

Reese tests new fitness program

Reese, along with 22 other bases worldwide, has been picked as a test site for the new Air Force physical fitness program.

Between 200-240 Reese military members will be selected at random to walk the three-miles or run the mile-and-a-half this August as part of the test. Participants will also be required to do as many sit ups as they can in a specified amount of time.

Results from Reese and the other test sites will be studied to determine the current fitness of Air Force members and the effectiveness of the new Enhanced Fitness Program.

During the August test period, "participants will be allowed to choose the three-mile walk or the mile-and-a-half run, but emphasis will be placed on the run," said TSgt. Roland Chambless, NCOIC of the base gym.

Sergeant Chambless continued that when the new fitness program becomes permanent around December, "the walk will no longer be allowed as an evaluation method. Instead there will be a swimming test and a stationary bicycling test to pick from."

ATC officials admit that walking is an "excellent form of exercise, but it doesn't provide a credible test or measure fitness."

The sit ups are being added to help Air Force fitness evaluators determine an individual's body strength.

The Enhanced Fitness Program is a result of presidential and Department of Defense interest in the fitness of military members. That interest brought about a study of current Air Force fitness regulations. And, one aspect of Air Force fitness which was revised is the times allotted for running the mile-and-a-half. "For the women, the times remain the same, but the men will loose at least a minute or more," explained Sergeant Chambless.

ATC's project officer for the fitness program, Capt. Larry Jester, says the Air Force wanted to create a complete fitness and wellness program. "The Air Force needs a total fitness program. Right now there's just an annual testing," he said.

"There will be increased emphasis on regular conditioning. Individuals will need to be in shape to meet the program's standards. Morale, Welfare and Recreation and medical officials plan to assist in the area of conditioning, but the ultimate responsibility will be the member's," Captain Jester said.

The Air Force is putting together a pamphlet which will outline a complete fitness and wellness program. Proper nutrition, exercise and stress management techniques will be discussed in the new pamphlet.

Through this new fitness program the Air Force hopes to gain "enhanced readiness," he added. "They expect to gain that through the wellness of their people. A number of major civilian corporations are pouring big money into these total fitness programs. They've discovered their people are more productive if they're physically fit."

The new program calls for semi-annual testing of Air Force members, with annual testing for those who significantly better the established evaluation standards. Individuals who fail to meet the new standards will have to test quarterly.

ATC picks Nurse of the Year

Captain Ducharme

Capt. Rochelle M. Ducharme, staff nurse at the Reese Hospital, has been selected as the Air Training Command Nurse of the Year for 1982.

A native of Taunton, Mass., Captain Ducharme is a 1979 graduate of Northeastern University where she received a bachelor of science degree in nursing. Before entering the Air Force, she worked as a registered nurse in the intensive care unit at Goddard Memorial Hospital, Soughton, Mass., for a year and a half. She received a direct commission in the Air Force in 1981.

Captain Ducharme has been active in the Junior Officers Committee, serving as vice-president; and the Base Advisory Council, serving as the JOC advisor. She has been board chairman for the hospital NCO of the Quarter board, played on the hospital volleyball team and has done volunteer work for the Special Olympics and for the hospital hypertension clinic during Armed Forces Week.

She completed flight school in residence and both

Squadron Officers School and the Nursing Service Management course by correspondence. She was the Wing's Junior Officer of the Quarter for January-March 1982.

Captain Ducharme will leave Reese in September for an assignment to Bitburg, Germany.

In honor of Captain Ducharme's selection as ATC Nurse of the Year, the hospital will sponsor a dining out July 29 at the Reese Officers Open Mess. Brig. Gen. (Dr.) Bealer T. Rogers Jr., ATC command surgeon, will be the featured speaker. All hospital personnel and other personnel in rank of master sergeant and above are invited. Dress is summer mess dress or black tie for civilians.

Persons attending should R.S.V.P. Captain Baird at Ext. 3341, Captain Jaskowic at Ext. 3242 or Lieutenant Ipolito at Ext. 3625 by today.

