FHA Supervisor Guest Speaker At Lions Club

The important role of the Farmers Home Administration in providing farm loans when credit is not available from other sources was the topic of Oris E. Bruner, Seymour, Area FHA Supervisor who was guest speaker at the weekly luncheon and meeting of the Lions Club Tuesday in the Highway Drive Inn. Bruner explained that five types of FHA loans are available to farmers: Ownership, Housing, Soil and Water, Operating, and Great Plains Emergency Loan. These loans are available only when the farmer-borrower is unable to secure credit through banks or other lending agencies, he explained. Showing how FHA has made it possible for farm families to become independent farm owners, Bruner said that since the FHA real estate loans were inaugurated in 1937, 91 thousand families had secured loans to buy farms. Of this number, 44 thousand had repaid their loans in full.

Haskell To Celebrate Completion of Air Strip

Plans have been completed for welcoming 100 or more planes expected here Monday for a Fly In Breakfast celebrating the recent completion of the new Municipal Landing Strip at the north city limits. The breakfast, sponsored jointly by the City of Haskell and the Chamber of Commerce, will be held at the Elementary School cafeteria, and will be served from 8 to 10 a. m.

All visiting plane owners and their passengers will be special guests at the breakfast. Locally, tickets for the breakfast are available at $1.50 each at the Chamber of Commerce office.

A good response for breakfast tickets was reported by members of the ticket committee which made a canvass of the business section this week. Many businessmen and local residents are expected, since the affair comes on the Labor Day holiday.

If the weather is favorable, planes are expected to be here from points as distant as Sugarland and other South Texas cities, based on acceptances received at the C. of C. office this week. Also, one pilot plans to fly here from Iowa, the sponsors have been advised. Flyers and their passengers will be met at the landing strip by a reception committee and will be furnished transportation in private automobiles to and from the school cafeteria where they will be entertained and served breakfast.

A highlight of the breakfast will be a brief ceremony at 9:30 a. m., when Mayor Ira Hester will introduce Cliff B. Green of Austin, executive director of the Texas Aeronautics Commission, and others who have been instrumental in making the local landing strip possible. Also, at that time prizes will be presented the pilot flying the longest distance to attend the breakfast, and the first pilot landing with the most passengers.

The public is invited to visit the landing field and inspect the many planes expected to be on hand, which will be parked adjacent to the runway. However, local motorists will be asked to park their cars a short distance from the field, since the two access roads to the landing strip will be reserved for official traffic and will be closed to the public.

The landing strip, which has been given official approval by the Texas Aeronautics Commission, is located just west of U. S. Highway 277 and is easily accessible from the highway and adjacent roads and streets. Visiting flyers and guests will be welcomed at the breakfast by Jim Byrd, C. of C. president. A reception and registration committee at the landing strip will be headed by Tom Barfield.

Through Wednesday noon, invitations to attend the dedication had been accepted by flyers from Olney, Quanah, Bandera, Dalhart, Electra, Sugarland, Breckenridge, Weatherford, Fort Worth, Hedley, Seguin, Refugio, Austin, Odessa, Texas, and Boone, Iowa.

Digging to Meet Tax Levies

Plans paying the bill in the state's plans as more than new levies. The state is expected to raise revenue through various means, including taxes on cigarettes and other goods.

These young men and women can be considered our good will ambassadors," the speaker said. "Through their contacts and association they represent our way of life to the people of other countries and thus promote international fellowship and understanding," he continued.

In closing, the speaker pointed out that the world today was at the threshold of the atomic age which could bring either destruction or deliverance to mankind. "Man now possesses the power to destroy civilization with what he has learned," he declared, in stressing the need for better understanding among people of the world.

Work Underway On Paving Alleys In Business Section

Work of paving alleys in the business section of Haskell is underway, with the Abilene firm of Norris, Hanley and Norris doing the work. First phase of the project was to remove some of the surface dirt and replace it with caliche which will be the base for the permanent asphalt type paving. Individual property owners are defraying costs of the paving, with each property owner paying one-half the cost on each side of the alley.

Also, contractors are paving adjacent areas from the edge of the 20-foot alley to the rear of the various buildings where owners desire. In the alleys on the north and south sides of the square, it is understood that all property owners have contracted for the paving, while there are some gaps on the west and east side alleys where property owners remain to be contacted.

