Proposal to widen Garfield withdrawn

By RAMONA NYE Staff Writer

A recommendation to widen Garfield Street was withdrawn by a divided Planning and Zoning commission after six hours of deliberation Thursday evening.

On a 6-3 vote, with one abstention, the commission passed a recommendation that Garfield be designated as a collector street and not be widened with the exception of a left turn lane at Golf Course Road. The commission also struck out a recommendation to connect Garfield Street to Andrews Highway.

Opponents to the proposals contended that adding a middle turn lane to the four-lane street would destroy surrounding neighborhoods by encouraging more traffic to enter

"Let's use land use and traffic together, instead of opposing each other." said Scott Davis, a member of the Concerned Neighborhood

The group represented about 150 residents opposed to widening the four-lane street into five lanes.

The Planning and Development Department recommended the widening of Garfield in the Master Plan to accommodate projected traffic

The neighborhood group requested that the commission look at widening alternative routes to downtown Midland, such as Lamesa Road. The group also suggested that traffic be channeled into Loop 250, Big Spring and Andrews Highway. Planning and zoning chairman Mike McElwrath said, "I do not want to see that thing widened...until we know the problem is going to exist. "I think we're making a big mistake to commit ourselves to widening that street. 'We're fooling ourselves, if we don't at least admit to the deterioration of these neighborhoods," he Commission member Billie Ross agreed and said, "I do feel like it would change the neighborhood. It would change the heart of the city.' However, commission member Jack Cartwright said adding one more lane to Garfield would have a limited impact.

"I recognize the price the people along Garfield will have to pay. There is no doubt about it. They will have to pay. That's life.

"I don't think the price these people will pay is insufferable.

"I do not buy the argument that the neighborhoods will go to hell. Garfield has always been recognized. in place and functioning as an arterial street." he said.

The commission also unanimously accepted a recommendation to find an alternative to the Louisiana and

Gemayel's forces hit Syrian-backed leftists

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - Forces loyal to President Amin Gemayel counter-attacked Syrian-backed leftists and Moslems with tanks and recaptured key crossroads on the northern and eastern flanks of Lebanon's Christian heartland today,

They said 21 people were killed and 56 wounded in the night-long counter-offensive that took place in the central mountains above Gemayel's hometown of Bikfaya and near the ancient port city of Byblos north of Beirut. The two-pronged onslaught that leftists and Moslems began late Wednesday heightened fears of another outbreak of all-out fighting in the 10-year-old civil war. It began after the bloody crackdown Wednesday by Gemayel's right-wing Phalange Party militia and its allies on

But some people aren't laughing anymore. They've decided to restore the city's namesake.

That means building a waterfall, of course. The original falls on the Wichita River, near the city's downtown area, were destroyed in a flood in 1886, four years after Wichita Falls was established.

Police said the final toll of that battle was 350 killed and 650 wounded.

But Gemayel's defeated Christian rival, Elie Hobeika, was quoted by the Beirut leftist newspaper As-Safir today as saying 450 of his militiamen alone were killed.

Hobeika surrendered after 10 hours of fighting that started when his military chief, Samir Geagea, revolted and joined forces with Gemayel.

The 29-year-old Hobeika left the country and informed sources in Paris, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said he, his wife and 3-yearold son arrived there Thursday in a private plane.

Military sources in Lebanon said he would live abroad. However, state radio quoted him as saying he would be back in Lebanon in two weeks to regroup and confront Gemayel and Geagea.

Those who think they vanquished us will soon follow us (to exile)," As-Safir quoted Hobeika as saying. They killed more than 450. The numerous women of their families who will soon be wearing black mourning clothes will demonstrate the magnitude of that black day (of the crackdown).

A second batch of Hobeika's senior aides was flown in army helicopters to Larnaca, Cyprus, today to join their commander

Geagea's defection enabled Gemayel's 1,000 Phalangists to turn the tables against Hobeika, who angered the president by signing the Dec 28 accord with his Moslem foes.

Gemayel rejected the pact, contending it concedes too much to the Moslems and ends Christian domination of government, Parliament, the army and judiciary since Lebanon's independence from France in 1943.

The other two signatories of the pact, Druse leader Walid Jumblatt and Shitte Moslem leader Nabih Berri, were in Damascus holding talks with Syrian leaders.

Spokesmen for the Moslem militias said their assault on Christian territory had Syria's approval.

Lebanese army units loyal to Gemayel used U.S. supplied M-48 tanks and M-113 armored personnel carriers to beat leftist militiamen of the Syrian Social Nationalist Party around Dowwar, east of Bikfava and about 10 miles northeast of Beirut.

U.S. won't yield on SDI, rejects moratorium

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Reagan administration says it will seri-ously consider the Kremlin's new plan for nuclear disarmament by the year 2000 but will not yield to fresh demands for scrapping "Star Wars" missile-defense research

The administration also rejected a renewed Soviet proposal for a moratorium on nuclear testing.

Offering a cautious assessment of the Soviet disarmament offer, President Reagan said Thursday he found it encouraging and "different from things that we've heard in the past from leaders in the Soviet Union. It's just about the first time that anyone's ever proposed actually eliminating nuclear weapons."

However, he reserved judgment on whether it signaled the Soviets are serious about negotiating an arms agreement. arms agreement.

Mistrial ruling pending in nursing-home case

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A ruling is pending on a defense motion for a mistrial in the state's four-month-old murder trial against Autumn Hills Convalescent Centers Inc. and four of its current and former employees. State District Judge Don Morgan recessed the trial for the weekend late Thursday and said he would rule later on the motion.

The corporation and the individ-ual defendants are charged with murder in the Nov. 20, 1978, death of Elnora Breed.

The 87-year-old woman died 47 days after entering an Autumn Hills nursing home in Texas City. The move for a mistrial came after prosecutor Mike Guarino pointed out to defense witness Dr. Weldon

"Although you are not a defendant, you are named in the indictment as recklessly tolerating the commission of murder at Autumn

"That statement was made, I do not agree with that statement," Kolb

Guarino then asked Kolb if he remembered invoking the 5th Amendment when he testified before a Galveston County grand jury. Immediately, defense attorneys Roy Minton and Tom Sartwelle moved for a mistrial.

"There's not any question if you ask a witness if he invoked the 5th Amendment it's improper. It's probably reversible error," Minton said after court adjourned. Minton said Kolb and his attorney worked out an immunity agreement with the state before the doctor testified before the grand jury in March 1985. The same grand jury had returned murder indictments against the current defendants four months

However, assistant attorney general David Marks said Kolb invoked the 5th Amendment in front of the grand jury and then the immunity agreement was reached.

'We believe case law says we can mention it," Marks said.

Kolb was Mrs. Breed's physician for 27 years up until the time she entered Autumn Hills in October

He testified he became medical director of the nursing home in August 1978. His job, he said, was to consult with the administrators and nursing staff about procedures and policies for care of patients. Kolb testified he was aware state health inspectors had found several deficiencies in patient care at the nursing home in 1978. "What did you do about that?"

Sartwelle asked. "I met with the directors of nursing, the administrators and other personnel and discussed what could be done," he said.

You say you were at Autumn Hills every few days. Did you see at any time that Mrs. Breed was neglected?" Sartwelle asked.

'No," the doctor replied. "Do you know of any nursing malpractice or neglect at Autumn

"No," Kolb answered, adding he has continued to recommend to families that they send their patients to the Texas City nursing home.

The doctor said he operated on Mrs. Breed three times from 1961 to 1976 for colon cancer.

Even though tests in April 1978 showed no sign of a recurring cancer, Kolb said he believed it played a role in her death.

Under cross examination, the doctor admitted he did not diagnose a new cancer in April. He also admitted marking through a diagnosis of colon cancer on a medical record. However, Kolb insisted his actions and findings did not mean "she didn't have a metastasis. Mrs. Breed's prognosis when she entered the nursing home, he said, "was very poor. She seemed to be progressively wearing out from a combination of things.

One of Kolb's partners, John Konikowski, took over Mrs. Breed's care when she was admitted to Autumn

Democrats seek peace plan, not aid for Contras

Reagan's expected request for military aid to Nicaraguan rebels already is meeting congressional resistance, as three key Democrats are urging support instead for a revived Central American peace drive.

WASHINGTON (AP) - President

In separate statements Thursday, Reps. Dave McCurdy, D-Okla., Bill Richardson, D-N.M., and Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., said a military aid proposal now would be a mistake.

Richardson said a military aid request will anger moderates who supported non-lethal aid for the rebels

"There are some options that need 1981 to 1984, and they now receive to be tried out" before military aid is sought, said McCurdy, an influential House Intelligence Committee member. He added that Reagan should first assess a renewed peace effort by the five Central American nations and consult with Congress.

New Kremlin proposal timed to gain maximum impact

By CAROL J. WILLIAMS

MOSCOW (AP) — The new Kremlin proposal to end the threat of nuclear war in 15 years was timed and presented by Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev to gain maximum impact.

Moscow's official press quickly followed up by asserting on Thursday that the next move was up to the United States

The three-stage plan repackaged Kremlin arms reduction proposals, offered a step-by-step timetable and reiterated that the United States must abandon "Star Wars" research before arms cuts can start.

In presenting it, Gorbachev again showed his flair for offering proposals in public to achieve the widest tion in the best light.

He issued a statement announcing the plan on national television Wednesday, the eve of resumption of the arms talks in Geneva. Kremlin negotiators formally presented the plan at Thursday's opening session.

In an interview Thursday, Secretary of State George P. Shultz said he welcomed the Soviet proposal but wished it "could have been made quietly and negotiated about.'

The Soviet plan appeared to be a response to a comprehensive American proposal introduced in November at the arms negotiations. But Gorbachev preferred to go public with the Soviet proposals.

He has put his personal stamp on arms control statements in an effort to convince the West, especially Western Europe, that the Soviet Union is ready for serious negotiations and willing to present initiatives.

Last year Gorbachev announced a unilateral moratorium on nuclear tests. He contended the Soviet Union was willing to take the first step willing to go along.

U.S. officials said the Soviets had already carried out all of the nuclear tests they planned for 1985. Now, Gorbachev has said the moratorium will be continued for three months and can be extended beyond that if the United States agrees. He said, "We propose once again to the United States to join this initiative whose significance is evident to practically everyone in the world.

In the same way, Gorbachev has portrayed the Soviet Union as the initiator of detente and improved relations with the United States. He announced in an interview with the party daily newspaper Pravda in April that he had agreed to a U.S.-

place to be arranged later and was ordering a six-month halt to deployment of Soviet medium-range missiles in Europe. On a visit to Paris in October, Gorbachev said the Soviet Union was proposing that both superpowers cut strategic nuclear missiles by 50 percent. The Soviet press was quick to portray the new package of proposals as an initiative that tested American willingness to achieve disarmament. "If the United States, as it has repeatedly affirmed, is dedicated to the goal of complete elimination of nuclear weapons everywhere, it now has a practical possibility really to engage in it," Tass said. The news agency said world rethe opposite direction, trying not only to carry on with the nuclear arms race on earth, but also to project it into outer space." Tass issued a second commentary later, noting that President Reagan had reacted in a positive manner and promised to study the Soviet

Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, unveiling the new plan Wednesday, insisted the disarmament process could proceed only if the United States and the Soviet Union "renounce the development, testing and deployment" of so-called spacestrike weapons, the Kremlin's term for Star Wars.

The administration calls the plan the Strategic Defense Initiative, or

We certainly disagree with them on SDI," presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said. Both sides should pursue research on missiledefense systems to permit a transition from offensive to defensive

As for the test ban, Speakes said the Soviets do not need to test because they already have an advantage. "We're suspicious of Soviet moratoriums on testing because, in the past, (the) Soviets have proposed moratoria on tests and, at the same time, broken moratoria on tests." Speakes said two elements of the Soviet plan represented concrete steps: a proposed 50 percent reduction in nuclear missiles, bombers and submarines, and the elimination of the more than 500 intermediaterange nuclear missiles deployed in Europe by the superpowers.

We have had these same type of proposals on the table since 1981, again in 1983," Speakes said. "And the Soviets now have responded to them and they have set a timetable for this." Speakes said the administration considers the plan "a serious proposal that's worthy of study, and we hope that the Soviets will back it up with hard bargaining at Geneva that will produce some results." He added that "the proof of the pudding will be at Geneva and how the Soviets approach the talks, beginning today.

At Geneva, chief Soviet negotiator Viktor P. Karpov told reporters the "direct task" of the negotiators was to deal with Gorbachev's proposal. The session lasted for two hours and 10 minutes, but no details were revealed. Speakes complained that the Soviet formula for a phased removal of intermediate-range missiles in Europe "would leave us at a disadvantage" unless similar, mobile weapons deployed in Asia were dismantled at the same time.

"They want to eliminate weapons on our side that are there for the protection of Europe...while at the same time, they would like to keep their weapons that can respond and have a first-strike capability on Europe," he said.

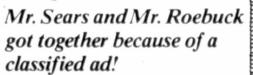

The Kremlin's plan, for the first time, outlines a system for the United States and Soviet Union to scrap their intermediate-range missiles in Europe without tying the process to simultaneous removal of French and British missiles.

Referring to that aspect, Speakes said, "Perhaps it does remove a stumbling block."

A three-tiered waterfall project got the nod from the city council on Dec. 3, and Christie said a fund drive begun last week has already raised $50,000 — almost one-fourth of the estimated $223,000 cost for construction.

Residents are being asked to contribute $2 each. If everyone in this city of about 100,000 contributes, the funding goal should be reached, organizers say. "The premise of the $2-per-person donation is a good one," Christie told the Wichita Falls Record-News. "But when it comes down to real life, we are going to need companies, organizations and businesses to rally behind what we are doing."

The city, through its engineering department, has agreed to maintain the waterfall. To keep the project from suffering a fate similar to the original falls, the construction will be designed to withstand river flooding.

A record entitled, "Put the Falls Back in Wichita Falls," has been cut in Nashville, Tenn., to publicize the drive, Christie said.

"It's inevitable now," he said of the projected June completion date. The dirt should start moving within the next month and a half.

New PUC proposed for telecommunications

By STEVE LEVINE Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Texas may need a second Public Utility Commission to specialize in regulating the "uncharted waters" of the complicated telecommunications industry, Gov. Mark White said Thursday.

"It's something we ought to be looking at," White told reporters at his weekly news conference Thursday. "I want to make certain...this (existing) Public Utility Commission has the expertise to deal with two really unrelated issues: one telecommunications, other one electric generation."

State consumer utility lawyer Jim Boyle disagreed, calling it "an idea whose time has not co-me." PUC Chairwoman Peggy Rosson refused to comment.

The current three-member commission sets rates and regulates major equipment purchases of local telephone companies such as Southwestern Bell, electric utilities other than those cities own and AT&T Communications — the long-distance company. In September the Texas Water Commission assumed responsibility for water and sewer companies; the Texas Railroad Commission regulates natural gas utilities.

"The main goal is not how many (regulatory bodies), it's how well they do," White said, adding that he is pleased with the job the PUC is doing. The governor appointed all three PUC commissioners, and some critics have complained that none of the three understands the telecommunications industry like former Chairman Phil Ricketts did.

The governor said he is more concerned about the PUC research staff than he is about the three commissioners. "A person may be well qualified in utility regulation and not particularly qualified in regulating telecom-munications," he said.

'We're in uncharted waters as fas as regulation of telecommuni-cations right now," White said, referring to the growth in competition and other complications that came with the Jan. 1, 1984 break-up of the Bell System. "We've got some very difficult decisions to make over the next few years." Boyle said he could find "no reason to think that a new commission can regulate better than the PUC." A commission concentrating solely on telecommunica-tions issues, Boyle said, "could become a captive of the telephone companies.

White also praised the PUC's decision Wednesday to grant AT&T a $53.4 million rate increase while ordering a 2.5-percent reduction in some basic longdistance tolls. He admitted that he met with AT&T officials who last week threatened to curtail investment in Texas if the PUC didn't grant a rate hike before the commission made its decision, but denied allegations that he pressured commissioners to raise the rates.

"I don't talk with them about specific cases," he said. "I talk with them about policies."

The policies White shared with reporters Thursday revolve around some of the services AT&T provides.

