Good News

Forming a local corporation for the purpose of building cotton storage warehouses and a compress here is the best news that has come our way in some time.

Local parties who have invested substantially in the venture are expressing in a material way their confidence in the future of Haskell and this section, and in the continued development of its agricultural resources.

Located in the heart of one of the state's major cotton producing regions, there is no reason why Haskell should not have all the facilities necessary for processing and handling the area's huge cotton crop.

The warehouse, the first of which will be built this summer, will mean additional permanent employment for local workers, with the number increasing as the company expands its facilities.

Additional warehouse facilities will also enhance Haskell's position as a cotton market, and could eventually result in the establishment of a cotton oil mill or other allied industries here.

It is a start in the right direction, and the fact that the sizeable venture is being financed by local capital makes it more commendable.

Inflation - Education

Oswald West, governor of Oregon from 1911-1915, recently observed his 86th birthday. A man of definite convictions, he has always expressed himself in plain English on public questions.

In a published interview on his birthday he didn't mince words on inflation when he said: "I am thankful that I joined Teddy Roosevelt and Gifford Pinchot in the conservation movement. . . for now we have ample timber from which to mill the paper to supply the material to make the irredeemable paper money."

On the tax and financial problems of the state which the recent Oregon Legislature left unsolved he said: "They're all college graduates but not one of them knows how to add or subtract."

On the subject of higher education and school and college facilities which are troubling Oregon and most states he said: "About 25 per cent of the students in college aren't going to get an education. They're going to play football, or do something else besides study. If these were checked off in high school, it wouldn't be necessary to build so many buildings."

Selling Mousetraps

Editor Godfrey M. Lebar of Chain Store Age writes: "Giving the public what it wants pays off. Whether it be a make of car, a brand of breakfast food, a kind of store or restaurant or anything else which can be readily identified, if people prefer it, it will generally prosper."

"With a public consisting of some 175,000,000 individuals, the potential pay-off is big enough to stir up plenty of competition under our system. For not only is the public free to buy what, where and when it likes, but producers are free to make and distributors to offer what they think people will prefer."

"Under such a system, the producers who make the best mousetraps—to use a classic example—will usually sell the most mousetraps, and the retailers who operate the best-liked mousetrap stores will usually attract the most mousetrap buyers."

This simple little illustration highlights the differences between a free economy and an economy which is bossed by the government, under some kind of totalitarian system. In the first, the people at large make the decisions, and the successful producers and retailers must understand that decision and abide by it. In the second, the wishes of the people are of little or no moment. A handful of men, with limitless power, decide what shall be produced and sold, in what quantity and at what price. The people can like it or lump it—there's nothing they can do about it.

Messrs. Joe Ferguson, Walter Cousins, Sunnie Boone, and Alex Jones returned from Indian Territory Wednesday, where they had carried a load of 475 better steers for Messrs. 70 Years Ago—June 25, 1866

Over a period of years, civic progress is revealed in varying forms, sometimes not easily recognizable as such at the moment.

This observation is prompted by a letter a few days ago from "Peck" Williams of Lubbock, in which he recalled some events here in 1919-20. In those days, a "community event" meant just that, every person in town took part, whether it was cutting weeds in the alleys or cleaning up the cemetery.

Which calls to mind a "clean up" project back in 1919 which added to the attractiveness of the town, but because of questionable methods involved in carrying it out, the identity of the project's "sponsors" never became known.

Two ramshackle wooden buildings which had been vacant for years, were located across the alley north of the present day Gene Hunter Building.

The buildings, with sagging roofs and walls, window panes and doors broken, were an eyesore if there ever was one. A space of about two feet separated the wooden walls of the two buildings, and this narrow passageway became littered with trash and junk.

Ordinarily, an accumulation like that is an invitation to fire, but it is a known fact that a lighted cigarette flipped between the buildings would smoulder a while, then go out with no damage resulting.

