research falls behind

If you think the United States has been doing poorly in world economic competition of late, brace yourself. The situation is liable to get worse before it gets better if ever.

Or so suggest the results of a Conference Board survey of comparative research and development efforts in this and other major industrial countries.

The signs of continuing U.S. decline in an area in which the country was once pre-eminent are in a set of dismal statistics.

American R&D expenditures as a share of gross national product, a primary means of measuring scientific progress, have dropped from 2.64 percent to 2.22 percent in the last decade. During the same period, Soviet outlays have risen from 3.23 percent to 3.4 percent and spending by our friendly competitors in the free world shows a similar upward trend.

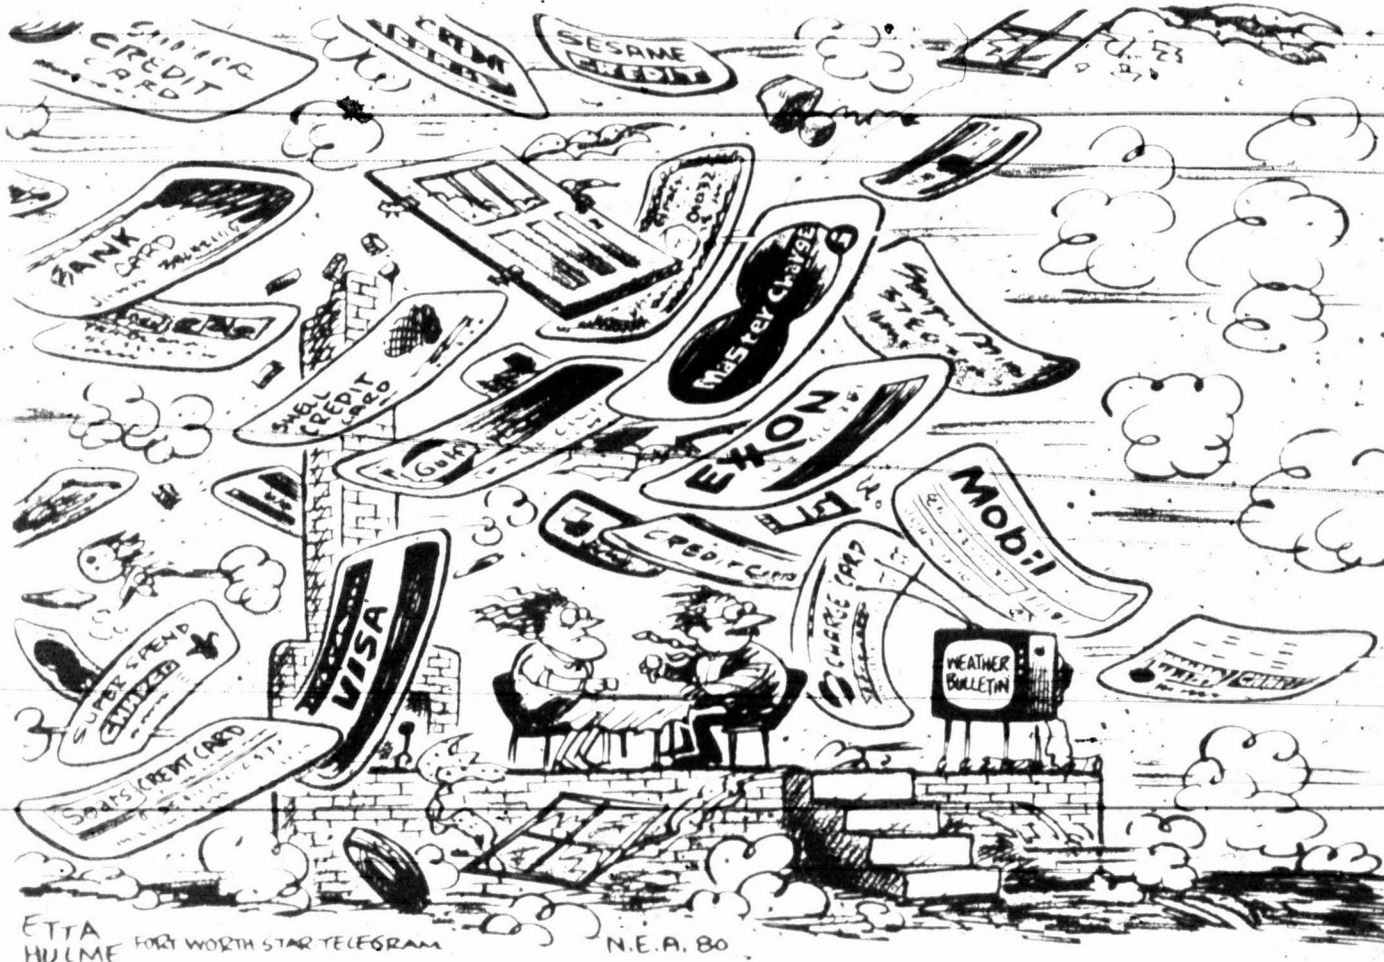

Further, the contribution by the federal government, traditionally the source of most research funding, has declined from 60 percent of all expenditures in the '60s to 50 percent currently. True, the budget for the next fiscal year calls for an increase of 13 percent over 1980, but there is now concern that this will be one of the first targets of the current inflation countering drive to trim the budget.

Shrinkage is also apparent in personnel. The U.S. pool of scientific and engineering talent declined by some 13 percent during the '70s. On the campuses, where much of the basic research is performed, there has been some growth, but at a rate of 2 percent or less compared with up to 8 percent during the '50s.

Meanwhile, the Soviet Union is estimated to have doubled its scientific workforce during the same decade while Japan, with half the population, about equals the United States in scientists and engineers.

