LULAC Told Further Progress Is 'Up To Us'

LULAC members were told that further progress in the fight against discrimination is up to them. The League of United Latin American Citizens (LULAC) held a meeting in San Antonio to discuss the current state of affairs and the role of its members. The speakers emphasized that while the organization has made significant strides, the ultimate success of the fight against discrimination depends on the actions of its members.

No advertising for tobacco products is permitted in the mass media. Posters and media spots announcements urge people, particularly young people, not to start smoking. And for those who do smoke but may wish to stop, there is advice on where to seek assistance. No smoking is the rule on public transportation and increasingly in restaurants and other public places.

It sounds familiar. And it is, as a matter of fact, very similar to the anti-smoking campaign, by private organizations with partial federal backing, that has been under way in the United States for more than a decade. Except that the measures cited in this instance are being taken not in the United States but in the Soviet Union.

The effect of smoking on national health is one issue on which the superpowers do not find themselves at odds these days. Not only are they in agreement, but they have considerable company. Almost all of the developed countries are similarly discouraging the smoking habit among their population. Even China, the world's leading tobacco consumer, is attempting to decrease usage.

The consequence is not, as might be expected, fewer smokers, worldwide. For as their numbers in the developed countries peak and in some cases decline, they are multiplying in the developing world.

It is a development that has attracted the concerted attention of the World Health Organization, which has made it the subject of a special report on what it sees as one of tomorrow's major health hazards to the Third World.

The reasons are several. WHO finds, for one thing, although smoking is indigenous to many countries in the Western Hemisphere and goes back to the start of this century and earlier elsewhere, it was not until after World War II that smoking spread throughout many poorer societies and began to be promoted as a source of commercial profit. With a less developed mass market, there is more potential for growth than in the richer countries.

Also, authorities in many developing countries are encouraging local production. Tobacco regarded as a profitable crop with the expertise for cultivation and processing readily available. There are hopes in many regimes not only of supplying local demand, and in the process expanding a source of tax revenues, but of developing export markets.

They are likely to be disappointed, according to WHO, because they are entering the market too late and with too little. It is already cornered by the big international tobacco companies. And in what WHO sees as their sales attentions to the developing world at the very time that consumption at home is dropping off.

Worst of all are the sales tactics being employed. Where cigarette packets in Western countries by local law must carry health warnings — Sweden uses 16 variations in wording so that the message isn't dulled by repetition — these are not generally required on exports.

More, manufactures are switching to low-tar products at home. In what is being termed the "tar wars," in the $17 billion U.S. industry, 43 percent of all cigarettes sold are now in the low-tar (15 milligrams or less) category compared with 10 percent only five years ago. The trend is not as exportable as the product, however. Spot checks, according to WHO, indicate that cigarettes shipped to developing countries have tar contents several times that of the identical labels sold in the countries of origin.

And then there is advertising. Where in most developed countries associating smoking with sex appeal, athletic ability, social achievement and the like is now discouraged, in the Third World, as WHO notes, "anything goes." "Every emerging nation has a cigarette to cater for it" and success, consumers are assured, is reached "on a magic carpet of cigarette smoke."

It might be explained, if not condoned, as economic imperialism on the march as usual, merely doing what comes naturally, were it not for the health aspect which is of serious enough concern in the exporting countries to prompt efforts to curb tobacco use at home. But it is a concern they are not exporting, and the developing countries themselves show no inclination to follow the example.

As a result, WHO observes pessimistically, "there seems to be nothing that can prevent the Third World becoming tomorrow's disaster area."

Your Birthday

April 29, 1980

This coming year offers you the opportunity to meet many new and exciting people. Judiciously choose the ones whose friendships you care to cultivate. An unwise choice could dilute your happiness. TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your friends may be backing you up in an adversary situation today, but that doesn't mean you are right. Turn the coin over and look at the other side. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph Letter, which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Get your broom and be ready to go to work. That rug you've been sweeping everything under is about to be lifted, and you'll be standing in a cloud of dust. CANCER (June 21-July 22) Complications could arise today when one who thinks he can get away with it may try to manipulate you through clever pressure tactics.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If the stand you take today on an issue doesn't meet with majority approval, be prepared to start running. The pack will be nipping at your heels. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Try not to get into a debate with an opinionated person today. Each of you could say things you might regret saying later.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Caution is essential in the handling of any financial situation today. If you can put things off until another day, do so. SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It would be foolish to let another make an important decision for you today. If he or she makes a mistake, you're the one who'll be held accountable. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't count on anyone else to carry any share of your workload today. They wouldn't come through, and you're the one who will shoulder all the consequences. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It's good to be independent, but not to the point where it meets with disapproval by your peers. This is one of those days when it's best to please the majority.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Your image is fragile today, so don't be intimidated by the arrogance of another and stoop to his or her level by responding in kind. PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Carelessness in respecting others' opinions could get you into hot water today. Hold them in proper regard if you want the same treatment. ARIES (March 21-April 19) Review your financial picture realistically before committing yourself to a situation you can't afford. You could blow that surplus you just acquired.

Which way do you think is best for picking pre-idential candidates? Would you let the professionals do it in some smoke filled room, or would you opt for waiting on the outcome of the primaries, the system currently in vogue?

According to a recent poll, Americans are becoming disenchanted with the latter system. Many people don't think it is doing a good job of coming up with the best of the breed. They see a collision between Jimmy Carter and Ronald Reagan in November, a squareoff they wouldn't have picked in January. In short, the critics look back with misgivings, convinced that the people with the financial backing and the good speech writers early on do not always stand up under close scrutiny.

For all its faults, the old way of leaving the choice in the hands of professionals at least provided for consideration of something more than how glib a candidate is, or how much money his camp can pour into a media campaign.

It must be conceded that the result would have been the same this year, even had the old system been in operation. Carter is an incumbent president and for that reason alone, would have been exceptionally hard to replace. Reagan, from the start, has had the support of the keepers of the Republican ideological flame. He might have had a harder row to hoe on the way to the Republican National Convention but he would likely have gotten there, if for no other reason than the fact that the party owed him one.

Professionals tend to weigh electability heavily, particularly when they are members of the party not in power at the moment.

Conrad Ford, by passing the word he was available, might have become the nominee. Even when Ford was hot, however, he seemed to sense that the die had been cast, that the odds still favored Reagan.

