stronger. Also, said officials who insisted on anonymity. Shultz might reopen consideration of an interim agreement that would reduce - but not eliminate - U.S. and Soviet medium-range missiles in Europe.

American negotiator Paul H. Nitze discussed two possible versions with the Soviets before the talks broke down last November. His "walk in the woods" with Soviet negotiator Yuli Kvitsinsky was the closest the two sides got to an agreement.

Basically, the planned deployment of 464 jet-propelled cruise missiles and 108 ballistic Pershing 2 rockets would be scaled down if the Soviets dismantled a specified number of the nearly 400 SS-20 missiles they have trained on Western Europe.

The deal might allow the Soviets to retain a numerical edge. And while some Pershing 2's would be kept in West Germany the proportion to cruises might be reduced.

AUSTIN (AP) — The state Alcoolic Beverage Commission, trying day filed a bill that would ban all drink and drown" nights, free action seemed to be needed." holic Beverage Commission, trying to curb Texans from gulping cutrate drinks, has banned two-for-one "happy hours."

Some retailers of alcoholic beverages were getting carried away," said TABC Administrator W.S. McBeath. "The practices we are banning tend to encourage very rapid consumption.'

The rules, announced Thursday and effective immediately, bar twofor-one happy hours, but do not prohibit selling doubles for the price of singles or offering half-price drinks.

happy hours and contests involving drinking. Rep. Gary Thompson said his bill is patterned after a recently approved Massachusetts law.

This legislation is aimed squarely at one of the major causes of traffic accidents - overindulgence encouraged by restaurants and bars." he said.

Texas Restaurant Association Vice President W.H. "Buckshot" Price said the TABC rules announced Thursday are "inadequate and confusing." He complained that the ban drinks and nickel beer.

The rules bar only the sale of "two or more containers of alcoholic beyerages for the price of one.

TRA maintains that action taken by the TABC will not eliminate the problem because it focuses only on the sale of alcohol through bars and restaurants and fails to consider alcohol abuse which takes place in schools, cars, homes and the workplace," said Price.

Joe Darnall, McBeath's assistant, said two-for-one promotions

The rules are not intended to "regulate prices or get into price-fixing. Darnall said doubles and triples for the price of a single were not banned because "that has not been the same sort of problem we've had with multiple containers.

"It's not the price, it's the number of drinks," said Darnall. "Where you've got multiple containers as part of the deal, then the customer says, 'Yes, I'll have a drink' and he ends up suddenly with two."

"I never imagined passing out Christmas cards would result in my expulsion," O'Mara wrote in a farewell statement read to his parishoners and friends at Santiago's airport by the Rev. Louis Connaughton, his superior in the Dublin-based Columban Fathers order. The Christmas cards that O'Mara was passing out were signed by the Sebastian Acevedo Anti-Torture Movement, a group of about 200 priests and others who stage frequent sit-ins outside police stations where prisoners are allegedly tortured. It is named for a Chilean who burned himself to death in November 1983 to protest his two grown childrens' arrests.

The group at the airport cheered as the priest. in police custody, waved from a distance before boarding the Peruvian jetliner.

O'Mara, who holds a doctorate in philosophy, worked six years among Chile's poor. He often met with police in his western Santiago slum parish "trying to evangelize them," said the parish secretary, Ingrid Sagredo.

But O'Mara's activism outside his parish pulpit underlined longstanding friction between the church and the government over human rights, as well as tension within the church over the participation of priests in demonstrations.

The Catholic archdiocese of Santiago has recorded accounts of torture from dozens of victims each year since Pinochet seized power in a 1973 coup. Amnesty International reported last year that "the use of torture has been a constant feature" of his authoritarian rule.

The government steadfastly denies the practice, although the charges are often backed by medical evidence. In September, a 50-year-old activist of the opposition Christian Democratic Party died in a hospital of internal bleeding after interrogation by the secret police.

Dennis Coren thought he had retrieved just about everything from sluggish drains until his workers found a pipe clogged with shredded cash.

Three charged with kidnapping of youths

HOUSTON (AP) — Police acting on a tip from a U.S. Customs agent in Nogales, Ariz., arrested two men and a woman who they say planned to sell two 12-year-old Houston girls into prostitution.

Three people were charged Thursday with aggravated kidnapping. They were Gary Don Barkley, 23; William Warren Cara, 26; and Sophia Ramirez, 22, all of Houston. They were jailed in lieu of $20,000 bonds each.

Homicide Sgt. M.E. Doyle said two 12-year-old girls were abducted at gunpoint as they walked along a Houston street about 1 p.m. Wednesday. They were freed six hours later when police stopped a stolen pickup truck driving in another part of the Doyle said the Arizona customs agent told local police the girls were to be exchanged for money at a southeast Houston park, Doyle said. Investigators are attempting to locate the informant.

"They were being abducted to be sold," said Doyle.

He said an informant told authorities the girls were to be sold to a prostitution ring, but it was not clear if the ring was operating in the U.S. or in a foreign country.

Patrol officers stopped the pickup and found the vehicle contained a woman and two men, one of whom was armed. The two girls were also in the truck. They were frightened, but unharmed, police said.

Police have not released the 12year-olds' names.

Investigator says pilot lost control of plane

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A La Porte man was not certified to fly on instruments alone when his single-engine aircraft went down in dense fog, killing four people, a National Transportation Safety Board investigator says.

J.O. Johnson, an NTSB air safety investigator, also says the Wednesday crash was probably due to pilot—and not mechanical—error.

McIlvoy had filed an instrument flight plan before taking off shortly after 5 p.m. from San Antonio International Airport. The aircraft went down minutes later in dense fog, crashing on airport property.

Chinese book, play re-examine Cultural Revolution

Los Angeles Times-

Washington Post News Service

PEKING — China is gradually beginning to re-examine Mao Tsetung's Cultural Revolution, the chaotic period from 1966 to 1976 in which millions of people were forced out of cities to do manual labor in the countryside.

The Cultural Revolution was officially declared a disaster in 1979, three years after Mao's death, and that remains the position of China's political leadership today. Communist Party newspapers regularly exhort the Chinese people to "thoroughly negate the Cultural Revolution."

Yet, during the past year, a controversial novel and a much-discussed television play have both sought to portray the human aspects of the Cultural Revolution — asking for the first time whether something positive may have emerged from all the suffering.

"Whenever we mention this 10 years of history, we shouldn't complain," a young man sent to a remote area in Manchuria tells his girlfriend in the television play "The Blizzard."

"We have given and lost a lot, but what we have gained is far more

In some ways, the novel and the play, which were both written by authors who themselves worked in the countryside during the Cultural Revolution, are comparable to the retrospective treatment of the Vietnam War in American books and movies.

For several years after the end of the Cultural Revolution, the subject was considered too painful for extended discussion. People who had been separated from their families and whose careers had been disrupted wanted simply to resume a normal life.

The message of the new works seems to be that even if the Cultural Revolution was a national tragedy, the experiences of the millions of people who lived through it under extraordinarily difficult circumstances should not be forgotten.

Both the book, called "Silk Tree," and the television play have touched off a surprising amount of reaction in China — formal criticism and defense as well as a series of written and televised discussions, devoted in part to whether the portrayal of the Cultural Revolution was correct.

"The Blizzard," which was first published as a short novel and then adapted for television, is about a group of 800 well-educated young people who are forced during the Cultural Revolution to work in the Manchurian wilderness area called Beidahuang. The author, Liang Xiaosheng, himself worked in Beidahuang during the early 1970s.

In "The Blizzard," most of the youths are desperate to leave the rural town to which they were assigned, and finally, after a prolonged stay there, they obtain permission to return to their homes. But a few of the young people decide to remain behind.

One young girl tries to persuade her boyfriend, a doctor, to leave. But he refuses, saying: "Do you still remember when we first arrived here? It (Beidahuang) has changed so much now; it has changed through our hard work and labor."

As those who are leaving get on the bus to return to the cities, an off-screen voice says, "Because of you, the footsteps of the cultivators were left behind on Beidahuang.... You are the contributors. Although your merits might not yet be written down in history, they will be acknowledged by history."

In Zhang Xianliang's novel "Silk Tree," published earlier this year, an under intellectual tells about 20

"It suits me just fine," she said.
For seven years she shared a home in Bel-Air with director Peter Bogdanovich and worked in his movies.

"anti-rightist" campaign in 1957 and then, during the Cultural Revolution, was forced to work on a farm in a poor and remote area.

The novel explains that he had been dutifully reading Karl Marx's "Das Kapital" but could never really understand it until he had first-hand contact with illiterate peasants.

At the novel's end, the character says: "A bourgeois intellectual like me, who came from a bourgeois family and underwent feudal education, now assumes the historical mission of developing our country.

"Deep in my heart, I should always remember that it was these ordinary people, those who exert physical labor, that gave me material and spiritual strength. They led me to find the truth in Marxist books."

Early this fall, one of China's leading literary journals carried a lengthy attack on the novel by a critic who said that it supported the "erroneous leftist" policies of the Cultural Revolution.

The critic, Hu Ban, said that the brutal descriptions of the mental agony and hard physical labor of the principal character showed a morbid belief in the value of human suffering, thus implying approval of the policy of forcing intellectuals to work in the countryside.

But several other literary critics have published articles praising the novel and denying that it amounts to approval of Mao's Cultural Revolution policies.

In a published interview this fall, the author of "Silk Tree" defended his portrayal of the Cultural Revolu-

"What I have recounted was the history of tragedy and joy of that period of time," he said. "If you want, you can criticize that period of history, but I'm not responsible for that period of history."

Better economy: Cause of more traffic deaths

WASHINGTON (AP) — A rebounding economy that had Americans driving more this year is being cited as the reason for the first increase in traffic deaths in four years.

But although driving and the total number of deaths are up, the number of alcohol-related fatalities is expected to stay about the same.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration estimates that about 43,800 people will have been killed by the end of the year — up about 1,200 from 1983.

At least 496 people died in traffic accidents over the four-day Christmas period, according to statistics gathered during the long weekend. The National Safety Council had predicted the number would be considerably lower, between 370 and 470. Last year 238 highway deaths occurred during the three-day holiday weekend.

Dick Burdette, director of public and consumer affairs for NHTSA, today noted: "Last year the weather was very bad. People did less traveling. This year the weather was good, people did more traveling."

good, people did more traveling."

James C. Fell, manager of the agency's accident reporting system, said the chief reason for the increase in traffic deaths over the year is that Americans are driving about 5 percent more this year than last, probably because of the upturn in the economy.

Burdette pointed out, however, that the percentage increase in traffic deaths, about 2 percent, is still significantly lower than the increase in driving, showing greater safety on the roadways than in several years past.

The rate of highway deaths per vehicle miles traveled remained about the same this year with 2.54 fatalities per 100 million vehicle miles compared to 2.58 last year, the officials said.

Prior to this year, the number of traffic deaths had dropped each year since 1980, including a dramatic reduction of about 10 percent between 1981 and 1982.

That drop was attributed at the time to the economic recession which resulted in only a slight increase in vehicle miles traveled. "Traffic fatalities correlate very highly with economic indicators," said Fell.

One NHTSA report concluded, "If the economy continues to improve over the next year or two, fatalities will tend to rebound toward the 1981 and 1980 levels." There were 51,091 traffic deaths in 1980 and 49,301 in 1981.

While there is evidence that alcohol-related traffic fatalities have fallen at a slightly greater rate than all traffic fatalities during the past five years, the decline is virtually unnoticable between 1983 and 1984, according to the government figures.

This year about 23,500 people are expected to be killed in alcohol-related traffic accidents, the same number as a year ago when there were a total of 42,584 highway fatalities. That would mean the proportion of fatalities that involved alcohol dropped from 55 percent to 54 percent.

And even between 1980 and 1983 the effects of anti-drunken driving campaigns on highway fatality statistics were extremely modest.

"Alcohol involvement in motor vehicle accidents in the United States is still at epidemic proporations...No large changes can be detected in the proporations that are alcohol involved from 1980 to 1983." concludes one NHTSA study.

But Fell, who was author of that study, said in an interview that there are signs some progress is being made in the campaign against those who drink and drive.

He cited a decline since 1980 of fatal accidents at night, especially on weekend nights, and a steady decline each year since 1980 in the proportion of drivers killed who later were found to have been legally drunk.

Appropriations to be used to round up horses

New York Times News Service

Congress appropriated $17 million just before it adjourned in October to round up 25,000 wild horses on government land in the West, according to Cleveland Amory, president of the Fund for Animals.

Amory, interviewed in New York, said many of the mustangs would probably be sold for slaughter. The $17 million, he said, is to be used by the Bureau of Land Management to capture the animals and feed them. When the feed money runs out, he said, the bureau will have to auction them.

Under the present law, the Wild Free-Roaming Horse and Burro Act of 1972, the bureau must find homes for horses and burros when their numbers grow too large. Amory said he fears the law will be amended to force the bureau to sell all surplus animals at auction.

The 1972 law limits each buyer to four animals. One proposed amendment, Amory said, would remove that limit, which would allow a single buyer to purchase many animals. "That means the horses would go to slaughterhouse buyers," Amory said. He said it would be difficult to

Christmas present

Christmas story. Frank DePlanche, the 47-year-old rural mail carrier in Brighton, Mich. who was fired earlier this week for putting his own unstamped Christmas cards in customer's boxes along his mail route, was reinstated after his wife, his union and the public complained.

DePlanche had been told he would be fired effective Jan. 9th from the Postal Service job he had held for 29 years after one of the customers along his rural route complained in writing to the Brighton postmaster about DePlanche placing unstamped Christmas cards in the 540 mailboxes on his route.

The mail carrier's wife drew attention to his plight by donning a Santa Claus suit, sandwich sign and picketing the Brighton Post Office. Her sign read: "Merry Christmas. My husband was fired from this post office Saturday for giving his customers a Christmas card. He's been a mailman for 29 years. Yes Virginia, there really is a Scrooge. Happy holidays.'

DePlanche was hospitalized for stress after losing his job and, all in all, Christmas looked bleak for the DePlanche family.

There is no argument with the fact that Postal Officials have the right and the duty to disci-

t was the perfect ending to a pline employees who break regulations or with the fact that DePlanche was using his position to his personal benefit by not buying stamps for his Christmas cards. But there also is no question that the firing of a veteran of 29 years with the Postal Service for something so trivial as delivering $70 worth of unstamped Christmas cards is excessive discipline.

That's particularly so in light of the fact that DePlanche was spreading good tidings, which is appropriate at this time of the year and is to be encouraged, not discouraged. Tom Griffith, president of the National Rural Letter Carriers Association, said Wednesday he believes it is "not uncommon" for mail carriers to deliver unstamped Christmas cards to their customers.

The public outcry for DePlanche is evidence that there exists in this country a basic knowledge of the difference between right and wrong, and of what the Christmas season is all about.

As the saying goes, all's well that ends well. This Christmas story did end well. Frank DePlanche has his job back and can rest comfortably in the knowledge that people truly

That's a nice Christmas present for all Americans.

Scanlon favors a cooperative approach, working with industry groups to develop voluntary safety standards for their products, and then cracking down on individual manufacturers who violate the standards. In short, Scanlon prefers the sniper rifle to the shotgun.

Scanlon defends his record on grounds that his approach would result in fewer industry lawsuits against the commission. Not surprisingly, the children's product industry approves of Scanlon and his phi losophy. Scanlon "would make a great chairman," industry attorney Aaron Locker told my associate Tony Capaccio.

Last month, both Scanlon and Locker - in what each described as 'strictly coincidental" responses criticized David Schmeltzer, an agency enforcement official, for a strongly worded letter he sent to all manufacturers of expandable, doorway "babygates." Schmeltzer's letter went out on Nov. 9 after an Idaho infant caught its head in a gate's wooden slats and strangled - the eighth such death in the commis-

In a Nov. 28 letter to Schmeltzer, Locker also objected to the imposition of a ban on the babygates "by letter of a single agency official." He said it was an example of "backdoor rule-making.

Schmeltzer added: "If consumers were aware of the serious nature of injury that could result from entrapment in the accordion-style gates, I doubt they would continue to purchase them.

Scanlon's record of lone dissent included commission votes on enforcement actions against the following children's products:

Mesh-sided cribs associated with at least 11 infant deaths, and other cribs with faulty parts such as oose mattress supports, machine screws and guide rods. Since 1980, these crib "hardware hazards" have claimed 27 babies' lives

In a typically communist maneuver, the Ethiopian government is now blaming the West for the fam-

Dawit Wolde Giogris, head of Ethiopia's Relief and Rehabilitation Commission, says they are angry at the West because the wasteful, greedy West did not respond sooner to the famine. Berhanu Bayeh, Ethiopia's minister of labor and social affairs and one of the top Marxist thugs. sounded the same note. So far, the Soviet Union which has engineered, financed, supported and armed the Marxist government has sent 10,000 tons of food; the corrupt, imperialistic United States has pledged 216,000

These Marxist thugs delivered their chastisement to representatives of the Western nations which have responded to the famine. Absent from this gathering were representatives of the Soviet Union and Cuba which supply arms and troops for the purpose of repressing and murdering those Ethiopians with the energy and inclination to resist communism.

