

Leach Dies Suddenly at Home of Sunset Community Suffered from Heart Failure and Death Is Result.

Leach, prominent farmer and member of Sunset Community, died Tuesday afternoon after 4 days at his home two miles south of Sunset school house. A sudden attack of heart failure as he sat in his chair caused death within a few minutes. Only his wife and children were with him at the time of his death.

A number of the county candidates, who were at Sunset to speak called off the speaking day on account of the death of Mr. Leach.

The remains were taken to Plainview, where the funeral was held this morning and interment made in Plainview cemetery.

Deceased was 30 years of age. He had worked on Monday, but was indisposed on the day of his death and had done little work. A neighbor, P. L. Orman, was at the Leach farm a short time before the death occurred, and at that time Mr. Leach thought his indisposition was only a slight one and that he would be able to resume his duties at an early date.

Claude Leach is a son of J. H. Leach of Plainview. He is a son-in-law of J. D. Childress.

INTEREST IN VOCAL SCHOOL OF MUSIC GROWING

Considerable interest is already being manifested in Morgan's School of Vocal Music, which is to be held in Floydada August 4th to 23rd. A number of people from 12 to 18 miles away have stated that they are expecting to attend this school. A number of leading musical men of the country have expressed the belief that this is a better opportunity, musically speaking, for many people in the county than they have ever had before.

Hundreds of people in this section will remember V. O. Stamps, the big bass singer with the Vaughn Quartette, who was here during the county singing convention. Mr. Stamps received his start in the musical world from R. M. Morgan. Mr. Stamps stated in a private interview that when everything was considered, R. M. Morgan, as a musical instructor, did not have a superior in the south.

Tuition rates for the school are: Primary $3.00, intermediate $4, and advanced $5.

3 NEW HOMES

Three new homes have been started in Floydada during the past few days. G. J. Clements is building on South Main Street a residence, which he will occupy when completed.

E. C. Nelson, Sr., is building a residence in the Price Addition, and Misses Mollie and Lucy Crum are building on West Mississippi Street.

VEGETABLES FOR VITAMINES

Children suffer quickly from a lack of vegetables in the diet. Give them plenty of the leaf vegetables such as spinach, chard, lettuce, in short greens of all kinds, and cabbage, especially raw cabbage. String beans are also very valuable. Carrots, onions, and celery are good, but not so valuable as are the string beans and the leaf crops.

We should eat vegetables first for vitamins, second for iron, and third for bulk or roughage which sweeps the intestines clean and tends to prevent constipation.

The vitamins are three—A, B, and C. Leaf crops, cabbage and string beans contain quantities of them.

The tomato, though from a dietary standpoint a fruit rather than a vegetable, is rich in vitamins.—The Progressive Farmer.

Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Moses, who have been visiting the past few weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Jim Hughes left Thursday of last week for Fort Worth.

Mrs. S. P. Brown Died Sunday In Plainview

Mrs. S. P. Brown, of Plainview, died at her home there Sunday evening last at six o'clock, and was buried Monday morning in Plainview cemetery following funeral services held at 11 o'clock.

The deceased was the mother of Mrs. F. W. Cooksey, former resident of Newland Community southeast of Floydada, now of San Antonio.

John Colville Will Be Buried Here

Telegraphic advices to James D. Colville reaching Floydada this morning tell of the death in a Los Angeles Sanitarium of John Colville, his brother, which occurred sometime yesterday, the telegram also stating that the body is being forwarded home for burial, with the expectation that it will reach Floydada sometime tomorrow.

Burial will be made in Floydada cemetery probably Saturday.

Colville went to the sanitarium for an operation about a week ago.

The deceased was reared in Floydada. He has been in California about three years. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Colville, who resided here until two years ago when they also moved to Los Angeles.

JURY DECIDES DECOMPOSED FISH UNFIT FOR FOOD

In a recent case involving the seizure of spoiled canned salmon by the Bureau of Chemistry, United States Department of Agriculture, under the food and drug act, the attorney for the canners contended that it had never been shown where decomposed salmon was injurious to health. The defense even went so far as to contend partly decomposed salmon was actually fit for food, citing that Alaskan Indians preferred fish after it had been buried in the sand and undergone spoilage.

Many men are of many minds and of many tastes, but this argument did not appeal to the jury which decided that the government inspectors were perfectly right in seizing this canned fish. After the trial one of the jurors said that the 12 men were unanimous for the government on the first ballot. They asked themselves, he said, if they would care to eat that kind of fish. The decision each man arrived at before he reached the jury room was that he would not eat that kind of food not matter what persons in other parts of the world may think is edible. They decided the case on the basis of the sort of food they thought was considered fit for the American market.