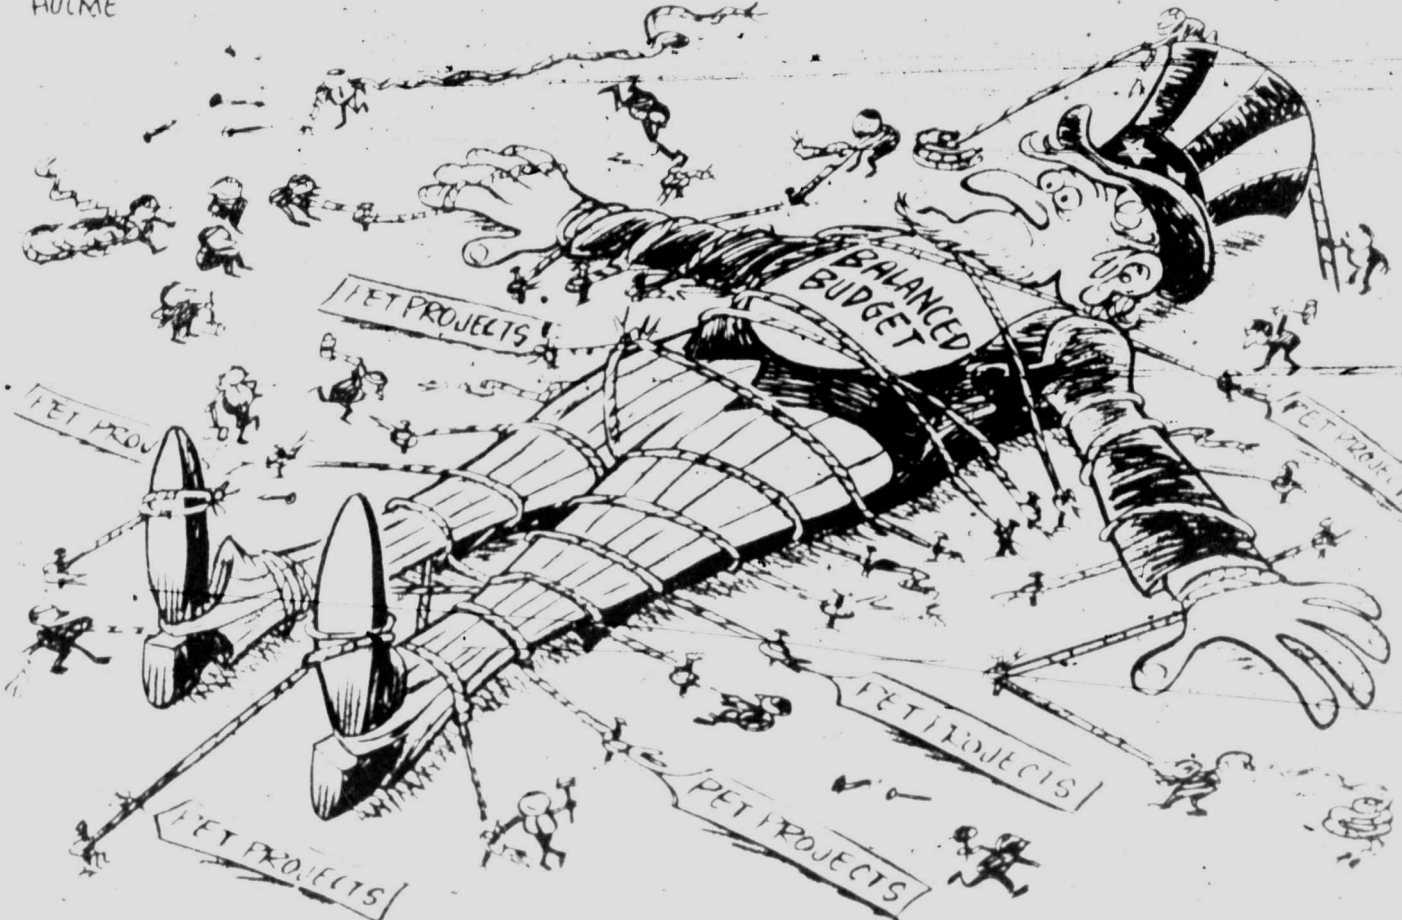

That, however, is not an argument for the primary system. Circumstances going into 1980 might have been different. Had primaries not been scheduled then, prospective nominees would have spent months, not weeks, wooing party pros, establishing contacts and taking up political debts, instead of planning speeches in the all important first primary. And there would have been favorite sons, holding blocs of delegates, until convention time.

Now, much of the thrill has gone out of an election year. The issue is being settled months before the conventions. That allows no consideration of events which may yet occur. And the issue is being decided by a relatively handful of voters in some states, voters who do not have the standard of gauging a candidate's fitness for an appearance on a 30 second TV spot.

The old way, at least tested qualities needed to govern. The successful nominee without primaries needed political skills of a sort necessary in a president. He had to build coalitions, he had to deal in realities regarding issues, and he needed to demonstrate a capacity for decision making and compromise. Now, all he must do is raise money, hire a media team of experts and dodge the issues with a broad smile.

That's no way to run a railroad, much less a country.

Do you know how parents spell relief?

WEDDING.

In case you haven't noticed, no one cries at weddings anymore.

The mother of the bride groom is hysterical. She is not losing a son. She is gaining a closet and respectability.

The father of the bride groom is relaxed and free of pressure. He has wanted 24 years to hear someone else look into his son's eyes and whisper those three sentimental words, "Get a job."

The mother of the bride is sparking. She has finally, through her good example, convinced her daughter there is more to a marriage than happiness.

The father of the bride is exuberant. He could never really understand what a relationship was, let alone explain it to Grandma.

The atmosphere at a wedding, especially a large, formal one, is lousy with optimism. And well it should be. It means adults have succeeded in introducing to the couple the big three: responsibility, commitment and guilt. There are few young people who can walk away from it and feel nothing. I don't know if people who are wed in a big ceremony stay married longer or if it just seems longer, but the m-confluence is there.

Would you tell your mother you're splitting BEFORE she makes the last payment on the liver pate?

Do you want to tell your father it was all a mistake when he's stuck with a maxonite-stained cummerbund that he had to buy and will never be able to wear again?

Who among you would be cruel enough to separate before the wedding proofs take? What kind of a thoughtless daughter would sweat in a $300 wedding dress and not stay married long enough to see it cleaned and stored in a moth proof see-through, hermetically sealed bag?

Very frankly, there was a time right after we were married that we were both ready to hang it up, but we had 13 days left on a two-week honeymoon and we knew they'd never have returned his Dad's deposit.

I know of another couple who would have split, but hung on until the local paper printed their wedding picture. By that time it was too late. She was expecting.

I've been to weddings so shaky the bride caught her own bouquet and ceremonies were the bride wore something old, something new, something borrowed, something blue and it was the same thing — tears.

But nothing makes for a long marriage like a large reception filled with both families, swelling punch, throwing wedding cake, gossiping and apraising to wedding guests to make the newlyweds stop and think. "If we divorce, who gets custody of these relatives?"

gm has problems

NEW YORK AP — It may not be totally accurate to say that as General Motors goes so goes the economy, but you can't dismiss the notion either. GM is big, pervasive, powerful, influential.

It does have an effect and it reflects too. What happens to the country or a section thereof is likely to affect GM. And what GM does is likely to be stamped on an area and the country's economy.

It has that effect because, for example, in the past three years it has sold 2.5 million vehicles, earned nearly $10 billion, employed an average of about 300,000 workers and paid them $30 billion.

That's the beginning. In those same three years more than half of GM's total revenues of more than $175 billion went to pay suppliers, in so many areas and industries it would take a catalogue to list them.

So how is GM doing? Not so good. Sales have fallen, profits have plunged, and layoffs are increasing. More than 220,000 blue collar workers and 20,000 white collar workers have been cut or laid off.