"In order to enjoy the computer age, we've got to have good networks of communication," he said. "I want to make certain we're going to have those investments made in Texas."

Bernstein made his decision three days after medical and legal experts and gay rights activists severely criticized the proposal and two weeks before the Board of Health was expected to approve it. He agreed with the opponents' arguments that "safe sex" education would do more to stop the rapidly spreading disease and said such a program cannot work without the help of the gay community.

"We consider the relationship between this department and the gay community as important, vital to attempting to influence the incidence of AIDS in the proper direction,"

Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome is a fatal disease spread by intimate contact with blood or other body fluids. Homosexuals and intravenous drug users are most at risk to contract the disease. Through Jan. 11, about 16,000 AIDS victims have been diagnosed across the country, with 897 in Texas.

In December, Bernstein proposed as a last-ditch effort isolation" of infectious AIDS victims who refuse to curtail their sexual activities and continue to spread the disease. The rule would have allowed a local health department — with Bernstein's approval — to quaran-tine those AIDS victims who "present a threat to the public health if

Teacher charged in grade-selling case

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A mathematics teacher accused of accepting $275 from five high school students in exchange for guaranteed good grades has been charged with one count of falsifying a public

If convicted, Harold Dennis Shannon, 29, could be fined up to $1,000 and jailed for up to a year.

The misdemeanor charge accuses

Shannon of falsifying information on a school attendance report and recording unearned grades.

Shannon was a mathematics teacher and girls basketball coach at Fort Worth's Eastern Hills High School until Dec. 4, when he resigned after being confronted by school officials who had heard rumors of the alleged Trustees accepted Shannon's resig-nation at a Dec. 10 school board meeting and asked the Texas Education Agency to revoke his teaching certificate.

The Texas Education Agency will wait until the misdemeanor charge against Shannon is settled before it considers the Fort Worth school board's request, a lawyer for the agency said Thursday.

Trustees at the Dec. 10 meeting denounced Shannon as unworthy of the teaching profession — one of three stipulations required to revoke a teacher's certification.

A teacher's certificate also can be revoked if the teacher violates state law or abandons a teaching contract. Steve Chaney, an assistant district attorney for Tarrant County, said last month he was unsure whether grade-selling violated state law.

This was a hard decision to come to," Chaney told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram Thursday. He said he and District Attorney Tim Curry "thought long and hard about it, and we felt this charge best applied to Bond for Shannon was set at $600 Shannon could not be reached for comment. Tom E. Hill, Shannon's attorney, said Thursday night that he would seek immediate pre-trial re-lease if Shannon is arrested because 'he has never been accused of a crime before and there is no risk that he won't appear when they want him to."

looming end play if he overtakes with the king of spades and shifts to a club. The defenders are now assured of a trick with the king of clubs; and when West is thrown in , with his master trump later in the hand, he will be able to exit safely with a club and sit back and wait for the diamond trick that will defeat the contract. The defense is entitled to a trick in each suit.

You don't get many opportunities to defeat opposing contracts. Therefore, it is critical to accept those chances when they come.

This hand is from the Mixed Pairs Championship of the European Economic Community Championships. Italian star Dano de Falco reached four hearts on the auction shown. West led the jack of spades, which held, and continued the suit for declarer to ruff. Now South displayed impeccable technique.

He cashed the ace and king of trumps, then led the ten of diamonds. West covered with the king and dummy's ace won. All that was left to do was for declarer to ruff dummy's last spade just in case East had preempted with a six-card suit. Since it would not help to overruff, West discarded a club. However, he was only postponing the inevitable. Declarer threw him in with the queen of trumps and,

Illness prevents Placido Domingo from conducting London benefit concert

LONDON (AP) — Prince
Charles and Princess Diana attended a gala concert at Royal Albert Hall to benefit victims of last year's Mexico City earthquake, but singer Placido Domingo was not there as scheduled.

The 44-year-old Spanish-born tenor, who was to have conducted Thursday night's performance of Verdi's Requiem, was released earlier in the day from a hospital in Barcelona, recover-

Prince Charles ing from surgery for a double hernia.

Domingo, who lost an aunt, an uncle and two cousins in the disaster, sent a recorded message, saying he hoped to be back soon in England, where he had to cancel performances at the Royal Opera

Domingo said he planned to convalesce at his Bar-celona home until the middle of March, when he hoped to resume performing in New York.

LONDON (AP) — Johnny Rotten and two other members of the Sex Pistols punk rock group have settled their lawsuit against their former manager. John McDonnell, lawyer for the former group, told a High Court judge Thursday that the three have taken over the management companies formerly owned by Malcolm McLaren, who steered the outrageous 1970s group to fame.

Lead singer Rotten, whose real name is John Lydon, drummer Paul Cook and guitarist Steve Jones had sued McLaren for about $1.44 million in royalties tied up in his management companies, Glitterbest and Matrixbest, now in receivership.

Anne Beverley, me ther of the group's bass guitarist Sid Vicious, who ched of a drug overdose in New York City in 1979, also had sued on behalf of her son's estate.

McDonnell, in announcing the settlement, said McLaren has handed over to the group the two companies "in return for which mutual releases have been entered into."

GALLATIN, Tenn. (AP) - A 300-pound safe stolen last month from the tour bus of bluegrass musician Bill Monroe has been recovered but is missing about $10,000 in cash, jewelry and personal items, authori-

The safe was found by two boys near a creek in Hendersonville on Sunday, said Detective Capt. George Farmer of the Sumner County sheriff's Monroe, 74, who had been out of town, went to the sheriff's office in Gallatin on Wednesday and opened the safe only to find it empty, Farmer said. The safe was stolen from Monroe's bus between Dec. 8 and Dec. 13 while it was parked in the Nashville area, authorities said.

PEKING (AP) — China's Olympic gymnast Tong Fei, a silver medalist in Los Angeles, is flipping careers and plans to become a pop singer, the official English-language China Daily reported today. Tong, 24, plans to retire from competition and enroll in college, but first he will record new songs written for him by Hou Dejian, a Taiwanese who defected to the mainland in 1983, the report said.

SAN DIEGO (CNS) — Baby Shamu II, the first killer whale born at Sea World in San Diego, died Thursday despite emergency treatment for what appeared to be an acute respiratory or flu-like viral Jackie Hill, a spokeswoman for the aquatic park, said a necropsy — an animal autopsy — will be performed on the calf, but full results will not be known for about a week. Hill said animal care and animal behavior staff members who had the female whale under 24-hour observation since its birth Jan. 5 became aware late Wednesday that it was suffering from respiratory

Because the calf did not respond to treatment during the night, Sea World veterinarians placed it in the intensive care medical facility early Thursday, Hill said. "There she was given emergency treat-ment for an acute respiratory or flu-like viral

The calf died at 11:30 a.m. CST.

Baby Shamu II was the second whale to be born at a Sea World facility. Baby Shamu, the first calf and half sister to Baby Shamu II, was born Sept. 26 at Sea World of Florida and "continues to do extremely well," Hill said. Both babies were fathered by Shamu, the killer whale that is the star of the show at the San Diego facility.

Since 1977, five other killer whales have been born at Marineland in Rancho Palos Verdes, Calif., but none survived past 40 days. Each calf died of a different cause, Marineland officials said.

Hill hinted that other Sea World killer whales may be pregnant, but declined to give specifics. The gestation period for a killer whale is 17 months.

HONG KONG (AP) - A Macao journalist has accused American actor Sean Penn of assaulting him and stealing his camera film when he tried to take a picture of the actor's wife, rock star Madonna, a local newspaper reported Friday. Penn and Madonna are in Macao shooting a movie called

"Shanghai Surprise." The independent Hong Kong Standard said that Leonel Borralho, 61, a well-known journalist in the Portuguese colony of Macao and a stringer for the paper, threadened to sue Penn for a $1 million for the alleged assault on Wednesday night. The paper said an incident occurred at the Oriental Hotel, and that Borralho suffered bruises to the neck as a result of an attack by Penn and a bodyguard, who also took away the film.

The paper said Penn will have to report to the police Saturday for questioning.

NEW YORK (AP) - Pianist Vladimir Horowitz, who left his native Russia 61 years ago vowing never to return, has announced plans to play two recitals in the Soviet Union this spring.

"Before I die, I want to see the country in which I was born," the 81-year-old virtuoso said Thursday. "But I didn't want to go home as a tourist," he said. "I wanted to play."

The first concert is slated for April 20 at the Bolshoi Theater in Moscow and the other a week later at Leningrad's Shostakovich Hall.

They are a result of renewed cultural exchanges between the United States and the Soviet Union arranged at the Geneva summit in November between President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, said Horowitz's manager, Peter

"After the summit agreement was signed, I suggested to the State Department that this might be the time. They leaped on it. We had an invitation from both countries the next day," said Gelb.

Border message

ant an impossible job? Consider that of the harrowed officers of the Border Patrol.

Every year they catch millions of people who are in this country illegally, go through the motions of physically transporting them back to the U.S. border and send them "home" - only to face an ever-increasing flood of illegal aliens.

It's a frustrating, emotionallytaxing, perplexing situation. What's more, the members of Congress have proven time after time in recent years to be seriously divided over ways to address the illegal immigration problem. So Congress has done what it does all too often when facing a difficult decision nothing.

The problems compounded by illegal immigration — unemployment, displaced workers, social turmoil, and more - continue to go wanting because action on the situation is pushed aside.

How big is the "problem"? Well, for 1985 alone 561,054 illegal aliens were apprehended along the Texas-Mexico border.

And for every illegal alien caught by the Border Patrol, immigration officials tell us, several slip past undetected.

Furthermore, the Border Patrol doesn't have either the manpower or the funds to catch all the illegal aliens entering this country. An increase in Border Patrol personnel in 1985 was credited with a 17.8 percent increase in the number of illegals apprehended. Still, though, that literally was a drop in a big, never-ending bucket

How big is the problem? Consider this: There's now a "tour" book being published by two New Mexico residents that is written in Spanish and tells illegal aliens how to live in the United States - what to do if arrested, the cheapest places to shop, and so forth.

The pamphlet obviously recognizes a fact the Congress does not: There are millions of illegal aliens in this country and unless something is done, the problems they face and the problems they are creating for society will only get worse.

Do you want this job? Congress obviously doesn't.

Double standard

terrorist is a terrorist is a terrorist. And a government that supports terrorism is a ... etc. Except, apparently, when that government is also important to what optimists call the Middle East peace process. In that event, the U.S. State Department is not above the expediency of a double standard. Case in point: Syria.

For the record, Syria is on the U.S. government's official list of nations that sponsor international terrorism. And not without abundant cause. Among the terrorist acts for which U.S. intelligence holds the Syrians at least partly culpable were the 1983 bombings in Lebanon that killed 17 Americans at the U.S. Embassy in Beirut and 241 U.S. servicemen in the Marine barracks at Beirut airport.

It also happens that Syria sheltered elements of the now-notorious Abu Nidal group after the Palestinian renegade and his killers were expelled from Iraq during the early 1980s. Abu Nidal moved on to Libya last year but his group's previous terrorist attacks in Europe and the Middle East could hardly have occurred without at least tacit Syrian approval. What is more, there is some reason to believe that the Syrian regime of Hafez el-Assad continued providing assistance to Abu Nidal even after the move to Libya.

This latter evidence especially was what Robert B. Oakley, head of the State Department's counterterrorism office, presumably had in mind recently when he suggested that economic sanctions might be levied against Syria as well as Libya in the wake of the airport massacres in Rome and Vienna. But after Syrian officials reacted angrily to this suggestion, Secretary of State George Shultz said no sanctions were contemplated against

But having said all that, it should also be apparent that an effective American policy of countering terrorism must be a consistent one.

Another View:

Americans in debt

mericans are now borrowing more heavily than at any time in their history. This great surge of borrowing began four years ago and continues to run strongly. It is being led by the federal government, but there is much more to it than the budget deficit. Corporations are borrowing heavily, much of the borrowing being related to takeover strategies. Private individuals are borrowing heavily, pushing the country's standard of living well beyond any level that it is currently earning and the difference is visible in those growing foreign trade

How dangerous is this accumulation of debt? The answer starts with a little history. From the end of World War II to the early 1980s; there was remarkable stability in Americans' total debt. public and private. It stayed at an almost constant ratio to the size of the national economy. fust under 11/2 times the gross national product. The United States came out of the war with a high federal debt but low levels of business and personal debt. Over the next 31/2 decades, federal debt dropped in relation. to GNP while, at precisely the same rate, private debt rose to finance industrial growth, housing and, increasingly, private

That changed after 1981. Both public borrowing and private porrowing turned in the same direction — up. The total accumulation of debt is now significantly larger, in relation to GNP, than at any time in the past generation.

If this borrowing were being financed entirely by Americans, the consequences would be simpler and less disquieting. Economists used to be able to dismiss doubts about rising debt by observing that it was merely a matter of Americans lending money to other Americans within the closed system of the national economy. That's no longer true. A substantial amount of this borrowed money now comes from abroad.

As Americans become increasingly dependent on foreign financing, the foreign investors will become more important to the American economy. Collectively they will have great influence over two of the fundamental determinants of American prosperity, the interest rates and the dollar's foreign exchange

Rising debt itself is not necessarily a threat. It's the way in which it is being financed that deserves attention and concern. The original Reagan economic program of 1981 was supposed to encourage greater savings and investment. Instead it has generated high consumption and a dismayingly low savings rate — with the gap being filled, at the moment, by Japanese, European and Latin American lenders. Of all the miscalculations in the Reagan program, in the years ahead this one is likely to prove the most troubling.

tive intelligence report indicates that 100 or more Khomeini agents have entered the United States during the past year alone by way of Iranian-controlled terrorists have already demonstrated the virulence of their hatred for Americans: At last count, Khomeini's minions were responsible for the violent deaths of at least 264 Americans in the Middle

That's what lent added urgency to a highly confidential message sent out last Nov. 15 to U.S. airport security offices and Federal Aviation Administration regional divisions. The bulletin, not publicly reported until now, warned:

"Information has been received that approximately 400 individuals, of various Middle Eastern nationalities, have been training in hijack operations inside Iran. There were indications that Iranian authorities were seeking passports in preparation (of a) hijack op-eration. The Iranians obtained 176 Algerian passports for use by these ... who are reportedly to undertake a hijack late in November or December 1985.

"It is unknown at this time where the hijacking will take place or what airliner may be involved."

(It's possible that the intelligence information that led to this warning actually foretold the recent Rome and Vienna terrorist attacks, which were intended to be hijackings. The terrorists were trained in Isfahan,

U.S. intelligence agencies know the Shiites' orders to begin opera-tions in the United States this year come right from the top; the Supreme Council of Islamic Revolution, formed by Khomeini in September 1981, to oversee some two dozen terror organizations.

One of the council's key compoents is the Committee America, which has operational centers in this country and Canada. Our sources say one of its members, Sheik Majdeddin Mahalati, arrived in the United States last summer. Mahalati's terrorist pedigree includes the executions of hundreds of followers of the late shah in Shiraz during the 1979 revolution.

Khomeini has allocated millions of dollars to build up a Shiite terrorist organization among the more than 60,000 students from Islamic countries who attend U.S. universities. Recruiters are reportedly paid $1,200 a month to sign up potential

Even before the Iranian revolution, Khomeini's recruiters were proselytizing black militants in U.S. prisons, under the guise of teaching them about Islam. One recruit, David Belfield, was charged with killing anti-Khomeini exile leader Ali Akbar Tabatabai at his home in Bethesda,

Within hours of the shooting, Belfield had been spirited to Canada, provided with a fake passport by Iranian diplomats, and flown to Zurich and then Tehran. Today, calling himself Daoud Salhuddin, he is an adviser to Khomeini's terrorist plotters. He serves as liaison between the Khomeini regime and Iranianbacked underground networks in the United States, organized under the Assembly of United Arab

Once before, in November 1983, the FBI and other agencies learned of plans by the Khomeini underground to conduct terrorist operations in this country. The information was regarded as reliable enough to require defensive measures. Concrete barriers and other security devices were installed outside the White House and the State Department. They are still in place.

