The United States, long a Marcos supporter has been rooting toward him following widespread alleganons of corruption and numan rights abuses by his 20-year-old government, and has urged repeatedly that the election be kept honest.

On Marcos invitation the United States has sent a 20-member team of pollwatchers. The team s ro-ender Sen. Richard Lagar B-ind, said the Philippine government had agreed to set the Americans into poiling places, something it earlier said

Council report claims Filipino forces learn 'torture technology' in U.S.

GENEVA (AP) — A World Council of Churches report alleging human rights violations in the Philippines says there are indications "torture technology" is furnished to the Filipino armed forces through training sessions at U.S. military schools.

The World Council of Churches report on the Philippines was released Wednesday, two days before the special presidential election pitting President Ferdinand E. Marcos against opposition challenger Corazon Aquino.

The 163-page report includes detailed testimony on killings, disappearances, and 81 cases of torture, most listed as occurring in the last

Officials said a copy of the report, compiled by Protestant and Catholic human rights organizations in the Philippines, was to be sent to delegates of the 43-nation United Nations Human Rights Commission.

Last year, the commission added

Ninan Koshy of India, director of the church council's International Affairs Commission, told reporters the organization hoped to ensure that the Philippines is kept on that

He said his panel had evidence that violations continued during the presidential campaign, including at least 40 killings.

The report said that "not surprisingly, torture techniques in the Philippines are strikingly similar to the ones practiced and taught by American soldiers during the Vietnam War, and used by other repressive states in Asia and Latin America."

There are indications that torture technology is imported and channeled through the training of military personnel in U.S. military schools under the International Mili-

the Philippines to its list of countries tary and Education Training agreement and other such military assistance pacts between the United States and the Philippines.

In a brief introduction released last week, Koshy said a "shocking record" emerges from the affidavits and testimony of victims, relatives and witnesses on cases selected from 1980 to 1985.

He added Wednesday, it "goes without saying that many other cases of human rights violations are documented and many others go unreported.

Material for the report was supplied by seven Filipino human rights organizations to an ecumenical committee headed by Bishop LaVerne Mercado, general secretary of the National Council of Churches of the Philippines.

The World Council has published similar reports on South Korea, El Salvador and the Israeli-occupied

Recent testimony before the Asian and Pacific Affairs subcommittee has shed light on charges that the Marcoses have made extensive, hidden real estate investments in the United States.

Several people have alleged that they own a 70-story office building valued at more than $100 million; another building said to be worth $80 million; a third purchased for $51 million; Herald Center, a nine-story shopping mall with exclusive shops and purchased for $17 million; and the Lindenmere estate in Center Moriches on Long Island, purchased for $19 million.

Pope mourns victims of Bhopal gas leak

MANGALORE, India (AP) — Pope John Paul II today mourned the 2,000 victims of the 1984 Bhopal poison gas leak and prayed for thousands of impoverished survivors who still suffer from the industrial

"I wish to recall the victims of the tragedies that accompany man's ef-forts to make progress and com-mend to the Lord the large number of people who lost their lives in Bho-pal," the pontiff told almost 300,000 people near the airport of this southern coastal city.

Tens of thousands of people, including some nuns, wore white caps with red English lettering which said, "Pope, We love you."

The pope, citing the leak at the Union Carbide plant on Dec. 3, 1984, said: "I recall that those who lived through the tragic events there have suffered greatly. suffered greatly. I pray that they will experience the fuliness of the fraternal solidarity of which they have need.

More than 2,000 people died and 300,000 people were injured in the leak from the pesticide plant at Bhopal, a central Indian city about 750 miles northeast of Mangalore.

The pontiff also prayed for rain in drought-striken Karnataka, one of nine states where more than 100 million people are suffering after several seasons of poor monsoon rains.

The state government says more than 15 million people in 19,600 villages in the southwestern state have been affected in what many consider the worst drought in recent years.

"Many human beings as well as anmals suffer from want of food and drink," the pope said. "My heart goes out to all who are suffering," he said

Third bomb blast injures nine people in Paris store

PARIS (AP) — The third in a series of nightly bomb blasts aimed at crowded Paris shopping areas tore through a popular sporting goods store, injuring nine people and increasing fears of a terror campaign with Middle East overtones.

There was no immediate claim of responsibility for the bomb that exploded late Wednesday in a modern shopping complex in central Paris, but the interior minister quickly declared that France would not be intimidated by terrorists. The minister, Pierre Joxe, announced tighter security measures for Paris and the nation's major transportation systems. "Terrorists want to upset the pub-lic, and they are doing it. But they also hope to intimidate the government, and they will not," Joxe said in

Le Monde, an authoritative newspaper, said police had determined the bombings were a campaign to pressure France as it seeks the re-lease of four Frenchmen abducted

It was the third successive night that a bomb went off in the French capital and the sixth such incident in two months. In each case, the bomb was planted in a busy public place.

Reporters and camera crews began gathering Wednesday on the Western side of Glienicke Bridge, a span linking West Berlin and Pots-dam, East Germany, that West German sources say will be the probable site of an exchange next week. The mass-circulation newspaper Bild said Wednesday the swap would happen "on Monday, or on Tuesday at the latest" and would include prominent Soviet Jewish dissident Anatoly Shcharansky, who is serving a 13-year prison sentence on charges of spying for the CIA. Shcharansky, 38, would be the pivotal figure in any imminent prisoner swap. A leader of the Soviet human rights movement in the 1970s, Shcharansky has denied the spying charge. His family has said he has become seriously ill since he was

DEATHS

Mary Beth Tinning, 43, was arraigned Wednesday on a charge of second-degree murder in the death of her 34-month-old daughter, Tami Lynne, in

But Nelson said she is also a suspect in the deaths since 1972 of her seven other natural children, who ranged in age from 8 days to 4 years. Investigators are also examining the 1981 death of a 7month old child she and her husband, Joseph Tinning, were about

Nelson said the children were listed on death certificates as having died of various causes, including Sudden Infant Death Syndrome, or unknown causes.

Tami Lynne was suffocated with a pillow at the Tinning home about 1:30 a.m. on Dec. 20, 1985, Nelson said. Authorities were alerted by a worker at St. Clare's Hospital where the child was taken.

Nelson took over as police chief in July 1981, but said he wasn't aware of the history of Tinning child deaths until after Tami Lynne died. "This is the tip of the iceberg," the ch dren's deaths, Nelson said. "I thin he probably suspected, ever confronted his wife about it Mrs. Tinning was sent without bail to the Schenectady County bodies of all the Tinning children may be exhumed in the course of the investigation. Poersch said he could understand how people could be "astounded and amazed and distressed" by the deaths, but that he wasn't embarrassed by the fact that charges have only now been

"I'm sure that this is not the first time in this state where something like this matter has happened," he said.

Autopsies were performed on each of the children and in three of the cases, police investigations determined that they died of natural causes, Nelson said. In the other cases, he said, inconclusive tests were conducted at hospitals in Syracuse, Albany and Boston.

You can ask why now after nine cases, but just about everyone who came in contact with the family over the years - the hospitals, doctors, social service workers - thought there was something suspicious," Nelson added. "But we just could not prove it scientifically. Funeral arrangements for all

Observers will see balloting, Lugar says

By R. GREGORY NOKES AP Diplomatic Writer

MANILA, Philippines — U.S. Sen. Richard Lugar said today that the Philippine government had reversed itself and will allow his 20-member group of pollwatchers to observe Filipinos casting ballots in Friday's presidential election.

Lugar, R-Ind., the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, and Rep. John Murtha, D-Pa., head the official U.S. observer team sent to monitor the election between President Ferdinand E. Marcos and Corazon Aguino.

Both sides have leveled accusations of cheating.

The Reagan administration has avoided taking sides in the hardfought contest, but has pressed Marcos, who has held power for 20 years, to ensure that the election is fair.

Lugar had been concerned over a ruling three weeks ago by the national Commission on Elections that foreign observers would have to remain at least 50 yards from polling places. It would have been virtually impossible for them to see anything at that distance.

The Indiana Republican said he would try to have the rule reversed. and after meeting today with election commission officials, said he had succeeded.

"We will have the ability to look at everything that our eyes can see, and at whatever close range we need to see it," Lugar said in a speech to the Manila Rotary Club. "We appre-

The election commission said the reversal of its previous ruling would apply only to Lugar's group. It rejected Thursday by a 7-2 vote a petition by foreign journalists to be allowed to observe the voting.

In his speech and in a questionand-answer session that followed, Lugar repeatedly denied that U.S. observers were meddling in Philippine affairs. A group of writers and artists signed an advertisement that appeared today in a pro-Marcos newspaper accusing Lugar of interference.

We come not as intruders, as busybodies trying to muddy the waters," Lugar said. "We come as good friends." He said "democratic countries look out for each other.'

The United States has absolutely no interest in interfering in this election," he said. He also volunteered that the observers "feel welcome" in the Philippines.

A group of about 20 demonstrators stood outside the entrance to the hotel where Lugar was speaking and displayed signs denouncing American businesses. One sign read, "U.S. Senator Lugar: Help Us In Our Fight Multinational With the Corporations."

After the speech, members of the U.S. delegation, which includes members of Congress and private citizens; broke into groups and dispersed throughout the Philippine archipelago in preparation for Friday's Lugar will travel by helicopter to the towns of Tarlac, San Fernando and Camp Olivas for what are said to be unannounced visits to individual polling places. He will return to Manila in the afternoon to observe the vote count.

Officials traveling with Lugar said they hope the outcome will be evident late Friday or noon Saturday at Lugar said in his Rotary Club speech that "there are few days in the life of any one country that are more important than Feb. 7 will be ... for this one." He praised the Philippines as "one of the greatest democracies our world has produced."

BUDGET

However, Miller and other top Reagan lieutenants said that it is premature to consider such a move, and that in any event the president remains firmly opposed to any form of tax increase.

If Congress and the president deadlock on spending this year as they did last year, automatic across-the-board cuts of around $40 billion will be triggered automatically next October under the new law.

Roagan hasn't ruled out a "fee" on imported oil, a gasoline tax, but only as part of a taxoverhaul bill that neither raises nor lowers overall taxes, not for deficit-reduction purposes, Reagan

We ought not to be talking about grand compromises," said Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III. "The president has...just submitted his budget.

Some are suggesting that it's dead on arrival. I the Union that calls for anything other than unrewould suggest that it simply is not."

The president's budget would cut, freeze in place or eliminate scores of federal domestic programs to meet the Gramm-Rudman requirement that the deficit, now above $200 billion for 1986, be reduced to $144 billion in the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1.

At the same time, the budget submitted on Wednesday calls for an increase in Pentagon spending authority of nearly 12 percent.

Miller was asked by Budget Committee members why defense spending showed such an increase, given Reagan's earlier vow to propose no more than a 3 percent hike in military spending authority on top of inflation.

It's a matter of semantics," Miller responded, producing sharp comments from members. "I see nothing in this budget or in the State of balanced budget.

mitting gloom," said Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La. "I just don't see where the dialogue starts, where the common ground is. It's a train wreck waiting to Senate Democrats released their own assessment of the president's budget on Wednesday. It contended that the president's deficit-reduction claims were based on "unreleastic economic assumptions. "Over the five-year period, the president's budget comes up $91.3 billion short" of achieving a balanced budget, said the Democratic study. By contrast, the administration claims the president's policies would lead to a $1.3 billion surplus by 1991.

Miller agreed the president's budget was strong medicine, but repeated the president's own claim that it would start the nation on the path toward a

Shuttle panel begins sorting mass of data

WASHINGTON (AP) - The focus on the Challenger disaster is swinging from search ships in the Atlantic Ocean to the nation's capital, where a presidential commission will use thousands of photographs, tons of debris and miles of computer tape to try to tell the full story of history's worst space accident.

The 12-member commission, headed by former Secretary of State William P. Rogers and onetime astronaut Neil Armstrong, was to determine what caused the fireball that killed six astronauts and schoolteacher Christa McAuliffe on Jan. 28 in the first in-flight disaster in 56

U.S. manned space missions.

The panel, which must report back to President Reagan in four months, was meeting today for the first time in the huge auditorium of the National Academy of Sciences. Investigators believe a spurt of flame at or near a seam on the right solid rocket booster triggered the explosion, sources at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration say.

Today's hearing provides the first substantive public information about the accident from NASA since Challenger exploded eight miles above the sea off Cape Canveral, Fla.

Scheduled witnesses include Jesse Moore, the director of the space shuttle program and the head of the interim board established immediately after the accident. "I think essentially they'll just make an overall presentation on the types of information they have been collecting and that type of general information on what has transpired since last week," NASA spokesman Mark Hess said Wednesday of his agency's testimony. "I don't think it will suggest a cause."

Two rocketry experts said Wednesday that freezing temperatures and the vibrations of launch could have combined to cause the

Gary Flandro of Georgia Institute of Technology and Herman Krier of the University of Illinois said the overnight subfreezing temperatures at the Kennedy Space Center prior to the launch could have caused temperature differences of 50 degrees or more between the inside and the outside of Challenger's two solid rocket booster engines.

Such a wide range of tempera-tures, they said, could have combined with the stress of vibration to cause a failure in the rocket's steel

Although the presidential commission is charged with conducting an independent investigation of the accident, NASA is expected to provide most of the technical expertise. Most of the commission's staff will be assembled from specialists within government, according to a commission source who spoke only on condition of anonymity.

Reagan's vision

hat Ronald Reagan brought to the Oval Office and the American people five years ago is still there as he begins his sixth year as President: A vision for the future in which the United States remains the leader of the Free World and a country whose people enjoy virtually unbounded opportunities.

More than anything else, Reagan has been responsible for revitalizing in Americans a can-do attitude about themselves and their nation. That spirit was in evidence in Reagan's State of the Union address Tuesday evening as he pledged to continue the fight for the same goals he went into office seeking - lower not higher taxation, reduced government interference in private lives and businesses, and help for those who truly need help.

Not that there aren't problems with bringing about the future Reagan visualizes. The federal deficit continues to plague the economic recovery. Unemployment continues as a serious dilemma and segments of the population — such as black Americans - still do not proceed up that "ladder of opportunity" on an equal basis.

Bringing about the world Reagan visualizes will not be easy nor painless. In his address, the President noted the deficit-cutting tool known as Gramm-Rudman-Hollings and touched on how it will help to bring down the startling deficit figure despite the screams. In so doing, it will give back to the American people the opportunity the defi-cit has helped to obliterate.

And there are other hopeful signs too, such as Reagan's proposal for a world monetary conference and a world safer from the nuclear threat. But the simple fact of the matter is that without a vision of what they are seeking, no people can hope to climb above the status quo.

Ronald Reagan again has helped Americans see clearly the future - and to realize that reaching it is within our abilities. That ability is essential for a leader of the Free World.

Death of a legend

ew individuals can go able in the knowledge that once gone, they will leave behind an indelible mark. One of those few, James Edgar Darnell. died Wednesday in Midland.

Known to most Midlanders as "Big Ed" Darnell, he will be remembered as the man who held the office of sheriff in Midland County for nearly four decades - from 1941 through 1976. That's an admirable feat in itself, but Darnell went one step further by being remembered not only as a long-serving public official but one who was professionally and personally commended for his work. He is remembered as a "gentle giant."

Administration hoping for Aquino win

ASHINGTON — Tomor-row's presidential election in the Philippines promises to be closer than Washington officials had expected, but they see little likelihood that President Ferdinand Marcos will relinquish his 20-year rule no matter how many votes are given to opposition candidate Corazon Aquino.