Areas along several alleys adjacent to the square are also coming into the project, which is sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce. Contractors have announced that while their equipment is in Haskell, they will be in position to do other paving jobs on driveways, parking areas, etc. They may be contacted through the C. of C. office.

A Worthwhile Project

Paving of alleys in the business section, now under way, is one of the most progressive civic projects undertaken here since completion of the city-wide street paving program.

Major credit for the current improvement program is due the Chamber of Commerce, which was instrumental in securing the cooperation of property owners in defraying cost of the project.

In addition to the greater convenience and accessibility provided for cars and trucks serving the business establishments, the paved alleys will also make additional parking areas available for clerks and employees.

Also, the city will be relieved of the costly maintenance work required in keeping unpaved alleys passable, especially during periods of wet weather. Another asset of the paved alleys will be their cleanliness and the absence of weeds and other unsightly growth, and its accompanying threat to community health.

Although the cost of the paving represents a sizable expenditure on the part of property owners, we believe that it is an investment that will be repaid in making the business section more accessible, cleaner and more attractive in every respect.

Trooping Back to School

Young Texans by the thousands will troop back to their classrooms during the next few weeks.

Many will be entering a brand-new world. There'll be some 250,000 first graders, some 28,000 college freshmen. In cities across the state, children will take their last swim in the city pools. Parents will re-set their alarm clocks and re-figure their budgets.

Parents of the incoming college freshmen—most of whom got their own schooling at rock-bottom depression prices—face what most will regard as an appallingly expensive future. Average cost for a Texas college student is $1,100 a year—not including a car, clothes, dates, etc. In the larger cities it may run $1,500 a year.

For four years the average is about $5,000. But hardly any other investment can be expected to return such handsome dividends. Statistically, the college graduate can expect to earn $100,000 more in his lifetime than the non-graduate.

Aside from the students and the parents and teachers who are affected, "back to school" has a wider impact on the economy. Employment will jump as many of the jobless are absorbed into the operations of the dormitories, boarding houses, lunchrooms. Retail stores are experiencing an upsurge which will probably bring the brisk sales since Easter in the annual re-outfitting that ranges from blue jeans to book satchels, calicoes to crayons.

The Something for Nothing Delusion

Writing in Reader's Digest, no less an authority than Director of the Budget Maurice H. Stans gives this country a much-needed warning.

His point is that the nation's solvency is gravely threatened by the something-for-nothing delusion—the idea that money which comes from Washington somehow doesn't cost us anything.

In his words, "Despite the plain evidence of what government deficit spending and inflation have done to our dollar, bills have been introduced in Congress this session that would burden the national debt by another $30 billion a year."

One of the biggest reasons for the swelling federal debt and the weight of taxation lies in federal spending for purposes and things which people should either provide for themselves, or which should be provided by state and local government. This "let the federal government do everything" philosophy, unless checked, can lead only to ruinous inflation and a national financial collapse that would make the depression of the 30's look like a picnic.

PEOPLE, PLACES AND THINGS

By A. PATE

The new State tax on cigarettes which went into effect this week and upped the price of tags, may convert some smokers to pipes or cigars, judging from comment we have heard.

Speaking of cigars, there's something about lighting up a big cigar that adds stature to a fellow, gives him a feeling of importance. Although we're a confirmed chain smoker of cigarettes, we enjoy an occasional cigar (from friends, mind you, we can't bear the thought of spending a dime for a single smoke.)

We are reminded of a story told by A. M. Turner, veteran West Texas banker, about a young fellow working for him years ago.

A fine, upstanding country boy, a stickler for work, this young fellow had all the makings of a good country banker, Turner declared.

After the young fellow had been working in the bank a couple of years, Turner took him to a banker's convention in a big city, Dallas or Fort Worth. There, the young banker had an opportunity to hobnob with big shots in the financial world. He was in "high cotton" you might say.

Naturally, the big boys were passing out cigars to their "country cousins" and otherwise impressing the boys from the sticks.

Turner noticed that his protégé was impressed, and quickly cultivated the art of puffing on a fat cigar in the manner of a big city banker.

After the convention, Turner's young friend was rarely without an impressive looking cigar. "That trip to the convention and those free cigars, flat ruined my chances of making a good country banker out of the young fellow," Turner said.

