ATC base gets Golden Deeds Award

the Roundup

Just weeks after the Air Force was awarded Sen. William Proxmire's latest Golden Fleece Award, Air Training Command's Lackland AFB, Texas, was presented Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez's (D-Texas) Golden Deeds Award.

Senator Proxmire makes his periodic award to highlight what he considers wasteful or excessive government spendnew award is for positive achievements. Ironically though, both awards went for efforts to improve living conditions of Air Force people.

Announcing his award for cited last minute spending of $715,000 at Clark AB, Philippines, for various programs designed to improve

ing. Representative Gonzalez's the quality of life of Air Force people stationed there. He mentioned what he considered a "rush" to use or lose unallotted funds on items that were not essential.

The Air Force disagreed, An November, Senator Proxmire official pointed out that a commander used money for authorized and essential improvements to broken or rundown base equipment and housing facilities which had for years taken a back seat to operational spending.

Lackland's program to improve living and working conditions was primarily a selfhelp project. Representative Gonzalez, in presenting the Golden Deeds Award to Lackland's Air Force Military Training Center Commander,

Home for HEART project arrives

The modular facility which will house a unique health care test program here arrived on base late last week.

Transported more than 300 miles by semitrailers, the arrival of the facility heralds the launching of the Health Evaluation and Risk Tabulation program here.

Designed to provide office and clinical space for management and operation of the HEART program, the temporary facility has been set in place east of the Officers Club on 13th Street.

The HEART project is keyed to develop and demonstrate a system that, if successful, will help to reduce ischemic vascular disease among Air Force personnel.

Ischemic vascular disease, a major cause of heart attacks, causes a decrease in the blood flow to various organ systems. By using selected risk factors such as age, weight, blood pressure, cholesterol level and cigarette smoking habits project officials believe it is possible to predict an individual's susceptibility to the disease and his chances of having some type of heart failure.

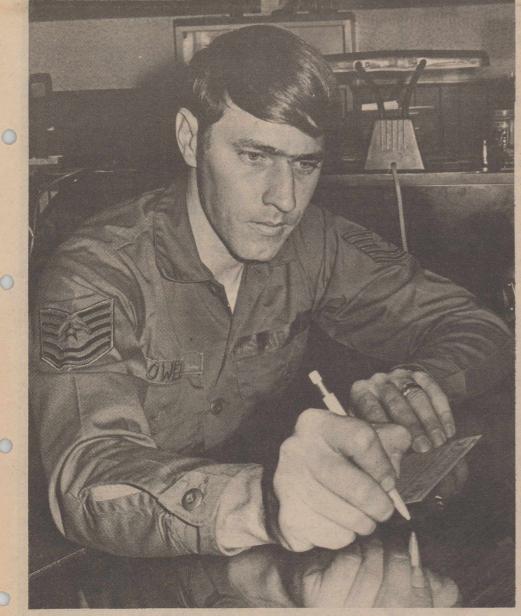

Project officials note that by collecting these factors for each person in a given population (such as Reese), computing a combined risk factor for each individual and then concentrating on reducing the problem factors, it is probable that the incidence of ischemic vascular disease can significantly be reduced.

Under the direction of the Heart Advanced Development Program Office of the Air Force School of Aerospace Medicine, the project is being conducted at four bases. Joining Reese in the HEART project are Carswell AFB, Texas, Charleston AFB, S.C., and Pease AFB, N.H. Specific HEART programs vary at each base.

Maj. Michael Vojtasko, Reese Hospital administrator and project officer for the HEART project here, explained who will be affected by the 18-month (Continued on page 4)

Reese pays tribute to enlisted selectees

Reese's selections for Senior Noncommissioned Officer, Noncommissioned Officer and Airman of the Year were announced Jan. 11 during an awards banquet at the Reese Officers' Club.

Topping the field of 22 bluesuiters nominated for the awards were: SMSgt. William C. Mortensen, 64th Field Maintenance Squadron (Senior NCO); TSgt. Wayne A. Powell, 64th FMS (NCO); and A1C Frederick M. Dedolph, 64th Supply Squadron (Airman of Year).

The awards, sponsored by the Caprock Chapter of the NCO Academy a Vocational Instructor's Certificate), Glendale Community College and Wayland Baptist College. He is currently pursuing a degree in Electronic Engineering Technology.