Then one still summer morning about 2 o'clock, the two buildings were discovered afire, flames spreading rapidly through both structures. In spite of "valiant" work of the volunteer fire department, the buildings were reduced to ashes within an hour's time or less.

Credit for discovering and reporting the fire went to a group of four or five young men who occupied bachelor quarters at a rooming house across the street in the building which is now Holden Funeral Home.

The young men, since they were among the first arrivals, pitched in and helped the firemen fight the blaze, staying on the job until it was finished.

Firemen, grateful for the help of the young fellows, noticed one peculiar thing, however. One fireman was heard to remark: "Here we are, half of us in our undershirts because we didn't have time to grab a shirt. Those young fellows beat us here, and they took time to dress completely, even putting on their ties. It beats me."

Everyone seemed to accept the loss of the old buildings as good riddance. The late J. E. (Ed) Wilfong, County Attorney at the time, was credited with saying that whoever set the fire should have a new suit for a reward.

There were no claimants. If there was anyone who could qualify, they probably had misgivings that the County Attorney meant a striped suit, with the stripes running horizontally.

A Haskell man who is not accustomed to "seeing things," is curious about the identity of an animal which crossed the highway in front of his car the other night.

He was coming back from Stamford, accompanied by his mother, he related. After coming down the first hill this side of Stamford, he was driving along in the first flat valley, when he noticed the animal crossing the highway about 100 yards ahead.

"I'm sure it wasn't a coyote, it was too large," he said. He described it about as tall as a greyhound, but heavier. "Its walk, unhurried but fast, was like that of a cat," he said.

He thought of turning around in the car and trying to spotlight the animal for a better look, but his mother, who is elderly, was against the idea.

Could it have been a panther? He didn't think so. A bobcat? Well, maybe. At least if someone in that vicinity kills a giant bobcat, the man's curiosity will be satisfied.

PEOPLE, PLACES AND THINGS

Compared with past election years, the 1960 political campaign will be "over with before it gets started" in the opinion of old-time political observers, as the result of a bill passed by the Legislature.

The bill will move the primary elections and conventions from July and August to May and June. Changing date of the first primary will cut campaigning time to 18 weeks instead of the previous 30 weeks.

Also, prospective candidates will have less time in which to make up their minds about running for office, since the deadline for filing has been moved to February 1, 1960.

The first primary will come on Saturday, May 7, and the second or "run-off" primary on Saturday, June 4.

Facts picked up here and there help to explain why we have such a time trying to make ends meet.

It costs $1,555 a year or $129.50 a month, to own and operate a medium-priced car with eight cylinder engine and automatic shift, according to a Chicago research firm. The estimate is based on 10,000 miles of driving and trade-in every 45,000 miles. The operating cost for lower-priced, six cylinder, manual-gearshift cars is $1,264 a year or about $105.30 a month.

Duncan Hines in all his travels probably never heard of Haskell, but had he stopped here he might have given this city a top rating in the opinion of a California couple.

Last week Stanley Furr, owner of the Texas Cafe, received a letter from Cal. and Mrs. Chas. H. Scott of Burbank, Calif., containing an unusual request.

Mrs. Scott wrote that in April of this year, she and her husband had spent the night in Haskell, stopping at the Texas for supper. "We had steaks and French fries," she wrote. "In all our travels we've never been served such delicious French fried potatoes. My husband joins me in asking if we might have your recipe, please, in an enclosed stamped and addressed envelope."

Roll call was answered with a county current event. The election of candidates for county delegate to the State meeting was held with Mrs. Marvin Walters elected delegate and Mrs. Carl Bailey as alternate.

PAINT CREEK . . . COMMUNITY NEWS

BY MRS. GENE OVERTON

The grain crop in this community was surprising this summer. Almost everyone made about twice as much as he expected. Before the grain was cut the estimated average was about 10 to 12 bushels, and from every part of the community have come reports of from 15 to 25 bushels average. I guess those big fall rains made the difference, because we surely had no spring moisture. Anyway, it was a nice surprise.