CHARLEY REESE Khadafy's being made U.S. fall guy

Friday, January 17, 1986 Midland Reporter-Telegram

've no use for the Libyan dictator, Moammar Khadafy. The sooner he takes a one-way trip to visit Allah, the better. Still, Khadafy is being made a fall guy. Khadafy supports terrorism but no more so than most of the Arab Saudi Arabia has given more than $100 million. Syria and Iraq both support terrorist factions. The PLO's headquarters are in Tunisia. The squad that hijacked the Achille Lauro left from Egypt and would have been set free by the Egyptians had we not intervened. The Arab League just rallied to Khadafy's support and if you check the United Nations, you won't find Khadafy and other Arab states voting differently.

So why pick on Khadafy? Yasser Arafat, the PLO chairman, has ordered more deaths by terrorist hit squads than Khadafy. He personally gave the order to assassinate American diplomats in Sudan. Most of the assassinations linked directly to Khadafy have been Libyans. Not so with Arafat's victims. Why then would the Reagan Administration rescue Arafat from West Beirut, but raise heck with Khadafy?

When the Israelis went into Lebanon to roust the PLO in 1982, they found tons of U.S. rifles, still in their original crates, addressed to Saudi Arabia. Why didn't the Reagan Administration apply sanctions to the Saudis for supporting terrorists who had killed American diplomats, American civilians, and Israeli children? For that matter, why didn't the Reagan Administration blast the Arab governments for supporting Khadafy? Khadafy surely has less blood on his hands than Syria's Hafez Assad or Iraq's Saddam Hussein, known as the Butcher of Baghdad. Yet the Reagan Administration has sought a rapprochement with Iraq and soft-peddles Syria's involvement with terrorism which most surely includes the bombing of our embassy and the deaths of 241 servicemen in Beirut Airport. Abu Nidal, w the latest airport massacres, only recently set up shop in Libya. Abu Nidal has been around for years but mostly hung out in Baghdad. Iraq certainly must bear as much responsibility for Abu Nidal as Libya.

What you are seeing in all the attention being focused on Khadafy is an example of Eastern Establishment hypocrisy. Khadafy is small potatoes in terms of his financial ties to the American Establishment even before the first set of economic sanctions were applied. His main oil dealings have been with Occidental which is large but not part of the old establishment crowd of big oil companies. Occidental, in fact, played a part in breaking up the cozy relationship the so-called Seven Sisters had in the Middle East. Therefore, the U.S. feels it can afford to kick Khadafy around whereas it ignores the outrageous behavior of Saudi Arabia.

Libya is also weak. While the Soviet Union has used Libya as sort of a storage depot for weapons, it by no means has as close ties to Khadafy as it does to Syria. Finally, Khadafy has messed around with Sudanese rebels and this no doubt makes Standard Oil of California, which has a huge oil concession in Sudan, quite nervous. The former dictator of Sudan upon whom the U.S. showered aid is one of the worst human rights abusers in the postwar era.

The Reagan Administration, like previous administrations, pursues an ambivalent policy in the Middle East. It supports Israel, mainly because Congress demands it, but also caters to the Arab states. The Arab states iso pursue an ambivalent policy. They raise hell about Israel and about our support for the Jewish state but they also want to do

Two keys to understanding the Middle East are that the Arab world is riddled with factions and that nobody, save a few Palestinians, is really interested in what they all claim to support — an independent Palestinian nation. Arabs twice rejected the option. Once in 1947, when the U.N. partition plan would have es-tablished such a state, and again be-tween 1948 and 1967 when Arabs controlled the West Bank and Gaza and would not even grant Palestinians in those areas autonomy, much less independence.

You might be interested to know that on Dec. 17, five Arab terrorists attacked the Rome Airport where they killed 31 people, including 29 aboard a Pan Am jet. That was on Dec. 17, 1973. Twelve years and one month later, the U.S. has still to take decisive action against Arab terrorism. As long as there are such strong financial ties between the Arabs and big oil and big banks, don't hold your

ASHINGTON — Playing the political brand of cool pool that has made him a formidable Israeli leader, Prime Minister Shimon Peres pocketed a bundle for himself and President Reagan on Monday by facing down Ariel Sharon and other Likudniks intent on driving the last nail into the coffin of the Camp David entente arbitration process be followed to resolve Israeli-Egyptian disputes, Peres has assured Egypt of getting Taba back. But far more, he has set a future pattern for fair Israeli treatment of the Israeli-Egyptian relationship under Camp David. If his Likud Party successors do not follow that pattern when they take power in September, they risk the challenge of new elections reinstall-ing the Labor Party's Peres as prime ster. Odds are growing that that is what may happen.

For a Reagan administration that is striving to keep weak toeholds in the Arab world — starting with Egypt — that could become a political salvation. Because starting in September, when Likud takes power in Jerusalem, the U.S. will be forced into one embarrassing embrace after another with Israel's hardline Likud leadership. The only way to escape will be through a Peres threat to topple the government and go to the country for new elections.

The curious "rotation" system of power that emerged from the close 1984 Israeli election gave power to the Labor Party's Peres for the first two years and the Likud Party's Itz-hak Shamir for the last two years of the four-year term. Either party can pull out of the government and try for new elections whenever it wants.

Therein lies the genius of Peres' Taba ploy. He could have used the Taba issue, and Likud's initial refusal to go the arbitration route, months ago to pull his Labor Party out of the coalition government. But he might not have been able to win consent of parliament (Knesset) for new elections. The religious parties hold 13 seats, enough to block a new election, which they do not want. Toppling his own government with-out assurance of taking his case to the voters would introduce a period of convulsive politics into Israel that could cost Peres his leadership. But Peres risks little if he pulls down the government over the Camp David issue of Egypt and Isra-el or on the question of the West Bank and Israel's relations with Jora dan — after, not before, he has been replaced by Prime Minister Shamir in September and he replaces Shamir as foreign minister. If he withdrew his Labor Party from the Shamir-led "unity" coalition and asked for an election on the peace issue, with the U.S. displaying politically potent sympathy, he might regain power. He would then reimpose policies designed to soothe, not arouse, Arab sentiments.

That may prove illusory. No mat-ter how objectionable the Likud successor government becomes to the U.S., a challenge from Peres would still require a strong, public assist from the White House to succeed. The Reagan White House has shown little eagerness in the past to throw its weight against an Israeli government, refusing to denounce even the Likud-ordered Israeli invasion of Lebanon.

Another dose of such Reagan administration complacency during the coming two years of Shamir as prime minister, whether led by Secretary of State George Shultz or congressional powers overly solicitous f Likud, could break the back of all Vestern peace plans. Indeed, Middle East specialists here believe that even though Laborite Defense Minister Itzhak Rabin will keep his job when Shamir and Peres switch places, new bitterness with Egypt and Jordan will probably be unavoidable — and military challenges to Syria highly probable.

The issue of Israel returning Taba is supposed to be finally resolved by September under the Israeli cabinet agreement reached this week. Al-though that is just when Shamir is scheduled to take over from Peres, a change in government policy would seem utterly impossible

But Taba aside, Peres has now drawn an indelible line across the Arab-Israeli peace debate that puts the Labor Party squarely on the side of legality and decency, a policy that should extend far beyond the 250acre stretch of beach on the Gulf of Aqaba. Whether it does will depend at least as much on President Reagan and George Shultz as on any fu-ture challenge by Shimon Peres against his Likud successors.

Shultz: Khadafy's threats are 'smoking gun' of terrorism

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz says the latest Libyan threat against America is the "smoking gun" that proves the North African country is sponsoring terrorism, but the Pentagon is still saying it is wary of military. saying it is wary of military

Shultz — again appearing to be more willing than Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger to use military force against countries sponsoring terrorism — likened Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy to a suspect caught at the scene of the crime with irrefutable evidence of his wrongdoing.

Shultz's views were relayed to reporters by State Department spokesman Bernard Kalb.

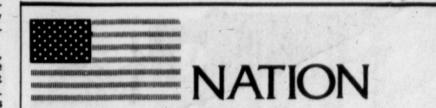

Asked on Thursday what Shultz thought of Khadafy's threat to train Arab suicide squads to attack American forces, Kalb said the secretary replied, "Khadafy is his own smoking gun."

Kalb added, "In a general way,
Khadafy's statements should have been in the past tense. He has in fact been training terrorists for years. The new element in his speech is that he publicly admitted support

On Wednesday, Khadafy called on members of Arab groups to volun-teer to be trained in Libya for suicide missions, and said his country would provide the needed weapons. In a radio broadcast, he also said Libya was a base from which to act for the Palestinian cause.

It was not clear whether Khadafy was offering to train suicide attackers only against a possible military invasion or also on behalf of the Palestinians.

At a Pentagon news conference Thursday, Weinberger said Khadafy's words proved "what we've been saying right along." The Reagan administration has accused Khadafy of providing training grounds for the

The defense secretary said Khadafy's statements had not heightened his concern for the safety of U.S. forces in the Mediterranean, which were augmented Wednesday with the arrival of a second aircraft carrier battle group. Weinberger said he agreed that force is sometimes a necessary response to terrorism, but he set more preconditions for its use than Shultz had in a speech on Wednesday. Shultz said the government must be prepared to use force even if the public is not united behind the action and even if there is not total "clarity" about the target.

Weinberger said, however, that even if there was widespread support for a strike against Libya, "The important point is to have some clear idea that if any attack seems to be indicated on (terrorist bases) that these are indeed bases that have spawned terrorism that is directed against us. The indiscriminate response is not...what anybody is call-

A military strike is appropriate "where we could get at them without causing collateral damage; and as you know, collateral damage is the euphemism for how many wom-en and children you kill in your at-tempt," he said.

"But when the occasion is there, when the response can be appropri-ately made, we are capable of doing it and we will do it," Weinberger

Weinberger suggested his differ-ences with Shultz were merely over

"I don't think, for example, that Secretary Shultz has in mind spraying any target that somebody men-tions might be a target. And I don't have any intention of not responding when it's appropriate."

Attempted murder, assault charges dropped in subway-shooting case

NEW YORK (AP) — Dismissal of attempted murder and as-sault charges against Bernhard Goetz means "the worst is over" for the subway gunman, who now "this nightmare will end for him," his Goetz lawyer says. The charges against Goetz, who shot and wounded four youths he said were trying to rob him in December 1984, were thrown out Thursday by Judge Stephen Crane, who called the case "one of the most difficult of our generation." The case attracted international attention and fired a debate over whether Goetz, 38, who had been mugged before, was a crime victim fighting back or a vigilante looking for trouble.

Goetz still faces charges of weap-ons possession and reckless endangerment, but Crane dismissed four counts of attempted murder and four counts of assault. He ruled that two of the victims may have lied before a grand jury and that a prosecu-

Mark Baker, one of Goetz's lawyers, described his client as gratisatisfied and happy, and said, "He feels vindicated to a large extent." Barry Slotnick, another lawyer, said his client realizes "the worst is over" and hopes "this night-mare will end for him."

The next step in the case comes Jan. 21, when Slotnick said he will ask Crane to set aside the remaining charges "in the interest of justice."

Asked if he planned to resubmit the more serious charges, District Attorney Robert Morgenthau said, "We are studying the decision and will decide later whether to appeal."

Goetz shot James Ramseur and Barry Allen, both 19, and Troy Canty and Darrell Cabey, both 20, on Dec. 22, 1984. He said they surrounded him in a subway car and that Canty menacingly demanded $5. Canty said he merely asked for $5. Cabey has been paralyzed from the waist down since the incident. The others have recovered from their injuries.

After the shooting, Goetz fled into the subway tunnel. He surrendered on New Year's Eve to police in Con-cord, N.H.

On Jan. 25 a grand jury declined to indict Goetz for attempted murder, charging him only with weapons violations. But a second grand jury indicted him for attempted murder and assault, the charges dismissed

Crane said he threw out the most serious charges for two reasons: Assistant District Attorney Gregory Waples' incorrect answer to a grand juror's question about the law of self-defense, and the testimony of Ramseur and Canty.

"If testimony....was perjured, as it strongly appears to have been, the integrity of the grand jury was severly undermined, to say the least," Crane said. Their testimony, he noted was the major difference be ed, was the major difference between the case laid out for the earlier grand jury and the case presented

Reagan reluctant to undergo first colon exam since surgery

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan said he was "not looking forward to" the first thorough examination of his colon since he had a cancerous tumor removed seven months ago.

The president's examination at Bethesda Naval Hospital just outside Washington called for a colonoscopy, an uncomfortable but rarely dangerous modern procedure used to examine the full length of the 5-foot-long large bowel. It is the same procedure that disclosed the 74-year-old president had a large malignant polyp at the upper end of his colon last year.

The examination was scheduled for today. While posing for pictures with Coretta Scott King on Thursday, Reagan was asked if he were ready for the examination. He laughed and replied he felt fine, but "some preparation continues overnight and into the next morning. I'm not looking forward to it at all." The president then turned to Mrs. King and explained he was undergoing tests his doctors recom-mended he have six months after his surgery, which took place last July 13.

He mentioned that the preparations included "no solid foods since before lunch today." The president also must drink a purgative solution several hours before the procedure to ensure the bowel is clean before the examination begins.

Colonoscopy is a relatively new medical procedure in which the physician uses an instrument called a colonoscope to examine the colon. The colonoscope is a long, flexible tube which utilizes fiber optics technology to enable a physician to view a magnified image of the inside of the colon as the instrument is guided by remote control through the winding digestive tract.

During Reagan's first colonoscopy last July, physicians discovered a large growth which probably had been growing for some years near the top of the

After it was removed surgically and examined, the growth was found to be malignant, or cancerous. But doctors said they were satisfied they had caught the disease before it had spread beyond the bowel Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said he did not know when the results of today's examination would be known, nor whether Reagan would spend the night at the military hospital or go on to Camp David to spend the Martin Luther King Jr. holiday weekend at the presidential retreat in Maryland.

Cancer specialists recommend that people who have had colon cancer should have colonoscopies every six months thereafter to guard against the growth of new, potentially cancerous lesions

Unseasonably warm weekend in store for area

Midlanders can expect a sunny and unseasonably warm weekend, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal.

Tonight calls for low temperatures in the mid-30s and southwest winds at five to 10 mph.

Saturday will be fair with temperatures reaching the lower 70s and west winds at five to 15 mph.

The highest temperature recorded for Thursday's date was 79 degrees in 1971. A record low of 14 degrees was set in 1957 for totaly's date.

A weak cold front brought clear skies to the western half of Texas today while fog shrouded north cen-tral portions of the state and forecasters predicted isolated rainfall across the state.

Scattered showers and cloudy skies hovered over the eastern half of the state. Showers and a few thun-derstorms stretched from the northeast section of texas southward to the Coastal Bend at 5 a.m.

Fog reduced visibilities to near zero from Wichita Falls to Waco where the National Weather Service posted a travelers advisory. Mean-while, clear skies and mild temperatures were noted in West Texas.

Early-morning temperatures ranged from the 30s in the Panhan-dle to the 60s along the Coastal Plains. Extremes ranged from 26 at Marfa to 63 at the Naval Air Station at Corpus Christi.

Winds were light and southerly across the eastern part of Texas and westerly in the Panhandle.

Scattered showers and thundershowers should continue over East and South Texas. Mostly fair conditions were expected in western stretched to the northern Rockies. Travelers' advisories due to snow were issued for the mountains of Idaho, the mountains of eastern Oregon, the Cascade Mountains of Oregon and higher elevations of the northern California Sierra Nevada.

Rainshowers were scattered from eastern Texas across Arkansas into western Mississippi.

Today's forecast called for rain and gusty winds from the northern half of the Pacific Coast into the northern Rockies, with rain changing to snow in the high country; and showers and scattered thunderstorms from the Texas Gulf Coast across the lower Mississippi Valley and from the Tennessee Valley across the central Gulf of Mexico coast through the Florida

Midland High places perfect start on line

By TERRY WILLIAMSON Assistant Sports Editor

Midland High's Bulldogs have raced to a perfect 5-0 District 4-5A basketball mark, but tonight's 8 p.m. date with Odessa Permian and Tuesday's date with cross town rival Midland Lee at Chaparral Center may be the two most important games of the season for the Bulldogs as well as their opponents.

