Baker-Bryant Managers In Meeting Here

Large Number Representing Chains of West Texas Stores Guests of Baker-Campbell Company

Representatives from the Bryant-Link and Baker-Campbell stores over West Texas were the guests this week of W. A. Baker, of this city, president W. A. Baker, of this city, president of the Baker-Campbell Company, in their semi-annual meeting held here Tuesday and Wednesday.

A number of the guests arrived Tuesday morning and were taken on a tour of sightseeing over the city, and on a trip of inspection of the adjacent farming country. Those making their initial visit to the plains were highly pleased with this section of the state.

The two-day meeting of the merchants was devoted to business and social affairs. At noon Wednesday, the men were served lunch at the White Rose Cafe and the ladies enjoyed lunch at the Commercial Hotel. A joint business meeting was held Wednesday afternoon from 1:30 to 6 at the County Court room between the stockholders, officers, and directors of the Bryant-Link and Baker Campbell Companies.

From 3:30 to 5 p. m. Mrs. W. A. Baker was hostess at tea to the wives and daughters of the visiting business men at the Baker home on West Missouri Street.

Wednesday evening a banquet was given the entire delegation at the White Rose Cafe, after which a forty-two party was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Baker.

The three course dinner was served Wednesday to the following: Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Bryant, R. B. Bryant, R. V. Colbert, Judge W. T. Andrews, J. A. Smith, Joe H. Payne and Joe H. Payne, Jr., Stamford; Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Carroll, Leuders; Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Campbell, and Frank Campbell, Rule; Roy Smith and H. N. Kyle, Knox City; J. F. P. Pool, Dallas; Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Campbell, B. L. Blacklock, and B. L. Boles, Munday; Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Link, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Link, J. M. Kennedy, J. Hudspeth, and Dalia Link, Aspermont; Tom P. Johnson, and Edgar Johnson, Jayton; Geo. S. Link, Sr., Geo. S. Link, Jr., and W. J. Bryant, Spur; Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Taylor, Ralls; Mr. and Mrs. Guy Speck, Post; A. V. McAdoo, Snyder, D. D. Dunwoody, Anson; T. P. Brownning, and G. P. Baker, Rotan; Mr. and Mrs. Pitzer Baker, and Miss Thelma Newson, Weinert; Misses Dorothy and Doloris Campbell, Munday; Roy Baker, E. B. Britton, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Sanders, Miss Ruth Baker, Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Ross and daughter, Mary Anna, Bonner Baker, and Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Baker, city.

CALLED AS WITNESSES FOR FRANK STOVALL CASE

N. G. Jackson and A. L. Bishop left Monday night for Waxahachie, where they have been called to appear as witnesses in the Frank Stovall case. The trial began there Tuesday morning.

L. B. Houston, of Lampasas, Texas, arrived Tuesday for an extended visit with his sons, Jim and C. R. Houston, of this city.

Escape Injury When Their Cars Collide

The only serious results of a collision that occurred late Sunday afternoon between a car driven by Mrs. Cella Ross with one driven by a man enroute to Tulia was a severe shaking up of the occupants of both cars.

Mrs. Ross, accompanied by Misses Gladys Hilton, Mary Castleberry, Ora Scoggin and Edith Beedy, was returning to Canyon after spending the holiday in Floydada. The girls were returning to summer school at West Texas State Teachers College at Canyon.

The accident took place about half way between Happy and Tulia. The cars were traveling at a good rate of speed, and would have passed each other without mishap had not the other car struck a deep rut and plunged head-on into the car driven by Mrs. Ross. The cars were badly demolished, the occupants miraculously escaping injury. Neither of the drivers was to blame for the accident.

N. L. Ross, of this city, went to Happy Monday and returned with the damaged car of Mrs. Ross.

Extension Service Representative Here

A. K. Short, agronomist at A. & M. College of Texas, and field man with the Extension Service of that institution working in co-operation with the U. S. Agricultural Department, in company with Miss Mamie Hayden, District Supervisor of Home Demonstration work, spent Wednesday of last week in Floydada with County Agent T. Scott Wilson and Miss Mabel Faulkner, County Home Demonstration Agent.

Owing to the extremely busy season no effort was made to hold community meetings which had been planned for three days of this week.

County Has Cash Surplus, Audit Shows

Floyd County had a cash surplus of $19,088.09 on hand as of date December 31, 1923, the report of the Rankin Audit Company of Houston, Texas, recently made to the Commissioners' court of Floyd County, and accepted by them, shows.

The report of the auditing company praises the careful attention to the expenditure of funds by the commissioners and gives them credit for putting the county on sound financial footing.

TEACHERS EXAMINATION AUGUST 1ST AND 2ND

Those who may be interested in taking the teacher's examination, August 1-2, are reminded that they must register for the exam by July 20. Some have already registered for the examination, so do not neglect the matter until it is too late.

We wish to call attention of parents who plan to transfer their children from one school district to another, that this matter must have attention by August 1.

See me, phone or write for the transfer blanks.

Price Scott, County Superintendent.

Music Normal To Be Held August 4-23

Announcement was made some time ago of the forthcoming music normal to be held in Floydada during August. This school is under the direction of Professor R. M. Morgan, now of Crosbyton, who for many years has been one of the foremost teachers of vocal music in our state. To those who are interested in learning more about singing, either in rudiments, harmony, class leading, or voice culture, we wish to say that this is a splendid opportunity right at your door. We think the plan of the school is almost ideal. Pupils will be arranged in classes according to their needs. An afternoon session and a night session will be held daily. This makes it possible for those who have work through the day to attend at night.

There will be no extra charge to those who may wish to attend both sessions. Tuition rates are as follows: Primary, $3; intermediate $4; advanced $5.

Plan now to attend this school. People never get too old to learn more about singing. For further information see or write Price Scott, or G. C. Tubbs.

MEDICAL ASSOCIATION HOLDS MEETING IN PLAINVIEW

Dr. L. V. Smith and wife and Mrs. H. E. Smith, of this city, were in attendance at the regular meeting of the medical society comprising Floyd, Hale, Briscoe and Snyder counties, held Wednesday in Plainview.

Dr. Smith is president of the association; he presided at the meeting. A luncheon was served at the Ware Hotel at noon.

The following program was rendered:

Invocation—Rev. H. J. Matthews. Singing and whistling number—Evangelist Charley Taylor, accompanied by Miss Matthews at the piano.

Jokes on the subject "Incidents that have happened During My Practice"—Dr. J. F. Owens.

Response—Judge Randolph.

Talk on Cancer—Dr. J. C. Anderson. At 1:30 a motion was made and carried for adjournment to the office of Dr. Wayland for holding the scientific meeting. Plans were made and discussed for the staging of a publicity campaign in which open meetings will be held in various cities over the district, and the general public invited to hear addresses by men who will be sent out by the State Medical Association. The subject that will be given attention in these open meetings will be "How to Stay Well."

The next meeting of the association will be held in Plainview, Tuesday, August 12, and final arrangements for the publicity campaign will be made.

RETURNS WITH NEW MODEL BUICK FROM CONVENTION

A. N. Gamble, of the Gamble Land and Cattle Company, Buick dealers of this city, returned home Thursday of last week from Oklahoma City. He attended a dealers' convention there, and brought back a new 1925 model Buick car of the five passenger touring type.