Most of the maize in the community is from knee high to several feet, and surely looks good. The cotton is tiny where there is a stand. But most everyone is having to replant since the big rains last week.

Mrs. Ben Isbell is much improved and able to be up, and even visited in Graham last week. She suffered a heart attack May 31 and was in the Haskell Hospital for several days. We didn't get news in that week and failed to express our sympathy to her in the loss of her mother, Mrs. West of Lledo, Texas, who died on the Monday that Mrs. Isbell was in the hospital. Her son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Isbell, attended the funeral at Grapevine, Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Cathey and Elizabeth of Grand Prairie last weekend in Petersburg visiting Mrs. Cathey's aunt, and Mr. Montgomery's sister-in-law and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Gordon. Mr. and Mrs. Cathey are visiting Mr. Montgomery this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Garland Callaway and daughters Judy and Mrs. Selda Loe, left Tuesday for Houston where Judy will have a checkup and see if she can get her new leg. She was elected baton twirler for the pep squad for this coming year, and we are all keeping our fingers crossed that she'll be able to get her leg now, and get used to it in time to start to school next year. She finished her junior year on crutches, and managed beautifully, but she is anxious to get her new leg.

Mrs. Ray Deeg Gressett and daughter, Khristi, of Lubbock, have spent the past week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Bounds.

Mr. and Mrs. James Raughton and children of Lubbock spent the weekend with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Overton and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Raughton.

Mr. and Mrs. John Carlos Montgomery, Johnny Paul and April from Pleasanton are here for two weeks vacation with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Montgomery and Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Phil Williams of Lubbock recently spent a week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jess Mickler.

Mrs. M. L. Medford returned last week from Charleston, S. C., where she spent two weeks with her son, Lt. Ray Medford and his wife. Mrs. Medford flew to Charleston from Fort Worth, and her son Willie Lee met her there on her return trip.

The Dan LeFevre family has a new Ford.

Mr. and Mrs. Voil of Jacksboro spent last weekend with her sister, Mrs. G. W. Roberts and Mr. Roberts, and attended the Worrell-Roberts wedding.

Special Stamp To Commemorate Soil Conservation

A 4-cent postage stamp saluting the United States will be issued Aug. 26 by the Post Office Department, the U. S. Department of Agriculture announced today.

The nation's first soil conservation stamp will be formally released at the annual meeting of the Soil Conservation Society of America at Rapid City, S. D., Aug. 26. It will go on sale the following day at post offices throughout the country.

The stamp, which was developed in cooperation with the U. S. Department of Agriculture, portrays a modern farm-land setting signifying that conservation farming brings beauty as well as bounty to rural living. Soil conservation practices portrayed include strip cropping, terracing, pasture improvement, tree planting, and farm pond. In addition, the silhouette of a city in the background symbolizes that urban as well as rural people are highly dependent upon the care and wise use of land as principal source of food, water, shelter and clothing. The stamp will be printed in three colors, yellow, green and blue.

A total of 120 million stamps has been ordered. The artist is Walter Hortens of New York, a native of Vienna.

Issuance of the stamp, officials of the Department of Agriculture said, is a tribute to farmers and ranchers, their local soil conservation districts and to the professional conservationists and other agricultural workers who have helped make the United States a world leader in soil conservation.

Observances are planned in most of the nations' 2,840 soil conservation districts in cooperation with various agricultural, industrial, civic and conservation groups.

Drive carefully—an accident could make your vacation permanent.

Automatic Pilot Developed For Farm Tractor

Farmers who want to make their work easier should be interested in an automatic pilot that has been developed for farm tractors, said W. L. Ulich, extension agricultural engineer. This new device is expected to increase the effectiveness of cultivation as a means of weed control, he stated. The steering control system enables operators to guide tractors more accurately, thereby making possible finer adjustments of cultivation machinery for control of weeds without damage to the crops.

