Our Citizens Are Interested

The decisive majority given by Haskell voters in confirming membership in the North Central Texas Municipal Water Authority indicates that our citizens are very definitely interested in the city's water problem and a solution to the problem. The fact that there was opposition to the proposal is a healthy sign. An expression and airing of differing opinions, granting that they are honest and sincere, is both desirable and helpful in arriving at a sensible decision on any important mat_

Now that the membership in the proposed Water Authority has been definitely confirmed, it will be possible for engineers to determine a more accurate estimate as to the cost of the This information, in all necessary detail, can then be presented to the residents of the five towns now constituting the Authority, or district, as the basis for future decisions they will be called upon to make. At whatever figure the cost is determined, it is a certainty that a bond issue in that amount will be voted upon in the five member cities, together with a water purchase contract.

However, pending the availability of definite cost figures, it now appears that Haskell citizens will be able to underwrite the project at a cost no greater — and possibly not as much — as the cost to neighboring Stamford and Hamlin in solving their municipal water problem.

Other Viewpoints

(Wichita Falls Times)

What one city might not be able to do by itself in the matter of municipal water supply can be accomplished collectively by mutual cooperation of a group of cities with a common goal.

This has been proved again with the election this week which has linked together the five cities of Seymour, Haskell, Rule, Munday and Goree in the North Central Texas Municipal Water Authority for the proposed development of a joint new

A new lake will be created on Miller Creek, between Seymour and Munday, if the authority is permitted to proceed with

A body of water with storage capacity equivalent to half of Wichita Falls' Lake Kickapoo is contemplated in initial construction which will include filtration facilities and distribution lines to each of the cities participating.

Expenses of approximately $6,000,000 entailed in the project will be met by an authority bond issue, which calls for another vote. Debt amortization and operating costs would be prorated.

The five cities participating are currently supplied by well water. As in almost all areas of the nation, water tables are dropping and cannot be depended upon in the future, particularly if requirements continue to rise.

The cities are in an area where irrigated farming has been expanding rapidly and with remarkable success, both in introducing new crops and in assuring crop yields every year of well-established farm products. A surface water supply for municipal purposes thus will ease the problem arising from dual uses of well water, for domestic purposes and for irrigated farming. It will resolve conflicting interests between townspeople and farmers before the issue is sharply drawn.

The citizenship of the five communities is to be congratulated on their far-sighted action taken this week. The joint water supply not only offers a solution to present water needs but also provides for future requirements. Aside from water, it will strengthen other ties binding the separate cities.

This is the overwhelming verdict of members of the candidates' own profession after carefully weighing their qualifications and experience, studying their record and considering their judicial temperament and personal integrity.

The lawyers of Texas have thus joined farmers, ranchers, merchants, laborers, businessmen and other professional people in supporting the candidacy of Judge JOE GREENHILL because all of them want to keep a fair, honest and sincere judge on the Texas Supreme Court. Texas Supreme Court.

Now, WTU has provided a good example of what the pro-ject means. Work was started last week on removing most of the front at the WTU Building on the south side of the square. It will be replaced with a modern new plate glass front. The improvement will not only add to the appearance of the building, but will provide a large amount of additional display space for merchandise and appliances handled by WTU.

Must be this 106-degree heat we've had that's made people so fractious lately. For some reason or other, there's been a near epidemic of shootings, stabbings, affrays, and plain, ordinary fisticuffs during the past two weeks. Lawmen are not overly concerned, since very few of the affairs have been of too serious a nature.

One ruckus provided an added feature for the crowd attending the Colored Rodeo Friday night, at least for a few minutes before officers separated the combatants.

It came about during a bronc riding event. Just as a Negro rider mounted his bronc, a Negro handler in the chute jabbed the animal with an electric "hot shot" with the result that the rider was catapaulted through the air. Brushing himself oif, he headed for the chute and his tormentor and the two started landing hefty swings until separated.

Only beneficiaries from the flare-ups have been the county treasury, and in one or two instances the hospital, when participants in some of the melees were in need of "repairs."