There's more, but it merely reinforces the point. The significance of which is that if the United States is counting on advanced technology, in which it has been in the world vanguard throughout the postwar era, to compensate for economic ground lost by its aging heavy industries it would appear to be in real and deepening trouble.

In an increasingly technological world, stunting on the basic research from which new industries must grow all too easily and quickly translates into a stunted economic future.

unique voices

The sounds of your voice may be something very special.

Americans north, south, east and west used to sound like where they came from.

Recent years, radio, television and jet speed travel have conspired to homogenize us, to dilute sectional speech mannerisms to make anybody sound like everybody else. That is a shame. It is inevitable, but it is a shame.

If I am not already too late, I am determined to collect a library of recordings of what's left of our regional dialects so that subsequent generations will be able to remember us as we were.

I can remember when Memphis had four syllables and the word "yes" had three. There was a mellifluous softness in the vernacular of a Memphis, Tennessee that caressed the ears and excited the imagination.

The twang of a Panhandle Okie had a "character" all its own - as did the patois of a Louisiana bayou Cajun.

New Hampshire rurals almost had a language of their own.

And television's "red-neck Southern sheriffs" are an embarrassment to the people they're trying to sound like.

What has been left undone - and I hope and believe future generation researchers will appreciate this effort - is for us to compile a collection of recordings of the word combinations and pronunciations which flavored our language before...

their own Pennsylvania "dutchman" did.

Nowadays even Dixie is beginning to spell "y'all" as though it were two words.

Before the last of our distinctive, colorful expressiveness merges into a mongrelized Americanese, let's you and I capture on recording tape the remaining few whose speech remains distinctive.

I do not mean that this should be a collection of "humorous homespun sayings," nor should these be regional dialects improvised by professional actors.

The distorted draws you hear on the TV program "Dallas" are a crude caricature of the authentic.

And television's "red-neck Southern sheriffs" are an embarrassment to the people they're trying to sound like.

As a kid, I stayed away from the nickel toss and shooting galleries at carnivals, preferring the guaranteed return of a ride or cotton candy to the risk of winning trinkets and stuffed animals.

As an adult, the closest I've gotten to spreading my money around was buying a few financial advice books.

So in December, when another reporter in the pressroom at Alaska's Statehouse got off the telephone and announced he's arranged to buy several thousand dollars worth of silver, I took the bite.

I'd been reading about how silver prices were soaring, how they'd multiplied eightfold in just a few months time, but it all seemed so far away. My colleague's decision to buy brought home the possibility that yes, inflation-battered and exasperated, I too could jump on the bandwagon.

"You have to look at it as a long-term thing," he said. "It can't go down, and even if it does, it'll go back up. What are you earning, 5 1/2 percent interest? At an inflation rate of almost 20 percent?"

I told him to arrange to buy about $2,000 worth.

I figured I would just hang onto the silver for a few months, let it go up a little bit, then cash in and have a little more money for an investment not so speculative.

At the bank, I handed over a check for 40 ounces of silver - at $47.75 an ounce - and was told the two bars would arrive in a month.

By the time I got back to the office, The Associated Press wire reported that silver had closed for the day at $46 and change.

Ouch.

It's gone down steadily. I got to the point where I refused to even read the daily silver price reports. But, somehow, I was able to laugh.

Until the stories broke about the Hunts' misfortunes - and the plunge in silver prices to $11.60.

Those 40 ounces that cost me $1,910 now are worth a little less than $600.

Now, it's only knowing that there are others in the same boat that keeps me joking that I'll have the bars hammered into a beggar's cup or take them with me on my next trip to the dentist.

The word "lamp" is used throughout the Bible and generally means a small cuplike vessel, usually of earthenware, containing oil in which a cotton wick floated.

precious metals the near panic which, it has just caused can come as no surprise.

The only unusual aspect of the situation is that it is not gold that is the focus of all the furor but its less glamorous companion, silver.

Few outside the immediate family are likely to feel particularly sorry for Nelson and W. Herbert Hunt, the fraternal Dallas combine whose cornering of a large chunk of the world's negotiable silver stocks led to the great sell off in which they have taken a shellacking.

Those who play for big stakes - and considering that a few months back when the price topped $50 an ounce, their holdings may have had a book value of more than $10 billion, the stakes were very big indeed - can't avoid equally big risks.

But the financial community has cause for concern in the strain placed on several of its leading brokerage houses and in the revelation of the vulnerability of its procedures. And when the silver panic slopped over from the commodity markets into general stocks, slicing 25 points off the Dow Jones industrial average at one point, all the rest of us became passive participants as a consequence of the potential negative impact on the entire economy.

The experience has been sobering. Whether it has been constructively enlightening is still open to question.

Silver is in no greater or less supply, no more or less useful, now than it was before the price plunge. All that has really happened is that a very few individuals who sought to manipulate both demand for the metal and worldwide economic uncertainties for their own purposes have gotten burned - and in the process singed a great many others.

It is disturbing that their activities could have such widespread and potentially devastating effect, decades after such wheeling and dealing was supposed to have been brought under control.

Considerable critical fire has been directed in recent years at overregulation of much business activity.

This incident may suggest that there is at least one area in which there isn't enough regulation.

Noted People Guard Ages

NEW YORK (AP) Many famous Americans do not mind revealing their personal backgrounds, yet they resist disclosing their ages, reports Jim Bobulski, publisher of "Who's Who in America."

He says 29.46 percent of the women and 2.35 percent of the men in the reference book omit their birth dates in giving their biographical data.

Bobulski notes that one woman, rather than fill in a blank with her birth date, declared:

"Racks and thumb-screws could not extort it." Another person replied: "Have decided not to be born."