Haskell was never fortunate enough to have a public zoo, but a carnival company which wintered here a few years ago had among other things an elephant and a chimpanzee that became pretty well known to the public—sometimes to the discomfiture and annoyance of some individual.

The animals, too, were a source of numerous funny incidents involving local characters.

The elephant, "Queenie," was a friendly brute, and liked nothing better than for her trainer to take her walking around over town.

One evening about dusk, before many people knew the carnival was wintering here, the trainer was walking "Queenie" along a street in the residence section.

A local character, heading home, had a habit of walking with his head down and rarely noticing anyone in passing. It happened that this old fellow and "Queenie" got to a street crossing at the same time.

As the old boy stepped off the sidewalk curb he glanced up and there was the towering elephant not two feet away. Friendly-like, she waved her trunk around to touch his shoulder gently.

Despite his more than 70 years, the old boy let out a yell like a Comanche Indian and took off, circling the block and never slackening speed until he got inside his house two blocks away.

Grabbing the telephone, he called the family doctor and blurted out: "For God's sake, Doctor, get down here quick as you can and do something for me—I've almost been run over by an elephant and I know there's not one of the critters in a thousand miles of here—there's something terribly wrong somewhere."

"Queenie" became somewhat of a nuisance to a filling station operator until the proprietor took matters in his own hands and told the trainer his place was "off limits" to the pachyderm.

The trainer had gotten in the habit of stopping at the station and letting "Queenie" drink from a large tub-like receptacle used in testing tubes for leaks.

The station operator took a dim view of furnishing water for an elephant, but made no objections at the start.

After a few days "Queenie" felt at home at the station and one day she decided on a bath. Instead of drinking the water she'd spray it over her body with her trunk. In the process, she managed to get considerable water on the station operator, the driveway and pumps.

"That did it," "Git that blankety-blank elephant outta my station you blankety-blank son-of-a-bitch," he yelled at the trainer, emphasizing his order by waving a tire tool in each hand as he continued with a blistering pedigree for both "Queenie" and her handler.

"Queenie's" companion, the chimp, was a husky, mischievous animal, kept on a leash by his handler.

One day as he was being led along the sidewalk on the east side of the square, the chimp and trainer passed a group of men lounging in front of the Elks Cafe. One of the men in the group was partly leaning on a heavy walking cane. In passing, the chimp reached out and grabbed the cane, causing the man to almost fall. There followed a lively tussle as the man finally pulled his cane free from the chimp's grasp, then threatened to brain both the overgrown monkey and the handler. His friends restrained him, however, as the chimp was led away.

Such conduct on the part of the chimp was common, and people unfortunate enough to be a victim of his misbehavior would give him a wide berth.

One of these was a painter, J. Manning Edwards, better known as "Shorty" because of his diminutive 4-11 size.

Shorty made his headquarters at Brazelton Lumber Co., and was standing in the office there one day when the handler, accompanied by the chimp came in to buy some paint.

Shorty, always trying for a laugh, sauntered over to the chimp and stuck out his hand, saying "Shake, buddy. I'm a painter, too." But the chimp had other ideas. Instead of taking Shorty's proffered hand, the chimp back-handed Shorty in the chest, sending the small man staggering backwards and almost flooring him.

From then until the following spring when the chimp moved out with the carnival, Shorty always kept a safe distance from the animal.