Ethiopia provides yet another example of the familiar pattern of mistakes by which the democracies are committing suicide. The democracies have been and still are too timid to confront the Ethiopian government with its own crimes. Yet the democracies are so soft-hearted (or soft-headed) they bail out the communist government.

The rules of the game, which the Soviet Union has succeeded in imposing on the West, are simple All communist governments, like Ethiopia's, are off limits. No one is allowed to overthrow them. All noncommunist governments, like Ethiopia's previous regime, are up for grabs by the communists. If the West tries to help them, it is accused of propping up dictatorships (never mind they are infinitely more benign dictatorships than the ones which will replace them).

When the communists establish their dictatorship and the country goes to hell, as all countries under a communist dictatorship have, the West is expected, and most often does, bail them out with loans, trade, food grants, credit and so forth.

At the same time, the West will kindly take the blame for communism's failures and keep its pocketbook open and its mouth shut so the communists take the aid with one hand and slap the West in the face with the other.

You, gentle reader, may participate in this sucker's game if you like, but I'm out. The same entertainers and photographers who have forgotten the Vietnamese and Cambodian refugees and never discov ered the Nicaraguan and Afghan refugees have made Ethiopia the 'Cause of the Month' Well, in a world where there is more money than brains or values, that can't be helped, but there is no need for sensible Americans to get caught up in the sucker's game. In the long run, your donations won't help the Ethiopian people and the communist government will make sure democracy gets no credit for even keeping them alive an extra week or two. In the meantime, you will be inadvertently helping a regime that is more of a threat to the people of Ethiopia than the famine. Eventually, it will rain, but communist governments never voluntarily give up their grip on people's throats.

The American people are a kind, generous and giving people and they deserve better than to be abused and manipulated by vicious killers and mindless do-gooders. There is hardly any limit to the numbers of people who need help, including some in our own country. Do not be manipulated by selective propaganda. People are dying all over Asia and Africa. More will. You have limited resources. Use them were they will be appreciated and where they will not accrue to the benefit of an evil government. Communism trumpets Ethiopia as great triumph. Let communism enjoy its triumph. Let the Ethiopian government which has millions to spend on arms, troops, and celebrations feed its own people.

Israeli end run means trouble

Director David Stockman's unannounced refusal last week to agree on a hefty boost in military aid for Israel has now become a goad for another Israeli end run to Congress in its quest for nearly $5 billion in new grants from the U.S., an end run the White House does not relish.

Defense Secretary Weinberger and Secretary of State Shultz, in close harmony for a change. were ready to close out negotiations on next year's military aid by giving Israel a half-bil lion-dollar boost to $1.9 billion, most package still to be tied Robert Novak up, with Shultz holding high cards for sincerity in linking it, but not military aid, to Israel's effort to salvage its broken economy Stockman's refusal may be understandable, considering the deficit, but it makes Shultz's hot potato of Israel's economic aid request much hotter. In handling Israel's huge aid request, Shultz has projected the U.S. as a model of sincerity with his The Peoria (III.) Journal-Star to encourage economic reforms, but not as a lever for Israeli concessions in Lebanon or the West Bank. That is a game of realpolitik Shultz will not play.

Stockman's apparent refusal to go along with anything more than a fraction of the half-billion-dollar arms aid boost now gives Israel a pretext to bypass Shultz and take its case for vastly increased aid, economic and military alike, directly to Congress. Judging from past experience, the result may be one that Stockman will like a lot less than a mere half-billion-dollar increase in military aid.

The coalition government patched together to rule Israel after last summer's election stalemate is divided on how to handle Ronald Reagan's second term: keep in his good graces and thus escape U.S. pressures that a lameduck president might find politically easy; or adopt a hard-line frontal attitude centered on the historic probability that, regardless of the president, Congress will give Israel what it wants. The long delay on a U.S. decision over arms aid tips the answer toward the hard line.

That is true despite the extraordinary size of the Israeli request. In addition to $2.1 billion in arms aid, the Israelis are asking $1.9 billion for economic aid and, labeled as a "oneshot" infusion for the current fiscal year, another $800 million in economic assistance - all as outright grants. Moreover, President Reagan's intention to provide several Arab allies of the U.S. with latemodel military equipment could be used by Israel to fatten its arms aid proposals further on grounds of military vulnerability

Even so, the congressional currents appear to be running strongly with Israel. Partly because of heavy Jewish contributions against his re election, Sen. Charles Percy (R-Ill.), the even-handed outgoing chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations

The incoming chairman, Sen. Richard Lugar (R-Ind.), is both highly regarded in the American-Jewish community and perceived as a stronger ally of Israel than Percy. An even more insistent pro-Israel voice on Capitol Hill belongs to Sen. Joseph Biden of Delaware, the second-ranking Democrat on the Foreign Relations Committee. Earlier this month Biden joined Sen. Daniel Inouye of Hawaii, an authentic Democratic power in the Senate, to propose a complete refinancing plan for Israel's debt, the largest per capita debt in the world. That could be the opening gambit of a congressional move to forgive portions of the Israeli debt -- a move that Shultz would fight This effort to help Israel comes without real encouragement from tol Hill. With the Israeli government itself uncertain how to proceed in Reagan's second term, the pro-Israeli lobby watches and waits. But if energized by an Israeli decision to bypass Shultz and the Reagan administration, the lobby is capable of creating irresistible forces in favor of the full Israeli aid package. Protests by Shultz that without economic "reforms" new U.S. aid is money down a rathole would not count for much on Capitol Hill. Indeed, the Foreign Relations the potent pro-Israel lobby on Capi-

Committee itself reported last month that "even if the U.S. should greatly increase its aid, it is abundantly clear that U.S. aid alone will neither cure nor even significantly ameliorate" Israel's economy. That explains why Stockman's holdout against boosting Israel's arms aid disheartened Shultz. He knows that driving Israel into the embrace of Congress assures defeat for him.

We have needed such a system for a long time, and if all the legal energy and scholarship going into the pursuit of clients and the maximizing of fees were to be directed instead into an effort to provide such a system, some good might come from the tragedy of Bhopal after all.

Life expectancy of Chinese rises during Communist rule, report shows

WASHINGTON (AP) — Life expectancy has risen drastically in China during three decades of communist rule and now the average resident of Shanghai can expect to live nearly as long as the average American, the World Bank says.

In a wide-ranging report touching on several aspects of health care, the bank finds that the most dramatic achievement since the communist government took power has been an increase in life expectancy from 32 years in 1950 to 69 years in 1980.

"Estimates range from 59 years in Ghuizou to 72 in Shanghai," says the report compiled by Dean T. Jamison.

Life expectancy in the United States is now 74.2 years, according to the National Center for Health Sta-

One reason for the jump in China is elimination of many epidemics that once gave China the reputation as the "sick man of Asia," according to the report, titled "China: The Health Sector.'

But it adds that there are still 100 areas of China living under the same bad health conditions as in other poor countries

The United States has a doctor for every 520 people, Jamison said, compared to one doctor of Western medicine for every 2,220 people in China. But there also are numerous "assistant doctors" as well as practitioners of traditional Chinese medicine, he

Jamison suggests that the tendency of Americans to eat too much million to 200 million people in rural affects overall U.S. health adversely, noting that in 1980 Americans ate an average of 3,658 calories day, or 38 percent more than necessary for good nutrition.

> By contrast, he estimated the Chinese are getting an average of 2,539 calories each, or about 7 percent above their needs. Jamison noted that such an average suggests malnourishment remains a national problem for China because many individuals would not be eating that

Noting the tremendous amount of money spent on health care in the United States compared to China, Jamison said the outlays and comparative life expectancy figures suggest costly treatment does not necessarily yield a significant increase in life expectancy. "Approximately $280 billion (or almost the gross national product of China) was spent on health care in the U.S.," Jamison's report says of the year 1980.

The study says that, as in the Western world, heart disease, cancer and stroke now lead the causes of death in China.

Infant mortality is still higher in China than the United States — 13 for every 1,000 births in the cities and 23.9 per 1,000 in the country in 1980 — but that is a big drop from the overall national rate of 200 per 1,000 in 1949, when the communist government took over.

In the United States the national rate was 11.2 per 1,000 in 1982.

Guatemala military to step aside

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) - Guatemala moves in 1985 into the mainstream of Latin Americans nations switching from military to civilian government, and leading politicians say they hope the armed forces truly step aside.

They also hope a peaceful transition will rid Guatemala of its reputation as an international outcast because of past human rights

"Without a democratic solution, we are dead," said Vinicio Cerezo of the Christian Democratic Party, a presidential front-runner.

We do not want to eliminate the military," he said. "There is a qualitative change in the military. We hope they remain neutral. If they try to impose a candidate they will spoil the whole political process.

His top challenger most likely will be Jorge Carpio Nicolle, a newspaper publisher and political newcomer whose new National Center Union came in second behind the Christian Democrats in Constituent Assembly elections this past July.

Carpio's National Center Union took a lot of support away from the traditional rightist party, the National Liberation Movement, and from moderate groups in Guatemala, the largest and most populous nation in Central America. "We want neither death squads nor guerrillas," Carpio said in a separate interview. "We want full participation and respect for ideologies. We don't want anyone up in the

He added that the political situation and the nation's economic troubles require a return to representative government.

The Constituent Assembly chosen in July has started work on a new constitution, and the current chief of state, Gen. Oscar Humberto Mejia Victores, has promised that general elections will be called as soon as the document is ready. July mentioned as the probable date.

Brazil also is expected to return to civilian government in 1985 as part of the growing trend throughout Latin America. Elsewhere in Central America, Honduras, El Salvador, Panama and Nicaragua have returned to elected governments since the start of the decade or will

Human rights groups charge that thousands have died in a counterinsurgency campaign undertaken by the Guatemalan military against a chronic leftist insurgency. Guerrilla activity has diminished significantly in the past two years. Nearly three years ago an average of 340 people were killed monthly by rightist death squads, guerrillas or paramilitary groups operating with official blessings. There are still occasional kidnappings by armed groups and some university and labor leaders have been arrested. There are still some violations of human rights," Cerezo said. "But political rights are human rights too, and those are respected now. I do not agree with groups in the United States that want a change from black to white overnight. It is a mistake not to acknowledge relative improvements.

His remarks contrasted sharply to his past criticism of the succession of conservative military or militarydominated governments that have held sway here for three decades.

Mejia Victores became chief of state in an August 1983 coup that ousted Gen. Efrain Rios Montt, who had come to power in a March 1982

Carpio agreed with Cerezo that the degree of repression and death squad activity has diminished.

The guerrillas have cooled off and the military has changed," Carpio said.

The transition to civilian leadership will depend on a military class toughened in more than 10 years of fighting leftist guerrillas. In 1977, the Guatemalan government rejected U.S. military assistance that was conditioned on verification of respect for human rights.

Isolated, the Guatemalan military took the war to the guerrillas in a ruthless fashion, with the Indian residents of the northwestern highlands caught in the middle. About 46,000 Indians now are refugees in camps in southern Mexico.

Human rights groups raised an international outcry over the military's tactics.

Diplomatic sources said the Guatemalans, now that the insurgency has abated, would like to receive some military assistance from the United States to replace outdated equipment still in use. They need helicopters, military transports, other equipment," said a Western diplomat, speaking on condition of anonymity. "They are fighting guerrillas in an area in northern Guatemala where you can put four El Salvadors." He was referring to Guatemala's size in comparison to its smaller neighbor.

Immigrant tribesmen suffer culture shock living in U.S.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Hmong of aos fought with crossbows, hought the world was flat, and ttributed disease to evil spirits. ow 50,000 Hmongs live in the United States, transplanted from Stone Age to Space Age. Since arriving in the United States, the Hmong have been plagued by mysterious afflictions, from sudden death in the night to an epidemic of imaginary venereal disease. Helping them has proven uncommonly difficult; because of their traditions and beliefs, many distrust Western medical practices.

HMONG REFUGEES have suffered carbon monoxide poisoning from lighting charcoal fires in their apartments. They have treated their aches and pains with herbal medicines containing arsenic and lead. Their cars have been towed away because they could not read the "no parking" signs. They have been arrested when well-meaning relatives sent them gifts of opium in the song birds for food. Life in America can be deadly. Why else, the Hmong ask, do healthy men die in their sleep? So far, American doctors have no answers, only theories

It's because of the United States that they are here. As loyal American allies during the secret war in Laos, the Hmong (pronounced Mung) rescued American pilots shot down in Laos and sabotaged Communist war supplies along the Ho Chi Minh Trail.

As a result, they were marked for ersecution and death by the victoious Pathet Lao, the Communist-led rmy in Laos.

Until their lives were disrupted by war, the Hmong practiced slash-andburn farming on hilltops, growing rice, vegetables, and opium poppies. When the soil wore out, every three o 10 years, they moved to another Hiltop and started over.

Their infant mortality rate was igh, their families large. Children, specially sons, were their social ecurity. Education was what they pleaned from listening to their parents and grandparents tell stories. Pewer than one in 10 knew how to SOME WERE polygamists. Most worshipped the spirits of departed ancestors. They lived a primitive, isolated life, free of government rules and regulations, in a country where land was theirs for the tak-

Indeed, the word "Hmong" means

In the United States, the majority of Hmong, about 35,000, live in Minnesota and California, with the rest scattered throughout the country. Another 48,394 are divided among four refugee camps in northern Thailand, according to Sawanit Kongsiri, director general with the information department of the Thai Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

No one knows how many Hmong remain in Laos, but reports have filtered back to Thailand that unknown thousands have been killed by the Pathet Lao. Kongsiri, on a recent mission to persuade U.S. officials to accept more refugees next year, says there could be hundreds of thousands of Hmong left in

Compared with other refugee groups, the Hmong are adjusting slowly. There are exceptions. Dang Her, the first Hmong to settle in Minnesota, has done well. In less than a decade, Her has learned English and bought a two-bedroom house for his wife and five children, all but one of whom were born in the United States.

Each day, he reports to his $20,000a-year job as director of Lao Family Community Inc., an agency dedicated to helping the refugees.

IT'S A MODEST life by American standards. But to most Hmong, Dang Her, with his car, his home, his pinstriped suit jacket with the Rotary pin on the lapel, represents great

Dang Her had an advantage over most Hmong. Three years of study-ing English in Laos gave him a head

Children also learn more quickly than older Hmong, says Phillip Hawkes, director of the Office of Refugee Resettlement in Washing-

'There's kind of an overwhelming feeling that their kids just can't get enough education, and there's tremendous parental support for it," Hawkes says. "But those who are past the easy learning ability of youth find it difficult.' That the Hmong had no written language until about 30 years ago also makes the task tougher. And their limited understanding of English, in turn, makes it difficult to find work. About 45 percent have been unable to do so. Many of those who are working are washing dishes, making beds or doing similar menial labor. But the culture gap extends beyond language for the Hmong. Some still believe that the world is flat. That the sun revolves around the earth. That sickness is caused by

DR. NEAL Holtan, St. Paul-Ramsey Medical Center, who first worked with the Hmong as a volunteer at a refugee camp in Thailand in 1979, is coordinating the investigation of sudden unexplained nocturnal death among the Minnesota

Holtan, a specialist in internal medicine and public health, believes that at least 85 Southeast Asians, up to half of them Hmong, have died in their sleep in the United States since the first cases were reported by the national Centers for Disease Control

Just back from a neighborhood baseball game in St. Paul, Minn., Tou Vi Dang Her, left, and his brother Bill Dang Her kick off their shoes as they enter their home. Despite their adaptation to many American customs, the Hmong refugees maintain the custom of removing their shoes when coming into a home.

But research is stymied by the reluctance of Hmongs to cooperate. Holtan believes the deaths - involving previously healthy men between 30 and 40 - may be related to lowerthan-normal levels of elements in the body, which peak at 3 p.m. and are lowest at 3 a.m.

He received funding for a sleep study of 50 Hmong, but that would require them to give blood six times in 24 hours. The Hmong believe that would drain them - and that American doctors want the blood in order to sell it. There were no volun-

Dr. Linda Hedemark, a pulmonary physiologist at the University Hospital in Minneapolis, believes the deaths could be due to sleep apnea, cessation of breathing during sleep. She also tried to conduct studies, but couldn't find enough Hmong willing to sleep in the laboratory.

DR. ROY Baron of the CDC believes the refugees may have either a genetic or acquired disorder. He sent the hearts of 18 victims to the University of Illinois School of Medicine for study.