FAULKNER LEAVES FOR TOUR OF THE WESTERN STATES

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Faulkner and children left Tuesday morning for an extended tour of the West. They plan to visit the Yellowstone National Park, portions of California, Colorado and Oregon.

They plan to be away from home six or seven weeks. They are making the trip by auto.

In providing homes for teachers, Texas claims first place; a recent report to the United States Bureau of Education shows a total of 635 for this state. Nearly 600 of these homes are in rural districts.

Two $1000 Bonds Are Made by Schick

Paul Schick, former resident of Floydada, for the past 3 years a resident of Lockney, yesterday made bond in Justice Gaither's Court in the sum of $1,000 each, and was released from custody, following his arrest Tuesday morning, when he was charged by complaint with assault with intent to kill Claude Riley, and assault with intent to commit a statutory offense, both alleged to have occurred Monday night in the residence section of Lockney.

Claude Riley, whose residence is at Meadow, Texas, and two men who live at Matador, engaged in the construction of the new West Texas Gin at Lockney, are the principal witnesses on whose testimony the charges were filed.

Schick alleged to have been drunk, attempted to break into the home of Mrs. Betty Sams, a widow, according to the testimony of Riley and the two Matador men, who are boarders in the Sams home. When the men put him out of the house and took him home Schick is alleged to have shot three times with a target at Riley while the latter was at or near the residence of Dr. N. E. Greer, where he had gone to telephone an officer.

Democrats of Floydada voting precinct are called to meet at the city office on Saturday, July 26th, Primary Election Day, for the purpose of electing a precinct chairman of the party for the ensuing two years, and for the transaction of any other party matters as such voters may deem wise.

No New Reports of Grasshopper Damage

No new reports of ravages by grasshoppers in Floyd County have been received in Floydada recently, and apparently the threatened invasion of the hoppers is not going to materialize.

Reports indicate that the downstate section of Texas is also getting relief from the grasshopper hordes and that the damage this year to crops in the Mid-West section of the state is not so severe as last year.

Revise Estimates of Wheat Crop Upward

Total Shipments From County May Exceed One and a Half Million Bushels—Prices Better.

A marked upward revision of estimates of the total shipments of wheat from Floyd County this season is indicated by the total shipments already made, a lower estimate of the actual acreage in the county than was actually in wheat having been made early in the season apparently. Early season estimates of a 15-bushel average on approximately 50,000 acres of wheat land compare with an indicated yield of 22 bushels average on approximately 70,000 acres, for a total of approximately one and a half million bushels now indicated.

It is believed that in the south half of the county where the rains have not been so heavy that fully a half of the crop has been moved, with slightly upward of three hundred cars shipped out. In the north part of the county, however, the rains have delayed the movement so that considerably less than half the crop has gone out. At Lockney about three hundred cars have moved. Present estimates are for 800 cars out of Lockney and about 600 out of Floydada. Heavy shipments are likewise being made from Aiken.

With the advance of the season has also come better prices on the primary markets, with a consequent advance in the local cash markets of the county. Dollar wheat was in evidence during this week at all points in the county, reports on the nothern wheat crop being unfavorable during the past week or so; another favorable condition in the market has been the fact that the high grade of the Texas wheat has made practically all of it good milling quality and has reduced the offerings on the export market.

Candidates Speak at Lakeview Tonight

Floyd County candidates are making a whirlwind finish of their respective campaigns and are out over the county from daylight till dark each day after votes. They are also carrying on their strenuous speaking schedule announced last week. At Sand Hill Monday night they had a good crowd. News Ink Good for Finger Prints

Ex-service men, who are making their applications for adjusted service compensation, will find that common news ink such as is found at printing offices like The Hesperian, is entirely satisfactory for the purpose of furnishing finger prints required with the application for the compensation.

Several concerns, since the passage of the compensation act by Congress, have begun advertising special "wafers" for finger prints at figures which represent huge profits. Service men who desire can call at The Hesperian office and make their finger prints free of charge at any time.

Two ex-service men were in this office the latter part of last week and made their prints on application blanks being filled out.

Good Crowd From Floydada at Petersburg

Discussions Made of Need For Better Mail and Telephone Service—Big Feed and Beauty Contest.

Over one hundred Floydada citizens, their wives and children carried out the slogan of the Floydada Chamber of Commerce, "On to Petersburg Friday night," and met the Petersburg people in a community gathering there last week. A program requiring two hours and a half was carried out, comprising musical numbers, a big feed and addresses, and was closed by a contest for the most popular girl present.