Boating Safety Is Goal of Texas' New Water Safety Act

BY J. O. MUSICK
General Manager

Texas Safety Association purely and simply: the intent of Texas' new Water Safety Act is the promotion of boating safety. This purpose is partially accomplished by the requirements of proper and uniform safety regulations. What might be called a second phase deals with accidents, enforcement and penalties of the new Act, to be administered by the Texas Highway Department. Prohibitions Under the Water Safety Act it will be unlawful for any person to operate any class of motorboat, ski or similar contrivance, in a reckless or negligent manner that endangers the life, limb or property of any person. This is just about as specific as a law can get and still cover all situations. Accidents In essence, the Act requires the operator of any boat involved in an accident causing death, injury or property damage, to stop, render assistance, give his name, address and identification in writing to any person injured, or to the owner of damaged property. In case where an accident results in death, injury or property damage in excess of $100, the operator of any motorboat must file a full description of the accident with the Texas Highway Department; such report is not admissible in court as evidence. Intoxication Any person who operates any vessel, or manipulates any water skis, aquaplane or similar device, while intoxicated will be guilty of a misdemeanor. Upon conviction, the person may be fined not less than $50.00 or more than $500 and/or be imprisoned for not more than 6 months. Penalties Any person who violates any section of the Water Safety Act is guilty of a misdemeanor. Upon conviction, such person may (where another penalty is not provided) be punished by a fine of not less than $10.00 or more than $50.00. Local Regulations Just as the Water Safety Act must be in conformity with the Federal Boating Act of 1958, so, too, local regulations must conform to this Act. However, there is nothing to prevent local adoption of laws relating to operation (including zoning), equipment and other safety measures, if the provisions are consistent with the Water Safety Act. Also municipalities may adopt ordinance limiting the horsepower of motor boats operating on lakes within its jurisdiction. Enforcement All of Texas' duly authorized peace officers are given authority to enforce the provisions of the Act. Furthermore, a violator may be taken into custody if he refuses to sign a promise (ticket) to appear in court within 30 days. Courts of the county in which the violation occurred have jurisdiction.

Dear Driver:

Today my seven-year-old daughter, Susan, started her second year of school. She could barely wait for this day to come. She enjoys school, every minute of it. She loves her teacher. She loves her schoolmates. She loves life. Every morning she awakens bursting with anticipation for the great adventure in life awaiting her.

By 7:30 she was dressed in a little blue jumper and white sandals, ready for this first-day adventure to unfold. At 7:45 I received my goodbye kiss and wished her a "happy day." "Honey," I reminded, "remember to stay on the sidewalks and carefully watch both directions for cars when you cross the street." "Sure I will, Mom," she responded, and off she went skipping through the front room, out the door, down the steps and around the corner, her little blonde pony tail bouncing happily up and down.

Her safety is now in your hands. Please drive carefully. You know how unpredictable a child can be. My words of caution can be completely lost in the excitement of chasing a butterfly or rushing to meet playmates across the street. Susan, like every other child, can forget that streets even exist and dart from behind a parked automobile for no reason at all.

You wouldn't hurt her, would you? Please drive carefully. You can never guess what a child will do. Please don't run over my little girl.

Pleadingly,
A Loving Mother

'Horse Soldiers,' Civil War Drama, At the Texas

One of the most dramatic and exciting incidents of the Civil War supplies the fabric for the story of "The Horse Soldiers," the epic production opening Sunday at the Texas Theatre.

This was the incredibly bold and heroic six-hundred mile raid through Confederate territory of Colonel Benjamin Grierson and his brigade of Union cavalry. Historians have credited this remarkable feat with having mercifully shortened the conflict by as much as a full year, with the saving of perhaps 100,000 lives.

John Wayne and William Holden are starred in "The Horse Soldiers," and two famous Gibsons—Hoot, the great cowboy star of yesteryear; and Althea, the awe-inspiring young Negro girl athlete—are featured. A lovely newcomer to pictures, Constance Towers, makes her film debut in the drama.

Filmed in DeLuxe color on location in Mississippi and Louisiana, in the actual country through which Grierson's column made its famous raid, "The Horse Soldiers" is one of the most elaborately produced films in recent years.

In and Out the Tee-Pees

By Suzanne Lane

Camp fires were started again at HHS on Tuesday, Sept. 1. The trails between the tee-pees were filled with Indians, both familiar and unfamiliar. There are quite a few new Indians this year. Heading the list: Sophomores, Sandra Wilson from Childress, Jimmy Bairrett from Andrews and Joe Billy Hill from Weinert. Juniors: Beth Lee from Galena Park (Houston), and Georgia Gray from Weinert. Seniors: Carolyn Connally from Tyler and Billy Wilson from Childress.

Many changes have been made in the main tee-pee since last spring. Our library is now a beautiful soft green which accents the lovely lime oak book shelves and now, instead of the wornout window shades, there are green Venetian blinds to match the walls. The painter for the library was paid with money made by book fines and the paint was donated by Dr. J. G. Vaughter to whom we are very grateful.

Another change is the improvement in the council room (auditorium). It is sandiwood and chocolate. The sandiwood brings out the dark brown in the curtains. The lovely paint job was a gift to the school from the Seniors of 1959.

It was a happy and fun-filled summer but "there's no place like the tee-pees." It's good to be back.

