Ex-Navy commander charged with spying

LONDON (AP) — Britain lodged an espionage charge Friday against a man identified as a former U.S. naval commander and intelligence specialist. Pentagon records indicate that he worked at one time on secret submarine projects.

Police said the man was arrested while trying to flee the country. John Bothwell, 59, identified in court as a retired Navy commander who quit the military 22 years ago and then worked in a U.S. intelligence agency for 10 years, was arraigned on a charge of violating Britain's 1911 Official Secrets Act.

He was accused of preparing to divulge information that could have been "useful to an enemy." The charge did not specify the information or the foreign power allegedly involved.

Press Association, Britain's domestic news agency, reported without attribution that Bothwell gave police a lengthy statement in which he allegedly admitted having a relationship with the Soviet Union over the past 10 years.

The news agency said Bothwell told police he acted as a middleman in unspecified trade deals between the Soviet Union and South Africa. The report could not be independently confirmed.

In Washington, Navy officials at the Pentagon said they had no independent knowledge that the man was Bothwell, but released a service record for a Cmdr. John Henry Bothwell that appeared to match.

It says Bothwell spent most of his Navy career in the submarine service, eventually commanding two attack subs. He also had other assignments for which he would have held a high security clearance.

Detective Superintendent Hilton Cole of Scotland Yard's Special Branch, which deals with national security matters, told the court Bothwell was arrested Sunday while trying to leave Britain after receiving a coded telephone call. The circumstances and place of the arrest were not disclosed

Bothwell gave a home address in Bath, England, but Press Association said he spent six months of the year in England and the rest in Athens, Bothwell was not required to enter a plea, and sat silently throughout the 15-minute hearing Friday at Bow Street Magistrates Court.

Magistrate William Robins rejected an application for bail by Bothwell's attorney, Elizabeth Roscoe, and ordered him jailed for a week pending further proceedings.

cords Cmdr. John Henry Bothwell was an instructor at the anti-submarine warfare school in San Diego, Calif., from Oct. 6, 1961, to Aug. 8, 1963, and from Aug. 20, 1964, until his retirement July 31, 1965, was assigned to the staff of Submarine Development Group TWO at New Lon-

Development Group TWO is a highly classified organization responsible for developing and testing new tactics and equipment for use by the submarine fleet.

Bothwell was born on June 30, 1926, in Schenectady, N.Y., but listed his home of record as Narbeth, Pa., the Pentagon record said. He was inducted into the Navy on June 30, Bothwell, tanned and gray-haired, smiled at his British wife, Ann, in the public gallery as he entered the courtroom. He wore a checked blazer and tie and carried a raincoat, hat and a copy of the Robert Graves' novel "I, Claudius."

The U.S. Embassy said Bothwell had applied for protection under the U.S. Privacy Act, which prevents the embassy from disclosing information about his case or his background.

Prince visits minority-owned firm, day care center in San Antonio

Charles visited a minority-owned business, a day care center in a housing project, and two homes in an urban renewal area Friday as he wound down a five-day, four-city tour of Texas.

He flew into San Antonio late Friday morning from Austin, where a day earlier he had used a sword to cut a cake touted as the world's largest while Texans sang "Happy Birthday" to themselves on their 150th anniversary of independence from

Shortly after his arrival in San Antonio, Prince Charles was accompanied by Mayor Henry Cisneros on a tour of Mil-Tronics, a minorityowned factory that makes electronic circuit boards.

After lunch with 1,500 people at the city's Convention Center, the prince originally was scheduled to visit a day care center in a housing project, then go to the airport to fly to Palm Springs, Calif., his last stop before returning to England Satur-The prince added a stop to his itin-

Upon his arrival at Mil-Tronics late Thursday morning, Prince Charles was greeted by a group known as Communities Organized for Public Service, a church-based community activist organization. He was presented with a large COPS button that he attached to his lapel.

NASA went ahead with launch despite tests, magazine claims went ahead with the launch of Challenger even though its tests a year ago showed that weather conditions like those overnight on Jan. 27-28 could freeze critical seals on booster rockets, an aerospace magazine says.

Aviation Week and Space Technology, a respected industry magazine, said the NASA wind tunnel tests super-chilled shuttle tank against the lower section of the right solid rocket booster could cause a stiffening of the rubber-like seals, making them ineffective.

Engineers believe this situation set up a deadly sequence of events, stemming from overnight cold, that eventually caused the Challenger's loose from the fuel tank. The solid rocket booster apparently crashed into the wing, the magazine said, illustrating its article with photographs.

The still-unused, new shuttle launch pad at Vandenberg Air Force Base in California is equipped with heaters, using the 150-250-degree exhaust from two jet engines, for warming shuttles in cold weather. White asks Reagan to impose temporary fee on imported oil

By JIM WARREN

Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN - President Ronald Reagan must immediately impose a tem-porary fee on imported oil and petroleum products to save domestic drilling production and protect the nation's security, Gov. Mark White

White said he called on the president to act right away before low spot prices force stripper wells and secondary recovery projects to stop because production no longer would be profitable. Allowing Arab nations to flood the market with cheap oil discourages domestic production, the governor said, putting America at the mercy of OPEC.

"Action must be taken now before

The Reporter-Telegram will publish a comprehensive look at the possible fee on imported oil in its Sunday Business section. The overview will include a survey of Midland independent operators more irreparable damage is done," White wrote in his letter to the White House. "Such a tariff will immediately restore stability to our do-mestic oil and gas industry which is so critical to our national security and our ability to negotiate from a position of strength with other nations of the world."

Under the Trade Act of 1974, the president can impose a temporary tariff, under certain circumstances, without congressional approval.

The federal government, White said, should give Mexico and Canada rebates from the temporary fee. Also, the government should give exemptions to low-income people who use oil for heating in the Northeast United States, he said.

Mayor ponders probe into unanswered letter

BORGER (AP) — Mayor Frank Selfridge said Friday night he doesn't know whether he'll seek a probe into why city officials weren't told of a settlement offer that could have saved the city as much as $1 million.

Selfridge was mayor when a let-ter dated June 28, 1983, was sent to the city's attorney from Grand-staff lawyers offering to settle seven months before the wrong-ful death suit went to trial in January 1984.

According to the letter obtained by the Amarillo Globe-News, the settlement offer was $495,000, slightly less than Borger's $500,000 liability coverage with North River Insurance Co. Selfridge told The Associated Press Friday night he hasn't decided whether to investigate why city officials didn't see the letter until this week.

He declined to comment further because the case was still on appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court. A lower court ruling awarded the Grandstaff family $1.4 million in the shooting death of 6666 ranch foreman James C. Grandstaff.

City Council held an emergency meeting Thursday night because of the letter, and issued a statement saying those on the council at the time did not see the letter until this week.

The letter, written by associates of Houston lawyer Richard "Racehorse" Haynes, went unanswered, officials said. Haynes, in Borger on another matter, said he recalled the letter going out and that there was never a response.

Friday was the deadline imposed by commission chairman William Rogers for documents relating to pre-launch activities by Morton Thio-kol, which makes the boosters, and from NASA

"Materials are being received," said commission spokesman Mark Weinberg. He said the commissioners and a newly acquired technical staff would go over the documents over the weekend.

The temperature at launch pad 39B, which dropped to 24 degrees overnight, is suspected of causing rubber compound seals to stiffen and become ineffective on the boosters, which generate 2.9 million pounds of thrust each to propel the shuttle to orbit.

NASA's wind tunnel tests more than a year ago showed wind blow-ing across the fuel tank created "the potential for a refrigeration effect cold enough to freeze critical O-ring seals in the bottom rocket stage joint," Aviation Week said.

"NASA managers did not consider the available wind tunnel data when making their decision to launch," it

The shuttle's 154-foot-long tank is loaded with a half-million gallons of liquid hydrogen and liquid oxygen. The hydrogen is chilled to 423 degrees Fahrenheit below zero and the oxygen to 297 degrees below.

Because ice, falling off the fuel tank has caused damage to shuttle tiles during liftoff in the past, "ice teams" are sent out to make inspections. The team checking Challenger read temperatures of 7-9 degrees Fahrenheit on the lower right booster, but the word apparently never got to the shuttle launch managers.

In Utah, a Morton Thiokol official said a NASA inspector read a tem-perature of minus 8 degrees at a low-er strut which connects the right booster to the fuel tank.

Outgoing NASA shuttle boss Jesse
Moore said launch officials did not know about the internal argument at Morton Thiokol, which preceded the manufacturer's recommendation that the launch be allowed to proceed. Investigators have since learned that 15 Morton Thiokol engineers unanimously recommended against launch, but that the approval of vice president Joe C. Kilminster was forwarded despite those Commission members David Acheson, Robert Rummel and Eugene Covert were at the Morton Thiokol plant in Brigham City Friday. Com-missioners Richard P. Feynman, astronaut Sally Ride and Robert Hotz were at Cape Canaveral. And Donald J. Kutyna, Arthur Walker and Neil Armstrong were at the Marshall Space Flight Center in Alabama.

In Congress, meanwhile, several Democrats called for Senate hearings beginning next week with testimony from acting NASA administrator William Graham and three officials involved in the booster rocket program. Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., charged that Republican leaders on the Senate Commerce Committee, which has been studying the accident, are "stonewalling."

White said Arab nations currently export oil at low prices, hoping the United States will increase its consumption of Arab oil. After America increases its dependence on cheap OPEC oil, the prices would rise, making money for Saudi Arabia and other Middle eastern oil-producing nations, he said.

"This isn't a true market." White said. "I don't want us to be on our knees to the Arabs. They (the Arabs) can sit and destroy the price.

White said drillers will shut down stripper wells if the price of a barrel of oil sticks at $14. Producers will never recover oil from those wells once out of service, he said.

Group says Nicaragua holding 6,500 political prisoners

By CARL MANNING

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — A leading official of an independent human rights agency estimates Nicaragua is holding 6,500 men and women as political prisoners out of an overall prison population of 9,000.

"If the figures are reasonably cor-rect, and I think they are, then this country has the most political prison-ers in Latin America," said Lino Hernandez Trigueros, executive secretary of the Permanent Human Right Commission of Nicaragua.

He said many of the political prisoners are subjected to torture and are forced to live in cramped, darkened cells without adequate food or Still others are held just for a few hours of harsh questioning and are beaten before being released, he added in an interview with The Associated Press.

The Permanent Human Rights Commission was founded by Nicaraguans in 1977 to investigate charges of human rights violations under President Anastasio Somoza, who was ousted in 1979 and replaced by the leftist Sandinista government now in office. The commission is funded by private Nicaraguan donations.

The Sandinista government has acknowledged holding people for political reasons but Hernandez Trigueros says it has refused to discuss their numbers or the conditions under which they are held. The government denies human rights abuses, Hernandez Trigueros said his estimate of 6,500 political prisoners includes 2,500 former national guardsmen of the Somoza regime, many locked up since 1979.

Human rights abuses are standard in El Chipote, a state security prison, Hernandez Trigueros said. It is operated by the Interior Ministry and is on a hill behind the Intercontinental Hotel in downtown Managua.

"In El Chipote, people are put in underground cells which are sealed, with only a small pipe from the ceiling for air," Hernandez Trigueros said. "The people do not have names, only numbers."

He said prisoners there often are put in underground cells without windows or lights. Some cells have a glow-in-the-dark ring painted glow-in-the-dark ring painted around the floor hole used for a toilet, he added.