Both Permian and Lee stand at 4-1 in the league race and breathing hard over the phone at MHS. The questions that will be answered over the next five days are simple. Will MHS be able to roll down the second half path with a big two-game mar-gin over the field? Or — will the Bulldogs be pulled back into the pack, scratching for playoff life?

"There is no question that I like where we are right now, but we face some big games. It's up to us to take charge," said MHS coach Jack Ste-phenson. "Lee and Permian are both playing well and we have the lead, but not by much."

Permian is coming off a key 86-66 demolition of the San Angelo Bobcats. San Angelo has now lost two games in a row to fall back into the pack and that's the prospect the Bulldogs face over the course of the next two games if they don't play well. It's pressure time in 45A— even though the first half race hasn't ended.

Lee, too, has been impressive and the Rebels travel to winless Odessa High tonight in hopes of keeping right in the thick of the playoff battle. Lee is coming off an impressive 75-59 win over Abilene High on the road and the Rebs are taking each outing seriously.

Lee coach Paul Stueckler all but promised victory in Abilene last Tuesday, saying, "I know one thing. We're going to Abilene to win," when it was pointed out to him that it's tough to win a road game at Abilene High.

The Rebels backed up the statement in furious fashion and are expected to notch another win over OHS tonight. The Bronchos, who all coaches figure as dangerous, is off to an 0-5 start and is coming off a 63-60 loss to 2-3 Big Spring.

Still, to this point of the district season, MHS is the only team that has answered every bell with a victory in every outing. Momentum is on the side of the Bulldogs.

Should MHS win their next two outings, the Bulldogs will own the BASKETB big two-game buidge over the field with only seven games left to play. That's not a playoff berth in the hip pocket, but it's a start that won't be gnored. A couple of quick losses at this stage to two good opponents and MHS will be a pack runner with the rest of the league.

San Angelo, which raced to a 3-0 beginning, has now lost two in a row, but the Bobcats don't figure to be out of the race. They meet 1-4 Abi-lene Cooper tonight while Big Spring travels to Abilene High. The Steers have won two of its past three

One reason the Bulldogs have dominated league play thus far is the fact that MHS has three of the league's top seven scorers. The Bulldogs are averaging over 80 points a game with Elvin Mackey leading the way with 119 points, three more than San Angelo's Chris Lowry. MHS' Anthony Deande ranks fourth in the league with 109 points. league with 103 points while Matt Sears is seventh with 86 points.

Lee's scoring machine is also gain-ing ground. Anthony Dickens has

102 points, ranking fifth in the league and Lee Dixon follows with

MC scores 101, stays unbeaten with 19th win

Rebel girls turn corner undefeated

From Staff Reports

The Midland Lee girls turn the corner tonight in the District 45A basketball race right where seven other teams would like to be — un-defeated and all alone at the top at 7-

The Rebeis will host Odessa High, 2-5, 7-12, in an 8 p.m. tip off at Lee Gym, while the second place Mid-land High Bulldogs, will take their 6-1 record over to Odessa Permian to meet the 3-4, 13-9, Panthers.

Lee, 146 overall this season, must try to avoid a second half slump similar to last season's when coach Shirley Stephenson's club also won every game in the first half. Sprinting out to 8-0, the Rebeis limped home to a second place tie — then lost the play-off to MHS and missed the state

Both Midland teams will have to avoid looking ahead on the schedule pair off for a second time. This time around, MHS will have the home court advantage. That game will also start at 8 p.m. Lee coach Shirley Stephenson is well aware of last year's second half slide, but is optimistic heading into this year's second half race.

"We have a better home schedule this year with only trips to Midland High and Abilene twice in the sec-ond half," Stephenson said.

In the first meeting between MHS and Lee, the Rebeis won a narrow 42-38 defensive battle in the Lee

The Bulldogs can't look shead to that matchup, however, since Permian is 130 on the season and owning some talent. Tonight would be an easy place to stub a toe on the way to what could be a key matchup Monday with Lee.

In first half play, Lee defeated OHS by an 80-45 margin on the road while coach Jane Young's Bulldogs slipped past Permian by a narrow 43-40 verdict, at home.

Odessa High calls on Jerry Taylor

Hereford coach carries 76-32-4 record

From Staff Reports

ODESSA - Jerry Taylor, who has been head football coach at Hereford the past three seasons, was officially given the reigns of the Odessa High football program Thursday. Taylor was approved by the Ector County Inde-pendent School District's board of trustees at noon

Thursday in emergency session.

Taylor, 44, posted a 21-10 record in his three years at Hereford, winning a playoff berth in 1983 when he was named Coach of the Year in District 3-5A. Taylor posted a second place finish in 1983 and had two other third place finishes. Taylor's only playoff appearance at Hereford ended in bidistrict play in a loss to Odessa Permian.

Taylor's overall coaching mark in his 23-year career is 76-32-4. His best record was posted at Stamford, his high school alma mater, where he had a 44-14-2 record, including a state semifinal berth in 1981. He was also a head coach at Tahoka and served as an assistant at Spearman, Amarillo Caprock and Abilene High.

"This is a great opportunity to coach in a great district and I feel like Odessa High has a good program on which to build," said Taylor. "I want the kids at Odessa High to know that no prior judgements have been made and everyone will get chance to show what he has.

"We'll run a split back offense that features the triple option and, don't hold me to this, but we'll throw from 15 to 25 times a game." John Wilkins, who recently resigned to accept Odessa's athletic director position, said, "Obviously, we feel Coach Taylor is the man we want for Odessa High. He is a sound football man and has shown over the years a fine record."

The hiring of Taylor ends a long search for Odessa High since former OHS coach Jerry Millsapps announced his resignation on Oct. 25, following a loss to Big Spring. Millsapps finished the season with the Bronchos before stepping aside.

Over 30 applications were received for the va-cancy, including that of Midland Lee head coach

Jack Tayrien, who withdrew his name from consideration last week after talking to Wilkins about the job in New Orleans at the NCAA convention. Wilkins also met with Taylor and other coaches in New Orleans last week. Other finalists for the OHS job were believed to be Irving Nimitz' Mike Farda and McCamey's W.C.

Taylor, who will report to OHS on Feb. 3, has been given permission to bring four of his assis-tants from Hereford with him. Taylor said that current OHS assistants will be given the chance to fill the remaining positions.

Wilkins still faces the prospect of replacing him-self at Odessa Permian. That decision is expected to be announced Tuesday. Frontrunners for that position are considered to be Wilkins' defensive coordinator Ken Herring and Monahans' Gary Gaines. However, there are several other top-notch coaches being considered, including some former college coaches and out-of-state high school

Landry will seek 'fair' trade for Hogeboom

Landry, in an interview with Dallas television station KTVT-TV during halftime of the Wednesday Dallas Mavericks-New York Knicks basketball game, said that Hogeboom formally asked for the trade during a meeting earlier in the day.

Hogeboom said.

Super Bowl shuffle: Real joy of pain for Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Arrrrrrrrrgh. Hogs crying, gangsters dying, running backs lying on the ground in pain. Chicago's kind of sounds.

New beat heard on the street.

"We're not here to start no trouble." "We're just here to do the Super Bowl shuffle." Traditionalists scream, opponents get creamed, Chicagoans dream and don't want to wake up.

"Ours is a one-syllable town," writes author Studs Terkel in a recent essay about his kind of town. "Its character has been molded by the muscle rather than the word.'

The Chicago Bears are the muscle today. Al Capone was yesterday.

"Arrrrrrrrgh," though, remains the word. It was what National Football League ball carriers and quarterbacks said all season long — what Capone's competitors used to say — when they met the

In places where no English is spoken, people still think they know something about Chicago.
"Shee-ca-go. Al Capone," they smile, hands thrust forward, thumbs arched, index fingers pointed out.

But wherever people do speak English, they are learning new things about Chicago.

"Football is what Europeans think America is all about ... powerful, big, brash, dynamic, larger than life. And the Bears are football over here," said Bob (no relation to Walter) Payton, an expatriate who has enjoyed phenomenal success in London with a string of Chicago-style pizza and rib restaurants.

"Everyone here knows who William "The Refrigerator" Perry is, and he's something of a folk hero as well," said Payton, host for the tape-delayed "NFL Game of the Week" on Sky Channel, a European cable television network with some five million

"I've been shoving the Bears down Europe's throat all season long, and their making it to the Super Bowl has put a different image of the city in people's

"The 'Euro-yuppies' who identify with America know that Capone is not what the city's about any-more," he said. "But they still tune in to the power.

They don't much understand that a defensive tackle doesn't play on offense, or have any notion what offsides means. But when they saw Perry move that Packer out of the way with such ease ... when they see the 'Super Bowl Shuffle,' they relate to the show biz of it all.

Chicago gone show biz?
"I wouldn't worry about that," Terkel said. "This team fits the city's image. Blue-collar, defensive, hustling, powerful. But there is also a certain nimbleness to it, the nimbleness of the fat man (Perry), the nimbleness of a city moving."

Chicago hasn't been "Hog Butcher to the World" for decades, and it hasn't worked quite as well as it did since Mayor Richard J. Daley died in 1975, leaving his successors in a different era with no instructions on how to run a monarchy.

Chicago's packing houses and steel mills are shut-tered, the advantages of its rail hub neutralized by trucks and planes, and even the heroic "Big Shoul-ders" that so impressed poet Carl Sandburg are drooping noticeably under the burdens that crush urban centers everywhere.

The city has seen its original "Monsters of the Midway," the great Amos Alonzo Stagg-coached University of Chicago teams of the 1930s, reduced to a Division III also-ran.

And no one ever thought George Halas, who helped found the National Football League and ran the club like his personal duchy for 64 years, would Except maybe Halas.

Owner, coach, even player for the Bears, he died in 1983, as tyrannical and full of grand plans at 88 as he was at 18. Months before his death, he named Mike Ditka as the coach, guaranteeing the Bears would be as mean in his absence as they were in his

Seeing the New York Giants come out wearing sneakers for the second half of the 1934 NFL championship because of the frozen ground, Halas instructed his players to step on Giant toes.

Some 30 years later, when former Bear defender

Doug Atkins failed by every other means to impress on Halas how much he hated to practice, Atkins turned up in the stands during one such session and began firing at pigeons with a shotgun. Halas pretended he didn't notice. These Bears are those Bears in every way.

Except these Bears dance.

Gophers stun Michigan

Associated Press

The Michigan Wolverines had been running roughshod over the Big Ten for nearly a year — until Minnesota ran them down.

The Gophers used second-ranked Michigan's own style to knock off the Wolverines 73-63 Thursday night. That ended Michigan's streak of 32 straight regular-season triumphs, including 19 in the Big Ten. The Wolverines are 16-1, 4-1 in the conference; Minnesota is 11-6 and 1-3.

Marc Wilson scored 22 of his 24 points in the second half as the host Gophers used a relentless fast break, something the Wolverines usually utilize to overwhelm the opposition

"That's my game — transition," Wilson said. "There were a lot of open lanes and I just took them." Wilson was 8-for-9 from the field and from the free-throw line.

That's about as hard as Marc Wilson's ever worked, in practice or in a game," said Gophers Coach Jim Dutcher. "(The Wolverines) have got some big strong people, but when that ball gets behind them they've got to become sprinters."

Michigan couldn't sprint with the Gophers, though Coach Bill Frieder said they were trying.

"Our kids were running," he said. "I just think they (Minnesota) played an outstanding game.
"This league is tough. You're not going to breeze through it. I'm never happy when we lose. Now that we lost, we've just got to learn from it."

Duke avoided looking ahead to an

ACC showdown with North Carolina on Saturday as David Henderson scored 17 points and Johnny Dawkins added 14 for the unbeaten Blue Devils, 16-0. It was the fourth conference victory for Duke, whose manto-man pressure defense forced the Demon Deacons into continuous turnovers and poor shot selection.

Wake Forest had won four of the last six meetings between the two schools, including last year's meeting in Durham.

The way we've looked at our season, we're gonna take things one game at a time," said senior Henderson. "I think we came in here expecting Wake Forest to give us a good ball game. We've always had trouble with Wake."

Anthony Jones scored 31 points to lead the Nevada-Las Vegas, 15-2 and 5-0 in the PCAA. The game was tied 34-34 but Jones's hot shooting led the Runnin' Rebels to a 22-8 burst in the cond half.

UAB Coach Gene Bartow was steaming after Billy Gordon scored 20 points, including a 15-foot jump shot with five seconds left in overtime, to lead the Hilltoppers to an upset of the Blazers. Western snapped a 12-game home court winning streak for the Blazers, 16-3 on the season and 41 in the Sun Belt. Western Kentucky is 12-3 and 2-1.

"We've never won a league championship in the last three years, and I guess we're not going to if we can't line up and win against a team we're favored to beat by a pretty big mar-gin," Bartow said. "We have a tendency to get hotdoggish, and com-mitted six turnovers when we had a chance to put them away."

Guard Steve Mitchell broke the alltime school scoring record with 1,589 points, shattering the previous mark of 1,577 points set by Oliver Robinson from 1978-82.

Texas-El Paso needed 19 points from forward Juden Smith, including seven in the last four minutes, to hold off Hawaii.

The Miners improved their overall record to 15-2 and 4-1 in the Western Athletic Conference, while Hawaii bsorbed its 12th straight loss and fell to 3-13 overall. Texas-El Paso led 37-25 at halftime before the Rainbows rallied. Hawaii trailed 64-63 with 16 seconds left in the game before falling short. Sophomore forward Todd Mitchell had 11 second-half points, including six in a 14-point run to start the second half for Purdue, 41 in conference play and 15-3 overall. Mitchell and sophomore guard

Troy Lewis each had 19 points for Bradley, which has had some lastminute victories recently, was happy to have a breather. Sophomore guard Hersey Hawkins scored 21 points to lead the 17-1 Braves, who are 40 in the MVC. Bradley never trailed in the game and shot 68 percent from the field.

Landry, who has been relaxing with an occasional round of golf since the Cowboys were eliminated in the divisional playoffs, said he is proud of Ditka and Raymond Berry, the head coach of the surprising New England Patriots.

Mike put things together very well," said Landry of his assistant of nine years.

"Everybody is trying to catch up with Chicago's de-fense. They are just shutting people down." Landry said Berry, who was an assistant for him in 1968, had done an amazing job.

"Raymond is very low key and has the ability to give players confidence," said Landry. "You notice he never gets upset during a game. He has the New England players believing in themselves. They've always had the

"They drafted well but had never put it all together." Landry said he looked for a close game.

"New England will score," predicted Landry. The Bears shut out both the New York Giants and Los Angeles Rams to get to their first Super Bowl.

He said the Patriots have outstanding speed at wide receiver but "the true test will be whether (quarter-back) Tony Eason can handle the pressure applied by the Bear defense.

Landry said another "key" was the Patriots "getting turnovers against the Bears' offense. They have to have those. That's how they've been winning all year.

The Bears, of course, get turnovers, too, and that has to be be avoided by the Patriots," he added. The Cowboys' coach said he is still "unwinding like I normally do" from Dallas' National Conference Eastern Division-winning season. Asked if he was ready to get back on the sidelines again, Landry said "Oh, I'm anticipating it. We'll get started fullscale around here in February.

Landry said he wouldn't attend the Super Bowl. "That week's a rat race," he laughed, "unless you are playing in the game. I've been to five of 'em.'

Billy Beane and Chris Pittaro, two highly touted prospects last season, were part of a busy day of baseball wheeling and dealing on Thursday.

The Detroit Tigers traded Pittaro an infielder and outfielder Alex Sanchez to the Minnesota Twins in exchange for catcher Dave Engle.

Engle, 29, is a five-year major league veteran with a lifetime batting average of .268. He batted .258 with seven home runs in 70 games last year. Engle's best year was 1983, when he batted .305 in 120 games.