Finance NCO represents ATC to compete for Gilchrist award

by SrA. Nanette Grumbly
Public Affairs Specialist

SSgt. Lolita H. Dasher was recently selected by Air Training Command headquarters to represent ATC for the Major General John R. Gilchrist Award.

The award singles out the outstanding accounting and finance noncommissioned officer of the year. Sergeant Dasher is the first from Reese to be selected by ATC for this award, according to base finance officials.

"The quality of her work and her involvement in base-wide and community activities are the reasons I nominated Sergeant Dasher for the award," said accounting and finance officer Capt.

Kurt Brandt.

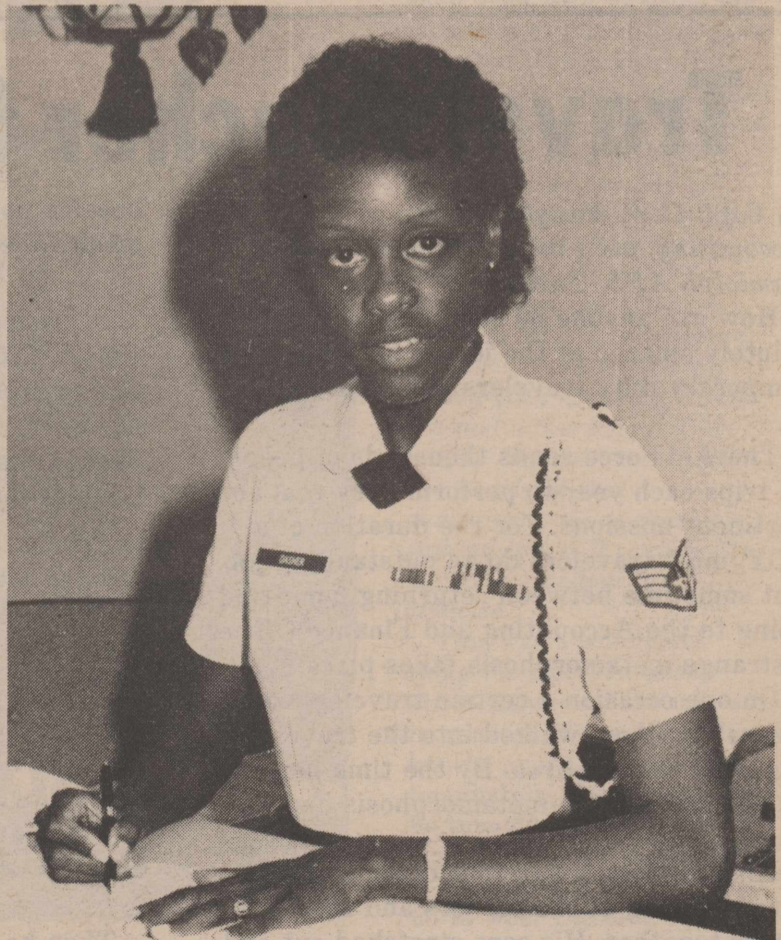

Since the first time Sergeant Dasher learned about the Air Force during a career day lecture in the third grade, she wanted to join the Air Force family. "I wanted to be a basic training instructor when I joined, but I had to be in the service for 18 months before I could apply for the special duty," she explained, adding "I worked in accounting and finance for that period then went on to Lackland AFB, Texas, for two years as a training instructor." After she completed her tour she came back into the accounting and finance career field and was stationed at Reese.

Since her arrival, Sergeant

Dasher has been responsible for accurate and timely computation of 225 to 250 travel vouchers per month. She also personally serves an average of 40 customers a day.

Sergeant Dasher was recognized by the recent ATC Management Effectiveness Inspection team as a Professional Performer, one of five recognized in a fifty person office.

Along with her work responsibilities, Sergeant Dasher is also involved with Toastmasters; the Honor Guard, the Brothers of Soulful Society, of which she is president; and the NCO Academy Graduates Association and Noncommissioned Officer Association.

