Jet flown by rebels bombs Chad airport

airport in the Chadian capital of N'Djamena with a single bomb today, a day after French planes at tacked an airfield built by Libyans in the rebelheld northern part of the country

French Defense Minister Paul Quiles called the attack "a blind bombardment carried out by a Libyan Tupolev flying at very high altitude," and said France planned to send a "dissuasion force" to the north-central African country and station air craft at N'Djamena's airport.

Quiles did not specify what kind of force was involved or how many men would be sent. He said, however, that it did not represent a second "Manta," the name given the French military intervention in Chad in 1983-84.

What happened this morning very much resembles a bluff, but France maintains its determination to help the Chadian government," Quiles said. The N'Djamena airport, used for civilian and military purposes, was only partly damaged and no one was injured in the attack by the Tupolev 22.

the French Defense Ministry said. The runway "remains usable" for small planes despite the 7 a.m. attack, the ministry said. Quiles said it "will be used in the new few hours to station French aircraft.

Quiles also denied Libyan statements saying the airfield in northern Chad, attacked by the French on Sunday, was a civilian facility, and said it was bombed on President Francois Mitterrand's order following a request from Chad's president, Hissene

"Ouadi Doum," Quiles said, "is a military base equipped as such. It was widely damaged at six different places. Forty bombs were dropped."

Habre's government, based at N'Djamena in southern Chad, receives military assistance from France in its fight against Libyan-backed rebels of former President Goukouni Oueddei based in the northern part of the country.

Chad says Libyan soldiers have alongside the rebels in a new offensive that began

The rebels are known to have only a few small planes, but a report by the Libyan news agency JANA from northern Chad said the jet that attacked the N'Djamena airport belonged to the "Government of Chadian National Unity Ahmed Allam-Mi, Chad's ambassador to Paris, said the Libyans were pursuing an "armed escala-

of the French government.

Official Tripoli radio has denied that the air strip in Ouadi Doum, about 560 miles north of N'Djamena, had any military function. "It is used for landing medical supplies and food for the famine victims in the north of Chad," the radio said

Mohammed Sharfeddin Fitouri, the Libyan information minister, said in a statement issued in Tripoli: "We believe this barbaric act is criminal and without justification.

We truly cannot accept that the Chad issue and the dignity of the Chadian people and the sanctity of its lands be used as an electoral gimmick for the benefit of the current French government," he Mitterrand and his Socialist Party are involved in a tough campaign against conservatives for March 16 parliamentary elections.

Sharfeddin's said that "what the French forces did is a foolish action which will cause the whole world to rise against French presence in the African continent and will prompt Africans to continue their sustained struggle against this colonialism

Abderrahman Moussa, the rebels' representative in Paris, called French intervention "unjustified" and said only rebel forces were involved in the fighting.

Moussa said today that the rebeis and their Liby an allies would continue to retaliate as they deemed necessary. He said the rebel movement renewed once more its warnings to the French government about the risks of internationalizing the internal conflict in Chad."

Friday night, the French military sent 200 commandos to N'Djamena to protect the airport during the unloading of French transport planes that are stepping up deliveries of promised military aid to the Habre government.

It was the second time France gave military sup port to Habre's government in its fight against Goukouni, whom Habre ousted in June 1982.

France sent 3,000 soldiers to Chad in 1963 to help halt an offensive by the rebeis and Libyan forces Fighting ended when France and Libya agreed to withdraw the following year, leaving Chad effectively divided into a rebel-controlled north and government-controlled south

France said it would intervene again if the rebeis attacked below the truce line, which they did

Operation Crime Watch officers' latest crime prevention tool

Staff Writer

Midland residents who have noticed local utility workers giving them the once-over lately should feel reassured rather than alarmed, according to Sgt. E.M. Camarillo of the Midland Police Department's Crime Prevention Unit.

It's all part of Operation Crime Watch, in which workers for Southwestern Bell, the Texas Electric Service Co., Dimension Cable Services, Energas and the City of Midland are being trained to report suspicious activities to police.

"It's just like having more police patrols out there," said Camarillo. We have had quite a few calls."

Local utilities have agreed to participate in the program, which is designed to take advantage of the fact that utility trucks equipped with two-way radios spend a lot time parked in residential neighborhoods. Workers who see something suspicious can radio their dispatchers, who then alert police. Operation Crime Watch is the latest program mounted by local crimeprevention specialists to fight crime by preventing it from happening in the first place

The idea is to alert people to secure their homes before the crime is committed," Camarillo said.

The concept of crime prevention as a law-enforcment tool began in Britain, and has been encouraged in the United States by the use of federal grants, according to MPD Officer Ron Benton, who with Camarillo and Officer Chuck Chapman comprises the MPD's Crime-Prevention Unit.

The MPD and Midland Sheriff's Office offer free security surveys for homes and businesses, and homeowners who follow the officers' recommendations are eligible for a 5 percent insurance discount, Benton

There's no such thing as a burgiar-proof home," said Sgt. B. John McDaniel of the Sheriff's Office Crime-Prevention Unit, but making it harder for burglars to break in slows them down and gives police more time to react. The MPD has surveyed about 16,000 homes since 1972, according to Benton. Of the homeowners who followed the officers' suggestions, only seven have been burglarized, he said, and none lost more than $200 worth of property. Crime-Prevention officers also help organize Neighborhood Watch groups, in which neighbors keep an eye out for suspicious activity to report to police. "It unites people where they can work together along with the Police Department," Camarillo said.

They're real effective," said Benton, who estimated that there are 158 active Neighborhood Watch groups in the city, mostly covering two- or three-block areas.

After one woman recently reported a suspicious car in her neighborhood, police broke up a burgiary ring which had been responsible for about 190 burglaries, he said.

Regulators blamed for utility industries' woes

AUSTIN - Back in the good old days, when fuel was cheap and demand was high, electric utilities did In fact, they did very well.

out large power plants and could count on a steady stream of customers to use the power they produced.

Electricity was cheap, and getting cheaper all the time, even though just about everything else was getting more expensive.

But by the early 1970s, things looked quite different.

The 1973 Arab oil embargo — and subsequent national policy - forced utilities to switch from oil and gas back to coal. But environmentalists opposed coal-fired plants because of the acid rain they produce.

Many utilities thought they had found a clean and cost-efficient answer in nuclear powered plants, but then Three Mile Island and a spate of regulatory constraints created new and greater obstacles.

Rapidly rising fuel costs, doubledigit inflation, uncertain government policies and a variety of other factors beyond utilities' control sent the industry into a nose dive from which it has never recovered.

That, in a nutshell, is Wall Street analyst Leonard Hyman's view of the nation's electric utility industry Hyman, who heads the Utility Re search Group at Merrill Lynch Capital Markets, fleshes out that view in his new book "America's Electric Utilities: Past, Present and Future.

Aquino objects to U.S. actions that legitizmize Marcos' victory

MANILA, Philippines (AP) - Corazon Aquino, who met today with U.S. diplomatic troubleshooter Philip Habib, objected to any American action that could lend legitimacy to Presi-dent Ferdinand E. Marcos's election victory over her.

Mrs. Aquino contends she won the Feb. 7 special presidential election. but was thwarted by government of-ficials and the Marcos-controlled National Assembly, which declared Marcos the victor late Saturday.

The following day, Mrs. Aquino called for nationwide protest strikes and boycotts to begin the first working day after Marcos' Feb. 26 inauguration. She also called upon the Philippine military and police to disobey orders that were "unjust."

Satanic worship by El Paso teens causing concern

EL PASO (AP) - Christene Mireles says she didn't know she was among satanists when she attend ed a party with her classmates and some of their friends. But the 14-year-old student then learned what police and educators in El Paso had known for

She found out that some of the approximately 25 people at the party were angry with her be-cause she would not become one of them and join in their worship of the devil.

A group of girls suddenly converged on Miss Mireles and starting beating her up.

She cried out to one of the adults for help, but the man en-couraged the fight to continue,

"I didn't know they were all satanists," said Miss Mireles, who spent eight hours in the hospital.
The young girl said she was beaten because she had refused to become a satanist.
The case is an example of the growing devil-worship fad among El Paso teen-agers that is causing concern among parents, police, educators and counselors, the El Paso Times reported Sunday.
At least two junior high schools
recently changed their dress codes in an effort to clamp down on the fad, the newspaper said. Henderson Junior High and Vista Del Sol Junior High, Miss Mireles' school, have banned occult symbols such as "666," penta grams, upside-down crosses and swastikas. Also banned are heavy metal rock T-shirts with satanic Nick Cobos, assistant principal at Henderson, said the fad is

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) -Before and after photographs may determine today if wreckage spotted on the floor of the Atlantic Ocean is part of the right booster rocket that is a leading suspect in the explosion of space shuttle Challenger.

The four-man research submarine ohnson Sea-Link 2 reported Sunday it had photographed components be-lieved to be sections of the 149 foot rocket 1,200 feet deep about 45 miles northeast of Cape Canaveral.

Meanwhile, a reliable source, speaking on condition he not be identified, said warnings before liftoff that Challenger might not have been safe prompted a presidential commission to say the decision to launch "may have been flawed."

NASA spokesman George Diller said the photographs of the wreckage will be compared today with pic-tures of the rocket taken before the Jan. 28 launching that ended in tragedy with the deaths of the seven crew members.

The submarine's floodlights illuminated the murky water, which had hampered previous efforts by smaller robot submersibles to locate the rocket. Sonar images earlier had indicated the booster parts might be in

Officials said recovery of the parts will be tricky, because of the poor visibility and strong currents.

The Sea-Link 2, a private vessel, just Saturday joined four NASA ships and a Navy salvage vessel in the search for Challenger's debris on

The fuel tank, holding nearly 500,000 gallons of liquid hydrogen and liquid oxygen, exploded at 73 seconds, eight miles high, killing the seven crew members, including New Hampshire schoolteacher Christa McAuliffe.

In a statement issued in Washington Saturday, Rogers said the commission had concluded the decision to launch the shuttle "may have been flawed" and asked NASA not to permit any of those involved in the decision to take part in the agency's own investigation of the accident.

"We don't know whether it's talking about five people, 100 people or hundreds of people. You can talk about Mission Control in Houston, the contractors, the launch control center team at the Kennedy Space Center.'

He said William Graham, NASA's acting administrator, "is reviewing the whole procedure" and that the agency probably would have no official comment before Tuesday.

Rogers, Graham and commission member Neil Armstrong, the first man to walk on the moon, are to testify Tuesday about the accident before the Senate subcommittee on science, technology and space.

The space agency has established its own investigative task force of several hundred engineers and technicians working in specialized units. It is coordinating its work with the commission.

Mark Weinberg, the commission spokesman, said he could not elaborate on Rogers' statement. Nor would he speculate on how many people might be excluded from the investigation.

"That will be up to Dr. Graham," he said. "This is standard for most accident investigations.'

A NASA statement Sunday said only that its task force was being restructured.

Seems like the main advantage of all these meetings is people getting together and getting to know their neighbors," said McDaniel, who pointed out that it's hard to report strangers to police when one's neighbors are strangers, too.

There are about 20 active Neighborhood Watch groups in rural Mid-land, according to McDaniel, who along with Sheriff's Deputy Keith Turner is responsible for crime-prevention programs outside the city

Other crime-prevention programs include identifying people's proper-ty with numbers so if it's stolen and later recovered, it can be returned to the owner; fingerprinting children so they can be returned if lost or kidnapped; warning senior-citizen groups about con men and their tricks; providing programs on drug abuse for schools and businesses; and conducting safety programs for young schoolchildren which, among other things, teach them to avoid suspicious strangers.

I think this is one reason that we haven't had a boy or girl turn up missing in this town," Benton said. "We start talking to them in kindergarten. By the time they get up to the first grade, they're pretty much briefed on this stuff.

is getting people to use them, McDaniel said.

"I think it makes a difference," he said. "It kind of bothers me that people don't take advantage of it a little bit more.

To spread awareness of what crime-prevention programs can do, law-enforcement officers from all over West Texas gathered in Midland in December to form the Permian Basin Crime Prevention Association, with Benton as president.

And McDaniel said the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission is considering forming a regional crime-prevention unit, which could be of help to smaller law-enforcement agencies which can't afford their own units. Having to promote their services is not something most law-enforcement officers must deal with, but at least crime-prevention specialists get to meet the public under relatively pleasant circumstances, notes McDaniel.

When most law-enforcement officers meet the public, "Somebody's either just been ripped off or they're going to jail," he said. With crimeprevention programs, "People realize you're out there to help."

They're inviting us out," said Benton. "It's very rewarding because you're out there on a positive basis to start with. That's what makes this

For the most part, Hyman blames regulators for the industry's woes. They waited too long to increase rates, he says, which kept demand high and profits low.

More importantly, Hyman says, many states have created a regulatory climate that makes utilities reluctant to invest money in new projects because they're afraid they won't make a big enough profit.

"I think you can look at the utility industry and see a great reluctance to make major commitments on an investment that is not going to come to fruition for 10 years," says Gulf States Utilities Co. spokesman David He says the nation's utilities are

"severely concerned" that regulators might not treat them fairly when it omes to capital investments. "It becomes a scary circumstance to make a billion-dollar investment...and not feel that there is a reasonable chance of getting a fair rate of return," White says.

But Jim Boyle, who represents residential and small commerical ratepayers at the Public Utility Commission of Texas, disagrees.

"If there are any instances where a utility didn't build something because they thought they weren't going to earn a profit on invested capital, I'm not aware of it," Boyle says. "I don't see them scratching anyth-

Boyle characterized Hyman as "a salesman for the utilities" who does not distinguish between good and bad management.

"He's selling whatever bundles of cash he thinks utilities need, regardless of whether they were run efficiently or prudently," he says.

The only cure for the industry's problems, Boyle says is for stockholders to pressure utilities to better manage their affairs. "It's imper-fect," he says. "But that's the only remedy that's out there.

Jack Hopper, an independent utility consultant who helped write the Public Utility Regulatory Act in 1975, says utilities only started complaining about the regulatory process after they made "some grevious blunders.' "All the utilities acted like sheep in the early 1970s and everybody had to have a nuclear plant," Hopper says. "And that's where their problems are right now." He says most commissions, including Texas', "haven't had the guts to address the issue of overinvestment, particularly in nuclear plants.' Hopper says he knows of no regulatory commission that is unwilling to put "prudent, needed construction" into a utility's rate base. "The ones I've seen being excluded are those that were questionable or imprudent," he says. Public Utility Commissioner Jo Campbell says the state's current regulatory process is "a very fair process, and about as ideal a process as we can have.' The Texas commission does encourage utilities to invest capital but only in prudent projects, she

"I would agree that danger is there," she says, "but it still means that we follow the law and that's all a utility should expect, that's all that they were ever supposed to get, and that should not discourage them" from building new plants, if they are As an example, Ms. Campbell said the commission recently approved a power plant associated with strip mining in Central Texas. "We did that because it was an outstanding financial arrangement and offered the promise of real savings to ratepayers," she says.

Ms. Campbell says one of the things the commission is considering is a generic rate of return for all investor-owned Texas utilities. Under that sort of arrangement, an efficiently run utility would reap a higher percentage of the return than a utility that is run inefficiently.

"From that aspect, I think at least this commission is attempting to do what we can to bring a competitive marketplace into bearing on our regulatory treatment," she says.

ClayDesta television ads win award

From Staff Reports

Admarc's television campaign of Midlander Clayton W. Williams Jr. promoting his ClayDesta Communications and other ClayDesta television promotionals won the "Best of Show" award in the 1985 Addy Awards sponsored by the Permian Basin Advertising Federation (PBAF) last weekend.

And the Addy's Silver Medalist award went to Midland advertising executive Pete Snelson for his excellence in advertising, dedication to community, and service to the people of Texas in his roles as state representative and state senator.

Last year's Silver Medalist winner was Ray Herndon, former general manager of KMID-TV, Channel 2, of Midland.

Snelson was first elected to the Texas House of Representatives in 1960 and then was elected to the Texas Senate in 1964. He retired from the Senate to run for Texas Land Commissioner in 1982. He lost that campaign in a rup-off election.

Currently, Snelson, a Democrat, is campaigning for the 21st District Congressional seat. He has been president of Snelson

Advertising Agency since 1955. Admarc's campaign featured Williams in outdoor Western settings on a horse and by the campfire - in promoting his communications business. Admarc's executives are Kent Randel, president; Joe Milam, vice president, and Darrell Dunton, vice president for creative advertising.

