Plan To Topple Bani-Sadr Told

By The Associated Press
A Tehran newspaper said today a leader of the hardline Islamic Republican Party was plotting to topple Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr. The report was yet another indication of the widening rift between the powerful clergy-dominated party and the Iranian leader.

clashed repeatedly in recent months on a variety of issues ranging from appointment of a prime minister to treatment of the 53 American hostages. IRP leaders, like the militants who took over the U.S. Embassy in Tehran last Nov. 4, have urged that the hostages be tried as spies. Bani-Sadr has suggested spy trials are not in Iran's best interests.

further weaken Bani-Sadr's authority. A member of the U.N. investigating commission said the group will not return to Tehran in the near future.

Tehran Radio reported that six more drug traffickers, including a woman, were executed in Tehran by firing squad today on orders of Ayatollah Sadegh Khalkhali, head of Iran's anti-drug squad. Five more persons were executed in Hamadan, 200 miles southwest of Tehran, and three armed robbers were hanged "on the spot" on a road to Kermanshah in western Iran where they "had been holding travelers to rob them," the radio said.

Peasants Loot U.S. Buildings

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP)—Right-wing peasants demanding the ouster of the U.S. ambassador looted the American consulate and the Bolivian-American Cultural Center early today in Santa Cruz, official sources said. There were no injuries.

The sources said 50 to 100 peasants - some carrying automatic weapons - rifled files, broke furniture and carted off typewriters and other equipment. No Americans were in the buildings at the time.

4-Bit Part Causes False Alert

WASHINGTON (AP)—Pentagon weapons experts might be thinking today about the old adage that for want of a nail the horse was lost, for want of a horse the rider was lost, and for want of a rider, the battle was lost.

The Pentagon announced Tuesday that two recent false alarms that the United States was being attacked by Soviet missiles were caused by the failure of a dime-sized computer circuit costing 46 cents. But the alarms didn't trigger anything because duty officers at command posts quickly determined that an attack had not begun, Assistant Defense Secretary Gerald Dinneen said.

The SDN Column

Twice in recent weeks, we have had a question submitted to our "Ask Us" column concerning merchandise coupons. These coupons are nothing new. They began many years ago. In fact, there was a country song back in the thirties titled, "I'm Saving Up Coupons to Get One of Those," which was sung regularly on a Dallas radio station by a fellow named Peg Moreland.

And back during the "depression days," tobacco companies found coupons to be quite popular among smokers.

Now, with inflation claiming a lot of attention, coupons good for "cents off" apparently are more popular than ever. This should indicate trouble ahead for people in the U.S. Department of Agriculture who suggested recently that coupons should be banned. (Or was it the Federal Trade Commission?)

The objective of coupons, of course, is to get people to buy the product and to visit the stores where they may be redeemed. Some have questioned whether coupons actually save money for the shopper, but now, some rather prestigious experts have come up with research reports indicating that coupons may indeed be worthwhile to the shopper, provided he takes the time to shop systematically.

Citibank of New York checked out a marketbasket of 36 items in New York City food markets and found that a careful shopper could get the items for a total of $51.06, but a haphazard shopper could pay as much as $83.39 for the same items.

Their recommendation for saving money while food shopping includes: Check the ads for best buys; compare prices on non-sale goods; plan shopping to require fewer trips to the store (you nearly always buy something on impulse every time you shop); check unit prices and compare sizes; don't reach for the first item you see—most expensive items usually are displayed at eye level, with cheaper brands below and above; leave the children home when you shop, and don't shop when you are hungry; when often-used items are on special sale, buy in quantity; weigh the cost of convenience (it is cheaper to add your own butter to a 29-cent package of frozen peas than to pay 89 cents for the same size package with butter sauce included); and clip coupons whenever they are available, and use them when you shop.

Announcer Named For AJRA Finals

An announcer has been employed and tickets are now being ordered for the American Junior Rodeo Association's national finals rodeo.