Among abuses cited by Hernandez Trigueros at El Chipote and other

- Prisoners isolated and often deprived of food and water for several days, left to live in total darkness, or alternately, in a cell where a light burns constantly.

- Prisoners, both men and women, forced to do physical exercise in the nude and subjected to taunts by their captors. In cases of women prisoners, there have been reports of sexual abuse.

- Prisoners beaten during interrogations. Some prisoners are put in barrels of water and left in the open for two or three days and nights.

- Prisoners given drugs before interrogation so they cannot remember afterward what they had said or what was said to them.

Nicaragua land of war-imposed shortages

By REID G. MILLER

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — As their jetliners taxi to a stop at the A.C. Sandino International Airport here, passengers are often struck by two things.

One is the anti-aircraft emplacements, rifle pits, bunkers and other fortifications lining the tarmac.

The other is the lack of high-intensity lending lights along the xyguray.

sity landing lights along the runway. The lights burned out months ago and have been replaced, either for lack of parts or money, by kerosene lanterns and highway flares that only dimly outline the airport's single landing strip.

In some ways, the airport exempli-fies today's Nicaragua — a land of war and shortages, of lights that don't work and guns that work too well in a conflict that so far has claimed an estimated 12,000 lives.

Grocery store shelves stand bare. People often do without milk, meat, cooking oil, canned goods, toilet paper, toothpaste and at times even beans, the most staple of staples in the Latin diet.

"Beer in February," promised a headline in one of Managua's three daily newspapers in January. The article spoke of a shortage of imported grains and hops that had temporarily halted beer production.

Old and rusting automobiles, trucks and buses, their engines worn beyond repair, spew black exhaust as they sag and sway along streets and highways on suspensions broken by potholes that can't be filled for lack of asphalt.

The only traffic jams in Nicaragua these days are caused by vehicles that finally give up, dying beneath their drivers in a traffic lane, or by horse-drawn carts and wagons.

"I think there are more and more of them," says Ramon Villaneuvo, a taxi driver, of the horse-drawn vehicles. "People can't buy new cars or repair their old ones, but you don't have to buy parts for a horse.

"No hay, no hay, no hay!" exclaims a housewife at a suburban drugstore referring not to a lack of horse fodder but repeating agitatedly the Spanish phrase for "there isn't any." She has just been told by the drug gist that there isn't any of the medicine she has come to buy.

"In the name of God, there isn't anything anymore," she says loudly, to no one in particular, as she stalks out and the druggist gestures helplessly toward his barren shelves.

"The issue here for most people is not ideological, Marxism versus democracy or any of that," says a diplomat in Managua, speaking only on condition that he remain anonymous. "It comes right down to the basic problem of filling their bellies

The Sandinista government, which came to power in 1979 in a revolution that overthrew the authoritar ian government of Anastasio Somoza, has been trying for months to stamp out what it calls "black marketeers and agitators."

So far, it has had little success and one example of why is Marlina Sanchez, an elderly, spry and defiant shopkeeper, and others like her.

This is a free society and they can't close us down," says Mrs. Sanchez at Managua's Eastern Market, a vast, open-air bazaar of hundreds of tiny stalls and stores, many of them selling black-market goods at exorbitant prices.

Some might quibble with Mrs. San chez's description of Nicaragua's society, but she and most of her fellow shopkeepers have nonetheless resist ed the government's efforts to shut down the black market, despite dozens of arrests.

The government blames the United States for most of the country's economic ills, pointing to Washington's year-old trade embargo and its support of anti-Sandinista guerrillas — the Contras — who have been try ing to overthrow the Marxist-led regime for the past four years.

Forty cents of every precious dollar earned by Nicaragua goes into the war effort, and dollars have become increasingly scarce as the nation's export earnings have declined to about half the $800 million they were in 1978.

Working with the government to mold a new society are Bulgarians, Czechoslovaks, East Germans, Soviets and Cubans. Even Libya's Moammar Khadafy claims to have sent

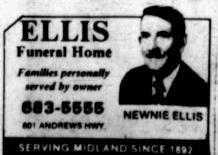

The Reagan administration points to these influences in requesting more aid for the Contras, saying Nic aragua has become a home for terrorists in Central America and is exporting arms and communist ideas to its neighbors in the region.

Washington claims that Cuba has sent 1,200 men and women to Nicaragua and that some are actively engaged in fighting the Contras. Nicaragua maintains that only about 400 Cubans are in the country, mostly working in the areas of health, education and agriculture.

Whatever the merits of that argument, thousands come each year from the United States, Canada, Europe and South America to express their solidarity with the Sandinistas.

Many Nicaraguans scorn these vis-itors as "Sandalia-istas," which translates as "sandal-istas," a reference to the sandals and backpacks worn by

"Look at those communists," a neatly dressed, middle-aged woman remarked of two strangers recently outside the InterContinental Hotel in Managua, which caters to foreigners and offers what for Nicaragua is an extravagant daily luncheon buffet.

"It's no wonder we have nothing to eat when all the food goes to them, and they don't even give anything to the poor," she said.

As she spoke, she gestured angrily toward two young men and a woman, obviously foreigners, who were entering the hotel at lunchtime after having studiously ignored two chilhaving studiously ignored two chil-dren begging on the street outside. The luncheon buffet costs 800 cor-dobas, far beyond the means of the average Nicaraguan but at 75 cents a bargain for foreigners who exchange dollars on the black market. The rate is 1,200 cordobas to $1.

Still, for all the grumbling about the government that is easily heard almost everywhere in Nicaragua, there appears to be little well-orga-nized opposition to the Sandinistas outside of the Roman Catholic Church heirarchy.

Israeli troops storm south Lebanese village

KFAR DOUNINE, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli troops and tanks stormed this south Lebanon village Friday after being ambushed by Moslem guerrillas on the fifth day of Israel's huge sweep to find two captured soldiers, U.N. officials said.

A military source in Tel Aviv said Israeli soldiers entered Kfar Dounine to conduct searches and were fired on by guerrillas in the village.

The Israelis opened up with tank and machine-gun fire and swept into the Shitte Moslem village, which is 5 miles north of the security belt Isra-el has proclaimed and occupies on the border and 13 miles from the actual frontier.

Timur Goksel, spokesman for the U.N. Interim Force in Lebanon, UNI-FIL, told The Associated Press a Ghanaian soldier was wounded. Other casualties were not known.

Kfar Dounine is headquarters of the Ghanaian battalion attached to the nine-nation U.N. force.

"There was a lot of shooting in the village," Goksel said. "Tanks and armored personnel carriers moved into Kfar Dounine.

Reporters were unable to get into the village when the Israelis sealed it which soldier had been killed off, but explosions and heavy machine-gun fire were heard and plumes of smoke rose above the hamlet.

Goksel said 70 men were herded into Kfar Dounine's mosque for interrogation as Israeli troops searched the village house-to-house.

Israeli Cobra gunships strafed hills in sectors of the Israeli-held zone, including the panhandle around Haris, a Shiite village just north of the buff-

Israeli tanks shelled hills east of Haris, reporters said in telephone dispatches from the rugged hill country.

U.N. and Lebanese security sources estimated that 1,500 Israelis with Centurion and Merkava tanks, helicopter gunships and armored vehicles were combing 16 villages for the missing men and their captors.

An anonymous telephone caller claiming to represent the Islamic Resistance Front, a Shiite faction dominated by the pro-Iranian Hezbollah, or Party of God, said Wednesday the group killed one of the captured soldiers when Israel ignored an ultimatum to withdraw. He did not identify

Marcos calls his opposition sore losers

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — President Ferdinand E. Marcos Friday told foreign leaders who say he won re-election by fraud that what hap-pens in the Philippines is none of their business, and called his opposi-tion sore losers.

Leftist groups pledged support for boycotts, strikes and demonstrations planned next week by Corazon Aquino, who claims she won the Feb. 7 election. Marcos was declared the winner by the National Assembly, in which he controls two-thirds of the

The inauguration is scheduled for Tuesday, but who will be there remains a question. Belgium and Canada plan not to send anyone, and the Belgians said they doubted that other nations of the European Community would send representatives of ambassadorial rank. Britain has not yet been invited, but officials said privately it probably would decline. The United States has not indicated its intentions for the inauguration.

The U.S. Senate and European Parliament have passed resolutions accusing Marcos of election fraud, and criticism has come from the Reagan administration and other governments.

In Washington, an estimated 450 people staged an anti-Marcos demonstration in front of the White House, and Sen. David Durenberger, R Minn., told reporters he has urged President Reagan to call on Marcos to resign.

Durenberger, chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee, said Reagan is "a longtime friend" of Marcos and "is the one person who may be able to persuade Marcos that it is time to step saids.

The leftist group Bayan (Country), which has held successful strikes in several larger Philippine cities, announced Friday that it was backing Mrs. Aquino's call for a nationwide shutdown next Wednesday. Bayan boycotted the election.

Libya squeezed between plunging prices, embargo

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — An already ailing Libyan economy is being squeezed by plunging world oil prices, and the U.S. economic embargo could make things worse. Libyan oil exports have fallen to less than 600,000 barrels a day, or half last year's rate, according to estimates from foreign diplomats and oil company sources. At the same time, world prices have dropped from about $26 a barrel in January to about $16 now

The combination could cut Libya's revenues from its main cash export to less than $5 billion this year, from $8 billion last year and a peak of $22 billion in 1980.

Libyan consumers, already faced with shortages of such basics as meat, cheese and eggs, are feeling the impact. Foreign contractors say construction projects also are increasingly being delayed.

The long-term effects of U.S. economic sanctions are not yet clear. Other nationalities may replace U.S. participation in Libya's economy. But oil industry and diplomatic sources, who insisted on anonymity, say the embargo is largely responsible for the recent dip in Libyan oil

The main U.S. role had been pumping and shipping oil.

The five U.S. companies with oil concessions here - Occidental Petroleum, Amerada Hess, Marathon, Conoco and Grace - suspended oil liftings while trying to determine if they will be allowed to transfer operations to foreign subsidiaries of unrelated foreign firms.

A European diplomat said the Libyans "are in real trouble because the U.S. restrictions keep them from stepping up production to compensate for the decline in the price of

Although Libyans grumble about shortages, no signs have emerged of open rebellion against Col. Moammar Khadafy's government.

By one diplomat's calculations, Libya's foreign currency reserves have fallen to less than $3 billion from the 1980 peak of $13 billion, and most of the reserves are invested, leaving less than $500,000 in

Employees strain brains for far-out alibis

NEW YORK (AP) — In most lives of quiet despera-tion, the job is arrived at late, or not at all, because the battery was dead, or the train missed, or the subway

Then there's the guy who says he stayed home be-cause he thought Halloween was a holiday. A creative minority of workers give their bosses remarkably creative explanations for being absent or late, according to a survey of 100 employers who were asked what ununusal alibis they had heard.

Robert Half International, the employment firm which commissioned the survey, recorded a few odd excuses of its own. 'We're not talking about standard reasons," Half said. Other kinds of reasons surfaced:

"Suddenly, the doors of the armored car in front of me opened up, and $10 bills started flying out," causing a traffic jam.

— "I ate so much during my vacation that none of my clothes would fit me. So I had to spend the morning having them altered."

"Someone stole one of my shoes on the bus." - "I was having breakfast at a coffee shop when I fell asleep at the table. The waitress didn't wake me up until 9:30 a.m."