Instead of the heat, it could be that the phase of the moon has something to do with the current outbursts of tempers. An old fried of ours, the late 'Rusty'' DeBard, would say "there's blood on the moon" when a series of untoward incidents occurred. He'd recall many happenings of early days, some serious, others on the humorous side, that took place when the "moon was right."

One incident he related was both funny and serious, in that some damage resulted from what was intended as a prank. Several young cowboys, noting a small bunch of calves at a watering place south of town one moonlight night, decided on some fun. After "canning" one of the calves, they headed the frightened animals onto the trail leading to town, stampeding the critters.

When the bawling, scared calves hit town, horses and teams hitched to wagons and buggies in front of saloons and other businesses, broke loose and took off. Shafts were broken out of several buggies, and one or two wagons were over-

After they realized what had happened, the culprits made a wide circle and rode into town about two hours later from an opposite direction. Took the rest of that moonlit night to round up the scattered teams would have been 'blood on the moon' sure enough if those cowmen had found out who started the veteran that stampede." cowboy would chuckle.

On another occasion, several youthful cowboys decided to booger" a herd of sheep being grazed southeast of town near a small creek. Around midnight they rode quietly near the herd, then spurred their horses and started yelling like Comanches as they rode pellmell through the sheep, which had been bedded down for the night, scattering the animals in all directions.

The sheep-herder, awakened, went into action. He started throwing bullets from a Winchester and kept it up as long as he could see a horse and rider.

One of the young cowboys, known as "Club" recalls the incident vividly. "If you think you can't stay on a horse going full speed through brush, just let someone start clipping branches all around you with bullets from a Winchester," he

Pronghorn Story Traces Life Span Of Texas Stock

Texas' pronghorn antelope finds itself the object of history as well as hunters in the May issue of Texas Game and Fish. Two writers trace the pronghorn from the days of the sabre-toothed tiger to present times of controlled hunts.

Bob Slaughter, free lance writer follows "Mr. Fleetfoot" from his beginning about 30 million years ago along a trail of danger from animals and man. Theron Carroll, assistant director of the Information-Education Division of the Commission, picks up the story with the modern approach of protecting the pronghorn by pro-pagation and controlled har-vests.

Mr. Slaughter writes that the pronghorn antelope's ancestors were a branch of the same family of mammals from which cattle and bison developed. He brings out that almost 25 million years of adaption were required to produce a species with traits similar to the pronghorn of today.

After set backs during the "Ice Age" the pronghorn was hunted by man, whose weapons became more effective against the creature's amazing speed and eyesight.

Coming to the present, Car-roll paints the picture of the Texas pronghorn with facts and figures taken from years of research and population courts. He points out that since the hunting season was closed in 1903 the pronghorn was given the chance to increase to 4,742 in 1941 and to 7,500 in 1957.

In 1944, however, the hunting season was opened, and State wildlife biologists set up a harvest program to control the numbers of the pronghorn. "Thus," writes Carroll, "Mr. Fleetfoot enjoys the distinction of being the first game species in Texas to be harvested under a method affording complete scientific control."

Martin points out that this is favorable for prices in the short run. However, commercial hatcheries in the nation produced 5% more egg-type chicks in March and April this year than a year ago and the production of these chicks during January through April was 6% above the same period in 1957. This means there will be more eggs in the channels of trade when these chicks start laying this fall, and this will affect prices. Too, production during the first four months of 1959 will probably be larger than the first four months of 1958 and prices will probably be

BY VERN SANFORD

It's catfishing time in Texas. The real meat fishermen now are showing up to have their pitcures made with fullgrown catfish. I've seen several of them taken from trot lines and throw lines, the past week, on Lake Travis.

During his 37 years' residence in Haskell. Mr. King has been one of the city's leading months when most of the big

Perhaps the prin is that other fish are less likely to be caught during the two hot summer months and fishermen just naturally turn to the catfish.

Some bass and crappie are but generally they seem to have their tummies full and seek out some good cool spot to spend the day. I don't mean that many are not caught. However, the number decreases as the temperature rises. Whether it is the fault of the fish or fisherman I would not say. But I do know that there are fishermen who catch them any time of the year, hot or cold. Generally speaking catfishing isn't as much work as bass fishing. Catfish can be caught in most any manner. Frequently one will hit on a plug. They will take minnows, cut bait, dough bait, even Ivory soap.