Milam today said that his agency was "real proud of the acceptance and recognition" which the Clay-Desta campaign gained in the Permian Basin and through the State in a

"tough market."

Admarc's winning the "Best of Show" is evidence that effective and "great ideas are just as prevalent in the Permian Basin as they are anywhere else in the country." He noted that effective advertising doesn't just originate from Dallas, Chicago, Houston, Los Angeles and other metropolitan areas but also from the Midland-Odessa area.

The annual Addy awards recognize excellence in advertising, according to Gary Bain, PBAF president. Bain said that 271 entries were entered in the competition in such advertising categories as sales promotion, speciality advertising, direct mail, newspaper, radio and television. Winners received gold, silver and merit awards.

Black woman fulfills dream to head bank

DALLAS (AP) — Arlender Jones vowed while growing up in Mississippi, where her father was a farmer, that she would become a bank president when she grew up.

That pledge has been realized. Ms. Jones, a former examiner for the Comptroller of the Currency, now has her own bank to run.

Last month she was elected president of Sunbelt National Bank, an institution that has been fraught with problems since its incorporation in 1983.

Ms. Jones, 34, who is black, remembers her childhood visit to a bank in Holly Springs, Miss., where her parents were rudely received and had to pledge the entire farm for a single season's loan.

As a 10th-grader, she recalls her hurt pride and her announcement to her mother that "I'm going to be a bank president when I grow up."

After that day, she says, "there was nothing else I ever wanted to Sunbelt National.

Eighteen months after its opening, federal bank examiners found $400,000 in bad loans, a significant amount for a young bank with just $1.7 million in capital and $12.5 million in assets.

Last August when the regulators demanded the bank add $1.4 million to its loan loss reserves and hire a new president, several officers

Ms. Jones, whose job with the comptroller's office had brought her to Dallas, had quit to open a singles club in 1984.

One day she met with some former co-workers from the comptroller's office who told her about Sunbelt's problems. Ms. Jones decided to apply for the job.

Last September, she was named interim president and last month was officially elected to the post.

Ads aimed at Hispanic market often miss the mark

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Advertisers attempting to reach the Hispanic market have made some embarrase market have made some embarrassing mistakes because of problems in translation of advertising slogans from English into Spanish, a marketing expert says.

Huberto Valencia, assistant professor of marketing at Texas Tech University at Lubbock, says the mistakes have occurred due to the marketers' limited understanding of Hispanic limited understanding of Hispanic culture and language.

The true meaning frequently gets twisted around, as in the example of a beer company that translated its "turn it loose" slogan into Spanish. They learned too late that the message to Spanish-speaking consumers had become, "Our beer causes diarrhea," Valencia told the San Antonio

A pet food manufacturer tried the humorous approach, but once again the message was lost in translation,

The situation depicted a certain feline as having died eight times and, if he did not eat this particular cat food, he was going to die for the ninth and final time. The language used was correct, but the agency failed to realize one major difference: in Latin folk culture, cats have only seven lives. The commercial bombed.

Another commercial that bombed was one by a telephone company campaign depicting a woman telling her husband to "run downstairs and phone Maria to tell her we'll be a ittle late."

The Hispanic culture was not taken into account. In the Hispanic home, Valencia said, seldom does a woman give her husband orders. And rarely will a family call to say they will be late. It is customary to arrive late, he said.

Sometimes the translation is made too literally. Valencia cited an advertisement by a chicken company. The ad in English said, "It takes a tough man to make a chicken tender." The slogan was understood in Spanish as, 'It takes a sexually excited man to make a chick sensual."

All sorts of problems arise in translation and wording, Valencia says. For example, a beer company used the wrong gender in one of its campaigns. Beer, cerveza, is a feminine noun in Spanish and should have been labeled the "queen" rather than the "king" of beers.

A cigarette advertisement claimed that it had "less asphalt" rather than less tar, he said.

A beer company found out the hard way that its ad was being sung incorrectly in the Spanish media. The company's "less filling, deli-cious" claim came across as "filling, less delicious."

Professors to present new Church of Christ hymnal

ABILENE (AP) — Two Abilene Christian University professors have spent the last five years edit-ing what they hope will be the Church of Christ hymnal of the 21st century.

The professors will present the first copy of the "Great Songs of the Church, Revised" to ACU President William Teague tonight during the university's annual Bible Lectureship.

Officials said the lectureship, put on by the Churches of Christ, is expected to draw 12,000 visitors from all over the country to Abilene early this week.

The editor of the new hymnal is English professor Dr. Forrest McCann. Dr. Jack Boyd, a musicology professor, is music editor

Officials said the new edition is the first complete overhaul of the "Great Songs" hymnal since 1937. Elmer Leon Jorgenson first compiled the book in 1921. It is one of the most widely used hymnals in the Churches of Christ. More than a million copies of "Great Songs of the Church" have sold over the past 65 years. "The younger people under 40 wanted music and words that fit them," said Boyd. "We are now more of an urban society; far too many of the hymns have rural

Boyd said the old song, "Bringing in the Sheaves," was not included in the new hymnal, but

"Victory in Jesus," a newer popular hymn, was added.
"We took the collection we had, 670 songs approximately, and de-leted one-third of these which over the years had proved not to be useful," said McCann.

"The book contains only the quality materials from the first century to the present," he said. McCann said because Church of Christ congregations sing a cappella, many of the songs were given different arrangements to make them more suitable.

The old hymnal was out of date, he said, reflecting a 19th century

Boyd said he arranged his songs with the congregation in mind. "We are a city people; we need city hymns," he said. He said that exceptions are songs he calls "everyman" hymns. Songs that have survived 500 or 600 years have something that will fit into every society, some quality that is universal, like 'A Mighty Fortress is Our God.

We think this hymnal will set the standard for hymnais. It is a state of the art," Boyd said.

Rule hasn't affected failure rates, paper reports

AUSTIN (AP) — The controversial no-pass, no-play rule has had no apparent effect on failure rates in several of the state's largest school districts during its first year, a survey

Statistics from large and small Texas school districts indicate the percentage of students receiving failing grades has changed little and even risen in some cases - in the six grading periods since the rule went into effect, the Austin American-Statesman reported Sunday.

Critics of the rule say it is not working. Supporters say Texans need to give it more time. No pass, no play - associated for the past year with heated political debates, disgruntled parents and tearful cheerleaders — is a provision of the education reforms approved by the Legislature in 1984.

Under the rule, which took effect in January 1985, any student receiving a failing mark in a course is barred from extracurricular activities for the next six-week grading

Waelder High School in Gonzalez County lost its football squad last fall because of the rule. Students with lead roles in school plays have been relegated to the audience. School bands have lost entire sections. Student council, debate teams, choirs and drill teams also have been affected.

When no pass, no play was enacted, some Texans predicted that its no-nonsense philosophy would decrease emphasis on extracurricular activities and force students to take academics more seriously.

While individuals may have been inspired to perform better, the rule has not dramatically affected overall failure rates, the American-Statesman reported.

For instance, 36 percent of Austin high school students received at least one failing grade during the first six weeks of the fall semester in 1984, before the no pass, no play rule took effect. Forty percent received a failing grade for the same period in 1985. The passing mark is 70 and above on a 100-point scale. The same pattern is evident in the failure rates of other districts.

In the Dallas, San Antonio and Round Rock districts, the percentage of students receiving a failing grade was higher in the most recent grading period than in the first or second grading periods last spring.

The percentage of Dallas students receiving a failing grade fell from 55 percent to 50 percent during the spring semester, but rose from 57 to 59 percent in the fall semester. Most other large school districts could not supply the American-

Statesman with a complete breakdown of failure rates for all six grading periods. The state does not require the districts to keep track of that information. The percentage of high school students receiving a failing grade rose from 46 to 49 in Fort Worth during the fall semester. The percentage of those receiving an "F" in the same time period rose from 38 to 43 in Grades 7 through 12 in the Ysleta district in El Paso County. Spring figures are not available.

Corpus Christi reported that the students failing a class dropped slightly from 44 percent in the spring semester to 43 percent in the fall semester.

The number of failing San Anto-nio students rose from 45 percent in the final spring grading period to 51 percent in the last fall period.

The upward pattern was not evident in figures from the El Paso district, although statistics for the most recent period were not available. The Houston school district gathers failure-rate data only for student

H. Ross Perot, the Dallas businessman who headed a state advisory committee that engineered the passage of 1984 education reforms, said last week he isn't surprised that the no-pass, no-play rule has not improved grades quickly.

However, we feel there is a good chance your best contract is four hearts, even on a 4-3 fit, since you can take a spade ruff in the short-trump hand. Therefore, we would content ourselves with a jump to four clubs.

The writing contest closed at midnight Saturday and at least another 800 entries postmarked before the deadline are expected to come in, said Cheryl Thom, spokeswoman for Harry's Bar & American

She said entries have been received from almost every state and many countries.

Each entrant must submit a one-page story written in the manner of Ernest Hemingway, who was a frequent customer at the original Harry's Bar in Venice, Italy.

Contest judges are authors Ray Bradbury, Barnaby Conrad and George Plimpton, Los Angeles Herald Examiner book editor Dighy Diehl, Jack Hemingway, son of the author, advertising executive Paul Keye, Los Angeles Times columnist Jack Smith, and Bernice Kaye, author of "The Hemingway Women.

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) - Queen Elizabeth II arrived in the Himalayan kingdom of Nepal today on a four-day state visit that will focus attention on the fabled Gurkha soldiers who have served in the British armed forces for more than 150 years.

The queen and her husband, Prince Philip, the duke of Edinburgh, were greeted by Nepal's King Birendra and Queen Ashiwarya on their arrival in the world's only Hindu monarchy, a nation of 16 million people.

It has been 25 years since the queen visited Nepal.

Queen Elizabeth and the duke arrived at Tribhuvan International Airport in the shadow of the world's tallest mountains aboard a special British Airways Tri-star. After greeting the Nepalese royalty, she inspected an honor guard of Gurkha troops. Five young Nepalese girls in bright costumes presented her with

Among those scheduled to meet the queen are seven holders of the Victoria Cross, Britain's highest bravery award, and 50 holders of the Military Cross or Military Medal.

Tight security was ordered for the queen's visit, which comes eight months after a series of terrorist bomb attacks in Nepai killed seven people and wounded more than 20.

Anti-monarchist exile groups based in India claimed responsibility for the attacks, the first political terrorism ever in Nepal.

Today, the royal couples drove in past tens of thousands of onlookers to the capital's Durbar Square area, famous for its pagoda-style Hindu temples. Hundreds of schoolgiris in colorful uniforms stood on the steps of the multitiered temples, waving handerkerchiefs and British and Nepali flags.

A dozen young women in purple saris sprinkled flowers before Queen Elizabeth as she walked to Kasthamandap Temple, an intricate three-story wooden pagoda carved from the timber of a single tree in the 16th century.

Inside, she signed a visitors' book and was presented a key to the city by Mayor Kamal Chitrakar.

Then the queen and King Birendra rode in a green, open-air carriage drawn by six horses to the modern royal palace, called Naryanhati, or Fountain of God. They were followed by Prince Philip and Queen Ashiwarya in a burgundy coach.

The throngs lining the route included tribal dancers and musicians, Buddhist monks, and athletes in jogging suits and judo outfits.

The royal couples passed under dozens of banners with slogans including "Three Cheers For Her Majesty" and "Long Live World Peace."

Deadly medicine

hat would motivate a person to "lace" a medicine such as Tylenol with a deadly poison?

A reasonable person can at least comprehend why a killer would resort to the use of cyanide-laced capsules, although not condoning the taking of an innocent person's life. The excuse in such an instance would probably be to erase the murderer's "footprints" by making his or her trail too difficult to trace. The hopedfor result? An unsolved murder mystery.

That may be an appropriate story-line for "Murder, She Wrote" but in the case of the real-life Tylenol poisonings, the motivation could be more difficult to pinpoint.

For example, while something as ordinary as the murder of one of the poisoner's acquaintances could well be the intent, it's not beyond the realm of imagination to consider that the poisonings might be the work of a demented person who has no preference who becomes his victims.

Beyond that, it's certainly possible that the poisonings could be a carefully orchestrated attempt by a disgruntled Johnson & Johnson employee or ex-employee to exact a degree of satisfaction by significantly reducing sales of the product. The cost of a number of lives is awfully expensive revenge.

Regardless of the motivation, though, the terrorization of the American public by the Tylenol poisoner has to be stopped as quickly as law enforcement officers can pinpoint and arrest suspects. The longer the mystery continues, the greater the possibility of a "copy-cat" effect starting, and that would be tragic.

Giving back to the public the confidence it formerly had when taking non-prescription medication is an important consideration. Stopping the poisonings should be of the highest priority.

judgment on the military-civilian junta that has taken over the government of Haiti from exiled president-for-life "Baby Doc" Duvalier but it already is behaving in a manner to cause some disquiet.

Its promise, for example, to conduct a national election without specifying a date for such an event has a disturbingly familiar ring to those who have a dictatorship overthrown only to be supplanted by another just as hateful.

And among the Haitian people concern is being felt over the presence, in the new government, of some old faces from the ed Duvaner regime. Inere could be, however, an acceptable explanation for this. New governments must often rely on holdover seasoned functionaries just to keep day-to-day public ny, in 1945, the American Military Government found it necessary to call back a number of former Nazi Party members for this purpose.

Meanwhile, the Reagan administration merits a special pat on the back for its handling of the Haitian crisis from the very outset. With some help from church leaders, the U.S. brought legitimate pressure, eventually forcing the ouster of Duvalier and preventing widespread carnage. The administration also consulted with the government of France, obtaining consent in advance to a temporary refuge there for Duvalier and his hours, while the chancery building

One man's difference

The heroism of Anatoly Shcharansky must not be obscured in the convergence of multinational interests that brought him across the Glienicke Bridge in Berlin Tuesday. For a decade he has defied torture and cruelty in the cause of human dignity and freedom.

He refused, even at the price of freedom, to acknowledge concocted charges that he had spied for the CIA. He refused even to plead for mercy lest that confess guilt, That he was finally included in a swap of Soviet-bloc and Western spies fools no one. His crime — and in the Soviet Union it is a crime — was that he claimed his right as a Jew to emigrate to Israel, his right as a Soviet citizen to express dissent and his right as a political prisoner to simple decencies like mail and a visit from his mother.

What compounded Shcharansky's crime in the Kremlin's eyes was that he, his wife, Avital, the United States and Israel made his case a powerful symbol of resistance, an inspiration to thousands of other Soviet "refuseniks" and an embarrassment to Communists everywhere. Thus a KGB persecution intended to discredit the Jewish emigration movement became instead that movement's rallying cry - and the Shcharansky case became a barometer of East-West relations. How can a lone Soviet citizen attain such influence? Only through extraordinary dedication and suffering.

But in a society in which many suffer, one cannot lightly dare to such extremes, forfeiting the simplest comforts and the bonds of family and friends to drama-tise the lack of liberty. To do so so reproaches the acquiescent najority and arouses its resentnt. The Kremlin won't find it ard at home to portray Shcharansky as an unpatriotic renegade. It pays no great domestic price for giving him up and deserves little gratitude.

What the Soviets do deserve is credit for rational calculation of important international interests. Their leaders are looking to repair the Soviet image and influence abroad, perhaps with other important concessions. They seem to be pointing at last toward permitting on-site inspection as part of arms control. They may be interested now in cooperating to combat terrorism. To enlarge their influence in Europe and the Middle East, they may even be willing to release other prisoners of conscience and to reopen the gates for Soviet Jews.