Employees seemed partial to blaming other people for their absence or tardiness, as in "My husband forgot where he parked our car after he came home from his office party last night" and "My 6-year-old son set all the clocks back an hour."

Some stooped to blaming dumb animals. "My parakeet spoke for the first time, so I waited for him to do it again so I could tabe-record it," one person explained. Other forms of life also were accused.

"I spotted what looked like a flying saucer, and I followed it on the highway for about 50 miles," reported one tardy employee. "I still don't know what it was." A similar spirit of scientific inquiry was cited by another worker, who told the boss that "I didn't get any sleep the last couple of nights, because I stayed up looking for Halley's comet."

As might be expected the supernatural is not unusual.

Tenants take bill battle to Supreme Court

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) - Brenda E. Wright's battle over electricity charges at the low-income project where she lived has reached the U.S. Supreme Court and could affect millions of public housing tenants, at-

Ms. Wright, a single mother of two, earned $128 a week as a dietary aide in a hospital. Each month, she paid $169 in rent to the Roanoke Redevelopment and Housing Authority

Every three months, the authority assessed her a surcharge for what it called excess utility consumption. In October 1982, the additional charge was $33.53. "We were a low-income family."

said Ms. Wright, who has moved out of the project. "My wages weren't very much. It was difficult for me to pay it."

Ms. Wright (who had lived in the Lansdowne Park housing project for 11 years), Geraldine H. Broughman and Sylvia P. Carter decided to do something about the extra charges. They filed a lawsuit in federal court challenging the local authority's right to impose the surcharge.

A federal trial judge dismissed their 1982 suit. The 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals upheld the judge's ruling that tenants of low-income housing projects must rely on the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development to enforce hous ing law against local public housing authorities.

Last month, however, the U.S. Supreme Court agreed to review the case and to decide whether public housing tenants have a right to sue in federal court over alleged violations of federal housing law. Some lower courts have ruled that public housing residents must settle their grievances directly with HUD or in

The tenants' lawyers say the Roanoke Redevelopment and Housing Authority overcharged residents a 1,103 units about $50,000 a year for four years. Henry Woodward, a Legal Aid Society attorney representing Ms. Wright, said the tenants should be allowed to sue in federal court because their complaints involve HUD, Bayard Harris, attorney for the Roanoke housing authority, said Congress gave HUD the job of administering public housing. Congress did not intend local agencies to be subjected to federal lawsuits, he

A Supreme Court ruling in favor of Ms. Wright could affect disputes between tenants and local housing authorities over rent, evictions, ad missions and maybe even maintenance, said David Bryson, staff attorney for the National Housing Law Project in Berkeley, Calif. The nonprofit corporation assists Legal Aid attorneys on housing questions. There are more than 1.2 million public housing units in the United States as well as other HUD-operated apartments that would fall under a ruling in the class-action suit, Bryson said. Three million public housing tenants could be affected by the outcome of the case, attorneys for the three women say.

A 1980 HUD regulation, Wood ward said, stipulated that rent charges were to include an electricity allowance high enough to meet the needs of 90 percent of a project's tenants. Rent, without added charges, was to be no more than one-fourth of a resident's income The Roanoke housing authority which operates seven projects, ignored the 1980 regulation and charged nearly every family for utilities, Woodward said. The problem lasted from 1981 to 1985, when the HUD formula for electricity allowance was changed, he said.

Harris said the Roanoke authority followed the law in calculating utility charges.

After they filed their federal lawsuit, Ms. Wright and her neighbors wrote HUD to complain about their electricity bills, Woodward said.

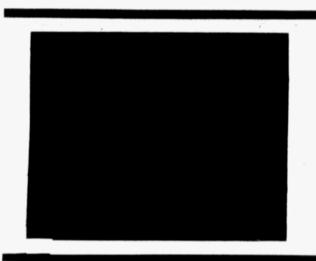

HUD never responded, he said. "It's a potential problem with any housing authority in the country," Woodward said. "Some complied, but there was widespread noncompliance."

Bryson said tenants' problems usu ally had the lowest priority at HUD. Thomas Sherman, director of HUD's Office of Public Housing in Washington, D.C., said he did not know whether the agency responded to the Roanoke tenants' letter. But he maintained that HUD is concerned about tenants' problems. "To my general knowledge we've had no problem with complaints not being responded to," he said. "I think it is our job to listen to anybody who has a complaint, and if we do nothing else, search it out and make a determination one way or

Officials try to plug hole in levee; Search for stranded continues

MARYSVILLE, Calif. (AP) — Floodwaters from a ruptured levee spread across two submerged towns Friday, leaving 28 square miles under water and as many as 26,000 people without homes, authorities said.

Trucks hauled rock 30 miles from a quarry in a frantic effort to fill in the 150-foot-wide gap in the Yuba River levee, which began to crumble Thursday at dusk after more than a week of fierce rains. And boats and helicopters searched the area for people stranded in the water.

"(Rescuers) found people boarded inside of houses, where they had taken boards and nailed them to the doors to keep the water out. They, literally, had to be pulled through windows and pulled through holes," said Ron Hedeke, a Marysville City Council member.

There was no way to tell how long the 24,000 to 26,000 residents of the farming communities of Linda and Olivehurst would be kept from their swamped homes, but it would be "at least another day, very likely more," said Yuba County Undersheriff Dennis Moore.

Gov. George Deukmejian toured the area Friday, reporting that the Federal Emergency Management Agency has recommended that the White House approve federal disaster aid for 29 counties.

"Obviously, it's a very, very tragic sight to see water literally up to eaves of houses and up to the windows of shopping centers," he said.

Later, in Washington, President

Later, in Washington, President Reagan declared a major disaster in California, where flooding and mudslides have ravaged part of the state and left thousands of people homeless.

The presidential order means that residents in at least nine counties in Northern California will be eligible for federal disaster assistance.

Reagan took the action after officials of the Federal Emergency Management Agency conducted a survey confirming California Gov. George Deukmejian's assessment of severe damage, the White House said in a statement.

FEMA concluded the damages "are of such severity and magnitude that effective recovery is beyond the capabilities of the state and affected local governments," the statement said.

A Sutter County sheriff's deputy pounds on the roof of a home in the Marysville, Calif., suburb of Linda Friday searching for victims of flooding after a Yuba River levee gave way and flooded the area.

Within about four days, the government will open centers in the affected areas to accept applications for loans and other disaster assistance. The locations will be announced later.

People in the counties of Lake, Marin, Napa, Sacramento, Santa Clara, Santa Cruz, Solano, Sonoma and Yuba are eligible. More counties may be added to the list, the White House said.

About 200 people were airlifted out of the Yuba area Friday, including nursing home residents and about 50 "infirm and elderly," said Air Force Col. Roy Schindler, who directed the rescue.

One elderly couple who fled to the attic of their home as water rose was rescued when authorities using a boat to make house by house checks cut a hole in the roof to pull them to safety.

"I didn't get anything out except my pictures of the family," said Joyce Pirtle of Olivehurst, who was among the many refugees at Beale Air Force Base. "After Tuesday, they said everything was fine and we shouldn't worry anymore."

shouldn't worry anymore."

The refugees will not be allowed to return home until water supplies are certified free of contamination, Moore said. The area under water Friday was more than half the size of the city of San Francisco, he said.

One victim of the flooding was the Peach Tree Mall, a shopping center of 35 stores in Linda near the site of the break, which began as a 40-foot gap Thursday night about 130 miles northeast of San Francisco. Water was 16 feet deep at the mall, Moore said

"Part of it is a two-story building, and all you can see of it is the K mart sign on the roof," said Moore.

A series of Pacific storms which began Feb. 12 killed at least 17 people, flooded thousands of acres and homes and set off hundreds of avalanches and mudslides in the West. An estimated 20 percent of Napa County's vineyards were damaged, and Duekmejian said damage could total $300 million.

The storms drove the Yuba River to a depth of 76.5 feet on Tuesday, well above flood stage, although it had dropped significantly when the levee broke.

we "In the summertime, it's just a trickle," said Capt. Joseph Saxon, a spokesman at Beale. "You can walk across it."

Beaumont man building helicopter

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) - When Stanley Shipper starts flying his heli-copter around the Beaumont skies, he'll be confident in the craft. He's building it himself, from a kit.

Shipper is getting help from his father-in-law, Gil Owens, who retired from Mobil Chemical Co. two years Shipper, 27, has the mechanical skill needed for the project. He oper-ates Stanley's Car Clinic and specializes in repairing foreign cars. He completed a two-year course at La-mar University in diesel mechanics, machine shop and welding.

The helicopter will seat two, cruise at between 90 and 100 miles an hour and stay in the air for about two hours on its 20-gallon gasoline supply.

Shipper bought the kit for about $32,000. The price includes the necessary training it takes to fly the craft. Shipper, who has been flying light planes for a few years, decided to try his hand at helicopter building and

"I've been flying for a while and decided I would like to build an airplane," he says. "But they are pretty big, and you have to keep them at the airport all the time. The helicopter I can keep here at my business.

unique to fly a helicopter. I just like to be different and like a bigger challenge. The helicopter will be licensed as

"It's more of a challenge and more an experimental craft, although the kits have been in production for some time, Shipper says.

Shipper bought the kit from Rotor

Way in Chandler, Ariz., after flying out there for a first-hand look at one in operation. When the kit arrived here in November, it came in 32 boxes, "some of them big boxes," he says. He expects to finish construction this month The helicopter is powered by a four-cylinder, water-cooled, 155horsepower gasoline engine, which applies its power to the main and tail rotors through a series of belt drives. The main rotor has a freewheeling clutch which allows it to keep spinning if the motor should stop. This allows the pilot to land the craft with the blade "auto-rotating."

Shipper will go back to the factory and spend a week learning to hover above ground and learn how to mount, balance and adjust the craft's blades. Then he will return home and practice hovering his own helicopter, spending as many as 20 hours practicing.

When he feels he has acquired the necessary skill, he will return to the factory and train in flying and emergency procedures, including landing a copter without the motor turning the blades.

On returning home, he will take his own helicopter up for hours of practice and then return to the factory for a check ride with a Federal Aviation Administration inspector and final certification as a pilot.

Mother rejoices over 'miracle' baby girl

By SUZANNE WETLAUFER Associated Press

DANVERS, Mass. — Most of the time, Carole Jalbert acts like a typical new mother — she spends a lot of time cooing, changing diapers and making baby formula.

But she also spends a lot of time

But she also spends a lot of time gazing at her tiny daughter in wonder. "Kristen is a miracle," she often says. "The surprise still hasn't totally worn off. I never thought I'd have a child."

That changed three months ago when Mrs. Jalbert's sister, acting as a surrogate mother, gave birth to Kristen. She had been artificially impregnated nine months earlier with the sperm of her her brother-in-law, police officer Ernie Jalbert.

"The surprise still hasn't totally worn off. I never thought I'd have a child."

— Carole Jalbert

The unusual arrangement gained national attention, and the women received dozens of supportive letters and phone calls from around the country, including several from sisters who are now trying the same thing.

Shortly after Kristen's birth, Mrs. Jalbert's sister, Sherry King of Tamarac, Fla., returned home. She says she's felt like an aunt — not a mother — ever since the birth.

"I haven't any sense of loss. Not even a little bit," she said in a recent telephone interview. "I never felt as if Kristen was mine. She was always my sister's baby.