The results, not yet published, indicate all but one victim had a genetic defect in the heart's electrical system, the natural pacemaker that emits an impulse which causes the heart muscles to contract and

The problem, Baron says, is that we don't know what the hearts of the others look like." And while the study did show an abnormality, he says, "our best efforts have not been able to identify the risk factors." Stress, he says, could be a factor.

The CDC estimated the sudden nocturnal death rate among Southeast Asians at between 59 per 100,000 and 90 per 100,000 - equivalent to the death rate from the four leading killers of white males between 20 and 40. But the CDC quit counting last year, and nobody now is sure how many Hmong, Laotians, Cambodians and Vietnamese have died that

He has his own theory. "Loneliness, depression causes the heart to stop," he says.

LY CHONG, another Hmong who has spent eight years in the United States, five of them in Minnesota, believes that "just thinking about the new life here" can cause death. "It is fear and worry," he says. "We cannot think about home. The Hmong die of broken heart."

Meanwhile, doctors are focusing on another health problem: an outbreak of what social psychiatrist Westermeyer describes as "an epidemic" of ills, ranging from very real depression to imaginary outbreaks of venereal disease and para-years, three of them in Laos. But while the disease is imaginary, the cure can be deadly.

"The Hmong go from doctor to doctor to get cured," Holtan says. "They complain of burning skin, crawling scalp. They won't sit on chairs in the public health office. One family decided their daughter had VD. They wouldn't let her use the bathroom. They made her use the drain in the basement.

When we tell them there's nothing wrong with them, they take their traditional medicines." The folk remedies, known to Hmong as pay-loo-ah, are red and orange powders of unknown origin. Holtan had 30 analyzed; six were found to contain lead. Analyses of 50 to 100 more are now under way.

IN RECENT weeks, Holtan has seen three cases of arsenic poisoning. Lead poisoning is more common. Of the 35 cases identified in Minnesota children between Jan. 1 and June 30 of last year. 24 were Hmong, although some were linked to lead-base paint. "They live in lousy housing," says Win Terrell of the St. Paul Division of Public Health.

Nutrition is another problem for the Hmong, who tend to eat too much rice and too few vegetables. A recent study of pregnant Hmong women in St. Paul showed that 41 percent are anemic. Vitamin A and C deficiencies are common.

They lived under war conditions for years, and they know that rice will keep you alive," Mrs. Terrell says. "When you're constantly on the move, rice will keep. Meat and vegetables will not. And you have to be in one place to grow vegetables." Rice also stretches farther to feed large Hmong families. For Yang Chong Toua, 44, who receives $102 in food stamps a month to feed his six children, "it is better to eat rice. If we eat bread. there is not enough for one week. But 100 pounds of rice is enough for one month. The Hmong move often. Many have left Midwestern states to join relatives in the kinder climate of California, a secondary migration that has swelled California's Hmong population in the Central Valley to

In Minnesota, an 1,300-acre experimental farm in Homer housed 50 Hmong until May, when the Public Welfare Department withdrew funding for the project after the sponsoring agency ran into financial trouble. A smaller experiment continues in Farmington, where 30 families farm 160 acres.

FARMING AROUND St. Paul is largely limited to small community gardens on county land, where some have complained that the Hmong use too much water from the irrigation pumps, and that they are crowding out Americans gardeners.

The resentment is not limited to the victory gardens. "Between 1980 and 1982, it was very bad," says Chong Ly. "People in cars called us names. They broke our windows and started a fire in our mailbox.' At Project RISE, an acronym for Refugees in Search of Employment, staffers teach job-seeking skills to unemployed Southeast Asian refugees, and persuade area businesses to hire them.

Fue Yang, a Hmong staff worker, says that ideally, the agency tries to place one bilingual Hmong with several who speak no English. He says about 40 percent of those who are working have entry-level jobs. Their wages average $4.50 an hour. For those with big families, he says, staying on welfare is far more lucrative.

Hawkes says the Hmong are doing far better in Southeastern states that have lower levels of public assistance than Minnesota and Cali-

"The Hmong are very capable," Hawkes says. "They're also prag-matic. For people who are by nature survivors, to turn down a $600-amonth check and Medicaid benefits in order to get back $500 a month or $550 a month doesn't make much

SOME CAN'T WORK because of disabling mental illnesses. "A larger minority than you would think have significant amounts of mental and emotional disturbances," says Westermeyer. "Vocationally, many did things in Asia that they cannot do here - they were midwives and farmers and village chiefs. These people are more apt to break down.

They still spend most of their time on welfare, and they're learning negative welfare survival

Rather than welfare, Westermeyer advocates workfare. "People in the mainstream need to subsidize their work, to help them become employable, competitive, and to help them learn English."

For Westermeyer, who has a Hmong foster daughter, the decision to bring the refugees to the United States "has personally enhanced my

In Laos, he says, "I got hungry with them. I fought mortar with them. I caught malaria with them. There at least they had crossbows. They were fighting what they were facing. Here, they're living in ghettos. They feel emasculated.

IN LAOS, Yang Chong Toua, 44. was a respected leader. He owned 100 cows and 46 water buffaloes - a fortune there. He served in the resistance army 15 years.

In St. Paul, he lives in a lowincome apartment with sparse, don-ated furniture. He spends his days taking care of his 3-year-old daughter while his wife, who speaks better English, trains for a sewing job.

Some people are not very smart. They don't catch any English," says Toua, speaking through an interpreter. "If you have no English, you can't look for work. Most Hmong feel very sad and sorry about that."

Refugees who are literate in another language also make better students, according to Win Terrell, a health educator with the St. Paul Division of Public Health. She says less than 10 percent can read or write.

The Hmong had no written language of their own until 30 years go, when missionaries used Roman letters to approximate the sounds of Hmong, a musicalsounding language that relies on intonation and that uses only seven consonants. One word can have seven meanings, depending on the speaker's tone.

Those with any real education read Lao, not Hmong," Mrs. Terrell says. "And if they were in a refugee camp for more than a year, they usually can speak

But those who have never written or read language don't understand abstractions or symbols. "Numbers don't mean beans to these people. You have to show them handfuls of things.

A concrete approach works best, Mrs. Terrell believes. To persuade the Hmong that taking small samples of blood to check for disease is not fatal, she showed them blood under a than men because we like to talk. If a woman can learn English faster, she can get a job, and the men take care of the kids at home." About 40 women, ranging in age from 16 to 60 and dressed in everything from blue jeans to dresses, flocked to a recent meeting of the association. A few toted babies, but most had left their children home with their husbands.

The agenda consisted of two items: a support project for elderly women, who need transportation to grocery stores, hospitals and community gardens; and a program to help battered Hmong women — not a new problem, says Ms. Yaj, but one that the women feel free to discuss for the first time.

Another project involves finding markets for their colorful and elaborate needlework, a combination of tiny fabric triangles, cross-stitch embroidery, reverse applique and batik.

The textile art of the Hmong, which adorns their traditional dress as well as purses, baby carriers, hats and belts, is crafted by hand, without pencils or patterns.

Kings crown Rockets, 96-92

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD AP Sports Writer

Kansas City Kings Coach Phil Johnson didn't let a little thing like being outscored by 20 points in the third quarter get him down.

"I knew they were going to have a run," Johnson said after the Kings rallied to defeat the Houston Rockets 96-92 in a National Basketball Association game Thursday night. "But I just told the guys that we had to be patient and play our

After Houston's 37-17 third quarter, which included two 9-0 spurts, gave the Rockets a 73-66 lead going into the fourth period, the Kings outscored Houston 30-19 in the final 12 minutes to win the sixth game in their last seven outings. They are now 10-9 since Johnson took over as coach for Jack McKinney.

'We turned the ball over," Houston Coach Bill Fitch said after his team's record fell to 17-13 despite 26 points and 17 rebounds from Akeem Olajuwon. "We didn't make any baskets. It wasn't any one thing. If it had been just one thing we could have zeroed in on it."

"I told the guys that I'd find out what they're made of," Johnson said. We'd won five in a row and had been playing well before we lost last night to the Utah Jazz. After that loss, we needed to come back

Olajuwon's rebound basket with 2:19 left in the game tied the score at 92-92. A free throw by LaSalle Thompson, who had 13 points and 11 rebounds, gave Kansas City the lead for good with 1:36 left, and Don Buse's two free throws with 15 seconds left and one foul shot by Mike Woodson with one second remaining accounted for the final score.

Houston was hampered by Ralph Sampson's foul trouble. He fouled out with 8:57 left in the fourth period after scoring nine points.

Rodney McCray had 23 points for the Rockets, while Woodson led Kansas City with 20 points.

Bulls 112, Cavaliers 108 Rookie Michael Jordan matched his season high with 45 points as Chicago held off Cleveland.

The Bulls had a comfortable lead until the final minute when the Cavaliers, who got 30 points from World B. Free, outscored Chicago 8-1 to make the final score close.

Celtics 118, Clippers 103 Kevin McHale scored 18 of his 27 points in the fourth quarter, helping Boston break up a close game at Los

The Clippers, playing before a sellout crowd for the first time since moving from San Diego during the off-season, trailed only 101-95 midway through the final period. But the Celtics outscored Los Angeles 17-8 the rest of the game to pull away, with McHale scoring 10 straight Boston points in one stretch.

Dennis Johnson scored 25 points for Boston, while guards Norm Nixon and Derek Smith led the Clippers with 22 and 21 points, respec-

San Antonio won its sixth straight home game and handed Portland its eighth loss in its last nine outings as George Gervin scored 31 points.

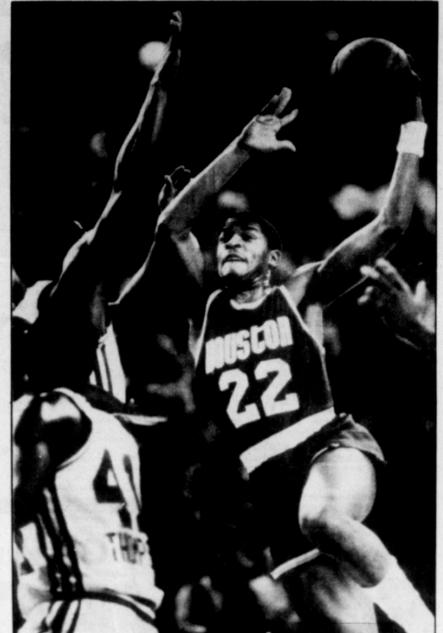

Mike Mitchell added 24 points, while Johnny Moore had 20 points and 14 assists and Artis Gilmore 19 points and 15 rebounds for the Spurs, who opened a 37-22 lead after one quarter and coasted the rest of

Golden State captured only its second road game in 14 tries this season, winning at Seattle behind the scoring of Purvis Short and Mickey Short scored 23 points and Johnson had eight of his total of 17 during a 12-0 run by the Warriors early in the fourth period. The surge turned a 77-72 Seattle advantage into an 84-77 Golden State margin.

Rodney McCray (22) drives to the basket for the Houston Rockets against two Kansas City defenders. Houston lost 96-92.

Pac-10 suspends Arizona State

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Pacific-10 Conference placed Arizona State University on probation for two years Thursday and took away the Sun Devils' conference baseball title, citing a variety of NCAA rules violations.

Conference officials said the Arizona State baseball team must forfeit its 1983-84 conference championship and has been declared ineligible for postseason athletic competition.

Pac-10 Executive Director Thomas C. Hansen also announced that six members of Arizona State's baseball team have been declared ineligible for intercollegiate athletic competi-

Arizona State also will be penalized a total of 19 athletic grantsin-aid over the next four years in baseball, gymnastics and wrestling, Hansen said.

In Tempe, Ariz., Paige Mulhol-lan, Arizona State executive vice president, acknowledged "with regret" that the penalties had been imposed. He said the university would ask the NCAA to restore the athletes' eligibility.
"We expect the appeal to be heard early in January and we hope for a speedy decision," he

Assistant athletic director Gary Rausch said the school wouldn't contest any other part of the pen-

The findings and penalties were recommended to the conference following a Compliance Committee hearing in Phoenix on Nov. 28, and were approved by the conference's council and its presidents and chancellors at meetings Dec. 7-11 in San Fran-

The penalties were imposed after five student-athletes in the three programs were found to have been awarded excessive financial aid by the institution in 1982-83 and 1983-84. Ten studentathletes in baseball and wrestling were found to have been paid for more hours than they actually worked under an institutional hourly wage program in 1983-84.

The Pac-10 also found the institution to have exceeded the NCAA financial aid limitations in the three sports during each of the last four years, with the exception of wrestling in 1982-83.

The Sun Devils baseball team will be limited to eight equivalent grants-in-aid (13 is the NCAA limit) during the 1985-86 and 1986-87 academic years, and to 11 equivalent grants during 1987-88 and 1988-89, Hansen said. The gymnastics program will lose one grant in each of the next two years, and the wrestling program one grant in each of the next three years. "The heart of this infractions case dealt with student-athletes working on athletic facilities and claiming more hours than they could credibly demonstrate hav-ing worked," Hansen said in the release. "As a result, the student-athletes received more pay than they should have. Also, the institution was placed in violation of NCAA financial aid limitations since it did not count the work payments toward its sport limita-

"In the committee's view, the most serious violations occurred in baseball, since the student-athletes were ostensibly working during baseball practice, but the income they received was not counted against the sport's financial aid limitations. Thus, the committee levied a more serious penalty against the baseball program than against the other two

Hansen emphasized that Arizona State had cooperated fully in the conference's investigation an did not appeal the findings or recommended penalties to the Council or Presidents and Chan-

Tigers stave off Razorback rally

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) - The big play - only a fingertip away for Arkansas - became reality for Auburn and halfback Bo Jackson, whose 40 yard, fourth-quarter touchdown run gave the 16th-ranked

Despite four pass interceptions by the Auburn seconday - one turned into a 35-yard TD run by cornerback Kevin Porter - Arkansas, 7-4-1, came within a whisker of capping its 1984 season with an upset victory Thursday night at Liberty Bowl Memorial Stadium.

After seeing an early 3-0 lead turned into a 14-3 first-quarter deficit on a 2-yard run by Jackson and Porter's TD return, the Southwest Conference Razorbacks gave Auburn and Coach Pat Dye everything they expected and a little more before becoming the Tigers' ninth victim in 13 starts.

"They did exactly what we thought they'd do, and they did it well," Dye said. "The only thing that beat Arkansas is four turnovers.

The Razorbacks put on a determined rally in the fourth quarter, scoring on a 2-yard run by fullback Marshall Foreman with 11:56 remaining to cut the Southeastern covering 68 yards.

Conference Tigers' lead to 14-9. Then they came within one play of possibly taking home the trophy.

Brad Taylor in the open at the Tiger

Five plays later, Jackson, who gained 88 yards on 18 carries and was named the game's MVP, slithered through the hands of the Razorback defense at the Arkansas 38 and raced into the end zone with the deciding touchdown.

'We went for it all on fourth-andone," said first-year Arkansas Coach Ken Hatfield. "We felt the play would be open. If we scored, it would put us ahead and would force them to throw the ball late in the game when they were tired."

Edmonds said it was a case of being too open.

"It was a lack of concentration. It looked like the pass would be long, then I thought I'd have to dive for it. Then the ball was there and I knew I was in trouble when I felt it go off my hands and into the air." said Edmonds, who set a Liberty Bowl record for pass receptions with 10,

After Jackson's scoring run, the Razorbacks got a 25-yard TD pass from Taylor to split end James Shi-That play, on fourth-and-one from best with 3:10 remaining, but could the Tiger 46, saw Arkansas halfback not move past their own 45 as the Bobby Joe Edmonds drop a sure clock ran out on their final pos-

Despite the loss, Hatfield found little fault with his players.

"This team left a tradition for teams in years to come," said the Arkansas coach. "They never doubted they'd win. Even on the last play our players felt they would

For Dye, who has led Auburn to 9, 11- and 9-win seasons in the last three years, the victory was viewed as a springboard for an Auburn program which was ranked No. 1 in the

"Winning the game certainly makes it just that much better a trip for us," said Dye. "This is a good way to end the season and look ahead to next season.

BOULDER, Colo. - Bubba Jennings connected on a three-point play with 14 seconds remaining in overtime Thursday night, lifting Texas Tech to a 76-75 nonconference college basketball victory over Colo-

Jennings finished with a gamehigh 23 points for the Red Raiders, who raised their record to 5-3. Colorado, paced by Alex Stivrins' 21

54 and saw its 11-game home winning streak snapped

The Buffs led throughout the first half, holding a 13-point lead with eight minutes left in the half and a 35-26 halftime advantage. Texas Tech scored the first six points of the second half and took its first lead with 11:30 remaining on Jennings' jumper, which made it 46-45. Colorado had a chance to win at the end of regulation, but Stivrins points and 13 rebounds, dropped to missed the second shot of a one-andone opportunity, leaving the score tied at 65-65.