The big show is set for Aug. 11-16 in the Scurry County Coliseum, and it will be the fifth year in a row for Snyder to host the national AJRA finals.

The local AJRA National Finals Committee met last night in the chamber of commerce conference room and announced that Dan Coats of Weatherford will serve as announcer for the event.

Tickets are to be ordered this week and are expected to go on sale early in July. Box seats will cost $5 this year and they are the only seats that will be reserved.

Adult general admission tickets will cost $4 each and tickets for children under 12 years of age are priced at $2.50 each.

Western dances will be held each night in connection with the rodeo, and tickets to each dance will cost $5 per person for adults and $3.50 for children.

The AJRA also is searching for entertainers to perform during the national finals, and they hope to sign up some nationally-known personalities.

Next meeting of the committee has been set for July 1.

36 Dead, 200 Wounded... Violence Flares In South Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—Clashes between rioters and police overnight in a mixed-race township stemming from the anniversary of the 1976 Soweto riots left 36 persons dead and 200 wounded, a Cape Town newspaper reported today. Police said at least 11 were killed, but the toll could be higher.

Violence flared anew today, but there were no immediate reports of casualties.

The Cape Argus newspaper said a check showed 34 persons dead on arrival and two dead of injuries after admission at three hospitals.

The new violence erupted in Elsie's River as young men stoned cars and set fire to a shop, and police opened fire to disperse mobs so that firemen could fight the blaze, the Cape Argus reported.

South Africa's police commissioner declared his men will shoot to kill anyone found looting, burning or endangering lives, just as they did in the clashes overnight.

"This is what had happened in those cases where people had been killed in police action last night," Gen. Mike Geldenhuys told reporters as he defended the reaction of his forces who used shotguns, clubs and rubber bullets against rioters Tuesday in the mixed-race townships around Cape Town.

Water Okay In Georgetown

Ask Us

Q—Why do all sweepstakes and contest advertisements have disclaimers saying, "Except where restricted, or prohibited by law?" What is the law behind this? Why are states different?

A—Each state has authority to establish regulations within its own boundaries. For example, gambling casinos are legal in Nevada and New Jersey, but not in other states; parimutuel betting is legal in New Mexico, but not in Texas. Some states do not allow the sweepstakes promotions and the disclaimer puts residents of those states on notice that they cannot participate because of their own state law.

The promotions were announced by Roger B. Mize, president of the bank.

Miss Lopour has been with Snyder National Bank for the past 21 years and Mrs. Sullenger has been with the bank 17 years.

Hot Weather Hikes Demand For Water

Spring is going into its last days this year with a torrid record and the Snyder Water Department is feeling it.

The city's water treatment plant processed 4.2 million gallons of water Tuesday, the fifth day this month that the demand has exceeded the 4-million mark.

It also was the fifth day in a row for the temperature to soar into the mid-90s or higher. Top readings both Monday and Tuesday hit 96 degrees.

The hot weather has increased lawn irrigation activity, with more and more lawn-watering going on through the night, it was reported. Also, the hot, dry spell has increased the use of evaporative type home coolers.

First Quarter Profits Bigger Than Estimated

WASHINGTON (AP)—The nation's overall economy and corporate profits were a bit stronger in the first three months this year than earlier estimated, the Commerce Department reported today.

The nation's inflation-adjusted gross national product - the value of all goods and services - rose at an annual rate of 1.2 percent from the final quarter of 1979 to the first quarter of 1980, the agency said.

The growth initially had been estimated as 1.1 percent, but that figure later was revised downward to 0.6 percent. The economy had grown at an annual rate of 2 percent in the fourth quarter of 1979 and 3.1 percent in the preceding quarter.

The first quarter is expected to be the last to show growth, as most analysts believe that the nation's seventh recession since World War II is under way and could continue through the rest of the year.

The Commerce Department also reported that the after-tax profits of the nation's corporations rose 7.6 percent, from an annual rate of $146.9 billion in the final three months of 1979 to an annual $158 billion in the first three months of 1980. After-tax profits had fallen 0.9 percent from the third quarter to fourth quarter of 1979.