I hope you enjoyed your summer too.

Witnesses Warn Of War Between God and Men

"A danger much worse than nuclear war between man and man, is the danger of war between God and men." About a dozen delegates from the local congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses heard Fred W. Franz, Watchtower vice president, make this statement during a final session of the four-day "Awake Ministers" district assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses in Corpus Christi, August 20-23.

"That war will bring peace to this earth," he assured the delegates. "Only those lovers of peace with justice and happiness long to hear the voice of the one strong enough to command peace upon all nations," Franz said. J. M. Winn, presiding minister, who headed the local group, termed the meeting a grand success. "We all returned home with a more serious outlook on our ministry and the future," he said.

Those attending from the local congregation included Mrs. Ronda West of Haskell, Lillian Reeves of Rule, and others.

Carolyn Sue Cook, Gary L. Goree Repeat Vows in Stamford Ceremony

The Trinity Baptist Church in Stamford was the setting Friday evening, August 28, for the wedding of Carolyn Sue Cook of Haskell and Gary L. Goree of Stamford.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse R. Cook are parents of the bride. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Goree of Stamford.

The Rev. Clyde Cook, Trinity Baptist pastor, officiated for the 7:30 p. m. double ring ceremony.

The altar area was framed with white wrought iron arch, covered with emerald foliage and draped with two large styrafoam wedding bells and white gladioli.

Miss Sue Hardin was organist for traditional wedding music, and was accompanist for Mrs. Keith Wheatley, soloist, who sang Oh, Promise Me, and I Love You Truly.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of Chantilly lace over satin, fashioned with fitted bodice, bouffant skirt and long sleeves which tapered to points at the wrist. Opal sequins and seed pearls matching the Juliet cap which held her fingertip veil of illusion accented the dress collar. She carried a white orchid corsage on a white Bible.

For something old she wore a gold locket belonging to her mother. Her bridal gown was something new, and something borrowed was the white Bible belonging to her best girl friend. The traditional bridal garter was something blue.

Charlotte Cook was her sister's maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Karen Goree, sister of the bridegroom, of Stamford, and Clara Ann Fischer of Haskell.

Kenneth Young of Stamford was best man, and ushers were Kent Lindsey and Jimmy Carter, both of Stamford, Edwin Livengood and Vern Howard were candlelighters.

The bridal attendants dresses were identically styled in pastel colors of blue, pink and orchid. They featured fitted bodices with bouffant skirts of net and ruffles over taffeta. Their head-dresses were net halos trimmed with seed pearls and white flowers, and they wore long white gloves and seed pearl necklaces. The bridesmaids carried cascade arrangements of flowers in pastel colors matching their dresses.

Reception following the ceremony was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Ivy, aunt and uncle of the bridegroom, in Stamford.

The table was covered with lace over pastel orchid, and was centered with a matching arrangement of gladioli and garlands of green leaves. Miss Dolores Thane served wedding cake and Miss Ann Evetts ladled punch. Miss Margaret Fischer registered the guests.

After the reception, the couple left on their wedding trip. For traveling, the bride wore a black and white linen sheath dress with matching jacket, a velvet clip hat, white gloves and black shoes and bag.

Mr. and Mrs. Goree will make their home in Fort Worth.

The bride is a graduate of Paint Creek High School and attended Texas Woman's University. She is a graduate of Scoggins Beauty Academy in Abilene.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Stamford High School, and plans to attend school in Fort Worth.

Ratliff-Hunt Nuptial Vows Read in Austin

Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Ratliff of this city announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Gloria Ratliff, to Walter Hunt of Austin on August 9.

The double ring ceremony was held in the First Baptist Church of Austin with the minister, Dr. Thomas Martin officiating.

The couple was attended by Miss Paula Ratliff, sister of the bride, and Arnis Tubelis.

After a wedding trip to points in Mexico, Arizona and California, the couple is at home at 2801 Rae Dell, Barton Hills, in Austin where the bride is a senior student in the University of Texas.

AUTUMN BRINGS BUSY ROUND OF CLUB ACTIVITIES

With the return of autumn, club activities begin anew for Haskell club women. After the carefree days of summer or should we say rushed vacations, exhausting sports, or the constant chatter of the children, women prepare for the new projects, studies and social affairs of clubs. The five federated clubs will open their new club years during September and early October.