The fear is not, as some have suggested, that Marcos will invalidate the vote and declare marlaw. That's not his style. Instead, even the optimists concede, Marcos will brass and a small number of conservatives who believe in Marcos, the Reagan administration has made no secret of its hope that Mrs. Aquino somehow wins tomorrow.

Both the pro- and anti-Marcos factions have the same strategic considerations in mind: retention of the big U.S. bases at Subic Bay and Clark Field, and successful elimination of the communist guerrilla forces in

At the Pentagon, the fear is that Mrs. Aquino will close the U.S. bases as a sop to the leftists, and that she is too "soft on communism" to deal with the rebel threat.

At the State Department, the fear is that the rampant corruption of the Marcos regime and the economic ruin it has wrought will doom the fight against the communist rebels, who will seize power and kick the Americans out along with Marcos.

There is no disputing the fact that the misery quotient in the Philip-pines is high. While Marcos, his wife and their cronies live in luxury, the mass of Filipinos have a tough time just scratching for enough to eat.
The Philippines must now import rice, which it used to export.

"Sixty percent of the average Filipino family's resources are spent for food," reported a recent cable from our Manila embassy seen by our asso-ciate Lucette Lagnado. "Among poor families, up to 100 percent is being reported."

The principal victims are the very oung. "Children under the age of 5, from families at the lowest end of the economic scale, continue to be the most severely affected," the embassy cabled, adding that the situa-tion is "potentially disastrous."

One member of Congress who agrees with the State Department on the importance of solving the Philip-pines' economic crisis is Sen. John Melcher, D-Mont. The farm-state senator is furious that his efforts to get more food sent to the islands were misinterpreted by State Department officials, as a gesture of support for Marcos personally.

In a bluntly worded letter to Marcos, the senator reminded him of earlier meetings between the two. "I stressed the need to repair the severe economic conditions and the erosion of individual freedoms of the Filipino people," Melcher wrote.

Like Marcos, a wounded combat veteran of World War II, Melcher then proceeded to castigate the Philippines president for reinstating Gen. Fabian Ver as chief of staff after his acquittal on charges of com-plicity in the assassination of Corazon Aquino's husband, Benigno.

"Your reinstatement of Gen. Ver is, to me, incredible and can only be viewed as dictatorial and despotic, Melcher wrote.

UNDER THE DOME: Last year the House took a bold step toward truthin-publishing by ordering statements that had not actually been spoken on the House floor printed in boldface type in the Congressional Record. But the printers said frequent production problems resulted from the heavier ink required for the bold-face segments. So now the unspoken material appears in Helvetica type, different but no more attention-grabbing than the Ionic type used for "live" statements. Some skeptics suspect the real reason for the change was that the undelivered boldface material was upstaging the real thing.

SHUTTLE COINS: Among the artifacts lost in the destruction of the space shuttle Challenger were six newly minted coins - two half-dollars, two silver dollars and two $5 gold pieces — commemorating the centennial of the Statute of Liberty. The Treasury had planned to have teacher Christa McAuliffe show some of the coins when she visited schools across the country after the space trip. At least 9 million of the Liberty coins will be minted and sold as souvenirs. The Treasury hopes to raise up to $50 million from the sales to help finance restoration of the Statute of Liberty and Ellis Island.

MINI-EDITORIAL: In his continuing effort to wrap up the Republican presidential nomination before the race even starts, Vice President George "I'd grovel a mile for an endorsement" Bush recently truckled to the Rev. Jerry Falwell and his zealous followers. Their lobbying activities were admirable, Bush told the preacher and his parish, and he shared their views on just about any subject they could think up. Has anyone paused to consider that the only person Bush has dared to offend in recent weeks is Gov. Mario Cuomo of New York? Guess George figured he wasn't going to get Cuomo's vote anyway.

they like it or not. And we don't need to ask them what they want instead because we know." And: "I'm not going to build towers. No one wants to live in a tower."

But what begins as an idealistic venture in "building the new world" becomes, in maddeningly minute steps, the torture of a thousand cuts. Politics and bureaucracy and economics and society - in a word, reality - compel compromises that drive David toward building highrise towers. His cynical neighbor warns of "progressive collapse," a technical term for a form of disaster in tall buildings. In Frayn's hands the term has another meaning.

Frayn has not written anything so tiresome as a play "about" — heaven forfend — public housing. And it is not "Waiting for Righty," a Thatcher-era emulation of Clifford Odets' 'Waiting for Lefty," the paradigm of a play as a political cartoon featuring cardboard heroes and villains. Many political plays, like many political persons, are barren of ambiguity. Frayn's play is about ambiguity, about how personal relations and social actions have, in the end, unanticipated consequences, and how they have, at the beginning, unacknowledged motives.

Frayn has mastered the delicate art of making a point without preaching. "Benefactors" is primarily about the troubled marriages of two couples who become ruinously entangled as they try to "help" each other. However, the private and public situations become mutually reinforcing metaphors. Marriages are, Frayn says, like public words of architecture, plagued by unexpected complexities, changing conditions, defective materials.

Architecture has frequently been invested with political hopes; especially by behavioralists who believe that social nurturing can overcome human nature. They say: Reform the social environment and you will reform man. Urban renewal can evict

In the 1930s, a bright light of the literary left, W.H. Auden, wrote in a poem about "new styles of architecture, a change of heart." That thought now looks like a quaint stick of period furniture from a mentality that has all but vanished. (There actually are photographs of the collapse of liberalism - the 1972 dynamiting of St. Louis' huge Pruitt-Igoe public-housing project. It had be-come unliveable, a paradigm of giantism and overreaching by liberal social engineering.)

In "Benefactors" the reality principle is incarnate in David's wife Jane, played with icy force by Glenn Close. Jane is an anthropologist, a student rather than a savior of people: 'Look, I'm not trying to help anyone

I'm just trying to count them." For David, the retreat from "building high" is, in several senses, a matter of coming down to earth. When his neighbor says of architecture, "It must be wonderful to change things," he replies: "No, it's not, Sheila. It's heartbreaking. It's always just warped windows and condensation problems. It was going to be so new and amazing, and it never is, it's always just like everything else.'

th

The area he was supposed to benefit is called a "twilight area" - not a slum, "a bit gray and exhausted, that's all." And so, in the end, it remains, and David, the would-be benefactor, resembles it.

Frayn's conservatism is not Reaganite conservatism with a smiling face, conservatism singularly lacking in a tragic sense of life, gloomy only about government and cheerfully convinced that everywhere else - a.k.a., the "private sector" is a realm of harmony and limitlessness. Political stances often are products more of sensibilities than philosophies and Frayn's sensibility is of chastened hopefulness. It is sensibility congenial to an older conservatism.

In the 1960s Frayn was a wonderfully unenthralled columnist in 'swinging London" amidst the postimperial giddiness of Carnaby Street and pop music. Today "Benefactors' is playing next door to "Oh! Calcutta!," a soiled remnant of the 1960s, years when people were told to solve the problems of living by "getting in touch with their feelings." "Benefactors" performs conservatism's thankless task, saying: It's more complicated than that.

ART BUCHWALD look as important (though I agree it is terribly important). Midland Christa's legacy: Honor, respect for teachers

A zoo isn't merely cages I t was with some trepled a that I read a zoo is again going to exist in Cole Park. In 1974 a study was made of the existing Midland Zoo. In his letter to the Midland Parks Board, Laurence Curtis, a park plan zoo con-sultant, said, "Instead of imparting a reverance for the beauties of nature, citizens and visitors of Midland are being subjected to just the opposite. We believe that a community which fosters excellence in one cultural dimension would not knowingly perpetrate — or perpetuate — a retrogressive situation leading towards the dark ages of zoo keeping."

The zoo was further described as a collection of makeshift pens and cages that was poorly planned to meet the needs of the animals, keepers or viewers. It was called substandard by any zoological measure.

The modern zoo concept is one of naturalistic settings and hidden barriers, not cramped cages of bars and steel mesh.

A zoo is feasible for Midland as a study reported 10 years ago. A modern Midland zoo could be of great benefit to the Midland area. To again have animals at Cole Park because "it will make use of the cages we have," as Parks and Recreation Director George Logan states, is not a good reason for renewed use of the old cages.

Instead of trying to upgrade the current substandard cages why not strive for a totally new and modern facility, even if it takes 10 more years.

Art Buchwald did leave behind a wonderful legacy.

For the past 15 or 20 years, America's teachers could not have been held in lower esteem. They were un-derpaid, underrated and blamed for anything that went wrong with our schools.

It appeared the only time we saw teachers on TV was when they were on strike or arrested for child abuse. The perception was that teachers were people who taught because they couldn't make it in the real

Except for covering vandalism and crime in schools, the media ignored what was going on in the classroom. And with reason: if teachers were teaching, and students were learning, it wasn't news — that is until the destruction of Challenger.

Suddenly our schools received more attention than they have ever been given before. Seven brave people died that morning, but it was the death of a schoolteacher that made our children cry.

When the TV cameras entered the nation's classrooms to record their grief, we saw principals and teachers fighting back their own tears as they tried to comfort the students.

The cameras not only focused on teachers but also panned to the agonized faces of the students. They showed teacher to pupil and pupil to teacher - and in that moment of sadness we witnessed the educational process at its best.

When these pictures came into our homes we were reminded of something we tend to take for granted: the role teachers quietly play in the lives of children.

The lesson was not just for grownups. You had the feeling that the students had gained a new respect for teachers as well.

It went something like this. 'Christa was a teacher, and Christa died in space, but it could have been anybody's teacher - including

So what was Christa McAuliffe's

When Sputnik went up and we re-was dropped as our No. 1 priority.

At least it was until last week. After that one horrifying moment in Florida, things changed again. The parent-teacher-pupil bond that had been fraying for a generation seemed to be joined again.

Christa McAuliffe's gift to us is not in the skies but here on earth. From everything you can read, she was a teacher before she went up and she intended to be a teacher when she returned. In death her legacy is to give her fellow professionals new dignity and honor. Thanks to Christa, each one of them can say with pride, "I'm a teacher too."

Undercover life reveals abuse of elderly in U.S.

WEST WINDSOR TOWNSHIP. N.J. (AP) — When Patricia Moore went undercover in 1979 as an 85year-old woman, she hoped to find out what it was like to be elderly in America.

She said she emerged from her gray wig and wrinkled makeup three years later, physically scarred, emotionally battered, incredulous at the way she was treated and determined to alter the way the country views its elderly.

Ms. Moore, 33, said the elderly are portrayed as "slow, poor, wrinkled, (with) snow on their rooftops, cranky, crotchety and doddering. They're lovable, adorable and bake chocolate-chip cookies.'

She wrote a book, "Disguised: A True Story," about her experience and carried her message Wednesday to the annual Eastern Regional Conference sponsored by the Gerontology Institute of New Jersey.

"This is a Darwinian society, survival of the fittest," said Ms. Moore. "If you are not fit, get out of the way. Age bias is widespread in the United States, she said, adding that only by a dramatic change in attitudes and the erosion of stereotypes can the elderly begin to be treated fairly. We are a country built on image and label," she said. Ms. Moore said she was working in a products design firm in New York City in 1979 when she became increasingly frustrated with the company's unwillingness to design products with the elderly in mind.

"We were literally putting things in our society that didn't work for old people," she said.

She chose a gray wig and makeup, plugged her ears, wore semi-opaque glasses, put splints on her legs to restrict her movement and wore clothing to create three elderly characters: a shopping-bag lady, a middleincome woman and a dowager.

Ms. Moore said she traveled to 14 states, walking the streets of more than 100 cities, eating at restaurants, living in motels and hotels and visiting convalescent homes.

Everywhere, she said, she encountered people who wouldn't open doors for her, restaurateurs who ignored her, transportation systems that don't accommodate the elderly and shop owners who shortchanged

She was mugged twice in New York City, she said. The first time, she was knocked unconscious and her purse was stolen. The second time, she was attacked by a gang of youths who severely beat her.

Ms. Moore said she discovered that the bus and train systems from New York City to New Jersey are not designed to easily accommodate eldercommuters who have difficulty walking or seeing.

She said she emerged in 1982 as a person with two psyches: one, a young professional, virtually unscathed by society, and another, an abused, neglected and cheated octogenarian.

The first step in combatting the biases, she said, is to recognize that everyone is aging, and that the elderly, like others, have different abilities and inabilities.

Another way, she said, is to eliminate the popular and inaccurate images of the elderly created by Hollywood and Madison Avenue. A third way, with which she is professionally involved, is to tailor products that don't require the dexterity or strength of a younger or healthier person to operate.

Cooler days to continue

From Staff and Wire Reports

Cooler temperatures are expected to continue in the Permian Basin area through Friday as forecasters predict temperatures to drop to a wintery mid-40 degrees, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

Tonight will be mostly cloudy with temperatures reaching a low in the middle 30s. Winds will be variable at five to 15 mph. Mostly cloudy conditions will continue Friday as forecasters predict a 20 percent chance of showers and a high in the mid-40s. Northeasterly winds will blow at 10 to 20 mph.

Wednesday's high of 58 was 20 degrees below the 1951 record of 78. This morning's low was 19 degrees above the 1982 record of 11.

STATE Fast-moving thunderstorms that spawned tornadoes, hail and high winds in eastern Texas began moving out of the state early today, leaving seasonably cool temperatures and slowly clearing skies in their wake.

Four tornadoes that ripped through the Houston area on Wednesday killed one person and injured at least 44, leaving behind a trail of fallen power lines and tattered houses and buildings.

In Dallas, a teen-ager was swept by high water into a storm drain and through a mile of drainage pipe but suffered only minor injuries. David Burke, 15, said he was pulled into a northside drainage pipe during Wednesday's storm and rescued himself from the pipe near a sewage treatment plant.

The strong upper-level disturbance associated with the severe weather and heavy rain moved into Arkansas this morning. The National Weather Service said a weak cold front trailed along the Red River into the Panhandle but made little difference in the weather.

Snow hampered travel across broad sections of the West today and three states had tornado watches as rain stretched from Texas across the South and into the Midwest.

Snow ranged from southwestern North Dakota across northeast Kansas; from Montana through Utah and Colorado; and across Idaho, eastern Oregon and northwest Nevada. Snow also was widely scattered across the mid-Mississippi Valley.

Rain and thunderstorms stretched from northeast Texas across southeastern Oklahoma, the lower Mississippi Valley, Mississippi, southern Alabama, southern Georgia, the Florida Panhandle and northern Florida. Light rain dotted Indiana and northern Ohio.

Pro stars set for tennis exhibition

No. 2 McEnroe takes on No. 6 Noah

By ERIC SCHURER Sports Writer

It's showtime at Chaparral Center, and at center stage are two of the greatest tennis players of the '80s.

Tennis superstar John McEnroe returns to the Tall City for a second appearance tonight in an exhibition match with French champion Yannick Noah, beginning at approximately 8:30

Although Mats Wilander, the world's No. 3 ranked player was scheduled to appear tonight, a death in his family has caused the Swede to return to his home.

In Noah, McEnroe has found a quality re-placement for his Tennis Over America tour stops this week. The 25-year-old Noah was hailed as a French hero when he became the first Frenchman to win the French Open in 27 years in 1983.

After struggling in 1984, Noah was named the Comeback Player of the Year last season, thanks to his three tour championships in the Italian Open, the D.C. National Bank Classic and the Grand Prix de Toulouse. Noah is ranked sixth in the world going into the 1986 season.