Recently elected as treasurer of the local NCOAGA, Sergeant Mortensen holds the same position in the Reese Youth Booster Club. He is a coach of the squadron volleyball team and the Varsity Women's volleyball team. Sergeant Mortensen is a member of several squadron boards, including Airman of the Month, NCO of the Quarter, Airman of the Year and Below the Zone Promotion to E-4.

Senior NCO of Year

Sergeant Mortensen, superintendent of Field Maintenance's Precision Measurement Equipment Laboratory, is a veteran of 18 and one-half years of Air Force service.

The Van Nuys, Calif. native has attended the University of Maryland European Division (he maintained a 4.0 grade point average while earning

He and his wife Lourdes have two children.

NCO of the Year

Sergeant Powell, flight chief of Organizational Maintenance's India Flight during the award period, has firmly established himself as one of Reese's top performer.

Since his arrival here from Upper Heyford AB, England, Sergeant Powell has been cite often by Reese and ATC leaders for his hard work and dedication to duty. His professional attitude and leadership ability have been targeted as prime reasons for India Flight's emergence as Organizational Maintenance's Flight of the Year.

Communication is key to success at Reese

by Col. John Rushfeldt deputy commander for Maintenance

The ability to effectively communicate is the secret of success of modern man.

Virtually everything we do is based on communication of one sort or another. The better we communicate the greater our success.

So what does this have to do with you? Everything!

Every single member of the 64th Flying Training Wing is a part of the team. For the "Team" to function well you must communicate well. You must send out clear oral and written instructions if you want workers to do the job well. Subordinates must, in turn, advise the boss if they do not understand.

When we all know clearly what our job is, we do it better because apprehension and fears are dispelled.

Are you and your fellow workers really well informed on what your part of our great Reese team is? If not, communicate your questions to your boss.

You'll feel better knowing how you fit in the game plan. Communicate well and feel well!

Col. John Rushfeldt

Holiday spirit

I just want to let you know about some of the members of your staff. In specific, CMSgt. Frank Guidas, TSgt. Cal W. Hampton and SMSgt. John A. Wilson who have donated their time and allowed us to have Christmas off.

When you are far away from home it is a heck of a morale boost to know these people care about us to donate the time to go out and give us the day off. Also I would like to express a special thanks to Bob McFall of the Recreation Center, who went around to all the different agencies which had to work and donated his time and delicious donuts. I know I appreciate it and so do all the rest of the guys on flight and those of us who were off Christmas.

Dear Day Off

Thanks. This again confirms what I already know — we have some very fine people on this base.

Christmas cheer

I think it is wonderful that some people can' take time from their busy holiday schedule to think of others.

I think all of this is wonderful.

Thank you for your kind words. I know the folks you referred to also appreciate your thoughtfulness. By the way, the people in maintenance, transient alert and the 54th FTS also did a great job of making sure Santa arrived in Lubbock in time and safely.

Shut lids

Today we received notices to please shut the dumpster lids to keep trash and debris from blowing around.

Well, I agree with this completely, but; I noticed something else just as bad and that is the trash left laying around by the contractors.

After we finished cleaning up the papers and trash that had been blowing into our yard we went out the next day and found old roofing paper from the houses they are fixing all over the place again.

The contractors should be required to clean up their mess after each day is over. Also to conserve energy.

I believe that they should shut off all the lights in the houses when they finished working in them. There have been many nights when I have gone by and seen lights left on with no one in the houses.

Dear Trash and Energy

I appreciate your concern about closing the dumpster lids and lights being left on at night.

Open dumpsters sure do add to our trash problems. One way to solve this is to simply make sure the lids are closed.

The housing contractor has been reminded of his responsibility concerning his trash and reminded to turn the lights off when a house is not being worked on.

Keep children away from cleaners, drugs

Small children seem to put every-

But those poisons are not only the rat killers and household cleaners most people think of. They also include medicines, cosmetics, paints, fertilizers, and houseplants.

The Food and Drug Administration notes that plants that cause the most rouble are philodendron, poinsettia, African violets, dieffenbachia, and begonias.

So keep all potential poisons, including plants and cosmetics, out of reach. the-counter medicines, get containers with safety caps. You may think they're a nuisance, but they save lives.

Never tell a child that medicine tastes like candy.

Finally, have the number of the poison control center and your doctor near the phone, and keep a one-ounce bottle of syrup of ipecac handy. But don't use the ipecac unless the doctor says so.

