Tobacco settlement

WASHINGTON - The Liggett Group agreed Friday to repay more than $10 million in Medicaid bills for treatment of smokers, settling lawsuits with five states while widening its breach with the rest of the tobacco industry. The settlement came just two days after Liggett, the nation's fifth-largest tobacco company, made history by settling a private class-action lawsuit alleging cigarette makers manipulated nicotine to hook smokers.

New war games to be even closer to Taiwan

■ New round of military exercises signals no end to pressure from China.

Associated Press

TAIPEI, Taiwan — With China preparing to move its war games even closer to Taiwan, the island told its huge neighbor Friday to stop wasting money on scare tactics. Taiwan's president said he and his government are not "wimps with weak feet" and will not be intimidated.

Beijing, which has been conducting military maneuvers off the Taiwanese coast since Tuesday, said Friday that it would end its missile tests — but would start a new round of war games on Monday, this one only 11 miles from Taiwanese territory

The eight-day military exercise is part of a Chinese strategy to throttle what it sees as a Taiwanese drive to make itself independent. China claims sovereignty over Taiwan, and hopes to influence the island's March 23 presi-

The United States sent two aircraft carriers and other warships to the region to deter a possible Chinese attack, and on Friday, the White House preferred to focus on the announcement that the four Chinese ballistic missiles that splashed down near Taiwan's ports over eight days would be the last decade, airline pilots may be able to fly where they want, as fast as they want and at the altitudes they want under an air traffic control plan announced by the Federal Aviation Administration.

Air traffic plan would let pilots roam free, fast

The new system, called "free flight," will let pilots choose their routes, taking advantage of favorable winds and avoiding storms as they cross the nation.

Air traffic controllers, who now dict most routes, will still keep watch to make sure planes don't come too close.

'Free flight really means a more flexible way of managing air traffic,' Federal Aviation Administrator David R. Hinson said Friday.

'I think we now have a blueprint for the future of the air traffic control system." said Robert W. Baker of American

"Free flight is synonymous with benefits for everyone," added David Watrous, chairman of the governmentindustry panel that developed the plan. He said benefits will include improved safety, faster travel and reduced operating costs for airlines.

But Hinson noted that instituting the plan is a long and complicated project expected to take at least 10 years.

Complex electronic gear will keep air traffic controllers informed of where planes are and allow them to step in and

Study: Shortness may be liability in matters of heart

By Daniel Haney Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — Is being short a liability in matters of the heart? For men - but not women — the answer emerging from doctors seems to be yes.

Two new studies from Rhode Island and Germany found the shorter men are, the greater their risk of heart trouble and high blood pressure.

None of this means heart disease is inevitable, no matter how diminutive someone is. However, especially short folks probably should make extra sure they do whatever else they can to reduce 'Short people need to look at their other risk factors, such as weight and blood pressure. The height they can't do anything about," said Dr. Donna Parker of Memorial Hospital of Rhode Island in

6-year-old boy dies after being struck by truck driven by pizza delivery man

By Joe Gaines

Staff writer

A 6-year-old boy died Friday about an hour after he was struck by a pizza delivery driver Friday evening. Derick Lee was pronounced dead around 7: 30 p.m. at Memorial Hospital and Medical Center, police said. The accident occurred about 6: 30 p.m. in a parking lot at the Oasis Apartments, 2700 N. Midland Drive.

The driver, 22-year-old Jason Trott, was a delivery man for Pizza Hut who was kepking for an address when he struck the child, Police Sgt. David Garcia said.

The driver felt he had run over something with both tires on the passenger's side. When he stopped and looked in his rearview mirror, he saw a crowd gathering behind him." Garcia

Taiwanese newspapers have speculated that the southern islet, sparsely populated Wuchiu, could be attacked in quest of a propaganda victory over Taiwan.

But Chang You-hua, a Taiwanese military analyst, did not expect an attack on the islets. China wouldn't bother with an attack, but they are telling Taiwan: 'We can seize these islands whenever we want to," he said.

Chang Ling-chen, a political scientist at National Taiwan University, said China was sending the message that it is unmoved by U.S. efforts to deter war by deploying warships to the area. The latest announcement did not say whether live fire would be used, as in the present exercise. It also did not advise ships and airliners to change course.

The eight-day exercise straddles Taiwan's March 23 presidential election, which Lee is expected to win. Beijing clearly wants to weaken Lee by scaring voters into the arms of candidates who are faithful to the doctrine that China

ROAM: Plan would allow pilots freedom

order route changes when aircraft approach one another too

While free flight will be available to all pilots, it will have the greatest i.npact on airlines.

Currently, most airliners follow directions from ground-based controllers crossing the country from one check point to another, often in zigzag paths that waste time and burn unnecessary fuel. Having them follow these paths lets the controllers know where the planes are and keeps them at least three miles apart horizontally and 1,000 feet apart vertical-

With free flight, planes will no longer be confined to those narrow jet routes around the country.

They will be able to "go where they want to as fast as they want to at the altitude they want to,' explained Lane Speck of the FAA.

Controllers will monitor the traffic and step in only to make sure the planes keep a safe distance apart and avoid prohibited airspace and to prevent congestion in high-traffic areas, he said.

Free flight will use radar, global positioning systems and electronic communications to track planes and allow the pilots and controllers to be aware of two hockey-puck shaped zones around each craft.

No aircraft will be allowed to enter the smaller protected zone around a plane, Speck said. When the larger alert zone of one plane conflicts with another the pilots and controllers will be alerted to act to avoid problems.

"This is truly dynamic air traffic management," he said. The size of these zones will vary depending on the size and speed of the planes involved.

Allowing the planes to leave the current jet routes will spread them out and make conflicts less likely, Speck said.

Hinson said it is possible that free flight will allow planes to fly closer together than is currently permitted, but that will have to be determined in the future.

Free flight doesn't mean an end to air traffic control, though.

'We think the automation will assist humans, not replace them, he said.

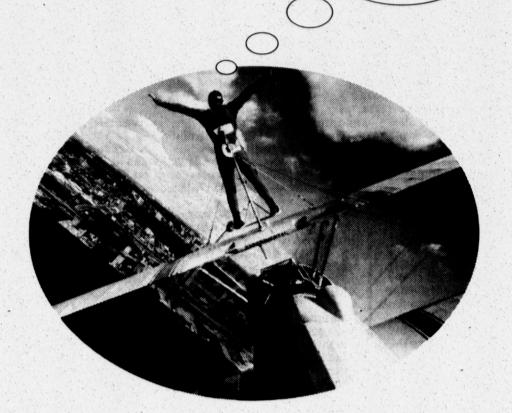

Indeed, Hinson noted that projections call for the number of people flying in the United States to increase from 550 million to 1 billion in 20 years, which will result in a need for more traffic controllers to help handle the extra flights, even with free flight in Airlines have been anxious to begin free flight and a version of the system has been tested over the South Pacific ocean by Northwest, United and Qantas airlines. That test uses satellite radio links to keep air traffic controllers in Oakland, Calif., informed of the position of planes.

In addition, the National Route Program permits planes crossing the country above 33,000 feet to select their own routes. That is expected to be lowered to 29,000 in a phased process.

Airlines have estimated the National Route Program saves them as much as $40 million a year by allowing them to choose faster

HEIGHT: Study finds link between shortness, heart trouble

(From 1A)

Her study — a cross-section of 6,589 Rhode Islanders — looked at how everyone else compared with those who stood between 5-foot-7 and 5-foot-8

Those under 5-foot-5 had a risk of heart disease that was double that of these moderate-size men, while men over 5-foot-10 had a risk that was 60 percent lower.

Just why this might be is unclear, but there are theories. Among them:

■ While genes clearly play a part in height, being short also may be a sign of poor nutrition in childhood, and this might somehow affect the heart later in life.

■ Small people have especially tiny blood vessels that are more prone to getting clogged with fatty buildups, the underlying cause of heart attacks.

Also unclear is why this should be so in men but not women. The Rhode Island study found no sign that short women are more prone to heart trouble.

Likewise, in the German study, which looked for links between height and blood pressure, there was only slight evidence that short women run a higher risk.