Glad had the following to say: "The program as outlined will be handled thoroughly informal, the talks will be short, and following the speaking we want to turn the meeting into a get acquainted social affair. We would expect the meeting to be profitable even if only a few were to attend from Floydada, but to put the thing over big we want at least one hundred to two hundred people present from Floydada Friday night. Make your arrangements to go and report to a member of the committee or to Maury Hopkins, Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce. Lets all try and go and get away by six o'clock in a body Friday evening."

AMERICAN LEGION EX-PRESSES APPRECIATION

By a rising vote of thanks at a meeting held Monday night at the legion hall, McDermett Post, American Legion, expressed their appreciation for the aid and co-operation given them by the people of Floydada in their three-day celebration last week. Through the post commander, T. R. Webb, the legion boys expressed special words of thanks to those who aided them by personal service.

MRS. JNO. HOWARD HOME FROM DALLAS SANITARIUM

Mrs. John Howard is home after spending some four months in the Baylor hospital at Dallas where she underwent a major operation. She was met at Sweetwater by her husband, who accompanied her on the remainder of the trip. She stood the return trip well.

In line with the suggestions of Mr. Jefferies the above program will be arranged to fit the occasion.

The committee is asking that everyone go that can and leave Floydada by six o'clock in order to get to Petersburg by seven. This will put the program over before it gets late.

In talking of the committee's plans,

Big Time at Lakeview Saturday, July 19th

Everybody is anticipating a big time Saturday, July 19th., at Lakeview, when in addition to a program of an hour and a half in which two plays will be presented by home talent, a get-acquainted and sociable hour is being provided for, when ice cream and other refreshments will be sold.

There are 14 women and one man in the cast of the two plays to be presented. The women of the community are sponsoring the affair.

Proceeds from the program and sales of ice cream will be used to furnish the school auditorium.

Come Through Rain To C. of C. Breakfast

Twenty-five members of the Chamber of Commerce walked through the rain this morning to attend the Chamber of Commerce breakfast at the White Rose Cafe, where the friendship trip to Petersburg, the proposed country club and the highway constitutional amendment were topics for discussion.

R. B. Hoover, representing the Texas Highway Association, in a brief explanation of the proposed amendment to the State Constitution declared that the change will not be made by the voters of the State unless it is thoroughly understood by them. He laid down two predicates. One that the tax is already being paid to build these federal highways whether or not Texas people amend their constitution to take advantage of it, and that it will not increase the ad valorem or state tax; the second, that only in this manner can Texas expect to have a connected highway system instead of its patchwork system as at present.

Glad Snodgrass reported on the trip to Petersburg Friday night and called on the business people to interest themselves in it. R. E. Fry urged a more active interest in the Country Club and J. J. Day urged the boys to "shoot, or give up the gun."

Ticket sales committee for the meeting two weeks hence are M. L. Kizziar, C. M. Wilson, J. G. Wood and C. H. Davis.

More Scholastics Call For More Schools

The building of schools and additions to schools over this territory has grown to rather large proportions this spring and summer, the greatly increased population of the section, due to the influx of new people, making larger and more adequate school facilities necessary in a large percentage of the school districts.

Hardly a month has passed for two years that has not seen a new school or school addition under construction in Floyd County.

One of the busiest school contractors in this section is the firm of Canaday & Stark, of which H. E. Canaday of this city, and W. O. Stark, of Lockney are the firm members. They have five contracts either under way or in preparation to begin for completion by the time school opens this fall. Their largest contract is the big addition to the Lockney School Building, where the school board is spending approximately $35,000 on an addition. Another addition already started is a $7,500 contract they have at Roseland. Acuff, in the edge of Lubbock County, is building a $4,800 addition to their school house, which this local firm has contracted.

Two contracts they will do this summer are located in Floyd and Hale Counties respectively, being the Lone Star School a $15,000 job, and the Runningwater School, which has been contracted at $12,400.

This week the firm contracted for the construction of a residence and barn on the Callahan lands for E. W. Merriott, of Wichita Falls.

PANHANDLE BAPTIST ASSEMBLY TO MEET IN AUGUST

Beginning Friday night, August 1st, the annual meeting of the Panhandle Baptist Assembly in Ceta Canyon will be held and will continue through Sunday night, August 10. Ceta Canyon is 30 miles from Amarillo, 20 from Canyon, 13 from Happy and 25 from Tulsa.

The meetings will be held in the big tabernacle in which seats have been placed to care for the large crowds expected. Music, singing, swimming, games and tennis will furnish all kinds of diversion for the visiting Baptists.

Among prominent lecturers, teachers, and church workers who will be present and take part in the program are as follows: Dr. J. M. Carroll, Dr. W. W. Chancellor, Rev. G. W. Owens, Rev. A. Scranton, T. C. Gardner, G. S. Hopkins, and Rev. J. P. Boone.

Sunday School, B. Y. P. U. and W. M. U. Study Classes will be taught in the mornings from 8-10, and addresses, conferences, and sermons will follow throughout the day. Miss Aline Ballard will entertain and instruct the children with Bible Stories and hand work. The singing will be under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. John Meyers.

MEMPHIS MAN GETS PLUMBING CONTRACT ON TECH

Among the contracts let a few days ago at Fort Worth by the directors and president of the Texas Technological College at Lubbock was the contract for the plumbing, which was given to L. Holt, of Memphis, Texas. His bid was $19,371.78 for the two buildings, the main building and the presidents home.

Candidate Speaking Dates Announced

M. E. PASTOR WILL PROBABLY FILL PULPIT SUNDAY

For the first time in two weeks, the Reverend J. L. Henson will likely fill his regular appointment in the pulpit of the First Methodist Church, of which he is pastor, next Sunday, July 13. He has been convalescing from an operation for appendicitis which he had here at the sanitarium some fifteen days ago.

The Reverend H. E. Smith has been in charge of the services at the church during the absence of the pastor. Judge B. H. Oxford, of Plainview, delivered the sermon last Sunday morning and Rev. Smith conducted the services Sunday night.

MARRIAGE LICENSE

License to marry issued the past week by County Clerk, Miss Clara Lee Johnson, were to:

Bill Kimble and Miss Vinesa Fox, July 4;

W. T. Hay and Mrs. May Flanagan, July 4.

CALLED TO BEDSIDE OF MOTHER IN MISSOURI

Mrs. L. H. Lewis left Thursday of last week for Calhoun, Mo., after receiving a telegram stating that her mother, Mrs. Legg, was seriously ill there and was not expected to live.

Program Legion Celebration Goes Awry Account Rain; Extended To Saturday

Despite intermittent showers of rain that began falling early Thursday morning over the plains counties, hundreds of people were in Floydada for the celebration and free barbecue July 3, 4, and 5, fostered by the McDermett Post American Legion. Heavy roads prevented the attendance of thousands of others that were expected and for whom preparations had been made. The celebration was a disappointment in view of numbers present, and the legion boys were handicapped in the furnishing of entertainment for the visitors because of the wet grounds that prevented the carrying out of the programs and made things disagreeable in general.