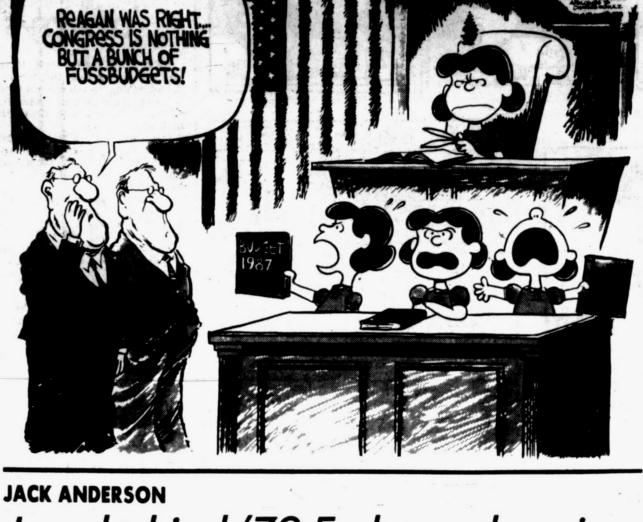

That prospect has not been lost on Israel. Even more than Shcharansky's freedom, Israel has wanted to tap the vast pool of Soviet Jewry to enlarge the proportion of educated Europeans in its society. That is why Prime Minister Peres did not mind pleading a Soviet interest in Africa by urging South Africa to reciprocate the Shcharansky release with the release of Nelson Mandela. Peres now wants diplomatic relations with Moscow, even if it complicates America's role in his region.

Diplomacy thrives on these complex calculations of national interest. But there are times when one man, providing romance and focus, can make a difference. Anatoly Shcharansky is such a man.

Iran behind '79 Embassy burning

ASHINGTON — Evidence stashed away in the vaults of the CIA suggests that Iranian agitators played a key role in an anti-American outrage that was initially ignited by Soviet disinformation: the sacking and burning of the U.S. Embassy in Islamabad by a Pakistani mob on Nov. 21, 1979.

The mob had been driven to an apparently spontaneous frenzy by radio reports that falsely charged the United States with instigating the takeover the Grand Mosque in day before. Descending on the embassy compound in buses, the rioters forced more than 100 U.S. and Pakistani personnel to take refuge in a room-sized security vault. They huddled there in suffocating heat, amid smoke and tear gas fumes for five burned around them.

By a near-miracle, only two Americans died in the melee: a 20-year-old Marine guard killed by sniper fire and a 30-year-old Army chief warrant officer, who succumbed when trapped in his burning apartment.

As we have reported previously, secret CIA reports indicate that KGB disinformation specialists were responsible for the inflammatory report that the United States (and Israel) engineered the seizure of the Grand Mosque. The absurd report was broadcast during a soccer match, and was widely believed despite immediate U.S. denials.

It now appears that the Iranians played a crucial part in the Islamabad embassy attack. Part of the Ira-nian effort was public; part was the was sure the Iranian passenger

At the time of the attack - about two weeks after the takeover of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran — Iranian officials openly accused the United States of complicity in the mosque seizure by religious extremists. Only a few hours before the mob formed, a radio broadcast from Iran into Pakistan quoted the Ayatollah Khomeini as saying:

"It is not unlikely that criminal U.S. imperialism did this in an attempt to infiltrate the solid ranks of Islam. Moslems must not let down their guard and should expect this kind of dirty act by American imperialism and international Zionism." Intelligence reports from Pakistan in the weeks following the embassy sacking implicated a cadre of Iranian "students" as agitators who incited the Pakistanis, and virtually led the mob to the embassy.

Five years later, in December 1984, the CIA found another piece of the puzzle during a routine briefing of Charles Kapar, an Agency for International Development employee who had survived a Kuwaiti airliner hijacking. Two AID colleagues were brutally murdered by the hijackers, and Kapar and an American businessman were systematically tortured before finally being released at the Tehran airport.

During their six-day ordeal, Kapar realized that two Iranian passengers were acting as spies for the hijackers, relaying any hints of passenger resistance. And Kapar was sure he had seen one of the Iranians before, though he couldn't remember where

Before his subsequent debriefing by the CIA, recognition dawned on Kapar: The Iranian had been in the mob that stormed the embassy in Islamabad in 1979. As luck would have it, Kapar had been among 16 Americans at AID headquarters who eson the Kuwaiti airliner had been part of the mob, which swung by the AID building in buses before attacking the embassy.

Kapar confirmed to us his identification of the Iranian "sleeper" on the airliner as one of those who led the 1979 attack in Islamabad.

"The Iranians were agitating all over the place at the time," he said. There was a distinct suspicion that they started the whole thing."
With incredible luck, Kapar apparently crossed paths with the Iranian agent provocateur twice - and lived to tell the tale.

CHARLEY REESE Government sometimes gets in way

Turner died recently at age 37, it was clearly a case of a bad thing happening to good people. His widow, Nan, and his two children are taking it hard.

Turner's short life is another American success story. Turner was born in McCall. a rough little town just south of the state line

where the

item in the string of juke joints is blood and beer. As folks around here put it,

That boy started with nothing." If he started with nothing in his pockets, however, he had plenty of sand in his craw. A Vietnam veteran and a big man who could lift 400 pounds, Turner worked hard, saved his money, and educated himself. He had two degrees and was just shy of completing another when fate cut his thread.

It was not the nice little house in the country or the degrees that made Turner special, though. He had come back to McCall to be a school principal and a living example to the kids in that hard little place that you don't have to accept your status quo.

When the tornado of '84 ripped through John's Station and nearby Bennetsville, Turner took people into his home and opened his barn so they could store what stuff survived the storm.

The Lumbee Indians live in that area and the people say that if the Indians like you, you cannot find better friends on the face of the earth. What they value most in a person is sincerity, and they liked John Turner very much.

Two years ago, Turner had a small melanoma cut out of his big arm. For a year and a half, his regular checkups showed no sign that the cancer had returned. Then, on what he thought was another routine examination, they found tumors in his brain and lungs. Thirty days later he

Turner never quit, though. If he had to die, he wanted to die in his own home. For as long as he could, he worked at school and at a home. When he lost the use of one arm, he drove with the other. When his legs quit working, Nan could drive him. He lost his sight and he finally slipped into a coma and died in his favorite recliner.

Nobody had to ask his Indian friends for help. They just appeared. They brought a load of firewood, took care of the place, would be there at 2 a.m. to help turn him over when he couldn't move. They were there when he was buried.

I'm telling you about Roger Turner because with the politicians always running off at the mouth with their generalities about such things as education and poverty, it is easy to forget that we are a nation of individual human beings. The real war on poverty is won or lost in hand-to-hand combat, one person at a time, in places like McCall and by people like Roger Turner.

Family, friends and community are often spoken of as old values, but they still exist. They are the best kind of safety net. And courageous and decent people like Roger Turner are all around us. Like him, they make the world a little bit better than it was.

The rivers of high-sounding gobbledygook that flow out of colleges of education and teachers' union headquarters don't amount to beans. The fight with ignorance over a child's mind is also won or lost in single combat by individual teachers and principals in a thousand schools.

The bottom line is always individual character. Good people will win more than they lose whether they are fighting poverty or ignorance.

What government needs to do is learn how to deliver the right service to the right target. As of now, despite good intentions, government often gets in the way of the good people and subsidizes the losers.

Capsule ban premature, federal officials caution

NEW YORK (AP) — A ban on sales of over-the-counter drugs in capsule form is premature, despite the scare over the death of a woman who swallowed Extra-Strength Tylenol cap-sules tainted with deadly cyanide, federal officials say.

The ban was suggested Sunday by Andrew P. O'Rourke, elected executive of Westchester County, the New York suburban area where Diane Elsroth, 23, died last week. Investigation also turned up a second bottle containing tainted Tylenol in the same town where the bottle containing the fatal dose was purchased.

O'Rourke suggested the federal government control production and sale of all drugs in capsules, but federal Food and Drug Administration spokesman William Grigg said the government is not advocating such a

"We think it's premature, until we know what the problem was and have discussed it thoroughly, to propose solutions," he told The Associat-

"You've had this happen twice now," O'Rourke said, referring to poisoning in Westchester County and the deaths in Chicago in 1982. "I think it's time that government came up with some type of a plan to prevent it from happening in the

Grigg said he expected representatives of the over-the-counter drug industry to discuss the issue during a meeting of the Proprietary Association in Washington this week.

James A. Burke, chairman of Johnson & Johnson, which manufactures Tylenol, also disagreed with O'Rourke's suggestion. He said selling the drug from behind store counters "would deprive the public of the freest system in the world in terms of marketing consumer

Meanwhile, 14 states and at least one foreign country have banned the sale of Tylenol capsules. Italian newspapers reported Sunday that the nation's ministry of health had barred sales of Tylenol there because of concern about the Westchester findings.

Burke said the company lost $250 million after the Chicago scare but has since bounced back. "Now we're going to have to start all over again,"

The public knowledge of this incident is almost universal. Ninety-seven percent of the public, in the research that we've just completed, knows that something has happened to Tylenol," he said. "That's more people than know the name of the president of the United States."

O'Rourke, interviewed with Burke and FDA head Frank E. Young on ABC's "This Week With David Brinkley," said a bottle of tainted Tylenol capsules found in a Woolworth's store in the Westchester community of Bronxville came from a batch different from others around it.

That would appear to be reverse shoplifting, somebody came in and actually put it on the shelf," O'Rourke.

Capsules from a bottle bought at an A&P Food Store two blocks from the Woolworth's killed Ms. Elsroth. Sunday night, FBI spokesman Jack French had no comment on O'Rourke's information about the Woolworth's bottle, and Grigg would neither confirm nor deny whether it was true.

But Bronxville police confirmed the bottle was the only one of its lot on the shelf.

Johnson & Johnson spokesman Robert Kniffen said the significance of that fact "is just not clear."

He said a Woolworth's distribution center had received a shipment of Tylenol in lot number AHA 090, the same as that of the poisoned bottle, and that all the other bottles from the same lot could have been sold previously.

Senators: Reagan must ask Marcos to resign

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan should personally call on Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos "in unambiguous terms" to step down from office, say three Senate Democrats who claim they saw concrete evidence of election fraud during a fact-finding tour of that nation. Sen. David L. Boren, D-Okia., a ranking member of the Senate Intelligence Committee who led the delegation, said, "If the elections had been held on a fair and honest basis, he (Marcos) would not have been WASHINGTON (AP) — President

he (Marcos) would not have been elected by the people.'

"There is simply no way to put Humpty Dumpty back together again," Boren said. "President Mar-cos has fallen off that wall. He's lost all credibility.

Marcos "has lost his popular man-date," Boren said of the Feb. 7 presidential election between Marcos and challenger Corazon Aquino.

"It is no longer a question of will President Marcos be forced to step down, it is a question of when that will happen and how that will happen," Boren said Sunday night at Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington.

Boren said the senators all would urge President Reagan "to let President Marcos know in unambiguous terms that it is the belief of the United States that he should seek a voluntary transition of power.

The senators said they did not believe fair elections could ever be held in the Philippines under a Marcos government, citing evidence they said showed fraud.

Sen. David Pryor, D-Ark., said the group saw counterfeit Philippine currency "that had been printed from the government presses...to Boren said the bills had identical serial numbers. He said they were also shown "counterfeit ballots, in which the very same handwriting

Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., charging that Marcos "engaged in massive fraud at the polls," said: "Our presi-dent should urge President Marcos to step aside. If we don't make our position clear, and if the Marcos government is removed by violence instead of by democratic principles, then the Filipino people's faith in both democracy and the United States may go down with him."

"The longer this instability remains, the longer that it appears that our government is propping up an illegitimate ruler," Pryor said. The senators agreed that U.S. aid should not be channeled through the Marcos government, but they stopped short of calling for an aid

Pryor said Marcos is "going to rip out of the hands of President Marcos and his wife, Imelda."

Marcos said Sunday in an interview on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation" that he might abrogate the military bases treaty with the United States if the Reagan administration cuts off aid to his government. The two largest U.S. military bases outside the United States are in the Philippines. "If that happens, we'll-have to talk about renegotiating the bases," Marcos said Sunday.

cos said Sunday.

Marcos added, however, "We have to renegotiate those bases anyway because you have not paid the compensatory package for the use of military facilities, to the tune of about $70 million."

During his 20 years in power, Marcos has repeatedly used the treaty covering the bases — the two largest U.S. military facilities outside the United States — as a bargaining chip to assure support from Washington. He also brought up the issue dur-ing the presidential election campaign, accusing challenger Corazon Aquino of being ready to break the treaty, while denying he ever considered the idea.

Both Marcos, who was declared the winner of the Philippine election Saturday, and Aquino have said the United States should pay a higher rent for use of the bases.

U.S. would not admit Duvalier, agency says

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States will not allow former Haitian leader Jean-Claude Duvalier to enter the country, the State Department says, because it could not guarantee his safety or keep him from being extradited back to the Caribbean island nation

The State Department Sunday refuted a report by Duvalier's attorney in France, Sauveur Vaisse, who said it appeared French authorities were seeking to ship the deposed "president-for-life" to the United States, but that talks had reached a "dead

There also were reports in France that Duvalier and his family had been booked to fly from Paris to New York, but canceled the reservations after U.S. officials declined to accept him.

State Department spokeswoman Anita Stockman said, "If he is put on a plane to the United States, Duvalier does not have a visa and would not be allowed in.

"Our laws and regulations would make him unable to come to the United States. He would be an undesirable and undocumented alien. He will not be admitted," she said.

Besides lacking the necessary papers to enter the United States, Ms. Stockman said, "There are a large number of exiled Haitians in this country, and security would be a major problem for Duvalier here."

"In addition, an extradition treaty is in effect between the United States and Haiti. Were Duvalier to come here, he could expect to be returned to Haiti at some future date," she said.

The spokeswoman declined to give specifics on talks between Washington and Paris about Duvalier, or to say why he was deemed "undesirable."

Although no formal charges have been announced against Duvalier, his opponents in Haiti have accused him and his security forces of violent repression, including many Duvalier, faced with mounting rotests against his 15-year rule, fled Haiti on Feb. 8 aboard a U.S. Air Force jet, and took up residence in the French town of Talloires.

Poisonings reopen old wounds for families

CHICAGO (AP) — Three years after their daughters died, along with five other people stricken by cyanide-laced Extra-Strength Tylenol, two suburban Chicago fathers say a similar poisoning in New York opens old wounds.

"It just brings it all back again," hurst. "I didn't think it would happen again. It's like a nightmare. 'It's very difficult because of what's happening in New York, because it's on TV, radio. It's hard to believe that it's happening. My family is very sad," said John Tarasewicz of Lisle.

Tarasewicz's 19-year-old daughter, Theresa Janus, and her husband, Stanley, 25, were grieving the death of another Tylenol victim — Stanley's brother, Adam, when they took the poisoned painkiller from the same bottle, collapsed and died.

Mary McFarland, Eliason's daughter and a 31-year-old mother of two from Elmhurst, was at her job at an Illinois Bell telephone center when she complained of a headache and took

She lapsed into a coma and died the next day.

All seven Chicago-area victims were stricken the same day, Sept. 29, 1982. The others were Mary Kellerman, 12, of Elk Grove Village, Paula Prince, 35, of Chicago and Mary Reiner, 27, of Winfield. In the latest case, Diane Elsroth, 23, of Peekskill, N.Y., died Feb. 8 after taking cyanide-tainted Extra-Strength Tylenol in the New York suburb of Westchester

NASA general manager relieved of duties; Graham assumes them

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a move tied to last month's explosion of the space shuttle, NASA's general manager has been relieved of his duties and the space agency's acting chief will take over day-to-day operations, a NASA spokesman says. Philip E. Culbertson, a 20-year NASA veteran, is being put on "special assignment," effective immediately, said agency spokesman Charles Redmond.

William Graham, NASA's acting chief, will take on Culbertson's duties in addition to his own, Redmond said in a telephone interview Sunday

"It seems to be increasing his (Graham's) responsibilities, but his comment was: Right now, NASA needs a single person in charge — the acting administrator," Redmond said.

Culbertson's new duties have not yet been determined, the spokesman "I wouldn't say he's been dis-missed," Redmond said. "However, the responsibilities of his job have been altered significantly

The weekend move was an effort to streamline operations in the wake of the Jan. 28 accident that destroyed the space shuttle Challenger and killed its seven-member crew, Redmond said.

"Dr. Graham indicated that given the conditions that followed the Challenger accident, what he called 'two-tiered management' was cumbersome and he felt by taking direct control it would be more responsive to conditions," he said.

Graham said in a statement that the position of general manager, which Culbertson had filled for two months, "had not proved effective."

The White House approved Culbertson's approintment as NASA's general manager when Graham became acting administrator.