Energy saving tips

It is easy to use more light than you need. More than 16 percent of electricity used in the home goes into lighting. Most Americans overlight their homes, so lowering lighting levels is an easy energy saver.

Here are some lighting ideas to help save energy:

• Turn off lights in any room not being used.

• Reduce overall lighting in nonworking spaces by removing one blub out of three in multiple light fixtures. Replace it with a burned out blub for safety.

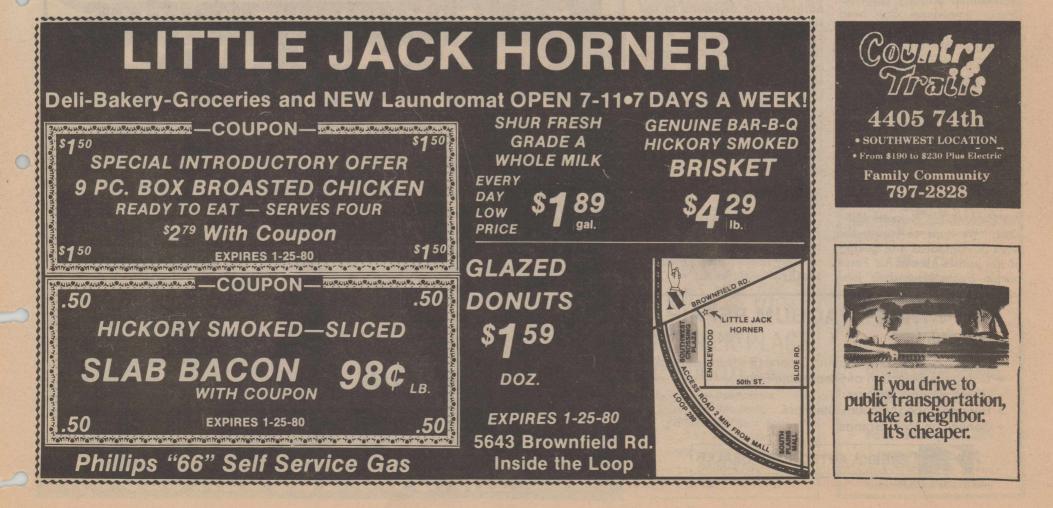

• Consider installing solid state dimmers or hi-low switches when replacing light switches. They make it easy to reduce lighting intensity in a room and thus save energy.

• Use one large blub instead of several small ones in areas where bright light is needed.

• Need new lamps? Consider the advantages of those with three-way switches. They make it easy to keep lighting levels low when intense light is not necessary, and that saves electricity.

• Turn three-way bulbs down to the lowest lighting level when watching television. This will reduce glare on the screen and use less energy.

• Keep all lamps and lighting fixtures clean. Dirt absorbs light.

Air Force implements Buck Stop program

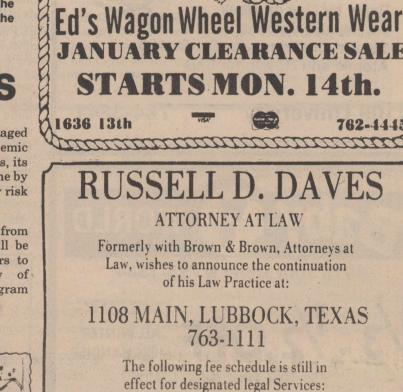

Lew Allen Jr. recently announced the Air Force-wide implementation of Buck Stop, a campaign to decentralize decision authority.

The term Buck Stop was coined by Air Training Command for its decentralization program, started some time ago.

Approval authority for such areas as flying operations, funds management and professional military class selection procedures has been delegated from the headquarters command level to the base level.

Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. more challenging and rewarding. By delegating authority to lower command levels, we expect to provide valuable decision-making experience for our readiness. Efficiency will be improved through time saved in not submitting issues for higher level decision and readiness improved by individuals on the spot with the best information making the decisions.

> "I believe strongly in delegating responsibility and authority for decisions to the lowest possible level of supervision. Therefore I am implementing Buck Stop to encourage supervisors at all echelons to suggest opportunities whereby leadership can be enhanced, procedures simplified and operations made more efficient through delegation of authority to lower levels of organization."

Reese holds Career Day

Representative from the Strategic Air Command, Tactical Air Command and Military Airlift Command will be here Feb. 1 to brief base personnel about their respective commands.