"We're still excited about it," she added. "Now I'm back home and Carole is doing exactly what she's always wanted — being a mom."

Mrs. Jalbert agreed.

"I love it," she said during a recent interview at her home in this Boston suburb. "It's more, it's better than I hoped it would be. When I look at her little face and she has the most beautiful smile, when she looks at me and smiles, it's unbelievable."

Mrs. Jaibert, 38, has been sterile since she had a hysterectomy at age

"I think Kristen looks a lot like Sherry and a little like Ernie," she said. "I think she already has Sherry's personality.

"I'm saving all the newspaper articles. I'm making a scrap book," she added. "We'll tell her about it all when the subject comes up. I'll just tell her, 'Well, Auntie Sherry was nice enough to carry you in her belly because Mommy couldn't.' And Kristen will just grow up knowing it."

Hal Warden, 15, and wife Catherine, 14, are expecting a child. Hal holds Heather, his 20month-old daughter by his first wife — whom he married at 13.

Teen-age father married second wife on rebound

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Fifteen-year-old Hal Warden, whose second wife is pregnant at the age of 14, says he married her on the rebound when his teen-age first wife

He says he "was lonely and needed someone to be with and Cathy filled a place in my heart that was gone."

Hal made headlines two years ago at 13 when he married his first wife, Wendy Chappell, who was then 15 and pregnant. He walked down the aisle again on Feb. 4, this time with Catherine Renee Trent.

In an interview at his parent's home, Hal said he began dating Catherine in August, the month before his divorce became final.

"My lawyer had told me that Wendy was not coming back and that I was better off to find another girlfriend," he said. "I felt I had to get my mind off of Wendy and onto someone else."

For Catherine, a meek eighth grader who is taking the year off from school to have her baby, Hal was her first date.

Hal said Catherine and he had no doubts about getting married when they learned she was pregnant. Both had parental consent.

"We ain't got to, but I thought it was the best thing to do," he said.

"The first thing I thought was abortion is murder, and I didn't want my baby to be born a bastard."

In 1983, the last year for which statistics are available, the National Center for Health Statistics says nearly 500,000 children were born to women between the ages of 15 and 19. And in 1982, more than 470,000 in the same age group took their wed-

Hal's first child, Heather Nicole Warden, is now 20 months old and lives some of the time with him and some of the time with her mother, now 17, who lives with her parents in Chugiak, Alaska.

Hal's father, Herbert Warden, 53, said he never told his son about birth control, fearing Hal might think he condoned premarital sex.

"I told him, 'you know what happened and you know not to do it again,' "the elder Warden said as his family gathered to discuss Hal's situation. "I should have told him about birth control, but if I did, it would have had the feeling that I told him, "Hay, go on and do it."

'Hey, go on and do it.'

"I would have been a party to doing something to somebody else's daughter that I wouldn't want somebody to do to my daughter," he said. "So I felt that in denying him (birth control), maybe he wouldn't do it."

Warden now concedes, "That was foolish."

Said Hal of birth control, "I would have been ashamed to ask my parents to go buy condoms and if I went into a drugstore, people would look at you like you're a sex pervert or

After Catherine became pregnant, Warden said he felt obligated to support his son financially, just as he had done when Hal was married to

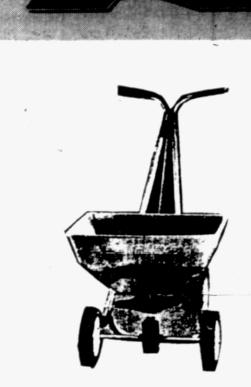

"I had to back him once and I had to back him a second time, so I'm in a Catch-22, morally speaking," Warden said. "If I had let them go on their own, then what would have happened? Catherine wouldn't have been treated right, there would have been a baby born without a name or a father, and it's my flesh and blood, once again."

once again."

The couple — just as Hal and Wendy lived in a trailer behind her parents — plans to live in a mobile home on his parents' property.

Racehorse Haynes gallops to Phillips residents' rescue

PHILLIPS (AP) — Attorney Race-horse Haynes said people living on land owned by Phillips Petroleum of here. have a tough battle ahead of them, have a tough battle ahead of them, trying to avoid eviction, but added that he wants to help them fight.

"I don't believe you all want to be pushed into relocation," Haynes said Thursday to an audience of more than 500 residents. "I don't believe a Texas American is going to let themselves be relocated."

The Houston lawyer flew into

The Houston lawyer flew into town on a private jet earlier in the day to tell residents he is willing to represent them at no charge.

"I'm not here to get rich off you, I'm already rich," Haynes said. "And I'm not here to get famous, I'm already famous."

The famed attorney told a packed crowd in the Phillips High School auditorium, "The bottom line is while your legal situation is difficult, it is not hopeless. You've got some legal legs to stand on. You've got a cause within the law.

Haynes referred to what he called "Corporate Phillips" as a train wanting to "bulldoze" the town.

The attorney said he had read the letters that Phillips has sent to the homeowners asking them to leave or

"I don't like the coercion," said Haynes, referring to the eviction no-tices. "I don't like the pushing, I don't like the deadline and I know you don't like it."

Haynes says there is a way to stop Phillips from relocating the town. "People, you've got to think posi-tive, what we've got to say is that we've got them in their tracks."

Irene Jackson, Philips Homeowners Association member, said residents may have to pay for a University of Houston professor who will assist Haynes.

But, "whatever they charge will certainly be a lot cheaper than our home," she said. Phillips is a town of 1,500, on the northern edge of Borger, about 45 miles northeast of Amarillo. Those living on the Phillips Petroleum land have been given eviction notices by Phillips, the town's largest employer and landlord to most.

Nan Bagwell, the secretary for the attorney handling Fleming's divorce, said she called the coach's apartment about 4:30 p.m. Friday, April 12, 1985, to alert him that a divorce proceeding would be delayed a few days.
The divorce had been scheduled to be heard the following Monday.
"A woman answered the phone,"

Mrs. Bagwell said as defense attor-neys for former Hull-Daisetta Junior School principal Hurley Fontenot reopened their case briefly Friday before rebuttal witnesses for both sides were summoned.

"It was just seconds," Mrs. Bagwell said of the telephone call. "The woman hung up."
She said she did not recognize the voice, but dialed Fleming's number a second time. No one answered the telephone, she said.

Laura Nugent, the woman prose-cutors contend was the focus of a love triangle involving Fontenot and Fleming, said she visited Fleming's apartment after becoming worried when he failed to show up for a meeting with her. Her trip to Fleming's apartment, however, would have been much later.

Kentucky Club far from bluegrass pastures

JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — The Kentucky Club, a longtime favorite border saloon, is nowhere near the Lexington stables, and the only horsy set to hang out here was one led by Pancho Villa.

Or so the story goes.
"Pancho Villa liked the ladies and he drank a lot of coffee, but he never went to saloons," said Ignacio Esparza, who is writing a history of this border city. "He didn't smoke or drink, not even beer."

But the story, fed to tourists who have been making the obligatory stop at this famous border cantina for decades, is a plausible one.

The dimly lit saloon on Avenida Juarez, a few blocks from one of the bridges over the Rio Grande leading into El Paso, Texas, lends itself to romantic flights of fancy.

It's easy to picture a mustachioed Villa riding into town in a cloud of dust, strolling past the frosted glass double doors of The Kentucky Club and ordering a shot of tequila before his next ambush of the federales.

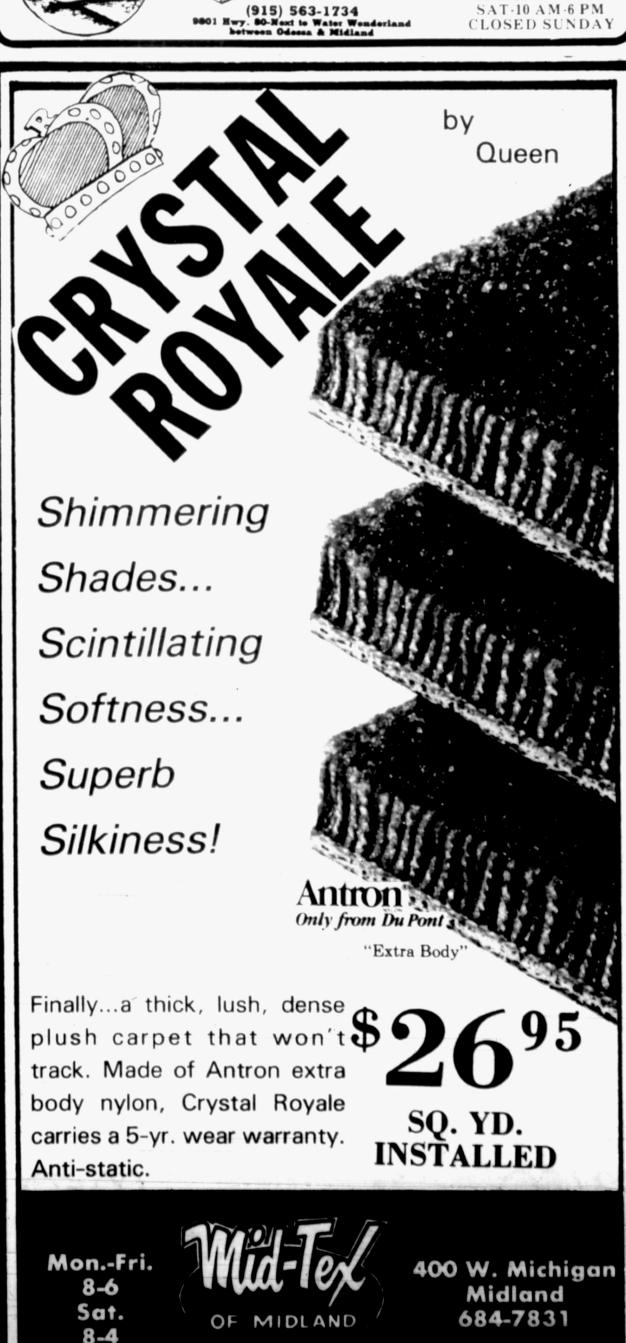

But although Villa, who was him-self ambushed and killed in 1923, never graced The Kentucky Club, other famous people have, said bar owner Francisco "Pancho" Montes, 72. Among them were movie stars John Wayne, who would drop in whenever he was passing through, and Gilbert Roland, a Juarez native whose lengthy film career started with silent movies.

Another notable regular was Clark Gable, said Montes. Gable, a captain during World War II stationed at Fort Bliss on the outskirts of El Paso, would come to the bar and sip Scotch with Hollywood friends.

Montes bought the saloon from an Armenian in 1933 and named it Slopov Joe's after a har by the same

Mild weather expected back in Basin

From Staff and Wire Reports

Mild weather is expected back for the weekend with highs near 60 in the forecast, according to the National Weather Service at the Midland Regional Airport.

Today will be partly cloudy with a high near 60. Winds will be northeast at 5 to 10 mph. Tonight's low will be near 30 degrees.

Sunday's high will be in the mid-60s and the night's low should dip into the 30s. Friday's high of 58 degrees missed the record high mark by 27 degrees. The record high was 85 degrees set in 1972. Thursday's low of 28 degrees missed the record mark by 9 degrees. The record low for Thursday's date was 19 degrees set in 1966.

A ridge of high pressure built southward across the state Friday behind an arctic front that stretched across the lower Rio Grande Valley into the Gulf of Mexico.