MCENROE FELL from his two-year perch as the top player in the world last season to No. 2. He is currently on a self-imposed break from the Grand Prix tour, but is likely to return later

Noah-McEnroe will play a best of three sets format. From Midland, the pair will be off to Salt Lake City, Utah, for another tour stop. Williams to the city of the control of the city of lander is scheduled to return to the Tennis Over America Tour for stops in Sacramento, Calif., and San Diego, at the end of the week.

The feature match will begin after a pair of Future Stars doubles matches featuring Midland College players begins at 7 p.m. The feature is expected to begin about 8:30 p.m.

Barry Stephens, tennis pro at the Midlander, will sit in the umpire's chair, while Midland College tennis players will be the line judges.

IN THE warm up matches prior to the main event, several players from the nationally ranked Midland College team will show their stuff to the crowd.

In the first match, the No. 2 ranked women's junior college doubles pair of Heiene Lebeller of France and Sarah Swan of South Africa will face the No. 5 ranked JC team of Moniek Margaroli of Holland and Helen Schildknecht of Switzerland. All four MC players are ranked in the top 20 in singles going into this spring's

Following the women's doubles, is a men's doubles match featuring MC's Emil Bijleveld and Mike Oosterveen, both from Holland, against Eric Lingg and Jos Warmoes, both of Both doubles matches will be played to four games, but they must win by two. A tiebreaker will result if the match is tied at four games.

IN THE celebrity doubles following the McEnroe-Noah match, Steve Brannan and McEnroe will team up against Jack Wood and Noah in the first match. Then it will be KMID's Mary Katherine Matthews and McEnroe against Brian Woods, also of KMID, and Noah. Each celebrity match will consist of two games.

Tickets for tonight's event are available at the Chaparral Center box office and are priced $20

Chaps gun for record win streak

From Staff Reports

ROSWELL, N.M. - Midland College will be shooting for a new single-season consecutive game winning streak tonight against the New Mexico Military Institute Cadets here in a Western Junior College Athletic Conference game.

The Chaps are 24-0, tying the old record against New Mexico Junior College with an 88-85 win at the Chaparral Center Monday night. If MC wins tonight, it will take out after the overall record of 29 straight ter the overall record of 29 straight by an MC team. That was set in 1983 when the Chaps followed their 24 in a row to a national championship with five more wins the following

In the first game at Midland, MC won 70-57, but it's a different game in Roswell, where the vocal student body becomes a factor.

Coach Jerry Stone, who has an uneasy feeling every time he travels to Roswell, probably would rather be playing some place else since his Chaps have been in a "tailspin" as far as the national rankings are concerned, skidding from second to a tie for fourth despite beating South Plains College and NMJC, albeit by clean today)," Rutigliano said.

Rutigliano's voyage into drug reform seems worth examining for a simple reason. It worked. No other football team that I know of, with the possible exception of the Raiders, is claiming any such one-sided victory over demon toot.

ALSO, THE big issue in drug reform seems to be whether or not to test, and Rutigliano has a pretty clear opinion. "You need the cups," he said. The cup, he said, was a vital factor in starting Charles White on the road to recovery from drug dependency Still, the prevailing opinion of many athletes and all of the player unions is that drug testing is a violation of civil rights and that it's dehumanizing. Funny. A football player will cheerfully give up his right to sleep with his wife for weeks at a time, his right to sport certain haircuts, his right to wear anything but a company-issue team blazer, his right to stay up past midnight. But ask him to uri-

Sports Opinion

In fact, the only sport in which testing is that it presumes guilt, the opposite of our judicial process. That's like arguing that a roadside breath test presumes guilt. What the drunk-driving tests and the drug tests do, when suspicion arises, is measure the participant's competence to perform up to par in an activity that affects a lot of other participants.

I'm convinced that if the issue were put to a secret vote of teamsport players tonight, there would be universal testing tomorrow. Players want to win.

Spencer Haywood, a forward for the Lakers in 1979-80, was suspended during the playoffs that season after ing asleep during team calisthenics. No drug rap was ever pinned on Haywood, but his actions raised

The other Lakers voted Haywood a pittance of a playoff share. One Laker, not exactly a goody-goody type, said, "Spencer let us down when we needed him."

Forget about kiddie role models and league PR problems. Drugs are a team problem, because they can get in the way of winning ball games.

AN UNUSUAL feature of the Browns' Inner Circle problem is that it involves the non-druggies as well as the users. On any team, you will have at least a few veterans working to convince the younger players that doing dope is cool. You need a couple of other veterans to present the argument that not doing dope is cool. "The problem is, a lot of straight guys and gais don't want to have anything to do with it (an anti-drug program)," Rutigliano said. "They have to have something to do with it.

You take the straight people and you start to chip away (at the problem)."

In the Inner Circle program, there is no moralizing, only educating. Moralizing, it turns out, is effective only on non-users. Also, anonymity is stressed. "Of the 11 we sent to a rehab center. Charlie White was the only one who lost his anonymity, and that was because he came to Orange County (in Southern California)," Rutigliano said. "He might as well have put it on the side of the Goodyear blimp. But that might have been for the best, because Charlie responds best to

Lee, MHS girls face key battles

By ERIC SCHURER Sports Writer

The stage is set in District 4-5A girls basketball, and on Friday the drama of a pair of Tall City teams will unfold. For Midland Lee, it's the drama of history and a perfect 14-0 district record, a feat never accom-plished since varsity play began in 1976-77. For Midland High, it is the drama of survival, pure and simple. On Friday, the final curtain in the district will rise when the Bulldogs, tied for the runner-up slot with Abilene, host winless Abilene Cooper at 8 p.m. in the MHS gym. The Rebels will lock horns with the the Eagles in Abilene in a game that has serious repercussions for MHS.

An MHS win Friday would assure the Bulldogs of at least a second-place tie, and a possible playo with AHS for the final playoff berth. The best possible finale for the Tail City hopefuls is a Lee win over the Eagles. That would grant the wishes of both MHS coach Jane Young, and Lee mentor Shirley Stephenson.

"WE SURE would like to have that position of runner-up, it would sure be nice to have two Midland teams representing the district in the MHS reached the playoffs was in 1982-83.

"For a while it looked like we completely knocked out of it, so we're just thankful to be right back in it," Young continued. "We sure would appreciate it if Lee High would go down to Abilene and play a good ball game. Luckily for us, Lee has the undefeated deal going for them. It gives them even more to play for."

when facing Cooper, however. The Cougars have won only one game all season, however, and MHS walked all over them on their home floor earlier this year, 68-40. "We're confident going in to the weekend, we feel we will win — unless we fall on our faces,"

The Bulldogs must guard against overconfidence

Young said. IF BOTH MHS and AHS win Friday, not only would Lee's perfect district season be wiped out, but it would force a one-game, winner take-all playoff Monday night between the Bulldogs and Eagles. Losses by both second-place teams would also necessitate a playoff for the runner-up spot.

On the other hand, Lee's playoff future is set, or nearly set as the charmions of Affa. the Pabels.

nearly set. As the champions of 45A, the Rebels know they will play the runner-up in 3-5A - either layoffs," Young said. The only time both Lee and Lubbock Monterey or Plainview. Monterey and Plainview are both tied for second place in 3-5A with identical 13-2 records and play each other Friday night. The winner of that game wins the bidistrict date with Lee. On the season, Monterey is 21-4 and Plainview is 19-6. Monterey defeated Midland High last year in the bi-district playoffs.

Whichever team emerges from the MHS-Abilene deadlock, will face the 3-5A champ, Amarillo High. The Sandies have already completed their season with a 15-1 district winning mark and a 22-2 season

First, the Rebels would like to make a little history with an unprecedented 14th straight district win. The first time around, Lee thumped the Ea-gles 71-45 in what Stephenson still calls Lee's best ame of the year.

"WE'RE REALLY facing a challenge on Friday, we know that Abilene High is a very good team," Stephenson said. "I won't have to say anything to our players, they'll get themselves up for the game, they know what's at stake."

The stakes are definitely high in this final act of the girls district season. Lee and MHS are just hoping they will both be around for the curtain calls.

Mariners' Alvin Davis first to lose arbitration case

Associated Press

First baseman Alvin Davis of the Seattle Mariners, the 1984 American League Rookie of the Year, has become the first major leaguer to lose his salary arbitration case this year.

The Mariners said Wednesday that an arbitrator ruled that Davis would receive the $400,000 offered by the club, rather than the $550,000 he was seeking

Meanwhile, several other arbitration-bound players settled their contracts, without going to arbitra-tion. They included pitchers Charlie Hudson of Phil-adelphia, Mike Smithson of Minnesota and Bob Walk of Pittsburgh, outfielder Dave Henderson of Seattle, infielder-outfielder Nick Esasky of Cincinnati, and catcher Dann Bilardello of Montreal.

Esasky signed for one year, while the length of the contracts for the other players was not known.

Still headed for arbitration were all eight of the players seeking $1 million or more.

The list, with scheduled hearing dates, includes third baseman Wade Boggs of Boston, $1.85 million, Feb. 21; pitcher Fernando Valenzuela of Los Angeles, $1.7 million, Feb. 15; outfielder Tim Raines of Montreal, $1.7 million, Feb. 20; first baseman Don Mattingly of the New York Yankees, $1.5 million, Feb. 18; pitcher Dwight Gooden of the New York Mets, $1.5 million, Feb. 18; pitcher John Tudor of St. Louis, $1.2 million, Feb. 14; catcher Rich Gedman of Boston, $1 million, Feb. 17, and pitcher Orel Hershiser of Los Angeles, $1 million, Feb. 10.

shiser of Los Angeles, $1 million, Feb. 10. In 1984, Davis batted 284 with 116 runs batted in, including 13 game-winning RBI in 1984, and 27 home runs for Seattle. Last year, he hit 287 with 78 RBI, including seven game-winners, and 18 homers.

He was the first of seven Seattle players scheduled for arbitration. The others included outfielder Phil Bradley, pitchers Roy Thomas, Mike Moore and Mark Langston, and catcher Bob Kearney.

Henderson also had been scheduled for arbitration, but he settled with the club. He was asking for $442,500, while the Mariners were offering $360,000. Last year, Henderson batted 241 with two homers and 14 RBI.

Hudson, a right-hander, posted an 8-13 record with a 3.78 ERA for the Phillies in 1985. Hudson, who earned $192,500 last year, reportedly was asking for $330,000 for 1986, while the team was offering Smithson, also a right-hander, was 15-14 with a 4.34 ERA with Minnesota in 1985. After earning $335,000 last season, he reportedly was seeking $575,000 this year, while the Twins were offering $400,000.

Bilardello, a non-roster player with Montreal, spent last season with Cincinnati. He batted .167 with one home run and nine runs batted in as a part-time player. He earned $60,000 in 1965, and reportedly was asking for $100,000 for 1966. Reportedly, the Expos were offering $70,000.

Exasky, who split last season between third base and the outfield for Cincinnati, hit .262 with 21 homers, second-highest on the team, and 66 RBI in 125 games in 1985. He reportedly was asking for a

5-7 Webb to show 'em jamming

By BARRY WILNER AP Sports Writer

As All-Star games go, the National Basketball Association presentation is one of the most entertaining. It's a chance for the players to show off their individual skills, which are considerable, as well as try some things they only wish they could do during the season.

A three-point shot from 25 feet by Kareem Abdul-Jabbar? A behind-the-back dribble by Moses Malone? A slam dunk by Spud Webb?

Wait a minute. Sure Kareem could probably throw one down from 25, most likely with a sky hook. And Moses has enough dexterity to show off with the dribble. But the 5-foot-7 Webb, a rookie with the Atlanta Hawks, jamming?

Actually, Webb, the former college star who helped lead Midland College to a national title and North Carolina State to the NCAA playoffs, is not an All-Star, so you won't see him live on CBS this Sunday from Dallas. But he is one of the competitors in the slam dunk championship, which will be held Saturday in Reunion Arena and televised during a two-hour "NBA All-Star Saturday" show on Turner Broadcasting

Also on view from Dallas will be the league's top long-range shooters — Larry Bird, Trent Tucker, Norm Nixon and Dale Ellis, for instance — who will go at it in the long distance shootout. And an oldtimers game will feature Bob Cousy, John Havlicek, Oscar Robertson, Elvin Hayes, Walt Frazier, Nate Thurmond and many other past greats in a 40-minute game.

TBS' show will air at 9:05 p.m. CST. The proceedings will occur during the afternoon, allowing producer Skip Ellison and his crew plenty of time to weave the elements into a tight, two-hour show.

The program starts with the oldtimers game, followed by the long distance shootout and slam dunk," says Ellison, who also produces Atlanta Braves baseball and Southeastern Conference football for TBS. "We'll tape them and edit and rearrange it into a two-hour show.

We'll open with the first round of the slam dunk, go to the first half of the oldtimers game, the second round of the dunk, the second half of the oldtimers, then the championship round of the dunk. We'll fit in the long distance, but we're not sure where.

Skip Carey and Boston Celtics President Red Auerbach will handle commentary of the oldtimers game. Bill Russell, usually one of TBS's announcers, will coach one of the teams and Johnny Kerr will coach the other. Both of them will be wearing microphones. This is the second year Ellison has produced the slam dunk contest. lar dunks," he explains. "When you watch eight when people said I'd never make it.

guys dunk three times apiece, it gets to look the same. This way, the viewer gets to see the highlights and who advances.

The fans get pretty wrapped up in it, no matter who is involved. Last year in Indianapolis, at the last minute Charles Barkley withdrew. The NBA inserted Terence Stansbury of the Pacers. He's a player not many people know of but he was spectacular.

"It's a traft the lesser-known players have that they really go all out and put on a great show."

Which means plenty of helicopter slams, reverse two-handers and rim-crunchers. The one-time king of the dunkers, Julius Erving, will be on hand and Ellison hopes to entice Dr. J into joining the broadcast team for the finals.

Who are the wham-bam-slam-jammers to watch this year?

"Dominique Wilkins is the defending champion," says Ellison. "Some of the lesser-known guys are Jerome Kersey of Portland, Paul Pressey of Milwaukee and Roy Hinson of Cleveland."

And Spud Webb, who will be competing in his

"It's exciting to go back to Dallas," Webb said. There will be a lot of people there who supported me when I was younger. There will also be some people there who thought I'd never make it in basketball. That will make me feel good, to be "By editing it down, we cut out the less-spectcu- competing against the best dunkers in the game

Quintin Dailey has two strikes in shaking drug habit

CHICAGO (AP) - Quintin Dailey of the Chicago Bulls has two strikes on him in his efforts to shake a drug habit which has almost destroyed his career in the National Basketball Association.

Dailey, who missed Tuesday night's 117-115 loss to Detroit, voluntarily entered a drug rehabilitation center Wednesday for a second time

Shortly after learning what happened, Bulls General Manager Jerry Krause issued a statement that "Dailey was suspended without pay and has voluntarily gone forward and entered an NBA drug rehabilitation center, in accordance with the NBA drug agreement with the players association.

"If," the statement added, "after his release from the current stay in the center he violates NBA drug statutes for a third time, he will be barred from the NBA for a minimum of two years."

Gary Bettman, general counsel for the NBA, said Dailey had entered the Van Nuys, Calif., Community Hospital, the same facility in which he was treated earlier this season. Dailey had entered the hospital last fall for 31 days, missing 13 games, before returning to action

Bettman added "how long he'll be there (this time) will be determined by the counselors."

His latest escapade began several hours prior to the start of the game against Detroit. A mystery woman, identifying herself as Louise Stafford, called team trainer Mark Pfeil saying Dailey's automobile had a flat tire on Interstate 290.