Both studies were presented Friday at a conference sponsored by the American Heart Associa-

The German study, conducted at the University of Munster, was based on 5,065 men and women. It found that the shorter men are, the higher their blood pressure.

People in the Rhode Island study, which included large numbers of Portuguese-Americans, were shorter than the Germans. Yet in both studies, taller was better, at least for the heart.

The links between height and the heart have been the subject of considerable research in recent years. While most studies appear to have found an association, at least for men, there have been some notable exceptions.

For instance, the long-running Framingham Heart Study saw no evidence that stature has anything to do with cardiovascular health. The Framingham study follows the health of people in one suburban Boston town that is only an hour or so drive from Rhode Island.

'It's hard to understand how in two communities so close to each other the results could be so different," said Dr. Daniel Levy, head of the Framingham study.

CIA, State Department hash out terrorism deal with Israel

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — CIA Director sit for Palestinian workers going to jobs ohn Deutch and Secretary of State War-in Israel from the West Bank and Gaza. John Deutch and Secretary of State Warren Christopher joined Israelis Friday in working out major provisions of a counterterrorism agreement that provides for pooling intelligence about militant Islam-

"The purpose is tracking down the enemies of peace," Christopher said after he and Deutch met with Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres at the Israeli Defense Ministry.

Christopher said a final agreement, providing for "a comprehensive strategy" to protect Israel's borders against infiltrators, is expected to be ready for signing when Peres visits Washington next

Among the technology are bomb detection devices that can monitor groups of people far more quickly than cumbersome and intrusive individual searches. Christopher said the result would be easier tran-

Since Israel and the PLO signed an accord in September 1993, a total of 213 men, women and children have perished at the hands of terrorists - the largest civilian toll in Israel's 48-year history.

Peres has turned to the United States for help, even though Israel's counterterrorism techniques are world-renowned and past Israeli leaders have emphasized the nation's capacity to protect itself.

At a joint news conference, Peres emphasized the huge task confronting his government. "While terror can be done by small groups, anti-terrorism requires a wide system," he said.

American technology and training valued at about $100 million were pledged to Israel by President Clinton on Thursday. Senior U.S. and Israeli officials discussed the details until 3 a.m. Friday, and then Deutch and Christopher approved shipments with Peres, who is also Israel's defense minister.

Christopher said most of the equipment would be delivered in the next few weeks.

While Peres and the Clinton administration are promoting cooperation with Palestinian police in tracking down terPeres and U.S. officials said Friday sophisticated U.S. technology would not be shared with the Palestinian Authority.

Christopher, meanwhile, appealed to European countries to cut their trade with Iran, which the United States and Israel consider the prime supporter of terrorist groups, including Hamas.
"The United States is convinced the time has come for our friends and allies in Europe and Asia to reconsider their stance toward Iran," Christopher said. "The evidence is clear that Iran continues to front and train and provide political support to Hezbollah, the Islamic Jihad and Hamas.

Israeli officials said they envisioned using much of the U.S. aid to help establish a separation zone with the West Bank to try to prevent terrorist infiltration. The zone, which would include electronic fences, guard towers and bomb-sniffing rorists in Gaza and on the West Bank, dogs, was first proposed by Israel's late Peres and U.S. officials said Friday Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and was approved by the Israeli Cabinet on March

> In Washington, however, a State Department official said, "The United States does not intend for any of its aid to > be used in any kind of permanent separation zone. Clinton intends to use $50 million already approved by Congress, and is asking for another $50 million for the fiscal > year that begins in October. 'Fear must be conquered, security must be restored and peace must be pursued," Clinton said.

> On Friday, Israel lifted restrictions that confined more than I million Palestinians to their towns, but did not ease a closure that barred residents of the West Bank and Gaza from entering Israel. Clinton and Christopher are backing Peres on sealing the border.

Iran's elections require runoffs for several seats

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Nearly half the races in Iran's parliamentary elections are too close to call, leaving the larger contest between moderates loyal to the president and anti-Western hardliners unresolved.

Only 139 of 270 seats were filled in Friday's voting, according to official results released Friday.

There was no exact breakdown on the number of seats won by each faction, but it was clear that neither hard-liners nor moderates were able to build a decisive edge.

Runoffs for the 131 remaining seats were set for April 19. The elections, the fifth parliamentary ballot since the 1979 revolution that brought Islamic fundamentalists to power, are crucial for President Hashemi Rafsan-

Rafsanjani is struggling to revive Iran's stagnant economy. Without a supportive legislature, he will have trouble developing a coherent economic program or ending the country's international isolation.

Forbes walks away with no regrets

NEW YORK (AP) - Steve Forbes spent about $170,000 a day on his presidential gambit, a sizable amount to sink into a losing cause regardless of his wealth.

But the $30 million burned over six months, worth roughly half the appropriate time. Forbes family's dozen Faberge Imperial Eggs, isn't viewed as illspent by the eldest son of the late Malcolm Forbes. On the contrary, the magazine publisher sees it as one of the biggest nest eggs of all

"Let me tell you I believe I made the best investment any of us can make," he said Thursday in bowing out of the race. "I tried to make my country a better, stronger and finer place.

As an investment, there's a case to be made that the money he spent, most of it his own, will work for him. For a man worth more than $400 million, it's not even an onerous amount, coming to less than 8 percent of his estimated stake in Forbes Inc.

In fact, Forbes spent roughly half of the more than $60 million that Texas businessman Ross Perot pitched in during his 1992 independent bid f r the presidency.

'He is a big win er in terms of prestige and influence," said Larry Sabato, a professor of government at the University of Virginia. "He's a big winner in terms of political power and, lastly, he's going to be a big winner financially in the long run.

"This will probably help his magazine," Sabato continued, 'and my guess is there's a book or two in the works.

The analyses of what Forbes got for his money have so far been strictly mathematical - 76 Republican delegates, working out to $395,000 each. But the gains also come in the personal, profession-think he's getting out with dignity. He's getting out at the al and political dividends that aren't so obvious.

Professionally, Forbes, editor in chief of Forbes magazine and chief executive of Forbes Inc., got exposure that any marketing executive would kill for. Frank Perdue, eat your heart out. During his campaign's height, Forbes' face was verywhere.

"This was pretty effective advertising," said John Ward, a professor at Loyola University Chicago, who specializes in family businesses. "It's one thing to have a piece of mail in a bundle of junk mail, it's another thing to be on the front page of a newspaper or the 10 o'clock news.

Cost-wise, the spending wasn't too far out of whack for marketing. The $30 million, the campaign's most recent overall cost estimate, only comes to about 11 percent of Forbes Inc.'s 1994 revenue from media activities, as estimated by Advertising Age magazine.

On the political side, the advantages are fuzzier. Forbes has certainly bought himself influence among Republican thinkers, particularly concerning economics and taxes. He grabbed the idea of a flat tax and made it the centerpiece of his campaign

His decision to call it quits now. rather than carry on and weaken presumptive nominee Bob Dole's chances in the general election, also helped his stature among the

'I think he's getting out with dignity. He's getting out at the appro-priate time," said Ed Goeas, a Republican pollster.

Goeas said that while Forbes performance was not good enough to provide him an edge for another White House run in the year 2000, it could put him in position for a Cabinet job. It might also get his ideas a hearing at some of Washington's influential think-tanks.

"I ran in this race not to be someone but to do something," Forbes said in his capitulation speech. "In whatever remaining capacity I can serve, I will continue to do

Dollar for dollar, though, not all agree Forbes' multimillion-dollar presidential bid was the best use of

William Kristol, the conservative strategist and editor of The Weekly Standard, says Forbes' political career would have been better served by spending $8 million to $10 million to seek a Senate

"There were other ways to impact the Republican agenda and get the message of economic growth and tax cutting out there,' said Kristol, who argues Forbes even hurt the idea of a flat tax by losing so badly.

Even those who say Forbes gained nothing politically concede he's won a personal triumph. Working for years under the shadow of his flamboyant father, who died in 1990, Forbes finally made his own mark.

'His father didn't do it for him. He got up there himself and ran around campaigning," said Muriel Siebert, an investment banker and contributor to Forbes' campaign. 'I think that's terrific.'