Low level cloudiness spread northward from the coastal plains into the Piney Woods of East Texas. Clear skies dotted parts of the Hill Country while mid- to high-level clouds covered the remainder of the state.

North to northwest winds generally from 10 to 20 mph breezed behind the front, except for light and variable winds over the Panhandle. Over the lower Rio Grand Valley ahead of the front, east to southeast winds prevailed.

Temperatures reached into the 80s south of the front while readings in the 60s were noted over the coastal plains and parts of South Texas. The 40s and 50s were common across the rest of the state. Late afternoon extremes ranged from 40 at Childress to 83 at McAllen.

NATION

Snow fell from upper New England across the nation's midsection Friday, as rainshowers continued across the already drenched Pacific Coast.

Strong winds swept across the northern Plains, with winds reaching 62 mph at Livingston, Mont., and wind gusts in excess of 35 mph clocked at Fargo and Grand Forks, N.D., as well as Casper, Wyo.

A low pressure system over western Maryland spread snow from eastern Ohio across the northwest half of New York state to northern Maine, with rain and thunderstorms from southern New England to West Virginia.

Two to 4 inches of snow fell across northeastern New York and the higher elevations of northern Ver-

Horrors! Lee wiped out by 'Sand'storm

By TERRY WILLIAMSON Assistant Sports Editor

LEVELLAND — The bi-district basketball playoff experience continues to be a horror story for the Midland Lee Rebels.

Here Friday night at the Level-land High School gym, the Ama-rillo High Golden Sandies romped to a 62-44 decision, giving Lee a quick exit from the state playoffs for the second year in a row.

Last year, Lee lost a one-point overtime heart-breaker to Amarillo Palo Duro in the bi-district round, and tragedy hit the Rebels even before they took to the court this time around.

Last Tuesday in an emotional

District 45A playoff against Midland High, Lee lost leading scorer Lee Dixon to a fractured shooting hand

With his 18 points per game on the bench and the Sandies using a rugged man-to-man defense, Lee never stood a chance.

"BEING WITHOUT Lee hurt us a bunch," said Lee coach Paul Stueckler. "It's the same thing as the Dallas Cowboys without (Tony) Dorsett.

"If Amarillo was the type of team that used any other kind of defense other than the man, I don't think Lee's absence would have hurt as much. It's against the man-to-man defense where he is effective because he can drive to the basket so well.'

And just maybe the pshycologi-cal edge was with the Sandies before the game even started without Dixon in the lineup.

Amarillo gunned to a 14-2 start and the Rebels never got to look down on the Sandies.

Lee did make one strong bid at making a game of it in the second quarter with a 12-2 spurt to close the gap to 22-21 on an Anthony Dickens free throw with 2:04 left

HOWEVER, THE Sandies roared back and held a 28-23 halftime lead.

Still, it was the first period 16-4 advantage posted by Amarillo that dug the early hole and Lee could never climb out of the

When Lee needed a third quarter charge, the Rebels hit only three of 11 shots from the field and trailed 41-31 at period's end.

By the end of the game, Stueckler was playing all of his bench, knowing defeat was in the works and giving a final tribute to all the kids that had helped him so much this year.

"That's the worst a Lee team has been beaten in a long time," said Stueckler.

Amarillo had a balanced scoring attack that made 24 of 53 shots from the field and 14 of 17 from the charity stripe. Guard Ashton Nowak led the way with 13 points and five rebounds. Craig Brown scored 12 from inside while Sammy Simpson had 10. Amarillo also led in the rebounding department by a 32-20 margin.

"I THOUGHT we played a good offensive game," said AHS coach Alan Simpson, "We hit about the same average we have all season, but I never expected this game to come out like it did. You don't go in thinking you're going to win big against Midland Dickens, playing his last game as a three-year starter for Lee, scored a game high 19 points, but Greg Johnson was the only other Rebel to score in double figures with 12. Lee got no points from the bench replacing Dixon. "I'm sorry it had to end like this, but Amarillo High shot really well," said Dickens after learning that Lee had hit only 19 of 47 shots from the field and six-of-12 free throws.

"We got beat on the backboards," noted Eddie Riley. "We sure didn't play as good as we could have.

Johnson added, "They shot well and hit the boards hard. That will win a game.'

Hampton sets hurdle record

From Staff Reports

FORT STOCKTON-Midland Lee and Midland High came up with a few pleasant surprises on the first day of competition at the Comanche Relays — including a meet record.

Eddie Wolski's head coaching debut for the defending District 4-5A champion Rebels was marked with three first places and one meet and divisional records and Wolski is feeling a little better about his young squad. Senior hurdler Quintus Hampton brought home one of the titles, in the 300-meter low hurdles, with a record-shattering 38.62. Another senior Brad Cooper captured the other individual title in the 400 meter run with a 50.01. Hampton and Cooper also anchored the winning 1,600 meter relay. Kevin Witt and John Bradley were the starting legs for the Rebs.

"I felt a little surprised in our mile relay team," Wolski said. "But Quintus and Cooper, they really brought it in for us. Those two competed. Things are looking up, I feel a lot better this week than last week at this time.

For MHS and coach Johnny Williams, a third place was the best finish the 'Dogs could muster. The Bulldogs' 400 relay team of Anthony Adkinson, Tracy Colbin, Mike Eaden and Everett Bowers grabbed a third in the 400 sprint relay.

INDIVIDUALLY, Tyrone Oliver took a third in the 400, and Charles Comer was third in the discus for the Bulldogs. MHS sprinters also went 4 5-6 in the 100 meters, Robinson in fourth, Bowers in fifth and Adkin-

In addition to his record in the 300 lows, Hampton finished second in the 110 high hurdles for the Rebels. Mike Little in the shot put and Odell Samuels in the high jump also brought home third places for Lee.

The meet continues today with finals all day beginning at noon.

Duncanville vs. MacArthur: the dreaded third meeting

By TED BATTLES Sports Editor

Coach James Peugh and his Irving MacArthur Cardinals were just happy to be in the finals. Duncanville's Sandra Meadows is happy to be here, but would just as soon be playing someone else in today's 11 a.m. Region I Girls Basketball finals at the Langford Chaparral Center.

"We've already played MacArthur twice," explains Meadows, who is shooting for her sixth trip to Austin in 18 seasons at Duncanville, "And I hate to play a team three times, particularly when it means something. We didn't exactly blow them out the last time we played them."

Duncanville and MacArthur came a long way, 300 miles west, to resume their neighborhood rivalry after eliminating West Texas' two standard bearers in Friday's semifinals at the Chap. MacArthur overcame two ninepoint leads to beat Amarillo High, 57-51, in the opener. Duncanville simply wore out Lubbock Monterey in a wild 87-76 scoring orgy that created some eye-bulging shooting statistics.

LED BY Amy Brunson's 36 points, Duncanville, 31-2, hit 37-of-62 from the field, .552, while Monterey was 30 of 61 and before the Bohanon twins wore everybody out, were shooting 24 of 41 heading into the last period. Although 5-9 Amarillo's Melinda

Dean led the first game scoring with 22 points, MacArthur relied on balanced scoring to overcome a 20-11 first half deficit and a 39-30 Sandie lead early in the third period. The win gives MacArthur a 27-3 record, two of the losses at the hands of Duncanville. This is the Cardinals' first trip ever to the Regional and a win today, of course, would give the Irving school its first trip to Austin, Coach Peugh, in his eighth season at Irving, blamed Amarillo's press for most of the Cardinals' woes. "We've seen the press all year, but this was regional and maybe that made a difference. "We got hesitant and made mistakes. Against the press you've got to be aggressive. Amarillo (finishing 24-3 for the season) has an excellent press. We got down six to eight points and had to keep fighting our way back. Amarillo has a good post game and tremendous defense.

It was when MacArthur had 6-2 Stevette Cargill, 11 points, and 6-0 Debbie Cober, 12 points, in the game at the same time that things turned around, beginning late in the third period. The pair proved tough to shoot over or around and it proved intimidating to the Sandies

By the end of the third period, MacArthur trimmed the lead to 43-40 and in the final period the score was tied at 44, 46, 48 and 51, the last with 1:45 to go. A brace of free throws by Paige Craddock, the leading Card scorer with 14 points, put MacArthur ahead 53-51 with 1:40 left and then Angelique Draper claimed a big rebound with 1:15 left that led to the free throws by Draper and field goal by Cargill that salted it away.

DUNCANVILLE goes through a precision pregame warmup that is a show and work out in itself and once the game starts, the Pantherettes Lori Thomas had 20 points to back up Brunson's sensational 16 for 19 shooting performance, but 5-3 Tracie and 5-1 Marcie, a couple of junior guards, do the dirty work for the scorers. Just watching them can wear out a fan. You can imagine what it's like to try to guard the two studies in perpetual motion.

Sports Writer Former Midland High football player Wesley Williams found himself a pretty good job for the

Not only will his new employment station him in Italy, but it also picks up the tab for an apartment and supplies him with a car.

Best of all the benefits is the job itself: Football. Williams will be playing for the Bologna Warriors in the Italian Football League and, if he gives a good showing of himself, a couple of National Football League teams could pick him up in the fall.

Williams, a 1982 graduate of Midland High, was, until recently, at-tending Angelo State University studying banking. However, an un-expected late Christmas present cut short his studies.

"They (Warriors) contacted me the week after I got back from Christ-mas break. They really didn't con-tact me, it was a scout for the Seattle Seahawks, a guy by the name of John Choata," said Williams. "He asked me if I would be interested in

And, those same Redskins could be Williams' new employer next fall. "The Washington Redskins want-

WILLIAMS, IN 1981, was the last running back at Midland High to break 1,000 yards rushing in a single season, covering 1,069. From MHS, the 5-foot-8, 180 pounder went to Na-varro Junior College in Corsicana for two years and spent his final two years with the Angelo State Rams.

In his senior year of play, Williams rushed for 1,006 yards and led the Division II ranks in scoring with 19 touchdowns. His efforts for the Rams earned him first team All-Lone Star Conference, third team All-American and his chance at pro football, Italian style.

And, it's without the threat of be

I'm already on the team," said

Williams, who left for Italy Friday morning. "I'll sign my contract when I get there and I'll get about a $9,000 signing bonus."

Another part of Williams' contract includes the continuation of his interrupted college education.

"They're going to send money back to the United States to secure my schooling in case I don't make it in the NFL."

Williams is one of three Americans to make the Warriors this year, the maximum number per team a league allows. Like Japanese base-ball, the six-year old league wants to play its country's own athletes.

"One of the other guys going with me is a linebacker from the Universime is a linebacker from the University of Connecticut, Vernon Hargraves," said Williams. "He was drafted by the Cleveland Browns and was sent over there to get a little more experience and I guess that's what this is for, get a little more experience and they'll look at you over here a little more."

The third player is "Franklin Jacobs from the University of Minnesota," said Williams. "In 1983 he led the Big 10 in rushing for seven games before he got hurt."

Jacobs will play fullback for the Warriors while Williams will be the I-Back, a position he played at Midland High.

Williams and Jacobs are two players the Warriors hope will improve their struggling offensive attack.

"They lost the championship game last year and they told me it was because of a lack of offense," said Williams. "They didn't have anybody running the ball. They run out of the set, like we did at Midland High.

"I haven't run the T since high school but I still consider myself an I-Back. We ran the Houston Veer at Navarro and ran split backs at Angelo and utilized more passing. I got to catch the ball a lot more at Angelo. I think I had 37 catches for a little under 400 yards."