They'll come to a baited hole and will be enticed by almost any kind of scent bait. A sack of fermented shorts or corn chops, or a gunny sack filled with uncooked bones dropped into the water alongside an old tree usually is a good magnet to attract catfish

Many pole fishermen come up with some dandies by baiting a hole and then sitting quietly in their boats and waiting for the catfish to move

However, the old time favorite way of taking catfish is by trot line. Usually such a line is extended between two points, perhaps a couple hundred feet apart, down a creek or across a channel where catfish are likely to be foraging.

The line can be anchored to a stake, tree, stump or weighted down with glass bottles for

Most often one end of the line is tied to something solid. The other end has a heavy weight, with a guy line from the weight to a tighty closed bottle which floats on top of the water to designate the end of the line or the location. They also help keep the line off the bottom. Some catfishermen like for their lines to be on the bottom; others like to have their lines barely under the water. In any event when they are in the open they should be deep enough that they won't be cut apart by outboards moving over the area. It's a good way for you to lose a line and also for an outboard to get its prop badly tangled. Hooks can vary in size. Most fishermen usually use a 5/0 to 7/0 Eagle Claw. A great deal depends on the area in which you are fishing. If the fish are small, then a smaller hook is best. Some fishermen use 3/0 but these are very light for large fish. The hooks are attached to the trot line via a stageon with a short line of about 50

ing in Graham Sunday of representatives from the 15 towns in the district which are par- This will confirm our verbal ticipating in organized Little Haskell's representative at the meeting was Wallace Stark.

there are fasteners available which make the operation a little easier.

Experienced trot line fishermen have a good reel for holding their lines. They can play these out from the boat very easily without getting tangled. Sometimes if the wind is a little high or the water swift, a line has to be put into the water hurriedly before the boat loses position.

Although many trot lines are set out and run by one man, it really is a two-man job. A friend of ours boated a husky yellow cat, 34 inches long, the other morning-single handed. And he almost lost it. Although the hook was caught well, the fight to land him was so hard and so long that when the cat was pulled over the side of the boat it fell off the hook. Fortunately for my friend the fish stayed in the boat.

When running a trot line it is best to have everything possible cleaned out of your boat. Everything except your life preservers and a tub in the center of the boat. The catfish can be dumped into this tub. Some fishermen are now using plastic garbage containers for this purpose.

Best advice we can possibly give is that you be careful. There are two distinct hazards in catfishing. One is that in playing out your trot line and baiting it in a hurry you can easily get a hook caught in your hand. There is considerable tension on a trot line. If you are not careful when you release it after baiting or removing a fish, it will jerk a hook into your thumb.

Brother, you've had it when this happens. If the hook goes in over the barb, then cut the hook off the line immediately. If you can work the barb through the flesh with pliers, cutting off the shank, that's fine. The better plan, however, is to get to the family doc as quickly as you can. He can remove the hook and give you an anti-tet shot-which is a safeguard. He'll also flatten out your wallet a little, which will teach you to be more careful next time.

The other danger is from the catfish itself. This gentleman has a sharp spine on its pectoral fin and another on its dorsal fine. These fins can do you more harm than a knife blade. A flopping catfish can stick you with this spine and cause very serious injury.

I watched a smart fisherman recently. When he caught a catfish he took hold of it with a pair of tongs. He also had a pair of cutting snips and be-fore he put that catfish down he had cut off its spines. It took him an extra minute, but it was also a safeguard.

Catfish can be handled by a good pair of pliers or fish grippers in the mouth. A pair of tongs, similar to those used to handle hot bottles containing the baby formula , will do.

Texas has several varieties of good catfish. One of the best is the channel cat that attains a maximum weight of about 25 pounds. This fish is produced by the Game and Fish Commission hatcheries and placed in lakes, streams and stock tanks. It is a nocturnal feeder, which makes night time the best to fish for them.