Tobacco group agrees to settle medical bills for $10 million

Group agreed Friday to repay more than in the Medicaid deal. $10 million in Medicaid bills for treatment "We want to colle of smokers, settling lawsuits with five states while widening its breach with the rest of the tobacco industry.

The settlement came just two days after Liggett, the nation's fifth-largest tobacco company, made history by settling a private class-action lawsuit alleging cigarette makers manipulated nicotine to hook smokers.

In the earlier case, Liggett became the first tobacco company to agree to pay any money in 40 years of smoking lawsuits but its first check will be for $1 mttlion teen-age smokers.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Liggett divided next week among the five states

'We want to collect the taxpayers' money," declared Mississippi Attorney General Michael Moore, who negotiated the deal. Other states are Massachusetts. Florida, Louisiana and West Virginia.

Liggett admits no wrongdoing, but agreed to a settlement that will cost at least $10 million plus 7.5 percent of its pretax profits over the next 25 years. It also reiterates an agreement made in Wednesday's settlement to follow proposed Food and Drug Administration restrictions on tobacco advertising that could attract

"This comprehensive settlement is good Florida's bill totals $400 million. news for ... shareholders and it is also in the long-term financial interests of the entire tobacco industry," said Bennett LeBow, chief executive of Liggett's parent, Brooke Group.

He called the deal "a new economic model for the industry based on responsible coexistence instead of scorchedearth confrontation.

The money is a small portion of the hundreds of millions of dollars states have spent on Medicaid costs for people with smoking-related illnesses, Moore said. Mississippi spends over $60 million a year treating low-income smokers, while the entire industry earlier this week that

But it's proportional to the 2 percent market share held by Liggett, maker of Chesterfield and Eve cigarettes - and there's a potentially more lucrative clause. If Liggett chief Bennett LeBow succeeds in his quest to take over giant competitor R.J. Reynolds, which makes Camels and Winston, he would immediately pay a greater share.

"The RJR deal alone would be worth over $2 billion," Moore said. "The numbers get big very, very quickly.

RJR would not comment on that portion of the deal, but reiterated statements by no other tobacco firms plan to settle. "We will prevail in all pending tobacco litigation," said spokeswoman Peggy

The five states aren't the only ones to benefit from Liggett's settlement.

Liggett will repay some $10 million in past Medicaid costs to the five, plus pay them 2.5 percent of pre-tax profits for the next 25 years to cover future smokers'

But it also will set up a fund with 5 percent of its profits for the next 25 years that will pay any other states that enter the agreement. Maryland is preparing to.

New device benefits blind

WASHINGTON (AP) — Blind Americans could soon be "reading" newspapers over breakfast through a new program that instantly turns the printed word into speech they can hear over any telephone for free.

We didn't know a lot of this information was available. The general scope of the paper, how much it does - it was unimaginable," said Marc Maurer, president of the National Federation of the Blind.

'Now I can read The New York Times every morning just like millions of others.

At least 600,000 Americans are legally blind, but the U.S. Census Bureau has counted 13 million who have trouble reading ordinary newsprint even with glass-

Those who aren't helped by large-print versions have had little access to daily newspapers.

The Library of Congress every week publishes a summary of top New York Times stories in Braille. About 100 radio stations broadcast volunteers reading newspapers aloud once a day, and there are a handful where volunteers tape this daily reading so the blind can hear it whenever it's convenient.

The National Federation of the Blind has gone a step further, putting The New York Times, USA Today and Chicago Tribune into what is essentially a telephone voice-mail system called Newsline for the Blind.

Computer centers run the program. At 6: 15 each morning, the federation's computers hook up with the newspapers' computers to translate the day's paper into a synthesized voice much like that used in subways. The translation takes 15 minutes, and any-time afterward the blind can hear the news for free.

They don't just read whole stories but scan pages, flipping between politics, the stock market or Ann Landers, skipping the boring sentences and speeding or slowing the speech as their interest waxes and wanes, Maurer explained.

The program is running in Baltimore, Baton Rouge, La., and Minneapolis, and is scheduled to start in 100 cities by next year, once the federation buys the equipment and sets up the phone lines for each area's computer

'We asked older blind people what they missed most and got two answers - reading the newspaper and driving the car. We can do something about the newspa-per," said Suzanne Mitchell, director of services for the blind in Louisiana, which spent a $50,000 federal grant to set up the computer center in Baton Rouge in August. Some 300 people already use it.

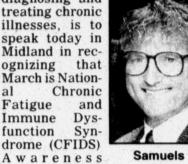

It's a good investment because each computer center can be rigged to carry local newspapers - the Baton Rouge Advocate is already on line.

Dallas physician to speak about chronic fatigue

By Ed Todd Staff Writer

Dr. Michael G. Samuels, a Dallas physician who specializes in diagnosing and treating chronic illnesses, is to speak today in Midland in recognizing that March is Nation-Chronic Fatigue and Immune Dysfunction Syndrome (CFIDS)

Month. He is to speak from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. today in the Main Auditorium of the Golf Course Road Church of Christ at 3500 W. Golf Course

The free seminar is being hosted by the Midland-based WTLC -West Texans Living with Chronic Fatigue/Fibromyalgia

"Our goal remains to be one of supporting those who are afflicted with this devastating illness as well as educating the public," noted Midlander Linda Hagler, who is WTLC president.

Sponsoring Samuels' return visit to Midland to speak on the diagnosis and treatment of chronic illnesses is a WTLC deed toward fulfilling that goal, Ms. Hagler noted.

Samuels' background is in osteopathic medicine, environmental medicine, homeopathy, preventative medicine, and nutritional medicine.

"Currently, I am continuing my studies through several fellowships and medical organizations, where I hope to discover revolutionary treatments to combat the unique environmental illnesses of the 21st Century," Samuels recently said. "My emphasis is on treating chronic degenerative diseases using non-toxic treatments when

In diagnosing and treating patients, Samuels follows his tenet of educating the patient by allowing the patient to be more involved in the choice of his or her treatment and for the patient to be increasing more responsible for his or her own care.

Samuels, who is on the teaching faculties of the Texas College of Osteopathic Medicine and the Sutherland Cranial Foundation, is the medical director of two international agencies that are treating the Human Immunodeficiency Virus (HIV) and is associated with the Alternative Medical Clinic in Costa Rica.

Additionally, Samuels is vice president of medical information for the Dallas El Dorado Longevity and Rejuvenation (anti-aging) clinics around the world and is the worldwide medical director for El Dorado Clinics.

Samuels earned his medical degree from the Texas College of Osteopathic Medicine.

The CFIDS Association of America has noted that "Chronic fatigue syndrome is a serious and complex illness characterized by incapacitating fatigue, neurological problems, and a constellation of other

Growing pains

WASHINGTON — The National Science Foundation (NSF) is looking for a few good solutions to congestion on the Internet and will invite university scientists who use the network to come up with innovative ways to move information from computer to computer.

Because of the Internet's rapid growth in the past few years, original scientific uses have suffered, said NSF official Mark Luker.

"These are growing pains or too much success too quickly," he said. "Many, many people are using the .MDNM/Internet and they are using it for bigger projects. They're sending video over the Internet with the Worldwide Web, for example, as opposed to just using it for e-mail and text in the past. Commercial firms are

"And while that's a sign of success, it also has degraded the quality in some cases for the people who were on it originally as a pure research network.

Meanwhile, as more and more non-government, non-researcher users join the Internet and come up with new ways to use more and more of its ability to transmit information, scientists are also thinking of new ways they could

But many of these new uses have never been tried because there isn't sufficient room on the road for them.

"If we had high-speed networking, there are a lot of things that we could do that we have never done," he said. "Successfully operating an astronomical telescope from a distance, for example, or connecting hundreds of work stations around the country to work together to compute the same problem.

It may be possible to restore the speed researchers originally enjoyed on the Internet by prioritizing traffic, said Luker, director of NSFNet, the foundation's portion of the Internet.

Under the present arrangement, routers, the computers that shunt information from place to place on the Internet, treat all packets of data the same way.

"It's like a commuter van that has the same lane on a freeway as a car with just one driver," Luker said, "or an ambulance with a flashing light."

With some changes in software and upgraded hardware, it should be possible for routers to recognize high priority traffic and give it different treatment, he said.