Editorials

Never outdated or corny— Patriotism

by Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Philip E. Grimmett
Installation Staff Chaplain

You know, humans are funny creatures because the things that mean the most to them are the things that so often bore them the most and that they quickly take for granted.

This seems to be the case about our country and all that it stands for. It has become old fashioned and "corny" to be patriotic and emotional about our great land and its heritage. You tag yourself as being "square" if you dare mention that you get a lump in your throat when you hear the National Anthem or see Old Glory framed against a blue sky. In some quarters of our land you might run the risk of being mobbed if you dare suggest that we wave a flag and hear a good patriotic speech.

And yet it is that flag and all it stands for that allows such freedom and gives a person the right to voice an opinion.

No one would dare suggest that each citizen of our land does not have the right to his or her opinion. But with the stating of those words and that fact comes the grave responsibility of protecting that right. Not only protecting it but, yes, praising it and extolling it to the world. This is where we are failing. Too many use the right but weaken it by criticizing it.

The critics of today have the right to criticize but they also have the responsibility to defend that right to debate and disagree. They have the obligation to flag-wave too, no matter what side of the fence they are on so long as they are citizens. In essence the statement, "I disapprove of what you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it" is at the core of our patriotism.

Let us not let our zeal for our country wane, and by all means let it never be said, no matter what our opinions may be, that we are afraid to flag-wave. It's because of that flag that we can have an opinion.

Protect your children: Buckle them up

Protecting children — our most priceless possessions — from death or injury when riding in vehicles is as simple as buckling the mini-passengers into child safety seats.

Motor vehicle accidents are the No. 1 killer of children age one and older, according to National Safety Council statistics. Each year, about 8,500 children under age 5 die from injuries received in accidents.

How often have you seen children jumping up and down while riding in cars, sticking their heads out the window, climbing on the driver's lap and otherwise misbehaving?

Research studies and tests show that the child properly restrained in a car seat, has better passenger manners. They enjoy riding and looking out the windows. A child riding in a car seat usually plays quietly, talks with others in the car and generally makes the trip fun for all. Studies show that children usually are proud of having a seat of their very own.

In a course on how to introduce a child to a car seat, one professor of pediatrics recommended that the mother show the child that they can see out the windows easier in a car seat. He emphasized that mothers talk about things the child can see from the car seat, such as "Look at the boy on the bicycle" or "See the dog over there?" etc.

The American Academy of Pediatrics also asks expectant mothers to protect themselves and their unborn child by wearing safety belts during pregnancy. Here are the rules:

- Sit tall and place the lap belt as low as possible on your hips, under the baby.
- Wear the shoulder harness, too. It gives you and the baby important added protection.
- When you pack your suitcase for the hospital, get the infant car safety seat ready for bringing baby home.

With seat belts or a car seat not only will your child be better behaved, but will be safer in the event of a collision or even a sudden stop.

Travel voucher fraud: Don't be stupid

by Capt. G. W. Vaughn
Accounting and Finance Officer
Randolph AFB, Texas

How can anyone be so stupid? I am absolutely amazed at the idiotic situations some temporary duty travelers get themselves into.

The Air Force sends thousands of people on trips each year to perform very real and pertinent missions. For the duration of a TDY, most travelers do an outstanding job. But sometime between returning home and going to the Accounting and Finance Office, a strange metamorphosis takes place.

On one occasion a certain traveler, with normal intellect, walked into the travel customer service area. By the time he reached the counter the metamorphosis had begun.

His forehead began to shorten as his eyes tilted upward at the corners and moved closer together. His ears stretched out and became pointed at the tops. His uniform meanwhile remained 35-10.

'Salivating'

It wasn't until he picked up a DD Form 1351-2, Travel Voucher, that I noticed he was salivating slightly. Then, as he reached for DD Form 1351-3, Statement of Actual Expenses, his breathing quickened and tiny bubbles formed at the corners of his mouth.

Briefly, he stared at the form. He seemed to be in a daze. Then, with a sudden burst of speed, he wrote in his meal costs; $7 for breakfast; $11 for lunch; and $22 for dinner . . . for 16 days straight!