The first club to begin meeting will be the Business & Professional Women on Sept. 8 with Miss Madalin Hunt serving as president. Plans for the opening program include presentation of the yearbooks and a preview of the coming year. The B&PW Club meets the second and fourth Thursdays at 7:30 p. m. in the Community Room of the Haskell National Bank.

Miss Hunt is a third grade teacher in the Haskell Public Schools and a member of the AAUW state board of the Texas Classroom Teachers, a member of the NEA, TSTA and the local P-TA. She has traveled extensively through Europe, Alaska and lived for two and a half years in Hawaii. Miss Hunt is a member of the First Christian Church.

On September 10 a South Pacific Dinner will delight members of the Harmony Club as they begin their fifty-first year of organization. Mrs. Al Williams will serve as president. The Harmony Club meets the second and fourth Sundays at 7:30 p. m. in the Homemaking Cottage.

Mrs. Williams, a local piano teacher, is familiar with music groups throughout West Texas, having been affiliated with music clubs in Lubbock, Spur, Vernon and Munday. She is a member of the Magazine Club and the First Baptist Church.

For the enjoyment of members of the Progressive Study Club a Hobo Party has been planned for September 17. The regular meeting dates are the first and third Thursday at 7:30 p. m. in the Community Room.

Mrs. Bailey Toliver will begin her second year as president. She is a member of the Magazine Club and the First Baptist Church.

A dinner and the Highway Drive In is planned for members of the Garden Club on September 19. Meetings are scheduled on the first Tuesday of each month at 3:45 p. m. in the Community Room.

Mrs. R. C. Couch Sr., will serve as president for the year. The beauty of flowers and landscapes of the United States have been observed by Mrs. Couch during motor trips through many states. She is a member of AAUW, the Magazine Club, and the First Baptist Church.

The first federated club in Haskell, the Magazine Club, will open their meetings on October 9 at which time yearbooks will be presented. Meetings are held on the second and third Fridays at 3:30 p. m. in the Magazine Club House.

Mrs. C. O. Holt will serve as president of the Magazine Club's fifty-seventh year. She is an active member of the Garden Club, West Texas Utilities' Wives Club and the First Christian Church.

Another active organization soon to begin meeting is the Parent - Teacher Association with Mrs. Frank Cadenhead serving as president. This organization is of special interest to all parents and teachers. Through the P-TA better understanding and objectives can be reached for the betterment of our children.

A number of auxiliary clubs are active in Haskell some of these include the West Texas Utilities Wives Club, Service Pipeline Wives Club, the American Legion Auxiliary and the Fire Department Auxiliary.

Boys clubs, sewing clubs and Home Demonstration Clubs have been organized for women sharing common interests.

Now that the work of year-book committees is over and programs have gone to press, the club women of Haskell will soon gather in their respective groups to study, to work and to educate themselves for the improvement of our society.

THE PERSONALITY SHOP

Crawford Celebrates 70th at Surprise Party Saturday

... Crawford of Haskell celebrated her 70th birthday Saturday with a surprise party to her morning to say that she was coming to see her, and to counsel and pray with Aunt Maude in some weightier matters concerning her future. Sandra is accomplished in piano and dramatics, and has a keen sense of humor and a most sincere love of life. She just brought all these right into our house and "poured 'em out."

As the birthday progressed Saturday the cards and greetings from good neighbors kept coming. At 11 o'clock Mrs. Conner, the fibrist, came with a vase of large white mums and gladiolas with photos of all the children and grandchildren intermingled, peeping "Happy

... Birthday" through the flowers to "Granny." Then Mrs. Crawford answered the doorbell and met Suzanne Lane (to the Crawford family the fairest flower that grows.) Suzanne, wearing a beautiful corsage, said "Granny Maude, I have come to pin a flower on you." She carried two identical with what she was wearing, and pinned them on Mrs. Crawford and Sandra.

We then enjoyed a short visit with these youthful friends, in which there was discussion of the practices of the youth of today. We heard these words: "I could not do those things because my parents believe in me and I would not betray their confidence for all the world can offer." (We said, "How good can a birthday be?")