Immediately after the Floydada delegation arrived a dinner of all kinds of good eats—sandwiches, pies, salads, watermelons, iced tea and hot coffee was served cafeteria style to over three hundred people.

Following the feed, a special orchestra from Floydada composed of Ogie Johnson, Tom Goslee, Mark Duncan, and Miss Ray Parker and directed by Tom Collum, received generous applause in their rendition of a concert of popular music, which formally opened the social meeting held in the high school auditorium.

Glad Spodgrass, of this city, chairman of the committee having the community meeting in hand, presided at the meeting. He introduced J. Pat Horton, pastor of the Baptist church, who made a brief talk on the subject, "Why we are here." In part he said:

"We have come to cultivate a closer relationship one with the other. I have been impressed, since I have been on the Plains, with the spirit of co-operation existing between communities. In East Texas there seems to be an attitude, not exactly of rivalry, probably jealousy would be the best word to define it, between the (Continued on last page).

Just another word about the transfers. Parents, if you are expecting to transfer your children to some other district than that in which you live, be sure to attend to this before August 1. VACATION

Hot summer months make the tired business man long for cool shades and gurgling streams of cold clear water. He dreams of a shady nook 'way off some place where he is going to take his family and spend a few weeks really enjoying life; doing nothing but fishing, swimming, playing, eating and sleeping—and fighting mosquitos.

You have made your plans and you have everything in readiness to make the trip. You will have a good time, but don't forget that you are just one of ten jillion other people that have the same thoughts, the same dreams and the same longings that you are subject to.

Remember that, and have a consideration for the other members of the big human family.

Be careful with your camp fires; don't leave your camp sites littered with cans and refuse, and keep in mind at all times that you are, during your trip, a guest of the public at large. Act as you would like for your guests to act.

If you spend some of the nights, while you are on the road to and from your destination, in tourist camp grounds furnished for your convenience by the citizens of other cities, remember how you cussed the fellow who took delight in defacing the camp in your home town, and try to leave a good impression on your city-host by taking pains to leave things in good condition at the tourist camp.

And when you come home, keep quiet about the fifteen blowouts, the blistered necks, the chafed and peeling lips, the mosquito bites, the horrible expenses, the road hogs and the thousand other "joys" of the trip. Don't tell the preacher how you swore when the kid broke the thermos bottle—just come home smiling and tell the folk what a great thing they missed by not being with you, and what a delightful time you had.

Come back smilin'—because it's all in life.

BUILD THAT CLUB

Where do you go to spend your few leisure moments?

Your friends come to visit with you from a distant point. You want to show them a good time; you are anxious to make their visit a pleasant one. How do you entertain them; what place or scene do you have to show them that will prove of interest?

If you had a country club located just a few miles from your home, just a few moments drive way, all your worries would vanish and your problems would be solved.

Join the Floydada *Country Club movement today. Help build something that will not alone furnish bodily diversion, but will give that feeling of satisfaction that comes with the act of having done your part toward the realization of a dream—toward the accomplishment of something of which Floydada may be justly proud.

A FAST LIFE

This is truly a fast age. A fellow flew entirely across the continent the other day in just a few hours. But that's nothing.

Just the other day, the editor of a newspaper was trying to explain over a telephone how an error had been made in his paper. The other fellow listened as long as he could, and then he yelled as he hung up the receiver, "Aw you go to—"

Now that's an awfully long distance for an editor to have to go, but the fellow indicated by the tone of voice that he used that he expected that editor to be at the specified place in less time than it took the fellow to fly across the nation in an aeroplane.

Verily this is a fast life, but the editors won't be far behind the rest of the gang, if they all get the encouragement that that one editor received.

Floyd County has had a big wheat crop. There are indications for a bumper cotton and feed crop. Floydada citizens and the folk in the surrounding territories will receive substantial financial gains. Bank accounts will be increased and old accounts will be paid up. Farm mortgages will be paid and improvements made. Remember citizens, that every year will not bring the same rich harvest of comfort and riches. Invest wisely, if you must invest at all, and put that surplus in the bank and let it stay there. You have made money this year—save it.

This and That

SIDELIGHTS FROM PETERSBURG

Petersburg people were greatly interested in the propositions discussed there Friday night of last week in regard to better telephone and mail connections between the city of Floydada and Petersburg, according to R. A. Jefferies, of Petersburg. After the community meeting last week, Jefferies and other business men of that city, expressed the sentiment of their community to Maury Hopkins, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and to J. B. Houston, of the Houston Dry Goods Company of Floydada. They expressed the belief that the proposed improvements would be brought about in the near future.