FOR WILLIAMS, the trip to Italy may be interrupting his education. but it's also providing education at the same time.

Williams has an opportunity to see ome of the world and can learn about other cultures through experiencing them. Except for trips to Mexico, Italy will be the first foreign country he's seen.

This will be the farthest I've ever been away from home," said Wil-liams. "I'm ready to go."

As recently as three months ago, Williams hadn't even heard of the Italian Football League. He'd consid-ered other football leagues but nev-

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

The longest basketball game in history, in either high school, college or pro competition, was played by 2 North Carolina high schools a few years ago when Mamers High defeated Angier High in a game that went through--believe it or not--- 13 overtime

Here's a real oddity...The inventor of basketball, James Naismith, was a LOSING coach in the sport he originated!...After inventing basketball, Naismith became head basketball coach at the University of Kansas for 9 seasons, but his overall record was only 53 wins and 56 losses.

Do you have any idea how many miles a player runs during a basketball game?...It's been estimated that the average regular in the National Basketball Association runs about 51/2 miles up and down the court in each game!

I bet you didn't know ... that the 1986 Cadillac Fleetwood Sedan hasn't changed in size or tradition. It also has a new 5.0 liter V/8 engine. But best of all it'a Cadilac. See them today at Berg Motor Company.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Mac O' Grady, the golf tour's rebel with what he feels is a cause, knocked in a hole-in-one Friday en route to a 68 that gave him the lead midway through the Los Angeles Open.

Mark Lye shot himself into contention with a second-round 66 that put him within two strokes.

O'Grady, who has yet to win a tournament in his four years on the LA Golf

PGA tour but finished 20th in earnings with $224,000 in 1985, began the round two strokes back of Trixler and Delsing.

THE 34-year-old O'Grady started the second round with birdies on the first two holes. He bogeyed No. 4 to slip back to 4-under-par for the tournament, but, after parring the fifth hole, he holed his 6-iron on the 170yard, par-3 sixth hole to go to 6-

The O'Grady-Beman dispute began after the commissioner fined him for allegedly making rude remarks to a woman on the course during a tournament in New Orleans in 1984. O'Grady refused to pay, and Beman later collected a $500 fine from a purse paid to O'Grady.

Unlike the other players on the tour, O'Grady has refused to go into the press tent interview area following his rounds, saying he wants to embarrass Beman.

The feud has, however, been essentially one-sided, with Beman saying tour policy was followed in the matter of the fine.

AFTER HIS round Friday, O'-Grady told a throng of reporters who trailed him from the 18th tee and into the locker room, "I've got nothing to say. You guys have a great dinner tonight. See y'all later."

Delsing, in his second year on the tour, had a second-round 74 that left him four shots behind the leader.

BOCA RATON, Fla. - Jimmy Connors, enraged by what he felt were "incompetent" lines calls, was defaulted Friday for refusing to play in the fifth set of his semifinal match against Ivan Lendl at the Lipton International Players Championships tennis tournament.

With Lendl up a service break and leading 3-2, 30-0 in the fifth set, Connors made a half-swing at a Lendl volley that the left-hander thought

When the ball was called good, giv-ing Lendl a 40-0 lead, Connors stormed the umpire's chair and screamed at Jeremy Shales. "That was not a judgment call," he said. "I didn't even play the ball, it was so far out. "I'm not going to play under these conditions. Connors then demanded that Shales call out tournament supervisor Ken Farrar to discuss the situation. Farrar and tournament referee Allan Mills went on court, but re-fused to side with Connors. Mills told

Lipton Tennis

Shales to keep the 30-second clock running.

When Connors refused to return to action in 30 seconds, he was given a point penalty, closing out the sixth game and increasing Lendl's lead to 42. While Connors continued to argue, the clock continued to run and he was given, under the rules, a game penalty, making Lendl's lead 5-

When he still refused to play, the next penalty — a default — was called. The official score was 1-8, 6-1, 6-2, 2-6, 5-2, with Lendl advancing to the final.

Second-seeded Mats Wilander played fifth-seeded Stefan Edberg in a battle of Swedes in the night semifinal. The men's final is scheduled for Sunday.

The women's title match - pitting top-seeded Chris Evert Lloyd against second-seeded Steffi Graf of West Germany — will be held Saturday.

Both finals will be nationally televised on ABC-TV.

The 33-year-old Connors now faces fines ranging up to $20,000 and a suspension of up to one year. Farrar said he will make his initial decision on the punishment soon and turn the matter over to Marshall Happer. the matter over to Marshall Happer, administrator of the Men's International Professional Tennis Council. who was in attendance at the tournament.

"I had had enough," Connors said in a spirited news conference punc-tuated by cheers from fans surrounding the media tent.

"The guy's in the chair and he's got a job to do and he doesn't do it," he said. "If there's incompetence there, I don't want to play anymore."

Lendl, who also argued several line calls during the 3-hour, 43-min-ute match, said he felt Connors had taken the wrong approach.

"I don't think a professional should default on a bad call," Lendl said. "I've had a thousand bad calls and he's had a thousand bad calls. You can't quit because of a bad call."

Zimmerman shakes virus, records 69

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Mary Beth Zimmerman shook off the effects of a stomach virus and carded a 3-under-par 69 Friday for a two-shot lead after the second round of the $250,000 LPGA Standard Register-Samaritan Turquoise Classic.

The 25-year-old Zimmerman played even-par 26 on the front nine and birdied holes 10, 13 and 15 on the par-72, 6,210-yard Arizona Biltmore Adobe Course.

Amy Alcott fired a 70 and was tied for second at 139 with Pat Meyers.

Patty Sheehan, the season's leading money-winner, remained in contention with a 70 Friday and was tied with Sherri Turner, Jane Crafter and Rosie Jones with 140 totals. Crafter shot 71 while Turner and Jones both posted 72s.

Juli Inkster, the first-round leader, fell to a 2-over 74 and was four shots off the pace at 131. Defending champion Betsy King moved into contention with a 69 Friday and was five shots off at 142.

Zimmerman said she woke up not feeling well in the middle of the night and a nagging stomach pain persisted throughout Friday's round. However, after she chipped in from 30 feet for a birdie-3 on the 10th hole to move to 5-under, she said she started to fell better.

"Chipping in like that can cure anything," Zimmerman said.

Ariane rocket blasts successfully into space KOUROU, French Guiana (AP) - The Ariane rocket blasted off from its South American base Friday night and launched two satellites into orbit in a mission that will test the credibility of Europe's space program and challenge American research. Ariane, a conventional three-stage unmanned launcher, lifted off from the Kourou Space Center on its 16th mission after eight months of delay and new uncertainty in the commercial satellite market since the U.S. space shuttle disaster last month. The Ariane liftoff was on schedule at 10:44 p.m. (7:44 p.m. CST), European Space Agency officials announced. Fifteen minutes later, the booster rocket successfully fired into orbit a Swedish scientific probe and a sophisticated French observation satellite, the agency said, calling the mission a "complete success." It was not known immediately if the satellites, which were linked together, would successfully uncouple and begin to function. The Swedish-built Viking probe is to study the earth's magnetic fields and the aurora borealis, or Northern Lights. But more important is the French satellite, Spot 1, will compete directly with the American Landsat series of satellites. Landsat satellites have been used by the United States since 1972 to provide information from space on earth resources. But the system lost money and the U.S. government sold it to a private company, Earth Observation Satellite Co., in

Buddhist monks revive ancient music

Music once graced China's Ming Dynasty court

PEKING (AP) — For 28 generations, Buddhist monks of the Zhihua Temple in Peking have passed down the secret of how to play music that once graced the court of China's Ming Dynasty, which reigned from 1368 to 1644.

But only eight of them survive to-day and they are 60 to 84 years old. Banned with the abolition of religious activities during Mao Tsetung's radical "Cultural Revolution" of 1968-76, the Buddhist musicians dispersed, died off or went into retirement.

Nevertheless the eight survivors, wearing their traditional gold robes, are back together again. They practice twice a week at another temple and are preparing to pass on their cials said in a recent interview.

The occasion of the interview allowed a rare chance for an outsider to hear the Buddhist musicmakers, who despite their age, produce a robust, harmonious, organ-like sound with five traditional Chinese instruments

Using a five-note pentatonic scale reminiscent of medieval European music, the monks play from memory. The melody moves relentlessly, in waves, without repeats.

The five instruments are the "sheng," a drone-like mouth organ with 17 pipes; a "cloud gong," which has 10 bronze gongs in a decorative wooden frame; a transverse bamboo flute; the oboe-like kuan, and a kettle drum.

Flute player Zhao Xiang, 62, said he began learning his instrument at the age of 13 but during the Cultural Revolution he was forced to work in Chen Jiewei, secretary-general of the Peking Buddhist Association, said Red Guards burned musical instruments and smashed Buddhist statues as feudalist relics during the Cultural Revolution. Ling Haicheng, in charge of the association's arts section, helped retrieve the ancient music and get the monks together again in 1980. The Chinese government now permits religious activity, alsecrets to a new group of novices, though many temples and churches remain in Chinese Buddhist Association offidesecration.

> Peking iron and steel mill. It took him 15 years to master the music, he said, and it's all he can "I've heard of Beethoven but I don't enjoy his music," he said in response to a question about more modern musical classics. Chen Jiewei, secretary-general of the Peking Buddhist Association, said Red Guards burned musical instruments and smashed Buddhist statues as feudalist relics during the Cultural Revolution.

The monks ceased to play music but they didn't forget how," he said. Ling Haicheng, in charge of the association's arts section, helped retrieve the ancient music and get the monks together again in 1980. The Chinese government now permits religious activity, although many temples and churches remain in desecration

Ling said 20 or 30 monks could play in the early years of the Chinese Communists, who took over in 1949. "Since then, many have died and the others are aging and ailing."

Some of the Zhihua Temple music exists in old notation, but nuances have to be passed from teacher to pupil, and only about 20 of the original 150 strains remain extant. Ling

He explained that the music stems from folk tunes of the Sung Dynasty (960-1279) and survived into the Ming Dynasty only in the repertoire of imperial musicians. The eunuch Wang Chen, adviser to 15th-century Ming Emperor Cheng Tung, ordered monks to play the music for his enjoyment when the emperor built Zhihua Temple for himself in 1446. Zhihua means growth of the intellect.

Three years later, the emperor was slain in a coup.

"The monks had no means to live on, so they began to play for wealthy families," Ling said. "After that, the music was passed down from generation to generation."

The Zhihua Temple was closed in 1966 and the monks now live at the Guanghua Temple in northwest Peking, a complex that dates from the 14th century.

Not a note of the music was changed over the centuries, and to preserve their musical secret, the monks refused to teach anyone outside their temple or to let novices learn more than one instrument.

Combining folk, court and temple styles, some of the music depicts fishing and hunting, Ling said. He added that other melodies were used for the arrival of the emperor in a sedan chair, while chant-like passages have more spiritual content.

Before 1949, the music was played at funerals. One part was called the 'Short-Lived Ghost' but bereaved families didn't know that,

The Buddhist Association is arranging for young musicians to carry on the tradition. Officials estimate that Peking, a city of 9.5 million, has only 800 practicing Buddhists.