The problems could continue too, because GM isn't fully attuned to the market. Between now and 1985, it must spend $38 billion to meet fuel efficiency goals and the public's demand for more miles to the gallon.

GM has problems, and so has the economy of the United States. And the outlook, short term, isn't very good.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Oswald: "One of the many differences between match point duplicate and regular bridge is the so-called match point double."
Alan: "This is a double of a vulnerable opponent's part score bid in order to inflict a one-trick penalty and score a 200-point plus. Such doubles are downright silly in rubber bridge since they risk a tremendous point loss, but in match points the doubler is betting a top against a bottom."

Oswald: "Such doubles frequently win tournaments when they work. They lose them when they misfire."

Alan: "East's double of three spades is an example of this double at its worst. East hoped to scrounge five tricks and get that magic 200 points. He got them, too."

Oswald: "It wasn't quite as bad a double as it looks. After all West had bid a notrump earlier in the bidding and West certainly didn't have his values. In any event East took his ace of hearts at trick one and returned his singleton diamond. South won in dummy and led the three of spades."

Alan: "When you make desperate bids you must make exceptional plays. East hopped with his ace of trumps and led a club. West took his ace and led a diamond. East ruffed for the fourth defensive trick and West set the hand with his king of trumps."

Oswald: "As Shakespeare said, 'Alas well that ends well'."

Losing 92 inches cut my weight problem down to size

"When I bought these size 18 jeans, I weighed 202 pounds," says 5'4" Sandy Camp of Dangerfield, Texas. "I managed to take off 20 or so on my own, but then I was stuck. That's when I went to Pat Walker's."

No-sweat exercise is the secret

After her introductory treatment on Pat Walker's Symmetricon passive exercise unit, Sandy knew that she'd come to the right place. She felt rested and relaxed—not sweaty and exhausted. She didn't even have to change into exercise clothes. And before many weeks went by, she could see how her figure was being toned and firmed up. Sandy eventually lost 13 inches from her waist, 12 inches from her tummy, 11½ from her hips, and several inches in other areas.

Complete privacy is your privilege

If wearing a leotard embarrasses you... if you don't like revealing your figure problems to a roomful of strangers, then Pat

Walker's is your kind of place. Every aspect of your weight loss program—from counseling sessions about sensible eating habits, to Symmetricon treatments—is totally private. We think you deserve that.

Today, even Sandy Camp's husband loves to buy her new things to wear, now that she's down to 124 pounds and size 8. Sandy's success story could be yours. Make an appointment for a free, no-obligation consultation at Pat Walker's. We'll tell you how much you need to lose, how long it will take—and the total cost of your complete figure correction, based on four dollars per thirty-minute treatment.

Bentsen Supports 6 Year Term For Presidents

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, says a single 6-year term for a president would be an improvement over the current system.

"I think we ought to push for a 6-year term," he said. "I think I ought to start on that next year, make it a project."

Bentsen advised a staff member standing nearby not to let him forget about his impromptu planning.

The senator, an unsuccessful presidential candidate four years ago, said the campaign now goes on too long and is decided too early.

"That means that the process of selecting a president really needs some major changes," he said. "The two parties really have to go to work and try to change the process, shorten the period of time."

Bentsen said the length of the campaign works to exclude almost anybody who has a job, such as a senator.

He was asked at a news conference Thursday to predict the outcome of the upcoming Texas presidential primary.

Bentsen replied that he expected President Carter to do very well against Sen. Edward Kennedy D-Mass., on the Democratic side.

But Bentsen declined to make any predictions on the race between Republicans Ronald Reagan and George Bush.

"I'm going to let the Republicans settle their own fight," he said. Bentsen defeated Bush in 1970 to win a first term in the Senate.

Kathy Doria put off her plans to go to law school after she was offered the new position of director of Hispanic affairs at the Democratic National Committee.

"I figured in a national election year, you can learn a lot," the 27-year-old San Antonio woman said. "The task here is overwhelming. I could get very caught up just in convention logistics."

Ms. Doria predicts that Hispanics will have more representation this year at the Democratic national convention than ever before — somewhere between 150 and 350 delegates.

"It's my hope that Hispanics will emerge as the best organized group at the convention," she said in an interview. "I think this time the leadership is going to be very firmly backed up by a bloc."

Ms. Doria arrived in Washington less than a month ago.

"I've got a tremendous credibility building to do," she said.

The job was offered to her after the DNC met last year in San Antonio, where she was active in the Texas Mexican-American Democratic organization.

Ms. Doria was working as a paralegal in San Antonio, her hometown, after returning from seven years of studying and working in Massachusetts.

Rep. Kent Hance, D-Texas, says he warned President Carter that the votes the president won in Texas farm areas four years ago might be lost unless the administration changes its agricultural policies soon.

"A lot of people said the farmers were frustrated, and I told him that in my district they were mad."

Hance said after attending a White House meeting Wednesday between farm state congressmen and the president.

"I felt that maybe someone had not been telling him what the feeling was among the people," the Lubbock congressman said.

Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, is calling for the Carter administration to change its policies for control of livestock predators.

The senator wants to see research resumed on the banned chemical compound 1080.

Tower said Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus ignored scientific recommendations made by the livestock industry and U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service staff when he banned further federal research into the chemical compound 1080 last fall.

"He (Andrus) has chosen a political course for the animal damage control program," the senator said in testimony before the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee.

Tower has introduced a bill that would legalize use and research of compound 1080. The bill also calls for a balance between lethal and non-lethal methods of predator control.

Bentsen also testified before the committee that held two days of predator control hearings last week.

He urged Andrus to reconsider his decision to halt the compound 1080 research program. But Bentsen said he could not support immediate use of the chemical unless it were cleared by the Environmental Protection Agency.

"However, I will expect EPA to consider any application involving 1080 or other toxins scientifically, objectively and expeditiously," he said. "It is not the mission of EPA to consider applications on political grounds, whether they be environmental politics or livestock industry politics."

Bentsen, who has South Texas ranching interests, said he agreed with Andrus' intention to move federal predator control program away from lethal methods when effective non-lethal methods can be developed as replacements.

Mrs. Black 'Boss-Of-The-Year'

Mrs. Jean Black, owner of the Snootie Fox, has been named the operator of the Snootie 1980 Boss of the Year by Scurry County Chapter of the American Business Women's Association (ABWA). The award was presented by Mrs. Inez Teaff, Boss Night Chairman, April 24, at the chapter's 20th annual Boss Night Meeting.

Mrs. Black has had her beauty operator's license for 20 years and has been the owner of the Snootie Fox for nine. The shop employs seven operators, two of whom have been associated with Mrs. Black for more than nine years.

Mrs. Black's husband, Vonnie, is employed by Sun Oil Co. They have two daughters, Vicki Johnson of Snyder, and Pam Walker of Abilene. They also have four grandchildren.

Boss Night is an annual event established to honor employers of ABWA members and to familiarize employers with the educational association. Mrs. Jan Lanier, Sue Ferguson and Nona Williams, operators for the Snootie Fox, nominated Mrs.