From Staff and Wire Reports

It may look like an early spring in the Midland area Tuesday as near record breaking temperatures are expected, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

Fair skies and a low in the middle 40s tonight will become sunny, windy and warm Tuesday as the temperture is expected to climb to near 80. Winds will be from the west at 10 to 15 mph tonight, becoming gusty at 15-25 mph Tuesday.

Sunday's high of 74 was six de grees below the record set in 1971. This morning's low was 33 degrees above the 1936 record of 11.

STATE Gulf moisture brought low clouds and patchy fog over the Texas coast-al plains early today as high clouds blanketed most of South and North

Texas. South to southwest winds at 10 mph breezed over the Hill Country and most of North and South Texas. Westerly winds near 10 mph were common elsewhere except for the Rio Grande Valley where winds were light and variable. Temperatures ranged from the low 40s in the Panhandle to the upper 60s in the deep south. Overnight readings ranged from 41 at Amarillo to 70 at Brownsville and Houston.

The National Weather Service said the fog along the coast would burn off as the day progressed. Fair skies were likely for most of Texas.

A Pacific storm churned 16-foot waves, pushed rain into alreadysoaked sections of California and spread snow across the West while another storm today belted the Midwest and East with snow, sleet and freezing rain. The Pacific storm threatened flooding and mudslides in much of northern and central California, already soaked from previous rains. A flash flood watch was in effect. Winter storm warnings were posted for Washington's Olympic and Cascade mountains and across California's Sierra Nevada and the Lake Tahoe area.

High wind warnings were in effect for Montana's upper Yellowstone Valley, Colorado's eastern foothills and southeast Wyoming.

A storm in the middle Mississippi and Ohio valleys dumped freezing rain, sleet and snow from the lower Great Lakes to southeast New York and northern New Jersey, as showers and thunderstorms ranged across the lower Mississippi Valley.

Celtics end series with sweep of Lakers

Associated Press

It's February, but it looked like June.

Sunday's Celtics-Lakers game, reminiscent of the last two NBA championship series, had three shoving matches in the second quarter before the two teams settled down and Boston won 105-99 to sweep the two-game regularseason matchups.

When it was over, both sides were looking ahead to another possible meeting this spring.

"This means nothing more than just another Lakers-Celtics game," Celtics Coach K.C. Jones said. "Sure, it's special, it's a rivalry since the '60's, but it's just the same as before, there's no carryover to the playoffs."

"Boston made the plays when they had to," the Lakers' Pat Riley said. "I'm sure they feel good about themselves with their two wins. But the playoffs are a long way off."

"We are 0-2 against Boston and I'm sure they think they are the better team," said James Worthy, who scored 35 points for the Lakers.

Midway through the second period, Lakers guard Byron Scott had to be restrained after receiving a technical for throwing the ball at Boston's Jerry Sichting. Less than a minute later, another shoving match started when Greg Kite of the Celtics fouled Michael Cooper from behind. Kite also got tempers flaring less than a minute before halftime when he knocked Kareem Abdul-Jabbar to the floor with another foul. But in the second half, Dennis Johnson keyed a 13-2 streak that gave Boston its biggest lead at 71-59, and the Celtics held the advantage despite a Los Angeles rally at

Dennis Johnson scored 23 points and Larry Bird added 22 points, 18 rebounds and seven assists for Boston, but the key to the game was three Boston reserves who had good performances

Center Bill Walton had 10 points, seven rebounds and three assists filling in for Robert Parish, who was hampered by foul trouble.

Sichting had 11 points, nine of them in an eight-minute span in the second quarter to help the Celtics open a seven-point lead. And guard Rick Carlisle scored six of his 10 points and picked up a steal in a span of 2:42 early in the fourth quarter as Boston opened a 98-86 lead with 8:10 to play.

"It was a monumental team effort ... We got big lifts from Rick and Bill," Boston Coach K.C. Jones said. "Our bench now shows that it can do the job. It has been that way since Christmas. They now can control the ball and

Los Angeles fought back to trail only 100-96 on a 15-foot jump shot by Scott with 3:53 to play. The Lakers then missed seven consecutive shots in the final minute.

The victory was the 15th in 16 games for the Celtics, who have won 41 of 50 games this season, best in the NBA. The Lakers are 39-13.

Mavericks 120, Bulls 114 Rolando Blackman scored 13 of his 28 points in the fourth quarter, including seven points in the final 2:53, to lead Dallas over Chicago.

The Bulls trailed 101-93 midway through the fourth quarter, but Charles Oakley scored 11 straight Chicago points and George Gervin hit a jumper to cut the deficit to 107-106. But Blackman started his late streak with a basket to start an 8-2 run that clinched the victory.

Oakley had 28 points and 15 rebounds and George Gervin added 24 points for Chicago, which has lost six straight games. The Mayericks have won nine of 11 games. The Mavericks have won nine of 11.

Spurs 113, Kings 94

Sacramento trimmed most of a 22-point deficit before succumbing to San Antonio. The Spurs bench, led by Alfredrick Hughes and Jeff Lamp, built a 49-27 lead in the second quarter, and San Antonio still had a 17-point bulge at halftime. The Kings cut the deficit to 90-84 early in the fourth quarter before Steve Johnson, who scored 10 of his 15 points in the final period, led a rally that rebuilt San Antonio's advantage to 101-88 with 4:19 left.

Lamp led the Spurs with 16 points, while Larry Drew paced Sacramento with 18.

Hawks 110, Trail Blazers 101
Atlanta beat Portland behind solid performances from forwards Cliff Levingston and Kevin Willis in the absence of all-star Dominique Wilkins.

Levingston had 25 points and Willis 21 and both had 11 rebounds against the Trail Blazers, who lost their sixth

Lubbock team opens season with 7-1 record despite travel woes

By ERIC SCHURER

Sports Writer

A little travel weary, but none the worse for wear, the Texas Tech baseball team swept through the Tall City Sunday to tag Sul Ross College with a pair of losses, Both teams were concluding a trying stretch of six games in three days that had each bullpen cleaned out by day's end. The twin-killing left the Red Raiders at 7-1 this season, while the Lobos fell to 3-9.

Tech's Bill Krueger posted the win in the opening game for the Raiders, going five innings and allowing just a pair of Sul Ross runs. Freshman starter Shay Morris (1-2) of Andrews was tagged with the loss for the Senior outfielder Jim Darnell blasted his fourth homer of the season in the first inning off Morris to give Tech a 1-0 lead. The Red Raiders were off and running from there. The Raiders then put up five runs in the second inning and cruised home from there.

IN THE nightcap, junior Bill Schutt came on in the second inning to pick up the win, his first of the season.

Schutt struck out 10 in his 4 1/3 innings of relief.

Freshman Mike Humphreys was the hitting star in the second game, collecting five RBI while completing the cycle - hitting a single, double, triple and homer in Humphreys, from DeSoto High, broke open the game with a single off the wall in rightfield in the fourth inning that score a pair of runs to put the Raiders ahead for good, 6-5. The Lobos jumped out to a 5-0 lead before Tech put back-to-back four run innings together in the third and fourth. Schutt was the winner in relief, while Junior Sena of Crane absorbed the loss.

Tech head coach Gary Ashby was happy to see the six-game road swing come to an end on a good note. The Raiders finished the trip with five victories and just one loss, a 5-4 extra inning affair against Hardin-

'WE'RE A little tired and out pitching is definitely thinned out," said Ashby. "But we did exactly what we were hoping to do on this trip. We brought 10 pitchers and we used every one of them. "When we play so many games like this we get to see a lot of players that might help us down the road. We pitch our eight, nine and 10 pitchers and they may be better than our fifth or sixth. Also someone might get hurt, and those players will become our fifth or sixth

The Lobos brought a large contingent of local players, including three from the Tall City. Second baseman Judd Ryan, a Midland High product, went 0-for-2 with an RBI sacrifice fly in the opener, then went one-forthree in the second game.

FRESHMAN MICHAEL Gonzales, right-handed pitcher from MHS, did not see action in Sunday's doubleheader, but threw in games against Shriner College on Friday and Saturday. Gonzales picked up his first collegiate win on Saturday pitching 3% innings of relief in a 9-8 Lobo victory. He also earned a save in Sul

Ross' win over Shriner on Friday "It's still too early to tell what my role will be this season," Gonzales said. "But after this weekend, I think coach (Byron Brooks) is beginning to get some confidence in me. This is not like high school where we didn't have an abundance of pitchers. We've got a lot of guys that can come in and throw Texas Tech is now off until Friday when they will begin a four-game set with New Mexico Highlands in Lubbock Friday and Saturday.

The Red Raiders, coming off a poor season in South-west Conference play, will begin SWC action on March 21 against Rice in Houston with a different type of ball club than last year's free swinging bunch.

"WE'RE GOING to see some lower scoring ball games this year, but that's fine with me if we're winning games 43," Ashby said. "We'll have a lot better pitching staff and we'll play good defense, too. We're not swinging the bats the way people are used to this season. I'm not going to give up on our hitting just yet, but we're going to have to slap it around and manufacture some runs this year.

"We had a poor team last year, so in a way, we're fortunate not to have too many players back," Ashby joked. "The Southwest Conference is the toughest baseball conference in the country and where we are right now, it's tough to say we'll compete for the title. But we'll compete to go to the conference tournament which takes just four teams. I feel that if you're one of the top four teams in the Southwest Conference, you've had a pretty good year.

And by the time the afternoon was over, Cale Yarborough was blaming Elliott for adding to the damage of a six-car chain reaction accident on the 117th lap that knocked Yarborough, Neil Bonnett, Harry Gant and Joe Ruttman from the race.

Bonnett, 16 down laps at the time, started the accident when he got too high going into four and spun toward the bottom of the track.

Notre Dame's David Rivers (4) gets pressure from Duke's Johnny Dawkins during Sunday's college basketball game between Top 20 ranked teams. No. 2 Duke defeated the No. 14 Irish.

Duke survives weekend

Associated Press

Second-ranked Duke survived a tough weekend of college basketball, thanks in large measure to Johnny Dawkins, a 6-foot-2 senior guard, blocked David Rivers' last-second shot Sunday to preserve the Blue Devils' 75-74 victory over No. 14 Notre Dame. On Saturday night at Raleigh, Dawkins scored 24 points, including two free throws with two seconds left, as Duke downed No. 17 North Carolina State 72-70 in another Atlantic Coast Conference shootout.

"I think he showed why he's the premier player in our conference," Duke Coach Mike Krzyzewski said of Dawkins. "He's just done a great job whatever role we put him in. His handling of our team while still guarding Rivers, I thought was just great. His last play was just great defense.

With point guard Tommy Amaker in foul trouble he fouled out with 4:23 remaining — Dawkins ran the Duke offense for most of the second half. He also made eight of 20 shots from the field in scoring 18 points and also led Duke with eight rebounds. Mark Alarie topped the Blue Devils with 22 points.

FRESHMAN DANNY Ferry's two foul shots gave Duke a 75-69 lead with 53 seconds remaining. While Rivers and Jim Dolan hit baskets for the Irish. David Henderson and Billy King each missed the front end of one-and-one situations for Duke After a timeout with six seconds left, Rivers took the ball at midcourt and moved in to try a jump shot from about 15 feet. "Rivers was penetrating," Dawkins said, "and I cut him off. He left his feet before I did. I went for the block and I was fortunate to get it. "I knew either he or Ken Barlow would take the last shot.

Rivers, a sophomore guard, said he wasn't surprised by Dawkins' block. "He's a good athlete. He definitely got part of the ball, butthere also was contact."

Duke led 37-30 at halftime and twice led by 10 points early in the second half. The Irish pulled within 69-65 with 3:21 on Barlow's 14-footer, but Dawkins responded with two straight goals. Then Notre Dame, paced by

Rivers and Dolan, cut it to 75-74 with 29 seconds remaining.

"Even when we were down by 10, we didn't lose our composure," said Notre Dame Coach Digger Phelps. "I liked the way we came back at the end, especially when you play in a place like this."

Duke, with nine consecutive wins, has a 25-2 record. Notre Dame fell to 17-5. The Blue Devils outrebounded Notre Dame 26-22, while the Irish were better from the field, hitting 56 percent to Duke's 54 percent

"I'm proud of our basketball team," Krzyzewski said. "To come back after the game last night is just like a heavyweight boxer going for the last few rounds."

Duke also got 12 points from Henderson and 10 from Ferry against the Irish, who were led by Barlow's 21 points and Rivers' 20.

"I-think it's important for Duke playing two big games since, in the NCAA playoffs, they'll have two games back-to-back," Phelps said. On Saturday night, Henderson connected on a jumper with 1:14 to play to pull the Blue Devils into a

70-70 tie with North Carolina State. State's Chris Washburn missed a short jumper from the left of the lane with about 35 seconds left, the Blue Devils grabbed the rebound and, with two seconds remaining, Dawkins was fouled by Nate McMillan. The victory boosted Duke's ACC record to 10-2, second-best in the league, while North Carolina State dropped to 6-5 in the ACC and 17-8 overall. Charles Shackleford led North Carolina State with 20 points and Washburn had 16. IN THE other Sunday game involving a ranked club, Steve Alford scored 32 points - including four firsthalf free throws that put Indiana in charge — as the 16th-ranked Hoosiers beat Ohio State 84-75 in the Big Indiana trailed 23-22 when Alford was fouled by Ohio State's Kip Lomax with 5:37 left in the half. He hit his

Bramble stops Crawley

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Livingstone Bramble said he began boxing after his corner told him to go out and win the last three rounds of his World Boxing Association lightweight championship defense against Tyrone

Less than a round later, Bramble stopped the challenger at 2:57 in the 18th round to retain the title and his hopes for an eventual unification match with World Boxing Council champion Hector "Macho" Comacho. Bramble spent the first dozen rounds of the fight sapping Crawley's stamina with devastating body punches.

"In the 11th or 12th round, I wasn't even breathing hard," the champion said. "I knew then the fight was

At 2:25 of the 13th, he caught Crawley with a short right-left combination to the jaw and followed with a flurry to the head that sent the weakened challenger

"I DON'T know exactly what I hit him with. It happened so sudden. But I knew he was definitely in deep waters," Bramble said.

Crawley staggered to his feet. Referee Joey Curtis said, "He gave me enough information that he still wanted to continue fighting."

But as he lurched back into the ring, Crawley ran into the referee and dropped to the canvas. That's when Curtis stopped the fight.

Bramble's victory came despite an injury to his left hand, which occurred when he left glove open while snapping a jab in the 10th or 11th round.

It was first thought that Bramble had broken the middle finger, but he said later that it was only a sprain. "It's OK. I'll be back in the gym in a week or

Bramble said he would continue training, probably for a 10-round fight later this year. Eventually, he said he wants to resolve the title question with Comacho. Right now ... I am without doubt the true light weight champion of the world," he said.

Bramble demonstrated his championship skills Sunday, combining the brutal body attack with artful dodg. ing that left most of Crawley's punches hanging in

"I was slipping a lot of punches," Bramble said. "You got to move your head out of the way."

Crawley failed to move his head quickly enough in the second round when Bramble caught him with a surprise right after a series of body blows. The punch sent the 27-year-old challenger slipping to the canvas for a mandatory eight-count.

DESPITE THE knockdown and a 1-point deduction assessed by the referee against Bramble for hitting after the end of the sixth round, the scoring remained about even until Bramble's body attack began taking a toll in the later rounds.

At the end of the 12th round, judge Dave Moretti of Las Vegas had Bramble ahead 117-110, while the other two judges saw the fight as being much closer. Harmodio Cedeno of Panama scored it 116-114 for Bramble while Hector Hernandez of Mexico favored Bramble

The AP had Bramble ahead 116-110.

Chaparrals can clinch tie for title

From Staff Reports

BORGER — Midland College moved closer to clinching a tie for the Western Junior Athletic Conference College basketball title with Thursday's win over Howard College. The Chaps have a three-game lead with four to go, but three of those games are on the road. Tonight the Chaps (KCRS Radio, 8 p.m.) play

Frank Phillips College here in the game that could nail down that tie for the title, giving the Chaps their fifth WJCAC crown in six years. For dessert the Chaps can add a 27th win to that will have to earn that the hard way, Odessa College at OC Thursday night and Western Texas College at the Chap Center next Monday.