Still another wrote: "I am not young enough to be careless, nor old enough to be reckless."

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) - Nelson Bunker Hunt and his brother W. Herbert aren't the only ones who got hurt when the price of silver collapsed. A lot of small investors looking for a quick profit also are in pain.

Like me.

The Hunt brothers, usually described as Texas oil billionaires, haven't said how much they lost when prices slid from more than $50 an ounce in January to about $14.50 this week. But I know my investment now is worth less than a third of what it cost me.

I've always been one to turn my head to get-rich-quick schemes and to be continually amazed by those fell prey to them.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be very careful today about jumping to conclusions before all the facts are in. Premature judgments are apt to be erroneous.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be helpful to others today, but confine your aid to nonmaterial ways. Sound advice will do more good than dipping into your purse.

Beauty Is Discovered In Odd-Shaped Pearls

NEW YORK (AP)—Once upon a time, when every young lady wore white gloves and usually a hat, it was an absolute necessity to have a perfectly matched single strand of pearls with matching earrings, recalls Kae McCulloch, fashion director of the Jewelry Industry Council. "It's only today that the American market has learned what the world has known all along - that pearls needn't be milk-white and perfectly round," she adds. "In many countries, colored pearls are prized much more highly than white pearls, and baroque pearls are coveted for their unique shapes." Fashion today has concluded, she reports, that there is beauty in odd-shaped pearls and pearls with tints of color, such as the delicate pink of fresh-water Chinese pearls, and the silvery-gray hue of Japanese fresh water pearls. In fact, the Council points out, designers now use the color tones and asymmetric shapes of the pearl itself to create unusual one-of-a-kind jewelry. While today's string of pearls may not be evenly matched, or carefully graduated in size, they are still the "go-with-everything" fashion they were years ago, the Council says. And that goes for wearing them with everything from evening gowns to blue jeans, particularly designer-fashioned jeans. Pearls appear in many lengths, in single and multiple strands for eye-appealing neckwear, and in handsome pins, rings, and earrings, McCulloch notes. Pearls combine with gemstones, either on the same necklace or to wear mixed with gemstone necklaces. This spring, the "black and white" motif is seen in necklaces of pearls with onyx or serpentine stones. Pearls are used on gold station chains, and in delicate lariats. Often one large baroque pearl, set in gold, is worn on a gold chain. Fresh-water pearls range from the tiny, poppy seed-sized "keshi" to rice and jugged sizes. The mobes - dome-like pearls cut from the shell - are used in rings and pins. "Pearls are back in the fashion picture, a part of the now generation, and they're here to stay in a prominent way," Ms. McCulloch says.

Homeowners' Ties Are Greater Than Renters

COLLEGE STATION--Homeowners do have stronger community ties than renters, a recent study says. Recent home-ownership and voting practices comparisons show home owners voting at twice the rate of renters, which now proves a belief that many held but couldn't support as true, reports Jane Berry, a housing and home furnishings specialist. The difference in voting occurred regardless of age or race and apparently reflects homeowners' stronger community ties and interest in government decisions, she explains. Dr. Berry is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. Length of residency was a factor in voting, with longtime residents more likely to make the trip to the polls, she continues. Sixty percent of the people who had lived in the same house for at least six years voted compared to 26 of those who had resided there for less than a year. Voting was especially low among new residents age 18 to 24, with only 15 percent voting, Dr. Berry points out. Another study comparing mobile home owners suggests that rental or ownership of the mobile home site also makes a difference in voting practices among mobile home owners. The specialist says. This study, conducted with a 10 percent random sample of mobile home owners, reports that those who own the land or site on which the unit is located were more likely than homeowners in rental parks to have voted in the last presidential election as well as in the last local election. Sixty-nine percent of the site owners voted in the presidential election compared with 58 percent of the site renters. Fifty percent of the site owners voted in the last local election compared to 30 percent of their site-renter counterparts, Dr. Berry adds.

Women Runners Ignore Rains

SAN DIEGO (AP)—Recent torrential rains didn't stop 1,600 women runners from competing in the all-women's L'eggs YWCA 10,000-meter road race. Among the entrants was a San Diego politician, 2nd District Councilwoman Lucy Killea, who wouldn't think of not running, even though the race was physical rather than political.

In Effort To Clear Up Confusion...

FDA Publishes Additive Leaflet

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Since the gasoline crunch has become a fact of life, I have stopped driving my car to work in favor of taking the express bus.

I am appalled at the total lack of breeding exhibited by those who ride the buses. They discuss the most personal things at a shouting pitch.

Without wanting to, I have learned what color shorts one woman's husband prefers, and even more personal preferences expressed by tasteless loud-mouths who ride the bus.

The other evening, on returning home, a group of regular riders passed around cans of beer, large bottles of wine, potato chips, salami and cheese.

Are these people so friendless that they have to do their social interacting on the bus? How do I escape?

NAUSEATED IN NORTHBRIDGE

DEAR NAUSEATED: Buy a transistor radio with an earplug attachment, and stick it in your ear!

DEAR ABBY: I work for five doctors. I've been here for only one year and have the responsibility of running the entire office. There are four psychologists and one psychiatrist (the boss, whom I will call Dr. J.). There is another girl in this office, and between us we book the appointments file, type, fill out insurance forms, call in prescriptions, do hospital billing, etc.

The girl I work with is blond, cute and well-built. She's nice and we get along fine. What bugs me is that she can get away with anything. If she starts working on an insurance form and it gets tough, I have to finish it.

If I tell Dr. J. that he is behind on his dictation, he gets hostile and asks me not to bother him with that. If the blonde tells him, he smiles and thanks her.