Black for this honor. Dr. Carl Dillaha, specialist in the field of family practice, was the guest speaker for the event. His topic was "Stress-Related Problems in Women."

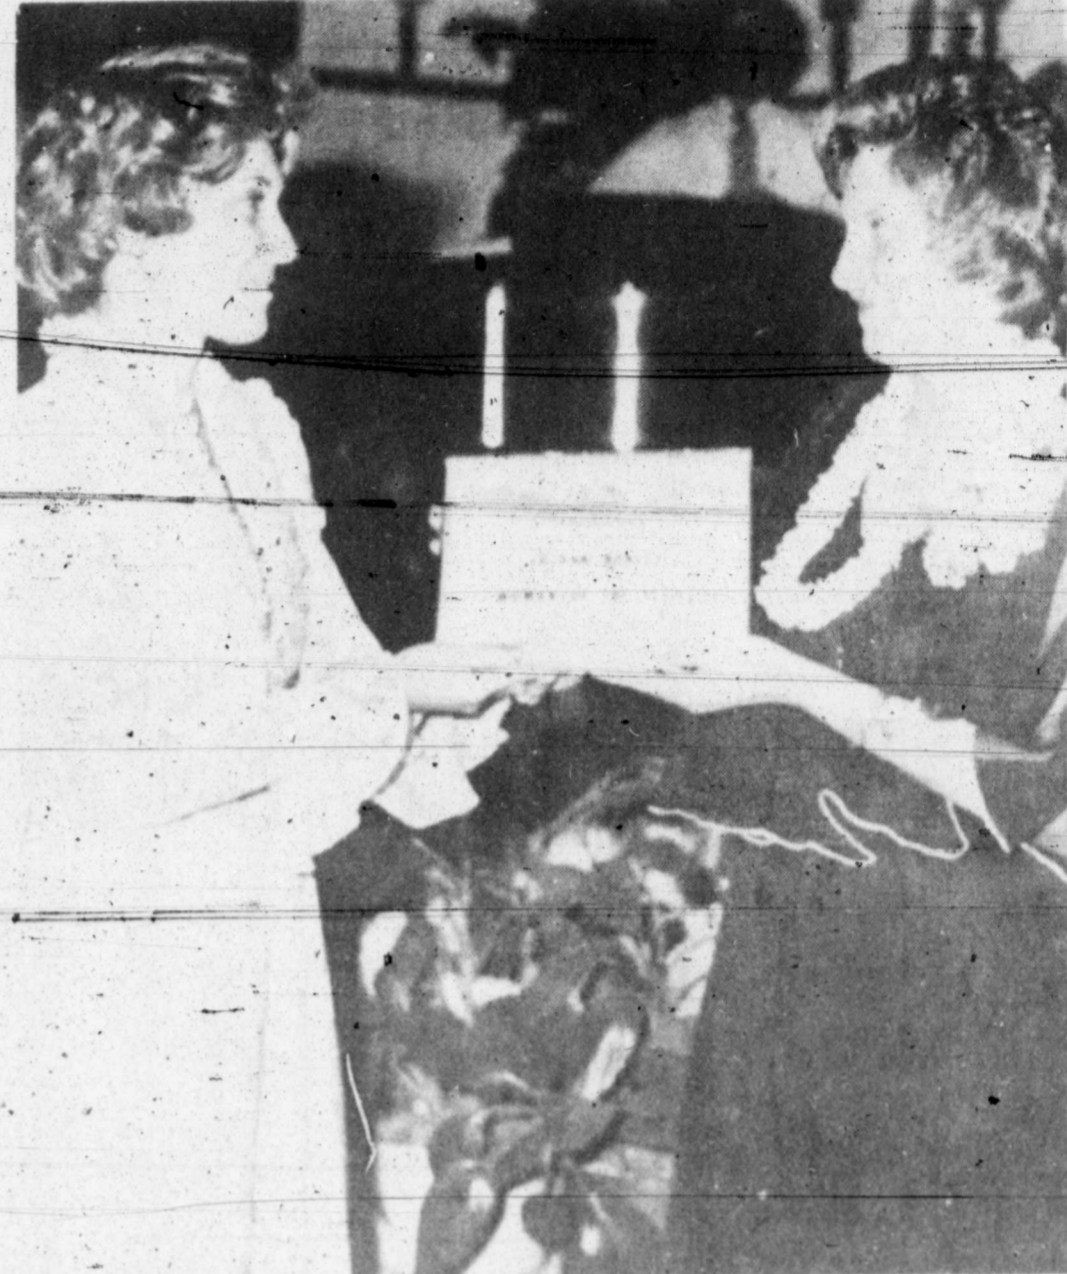

Mrs. Jesse Scarborough, deputy clerk in the Driver's License Office of the Texas Department of Public Safety, gave the vocational talk.

Mrs. Verna Foree gave the history and growth of ABWA. Scurry Chapter was organized in 1949 and has grown to a membership of 90.

ABWA is dedicated to promoting the professional, educational, cultural and social advancement of business women. Now in its 30th year, the association has more than one million members in all fifty states and in Puerto Rico.

One of the association's most noteworthy projects is its scholarship program for women. The combined chapters of ABWA, totalling over 1600, awarded more than $1 million in scholarships on local levels the past year. An additional $1.5 million was awarded through SBMEF, the association's national scholarship fund.

Those desiring further information about ABWA may contact Mrs. Jackie Hackfeld at 915-573-2873, or 573-6763.

WOMAN-OF-THE-YEAR—Jo Ann Nunley, left, women's editor of The Snyder Daily News, received the Beta Sigma Phi Woman-Of-The Year award Saturday night at the organization's annual banquet. Making the presentation is Mickey Baird. The local chapter of Beta Sigma Phi selects a woman for the honor each year. Mrs. Nunley was cited for "having done her work cheerfully, patiently and creatively—well above the required standards of her job." The award, it was noted, was "a special way to say thank you for Mrs. Nunley's tireless efforts in producing pictures and articles which have been such a compliment to the women's organizations of Snyder. Trouble Caused By Joy Riders

A night of joy riding landed four juveniles in trouble.

The four juveniles, report deputy sheriffs investigating the incident, took four vehicles from Pearson-Sibert Oil Co. in Ira Saturday night and went helter-skelter in a joy riding spree. The youths were rounded up later that night.

The case has been referred to the juvenile probation officer.

Colombian Ambassadors...

Labels Former Captors As Spaced-Out Teeny-Boppers

HOMESTEAD AIR FORCE BASE, Fla. (AP)—U.S. Ambassador Diego Asencio, freed after 61 days as a hostage in Colombia, called his guerrilla captors a "bunch of spaced-out teeny-boppers" and said he nearly dissuaded some of them from Marxism.

An exuberant Asencio told a State Department spokesman he could have converted a few of the leftists to "capitalism if he'd had more time with them in the Dominican Republic Embassy at Bogota.

"They didn't have the foggiest idea what the real world is like," spokesman David Passage quoted the 48-year-old diplomat, as saying.