The Floydada orchestra kept things lively with their peppy music at the Floydada-Petersburg meeting. Their playing alone made the program worth while, and was a treat that would justify any one in making a trip of several miles to hear the program.

Glad Snodgrass, of Floydada, nominated Miss Kate Rosser, of Petersburg, as a candidate for the prize in the most popular and most beautiful girl contest, and after a most spirited fight the Petersburg folk succeeded in "putting her over".

Everybody enjoyed the evening, and the audience was almost in an uproar of fun and laughter during the progress of the beauty contest.

The prize awarded the winner of the contest was most appropriate and useful. A set of Pyrex dishes was given Miss Rosser.

The community meeting was a marked success. Floydada people were satisfied with the good time, and the Petersburg people were satisfied with having made a success of their undertaking. Something over $125 was realized from the beauty contest, and the sale of the dinner, soda water, ice cream, and watermelon. The money went to the worthy cause of financing a band that is being organized in the little neighboring city.

It costs less to be an unknown wise man than it does to be a popular fool.

Isn't it funny how some people get by with anything all the time, and a few fail to get by with some things anytime?

The old adage says, "birds of a feather flock together". Won't be long 'till the red bird—the one with the crimson nose—will be an extinct species.

Pike Roads in Texas Gaining in Mileage

Concrete highways in Texas are rapidly becoming more popular, and the mileage of first class highway in the state is growing fast, especially in the populous down-state sections.

A. L. Knowles, who with his wife and daughter, has been coming to Floyd County for the last few years on a visit with Mrs. Knowles' parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Gray, says that regular trips from East Texas to this section has impressed this fact on him.

His home, Bloomburg, is in the northeast corner of the state, one mile from Arkansas and five from Louisiana. He drove out from his home onto a pike road and travelled as far west as Mineral Wells before he had to negotiate any dirt roads. When one realizes that Mineral Wells, although "back East" to Floyd County people, is "away out West" to East Texans, the extent of the hard surface road building program in the state can be visualized.

Mrs. Mattie Gilkerson, of Fort Worth, is here on a visit of a few days with her niece, Mrs. W. T. Hopper. Mrs. Gilkerson has been visiting for sometime at Lockney with the C. L. Anderson family.

Legislative Candidate Visits Floyd County

A. B. Tarwater, of Runningwater, Saturday visited at Lockney and Floydada maing acquaintances and urging his candidacy for the office of representative for the 120th representative district.

At Lockney Mr. Tarwater made an address in which he told the voters of his candiacy for the office.

Little Miss Pansey Mozelle Brown returned home the latter part of last week after a visit of several weeks in Snyder with her aunt.

FAREWELL PARTY FOR J. M. PARSONS AND WIFE

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Parsons, for the past two years teachers at the Baker School, were honorees at a farewell party held at the school house, at which a large number of the school patrons of the district and friends gathered. A very fine supper, served on the school grounds, was enjoyed by the gathering, and a general good time was had by all.

Mr. and Mrs. Parsons will teach the ensuing term at Aiken and will leave in about two weeks for Tennessee to visit until near the time for the opening of school.

J. W. Rose and son J. B., spent Monday in Plainview on business.

1.3 Inches Rain at Floydada Last Week

Thursday and Friday of last week Floyd County had additional rainfall, which looks to make good row crops this fall a sure thing, some sections of the county having in excess of three inches while in other portions probably less than an inch fell. At Floydada the rain amounted to 1.3 inches. It fell straight down and no damage is reported.

The rains had occasioned considerable delay in the wheat harvest until this week opened bright and clear, and for the first time this season Sunday saw a very considerable percentage of the combines of the county in the field at work, gathering wheat that has been standing long enough to begin to shatter.

PLEASANT HILL, NOT LAKEVIEW, WILL HAVE PLAYS

At Pleasant Hill, not Lakeview, the two plays, ice cream supper and general good time is planned for Saturday night of this week, July 19th. The Hesperian last week stated through error that the program was to be given at Lakeview.

Fourteen women and one man are in the cast of the plays to be presented, each of which is about three-quarters of an hour long.

Proceeds from the play and the sale of ice cream are going to be used to furnish the auditorium of the new school, of which the community is very proud.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—Solomon Binkus, veteran scout and interpreter, and his young companion, Jack Irons, passing through Horse Valley, New York, in September, 1768, to warn settlers of an Indian uprising, rescue from a band of redskins the wife and daughter of Colonel Hare of England. Jack and Margaret fall in love. On reaching Fort Stanwix Colonel Hare says both are too young to marry, but that if they are of the same mind after one year he will ask Jack to come to London. The Hare family sail for England, and the Irons family move to Albany.

