700 Persons Attending Fluvanna Homecoming

FLUVANNA—The Fluvanna Homecoming celebrated Saturday afternoon with the presentation of awards in the old high school gymnasium. Highlighting the ceremony was the dedication of the 1980 Homecoming, to L.M. Dawson, a former school superintendent and community leader.

The unofficial tally indicates about 700 people converged on this small farming community in northwest Scurry County for the once every five year event.

Weekend update

Publicity Fallout Damaging
VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP)—The fallout of bad publicity from Mount St. Helens, which has calmed again after its third major eruption in a month, is almost as bad as the ash dumped on Washington and Oregon, tourist officials say.

A Muder In Wylie

WYLIE (AP)—A 30-year-old housewife at home alone with her infant baby was surprised by a killer who hacked her to death with an ax and left her body in the blood-splattered laundry room of her fashionable home, neighbors said Saturday.

July 4th Queen To be Crowned

For the first time, a July 4th queen will be crowned this year at the annual Independence Day Celebration in Towle Memorial Park.

Democrats Wind Up Testimony... Labor Demands Binding Platform

WASHINGTON (AP)—Douglas Fraser, head of the United Auto Workers union, urged the Democratic Party today to demand that its next candidate for president comply with the party platform and "make it mean something to be a Democrat."

Fraser, who supports Sen. Edward M. Kennedy for the party's nomination, was highly critical of President Carter for allegedly moving away from the 1976 platform.

Fraser, who said he represented a leftist-oriented party coalition called Progressive Alliance as well as the UAW, urged an immediate anti-recession program to create jobs and restore full employment in the country.

Another witness, Thomas R. Donahue, secretary-general of the AFL-CIO, also asked the party to adopt a program to "put America back to work."

The party must demonstrate its good faith by repudiating policies that promote unemployment as the major tool in combating inflation and begin immediately to implement a job-creating program, he said.

Donahue was critical of proposals to balance the federal budget and cut taxes for business as ways of slowing inflation and stimulating economic growth.

Instead, he said, the government must use job-creation programs, "that aid people."

The AFL-CIO has remained neutral in the presidential race. The committee opened its last day of hearings with a warning from New York City Mayor Edward I. Koch still ringing.

Koch told the platform committee in blunt terms Friday that there's a good chance Democrats will lose in November unless a major effort is made by both the party and the Carter administration to turn the economy around.

'King-For-A-Day' Title Goes To Buck Cochran

C.S. "Buck" Cochran has been named "King For A Day" by the Tejas CowBelles and The Snyder Daily News, sponsors of Fathers Day event.

As recipient of the honor, Cochran will receive a $25 beef certificate awarded by the Tejas CowBelles and he and his wife, Vivian, will receive steak dinners awarded by The Shack.

Nominations were by letters written by sons or daughters on "why my father should be king for a day."

Meeting Here Thursday... Royalty Owners Plan Bigger Organization

Several hundred royalty owners, including many from out of state, are expected here Thursday night for a meeting called by the West Texas Royalty Owners Association.

Carter Official Urging Tax Cut

WASHINGTON (AP)—For the first time, a Carter administration official has formally detailed a tax cut she said is needed to stimulate the nation's slump-ridden economy.

President Carter and his chief advisers have said they wouldn't consider a cut until they are sure the 1981 federal budget we deserve re-election. "Not that Republicans will do better. They will do far worse. But that will not satisfy people who go to the polls because they look toward who is in charge," Koch said. "And we are in charge. We'd better have high anxiety."

The Platform Committee of the Democratic National Convention called for testimony today from labor and business groups, ending its final three-day round of pre-convention hearings.

Next weekend, the committee will meet again to take tentative action on a draft of the platform form a 15-member drafting committee which is dominated by Carter supporters.

Democratic Committee Chairman John C. White indicated the finished product likely would be an amalgamation of both Carter and Kennedy positions.

Koch accused the Carter administration and Democrats in Congress of neglecting cities. He claimed that roughly three out of four major U.S. cities are experiencing serious financial problems.

The SDN Column

R.T. (Dick) Roberts, whose yellow Studebaker used to be a familiar sight on Snyder streets and who remains the most avid Studebaker buff we know, called up the other day to challenge our answer to a question in "Ask Us."

The question dealt with the demise of Studebaker production, and the answer we came up with cited 1964 as the last year that Studebaker cars came off the assembly line.

That was true only in the United States, Roberts reminded. After the last Studebakers were made in this country, production continued for a couple of years in Hamilton, Ontario, Canada. So, if you want to get technical about it, 1966 was the last year Studebakers were made.

Roberts, who once manned a typewriter right here in the SDN office but now works for the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation in Austin, still has his 1963 Avanti. So, his ties with Studebaker endure, and he confided that he wishes he still had his old 1948 convertible. He said he saw one in Austin recently, and the very sight of it gave him an attack of nostalgia, that was difficult to overcome.

Ask Us

Q. Why don't our stores, especially the grocery stores, have more refund forms available that are sent out by the manufacturers for the public's use, and also why doesn't our paper publish news-paper refund forms and cents-off coupons as some of the bigger papers do?

A. This is similar to a question of several weeks ago. The distribution of coupons is determined by the manufacturers and/or their distributors. The Snyder Daily News runs any and all such coupons that are ordered, but has no authority to run them otherwise. In many cases, manufacturers concentrate their coupons for publication in major metropolitan areas. Those for specific products are good in stores everywhere. Store coupons are run at the discretion of the owners and are good only in those stores.

WEATHER

SNYDER TEMPERATURES: High Friday, 92 degrees; low, 66 degrees; reading at 7 a.m. Saturday, 68 degrees; precipitation, none; total precipitation for 1980 to date, 9.53.

West Texas: Fair with warm to hot afternoons and mild nights. Lows mid 60s north to mid 70s south. Highs mostly in the 90s except near 110 Big Bend valleys.

cars have changed a lot since the Studebaker was produced, and of course size is important these days. Today's big cars may cause future generations to marvel, if any of them are still around. However, some people are reluctant to give up the big car. Like the Australian sheepman who bought a Rolls Royce. When he brought it in for a checkup, the dealer asked how he liked his car?

"I love that glass partition between the front and back seat," said the sheepman. "It sure keeps the sheep from licking the back of my neck when I'm taking them to the clipping shed."

AT&T Ordered To Pay $1.8 Billion Damages

By PAULINE JELINEK
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO - A federal judge in what one attorney called the largest damage award in history has ordered American Telephone & Telegraph Co. to pay $1.8 billion following a jury's finding that the communications giant violated antitrust laws in attempting to monopolize the long distance telephone market.

The jury said Friday night that AT&T parent company of the Bell System violated federal antitrust laws in denying certain intracity telephone connections to MCI Communications Corp.

The order by U.S. District Judge John F. Grady came after a jury decided MCI suffered $600 million in damages when AT&T denied intracity phone connections MCI needed to complete long distance telephone calls on its own microwave network.

This one will make the Guinness Book of Records, said AT&T attorney George Saunders, who called the verdict the largest in history.

The jury in its verdict said AT&T willfully maintained or attempted to maintain a monopoly on long distance calls. The panel of seven women and five men began its deliberations Wednesday after hearing four months of complex testimony.

The award of $1.8 billion was based on requests for treble damages by MCI, a Washington, D.C. based microwave telecommunications company.

MCI attorneys charged that denial of the connections between 1969 and 1975 stunted the growth of their fledgling company, formed in 1968, and damaged its business prospects, MCI Chairman William G. McGowan said the verdict means MCI, currently serving customers in 31 cities, now is on its way to "becoming whole" and expanding its service to the entire country.

McGowan said the verdict showed the jury will not allow the biggest corporation in the world to use its power to try and stifle its competitors in this business.

The judge gave AT&T 30 days in which to file post-trial motions after Saunders said the jury's damage finding was not consistent with some of its other findings.

MCI filed the suit in 1974, charging AT&T with monopolizing and attempting to monopolize the private intrastate telephone market under Section 2 of the Sherman Antitrust Act.

The success of MCI's case depended on it proving that there was a market of economic significance, that AT&T possessed monopoly power in this market, that AT&T willfully maintained its monopoly by anticompetitive acts and that MCI was injured in its business or property.

Saunders said the jury's finding on damages did not correspond to its findings on what he said were two major issues in the case, whether AT&T discriminated against MCI in favor of Western Union by denying MCI interconnections that it gives to Western Union and whether AT&T priced bulk rate Telepak service low to undercut MCI.

The jury found that AT&T had not done those two things.

What Hath Bell Wrought? Too Many Ding-A-Lings

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: A while back you had a letter from an employer who resented having his telephone calls to others screened by a secretary. The stupidity and ignorance that make people believe they can invade anyone's privacy at a time of their choosing by simply picking up the telephone and calling is indeed remarkable.

After 30 years of professional life, I have concluded that one of the most difficult tasks in secretarial training is teaching office personnel how to handle telephone calls.

Alexander Graham Bell invented a wonderful instrument, but unfortunately he never anticipated the problems his invention would cause with its improper use.

When I get to heaven, I plan to discuss this with him in detail.