The first-quarter increase initially had been reported as 5.9 percent.

Meanwhile, the Labor Department reported that the number of Americans filing initial unemployment insurance claims rebounded to record levels in early June, a sign that the job market is continuing to contract rapidly.

The department said a seasonally adjusted 675,000 jobless people filed first-time claims with state unemployment offices during the week ending June 7, up 50,000 from the week before, to equal the record high set during the week ending May 17.

Other government figures indicate that Americans are saving more and spending less as the deepening recession staggers income and further decimates a reeling housing industry.

SNYDER TEMPERATURES: High Tuesday, 96 degrees; low, 70 degrees; reading at 7 a.m. today, 75 degrees; precipitation, none; total precipitation for 1980 to date, 9.53.

West Texas: Partly cloudy central and north with widely scattered mainly nighttime thunderstorms through Thursday. Locally severe thunderstorms possible Panhandle and South Plains tonight. Highs 90s Panhandle to near 110 Big Bend. Lows mid 60s Panhandle to mid 70s southeast except around 60 higher mountain valleys.

the cuban spectacle

A little knowledge, as they say, can be a dangerous thing - particularly when it is ignored.

It now appears that the folks in Washington weren't taken all that much by surprise with the flood of refugees from Castro's Cuba.

Washington and its Latin allies were still dickering over refugee quotas when Castro, converting an embarrassment for himself into one for his opponents, encouraged the trickle of dissidents into Havana's Peruvian Embassy to become an unmanageable stampede.

They were still wrangling with Castro over mutually acceptable airlift arrangements when he suddenly threw open the port of Mariel to all wishing to emigrate.

And as late as his May 14 policy statement, President Carter was attempting to control the refugee flow through screening procedures in Cuba requiring Castro's cooperation and which he was having none of, while tens of thousands of Cubans were crossing the Florida Straits in a totally uncontrolled sealt.

It has continued to be a grim game of catch-up, from emergency aid for an impacted Miami with other disastrous problems of its own to establishing resettlement centers around the country that have turned out to be breeding grounds for riots to determining how to handle the Cubans under the very U.S. law specifically designed for the situation.

That is the Refugee Act of 1980, which, with its provisions for systematic processing overseas before admission to the United States, was written primarily with distant Indochinese in mind, not near-at-hand Cubans. Government and private agencies are now bumping into each other in the effort to make the letter of the law, with its two categories of refugees and asylum-seekers, fit the realities of the present situation.

No one is going to be able to look back on this episode as a finest hour. That emphatically includes Castro, who has suffered a massive propaganda defeat. Some hundred-thousand Cubans - overwhelmingly of their own free will, despite the reports of emptied prisons and mental facilities - have fled his rule, joining three-quarters of a million countrymen already in the United States.

For all his success in embarrassing American efforts to bring order out of chaos, it is a spectacle played out before world audiences that will not soon forget it.

The exodus of Cubans now appears to be ending. But for their country of refuge it is only the end of the beginning. Resettlement is likely to drag on for many months at a cost that could hit $300 million. It may be as long or longer before South Florida returns to something resembling normal.

And there is a potentially bitter legal aftermath in the status of boat owners who chose to flout a law the federal authority was unable or unwilling to enforce.

We may, however, hope to learn something from it, so that should this bit of history repeat itself - and so long as Castro remains in erratically exercised power, don't bet against it - we may at least respond more knowledgeably.

I'm sorry, but I somehow get the feeling if someone offered Angie a measuring cup, she'd laugh and say, "I haven't worn that size since I was seven."

First ladies, I've discovered, rarely send in recipes for anything under budget. There's Bess Truman's Coconut Balls; Mamie Eisenhower's Million-Dollar Fudge; and Rosalynn Carter's Peanut Brittle.

Would you try Joel Grey's Pepper Duck? Bob Hope's Lemon Pie? Or Ronald Reagan's Truckadero Beef Stew? (The latter contains 16 ingredients, which is the kind of thoroughness you'd expect from a man who declared his candidacy last December.)