I'm tired of doing most of the work and not being appreciated. Don't tell me to find another job. I really like my work. Besides, we're in an area where the auto industry just laid off 3,300 workers and jobs are scarce. Any suggestions? —HAD IT

DEAR HAD IT: Tell Dr. J. that for the sake of his business and your peace of mind, you simply must unburden yourself. Then let him have it. And if he knows which side his bread is buttered on, he will be more sensitive to your feelings and will show more appreciation and consideration in the future.

DEAR ABBY: I can't understand why a woman would feel hurt or insulted if a widower proposed to her and offered her his late wife's wedding rings.

When I was 19, I married a man with five sons ranging from 9 to 16 years old. His wife had been dead for two years. When he offered me his first wife's rings, I felt honored. To me it symbolized that he loved me as much as he had loved her. Furthermore, I felt that if I could accept five human beings that were her flesh and blood, I could certainly accept the rings she had worn.

Although it was hard for the boys to accept me at first, after two years we have a loving family relationship. —PROUD TO BE NO. 2

DEAR PROUD: You are No. 1 in expressing an unusually broadminded, unselfish attitude.

By COURSE CORNER Associated Press Writer. There's more to most food products than meets the eye—or the taste buds—and increased attention is being focused on the additives that can change the appearance and flavor of what we eat.

In an effort to clear up some of the confusion surrounding the thousands of extras in the U.S. diet, the Food and Drug Administration has issued a leaflet, "More Than You Ever Thought You Would Know About Food Additives." It is available, at no cost, from the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 545H, Pueblo, Colo. 81008.

Many people think salt drive is synonymous with "artificial" or "chemical." But the FDA notes that the most commonly used additives actually are the natural ones—sugar, salt and corn syrup.

The agency says more than 2,500 substances are deliberately added to foods today. An additional 10,000 substances wind up in various foods unintentionally, through processing, packaging or storage.

Some consumer groups argue that there are too many additives in food. They contend that the additives—even if safe—are unnecessary. Manufacturers, on the other hand, say buyers would not recognize many of their favorite products if they were not for additives.

By law, the names of additives must be included in the list, although general terms—“artificially flavored” or “artificially colored”—may be used in some cases.

Additives can be broken down into four general categories.

The first group is used to maintain or improve nutritional value. It includes things like the vitamin D that is added to milk, the vitamin A in margarine, the vitamin E in fruit and the B vitamins in breads.

The second category keeps products fresh or makes them last longer. Preservatives, for example, protect cured meats from contamination by the toxin responsible for botulism. Antioxidants prevent foods that are exposed to air from changing color, texture or flavor.

The third type aids in processing or preparation. Emulsifiers, for example, prevent peanut butter and mayonnaise from separating. Thickeners create smoothness. Humectants keep moisture in foods.

The final and most widely used group of additives is designed to make food more appealing by improving the look or taste. It includes artificial and natural colors and flavors.

The Food and Drug Administration regulates the safety of food additives, but it has no power to limit the number of additives or decide whether they are necessary.

The FDA says it is up to consumers to weigh the advantages and disadvantages of individual additives. "You might want to continue buying bread with sodium propionate if you know it prevents mold, but you may not want to buy cookies that are artificially colored," the FDA leaflet says. "It's your choice."

In Tomball Crash...

Engine Trouble Suspected

TOMBALL (AP)— Authorities say a light plane apparently had engine trouble just before it plunged to the ground and burst into flames, killing all four persons aboard. The airplane, a single-engine Cessna Skyhawk, was enroute from College Station to Hooks Memorial Airport north of this Southeast Texas Community Sunday evening when it crashed in heavy fog and mist.

Airport dispatchers Ken Walden said the craft was returning to the privately owned facility where it was based.

"They were on an instrument approach to our airport," said Walden.

SMU Makes Serious Series Of Cutbacks

DALLAS (AP)—Facing a deficit spiraling upward from $6 million, Southern Methodist University has decided to risk alienating fans and alumni by aiming the financial scalpel at the athletic department.

"What we have deduced is that we have a program of intercollegiate athletics that is too big for us to support," said SMU President Dr. James Zumbege. "Our cost of maintaining it is going up faster than the revenue we can take in from it. That is caused mainly by inflation, by the cost of everything going bananas.

Men's golf will be terminated next year, and men's baseball will continue as a club sport until scholarships run out, said Zumbege, adding that some academic programs also will be trimmed.

Of the university's cumulative deficit, about $2.5 million is in the athletic budget, he said, the results of an annual athletic deficit of about $400,000.

Zumbege said football and basketball—the traditional revenue sports—have been under pressure the past 25 years to earn enough money to support other sports programs.

It's ironic, he said, that those sports are generating more money than was demanded, but inflation hiked expenses even higher.

"Before inflation went double digit, if it cost us a couple of hundred thousand per year to maintain a sport, it was no big deal," he said. "We said the benefits of name recognition and alumni links...made that a reasonable price to pay for excitement and interest in the school."

Zumbege said he will discuss the cuts with Athletic Director Ross Potts, coaches, and students before going to the trustees.

Deciding which sports to cut requires consideration of several factors, he said.

ACU Vaulters Bitter Over Olympic Boycott

AUSTIN (AP)—Abilene Christian's fine pole vaulter Billy Olson is another in a growing list of American athletes who disagree with President Carter about the Olympic boycott.

Olson, who set a new Texas Relays record in the pole vault Saturday with an effort of 18-1 1/2, said, "To be an Olympic champion is every athlete's dream."

"I don't agree with what President Carter is doing. I think it's just a political move that Carter is using to be re-elected."

"I don't like being used. If we don't go to the Olympics, nothing would be feasible as an alternative. To compete in the Olympics is the greatest thing in the world."