That was the last heard from Dailey, who also missed Wednesday's

Dayton's Flyers sting No. 14 Irish

In this case, the "how" wasn't as important as the "what."

Wednesday night, Dayton built a 37-34 halftime lead, then hung on to beat 14th-ranked Notre Dame 67-65 on the clutch free-throw shooting of freshman guard Migele Knight. Dayton Coach Don Donoher said

'the executing of our offense was very, very good" in the first half, but starting in the second half we got a little quick on the trigger. "I don't know how, but we got the lead and somehow we managed to score. But we didn't look very fluid." Dayton hit eight straight free throws, including six by Knight, in the final minute to keep Notre Dame at arm's length. Ed Young led the Flyers, 13-8, with 20 points, and freshman guard Mark Stevenson had a career-high 23 for the Irish, 144. No. 5 Oklahoma 106, Okla. St. 84 Tim McCalister led six players in double figures with 24 points, and Oklahoma ran off to a 65-39 lead over Oklahoma State early in the second half en route to its 46th consecutive homecourt victory. The Sooners are 21-1 and 6-1 in the Big Eight.

Oklahoma went on a 10-2 run to take a 21-4 lead with 14:01 left in the first half, then led by 16 at halftime. Andre Ivy led Oklahoma State with

No. 6 Kansas 100, Colorado 64 Danny Manning scored 14 of his 20 points in the first six minutes as Kansas routed Colorado and set a record for consecutive victories at Allen Fieldhouse. The victory was the 29th in a row for the Jayhawks at their 30year-old home.

Colorado has lost 20 straight Big Eight road games.

Kansas, 21-3 and 6-1 in the conference, led by no less than 25 points in the second half. Cedric Hunter had seven assists for 175 on the season, five more than the team record by Darnell Valentine in 1978-79.

Wingate had 16 of his points in the second half, during which the Hoyas ran off 12 straight points. Connecticut trailed by only two, however, with seven minutes left, before the Hoyas pulled away.

Earl Kelley paced Connecticut with 22 points.

No. 12 Kentucky 73, Vanderbilt 65 James Blackmon scored a careerhigh 22 points and led Kentucky over Vanderbilt with two key baskets in the final five minutes of the Southeastern Conference game. Kentucky improved to 19-3 and an SEC-leading 10-1.

Vanderbilt reduced a 10-point Kentucky lead to a 53-53 tie with 9:36 left after outscoring the Wildcats 16-6. Blackmon hit a bakset with 1:33 left to give the Wildcats a 64-58 lead. Darrell Dulaney led Vanderbilt with 19 points.

No. 20 Alabama 57, Georgia 54 Buck Johnson hit a 13-foot hook shot with 24 seconds left to put Alabama ahead by five points, then blocked a shot by Georgia's Joe Ward that could have pulled the Bulldogs within one on the last play of the SEC game. Johnson, returning from a four-game layoff with a bruised thigh, had 14 points, and Terry Coner had 15.

In other SEC games, John Williams scored 24 points to lead Louisiana State over Mississippi State, 68-62. Eric Smith scored 18 points and had nine rebounds to lead Mississip-

"Walton is a hungry player, hungry for a championship," said Washington veteran Dan Roundfield. "He gave them the spark in the third period. He dominated the boards and Bird, playing like he always does, broke open the game."

The Celtics admittedly were sluggish before putting away the game with a 14-4 run in the final four minutes of the third period. "This game was not easy," Walton said. "However, if it was easy it wouldn't be any fun. You know. teams are not coming in here and dying. Everyone plays us tough. However, we don't worry about the opposition. We just concentrate on playing our game and playing hard."

Scott Wedman, filling in for injured Kevin McHale up front with Bird and Parish, scored 15 points and guard Danny Ainge contributed 11. Veteran sharpshooter Dennis Johnson played 27 minutes, but finished scoreless. He didn't take a single shot - from the floor or the free throw line. While extending their longest winning streak since an 18-0 run in February and March, 1982, the Celtics hiked their home record for the season to 22-1 with their fourth consecutive victory over Washington. They hit the All-Star Game break with a 38-8 record, best in the league. It also is the same mark they had after 46 games last season, when they topped the NBA with 63 victories.

The difference in this team and last year is our depth," Parish said, noting Wedman, Walton and newcomer Jerry Sichting. "We're stronger at ev-

Lions get treatment

DETROIT (AP) - The Detroit Lions have placed several players in treatment programs for drug dependency, although owner William Clay Ford says the National Football League club has no major drug problems.

Ford said more than one player was placed in the programs. He declined to disclose the number of players involved or when the rehabilitation was "I've got to respect confidentiality," Ford told

The Detroit News in today's editions. "We sent them to treatment centers, and, I might add, with them to treatment centers, and, I might add, with very little fanfare and very good end results.

"I'd like to give them a shot at rehabilitation and see how things work from that," he said. "And saying that, you've got to distinguish from a user and a pusher. Somebody pushing the stuff — I'm afraid I don't have much use for that. But if somebody gets hooked, I'm all for helping him."

Ford made his comments this week in the wake of disclosures by management of the New England Patriots that several Patriots players had been treated for drug dependency. The players' names were made public following the Patriots' 46-10 loss to the Chicago Bears in the Super Bowl.

Ford told the newspaper that the Lions' problems with players with a drug dependency was minor.

"I have no indication that we have a major prob-lems of any kind," Ford said.

Ford also said he favors mandatory testing of all NFL employees and players for drug use.

Hernandez waits on ruling

Ueberroth holds key to future

By JOSEPH DURSO New York Times News Service

NEW YORK — Three weeks before spring training, Keith Hernandez says, it's like waiting for the other

He was one of 24 baseball players summoned to interviews last month by Commissioner Peter Ueberroth because they were involved or implicated in drug use. He believes Ueberroth will take some action imminently. But he has no idea whether he will be fined, sus-pended or punished in some other way.

And, after a curious winter of traveling and monitor-ing people's reactions, he also has no idea if his popularity or even his career are in jeopardy.

"I don't know what's going to happen," the 32-yearold first baseman for the Mets said the other day, breaking a long silence on the drug case. "The interview itself wasn't a painful experience. I didn't feel pinned to the wall. I saw a genuine concern there.

"I can't say if my career is in jeopardy. I've been surprised this winter at the people I've met around the country — their positive response. Whatever happens, I believe it will be a support to the country in the country is a support to the country in the country in the country in the country is a support to the country in the countr nothing I can't handle."

But Hernandez does not deny that his world has changed since he testified last September in the federal trial on cocaine dealings in the Pittsburgh area. Testifying under immunity, as the other players did, he said that he had used cocaine over a three-year period when he played for the St. Louis Cardinals.

THEY TRADED him to the Mets for Neil Allen on June 15, 1983 and it was a disastrous trade for the Cardinals. They gave up a former batting champion who went on to become a star and team leader with the Mets; they got an ace relief pitcher who failed to make it with the Cardinals and was eventually traded to the Yankees last year.

The trade also exposed a feud between Hernandez and Whitey Herzog, the manager of the Cardinals, who has sniped at Hernandez over his attitude and his work habits. The feud reached a peak last September after Hernandez testified in the cocaine trial.

"I can't let it bother me, what people think," Hernandez said. "I can't let it be my No. 1 pursuit. I didn't get booed badly — a few people in St. Louis, almost in the same vein as hometown fans getting on a visiting

"Since the season ended, I've done a lot of traveling," he said. "I went to Florida, where I have a condominium. In November, I took the Met fans' cruise to the Caribbean. In December, I went to Hawaii for the Players Association meetings. On the way back, I saw my folks in San Francisco. I saw my kids in St. Louis over Christman In January. I want to Aspen with my agent. Christmas. In January, I went to Aspen with my agent for a winter carnival, and later to New Orleans for the Super Bowl — an annual thing for me.

"No, I haven't been hiding. And I don't feel abandoned by anybody. There'll be enough attention when spring training starts. The longer you play, particularly in this town, the more attention you can be sure of. And it has nothing to do with the problems in my life right now."

The problems in his life include a bitter and costly divorce, separation from his three daughters, the pub-lic embarrassment over admitting that he had used cocaine and the uncertainty over what action might be taken by the commissioner.

Hernandez is still working under a long-term contract that pays him $1.7 milion a year, but some of the glow may be gone from his image as a hero who could lead the Mets to victory over the Cardinals and their

UEBERROTH'S OFFICE maintained its silence on the interviews, and even declined to confirm that they had been held. But it was known that 22 players of the 24 called met individually with the commissioner in the presence of an officer or lawyer for the Players Association and that the interviews were now completed.

If the Mets were to lose Hernandez through a suspension, even briefly, they would lose their most consistent hitter and their Gold Glove first baseman. Last season, he hit .309 in 158 games, knocked in 91 runs and led the major leagues with a record total of 24 game-winning runs batted in. He made only four errors in 1,453 chances in the field, ranked sixth in the league in hitting and eighth in hits with 183.

Peering through his own uncertainty, Hernandez envisioned another tight race against the Cardinals. He predicted they would make another trade to replace Joaquin Andujar, who pitched 41 victories the last two years but was traded to the Oakland A's in December for a starting catcher, Mike Heath.

SI hits streets with suit issue

NEW YORK (AP) — Sports Illustrated's annual swimsuit issue arrived on newsstands Wednesday, and editor Mark Mulvoy says the cover photo is the sexiest yet.

The magazine's 23rd swimsuit cover features Elle Macpherson modeling a deep-V suspender back tank suit on a beach in the south Pacific island of Bora-Bora.

Appearances on the swimsuit cover are thought to have en-hanced the modeling careers of Christie Brinkley and Cheryl Tiegs, both three-time swimsuit cover girls. Paulina Porizkova, who appeared on the cover for the last two years, has become one of the nation's top models. SI expects to sell about 800,000 copies of the issue, eight times normal newsstand sales for the weekly publication. It also expects more than $12 million in revenue, about $1 million more than last year and $7 million more than an average issue.

And it is sure to get the usual angry letters from readers protesting the photos in a magazine of general circulation. Every year, dozens of "cancel my subscription" letters are printed in the ensuing issues.

But two other seeded players

Westphal 7-6, 4-6, 7-6 in a three-hour battle, and No. 12 Jan Gunnarsson was defeated by John Lloyd 6-1, 6-2. Edberg, the tournament's second seed, won the first set of his featured match with Leach, 6-4, although Leach challenged the defending champion in the first four games. After Leach won the first game of the second set on a contested line call, the Ann Arbor, Mich., athlete told chair umpire Leon Lipp that he was unable to continue.

"I had a shoulder that didn't want to function off my backhand and serve," Leach said later. He said he had been bothered by a painful shoulder for about a week.

The pain became worse, he said, as the match progressed.

"I would have embarassed myself," he said. "I felt bad. There's been a lot of defaults in tennis lately, and now it's me."

Edberg said he preferred playing to winning by forfeit.

"It was not great," he said. "I was winning, that's what counts."
The Westphal-Smid meeting was a near-repeat of their marathon Davis Cup match in October. Westphal won that match, 6-8, 1-6, 7-5, 11-9, 17-15. There are no tie-breakers in Davis

Smid was leading 5-3 in the third set Wednesday night when Westphal

"It's a strange thing, you know," Lloyd said. "Sometimes you get in the warmup and you know you are going to play well. Today, just in that warmup — four minutes or whatever — I was hitting every ball perfectly. I didn't know I was going to win, but I knew I was going to play well."

Oil future prices on the New York Mercantile Exchange took an upturn Wednesday, fueled by rumors that OPEC will meet again with British and Norwegian oil ministers, and concilliation on production will be discussed.

AUSTIN, Minn. (AP) — Little progress was reported after the first meeting in three weeks between Hormel officials and leaders of a 51/4-

The strikers, meanwhile, planned to march today on the Geo. A. Hormel & Co. plant despite a court order barring large gatherings there and despite the presence of 100 National Guard troops.

In another development, Hormel officials said Wednesday the company is offering a reward of up to $10,000 for information leading to the arrest and indictment of those responsible for a letter threatening sabotage of company products.

The announcement came as Law rence G. Lawler, head of the Minneapolis office of the FBI, said the agency was increasing its involvement in an investigation of more than 40 instances of tampering with Hormel products in Twin Cities area stores since late last month.

Strike leaders have disavowed any connection with the product tampering, calling it a form of terrorism.

Neither company nor union officials have been optimistic about the prospects for the talks, but Hormel Senior Vice President Chuck Nyberg said: "Anytime you have a meeting, you hope to have some type of breakthrough.

will be greater than $10 billion in 1966 if crude oil prices hang at their current levels, said John Hagens, a vice president of Chase Econometrics Inc., in Bala Cynwyd, Pa.

On Wednesday, the price of oil in the open market rose from the seven-year lows of the previous day. Maen-year lows of the previous day. Major grades of crude from the United States and the North Sea, which were falling toward $15 a barrel

Tuesday, hovered around $16.

"I take this as very good news. It gives us management problems, but on balance it is very good news," said Robert Lawrence, senior fellow at the Brookings Institution in Wash-

Each $5 drop in the price of a bar-rel of crude oil means a gain of six-tenths of 1 percent in U.S. economic output and a 1 percent reduction in consumer prices, estimates Data Resources Inc., a forecasting firm in Lexington, Mass.

To reflect the downward spiral in spot markets, Data Resources and Chase Econometrics reworked their 1986 economic forecasts last week using lower projections for oil prices. Consumers should see the benefit of cheaper crude not only in cheaper gasoline and heating oil, but in lower interest rates, economists say. With oil so cheap, the Federal Reserve can afford to boost the economy through easier credit without worrying about rekindling inflation, they say.

In fact, unless the Fed lowers interest rates, severe hardship in the oil, mining and farming sectors could drag the whole U.S. economy down, argues Wayne Nordberg, an economist for the investment firm Prescott Ball & Turben Inc. in New

Cheaper oil also helps offset the potential inflationary impact of the dollar's continuing decline against foreign currencies like the Japanese

The lower dollar benefits U.S. manufacturers by making their goods more competitive with foreign goods, but means consumers must pay more for imports. Lower oil prices offset the loss, economists say.

Cheaper oil could help with the federal budget deficit, as some con-gressional leaders have proposed ingressional leaders have proposed in-creasing taxes on imported oil to help meet the objectives of the Gramm-Rudman budget-balancing measure, economists President Rea-gan said Wednesday he is ready to consider a new levy on imported oil under certain conditions.

Some economists and politicians oppose an oil-import tax on principle because it would take the savings from cheaper oil out of the hands of the consumer and put it in the hands

Roger Brinner, chief economist for Data Resources, said an oil-imfor Data Resources, said an oil-import tax would be a relatively painless way of raising revenue because it would reduce the need for huge cuts in spending that could dangerously deflate the economy.

Bankers who lent money to oil experience and the said and the sa

Eddy County gained a Delaware discovery, immediately east of the Shugart field, when SIETE OIL & GAS CORP. completed the No. 3 Geronimo

On potential test, the well flowed 166 barrels of crude, 100 Mcfd and 280 barrels of water on a 24/64 inch choke with a flowing tubing pressure of 35 psi. Production is from perforations 5,012 to 5,069 ft., with no treatment reported.

Drilled to 6,470 ft., where 5 1/2 inch casing is set, the well was plugged back to 6,459 ft. Pay was topped at 5,012 ft.