> Two free throws by Tony Pruitt with 1:15 left in overtime put CU ahead 74-69, but Tobin Doda countered with two quick baskets to set up Jennings' basket and free throw. Doda added 16 points for Tech, and Vince Taylor had 10.

Pruitt scored a season-high 17 for Colorado, while Randy Downs had 14 and Michael Lee 10.

HONOLULU - Joe Kleine scored a career-high 41 points, including six in overtime, as the University of Arkansas defeated Iowa State, 84-79, in a consolation bracket basketball game here in the 21st Annual Rainbow Classic.

The Razorbacks were down 44-33

Arkansas was to meet Iowa, a 59-56 winner over Cornell earlier in the day, in the consolation championship Friday afternoon.

Midland athletes lose a longtime friend, father

One of the rewards of jogging at the Memorial Stadium track was that that's where you find Galberson Zachery. If you could catch him between or on the way to the next chore, he was a good excuse to chat, catch your breath and rest between laps...but mostly it was the discussions. Sometimes the chats lasted so long that the Mrs. would drive over to the stadium to see if anything was wrong. That was before she learned. I still remember the first discussion with Galberson. The Bulldogs had just lost a game they should have won. And it was a shame, because the team had started off like it was going to be a big season. That sports fellow downtown started bragging on those kids too soon. He gave them the big head," he analyzed quite bluntly.

I figure he didn't know that I was "that sports fellow downtown". But, looking back, I'm not so sure he wasn't diplomatically speaking his piece under a protective guise. At any rate, he got his point across and the praise was carefully rationed thereafter with the appropriate precautionary "ifs, ands, buts and maybes" as safeguards against future disaster.

ZACHERY tended and manicured the playing surfaces at Memorial Stadium with the kind of loving care that you might expect a father to give to a son. Perhaps that's not so surprising since he had nine sons. Only one didn't participate in some sport-football, track, or baseballat Midland High. And the lone exception, prevented from participating because of health reasons, may have been the best of all. Over the last two decades, it was a strange MHS football team that didn't have a Zackery somewhere in the lineup. It started with Eddie and Galberson, Jr., and the long line continued with Clarence, Earl, Puddy, Sammy, James, Jerry and Carlos, a junior at MHS.

Galberson was one of the pioneers, not only for the Zachery family, but for Blacks in Texas UIL competition back in the late 1960s. His senior year he played wingback before finally being switched to tailback against Odessa High. All he did was set a school record for touchdowns in one game and then the next week scored the winning touchdown against Midland Lee.

James, I guess, enjoyed the most success. He was all-state and played on some good Texas A&M teams and then went on to the CFL and the Montreal Alouettes, where he was a bright spot for some very bad teams.

WHEN JERRY, one of the the state's best running backs, went to

Texas Tech, I remember Zach worrying like a typical daddy about his freshman son, "I hope they keep him on the JV this year." His concern was that Jerry might not be mature enough yet to play with those rough older boys and might get hurt.

With nine sons, you'd think Zachery had all the family he could handle. "But he was a father to a lot of others," relates Midland High trainer James "Doc" Dodson, "both Midland and Midland Lee....Black and White.

Whenever I hadn't seen Zack for a while, he always asked about my "young 'un", even though he had long since gone off to college.

When Isaac Garnett, Midland Lee's all-state running back of the Rebels' 1983 state finalists, had a decision to make on what college, "He went to Zack on what he should do. He was like a father to Isaac.

"Anytime he headed for or away from the stadium," recalls Dodson, "that pickup was always full of

"COACHES may not have liked Memorial Stadium as a spectator facility, but they enjoyed playing on the field, football or baseball, because it was always in good shape," adds Dodson.

I never bothered to ask because I knew from just looking that Zachery was a prototype linebacker-fullback from the one-platoon days of football. That's why it came as such a shock one day when he told me about his days as a jockey and

Zack never got to ride competiti-vely because he was Black and that hurt. Of course, his career as a jockey would have been short-lived because he was growing boy already fighting his weight, but he would have liked the chance, however brief, to ride the horses he so loved. His interest in horses never waned and he was involved with their care right up until the end.

Zack had had a heart attack in September. "He had been a diabetic for 10 years and it was finally traced to a blockage in one of the main arteries," Dodson said. "They were hoping to do a bypass after the new

A week ago Thursday, Zachery suffered another a heart attack and then another on Christmas Eve.

"All of the boys were there at the hospital," Dodson said, "He told them how much he loved them and to take care of their mother.' Services will be at 2 p.m. Saturday at the First Baptist Church.

Wolfpack claws Rutgers

NEW YORK (AP) — The alley-oop passes from Spud Webb to Lorenzo Charles are a sight to behold. Whether 14th-ranked North Carolina State can work the same magic against No. 5 St. John's in Saturday's championship of the 33rd Holiday Festival basketball tournament remains to be seen

N.C. State gained the final Thursday night in its first game without 6-foot-11 freshman starter Chris Washburn, who was was suspended last Friday after being booked on a second-degree burglary charge.

"In adversity," said N.C. State
Coach Jim Valvano, whose 1982-83 team won the NCAA title, "Clubs tend to come together and pull together. Whether it'll translate into wins and losses, I don't know.'

Charles, a 6-foot-7, 255-pound senior, scored 24 points and Webb, a 5-7 senior, added 16 points, seven rebounds and seven assists before the crowd of 12,570 at Madison Square Garden to down Rutgers 80-

St. John's, a six-time winner of the Holiday Festival, downed Old Dominion, making its Garden debut, 77-66 behind Walter Berry's 15 points and nine rebounds.

Georgia Tech, ranked 10th, won Thursday night's only battle of ranked teams, beating No. 11 Washington 65-58 in the Rainbow Classic in Honolulu. Ninth-ranked DePaul crunched Creighton 87-58 in the only other game involving a ranked

"A lot of people may think I'm wacky," said Rutgers Coach Tom Young," but I'd rather see Washburn than Webb getting more playing time.

Both N.C. State and St. John's will carry 7-1 records into Saturday's finale.

'We are different team," said Valvano of the loss of Washburn, who gets a court hearing Jan.8 which will determine his status. "We miss Chris

What the loss of Washburn means is that Charles, hero the of 1983 championship game, will be doubleand triple-teamed as he was by Rutgers, 4-3.

"I'm used to it," said Charles said, who hit on eight of 11 field goal tries.

As for the confrontation with St. John's, Valvano said, "They have nice balance. It's going to take a great effort to beat them."

Because of the absence of Washburn and foul trouble, Valvano ordered his team into a delay game with just under seven minutes left and the Wolfpack leading 66-53.

Rutgers then outscored N.C. State 10-3 behind Eric Riggins and Chris Remley to cut it to 69-63 with 3:22 left, but the Wolfpack cashed in on the foul line with guard Terry Gannon making six free throws to pull away again.

N.C. State also got 16 points from Gannon and 14 from Nate McMillan. Guard John Battle, seven for 20 from the field, paced the Scarlet Knights with 21. Brian Ellerbe of Rutgers set a Festival record with 16 assists. St. John's, which led 43-30 at halftime as Chris Mullin scored 10 of his 12 points, shook of an Old Dominion rally which cut a 16-point secondhalf margin to six with 5:25 to go. "People are going on the assumption we are perfect," said St. John's coach Lou Carnesecca. "We weren't perfect. It's a game of mistakes. We played well and they're a pretty good team."

ODU, 5-2 and winner of five straight before meeting the Redmen, used a pressing defense to twice come to within five points of the Redmen late in the second half, but St. John's pulled away, just as it did in the first half.

Mike Moses scored 13 points, Willie Glass 12 and Bill Wennington 10 for St. John's "It was our first game since Dec. 15 and our second since Dec. 8," said ODU Coach Paul Webb., "that hurt

Georgia Tech Coach Bobby Cremins said his team failed to play with any intensity for 371/2 minutes, but he liked the final 21/2.

'We finally got a little intensity at that point," said Cremins. "Bruce Dalrymple had poor ballgame all night long, but he got intense when he had to.

Dalrymple, hit a jump shot and followed it with a tip shot with 2:16 left in the game to put Georgia Tech ahead for good against the Huskies

In Thursday's second game, Maryland beat host Hawaii 70-71 as was to meet Georgia Tech tonight for the championship.

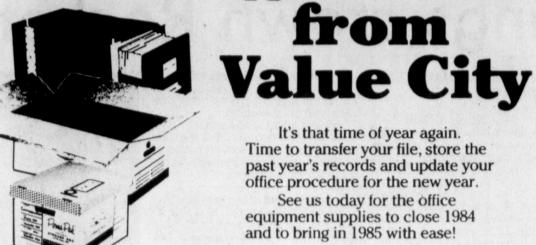

Mark Price scored 20 points for Georgia Tech, while center Yvon Joseph added 13 points. Forward John Salley had 11 points. Dalrymple scored 10.

Kevin Holmes scored a careerhigh 23 points and Tyron Corbin added 22 as DePaul extended its home-court winning streak to 32 games. DePaul, 8-2, raced to a 42-16 lead at halftime, then scored the first eight points of the second half and coasted to victory.

Troy Taylor scored 18 points to lead five Ohio State players in double figures as the Buckeyes trounced Tennessee-Chattanooga 84-62 in the first round of the Red Lobster Clas-

Whitson yanks in big contract

NEW YORK (AP) - In his only World Series appearance, San Diego right-hander Ed Whitson lasted a mere two-thirds of an inning against the Detroit Tigers. Now, as a member of the New York Yankees, he wants a rematch.

The Yankees announced Thursday that Whitson, who spent the past two seasons with the Padres, had signed a free-agent contract, bringing him from the National League to the American League. The five-year deal is worth about $4.5 million, sources say.

"I hope to get a second chance at Detroit one of these days," Whitson said at a news conference, and Yankees Manager Yogi Berra piped in: "He'll get a chance to pitch against them again.

The 29-year-old Whitson, the Yankees No. 1 priority in the free-agent re-entry draft last month, will join a pitching staff that has grown older and a little feeble. But he is only part of a total revamping job the Yankees have done this offseason.

First, the Yankees acquired speedy outfielder Rickey Henderson from the Oakland A's, giving up a minor league outfielder and four young pitchers, including Jay

Howell and Jose Rijo. "Now we're done," Yankees owner George Steinbrenner said. "I'm happy. The players we had to give up for Henderson have now been replaced. Last season, Phil Niekro led the Yankees staff with 16 victories, but he will be 46 years old in April. Ron Guidry, 34, had his worst major league season, finishing 10-11. Marty Bystrom and John Montefusco have been injured, and youngsters Joe Cowley and Dennis Rasmussen are unproven.

Even Whitson, a seven-year major leaguer, has yet to prove himself a top-notch starter. Although he was 14-8 for the Padres last year and helped the team to the World Series, his lifetime record is 53-56.

In the playoffs against the Chicago Cubs, Whitson worked eight innings to win Game Three. In the World Series, he pitched only two-thirds of an inning before being knocked out in Game Two, which the Padres went on to win 5-3.

"Playing in the World Series was the greatest thrill in my life, other than making the big leagues," Whitson said. "There's not enough I can say about it. I was making good pitches, but a lot of their hits had seeing eyes. Baseball is a funny

The development of a palm ball late in the 1983 season may have helped Whitson turn his career around. He developed the pitch almost by accident, when he cut a finger on his pitching hand on a piece of metal on a soda-pop can.

"I was supposed to pitch the next night. But I couldn't use the breaking ball at all the next night, just the fastball," he said. "So I had to use it (the palm ball), and fortunately, for me, it was a gift.

Nebraska's Osborne accused of violations

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) - A man identifying himself as a former college football player said Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne gave him money and promised him a car when Osborne recruited him in 1972.

Osborne denied the allegations. The man identified himself as Booker T. Brown, who played for the University of Southern California in 1972 and 1973, and read the following statement over the tele-phone to the Associated Press in Omaha and left a copy of the statement at the AP's Los Angeles bureau on Wednesday:

'Osborne promised me that if I took a trip to the University of Nebraska, that he would set me up with a female companion. I took the trip and he fulfilled that promise."

The statement said Osborne gave

Brown $300 in spending money and promised that if Brown enrolled at Nebraska, he could guarantee that his season tickets would be sold for at least $1,000 above their face value. The statement also said Osborne promised Brown a-car if he played for the Cornhuskers, and that the university would pay for six round-trips from California for his mother to visit the university.

'I haven't done anything like that," Osborne told the Omaha World-Herald late Wednesday.

The coach, in New Orleans preparing for the Sugar Bowl, could not be reached for comment today. Chuck Poole, Nebraska's assistant sports information director, said Osborne was in meetings all morning but would meet with reporters this Poole acknowledged that Osborne denied the statement made by the man who said he was Booker.

Nobody thinks it's worth the paper it's written on," Poole said.
Osborne told the World-Herald: "I don't know why a guy 14 years later would all of a sudden come up with the accusation. I'm willing to submit to a polygraph on the thing, regarding any violation, not just with

Booker Brown, but with anybody. That's where I stand on it, and I would challenge him to do the

In the statement, the man identifying himself as Brown said he decided to speak out against Osborne after hearing Osborne talk about recruiting violations.

Steinbrenner takes shot at Schott

Associated Press

BASEBALL - New York Yankees boss George Steinbrenner fueled a feud Thursday with Marge Schott, the new owner of the Cincinnati Reds.

"I don't know anything about this lady, but I'm sure not going to buy a used car from her. Steinbrenner said.

At a news conference to announce the free-agent signing of Ed Whitson, the Yankees owner was reminded of some remarks made by Schott, a Cincinnati automobile dealer whose purchase of a majority interest in the Reds awaits ownership's approval.

One of her remarks was in response to a question of whether she would handle the Reds the way Steinbrenner handles the Yankees.

"Oh, my God, no," she was quoted as saying in a Cincinnati newspaper. "Don't say that or they won't let me in the league."

She also bemoaned Steinbrenner's high-rolling, free-spending image, saying: "... it's his money That's his business, really ... (but) yes, I think that has hurt the game. I think that's what killed baseball.

On Thursday, Steinbrenner said, "She ought to be quiet until she gets in, then she can say all she wants.

"I haven't been out front in three years. I've been the laid back guy. I lost (Rich) Gossage last year. I lost Graig Nettles. I haven't been a leader on that front (buying free agents) in the last few years.".

FOOTBALL - John Corazzini's path to Super Bowl XIX is paved with Cabbage Patch dolls.

The 27-year-old San Mateo baker has 10 of the original dolls, and he's ready to swap some or all of them for the best possible tickets to the 1985 Super Bowl at Stanford Stadium.

"People with money can buy the tickets, but even people with money can't get the dolls. I'm at an advantage," Corazzini said.

Gov. Mark White on Thursday bet Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis 10 pounds of Texas barbecue against six Massachusetts lobsters that Houston will defeat Boston College in the Cotton Bowl on Jan. 1.

"Gov. Dukakis may be tempted by the lure of Texas beef, but he and the Eagles from Boston College will find out on New Year's Day that it's tough to take beef away from cougars," White said. "I am tempted to say that it would take a miracle for Boston College to win this game, but some alumni from Miami have told me I shouldn't tempt fate,"

White added.

Super Bowl spectators will spend an estimated $100 million in the San Francisco Bay area, according to the head of a task force overseeing the event at Stanford Stadium.

And if the San Francisco 49ers fail to make the final National Football League game, another $10 million would be added to Bay Area business coffers, San Francisco Supervisor Quentin Kopp said Thursday.

Kopp, chairman of the Bay Area Super Bowl Task Force, called the figures "conservative." He also predicted good weather for the Jan. 20 game. 'The best meteorologists say it will be clear to overcast," he told a news conference. "It might rain the night before the game, but not the day of the game.' Kopp said the task force is wrangling with problems ranging from hotel accommodations to traffic, adding that the commit-

Battered Bears counting on Fuller

Chicago QB to get tested by sack-happy Redskins

Associated Press

Quarterback Steve Fuller's battered right shoulder is OK. Now, he'll shoulder the burden of leading the Chicago Bears against the Washington Redskins in this weekend's National Football League playoffs.

"I'm too excited right now to be apprehensive," Fuller said as he prepared for Sunday's game at Washington's RFK Stadium.

The game will mark Fuller's fifth start this season with the NFC Central champion Bears. He began the year as a backup to Jim McMahon and suffered a separated shoulder in the team's first exhibition game.

But when McMahon got a lacerated kidney in a Nov. 4 game, Fuller took over. Soon thereafter, Fuller re-injured his shoulder and was again out of action. Now, he's back and ready to take Washington finished second in the NFL in quarterback sacks with 66. Chicago led the league with 72.

"I think it will be tough on both quarterbacks to pass because of all the sacks," Ditka said.

The success of the Bears may not depend on Fuller. Chicago often relies on its ground game and Walter Payton, who was the NFL's second-leading rusher with 1,684 yards and 11 touchdowns.