The three command teams will hold duplicate briefings in the base theater from 8 a.m. until noon and from 1 p.m. until 5 p.m. The briefings are mandatory for all Undergraduate Pilot Training students and are recommended for all instructor pilots. All other base personnel are invited to attend one of the briefings with a special urging being given to the spouses of student and instructor pilots.

In addition to the briefings, which will concentrate on the individual command mission and aircraft, a static display will be open to the base population from 10 to 4 p.m. in front of Base Operations. At least one aircraft will be on display from each command. According to Reese's largest contribution was in the area of "soft savings," or savings that increase productivity or efficiency but do not release funds or manpower positions for use elsewhere. Using workers employed under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act, Reese saved $122,000 over the cost of overhire civilian personnel to do landscaping work. The total of soft savings was $130,436.

In addition, $87,561 in "hard savings" was capped by a $40,000 savings in electrical usage through an evaluation of consumption in the flight simulator building.

Reese joins stamp ceremony

Representatives from Reese will take part in ceremonies at the Texas Tech University Museum Feb. 7, when a new stamp will be issued by the U.S. Postal Service.

The base Color Guard will participate in the ceremony launching the sale of the stamp books. Col. Richard A. Ingram. 64th Flying Training Wing commander, who was responwindmill in Founder's Park, will be one of the many dignitaries on hand.

The commemorative stamps will sell for 15 cents each. The stamp series contains five different stamps depicting windmills that helped shape America. One of the stamps has a windmill representative of the type used throughout West Lubbock, Texas 79408.

sible for Reese getting the Texas around the turn of the century.

> Anyone wanting to purchase first-day cancellation stamps should send a self addressed envelope and $1.50 check or money order. That will purchase a single pane of 10 stamps, to: Windmill Stamps, Postmaster Elmer Reed,

AAFES improves layaway plan

Air Force-wide changes to make the AAFES layaway program more attractive to Reese customers and reduce administrative paperwork have been announced by Dan Arias, Reese exchange manager.

Customers may now use the 180-day layaway plan for any accumulation of items other than clothing, shoes and perishables, totaling $200 or more. Clothing and shoes may still be placed on 90-day layaway.