SYRACUSE PHYSICIAN

DEAR PHYSICIAN: If there's a line to heaven, it must have an unlisted number, so I will have to wait to join you up there to hear the outcome of your discussion.

In the meantime, may I suggest the proper (and most tactful) way to screen telephone calls: "Caller: 'May I please speak to Mr. Smith?'" Secretary: "May I tell him who is calling, please?" (Never, "Who's calling?") Those four little words, "May I tell him," soften the demand to know who is calling and dispel the implication that only persons on a preferred list can get through to the boss.

If the boss is out, unavailable, unable or unwilling to take the call, the secretary then says, "I am sorry, but Mr. Smith is unavailable at the moment, but if you will give me your number I will ask him to return your call." (She never says, "I'm sorry, but Mr. Smith is in conference." There is no way of saying those words without sounding pompous.)

An increasing number of busy executives are answering their own phones, having given their direct-dial number to only those they want to have it. If the call is a nuisance or inconsequential, anyone bright enough to be an executive will know how to terminate it quickly and diplomatically.

DEAR ABBY: I recently met a charming woman who is new in town, and when we parted, I casually said, "I hope we can get together sometime in the near future."

She telephoned the very next day and said she and her husband would like to come to my home for lunch next Saturday! This shocked me, as I certainly did not intend for her to bring her husband. Also, I resented her inviting herself, so I said Saturday was not convenient for me. Well, she has been calling me daily to set up a convenient date!

If she is this nervy after only one meeting, what can I expect if we become better friends? Knowing how presumptuous she is, I would rather not get involved with her at all. How can this be handled tactfully?

HARRASSED IN HARRISBURG

DEAR HARASSED: Continue to find each suggested date "inconvenient." She will get the message eventually - I hope.

DEAR ABBY: My wife sleeps in the raw. Then she showers, brushes her teeth and fixes our breakfast - still in the buff.

We're newlyweds and there are just the two of us, so I suppose there's really nothing wrong with it.

What do you think?

ED

DEAR ED: It's OK with me. But tell her to put on an apron when she's frying bacon.

Carter Not Ruling Out Another Raid In Iran

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Carter says no military actions are being considered to free the American hostages in Tehran, but the president's chief spokesman says that doesn't mean another raid won't be tried.

Carter, during an interview with an Italian television station, was asked if military actions might be tried to free the 53 Americans who have been held hostages since last Nov. 4.

"Military measures are not being considered," Carter told his interviewer. A transcript of the exchange Thursday was released Friday by the White House.

Last April, eight American servicemen died during the crash of two aircraft after a commando raid to free the hostages was aborted in the Iranian desert.

But Carter's chief spokesman, press secretary Jody Powell, said the president "is not, I can assure you, absolutely ruling out the use of military action."

"I don't intend to say" for how long Carter may rule out military actions, Powell said.

Carter also told his interviewer that he doesn't think Soviet citizens support their government's military intervention in Afghanistan.

"I am convinced that the Soviet people do not support the war-like activities which the Soviets have demonstrated in their invasion of Afghanistan."

He said it's up to the Soviet Union, not the United States, to act to reduce recent tensions between the two nations.

Carter, who will attend a seven-nation Economic summit meeting next week in Italy, said he doesn't think America's European allies have betrayed the United States, although he did say "sometimes they don't support us strongly enough."

Carter called the Western alliance "much stronger now than it has been in many years, perhaps even since the alliance was first formed."

He said "some of the allies in Europe have not been quite so forceful as we in imposing sanctions against the Soviet Union, and in moving to boycott the Olympics and so forth, but we recognize that there are reasons for them not to pattern their actions specifically after ours."

However, use of the word betrayal "is completely erroneous" in describing the allied reactions, Carter said.

"Sometimes they don't support us strongly enough, as judged from our perspective, but we recognize the difference that must exist between us. I am sure that sometimes some of our actions are not completely pleasing to our allies."

Expenses For Vet Burials Are Provided

The Veterans Administration can provide from $450 to $1,100 toward veterans' burial expenses, E.H. (Dan) Dever, Jr., Scurry County Veterans Service Officer, reminds veterans.

The amount depends on whether the death results from a service-connected condition and whether the veteran is buried in a national cemetery.

Awareness of VA burial benefits can often spare the family of a deceased veteran anxiety and financial hardship immediately following the veteran's death, Dever said.

Persons who would like information about burial benefits are invited to contact Dever's office in the Administration Building at Western Texas College. His office can also provide information about other VA benefits.

Swim Classes Now Registering

Contrasted with infants separated from their mothers from delivery to first feeding, infants who spent 45 minutes alone, undressed, skin-to-skin in a private room with their mothers, under a heated panel, gained more weight at one, three, six, and twelve months, and had fewer infections.

Goodwill Ambassadors...

Being A Gold Coater Means Serving Often

Back in 1964, Snyder and Scurry County were feeling the pinch of several years of reduced oil production, plus automation in the oilfields. A committee was working with county commissioners on a proposal to build a coliseum here. Dr. Robert L. Clinton had just been named superintendent of the Snyder Public Schools, and J. Mark McLaughlin was a candidate for mayor.

People were just beginning to feel a bit optimistic following several years of diminishing population and curtailed business activity, and a special "Downtown Improvement" committee was about to set in motion a long-range project that would make Snyder an All-America city five years later.

Membership is by invitation. Each Gold Coater is encouraged to make himself available, even on short notice, to help the chamber host a dignitary or business prospect. If a person feels that he will be unable to do this, he is advised to decline the invitation to join the organization.

The new by-laws kept the group's charge intact—its purpose is to act as the official hosts and goodwill ambassadors of the City of Snyder and the Snyder Chamber of Commerce—to support and promote the Snyder Chamber of Commerce as its undertakes the task of improving the

Dismayed Over OPEC Move

NEW YORK (AP) Leaders of industrialized countries greeted with dismay the latest oil pricing decisions of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries. Price increase announcements of $1 or $2 a barrel by several oil cartel members this past week, will probably add a penny or two to the cost of a gallon of gasoline for U.S. motorists. But the latest round of price increases also carries broader implications. It promises to add unwelcome pressure to economies of major industrialized countries at a time when several, including the United States, are sharply slowing or entering recessions. With ample world supplies of oil and reduced demand, some Western officials implied increasing oil prices defies the economic "laws" of supply and demand.

In Brussels, Belgium, European Common Market Energy Commissioner Guido Brunner said new oil price hikes would be a further considerable burden for the world economy and would worsen the tendencies toward recession and inflation. And at the European Common Market meeting in Venice this past week, West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt said continuing oil price increases would put a particularly heavy burden on less developed countries, already troubled by huge trade deficits.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration said its tests found defects in automatic transmissions of Ford Motor Co. vehicles, raising the possibility of a recall of 16 million cars and trucks, largest recall in the automotive industry. Congress passed a $613.6 billion budget resolution, ending two weeks of argument and debate. Production at the nation's factories, mines and mills plunged 2.1 percent in May as the recession continued to spread.

Production at the nation's factories, mines and mills plunged 2.1 percent in May as the recession continued to spread. The OPEC decision at a meeting in Algiers this past week was not clear and uniform: The 13-member cartel said in a statement that as of July 1 a new base price of $32 a barrel and maximum of $37 was established. But the decision does not appear to be binding on OPEC members.

Burning pain in stomach

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D. DEAR DR. LAMB — My son is 18 and he's 5 foot 11 and weighs 215 pounds. He has a constant problem with heartburn. He drinks two large glasses of milk with each meal or snack but he still suffers from heartburn. And it isn't just spicy or rich foods that bother him. It's everything he eats. Can you tell me what might be the cause of this or the cure?

DEAR READER — People commonly use the term heartburn as you have. Most people realize it has nothing at all to do with the heart but rather is related to digestive disorders. The burning pain in the "pit of the stomach" is often at the lower end of the breastbone. This spot and slightly higher is where you commonly feel discomfort from irritation of the lower esophagus, or sometimes some irritation of the duodenum, the very first part of the small intestine that joins to the stomach.

Heartburn is a symptom, not a diagnosis. It can be caused from an excess production of acid digestive juices. This is the typical ulcer type problem which may be associated with an actual ulcer in the duodenum or in the lower esophagus. The stomach is covered with a thick mucous lining that helps protect it from the acid digestive juices it produces. This lining begins at the entrance to the stomach and ends where the stomach empties. Consequently, the lower esophagus and the duodenum don't have any protection. When too much acid digestive juices hit the unprotected duodenum, it can result in a duodenal ulcer. Similarly, if the acid contents of the stomach leak backward into the lower esophagus, it can irritate the esophagus causing burning pain or it can produce an actual ulcer in the lower esophagus. Your son's height and weight suggest to me that he may be a little overweight and may be a big eater. These people are more prone to have hiatal hernia and leakage problems into the lower esophagus. This problem is much more common in middle-aged and older people rather than such a young man. Have your son go see a doctor and let him give him a good examination. He may need some X-rays of his stomach to see whether or not he has an ulcer problem. Some people's life style has a lot to do with the symptom of burning in the pit of the stomach. Chief among these is the excess use of coffee, tea and cola. It only takes two or three cups a day in sensitive people to cause a problem. I'm sending you The Health Letter number 14-4, Controversial Beverages: Coffee, Tea, Colas and Chocolate. It discusses numerous problems that can be created from caffeine in these. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Auditions In C-City

Auditions for the next production at the Colorado City Playhouse have been set. The auditions will be at 7:30 p.m. Monday and Tuesday, June 16, 17.