As far as was possible, the scheduled program was carried out, and in an attempt to show the visiting friends a good time, the picnic was extended to include Saturday July 5, the free barbecue with bread, pickles, and coffee was served both days, July 4 and 5.

Everything on the program for the first day was postponed, with the exception of the band concert in the morning and the Harley Sader show in the afternoon and night. President J. A. Hill of the West Texas State Teachers College at Canyon was unable to reach Floydada and deliver his address on the morning of July 3, and his talk was postponed until Saturday afternoon.

At 12:45 the barbecue and all the "trimmings" were served in army style. Three thousand persons were served in the brief period of forty minutes, and the crowd was easily taken care of, so carefully had every detail been planned and every arrangement.

Election Returns To Be Given By Hesperian

Bulletins on State Election as Well As County and Precinct Races to Be Given as Usual.

The Hesperian again this year will give complete Saturday night election service on the Primary Election, July 26th.

Leased wire service from Dallas will be used for the state returns. The Texas Election Bureau, which handles state returns for all the larger papers of Texas, will bulletin The Hesperian as fast as the returns are received and tabulated. So well do the newspapers of the state, working through the Election Bureau, have the collection of the returns form the wide expanse of the state, in hand, that they anticipate having all returns sufficiently compiled to give the results not later than one o'clock Sunday morning, when the bulletin service will close.

In the county races The Hesperian expects to receive and compile the ballots as fast as the counts are completed in the various boxes and in the case of the Lockney and Floydada boxes partial reports will be given in advance of the completed returns.

M. E. PASTOR WILL PROBABLY FILL PULPIT SUNDAY

For the first time in two weeks, the Reverend J. L. Henson will likely fill his regular appointment in the pulpit of the First Methodist Church, of which he is pastor, next Sunday, July 13. OPPORTUNITY

Floydada has made great progress during the past twelve months, but there is still room for improvement and advancement.

Opportunity in the form of building and loan associations stands knocking at the city door, asking for admittance in order to do its quota of city building.

More homes mean more people and more people means progress.
States all over the Union have come to realize the vital importance which the home owner spirit creates over their domains, and they have made steps to encourage the construction of these homes through the building and loan associations. Texas is almost at the bottom of the list of the states that have adopted the association loan plan. The following figures are official and have been issued through the West Texas Chamber of Commerce: first is Pennsylvania, 2,089 Ass'sns with a total membership of 677,911 and total assets of $324,265, 393; seventeenth stands North Carolina, 140 ass'sns with a total membership of 37,400 and total assets of $17, 608,000; and Texas ranks thirty-second with twenty-eight associations, 7, 156 members and a total of $2,314,
927 in assets.

Money can be obtained through the associations loan plan on a very low rate of interest and on long time. It is a marked advantage to the man who wishes to build and does not have the cold cash to be able to borrow such funds that will be required, and then pay back at a rate that would about equal the rent he would pay on another man's property.

A number of West Texas cities have taken advantage of the proffered opportunity and have organized these loan associations. It is a mark of progressiveness.

Why not Floydada?

FOR YOU TO THINK ABOUT

Do you know that in six years 11, 379 persons were killed and 30,522 injured at railroad crossings in the U.
S.? Eighty per cent of the accidents at such places involve occupants of automobiles.

In this country there are over 256,- 362 railroad highway crossings. To eliminate all of these now is not only a financial but a physical impossibility.
A conservative estimate of the cost is $19,000,000,000. Eliminations are being made, and will continue as rapidly as circumstances will permit, but the net result cannot be changed materially as there will be additional crossings as new lines are built.

The immediate remedy is for every driver to "Cross Crossings Cautiously."
The railroads are engaged in a "Careful Crossings" campaign, and are making every effort to see that all employees concerned give special attention to the proper performance of their duties in that connection. But if crossing accidents are to be reduced to a minimum, similar precaution must be taken by the general public.

According to Isaiah Hale, safety superintendent of the Santa Fe Railway, this can be accomplished if automobile drivers will observe the following simple rules:

Slow down when approaching a railroad crossing; a train cannot be stopped in a few feet but an automobile can.

Look both ways and listen to ascertain is a train is approaching.

Be particularly careful where there are two or more tracks, because of trains moving in opposite directions.

Exercise good, conservative judgement as crossings; keep car under control.

Take the safe course; in case of doubt, stop before reaching track.

Here is a story of a tragedy which happened in our neighboring city of Memphis, Texas last week. The story appeared as an editorial on the front page of the Hall County Hear-ald published at Memphis:

Center of the street parking of automobiles Monday afternoon crushed its first victim, when little Louis Holmes Baker was run down and fatally injured, through no fault of the driver of the car. Little Louis was the victim of our parking system which makes the occupant of a parked car twice cross the deadly traffic lane in going to and from our business houses.
We once favored this antiquated system of parking, for it has its advantages, but in our opinion, it must go, and we must adopt the standard curb parking system in vogue in all modern towns and cities. The lives of our little ones are too precious to risk by continuing the old system of parking in the middle of the street. Only good luck has prevented daily accidents in our city, and luck is too fickle a jade to trust with the lives of our little ones. Let's not sacrifice more of these precious lives to an antiquated parking system. Put the cars at the curb, where they belong.

M. L. Kizziar, manager of the Highginbotham-Bartlett Lumber Company here, had his place of business in keeping with the occasion. The front yard, with its mass of daisies and background of white pailings showed up attractively at night with the special lighting system that lighted the entire scene and brought favorable comment from visitors.

A number of features in the parade brought applause and laughs from the hundreds thronged along the sidewalks around the square. The "bucking Ford" of the Motor Supply Co.
driven by Tom Goslee, and "ridden" by a colored bronco buster, created a sensation.

Little B. P. Woody, Jr., on his little Kiddie Kar brought applause from the crowds.

Awtrey Grocery and Produce Company's truck of fiddlers and clowns also made a hit with the spectators.

Undoubtedly the most original and unique vehicle of the entire parade was the buggy and horse driven by Mrs. T. B. Triplett and Mrs. Jack Henry, alias Mr. and Mrs. Si Perkins from Punkin Center. Their costumes, representing days of yore, completely disguised the occupants of the buggy, and intimate friends were inquiring for the identity of the "old couple."

ginbotham-Bartlett Lumber Company

Floydada was back to normal again by Monday noon. A special, volun-

This and That

Side Lights on the 4th.
A veritable sea of mud did not keep the people of the neighboring cities from honoring Floydada with their presence during the big celebration last week. Everybody did their best to be pleasant, waded mud until they were exhausted, had their dampened spirits heightened with another shot of pink lemonade and started bravely out again "to see the sights."

Dr. Paul W. Horn and Senator V.
A. Collins, speakers at the celebration on Friday arrived in Floydada about noon on the day that they spoke here. Dr. Horn left immediately after his address for his home in Lubbock. He was accompanied by his wife.

Floydada's plan of feeding their guests is a most practical one. Thousands were fed both days with barbecue, bread, pickles and coffee in a brief period measured in minutes. A captain and three men worked at six tables and served a double line of people as they passed by in army fashion. Coffee was held in big 10-gallon cream cans and it was served steaming hot.

If anything was executed according to the arranged program for the celebration, no one has found it out.