Location is 890 ft. from north and 990 ft. from east lines of Section 24,

Siete also completed a well in the same area, the No. 2 Geronimo, as a producer in the Shugart field, pumping 136 barrels of crude,77 Mcfd and 60 barrels of water from 4,265 to 4,277.5 ft. The No. 2 Scottsdale was also completed in the Shugart field, pumping 40 barrels of crude, 13 Mcfd and 10 barrels of water from perforations 2,477 to 3,707 ft.

The interval was acidized with 5,000 gallons of 15 percent HCL acid and fractured with 55,000 gallons gel and 135,000 lbs. sand.

Originally drilled to 5,200 ft., the well was cleaned out to 3,500 ft., where four inch casing was set, and plugged backto 3,300 ft.

The well topped the Yates at 1,290 Queen at 1,913, and San Andres at 2,547 ft. on ground elevation of 3,338 ft., according to Gulf records. Pay was topped at 3,159 ft.

Location is 1,980 ft. from north and 660 ft. from east lines of Section 25, T19s, R28e.

Pennsylvanian find flows six barrels oil

A location northwest of the Antelope Sink field in Eddy County has netted a small Permo Penn discovery for EXXON CORP.

Exxon's No. 1 Altwein "B" Federal Com. was potentialed to flow six bar-rels of 47 gravity crude, 1.07 Mmcfd and no water on various chokes with a flowing tubing pressure of 1,550 si. ## Petrofina reports fourth quarter loss for first time

DALLAS (AP) - American Petrofina Inc. reported a fourth quarter net loss of $39.4 million, or $3.29 per share, ending its first year of losses, company officials said Monday.

The fourth quarter figure compared to net earnings of $17.3 million or $1.46 per share during the same period of 1984, company officials said Monday.

For the year, losses amounted to 10.2 million, or 85 cents per share, officials said. In 1984, net earnings were $45.1 million, or $4 per share. Gross revenues for 1985 were $2.4 billion, up 12.9 percent from 1984. Net earnings for the year would have been $13 million without a onetime write-off of the undepreciated cost of the company's two large crude carriers.

"An exceptional write-off and operational problems have led us into our first year of losses," said Paul D. Meek, chairman of the board, president and chief executive officer.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Pennzoil reports net loss of $41.1 million

HOUSTON (AP) — Pennzoil Co. reported a net loss of $41.1 million for the fourth quarter of 1985, but posted a $113.2 million profit for the entire year, fourth quarter of 1965, but posted a $113.2 million profit for the entire year, company officials say.

The fourth quarter figures come to a $1.12-a-share loss, compared to a loss of $49.4 million or $1.16 a share during the last three months of 1964, according to a statement the company released on Wednesday.

The Houston-based energy company's year-end earnings were $2.30 a share, compared to $130.5 million or $2.23 a share for 1964.

The annual earnings include a $75 million provision made for losses from its discontinued metals operations because of the weak market, the statement said. In 1984, Pennzoil provided for a $49.4 million loss from its metals operations.

Pennzoil Chairman J. Hugh Liedtke said the company's sulphur, petroleum manufacturing and marketing divisions remained profitable and showed increased earnings during the fourth quarter of 1985. However, Liedtke said, the income increases in those divisions were offset by lower oil and natural gas prices.

A Houston jury in November ordered Texaco Inc. to pay a $10.53 billion award to Pennzoil after finding Texaco interfered with Pennzoil's attempts to buy Getty Oil Co. A state district judge in December affirmed the jury's verdict and added interest to bring the total award to $11.1 billion.

United, IBM to develop travel agent system

CHICAGO (AP) — United Airlines has selected IBM to develop a comprehensive computerized travel agency management system, airline officials announced.

The system, to be called "Enterprise," will depend on hardware, software and applications programming provided by IBM.

"Enterprise is a multimillion-dollar step in a billion-dollar, five-year pro-

"Enterprise is a multimillion-dollar step in a billion-dollar, five-year program that will enable agents to improve their service to customers and better manage their businesses," United Airlines President James J. Hartigan said Wednesday.

Hartigan said that unlike the systems now in use in the travel industry, "Enterprise" is designed to flexible enough to expand and accommodate the industry's growing complexity.

He said "Enterprise" will allow agents to customize travel arrangements for customers by taking advantage of the wide range of air travel, hotel and car rental options now available. He said it will also allow agents to become more competitive by helping them control inventory, keep track of commissions and develop tour packages.

Re. vating the "outmoded and inefficient" factory would be too costly, the company says. To replace it, Mack plans an $80 million, "state-of-the-art" factory capable of producing 70 trucks a day with about 1,000 employees. The 5-C plant these days turns out 41 trucks daily with its 1,800 workers.

Mack said the UAW refused wage and benefit cuts needed for the plant to be built within 50 miles of

"We're going to be very hard-hit," said Josh Tucker, manager of Jaetees gift store in downtown Allentown. When Mack workers find themselves out of work or in lower-paying jobs, he said, "They're going to be hard-pressed to buy things of necessity — food," and to pay rent.

Kratzer, who proudly wears a UAW ring, said some people criticize Mack workers' pay.

people criticize Mack workers' pay.
"We've heard people say to us, 'Good, it's about time you guys take a cut," he said, but added that the critics had applied for Mack jobs and weren't hired.

The company demanded a cut of $2.04 in an average hourly wage and benefit package of about $23 — a cut that would have applied to all Mack UAW contracts, not only the Allentown employees.

The union also told its members Mack demanded that its workers accept any cuts UAW workers might take at No. 1 heavy-truck seller Navistar, formerly International Harvester Corp., in negotiations next year. Mack spokesman William McCullough declined comment on that and Mack chairman John Curcio declined to be interviewed.

Based in Allentown since 1905, Mack says its headquarters and Research and Development Center in Allentown and an assembly plant at Macungie will not be affected by the new plant decision.

"There'll be a lot of hard feelings for awhile 'til everyone gets their lives in order," said Mrs. Kratzer, who was laid off from her job with AT&T the same month her husband was laid off at Mack. She gets some parttime teaching work. "Some of us are young enough to be able to move."

Before Mack announced it was pulling out, the union said 2,500 workers were laid off from 5-C and Mack's Macungie plant, where 1,600 are employed.

"Obviously the amount of wages being lost here is going to have a significant spinoff effect here," said Don Bernhard, Allentown's community development

Further, the plant pullout will hit the tax rolls. Mack's properties in Lehigh County and in Allentown have an assessed value of more than $18.3 million. The company pays annual real estate taxes of $265,000 to the county, $400,000 to the city and $725,000 to the Allentown School District.

Bernhard and Donald Benner, executive vice president of the Industrial Development Corp. of Lehigh County, said Mack workers who stay may be able to find jobs — but for less money, and in different fields. Manufacturing jobs in the area were on a downward spiral before the Mack announcement.

About 40 strikers or supporters who tried Wednesday to cross a police checkpoint set up at a road leading to the plant's north gate were turned back after police told them only six people could walk by the gate at one time.

Ray Rogers, a labor strategist for Local P-9, said the demonstration was designed to see how authorities and the National Guard responded and proved that striking meatpackers' constitutional right to protest were being violated.

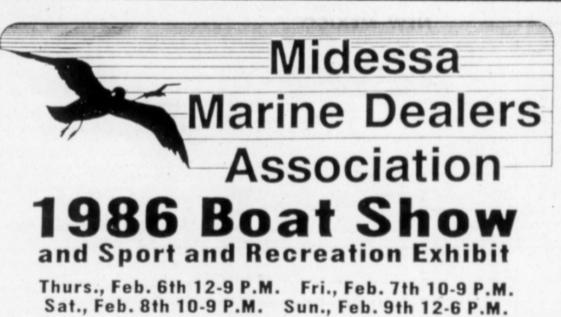

On Tuesday, a judge stayed jail sentences and fines for Rogers and P-9 president Jim Guyette after they were found to have violated an injunction limiting pickets and prohibiting the union from blocking any gate.

Police Chief Don Hoffman denied that P-9 members' rights were denied when they were told they could not march along the road.

"If 10 Hormel executives decided to walk through, we'd tell them the same thing," Hoffman said. "We just need to be reasonable and take precautions so that others can get through."

About 1,500 meatpackers went on strike Aug. 17 after the company cut wages by 23 percent in October 1964, lowering the base wage from $10.69 to $8.25 per hour. An arbitrator's ruling increased the base rate to $9.25 an hour shortly after the strike began.

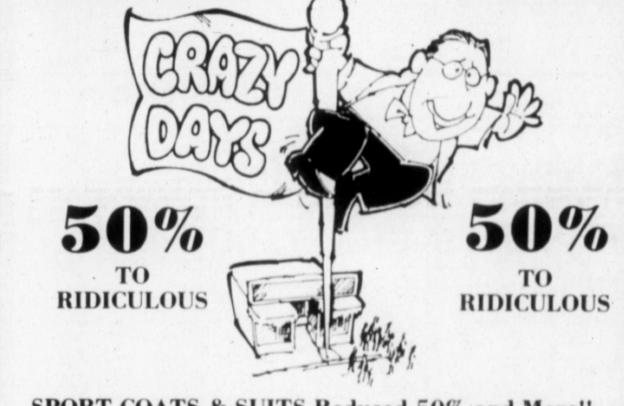

Workers at other Hormel plants have accepted a new contract with a base wage of $10 an hour, but P-9 members have twice rejected a federal mediator's proposal for a base wage of $20 an hour. Local P-9 has said the proposal does not adequately, address other concerns, such as safety and seniority.

it. The bank or savings and loan association might not be able to transfer money put into an IRA CD for one year into an IRA CD for a different year. Q. I am 71 and employed. My wife is 59 and is not employed. Can I put money into an IRA for her? If so, what is the maximum amount — $2,000 or $250? A. As long as you're still employed and have at least $2,000 earned income, you can make a $2,000 annual contribution for your wife in a spousal IRA

The maximum that can go into a spousal IRA while both husband and wife are under 701/2 is $2,250 a year. A spousal IRA is actually two accounts - and no more than $2,000 annually can go into either account. But once one spouse turns 701/2, $2,000 a year can go into the younger spouse's account. This applies, even though the older spouse must start making withdrawals from his or her IRA by April 1 following the year in which the 701/2 mark is reached.

Q. I am 52, collecting a military pension and currently employed. My wife is 58 and not employed. We put the maximum into a spousal IRA each year - $2,000 in my account and $250

Since my wife is six years older than I am, wouldn't it be better to deposit $2,000 in her account and $250 in mine?

A. Not if the main reason for putting money into the IRA is to keep it sheltered from income tax as long as possible.

Each of you will be required to start withdrawing money from your IRA after you pass 701/2. Your wife will have to begin those withdrawals six years before you do. The money you eventually take out of your IRAs will be taxed as ordinary income. Unless there are other circumstances, such as a desire to start withdrawals before it is required by the rules, it's smart to put the larger contribution into the younger spouse's IRA, thereby postponing the tax bite. All this will become axiomatic, if Congress ever gets off its duff and finally passes tax overhaul legislation, one provision of which would raise the annual spousal IRA contribution to $4,000, with $2,000 going into each spouse's account - no matter which one is employed outside the home.

Midland County is among 10 entities in Texas this year receiving a housing rehabilitation grant designed to help landlords upgrade their property. The $325,000 grant is designed to improve rental property on the city's south and east side, said Jerrie Westmoreland of Midland County Housing

"The whole idea is to help the landlords get their property up to standards," she said.

About 60 apartments or single family homes will be rehabilitated through the grant money. The money will also pay rental assistance to 60 families.

The grant should provide some relief to the scarcity of safe, sanitary and inexpensive housing in Midland, she said.

Improvements to homes and apartments will include installing insulation, improving plumbing and sewage disposal, correcting electrical hazards and replacing poisonous lead paint. Some cosmetic improvements may also be done, but most of the money will go toward improving safety hazards, Ms. Westmoreland said.

Texas Development of Community Affairs distributed 10 grants from the Department of Housing and Urban Development. Other communities receiving grants include Denton, Eagle Pass, Grand Prairie, Lamesa, Liberty County, McKinny, Marshall, Orange and Texarkana.

The grants are an example of the government's attempt to bring private industry into sharing some costs of human service programs, Ms. West-

We're involving the private sector and letting them turn a profit. It just generates more money It's the capitalistic way of doing things," she said.

Landlords who get grant money will be required to match the amount they receive. They will also have to maintain low rents.

'He can't rehabilitate it and knock the price up to $500 a month," she said.

Applications for the grants will not be available for another three to four months, Ms. Westmore-

Most of the people expected to benefit from the rehabilitation grants are not slumlords, she said

The landlords who rent out low income housing in the city usually have little money left over after taxes to improve their buildings, she said.

"We don't have people making a ton off low income substandard housing," she said.

MCH to open recovery room for heart patients

By RON GILMORE Staff Writer

ODESSA — Described as a "quiet, refined area," Medical Center Hospital's new $450,000 cardiovascular recovery room will open Friday, according to a hospital spokesman.

"We've built a four-bed unit to put the heart surgery patients in imme diately following their surgery," said Public Relations Director Kathy Porter Wythe. "In the past, we've put them in the intensive care unit but now we can place them in a special unit with the most sophisticated equipment right there.

The unit, to be opened at 2 p.m., was built with funds donated by the Women's Hospital Auxiliary. The group also supplied the monies to buy equipment.

According to Ms. Wythe, the addition "updates the hospital to a level which is standard across the

"It's the way things are being set up at all the major hospitals," she said.

The recovery room also will free up ICU beds and make it easier for staff members to care for the

'It's just down the hall from where the ICU is now," she said. 'Not only is it going to concentrate all of the heart surgery patients in one area, but it will provide more of a 'homey' area for both the patients and their families."

Medical Center will begin placing patients into the new area Monday, said Ms. Wythe.

The hospital's heart surgery program has steadily grown from the first heart surgery performed in 1973 by Dr. Andres Morales, she said. In 1963, MCH surgeons performed 161 heart surgeries. Last year they reported 238 surgeries.

Currently MCH has four heart surgeons on staff including Morales, Allen Leshnower, John Capehart and M.C. Parekh.

"We've built a four-bed unit to put the heart surgery patients in immediately following their surgery. In the past, we've put them in the intensive care unit but now we can place them in a special unit with the most sophisticated equipment right there. Heart surgical patients need a quiet, refined area to recuperate in. It doesn't have all the hustle bustle of the ICU."

 Kathy Porter Wythe, Medical Center Hospital

All four surgeons, medical staff, auxiliary members and other invited guests will be on hand for the official opening ceremonies.

Medical Center has other plans designed for the families of heart surgery patients, added Ms. Wythe.

"Along with the opening of the heart recovery room, the nurses are initiating a pre-operative educational program for family members," she said. 'The nurses will individually introduce themselves to the family, show the unit and equipment to the family and talk about the stay in

Odessan arrested for parole violation

By MARK LEWIS Staff Writer

A 57-year-old Odessa woman charged with running an escort service which provided prostitutes for customers was being held in the Ector County Jail this morning after being arrested Wednesday on a Midland County warrant for violation of probation

Vonceil Briscoe Monahan was expected to be transferred to the Midland County Jail, where she will be held without bond pending the outcome of a probationrevocation hearing, according to Lt. Jerry Davis of the Ector County Sheriff's Office.

"The Probation Office is in the process of getting it (a revocation hearing) worked up," said Midland County District Attorney Al Schorre this morning.