An 84-year-old monk, no longer able to play the flute, pointed to a burly musician in his 60s and said, "He is the only survivor among my

Conference focuses on religion's contributions

Conference of Churches was held in San Antonio this week at the El Tropicano Hotel. In this sesquicentennial year, the Assembly focused on the contribution of religion and religious leaders to the history of the Theme presenters for the day were: John McCarthy, Auxiliary Bishop of the Roman Catholic diocese of Galveston-Houston and newly named as the 3rd Bishop of the Diocese of Austin; and William Fogleman, executive of the Presbyterian Synod of the Sun.

Bishop McCarthy in his address to the Assembly presented a history of Protestant Roman Catholic relations in Texas, which he divided into three significant periods. The first period was from 1680-1836 when Texas Roman Catholics were essentially Hispanic - Mexicans who had migrated to what was at first Northern Mexico, and then became Texas. During this period Protestants from the other parts of the United States also migrated to Texas and became quite prosperous, while the Hispanic Catholics were peasants and small farmers. There was little cooperation or integration.

In fact, as Bishop McCarthy put it, "Hatred, bitterness and blood are the foundation on which we build the (ecumenical) church.

The second period of religion in Texas history occurs with the beginnings of European migration to Texas in the late 1800s and early 1900s. Because Irish Catholic immigrants could speak English, they paved the way for greater communications be-

SAN ANTONIO - The 17th Assem- tween Protestants and Roman Cathobly of Representatives of the Texas lics that continued on into the third historical period of religious integra tion. This period begins after World War II along with the movement of Americans out of the cities and into the suburbs. The development of industry in suburban communities in Texas has brought prosperous Roman Catholics from Northern parts of the country into what once almost exclusively white Protestant communities. This physical integration has brought with it a closer cooperation among the denominations than previously existed.

> The Texas Conference of Churches is a pioneer organization in that it is the first organization of its kind to bring together Protestant, Roman Catholic and Greek Ortho-

> "We still have," according to Bishop McCarthy, "a tremendous amount of non-acceptance of one another. and the TCC is striving to create a future not based on mere toleration and acceptance of one another, but > William Fogieman responded by lamenting and confessing that in his own small Texas hometown, which has been originally settled by Scotch-Irish Protestants, the Roman Catholics in the community (who had been there for over half a century), still have difficulty feeling at home there. He rejoiced at the coming together of the Texas Conference of Churches Assembly and talked of the "lightness with which the individual tradition should be weighed as compared to the community we are in Jesus Christ.'

'Main Street' likely to join NBC's prime-time schedule this summer

NEW YORK (AP) - "Main Street," NBC's critically acclaimed news program for teen-agers, likely will join the network's prime-time schedule this summer, NBC News executives said Friday.

NBC is strongly considering giving the program a monthly summer trial, according to sources who asked not to be identified. Network officials and the industry watchdog, Action for Children's Television, believe it would be the first youth-oriented news show ever to get regular prime-time exposure.

"Main Street," which has "Today" anchor Bryant Gumbel as host and NBC News correspondent Bill Schechner as principal reporter, looks at news events and contemporary culture through a youthful perspective. It has been on monthly in the afternoons since September.

Last Tuesday's program dealt with homeless children in Denver and was so well-regarded that the report was repeated on the "NBC Nightly News"

Next month's entire episode will be devoted to sex and teen-agers. Previous programs have looked at young victims of the Mexico City earthquake, the life of one black South African boy and the story of a young hemophiliac who had contracted AIDS.

Main Street" also has had its light moments with reports on rock 'n' roll, comic books and interviews with celebrities, including Robert "Kool" Bell of Kool & the Gang and actress Ally Sheedy from "The Breakfast Club."

"The opportunity to attract audiences in prime time is very exciting," said Peggy Charren, president of Action for Children's Televison. "I hope all the organizations for children get on the ball and tell their constituencies that this is a show we all should Charren, who has served as an advocate for children's programming since founding her organization 17 years ago, said no other children's news show has been on the commercial networks in prime time. Public television, of course, devotes many hours a week to children's programming, including, in prime time, the weekly "Wonderworks" dramas and regularly scheduled science shows.

The NBC sources said if the show gets into prime time, they would promote it as a family news hour. "I think that's fine," Charren said. "Terrific news is a family affair. That could only be good for the program and make for more meaningful stories, like the last one on the homeless.'

MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP) -John Zaccaro Jr., 22-year-old son of former vice presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro, has been arrested on a charge of possessing cocaine. Zaccaro, a senior at Middle-

Zaccaro Jr. possession of a regulated drug before Judge Frank Mahady and was released on his own recognizance, according to a court clerk. Addison County Deputy State's Attorney John Quinn said local and state police joined in executing a search warrant of Zaccaro's off-campus apartment

NEW YORK (AP) — Four months after dying of lung cancer, actor Yul Brynner is appearing in a public service spot in which he says, "Now that I'm gone, I tell you: Don't smoke.'

A spokeswoman for the American Cancer Society, which produced the 30-second spot, said it was the most powerful personal indictment of smoking" ever made.

Brynner, who won fame as the King of Siam in the long-running musical "The King and I," died Oct. 10, 1985, at the age of 65. He had been approached months earlier by the cancer society, but wrote on Feb. 19, 1985, that he felt "my public appearances, where I speak out against smoking, are more effective than a sterile TV commercial."

It was just such an appearance, on ABC's "Good Morning, America," that was used to make the eloquent public service spot.

On the Jan. 7, 1985, program, Brynner said, "I really wanted to make a commercial when I discovered that I was that sick and my time was so limited and to make a commercial that says simply, 'Now that I'm gone, I tell you: Don't smoke. Whatever you do, just don't smoke.' " In the public service advertisement, his statement is preceded by an announcer who says, "Ladies and gentlemen, the late Yul Brynner.

The ad ends with the American Cancer Society's logo on the screen and Brynner's voice saying,"If I could take back that smoking we wouldn't be talking about any cancer. I'm convinced of that.'

Cancer society spokeswoman Susan Islam said Friday that the spot was "a voice from the grave, who believed he died from lung cancer because he

Jachelene Demave, a publicist for "Good Morning America," said the interview with Brynner was shown the day after he died, "and calls came in from all over the country, suggesting it be used to stop people from smoking."

Ms. Islam said Brynner's wife was very moved by the idea, but asked the American Cancer Society to wait before releasing a public service spot.

The pilot of a Chinese Air Force MiG-19 who defected to South Korea Friday waves from his MiG-19 shortly after landing at an airfield south of Seoul, South Korea.

Chinese MiG-19 pilot defects to South Korea

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — A Chinese MiG-19 fighter jet landed at an air base Friday after it was intercepted by South Korean warplanes, the Defense Ministry said. A 13-minute air raid siren was sounded in the capital during the chase.

The state radio reported that the Chinese pilot had defected to South Korea.

South Korea said the plane had vi-olated its airspace when it was intercepted. China said the plane had "lost contact during training" and demanded its return along with the pilot. Taiwan said it would welcome the pilot and pay a reward for the Thirteen minutes before the defection announcement came on the radio network KBS, the official station interrupted programs to issue a yellow air raid warning for Seoul, the capital, and its vicinity.

"An air raid by enemy aircraft was expected," the initial alarm said, repeating over and over. It also advised department stores, theaters and other public places to inform the people and take appropriate steps in accordance with civil defense regulations. The air raid warning was lifted altogether with a secondary was lif ing was lifted altogether with a sec-ond announcement of the Chinese defection.

South Korean fighters scrambled to intercept the plane after it was detected violating the nation's airspace in the early afternoon, said Brig. Gen. Lee Hung-sik, the Defense Ministry spokesman. At roughly the same time, two North Korean fighters were detected flying south from their base in Haetu on the west coast. their base in Haeju on the west coast, but they turned back, he said.

The ministry identified the pilot as Tseng Pao-chong, 26, assigned to the 4th Reconaissance Wing of the 1st
Chinese Air Division, based at Shenyang. He was said to be unmarried.
In Taipei, Foreign Ministry spokesman Chevne Chiu told reporters that man Cheyne Chiu told reporters that the nationalist Chinese government was prepared to offer any assistance to the pilot if he wanted to defect to Taiwan. Communist China's Foreign Ministry issued a statement saying: "We hope that the South Korean side will provide assistance in returning the plane and the pilot to China at an early date."

Since 1962, three Chinese pilots have defected to Taiwan after flying their planes to South Korea, the only Asian nation that maintains diplomatic ties with Taiwan. They were rewarded and commissioned into Taiwan's air force. The latest defector in August received a gold reward equivalent to nearly $100,000.

Friday's apparent defection would be the sixth from China to South Korea since 1961, according to South Korean military sources. Chinese fli-ers have previously sought political asylum in South Korea because it is close to the mainland.

Chinese troops fought for North Korea against the Seoul government and United Nations forces in the 1950-53 Korean War.

China and South Korea have no diplomatic relations. The first official contact between Peking and Seoul occurred after six Chinese hijackers forced a Chinese domestic passenger plane to land in South Korea in May 1983.

'We are going to be rulers' Tutu tells angry crowd

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A crowd of 40,000 blacks shouted angrily and booed Bishop Desmond Tutu Friday when he told them that a meeting with the white government had gained no concessions on their grievances.

"We are going to be rulers in this land," the black Nobel Peace laureate, who has calmed many mobs during South Africa's long agony of violence, told the sullen crowd at the sports stadium in the riot-torn black township of Alexandra.

'When? When?' the people shouted. At least 23 people have been killed in Alexandra in the past week. Tutu had eased tension in Alexandra Tuesday by promising to take the complaints of its residents to the government. He and other clerics did so Thursday, and he had returned to report.

He told the people that President P.W. Botha's government had promised to investigate and consider their demands for removal of police patrols from the township and release of riot detainees. Angry blacks shouted from the stands: "It's not enough! The death of our people must be avenged! Down with Botha!" Loud boos, catcalls and chants of African nationalist slogans arose in the stifling summer heat.

No police or troops were in evidence at the stadium, an apparent concession by the white-minority government.

Mike Beea, head of the Alexandra Civic Association, got a warmer response when he said Adriaan Vlok, deputy minister of law and order and defense, had agreed that if the township decided on a date for the funerals of the riot victims, the detainees would be released in time for the services.

Tutu, the Anglican bishop of Johannesburg, and the other clerics had sought to meet with Botha about the problems in Alexandra but were told he was too busy. Instead, they saw Vlok. Tutu told reporters Vlok listened attentively, but "They have nothing to offer, only promises."

The Rev. Peter Storey, who is white and was seated on the dais with Tutu, told a news conference after the stadium meeting: "I wish every white South African could have been at the stadium today to see the anger of the people.

"They are not going to look back until they see their country freed. I wish they could have been at the stadium to see what apartheid has done to the generations of this

More than 1,100 people, nearly all of them black, have been killed in the violence.

Police kept an eye on foreigners entering the township, briefly stop-ping a Commonwealth group led by former Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser of Australia and Gen. Olusegun Obasanjo, a former military leader of Nigeria. They were released in about five minutes when the police realized who they were, said black activist Lucky Kwele, who was traveling with them.

De la Madrid: Mexico will negotiate to reduce debt

MEXICO CITY (AP) — President Miguel de la Madrid said Friday that Mexico will soon begin negotiations with international bankers to reduce the burden of the $96.4 billion foreign debt on its economy, reeling from falling oil prices.

"No one is obliged to do the impossible," the president said in a nationally televised speech on the

"We will make a new in-depth proposal on servicing the debt in relation with the country's capacity for payment," he said.