He paused for a moment and held the form up as he tilted his head slowly from side to side in a curious way. By now his back was hunched and his teeth were showing — almost in a snarl.

'Heavy breathing'

Then he started to breath more heavily.

Something had caught his eye — laundry and other expenses! All the clothing he had ever owned was dry-cleaned at the TDY point . . . twice; $24.95 on day two and $24.85 on day 12 (no need for a receipt when its under $25, he must have thought to himself).

I know! I know! This all sounds fictitious. Well, that's what I thought when I saw his travel claim, so I gave him an opportunity to explain in greater detail.

Don't pad vouchers

Once the trauma of the metamorphosis was over and the traveler returned to his normal self, he realized how stupid it was to pad his voucher.

He reluctantly admitted the error of his ways and I reluctantly disallowed all those false items. He reluctantly paid back his large advance travel pay.

As he turned to walk away, I noticed another guy with pointed ears and hairy arms standing behind the counter.

CARE Line
 The CARE Line is prepared by Col. Richard E. Hearne, 64th Flying Training Wing commander. All information provided to the CARE Line will be held in strict confidence. Callers are urged to give their name and duty number so that a personal reply may be made; however, neither are mandatory. Callers are urged to use the CARE Line only after all possible means to air complaints through the chain of command have been exhausted. The CARE Line Ext. 3273.

A HOSPITAL PATIENT CALLED recently and asked why he had to wait for emergency treatment of a "bad laceration" while medical personnel spent time caring for "sore throats and runny noses."

Since the caller gave us no name, date or time, it's hard to say exactly what happened in this case. However, the emergency room does operate on a medical priority basis, not first-come, first-served. Everyone coming to the emergency room is seen, regardless of the degree of illness. Persons with relatively minor illnesses and injuries which can be treated through home-care measures are encouraged to make appointments in the Primary Care Clinic, to help us insure that only true emergencies are treated at the Emergency Room.

ANOTHER CALLER DIDN'T give us enough information to find a good answer to her question, either. She called and asked if the Security Police were having a contest in base housing, possibly to see who could issue the most traffic tickets. She also claimed the methods used by the police were "sneaky."

This person is encouraged to call the NCOIC of Law Enforcement at Ext. 3612 to discuss the specific situation in question. Regardless, the police do not compete in issuing traffic citations, nor are they usually "sneaky" about issuing them. We openly advise people of tickets issued when infractions are observed.

A GOLFER WAS MIFFED when he couldn't play the course recently because of a tournament being played. He wondered if we weren't holding too many tournaments, at the expense of the casual golfers on base who play only from time to time.

We agree that we have had more tournaments scheduled this summer than normal. This is due mainly to the large number of requests from charities and civic organizations we've received.

Still, we do our best to schedule these tournaments at times that will allow for regular open play. The recent July 4th weekend is a good example. Our base club championship was scheduled in the morning and the rounds were completed by about 1 p.m. This allowed for open play all three days, all afternoon.

We'll try to schedule all future tournaments to allow for additional open play time. Advance calls to the clubhouse should allow the casual golfers to make positive arrangements. The clubhouse number is Ext. 3819.

WE'VE GOTTEN A number of complimentary calls over the past couple of weeks and I'd like to pass some of them on to you.

First, a pat on the back to everyone who's done such a good job in keeping the grass areas around the base clean and neat. I don't know how long this person's been here, but he noticed how clean the base is and called to mention it.

A letter writer praised the Retiree Appreciation Day and the people that were involved in it. His comments paralleled the caller I mentioned in last week's column, but we certainly are pleased to hear that so many retirees appreciated our efforts and the event was such a big success.

Next, a patient of the emergency and primary care clinics was pleased with the way the people over there did their jobs. So am I. Keep up the good work.

FINALLY, I got a letter a couple of weeks ago from the father of a recently graduated UPT student. His comments are worth repeating.