The automatic pilot was designed and laboratory tested by a USDA engineer, and is now being field tested. The main problem overcome in developing this device involved finding a way to use fairly simple equipment low enough in cost to be a profitable investment for farmers seeking to do a better job of cultivation, said Ulich.

The automatic control is intended for use in conjunction with power steering hookups which are featured on many modern tractors. Lightweight feelers, capable of sensing the position of the crop row in relation to the tractor's front tires, are used in the automatic pilot to close switches when the tractor moves too close or too far from the row.

The microswitches, in turn, open valves that permit hydraulic pressure to turn the front wheels into alignment with the row. A linkage system between the front wheels and the switches automatically straightens the front wheels as soon as the tractor returns to the correct position, he added.

Soil And Water Conservation Helps Wildlife

More abundance of wildlife is ours to have simply by the application of soil and water conservation practices. This land-use decision is, of course, mostly up to the farmer and rancher. The choice which he makes can mean either an increase in or scarcity of the more desirable forms of wildlife, according to Hinds McGowan Jr., technician for the Soil Conservation Service, assisting the California Creek-Brazos SCS Districts.

Practically every farm in the county has an "add area," such as lapses at fence corners, abandoned roads, rocky spots or maybe some good land cut off by creeks or gullies which could provide top notch cover and food for quail and dove under proper management.

The absence of a natural habitat of cover and food has made survival difficult for game birds in many localities, McGowan said. The planting of trees for windbreaks will protect our land and crops from damaging winds and at the same time provide an excellent cover and food for dove and many other kinds of wildlife.

The basic needs of game birds are cover, food and water according to McGowan. In the everyday life of a quail there seems to follow a set pattern. They spend the heat of the day loafing or resting under woody vegetation such as wild plum, lotebush or mesquite limbs which have been cut and hang down giving plenty of overhead protection and space under them. Quail prefer to roost in mid and tall grasses which have not been subjected to over use by livestock. Their choice of cover for nesting is in dead vegetation from last year's growth of grasses with plenty of protection overhead such as growing grasses or under some form of brush. A brood may include 10-18 however 12 is the average. Half the food quail eat is weed seed, some of the more nutritious ones being broomweed, western ragweed, one seed croton and sunflowers. The remainder of his diet is composed of waste grain, wild berries, nuts and insects. Blue Panic grass seed also provides an excellent food. There will be times when the birds will be forced to change their diet due to climatic conditions of mid winter cold or summer heat. However under proper management there will always be a source of food supply in one form or another to meet the dire needs of the Bobwhite.

L. W. Norman of Rule has cut off a narrow strip along the river on his farm to serve as a wild life habitat. This area has an abundance of cover and food. R. C. Couch Jr. has fenced off several of the farm pond dams on his ranch which offer excellent cover areas for wildlife.

For further information concerning wildlife and the development of wildlife areas contact your local SCS technician or county agent.

No rest for this Chevy... round the clock the engine never stops!

At Washington's bustling National Airport, Allied Aviation Fueling counts on its radio-equipped Chevy to get crews and tank trucks to the right planes at just the right time. Aside from occasional time out for the usual service, its Thriftmaster 6-cylinder engine has been running 24 hours a day for the past 9 months!

Once you've got that kind of endurance working you don't worry much about lost job time. Breakdowns go out of style the day your Chevy goes into action.

The fact is, Chevrolet trucks are dead set on dropping the word "downtime" right out of the English language. And they just might, if precision engineering and top-quality materials have anything to say about it. Chevy trucks are put together to stay together—incorporating the most advanced chassis developments, the most efficient 6-cylinder and V8 engine designs. They're built to last, built to keep Chevrolet's hard-earned reputation for reliability flying high.