"I know they are tough against the run, but I feel we can run on anybody," Ditka said. "I don't think their front four is that much better than Dallas, the Raiders or Seattle and we did pretty well against

LONDON (AP) - The dollar, boosted by year-end corporate demand, continued its recordbreaking surge on European exchange markets early today for a second consecutive session. Gold bullion fell in Hong Kong but edged up in Europe. A few hours after European markets opened, the dollar was being quoted at record high levels against the British and French currencies, a 13-year high against the Dutch guilder and a

Home sales see first rise in months

NEW YORK (AP) — The irresistible combination of warm weather & Co. and lower interest rates powered home sales to their first growth in seven months while a wave of lastminute buying rescued retail stores from a Christmas sales slump.
The National Association of Realtors said Thursday that unusually mild weather and mortgage rates that have been falling since July's 15.23 percent peak continued to fuel sales of existing single-family

Sales of previously owned homes climbed 9.1 percent in November from October to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 2.89 million units, the association said.

The gain left the sales rate 6.5 percent below the peak this year of 3.09 million units in April. Since then, sales posted six consecutive declines as rising interest rates sent the housing industry into a slump.

Also Thursday, analysts said a last minute buying spree materialized just three days before Christmas.

"There was a large pickup Saturday, Sunday and Monday, which basically rescued the season," said Monroe Greenstein, an analyst with & Co.

Norman Milley, president of K mart Corp., the nation's second-largest retailer, said that when the numbers are added up, his Troy-Mich. based company will see a 12 percent to 15 percent rise in December sales over a year ago.

Hospital firm changes focus after financial loss

Los Angeles Times

Washington Post News Service

SANTA ANA, Calif. - Greatwest Hospitals Inc. of Santa Ana said Thursday that it plans to get out of the hospital business and concentrate on expanding its prepaid health-plan operations.

The company, which Thursday also reported a $220,000 fourth-quarter loss, is putting up for sale its seven hospitals, eight health-service companies, five medical-office buildings and a medical clinic.

Greatwest plans to change its name, but has not yet picked one that will be in keeping with its plan to operate a nationwide network of health-maintenance organizations,

As a group, the hospitals had dragged down Greatwest's profits in recent years. Harlan W. Loomas, Greatwest chairman and chief executive, said that he believes that keep health-care costs from climbpotential buyers will be large hospital-management companies that can support the operations through economies of scale. Loomas said that although most of Greatwest's hospitals were profitable, some were not. Loomas would not disclose the selling prices.

He said that the decision to sell the facilities is in keeping with the company's new long-range strategy to be an HMO provider. Last month, Greatwest agreed to acquire a 105,000-member HMO in Michigan. If the deal with Independence Health Plan Inc. of Southfield, Mich., closes next month as expected, Greatwest, which now owns 51 percent of that company, will operate the eighthlargest HMO in the United States.

We've been in the HMO business for two years plus and we've enjoyed rapid growth," said Loomas during a phone interview. "So far, HMOs have been the only answer to

ing out of sight."

Greatwest also is in the process of acquiring a 9,000-member health plan in Hawaii and intends to launch three or four new HMOs in 1985, Loomas said.

The seven hospitals, which are all in Southern California, will continue to operate until they are sold, Loomas said.

Health-care industry analysts said Greatwest's decision to get out of the hospital business came as no sur-

They are basically recasting their business, becoming an answer to the problem, not part of the problem" of rising health-care costs, said David Goldsmith, an analyst with Robertson, Colman & Stephens in San Fran-

In its earnings report, Greatwest indicated that it had changed its accounting procedures to list the hospitals and medical centers that are to be sold as discontinued opera-

For the fourth quarter, in which net losses were $220,000, Greatwest said that the discontinued operations (the hospitals and medical centers) lost $785,000. In the year-ago quarter, Greatwest had profits of $564,000, which included income of $261,000 from those discontinued operations and an extraordinary credit of $152,000.

During the fourth quarter, revenues from continuing operations (the HMOs) were $14.9 million, compared to the $10.5 million posted in 1983's fourth quarter.

The company said that net income for the fiscal year ended Sept. 30 dropped about 50 percent to $2.1 million from $4.5 million in 1983.

In 1984, the hospitals group had a loss of $367,000, compared to income of $2.9 million the year before.

Stock prices fall moderately

NEW YORK — Stock prices fell moderately Thursday although the trading pace expanded considerably from the miniscule volume in the preceding session.
At the final bell, the Dow Jones industrial average was off 6.40 points to 1,202.52. In the overall market, declining issues on the New York Stock Exchange outscored those that rose by 897 to 575.

Turnover on the Big Board rose to 70.1 million shares from 46.7 million shares the day before, which was the second lowest this year. The year's low was 46.3 million shares on Columbus Day, Oct. 8.

Charles Jensen, chief technical analyst of MKI Securities Inc., commented that the market was depressed again today by continued tax loss selling and "a lack of economic news which could stimulate buying interest."

He said that the market's upward prospects are limited unless "interest rates continue to decline as they have recently" and that the economy does not lose its recent upward momentum.

Reflecting the downward trend Thursday, the exchange's composite index lost 0.40, to 95.64, while Standard & Poor's 500-stock index fell 0.72, to 165.75.

The main casualty Thursday was Toys R Us which plummented 7 % points to 40 % and topped the mostactive list. The stock came under pressure when the company said its sales gain of 16.9 percent for the eight weeks ended Dec. 24, "was below our aggressive sales plan."

Petrie Stores, which owns 25 per-cent of Toys R Us, also weakened and closed down 2 1/2 to 33 1/4.

In the same toy group, Tonka Corp. dropped 3 to 41 ½, while Mattel Inc. was down % to 10 ½. On the American Stock Exchange, Hasbro Bradley, tumbled 5 ¼ to 56 in active trading. Analysts said they declined in reaction to the drop in Toys R Us.

Among the weaker large capitalization issues, Teledyne was down 3 to 250 %, International Paper lost % to 53, General Motors, %, to 77, International Business Machines, %, to 123 %, Allied Corp., %, to 33 ½ and Eastman Kodak

1/2. to 71.

Phillips Petroleum fell % to 45 % in heavy trading as investors continued to express disappointment about a plan that would restructure the company and prevent a takeover T. Boone Pickens, the chairman of Mesa Petroleum.

Sedco merges with Schlumberger

DALLAS (AP) — A unit of Schlumberger Ltd. has completed its $1 billion buyout of Sedco Inc., the Dallas-based oil drilling company founded by former Gov. Bill Clements, officials from both companies have announced.

Schlumberger, under the terms of the merger agreement, will pay about $482 million in cash for Money Funds with assets of $100 million or more that are available to individual investors. For period ended Dec. 24, 1984.

Exploration Systems Analysts

Experience the magnitude of Aramco technology.

Aramco is the largest oil-producing company in the world. Its Exploration and Petroleum Engineering Center (EXPEC) in Dhahran, Saudi Arabia is a facility second to none in the industry.

Among the most advanced in the world. EXPEC's Computer Center is equipped with a CRAY 1-M 4400 supercomputer, four large IBM 3033's, an IBM 3081K, array processors for seismic work and associated peripheral equip-ment. A total of 515 kilometers of coaxial cable ties the Center to the EXPEC building, providing each earth scientist and petroleum engineer with instant access via CRT terminals.

Not only will you discover larger-scale technology, but you will experience an exciting and interesting lifestyle in a multicultural environment. You'll have a competitive salary and special advantages such as excellent family living arrangements, free medical care, fine schools and a broad spectrum of recreational opportunities. Plus 36 days of vacation for each calendar year of service, allowing you extensive travel.

If you're ready to pursue new directions in your life and your career, Aramco Services Company would like to hear from you. Look over the following available opportunities:

OIL & GAS REPORT

EXPLORATION HIGHLIGHTS Confirmer tested for 486 barrels

A confirmation well has been completed in the Anna Maria field of Pecos County.

RKG ENGINEERING, INC. tested the No. 1 Tippett-Lynch for a daily rate of 486 bopd. On an eight hour test, the well flowed 162 bopd of 32.8 gravity crude, 21 Mcfpd and eight barrels of water on a 14/64 inch choke, with a flowinbg tubing pressure of 575 psi. Gas-oil ratio is 30:1. The well is flowing from perforations 6,516 to 6,522 ft., which were acidized with 2,100 gallons of 15 percent MCA.

The well was drilled to a depth of 6,660 ft., and was plugged back to 6,616 ft. Casing is 4 1/2 inches set at

On a ground elevation of 2,616 ft., formation tops chosen were San Andres, 2,395; Hueco, 4,510; and Pennsylvanian Detrital, 6,405 ft.

Location is 2,484 ft. from south and 467 ft. from east lines of Section 65, Block 194, GC&SF survey, 13 miles southeast of McCamey.

This is the second producer drilled in the Anna Maria field, which was discovered by RKG Engineering in December, 1983. The company presently has 1,929 acres under lease.

BUSINESS MIRROR Productivity growing again in U.S. economy

By JOHN CUNNIFF

AP Business Analyst NEW YORK — As the industrial economy renews itself with brand new industries and products, it is taking on an old-fashioned look in at least one respect:

Productivity is growing again, just as it used to grow before Americans became complacent. Productivity? Productivity gains? Some people will tell you they don't even know the terms, but that's because the terms travel in disguise. But these people know them, you may be sure, because of the impact on their lives. That impact is nothing less than enormous, involving employment and unemployment, recession and expansion, inflation and price stability, foreign trade, wages, corporate profits, living standards and pride. Productivity is merely the efficiency of production, and productivity gains are improvements in that efficiency. And as everyone who went to elementary school knows, success and good jobs and profits go to the most efficient. For many years the United States set standards of production efficiency, and in the process built, the biggest and most productive economy the world has ever seen. And then, for many reasons,

Many, many reasons are offered for what happened. Some students of the subject say unions interfered with efficiency. Some blamed lazy, unimaginative, timid managements that couldn't understand that rewards require risks.

The list is a long one, and it may be that productivity gains shrunk for a combination of reasons, including the aging of industrial plants, the need to clean up a polluted environment, government regulation and tax policy.

And another very large factor: Consumerism. Consumerism generally has been praised in America. Every American is a consumer. But each American must be a producer too, or else very little will be available to consume. After producing a material wealth that was the envy of the world, Americans seem to have decided it was time to consume, to live off the hard work that had gone before, to use up rather than invest in building more production. Americans fought to consume the economic pie, but they didn't put the same energy into-making a bigger one. And as everyone knows, unless you bake a bigger pie you can't take a larger slice without cutting your neighbor's Wage increases exceeded gains in production efficiency, and corporate profits were disbursed as dividends rather than reinvested in improved plants. In business, short-term profits often came at the expense of long-term strength. Government stepped up its activities, the better to serve people, but as history demonstrates, it was easier to give assistance to people - government aid, in fact, came to be known as an "entitlement" - than to finance it. Productivity gains, which had averaged around 3 percent annually - and even reached 9.4 percent in 1950 and 6.9 percent as recently as 1973 all but disappeared in some years. In 1975 and 1976, and 1980 and 1981, output of goods and services actually shrank.

A study by the Conference Board, a non-profit research and educational organization shows that growth in U.S. productivity between 1973 and. 1982 was the lowest 10-year figure in nearly a century. But now, it says, American industries have begun to record significant productivity increases again. In 1983, for example, the gain. amounted to 2.9 percent, which isn't much lower than the long-term average: The board credits the improvement to the Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981, deregulation of industry, low inflation, new technologies and better labor-government relations. While all these factors have indeed played a significant role, the last of them cannot be overemphasized.

A decade ago labor and management were at each others throats. Now, having been plagued by the bad times, they have concluded they must rely on each other for their common good.

In the immediate future that should be easier, because various economists now believe that the factors that returned productivity to American industry will remain with it at least through the rest of the decade.

Mutual funds don't have to report tax-free income

By BILL DOYLE

Q. I am on Social Security and own shares in municipal bond mutual funds from which I receive tax-free income. It appears to me that, if those funds do not report that income to the Internal Revenue Service, many people in my circumstance will not report it on their own meaning they will not pay income tax on part of their SS benefits.

Is there any requirement that those fundsreport my tax-free income to the IRS?

A. No. That came as a surprise to me. Mutual funds and unit investment trusts holding municipal bonds tell me they are not required to report that income to the revenooers. Interest from municipal bonds - bonds issued by states and their political subdivisions - is not subject to federal income tax. Mutual funds and unit investment trusts investing in municipal bonds collect that interest and pass that money along to shareholders as tax-free dividends.

Effective with 1984 income tax returns, SS recipients are supposed to pay federal income tax on up to half of their SS benefits, if their modified adjusted gross income passes a threshold — $25,000 for an individual, $32,000 for a married. couple filing a joint return and zero for married people filing separate return

Your threshold is your adjusted gross income, plus half your SS benefits and all your tax-free interest. As has been pointed out in this column a number of times, the new arrangement is a backdoor method of levying tax on municipal bond interest

But mutual funds and unit investment trusts holding municipal bonds say they are not required to report to the IRS their payments of tax-free dividends, which are really passed-on tax-free interest.

W.R. Grace to buy chain of restaurants

Los Angles Times Washington Post News Service

W.R. Grace & Co., a diversified chemical company that is already one of the largest restaurant chain operators in the United States, said Thursday that it has agreed in principle to acquire Santa Barbara, Calif.-based Carrows Restaurants Inc. for 945,000 shares of Grace common stock.

Based on Thursday's New York Stock Exchange closing price of $39.125 a share for Grace common stock, the deal is worth about $37 million. It is expected to close in 1985's first quarter, according to the New York-based company, subject to approval by Grace's board of directors and to execution of a definitive agreement.

Founded 15 years ago by David Nancarrow, Carrows operates a chain of 89 family restaurants in the Western United States, 54 of them in California. The privately held company is expecting sales of about $82 million in 1984, up from $73.6 million in 1983, according to Carrows President Norman Habermann.

Grace said that it plans to continue with the restaurant chain's current management. Carrows employs about 3,300 workers, it said.

Through a wholly owned subsidiary, Grace Restaurant Co., W.R. Grace operates 508 restaurants nationwide, including the Houli-han's, Coco's, Jojos and Reuben's chains.. The restaurant division reported operating profits of $9.2 million on sales of $710 million in Considering W.R. Grace's reported sales of $6.2 billion in 1983, the proposed Carrows acquisition "is kind of small in the scheme of things, as far as Grace is concerned," said John Henry, an analyst for New York-based E.F. Hutton. "They're just rounding out a very strong area for them.

Earlier this year, Grace announced agreements in principle to acquire a total of 53 restaurants from Host International Inc., a subsidiary of Marriott Corp., for an undisclosed amount. Anwar Soliman, executive vice president in charge of Grace's restaurant operations, said that he expects the new acquisitions to help push the division's sales to more than $1 billion in 1985.

Low sales send toy stocks tumbling

Los Angeles Times Washington Post News Service

A letter to shareholders of giant toy retailer Toys R Us Inc. reporting that holiday season sales were lower than expected drove that company's stock down $7.125 on the New York Stock Exchange Thursday and sent the stock of large toy-manufacturing companies skidding as well.

Interestingly, the Rochelle Park, N.J.-based toy seller's announcement was couched in a glowing post-Christmas report citing record sales of $726 million for the eight weeks ending Dec. 24 — a 16.9 percent gain over the same period last year.

"The problem is one of reality versus perception," said David Liebowitz, senior vice president at New York-based American Securities Corp. "The reality is they (Toys R Us) had a super year. The perception is they should have done even better."

Toys R Us has become something of a legend on Wall Street as a classic turnaround story. Its predecessor company, Interstate Stores, spent several years during the 1970s operating under Chapter 11 of the federal Bankruptcy Code. After it was reorganized under its new name in 1978, its stock began a climb from $1.625 (adjusted for subsequent splits) to a high of $52.875 this year.

Toys R Us officials attributed the less-than-anticipated sales to a dramatically reduced market for electronic products and to sharp price cutting during the holidays. Electronic products accounted for 9 percent of the company's sales this Christmas season, compared to 18 percent for the same period in 1983.

At the same time, sales of traditional toys in November and December climbed 14.9 percent above last year's results. "While these record Christmas season sales were good, they were below our aggressive sales plan," said Charles Lazarus, president of Toys R Us, in the shareholders letter, released early Thursday. "Specifically, a significant decline in the sales of video games and home computers was the primary reason for the moderate sales increase experienced this Christmas season.'

Nonetheless, Lazarus' statement apparently worried skittish investors in large toy manufacturers, who feared that toy retailers would not be restocking shelves in the near future. As a result, prices of shares in many of these companies also plummeted Thursday.