Ms. Monahans was sentenced to five years probation and a $5,000 June 18 in Midland after pleading guilty to aggravated promotion of prostitution. She was charged with the same offense Friday in Ector County after an undercover investigation into the Round the Clock Escort Service, 6401 Eastridge, from which Ms. Monahan allegedly dispatched prostitutes by telephone to customers in motel rooms.

"Our undercover agents rented motel room" and called Ms. Monahan posing as customers, Davis said. After she allegedly sent 23-year-old Kathy Swindle, 222 N. Dixie, to their room, both women were arrested.

Ms. Monahan, who was also charged with the 1983 arson of an Odessa massage parlor, was released Monday on bonds totalling $8,000, Davis said. She was re-arrested Wednesday after the probation-violation warrant was issued in Midland.

Lee campaigning for county treasurer

From Staff Reports

Jumping for joy

Dewey Lee, investigator for the Midland County District Attorney's Office, is campaigning for the county treasurer's post so that he can assert his input into county government.

"I'm well familiar with the operations and functions of county government," Lee, 55, said Wednesday. Lee, investigator for the district attorney since 1977, said he has been involved in local and county governments for more than 25 years as a deputy sheriff, police officer and investigator.

And as the DA's investigator, Lee said he has gained experience in money management by handling hot checks, accounts and disbursements. Over the years, Lee said he has "taken in, disbursed and accounted for" more than $1 million in restitution funds. In 1983, he paid $350,000 in restitution to victims of crime.

"I'm a book-keeper." Lee said. "I'm an accountant, and that (the $1 million) is not peanuts. I do bookkeeping and accounting on a day-to-day basic. I haven't lost a penny, and I don't plan on losing a penny of the county's money" if elected treasurer."

"I'm well versed in their (governmental) functions and operations and what it takes for them to sur-

Lee noted that the county treasurer and the county auditor work closely together in watching over the county's budget, which is $14.3million in 1986.

To seat himself in the Treasurer's Office, Lee first must win the Republican Party nomination by defeating Tom Miller, a 49-year-old retired accountant, in the May 3 primary elections. Then, he must beat Democrat Dee Thompson, who has held the treasurer's post since 1959, in the Nov. 4 general election.

Two years ago, Lee and Midland schoolteacher Robbie J. Rucker campaigned for the justice-of-the-peace post held by Charlie Sprayberry. But Sprayberry, 45, defeated them in the Republican Party primary election and was re-elected in the 1984 gener-

As treasurer, Lee said he would be a "watchdog" over county funds.
"I believe that the county treasurer should be more than a figurehead or sign checks," he said. "The county treasurer should have some input on how the money is spent. I know that the Commissioners' Court dictates how the money is spent. But I believe that the county treasurer also should have some input."

"I want to be more than a figurehead and check writer."

Lee said that "over the years," he has talked to members of the Commissioners' Court and, for example, has suggested that the county withdraw from the federal Social Security program and place more county and employee funds into the county's employees' retirement accounts. However, the deadline for withdrawing from the Social Security program was in 1983, Lee noted.

"I believe that the county employees would have benefited tremendously," Lee said, by, for example, investing funds in individual retirement accounts (IRAs) instead of in Social Security and that the county would have saved considerable

But Lee said the commissioners "just laughed me off," because he was an employee and not an official. As an elected official, Lee suggested that he would have more clout and influence than he does as an hired worker. In addition, his pay would be increased from around $30,000 to close to $40,000 or in the high $30,000s. As an elected official," Lee said,

"I feel that I can have input as to where and how taxpayers' money is spent. As an employee, nothing.

Were the commissioners to ignore his suggestions or indicate that his suggestions were not worthwhile, Lee said he as an elected official could take his case directly to the

"I would be on equal footing (with the commissioners).

Lee said his campaign will focus on himself and that he will not attack the other candidates and will not "sling mud.

"I'm just going to campaign for Dewey Lee," he said. "I won't campaign against Mr. Miller. I don't know anything about Mr. Miller. I'm going to lay my attributes before the people and let them decide."

There's no doubt that America is business-minded

If, as Calvin Coolidge said, "The business of America is business," then why is this nation in such an economic turmoil?

The president's terse remark, I suppose, alluded more to inclination and enterprise than it did to prudence and frugality. The nation fell, after many big leaps in the Roaring '20s, into the Great Depression after the stock market crashed in 1929. And frugal "Silent Cal" wept, as the jazz played on and booze flowed in the waning days of Prohibition.

But there's no doubt that America business-minded. It had and has business and industrial giants such as Jay Gould, J.C. Penney, Henry Ford, the Rockefellers, Lee Iacocca, Sam Walton and Fuddruckers.

Businesses succeed, and businesses

John Doe strikes it rich. Richard Roe ends up in the poor house.

Now, I don't pretend to be business-oriented. I'm not. I enjoy observing business and wondering about the daring feats of the calcu-lated risk-takers, including our fair Midland gentry. Our Midland entrepreneurs, our heroes, are the rich, the bankrupt and the poor who gambled and either hit pay dirt or scored another dry hole. Many were overly optimistic, fell into a dream and woke up in a nightmare.

And I'm not much on frugality, for it's more fun to be a spendthrift while the money lasts. However, I'm assured by the writings of Benjamin Franklin that the rewards of frugality are comforting. But why not "jazz up" life before it too soon is spent?

I'm no economist, but it would seem, in the ideal, that if America's business really is business, then why would the nation's business and industrial forces not be bold, inventive, innovative and cater more fully and strongly to the consumers' needs and wants? For decades they did, or so I've always believed. Then, the earth-bound aliens from foreign lands became very competitive, manufactured reliable goods, such as cars and electronic wares, figured out the market and made successful attacks into the marketplaces.

America really has no cause to be angered over any "intrusions" by foreign powers. We welcome their goods, sell them at a profit, and then bellyache that America's status as a industrial, manufacturing and marketing giant is slipping.

But America surely is not one big mud slide. Once it starts going, it's gone. No. If that were the case, this country never would have recovered from the Great Depression and Iacocca wouldn't be helping fix up the Statue of Liberty. Statue of Liberty.

Cattle ranching near Austin 'not what it used to be'

GEORGETOWN (AP) - Beyond the construction cranes, the electronics plants and the sleek specialty retail centers stands Albert Landry. Barely a half hour's drive from the glamour and glow of Austin, Landry goes about his business as he's done for 30 years. He's tall, slim and erect, with leathery skin. There's nothing fancy about cattle

It is a world far apart from life onthe go in the big city. But it is a world close enough to have reaped some benefits and borne some scars from the economic boom in the Austin metropolitan area that encompasses Travis, Williamson and Hays counties.

"Development is taking thousand of acres a year," said Landry, a man with a lonely job and of few words. "The fences have been coming down.

Creeping urbanization - some would say it has galloped in the 1980s - continues to change the face of the cattle industry in the Austin

Many of the large ranches, spreading thousands of acres, have been carved up and sold at rapidly appreciating prices for smaller enterprises or residential development.

Full-time ranching has been on the decline for years.

Ronald Leps, county extension agent in Williamson County, profiles the typical cattle operator that has

"They have 25 to 50 cows. They have a job in town, and they have the land out there which they enjoy. For some it's a hobby. For some it's a tax writeoff. For someone who's trying to make a living, it's got to be impossible.

"All through this area it's a pretty clear trend," he added.

Alongside these parttimers are the people who divide their time between ranching and farming.

Ranching probably represents one-third their income, and the other two-thirds is farming," Leps said. Typical of that profile is the Holmstrom famiy, which has been farming and ranching near Georgetown for two generations. The Holmstroms run cattle on 1,700 acres they own or lease and raise corn, cotton milo and wheat on another 2,200

"It's not what it used to be," said John Holmstrom, who is in business with his father and two brothers. "A lot of land west of the interstate was strictly ranchland 20 years ago. Now it is being cut up and developed or being sold to developers who are sitting on it and waiting to double their

Holmstrom quickly adds that his family, too, has "taken advantage of that and sold some ranchland

Despite the development pressures, the cattle industry in Central Texas is holding on.

The heart of that industry in the area is called the cow-calf operation, in which a rancher maintains a cow herd for the production of calves. The calves are raised for 6 to 9 months, then sold to a stocker operator who grazes them for another six months before shipping them off to the feed lots in the Panhandle for fattening before slaughter.

Many ranchers, such as Landry, have cow-calf and stocker operations.

In terms of numbers, the cattle industry in the three-county, Austin metropolitan area is relatively small. As of January 1985, there were 25,000 beef cows in Travis, 47,000 in

Williamson and 19,000 in Hays, according to the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service. That represents less than 2 percent of the nearly 5.6 million breeding cows in

But among 20 counties within a 75mile radius of Austin, the beef-cow numbers soar to nearly 720,000, or about 13 percent of the state total.

"It's a very significant part of the state production and forms a significant income source for the counties," said Ed Uvacek, economist for the Texas Agricultural Extension

Albert Landry, who ranches land just west of Georgetown, supplements cattle feed with cotton seed. Creeping urbanization continues to change the face of the cattle industry in the Austin area.

The economic ups and downs of driven and stalled, at least temporar-Central Texas cattle ranchers have little to do with the factors that have ily, the boom in the Austin area. Down at the ranch, the talk is not of construction projects, the poten-tial of the Microelectronics and Com-puter Technology Corp., the blossoming of start-up companies and the influx of affluent new residents. Nor is there the concern about high-priced, unsold houses in the suburbs, the glut of unleased office space, sharp increases in business foreclosures and job layoffs.

Landry and his colleagues worry mostly about beef prices. But they also hold their breath on what farm policies are coming out of Washington. They curse the drought and the pneumonia when it takes hold in the herd. And they grumble about broom weeds overrunning grazing

"Trying to make a living you have to live pretty low on the hog sometimes," says Landry, who keeps about 125 mother cows and 180 steers on a 3,000-acre ranch he has leased 11 years west of Georgetown.

Landry's wife, Wilma; and sons Neal, a student at Baylor University; and Dustin, a senior at Liberty Hill High School, help with the chores when they can.

To supplement his income, Landry has started a liquid feed business and said he is "breaking horses" for some people who are training cut-

No one has to tell a cattle rancher that beef prices declined over the past year, with retail prices at their lowest level in six years. It's been good news to the consumer but a tough pill for the ranchers.

"Profitability has been nil," Uvacek said. "As a result, the cattle herds have been cut back and will probably continue on through this

That should lead to a reduction in beef and higher prices in 1986 both for the producer and the consumer. "Whether they will be high enough to stem the tide we are unable to predict," Uvacek said. "One reason is that every cattleman has his own set of costs. Changing consumer tastes and lifestyles have also had a powerful effect on the industry. "People are eating less beef than they used to," Holmstrom said.

"They're turning to chicken and fish and lettuce-and-tomato salads," adds Leps. "Beef has taken a whipping from the health industry that has been undeserved." The latest farm legislation calls for farmers thoughout the country to slaughter about 600,000 dairy cows over the next 18 months to cut milk production and save the government more than $1 billion. That policy brings no cheers from Landry and other ranchers, who know that it means more beef will be marketed, which will lower their return on investment even further. Cattle ranchers in Central Texas still talk about the drought of 1983-84 that took a heavy toll, forcing them to sell off many of their breeding cows because pastureland had turned to dust. Landry, for one, sold off a third of his herd and hasn't rebuilt it. The drought and low beef prices led many part-time operators to liquidate, Leps said.

"They were just losing more mon-ey than they could afford," Leps said. "It was becoming too expensive a hobby.

To this day the liquidation continues, Leps said, and he still doesn't see ranchers replenishing their

Still, Uvacek believes the part-time rancher "coming from the bedroom communities" is here to stay in Central Texas as long as land values keep appreciating.

And the shift away from the traditional cattle rancher will continue. "He has been in the cattle business two or three generations," Uvacek said, "but is finally giving up."

Landry acknowledges he will see the day when ranching as he has known it will disappear in Williamson County. He makes his point by talking about the land he knows best - the sprawling, rocky terrain he has traversed untold times by horse and pickup in tending his herds over the past 11 years.

"They're not holding this land for me to ranch," he said of the owner. "It has got to be developed."

Agencies told to consider budget cuts

By STEVE LEVINE Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN - Heading warnings of a possible financial disaster, Gov. Mark White Wednesday ordered all state agencies and universities to prepare to tighten what for some is an already overtight fiscal belt. Plummeting world oil prices Tuesday forced Comptroller Bob Bullock to order a complete examination of the state's financial situation. Texas depends heavily on income from oilrelated taxes, which drop by about $100 million per year for every $1 decline in the price of a barrel of oil. White rejected Bullock's suggestion that he may have to call a spe-cial legislative session to re-balance the budget. The governor said he would wait for the comptroller's report before taking any action, and Wednesday he told the leaders of state agencies, colleges and universities to get for that action. "Specifically, you should review every aspect of your current budget for opportunities to save, such as vacant staff positions, capital outlay, travel and reductions in those areas least affecting delivery of the highest priority services," the governor

"Also, conservation efforts, particularly in the area of energy and water conservation, should be stepped up. Furthermore, it is imperative that no new financial obligations be incurred or programs be intitiated during the next several weeks."

For the past month, White has been telling reporters that his staff is preparing plans to deal with a reduction in oil-tax revenues without asking the Legislature to raise more taxes. Wednesday he said he would "lay out specific plans to cut spendto the extent they are warrented" at "the appropriate time."

A top administrator with the Department of Human Services, the state agency with one of the largest budgets, said his staff had already begun to look for cost savings in anticipation of federal budget cuts mandated by the Gramm-Rudman deficit reduction plan.

"We already have a group working on contingency plans to reduce expenditures as necessary and as we're able," said Merle Springer, executive deputy commissioner

Dr. C. Robert Kemble, chancellor of the Lamar University System in Beaumont, said colleges would have difficulty finding much room to cut because the Legislature reduced their appropriations during the 1985

"There isn't much more than is already either being done or is being put in place," Kemble said. "But we'll comply with the governor's re-

The chancellor pointed out that his institution is already near the bottom in administrative and plant operating costs per student. "We're going to figure out how to do this downsizing and we're going to continue to press forward on those programs that are important to this school and this region's economy.'

The price of a barrel of West Texas Intermediate crude oil on the spot market has steadily declined from a high of about $32 in November. Spotmarket contracts for March delivery of West Texas Intermediate closed Tuesday at $16.15 on the New York Mercantile Exchange after opening the day at $15.45 per barrel.

Throughout the earlier price drops, Bullock and White consistently pointed out that the state severance tax depends on the posted price of oil, the price most refineries pay for it. The posted price remained steady at $26 to $28 per barrel for several months before starting to decline in mid-January.

Bullock's revenue estimating staff had counted on posted prices of $25 per barrel through fiscal 1986 and about $24 for the next year. Last week, Phillips Petroleum Co. cut its posted price $2 per barrel to $22.50 and Texaco reduced its price $1 per barrel to $24.50.

"It's the most serious, perplexing problem that I've encountered since 've been in office," Bullock said

BIG SPRING - Water deliveries by the Colorado River Municipal Water District rose sharply in January over a year ago.

The total of 1,319,872,760 was up by 119 million gallons or 17.67 percent over a year ago. Of this, 1,146,260,000 gallons went to municipal users, up 161 million gallons or 16.36 percent. Oil and industrial users drew 173,612,760 gallons, a gain of nearly 38 million, or up 27.89 percent.

Multiplying fish worry officials

TYLER (AP) - Texas Parks and Wildlife Department officials say something fishy is happening at an East Texas lake: bass that aren't supposed to reproduce may be multiplying.