IN ANOTHER move by Detroit, the Tigers asked waivers for the unconditional release of catcher-infielder Marty Castillo. Castillo, 29, had been with the Tigers since 1981. He had seen limited action in the past season, batting .119 with two home runs and five RBI in 84 at-bats. The New York Mets were busy Thursday, acquiring second baseman Tim Teufel from the Twins in a five-player deal completed after they had dealt catcher Ronn Reynolds and right-handed pitcher Jeff Bittiger to Philadelphia in a four-player trade. In exchange for Teufel and minorleague outfielder Pat Crosby, the Mets sent Beane, an outfielder, lefthanded pitcher Bill Latham and minor-league pitcher Joe Klink to the Bry suspects, however, that some of them will not go through the actual hearing process. Under baseball's rules, any two-year player may file for arbitration and have his salary judged by an impartial arbitrator. Clubs may continue to negotiate with play-ers until the hearing dates, which will be held from Feb. 3-20. Dates will be set in about a week.

Now, while you have less time to file, you have more time to settle before going to hearings," Bry said Thursday in a telephone in-terview. "Last year, you filed on Jan. 29 and had hearings three days later. Now, since you still don't start hearings until Feb. 3, you have a couple of weeks at least to negotiate. If your case is heard in the latter part of Febru-ary, you've got a month." In 1985, only 13 of the 98 players actually went to hearings. "By reason of the fact that you have more filings, you may have a few more go to arbitration this year, but not necessarily," Bry said. "If everything works the same, you'll probably have about the same amount of settlements. If the clubs are going to take harder po-sitions this year, you may have a

Bad week for Richardson

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — The 0-5 Southwestern Conference start of the Arkansas Razorback basketball team this season has been, if not the least of Arkansas coach Nolan Richardson's worries, only one among several this week.

On Wednesday, Richardson's 14-year-old daughter who suffers from leukemia, Yvonne, underwent surgery in Tulsa. And his son, Nolan Richardson III, was recently declared academically ineligible for basketball at Oklahoma State.

"It's been a bad week," Richardson said at a news conference Thursday. He talked of his difficulties off the basketball court after he was asked if his son, who attended Wednesday's Arkansas-Houston game, would transfer to Arkansas.

"No," Richardson said. "He's 21 and went out running around and having fun instead of doing the things he should be doing. We're getting him squared away. He will go back to Oklahoma State."

His daughter's surgery at St. John's Hospital in Tulsa, without having shots. Her treatment had required a lot of injections and blood-drawing, and doctors were having problems locating veins in which to perform these functions, since many veins are collapsed.

The operation was to implant an instrument that will permit withdrawal of blood and administration of medicine without constant piercing of her skin.

"They were having to use so many needles that it got to the point that I couldn't even go in the room anymore," Richardson said. "But this operation is going to help a lot. She's a lot tougher than I am. I couldn't have handled it, but she did it like it was nothing.

"I'm glad I have one in the family that's so tough," he Asked how he managed to cope with the pressure from several directions at once, Richardson responded: "Every dog has his day, and a good dog has two. There are two days somewhere for me if I keep that

Grace was 8-for-12 from the field while Minor, who started in place of Derrick Lewis as MC switched from its big-man lineup, supplied an 18-point lick with a 7-for-14 night from the field.

Also in twin figures were Blaylock and Todd Duncan at 12 each and 6-6 Tony Wright with 11. In the first half the Grace-Blaylock-Minor combo was 16 of 26 from the field to spearhead the Chap offense which defused FPC's zone with outside and corner shooting and by creating turnovers with those quick hands for easy baskets. It was the fast break, dunking display that entertained the School Night crowd in a game that never resembled a contest.

LA Clippers miss chance at Lakers

Associated Press

Coach Don Chaney of the Los Angeles Clippers knows opportunities like this don't come along

His team had the defending National Basketball Association champion Los Angeles Lakers down and ailing. But, for the Clippers this season, even that is not enough of an advantage.

The Lakers, missing two starters felled by injuries, defeated the Clippers 112-06 Thursday night at the Forum and remained unbeaten in two years of a cross-town rivalry that hasn't been much of one. "They were primed to be beaten tonight,

Chaney said of the Lakers. "We've never beaten them since we've moved to Los Angeles, and if we ever were, this was the night."
All-Star guard Earvin "Magic" Johnson and starting forward Kurt Rambis were both missing Thursday night. However, led by Kareem Abdul-Jabbar's 26 points and Byron Scott's 23, the Lakers barely noticed their absence. The Lakers won the game by controlling the boards, outrebounding the Clippers 54-28.

"That rebound margin was the key to the game, Chaney said. "You have to outrebound the Lakers just to exist against them."

Lakers Coach Pat Riley said, "We recognized that we would have to concentrate on outrebounding the Clippers tonight and it was nice to see that kind of margin." Riley was also pleased with the performances of Maurice Lucas, who had 14 rebounds, and Michael ooper, who contributed 13 assists, in their rare starting roles. "Our depth becomes a lot more productive when they have an opportunity to play with (James) Wor-thy and Kareem," Riley said. Bucks 114, Bullets 98 Terry Cummings scored a game-high 35 points as the end of the third quarter cut the gap to 83-70.

The Washington rally continued in the fourth period as the Bullets, largely due to a hot hand by Gus Williams, sliced the Bucks' lead to 95-89 with 5:20 remaining on a driving layup by guard Leon

Wood finished with 25 points. Williams added 24 for the Bullets. Hawks 116, Cavallers 90

Dominique Wilkins scored 26 points to lead six Atlanta players in double figures as the Hawks pounded Cleveland. Atlanta moved from a 30-22 first period lead to a 71-45 halftime edge on the shooting of Wilkins and Randy Wittman. Wittman added 18 points for the Hawks, winners for the seventh time in eight

The Hawks enjoyed their biggest lead at 71-43 just seconds before halftime.

Cleveland, however, losers of five of its last six, made a 21-0 run in the third period on the scoring of Roy Hinson and World Free to cut Atlanta's margin to 78-74 with 3:06 left in the period.

The Hawks settled down to take an 89-78 lead after three periods and were never in trouble after that

Safe is out on PGA Tour

PALM DESERT, Calif. (AP) -There no longer is any such thing, suggested Craig Stadler, as playing safe, conservative or defensive on the PGA Tour. The scores are getting better all the time. The other guys are getting better all the time. There are too many guys out there not afraid of winning, who know how to win and have the games to win.

"The depth of the talent is ama-zing," Stadler said Thursday after a 7-under-par 65 at Indian Wells had given him a share of the secondround lead in the $600,000 Bob Hope Chrysler Classic at 132. He was tied with Larry Mize, who had a no-bogey 66 in warm, windless weather at Bermuda Dunes.

While he has the lead, and has a history of success in this five-day, 90hole tournament, Stadler was far from complacent.

"I could shoot three under par each of the next three days and not have a chance," he said. "Twentyone under is a pretty good score, but that's not going to do it here. "The weather is too good. The courses are relatively short and in great condition. You're hitting a short iron at every green and the greens are holding. It's hard not to shoot a good number," said Stadler. And the 128 pros provided an illustration of his remarks. After 36 holes, 101 are at par or better.

MARKETS Oil prices nosedive to lowest level since 1979

By MELLA McEWEN Business/Oil Writer

Permian Basin producers, already concerned about sliding oil prices, received bad news Thursday when the price of West Texas Intermediate dropped to $24.04 per barrel as futures prices for crude oil and heating oil fell to their lowest levels since 1979 on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

"It seemed to be fluke," said Jim Lynch, a broker for Smith-Barney and a former crude oil buyer from Odessa. "There was no fundamental news that prompted the run down. It was caused by a number of big sellers coming into the market and finding no buyers. The price fell because nobody was willing go stand up and Lynch said there was much concern about continuing price declines among his clients who were also stunned by the rapid oil price de-cline, but he didn't think the price would drop to $22 a barrel within the next two weeks as some fear.

"I do see it dropping to $22 a bar-rel, but not within the next few weeks," he said

"It's not good," said one local crude buyer. "All the postings - of those that are buying crude - are falling like a rock. Some have fallen $2.25 between December postings and today's prices.

"It's not as good as it was, but not as disastrous as if prices fall to $20 a business over 30 years, and I've ceased to be able to figure it out."

Analysts said oversupply and mild weather appeared to be the basic factors behind the plunge. However, another Permian Basin buyer said the fall was "more an emotional trader-type reaction than to oversupply."

Many contracts for future delivery of petroleum dropped the daily max-imum of $1 a barrel allowed on Thursday, hitting the lowest levels of the 1980s, the New York Mercantile Exchange said. The crude oil con-tract for February, on which there is no daily limit, fell $1.04 a barrel to

Thursday's spot market, according to Friday's Wall Street Journal, were down $1.10 from Wednesday's prices. West Texas Sour was also down $1.10, falling from $24.30 on Wednesday to $23.20 Thursday.

After the close, the exchange expanded daily trading limits to $1.50 a barrel from $1 for crude oil and to 3 cents a gallon from 2 cents for heating oil and other refined products.

Peter Beutel, an analyst at Rudolf Wolff Engery, cited a report that Saudi Arabia had boosted its production to 6 million barrels of crude oil a day during the first week of January, which he said was the highest production level since 1979-80.

Saudi Arabia is the world's largest exporter of oil and until recently had been the swing producer in the Organization of Petroleum Export-supply and prop up prices.

But OPEC decided in December it would no longer try to support prices and would concentrate in-stead on boosting its share of the world market, a move that many an-alysts have said could push oil prices down to $20 a barrel in the spring. Ed Dellamonte, an analyst with Prudential-Bache Securities, said an accumulation of factors was weighing the market down, including price cutting by producing nations, mild weather, oversupply and OPEC's decision to compete for mar-

"There are overhanging bearish fundamentals that are not going to disappear for a long, long time," Dellamonte said.

PBPA adopts resolution opposing move to change casinghead rules

By JOHN PAUL PITTS Business/Oil Editor

At its Executive committee meeting Wednesday, the Permian Basin Petroleum Association adopted a resolution denouncing a rulemaking petition filed by Valero Transmission Co. with the Texas Railroad Commission that would alter the priority status accorded natural gas.

In its resolution to be submitted to the Railroad Commission, PBPA charges that such a rule change would improperly result in the curtailment of the production of ca-singhead gas and 49 (B) gas, which is gas with special allowables necessary for the continued production of a well, and that the move would inhibit the production of oil in Texas.

tal effect on all producers throughout the state and the citizens of Commented Hans Hansen, a member of PBPA Executive Committee: Valero is just trying to gain leverage to cut the price of casinghead gas. It is a price and contract dispute between the producers and Valero and the Texas Railroad Commission should stay out of it."

Joyce Studlar, a legislative and regulative expert for Clayton Williams Jr., said that Valero had already began to curtail casinghead gas in the Giddings area of South Texas and in the Rhoda Walker field of Ward County and had done so in March of 1984, before the petition was submitted.

In its petition submitted December It further states that the proposed 4 and supported by the City of Austin, City Public Service Board of San Antonio, Rio Grande Valley Gas Co, and Central Power and Light Co., Valero petitioned for Texas Railroad Commission to amend the Gas Market Demand Rule to prorate the nominations for casinghead gas in the same manner as gas well gas, thereby prompting Valero to curtain its purchases of casinghead gas.

Valero argued in the petition that casinghead gas and 49 (B) gas are insulated from market forces and producers have no incentive to reduce prices. The transmission company said casinghead gas was artifically high-priced and that to remove the priority status of casing head gas would "simply establish an incentive for producers to price casinghead and 49 (B) gas at market clearing

Fort Worth firm challenges Boeing, FAA

SEATTLE (AP) — A Texas company that has designed an emergency lighting system to allow airline passengers safe exit from smoke-filled cabins is taking on both the Boeing Co. and the Federal Aviation

The company, Plumly Airborne Products Inc. of Fort Worth, Texas, contends its lighting system, which it says can be seen in dense smoke, was subject to different FAA approval criteria than systems such as one being proposed by Boeing.

So far, Plumly's lighting system is the only one approved by the FAA. But the FAA has said it may approve more than one system and give airlines their choice

The Texas company further contends Boeing stole its safety lighting design from one originated and later discarded by Plumly as unsafe.

The design in question involved installing a solid plastic lighting track on the floor of an airliner. George Plumly, founder and president of Plumly Airborne Products, says the system could produce spears as much as eight feet long, capable of impaling passengers in a crash.

"We call it the shish-ka-bob system," he said. Boeing engineers are aware of Plumly's contentions, said Boeing spokesman David Jiminez. But the safety concern "is a premature observation on his part. We have not finalized the design yet," Jiminez said, adding it is expected to be finalized and approved before this summer

As to Plumly's allegations that Boeing "stole" the design, Jiminez said the firm has been contacted by Plumly about possible patent violations

"We believe there is no substance to his accusations, said Jiminez. "However, we have requested additional information for clarification."

The smoke visibility issue is illustrated by a 1983 case in which 23 people died after an in-flight fire brought down an Air Canada jet. No one was injured in the landing and escape paths remained clear of debris. Still, half of those aboard died because they were unable to see to get out before they were overcome by smoke — two of them passed right by emergency exits they couldn't see. Since then, the FAA has issued a ruling requiring that by November, all aircraft certified after 1958 must have floor systems illuminating emergency exit paths.

Because of Boeing's dominant role in aircraft manufacture, many airlines are waiting to see what system

Boost in industrial production, stock market creates optimism

Associated Press

A rebound in industrial production and recovery in the stock market have boosted the Reagan administration's optimism about the U.S. economy, despite a drop in housing construction.

The Federal Reserve Board said Thursday that increased output at the nation's factories, mines and utilities in December marked the second straight monthly gain following a steep 0.6 percent October decline.

The Fed's announcement followed government reports of strong advances in employment and retail sales in December. "For two months straight we've had good strong increases in indus-trial production," White House spokesman Larry Speakes said in Washington. "This sizable increase for the last two months combines with other data to show that 1986 will indeed be a good year for the

On Wall Street, the steep plunge of last week apparently was forgotten Thursday as investors resumed fueling the record 1985 rally in the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which jumped 14.34 to 1,541.63, bringing its gain for Wednesday and Thursday to 22.59 points.
Computer and airline stocks led the advance, which analysts attributed to better-than-expected quarterly earnings reports by some major cor-porations and to declining oil prices. December's housing construction fell by 1 percent, the first decline since 1982, the government reported today.

The Commerce Department said that construction of new homes totaled 1.73 million units last year, down from 1984 when construction was started on 1.75 million units.

It marked the first yearly decline since a 2 percent drop in 1962. In 1983, housing construction had soared by 60.3 percent following three straight annual declines. Housing construction rose a slight

2.7 percent in 1984. The modest decline last year was not likely to cause great concern among analysts since the level of construction remained above 1.7 mil-

However, it did underscore that construction failed to respond to the sharp declines in mortgage rates which have taken place since the

Production

123.3 125.1 126.0 Analysts have blamed part of that problem on the fact that mortgage lenders tightened up borrowing requirements at mid-year to stem a sharp rise in foreclosures. For December, housing starts shot up by 17.5 percent, the biggest monthly increase since May 1983 when starts rose by 18 percent.

The big December rise put con-struction of new homes at an annual rate in that month of 1.84 million units on a seasonally adjusted basis.

The December gain came after starts had fallen 11.6 percent in

The big rise last month came from sharp increases in both single-family construction and apartment-Construction of single-family homes rose by 15.8 percent while construcion of multi-family units was up 20.2 percent. Housing construction was up in all sections of the country, led by a 41.1 percent jump in construction in the Midwest. Construction rose by 25.7 percent in the Northeast followed by gains of 13.4 percent in the West and 11.3 percent in the South.

Stock Market Rallies

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices showed no clear trend today amid disappointment over the latest earnings report from International Business Machines.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 4.02 to 1,587.61 by noontime on Wall

Gainers held a narrow lead over losers in the midday tally of New York Stock Exchangelisted issues. Early in the session

IBM reported fourthquarter earnings of $4.36 a share, against $3.55 in the last three months of 1984.

Though that represented a significant improvement, it fell a bit short of some Wall Streeters' expectations. Furthermore, it left the company with a slight decline in profits for the full year.

IBM shares, which are frequently described as a market "bellwether," dropped 3¼ to 152¼. Energy stocks fell for the second straight day, weighed down by slumping world oil prices. Exxon lost 4 to 52; Mobil 4 to 304; Schlumberger 4 to 34%; Chevron % to 35% and Atlantic Richfield to 50%.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks slipped .28 to 120.34. At the American Stock Exchange, the market val-ue index was down .97 at 247.27.