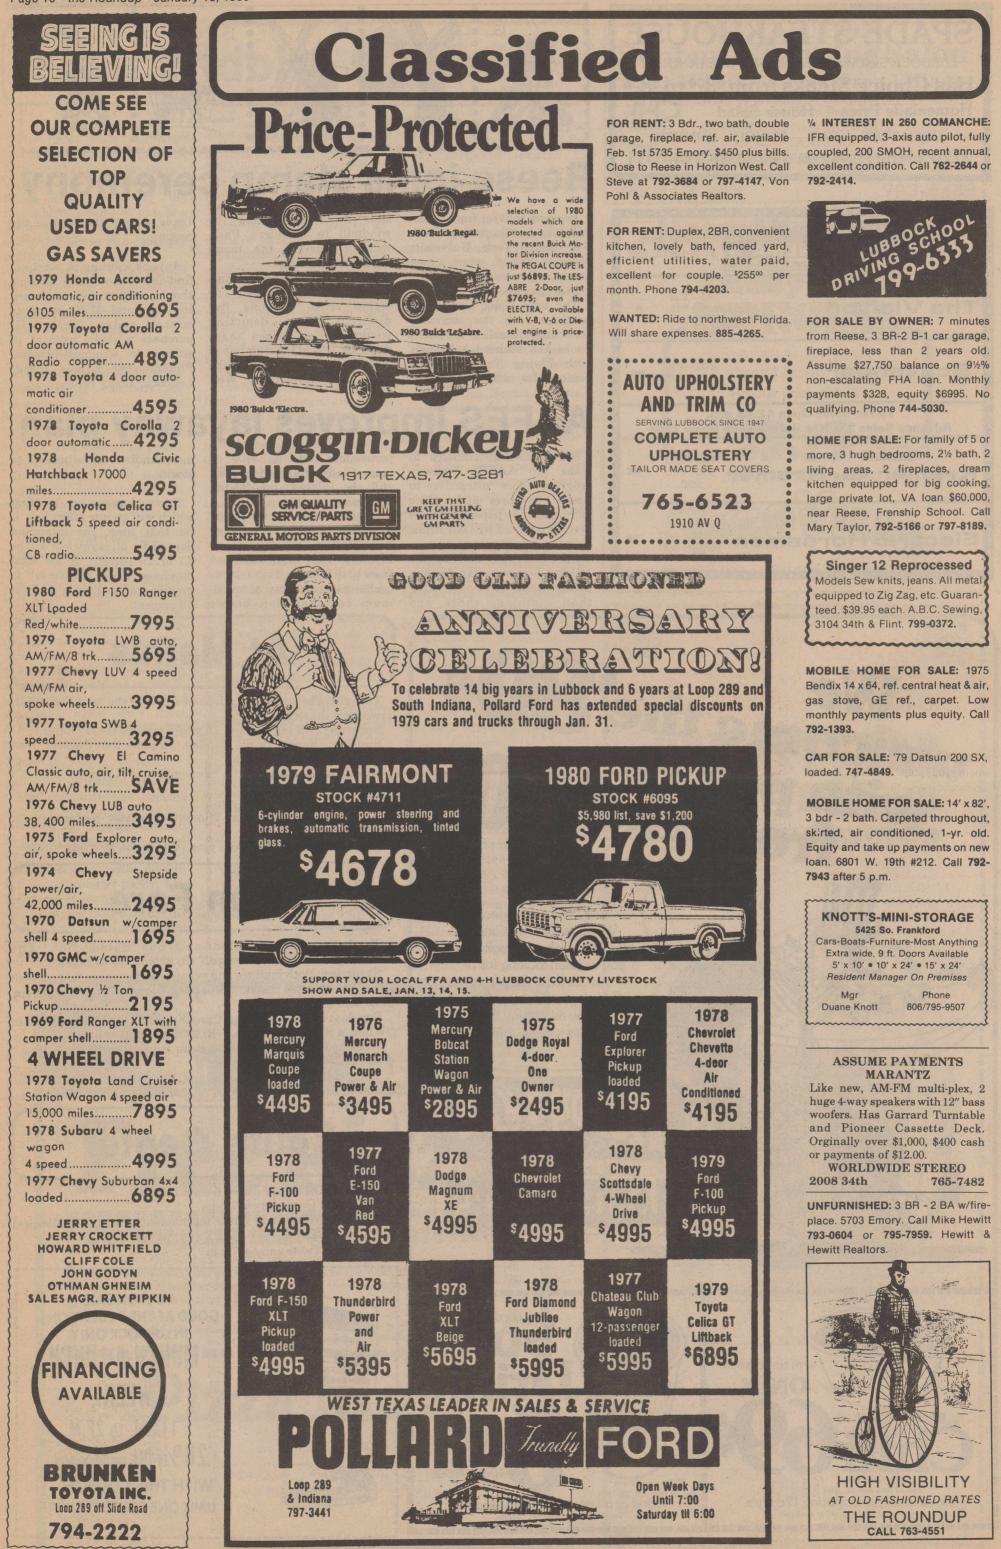

In addition, the grace period available prior to exchange cancellation of delinquent layaway has been extended from 10 to 20 days. This assures exchange customers of maximum consideration before merchandize is returned to stock.

Other changes are pending which will go into effect Feb. 1. At that time, the minimum deposit for all layaways will be $3 or 10 percent of the total purchase price, whichever is greater (rather than a straight 10 percent).

35th blows loop chance

The 35th Flying Training Squadron blew its chance to catch the league leading 54th Flying Training Squadron last week when the title challenger was upset by the unheralded Medics, 36-27.

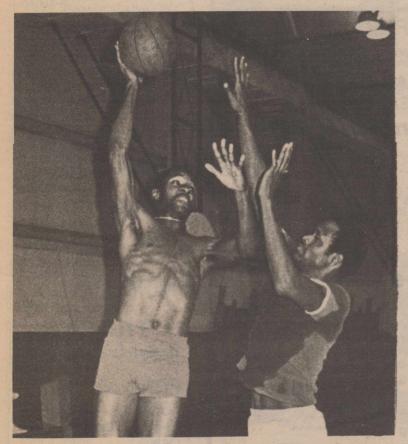

With the 54th taking the week off, the 35th had a chance to move into a first place tie by beating the Medics. But, Jack Cusano's 12 point performance led the Hospital cagers to the top upset of the intramural campaign.

The 35th came back later in the week to defeat Supply, 55-50, and raise its season mark to 6-1. But, the shocking loss to the Medics kept the squad a half game behind the unbeaten 54th. In other loop action Resource Management topped Sturon-3, 47-29; Sturon-2 dropped Supply, 46-43; the Medics beat RMS, 41-40, and Field Maintenance stopped Sturon-3, 57-50.