The department, since 1972, has conducted a fish-stocking program with a cross between a female striped bass and male white bass. Biologists discovered in January the fish may have reproduced in 20,000-acre Lake Palestine. Officials last stocked Lake Palestine with the hybrids in 1982 when 295,035 fish were released. Fishermen last spring who hoped to snare white bass instead caught small fish that had broken stripes like the hybrid-striped bass but in a different area than the fish normally have the stripes, according to the Tyler Telegraph.

"We took a small sample of what the fisherman had brought," Alan Forshage, department regional director in Tyler, said. "That sample suggested we had some sort of reproduction.

We had 26 fish we ran tests on, said Forshage. "We had seven which appeared to be some type of hybrids. The other 19 were whites (bass). This gives us the indication of the possibility of hybrid-stripers reproducing on Lake Palestine

The department's 14-year-old stocking program could be in trouble if the fish actually are reproducing.

Fisherman blame the hybrids for a decline in populations of bass and crappie fish. Parks and wildlife officials orginally sold the idea of stocking reservoirs with hybrid-stripers because they believed the fish could not reproduce.

Forshage said fisherman "falsely blamed" the hybrid-striper for deterioration of the habitat and of ruining quality fishing.

If the fish indeed are reproducing, they could produce deformed off-spring and blemish the stocking program, said Roger McCabe, hybridstriped bass program leader for

"We don't want to have deformed fish that fishermen might catch," said McCabe. "We want a fish that is a robust, hard fighting fish.

LONDON (AP) - Prince Andrew, Britain's most eligible bachelor, gave a royal welcome to his latest girlfriend on the navy ship on which he serves.

Sarah Ferguson, 26, appeared at the HMS Brazen on Wednesday with Princess Diana, wife of Andrew's older brother, Prince Charles, and their 3year-old son, Prince William. Press Association, Britain's domestic news agency, said the visit prompted speculation that the couple may be about to announce their engagement.

Miss Ferguson, who is said to be descended directly from King Charles II, first appeared in public with the 25-year-old prince last June at the Ascot horse races. She also was reported to have been a New Year's guest of the royal family.

Crosby's request clears the way for him to gain credits for good behavior in prison that he could not have received at the jail. He could receive up to three days credit for each day served in prison. In a note sent Tuesday to State District Judge Pat

Crosby has been jailed in the Lew Sterrett Justice Center since Dec. 19, when McDowell ordered him held without bond pending completion of his appeals of convictions of possessing cocaine and illegally possessing a firearm.

Bottled drinks safety sealed

By SONJA HEINZE

Q. I read with interest in this col-umn some comments made by one of your readers about the disgust she felt when she observed a woman in a supermarket opening cartons of sour cream, observing the contents and then returning the cartons to the shelf. I had a similar experience with Ocean Spray fruit juice, to whom I wrote the following letter:

"I have no complaint with your product and find everything delicious and refreshing. But the other day while shopping I saw two men open one of your bottles of juice, taste it, close the bottle and return it to the shelf. Apparently they chose not to buy it. Since that day I haven't bought anything that could be opened. I wonder if you would consider putting a seal of some kind over the bottle caps as a safety mea-sure." Ruth Grund, Northfield, N.J.

A. The following letter was sent to this reader from Linda Rieck of Ocean Spray: "Every Ocean Spray bottled drink is vacuum-packed, ensuring the safety and freshness of the product. In other words, that familiar soft 'pop' heard when you open a bottled drink tells you that it has not been opened since it left the manufacturing plant. If you pur-chase an Ocean Spray bottled drink that you feel has lost its vacuum seal, we recommend that you not consume it and contact us."

Q. Will eating raw oysters or other seafoods make you more amorous?

A. Robert Price, a seafood specialist at the University of California at Davis, informs us that no, oysters are not an aphrodisiac. They will not affect sexual behavior, nor will they act as a love potion.

This belief took hold years ago when it was discovered that the basic building block of both male and female sex hormones is cholesterol, and since contain a lot of and since oysters contain a lot of cholesterol, they must be beneficial to one's sex life. But the human body produces enough cholesterol all by itself to meet all of its needs.

Animal products, which all con-tain cholesterol in varying degrees, add to your cholesterol rate, and oys-ters, which contain about 20 times the amount of cholesterol as there is in eggs, could do some persons more harm than good.

Reader feedback:

· Some time ago a reader wanted to know if it was true that some people eat the testicles of bulls. I responded that some restaurants in the West do offer them on the menu, where they are called "calf fry" or "bull fry." Thereafter, a reader wrote the following

'Rod's Dunlap Inn in Dunlap, Calif., has an annual Turkey Festival in November, serving all you can eat of the delicious breaded and fried Turkey Nuts, chili beans, green salad and barbecued turkey for $5." Shirley Womack, Orange Cove, Calif.

For some reason, the National Turkey Federation refused to answer or even acknowledge my inquiries on this subject. Thinking this was a joke, but just to be sure, I wrote the Dunlap Inn itself. E.V. Baskette of B.D.R., the inn's management consultant, responded:

"To paraphrase another letter writer, 'Yes, Sonja, there really is a Turkey Testicle Festival.' The turkey fries are supplied by various turkey processors such as Armour. The festival is quite successful and has been going on for quite a few years and as been so popular that it's usually

"It was started over 15 years ago by the previous owner of the inn, Rod Hall. There are a few people who are a bit squeamish about try-ing the turkey fries, but after a few trips to the bar their inhibitions are broken down and they generally find they are quite good."

• Pat Bernard, Egg Harbor City, NJ: "This is in reference to a reader's complaint in this column relating to what he felt to be a decline in the quality of Chicken of the Sea tuna. In your response, you neglect-ed to tell one important detail. I, too, agree with your reader about the quality of this tuna now. But I went back to my shelf and compared an old can to a new one.

"The new can has a label that is much less attractive than then old foil-type label. More important, the can lid is no longer embossed with the federal inspection notice as before. I know that other good brands never had that notice, but it certainly is strange that this notice has been discontinued. I think Raiston Purina is hiding something.

Regarding the embossed federal inspection notice on the can. Elmer Richars, director of public relations at Ralston Purina, says, "We have now decided to have our own personnel assume the responsibilities previously performed by the federal

Regarding the foil-type label, Richars says, "Changes in the material used for labeling are made from time to time for a variety of reasons including the practicality and the availability of materials."

Fruit, fiber combination tasty

By LINDA ANDERSON

Fiber, fiber, fiber. All we hear these days is fiber and how good it is for you and how you need a certain amount in your daily diet and how it prevents this and prevents that.

Seems like every year or two we get a new health trend. First it was the horribleness of sugar. Then it was the hideousness of salt. Now it is fiber and all its benefits.

Every food manufacturer in the world seems to have cashed in on this trend, especially cereal makers. All have "new high fiber" cereal products for all tastes and

One of these products from Post is called Fruit & Fibre (See? It even uses the word "fiber" in its name. though it is spelled wrong.) This cereal is a wheat flake with dried fruit

Available with different kinds of fruit and spices including apples, rai-sins, dates and nuts, the product we tried was the tropical fruit kind, with pieces of dried pineapple, banana and coconut. (Because I am a sucker for pineapple. Those who foot the bill get to pick the flavor.)

The usual tasters checked out the product for taste, price and advertisng accuracy. Some of us ate the cereal the usual way, with milk, and some of us ate it straight out of the box. And some tried it both ways. I really like wheat flakes.

A 14-ounce box of Fruit & Fibre cost $1.83 at a local supermarket. (Prices at other locations may vary.) For a one-ounce serving of cereal only, which is about \( \frac{1}{2} \)-cup, label information lists 90 calories, 2 grams of protein, 22 grams of carbohydrate, 1 gram of fat and 160 mg of sodium. Of course adding milk adds calories and everything else.

The same serving of cereal only is listed as contributing 25 percent of the vitamin A, thiamine, riboflavin, niacin, iron, vitamin B6, folic acid and vitamin B12; and 10 percent of the vitamin D, phosphorus and zinc suggested by the U.S. Recommended Daily Allowance.

Label advertising for tropical fruit Fruit & Fibre claims "there is no doubt that fiber is an important part of your diet. By providing 'bulk,' it helps to keep your digestive system running smoothly ... You can enjoy the healthful benefits of fiber every time you eat any of the great-tasting Fruit & Fibre cereal varieties

Crispy, golden wheat and bran flakes are combined with carefully selected plump, sweet fruit to offer a delicious high fiber cereal unlike any other ... a bowlful of Fruit & Fibre is a bowl full of flavor and

The taste test proved once again that cereal flakes just don't stay crisp in milk, no matter what the commercials say. The pineapple bits were tasty but chewy, the banana flakes were a touch on the hard side and the testers generally picked out the coconut. The cereal itself tasted much like any other wheat flake which is good, if you like wheat flakes the way I do. The adult tester liked the product, the teenagers didn't really give it a chance (eating cereal is not cool) and the small children would have liked it better if it had marshmallows in it.

We might buy it again, maybe in some other flavor. But it seemed like an expensive way to get fruit in my

Anger long-lasting

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: This has been bugging me for a long time and I need an answer. My husband, "Nick," had an affair with his sister-in-law (I'll call her Rosemary) while she and her husband, "Tom," were living with Tom's parents. Nick was living at home at the time because he was only 16.

It seems that whenever Rosemary and Nick were alone in the house, she would come on to him. Since Nick had never had a girlfriend before, he didn't resist her — I suppose out of curiosity and eagerness for the experience. Anyway, this went on for some time, until guilt made Nick tell his father about what was going on between him and Rosemary. The parents made Rosemary and Tom move out of the house, and that ended the whole sordid mess.

Nick is now 32 and we've been married for three years, but it still bothers me to be around Tom and Rosemary. Nick says he still feels guilty, but he's trying to forget it ever happened.

Lately he's started going over to Tom's because they have a common interest in horses, riding, etc. Whenever we are around them, Rosemary makes it a point to get near Nick and talk to him (as much as he lets her). and she sometimes calls the house and asks to speak to Nick - supposedly to tell him something for Tom.

This situation is driving me nuts! How can I get over these feelings of jealousy and anger? Nick wants to be able to see his brother without any trouble from me, but I'm not big enough to handle it. What should I do? - CAN'T FORGET

DEAR CAN'T: Accept the fact that your feelings of jealousy and anger are appropriate, but stop feeding them by dwelling on them. What are your options? To demand that Nick stop seeing his brother? Even if he were to agree to it - which is doubtful - it would create more problems than it would solve. Everyone must live with some regrettable memories, but those who

Rio Grande to become dirtier while sewage treatment plants renovated

EL PASO (AP) - The Rio Grande will become dirtier while two sewage treatment plants in this border city are renovated, a state official said. The Texas Water Commission approved temporary changes in water quality standards while the Haskell R. Street and Socorro plants are under

The commission on Tuesday also fined El Paso Water Utilities $30,000 for discharging partially treated sewage from those plants last year. The treated sewage empties into the Rio Grande, whose water is already considered a

Forrest Sprester, El Paso's chief health engineer, said he strongly recom-

"All kinds of parasites, viruses and bacteria can be picked up, including the polio virus," Sprester said.

The Haskell plant's renovation will take 18 months, while the Socorro plant construction will begin next year and take two to three years to complete, officials have said.

Bonnie's, Clyde's guns to be auctioned

AUSTIN (AP) — Guns taken off the bodies of desperadoes Clyde Barrow and Bonnie Parker and a Mercedes limousine once owned by former Texas Gov. John Connally are among items to be auctioned by an Austin gallery

Raymond Brown, owner of the Country Store Art Gallery, said the items to be sold were collected by his father and grandfather, as well as himself, over three generations.

Other items to be auctioned include the late Ranger Capt. Frank Hamer's favorite revolver — "Old Lucky" — Buffalo Bill Cody's buckskin outfit, a Colt single-action pistol and custom-made revolver used by John Wayne in his last movie, "The Shootist," and first edition books by the late J. Frank

DALLAS (AP) — Gino Hernandez, a 29-year-old professional wrestler, was found dead in his townhouse of unknown causes, authorities said. The body was discovered Tuesday night by his business manager, Walter Ayman of Houston, police said. An automatic gun was found near his partially clad body, according to investigators.

Late Wednesday, the cause of death still had not been determined. Toxicology and other tests were necessary and a ruling would not be made for possibly two weeks, authorities said.

Panel recommends rate reduction

AUSTIN (AP) — Members of Austin's Electric Utilities Commission have voted to recommend that the City Council use $10.8 million of a lawsuit settlement from the South Texas Nuclear Project be used to reduce electric rates for residential and commercial users.

In an out-of-court settlement, the city will receive $120 million over the next seven years from Brown & Root Inc., former builder of the nuclear power plant under construction near Bay City.

Haitian TV ridicules foreign reports

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) tate-run television called reports hat Spain and Greece had turned down requests for political asylum from President-for-Life Jean-Claude Duvalier speculation by "hostile" international media.

The statement Wednesday night n Haitian National TV was the only official reaction to an announcement by the Greek government in Athens that it had rejected a request by Duvalier for political asylum made several days ago through the Haitian Embassy in Venezuela.

A Spanish Foreign Ministry

spokesman in Madrid, Inocencio Arias, said a similar request through a Spanish embassy in an unidentified European country also had been rejected.

Neither country said why it rejected Duvalier's request.

In Bern, the Swiss government also said it had refused a request Wednesday morning from Duvalier to visit Switzerland with his family and an entourage of 50 people. A brief statement by the Swiss Cabinet secretariat said the decision was made by the seven members of the federal executive.

The reports from the three European countries came as Duvalier appeared to have broken what he called an illegal strike by Port-au-Prince merchants that shut down commerce for two days.

The city returned to life Wednes day. Streets filled with traffic, and shoppers crowded the sidewalks.

Most stores had been closed since

Friday, when rioters smashed windows and looted while celebrating an erroneous report that Duvalier had fled the country. That day, Duvalier announced a 30-day state of siege in which the civil rights of Haiti's 6 million people were suspended.

Guatemalan president abolishes secret police

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — President Vinicio Cerezo, whose inauguration less than a month ago ended 16 years of military rule, abolished the feared secret police and ordered the detention and fingerprinting of its 600 members. The Technical Investigations Department, which had jurisdiction over investigations of homicides, robberies and thefts, was one of the security forces most frequently blamed by Guatemalans and human rights organizations for widespread

human rights abuses

"The suspension of activities of the DIT falls within the reorganization of the security forces, especially the police, to guarantee the security of the Guatemalans themselves." Cerezo told a news conference Wednesday, referring to the group by its

Spanish acronym. 'We have received some complaints that cases of theft of automobiles and acts of violence were carried out by personnel of the DIT," he

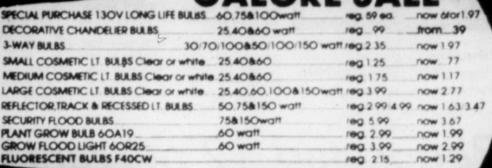

The president announced that the 600 secret police agents were rounded up by the Defense Ministry and a national police unit in a move called "Operation Surprise," and taken to a police barracks in Guatemala City.

Secret policemen were fingerprinted and their personal data registered, he said. Those who are suspected of crimes will be turned over to the courts for prosecution, he said. Others may return to police

President Reagan autographs a copy of his 1987 budget book Wednesday at the White House.

Reagan holds cloudy record as budget forecaster

Reagan shouldn't get mad if critics snicker at his pledge to produce a budget surplus by 1991. He's been

In fact, the president has a history of promising balanced budgets which don't materialize.