Summer shouldn't go by without each and every family taking picnics by the lake, at a park, or some favorite country spot. Fourth of July is a must for a picnic and may be the only big picnic outside the backyard many will work into their summer schedules.

Instead, let five o'clock Friday be the real start of an enjoyable weekend, minus last-minute hassles. Take one evening during the week for packing, cleaning and other chores, so you won't be pressed Friday evening with various "duties." You might keep a list of "to-do's" handy for reference all summer.

Don't hurry off so fast that you forget to leave your place a lived-in look, leave a few lights on or buy a timer to turn lights on and off automatically, which will save a little on electric bills, too.

Family picnics can and should be fun. With July 4 around two weeks away there is time to plan our first perfect picnic.

People, Plants Make Great Companionship

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

Plants love people. Start an affair today. That's the word from Apopka, Fla., which calls itself the capital of foliage plants and can prove it. "Florida is the biggest shipper of house plants in the world because of its favorable climate," says Dennis W. Murray, executive vice president of the Florida Foliage Association. Members of the organization formed a little more than three years ago from loose-knit agencies, ship 95 per cent of the state's $124 million product all over the United States and to Europe.

The Florida growers also spend more than $13 million for plant materials to provide the basic cuttings, clones or tissue culture that form the millions of plants shipped northward by 3,000 Florida growers to help decorate and beautify homes, hotels, business places and restaurants.

"Now," Murray says, "you can rent plants, just as you can an automobile. People in trucks will come to your office door or home, bring the plants you want or which they suggest, care for them including watering, stopping by regularly, replacing those that aren't doing well or of which you tire. They'll do this on a monthly basis, or longer if you prefer.

The plant renters will present plans, diagrams and photos of interior scenes, give you the cost, and sign you for six months or a year or whatever," says Murray.

Growers among the association's 1,472 members range from small family-operated nurseries to huge, automated production lines where plants, after their initial planting in pots, are not again touched by humans, except to have a sickly leaf plucked off or otherwise be tidied, until they are trucked away.

What plants are most in demand? Murray lists philodendron, followed by dracaena. Both came in about 60 varieties. African violets, ferns, and pothos also are popular, especially for apartment-interior scaping.

"We are constantly trying to identify new varieties, to make wholesalers aware of new hybrids," he says. "We are essentially an educational association, teaching wholesalers about quality and availability, retailers how to display and tend the plants in their shops, and householders how to best care for them."

Members utilize the latest techniques of plant research, production and marketing.

Most of our imports are from South and Central America, areas with similar climate and conditions for growth, added Murray. "They are inspected at the port of entry by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Most of the Florida growers go abroad to seek out plants that North Americans and Europeans might enjoy." He said Europeans outdo Americans in house plants per capita.

A Florida native, Murray worked in landscaping for 13 years before joining the association a year ago. In the association's Apopka office, which is periodically stocked and tended by growers with demonstration plants, there was a grouping of 15 attractive specimens. The week had been busy, with a new foliage plant show in nearby Orlando attended by 145 exhibitors and 4,500 growers from many parts of the world.

Apopka, a quiet little community in Central Florida, has been a growing center for plant growers for half a century. Murray said the foliage industry now utilized 79 million square feet for indoor or patio plant growing and has become the state's largest agricultural pursuit, outranking Central Florida's citrus two years ago.

"More and more people are acquiring plants as they are staying closer to home because of world and travel conditions," said Murray. "This is advancing the foliage industry."

Fast-Food Future

By Gaynor Maddox

The perilous condition of our national economy suggests that increasingly popular "fast foods" may be appearing almost nightly on the dinner tables of some American homes.

"Shocking? Not according to some leading home economists, who are seeking to help consumers maintain adequate nutrition despite soaring food prices.

Yes, snacks such as pizzas have definite appeal to young and old, have good nutritional records, and leave no leftovers," points out home economist Marian Tripp, who directs a thriving public-relations business in Chicago.