Asencio, who was freed in Havana on Sunday along with 11 other captive diplomats, arrived here 20 pounds lighter and with a bushy gray beard.

On the 40-minute flight to Homestead, he expressed "no sympathy" for his Marxist captors, but "considerable human understanding," said Passage.

"He said he was making great progress in converting some of them to capitalism," Passage said, by telephone Sunday from the ambassador's suite at the base.

"A number of them were quite surprised at some of the things he said...he thought with a little more time he probably could have converted half a dozen or so of them."

The spokesman said Asencio, the U.S. ambassador to Colombia since 1977, was in excellent health and his mood was "celebratory...like somebody who had just won the 'Fort Lauderdale Open' or something."

Asencio stepped off the chartered plane into the arms of his wife, Nancy, and daughter, Maria. His other daughter and three sons arrived later Sunday for a reunion, Passage said.

The hostages, who were accompanied on a flight from Bogota by 15 leftist guerrillas, were greeted in Havana by Passage, two American doctors and Samuel Eaton, a deputy assistant secretary of state. The papal nuncio, Msgr. Angelo Acerbi, and a Vatican negotiator flew with the Americans to Homestead, then left immediately, Passage said.

Passage said Asencio, who did not speak with reporters, would stay here two days, resting, visiting his family and being examined by doctors. He then will fly to Washington for debriefing.

The ambassador said the guerrillas were "a very mixed group, some of them being hard-core Marxists, other being rather fuzzy-minded ideologues of one sort or another," Passage said.

"There was no sense of ideological purity - some of them were just teen-age adventurers."

Details of the settlement with the guerrillas were not immediately known, but they were reported to have won international guarantees governing the conduct of political trials and other assurances their rights would be protected.

But they did leave the country without gaining the release of jailed comrades, as they had originally demanded. They also originally had demanded a ransom of $50 million and worldwide publication of their manifesto, neither of which they got.

Precinct Convention Chance For Personal Say

AUSTIN (AP)—Voters who want to have a personal say in how their political party operates this presidential election year should attend precinct conventions Saturday night after the polls close.

Those neighborhood gatherings are the last chance for a person to have a direct vote in party affairs, unless he or she is one of the few delegates chosen to county, state or national conventions.

The precinct convention not only involves the selection of a presidential nominee, particularly in the Democratic Party, but also the stand the party will take on public platform issues.

Resolutions passed in precinct conventions indicate public opinion on issues in which the politicians should be interested.

Much of the clout of the Republican precinct meeting has been removed this year because selection of delegates to choose a presidential nominee will be based on the May 3 preference poll, not decisions made in conventions.

However, GOP precincts will consider resolutions and other party matters.

The Democratic precinct meetings are all-important as the first step in choosing the Democratic presidential nominee. The presidential preference poll held by Democrats May 3 is merely a "beauty contest," with the final decision left to state convention delegates.

When Democratic precincts convene at 7:15 p.m. Saturday, or later if there is still a voters' line, the first action will be for each person attending to sign in, according to his or her presidential preference.

Any presidential candidate getting 15 percent or more support at the precedent gets his share of delegates to the county conventions.

At the county level, there is another sign-in to determine division of the 3,900 delegates to the state Democratic convention in San Antonio, June 20-21.

A final sign-in at San Antonio decides how Texas' delegates will vote on a presidential nominee at the New York national convention.

Under Democratic rules, one third of the delegates from a precinct to the county or senatorial district convention must be of the opposite sex from the rest of the delegation.

After selection of delegates, there may be a quick vote for adjournment in some precincts with no more action. In other precincts, the arguments over resolutions is likely to go on and on.

State headquarters for the Democratic and Republican parties say they have recommended no statewide resolutions to the precincts, but this does not mean that local issues will not spark plenty of controversy.

Westerners Nationals Bound!

by the SDN Sports Staff
ROSSELL, N.M. — Coach Bob O'Day likens his Western Texas College golf team to the United States hockey team competing in the Winter Olympics. The group has already passed through the underdog and Cinderella stages.

"We have really come on strong this spring. You know, we didn't have a good fall. But we've worked hard, the last month especially. We worked seven days a week. The only time I let them off was Sunday mornings for Sunday School and church," said O'Day. "It was just a lot of hard work and dedication and that's the reason why we're going to the national tournament."

"National Tournament? That's right, Coach O'Day's Westerners fired a final round 295 to finish Saturday's regional tournament here with a total 885 — good enough for second place and a trip to the NJCAA National Golf Tournament to be held the first week in June at Fort Myers, Fla.

McLennan, one of two No. 1 ranked teams in the nation, came up with a final 291 for a total 882 and first place. The two top teams automatically qualify for the national tournament.

The Westerners, staffed largely with freshman talent and not really considered a threat earlier this year, had already won their fourth Western Junior College Athletic Conference championship here Friday, defeating second place Odessa by seven strokes, 299 to 306. The bid for nationals was a higher race.

"After 18 holes, we were seven shots behind McLennan," recalled O'Day. "Then through 26 were we a shot ahead, 590-591 and Odessa was 13 back. But the final 18 became a foot race. Odessa turned the first 18 seven-under and we were five-over. McLennan was four-over. So going into the final nine, WTC and McLennan were tied and Odessa was a shot back," the coach added.

"McLennan finished three strokes ahead of us and we finished three ahead of Odessa (885-883)."

In addition to qualifying for the national tournament, Western Texas placed four individuals on the All-Region's Team — Jeff Wagner, freshman, and Ken Lawrence, sophomore with 219 each; freshman Richard White with a 220; and sophomore Mike Cotter with a 223.

"I compare this team with the United States hockey team," said O'Day. "Individually our goal is to make All-American. Our team goal is to win the national championship. If a ball or two bounces the right way for us at the right time, we might make it. It's possible. These kids think they can do it."

Western Texas College's dream of winning the conference this year was considered just that — a dream. Odessa, New Mexico Junior College and Midland were all thought to have a better chance.

The Westerners made it happen. Who is to say No. 1 in the nation is impossible?

Red Richardson of Lubbock and son Randy of El Paso won the First Flight with a 70-67-137. In second were Ben Parks and Gene Steakley of Colorado City. Another Snyder pair, John Lack and Dutch Stehley, carded a two-day 146 to win the Second Flight by three strokes over Alton Patterson, Snyder, and Robert Sterling, San Angelo. 76ers Eliminate Boston Celtics BOSTON (AP)—Julius Erving wants to play a team with an injured center. Lionel Hollins wants to play Seattle so the Philadelphia 76ers will have the home-court advantage.

But Bill Fitch doesn't think it matters a whole lot.

"They'll go all the way," the Boston Celtics coach said after the 76ers disposed of the team with the best regular-season record in the National Basketball Association.

"If they stay right where they're at now and maintain it — that's the challenge to them right now — they'll be tough," Fitch said.

The 76ers were awesome in sending the Celtics to the sidelines by winning the best-of-seven Eastern Conference final playoff series in five games. The clincher came Sunday as Philadelphia never trailed after Darryl Dawkins' free throws tied the score 18-18 with 4:11 to go in the first period. The 76ers rolled to a 105-94 triumph.