To break it, MC would have to beat Clarendon at Clarendon in the final game of the season. After that, there would be no room for error with the Region V tournament beginning at Snyder March 6. Coach Jerry Stone's cagers take a 26-0 record into tonight's game and are 120 in WJCAC play. Four teams qualify for Region V and behind MC, season-long win streak and move within reach of the two-season record of 29 straight. The Chaps sa College and New Mexico Junior College are battling for the other three spots.

> CHAPSTYQUES: In his ninth season, Stone has compiled a 278-83 .771 won-lost record...In conference, MC under Stone is 141-51 .734...Take away that 16-15, 7-11 debut season and Stone's record is .793 overall and .753 in WJCAC....Former Chap Brian Essary is the leading scorer for Angelo State-...Chaps' consecutive free throw mark, Henry White, 21 straight in 1977-78, a record that won't be broke this year....That's a challenge, Chaps....

NCAA run by terminal nitpickers

By BARRY LORGE

Copley News Service

Hardly a day passes, it seems, that the National Collegiate Athletic Association doesn't make some momentous decision to help keep intercollegiate case sports pure and wholesome.

At Texas Tech, a high school football recruit (Jake Young of Midland Lee) has the lucky-number program that entitles him to try a half-court shot at halftime of a basketball game in a promotion sponsored by a bank. He makes the basket and wins more than $2,000, but the NCAA informs him and biting yourself in the tail

he cannot keep the prize.

At Seattle, a high-school placekicker who has long dreamed of playing for the University of Washington wins a kicking contest at haltime of a rules of the contest, but when they get into all this Washington wins a kicking contest at haltime of a Scattle Scahawks game and is presented a $20,000 sports car. The NCAA informs him he will be considered a pro and ineligible to compete if he accepts it. The kid decides to keep the car and enroll instead at a small school whose sports are governed by the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics.

pose in keeping the games clean and setting the rules of the contest, but when they get into all this other stuff, it becomes just like the federal government. It is bureaucracy rampant."

The NCAA is an association of the institutions that belong to it, and theoretically, they set its policies. But somehow it has become bigger than the sum of its parts, and largely unresponsive to what should be its real purpose — keeping inter-

AT OXFORD, Ohio, the NCAA orders Miami educational. University to stop playing a recording of a song Instead, it has become an unwieldy leviathan about its leading scorer in pre-game festivities. The recording, which is also played on a local radio station, is not for sale, but the NCAA rules that its ban on use of college athletes' photos for commercial or charitable promotions also applies to this

These incidents "illustrate the kind of nitpicking detail that is characteristic of bureaucracies," says San Diego State University president Dr. Thomas B. Day, "when if you have your nose to the ground and you follow it, you find yourself coming around

My overall feeling is that the NCAA has served, the sum of its parts, and largely unresponsive to what should be its real purpose — keeping intercollegiate sports fair, honest, equitable and with a rulebook that only a lawyer could love. Investigation of infractions and enforcement of penalties are hopelessly uneven. The NCAA seems unable to distinguish between the athlete who is slipped $10,000 in a shoebox and the one who innocently accepts a T-shirt while being recruited.

"The number of rules and regulations has just grown astronomically - how many times somebody can visit the campus, and whether you can buy them a Coke or a Pepsi. It's just unbelievable," says Day. "We're running classes for our coaches now on the rules and regulations, and giving them tests, which is kind of a sad commentary on how complex the regulations have become. I may be naive on this, but I can't escape the feeling that in the general area of recruitment, you could have a constitutional convention and throw out all 300 pages and start over again."

Then there are the problems of enforcement: too few investigators, constant charges that certain programs are hounded while others are protected.

But the NCAA, rather than going back to basics, keeps upping the ante and adding ridiculous rules to try to cover every conceivable dodge. Intercollegiate athletics are in a sorry state and need to be re-thought by people with vision, but the current system is run by and for terminal nitpickers.

Lipton netters going to form

BOCA RATON, Fla. (AP) - A few big names such as reigning Wimbledon champion Boris Becker have fallen by the wayside, but for the most part, the matches went according to form in the first week of the $1.8 million Lipton International Players Championships tennis tournament. The unseeded surprises have been Milan Sreiber of Czechoslovakia, who ousted Becker in the third round, on the men's side and Terry Phelps and Dianne Fromholtz Balestrat on the women's side. Phelps and Balestrat meet today for the final spot in the women's quarterfinals, finishing a match suspended because of rain Sunday night with Phelps leading 2-1 in the first set.

Six of the eight berths in the men's quarterfinals also will be on the line today.

Top-seeded Ivan Lendl, a third-round winner over Greg Holmes on Sunday, heads the list of survivors seeking fourth-round victories. No. 3 Jimmy Connors, No. 5 Stefan Edberg, No. 6 Yannick Noah and No. 10 Joakim Nystrom are among the others who hope to join Sunday winners Sweden's Mats Wilander and Srejber in the quarters.

Lendl faces Jimmy Arias; Connors takes on Thierry Tulasne of France, and Edberg meets Marty Davis. Noah opposes Sweden's Jan Gunnarsson in a match originally scheduled for Sunday

THE REST of the schedule includes Sweden's Nystrom against Pablo Arraya of Peru as well as a fourth-round match between South Africa's Michael Robertson and France's Guy Forget.

Seven spots in the women's quarterfinals were filled Sunday when top-seeded Chris Evert Lloyd defeated Kathy Jordan 7-5, 6-2. Second-seeded Steffi Graf of West Germany; No. 6 Zina Garrison; No. 7 Helena Sukova of Czechoslovakia and No. 9 Kathy Rinaldi also won.

Two top 10 women weren't as fortunate. No. 14 Barbara Potter downed the fourth-seeded Manuela Maleeva 6-2, 2-6, 7-5, and Sukova dumped No. 10 Catarina Lindqvist of Sweden 6-1, 6-3. Lendl, playing with a sore right ring finger struggled before eliminating Holmes 6-4, 7-6, while Lloyd's performance was streaky during a 7-5, 6-2 triumph over Jordan. "I suspect it's from mis-liftting the ball and the racket turning in my hand," Lendl said of the injury. "It happened before the tournament, went away, and came back and got infected "I worried about it, but said I shouldn't get frus trated. There's nothing I can do about it. Lloyd, who has yet to lose a set in 1986, broke Jordan three times in the first set, with the last one giving her a 6-5 advantage that turned the match

"The first set could have gone either way. After I won it, she may have been a little disappointed and my confidence picked up," said Lloyd. "It's very disappointing, but I thought I was hanging in there in the second set," Jordan said. "But when she gets a lead, she can sense the kill and goes for it.

Holmes, winless in two matches against Lendl. fought back from double break-point in the seventh game of the second set. He also fought off match point twice in the 10th game to break Lendl's thunderous serve for the first time and pull even 5-5.

Lendl held serve to force a tie-breaker he won 7-2 to finish the match.

Wilander, the reigning French Open champion and No. 2 seed here, cruised into the quarterfinals with a 7-5, 6-4 victory over No. 15 Andres Gomez of Ecuador. Srejber continued his surprising success, bouncing back from an opening set loss to beat David Pate 3-6, 7-6, 6-4.

Rinaldi topped Anna Ivan 6-3, 6-4, and Bassett defeated Kate Gompert 6-3, 6-1. Garrison dumped Yugoslavia's Sabrina Goles 6-1, 7-6.

Corey Pavin survives kona winds, Watson

HONOLULU (AP) - Corey Pavin knew he had his work cut out for him.

"It's a hard thing to do, start the day three shots behind Tom Watson and know he's playing well. I knew I would have to get some pressure on him

And Pavin did just that. Despite severe kona winds, Pavin played the front side in 31, the applied the clincher with a picture-perfect approach that set up an eagle and destroyed Watson's comeback hopes in the $500,000 Hawaiian Open Golf Tournament on Pavin won it with a closing round of 66 over the wind-raked Waialae Country Club course and a 272 total, 16 shots under par.

"Under the conditions, the wind and the pressure, it was probably the best round I've ever played," said Pavin, 26, who picked up $90,000 for his third victory in as many years on the PGA

The slightly built Pavin used some long-range putting — three birdles from 20 feet or more — as the key to his 5-under-par effort over the front that wrested the lead from the deeply frustrated

Then he applied the clincher with a 5-iron second shot on the par-5 13th. "A very gratifying shot, my best shot of the day," he said. "I played it into the wind and let the wind blow it back to the hole. It came off just the way I pictured it," Pavin said. The ball rode the wind to within two feet of the flag and Pavin tapped it in for an eagle-3 and a

Rockets await injury word

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) - The seriousness of a knee injury that has sidelined Houston Rockets center Akeem Olajuwon should be determined after X-rays are taken in Houston today, said Coach Bill Fitch.

Before Olajuwon's injury in the second quarter of an NBA game against the Los Angeles Clippers, he was fourth in the NBA in rebounds, averaging 11.3 per game. He was eighth in league scoring, boasting an average of 23.6 points. Olajuwon flew home to Houston on Sunday, according to Fitch, who said there would be no additional information about the player's condition until after the Texas examination. The Rockets were in town for their game tonight against the Golden State Warriors.

Clippers team physician Eugene Osher examined Olajuwon's knee and said at halftime at the Saturday night game that he suspected the 7-foot center had damaged the knee ligament. Olajuwon, who has played 11/2 seasons with the NBA, fell over teammate Robert Reid after Reid

committed an offensive foul on a drive to the Houston basket with 10:53 left in the second quarter. Reid fell onto the court after running into guard Darnell Valentine of the Clippers. Olajuwon, chasing the play, could not stop in time and fell over his teammate. Olajuwon limped to the Houston bench, remaining there for another 10 minutes before exiting

to the Rockets' locker room for an ice treatment.

Yankees' Mattingly turns down $1.32 million offer

By MURRAY CHASS New York Times News Service

NEW YORK — As millionaires' week in salary arbitration began, the Yankees Sunday tried to induce Don Mattingly to stay away from the arbitration table with a Dwight Gooden offer, but Mattingly rejected the $1.32 million salary. Both sides said they expected to be in arbitration at the scheduled time

Mattingly's is one of six cases on the schedule this week in which the player will seek a salary of $1 million or more. One of the six players, John Tudor, most likely will settle on a new contract with St. Louis before his hearing.

Gooden, the Mets' marvel, had been assured of a $1 million-plus salary because both he and the club submitted such figures. However, they agreed last Friday on a $1.32 million salary, which was slightly Ost the halfway point between the Mets' arbitration offer of $1.1 million and Gooden's $1.5 million. Mattingly is in arbitration at $1.5 million and the Yankees are offering $1.25 million.

Upon hearing of Gooden's deal, George Steinbrenner instructed Woody Woodward, the Yankees' executive vice president, to make the same offer to Mattingly. Woodward talked to Jim Krivacs, the first baseman's agent, about that kind of salary in general terms last Friday, then called him Sunday and made the offer firm. Krivacs, though, told Woodward the offer wouldn't be sufficient to keep Mattingly from Monday's appointment with the arbitrator.

"It's not acceptable to Donny." Krivacs said by

"It's not acceptable to Donny," Krivacs said by telephone from his home in Belleair, Fla., Sunday night. "Up until now, we haven't received any offer we felt should be forthcoming. Donny prefers a multiple-year contract. He feels like he deserves one. It looks like we're going to arbitration."

Woodward said the $1.32 million offer will remain on the table and "if that turns out to be acceptable later it's still good." But he added "at this minute it.

later, it's still good." But, he added, "at this minute, it doesn't look good, so we'll let the arbitrator decide." The Yankees have said they are not interested in signing Mattingly to a multiyear contract at this

With the Gooden case settled, the Mets don't have any million-dollar hearings this week, but they have five players scheduled at lower figures, beginning with Ed Lynch Monday and then with Wally Backman, Ron Darling, Tim Teufel and Bob Ojeda as the week progresses.

All of the Yankees' and Mets' hearings will be over by the time their pitchers and catchers have their first spring training workout in Florida on Friday, the Yankees in Fort Lauderdale and the Mets in St. Petersburg. They are two of 13 teams whose pitchers and catchers begin training Friday. Detroit and San Francisco get spring started a day earlier, and the rest of the teams will begin by Feb. 26.

Other players begin working from Feb. 25 through March 5, and exhibition games will begin March 6. Rick Gedman, Boston's catcher, isn't scheduled to start spring training until next Monday in Winter Haven, Fla., but Monday he will have his arbitration case heard in New York. He seeks $1 million, while the Red Sox are in at $650,000. The arbitration record is the $1.2 million Tim Raines of Montreal won Orel Hershiser, Los Angeles's 19-game winner, will go for $1 million, to the Dodgers' $600,000, Wednesday; Raines, barring a settlement, will break his own record Thursday when he tries for $1.7 million, against the Expos' $1.3 million, and then Friday, in the final case scheduled. Wade Boggs of Boston will attempt to beat them all in his bid for a $1.85 million salary. The Red Sox are offering $1.35 million.

Tudor, who won 20 of his last 21 decisions for St. Louis in the regular season this year, also is scheduled for this week, but he has virtually reached agreement with the Cardinals on a three-year contract that is worth between $3 million and $3.5 million. Fernando Valenzuela agreed with the Dodgers Saturday on a three-year contract worth $5.5 million, making him the highest-paid pitcher in baseball history, based on annual average value.

Neither the Yankees nor the Mets have had a case heard. Of their players who filed for arbitration, the Yankees have settled with Mike Fischlin, Mike Armstrong and Andre Robertson; the Mets with Gooden, Jesse Orosco, Tom Gorman, Howard Johnson and

At least they have not suffered the heavy losses incurred by the Kansas City Royals, who were on the wrong end of the decisions in the cases of Bret Saberhagen, Charlie Leibrandt and Steve Balboni. The three losses cost them a total of $695,000, not to mention the fees they paid to Tal Smith, the baseball consultant, who represents 13 of the 26 clubs in

In his first year in that role, 1982, Smith won seven of the eight cases he handled. This year, though, he has won five times and lost eight. He and his staff have 17 of the 24 cases remaining, including those of Gedman, Mattingly, Raines and Boggs.

Amazin' 1969 Mets drub '69 Cubbies, 11-3

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The 1969 New York Mets can still call themselves Amazin'. Tommie Agee and Ed Kranepool each stroked two-run doubles in a seven-run second inning as the Mets beat the 1969 Chicago Cubs 11-3 here Sunday in a seven-inning baseball exhibition called "Dream Game '86."

It was the first meeting of the two teams since 1969, when Chicago blew a 91/2-game lead in mid-August and wound up eight games behind the National League's Eastern Division pennant-winning "Miracle Mets," who went on to win the World

"Now you can see why we won and they lost," said Kranepool with a

"I thought we were going to get even after 17 years," said Cubs Hall of Famer Ernie Banks. "I still feel a lot of hurt whenever I see the Mets. Do you believe what they did to us in

"Now, the Cubs are going to have to live with this one for another 30 years," said New York rightfielder Ron Swoboda. "We put up our (championship) rings for this one." "We didn't blow it in 1969. The Mets won it," Cubs second baseman Glenn Beckert said. "They got hot at the right time. "We beat them then and we beat them now," said Mets leftfielder Cleon Jones. "They're still the same old Cubs.

'But the only difference," added Kranepool, "is this one was for fun and for charity.

Chicago jumped on Mets starter Jerry Koosman for a 3-0 lead in the first inning on Banks' two-run double to center and Randy Hundley's RBI double off the left field wall New York then scored seven times in the second inning off Cubs lefthander Ken Holtzman on Wayne Garrett's RBI double, Bud Harrelson's RBI single, Agee's two-run double, Ken Boswell's RBI single and Kranepool's two-run double.

An infield error allowed the eighth Mets run to score in the fourth inning before Duffy Dyer's RBI single made it 9-3 in the sixth. Rod Gaspar's bloop RBI single and Al Weis' sacrifice fly closed out the scoring in the New York seventh.

DALLAS (AP) - If the United owner, Baltimore's Myles Tannen- sonal services contract with Generbaum, has suggested the league suspend play until the resolution of the USFL's $1.32 billion lawsuit against the National Football League, which would preclude the USFL's being ready for a fall 1986 season.

The trial was scheduled to open March 18, but has been pushed back to late spring and is expected to last at least two months. That would not leave enough time for the USFL to ter Johnson told the Dallas Morning make plans for this year. The future of the USFL could depend upon the Hot air balloons are a common sight in Anchorage skies year-round. An annual ballooning festival is second only to Albuquerque, N.M., in number of participants.