He said the foundation intends to fund several scientific research projects that also include innovave ways to use the Internet, in hopes of developing congestion solutions that private Internet users will embrace.

"We think it will take a combination of approaches to solve this," he said. "We will build more and more 'highways,' and we will change the rules of the road."

Luker said in reviewing proposals from scientists for ways to solve the electronic traffic jam, the NSF will use two main criteria:

First, the project for which they hope to use the Internet must be eritorious," something that like-will contribute significantly to me scientific or engineering

Second, the networking innova-tions they propose to use in conmust hold promise of making

The top on-line service companies and the National Consumer's League announced Tuesday that they would begin a campaign to educate the public about intellectual property rights, privacy and consumer protection on the Internet.

The initiative is part of the on-line industry's response to the new Communications Decency Act, which makes it a felony to knowingly transmit indecent or patently offensive material over computer networks where children may see it.

Last month the on-line companies joined civil liberties groups to challenge the law in U.S. District Court in Philadelphia. The industry says the law is "unconstitutionally vague" and subjects computer networks to more restrictive standards of speech than those that apply to books, newspapers and other printed material.

The on-line companies say current laws, public education and responsible parents are the best means to protect children from objectionable materials on the Internet

We are committed to an open network and not legislation," said Daniel Hesse, general manager of the AT&T Online Services Group. "But we also want to ensure privacy and parental controls."

The program is called Project OPEN, for the Online Public Education Network. It plans to send out 250,000 brochures, refer consumer complaints to government investigators and place public-service ads in newspapers and magazines

The 15-page brochure is a short primer for on-line beginners. It includes common-sense tips as "Keep personal information private" and "Never give out your password." It discusses the software that allows parents to block their children from access to selected Internet sites and lists some of the sup-

Compuserve, Inc. will start its new on-line service, Wow!, on costing $17.95 for unlimited access including the Internet, is March 25, the company announced Wednesday. The service, designed specifically for at-home use.

Wow!: Company aims Internet-based service at families

By Peter Lewis

N.Y. Times News Service

Compuserve Inc., going against the tide of the consumer on-line industry, Wednesday disclosed plans for a proprietary service aimed at families and novice computer users.

The Internet-based service, called Wow! from Compuserve, is scheduled to be available March 25 at a flat rate of $17.95 a month for unlimited access. It will offer a range of materials oriented for family and children; a child signing on would see a cartoon-directed interface, while an adult would see a more serious approach.

Wow! also will offer access to the World Wide Web through its own browser, along with a set of controls enabling parents to limit access to Internet sites for their children.

Officials at Compuserve, a unit of H&R

Block Inc., made it clear Wednesday that they regard Wow! as a direct challenge to America Online Inc., the leader in the consumer on-line services market. In addition, they hinted Wednesday that Compuserve was in talks with both AT&T Corp. and the Microsoft Network on-line division of Microsoft Corp. about securing distribution deals similar to the ones those companies announced with America Online this week. "Stay tuned," Scott Kauffman, general manager of the Wow! service, said. The existing Compuserve Information Service has an estimated 4.3 million subscribers worldwide, mainly among businesses and technology enthusiasts. In contrast, Compuserve officials said, Wow! has been designed to appeal to users of home computers, especially those with children, and people who have found the Internet and on-line services too difficult to use.

"We believe the consumer market for on-line services is about to explode," said Compuserve president Robert J.

Analysts said it was unclear whether that was the case - or whether the new service could explode in Compuserve's

'Wow! has made some improvements to existing on-line services, in terms of ease of use, pricing, and intuitive navigation," said Mary Doyle, senior analyst at IDC/Link, a market research company in New York. Still, she said, "I'm not entirely convinced that the world needs another on-line service.

In recent months, several consumer on-line services have either failed or abandoned their proprietary approach in favor of becoming open services within the Internet, including News Corp.'s

America Online, Microsoft link up for 'Net service

Hearst News Service

SEATTLE - Microsoft Corp. and America Online agreed Tuesday to enter a partnership that will make Microsoft's Internet Explorer the standard software that America Online's 5 million subscribers use to search the World Wide Web, the fastgrowing graphical portion of the Internet. The announcement came a day after the No. 1 on-line service teamed up with Netscape Commu-nications Corp. and AT&T Corp... "America Online is now embracing Microsoft's Internet technologies, and we're building Internet Explorer into the AOL brand.' said Steve Case, chief executive officer of America Online, during a telephone conference call

The partnership is a sudden reversal of fortune for upstart Internet software company Netscape Communications Corp., which Monday announced a less-advantageous deal with America Online. The America Online-Microsoft agreement calls for Microsoft to "become our primary technology partner in the Internet space," Case said. In return, America Online will receive virtually the same kind of marketing advantage that Microsoft gives its own online service, the fledgling Microsoft Network; an easy, high-profile link to America Online will become a standard feature of Microsoft's ubiquitous Windows 95 operating system.

Microsoft Chairman Bill Gates called the AOL deal "the largest and most important partnership we'll have in this area.

Gates said no significant amount of money will change hands and Microsoft will continue to compete with AOL with its Microsoft Network, which has about 850,000 mem-

But the companies will conduct joint marketing and software engineering efforts, and AOL will begin using Microsoft's Internet-related software development tools.

What made the joint news conference unusual was the appearance of Gates and Case in the same corner, in stark contrast to a dust-up between them last yes

Case vociferously traed last summer to get Justice Department antitrust investigators to forestall the launch of Windows 95 in August, or a least force Microsoft to make other online services an integral part of the operating system.

"Seven months later, he's now part of that operating system he's

Experts: As Internet spreads, so does its exposure to hackers, criminals, terrorists

A political crisis in Saudi Arabia pits the ruling elite against an enigmatic group of Iranian-backed Islamists. The United States becomes the target of an electronic warfare attack via the Internet; rerouted trains crash, telephone networks collapse and computer screens go Iran is suspected, but the United States is unable to finger the perpetrators. And as policymakers wrestle with how to respond, panic inside the country builds.

The scenario, framed in a recently declassified report prepared for the Department of Defense, highlights two critical questions about the future of the Internet, the global computer network that is evolving into the backbone of the ation's communications and commerce

How vulnerable is the Internet to disuption, from a lone hacker to a terrorst cell? And as this vulnerability increases, who should be responsible for making sure the sprawling network is secure?

In its ongoing search for answers, the Internet community of scientists, business people, government bureacrats and individual computer users face a complex task, and one that has already kicked up a firestorm of dissent and disagreement. Security is demonstrably the most important and controversial issue facing the Internet today, and how these security concerns are resolved will ultimately determine what the Inter-

High tech could mean big changes for urban centers, real estate market

By James Denn

Hearst News Service

ALBANY, N.Y. - The winds of change, stirred by the rapid emergence of technology, are blowing through America's canyons and office parks.

These changes eventually may have a dramatic and financially painful effect on the mammoth commercial real estate market, according to new research.

Linked computers, high-speed faxes and powerful computers capable of digitizing documents by the roomful, are rewriting the rules of how business operates, studies say. Not only is technology reducing the need for workers in some fields, it is giving companies the option to house workers at less costly sites through interconnecting computer systems.

Historically, cities grew as centers of transactions and commerce largely because of the need for physical proximity among firms, suppliers and customers. Massive office buildings — the skyscraper — were built to meet this need. But companies may no longer have to house employees in a central location.

The economics that drove the development of real estate for the past three decades aren't there in today's information age," said Barry Libert, managing director of Arthur Anderson & Co.'s real estate transformation

By the turn of the century, the value of commercial real estate in the U.S. may plummet $660 billion, or 20 percent, according to a new study by Anderson, a national consulting company.

Anderson reports there is 100 million square feet of unneeded retail space in the U.S., or about 20 percent of the total. There is 3 billion square feet of unneeded office space, or about 10 percent of the total. And there is 40 percent extra industher apart, reducing the once competitive advantage of highcost, congested urban locations and allowing people and businesses more freedom to choose where they will live and work.

"There is no question technology is having an impact on real estate," said Hugh Johnson, chief investment officer with First Albany Corp. "The economy is becoming less labor intensive. There is going to be less need for commercial real

Henry C. Lucas, a professor at Stern School of Business in New York, says managers can now remain in contact and supervise significantly more subordinates.