The play will be Sumner Arthur Long's hilarious comedy, "Never Too Late." There are roles for six men and three women.

This Broadway hit is about a married man in his fifties who suddenly learns he's becoming a father again. His last child, a girl, was born 24 years ago, and considering the boob she married - he finds the prospect of another child unthinkable - as his daughter and son-in-law are still living in his house with him!

The daughter gets up for breakfast at lunchtime and the son-in-law is curiously addicted to solitaire.

But it's not only the impending birth that startles him; his previously meek little wife suddenly begins to lay down the law! There'll be a new nursery, a new bath, and she is to have her own checking account!

It's a good old-fashioned domestic farce chock full of plain and simple laughter," says Carl Beery Moore, publicity chairman.

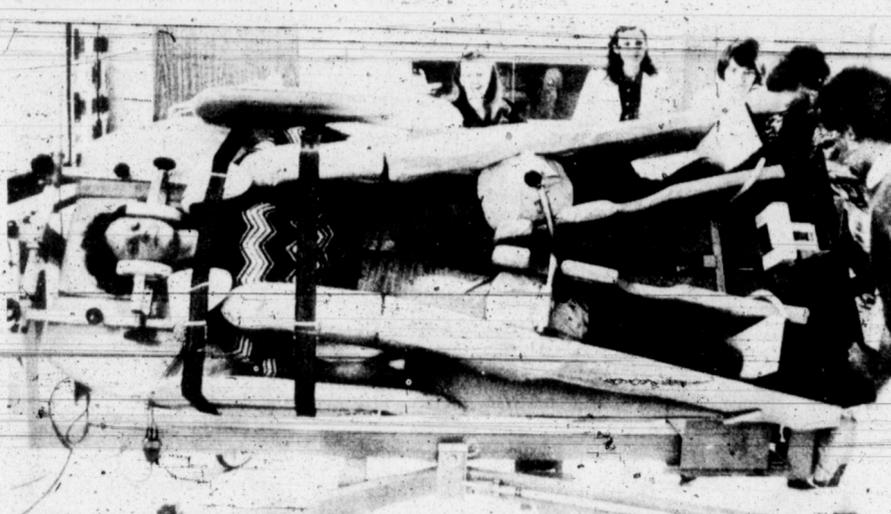

Directing the play will be Tandy Carlee Playhouse president is Marsha Moore and production vice-president is Bobbie Steakley.

CONTROL CATTLE GRUBS
 Each year between June and September, livestock producers can effectively control costly cattle grubs by applying livestock insecticides.
 Grub control can be achieved with a variety of treatments which includes sprays, dips, pour-ons, spot-ons and feed mixes.
 During late fall and winter, grubs appear on the backs of livestock. It's too late to begin control measures then since most of the damage has already been done.
 In addition to controlling cattle grubs, an insecticide used now will also provide contact control of horn flies for two to three weeks. This makes the overall cost of treatment favorable.
 Insecticides suggested for "grub control include coumaphos (CO-Ral), crumetate (Ruelene), phosmet (Prolate), trichlorfon (Neguvon), famphur (warbex), fenthion (Tiguvon), and ronnel. Read and follow directions on the insecticide label before treatment. Cattle that are sick or under stress should not be treated.
 The cattle grub is the larval stage of the heel fly. The adult fly has no mouth parts, so it causes no pain to the cattle. However, it frightens cattle, making them difficult to manage. Animals often seek relief by standing in shade or shallow water.
 The life cycle begins when the heel fly lays its eggs on an animal. The eggs, glued to hairs, hatch within a few days, and larvae (worms) enter the skin at hair follicles. The immature stages then migrate through the animal's body for six to eight months and reappear in the fall and winter, forming knot-like marbles or cysts.

SWC Football 1980 Sees...

Hogs & Cougs Favored

By The Associated Press
Defending co-champions Arkansas and Houston were picked as the teams to beat again for the 1980 Southwest Conference football championship in a summer poll of league coaches, but at least four other schools were rated talented enough to win it all.

In a poll of SWC coaches compiled by Bill Morgan and Tom Turbevile of the SWC office with the help of sports information directors, there was one unanimous opinion: It could be the wildest of SWC campaigns.

"It will be tough again," said Texas Tech Coach Rex Dockery. "I think Arkansas and Houston will be the preseason favorites but there are a lot of good teams. Texas should challenge and Baylor is coming off a good season so that should carry over."

Coach F.A. Dry of Texas Christian concluded: "Texas A&M, Arkansas and Houston, not necessarily in that order, are top 20 teams. I know everybody will be better but we feel we'll be able to step on the field with the rest of the league."

Texas A&M Coach Tom Wilson said, "I believe that the Southwest Conference is the toughest league in the nation today, so every conference game will be like a war. Houston, Texas, and Arkansas are the three that most folks will favor. But don't sell any team short."

Texas Fred Akers said "Arkansas, with its returning experience, is a clear-cut choice. I don't know how to rate 'em but Houston has a lot of talent returning as does A&M, SMU, Baylor and ourselves."

SMU Coach Ron Meyer said "I think Texas A&M and Houston should be considered the favorites."

Rice Coach Ray Alborn said "I think it will be more of a dogfight this year than it has been recently with it coming down to two teams in the final analysis." Houston and Arkansas.

Houston Coach Bill Yeoman picked Arkansas, saying "This year's race should be similar to last year."

Baylor Coach Grant Teaff said, "I'd pick Houston with Texas, Arkansas and Texas A&M pushing. The rest of us are capable of jumping into the thick of the race."

Arkansas Coach Lou Holtz added, "Houston, Texas and Texas A&M should be outstanding. Baylor took us to the wire last year and Tech and SMU should be in the hunt. TCU almost beat us and Rice keeps getting better."

"You can't take anything for granted. The Southwest Conference is the toughest in the country." Play begins Sept. 1 with Arkansas at Texas in a nationally televised game to kick off the 1980s for collegiate football.

Quintet Selected To Texas Hall Of Fame

By The Associated Press
Former Southwest Conference football All-Americans Dicky Maegle of Rice and Tommy Nobis of Texas have been elected to the Texas Sports Hall of Fame.

Also elected were Baylor Athletic Director Jack Patterson, former National AAU hurdles champion at Rice, former World Series catcher Gus Mancuso and the late Fred Cobb, who developed four NCAA golf championship teams at North Texas State.

The five were elected in preferential balloting by a 21-man committee composed of members of the Texas Sports Writers Association and they will be inducted into the Texas Sports Hall of Fame during Cotton Bowl week at Dallas in December.

Maegle popped into the national headlines in the 1954 Cotton Bowl game when Tommy Lewis of Alabama jumped off the bench to tackle him and prevent a touchdown. However, Maegle was awarded a 95-yard touchdown. He scored four touchdowns in the game and rushed for 265 yards. Maegle averaged 6.6 yards per carry for Rice and played seven years in the pros, earning all-pro honors as a defensive back for the San Francisco 49ers in 1957.

Nobis was an All-American linebacker at Texas in 1964 and 1965, winning the coveted Outland Award as the outstanding interior lineman in 1965. He was an All-Pro linebacker for Atlanta.

Western Texas Inks Another Top Cager

Douglas Stewart, a 6-6 leaper from Las Vegas, Nev., has signed with Western Texas College's Westerners for the 1980-81 season.

Stewart, a first-team All-State selection, averages 24 points and 14 rebounds a game and was named MVP on his high school team.

"I think Doug will make an outstanding player for us," commented Westerner Coach Larry Dunaway. "He has tremendous potential. He's one of the best leapers I've ever seen. He has a vertical jump of 40 inches and that's getting up there not far from Darrell Griffith and David Thompson," he added.

"I think once Doug acquires the skills he needs to learn in college basketball he has tremendous potential, not only offensively, but rebounding as well."

Stewart played in the Best In The West All-Star Game in Las Vegas, the Tucson Invitational All-Star game, the Cerebral Palsy All-Star game in Salt Lake City, in the Nevada Stars in Los Angeles All-Star Game, and in the Las Vegas All-Star Game in Las Vegas. He won the slam-dunk contest in two of those games.

He was also chosen athlete of the week once in Nevada.

hits over 813 innings. With Kent Tekulve getting his ninth save in late relief of Solomon, the Pirates snapped the Astros' eight-game winning streak, longest of the season for Houston.

Stargell's 5-3 win over the National League West leaders.

"Too much Stargell," concluded Astros Manager Bill Virdon, who played for Pittsburgh when Stargell was a rookie.

For the slugging first baseman, who was four-for-four at the plate against Houston, Friday night was the 36th time he had hit two home runs in one game.

"He'd done it before and he'll do it again," added Virdon, who also managed the Pirates in 1972 and 1973. Meanwhile, Solomon raised his record to 4-0, scattering five Houston double, but both runners were stranded as the inning ended.