Hollins led all scorers with 24 points and handed out seven assists, while Erving scored 14 points and took only 10 shots. Both were asked whether they would prefer to play Los Angeles or Seattle in the championship series. Los Angeles leads the Western Conference final series 3-1.

Pierson Nets State Berth

LEVELLAND — Wade Pierson joins four other qualifiers from District 7-B in qualifying for the boy's State Class B Track and Field Meet.

Pierson, from Ira High School, qualified by winning the 110 meter high hurdles in 14.9 seconds here Saturday. Hobbs High School athlete, Walter Cave placed second in the 1600 meter run with a 5:43.

Other 7B qualifiers were Highland's Terry Webb in the high jump and Lorraine's Junior Martinez in the 800 meters with a time of 2:03. Webb's qualifying leap was 6-2.

Other Ira representatives were Robert Mitchell and Keith Bryant.

of 22 seconds and that might have beaten him.

"I believe he just got too keyed up and took off too fast. He was burned out by the end. In the 220 I think he was just tired."

Snyder's trio of qualifiers weren't especially happy with their performances either, though they are elated over qualifying.

"I think I'm just burned out," said Richardson, who had cleared 6-10 in the high jump this year but barely managed 6-6 this week and only 6-4 the week before. "I guess I started out the season too well. I'll go back this week and really work at it and see what I can do."

Jenkins' 15-0 vault ties his last year's regional record, but "the Kid" would have liked to have bettered 15-6, his best of the season.

But Jenkins' effort was thwarted to a great extent by a strong crosswind, which later came head on.

Selmon's long jump of 23-4 was his best of the season though short of his goal "by a foot," he said, looking at a chart he had calculated. "Oh well, I'll keep this chart for state," he grinned.

Controversy clouded the meet's final race, and here again, Snyder was involved. Officials ruled that a Snyder runner, Miguel Ortegon, had interfered with an Ector man on the relay's third leg, and that the race should be run again. Snyder was disqualified.

Mineral Wells won the first mile relay while Lubbock Dunbar took second. Ector placed sixth, Snyder fifth.

In the re-run version, Estacado won, followed by Mineral Wells and Dunbar. Ector was fifth — last — giving the hosts enough points to win the meet.

Snyder's finish really would have made little difference, but it was the principal that infuriated

Coach Shipp, among others.

"The (Ector) guy cut in on Miguel Ector is the team that should have been disqualified," said Shipp.

Ortegon agreed. "He cut right in on me, trying to slow me down. He had tried to slow me down over there too," he said, pointing to an area just after the first 220. "He slowed up in front and when I tried to go around him again my foot caught his and he went down."

But you're supposed to be a stride in front when you cut over. He was right on top of me. I can't understand why they disqualified Snyder."

Spectators at the pole vault, near where the incident occurred, all agreed that Ector was at fault — including the curve judges. But somehow the decision got turned around and Snyder was put out of the second running.

Lakers Pop Sonics 98-93

SEATTLE (AP)—The Seattle SuperSonics reign as National Basketball Association champions is tottering.

"The Sonics say they like to play with their backs to the wall," said Kareem Abdul-Jabbar. "At this point, they're about to go over the wall."

After Los Angeles overcame a 21-point deficit midway in the second half to beat the Sonics 98-93 Sunday, the Lakers hold a 3-1 lead in the Western Conference finals. The Lakers could finish off the Sonics at Los Angeles Wednesday night and earn a spot in the NBA finals against Philadelphia, which won the Eastern Conference title with a 4-1 romp over Boston.

Abdul-Jabbar scored 25 points and Jamaal Wilkes added 24, 12 in the last quarter, as the Lakers made it three straight over the Sonics and two in a row at University of Washington's Hec Edmundson Pavilion.

A capacity crowd of 8,524 watched the Sonics build a 57-39 halftime lead and a 69-48 advantage with 6:39 left in the third quarter.

Los Angeles took the lead at 72-71 with a 24-2 blitz but Seattle led 86-80 with 6:11 remaining in the game.

Uncertainty Now Over For Commando's Wife

SAN ANTONIO (AP)—Gloria Petty's life has been filled with anguish and uncertainty for five months.

Friday, the uncertainty ended. Then, she learned why her husband left for work one morning five months ago and never came home. Why his letters arrived without postmarks during his absence and why she could not contact him by telephone.

Gloria Petty's husband, Leslie, was part of a secret 90-member commando group training to rescue the American hostages at the U.S. Embassy. And Petty was one of five servicemen injured when the rescue mission fell apart.

Reunited at Brooke Army Medical Center here, where Petty is being treated for burns over 40 percent of his body, Mrs. Petty talked of her ordeal to The Dallas Morning News.

"He told me he was sorry that he would be away for some time," she said. "I was not told anything I wasn't told what they were doing and who was involved with it," she said Sunday.

When she finally saw her husband, she said he was "extremely tired from his 20-hour flight from West Germany but seemed in good spirits. He told me to send his love to his children."

Petty was listed in serious condition at Brooke Sunday.

A Brooke spokesman Sunday reported the other servicemen in these condition:

Air Force Staff Sgt. Joseph J. Bryers III, 37, Charleston, S.C., in critical condition; Marine Maj. Leslie B. Petty, 34, Jacksonville, N.C., in serious condition; Air Force 1st Lt. Jeffrey B. Harrison, 26, Warren, Ohio, in satisfactory condition; and Marine Maj. James H. Schaefer Jr., 36, Los Angeles, in satisfactory condition.

Airman 1st Class William Toelle of Fort Walton Beach, Fla., was hospitalized in good condition with an injured knee at Wilford Hall at nearby Lackland Air Force Base, Air Force officials said.

Mrs. Petty said her husband—a combat-trained helicopter pilot—did not discuss the mission with her. But she guessed he had been in the downed helicopter and "got himself out."

Reports of the accident said the rotor-blade of a modified Sikorski slashed through the fuselage of a transport, igniting a fire that killed five crewmen on the chopper. The reports said the helicopter pilot escaped, but it was not known if Petty was that pilot.

Mrs. Petty said a Marine spokesman called her Jacksonville, N.C., home Friday morning to tell her her husband had been injured in an accident. But it was not until later that afternoon, when an officer came to her door, that she knew of the connection between her husband and news of the aborted rescue attempt.

"It was shocking," she said. "All they knew was that he was injured and had been in an accident. It was all so sketchy."

Since he left for the New River Marine Corps Base

near Jacksonville five months ago, Mrs. Petty said "there was no hint or slightest indication of where he was, no idea of how to get in contact with him."

"It was all top secret. All I knew was that he was away from home. I didn't know where he was. I couldn't call him on the phone, but he would call about twice a week. I was worried."

"I had to tell the children, Tammy 14, and Richard, 9; that I didn't know where their daddy was and that I didn't know when he would be returning."

During three short visits home, she said "we managed to find other things to talk about. I didn't ask questions... I knew he couldn't talk about it."

"I've been told he's a hero. He's a strong man. I just wished they would have been successful. I would like to see the hostages released... and that the aircrafts hadn't gone down."