"I wish that the editorialists and political cartoonists who sometimes portray an unfavorable view of America's military could have been with us when the members of Class 83-06 were awarded their wings. Not one of them could have failed to sense the pride expressed by the graduates, their parents, relatives and friends; the enthusiasm of the incoming class; the anticipation of the ROTC visitors; and the dedication of every officer and airman present. There is nothing wrong with America. There are just a few who fail to realize that because of all the people in that auditorium, those short-sighted few will continue to have the freedom to criticize."

This was a wonderful thing for a person to say about Reese and the military in general. We've taken our knocks over the years and, fortunately, things seem to be turning around as far as our image in the public mind is concerned. I know I'm proud to wear the blue suit and I hope that everyone else who wears it is proud of it, too. The job we in the U.S. Armed Forces do is of great importance not just to our country but to our friends and allies around the world. We all should be honored to be part of this effort.

Coffeemakers being recalled

The Consumer Product Safety Commission recently announced a voluntary recall of the model CMS1000 Mr. Coffee by its manufacturer, North America Systems. The coffeemaker was recalled due to a potential fire hazard.

According to Army Air Force Exchange Service officials the first recall was made in June 1982. At that time, the affected units were pulled from exchange and warehouse shelves and customers were notified to bring in defective coffeemakers.

Both the recalls involved the CMS1000 model Mr. Coffee with the digital clock and timer manufactured between September 21, 1981, and April 1982. Owners can identify a potentially defective unit by the three-digit code stamped on the bottom metal plate. The first two digits represent the week and the third digit represents the year. For 1981, the codes to look for are 38-1 through 52-1. Production codes for 1982 are 1-2 through 21-2. Exchange customers who still own a model CMS100 involved in the recall should bring it back to the Main Exchange for a full refund.

"IFO's" can cause damage

IFO's have caused windshield damage to at least three Reese autos and almost claimed the eye of one Reese individual during the last month and a half, according to Reese safety officials.

What are IFO's(?): "Identified Flying Objects." Unfortunately, they are usually identified after they have done their damage.

The average size of each IFO is approximately one cubic inch.

Launch site: Any lawn on base.

Means of propulsion: Lawn mowers.
Name: Stones.

A one cubic inch rock or stone by itself is not much of a threat sitting on a lawn. Combined with the slashing blades of a three horsepower lawn mower you have created a projectile capable of damaging property and eyesight.

The importance of checking lawns before they are mowed and using protective equipment cannot be over-emphasized. Not only does it protect property; it also protects the operator.

ASMC sets meeting

The Reese Windmill Chapter of the American Society of Military Comptrollers will meet at 11:30 p.m. on Tuesday in the Daedalian Room at the officers' club. The topic of the day will be "You and Investment Fraud" presented by Allen Bligh, president of the Better Business Bureau of the South Plains. A general business meeting with installation of new officers will also be conducted. All ASMC members and interested personnel are invited to attend. Call Ext. 3405 for more information.

Parents responsible for children's safety

By Capt. Carolyn Jaskowicz
Health Education Coordinator

Would you deliberately cause the death of your child?

Of 148 children killed in auto accidents between 1970 and 1980, 146 were unrestrained, according to figures from Ross Laboratories, a leading manufacturer of baby formula. If all the children had been restrained, there might have been more than 90 percent fewer deaths in this group. In another study of children held on adults' laps, 36 percent were crushed and killed, while all the holders survived.

In New Mexico, 14 children under age four died on state roads last year, and none of the 56 children under age six killed was in a car seat, according to a story in the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal. At any speed, even a minor accident can injure a child. A baby's head weighs more than its body, so in an accident the head acts like a missile and often propels the baby through the windshield.

Excellent protection is available in the form of approved child safety seats, which are 90 percent effective in reducing infant death. Today, only half the infants and 20 percent of toddlers use car seats, and three out of four devices are incorrectly used or not used at all.

Many parents confuse an infant carrier with a car safety seat. These thin plastic carriers offer no protection in a car.

A child usually behaves better when buckled into a safety seat, and accepts the seat as a way of travel, especially if trained from the first ride.

The responsibility for the safety of a child falls on the parent, therefore a crash-tested seat should be provided for the child. Car seats should be purchased as part of the baby's layette.