Everybody had to pinch themselves two or three times during the day of the Fourth to make sure that they were not walking in their sleep. The weather was about five months ahead or behind time; cold shivers took place of the customary beads of perspiration, and the folk just couldn't feel quite natural runnin' around with their overcoats on their backs on the Fourth of July. The cold drink sellers called "Ice cold lemonade, right over here" in vain. The poor freezing public would look at the speakers with funny unnatural expressions on their faces, and then bravely turn their backs and walk away. The weather man undoubtedly got mixed up and mailed a packet of November weather instead of the packet for the month of July.

The public might have been cold, but that did not detract in the least from the love for food. One thousand two hundred and thirty-one loaves of bread were consumed; ten thousand pounds of dressed meat was devoured, and pickles—there is no way of telling how many undeveloped cucumbers met their fate at the hands and mouths of that multitude.

ELECTRIC LIGHT AND LIGHT FROM SUN SAME TO PLANTS

The discovery that the seasonal blossoming and fruiting of plants is caused by the length of the day, made a few years ago by investigators in the United States Department of Agriculture, has been completely confirmed by experiments with artificial light and colored light. Previous to these investigations, which were carried on by W. W. Garner, H. A. Allard and R. A. Steinberg of the Department of Plant Industry, normal plants never had been fully developed under artificial light, but it has been shown that under such conditions plants can be grown normally and will produce normal seed.

Artificial control of all the conditions necessary to the normal development of the plants from germination to maturing of the seed has been secured by specially designed apparatus to which no daylight can enter. The light rays from a gas filled tungsten lamp are filtered through a layer of running water which carries away most of the heat while interfering very little with the passage of the light. By means of colored glass or colored chemicals in the water, sunlight can be stimulated of light of widely different colors or spectral composition can be obtained, as well as lights of intensities equal to or greater than that of sunlight. The day length is regulated by electric time switches which turn the lights on and off at the desired time. Inside this apparatus daily and seasonal changes may be made to go on at complete variance to the days and seasons going on outside.

Among the more than 60 species of plants which have been grown under these conditions are lettuce, celery, spinach, morning glory, cypress vine, soybean, etc.

With all these plants the response to the length of day has been the same as in sunlight. The short day plants, the characteristic autumn and winter blossoming plants, blossom when exposed to the short artificial day. The summer blooming plants blossom when given a long day under the lights.

Practical conditions, say the investigators preclude the use of artificial light in the place of daylight, but it will be possible in growing some of the greenhouse plants to extend the natural day by use of electric lights to speed up blooming. Obviously this practice will be useful in case of long day plants. A relatively low power illumination can be used, extending the length of day from 16 to 18 hours for many plants. Intense lights have been found unnecessary and wasteful. It is said for commercial use engineers and greenhouse men must work together and find out the particular requirements of special crops.

Experiments have shown the fallacy of a rather widely accepted view of plant physiologists, particularly in Europe, that certain wave lengths of visible light are essential to normal development of green plants. Healthy normal seed has been produced with wide variations in composition of the light used.

About 312 B. C., Caesar Appius Claudius built the Appian Way. This great three hundred and fifty mile thoroughfare stretches out almost in a direct line from the walls of Rome in a southerly direction to Brundisium. Today, as in the days of ancient Rome, heavy oxen draw great loads of produce along this ancient road.

SHALL OUR CHILDREN BE SLAVES OF THE COTTON FIELD

Cotton is a splendid crop so long as the farmer does not allow it to become his master. But when cotton is allowed to dominate the cropping system, it becomes likened unto a robber baron, preying upon the soil, the livestock, and even upon the most important of all—the boys and girls. The too exclusive growing of cotton has been largely responsible for poor soil, under fed or expensively fed live stock, and more serious still, poorly educated boys and girls. It is the latter and most important phase of the problem that we wish to devote our attention to at this time. We regard it as most important because poor soil and poor people will continue to be our heritage so long as farm boys and girls are robbed of their educational advantages.

Cotton is a crop which demands an unusually large amount of labor at chopping and at picking times. It is work which cannot be done with machinery but must be laboriously accomplished with hand labor. Through the exigencies of poverty and labor scarcity, many thousands of farm women have been diverted from their home making tasks and a still larger number of boys and girls have been robbed of their school training, without which only the exceptional person makes a success of his life work, to help make the cotton crop. In this connection, the 1920 census shows that 1,060,854 children in the United States, between ten and fifteen years of age, are working at gainful occupations. Of this number, 579,041, or more than 50 per cent, are concentrated in ten states, nine of which are Southern states.

In the country as a whole, 61 per cent of the child laborers of these ages are reported as farm laborers. An even greater per cent of the total number of child laborers of most Southern states is at work on the farm, so that as far as the South is concerned, the child labor problem is pretty largely a farm problem.

It is very important that the farm boy who expects to follow the profession of farming should actually do farm work in order to learn its practical side. But there is a vast difference between training the farm boy during his vacation period and working him for commercial gain when he should be in school. The extent to which boys and girls are kept out of school during the rush season is

The "Common Sense Candidate." That is the title by which Felix D. Robertson, candidate for Governor, is known throughout the State. It came to him through his record as judge of the City Court of Dallas and later of Criminal District Court No. 1 of Dallas and was earned through his native Texas ability to see through the tangled problems of law to the common sense and the human justice in these problems as they were presented to him.

As a common sense candidate Felix D. Robertson is opposed to the army of boards, bureaus and commissions that give a few men fat salaries and fine titles, but increase the burdens of the taxpayers. He believes there are too many idle public employees with their feet on mahogany desks spending their time doing nothing but waiting for their swollen salaries.

"We have too much government; too many boards, bureaus and commissions; too much buck passing; too much theory; too many idle employees," he says.

When elected Governor Judge Robertson promises to sweep all this useless expense out of the state house at Austin.

Judge Robertson is an elder in the First Baptist church of Dallas. His reputation as a Sunday School lecturer extends throughout the State and he is regarded as one of the most inspired of speakers on religious subjects and the Protestant faith.

When he was City Judge the newspaper men of Dallas called him in all reverence of spirit, "the Praying Judge." This was because when often some erring youth or some slip of a girl confronted with ruin, was brought before him, he was not the unfeeling magistrate, but showed him kindly in heart and ready with Christian advice. Often he would adjourn court and on his knees pray that such a one might be turned to the better life.

Himself a man who has made his way up by hard work, Judge Robertson sympathizes with the worker, whether in the field or in the shop.

He is a lifelong Democrat. He was born in McLennan county, his grandfather being General Jerome P. Robertson, commander in Hoods Brigade of the Confederate army. His father is Gen. Felix H. Robertson, who was a Brigadier General in Joe Wheeler's corps in the Confederate army. During the world war Judge Robertson was a major in the 132nd field artillery of the Thirty-Sixth Division.

Judge Robertson has been a lifelong prohibitionist, having been active in his fight against the liquor interests for more than twenty years, and an advocate of woman suffrage.

He believes in and stands on the following planks:

Better schools.
Free textbooks.
Strict law enforcement.
Prison system reform.

Better public roads.
Help for ex-service men.
Organized labor.

shown by a survey made by the United States Department of Agriculture in the Black Belt of Texas several years ago. While the majority of the farmers in the Texas Black Belt are cotton-growing, white tenant farmers, the section is above the average in progressiveness and its school attendance is probably higher than that of the average for the South as a whole.