Stargell, in his 18th season, leads the Pirates with 470 career home runs, but he prefers to think of the challenges ahead, not the things he already done.

"I'll have time to think about all that when I can sit back and listen to my whiskers grow long after I'm retired," Stargell said.

He yielded the first hit with one out in the fifth inning to Denny Walling, who scored on Enos Cabell's double to left center.

Walling had an RBI triple, Houston's fifth hit, to chase Solomon in the ninth. "I made a bad pitch to Wallings," Solomon said. "I hung him a breaking ball."

"It's history now. I know we won, that's all," he said. Stargell turned two Niekro knuckle balls into homers over the right field fence, but he downplayed that as well.

"So I got two home runs off him. If you go back and check, it's been a dogfight over the years."

In the first inning Stargell drilled a homer after Tim Foli, returning to action after a 15-day layoff with a leg injury, was safe on a fielder's choice.

In the third, Foli singled, took second on a passed ball and scored on Stargell's single to center field.

Stargell struck again in the fifth, once more with Foli aboard on a double. He lofted an 0-2 pitch for his ninth homer of the season.

"Let's just say the man can hit," said Niekro. In the sixth, Jose Cruz singled to center for the second Astro run after Rafael Landestoy and Joe Morgan walked. Dave Parker singled in the Pirate half of the inning and Stargell followed with his double, but both runners were stranded as the inning ended. Stargell, in his 18th season, leads the Pirates with 470 career home runs, but he prefers to think of the challenges ahead, not the things he already done.

Martin 'Return' Winds Up Deadlocked Series

Billy Martin and the New York Yankees got together again Friday night.
The reunion took place at the Oakland Coliseum, where the former Yankee manager is now employed by Charlie Finley's A's - and both sides got quite a wallop out of it.

Ali Wins In Court

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Muhammad Ali won his federal court fight in a $20 million-slander suit filed by two white promoters who accused him of calling them racists.
The U.S. District Court jury ruled that the retired world heavyweight champion did not defame City Councilman Philip Ciccio or businessman Jake DiMaggio in his extraordinary 1978 news conference.

The A's walloped first with ex-Yankee Mickey Klutts hitting a ninth-inning homer for a 4-3 Oakland victory in the opener of a two-night double-header. The Yanks walloped back with Reggie Jackson's grand slam homer pacing a 6-4 New York victory in the nightcap.
Jackson's controversial relationship with Martin, of course, was at the center of a lot of Yankee turmoil during Martin's stormy reign in New York.

Now the Yankee slugger shrugs it off.
"The media tried to perpetuate the things between Billy and me," said Jackson. "We're old friends."
Martin, too, seemed to be a lot more amiable about their relationship now that he is in Oakland.
"Reggie has no vendetta against me and I don't

Catch Toronto, 6-3...

Rangers Rebound, Blast Jays

TORONTO (AP) - As Mickey Rivers and Bump Wills go, so go the Texas Rangers.

It's simple - Rivers and Wills are the key to the Texas attack. If Rivers and Wills, the first two batters in the lineup, don't get on base then the Rangers don't score.

Both players have been in a slump and the resulting lack of run production is one reason why the Rangers have dropped 12 of their last 15 games.

Against Toronto Friday night, however, Rivers and Wills got their bats together as they each collected two hits and combined for three runs as the Rangers downed the Blue Jays 6-3.

"I keep telling Wills and Rivers that if they get on, we're going to score," said Rangers Manager Pat Corrales. "They've both struggled the last two or three weeks and it's hurt us."

"We've got to have them on, whether it's a hit or a walk or any error or whatever. As long as they're on base we've got a chance."

Wills and Rivers got on base, they look to sweet-swinging Al Oliver to drive them home.

Oliver did just that against the Jays, doubling Wills home in the fourth inning to score the Rangers' first run and then doubling Wills and Rivers home in the Texas five-run seventh inning.

Oliver, who upped his RBI total to 44 to tie Ben Oglivje of Milwaukee Brewers for the American League lead, agrees with Corrales.

"Sure we've had trouble scoring runs lately," Oliver said. "Buddy Bell has been out but the real key is Mickey and Bump."

"If they are hitting and getting on base like they should then I'll be coming to the plate with runners on first and second or second and third with less than two out."

And I'm a consistent hitter. My forte is hitting the ball hard. I'm a contact hitter and don't strike out that often.

Yet Corrales and the Rangers had to rely on a .224 hitter to get the attack going in the seventh inning with two out and runners on first and second. Corrales brought in John Grubb to bat for Bud Harrelson.

Grubb lined to right to bring in the first run of the inning while singles by Rivers and Wills and Oliver's double pushed the score to 6-0.

Doc Medich was the benefactor of the Rangers' attack and raised his record to 5-3. He came within one out of pitching his second complete game of the year but was lifted with the score 6-3 and runners on first and third. Sparky Lyle came on and one pitch later, Alfredo Griffin popped out to end the game.

NON CONTACT? - Baseball can get rough on occasion as is shown here during the AAA State Tournament when an Austin Westlake player slides safely home and sends Snyder catcher Toby Neves to the earth. Snyder lost the contest, but concluded a fine season by gaining berth to Austin for the first time in 15 years on the diamond. Snyder High finished the 1979-80 season with six District 3-3A championships. Next school year the Tigers will compete in District 2-AAAA along with Pecos, Fort Stockton, Andrews, Odessa Ector, Monahans, Lamesa, Sweetwater and San Angelo Lake View. (SDN STAFF PHOTO)

Hall An 'Innovator'; Indy Car An Example

MIDLAND (AP) - Looking out his office window at land flatter than the oval race track at Indianapolis, Jim Hall leans back in his chair, folds his hands behind his head and says, "It worked out very smoothly."

Hall is the 44-year-old championship auto racing team leader whose cars have won two of the last three Indy 500 races - the only three he has entered.
The most recent victory - the one that "worked out very smoothly" this year - caps a 26-year career as a driver, designer, developer and race team leader, a career highlighted by dozens of achievements and marred by just as many frustrations.

Now that his Indy-style

"ground-effects" car has become the one to watch the rest of this race season, pride, satisfaction and a sense of achievement are obvious when Hall speaks.

"I have to consider myself an innovator," he said during an interview at his Chaparral Cars headquarters, an imposing cluster of brick and cinder-block buildings a few miles south of Midland. "I never have been a follower."

"The personal satisfaction I get is to look at the circumstances, the regulations, and decide what would be the ideal machine to fit that category. And I'm not afraid to try something new. I do it on a scientific, engineering basis with a lot of research ... and I've done it several times."

The facts support the claim. Hall, as lean today as when he was named U.S. Road Racer of the Year in 1964, has been a dominant figure in the field of auto design and development for nearly two decades. His innovations have been outlawed by racing's governing bodies more often than those of any other designer.

"I had some regulation problems with the sport," he said matter-of-factly, "where everything I built for a while turned out to be illegal."
The first instance came in 1967, while Hall was still active as a driver, when he installed a movable airfoil, or "wing," on the rear of his Chaparral racer to force the car downward onto the track.

"I was the first guy to put the car downward put a wing on a car in modern times," he said. The airfoil is now on almost every Indy-style racer, but not the wing Hall invented.

His Chaparral 2-J featured a motor-driven fan to create a partial vacuum under the car, increasing downforce and allowing greater cornering speeds. It was banned in 1971, and Hall quit driving.
He returned in 1973 as a team leader, still quietly burning with his major racing passion - finding a better way to keep the car flat on the ground at high speeds and through corners.

That search culminated in the "ground effects" car, named the best-engineered car at Indy in 1979 even though it did not win. This year, Johnny Rutherford drove it to victory and a record purse. But Hall is not sure he'll be returning to the brickyard in 1981. The reason, ironically, is that he was so successful.

Longhorns Secure Four In Second

AUSTIN (AP) - Coach Cliff Gustafson of Texas announced today the signing of nine prospects for the Longhorn baseball team, including four schoolboy pitchers Gustafson says could be the best in the state.

"They're four of the top, if not the top, pitchers in the state," said Gustafson. "I know they're my top four and everybody else's, too. Everybody in the country - national champion Arizona, Arizona State, Florida State, all the Southwest Conference schools - recruited Hinson, Capel and Schiraldi."

The other Longhorn recruits include catchers Brad Jones, Dallas Hillcrest, and Rusty Uresti, a former Austin Crockett player from the South-most Junior College in Brownsville.

Three outfielders also signed - Mark Reynolds, Wichita, Kan., and Tracy Dophied, San Jacinto Junior College; and Randy Day, Orange Coast Junior College, Los Angeles.

Nicklaus Leading; Four Key Hurlers

SPRINGFIELD, N.J. (AP) - Jack Nicklaus continued a record scoring pace and took a 2-stroke lead after two rounds of the U.S. Open.

Nicklaus followed a first-round 63 with a 71 for the 134 total, the best 134-hole total in the tourney's 80-year history. Isao Aoki, Kei Fergus, Mike Reid and Lon Hinkle were tied for second at 136.

Spain's Seve Ballesteros, the defending Masters and British Open titleist, failed to make his 9:45 a.m. tee time for the second round and was disqualified.

By Electric Utility Systems...