Dear Abby Childbirth A Family Affair?

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR READERS: APPALLED IN K.C. wrote that she was upset because her married daughter planned to let her 3-year-old son and 19-year-old unmarried sister witness the birth of her second child. My reply: "There is no better way to learn about the miracle of life than to witness childbirth. I see nothing shocking or immodest about it. A 3-year-old should find it a fascinating and educational experience."

Well, after that letter hit print, Ernie, my dear, devoted mailman, was threatened with a double hernia from schlepping those 40-pound sacks of mail into my office!

The letters are running 100 to 1 against my answer. Today, a sampling of the pros. (Tomorrow, the cons.):

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I had our second child naturally. Our daughter, then 2 years 9 months old, witnessed the entire birth, coaching me with, "Push, Mama, push!" It was a truly joyous occasion! If children are informed properly throughout the pregnancy with visual aids (books, films, etc.), they will be accepting and knowledgeable about the event. There is no need to hide the truth from a child. To experience reality now is to be unafraid later.

PATRICIA GONZALES, SANTA MONICA, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: I was in a natural childbirth program at Illinois Masonic Hospital in Chicago. My husband and Sarah, our 2½-year-old daughter, watched the delivery. (The child was told what to expect.) My parents also watched, and were moved by it. Nobody got "sick." We also filmed the whole procedure, and we treasure those films. We often watch it together to relive a great moment in our lives. Our children will grow up to respect the miracle of pregnancy and childbirth as a sacred gift from God, instead of something to get rid of.

C.M. AND FAMILY, CHICAGO

DEAR ABBY: Three cheers for your open-mindedness regarding making childbirth a family affair! Birth is a normal, natural human function that should be celebrated by the entire family. Siblings who are prepared for what is happening will be more understanding and loving to the new baby they "helped" to bring into the world. There is so much more unity in the family that has "birthed" together. When one considers its beginning, no wonder the American family is disintegrating. Mom is in the recovery room, Dad is pacing the corridor, the baby is in the nursery and the siblings are shuttled off to Grandma's. The family never had a chance, it wasn't even born together.

PATRICE GEDDES, BAKERSFIELD, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: Last December I gave birth to a healthy, beautiful boy. Both my husband and mother-in-law were present during my labor and delivery. My husband and I took childbirth education classes, which prepared us well for the birth. I delivered completely naturally, without drugs or medication. My mother-in-law later said she learned more from witnessing my son's birth than she had from giving birth to four of her own children.

PROUD MOTHER IN TUCSON

DEAR ABBY: Our 4-year-old son attended childbirth classes with us and he also witnessed the birth of his little brother. Because of this experience there has never been any jealousy between the siblings. Childbirth has nothing to do with modesty. It is God's greatest miracle. Since we all came into this world the same way, why should anyone find it disgusting or loathsome? No name, please. My husband is a state senator.

ANONYMOUS

DEAR ABBY: You will probably get a lot of mail telling you you're crazy, but here's one for your side. Parents think nothing of telling their children that kittens come from cats, puppies from dogs and chickens from eggs, so why should they say that babies come from "the hospital," "the doctor's bag" or "a cabbage patch"? Children won't make a big deal out of anything unless their parents do. Honesty is always the best policy.

Death Blamed On 2 Horses

NORTH CASTLE, N.Y. (AP)—Two horses that wandered onto Interstate 684 near the Connecticut border caused the death of an off-duty state trooper, authorities said. Police said Troopers Joseph Zabudski, 25, of East Moriches, was killed and Steven Sprague, 26, of New York City, was injured when their auto avoided one horse, but struck the second animal.

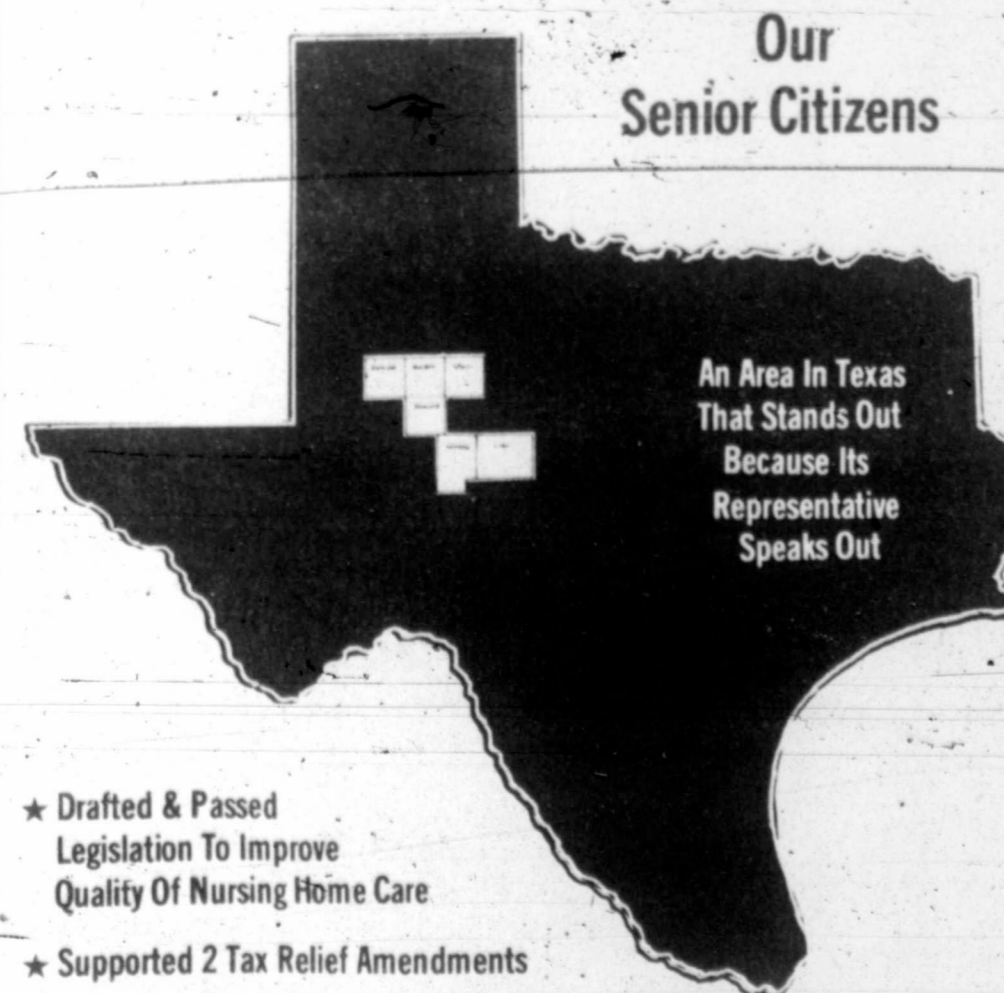

HEALTH TIP from DEAN

HOME BLOOD PRESSURE CHECKS
When blood pressure is definitely high, drug treatment to lower it to normal can reduce the likelihood of stroke, heart disease, and kidney failure. But some patients are borderline. When 112 such patients were taught to regularly take their own blood pressure at home, 30 percent proved to be definitely hypertensive, requiring medication to make certain severe hypertension does not develop.