Another competitor, Texas A&M's Curtis Dickey, said, "I would have like to have gone for the Olympics. I feel sorry for the others if they have to miss it because football is my main concern."

Dickey won the 100-meter dash in 10.19 seconds and anchored Texas A&M's record-breaking 400 relay team.

He is looking at potential big money, starting April 29, when he is expected to be a first-round National Football League draft pick.

Dickey is showing the professional scouts that he is fully recovered from injuries which hampered his football playing his senior year.

He said, "I know it helps (with the pro football scouts) to win a big meet like this...right now I feel better running this spring than I ever have because I'm not all bruised up and tight. That's what football does for you."

Rockets Zap SA Spurs; Boston's Celtics Next

HOUSTON (AP)—Houston Rockets Coach Del Harris took one look at Moses Malone's face Sunday night and realized the San Antonio Spurs were in for a rough evening in their National Basketball Association mini-series playoff game.

"Mo is a money player," Harris said. "I've seen that look of determination in his face a few times before and he had it tonight."

Malone nullified a 37-point performance by NBA scoring champ George Gervin with 27 points of his own and 20 rebounds to lead the Rockets to a 141-120 victory to wrap up the best of three mini-series 2-1.

Houston now moves on to a best-of-seven semi-final playoff series against the Boston Celtics, and the Spurs already are warning the Celtics to beware if Malone still has that look in his face.

"The way Malone is playing right now, I don't know anybody in the NBA that could stand up to him," said Spur forward Tom Bassett. "If he plays like he did tonight, (Dave) Cowans is in for a rough series."

Malone controlled the boards at both ends of the court in the first half against the Spurs, scoring 20 points and grabbing 13 rebounds. The Rockets could shake the high-scoring Spurs however, leading only 58-54 at the half.

Then came the powerful third quarter when the Rockets outscored the Spurs 17-2 in the first four minutes and it was Malone and Calvin Murphy who delivered the knock-out punches.

Murphy finished with 33 points, including 15 in the breakaway third quarter. Murphy closed out Houston's third period by scoring seven points in the final 35 seconds.

"There is no use talking about what happened in the third quarter," Gervin said. "I just want to say, may God bless those guys who are still playing. I thought we played Houston very well right down to the last minute." Malone admitted to having that special gleam in his eye against the Spurs.

"When we get to the main game I'm ready to play, I'll go out with a hurt foot," said Malone, referring to an ankle sprain he suffered in the final regular season game against Indiana. "It was a matter of which team was going to take a vacation, San Antonio or Houston. Personally, I didn't want an early vacation so we went out with the intention of winning."

The first game of the Boston-Houston series will be played Wednesday in Boston and the second game also will be in Boston on Friday. The series shifts to Houston for games Sunday and Monday.

Cuevas Takes Out Opponent

HOUSTON (AP)—World Boxing Association welterweight champion Pipino Cuevas of Mexico tinkered with South Africa's Harold Volbrecht through four rounds Sunday until he found the left hook he needed.

Then, from somewhere south of the border, he delivered it to the jaw of the unsuspecting Volbrecht, who had become overconfident from earlier success, and the game challenger never saw what hit him.

Volbrecht, who had taken the fight to Cuevas in the first three rounds, went to the canvas at 1:19 of the fifth round. Volbrecht said he was not hurt until Cuevas' deadly left hook took him by surprise.

"I was hitting him in the earlier rounds and I just got overconfident," said Volbrecht, 146 1/2. "I started throwing punches wildly and he finally just took advantage of it."

For Cuevas, who prides himself in his knockout record (10 knockouts in 11 title defenses), it was a change in tactics.

"I had said I would try to knock him out in the first round," said Cuevas, 146 1/2. "But I let him get confident in the first few rounds and then he started to get careless."

"We made a mistake," Volbrecht said. "I had planned to fight him through eight rounds and then box. But it didn't work out that way."

Volbrecht, 23, came out of a clinch with a small cut over his left eye in the first round, the result of a butt, but he was clearly the aggressor and seemed to confuse the champion with his left-handed style.

The other top individual performances in the 43rd annual event were a record-breaking long jump by Houston's Carl Lewis and three fine anchors by 28-year-old Texas-El Paso sophomore Suleiman Nyambui of Tanzania.

Felines Are Third At Spur Relays

SPUR—Brenda Anderson came away with a first and two seconds and teammate Pam Brown brought home another blue ribbon as Snyder High School placed third in the Spur Relays here over the weekend.

Anderson took first in the shot with a heave of 36-4, placed second in the triple jump with a leap of 31-6, and recorded a 13.2 in the 100-meter dash for another second.

Brown, who went to state last year in the 100 meters, won here with a time of 13-flat.

Snyder rolled up more points as its 880-yard relay team netted a second place with a 1:58.3, and its 440 relay team took third place with a 55.4.

Problems Again In Yankee Linetup

By The Associated Press
As usual, the owner and manager of the New York Yankees are at odds with one of their outfielders...but this time the cast includes a couple of new characters. Don't go looking for Reggie Jackson in this brouhaha. Owner George Steinbrenner is the only constant. The manager these days is Dick Howser, not Billy Martin, and the outfielder in question is, of all people, Sweet Lou Piniella.

After reversing themselves twice on the subject of intrasquad games when the Major League Baseball Players' Association struck the last week of exhibitions, the Yankees finally agreed to some intrasquad contests.

Howser left it up to the individual players and Piniella was one of those who declined to play. That was OK, but Piniella also sounded off about it and that didn't sit well.

"I told Lou if he didn't want to play, he didn't have to, but I didn't want him bitching about it," Howser said. Piniella went home.