Agreement Reached On State Interconnections

Electrical utility systems in Texas and adjacent states have reached an agreement, subject to approval by regulatory authorities, on electrical interconnection across state lines, Texas Electric President Bill Marquardt has announced.

Under terms of the agreement, interconnection would be possible without adversely affecting service reliability and without imposing cost burdens or additional federal regulations on TESCO customers.

Extensive litigation over the interconnection began in 1976 between Central and South West Corporation, a holding company with operation in Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana, and certain electric utility systems in Texas that are members of the Electric Reliability Council of Texas (ERCOT).

The ERCOT utilities primarily involved in the litigation were the operating companies of the Texas Utilities Company System - Dallas Power & Light, Texas Electric Service and Texas Power & Light - and Houston Lighting & Power Central and South West and its two wholly-owned operating companies in Texas - West Texas Utilities and Central Power & Light - took action in the courts and before federal and state regulatory agencies in an attempt to use the facilities of the TU System companies and Houston Lighting & Power to connect the CSW Texas-based utilities to the rest of its system in other states.

The TU companies and Houston Lighting & Power have long believed their customers are best served by operating within ERCOT, and that belief is supported by their long record of successful intrastate operations.

Engineers from the utilities involved have been studying possible solutions to the disagreement. "We believe this proposed settlement may be satisfactory to all concerned," said Marquardt.

He said the company believes the terms of the settlement can achieve the interconnection Central and South West wants without being detrimental to the interests of the customers of TESCO and the other utilities.

"Under this agreement, our customers would not bear any additional costs and their service reliability would not be impaired," he said.

Marquardt pointed out the continuing effectiveness of the agreement is contingent on an order from the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission exempting the TU System companies and Houston Lighting & Power from additional federal regulation. "We are hopeful that FERC will issue such an order," he said.

The proposed settlement calls for one interconnection between the ERCOT system at Oklahoma, Texas, and the Southwest Power Pool system in Lawton, Okla.

Another connection would be made from Southwestern Electric Power Co., possibly in Walker County, to the South Texas Nuclear Project in Matagorda County.

The connections would be made with direct current (DC), transmission lines. Use of DC lines will prevent many potential operating and reliability problems which would be posed if ERCOT were connected to SWPP by alternating current (AC) interconnections.

Also, DC interconnections would not require the ERCOT utilities to make expensive changes in their transmission system or operations. These features will make interconnection possible without imposing additional costs on TESCO customers.

Spiritual Comment

Editor's Note: This column is prepared by members of the Scurry County Ministerial Alliance and is presented as a community service.

WHEN? AT ALL TIMES
By R. Virgil Mott

The Psalmist David declares that there is a lofty religion, a noble spiritual ity, in the resolve of the Psalmist, "I will bless the Lord at all times." Psalm 34:1

The assertion, perhaps strikes some of us as overstrained and exaggerated. Is it possible to live out the resolve? We ask. And then we ask, is this declaration always right?

Do you bless the Lord at all times? There are noontides, when from a cloudless sky the warm sun shines downward upon us, and far and near our landscape is bathed and brightened with beauty.

Suppose thunder sounds and resounds, and the lightning of the skies catches on from the lightning that supports sometimes calm and at other times violent outburst of lovely rain, what then?

How often have you been able to rightfully sing "It Is Well With My Soul?" At other times have you engaged in singing "The Fight Is On?"

How easily so many varied emotions enter into our thinking. The gospel unfolds good news, and it usually breathes into us a peace that passeth many understandings. Yes, at all times let us learn to lift our praises to the Lord.

Classes In Indian Lore Are Combined

Wants Chaplains Out...

O'Hair Says Congress Shouldn't Pay To Pray

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP)—Atheist Madalyn Murray O'Hair says Congress should not pay to pray.

At a Friday news conference at her American Atheist Center, Mrs. O'Hair announced a federal lawsuit to cut off the salaries of Edward Elson and James David Ford, the well-paid chaplains who offer prayers before House and Senate sessions.

Mrs. O'Hair and her son Jon Garth Murray said the suit was filed Friday in Washington.

The atheists said they are not the first to seek a ban on paid chaplains.

Thomas Jefferson didn't like it, Ulysses Grant didn't like it, Andrew Jackson, I believe, was another one who tried to put through something to get the chaplains out," she said.

"It's straight out of tax funds and we want to stop this," said her son.

The suit said the Senate chaplain Elson gets $34,398 a year and offices expenses of $28,500 a year. The House chaplain Ford gets $26,691 a year. Mrs. O'Hair said a total of $89,789 in tax money is spent each year for the chaplains, according to the suit.

Their prayers are published in the Congressional Record. Federal funds are expended to pay for publishing these religious prayers," the suit said.

Mrs. O'Hair said the suit, if successful, will be followed by legal action to ban all prayers in Congress. The ultimate goal, she said, is an end to prayers at meetings of all governmental bodies.

Murray said the organization decided to file the suit after being frustrated in attempts to stop prayers at local government meetings around the nation.

"One thing the defense always uses is, 'Well, the U.S. Congress opens with a prayer and the U.S. Congress has chaplains,'" Murray said.

"It's been a burr in the saddle for every other suit we have," he said.

Mrs. O'Hair declined to comment about the "problems" of William Murray, her son who recently apologized of his role in the atheist movement.

Asked for her favorite in this year's Presidential race, Mrs. O'Hair had harsh words for the two leading contenders.

She called Jimmy Carter a "born again nut," and predicted Ronald Reagan would get the nation into a war with the Soviet Union to "depopulate the earth for the glory of Jesus Christ."

Dallas Deputies Rounding Up Suspected Drug Dealers

DALLAS (AP)—Sheriff's deputies, who have begun a roundup of accused drug pushers, say they will work through the weekend to arrest the remainder of the 25 persons indicted early this week by the Dallas County grand jury, a department spokesman said.

Twenty-five persons were named in 35 sealed, multiple-count indictments handed down Monday, and deputies began making arrests late Friday, said sheriff's Capt. Jack Gillis.

Gillis said the start of arrests had been delayed by a higher-priority undercover operation, which he refused to specify.

A single undercover narcotics agent took three-and-a-half months to complete the investigation, which resulted in the indictments for felony delivery of marijuana, methamphetamine, bipheta-mine and desoxyn.

Gillis said, however, that the busts would have little effect on drug traffic in Dallas County.

"We just got 25 people selling drugs on the retail level," said Sheriff's Capt. Jack Gillis. "It takes at least a year and several hundred thousand dollars to get a major distributor."

"Besides, these people are going to be out of jail and back on the street in a couple of days, and probably dealing again, so it won't have that big an effect," he said.

The largest confiscation made Friday was 33 ounces of marijuana taken from a woman alleged to have been selling marijuana.

"Any time you take dealers off the street, it's going to have some effect. But there's so much drugs being dealt in Dallas County that anybody who wants them will know where to find them," Gillis said.

By late Friday night, 15 people were in custody - 11 who had been indicted, and four who were picked up along with them for illegal possession of controlled substances.

Bonds ranging from $5,000 to $15,000 on each count have been set on those arrested, Gillis said.

About 20 deputies particiipated in the arrests, picking up people at their homes and workplaces around the county, including Balch Springs, Seagoville and Dallas, he said.

Vigilance Group In Panola County

CARTHAGE, Texas (AP)—An abundance of crime and a shortage of investigators has prompted about 100 Panola County residents to band together in a citizen's vigilance group.

"Our aim is to try to help the law enforcement, which is having problems," said George Massey.

"I think we can slow this thing down. Our numbers are going to help," he said.

Massey's Sporting Goods has been robbed 38 times in the last eight years, he said, and has lost about $132,000 in cash and merchandise.

He said nothing had been done with the robberies at his store until he started working on it and solved two of the robberies.

He said that the Committee for Crime Prevention will "try and help obtain evidence on these burglaries and thefts."

"We're not out for blood," Massey explained Friday, a day after the group's organizational meeting.

He says a shortage of officers and abundance of crimes, coupled with inept enforcement, led to formation of the group.

Massey singled out Bill Warren, district attorney for Panola and Shelby counties, whom he called a "lame duck."

"Mr. Massey is entitled to his opinion of me, and I have an opinion of him," said Warren, who will leave office Jan. 1.

Massey claims he gave evidence concerning his robberies to Warren, but that Warren never submitted the bulk of the evidence to the grand jury.

Warren said he was prohibited from disclosing grand jury proceedings.

"In any case, when an indictment does not result, the members of the grand jury felt there was not enough evidence," Warren said.

But he said Massey testified before the last grand jury.

Warren said the county has more law enforcement work than manpower, but added, "I think it's a problem everywhere."

Warren lost a race for district judge in May, and his replacement will be Shelby County Attorney John Walker, who is unopposed in the general election.

Warren said he was concerned about the citizens' vigilance group's inexperience.

"From a law enforcement standpoint, I can't say it's a bad idea because we need all the help we can get. The problem which has historically popped up with these civilian organizations is that you get a bunch of folks out trying to act like policemen... who fundamentally don't know what they are doing," he said.

"Possibly one of these volunteers could get hurt, or for lack of schooling in proper law enforcement procedures, they could make a procedural error that could damage an otherwise good case."