Park-Plant Road - -

were placed in the past, The three Commissioners agreed that the proposed road was definitely needed and would benefit not only Haskell but the entire county.

Stating that he was "not against" the proposed F-M extension, Commissioner Blake explained that he had approximately 200 miles of unimproved road in his precinct, and had only been "promised about 31/2 miles" of F-M road. More F-M roads are needed in his pre-cinct, he stated, adding that "I need to think this over before going with you in designating it as our No. 1 road need," Blake Home Garden said.

Commissioner Ashley Prec. 1, agreeing that the extension was needed, took the position, however, that "We can't put this particular pro-ject ahead of all other roads in the county."

Commissioner Newton stated he was in favor of building the proposed road "right now."

Kimbrough explained that when the Haskell group appeared before the Highway Commission, they were advised that Haskell County would be entitled to some eight or nine miles of F-M road construction during the coming year. "We were told to have our Commissioners Court designate any road within that mileage as their No. 1 project and it would be built," Kimbrough stated. Other members of the committee meeting with the Highway Commission verified this statement. A suggestion by John Payne, Haskell druggist, was to the effect that the Commissioners Court include the proposed park-plant road with other roads in the county. Then, he pointed out, the local group could seek Highway Commission approval of the project under discussion. Payne's suggestion was enthusiastically received by the group present.

Others stating their views on the proposed extension and all endorsing the project, were W. O. Holden, Jetty V. Clare, A. C. Pierson, Mrs. W. R. Johnson, and several employees of the WTU plant, along with Col. Pete Greene, supervising engineer for West Texas Utilities Company on the installation of a new unit at the Paint Creek plant now underway.

HASKELL VISITORS

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Bradford of Abilene and their friends, Mr. and Mrs. Doyle Maynard of Big Spring spent the week in Haskell with Mr Bradford's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Byron Frazier.

Tests indicate that laying hens perform best when the temperature ranges from 45 to 85 degrees F. Ben Wormell, extension poultry husbandman. says poultrymen should make sure their laying houses are properly ventilated and that the supply of drinking water is adequate to meet hot weather needs. Too, when temperatures are around the 100 mark a fogging or sprinker system installed in the laying house will pay dividends.

Swimming Gains In Popularity, Poll Shows

Ask the first 100 people you meet what their favorite sport is and chances are good that at least 70 will say swimming. Even golf and fishing have taken back seats as sport choices, a recent nationwide poli shows.

An estimated 50,000 new pools will be constructed this year throughout the nation. In Texas at this moment well over 4,000 pools are attracting swimmers like bees to a flower.

This is all to the good, because swimming lends itself to social adjustment. It teaches coordination and builds stamina and character. A child who overcomes fear of water has learned courage. But there is also an element of risk. This accelerated interest in swimming creates hazards to life and limb, and danger of disease transmission. That's why the State Health Department cinducts courses to teach pool operators the various skills of their jobs. 'Short schools" for pool op erators are concentrated during April, May and June, the intention being to enroll many operators as possible before hot weather and overflow crowds make it hard for them to get away from their work. Co-sponsored by the Texas Beach and Pool Association. courses consist of eight hours of intense technical and practical instruction. It covers such things as how to disinfect the water, and how to control water acidity-the factor incidentally, which causes swimmers' eyes to burn, rather than chlorine as is popularly supposed. The course also covers pool safety, bathhouse sanitation, and the various filtering systems used by modern pools. How important are swimming pools as links in the chain of disease transmission? Eye, ear, nose, and throat, skin and intestinal infections are among the most common conditions spread in swimming pools. Typhoid fever and diarrheal diseases have been traced to neighborhood pools.

Most prevalent, however, is ringworm of the feet, common-ly called "athlete's foot." It is not contracted in pool water. but by walking on wet walks floors on which spores flourish.

In well-operated pools there is little chance of contracting any of these conditions. That's the reason for the Department's emphasis on swimming pool sanitation. Swimmers, too, have a responsibility toward pool cleanliness. Like most public plant ness. Like most public places, a pool quickly assumes the character of its least desirable patron.