Going into the real heart of Chevrolet advantages is where your dealer comes in. He'll show you, in feature after feature, that you can't buy more truck dependability—in any weight class—at any price.

OUTDOORS IN TEXAS

BY VERN SANFORD

Ever do any "jug fishing?" Jugging for catfish is performed in two ways.

One way is to tie a jug, or oil can, to a snag or stake, near a known catfish hole. To the other end of the float attach a hook and line, adjusted to the proper depth, and baited with your favorite catfish bait.

When a fish bites, the can or jug goes under. But the float's buoyancy soon tires the fish and the float pops to the surface again and again.

The other method is to tie a hook and line to a free-floating jug or can. If set out in a running stream, the fisherman must follow his jug or can by boat, retrieving when it indicates a strike. Sometimes a number of floating jugs are set free at the same time.

In jugging, discretion must be used so that the floats do not hinder, or endanger motor boats or other craft. Also, it's well to remember that game wardens frown on "unattended" lines.

Looking For Ideas? Here's a random collection of ideas, gathered from hither and yon. Take a looksee. Perhaps you'll find something of interest:

For Less Noise—To deaden the racket your feet make in the bottom of your metal boat, have your garageman spray the floor with a coating of the rubber undercoat used to lessen automobile noises. It's non-skid, too.

Tricking Bass—Though black bass usually ignore worms, you can make a mighty potent combo to entice them by hooking on a night crawler at the end of a spoon.

Snippers Handy—When running a catfish line, or when rod and reel fishing for catfish, it's a good idea to slip a pair of small wire cutters in your pocket. Use them to snip off the sharp spines of the dorsal and pectoral fins of your catch before trying to handle the fish. This may help you avoid painful, even dangerous stabs of these sometimes poisonous barbs.

Aroma Lures Cats—As catfish feed argely by scent, it stands to reason that the more a bait stinks, the better it will reach them. And this is so. Many big catfish are caught on small perch and other live bait, but stink bait remains supreme. Take your choice of these aromas: rotted cheese or eggs; asafetida; skunk juice; oil of rhodium; rotted minnows; liver, or chicken innards. Mix any of these odorous messes with cotton, feathers, or old rags; mold into proper sized balls and bait the hooks. You'll get results.

Save Lures—Many a lunger is lurking in that weed-infested water that you hesitate to cast your dollar lure into. You can cut down the danger of losing your lure (and maybe catch a lunger) if you will use extra heavy line (18 pounds or more) and a weedless hook, then quickly horse into the boat any strike you may get. Don't try for finesse—yank him in!

Troll Across Current—A 30-lb. test monofilament line is just right for offshore trolling. And here's a tip: migrating fish usually travel against prevailing currents, so you better troll crossways to their course until you spot a feeding school.

Gulls and Guides—When smart lake fishermen notice gulls sitting around the water and the beaches, they hunker down and wait. Often the birds are just resting and watching for feeding schools of white bass to resume their feeding. They will spot schools long before you do.

Net Spotter—When fishing at night, haven't you often scrambled around in the boat searching for the landing net? Next time, before going out, paint the handle with a broad band of luminous paint. This holds good for any tackle you have trouble locating on the darkened boat bottom of a boat—or on shore.

Sit To Cast—Learn to cast while sitting down in a boat. Standing to cast can frighten fish for many yards around. Also it's dangerous! And don't wear white shirt or light clothing; they can scare fish out of their wits.

Accurate Casting—Whether you are a bait-caster, a spinning reel man, or a purist fly rod fisherman, the importance of being accurate in your casts can't be over-emphasized. If you drop your lure exactly on the spot aimed for, your chances of getting a strike are far greater than are those of the wild-casting hombre who plops his lure all over the landscape. Not only are many of his casts wasted, but they tend to frighten all bass from the vicinity.