In this section the enrollment of children in school during the cotton-picking season of October and November is much lower than for the months of January, February, and March, when the demand for hand labor on the farm is less urgent.

These figures give some idea of the extent to which the boys and girls of the South are being robbed of their educational advantages. To those who do not believe in education, this is not a serious matter. To those who feel that education is an absolute essential to the success of the average individual and, therefore, equally as essential to the prosperity of the section as a whole, there is no farm problem of greater importance. While educational advantages sometimes are not what they should be, due to the poverty of the community, many farm boys and girls are not being given the opportunity to take advantage of the limited advantages which do exist, because of the tremendous demand of our cropping system for hand labor.

The South for its own good must reduce its cotton acreage and grow more cotton per acre. But even after taking into consideration the increased acre yield, the total crop should be no larger than can be chopped and picked without the necessity of calling the women from the home and the children from the schools to help with the work.—The Progressive Farmer.

ment carried out. Hundreds came back for seconds and even then several big containers of beef and other eats were left.

Friday afternoon the crowds were given the opportunity of hearing inspiring talks on patriotism delivered by prominent speakers. Those delivering addresses were Dr. Paul W. Horn, president of the Texas Technological College at Lubbock, Senator V. A. Collins, candidate for state governor, and Judge O. E. Overton, of this city. Beginning promptly at 2 o'clock in the District Court room, Judge Overton made a brief talk on the importance of Independence Day and its connection with the great empire state of Texas.

County Judge E. C. Nelson, Jr., was then introduced and he made a few remarks of praise of the Texas Technological school and its president, Dr. Paul W. Horn. Judge Nelson in turn presented Dr. Horn, who made a talk of some sixty minutes, the theme of which was education with patriotism as a working basis.

"I feel," he said, "that everyone in West Texas is friendly toward the school at Lubbock, and I feel that they are all interested in its welfare and in seeing it made a great institution. There are two classes of people in the world and one of them say that a thing cannot be done and the other that it can be done. I believe that the people of West Texas represent the second class."

How shall we celebrate the 4th of July and how shall we conduct ourselves on this great occasion? were the questions asked and answered by the speaker. He then went into discussion of peace, patriotism and how true blooded American citizens should conduct themselves toward their state and national government.

"One of the most important things in the proper observance of peace patriotism," stated Dr. Horn, "is the recognizing of the American nation by her citizens as being the outstanding nation in the world today. America is supreme and we have the best system of education and best system of government—not perfect it is true but no human institution is without its faults. We should get before the minds of the people that even with its many defects ours is a great government, is the best ever devised. No American can take part in the celebration on the 4th of July if he has failed to do his duty in every way possible to make that government what it should be. No group of men has the right to criticize their executives and their government unless they have done their best to improve it."

"And then there is another vital thing in peace patriotism and that is respect to the flag and the nation of which it is the symbol. I have heard a man speak disrespectfully of a town and I wondered why he did not go away and live somewhere else, and when I hear a man make remarks about his country I wonder why he does not go to Mexico or some other country like that to live. A man who speaks publicly against his family is not the right kind of a man and the same is true of the great American family, and we should hold respect for our congressmen and our executives who are at the head of that great family. We too frequently think of Democracy in terms of responsibilities and the man who cannot respect the government is not the right kind of American citizen."

In conclusion he said, "Every man is going to respect every law of this great government and they are going to teach their children to follow in their footsteps. That is one thing we are going to do at your great institution at Lubbock, teach them to respect their country and develop a more prosperous Texas through the more genuine womanhood and manhood than there would have been. Let us hold on high our great ideals of government before our young followers in particular and continue under the blessings from God who is leading us from on high. Let us be true to our American ideals, to our government, and to the God who has presided over the destinies of our great country."

Following Dr. Horn, Senator Collins was given the floor and he spoke an hour and ten minutes, delivering a patriotic oration that brought applause from his audience time and time again. Refusing to speak in the interest of his candidacy, on the 4th of July, he said,

"This day does not belong to me or anyone else, but it belongs to the American people and not to any political speaker. When the war came we were all for America, and we are all for America on this 4th of July. The world is looking to us to preserve the nations of the world and I believe that God has created America to preserve the natural destinies of mankind. No Fourth of July should pass unobserved. Assemblies should be held everywhere and if not on their own accord, the people should be made to gather and hear the declaration of independence read."

"I am glad that we have made the constitution hard to amend. It took 50 years to write the 18th amendment into it, and it will take 10,000 to take it out! The things that I thought were weaknesses in our government, I have found to be its strongest points. I am glad that woman has the right to vote, and that I got to add my small mite to this government of ours when I wrote and directed the passage of the bill introducing primary woman suffrage in Texas."

Other points of interest were touched by the speaker. In making remarks on patriotism he said,

"The people of this country are patriotic, they love their country and they love to obey the law, but their attitude of indifference toward their country is a dangerous thing. It is possible for ten per cent of the people to take away those vital parts that make up your constitution thru your own lethargy or indifference. We are the hope of the world and we must act right before the eyes of those people whose destinies we hold in our hands. You can't tell the people how to live. You have got to show the people of Europe that yours is a worthy standard by living before them in a right way. If we Americans do our duty the world will be won for Christ. If we do that the whole world will be conquered for the Savior in 50 years, and there will be a greater change than has taken place in the past 2,000 years."

In closing, he said "Don't cuss your government or its officials. Do your duty on every occasion and select worthy christian men to direct the affairs of your nation. When you go to the polls in the July primary the 26th of this month, remember that God is voting for you and the right, and the devil is voting against you and for the wrong, and the way you vote will decide the election. I want to take my part of the responsibility and help make the change that is to take place in the next 50 years."

Saturday proved the gala day of the entire three days of fun. Band concerts by the Floydada Concert Band filled the morning program. Barbecue was served at noon in the same successful fashion as the first day.

The premier feature of the celebration was the big parade of decorated cars, floats and trucks Saturday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. The parade was led by Harley Sadler's band dressed in typical cowboy suits. Next came Lieutenant Nelson followed by standard bearers of the legion banner and the national colors. The cars were next in line of march.

The judges had a difficult time of making their decisions. A number of beautiful creations all equally attractive, made the selection of first place a hard one. Baker-Campbell Company's car driven by Miss Vera Fry, was given first place; the car of the Parent-Teachers, driven by Mrs. S. Y. Carter, was awarded second, and Brown Bros. Grocery took third. It was driven by Mrs. R. F. Brown. A number of unique and original ideas were carried out in the parade.

Dr. J. A. Hill, president of the West Texas State Teachers College at Canyon, spoke to a large audience in the District Court room immediately after the parade. He was introduced as one of the foremost educators of the South, a learned man, who had come to give words of instruction not only to his hearers but to their children as well; words of instructions that would be of service to them in their life's work.

"Co-operative Marketing" was the subject of his address. Dr. Hill is a representative of the public in the Texas Wheat Growers Association, and he has made a study of the principles that underlie co-operative marketing. He quoted instances where concurrence in industries had resulted in advantages to all concerned. He called attention to the success resulting from co-operation in the schools, postal system, packing industries, transportation, automobile companies, and banks.