Anchorage adventure

Winter-time visitors to Anchorage can be on the slopes of Alyeska Ski Resort in less than an hour. The resort, a former host to the World Cup Ski Races, is located 40 miles south of Anchorage.

ong-time residents of Alaska's largest city, Anchorage, can usually tell that winter is on its way, not by a drop in temperature, but by a decrease in the number of out-of-state license plates (usually attached to the rear of RV's and campers) seen on city streets.

With a sigh of relief, the "sourdoughs" (old timers), look forward to the long winter season (generally from October through April). Little wonder.

Those who make their home in the growing metropolis of 200,000 know a secret seldom passed around in the travel agency circuit — Anchorage is a fun place to be in the winter.

Often viewed as dark, forlorn and bitterly cold by residents of "the Lower 48," Anchorage during winter months is often a surprise to those adventurers who find themselves in town for business or convention.

Dark, yes — bitterly cold, occasionally. Forlorn? Only in the minds of those who ignore the continuous activity and natural splendor that surrounds them.

Unlike the often cloudy and wet summer season, the winter months in Anchorage are known for an abundance of clear, blue skies that light up North America's tallest mountain, Mt. McKinley, easily viewed from vantage points all over town.

Temperatures are often mild (averaging 25 degrees in December) in Anchorage due to its maritime location on Cook Inlet. But even the coldest months — January and February — are just an excuse for locals to ignore Mother Nature and get on with the business of having fun.

And fun they have. Especially in sports. Winter athletics including hockey, alpine skiing, Nordic skiing, ice fishing, ice skating (every school in town has its own ice rink as well as do many private homes), basketball, sled dog racing, snow machine races, motor racing, downhill cance races (you read it right) and yes, even "snowshoe softball."

Officials close-mouthed about man's death

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Officials remain close-mouthed as they continue an investigation into the death of a reputed organized crime figure who turned informant, the San Antonio Light reports.

The newspaper Sunday quoted sources as saying the dead man, who had been living in Bexar County under the name Freddy Marino, testified last year under a different name in a major federal organized crime trial on the East Coast.

Toxicology tests were being performed by the Bexar County Medical Examiner's office to determine the cause of death of the 45-year-old man, who was found dead in his middle-class home, the newspaper

Marino was a beneficiary of the U.S. Justice Department's Witness Protection Program, a source told the newspaper. Program officials in Washington, D.C., declined

The body was prepared at a San Antonio funeral home and flown to Brooklyn, N.Y., Saturday morning, according to the newspaper.

County officials were called to the home in the Emerald Valley subdivision Wednesday evening. A roommate, unnamed in official reports, told investigators that he had found the corpse hanging from a bed post. Sheriff Harlon Copeland declined to give any information about the death, refusing even to say whether his investigators were called to the scene shortly after 10 p.m. Wednesday.

"I can't say yes and I can't say no," Copeland said.

A neighbor of the man, who declined to be identified, said Saturday that Marino had spoken about leaving town to attend a trial. But Marino never gave specifics about his participation in the case, the neigh-

Texas readies royal welcome for Charles

DALLAS (AP) - After four months of feverish work, Texans were ready today to welcome Brit-ain's Prince Charles on a five-day visit that includes a Texas-sized cake-cutting, high-tech tours and songs from Willie Nelson.

Charles, traveling without Princess Diana, was to be greeted tonight by Gov. Mark White and local dignitaries as he arrived in Dallas for his second visit to the Lone Star State.

Charles had planned to come to Dallas to give billionaire and computer magnate H. Ross Perot the Winston Churchill award — only the third presented in honor of those who epitomize Churchill's spirit. However, the state's celebration of its 150th birthday piqued his

The more he asked about the sesquicentennial, the more interested he got," said Sam Garner, head of the Texas Sesquicentennial Committee. "So he decided to see a lot more of the state.'

Charles will present the Churchill award Tuesday night after touring Electra Communications Corp., owned by the Britain-based Cable and Wireless and the Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad, and Electronic Data Systems, a company Perot founded. He'll also see Dallas' Infomart, a high-tech information

Wednesday, he'll visit Shell Oil Co.'s Deer Park refinery near Houston and the San Jacinto Monument, which commemorates Texas' independence from Mexico.

British Consulate spokeswoman Linda Kelly said he'll also visit Mountbatten House, a retirement home financed by the Daughters of the British Empire and named after the prince's late great-uncle.

The big sesquicentennial bash begins the next day in Austin, where the prince will host a ceremony on the Capitol steps that includes a 21gun salute.

The prince was very much interested in the restoration program going on at the Capitol," Garner said. Later Thursday, Prince Charles will cut what is billed as the world's largest birthday cake — weighing 90,000 pounds and measuring 80 feet by 110 feet — that Duncan Hines is presenting to the state. Next is a concert featuring country singer Nelson with the Austin symphony.

On Friday, before leaving for Palm Springs, Calif., the prince will fly to San Antonio to visit with Mayor Henry Cisneros and see an urban revitalization project.

We've managed to accommodate everything he wanted to do," Ms. Kelly said. "But we had to fill in practically every minute to do it."

Secret Service probes cases of Lubbock credit-card fraud

LUBBOCK (AP) - The Secret Service said it is investigating numerous cases in this West Texas city in which thousands of dollars of unauthorized credit card purchases were run up by people who noted others' credit card numbers off discarded carbons.

Federal agents say criminals are getting discarded carbons from restaurants and trash bins to obtain credit card numbers.

Credit card imprinting machines emboss the carbons with quite legible card numbers. For that reason, cardholders have long been encouraged to destroy the carbons in the credit card receipts they sign. Secret Service agent David Freriks said his office has handled two cases recently, and is investigating others. in which thousands of dollars in merchandise was ordered by mail using credit card numbers obtained from A log recovered during the recent arrest of one of two suspected members of a local ring contained dozens of credit card numbers, Freriks said. The other suspect had a list of at least 10 cards. They use this stuff like fences do." Freriks said, referring to people who deal in stolen goods. "It's custom ordering, like a black market." The Secret Service was given jurisdiction over two types of credit card fraud in 1984. One is outright counterfeiting in which a fake card is passed over the counter. The other is unauthorized usage in which a card number is used to order by mail or telephone: Maintaining lists of card numbers and owners also is illegal, according to Freriks.

The punishment range for card counterfeiting is 15 to 20 years and a fine rangning from $50,000 to $100,000. Unauthorized card usage carries penalties of 10 to 20 years and $10,000 to $100,000 in fines.

Midlander charged with beating three-year-old son

From Staff Reports

A 29-year-old Midland man is free on a $30,000 bond after being charged Saturday with beating up his 3-year-old son.

Juan Antonio Reyes, 608 Watson, had been arrested Wednesday after an incident in which he allegedly came home drunk and began beating his wife, according to police reorts. Reves then beat his son badly before leaving, reports said. He was arrested soon after and charged with driving while intoxicated

Reves was later charged with injury to a child, a third-degree felony with a penalty range of two to 10 years in state prison and up to a $5,000 fine. He was released after posting bond.

In other reports, an 18-year-old Odessa man died Sunday of injuries suffered in a Saturday traffic accident, according to Department of Public Safety reports.

Johnny Saucedo was injured about 2:30 a.m. Saturday on Interstate 20 in Ector County when his 1986 Toyota pickup overturned and he was thrown out. He was pronounced dead in Odessa's Medical Center Hospital at 11:40 a.m. Sunday. according to DPS reports.

Richard Thatcher, an Odessa man injured in another Saturday accident, remained listed in critical condition this morning, a Medical Center Hospital spokeswoman said.

Thatcher was injured about 12:25 p.m. in an accident which occurred in the 4600 block of Andrews Highway in Odessa, according to Odessa police reports Four people were treated for minor injuries and released after that accident, reports Honda of West Texas reported the

Ector County officers seek suspects in shooting incidents

deputies and Odessa police today continued to seek suspects in con nection with weekend shooting incidents that injured a teen-age youth and two brothers. Odessa police responding to a reported shooting shortly after 7 p.m. Sunday in the 1000-block of Clifford St., found 19vear-old Maurielio Ortez Gardea, 508 N. Kelly, and his 11-year-old brother, Noel Ortez Gardea, wounded in a vehicle. According to police spokesman

John McAhon, the older brother was struck in the back by a bullet that lodged near the base of his neck and the younger brother was struck in the left forearm by a bullet of unknown caliber. McAhon said the two brothers had

n visiting a cousin and as they left his southside home were approached by a group of six or seven people. A 17-year-old man in the group hit the older brother in the face and kicked him in the groin, police said. Apparently seeking to avoid any further confrontation, the older brother told his younger brother to get in the car, according to McAhon.

The older brother, whose birthday is today, remained in the intensive care unit at Medical Center Hospital today in stable condition. The younger brother also remains hospitalized in good condition.

McAhon said detectives continue to seek suspects and a motive in the shooting. Sheriff's deputies continue to investigate a shooting that apparently ended an argument early Saturday morning at the VFW Post 6717 Southside, 1507 Sargent Ave.

Sheriff's Capt. Gene Kloss said deputies responding to a reported shooting about 1:03 a.m. Saturday found 17-year-old Raymond Alvarado, 119 West Odessa St., had been struck in the face by a bullet of unknown caliber that fractured his

Alvarado was treated at Medical Center Hospital and released, Kloss

According to Kloss, deputies have not been able to determine what started the argument. A 17-year-old suspect is being sought.

ANCHORAGE

Lest you think the athletic events are small-time distractions for a remote population, think again, Anchorage is a growing destination for sports enthusiasts.

In 1974, Anchorage hosted the first World Cup Races ever held in the United States, with events drawing international champions to Alyeska Ski Resort, 40 miles south of town. Other international attractions have included the USA/USSR Olympic Exhibition Games and the Suburu Cross Country World Cup Races.

Nationally, Anchorage has become a prestigious destination for collegiate basketball teams, which each year vie for invitations to the highly popular "Great Alaska Shoot-Out," a tournament begun in 1978 and now seen by millions via satellite.

The tournament, held each Thanksgiving weekend, provides a three-game head start to the teams lucky enough to be invited and gives fans an excellent chance to see their teams in early season action. Past champions who have attended have included North Carolina State, Kentucky, North Carolina, Southwest Louisiana, Louisville and Villanova.

The list of coaches who have brought their teams reads like a Who's Who in NCAA College Basketball: Dean Smith, Denny Crum, Bobby Knight, Norm Sloan and Jim Valvano are just a few.

Another basketball highlight is the Northern Lights Invitational, now considered one of the finest women's basketball tournaments in the nation. Started in 1980, it now makes its home in the $30 million George M. Sullivan Arena and hosts such teams as San Diego State, Minnesota and Old Dominion.

With such crowd-drawers, it's little wonder that Anchorage is being considered by the International Olympic Committee as the site of the 1992 Winter Olympics. "Things are looking pretty good for 1992," said Keith Fernandez, a spokesman for the Anchorage Convention and Visitors Bureau. "We're bidding for 1992 but we could possibly get it in 1996. There have been some overtures, however, that the Soviet Union wants to have the Winter Olympics in Anchorage in 1992 so that they could host them in Leningrad in 1996."

Fernandez explained that the games are held alternately between curasia and North America every four years.

While Anchorage was nominated by the United States Olympic Committee as its choice, the final decision will be made when the IOC con-venes in Switzerland in October. If international competition

If international competition doesn't excite the winter visitor, the more uniquely Alaskan activities of the annual Anchorage Fur Rendezvous are sure to turn the head of even the most traveled vacationer. The Fur Rendezvous is Anchorage's way of ignoring the often brutal temperatures during February and, for novice winter visitors, this is the

'We're right up there with the Mardi Gras and the Rose Bowl Parade," said director Pamela Chavious, one of nine full-time, yearround employees who coordinate the more than 140 events of the "Rondy," as it has been labeled in recent years.

Ms. Chavious estimated that more than 15,000 visitors and participants come from outside Anchorage each year to be a part of the festivities. For her small group of workers, based at the "Rondy Palace" in downtown Anchorage, the annual celebration is big business.

"At the peak, we have some 4,000 volunteers working for the Rendezvous," she said. "The Rondy brings in about $15-17 million in revenue to Anchorage during its 10-day run."

While many participants come to compete in an endless list of "world championships," including the three-75-mile World Championship Sled Dog Race (which nets the winner $50,000, thank you very much), the World Championship Dog Weight Pulling Contest (in which dogs pull up to two tons on a frozen track), the World Championship Cross-Country Snow Machine Race (200 miles of wilderness racing) and the Grand Prix Auto Race — the nation's farthest north race of its kind most come to gawk at the myriad of activities. Gawkers may have to take their time, however, since activities are spread all over town, with many staged at the Sullivan Arena and in the downtown "buttress area" (a section of property bordering Anchorage's 4th Avenue, which collapsed and sank during the 1964 8.6

earthquake.)

Visitors may be flung high in a genuine Eskimo Blanket Toss, ride the Ferris wheel at minus 20 degrees in the amusement rides area, mush the huskies as they take a ride in a dogsled, cheer on the real mushers at the exhilarating opening moments of the World Championship Sled Dog Races, flex their muscles in the Alaska State Body Building Championships or cheer the teams during the Frozen Oosik Invitational Rugby Match. (An "oosik" for the uninformed, is the unique bone found in the penises of walruses and other sea mammals, and are widely collected for tourist shops.) If the crowds of Fur Rendezvous are too much for the tourist searching for the true Alaskan winter vacation, the great outdoors is situated in the back yard of Anchorage. The Chugach Mountains and associated state park (one of the largest in the nation) are the playground for Anchorage's outdoor enthusiasts. Cross-country ski trails abound as well as ample acreage for snowshoers to explore the vast display of natural beauty — complete with occasional glimpses, if not head-on confrontations, with wildlife.

system of bicycle trails which convert to cross-country ski trails, allowing its users to go all over town while never crossing a street (all trails go under or over the roadways.)

To the north, visitors will find the charming village of Eklutna, where a tiny Russian Orthodox church guards over the colorful graveyard of the Tanaina Indians. Small replicas of houses, brightly painted, sit atop the gravesites and are adorned with Russian Orthodox crosses — evidence of the Russian influence on native culture. The village is located 30 miles north of Anchorage on the main highway

To the south, lie Alyeska Ski Resort, Potter Marsh Wildlife Refuge and a beautiful winter drive alongside Turnagain Arm to Portage Glacier, 50 miles south of Anchorage, Turnagain Arm was named by a British explorer, who along with officer William (Mutiny on the Bounty) Bligh, found themselves "turning again" on another deadend search for the Northwest Passage. Portage Glacier, which can be viewed from the Begich-Boggs Visitors Center on the shore of Portage Lake, is easily reached by car or tour bus from Anchorage. Visitors will stand mere feet from gigantic turquoise icebergs, calved off from the receding glacier, a few miles distant, yet in clear view.

Wary drivers from southern climes need not worry about driving in Alaska. Rental cars are equipped with studded tires. The rule is, "slow and steady.

For the more adventurous, further outdoor winter activities may include flight-seeing trips to Mount McKinley (there are more than 20 operators offering flights, including some of Alaska's most seasoned "bush pilots").

A fairly new addition to the winter sports scene is hot air ballooning. "Ballooning is probably one of the most popular items," said Fernandez. Anchorage is second only to Albuquerque, N.M., in the number of balloons. An annual balloon festival held each summer also competes with its southern competitor for sheer numbers.

"Winter is the best time to go because of the clear skies. The heat from the balloon helps to moderate the air around the passenger, as well," he said. "You still have to wear a jacket, but you're not standing in frozen air all of the time."

From 3,000 feet up, passengers look out on the dying rays of the midnight sun as it illuminates the 20,000 foot McKinley, the Chigmit and Chugach Mountains and "Sleeping Lady" — an extinct volcano in the shape of a reclining woman, located across the inlet from

If the great outdoors gets too "great" temperature-wise, winter visitors to Anchorage will find all the trappings of civilization awaiting

Within Anchorage itself is a huge their return. From the Manhattanlike atmosphere of fine restaurants such as "Josephines" atop the Sheraton (be prepared - a dinner for two can run over $100), to the crusty bawdiness of "Chilkoot Charlie's Good Time Bar" - vacationers will find an endless variety of nightlife.