"I'm disappointed in Piniella," Steinbrenner said. "Wait until he comes to me and asks me to do him a favor."

Elsewhere, two pitchers currently on the disabled list tested their ailing shoulders with positive results.

Dennis Martinez, a member of the Baltimore Orioles' starting rotation, threw for 20 minutes and reported no problems.

Tiger Baseballers Taking On Lamesa

LAMESA—Snyder's Tigers, 1-1, hope to bulge their win column here Friday, the Tigers play host to loop-leader Brownfield at 4:30. They'll stay at home to entertain the Golden Tors on April 15, then travel to Brownfield for an April 18 game, completing the first round of district play.

The round-one champion gains an automatic berth into any district playoffs, if necessary. Round two begins April 22 as Snyder hosts Brownfield.

Snyder, under Coach Albert Lewis, has won the district for the past three years. However, Brownfield, the only 3-AAA team with veteran pitchers returning this season, has been given the favorite's role in 1980.

10,000 Cubans Flock Into Peru's Embassy

By NESTOR K. IKEDA
Associated Press Writer
LIMA, Peru (AP)—More than 10,000 Cubans have overwhelmed Peru's embassy in Havana seeking to escape President Fidel Castro's communist rule in what Peru government calls "an unprecedented human tragedy."

Angry pro-Castro Cubans gathered outside the temporary embassy compound on Easter Sunday and hurled sticks and stones at those clustered inside, injuring a number of them, the Peruvian Foreign Ministry said.

"You can hardly walk inside" the embassy grounds, Foreign Minister Arturo Garcia told a news conference.

Some of the Cubans climbed trees in the crowded embassy garden while others perched on the roof of the two-story mansion, a Foreign Ministry communique said. It reported cases of dehydration, sunstroke, gastroenteritis and trauma in the crowd.

The Foreign Ministry said about 800 persons left the embassy Sunday after being granted safe conduct passes permitting them to return.

Garcia appealed to the international community for help and asked the Red Cross to feed the crowds. He said there were only five Peruvians on the embassy staff and they left to spend the night elsewhere.

"Peru cannot take charge of 10,000 refugees, no country can do that individually," Garcia said. "This is an unprecedented human tragedy."

Hundreds of Cubans began pouring into the compound in Havana's Miramar residential district on Friday after the Cuban government removed its police guard outside the embassy. The government said it removed the guards because one of them was killed in a gunfight last Tuesday when six Cubans rammed a bus through the embassy gate to seek asylum.

Two dozen Cubans had sought refuge in the embassy since Jan. 1. The Cuban government accused Peru of giving refuge to "common criminals and anti-social elements."

"From now on the officials of that embassy will be responsible for anything that happens there," the Castro regime said. "I don't believe the Cuban government expected this response," Garcia said. It was a "veritable invasion," he said, as he blamed the Castro regime for creating the situation. On Saturday, the Cuban government said it would allow those in the embassy to leave the Caribbean island nation, without reprisals, if other countries agreed to accept them. But it said this did not include the original 24 Cubans at the embassy because they used force to get in.

In Miami, the Spanish-language radio station WQBA broadcast an all-night appeal for food, medical supplies and money to aid the Cubans at the embassy. Jorge Luis Hernandez, the station's program director, said about 4,000 persons donated items Sunday in Miami's Little Havana district, an enclave of refugees from an earlier Cuban emigration after Castro seized power in 1959.

Avoid baking soda

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB— I'm a 36-year-old male. I'm 6 feet tall and weigh 180 pounds. I have trouble with gas. I take ordinary baking soda for it and it gives me relief. My question is, does ordinary baking soda taken on a daily basis cause any harm?

DEAR READER— Yes, it can if you take too much too often. That's why baking soda treatments for acid conditions have been largely replaced with modern antacids. Baking soda is completely absorbed into the bloodstream. This can upset your body chemistry. It can also cause you to absorb a lot more calcium into your system, some of which may settle in your kidneys and other soft tissue. This is particularly true if a person has a high calcium diet (usually from milk) and uses large amounts of baking soda at the same time.

I'm very skeptical about baking soda eliminating gas problems for you anyway. In fact, it may cause gas by the release of carbon dioxide in the stomach when it reacts with stomach acid.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 6-8, Controlling Gaseousness. It will give you a better idea of what causes gas and some more effective ways of doing something about it. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

You should see a physician to find out what your underlying medical problem is. If you need an antacid, he can recommend one for you that would be better than using baking soda.

DEAR DR. LAMB— I read your column in our paper about the importance of calcium in a person's diet. This struck a note with me because I can't use any milk. Let me explain. I'm 48 years old and for most of my life I've been plagued with sinusitis, colds and upper respiratory infections. I even started developing polyps in my nose and I have trouble breathing through the nose because of this. I even had polyps removed surgically.

I began to suspect I had a food allergy and insisted on being tested for it. The very first test showed that I was allergic to milk. Since then I've eliminated all sources of milk in my diet as well as chocolates, shellfish and strawberries. All of my symptoms disappeared. I began to breathe normally and I feel like a new person. But, of course, I'm a little concerned about the fact that I'm not getting any calcium.

Since I can't consume any dairy products, what would you advise me to use?

DEAR READER— At the age of 48, you certainly should be concerned about having an adequate calcium intake. The next time you go to your grocery store, go to the baby-food section and look at the canned milk products. There are some products that are made only with soybeans and contain no milk at all. An example is ProSobe.

If for any reason you can't use the soybean milk products, then you should ask your doctor to give you a prescription for calcium tablets.

Cement Cost To Increase

MIAMI (AP)—Consumers may soon unhappily label cement "gray gold" because of impending price increases, warns a top official of the nation's largest cement producer.