By the end of trading Thursday, shares of Toys R Us had fallen to $40.25. Also on the NYSE, Hawthorne, Calif.-based Mattel Inc.'s stock dropped 50 cents, to $10.875. West Hartford, Conn.-based Coleco Industries Inc. was off 67 1-2 cents to $11.875, and Spring Park, Minn-based Tonka Corp.'s stock fell $3 to $41.50. On the American Stock Exchange, stock of Hasbro Bradley, based in Pawtucket, R.I., fell $5.25 to

Kuwaitis gamble again on stock market

Los Angles Times Washington Post News Service

KUWAIT - Across the street from the grand snazzy new eight-story building that is a reminder of the past follies of instant wealth.

The $24 million edifice of glass and marble, due to open officially next year, houses the Kuwait Stock Exchange. Although only 52 local companies are on its "Big Board," Kuwaiti officials hope the market will eventually include international listings, helping to transform this desert oil sheikdom into a Singapore of the Middle East. "Kuwait's giving it another try," a Western economist said. "Whether its attempt to run a regulated, reputable exchange is coming about four years too late remains a moot point for now.

Indeed, the specter of Kuwait's unofficial stock exchange, which collapsed two years ago, leaving investors with $92 billion in worthless certificates and checks, still raises doubts about the strength of Kuwait's economic foundation.

That exchange, which was known as the "Souk al Manakh" (literally, the "resting place for camels"), was established in the lobby of a downtown parking garage, near the site of the new exchange. Fueled by the oil boom of the 1970s and the dreams of the nouveau riche, it was, for all practical purposes, a futures mar-

Trading was done in post-dated checks, not collectible for a year or two. Some of the new Persian Gulf companies whose stock soared to unimaginable levels had never produced a thing. As the stocks were bid up to wildly inflated levels, paper billionaires were created virtually overnight. It was a gamblers' paradise until some big investors started calling in the checks they held for collection. That triggered panic and the market collapsed.

The economic hangover of that collapse still lingers in Kuwait, which pumps 900,000 barrels of oil a day, has the world's highest per-capita income ($25,500) and is the home of the world's largest Chevrolet dealership. Also beset by falling oil prices and production, and its own largesse - Kuwait gives $1 billion a year to Iraq alone - this New Jersey-sized country is sobering up to economic realities. Hundreds of small businesses are threatened with bankruptcy; development plans have been scaled back and 28,000 market speculators are holding uncollectible checks worth billions of dollars, hoping the government will bail them out as it always has in times of economic difficulty. Thus far, the government has covered the losses of 'small' individual investors — those who lost less than $6.8 million each — but has yet to announce if it will help the major losers. Perhaps most significant, though, was the closure last month of the Souk al Manakh and the edict that all future trading could take place only at the new Kuwait Stock Exchange. To prevent another debacle, post-dated checks are now illegal; stock must be transferred to the new owner within three days of the transaction; and companies must have capital of at least $17 million to

Company sponsors one-day seminar about retirement

C-E Natco Oil and Gas Process Systems and Services sponsored a preretirement seminar recently for several Combustion Engineering, Inc. employees in the Midland-Odessa area, who are approaching retirement age.

The one-day seminar, held at the Ector County Library, was designed to help the employees and their spouses prepare for retirement.

Sessions on community activities, Social Security benefits and Medicare, health and attitude adjustments, estate planning, wills, trusts, probates, investments and finances, company benefits, insurance and pension were covered, followed by question and answer periods.

Experts in the areas covered were asked to participate in the seminar. Conducting sessions were Dr. Clyde Vedder from the University of Texas at the Permian Basin, Mary Pollock with the Senior Citizens Action Group, LaDoyce Lambert, executive vice president of the Texas Commerce Bank, Lawrence L. Barber, attorney at law, and Jewel Brewer with the Social Security Administration.

"More and more companies are offering these types of programs to their active employees," said Carmelita Cordova, Human Resource Administrator for C-E Natco. Employees participating in the seminar were L.D. and Freeda Davis, Bob Dozier, Harold and Rita Jones, Raymond and Ethel Hunt, Judy Hamilton, Mike and Pauline Morrison, and Bill Sadler from C-E Natco.

Participants from Vetco Services were James and Billie Jo Boston, Manuel and Rosa Gomez, Lee Johnson, Alejandro and Rosalina Spencer, Lester and Bennie Starling, and John and Ruby Voyles.

Teacher searches, finds gift

By JULIE HILLRICHS Staff Writer

Sandra Burns of Midland spent nearly 30 years of her life in search of the proper gift to share with her

But the kindergarten teacher at Lamar Elementary School didn't realize she never had to search at all until she and 100 other colleagues were recognized for their gift to educating the state's youth.

Ms. Burns was one of two MISD faculty members named "Terrific Teachers" for PTA District 17 in the annual PTA-sponsored "Terrific Teacher" competition. Wilma Roberts, second grade teacher at Parker Elementary School also received the award. The women, nominated by their respective school PTAs for outstanding dedication and performance in the classroom, were recognized along with 100 other teachers at the state PTA's diamond jubilee convention in Houston.

Ms. Burns, kindergarten teacher at Lamar Elementary School, has been a member of the MISD faculty for eight years. She is a graduate of the University of Texas at El Paso (UTEP) and earned a master's degree at the University of Texas of the Permian Basin (UTPB).

Ms. Roberts earned a bachelor's degree from Howard Payne University, a master's degree at UTEP and a learning disability certificate from Texas A&M University. She's taught at MISD for 10 years.

I was very proud to be a member of the Midland delegation (at the state convention). To be singled out is really something special," Ms. Burns said, crediting MISD as well as all citizens for their contribution to education in Midland.

We have more than enough cooperation between MISD and our local residents. Believe me, as a teacher I want as much help as I can to get through to a child. I also encourage the kids to be active in whatever the school is doing because whether it concerns child safety seat laws, child abuse or the dangers of driving while drinking, even a kindergartener can get the message," she said.

In the classroom, Ms. Burns incorporates role playing into her daily lesson plan to educate youth on the importance of safety awareness.

We learn our ABCs every day and we can do the same to help recognize child sexual abuse or to be aware of other safety measures because people learn best by doing," she said. "Role playing can be successful if it becomes a part of the day-to-day routine. In today's society, we have to practice for our own personal safety.

Calling herself an optimist, Ms. Burns said she believes education in Midland will survive the massive reforms initiated at the beginning of the school year.

Teachers have been calling for reform for a long time. We want changes but a lot of positive things are coming out of our schools also. I think education in Midland will come through these reforms even stronger," she said.

'It's only fair that all children have a good education because they're our future. It's not too hard to show them (children) the way to go because the parents here are so involved in our schools," she added.

Newly elected sheriff to take office Tuesday

By ED TODD Staff Writer

Midland County Sheriff-elect Gary Painter, 37, is to be sworn into his first four-year term of office a minute past midnight on Jan. 1 just as New Year's Eve fades into 1985.

Painter, who succeeds Sheriff Dallas Smith, 42, is to be sworn in by Midland County Clerk Rosenelle Cherry in the 238th State District Courtroom on the fourth floor of the Midland County Courthouse. In turn, most of Painter's 55 deputies, including those he hired from Smith's eight-year administration, are to be sworn in by Ms. Cherry.

"Well," said Painter, "I feel the reality of the job is starting to hit me. I feel privileged that the people chose me.

Painter, a former patrol lieutenant under the sheriff, defeated Smith in the Republican Party primary election last May by garnering 60.6 percent of the vote to Smith's 39.4 percent. In the general election, Smith tried a comeback by waging a write-in campaign but attracted only 14.30 percent of the 39,780 votes cast in that three-way election. Painter won 58.35 percent of the vote, and Democratic Party contender Joe W. Carr, a 45-year-old Midland police detective, got 27.35 percent of the

Had Painter opted to wait until Jan. 2 to take his oath of office to "defend the Constitution and Laws" of Texas and the United States, then Smith likely would continue on as sheriff until then.

"I would have to assume the sheriff would stay in office until the successor is sworn in," said Midland County Attorney J. Scott Henderson. 'He (Painter) can be sworn in a second time (for the formality)," he said. "There's no law that says he can't be sworn in at midnight on New Year's Eve." Henderson noted that the sheriff can "hired somebody on the spot" as a deputy. "It's not a matter of somebody going before a judge and being deputized." Further, he allowed that the law provides for law-enforcement in a change-over in the sheriff's office. 'The courts would never create a

Five thousand dollars worth of items were reported stolen in the burglary of a Midland residence between Thursday afternoon and early this morning.

Nancy Sue Mosley, 1620 E. Oak, told police her house was entered by burglars who cut a hole in a back door and unlocked the dead bolt, reports said. Among the items taken were a $180 rabbit fur coat, a $2,000 stereo system, a $400 color television set, a $2,000 gold and diamond wedding ring and $800 in old coins.

About $4,000 worth of jewelry stolen from an automobile Thursday at noon was recovered late that after-

Diana Prado, 3004 Moss, told police she had left her purse in her unlocked car, which she parked in the garage when she went home for lunch. The purse, which also had contained her house and car keys, was recovered in the 3300 block of Haynes behind Midland Park Mall by a city employee, according to reports. At about 3:30 p.m., police received a call from someone who had found a yellow bag containing the rings, but no keys. The rings were described as a $3,000 diamond wedding ring, a $500 gold, ruby and diamond ring and a $600 diamond solitaire ring.

About $1,200 worth of items were reported stolen from the Valentin Reyes residence at 1108 N. Tilden. According to reports, the items were noticed missing Wednesday. Taken were a $140 roaster, $180 silver platter and a $900 gold coin ring.

Francisco J. Bosques told police his residence at 1916 Morgan Way was burglarized between 6 p.m. and 10 p.m. Thursday night while the family was out. Entry was gained by breaking a window pane out of a door that entered a room under construction. The burglars then pried open a second door into the kitchen, reports said.

Study shows Texas has large alien concentration

WASHINGTON (AP) - Texas has the third largest concentration of illegal aliens living within its borders, a study shows.

The study by Courtenay Slater. a Washington consultant and former chief economist for the Commerce Department, showed that Texas had 186,000 illegal aliens, behind California's 1,024,000 and New York's 234,000.

Illinois was next with 135,000, and Florida had 80,000, the study

An analysis of the study indicated that illegal aliens are a big factor in the job market in many communities, but their impact may be more beneficial that has been suggested.

The base of low-income workers provided by illegals may well help attract industries to certain cities, and this can both create jobs by making companies more competitive and lower consumer prices, according to the study by Ms. Slater.

Her findings, based on data from the Census Bureau and other sources, appear in the Jan-uary issue of American Demographics magazine.

'A common-sense interpretation of the Census data shows that the number of illegals is not as large or as threatening as believed." Ms. Slater wrote. Many illegal aliens are men in the 15-to-35 age group, which makes them likely to be active in the job market, she reported. But rather than harming Americans they may have a positive impact on local economies, she said. For example, she cited an Urban Institute study indicating that by providing an ample supply of low-wage labor, aliens helped attract industry and jobs to the Los Angeles area.

While she contended that the aliens do not take jobs from Americans, she did concede that their willingness to accept lowpaying positions will tend to hold down pay in some areas.

This, however, must be balanced with the additional jobs generated by more competitive industries and the lower costs to consumers that result, she contin-

And since most aliens are employed, the taxes they pay more than offset the demand they place on government programs in most cases, she con-

Assessing the impact of illegal residents has been complicated by the lack of accurate information in past years. Congress debated immigration reform legislation last summer but was unable to reach agreement on a bill during the highly charged political season

Some estimates of the illegal alien total in this country have been as high as 12 million. But studies by the Population Division of the Census Bureau last year indicated a maximum illegal population of less than 4 million, and the 1980 national head count found only about 2 million at that

The Census didn't ask people whether they were in the country legally, but estimates were developed by comparing the number of foreign-born people found by the Census with the number of legal immigrants who had registered with the Immigration and Naturalization Service. Ms. Slater used data from the Census count, and other sources, to develop her profile of illegal aliens as of the date of the Census. She estimated their total at 2,057,000

Of that total, 1,024,000 - nearly half - lived in California.

Counting the huge population in California, fully 90 percent of all illegal immigrants live in 14 states and the District of Columia, she said.

Mexicans crossing the border have drawn the most publicity, but many illegals also live in the East. The eastern concentration more commonly entered the country legally, as students or diplomats, for example, and then overstayed their visas.

Mexicans were the dominant illegal group in California, the Southwest and Illinois, she calculated. Indeed, Mexicans constituted half of all illegal aliens.

Ms. Slater estimated that 25 percent of illegals were from Central and South America; 10 percent were Asian and the remaining 15 percent were from Europe, Canada, Africa and Oceania.

New Jersey placed sixth with 37,000 illegals, followed by Virginia, 34,000; Maryland, 32,000; Arizona, 25,000; Washington, 22,000; Colorado, 19,000; Massachusetts, 17,000; Oregon, 15,000; the District of Columbia, 14,000, and New Mexico, 13,000.

Driver ticketed nine times for speeding

AUSTIN (AP) - A Burnet County driver whose pickup rammed a car containing five members of an Austin family has been ticketed for speeding eight times since 1980, according to Department of Public Safety records

Lloyd Allen Huggins, 48, of Round Mountain was driving a pickup on Texas 71 in West Travis County on Wednesday that crashed head-on into a car containing an Austin couple and their three children.

Two days earlier, Huggins had been arrested and charged with driving while intoxicated after a one-car accident on Bee Cave Road. Huggins' truck knocked down several reflector poles on the shoulder of the road in the Christmas Eve

DPS records indicate that Huggins was ticketed for speeding eight times in the 15 months between February 1980 and May 1982. He was fined for failing to appear on one of the speeding tickets, according to DPS spokesman Larry Todd. DPS records also show that Huggins was involved in a one-car wreck in which the vehicle overturned April 25, 1982, and in a one-car crash June 6, 1982. He did not receive a ticket in either accident. Huggins suffered chest injuries in the Wednesday accident and remained in stable condition at Brackenridge Hospital.

The law professor's research indicates 29 states and the District of Columbia have laws barring at least some forms of private sexual conduct between consenting adults.

"From a legal viewpoint, if there's any trend, it is moving in the direction of lessening of governmental restraints, particularly on the criminal side," Buchanan said. Since 1970, some 20 states have decriminalized private sexual conduct between consenting adults.

Texas inmate repeatedly stabbed

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A Texas Department of Corrections inmate was in stable condition today after he was repeatedly stabbed at the Ellis II Unit near Huntsville, a prison spokesman said.

Brian Shermer, 22, serving 11 years for a Comal County conviction of burglary of a habitation, was stabbed at about 11 p.m. Thursday in the prison's cellblock area, TDC spokesman Charles Brown said.

After a recreation period, Shermer was mistakenly taken to the cell of another inmate who was hiding under his bed, and who then stabbed Shermer, Brown said.

Shermer received wounds to the face, neck and left abdomen. He was in stable condition in the Huntsville Unit infirmary, Brown said

Officials were questioning a 21year-old inmate serving seven years for a Tarrant County conviction of burglary of a habitation.

Skid Row lawyer practices form of 'guerrilla law'

By PAUL PRINGLE Copley News Service

LOS ANGELES — Outside of Bob Jacobs' law office a line of 200 people meanders through the midday shadows of an alley. The men and women in the line are quietly waiting for a free meal of beans. Many of them are Jacobs' clients.

"When you work down here, you realize how low the bottom really is," Jacobs observed. "It's a little bit hard to take - seeing these people day to day, and seeing how hard their lives are.

Jacobs is a lawyer for the Inner City Law Center on Skid Row, a walk-in clinic operated by the Los Angeles Catholic Worker Community. For nearly three years, the 28year-old attorney has practiced a kind of guerrilla law in one of the most impoverished neighborhoods in America.

HIS CLIENTS are the hungry and the helpless — people who have had the hope beaten out of them by

"There are no illusions on Skid Row," said Jacobs. "Everything is exactly as it seems to be. That's one of the nice things about Skid Row, in

Jacobs is fairly typical of the three-dozen or so poverty lawyers who devote themselves full-time to representing the destitute of Los Angeles County. He is young, fiercely dedicated and possessed of a clarity of purpose.

What is untypical about Jacobs is that he works in the steely grip of poverty at its most extreme. And he also does so under terms so severely self-sacrificing that they shock even his more experienced colleagues.

The center is unique in being in the most concentrated area of the most grinding poverty in the community," said Gary Blasi, an attorney with the Legal Aid Foundation of Los Angeles. "They're on the front line all the time. It takes a lot of guts to work where they work."

THE CENTER is housed in a graffiti-scarred mobile home next to the Catholic Worker's Hospitality Kitchen, which spoons out 700 to 1,200 meals a day to the homeless. A few steps away on Sixth Street at Gladys Avenue is Skid Row Park, a ragged patch of grass and trees where the poor find shelter from the cold and

Pay for the center's full-time staff of six lawyers, paralegals and counselors is $5 per week plus room and board at a Catholic Worker communal home in nearby Boyle Heights.

"The pay's enough for a movie ticket and a box of popcorn," Jacobs quipped, then added in a serious vein: "You start a zero-based life. It's sort of liberating.