At 12 noon the telephone called Mrs. Crawford, in answering it, found she was connected with Duffer's family in London, England. Maurice's family in Wichita Falls, Clifton's (deceased) family in Austin, Kathleen's family in Fort Worth, Paul's family in Bryan, Horace's family in Dallas. Also, sisters Mrs. W. K. White of Sherman, Mrs. Ola White of Abilene, Mrs. Rita Barber of Abilene, and a brother, Morgan Williams of Stamford; and the parents of Duffer's wife, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Patterson of Jeannette, Penn.

Mrs. Crawford heard and recognized the voices of her five children, her five daughters-in-law, her son-in-law and thirteen of her grandchildren. She then was sure that she was having her birthday celebrated!

One cloud appeared on the horizon. Jean Anne and Emily, Clifton's daughters, 15 and 17, were not present. They had been called to work with their church group on a program at Baylor University at that hour. Though there was some disappointment for the moment there was a sweet consolation in realizing that these "Grand Daughters" felt a responsibility to be worthwhile citizens and they were discharging it with honor to themselves and their grandmother on her seventieth birthday.

As these thoughts ran through our minds we recalled that Longfellow said of the Village Blacksmith: "He heard his daughter's voice singing in the village choir and it made his heart rejoice." We rejoiced.

It was the enchanting music to us as we heard all those familiar voices over the telephone and recalled how many—perhaps 200 or more—Happy Birthday cakes "Granny" had prepared for them.

It was very evident that Duffer's family (because absence makes the heart grow fonder) were the favorites of the conversation. Many questions were directed to them. One small voice rang clear with a question we will not soon forget: "Uncle Duffer, does Santa Claus come to London?"

Some were quoting bits of poems, some had written lines just to fit the occasion for "Granny," some remembered some of her choice Scripture quotations. Each succeeding minute brought some new joys to the birthday party.

We were glad that Sandra could be with us and talk with her cousins far and near. Suzanne Lane made priceless contribution in her words of affection and love, and asking the group to sing with her. "Let Me Call You Sweetheart." Granny sat on her accustomed phone stool. Suzanne stood nearby, as she sang she drew nearer and placed her hand around "Granny's" shoulder. It was endearing.

Hazel, Duffer's wife, announced the 8 p. m. time in London and led the group in singing "Taps" for our benediction.

We closed the day endorsing Will Rogers: "It costs four times as much to live now as it used to, but it's worth it."

—J. M. Crawford.

The West Texans also went into Old Mexico, attending a bullfight in Tia Juana. They also attended a program of automobile racing in San Diego, Calif.

Receipts from crop sales were up 4 per cent, but cash receipts for livestock and products were lower.

Just as business men in town have to carry more expensive and complete lines of merchandise today so do farmers have a big investment in land, livestock and machinery, often the farmer has a bigger capital investment than the business men.

The pictures and stories presented herewith will help readers of this newspaper appreciate the effort being made by both town and country residents to make progress in their work while building were fightin' again this morning. It all started with an argument over which month had the most rainfall last year.

Now fightin' never settled much of anything. Of course Wash & Josh didn't damage each other much but they sure wasted a lot of energy.

All this could have been avoided if Wash & Josh had just looked in the local newspaper's files.

BY VERN SANFORD

This year we have a $3 duck stamp. And ducks are in very short supply. The kick-up price of the duck stamp was intended to make more money available for providing more wetlands for our waterfowl.

D. H. Janzen, director of the Bureau of Sports Fisheries and Wildlife of the U. S. Department of Interior told a group of outdoor writers in Hot Springs some time ago of some of the plans and problems.

"Two years ago a task force of Service employees, representing a cross section of field and Washington personnel, was assigned the job of determining the most important needs facing fish and wildlife in the field of federal responsibility," he said. "Advice and recommendations were sought from all possible sources.

"Of the many national problems considered, the one involving preservation of our wetlands stuck out like a sore thumb. It was quite obvious that the steadily continuing loss of our potholes, marshes and small lakes, so necessary for migratory waterfowl and other aquatic wildlife, was a problem of first magnitude requiring solution if duck hunting was to continue as a national sport."

He said many were critical of the use of the former $2 fee for surveys and studies. Accordingly, the new $3 fee will be used solely for the land acquisition of new areas.

The bill also authorizes the opening of not to exceed 40 per cent of these refuges to public hunting. The $3 duck stamp is mandatory immediately, as is the hunting provision. The earmarking, however, doesn't begin until July 1, 1969.