Both Sheriff Tommy G. Harris and Police Chief Carson Parks said they would appreciate any help they can get.

Massey insisted his group does not want to replace the authorities.

"If a small child is lost in the river, bottoms, call us. We will have 100 men there in 30 minutes... If you need a rare type of blood, we will find it. Our services are free; we are here to help our fellow man," Massey said.

Gas In France Nearing $3

PARIS (AP)—The Ministry of Economy announced another hike in gasoline and heating oil prices today, pushing the cost of a gallon of regular gasoline to nearly $3.

The increase, the fourth this year and the 10th since January 1979, becomes effective Saturday and will boost the cost of regular gasoline from $2.97 per gallon to $2.99. By comparison, the average price per gallon for all grades of gasoline in the United States is $1.26, according to the American Automobile Association.

New Birmingham Never Could Get Established

By Kathleen Carroll Associated Press Writer

THE SITE OF NEW BIRMINGHAM, Texas (AP). Almost a century ago, an Alabama sewing machine salesman envisioned this piney woods spot as the world's greatest iron center.

And it almost worked. In a matter of months, with his brother-in-law's capital and additional backing from New York, Alexander B. Blevins' town of New Birmingham sprang out of the red clay and forest land some 130 miles southeast of Dallas.

Less than five years later, by 1893, it was deserted. A magnificent, spanking new town left for single caretaker and scavengers.

What happened to New Birmingham, which one writer said "died a bornin'?"

In the late 1880s, Blevins discovered the rich veins of iron snaking through Cherokee County. Although two previous foundries, one built during the Civil War and another in the 1870s as part of an East Texas prison, had faltered, Blevins decided he could build an iron capital to rival those of the Northeast.

His brother-in-law, former Confederate Col. W.H. Hammons, staked him to the money to buy 20,000 acres of lush iron, mineral and timberland. The Cherokee Land and Iron Co. was chartered in March, 1888, with $1 million in stock. It was named New Birmingham, after the Alabama city that was the South's iron center at the time.

In October of that year, the first residential lot was sold and people flocked into New Birmingham from all over the South. A newspaper, several stores, a mule-drawn trolley line and an informal chamber of commerce were operating within months.

The New Birmingham Times, whose writers and editors went on to be relatively famous newspapermen after the death of The Times, proclaimed three months after incorporation that the city's population was 1,500.

New Birmingham also had graded streets, named after Texas and north-eastern cities, electric lights, brick businesses, churches and a school, telegraph and express service and a splendiferous three-story hotel.

"The city looks as if a portion of a Northern city had been whacked off and set down in this mighty empire," declared the Times "conservative in most things except the promotion of New Birmingham..." in November of 1889.

"That was a boom town for a while, oh boy," remembered Mrs. Jewell Copeland, 89, who grew up just down the road from New Birmingham and now lives in Rusk, just two miles west of the New Birmingham site on U.S. 69.

The $60,000 Southern Hotel sported billiard tables, hand-carved and polished paneling and fixtures, dance bands "imported" from Dallas, Houston and New Orleans and, from newspaper accounts of the time, a bubbling and active social calendar.

Promoters promised that New Birmingham sported the first all-electric barn and was near the original burial site of French explorer La Salle, a claim citizens no longer make, by the way.

The Southern's guest register bore the signatures of railroad magnate Jay Gould, President Grover Cleveland and Texas Gov. Jim Hogg, a native of the area.

And according to the late Tom Finfy, Jr., a Times reporter who later became an editor at The Dallas Morning News, the fashion of wearing thick "burnsides" or sideburns, first became popular at the Southern.

The hotel also was the residence of Col. and Mrs. Hammon, leaders of New Birmingham's sparkling social life, according to a little-told legend, was what killed New Birmingham.

Less romantic historians, primarily Hattie Joplin Roach in her "History of Cherokee County," blame the boom town's sudden death on more practical causes: insufficient financial backing and the sudden dive of the nation's economy in the early 1890s.

But the legend is certainly more interesting reading and a great way to scare the pants off visitors who make the mistake of wandering around the now deserted townsite at dusk.

Mrs. Hammon, as the story goes, became jealous of a young Tennessee belle who moved to New Birmingham with her husband to open a business. Soon, gossip that was less than flattering to the belle spread through town and her husband filed a slander suit.

According to an 1890 edition of the Galveston Weekly News, on a sweltering July 14 afternoon, while the suit was still being contested, the angered husband gunned Hammon down in the street, then turned himself in to authorities.

According to the legend reported in several term papers at the Rusk library, Mrs. Hammon was ready for a lynching, but the gunman was whisked to the safety of a prison. Distraught by the murder, and denied the satisfaction of a lynching, Mrs. Hammon's mind snapped.

She ran down the streets, her crimson hair flowing behind her, screaming a curse on new Birmingham, calling it a "mush-room town" to leave no stick or stone standing in the town and the city be abandoned to the pines.

A short time later, Blevins and the New York backers realized their capital would not be sufficient to keep things going. A fire at the Tassie Bell furnace shut down that 50-ton-a-day operation and threw 300 employees out of work.

No backers were to be found in the post-Civil War climate of the Northeast, so they sought help from England. A London firm, Baring Brothers, sent representatives who agreed to sink an additional $1 million into the iron company, hoping to develop the surrounding timberland for England's charcoal needs.

But Gov. Hogg was promoting the Alien Land Act, which prohibited foreigners from owning property in Texas, and despite a spectacular promotional campaign and dinner, refused to except New Birmingham from the law.

The Baring Brothers investors went home empty-handed and townspeople began to leave New Birmingham.

The buildings fell into disrepair and ruin. Only the great Southern Hotel remained, under the supervision of a caretaker and his wife.

On July 4, 1893, the nearby Jacksonville Progress declared "The Iron Queen of the Southwest" dead.

"All the others who'd remember have passed on," said Mrs. Copeland. "We used to go over there to the hotel and have dances. In later years, us kids would go over there and ramble around. It was dusty, but made of wonderful material."

The hotel's cook, a man known only as "Robinson," came to work for her father after the hotel closed, she said.

"Oh, he was the most wonderful cook. And he took care of my son when he was a baby," Mrs. Copeland said.

In 1926, a fire of unknown origin destroyed the hotel. "It was an immense fire," Mrs. Copeland said. "We could see it from here, with smoke and everything. I just sat there and cried."

Mrs. Hammon, it is said, roams the woodlands even still, her spirit whispering through the pine needles, satisfied that her revenge is complete.

The Rusk Chamber of Commerce has a few reprints of an 1891 pamphlet produced by New Birmingham promoters extolling the city's virtues.

"It is above the fever line and sickness is almost unknown," but little else on the city is available.

The ruin of the Tassie Bell, named for Blevins' wife, have been marked and laced with paths made from her brick. It is now a roadside park.

A Rusk hotel is named the New Southern Motor Hotel, but few of that city's residents know the story of New Birmingham's demise.

What was it that killed the booming city, born full of promise?

Was it finances, the shaky economy, the sudden plummet in the price of pig iron, the Alien Land Act, the lack of capital that pushed the infant city over the brink? Or, was it the hysterical curse of a beautiful red-haired widow driven mad by the murder of her husband on that sultry July afternoon so long ago?

And the service area — including a rear entry and laundry utility room as well as a half bath — adds practicality. Note, too, the attached carport.

On the second floor a walkway from the delightful master bedroom leads to a charming roof garden. With Help Of Police Dogs...

Bikers Driven From Quenemo

QUENEMO, Kan. (AP)—Officers backed by police dogs drove several hundred unruly motorcyclists from Quenemo early today after a "Friday the 13th" celebration that left three persons dead and at least six others injured, authorities said.

for drag racing in downtown Quenemo, authorities said. One man was shot to death around 10 p.m. Witnesses said he had been standing along Maple Street where the motorcyclists had been racing in groups of two.

sons were killed in an accident near the downtown area, but that report proved erroneous. A spokesman at Ransom Memorial Hospital in Ottawa said that six or seven injured people had been brought there from the Quenemo area, and at least one of them was believed to be in critical condition.

There were injuries probably no one even knew about," said a dispatcher for an Osage County ambulance service. "It was beyond your furthest imagination what went on there, tonight."

By 9 p.m. (CDT) Osage County authorities reported about 2,000 motorcyclists in the town. An officer in Quenemo, however, said he believed the number of motorcyclists was closer to 3,000. Authorities reported that an additional 3,500 other people had gathered for the celebration.

Royal Couple May Separate

LONDON (AP)—Princess Caroline of Monaco and her husband of two years, Philippe Junot, are considering a separation, London Daily Mail gossip columnist Nigel Dempster reported today.

Smith estimated during the height of the disturbance that about "99 percent" of those at the celebration were "over the intoxication point."

The Kansas Highway Patrol cordoned off Quenemo to prevent traffic, other than residents and authorities from entering the town. Vehicles were permitted to leave, authorities said.

Junot failed to achieve financial success, despite his princely connections, and this, as well as his much publicized evenings with other ladies in places like New York, contributed to the rift, Dempster wrote.