Mrs. Tripp notes that an ever increasing number of women are holding paying jobs, full time or part time.

"It seems the leisurely meal is no longer expected in the home," she says. "It is costly in time and materials. Yes, a series of snack foods now takes the sit-down meal's place."

Mrs. Tripp, a widow with two college-age sons, advises many food manufacturers of shifts in family eating patterns as a member of the consumers committee of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

"Contrary to the general impression about teen-agers and their eating habits," she says, "I have observed that my own sons, their friends and many other high-school-age youngsters show a definite care about getting fat. They do watch their diet reasonably well."

Mrs. Tripp credits rising food prices for the trend toward preparing "foreign" recipes that call for less meat and more vegetables and grains.

She calls particular attention to Chinese dishes with their emphasis on lightly cooked vegetables served with small amounts of meat, poultry or seafood-and, of course, rice.

Another example is increasingly popular chili, which combines beans, seasonings and a little meat to produce a lively, nutritious meal for a cost far lower than that of the traditional steak and potatoes.

Mrs. Tripp endorses the new Dietary Guidelines for Americans proposed by the departments of Agriculture and Health and Human Services.

"Actually, they are about the same recommendations that most rational people follow," she says. "To attain and keep health and vigor, people must eat with intelligence."

"I think most do today," despite the great strain this puts on the family food budget."

A lot of old-timers have been credited with the statement: "When both sides play the same suit, one is probably crazy." But we can tell you that Mike Gottlieb made it.

Today we give an example of Mike going one step further and deliberately shifting from his own suit to defeat a game contract.

His diamond lead was normal. East's jack held the trick and he continued with the queen. South had to duck for a second time and now Mike overtook with his king and shifted to the 10 of spades.

Mike had seen that he was not going to defeat the contract with diamond tricks.

That wasn't too difficult to figure out. He had no entry anywhere.

Wouldn't a passive defense of sticking with diamonds be best in any event? Wouldn't a spade shift be a giveaway?

Mike never worried about overtricks. He concentrated on contracts. He knew that South liked to bid notrump and wouldn't let a little thing like not having a spade stopper deter him. Then Mike

Dear Abby

California Ex-Cons Can Vote After Parole

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Someone wrote in asking if a friend who had served time in prison was eligible to vote. You said, "Unless your friend receives a full pardon from the governor of his state, he is ineligible to vote. (And for a federal offense, one needs a pardon from the president of the United States.)"

Abby, in California, anyone released from prison is considered as having paid society for his mistake and once again is a citizen with the right to vote.

B.D.K. OF CALIFORNIA

DEAR B.D.K.: I referred your letter to my friend, Justice Stanley Mosk, who serves as a judge on the Supreme Court of California. His reply:

"Release from prison is almost invariably subject to parole conditions. One in prison, or one on parole, may not vote in California. (Article II, sec. 4 of the California Constitution provides, in relevant part, '...for the disqualification of electors while mentally incompetent or imprisoned or on parole for the conviction of a felony.')"

"Thus, for example, a person who had been given a life sentence and released on parole for life would never be able to vote unless pardoned by the governor. However, one who completes his parole may vote in California."

"California is somewhat unique in this respect, and more tolerant of ex-felons than most states. Your reply is undoubtedly completely correct for the vast majority of states."

DEAR ABBY: Your mention of "employee pilfering" reminds me of our office problems and a possible solution. Only it's not the employees we worry about, it's our patients (I am a physician).

We cannot always detect the thieves, and we have been robbed repeatedly. Now when a particularly scruffy drug patient shows up, said patient is routinely "weighed" coming and going. We have turned up everything from forceps to house plants.

SAN DIEGO M.D.

DEAR M.D.: You're lucky. I recently noticed that all the furniture in the lobby of a luxury apartment building was bolted to the floor, and the lovely lamps and other accessories were chained to the walls!

Upon inquiring, I was informed that twice the lobby had been cleaned out by burglars, dressed like "movers" with a truck to haul the stuff away! How's that for chutzpah?