Vance Resigns Secretary Post

WASHINGTON (AP)—Cyrus R. Vance, a tireless voice for moderation and conciliation inside the Carter administration, is quitting as secretary of state following his solitary opposition to the ill-fated attempt to rescue American hostages in Iran.

Vance's resignation, confirmed Sunday night by two high administration officials, came as a shock even though he had planned to leave at the end of President Carter's current term. It left a vacancy in the management of U.S. foreign policy at a time of considerable international turmoil, with the nation embroiled in disputes involving Iran, the failed rescue mission and the Soviet move into Afghanistan.

One U.S. official, who declined to be identified, said Vance was the only member of the National Security Council who opposed the rescue operation as too risky. "They had a good relationship," the official said of Vance and Carter, "but both concluded it was impossible for him to function as secretary of state."

Earlier, another official, who also declined to be identified, said that while

Vance was troubled recently with the flu and gout, he intended to quit as a result of policy disagreements. "Anything can happen at the last minute, but that's the way it looks now," the official said.

It was not known who would replace Vance, but speculation centered on Warren Christopher, the deputy secretary whose role grew as Vance declined.

Over the past 3½ years Vance has seen some of his priority projects, including arms control and detente, with the Soviet Union, pushed to a back burner as the administration hardened its stance toward Moscow. His principal antagonist in the struggle for Carter's ear was Zbigniew Brzezinski, the national security adviser with pronounced anti-Soviet views.

The disclosure that Vance disagreed with the military rescue attempt was, in itself, surprising. Usually, once a presidential decision is reached—particularly one that doesn't work out—the ranks around him close with no one acknowledging disapproval.

Possible pancreatitis

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I have just returned from a week's stay in the hospital. After several tests and scans, the doctor said that I have possible pancreatitis. I had an elevated amylase and the pancreas was enlarged. No stones. I had my gallbladder removed five years ago because of stones. The doctor said he isn't sure what to do for me. I'm on a low-fat, salt-free and sugar-free diet. I have weak, faintish spells and lose all sense of balance and the room spins around. Do you have any information you could give me on the pancreas condition and is there a treatment or cure? I'm 67 years old and have never used any alcohol or smoked.

DEAR READER—The pancreas is the source of many of your digestive enzymes. The pancreatic juice empties into the small intestine and provides enzymes essentially to complete the carbohydrate, protein and fat digestion. You can have acute pancreatitis which may cause severe abdominal pain that cause doctors to suspect a surgical condition. Literally, the pancreas becomes inflamed and the digestive juices leak into the pancreas tissue itself and start digesting the pancreas.

In addition to such acute attacks, some people may have chronic forms of inflammation of the pancreas. These tend to interfere with the formation of the digestive enzymes and impair digestion. Often these individuals have trouble absorbing fat. Management is difficult and sometimes enzyme replacement is helpful.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 11-4, The Pancreas: Your Enzyme Organ: Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Your symptoms of dizziness or problems with balance may have nothing at all to do with pancreatitis. It could be simply because you've been ill or may be a different disorder. I'm also sending you The Health Letter number 9-10, Dizziness and Vertigo.

It's true that some cases of pancreatitis are caused by drinking alcohol but many cases are not. Some are caused as a complication of gallstones and in a large number of cases the cause is never really known. Regardless of the basic cause, anyone who has pancreatitis should not use alcohol in any form, which shouldn't bother you.

DEAR DR. LAMB—If a person was having a massive heart attack and kept taking doses of Riopan thinking they had gas, would this do any harm? I know it wouldn't do any good.

DEAR READER—In the usual amounts that would be taken for indigestion or an acid stomach, it's not likely to cause a problem. Riopan, by the way, is not particularly useful to relieve gas symptoms nor are any of the antacids.

Many times a heart attack begins with symptoms of indigestion or pain in the pit of the stomach or a sensation of gas. There may not be any associated chest pain. My best advice to people who develop severe indigestion is to seek a medical opinion. That's particularly true in men past 40 years of age when heart attacks are common.

Describes Body Display As 'Animalistic Scene'

By ROCKY SCOTT
Associated Press Writer
HOUSTON (AP)-Republican presidential contender George Bush today called the display of the remains of eight Americans killed in the aborted rescue mission in Iran "an animalistic scene."

He said the Iranian militants were "outrageous people."

Bush, opening his final five days of campaigning for Saturday's Texas primary, said the gruesome display which occurred Sunday in Tehran was a "macabre kind of dance."

"The animalistic scene yesterday - the display of the bodies - saddened me," Bush told a crowd of students at Spring Wood High School. "War has always called for the return of the bodies of the dead. These militants are outrageous people."

He also criticized members of Congress who challenged Carter's decision to go ahead with the rescue mission, saying, "They would have been first in line to congratulate him if the mission had succeeded."

Bush said he hoped President Carter "will continue to tighten up," despite the ill-fated rescue mission.

"I hope he will keep fighting until the hostages come home," Bush said.

Asked by a student if he saw an end to the Iranian hostage situation, Bush said, "I am afraid I can't stand here and tell you I do."

The former ambassador to the United Nations answered questions from the students, who held a mock convention and named Bush their Republican presidential nominee.

He drew laughter and applause when, replying to a question about his vice-presidential running mate, "Well, first she..."

Bush continued in brief remarks prior to the questions to point out the differences between him and former California Governor Ronald Reagan, principally in the area of balancing the budget and tax cuts.

He said the United States apparently faces "insurmountable problems," but added that the "fundamental" problem was with the economy, "and those problems aren't insurmountable."

who visited the unit Sunday afternoon said Petty and Schaefer were covered with a special burn cream and in side-by-side beds.

Torres said Schaefer was able to shower and visit with his wife, who declined to talk to reporters, but Petty was still sedated.

Beyers' step-brother, Robert Hobbs, of North Augusta, S.C., said doctors reported, Beyers suffered second- and third-degree burns over 40 percent of his body.

"He will be all right, they say," Hobbs said. "He'll live." Beyers was a radio operator stationed at Hurlburt Field in Florida. Hobbs said he and other family members brought the Marine's five children to San Antonio to be close to their father.

Beyers is divorced and has custody of the children, ages 10-16, Hobbs said. Despite his family responsibilities, Hobbs said he thought Beyers volunteered for the mission in Tehran "because he is a career soldier and he felt it had to be done. We're real proud of Joe."

improve their lot.

He noted that in South Texas, where he comes from, Mexican Americans are starting to become involved in the political process. Many are for the first time being elected to public offices.

"Whatever our Anglo leaders have done in the past, we can do just as well," he said.

Bonilla said that Mexican Americans, while in the process of trying to better themselves, are helping everyone else, too.

"It is not inconsistent," said Bonilla, "to be proud of our culture, heritage, and language, while also being proud to be Americans."

The convention delegates were welcomed to the community by Mayor Milton Ham. Awards were presented to the Snyder Chamber of Commerce, to KSNV Radio, the Snyder Daily News and to several individuals.