CHAPTER II.—Unrest grows in the colonies because of the oppressive measures of the English government. Solomon and Jack visit Boston and witness a fight between a mob and a squad of British soldiers led by Captain Preston, a friend of Solomon's. Later they return to Boston to testify in Preston's behalf.

CHAPTER III.—In November, 1770, Jack goes to Philadelphia and works in Benjamin Franklin's printing plant. Nearly three years later Margaret writes him from London reminding him that her youth is passing and saying she has appealed to Doctor Franklin. Binkus has received a letter from Washington to be carried across the ocean, and Jack sails with him.

CHAPTER IV.—Arriving in England, Binkus is arrested, but Jack has the letter and proceeds to London.

CHAPTER V.—Jack delivers the papers to Franklin in London. Binkus is released and joins them in the great city.

CHAPTER VI.—Jack and Margaret meet and are more in love than ever, but Colonel Hare is not eager for the marriage.

CHAPTER VII.—Franklin's efforts to obtain better treatment for the colonies are futile. He evades the attempt of the king's men to "tow him into port." War becomes imminent.

CHAPTER VIII.—General Clarke, a crotchety old man, calls the Yankees cowards in Jack's hearing. The young American demands a retraction. Lionel Clarke, the general's son, and a rival suitor for Margaret's hand, takes up the quarrel and a duel is arranged.

CHAPTER IX.—Jack and Lionel fight with pistols and the latter is wounded.

CHAPTER X.—After a secret meeting with Margaret, Jack again demands her hand from her father. Hare refuses after young Irons declines to approve and aid the plans of the king concerning the colonies.

CHAPTER XI.—Lured to Gravesend by a ruse, Jack is drugged and put aboard a ship sailing for New York.

CHAPTER XII.—Franklin, called before the privy council, is convicted of conduct inconsistent with the character of a gentleman and deprived of his office as postmaster general.

CHAPTER XIII.—After Jack's return the ferment in the colonies increases and a general congress is held in Philadelphia. The Hares return to America.

A letter from Jack to his mother dated July 25, 1775, is full of the camp color:

"General Charles Lee is in command of my regiment," he writes. "He is a rough, slovenly old dog of a man who seems to bark at us on the training ground. He has two or three hunting dogs that live with him in his tent and also a rare gift of profanity which is with him everywhere—save at headquarters.

"Today I saw these notices posted in camp:

"Punctual attendance on divine service is required of all not on actual duty."

"No burning of the pope allowed."

"Fifteen stripes for denying duty."

"Ten for getting drunk."

"Thirty-nine for stealing and desertion."

"Rogues are put in terror, lazy men are energized. The quarters are kept clean, the food is well cooked and plentiful supply, but the British over in town are said to be getting hungry."

Early in August a London letter was forwarded to Jack from Philadelphia. He was filled with new hope as he read these lines:

"Dearest Jack: I am sailing for Boston on one of the next troop ships to join my father. So when the war ends—God grant it may be soon—you will not have far to go to find me. Perhaps by Christmas time we may be together. Let us both pray for that. Meanwhile, I shall be happier for being nearer you and for doing what I can to heal the wounds made by this wretched war. I am going to be a nurse in a hospital. You see the truth is that since I met you, I like all men better, and I shall love to be trying to relieve their sufferings. . . ."

It was a long letter but above is as much of it as can claim admission to these pages.

"Who but she could write such a letter?" Jack asked himself, and then he held it to his lips a moment. It thrilled him to think that even then she was probably in Boston. In the tent where he and Solomon lived when they were both in camp, he found the scout. The night before Solomon had slept out. Now he had built a small fire in front of the tent and lain down on a blanket, having delivered his report at headquarters.

"Margaret is in Boston," said Jack as soon as he entered, and then standing in the firelight read the letter to his friend.

"That is a real, genuine, likely gal," said the scout.

"I wish there were some way of getting to her," the young man remarked.

"Might as well think o' goin' to h—l an' back ag'in," said Solomon. "Since Bunker Hill the British are like a lot o' hornets. I run onto one of 'em today. He fired at me an' didn't hit a thing but the air an' run like a scared rabbit. Could 'a' killed him easy but I kind o' enjoyed seein' him run. He were like chain lightning on a greased pole—you hear to me."

"If the general will let me, I'm going to try spy duty and see if I can get into town and out again," he proposed.