Law degree programs available to officers

Washington (AFNS)—Air Force Officers have two programs they can use to earn a law degree while on active duty, the Air Force Judge Advocate General announced.

Officers who graduate from one of the two courses and who are admitted to the Bar will become members of the Judge Advocate General Department.

The programs are the Funded Legal Education Program and the EXcess-Leave Program.

Up to 25 officers will be selected to enter law school under FLEP in the fall of 1984. This program allows officers to attend law school at government expense while receiving full pay and allowances. To be eligible, officers must be in grades captain or below and have two to six years' active military service as of the first day of class. The service requirement cannot be waived.

ELP selectees pay their own law school expenses and do not receive pay and allowances while in school. They return to pay status while performing internships during extended school breaks.

Officers in the ELP program also continue to accrue service time for promotion and retirement purposes. They remain eligible for other active-duty benefits, such as exchange and commissary shopping privileges, and medical services. Ordinary leave is not accrued for ELP candidates, but excess leave is not charged against their leave accounts.

Although the maximum of six years service does not apply to ELP candidates, there is a maximum three years' time-in-grade limitation for captains.

Eligible officers should apply for either or both of these programs from Jan. 1 to March 1, 1984.

Although the application period is several months away, Air Force legal officials advise candidates to arrange to take the Law School Admission test (LSAT). After taking the test, candidates must obtain the data-assembly service report that contains the results of the test. This report is part of the application.

The LSAT will be given nationwide Oct. 1 and Dec. 3. Closing dates to register for the tests are Sept. 1 and Nov. 3, respectively.

In overseas areas, the test will be given Dec. 3 only, with a registration closing date of Oct. 13.

Registration material and information may be obtained by writing the Law School Admission services, Box 2000, Newton, Pa. 18940, or by calling (215) 968-1100.

You may be bilingual and don't realize it

by Lt Col Dan Gomez
Director of Personnel

Don't you sometimes wish you could speak a foreign language and be bilingual? Well, chances are you already speak many words in Spanish, while still speaking English.

Spanish is certainly a foreign language; however, it is widely used throughout the United States.

Let me show you what I mean. If you shopped for a car recently, you may have looked at a Fuego (fire), Bronco (wild), Futura (future), Caliente (hot), Fiesta (party), El Dorado (baked, gold color), El Camino (the road), Ranchero (the rancher), Pinto (painted), Tiempo (time or weather). See, those Spanish words don't have as exotic a meaning as they sound, do they?

If you're around horses, you speak a number of words which are Spanish: rodeo (roundup), caballero (horseman or gentleman), vacquero (cowboy), loco (crazy), arroyo (ditch or creek), chaparral (desert bush or roadrunner bird), buffalo (buffalo), hombre (man). Sound like words from a John Wayne western.

Traveling? You might pass through El Paso (the pass), visit the city of Pueblo (town), watch the Dodgers and Padres (priests) play in Los Angeles (the angels), visit Santa Fe (holy Faith), Montana (mountain), Colorado (red), San Antonio (Saint Anthony), Palo Duro (hardwood) Canyon, Amarillo (yellow), Ruidoso (noisy), Los Gatos (the cats), Nevada (snow covered), Texas (friends), and El Cajon (the box). Each place probably has an interesting story on how it got its name.

When it comes to food, you'll find Spanish words like chili con queso (pepper with cheese), enchilada (something very hot and spicy), chile relleno (pepper stuffed), arroz cor pollo (rice with chicken), and burrito (tortilla with meat or bean filling — "burrito" means small donkey!).

Other everyday expressions have sneaked into English without us realizing it. For example "numero uno" (number one) is used by everybody who thinks he or she is tops, especially on TV. Hasta la vista or hasta luego (until we see each other again), vaya con Dios (go with God), que pasa (what's happening?), or adios (goodbye) are used frequently, much like greetings in French or Italian.