Top-name entertainment has been featured in concert appearances by such stars as Willie Nelson, Tina Turner, the Dance Theater of Harlem and George Carlin, to name a few. Also available is a thriving arts community with more than 60 performing companies listed. Chief among them is the Alaska Repertory Theater which attracts top-name

The majority of our arts season happens during the winter months." said Darl Schaaff, director of development for the Anchorage Arts Council and head of his own production company, "Jan-Dar." "Most people think of us Alaskans as running around up here in our fur parkas and living in igloos, but the truth is there is just no limit to the quality we are getting now. We just had Marcel Marceau and negotiated with Baryshnikov in July.'

Anchorage is currently gearing up for the expanding arts community with the addition of a 10-story, $50 million performing arts complex featuring three theaters.

The number of arts groups and quality are way out of proportion for a city this size," stated Schaaff. "I think it stems from the old survival instincts of the pioneers who learned how to entertain themselves during the cold winter months."

If the vacationer's idea of entertainment is shopping. Anchorage is no disappointment. Aside from the numerous, but generic shopping malls and shops, visitors to Anchorage should take time to duck in and out of the many small arts and crafts shops lining the main streets of the downtown area. There they will find ivory carvings, fine grass baskets, soapstone carvings, native masks, oosiks (remember them?) and plenty of jade and gold nugget jewelry.

Be sure to visit the Alaska Native Arts and Crafts Co-op where the work of more than 2,000 native artists can be identified by its "silver hand" label, indicating authenticity.

Other shopping "musts" include the fur shops where visitors may watch the furriers at work, the Kobuk Coffee Shop, where authentic Russian Samovar tea is still sold in pungent packages and the charming Mc-Mac Shoppe, which features imported Gaelic gifts. While Anchorage may not be the adventurous at heart. One look at the Aurora Borealis (Northern Lights) shimmering above the Fur Rendezvous in full swing at night will make even the most hardened traveler marvel at this strange mixture of rugged spirit and cosmo-

Statistics show most Baby Boomers not yuppies

Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service

As a computer analyst earning more than $32,000 a year, 31-year-old Bill Mitchell could be your typical affluent Baby Boom professional. But, rather than enjoying the glow of his career success, Mitchell is increasingly frustrated.

After paying rent on his Hermosa Beach, Calif., apartment and other expenses, he, his wife and two young children have little money left over to enjoy the good life, he said. They can afford to eat out only about once a week. And he has little left over to save or invest in stocks, bonds or what he really wants — a house.

"I'm making more money than my dad did ever in his life, but I can't afford a home and he could," Mitchell said, noting that his car payments of $260 a month were more than his father's house payments at $150 a month. "It's frustrating. I've got a good and stable job with potential for upward mobility, but yet with just one income, to get a real nice home would be a hard situation."

Many of the 76 million Americans born during the so-called Baby Boom during the two decades following World War II would find Mitchell's case painfully familiar. The stereotype of Baby Boomers as free-spending, self-indulgent, affluent young urban professionals (yuppies) driving BMWs, buying videocassette recorders and taking Club Med vacations is far from reality for the bulk of the generation, according to economists, policy-makers and other experts.

Instead, Baby Boomers are being squeezed by multiple economic forces: a labor market crowded by their massive numbers, the national shift of employment from manufacturing to service industries, slower economic growth, higher inflation, higher real interest rates, higher taxes and other factors.

BABY BOOMERS ARE finding it harder to afford homes and, despite their image as free spenders, have been actually spending less on luxuries than their predecessors did a de-

Many economic, social and demographic changes of the last decade smaller homes, more women in the work force, later and fewer children per family, adult children leaving their parents' homes later, a lower savings rate and higher consumer debt - are attributed at least partly to Baby Boomers adjusting to their financial predicaments, many experts contend.

While the middle class as a group is not disappearing, the young middle class (principally the Baby Boomers) has experienced a dramatic decline in its ability to pursue the conventional American dream: a home, financial security and education for their children," said a December report prepared by the Urban Institute, a Washington-based think-tank, for the congressional

Joint Economic Committee. "The whole idea of the Baby Boom as a group of super-affluent yuppies is a gross distortion," said Sandra Shaber, a consumer economist at Chase Econometrics, a leading economic research company

In fact, a typical young family headed by a person between 25 and 34 hardly fits the yuppie stereotype, the Urban Institute report said. It consists of a husband and wife and one child under age 12 earning a median pre-tax family income of $25,157, "hardly enough to buy a BMW and eat out regularly," the re-

DESPITE A HIGHER incidence of two-income families and higher educational levels, average income for such families fell 14 percent between 1973 and 1983, according to the Census Bureau. That makes Baby Boomers financially worse off than their counterparts at the same age 10 to 20 years ago, economists say. Such a trend has far-reaching psychological, social, economic and political implications.

The inability of many Baby Boomers to match their parents' status quickly — suburban homes, providing for two or more children — is leading to a growing disillusionment in the generation and even might be a factor behind the growing divorce and suicide rate, some experts argue.

Baby Boomers' lower savings rate, if continued, could depress future investment in business and technology. Their high rate of borrowing through credit cards and other debt instruments, which is seen as a major force behind the recent ballooning of consumer debt, sparks fears that they may be overextending themselves and may have to cut back spending, which could throw the economy into recession, some economists fear.

The plight of Baby Boomers and their children also is increasingly injecting issues of "generational equity" into debates over policies governing taxes, the federal deficit, Social Security and other issues - particularly since Baby Boomers account for nearly half of all adults of voting

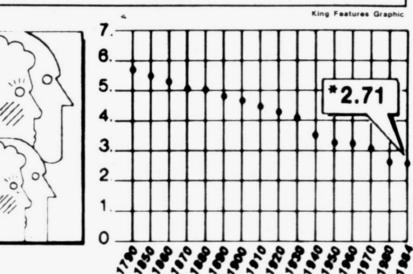

ONE EXAMPLE of the growing interest in generational equity is the formation last year of a special-interest organization, Americans for Generational Equity, co-chaired by Sen. Dave Durenberger, R-Minn., and Rep. James R. Jones, D-Okla., to promote reform of Social Security and

Medicare and other policies. "A number of disturbing trends now indicate that the immense Baby Boom generation ... will collectively face a disastrous retirement, and that its children will, in turn, be much more heavily burdened with the support of its parents than any other generation in our nation's history," the group argued in its statement of purpose.

The group pointed out, for example, that given Baby Boomers' propensity for having fewer children, there will be far fewer workers to finance the Social Security benefits of Baby Boomers when they reach retirement age — and those workers will be taxed at a far higher rate

Baby Boomers' children also are suffering financially. About one of five of the nation's children are living below the poverty level, a rate far above that for the nation's elderly - a dramatic reversal from 15 years ago when the elderly had higher poverty rates than children. Analysts are concerned that those children from low-income families will

According to this information from the Census Bureau, household size has dropped at a faster pace since World War II as small families and one-person households become more common.

become low-income adults unable to make full contributions to the Social Security system, reducing the funds available for Baby Boomers'

"Baby Boomers can count on some Social Security, but not the present Social Security system," argues A. Haeworth Robertson, a former chief actuary of the Social Security Administration and now a managing director of William M. Mercer-Meidinger Inc., a leading employeebenefits consulting company. 'The benefits are likely to start much later and will probably be smaller than they are now.

GROWING AWARENESS of Baby Boomers' economic plight also is causing businesses to reassess marketing and advertising strategies. Some companies that tried to tailor advertising campaigns exclusively to affluent yuppies "have come to realize that there really aren't enough of them out there to sustain such a marketing drive," said Peter Kim, director of consumer information for J. Walter Thompson USA, a major advertising agency.

The agency, in a recent study titled "The New American Consumer based largely on Census-Bureau data, said that about 42 million, or 72 percent, of employed Baby Boomers aged 21-39 are working primarily in low-paying, service industry jobs earning an average income of about $10,000 a year. By contrast, the study says, there are only 3 million yuppies earning an average income of about $39,000 annually.

Another 11 million Baby Boomers are what J. Walter Thompson calls 'would-be's" - those with educational levels and lifestyle aspirations similar to those of yuppies, but without yuppie-like incomes. Most of these would-be's are schoolteachers, social workers, dental hygienists and other relatively low-paid service workers who "will never generate the necessary earning power" to become yuppies.

Indeed, advertisers are increasingly recognizing that the Americans with the greatest spending power are pre-Baby Boomers between the ages of 40 and 60, who enjoyed the robust growth of the 1950s and 1960s and acquired homes before the big interest-rate and price run-ups of the 1970s, says Alan J. Gottesman, advertising analyst with the investment company of L.F. Rothschild, Unterberg, Towbin.

BABY BOOMERS, the Urban Institute report said, have been spending less on luxury goods than people of similar age a decade ago. A typical young family in 1981 spent 14 percent less on furniture, 30 percent less on clothes, 15 percent less on personal care and 38 percent less on charitable contributions (adjusted for inflation) than a similar family in 1973, the report said. Key to this plight is the higher cost of home ownership, experts say. Home prices have increased faster than inflation in the past decade, while mortgage rates are near historical highs, adjusted for inflation.

The Urban Institute report noted that in 1963, a typical 30-year-old man needed 44 percent of his paycheck to cover a typical mortgage, compared to only 21 percent 10 years earlier. Accordingly, the rate of home ownership has declined to 63.8 percent of American households from 65.8 percent in 1980, which translates into about 2 million families that would have been expected to become homeowners that instead are renters, George Tresnak, economist for the National Association of Realtors, said.

That difficulty in buying a home - even with two incomes - is a major source of frustration among Baby Boomers, particularly since many of their parents were able to buy homes on just one income, many social scientists say.

"SO MANY YOUNGSTERS came from affluent homes, they also have expectations of having a home in the suburbs and two cars," said Fabian Linden, executive director of the Consumer Research Center at the Conference Board, a business research organization. "These kids walk out and expect to duplicate what they left. But they can't do that "I don't know of anyone in my age group and income bracket who's able to buy a house without having money left to them by their parents or having their parents loaning them the down payment," said a 31-yearold Los Angeles attorney, who was able to make a $46,000 down payment on a $232,000 house in Beverly Hills, Calif., only because she received a large sum from her father.

But nearly all her other friends are renting, she said, and "they are very angry. They make out their $1,200 rent check every month and it's just money out the window."

"People are more distilusioned," she added. 'They feel that making a lot of money would bring them in-

"It's very frustrating for me to think about the amount of money it takes to buy a house," said Richard Reeves, 34, a Sepulveda, Calif., wine salesman who earns about $25,000 a year to support his wife and 10-month-old child. Those of his friends who have bought homes "had to deny themselves a lot of pleasures, such as vacations and children. "I don't think that kind of denial is worth shortening the time it would take for me to buy my own home. To be sure, Baby Boomers' finan-cial condition could improve as they grow older and move into higher paying jobs. The low birth rates since 1964, which created the socalled Baby Bust generation, are likely to result in less competition for entry-level jobs over the next decade. That could raise wages and benefit Baby Boomers as well.

MANY BABY BOOMERS also are in line to inherit wealth from their affluent parents. Consumer analyst Linden pointed out that the 40 percent of the population over age 50 holds 77 percent of the nation's financial assets. "Never before in this country has any generation stood to benefit from such a high level of inherited wealth," Linden said of the Baby Boomers.

And if the economy returns to growth rates and productivity increases similar to those of the 1950s and 1960s, "this generation would simply grow out of its problems," said Richard C. Michel, director of the Urban Institute's income security and pension policy center and a co-author of the institute's study of Baby Boomers.

But many economists point out that there are few signs that robust productivity growth is returning. And even if it does, it may not translate into better times for Baby Boomers. That is at least partly due to the shift from high-paying manufacturing jobs to lower-paying service jobs.

The Baby Bust could also hurt Baby Boomers. With fewer younger people in the population, for exam-ple, there could be reduced future demand for housing, which would depress housing prices and thus make it harder for Baby Boom homeowners to increase their equity as homeowners who bought before the mid-1970s did.

MANY EXPERTS CONTEND that Baby Boomers have adjusted to their difficult prospects and will continue to do so. University of Southern California economist Richard A. Easterlin argued that by continuing to have fewer and later children and more working wives and mothers, Baby Boomers have more than offset their declining real incomes. He said that while Baby Boomers' real income per household has declined in the past decade, their per-capita income has not, simply because they have compensated by having smaller

BUT THESE AND other sacrifices, coming amid Baby Boomers' high expectations, have led to "greater psychological stress" among Baby Boomers, which in turn could be a reason for higher suicide and divorce rates, Easterlin

DEAR ABBY: Here is a dilemma that I think we've all faced at one time. You are at a party and someone greets you by name. The face is familiar, but you can't remember the name. The person begins talking to you, then suddenly somebody you know joins you. You want to introduce the two but can't remember the name of the stranger. What do you do? - ON THE SPOT

DEAR ON: You'll probably never believe this, but I just happen to have a brand-new book on my desk titled "Letitia Baldridge's Complete Guide to Executive Manners." I looked in the index under "Introducing People" and found the following:

While the easiest solution is to admit that you have temporarily forgotten a name, there is another alternative. It's called the 'talk fast and maybe they won't guess the truth' solution. If you have forgotten the name of the person who has joined your group, begin talking quickly in a pleasant, even funny exaggerated way. Build up the ego of the person whose name you can't recall:

"Listen, everyone, this is someone I haven't seen for a long, long time, but he was such a fantastic salesman that the rumor is he almost sold the office building to his company president!"

"If the only thing you can remember about a person is where he lives, you can almost always drag out a little story that will cause everyone to smile. Soon they are shaking hands and everyone is introducing himself all around. Probably the newcomer and the others in the group don't even realize you never once mentioned his name. (It works, because I do it all the time.)

"Honesty, however, is always the best policy. Just admit the name has slipped your mind. Generally, you will be forgiven.'

This book is an absolute treasure. You don't have to be an executive to learn from it; anyone who works with other people will find it enormously helpful. It's more than a guide to manners; it's a practical guide to common-sense behavior in hundreds of social and business situations. It's published by Rawson Associates, and can be found at your local book dealer's. The price is $22.95 — not inexpensive, but worth every penny

DEAR ABBY: I hope you don't mind lending me your ears (eyes?) for something seemingly trivial, but this bugs me no end.

I live alone, far from family. Last Christmas what do I get from my sister but a short note that amounts to a weather report. (We stopped exchanging gifts years ago, but we do exchange letters) This "loquacious" lady with her university degree is married, has two children and lives near childhood friends and relatives. so she has plenty to write about. It's hard for me to believe that none of these people ever say or do anything worth mentioning. In my last letter, I asked her to please send along some juicy gossip for a change. Nothing. I've inquired as to the state of the health of a dear neighbor who had celebrated his 100th birthday three years ago. Nothing. I mentioned that I had been mugged in the park. No comment. I recounted a recent automobile accident in which I narrowly escaped serious injury. No response. I am wondering if I should quit writing to this sister, or should I continue to drop letters into a dark, bot-

tomless pit. - WRITTEN OFF

DEAR WRITTEN OFF: Your sister's newsless letters should signal a clearly spelled-out message. She wants nothing more than a polite let's-keep-in-touch correspondence with you - if that.

(Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents) self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Guild to sponsor Quilt Appraisal Day The Midland Quilters Guild is sponsoring Quilt Appraisal Day from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. Saturday at Marion Blakemore Planetarium. Cost will be $12 per quilt for the general public and $7.50 per quilt for guild members. Call 682-9804 for an appointment.

Quilt Appraiser Sharon Newman will provide the written appraisals which will take into consideration the known quilt history as reported by the owner, the conditions and the workmanship of each quilt. For the past seven years, Ms. Newman has owned The Quilt Shop in Lubbock, has taught various quilting classes and has attended classes on dating and evaluating quilts.

She has appraised several hundred quilts in West Texas and is familiar with quilts from the area.

New eyedrop approved by FDA

NEW YORK (AP) - The. U.S. Food and Drug Administration has approved a new eyedrop that may benefit 5 to 6 million Americans who suffer from some form of glaucoma, according to Dr. Michael E. Yablonski, chief of Glaucoma Service at Cornell University Medical Center:

Because "betagan" is 60 percent lower in price than the current leading eyedrop for glaucoma, there is a saving of about $150 a year, Yablonski said.