"Cement plays a basic role in our lives and economy, but cement supplies have become tight in many areas," said James Stewart, chairman of Lone Star Industries here.

Stewart expects cement prices to double within five years. Because cement accounts for about 9 percent of the cost of most new houses, price increases would send home costs spiraling even higher.

"It is now an economic certainty that cement will become even more scarce and therefore more valuable in the future," he said. "If oil is black gold, cement is certainly gray gold."

Cement prices, which have risen to $50 a ton from $17.20 in 1970 are expected to hit $100 a ton by 1985, Stewart said. Lone Star cautioned from consumer groups as the price hikes grow.

"Cement, in a manner of speaking, is turning to oil. The cement industry may soon face the same public criticisms being made against the oil companies in the United States," Stewart said.

Not Always Car's Fault

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—When it comes to cars, everyone loves to hate a lemon. But sometimes it's not the lemon's fault.

The Better Business Bureau has found that only about one of every three dissatisfied General Motors customers has been vindicated in third party arbitration hearings run here since December 1978.

The program is part of a pilot project sponsored by the company and administered by Better Business Bureau offices in Minnesota, the San Francisco Bay area, Buffalo and Philadelphia.

In Buffalo, there were 309 complaints between December 1978 and March 28. Of these, 28 were resolved or being resolved through negotiated compromise.

Of the 78 cases that went to an arbitrated conclusion, 23, or 29 percent, were settled in favor of the consumer; 48, 62 percent, were settled in favor of GM; and seven, 9 percent, resulted in split decisions, with each side paying part of the repair bills.

The program is a court of last resort, short of legal action, for unhappy owners of Buicks, Cadillacs, Chevrolets, Oldsmobiles, Pontiacs, and GMC trucks that are less than three years old and have been driven less than 36,000 miles.

"Most of the people who come here have been to their dealers and contacted the GM zone offices," said Cynthia Sinnott, who manages the bureau's dispute settlement department. "They have had to pay very costly repair orders, but feel some parts should last a lifetime."

Mitchell County Election Results

COLORADO CITY—Mitchell County voters elected the following candidates to office Saturday.

In the Mitchell County Hospital District Board election a record 790 votes were cast. Filling the three available seats will be incumbent Rob Reily, 650 votes; incumbent T.C. Moore, 496 votes; and Bobbie Steakley, 451 votes.

Other candidates in the race were Frances Derigibus, 344 votes and Carroll (Bud) Hull, 282 votes.

In the Colorado Independent School District board of trustees race 740 votes were cast. Three positions were open with five persons running. Two incumbents won reelection.

rather than give out at say, 13,000 miles; right after the warranty expires."

She said the bureau tries first to mediate the problem through the Automotive Consumer Action Program, a service of the Niagara Frontier Auto Dealers Association.

Most cases are settled at that stage. The remainder go to arbitration, which is legally binding on General Motors but, in Buffalo and San Francisco, not on the consumer. Elsewhere it is binding on both parties.

City Police

Report Theft,

Burglary

A theft and burglary were among the items reported to police during the weekend.

David Meyer, 2701 Ave. X, told officers Don Whittenburg and Steve Warren that someone broke into his place and took a television and some beer. The loss was estimated to be $150.

Sunday, Kerry Fritz investigated a burglary report at the city animal shelter. Reports indicate the facility was broken into and several dogs were missing.

The only traffic accident of the weekend took place in the 100 block of College Ave. Sunday at 11 a.m. It involved a 1980 Pontiac driven by Joe Flores of Plainview and a 1979 Chevrolet driven by T.T. Lowe of Santo. The accident was worked by officer Joe Bob Martinez.

Iran Pulls Diplomats From Neighboring Iraq

By The Associated Press
Iran pulled its diplomats out of Iraq today and reported a new Iraqi raid on its southern oil installations as relations frayed between the two Middle East neighbors. Iran's official Pars news agency said Iranian diplomats in Baghdad, the Iraqi capital, were ordered home because of strained relations between the two countries. Pars also said about 70 Iraqi raiders attacked oil installations and a police post in the southern Iranian border province of Kermanshah. The raiders were repelled by Iranian fire, Pars said. No casualties were reported but an oil storage tank was damaged, the agency said.

Pars also reported that Iraq had driven 1,300 people across the border into Kermanshah Province today and Sunday. "It was not clear yet" if all those forced out of Iraq were Iranians, the agency said. On Sunday, Iraq sent a letter to U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim demanding that Iran withdraw its troops from three islands west of the strategic Strait of Hormuz in the Persian Gulf. The official Iraqi news agency quoted the letter from Foreign Minister Saadoun Hammadi as demanding Iran "halt its expansionist and aggressive policy." Iranian forces of deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi occupied the strategically important islands of Abu Mousa and the Lesser and Greater Tumbs in November 1971.

Iran and Iraq have engaged in an increasingly bitter war of words since Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's Islamic revolution toppled the shah in January 1979.

In addition to the territorial dispute, Iran has accused Iraq of aiding secessionist Kurdish rebels in northern Iran and mounting border raids against its southern oil facilities. Iraq recently accused Iran of engineering the attempted assassination of a Deputy Premier Tareq Aziz.

Murder Victim Lived In Fear

DALLAS (AP)—For most of her life, Debra Martinson lived in fear of strangers hiding behind locked doors and refusing to open them to visitors she did not know.

The 28-year-old nurse and mother pushed furniture against the doors at night and often slept under the bed when her husband, Don, was away, according to neighbors.

Friends said they had to telephone in advance if they wanted to drop by to visit her. She was taught from childhood to let no strangers in her house, and she grew up determined to make herself safe from intruders.

"My daughter would not admit a total stranger to her home," said Debra's father, John Monroe Woodson. "She would not open a door to a caller unless she could see him or knew him."