DEAR ABBY: An anecdote regarding thumb sucking: I am a piano tuner. One day I was sitting on a piano stool tuning a piano while a 3-year-old child stood watching me with her thumb in her mouth.

I picked her up and placed her on my knee. (Her thumb was still in her mouth.) Then I took out my partial plate with four front teeth in it, and I said, "See what happens when you suck your thumb?"

Her mother told me later, "She has never sucked her thumb since."

Ex-Lover Gets 3% Of Money Demand

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—Pinky Henderson said her wealthy live-in lover, an Avon cosmetics heir, promised to take care of her forever. But a judge, ruling "hyperbole is the language of lovers," awarded her less than 3 percent of what she demanded.

"Such language alone cannot be said to form the basis of any contractual obligation," said Broward County Circuit Judge Miette K. Burnstein. "What pallor the courts would cast on courtship if they were to hold otherwise."

The decision Monday awarded $167,000 to Rosemary "Pinky" Henderson, who had sued A. Douglas Henderson for nearly $6 million. Ms. Henderson, 40, had contended the 34-year-old cosmetics heir should be held to an alleged promise he made during their five-year romance to take care of her forever.

The judge ruled Ms. Henderson had not met the burden of proof to reap the financial rewards of a "life-pooling arrangement."

Texas Electric Sets Open House At New Building

TESCO'S NEW BUILDING -- This new building located at 2301 Ave. R now houses Texas Electric Service Company's offices in Snyder. Open House is scheduled Thursday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., beginning with a ribbon-cutting ceremony at the main entrance. The new facility provides drive-in service facilities and a spacious parking area as well as modern up-to-date offices for personnel. The public is invited to visit the new offices during tomorrow's open house event, at which time local personnel and TESCO officials from out of town will be on hand to greet visitors. (SDN Staff Photo)

Texas Electric Service Co. is going to show off its new offices tomorrow, and Henry Clark thinks it's about time.

The new building is a dream come true for Clark, TESCO's manager here, and he is anxious for all Snyder area residents to see the new facilities at 2301 Avenue R first-hand.

There will be a ribbon-cutting ceremony attended by Snyder Goldcoaters at 10 a.m. tomorrow and thereafter it will be "open house" until 5 p.m.

Clark has been looking forward to this event for the past eight years -- at least. Anyway, it was about eight years ago that he approached company officials up the line about the possibility of establishing offices here with more parking facilities and with drive-in service. They've got it all in the new building which was erected by Mike Line Co.

There is parking around two sides of the building, as well as in front on the Ave. R side, and the drive-in facility already has become so popular that most customers already are taking advantage of the opportunity to transact their business with TESCO without leaving their cars.

When TESCO occupied the new building recently, it moved from a location on the west side of the Snyder square that had been the site of the company's offices here since 1929. The building there had been revamped in 1958 following a fire that destroyed the former Owens Department Store and damaged several other buildings.

The new facilities include business offices, the manager's office and a large "Ready Room" for meetings, plus demonstration kitchen facilities.

In earlier years, it seemed that something always came up to cause delays whenever plans for a new TESCO building were mentioned. Several times in recent years, a decision to proceed appeared to be on the horizon, but it always got sidetracked before plans could be firmed up.

Last year, however, the project got the final green light, and TESCO entered into an agreement with Mike Line Co. to construct the building and lease it to the power company.

Several out-of-town TESCO officials are expected here tomorrow for the ribbon-cutting and open house, along with local TESCO personnel.

T.E. Shelburne and Son, Inc., of Snyder, was the general contractor for the building, and Joseph D. Hinton of Snyder was the architect. Sub-contractors were John Velasquez Plumbing, Concrete, Inc.; Price Bros., Snyder Glass & Mirror, Snyder Electric, Snyder Heating and Air Conditioning, and Teal Carpets.

Offshore Leases Get Green Light

WASHINGTON (AP) - Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus, declaring offshore oil and gas leases one of the "most environmentally benign" energy sources available to the country, has given final approval to an accelerated leasing program covering the next five years.