Such savings are significant because glaucoma patients invariably require therapy for life, he added. Although glaucoma may occur at any time, it is a disease predominantly associated with aging, affecting three out of every 100 people of retirement age; he said. In one clinical study, 72 percent of patients treated with the new drug once a day had their intraocular pressure successfully controlled.

Yablonski reported. Approximately 3 percent of the U.S. population can be designated as having some form of glaucoma, according to the American Academy of Ophthalmology. Untreated glaucoma can lead to blindness. Worldwide, it is the third leading cause of sight loss.

ance their professional lives with their personal lives, says Dr. Conalee Levine-Shneidman, a psychologist and expert on career development. She said her study of 300 women across the United States showed that most, regardless of age or geographical location, reported they felt a pull between what was expected of them at work and what was expected of them at home.

"What they felt at home was that they were required to be soft and loving and touching and nurturing.

But at work, they were required to be logical, tough and hard-edged,"

The women declared they often found it difficult to integrate these two conflicting images, Levine-Shneidman said, speaking here at a conference, "Women and Success: a Second Look," sponsored by the Na-tional Women's Economic Alliance Foundation and the Clairol Scholarship Program.

"Some women felt they were being duplicitous," she said. "In other ords, they were putting on an act, to speak."

She pointed out that women have traditionally been raised to have more access to their emotional lives than men; that women are just now learning to have access to the logical part of their lives, which can enable them to be tough and hard-edged in business.

"Instead of enjoying the richness that this gives women, namely, that they can draw upon a broader spectrum of feelings than men in general can draw upon, they put themselves down for it," she said.

"It is not duplicitous when you are one way in the workplace and anothphony." Levine-Shneidman, a former asso-Levine-Shneidman, a former associate professor of psychology at New York University Graduate School, is currently in private practice. She is the author of the book, "Too Smart for Her Own Good."

Analysts predict falling oil prices to boost economy

economy, bolstered by falling oil prices, should enjoy significantly better growth this year than in 1985, many economists now believe.

The new optimism represents a sharp turnaround from expectations little more than a month ago. At that time, many analysts felt the economy would muddle through the new year much as it did last year, with sluggish growth and a stagnant unemployment level.

However, plunging world oil prices have altered that view. In the last month, oil prices on the spot market have fallen by one-third, dropping from $25 per barrel to around $17 per barrel.

Such a precipitous decline could spell trouble for countries such as Mexico, which depend on oil revenue to finance their heavy debt burdens, but it is likely to be good news for most Americans.

The beneficial impact of falling oil prices will be felt in two ways, economists believe

U.S. output will rise because consumers and businesses will have more to spend on other items, since their oil bills will be less, and inflation in this country will be lower.

The economic effect is the same as getting a big tax cut. It is a terrific boon for the economy," said Nariman Behravesh, vice president of Wharton Econometrics, a private forecasting firm. "Money that would have gone to pay an oil bill, much of it to foreigners, will now be used by consumers to buy cars, refrigerators and take vacations.

Wharton, which in December was forecasting that the economy would grow 3 percent this year, is now predicting growth of 3.7 percent, when measured from the fourth quarter of 1985 to the fourth quarter of 1986.

That is sharply higher than the weak 2.5 percent growth turned in during 1985 and is not far from the Reagan administration's optimistic prediction that the economy will grow at a robust 4 percent rate this Allen Sinai, chief economist for

Shearson Lehman Brothers, another New York-based investment firm, said he had boosted his forecast to show 3.7 percent growth, up from 3.3 percent earlier. "The status of oil prices is looking more and more like it will be a big event for the U.S. economy," Sinai said. "It will give us more real growth and a little less inflation.'

Canadian jeweler bids $520 million for Zales

New York Times News Service

NEW YORK - The Zale Corp., the nation's largest jewelry retailer, said on Sunday that it had received an unsolicited proposal to be acquired by Peoples Jewellers Ltd. of Toronto for $40 a share in cash and stock, or about $520 million.

Peoples, Canada's largest publicly owned jewelry retailer, offered Zale shareholders $35 in cash and $5 in preferred stock. Peoples, which already holds a 15 percent stake in Zale, said it planned to finance the offer through the sale of high-yield securities, or so-called junk bonds.

"Placement and sale of such bonds is conditioned, among other things, on approval of the Peoples merger proposal by the Zale board of directors," the statement said.

In a statement, Donald Zale, chairman and chief executive, said the management and its financial adviser, Merrill Lynch Inc., would study the offer and make a recommendation to Zale's board of directors. The company, based in Irving, Texas, said no date had been set for a board meeting on the matter.

Sunday's proposal followed by five years another effort by Peoples to acquire Zale. In 1981, the Canadian retailer held a 10 percent stake in Zale and threatened to buy up to 25 percent of the shares, but the two companies reached an accord under which Zale agreed to stop litigation against Peoples and Peoples agreed to limit its interest to 21 percent.

Zale's statement added that the Zale and Lipshy families, who together own about 30 percent of the company's shares, were "unlikely to support the Peoples' proposal." He pointed out that, under Texas law, a favorable vote of at least twothirds of the shares outstanding is required to approve any merger.

Officials of Peoples could not be reached for comment on Sunday. Zale operates the nation's largest chain of retail jewelry stores, with more than 1,500 outlets in 49 states and overseas. The company reported a 13 percent increase in net income for the quarter ended Dec. 31, to $40.2 million, from $25.5 million in the corresponding period period in However, when the company released its first-quarter results in August, Zale said it viewed with caution the rest of its fiscal year, which ends March 31. At the time it said that sales were weak in most divisions and that it would invoke cost-control efforts. Zale's stock fell to about $27 after the August announcement. Last Friday, on the New York Stock Exchange the stock closed at $32.50.

Union meatpackers enter seventh month of strike

AUSTIN, Minn. (AP) — The strike by union meatpackers against Hormel entered its seventh month today amid criticism from the parent union and company reports that Hormel's flagship plant has reached its full complement of workers. More than 100 members of Local

P4 of the United Food and Commercial Workers Union set up pickets outside the FDL Foods plant in Dubuque, Iowa, today and urged Iowa union members not to report for work. FDL has a marketing agreement with Hormel and has been the subject of previous roving picket campaigns from the Austin local.

On Saturday, Local P-9's parent union issued a report officials said was intended to spell out "myths and facts" of the dispute with the Geo. A. Hormel & Co. Hormel & Co.

"Never in my experience as a union representative has a better group of members been so poorly served by inexperienced, inflexible local union representatives," UFCW President William Wynn wrote in

he report.

Local P-9's strategies of roving pickets and a national boycott of Hormel products have been condemned by Wynn and other international officials.

The report was issued the same day about 2,000 union members and supporters from across the country came to Austin to rally for the strikers.

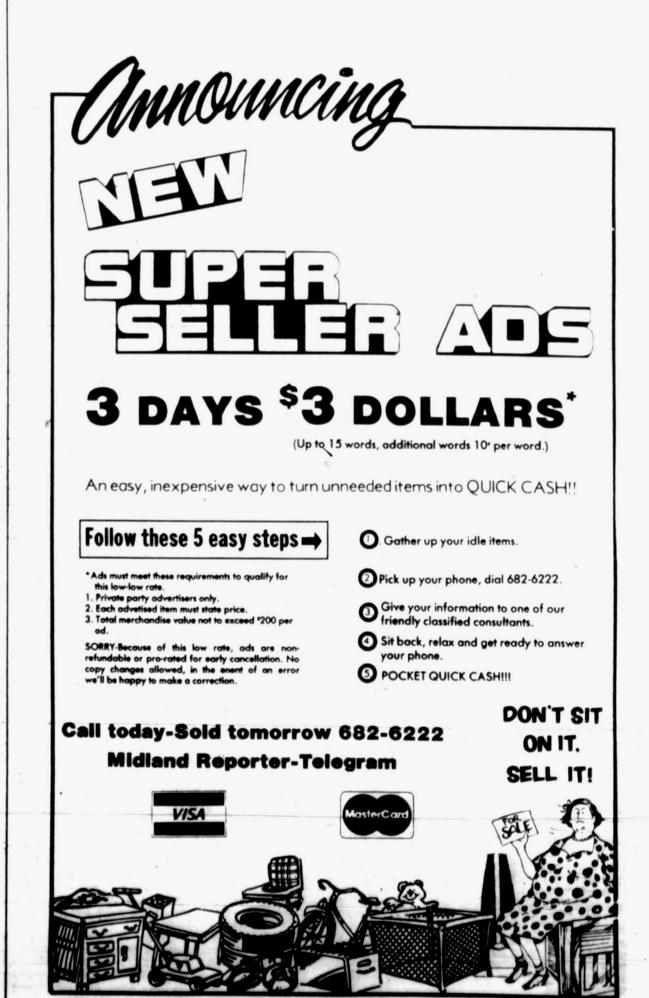

"We want to have kind of a love feast for P-9, to show them that we stand with them all the way," said Larry Dunham, one of a few hundred Twin Cities union members who came to the southern Minnesota city in a caravan.

Planned demolition razes earthquake-damaged hotel

MEXICO CITY (AP) — One of Mexico City's landmark hotels was demolished Sunday in a hurried-up effort to remove an eyesore from the September killer earthquakes before an international sports tournament.

The Continental Hotel, once owned by the Hilton Hotel chain, was blown up in a series of planned explosions that took about a dozen seconds and attracted thousands of spectators to watch the demise of the once-grand hotel. The crowd roared its approval as the 16-story hotel on the city's broad Paseo de la Reforma boulevard collapsed into a heap of broken concrete and twisted metal, some six stories high.

It was the 25th building severely damaged in the Sept. 19-20 earthquakes to be demolished by explosives. Architect Maria Antonieta Estrada, coordinator of the demolition project for the city government, said, "It was perfect. It was very well done."

"It was beautiful," said Douglas Loizeaux, vice president of Controlled Demolition Inc., of Phoenix, Md.

"It really surpassed our expectations. We had expected a sloppier job," he said. Loizeaux, whose company set the 2,420 pounds (1,100 kilograms) of Tovex water gel explosive, said his crew hurried up the demolition work because President Miguel de la Madrid ordered the building brought down in preparation for the World Cup soccer tournament, De la Madrid, he said, "got tired of looking at it as he drove to work.

'We were working under a lot of political pressure," Loizeaux said.

He said his crew worked around the clock for two weeks to get the building ready for demolition. The workers, he said, could have used another week.

With more preparation, he said, the resulting pile of rubble would have been much smaller. Walls in the basement, he said, should have been removed to give more room for the debris.

He also said the building had been badly damaged in a 1957 earthquake and patched up with concrete and steel, adding to the amount of materials that had to be

Mrs. Estrada said last fall's quakes caused the top three floors of the 375-room hotel to collapse. There was danger, she said, the structure would fall into the busy Reforma boulevard or onto a neighboring parking lot.

Just before the late-afternoon explosion, workers turned on hoses from the nearby 20-story Banco Internacional to create a wall of water to block demolition dust from entering the bank's computer system.

Mrs. Estrada said the workers had feared some of the bank's floor-to-ceiling windows would be shattered in the explosion, but no damage was apparent. To bring down the 30,000-square-yard hotel, the crew set off 1,560 detonators over 61/2 seconds in a series of controlled explosions that Mrs. Estrada said were as strong as an earthquake with an intensity of 3 on the Remains of 13 missing airmen were uncovered in the tirst in Pakse province south of Savannakhet.

Chinese airliner disappears

TAIPEI, Taiwan (AP) - Searchers today spotted a large oil slick in rough seas near the island where a China Airlines Boeing 737 with 13 people on board made an unsuccessful attempt to land, and then disappeared, officials said.

Wang Yu-yang, a spokesman for the Civil Aeronautics Administration, told reporters the oil slick was believed to be from the missing plane. However, searchers reported no sign of any wreckage, or the six passengers and seven crew aboard the plane, he said.

All those aboard the plane were Taiwanese. The jet was flying from Taipei, the Taiwanese capital, to Penghu, the largest island in the Pescadores chain, about 185 miles to the Wang said the plane's front wheels touched down briefly at Penghu airport, but the aircraft suddenly took off again, apparently because of landing gear problems. The pilot radioed the control tower he would make another landing approach, but contact was lost with the plane four minutes later, he said.

Kuwaiti chopper crashes

KUWAIT (AP) - A French-made military helicopter crashed during a night training mission, killing the two pilots, the Kuwait Defense Ministry said today.

A ministry statement said the Gazelle model helicopter crashed late Sunday near the Ali Salem Air Base after its engine caught fire. The statement did not give the exact location of the base. It said a special technical commit-tee had been set up to investigate the cause of the fire.

The pilots were identified as Maj. Othman Abdul-Hadi and Maj. Mohammed Al-Khalaf.

We're using innovative resources to meet your energy needs. Historically, when long-range growth projections showed we would need more electric generating capacity, we built new power plants. Even though we know we'll need new plants in the future to meet your electrical needs, rising construction and financing costs mean we must plan carefully to keep costs down. So, we are also seeking other ways to meet our commitment to keep your electric rates reasonable. By using low-cost solutions to meet future needs, we've held the line on the cost of your electricity, while delivering an adequate, reliable supply of that power.

Take our Energy Action Program, for example. It offers you, our customers, the chance to earn valuable rebates when you install energy-efficient equipment in your homes or buildings. In the long run, paying you to be more energy-efficient will be less expensive for us. With a reduced demand on our system, it could delay or even eliminate the need to build as many new power plants.

At Texas Utilities Electric Company, bringing you the right amount of electricity at the right price is our commitment to you. And it's how we aim to keep the people, the businesses and the jobs coming to our part of Texas.

AUTO NEWS

CHRYSLER INCLUDES NEAT TOUCHES FOR 1986

NEWS RELEASE: DETROIT-Many "neat touches" have been engineered into Chrysler/Plymouth cars for the 1986 model year. Here is a run down on some of them. Child Safety Door Locks

Child-safety door locks on the rear doors have been made standard on the 1986 Chrysler LeBaron GTS. The locks are activated by a selector switch on the shut face of the door near the latch. When the locks are activated, the door cannot be opened from the inside. Locking the door with the regular locking button prevents the door from being obened from the outside. A label warning occupants of the safety locks is attached to the window glass in the

New Ignition Key

Most vehicles will get a new turn-on for 1986 because there's a new Corporate ignition key. The new key has a plated brass armature and a molded black plastic head. The head is smoother and easier to grip than previous keys and is more readily identifiable. The key for the glove box and trunk retains the round plated brass head.

An 8-bit dedicated micro-processor with 4k of memory regulates the temperature of the incoming air in the new optional Automatic Temperature control available of the 1986 Chrysler New Yorker. The micro-processor measures the interior air and makes adjustments every seven seconds to provide the desired level of heat or cooling. After the desired temperature has been reached, the system automatically changes the incoming air temperature slightly so that it will not feel too warm in the summer or too cool in the winter. In cold weather, the system delays the start of the blower until the engine warms up.

Heater Helpers

Heaters on 1986 vehicles equipped with four-cylinder engines will provide heat to the passenger compartment more quickly than previous models because the heater supply hose is attached to the water pump rather than "t-eed" into one of the radiator hoses.

And the heater-only climate control system on the Chrysler New Yorker, LeBaron, Laser, and Plymouth Caravelle and Reliant provides improved ventilation because it uses the same housing, fan and motor, ducting and outlets as the optional air conditioning system.

CHMSL

All Chrysler/Plymouth automobiles for 1986 are equipped with a center, high-mounted stop lamp. In most applications, the lamp is mounted inside the passenger compartment on the shelf panel and sealed to the backlite to prevent its light from shining into the passenger compartment

Fast-Burn Cylinder Head

The cylinder head of the corporate four-cylinder engine in 2.2L, 2.2L turbocharged and 2.5L versaions has been modified to increase efficiency, driveability and idle quality. The improvements are made possible by faster combustion of the air/fuel mixture in the engine. Driveability and idle quality are improved because because the faster combustion process makes engine operation smoother and more consistent. There is no loss or torque and only about a three percent loss of peak power.

Low Pressure Single-Point Fuel Injection The transition from carburetors to fuel injection on all corporate four-cylinder engines (except in Horizon/turismo) is completed in 1986. The single point injection system operates at 15 pounds per square inch (PSI) pressure, less than half the fuel system pressure previously used. The new system has new hardware including a new hardware including a new Bosch-designed fuel injector, low-profile throttle body, fuel temperature sensor, automatic idle system, and in-tank fuel pump.