In speaking of the pitiable condition of the farmers, due to antagonism between each other, he pointed out the way in which they might obtain uniform prices and a ready market for their products if they would organize and systematize their selling as the orange growers of California. He said:

"Practically every other industry is organized and gives products to the public in a well organized way. For some reason the farmers have been unable to successfully organize. California producers have successfully applied the principles and they are able to place their products on the market as the demand is made and the result is an average price for the products every year. I think that it would be a tremendously valuable thing, not only to the producer but to the consumer and everybody concerned, if some such system of organization could be organized in this country. The farmer could be assured of a fair price for his oats, wheat, cotton and maize, and when the producer is successful all are benefitted."

"I believe that the principles of co-operative marketing are sound and extremely profitable. In the first place the farmer will not glut the market and force prices down too low for the producer to live on. I believe that the bankers and merchants want the greatest prosperity. They should seek it in the promotion of the producing classes. No class can rise to success at the expense of another class. No group, class or bloc can have sympathy for the idea of cut-throat competition in business between classes. The oneness of our civilization, its unity is the outstanding characteristic of our present day civilization. I am my neighbor's keeper; I cannot live independently of my neighbor, neither can he live without me. The time is coming when we will have to apply these principles of co-operation to every type of business."

"I believe that the system of co-operative marketing is a thoroughly christian principle, and that is the reason I advocate it. What we need today is a happy and contented people. Let us impress upon our young life the importance of greater intelligence, higher morals, and better conduct. Let them know that we believe more in their minds than we do in the accumulation of wealth. Let us build here a civilization that is enduring; that the benighted souls of foreign lands may come into the haven of rest and trust which we have in our great country."

Judge Oxford, of Plainview, spoke in behalf of his candidacy for District Attorney after Dr. Hill concluded his address. Judge Oxford is basing his competency to fill the office on his

29 years of experience in law. His one plank in his platform, he said, was strict enforcement of the law by properly constituted officials. He refuted the statement, he said, that his opponents had made that he was a member of the Ku Klux.

Saturday afternoon furnished varied amusements for the crowds. Square dancing on the streets, the tem show and the baseball game were the principal attractions. The baseball game played between Floydada and Sand Hill ended with the score standing 5-4 in favor of Sand Hill. Batteries for the game were Holmes and Grigsby for Sand Hill, and Evans and Curry for Floydada. Evans allowed 6 hits and Holmes 5. Hall for Floydada and Holmes for Sand Hill got home runs.

The big celebration was officially brought to a close by the old time square dance and the performances of Sadler's Chautauqua late Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Potter, who have been here on a visit with Mrs. Potter's mother, Mrs. Fannie Montague, left Sunday for their home in Snyder. They were accompanied by Miss Golden Louise Steen, who will visit them for a short time.

Edwin Benson spent a short time here Tuesday with his cousin, Elmer Wood. He was accompanied by his family and was enroute to his home in Olney after visiting with relatives in Tulia.

Station-to-Station Calls Cost Less

When you ask Long Distance to get a certain telephone number in a distant city and, when connected, you speak to any one at that number, you have made what is described as a Station-to-Station call.

That is, on a Station-to-Station call do not specify a particular person to be reached, but give only the number of the telephone or the name or address under which that telephone is listed.

A Station-to-Station call costs less than a call for a particular person because less operating labor and less circuit time are required than if a particular person has to be located and brought to the telephone.

Charges can not be reversed on Station-to-Station calls.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—Solomon Binkus, yet a boy and interpreter, and his young companion Jack Irons, passing through Horse Valley, New York, in September, 1768, to warn settlers of an Indian uprising, rescue from a band of redskins the wife and daughter of Colonel Hare of England, and Margaret Hare fall in love. On reaching Fort Stanwix Colonel Hare says both are too young to marry, but that if they are of the same mind after one year he will ask Jack to come to London. The Hare family sail for England, and the Irons family move to Albany.

CHAPTER II.—Unrest grows in the colonies because of the oppressive measures of the English government. Solomon and Jack, who have witnessed a fight between a mob and a squad of British soldiers led by Captain Preston, a friend of Solomon's. Later they return to Boston to testify in Preston's behalf.

CHAPTER III.—In November, 1770, Jack goes to Philadelphia and works in Benjamin Franklin's printing plant. Nearly three years later Margaret writes him from London reminding him that her youth is passing away, saying she has appealed to Doctor Franklin. Binkus has received a letter from Washington to be carried across the ocean, and Jack sails with him.

CHAPTER IV.—Arriving in England, Binkus is arrested, but Jack has the letter and proceeds to London.

CHAPTER V.—Jack delivers the papers to Franklin in London. Binkus is released and joins them in the great city.

CHAPTER VI.—Jack and Margaret meet and are more in love than ever, but Colonel Hare is not eager for the marriage.

CHAPTER VII.—Franklin's efforts to obtain better treatment for the colonies are futile. He evades the attempt of the king's men to "tow him into port." War becomes imminent.

CHAPTER VIII.—General Clarke, a crochety old man, calls the Yankees cowards. Jack is heating. The young American demands retribution. Along Clarke, the general's son, and a rival suitor for Margaret's hand, takes up the quarrel and a duel is arranged.

CHAPTER IX.—Jack and Lionel fight with pistols and the latter is wounded.

CHAPTER X.—After a secret meeting with Margaret, Jack again demands her hand from her father. Hare refuses after young Irons declines to approve and aid the plans of the king concerning the choice of Colonel Washington.

CHAPTER XI.—Lured to Gravesend by a ruse, Jack is drugged and put aboard a ship sailing for New York.

CHAPTER XII.—Franklin, called before the privy council, is convicted of conduct inconsistent with the character of a gentleman and deprived of his office as postmaster general.

Colonel Washington was a member of the Virginia delegation. Jack wrote that he was in uniform, blue coat and red waistcoat and breeches; that he was a big man standing very erect and about six feet, two inches in height; that his eyes were blue, his complexion light and rather florid, his face slightly pock-marked, his brown hair tinged with gray; that he had the largest hands, save those of Solomon Binkus, that he had ever seen. His letter contains these informing words:

"I never quite realize the full meaning of the word 'dignity' until I saw this man and heard his deep rich voice. There was a kind of magnificence in his manner and person when he said:

"I will raise one thousand men toward the relief of Boston and subdue them at my own expense."

"That was all he said and it was the most eloquent speech made in the convention. Thereafter, he was the central figure in that congress of trusted men. It is also evident that he will be the central figure on this side of the ocean when the storm breaks. Next day, he announced that he was, as yet, opposed to any definite move toward independence. So the delegates contented themselves with a declaration of rights opposing importations and especially slaves."

When the congress adjourned October twenty-sixth to meet again on the tenth of May, there was little hope of peace among those who had had a part in its proceedings.

Jack, who knew the conditions in England, knew also that war would come soon, and freely expressed his views.