Andrus' action came despite strong objections from environmental groups that had sought to delete sales off Alaska and Northern California.

The program announced Tuesday provides for 36 offshore lease sales through 1985, a 20 percent increase over what Andrus had recommended one year ago, before President Carter unveiled his latest program to increase domestic energy supplies.

"It would be a crime to prevent us as a nation from realizing the immense benefits of this unique asset," Andrus said in announcing his decision. "I have worked hard to make certain that the program provides to the public the financial return and the environmental protection it requires and deserves."

Frances Beinecke, an attorney with the Natural Resources Defense Council, said her group was disappointed in Andrus' decision and termed some minor changes made in the final schedule "meaningless." She said the group was considering court action to block some sales. The council had argued that oil drilling in Alaska's North Aleutian shelf should not be permitted because the area contains the world's largest salmon fishing grounds. The group also contended that the technology does not yet exist to contain oil spills in icy seas and thus the other Alaska sales should be delayed until after 1985.

The schedule Andrus unveiled includes 11 sales in the Gulf of Mexico, six in the Atlantic, four off California, 10 off Alaska and five sales that will reoffer areas on which no bids were received in earlier sales. Seven of the sales would be in frontier areas off Alaska where leasing has not previously taken place.

The final lease schedule includes:

1980: Three sales, two in the Gulf of Mexico and one in the Gulf of Alaska.

1981: Seven sales, two in the Gulf of Mexico, one off California, one in the South Atlantic, one in Alaska's Cook Inlet, one in the Mid-Atlantic and one reoffering.

1982: Seven sales, two in the Gulf of Mexico, one in Alaska's Norton Basin, one in Alaska's St. George Basin, one off Southern California, one in the North Atlantic and one reoffering.

Dear Snyder:

Drop in Thursday and help us open our new house

We at Texas Electric have a new home in Snyder -- to better serve you.

We're a lot easier for you to get to now. Our new office -- at 2301 Avenue R -- offers plenty of places to park.

In fact, with our new drive-in window, you don't have to get out of your car at all if you don't want to.

We do hope you'll drop in and visit, though. Especially this Thursday, when we're having an open house from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

There'll be an official ribbon-cutting ceremony at 10 o'clock. Plus, we'll have refreshments all day long.

We're proud to be part of the progress and development of Snyder. So come by Thursday and look us over.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Professional help needed

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB What is your opinion about birth control and depression? My daughter is 25 years old and has been taking the pill for five years. Also for five years she has suffered from cycles of depression, which have become worse during the past six months. She has been suicidal in her depressive moods. Is depression a side effect of the pills?

DEAR READER Probably not. It's certainly true that hormones can affect one's mood, and many women experience this with the different stages of the menstrual cycle. That's directly related to the amount of estrogen and progesterone that's formed at different stages of the cycle.

A depression as bad as your letter describes is something more than ordinary mood swings and deserves professional attention.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 10-10, Depression: The Ups and Downs of Life. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

A great deal can be done to help control depressions. There are new medicines that can be used for this purpose and it can really make an enormous difference in a person's life.

While we all experience ups and downs in mood that affect our productivity and life in general, there are degrees of this which are not normal. In these cases, professional help is indicated.

There are many people who have depressions that go unrecognized. An executive may retire and then have a change in personality which people attribute to age when, in fact, it's a depression because he's lost his previous position of authority and importance.

There are some things that people can do to help avoid depressions. This includes having goals to achieve, being personally involved with other people in the daily fabric of life and being sure to include things in life which you really enjoy. These measures are particularly helpful in managing the ordinary up and down swings that people have.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Do you think obesity is caused by a disease — something to do with sex?

DEAR READER — No. If by sex you mean the sex act, it has no relationship to obesity. One enterprising physician a few years ago suggested that sexual activity could be helpful in preventing obesity and popularized his philosophy with the statement, "Reach for your mate instead of the plate." Well, regardless of what you reach for, if it doesn't contain calories it would be preferable to eating if you have a weight problem. But I wouldn't count on the amount of calories involved in sexual activity to be much help in controlling obesity.