Board came to 63.08 million shares at noontime, against 65.67 million at the same Thursday.

BUSINESS MIRROR Are housing markets really returning to 'good old days'?

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — While the housing markets are regaining something of the good old days that existed before inflation and high interest rates, they aren't quite recapturing the past.

It is true, as one survey after another notes, that housing affordability has improved as prices stabilize, incomes rise and interest rates decline. But it is true also that more families today are relying on two incomes to meet costs. A second paycheck accounted for at least 10 percent of total household income for 56.5 percent of home buyers last year, compared with 53.6 percent in 1983.

It is true that sales of single-family houses, new and existing, rose to nearly 4 million units, the highest number since 1979.

But the percentage of households owning their own homes continues to fall. It reached 63.9 percent in the third quarter 1985, the lowest percentage since 1968. Ownership has fallen in every year of the 1980s.

It is true that millions of young Americans qualified on the basis of income to buy last year, as opposed to other years in the 1980s, when housing prices were rising far more swiftly than incomes. But the median age of first-time home buyers continued to rise last year, reaching 35.8 years, compared with 34.4 years in 1983 and 32.4 years in

While it might be true that it is easier for the typical family to buy the typical house, the strains show in the size of down payments. In 1977, 67.8 percent made down payments of at least 20 percent; in 1985, only 44.1 percent. All these figures are from the latest home-ownership study of the U.S. League of Savings Institutions, which has issued similar reports every other year since 1977. If indeed housing is on the road back to where it was — that is, to the days when home-ownership as a percentage of households used to rise regularly

— it is clear that it still has a way to go.

The biggest change with tradition is that the old fixed-rate mortgage is not as available as it used to be, no matter what you might have heard. Yes, it is being offered — and snapped up — but it comes at a premium price.

In its place is the variable mortgage, which transfers a great deal of the risk from lender to borrower. Last year, according to the study, a variable rate averaged 10.5 percent, but a fixed rate cost two percentage points more.

Ironically, in one way the return toward tradition is making it more difficult for would-be buy ers to qualify for loans. When times were tougher a few years ago, many lenders allowed a borrower to qualify for a loan whose payments - plus those of other loans would consume 40 percent, or even more, of in-come. It was a concession to the tough times.

Now, however, many lenders are following the lead of the Federal National Mortgage Association, which has reverted to the 28 percent-of-income limit that prevailed in the good old days of the

The impact of this has been further complicated by another trend of the past five years or so. That is, there has been a tendency for young Americans to go deeper into debt via bank card loans.

And the repayment costs of those loans go into that shrunken, 28 percent-of-income formula. We might be headed back to the days of tradi-

Fast lane could lead to fountain of youth

DETROIT (AP) - The fast lane may lead to the fountain of youth, according to a Wayne State University researcher who says his experiments with fruit flies have detected a link between high metabolism and delayed aging.

Fast-paced, high-energy living may produce prolonged life and good health instead of burnout and early death, biologist Robert Arking said.

Longer-living fruit flies have higher metabolic rates and burn energy faster than flies with shorter lifespans, Arking said, adding that those activities "significantly delay the onset of senescence, or aging.

"When the flies start to age, they age just as fast as the shorter-lived flies," he said. "But they put off the start of aging. In human terms, it's as if they hit 35 and hold for 30 years."

Arking said genetic studies such as his use flies as test animals because they have short life spans that allow the comparison of new generations every few months.
"Flies and people are clearly very different, and yet we use the same genes to do similar things," he Aging is a biological trait that likely is controlled by the same genes in all organisms, Arking said.

GTE Sprint, US Telecom to merge

NEW YORK (AP) — GTE Sprint and US Telecom, long-distance services that have fared badly against U.S. long-distance market, while runner-up MCI has about 10 percent. Consolidation is the best hope for AT&T in the battle for customers, will be merged by their parent companies in a joint venture to be known as US Sprint Communications Co.

GTE Corp. and United Telecommunications Inc. announced Thursday their joint venture would have 2.2 million customers, or 4 percent of the market, and a better chance of gaining ground against American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

"There's no question that the new company will be a more formidable competitor" than the two separate businesses, said Theodore F. Brophy, GTE's chairman and chief executive. AT&T has nearly 85 percent of the Senior citizens group welcome discounts; analysts skeptical

NEW YORK (AP) - Senior citizen groups are applauding new airline discounts aimed at travelers 65 and older, but some analysts say more price competition could hurt an industry already suffering from a fare

"We welcome it," Steven Mehlman, spokesman for the American Association of Retired Persons in Washington, said Thursday. "It will allow older people a greater opportunity to travel and enjoy their later

"It also improves the image of older persons as a diverse market. Some people have the mistaken impression that older people buy denture cleaner and that's the extent of it."

American Airlines, the secondlargest U.S. carrier, announced Wednesday that it will give the elderly a 10 percent discount on any fare for the rest of their lives for a one-time enrollment fee of $25. No. 1 United Airlines said it would remain competitive with American, but did not announce specifics.

Other major airlines said they were reviewing American's discount, and industry analysts expected them to announce similar programs. But Continental Airlines, which announced a more limited senior-citizen discount earlier this month, said it had no plans to alter its deal, which expires in March.

Margaret Myers, 84, president of a group called Flyig Senior Citizens of U.S.A. in Buffalo, N.Y., which has pressured airlines for discounts since 1966, said she welcomed American's offer, though she was not enthusiastic.

"Ten percent is something, but it's not enough," she said. "We were looking for 50."

The discounts reflect an intensify ing fare war in which airlines have been wooing specific categories of people, such as business executives and impulse travelers, in an effort to generate more traffic.

"Six percent of our passengers are over 65, and account for $500 million in annual revenue, and so that's a market we want to explore further, American spokesman John Hotard

Once considered a marginal source of business, the elderly are viewed increasingly as an untapped market with a significant amount of discretionary income - money available for luxuries.

Statistics compiled jointly by the Census Bureau and the Conference Board, a New York-based business research group, show the average annual per-capita discretionary income for people 65 and older is about $5,600, compared with a nationwide average for all age categories of about $3,700. "This is a leisure market. They have time and they can fly at almost any time," said Andrew Geller, an airline analyst for Advest Inc., a Hartford, Conn.-based investment brokerage.

American may gain a temporary increase in business because of the discount, Geller said. He predicted other carriers would quickly join in, and said it may become "just another eroding of the fare structure."

Louis A. Marckesano, who studies airline finances for the investment firm Janney Montgomery Scott Inc. in Philadelphia, said the senior discounts will not be profitable unless the airlines can increase traffic by more than 10 percent. "Our problem right now is the discounting that's going on," he said.

"It's a case of whether the airlines will give away discounts faster than fuel prices fall."

Ford recalls 42,000 Aerostar minivans

DETROIT (AP) - Ford Motor Co. says it will recall 42,000 1986-model Aerostar minivans to inspect structural welds in the vehicles'

Ford said Thursday the welds will have reinforcements installed because field reports have shown that ome substandard welds may separate, reducing steering response.

About 30,000 of the vehicles are owned by consumers, while another 12,000 are in dealer stock, Ford said

The reinforcements will be inalled at no cost to customers and e company will provide loan vehi-s to customers whose Aerostars have to be kept overnight at a deal-ership, the automaker said.

King, service engineering or of Ford's Parts and Service a, said no accidents or injuve been reported because of the rest of the pack, analysts say. "I think it increases the viability of both companies," said Edward Greenberg, an analyst at Morgan Stanley & Co. He said he thought that together, the money-losing operations might turn a profit by 1987.

Other analysts were more skeptical. "Whether they're going to get to the critical mass that would make them profitable, the jury's still out on that," said Efrem Sigel, president of Communications Trends Inc. of Larchmont, N.Y., a research

In addition to long-distance services, the joint venture will include the parent companies' data-communications subsidiaries, GTE Telenet and US Telecom Data Communica-tions Co., according to a letter of intent signed by executives of both companies. All profits and losses will be split evenly between the parent companies.

The companies said the deal requires approval of the Federal Communications Commission and the Justice Department, but they expect no opposition from them and should complete the deal by June 30.

In New York Stock Exchange trading Thursday, GTE rose $1 a share from Wednesday's close to $48.121/2. United Telecommunications closed at $24.87%, up from $24.25 Wednesday. AT&T fell to $23.12% from $23.50 Wednesday.

Reaction mixed to Phillips plan

PHIPS, Texas (AP) — Phillips Petroleum has offered to help relocate 400 people who have been ordered to move off land the company owns here, but many of the landowners say they will enlist the aid of attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes in their heattle to stay where they are owners have to preserve their homes.

Talk of meeting with Haynes late last month split the town, with one group wanting to fight to stay and another group willing to move, believing the Oklahoma-based company will treat them fairly.

The residents are being evicted partially because of environmental concerns, the company says, and partially because of a desire for the land to be ready for other uses when that becomes necessary.

According to a statement issued from Phillips' corporate headquarters in Bartlesville, Okla., details of the land development and moving assistance plan will be completed by Feb. 1. Value of the plan is approximately $3 million, the company said. The company wants to move the homeowners from their land, located near Phillips Petroleum's refinery and chemical operations.

"I don't like it," said longtime resident Sam Jackson, referring to Phillips' plan. "I don't think it's going to be nearly enough."

But homeowner Kenneth Benton, who wants to

"I think (Phillips) will be fair," said Benton, who opposes legal action to preserve the town. "They're going to help."

Phillips said it will develop land where the houses can be moved. The company also said it has pur-chased MM Cattle Co., which owns the land where the homes are located.

Midland firefighters battle a blaze Thursday in a storage structure near the intersection of County Road 117 and Cottonflat Road. The fire was reported about 4:12 p.m., and was extinguished with

Jury sentences Young to 16 years in stabbing death

By MARK LEWIS Staff Writer

A 35-year-old Midland man who claimed he stabbed another man 23 times in self-defense was found guilty of voluntary manslaughter Thursday and sentenced to 16 years in state prison.

Joseph Young III was also assessed a $5,000 fine by the eight-man, four-woman jury, which deliberated al-most five hours before finding him guilty on the lesser charge. Young, 1105 E. Illinois, had been indicted for murder after the Oct. 26 stabbing death of 32-year-old Joe Ollie Russell Jr., but the jury apparently decided he acted out of sudden passion after an intoxicated Russell knocked on his door at 1 a.m.

According to defense testimony, Young had just gone to bed with his girlfriend when Russell knocked on the door. Young answered the door, the two men got into an argument and Russell pulled out a knife. Young said he wrestled the knife away from Russell, but doesn't remember stabbing him 23 times. He was arrested at the scene shortly after Russell's death.

Police found the knife in Russell's hand, and prosecutors suggested Young placed it there after killing

Voluntary manslaughter carries a penalty range of two to 20 years in prison and a fine up to $10,000. With no previous felony convictions, Young was eligible for probation, but prosecutors asked the 142nd District Court jury for the maximum

"You have already been extremely generous" in not finding Young guilty of murder, Assistant District Attorney Chuck Roades told the

"We're asking for severe punish-ment, the heaviest you can mete out," said First Assistant District Attorney David Rosado.

Defense attorney Allen McFall had asked the jury for probation.

"Fate deals strange hands," McFall said. "Here is a man 35 years old who's never been in court for anything but a traffic ticket.'

Young was minding his own busi-ness in his own home that night, according to McFall, "And in less than an hour, all your best laid plans of 35 years are down the tubes. You're in jail facing a murder charge."

"If there's ever a case that cries out for probation, it's this," McFall told the jurors.

But Rosado derided the idea that Young was a victim of fate.

"It wasn't fate that did this, it was Mr. Young," he said, holding up a photograph of Russell's bloodstained body.

Judge Pat Baskin presided over the trial, which began Tuesday.

Sparks said he had received the notice late afternoon Thursday and said an appeal would be filed.

TESCO request could lower electricity bills

By RON GILMORE Staff Writer

Midland residents may be getting a refund on their electricity bill plus lower bills in the future, should the Public Utility Commission approve a fuel charge reduction sought by Texas Utilities Electric Company, according to a spokesman.

The plans call for us to go ahead and credit the customer's bill in March if the PUC approves the decrease," said Stan Garrison of Texas Electric Service Co., TUEC's local division. "There doesn't appear to be any problem with them approving it, but they have to examine it and make sure that it is fair and equitawill receive an average of $13 in refunds.

According to a report from TUEC, an application was filed Tuesday in Austin asking authorization with the PUC to decrease fuel charges by about $233 million annually and to refund $78 million to customers.

Other divisions of TUEC include Dallas Power and Light and Texas Power and Light.

Garrison said that the adjustment would be the "first in several years." "A couple of years ago, the PUC changed the law," he said. "Before that we were adjusting the fuel rate

> In requesting the fuel charge reduction, TUEC asked the PUC to decrease its fixed composite charge for fuel from 2.79 cents per kilowatthour to 2.46 cents. The lower fuel charge per kilowatt-hour would mean a 4.9 percent reduction compared to what their bills would be under the present fixed fuel charge, said the report.

> TUEC had announced in late December its plans to ask approval of the refund and lower fixed charge.

"The $78 million refund represents the savings to customers brought about by lower costs for fuel used to make electricity," said the report.

"The company is asking the PUC to authorize the refund at the earliest cossible date, which would be in March, through a credit to the customer's bills." According to TUEC Vice President Tom Baker, the fuel cost savings are being made possible by the declining cost of natural gas which is used to make slightly more than half the electricity used by customers.

The price of the gas bought by the company declined from an average of $3.74 per million BTU in 1984 to $3.51 for the 12 months ended Sept. 1985, said the TUEC. The company's request for a decreased fuel charge is based on an estimated average gas price of $3.02 in 1986.

Drummer Buddy Rich and band bringing jazz to Midland

From Staff Reports

Buddy Rich and Swing Orchestra will be setting toes to tapping in West Texas during a concert at 7 p.m. Sunday at the Midland Holiday inn Convention Center.

Scheduled to perform two 45-minute sets, Rich's song list will include many of his "oldie-goldies" as well as new songs that reflect the special drumming touch for which he is

Bernard "Buddy" Rich has been in show business almost since his birth Sept. 30, 1917. Eighteen months later, he was standing on the stage in his parents' vaudeville act.

"As a 4-year-old wonderchild, he appeared in Raymond Hitchcock's Broadway show, "Pinwheel," and two years later went with his parents to Australia for 1½ years, where he presented a solo act billed as Traps, The Boy Wonder," a spokesman for

At the age of 11, he toured the U.S.

His jazz career began in 1938 at Hickory House in New York City, where he appeared with the likes of Joe Marsala, after which he turned up in the bands of Bunny Berigan, Artie Shaw, Tommy Dorsey, and Benny Carter In 1946, Rich formed his first jazz band, which didn't get started until the "Big Band Era" was nearing its "Buddy's ex-roommate from the Dorsey Band, one Francis Albert Sinatra, had so much faith in Rich's ability he decided to back this new band," the spokesman said. "Because of his years in show business, he knew how to handle a crowd better than any brand-new bandleader did.

"More and more, Rich wanted to play jazz. Unfortunately, not enough people felt the same way, not only about Rich's band in particular but about big bands in general, and after a little more than two years as a bandleader, Rich decided to accept vaudeville circuit with his own an offer from Norman Granz to join the touring Jazz at The Philharmonic troupe.

Between tours in Europe with JATP, Rich was a permanent fixture on 52nd Street, where he was one of the spearheads of the new music called Bebop, later shortened to Bop. It was at this time, Rich worked and recorded with the likes of Charlie "Bird" Parker, Dizzy Gillespie, The-lonius Monk, Al Haig, Buddy de Franco (another ex-Dorsey sideman), and Errol Garner, Dexter Gordon, George Duvivier, J.J. Johnson, and many other all-time jazz greats.