I had the basic middle-class assumptions that you need a big house, a new car and up-to-date clothes. But you don't really need founded in New York City's Bowery 50 years ago and has been active on Los Angeles' Skid Row for about 15 years. The Los Angeles community has 28 members and an annual budget of $110,000.

IN ADDITION to Hospitality Kitchen, it operates a nearby medical clinic, an overnight shelter for transients and the Justice Bakery, a commercial enterprise that offers work to the hard-core unemployed. The Skid Row law center is the only legal clinic in the Catholic Worker's national organization. Its predecessor was the Skid Row Neighborhood Justice Center, a paralegal clinic opened six years ago by Ray Correio, a 38-year-old resident of Santa Monica, Calif.

Nancy Mintie joined the center as its first practicing attorney in 1979, shortly after graduating from the University of California at Los Angeles law school. Until her arrival, there had been no full-time lawyer in the heart of Skid Row.

Mintie still is practicing there.

The center opens its doors to walk-in clients three days a week from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.; the balance of the staff's working hours is spent on casework. An average of 270 people are assisted by the center each

About 70 percent of the center's caseload involves eligibility disputes over welfare and Social Security benefits. Cases stemming from complaints about housing conditions or violations of minimum wage laws also are common.

"THE CENTER does a good job," said Rob Frontiera, a landlord whose Skid Row hotel was sued by the center over since resolved complaints about housing conditions. "I really respect the lawyers down there. This may sound odd coming from me because they did sue us.

Jacobs is a soft-spoken man whose lean, 6-foot-4 inch frame crowds the worn interior of the mobile home. He was born and reared in Piscataway, N.J., a blue-collar suburb of Newark, and was introduced to Skid Row when he made his first trip to California in the summer of 1979. He spent that summer volunteering as a vegetable-chopper at Hospitality Kit-

"I wasn't expecting to see so many young people on Skid Row," he recalled. "It was such a waste. There's nothing wrong with them they're just very poor.

Two years later, Jacobs returned with him a law degree and a sense of mission.

"Everybody who grows up in New Jersey always dreams of moving to California," he said. "So I did, and I went to Skid Row. I had spent seven years in academia and felt I needed to see people in real life."

JACOBS TRACES his activism to the early childhood years with his father, an industrial engineer.

'My father is a real philosopher," he said. "I remember when my father and I went to the (Civil Rights) March on Washington in 1963. We rode the train back with Malcolm X. "I don't tend to take a dogmatic political position. I'm interested in basic justice. Some things are pretty clear: People should have shelter, and the police should protect the

"I've been a bleeding heart since I was 8, I guess."

One of Jacobs' clients is Cayetano Alvarez, a 59-year-old man who has lived on Skid Row "a long time really don't know how long." Jacobs has successfully represented Alvarez in two benefit disputes with the Social Security Administration.

"It would be rough on a lot of people (without) the center," Alvarez said. "People depend on it. They help you here with more than they

Motherhood 'profession' lacks formal training period

Los Angeles Times — Washington Post News Service

LOS ANGELES - Since, in Kay Willis' words, motherhood is the oldest unpaid profession, it always seemed odd to her that little if any training was available. 'As each of my six daughters chose a career, there was an educational program available," she said. 'It occurred to me that when a woman chooses to be a mother, there is no place to go to learn." "Today's young woman has usually come from another career before having children, a phenomenon that probably wasn't the case for her own mother and grandmother. That young woman had been well-trained and recognized. and now she is into something where she frequently has feelings of inadequacy: And until recently, she went on, most of the authorities on mothering have been men, such as Dr. Benjamin Spock.

It happened that, in 1975, the Willis family had four children in college and was feeling the pinch. At first the mother brought in some money with catering and dry-flower arranging, but then she realized that younger mothers in the neighborhood were coming to her for advice.

She proceeded to found an educational and support group known as Mothers Matter. The first meeting was in her home in Rutherford, N.J., where seven mothers gathered to exchange parenting information what was tough for them, what they enjoyed, what skills they used.

Since that day, more than 3,000 mothers have participated in what has become a program, each of them paying $45 for five two-hour sessions. During one year the federal government chipped in with a $51,000 grant, administered through Fairleigh Dickinson University, where Willis was known as a "professor of motherhood."

"What we talk about is the mother's needs," she explained the other day, in town during the holidays as a representative of Fisher-Price Toys.

"A mother concentrates so much on her children's needs that too often she forgets about her own." Willis emphasized three areas of oncern: - Rest. "If a mother doesn't get nough rest, she won't function as ell as she wants. She shouldn't hesfate to take a nap, instead of always etting caught up with household hores. She should especially take a Dap if she has to get up every oight."

"That just creates additional stress for already overworked mothers, the concept that every moment spent with a child must be educational or productive. I think happy time - working together in the yard, playing together with toys is quality time.

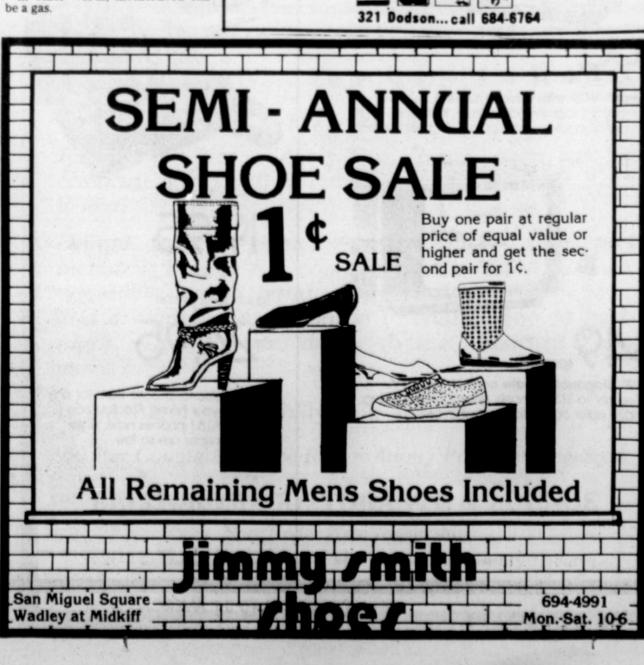

Willis, a mother of 10, turned her attention to the common decision of today's women to have children while continuing with a career.

Very few people other than mothers have two major careers going on simultaneously," she said. "And too often they come to realize that by going off in two directions they have nothing left for themselves. Nest not empty

By ERMA BOMBECK

When I thought of the "empty nest" — as I started to do three days after the birth — I fantasized about what it would be like.

You could open up a door and know it was a bedroom because you could see a bed. The closets would hold a few empty hangers and an extra blanket for cold nights. There would be nothing to trip over, nothing growing under the bed, and nothing to spray for.

It has been five years since the nest emptied and my home still looks like a garage sale that was moved indoors because of rain. It's as if the kids never left.

Cardboard boxes marked "MIS-CEL" spill out of every closet, ski poles hang out from under the bed, backpacks, sleeping bags and torn luggage line the shelves.

Somewhere it is written that something bad will happen to a mother who throws away a yearbook, a report card, or a bluebook full of wrong answers. Those are things that are supposed to comfort us in our old age ... if we live through the fire.

Grown children still at home

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Please say something in your column about grown children who choose to live at home. I am a widow with a large house and three grown children who live with me because their jobs are in this area, and so are their friends, their church and a university where they take advanced courses to enhance their careers.

Every day some busybody (usually woman my age whose children have all left home) asks, "Why are your children still living at home?" Such astonishment is expressed that one would think there was something wrong with adult children living at home. My children tell me they often find themselves trying to justify their living at home, as though it were some kind of abnormal lifestyle.

We hope that one day they will all have homes of their own, but in the meantime, living together offers each of us financial and emotional support. Besides, there are four of us to share all the household chores. and that ain't bad. — A MOTHER WHO LIKES HER KIDS

DEAR MOTHER: When grown children WANT to live at home, and their mother wants them to, I would say it's an ideal arrangement.

Three cheers for you, Mother. (Make that four.)

DEAR ABBY: "Charlie's Pal" wrote to say that Charlie was hit by a car while crossing the street listening to music on his headset. So Charlie winds up in the hospital with two broken legs and a broken arm.
"Charlie's Pal" told Charlie to sue the manufacturer of the headset for failing to warn the buyers that headsets could be dangerous if worn in Abby, following that kind of logic, manufacturers of paper bags should be required by law to put a warning on their product stating that if the paper bag is worn over the head while walking in traffic - or operating machinery — it could cause serious injury or death.

If we could only protect the fools from the world, we could have a world of fools. - DIK BROWN

DEAR DIK: I received a ton of mail on that one. Hear this from Chelsea, Mich.:

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine (I'll call him Charlie) was walking down the street reading your column when a car hit him. The driver said Charlie had walked against the light, right into the car's path. Now Charlie is all banged up.

If it hadn't been for your column, Abby, Charlie would have blamed himself for not paying attention. Instead, he hired a real sharp lawyer to sue you. After all, you should have put a warning in your column to let people know that it's dangerous to read "Dear Abby" in traffic. Right? Sorry. — ANOTHER CHAR-LIE'S PAL

DEAR ABBY: I have a crush on a guy. I'm 25 and he's 29. I felt that he was as attracted to me as I was to him, although he never asked me for a date.

I knew that your advice would be, "Tell him how you feel about him,"

He told me that it would be a long, long time before he got into a new relationship after having broken up with his girlfriend of several years. (They broke up about a year ago.)

I'm afraid that if I'm not the one to change his mind, some other girl will. The only time I see him is when my friends take me to the club he belongs to.

Do you think I blew it? What should I do now? - DEAD END

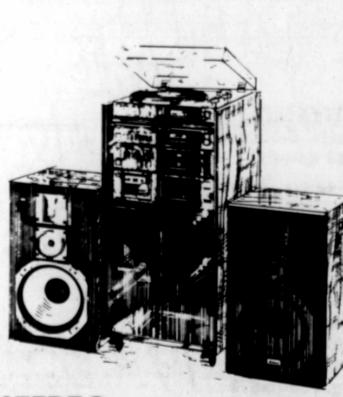

DEAR END: Do I think you blew it? Probably. Now, back off. The next move, if there is to be one, should be his.

Artie Shaw offers tips on being genius

By DON FREEMAN Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD - A man gets around, as the author John McNulty used to say, and there are those people you remember best from the year past.

I remember Artie Shaw, the great clarinetist, his name alone evoking the essence of the Big Band era. Artie had breezed in with a terrific new band, a typically Shaw band crisp, warm, limber, cohesive, exquisitely disciplined, with richly musical colors and shadings. I had asked Artie if he were a genius.

And Artie said: "There are five easy steps to being a genius - 1. Find yourself a genius. 2. Make friends. 3. Follow him. 4. Watch him.

And San Diego Padres announcer Jerry Coleman looked back on two chapters in his life, both involving uniforms reflective of an abiding sense of tradition. "It felt the same, flying for the Marines or playing for the Yankees. They were alike in terms of esprit de corps, the Yankee pinstripes and the Marine Corps

"It's just a little something to savor," Jerry said, "having had both in my life.

Joe Garagiola talked about how different it is today compared to when he was playing major league baseball: "In my day, if a guy bought mutual funds, we all thought he was J. Paul Getty. You'd ask a guy what's the Dow Jones average and he'd say,

ENTERTAINMENT

MARIAN ROSS said: "Frankly, I like being a 'celebrity,' especially when I remember back to when I was a very young, aspiring actress and what I wanted most was to pretend to be somebody else. Now I don't mind at all being me."

Mark Russell, whose line is political humor, had a ready answer for those who wondered why the Democrats chose to meet in what the locals call Everybody's Favorite City San Francisco. "If the Democrats had wanted to go to Omaha," said

Mark, "they'd have gone to Omaha." And columnist Herb Caen complained about the Democrats swarming into his city: "With all these conventioneers here it's so crowded that San Franciscans can't get into the bars they normally frequent. I mean, our own bars are jammed with people one doesn't even KNOW. And a Republican can't even get his old table at Trader Vic's. All these foreigners!'

"Foreigners?" a fellow inquired.
"Foreigners," said Herb. "That's

And when I asked him about humor and politics, George F. Will said: "Any politician without a sense

'Where's he playing at — Indianapo-lis?' " a politician to be Mark Twain but even a glimmer of humor would be cause for guarded hope.

> AND WALTER Cronkite said: "I like being at a convention and seeing the coming together of disparate elements. I like the idea of being here and watching this peculiarly American process in action.

> Sharon Gless talked about her 'Cagney and Lacey" series: "I like what we have to say as women. We don't have a hero to come to our rescue. We aren't superwomen. We're flawed. We give the audience a caper because it's an adventure show. But we also talk about our feelings. We have feelings to talk about. We care about each other. And I think people care about us."

> "Singing to me is a tonic," Frankie Laine was saying. "Singing is a gas. Singing is not just how I've made my living - singing has always been my way of enjoying life.'

> John Madden on why he takes trains to CBS assignments instead of flying: "On the train at night you barrel through these little towns just dots on the map, towns that were there a hundred years ago and you see the lights and the houses and you wonder who the people are and how they live. It makes you think about this country in ways I never did when I was flying over it

Dan Jenkins on what writing is all about: "Writing is falling in love with your typewriter and not ever getting over it."

AND DICK Shawn defined comedy: "You begin with creativity. Then some mysterious something inside of you tells you where to go and you do it. That's comedy." And Sammy Shore said: "Actually, when I think back, my father knew all along from my grades in school what I'd be in life. He'd look at my report card and he'd holler, 'What are you - a comedian?'

Intrigued by the pursuit of laughter, Jim Backus recounted the following: "Edmund Gwenn, a fine actor, was on his deathbed and someone asked him how it was. And Gwenn, a trouper to the end, took a deep breath and replied, 'It's not as hard as playing comedy. Skitch Henderson on conducting: 'A symphony orchestra can be a delicious Mack truck. It can carry a load of ice cream but it may have some cabbages in there, too.' Tom Brokaw remembered playing tennis with Pancho Gonzalez. "Playing against the great Pancho Gonzalez, I hit my best forehand," Tom said. "I mean I hit that ball as hard as I could right at Pancho."

"And what did Pancho do?"

"Pancho," Tom said with a sigh, hit it back at me between his legs." And Don Drysdale said: "When I look at a ballpark I still get the same thrill I had as a kid. That doesn't change. It is very hard to fall out of

Former Hardy boy relishes role as bad guy

By JERRY BUCK

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Is that Parker Stevenson, former "Hardy Boy," playing a bad guy? How about bigamy to start with, then rape and blackmail?

Stevenson is the new resident villain on CBS' "Falcon Crest." He joined the show this fall and in effect replaced Cliff Robertson. whose character had died in the plane crash that made up the summer cliffhanger

'Cliff was married to a woman I was also married to," he said. "I show up to stake my claim. My character is bad. He starts out with bigamy, rape and blackmail - and he gets worse. Basically, I'm a one-man crime wave in the Napa Valley. It could apply for a government emer-

Stevenson, blond and handsome, said it was unusual for him to be even considered for such a role, although he did play the arrogant race driver Aubrey James in "Stoker

"This role lets me go unshaven," he said. "I let my hair grow out and get greasy. I wear old clothes. I look so tacky. But I get mail from people Stevenson makes his final appearance in February. "I can't tell you exactly what happens, but no one blows me away," he said. "It's left up in the air. Fortunately, I've already been contacted by the producers about coming back. I hope they don't make me a good guy if I come back, a guy who's gotten it together. The only way I'd do that is if I could start out as a good guy then go bad

Stevenson sees this as a definite turn in his career, which began while he was still at Princeton and had a role in "A Separate Peace." He

"Lifeguard." He moved on to New York University Business School, but left to do "The Hardy Boys. Last year he co-starred with Billy Dee Williams in the pilot movie 'Shooting Stars," about two out-of-work actors who become detectives. His career began to turn around when he did "Stoker Ace," which starred Burt Reynolds and Loni Anderson. Stevenson's hobby, oddly enough, is racing. He has his own Panther Racing Team and competes in the IMSA and Trans Am professional series.

"I was originally supposed to play Jimmy Joe Jones," he said. "I'd prepared a Southern accent, but I ended up as Aubrey James, the bad guy driver in the canary yellow. It sort of put 'The Hardy Boys' to rest."

When he finished that series in 1979 it wasn't hard to get roles - as long as he was willing to play another version of Frank Hardy. But I'd done that for three years and I didn't want to repeat it," he said. "The difficult thing was getting people to meet with me and discuss new roles.

His real name is Richard Stevenson Parker, but he had to reverse it because another actor with that name was a member of the Screen Actors Guild. SAG does not allow two actors to have the same name, even if it's a real name.

Sweden's Per-Olov Sundelin has been an outstanding member of his country's international team for many years now. Here's an example of his technique from the Sweden-U.S.A. match at the recent World Team Olympiad, which ended in a tie.