Railway Was Eighth Wonder

KEY WEST, Fla. — The 100-mile extension of the Florida East Coast Railway from the Florida mainland to Key West was completed in 1912. It is considered "the eighth wonder of the world" at the time. It spanned 10 islands and included 10 miles of bridge over open water.

was built by the state and private investors, was sold to the state and became a national highway.

Sardine Vessel Lands

By Gaynor Maddox

The tall ship, sails unfurled, docked at New York harbor recently. Aboard were 90 cadets, youths between 16 and 19, plus crew on the vessel's annual training cruise.

The ship, named the Christian Radish, made a thrilling sight with her three masts and square sails and the eager faces of the young Norwegian seamen.

The Norwegian sardine people invited several food writers aboard to help celebrate their industry's 100th birthday.

We arrived before noon and met the lively young cadets, who were selected for the voyage from 500 applicants. In discussing life at sea with several of them, we learned that their enthusiasm for sailing is great, their interest in new places is unending and their regard for the ship's chef is perhaps greater than their appreciation of what he serves them.

Our luncheon was seaman-like. Naturally it included sardines.

First came hors d'oeuvres—sardine pate, nordic pickles and dilled sandwiches.

The pate was the most unusual of the appetizers. It consisted of Norway sardines in oil, drained plus hard cooked eggs, softened butter, mayonnaise, lime juice, prepared mustard, chopped celery and chopped parsley.

The first six ingredients were mixed in a blender in a food processor, then the celery and parsley were stirred in. The mixture was spooned into serving dishes and chilled thoroughly.

Next came lobscouse, a sailor's stew made with meat, vegetables and hard tack. We like the cadets' found it more nourishing than delicious.

Also on the menu were green salad, black bread, Swedish crackers, Norwegian beer and soft drinks. But no dessert.

After our on-deck repast we sailed out of the harbor into the Atlantic. The pitch and roll of the Christian Radish made all of us feel jolly.

Miss Everett, Konvicka Marry In Candlelight Ceremony

Tronda Annette Everett became the bride of Frank Thomas Konvicka in solemn rites in the chapel of First Baptist Church, Marshall, at 7:30 p.m. June 14. Officiating minister was Dr. William J. Fritts, pastor of the church.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Don M. Everett of Marshall and Mr. and Mrs. Frank N. Konvicka, 2112 33rd St.

Providing traditional wedding music were Cathy Jones, organist, and Donna Bulloch and Ms. Jones, vocalists.

Vows were repeated before an altar illuminated with two massive candle trees, each holding arrangements of mixed summer flowers and lighted cathedral tapers. The church windows were aglow with candlelight. Stately candle stands, holding foliage and summer flowers marked family pews. The families were united by the lighting of the unity candle near the altar.

Mrs. Jerry McIntosh, aunt of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Laurana Everett and Shan Everett, sisters of the bride, and flower girl was Cindy Hayes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Hayes.

Father of the groom served as best man. Groomsmen were Seth Brady of Kilgore and David McLendon of Jefferson. Best man Jerry McIntosh Jr. lighted candles.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a formal gown of white organza featuring a stand up neckline and bishop sleeves with deep satin cuffs. Her empire bodice was covered and the sleeves sprinkled with re-embroidered Alencon and Venise laces. The A-line skirt was edged with a satin band and sprinkled with more of the lace and flowered into a chapel train. The bride's Juliet bonnet was covered with Venise lace and seed pearls adorned by layers of illusion. She carried a colonial nosegay of Frenched carnations, daisies, stephanotis, blue gypsophelia accented with polished English ivy and lace streamers.

The parlor of the church was the site for the reception honoring the couple. The bride's table was covered with an imported white bouffant lace cloth and was centered with a wrought iron bird cage with cascading arrangements of summer flowers in shades of blue fell. Two doves were perched on top.

Members of the houseparty included Mrs. Trese Foster, Mrs. Amy Brumfield, Mrs. Debbie Vogus, Glenna Cordray, Kristi Scales and Linda Isbell.

The bride is a 1978 graduate of Marshall High School, is presently a student at Texas Tech University majoring in home economics education. The bridegroom is a 1976 graduate of Snyder High School, is also a student at Texas Tech majoring in meteorology.

He is employed by the National Weather Service, Lubbock.

Mr. and Mrs. Konvicka honored the couple with a rehearsal dinner in the home of D.B. McGeorge.

PROPER WINDOW SHADE INSULATION
In fall, window shades properly to get maximum performance.

The inexpensive and simple roller shade is among the easiest and most cost effective ways to reduce heat loss through windows.

Even an ordinary shade can cut window heat loss by as much as 30 percent, provided it is properly installed.

Greater efficiency results when the shade is mounted inside the window frame, and when tolerance at the top, sides and bottom of the shade is kept to no more than 1/2 inch.

Addition of simple wood channels on the sides of the window and sealing off the air flow above the roller, boosted heat savings of the ordinary shade to 40 percent in a recent study.

One of the easiest ways to equip a window with channels or side tracks for shades is to use 1/2 inch aluminum channeling or wood outside corner moulding. Both the U-channels and L-shaped wood moulding come in varying lengths and widths and are available at do-it-yourself centers.

Measure from top to bottom inside the window to determine height.

Then, deduct diameter of the rolled up shade plus another 1/2 inch.

This will give length of the two channels or moulding strips.

Install shades so there's only 1/2 inch clearance on each side.

To determine placement of the channels or moulding, pull the shade down and mark the sides of the window frame where they are to be located.

Drill the channels at 12 inch intervals and attach to the window frame with screws. Insert sides of the shades in the track. Wood L-moulding may be attached with finishing nails, then painted or stained to match the window frame.

Finally, seal off the area above the roller and the metal or wood track with a strip of clear heavy plastic.

The better quality meat can be recognized by the marbling streaks of fat throughout the lean portions. Meat with no fat at all wouldn't taste as good or have as pleasing a texture, points out the National Live Stock and Meat Board.

Pair Pledges Vows In Formal Rites

MR. AND MRS. MARVIS HENDRIX JR.

Miss Sammie Sue Lindsey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Lindsey of Eucutta, Miss. became the bride of Marvis Thomas Hendrix Jr. of Victoria in a double ring ceremony solemnized May 4 at 3 p.m. in the garden of the bride's parents. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Marvis Hendrix of Snyder.

The Rev. W.O. Phippen officiated at the ceremony which was performed before an arbor of running scuppernon vines in full foliage.

Prior to the ceremony, Mrs. Mary Ann Stevens, organist, presented a program of nuptial selections and accompanied Miss Kathy Hawkins, soloist. Traditional wedding marches were played and Miss Hawkins sang "I Promise Me" preceding the bride's entrance. Chimes of the old church bell in the Eucutta Baptist Church marked the hour as the bride entered on the arm of her father who gave her in marriage.

The bride was attired in a gown of white gossamer silk organza over taffeta. The gown featured a slightly raised waistline outlined and appliqued with Alencon lace embroidered with clusters of seed pearls and wide scalloped neckline of Alencon lace. A full A-line skirt, accented with lace motifs flowed to form a chapel length train circle by a scalloped edge of Venice lace. She wore baby's breath in her hair and carried a cascading bouquet of silk white roses accented with stephanotis and baby's breath and extending streamers of lace.

In keeping with tradition, the bride wore a blue garter trimmed in heirloom tating made by her maternal grandmother, the late Mrs. John Wesley Gordon Sr. Something new was her dress and something borrowed was a handkerchief of white embroidered linen loaned by her aunt, Mrs. Janet Leggett. Her only jewelry was a pearl pendant, a gift from the bridegroom.

Miss Dianne Lindsey, sister of the bride served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Jeness Webb and Mrs. Denise Hayes. The attendants wore full length formal gowns of mauve chiffonette. They carried arm bouquets of silk day lilies, stephanotis and baby's breath in shades of pink and gray tied with a mauve ribbon.

Miss Natasha Stutts, cousin of the bride was flower girl. Chad Sharp was ring bearer.

Marvis Hendrix, father of the bridegroom, attended as best man. Groomsmen and ushers were Randy Billingsley and Randy Mason, both brothers-in-law of the groom.

During the ceremony, the groom presented his bride with a single long stemmed, pink rose as Miss Hawkins sang "Whither Thou Goest." The bride, in turn, presented a pink rose to her mother and to the mother of the groom.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Lindsey entertained the wedding guests at a reception in an adjacent area of the yard. The bride's table covered with a white cloth and lace overlay flanked on either end with ferns arranged on walnut pedestal stands held the three-tiered bride's cake. Serving were Mrs. Judy Martin and Mrs. Janet Leggett assisted by Mrs. Nell Stutts and Mrs. Edwiga Rees.

The groom's table was located on the patio and displayed an original two-layered cake in the shape of Texas with the city of Victoria marked by a silk rose bud. Serving were Mrs. Judy Billingsley and Mrs. Susie Mason, sisters of the bridegroom.

The groom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner at the Dixie Golf Club in Laurel.

Following the wedding trip to Point Clear, Ala. and Santa Rosa Island, Fla. the couple are at home in Victoria.

NUPTIAL VOWS SET-Delores Sands, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Sands, and Kyle Cox, son of Mr. and Mrs. Odell Cox will exchange nuptial vows Aug. 22 at 7:30 p.m. in the Colonial Hill Baptist Church with the Rev. Miller Robinson, pastor of the church, officiating.