Thereafter followed a period dur-ing which he could be heard alternately with Harry James and his exboss Tommy Dorsey until 1959, when he had a heart attack. In 1961, he returned to James' band where, despite his poor health, he was the driving force behind this swing

In April 1966, Rich formed a big band for the first time since 1951. He assembled some of the leading jazz summer replacement TV series, players of the time like Gene Quill along with Buddy Greco and George and Pepper Adams, but the leading Carlin. The fall of that year saw Rich role was reserved for Rich. In subsequent bands the personnel would read like a Who's Who in Jazz, featuring such shining lights as Don Menze, Art Pepper, Al Porcino, Joe Romano, Barry Kiener, Alan Kaplan, Lin Biviano, Dave Stahl, and Steve Marcus, who is still "knocking them out" every night with his tenor sax

"To this day, Rich has never ceased to amaze his audience as a performer," the spokesman said. "He is outwardly cocky and often insulting, but on the other hand he can be thoroughly charming and thought-ful. He respects talent and abhors phonies no matter what their socalled expertise. His attitude towards people is direct and some-times volatile, as is his drumming."

In the summer of 1967, his career received a tremendous shot in the arm when his band was selected by Jackie Gleason as a regular on his

on a concert tour with his one-time antagonist, but long-time admirer, Frank Sinatra.

Since then, he has continued with the big band format except for a brief intermission in late 1974, when he broke up the big band to form a small group and chose as his home a club, promptly christened "Buddy's Place," in New York City.

Rich missed the power and force of the big band and reformed once

"This band continues today more popular than ever, playing at various colleges, high schools, leading night clubs, and concert halls throughout the world," the spokesman said.

Refreshments will be available at the concert sponsored by Channel 2-KMID TV, KMND/KNFM radio and the Midland Holiday Centre. Tickets are $10 a person and are available through the concert sponsors.

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - A veteran Mexican entertainer who makes her home in San Antonio says she is launching her own record label because she wants to nurture the city's emerging artistic talent.

Her hair is mostly white, and she has a few wrinkles around the eyes, but she still retains the attractive face and eyes that captivated movie-goers in the 1940s and 1950s.

In her 35-year career she appeared in 14 Mexican movies and performed in 28 countries around the world. She also recorded 12 albums, performing alongside such Mexican stars as Agustin Lara, the internationally known singer and composer, and actor Pedro Almendariz Jr.

In the late 1930s when her movie career was starting to take off, she married Lorenzo Barcelata, at that time a renowed singer and songwritroyalties are more than enough," she said, pensively fingering a framed entertainment award, one of many mementos from her career.

"I do not expect to make money in this venture. I am widowed, and I have no children. I simply expect to help the artists who need help because that's all I want in life now. And because music and dance has always been my love."

Mrs. Barcelata is currently negotiating with several local groups to produce their records.

Among those who have signed on are Jose Muguia y Sus Fabulosos, Rosita Fernandez, El Trio de Los Pepes and Xenia, a singer from Mexico.

"La Veladora" — which is "The Candle" in English — a ballad recorded by Munguia, was recently produced and will soon be distributed. Mrs. Barcelata is currently inegotiating for a record distributor for the southwestern United States. An album by Munguia is expected to be produced within a month.

Roustabout receives $1.5 million in judgment against drilling firm

From Staff Reports

FORT STOCKTON - A $1.5-million judgment — the largest in Fort Stockton — has been awarded a 26-year-old Odessa roustabout who was injured almost two years ago in a drilling-yard accident.

"It's the highest verdict they've ever had in Fort Stockton," said Ruff Ahders, Odessa attorney for the plaintiff-roustabout, Gary Bailey, who worked for Marathon Oil Co.

The judgment was against Drelco Service Co., a roustabout business in Iraan, and a Dreico truck driver, Matt Clark, 27, formerly of Iraan and

Bailey was injured on April 18, 1984, when he was helping Clark unload a 2,500-pound shock sub, a nine-foot-long shock absorber used in well holes to take the vibration off the drill bit, at an Iraan drilling yard. Clark was using a winch to unload the shock sub, which slipped, swung around and struck Bailey in the left

Fort Stockton. The 12-member jury returned a 10-2 verdict in favor of Bailey.

Basin-area cities to feel varied impact from CRMWD's 7.4 percent rate hike

From Staff Reports

BIG SPRING - Fixed monthly charges to member cities of the Colorado River Municpal Water District were raised about 7.4 percent last week. This will have varying impacts on water rates to Odessa, Big Spring and Snyder, and actual consumption during the year will be a determin-

Cost of water to the cities is determined by the fixed charges, plus a delivery charge per 1,000 gallons. All other rates of the district are tied into those to the member cities. All charges are for raw water. Directors applied $1.2 million of revenues from non-municipal customers to soften monthly charges, an increase of $228,000 over 1985. This made Odessa's adjusted monthly charge for this year $251,380 as compared to $225,031 in 1985. If-Odessa uses the amount of water estimated for 1986, the rate per 1,000 gallons will be 75.42 cents compared to 70.671 for the past year.

Big Spring's adjusted monthly charge will be $80,872 compared to $79,451 last year. If Big Spring uses its estimated volume this year the rate per 1,000 gallons will be 54.80 cents as compared to 54.11 cents last

Snyder's adjusted monthly charge will be $39,993 as compared to $37,678 last year. If Snyder uses its estimated volume for 1986 the rate per 1,000 gallons will be 46.33 cents as compared to 54.66 cents last year. During 1985, Snyder used 21 percent less water than it had estimated, which had the effect of boosting its actual cost per 1,000 gallons.

Prior to adopting a budget last October, the district notified member cities that it anticipated increases on the order of 5 cents in two successive years due to costs involved in preparing for the Stacy reservoir.

A supplemental water contract with the City of San Angelo, calling for an additional 10,000 acre feet of water annually from Lake E.V. Spence, was approved by Colorado River Municipal Water district

San Angelo and the district last year agreed to the contract as of Jan. 1, 1986, if San Angelo so desired. It calls for $325,000 for the right to take the 10,000 acre feet annually for each of five years, but is cancellable with a one-year penalty at the option of San Angelo if it catches over 75,000 acre feet of water in its reservoirs. San Angelo already has a contract for 3,000 acre feet annually, cumulative to 9,000 acre feet. The fiveyear period coincides to the period estimated for the completion of the Stacy reservoir, from which San Angelo has contracted for 15,000 acre feet per year. Cost implications on some of the projections mentioned in negotiations for a 404 environmental permit from the U.S. Corps of Engineers for Stacy are frightening, General Manager O.H. Ivie told CRMWD directors. He said tentative demands to mitigate alleged impact on fish and wildlife and archeological sites could add several million dollars to cost of the reservoirs. President John L. Taylor, declaring this to be largely a needless expense, instructed the Long Range Planning committee, headed by John Currie of Big Spring, to come up with recommendations for the district. A 404 permit from the USCE is required before a project can start, and Stacy is due to begin in April 1987.

State Sen. John T. Montford of Lubbock said he thought the Colora-do River Municipal Water District had been "doing an excellent job" and did not have it in mind when recently he called for more accountability by water authorities and Montford, one of the authors of the Texas Water Plan implemented by voters last November, is on a committee headed by Sen. John Sharp of Victoria to investigate operation of the water authorities and districts.

He told CRMWD directors he had in mind the Lower colorado River Authority for what he thought were obstructive tactics in stretching CRMWD's quest for the Stacy reservoir permit over seven years. "The state can't do a good job on water administration unless there is better communication between the authorities and districts, the Legislature and state agencies," he said.

Montford's statements as a member of the investigating committee had resulted in questions to the dis-trict, said Taylor. "If your committee or state officials determine that they need to look into operations, we would be happy if you start with this district," he said.

South Africa agrees to allow trains into Lesotho

MASERU, Lesotho (AP) — Govern-ment radio today said South Africa has told Lesotho that train traffic will be allowed to resume to the tiny black kingdom, where a border crackdown by South Africa has caused a scarcity of some goods.

The South African Foreign Ministry said representatives of the two countries met in Pretoria today on the border issue, which Lesotho calls a blockade but South Africa says was a security operation imposed Jan. 1 to check for weapons being smug-gled to guerrillas fighting the white-led government.

Lesotho is surrounded by South Africa and economically dependent on it. About 140,000 men, half the male labor force, work in South Africa as miners or domestic servants because jobs are scarce at home.

The border crackdown caused long lines at frontier crossings, and ne drivers said that since South Africa imposed the stricter searches they have waited up to three days to cross the frontier. The checks continued today.

Since Jan. 1, Lesotho government surgeons have been ordered to postpone non-emergency surgery to save bandages and anesthetic. Fresh fruit and vegetables are disappearing from store shelves, and fuel distributors say gasoline may be scarce by next week.

Lesotho's government radio said today that South Africa had sent a message saying "it will allow trains to re-enter Lesotho" and demanding assurances of safety for South African rail workers. The radio said that Lesotho reould be "awarded the normal treatment given to all South Africans in the country." There was no immediate comment from South African

The border crisis followed a long dispute over South African charges that Lesotho is harboring guerrillas of the outlawed African National Congress, the main black guerrilla group fighting to end the racial segregation system of apartheid.

La Scala sings commercial tune to break even

By PIERO VALSECCHI

MILAN, Italy (AP) - La Scala, Italy's most prestigious opera theater, is expected to end a long streak of multimillion-dollar deficits and break even this year thanks to growing commercial sponsorship-and television rights.

Carlo Maria Badini, who took over the financially troubled "temple of bel canto" in 1977, says a new mana-gerial approach and timely delivery of state funds have helped restore La Scala's financial health.

The popular telecasts of La Scala productions to households around the world also will help the company, Badini said.

We are prepared to enter the era of satellites, to telecast our operas into the houses of Americans, Russians and Japanese," he said.

Disaster films no different from others, Allen says

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Is producer Irwin Allen getting away from disaster movies? He says he really doesn't see a difference.

Allen produced the two-part "Al-ice in Wonderland" movie telecast on CBS in December.

Now he's working on "Outrage," a CBS drama in which a father (Robert Preston) seeks his own justice after the man who raped and murdered his daughter is freed on a legal

Allen says he doesn't see it as a switch from such movies as "The Towering Inferno" and "The Poseidon Adventure."

"They ask me that after every movie I make," said Allen. "There really is no switch. The name of the game is entertainment...In disaster movies, people get killed or there's violence or some kind of peculiarity...All my pictures are first cousins.

Thirteenth-century church finds new home in U.S.

CORONA DEL MAR, Calif. (AP)

- A 13th century English village church will soon become the Western Hemisphere's oldest church building, thanks to a small Anglican congregation that is moving it to Orange County, a church official said.

The Church of England has given preliminary approval for the move because the chapel is in a country farming village of 253 people, too small to support two congregations. The congregation moying it has only 64 members.

The church, St. Bartholomew's, is in the village of Covenham, about 130 miles north of London, and will be moved to an affluent coastal community about 40 miles southeast of downtown Los ATLANTA (AP) - A former sharecropper who has served on advisory boards for three presidents sees a future in mules, the long-eared work animals of a bygone era that he believes are "more intelligent than some people."

While tractors have replaced mules on most American farms, Allen Grant said there is a growing demand for the animals in developing countries, among Amish farmers of Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana and as pack animals for mountain adventurers.

The 79-year old Visalia, Calif., farmer said he became interested in exporting mules because of the nationwide agricultural slump that forced him to consider ways to supplement his farm income.

"A farmer has to be looking all the time," he explained during an interview Wednesday at the 67th annual meeting of the American Farm Bureau Federation. "This is one way to have some additional income."

In launching his mule business three years ago, Grant began raising Belgian mares, the most docile draft animals. He mates the mares with jackasses to produce large, red

Unlike horses, mules will not allow themselves to be worked beyond their capabilities, and when they kick, they usually connect, he said. 'A mule will kick you. A horse will kick at you.'

Grant already has 18 to 20 mules and he hopes breeding 24 mares this spring will produce another 15.

"When I get more I'll look to the export market," he said, noting that American mules are being exported to India and other developing countries. "If they are good and big and the right color, then there is a Grant has served on trade advisory panels under Presidents Gerald Ford and Jimmy Carter, and currently is a member of President Reagan's export council. He also was president of the American Farm Bureau Federation from 1976 to 1980.

With the exception of the Amish, who shun modern farm equipment for religious reasons, Grant said mules are not likely to replace tractors on U.S. farms, although they are used by some ranchers to pull hay wagons through snow-covered fields.

"I don't think hired men would want to get up at 3 a.m. and feed them, brush and curry them and fit the harnesses," he said. "Workers have gotten used to air-conditioned Who's to blame them, everybody else has air conditioning." According to Grant, mules are also raised in Kansas, Missouri, Kentucky and Tennessee and could provide a source of additional income

EARNEST KIKER

Gardeners often find growing plants from seed more fruitful

By EARNEST C. KIKER

It will be time to set out garden transplants before you know it. Although nurserymen try to stock representative varieties of vegetables and flowers during the spring garden rush, it's just not possible for even the largest nursery to have every variety. For this reason, you may want to start some of your own transplants.

The 1986 mail order nursery catalogs are arriving at a steady rate. View them and make purchases with a purpose. Inexperienced gardeners (or those unfamiliar with the Texas climate) should not waste money on seeds that have no chance of coming to bloom or fruit in Texas. Experienced gardeners may want to try new and different varieties of the old standards. Restraint is not easy when you look at page after page of pure horticultural perfection, but remember that ordering seed is the easy part. Sow seed for your transplants at the proper time. Some transplants, such as cabbage, broccoli, lettuce, green onions and spinach can be set in the garden four to five weeks before the last frost. Now is the time to sow the seeds of these early

Use a soilless, or commercial, potting mix available at nurseries. Expandable peat pellets also work well. Germination temperatures should be near 75 degrees Fahrenheit during the day and 65 to 70 degrees during the night.

Seeds can be started in milk cartons, cake pans, flower pots or almost any container that you are willing to punch holes in for drainage. Thoroughly moisten the planting medium and evenly space the seed on top. Cover lightly, re-water and then enclose the container in a polyethylene bag. Keep the plastic covered container out of direct sunlight or it will overheat. When seeds begin to sprout, gradually remove the bag during a several day period. This lessens shock. You'll have to water more often when the poly bag is removed.

Most would-be transplant growers make two big mistakes. They start seed too early and they provide insufficient light for the developing seedlings. Both maladies allow transplants to become spindly, weak and yellow. Florescent grow lights help overcome the second problem. They must be within four inches of newly developing seedling leaves to be of much benefit. In mid-February sow tomato, eggplant, pepper and flower seeds. You may want to try these tomato varieties in comparison plantings with your usual ones: Spring Giant, Early Girl, Park's Whopper, Floramerica, Big Set, Super Fantastic, Celebrity and President. The results may be very enlightening.

Sowing small-seeded annuals directly in the bed usually ends in failure and frustration. For this reason, start your own transplants of alyssum, moss rose, fibrous rooted begonia, petunia, cockscomb, impatiens and coleus. Move your transplants to their final location when they are of adequate size (at least three to five true leaves) and conditions are suitble for plant growth outdoors.

Grief counselor helps bereaved pet owners cope

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Pet-lov-ing Americans spend over $8 billion a year in animal care — more than the gross national product of many Third World nations, according to a University of Pennsylvania social

An investment of so much money and time means an emotional investment as well, Jamie Quackenbush says, and that creates a need for what he does: psychological counseling for bereaved pet owners.
"It's something you'd find only in the wealthy, Western countries. In Laos and Cambodia, for example, they eat their dogs and cats," said Quackenbush, who describes himself as the only full-time grief counselor for pet owners in the nation.

For Americans with the leisure to fawn on their pets, the relationship between human and animal can become quite sophisticated, said Quackenbush, the author of a recent book, "When Your Pet Dies: How to Cope With Your Feelings.

"Our pets have the ability to accept us for what we are. It doesn't matter if I'm tall or short or fat, or anything like that. I can have a good day or a bad day, my pet's always going to be there ...

"It's that kind of thing that animals provide that even the people who mean the most to us can't," he said in an interview

As a result, he said, some pet owners can feel profound grief when a pet dies, a feeling often made worse by other's failure to take it seriously. At the Penn veterinary hospital where Quackenbush works, officials say figures show that Americans, particularly those in urban areas, are exceptionally fond of their domestic fauna.