"You keep out o' that business," said Solomon. "They's too many that know ye over in town. The two Clarkes an' their friends an' Colonel Hare an' his friends, an' Cap. Preston, an' a hull passle. They know all 'bout ye. If you got snapped, they'd stan' ye ag'in' a wall an' put ye out o' the way quick. It would be ple for the Clarkes, an' the ol' man Hare wouldn't spill no tears over it. Cap. Preston couldn't save ye, that's sartin. No, sir, I won't low it. They's plenty o' old cusses fer such work."

For a time Jack abandoned the idea, but later, when Solomon failed to return from a scouting tour and a report reached camp that he was captured, the young man began to think of that rather romantic plan again. He had grown a full beard; his skin was tanned; his clothes were worn and torn and faded. His father, who had visited the camp bringing a supply of clothes for his son, had failed, at first, to recognize him.

December had arrived. The general was having his first great trial in keeping an army about him. Terms of enlistment were expiring. Cold weather had come. The camp was uncomfortable. Regiments of the homesick lads of New England were leaving or preparing to leave. Jack and a number of young ministers in the service organized a campaign of persuasion and many were prevailed upon to re-enlist. But hundreds of boys were hurrying homeward on the frozen roads.

One day Jack was sent for. He and his company had captured a number of men in a skirmish.

"Captain, you have done well," said the general. "I want to make a scout of you. In our present circumstances it's about the most important, dangerous and difficult work there is to be done here, especially the work which Solomon Binkus undertook to do. There is no other in whom I should have so much confidence. Major Bartlett knows the part of the line which Colonel Binkus traversed. He will be going out that way tomorrow. I should like you, sir, to go with him. After one trip I shall be greatly pleased if you are capable of doing the work alone."

Orders were delivered and Jack reported to Bartlett, an agreeable, middle-aged farmer-soldier, who had been on scout duty since July. They left camp together next morning an hour before reveille. They had an uneventful day, mostly in wooded flats and ridges, and from the latter looking across with a spy-glass into Bruteland, as they called the country held by the British, and seeing only, now and then, an enemy picket or distant camp. About midday they sat down in a thicket together for a bite to eat and a whispered conference.

"Binkus, as you know, had his own way of scouting," said the major. "He was an Indian fighter. He liked to get inside the enemy lines and lie close an' watch 'em an' mebbe hear what they were talking about. Now an' then he would surprise a British sentinel and disarm him an' bring him into camp."

Jack wondered that his friend had never spoken of the capture of prisoners.

"He was a modest man," said the young scout.

"He didn't want the British to know where Solomon Binkus was at work, and I guess he was wise," said the major. "I advise against taking the chances that he took. It ain't necessary. You would be caught much sooner than he was."

That day Bartlett took Jack over Solomon's trail and gave him the lay of the land and much good advice. A young man of Jack's spirit, however, is apt to have a degree of enterprise and self-confidence not easily controlled by advice. He had been traveling alone for three days when he felt the need of more exciting action. That night he crossed the Charles river on the ice in a snowstorm and captured a sentinel and brought him back to camp.

Soon after that the daring spirit of the youth led him into a great adventure. It was on the night of January fifth that Jack penetrated the British lines in a snowstorm and got close to an outpost in a strip of forest. There a camp fire was burning. He came close. His garments had been whitened by the storm. The air was thick with snow, his feet were muffled in a foot of it. He sat by a stump scarcely twenty feet from the fire, seeing those in its light, but quite invisible. There he could distinctly hear the talk of the Brits. It related to a proposed evacuation of the city by Howe.

"I'm weary of starving to death in this God-forsaken place," said one of them. "You can't keep an army without meat or vegetables. I've eaten fish till I'm getting scales on me."

"Colonel Riffington says that the army will leave here within a fortnight," another observed.

It was important information which had come to the ear of the young scout. The talk was that of well-bred Englishmen who were probably officers.

"We ought not to speak of those matters aloud," one of them remarked. "Some d—d Yankee may be listening like the one we captured."

"He was Amherst's old scout," said another. "He swore a blue streak when we shoved him into jail. They don't like to be treated like rebels. They want to be prisoners of war."

A young man came along with his rifle on his shoulder.

"Hello, Bill!" said one of the men. "Going out on post?"

"I am, God help me," the youth answered. "It's what I'd call a h—l of a night."

The sentinel passed close by Jack on his way to his post. The latter crept away and followed, gradually closing in upon his quarry. When they were well away from the fire, Jack came close and called, "Bill!"

The sentinel stopped and faced about.

"You've forgotten something," said Jack, in a genial tone.

"What is it?"

"Your caution," Jack answered, with his pistol against the breast of his enemy. "I shall have to kill you if you call or fall to obey me. Give me the rifle and go on ahead. When I say go to the right, haw to the left."