Letters had come from Margaret giving him the welcome news that Lionel Clarke had recovered and announcing that her own little revolution had achieved success. She and her father would be taking ship for Boston in December. Jack had urged that she try to induce him to start at once, fearing that December would be too late, and so it fell out. When the news of the congress reached London, the king made new plans. He began to prepare for war. Sir Benjamin Hare, who was to be the first deputy of General Gage, was assigned to a brigade and immediately put his regiments in training for service overseas. He had spent six months in America and was supposed, in England, to have learned the art of bush fighting. Such was the easy optimism of the cheerful young minister of war, and his conferees, in the house of lords. After the arrival of the King William at Gravesend on the eighth of December, no English women went down to the sea in ships for a long time. Thereafter the water roads were thought to be only for fighting men. Jack's hope was that armed resistance would convince the British of their folly.

CHAPTER XIV

Adventures in the Service.

One day Jack received a letter from Doctor Franklin who had given up his fruitless work in London and returned to Philadelphia.

It said: "My work in England has been fruitless and I am done with it. I bring you much love from the fair lady of your choice. That, my young friend, is a better possession than houses and lands, for even the flames of war cannot destroy it. I have not seen, in all this life of mine, a dearer creature or a nobler passion. And I will tell you why it is dear to me, as well as to you. She is like the good people of England whose heart is with the colonies, but whose will is being baffled and oppressed. Let us hope it may not be for long. My good wishes for you involve the whole race whose blood is in my veins. The race has ever been like the patient ox, treading out the corn, whose leading trait is endurance.

"There is little light in the present outlook. You and Binkus will do well to come here. This, for a time, will be the center of our activities and you may be needed any moment."

Jack and Solomon went to Philadelphia soon after news of the battle of Lexington had reached Albany in the last days of April. They were among the cheering crowds that welcomed the delegates to the Second congress.

Colonel Washington, the only delegate in uniform, was the most impressive figure in the congress. He had come up with a coach and six horses from Virginia. The colonel used to say that even with six horses, one had a slow and rough journey in the mud and sand. His dignity and noble stature, the fame he had won in the Indian wars and his wisdom and modesty in council, had silenced opposition and opened his way. He was a man highly favored of Heaven. The people of Philadelphia felt the power of his personality. They seemed to regard him with affectionate awe. All eyes were on him when he walked around. Not even the magnificent Hancock or the eloquent Patrick Henry attracted so much attention. Yet he would stop in the street to speak to a child or to say a pleasant word to an old acquaintance as he did to Solomon.

That day in June when the beloved Virginian was chosen to be commander-in-chief of the American forces, Jack and Solomon dined with Franklin at his home. John Adams of Boston and John Brown, the great merchant of Providence, were his other guests. The distinguished men were discussing the choice of Colonel Washington.

Doctor Franklin, who never failed to show some token of respect for every guest at his table, turned to Solomon and said:

"Major Binkus, you have been with him a good deal. What do you think of Colonel Washington?"

"I think he's a hull four hoss team an' the dog under the waggin," said Solomon.

John Adams often quoted these words of the scout and they became a saying in New England.

Washington set out in June with Colonel Lee and a company of Light Horse for Boston where some sixteen thousand men had assembled with their rifles and muskets to be organized into an army for the defense of Massachusetts.

A little later Jack and Solomon followed with eight horses and two wagons loaded with barrels of gunpowder made under the direction of Benjamin Franklin and paid for with his money. A British fleet being in American waters, the overland route was chosen as the safer one. It was a slow and toilsome journey with here and there a touch of stern adventure. Crossing the pine barrens of New Jersey, they were held up by a band of Tory refugees and deprived of all the money in their pockets.

On the post road, beyond Horse Neck in Connecticut, they had a more serious adventure. They had been traveling with a crude map of each main road, showing the location of houses in the settled country where, at night, they could find shelter and hospitality. Owing to the peculiar character of their freight, the committee in Philadelphia had requested them to avoid inns and had caused these maps to be sent to them at post offices on the road indicating the homes of trusted patriots from twenty to thirty miles apart. About six o'clock in the evening of July twentieth, they reached the home of Israel Lockwood, three miles above Horse Neck. They had ridden through a storm which had shaken and smitten the earth with its thunderbolts, some of which had fallen near them. Mr. Lockwood directed them to leave their wagons on a large empty barn floor and asked them in to supper.

"If you'll bring suthin' out to us, we guess we better stay by her," said Solomon. "She might be nervous."

"Do you have to stay with this stuff all the while?" Lockwood asked.

"Night an' day," said Solomon. "Don't do to let 'er git lonesome. To-day when the lightnin' were slappin' the ground on both sides o' me, I wanted to hop down an' run off in the bush a mile or so far to see the kentucky, but I jest had to set an' hope that she would hold her temper an' not go to slappin' back."

"She," as Solomon called the two loads, was a most exacting mistress. They never left her alone for a moment. While one was putting away the horses, the other was on guard. They slept near her at night.

Israel Lockwood sat down for a visit with them when he brought their food. While they were eating, another terrific thunderstorm arrived. In the midst of it a bolt struck the barn and rent its roof open and set the top of the mow afire. Solomon jumped to the rear wheel of one of the wagons while Jack seized the tongue. In a second it was rolling down the barn bridge and away. The barn had filled with smoke and cinders but these dauntless men rolled out the second wagon.

Rain was falling. Solomon observed a wisp of smoke coming out from under the roof of this wagon. He jumped in and found a live cinder which had burned through the cover and fallen on one of the barrels. It was eating into the wood. Solomon tossed it out in the rain and smothered "the live spot." He examined the barrels and the wagon floor and was satisfied. In speaking of that incident next day he said to Jack:

"If I hadn't 'a' had hurt good control o' my legs, I guess they'd 'a' run away with me. I had to put the whip on 'em to git 'em to step in under that wagon roof—you hear to me."

While Solomon was engaged with this trying duty, Lockwood had led the horses out of the stable below and rescued the harness. A heavy shower was falling. The flames had burst through the roof and in spite of the rain, the structure was soon destroyed.

"The wind was favorable and we all stood watching the fire, safe but helpless to do anything for our host," Jack wrote in a letter. "Fortunately there was another house near and I took the horses to its barn for the night. We slept in a woodshed close to the wagons. We slipped out of trouble by being on hand when it started. If we had gone into the house for supper, I'm inclined to think that the British would not have been driven out of Boston."

"We passed many companies of marching riflemen. In front of one of these, the fife and drum corps playing behind him, was a young Tory, who had insulted the company, and was, therefore, made to carry a gray goose in his arms with this maxim of Poor Richard on his back: 'Not every goose has feathers on him.'

"On the twentieth we reported to General Washington in Cambridge.

This was the first time I saw him in the uniform of a general. He wore a blue coat with buff facings and buff underdress, a small sword, rich epaulettes, a black cockade in his three-cornered hat, and a blue sash under his coat. His hair was done up in a queue. He was in boots and spurs. He received us politely, directing a young officer to go with us to the powder house. There we saw a large number of barrels.

"All full of sand," the officer whispered. "We keep 'em here to fool the enemy."

"Not far from the powder house I overheard this little dialogue between a captain and a private:

"Bill, go get a pall o' water," said the captain.

"I shan't do it. Tain't my turn," the private answered.

The men and officers were under many kinds of shelter in the big camp. There were tents and marquees and rude structures built of boards and roughly hewn timber, and of stone and turf and brick and brush. Some had doors and windows wrought out of withes knitted together in the fashion of a basket. There were handsome young men whose thighs had never felt the touch of steel; elderly men in faded, moth-eaten uniforms and wigs.