Of the 110 million Americans who own at least one dog or cat, 40 per-cent display a picture of their pet in their homes, said Dr. Alan Beck, di-rector of the hospital's Research Center for Human-Animal Interaction

Studies show that 70 percent of the adolescents who have pets "confide" in them, Beck said. Forty-eight percent of adult owners also talk to their pets about problems, he said. According to Dr. Allan Katcher, an associate professor of psychiatry at Penn's school of medicine, a study released in 1980 showed that heart disease sufferers who own pets are

Callousness from others is a key reason his counseling is needed by the approximately 1,000 people he treats every year, Quackenbush said. "The classic comment they get is, 'It was only a cat,' or 'It was only a dog,' " he said. "That just adds insult to injury. The implication is that there's something wrong with you for feeling grieved.

"I tell them what they're feeling is a natural response, that they can feel bad and be accepted for feeling bad by others. You simply don't own a pet in a vacuum," he said.

Former teachers don't like name game

The chances are that the teacher will not remember you because you have changed a great deal since you were a student.

DEAR P.S.: Schoolteachers aren't the only ones who are irritated when someone comes up to them and says, "I'll bet you don't remember me!" If the answer is no, the only appropriate response would be, "You're absolutely right. I'm sorry. I don't." That precludes the guessing games in which there are no winners.

DEAR ABBY: I know you must have advice in the form of a letter to "the other woman," telling her of the harm and hurt she is causing. I would like to send such advice to the woman who is interfering with my 24-year marriage, but I have trouble expressing myself without showing my anger and bitterness.

Our three children are extremely hurt and resent all the lying and deception that's been going on for nearly two years. They are 17, 20 and 22 - old enough to understand, but they are hurting and confused as I am. Awaiting your reply. WIFE HE PUSHED ASIDE - THE

DEAR ABBY: Please help me! I'm really scared. I'm bulimic and I'm on the pill. I've been trying real hard to control my bulimia and have been doing real well. But I'm scared because I don't know if it lessens the effect of the dosage when I force myself to vomit. I take my pill just like the doctor told me — I never skip a pill and I take it as directed. I can't have you answer me at home because my parents open my mail, and if they find out I'm on the pill, they'll disown me. I'm 21 and plan to get married next year, but my parents would never understand. — SCARED

Pets elevated as lifestyles change

CHICAGO (AP) - A dog's life is becoming a central part of home life for the increasing numbers of twocareer families, latchkey kids and singles, according to experts meeting to explore pets' roles in changing

Dogs, cats and other creatures are being elevated to the status of companions and confidantes, said Patricia Curtis, a member of the advisory committee of Pets Are Wonderful, a not-for-profit animal welfare group. "The pet is viewed as more than an animal, and not quite a person," Ms. Curtis said in a telephone interview. Pets are filling the void left when people divorce or delay marriage, or when so-called latchkey children are left unattended by working parents. "Now, as more and more women are returning to the work force the pet is taking on an additional role ... as a greeter and confidante for latchkey children. The presence of a pet can ease the child's loneliness," Ms. Cur-

"Pets are especially important to many single people," she said. "There's somebody home when they come home. You meet other people when you have a pet. There's a real broth-erhood and sisterhood among pet owners.

For some people, pets become child substitutes, said Ms. Curtis, who also has written several books on animals.

She said the theme of a meeting, organized by the Chicago-based Pets Are Wonderful, is to be "The New American Family and the Implications for Pet Ownership.'

Those scheduled to attend include Lynette Long, an expert on latchkey children and education professor at American University in Washington, D.C.; child psychologist Jeffrey Kelly of the University of Mississippi; and demographic researcher Mara

Ms. Long will focus on how pets can benefit the estimated 7 million to 10 million latchkey children in the United States, while Kelly was to discuss his research showing that pet owners are more likeable and outgoing, said Jaime Baum, a member of Pets Are Wonderful.

Shuttle landing stalled again

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Rain-laden clouds blocked Columbia's astronauts from landing in Florida for the second straight day today, and NASA directed them to stay in orbit for another 24 hours and try again Saturday, even though the weather outlook is worse then.

The decision to make another effort to land in Florida came after Mission Control had radioed instructions for a landing in the California desert this morning.

A return here on Saturday would prevent a cancellation of Columbia's next flight in March and help pre-serve an ambitious schedule of 15 shuttle launches this year. Officials admitted, considering the forecast, that it was a long shot.

If Columbia touches down in California, there is a chance the March 6 flight to study Halley's comet would be scrubbed because of six days that would be lost in transporting the shuttle back to this spaceport. It also would cost the space agency an extra $1.5 million to $2 million, on top of the $1.5 million lost on Columbia's unprecedented seven launch delays.

"We are waving from KSC (Kenne-dy Space Center)," Mission Control communicator Fred Gregory radioed the crew just 22 minutes be-fore Commander Robert Gibson was to have fired braking rockets to start a descent toward what would have been the first shuttle landing at this spaceport in nine months.

Gibson was told to circle the globe one more time and to aim for a touchdown on the dry lake bed at Edwards Air Force Base in the Mojave Desert at 5:40 a.m. PST.

Mission Control then asked for Saturday's forecast to see if there was a possibility Columbia could try to land at the space center then.

Even though the outlook was bleak, with clouds and rain in the area, flight director Gary Coen scheduled one more landing here. The crew will come home Saturday at one of the landing sites, officials

"We're going to take one more shot at KSC," Gregory told Gibson. Gibson seemed disappointed, asking "Can you give us a reason for passing up Edwards?"

terview before the mission he would prefer landing at Edwards because he believes a new nose-wheel steer-ing system, tested just once, should have one more test on a concrete runway on the wide-open desert before it is used on the narrow, canallined strip here.

The seven-man crew includes Rep. Bill Nelson of Florida.

Clouds and rain also forced a wave-off on Thursday, when Columbia was trying to land a day early to help relieve pressure on the tight shuttle launch schedule.

"Are you going to bring us home today or are we going to still be talking with you again tomorrow morning?" Gibson asked Mission Control early today after the crew was

"No, sir, we're bringing you home today," replied Gregory.

There's a three-day weekend you're beginning to impinge upon," Gregory added, referring to Mon-day's holiday honoring Martin Luther King Jr.

USDA: Budget-cutting law to slice crop price support loans

WASHINGTON (AP) - When farmers get their 1986 wheat loans, they'll be 10 cents a bushel shy of what the Agriculture Department says is the going rate for this year's crop. Corn farmers will see a deduction of 8 cents a bushel, according to USDA analysts who are study ing the impact of the Gramm-Rudman budget-balancing law. Government supports for other commodities will be adjusted accordingly.

Further, some USDA employee cutbacks will occur either through layoffs or shortened hours, probably resulting in reductions in federal meat and poultry inspection, and conservation services to farmers.

The law calls for a 4.3 percent domestic spending reduction in many government programs for fiscal 1986, which began last Oct.

Department budget officials said Thursday that food stamps and child-feeding programs are exempt but that other USDA functions will bear a total reduction of more than $1.26 billion. For example, said Robert E.

Although the law applies to the current fiscal year, Sherman said its curb on USDA spending will affect the entire 1986 crop year, meaning corn and other commodities harvested next fall.

The 1986 corn loan - the amount farmers can borrow from USDA by using their crop as collateral - would be effectively reduced to $1.84 per bushel from

The 1986 crop loan rates were announced earlier this week by Agriculture Secretary John R. Block as part of his decision to carry out the new Food Security

Act of 1985, the farm bill passed by Congress and signed by President Reagan just before

Block, hoping to make U.S. commodities more competitive in the world market, reduced the 986 wheat loan rate to $2.40 from last year's $3.30 per bushel, and corn to $1.92 per bushel from $2.55 in 1985, the maximum reduction allowed by the law. The Gramm-Rudman cuts will be on top of that.

The USDA has the equivalent of about 109,000 full-time employees, but Sherman said he could not tell now how many might have to be "furloughed" or laid off because of the cutbacks.

Most likely, he said, those would occur in the department's Food Safety and Inspection Service, which includes meat and poultry inspection, and the Soil Conservation Service, which provides technical assistance to

But virtually all USDA agencies will feel the crimp, according to figures provided by the department's budget people.

Voyager discovers moons of Uranus

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) - The breakup of a larger moon that once may have orbited Uranus could explain why six small moons discovered by the Voyager 2 spacecraft are clustered in similar orbits, a NASA scientist said.

The Jet Propulsion Laboratory, which operates America's unmanned space exploration program for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, on Thursday announced that Voyager 2's television cameras discovered the six moons during the past two weeks, doubling the number of moons known to orbit Uranus.

Voyager still may discover 18 more moons, which would bring the total to 30 and mean that Uranus has more moons than any other planet, said Ellis Miner, deputy Voyager project scientist at JPL

Saturn now has the most known

Uranus' newly found moons, whose diameters are less than 30 miles, have orbits relatively close together, at distances ranging between 38,370 miles and 46,700 miles from the center of the seventh planet from the sun.

The fact that they all are clustered right around the same distance from the planet is intriguing," Miner said. "It possibly implies they are a result of a larger satellite that broke up...It might have been that the moon was structurally weak and the gravitational pull of Uranus was sufficient to tear it apart.

"Another, more likely possibility is that an interloper from outside the Uranus system came in and struck the once-larger moon sufficiently hard to have fractured it," he said, adding that large asteroids were common in the early solar system.

cameras on Voyager 2, which on Thursday was 1.84 billion miles from Earth, find the moons have irregular shapes when the probe makes its closest approach to Uranus, its rings and moons on Jan. 24. Until then, the breakup theory "is purely speculation," Miner said.

Uranus' five major moons - Miranda, Ariel, Umbriel, Titania and Oberon - were discovered by telescopes on Earth and have estimated diameters ranging from 310 miles to 1,010 miles. Last month, Voyager discovered another moon, temporarily designated as 1985U1.

The six latest moons to be discovered are designated 1986U1 through

Of all AIDS cases to date, 51 percent of the adults and 59 percent of the children have already died. The new report shows that, on the average, AIDS patients die about 15 months after the disease is first

The rate of increase was expected and confirmed earlier forecasts by public-health experts. The same experts say the epidemic shows no sign of slowing and that 1986 is virtually certain to witness almost twice as many new AIDS cases as were count-

'It continues to be very bad news, but it comes as no surprise," said Meade Morgan, chief the statistics section at CDC's AIDS program.

Morgan did, however, point to one good sign in the report. The period of time it takes for the number of AIDS cases to double has continued to lengthen slowly. This confirms earlier indications that the disease was not spreading as fast as the earliest statistics indicated.

In 1982, for example, the number of cases was doubling every five

Bust of Martin Luther King unveiled in Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) - Coretta Scott King says she hopes the newly installed bust of her husband in the Capitol Rotunda will remind Americans that "we have much work yet to do" in achieving Martin Luther King Jr.'s dream of racial justice.

But Sen. Charles Mathias, R-Md., a eader in the long legislative battle to honor King's memory with a memorial sculpture in the halls of Congress, says his lasting monument is found elsewhere.

"When you see a lunch counter with black and white Americans eating together, when you see black and white children playing together in a school yard, when you see a bus in Birmingham or a voting booth in Selma, when you see black Americans and white Americans working together for a better life for all Americans, then you see his monument," Mathias said. King, grandchild of slaves and martyred champion of racial equali-ty, is the first black American to be accorded the honor of a sculpted likeness in the halls of Congress. His bust stands alongside Washington,

Jefferson, Lincoln and other heroes. The larger-than-life bronze bust of the slain civil rights leader was unveiled Thursday by his widow in the Rotunda, as the applause of mem-bers of Congress, King's family and many of King's former civil rights lieutenants echoed in the lofty

"I hope this statue always reminds us that America's strength is in its pluralism and its people's respect for one another," Mrs. King said. Following the ceremony, Mrs. King met privately at the White House with President Reagan, who did not attend the unveiling or an earlier tribute to King by government employees in a downtown Commerce Department auditorium.

Attorney General Edwin Meese canceled a scheduled appearance at the federal employees' tribute, explaining through an aide that he was attending a White House meeting on child safety that lasted longer than Reagan sent a message, read at the earlier ceremony, urging those who carried on King's battle to "never, never abandon the dream" that King described in his famous "I Have a Dream" speech at the August 1963 civil rights march on Washington.

"Never forget that this is America, the land where dreams come true," Reagan said. "And take heart — look how far we've come.'

But Samuel Pierce, secretary of housing and urban development and a former close friend of the King family, said: "We haven't won the battle yet. His dream hasn't been realized vet."

The King bust was sculpted by Boston artist John Wilson, an art professor at Boston University who won a national competition for the $50,000 government commission to design the memorial. The bust rests atop a 51/4-foot black pedestal that bears the words, "Martin Luther King Jr., 1929-1968, Humanitarian."

The King sculpture will be moved in October to its permanent site in a small rotunda leading to Statuary Hall, the old chamber of the House of Representatives.

Coretta Scott King and her son Dexter Scott King applaud as a bust of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. is unveiled during ceremonies at the U.S. Capitol Thursday.

List of states narrows for nuclear waste site

WASHINGTON (AP) - Officials from states crossed off the list of potential sites for storing highly radioactive nuclear waste are sighing with relief, while states still in the running are voicing dismay.

Own blood bank safest

NEW YORK (AP) - The risk of getting AIDS from transfusions is low, but people who fear it should bank their own blood ahead of time if possible rather than picking their donors, a blood banking official says.

Banking one's blood "has long been advocated by blood services because it does provide the safest blood source for the individual," said Dr. Johanna Pindyck, director of the Greater New York Blood Program.

The procedure, called autologous donation, can be used for some pa-tients who will need the blood for elective surgery, she said Thursday at a meeting on public policy and acquired immune deficiency

Pindyck also said the risk of transmitting AIDS through standard transfusions is "probably much less than one in 100,000." Blood is screened for evidence of exposure to the deadly disease and prospective donors at high risk for AIDS are asked not to donate, she said.

'Ecstasy' damages nerves WASHINGTON (AP) - Even limited use of the outlawed drug "ecstasy" can poison the nervous system, probably irreversibly, say two University of Chicago researchers who have been testing the drug on rats.

They're calling on doctors to use "the utmost caution" in weighing such risks before conducting even closely supervised human tests of the drug, which had been growing in popularity before the government banned it from general use last

The researchers said Thursday they knew of no government-sanc-tioned tests under way, although a number of psychotherapists have strongly defended the drug as useful in therapy and a few have said pri-vately they're still using it.

LEGAL NOTICES

LONDON (AP) - Archaeologists have located foundations of the 1,800-year-old north wall of the Basilica, Roman London's city hall and the largest known civic building of its day north of the Alps.

Brian Hobley, chief urban archae-ologist at the Museum of London, said Thursday the foundations were discovered in the heart of London's financial district as workmen began excavations for an office building off Leadenhall Street, one of the major arteries.

The Legal and General insurance company, which is putting up the office building, has agreed to halt construction until next Oct. 1 so the museum experts can study the site, measuring and photographing as they go.

A viewing gallery has been set up so that swarms of office workers and tourists can watch the museum team at work on the 4-acre site.

The insurance company and English Heritage, an organization that works to preserve the nation's historical inheritance, together contributed $432,000 to pay for the work. The City of London Archaeological Trust has made a public appeal for $201.600 more.

Three-quarters of the complex has been destroyed by development over the centuries. So this is our last chance to investigate one of London's most valuable and historic sites," Hobley said.

He said historians have known the eneral location of the Basilica since 1923, but that this was the first scientific excavation of the ancient complex.

began when the Romans built a bridge across the Thames and set up a camp. The camp became a fort and then a fortified town, which they called Londinium.

The Basilica housed city administrators, law courts, an assembly hall, the treasury and shrines. It also formed one side of a forum, an openair square that served as a market and meeting place. Hobley said shops and offices stood on its other three sides.

No precise measurements are available, but an artist's impression shows the Basilica as a two-story building about the length of two modern city blocks.

Hobley said archaeologists also have found traces of earlier Roman houses and workshops on the site dating from the time of the Roman tyrant Nero, who became emperor in A.D. 54.

He said these earlier buildings probably were erected after the British warrior Queen Boudicca destroyed London in A.D. 61 to revenge the Roman conquest of Britain. These buildings later were demolished and the ground was leveled to make way for the Basilica.