Technology may also reduce the need for warehousing. Years ago, corporations leased huge warehouses to store paper documents. Today, most of those documents can be stored electronically, reducing both space needs and costs.

Experts predict modern technology may also have an equally dramatic impact on retail space. If enough people grow used to "virtual shopping malls" it could eliminate the need for a substantial portion of existing retail space. The changes technology is having on the marketplace go far beyond the impact on owners of com-mercial real estate. Not only could it reduce property values for municipalities and school districts, it also may change commuting patterns.

The federal study suggested that urban centers will have trouble adapting and will face greater disinvestment, job loss and fiscal difficulties than suburban markets.

argued so vehemently against," said Allen Weiner, an analyst at the Dataquest market research

Case and others claimed that including one-click access to Microsoft Network in Windows 95 gave Microsoft's online service an unfair competitive advantage. Windows operating systems are used by more than 100 million people worldwide, and the vast majority of new computers are shipped with the operating system pre-installed.

The Justice Department took no action, although it has never officially closed a longstanding investigation of Microsoft's business practices. The department had no comment Tuesday

Because of Tuesday's agreement, AOL will gain better and cheaper exposure to millions of computer users.

Starting next summer, Microsoft will include on the Win-Starting summer. dows 95 "desktop" screen a fold-er that when opened will display an AOL icon providing a one-click link with the service. The folder will appear adjacent to the Microsoft Network icon.

'Steve Case has made it known for almost eight months that he desperately wanted a button (to AOL) on the Windows 95 desktop and that strategy didn't work," said Adam Schoenfeld, a vice president at Jupiter Communications in New York. "So he made a Faustian bargain and did a deal with Microsoft that gets him that "I do think the companies are being pragmatic about looking at ways to work with each other if it meets the needs of the marketplace," Case said.

The Microsoft/Netscape partnership is not exclusive. Compuserve, the second-largest online service with about 4.5 million subscribers, licensed Microsoft's browser in December, and the company is expected to reach an agreement soon with Microsoft similar to AOL's.

The growth of the Internet and the rapid adoption of emerging Internet communications technology by corporate America have forced both Microsoft and all online services into making major strategic changes to avoid obso-

Microsoft is widely perceived to be lagging Netscape Communications Corp. and Sun Microsystems in bringing advanced Internet software to market.

That's partly because Netscape built a large Internet customer base by giving away more than 15 million copies of its browser software, Netscape Navigator.

The company is leveraging that strategic advantage to get new customers for its advanced programs for creating Internet content and running corporate sites on the World Wide Web. Program-mers who design information for the Web decide what software tools to buy based on the acceptance of browsers.

Microsoft since late last year has been pushing hard to catch up.

The company's browser which is also being given away— has far fewer users than Netscape, but convincing AOL to make an updated and more advanced version of Internet Explorer — due out next summer - the primary AOL browser will add to Microsoft's potential customer base and credibility.

'It's a near-term psychological and strategic boost to Microsoft, said Scott McAdams, stock analyst with Ragen MacKenzie Inc.

GROW: Along with spread of Internet comes crime, terrorism

"cyber-terrorism" is inevitable, said Peter A. Wilson, a national security consultant and one of the authors of the report, prepared for the government by the Rand Corp. "It's the consequence of the technological revolution.

Without a doubt, as the on-line society grows more complex and more real, so, too, do the criminal elements that feed on it. Features that make the Internet more interactive and entertaining — such as real-time audio and video, and complex programs that can be instantly accessed from the global computer network - are actually opening the door wider for computer rogues intent on disrupting the system.

"The knowledge on how to break into (the Internet) is becoming more and more widespread,' as the Internet becomes more functional, said Carl Ellison, an Internet specialist with Cyber-Cash Inc. of Reston, Va.

Each day, hackers mount thousands of attempts to muscle their way into computer systems lashed to the sprawling network. Many of the attacks are harmless pranks, but others are not. Last summer, a hacker in St. Petersburg, Russia, managed to snatch $10 million from client accounts at Citibank. In January, a Seattle high school student used the Internet to shut down a Minnesota public library, costing it more than $200,000.

Chris Goggans, the fabled former hacker who inspired last summer's movie "Hackers," recently outlined a handful of ways to cripple the Internet worldwide, from bugs and viruses to sophisticated electronic warfare to simply slicing a handful of wires that link the Internet together. "It doesn't take much but an idiot with a pair of wire cutters," he said, according to Electronic Engineering Times, a trade journal.

But who would stop such an attack from happening?

The answer, say some experts, is probably no one; on the information superhighway there are no traffic cops.

Indeed, order on the Internet is maintained via a kind of digital volunteer fire department, a network of systems administrators, security buffs and "good" hackers intent not on exploiting the system, but rather pointing out its flaws. Much of this loosely-organized computer militia stems from the libertarian roots of the Internet, where many users still view the government's involvement with distrust. "No one patrols the 'Net," said Terry McGillen, spokesman for the Pittsburgh-based Computer Emergency Research Team, a Department of Defense-funded organization that helps collect information about break-ins, viruses and system attacks.

CERT, founded in 1988 in the wake of a fabled virus known as the Morris Worm that crippled a large part of the computer network, is now one of several dozen Internet lifeguards. CERT collects information on security break-ins and offers advice on how to prevent future ones. When a hacker attack involves broken laws — such as stolen data — CERT passes on the information to either the Federal Bureau of Investigation's National Computer Crime Squad or Interpol's Computer Crime Group.

But some say this type of reactive response might not be enough in the future, especially as the Internet draws an increasingly alluring bounty of money and information.

"In an open network, of course you're going to have these problems," said Anthony Rutkowski, in charge of Internet strategy at General Magic Inc., of Sunnyvale, Calif.

The Rand report took those assertions one step further, speculating that the Internet could become a staging ground for a next generation of warfare, as terrorists and, in some cases, enemy countries, attack the United States by attacking the Internet.

By using what Rand calls "weapons of mass disruption" viruses and electronic bursts that could shut down communications. reroute trains and planes and wreak havoc on the computer-controlled oil distribution system.

Contemplating such a scenario, the federal government is now actively trying to understand what its role should be" in patrolling the Internet in the future, said Roger C. Molander, a senior researcher at Rand who specializes in cyber-security. Molander said there are now 'strong indications that it should require (presidential level) atten-

Still, just how seriously such a threat should be taken is a topic of dispute, even within the government.

"You just cannot take the 'Net down," said Marcus Ranum, a leading security expert who is know chief scientist of V1 Corp. of Rockville, Md.

- He believes a host of factors now make the Internet safer than it was just a few years ago, from "firewalls" now being constructed to protect corporate networks to the growing sophistication and security of programs. For this reason Ranum calls hackers digital "ankle biters," annoying but relatively harmless.

But In'Ranum's mind, the most effective weapon against Internet sabotage is the network of security experts and systems administrators spread throughout the world. "As soon as anyone finds something like (a virus), it would be only a matter of minutes before the secret brotherhood of computer gurus knew about it," he laughed. "When the hackers stick their heads up, we can squash them like bugs.

Still, sophisticated programs are making viruses more likely. Since viruses require an open door to work their way into a computer, the new generation of applets, or tiny applications that are downloaded on the Internet and then executed on host computers are considered ideal delivery vehicles.

'There is inherent danger when we allow code to be executed on your machine automatically,

Sun Microsystems Inc., the developer of the most popular applet, called Java, maintains that multiple layers of security were programmed into Java to prevent against just these kinds of problems. Security "was a major priority for the whole project," said Marianne Mueller, an engineer who helped develop Java.

Some companies are not convinced.

Partly because of endemic security fears, many corporations are now eschewing the Internet for a new type of private Internets being put up by companies like US West. Forrester research analyst Blane Erwin predicts these closed systems will thrive in the coming years as more and more companies decide to hold off on the public Internet until safety concerns are worked out.

Just how the government would help boost safety on the Internet is still a matter of debate. Molander believes a first step may be in taking a more active role in promoting security on the Internet through school programs.

But regardless of how the security debate plays out, experts say common sense may just be the best deterrent to crime.