Her precautions were wasted. Last week, she was found dead on the floor of her bedroom, a macramé plant holder wrapped tightly around her neck.

A message had been scrawled on her mirror in rosy pink lipstick. It said: "Now we are even Don." "She had a horror of dying like this," said a close friend who requested anonymity. "Debbie Martinson would open a door to nobody."

Don Martinson, 32, a civil trial lawyer, found his wife's body when he returned home after a day on jury duty.

Their infant son, David, was crying in his crib but unharmed.

Martinson said he had tried to call his wife at 5 p.m. and again at 5:30 p.m. There was no answer.

He has yet to get police a detailed statement. A partner in his law firm said Martinson was distraught and under sedation.

"There's not a whole lot we can do on this case until we get some information," said Sgt. Bill Park, head of the police investigating team.

On Friday, however, noted criminal defense attorney Phil Burleson retained as a "consultant" in the case, said Martinson was ready for questioning. Burleson was one of the attorneys who successfully defended Fort Worth millionaire Cullen Davis.

Questions For Census Taker

OLD LYME, Conn. (AP)—Instead of just asking the questions, door-to-door census taker Art Smith had to answer some the other day at the police station. That'll teach him not to let his blue-and-white identification badge blow away in the wind again.

He was taken into custody last week after a woman, who didn't believe Smith's story about a lost badge and sent him packing, called state police.

The troopers released Smith, crew leader of a Groton-based federal Census Bureau work force operating in southeastern Connecticut, after checking his story.

OBITUARIES

Schaufele

Funeral service has been set for 10 a.m. Tuesday in Lewiston, Idaho, for Mark Schaufele, 20, who was killed in a traffic accident Friday night.

He was the son of the Rev. and Mrs. Otto Schaufele and attended Snyder High School. His father is a former minister of First Christian Church in Snyder.

Friends here learned that he was killed when his car went out of control and skidded into a guard rail Friday night when he was en route from Lewiston to Denver, Colo.

Mrs. Hinz

Funeral arrangements were pending at Bell-Seale Funeral Home for Mrs. Brenda Hinz, about 35, who was found dead Sunday night.

Dan Callaway, justice of the peace, said that Mrs. Hinz, who resided in a house trailer east of town with her husband, had been under medication. He said that a coroner's verdict would be delayed until reports are returned on analysis of blood samples sent to Department of Public Safety laboratories.

Mrs. Hinz was found dead by her husband, Melvin Hinz, when he returned home after work late Sunday night.

Seeking New Solutions To End Child Stealing

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—At age 3, Christopher Ascarte has been kidnapped twice.

His mother, Lorie Kesler, is accused of snatching him at a California supermarket and spiriting him away to the little Utah town of Beaver.

Three months later, two men grabbed the boy out of her car on Main Street.

With police in pursuit, the men sped four miles to an air strip and jumped in a plane that Christopher's father, Max Ascarte, had kept idling. The police car, siren blaring, chased the plane down the runway, coming within 10 feet of the aircraft.

It was "right out of the movies," says Earl Dorius, who is handling the case for the Utah Attorney General's office. Both parents face criminal charges of child snatching here in Utah and she in California.

But with as many as three child snatches in Utah in one month alone, and national estimates of 25,000 to 100,000 each year, authorities in several states are trying to find civil rather than traditional criminal remedies for what is sometimes called custodial interference.

"There's been quite a dramatic increase in the last five years of child stealing extraditions. It's a rather common occurrence and a widespread problem in the country," said Dorius.

"We're trying to work out a harmonious solution without trying to put two parents in jail," he said. "They get really ugly. A lot of emotions run very high."

The states' efforts to solve the problem seem at variance with a bill currently under congressional consideration. The measure would make child snatching a federal crime, with a penalty of six months in prison for parents who kidnap their children.

The Carter administration opposes the bill because of the cost—an estimated $200,000 a year for investigators from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare—and because it would put the FBI in the midst of domestic squabbles. Utah has joined 17 other states in passing an act that establishes uniform criteria for "which is the best court to resolve the issue of custody," Dorius said. "It requires courts of different states to work together rather than have this battle of judgments, with spouses going to court in different states."

Seismic Action May Be Slowing

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP)—Seismic activity at Mount St. Helens, the long-dormant volcano that has caused an eruption of excitement since it began belching ash, steam and gas nearly two weeks ago, may be leveling off, scientists say.

The drop in movement over the weekend contrasts with Thursday and Friday when harmonic tremors—rhythmic seismic activity as opposed to conventional earthquakes—were interpreted to mean a violent lava eruption was imminent.

But there was still plenty of activity at the southwest Washington peak, scientists said. Several earthquakes that measured more than 4.0 on the Richter scale, a level of ground motion, rocked the mountain on Easter Sunday and new ash settled on the volcano, authorities said.

The states' efforts to solve the problem seem at variance with a bill currently under congressional consideration. The measure would make child snatching a federal crime, with a penalty of six months in prison for parents who kidnap their children.

"I am personally opposed to the use of the extradition process in criminal proceedings to resolve what I perceive to be a highly emotional, domestic dispute," the governor wrote. "The preferred remedy of course would be a full hearing of the issue of custody when both parents are present and can testify. Criminal prosecution of each parent would hardly be in the best interests of the children."

In another case—this one resolved—A Colorado woman snatched her 12-year-old daughter who had become "distracted and despondent" living with her father, Dorius said. The mother "snatched the child from school, pulled up roots and came to Utah and settled here," he said. The father sought extradition of his former wife, but Utah authorities explained the "mother's side of the story" to the Colorado prosecutor, who then withdrew criminal charges.