By and large, the Swedes conducted a natural auction. South's three diamonds showed a diamond value and North's three hearts confirmed a six-card suit. When South bid three no trump it denied a second heart, so North preferred a spade contract to no trump. Considering the trump break, it would seem that Sundelin has at least four losers at his four spade contract. However, West decided this was the time to make the deceptive lead of a low club. The eight was played from dummy and East would have done best to duck. But he elected to cover with the ten and Sundelin falsecarded mildly by

Break dancing can cause serious injuries, doctors report

CHICAGO (AP) — While most medical problems caused by break dancing are minor, the craze can result in fractures, sprains, torn ligaments and life-threatening injuries, physicans said in a medical journal technique.

Doctors report they have seen cases in which break dancers have sustained back swelling, neck strain, severe ankle and thumb sprains, torn knee ligaments, fractures of the collarbone and partial baldness

"Before the 'breaking' fad passes, the medical pro-fession will witness these and other injuries," two doc-tors said in a letter in today's Journal of the American Medical Association. "Most of these problems are minor, but the potential for severe and life-threatening injury is great."

Parents and children should be advised of the unusual and common injuries that result from a "dangerous fad," the doctors said.

Doctors also say that break dancing, in which an individual often spins rapidly on his head, neck or shoulders and uses his arms and hands for balance, poses the risk of broken necks, which can be fatal; paralysis; and twisting of the testicles, which can result in a cutting off of blood supply and gangrene.

Even less serious cases can be debilitating, said Dr. Rodney A. Appell of the Louisiana State University Medical Center. "A fractured collarbone affects the use of the arm," he said.

In their letter, Appell and another doctor cited cases of two adolescent boys suffering from pain in the testicle area. Both had testicular torsion, or twisting.

Although that doesn't necessarily mean break dancing causes the twisting, the presence of the pain can lead doctors to conclude a traumatic cause for it, when there may be an underlying torsion that requires surgery, doctors say.

"If a person doesn't get cared for, the twisting (can) cut off blood supply to the testicle," Appell said. "Once the blood supply is gone after so many hours, it's too late" and gangrene can set in. That did not occur in either case he cited.

If the twisting is severe, he said, damage can result in about four hours without medical attention.

In another journal letter, doctors in New York cited a case in which a 15-year-old break dancer who had spun on his head experienced a "snap" in his neck followed by stiffness. An examination found muscular spasms and loss of sensation in one arm.

A third letter by doctors in San Diego cited a case of a 11-year-old boy who suffered from pain and swelling in the midback after doing back spins.

And in another letter, doctors mentioned two 17-year-old boys who had been practicing break dancing suffered from "patchy baldness," caused by a constant spinning on the top of the head that eroded hair

Charlton Heston makes appeal for rescue of alleged POWs

Charlton Heston has asked more than 12,000 Americans to help rescue alleged U.S. prisoners of war in Southeast Asia, saying some "are used as slaves, forced to drag plows in rice pad-

"America can't forget these men. We have to bring them home, all of them," Heston says in a 60-second recorded telephone solicitation. He says the POWs are "locked in bamboo cages in the jungle or in caves in the mountains." The recording is part of a fund drive for Skyhook II, a campaign to build support for rescuing servicemen allegedly held captive by the Vietnamese nearly 10 years after the fall of Saigon.

About 20 percent of those contacted by telephone donated an average of $20, said former Rep. John LeBoutillier of Long Island, the drive's organizer.

Nite Owl for 40 years, but says she "can't get around like I used

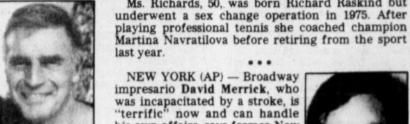

"I just love her," Nelson said. 'She's part of the family. She was just a friend to everyone. If you had a hard story, she'd be there to listen to it."

The tavern about 40 miles north of Waco has also featured such country greats as Merle Haggard, Ernest Tubb and Bob Wills.

NEW YORK (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service has lobbed a lawsuit at Renee Richards, saying the transsexual tennis player owes $23,549 in back taxes, fines and interest.

The civil suit, filed Thursday in U.S. District Court in Manhattan, alleges that Ms. Richards, who is also an eye doctor, owed the money as of Dec. 13 for failing to pay sufficient taxes for 1974, 1977 and

Famous stripper's son speaks highly of unusual childhood

By DON CARTER

Hearst News Service

Erik Lee Preminger says he survived his somewhat unusual childhood just fine, thank you. And he speaks highly of both his mother and father.

That's a relief, what with Christina "Mommie Dearest" Crawford and Gary "Going My Own Way" Crosby writing books about how their famous parents beat them with coat hangers and heavy leather

Preminger, the illegitimate son of stripper Gypsy Rose Lee and film director Otto Preminger, is the author of "Gypsy and Me." In the book, the late stripper comes off as more Auntie Mame than Joan Craw-

"She was a very good mother," says Preminger, who turns 40 this month. "Many people in her pro-fession shipped their kids off to boarding schools or hired nannies to keep them out of sight. Mother believed a child should be with his mother." He remembers that they lived in a house trailer for several years during his peripatetic childhood, "just so we could live in trailer parks, where there were always lots of kids around. But my mother was my real companion.

Preminger says it took him six years to write the book because he was profoundly influenced by her wanted to write about his flamboy- own mother's lack of ethics. He says ant mother's eccentricities without making her sound like a witch.

"Much of what my mother did could have been interpreted as being negative instead of eccentric," he said. "For example, she could have come off as being cheap instead of just tight." With money, "it was always a psychological feast or famine for her. When she wasn't working, she became frantic about money, regardless of how much she had stashed away. I know it was the influence of the Depression. She always said she got into stripping through starvation.

Preminger was periodically jerked between wealth and poverty. When the money was coming in, he and his mother toured Europe in a Rolls-Royce, buying furs and antiques. When the money wasn't coming in, they hunkered down in their 26room New York mansion with no heat and lived on virtually nothing. Preminger remembers once asking for money for some new underwear: his mother, finding two usable pairs of shorts in his drawer, sternly reminded him that Truman, while president, still found time to wash out his own underwear and socks his mother was "very generous to her mother" in the autobiography, which was the basis for the legend-ary stage musical "Gypsy." He recalls "the story about once when they (Gypsy, sister June Havoc and Mama Rose) were on the Orpheum circuit and had to travel from the East to the West Coast, my grandmother went into a pawnshop and bought two dozen pocket watches that didn't work. Every time she needed gas or car repairs, she'd go into an act about how her husband had died and left her with these children — that all she had left was her husband's watch, which she'd leave as a pledge to send money as soon as she could.

"Of course, that story can be told, so it's very funny. But my mother had a knack for telling the story so it wasn't funny — so that you remembered all those men Grandma defrauded.'

The story of his paternity, however, "was probably the one big lie of her life, and it haunted her," Preminger says. When she became pregnant in 1944, Gypsy sort of let everyone believe that Alexander Kirkland, her second husband, fathered the child, born after their

Vietnamese seize Cambodian stronghold

NONG SAMET, Thailand (AP) -Backed by artillery fire, Vietnamese tanks and troops moved closer to the headquarters of a Cambodian resistance group today after seizing the group's largest stronghold, Thai military sources said.

The sources near the battle zone, speaking on condition they not be identified, said shells exploded near Ampil camp today, fired from 105mm howitzers based northeast of the camp.

Ampil is 12 miles northeast of the rebels' largest camp, Rithisen, which was ovverrun by the Vietnamese on Wednesday - the second day of their offensive. The beleaguered rebels of the Khmer People's National Liberation Front are armed mainly with rifles and mor-

There have been conflicting casualty figures, but Thai and guerrilla commanders have estimated several hundred Cambodians and wounded since Hanoi's offensive began Tuesday. Artillery fire from the fighting has landed in Thailand, and Thai border forces in the area are on alert.

Gen. Arthit Kamlang-ek, Thailand's supreme military commander, toured the tense border area today. Shortly after he left Nong Samet, an artillery round - apparently fired by Vietnamese gunners - struck the ground about 100 yards from where the general had been stand-

The ditch is inside Thailand but the refugees have not yet fled to prepared evacuation sites deeper inside Thai territory.

Ampil is better defended than was Rithisen, which was penetrated by a tank-led attack. Ampil is defended by an estimated 5,000 wellentrenched guerrillas, fringed by thick forests and somewhat protected by a lake.

At Rithisen, accurate Vietnamese artillery fire thwarted rebel efforts to counterattack the camp, the military sources said. More than half of the sprawling camp has been razed or burned by the Vietnamese.

Newsmen were told by the guerrillas that some of the wounded fighters could not be evacuated from Rithisen due to the Vietnamese artillery, which appeared to be accurately directed by forward

One Thai officer, who has observed Vietnamese operations in past years, said the Vietnamese would probably pull out of Rithisen on their own.

Guerrilla officials have said they deliberately pulled out of Rithisen and were seeking to cut the Vietnamese army's supply lines and harass it with small unit raids.

Patrick A.J. Van de Velde, a U.N. officer, said 62,000 former residents of Rithisen were now being cared for by international aid agencies at an evacuation site known as Red Hill. The U.N. border group is the key co-ordinating agency for inter-national relief at the Thai-Cambodian border.

Van de Velde said there are now on Thai soil about 124,500 Cambodians - excluding those from Ampil who were driven out of their camps over the past year. Most have fled since mid-November when Vietnam opened its offensive in the dry season. They are allowed to stay by the Thais on a temporary basis.

The U.N. organization and the International Committee of the Red Cross, the two key agencies at the frontier, have set up temporary evacuation sites where the refugees are quickly moved and provided with food, water and rudimentary

Scientist: Soviets test reusable space system

MOSCOW (AP) — A top Soviet from space. space scientist said today the Soviet Some We Union has tested a reusable space "system" that Western experts say is scaled-down model of a shuttletype spacecraft.

Roald Sagdeyev, head of Moscow's Space Research Institute, said the device is still in preliminary testing stages and declined to give any details about the project.

Sagdeyev said he doubted the Soviet Union would ever use a spacecraft modeled directly after the U.S. shuttle and that Soviet scientists still believe the shuttle is not economically practical.

The physicist spoke to Western reporters following a news conference devoted to the Soviets' Vega 1-2 project, under which two unmanned spacecraft were launched this month for a rendezvous with Venus next June and then with Halley's comet in March 1986.

He was asked about a Tass announcement on Dec. 19 reporting the successful launch, orbit and controlled descent of a spacecraft described only as Cosmos-1614.

At the time, Western experts said Cosmos-1614 was either a small-scale version of a shuttle-type spacecraft under development by the Soviets, or a sort of space "lifeboat" that could be used to rescue cosmonauts

Some Western experts believe the spacecraft might be under development for the military, despite the Soviets' insistence that their space program has no military purposes.
When first questioned about Cos-mos-1614, Sagdeyev said, "I don't know of the specifics of the craft, but I can confirm we are considering a reusable spacecraft. But he was then asked if such a craft was being tested, and said a "model" of a reusable spaceship was in the testing stage.

Asked if that model was Cosmos-1614, and whether it resembled a space shuttle, Sagdeyev said the device launched this month was "a model of a technological system that would allow us to decide if a reusable system will be worthwhile.

"I can say that I don't think that we will ever have a direct copy of the American space shuttle," Sag-deyev added. "We are not really convinced that the shuttle is economically feasible."

Some Western experts contend the small spaceplane is in an advanced testing stage and that the Soviets also are preparing to run landing tests on a full-size shuttle that would be carried aloft for the tests by a bomber.

Gandhi's party leads in Indian election

NEW DELHI, India (AP) - Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi's Congress Party built up a commanding lead today in partial results of India's turbulent three-day general election.

As the hand counting of more than 220 million ballots continued, the United News of India news agency reported that partial returns from 60 Parliament districts showed the Congress Party leading in all but seven. At stake in the election are 507 seats.

In Amethi district of Uttar Pradesh, the prime minister headed toward a a personal triumph, leading his estranged sister-in-law Menaka Gandhi by more than 20,000

Menaka, widow of Rajiv's younger brother Sanjay, formed her own party and waged a bitter uphill struggle to unseat the prime minister on his home ground. The Election Commission rejected her complaint of large-scale fraud and intimidation during the voting Monday in Amethi.

The preliminary returns showed Congress holding a clear lead in all seven constituencies in the capital, New Delhi, including the only seat that was held by the opposition in the outgoing lower house of Parliament.

Gandhi, who was appointed prime minister within hours of the slaying of his mother Indira Gandhi on Oct. 31, is expected to lead his governing Congress Party to a resounding victory because of a splintered opposi-tion and a wave of sympathy over

The campaign concentrated on personalities in individual districts, and was noticeably devoid of major disputes over national or foreign affairs. The most frequently heard argument between Congress and the opposition parties, which held power from 1977 to 1980, was over who bore responsibility for the growth of the terrorist movement of Sikh separatists in Punjab state. Two Sikh members of Mrs. Gandhi's

Against the clear trend in favor of the governing party, at least three of Gandhi's Cabinet ministers appeared in danger of losing their seats.

Wall of silence still separating Korean families

Red Cross officials scheduled to discuss reuniting families

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) - Like 10 million other Koreans, You Chang-soon has lost family members in the void of war and hatred that has divided South and North Korea for almost 40 years.

Thus when Yoo, as head of the South Korean Red Cross, greets his counterparts from the North in Seoul next month for the first highlevel meeting on separated families in 11 years, he will have more than his countrymen's long tragedy in mind. He will be talking about his own homecoming.

'I was born, educated and worked in the North," the 66-year-old former prime minister said in an interview. In 1945 at the end of World War II, when the Korean peninsula was divided between the Sovietbacked Communist regime in the North and the pro-U.S. South, he fled southward. The 1950-53 Korean war ripped apart many more families, and left an impenetrable wall of silence between the peoples of the divided peninsula. Unlike East and West Germany, where separated families can write and occasionally visit each other, the 40 million South Korean and 20 million North Korean people have no means of communicating.

Yoo said his mother, whom he left behind in the North Korean capital of Pyongyang, "would be more than 100 today and must have passed away, but I have no way of knowing. By all means, if the opportunity were available, I want to return and find out when and how she died."

If the Red Cross talks stay on track, he may have a chance. Following working-level talks at the truce village of Panmunjom in November, the two sides have agreed to hold the eighth full-dress Red Cross conference on humanitarian issues in Seoul Jan. 23-25. If it goes well, the next meeting would take place, about a month later, in Pyongyang.

The first seven meetings, all in 1972 and 1973, ended in failure, as have all attempts to assuage the bitter divisions between the two Koreas. But this year there have been signs that North Korea, prompted by its chief ally China, is shifting from its past isolationist, confrontational policies.

Political and sports cooperation talks have failed to get off the ground, but on Jan. 17 the two sides will meet at Panmunjom for the second round of discussions on opening trade links. Seoul hopes that the Red Cross and economic talks will be catalysts for broader political talks on the eventual reunification of Korea. In the first seven meetings, the five-point agenda including the tracexchanges and permanent reunions. ing of lost family members, meet-Yoo said even an agreement on Red Cross delegations outlined a ings of separated families, letter tracing would be a major accomplishment. According to South Korean records, more than 5 million people left family behind in the move south in the aftermath of World War II and during the Korean war. Several million others were stranded in China or Soviet territory, with the wars leaving many others in the North.

Choo Sang-eun, an information officer at the British Embassy in Seoul, said he is "not too optimistic" about ever again seeing his parents, a sister and a brother he left behind in 1946 in the northern city of Ham-

'My parents would be 80-85 if they are alive, and I am very anxious to know how they are," Choo, 56, said. His father, he added, was a landowner who may have faced persecution by the Communists.

Yoo also expressed concern that South Koreans may hesitate to identify relatives in the North out of fear that the North Korean government would treat as "reactionaries" anyone with ties to the South.

Despite the years and fears, the number who would try to renew old ties would still be great in this Confucian society, where family ties outweigh all others and visits to ancestral graves are of high importance.

Last year, a scheduled three-hour family reunion show on the government-owned Korea Broadcasting System stretched to 453 hours over almost five months because of the overwhelming response of South Koreans seeking lost relatives in the KBS spokesman Chun Young-il said about 100,000 eventually made inquiries, and more than 10,000 separated families were reunited, many in weeping encounters televised before a captivated national audience.

More than a year after the television show ended, KBS continues to receive search requests and broadcasts a daily 20-minute radio program on the subject. The walls of the KBS building are still plastered with posters seeking information on separated kin.

Chun said KBS would like to expand its program to include people from the North.

"It's hard to say how big it would be, but with one out of every six Koreans separated, you can imagine the scope," he said. Chun, like so many others, has a personal stake. He has never met his mother's brother, who was living in Pyongyang in 1945 when Chun's mother was a student in Seoul. "Of course I'd like to go to the North and see what my uncle looks like," he said.