The National Consumers League, a longstanding advocacy group, set up "Internet Fraud Watch" two weeks ago to answer questions and forward complaints to government investigators. Its toll-free number is (800) 876-7060, and its Web site http://www.fraud.org.

Industry executives portrayed the education effort on Tuesday as a natural step to reach out to mainstream consumers. Still, the program also has an implicit marketing message, suggesting that the Internet is open and welcoming of the Prodigy service with IBM, has said it wants out of the on-line

"A lot of people think it's all over for the on-line services," said Nick Donatiello, president of Odyssey Ventures Ltd., a San Francisco research firm. "Just the opposite: The on-line services battle is in its infancy.

Donatiello said just 11 percent of U.S. households now subscribe to an on-line service. And of those households, two-fifths have switched on-line services at least once, while 16 percent have switched twice or more. "Clearly, there's lots of room for change, he said.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

Rev. Rudd to retire

The Rev. Lucian Rudd of Ranchland Heights Baptist Church is retiring after several years of service to the

A graduate of Hardin-Simmons University and Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, Rudd has served churches in the area for 31 years.
"The congregation is grateful for his service to the church and wishes him well in his retirement," said a release from Ranchland Heights. Robert Kepple will speak at the 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. services Sunday at the ister for several years at Cottonflat Baptist Church and is ministering in Children's Church at Cottonflat. After the evening service, the church will have a "box supper." People are asked to bring a decorated "box sup-per" that will be auctioned off. The monthly Men's Prayer Breakfast is set for 8 a.m. today at the church, 3203 County road 1211. The prayer breakfasts are held on the church. Kepple served as youth min-The Rev. R.C. Hutchinson, pastor of Mt. Carmel Baptist Church, will be the speaker. Macedonia's minister is the Rev. O.J. Archie.

In this film, Robbie Steele (Marietta DePrima), an ambitious, aggressive attorney with a Vancouver-based law firm, has a reputation for cutthroat practices. Her current challenge is getting the highest dollar for her client's (Hagan Beggs') sale of Vancouver's pro hockey team, the Blades. Her ace card is recruiting retired star Cody Harris (Ken Olandt) to sing with the struggling Blades.

Harris, whose past reputation was as a brawler, has changed. He's become a Christian. Ms. Steele's colleague in the case, Tom Spivak (John Shepherd) finds his own life moving in a new direction because of Cody Harris' influence. As the tension increases in the case — on the ice and between her and Harris — Ms. Steele's outer shell begins to crack. She battles with herself to remain in control, something she's always been able to do. This time, though, she begins to realize that maybe winning isn't everything — maybe LUBBOCK — The Texas Tech Lady Raiders caught fire last night at precisely the right time, and the Portland Pilots went cold at exactly the wrong one.

No.4-seeded Texas Tech exploded for 51 points in the second half and ran away for a 78-61 victory against Portland in a women's NCAA Midwest Regional firstround game before 7,053 at Lubbock Municipal Colise-later in the game to seal the victory.

"We really struggled offensively in the first half to find shots that we wanted to take." said Lady Raiders coach Marsha Sharp, whose team shot 36 percent in the first half and 57.1 percent in the second. "I think we were more relaxed in the second half.

"I think we ran about three or four different offenses until we found one that worked.

Sharp said that the one that worked was the "40 offense," which stations players closer to the basket. The offense freed freshman guard Rene Hanebutt, a Bowie High School product, for a 3-pointer to start the second half and get Tech rolling:

Senior center Michi Atkins dominated the smaller Pilots (23-7) on the inside, scoring a game-high 30 points on 10-of-20 shooting and pulling down 13 rebounds. Forward Alicia Thompson added 18 points, and forward

"Michi and 1/4RAlicia 1/4S both stepped up as goto players should," Sharp said. "Both of them had some blocks, some rebounds and some defensive plays."

Portland led 30-27 at halftime but went cold in the second half, shooting 36.4 percent. The Pilots were just 3of-12 from behind the 3-point arc in the final 20 minutes. Guard Laura Sale led the Pilots with 19 points but was 1-of-6 on 3-pointers.

We had about six relatively easy shots at the start of the second half," Portland coach Jim Sollars said.

We missed them all.

Then Tech hit some shots and got on a roll.' In the other first-round game, the Boilermakers (20-11) shot 31.5 percent against the Fighting Irish's 2-3 matchup zone, and Notre Dame put the game away from the free-throw line.

RICHMOND, Va. - The nation's longest winning streak remains intact, but just barely.

Texas Tech made only six field goals outside the lane and had just two baskets over the final 6:47 as it held off Northern Illinois 74-73 Friday night in the NCAA East Regional.

Jason Sasser had 21 points and seven rebounds as the third-seeded Red Raiders (29-1) won their 22nd straight game, their first in the NCAA tournament in 20 years.

"I don't think we played particularly bad; we just didn't shoot well," Texas Tech coach James Dickey said. "We got some great looks, but just couldn't Chris Coleman scored 24 of his 28 in the second half to lead a furious late charge by Northern Illinois (20-10). But the rally slowed when he was called for a charge when the Huskies had the ball trailing by four with 47.2 seconds to go.

Coleman came back to make a 3-pointer with 12.4 seconds remaining, but Sasser followed with two free throws to make it 74-70. Vaurice Patterson's 3-pointer with 1.3 seconds left the Huskies one point short in their bid to win an NCAA tournament game for the first time.

Cory Carr, Texas Tech's sixth man, made 3-pointers to start a 16-6 run in the first half and an 11-2 spurt in the second. But long shots were a rarity; the teams shot a combined 9-for-37 from 3-

MILWAUKEE - Michigan called a timeout again when it didn't have one Friday night. And the blunder, reminiscent of one three years ago in the NCAA championship, helped Texas clinch an 80-76 first-round win.

Brandy Perryman hit two free throws with 3.2 seconds left to seal the victory for Texas, right after Michigan's Louis Bullock had driven for a layup to bring the Wolverines to within 78-76.

But Maceo Baston then signaled for a timeout - just as Chris Webber did against North Carolina in 1993 - and the Wolverines, who didn't have one remaining, were assessed a technical foul. Bullock tried to stop Baston from calling the timeout, grabbing his arms.

The 10th-seeded Longhorns (21-9) will meet No. 2 seed Wake Forest in Sunday's second round at the Bradley Center. The Demon Deacons, playing for 14 minutes without ailing center Tim Duncan, still beat Northeast Louisiana 62-50 in the opening round.

Reggie Freeman led Texas with 22 points, including four free throws in the final 35 seconds. He missed a crucial free throw in the final seconds of Texas' Southwest Conference championship loss to Texas Tech last week. The Longhorns also got eight clutch points in the closing minutes from Lamont Hill. He had a steal and converted a three-point play, hit a 3-pointer, sank another basket and got a key rebound as the Longhorns hung on for their sixth first-round victory in seven tries under coach Tom Penders.

Baston, a Dallas native, led seventhseeded Michigan with 23 points as the Wolverines (20-12) made a first-round exit for the second straight year.

Mike Tyson tries to take first step toward being undisputed champion

By Ed Schuyler Jr.

LAS VEGAS — Mike Tyson doesn't want to look back at his troubled past, but he would like to relive one experience— that of being undisputed heavyweight

He will try to take a first step Saturday night when he challenges WBC champion Frank Bruno of Britain in a pay-perview fight at the MGM Grand Garden. Tyson became a WBC champion at age 20 with a second-round knockout of Trevor Berbick Nov. 26, 1986. He went on Midland Lee has missed the boys soccer playoffs for the last four years. So what's one of the biggest concerns for the Rebels as they prepare for today's bi-district game with Brownwood? Ironically, it's overconfidence.

"Yea, I'm kind of concerned because of what we know about them," Lee senior defender Tim Tipton said about the 4-13-2 Lions. "We know they lost to a couple of teams we beat. But it's a do-ordie situation and we have that in our minds." The teams play at 2 p.m. at Abilene's Lee Complex.