He said that adjusting to the oil price reductions "requires also sacrifice on the part of the international creditors who have been even responsible in the process of indebtedness.'

Mexico depends heavily on oil sales to foreign buyers to bring in revenues to pay its foreign debt. The fresh fall in oil prices has cut sharply into those revenues and raised concern about the nation's ability to make interest and principal payments on the debt.

De la Madrid did not suggest the nation declare a moratorium on payments, as some have suggested. He strongly rejected any course that would veer from what he called "responsible economic management.'

WORLD IN BRIEF

Assailants shoot, wound Italian government official

ROME (AP) - Four assailants Friday shot and wounded a top government economist they accused of drafting an "anti-worker" budget. Italy's second terrorist attack in 11 days raised fears of a resurgence of Red Brigades violence.

Antonio da Empoli, a senior adviser to Premier Bettino Craxi, was reported in good condition after surgery for bullet wounds in the leg and elbow

One of the four assailants was killed. She was later officially identified as Vilma Monaco, 28, a suspected Red Brigades member sought by police under an arrest warrant issued in July.

On Feb. 10, a former mayor of Florence, Lando Conti, was slain in an attack claimed by the Red Brigades.

The terrorists struck shortly after 9 a.m. as da Empoli got out of his car to buy a newspaper at his regular newsstand. Riding two motor scooters — a man and a woman on each the attackers fired pistols and submachine guns, police said.

VIENNA, Austria (AP) - Two Soviet peace activists arrived here Friday and said the KGB had told them they would be jailed for planning protests to coincide with next week's Communist Party Congress unless they left the Soviet Union. Alexei and Olga Lusnikov told re-forced to enter psychiatric hospitals and a fifth was placed under house arrest in an apparent effort to prevent disruptions at the party congress, they said. Lusnikov said organization mem-

The group asked Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev to allow freer East-West contacts.

Before the ruling by Circuit Judge Alan Brubaker, Ryan said it was "good to be back" at Western Middle School. Dozens of parents kept their children home in protest.

Brubaker's ruling came after a parents group requested that Ryan be barred from classes because he has a communicable disease.

The judge said he agreed with parents who argued that pupils could be harmed if Ryan were in school.

"The plaintiffs presently have no other adequate remedy under the law and they have some likelihood of success" in winning a favorable decision in a full hearing, he said. He did not set a date for another hearing.

More than 80 people filled the courtroom as Brubaker issued his ruling after the three-hour hearing, and many cheered and applauded.

"I'm upset," said Ryan's mother, Jeanne White. "I think anybody that was there would have to be upset. I was stunned. Ryan is very disap-pointed. He really enjoyed school today."

Principal Ronald Colby said Ryan's return to school, opposed by many parents, had gone without incident. "Ryan was accepted by the children," Colby added. "I saw no one cringing up against the wall."

Ryan, whose acquired immune deficiency syndrome stems from blood treatments taken for hemophilia, said as he left school that his first day back "was a lot of fun. It was good to be back." He said he was treated "just like everybody else. They just came up, a lot of them, and said, 'Hi."

Colby said 151 of the 360 students, just over 40 percent, were absent. In 35 cases, he said, parents specified that they were keeping their chil-dren home because of the AIDS controversy.

"I was frankly surprised that we had over 50 percent of our students," he said. Absenteeism had been higher than normal in the last two weeks, at 10 percent to 15 percent, because of influenza, he added.

School officials banned Ryan from classes last summer, though he has listened in on classes from home through a special telephone hookup. He had been out of school since De-cember 1984, when his AIDS was first diagnosed, but until last summer he was too ill to attend.

A state school department's decision that he could return to classes was challenged by school officials, but an appeals board said the boy could return with the approval of the county medical officer. Kathy Shepherd, the mother of one of Ryan's classmates, said she kept her daughter at home because "I don't want to take the chance of her becoming a victim of that down

"If you know there's a danger you try to protect yourself," her hus-band, Allen, said. "We're trying to protect our children.

When Ryan arrived at the school Friday morning, there were no parents demonstrating. About 15 minutes later, though, a student of Western High School, which is located next door, posed for photographers in front of the middle school with a sign that read: "Students Against

The student, Don Hochstedler, said he had nothing against Ryan; "I just got something against his disease." Ryan was dropped off by his stepfather and sister, Colby said.

Western High School juniors Sabrina Jameson and Don Hochstedler picket outside the Western Middle School Friday, where 14year-old AIDS patient Ryan White was allowed to attend seventh grade for the first time in more than a year.

Budget cuts will delay Alzheimer's research

tant government-sponsored research on Alzheimer's disease will be delayed because of the March 1 spending cuts being imposed by the budget balancing law, a federal health official told Congress on

The across-the-board 4.3 percent cuts required by the Gramm-Rudman act will force a $500,000 reduction in the $10.4 million appropriation for Alzheimer's disease research, said Dr. T. Franklin Williams, director of the National

He cited research by Harvard Medical School professor James Gusella on possible genetic causes of Alzheimer's disease. The project will not go forward this year because of the cuts, he said.

Gusella identified the genetic cause of Huntington's disease and "is one of the world's best people to do the project," Dr. Zaven Khachaturian, head of the aging institute's physiology of aging branch, said in a telephone interview. Khachaturian said the cuts will force a delay in at least a dozen important research projects that were scheduled to begin this

The report by the congressional watchdog agency was obtained by The Associated Press Friday from a congressional source who asked to remain anonymous. It was requested by Rep. William Alexander Jr., D-Ark., and is part of a dispute between the Reagan administration and Alexander and other critics over U.S. policy in Central America.

In the past three years, the Pentagon has built a wide variety of facilities, including airstrips and storage facilities, in Honduras as part of exercises that have involved up to 5,000 troops at a time.

BALTIMORE (AP) — The governor Friday ordered all jars of Gerber strained peaches off state grocery store shelves after glass fragments

Elizabeth Chagra thought husband 'joking' about delivering payoff

AUSTIN (AP) — Elizabeth Chagra testified Friday she thought her hus-band was "joking" when he told her to deliver the payoff money in the murder of U.S. Federal Judge John Wood in 1979.

"I was frightened and very upset," the 32-year-old defendant said during more than three hours on the

"Then he (Jimmy Chagra) said he'd never put me in that kind of a position. He said he was just joking with me," she said.
Mrs. Chagra said that although she was seven months pregnant and not feeling well, she took a small briefcase to a Las Vegas hotel room.

On the way back home, she said she bought five fried chicken dinners for her family. "Did you have any idea the money was to pay for the homicide?" she was asked. "No sir, I did not," she answered.

Earlier, a witness for the government testfied a "very pregnant" woman delivered $250,000 in bundles of bills to the hotel room and the money was given to Charles Harrelson, convicted triggerman in Wood's Cross examination of Mrs. Chagra will continue Monday.

Defense attorney Warren Burnett told the court that the defense planned to rest its case sometime Monday.

Mrs. Chagra is being tried a second time on charges of conspiracy in Wood's death. Her 1962 conviction was overturned by an appeals court because of improper instructions to the jury.

Mrs. Chagra said later that "never to this day has Jimmy ever admitted to me that he hired Harrelson to kill Judge Wood."

The defense began presenting its evidence Friday after U.S. District Judge William Sessions refused their request for a directed verdict of

The government rested its case Friday morning after eight days of presenting evidence and witnesses in the trial which began Feb. 5.

We move acquittal of the defendant because the government's evidence wholly fails to show an offense as charged in the U.S. pleading," said Burnett, defense

Mrs. Chagra, 32, is charged with conspiring to murder U.S. District John Wood, who was killed by a rifle shot in the back shortly before he was to have conducted a narcotics trafficking trial for Jimmy Chagra, Government evidence fails to even suggest such an offense," Burnett told the judge.

"I'm satisfied there as been a crime to conspire to commit mur-der," Sessions said, and overruled the defense motion.

Much of the government testimony came from seven tapes of recordings made by the FBI in a wiretap placed in the visitors room at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., federal prison, where Jimmy Chagra was serving a term. FBI agents testified they monitored more than 72 hours of conversations between Jimmy Chagra and his wife, and his brother, Joe Chagra, former El Paso attorney.

Missouri boy recovering from a rare immune system disorder is doing well enough to be released from Texas Children's Hospital and be moved closer to home, doctors said Friday.

Joshua Smith received a bone marrow transplant from his mother on Nov. 8, an operation that has boosted his ability to fight off infection from zero to 50 percent, according to his physician, William T. Shearer.

Judge to rule on TSTA suit challenging tests

By GARY RASP

Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN - A state district judge will rule within the next ten days whether Texas school teachers are required to take a basic skills test to retain their teaching certificates.

The Texas State Teachers Association is challenging the constitutionality a statute establishing the test. Attorneys representing TSTA and the Texas Education Agency pre-Friday afternoon.

If District Judge Harley Clark sides with the state agency, about 210,000 Texas teachers and administrators will take a two-part reading and writing test March 10. Educators who fail the test next month will have a second opportunity to pass it

June 30. Legislators created the Texas Examination of Current Administrators and Teachers test as part of the controversial education reforms approved during the summer of 1984. The state board of education has set a passing grade of 75 percent on multiple-choice reading portion of the

Unless Clark rules the law unconstitutional, the law will also require educators to produce an acceptable written essay to pass the writing portion of the test.

What we have here, your honor, is a bad statute, which the state board took and made worse," said

Assistant Attorney General Kevin O'Hanlon, representing TEA, countered that a teaching certificate is no different than any other license, and that the state has the authority to revoke that license if it sees fit.

"We don't think testing after the fact is appropriate at all," Beard said. He said TSTA has sponsored several workshops across the state to prepare educators for the TECAT if Clark uphold the statute.

"We've tried very hard to get our members prepared," Beard said. Judge Clark said he will try to

Clements unleashes new TV commercials

By JIM WARREN

Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN - Former Gov. Bill Clements Friday unleashed his new series of television commercials, emphasizing his war on drugs, fiscal conservatism and back-to-basics education program.

Clements campaign aides say Clements wants to play up his record as governor compared to Gov. Mark White's term. In the ads, Clements reiterates his most common campaign themes — his conservative business background and White's broken promises, especially the governor's pledge not to raise taxes.

The four spots start running Friday in eight television markets — Houston, Dallas-Fort Worth, San Antonio, Austin Waco-Temple-Bryan-College Station, Tyler, Amarillo and Midland-Odessa. Aides said the ads will reach 87 percent of GOP voters and will cost "some $230,000."

The spots will air for 10 days, then the Clements campaign will take new polls in the areas where the ads ran. All the spots feature Clements explaining his accomplishments. In 1982 when White won the governor's race, Clements did not do the talking in his commercials, and that, aides said, was a mistake.

"He's his own best salesman," said Karl Rove, a Clements spokesman. In a 60-second spot, a voice brags on Clements record of no new taxes, a $950 million budget surplus, a 49 percent raise for teachers and appointing the first women to the Texas Supreme Court.

Clements then says: "I'm proud of that record, and like so many Texans I'm disappointed with Mark White's performance, his broken promises and especially his huge tax in creases. As governor, I believe I can restore credibility and common sense to our state government." The other three spots focus on Clements war on drugs, back-to-basics education plan and his fiscal management.

One of Clements' Republican opponents, Congressman Tom Loeffler of Hunt, already ran a series of ads in November and started another series last week. The other GOP candidate, former U.S. Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock, has not yet taken his campaign to television.