In his very first budget proposal to Congress, in March 1981, the president promised to balance the government's books by 1984, the last year of his first term. He projected a surplus in fiscal 1984 of $8.5 billion.

He was slightly off the mark. Instead of a surplus, the government suffered a deficit of $185.3 billion. the third highest level of red ink in

The president in February 1982 forecast a $4 billion surplus by the current fiscal year, 1986. The latest estimates call for a deficit this year, absent budget cuts, of $202.8 billion. Even in years when the president didn't promise budget surpluses, his estimates of the deficits usually have en far afield.

In that first budget submission to Congress, Reagan estimated the 1963 deficit at $2.4 billion. The actual deficit was close to 90 times larger — $207.8 billion in red ink.

With errors like that, the president might be encouraged to give up the forecasting game. But instead, he came back this year with renewed vigor, promising in the bud-get he submitted to Congress on Wednesday that the government would have a $1.3 billion surplus by

But private economists warn that the basis for the president's optimism is likely to be as shaky as the rosy assumptions which derailed previous projections.

To meet the deficit reduction targets established in the Gramm-Rudman balanced-budget law, the president has assumed robust economic growth far above what most private analysts believe is possible.

The budget calls for the econom as measured by the gross nation oduct, to grow by 4 percent in each of the next three years with growth remaining at 3.5 percent or higher through 1991.

If this forecast is achieved, the U.S. economy will enjoy the longest period of growth without a reces on record - 109 straight months. Already, the economy has expanded for 36 straight months, two months longer than the average U.S. recovery has lasted.

Many economists fear the country is overdue for another recession, with some forecasting the next downturn will occur sometime in

A recession, with its sharp drop in government revenues and growth in government expenditures, would play havoc with the administration's forecasts.

Reagan's budget says that even annual growth 1 percent lower than what the administration is forecasting would result in a budget deficit of $76.9 billion in 1991.

Many analysts feel such an outcome is quite likely. The U.S. economy grew just 2.5 percent last year, a year in which the administration year in which the administration had forecast 4 percent growth. Many analysts believe growth for 1986 is likely to be in a range of 2.5 percent to 3 percent.

"The economic assumptions contained in the budget are not realistic," said Laurence Chimerine, president of Chase Econometrics, a private forecasting firm. "If you go about reducing the deficit as dramatically as they are planning to do, that would slow the economy even further. Both Chimerine and David Wyss, Inc., another forecasting firm, predicted growth in 1986 would be around 2.5 percent.

Instead of seeing the deficits shrinking to zero by 1991, Wyss said

DRI was forecasting a 1991 imbalance of between $100 billion and $125 billion based on less optimistic economic assumptions and the belief that Congress will balk at making all the program cuts needed to hit its

Among other economic assumptions, Reagan's budget projects the unemployment rate will decline steadily to 5.6 percent by 1991, down from 6.9 percent currently, while inflation drops to 2 percent that year, the lowest level since 1965.

The administration forecast interest rates will decline as well, dropping from 10.6 percent on average for long-term rates last year to 4.5

Requested 12 percent hike in defense budget draws fire

Reagan's request for a nearly 12 percent increase in defense spending is coming under heavy verbal shellfire from Capitol Hill, with Republicans and Democrats alike predicting it

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger fired his own shots Wednesday, telling the Senate Armed Services Committee that the military budget "has become the target of opportunistic demagoguery, and our security has suffered.

Weinberger told the panel that the $320 billion spending plan for the fiscal year starting Oct 1 is the "minimum I can recommend in good conscience to fund a secure deterrent at a prudent level of risk'

In a beated exchange with Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., Weinberger declined to offer ways to cut the budget. He argued that Congress refused. to honor past compromises with the administration on defense spending and that the Pentagon took an unfair share of budget cuts in past

"We've given at the office, the store and the Pentagon," Weinberger said. "We have not caused the deficit.

Hart responded, "I think it's safe to say you won't get your budget." Earlier, he told Weinberger that "I don't think there's a member of this you're requesting Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., told Weinberger that "steady annual increases are a thing of the past" and "the very best case we can anticipate" is to freeze defense spending.

WASHINGTON (AP) - President committee who believes you're going to get the kind of numbers

Sen. Carl Levin. D-Mich., said, "I do know that this budget request won't fly" and that "this year, the issue isn't whether the defense budget will be cut, but where it will be cut and by how much Later, Sen. David Durenberger, R-Minn, and chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee, predicted Congress will not approve defense increases as it slashes domestic True budget reform means every body comes to the table, including Caspar Weinberger," said Durenberger. "It's time to admit that the Defense Department can cut costs through efficiency and planning. just like everybody else.

Sen Dan Evans, R-Wash, said, "I don't think there is any question that military spending will be cut below the president's request."

The spending plan is the sixth annual installment of Reagan's 1980 campaign pledge to "rearm America." In the past five years, the administration has spent more than $1.2 trillion to buy thousands of planes.

Weinberger urged Congress on Wednesday to stay the course, saying. "We have come too far in the revitalization of the defense program over the last five years to abandon the gains made to date." While the actual increase is 12 percent above the current authorized defense budget. Weinberger contends it is only a 3 percent hike.

But he admitted that he came to that figure by comparing the fiscal 1987 request to the defense budget originally approved for this year, before an $11 billion cut ordered by the Gramm-Rudman deficit-reduction

The Pentagon request is for multiyear budget authority of $311.6 billion, a hike of 11.9 percent over the current budget of $278.4 billion. When money for nuclear weapons produced by the Energy Department is added, that raises total proposed military spending to $320.3 billion.

The latest defense budget includes a large increase in spending for "Star Wars" anti-missile research, a 4 percent pay raise for the troops and a continued flow of cash for almost all major weapons programs.

Star Wars, known formally as the Strategic Defense Initiative, would become the largest single program. rising from $2.75 billion this year to

The services would be permitted to add another 14,000 uniformed personnel, bringing their active-duty strength to 2.18 million. For nuclear weapons, the budget proposed $1.4 billion for full-scale de velopment of the single-warhead "Midgetman" missile, designed as a successor to the 10-warhead MX

Another $1.8 billion is sought for 21 more MX test missiles, along with $3.1 billion for a Trident missile-firing submarine, $1.4 billion for a new generation of more accurate warheads for Trident missiles, and a classified amount for work on the radar-evading Stealth bomber in conventional programs: The Army could buy 840 M-1 tanks, matching this year's production rate, and 870 Bradley Fighting Vehicles, up from 716 this year. Also requested are funds to acquire 78 Blackhawk troop-carrying belicopters and 144 AH-64 Apache attack copters, the same numbers to be acouired this year.

- The Navy would get 21 new ships, including its 14th Trident sub and four new attack submarines. and $721 million to design a new generation of attack subs

- The Navy would get 191 fighter and attack planes and the Air Force would get 254 planes

Farm budget cuts 'turn plowshares into arms'

Reagan's proposal to have food and farm brograms shoulder some of the heaviest cuts in his 1967 budget evoked howls of protest from rural nterests and farm belt lawmakers.

"This proposal is not a realistic answer at a time when economic distress in some farming areas is the most serious in half a century," said Rep. Kika de la Garza, D-Texas, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee

"It just means that a state that's down just gets kicked once more. said Don Avenson, a Democrat who is speaker of the House in lowa the state hardest hit by farming's economic woes "I think that's an incredibly distorted set of priorities for the Midwest I don't see any good for the state coming out of this

Reagan's proposal asks for a cut of 18 percent for the year beginning Oct. 1 in programs administered by the Agriculture Department from crop subsidies and price supports to school lunches.

It asks Congress to put department spending for the fiscal year at $44.6 billion down from the estimated $54.2 billion in the current year. To accomplish the reduction, the acrural lending and conservation and agricultural extension services

CROP AND DAIRY price-support dent's own party programs and food programs operated by the Agriculture Department also would feel the crunch, including a possible requirement that children of families well above the poverty level be required to pay 25 cents more for school lunches.

Administration Budget Director James C. Miller defended the agriculture cuts, saving that even withthem government is still generous a politically viable document Obvito farmers.

The 1985 farm bill is the biggest flood of money ever given to agriculture in the history of the nation," he said adding that the administration had no intention of changing the new law's basic provisions.

Echoing the feelings of many in Congress who questioned the administration's priorities. House Majority Whip Thomas Foley, D-Wash,, said it was "extremely unwise and unfair" to propose a boost in military spending to be financed solely by cuts in agriculture and other domestic

Rep. Edward R. Madigan, R-III.

WASHINGTON (AP) - President ministration would sharply curtail ranking Republican on the House Agriculture Committee, said the administration's farm proposals won't even fly with members of the presi-

Bud Leuthold, president of the National Association of Wheat Growers. said Reagan's proposed budget would "turn plowshares into arms" by continuing "to bleed agriculture to boister preferred programs.

Much of the savings comes from a sharp drop in government commodity programs, which includes crop and dairy price and income subsidies financed by the Commodity Credit Corp. From a record $20.4 billion this year, those are expected to drop to savings is due to income subsidy payments that normally would come out of the 1967 budget having been paid to farmers in advance this year. The Forest Service's 1987 budg would be trimmed to about $1.73 billion from $2.14 billion this year mostly under a plan to reduce state shares of timber sales. Those would decline to $84.9 million next year from the current level of $217.8

Food programs overall would cost about $18.1 billion in 1986-87, down from almost $28.7 billion this year Food stamps outlays would decline to around $11.5 billion from nearly $11.7 billion this year, and participants would drop by about 210,000 people to an estimated 19.5 million

Some of the proposals made in the new budget have been tried previously without success. For example, the Rural Electrification Administration's loan program would be phased out by 1990, with interest rates increased in the meantime. The subsidized insurance operations of the Federal Crop Insurance Corp. would be phased out over five years, and a number of rural development programs would be scrapped or wound

O'Neill skeptical of health care cuts

dent Reagan's 1987 spending plans for health and welfare programs are drawing skeptical reactions, with House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill warning that administration proposals face "scrutiny "to assure that no addtional harm is done to our nation's bealth care system.

Reagan, in his budget submission to Congress Wednesday. summoned long-dead proposals from the past to march again on Capitol Hill, asking for increases in Medicare premiums and deductible payments, a ceiling on Medicaid spending and work requirements for welfare recipients.

Reagan also hinted that catastrophic health insurance might be made available to the public through a joint government-industry program. He ordered a study by Health and Human Services Secretary Otis R. Bowen. who already is pushing a catastrophic insurance program for Medicare beneficiaries.

Details were vague, however, and Bowen's chief aide, Thomas Burke, added later: "I'm sure there's no intent to make this into a national health insurance program."

The catastrophic health insurance program is new, but the rest of Reagan's proposals have been considered and rejected in past

However, O'Neill told the American Hospital Association in a speech Wednesday that other to justify close examination of Reagan's proposal

The president's budget will be scrutinized to assure that no additional harm is done to our nation's health care system." O'Neill said. "Any proposal for catastrophic care coverage will be scrutinized to assure that other cuts do not further curtail the availability of health care to elderly and disabled Americans. Rea Henry Waxman D-Calif. chairman of the health and environment subcommittee, called the budget "a message of despair for the health of America."

But Republican Sen. David Durenberger of Minnesota, chairman of the Senate Finance subcommittee on health, said the budget "shows strongly, and for the first time a White House commitment to balancing the federal

He added, however, "Medicare has bled $38 billion over five years in the name of budget cuts. Through further reforms we can and will save more. But arbitrary budget slashes will only jeopardize the program."

There also was skepticism in the health care industry. Dr. James H. Sammons, executive vice president of the American Medical Association, called the health proposals "absolutely ludicrous," saying that because of the changes, "older citizens, particularly the poor, might have to forego or defer obtaining vitally needed health care."

Immediate $1 billion welfare cut proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) - Without waiting for the results of the comprehensive welfare study he ordered in his State of the Union address Tuesday night. President Reagan already is trying to revamp the government's public assistance programs.

In the budget be submitted to Congress on Wednesday. Reagan proposed to cut spending for the needy by requiring those who can work to get jobs while he shuts down the federal program set up to help welfare recipients find work.

requirement on single parents with small children now receiving welfare is known as "workfare," and Reagan has favored it for years, although Congress has refused to adopt such a plan

He also asked Congress to apply work requirements to all employable food stamp recipients and put a cap on Medicaid spending In directing his Domestic Policy

Council to come up with a strategy by Dec. 1 for overhauling the well fare system, Reagan said "In the welfare culture, the breakdown of the family, the most basic support system, has reached crisis proportions - in female and child proverty, chiid abandonment, horrible crimes and deteriorating schools. Af ter hundreds of billions of dollars in poverty programs, the plight of the poor grows more painful

While the studies proceed. Reagan is asking Congress to take some immediate steps to cut the principal cash assistance program for the poor Aid to Families with Dependent Children - by nearly $1 billion To accomplish that, the budget document suggested requiring all employable welfare applicants "to participate in some form of work related activity.

Reagan also asked Congress to bar unmarried minor mothers from the welfare rolls if they leave home, saying such a step would enhance "perental responsibility and family stability" and would remove existing incentives for young, single parents to "use AFDC to establish financial independence."

President turns 75

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan turns 75 today in a "summing-up" mood as he prepares to celebrate his sixth White House birthday with family and old friends.

Reagan reflected on his advancing age Wednesday as he visited with employees at the Department of Health and Human Services, jesting that he would be 39 for the 36th

In a more serious vein, he said: "This time of year always tends to be a summing-up time for me. It's been swearing-in time and the new year, every year, and the birthday. For the most part, though, the cer surgery since his last birthday. was his usual buoyant self, making a joke of his years as he often does. "A few more of these and I'll be just about due for a midlife crisis," he told employees at the Treasury Department.

Oil tax considered

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan, who repeatedly has opposed tax increases, now says he is ready to consider a new levy on imported oil - but only if the money is used to "buy" lower income taxes for individuals and corporations.

In addition, Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III says, the president also has not ruled out raising the federal tax on gasoline to help pay for the kind of income-tax system he wants

Putting the Reagan administration squarely in conflict with Senate leaders, the president and his top aides on Wednesday repeated their oppo-sition to any kind of tax increase for purposes of reducing the budget def-icit. Before the president will sign any tax-overhaul bill, said Baker, it will have to be "revenue-neutral" neither raise nor lower the tax take produced by present law. No tax-reform bill that's passed. in my view, will be signed if it's not revenue-neutral." Baker told

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - The man charged in two fatal bombings had arranged to sell to two of his intended victims a forgery of the "Salamander letter," - which contradicts the origin of the Mormon Church, court documents show. Mark W. Hofmann, 31, faces 28 counts, including two of capital homicide one of construction or possession of an infernal machine two of delivery of an infernal machine. 18 of theft by deception and 10 of communications fraud. He was arraigned Tuesday as pros ecutors kept mum about details of their case against the Mormon documents dealer. On Wednesday, 5th Circuit Judge Paul Grant lifted an order sealing the probable cause statements, saying publication of information in the documents would not affect Hofmann's right to a fair

Grant continued until today a hearing to determine whether bail would be set for Hofmann, who remained in the infirmary of the Salt Lake County Jail.

Alien's testimony cut

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) - The judge in the sanctuary alien-smuggling conspiracy trial has allowed witness es to give limited testimony about conditions in El Salvador, but sustained a prosecution objection to cut short testimony from a witness who said his brother was killed by "death

The first witness, Jose Rene Argueta, 44, was on the witness stand both Tuesday and Wednesday. He had said hearlier that he told some of the 11 defendants he wanted to enter the United States to find a job.