The Lions made the playoffs despite losing all four of their District 6 games. The Brownwood program is in its second year with a second-year, 24-year-old coach. It beat and then lost to Abilene Cooper this year, falling 3-1 to the Cougars, the last-place team in Lee's District 5. The Lions also lost to Odessa High Lee (13-4) beat Cooper 5-0 and 2-0 and split with Odessa High, dropping a shootout to the Bronchos in the second game. But Lion coach Jonathan Woody's team remains upbeat.

"I know (Lee has a good team) and my players know it," Woody said. "But some now or another they like their chance and they're looking forward to it."
Brownwood has had problems all year.

The sixth-seeded Cardinals (21-11) overcame a 12point deficit with a 13-1 run over the final 3: 41 in regulation to force overtime at 70-all.

After Cordell Love's 3-pointer gave Tulsa a 77-75 lead with 1:07 left in the extra period, Wheat hit a 3pointer with 47 seconds left and added a free throw at 20 seconds for a 79-77 Louisville lead.

Seals missed his second free throw, but it went out of bounds off Tulsa's Michael Ruffin. Tick Rogers was fouled with 15 seconds left and hit one of two shots for an 80-77 advantage.

Villanova 92, Portland 58

MILWAUKEE — This time there were no surprises for Villanova. No upsetting first-round loss to digest in the NCAA tournament. Just a good old-fashioned blowout for the Wildcats to enjoy.

Villanova took control from the opening tip Friday and routed Portland 92-58, ruining the Pilots' first NCAA tournament appearance in 37 years.

Time for MHS baseball to make up for Lee loss

By Sean Wallace Sports Writer

The Midland High baseball team should't be too worried about one District 4-5A loss, but the way it happend should give it pause for

The Bulldogs take on Abilene Cooper today at 2 p.m. at Christensen Stadium in their district home opener trying to put an 8-5 loss to Midland Lee on Tuesday behind them

The Rebels travel to Abilene for a 2 p.m. game with Abilene High, trying to stay on top of the district standings and challenge for their second straight 4-5A title

"It seems like we keep sending the same message. We just need to take that next step," MHS coach Lew Kennedy said. "All of our district games will probably be this close and we need to step up and win these types of games

The Bulldogs had the lead in the fifth inning against Lee but the Rebels got to MHS' Keitn Lant for seven hits and five runs to turn a 5-3 deficit into an 8-5 win.

Midland High hasn't lost two games in a row yet this year, and into today's game with the leads the team with 18 RBI.

Cougars (9-7, 0-1). Cooper lost its district opener to city rival Abilene on Tuesday and will be looking to square its mark.

The Cougars lost a 13-9 runfest to Abilene but the Bulldogs have proved they can hit the ball too, scoring just over six runs a game. MHS is hitting .286 as a team and has five regulars hitting over .300. Center fielder Clay Johnston leads the pack with a .388 average while Mike Carraso is at .345, Jason Rogers .340, Lant .324 and Russell Dunlavy at .318. Rogers also leads the team in RBI with 17.

· Lee takes on an Abilene High (10-4, 1-0) team much in the same position as the Rebels. Both are coming off district-opening wins over city rivals and a win would put them into sole possession of first place in 4-5A. The Eagles have already won as many games this season as they did in 1995, finishing next to last in the district with a 10-14 mark, 4-8 in 4-5A.

Lee is batting .298 as a team, as third baseman Britt Harper (1 HR, 11 RBI) at .379 leads a crew of six Rebels batting over .300. Outfielder Matt Withrow, who hit his team-leading fourth home run in has won four its last six heading the win over MHS on Tuesday, also

Lee softball battles Cooper to grab share of district lead

By Stewart Doreen

Sports Writer

The Abilene Cooper softball team comes Midland for a District 4-5A showdown with Midland Lee for the top spot in the standings.

Lee will host the Lady Coogs today at 2 p.m. at the Lee Softball Field while the Lady Bulldogs give themselves a chance for the district's top spot with a win over Abilene High in the Key City.

Lee, 15-3 for the season, has rolled over its past nine opponents and are playing the best ball of the season. However at 3-1 in district, the Lady Rebels are one-half game behind Cooper (10-5 and 4-0) and a win today would a sure the Rebels a tie going into the district's second half.

Lee does have one win over Abilene Cooper under its belt. The Lady Rebs defeated the Lady Coogs at the Brownwood Tournament

The Midland High Lady Bulldogs are traveling to Abilene High in a game that means a whole lot for Ricci Woodard's ball club. MHS (15-7 and 3-1) has lost to Abilene High (15-6 and 1-3) twice this season, but like Odessa Permian can attest, district games are the only ones that matter now.

Midland High can put itself in great position for the second half by at least giving itself a hold on second with two wins (over AHS and San Angelo Central) to finish the first half.

SPORTS BRIEFS

Weaver to plead Guilty

AUSTIN — A 30-year-old California man who played football at the University of Texas under an assumed identity last season will plead guilty to a federal charge of mis-using Social Security numbers.

Ron Weaver took the name Ron McKelvey after his own eligibility to play college football expired at California State University at Sacramento in 1989

He used the last name and the Social Security number of an acquaintance, Joel McKelvey, to play two seasons at Los Angeles Pierce Community College and one season at Joel McKelvey did not faced any charges in the incident.

Weaver's scheme to continue his college football career was discovered one day before the Longhorns' appearance in the Nokia Sugar Bowl on Dec. 31.

Weaver could face up to five years in prison and a $250,000 fine. While a sentencing date had not been set Friday, the plea agreement notes that Weaver could get probation.

Pair lead at LPGA Ping

TUCSON, Ariz. - Patty Sheehan was struggling in the second round of the Ping-Welch's Championship on Friday until some spectators got her started.

That was bad news for the rest of the field.

Sheehan, who had four saves and a threeputt for par in the first eight holes, birdied six of the last 10 to complete the round at 7-underpar 137 and tie Michelle McGann for the lead.

"I was left of the green on 18," said Shee-han, who started on the back nine. "I didn't have such a great chip and left myself a long putt, and some people in the stands started making fun of me, saying, 'Well, I've got a 20foot putt, but least I'm on the green. Hah, hah, hah.' So that set me off.

Still charged, Sheehan made five birdies on the back nine to card a 6-under 66. McGann

Danielle Ammaccapane matched Sheehan's score and was alone in second at 138. Liselotte Neumann, who shared the firstround lead with Pat Bradley and Trish Johnson, was two shots back with Dale Eggeling, Catriona Matthew, and Alicia Dibos. Bradley, Julie Inkster and Dana Dormann were tied for eighth at 140.

Two atop Bay Hill board

ORLANDO, Fla. — Fast-rolling greens brought out the best in Patrick Burke and Jeff Maggert, who shared the lead after the second round of the Bay Hill Invitational on Friday when some of the biggest stars faltered.

Burke, dealing with the emotion of his father's death and a hectic day in which he forgot his yardage book and almost lost a scorecard twice, birdied three in a row and had a tap-in at No. 18 for a 6-under-par 66.

Maggert did him one better by closing with four straight birdies in shooting a 65. That put them at 7-under 137 and gave them a one-stroke lead over Mike Hulbert and Glen Day.

Corey Pavin and Mark O'Meara were in a group at 138, while Nick Faldo was another stroke back after his 68 got him to 4-under. Bay Hill has drawn one of the best fields of the season, with 17 of the top 25 players in the

Sony ranking. Chang Downs Agassi

INDIAN WELLS, Calif. — Pete Sampras and Andre Agassi let their chances at the No. 1 world ranking slip away Friday when each lost in the Newsweek Champions Cup.

Paul Haarhuis beat Sampras for the third straight time, 7-5 (5-7), 6-7 (5-7), 6-1. Michael Chang defeated Agassi 6-7 (3-7), 6-2, 6-1. A win by Sampras - the top seed and two-time defending champion - in the quarterfinal match would have vaulted him over Thomas Muster and back into the top spot. Agassi, No. 3 behind Muster and Sampras, could have claimed the No. 1 ranking by winning the tournament. Muster, the clay court specialist from Austria, will retain the top spot for at least another week

Chang, No. 5 in the world, served 13 aces to two by Agassi as he beat Agassi for just the sixth time in 16 career meetings.

SWIM: Lee swimmers make seven finals

champions girls smiling.

"We were a little nervous and a little shaky after that (the medley relay) happened," Sanchez said. "But we're all ready for (today)."