So the capture was made, and on the way out Jack picked up the sentinel who stood waiting to be relieved and took both men into camp.

From documents on the person of one of these young Brits it appeared that General Clarke was in command of a brigade behind the lines which Jack had been watching and robbing.

When Jack delivered his report the chief called him a brave lad and said: "It is valuable information you have brought to me. Do not speak of it. Let me warn you, captain, that from now on they will try to trap you. Perhaps, even, you may look for daring enterprises on that part of their line."

The general was right. The young scout ran into a most daring and successful British enterprise on the twentieth of January. The snow had been swept away in a warm rain and the ground had frozen bare, or it would not have been possible. Jack had got to a strip of woods in a lonely bit of country near the British lines and was climbing a tall tree to take observations when he saw a movement on the ground beneath him. He stopped and quickly discovered that the tree was surrounded by British soldiers. One of them, who stood with a raised rifle, called to him:

"Irons, I will trouble you to drop your pistols and come down at once."

Jack saw that he had run into an ambush. He dropped his pistols and came down. He had disregarded the warning of the general. He should have been looking out for an ambush. A squad of five men stood about him with rifles in hand. Among them was Lionel Clarke, his right sleeve empty.

"We've got you at last—you d—d rebel!" said Clarke.

"I suppose you need some one to swear at," Jack answered.

"And to shoot at," Clarke suggested.

"I thought that you would not care for another match with me," the young scout remarked as they began to move away.

"Hereafter you will be treated like a rebel and not like a gentleman," Clarke answered.

"What do you mean?"

"I mean that you will be standing, blindfolded against a wall."

"That kind of a threat doesn't scare me," Jack answered. "We have too many of your men in our hands."

DEMOS. MUST SELECT PREC. CHAIRMAN ELECTION DAY

Democrats of Floyd County must select their respective precinct chairmen on Saturday, July 26th, primary election day. Carelessness on the part of the democratic voters in this county has reduced the number of precinct chairmen in the county to a bare working majority required by the election law, and several precincts are not represented in the council of the party at all at the present time.

Judge Stalbird, county chairman of the party, points out that any number of voters who are democrats may meet and select a chairman, failure of the precinct chairman to call such a meeting does not prevent the meeting being held.

In Floydada precinct the precinct chairman has called the meeting of the voters to be held at two o'clock on election day, at the city office, the court house not being available because it will be in use for election purposes. In all other precincts the respective chairmen should call their conventions for a convenient hour in the day for the most voters, Judge Stalbird advises, if they are interested in maintaining the county organization and having a party primary biennially, the primary being strictly a party affair and entirely in the hands of the voters of the party.

The delightful program of varied numbers, songs, readings, talks and playlets was well rendered. A one act play entitled "How State Missions Came Home to Sarah" was especially well received.

The Reverend Scott, pastor of the Baptist church at Crosbyton, and his wife accompanied the group of over thirty young ladies who took part in the program. Mr. and Mrs. John McDermitt, of Crosbyton, were also with the party.

"It seems like it did me good from the very first. After I had taken half a bottle I noticed an improvement. I continued its use and I got better and better. The pains in my legs and sides disappeared and I began to gain in weight until now I weigh 155 pounds and feel better than I ever did in my life. I am perfectly well and strong. I have given it to my girls, too."
 Cardui has relieved many kinds of pains and distressing symptoms caused by female trouble. It should help you, too, in the same way. Why not give it a fair trial?

GOOD CROWDS FROM FLOYD-ADA AT PETERSBURG

people—a disposition to be at loggerheads with each other between the towns and the rural districts, with the town folk against the country folk.

“Co-operation is to the advantage of your business and mine; you cannot get along without us, and we cannot do without you; you prosper and we prosper.

“We are here to create a closer fellowship and closer trade relationships; we are here to cultivate and further our friendship and become more closely acquainted. Let us build up a relationship between us that will make this country renowned for the close co-operation between the people.”

R. A. Jefferies, vice president and cashier of the Guaranty State Bank of Petersburg, made the response and welcomed the visitors to their little city. He said:

“We are mighty glad to see Floydada so well represented. I can see that you are doing things over there, and doing them in a big way. We want you Floydada people to know that we have started on the same road you are on. We are glad you have come, and we hope that you will enjoy yourselves.”

Homer Steen, president of the Chamber of Commerce, followed with a talk regarding some needs in common between the people of the two communities. He discussed briefly the need of adequate mail and telephone service, and in speaking of the telephone situation, he pointed out that he could talk to a business man in Amarillo, covering a distance of 100 miles, quicker than he could talk to a business man in Petersburg, covering a distance of only 22 miles.