Now, it is true that some diseases can contribute to obesity problems. A classic example is the relatively rare person with low thyroid function. The body doesn't use as many calories and consequently these people tend to gain weight even though they're not consuming a lot of calories. Certain other endocrine disorders also affect body metabolism which in turn affects how many calories a body can process without developing obesity.

Harper's Magazine Mourned

NEW YORK (AP)—The death of Harper's magazine, the nation's oldest monthly, is being mourned as the end of an American tradition by scholars and writers across the country.

"I just heard the news ... and I'm heartbroken," said Roger Angell, senior fiction editor of The New Yorker magazine, after Tuesday's announcement that Harper's will fold in August.

Founded in 1850, the magazine of literary and social commentary published new authors ranging from Herman Melville and Henry James to George Plimpton and Tom Wolfe. Other notable contributors included Mark Twain, Stephen Crane, E.B. White, William F. Buckley and Joan Didion.

"We're really sad about it, it's the loss of a real American tradition," said Mortimer B. Zuckerman, publisher of The Atlantic Monthly, Harper's main competitor. "We feel particularly sensitive because we are the last bearer of the tradition of the serious magazine."

"The narrowing of the numbers of magazines being published is a bad sign for writers and readers themselves," lamented Angell. "It's very bad for young writers, too."

Lewis H. Lapham, Harper's editor, said he received word Tuesday morning from the Minneapolis Star and Tribune Co.

the magazine's owner since 1965, that the end had arrived. But he said he wasn't cynical about the demise of the magazine whose circulation had climbed to 325,000.

"It had a long and illustrious history, and it's never made money — not in more than 10 of its 130 years," Lapham said. He added that he had organized a group to buy the magazine, but that the owners rejected the bid because "they didn't think it was heavily enough capitalized."

The United States exploded a hydrogen bomb in the Pacific Ocean on March 1, 1954. The explosion was rated at 12 to 14 megatons of explosive power.

Convicted Baby Killer Wants Off Death Row

HUNTSVILLE (AP)—The state's only female inmate on death row says she no longer wants to die and is now confident that a motion appealing her death sentence "will be successful."

"I am alone here, but not lonely," says Linda May Burnett, 32, sentenced last year to die by lethal injection for the 1978 murder of 2-year-old Jason Phillips.

The body of the infant, his parents and his grandparents were found in a shallow grave near Winnie, Texas. Ovide Joseph Dugas, 32, was also sentenced to death for Jason's murder.

"I thought I'd come here and they'd kill me, just like that," Mrs. Burnett says. "I didn't know anything about appeals."

"Because of the shame I felt, I wanted to die. They convicted me of killing a baby and I just can't stand the thought of that."

She now says she is innocent, claiming she was not even present when Jason was killed, despite her admission while under hypnosis that she accompanied Dugas and shot the four older people.

adultery and her only mistake was providing an alibi for her lover.

She says three empty cells "separate her from the other inmates at the Goree Unit of the Texas Department of Corrections south of Huntsville."

"At times, the other prisoners have been very, very cruel to me," she says. "There's no name I have not been called. Last year I had a cup of urine thrown on me. I didn't tell, but I'd tell now. There's no way I'd take that now."

Her basement cell is no larger than her bed in her former Nederland home, she says, referring to the prison as a "zoo."

She says other prisoners have called her "Baby Killer" and "snitch."

Mrs. Burnett says she now receives about 25 letters a week from friends, family and male inmates on Death Row. She says a nephew who drives a truck blows his horn three times each time he passes on nearby Interstate 45.

She spends her time answering letters, watching soap operas, drawing cartoons and crocheting. Visits from her three daughters are high points, she says.

"I spent most of the last

14 months crying," she says. "but I am confident now that my appeal will be successful."

But the wait, which may be as long as three years, could be a painful one.

"I am not mentally OK here all the time," she says.