The Lady Rebels last event more than made up for any discouragement felt by their first event. Lee had a 14th seed in the 400 freestyle relay and finished in the sixth and last finals' spot.

"I was praying to get a consolation (sixth through 12th) out of it and we made championship finals," Carson said. "That takes us out of here on a great note. Now we're really up for (today).

Relays count double points, so swimming in the finals of two will help the Rebels chances to win the Stroman had the second best time in the 500-yard freestyle, an event she had a sixth seed in, with 4: 55.73. She also easily had the best time in her best event, the 200 individual medley, going 2:03.48, almost four seconds ahead of the second-place swim.

Carnett was the only Lee swimmer not to make the finals, but she swam her lifetime best in the event, the 200 frestyle, to finish

Goodwin had a fourth in the 50 freestyle and a third in the 100 backstroke. But she and Carson agreed she will improve today after getting over first-state-meet Stroman's 500 free perfomance was a highlight.

"What a great swim," Carson "That's almost six seconds

it. She looked great and felt good when she got out. We're really, really happy with that.

Sarah Doyle of Churchill was the only swimmer to beat Stroman in the 500, going 4: 54.28.

Carnett got sixth in the 100 butterfly, just where she was seeded. "That takes all the pressure off, said Carnett, a senior classmate of Stroman's. "That's what I wanted to do, make finals. The time is four tenths of a second off juniors (national qualifying) so maybe I can do that today. Goodwin, a sophomore, had the top seed in both of her events. 'Amber was a little bit off what she did at regionals but you have to remember this is her first time to see this meet," Carson said. "But I think she'll come back (today) past what she went last year to win and, having seen what to expect, do better.

Goodwin swam over a second behind the leader in the backstroke at 58.10 to 56.91. Her time of 24.37 in the 50 freestyle trails leader Kelly Bolton if Houston Nimitz by 67 one hudreths of a sec-

"Usually I do better in finals," Goodwin said. "I just use preliminaries to see where I (stand).

Carnett's 58.99 in the butterfly is only 42/100 seconds behind the third place time and follows leader Leticia Herrera of San Antonio Health Career's 57.68.

The finals begin at 1:30 p.m. today. The Lee girls won the state team title in the second year of high school state competition, 1971. With some great swims, they could do it again today.

BOX: Tyson won first fight !

(From 1C)

old Bruno said.

Should he win the WBC title in his third comeback fight in five months after a layoff of a little more than four years, Tyson could fight WBA champion Bruce Seldon in June or July. The IBF championship, held by Francois Botha of South Africa, currently is wrapped in litigation stemming from Botha testing positive for a steroid after a title victory over Germany's Axel Schulz.

Tyson, 29, is fighting for a title sooner than planned. Tyson was released from an Indiana prison March 25 after serving three years on a rape conviction. He launched his comeback with an 89-second victory over Peter McNeeley, then knocked out Buster Mathis in the third round Dec. 16.

Bruno attended the Mathis fight and wasn't impressed by Tyson. There is a question about Tyson's stamina, but he appears to be in excellent physical condition, weighing 220 pounds to 247 for Bruno. Tyson weighed 218 for the first fight, and Bruno weighed

Should the scheduled 12-round fight go into the late rounds, stamina could be a bigger problem for Bruno than for Tyson. Bruno faded badly and was knocked out in the 10th round of a nontitle fight by James "Bonecrusher" Smith in 1984. He also ran out of gas when he was knocked out by Tim Witherspoon in a WBA title bid in 1986, and he was exhausted and holding on desperately in the final two rounds of his title victory over

While Tyson's timing and balance still might be off, he still has fast hands and power. Bruno has a power-puncher's reputation (38 knockouts in a 40-4 record), but his best punch could be a stiff, accurate left jab.

In a total of 45 rounds against quality fighters like Smith, Witherspoon, Tyson, Lewis (WBC title) and McCall, Bruno did not score a knockdown. He wobbled Tyson badly with a left hook in the first round of their fight and he sent McCall reeling across the ring with a right to the head. Neither time, however, was he quick enough to take advantage

When Tyson (43-1, 37 knockouts) was knocked out by Douglas, he absorbed tremendous punishment up to that time but almost scored a one-punch knockout in the eighth round.

SOCCER: Lee will get bye with win

(From 1C)

"They look real strong, they're big," McCulloch said after viewing tape of the Lions. "I think that's the only thing that will give us problems is their size. And they have one really fast forward.

No Rebel has playoff experience, a fact that may or may not affect Lee's play today.

That's a concern too," Tipton said. "We're all inexperienced. We'll have to learn as we go. If we go against a team that's been there before that could be a problem, but we have enough talent to push through. Playing in a competitive district

SEATTLE - Sam Perkins scored tory over the Dallas Mavericks.

Shawn Kemp had 20 points and 12 rebounds and Hersey Hawkins had 20 points, including 10 in a 12-playoff exposure.

"We've been under pressure all year trying to make the playoffs and trying to improve the program," junior midfielder Adrian Castresana said. "I don't think the playoffs are going to bother us that much.

McCulloch agrees.

"The fact that we have such a tough district and every game is so important, I think they're used to (pressure)," the Lee coach said. "I think every game this year they've played with intensity.

If the Rebels get past Brownwood, the will play Monday's Wichita Falls-Stephenville winner could make up for the lack of in the sectionals.

Rate & Credit Policies

Rate charges are determined at the time of placement. All ads accepted are subject to credit approval. Some classified categories require payment in advance. Credit applications are also required for business accounts. Yearly contract agreements are available. The Midland Reporter Telegram reserves the right to correctly classify and edit all copy or to reject or cancel any advertisement at any time.

Cancellations

The price of your ad will be based on the number of days published according to our rate structure. Call (915) 682-6222 - ask for your cancellation number. This is your record of cancellation and it is important that you have it in the event of any misunderstanding or adjustment. "Super Seller" and "Real Wheel Deal" ads may be cancelled, but are non-adjustable and non-refundable.

Errors and Adjustments

Please check your ad the first day that it appears to be sure that all of the information is correct. This will ensure that your ad is exactly what you want readers to see. Call us the first day if you find an error at 915-682-6222. To report an error in Saturday's edition call Saturday morning between 8a.m. and 10a.m. Errors in Sunday's edition should be reported on Monday morning after 8:00 a.m. We must limit our financial responsibility, if any, to the charge for the word or space, and cannot be held responsible for incorrect adsafter the first day of publication.

Omissions of Ads
The Midland Reporter-Telegram assumes no financial responsibility in an ad beyond the cost of the ad itself, and no responsibility for the omission of an ad.

Kia? Who the heck is Kia?

ell, to state the obvious, Kia is a car company. More specifically, a 51-year-old car company. Actually Kia started out making bicycles. Then after creating hundreds of thousands of tired legs, the company. decided to do something about it, and moved into motorized vehicles. Motorcycles, then trucks, then farm equipment, buses, minivans.

And for over 20 years now, Kla has been making cars. The company has put over a million and a half of them on the roads of over 100 countries around the world Including some of Ford's popular economy models, which Kia assembles for the U.S.

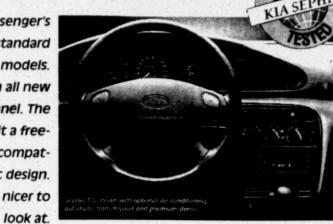

And in certain regions of this country for more than two years now, we've also had another car on the roads. The apple of our eye, the Sephia. Perhaps you've seen it around.

What you probably haven't seen around, is anything that resembles it. Because like our new Kia Sportage, the Sephia is a well-made car. That isn't priced like one.

It's tested obsessively. It has the durability you'd expect from a car built by people who also make dump trucks and tour buses. And yes, it's darn good-looking

A good car. A reasonable price. A concept so simple, you'd think someone else would get around to doing it, too. Until then, there's just us. And we think it's about time everyone had a well-made car.

Drivers and passenger's side airbags are standard on all 1996 Sephia models. Sephia features an all new instrument panel. The engineers call it a freeflowing, operator-compatible, ergonomic design. We just think it's nicer to

"Few cars come as comprehensively equipped for as little money as the Sephia."