The word "savvy", meaning lots of knowledge, comes from sabe (he or she knows). Some country western songs, besides having lyrics in Spanish, have a Spanish title, like "The Matador" (bull killer), "A Mi Esposa Con Amor" (To My Wife with Love), "Adios, Amigo" (Goodbye, Good Friend), and "Pancho and Lefty" (Francisco (Pancho) Villa).

These are forty-seven words or phrases in Spanish that have become used in English as well. You're off to a good start, because there are many more in each category I've mentioned. Look into it, practice them, and you'll be speaking Spanish sentences in no time. Buena suerte!

Housing repairs begin

by Mark L. McMahan
Housing Officer

A project to add additional insulation and steel siding to all Reese Village housing units will begin in late July and continue about nine months.

Although the results will be a great improvement over what we have now, there will be some inconveniences. The most noticeable nuisance will be the installation of wall insulation from inside the unit. Occupants will be required to remove all pictures, mirrors and what-nots from the inside face of all outside walls when the contractor begins work on their units. This will keep any privately owned items from being jarred off the walls. Occupants will be notified in advance when work is to be done. Other inconveniences such as increased traffic noise, materials and workers around the units can also be expected.

We solicit your cooperation in the following: Keep children away from the contractor's equipment, materials, storage areas and workers. Control pets for their safety. Do not ask the contractor or workers for favors, since they're bound by the contract and cannot deviate from it.

If you have questions or would like further information about this project, please call DEEC, Ext. 3922.

Project Warrior

Take pride in the job you have (ATCNS) — Most civilians think everyone in the Air Force is a pilot. Right?

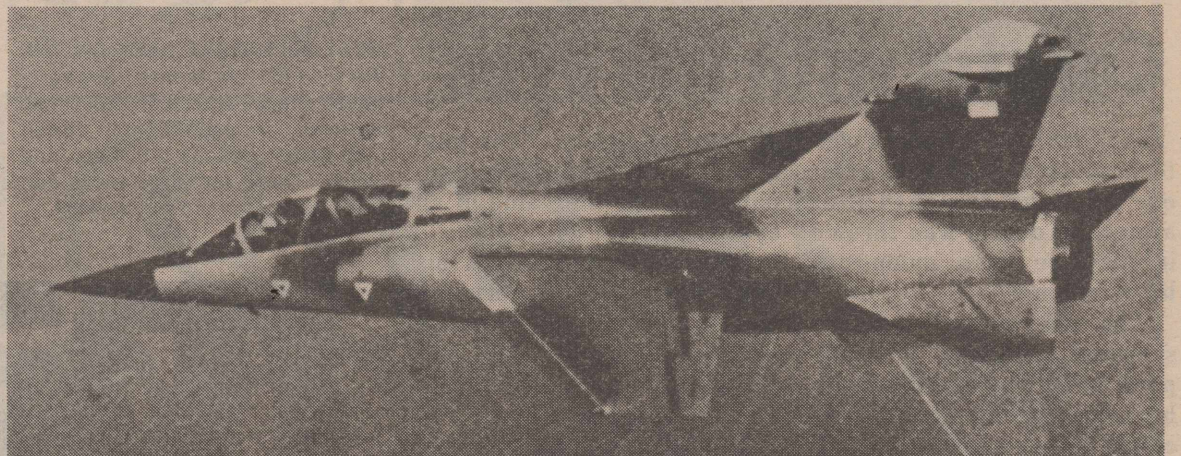

So, when a civilian neighbor or relative asks, "What do you do?", we hesitate. We stop to think because we have a natural tendency to want our job to sound glamorous and important.

The next time you're asked what kind of plane you fly, explain how support and operations teams work together to keep the birds flying. Tell with pride how you and your team help the mission. Your explanation may impress the neighbor or relative, but don't be surprised if it impresses you, too.

For, unless we stop to reflect on our own contributions to the mission, we risk getting bogged down in the daily routine. Just "keeping the boss happy" may be enough to fill the squares, but we must look for higher motivation to perform to the best of our ability.