This great body of men which had come to besiege Boston was able to shoot and dig. That is about all they knew of the art of war. Training had begun in earnest. The sergeants were working with squads; Generals Lee and Ward and Green and Putnam and Sullivan with companies and regiments from daylight to dark.

Jack was particularly interested in Putnam—a short, rugged, fat, white-haired farmer from Connecticut, of bluff manners and nasal twang and of great animation for one of his years—he was then fifty-seven. He was often seen flying about the camp on a horse. The young man had read of the heroic exploits of this veteran of the Indian wars.

Their mission finished, that evening

Jack and Solomon called at General Washington's headquarters.

"General, Doctor Franklin told us to turn over the horses and wagons to you," said Solomon. "He didn't tell us what to do with ourselves 'cause 'twasn't nec'sary an' he knew it. We want to enlist."

"For what term?"

"Till the British are licked."

"You are the kind of men I need," said Washington. "I shall put you on scout duty. Mr. Irons will go into my regiment of sharpshooters with the rank of captain. You have told me of his training in Philadelphia."

So the two friends were enlisted and began service in the army of Washington.

Rain Adds to Row Crop Prospects

An inch of rain, which fell Thursday and Friday of last week at Floydada, greatly added to the probabilities of a good row crop of every kind in the county this fall, at the same time doing no damage to the wheat crop which was standing in the field, except to delay for a few days the work of the harvest.

From this point northward the rain grew heavier, at Amarillo a total of four inches of rain falling in the week and all the north plains being well soaked. Southward from Floydada the rain grew lighter and reports indicate that in Crosby county and further south only showers fell during the rain period.

Center News

Center, July 7.—We really took a short vacation from home this summer, but it seems we have extended it to more than a month from writing items.

The grand and glorious Fourth is passed and everybody is at work trying to make back the nickels, dimes, and dollars they blew in those three days. If we would make the Fourth a day of celebration instead of revelry, we think it would be so much more in keeping with what our forefathers intended it to be. Have a good time of course, but that is so different from engaging in some things some do on that day that is not to be forgotten.

Otto Goodman has been very ill for the past week.

Threshers are starting up this morning after the rains of last week. The combines ran yesterday.

Misses Vera Meredith and Vada Rutledge visited with their respective families Friday and Saturday, returning to their school work Sunday afternoon.

Grandma Spence went home with her daughter, Mrs. Marley, who spent last week here with her parents.

Mrs. J. T. Spence is at Antelope caring for her new grandson there.

Bro. Hull will be in a meeting elsewhere and cannot fill his appointment here fourth Sunday and Saturday before, but the four preachers of his membership will fill the appointments, one for each service beginning Saturday morning with Bro. Meredith; Saturday night Bro. Shannon; Sunday, Bro. Goode; Sunday night, Bro. Arthur Jordan.

Let's all come to Sunday school Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Simms attended singing here Sunday afternoon, also Earl Branson, Lewis Bullard and Vern Nix. Mr. Bolding and daughter, Miss Fannie, took Sunday dinner at the Jordan home.

Lee Golightly spent Saturday night with Arthur Jordan. Mrs. Montgomery and children took dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Foster Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Tubbs and children were out to singing Sunday afternoon.

Miss Corine Osburn attended prayer meeting with Miss Inez Bolding Sunday night.

MRS. W. C. GRIGSBY HOSTESS AT A LAWN PICNIC

Mrs. W. C. Grigsby entertained with a lawn picnic at her home on Mississippi Street at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening, honoring her guest, Mrs. S. W. Meharg, of Plainview, and Mrs. C. R. Houston, of this city.

A delightful lunch was served picnic style to the following guests: Messrs. and Mesdames Ed Johnson, C. R. Houston, H. O. Pope, Sam Berry, R. E. Fry, and children, A. N. Gamble, H. S. Sanders and children, and H. D. Butler; Mrs. S. Y. Carter and children, Mrs. Lillie Britton and Mrs. S. W. Meharg, of Plainview; Misses Ruth Rutledge and Mildred Houston, of Plainview; Messrs. J. B. Houston, Samuel and Junior Rutledge, and L. B. Houston, of Lampasas, Texas.

More Wheat From Early Preparation

"Success or failure in wheat farming is nearly always traceable to some phase of soil handling," says H. M. Bainer, director of The Southwestern Wheat Improvement Association. Continuing he says, "There is no single factor that will increase the wheat yield more than early, deep plowing or listing. All of the experiment stations in the winter wheat territory of the Southwest, as well as the best wheat farmers, have clearly proven that land prepared in July will produce from 2 to 7 bushels more wheat per acre than land with the same kind of work done in September."

"Early plowing destroys weeds which, if allowed to grow, will use up the available plant food and moisture. It is claimed on good authority that one big weed in its development will use a barrel of water. Early plowing gives the land time to settle, which is a necessary requirement for successful wheat growing. Even though the land may have considerable time to settle, it is usually wise and profitable to pack the ground immediately after the plow with some sort of packer, if it is nothing more than a disc harrow with the blades set straight. This compact seedbed causes early germination of the wheat, immediate growth and a good stand, all of which are necessary to insure good quality and a big yield."

"Early listing for wheat is especially desirable, where rainfall is limited, and frequently produces better yields than other methods. Listing covers the ground quickly, kills the weeds and saves the moisture. For best results, it pays to double list and level the ground early."

"Successful wheat growers find, if time does not permit early plowing or listing, that it pays to disk immediately after the binder or header; this destroys the weeds and volunteer wheat, saves moisture and leaves the soil in condition to plow at a convenient time later."

PROMPT ACTION ON UNION-TOWN SURVEY REPORT

After a survey of the school building situation in Uniontown, Pa., in February, 1924, the United States Bureau of Education suggested a definite program of improvement. In April the people voted 8 to 1 in favor of a bond issue of $600,000 to erect and equip two junior high school buildings as recommended in the survey report.

Money was appropriated by officials of the city of Portland, Ore., to pay half the salary of a Biological Survey representative stationed there to direct the rat-control work in 1923, and to buy poison supplies. An outstanding result of the antirat work was the construction of the finest rat-proof market in the city, by a man who had to be shown in the first place the value of such an operation. Biological Survey operatives who treated two slaughter houses and a hog-feeding establishment in the city with calcium cyanide, reported to the U. S. Department of Agriculture that they had picked up 60 dead rats after one treatment. City officials have cooperated to the fullest extent in the work.

FLAG OF THE U. S. A.

Flags waving in the sky
Tell a story to you and I
Of the past and future years.

Of men, who crossed the seas,
Seeking homes where they would be Free from tyrants' unjust rule.

Red men lurking in the dark Took the white men's skull cap; and mark
How the plagues went around them.

Yes, forefathers in the flood Fought 'till victory looked good
For their children's future rights.

Books tell how they made laws,
Good and right without a flaw,
For the best of our nation.

Wars knocked at our door;
Dared us assist nations more Toward freedom and justice.

Challenged all ways for right,
We made fight with a tiger's might
To assist and treat all well.

Yes, showed tyranny down,
Showing her latter death her mound
With the people of earth free.

Now, yesterday, and always,
Liberty in our hearts gives ray
Of the past and future years.