Whopper Popper—Here is how to make that sensational new bait everybody is talking about: Take a regular sized Heddon Chuggar "Spook" (or a similar popping lure such as the Pico "Chugnik") and remove gang hooks, front and rear. To rear, where you have removed hooks, tie on a 3-foot gut or nylon leader. To the other end of leader, attach a bucktail lure with a medium hook, or a tiny "big with bucktail. This makes a "killer" bait for sure. This type of lure now can be bought commercially, deady-made. Dave Hawks is appropriately called "The Hitchhiker."

Bass Bait—Hellgrammites (Dobson fly larvae) make excellent bass, perch, etc., bait. Dark colored, with six legs, and two sets of sharp nippers, front and rear, the hellgrammite is shaped something like a caterpillar with fringy sort of things on each side. They live under rocks and stones in the ripples of small streams and can be gathered by turning stones. Keep in cool, damp leaves or moss until ready to use. To bait (watch those nippers) run hook under collar, or through tail. Hellgrammites are tough and long-lived and bass think they are great.

Setting the Drag—While some spinning reel anglers leave their drag brakes adjusted just below the line's breaking point, there are others who prefer to set the brake higher then click it back lower once they get a strike. Each method has its good points. Try them both to find which suits you better.

Knife Warning—For safety when surf fishing carry your bait knife in a scabbard at the back of your belt. If knife is attached to belt at front or sides, a fall could cause dangerous thigh wounds.

There is little harmony in the home where parents are continually harping.

Hawaiian And Caribbean Tours Now Available To West Texans

Lubbock—A visit to four Hawaiian "Isles of Paradise" or island hopping to the West Indies to eight of the best is easier than you think and closer, says Mrs. Luta Eaves, Texas Tech faculty member, who is now planning the 7th annual tour for this summer. The person with a two week vacation can do either of these tours, she states. "From Texas it's hardly more than an overnight trip by air," she said, "and air travel always permits more time for sight-seeing." The Eaves conducted tour group will do just that in true Texas style.

"Air service between the states and the Atlantic and Pacific islands is excellent—departing at 10 or 11 a. m. and arriving 5:45 p. m. is a late breakfast in the states, lunch over the Atlantic or Pacific aboard the plane, with dinner the same day in Honolulu, famous for its orchids, leis, and the hula, or dinner in a tropical West Indies Island," Mrs. Eaves said. That's just the beginning of a two weeks trip each to Hawaii departing July 15, then to the West Indies departing Aug. 1 that Mrs. Eaves will conduct.

"In Hawaii our first stop is the Island of Oahu and Honolulu, making a circle tour of the island. We cruise into Pearl Harbor in a yacht, visit the Oahu Country Club, Nuuanu district, Huanu Pali, Kaneohe, Kahala and Kahana Bay, continuing to Hawaii and the Mormon Temple at Laie, Wahiawa and Schofield Barracks. Next we're off to the Island of Maui, the Iao Valley and the Lahaina area. On the large island of Hawaii we see a coffee mill, the Church of St. Benedict.

News of The Congress

By Congressman Frank Beard

Now it is apparent that Congress will appropriate in excess of a billion dollars less than requested in the President's budget. This should mean that the budget will be in balance next year. It was projected that there would be a balance even at the budget figure that the President had recommended. This is an encouraging sign, particularly in view of the fact that this year we will see the largest peacetime deficit in history.

This week the House will be considering H. R. 3 which is a bill to assure to the States many of their historic rights. It provides that the Acts of Congress shall not overrule State laws unless there is a special provision to that effect. The purpose of the bill is to reverse several of the recent Supreme Court decisions. I hope that it can be quickly approved by the Congress.

We are, in many respects, continually preoccupied with our relations with the countries in Western Europe and the Far East and are prone to forget the

Our boundaries with these countries are the longest unfortified in the world, and our trade with them with the troublesome economic well being. This week there was created a commission to deal with the troublesome economic problems that exist between this country and Canada. This commission will be followed no doubt, by one that will have the same purpose with respect to Mexico.