And when your subordinate does a good job, tell 'em how quality wrench-turning, or paper-wrestling, or alert patrolling helped the base community meet its mission. You may just make their day. (Adapted from a MAC News Service editorial)

Suggestions earn bucks

by Hal Corbin
Suggestion Program Manager

The third quarter fiscal 1983 suggestion program was a profitable one, not only for Reese and the Air Force, but also for 22 Reese people who received cash awards.

During the quarter, those 22 members received awards totaling $5,565, bringing our total for fiscal 1983 to $15,650. Third quarter dollar savings were $18,533 to bring our year's total to $515,568. This gives us a productivity ratio of 33 to 1, $33 in savings for each awards dollar paid out.

The largest award this quarter was $2,100, shared by three NCOs: TSgt. John Schwarting, SSgt. Donald Locke and SSgt. Francis Cerasuolog, all of the 64th Field Maintenance Squadron Non-destructive Inspection Laboratory, who developed an improved X-ray technique for detecting cracks in a T-38 wing spar. The technique should improve flight safety for all T-388 and F-5 aircraft used by the Air Force and many allied countries.

MSgt. David Campbell, Data Automation Branch, was awarded $930 for his suggestion to purchase a tape certifier. The unit cost more than $15,000, but has already returned more than that amount in recertified tapes that have been returned to use.

We also recently learned that SSgt. Charles Gonzales of the 64th FMS received $1,275 for an idea he submitted at his last base. Sergeant Gonzales designed a tool for use on the A-10 aircraft that is now being used throughout the fleet.

Others receiving cash awards were: MSgt. Roger Coffman, OMS, $250; Sgt.

Paul O'Brien, FMS, $335; MSgt. John Curl, FTD, $150 (3); O.Z. Smith, FMS $50; SSgt. Jeff Steinkamp, FMS, $50; MSgt. Al Barboza, 1958th CS, $25; Major Edward Gorzyca, FMS, $25; SSgt. Carolyn Prokopik, 64th ABG, $375; Theresa Simpson, ADC, $375; SMSgt. Joseph Dykes, OMS, $345; A1C James R. Pasco, OMS, $50; James Truelock, SUPS, $25; MSgt. William Burkhardt, SUPS, $100; Paul Rocca, MA, $25; Bill Wright, DOOZ, $50; SSgt. James Moore, 64 ABG, $100; Jack Hood, ABG, $105 (2); Ray Ragan, SUPS, $100 and Richard Davis, ABG, $50.

Six other people received certificates. They were: Sgt. Rich Beno, hospital; SSgt. James Reys, civil engineers; Capt. Bruce Curry, 64th STUS; Sgt. Jack Snyder, OMS; SSgt. Carl Block, FMS and SSgt. Donald Lents, FMS.

For more information on the suggestion program, please check AFR 900-4 or call Ext. 3148.

Careful with the eyes

(ATCNS) — Doctors' efforts to save a sergeant's left eye failed just two days after a piece of debris was thrown in his face by a nylon-cord lawn trimmer.

The 36-year-old master sergeant, assigned to Sheppard AFB, Texas, was edging his lawn June 25 when the incident occurred. He was initially treated at the Sheppard Regional Hospital and later aerovaced to the Wilford Hall Medical Center at Lackland AFB, Texas. Surgeons there could not save his eye.

"Weed eating" type trimmers are advertised as safe, but they throw out debris at high speed. ATC safety officials warn that regular eyeglasses can't protect the eyes completely.

"When you buy a trimmer, buy a pair of safety goggles at the same time," said Col. Robert DeSanto Jr., ATC's director of safety. "The goggles are cheap when you compare them to the value of an eye."

The sergeant who lost his eye later said he normally wears safety goggles when using the trimmer. He just forgot to them them on the evening of the accident.

To use a lawn trimmer safely:

- Use protective eye wear.
- Keep hands and feet clean of the nylon cord.
- Keep bystanders and pets well away, too.

Protective eyewear is available in the Lubbock area. K-Mart Discount Stores sell special safety glasses for about $3 per pair. TG&Y Stores normally carry the eye safety goggles, but are temporarily out, and Target Stores carry the eye safety goggles — depending on the size needed they will cost between $3-$11.