Texas will benefit in this land acquisition program. Already the state, with the aid of Federal Excise tax funds, has bought a marsh area in Jefferson County and is developing it. This property was opened to hunting on a limited basis by the Game and Fish Commission in 1958. Although there is a construction program now going on, it probably will have some hunting during the coming limited season.

Unfortunately, the breeding grounds of our migratory waterfowl for the most part are without the boundaries of the United States.

We have some ducks that remain in Texas throughout the year, but there are only a few. Some even breed in the northwestern states, but again they are few by comparison. Most of our ducks reproduce in far-off Canada, their colonial nesting grounds. Those not killed in Texas migrate back there each year for their breeding and return to Texas when the first cold blast of the north moves them out.

This year they have been hard hit by the drought. Just how much good can be achieved by more refuges in the states is a difficult guess. But since the experts are studying the program, we must go along with them and agree that good will come of it.

"The picture is not so good," Mr. Janzen said. "If it does not improve much more than we can now foresee, we have no choice but to recommend severe restrictions on waterfowl hunting this fall.

"We still hope that Mr. Duck Hunter will have enough faith in the future of this sport to contribute his $3 for a duck stamp, even though his hunting prospects this fall are pretty grim."

While some parts of the country have lost materially in their potholes, this situation is not quite so bad in Texas. There was a time when ducks had very little water when the came to Texas. They alighted in Panhandle grain fields and then moved to the coast.

Then came our program of building dams in Texas. We now have more than 100 lakes in Texas of a capacity of 100 acres or more. A number of them are extremely large ones. In addition there is hardly a small farm without a stock tank, and every large ranch has scores of them. When you fly over Texas and look down at the lakes, they dot the earth like thousands of small diamonds.

Ducks and geese like these resting places and many of them remain. They'll always stay where there is food and water. They play up and down the Red River and the Sabine to the coast and all along our coast. In fact, the lower coast of Texas each year is host to more red heads and canvas back ducks than all the rest of the United States combined.

So with a short duck season we have little choice but to go along and buy our $3 duck stamps. Most of us will kill about as many, anyway, because we may go a little more often.

The ABC's of Traffic Safety: Always Be Careful!

Flying insects are hard to swat but easy to kill by spraying because they move so fast for their size. It is estimated that the housefly buzzes along at five mph, the hornet flies about 13 mph, the horsefly at 30 mph and the dragonfly catches other insects while flying at a mile a minute.

Blind persons wishing to make use of the one-fare travel concession, which enables them to take along a sighted companion for the cost of a single ticket on most railway and bus lines, can now obtain an ID card good for five years. They no longer have to obtain a new coupon book every year, according to the American Foundation for the Blind.

In its effort to be of greater help to America's estimated 350,000 blind persons and the numerous agencies serving them, the American Foundation for the Blind recently appointed six field representatives, each of whom will cover a designated area of the country.

Farmers may soon be using electronics, thinks Cecil Parker, extension farm management specialist. Don't look for electronics to take over the plowing and milking jobs just yet, says the specialist, but it may perform an even more vexing chore, the complicated brain-work necessary in modern agriculture.

An antique buggy of an 1899 fire chief was recently featured in the lobby of a New York bank. Receptionists became so intrigued they dressed in costume to fit the period.

One of the problems which had to be solved before America's first earth satellite was shot into orbit by the Jupiter-C missile was how to weld sections of the big rocket together so they would withstand the great stress of the blast-off. The answer was provided by the Canadian aluminum industry, which provided this county with a new type of welding wire capable of standing the strain.

The electricity needed to produce a ton of aluminum would supply the electrical needs for a six-room house for fifteen years. For example, 40,000,000 tons of aluminum — about the amount produced in this country and Canada last year. This would power seven cities the size of Cleveland for a year.

Harold Rife, Black Flag's entomologist, reports that while Americans spray insecticides, the Chinese for many centuries used a peculiar weapon in their war on pests. They ate them, with favored dishes of cockroaches, locusts, grasshoppers and even pickled ant eggs.

The larvae of carpet beetles, which do much of the damage attributed to moths, can live for a year without eating. Black Flag entomologists report the larvae normally grow by molting, but when they can't get any food they molt backwards, getting smaller with each stage.

Advertising doesn't jerk... IT PULLS