"Daddy just didn't know how to show love."

"It was Mom who held the family together. He just went to work every day and came home and she'd have a list of sins we'd committed and he'd give us what-for about them."

"Once when I stole a candy bar, he made me take it back and tell the man I stole it and that I'd unpack boxes to pay for it. But it was Mom who understood I was just a kid."

"I broke my leg once on the swing set and it was Mom who held me in her arms all the way to the hospital. Dad pulled the car right up to the door of the emergency ward and when they asked him to move it because that space was reserved for emergency vehicles he shouted, 'What do you think this is? A tour bus?' Mom carried me home. Seems like all my life Dad was parking the car someplace and coming in wet or half frozen. But Mom never left me for a moment."

"He was always sorta out of place at birthday parties. He just busied himself blowing up balloons and setting up tables, and running errands, but it was Mom who carried in the cake with the candles on it for me to blow out."

"When I leaf through picture albums people always ask, 'What does your Dad look like?' Who knows? He was always fiddling around with the camera taking everyone else's picture. We'd tell him, 'Enough already,'" but that never stopped him. I must have a zillion pictures of Mom and me smiling together."

"I remember when Mom told him to teach me how to ride a bicycle. I told him not to let go, but he said it was time. I fell and Mom ran to pick me up, but he waved her off. I was so mad I showed him. Got right back on that bike and rode it myself. He didn't even feel embarrassed. Just smiled."

"When I went to college, he was fiddling with what else ... the luggage and the boxes. Mom sat down and told me everything would be all right. She did all the writing. He just sent checks and a little note about how great his lawn looked now that I wasn't playing football on it."

"Whenever I called home, he acted like he wanted to talk, but he always said, 'I'll get your mother.'"

"When I got married, it was Mom who got all choked up and cried. He just blew his nose loudly and left the room."

"All my life he said, 'Where are you going? What time are you coming home? Do you have gas in the car? Whose going to be there? No, you cannot go.' Not Mom. She just loved me, but Daddy ... he just didn't know how to show love ... unless ... Is it possible he showed it and I didn't recognize it?"

victims of own creed

On May 21, 1979, a mini-riot broke out in San Francisco when the homosexual community reacted violently to the outcome of the Dan White murder trial. Although no one was killed in the subsequent disturbance, the situation was not dissimilar to the recent chaos in Miami.

In Miami black citizens were, and still are, outraged at the outcome of the trial of four policemen accused of killing Arthur McDuffie, a black insurance salesman. McDuffie obviously died at the hands of at least one police officer, yet the accused were acquitted.

In both cases people were seemingly murdered and the courts refused to return first degree murder convictions - terrible yes, but not entirely unexpected. Black activists claim the McDuffie verdict is an example of racism. Homosexual leaders suggest Dan White's conviction of manslaughter, instead of murder, represents the system's anti-gay bias. They are both wrong.

The failure to obtain murder convictions in these two cases is not substantially different from what is happening in other trials. For three decades left-of-center politicians, with the support of a large number of black and homosexual citizens, have written numerous protections of the accused into the law. These same people have applauded Supreme Court decisions that make it increasingly difficult to obtain first degree murder convictions. Is it any wonder then that there are cases where murder has obviously been committed and the accused goes free?

It's said that it is better that a thousand guilty men go free than one innocent man be wrongly convicted. With that cliché ringing in their ears the citizens of this country have permitted the judicial system to be tilted so far in favor of the accused that professional criminals look at it as a joke. By building so many protections of the accused into the system it is inevitable that a higher proportion of the guilty will go free. Why should anyone think it should be any different simply because public attention is focused on the case?

Dan White was able to escape a murder conviction by claiming diminished capacity rendered him not responsible for what he did. That little bit of lawyer's trickery is typical of the pettifoggery criminals use to escape punishment. Concepts like probable cause, temporary insanity and tainted evidence are all tools used to discover truth, which is, after all, the supposed purpose of a trial.

Yes, the killings in San Francisco and Miami were outrageous. Nevertheless those who turned to violent protest should remember that what they are really protesting is the judicial system's failure to convict those accused of the murders. And often those protesting supported the very same soft-on-the-criminal procedures that are at fault for the situation.

"I understand."

what fathers are for

A father is a thing that is forced to endure childbirth without an anesthetic.

A father is a thing that grows when it feels good ... and laughs very loud when it's scared half to death.

A father is something accused of giving too much time to his business when the little ones are growing up.

That's partly fear, too. Fathers are much more easily frightened than mothers.

A father never feels entirely worthy of the worship in a child's eyes.

He's never quite the hero his daughter thinks ... never quite the man his son believes him to be ... and this worries him sometimes.

So he works too hard to try and smooth the rough places in the road for those of his own who will follow him.

A father is a thing that gets very angry when the first school grades aren't as good as he thinks they should be.

He scolds his son ... though he knows it's the teacher's fault.

A father is a thing that goes away to war, sometimes.

And learns to swear and shoot and spit through his teeth and would run the other way except that this war is part of his only important job in life ... which is making the world better for his child than it has been for him.

Fathers grow old faster than people. Because they, in other words, have to stand at the train station and wave goodbye to the uniform that climbs aboard.

And while mothers can cry where it shows ... Fathers have to stand there and beam outside ... and die inside.

Fathers have very stout hearts, so they have to be broken sometimes or no one would know what's inside.

Fathers are what give daughters away to other men who aren't nearly good enough ... so they can have grandchildren that are smarter than anybody's.

Fathers fight dragons ... almost daily.

They hurry away from the breakfast table ...

Off to the arena which is sometimes called an office or a workshop ...

There, with calloused, practiced hands they tackle the dragon with three heads ...

Weariness, Work, and Monotony. And they never quite win the fight but they never give up.

Knights in shining armor ...

Fathers in shiny trousers ... there's little difference ...

As they march away to each workday.

Fathers make bets with insurance companies about who'll live the longest.

Though they know the odds they keep right on betting ...

Even as the odds get higher and higher ... they keep right on betting ... more and more.

And one day they lose. But fathers enjoy an earthly immortality ... and the bet's paid off to the part of him he leaves behind.

I don't know ... where fathers go ... when they die.

But I've an idea that after a good rest ... wherever it is ... he won't be happy unless there's work to do.

He won't just sit on a cloud and wait for the girl he's loved and the children she bore ...

He'll be busy there, too ... repairing the stairs ... oiling the gates ... improving the streets ... smoothing the way.

letter to editor

To The Daily News: I went with the Go-Getters May 20 to Austin for the Texas Special Olympics Track and Field Meet as a chaperone. To see these special people trying their best to win really touches your heart.

This is the third year I have gone to Austin with our Go-Getters. Each year the meet is bigger and better than the year before. In 1978, there were over 2,900 participants. Sixteen Snyder Go-Getters attended. Eleven medals were won. In 1979, there were 3,400 participants attending the meet. Thirteen Go-Getters attended. They won seven medals and four ribbons.

This year, over 4,000 athletes were at the state meet. There were 17 Go-Getters in Austin. They won 21 medals and eight ribbons.

There were other events besides running, softball throwing and frisbee that some of our Go-Getters could have entered if we had someone to train our athletes. Training is important. They do need help.

I wish to thank the Scurry County Association for Retarded Citizens for being the Go-Getters' sponsor. The chartered bus was really nice and everyone enjoyed the trip. Thanks to all who had a part in sending the Go-Getters to Austin. They were all winners this year. We are very proud of them.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "The rule of political expediency is if you can fool all of the people some of the time, that's enough."

If there is anyplace in the nation to sit out the recession, then Snyder has to be the ideal place.

Sure, we have problems, but they are insignificant compared to some areas of the country. What makes West Texas great is peoples' willingness to work-to give a day's pay for a day's productivity.

Because of the work ethic of folks in West Texas, manufacturing concerns are looking with increased interest to locating their plants in West Texas.

Snyder has already reaped some benefits from this kind of thinking, and so there are jobs in Snyder ... jobs for both the man and wife. All it takes is a willingness to work-to work.

There simply is no excuse for any physically-able person to be drawing welfare payments. There are jobs to be had out there.

Unemployment in Snyder is low, and we're proud of that fact. This means that people still have great pride in providing for their families. This independence again is what makes national firms look to West Texas for plant sites.

There are jobs for both men and women ... good jobs. There are abundant child care opportunities, and the quality of life is far superior to any place we know.

We'd like to suggest that you call a relative or close friend and invite them to explore the job opportunities in Snyder. Invite them here for a visit and let them see the opportunities first-hand.

The chamber of commerce or the Texas Employment Commission office can help direct you to the jobs available. There are jobs at American Magnesium, Northern Electric, Walls and lots of oilfield related opportunities. The list is almost endless.

If you have a brother, sister, mother, father, son, daughter, friend, etc.; give them a call or write a letter to them. Growth from within is the best kind of growth.

Here's one reason that firms like the high standards of West Texas. It seems that unionized workers in California and Nevada are seeking liberalized funeral leaves for "pair-bonded relationships."

This means unmarried couples - including ones of the same sex. If we're backward in West Texas, we prefer it that way.