Steen remarked, “Closer and better connections will make us better friends, and better friends means more business, not only to us but to you as well. We can be of mutual aid to each other, and we can be of service to each other.

“The telephone and the mail can bring about these closer connections, and that is the reason we are interested in seeing improvements made. If you wish to phone Floydada the call has to take an indirect route and go an approximate distance of two and one half counties. We need ten minute service and we would like very much to work out some plan to improve the present existing conditions. We have been thinking about the matter for some time and we would like for you to think about it.

“Because we failed once in obtaining a direct mail route to Petersburg is no reason why we should not try again. We do not propose to dispose of any of the present excellent rural routes but we believe a short route could be worked out that will be satisfactory and successful. Everything can be worked out so that it will work to the mutual advantage of both communities. We would like mighty well to talk to you folk some more about it.”

The contest for the most beautiful and popular girl was the next feature in order. Under the promptings of Maury Hopkins, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, the voters became reckless and a spirited vote buying rage seized the young hopefuls in attempts to put their favorites in the blue ribbon class. After many battles with first one good looking candidate in the lead and then another, the competition was limited between two candidates, Miss Kate Rosser, of Petersburg and Miss Gladys Johnson, of Floydada. Petersburg staged a counter attack in the final stages of the contest and put their fair candidate in first place with a lead of several hundred votes.

A special prize was awarded the winner of the contest.

The proceeds realized from the beauty contest and the sale of the dinner and refreshments will be used in the organization of a band at Petersburg.

Lon M. Davis and John H. Reagan were the other members of the committee who worked with Glad Snodgrass in making the affair a success.

Friendship, good fellowship, and neighborliness abounded throughout the evening. The Floydada people reached home about 11.30 o'clock Friday night.

EDUCATION FOR ALL

In some way America must continue to provide the opportunities of liberal education for the average man. We must train leaders, we must give of the best to the best, but democracy needs not simply a chosen few but the elevation of the standards of life and thought among the masses of the people to fullest extent practicable.

We need not simply technical and professional schools business and commercial schools, vocational training, but wide opportunities for liberal study for those who may not be intelligently the most promising. If our existing universities and colleges are compelled to restrict their numbers, others must be supplied. No one who desires and who is reasonably prepared to take advantage of higher education should be denied it in our great democracy because of lack of resources.—Secretary Charles E. Hughes, in School Life.

To prevent overcrowding of students time by too many activities outside of the curriculum, the faculty of Cornell College, Mount Vernon, Iowa, has appointed certain of its members to an events committee. This committee will consult with other members of its faculty and with representatives of the student body in an effort to bring about a proper proportion between the time spent in study and in outside campus affairs.

BRINGING MANY VEGETABLES GOOD METHOD OF KEEPING

Brining vegetables is a well-known method of preservation commonly applied to cabbage, in making sauerkraut, and to cucumbers, in making pickles. In the belief that this method of curing could be successfully used with a number of other vegetables, so that a surplus crop could be quickly and easily cared for by the housewife, the Bureau of Chemistry last year conducted a series of experiments which have recently been completed. The vegetables used were martynias, mango melons, burr gherkins, small onions, peppers, green tomatoes, green beans, and cauliflower. Good results were obtained with practically all of these vegetables.

For mangoes, gherkins, and peppers, brining is clearly the best method of preservation. For string beans and green tomatoes brining is not regarded as the best method of preservation, but it may be substituted to good advantage when canning is not convenient. Some of the vegetables brined are more suitable for use in pickles than in any other way. Others can be prepared directly for the table after freshening. Green tomatoes and peppers are recommended especially for utilization in this way.

Martynias grow wild in great abundance in the semiarid regions of southwestern United States and can be grown successfully in many other localities. They are recommended for use in pickles, especially in mixed pickles. Mango melons, known by various names, may be brined either green or ripe. The ripe brined mangoes, when freshened, make excellent preserves similar to watermelon preserves. Burr gherkins are very closely related to the cucumber but are not so subject to disease and insect pests. They are used for sweet, sour and mixed pickles.

Green tomatoes preserved in a weak brine can be eaten immediately. The use of a strong brine is necessary to keep them any length of time. Salt is removed by soaking in fresh water. Tomatoes which develop late in the season and are threatened by frost may be saved conveniently by curing them in brine. Small onions should first be brined before pickling.

The use of the salinometer, a simple, inexpensive apparatus, is recommended in connection with brine curing when many vegetables are to be preserved by this method.
